BY:

Michael Brajevich, CEO
Butler Amusements, Inc.

Beaverton, OR 97008

Subject: Administrator's Determination Pursuant to Section 214(c)(14) of the Immigration and Nationality Act (INA) and Applicable Regulations Pertaining to Violations Involving H-2B Nonimmigrant Workers

Reference #: 1689932

Dear Mr. Brajevich:

On January 29, 2018 you were served with a determination letter with certified mail number 1ZW8Y8320292571353. This letter was sent in error. This letter dated February 6, 2018 rescinds and replaces the January 29, 2018 letter.

An investigation conducted by this office of Butler Amusements, Inc. (herein Butler Amusements) under the H-2B provisions of the INA, as amended, 8 U.S.C. § 1101(a)(15)(H)(ii)(b) et seq., 1184(c)(14), and 20 CFR Part 655, subpart A (2008) and applicable procedural regulations in 29 CFR Part 503 (2015), covering the period from February 1, 2013 to April 24, 2013, disclosed that Butler Amusements committed the following violations regarding the USCIS Form I-129, Petition for a Nonimmigrant Worker (I-129 Petition) and the Application for Temporary Employment Certification (ETA Form 9142 with Appendix B) (9142 Application) filed under the 2008 regulations: substantial failure to comply with the proper job classification requirement. Any I-129 Petition or 9142 Application included in this investigation is listed or enclosed.

The enclosed Summary of Violations and Remedies indicates the specific violation regarding the I-129 Petition and 9142 Application, which we discussed in the final conference, and the remedy imposed for the violation.

As a consequence of this H-2B violation, $24,987.20 in unpaid wages is owed to 9 H-2B nonimmigrant workers. The same violation also resulted in the assessment of civil money penalties in the total amount of $10,000.00. These amounts are explained in detail in the enclosed Summary of Violation and Remedy. Please note that where Butler Amusements violated both an I-129 requirement and the corresponding 9142 Application requirement, the associated back wages and civil money penalties are both listed under the citation on the enclosed Summary of Violation and Remedy. However, the back wages and civil money penalties for such violations will be collected under only one citation.

Butler Amusements is liable for any ongoing violations. Butler Amusements must pay these back wages and civil money penalties no later than 30 calendar days after the date of this determination unless Butler Amusements requests an appeal as described below. The civil money penalties must be paid by submitting a certified check or money order payable to "Wage and Hour Division - Labor" to the Wage and Hour Division, U.S. Department of Labor, 620 SW Main Street, Room 423, Portland, OR 97205.

Butler Amusements must pay back wages in the amounts listed on the Summary of Unpaid Wages, Form WH-56, which was previously provided to Butler Amusements. Butler Amusements is responsible for withholding the legally required deductions (e.g., Federal and State income tax and FICA) and paying these amounts and Butler Amusements' contributions to the appropriate entities. A certified check or money order in the net amount of back wages should be made payable to the names of the individuals owed back wages or "Wage and Hour Division - Labor" to the Wage and Hour Division, U.S. Department of Labor, 620 SW Main Street, Room 423, Portland, OR 97205-3028.

This debt is subject to the assessment of interest, administrative cost charges and penalties in accordance with the Debt Collection Improvement Act of 1996 and U.S. Department of Labor policies. Interest will be assessed at the Treasury Tax and Loan Account rate on any principal that becomes delinquent. The rate is currently 1%. Administrative cost charges will be assessed to help defray the Government's cost of collecting this debt. A penalty at the rate of 6% will be assessed on any portion of the debt remaining delinquent for more than 90 days. In order to avoid these charges, Butler Amusements must forward payment of the civil money penalties to the Wage and Hour Division, U.S. Department of Labor, 620 SW Main Street, Room 423, Portland, OR 97205 by the indicated due date. Please note that any pending bankruptcy action may affect the foregoing remedies. Where appropriate, the Department of Homeland Security and the Department of Labor's Office of Foreign Labor Certification (OFLC) will be notified about H-2B violations.

Additionally, pursuant to 20 CFR 655.31(d)(4) (2008), if Butler Amusements fails to pay the back wages and/or civil money penalties by the indicated due date, OFLC may seek to debar Butler Amusements from receiving future labor certifications for a prescribed period of time.

Butler Amusements has the right to request a hearing on this determination. Such a request must be dated, be typewritten or legibly written, specify the issues stated in this notice of determination on which a hearing is requested, state the specific reasons why the requestor believes this determination to be in error, be signed by the requestor or by an authorized representative, and include the address at which the requestor or the authorized representative desires to receive further communications relating to the hearing request.

The request must be made to and received by the Chief Administrative Law Judge (OALJ) at the following address no later than 30 calendar days after the date of this determination:

Chief Administrative Law Judge
U.S. Department of Labor
800 K Street NW, Room 400 North
Washington, DC 20001-8002

If Butler Amusements does not make a timely request for a hearing, this determination will become a final order of the Secretary of Labor and may no longer be appealed.

The procedure for filing a request for a hearing is provided in 29 C.F.R. 503.43. Please note that 29 CFR 503.43(f) requires that a copy of any such request for a hearing must also be sent to me and to those parties listed below. Due to the delayed delivery of mail in certain areas, you may wish to transmit your request to the OALJ via facsimile at 202-693-7365 to ensure timely receipt.

The fact that the above sanctions/remedies are being imposed for the H-2B violations found at this time does not preclude the taking of other enforcement action as is deemed appropriate by the Department of Labor or the assessment of back wages or civil money penalties for additional violations of the H-2B provisions found at some future time.

REQUEST FOR HEARING

Respondent hereby requests a hearing[1] on a determination dated February 6, 2018,[2] and issued by the Wage and Hour Division under Reference #: 1736916, and says:

This is a request for a hearing on a determination issued following an investigation of the Respondent, a participant in the H-2B program.

Pursuant to 29 C.F.R. § 503.43 (b) (3 & 4), Respondent now identifies issues and reasons why the determination is in error. In further response, Respondent says:

General statement of reasons why the determination is in error: The WHD has no basis to enforce the now-vacated 2008 Rule or any other relevant standard. The provisions of the 2015 IFR cannot be applied retroactively to this case. WHD lacks any basis to show a

[1] By filing this request, Respondent does not waive its right to seek immediate or other relief, including from the retroactive application of the 2015 IFR or the application of the now-vacated 2008 Rule.

[2] The determination letter "rescinded and replaced" a prior determination letter dated January 29, 2018. As such, any claim under the prior determination letter has been waived. To the extent that the prior determination letter has any operative effect, Respondent appeals it as well.

willful misrepresentation or a substantial failure. This employer is exempt from the Fair Labor Standards Act. The Wage and Hour Division has failed to proceed within the statute of limitations, in whole or in part. This employer reasonably relied upon professional counsel to prepare its #9142 and I-129. This employer used a prepayment plan and properly determined all deductions and any overtime obligations. Respondent did not act willfully by hiring professionals to advise it. Department of Labor has made it unnecessarily difficult to, and has failed to issue proper notice so that Respondent may, know with precision what it regards as the proper procedure. Wage and Hour Division has improperly calculated any alleged back wages, hours worked, or civil monetary penalties. Wage and Hour Division has improperly determined "compensable work time." Wage and Hour Division has improperly relied upon U.S. workers, but it has no jurisdiction over U.S. workers. Department of Labor has not promulgated meaningful regulations for how an FLSA-exempt employer is to proceed. Wage and Hour Division has failed to credit Respondent for facilities, such as bunkhouses, food, local convenience travel, in and out of country travel, a prepayment plan, prepaid spot-to-spot variations, bonuses, and reimbursement of employee expenses. Wage and Hour Division failed to credit Respondent according to governing special procedures. Wage and Hour Division lacks the authority to enforce the terms of the #9142 or I-129. Respondent did not substantially fail to meet a condition in its #9142 or I-129 or willfully misrepresent a material fact in its #9142 or I-129.

Issue No. 1: The Wage and Hour Division's determination fails to state any – much less an adequate - factual and legal basis, thereby depriving Respondent of due process notice of the allegations and impeding Respondent's ability to identify and articulate issues and supporting rationale.

Reasons why the determination is in error: 29 C.F.R. § 503.42(a)(5); Administrative Procedures Act.

Issue No. 2: To the extent that the WHD determination states any factual or legal basis, it is incorrect and legally insufficient.

Reasons why the determination is in error: General statement of reasons.

Issue No. 3: The penalties and back wages proposed in the WHD determination are excessive and otherwise inappropriate.

Reasons why the determination is in error: 29 C.F.R. § 503.19 & § 503.23; General statement of reasons.

Issue No. 4: Respondent is entitled to judgment as a matter of law.

Reasons why the determination is in error: General statement of reasons.

Issue No. 5.: Respondent did not engage in any willful or substantial failure to comply with H-2B program requirements.

Reasons why the determination is in error: General statement of reasons.

Issue No. 6: Respondent accurately described its job offer.

Reasons why the determination is in error: General statement of reasons.

Issue No. 7: Respondent did not offer job terms and working conditions that were less favorable than those offered to temporary foreign workers.

Reasons why the determination is in error: General statement of reasons.

Issue No. 8: Respondent properly paid wages as required by the H-2B program.

Reasons why the determination is in error: General statement of reasons.

Issue No. 9: Respondent was entitled to credit for providing bunkhouses, local convenience travel, in and out of country travel, and a prepayment plan.

Reasons why the determination is in error: General statement of reasons.

Issue No. 10: Respondent did not substantially fail to restrict H-2B workers to an approved itinerary.

Reasons why the determination is in error: General statement of reasons.

Issue No. 11: The Department of Labor lacks jurisdiction, rule-making authority or enforceable rules for the H-2B program.

Reasons why the determination is in error: G.H. Daniels III & Assocs., Inc. v. Perez, No. 13-1479, 2015 U.S. App. Lexis 15689, at *12 (10th Cir. Sept. 3, 2015); *Bayou Lawn & Landscape Servs. v. Issue No. 14: The employer is not liable because of its good faith and reasonable grounds to believe there was no violation.

Reasons why the determination is in error: 29 U.S.C. § 260.

Issue No. 15: Neither DHS nor DOL have provided notice as to the method for and legal requirements for completing the I-129, and have misapplied the job classification to I-129's job description and wage rate.

Reasons why the determination is in error: DHS instructions for the I-129.

Issue No. 16: WHD failed to apply the "incidental activities" rule.

Reasons why the determination is in error: 73 Fed. Reg. 77110, 77117 (Dec. 18, 2008).

For these reasons, we request a hearing of the Wage and Hour Division's determination. Further communications should be directed to counsel at the address listed below.

The parties must hold a conference required by 29 C.F.R. § 18.80(b) prior to filing a prehearing statement in order to streamline the hearing process.

    a. PREHEARING STATEMENT that contains the information required by 29 C.F.R. § 18.80(c). The prehearing statement must include a statement that the conference required by 29 C.F.R. § 18.80(b) has been held. A joint pre-hearing statement is not required. See 29 C.F.R. § 18.80(d).

    b. WITNESS LIST that contains: (1) The name and address of each witness who will actually testify at the hearing; a precise statement of what the testimony will prove; and an estimate of the time required for the direct examination of each witness; and (2) The names and addresses of each witness whose deposition will be offered, with a precise statement of what the testimony will prove.

        (1) Each exhibit must be individually marked with a numbered or lettered tab. Each page of the exhibits offered at the hearing must be sequentially numbered in the lower right corner.

        (2) The exhibits must be bound either at the top or the sides.

Do not submit the evidence to the presiding judge before the hearing. Bring one copy of the exhibits to the hearing for the judge and one copy of the exhibits for the witnesses to use. The exhibits for the judge and witnesses may be printed double-sided so that they read like a book.

e. VOLUMINOUS RECORDS, such as medical or financial records, that are submitted as evidence must include a written summary of what is included and the purpose for inclusion, as well as point to the specific page that supports the contention. If applicable, the documents should include summary totals of any amounts requested.

V. SANCTIONS : Unless good cause is shown, parties will not be permitted to litigate issues, call witnesses, or introduce evidence they failed to disclose at the times and in the way this order requires. Failure to comply fully with this Order subjects the offending party to sanctions. See generally 29 C.F.R. §§ 18.12(b), 18.35(c), 18.50(d)(2)&(3), 18.52, 18.57, 18.87.

OFFICE OF ADMINISTRATIVE LAW JUDGES
UNITED STATES DEPARTMENT OF LABOR

In the Matter of: ADMINISTRATOR, WAGE & HOUR DIVISION. Prosecuting party, v. BUTLER AMUSEMENTS, INC. and MICHAEL BRAJEVICH, an individual[1] Respondent.	ADMINISTRATIVE PROCEEDING Case No. 2018-TNE-00019 JOINT REQUEST FOR STATUS CONFERENCE REGARDING DISCOVERY PLAN

In accord with the Court's Notice of Hearing and Pre-Hearing Order dated March 30, 2018, the parties have discussed ways to narrow the issues and streamline this litigation, as well as possible avenues for settlement. The parties request a status conference to aid in submitting a proposed discovery plan.

In this case, the Administrator has alleged that Respondents violated the H-2B provisions of the INA when they failed to correctly identify the job classifications and corresponding required wage rate on the Forms I-129 and 9142 for ten workers hired for their 2013 season.

[1] Respondents do not concede that Mr. Brajevich is properly named as Respondent in this matter.

As a result, as set forth in the Determination Letter, the Administrator assessed a penalty of $10,000 for the violations and calculated that $24,987.60 is due to nine H-2B workers.

Respondents' defense consists, in part, of a number of legal arguments, including basic jurisdictional arguments as well as arguments that even if the Administrator has the authority to enforce these provisions, there is no authority to recover backwages under these circumstances, or that the misclassification was not substantial.

The Administrator does not agree with Respondents' arguments but both parties recognize that engaging in discovery, while these legal issues remain, will consume substantial time and resources. Nobody wants to spend resources on legal theories that ultimately will be found to be baseless. Further, until these legal issues are resolved, meaningful settlement discussions are not possible.

The parties request that the Court schedule a status conference to establish a procedure by which the parties might brief the legal issues, while staying discovery. Among other things, the parties believe that phasing the case in this way will both facilitate settlement or substantially narrow any necessary discovery.

ORDER VACATING HEARING, STAYING PROCEEDINGS AND SETTING BRIEFING SCHEDULE

This matter arises under the H-2B provisions of the INA, as amended, 8 U.S.C. §§ 1101(a)(15)(H)(ii)(b) et seq., 1184(c)(14), and 20 C.F.R. Part 655, subpart A (2008) and the applicable procedural regulations at 29 C.F.R. Part 503 (2015). Attorney P. Wayne Pierce represents the Respondents. Attorney Susan Seletsky represents the Administrator. A hearing is scheduled for September 12 and 13, 2018, in Portland, Oregon.

On May 9, 2018, I held a conference call with the parties to discuss the procedural posture of the case. The parties requested to resolve certain legal issues without the need to incur additional litigation expense while they did so. The parties agreed to vacate the hearing and stay all the proceedings while they litigated the legal issues.

Therefore, all dates are vacated. Discovery and other proceedings are stayed until such time as a ruling on the legal matters is issued. Respondent will file any motion regarding the legal issue no later than May 30, 2018. The Prosecuting Party will file any response no later than June 13, 2018. Respondent may file a permissible reply no later than June 20, 2018. I will address the stay of proceedings and any new hearing dates based upon the ruling on the motions.

STATEMENT OF ISSUES

1. Whether this case is subject to de novo review.

2. Whether the 2008 DOL regulations or the procedural portions of the 2015 DOL regulations are enforceable.

3. Whether Respondent was on notice of regulatory requirements.

4. Whether Respondent substantially violated any regulatory requirements.

5. Whether Respondent willfully or substantially failed to comply with DOL requirements.

6. Whether the remedy of "back wages" is available for misclassification.

7. Whether Respondent is entitled to a credit for providing "facilities" to its H-2B workers.

8. Whether this action is barred by statute of limitations or laches.

9. Whether Michael Brajevich is individually liable.

PRELIMINARY STATEMENT

This is a misclassification case in which the Administrator contends that Respondent allowed a small number of its H-2B workers to work outside of their authorized workscope. This motion seeks summary judgment on certain legal issues, leaving for another day any protracted factual issues that might remain.

In this case, the Administrator is attempting to enforce substantive provisions from DOL's 2008 regulations and procedural provisions under the 2015 rules, but neither of them are enforceable. The Administrator has failed to establish that Respondent was on notice of any pertinent regulatory requirement, or that the Respondent substantially violated any such requirement. Further, Respondent did not willfully fail to comply because it reasonably relied upon DOL's own pronouncements. The Administrator is not authorized to pursue "back wages" in a misclassification case. Moreover, this action is time-barred by virtue of both the statute limitations and laches. Finally, Michael Brajevich cannot be sued in his individual capacity.

STATEMENT OF FACTS

Respondent is a mobile amusement operator. Because it has been unable to recruit sufficient numbers of U.S. workers, Respondent has participated in the H-2B program for many years.

For the 2013 season, Respondent submitted an ETA Form 9141 to procure a prevailing wage. The form reflected a job title of "Amusement and Recreation Attendants – Traveling Carnival," along with a "suggested" Standard Occupational Code of "39-3091" and a Standard Occupational Code occupation title of "Amusement and Recreation Attendants." Job duties were listed as a "variety of attending duties," such as setup, tear down, and operation of amusement rides. The Employment & Training Administration opted not to request further information, and issued prevailing wages on November 2, 2012. Exhibit 1, ETA Form 9141 Prevailing Wage Determination (emphasis added).

On November 7, 2012, Respondent submitted an ETA Form 9142 application for an H-2B labor certification approving 246 H-2B workers. The 9142 application repeated the same job title, SOC code, SOC occupation title, and job duties from the #9141. When asked for "Special Requirements" for the job, Respondent denied that there were any relevant "requirements." The Employment & Training Administration once again opted not to request further information, and issued the labor certification on December 14, 2012. Exhibit 2, ETA Form 9142.

On December 17, 2012, Respondent submitted its I-129 to USCIS. In pertinent part, Respondent reiterated that the "job title" was "Amusement and Recreation Attendants."

Exhibit 3, I-129. On January 4, 2013, USCIS approved the petition, once again without requesting further evidence. Exhibit 4, I-797B Visa Approval Notice.

Wage and Hour Division auditor Carrie Aguilar initiated an investigation several months later. An initial final conference was held on November 22, 2012, during which Ms. Aguilar revealed that, out of 246 H-2B workers, she had identified some 10 H-2B workers who had been employed outside of their job code at some point during the first few months in the season:

H-2B workers	Ancillary duties	Correct SOC code	Correct wage rate
Saul Estadillo Herrera Gustavo Gamero Sergio Guzman Jose Ortego Fernando Preza	Drivers	53-3032	$19.37
Jaime Hernandez Felipe Villegas Quijano	Maintenance workers	49-9071	$18.67
Omar Lopez Antonio Mendez	Supervisors	39-1021	$18.98
Marilu Zepeda	Office support	43-9199	$17.82

Exhibit 6, E-Mail from Wayne Pierce to Carrie Aguilar. Based on this theory of the audit, Ms. Aguilar calculated a total payment of $25,946.80 as "back wages due" covering February 2-April 27, 2013. Exhibit 5, Summary of Unpaid Wages.

Respondent disputed the theory of the investigation on multiple grounds. Among others, Respondent pointed out that the audit assumed incorrectly that each worker was employed 40 hours per week, and every hour of employment was in the alternative job code. In fact, the office support personnel would have been paid less under the alternative job code than what she was actually paid, and the DOLETA wage data was no longer publicly available because it is permanently updated every July 1 without preserving historical data. Exhibit 6.

In response, Ms. Aguilar sent an e-mail containing a website link to the current DOLETA wage data, but which did not include historical data from the prior season. Exhibit 7, E-Mail from Carrie Aguilar. For unknown reasons, Ms. Aguilar also substantially revised her "back wage" calculations for each of the 9 non-office workers with a new grand total of $24,987.60, and she completely dropped the office support personnel from the violation list. Exhibit 8, Revised Calculation of Back Wages.

For nearly the next 4 years, there was utterly no apparent activity on the file. On February 6, 2018, a determination letter was issued declaring that the investigation was based upon substantive provisions of the 2008 DOL H-2B regulations and the "procedural" provisions in the 2015 DOL rules. Purported violations during the period February 1-April 24, 2013, were identified in the I-129 and 9142 based on failing "to comply with the proper job classification requirement"and "plac[ing] workers in occupation(s) other than that listed on the I-129 Petition or the 9142 Application." The violations were specifically grounded in (1) Attestation #13 of the 9142, (2) 29 C.F.R. § 655.22 (n), and (3) the I-129's part 5, question 1. Although no per-employee calculations were revealed, the violations for 9 H-2B workers continued to total $24,987.20, plus $10,000 in civil monetary penalties. Exhibit 9, Determination Letter.

ARGUMENT

I. THE STANDARD OF REVIEW IS DE NOVO

The question of the standard of review was recently addressed in the H-2B case of Best Solutions USA, LLC, No. 2018-TLN-00117 (BALCA May 22, 2018) < https://www.oalj.dol.gov/DECISIONS/ALJ/TLN/2018/EMPLOYMENT_AND_TRAIN_v_BEST_SOLUTIONS_USA_L_2018TLN00117_(MAY_22_2018)_173714_CADEC_P

D.PDF . As explained by Judge Barto, both the immigration statute and the implementing regulations "are silent as to the proper standard of review." Id. at 3 n. 2. Because there are no "concerns" about the judiciary substituting its views for the agency's when "an agency tribunal" reviews "another adjudicator within the same agency," the appropriate standard of review is de novo rather than "arbitrary and capricious." Id.

Another important factor counseling in favor of de novo review is that the Wage and Hour Division has chosen to operate outside of its purported area of expertise. It is the responsibility of the Employment and Training Administration to assign job codes. See 29 C.F.R. § 503.1 (b) (ETA is responsible for "matters concerning the obligations of an H-2B employer related to the temporary labor certification process ..., including obligations and assurances made by employers ....").

There is another, more-fundamental reason why de novo review governs this case. The Wage and Hour Division has enforcement authority precisely because Congress authorized the Department of Homeland Security to redelegate that authority to DOL. 8 U.S.C. § 1184 (c) (14). Once an agency receives redelegated authority, a redelegatee steps into the shoes of the redelegator and must act pursuant to the same standards and restrictions as those binding the agency granting the redelegated power. E.g., United States ex rel. Accardi v. Shaughnessy, 347 U.S. 260, 266 (1954) (when the subdelegator delegates discretion "as broad as the statute confers" on the subdelegatee, "the scope of the [subdelegator's] discretion became the yardstick of the [subdelegatee's]."); United States v. Hovey, 674 F. Supp. 161, 168 (D. Del. 1987) (the redelegatee must act pursuant to the same standards as the redelegator); United States v. Touby, 710 F. Supp. 551, 559 (D.N.J. 1989), aff'd, 909 F.2d 759 (3d Cir. 1990), aff'd, 500 U.S. 160 (1991) ("The subdelegate must be

The Department of Homeland Security's corollary, the Administrative Appeals Office, reviews all issues of fact, law, policy, and discretion de novo. Administrative Appeals Office Practice Manual § 3.4 (May, 2016) < https://www.uscis.gov/sites/default/files/USCIS/Laws/AAO/Practice%20Manual/AAO_Practice_Manual.pdf >. Thus, the same standard of de novo review applies in this case.

II. NEITHER THE SUBSTANTIVE PORTIONS OF THE 2008 DOL REGULATIONS NOR THE PROCEDURAL PORTIONS OF THE 2015 DOL REGULATIONS ARE ENFORCEABLE

The Administrator is proceeding on the assumption that he is free to elect to enforce the substantive provisions from the 2008 DOL regulations and the procedural portions of the 2015 DOL rules. The Administrator is wrong in both regards.

A. The 2008 Regulations No Longer Exist and Are Not Enforceable

Much attention has been spent on whether the 2008 DOL regulations are substantively enforceable after the federal court's vacatur in Perez v. Perez, No. 3:14-cv-00682 (N.D. Fla. Mar. 4, 2015). See, e.g., Administrator v. Strates Shows, Inc., No. 15-069 (ARB June 30, 2017) (DOL lacks subject matter jurisdiction to enforce the 2008 regulations); Administrator v. Wade Shows, Inc., No. 15-52 (ARB June 22, 2017) (same). On reconsideration, the ARB vacated these rulings, but it did so simply by "omit[ing] the characterization of the 2008 H-2B regulations as unenforceable." Administrator v. Drew's Lawn & Snow Serv., Inc., No. 2017-TNE-00001, at *3 (OALJ Apr. 10, 2018). Despite its tentativeness, the ARB's original rulings – without reversal – were correct and remain persuasive law. County of Los Angeles v. Davis, 440 U.S. 625, 646 n. 10 (1979) ("Although a decision vacating a judgment necessarily prevents the opinion of the lower court from being the law of the case, ... the expressions of the court below on the merits, if not reversed, will continue to have precedential weight and, until contrary authority is decided, are likely to be viewed as persuasive authority if not the governing law of the [lower appellate court].") (emphasis added).

DOL was very plain that the 2015 H-2B regulations "immediately replace[ ] the 2008 rule." 80 Fed. Reg. 24042, 24049 (Apr. 29, 2015) ("2015 H-2B regulations"). DOL knew that employers would be able to defend against enforcement actions under the 2008 H-2B regulations, and planned accordingly. DOL's policy choice to jettison rather than salvage the 2008 H-2B regulations was an integral element in justifying "good and substantial cause to issue this rule immediately" without notice and comment and with an immediate effective date. Id. at 24047, 24049. As part of its justification for abandoning normal notice and comment, DOL conceded the obvious impact of the federal court's vacatur on the 2008 H-2B regulations, which > remain[ed] vulnerable to challenges by employers in current and future enforcement proceedings based on the ground that the regulations DOL is seeking to enforce are void because DOL exceeded its statutory authority in unilaterally issuing the 2008 rule .... Therefore, employers subject to enforcement under the 2008 rule have an available defense that DOL is without regulatory authority to enforce rights and obligations in the H-2B program, leaving DOL in an untenable position with respect to its ability to require adherence to program standards.

Id. at 24048-49 (emphasis added). Because of this inability to prosecute employers in enforcement actions under the void 2008 H-2B regulations, DOL adopted a new enforcement practice under which "if the temporary stay is lifted, the vacatur of DOL's 2008 rule will void the enforcement regime by which DOL has carried out its statutorily-delegated enforcement authority." Id. at 24047 (emphasis added).

On April 30, 2015, the court lifted the stay because the 2015 H-2B regulations had "replace[d] the H-2B regulations at issue in this case." Perez v. Perez, No. 14-682 (N.D. Fla. Apr. 30, 2015) (ECF Doc. 49, at *2). See also Statement of Portia Wu, Assistant Secretary for Employment and Training, Before the Senate Comm. on Small Business & Entrepreneurship at 4 (May 6, 2015) (the court "lifted the stay of its vacatur of DOL's 2008 rule because DOL and DHS replaced it with a new comprehensive H-2B rule ....") (emphasis added).

For a period of months, DOL implemented its new practice, first articulated in the preamble to the 2015 H-2B regulations, that it would no longer pursue any enforcement actions for alleged violations of the 2008 H-2B regulations. See, e.g., Perez v. Perez, No. 14-682 (N.D. Fla. Aug. 28, 2015) (ECF Doc. 58, at *2) (according to plaintiff, DOL has indicated that it is complying with the injunction barring "enforcement" of the 2008 H-2B regulations for labor certifications issued before the injunction); Perez v. Perez, No. 14-682 (N.D. Fla. Sept. 4, 2015) (ECF Doc. 60, at *3) (according to DOL, "beginning on May 8, 2015, DOL moved to dismiss without prejudice several regulatory enforcement actions"); Administrator v. Southwest Commodities, 2015-TNE-00010 (OALJ May 8, 2015) (representative Administrator's motion to dismiss). During this time, DOL's policy continued to be that > the order to vacate – and therefore remove from the books – the 2008 Rule and bar[red DOL] from taking any future action to enforce the Rule.

> By removing the 2008 Rule from the books, DOL can no longer enforce any regulatory obligations imposed on employers under that Rule.
> ... [The vacatur order] prohibit[s] any new enforcement action under the Rule.

Perez v. Perez, No. 14-682 (N.D. Fla. Sept. 4, 2015) (ECF Doc. 60, at *1-2 & 2 n. 1) (emphasis in bold added) (emphasis in italics in original). DOL has never issued a public notice or comment that it was rescinding this prior practice.

On August 28, 2015, plaintiff filed an "Unopposed Motion to Clarify Permanent Injunction." Perez v. Perez, No. 14-682 (N.D. Fla. Aug. 28, 2015) (ECF Doc. 58, at *1). It is important to distinguish what the motion does not do from what it does. The motion takes no issue with the vacatur remedy; in fact, the only reference to a vacatur of any type occurs in the context of an unrelated case. Id. The unstated premise for the motion is that the sauce-for-the-goose-is-sauce-for-the-gander approach that plaintiff successfully argued to the federal court to apply the same reasoning to the 2008 H-2B regulations as it did to the 2012 H-2B regulations, did not apply to the same remedy. Thus, the motion misleadingly focuses exclusively on the injunctive relief. The plaintiff requested that the court clarify that the permanent injunction against enforcing the 2008 H-2B regulations "was not intended to deprive DOL of its authority to enforce compliance with the substantive work terms contained in labor certifications issued pursuant to the 2008 Regulation prior to the entry of the Court's permanent injunction." Id. (emphasis in original). Accordingly, plaintiff sought an order clarifying that the "permanent injunction ... only enjoined DOL from using the 2008 regulations to issue new labor certifications for H-2B workers and did not enjoin DOL from using its enforcement powers to ensure compliance with the terms and conditions of work promised in labor certifications approved prior to the effective date of the Court's injunction." Id. In response, DOL refrained from taking a position and merely recounted the impact of the vacatur and DOL's inability to pursue enforcement actions.

The federal court ruled on plaintiff's motion to clarify the permanent injunction by stating in its entirety:

> The relief requested is GRANTED. The Court clarifies that the permanent injunction was not intended to, and does not, apply retroactively.

Appx 111, Perez v. Perez, No. 14-682 (N.D. Fla. Sept. 4, 2015) (ECF Doc. 62, at *1) (emphasis added).

1. This Court Lacks Subject Matter Jurisdiction Based on the 2008 H-2B Regulations That DOL Voluntarily Replaced and Superseded by the 2015 H-2B Regulations. The well-established rule is that a regulation ceases to have operative effect when it is replaced by another regulation. This is the rule from Abington Memorial Hosp. v. Heckler, 750 F.2d 242, 244 (3d Cir. 1984), and it has been repeatedly followed. E.g., Mason Gen. Hosp. v. Secretary of the Dep't of Health & Human Servs., 809 F.2d 1220, 1223 (6th Cir. 1987); Menorah Med. Ctr. v. Heckler, 768 F.2d 292 (8th Cir. 1985); Lloyd Noland Hosp. & Clinic v. Heckler, 762 F.2d 1561, 1569 (11th Cir. 1985). See also Center for Science in the Pub. Interest v. Regan, 727 F.2d 1161, 1164 (D.C. Cir. 1984) (subsequent regulation "displaced" or "superseded" a prior regulation, and the prior regulation became "a dead letter, and cannot be revived"). This rule applies because the 2015 H-2B regulations replaced the 2008 H-2B regulations. This fact is stated in the 2015 H-2B regulations themselves, was the pivotal reason why the federal court lifted its stay, and is also reflected in numerous other contemporaneous administrative and litigation records. The Secretary of Labor might have resurrected the 2008 H-2B regulations merely by sanctioning them in a legitimate rulemaking proceeding, but once the Secretary of Labor chose to rush through with a replacement and to forgo public notice and comment, enforcement actions based upon the 2008 H-2B regulations were doomed and the policy dice were cast.

The Administrator has not rebutted this black-letter principle of administrative law. Rather, the Administrator apparently contends that this is a regulatory issue for which the agency's tribunals lack jurisdiction. Quite the opposite is true. Because the 2015 H-2B regulations explicitly adopted the policy of replacing the 2008 H-2B regulations and abandoning the previous enforcement regime, the ARB has no choice but to decline subject matter jurisdiction. Prince v. Westinghouse Savannah River Co., ARB No. 10-079, slip op. at *9 (ARB Nov. 17, 2010) (the ARB does not have "jurisdiction to pass on the validity of any portion of the Code of Federal Regulations ... and shall observe the provisions thereof ....").

2. This Court Lacks Subject Matter Jurisdiction Based on the 2008 H-2B Regulations When Those Regulations Were Vacated by a Court Order That Is Necessarily Retroactive. Even if the Secretary of Labor had not conclusively established his enforcement policy, the same result would have obtained by virtue of the federal court's vacatur. The ARB has already pointed to the seminal case defining a vacatur. Administrator v. Strates Shows, Inc., No. 15-069, slip op. at *4 (ARB June 30, 2017) (quoting Action on Smoking & Health v. Civil Aeronautics Bd., 713 F.2d 795 (D.C. Cir. 1983) (per curiam)). The operative effect of the vacatur was that it took the 2008 H-2B regulations "off the books," AFL-CIO v. Chao, 496 F. Supp. 2d 76, 84, 85, 92 (D.D.C. 2007), and "wipe[d] the slate clean," National Labor Relations Bd. v. Goodless Bros. Elec. Co., 285 F.3d 102, 110 (1st Cir. 2002). After the vacatur, the 2008 H-2B regulations simply "do[ ] not exist," just as the Secretary of Labor acknowledged during the oral argument to the federal judge. See also Crum v. Colvin, No. C14-4055, 2015 U.S. Dist. Lexis 113551, slip op. at *20 (N.D. Iowa Aug. 27, 2015) (the original findings "no longer existed" after vacatur). Needless to say, if the regulations do not exist, they cannot be enforced.

The Administrator's sole argument is that the "clarification" order – somehow – resuscitated something that no longer existed. The flaws in this argument are numerous.

a. The clarification cannot cure the replacement. Regardless of the efficacy of the vacatur, it cannot overcome the fact that the Secretary of Labor repealed the 2008 H-2B regulations by adopting replacement regulations. There was nothing left to clarify because the replacement regulations effectively mooted the 2008 regulations. See, e.g., Bayou Lawn & Landscape Servs. v. Secretary of Labor, No. 15-10623, slip op. at *4 (11th Cir. Nov. 5, 2015) (remanding for trial court to determine whether replacement of 2012 H-2B regulations by the 2015 H-2B regulations mooted the appeal).

b. Vacatur was mandatory. Rather than focusing on a single event, it is helpful to observe the context. The pertinent statute made vacatur the mandatory remedy, 5 U.S.C. § 706 (2) (the court "shall ... hold unlawful and set aside agency action ... found to be ... in excess of statutory jurisdiction [or] authority") (emphasis added); Citizens to Preserve Overton Park, Inc. v. Volpe, 401 U.S. 402, 413-14 (1971) ("In all cases agency action must be set aside ... if the action failed to meet statutory, procedural, or constitutional requirements.") (emphasis added), and this was especially true when the federal court found that the 2008 regulations were issued without authority, e.g., Defenders of Wildlife v. Jackson, 791 F. Supp. 2d 96, 117 (D.D.C. 2011) (substantive infirmity "mandates" vacatur); AFL-CIO v. Chao, 496 F. Supp. 2d 76, 91 (D.D.C. 2007) (same).

c. The vacatur was necessarily retroactive. "The principle that statutes operate only prospectively, while judicial decisions operate retrospectively, is familiar to every law student." United States v. Sec. Indus. Bank, 459 U.S. 70, 79 (1982). With a few exceptions not relevant here, the Supreme Court has been quite clear that judicial rulings necessarily apply retroactively. Rivers v. Roadway Express, Inc., 511 U.S. 298, 311-12 (1994); Heartland Regional Med. Ctr. v. Sebelius, 566 F.3d 193, 196 (D.C. Cir. 2008) ("a principle announced in adjudication is necessarily retroactive"); Neustar, Inc. v. Federal Communications Comm'n, 857 F.3d 886, slip op. at *20-21 (D.C. Cir. 2017) (case law mandating that judicial decisions have retroactive effect); National Fuel Gas Supply Corp. v. FERC, 59 F.3d 1281, 1289 (D.C. Cir. 1995) (vacatur of agency action by federal court must be given retroactive effect). See generally Daniel H. Conrad, Filling the Gap: The Retroactive Effect of Vacating Agency Regulations, 29 Pace Env'tl L. Rev. 1 (2011) (suggesting strong reasons supporting retroactivity of judicial vacatur of agency regulations). Once the federal court ruled that the 2008 H-2B regulations no longer existed, that automatically meant that they had never existed, Reynoldsville Casket Co. v. Hyde, 514 U.S. 749, 758-59 (1995) (court cannot use its remedial discretion to avoid retroactive application of a judicial decision), and the benefit of that ruling extended to non-parties. The Administrator's position leads to exactly the sort of disparate treatment that the Supreme Court eschews: Some are bound and some are not by the 2008 regulations. See, e.g., James M. Beam Distilling Co. v. Georgia, 501 U.S. 529, 538 (1991) (plurality opinion).

d. Rescinding the DOL rule required its own rulemaking. The Administrator's position amounts to an extra-legal effort to promulgate a rule. If the Secretary of Labor wants to establish a rule in light of the "clarification" order, then he should follow the prescribed steps for public notice and comment. Until that day comes, there is no such regulation for the ARB to follow. See American Trucking Ass'ns, Inc. v. Frisco Transp. Co., 358 U.S. 133, 146 (1958) (agency may not use the "pretext" of "reopen[ing] prior proceedings to correct a[n inadvertent] mistake," then use the occasion to "execute a subsequently adopted policy."); Cumberland Med. Ctr. v. Secretary of Health & Human Servs., 781 F.2d 536, 539 (6th Cir. 1986) (rescinding a rule requires the same steps as promulgating a rule).

e. The federal court had no basis for modifying the retroactive vacatur. The federal court never perfected a basis for substantively modifying the prior judgment, which had been final for some months. Under Fed. R. Civ. Proc. 60 (a), the federal court could have corrected clerical errors, but that option cannot be used to make substantive changes, such as those advocated by the Administrator. Joseph T. MacLaughlin, Relief from a Judgment or Order, in 12 James W. Moore, Moore's Federal Practice § 60.11 [1] [c], at 60-34 to -36 (3d ed. 2017) (clarification is limited to non-substantive clerk's errors). To make the substantive changes that the Administrator claims, the federal court had to proceed under Fed. R. Civ. Proc. 60 (b), and was obligated to make supporting findings regarding such facts as mistakes, inadvertence, fraud, etc. Having failed to make any supporting findings, the Administrator has not established a basis for the substantive change he claims.

f. The vacatur remains clear and unambiguous. The federal court's "clarification" is clear on the only pertinent fact: The federal court made no attempt to alter the vacatur. Beginning with the judgment on the 2012 H-2B regulations, and again on the 2015 H-2B regulations, the federal court deployed 2 overlapping yet distinct remedies. A vacatur is a form of equitable relief. Black Warrior Riverkeeper, Inc. v. Army Corps of Eng'rs, 781 F.3d 1271, 1290 (11th Cir. 2015). A vacatur both "preserves" the status quo, AFL-CIO v. Chao, 496 F. Supp. 2d 76, 92 (D.D.C. 2007), and "suspends" the duty to comply, Alabama Power Co. v. United States Env'tl Protection Agency, 40 F.3d 450 (D.C. Cir. 1994) (vacatur suspends the duty to comply). As we have seen, a vacatur is the mandatory remedy for proceeding without lawful authority. This contrasts with an injunction, which is "[a] court order commanding or preventing an action" that "operat[es] in personam." Black's Law Dictionary 904 (Bryan A. Garner ed. 10th ed. 2014). Injunctions are, by definition, prospective and directed to future conduct; it is not the role of an injunction to address prior conduct. An injunction is a "classic example of judgments that have prospective application." Joseph T. MacLaughlin, Relief from a Judgment or Order, in 12 James W. Moore, Moore's Federal Practice § 60.47 [1] [d], at 60-174 (3d ed. 2017). In adopting this belt-and-suspenders approach, the federal court was careful to point out that each remedy was tailored to serve a different legal need; they were not redundant remedies. See Kinkead v. Humana, Inc., 206 F. Supp. 3d 751, 754 (D. Conn. 2016) (vacatur sets aside "entire rule, not merely to preclude its enforcement in a particular case"). So, when the federal court entered its clarification of the injunction, it said utterly nothing regarding the primary remedy of vacatur.

g. Only the federal court may interpret its judgment. Finally, even if it was possible to construe the clarification as creating ambiguity for the vacatur, the question remains: Who clarifies the clarification? The answer is most certainly not a party, such as the Secretary of Labor, regardless of how "reasonable" that interpretation might be, because the Secretary of Labor has no such statutory authority, nor has he cited to any. The answer is also not another court or the ARB. See, e.g., State v. Trump, No. 17-00050, slip op. at 2 n. 3 (D. Hawaii July 6, 2017) (in the travel ban case, the trial court was not authorized to interpret the Supreme Court's injunction). The ARB is especially handicapped because it is required to "adhere to the rules of decision and precedent" that apply under organic statutes, 77 Fed. Reg. 69378, 69379 (Nov. 16, 2012), and the ARB is not "adher[ing]" if it is interpreting. Ultimately, it is up to the federal court itself to interpret its own judgments. The Administrator's motion for reconsideration is nothing more than an attempt to convert the ARB into an Article III court, and not just any court, but the Northern District of Florida. The fact that the Administrator has not gone back to the federal court to clarify the clarification says it all.

B. The 2008 Regulations Are Not Enforceable Because DHS Improperly Extended Authority to DOL

The Pensacola court's vacatur is not the end of the Administrator's problems. The same result obtains for completely separate reasons. As the Tenth Circuit has held, Congress has never authorized DHS to redelegate its rulemaking and adjudicative functions in particular to DOL. G.H. Daniels III & Assocs., Inc. v. Perez, No. 13-1479, 2015 U.S. App. Lexis 15689, at *13 n. 10 (10th Cir. Sept. 3, 2015). Without this inter-agency redelegation of authority, DOL had no basis for promulgating the 2008 regulations. The Administrator has not been held to the implications of that decision in an enforcement action, but it reaches the same result: the 2008 regulations are not enforceable.

C. The Administrator Is Not Free to Choose between Procedural Provisions in the 2008 and 2015 Rules Without Going Through Notice and Comment

One of the consequences of the Administrator picking and choosing what to enforce is the belief that he is free to enforce 2015 procedural provisions. The Administrator cannot have it both ways. Under the Administrator's theory, the procedural provisions from both 2008 and 2015 are valid, and the only proper way to choose is through public notice and comment, which has never happened. See 5 U.S.C. § 553 (b).

Respondent is prejudiced by this procedural breach. The procedural provisions diverge in material ways that have a direct bearing on the Respondent's rights and the ability to defend itself, and the Administrator is arbitrarily choosing which version it will enforce. Further, the Administrator is applying the procedural rules from 2015 retroactively, something that it cannot do without express congressional authority. Bowen v. Georgetown Univ. Hosp., 488 U.S. 204, 208 (1988).

D. The Administrator Is Usurping the Authority of the Employment and Training Administration

As we have seen, it is ETA's responsibility to issue job codes. The Administrator is improperly trenching upon the authority of a coordinate agency by attempting to impose alternative job codes, all without following the strictures imposed by ETA. ETA has the authority to enforce its own regulations and already approved the job codes at issue in this case. The Administrator's attempt to assign completely different job codes is a step too far.

III. RESPONDENT WAS NOT PLACED ON NOTICE OF ANY PERTINENT REGULATORY REQUIREMENTS

The Administrator has attempted to enforce as regulatory "requirements" certain responsibilities that simply are not provided by regulation. For example, the Administrator is expressly relying on Attestation #13 in the #9142. Exhibit 2 ("The ... reason(s) for temporary need ... being requested for certification have been truly and accurately stated on the application."). However, the Department may not enforce a rule that is not found in the clear text of the published regulations themselves, and such attestations are not enforceable, only the contents of regulatory requirements. Nokia Siemens Networks US LLC, No. 2012-PER-02714, slip op. at *1-2 (BALCA July 1, 2016) (per curiam) (a certifying officer "may not deny an application based on a ... failure to comply with an unwritten requirement that has no basis in the clear text of the regulations.") < https://www.oalj.dol.gov/Decisions/ALJ/PER/2012/SUMELAHTI_MARKKU_TAP_v_NOKIA_SIEMENS_NETWOR_2012PER02714_(JUL_01_2016)_065651_CADEC_SD.PDF >; Symantec Corp., 2011-PER-01856, slip op. at *8 (BALCA July 30, 2014) (en banc)

>; Island Holdings LLC, No. 2013-PWD-00002, at *8, 11 (BALCA Dec. 3, 2013) (en banc) (employer incurs no obligation unless contained in the codified regulations contained in the Code of Federal Regulations). As enunciated by BALCA:

> The Department may not require an employer to attest to a condition that is not required by the regulations. This is because the Department cannot impose additional legal obligations on a regulated party without following the procedures mandated by the APA.

Id. at *13. See also 29 C.F.R. § 655.60 (b) (a "substantial failure" is "fail[ing] to meet any of the conditions of the labor certification application attested to, as listed in § 655.22 ....") (emphasis added). Not only is there no regulatory requirement in § 655.22 for accurately stating the job duties that will be performed, as opposed to the "reasons for temporary need," but the Administrator has failed to show that the Respondent's statement of temporary need was false in any regard. "Temporary need" is a term of art under the H-2B regulations and has nothing whatsoever to do with what concerns the Administrator, which is the comprehensiveness of the job-duty description. See 73 Fed. Reg. 78020, 78042 (Dec. 19, 2008) ("reasons for temporary need" in § 655.22 (n) is directed to "the reasons underlying the temporary need in its labor certification request").

This leads to the next "violation" not contained in the DOL regulations. There is no regulatory requirement that every single job task must be stated, nor is there a statement in § 655.22 that omitting job tasks is a violation. § 655.22 (n) is directed to the veracity of what is stated, not whether the job details are comprehensive. "Tasks" are defined as "specific work activities that can be unique for each occupation," whereas "work activities" are "the kinds of tasks that may be performed across multiple occupations." < https://www.onetonline.org/help/online/details > There are no governing regulations within § 655.22 that require, much less explain, how to undertake a task analysis when a "square" job does not fit snugly in a "round" job code.

These shortcomings are ably illustrated by Administrator v. Peter's Fine Greek Food, Inc., No. 2012-PED-00001, at *7 (OALJ Sept. 25, 2013), aff'd, No. 14-003-A (ARB Feb. 26, 2014). After reviewing all of the witness statements, the Administrator had no criticism of the 2011 job description, but the 2012 job description was criticized by the Wage and Hour Division witness because it deleted cooking as "the primary job duty." Id. The WHD witness could not answer "how best to list a job which involves varied responsibilities," such as the counter attendants at issue. Id. Although there was no criticism for failing to list driving as a job duty, id. at *7-8, it was noted that driving was a job duty, id. at *9. The ALJ was "troubled" that cooking was deleted as "a primary duty," but made no comment about failing to list driving as a job duty. Id. at 18.

Finally, there is no regulatory requirement placing Respondent on notice that listing the "job title" on the I-129 had any significance whatsoever. In fact, listing job duties in the I-129 was expressly declared "optional" for employers. Exhibit 13, Optional Checklist for I-129 H-2B Filings. See also Exhibit 12, Instructions for I-129 (no relevant instructions for completing the I-129).

Because there are no regulatory requirements governing misclassifications, how much depth should be provided in job details, or how employers are to perform task analyses, Respondent was put on notice of nothing.

IV. RESPONDENT DID NOT SUBSTANTIALLY VIOLATE ANY REGULATORY REQUIREMENTS

Even if Respondent was put on notice of enforceable regulatory requirements, any such failure must be "substantial." 29 C.F.R. § 655.60 (b). Respondent has already demonstrated that there were no violations of regulatory requirements in Attestation #13, § 655.22 (n), or the I-129's part 5, question 1, so needless to say, there were no "substantial" violations. There is no regulatory requirement that there is a substantial failure when 9 out of 246 H-2B employees (3.6%) perform duties arguably outside of their job code. This is all the more apparent from the definition of a "substantial violation," which requires a "pattern or practice" of misdeeds, 29 C.F.R. § 655.31 (d) (1), something not shown here.

The element of "substantiality" has even greater significance in misclassification cases. Even if there is a "pattern or practice," there is no "substantial violation" unless the H-2B workers were employed "in an activity/activities, not listed in the job order (other than an activity minor and incidental to the activity/activities listed in the job order) ...." 29 C.F.R. § 655.31 (d) (1) (v). There are several general practices that elevate the "incidental-duty" rule to a legal question ripe for summary judgment.[1]

- Under the H-2A program, "incidental activities" for agricultural labor includes operating roadside retail stands, managing pick-your-own activities, and driving a tractor for a hay ride. 73 Fed. Reg. 77110, 77117 (Dec. 18, 2008). It would be difficult or impossible to list all potential "minor and incidental" job responsibilities. Id. at 78118. Such activities must be less than 20% of the total time worked on the certified job duties and must be "incidental" to the certified agricultural labor. Id. at 77117. This rule was developed concurrently with the 2008 DOL rule.

- Workers with dual positions in which they both perform the assigned tasks and supervise others performing the same work "are coded with the workers they supervise" when they "spend less than 80% of their time supervising." http://www.bls.gov/soc/soc_2010_user_guide.pdf pages xii-xiii (emphasis added).

[1] Needless to say, Respondent factually disputes that the Administrator's alternative job codes describe the work performed by these H-2B workers.

These rules of thumb, ostensibly adopted for other visas or working conditions generally, should be applied to the H-2B program under the rule of GT Trans, Inc., 2016-TLN-29, at *6 (BALCA Apr. 15, 2016) (borrowing the H-1B definition of "place of employment" to define the interchangeable term, "worksite) and Brook Ledge, Inc., 2016-TLN-00033, at *5-6 (BALCA May 10, 2016) (same).

V. RESPONDENT DID NOT WILLFULLY OR SUBSTANTIALLY FAIL TO COMPLY WITH ANY REGULATORY REQUIREMENTS

Although there may be an issue of fact whether Respondent could reasonably rely on the professional advice of its H-2B agent, Respondent reasonably relied on DOL's and DHS's own pronouncements as a matter of law. In its #9142, Respondent was careful to note that it provided mobile housing for use during its itinerary "valued at $125.00 per week," and local convenience travel when operating at a particular location "valued at $25 per week." Exhibit 2, at pp. 035. Respondent also provided visa and inspection fees, pre-payment plans, international travel in and out of the country, and bonuses or merit pay.

The legal principle upon which Respondent seeks summary adjudication is that it was entitled to credit for providing these "facilities." Most importantly, there is no dispute that Respondent is exempt from the Fair Labor Standards Act, and the H-2B program specifically authorized credit for these items.

Caselaw has already resolved that mobile carnival operators are entitled to these credits under the H-2B program. The absence of an enforceable regulation (at least before 2015) allowed a traveling carnival to take credit for providing mobile housing under DOL's 2008 regulations because those regulations did "not inform Respondent that [the] FLSA [primary benefit rule] is applicable ...." Administrator v. Wade Shows, Inc., No. 2013-TNE-1, at *8 (OALJ Apr. 10, 2015) (granting summary judgment on mobile housing credit), aff'd in part & dismissed, No. 15-052 (ARB June 20, 2017), modified on other grounds, No. 15-052 (ARB Sept. 11, 2017).

DHS has been just as clear. An H-2B employer may charge

> "as a condition of ... employment" for "transportation to such employment and any government-mandated passport, visa, or inspection fees, to the extent that the passing of such costs to the beneficiary is not prohibited by statute ...."

8 C.F.R. § 214.2 (h) (6) (i) (B) (emphasis added). Accord USCIS, Instructions for Petition for a Nonimmigrant Worker at 13 (Oct. 23, 2014) ("Unless the payment of such fees by a worker is prohibited under law," the employer may recover "the lower of the actual cost or fair market value of transportation to the offered employment, and ... any government-mandated passport, visa, or inspection fees.") < http://www.uscis.gov/sites/default/files/files/form/i-129instr.pdf >.

And in 2013 at the time of these purported violations, DOL was just as clear. For nearly 80 years, no regulation, court decision, WHD opinion letter, or any other authority – under either the FLSA since its original passage in 1938 or the INA's H-2/H-2B program since 1952 – had ever suggested that mobile employers must provide housing free of charge. The carnival industry has been exempt from the FLSA in all pertinent respects, either as a "retail establishment" or more recently as an "amusement or recreational establishment" under 29 U.S.C. § 213 (a) (3). House Comm. on Education & Labor, Fair Labor Standards Amendments of 1965: Report to Accompany H.R. 10518, H. Rep. No. 89-871, at 51 (Comm. Print Aug. 25, 1965) (carnivals and circuses are quintessentially representative of the amusement exemption); Wage and Hour Division, Opinion Letter No. WH-623, 1967 DOLWH Lexis 164, at *2 (June 22, 1967) (the amusement exemption applies to "county and State fair employees, employees of larger expositions, and employees of concessionaires operating on the premises of such establishments ...."); Wage and Hour Division, Opinion Letter No. WH-388, 1976 DOLWH Lexis 2, at *2 (Aug. 10, 1976) (the amusement exemption includes carnivals and circuses); Wage and Hour Division, Field Operations Handbook § 25j14 (1994) (carnivals and circuses are exempt) < www.dol.gov/whd/foh/index.htm >. See also 112 Cong. Rec. 20593, 20595 (Aug. 25, 1966) (students working in "resort areas" typically are provided food and lodging, and this is considered part of their wages) (remarks of Rep. Yarborough).

Despite the 2015 IFR, the Department has frequently taken the position that mobile amusement employers do not have any special responsibilities. 49 Fed. Reg. 25837, 25843 (June 25, 1984) (H-2B employees are responsible for the expense of relocating to take the job); Paul DeCamp, Administrator, Wage and Hour Division, Field Assistance Bulletin No. 2007-1 (May 2, 2007) (only H-2B restriction on all housing, including mobile housing, is the usual FLSA rules) < https://www.dol.gov/whd/FieldBulletins/FieldAssistanceBulletin2007_1.htm >; E-mail from Chicago National Processing Center to Kathy Pierce at 2 (June 16, 2009) (no unique requirements for mobile carnival housing under H-2B program); DOLETA Regulatory Agenda Chat at 2:16 PM (July 14, 2011) < http://www.dol.gov/regulations/chat-eta-201107.htm > (declining to address how the FLSA exemption for amusement operators affects H-2B wages or working conditions).

But the Department has gone much further and has affirmatively indicated that mobile amusement employers have no responsibility to provide free housing and, in fact, may deduct for that housing. The NPRM and the 2008 Rule were quite clear. 73 Fed. Reg.

29942, 29952 (May 22, 2008) (DOL "will continue to permit employers, consistent with the Fair Labor Standards Act ..., to make reasonable housing and transportation deductions ....") (emphasis added); 73 Fed. Reg. 78020, 78039 (Dec. 19, 2008) ("The Department will continue to permit employers, consistent with the Fair Labor Standards Act ..., to make deductions from a worker's pay for the reasonable cost of furnishing housing and transportation, as well as worker expenses such as passport and visa fees ....") (emphasis added). When the industry asked the Department specifically for guidance, the Department confirmed this policy in writing. Exhibit 14, E-mail from Chicago National Processing Center to James Judkins at 1 (Aug. 12, 2008) ("Employers are not obligated to pay for housing for the foreign worker under the H-2B program.") (emphasis added). When industry asked about its responsibility when employees choose to provide their own bunkhouses, DOL replied that there was no obligation to compensate workers who chose to provide their own bunkhouses. Id. ("There is no 'formula' to properly compensate a worker with a trailer.").

Nor did the Department treat the mobile amusement industry any differently. This is also the same position that the Department took with other mobile industries. E.g., DOLETA, Special Guidelines for Processing H-2B Temporary Labor Certification in Tree Planting and Related Reforestation Occupations, TEGL 27-06 (June 12, 2007) (job posting for mobile tree planters must describe "housing" benefits only "if applicable") < http://wdr.doleta.gov/directives/attach/TEGL/TEGL27-06.pdf >; DOLETA, Special Guidelines for Processing H-2B Temporary Labor Certification in Tree Planting and Related Reforestation Occupations, TEGL 27-06 (June 12, 2007) (mobile tree planters may charge for housing, but must disclose it in the ETA 750 because of MSPA requirements) ; Department of Labor, Wage and Hour Division, Fact Sheet #63: Application of Federal Labor Laws to Reforestation at 3 (July, 2010) (wide-ranging discussion of FLSA and H-2B obligations of reforestation employers, including "The cost of providing housing may be creditable towards meeting the employer's minimum or prevailing wage payment obligation.").

The 2008 Rule merely provided that deductions must be "reasonable," but was careful not to trample on congressional prerogative and FLSA exemptions. 20 C.F.R. § 655.22 (g) (1) (2008) ("All deductions must be reasonable. However, an employer subject to the FLSA may not make deductions that would violate the FLSA."). In fact, a public comment specifically suggested that the "primary benefit" test be adopted in the H-2B program, but DOL declined to do so. 73 Fed. Reg. 78020, 78038 (Dec. 19, 2008). Another public comment requested the Department to adopt FLSA into the H-2B program, but the Department declined to do so. 73 Fed. Reg. 78020, 78037-38 (Dec. 19, 2008).

If necessary, Respondent will provide dozens of applications that DOL routinely approved before, during, and after the 2013 season, along with WHD audits that failed to issue citations, despite clear evidence that the mobile employer either took a deduction, credit, or otherwise failed to provide "free" housing. This practice continued right up until the 2015 IFR was adopted, and there were even more that were approved after the 2015 IFR was adopted.

The amount of the credit owed will be determined later as a factual matter. For now, Respondent contends that, as a matter of law, it is entitled to claim credit for these "facilities" regardless of whether they were extended before, during, or after those few weeks comprising the audit period.

VI. THE REMEDY OF "BACK WAGES" IS NOT AVAILABLE FOR MISCLASSIFICATION

There are multiple problems with the Administrator's attempt to invoke – as well as calculate – "back wages" as a an approved remedy. To begin, "back wages" are only available under the narrow circumstance that the employer failed to pay "wages at the wage level specified under the application ...." 20 C.F.R. § 655.65 (i). There is no dispute that Respondent paid the "offered wage" at all times as required under 20 C.F.R. § 655.22 (e), so the remedy of "back wages" is not available. Cf. 20 C.F.R. § 655.65 (a) (civil money penalties "are equal to the difference between the amount that should have been paid [i.e., the offered wage] and the amount that actually was paid").

Next, as a matter of law, even if a "back wage" remedy was available, the Administrator was required to limit any "back wage" remedy to the time that the H-2B worker was actually working in that alternative job code. See 77 Fed. Reg. 10038, 10048 (Feb. 21, 2012) (if U.S. laborer moved up to perform H-2B supervisor duties, "then that laborer would be entitled to the H-2B prevailing supervisory rate for those hours actually worked as a supervisor.") (emphasis added). The Administrator's calculations run the entire audit period, even though drivers might be driving only a few hours every other week.

As a matter of law, the Administrator's calculations incorrectly assumed that every worker worked precisely 40 hours per week, but the Respondent was careful to explain that workhours fluctuated widely based upon a broad range of factors, such as weather, event hours, etc. Exhibit 2, at pp. 033.

As a matter of law, the Administrator's calculations falsely assumed that the prevailing wage rate for the alternative job codes was a single, fixed figure as if carnival operators were fixed-site employers. In fact, entertainers such as carnival operators continue to operate under special procedures under which they are obligated "to pay the applicable wage for each location listed on the itinerary for work performed in that location." DOLETA, Temporary Labor Certification/H-2B Entertainers, TEGL 31-05, at *3 (May 31, 2006) (emphasis added).

VII. THIS ACTION IS TIME-BARRED BY THE STATUTE OF LIMITATIONS AND THE DOCTRINE OF LACHES

The Administrator's enforcement action is time-barred. The relevant timeline is:

- November 7, 2012 – #9142 submitted
- December 14, 2012 – DOL approves #9142
- December 17, 2012 – I-129 submitted
- January 4, 2013 – USCIS approves I-129
- February 1, 2013 – Respondent's season begins
- February 6, 2018 – Administrator's mails determination letter

This case is governed by the 5-year statute of limitations under 28 U.S.C. § 2462: "an action ... for the enforcement of any civil fine, penalty, or forfeiture, pecuniary or otherwise, shall not be entertained unless commenced within five years from the date when the claim first accrued ...." See, e.g., Gabelli v. Security Exch. Comm'n, 568 U.S. 442, 454 (2013) (agency cannot collect monetary sanctions for conduct that occurred more than 5 years before commencing the action; claim accrues "when the plaintiff has a complete and present cause of action.") In this instance, the Administrator had a complete and present cause of action when the Respondent submitted allegedly false documents in November and December, 2012, well outside of the 5-year statute of limitations.

Further, the Administrator is barred by the equitable doctrine of laches. Not only did the Administrator wait an inordinately lengthy time, but the delay substantially prejudiced Respondent. The witnesses have now dispersed and are beyond the subpoena power. Further, since at least July, 2013, the prevailing wage data has been unavailable to the public, thereby thwarting Respondent's ability to defend the case.

VIII. MR. MICHAEL BRAJEVICH IS NOT INDIVIDUALLY LIABLE

The Administrator has not made any determinations against Mr. Brajevich in his individual capacity. The determination letter indicates that the investigation was "of" the corporate entity, Butler Amusements, Inc. Exhibit 9, at pp. 092. It was "Butler Amusements" that "committed the [pertinent] violations" of the I-129 and #9142. Id. See also id. at 093 (Butler Amusements "violated" the I-129 and #9142); id. at 096 (same). Butler Amusements alone was responsible for placing the workers in the unauthorized positions. Id. at 096. It was Butler Amusements that was "liable for any ongoing violations." Id. at 092. It was Butler Amusements that was responsible for paying the back wages and civil money penalties, and in the amounts listed, and within the time limit, unless Butler Amusements alone exercised its right and requested a hearing. If Butler Amusements failed to make a timely request for a hearing, the determination letter was final. If Butler Amusements failed to pay, then Butler Amusements could be debarred from the H-2B program. It was Butler Amusements that had been previously provided with the calculations. Butler Amusements alone was responsible for withholding appropriate deductions and and paying contributions to the tax authorities.

In contrast to Butler Amusements, which was specifically inculpated 14 times, Mr. Brajevich was mentioned exactly once, and that is because he was the addressee and designated point of contact for the Respondent. There is no basis, as a matter of law, to believe that Mr. Brajevich should be designated in the case caption as an individual Respondent because the Administrator never intended to charge him with anything.

It is not surprising that the determination letter would be directed to Butler Amusements as the employer. Both the #9142 and the I-129 identified Butler Amusements, Inc., as the employer and Mr. Brajevich as the employer's contact. Exhibit 2, at pp. 025; Exhibit 3, at pp. 042. It is the "employer" that is subject to administrative action. 29 C.F.R. § 655.31 (a) (1).

CONCLUSION

For the foregoing reasons, Respondent prays that its motion for summary judgment be granted and that the parties submit a revised litigation plan in light of those rulings.

FINAL DETERMINATION

December 14, 2012

Rio Hondo, TX 78583

ETA Case Number: H-400-12313-874905
Number of Openings: 246
Occupation: Amusement and Recreation Attendants
Period of Certification: 02/01/2013 - 10/31/2013

RE: BUTLER AMUSEMENTS, INC

Dear Sir/Madam:

Your application seeking temporary labor certification under the H-2B temporary nonagricultural program has been reviewed and certified. The Department of Labor (Department) has made a final determination on your Application for Temporary Employment Certification in accordance with Departmental regulations at 20 Code of Federal Regulations (CFR) sec. 655, Subpart A. Based on the documentation and attestations provided by the employer, the Department hereby certifies that a sufficient number of able, willing and qualified U.S. workers have not been identified as being available at the time and place needed to fill the job opportunities for which certification is sought, and the employment of the H-2B temporary workers in such labor or services will not adversely affect the wages and working conditions of U.S. workers.

The Application for Temporary Employment Certification, ETA Form 9142, has been certified and is enclosed.

Upon receipt of this notification, you will need to submit Form I-129 and all required documentation, including the original, certified H-2B Application for Temporary Employment Certification to the appropriate U.S. Citizenship and Immigration Service (USCIS) office. The USCIS application form and additional information can be obtained at http://www.uscis.gov.

Important Note

With respect to the offered wage guarantee, this certification assumes that the employer will pay the certified weekly wage for 40 hours of work per week, as indicated in Section G of the employer's ETA Form 9142. Please remember that consistent with the Department's regulations at 20 C.F.R. sec. 655.22(e) the employer is required to pay the H-2B workers and U.S. workers recruited in connection with an H-2B application, the certified offered wage during the entire period of the approved H-2B labor certification. The offered wage must equal or exceed the highest of the most recent prevailing wage that is or will be issued by the Department to the employer for the time period the work is performed, or the applicable Federal, State, or local minimum wage. If that prevailing wage was issued by the Department as an hourly wage (indicating that similarly-employed U.S. workers earn that wage for each hour of work), then the employer is required to pay H-2B or U.S. workers recruited in connection with an H-2B application at least that hourly wage for all hours worked, including those hours in excess of 40 hours of work per week. This requirement of the H-2B program is independent of any applicable exemption from the provisions of the Fair Labor Standards Act. Please remember that the H-2B regulations also require compliance with applicable State and local employment laws, which may require a higher rate of pay for overtime hours.

Important Reminders

In accordance with Departmental regulations at 20 CFR sec. 655.24(a), the Department has the authority to conduct audits of H-2B temporary labor certification applications. Employers with certified applications selected for audit will receive an official letter from our office requesting documentation in support of the application. Failure to comply with the audit process may result in the employer being placed on supervised recruitment in accordance with Departmental regulations at 20 CFR sec. 655.30, or debarment in accordance with Departmental regulations at 20 CFR sec. 655.31.

In accordance with Departmental regulations at 20 CFR sec. 655.22(f), upon separation from employment of H-2B worker(s) employed under the labor certification application, if such separation occurs prior to the end date of the employment specified in the application, the employer will notify the Department and DHS in writing of the separation from employment not later than 2 work days after such separation is discovered by the employer. An abandonment or abscondment shall be deemed to begin after a worker fails to report for work at the regularly scheduled time for 5 consecutive working days without the consent of the employer. Employees may be terminated for cause.

Terminations and job abandonment notifications sent to the Department, must be sent to the email address at H2B.Abandonment&Termination.Chicago@dol.gov. Employers without Internet access may also send written notification by facsimile to (312) 886-1688 (ATTN: H-2B Abandonment and Termination).

For all future applications or requests for extension, the employer must submit the most current:

- ETA Form 9142, Appendix B.1: http://www.foreignlaborcert.doleta.gov/pdf/ETA_Form_9142_APPENDIX_B1.pdf.

Questions concerning this case can be directed via e-mail to TLC.Chicago@dol.gov, phone at (312) 886-8000, or facsimile at (312) 886-1688.

Sincerely,

H-2B Certifying Officer

This company has been in business since 1969. The business is a traveling amusement enterprise, closing down completely from November through end of January each year, and has been seasonal in nature since inception. The temporary need is expected to be seasonal, recurring annually.

Because the work involves travel from location to location, with work being performed in the evenings, weekends and holidays, there has been a chronic, seasonal need for foreign workers that is not filled by US Workers.

B. Employer Declaration

By virtue of my signature below, I HEREBY CERTIFY the following conditions of employment:

1. The job opportunity is a bona fide, full-time temporary position, the qualifications for which are consistent with the normal and accepted qualifications required by non-H-2B employers in the same or comparable occupations.
2. The job opportunity is not vacant because the former occupant(s) is (are) on strike or locked out in the course of a labor dispute involving a work stoppage.
3. The job opportunity is open to any qualified U.S. worker regardless of race, color, national origin, age, sex, religion, handicap, or citizenship, and the employer has conducted the required recruitment, in accordance with regulations, and has been unsuccessful in locating sufficient numbers of qualified U.S. applicants for the job opportunity for which certification is sought. Any U.S. workers who applied or apply for the job were or will be rejected only for lawful, job-related reasons, and the employer must retain records of all rejections.
4. The offered terms and working conditions of the job opportunity are normal to workers similarly employed in the area(s) of intended employment and are not less favorable than those offered to the foreign worker(s) and are not less than the minimum terms and conditions required by Federal regulation at 20 CFR 655, Subpart A.
5. The offered wage equals or exceeds the highest of the most recent prevailing wage that is or will be issued by the Department to the employer for the time period the work is performed, or the applicable Federal, State, or local minimum wage, and the employer will pay the offered wage.

ADDENDUM TO ETA 9142

Section F.a.2. Number of Hours Per Week

This Mobile Entertainment Employer is a FLSA (13)(a)(3) exempt employer not subject to an hourly wage, overtime or recordkeeping requirements. The weekly wage has been calculated based upon a standard 40-hour week using the methodology detailed in Section G.1.

If state or local law requires overtime it will be calculated and paid as per applicable federal, state or local regulations. However for purposes of the Federal H-2B Program which respects the employers FLSA 13(a)(3) exemption, employer is not offering an overtime rate of pay nor overtime.

Section F.a.3. Hourly Work Schedule

The work schedule varies widely due to weather conditions, local event organizers, local customs, attendance at the event, day of the week, time of the year and a myriad of other factors. The employer will pay the weekly salary for each week that the worker is employed. Both the SWA and DOL in electronic filings require a set start time and set end time to be posted. The times being posted for recruitment and filing are to provide potential applicants and the agency with a general idea of the afternoon and evening schedules that are typical. Hours on week days will probably be reduced, hours on weekends will probably be increased, and all of the above named conditions can affect the hours actually worked. The employer is not representing to either the applicants or the agencies that these hours are fixed and predictable.

Section F.b.5. Post-Employment Drug and Background Checks

The background checks when conducted do not favor either US or H-2B workers, they are conducted on an equal basis for all employees. Employees come into contact with children at our entertainment events and our company policy, local sponsor policy and common industry practice means that the applicants must be able to pass post-employment background checks in regards to Megan's Law, Felonies and Convictions that would require the employee to register as a sexual offender or predator. Various states, counties, cities and venues require that mobile entertainment operators submit all employees to background checks prior to issuance of operating permits and/or credentials for the workers. These background checks, when conducted, are POST-EMPLOYMENT and are conducted by state/local permitting authorities and/or the venue and apply across the board to all workers, including owners and managers.

The background check is included as a term and condition of employment because employees come into contact with children at our entertainment events and our company policy, local sponsor policy and common industry practice means that the applicants must be able to pass post-employment background checks in regards to Megan's Law, Felonies and Convictions that would require the employee to register as a sexual offender or predator. Not only would we be considered negligent, we could be subject to litigation or criminal prosecution if employees were not subject to background checks. Many fairs (venues) mandate the background checks, so if they were not conducted we would not be able to operate.

We believe that the terms and conditions of employment are normal to similarly employed US workers in this industry. The OABA (Outdoor Amusement Business Association) in conjunction with the IAFE (International Association of Fairs and Expositions) published their "Best Practices" recommendations for Mobile

Entertainment Operators and the Venues, and in those recommendations in 2006, best practices in regards to hiring:

- "Methods and procedures for obtaining background checks on new employees should be shared by the parties."
- "Fairs and Mobile amusement operators should access web sites that provide a register of sex offenders, especially in states that enforce Megan's Law..."
- "The hiring practices of both parties should be examined and, whenever possible, steps should be taken to create better employee recruitment and training programs."

All of the mobile entertainment employers are subject to the same venue & regulatory requirements, so similarly employed workers (US and Foreign) would all be subject to the same terms and conditions.

Various states, localities and venues require either that either the employer conducts drug/background checks or they themselves conduct the drug/background checks prior to issuing operating permits/credentials for the event. As an example of guidelines applicable for industry: http://www.state.il.us/agency/idol/faq/faqcarn.htm These Illinois regulations require background check for all carnival employees and bar employment for convictions for various violent and sexual offences, require drug screening and are similar to local / venue regulations / requirements

These terms and conditions are not less favorable than those offered to H-2B workers because all of the mobile entertainment employers are subject to the same venue & regulatory requirements, so similarly employed workers (US and H-2B) would all be subject to the same terms and conditions.

Our terms and conditions of employment are not less than the minimum terms and conditions required by the regulation.

Further and without question, these tests will be administered equally between all US and H2B workers.

It is highly unlikely that any H-2B worker, who passed the background check conducted by the Department of State prior to visa issuance and the Department of Homeland Security CBP prior to visa issuance, would fail the background check, but if the background check indicated something serious (ie: Megan's Law Violation, Conviction for a Sexual Offence, Felony) then we would have to terminate the US or H-2B worker and follow all applicable regulations in providing transportation home, etc.

Section G.1. Basic Rate of Pay Offered

Mobile Entertainment Employer will pay the variable prevailing wage ($323.60 to $368.40, Average $347.88) as per 9141 Prevailing Wage Determination [P-400-12279-745190] attached. If there are changes in work locations, employer will obtain applicable prevailing wage for work location and pay such wage.

Section G.1.a. Overtime Rate of Pay

This Mobile Entertainment Employer is a FLSA (13)(a)(3) exempt employer not subject to an hourly wage, overtime or recordkeeping requirements. If state or local law requires overtime it will be calculated and paid as per applicable Federal, state or local regulations. However for purposes of the Federal H-2B Program which respects the employers FLSA 13(a)(3) exemption, employer is not offering an overtime rate of pay nor overtime.

Section G.3. Additional Wage Information:

On the date that the recruitment commenced the Department of Labor's H-2B Wage Methodology was subject to litigation. It is unknown if the Department will further postpone the effective date, or will be legally barred from implementing, the Wage Methodology for the Temporary Non-Agricultural Employment H-2B Program Final Rule, 76 FR 3452 (Jan 19, 2011).

Accordingly, the employer will pay the Variable Prevailing Wage Determination that is valid at the time of employment. Merit increases and/or bonuses may be awarded at employer discretion.

As per prevailing practices of the mobile entertainment industry for both similarly employed US and foreign workers:

- Employer makes available mobile housing valued at $125.00 per week.
- Employer makes available transportation from venue to venue and scheduled transportation to laundry, shopping valued at $25.00 per week.
- Employer is an Equal Opportunity, FLSA Section 13(a)(3) Exempt Employer. Depending upon applicable wage laws, wage to be paid as either weekly or hourly salary, no overtime expected.

If the wage to be paid is higher that the Variable Prevailing Wage Determination, the employer reserves the right to charge a fee for housing and transportation, but the effective rate of pay will not be lower than the Variable Prevailing Wage Determination.

several dates there are multiple locations listed. Due to the nature of the business, there are some events that are large enough to support the entire carnival. At other points in time the show must spend some equipment (and workers) to additional locations. When our tour schedule requires our show to handle simultaneous locations or overlapping locations, employer will send workers to locations depending upon the venue and how many rides we will have operating at one venue in comparison to the number of rides operating at the other venues. Our unit continues with the other listed venues and we repeat the process when we encounter simultaneous or overlapping locations again.

Re: STATEMENT OF TEMPORARY NEED - Employer: Butler Amusements, Inc.
9142 and 9142 Appendix B.1, Application for Temporary Employment Certification

Dear Sir/Madam:

Our family has been in the Carnival Business all of our lives, providing rides, games and concessions to fairs and festivals on a seasonal basis. This company was founded in 1969 and incorporated in 1984.

We have a seasonal need for these workers, recurring on an annual basis. This is because we are open for a specific season each year and we are a traveling business, the work is evenings and weekends, and it is very difficult to find workers willing to travel from State to State. Even with the economic downturn people do not want to leave their homes and families to travel from event to event. We are unable to find available workers in the US to fill the positions to travel with the show.

This is a need that is seasonal and expected to be recurrent annually from February through October each year. The business has been seasonal since we began, completely shutting down for the months of November through end of January each year, and our need for seasonal workers (US Workers and Foreign) has grown as our business has grown.

We engage in extensive recruiting in hopes of fulfilling our seasonal needs. This recruiting process includes newspaper ads, using the DOL Job Search Protocol and help wanted signs at all of our locations. We have a chronic need for employees that is not filled.

We have applied for labor certification in the past and the number of workers being requested is statistically consistent with previous applications.

Sincerely,

Michael Brajevich CEO

RE: I-129 246 H2B UNNAMED BENEFICIARIES
RE: I-907 Premium Processing Request Filed Concurrently

I have attached a copy of the Department of Labor Certification that we were issued for this season. This DOL ETA-9142 Final Determination has been certified for 246 Amusement Attendants.

As per current DHS procedures, we are requesting 246 unnamed beneficiaries.

We have a seasonal need for these workers, recurring on an annual basis. This is because we are open for a specific season each year and we are a traveling business, the work is evenings and weekends, and it is very difficult to find workers willing to travel from Location to Location. Even with the economic downturn people do not want to leave their homes and families to travel from event to event. We are unable to find available workers in the US to fill the positions to travel with the show. This is a need that is seasonal and expected to be recurrent annually from January through October each year.

Our family has been in the Carnival Business all of our lives, providing rides, games and concessions to fairs and festivals on a seasonal basis. This company was founded in 1969 and incorporated in 1984. Our season is from February through October, and we close down for the months of November through end of January, to perform simple maintenance and office work.

We engage in extensive recruiting in hopes of fulfilling our seasonal needs. This recruiting process includes newspaper ads and help wanted signs at all of our venues. We have a chronic need for employees that is not filled by US Workers willing to travel and to work evenings and weekends on a regular basis.

I hope that after reviewing this application you will be able to grant these visas to fill our need. I appreciate your assistance in this matter.

Sincerely,

Michael Brajevich, CEO

- [ ] a. Unpredictable
- [ ] b. Periodic
- [x] c. Recurrent annually

3. Explain your temporary need for the beneficiary or beneficiaries' services (Attach a separate sheet if additional space is needed.)

Our family has been in the Carnival Business all of our lives,providing entertainment, rides, games and concessions on a seasonal basis. This company was founded in 1969.

We have a seasonal need for these workers, recurring on an annual basis. This is because we are open for a specific season each year and we are a traveling business, the work is evenings and weekends, and it is very difficult to find workers willing to travel from State to State. Even with the economic downturn people do not want to leave their homes and families to travel from event to event. We are unable to find available workers in the US to fill the positions to travel with the show.

This is a need that is seasonal and expected to be recurrent annually from February through October each year. The business has been seasonal since we began, completely shutting down for the months of November through end of January each year, and the need for seasonal workers has been constant.

We engage in extensive recruiting in hopes of fulfilling our seasonal needs. This recruiting process includes newspaper ads, using the DOL Job Search Protocol and help wanted signs at all of our locations. Our chronic need for employees is not filled.

While our need for temporary workers is recurrent annually, predictable and seasonal, the nature of the outdoor amusement business is that our events have longer hours and higher attendance when school is not in session, requiring an increase in staff when school vacation starts. We request permission for staggered entry for a limited number of workers when our temporary need increases based upon this business need.

FLSA exemption 13(a)(3) applies to this employer in State and Local venues that respect the FLSA exemption 13(a)(3). California Industrial Welfare Commission Order 10-2001 applies to this employer while working in the State of California. Employer follows prevailing practices for the Traveling Amusement Industry in regards to housing, transportation and weekly salary for workers.

Employer is traveling amusement operation. Above is a complete listing of booked and anticipated (pending) locations for the time period covered by this Job Order, listing city, county, state and prevailing wage listing from ONET/OES Site. It should be noted that for several dates there are multiple locations listed. Due to the nature of the business, there are some events that are large enough to support the entire carnival. At other points in time the show must spend some equipment (and workers) to additional locations. When our tour schedule requires our show to handle simultaneous locations or overlapping locations, employer will send workers to locations depending upon the venue and how many rides we will have operating at one venue in comparison to the number of rides operating at the other venues. Our unit continues with the other listed venues and we repeat the process when we encounter simultaneous or overlapping locations again.

FINAL DETERMINATION

ETA Case Number: H-400-12313-874905
Number of Openings: 246
Occupation: Amusement and Recreation Attendants
Period of Certification: 02/01/2013 - 10/31/2013

RE: BUTLER AMUSEMENTS, INC

Dear Sir/Madam:

Your application seeking temporary labor certification under the H-2B temporary nonagricultural program has been reviewed and certified. The Department of Labor (Department) has made a final determination on your Application for Temporary Employment Certification in accordance with Departmental regulations at 20 Code of Federal Regulations (CFR) sec. 655, Subpart A. Based on the documentation and attestations provided by the employer, the Department hereby certifies that a sufficient number of able, willing and qualified U.S. workers have not been identified as being available at the time and place needed to fill the job opportunities for which certification is sought, and the employment of the H-2B temporary workers in such labor or services will not adversely affect the wages and working conditions of U.S. workers.

The Application for Temporary Employment Certification, ETA Form 9142, has been certified and is enclosed.

Upon receipt of this notification, you will need to submit Form I-129 and all required documentation, including the original, certified H-2B Application for Temporary Employment Certification to the appropriate U.S. Citizenship and Immigration Service (USCIS) office. The USCIS application form and additional information can be obtained at http://www.uscis.gov.

Important Note

With respect to the offered wage guarantee, this certification assumes that the employer will pay the certified weekly wage for 40 hours of work per week, as indicated in Section G of the employer's ETA Form 9142. Please remember that consistent with the Department's regulations at 20 C.F.R. sec. 655.22(e) the employer is required to pay the H-2B workers and U.S. workers recruited in connection with an H-2B application, the certified offered wage during the entire period of the approved H-2B labor certification. The offered wage must equal or exceed the highest of the most recent prevailing wage that is or will be issued by the Department to the employer for the time period the work is performed, or the applicable Federal, State, or local minimum wage. If that prevailing wage was issued by the Department as an hourly wage (indicating that similarly-employed U.S. workers earn that wage for each hour of work), then the employer is required to pay H-2B or U.S. workers recruited in connection with an H-2B application at least that hourly wage for all hours worked, including those hours in excess of 40 hours of work per week. This requirement of the H-2B program is independent of any applicable exemption from the provisions of the Fair Labor Standards Act. Please remember that the H-2B regulations also require compliance with applicable State and local employment laws, which may require a higher rate of pay for overtime hours.

Important Reminders

In accordance with Departmental regulations at 20 CFR sec. 655.24(a), the Department has the authority to conduct audits of H-2B temporary labor certification applications. Employers with certified applications selected for audit will receive an official letter from our office requesting documentation in support of the application. Failure to comply with the audit process may result in the employer being placed on supervised recruitment in accordance with Departmental regulations at 20 CFR sec. 655.30, or debarment in accordance with Departmental regulations at 20 CFR sec. 655.31.

In accordance with Departmental regulations at 20 CFR sec. 655.22(f), upon separation from employment of H-2B worker(s) employed under the labor certification application, if such separation occurs prior to the end date of the employment specified in the application, the employer will notify the Department and DHS in writing of the separation from employment not later than 2 work days after such separation is discovered by the employer. An abandonment or abscondment shall be deemed to begin after a worker fails to report for work at the regularly scheduled time for 5 consecutive working days without the consent of the employer. Employees may be terminated for cause.

Terminations and job abandonment notifications sent to the Department, must be sent to the email address at H2B.Abandonment&Termination.Chicago@dol.gov. Employers without Internet access may also send written notification by facsimile to (312) 886-1688 (ATTN: H-2B Abandonment and Termination).

For all future applications or requests for extension, the employer must submit the most current:

- ETA Form 9142, Appendix B.1: http://www.foreignlaborcert.doleta.gov/pdf/ETA_Form_9142_APPENDIX_B1.pdf.

Questions concerning this case can be directed via e-mail to TLC.Chicago@dol.gov, phone at (312) 886-8000, or facsimile at (312) 886-1688.

Sincerely,

H-2B Certifying Officer

This company has been in business since 1969. The business is a traveling amusement enterprise, closing down completely from November through end of January each year, and has been seasonal in nature since inception. The temporary need is expected to be seasonal, recurring annually.

Because the work involves travel from location to location, with work being performed in the evenings, weekends and holidays, there has been a chronic, seasonal need for foreign workers that is not filled by US Workers.

I also certify that to the best of my knowledge the information contained herein is true and correct. I understand that to knowingly furnish false information in the preparation of this form and any supplement hereto or to aid, abet, or counsel another to do so is a felony punishable by a $250,000 fine or 5 years in a Federal penitentiary or both (18 U.S.C. 1001).

B. Employer Declaration

By virtue of my signature below, I HEREBY CERTIFY the following conditions of employment:

1. The job opportunity is a bona fide, full-time temporary position, the qualifications for which are consistent with the normal and accepted qualifications required by non-H-2B employers in the same or comparable occupations.
2. The job opportunity is not vacant because the former occupant(s) is (are) on strike or locked out in the course of a labor dispute involving a work stoppage.
3. The job opportunity is open to any qualified U.S. worker regardless of race, color, national origin, age, sex, religion, handicap, or citizenship, and the employer has conducted the required recruitment, in accordance with regulations, and has been unsuccessful in locating sufficient numbers of qualified U.S. applicants for the job opportunity for which certification is sought. Any U.S. workers who applied or apply for the job were or will be rejected only for lawful, job-related reasons, and the employer must retain records of all rejections.
4. The offered terms and working conditions of the job opportunity are normal to workers similarly employed in the area(s) of intended employment and are not less favorable than those offered to the foreign worker(s) and are not less than the minimum terms and conditions required by Federal regulation at 20 CFR 655, Subpart A.
5. The offered wage equals or exceeds the highest of the most recent prevailing wage that is or will be issued by the Department to the employer for the time period the work is performed, or the applicable Federal, State, or local minimum wage, and the employer will pay the offered wage.
6. The offered wage is not based on commissions, bonuses or other incentives, unless the employer guarantees a wage paid on a weekly, bi-weekly, or monthly basis that equals or exceeds the prevailing wage, or the legal Federal or State minimum wage, whichever is highest.
7. During the period of employment that is the subject of the labor certification application, the employer will comply with applicable Federal, State and local employment-related laws and regulations, including employment-related health and safety laws;
8. The employer has not laid off and will not lay off any similarly employed U.S. worker in the occupation that is the subject of the Application for Temporary Employment Certification in the area of intended employment within the period beginning 120 days before the date of need, except where the employer also attests that it offered the job opportunity that is the subject of the application to those laid-off U.S. worker(s) and the U.S. worker(s) either refused the job opportunity or was rejected for the job opportunity for lawful, job-related reasons.

ETA Form 9142 – APPENDIX B.1
U.S. Department of Labor

9. The employer and its agents and/or attorneys have not sought or received payment of any kind from the employee for any activity related to obtaining labor certification, including payment of the employer's attorneys' fees, application fees, or recruitment costs. For purposes of this paragraph, payment includes, but is not limited to, monetary payments, wage concessions (including deductions from wages, salary, or benefits), kickbacks, bribes, tributes, in kind payments, and free labor.

10. Unless the H-2B worker is being sponsored by another subsequent employer, the employer will inform H-2B workers of the requirement that they leave the U.S. at the end of the period certified by the Department or separation from the employer, whichever is earlier, as required under § 655.35, and that if dismissed by the employer prior to the end of the period, the employer is liable for return transportation.

11. Upon the separation from employment of any foreign worker(s) employed under the labor certification application, if such separation occurs prior to the end date of the employment specified in the application, the employer will notify the Department and DHS in writing or any other method specified of the separation from employment not later than forty-eight (48) hours after such separation is discovered by the employer.

12. The employer will not place any H-2B workers employed pursuant to this application outside the area of intended employment listed on the Application for Temporary Employment Certification unless the employer has obtained a new temporary labor certification from the Department.

13. The dates of temporary need, reason(s) for temporary need, and number of worker positions being requested for certification have been truly and accurately stated on the application.

14. If the application is being filed as a job contractor, the employer will not place any H-2B workers employed pursuant to the labor certification application with any other employer or at another employer's worksite unless:

    (i) The employer applicant first makes a bona fide inquiry as to whether the other employer has displaced or intends to displace a similarly employed U.S. worker within the area of intended employment within the period beginning 120 days before and throughout the entire placement of the H-2B worker, the other employer provides written confirmation that it has not so displaced and does not intend to displace such U.S. workers; and

Section F.a.2. Number of Hours Per Week

This Mobile Entertainment Employer is a FLSA (13)(a)(3) exempt employer not subject to an hourly wage, overtime or recordkeeping requirements. The weekly wage has been calculated based upon a standard 40-hour week using the methodology detailed in Section G.1.

If state or local law requires overtime it will be calculated and paid as per applicable federal, state or local regulations. However for purposes of the Federal H-2B Program which respects the employers FLSA 13(a)(3) exemption, employer is not offering an overtime rate of pay nor overtime.

Section F.a.3. Hourly Work Schedule

The work schedule varies widely due to weather conditions, local event organizers, local customs, attendance at the event, day of the week, time of the year and a myriad of other factors. The employer will pay the weekly salary for each week that the worker is employed. Both the SWA and DOL in electronic filings require a set start time and set end time to be posted. The times being posted for recruitment and filing are to provide potential applicants and the agency with a general idea of the afternoon and evening schedules that are typical Hours on week days will probably be reduced, hours on weekends will probably be increased, and all of the above named conditions can affect the hours actually worked. The employer is not representing to either the applicants or the agencies that these hours are fixed and predictable.

Section F.b.5. Post-Employment Drug and Background Checks

The background checks when conducted do not favor either US or H-2B workers, they are conducted on an equal basis for all employees. Employees come into contact with children at our entertainment events and our company policy, local sponsor policy and common industry practice means that the applicants must be able to pass post-employment background checks in regards to Megan's Law, Felonies and Convictions that would require the employee to register as a sexual offender or predator. Various states, counties, cities and venues require that mobile entertainment operators submit all employees to background checks prior to issuance of operating permits and/or credentials for the workers. These background checks, when conducted, are POST-EMPLOYMENT and are conducted by state/local permitting authorities and/or the venue and apply across the board to all workers, including owners and managers.

The background check is included as a term and condition of employment because employees come into contact with children at our entertainment events and our company policy, local sponsor policy and common industry practice means that the applicants must be able to pass post-employment background checks in regards to Megan's Law, Felonies and Convictions that would require the employee to register as a sexual offender or predator. Not only would we be considered negligent, we could be subject to litigation or criminal prosecution if employees were not subject to background checks. Many fairs (venues) mandate the background checks, so if they were not conducted we would not be able to operate.

We believe that the terms and conditions of employment are normal to similarly employed US workers in this industry. The OABA (Outdoor Amusement Business Association) in conjunction with the IAFE (International Association of Fairs and Expositions) published their "Best Practices" recommendations for Mobile

Entertainment Operators and the Venues, and in those recommendations in 2006, best practices in regards to hiring:

- "Methods and procedures for obtaining background checks on new employees should be shared by the parties."
- "Fairs and Mobile amusement operators should access web sites that provide a register of sex offenders, especially in states that enforce Megan's Law..."
- "The hiring practices of both parties should be examined and, whenever possible, steps should be taken to create better employee recruitment and training programs."

All of the mobile entertainment employers are subject to the same venue & regulatory requirements, so similarly employed workers (US and Foreign) would all be subject to the same terms and conditions.

Various states, localities and venues require either that either the employer conducts drug/background checks or they themselves conduct the drug/background checks prior to issuing operating permits/credentials for the event. As an example of guidelines applicable for industry: http://www.state.il.us/agency/idol/faq/faqcarn.htm These Illinois regulations require background check for all carnival employees and bar employment for convictions for various violent and sexual offences, require drug screening and are similar to local / venue regulations / requirements

These terms and conditions are not less favorable than those offered to H-2B workers because all of the mobile entertainment employers are subject to the same venue & regulatory requirements, so similarly employed workers (US and H-2B) would all be subject to the same terms and conditions.

Our terms and conditions of employment are not less than the minimum terms and conditions required by the regulation.

Further and without question, these tests will be administered equally between all US and H2B workers.

It is highly unlikely that any H-2B worker, who passed the background check conducted by the Department of State prior to visa issuance and the Department of Homeland Security CBP prior to visa issuance, would fail the background check, but if the background check indicated something serious (ie: Megan's Law Violation, Conviction for a Sexual Offence, Felony) then we would have to terminate the US or H-2B worker and follow all applicable regulations in providing transportation home, etc.

Section G.1. Basic Rate of Pay Offered

Mobile Entertainment Employer will pay the variable prevailing wage ($323.60 to $368.40, Average $347.88) as per 9141 Prevailing Wage Determination [P-400-12279-745190] attached. If there are changes in work locations, employer will obtain applicable prevailing wage for work location and pay such wage.

Section G.1.a. Overtime Rate of Pay

This Mobile Entertainment Employer is a FLSA (13)(a)(3) exempt employer not subject to an hourly wage, overtime or recordkeeping requirements. If state or local law requires overtime it will be calculated and paid as per applicable Federal, state or local regulations. However for purposes of the Federal H-2B Program which respects the employers FLSA 13(a)(3) exemption, employer is not offering an overtime rate of pay nor overtime.

Section G.3. Additional Wage Information:

On the date that the recruitment commenced the Department of Labor's H-2B Wage Methodology was subject to litigation. It is unknown if the Department will further postpone the effective date, or will be legally barred from implementing, the Wage Methodology for the Temporary Non-Agricultural Employment H-2B Program Final Rule. 76 FR 3452 (Jan 19, 2011).

Accordingly, the employer will pay the Variable Prevailing Wage Determination that is valid at the time of employment. Merit increases and/or bonuses may be awarded at employer discretion.

As per prevailing practices of the mobile entertainment industry for both similarly employed US and foreign workers:

- Employer makes available mobile housing valued at $125.00 per week.
- Employer makes available transportation from venue to venue and scheduled transportation to laundry, shopping valued at $25.00 per week.
- Employer is an Equal Opportunity, FLSA Section 13(a)(3) Exempt Employer. Depending upon applicable wage laws, wage to be paid as either weekly or hourly salary, no overtime expected.

If the wage to be paid is higher that the Variable Prevailing Wage Determination, the employer reserves the right to charge a fee for housing and transportation, but the effective rate of pay will not be lower than the Variable Prevailing Wage Determination.

I declare under penalty of perjury that I have read and reviewed this application and that to the best of my knowledge the information contained therein is true and accurate. I understand that to knowingly furnish false information in the preparation of this form and any supplement thereto or to aid, abet, or counsel another to do so is a felony punishable by a $250,000 fine or 5 years in the Federal penitentiary or both (18 U.S.C. 1001).

Subject: Re: Backwage Compliance and Payment Agreement

I am following up on the status of the audit. You have identified 10 employees that you believe should have been paid according to the following job codes:

Position	Job code	Wage
1. Drivers	53-3032	$19.37
2. 1st line supervisors	39-1021	$18.98
3. Office support personnel	43-9199	$17.82
4. Maintenance workers	49-9071	$18.67

According to your back wage calculations, these 10 employees are owed back wages for the period February 2 through April 27, 2013, as follows:
1. Saul Estadillo Herrera – $3022.80 (driver)
2. Gustavo Gamero – $3022.80 (driver)
3. Sergio Guzman – $3022.80 (driver)
4. Jaime Hernandez – $2989.80
5. Omar Lopez – $2576.20
6. Antonio Mendez – $156.20
7. Jose Ortego – $3022.80 (driver)
8. Fernando Preza – $3022.80 (driver)
9. Felipe Villegas Quijano – $3869.80
10. Marilu Zepeda – $1240.80 (office administrative functions)
During our discussion on November 22, you did not identify which of these 5 individuals were drivers, but I assume they are the 5 for which you calculated the same amount of back wages. I understand that the individual performing office administrative functions was apparently a female, which I assume is Marilu Zepeda. I have not currently identified which 2 individuals were performing the "machine shop mechanics" jobs or the 2 individuals functioning as "ride supervisors."

I had requested 2 additional weeks within which to evaluate and respond on the following issues:
1. Whether, and the extent to which – these 10 individuals were working outside of their approved job code?
2. If any of these individuals were working outside of their job code, what was the appropriate job code and wage rate? We believe that we may be able to identify job codes in early 2013.
3. Do the math to calculate any back wages.

At this moment, we were not able to investigate this to a conclusion. I have asked my assistant to confirm that the 4 job codes that you have identified were the appropriate ones, or whether an alternative job code is more appropriate. Based on her work schedule, and the holidays, it might not be until the 1st full week in January before she can complete her review.

Nevertheless, let me venture a few observations. Most importantly, as I read the regulations, I do not see any basis for imposing back wages in the event that a worker is working outside of an approved job code.

Butler Exh. 6, pp. 085

20 C.F.R. § 655.65 (i) (if "an employer has not paid wages at the wage level specified under the application and required by § 655.22 (e), the Administrator may require the employer to provide for payment of such amounts as may be required to comply with the requirements of § 655.22 (e).") The only responsibility is to pay the "offered wage" that "equals or exceeds the highest of the prevailing wage, the applicable Federal minimum wage, the State minimum wage, and local minimum wage and the employer will pay the offered wage during the entire period of the approved H-2B labor certification." 20 C.F.R. § 655.22 (e). This is very similar to the rule governing civil money penalties for "willful" failure to pay wages, in which event civil money penalties "are equal to the difference between the amount that should have been paid and the amount that actually was paid to such nonimmigrant(s)." 20 C.F.R. § 655.65 (a). In fact, we did pay the offered wage, and that was the only amount that should have been paid "to such nonimmigrants," and I can find no other legal authority for imposing back wages under these circumstances. Further, I can think of no reason why any employer would want to pay back wages under these circumstances, only to have the same allegation leveled as a civil money penalty at some point in the future.

As to the 5 drivers, I will confirm who they are. If I understood our conversation correctly, you credited each of them for 40 hours per week. The problem with this position is that:
1. Assuming for the moment that any of these workers can be paid back wages for working outside of their job code, they only served in the capacity as drivers for a few hours each week. I will try to determine with greater precision what that figure might be.
2. Their actual hours during the audit time period were substantially less than 40 hours per week. I will verify how many hours these individuals worked.

As to the 2 ride supervisors, I am attempting to determine how much of their work time was as a supervisor, rather than the approved ride operator. We are also verifying that their actual hours were less than the 40 hours per week that you calculated.

As to the 2 machine shop mechanics, I am attempting to verify how much of their work time was in this job code, rather than the approved ride operator. The approved job code, 39-3091.00, includes "recording details of ... repair activities," "cleaning" equipment, "inspect equipment to detect wear and damage and perform minor repairs, adjustments or maintenance tasks such as oiling parts," and "maintain inventories of equipment, storing and retrieving items and assembling and disassembling equipment as necessary." Further, we are also verifying that their actual hours were less than 40 hours per week that you calculated.

As to the 1 office worker, I am attempting to verify how much of their work time was in this job code, rather than the approve ride operator. The approved job code, 39-3091.00, specifically contemplates the sort of paperwork that you referenced. For example, this job code includes "record details of attendance, sales, receipts, reservations, or repair activities." Further, we are also verifying that their actual hours were less than the 40 hours per week that you calculated.

When we last talked, I indicated that I would be meeting with my folks yesterday, and that I would get back to you thereafter.

We would like to request 2 weeks in which to advise you of our position in writing. I expect that the majority of this time will be confirming
1. whether and the extent to which the 10 individuals you have identified were working outside of their job code
2. To the extent that any of them were doing so, we want to corroborate what would have been the appropriate job code and wage rate. I understand that wage rates for early 2013 are no longer available to you or I after July 1.
3. We would then do the math to calculate any owed amounts.

In addition to the misclassification issue, I also want to put in writing our position as to the various issues that I have identified to you during our conversations.

CERTIFIED MAIL RETURN RECEIPT REQUESTED: # 1ZW8Y8320298496004

February 6, 2018

Michael Brajevich, CEO
Butler Amusements, Inc.
8035 SW CIRRUS DRIVE, SUITE # 21-E
Beaverton, OR 97008

Subject: Administrator's Determination Pursuant to Section 214(c)(14) of the Immigration and Nationality Act (INA) and Applicable Regulations Pertaining to Violations Involving H-2B Nonimmigrant Workers

Reference #: 1689932

Dear Mr. Brajevich:

On January 29, 2018 you were served with a determination letter with certified mail number 1ZW8Y8320292571353. This letter was sent in error. This letter dated February 6, 2018 rescinds and replaces the January 29, 2018 letter.

An investigation conducted by this office of Butler Amusements, Inc. (herein Butler Amusements) under the H-2B provisions of the INA, as amended, 8 U.S.C. § 1101(a)(15)(H)(ii)(b) et seq., 1184(c)(14), and 20 CFR Part 655, subpart A (2008) and applicable procedural regulations in 29 CFR Part 503 (2015), covering the period from February 1, 2013 to April 24, 2013, disclosed that Butler Amusements committed the following violations regarding the USCIS Form I-129, Petition for a Nonimmigrant Worker (I-129 Petition) and the Application for Temporary Employment Certification (ETA Form 9142 with Appendix B) (9142 Application) filed under the 2008 regulations: substantial failure to comply with the proper job classification requirement. Any I-129 Petition or 9142 Application included in this investigation is listed or enclosed.

The enclosed Summary of Violations and Remedies indicates the specific violation regarding the I-129 Petition and 9142 Application, which we discussed in the final conference, and the remedy imposed for the violation.

As a consequence of this H-2B violation, $24,987.20 in unpaid wages is owed to 9 H-2B nonimmigrant workers. The same violation also resulted in the assessment of civil money penalties in the total amount of $10,000.00. These amounts are explained in detail in the enclosed Summary of Violation and Remedy. Please note that where Butler Amusements violated both an I-129 requirement and the corresponding 9142 Application requirement, the associated back wages and civil money penalties are both listed under the citation on the enclosed Summary of Violation and Remedy. However, the back wages and civil money penalties for such violations will be collected under only one citation.

Butler Amusements is liable for any ongoing violations. Butler Amusements must pay these back wages and civil money penalties no later than 30 calendar days after the date of this determination unless Butler Amusements requests an appeal as described below. The civil money penalties must be paid by submitting a certified check or money order payable to "Wage and Hour Division - Labor" to the Wage and Hour Division, U.S. Department of Labor, 620 SW Main Street, Room 423, Portland, OR 97205.

Butler Amusements must pay back wages in the amounts listed on the Summary of Unpaid Wages, Form WH-56, which was previously provided to Butler Amusements. Butler Amusements is responsible for withholding the legally required deductions (e.g., Federal and State income tax and FICA) and paying these amounts and Butler Amusements' contributions to the appropriate entities. A certified check or money order in the net amount of back wages should be made payable to the names of the individuals owed back wages or "Wage and Hour Division - Labor" to the Wage and Hour Division, U.S. Department of Labor, 620 SW Main Street, Room 423, Portland, OR 97205-3028.

This debt is subject to the assessment of interest, administrative cost charges and penalties in accordance with the Debt Collection Improvement Act of 1996 and U.S. Department of Labor policies. Interest will be assessed at the Treasury Tax and Loan Account rate on any principal that becomes delinquent. The rate is currently 1%. Administrative cost charges will be assessed to help defray the Government's cost of collecting this debt. A penalty at the rate of 6% will be assessed on any portion of the debt remaining delinquent for more than 90 days. In order to avoid these charges, Butler Amusements must forward payment of the civil money penalties to the Wage and Hour Division, U.S. Department of Labor, 620 SW Main Street, Room 423, Portland, OR 97205 by the indicated due date. Please note that any pending bankruptcy action may affect the foregoing remedies. Where appropriate, the Department of Homeland Security and the Department of Labor's Office of Foreign Labor Certification (OFLC) will be notified about H-2B violations.

Additionally, pursuant to 20 CFR 655.31(d)(4) (2008), if Butler Amusements fails to pay the back wages and/or civil money penalties by the indicated due date, OFLC may seek to debar Butler Amusements from receiving future labor certifications for a prescribed period of time.

Butler Amusements has the right to request a hearing on this determination. Such a request must be dated, be typewritten or legibly written, specify the issues stated in this notice of determination on which a hearing is requested, state the specific reasons why the requestor believes this determination to be in error, be signed by the requestor or by an authorized representative, and include the address at which the requestor or the authorized representative desires to receive further communications relating to the hearing request.

The request must be made to and received by the Chief Administrative Law Judge (OALJ) at the following address no later than 30 calendar days after the date of this determination:

Chief Administrative Law Judge
U.S. Department of Labor
800 K Street NW, Room 400 North
Washington, DC 20001-8002

If Butler Amusements does not make a timely request for a hearing, this determination will become a final order of the Secretary of Labor and may no longer be appealed.

The procedure for filing a request for a hearing is provided in 29 C.F.R. 503.43. Please note that 29 CFR 503.43(f) requires that a copy of any such request for a hearing must also be sent to me and to those parties listed below. Due to the delayed delivery of mail in certain areas, you may wish to transmit your request to the OALJ via facsimile at 202-693-7365 to ensure timely receipt.

The fact that the above sanctions/remedies are being imposed for the H-2B violations found at this time does not preclude the taking of other enforcement action as is deemed appropriate by the Department of Labor or the assessment of back wages or civil money penalties for additional violations of the H-2B provisions found at some future time.

By virtue of my signature below, I HEREBY CERTIFY the following conditions of employment:

1. The job opportunity is a bona fide, full-time temporary position, the qualifications for which are consistent with the normal and accepted qualifications required by non-H-2B employers in the same or comparable occupations.
2. The job opportunity is not vacant because the former occupant(s) is (are) on strike or locked out in the course of a labor dispute involving a work stoppage.
3. The job opportunity is open to any qualified U.S. worker regardless of race, color, national origin, age, sex, religion, handicap, or citizenship, and the employer has conducted the required recruitment, in accordance with regulations, and has been unsuccessful in locating sufficient numbers of qualified U.S. applicants for the job opportunity for which certification is sought. Any U.S. workers who applied or apply for the job were or will be rejected only for lawful, job-related reasons, and the employer must retain records of all rejections.
4. The offered terms and working conditions of the job opportunity are normal to workers similarly employed in the area(s) of intended employment and are not less favorable than those offered to the foreign worker(s) and are not less than the minimum terms and conditions required by Federal regulation at 20 CFR 655, Subpart A.
5. The offered wage equals or exceeds the highest of the most recent prevailing wage that is or will be issued by the Department to the employer for the time period the work is performed, or the applicable Federal, State, or local minimum wage, and the employer will pay the offered wage.
6. The offered wage is not based on commissions, bonuses or other incentives, unless the employer guarantees a wage paid on a weekly, bi-weekly, or monthly basis that equals or exceeds the prevailing wage, or the legal Federal or State minimum wage, whichever is highest.
7. During the period of employment that is the subject of the labor certification application, the employer will comply with applicable Federal, State and local employment-related laws and regulations, including employment-related health and safety laws;
8. The employer has not laid off and will not lay off any similarly employed U.S. worker in the occupation that is the subject of the Application for Temporary Employment Certification in the area of intended employment within the period beginning 120 days before the date of need, except where the employer also attests that it offered the job opportunity that is the subject of the application to those laid-off U.S. worker(s) and the U.S. worker(s) either refused the job opportunity or was rejected for the job opportunity for lawful, job-related reasons.

U.S. Department of Labor

9. The employer and its agents and/or attorneys have not sought or received payment of any kind from the employee for any activity related to obtaining labor certification, including payment of the employer's attorneys' fees, application fees, or recruitment costs. For purposes of this paragraph, payment includes, but is not limited to, monetary payments, wage concessions (including deductions from wages, salary, or benefits), kickbacks, bribes, tributes, in kind payments, and free labor.

10. Unless the H-2B worker is being sponsored by another subsequent employer, the employer will inform H-2B workers of the requirement that they leave the U.S. at the end of the period certified by the Department or separation from the employer, whichever is earlier, as required under § 655.35, and that if dismissed by the employer prior to the end of the period, the employer is liable for return transportation.

11. Upon the separation from employment of any foreign worker(s) employed under the labor certification application, if such separation occurs prior to the end date of the employment specified in the application, the employer will notify the Department and DHS in writing or any other method specified of the separation from employment not later than forty-eight (48) hours after such separation is discovered by the employer.

12. The employer will not place any H-2B workers employed pursuant to this application outside the area of intended employment listed on the Application for Temporary Employment Certification unless the employer has obtained a new temporary labor certification from the Department.

13. The dates of temporary need, reason(s) for temporary need, and number of worker positions being requested for certification have been truly and accurately stated on the application.

14. If the application is being filed as a job contractor, the employer will not place any H-2B workers employed pursuant to the labor certification application with any other employer or at another employer's worksite unless:

    (i) The employer applicant first makes a bona fide inquiry as to whether the other employer has displaced or intends to displace a similarly employed U.S. worker within the area of intended employment within the period beginning 120 days before and throughout the entire placement of the H-2B worker, the other employer provides written confirmation that it has not so displaced and does not intend to displace such U.S. workers; and
    (ii) All worksites are listed on the certified Application for Temporary Employment Certification

3. Explain your temporary need for the beneficiary or beneficiaries' services (Attach a separate sheet if additional space is needed.)

Our family has been in the Carnival Business all of our lives,providing entertainment, rides, games and concessions on a seasonal basis. This company was founded in 1969.

We have a seasonal need for these workers, recurring on an annual basis. This is because we are open for a specific season each year and we are a traveling business, the work is evenings and weekends, and it is very difficult to find workers willing to travel from State to State. Even with the economic downturn people do not want to leave their homes and families to travel from event to event. We are unable to find available workers in the US to fill the positions to travel with the show.

This is a need that is seasonal and expected to be recurrent annually from February through October each year. The business has been seasonal since we began, completely shutting down for the months of November through end of January each year, and the need for seasonal workers has been constant.

We engage in extensive recruiting in hopes of fulfilling our seasonal needs. This recruiting process includes newspaper ads, using the DOL Job Search Protocol and help wanted signs at all of our locations. Our chronic need for employees is not filled.

While our need for temporary workers is recurrent annually, predictable and seasonal, the nature of the outdoor amusement business is that our events have longer hours and higher attendance when school is not in session, requiring an increase in staff when school vacation starts. We request permission for staggered entry for a limited number of workers when our temporary need increases based upon this business need.

California Industrial Welfare Commission Order 10-2001 applies to this employer while working in the State of California. Employer follows prevailing practices for the Traveling Amusement Industry in regards to housing, transportation and weekly salary for workers.

Above is a complete listing of booked and anticipated (pending) locations for the time period covered by this Job Order, listing city, county, state and prevailing wage listing from ONET/OES Site. It should be noted that for several dates there are multiple locations listed. Due to the nature of the business, there are some events that are large enough to support the entire carnival. At other points in time the show must spend some equipment (and workers) to additional locations. When our tour schedule requires our show to handle simultaneous locations or overlapping locations, employer will send workers to locations depending upon the venue and how many rides we will have operating at one venue in comparison to the number of rides operating at the other venues. Our unit continues with the other listed venues and we repeat the process when we encounter simultaneous or overlapping locations again.

What Is the Purpose of This Form?

This form is used by an employer to petition U.S. Citizenship and Immigration Services (USCIS) for an alien beneficiary to come as a nonimmigrant to the United States temporarily to perform services or labor, or to receive training.

Form I-129 consists of the:

1. Basic petition;
2. Individual supplements relating to specific classifications; and
3. H-1B Data Collection and Filing Fee Exemption Supplement (required for H-1B classifications only).

These instructions are divided into two parts:

PART 1: Classifications that always require a petition:

E-2 CNMI, treaty investor exclusively in the Commonwealth of the Northern Mariana Islands (CNMI).

H-1B, specialty occupations; an alien coming to perform services of an exceptional nature relating to a project administered by the U.S. Department of Defense, or a fashion model who has national and international acclaim.

H-1C, registered nurse.

H-2A, temporary agricultural worker.

H-2B, temporary nonagricultural worker.

H-3, trainee.

O-2, accompanying alien who is coming to the United States to assist in the artistic or athletic performance of an O-1 artist or athlete.

P-1, major league sports.

P-2S, essential support personnel for a P-2.

Butler Exh.12, pp. 135

P-3, artist/entertainer coming to the United States to perform, teach, or coach under a program that is culturally unique.

P-3S, essential support personnel for a P-3.

Q-1, alien coming temporarily to participate in an international cultural exchange program.

R-1, religious worker.

PART 2: Classification that requires a petition only if the beneficiary is already in the United States and requesting an extension of stay or change of status:

E-1, treaty trader.

E-2, treaty investor (not including E-2 CNMI treaty investors).

E-3, Free Trade Agreement professionals from Australia.

Free Trade Nonimmigrants, H-1B1 aliens from Chile or Singapore and TN aliens from Canada or Mexico.

NOTE: A petition must always be filed for an E-2 CNMI investor classification.

Who May File This Form I-129?

General. A U.S. employer may file this form and applicable supplements to classify an alien in any nonimmigrant classification listed in Part 1 and Part 2 of these instructions. A foreign employer may file for certain classifications as indicated in the specific instructions.

Agents. A U.S. individual or company in business as an agent may file for types of workers who are traditionally self-employed or who traditionally use an agent to arrange short-term employment with numerous employers. A petition filed by an agent must include a complete itinerary of services or engagements, including dates, names, and addresses of the actual employers, and the locations where the services will be performed. A petition filed by a U.S. agent must guarantee the wages and other terms and conditions of employment by contractual agreement with the beneficiary or beneficiaries of the petition. The agent/employer must also provide an itinerary of definite employment and information on any other services planned for the period of time requested.

Including more than one alien in a petition. Multiple aliens who will seek admission in H-1C, H-2A, H-2B, H-3, P-1, P-2, P-3, O-2, or Q-1 classification may be included on the same petition provided:

1. They will all be employed for the same period of time; and
2. They will all perform the same services, receive the same training, or participate in the same international cultural exchange program.

Exception: H-2A and H-2B petitions for workers from countries not listed on the respective "Eligible Countries List" should be filed separately. See www.uscis.gov for the list of H-2A and H-2B participating countries.

Multiple locations. A petition for alien(s) to perform services or labor or receive training in more than one location must include an itinerary with the dates and locations where the services or training will take place.

Naming beneficiaries. All beneficiaries in a petition must be named except for an H-2A agricultural worker or an H-2B temporary nonagricultural worker. Exceptions: You must provide the name, date of birth, country of birth, and country of nationality of all H-2A and H-2B workers when: (1) the petition is filed for a worker who is a national of a country not designated by the Secretary of Homeland Security as eligible to participate in the H-2A or H-2B program, or (2) the beneficiary is in the United States. In addition, USCIS may require the petitioner to name H-2B beneficiaries where the name is needed to establish eligibility for H-2B nonimmigrant status.

Where some or all of the beneficiaries are not named, specify the total number of unnamed beneficiaries and total number of beneficiaries in the petition.

General Filing Instructions

1. Complete the basic form and any relating supplement.
2. Type or print legibly in blue or black ink.
3. If extra space is needed to complete any item, go to Part 9, Explanation Page, indicate the item number, and date and sign the sheet.
4. Answer all questions fully and accurately. State that an item is not applicable with "N/A." If the answer is none, write "none."
5. Submit a duplicate copy of the petition and all supporting documentation.

Basis for Classification

The following is an explanation of the choices listed on Page 2, Part 2, Item 2 of the Form I-129.

a. New employment. Check this box if the beneficiary:

(1) Is outside the U.S. and holds no classification;

Beneficiary Exhibit 2, pg 36

(2) Is to begin employment for new U.S. employer in a different nonimmigrant classification than the alien currently holds; or

(3) Will work for the same employer but in a different nonimmigrant classification.

b. Continuation of previously approved employment without change with the same employer. Check this box if applying to continue employment of the beneficiary in the same nonimmigrant classification the beneficiary currently holds and there has been no change to the employment.

c. Change in previously approved employment. Check this box if applying to notify USCIS of a non-material change to the previously approved employment such as a change in job title without a material change in job duties.

d. New concurrent employment. Check this box if applying for a beneficiary to begin new employment with an additional employer in the same nonimmigrant classification the beneficiary currently holds while the beneficiary will continue working for his or her current employer in the same classification.

e. Change of employer. Check this box if applying for a beneficiary to begin employment working for a new employer in the same nonimmigrant classification that the beneficiary currently holds.

f. Amended Petition. Check this box if applying to notify USCIS of a material change in the terms or conditions of employment or training or the beneficiary's eligibility as specified in the original approved petition. Additionally, petitioners requesting H-2A or H-2B substitutions should check this box.

Requested Action

The following is an explanation of the types of action a petitioner/employer may choose for Page 2, Part 2, Item 4 of Form I-129. Choose only one action.

a. Notify the office in Part 4 so the person(s) can obtain a visa or be admitted. Check this box if the beneficiary is currently outside of the United States, or, if the beneficiary is in the United States, he or she will leave the United States to obtain a visa/admission abroad.

b. Change the person(s) status and extend their stay since the person(s) are all now in the United States in another status. Check this box if the beneficiary is currently in the United States in a different nonimmigrant classification and is applying to change to a new, nonimmigrant status.

c. Extend the stay of the person(s) since they now hold this status. Check this box if the beneficiary is currently in the United States in a nonimmigrant classification and is requesting an extension of his or her stay in the same nonimmigrant classification.

d. Amend the stay of the person(s) since they now hold this status. Check this box if the beneficiary is currently in the United States in the same nonimmigrant classification and filing the petition to notify USCIS of any material changes in the terms and conditions of employment, training or the beneficiary's eligibility as specified in the original approved petition.

e. Extend the status of a nonimmigrant classification based on a Free Trade Agreement. Check this box if the beneficiary is currently in the United States based on a Free Trade Agreement (H-1B1 Chile/Singapore or TN classification) and is requesting an extension of his or her stay in that same classification.

f. Change status to a nonimmigrant classification based on a Free Trade Agreement. Check this box if the beneficiary is currently in the United States in a different nonimmigrant classification based on a Free Trade Agreement (H-1B1 Chile/Singapore or TN classification).

Certification Pertaining to the Release of Controlled Technology or Technical Data to Foreign Persons in the United States

U.S. Export Controls on Release of Controlled Technology or Technical Data to Foreign Persons. The Export Administration Regulations (EAR) (15 CFR Parts 770-774) and the International Traffic in Arms Regulations (ITAR) (22 CFR Parts 120-130) require U.S. persons to seek and receive authorization from the U.S. Government before releasing to foreign persons in the United States controlled technology or technical data. Under both the EAR and the ITAR, release of controlled technology or technical data to foreign persons in the United States--even by an employer--is deemed to be an export to that person's country or countries of nationality. One implication of this rule is that a U.S. company must seek and receive a license from the U.S. Government before it releases controlled technology or technical data to its nonimmigrant workers employed as H-1B, L-1 or O-1A beneficiaries.

Requirement to Certify Compliance with U.S. Export Control Regulations. The U.S. Government requires each company or other entity to certify that it has reviewed the EAR and ITAR and determined whether it will require a U.S. Government export license to release controlled technology or technical data to the beneficiary. If an export license is required, then the company or other entity must further certify that it will not release or otherwise provide access to controlled technology or technical data to the beneficiary until it has received from the U.S. Government the required authorization to do so. The petitioner must indicate whether or not a license is required on Page 5, Part 6 of Form I-129.

Controlled Technology and Technical Data. The licensing requirements described above will affect only a small percentage of petitioners because most types of technology are not controlled for export or release to foreign persons. The technology and technical data that are, however, controlled for release to foreign persons are identified on the EAR's Commerce Control List (CCL) and the ITAR's U.S. Munitions List (USML). The CCL is found at 15 CFF Part 774, Supp. 1. See http://www.access.gpo.gov/bis/ear/ear_data.html#ccl. The USML is at 22 CFR 121.1. See http://www.pmddtc.state.gov/regulations_laws/itar.html. The EAR-controlled technology on the CCL generally pertains to that which is for the production, development, or use of what are generally known as "dual-use" items. The ITAR-controlled technical data on the USML generally pertains to that which is directly related to defense articles.

The U.S. Department of Commerce's Bureau of Industry and Security administers the CCL and is responsible for issuing licenses for the release to foreign persons of technology controlled under the EAR. The U.S. Department of State's Directorate of Defense Trade Controls (DDTC) administers the USML and is responsible for issuing licenses for the release to foreign persons of technical data controlled under the ITAR. Information about the EAR and how to apply for a license from BIS are at www.bis.doc.gov. Specific information about EAR's requirements pertaining to the release of controlled technology to foreign persons is at www.bis.doc.gov/deemedexports. Information about the ITAR and how to apply for a license from DDTC are at www.pmdtc.gov. Specific information about the ITAR's requirements pertaining to the release of controlled technical data is at http://www.pmddtc.state.gov/faqs/license_foreignpersons.html.

Classification - Initial Evidence

For all classifications, if a beneficiary is seeking a change of status or extension of stay, evidence of maintenance of status must be included with the new petition. If the beneficiary is employed in the United States, the petitioner may submit copies of the last 2 pay stubs and, when available, Form W-2, as well as a copy of the Form I-94 or I-797, Approval Notice.

The beneficiary's dependent family members (generally, spouses and children under 21) should use Form I-539, Application to Change/Extend Nonimmigrant Status, to apply for a change of status or extension of stay.

A nonimmigrant, who must have a passport to be admitted, must keep that passport valid during his or her entire stay. If a required passport is not valid, include a full explanation with the petition.

The following nonimmigrants are not eligible to change status:

1. An alien admitted under a visa waiver program;
2. An alien is transit (C) or in transit without a visa (TWOV);
3. A crewman (D);
4. A fiancé(e) (K-1) or his or her dependent (K-2);
5. A spouse of a U.S. citizen (K-3) or his or her dependent (K-4);
6. A J-1 exchange visitor whose status was for the purpose of receiving graduate medical training (unless a waiver has been granted under section 214(l) of the Immigration and Nationality Act);
7. A J-1 exchange visitor subject to the foreign residence requirement who has not received a waiver of that requirement; and
8. An M-1 student to an H classification, if training received as an M-1 helped him or her qualify for H classification.

Part 1: Petition Always Required

The following classifications always require a petition.

The initial evidence listed below and the initial evidence listed under the instructions for a change of status or extension of stay must be included with a petition for a new or concurrent employment or for an extension where there is a change in previously approved employment.

However, a petition for extension based on unchanged, previously approved employment should only be filed with the initial evidence required in the extension of stay instructions.

E-2 CNMI

An E-2 CNMI investor is an alien seeking to enter or remain in the Commonwealth of Northern Mariana Islands (CNMI) in order to maintain an investment in the CNMI that was approved by the CNMI government prior to November 28, 2009. An E-2 CNMI investor classification is specifically limited to an alien investor who has previously been granted a qualifying long term investor status under the laws of the CNMI. This classification allows an eligible alien to be lawfully present in the CNMI in order to maintain the investment during the transition period from CNMI to Federal immigration law. Nationality of the investor is not a qualifying factor in the issuance of an E-2 CNMI investor classification.

A petition for the initial issuance of an E-2 CNMI investor classification must be filed within 2 years of the date the E-2 CNMI investor classification becomes available. Petitions for the initial issuance of the E-2 CNMI filed after this period will be rejected.

Requests for extension of the E-2 CNMI investor classification may be granted, in increments of not more than 2 years, until December 31, 2014.

Applications for the dependents of E-2 CNMI investors must be filed on Form I-539, Application to Extend/Change Nonimmigrant Status.

Write E-2C in the classification requested block.

The petition must be filed with documentary evidence of:

1. Qualifying CNMI immigration status as evidenced by a properly endorsed, unexpired CNMI admission document (e.g., entry permit or certificate) reflecting lawful admission to the CNMI under CNMI immigration laws in one of the following status:
   - A. Long-term business investor status as evidenced by a Long-Term Business Certificate;
   - B. Foreign investor status as evidenced by a Foreign Investment Certificate;
   - C. Retiree investor status as evidenced by a Foreign Retirees Investment Certification or a Foreign Retiree Investment Certificate.
2. Maintaining investment, including but not limited to copies of an approval letter issued by the CNMI government; evidence that the capital has been invested; evidence that the applicant has invested at least the minimum amount required; and the following, depending on the type of investor:
   - A. For a holder of a foreign investment or long-term business certificate: copies of annual reports of investment activities in the CNMI containing sufficient information to determine whether the certificate holder is under continuing compliance with the standards of issuance, accompanied by annual financial audit reports performed by an independent certified public accountant;
   - B. For a retiree investor: evidence that he or she has an interest property in the CNMI (e.g. lease agreement), evidence of the value of the property interest (e.g. an appraisal regarding the value of the property), and, as applicable, evidence of the value of the improvements on the property (e.g. receipts or invoices of the costs of construction, the amount paid for preexisting structure, or an appraisal of the improvements).
3. Continuous maintenance of residence in the CNMI. The investor must establish that he or she has maintained residence within the CNMI since being lawfully admitted as a long-term investor. Additionally, he or she must establish physical presence in the CNMI for periods totaling at least half of that time. Absence from the CNMI for any period of more than 6 months but less than 1 year after such lawful admission shall break the continuity of such residence, unless the subject alien establishes to the satisfaction of DHS that he or she did not in fact abandon residence in the CNMI during such period. Absence from the CNMI for any period of more than 1 year during the period for which continuous residence is required shall break the continuity of such residence.

H-1B (3 Types)

An H-1B is an alien coming temporarily to perform services in a specialty occupation.

Write H-1B in the classification requested block.

A specialty occupation is one that requires the theoretical and practical application of a body of highly specialized knowledge to fully perform the occupation and requires the attainment of a bachelor's or higher degree in a specific specialty, or its equivalent, as a minimum for entry into the occupation in the United States.

The petition must be filed by the U.S. employer and must be filed with:

1. Evidence that a labor condition application (LCA) has been certified by the U.S. Department of Labor;
2. Evidence showing that the proposed employment qualifies as a specialty occupation;
3. Evidence showing that the beneficiary has the required degree by submitting either:
   - A. A copy of the beneficiary's U.S. baccalaureate or higher degree as required by the specialty occupation;
   - B. A copy of a foreign degree and evidence that it is equivalent to the U.S. degree; or
   - C. Evidence of education and experience that is equivalent to the required U.S. degree.

Butler Exh. 12, pp. 139

4. A copy of any required license or other official permission to practice the occupation in the state of intended employment; and

5. A copy of any written contract between the petitioner and the beneficiary or a summary of the terms of the oral agreement under which the beneficiary will be employed.

6. Off-site Assignment of H-1B Beneficiaries: Petitioners seeking to place the H-1B beneficiary off-site at a location other than their own location must answer general questions regarding this assignment on page 19, relating to: actual or prevailing wage and assurance that all assignments will comply with the employment described in the H-1B petition and applicable statute and regulations governing the H-1B nonimmigrant classification. Petitioners should advise the H-1B beneficiary of the off-site work site placement.

   Additionally, petitioner should submit an itinerary that shows the dates and places of assignment if the beneficiary will be providing services at more than one location.

An H-1B is also an alien coming to perform services of an exceptional nature relating to a cooperative research and development project administered by the U.S. Department of Defense (DOD).

Write H-1B2 in the classification requested block.

A U.S. employer may file the petition. The petition must be filed with:

1. A description of the proposed employment;

2. Evidence that the services and project meet the above conditions;

3. A statement listing the names of aliens who are currently or have been employed on the project within the past year, along with their dates of employment; and

4. Evidence that the beneficiary holds a baccalaureate or higher degree in the field of employment.

An H-1B is also a fashion model who has national or international acclaim and recognition, coming to be employed in a position requiring such a level of acclaim and recognition.

Write H-1B3 in the classification requested block.

The petition must be filed by a U.S. employer or agent. Evidence must be submitted to establish that the beneficiary will be performing services, events, or productions of a distinguished reputation, including:

1. Documentary evidence (such as certifications, affidavits, reviews) to establish the beneficiary is a fashion model of distinguished merit and ability. Affidavits submitted by present or former employers or recognized experts must set forth the expertise of the affiant and the manner in which the affiant acquired such information; and

2. Copies of any written contracts between the petitioner and the beneficiary or, if there is no written agreement, a summary of the terms of the oral agreement under which the beneficiary will be employed.

Three laws have been enacted which impact the filing of H-1B and/or L visa petitions. These laws are the American Competitiveness and Workforce Improvement Act (ACWIA), Public Law 105-277 (signed into law on October 21, 1998), the Visa Reform Act of 2004 (signed into law on December 8, 2004) and Public Law 111-230 (signed into law on August 13, 2010).

Because of ACWIA, an H-1B or H-1B1 Free Trade Nonimmigrant petitioner must complete the H-1B supplement form, which is part of this petition. The supplement is used to collect additional information about the H-1B nonimmigrant worker and the H-1B petitioner (U.S. employer). (The supplement was formerly issued separately as Form I-129W.) Moreover, H-1B and H-1B1 petitioners must complete the H-1B Data Collection and Filing Fee Exemption Supplement to determine applicability of the fees mandated by the ACWIA, H-1B Visa Reform Act and/or Public Law 111-230.

The H-1B Visa Reform Act of 2004 imposes a Fraud Prevention and Detection Fee of $500 for certain H or L petitions. On or after March 8, 2005, a U.S. employer seeking initial approval of H-1B or L nonimmigrant status for a beneficiary, or seeking approval to employ an H-1B or L nonimmigrant currently working for another U.S. employer, must submit this additional $500 fee. This fee does not apply to H-1B1 petitions. The Form I-129 will serve as the vehicle for collection of the $500 fee.

Those petitioners required to submit the $500 Fraud Prevention and Detection fee are also required to submit either an additional $2,000 (H-1B) or $2,250 (L-1) fee mandated by Public Law 111-230 if:

1. The petitioner employs 50 or more individuals in the United States;

2. More than 50% of those employees are in H-1B or L nonimmigrant status; and

3. The petition is filed before October 1, 2014.

Butler Exh. 12, pg 10

The Fraud Prevention and Detection Fee and Public Law 111-230 fee, when applicable, may not be waived, and each fee should be submitted in separate checks or money orders.

To determine whether a petitioner is subject to any of these three fees, the petitioner must complete the H-1B and H1B1 Data Collection and Filing Fee Exemption Supplement discussed below.

H-1B and H-1B1 Data Collection and Filing Fee Exemption Supplement

An employer seeking to classify a beneficiary in H-1B classification (including H-1B1 Free Trade aliens from Chile and Singapore) must file this supplement. It is used to collect additional information about the H-1B employer and beneficiary. It is also used to determine the appropriate American Competitiveness and Workforce Improvement Act (ACWIA) fee and whether the beneficiary is subject to the H-1B numerical limitation (aka the H-1B Cap). The ACWIA fee may not be assessed to the beneficiary.

Who is required to submit this supplement?

A U.S. employer seeking to classify a beneficiary as an H-1B or H-1B1 Free Trade Nonimmigrant worker must file this supplement concurrently with Form I-129 and the appropriate fee. (See "What is the Filing Fee?" for additional information regarding the appropriate fee.)

Completing Part A of the Supplement Form

All U.S. employers seeking to classify a beneficiary as an H-1B or H-1B1 Free Trade Nonimmigrant worker must answer all of the questions in the "Employer Information" Section.

H-1B Dependent employer. An "H-1B dependent employer" means an employer that:

A. Has 25 or fewer full-time-equivalent employees who are employed in the United States and employs more than seven H-1B nonimmigrants;

B. Has at least 26 but not more than 50 full-time-equivalent employees who are employed in the United States and employs more than 12 H-1B nonimmigrants; or

C. Has at least 51 full-time equivalent employees who are employed in the United States and employs H-1B nonimmigrants in a number that is equal to at least 15 percent of the number of such full-time-equivalent employees.

NOTE: As of February 17, 2009, U.S. employers who received funding under the Troubled Assets Relief Program (TARP), as described in the Employ American Workers Act (sec. 1611 of Div. A, Title XVI of Public Law 111-5) and seek to hire an H-1B nonimmigrant must comply with the H-1B Dependent Employer provisions. The H-1B Dependent Employer provisions apply regardless of whether such U.S. employers are seeking exempt H-1B nonimmigrants.

2. Willful Violators. A willful violator is an employer whom the U.S. Secretary of Labor has found, after notice and opportunity for a hearing, to have willfully failed to meet a condition of the labor condition application described in section 212(n) of the Immigration and Nationality Act.

3. Exempt H-1B nonimmigrant. An "exempt H-1B nonimmigrant" means an H-1B who:

   A. Receives wages (including cash bonuses and similar compensation) at an annual rate equal to at least $60,000; or

   B. Has attained a master's degree or higher (or its equivalent) in a specialty related to the intended employment.

4. TARP funding. TARP funding refers to receipt of funds described in the Employ American Workers Act (sec. 1611 of Div. A, Title XVI of Public Law 111-5).

5. Highest education level. Place an "X" in the appropriate box of Part A, Number 2 of the supplement form that is most closely related to the highest formal education level attained by the beneficiary. DO NOT consider work experience in determining the beneficiary's equivalency.

6. Major/primary field of study. Use the beneficiary's degree transcripts to determine the primary field of study. DO NOT consider work experience to determine the beneficiary's major education level.

7. Master's or higher degree from a U.S. institution of higher education. Indicate whether or not the beneficiary has earned a master's or higher degree from a U.S. institution of higher education, as defined in 20 U.S.C. section 1001(a).

8. Rate of pay per year. The "rate of pay" is the salary or wages paid to the beneficiary. Salary or wages must be expressed in an annual full-time amount and do not include non-cash compensation or benefits. For example, an H-1B worker is to be paid $6,500 per month for a 4-month period, including a health benefits package and transportation. The yearly rate of pay if he or she were working for a full year would be 12 times the monthly rate, or $78,000. This amount does not include health benefits or transportation costs. The figure $78,000 should be entered on this form as the rate of pay.

9. DOT Code. The DOT Code is a three-digit occupational group for professional, technical, and managerial occupations and fashion models that can be obtained from the Dictionary of Occupational Titles. A reference chart can be found on our Web site: www.uscis.gov.

10. NAICS Code. This is the North American Industry Classification System (NAICS) Code. This code can be obtained from the U.S. Department of Commerce, Census Bureau (www.census.gov/epcd/www/naics.htm). Enter the code from left to right, one digit in each of the six boxes. If you use a code with fewer than six digits, enter the code left to right and then add zeros in the remaining unoccupied boxes.

The E-1 employee may perform work for the parent treaty organization or enterprise, or any subsidiary of the parent organization or enterprise.

The petition must be filed with evidence of:

1. Ownership and Nationality. Such evidence may include but is not limited to lists of investors with current status and nationality, stock certificates, certificate of ownership issued by the commercial section of a foreign embassy, and reports from a certified personal accountant;
2. Substantial Trade, which is an amount of trade sufficient to ensure a continuous flow of international trade items between the United States and the treaty country. Such evidence may include copies of three or more of the following: bills of lading, customs receipts, letter of credit, trade brochures, purchase orders, insurance papers, documenting commodities imported, carrier inventories, and/or sales contracts, or other probative documentation establishing the requisite substantial trade; and
3. For E-1 employees only: Executive or Supervisory Duties or special qualifications essential to the enterprise, including but not limited to certificates, diplomas or transcripts, letters from employers describing job titles, duties, operators' manuals, and the required level of education and knowledge.

An E-2 is a national of a country with which the United States maintains a qualifying treaty, who is coming to the United States to develop and direct the operations of an enterprise in which he or she has invested or is actively in the process of investing a substantial amount of capital. The Department of State maintains a list of countries with qualifying treaties. See http://travel.state.gov/visa/frvi/reciprocity/reciprocity_3726.html for a list of qualifying countries.

Write E-2 in the classification block on the petition.

An E-2 must demonstrate possession and control of funds and the ability to develop and direct the investment enterprise. Capital in the process of being invested or that has been invested must be placed at risk and be irrevocably committed to the enterprise. The enterprise must be a real, active, and operating commercial or entrepreneurial undertaking that produces services or goods for profit. The investment must be substantial and the funds must not have been obtained, directly or indirectly, from criminal activity. The enterprise must be more than marginal.

An employee of an E-2 who possesses the same nationality as the E-2 employer may also be classified as E-2. The employee must principally and primarily perform executive or supervisory duties or possess special qualifications that are essential to the successful or efficient operation of the enterprise.

The petition must be filed with evidence of:

1. Ownership and Nationality, including but not limited to lists of investors with current status and nationality, stock certificates, certificate of ownership issued by the commercial section of a foreign embassy, and reports from a certified personal accountant;

Butler Exh. 12, pp. 150

2. Substantial investment, including but not limited to copies of partnership agreements (with a statement on proportionate ownership), articles of incorporation, payments for the rental of business premises or office equipment, business licenses, stock certificates, office inventories (goods and equipment purchased for the business), insurance appraisals, annual reports, net worth statements from certified profession accountants, advertising invoices, business bank accounts containing funds for routine operations, funds held in escrow; and

3. For E-2 employees only: Executive or Supervisory Duties or special qualifications essential to the enterprise, including but not limited to certificates, diplomas or transcripts, letters from employers describing job titles, duties, operators' manuals, and the required level of education and knowledge.

Free Trade Nonimmigrants (H-1B1 and TNs)

A Free Trade Nonimmigrant is a temporary nonimmigrant classification based on the provisions of a Free Trade Agreement between the United States and the alien's country of citizenship. Currently there are 2 stand alone Free Trade Nonimmigrant classifications available.

A TN nonimmigrant is a citizen of Canada or Mexico covered by the North American Free Trade Agreement who is coming to the United States to engage temporarily in business activities at a professional level. Depending on the specific type of business activity, a TN must at least have a bachelor's degree or, in certain limited instances, other appropriate credentials which demonstrate status as a professional. The acceptable types of TN business activities at a professional level are listed at 8 CFR 214.6(c).

Write TN in the classification block on the petition.

If requesting a "Change of Status" to TN, the applicant must submit evidence demonstrating that he or she will be engaged in business activities at a professional level and that the applicant possesses the requisite professional qualifications. Acceptable evidence may include, but is not limited to, the following:

1. A letter from the employer stating the activity to be engaged in, the anticipated length of stay, and the arrangements for remuneration;

2. A copy of the beneficiary's last 2 pay stubs and W-2 if employed in the United States; and

3. Evidence the beneficiary meets the educational and/or licensing requirements for the profession or occupation.

If requesting an "Extension of Stay" in TN classification, submit evidence, such as a letter, describing the continuing employment and evidence of the beneficiary's continued valid licensing (if required by the profession and/or the State).

A H-1B1 is an alien from Chile or Singapore coming temporarily to perform services in a specialty occupation. See the instructions for H-1B nonimmigrants for the definition of "specialty occupation."

Write H-1B1 in the classification block on the petition.

All evidence listed on page 5 for H-1B specialty occupation classification and the following supplements must be submitted with the petition:

1. Nonimmigrant Classification Based on a Free Trade Agreement Supplement; and

2. H Classification Supplement; and

3. H-1B Data Collection and Filing Fee Exemption Supplement.

If requesting an "Extension of Stay," submit evidence, such as a letter describing the continuing employment, as well as evidence of the beneficiary's continued valid licensing (if required by the profession and/or the State). Also, if this extension is the sixth consecutive extension requested for this beneficiary, a statement to that effect should be provided.

Change of Status

A petition for change of status to one of the classifications described in this section must be submitted with the initial evidence detailed above and with the initial evidence required by the separate instructions for all petitions involving change of status.

Extension of Stay

Extension of Stay For All Except Free Trade Nonimmigrants

A petition requesting an extension of stay for an employee in the United States must be filed with a copy of the beneficiary's Form I-94, Nonimmigrant Arrival/Departure Record, and a letter from the petitioner explaining the reasons for the extension. Consult the regulations relative to the specific nonimmigrant classification sought.

NOTE: Family members should use Form I-539 to file for an extension of stay.

A nonimmigrant who must have a passport to be admitted must keep that passport valid during his or her entire stay. If a required passport is not valid, include a full explanation with your petition. Where there has been a change in the circumstances of employment, submit also the evidence required for a new petition. A petition requesting an extension must be submitted with:

1. The appropriate supplement(s) for the classification;

2. A letter describing the proffered employment;

3. A copy of the beneficiary's last 2 pay stubs and W-2, if applicable;

Beltre, Exh. 12, pp. 15

4. Evidence the beneficiary continues to meet the licensing requirements for the profession or occupation, if applicable;

5. If requesting an extension of H-1B status (including H-1B1 Chile/Singapore), evidence that a labor condition application for the specialty occupation valid for the period of time requested has been certified by the Department of Labor;

6. If requesting H-2A status, submit a temporary labor certification valid for the dates of the extension, unless it is based on a continuation of previously approved employment due to exigent circumstances and the extension will last no longer than 2 weeks;

7. If requesting H-2B status, submit a U.S. Department of Labor approved temporary labor certification valid for the dates of extension.

Special Considerations for Beneficiaries Residing in CNMI

An alien who was admitted to the CNMI prior to November 28, 2009 may not currently hold a Federal nonimmigrant classification that permits a change of status. However, in certain situations, a petitioner may request that the beneficiary be granted initial status in the CNMI. This will allow certain beneficiaries who were present in the CNMI prior to the transition date and are currently lawfully present in the CNMI with a valid unexpired CNMI status to be granted an initial status without having to depart the CNMI. Additionally, an alien who is currently in parole status in the CNMI may also be granted an initial status in the CNMI.

The E-2 CNMI investor regulations permit a petitioner to request that the alien be granted an initial E-2 CNMI investor status in the CNMI. In addition to the classification requirements, the petitioner must submit documentation that the beneficiary is currently lawfully present in the CNMI.

The regulation at 8 CFR 212.4(k) indicates that if the beneficiary is lawfully present in the CNMI as described, the beneficiary may apply for a change of status with this form without having to seek consular processing. In addition to the classification requirements, the petitioner must submit documentation that the beneficiary is currently lawfully present in the CNMI.

A petition for a grant of initial status for a beneficiary currently in the CNMI with a CNMI issued permit must be filed on or before November 27, 2011.

General Evidence

Written consultation. Noted classifications require a written consultation with a recognized peer group, union, and/or management organization regarding the nature of the work to be done and the beneficiary's qualifications before the petition may be approved.

To obtain timely adjudication of a petition, you should obtain a written advisory opinion from an appropriate peer group, union, and/or management organization and submit it with the petition.

If you file a petition without the advisory opinion, you should send a copy of the petition and all supporting documents to the appropriate organization when you file the petition with USCIS, and name that organization in the petition.

Explain to the organization that USCIS will contact them for an advisory opinion. If an accepted organization does not issue an advisory opinion within a given time period, a decision will be made based upon the evidence of record.

If you do not know the name of an appropriate organization with which to consult, indicate that on the petition. However, a petition filed without the actual advisory opinion will require substantially longer processing time.

Translations. Any foreign language document must be accompanied by a full English translation that the translator has certified as complete and correct, and by the translator's certification that he or she is competent to translate the foreign language into English.

Copies. Unless specifically required that an original document be filed with an application or petition, an ordinary legible photocopy (standard 8 1/2 x 11 letter size) may be submitted. Original documents submitted when not required will remain a part of the record.

Liability for Return Transportation

The Immigration and Nationality Act makes a petitioner liable for the reasonable cost of return transportation for an H-1B, H-2B, O, and P beneficiary who is dismissed before the end of the period of authorized employment.

When to File?

Generally, a Form I-129 petition may not be filed more than 6 months prior to the date employment is scheduled to begin. Petitioners should review the appropriate regulatory provisions in 8 CFR that relate to the nonimmigrant classification sought.

Butte, Exhibit 2, pp. 152

File the petition as soon as possible before the proposed employment begins or before an extension of stay will be required. If the petition is not submitted at least 45 days before the employment begins, petition processing and subsequent visa issuance may not be completed before the alien's services are required or previous employment authorization ends.

Where to File?

Regular Processing

Generally, except for the classifications listed below, the Form I-129 is filed at the California Service Center or Vermont Service Center, depending on the location of the temporary employment or training. When the temporary employment or training will be multiple locations, the State where your company or organization is located will determine which Service Center you should send your petition to.

Prior to submitting your form(s), note the different addresses (see "Mailing Addresses" section on page 20).

Exceptions: Regardless of work locations, the following types of petitions should always be sent to the California Service Center.

1. H-2A
2. R-1
3. H-1B petitions where the employer is statutorily exempt from the cap
4. E-1 and E-2, petitions for extension of stay or change of status only

Regardless of work locations, the following types of petitions should always be sent to the Vermont Service Center.

1. H-1C
2. E-3, Petitions for extension of stay or change of status only
3. Free Trade Nonimmigrants (H-1B1 aliens from Chile/ Singapore and TN aliens from Canada or Mexico), petitions for extension of stay or change of status only

What Is the Filing Fee?

The base filing fee for this petition is $325.

A U.S. employer filing Form I-129 for an H-1B nonimmigrant or for a Chile or Singapore H-1B1 Free Trade Nonimmigrant must submit the $325 petition filing fee and, unless exempt under Part B of the H-1B Data Collection and Filing Fee Exemption Supplement, an additional fee of either $1,500 or $750.

A U.S. employer with a total of 25 or fewer full-time equivalent employees in the United States (including any affiliate or subsidiary of the employer) is only obligated to pay the $750 fee.

A U.S. employer filing Form I-129 who is required to pay the ACWIA fee may make the payment in the form of a single check or money order for the total amount due or as two checks or money orders, one for the ACWIA fee and one for the petition fee.

NOTE: On or after March 8, 2005, a U.S. employer seeking initial approval of H-1B or L nonimmigrant status for a beneficiary, or seeking approval to employ an H-1B or L nonimmigrant currently working for another U.S. employer, must submit a $500 fee. This $500 Fraud Prevention and Detection fee was mandated by the provisions of the H-1B Visa Reform Act of 2004.

Those petitioners required to submit the $500 Fraud Prevention and Detection fee are also required to submit either an additional $2,000 (H-1B) or $2,250 (L-1) fee mandated by Public Law 111-230 if:

1. The petitioner employs 50 or more individuals in the United States;
2. More than 50% of those employees are in H-1B or L nonimmigrant status; and
3. The petition is filed before October 1, 2014.

The Fraud Prevention and Detection fee and Public Law 111-230 fee, when applicable, may not be waived, and each fee should be submitted in separate checks or money orders. You must include payment of the fee(s) with your submission of this form. Failure to submit the fee(s) when required will result in rejection or denial of your submission. Petitioners for Chile or Singapore H-1B1 Free Trade Nonimmigrants do not have to pay the $500 Fraud Prevention and Detection Fee or the additional fee required under Public Law 111-230.

NOTE: Employers filing H-2B petitions for employment to commence on or after October 1, 2005, must submit an additional fee of $150. The Save Our Small and Seasonal Businesses Act of 2005 authorized this $150 Fraud Prevention and Detection Fee.

NOTE: An additional biometric service fee as described in 8 CFR 103.7(b) is required if the alien is lawfully present in the CNMI when applying for an initial grant of E-2C status. After submission of the form, USCIS will notify you about when and where to go for biometric services.

NOTE: An additional biometric service fee as described in 8 CFR 103.7(b) is required if the alien is lawfully present in the CNMI when applying for an initial grant of a federal nonimmigrant status. After submission of the form, USCIS will notify you about when and where to go for biometric services.

Fees must be submitted in the exact amount and cannot be refunded. Do not mail cash. All checks and money orders must be drawn on bank or other institution located in the United States and must be payable in U.S. currency. The check or money order must be made payable to the Department of Homeland Security.

When preparing the check or money order, spell out Department of Homeland Security. Do not use the initials "DHS" or "USDHS."

Checks are accepted, subject to collection. An uncollected check will render the petition and any document issued invalid. A charge of $30 will be imposed if a check in payment of a fee is not honored by the bank on which it is drawn.

How to check if the fee is correct. The fee on this form is current as of the publication date appearing in the lower right corner of this page. However, because USCIS fees change periodically, you can verify if the fee is correct by following one of the steps below.

1. Visit our Web site at www.uscis.gov, select "FORMS," and check the appropriate fee; or
2. Telephone our National Customer Service Center at 1-800-375-5283 and ask for the fee information.

NOTE: If your petition requires payment of a biometric service fee for USCIS to take your fingerprints, photograph or signature, you can use the same procedure to obtain the correct biometric fee.

Processing Information

Any petition that is not signed or accompanied by the correct fee will be rejected with a notice that the petition is deficient. You may correct the deficiency and resubmit the petition. A petition is not considered properly filed until accepted by USCIS.

Butler Exhibit 2, pp 5

Initial processing. Once a petition has been accepted, it will be checked for completeness, including submission of the required initial evidence. If you do not completely fill out the form, or file it without required initial evidence, you will not establish a basis for eligibility and we may deny your petition.

Requests for more information or interview. We may request more information or evidence, or we may request that you appear at a USCIS office for an interview. We may also request that you submit the originals of any copy. We will return these originals when they are no longer required.

Decision. The decision on a petition involves separate determinations of whether you have established that the alien is eligible for the requested classification based on the proposed employment, and whether he or she is eligible for any requested change of status or extension of stay. USCIS will notify you of the decision in writing.

Penalties

If you knowingly and willfully falsify or conceal a material fact or submit a false document with this petition, we will deny the petition and may deny any other immigration benefit.

In addition, you will face severe penalties provided by law and may be subject to criminal prosecution.

Privacy Act Notice

We ask for the information on this form and associated evidence to determine if you have established eligibility for the immigration benefit you are seeking. By signing this form, you have stated under penalty of perjury (28 U.S.C.1746) that all information and documentation submitted with this form is true and correct. You also have authorized the release of any information from your records that USCIS may need to determine eligibility for the benefit you are seeking and consented to USCIS verification of such information.

Agency verification methods may include but are not limited to: review of public records and information; contact via written correspondence, the Internet, facsimile or other electronic transmission, or telephone; unannounced physical site inspections of residences and places of employment; and interviews. Information obtained through verification will be used to assess your compliance with the laws and to determine your eligibility for the benefit sought.

Subject to the restrictions under 8 CFR part 103.2(b)(16), you will be provided an opportunity to address any adverse or derogatory information, that may result from a USCIS compliance review, verification, or site visit after a formal decision is made on your case or after the agency has initiated an adverse action which may result in revocation or termination of an approval.

Optional Checklist for Form I-129 H-2B Filings

Department of Homeland Security
U.S. Citizenship and Immigration Services

USCIS
Form M-1087
Internal Form

This is an optional checklist to assist petitioners with filing H-2B petitions on Form I-129.
Do not submit this checklist to USCIS.

NOTE: This optional checklist is provided to assist H-2B petitioners in completing Form I-129. It is not a substitution for or alteration of statutory or regulatory requirements. USCIS recommends that you review the relevant statutory and regulatory requirements, as well as the appropriate form instructions, before completing and submitting Form I-129.

Also note that the term "temporary labor certification" refers to U.S. Department of Labor's (DOL) ETA Form 9142, Temporary Employment Certification. However, if you are requesting to employ H-2B workers in Guam, this term applies to Guam Department of Labor's Form GDOL 750, Application for Temporary Labor Certification.*

General Petition Requirements

☐ A completed and properly signed USCIS Form I-129, Petition for a Nonimmigrant Worker. See www.uscis.gov for the most recent version of Form I-129 and its instructions.

1. Petitioners must provide their full names and addresses in Part 1 of Form I-129. The following are the only entities who may file Form I-129 with USCIS as H-2B petitioners:
   a. The employer listed on the temporary labor certification; or
   b. The employer's agent, as defined in USCIS regulations (8 CFR 214.2(h)(2)(i)(F)).
2. Only the petitioner (named in Part 1 of Form I-129) may sign Part 7 of the form.
3. Any person assisting the petitioner to prepare Form I-129 must sign Part 8 of Form I-129.

   NOTE: Those who do not meet the requirements of agent-petitioners, but solely assist a petitioner in filling out Form I-129, are considered "preparers." Preparers are not considered petitioners. Preparers' names and addresses should not be listed in Part 1 of Form I-129 except in limited circumstances when petitioners permit preparers to receive their correspondence (see General Petition Requirements, item number 4, on this checklist).
4. You may enter the name and address of the person collecting your mail, if any, in the "C/O: (In Care Of, if any)" field in response to Part 1, item number 3a to ensure that you receive communications from USCIS. However, USCIS discourages the practice of entering another person's address for mailing purposes. Petitioners must still provide their actual address in Part 1, item numbers 3b through 3g.
5. You do not have to provide the names of all workers you request. However, you must provide the workers' names if you:
   a. Require workers with specific education, skills, licenses, or other requirements (as indicated on the temporary labor certification);
   b. Request workers who are already in the United States; or
   c. Request workers who are from countries which are not on the H-2 Eligible Countries List. See www.uscis.gov/h-2b for the current list.

☐ A completed and properly signed H Classification Supplement to Form I-129.

1. Only the petitioner (named in Part 1 of Form I-129) can sign the H Classification Supplement in Section 3, Part A.
2. In some cases, an employer uses an agent who meets the requirements of an agent-petitioner to file Form I-129 on its behalf. In that event, the employer (who is not the petitioner named in Part 1) must sign the H Classification Supplement in Section 3, Part B. The agent-petitioner must still sign Part A in this situation.

   NOTE: Submitting a signed contract between an employer and the agent-petitioner does not replace the need for a signature from the employer in Part C of the H Classification Supplement.

Butler Exh.13, pp. 159

3. Submit documentation to support any affirmative answers to item numbers 8 or 9 in Section 3 of the H Classification Supplement, regarding collection of prohibited fees from workers.

☐ Payment of the base petition fee, currently $325. Check current fees at www.uscis.gov/fees.

☐ Payment of the $150 fraud prevention and detection fee.

☐ Optional: If you are requesting premium processing, payment of the premium processing fee (currently $1,225) and completion of Form I-907, Request for Premium Processing Service. This is in addition to the $325 base petition and $150 fraud prevention and detection fees.

☐ An approved temporary labor certification.

IMPORTANT: An H-2B petition based on a DOL-approved temporary labor certification must state an employment "From" date in Part 5, item number 10 of Form I-129 that is the same as the date of need stated on the certified ETA Form 9142. This is not required if you are filing an amended petition due to unavailability of originally requested workers.

1. Submit the original temporary labor certification.
2. If you are filing a subsequent petition using a temporary labor certification that was already submitted to USCIS in a previous petition, instead provide:
   a. A photocopy of the previously submitted temporary labor certification;
   b. The receipt number of the petition containing the original temporary labor certification; and
   c. A statement explaining why you were unable to submit the original temporary labor certification.

☐ Optional: A cover letter from the petitioner or employer on official letterhead describing:

1. The nature of the employer's business;
2. Any additional locations or mailing addresses used by the employer;
3. The duties to be performed in the position offered;
4. The nature of the employer's need for workers, including why the job is temporary, along with independent documentation to support the claimed need; and
5. The qualifications of the requested workers, if applicable.

Additional Documentation to Show the Worker Qualifies for H-2B Employment

☐ You may file for more than one worker on a single petition if:

1. All of the beneficiaries will perform the same services for the same period of time and in the same location;
2. The total number of H-2B workers you request does not exceed the number of positions indicated on the corresponding temporary labor certification; and
3. You request the same action for all beneficiaries included on the petition. The requested action must be one of the following:
   a. Notification of a U.S. Embassy or Consulate, Port of Entry (POE), or Pre-Flight Inspection (PFI);
   b. Extension in H-2B classification;
   c. Change of status; or
   d. Amended stay.

Butler Exh. 13, pp. 160

☐ If the temporary labor certification states the workers require certain education, training, experience, or other special requirements, you must:

1. Name the workers on the petition; and
2. Provide documentation to show that each worker qualifies for the job offered.

☐ If you are requesting a change of status or extension of stay, provide evidence of each worker's previous nonimmigrant classification and maintenance of status. This evidence may include, but is not limited to:

1. Copies of each worker's most recent paystubs;
2. Copies of each worker's Form I-94, Arrival-Departure Record;
3. Copies of the biographic information pages from each worker's passport or travel document; and
4. Documents showing how long the workers have been present in the United States.

☐ If you are filing an amended petition due to the unavailability of H-2B workers you originally requested, provide:

1. A copy of the original H-2B petition approval notice;
2. A photocopy of the previously submitted temporary labor certification;
3. A statement explaining why the substitution is necessary;
4. Evidence that the total number of workers will not exceed the number of H-2B workers authorized on the temporary labor certification; and
5. Evidence of the qualifications of the newly identified beneficiaries, if applicable.

H-2 Eligible Countries List Requirements

Are you requesting workers from a country that is included on the H-2 Eligible Countries List? See www.uscis.gov/h-2b for the current list.

☐ Yes You are only required to provide the names and biographical information on Attachment 1 of Form I-129 for requested workers who are currently in the United States. You do not have to provide the names of requested workers who are outside the United States, but you must provide their countries of birth and citizenship so that USCIS may verify that the countries are included on the H-2 Eligible Countries List.

☐ No You must provide the names and biographical information on Attachment 1 of Form I-129 for all requested workers - including workers who are outside the United States. Additionally, you must establish that employment of the worker is in the U.S. interest. When determining whether the U.S. interest requirement has been met in an H-2B petition, USCIS considers the following:

1. Evidence that a worker with the required skills is not available from among foreign workers from a country on the H-2 Eligible Countries List;
2. Evidence that the requested worker has been admitted to the United States previously in H-2B status;
3. The potential for abuse, fraud, or other harm to the integrity of the H-2B program through the potential admission of workers from a country not currently on the list; and
4. Other factors that serve the U.S. interest, if any.

NOTE: If you are requesting H-2B workers from both eligible and non-eligible countries, USCIS recommends that you file two separate petitions - one with eligible country workers and one with the non-eligible country workers - to avoid possible processing delays.

Butler Exh. 13, pp. 161

Duplicate Copy

You must include copies of all communications with USCIS. This includes:

☐ Form I-129 and all supporting documentation at the time of filing.

☐ All documents sent in response to a Request for Evidence (RFE), Notice of Intent to Deny (NOID), or Notice of Intent to Revoke. USCIS will not make duplicate copies for you.

NOTE: Failure to submit duplicate copies may cause a delay in visa issuance from the Department of State.

JOINT MOTION FOR ENLARGEMENT OF TIME

Pursuant to 29 C.F.R. § 18.32 (b) and Fed. R. Civ. Proc. 6 (b) (1) (A), the parties move for an enlargement of time for Respondent to submit an amended motion for summary judgment and the Administrator to file an opposition. For a good cause, the parties state as follows:

1. During the conference call on May 9, 2018, the following schedule was established[1]:

May 30, 2018 – Respondent's motion for summary judgment

June 13, 2018 – Administrator's opposition

June 20, 2018 – Respondent's reply brief

The rest of the scheduling Order from March 28, 2018, along with all factual discovery, was stayed pending the disposition of this motion. The basis for the amended schedule was the belief that the early disposition of controlling issues of law would dispose of or substantially narrow the case, or otherwise best position the parties to pursue alternative resolution.

2. Respondent filed its motion for summary judgment as indicated on May 30, 2018. Although the motion raised the issue of the statute of limitations and the laches, the motion omitted a full statement of the legal issues surrounding those defenses. Respondent requests leave to submit an amended motion so that the objective of an early disposition of controlling issues of law may be accomplished.

3. Meanwhile, the Administrator's lead counsel has experienced a family emergency and has been forced to take unanticipated leave. Despite best efforts, the Administrator is not able to submit the opposition brief under the existing schedule.

4. The parties have conferred and have agreed that the amended scheduling order contained in the proposed Order would best accomplish the goal of an early disposition of controlling issues of law or substantially narrow the case, or otherwise best position the parties to pursue alternative resolution. It will also serve as the confirming order for the substance of the conference call on May 9, 2018. This brief extension will have no effect on the remaining schedule, which has been stayed pending the outcome of the motion for summary judgment.

STATEMENT OF ISSUES

1. Whether this case is subject to de novo review.

2. Whether the 2008 DOL regulations or the procedural portions of the 2015 DOL regulations are enforceable.

3. Whether Respondent was on notice of regulatory requirements.

4. Whether Respondent substantially violated any regulatory requirements.

5. Whether Respondent willfully or substantially failed to comply with DOL requirements.

6. Whether the remedy of "back wages" is available for misclassification.

7. Whether Respondent is entitled to a credit for providing "facilities" to its H-2B workers.

8. Whether this action is barred by statute of limitations or laches.

9. Whether Michael Brajevich is individually liable.

PRELIMINARY STATEMENT

This is a misclassification case in which the Administrator contends that Respondent allowed a small number of its H-2B workers to work outside of their authorized workscope. This motion seeks summary judgment on certain legal issues, leaving for another day any protracted factual issues that might remain.

In this case, the Administrator is attempting to enforce substantive provisions from DOL's 2008 regulations and procedural provisions under the 2015 rules, but neither of them are enforceable. The Administrator has failed to establish that Respondent was on notice of any pertinent regulatory requirement, or that the Respondent substantially violated any such requirement. Further, Respondent did not willfully fail to comply because it reasonably relied upon DOL's own pronouncements. The Administrator is not authorized to pursue "back wages" in a misclassification case. Moreover, this action is time-barred by virtue of both the statute of limitations and laches. Finally, Michael Brajevich cannot be sued in his individual capacity.

STATEMENT OF FACTS

Respondent is a mobile amusement operator. Because it has been unable to recruit sufficient numbers of U.S. workers, Respondent has participated in the H-2B program for many years.

For the 2013 season, Respondent submitted an ETA Form 9141 to procure a prevailing wage. The form reflected a job title of "Amusement and Recreation Attendants – Traveling Carnival," along with a "suggested" Standard Occupational Code of "39-3091" and a Standard Occupational Code occupation title of "Amusement and Recreation Attendants." Job duties were listed as a "variety of attending duties," such as setup, tear down, and operation of amusement rides. The Employment & Training Administration opted not to request further information, and issued prevailing wages on November 2, 2012. Exhibit 1, ETA Form 9141 Prevailing Wage Determination (Nov. 2, 2012) (emphasis added).

On November 7, 2012, Respondent submitted an ETA Form 9142 application for an H-2B labor certification approving 246 H-2B workers. The 9142 application repeated the same job title, SOC code, SOC occupation title, and job duties from the #9141. When asked for "Special Requirements" for the job, Respondent denied that there were any relevant "requirements." The Employment & Training Administration once again opted not to request further information, and issued the labor certification on December 14, 2012. Exhibit 2, ETA Form 9142 (Nov. 7, 2012).

On December 17, 2012, Respondent submitted its I-129 to USCIS. In pertinent part, Respondent reiterated that the "job title" was "Amusement and Recreation Attendants."

Exhibit 3, I-129 (Dec. 17, 2012). On January 4, 2013, USCIS approved the petition, once again without requesting further evidence. Exhibit 4, I-797B Visa Approval Notice (Jan. 4, 2013).

Wage and Hour Division auditor Carrie Aguilar initiated an investigation several months later. An initial final conference was held on November 22, 2012, during which Ms. Aguilar revealed that, out of 246 H-2B workers, she had identified some 10 H-2B workers who had been employed at least partially outside of their job code at some point during the first few months in the season:

H-2B workers	Ancillary duties	Correct SOC code	Correct wage rate
Saul Estadillo Herrera Gustavo Gamero Sergio Guzman Jose Ortego Fernando Preza	Drivers	53-3032	$19.37
Jaime Hernandez Felipe Villegas Quijano	Maintenance workers	49-9071	$18.67
Omar Lopez Antonio Mendez	Supervisors	39-1021	$18.98
Marilu Zepeda	Office support	43-9199	$17.82

Exhibit 6, E-Mail from Wayne Pierce to Carrie Aguilar (Dec. 27, 2013). Based on this theory of the audit, Ms. Aguilar calculated a total payment of $25,946.80 as "back wages due" covering February 2-April 27, 2013. Exhibit 5, Summary of Unpaid Wages (Nov. 22, 2013).

Respondent disputed the theory of the investigation on multiple grounds. Among others, Respondent pointed out that the audit assumed incorrectly that each worker was employed 40 hours per week, and every hour of employment was in the alternative job code. In fact, the office support personnel would have been paid less under the alternative job code than what she was actually paid, and the DOLETA wage data was no longer publicly available because it is permanently updated every July 1 without preserving historical data. Exhibit 6.

In response, Ms. Aguilar sent an e-mail containing a website link to the current DOLETA wage data, but which did not include historical data from the prior season. Exhibit 7, E-Mail from Carrie Aguilar (Feb. 25, 2014). For unknown reasons, Ms. Aguilar also substantially revised her "back wage" calculations for each of the 9 non-office workers with a new grand total of $24,987.60, and she completely dropped the office support personnel from the violation list. Exhibit 8, Revised Calculation of Back Wages (Feb. 25, 2014).

For nearly the next 4 years, there was utterly no apparent activity on the file. On February 6, 2018, a determination letter was issued declaring that the investigation was based upon substantive provisions of the 2008 DOL H-2B regulations and the "procedural" provisions of the 2015 DOL rules. Purported violations during the period February 1-April 24, 2013, were identified in the I-129 and 9142 based on failing "to comply with the proper job classification requirement"and "plac[ing] workers in occupation(s) other than that listed on the I-129 Petition or the 9142 Application." The violations were specifically grounded in (1) Attestation #13 of the 9142, (2) 29 C.F.R. § 655.22 (n), and (3) the I-129's part 5, question 1. Although no per-employee calculations were revealed, the violations for 9 H-2B workers continued to total $24,987.20, plus $10,000 in civil monetary penalties. Exhibit 9, Determination Letter (Feb. 6, 2018).

ARGUMENT

I. THE STANDARD OF REVIEW IS DE NOVO

The question of the standard of review was recently addressed in the H-2B case of Best Solutions USA, LLC, No. 2018-TLN-00117 (BALCA May 22, 2018) < https://www.oalj.dol.gov/DECISIONS/ALJ/TLN/2018/EMPLOYMENT_AND_TRAIN_v_BEST_SOLUTIONS_USA_L_2018TLN00117_(MAY_22_2018)_173714_CADEC_PD.PDF . As explained by Judge Barto, both the immigration statute and the implementing regulations "are silent as to the proper standard of review." Id. at 3 n. 2. Because there are no "concerns" about the judiciary substituting its views for the agency's when "an agency tribunal" reviews "another adjudicator within the same agency," the appropriate standard of review is de novo rather than "arbitrary and capricious." Id.

Another important factor counseling in favor of de novo review is that the Wage and Hour Division has chosen to operate outside of its purported area of expertise. It is the responsibility of the Employment and Training Administration to assign job codes. See 29 C.F.R. § 503.1 (b) (ETA is responsible for "matters concerning the obligations of an H-2B employer related to the temporary labor certification process ..., including obligations and assurances made by employers ...."). As a result, the Administrator is not entitled to a presumption of regularity. Wilson v. Hodel, 758 F.2d 1369, 1372 (10th Cir. 1985) ("presumption of regularity does not apply when an agency deviates from its established procedure"). At most, any such presumption is available only when an agency is acting within the scope of its authority. See Pacific States Box & Basket Co. v. White, 296 U.S. 176, 186 (1935) (the presumption of facts justifying regulatory action exists "where the regulation is within the scope of authority legally delegated").

There is another, more-fundamental reason why de novo review governs this case. The Wage and Hour Division has enforcement authority precisely because Congress authorized the Department of Homeland Security to redelegate that authority to DOL. 8 U.S.C. § 1184 (c) (14). Once an agency receives redelegated authority, a redelegatee steps into the shoes of the redelegator and must act pursuant to the same standards and restrictions as those binding the agency granting the redelegated power. E.g., United States ex rel. Accardi v. Shaughnessy, 347 U.S. 260, 266 (1954) (when the subdelegator delegates discretion "as broad as the statute confers" on the subdelegatee, "the scope of the [subdelegator's] discretion became the yardstick of the [subdelegatee's]."); United States v. Hovey, 674 F. Supp. 161, 168 (D. Del. 1987) (the redelegatee must act pursuant to the same standards as the redelegator); United States v. Touby, 710 F. Supp. 551, 559 (D.N.J. 1989), aff'd, 909 F.2d 759 (3d Cir. 1990), aff'd, 500 U.S. 160 (1991) ("The subdelegate must be under the same constraints that bind the delegate ...."). The Department of Homeland Security's corollary, the Administrative Appeals Office, reviews de novo all issues of fact, law, policy, and discretion. Administrative Appeals Office Practice Manual § 3.4 (May, 2016) < https://www.uscis.gov/sites/default/files/USCIS/Laws/AAO/Practice%20Manual/AAO_Practice_Manual.pdf >. Thus, the same standard of de novo review applies in this case.

II. NEITHER THE SUBSTANTIVE PORTIONS OF THE 2008 DOL REGULATIONS NOR THE PROCEDURAL PORTIONS OF THE 2015 DOL REGULATIONS ARE ENFORCEABLE

The Administrator is proceeding on the assumption that he is free to elect to enforce the substantive provisions from the 2008 DOL regulations and the procedural portions of the 2015 DOL rules. The Administrator is wrong in both regards.

A. The 2008 Regulations No Longer Exist and Are Not Enforceable

Much attention has been spent on whether the 2008 DOL regulations are substantively enforceable after the federal court's vacatur in Perez v. Perez, No. 3:14-cv-00682

(N.D. Fla. Mar. 4, 2015). See, e.g., Administrator v. Strates Shows, Inc., No. 15-069 (ARB June 30, 2017) (DOL lacks subject matter jurisdiction to enforce the 2008 regulations); Administrator v. Wade Shows, Inc., No. 15-52 (ARB June 22, 2017) (same). On reconsideration, the ARB vacated these rulings, but it did so simply by "omit[ing] the characterization of the 2008 H-2B regulations as unenforceable." Administrator v. Drew's Lawn & Snow Serv., Inc., No. 2017-TNE-00001, at *3 (OALJ Apr. 10, 2018). Despite its later tentativeness, the ARB's original rulings that the 2008 regulations were not enforceable – without reversal – were correct and remain persuasive law. County of Los Angeles v. Davis, 440 U.S. 625, 646 n. 10 (1979) ("Although a decision vacating a judgment necessarily prevents the opinion of the lower court from being the law of the case, ... the expressions of the court below on the merits, if not reversed, will continue to have precedential weight and, until contrary authority is decided, are likely to be viewed as persuasive authority if not the governing law of the [lower appellate court].") (emphasis added).

Even if the ARB has not persuasively determined that the 2008 regulations are unenforceable, DOL itself has done so. DOL was very plain that the 2015 H-2B regulations "immediately replace[ ] the 2008 rule." 80 Fed. Reg. 24042, 24049 (Apr. 29, 2015) ("2015 H-2B regulations"). DOL knew that employers would be able to defend against enforcement actions under the 2008 H-2B regulations, and planned accordingly. DOL's policy choice to jettison rather than salvage the 2008 H-2B regulations was an integral element in justifying "good and substantial cause to issue this rule immediately" without notice and comment and with an immediate effective date. Id. at 24047, 24049. As part of its justification for abandoning normal notice and comment, DOL conceded the obvious impact of the federal court's vacatur on the 2008 H-2B regulations, which > remain[ed] vulnerable to challenges by employers in current and future enforcement proceedings based on the ground that the regulations DOL is seeking to enforce are void because DOL exceeded its statutory authority in unilaterally issuing the 2008 rule .... Therefore, employers subject to enforcement under the 2008 rule have an available defense that DOL is without regulatory authority to enforce rights and obligations in the H-2B program, leaving DOL in an untenable position with respect to its ability to require adherence to program standards.

Id. at 24048-49 (emphasis added). Because of this inability to prosecute employers in enforcement actions under the void 2008 H-2B regulations, DOL adopted a new enforcement practice under which "if the temporary stay is lifted, the vacatur of DOL's 2008 rule will void the enforcement regime by which DOL has carried out its statutorily-delegated enforcement authority." Id. at 24047 (emphasis added). Because of this reality, DOL "replaced" the 2008 rules. See also Perez v. Perez, No. 14-682 (N.D. Fla. Apr. 30, 2015) (ECF Doc. 49, at *2) (the court lifted the stay because the 2015 H-2B regulations had "replace[d] the H-2B regulations at issue in this case."); Statement of Portia Wu, Assistant Secretary for Employment and Training, Before the Senate Comm. on Small Business & Entrepreneurship at 4 (May 6, 2015) (the court "lifted the stay of its vacatur of DOL's 2008 rule because DOL and DHS replaced it with a new comprehensive H-2B rule ....") (emphasis added).

For a period of months, DOL implemented its new practice, first articulated in the preamble to the 2015 H-2B regulations, that it would no longer pursue any enforcement actions for alleged violations of the 2008 H-2B regulations. See, e.g., Perez v. Perez, No. 14-682 (N.D. Fla. Aug. 28, 2015) (ECF Doc. 58, at *2) (according to plaintiff, DOL has indicated that it is complying with the injunction barring "enforcement" of the 2008 H-2B regulations for labor certifications issued before the injunction); Perez v. Perez, No. 14-682 (N.D. Fla. Sept. 4, 2015) (ECF Doc. 60, at *3) (according to DOL, "beginning on May 8, 2015, DOL moved to dismiss without prejudice several regulatory enforcement actions");

Administrator v. Southwest Commodities, 2015-TNE-00010 (OALJ May 8, 2015)

(representative Administrator's motion to dismiss). During this time, DOL's policy continued to be that > the order to vacate – and therefore remove from the books – the 2008 Rule ... [had] bar[red DOL] from taking any future action to enforce the Rule.

> By removing the 2008 Rule from the books, DOL can no longer enforce any regulatory obligations imposed on employers under that Rule.
> ... [The vacatur order] prohibit[s] any new enforcement action under the Rule.

Perez v. Perez, No. 14-682 (N.D. Fla. Sept. 4, 2015) (ECF Doc. 60, at *1-2 & 2 n. 1)

(emphasis in bold added) (emphasis in italics in original). DOL has never issued a public notice or comment that it was rescinding this prior practice of how the Department interpreted the vacatur.

On August 28, 2015, plaintiff filed an "Unopposed Motion to Clarify Permanent Injunction." Perez v. Perez, No. 14-682 (N.D. Fla. Aug. 28, 2015) (ECF Doc. 58, at *1). It is important to distinguish what the motion does not do from what it does. The motion takes no issue with the vacatur remedy; in fact, the only reference to a vacatur of any type occurs in the context of an unrelated case. Id. The unstated premise for the motion is that the sauce-for-the-goose-is-sauce-for-the-gander approach that plaintiff successfully argued to the federal court to apply the same reasoning to the 2008 H-2B regulations as it did to the 2012 H-2B regulations, inexplicably did not apply to the same remedy. Thus, the motion misleadingly focuses exclusively on the injunctive relief. The plaintiff requested that the court clarify that the permanent injunction against enforcing the 2008 H-2B regulations "only enjoined DOL from using the 2008 regulations to issue new labor certifications for H-2B workers and did not enjoin DOL from using its enforcement powers to ensure compliance with the terms and conditions of work promised in labor certifications approved prior to the effective date of the Court's injunction." Id. In response, DOL refrained from taking a position and merely recounted the impact of the vacatur and DOL's inability to pursue enforcement actions.

The federal court ruled on plaintiff's motion to clarify the permanent injunction by stating in its entirety:

> The relief requested is GRANTED. The Court clarifies that the permanent injunction was not intended to, and does not, apply retroactively.

Perez v. Perez, No. 14-682 (N.D. Fla. Sept. 4, 2015) (ECF Doc. 62, at *1) (emphasis added).

1. This Court Lacks Subject Matter Jurisdiction Based on the 2008 H-2B Regulations That DOL Voluntarily Replaced and Superseded by the 2015 H-2B Regulations. The well-established rule is that a regulation ceases to have operative effect when it is replaced by another regulation. This is the rule from Abington Memorial Hosp. v. Heckler, 750 F.2d 242, 244 (3d Cir. 1984), and it has been repeatedly followed. E.g., Mason Gen. Hosp. v. Secretary of the Dep't of Health & Human Servs., 809 F.2d 1220, 1223 (6th Cir. 1987); Menorah Med. Ctr. v. Heckler, 768 F.2d 292 (8th Cir. 1985); Lloyd Noland Hosp. & Clinic v. Heckler, 762 F.2d 1561, 1569 (11th Cir. 1985). See also Center for Science in the Pub. Interest v. Regan, 727 F.2d 1161, 1164 (D.C. Cir. 1984) (subsequent regulation "displaced" or "superseded" a prior regulation, and the prior regulation became "a dead letter, and cannot be revived"). This rule applies because the 2015 H-2B regulations replaced the 2008 H-2B regulations. This fact is stated in the 2015 H-2B regulations themselves, was the pivotal reason why the federal court lifted its stay, and is also reflected in numerous other contemporaneous administrative and litigation records. The Secretary of Labor might have resurrected the 2008 H-2B regulations merely by sanctioning them in a legitimate rulemaking proceeding, but once the Secretary of Labor chose to rush through with a replacement and to forgo public notice and comment, enforcement actions based upon the 2008 H-2B regulations were doomed and the policy dice were cast.

The Administrator has not rebutted this black-letter principle of administrative law. Rather, the Administrator apparently contends that this is a regulatory issue for which the agency's tribunals lack jurisdiction. Quite the opposite is true. Because the 2015 H-2B regulations explicitly adopted the policy of replacing the 2008 H-2B regulations and abandoning the previous enforcement regime, this court has no choice but to decline subject matter jurisdiction. Prince v. Westinghouse Savannah River Co., ARB No. 10-079, slip op. at *9 (ARB Nov. 17, 2010) (the ARB does not have "jurisdiction to pass on the validity of any portion of the Code of Federal Regulations ... and shall observe the provisions thereof ...."). Moreover, the A.L.J. is charged with deciding "each material issue presented on the record," 29 C.F.R. § 503.50 (b), and this certainly would include the ultimate material issue of whether jurisdiction exists.

2. This Court Lacks Subject Matter Jurisdiction Based on the 2008 H-2B Regulations When Those Regulations Were Vacated by a Court Order That Is Necessarily Retroactive. Even if the Secretary of Labor had not conclusively established his enforcement policy via the replacement, the same result would have obtained by virtue of the federal court's vacatur. The ARB has already pointed to the seminal case defining a vacatur. Administrator v. Strates Shows, Inc., No. 15-069, slip op. at *4 (ARB June 30, 2017) (quoting Action on Smoking & Health v. Civil Aeronautics Bd., 713 F.2d 795 (D.C. Cir. 1983) (per curiam)). The operative effect of the vacatur was that it took the 2008 H-2B regulations "off the books," AFL-CIO v. Chao, 496 F. Supp. 2d 76, 84, 85, 92 (D.D.C. 2007), and "wipe[d]

the slate clean," National Labor Relations Bd. v. Goodless Bros. Elec. Co., 285 F.3d 102, 110 (1st Cir. 2002). After the vacatur, the 2008 H-2B regulations simply "do[ ] not exist," just as the Secretary of Labor acknowledged during the oral argument to the federal judge. Transcript of Motion Proceedings Before the Honorable M. Casey Rodgers at 31 (Apr. 22, 2015). See also Crum v. Colvin, No. C14-4055, 2015 U.S. Dist. Lexis 113551, slip op. at *20 (N.D. Iowa Aug. 27, 2015) (the original findings "no longer existed" after vacatur). Needless to say, if the regulations do not exist, they cannot be enforced.

The Administrator's sole argument is that the "clarification" order – somehow – resuscitated something that no longer existed. The flaws in this argument are numerous.

a. The clarification cannot cure the replacement. Regardless of the efficacy of the vacatur, it cannot overcome the fact that the Secretary of Labor repealed the 2008 H-2B regulations by adopting replacement regulations. There was nothing left to clarify because the replacement regulations effectively mooted the 2008 regulations. See, e.g., Bayou Lawn & Landscape Servs. v. Secretary of Labor, No. 15-10623, slip op. at *4 (11th Cir. Nov. 5, 2015) (remanding for trial court to determine whether replacement of 2012 H-2B regulations by the 2015 H-2B regulations mooted the appeal); Bayou Lawn & Landscape Servs. v. Solis, No. 3:12-cv-00183, slip op. at *4 (N.D. Fla. Apr. 20, 2016) (dismissing as moot the challenge to the 2012 H-2B regulations that were "superseded" by the 2015 H-2B regulations).

b. Vacatur was mandatory. Rather than focusing on a single event, it is helpful to observe the context. The pertinent statute made vacatur the mandatory remedy, 5 U.S.C. § 706 (2) (the court "shall ... hold unlawful and set aside agency action ... found to be ... in excess of statutory jurisdiction [or] authority") (emphasis added); Citizens to Preserve Overton Park, Inc. v. Volpe, 401 U.S. 402, 413-14 (1971) ("In all cases agency action must be set aside

... if the action failed to meet statutory, procedural, or constitutional requirements.") (emphasis added), and this was especially true when the federal court found that the 2008 regulations were issued without authority, e.g., Defenders of Wildlife v. Jackson, 791 F. Supp. 2d 96, 117 (D.D.C. 2011) (substantive infirmity "mandates" vacatur); AFL-CIO v. Chao, 496 F. Supp. 2d 76, 91 (D.D.C. 2007) (same).

c. The vacatur was necessarily retroactive. "The principle that statutes operate only prospectively, while judicial decisions operate retrospectively, is familiar to every law student." United States v. Sec. Indus. Bank, 459 U.S. 70, 79 (1982). With a few exceptions not relevant here, the Supreme Court has been quite clear that judicial rulings necessarily apply retroactively. Rivers v. Roadway Express, Inc., 511 U.S. 298, 311-12 (1994); Heartland Regional Med. Ctr. v. Sebelius, 566 F.3d 193, 196 (D.C. Cir. 2008) ("a principle announced in adjudication is necessarily retroactive"); Neustar, Inc. v. Federal Communications Comm'n, 857 F.3d 886, 895-96 (D.C. Cir. 2017) (citing case law mandating that judicial decisions have retroactive effect); National Fuel Gas Supply Corp. v. FERC, 59 F.3d 1281, 1289 (D.C. Cir. 1995) (vacatur of agency action by federal court must be given retroactive effect). See generally Daniel H. Conrad, Filling the Gap: The Retroactive Effect of Vacating Agency Regulations, 29 Pace Env'tl L. Rev. 1 (2011) (suggesting strong reasons supporting retroactivity of judicial vacatur of agency regulations). Once the federal court ruled that the 2008 H-2B regulations no longer existed, that automatically meant that they had never existed, Reynoldsville Casket Co. v. Hyde, 514 U.S. 749, 758-59 (1995) (court cannot use its remedial discretion to avoid retroactive application of a judicial decision), and the benefit of that ruling extended to non-parties. The Administrator's position leads to exactly the sort of disparate treatment that the Supreme Court eschews: Some are bound and some are not by the 2008 regulations. See, e.g., James M. Beam Distilling Co. v. Georgia, 501 U.S. 529, 538 (1991) (plurality opinion).

d. Rescinding the DOL rule required its own rulemaking. The Administrator's position amounts to an extra-legal effort to promulgate a rule. If the Secretary of Labor wants to establish a rule in light of the "clarification" order, then he should follow the prescribed steps for public notice and comment. Until that day comes, there is no such regulation for this court to follow. See American Trucking Ass'ns, Inc. v. Frisco Transp. Co., 358 U.S. 133, 146 (1958) (agency may not use the "pretext" of "reopen[ing] prior proceedings to correct a[n inadvertent] mistake," then use the occasion to "execute a subsequently adopted policy."); Cumberland Med. Ctr. v. Secretary of Health & Human Servs., 781 F.2d 536, 539 (6th Cir. 1986) (rescinding a rule requires the same steps as promulgating a rule).

e. The federal court had no basis for modifying the retroactive vacatur. The federal court never perfected a basis for substantively modifying the prior vacatur judgment, which had been final for some months. Under Fed. R. Civ. Proc. 60 (a), the federal court could have corrected clerical errors, but that option cannot be used to make substantive changes, such as those advocated by the Administrator. Joseph T. MacLaughlin, Relief from a Judgment or Order, in 12 James W. Moore, Moore's Federal Practice § 60.11 [1] [c], at 60-34 to -36 (3d ed. 2017) (clarification is limited to non-substantive clerk's errors). To make the substantive changes that the Administrator claims, the federal court had to proceed under Fed. R. Civ. Proc. 60 (b), and was obligated to make supporting findings regarding such facts as mistakes, inadvertence, fraud, etc. Having failed to make any supporting findings, the Administrator has not established a basis for the substantive change he claims.

f. The vacatur remains clear and unambiguous. The federal court's "clarification" is clear on the only pertinent fact: The federal court made no attempt to alter the vacatur. Beginning with the judgment on the 2012 H-2B regulations, and again on the 2008 H-2B regulations, the federal court deployed 2 overlapping yet distinct remedies. A vacatur is a form of equitable relief. Black Warrior Riverkeeper, Inc. v. Army Corps of Eng'rs, 781 F.3d 1271, 1290 (11th Cir. 2015). A vacatur both "preserves" the status quo, AFL-CIO v. Chao, 496 F. Supp. 2d 76, 92 (D.D.C. 2007), and "suspends" the duty to comply, Alabama Power Co. v. United States Env'tl Protection Agency, 40 F.3d 450 (D.C. Cir. 1994) (vacatur suspends the duty to comply). As we have seen, a vacatur is the mandatory remedy for proceeding without lawful authority. This contrasts with an injunction, which is "[a] court order commanding or preventing an action" that "operat[es] in personam." Black's Law Dictionary 904 (Bryan A. Garner ed. 10th ed. 2014). Injunctions are, by definition, prospective and directed to future conduct; it is not the role of an injunction to address prior conduct. An injunction is a "classic example of judgments that have prospective application." Joseph T. MacLaughlin, Relief from a Judgment or Order, in 12 James W. Moore, Moore's Federal Practice § 60.47 [1] [d], at 60-174 (3d ed. 2017). In adopting this belt-and-suspenders remedy, the federal court in Perez was careful to point out that each remedy was tailored to serve a different legal need; they were not redundant remedies. See Kinkead v. Humana, Inc., 206 F. Supp. 3d 751, 754 (D. Conn. 2016) (vacatur sets aside "entire rule, not merely to preclude its enforcement in a particular case"). So, when the federal court entered its clarification of the injunction, it said utterly nothing regarding the primary remedy of vacatur.

g. Only the federal court may interpret its judgment. Finally, even if it was possible to construe the clarification as creating ambiguity for the vacatur, the question remains: Who clarifies the clarification? The answer is most certainly not a party, such as the Secretary of Labor, regardless of how "reasonable" that interpretation might be, because the Secretary of Labor has no such statutory authority, nor has he cited to any. The answer is also not another court or the ARB. See, e.g., State v. Trump, No. 17-00050, slip op. at 2 n. 3 (D. Hawaii July 6, 2017) (in the travel ban case, the trial court was not authorized to interpret the Supreme Court's injunction). This court is especially handicapped because it is required to "adhere to the rules of decision and precedent" that apply under organic statutes, 77 Fed. Reg. 69378, 69379 (Nov. 16, 2012), and this court is not "adher[ing]" if it is interpreting. Ultimately, it is up to the federal court itself to interpret its own judgments. The Administrator's opposition to this motion is nothing more than an attempt to convert the A.L.J. into an Article III court, and not just any court, but the Northern District of Florida. The fact that the Administrator has not gone back to the federal court to clarify the clarification says it all.

B. The 2008 Regulations Are Not Enforceable Because DHS Improperly Extended Authority to DOL

The Pensacola court's vacatur is not the end of the Administrator's problems. The same result obtains for completely separate reasons. As the Tenth Circuit has held, Congress has never authorized DHS to redelegate its rulemaking and adjudicative functions in particular to DOL. G.H. Daniels III & Assocs., Inc. v. Perez, No. 13-1479, 2015 U.S. App. Lexis 15689, at *13 n. 10 (10th Cir. Sept. 3, 2015). Without this inter-agency redelegation of authority, DOL had no basis for promulgating the 2008 regulations. The Administrator has not been held to the implications of that decision in an enforcement action, but it reaches the same result: the 2008 regulations are not enforceable.

C. The Administrator Is Not Free to Choose between Procedural Provisions in the 2008 and 2015 Rules Without Going Through Notice and Comment

One of the consequences of the Administrator picking and choosing what to enforce is the belief that he is free to enforce 2015 procedural provisions. The Administrator cannot have it both ways. Under the Administrator's theory, the procedural provisions from both 2008 and 2015 are valid, and the only proper way to choose is through public notice and comment, which has never happened. See 5 U.S.C. § 553 (b).

Respondent is prejudiced by this procedural breach. The so-called 2015 procedural provisions[1] diverge in material ways that impair Respondent's prior rights, increase liability for past conduct, and impose new duties for prior conduct. These changes have a direct bearing on the Respondent's rights and the ability to defend itself, and the Administrator is arbitrarily choosing which version it will enforce. The new "procedural" enforcement regulations have now completely deleted or substantially revised numerous material and substantive provisions from the 2008 "procedural" regulations, such as:

§ 655.75 (d)	Express prohibition on A.L.J.'s ruling on the legality of regulations.		Completely deleted.
§ 655.75 (c)	If the Administrator's back wage determination was "not warranted," the A.L.J. must remand to the Administrator for further proceedings.	§ 503.50 (c)	Much more expansive grounds for sustaining the Administrator's back wage determination under § 503.16.
§ 655.75 (c)	A.L.J. must accept OFLC's wage determination as final and accurate. A.L.J. cannot determine the validity of a prevailing wage rate.	§ 503.50 (c)	Much more expansive grounds for sustaining the Administrator's back wage determination under § 503.16.
§ 655.75 (a)	Automatic stay while a case is appealed to the ARB.	§ 503.50 (e)	A.L.J.'s determination is immediately final regardless of the

[1] The determination letter refers broadly to the "applicable procedural regulations" with and 29 C.F.R. part 503. Exhibit 9, at 1. Although not further identified in the determination letter, this appears to be directed to the "procedural rules" within subpart C. 80 Fed. Reg. 24042, 24089 (Apr. 29, 2015). See also Exhibit 9, at 3.

		§ 503.51 (c)	employer's appeal. A.L.J.'s determination is final if the ARB does not act on an appeal within 30 days.
§ 655.76 (c)	Automatic stay while a case is pending before the ARB.		Completely deleted.
§ 655.65 (e)	The definition of a "willful failure."		Completely deleted from Subpart C.
§ 655.65 (f)	Prospective rather than retroactive application of the regulations.	§ 503.40 (b)	Rules apply retroactively regardless of date of violation.
§§ 655.5 & 655.65 (f)	Provisions of the subpart apply on the date of the employer's application.		Completely deleted.
§ 655.65 (i)	Payment of back wages narrowly limited to failure to pay the wage prescribed by ETA.	§ 503.50 (c)	Back wages broadly permitted for an exhaustive variety of violations under § 503.16.

Further, the Administrator is applying the substantive portions of these procedural rules from 2015 retroactively, something that it cannot do without express congressional authority. Bowen v. Georgetown Univ. Hosp., 488 U.S. 204, 208 (1988).

Finally, even if the Administrator is allowed to apply the substantive provisions from the 2008 rules, they are in irreconcilable conflict with the 2015 "procedural" rules. The provisions of the 2008 rules apply only once the employer's labor application is certified. 20 C.F.R. § 655.65 (f). This extends without limitation to both substantive and procedural provisions. This provision is inherently prospective only, which cannot be reconciled with the "retroactive" 2015 rules.

III. THE ADMINISTRATOR IS EXPRESSLY PROHIBITED FROM CHALLENGING RESPONDENT'S PREVAILING WAGES

There is another fundamental problem with the Administrator's theory of the case. At its core, the Administrator is challenging the prevailing wage determination. Under these circumstances, an A.L.J.'s options are narrow. The A.L.J. may either determine that the Administrator's back wage determination is "not warranted," in which case the A.L.J. must remand the case to the Administrator for further proceedings. 20 C.F.R. § 655.75 (c); 29 C.F.R. § 503.50 (c). In the absence of such a finding, the A.L.J. is obligated to accept OFLC's wage determination as final and accurate and the A.L.J. cannot determine the validity of the prevailing wage that should have been paid. 20 C.F.R. § 655.75 (c); 29 C.F.R. § 503.50 (c). The problem for the Administrator is that he cannot have it both ways: An A.L.J. is powerless to re-adjudicate the prevailing wage rate, which is exactly what the Administrator seeks to accomplish.

As we have seen, it is ETA's responsibility to issue job codes. The Administrator is improperly trenching upon the authority of a coordinate agency by attempting to impose alternative job codes, all without following the strictures imposed by ETA. ETA has the authority to enforce its own regulations, compare 20 C.F.R. §§ 655.30-.31 (2008) with 20 C.F.R. §§ 655.71-.73 (2015), and has already approved the job codes at issue in this case. The Administrator's attempt to assign completely different job codes is usurping ETA's authority and is a step too far.

IV. RESPONDENT WAS NOT PLACED ON NOTICE OF ANY PERTINENT REGULATORY REQUIREMENTS

The Administrator has attempted to enforce as regulatory "requirements" certain responsibilities that simply are not provided by regulation. For example, the Administrator is expressly relying on Attestation #13 in the #9142. See Exhibit 2 ("The ... reason(s) for temporary need ... being requested for certification have been truly and accurately stated on the application."). However, the Department may not enforce a rule that is not found in the clear text of the published regulations themselves. Nokia Siemens Networks US LLC, No. 2012-PER-02714, slip op. at *1-2 (BALCA July 1, 2016) (per curiam) (a certifying officer

"may not deny an application based on a ... failure to comply with an unwritten requirement that has no basis in the clear text of the regulations.") < https://www.oalj.dol.gov/Decisions/ALJ/PER/2012/SUMELAHTI_MARKKU_TAP_v_NOKIA_SIEMENS_NETWOR_2012PER02714_(JUL_01_2016)_065651_CADEC_SD.PDF >; Symantec Corp., 2011-PER-01856, slip op. at *8 (BALCA July 30, 2014) (en banc) (same) < https://www.oalj.dol.gov/Decisions/ALJ/PER/2011/In_re_SYMANTEC_CORPORATION_2011PER01856_(JUL_30_2014)_111232_MODIS_SD.PDF#search=2011-PER-01856 >. Moreover, such attestations are not enforceable, only the contents of regulatory requirements. Island Holdings LLC, No. 2013-PWD-00002, at *8, 11 (BALCA Dec. 3, 2013) (en banc) (employer incurs no obligation unless contained in the codified regulations contained in the Code of Federal Regulations). As enunciated by BALCA:

> The Department may not require an employer to attest to a condition that is not required by the regulations. This is because the Department cannot impose additional legal obligations on a regulated party without following the procedures mandated by the APA.

Id. at *13. See also 29 C.F.R. § 655.60 (b) (a "substantial failure" is "fail[ing] to meet any of the conditions of the labor certification application attested to, as listed in § 655.22 ....") (emphasis added). Not only is there no regulatory requirement in § 655.22 for accurately stating the job duties that will be performed, as opposed to the "reasons for temporary need," but the Administrator has failed to show that the Respondent's statement of temporary need was false in any regard. "Temporary need" is a term of art under the H-2B regulations and has nothing whatsoever to do with what concerns the Administrator, which is the comprehensiveness of the job-duty description. See 73 Fed. Reg. 78020, 78042 (Dec.

19, 2008) ("reasons for temporary need" in § 655.22 (n) is directed to "the reasons underlying the temporary need in its labor certification request").

This leads to the next "violation" not contained in the DOL regulations. There is no regulatory requirement that every single job task must be stated, nor is there a statement in § 655.22 that omitting job tasks is a violation. Section 655.22 (n) is directed to the veracity of what is stated, not whether the job details are comprehensive. "Tasks" are defined as "specific work activities that can be unique for each occupation," whereas "work activities" are "the kinds of tasks that may be performed across multiple occupations." < https://www.onetonline.org/help/online/details > There are no governing regulations within § 655.22 that require, much less explain, how to undertake a task analysis when a "square" job does not fit snugly in a "round" job code.

These shortcomings are ably illustrated by the H-2B case, Administrator v. Peter's Fine Greek Food, Inc., No. 2012-PED-00001, at *7 (OALJ Sept. 25, 2013), aff'd, No. 14-003-A (ARB Feb. 26, 2014). After reviewing all of the witness statements, the Administrator had no criticism of the 2011 job description, but the 2012 job description was criticized by the Wage and Hour Division witness because it deleted cooking as "the primary job duty." Id. The WHD witness could not answer "how best to list a job which involves varied responsibilities," such as the counter attendants at issue. Id. Although there was no criticism for failing to list driving as a job duty, id. at *7-8, it was noted that driving was a job duty, id. at *9. The ALJ was "troubled" that cooking was deleted as "a primary duty," but made no comment about failing to list driving as a job duty. Id. at 18.

Finally, there is no regulatory requirement placing Respondent on notice that listing the "job title" on the I-129 had any significance whatsoever. In fact, listing job duties in the

I-129 was expressly declared "optional" for employers. Exhibit 13, Optional Checklist for I-129 H-2B Filings (Nov. 27, 2012). See also Exhibit 12, Instructions for I-129 (expires Oct. 31, 2013) (no relevant instructions for completing the I-129).

Because there are no regulatory requirements governing misclassifications, how much depth should be provided in job details, or how employers are to perform task analyses, Respondent was put on notice of nothing.

V. RESPONDENT DID NOT SUBSTANTIALLY VIOLATE ANY REGULATORY REQUIREMENTS

Even if Respondent was put on notice of enforceable regulatory requirements, any such failure must be "substantial." 29 C.F.R. § 655.60 (b). Respondent has already demonstrated that there were no violations of any regulatory requirements in Attestation #13, § 655.22 (n), or the I-129's part 5, question 1, so needless to say, there were no "substantial" violations. There is no regulatory requirement that there is a substantial failure when 9 out of Respondent's 246 H-2B employees (3.6%) perform duties arguably outside of their job code. This is all the more apparent from the definition of a "substantial violation," which requires a "pattern or practice" of misdeeds, 29 C.F.R. § 655.31 (d) (1), something not shown here.

The element of "substantiality" has even greater significance in misclassification cases. Even if there is a "pattern or practice," there is no "substantial violation" unless the H-2B workers were employed "in an activity/activities, not listed in the job order (other than an activity minor and incidental to the activity/activities listed in the job order) ...." 29

C.F.R. § 655.31 (d) (1) (v). There are several practices that elevate this "incidental-duty" rule to a legal question ripe for summary judgment.[2]

- The H-2A program has long recognized the "incidental-duty" rule. Under the H-2A program, "incidental activities" for agricultural labor include operating roadside retail stands, managing pick-your-own activities, and driving a tractor for a hay ride. 73 Fed. Reg. 77110, 77117 (Dec. 18, 2008). It would be difficult or impossible to list all potential "minor and incidental" job responsibilities. Id. at 78118. Such activities must be less than 20% of the total time worked on the certified job duties and must be "incidental" to the certified agricultural labor. Id. at 77117. This rule was developed concurrently with the 2008 DOL rule.

- Workers with dual positions in which they both perform the assigned tasks and supervise others performing the same work "are coded with the workers they supervise" when they "spend less than 80% of their time supervising." http://www.bls.gov/soc/soc_2010_user_guide.pdf pages xii-xiii (emphasis added).

These rules of thumb, ostensibly adopted for other visas or working conditions generally, should be applied to the H-2B program under the rule of GT Trans, Inc., 2016-TLN-29, at *6 (BALCA Apr. 15, 2016) (borrowing the H-1B definition of "place of employment" to define the interchangeable term, "worksite") and Brook Ledge, Inc., 2016-TLN-00033, at *5-6 (BALCA May 10, 2016) (same).

VI. RESPONDENT DID NOT WILLFULLY OR SUBSTANTIALLY FAIL TO COMPLY WITH ANY REGULATORY REQUIREMENTS

Although there may be an issue of fact whether Respondent could reasonably rely on the professional advice of its H-2B agent, Respondent reasonably relied on DOL's and DHS's own pronouncements as a matter of law. In its #9142, Respondent was careful to note that it provided mobile housing for use during its itinerary "valued at $125.00 per week," and local convenience travel when operating at a particular location "valued at $25 per week." Exhibit 2, at pp. 035. Respondent also provided visa and inspection fees, pre-payment plans, international travel in and out of the country, and bonuses or merit pay.

The legal principle upon which Respondent seeks summary adjudication is that it was entitled to credit for providing these "facilities." Most importantly, there is no dispute that Respondent is exempt from the Fair Labor Standards Act, and the H-2B program specifically authorized credit for these items.

Caselaw has already resolved that mobile carnival operators are entitled to these credits under the H-2B program. The absence of an enforceable regulation (at least before 2015) allowed a traveling carnival to take credit for providing mobile housing under DOL's 2008 regulations because those regulations did "not inform Respondent that [the] FLSA [primary benefit rule] is applicable ...." Administrator v. Wade Shows, Inc., No. 2013-TNE-1, at *8 (OALJ Apr. 10, 2015) (granting summary judgment on mobile housing credit), aff'd in part & dismissed, No. 15-052 (ARB June 20, 2017), modified on other grounds, No. 15-052 (ARB Sept. 11, 2017).

DHS has been just as clear. An H-2B employer may charge

> "as a condition of ... employment" for "transportation to such employment and any government-mandated passport, visa, or inspection fees, to the extent that the passing of such costs to the beneficiary is not prohibited by statute ...."

8 C.F.R. § 214.2 (h) (6) (i) (B) (emphasis added). Accord USCIS, Instructions for Petition for a Nonimmigrant Worker at 13 (Oct. 23, 2014) ("Unless the payment of such fees by a worker is prohibited under law," the employer may recover "the lower of the actual cost or fair market value of transportation to the offered employment, and ... any government-mandated passport, visa, or inspection fees.") < http://www.uscis.gov/sites/default/files/files/form/i-129instr.pdf >.

And in 2013 at the time of these purported violations, DOL was just as clear. For nearly 80 years, no regulation, court decision, WHD opinion letter, or any other authority – under either the FLSA since its original passage in 1938 or the INA's H-2/H-2B program since 1952 – had ever suggested that mobile employers must provide housing free of charge. The carnival industry has been exempt from the FLSA in all pertinent respects, either as a "retail establishment" or more recently as an "amusement or recreational establishment" under 29 U.S.C. § 213 (a) (3). House Comm. on Education & Labor, Fair Labor Standards Amendments of 1965: Report to Accompany H.R. 10518, H. Rep. No. 89-871, at 51 (Comm. Print Aug. 25, 1965) (carnivals and circuses are quintessentially representative of the amusement exemption); Wage and Hour Division, Opinion Letter No. WH-623, 1967 DOLWH Lexis 164, at *2 (June 22, 1967) (the amusement exemption applies to "county and State fair employees, employees of larger expositions, and employees of concessionaires operating on the premises of such establishments ...."); Wage and Hour Division, Opinion Letter No. WH-388, 1976 DOLWH Lexis 2, at *2 (Aug. 10, 1976) (the amusement exemption includes carnivals and circuses); Wage and Hour Division, Field Operations Handbook § 25j14 (1994) (carnivals and circuses are exempt) < www.dol.gov/whd/foh/index.htm >. See also 112 Cong. Rec. 20593, 20595 (Aug. 25, 1966) (students working in "resort areas" typically are provided food and lodging, and this is considered part of their wages) (remarks of Rep. Yarborough).

Despite the 2015 IFR, the Department has frequently taken the position that mobile amusement employers do not have any special responsibilities. 49 Fed. Reg. 25837, 25843 (June 25, 1984) (H-2B employees are responsible for the expense of relocating to take the job); Paul DeCamp, Administrator, Wage and Hour Division, Field Assistance Bulletin No.

2007-1 (May 2, 2007) (only H-2B restriction on all housing, including mobile housing, is the usual FLSA rules) < https://www.dol.gov/whd/FieldBulletins/FieldAssistanceBulletin2007_1.htm >. See also E-mail from Chicago National Processing Center to Kathy Pierce at 2 (June 16, 2009) (no unique requirements for mobile carnival housing under H-2B program); DOLETA Regulatory Agenda Chat at 2:16 PM (July 14, 2011) < http://www.dol.gov/regulations/chat-eta-201107.htm > (declining to address how the FLSA exemption for amusement operators affects H-2B wages or working conditions).

But the Department has gone much further and has affirmatively indicated that mobile amusement employers have no responsibility to provide free housing and, in fact, may deduct for that housing. The NPRM and the 2008 Rule were quite clear. 73 Fed. Reg. 29942, 29952 (May 22, 2008) (DOL "will continue to permit employers, consistent with the Fair Labor Standards Act ..., to make reasonable housing and transportation deductions ....") (emphasis added); 73 Fed. Reg. 78020, 78039 (Dec. 19, 2008) ("The Department will continue to permit employers, consistent with the Fair Labor Standards Act ..., to make deductions from a worker's pay for the reasonable cost of furnishing housing and transportation, as well as worker expenses such as passport and visa fees ....") (emphasis added). When the industry asked the Department specifically for guidance, the Department confirmed this policy in writing. Exhibit 14, E-mail from Chicago National Processing Center to James Judkins at 1 (Aug. 12, 2008) ("Employers are not obligated to pay for housing for the foreign worker under the H-2B program.") (emphasis added). When industry asked about its responsibility when employees choose to provide their own bunkhouses, DOL replied that there was no obligation to compensate workers who chose to provide their own bunkhouses. Id. ("There is no 'formula' to properly compensate a worker with a trailer.").

Nor did the Department treat the mobile amusement industry any differently. This is also the same position that the Department took with other mobile industries. E.g., DOLETA, Special Guidelines for Processing H-2B Temporary Labor Certification in Tree Planting and Related Reforestation Occupations, TEGL 27-06 (June 12, 2007) (job posting for mobile tree planters must describe "housing" benefits only "if applicable") < http://wdr.doleta.gov/directives/attach/TEGL/TEGL27-06.pdf >; DOLETA, Special Guidelines for Processing H-2B Temporary Labor Certification in Tree Planting and Related Reforestation Occupations, TEGL 27-06 (June 12, 2007) (mobile tree planters may charge for housing, but must disclose it in the ETA 750 because of MSPA requirements) ; Department of Labor, Wage and Hour Division, Fact Sheet #63: Application of Federal Labor Laws to Reforestation at 3 (July, 2010) (wide-ranging discussion of FLSA and H-2B obligations of reforestation employers, including "The cost of providing housing may be creditable towards meeting the employer's minimum or prevailing wage payment obligation.").

The 2008 Rule merely provided that deductions must be "reasonable," but was careful not to trample on congressional prerogative and FLSA exemptions. 20 C.F.R. § 655.22 (g) (1) (2008) ("All deductions must be reasonable. However, an employer subject to the FLSA may not make deductions that would violate the FLSA."). In fact, a public comment specifically suggested that the "primary benefit" test be adopted in the H-2B program, but DOL expressly declined to do so. 73 Fed. Reg. 78020, 78038 (Dec. 19, 2008). Another public comment requested the Department to adopt FLSA into the H-2B program, but the Department again declined to do so. 73 Fed. Reg. 78020, 78037-38 (Dec. 19, 2008).

If necessary, Respondent will provide dozens of applications that DOL routinely approved before, during, and after the 2013 season, along with WHD audits that failed to issue citations, despite clear evidence that the mobile employer either took a deduction, credit, or otherwise failed to provide "free" housing. This practice continued right up until the 2015 IFR was adopted, and there were even some applications that were approved after the 2015 IFR was adopted.

The amount of the credit owed will be determined later as a factual matter. For now, Respondent contends that, as a matter of law, it is entitled to claim credit for these "facilities" regardless of whether they were extended before, during, or after those few weeks comprising the audit period.

VII. THE REMEDY OF "BACK WAGES" IS NOT AVAILABLE FOR MISCLASSIFICATION

There are multiple problems with the Administrator's attempt to invoke – as well as calculate – "back wages" as an approved remedy. To begin, "back wages" are only available under the narrow circumstance that the employer failed to pay "wages at the wage level specified under the application ...." 20 C.F.R. § 655.65 (i). There is no dispute that Respondent paid the "offered wage" at all times as required under 20 C.F.R. § 655.22 (e), so the remedy of "back wages" is not available.[3] Cf. 20 C.F.R. § 655.65 (a) (civil money penalties "are equal to the difference between the amount that should have been paid [i.e., the offered wage] and the amount that actually was paid").

[3] To the extent that the Administrator might attempt to breathe expansive life into 20 C.F.R. § 655.65 (i) ("the Administrator may impose such other administrative remedies as the Administrator determines to be appropriate, ... or other appropriate legal or equitable remedies"), it does not supersede the very specific back wage remedy in the very next sentence of § 655.65 (i). Further, Respondent was, once again, entitled to be placed on notice of any such regulatory requirement.

Next, as a matter of law, even if a "back wage" remedy was available, the Administrator was required to limit any "back wage" remedy to the time that the H-2B worker was actually working in that alternative job code. See 77 Fed. Reg. 10038, 10048 (Feb. 21, 2012) (if U.S. laborer moved up to perform H-2B supervisor duties, "then that laborer would be entitled to the H-2B prevailing supervisory rate for those hours actually worked as a supervisor.") (emphasis added). The Administrator's calculations run the entire audit period, even though drivers might be driving only a few hours every other week.

As a matter of law, the Administrator's calculations incorrectly assumed that every worker worked precisely 40 hours per week, but the Respondent was careful to explain that workhours fluctuated widely based upon a broad range of factors, such as weather, event hours, etc. Exhibit 2, at pp. 033.

As a matter of law, the Administrator's calculations falsely assumed that the prevailing wage rate for the alternative job codes was a single, fixed figure as if carnival operators were fixed-site employers. In fact, entertainers such as carnival operators continue to operate under special procedures under which they are obligated "to pay the applicable wage for each location listed on the itinerary for work performed in that location." DOLETA, Temporary Labor Certification/H-2B Entertainers, TEGL 31-05, at *3 (May 31, 2006) (emphasis added). At a minimum, the Administrator must re-calculate any back wages in light of the variable, location-to-location prevailing wage rates.

VIII. THIS ACTION IS TIME-BARRED BY THE STATUTE OF LIMITATIONS AND THE DOCTRINE OF LACHES

The Administrator's enforcement action is time-barred. The relevant timeline is:

- November 7, 2012 – #9142 submitted
- December 14, 2012 – DOL approves #9142
- December 17, 2012 – I-129 submitted

- January 4, 2013 – USCIS approves I-129
- February 1, 2013 – Respondent's season begins
- February 6, 2018 – Administrator mails determination letter

A. This Case Is Governed by the Catchall 4-Year Statute Of Limitations

Since the beginning of the Republic, courts have struggled with the appropriate statute of limitations for various federal acts. Stephen B. Burbank, Of Rules and Decisions: The Supreme Court, Federal Rules and Common Law, 63 Notre Dame L. Rev. 693, 693 (1988). Congress attempted to simplify the process by enacting a "catchall 4-year statute of limitations for actions arising under federal statutes" enacted after 1990. Jones v. R.R. Donnelley & Sons Co., 541 U.S. 369, 371 (2004). Unless otherwise provided by law, "a civil action arising under an act of Congress enacted after [1990] may not be commenced later than 4 years after the cause of action accrues." 28 U.S.C. § 1658 (a). Under this statute, a cause of action "aris[es] under" a congressional act "if the plaintiff's claim against the defendant was made possible by a post-1990 enactment." Jones, 541 U.S. at 382. An amendment of an existing statute is sufficient to trigger this catchall statute of limitations. Id. at 381. For statute of limitations purposes, a claim accrues "when the plaintiff has a complete and present cause of action." Gabelli v. Security Exch. Comm'n, 568 U.S. 442, 454 (2013).

Before 1990, there was no mechanism for imposing back wages or civil money penalties under the H-2B program. See 8 U.S.C. §§ 1101 (a) (15) (H) (ii) (b) & 1184 (c). This enforcement action "aris[es] under" the REAL ID Act, Pub. L. No. 109-13, §404, 119 Stat. 302, 309 (May 11, 2005), codified at 8 U.S.C. § 1184 (c) (14). This statute authorized the Secretary of Homeland Security to pursue civil monetary penalties and "other remed[ies] authorized by law," 8 U.S. C § 1184 (c) (14) (A), and it authorized the Secretary of Homeland Security to redelegate this authority to the Secretary of Labor, id. § 1184 (c) (14) (B). In every sense, this post-1990 enactment "made possible" the current enforcement action by authorizing it to proceed through redelegation in 2009 and implementing regulations in 2008. 29 C.F.R. § 503.1 (c) ("Role" of the Administrator is based on the DHS's delegated authority to DOL).

It is equally obvious that more than 4 years elapsed after the cause of action accrued. The 2008 H-2B regulations contain their own trigger for accrual. 20 C.F.R. § 655.65 (f) ("The provisions of this subpart become applicable on the date that the employer's labor condition application is certified and/or upon the date employment commences, whichever is earlier."). See also 20 C.F.R. § 655.21 (c) (mandatory record retention begins "from the date of the certification"). In this case, all of the employer-generated submissions and agency approvals in late 2012 and early 2013 were far more than 4 years before the determination letter in early 2018. In fact, the Administrator conducted his "final conference" at the conclusion of the investigation on November 22, 2013, Exhibits 5 & 6, which itself was more than 4 years before the determination letter. As a result, the Administrator had a complete and present cause of action that was ignored for more than 5 years.

B. Numerous Alternative Statutes of Limitations Have Also Long Expired

Even if it was possible for the Administrator to defeat the catchall § 1658 (a), there are a number of other candidates, all of which have expired. Long before § 1658 began simplifying the issue, the Rules of Decision Act had long provided that "The laws of the several states ... shall be regarded as rules of decision in civil actions in the courts of the United States, in cases where they apply." 28 U.S.C. § 1652. Under this statute, the Supreme Court "has 'borrowed' what it considered to be the most analogous state statute of limitations to bar tardily commenced proceedings." Board of Regents v. Tomanio, 446 U.S. 478, 488 (1980).

In this case, Respondent is an Oregon-based company. Exhibit 2, at p. 25. Respondent contends that the most analogous statute empowers the State Labor Commissioner to enforce Oregon's wage and hour laws. Or. Rev. Stat. § 652.330 (1). DOL has often analogized to similarities under the federal FLSA. 80 Fed. Reg. 24042, 24062 (Apr. 29, 2015). Enforcement actions for overtime, premium pay, or penalties must be commenced within 2 years, Or. Rev. Stat. § 12.110 (3), and an enforcement action "for a forfeiture or penalty to the state or county shall be commenced within two years," id. § 12.110 (2).

Although the usual rule is to borrow from state law, courts have sometimes borrowed from federal law when it "clearly provides a closer analogy than available state statutes, and when the federal policies at stake and the practicalities of litigation make that rule a significantly more appropriate vehicle for interstitial lawmaking." Lampf v. Gilbertson, 501 U.S. 350, 356 (1991). Federal law might be regarded as sufficiently superior because there is no corresponding state-law visa program. Administrator v. Alden Mgmt. Serv., 1996-ARN-3, slip op. at *6-7 (OALJ Nov. 3, 1998) (finding statute of limitations from H-1B program, rather than the Fair Labor Standards Act, should be applied to the H-1A program). In this instance, the H-2A program has a 2-year statute of limitations. 8 U.S.C. § 1188 (b) (2). DOL itself has often analogized to the similarities between the H-2A and H-2B programs. See, e.g., 73 Fed. Reg. 78020, 78043 (Dec. 19, 2008). Under the 2008 rules, the most severe penalty, debarment from the H-2B program, must occur within 2 years, 20

C.F.R. § 655.31 (a) (2), and that date was chosen because of DOL's professed interest in tracking the H-2A program, 73 Fed. Reg. at 78043. Needless to say, it would be anomalous if less-severe penalties had a longer statute of limitations than the most-severe penalty. The analogy to federal immigration law is also strengthened because DOL has established a 3-year record retention requirement, 20 C.F.R. § 655.21 (c), after expressly considering and rejecting a 5-year retention that "would impose an unnecessary burden on small employers, especially those that are mobile or have a mobile component," 73 Fed. Reg. at 78023, which describes Respondent precisely. Another strong federal analogy can be drawn to the FLSA, which requires that less than "willful" violations must be filed within 2 years, and willful violations must be charged within 3 years. 29 U.S.C. § 255 (a).

Yet another relevant statute of limitations is contained in 28 U.S.C. § 2462, which provides that "an action, suit or proceeding for the enforcement of any civil fine, penalty, or forfeiture, pecuniary or otherwise, shall not be entertained unless commenced within five years from the date when the claim first accrued ...." It is well recognized that this statute may apply in enforcement actions. Minnesota Mining & Mfg. v. Browner, 17 F.3d 1453, 1457 (D.C. Cir. 1994); Three Chimneys Farm, 2013-T AE-00011, slip op. at *6, n. 10. Even back wages, which revert to the U.S. Treasury if unclaimed after 3 years, Wage and Hour Division, Workers Owed Wages < https://webapps.dol.gov/wow/ >, qualify as a "penalty," Administrator v. Hotelmacher, 2017-TAE-00010, slip op. at *4 (OALJ May 17, 2018).

Under any of these alternative statutes of limitations, the cause of action accrued long before the Administrator filed this determination letter on February 6, 2018. It is especially obvious that the Administrator had a "complete and present cause of action" well outside of these various statutes because of the automatic trigger under the 2008 rules that attached on December 14, 2012, when DOL approved Respondent's labor certification.[4]

C. The Administrator Is Also Barred by Laches

Further, the Administrator is barred by the equitable doctrine of laches. Not only did the Administrator wait an inordinately lengthy time, but the delay substantially prejudiced Respondent. The witnesses have now dispersed and are beyond the subpoena power, and the mandatory record retention period has expired long ago. Moreover, since at least July, 2013, the prevailing wage data has been unavailable to the public, thereby thwarting Respondent's ability to defend the case.

IX. MR. MICHAEL BRAJEVICH IS NOT INDIVIDUALLY LIABLE

The Administrator has not made any determinations against Mr. Brajevich in his individual capacity. The determination letter indicates that the investigation was "of" the corporate entity, Butler Amusements, Inc. Exhibit 9, at pp. 092. It was "Butler Amusements" that "committed the [pertinent] violations" of the I-129 and #9142. Id. See also id. at 093 (Butler Amusements "violated" the I-129 and #9142); id. at 096 (same). Butler Amusements alone was responsible for placing the workers in the unauthorized

[4] The Hotelmacher case, without any supporting authority, concluded that the cause of action did not accrue until the workers were employed and the Administrator had the opportunity to investigate. 2017-TAE-00010, slip op. at *6. Not only did the decision ignore the special trigger under the 2008 H-2B rule, as well as the several statutes of limitations identified in this motion, but it also created its own definition of "accrual." Id. (cause of action did not accrue until "the violation had ... manifested in [a] discernible manner."] The whole purpose of extending a period of years to the Administrator is to perfect the facts through investigation, but no authority has ever indicated that the opportunity to do so must also be perfected by waiting until the investigation is optimal. Respondent was exposed to potential citations from the moment it signed and submitted an official document, Exhibit 2, at p. 32 ("I declare under penalty of perjury that I have read and review this application and that to the best of my knowledge the information contained therein is true and accurate."), regardless of whether the Administrator had availed himself of the power to investigate.

positions. Id. at 096. It was Butler Amusements that was "liable for any ongoing violations." Id. at 092. It was Butler Amusements that was responsible for paying the back wages and civil money penalties, and in the amounts listed, and within the time limit, unless Butler Amusements alone exercised its right and requested a hearing. If Butler Amusements failed to make a timely request for a hearing, the determination letter was final. If Butler Amusements failed to pay, then Butler Amusements could be debarred from the H-2B program. It was Butler Amusements that had been previously provided with the calculations. Butler Amusements alone was responsible for withholding appropriate deductions and paying contributions to the tax authorities.

In contrast to Butler Amusements, which the determination letter specifically inculpated 14 times, Mr. Brajevich was mentioned exactly once, and that is because he was the addressee and designated point of contact for the Respondent. There is no basis, as a matter of law, to believe that Mr. Brajevich should be designated in the case caption as an individual Respondent because the Administrator never intended to charge him with anything.

It is not surprising that the determination letter would be directed to Butler Amusements as the employer. Both the #9142 and the I-129 identified Butler Amusements, Inc., as the employer and Mr. Brajevich as the employer's contact. Exhibit 2, at pp. 025; Exhibit 3, at pp. 042. It is the "employer" that is subject to administrative action. 29 C.F.R. § 655.31 (a) (1).

CONCLUSION

For the foregoing reasons, Respondent prays that its motion for summary judgment be granted and that the parties submit a revised litigation plan in light of any issues that may remain.

The undersigned attorney for the Administrator requests an extension of time to July 25, 2018 to file its Opposition to Respondents' Motion for Summary Judgment, with Respondents' Reply due seven days later, i.e., August 1, 2018.

The need for this Motion arose because of several unforeseen medical issues related to the family of the undersigned attorney. Dealing with those medical issues took unexpected amounts of time, energy and emotional wherewithal. That, combined with holiday leaves of coworkers has led to this Motion.

The parties have conferred and counsel for Respondent takes no position on the motion and does not intend to file a response provided that he has the opportunity to file his Reply to the Administrator's Opposition.

The Court has granted one extension of time already in these proceedings.

CONCLUSION 31

CERTIFICATE OF SERVICE 32

INTRODUCTION

This case is about Respondents' abuse of the H-2B program and their bait-and-switch that harmed both the H-2B workers they brought to the United States and the U.S. workers they displaced. Respondents employed H-2B workers at jobs that were never identified, disclosed, reviewed or approved by the Department of Labor ("DOL") and Department of Homeland Security ("DHS"). Despite seeking amusement and recreation attendants to fulfill their purported temporary labor need, Respondents ultimately employed the H-2B workers they petitioned as mechanics, truck drivers, and ride supervisors and paid them less than what U.S. workers doing the same work earned. In doing so, Respondents harmed the U.S. workers who did not have the opportunity to apply for these jobs before they were offered to foreign workers and who faced downward wage pressure as a result of Respondents paying H-2B workers less to do the same job. Respondents also cheated H-2B workers who were paid less than they would have been, had Respondents followed the rules.

Respondents' legal defense of their visa abuse primarily consists of two main arguments. First, Respondents maintain that the 2008 H-2B regulations that the Administrator is enforcing are unenforceable. As an initial matter, as the Administrative Review Board ("ARB") has held, the validity of DOL regulations cannot be determined in administrative proceedings, foreclosing a decision by this tribunal on this point. See Adm'r, Wage & Hour Div. v. Peroulis & Sons Sheep, Inc., ARB Nos. 14-076, 14-077, 2016 WL 4942416, at *5 (ARB Sept. 12, 2016). Indeed, despite making this argument, Respondents themselves concede that this tribunal lacks jurisdiction to rule on the validity of regulations and can only follow them. See Mot. at 11 (citing Prince v. Westinghouse Savannah River Co., ARB No. 10-079, 2010 WL 4918429, at *5 (ARB Nov. 17, 2010)).

Second, Respondents insist that they were not aware that the H-2B regulations bound them to employ the H-2B workers for the need they specified in their applications. This argument borders on frivolous. The H-2B regulations plainly require a truthful and accurate statement of the employer's temporary need for a particular type of labor or services. 20 C.F.R. § 655.22(n) (2009); see also id. § 655.6 (2009); 8 C.F.R. § 214.2(h)(6)(ii) (2012) (defining temporary need). They also require employers to pay H-2B workers the prevailing wage for that type of job, and provide them working conditions that are normal for that job. See 20 C.F.R. § 655.22(a), (e) (2009). If employers were allowed to petition for H-2B workers for one type of job, but then actually employ them at another, it would turn the entire program into a sham.

Continuing their bait-and-switch conduct, many of the remaining arguments Respondents raise in their Motion concern factual disputes, despite their previous representation to this tribunal and the Administrator that this Motion would concern only legal questions. As with their representations as part of the H-2B program, Respondents must be held to their word. To the extent that Respondents seek summary judgment based on factual issues, the Motion must be denied as premature.

Respondents' exploitation of the H-2B program and the workers they employed through it is plainly actionable. Respondents' summary judgment motion must be denied.

STATUTORY AND REGULATORY FRAMEWORK

The H-2B visa program is a voluntary program that permits employers to hire nonimmigrant foreign workers to come temporarily to the United States and perform non-agricultural work on a one-time, seasonal, peak load, or intermittent basis. 8 U.S.C. § 1101(a)(15)(H)(ii)(b); 20 C.F.R. Part 655, Subpart A (2009).[1] The H-2B program is designed to address only employers' temporary labor needs. It is also designed to prevent adverse impacts on U.S. workers and abuses of H-2B workers. The process of applying for H-2B workers involves many steps designed to ensure that the H-2B program serves these goals.

To apply for H-2B workers, employers must go through the labor certification process with DOL and then obtain H-2B visas through DHS and the Department of State. The labor certification process at DOL begins with employers first obtaining a prevailing wage determination. 20 C.F.R. § 655.10 (2009). In broad strokes, the prevailing wage is the average wage that workers in a particular occupation and geographic area are paid. See id. § 655.10(b). H-2B employers must offer and pay the highest of the prevailing wage or the applicable federal, state, or local minimum wage, which is defined as the "offered wage." 20 C.F.R. § 655.22(e) (2009). The purpose of the offered wage requirement is to prevent employers from driving down wages in the United States by paying foreign workers less than similarly employed workers. See id.

To avoid this adverse impact on U.S. workers, an accurate description of the duties the workers will be performing is critical. After obtaining a prevailing wage determination, the employer must submit an Application for Temporary Employment Certification ("TEC" or "ETA Form 9142") and recruitment report to DOL's Employment and Training Administration ("ETA"). 20 C.F.R. § 655.20 (2009). The TEC asks for, among other things, a description of the employer's "temporary need" for foreign workers. The key question is whether the employer's "need for the duties to be performed by the employee(s) is temporary." 8 C.F.R. § 214.2(h)(6)(ii) (2012); see also 20 C.F.R. § 655.6 (2009) (cross-referencing DHS's definition of "temporary need" at 8 C.F.R. § 214.2(h)(6)(ii)).

[1] This case is brought under the substantive provisions of the 2008 H-2B Regulations, which were finally promulgated on December 19, 2008. Labor Certification Process and Enforcement for Temporary Employment in Occupations Other Than Agriculture or Registered Nusing in the United States (H-2B Workers), and Other Technical Changes, 73 Fed. Reg. 78,020 (Dec. 19, 2008). The Administrator cites to the 2009 C.F.R. because the regulation became effective and was codified into the Code of Federal Regulations in 2009.

Demonstrating the importance of this information, the employer must certify on the TEC, under penalty of perjury, that the information contained on the TEC is true and accurate. See Resp't Exh. 2 at 31-32 (ETA Form 9142, Appendix B.1). In submitting the TEC, an employer represents that it acknowledges and accepts each obligation of the H-2B program. 20 C.F.R. § 655.65(f) (2009). This includes the obligation to truthfully and accurately state "the dates of temporary need, reason for temporary need, and the number of positions being requested." Id. § 655.22(n) (2009). The employer must also certify that it attempted to recruit U.S. workers to fill those jobs and none were available. Id. § 655.22(c) (2009). The employer is also obligated to offer a wage on the TEC that equals or exceeds the highest of the prevailing wage or the applicable federal, state, or local minimum wage, and to pay that wage for the duration of the certified time period. Id. § 655.22(e) (2009). By submitting a TEC, an employer also takes on the obligation to provide working conditions that are normal in the industry for the type of jobs for which they are seeking certification. See id. § 655.22(a) (2009) (requiring employers to offer "terms and working conditions normal to U.S. workers similarly employed in the area of intended employment, meaning that they may not be unusual for workers performing the same activity in the area of employment").

These obligations prevent employers from using the H-2B program to depress the U.S. labor market. In order for the government to ensure that employers are complying with these obligations, it is crucial to know what job the workers will be performing, as an employer's temporary need, the offered wage requirement, and the obligation to provide normal working conditions can vary from job to job.

If an employer receives the labor certification from DOL, the employer then submits DHS Form I-129 to petition for H-2B visas for its workers. The TEC is a required component of the petition. See Resp't Exh. 12 at 144. By submitting DHS Form I-129, the employer re-affirms its acceptance of its obligations under the H-2B program. 20 C.F.R. § 655.65(f) (2009); see also Resp't Exh. 3 at 55 (signature page for H Supplement to DHS Form I-129 containing statement, "By filing this petition, I agree to the conditions of H-2A/H-2B employment and agree to the notification requirements."). Once the petition is approved and visas are issued, H-2B workers can enter the United States to perform the jobs approved by DOL and DHS.

Section 214(c)(14) of the INA gives DHS the authority to impose administrative remedies where the Secretary of DHS finds "a substantial failure to meet any of the conditions of the petition to admit . . . a nonimmigrant worker under [8 U.S.C. § 1101(a)(15)(H)(ii)(b)] or . . . a willful misrepresentation of a material fact in such petition." 8 U.S.C. § 1184(c)(14)(A). The INA further authorizes the Secretary of DHS to delegate this enforcement authority to the Secretary of Labor. 8 U.S.C. § 1184(c)(14)(B). DHS has delegated to the Secretary of Labor its authority "to enforce compliance with the conditions of a petition and Department of Labor-approved temporary labor certification to admit or otherwise provide status to an H-2B worker." 8 C.F.R. 214.2(h)(6)(ix). This enforcement authority has been further delegated within DOL to the Administrator of the Wage and Hour Division. See Sec'y of Labor Order No. 01-2014 ¶ 5.A(10) (Dec. 19, 2014) (delegating authority to enforce 8 U.S.C. § 1184(c)(14), "relating to assuring employer compliance with the terms and conditions of employment under the temporary alien labor certification program in occupations other than agriculture or registered nursing (H–2B visas)").

STATEMENT OF UNDISPUTED FACTS

In late 2012, Respondents submitted an H-2B Application for Temporary Employment Certification (ETA Form 9142) to employ 246 amusement and recreation attendants for its February-October 2013 season. Resp't Exh. 2 at 24. In the Temporary Need Information section of the form, Respondents listed "Amusement and Recreation Attendants – Traveling Ca[rnival]" as the job title and "Amusement and Recreation Attendants" as the SOC (ONET/OES occupation title). With respect to the specific job offer being made, Respondents again listed "Amusement and Recreation Attendants – Traveling Ca[rnival]" as the job title. Id. at 26. Respondents stated that the job duties would be to > Perform variety of attending duties at amusement facility (traveling carnival). Set-up, tear-down, operate amusement rides, food concessions and/or games.

Id. Respondents represented that the workers would not supervise other employees. Id. Respondents also represented that no specific licenses or certifications were required for the job, except for a drug and criminal background check. Id. at 27.

Respondent Michael Brajevich, Butler Amusement's CEO, signed Appendix B.1 to ETA Form 9142, declaring under penalty of perjury that the information contained in the application was true and accurate. Id. at 32. By virtue of his signature, Respondents specifically attested that "[t]he dates of temporary need, reason(s) for temporary need, and number of worker positions being requested for certification has been truly and accurately stated on the application." Id.

On December 14, 2012, DOL issued a labor certification letter "[b]ased on the documentation and attestations provided by the employer." Resp't Exh. 2 at 1. Specifically, DOL certified "that a sufficient number of able, willing and qualified U.S. workers have not been identified as being available at the time and place needed to fill the job opportunities for which certification is sought, and the employment of the H-2B temporary workers in such labor or services will not adversely affect the wages and working conditions of U.S. workers." Id.

On December 17, 2012, Respondents submitted DHS Form I-129, seeking H-2B visas for 246 unnamed individuals. When asked in Part 5 for the workers' job title, Respondents again stated, "Amusement and Recreation Attendants." Resp't Exh. 3 at 47. Respondents' Form I-129 was approved by DHS on January 4, 2013. Resp't Exh. 4.

The Administrator, Wage and Hour Division ("Administrator") subsequently opened an investigation of the period from February 1 to April 24, 2013. Resp't Exh. 9 at 92. The investigation found that, contrary to Respondents' representations above, nine of the workers were not carnival attendants at all, but were machine shop mechanics, truck drivers, and ride supervisors.[2] Resp't Exh. 6 at 85-86. Also contrary to their representations that the workers would not be supervisors, some were supervisors. Id. In addition, the truck drivers were required to have commercial driver's licenses, which contradicted Respondents' representation that no specific skills or licenses were required. Resp't Exh. 2 at 27. Further, the investigation found that Respondents paid the nine workers less than the Respondents would have been obligated to offer and pay had Respondents been truthful on the TEC and DHS Form I-129 from the start. See Resp't Exh. 8.

[2] The investigation also found that a tenth H-2B worker was employed as an office administrative worker, rather than an amusement and recreation attendant. See Resp't Exh. 6 at 85. However, the Administrator is not pursuing that claim in this proceeding.

PROCEDURAL HISTORY

On February 6, 2018, the Administrator issued a Determination Letter. Resp't Exh. 9. The Administrator determined that Respondents Michael Brajevich and Butler Amusements, Inc. substantially failed to comply with the requirement to provide proper job classification information on ETA Form 9142 and DHS Form I-129. Resp't Exh. 9 at 92.[3] Specifically, the Administrator found that Respondents violated 20 C.F.R. § 655.22(n) (2009) and failed to comply with Attestation #13 on ETA Form 9142, both of which require a truthful and accurate representation of the employer's temporary need for workers. Id. at 96; see also 20 C.F.R. § 655.22(n); Resp't Exh. 2 at 32. Relatedly, the Administrator further found that Respondents failed to provide accurate information in Part 5, Question 1 of DHS Form I-129, which asks for the job title of the H-2B workers for whom Respondents was seeking visas. Resp't Exh. 9 at 96. Based on its findings, the Administrator ordered Respondents to pay $24,987.60 in back wages to the affected H-2B workers and assessed a $10,000 civil money penalty. Id.

Respondents requested a hearing before an ALJ. This tribunal issued a Notice of Hearing and Pre-Hearing Order on March 28, 2018. On May 9, 2018, the tribunal held a status conference during which the parties requested a stay of discovery so that Respondents could brief some specific legal issues, i.e., the Administrator's authority to enforce the 2008 H-2B regulations, the Administrator's authority to recover back wages in this case, and whether the misclassification was substantial. See Joint Request for Status Conference Regarding Discovery Plan (Apr. 25, 2018) (listing legal issues); Order Vacating Hearing, Staying Proceedings and Setting Briefing Schedule (May 9, 2018). Later that day, this tribunal issued an order vacating the deadlines set forth in the Notice of Hearing and staying discovery to allow time for the parties to "litigate[] the legal issues." See Order Vacating Hearing, Staying Proceedings and Setting Briefing Schedule (May 9, 2018). Respondents filed their amended Motion for Summary Judgment on June 18, 2018. This brief is the Administrator's response to Respondents' Motion.

ARGUMENT

Because no discovery has occurred and because Respondents expressly seek a decision only on "certain legal issues,"[4] Respondents necessarily concede for purposes of this Motion that they employed workers they claimed they needed as "Amusement and Recreation Attendants" as machine shop mechanics, truck drivers, and ride supervisors. See Mot. at 1. As explained below, this obvious misuse of H-2B workers is plainly actionable, and this enforcement action is timely.

Insofar as Respondents seek a decision on factual matters—including whether they acted willfully; the appropriate amount of back wages; and whether Mr. Brajevich is liable personally—that is beyond the scope of what the parties and the tribunal contemplated when the tribunal stayed discovery. Because discovery has not yet taken place, summary judgment on any factual issues is premature.

[4] Given the focus on legal issues, the Administrator agrees that the standard of review is de novo. See U.S. Dep't of Labor v. Barry's Ground Cover, ARB No. 12-079, 2014 WL 469277, at *2 (ARB Jan. 16, 2014) ("The [ARB] exercises de novo review of legal issues."). The Administrator does not agree, however, that WHD is operating outside of its area of expertise. See Mot. at 5. As discussed above, DHS delegated to the Secretary of Labor its authority "to enforce compliance with the conditions of a petition and Department of Labor-approved temporary labor certification to admit or otherwise provide status to an H-2B worker." 8 C.F.R. 214.2(h)(6)(ix).

I. Providing inaccurate information regarding H-2B employees' job duties violates the INA and the 2008 H-2B Regulations.

A. The INA and the 2008 H-2B Regulations require the sponsoring employer to provide complete and truthful information regarding the H-2B employees' job duties.

To fulfill its purpose of providing temporary foreign labor only where there is a demonstrated temporary need, the H-2B program requires employers to provide a complete and truthful account of that need. When an employer—like Respondents here—fail to do so, both foreign and U.S. workers are harmed, along with the other law-abiding businesses that are disadvantaged competitively by a cheating employer's misconduct. These harms are plainly actionable under the INA and the related H-2B regulations.

The H-2B program is only for workers who, "having a residence in a foreign country which he has no intention of abandoning . . . [,] is coming temporarily to the United States to perform other [(i.e., non-agricultural)] temporary service or labor if unemployed persons capable of performing such service or labor cannot be found in this country." 8 U.S.C. § 1101(a)(15)(H)(ii)(b). Specifically, H-2B workers can only work in the United States on a temporary basis and can only be used to address an employer's temporary need for a particular type of labor or services. See Matter of Artee Corp., 18 I. & N. Dec. 366, 367 (BIA 1982) (explaining two "temporary" requirements). Thus, when applying for permission to hire H-2B workers, employers are required to explain the temporary nature of their need for the work they want the H-2B workers to perform. See 20 C.F.R. § 655.22(n) (2009) (the employer's "dates of temporary need, reason for temporary need, and number of positions" must be "truly and accurately stated on the application").

Respondents argue that their obligation to represent their temporary need accurately does not preclude their use of H-2B workers for unstated purposes and that, even if it did, they did not realize that this is the case. This argument borders on frivolous. Contrary to Respondents' argument that temporary need "has nothing whatsoever to do with . . . the comprehensiveness of the job-duty description," Mot. at 20, temporary need has everything to do with the job duties of the H-2B workers perform. The regulations and the applicable case law make clear that "temporary need" is determined based on whether the employer's "need for the duties to be performed by the employee(s) is temporary," not just whether the worker will be in the United States temporarily. 8 C.F.R. § 214.2(h)(6)(ii) (2012) (emphasis added); Matter of Artee Corp., 18 I. & N. Dec. at 367; see also 20 C.F.R. § 655.6 (2009) (cross-referencing DHS's definition of "temporary need" at 8 C.F.R. § 214.2(h)(6)(ii)).[5] Indeed, 20 C.F.R. § 655.21 spells out what the employer needs to have in its statement of temporary need, including "an explanation regarding why the nature of the employer's job opportunity and number of foreign workers being requested for certification reflect a temporary need." Id. § 655.21(a)(2) (emphasis added). Thus, in order to accurately describe its temporary need, an employer must provide an accurate description of the job duties it needs its prospective H-2B workers to perform. An employer who fails to accurately describe the workers' job duties cannot provide an accurate description of its temporary need, which violates 20 C.F.R. § 655.22(n) and the INA, 8 U.S.C. § 1184(c)(14)(A) (authorizing remedies to be imposed for any "substantial failure[s] to meet any of the conditions of the petition to admit . . . a nonimmigrant worker under [8 U.S.C. § 1101(a)(15)(H)(ii)(b)] or . . . a willful misrepresentation of a material fact in such petition").

[5] The regulatory definition of temporary need has been publicly available for many years. Accordingly, Respondents' disingenuous contention that they lacked notice that they had to accurately describe the workers' job duties in their applications should be rejected. See Mot. at 20-22.

B. Whether Respondents failed to truthfully and accurately state its temporary need is a factual issue not within the scope of Respondents' summary judgment motion on legal issues.

As already explained, Respondents' violations stem from employing H-2B workers in jobs not disclosed on ETA Form 9142 and DHS Form I-192. See 8 U.S.C. § 1184(c)(14)(A); 20 C.F.R. § 655.22(n) (2009). To impose remedies other than civil money penalties, such as equitable remedies and back wages, the Administrator only needs to show that there was "a violation" of the H-2B program requirements. See id. § 655.65(i) (2009). As relevant here, civil money penalties are available "for any substantial failure to meet the conditions provided in the H–2B Application for Temporary Employment Certification or the DHS Form I–129, Petition for a Nonimmigrant Worker for an H–2B worker or successor form, or any willful misrepresentation in the application or petition." 20 C.F.R. § 655.65(c) (2009). A "substantial failure" is "a willful failure that constitutes a significant deviation from the terms and conditions of the labor condition application or the DHS Form I-129, Petition for a Nonimmigrant Worker for an H-2B worker or successor form." Id. § 655.65(d) (2009); see also 8 U.S.C. § 1184(c)(14)(D). A "willful failure" is "a knowing failure or a reckless disregard with respect to whether the conduct was contrary to sec. 214(c) of the INA, or this subpart." 20 C.F.R. § 655.65(e) (2009).[6]

[6] Respondents misstate the legal standard for H-2B program violations. Contrary to Respondents' assertions, the Administrator does not need to prove there was a "pattern or practice" of violations. That only applies to debarment proceedings under § 655.31. See 20 C.F.R. § 655.31(d)(1) (2009) (defining "substantial violation" "[f]or the purposes of this section"). The "minor and incidental" rule similarly applies only to debarment proceedings. See id. § 655.31(d)(1)(v) (2009). As for Respondents' argument that job duties are "minor" when they occupy less than 20% of the total time spent on certified job duties, the 20% rule does not appear in the H-2B regulations at all. Rather, it was a feature of the H-2A debarment regulation. See 20 C.F.R. § 655.118(d)(1)(v) (2009). Its conspicuous absence from the H-2B regulations suggests that it does not apply to the H-2B program. Even if it did, the 20% rule is that the minor and incidental job activities must constitute less than 20% of the total time a worker works on the certified job duties. It does not allow an employer, for example, to assign 20% of its workforce full-time to non-certified job duties. If it did, it would make a mockery of the Here, Respondents seek summary judgment on whether there were any violations at all, and if so, whether they were substantial or willful. These are factual issues outside the scope of Respondents' summary judgment motion on legal issues. While Respondents purport to dispute the Wage and Hour Division's ("WHD's") findings that nine H-2B workers worked as machine shop mechanics, truck drivers, and ride supervisors and not as attendants, Respondents offer no evidence to support their story. This is not surprising given that, as already explained, Respondents' motion was intended only to address legal issues. Mot. at 23 n.3 ("Needless to say, Respondent factually disputes that the Administrator's alternative job codes describe the work performed by the H-2B workers, but that fact issue is for another day."). Similarly, Respondents recognize that there is a factual dispute as to whether their conduct was willful. See id. at 23 (acknowledging "an issue of fact whether Respondent could reasonably rely on the professional advice of its H-2B agent"). Thus, this tribunal should deny summary judgment on these issues.

II. The 2008 H-2B regulations are enforceable in this case.

Respondents raise a host of reasons why they believe DOL's 2008 H-2B regulations can no longer be enforced. See Mot. at 6-17. Respondents' tired and scattershot arguments should be rejected in their entirety.

A. Perez v. Perez does not bar the Administrator from applying the 2008 Rule in this case.

1. The Perez injunction does not apply to Respondents' labor certification, which was issued prior to April 30, 2015.

Respondents argue that DOL's 2008 H-2B regulations are unenforceable because they were vacated by a federal district court on March 4, 2015, even though the district court requirement that the employer accurately state the date for temporary need, its reason for temporary need, and the number of job positions. See 20 C.F.R. § 655.22(n) (2009).

subsequently clarified on September 4, 2015 that its injunction against enforcement of the 2008 H-2B regulations did not apply retroactively to labor certifications issued before April 30, 2015 (the injunction's effective date). Mot. at 11-16; Perez v. Perez, No. 14-cv-682, ECF No. 62 (N.D. Fla. Sept. 4, 2015) (attached as Exh. A).[7]

This tribunal has considered and rejected the Perez argument from a carnival employer before and should do so again in this case. Like in Guadagno, this proceeding falls squarely "within the safe harbor of non-retroactivity" because Respondents' labor certification was issued well before April 30, 2015. Adm'r, Wage & Hour Div. v. Guadagno, ALJ No. 2016-LCA-00035, slip op. at 3-5 (ALJ June 12, 2017) (ALJ Clark) (attached as Exh. B) (quoting Adm'r, Wage & Hour Div. v. St. Louis Select Landscaping, Inc., ALJ No. 2017-TNE-00003, slip op. at 5-6 (ALJ May 2, 2017)); see also Resp't Exh. 9 at 102 (labor certification letter dated December 14, 2012). The Perez injunction thus does not apply to this case.

[7] By way of background, on March 4, 2015, the United States District Court for the Northern District of Florida vacated DOL's 2008 H-2B regulations and permanently enjoined DOL from enforcing them. Perez, ECF No. 14, at 7-8 (attached as Exh. C). On April 29, 2015, DOL and DHS jointly issued new H-2B regulations ("2015 Rule" or "2015 H-2B regulations"). Temporary Non-Agricultural Employment of H-2B Aliens in the United States, 80 Fed. Reg. 24,042 (Apr. 29, 2015). On August 28, 2015, the plaintiff in Perez filed a motion to clarify that the district court's permanent injunction did not apply "retroactively" and did not "enjoin DOL from using its enforcement powers [under the 2008 H-2B regulations] to ensure compliance with the terms and conditions of work promised in the labor certifications approved prior to the effective date of the Court's injunction." Perez, ECF No. 58, at 2, 4 (attached as Exh. D). On September 4, 2015, the court granted the plaintiff's motion, clarifying that "the permanent injunction was not intended to, and does not, apply retroactively." See Perez, ECF No. 62 (Exh. A). In a subsequent filing in the Perez case, DOL explained that, despite the district court's March 4, 2015 vacatur of the 2008 H-2B regulations, DOL interpreted the district court's September 4, 2015 order as "permitting DOL to enforce compliance with the employer obligations and terms and conditions of H-2B employment imposed by the 2008 Rule, including the terms and conditions contained in labor certifications issued pursuant to that rule before the district court's permanent injunction took effect on April 30, 2015." Perez, ECF No. 64, at 2 (Sept. 17, 2015) (attached as Exh. E).

Respondents' arguments against DOL's interpretation of the Perez district court orders are internally conflicting and ultimately unpersuasive. Respondents contend that the Perez district court had no basis under Federal Rule of Civil Procedure 60 to modify the March 4, 2015 vacatur of the 2008 H-2B regulations and that the original March 4, 2015 vacatur makes the 2008 H-2B regulations unenforceable, despite the district court's subsequent, September 4, 2015 modification of the injunction. Mot. at 12-15. In making these arguments, Respondents seem to invite this tribunal to overrule the plain language in the federal district court's September 4, 2015 ruling. However, as Respondents themselves note, only the Northern District of Florida district court itself can interpret its own rulings and the ARB—and, therefore, the ALJs—can only "adhere to" and not "interpret" a federal court's decisions. Mot. at 15-16.[8] Respondents also allege that the Administrator's interpretation of the September 4, 2015 clarification order is a rule that must be adopted through notice-and-comment procedures. Mot. at 14. This tribunal does not have the authority to adjudicate this type of Administrative Procedure Act-based challenge. See Peroulis & Sons Sheep, 2016 WL 4942416, at *5 (describing the ARB's authority to rule on employer's argument that a field memorandum was a substantive rule requiring notice and comment as "uncertain").

As it did in Guadagno, this tribunal must adhere to the district court's most recent, September 4, 2015 decision. See Guadagno, ALJ No. 2016-LCA-00035, slip op. at 3-5 (ALJ June 12, 2017). This decision allows DOL to enforce the 2008 H-2B regulations in cases where [8] Respondents also proclaim that "[t]he fact that the Administrator has not gone back to the federal court to clarify the clarification says it all," without explaining what that says about anything in this case. See Mot. at 16.

the labor certification was issued before the effective date of the Perez injunction, regardless that the determination letter was issued afterwards.

2. The Perez injunction does not apply to violations of the conditions of DHS's I-129 petition.

Perez v. Perez does not bar this case for the further reason that DHS's delegation of authority to DOL to enforce compliance with the conditions of the I-129 petition was not affected in any way by the Perez injunction. Section 214(c)(14) of the Immigration and Nationality Act (INA) provides that DHS may impose administrative remedies where the Secretary of DHS finds "a substantial failure to meet any of the conditions of the petition to admit . . . a nonimmigrant worker under [8 U.S.C. § 1101(a)(15)(H)(ii)(b)] or . . . a willful misrepresentation of a material fact in such petition." 8 U.S.C. § 1184(c)(14)(A). The INA further authorizes the Secretary of DHS to delegate this enforcement authority to the Secretary of Labor. 8 U.S.C. § 1184(c)(14)(B). Effective January 18, 2009, DHS delegated to the Secretary of Labor its enforcement authority for the H-2B program. 8 C.F.R. 214.2(h)(6)(ix) ("The Secretary of Labor may investigate employers to enforce compliance with the conditions of a petition and Department of Labor-approved temporary labor certification to admit or otherwise provide status to an H-2B worker."). This enforcement authority has been further delegated within DOL to the Administrator of WHD. See Sec'y of Labor Order No. 01-2014 ¶ 5.A(10) (Dec. 19, 2014) (delegating authority to enforce 8 U.S.C. § 1184(c)(14), "relating to assuring employer compliance with the terms and conditions of employment under the temporary alien labor certification program in occupations other than agriculture or registered nursing (H–2B visas)").

As Respondents themselves concede, see Mot. at 31, because this DHS delegation of authority pursuant to the terms of the INA flows directly from the statute, it is not dependent upon the validity of DOL's 2008 regulations at 20 C.F.R. Part 655, subpart A, implementing the H-2B program. The delegation of authority provides an independent basis, separate and apart from those regulations, for the Administrator to enforce H-2B employers' compliance with the terms of DHS Form I-129 and to impose remedies with regard to a substantial failure to meet any of the conditions of the petition. The current proceeding is based on the Administrator's determination that Respondents substantially failed to meet a condition of its I-129 petition—the obligation to provide truthful and accurate information about the type of work Respondents' H-2B workers would be performing in the United States.[9] For this reason as well, Respondents' motion should be denied.

B. ALJs lack the authority to rule on the validity of the 2008 H-2B regulations.

Besides Perez v. Perez, Respondents raise numerous other arguments against the 2008 H-2B regulations are unenforceable. All of them are wrong and should be rejected.

First, Respondents argue that DHS improperly delegated authority to DOL, citing G.H. Daniels III & Assocs., Inc. v. Perez, 626 F. App'x 205 (10th Cir. 2015) (unpub.). Mot. at 16. G.H. Daniels III is an unpublished decision with no precedential value, and is not binding on the ARB or this tribunal. Moreover, this tribunal lacks authority to rule on Respondents' argument. It is well-settled that the OALJ lacks jurisdiction to rule on the validity of the Department's regulations. 29 C.F.R. § 8.1 (providing that the ARB "shall not have jurisdiction to pass on the validity of any portion of the Code of Federal Regulations which has been duly promulgated through notice and comment by the Department of Labor and shall observe the provisions thereof, where pertinent, in its decisions"); see also Peroulis & Sons Sheep, 2016 WL 4942416, at *5 (ARB Sept. 12, 2016) (holding that "[t]he ARB is not permitted to rule on the validity of DOL regulations) (citing Thunder Basin Coal Co. v. Reich, 510 U.S. 200, 215 (1994); Secretary's Order 02-2012, 77 Fed. Reg. 69,378 (Nov. 16, 2012)). As the ARB is not permitted to rule on the validity of DOL regulations, it follows that an ALJ may not rule on the validity of DOL regulations, either.

Second, Respondents contend that the 2008 H-2B regulations cannot be enforced because they have been replaced by the 2015 H-2B regulations. Mot. at 10-12. This argument, like the others, should be rejected. The promulgation of revised regulations does not mean that previous regulations cannot be enforced in cases arising before the promulgation of the revised regulations. For instance, the 2015 regulations provide that Applications for Prevailing Wage Determination and Applications for Temporary Employment Certification submitted before April 29, 2015 (the effective date of the 2015 regulations) would be processed under the 2008 regulations. See 20 C.F.R. § 655.4(a), (c). Here, under the same logic, Respondents' Application for Temporary Employment Certification (ETA Form 9142) is subject to the substantive provisions of the 2008 regulations because it was filed and the labor certification was granted before April 29, 2015, when the 2015 regulations became effective. This is particularly so because the Perez v. Perez court clarified on September 4, 2014 that its March 4, 2015 injunction against the enforcement of the 2008 regulations was not retroactive.[10]

[10] The Administrator is, however, applying the procedural provisions of the 2015 regulations to this case because it is required by the 2015 regulations. 29 C.F.R. § 503.40(b) (applying administrative appeal procedures "regardless of the date of violation"). To the extent Respondents are challenging the validity of the 2015 regulations, see Mot. at 17-18, the ALJ is not authorized to address that issue. 29 C.F.R. § 8.1. Also, under Supreme Court precedent, there is no impermissible retroactive effect when using such procedural rules that impose no new duties, liabilities, or obligations. See, e.g., Landgraf v. USI Film Prods., 511 U.S. 244, 280 (1994) (a statute or rule has an impermissible retroactive effect only where "it would impair

Third, Respondents contend that, under 20 C.F.R. § 655.75(c) (2009) and 29 C.F.R. § 503.50(c) (2015), the Administrator cannot challenge ETA's prevailing wage determinations or job classifications. Mot. at 19. Respondents' argument is misleading. The Administrator does not allege that ETA assigned the wrong occupational code or prevailing wage to the jobs described in Respondents' application. Rather, the Administrator alleges that Respondents misrepresented their H-2B workers' job duties on the TEC and then used the H-2B workers for unauthorized jobs that would have been subject to a higher prevailing wage had Respondents been truthful at the outset.[11]

III. Back wages are an appropriate remedy under 20 C.F.R. § 655.65(i).

The Administrator seeks back wages for the H-2B workers, which represent the amount they should have received had Respondents truthfully identified them as machine shop mechanics, truck drivers, and ride supervisors rather than amusement and recreation attendants. Had Respondents done so, they would have been obligated to offer the prevailing wage for those jobs, which WHD's investigation found to be higher than the wages Respondents actually paid to the affected workers. See 20 C.F.R. § 655(e) (2009); Resp't Exh. 8.

The Administrator has broad authority to impose appropriate remedies. In particular,

> [i]f the WHD Administrator finds a violation of the provisions specified in this subpart, the Administrator may impose such other administrative remedies as the Administrator determines to be appropriate, including reinstatement of displaced U.S. workers, or other appropriate legal or equitable remedies. If the WHD Administrator finds that an employer has not paid wages at the wage level specified rights a party possessed when he acted, increase a party's liability for past conduct, or impose new duties with respect to transactions already completed").

[11] Moreover, the regulations cited by Respondents in support of their argument are inapposite. They apply only to prevailing wage determinations "obtained by the Administrator from OFLC during the investigation." 20 C.F.R. § 655.75(c) (2009); see also 29 C.F.R. § 503.50(c) (2015). They do not apply to the prevailing wage determinations issued in other contexts, such as during the labor certification process, prior to any WHD investigation.

> under the application and required by § 655.22(e), the Administrator may require the employer to provide for payment of such amounts of back pay as may be required to comply with the requirements of § 655.22(e).

20 C.F.R. § 655.65 (2009). This regulation plainly permits the Administrator's pursuit of back wages for Respondents' use of H-2B workers for duties outside the scope of those for which they were petitioned.

Respondents argue that this provision permits the Administrator to recover back wages only up to the level of the offered wage for the jobs identified by an employer in its application. Mot. at 28. However, the regulation's plain language belies Respondents' overly narrow interpretation. As Respondents themselves acknowledge, see Mot. at 28 n.3, the first sentence of subsection (i) gives the Administrator broad powers to impose appropriate administrative, legal, or equitable remedies. The last sentence identifies a type of violation for which the Administrator may recover back wages (violations of § 655.22(e)), but the Administrator is not alleging a violation of § 655.22(e) in this case. Thus, the last sentence puts no limitations on what remedies are allowed in this case.

The remaining issues Respondents raise regarding the Administrator's back pay demand are factual, not legal issues, and are inappropriate for this summary judgment motion. For example, Respondents complain that the Administrator's back wage calculations assume every worker worked 40 hours per week in the higher-wage job. See Mot. at 29. The number of hours the workers performed the higher-wage job activities is a factual issue subject to discovery. Indeed, Respondents contradict themselves about how many hours the workers worked. Their TEC stated that its workers would be working 40 hours per week. Resp't Exh. 2 at 26. Respondents now seem to claim that some of its workers did not work 40 hours per week. See Mot. at 29 ("drivers might be driving only a few hours every other week"); see also id.

("workhours fluctuated widely upon a broad range of factors, such as weather, event hours, etc."). Respondents have not offered competent evidence to establish any undisputed facts about the number of hours worked.

Respondents also argue that the back wage calculation is inaccurate because it was not calculated according to the prevailing wage in the various geographic locations where the carnivals took place. Mot. at 29. Again, this is a factual issue. Assuming arguendo that Respondents' methodology is correct, Respondents have offered no evidence of where the affected H-2B workers worked.[12] Again, this is not surprising given that the parties' agreement that Respondents' current summary judgment motion would cover only legal matters.

IV. Respondents are not entitled to any housing credit.

Respondents required their H-2B workers to live in housing adjacent to the traveling carnivals. Because this housing was for Respondents' benefit, Respondents are not entitled to any housing credit.

As an initial matter, Respondents' argument about housing deductions is premature because Respondents have not satisfied a threshold H-2B requirement for this type of employment practice. This case is about restoring things to the way they should have been, had Respondents complied with their obligations under the H-2B program. Had Respondents applied for machine shop mechanics, truck drivers, and ride supervisors (and assuming they would have received a temporary labor certification), Respondents would have been obligated to offer and pay a higher wage and to provide working conditions that are normal in the industry for those types of jobs. See 20 C.F.R. § 655.22(a) (2009) (requiring employers to offer "terms and working conditions normal to U.S. workers similarly employed in the area of intended employment, meaning that they may not be unusual for workers performing the same activity in the area of employment"). Discovery has not happened in this case yet, but so far there is no evidence that Respondents or the rest of the industry generally takes a housing deduction out of machine shop mechanics', truck drivers', and ride supervisors' wages. Indeed, the limited evidence in the record so far tends to show that the opposite is true. Apparently, Respondents' practice was to provide machine shop mechanics, truck drivers, and ride supervisors with free housing, or Respondents would not be trying to get a housing credit now. If providing housing free of charge is a "normal" term and working condition for those jobs, then Respondents would not be entitled under the H-2B rules to take a housing deduction.

[12] There is a carnival itinerary in the limited record currently before this tribunal, see Resp't Exh. 2 at 36-39, but as that document itself acknowledges, there were many occasions when Butler Amusements was operating in multiple locations on the same days. It is not clear yet where the nine affected workers were throughout the investigation period (February 1-April 24, 2013).

Moreover, the H-2B regulations provide that employer's "job offer must specify all deductions not required by law that the employer will make from the worker's paycheck." 20 C.F.R. § 655.22(g)(1). Here, Respondents never made a proper job offer for the machine shop mechanic, truck driver, and ride supervisor positions. Having failed to live up to its obligations as an H-2B employer, it would be anomalous to allow Respondents to take advantage of its benefits.

In addition, under the H-2B regulations, "[a]ll deductions must be reasonable." 20 C.F.R. § 655.22(g)(1). Although the regulations themselves do not define what a "reasonable" housing cost is, the preamble to the 2008 Rule states that DOL "will continue to permit employers, consistent with the Fair Labor Standards Act (FLSA), to make deductions from a worker's pay for the reasonable cost of furnishing housing and transportation." 73 Fed. Reg. at 78,039. This strongly suggests that the "reasonable cost of furnishing housing" should be interpreted in accordance with the FLSA. Under the FLSA, the cost of furnishing housing is not "reasonable" if it is "primarily for the benefit or convenience of the employer." 29 C.F.R. § 531.3(d)(1); see also 29 U.S.C. § 203(m). Housing is primarily for the employer's benefit when the employee's job involved the worker being required to be on the premises for extended periods. See, e.g., Masters v. Maryland Management Co., 493 F.2d 1329 (4th Cir. 1974).[13] The ARB similarly has held, in the context of the Davis-Bacon Act's wage requirements, that lodging primarily benefits the employer when the job requires employees to travel away from their home communities to perform work for the employer. See William J. Lang Land Clearing, Inc., ARB Nos. 01-072, 01-079, 2004 WL 2205226, at *4 (ARB Sept. 28, 2004), aff'd sub nom. William J. Lang Land Clearing Inc., v. Adm'r, 520 F. Supp. 2d 870 (E.D. Mich. 2007), aff'd, 285 Fed. App'x 277 (6th Cir. 2008).[14]

Here, Respondents are not entitled to receive any credit for housing in this case because the housing was provided primarily for the benefit of Respondents.[15] For itinerant H-2B workers

[15] Although not controlling here, it is worth noting that in the preamble to the 2012 Final Rule, this issue was specifically addressed by the Department:

> Responding to the Department's discussion of the application of this section to employers operating under special procedures, a trade association argues that no DOL regulation has ever suggested that mobile housing is unworthy of deductions. The Department's long-standing position is that facilities that are primarily for the like Respondents', the cost of finding and paying for housing near multiple job sites far from a central residence is not for their benefit. The workers are typically in an area for a short period of time, need to be available to work immediately, and are not be able to procure temporary housing easily. Instead, the arrangement benefits the employer in that it can only perform on its contracts if the employees travel from location to location to perform the work. Thus, the housing is primarily for the employer's benefit and Respondents cannot deduct the cost of housing from its employees' wages.

Finally, Respondents seek a credit based on housing costs "regardless of whether they were extended before, during, or after those few weeks comprising the audit period." Mot. at 28. This proceeding deals specifically with the period from February 1 to April 24, 2013, the period investigated by WHD and the period during which WHD found that nine of Respondents' H-2B workers were working jobs other than the jobs that were approved by DOL and DHS. See Resp't Exh. 9 at 1; Resp't Exh. 6. WHD's back wage calculation is based on that limited period. Resp't Exh. 8. Assuming arguendo that Respondents are entitled to a housing credit, Respondents have articulated no good reason to allow them to offset the back wages or civil money penalty by the cost of housing during time periods outside February 1-April 24, 2013.

> benefit or convenience of the employer will not be recognized as reasonable and may not therefore be included in computing wages. See 29 CFR 531.3(d)(1). The Department maintains that housing provided by employers with a need for a mobile workforce, such as those in the carnival or forestry industries where workers are in an area for a short period of time, need to be available to work immediately, and may not be able to procure temporary housing easily, is primarily for the employer's benefit and convenience.

Temporary Non-Agricultural Employment of H-2B Aliens in the United States, 77 Fed. Reg. 10,038, 10,067 (Feb. 21, 2012).

V. The Administrator's claims are not time-barred.

A. Statute of limitations

"[A]s a sovereign, the United States is subject to a limitations period only when Congress has expressly created one." United States v. Thornburg, 82 F.3d 886, 893 (9th Cir. 1996) (citing Guaranty Trust Co. v. United States, 304 U.S. 126, 133 (1938)). "In the absence of a federal statute expressly imposing or adopting one, the United States is not bound by any limitations period." Id. (quoting United States v. Dos Cabezas Corp., 995 F.2d 1486, 1489 (9th Cir. 1993)). Moreover, "[w]hen a statute does limit the time in which the government may bring a cause of action, moreover, [courts] strictly construes the statute in favor of the government." Dos Cabezas, 995 F.2d at 1489.

Here, the INA, 8 U.S.C. § 1101 et seq., does not contain a statute of limitations applicable to enforcement actions under the H-2B program, nor does it incorporate the limitations provisions of any other statute. Given the lack of a limitations provision in the INA, the five-year catchall statute applies. Under 28 U.S.C. § 2462, > Except as otherwise provided by Act of Congress, an action, suit or proceeding for the enforcement of any civil fine, penalty, or forfeiture, pecuniary or otherwise, shall not be entertained unless commenced within five years from the date when the claim first accrued if, within the same period, the offender or the property is found within the United States in order that proper service may be made thereon.

A claim accrues under § 2462 when the violative conduct occurs. Gabelli v. S.E.C., 568 U.S. 442 (2013).

Here, the Administrator issued the determination letter in this case on February 6, 2018. Thus, the Administrator is entitled to recover civil money penalties for all misconduct occurring after February 6, 2013. Because Respondents' violative conduct—employing H-2B workers in jobs not identified in the work order—occurred after that date, civil money penalties are not time-barred.

28 U.S.C. § 2462 does not apply, however, to the restitutionary back wages sought in this case. The catchall statute applies only to penalties, not to the remedial aspects of any proceeding to enforce the H-2B Regulations, or the terms of either the ETA Form 9142 or the DHS Form I-129. Whether a particular sanction is a "penalty" within the meaning of § 2462 is based on two factors. First, courts consider "whether the wrong sought to be redressed is a wrong to the public, or a wrong to the individual." Kokesh v. S.E.C., 137 S. Ct. 1635, 1642 (2017) (citation and internal quotation marks omitted). Second, "a pecuniary sanction operates as a penalty only if it is sought for the purpose of punishment, and to deter others from offending in like manner—as opposed to compensating a victim for his loss." Id. (citation and internal quotation marks omitted).

Here, neither factor is met. First, the restitutionary back wages sought are to right wrongs against the H-2B workers who should have been paid a higher prevailing wage. Second, and relatedly, the back wages sought in this case are not meant to punish Respondents. Thus, the Administrator's claim for back wages is not subject to any time-bar. Johnson v. S.E.C., 87 F.3d 484, 491 (D.C. Cir. 1996) ("where the effect of the SEC's action is to restore the status quo ante, such as through a proceeding for restitution . . . , § 2462 will not apply").[16]

[16] Adm'r, Wage & Hour Div. v. Hotelmacher, LLC, ALJ Nos. 2017-TNE-00010, 2017-TNE-00011 (ALJ May 17, 2018) (attached as Exh. F), the ALJ decision cited by Respondents, see Mot. at 33, is not binding on this tribunal. Nor is it persuasive. Under Hotelmacher's reasoning, see Hotelmacher, slip op. at 5, every government action, suit, or proceeding seeks a "penalty" and is therefore subject to 28 U.S.C. § 2462, except those in which the government seeks to recover compensation for itself. This is inconsistent with the Supreme Court's decision in Kokesh. Under Kokesh, whether the redress sought is meant to remedy a wrong done to the government itself or to another victim is not dispositive of whether the remedy is a "penalty." Rather, whether the wrong to be redressed is a wrong to the public or an individual is just one factor. A court must also consider that "a pecuniary sanction operates as a penalty only if it is sought for the purpose of punishment, and to deter others from offending in like manner—as opposed to compensating a victim for his loss." Kokesh, 137 S. Ct. at 1642.

Respondents propose a host of other potential statute of limitations, Mot. at 29-34, but none of these apply to this proceeding. The Portal-to-Portal Act, the statute of limitations for FLSA lawsuits, applies only to the filing of complaints in court, not to administrative proceedings. Unexcelled Chem. Corp. v. United States, 345 U.S. 59, 61 (1953); see also BP Am. Prod. Co. v. Burton, 549 U.S. 84, 92-93 (2006) (same construction of "action" in another statute of limitations). Analogously, 28 U.S.C. § 1658, which requires "civil action[s]" to be filed within four years, also only applies to judicial proceedings, not administrative proceedings. See Unexcelled Chem., 345 U.S. at 61. 28 U.S.C. § 1652 is even more explicit about where it applies—only in "civil actions in the courts of the United States," not in administrative proceedings. The two-year limitation for debarment proceedings, 20 C.F.R. § 655.31(a)(2) (2009), does not apply either. That regulation specifically addresses the DOL/ETA's deadline for issuing a Notice of Intent to Debar. It says nothing about proceedings for other types of remedies. Respondents cite no authority for their argument that the statute of limitations for remedies other than debarment cannot be longer than the one for debarment. See Mot. at 33. Similarly, the three-year record retention requirement, 20 C.F.R. § 655.21(c) (2009), is about record retention. It does not speak to when the Administrator must begin administrative proceedings when an employer violates its obligations under the H-2B program.

B. Laches

Respondents' laches argument, Mot. at 34, should be rejected. "The traditional rule is that the doctrine of laches is not available against the government. . . . Even if there were some allowance for laches against the government, there is no reason why that doctrine should not be subject to at least the same strictures as estoppel," which requires a showing that the government engaged in affirmative misconduct. United States v. Ruby Co., 588 F.3d 697, 705 n.10 (9th Cir.

1978). "Affirmative misconduct must be more than negligence. Mere unexplained delay does not show misconduct." Jaa v. I.N.S., 779 F.2d 569, 572 (9th Cir. 1986) (citations omitted).

Here, Respondents have not even asserted, let alone presented proof, that the government engaged in affirmative misconduct. Respondents also have not proven that they were prejudiced. Contrary to Respondents' contention, historic prevailing wage data, including the 2012-2013 period, is publicly available at www.flcdatacenter.com, the website the WHD investigator directed him to. See Resp't Exh. 7. Also, Respondents claim that witnesses have dispersed, but present no proof of this. As discovery has not yet taken place in this case, these fact-specific issues are not ripe for summary judgment.

VI. Respondent Michael Brajevich is individually liable.

Respondents argue that Michael Brajevich should not have been designated in the case caption because he is not individually liable. See Mot. at 34-35. Individuals can be held liable under a "piercing the corporate veil" theory. See Adm'r, Wage & Hour Div. v. Kutty, ARB No. 03-022, 2005 WL 1359123, at *13 (ARB May 31, 2005). As the parties have not yet conducted discovery, this issue is not yet ripe for summary judgment. See 29 C.F.R. § 18.72(d).

CONCLUSION

For these reasons, the ALJ should deny Respondents' Amended Motion for Summary Judgment.

v.

GUADAGNO & SONS AMUSEMENTS

ORDER DENYING MOTION TO DISMISS

This case arises under the H-2B provisions of the Immigration and Nationality Act ("INA"), the 2008 H-2B implementing regulations at 20 C.F.R. Part 655, Subpart A (2008), and the applicable procedural regulations at 29 C.F.R. Part 503 (2015). On August 18, 2016, the Administrator issued a determination letter ("Administrator's Letter") finding that for the period of January 24 to November 24, 2014, Anthony Guadagno and Guadagno & Sons Amusements dba G & S Shows ("Respondents") committed a substantial violation of the H-2B Program by failing to pay the offered wage in violation of both the 9142 Application requirements (enforced under the 2008 H-2B regulations) and the statutory requirements of the I-129 Petition. Motion, Exhibit 1 at 1.

On May 15, 2017, Respondents filed a Motion to Dismiss for Lack of Subject Matter Jurisdiction ("Motion") and a Memorandum of Law in Support of the Motion ("Memorandum"). Respondents argue that the 2008 H-2B regulations cited by the Administrator as authority for this enforcement action were vacated and permanently enjoined by a federal court, and therefore requests that this case be dismissed. On May 30, 2017, the Administrator filed a response ("Opposition") opposing the Motion. On June 7, 2017, Respondents filed a Reply Memorandum of Law in Support of the Motion ("Reply").

In the Motion, Respondents do not address the facts surrounding the Administrator's investigation, nor do they address the substance of the Administrator's findings. Instead, Respondents argue that even if all of the Administrator's factual allegations are true, the law requires dismissal under 29 C.F.R. § 18.70(c).

Statement of Facts

Respondents operate a travelling carnival ride company that primarily does business in Southern California. Opposition at 2. Labor certifications pursuant to the 2008 H-2B regulations were issued to Respondents.[1] Id. at 4. In September 2014, the Wage and Hour Division ("WHD") began its investigation of Respondents for violations of the H-2B Program and found that for the period of January 24 to November 24, 2014, Respondents committed a "substantial failure to pay the offered wage" in violation of the H-2B. Id. at 2; Motion, Exhibit 1 at 1. For the violation, the Administrator is seeking $225,327.96 in back wages[2], which the Administrator determined is owed to thirty-eight H-2B nonimmigrant workers, as well as a civil money penalty in the amount of $10,000. Motion, Exhibit 1 at 1.

Contentions of the Parties

Respondents argue that the Administrator lacks the power to bring an enforcement action under the 2008 H-2B regulations due to a federal court order vacating and enjoining the Department of Labor ("DOL") from enforcing the 2008 H-2B regulations. Motion at 1-2; Perez v. Perez, No. 14-cv-682, slip op. at 7-8 (N.D. Fla. Mar. 4, 2015) ("The Department of Labor's Final Rule dated December 19, 2008, and published at 73 Fed. Reg. 78,020, is hereby VACATED and Defendants are permanently enjoined from enforcing it."); Motion, Exhibit 3 at 7-8. Respondents argue that because the Administrator's Letter was issued on August 18, 2016, over a year after the federal court vacated the 2008 H-2B regulations and enjoined enforcement, this enforcement action is precluded. Motion at 1-2; Memorandum at 2-3, 6, 8. Moreover, Respondents argue that I should not adopt the ruling of an Administrative Law Judge ("ALJ") who refused to preclude a 2008 H-2B enforcement action similar to the one at hand, because the ALJ made "significant errors"[3] and dealt with "notable factual differences." Reply at 5; WHD Administrator v. St. Louis Select Landscaping, Inc., ALJ Case No. 2017-TNE-3, slip op. at 5-6 (May 2, 2017) (ruling on motion to dismiss).

[1] The exact date the labor certifications were issued is not clear from the record, though the Administrator stated they were issued prior to April 30, 2015, which is sufficient to rule on the Motion. Opposition at 4.

[2] The original amount of back wages sought was $225,327.96. On June 6, 2017, I granted the Administrator's request to amend the notice of determination to seek $300,951.24 in back wages.

[3] The St. Louis Select ALJ mistakenly stated that the "agency filed a motion to clarify" the Perez injunction, when it was, in fact, the plaintiff in Perez who filed this motion to clarify. St. Louis Select, ALJ Case No. 2017-TNE-3, slip op. at 5; Opposition, Exhibit 2 at 5; Motion, Exhibit 4 at 1, Exhibit 5 at 1, Exhibit 6 at 1; Reply at 5. The agency, instead, submitted a statement to provide the Perez court with the agency's interpretation of the injunction. Motion, Exhibit 6 at 1. This is not a "significant" error, because it is not a mistake of a determinative fact that would have otherwise changed the ALJ's legal analysis or ruling. Respondents argued that when the ALJ attributed to the Administrator the view that the "order of vacation is not retroactive," the Administrator was either wrong, or the ALJ incorrectly attributed this view to the Administrator, since the Perez court's clarification stated that the "injunction" was not retroactive and made no mention of the "vacation" being retroactive. Reply at 6; Motion, Exhibit 7 at 1-2. If the ALJ mistakenly referred to the Perez order of injunction as an order of vacation, then this is not a significant mistake, and would not have changed the ALJ's analysis or ruling. If the Administrator confused the injunction order with a vacation order, the ALJ's analysis and ruling would remain unchanged as well.

In addition, Respondents submit that the Administrator should not be allowed to apply the 2015 H-2B Interim Final Rule[4] because the Administrator cannot retroactively impose regulations without authorization from Congress. Memorandum at 6-7.

The Administrator responds that the federal court's order vacating the 2008 H-2B regulations and enjoining DOL from enforcing said regulations is not retroactive. Opposition at 1-3. Consequently, even though the Administrator's Letter was issued after the injunction took effect, the Administrator argues that this enforcement action is not precluded because the order was issued after WHD conducted its investigation of Respondents and after the labor certifications pursuant to the 2008 H-2B regulations were issued. Id. at 4. The Administrator also clarified that it is not enforcing this action pursuant to the 2015 H-2B Interim Final Rule. Id. at 6. The Administrator further argued that the federal court's injunction is not applicable to violations of the Department of Homeland Security ("DHS") I-129 Petition because the federal court's injunction does not affect INA statutory authority that DHS delegates to DOL to enforce I-129 Petition violations.[5] Id. at 5-6.[6]

Legal Standard and Analysis

On March 4, 2015, the United States District Court for the Northern District of Florida vacated DOL's 2008 H-2B regulations and enjoined the DOL from enforcing these regulations. Perez, No. 14-cv-682, slip op. at 7-8. Shortly thereafter, on August 28, 2015, the plaintiff in Perez filed an unopposed motion to clarify the Perez injunction. Motion, Exhibit 4 at 1, Exhibit 5 at 1. The court granted plaintiff's motion and clarified its permanent injunction so as to include the following language: "Nothing in this injunction shall in anyway preclude Defendants from enforcing labor certifications which were issued pursuant to the December 19, 2008 Final Rule prior to the effective date of this injunction." Motion, Exhibit 7 at 1-2, Exhibit 5 at 4. In other words, the Perez injunction does not apply retroactively to preclude enforcement actions of labor certifications that were issued pursuant to the 2008 H-2B regulations prior to the injunction's effective date of April 30, 2015. In addition, in a matter similar to the one at hand, an ALJ found that an enforcement proceeding where the labor certification was issued prior to April 30, 2015, but where the Administrator's determination letter was issued after April 30, 2015, is not precluded by the Perez injunction, for such an enforcement action "falls within the safe harbor of non-retroactivity." St. Louis Select, ALJ Case No. 2017-TNE-3, slip op. at 5-6; Opposition, Exhibit 2 at 5-6.

In its Motion, and even though the Perez Court clarified that the application is not retroactive, Respondents request that the Perez injunction be applied retroactively and deny the Administrator the power of bringing this enforcement action. Motion at 1-2; Memorandum at 8.

[4] 80 Fed. Reg. 24042 (Apr. 29, 2015).

[5] Respondents argued that although a "Delegation of Authority" may exist here, the Administrator failed to provide details of its extent, terms, and limitations and therefore questioned the legitimacy of its execution here. Reply at 8.

[6] The Administrator additionally argues that this Office lacks the authority to rule on the validity of the 2008 H-2B regulations, as the Administrative Review Board ("ARB") held that the "ARB is not permitted to rule on the validity of DOL regulations." Opposition at 5; Administrator, Wage and Hour Division v. Peroulis & Sons Sheep, Inc., ARB Nos. 14-076, 14-077, slip op. at 6 (ARB Sept. 12, 2016). It follows, the Administrator argues, that an ALJ also may not rule on the validity of DOL regulations. Opposition at 5. Respondents have not asked for a ruling on the validity of the 2008 H-2B regulations and therefore the issue is not before me. Reply at 7-8.

Here, the labor certifications were issued to Respondents pursuant to the 2008 H-2B regulations before April 30, 2015. Opposition at 4. Therefore, the Administrator's right to pursue enforcement action based on these labor certifications cannot be precluded by the Perez injunction.

Furthermore, Respondents argue that because the Administrator issued the Administrator's Letter on August 18, 2016, after the effective date of the Perez injunction, the Administrator is enjoined from enforcing the 2008 H-2B regulations in this case. Motion at 1-2; Memorandum at 2-3, 6, 8. However, I am persuaded by and adopt the ruling in St. Louis Select in that the Perez injunction would not preclude an enforcement proceeding on the facts here. Even though the labor certification was issued before April 30, 2015, but the Administrator's determination letter was issued after April 30, 2015, the enforcement action "falls within the safe harbor of non-retroactivity." St. Louis Select, ALJ Case No. 2017-TNE-3, slip op. at 5-6; Opposition, Exhibit 2 at 5-6. I am not persuaded by Respondents argument that the ALJ made "significant errors" and dealt with "notable factual differences." Reply at 5-6. The errors made by the ALJ in St. Louis Select were minor mistakes when mislabeling "agency" for "plaintiff" and "vacation order" for "injunction order." St. Louis Select, ALJ Case No. 2017-TNE-3, slip op. at 5-6; Opposition, Exhibit 2 at 5-6. These minor mistakes were insignificant and did not affect the ALJ's legal analysis or ruling.

Likewise, there were no "notable factual differences" between St. Louis Select and this case that would render St. Louis Select inapplicable here. For instance, both Respondents and the company in St. Louis Select ("Company") received labor certifications issued pursuant to the 2008 H-2B regulations prior to the Perez injunction. Opposition at 4; St. Louis Select, ALJ Case No. 2017-TNE-3, slip op. at 2, 5-6; Opposition, Exhibit 2 at 2, 5-6. The WHD also investigated and found violations occurred before the injunction's effective date in both cases. Opposition at 2; St. Louis Select, ALJ Case No. 2017-TNE-3, slip op. at 2; Opposition, Exhibit 2 at 2. As a result of these violations, the Administrator sought back wages and civil money penalties from Respondents and Company. Motion, Exhibit 1 at 1; Opposition at 2; St. Louis Select, ALJ Case No. 2017-TNE-3, slip op. at 1-2; Opposition, Exhibit 2 at 1-2. Ultimately, Respondents and Company received a determination letter from the Administrator after the effective date of the Perez injunction. Opposition at 2; Motion, Exhibit 1 at 1; St. Louis Select, ALJ Case No. 2017-TNE-3, slip op. at 1-2; Opposition, Exhibit 2 at 1-2.

The only relevant difference between this case and St. Louis Select was that unlike in St. Louis Select, the Administrator here allegedly did not engage Respondents in substantive discussions and negotiations prior to the Perez injunction.[7] St. Louis Select, ALJ Case No. 2017-TNE-3, slip op. at 2; Opposition, Exhibit 2 at 2; Reply at 6. However, this is not a significant difference requiring a change in the result. The essential facts in this analysis is that Respondents received labor certifications issued pursuant to the 2008 H-2B regulations prior to the Perez injunction, and according to Perez, the injunction does not apply retroactively to preclude enforcement actions of the labor certifications in this case. Opposition at 4; Motion, Exhibit 7 at 1-2, Exhibit 5 at 4. Also, contrary to Respondents' interpretation, Perez does not say that all enforcement actions, from WHD's investigation until the Administrator's determination letter, need to occur prior to the injunction's effective date in order to be protected. Instead, Perez stated generally that enforcement actions based on labor certifications that were issued pursuant to the 2008 H-2B regulations prior to the Perez injunction are not precluded by the injunction. Motion, Exhibit 7 at 1-2. Therefore, Respondents' motion to dismiss this action is denied.

Finally, since the Administrator is not using the 2015 H-2B Interim Final rule, I need not address Respondents' argument that the Administrator should not be allowed to apply the 2015 H-2B Interim Final Rule retroactively. Because I find the Perez injunction does not preclude this Office's jurisdiction over the matter, I also need not address the applicability of the Perez injunction on the statutory requirements of the I-129 Petition.

Conclusion

For the reasons discussed above, the Motion to Dismiss is denied.

SO ORDERED.

UNITED STATES DISTRICT COURT
NORTHERN DISTRICT OF FLORIDA
PENSACOLA DIVISION

GABRIEL PEREZ,

Plaintiff,

v. CASE NO: 3:14cv682/MCR/EMT

THOMAS E. PEREZ,
ERIC M. SELEZNOW, and
UNITED STATES DEPARTMENT OF LABOR,

Defendants.

ORDER

Plaintiff Gabriel Perez filed this suit on December 19, 2014, challenging the enforcement of certain regulations issued by the Defendant, United States Department of Labor ("DOL"), and seeking a permanent injunction prohibiting DOL from implementing and enforcing those rules.[1] Perez subsequently filed a Motion for a Temporary Restraining Order and Preliminary Injunction (Doc. 6), and DOL filed an Unopposed Motion to Consolidate the Preliminary Relief Hearing with a Determination on the Merits (Doc. 7), which the Court granted on December 29, 2014 (Doc. 8). The parties have now briefed the issue of DOL's authority to enforce the regulations at issue and have requested an expedited ruling on Perez's motion, asking that it be treated as a motion for summary judgment on the merits and urging the Court to decide the case without an evidentiary hearing or oral argument (Doc. 10). As set forth below, the issue presented in this case is purely one of law that the Court has already considered and resolved in Bayou Lawn & Landscape Services v. Perez, No. 3:12cv183/MCR/CJK, 2014 WL 7496045 (N.D. Fla. Dec. 18, 2014). Having reviewed the parties' arguments, the Court finds no basis on which to distinguish this case from Bayou Lawn, and thus finds that Perez's motion is due to be granted.

[1] In this Order, the Court refers to the various Defendants collectively as "DOL."

Background

Perez has filed an affidavit in support of his motion. In his affidavit, Perez states that he is a citizen of the United States, and is employed as a server and busboy in Palm Beach County, Florida, where he earns $8.00 per hour. Perez states that he typically finds jobs as a server "through word of mouth" because open positions are usually not advertised. According to Perez, temporary employees from other countries are presently employed as servers in Palm Beach County pursuant to temporary labor certifications issued by DOL under the regulations at issue in this case. Perez states that such foreign workers are paid $10.00 per hour and that he would apply for those positions if they were advertised. In his motion, Perez argues, and DOL does not dispute, that he is adversely affected by the 2008 regulations because they (1) include a definition of "full time employment" that allows employers to offer fewer hours than previous DOL practice; (2) require only those employers who have collective bargaining agreements to contact unions in search of U.S. workers; (3) define "job contractors" in an arbitrarily broad way; (4) significantly alter DOL's method for determining whether unemployed workers are available in this country by, for example, eliminating any requirement that employers conduct a national recruitment effort; and (5) change the definition of "temporary" to allow visas to be issued for up to three years. Accordingly, Perez alleges that his prospective job opportunities are adversely affected by DOL's regulations.

Discussion

Summary judgment is appropriate where the "movant shows that there is no genuine dispute as to any material fact and the movant is entitled to judgment as a matter of law." Fed. R. Civ. P. 56(a). This standard applies to actions, such as the instant one, brought under the APA.[2] See Lujan v. Nat'l Wildlife Fed'n, 497 U.S. 871, 884 (1990). Because this matter has been consolidated with a hearing on the merits, the Court will apply the summary judgment standards, which are "particularly appropriate in cases in which a district court is asked to review a decision rendered by a federal administrative agency." Mahon v. Dep't of Agriculture, 485 F.3d 1247, 1253 (11th Cir. 2007). The only issue presently before the Court is a pure question of law. See Am. Bioscience, Inc. v. Thompson, 269 F.3d 1077, 1083 (D.C. Cir. 2001). Accordingly, the discussion that follows will focus on whether Perez is entitled to judgment as a matter of law, including whether he is entitled to a permanent injunction.[3]

[2] This suit is brought pursuant to the Administrative Procedure Act, 5 U.S.C. § 706(2), which provides, in pertinent part, that a court may "hold unlawful and set aside agency action, findings, and conclusions found to be . . . arbitrary, capricious, an abuse of discretion, or otherwise not in accordance with law [or] . . . in excess of statutory jurisdiction, authority, or limitations, or short of statutory right." 5 U.S.C. § 706(2)(A), (C).

This case involves the federal government's regulation of certain foreign workers under the H-2 temporary labor program, which was initially created by the Immigration and Nationality Act of 1952 ("INA"), 8 U.S.C. § 1101, et seq. In 1986, Congress amended the INA to provide for two separate programs to regulate the employment of foreign workers: the H-2A program for agricultural workers and the H-2B program for non-agricultural workers. H.R. Rep. No. 99-682, pt. 1, at 80; see also Immigration Reform and Control Act of 1986, Pub. Law No. 99-603, § 301(a), 100 Stat. 3359, 3411 (codified at 8 U.S.C. § 1101(a)(15)(H)(ii)(a)).

Under the H-2B program, which is the program relevant to this case, an employer may hire a resident of a foreign country to perform "temporary service or labor if unemployed persons capable of performing such service or labor cannot be found in this country . . . ."[4] See 8 U.S.C. § 1101(a)(15)(H)(ii)(b). Congress vested authority for implementation of the INA's provisions in the Attorney General, and directed the Attorney General to consult with other governmental agencies when considering applications for admission of H-2B workers. See 8 U.S.C. §§ 1184(a)(1) and (c)(1). In 2002, Congress transferred enforcement of the immigration laws from the Attorney General to the Secretary of the Department of Homeland Security ("DHS"). See Homeland Security Act of 2002, Pub. L. No. 107-296, § 402, 116 Stat. 2135, 2178 (2002). Although DHS is charged with deciding whether to grant or deny applications for H-2B visas, it delegated to the Secretary of Labor the authority to "separately establish . . . procedures for administering th[e] temporary labor certification program under his or her jurisdiction." 8 C.F.R. § 214.2(h)(6)(iii)(D). Consistent with this delegation of authority, DHS requires an employer seeking to petition for an H-2B visa to first apply for and receive a temporary labor certification from the Secretary of Labor. 8 C.F.R. §§ 214.2(h)(6)(iii)(A), (C). The certification constitutes "advice . . . on whether or not United States workers capable of performing the temporary services or labor are available and whether or not the alien's employment will adversely affect the wages and working conditions of similarly employed United States workers." 8 C.F.R. § 214.2(h)(6)(iii)(A).

[3] A preliminary injunction and permanent injunction "are distinct forms of equitable relief that have different prerequisites and serve entirely different purposes." See Lermer Germany GmbH v. Lermer Corp., 94 F.3d 1575, 1577 (Fed. Cir. 1996). A preliminary injunction is generally awarded before a suit is resolved on the merits. Id. Given that the parties have requested a determination on the merits, the Court will focus its analysis on Perez's request for a permanent injunction.

In 2008, DOL published formal regulations governing the labor certification process. See Labor Certification Process and Enforcement for Temporary Employment in Occupations Other Than Agriculture (H–2B Workers), 73 Fed. Reg. 78,020 (Dec. 19, 2008) (codified at 20 C.F.R. §§ 655–56). In 2012, DOL issued the regulation at issue in Bayou Lawn ("2012 Rule"), which significantly changed the manner in which the H-2B program had been administered under its 2008 regulations.[5] See Temporary Non-Agricultural Employment of H-2B Aliens in the United States, 77 Fed. Reg. 10,038 (Feb. 21, 2012). In April 2012, the plaintiffs in Bayou Lawn filed suit against DOL, seeking to invalidate the 2012 Rule based primarily on DOL's lack of unilateral rulemaking authority in this area. The undersigned preliminarily enjoined DOL from enforcing the 2012 Rule. In response to the preliminary injunction, DOL indicated that it would continue to process H-2B labor certification applications under its 2008 H-2B rules, which, the parties have indicated, are still being enforced.[6] [5] Among other things, the 2012 Rule decreased the maximum number of months an employer may employ an H-2B worker from ten to nine; required employers to guarantee that H-2B employees work at least seventy-five percent of the hours certified in any twelve-week period and, if not, pay the employees the difference for the time not worked; required employers to pay non-H-2B workers wages and benefits at least equal to those paid to H-2B employees if the two perform "substantially the same work;" and required employers to pay the round-trip airfare and subsistence costs of H-2B employees. See Temporary Non-Agricultural Employment of H-2B Aliens in the United States, 77 Fed. Reg. 10,038 (Feb. 21, 2012). DOL acknowledges that its 2012 regulations are "more rigorous," and that they "contain[] stronger protections for the domestic labor market," than its 2008 regulations.

[6] According to Perez, DOL has been enforcing its 2008 regulations since May 16, 2012, the date the Court issued its preliminary injunction in Bayou Lawn. Although the parties have provided no authority to establish this point, DOL does not dispute Perez's assertion.

After the Court's issuance of a preliminary injunction in Bayou Lawn was affirmed on appeal, see Bayou Lawn & Landscape Servs. v. Sec'y of Labor, 713 F.3d 1080 (11th Cir. 2013), the Court issued an Order granting summary judgment to the plaintiff. In its Order, the Court found that the INA itself contains no express delegation of authority to DOL. See Bayou Lawn, 2014 WL 7496045, at *4. The Court also found that neither 8 U.S.C. §§ 1101(a)(15)(H)(ii)(b) nor 1184(c)(1), which DOL cited as the bases of its authority to promulgate regulations impacting the H-2B program, see 76 Fed. Reg. 15,130 (March 18, 2011); 77 Fed. Reg. at 10,038, 10,043, confers rulemaking authority on DOL, either explicitly or implicitly.[7] Comparing Congress's express grant of rulemaking authority to DOL with respect to the H-2A program, the Court found that Congress plainly never granted DOL such authority under the H-2B program. See Bayou Lawn, 2014 WL 7496045, at *4-*5. The Court thus rejected DOL's position that 8 U.S.C. §§ 1101(a)(15)(H)(ii)(b) and 1184(c)(1) confer legislative rulemaking authority on DOL in connection with the H-2B program. Next, the Court found that the Wagner-Peyser Act, 29 U.S.C. § 49, et seq., likewise confers no rulemaking authority on DOL with respect to the H-2B program because the statute simply does not apply to the H-2B program. See id. at *5. Finally, the Court addressed the Third Circuit Court of Appeals contrary decision in Louisiana Forestry Ass'n, Inc. v. Sec'y U.S. Dep't of Labor, 745 F.3d 653 (3d Cir. 2014), and deemed the case distinguishable, specifically rejecting DOL's argument that its rulemaking authority under the H-2B program derives from its consultative role under 8 U.S.C. § 1184(c)(1), which DOL had argued in both Bayou Lawn and Louisiana Forestry. See id. at *6. For these reasons, the Court concluded that "DOL lacks authority to engage in legislative rulemaking under the H-2B program," id., and therefore vacated the DOL's 2012 Rule and permanently enjoined its enforcement.

On December 19, 2014, just one day after the Court granted summary judgment to the plaintiff in Bayou Lawn, Perez filed this suit challenging DOL's enforcement of its 2008 H-2B regulations. Perez argues that because DOL's 2008 regulations were issued pursuant to the same claim of authority deemed invalid in Bayou Lawn, DOL's 2008 regulations are equally invalid. According to Perez, "it is arbitrary and capricious for the DOL to continue to operate the H-2B program utilizing [its] 2008 regulations while it appeals the Bayou [Lawn] ruling," allegedly in violation of Administrative Procedure Act, 5 U.S.C. § 706(2). Because the 2008 regulations are allegedly causing Perez immediate and irreparable injury, Perez seeks an injunction prohibiting DOL from continuing to enforce its 2008 H-2B rules (unless and until the permanent injunction in Bayou Lawn is reversed on appeal).

In its brief in opposition to Perez's motion, DOL states that "the sole issue in this case is whether DOL has authority under the INA to issue legislative rules governing the H-2B program," which it describes as a "pure question of law." Regarding that issue, DOL argues that the structure and purpose of the INA, in particular, 8 U.S.C. §§ 1101(a)(15)(H)(ii)(b) and 1184(c)(1), implicitly grant DOL authority to structure its "consultation" with DHS in the form of legislative rules and regulations; that although the INA does not contain an express grant of authority to DOL to issue H-2B regulations, Congress has acquiesced in DOL's H-2B rulemaking authority; and that the Wagner-Peyser Act authorizes the issuance of H-2B regulations. The Court considered, and rejected, each of these arguments in Bayou Lawn & Landscape Services v. Perez, No. 3:12cv183/MCR/CJK, 2014 WL 7496045 (N.D. Fla. Dec. 18, 2014). For the reasons set forth in that Order, the Court finds that DOL lacks authority to engage in legislative rulemaking under the H-2B program, and therefore lacked authority to enact the 2008 regulations at issue in this suit, such that Perez is entitled to judgment as a matter of law.[8]

Having found that DOL lacked authority to enact the 2008 regulations at issue, the Court also finds that Perez is entitled to permanent injunctive relief. To be entitled to injunctive relief, a plaintiff must show irreparable harm and inadequacy of legal remedies. See Odebrecht Const., Inc. v. Sec'y, Fla. Dept. of Transp., 715 F.3d 1268, 1288 (11th Cir. 2013); see also Jackson v. Motel 6 Multipurpose, Inc., 130 F.3d 999, [8] Perez clarified that he is not challenging the regulation jointly issued by DOL and DHS regarding wage methodology, and nothing in the present Order should be construed as addressing that particular regulation. See Wage Methodology for the Temporary Non-Agricultural Employment H-2B Program, Part 2, 78 Fed. Reg. 24047 (Apr. 24, 2013).

1007 (11th Cir. 1997) (to obtain injunctive relief, a plaintiff must show a "real or immediate threat that the plaintiff will be wronged again – 'a likelihood of substantial and immediate irreparable injury'") (quoting City of Los Angeles v. Lyons, 461 U.S. 95, 111 (1983)); Thomas v. Bryant, 614 F.3d 1288, 1317-18 (11th Cir. 2010) (stating that to obtain a permanent injunction, a party must also show that he has prevailed in establishing the violation of the right asserted in his complaint, and that the injunction would not be adverse to the public interest if issued).

Apart from arguing that it has authority to issue regulations under the H-2B program, DOL has not challenged whether Perez is entitled to injunctive relief. DOL does not address the issues of irreparable harm or inadequacy of legal remedies, much less dispute them. The Court finds that DOL's continued use of its 2008 regulations will irreparably injure Perez. As Perez argues, and DOL does not dispute, the 2008 regulations substantially reduce the recruitment efforts that employers must make in order to establish that United States workers are not available, thus making it easier for employers to replace available United States workers with foreign workers. As reflected in his affidavit, the consequent loss of prospective job opportunities has injured Perez, and will continue to do so, unless and until the Court awards the injunctive relief he requests. The Court also finds that no remedy at law will provide protection for Perez against further implementation of DOL's 2008 H-2B regulations apart from the requested injunctive relief. See Thomas, 614 F.3d at 1322. Given the Court's conclusion that DOL lacked authority to enact its 2008 H-2B regulations, the Court further finds that Perez has prevailed in establishing the violation of the right asserted in his Complaint, and that an injunction prohibiting DOL from enforcing those rules would not adversely impact the public. See id. at 1317. For these reasons, the Court finds that Perez is entitled to the injunctive relief requested.

Accordingly:

1. Plaintiff Gabriel Perez's Motion for a Temporary Restraining Order and Preliminary Injunction (Doc. 6), which is treated as a motion for summary judgment on the merits, is GRANTED.
2. The Department of Labor's Final Rule dated December 19, 2008, and published at 73 Fed. Reg. 78,020, is hereby VACATED and Defendants are permanently enjoined from enforcing it.

3. The parties' Joint Motion for Expedited Ruling (Doc. 10) is DENIED as moot.

4. The Clerk is directed to enter final judgment in favor of the Plaintiff and against the Defendants, and to tax costs against the Defendants.

PLAINTIFF'S UNOPPOSED MOTION TO CLARIFY PERMANENT INJUNCTION

NOW COMES Plaintiff and moves this Court for an order clarifying the scope of the permanent injunction entered by the Court on March 4, 2015 (Docket Entry 14). Specifically, Plaintiff requests that the Court clarify that its order "permanently enjoin[ing]" Defendants from "enforcing" the Department of Labor's (DOL) 2008 H-2B regulation, published at 73 Fed. Reg. 78,020 (Dec. 19, 2008) was not intended to deprive DOL of its authority to enforce compliance with the substantive work terms contained in labor certifications issued pursuant to the 2008 Regulation prior to the entry of the Court's permanent injunction. Plaintiff has conferred with Defendants regarding this motion. Defendants do not oppose Plaintiff's request for clarification of the scope of the permanent injunction order, but take no position on the specific clarification sought by the motion. Defendants intend to file a statement that more fully explains Defendants' position by Friday, September 4, 2015.

Plaintiff seeks this relief because the DOL believes that the Court's injunction barring "enforcement" of the 2008 Rule could be read not only to preclude it from issuing new labor certifications pursuant to the 2008 Rule, but may also prevent DOL from taking future action to enforce wage and other work terms contained in labor certifications approved prior to the entry of the injunction. DOL has complied with this reading of the injunction.

Plaintiff disagrees with DOL's broad reading of the injunction. Plaintiff's lawsuit was filed to enjoin DOL from "continued" use of the 2008 regulations to issue labor certifications; it was not filed to retroactively invalidate the few protections that those regulations provided. See Docket Entry 1 at 2 ("Plaintiff seeks a preliminary and permanent injunction prohibiting DOL from continuing to implement and enforce its 2008 H-2B rules to grant certifications. . .") (emphasis added). In accordance with Plaintiff's requested relief, Plaintiff believes that the permanent injunction granted by this Court was similarly phrased in prospective terms, enjoining only DOL's continued issuance of labor certifications using the 2008 regulations. See Docket Entry 14 at 7 ("The Court finds that DOL's continued use of its 2008 regulations will irreparably injure [Plaintiff] Perez. . . . The Court also finds that no remedy at law will provide protection against further implementation of DOL's 2008 H-2B regulations apart from the requested injunctive relief.") (emphasis added). Plaintiff contends that nothing in the Court's permanent injunction should be read to invalidate labor certifications issued prior to the Court's injunction or to relieve DOL of its duty to enforce compliance with the wage and work terms promised by employers, under penalty of perjury, in those labor certifications.[1]

As a result of DOL's reading, employers who violated the minimum terms and conditions of work under which they received permission to employ H-2B workers are escaping federal sanctions for those violations and U.S. workers, whose wages and work terms were intended to be protected by those minimum terms and conditions of work, are being injured in violation of Congress' clear mandate that the importation of foreign workers not adversely affect the wages and working conditions of U.S. workers. An injunction invalidating the work terms of previously issued labor certifications would be tantamount to giving employers carte blanche to mistreat U.S. and foreign workers and to ignore the sworn promises they made in order to obtain the right to import foreign workers in direct violation of Congress' clear intention to protect U.S. workers from the adverse effects of foreign labor. Plaintiff did not seek such an injunction and seeks clarification that that was not the Court's intent.

Plaintiff also seeks clarification of the injunction because employers are using the Court's injunction to assert defenses to individual lawsuits brought by workers to enforce the terms and conditions of work promised in labor certification issued prior to the Perez v. Perez injunction. See e.g. Moodie v. Kiawah Island Inn Co., LLC, No. 2:15-cv-1097-RMG, 2015 WL 5037038 at *13 (D.S.C. Aug. 4, 2015) (rejecting employer's claim that the Perez v. Perez injunction vacating the 2008 Regulation precluded workers from enforcing the wage terms of the employer's labor certification application issued pursuant to the 2008 regulations prior to this Court's injunction). While the court in Moodie correctly noted that "nothing in the Perez decision suggests that it is retroactive," it is, nevertheless, a waste of judicial resources to force court's to rule on motions over the meaning of this Court's injunction when the simple clarification sought by Plaintiff would resolve the issue.

[1] The Court's permanent injunction was entered on March 4, 2015. However, pursuant to DOL's uncontested motion to stay the effective date of that Order, the Court stayed the effective date of the Order, Docket Entry 19, subsequently extended that stay until new H-2B Rules were issued. Docket Entry 35 at 3. The permanent injunction finally went into effect on April 30, 2015. Docket Entry 49 at 3. Employers who received labor certifications, and H-2B workers, prior to that date were approved using the 2008 regulations and it compliance with those certifications that DOL is refusing to enforce.

Accordingly, Plaintiff moves this Court for an Order clarifying that the permanent injunction entered on March 4, 2014 and effective April 30, 2015, Docket Entry 49 at 3, only enjoined DOL from using the 2008 Regulations to issue new labor certifications for H-2B workers and did NOT enjoin DOL from using its enforcement powers to ensure compliance with the terms and conditions of work promised in labor certifications approved prior to the effective date of the Court's injunction..

DEFENDANTS' OPPOSITION TO MOTION TO INTERVENE
BY THE NATIONAL ASSOCIATION OF LANDSCAPE PROFESSIONALS

The National Association of Landscape Professionals ("NALP") seeks leave to intervene for the limited purpose of filing a memorandum in opposition to the Plaintiff's Motion to Clarify Permanent Injunction, ECF No. 58. See ECF No. 61. Because the Court has now granted the underlying motion on which NALP seeks leave to submit additional briefing, NALP's motion to intervene for that limited purpose is moot. See ECF Nos. 50, 51 (orders denying prior intervention motions as moot).

On March 4, 2015, the Court vacated the Department of Labor's ("DOL") Final Rule dated December 19, 2008 ("2008 Rule"), 73 Fed. Reg. 78,020, and "permanently enjoined [DOL] from enforcing it." ECF No. 14 at 7-8. On August 28, 2015, Plaintiff filed a motion to clarify that the Permanent Injunction does not apply "retroactively" and did not "enjoin DOL from using its enforcement powers [under the 2008 Regulations] to ensure compliance with the terms and conditions of work promised in the labor certifications approved prior to the effective date of the Court's injunction." ECF No. 58 at 2, 4. On September 4, 2015, the Court issued an Order granting the relief requested in Plaintiff's Motion to Clarify Permanent Injunction stating that "the permanent injunction was not intended to, and does not, apply retroactively." ECF No. 62 at 1. Therefore, despite the Court's vacatur of the 2008 Rule, Defendants interpret the September 4 Order as permitting DOL to enforce compliance with the employer obligations and terms and conditions of H-2B employment imposed by the 2008 Rule, including the terms and conditions contained in labor certifications issued pursuant to that rule before the Court's permanent injunction took effect on April 30, 2015. As Defendants noted in their Statement on Plaintiffs' clarification motion, "Defendants will . . . comply with the terms of the order as revised or clarified." ECF No. 60 at 3.

Because the Court has clarified its order, there is no live issue for NALP to brief. Therefore, the Court should deny the motion as moot as set forth in Defendants' proposed order. In the event the Court grants NALP's motion, Defendants request the opportunity to respond to NALP's proposed brief within fourteen days of the Court's order.

RESPONDENT'S UNOPPOSED MOTION FOR EXTENSION

Pursuant to 29 C.F.R. § 18.32 (b), Respondents move for an extension within which to file a reply brief and say:

1. This is an enforcement action arising under the H-2B visa provisions.

2. Under the current schedule, Respondents' reply brief is due on August 1, 2018, provided that no extension was available for service by mail under 29 C.F.R. § 18.32 (c).

3. An extension of the brief is warranted upon a showing of "good cause" with the motion is filed within the allotted time.

4. "Good cause" exists for this extension. The specific reasons showing good cause are:

- Administrator's Opposition Brief has argued a number of issues not previously raised, and which are novel.
- Respondents' counsel was unable to fully research these new issues within the available time.
- A brief extension will allow the Respondents to be parsimonious in their reply brief, thereby promoting administrative efficiency.
- Respondents would prefer to use overnight rather than hand delivery, which will add an additional day.

5. This is Petitioner's first request for an extension of this brief. No prejudice will result to the Government from this brief extension, nor will it impact any other deadlines. The Government does not oppose this motion.

CONCLUSION

For the foregoing reasons, Respondents request an extension under which their reply brief would be filed on or before Monday, August 6, 2018.

Attorney for Respondent

August 6, 2018

PRELIMINARY STATEMENT

Under the original scheduling order, the parties were to conduct a conference and develop a discovery plan under 29 C.F.R. § 18.50 (b). Notice of Hearing and Pre-Hearing Order at 2, § II.A (Mar. 28, 2018). As contemplated by § 18.50 (b), counsel exchanged a series of e-mails directed to settlement, mandatory disclosures, phasing the case, and limitations on discovery. Both parties recognized that the Administrator had already benefited substantially from WHD's unrestricted discovery during the investigation of the case. On April 23, 2018, counsel had an extended telephone conversation during which Respondent's counsel identified all of the issues raised in Respondent's early motion for summary judgment. Exhibit 15, Affidavit from R. Wayne Pierce ¶ 3 (Aug. 6, 2018). Respondent's counsel vigorously emphasized that early motions would be ineffective if the Administrator's opposition simply declared that there was a factual dispute for which discovery was necessary. The Administrator's counsel at the time asked a series of questions to satisfy herself that these issues were ripe for disposition by motion. By the conclusion of the conversation, the Administrator's counsel at the time agreed that these issues were ripe for early disposition. Id. ¶ 4-6.

The essence of this discovery plan was communicated in the parties' Joint Request for Status Conference regarding Discovery Plan (Apr. 25, 2018). After identifying the essence of the issues to be addressed, both parties requested that the case be phased so that these issues could be briefed while staying discovery. In doing so, > both parties recognize[d] that engaging in discovery, while these legal issues remain, will consume substantial time and resources. Nobody wants to spend resources on legal theories that ultimately will be found to be baseless. Further, until these legal issues are resolved, meaningful settlement discussions are not possible.

Id. at 2. Despite this agreed discovery plan, the Administrator has now raised a number of factual disputes[1] that purportedly warrant discovery, even though these issues were previously articulated and the Administrator satisfied herself that early motion practice was mutually beneficial.[2]

ARGUMENT

The Administrator argues at length why job tasks are important to the regulation of H-2B employment. Administrator's Mem. at 4-7. The Administrator even accuses, without any citation, that Respondent "frivolous[ly]" contends "that their obligation to represent their temporary need accurately does not preclude their use of H-2B workers for unstated purposes and that, even if it did, they did not realize that this is the case." Id. at 12. The Administrator's policy arguments are beside the point. Respondent has not been charged with violating policy arguments or misinterpreting the 2008 DOL regulations. The only issue that is germane is whether the Administrator may sustain a citation that Respondent violated the 2008 DOL regulations.

I. NEITHER THE SUBSTANTIVE PORTIONS OF THE 2008 DOL REGULATIONS NOR THE PROCEDURAL PORTIONS OF THE 2015 DOL REGULATIONS ARE ENFORCEABLE

Relying on this Court's and another A.L.J. decision from early 2017, the Administrator contends that challenges to the enforceability of the 2008 DOL regulations are "tired." Id. at 15-17. As a result, the Administrator completely ignores outcome-

[1] Curiously, the Administrator contends that there are disputed issues of fact, but did not actually file any new evidence to support that position, relying instead on Respondent's documentary evidence.

[2] Nevertheless, it is important to note that the Administrator has not moved for summary disposition in her own right. Accordingly, Respondent has refrained from submitting its own factual issues, in part because it undercuts the very purpose of the parties discovery plan.

determinative or subsequent developments. The Administrator (and his supporting A.L.J. decisions) never cite, much less discuss, that

- the ARB has now persuasively addressed the issue of subject matter jurisdiction. Respondent's Mem. at 7.
- DOL itself voluntarily "replaced" the 2008 regulations, and 5 federal circuits have held that replaced regulations have no operative effect.[3] Respondent's Mem. at 7-8, 10-11.
- the 2008 regulations were not only enjoined, but they were also vacated, which independently deprives the 2008 regulations of enforceability. Respondent's Mem. at 11-16.

This is not a case of asking an A.L.J. to determine jurisdiction; rather, there are no regulations to enforce, so A.L.J.'s have no choice but to dismiss the allegations. Respondent's Mem. at 11.

The Administrator attempts to evade this debacle by contending in a single sentence that the 9142 was bootstrapped into the I-129. Administrator's Mem. at 19, n. 9. The Administrator does not bother to support this astonishing proposition. For multiple reasons, the 2008 regulations no longer exist, and the fact that the 9142 may have been acted upon by USCIS does not bring those regulations back from the dead.

[3] The Administrator attempts to avoid this doctrine by contending that Respondent's 9142, which was completely approved on December 14, 2012, Butler Exh. 2, at 21, was somehow still being "processed" on April 29, 2015. Administrator's Mem. at 20. The Administrator does not explain how a garden-variety, effective-date provision for the 2015 regulations magically evades the replacement doctrine. The Secretary of Labor already made his choice to unqualifiedly replace the 2008 regulations rather than face the impossible task of rationally explaining why the 2008 regulations were retroactively sufficient before 2015, but not prospectively after 2015. Nor has the Administrator shown how DOLETA could still be "processing" an application that it already approved years earlier.

In addition to this gauntlet of substantive deficiencies, the Administrator ignores the procedural shortcomings. The Administrator's position is that the procedural rules under the 2015 regulations apply retroactively,[4] and the A.L.J. lacks jurisdiction to rule otherwise. Administrator's Mem. at 20, n. 10. The problem with that argument is that there are, in the eyes of the Administrator, too many rules, i.e., there are 2 equally-valid sets up procedural rules (the 2008 and 2015 versions) and no mechanism for determining when they apply. Fundamentally, there is no public notice and comment as to which rules apply, and this is just the sort of challenge under the Administrative Procedure Act that Respondent is entitled to pursue and this Court has jurisdiction to determine. See 29 C.F.R. § 18.10 (b) ("proceedings follow the Administrative Procedure Act"). If anything, the 2008 procedural provisions have a superior claim because the Administrator chose to resuscitate them after adopting the 2015 regulations. Administrator's Mem. at 20. The important point is that the Respondent should not be put to the prejudice of choosing between competing regulations.

II. THE ADMINISTRATOR IS EXPRESSLY PROHIBITED FROM CHALLENGING RESPONDENT'S PREVAILING WAGES

Respondent contended that DOLETA alone is authorized by the 2008 regulations to determine the appropriate prevailing wage. Respondent's Mem. at 18-19. The Administrator never responded to this issue. See Administrator's Mem. at 21-22. Instead, the Administrator is apparently attempting to re-write the regulations. Regardless of whether the Administrator is authorized to pursue remedies, the fact remains that only DOLETA may issue prevailing wage determinations after pursuing its own administrative procedures. The only regulatory option available to the A.L.J. is to dismiss and remand the case so that the Administrator may pursue further proceedings.

III. RESPONDENT WAS NOT PLACED ON NOTICE OF ANY PERTINENT REGULATORY REQUIREMENTS

Respondent moved for summary disposition on the legal issue that there was no regulatory basis for

- enforcing Attestation #13,
- how to perform and describe a job task analysis,
- the regulatory significance of the job title in the I-129.

Respondent's Mem. at 19-22. Without a basis in the clear text of the published regulations, these issues could not be the subject of a citation. Once again, the Administrator chose to ignore this doctrinal requirement or point to any express regulatory provisions that might sustain the Administrator's determination letter. See generally Administrator's Mem. at 19-20.

IV. RESPONDENT DID NOT SUBSTANTIALLY VIOLATE ANY REGULATORY REQUIREMENTS

Respondent moved for summary disposition that the "incidental-duty" rule and the rule governing "dual positions"[5] apply to this case. Respondent's Mem. at 22-23. The Administrator's reply, such as it is, seems to be that those rules are valid but only apply in debarment proceedings. Administrator's Mem. at 14, n. 6. This merely proves the very point why this Court should apply the rule of GT Trans, Inc., 2016-TLN-29, at *6 (BALCA Apr. 15, 2016): Because the Administrator acknowledges the validity of the "incidental-duty" rule in other, directly analogous circumstances, it should be applied here. It makes no sense that an exception to the more-severe debarment remedy would not apply in the event that a different remedy was sought. It also provides useful "concreteness" to the vague concept of a "substantial" violation. Any other rule would promote form over substance and encourage "creative" charging of violations.

[5] The Administrator did not comment on the rule governing "dual positions," and apparently does not dispute the application of that rule to this case.

V. RESPONDENT DID NOT WILLFULLY OR SUBSTANTIALLY FAIL TO COMPLY WITH ANY REGULATORY REQUIREMENTS

Respondent moved for summary disposition on the legal proposition that it was entitled to credit for providing housing, local convenience travel and various other "facilities" for its employees. Respondent demonstrated that another A.L.J. had already determined that the FLSA's primary benefit rule did not apply to FLSA-exempt employers, such as Respondent, and that Respondent reasonably relied on pronouncements from both USCIS and DOL throughout the relevant time that FLSA-exempt employers were entitled to credits for such payments. Respondent's Mem. at 23-28.

The Administrator contends that there is a fact issue whether these benefits were "normal" in the relevant industry. Administrator's Mem. at 23-24. This argument falsely assumes that housing, local convenience travel and other benefits were a required "job condition." Because of the Administrator's unrestricted investigative powers, the Administrator should full well know that these benefits were voluntary and "not unusual," and that workers participated precisely because they benefited. Be that as it may, if it is necessary to have targeted discovery whether these benefits were "required" or "normal" so that this issue may be resolved as a matter of law, then allowance should be made for narrowly-scoped discovery.

The Administrator also objects because the "job offer" did not specify these "deductions." Administrator's Mem. at 24. First, Respondent has already shown that USCIS expressly permitted FLSA-exempt employers to charge for these benefits regardless of any disclosure requirements. Respondent's Mem. at 24. Moreover, the 2008 regulations did not define the term "job offer." See 20 C.F.R. § 655.4. Nevertheless, the Respondent's own 9142 identified most of these employee benefits. Respondent's Mem. at 23-24. Because of the Administrator's unrestricted investigative powers, the Administrator should have already known that these workers return year after year and are fully aware of the benefits that they receive. If it is necessary to have targeted discovery on the issue of whether the "job offer" disclosed these benefits, then such a narrow scope should be established. In addition, that regulation is limited to "deductions," but Respondent did not make a deduction; rather, Respondent is claiming a credit, so the regulation does not apply on its face.

The Administrator also challenges on the basis that any "deduction" must be "reasonable." The Administrator makes the extraordinary leap of faith that "reasonableness" must be determined according to the FLSA. Administrator's Mem. at 24-25. However, Respondent has already shown that the 2008 regulations fatally failed to advise FLSA-exempt employers that they were subject to its provisions. Respondent's Mem. at 24. Even if it were possible to apply the "primary benefit" rule without any prior notice to Respondent, then the most that the Administrator could accomplish is limited discovery on that narrow issue. This argument also suffers from the same weaknesses that USCIS expressly approved Respondent's practices, and it is limited to "deductions," not credits.

Finally, the Administrator, without any supporting authority, contends that the Respondent is not entitled to any credit that preceded or followed the Administrator's investigative timeframe. Administrator's Mem. at 26. The very purpose of taking a credit for benefits conferred is restitutionary: to put the parties in the position that they would have been in, the Administrator's purported goal in this case. See, e.g., Wage-And-Hour Opinion Letter No. FLSA 2005-3, at ¶ 4 (Jan. 7, 2005) (discussing the purpose of a prepayment plan) < http://www.dol.gov/whd/opinion/FLSA/2005/2005_01_07_3_FLSA_PrepaymentPlan.pdf >; U.S. Department of Labor, Wage & Hour Division, Field Operations Handbook ¶ 32j16c (2016) (same) < http://www.dol.gov/whd/FOH/FOH_Ch32.pdf >. As long as the benefit was conferred, then Respondent's restitutionary interest must be satisfied, regardless of whether the benefit occurred before or after the Administrator's narrow investigation.

VI. THE REMEDY OF "BACK WAGES" IS NOT AVAILABLE FOR MISCLASSIFICATION

The parties disagree whether 20 C.F.R. § 655.65 (i) authorizes the Administrator to pursue back wages as a remedy for every possible violation, or only as expressly provided in the second sentence of that section. Because the Administrator acknowledges that he is not proceeding within the meaning of the second sentence, Administrator's Mem. at 22, the regulations do not provide for the remedy sought in this case. The Administrator's interpretation strips all meaning from that particular sentence because it would necessarily be subsumed by the preceding sentence.

As a matter of law, Respondent also sought summary judgment for the legal principles that the workers could recover back wages for only those periods of time when they were working in the alternative job codes, and that the hourly rate must be determined based on the prevailing wage at each location. Respondent's Mem. at 29. The Administrator did not respond to either of these legal issues. The appropriate remedy is an order that the Administrator re-issue a determination based on these considerations.

VII. THIS ACTION IS TIME-BARRED BY THE STATUTE OF LIMITATIONS

Respondent sought summary adjudication on the basis of numerous, reticulated statutes of limitations. Respondent's Mem. at 29-34. In addition to the Hotelmacher case previously cited, yet another A.L.J. has now determined that the 5-year statute of limitations applies to H-2B enforcement actions. Administrator v. Graham & Rollins, Inc., No. 2018-TNE-00022, at 5-11 (OALJ June 26, 2018).

Yet the Administrator rejects this trend on the twice-rejected basis that "back wages" do not constitute a "penalty" within the meaning of the statute. Administrator's Mem. at 28. Not only does the Administrator's narrow construction ignore common sense, but it also ignores the reality of the case. The conduct at issue occurred 5.5 years ago and the likelihood that any of these 9 workers will be found in Mexico is slim or nonexistent. Thus, the odds are overwhelming that any recovery is not for restitution, but will inure to the benefit of the U.S. Treasury. See Respondent's Mem. at 33.

Another major shortcoming in the Administrator's argument is that he has loosely characterized the attachment point for the statute of limitations. The statute of limitations accrued when the Administrator had a complete and present cause of action. See Respondent's Mem. at 30. In this case, the Administrator could have initiated an investigation or even a determination letter based simply on misrepresentations in the Respondent's approved 9142, which occurred on December 14, 2012. And, even under the Administrator's view, the Administrator had a complete cause of action no later than the start of employment on February 1, 2013. Either of these events precede the all-important date, which even the Administrator acknowledges is February 6, 2013. Administrator's Mem. at 27.

Finally, the Administrator gives short shrift to a number of other viable statutes of limitations, all of which have a shorter time frame. In sum, the harder the Administrator pushes that the remedy does not qualify as a "penalty," the stronger is the case that the statute of limitation should be determined by Oregon, FLSA, or other INA-based statutes.

VIII. MR. MICHAEL BRAJEVICH IS NOT INDIVIDUALLY LIABLE

The Administrator contends that Mr. Brajevich "can" be individually liable based on piercing the corporate veil. Administrator's Mem. at 30. This argument misses the point. Respondent's argument is that, as a matter of law, Mr. Brajevich was not actually cited with any wrongdoing; rather, all of the misconduct is charged to the corporate employer. If the Administrator intends to pursue Mr. Brajevich individually, then he should file an appropriate amendment, but in the meantime, a summary dismissal is warranted.

CONCLUSION

For the foregoing reasons, Respondent prays that its motion for summary judgment be granted and that the parties submit a revised litigation plan in light of any issues that may remain.

In the Matter of:

ADMINISTRATOR, WAGE & HOUR DIVISION,
Prosecuting Party,

v.

BUTLER AMUSEMENTS, INC. AND
MICHAEL BRAJEVICH, an individual,
Respondents.

ORDER DENYING SUMMARY DECISION

This matter arises under the H-2B provisions of the Immigration and Nationality Act ("INA"), 8 U.S.C. §§ 1101, et seg., and the implementing regulations at 20 C.F.R. Part 655, Subpart A.[1] The matter is not currently set for hearing.

On February 6, 2018, the Administrator, Wage and Hour Division of the U.S. Department of Labor, ("Administrator") issued a Determination Letter finding that Butler Amusements, Inc. and Michael Brajevich ("Respondents") substantially failed to comply with the proper job classification requirements of the H-2B program. The Administrator sought unpaid wages and assessed a civil monetary penalty. Respondents subsequently requested a hearing on the Administrator's determination. See 29 C.F.R. § 503.43.

On June 1, 2018, Respondents filed an Opposed Motion for Summary Judgment, and on June 22, 2018, filed an Opposed Amended Motion for Summary Judgment ("Mot.").[2] After being granted an unopposed extension of time, the Administrator responded on July 25, 2018, with an Opposition to Respondents' Amended Motion for Summary Judgment ("Opp.). On August 6, 2018, Respondents filed a permissible reply ("Reply").

As explained below, Respondents' request for relief is denied on all grounds.

[1] This matter is brought under the substantive 2008 H-2B regulations at 20 C.F.R. Part 655, Subpart A, and the 2015 H-2B procedural regulations at 29 C.F.R. Part 503.

[2] In a cover letter to the Amended Motion, Respondents incorporated the exhibits filed with the original motion for summary judgement on June 1, 2018. I allowed the filing of the amended motion after the parties filed a Joint Motion for Enlargement of Time on June 18, 2018, wherein Respondents requested leave to file the amended motion and the Administrator requested an extension of time to file an opposition.

Background

An H-2B employee is defined as "having a residence in a foreign country which he has no intention of abandoning who is coming temporarily to the United States to perform other temporary service or labor if unemployed persons capable of performing such service or labor cannot be found in this country…." 8 U.S.C. § 1101(a)(15)(H)(ii)(b). The H-2B program permits employers to hire such nonimmigrant workers to perform temporary nonagricultural work within the United States on a one-time occurrence, seasonal, peakload, or intermittent basis, as defined by the Department of Homeland Security ("DHS"). 8 C.F.R. § 214.2(h)(6)(ii)(B). DHS requires that employers petitioning for H-2B visas obtain a labor certification from the Department of Labor ("DOL") before applying for H-2B visas through DHS. 8 C.F.R. § 214.2(h)(6)(iii)(A). To obtain the labor certification, employers first obtain a prevailing wage determination for the job opportunity from DOL's Employment and Training Administration ("ETA"). 20 C.F.R. § 655.10 (2009).[3] Employers must offer and pay the H-2B workers the highest of the prevailing wage or the applicable federal, state, or local minimum wage. 20 C.F.R. § 655.22(e) (2009). After obtaining the prevailing wage determination, the employer submits an Application for Temporary Employment Certification ("Form 9142") and recruitment report to the ETA. 20 C.F.R § 655.20 (2009). In the Form 9142, the employer must certify under penalty of perjury that the information contained on the application is true and correct, and the employer's signature constitutes its acknowledgment and acceptance of the obligations of the H-2B program. See Ex. 2 at 31-32[4]; 20 C.F.R. § 655.65(f) (2009).

Section 214(c)(l4) of the INA gives DHS the authority to impose administrative remedies where the Secretary of DHS finds "a substantial failure to meet any of the conditions of the petition to admit…a nonimmigrant worker under [8 U.S.C. § 1101(a)(l5)(H)(ii)(b)] or…a willful misrepresentation of a material fact in such petition." 8 U.S.C. § 1184(c)(14)(A). The DHS is authorized to delegate this enforcement authority to the Secretary of Labor, 8 U.S.C. § 1184(c)(14)(B), and has delegated to the Secretary of Labor its authority "to enforce compliance with the conditions of a petition and Department of Labor approved temporary labor certification to admit or otherwise provide status to an H-2B worker." 8 C.F.R. 214.2(h)(6)(ix). This enforcement authority has been further delegated within DOL to the Administrator of the Wage and Hour Division. See Secretary's Order 01-2014, 79 FR 77527-01 (Dec. 19, 2014).

Respondent Butler Amusements is a traveling amusement operator. Mot. at 2. In late 2012, Butler Amusements submitted a Form 9142 requesting 246 workers to work as "Amusement and Recreation Attendants." Ex. 2 at 24. On the Form 9142, the job duties were listed as performing a "variety of attending duties at [an] amusement facility (traveling carnival). Set-up, tear-down, operate amusement rides, food concessions and/or games." Id. at 26. Respondents had previously obtained the prevailing wages for the position at various worksites from the ETA, based upon the same "Amusement and Recreation Attendants" job title and description (Standard Occupational Code ("SOC") 39-3091). Ex. 1. In the Form 9142, Respondents represented that the workers would not supervise other employees, and that no specific licenses or certifications were required for the job, except for a drug and criminal background check. Ex. 2 at 26-27. The workers would work 40 hours per week, and would be paid from $323.60 to $368.40 per week. Id. at 26, 28. Butler Amusements CEO Michael Brajevich signed the Form 9142 in Appendix B.1, certifying that various conditions of employment were met and that the information in the application was true and accurate, as well as that "[t]he dates of temporary need, reason(s) for temporary need, and number of worker positions being requested for certification has been truly and accurately stated on the application." Id. at 32 ("Attestation #13"). The ETA granted labor certification on December 14, 2012. Mot. at 2, Ex. 2; Opp. at 8. On December 17, 2012, Respondents submitted DHS Form I-129 seeking the H-2B visas, which DHS approved on January 4, 2013. Ex. 4.

The Administrator subsequently opened an investigation for the period from February 1 to April 24, 2013. Ex. 9 at 92. On November 22, 2013, the investigator found that ten workers were employed outside of the approved job title of "Amusement and Recreation Attendants." Ex. 5, 6. The investigator determined that these workers had worked as drivers, maintenance workers, supervisors, and office administrators. Mot. at 3, Ex. 5. These positions have different SOC codes and a different prevailing wage. See Ex. 6 at 85. Based on this investigation, the Administrator provided a "Summary of Unpaid Wages" calculating back wages due. Mot. at 3, Ex. 5. Respondents disputed the theory of the investigation on multiple grounds, including that back wages were not an available remedy, and that the identified workers only worked outside the approved job code for a few hours each week as well as "substantially less than 40 hours per week" during the investigation period. Mot. at 3, Ex. 6 at 85-86. On February 25, 2014, the investigator issued a revised "Summary of Unpaid Wages" form, with revisions in the amount due and calculations for only nine workers instead of ten.[5] Ex. 8. According to the revised form, the total amount of unpaid wages due was $24,987.60. Id. at 91.

On February 6, 2018, the Administrator issued the Determination Letter finding that Respondents substantially failed to comply with the requirement to provide proper job classification information on the Form 9142 and DHS Form I-129. Ex. 9. Specifically, the Administrator found that Respondents "placed workers in occupation(s) other than listed on the I-129 Petition or the 9142 Application." Id. at 96. The Administrator based the finding on the substantive provisions of the 2008 H-2B regulations and the procedural provisions of the 2015 H-2B regulations, and determined that Respondents violated Attestation #13 and 20 C.F.R. § 655.22(n) (2009) as well as the Form I-129's part 5, question 1.[6] Id. at 92. The Administrator asserted that $24,987.60[7] in back wages were due, and assessed $10,000 in civil money penalties. Id.

After Respondents requested a hearing, the parties requested a stay of discovery so that certain legal issues could be litigated, including arguments regarding jurisdiction, whether the Administrator could recover back wages under these circumstances, and whether the misclassification was substantial. See Joint Request for Status Conference Regarding Discovery Plan (Apr. 25, 2018); Order Vacating Hearing, Staying Proceedings and Setting Briefing Schedule (May 9, [5] The revised form omitted the tenth worker who had performed office administrative functions, and the Administrator is not pursuing a claim on behalf of the tenth worker. See Opp. at 9, n.2.

[6] 20 C.F.R. § 655.22(n) (2009) requires that "The dates of temporary need, reason for temporary need, and number of positions being requested for labor certification have been truly and accurately stated on the application." Attestation #13 tracks this same language. Part 5, Question 1 of the Form I-129 requests the job title for the requested foreign workers. Ex. 3 at 47.

[7] In the Determination Letter, the Administrator listed the unpaid wages as $24,987.20. See Ex. 9 at 92. However, this appears to be a typographical error as the attached "Summary of Violation and Remedy" references the $24,987.60 calculated by the investigator.

2018). The stay was granted and the parties subsequently filed the briefing that is the subject of this order.

Legal Standard for Summary Decision

This matter is governed by the Rules of Practice and Procedure for Administrative Hearings Before the Office of Administrative Law Judges, found at 29 C.F.R. Part 18. 29 C.F.R. § 503.44(a).

Summary decision shall be granted if the movant shows that there is no genuine dispute as to any material fact and the movant is entitled to a decision as a matter of law. 29 C.F.R § 18.72. The standard for summary decision, as outlined in 29 C.F.R. § 18.72, is analogous to the standard developed under Rule 56 of the Federal Rules of Civil Procedure. Mara v. Sempra Energy Trading, LLC, ARB No. 10-051, ALJ No. 2009-SOX-18, slip op. at 5 (ARB June 28, 2011). Summary judgment is designed "to isolate and dispose of factually unsupported claims or defenses." Celotex Corp. v. Catrett, 477 U.S. 317, 323-24 (1986). The initial burden is on the moving party to demonstrate that there is no genuine issue of material fact. Celotex, 477 U.S. at 323. Once this burden is met, the non-moving party must establish the existence of a genuine issue of material fact. Anderson v. Liberty Lobby, Inc., 477 U.S. 242, 250 (1986). In assessing a motion for summary decision, a court must consider the facts in the light most favorable to the non-movant, drawing all reasonable inferences in the non-movant's favor. Scott v. Harris, 550 U.S. 372, 378 (2007) (quoting United States v. Diebold, Inc., 369 U.S. 654, 655 (1962) (per curiam)); Mara, ARB. No. 10-051, slip op. at 5.

Although Respondents' motion is characterized as a motion for summary decision, some of Respondents' arguments are more properly analyzed under the standard applicable to a motion to dismiss. This Office's rules allow a motion to dismiss "for reasons recognized under controlling law, such as lack of subject matter jurisdiction, failure to state a claim upon which relief can be granted, or untimeliness." 29 C.F.R. § 18.70(c); see also Fed. R. Civ. P 12(b)(6).

Discussion

Respondents seek summary decision on a number of grounds and on a variety of issues, each of which is addressed in turn below.

1. Standard of Review

Respondents argue that the standard of review is de novo. Mot. at 5-6. In support, Respondents cite a recent decision by the Board of Alien Labor Certification Appeals ("BALCA") regarding the appeal of the denial of an H-2B labor certification (Best Solutions USA, LLC, BALCA No. 2018-TLN-00117 (May 22, 2018)). They also argue that the Wage and Hour Division is operating outside of its area of expertise because it is ETA's responsibility to assign job codes. Mot. at 5. Additionally, Respondents contend that the standard should be de novo because DHS, which delegated enforcement authority to the DOL, has a corollary Administrative Appeals Office that reviews de novo all issues of fact, law, policy, and discretion and the DOL is bound by the same constraints that bind DHS. Id. at 5-6.

The Administrator agrees that the standard of review is de novo given that the focus is on legal issues, but disputes that the Wage and Hour Division is operating outside its area of expertise, noting that that DHS delegated to the Secretary of Labor its authority "to enforce compliance with the conditions of a petition and Department of Labor-approved temporary labor certification to admit or otherwise provide status to an H-2B worker." 8 C.F.R. 2 l 4.2(h)(6)(ix); Opp. at 11, n.4.

While the Administrator conceded that the de novo standard applies to "legal issues," it appears that Respondents are arguing for a de novo standard of review on the merits of the case, which the Administrator did not address. The case cited by the Administrator for the proposition that the standard of review of legal issues is de novo refers to the Administrative Review Board's ("ARB") review of legal issues. See Employment & Training Admin., Div. of Foreign Labor Certification v. Barry's Ground Cover, ALJ No. 2012-TLC-11, ARB No. 12-079, slip op. at 3 (ARB Jan. 16, 2014) ("The [ARB] exercises de novo review of legal issues."). However, I am not tasked with reviewing legal issues in the same manner as the ARB, whether for the purposes of this motion or for the case on the merits.

I find that the proper standard of review of the Wage and Hour Division's determination is unnecessary to decide for the purposes of this motion. The parties agreed to submit briefing, ostensibly, only to resolve legal issues. Determining whether de novo review or some more deferential standard is proper would not result in summary decision for either party, or a dismissal of this matter. The proper standard of review is a determination more appropriately decided when I am tasked with reviewing the Administrator's determination, either after a hearing or after the parties have engaged in discovery and submitted the matter for consideration on the merits.

Therefore, Respondents' request for an adjudication on the appropriate standard of review to be applied in this matter is denied.

2. Applicability of the 2008 and 2015 Regulations

Respondents contend that neither the substantive portions of the 2008 H-2B regulations nor the procedural portions of the 2015 H-2B regulations are enforceable. Mot. at 6-18.

2008 H-2B Regulations

On March 4, 2015, the United States District Court for the Northern District of Florida vacated the DOL's 2008 H-2B regulations and enjoined the DOL from enforcing these regulations. Perez v. Perez, No. 3:14-cv-00682, slip op. at 7-8 (N.D. Fla. Mar. 4, 2015); Ex. C. On April 29, 2015, DOL and DHS jointly issued an Interim Final Rule ("the 2015 H-2B regulations"). Temporary Non-Agricultural Employment of H-2B Aliens in the United States, 80 Fed. Reg. 24,042 (Apr. 29, 2015). The effective date of the district court's injunction was April 30, 2015. On August 28, 2015, the plaintiff in Perez filed an unopposed motion to clarify that the Perez injunction "was not intended to deprive DOL of its authority to enforce compliance with the substantive work terms contained in labor certifications issued pursuant to the 2008 Regulation prior to the entry of the Court's permanent injunction." Ex. D. The plaintiff argued that "[a]n injunction invalidating the work terms of previously issued labor certifications would be tantamount to giving employers carte blanche to mistreat U.S. and foreign workers and to ignore the sworn promises they made in order to obtain the right to import foreign workers … ." Id. The court granted the plaintiff's motion and clarified that "the permanent injunction was not intended to, and does not, apply retroactively." Ex. A ("Perez Clarifying Order").

In other words, the Perez injunction does not apply retroactively to preclude enforcement actions of labor certifications that were issued pursuant to the 2008 H-2B regulations prior to the injunction's effective date of April 30, 2015. See also Adm'r v. Drew's Lawn & Snow Serv., Inc., No. 2017-TNE-00001, slip op. at 3 (ALJ Apr. 10, 2018) ("DOL may enforce the [2008 H-2B regulations] for labor certifications issued before the injunction took effect…."); Adm'r, Wage & Hour Div. v. Guadagno, ALJ No. 2016-LCA-00035, slip op. at 3-5 (ALJ June 12, 2017) (same); Adm'r, Wage & Hour Div. v. St. Louis Select Landscaping, Inc., ALJ No. 2017-TNE-00003, slip op. at 5-6 (ALJ May 2, 2017) (same). Here, Respondents' labor certification was issued before April 29, 2015, and therefore the Perez injunction does not preclude enforcement of the 2008 H-2B regulations.

Respondents' arguments against the enforcement of the 2008 H-2B regulations are unpersuasive. Respondents first contend that the ARB determined that the 2008 regulations are unenforceable, citing Adm'r, Wage & Hour Div. v. Strates Shows, Inc., ALJ No. 2014-TNE-016, ARB No. 15-069 (ARB June 30, 2017) and Adm'r, Wage & Hour Div. v. Wade Shows, Inc., ALJ No. 2014-TNE-001, ARB No. 15-52 (ARB June 20, 2017). Respondents concede that the ARB later vacated these rulings, but argues that the original rulings that the 2008 regulations are not enforceable "were correct and remain persuasive law" because the ARB did not specifically reverse its rulings, but merely omitted the characterization of the 2008 H-2B regulations as unenforceable. Mot. at 7.

In Strates Shows, Inc., ARB No. 15-069 (June 30, 2017), the ARB held that the Perez injunction "rendered the Administrator's legal authority for pursing [H-2B enforcement] action[s] null and void" and that the Administrative Law Judge ("ALJ") had "no choice but to dismiss the action" for want of subject matter jurisdiction.[8] Slip op. at 6. The Office of the Solicitor filed an emergency motion requesting that the ARB reconsider its decision. The ARB granted the motion for reconsideration and vacated its June 30, 2017 decision, and on August 16, 2017, the ARB issued an Amended Final Decision and Order in which it omitted the characterization of the 2008 H-2B regulations as unenforceable. Strates Shows, Inc., ARB No. 15-069, Amended Final Decision and Order (Aug. 16, 2017); Strates Shows, Inc., ARB No. 15-069, Order Vacating Final Decision and Order and Granting Reconsideration (Aug. 16, 2017)

The ARB's earlier, vacated orders do not remain persuasive. The ARB vacated its prior Strates Shows ruling in its entirety, and specifically stated in the Amended Final Decision and Order that it had "reconsider[ed] and amend[ed] the Final Decision and Order, omitting the characterization of the 2008 H-2B regulations as unenforceable." Strates Shows, Inc., ARB No. 15-069, slip op. at 2 (Aug. 16, 2017). The vacated June 30, 2017 order therefore does not "remain persuasive" because it does not reflect the ARB's current view on the enforceability of the 2008 H-2B regulations.[9]

[8] The ARB reached a similar conclusion in an unpublished June 20, 2017 order issued in connection with Adm'r, Wage and Hour Division v. Wade Shows, Inc., ARB No. 15-052, ALJ No. 2013-TNE-00001.

[9] Respondents cite Los Angeles Cty. v. Davis, 440 U.S. 625, 646 n. 10 (1979), in support of their argument, in which Justice Powell noted in his dissent that "[a]lthough a decision vacating a judgment necessarily prevents the opinion of the lower court from being the law of the case, . . . the expressions of the court below on the merits, if not reversed, will continue to have precedential weight and, until contrary authority is decided, are likely to be viewed as persuasive authority if not the governing law of the [lower appellate court]." Respondents' citation to Davis is inapposite. In Davis, the court vacated a ruling by the Ninth Circuit Court of Appeals based on the doctrine of mootness, but did not reach the merits; therefore, the Ninth Circuit's decision was still a pertinent statement of the law in that circuit, even though not directly binding. Davis, 440 U.S. at 646. Unlike the situation in Davis where the Ninth Circuit's decision continued to reflect its Respondents next argue that the 2008 H-2B regulations "no longer exist" after the Perez injunction because the DOL chose to replace the 2008 H-2B regulations with the 2015 H-2B regulations. Mot. at 7-8. According to Respondents, because the 2015 H-2B regulations replaced the 2008 H-2B regulations, this Office lacks subject matter jurisdiction over this matter. Mot. at 10-11. The Administrator responds that "[t]he promulgation of revised regulations does not mean that previous regulations cannot be enforced in cases arising before the promulgation of the revised regulations."[10] Opp. at 20.

Respondents' argument is unconvincing. The 2015 H-2B regulations apply prospectively from April 29, 2015 forward. 29 C.F.R. § 503.1(d). Respondents submitted the operative labor certification application under the 2008 H-2B regulations, and the enforcement of Respondents' obligations under those regulations is not foreclosed by the promulgation of new regulations, nor the Perez injunction, as indicated by the Perez Clarifying Order.

Respondents also put forth a number of arguments for why, in essence, the Perez Clarifying Order should be ignored, but none are compelling and most of the arguments would be more properly brought in a different forum. Mot. at 11-16. Respondents first argue that the Perez Clarifying Order "cannot cure the replacement" of the 2008 regulations by the 2015 regulation. However, as discussed above, the 2008 regulations remain the relevant regulations governing Respondents' agreement to employ H-2B workers. Respondents agreed to abide by the 2008 H-2B regulations when they submitted the Form 9142 in 2012. Those were the regulations in effect at the time, and the promulgation of the 2015 H-2B regulations do not dissolve Respondents' responsibilities and obligations that they agreed to in applying to hire H-2B workers.

Respondents make a number of arguments that are not properly brought before this forum: that vacatur was the mandatory remedy under the Administrative Procedure Act ("APA"); that the vacatur was necessarily retroactive ("[o]nce the federal court ruled that the 2008 H-2B regulations no longer existed, that automatically meant that they had never existed…."); that the DOL had to engage in notice and comment procedures in order to continue enforcing the 2008 regulations according to the Perez Clarifying Order; that the district court should not have modified the prior judgment under Federal Rule of Civil Procedure 60; and that the Perez Clarifying Order affected only the injunctive relief, not the vacatur of the 2008 rule. Mot. at 12-15.

First, the Perez Clarifying Order makes clear that the injunction against enforcement was not retroactive, and second, Respondents' arguments are properly addressed to a federal district court. As Respondents note, "it is up to the federal court itself to interpret its own judgments." Mot. at 16. Respondents contend that the Administrator's opposition is "an attempt to convert the ALJ into…the Northern District of Florida." Id. In fact, this is exactly what Respondents are attempting to do in asking this Office to interpret the Perez Clarifying Order in the manner they advocate.

views on the merits, the ARB fully vacated its June 30, 2017 order in Strates Shows and replaced the order with a statement that specifically omitted its prior characterization of the 2008 H-2B regulations as unenforceable.

[10] The Administrator noted that "[f]or instance," the 2015 H-2B regulations provide that applications submitted before April 29, 2015, would be processed under the 2008 H-2B regulations. Opp. at 20. Respondents interpret this to mean that the Administrator contends that Respondent's Form 9142 "was somehow still being 'processed' on April 29, 2015." Reply at 3, n .3. This was not the Administrator's contention; the Administrator was arguing that "under the same logic," Respondents' Form 9142 is subject to the 2008 H-2B regulations because it was filed prior to April 29, 2015.

Respondents also contend that DHS improperly extended authority to DOL, citing an unpublished case from the Tenth Circuit Court of Appeals. In G.H. Daniels III & Assocs., Inc. v. Perez, 626 F. App'x 205, 211-12 (10th Cir. 2015), as amended (Nov. 5, 2015), the court ruled that DHS impermissibly sub-delegated its authority to the DOL. Mot. at 16. This decision is both unpublished and non-binding, and I reject Respondents' arguments on this ground. See also, Louisiana Forestry Ass'n Inc. v. Sec'y U.S. Dep't of Labor, 745 F.3d 653, 673 (3d Cir. 2014) (finding the DHS did not impermissibly sub-delegate its authority to DOL, but merely "conditioned its own granting of an H-2B petition on the DOL's grant of a temporary labor certification.").[11]

Further, as noted by Respondents, Mot. at 11, the ARB does not have "jurisdiction to pass on the validity of any portion of the Code of Federal Regulations… and shall observe the provisions thereof…." Prince v. Westinghouse Savannah River Co., ALJ No. 2006-ERA-1, ARB No. 10-079, slip op. at 9 (ARB Nov. 17, 2010) (noting that the Secretary of Labor's delegation of authority directed that the ARB "shall not have jurisdiction to pass on the validity of any portion of the Code of Federal Regulations that has been duly promulgated by the Department of Labor and shall observe the provisions thereof, where pertinent, in its decisions."); Secretary's Order 02-2012, 77 Fed. Reg. 69,378 (Nov. 16, 2012); see also 29 C.F.R. §8.1(b). As the Administrator contends, "[a]s the ARB is not permitted to rule on the validity of DOL regulations, it follows that an ALJ may not rule on the validity of DOL regulations, either." Opp. at 19-20. Additionally, in general, an ALJ lacks the inherent authority to rule on the validity of a regulation and may not invalidate a regulation as written absent an express statutory or regulatory delegation of such authority. See Gibas v. Saginaw Min. Co., 748 F.2d 1112, 1117 (6th Cir. 1984); John Peroulis & Sons Sheep, Inc., 2012-TAE-00004 (ALJ Oct. 23, 2013); Bolton Spring Farm, 2008-TLC-00028 (BALCA May 16, 2008). I do not find that the H-2B regulations expressly delegate such authority. For these reasons, Respondents' arguments about the validity of the DOL's H-2B regulations cannot be properly considered in this forum.[12]

2015 H-2B Regulations

The 2015 H-2B regulations provide that with respect to determinations to enforce provisions of the job order or provisions under 8 U.S.C. § 1184(c), the procedures and rules contained in 29 C.F.R. § 503, Subpart C "will apply regardless of the date of violation." 29 C.F.R. § 503.40(b).

Respondents contend that the Administrator cannot choose which procedural provisions – those from 2008 or those from 2015 – to apply without inviting public notice and comment. Mot. at 17. Respondents argue that "this is just the sort of challenge under the [APA] that Respondent is [11] The Administrator also argues that the DOL has authority to enforce compliance with the conditions of the Form I-129 petition, which flows directly from the INA, and is therefore not affected by the Perez injunction. Opp. at 18-19. The Administrator argues that "[b]ecause employers are required to submit ETA Form 9142 as part of its DHS Form I-129 petition…the failure to provide accurate job descriptions on ETA Form 9142 constitute a failure to comply with the terms and conditions of the DHS Form I-129 as well." Id. at 19, n.9. Because the 2008 H-2B regulations are enforceable per the Perez Clarifying Order, I need not reach this issue.

[12] In Adm'r, Wage & Hour Div. v. Green Meadows Lawnscape, Inc., 2018-TNE-00002 (Apr. 16, 2018), the ALJ reached a different conclusion on this issue, reasoning that ALJs "have been expressly delegated the authority to rule on the validity of the 2008 H-2B Regulations" by 29 C.F.R. § 503.50(b), which provides that the ALJ's decision "will include a statement of the findings and conclusions, with reasons and basis therefore, upon each material issue presented on the record…." Slip op. at 7-8 (emphasis in original). The decision is not binding, and I respectfully disagree that the H-2B regulations expressly delegate the authority to ALJs to rule on the validity of the regulations.

entitled to pursue and this Court has jurisdiction to determine," citing 29 C.F.R. § 18.10 (b), which states that proceedings before this Office "follow the Administrative Procedure Act." Reply at 4. However, being bound to follow the procedures mandated by the APA and being able to rule on whether a regulation violates the APA are distinct. I find that I do not have the authority to rule on whether the DOL's actions violate the APA.

Respondents also argue that application of the procedural provisions of the 2015 H-2B regulations are prejudicial as the 2015 rules "diverge [from the 2008 H-2B regulations] in material ways that impair Respondent's [sic] prior rights, increase liability for past conduct, and impose new duties for prior conduct." Mot. at 17. Respondents contend that the substantive provisions of the 2008 regulations "are in irreconcilable conflict with the [2015 H-2B procedural rules]" because the 2008 regulations apply once the application is certified, which Respondents argue "extends without limitation to both substantive and procedural provisions." Id. at 18. The Administrator responds that this Office is not authorized to address this issue, citing the ARB's procedural rule 29 C.F.R. § 8.1 that the ARB may not rule on the validity of regulations. Opp. at 20, n.10. The Administrator also notes that "there is no impermissible retroactive effect when using such procedural rules that impose no new duties, liabilities, or obligations," citing Landgraf v. USI Film Prods., 511 U.S. 244, 280 (1994).

First, the 2008 rules and the 2015 rules are not in "irreconcilable conflict" since the 2015 H-2B regulations make clear that the procedural provisions will apply "regardless of the date of violation." 29 C.F.R. § 503.40(b). Second, Respondents have not demonstrated how any difference between the two regulations is prejudicial. Respondents in their Reply asserted they provided "extensive reasons" why it is prejudiced, but their Motion only alleges that the 2015 procedural rules impose "changes [that] have a direct bearing on the Respondent's rights and the ability to defend itself." Reply at 4, n.4; Mot. at 17-18. Respondents list a number of purported changes in the regulations, but fail to specifically allege how these changes impose new duties, liabilities, or obligations on Respondents.

Respondents also contend that the Administrator is applying "the substantive portions of procedural rules from 2015 retroactively . . . without express congressional authority," but it is unclear what Respondents mean by "the substantive portions of procedural rules." Mot. at 18. The substantive portions of the 2008 H-2B regulations apply to this case, and to the extent Respondents argue that 29 C.F.R. Part 503, Subpart C "will apply regardless of the date of violation" is improper, this argument is once again more properly brought before a federal district court as part of a challenge to the regulations themselves.

Respondents' motion for summary decision on this ground is denied.

3. Prevailing Wage Determination

Respondents argue the Administrator is prohibited from "challenging the prevailing wage determination." Mot. at 18. Respondents contend that only the ETA may issue prevailing wages, and that therefore this matter must be dismissed and remanded "so that the Administrator may pursue further proceedings." Reply at 4-5. Relying on 20 C.F.R. § 655.75 (c) (2009) and 29 C.F.R. § 503.50 (c), Respondents argue that the ALJ "is powerless to re-adjudicate the prevailing wage rate, which is exactly what the Administrator seeks to accomplish." Mot. at 19. The Administrator responds that it does not allege that ETA assigned the wrong occupation code or prevailing wage, rather that Respondents misrepresented the job duties. Opp. at 21. The Administrator also contends that the regulations cited by Respondents apply only to prevailing wage determinations "obtained by the Administrator from OFLC during the investigation," not in other contexts. Id. at n.11.

Contrary to Respondents' assertion, the Administrator is not "challenging" the ETA's prevailing wage determination; instead, the Administrator is enforcing the H-2B regulatory requirements by asserting that Respondents misclassified their workers and underpaid them for the work they were performing. It is also unclear what "further proceedings" the Administrator would undertake were I to remand the case. Both 20 C.F.R. § 655.75 (c) (2009) and 29 C.F.R. § 503.50 (c) provide that if the Administrator relies on a prevailing wage determination from OFLC and the ALJ finds that back wages are not warranted, the ALJ must remand the matter to the Administrator for further proceedings.[13] In the absence of such a finding, the ALJ is precluded from determining the validity of the prevailing wage that should have been paid. 29 C.F.R. § 503.50 (c). Here, the Administrator has not requested a prevailing wage from OFLC and therefore this portion of the regulations is irrelevant at this time.

Respondents' request for relief on this ground is denied.

4. Respondents' Notice of Pertinent Regulatory Requirements

Respondents contend that they were not on notice of any pertinent regulatory requirements, specifically any requirements governing misclassifications, how much depth should be provided in job details, or how employers are to perform "task analyses." Mot. at 19-22. For example, Respondents contend that Attestations #13 is not a rule found in the text of the published regulations, and that such attestations are not enforceable. Id. at 19-20. Respondents also argue that there is no regulatory requirement for accurately stating the job duties that will be performed, as opposed to the "reasons for temporary need." Id. at 20. Respondents contend that "temporary need" does not encompass "the comprehensiveness of the job-duty description," and that "[t]here is no regulatory requirement that every single job task must be stated, nor is there a statement in § 655.22 that omitting job tasks is a violation. Section 655.22(n) is directed to the veracity of what is stated, not whether the job details are comprehensive." Id.. at 20-21. Finally, Respondents argue that there is no regulation indicating that "job title" on the Form I-129 "had any significance whatsoever." Id. at 21.

The Administrator responds that the regulatory definition of temporary need has been publicly available for many years, and that Respondents' contentions that they lacked notice that they had to accurately describe the job duties are "disingenuous" and should be rejected. Opp. at 13, n.5. The Administrator contends that "temporary need has everything to do with the job duties of the H-2B workers perform" and that "temporary need" is determined based on whether the employer's "need for the duties to be performed by the employee(s) is temporary," citing 8 C.F.R. § 214.2(h)(6)(ii) (2012) (emphasis added by the Administrator). Id. at 13.

The language of Attestation #13 tracks the requirements of Section 655.22(n), and is therefore grounded in the 2008 H-2B regulations. Section 655.22(n) requires that the "reason for temporary need" must be "truly and accurately stated on the application." Further, Section 655.21(a) requires that "[t]he employer must include a detailed statement of temporary need," including "[a]n explanation regarding why the nature of the employer's job opportunity and number of foreign workers being requested for certification reflect a temporary need." 20 C.F.R. § 655.21(a)(3).

This is sufficient to put employers on notice that they must accurately describe the nature of the need in the Form 9142, which necessarily encompasses accurately describing the duties to be performed by the H-2B workers. Respondents' arguments that there is no indication that the "job title" section on the Form I-129 "had any significance whatsoever" is also rejected; the Form I-129 is signed under penalty of perjury that all information provided is true and correct. Summary decision is denied on this ground.

5. Substantial or Willful Violation

Respondents next argue that they did not substantially or willfully violate any regulatory requirements. Mot. at 22-28. Respondents cite 29 [sic] C.F.R. § 655.31(d)(1) as defining "substantial violation" as a "pattern or practice" of misdeeds. Id. Respondent contend there is no substantial violation unless the H-2B workers were employed "in an activity/ activities, not listed in the job order (other than an activity minor and incidental to the activity/ activities listed in the job order)…." Id. at 22-23, citing 29 [sic] C.F.R. § 655.31(d)(1)(v). Respondents also contend that an "incidental-duty" or "dual position" rule similar to that use in the H-2A program should be applied here. Mot. at 23; Reply at 5-6.

As the Administrator notes, Section 655.31 refers to debarment proceedings, not enforcement proceedings like the one at issue here. See 20 C.F.R. § 655.31 (2009), "Debarment." In contrast, Section 655.60, titled "Violations," provides that the Administrator shall determine whether the employer has:

> (a) Filed a petition with ETA that willfully misrepresents a material fact.
> (b) Substantially failed to meet any of the conditions of the labor certification application attested to, as listed in § 655.22, or any of the conditions of the DHS Form I–129, Petition for a Nonimmigrant Worker for an H–2B worker in 8 CFR 214.2(h).
> (c) Misrepresented a material fact to the State Department during the visa application process.

20 C.F.R. § 655.60 (2009). The relevant definition of "substantial violation" and "willful" is found at Section 655.65:

> (d) Substantial failure in paragraph (b) of this section shall mean a willful failure that constitutes a significant deviation from the terms and conditions of the labor condition application or the DHS Form I–129, Petition for a Nonimmigrant Worker for an H–2B worker or successor form.
> (e) For purposes of this subpart, "willful failure" means a knowing failure or a reckless disregard with respect to whether the conduct was contrary to sec. 214(c) of > the INA, or this subpart. See McLaughlin v. Richland Shoe Co., 486 U.S. 128 (1988); see also Trans World Airlines v. Thurston, 469 U.S. 111 (1985).

20 C.F.R. § 655.65 (2009). The Administrator argues whether Respondents committed substantial or willful violations are factual issues outside the scope of Respondents' summary judgment motion. Opp. at 15.

After reviewing the parties' arguments on this issue, I find that whether there was a substantial or willful violation are both factual issues that cannot be decided based on the record before me. I also find that any application of a similar "incidental duty" or "dual position" rule is more properly addressed when analyzing the factual allegations. Respondents' request for relief on this ground is denied.

6. Housing Credit

Respondents argue that they are entitled to a credit for providing mobile housing for use by its H-2B employees and local convenience travel when operating at a particular location. Mot. at 23-28; Reply at 6. The Administrator argues that Respondents are not entitled to any housing credits. Opp. at 23-26.

Whether or not Respondents are entitled to a housing credit is not appropriate for summary decision as any resolution of this issue would not result in summary decision or partial summary decision for either party. Respondent's request for "summary adjudication…that it was entitled to credit for providing these 'facilities'" is denied.[14]

7. Availability of Back Wages as a Remedy

Next, Respondents argue the remedy of back wages is not available for the violation of misclassification. Mot. at 28-29.

Section 655.65, titled "Remedies for violations," provides, inter alia:

> If the WHD Administrator finds a violation of the provisions specified in this subpart, the Administrator may impose such other administrative remedies as the Administrator determines to be appropriate, including reinstatement of displaced U.S. workers, or other appropriate legal or equitable remedies. If the WHD Administrator finds that an employer has not paid wages at the wage level specified under the application and required by § 655.22(e), the Administrator may require the employer to provide for payment of such amounts of back pay as may be required to comply with the requirements of § 655.22(e).

20 C.F.R. § 655.65(i) (2009). Section 655.22(e) provides that the employer seeking H-2B certification must attest that "[t]he offered wage equals or exceeds the highest of the prevailing wage, the applicable Federal minimum wage, the State minimum wage, and local minimum wage, and the employer will pay the offered wage during the entire period of the approved H–2B labor certification." 20 C.F.R. § 655.22(e) (2009).

[14] In their Reply, Respondents contend that if this issue is not decided, "narrowly-scoped discovery" should be allowed. Reply at 6. If there is a need for discovery to be restricted in the manner suggested by Respondents, such an argument should be made by separate motion after the parties attempt to resolve the dispute. Any request to restrict discovery at this time is denied.

Respondents contend that back wages are only available where the employer failed to pay wages at the wage level specified in the application under 20 C.F.R. § 655.65 (i) (2009). Mot. at 28. Respondents argue that there is no dispute that they paid the offered wage, so the remedy of back wages is not available. Id. Regarding the provision at 20 C.F.R. § 655.65 (i), Respondents argue:

> To the extent that the Administrator might attempt to breathe expansive life into 20 C.F.R. § 655.65 (i) ("the Administrator may impose such other administrative remedies as the Administrator determines to be appropriate, … or other appropriate legal or equitable remedies"), it does not supersede the very specific back wage remedy in the very next sentence of § 655.65 (i). Further, Respondent was, once again, entitled to be placed on notice of any such regulatory requirement.[15]

Id. at n.3.

The Administrator argues that the Wage and Hour Division "has broad authority to impose appropriate remedies," and that 20 C.F.R. § 655.65 (2009) "plainly permits the Administrator's pursuit of back wages for Respondents' use of H-2B workers for duties outside the scope of those for which they were petitioned." Opp. at 21-22. The Administrator asserts it is not alleging a violation of Section 655.22(e), and therefore "the last sentence [in Section 655.65(i)] puts no limitations on what remedies are allowed in this case. Id. at 22.

The regulations allow for the Administrator to impose "such other administrative remedies as the Administrator determines to be appropriate, including . . . appropriate legal or equitable remedies." 20 C.F.R. § 655.65(i) (2009). Neither party cited to any authority beyond the regulations for their respective positions related to this provision. This provision is broad, and I find that seeking unpaid wages due to an employer's misclassification of its H-2B workers falls within the scope of "other appropriate legal or equitable remedies." Respondents contend in their reply that "[t]he Administrator's interpretation strips all meaning from [the second sentence of Section 655.65(i)] because it would necessarily be subsumed by the preceding sentence." Reply at 8. This argument is not persuasive. Based on a plain reading of the regulation, the second sentence of Section 655.65(i) does not limit the discretion imparted by the previous sentence, but only specifies that back wages are available as a remedy for a violation of Section 655.22(e). I do not find that this sentence implies that back wages may only be sought for a violation of Section 655.22(e).

Respondents also argue that any back wage calculation should be limited to the amount of time the H-2B workers were actually working in the alternative jobs, and that the Administrator's calculations were only based on one location, instead of the different locations to which the carnival traveled. Mot. at 29. Respondents therefore argue that "[a]t a minimum, the Administrator must re-calculate any back wages in light of the variable, location-to-location prevailing wage rates." Id. The Administrator responds that these are factual issues not appropriate for summary decision, and that Respondents have not provided sufficient evidence to establish any relevant undisputed facts. Opp. at 22-23.

[15] The argument that Respondents were not on notice of this regulation is rejected.

Again, I find that Respondents' request to limit back wages is not an appropriate request in a motion for summary decision. A determination on this issue would not result in summary decision on any underlying matter, and it is more properly argued when the Administrator's determination is reviewed on the merits. Respondents' request that the Administrator be ordered to re-issue a determination and re-calculate any back wages due, see Reply at 8; Mot. at 29, is denied.

I also decline to make any determination about the underlying facts that would determine the amount of back wages due. Respondents contend that the investigation revealed the workers had "been employed at least partially outside of their job code at some point," Mot. at 7, while the Administrator contends that the workers "were not carnival attendants at all, but were machine shop mechanics, truck drivers, and ride supervisors," Opp. at 9. There is no information in the record about how many hours these workers performed which job duties, or how many hours they worked per week. The parties may submit evidence of the appropriate amount of any back wages due when the matter is heard or submitted for consideration on the merits.

8. Timeliness of the Determination

Respondents argue that this matter is time-barred by the statute of limitations and the doctrine of laches. Mot. at 29.

Statute of Limitations

Respondents argue that this action is time-barred by a statute of limitations, suggesting any of the following as a guideline: the catchall 4-year statute of limitations for civil actions under 28 U.S.C. § 1658(a); the 2-year limitation under Oregon's wage and hour laws; the 2-year statute of limitations under the H-2A program; the 2-year deadline for debarment under the H-2B program; the 3-year limit on record retention for employers under the H-2B program; the 2- or 3-year statute of limitations under the FLSA; or the 5-year statute of limitations under 28 U.S.C. § 2462, which applies to "an action, suit or proceeding for the enforcement of any civil fine, penalty, or forfeiture, pecuniary or otherwise…." Mot. at 29-33.

The Administrator argues that the 5-year limitations period in 28 U.S.C. § 2462 applies, but only to the assessment of the civil money penalty, not to the remedy of back wages. Opp. at 27-28. The Administrator therefore argues the Wage and Hour Division "is entitled to recover civil money penalties for all misconduct occurring after February 6, 2013," and [b]ecause Respondents' violative conduct – employing H-2B workers in jobs not identified in the work order – occurred after that date, civil money penalties are not time-barred." Opp. at 27. Regarding back wages, the Administrator argues that no statute of limitations applies because back wages are not a "penalty" within the meaning of 28 U.S.C. § 2462, citing Kokesh v. S.E.C., 137 S. Ct. 1635, 1642 (2017).

a) Applicable Statute of Limitations

The INA is silent as to the statute of limitations for H-2B actions. See 8 U.S.C. § 1101 et seq. Where no statute of limitations is indicated under federal law, courts have generally looked to a "closely analogous statute of limitations under state law." DelCostello v. Int'l Bhd. of Teamsters, 462 U.S. 151, 158 (1983). However, where state statutes of limitations are "unsatisfactory vehicles for the enforcement of federal law," it is more appropriate to "use[] timeliness rules drawn from federal law—either express limitations periods from related federal statutes, or such alternatives as laches." Id. at 161-62. The Supreme Court has noted that "[s]tate legislatures do not devise their limitations periods with national interests in mind, and it is the duty of the federal courts to assure that the importation of state law will not frustrate or interfere with the implementation of national policies." Id. at 161 (quoting Occidental Life Ins. Co. of California v. E.E.O.C., 432 U.S. 355, 367 (1977)). The parties cite orders from two other ALJs who found that 28 U.S.C. § 2462 affords the proper statute of limitations under the H-2B regulations. See Adm'r, Wage & Hour Div. v. Hotelmacher, LLC, ALJ Nos. 2017-TNE-00010, -00011 (May 17, 2018); Adm'r, Wage & Hour Div. v. Graham and Rollins, Inc., ALJ No. 2018-TNE-00022 (June 26, 2018).

28 U.S.C. § 2462 provides:

> Except as otherwise provided by an Act of Congress, an action, suit or proceeding for the enforcement of any civil fine, penalty, or forfeiture, pecuniary or otherwise shall not be entertained unless commenced within five years from the date when the claim first accrued if, within the same period, the offender or the property is found within the United States in order that proper service may be made thereon.

In Hotelmacher, LLC, Associate Chief ALJ Almanza found that as matters under the H-2B regulations deal with federal immigration schemes "squarely within the realm of the federal sovereign," it is inappropriate to borrow from state law. Hotelmacher, LLC, slip op. at 4. Judge Almanza found 28 U.S.C. § 2462 more appropriate to apply than the FLSA due to the Administrator's ability to institute "such proceedings . . . as deemed appropriate," including "the recovery of unpaid wages . . . ; the enforcement of provisions of the job order . . . ; the assessment of civil money penalty; make whole relief for any person who has been discriminated against; . . . or debarment . . .," 29 C.F.R. § 503.20(a), which Judge Almanza found "analogous to penalties."

In Graham and Rollins, Inc., Administrative Law Judge Markley found that Section 2462 should apply "by its own terms," as well as according to the reasoning in 3M Company (Minn. Mining & Mfg.) v. Browner, 17 F.3d 1453 (D.C. Cir. 1994), in which the circuit court found that an administrative proceeding is "an action, suite or proceeding" within the meaning of Section 2462.

Recognizing that neither Hotelmacher, LLC nor Graham and Rollins, Inc. are binding, I find the reasoning of the ALJs in applying 28 U.S.C. § 2462 persuasive. This is an enforcement proceeding under the H-2B regulations, and the Administrator is authorized to seek "civil money penalties" as well as "administrative remedies" as appropriate, "including reinstatement of displaced U.S. workers, or other appropriate legal or equitable remedies." 20 C.F.R. § 655.65 (2009). This authority stems from Section 214(c)(l4) of the INA, which gives DHS the authority to impose administrative remedies where the Secretary of DHS finds "a substantial failure to meet any of the conditions of the petition to admit…a nonimmigrant worker under [8 U.S.C. § 1101(a)(l5)(H)(ii)(b)] or…a willful misrepresentation of a material fact in such petition." 8 U.S.C. § 1184(c)(14)(A). Secretary of DHS "may, in addition to any other remedy authorized by law, impose such administrative remedies (including civil monetary penalties in an amount not to exceed $10,000 per violation) as the Secretary of Homeland Security determines to be appropriate." 8 U.S.C. § 1184(c)(14)(A)(i). This authority has been delegated to the Secretary of Labor, and is implemented through the 2008 H-2B regulations.

Section 2462 applies to any "an action, suit or proceeding for the enforcement of any civil fine, penalty, or forfeiture, pecuniary or otherwise." The Administrator is pursuing this action based on Respondents' alleged substantial failure to comply with the H-2B program requirements. Based on the language of Section 2462, I find that it encompasses this type of enforcement proceeding.

While conceding that Section 2462 applies to the civil money penalty sought in this matter, the Administrator argues that Section 2462 does not apply to the back wages sought. Opp. at 28.

As noted above, Section 2462 applies to either a fine, penalty, or forfeiture, pecuniary or otherwise. 28 U.S.C. § 2462; Kokesh, 137 S. Ct. at 1642. Whether a sanction is a penalty depends on two principles: first, "whether the wrong sought to be redressed is a wrong to the public, or a wrong to the individual," and second, "a pecuniary sanction operates as a penalty only if it is sought 'for the purpose of punishment, and to deter others from offending in like manner'—as opposed to compensating a victim for his loss." Kokesh, 137 S. Ct. at 1642; see also Gabelli v. S.E.C., 568 U.S. 442, 451–52 (2013) ("penalties . . . beyond compensation, are intended to punish, and label defendants wrongdoer"); United States v. Perry, 431 F.2d 1020, 1025 (9th Cir. 1970) ("The question is whether the Government's remedy under the Act is compensatory in nature, or has a purpose going beyond making the plaintiff whole.").

In Kokesh, the Court found that the disgorgement remedy sought by the U.S. Securities and Exchange Commission was imposed as a consequence for violating public laws and for punitive purposes, and was "often not compensatory." 137 S. Ct. at 1643-44. Regarding this last point, the Court noted that, for example, even though the funds may be distributed to victims, no statute commanded so. Further, the Court noted instances where funds are dispersed instead to the United States Treasury, such as where the parties entitled to funds "were too dispersed for feasible identification and payment."[16] Id. at 1644. The Court also noted that "[a] civil sanction that cannot fairly be said solely to serve a remedial purpose, but rather can only be explained as also serving either retributive or deterrent purposes, is punishment, as we have come to understand the term."[17] Id. at 1645.

In Graham and Rollins, Inc., Judge Markley found that the Administrator's assessment of "unpaid wages" was a "penalty." Judge Markley first noted that the Administrator sought back pay under the "other remedies" provision that is also invoked here, not Section 655.22(e), which allows the Administrator to seek back wages for failure to pay the prevailing wage listed on the Form 9142. Graham and Rollins, Inc., slip op. at 8-9. Judge Markley noted that the violations in the Determination Letter were based on the respondent's failure to comply with attestations and certifications. Id. Judge Markley also found that it was not clear that the amounts assessed as "unpaid wages" were set amounts due to individual workers, because "the amount assessed in the Determination Letter [did]

[16] Relevant to this point, Respondents argue that "the likelihood that any of these 9 workers will be found in Mexico is slim or nonexistent. Thus, the odds are overwhelming that any recovery is not for restitution, but will inure to the benefit of the U.S. Treasury." Mot. at 33; Reply at 10. There is no information in the record before me about the likelihood of whether the H-2B workers will be found.

not bear a direct relation to the losses allegedly sustained by the affected H-2B workers." Id. at 9-10. Finally, Judge Markley found that the case was "not merely about 'recoupment of unpaid wages,'" but based on a "substantial failure to comply with attestations and certification made in the H-2B filings" and that the Administrator's intention to recoup money for affected workers "does not transform the nature of the action itself." Id. at 10.

Here, the Administrator is similarly seeking "other appropriate legal or equitable remedies" for Respondents' alleged substantial failure to comply with the requirement to provide proper job classification information on the Form 9142 and DHS Form I-129. Back wages are sought here as part of the enforcement scheme remedy designed to protect both U.S. workers and foreign workers brought here under the H-2B program, i.e., a scheme designed to protect the public. See Opp. at 3 (asserting Respondents' misclassification hurt both U.S. workers and the H-2B workers). The Administrator also contends that "[i]f employers were allowed to petition for H-2B workers for one type of job, but then actually employ them at another, it would turn the entire program into a sham." Opp. at 4.

Back wages are sought on behalf of the nine H-2B workers who, the Administrator alleges, should have been paid a higher prevailing wage, but the unpaid wages are also sought for a violation committed against the H-2B program requirements. The Determination Letter was based on an alleged substantial failure to comply with attestations and certifications made in the H-2B filings. These factors suggest that the remedy is sought to redress a wrong to the public. While there may be both public and private interests at issue here – the public interest in compliance with the H-2B program requirements, and the private interest of those H-2B workers who were allegedly underpaid – the liability imposed is not solely for the purpose of redressing the private injury. See Kokesh, 137 S. Ct. at 1643. It is imposed as part of the Respondents' alleged violation of the H-2B regulations, and the Administrator's purpose is to seek other remedies "as appropriate" to address the violation of the H-2B regulations. I find that the Administrator's assessment of "unpaid wages" is sought in part for deterrent purposes in order to enforce compliance with the H-2B program requirements, instead of merely for the compensation of the H-2B workers. As such, the 5-year limitation in Section 2462 applies to the "unpaid wages" sought in this matter.

b) Accrual of Statute of Limitations

A claim accrues "when the plaintiff has a complete and present cause of action." Gabelli v. S.E.C., 568 U.S. 442, 448 (2013) (quoting Wallace v. Kato, 549 U.S. 384, 388 (2007)). "In common parlance a right accrues when it comes into existence." U.S. v. Lindsay, 346 U.S. 568, 569 (1954). A claim comes into existence "when the factual and legal prerequisites are in place." 3M Co. (Minn. Mining & Mfg.) v. Browner, 17 F.3d 1453, 1460 (D.C. Cir. 1994) (citing Lindsay, 346 U.S. at 359).

In a case where multiple violations are alleged and 28 U.S.C. § 2462 applies, "the plaintiffs' claims for civil penalties are timely . . . insofar as they relate to violations occurring within five years of [the filing of the complaint]." Nat'l Parks Conservation Ass'n, Inc. v. Tennessee Valley Auth., 480 F.3d 410, 416 (6th Cir. 2007); see also 3M Co. (Minnesota Min. & Mfg.) v. Browner, 17 F.3d 1453, 1462 (D.C. Cir. 1994) (an action, suit or proceeding to assess or impose a civil penalty under Section 2462 "must be commenced within five years of the date of the violation giving rise to the penalty."). Multiple courts have found that plaintiffs may recover for each violation that occurs within a limitations period. See, e.g., Knight v. Columbus, 19 F.3d 579 (11th Cir.), cert. denied, 513 U.S. 929 (1994); Gandy v. Sullivan Cty., Tenn., 24 F.3d 861, 865 (6th Cir. 1994).

Respondents argue that the statute of limitations accrued on December 14, 2012, when DOL approved Respondents' labor certification application. Mot. at 33-34. In support of this contention, Respondents cite the 2008 H-2B regulations, which state that "[t]he provisions of this subpart become applicable on the date that the employer's labor condition application is certified and/ or upon the date employment commences, whichever is earlier." 20 C.F.R. § 655.65 (f). Even if the statute of limitations did not begin to accrue until February 1, 2013, the period when the Administrator began the investigation, Respondents contend that this is prior to February 6, 2013. Reply at 9.

Respondents' argument that the statute of limitations period began to accrue as of the approval of the Form 9142 on December 14, 2012, is unpersuasive.[18] While the provisions of the H-2B regulations became applicable upon the certification of the application, this date merely signaled the beginning of Respondents' responsibility to comply with the regulatory requirements of employing H-2B workers. This certification does not act as the "trigger" for the accrual of the statute of limitations. Instead, the limitations period began to accrue upon Respondents' alleged violations of the regulations, which the Administrator describes as "employing H-2B workers in jobs not identified in the work order." Opp. at 27. Respondents' alleged violation ran from the period of February 1, 2013, through April 24, 2013. Therefore, since the Determination Letter was issued before April 24, 2018, this proceeding was timely commenced and is not time-barred.

Doctrine of Laches

Respondents further argue this matter is barred by the equitable doctrine of laches because the Administrator "wait[ed] an inordinately lengthy time," and the delay "substantially prejudiced Respondent[s]" because "witnesses have now dispersed and are beyond the subpoena power, and the mandatory record retention period has expired long ago." Mot. at 34. Respondents also alleged that the prevailing wage data is unavailable to the public, "thwarting Respondent's ability to defend the case." Id. The Administrator contends that laches is not available against the government unless the government engaged in affirmative misconduct, which is more than "unexplained delay." Opp. at 29-30, citing United States v. Ruby Co., 588 F.3d 697, 705 n.10 (9th Cir. 1978) and Jaa v. INS., 779 F.2d 569, 572 (9th Cir. 1986). Further, the Administrator argues that historic prevailing wage data is publically available, and Respondents presented no proof that witnesses have dispersed. Opp. at 30.

Laches is an equitable defense that may apply when a plaintiff "unreasonably delays in filing a suit and as a result harms the defendant." Nat'l R.R. Passenger Corp. v. Morgan, 536 U.S. 101, 122 (2002). The doctrine "requires proof of (1) lack of diligence by the party against whom the defense is asserted, and (2) prejudice to the party asserting the defense." Costello v. United States, 365 U.S. 265, 282 (1961); see also Couveau v. Am. Airlines, Inc., 218 F.3d 1078, 1083 (9th Cir. 2000). Further, laches is a doctrine "primarily concerned with prejudice," In re Beaty, 306 F.3d 914, 926 (9th Cir. 2002), and "[b]ecause the application of laches depends on a close evaluation of all the particular facts in a case, it is seldom susceptible of resolution by summary judgment," Couveau, 218 F.3d at 1083.

[18] The respondents in Hotelmacher, LLC made a similar claim, which Judge Almanza concluded was "untenable because the Administrator would have no way to determine the veracity of the Respondents filings at that time." Hotelmacher, LLC, slip op. at 6.

The traditional rule is that the doctrine of laches is not available against the government in a suit by it to enforce a public right or protect a public interest. United States v. Ruby Co., 588 F.2d 697, 705, n.10 (9th Cir. 1978); United States v. Angell, 292 F.3d 333, 338 (2d Cir. 2002); see also Morgan, 536 U.S. at 122, n.14 (noting in dicta that "traditionally the doctrine [of laches] may not be applied against the sovereign"); *but see NLRB v. P*I*E Nationwide, Inc.*, 894 F.2d 887, 894 (7th Cir.1990) (concluding that laches can apply to suits by the federal government in certain circumstances); Cayuga Indian Nation of N.Y. v. Pataki, 413 F.3d 266, 278 (2d Cir. 2005) (same).

Whether or not the doctrine of laches may be applied against the Administrator, Respondents have not proven that the government engaged in an unreasonable delay, or that they have been prejudiced by any delay. While it is unclear why the Administrator waited five years to issue a Determination Letter in this matter, Respondents have not shown that the Administrator failed to act with proper diligence, and have not supported their claims of prejudice with any evidence, such as affidavits or declarations. Therefore, Respondents' request that the matter be dismissed under the doctrine of laches is denied.

9. Michael Brajevich's Individual Liability

Respondents argue that there is no basis to designate Mr. Brajevich as an individual respondent because the Determination Letter indicated that the investigation was of Butler Amusements, Inc., a corporate entity, which shows that "the Administrator never intended to charge [Mr. Brajevich] with anything." Mot. at 34-35, Ex. 9. Respondents note that "[b]oth the [Form 9142] and the [Form] I-129 identified Butler Amusements, Inc., as the employer and Mr. Brajevich as the employer's contact," and that 29 C.F.R. § 655.31(a)(1) states that the "employer" is subject to administrative action.[19] Mot. at 35, Ex. 2, 3. Respondents contend "[i]f the Administrator intends to pursue Mr. Brajevich individually, then he should file an appropriate amendment, but in the meantime, a summary dismissal is warranted." Reply at 10.

The Administrator argues that individuals can be held liable under the theory of "piercing the corporate veil," and that as the parties have not yet conducted discovery, this issue is not ripe for decision. Opp. at 30, citing Adm'r, Wage & Hour Div. v. Mohan Kutty, M.D. D/B/A The Center For Internal Medicine And Pediatrics, Inc., Et Al., ALJ Nos. 2001-LCA-010 through -025, ARB No. 03-022 (ARB May 31, 2005) ("Kutty"). In Kutty, the ARB determined that imposing personal liability under the INA was warranted given the particular circumstances in that case. Kutty, ARB No. 03-022, slip op. at 17-19.

I find that whether Mr. Brajevich should be held personally liable under the INA involves factual determinations that must be resolved after hearing and cannot be resolved on summary decision. Therefore, I deny Respondents' request to dismiss Mr. Brajevich in his individual capacity.

[19] It appears that Respondents meant to refer to Title 20, and not Title 29. 20 C.F.R. § 655.31(a)(1) (2009) refers to debarment proceedings, which is not at issue in this matter. 20 C.F.R. § 655.31(a) (2015) governs the timeline for notification of deficiencies in an Application for Temporary Employment Certification (there is no subsection (1)).

ORDER

1. Respondents' Motion is denied on all grounds.

2. The parties shall participate in a telephonic hearing setting conference on November 29, 2018, at 11 a.m. Pacific time. The parties are directed to dial into our conference line at 866-764-7792 and enter Participant Code 71385064 at the designated time.

SO ORDERED.

The undersigned attorney for the Administrator hereby certifies that, pursuant to 29 C.F.R. §18.57(a)(1), she has conferred with counsel for Respondents on each discovery request involved with this Motion to Compel.

PROCEDURAL HISTORY AND AUTHORITY

On February 6, 2018, the Administrator determined Respondents substantially failed to pay nine misclassified H-2b workers for the period from February 1, 2013 to April 24, 2013. The Administrator sought $24,987.60 in backwages and a civil money penalty of $10,000. Respondents appealed the Administrator's determination.

The Administrator served Respondents with discovery requests on December 14, 2018. Exhibit A. Respondents answered discovery on January 16, 2019. Exhibit B. Following a comprehensive review of Respondents' Answers and Responses to discovery, the Administrator sent a written letter of deficiency to Respondents on January 23, 2019, detailing deficiencies to eight Requests for Admission ("RFAs"), thirteen Interrogatories ("ROGs"), and ten Requests for Production ("RFPs") . Exhibit C. A conference to discuss the discovery deficiencies was scheduled for and held on January 31, 2019. During that conference, Respondents agreed to supplement or agreed they "may" supplement[1] their discovery Answers and Responses to two RFAs, eight ROGs, and ten RFPs. Respondents refused to supplement the remaining deficient answers (six RFAs and seven ROGs).

Following the Meet and Confer conference, the Administrator sent Respondents a confirming letter on regarding all issues discussed at the January 31 conference, including the date for Respondents' supplementation of discovery of February 19, 2019. Exhibit D. Hearing nothing from Respondents by the deadline for supplementation, on February 26, 2019 the Administrator sent Respondents a final letter extending the date for supplementation to March 1, 2019. Exhibit E; Declaration of J. Gorman. Hearing no response from Respondents to date (Gorman Dec.), this Motion to Compel follows.

AUTHORITY

The Rules of Practice for Administrative Proceedings provide that "[a] party may seek discovery at any time after a judge issues an initial notice or order." 29 C.F.R. §18.50(a)(1). This Court issued its Notice of Hearing and Prehearing Order on March 28, 2018 which provides inter alia that "[f]ormal discovery may be conducted according to 29 C.F.R. Part 18 ...."

[1] During the January 31 conference, there was an extended conversation about whether Respondents "would" supplement or "may" supplement their answers and responses. The Administrator contended that the time for Respondents to consider their answers to discovery had passed and that supplementation of deficient discovery answers is required. Respondents contended that based on information provided during the Meet and Confer conference, they would revisit their answers and may or may not provide supplementation. The Administrator repeatedly expressed dissatisfaction with this position but Respondents' position on this point would not (and did not) change.

> As discovery matters are "committed almost exclusively to the sound discretion of the trial judge, appellate rulings delineating the bounds of discovery under the Rules are rare." Burns v. Thiokol Chemical Corp., 483 F.2d 300, 304-305 (5th Cir. 1973). Moreover, as the scope of discovery is variable based upon the facts and circumstances of each case, the scope should be determined on an ad hoc basis. Fed. R. Civ. P. Rule 26(b)(1), Committee Notes (2000); OFCCP v. Owens-Illinois, Inc., 1977-OFC-11 (ALJ Nov. 21, 1980). Finally, under revised Rule 26(b)(1), information is discoverable "if it is relevant to any party's claim or defense and is proportional to the needs of the case." Fed. R. Civ. P. 26(b)(1), advisory committee's note (2015).

OFCCP v. Cintas Corp., Case No. 2017-OFC-00008, p. 6 (Apr. 19, 2018) (ALJ).

Here, the Administrator seeks discoverable information related directly to Respondents' charged violation of the H-2b statute, and/or Respondents' identified defenses.

ARGUMENT

The Administrator seeks to compel Answers and Responses to all identified deficient discovery Answers and Responses, whether Respondents promised to supplement them or not.

The Administrator's letter of January 23, 2019 sets forth each of Respondents' deficiency in detail. Ex. C. While the Administrator does not wish to duplicate these arguments, a summary of each discovery request in italics and its identified deficient answer is provided here for the Court's convenience:

RFA No. 1: Respondents filed the TEC. Respondents would not admit and will not supplement.

RFA No. 2: Respondents employed H-2b workers in positions other than Amusement and Recreation Attendants. Respondents would not admit and will not supplement.

RFA No. 3: Respondents provided their H-2b workers with free housing. Respondents would not admit and will not supplement.

ROG No. 9: If you disagree with the Administrator's computation of backwages due, identify and explain your reasons. Respondents failed to answer and will not supplement.

ROG No. 10: If you disagree with the amount of civil money penalty computed, identify and explain your reasons. Respondents failed to answer and will not supplement.

ROG No. 11: State each offset or credit you are seeking. Respondents failed to answer and promised to supplement.

ROG No. 12: Explain your corporate structure. Respondents failed to answer and promised to supplement.

ROG No. 14: Explain your method of paying H-2b workers. Respondents failed to answer and promised to supplement.

ROG No. 15: Identify each person involved with paying H-2b workers. Respondents failed to answer and may supplement.

RFP No. 1: Unless admitted, produce documentation supporting your answer to RFA No. 4 (the housing provided by Respondent to H-2b workers had no permanent address). Respondents did not answer, produced no documents, and promised to supplement.

RFP No. 2: Unless admitted, produce documentation supporting your answer to RFA No. 5 (Respondents employed the same recurrent H-2b workers). Respondents did not answer, produced no documents, and promised to supplement.

RFP No. 3: Unless admitted, produce documentation supporting your answer to RFA No. 6 (Respondents didn't hire domestic (non-H-2b workers) for the TEC here). Respondents did not answer, produced no documents, and promised to supplement.

RFP No. 5: Unless admitted, produce documentation supporting your answer to RFA No. 9

(Respondents paid H-2b workers a salary regardless of hours worked). Respondents did not answer, produced no documents, and may supplement.

RFP No. 6: Unless admitted, produce documentation supporting your answer to RFA No. 10 (Respondents did not keep payroll records of hours, days, and locations worked by H-2b workers). Respondents did not answer, produced no documents, and promised to supplement.

RFP No. 7: Provide each document related to your answer to ROG No. 2 (Respondents employed H-2b workers in positions other than Amusement and Recreation Attendants). Respondents did not answer, produced no documents, and promised to supplement.

RFP No. 8: Provide each document related to your answer to ROG No. 5 (housing credit or offset sought). Respondents did not answer, produced not documents, and promised to supplement.

RFP No. 9: Provide each document related to your answer to ROG No. 11 (each legal offset or credit sought). Respondents did not answer, produced no documents, and promised to supplement.

RFP No. 10: Provide each document related to your answer to ROG No. 14 (method of paying each H-2b worker). Respondents did not answer, produced no documents, and promised to supplement.

REMEDIES

Varied remedies are available to the OALJ for a party's failure to comply with responding in good faith to properly propounded discovery requests. Some such remedies include granting a default judgment for failure to respond to discovery following uncomplied with Orders to Compel (Supervan, Inc., 2002 WL 31189136, ARB Case No. 00-008, ALJ Case No. 94-SCA-14 (ARB 2002)), dismissing an action for failure to comply with discovery requests (Walia v. The Veritas Healthcare Solutions LLC, 2015 WL 1005045, ARB Case No. 14-002, ALJ Case No. 2013-LCA-005 (ARB 2015)), prohibiting a party from introducing evidence which should have been disclosed in discovery as a reasonable sanction for failure to comply with discovery requests (Cefalu v. Roadway Express, Inc., 2006 WL 2852115, ARB Case Nos. 04-103, 04-161, ALJ Case Nos. 2003-STA-55 (ARB 2006)), and deeming the RFAs admitted even if such action results in a default judgment because there are no longer any issues for trial (Canterbury v. Admin., 2004 LW 3038067, ARB Case No. 03-135, ALJ Case No. 02-SCA-11 (ARB 2004)).

Here, the Administrator requests an order compelling Respondents' Answers and Responses to discovery requests. Despite detailed information about each of Respondents' discovery deficiencies, a detailed conference which was confirmed in writing, and two additional extensions for Respondents' supplementation beyond the discovery period, Respondents still have not complied with their discovery obligations, and the Administrator is denied the information and documentation needed to prepare this matter for a hearing.

CONCLUSION

Respectfully, the Administrator prays this Court to compel Respondents' Answers and Responses to the Administrator's discovery.

DATED this 13th day of March, 2019.

13

FROM: Butler Amusements, Inc., and Michael Brajevich, Respondents

TO: Administrator, Wage & Hour Division, Plaintiff

Butler Amusements, Inc., and Michael Brajevich, Respondents, respond to Plaintiff's request for admissions as follows:

A. The information supplied in these responses is not based solely upon the knowledge of this party, but includes the knowledge of this party's agents, representatives, and counsel, unless privileged.

B. The word usage and sentence structure is that of counsel, who in fact prepared these answers. The language does not purport to be the exact language of this party.

C. These requests for admission have been interpreted and answered in accordance with the Rules of Procedure and plain English usage. To the extent the definitions or instructions included with the requests for admission are inconsistent therewith, this party disavows any intention to abide by them.

REQUEST NO. 1: You filed a Temporary Employment Certification ("TEC") under 8 U.S.C. § 1101 (a) (15) (H) (ii) (b) ("H-2B") which was certified on December 14, 2012.

Response No. 1: Respondents admit that Butler Amusements, Inc., filed an ETA Form 9142 that was certified by a letter dated December 14, 2012. The request is otherwise denied.

REQUEST NO. 2: You employed H-2B Workers in positions other than as Amusement and Recreation Attendants.

Response No. 2: Objection. This request is not limited in time, and is therefore largely irrelevant. Without waiving this objection, the request is denied as to the 2013 allegations in this case. The request is otherwise denied.

REQUEST NO. 3: You provided free housing to each of your H-2B Workers.

Response No. 3: Objection. This request is not limited in time, and is therefore largely irrelevant. Without waiving this objection, Respondents admit that, during the 2013 season, they provided H-2B workers with housing for which the H-2B workers did not pay a deduction, chargeback, or rent. The request is otherwise denied.

REQUEST NO. 4: The housing you provided to your H-2B Workers had no permanent address.

Response No. 4: Objection. This request is not limited in time, and is therefore largely irrelevant. Without waiving this objection,Respondents admit that the housing that they provided during the 2013 season was used at various locations. The request is otherwise denied.

REQUEST NO. 5: You have employed one or more of your H-2B Workers prior to your 2013 season.

Response No. 5: Objection. This request is not limited in time, and is therefore largely irrelevant. Without waiving this objection,Respondents admit that Butler Amusements, Inc., participated in the H-2B program before the 2013 season. The request is otherwise denied.

REQUEST NO. 6: You hired no domestic employee (non-H-2B Worker) to work in your employment during the Period of Intended Employment.

Response No. 6: Denied.

REQUEST NO. 7: Michael (Mick) Brajavich [sic] controlled Butler Amusements, Inc. for at least the Period of Intended Employment.

Response No. 7: Objection. The term "controlled" is not defined. Without waiving this objection, Respondents admit that Michael Brajevich served as Butler's chief executive officer during the 2013 season. The request is otherwise denied.

REQUEST NO. 8: Some of your H-2B Workers were in Santa Barbara on April 23, 2013.

Response No. 8: Admitted.

REQUEST NO. 9: You paid your H-2B Workers a weekly salary regardless of the number of hours worked.

Response No. 9: Objection. This request is not limited in time, and is therefore largely irrelevant. Without waiving this objection, the request is denied.

REQUEST NO. 10: You did not keep records of the hours, days, and locations your H-2B Workers worked.

Response No. 10: Objection. This request is not limited in time, and is therefore largely irrelevant. Without waiving this objection, the request is denied.

Attorney for Respondents

January 16, 2019

FROM: Butler Amusements, Inc., and Michael Brajevich, Respondents

TO: Administrator, Wage & Hour Division, Plaintiff

Butler Amusements, Inc., and Michael Brajevich, Respondents, answer the Plaintiff's interrogatories and say:

A. The information supplied in these answers is not based solely upon the knowledge of the executing party, but includes the knowledge of the party's agents, representatives, and attorneys, unless privileged.

B. The word usage and sentence structure is that of the attorneys who in fact prepared these answers and language does not purport to be the exact language of the executing party.

C. These interrogatories have been interpreted and answered in accordance with the Rules of Procedure and plain English usage. To the extent the definitions and instructions included with the interrogatories are inconsistent therewith, this party disavows any intention to abide by them.

D. Defendant objects to the interrogatories to the extent that they purport to require answers on behalf of any entity other than this Defendant.

INTERROGATORY NO. 1: Unless you unconditionally admitted Request for Admission No. 1, provide the basis or bases upon which you rely for each part of your denial of Request for Admission No. 1.

ANSWER NO. 1: In addition to the basis obvious from the answer itself, the basis for the conditional answer is that the request was overbroad and included false statements or implications. The request also exceeded the permissible bounds for a request for admission of facts.

INTERROGATORY NO. 2: Unless you unconditionally admitted Request for Admission No. 2, provide the basis or bases upon which you rely for each part of your denial of Request for Admission No. 2.

ANSWER NO. 2: In addition to the basis obvious from the answer itself, the basis for the conditional answer is that the request was overbroad and included false statements or implications. The request also exceeded the permissible bounds for a request for admission of facts.

INTERROGATORY NO. 3: Unless you unconditionally admitted Request for Admission No. 3, provide the basis or bases upon which you rely for each part of your denial of Request for Admission No. 3.

ANSWER NO. 3: In addition to the basis obvious from the answer itself, the basis for the conditional answer is that the request was overbroad and included false statements or implications. The request also exceeded the permissible bounds for a request for admission of facts.

INTERROGATORY NO. 4: Unless you unconditionally admitted Request for Admission No. 7, provide the basis or bases upon which you rely for each part of your denial of Request for Admission No. 7.

ANSWER NO. 4: In addition to the basis obvious from the answer itself, the basis for the conditional answer is that the request was overbroad and included false statements or implications. The request also exceeded the permissible bounds for a request for admission of facts.

INTERROGATORY NO. 5: If you are seeking a credit or other offset for furnishing housing to any of your H-2B Workers, please state the address of each housing furnished, the name of each of your H-2B Workers who resided in such housing, the time period of each of your H-2B Workers' residence, and the cost of the housing to you.

ANSWER NO. 5: Objection. This request is not limited in time or to the implicated workers, and is therefore largely irrelevant. Without waiving this objection, housing was made available at locations reflected on Butler's itinerary and previously produced. Each of the 9 implicated workers lived in the housing during the 2013 season. Respondents are still identifying and preparing cost documentation, and this answer will be supplemented.

INTERROGATORY NO. 6: Explain each basis upon which you rely for establishing your offered wage rate during the Period of Intended Employment.

ANSWER NO. 6: Objection. This interrogatory calls for a legal conclusions not appropriate for interrogatories. Without waiving this objection, "offered wage" is a term of art, and by definition, the basis for the offered wage rate is the ETA Form 9142.

INTERROGATORY NO. 7: Please identify each of your H-2B Workers. (For the purposes of this Interrogatory, the term "identify" shall include but not be limited to each H-2B Worker's: name, last known contact information [address, phone, e-mail address]; job title; job duties; supervisor; rate of pay; method of pay, and period of employment with you for the Period of Intended Employment.)

ANSWER NO. 7: Objection. This request is not limited in time or to the implicated workers, and is therefore largely irrelevant. Without waiving this objection, Butler's H-2B workers for the 2013 season were identified in the records already produced for inspection. Specifically, contact information is contained in the Excel spreadsheet for the 2013 H-2B workers.

INTERROGATORY NO. 8: Please identify each practice referenced in your statement that you follow "prevailing practices for the Traveling Amusement Industry in regards to housing, transportation and weekly salary for workers" on page 5, § G of your ETA Form 9142B.

ANSWER NO. 8: This statement indicates that Butler availed itself, as permitted under the 2008 rules, to follow industry practice to provide housing, in and out of country travel, and local convenience travel for a credit, and to use a prepayment plan for compensating wages. Respondents were also entitled to credits for providing visa and inspection fees, and bonuses or merit pay.

INTERROGATORY NO. 9: If you dispute any of the Secretary's computations of backwages to your H-2B Workers (attached as EXHIBIT A), please identify and explain each such dispute.

ANSWER NO. 9: Objection. The Administrator has not explained how those calculations were made, so it is not possible to answer this interrogatory. Further, by its very nature, once a dispute is acknowledged, there is nothing remaining to "identify and explain."

Without waiving this objection, Respondents believe that the Administrator made no allowance for proper credits (including for the duration of the season), nor the issues identified in Respondents' motion for summary judgment, including:

- The unenforceability of the 2008 regulations.
- The binding nature of ETA's prevailing wages.
- The absence of enforceable regulatory requirements.
- It is not necessary to identify every single job task when applying for a prevailing wage.
- The H-2B workers were entitled to work minor or incidental duties outside of their designated job code up to 20% of their time.
- The H-2B workers were entitled to work up to 80% of their time supervising others in the same job code.

INTERROGATORY NO. 10: If you dispute the amount of the civil money penalties assessed in this matter, please identify each such dispute.

ANSWER NO. 10: Objection. The Administrator has not explained how those calculations were made, so it is not possible to answer this interrogatory. Further, by its very nature, once a dispute is acknowledged, there is nothing remaining to "identify." Without waiving this objection, Respondents simply state that they identify the dispute by acknowledging that they dispute the amount.

INTERROGATORY NO. 11: Please state each legal offset or other credit you are seeking or expect to seek in this matter to reduce your financial liability. (If you are seeking a housing credit, you need not repeat any information you included in your Answer to Interrogatory No. 5.)

ANSWER NO. 11: This information was already provided in other answers.

INTERROGATORY NO. 12: Please explain your corporate structure with such information to include but not limited to: each principal with their name, title, job duties, and corporate address; the address of each entity; whether any principal has an interest in any other entity; the dates each entity has been in legal existence, whether any entity has a website, and if so, the website address.

ANSWER NO. 12: Objection. This request is not limited in time, and is therefore largely irrelevant. Without waiving this objection, Butler's chief executive officer is Michael Brajevich. The Board of Directors consists of Michael Brajevich, Lance Moyer, and Tom Shobaken. Corporate shares are owned by Tammy Quint, Kelly Butler, Kris Brajevich, Jill Moyer, and Sean Butler.

INTERROGATORY NO. 13: If any information you indicated in your TEC has changed since filing, please identify and explain each such change. (For purposes of this Interrogatory, the term "identify and explain" shall include but not be limited to: an identification of the change, the location (form name, part or subsection, and page number) of each piece of changed information; the reason why the information changed (if any); and the individual or individuals responsible for each such piece of changed information.)

ANSWER NO. 13: Objection. This request is not limited in time, and is therefore largely irrelevant. Without waiving this objection, Respondents are not aware of any information in their ETA Form 9142 for the 2013 season that was not accurate at the time the form was submitted.

INTERROGATORY NO. 14: Please explain your method of paying each of your H-2B Workers. (For purposes of this interrogatory only, the term "explain your method of paying" shall include but not be limited to: how you determine the amount of pay, the name and title of each person who dispenses pay; the method of payment (such as whether cash, check, electronic funds transfer, or any other method), whether payment is made to all H-2B Workers at the same time; the name and title of the individual who determines who will be paid first; if pay is contained in an envelope, the name and title of each of your employees who handled the envelope before it is given to each H-2B Worker, and; whether all H-2B Workers are paid on the same day.)

ANSWER NO. 14: Objection. This request is not limited in time or to the implicated workers, and is therefore largely irrelevant. Without waiving this objection, in 2013, Butler's H-2B employees in 2013 were paid in cash on Sunday. They countersigned their pay statement, and the pay statements were sent to the Beaverton office.

INTERROGATORY NO. 15: Please identify each person involved in paying your H-2B Workers.

ANSWER NO. 15: Objection. This request is not limited in time or to the implicated workers, and is therefore largely irrelevant. Without waiving this objection, in 2013, Butler is the employer and was responsible for paying.

INTERROGATORY NO. 20 [sic]: Are you able to meet your financial obligations?

ANSWER NO. 20 [sic]: Objection. This request is not limited in time or to the implicated workers, and is therefore largely irrelevant. It also appears to go to collectibility, for which discovery is inappropriate at least until an adverse judgment is obtained. Without waiving this objection, in 2013, Butler satisfied DHS's definition of financial viability.

I, Michael Brajevich, am chief executive officer of BUTLER AMUSEMENTS, INC., and am duly authorized by the corporation to execute these answers to interrogatories under oath on its behalf. The information set forth in these answers was collected by others and such information is not necessarily within my personal knowledge. FROM: Butler Amusements, Inc., and Michael Brajevich, Respondents

Butler Amusements, Inc., and Michael Brajevich, Respondents, respond to Plaintiff's request for production of documents as follows:

GENERAL OBJECTIONS

A. These parties object to producing any documents requested that are privileged, including those protected by the attorney-client privilege and/or the work-product doctrine.

B. These parties object to those instructions and definitions set forth in the Request for Production of Documents that exceed the scope of the rules of procedure.

C. These parties object to the production schedule in the document requests. These parties will produce documents responsive to the Request for Production of Documents as they are kept in the usual course of business at the offices of The Pierce Law Firm, LLC, 133 Defense Highway, Suite 201, Annapolis, Maryland 21401-7015, on a date and at a time agreeable to counsel.

D. The statement that "documents will be produced" is not a representation that responsive documents exist, have ever existed, or can be found, only that such responsive documents as may be located will be provided.

REQUESTS AND RESPONSES

REQUEST NO. 1: If you did not unconditionally admit Request for Admission No. 4, please produce each document upon which you rely for each part of your denial of Request for Admission No. 4.

Response No. 1: In addition to the basis obvious from the answer itself, the basis for the conditional answer is that the request was overbroad and included false statements or implications. The request also exceeded the permissible bounds for a request for admission of facts.

REQUEST NO. 2: If you did not unconditionally admit Request for Admission No. 5, please produce each document upon which you rely for each part of your denial of Request for Admission No. 5.

Response No. 2: In addition to the basis obvious from the answer itself, the basis for the conditional answer is that the request was overbroad and included false statements or implications. The request also exceeded the permissible bounds for a request for admission of facts.

REQUEST NO. 3: If you did not unconditionally admit Request for Admission No. 6, please produce each document upon which you rely for each part of your denial of Request for Admission No. 6.

Response No. 3: Objection. It is unduly burdensome to produce "each" document to prove that Butler hired U.S. workers at some undisclosed point in time in the past. Without waiving this objection, this is readily apparent from the payroll and timekeeping records already produced.

REQUEST NO. 4: If you did not unconditionally admit Request for Admission No. 8, please produce each document upon which you rely for each part of your denial of Request for Admission No. 8.

Response No. 4: Objection. It is not possible to answer this request further as it is currently phrased.

REQUEST NO. 5: If you did not unconditionally admit Request for Admission No. 9, please produce each document upon which you rely for each part of your denial of Request for Admission No. 9.

Response No. 5: Respondents have already produced their payroll. Discovery continues and this response will be supplemented as needed.

REQUEST NO. 6: If you did not unconditionally admit Request for Admission No. 10, please produce each document upon which you rely for each part of your denial of Request for Admission No. 10.

Response No. 6: Respondents have already produced voluminous timekeeping records.

REQUEST NO. 7: Produce each document which relates to your Answer to Interrogatory No. 2.

Response No. 7: Objection. This request is so overbroad as to be impossible to answer. Without waiving this objection, Respondents believe that any documents identified in the interrogatory answers have already been produced.

REQUEST NO. 8: Produce each document which supports, contradicts, and/or relates to your Answer to Interrogatory No. 5. (For purposes of this Interrogatory, the records requested by this Interrogatory shall include but not be limited to documentation that: substantiates the cost of the housing furnished; substantiates the value of the housing furnished, and; demonstrates each of your H-2B Workers' voluntary and uncoerced acceptance of the housing furnished.)

Response No. 8: Discovery continues and this response will be supplemented as needed.

REQUEST NO. 9: Produce each document which supports or contradicts your Answer to Interrogatory No. 11.

Response No. 9: Objection. Those credits or offsets that Respondents claim have already been identified, and Respondents are not aware of further documents (other than the pleadings in this case) to substantiate the fact of what they are claiming in this case.

REQUEST NO. 10: Produce each document which supports or contradicts your Answer to Interrogatory No. 14.

Response No. 10: Discovery continues and this response will be supplemented as needed.

REQUEST NO. 11: Produce each statement (whether written, electronic, audio, or in some other format) upon which you will rely which was made by and/or taken by you from any person with knowledge of the relevant facts relating to the prosecution and/or defense of this matter.

Response No. 11: Objection. Statements made by individuals other than the parties are not discoverable. Suggs v. Whitaker, 152 F.R.D. 501, 505 (M.D.N.C. 1993) (no discovery of witness statements); Fernandes v. United Fruit Co., 50 F.R.D. 82, 83-84 (D.Md. 1970) (no discovery of those persons from whom a statement was taken); Board of Educ. v. Heating & Ventilating, Inc., 104 F.R.D. 23, 32 (N.D. Ill. 1984) (interrogator cannot ask who was interviewed and whether a statement was prepared); Uinta Oil Refining Co. v. Continental Oil Co., 226 F.Supp. 495, 500, 505-06 (D.Utah 1964) (no discovery of those persons from whom a statement was requested or taken); Buining v. The Transporter, 171 F. Supp. 127, 133 (D.Md. 1959) (court disallowed interrogatory seeking identity of any person who had given a written statement to the opponent); O'Brien v. Equitable life Assur. Soc'y, 13 F.R.D. 475, 477 (W.D. Mo. 1953) (same). Notwithstanding this objection, defendant is not aware of any such documents generated in the ordinary course of business. Respondents reserve the right to produce such statements as part of its exhibit list.

REQUEST NO. 12: Produce each document you have filed or otherwise submitted to any governmental organization (foreign or domestic) regarding your intent to employ H-2B workers for the 2019 season.

Response No. 12: Objection. This request does not seek information likely to lead to admissible evidence. Without waiving this objection, Respondents will produce their ETA Form 9142 and I-129 for the 2019 season.

RE: Administrator v. Butler, et al.
Case No. 2018-TNE-19
Our SOL#: 09021900029

Dear Mr. Pierce:

I am in receipt of Respondents' Answers and Responses to The Administrator's discovery requests which you emailed me on January 16, 2019. By copy of this letter, I am requesting clarification, specificity, and immediate supplementation of your deficient Answers and Responses. I have two primary concerns: (1) I am concerned that Respondents' willfully ignored defined terms yet reference the Definitions section for common terms for which a definition is not provided, and; (2) I am concerned that Respondents have intentionally disregarded their obligations under the discovery rules by providing answers and responses which are largely unresponsive. It would be an abuse of the discovery process for Respondents to intentionally provide groundless objections and unresponsive answers so as to require the Administrator to seek a formal remedy to secure answers and responses to properly propounded discovery.

Those discovery answers and responses which are deficient are:

Request for Admission ("RFA") No. 1: You admitted to filing the TEC and confirmed the date it was certified but "otherwise denied" the request. Given your admission of the substance of this request, your statement that you are denying this RFA is incomprehensible. Please clarify which portion of the RFA you are denying.

RFA No. 2: You state this request is not limited in time but disregard that the term "H-2B Workers" used in the RFA is a defined term with temporal limitation (see p. 3 of discovery propounded to you) limited to those workers who entered the country under the TEC at issue in this case. Given the lack of foundation for your objection, please clarify that your Answer is unchanged. Respondents' objection that the RFA is "largely irrelevant" and "otherwise denied" is incomprehensible and will be ignored.

RFA No. 3: You state this request is not limited in time but disregard that the term "H-2B Workers" used in the RFA is a defined term (see p. 3) limited to those workers who entered the country under the TEC at issue in this case. Given the lack of foundation for your objection, please clarify that your Answer is unchanged. Respondents' objection that the RFA is "largely irrelevant" and "otherwise denied" is incomprehensible and will be ignored.

RFA No. 4: You state this request is not limited in time but disregard that the term "H-2B Workers" used in the RFA is a defined term (see p. 3) limited to those workers who entered the country under the TEC at issue in this case. Given the lack of foundation for your objection, please clarify that your Answer is unchanged. This RFA asked about whether your housing had a permanent address but you answered that 'housing was used at various locations.' It is unclear whether you are are admitting, denying, or even answering the question asked. Further, Respondents' objection that the RFA is "largely irrelevant" and "otherwise denied" is incomprehensible and will be ignored.

RFA No. 5: Given that you appear to have disregarded the definition of the term "H-2B Worker" and thus may have misapprehended this discovery request, please confirm that your answer remains unchanged.

RFA No. 7: The term "controlled" has its regular meaning. Please clarify which portion of this Answer is denied.

RFA No. 9: You state this request is not limited in time but disregard that the term "H-2B Workers" used in the RFA is a defined term (see p. 3) limited to those workers who entered the country under the TEC at issue in this case. Given the lack of foundation for your objection, please clarify that your Answer is unchanged. Respondents' objection that the RFA is "largely irrelevant" and "otherwise denied" is incomprehensible and will be ignored.

RFA No. 10: You state this request is not limited in time but disregard that the term "H-2B Workers" used in the RFA is a defined term (see p. 3) limited to those workers who entered the country under the TEC at issue in this case. Given the lack of foundation for your objection, please clarify that your Answer is unchanged. Respondents' objection that the RFA is "largely irrelevant" and "otherwise denied" is incomprehensible and will be ignored.

Interrogatory ("ROG") No. 1: You state three objections but each is incomprehensible. You first state that "[i]n addition to the basis obvious from the answer itself, the basis for the conditional answer is..." yet there is no "basis obvious from the answer itself" because you admitted the substance of RFA No. 1. Secondly, you state that the request "was overbroad and included false statements or implications." These are not objections which were lodged to RFA No. 1 (nor is an objection that the request 'includes false statements or implications' a recognized objection) and I cannot understand how unobjected-to form issues could serve as the basis or bases of your denial particularly given your obligation to answer the interrogatory pursuant to 29 C.F.R. §18.60. Finally, you state that the "request also exceeded the permissible bounds for a request for admission of facts" yet you do not explain what this means or how it forms the basis or bases of your denial. It appears you are using unrecognizable objections to avoid answering a properly propounded Interrogatory.

ROG No. 2: You state three objections but each is incomprehensible. You first state that "[i]n addition to the basis obvious from the answer itself, the basis for the conditional answer is..." yet there is no "basis obvious from the answer itself" because you (1) denied RFA No. 2 on your mistaken belief that it is irrelevant because it is not limited in time. However, the RFA is limited in time and you simply ignored the Definition of the term with which you took issue. Secondly, you state that the request "was overbroad and included false statements or implications." These are not objections which were lodged to RFA No. 2 (nor is an objection that the request 'includes false statements or implications' a recognized objection) and I cannot understand how unobjected-to form issues could serve as the basis or bases of your denial particularly given your obligation to answer the interrogatory pursuant to 29 C.F.R. §18.60. Finally, you state that the "request also exceeded the permissible bounds for a request for admission of facts" yet you do not explain what this means or how it forms the basis or bases of your denial. It appears you are using unrecognizable objections to avoid answering a properly propounded Interrogatory.

ROG No. 3: You state three objections but each is incomprehensible. You first state that "[i]n addition to the basis obvious from the answer itself, the basis for the conditional answer is..." yet there is no "basis obvious from the answer itself" because you (1) admitted the substance of RFA No. 3. Regarding your objection, the RFA is limited in time and you simply ignored the Definition of the term with which you took issue. Secondly, you state that the request "was overbroad and included false statements or implications." These are not objections which were lodged to RFA No. 3 (nor is an objection that the request 'includes false statements or implications' a recognized objection) and I cannot understand how unobjected-to form issues could serve as the basis or bases of your denial particularly given your obligation to answer the interrogatory pursuant to 29 C.F.R. §18.60. Finally, you state that the "request also exceeded the permissible bounds for a request for admission of facts" yet you do not explain what this means or how it forms the basis or bases of your denial. It appears you are using unrecognizable objections to avoid answering a properly propounded Interrogatory.

ROG No. 4: You state three objections but each is incomprehensible. You first state that "[i]n addition to the basis obvious from the answer itself, the basis for the conditional answer is..." yet there is no "basis obvious from the answer itself" because you (1) denied the substance of RFA No. 7. You state that the request "was overbroad and included false statements or implications." These are not objections which were lodged to RFA No. 7 (nor is an objection that the request 'includes false statements or implications' a recognized objection) and I cannot understand how unobjected-to form issues could serve as the basis or bases of your denial particularly given your obligation to answer the interrogatory pursuant to 29 C.F.R. §18.60. You also state that the "request also exceeded the permissible bounds for a request for admission of facts" yet you do not explain what this means or how it forms the basis or bases of your denial. It appears you are using unrecognizable objections to avoid answering a properly propounded Interrogatory.

ROG No. 5: You state the "request is not limited in time or to the implicated workers, and is therefore largely irrelevant." However, the request is limited in time and you simply ignored the Definitions section which applies to the term "H-2b Workers." You further state that you are "still identifying and preparing cost documentation, and this answer will be supplemented." Your response is flawed for two main reasons. First, the time period between when discovery is propounded and when it is due to be answered provides the answering party with adequate time to secure the requested information. In this case, you never approached me to ask for an extension of time. Second, your response that you are "still identifying and preparing ... documentation" for an offset to wages paid in 2013 is inconsistent with your (assumed) position that you applied a housing offset to the wages of your workers. Either you paid H-2b Workers according to the law in 2013 with a housing offset, or, you did not apply a housing offset and paid H-2b Workers according to the wages set forth in your TEC. It cannot be that you paid your H-2b Workers their hourly wage rate and applied an offset for housing without having the documentation to substantiate your offset for housing pursuant to 29 U.S.C. §203(m) and 29 C.F.R. Part 531. Please answer Interrogatory No. 5 immediately.

ROG No. 6: This Interrogatory specifically asks you for the basis of the wage rate you established to comply with the H-2b program. Respondents provided uncontrolling and/or inapplicable authority, and objected on the basis that the interrogatory called for "a legal conclusions [sic]" but there is no such objection where the legal issue referenced in the propounded discovery is related to the facts of the case. Thomas v. Cate, 715 F.Supp.2d 1012, 1029-30 (E.D.Cal. 2010); San Diego Unified Port District v. National Union Fire Insurance Company of Pittsburg, PA, 2017 WL 3877732 (S.D.C.A. 2017); Holland v. GMAC Mortgage, 2005 WL 1285678 *3, Civ.A.03–2666–CM–DJW (D. Kan. 5/27/2005))." Id. Sonnino v. Univ. of Kan. Hosp. Auth., 220 F.R.D. 633, 648 (D.Kan. 2004) ("that a discovery request 'calls for a legal conclusion' is not valid objection"); see also WhitServe LLC v. Computer Patent Annuities N. America, 2006 WL 1273740 *2, 2006 U.S. Dist. LEXIS 27048 *6 (D.Conn. 2006) (party may even "demand that its opponent state exactly what its claims are, even asking for legal conclusions or opinions") (citing S.S. White Burs, Inc. v. Palm Beach Tours & Transp., Inc., 242 F.R.D. 685, 688 (S.D.Fla. 2007) ("Defendants objection that the subject interrogatories ... call for a legal conclusion is unavailing"); Campbell v. Washington, 2009 WL 577599 *3, 2009 U.S. Dist. LEXIS 21718 *7 (W.D.Wash. 2009) (The Federal Rules expressly direct that "[a]n interrogatory is not objectionable merely because it asks for an opinion or contention that relates to fact or the application of law to fact"); Sellick Equip. v. United States, 18 C.I.T. 352, 355 (Ct. Int'l. Trade 1994) (same) (citing Diversified Prods. Corp. v. Sports Center Co., 42 F.R.D. 3, 5 (D.Md. 1967)). Please answer Interrogatory No. 6 immediately.

ROG No. 7: You state the "request is not limited in time or to the implicated workers, and is therefore largely irrelevant." However, the request is limited in time and you simply ignored the Definitions section which applies to the term "H-2b Workers." You also state that the information sought is in a document you contend you already produced to the Administrator, however you do not define or identify that document. I am unaware of any authority which requires the propounding party to choose which document an answering party is referencing. Mancini v. Insurance Corp. of New York, 2009 WL 1765295, *2 (S.D.Cal. 2009) (cited cases and footnotes omitted). If you intend to convenience Respondents by referring to a specific document, you have the obligation to reproduce it, provide it at your convenience, or specifically identify it, not refer to it obliquely. Please answer Interrogatory No. 7 immediately.

ROG No. 9: You have failed to answer this Interrogatory. The Administrator will object to any attempt by Respondents to produce any evidence at hearing which should have been produced in response to discovery and was not.

ROG No. 10: You have failed to answer this Interrogatory. The Administrator will object to any attempt by Respondents to produce any evidence at hearing which should have been produced in response to discovery and was not.

ROG No. 11: You state that you provided this information but no specific information was provided. See specificity requirements set forth supra in discussing ROG No. 7. Having failed to answer this Interrogatory, the Administrator will object to any attempt by Respondents to produce any evidence at hearing which should have been produced in response to discovery and was not.

ROG No. 12: You have failed to provide all information requested. Please provide the required Response to this ROG immediately.

ROG No. 14: You have failed to provide all information requested. Please provide the required Response to this ROG immediately.

ROG No. 15: This Interrogatory requests you identify each person involved in paying your H-2b Workers. You ignored the question asked in your Answer. Please provide the required Response to this ROG immediately.

Request for Production ("RFP") No. 1: Your Response to RFP No. 1 is inapposite to the request for production propounded. Please provide the required Response to this RFP immediately.

RFP No. 2: Your Response to RFP No. 2 is inapposite to the request for production propounded. Please provide the required Response to this RFP immediately.

RFP No. 3: You appear to characterize the Administrator's discovery request as a contention interrogatory but ignore that this this RFP asks you to "produce each document upon which you rely" for your Answer to RFA No. 6. Your Response to RFP No. 3 is inapposite to the request for production propounded. Please supplement this Answer immediately.

RFP No. 5: You appear to misapprehend the purpose of discovery which is to produce requested information. Please provide the required Response to this RFP immediately.

RFP No. 6: Your Response is inconsistent with other Answers and Responses. In some instances you state the information will be supplemented, forthcoming, or has already been provided, but fail to specify when and where in a manner which would permit the Administrator to identify the document(s) you reference. I am unaware of any authority which requires the propounding party to choose which document an answering party is referencing. Mancini v. Insurance Corp. of New York, 2009 WL 1765295, *2 (S.D.Cal. 2009) (cited cases and footnotes omitted). If you intend to convenience Respondents by referring to a specific document, you have the obligation to specifically identify it or, at your convenience, provide it, not refer to it obliquely. Please answer RFP No. 6 immediately.

RFP No. 7: Because you have failed to specify any responsive documents, I will assume there are no documents responsive to this RFP.

RFP No. 8: Because you have failed to specify any responsive documents, I will assume there are no documents responsive to this RFP.

RFP No. 9: Because you have failed to specify any responsive documents, I will assume there are no documents responsive to this RFP.

RFP No. 10: Because you have failed to specify any responsive documents, I will assume there are no documents responsive to this RFP.

RFP No. 11: If the requested documentation is within Respondents' custody or control, you have the obligation to produce it. I don't understand your Response that you are "not aware of any such documents [but] ... reserve the right to produce such statements..." Either the documents exist now, in which case they are producible, or they do not exist and you create them prior to trial for trial in which case they are producible at the moment of creation pursuant to the operation of 29 C.F.R. §18.53. Furthermore, the cases you cite do not stand for the propositions you ascribe to them, are so old and pre-date modern amendments to the FRCPs that they are inapposite, decide matters in accordance with local practice not applicable here, and/or apply to cases outside the H-2b context.

I have set forth the Administrator's position in writing to ensure that when we discuss these matters, we can have a meaningful conversation. I propose a telephone conference on Wednesday, January 30, 2019 at 11:00 a.m. Pacific, 2:00 p.m. Eastern. If you are not available, kindly propose a different date/time. Should you wish to provide a written response, please permit me to receive it no later than noon Pacific on January 29, 2019.

Thank you for your cooperation.

RE: Administrator v. Butler, et al.
Case No. 2018-TNE-19
Our SOL#: 09021900029

Dear Mr. Pierce:

On January 31, 2019, you and I held a meet and confer conference to discuss the issues I raised in my letter to you of January 23, 2019. While I cannot summarize the entirety of our conversation throughout our 3+ hour call, I do include my limitations on specific discovery requests and Respondents' response and intention to supplement.

You and I had an extensive discussion about whether Respondents will, will not, or may supplement their answer. I explained that: if Respondents "will" supplement their answer, I will await supplementation; if Respondents "will not" supplement their answer, I will consider more formal action; if Respondents "may" supplement their answer, I expect to be notified immediately. I did not agree that your position that Respondents' may supplement is appropriate. Regarding discovery requests which you indicated you "may" supplement, you stated that you would review Respondents' records and if an answer could be supplemented, you would provide supplementation. I told you, quite frankly, that I believe this position was inconsistent with Respondents' obligations under the discovery rules because in the time period after discovery was propounded to you and before your answers and responses were due, you had this duty. You neither agreed nor disagreed with me.

RFA No. 1: Respondents will not supplement their answer.

RFA No. 2: Respondents will not supplement their answer.

RFA No. 3: You indicated that "free" housing was provided to employees for a credit. Other than this explanation, Respondents will not supplement their answer.

RFA No. 4: Respondents will not supplement their answer.

RFA No. 5: Respondents may supplement their answer.

D

RFA No. 7: Respondents will not supplement their answer.

RFA No. 9: Respondents will not supplement their answer.

RFA No. 10: Respondents will supplement their answer.

ROG No. 1: Respondents will not supplement their answer.

ROG No. 2: Respondents will supplement their answer. We discussed that a responsive answer to this interrogatory includes the specific duties of each position you contend employees were employed in.

ROG No. 3: Respondents will supplement their answer.

ROG No. 4: Respondents will supplement their answer.

ROG No. 5: After discussion, I agreed to limit this interrogatory to the time period for which backwages were sought in this matter. Respondents may supplement their answer.

ROG No. 6: Respondents will not supplement their answer.

ROG No. 7: Respondents will not supplement their answer.

ROG No. 9: Respondents will not supplement their answer.

ROG No. 10: Respondents will not supplement their answer.

ROG No. 11: Respondents will supplement their answer.

ROG No. 12: Respondents will supplement their answer.

ROG No. 14: Respondents will supplement their answer.

ROG No. 15: Respondents may supplement their answer.

RFP No. 1: Respondents will supplement their response.

RFP No. 2: After discussion, I agreed to limit this Request to the name, rate of pay, and period worked. Respondents will supplement their response.

RFP No. 3: Respondents will supplement their response.

RFP No. 5: Respondents may supplement their response.

RFP No. 6: Respondents will supplement their response.

RFP No. 7: After discussion, I agreed to narrow responsive documents to the 2013 season. We discussed and agreed that the term "value" in this Request means "fair market value." Respondents will supplement their response.

RFP No. 8: Respondents will supplement their response.

RFP No. 9: Respondents will supplement their response.

RFP No. 10: Respondents will supplement their response.

RFP No. 11: Respondents will supplement their response.

I repeatedly indicated that if there were no documents responsive to a Request for Production, that the appropriate response was "no such documents exist," whether or not you object and including or notwithstanding any objection you make. You would not agree to respond whether responsive documents exist or not.

I will look forward to Respondents' supplementing a discovery request that you previously indicated you will not or may supplement.

You and I discussed that supplementation, particularly voluminous supplementation, could be done on CDs in PDF format. I told you that if any information is in a native (proprietary) format, such as a unique developed database or program, it was unlikely I could access it given the firewalls and other barriers built in to government computers. We agreed that all non-universal formats would be converted to PDF or JPG formats. You agreed I would receive your supplementation no later than February 19, 2019.

If you believe I have mis-stated any part of our conversation, please let me know in writing immediately. Thank you for your cooperation.

Very truly yours,

RE: Administrator v. Butler, et al.
Case No. 2018-TNE-19
Our SOL#: 09021900029

Dear Mr. Pierce:

On January 23, 2019, I sent you a detailed letter regarding Respondents' deficient discovery responses. On January 31, 2019, you and I held a meet and confer conference to discuss the issues I raised in my letter to you of January 23, 2019. On February 7, 2019, I sent you a detailed letter which summarized our January 31 discussion and indicated those discovery requests you agreed to supplement. You and I agreed I would receive your supplementation by February 19, 2019. I invited you to advise me immediately if any of the terms set forth in my February 7 letter were contrary to your understanding of our January 31 discussion. You have not contacted me since our January 31 meeting.

I have received no supplementation from Respondents to date.

Unless I receive responsive supplementation to the Administrator's discovery as set forth in my February 7 letter to you by March 1, 2019, I will request Judge Clark compel your responses.

Very truly yours,

RESPONDENTS' OPPOSITION TO MOTION TO COMPEL

Pursuant to 29 C.F.R. § 18.32 (b),[1] Respondents oppose the motion to compel and say:

1. Concurrently with this written opposition, Respondents served electronic and hard copies of supplemental discovery responses, including documents. Exhibit 1, Notice of Service; Exhibit 2, E-Mail Forwarding Supplemental Responses and a Link to Documents.

2. This case involves actions covering an 11-week period from February-April, 2013. This supplemental discovery response was affected by the Administrator's unwillingness to limit discovery to the "proportional ... needs of the case." Fed. R. Civ. Proc. 26 (b) (1). Thus, there were various questions directed to events or information that both pre-dated and post-dated the timeframe at issue. Most of the documents were produced during the investigation phase, but the Administrator has insisted on receiving them a second time. Further, the timeframe at issue is more than 6 years ago and has long surpassed any mandatory record retention requirement. Moreover, many of these records are maintained by the company's outside accountant, who has been overwhelmed trying to respond to the tax filing season for his client base. Finally, Respondent is a mobile amusement operator and is fully engaged in its operating season.

3. The Administrator represents at different points that Respondent "failed to answer" or "did not answer." This is not true, as is evident from the Administrator's own Exhibit B. The Administrator may not have been satisfied with the answers, but that does not constitute a failure to respond initially. The remedies requested by the Administrator are not available because there was no failure to comply with a judge's order under 29 C.F.R. § 18.57 (b) or the narrow circumstances that may authorize immediate sanctions under § 18.57 (d), nor has the Administrator shown otherwise.

CONCLUSION

For the foregoing reasons, Respondents request that the motion to compel be denied.

Attorney for Respondents

April 1, 2019

FROM: Butler Amusements, Inc., and Michael Brajevich, Respondents

TO: Administrator, Wage & Hour Division, Plaintiff

Butler Amusements, Inc., and Michael Brajevich, Respondents, answer the Plaintiff's interrogatories and say:

A. The information supplied in these answers is not based solely upon the knowledge of the executing party, but includes the knowledge of the party's agents, representatives, and attorneys, unless privileged.

B. The word usage and sentence structure is that of the attorneys who in fact prepared these answers and language does not purport to be the exact language of the executing party.

C. These interrogatories have been interpreted and answered in accordance with the Rules of Procedure and plain English usage. To the extent the definitions and instructions included with the interrogatories are inconsistent therewith, this party disavows any intention to abide by them.

D. Defendant objects to the interrogatories to the extent that they purport to require answers on behalf of any entity other than this Defendant.

INTERROGATORY NO. 1: Unless you unconditionally admitted Request for Admission No. 1, provide the basis or bases upon which you rely for each part of your denial of Request for Admission No. 1.

ANSWER NO. 1: In addition to the basis obvious from the answer itself, the basis for the conditional answer is that the request was overbroad and included false statements or implications. The request also exceeded the permissible bounds for a request for admission of facts.

INTERROGATORY NO. 2: Unless you unconditionally admitted Request for Admission No. 2, provide the basis or bases upon which you rely for each part of your denial of Request for Admission No. 2.

ANSWER NO. 2: In addition to the basis obvious from the answer itself, the basis for the conditional answer is that the request was overbroad and included false statements or implications. The request also exceeded the permissible bounds for a request for admission of facts.

SUPPLEMENTAL ANSWER NO. 2: Request for admission #2 asked that Respondents admit that they employed H-2B workers during the 2013 season in positions other than as amusement and recreation attendants. The factual basis for the previous denial is that the H-2B workers during the 2013 season performed approved duties within SOC code 39-3091 (amusement and recreation attendants). Further, any work outside of that job code was not a substantial violation because the H-2B workers during the 2013 season conformed to the "incidental-duty" rule and the "dual-position" rule.

Any workers engaged at the winter quarters are planned to work 40 hours per week. Ride attendants may be asked to accompany a piece of equipment to be repaired a winter quarters so that they may set it up and tear it down. They might also engage in light cleaning while the equipment is repaired at winter quarters. They may also be asked to show the mechanics a particular problem.

H-2B workers are not tasked as supervisors. Some of them serve as liaisons between company supervisors and H-2B workers. This is because they are bilingual and able to provide communication services with workers or customers. Some supervisors do not speak Spanish. This role is analogous to a ride foreman or lead for a particular attraction. They do not hire, fire, or determine pay rate. They do not spend a substantial amount of time providing liaison services.

Those individuals performing driving functions are identified as such in the time records.

INTERROGATORY NO. 3: Unless you unconditionally admitted Request for Admission No. 3, provide the basis or bases upon which you rely for each part of your denial of Request for Admission No. 3.

ANSWER NO. 3: In addition to the basis obvious from the answer itself, the basis for the conditional answer is that the request was overbroad and included false statements or implications. The request also exceeded the permissible bounds for a request for admission of facts.

SUPPLEMENTAL ANSWER NO. 3: Request for admission #3 asked Respondents to admit that they provided free housing to all H-2B workers during the 2013 season.

Respondent's #9141 indicates in the addendum for § D.a.7a that "Employer makes available transportation from venue to venue and scheduled transportation to laundry, shopping valued at $25.00 per week." The addendum for § D.a.8a indicates that "Employer makes available mobile housing valued at $125.00 per week."

Respondent's #9142, § G.1-2, indicates that Respondent pays $323.60-$368.40 per week. In § G.3, it states "Employer follows prevailing practices for the Traveling Amusement Industry in regards to housing, transportation and weekly salary for workers."

In the addendum for § F.a.2, it indicates that Respondent is "not subject to an hourly wage," and that "[t]he weekly wage has been calculated based upon a standard 40-hour week using the methodology detailed in Section G.1." In the addendum for § F.a.3, it indicates that Respondent "will pay the weekly salary for each week that the worker is employed." In the addendum for § G.1.a, it again indicates that Respondent is "not subject to an hourly wage." In the addendum for § G.3, it indicates that > Merit increases and/or bonuses may be awarded at employer discretion.

> As per prevailing practices of the mobile entertainment industry for both similarly employed U.S. and foreign workers:
> - Employer makes available mobile housing valued at $125.00 per week.

- Employer makes available transportation from venue to venue and scheduled transportation to laundry, shopping valued at $25.00 per week ....

If the wage to be paid is higher tha[n] the Variable Prevailing Wage Determination, the employer reserves the right to charge a fee for housing and transportation, but the effective rate of pay will not be lower than the Variable Prevailing Wage Determination.

The 2d addendum for § G.3 stated that "Employer will pay variable prevailing wage in the listed venues as per the 9141 Attached."

The job posting provided that

> Employer will pay the applicable variable prevailing weekly wage ... ranging from $323.60/wk (lowest) to $368.40/wk (highest): $347.88 Average Weekly Wage .... Merit increases and/or bonuses may be awarded at employer discretion. Employer makes available mobile housing valued at $125.00/week. Employer makes available transportation from venue to venue and scheduled transportation to laundry, shopping valued at $25.00/week.

The newspaper advertisement provided that > employer not subject to Federal hourly wage .... The employer will pay the weekly salary for each week that the worker is employed. Employer will pay the applicable variable prevailing weekly wage for each location ... ranging from $323.60/wk (lowest) to $368.40/wk (highest): $347.88 Average Weekly Wage .... Merit increases and/or bonuses may be awarded at employer discretion. Employer makes available mobile housing valued at $125.00/week. Employer makes available transportation from venue to venue and scheduled transportation to laundry, shopping valued at $25.00/week.

The I-129, part 5, #8, responding to the "Wages per week or per year" by stating "AS PER ATTACHED." The itinerary attached to the I-129 indicated that "Employer follows prevailing practices for the Traveling Amusement Industry in regards to housing, transportation and weekly salary for workers."

In accordance with industry practice and Respondent's labor certification, Respondent claims a credit for the value of its housing.

INTERROGATORY NO. 4: Unless you unconditionally admitted Request for Admission No. 7, provide the basis or bases upon which you rely for each part of your denial of Request for Admission No. 7.

ANSWER NO. 4: In addition to the basis obvious from the answer itself, the basis for the conditional answer is that the request was overbroad and included false statements or implications. The request also exceeded the permissible bounds for a request for admission of facts.

INTERROGATORY NO. 5: If you are seeking a credit or other offset for furnishing housing to any of your H-2B Workers, please state the address of each housing furnished, the name of each of your H-2B Workers who resided in such housing, the time period of each of your H-2B Workers' residence, and the cost of the housing to you.

ANSWER NO. 5: Objection. This request is not limited in time or to the implicated workers, and is therefore largely irrelevant. Without waiving this objection, housing was made available at locations reflected on Butler's itinerary and previously produced. Each of the 9 implicated workers lived in the housing during the 2013 season. Respondents are still identifying and preparing cost documentation, and this answer will be supplemented.

SUPPLEMENTAL ANSWER NO. 5: The addresses at, and dates on, which the housing was used during the 2013 season were identified in Respondent's itinerary, produced as Butler 01227-01235. H-2B workers lived in the bunkhouses throughout the season. The names and employment start dates of the 187 H-2B workers during the 2013 season are identified in the attached Excel spreadsheet, Butler 01223-01226. The employment termination dates for the 187 H-2B workers during the 2013 season are identified in the departure records produced as Butler 01701-01758. The cost basis for the bunkhouses is calculated by the company's outside accountant in Butler 01686-01690. If needed, the voluminous supporting documents are available for review at the accountant's office pursuant to 29 C.F.R. § 18.60 (d).

INTERROGATORY NO. 6: Explain each basis upon which you rely for establishing your offered wage rate during the Period of Intended Employment.

ANSWER NO. 6: Objection. This interrogatory calls for a legal conclusions not appropriate for interrogatories. Without waiving this objection, "offered wage" is a term of art, and by definition, the basis for the offered wage rate is the ETA Form 9142.

SUPPLEMENTAL ANSWER NO. 6: The term "offered wage" is defined in the operative 2008 rule as "the highest of the prevailing wage, Federal minimum wage, the State minimum wage, or local minimum wage." 20 C.F.R. § 655.4. As such, the offered wage rate is established in Butler's prevailing wage determination (#9141), Butler 01361-01379 and 01347-01349 (2d addendum for § G.3 in the #9142), and Butler 01380-01427 (I-129).

INTERROGATORY NO. 7: Please identify each of your H-2B Workers. (For the purposes of this Interrogatory, the term "identify" shall include but not be limited to each H-2B Worker's: name, last known contact information [address, phone, e-mail address]; job title; job duties; supervisor; rate of pay; method of pay, and period of employment with you for the Period of Intended Employment.)

ANSWER NO. 7: Objection. This request is not limited in time or to the implicated workers, and is therefore largely irrelevant. Without waiving this objection, Butler's H-2B workers for the 2013 season were identified in the records already produced for inspection. Specifically, contact information is contained in the Excel spreadsheet for the 2013 H-2B workers.

SUPPLEMENTAL ANSWER NO. 7: The Excel spreadsheet identifying the 2013 H-2B workers is found at Butler 01223-01226. Job title and duties are identified in the #9142, stamped as Butler_01361-01379 and 01347-01349. Supervisors are identified in the payroll records, including the summary of time cards, gathered as Butler 000001-001074. Rate of pay is identified in answer to interrogatory #6 and those same payroll records. Method of pay is identified in answer to interrogatory #14. The period of employment is identified in answer to interrogatory #5.

INTERROGATORY NO. 8: Please identify each practice referenced in your statement that you follow "prevailing practices for the Traveling Amusement Industry in regards to housing, transportation and weekly salary for workers" on page 5, § G of your ETA Form 9142B.

ANSWER NO. 8: This statement indicates that Butler availed itself, as permitted under the 2008 rules, to follow industry practice to provide housing, in and out of country travel, and local convenience travel for a credit, and to use a prepayment plan for compensating wages. Respondents were also entitled to credits for providing visa and inspection fees, and bonuses or merit pay. See also the answer to interrogatory #11.

INTERROGATORY NO. 9: If you dispute any of the Secretary's computations of backwages to your H-2B Workers (attached as EXHIBIT A), please identify and explain each such dispute.

ANSWER NO. 9: Objection. The Administrator has not explained how those calculations were made, so it is not possible to answer this interrogatory. Further, by its very nature, once a dispute is acknowledged, there is nothing remaining to "identify and explain." Without waiving this objection, Respondents believe that the Administrator made no allowance for proper credits (including for the duration of the season), nor the issues identified in Respondents' motion for summary judgment, including:

- The unenforceability of the 2008 regulations.
- The binding nature of ETA's prevailing wages.
- The absence of enforceable regulatory requirements.
- It is not necessary to identify every single job task when applying for a prevailing wage.
- The H-2B workers were entitled to work minor or incidental duties outside of their designated job code up to 20% of their time.

- The H-2B workers were entitled to work up to 80% of their time supervising others in the same job code.

SUPPLEMENTAL ANSWER NO. 9: Respondent will supplement this answer once the Administrator produces his file and explains the basis for the calculations.

INTERROGATORY NO. 10: If you dispute the amount of the civil money penalties assessed in this matter, please identify each such dispute.

ANSWER NO. 10: Objection. The Administrator has not explained how those calculations were made, so it is not possible to answer this interrogatory. Further, by its very nature, once a dispute is acknowledged, there is nothing remaining to "identify." Without waiving this objection, Respondents simply state that they identify the dispute by acknowledging that they dispute the amount.

SUPPLEMENTAL ANSWER NO. 10: Respondent will supplement this answer once the Administrator produces his file and explains the basis for the calculations. See also the answer to interrogatory #9.

INTERROGATORY NO. 11: Please state each legal offset or other credit you are seeking or expect to seek in this matter to reduce your financial liability. (If you are seeking a housing credit, you need not repeat any information you included in your Answer to Interrogatory No. 5.)

ANSWER NO. 11: This information was already provided in other answers.

SUPPLEMENTAL ANSWER NO. 11: Respondent claims a credit or offset for

- housing,
- local convenience travel,
- in and out of country relocation travel,
- prepayment plan,
- food,

- bonuses or merit pay,
- per diem or supplemental pay,
- spot-to-spot variations in the prevailing wage,
- reimbursement of employee expenses, including personal income taxes,
- other facilities.

INTERROGATORY NO. 12: Please explain your corporate structure with such information to include but not limited to: each principal with their name, title, job duties, and corporate address; the address of each entity; whether any principal has an interest in any other entity; the dates each entity has been in legal existence, whether any entity has a website, and if so, the website address.

ANSWER NO. 12: Objection. This request is not limited in time, and is therefore largely irrelevant. Without waiving this objection, Butler's chief executive officer is Michael Brajevich. The Board of Directors consists of Michael Brajevich, Lance Moyer, and Tom Shobaken. Corporate shares are owned by Tammy Quint, Kelly Butler, Kris Brajevich, Jill Moyer, and Sean Butler.

SUPPLEMENTAL ANSWER NO. 12: Mr. Mick Brajevich has no corporate structure.

INTERROGATORY NO. 13: If any information you indicated in your TEC has changed since filing, please identify and explain each such change. (For purposes of this Interrogatory, the term "identify and explain" shall include but not be limited to: an identification of the change, the location (form name, part or subsection, and page number) of each piece of changed information; the reason why the information changed (if any); and the individual or individuals responsible for each such piece of changed information.)

ANSWER NO. 13: Objection. This request is not limited in time, and is therefore largely irrelevant. Without waiving this objection, Respondents are not aware of any information in their ETA Form 9142 for the 2013 season that was not accurate at the time the form was submitted.

INTERROGATORY NO. 14: Please explain your method of paying each of your H-2B Workers. (For purposes of this interrogatory only, the term "explain your method of paying" shall include but not be limited to: how you determine the amount of pay, the name and title of each person who dispenses pay; the method of payment (such as whether cash, check, electronic funds transfer, or any other method), whether payment is made to all H-2B Workers at the same time; the name and title of the individual who determines who will be paid first; if pay is contained in an envelope, the name and title of each of your employees who handled the envelope before it is given to each H-2B Worker, and; whether all H-2B Workers are paid on the same day.)

ANSWER NO. 14: Objection. This request is not limited in time or to the implicated workers, and is therefore largely irrelevant. Without waiving this objection, in 2013, Butler's H-2B employees in 2013 were paid in cash on Sunday. They countersigned their pay statement, and the pay statements were sent to the Beaverton office.

SUPPLEMENTAL ANSWER NO. 14: Kelley Butler and Gena Tuttle ran that function. The unit manager determines base pay. Additional pay is available in the event that a worker does more work. Workers are paid in the order in which they arrive at the office window. They are eligible to be paid as soon as they have finished working that evening. Some workers voluntarily choose to wait before seeking their pay. The office manager places the cash payment in an envelope with the name and amount for each worker, and each worker counts the amount to verify accuracy.

INTERROGATORY NO. 15: Please identify each person involved in paying your H-2B Workers.

ANSWER NO. 15: Objection. This request is not limited in time or to the implicated workers, and is therefore largely irrelevant. Without waiving this objection, in 2013, Butler is the employer and was responsible for paying.

SUPPLEMENTAL ANSWER NO. 15: See answer #14.

INTERROGATORY NO. 20 [sic]: Are you able to meet your financial obligations?

ANSWER NO. 20 [sic]: Objection. This request is not limited in time or to the implicated workers, and is therefore largely irrelevant. It also appears to go to collectibility, for which discovery is inappropriate at least until an adverse judgment is obtained. Without waiving this objection, in 2013, Butler satisfied DHS's definition of financial viability.

Attorney for Respondent

Exhibit 1
Obligations of a Corporate Representative

1. Who may serve as a corporate representative. The duties of a corporate representative extend to public officials or federal agencies. 29 C.F.R. § 18.64 (b) (6); Jeffrey W. Stempel, Depositions by Oral Examination, in 7 James W. Moore, Moore's Federal Practice § 30.03 [1], at 30-17; § 30.25 [1], at 30-65 (3d ed. 2018). A corporate representative must be "an officer, director, or managing agent of the corporate deponent," Stempel, § 30.03 [2], at 30-17 or "other persons consenting to appear and testify on its behalf," Advisory Comm. Notes (1970) ("The organization may designate persons other than officers, directors, and managing agents, but only with their consent."). A subpoena is not needed to depose a party or a party's representative; a proper deposition notice is sufficient to compel a party's witness to attend deposition. Stempel, § 30.21, at 30-47. A party is responsible for its representative to show up for the deposition and is subject to sanctions for a failure to appear. Stempel, § 30.21, at 30-47.

2. Scope of deposing a corporate representative. The party conducting the deposition must describe the subject matter for the proposed deposition, and the party to be deposed must select and produce deponents. Stempel, § 30.25 [1], at 30-64. Alternatively, the party conducting the deposition may designate specific officers, directors, or managing agents to testify on behalf of the entity. Advisory Comm. Notes (1970) (this was "existing practice"); Stempel, § 30.25 [1], at 30-64; 8A Charles Alan Wright, Arthur R. Miller & Richard L. Marcus, Federal Practice and Procedure § 2103, at 477 (3d ed. 2010 & Cum. Supp. 2017). Each corporate representative counts as a single deposition of the entity, not separate depositions, Stempel, § 30.25 [1], at 30-65, and the full 7 hours is available for each individual witness nominated as a corporate representative, Wright & Miller, § 2103, at 472. A prosecuting party may be deposed in the forum where suit is brought. Wright & Miller, § 2112, at 527-28. The entity cannot avoid producing a witness merely by serving objections to the notice to depose. Wright & Miller, § 2103, at 458.

3. Duties of the corporate representative. The corporate representative must be knowledgeable on the specified topics. Stempel, § 30.25 [3], at 30-67. It is the entity's duty to prepare the corporate representative for the designated topics. Wright & Miller, § 2103, at 455-56. The entity may be required to designate more than one witness per topic. Stempel, § 30.25 [3], at 30-67. Although the corporate representative need not have firsthand knowledge, the corporate representative is responsible to prepare based upon the information "known or reasonably available" to the entity, 29 C.F.R. § 18.64 (b) (6); Advisory Comm. Notes (1971); Stempel, § 30.25 [3], at 30-67 to -68, which can include consulting former employees, Wright & Miller, § 2103, at 461. The corporate representative must be prepared to show how the facts supported the entity's contentions, or a contention that a statute applied. Paul Revere Life Ins. Co. v. Jafari, 206 F.R.D. 126, 131 (D. Md.); Wright & Miller, § 2103, at 462. The corporate representative must be sufficiently prepared to give full, complete, and non-evasive answers on the designated topics. Stempel, § 30.25 [3], at 30-69.

Producing an unprepared witness is the same as a failure to appear. Stempel, § 30.25 [3], at 30-73. The entity must substitute another corporate representative when it becomes obvious that the designated witness is unable to respond. Stempel, § 30.25 [3], at 30-67 &

30.70. The corporate representative must testify not only about facts, but subjective beliefs and opinions of the entity. Stempel, § 30.25 [3], at 30-68. The volume of documents or the burden to prepare does not justify the lack of preparation. TIG Ins. Co. v. Tyco Int'l, Ltd., 919 F. Supp. 2d 439, 454 (M.D. Pa. 2013).

The deponent may be broadly questioned beyond the designated topics in the deponent's individual capacity. Stempel, § 30.25 [4], at 30-74.2. It is improper to instruct the corporate representative not to answer a question that may be outside the scope of the designated topics or for which the witness is not prepared. Stempel, § 30.25 [4], at 30-74.2. If a deposition question is not on the list of topics, the corporate representative's testimony is individual testimony only, unless the corporate representative is also an officer or managing agent. Wright & Miller, § 2103, at 475.

4. Consequences of corporate representative testimony. The corporate representative "binds the entity with its testimony. This means that a corporation generally cannot present a theory of the facts that differs from that articulated by the designated Rule 30 (b) (6) representative." Stempel, § 30.25 [3], at 30-71 (3d ed. 2018). If the corporate representative claims no knowledge or provides only a limited amount of testimony, the entity may not use other evidence at trial that goes beyond the deposition unless previously produced through discovery. Stempel, § 30.25 [3], at 30-74. As such, the corporate representative's testimony is the Administrator's testimony. Sigmund v. Starwood Urban Retail VI, LLC, 236 F.R.D. 43, 45 (D.D.C. 2006). The entity's theory of the case cannot contradict the testimony of the corporate representative. Diamond Triumph Auto Glass, Inc. v. Safelite Glass Corp., 441 F. Supp. 2d 695, 722 n. 17 (M.D. Pa. 2006); Rainey v. American Forest &

Paper Ass'n, Inc., 26 F. Supp. 2d 82, 87 (D.D.C. 1998) (unless the entity can prove that the information was not known or accessible, the entity cannot later proffer a new or different version that could have been presented at the deposition of the corporate representative).

ADMINISTRATOR, WAGE AND HOUR DIVISION, UNITED STATES DEPARTMENT OF LABOR, Prosecuting Party, v. BUTLER AMUSEMENTS, INC. and MICHAEL BRAJEVICH, Respondents.	ADMINISTRATIVE PROCEEDING Case No. 2018-TNE-00019 ADMINISTRATOR'S EMERGENCY MOTION TO QUASH RESPONDENTS' AMENDED NOTICE OF DEPOSITION

NOTICE OF CONFERENCE PURSUANT TO 29 C.F.R. §18.33(C)(3)

The undersigned counsel for the Administrator conferred with counsel for Respondents on April 4, 2019. See Declaration of J. Gorman. After indicating the Administrator's objections, Respondents did not agree to withdraw or modify any of the twenty-four objectionable subject matter topics.

INTRODUCTION

On April 2, 2019, with no prior warning, Respondents set two depositions for Monday, April 15, 2019, the fact discovery deadline. While Plaintiff's counsel is not available on that day, the more emergent issue is that Respondents' Amended Notice of Deposition ("Amended Notice") requests an Agency representative to answer thirty separate topics, twenty-four of which are impermissible. The topics include issues such as: an Agency representative's knowledge of Respondents' pay and compensation practices; the identity of all individuals interviewed and contacted by Wage and Hour; the Agency's history of enforcing penalties in H-2b cases; the factual bases for Respondents' defense to this matter; and Respondents' failures to comply with industry practice and custom.

While six of the thirty topics are relevant and the Administrator will produce a deponent to address them, the remaining twenty-four areas of inquiry Respondents seek must be quashed. As explained below, the listed topics above are irrelevant to the violations the Administrator charged or seek privileged information.

PROCEDURAL HISTORY

This case concerns violations charged by the Administrator in a January 29, 2018 determination. See Ex. 1. The Administrator found that Respondents violated the requirements of the H-2b program by employing nine non-immigrant employees as Recreation and Amusement Attendants when the actual duties they performed were not recreation or amusement attendant duties.[1] See 20 C.F.R. §655.22(n), Attestation #13 A civil money penalty in the amount of $10,000 was calculated, as well as backwages in the amount of $24,987.60 for nine misclassified employees. Exhibit 1. The violation covered the period from February 1, 2013 to April 24, 2013, a portion of Respondents' February through October season. Exhibit 2.

Respondents contested the Determination Letter and requested a hearing on February 28, 2018. Exhibit 3. Respondents' Request for Hearing enumerated sixteen separate grounds. Respondents' legal grounds supporting their contest were largely disposed of in this Court's Order on Summary Judgment dated November 14, 2018; Respondents' factual grounds were all conclusory and simply state that Respondents did not engage in the conduct on which the violation was based.

[1] Two employees performed machine shop mechanic duties, five employees were semi-truck drivers, and two employees were ride supervisors.

This Court issued a Prehearing Order on November 30, 2018. The Order set a trial date of May 8 to 10, 2019, scheduled a Prehearing Conference for April 29, 2019, and required Prehearing Statements fourteen days before the Prehearing Conference, or April 15, 2019. Discovery was scheduled to cutoff on the same day that Prehearing Statements were due. Order of November 30, 2018 at II(C), p. 2.

The Administrator served discovery on Respondents on December 14, 2018. Receiving a deficient response from Respondents, the Administrator filed a Motion to Compel on March 13, 2019. To date, the Administrator has not received a ruling on the Motion to Compel.

On April 2, 2019, and for the first time with no previous discussion, Respondents electronically served the Administrator with two Notices of Deposition. The first was for Carrie Aguilar, the then-Wage Hour Investigator who investigated this matter. Ms. Aguilar is now the Assistant District Director of the Portland District Office. Respondents noted Ms. Aguilar's deposition for 10:00 a.m. on April 15, 2019. Exhibit 4 but see Gorman Dec. at ¶ 8(a). The second Notice of Deposition Respondents' issued was for the Administrator's "corporate representative" on thirty separately enumerated topics. Exhibit 5 but see Gorman Dec. at ¶ 8(a). This deposition is noted for 10:00 a.m. on April 15, 2019.

On April 2, 2019, the undersigned counsel electronically notified Respondents that: she was unavailable for deposition on April 15, 2019 but would not object to Ms. Aguilar's deposition after the close of discovery, and; only six of the thirty enumerated topics for the 29 C.F.R. §18.64(b)(6) designated representative were proper. Gorman Dec.

RELIEF REQUESTED

The Administrator moves to quash paragraphs 1, 2, 4, 5, 6, 7, 9, 11, 12, 13, 14, 15, 16, 17, 20, 21, 22, 23, 24, 25, 27, 28, 29, and 30 of Respondents' Amended Notice. The Administrator does not object to the deposition of Ms. Aguilar, but is not available on the date Respondents noted. The Administrator assumes the parties will be able to reschedule this date to a mutually convenient date. However, if this Court quashes Respondents' Amended Notice as requested, the Administrator requests a protective order for Ms. Aguilar's deposition to preclude inquiry into the quashed topic areas.

Further, given the immediacy of this request, the impending discovery cutoff (April 15, 2019) and the undersigned counsel's impending unavailability (see Gorman Dec. at ¶ 8(a)), the Administrator requests a telephone hearing with the Court early next week at the Court's convenience. Respondents' counsel has already agreed to make his Response to this Motion verbally to the Court. Gorman Dec. at ¶8(c).

ARGUMENT

1. THE SCOPE OF DISCOVERY

The Rules of Practice and Procedure for Administrative Hearings Before the Office of Administrative Law Judges ("the Rules") found at 29 C.F.R. Part 18 apply in this matter. 20 C.F.R. §655.425(a). When those rules are silent and no other authority controls, the Federal Rules of Civil Procedure apply. 29 C.F.R. §18.10(a).

The rules governing discovery provide that a > party may obtain discovery regarding any matter, not privileged, that is relevant to the subject matter involved in the proceeding. 29 C.F.R §18.51(a). When a claim of privilege is made, the party must expressly make the claim and describe the nature of the privileged material in a manner that permits assessment of the claim. 29 C.F.R. §18.51(e)(1). A judge must quash or modify a subpoena that "[r]equires disclosure of privileged or other protected matter, if no exception or waiver applies..." 29 C.F.R. §18.56.

Western Range Association and Mountain View Ranch, Inc., Case No. 2017-TAE-00009, p. 3 (ALJ Clark, Oct. 26, 2017).

Here, Respondents have issued a notice of deposition pursuant to 29 C.F.R. §18.64(b)(6). The Administrator moves to quash certain topics in the notice because providing testimony in response to them requires disclosure of privileged or other protected matter, and subjects the Administrator to the undue burden of addressing irrelevant topic matters. 29 C.F.R. §18.56(c)(3).

2. RESPONDENTS' AMENDED NOTICE SEEKS INFORMATION NOT RELEVANT TO ANY CLAIM OR DEFENSE OR PROTECTED BY PRIVILEGE

While discovery permits Respondents to pursue information relevant to the Administrator's facts in support of the Agency's determination, or any defense to that determination, seeking information protected from disclosure by privilege, or information that is wholly irrelevant to any claims or defense is impermissible.

Categories of Respondents' impermissible requests

The topics of impermissible questions requested in Respondents' Amended Notice fall into four categories: overbroad and nonspecific; uniquely within Respondents' own personal knowledge of facts or their practices; facts protected by the Government's Informants Privilege, and; matters beyond the scope of the violation at issue. Each of these categories is analyzed below.

Category 1

Only one request is overbroad, nonspecific, and seeks irrelevant information: Respondents' ¶ 1 (an Agency representative to answer each topic covered in the Administrator's propounded Requests for Admission, Interrogatories, and Requests for Production). The Administrator propounded on Respondents ten Requests for Admission, twenty Interrogatories, and twelve Requests for Production. See Ex. A to Administrator's Motion to Compel of March 13, 2019. Respondents' request asks the Administrator to answer exactly those questions the Administrator asked of Respondents.

First, Respondents' Amended Notice is required to "describe with reasonable particularity the matters for examination." 29 C.F.R. §18.64(b)(6). A notice which fails to comply with this basic principle is quashable for vagueness. Silva v. San Pablo Police Dep't., 2018 WL 358789, *2 (N.D.Cal. 2018) (examining FRCP 30(b)(6) which is identical to the language of 29 C.F.R. §18.64(b)(6)).

Second, Respondents' desire to turn the tables on the Administrator—on the very questions the Administrator is asking Respondents— Respondents' gamesmanship and abuse of the process which governs the parties' obligations to respond in good faith. See BWP Media USA, Inc. v. Urbanity, LLC, 696 Fed. Appx. 795 (9th Cir. 2017) (sanctions of evidence preclusion were not an abuse of the court's discretion for party's gamesmanship, even though the result was dispositive to the controversy); Compass Bank v. Morris Cerullo World Evangelism, 104 F. Supp. 3d 1040 (S.D.Cal. 2015) (court warned party that sanctions would issue for gamesmanship with the discovery rules). It is inconceivable that Respondents possess a good faith purpose of interrogating the Administrator on precisely those questions the Administrator propounded to Respondents. Respondents' first request betrays their violation of the letter and spirit of the discovery process.

Finally, like other topics below, this topic seeks irrelevant information. The Administrator's awareness of issues solely within Respondents' personal knowledge has no bearing on whether Respondents violated the H-2b regulations.

Category 2

Eleven requests fall into the second category: matters uniquely within Respondents' own personal knowledge and knowledge of its own practices. Because the Administrator has no personal knowledge of Respondents' own facts or their practices, it is overly burdensome to request the Administrator to produce a witness to answer questions about these topics. The impermissible requests are: Respondents' ¶ 2 (Respondents' payroll and timekeeping practices), ¶ 7 (communications between Respondents and the Administrator), ¶ 12 (the Administrator's application of the 'incidental duty' and 'dual position' rules[2]), ¶ 20 (the approved procedures for tasks for SOC code 39-3091), ¶ 21 (factual basis for disputing the calculation of the cost for Respondents to provide bunkhouses), ¶22 (factual basis for disputing the calculation of the cost for Respondents to provide local travel), ¶ 23 (factual basis for disputing the calculation of the cost for Respondents to provide relocation travel), ¶ 24 (factual basis for disputing that Respondents overpaid their employees), ¶ 25 (factual basis for disputing Respondents paid the personal income taxes of their employees), ¶ 27 (factual basis that Respondents knew they were employing employees in violation of the H-2b program), and ¶ 29 (factual basis that information was reasonably available for Respondents to determine they violated the H-2b program).

First, while a representative designee need not have personal knowledge in the subjects requested for examination, the designee is assumed to have the organization's knowledge, or here, the U.S. Department of Labor's Wage and Hour Division's knowledge. California Foundation for Independent Living Centers v. County of Sacramento, 142 F.Supp.3rd 1035, 1046 (E.D. Cal. 2015). The purpose of the discovery process is to discover information outside of the propounding party's knowledge; the U.S. Supreme Court has called it a "truthseeking process." Taylor v. Illinois, 484 U.S. 400 (1988). When a propounding party makes a request of the opposing party to answer questions about matters which are solely within the province of the requesting party, the purpose of discovery is violated. Here, the letter and spirit of discovery is violated because Respondents intend to query the Administrator on Respondents' own practices.[3]

Second, as above and like other issues below, the Administrator's awareness of issues solely within Respondents' personal knowledge has no bearing on whether Respondents violated the H-2b regulations.

Category 3

Three requests fall into the third category: requests which are subject to the Government

[3] Respondents' enumerated topics about their defenses are not well taken. The Administrator asked Respondents in discovery to specifically to explain the factual bases for their defenses and Respondents failed to do so. For example, see the Administrator's RFA No. 3 (admit you provided free housing), Respondents' Answer (a groundless objection, an admission of the fact and then a denial), the Administrator's follow-up Interrogatory No. 3 (if you didn't admit RFA No. 3, provide the factual bases for your denial), and Respondents' "supplementary" answer (self-referral to Respondents' Form 9142 only) (Exhibit 6).

Informant's Privilege and/or subject to the regulatory confidentiality required by 20 C.F.R. §655.400(g) (2008 Regulations). These are Respondents' ¶ 4 (all interviews conducted by the Administrator), ¶ 5 (the substance of all witness and employee interviews conducted by the Administrator), and ¶ 6 (communications between the Administrator and any witness interviewed).

The Government Informant's Privilege protects against the disclosure of information that could be used to identify individuals who furnish information about potential violations of law to the government. In re Perez, 749 F.3d 849, 855 (9th Cir. 2014) citing Roviaro v. U.S., 353 U.S. 53, 59-60 (1957). The Privilege promotes the public interest in maintaining a free flow of information to the government by protecting those who supply such information from retaliation. Roviaro, 353 U.S. at 59-60; Perez, 749 F.3d at 856. Courts routinely withhold disclosure of informants' identities because who provided information to the Administrator is irrelevant to the underlying claims, and because anonymity is needed for an individual to overcome fear of retaliation and provide information concerning unlawful activity. Brennan v. Engineered Prods., Inc., 506 F.2d 299, 303 (8th Cir. 1974) ("[o]nly by preserving [informants'] anonymity can the government obtain the information necessary to implement the law properly."); Wirtz v. Continental Fin. & Loan Co. of W. End, 326 F.2d 561, 563-64 (5th Cir. 1964) ("the only conceivable need for the names of the informers would be the desire of the employer to know who had informed on it" and "the names of informers are utterly irrelevant to the issues to be tried.").

The Privilege protects not only the names of cooperating individuals, but also any information that would tend to reveal an informant's identity. Id.; see also Borchers v. Commercial Union Assurance Co., 874 F.Supp. 78, 78-80 (S.DN.Y. 1995). The policy considerations underlying the privilege are of such great importance that the government "is granted the privilege as of right." Dole v. Local 1942, Int'l Bhd. of Elec. Workers, AFL-CIO, 870 F.2d 368, 372 (7th Cir. 1989).

Respondents have no legitimate basis for this information. The law unquestionably shields this information from disclosure, and Respondents are precluded from acquiring this information through deposition testimony.

Category 4

The nine remaining objectionable requests fall into the fourth category: requests which are irrelevant or beyond the scope the violations charged here. They are: Respondents' ¶ 9 (the Administrator's history of enforcing penalties related to the violations alleged here), ¶ 11 (when Respondents committed their first violation), ¶ 13 (all of Respondents' regulatory deficiencies), ¶ 14 (all Respondents' failures to comply with industry custom or practice identified in Respondents' payroll practices), ¶ 15 (the basis for Respondents' violation of the FLSA), ¶ 16 (the basis for the contention that Respondents willfully misrepresented any material fact), ¶ 17 (the basis for the contention that Respondents substantially failed to meet any condition when petitioning for labor certification), ¶ 28 (the factual basis that Respondents knowingly or recklessly violated the program), and ¶ 30 (the factual basis that any of Respondents' violations were substantial).

Both the administrative rule and the identically corresponding FRCP provide that "parties may obtain discovery regarding any nonprivileged matter that is relevant to any party's claim or defense..." 29 C.F.R. §18.,51(a); FRCP 26(b)(1). Relevant content is required.

> Most courts have concluded that once the witness satisfies the minimum standard for serving as a designated witness, the scope of the deposition is determined solely by relevance under Rule 26." U.S. E.E.O.C. v. Caesars Entm't, Inc. 237 F.R.D. 432 (D. Nev. 2006); see also Campbell v. Facebook Inc., 310 F.R.D. 439, 450 (N.D.Cal. 2015) ("The proper scope of the questioning of a Rule 30(b)(6) witness is not defined by the notice of deposition, but by Rule 26(b)(1) of the Federal Rules of Civil Procedure.") (citation and internal quotation marks omitted).

Tatung Company, Ltd. v. Hsu, 2016 WL 3475328 (C.D.Cal. 2016).

Irrelevant issues are quashable and should be here as each topic request enumerated in this section is not relevant to the violations determined by the Administrator, or the Respondents' defenses. Bally Technologies, Inc. v. Business Intelligence Systems Solutions, Inc., 2011 WL 3714298 (D.

Nevada 2011).

3. QUASHING RESPONDENTS' IMPERMISSIBLE AREAS OF INQUIRY PROMOTES JUDICIAL AND PROSECUTORIAL EFFICIENCY

This Court has recognized that it is inefficient to require the parties to engage in depositions where "the Administrator is likely not to answer [respondent's] questions by asserting various privileges." Western Range, Case No. 2017-TAE-9, p. 3. Here, the Administrator has agreed to provide a designated witness to testify only about the six enumerated topics in Respondents' Amended Notice which are not objectionable: ¶ 3, ¶ 8, ¶10, ¶ 18, ¶ 19, and ¶ 26.

CONCLUSION

The Administrator prays this Court to quash Respondents' Amended Notice requiring the Administrator to designate a witness to answer the twenty-four objectionable requests. Given the immediacy of a ruling on this matter, and given the undersigned counsel's unavailability from April 12 to April 17, 2019, the Administrator prays for an emergency ruling.

ADMINISTRATIVE PROCEEDING Case No. 2018-TNE-00019 DECLARATION OF JEANNNIE GORMAN IN SUPPORT OF ADMINISTRATOR'S EMERGENCY MOTION TO QUASH RESPONDENTS' AMENDED NOTICE OF DEPOSITION

I, JEANNIE GORMAN, declare as follows:

1. I am presently employed by the U.S. Department of Labor: Office of the Solicitor as a Senior Trial Attorney.

2. I am lead counsel on this case.

3. I was in the office during business hours on Monday, April 1, 2019. At 4:22 p.m., I received Respondents' "supplemental" answers to discovery and opposition to the Administrator's Motion to Compel. I responded to Respondents' counsel in an email at 4:40 p.m.

4. When I arrived at the office on Tuesday, April 2, 2019, I had two emails from Respondents' counsel which were received by my computer at 7:44 p.m. and 8:04 p.m. on April 1, 2019. The 7:44 p.m. email message included two Notices of Deposition. The 8:04 p.m. email message included an Amended Notice of Deposition.

5. On April 2, I responded to Respondents' counsel in an email at 12:52 p.m. stating that I: was disappointed he scheduled depositions without contacting me first, unavailable for the dates he noted but I would work with Ms. Aguilar to see if she was available on Friday, April 19 for deposition, and; objected to twenty-four of the thirty enumerated topics set forth in the Amended Notice for a designated representative and asked him to withdraw the objectionable subject topics.

6. On April 3, I responded to Respondents' counsel in an email at 10:47 a.m. that I could provide Ms. Aguilar for deposition on Friday, April 19, 2019. I asked Mr. Pierce to confirm his availability for deposition on that day with me.

7. Having heard nothing from Mr. Pierce since his email to me attaching the Notices of Deposition on the evening of April 1, 2019, on April 3, I emailed him again at 4:13 p.m. and asked him for the courtesy of a response to my email of 10:47 a.m. (regarding deposing Ms. Aguilar on April 19, and withdrawing the twenty-four objectionable topics in his Amended Notice of Deposition). I told him that I would need a response from him or would file a Motion to Quash with the Court.

8. On April 4, 2019, I telephoned Mr. Pierce. I told him that I hadn't had a response to my emails to him of April 2 and April 3. Mr. Pierce stated he was behind on emails. I asked him if he received my emails and without answering the question, he did not deny receiving them. We discussed three topics:

a. I told him that I hadn't had the courtesy of a response to my notification to him that I was unavailable on the date he noted his two depositions. He said he was available on the date I proposed to him, April 19, 2019 and that determining different, alternate dates was "workable." I told him I would be out of the office from April 12, 2019 to April 18, 2019;

b. We discussed the exhibit list due on Monday, April 8. We agreed that we would send each other our Exhibit List electronically but that actual exhibits would be received on Tuesday, April 9;

c. I told Mr. Pierce that his non-response to my objection to twenty-four of his enumerated subjects in his Amended Notice of deposition of a designated representative had disadvantaged the Administrator by putting us in the position of needing to draft a Motion to Quash. I told him that his failure to respond to my April 2 email had put me in the position of needing to file a Motion to Quash on the afternoon of April 4, 2019, particularly given the emergency nature of the motion. I explained that among the Relief Requested in the Administrator's Motion to Quash was a telephone conference with Judge Clark during which Mr. Pierce could make Respondents' response. Mr. Pierce agreed to make his response to the Administrator's Motion to Quash verbally before Judge Clark on an expedited basis: that is, a phone conference .

9. On April 4, 2019, I received a call from this Court's Clerk, Rebecca Vorpe. We discussed other matters and I told her that I anticipated filing a motion seeking emergency relief and requesting a phone conference with Judge Clark early next week. I explained that I was just providing notice to the Court, not making a request at this time.

Subject: Administrator's Determination Pursuant to Section 214(c)(14) of the Immigration and Nationality Act (INA) and Applicable Regulations Pertaining to Violations Involving H-2B Nonimmigrant Workers

Reference #: 1689932

Dear Mr. Brajevich:

An investigation conducted by this office of Butler Amusements, Inc. (herein Butler Amusements) under the H-2B provisions of the INA, as amended, 8 U.S.C. § 1101(a)(15)(H)(ii)(b) et seq., 1184(c)(14), and 20 CFR Part 655, subpart A (2008) and applicable procedural regulations in 29 CFR Part 503 (2015), covering the period from February 1, 2013 to April 24, 2013, disclosed that Butler Amusements committed the following violations regarding the USCIS Form I-129, Petition for a Nonimmigrant Worker (I-129 Petition) and the Application for Temporary Employment Certification (ETA Form 9142 with Appendix B) (9142 Application) filed under the 2008 regulations: substantial failure to comply with the proper job classification requirement. Any I-129 Petition or 9142 Application included in this investigation is listed or enclosed.

The enclosed Summary of Violations and Remedies indicates the specific violation regarding the I-129 Petition and 9142 Application, which we discussed in the final conference, and the remedy imposed for the violation.

As a consequence of this H-2B violation, $24,987.20 in unpaid wages is owed to 9 H-2B nonimmigrant workers. The same violation also resulted in the assessment of civil money penalties in the total amount of $10,000.00. These amounts are explained in detail in the enclosed Summary of Violation and Remedy. Please note that where Butler Amusements violated both an I-129 requirement and the corresponding 9142 Application requirement, the associated back wages and civil money penalties are both listed under the citation on the enclosed Summary of Violation and Remedy. However, the back wages and civil money penalties for such violations will be collected under only one citation.

Butler Amusements is liable for any ongoing violations. Butler Amusements must pay these back wages and civil money penalties no later than 30 calendar days after the date of this determination unless Butler Amusements requests an appeal as described below. The civil money penalties must be paid by submitting a certified check or money order payable to "Wage and Hour Division - Labor" to the Wage and Hour Division, U.S. Department of Labor, 620 SW Main Street, Room 423, Portland, OR 97205.

Butler Amusements must pay back wages in the amounts listed on the Summary of Unpaid Wages, Form WH-56, which was previously provided to Butler Amusements. Butler Amusements is responsible for withholding the legally required deductions (e.g., Federal and State income tax and FICA) and paying these amounts and Butler Amusements' contributions to the appropriate entities. A certified check or money order in the net amount of back wages should be made payable to the names of the individuals owed back wages or "Wage and Hour Division - Labor" to the Wage and Hour Division, U.S. Department of Labor, 620 SW Main Street, Room 423, Portland, OR 97205-3028.

This debt is subject to the assessment of interest, administrative cost charges and penalties in accordance with the Debt Collection Improvement Act of 1996 and U.S. Department of Labor policies. Interest will be assessed at the Treasury Tax and Loan Account rate on any principal that becomes delinquent. The rate is currently 1%. Administrative cost charges will be assessed to help defray the Government's cost of collecting this debt. A penalty at the rate of 6% will be assessed on any portion of the debt remaining delinquent for more than 90 days. In order to avoid these charges, Butler Amusements must forward payment of the civil money penalties to the Wage and Hour Division, U.S. Department of Labor, 620 SW Main Street, Room 423, Portland, OR 97205 by the indicated due date. Please note that any pending bankruptcy action may affect the foregoing remedies. Where appropriate, the Department of Homeland Security and the Department of Labor's Office of Foreign Labor Certification (OFLC) will be notified about H-2B violations.

Additionally, pursuant to 20 CFR 655.31(d)(4) (2008), if Butler Amusements fails to pay the back wages and/or civil money penalties by the indicated due date, OFLC may seek to debar Butler Amusements from receiving future labor certifications for a prescribed period of time.

Butler Amusements has the right to request a hearing on this determination. Such a request must be dated, be typewritten or legibly written, specify the issues stated in this notice of determination on which a hearing is requested, state the specific reasons why the requestor believes this determination to be in error, be signed by the requestor or by an authorized representative, and include the address at which the requestor or the authorized representative desires to receive further communications relating to the hearing request.

The request must be made to and received by the Chief Administrative Law Judge (OALJ) at the following address no later than 30 calendar days after the date of this determination:

Chief Administrative Law Judge
U.S. Department of Labor
800 K Street NW, Room 400 North
Washington, DC 20001-8002

If Butler Amusements does not make a timely request for a hearing, this determination will become a final order of the Secretary of Labor and may no longer be appealed.

The procedure for filing a request for a hearing is provided in 29 C.F.R. 503.43. Please note that 29 CFR 503.43(f) requires that a copy of any such request for a hearing must also be sent to me and to those parties listed below. Due to the delayed delivery of mail in certain areas, you may wish to transmit your request to the OALJ via facsimile at 202-693-7365 to ensure timely receipt.

The fact that the above sanctions/remedies are being imposed for the H-2B violations found at this time does not preclude the taking of other enforcement action as is deemed appropriate by the Department of Labor or the assessment of back wages or civil money penalties for additional violations of the H-2B provisions found at some future time.

This company has been in business since 1969. The business is a traveling amusement enterprise, closing down completely from November through end of January each year, and has been seasonal in nature since inception. The temporary need is expected to be seasonal, recurring annually.

Because the work involves travel from location to location, with work being performed in the evenings, weekends and holidays, there has been a chronic, seasonal need for foreign workers that is not filled by US Workers.

Pursuant to 29 C.F.R. § 503.43 (b) (3 & 4), Respondent now identifies issues and reasons why the determination is in error. In further response, Respondent says:

General statement of reasons why the determination is in error: The WHD has no basis to enforce the now-vacated 2008 Rule or any other relevant standard. The provisions of the 2015 IFR cannot be applied retroactively to this case. WHD lacks any basis to show a willful misrepresentation or a substantial failure. This employer is exempt from the Fair Labor Standards Act. The Wage and Hour Division has failed to proceed within the statute of limitations, in whole or in part. This employer reasonably relied upon professional counsel to prepare its #9142 and I-129. This employer used a prepayment plan and properly determined all deductions and any overtime obligations. Respondent did not act willfully by hiring professionals to advise it. Department of Labor has made it unnecessarily difficult to, and has failed to issue proper notice so that Respondent may, know with precision what it regards as the proper procedure. Wage and Hour Division has improperly calculated any alleged back wages, hours worked, or civil monetary penalties. Wage and Hour Division has improperly determined "compensable work time." Wage and Hour Division has improperly relied upon U.S. workers, but it has no jurisdiction over U.S. workers. Department of Labor has not promulgated meaningful regulations for how an FLSA-exempt employer is to proceed. Wage and Hour Division has failed to credit Respondent for facilities, such as bunkhouses, food, local convenience travel, in and out of country travel, a prepayment plan, prepaid spot-to-spot variations, bonuses, and reimbursement of employee expenses. Wage and Hour Division failed to credit Respondent according to governing special procedures. Wage and Hour Division lacks the authority to enforce the terms of the #9142 or I-129. Respondent did not substantially fail to meet a condition in its #9142 or I-129 or willfully misrepresent a material fact in its #9142 or I-129.

Issue No. 1: The Wage and Hour Division's determination fails to state any – much less an adequate - factual and legal basis, thereby depriving Respondent of due process notice of the allegations and impeding Respondent's ability to identify and articulate issues and supporting rationale.

Reasons why the determination is in error: 29 C.F.R. § 503.42(a)(5); Administrative Procedures Act.

Issue No. 2: To the extent that the WHD determination states any factual or legal basis, it is incorrect and legally insufficient.

Reasons why the determination is in error: General statement of reasons.

Issue No. 3: The penalties and back wages proposed in the WHD determination are excessive and otherwise inappropriate.

Reasons why the determination is in error: 29 C.F.R. § 503.19 & § 503.23; General statement of reasons.

Issue No. 4: Respondent is entitled to judgment as a matter of law.

Reasons why the determination is in error: General statement of reasons.

Issue No. 5.: Respondent did not engage in any willful or substantial failure to comply with H-2B program requirements.

Reasons why the determination is in error: General statement of reasons.

Issue No. 6: Respondent accurately described its job offer.

Reasons why the determination is in error: General statement of reasons.

Issue No. 7: Respondent did not offer job terms and working conditions that were less favorable than those offered to temporary foreign workers.

Reasons why the determination is in error: General statement of reasons.

Issue No. 8: Respondent properly paid wages as required by the H-2B program.

Reasons why the determination is in error: General statement of reasons.

Issue No. 9: Respondent was entitled to credit for providing bunkhouses, local convenience travel, in and out of country travel, and a prepayment plan.

Reasons why the determination is in error: General statement of reasons.

Issue No. 10: Respondent did not substantially fail to restrict H-2B workers to an approved itinerary.

Reasons why the determination is in error: General statement of reasons.

Issue No. 11: The Department of Labor lacks jurisdiction, rule-making authority or enforceable rules for the H-2B program.

Reasons why the determination is in error: G.H. Daniels III & Assocs., Inc. v. Perez, No. 13-1479, 2015 U.S. App. Lexis 15689, at *12 (10th Cir. Sept. 3, 2015); *Bayou Lawn & Landscape Servs. v. Issue No. 12: The employer is exempt from the Fair Labor Standards Act.

Reasons why the determination is in error: Fair Labor Standards Act.

Issue No. 13: The employer is not liable because it relied in good faith on a regulation, order, ruling, or interpretation of the Wage and Hour Division, or an administrative practice enforcement policy of the Wage and Hour Division.

Reasons why the determination is in error: 29 U.S.C. § 259.

Issue No. 14: The employer is not liable because of its good faith and reasonable grounds to believe there was no violation.

Reasons why the determination is in error: 29 U.S.C. § 260.

Issue No. 15: Neither DHS nor DOL have provided notice as to the method for and legal requirements for completing the I-129, and have misapplied the job classification to I-129's job description and wage rate.

Reasons why the determination is in error: DHS instructions for the I-129.

Issue No. 16: WHD failed to apply the "incidental activities" rule.

Reasons why the determination is in error: 73 Fed. Reg. 77110, 77117 (Dec. 18, 2008).

For these reasons, we request a hearing of the Wage and Hour Division's determination. Further communications should be directed to counsel at the address listed below.

Exhibit 1
Obligations of a Corporate Representative

1. Who may serve as a corporate representative. The duties of a corporate representative extend to public officials or federal agencies. 29 C.F.R. § 18.64 (b) (6); Jeffrey W. Stempel, Depositions by Oral Examination, in 7 James W. Moore, Moore's Federal Practice § 30.03 [1], at 30-17; § 30.25 [1], at 30-65 (3d ed. 2018). A corporate representative must be "an officer, director, or managing agent of the corporate deponent," Stempel, § 30.03 [2], at 30-17 or "other persons consenting to appear and testify on its behalf," Advisory Comm. Notes (1970) ("The organization may designate persons other than officers, directors, and managing agents, but only with their consent."). A subpoena is not needed to depose a party or a party's representative; a proper deposition notice is sufficient to compel a party's witness to attend deposition. Stempel, § 30.21, at 30-47. A party is responsible for its representative to show up for the deposition and is subject to sanctions for a failure to appear. Stempel, § 30.21, at 30-47.

2. Scope of deposing a corporate representative. The party conducting the deposition must describe the subject matter for the proposed deposition, and the party to be deposed must select and produce deponents. Stempel, § 30.25 [1], at 30-64. Alternatively, the party conducting the deposition may designate specific officers, directors, or managing agents to testify on behalf of the entity. Advisory Comm. Notes (1970) (this was "existing practice"); Stempel, § 30.25 [1], at 30-64; 8A Charles Alan Wright, Arthur R. Miller & Richard L. Marcus, Federal Practice and Procedure § 2103, at 477 (3d ed. 2010 & Cum. Supp. 2017). Each corporate representative counts as a single deposition of the entity, not separate depositions, Stempel, § 30.25 [1], at 30-65, and the full 7 hours is available for each individual witness nominated as a corporate representative, Wright & Miller, § 2103, at 472. A prosecuting party may be deposed in the forum where suit is brought. Wright & Miller, § 2112, at 527-28. The entity cannot avoid producing a witness merely by serving objections to the notice to depose. Wright & Miller, § 2103, at 458.

3. Duties of the corporate representative. The corporate representative must be knowledgeable on the specified topics. Stempel, § 30.25 [3], at 30-67. It is the entity's duty to prepare the corporate representative for the designated topics. Wright & Miller, § 2103, at 455-56. The entity may be required to designate more than one witness per topic. Stempel, § 30.25 [3], at 30-67. Although the corporate representative need not have firsthand knowledge, the corporate representative is responsible to prepare based upon the information "known or reasonably available" to the entity, 29 C.F.R. § 18.64 (b) (6); Advisory Comm. Notes (1971); Stempel, § 30.25 [3], at 30-67 to -68, which can include consulting former employees, Wright & Miller, § 2103, at 461. The corporate representative must be prepared to show how the facts supported the entity's contentions, or a contention that a statute applied. Paul Revere Life Ins. Co. v. Jafari, 206 F.R.D. 126, 131 (D. Md.); Wright & Miller, § 2103, at 462. The corporate representative must be sufficiently prepared to give full, complete, and non-evasive answers on the designated topics. Stempel, § 30.25 [3], at 30-69.

Producing an unprepared witness is the same as a failure to appear. Stempel, § 30.25 [3], at 30-73. The entity must substitute another corporate representative when it becomes obvious that the designated witness is unable to respond. Stempel, § 30.25 [3], at 30-67 &

30.70. The corporate representative must testify not only about facts, but subjective beliefs and opinions of the entity. Stempel, § 30.25 [3], at 30-68. The volume of documents or the burden to prepare does not justify the lack of preparation. TIG Ins. Co. v. Tyco Int'l, Ltd., 919 F. Supp. 2d 439, 454 (M.D. Pa. 2013).

The deponent may be broadly questioned beyond the designated topics in the deponent's individual capacity. Stempel, § 30.25 [4], at 30-74.2. It is improper to instruct the corporate representative not to answer a question that may be outside the scope of the designated topics or for which the witness is not prepared. Stempel, § 30.25 [4], at 30-74.2. If a deposition question is not on the list of topics, the corporate representative's testimony is individual testimony only, unless the corporate representative is also an officer or managing agent. Wright & Miller, § 2103, at 475.

4. Consequences of corporate representative testimony. The corporate representative "binds the entity with its testimony. This means that a corporation generally cannot present a theory of the facts that differs from that articulated by the designated Rule 30 (b) (6) representative." Stempel, § 30.25 [3], at 30-71 (3d ed. 2018). If the corporate representative claims no knowledge or provides only a limited amount of testimony, the entity may not use other evidence at trial that goes beyond the deposition unless previously produced through discovery. Stempel, § 30.25 [3], at 30-74. As such, the corporate representative's testimony is the Administrator's testimony. Sigmund v. Starwood Urban Retail VI, LLC, 236 F.R.D. 43, 45 (D.D.C. 2006). The entity's theory of the case cannot contradict the testimony of the corporate representative. Diamond Triumph Auto Glass, Inc. v. Safelite Glass Corp., 441 F. Supp. 2d 695, 722 n. 17 (M.D. Pa. 2006); Rainey v. American Forest &

Paper Ass'n, Inc., 26 F. Supp. 2d 82, 87 (D.D.C. 1998) (unless the entity can prove that the information was not known or accessible, the entity cannot later proffer a new or different version that could have been presented at the deposition of the corporate representative).

Attorney for Respondents

April 1, 2019

6

FROM: Butler Amusements, Inc., and Michael Brajevich, Respondents

TO: Administrator, Wage & Hour Division, Plaintiff

Butler Amusements, Inc., and Michael Brajevich, Respondents, answer the Plaintiff's interrogatories and say:

A. The information supplied in these answers is not based solely upon the knowledge of the executing party, but includes the knowledge of the party's agents, representatives, and attorneys, unless privileged.

B. The word usage and sentence structure is that of the attorneys who in fact prepared these answers and language does not purport to be the exact language of the executing party.

C. These interrogatories have been interpreted and answered in accordance with the Rules of Procedure and plain English usage. To the extent the definitions and instructions included with the interrogatories are inconsistent therewith, this party disavows any intention to abide by them.

D. Defendant objects to the interrogatories to the extent that they purport to require answers on behalf of any entity other than this Defendant.

INTERROGATORY NO. 1: Unless you unconditionally admitted Request for Admission No. 1, provide the basis or bases upon which you rely for each part of your denial of Request for Admission No. 1.

ANSWER NO. 1: In addition to the basis obvious from the answer itself, the basis for the conditional answer is that the request was overbroad and included false statements or implications. The request also exceeded the permissible bounds for a request for admission of facts.

INTERROGATORY NO. 2: Unless you unconditionally admitted Request for Admission No. 2, provide the basis or bases upon which you rely for each part of your denial of Request for Admission No. 2.

ANSWER NO. 2: In addition to the basis obvious from the answer itself, the basis for the conditional answer is that the request was overbroad and included false statements or implications. The request also exceeded the permissible bounds for a request for admission of facts.

SUPPLEMENTAL ANSWER NO. 2: Request for admission #2 asked that Respondents admit that they employed H-2B workers during the 2013 season in positions other than as amusement and recreation attendants. The factual basis for the previous denial is that the H-2B workers during the 2013 season performed approved duties within SOC code 39-3091 (amusement and recreation attendants). Further, any work outside of that job code was not a substantial violation because the H-2B workers during the 2013 season conformed to the "incidental-duty" rule and the "dual-position" rule.

Any workers engaged at the winter quarters are planned to work 40 hours per week. Ride attendants may be asked to accompany a piece of equipment to be repaired a winter quarters so that they may set it up and tear it down. They might also engage in light cleaning while the equipment is repaired at winter quarters. They may also be asked to show the mechanics a particular problem.

H-2B workers are not tasked as supervisors. Some of them serve as liaisons between company supervisors and H-2B workers. This is because they are bilingual and able to provide communication services with workers or customers. Some supervisors do not speak Spanish. This role is analogous to a ride foreman or lead for a particular attraction. They do not hire, fire, or determine pay rate. They do not spend a substantial amount of time providing liaison services.

Those individuals performing driving functions are identified as such in the time records.

INTERROGATORY NO. 3: Unless you unconditionally admitted Request for Admission No. 3, provide the basis or bases upon which you rely for each part of your denial of Request for Admission No. 3.

ANSWER NO. 3: In addition to the basis obvious from the answer itself, the basis for the conditional answer is that the request was overbroad and included false statements or implications. The request also exceeded the permissible bounds for a request for admission of facts.

SUPPLEMENTAL ANSWER NO. 3: Request for admission #3 asked Respondents to admit that they provided free housing to all H-2B workers during the 2013 season.

Respondent's #9141 indicates in the addendum for § D.a.7a that "Employer makes available transportation from venue to venue and scheduled transportation to laundry, shopping valued at $25.00 per week." The addendum for § D.a.8a indicates that "Employer makes available mobile housing valued at $125.00 per week."

Respondent's #9142, § G.1-2, indicates that Respondent pays $323.60-$368.40 per week. In § G.3, it states "Employer follows prevailing practices for the Traveling Amusement Industry in regards to housing, transportation and weekly salary for workers."

In the addendum for § F.a.2, it indicates that Respondent is "not subject to an hourly wage," and that "[t]he weekly wage has been calculated based upon a standard 40-hour week using the methodology detailed in Section G.1." In the addendum for § F.a.3, it indicates that Respondent "will pay the weekly salary for each week that the worker is employed." In the addendum for § G.1.a, it again indicates that Respondent is "not subject to an hourly wage." In the addendum for § G.3, it indicates that

> Merit increases and/or bonuses may be awarded at employer discretion.
> As per prevailing practices of the mobile entertainment industry for both similarly employed U.S. and foreign workers:
> - Employer makes available mobile housing valued at $125.00 per week.

- Employer makes available transportation from venue to venue and scheduled transportation to laundry, shopping valued at $25.00 per week ....

If the wage to be paid is higher tha[n] the Variable Prevailing Wage Determination, the employer reserves the right to charge a fee for housing and transportation, but the effective rate of pay will not be lower than the Variable Prevailing Wage Determination.

The 2d addendum for § G.3 stated that "Employer will pay variable prevailing wage in the listed venues as per the 9141 Attached."

The job posting provided that

> Employer will pay the applicable variable prevailing weekly wage ... ranging from $323.60/wk (lowest) to $368.40/wk (highest): $347.88 Average Weekly Wage .... Merit increases and/or bonuses may be awarded at employer discretion. Employer makes available mobile housing valued at $125.00/week. Employer makes available transportation from venue to venue and scheduled transportation to laundry, shopping valued at $25.00/week.

The newspaper advertisement provided that > employer not subject to Federal hourly wage .... The employer will pay the weekly salary for each week that the worker is employed. Employer will pay the applicable variable prevailing weekly wage for each location ... ranging from $323.60/wk (lowest) to $368.40/wk (highest): $347.88 Average Weekly Wage .... Merit increases and/or bonuses may be awarded at employer discretion. Employer makes available mobile housing valued at $125.00/week. Employer makes available transportation from venue to venue and scheduled transportation to laundry, shopping valued at $25.00/week.

The I-129, part 5, #8, responding to the "Wages per week or per year" by stating "AS PER ATTACHED." The itinerary attached to the I-129 indicated that "Employer follows prevailing practices for the Traveling Amusement Industry in regards to housing, transportation and weekly salary for workers."

In accordance with industry practice and Respondent's labor certification, Respondent claims a credit for the value of its housing.

INTERROGATORY NO. 4: Unless you unconditionally admitted Request for Admission No. 7, provide the basis or bases upon which you rely for each part of your denial of Request for Admission No. 7.

ANSWER NO. 4: In addition to the basis obvious from the answer itself, the basis for the conditional answer is that the request was overbroad and included false statements or implications. The request also exceeded the permissible bounds for a request for admission of facts.

INTERROGATORY NO. 5: If you are seeking a credit or other offset for furnishing housing to any of your H-2B Workers, please state the address of each housing furnished, the name of each of your H-2B Workers who resided in such housing, the time period of each of your H-2B Workers' residence, and the cost of the housing to you.

ANSWER NO. 5: Objection. This request is not limited in time or to the implicated workers, and is therefore largely irrelevant. Without waiving this objection, housing was made available at locations reflected on Butler's itinerary and previously produced. Each of the 9 implicated workers lived in the housing during the 2013 season. Respondents are still identifying and preparing cost documentation, and this answer will be supplemented.

SUPPLEMENTAL ANSWER NO. 5: The addresses at, and dates on, which the housing was used during the 2013 season were identified in Respondent's itinerary, produced as Butler 01227-01235. H-2B workers lived in the bunkhouses throughout the season. The names and employment start dates of the 187 H-2B workers during the 2013 season are identified in the attached Excel spreadsheet, Butler 01223-01226. The employment termination dates for the 187 H-2B workers during the 2013 season are identified in the departure records produced as Butler 01701-01758. The cost basis for the bunkhouses is calculated by the company's outside accountant in Butler 01686-01690. If needed, the voluminous supporting documents are available for review at the accountant's office pursuant to 29 C.F.R. § 18.60 (d).

INTERROGATORY NO. 6: Explain each basis upon which you rely for establishing your offered wage rate during the Period of Intended Employment.

ANSWER NO. 6: Objection. This interrogatory calls for a legal conclusions not appropriate for interrogatories. Without waiving this objection, "offered wage" is a term of art, and by definition, the basis for the offered wage rate is the ETA Form 9142.

SUPPLEMENTAL ANSWER NO. 6: The term "offered wage" is defined in the operative 2008 rule as "the highest of the prevailing wage, Federal minimum wage, the State minimum wage, or local minimum wage." 20 C.F.R. § 655.4. As such, the offered wage rate is established in Butler's prevailing wage determination (#9141), Butler 01361-01379 and 01347-01349 (2d addendum for § G.3 in the #9142), and Butler 01380-01427 (I-129).

INTERROGATORY NO. 7: Please identify each of your H-2B Workers. (For the purposes of this Interrogatory, the term "identify" shall include but not be limited to each H-2B Worker's: name, last known contact information [address, phone, e-mail address]; job title; job duties; supervisor; rate of pay; method of pay, and period of employment with you for the Period of Intended Employment.)

ANSWER NO. 7: Objection. This request is not limited in time or to the implicated workers, and is therefore largely irrelevant. Without waiving this objection, Butler's H-2B workers for the 2013 season were identified in the records already produced for inspection. Specifically, contact information is contained in the Excel spreadsheet for the 2013 H-2B workers.

SUPPLEMENTAL ANSWER NO. 7: The Excel spreadsheet identifying the 2013 H-2B workers is found at Butler 01223-01226. Job title and duties are identified in the #9142, stamped as Butler_01361-01379 and 01347-01349. Supervisors are identified in the payroll records, including the summary of time cards, gathered as Butler 000001-001074. Rate of pay is identified in answer to interrogatory #6 and those same payroll records. Method of pay is identified in answer to interrogatory #14. The period of employment is identified in answer to interrogatory #5.

INTERROGATORY NO. 8: Please identify each practice referenced in your statement that you follow "prevailing practices for the Traveling Amusement Industry in regards to housing, transportation and weekly salary for workers" on page 5, § G of your ETA Form 9142B.

ANSWER NO. 8: This statement indicates that Butler availed itself, as permitted under the 2008 rules, to follow industry practice to provide housing, in and out of country travel, and local convenience travel for a credit, and to use a prepayment plan for compensating wages. Respondents were also entitled to credits for providing visa and inspection fees, and bonuses or merit pay. See also the answer to interrogatory #11.

INTERROGATORY NO. 9: If you dispute any of the Secretary's computations of backwages to your H-2B Workers (attached as EXHIBIT A), please identify and explain each such dispute.

ANSWER NO. 9: Objection. The Administrator has not explained how those calculations were made, so it is not possible to answer this interrogatory. Further, by its very nature, once a dispute is acknowledged, there is nothing remaining to "identify and explain." Without waiving this objection, Respondents believe that the Administrator made no allowance for proper credits (including for the duration of the season), nor the issues identified in Respondents' motion for summary judgment, including:

- The unenforceability of the 2008 regulations.
- The binding nature of ETA's prevailing wages.
- The absence of enforceable regulatory requirements.
- It is not necessary to identify every single job task when applying for a prevailing wage.
- The H-2B workers were entitled to work minor or incidental duties outside of their designated job code up to 20% of their time.

- The H-2B workers were entitled to work up to 80% of their time supervising others in the same job code.

SUPPLEMENTAL ANSWER NO. 9: Respondent will supplement this answer once the Administrator produces his file and explains the basis for the calculations.

INTERROGATORY NO. 10: If you dispute the amount of the civil money penalties assessed in this matter, please identify each such dispute.

ANSWER NO. 10: Objection. The Administrator has not explained how those calculations were made, so it is not possible to answer this interrogatory. Further, by its very nature, once a dispute is acknowledged, there is nothing remaining to "identify." Without waiving this objection, Respondents simply state that they identify the dispute by acknowledging that they dispute the amount.

SUPPLEMENTAL ANSWER NO. 10: Respondent will supplement this answer once the Administrator produces his file and explains the basis for the calculations. See also the answer to interrogatory #9.

INTERROGATORY NO. 11: Please state each legal offset or other credit you are seeking or expect to seek in this matter to reduce your financial liability. (If you are seeking a housing credit, you need not repeat any information you included in your Answer to Interrogatory No. 5.)

ANSWER NO. 11: This information was already provided in other answers.

SUPPLEMENTAL ANSWER NO. 11: Respondent claims a credit or offset for

- housing,
- local convenience travel,
- in and out of country relocation travel,
- prepayment plan,
- food,

- bonuses or merit pay,
- per diem or supplemental pay,
- spot-to-spot variations in the prevailing wage,
- reimbursement of employee expenses, including personal income taxes,
- other facilities.

INTERROGATORY NO. 12: Please explain your corporate structure with such information to include but not limited to: each principal with their name, title, job duties, and corporate address; the address of each entity; whether any principal has an interest in any other entity; the dates each entity has been in legal existence, whether any entity has a website, and if so, the website address.

ANSWER NO. 12: Objection. This request is not limited in time, and is therefore largely irrelevant. Without waiving this objection, Butler's chief executive officer is Michael Brajevich. The Board of Directors consists of Michael Brajevich, Lance Moyer, and Tom Shobaken. Corporate shares are owned by Tammy Quint, Kelly Butler, Kris Brajevich, Jill Moyer, and Sean Butler.

SUPPLEMENTAL ANSWER NO. 12: Mr. Mick Brajevich has no corporate structure.

INTERROGATORY NO. 13: If any information you indicated in your TEC has changed since filing, please identify and explain each such change. (For purposes of this Interrogatory, the term "identify and explain" shall include but not be limited to: an identification of the change, the location (form name, part or subsection, and page number) of each piece of changed information; the reason why the information changed (if any); and the individual or individuals responsible for each such piece of changed information.)

ANSWER NO. 13: Objection. This request is not limited in time, and is therefore largely irrelevant. Without waiving this objection, Respondents are not aware of any information in their ETA Form 9142 for the 2013 season that was not accurate at the time the form was submitted.

INTERROGATORY NO. 14: Please explain your method of paying each of your H-2B Workers. (For purposes of this interrogatory only, the term "explain your method of paying" shall include but not be limited to: how you determine the amount of pay, the name and title of each person who dispenses pay; the method of payment (such as whether cash, check, electronic funds transfer, or any other method), whether payment is made to all H-2B Workers at the same time; the name and title of the individual who determines who will be paid first; if pay is contained in an envelope, the name and title of each of your employees who handled the envelope before it is given to each H-2B Worker, and; whether all H-2B Workers are paid on the same day.)

ANSWER NO. 14: Objection. This request is not limited in time or to the implicated workers, and is therefore largely irrelevant. Without waiving this objection, in 2013, Butler's H-2B employees in 2013 were paid in cash on Sunday. They countersigned their pay statement, and the pay statements were sent to the Beaverton office.

SUPPLEMENTAL ANSWER NO. 14: Kelley Butler and Gena Tuttle ran that function. The unit manager determines base pay. Additional pay is available in the event that a worker does more work. Workers are paid in the order in which they arrive at the office window. They are eligible to be paid as soon as they have finished working that evening. Some workers voluntarily choose to wait before seeking their pay. The office manager places the cash payment in an envelope with the name and amount for each worker, and each worker counts the amount to verify accuracy.

INTERROGATORY NO. 15: Please identify each person involved in paying your H-2B Workers.

ANSWER NO. 15: Objection. This request is not limited in time or to the implicated workers, and is therefore largely irrelevant. Without waiving this objection, in 2013, Butler is the employer and was responsible for paying.

SUPPLEMENTAL ANSWER NO. 15: See answer #14.

INTERROGATORY NO. 20 [sic]: Are you able to meet your financial obligations?

ANSWER NO. 20 [sic]: Objection. This request is not limited in time or to the implicated workers, and is therefore largely irrelevant. It also appears to go to collectibility, for which discovery is inappropriate at least until an adverse judgment is obtained. Without waiving this objection, in 2013, Butler satisfied DHS's definition of financial viability.

RE: Administrator v. Butler Amusements, Inc. et al.
Case No. 2018-TNE-00019

Dear Judge Clark:

On April 4, 2019, your Clerk, Rebecca Vorpe, contacted me about the Administrator's Reply to his Motion to Compel in light of Respondents' Response opposing the Administrator's Motion to Compel. Ms. Vorpe asked and I agreed to put the Administrator's position in writing. Ms. Vorpe indicated that a Reply letter was permissible. She gave me permission to fax this Reply letter to you.

Respondents' Response to the Administrator's Motion to Compel fails to identify any specific discovery answer or response which their supplementation supposedly cures. Instead, Respondents offer only a blanket statement that they have supplemented discovery, without specifically addressing any deficiency identified by the Administrator. The Administrator does not withdraw his Motion to Compel. The Administrator does not agree that Respondents' supplementation cures any identified discovery deficiency because Respondents have not pointed to any specific cure they have provided, but instead require the Administrator to review over 1800 documents to make such a determination.

Both parties have the obligation to participate in good faith in the discovery process. The Adminsitrator has done so by properly propounding discovery, and providing Respondents with the detailed reasons why each one of their objectionable answers and responses was deficient. Because Respnodents have failed to provide this Court with a detailed response as to why their supplementation cures any deficiency identified by the Administrator, it appears Respondents have denied this Court the opportunity to consider their position.

Thank you for your cooperation.

Very truly yours,

RESPONDENTS' OPPOSITION TO MOTION TO COMPEL

Pursuant to 29 C.F.R. § 18.32 (b),[1] Respondents submit this surreply as to the motion to compel:

1. Counsel communicated multiple times last week via e-mail and telephone. Respondents were unaware throughout those communications that the Administrator contended that there was some undisclosed deficiency.

2. Even after reviewing the Administrator's letter, the Respondent still do not know what the purported deficiency might be. If the Administrator thinks that there is some further deficiency, Respondents cannot be more responsive without knowing anything further. Nor can an order to compel accomplish anything further without providing the specificity that the Administrator chose to ignore.

3. The Administrator implies that there is some sort of technical advantage that he helps to secure by maintaining a veil of secrecy. That is the antithesis of good faith.

4. Without any supporting citation, the Administrator incredibly contends that he received a large volume of documents and no way to interpret them. Respondents spent an inordinate amount of time painstakingly responding to that discovery and definitely believes that it responded to all of the Administrator's prior grievances. Respondents even went above and beyond and provided some of the Respondents' own internal work product (such as an index of the documents), just to make the Administrator's job a little easier. Although it will accomplish little, if any good, Respondents have reluctantly attached a copy of their supplemental interrogatory answers. Exhibit 1, Respondents' Supplemental Interrogatory

[1] Respondents were advised by telephone on Friday to file a written "surreply" to the motion to compel by 4:30 PM PDT. Respondents assume that this is directed to the letter that the Administrator telefaxed on April 5, 2019.

Answers. The Administrator contends that there are no "pointers" to where specific information might be found. To the contrary, the interrogatory answers contain no less than 11 such pointers, precisely because the Administrator raised that objection and the Respondents attempted to dispel it. Nearly all of the answers are replete with factual detail.

CONCLUSION

For the foregoing reasons, Respondents request that the motion to compel be denied.

ADMINISTRATOR, WAGE AND HOUR DIVISION, UNITED STATES DEPARTMENT OF LABOR, Plaintiff, v. BUTLER AMUSEMENTS, INC. and MICHAEL BRAJEVICH, Respondents	ADMINISTRATIVE PROCEEDING Case No. 2018-TNE-00019 ADMINISTRATOR'S UNOPPOSED MOTION FOR LEAVE TO FILE AMENDMENT TO ADMINISTRATOR'S DETERMINATION: SUMMARY OF VIOLATIONS

NOTICE OF CONFERENCE PURSUANT TO 29 C.F.R. §18.33(C)(3)

The undersigned counsel for the Administrator conferred with counsel for Respondents electronically on April 8, 2019. Respondents do not oppose the instant Motion.

COMES NOW the the Prosecuting Party, the Administrator of the Wage and Hour Division (the "Administrator"), and, pursuant to 29 C.F.R. §18.33, asks this Court's Leave to file an amended Summary of Violations to the Administrator's Determination Letter.

1. Pursuant to 20 C.F.R. §655.70 (2008 regulations), the Administrator's final Determination Letter was issued on February 6, 2018. This Determination Letter included violations for nine misclassified nonimmigrant workers, referencing backwages due them in the amount of $24,987.60.

2. In preparation for a hearing in this matter scheduled to begin on May 8, 2019, the Administrator has carefully reviewed the backwages sought for misclassified nonimmigrant employees.

3. As a result of that review, the Administrator has revised the number of misclassified workers from nine to ten, and has revised the amount of the backwages due them to $23,952.60.

4. Here, the Administrator seeks to amend the Summary of Violations which was appended to the Administrator's Determination Letter to reflect this revised computation. The amended Summary of Violations is attached.

5. The administrative law judge may allow the parties to amend their pleadings under such circumstances. 29 C.F.R. §18.36; FRCP 15(a)(2) ("[t]he court should freely give leave when justice so requires."). See also Foeman v. Davis, 371 U.S. 178, 182 (1962) (leave to amend should be freely granted absent a showing of undue delay, bad faith, undue prejudice, or futility).

6. As this Motion for Leave merely replaces the amount of the backwages sought by the Administrator, the Court's granting of this Motion will not unduly prejudice Respondents or cause undue delay.

RESPONDENTS' AMENDED OPPOSITION TO MOTION TO COMPEL

Pursuant to 29 C.F.R. § 18.32 (b),[1] Respondents oppose the motion to quash and say:

Deposition Date. As clearly reflected on the face of the notice to depose, the purpose of sending the notice to depose was to begin the discussion as to the time and place. The parties quickly agreed to a schedule, but it does fall outside of the discovery cut off. In light of the parties' agreement, Respondents request leave to conduct the depositions of investigator Carrie Aguilar and the Administrator's corporate representative after the discovery cut off, which is currently scheduled for Monday, April 15.

The Administrator's Position Is Extreme. Courts are understandably "reluctant" to quash a deposition unless there are "extraordinary circumstances." Jeffrey W. Stempel, Depositions by Oral Examination, in 7 James W. Moore, Moore's Federal Practice § 30.50, at 30-100 (3d ed. 2018). It makes little sense to restrict broad questioning of a corporate representative because it merely provokes motion practice and multiple deposition notices. Id. § 30.25 [4], at 30-74.2.

According to the Administrator, there is no such thing as a corporate representative deposition and such depositions have been effectively written out of the approved administrative procedures. Each of the 6 topics to which the Administrator has not lodged an objection are nothing more than the factual components of investigator Carrie Aguilar's investigation. Those topics are:

- #3 – the Administrator's methodology for calculating CMP's and back wages

[1] Respondents learned by e-mail on the afternoon of April 10, 2019, that the scheduled telephone hearing was canceled and that this amended opposition would be permitted to be filed by noon today.

- #8 – the corporate representative's background and experience
- #10 – the records generated by the Administrator's investigation
- #18 – the factual basis why the Administrator contends that the Respondents failed to comply with a legal requirement
- #19 – the factual basis why Respondents are not entitled to various credits
- #26 – the factual basis why the administrator contends that the Respondents violated the H-2B regulations

Although these topics are admittedly proper, the Administrator should not be permitted to frustrate the legitimate ends of discovery and established practice.

Overbreadth. The Administrator contends that it is "overbroad" and irrelevant to ask a corporate representative about the topics already designated by the Administrator in the Administrator's own discovery. If those topics are overbroad or irrelevant, the Administrator has not made any such showing. Further, if those topics actually are overbroad or irrelevant, then the Administrator should not have asked them in the first place.

Respondents will provide some examples to illustrate that the Administrator's subjection is unfounded.

- Interrogatory #2 asks for the factual basis why Respondents' employees did not act outside of the job code for amusement and recreation attendants. Setting aside the difficulty of proving a negative, this topic goes to a central issue in the case and is far from overbroad or irrelevant.

- Interrogatory #3 asked for the factual basis why Respondents did not provide "free housing." This topic goes to a central issue in the case of whether Respondents are entitled to a credit for providing housing to their workers.
- Interrogatory #5 asked for the addresses at which housing was provided. If the Administrator has contrary evidence, the Respondents are entitled to discover it for the purpose of determining the Respondents' credit for providing that housing.
- Interrogatory #6 asked that Respondents identify their offered wage rate. This topic is obviously relevant to determining whether there were violations and the proper calculation of back wages and CMP's.
- Interrogatory #7 asked for the identity of Respondents' H-2B workers. Respondents are entitled to determine whether the Administrator has a factual basis for disputing the list of potential witnesses.
- Interrogatory #9 and 10 asked for our factual basis to dispute the Administrator's calculation of back wages and CMP's. If the Administrator disputes our factual basis to do so, then the Respondents are entitled to that discovery.
- Interrogatory #14 asked for the factual basis of how the Respondents paid their H-2B workers. If the Administrator disputes those facts, then the Respondents should be entitled to that discovery.

The Administrator has not contended that any of these specific topics are so vague or ambiguous that the Administrator cannot prepare a corporate representative. If the Administrator wants to have such a discussion, we are certainly open to do so.

Respondents' Own Practices. The Administrator contends that Respondent cannot ask a corporate representative about subjects the Respondents may already know. To the contrary, that is exactly the purpose of these types of topics.

If the Administrator, after a reasonable search, has no information on a topic, then he need do nothing more than say so under oath. The mere fact that the Respondent may already know something about the topic does not undercut the fact that discovery is proper to narrow the dispute. Fed. R. Civ. Proc. 26 (b) (1) (scope of discovery). If in fact the Administrator has no intent to offer evidence to dispute Respondents' evidence, then they should say so under oath.

The Administrator is plainly misreading the designated topics. Topic #20 asked about the Department's approved procedures for choosing a particular job code. That is most definitely not within the Respondents' own practices. It is not responsive for an individual fact witness to claim lack of knowledge for the "incidental duty" or "dual position" rules; what matters is whether the Division is aware. Although the corporate representative need not have firsthand knowledge, the corporate representative is responsible to prepare based upon the information "known or reasonably available" to the entity. 29 C.F.R. § 18.64 (b) (6); Advisory Comm. Notes (1971); Jeffrey W. Stempel, Depositions by Oral Examination, in 7 James W. Moore, Moore's Federal Practice § 30.25 [3], at 30-67 to -68 (3d ed. 2018).

Privilege. The Administrator has now produced redacted witness statements as its purported trial exhibits, and Respondents anticipate that the Administrator will produce unredacted witness statements by the time of trial. At a minimum, Respondents should be permitted to ask questions based upon the material that has now been produced. If a privilege applies, then it should be asserted at that time. In the meantime, there is nothing objectionable with asking about the interview process or data that does not identify sources.

Relevance. Finally, the Administrator contends that certain topics are "irrelevant." In an administrative proceeding, relevance is not a particularly demanding standard. As acknowledged in the determination letter, the governing regulation is the 2008 H-2B rules. 73 Fed. Reg. 78020 (Dec. 19, 2008). The governing regulation has established the rules of evidence in their entirety.

> As provided in the Administrative Procedure Act, ... any oral or documentary evidence may be received in proceedings under this part. The ... Rules of Evidence [in] ... 29 C.F.R. part 18, subpart B ... shall not apply, but principles designed to ensure production of relevant and probative evidence shall guide the admission of evidence. The administrative law judge may exclude evidence which is immaterial, irrelevant, or unduly repetitive.

Respondent's Exh. 74, at 46 (emphasis added), codified as 20 C.F.R. § 655.72 (b). Accord 5 U.S.C. § 556 (d) ("Any oral or documentary evidence may be received, but the agency as a matter of policy shall provide for the exclusion of irrelevant, immaterial, or unduly repetitious evidence."). See also 29 C.F.R. § 18.402 ("All relevant evidence is admissible ...."); Attorney General's Manual on the Administrative Procedure Act 76 (1947) ("the technical rules of evidence will not be applicable to administrative hearings.").

In sum, the only "rules of evidence" are that Respondents' evidence must be relevant and material or probative. Compare Webster's Encyclopedic Unabridged Dictionary of the English Language 884 (1989) ("material" means "pertinent or essential ...: evidence material to our lawsuit") with id. 1146 ("probative" means "affording proof or evidence"). These are – by design – not particularly burdensome standards. Attorney General's Manual at 76 ("Agency action must be supported by 'reliable, probative, and substantial evidence.' ... These are standards or principles usually applied tacitly and resting mainly upon common sense which people engaged in the conduct of responsible affairs instinctively understand.") (internal quotation omitted). Everything else goes to the weight to be ascribed to the evidence, not its admissibility. See Attorney General's Manual at 76 ("the mere admission of evidence is not to be taken as prejudicial error (there being no lay jury to be protected from improper influence) although irrelevant, immaterial, and unduly repetitious evidence is useless and is to be excluded as a matter of efficiency and good practice.") (internal quotation omitted) (emphasis added). Further, this is discovery and the Respondents are entitled to determine whether any of these inquiries are likely to lead to admissible evidence.

Each of the identified topics is quite relevant to the allegations.

- Topic #9 – This topic is not "useless" because the Administrator's enforcement policies for these specific violations are related to the factors that must be considered to adjudge CMP's. Further, the Administrator's prior "practice" is itself a "rule" that Respondents may wish to invoke as a defense. 5 U.S.C. § 551 (4).
- Topic #11 – This topic is not "useless" because the timing of Respondents' purported violations is relevant to the statute of limitations issue.
- Topic #13 – If the Administrator intends to claim at trial that Respondents engaged in other regulatory deficiencies, Respondents want to know about it now. As a result this topic is not "useless."
- Topic #14 – This topic is not "useless" because the labor certification approved in this case specifically indicated that the Respondent complied with industry custom and practice, and Respondents want to know whether the Administrator disputes that fact and the meaning of that phrase. Also, industry custom and practice is relevant to showing whether the Respondents were reckless in committing any particular violations.

- Topic #15 – This topic is not "useless" because the Respondents seek wage credits and interest paid, but it is anticipated that the Administrator will argue that provisions under the Fair Labor Standards Act prohibited Respondents from doing so. As a result, Respondents are entitled to discovery as to whether the FLSA has been violated and whether Respondents are exempt from those provisions.
- Topics #16, 17, 28 and 30 – This topics are not "useless" because they seek the factual basis for willful misrepresentations, substantial failures, recklessness, and the substantiality of any violations. These topics are similar to Topics #18 and 26, which the Administrator has not challenged and which the Administrator has failed to distinguish. It is rather astonishing that the Administrator wants to prohibit Respondents from asking questions regarding the evidence supporting these prima facie elements of the Administrator's case. If the Administrator wishes to stipulate that he has no evidence to support any of those elements, that should substantially simplify the case; otherwise, Respondents are entitled to know what the evidence might be to support the Administrator.

CONCLUSION

For the foregoing reasons, Respondents request that the motion to quash be denied.

In the Matter of:

ADMINISTRATOR, WAGE & HOUR DIVISION,
Prosecuting Party,

v.

BUTLER AMUSEMENTS, INC. AND
MICHAEL BRAJEVICH, an individual,
Respondents.

ORDER GRANTING LEAVE TO AMEND

This matter arises under the H-2B provisions of the Immigration and Nationality Act ("INA"), 8 U.S.C. §§ 1101(a)(15)(H)(ii)(b), 1184(c)(1), (14), the 2008 implementing regulations at 20 C.F.R. Part 655, Subpart A (2009), and the applicable procedural regulations at 29 C.F.R. Part 503, Subpart C. A hearing is scheduled for May 8 to 10, 2019, in Portland, Oregon.

On February 6, 2018, the Administrator, Wage and Hour Division of the U.S. Department of Labor, ("Administrator") issued a Determination Letter finding that Butler Amusements, Inc. and Michael Brajevich ("Respondents") substantially failed to comply with the proper job classification requirements of the H-2B program. The Administrator sought unpaid wages and assessed a civil money penalty. Respondents subsequently requested a hearing on the Administrator's determination. See 29 C.F.R. § 503.43.

On April 9, 2019, the Administrator filed an Unopposed Motion for Leave to File Amendment to Administrator's Determination: Summary of Violations. The February 6, 2018 Determination Letter included violations for nine misclassified nonimmigrant workers and referenced back wages due in the amount of $24,987.60. In preparing for hearing, the Administrator "carefully reviewed the back wages sought for misclassified nonimmigrant employees," and now seeks to revise the number of misclassified workers from nine to ten and revise the amount of the back wages due to $23,952.60. The counsel for the Administrator indicated she conferred with Respondents' counsel on April 8, 2019, and that Respondents do not oppose the motion. Attached to the motion is a revised Summary of Violation and Remedy form.

The Rules of Practice and Procedure for Administrative Hearings Before the Office of Administrative Law Judges found at 29 C.F.R. Part 18 apply in this matter to the extent they do not conflict with the provisions in 29 C.F.R. Part 503. 29 C.F.R § 503.44(a). Because 29 C.F.R. Part 503 does not provide for any specific relevant procedure, amendment of a claim under the Act is governed by 29 C.F.R. § 18.36 which states, "[t]he judge may allow parties to amend and supplement their filings." 29 C.F.R. § 18.36; see also Fed. R. Civ. P. 15(a)(2) (a court "should freely give leave [to amend] when justice so requires."). As Respondents do not oppose the Administrator's motion and I find that the amendment is allowable under 29 C.F.R. § 18.36, the Administrator's motion is granted. The number of misclassified workers is changed from nine to ten and the amount of back wages sought at the hearing is changed to $23,952.60, as reflected in the attached revised Summary of Violation and Remedy form.

SO ORDERED.

In the Matter of:

ADMINISTRATOR, WAGE & HOUR DIVISION,
Prosecuting Party,

v.

BUTLER AMUSEMENTS, INC. AND
MICHAEL BRAJEVICH, an individual,
Respondents.

ORDER GRANTING IN PART AND DENYING IN PART MOTION TO COMPEL

This matter arises under the H-2B provisions of the Immigration and Nationality Act ("INA"), 8 U.S.C. §§ 1101(a)(15)(H)(ii)(b), 1184(c)(1), (14), the 2008 implementing regulations at 20 C.F.R. Part 655, Subpart A (2009)[1], and the applicable procedural regulations at 29 C.F.R. Part 503, Subpart C. A hearing is scheduled for May 8 to 10, 2019, in Portland, Oregon.

On February 6, 2018, the Administrator, Wage and Hour Division of the U.S. Department of Labor, ("Administrator") issued a Determination Letter finding that Butler Amusements, Inc. and Michael Brajevich ("Respondents") substantially failed to comply with the proper job classification requirements of the H-2B program. The Administrator found that Respondents failed to pay a number of misclassified H-2B workers for the period from February 1, 2013, to April 24, 2013. The Administrator sought unpaid wages and assessed a civil money penalty. Respondents subsequently requested a hearing on the Administrator's determination. See 29 C.F.R. § 503.43.

On March 14, 2019, the Administrator filed a Motion to Compel Respondents' Answers and Responses to Discovery ("Mot."). On April 1, 2019, Respondents filed an Opposition to Motion to Compel ("Opp."). On April 5, 2019, the Administrator filed a Reply, and on April 8, 2019, Respondent submitted a Sur-reply.

As explained below, the Administrator's Motion is granted in part and denied in part.

[1] The 2008 H-2B regulations were promulgated on December 19, 2008, effective on January 18, 2009, and codified into the Code of Federal Regulations in 2009. Labor Certification Process and Enforcement for Temporary Employment in Occupations Other Than Agriculture or Registered Nursing in the United States (H-2B Workers), and Other Technical Changes, 73 Fed. Reg. 78,020 (Dec. 19, 2008).

Background

The Administrator served Respondents with discovery requests on December 14, 2018, which Respondents answered on January 16, 2019. Mot., Ex. A, B. The Administrator determined that a number of Respondents' answers were deficient and sent them a letter detailing the asserted deficiencies. Mot., Ex. C. The Administrator felt that Respondents' answers to eight Requests for Admission ("RFAs"), thirteen Interrogatories, and ten Requests for Production ("RFPs") were deficient. The parties conferred regarding the discovery dispute on January 31, 2019, and Respondents agreed to supplement some discovery answers by February 19, 2019. Mot., Ex. D. After Respondents failed to supplement their responses, the Administrator filed the present Motion to Compel.

On April 1, 2019, Respondents filed an Opposition to Motion to Compel. Respondents stated they submitted supplemental discovery responses, including documents. They did not submit a copy of or provide information about the supplemental discovery responses. Respondents also argued that the Administrator was seeking information outside the timeframe at issue and asserted that many records were maintained by the company's outside accountant who is "overwhelmed" by tax season. Respondents additionally asserted that the company "is a mobile amusement operator and is fully engaged in its operating season." Opp. at 1. Finally, Respondents contended that they did not fail to answer the discovery, and while the Administrator may not have been satisfied with the answers, this does not constitute a failure to respond initially." Id.

In reply, the Administrator took the position that Respondents did not specifically address any deficiency identified and the Administrator "does not agree that Respondents' supplementation cures any identified discovery deficiency because Respondents have not pointed to any specific cure they have provided."

In their sur-reply, Respondents asserted that they had spoken with the Administrator's counsel multiple times and were "unaware throughout those communications that the Administrator contended that there was some undisclosed deficiency." Respondents still do not know what the purported remaining deficiency might be, and they argue that without further detail about the remaining deficiency, an order to compel cannot accomplish anything further. Respondents believe they "responded to all of the Administrator's prior grievances," and "reluctantly" attached a copy of their supplemental interrogatory answers even though they believed this would "accomplish little, if any good."

Legal Standard and Discussion

This matter is governed by the Rules of Practice and Procedure for Administrative Hearings Before the Office of Administrative Law Judges, found at 29 C.F.R. Part 18. 29 C.F.R. § 503.44(a). Under these rules, a party may obtain discovery regarding any non-privileged matter relevant to any claim or defense asserted by a party. 29 C.F.R. § 18.51(a). Relevant material need not be admissible at the hearing so long as the discovery is reasonably calculated to lead to the discovery of admissible evidence. Id. After conferring with the other party in good faith, a discovering party may move to compel an answer to a discovery request or production of documents. 29 C.F.R. § 18.57(a)(1), (2). "[A]n evasive or incomplete disclosure, answer, or response must be treated as a failure to disclose, answer, or respond." 29 C.F.R. § 18.57(a)(3). A motion to compel must set forth the nature of the request, the response of the party on whom the request was served, arguments in support of the motion, and a certification that the parties have conferred or attempted to confer in good faith. 29 C.F.R. §§ 18.33, 18.57(a)(1). Discovery must be limited when the discovery sought is unreasonably cumulative or duplicative, or if the burden or expense outweighs its likely benefit. 29 C.F.R. § 18.51(b)(4).

Discussion

The Administrator contends that Respondents' supplemental responses do not cure any previously identified deficiency because Respondents failed to identify how they have cured any deficiencies. Respondents contend that they do not know what the remaining deficiencies may be and assert that the Administrator did not communicate to them what the remaining deficiencies were. This Office's rules, as well as the Federal Rules of Civil Procedure, require that the parties attempt to resolve discovery disputes before filing a motion to compel. 29 C.F.R. § 18.57(a)(1); Fed. R. Civ. P. 37(a)(1). The purpose of this rule is to encourage informal resolution of discovery disputes, which serves the interest of the parties and judicial efficiency. While the parties conferred before the Administrator filed the motion to compel, it appears there was no further meaningful conference between the parties after Respondents supplemented their responses. Had there been such a conference, the parties may have been able to resolve any dispute and therefore avoided the need for an order on this dispute. The parties are encouraged to keep in mind the requirement to confer in good faith to resolve disputes before resorting to judicial intervention. Additionally, the lack of detail from either the Administrator or Respondents regarding what deficiencies remain or do not remain makes it difficult to determine what further response from Respondents, if any, is warranted.[2] However, based on the information before me I make the following determinations.[3]

1. Requests for Admission and Associated Interrogatories

A party may serve on any other party a written request to admit the truth of any matters within the scope of § 18.51 relating to 1) facts, the application of law to fact, or opinions about either; and 2) the genuineness of any described documents. 29 C.F.R. § 18.63(a). Under this Office's rules:

> If a matter is not admitted, the answer must specifically deny it or state in detail why the answering party cannot truthfully admit or deny it. A denial must fairly respond to the substance of the matter; and when good faith requires that a party qualify an answer or deny only a part of a matter, the answer must specify the part admitted and qualify or deny the rest. The answering party may assert lack of knowledge or information as a reason for failing to admit or deny only if the party states that it has made reasonable inquiry and that the information it knows or can readily obtain is insufficient to enable it to admit or deny.

[2] The Administrator suggests that Respondents should have shown how their supplemental responses addressed the asserted deficiencies. In at least some jurisdictions, when a party has answered the movant's discovery requests, the party moving to compel discovery has the burden of showing that the opposing party's responses are incomplete. Guantanamera Cigar Co. v. Corporation Habanos, S.A., 263 F.R.D. 1, 7 (D.D.C. 2009); Daiflon, Inc. v. AlliedChem. Corp., 534 F.2d 221, 227 (10th Cir. 1976). However, I note that ALJs have broad discretion to conduct and authorize discovery, and find it in the interest of judicial economy to rule on the Administrator's motion considering the information made available to me. See Vinnett v. Mitsubishi Power Sys., ARB No. 08-104, OALJ No. 2006-ERA-00029, slip op. at 13 (July 27, 2010).

[3] As stated below, to the extent Respondents are ordered to provide further discovery responses, they are due within 10 days of the date of this Order. I recognize that this is beyond the discovery cut-off date of April 15, 2019, but find that the additional few days should not prejudice the parties as they have already agreed to conduct some limited discovery beyond the deadline.

29 C.F.R. § 18.63(a)(4). A party may move the judge to order that an answer that does not comply with this rule be either admitted or that an amended answer be served. 29 C.F.R. § 18.63(a)(6).

The Administrator sought an order compelling answers to eight RFAs. The RFAs and Respondents' response are as follows:

> REQUEST NO. 1: You filed a Temporary Employment Certification ("TEC") under 8 U.S.C. § 1101 (a) (15) (H) (ii) (b) ("H-2B") which was certified on December 14, 2012.
> Response No. 1: Respondents admit that Butler Amusements, Inc., filed an ETA Form 9142 that was certified by a letter dated December 14, 2012. The request is otherwise denied.
> REQUEST NO. 2: You employed H-2B Workers in positions other than as Amusement and Recreation Attendants.
> Response No. 2: Objection. This request is not limited in time, and is therefore largely irrelevant. Without waiving this objection, the request is denied as to the 2013 allegations in this case. The request is otherwise denied.
> REQUEST NO. 3: You provided free housing to each of your H-2B Workers.
> Response No. 3: Objection. This request is not limited in time, and is therefore largely irrelevant. Without waiving this objection, Respondents admit that, during the 2013 season, they provided H-2B workers with housing for which the H-2B workers did not pay a deduction, chargeback, or rent. The request is otherwise denied.
> REQUEST NO. 4: The housing you provided to your H-2B Workers had no permanent address.
> Response No. 4: Objection. This request is not limited in time, and is therefore largely irrelevant. Without waiving this objection, Respondents admit that the housing that they provided during the 2013 season was used at various locations. The request is otherwise denied.
> REQUEST NO. 5: You have employed one or more of your H-2B Workers prior to your 2013 season.
> Response No. 5: Objection. This request is not limited in time, and is therefore largely irrelevant. Without waiving this objection, Respondents admit that Butler Amusements, Inc., participated in the H-2B program before the 2013 season. The request is otherwise denied.
> REQUEST NO. 7: Michael (Mick) Brajavich [sic] controlled Butler Amusements, Inc. for at least the Period of intended Employment.
> Response No. 7: Objection. The term "controlled" is not defined. Without waiving this objection, Respondents admit that Michael Brajevich served as Butler's chief executive officer during the 2013 season. The request is otherwise denied.

REQUEST NO. 9: You paid your H-2B Workers a weekly salary regardless of the number of hours worked.
Response No. 9: Objection. This request is not limited in time, and is therefore largely irrelevant. Without waiving this objection, the request is denied.

REQUEST NO. 10: You did not keep records of the hours, days, and locations your H-2B Workers worked.
Response No. 10: Objection. This request is not limited in time, and is therefore largely irrelevant. Without waiving this objection, the request is denied.

The Administrator sent Respondents a letter contending that their responses were "largely unresponsive." Mot., Ex. D. Regarding RFA #1, the Administrator noted that Respondents admitted the substance of the request and requested clarity on which portion of the question Respondent were denying. Regarding the RFAs where Respondent contended the request was not limited in time (RFAs #2, #3, #4, #9, #10) the Administrator noted that the term "H-2B workers" was defined as limited to those who entered the country under the authorization of the TEC certified under December 14, 2012. The Administrator then requested whether the answer was unchanged "given the lack of foundation for [the] objection." For RFA #4, the Administrator also stated that it was unclear whether Respondents were "admitting, denying or even answering the question asked." Regarding RFA #5, the Administrator noted the definition of the term "H-2B Worker" and requested confirmation that the answer remains unchanged. Regarding RFA #7, the Administrator asserted "controlled" "has its regular meaning" and asked for clarity on which portion of the answer was denied.

Certain interrogatories followed up on the Respondents' answers to the RFAs. Respondents provided the following answers:

INTERROGATORY NO. 1: Unless you unconditionally admitted Request for Admission No. 1, provide the basis or bases upon which you rely for each part of your denial of Request for Admission No. 1.
ANSWER NO. 1: In addition to the basis obvious from the answer itself, the basis for the conditional answer is that the request was overbroad and included false statements or implications. The request also exceeded the permissible bounds for a request for admission of facts.

INTERROGATORY NO. 2: Unless you unconditionally admitted Request for Admission No. 2, provide the basis or bases upon which you rely for each part of your denial of Request for Admission No. 2.
ANSWER NO. 2: In addition to the basis obvious from the answer itself, the basis for the conditional answer is that the request was overbroad and included false statements or implications. The request also exceeded the permissible bounds for a request for admission of facts.

INTERROGATORY NO. 3: Unless you unconditionally admitted Request for Admission No. 3, provide the basis or bases upon which you rely for each part of your denial of Request for Admission No. 3.

ANSWER NO. 3: In addition to the basis obvious from the answer itself, the basis for the conditional answer is that the request was overbroad and included false statements or implications. The request also exceeded the permissible bounds for a request for admission of facts.

INTERROGATORY NO. 4: Unless you unconditionally admitted Request for Admission No. 7, provide the basis or bases upon which you rely for each part of your denial of Request for Admission No. 7.
ANSWER NO. 4: In addition to the basis obvious from the answer itself, the basis for the conditional answer is that the request was overbroad and included false statements or implications. The request also exceeded the permissible bounds for a request for admission of facts.

The Administrator asserted these responses were "incomprehensible." Respondents subsequently supplemented their answers to Interrogatories #2 and #3.

With respect to the requests related to the RFAs, I have reviewed the original responses and make the following determinations, to the extent Respondents have not already complied when they submitted their supplemental responses.

In answering a RFA, Respondents are required to "specify the part admitted and qualify or deny the rest." 29 C.F.R. § 18.63(a)(4). A denial must also "fairly respond to the substance of the matter." Id. The RFA asked Respondents to admit they filed a TEC under 8 U.S.C. § 1101(a)(15)(H)(ii)(b) which was certified on December 14, 2012. Respondent "admit[ted] that Butler Amusements, Inc., filed an ETA Form 9142 that was certified by a letter dated December 14, 2012," but "otherwise denied" the RFA. It is not clear which part of the RFA Respondents are admitting and which they are denying and it appears that Respondents in fact admit the RFA. The accompanying interrogatory (Interrogatory #1) does not clarify Respondents' answer. Respondent provided a copy of its supplemental interrogatory responses with their sur-reply, which did not include a supplemental response to Interrogatory #1. Therefore, to the extent Respondents have not clarified its response to RFA #1, Respondents are ordered to provide a clarification of its answer. If Respondents continue to "otherwise deny" RFA #1, they are ordered to supplement their response to Interrogatory #1.

Regarding RFAs #2, #3, #9, and #10, Respondents appeared to ignore the Administrator's definition of "H-2B workers" as being limited to those who entered the country under the authorization of the TEC certified under December 14, 2012. Respondents' objection that the requests were "not limited in time, and . . . therefore largely irrelevant" is not valid. In the letter to Respondents sent on January 23, 2019, the Administrator asked Respondents to clarify whether the answer was unchanged "given the lack of foundation for [the] objection." Mot., Ex. D. The Administrator reiterated in the motion to compel that these were the grounds for its motion. Mot. at 3 ("The Administrator's letter of January 23, 2019 sets forth each of Respondents' deficiency [sic] in detail."). A party must state the grounds for objecting to a request, and unless the judge finds an objection justified, the judge must order that an answer be served. 29 C.F.R. § 18.63(a)(5)-(6). Respondents' objections do not appear justified. However, Respondents went on to answer each of these RFAs, albeit without waiving the objection. I see no need for Respondents to "clarify" that their answers are unchanged given the objection is unjustified. Respondents' answers to RFAs #2, #3, #9, and #10 are sufficient and the Administrator's motion regarding these RFAs is denied.

The Administrator had the same request with regard to RFA #4, which is similarly denied. There is no need for Respondents to clarify whether the answer is unchanged given that the definition of H-2B workers provided the relevant time period. However, the Administrator also argued that it was not clear from Respondents' answer to RFA #4 whether they were "admitting, denying, or even answering the question asked." The request was to admit that the housing provided had no permanent address. Respondents' answer was that they "admit" that the housing "was used at various locations." I find that Respondents' answer to RFA #4 is unresponsive and does not comport with 29 C.F.R. § 18.63(a) because they did not specify what they were admitting and denying. Respondents are ordered specify which part of the RFA is admitted and which is denied.

Regarding RFA #5, the Administrator noted the definition of the term "H-2B Worker" and requested confirmation that the answer remains unchanged. The RFA requested an admission that Respondents employed "one or more of your H-2B Workers prior to your 2013 season," to which Respondents answered (after objecting that the request was not limited in time) that they "admit that Butler Amusements, Inc., participated in the H-2B program before the 2013 season." I agree with the Administrator that it appears Respondents may have "misapprehended" the discovery request. Respondents are ordered to clarify their answer in light of the definition of H-2B workers as being limited to those who entered the country under the authorization of the TEC certified under December 14, 2012, for purposes of these discovery requests. The Administrator's motion with regard to RFA #5 is granted.

Regarding RFA #7, the Administrator asserted "controlled" "has its regular meaning" and asked for clarity on which portion of the answer was denied. The Administrator's request for clarification on which portion of the answer is denied is granted. Although I note that the term "controlled" was not defined, it is not clear which part of the RFA Respondents are admitting and which they are denying. Interrogatory #4 relates to RFA #7. Respondents did not supplement the original response, which I find inadequate. To the extent Respondents continue to "otherwise deny" RFA #7, Respondents are ordered to supplement Interrogatory #4.

Respondents supplemented Interrogatories #2 and #3, a copy of which was attached to their sur-reply. While the responses may not be as detailed as the Administrator would like, after reviewing these supplemental responses I find the responses adequate and not so incomplete or evasive that would justify an order to compel a further response. The Administrator's motion regarding Interrogatories #2 and #3 is denied.

2. Interrogatories

In addition to the above-mentioned interrogatories, the Administrator objected to Respondents' answers to Interrogatories #5, #6, #7, #9, #10, #11, #12, #14, and #15. Regarding the remaining Interrogatories, I have reviewed the supplemented response provided by Respondents in their sur-reply. I find that Respondents' supplementation of Interrogatories #5, #6, #7, #11, #14, and #15 are sufficient to comply with this Office's rules. The Administrator did not present an argument for why these supplemental responses are still deficient, and I find that they cure any previously incomplete responses. The Administrator's motion with regard to these interrogatories is denied.

Regarding Interrogatory #9, the Administrator asserted that Respondents failed to answer the Interrogatory and asserted that if Respondent attempt to produce evidence which should have been produced in response to this discovery, the Administrator will object. However, I find that while Respondents objected, they also provided answer:

> INTERROGATORY NO. 9: If you dispute any of the Secretary's computations of backwages to your H-2B Workers (attached as EXHIBIT A), please identify and explain each such dispute.
> ANSWER NO. 9: Objection. The Administrator has not explained how those calculations were made, so it is not possible to answer this interrogatory. Further, by its very nature, once a dispute is acknowledged, there is nothing remaining to "identify and explain." Without waiving this objection, Respondents believe that the Administrator made no allowance for proper credits (including for the duration of the season), nor the issues identified in Respondents' motion for summary judgment, including:
> • The unenforceability of the 2008 regulations.
> • The binding nature of ETA's prevailing wages.
> • The absence of enforceable regulatory requirements.
> • It is not necessary to identify every single job task when applying for a prevailing wage.
> • The H-2B workers were entitled to work minor or incidental duties outside of their designated job code up to 20% of their time.
> • The H-2B workers were entitled to work up to 80% of their time supervising others in the same job code.
> SUPPLEMENTAL ANSWER NO. 9: Respondent will supplement this answer once the Administrator produces his file and explains the basis for the calculations.

I find that the original answer was sufficient and not impermissibly incomplete or evasive. While Respondents objected, they also stated their belief that "the Administrator made no allowance for proper credits (including for the duration of the season), nor the issues identified in Respondents' motion for summary judgment." If Respondents attempt to produce evidence at hearing that should have been produced during discovery but was not, the determination on the admissibility of such evidence will be made at the hearing. The Administrator's motion with regard to Interrogatory #9 is denied.

> INTERROGATORY NO. 10: If you dispute the amount of the civil money penalties assessed in this matter, please identify each such dispute.
> ANSWER NO. 10: Objection. The Administrator has not explained how those calculations were made, so it is not possible to answer this interrogatory. Further, by its very nature, once a dispute is acknowledged, there is nothing remaining to "identify." Without waiving this objection, Respondents simply state that they identify the dispute by acknowledging that they dispute the amount.
> SUPPLEMENTAL ANSWER NO. 10: Respondent will supplement this answer once the Administrator produces his file and explains the basis for the calculations. See also the answer to interrogatory #9.

For similar reasons as those regarding Interrogatory #9, the Administrator's motion with regard to Interrogatory #10 is denied. Respondents dispute the amount, which although not particularly descriptive, is sufficient to answer the interrogatory. While the responses may not be as clear and definitive as the Administrator would like, I do not find the answer incomplete.

The Administrator's motion with regard to Interrogatory #12 is granted. Interrogatory #12 and Respondents' answers are as follows:

> INTERROGATORY NO. 12: Please explain your corporate structure with such information to include but not limited to: each principal with their name, title, job duties, and corporate address; the address of each entity; whether any principal has an interest in any other entity; the dates each entity has been in legal existence, whether any entity has a website, and if so, the website address.
> ANSWER NO. 12: Objection. This request is not limited in time, and is therefore largely irrelevant. Without waiving this objection, Butler's chief executive officer is Michael Brajevich. The Board of Directors consists of Michael Brajevich, Lance Moyer, and Tom Shobaken. Corporate shares are owned by Tammy Quint, Kelly Butler, Kris Brajevich, Jill Moyer, and Sean Butler.
> SUPPLEMENTAL ANSWER NO. 12: Mr. Mick Brajevich has no corporate structure.

Respondents did not fully answer Interrogatory #12. For example, they did not identify the job duties and corporate address of each principle of Butler Amusements, and did not provide "the address of each entity; whether any principal has an interest in any other entity; the dates each entity has been in legal existence, whether any entity has a website, and if so, the website address." Respondents are ordered to further supplement their response to Interrogatory #12.

3. Requests for Production

The Administrator moved to compel answers to RFP #1, #2, #3, #5, #6, #7, #8, #9, and #10. Respondents' responses to RFP #1 and #2 appear to be the same response it provided to Interrogatory #1 and #2, which are not responsive. For other responses, Respondents contended that they already produced responsive documents or that "discovery continues" and the response would "be supplemented as needed." The Administrator argued that the Respondents failed to indicate when or where such documents were provided in a manner that would permit the Administrator to identify the documents. With respect to the RFPs at issue, Respondents stated they produced supplemental documents in response to the Administrator's requests. Opp., Ex. 1. Respondents also averred in their sur-reply that they provided an index of documents provided. After considering the parties' arguments, the Administrator's Motion is granted only to the extent that Respondents have not produced responsive documents in their supplemental responses. Respondents shall produce any further responsive documents to the above RFPs to the extent they have responsive documents within their custody or control.

ORDER

1. Within 10 days of this Order, Respondents are ordered to clarify or supplement their discovery responses, as discussed above, as they relate to RFA #1, #4, #5, and #7 and Interrogatory #1, #4, and #12.

2. To the extent Respondents have not produced responsive documents to RFP #1, #2, #3, #5, #6, #7, #8, #9, and #10, Respondents shall produce such documents within 10 days of the date of this Order.

3. The Administrator's Motion is denied in all other respects.

SO ORDERED.

CASE NO.: 2018-TNE-00019

In the Matter of:

ADMINISTRATOR, WAGE & HOUR DIVISION,
Prosecuting Party,

v.

BUTLER AMUSEMENTS, INC. AND
MICHAEL BRAJEVICH, an individual,
Respondents.

ORDER GRANTING IN PART AND DENYING IN PART MOTION TO QUASH

This matter arises under the H-2B provisions of the Immigration and Nationality Act ("INA"), 8 U.S.C. §§ 1101(a)(15)(H)(ii)(b), 1184(c)(1), (14), the 2008 implementing regulations at 20 C.F.R. Part 655, Subpart A (2009)[1], and the applicable procedural regulations at 29 C.F.R. Part 503, Subpart C. A hearing is scheduled for May 8 to 10, 2019, in Portland, Oregon.

On April 4, 2019, the Administrator filed an Emergency Motion to Quash Respondents' Amended Notice of Deposition ("Mot."). On April 8, 2019, Respondents filed an Opposition to Motion to Quash. Respondents filed a permissible supplemental Opposition on April 11, 2019 ("Am. Opp.").[2]

[1] The 2008 H-2B regulations were promulgated on December 19, 2008, effective on January 18, 2009, and codified into the Code of Federal Regulations in 2009. Labor Certification Process and Enforcement for Temporary Employment in Occupations Other Than Agriculture or Registered Nursing in the United States (H-2B Workers), and Other Technical Changes, 73 Fed. Reg. 78,020 (Dec. 19, 2008).

[2] At the Administrator's request, a conference call was scheduled for April 11, 2019. However, after reviewing the parties' submissions, I determined a conference call was not needed. The Administrator and Respondents had agreed between themselves but without agreement of the court that Respondents could present their opposition orally at the conference call. I asked Respondents to file a written response by April 8, 2019, outlining their arguments in opposition to the motion to quash, and Respondents did so. In this written opposition, Respondents asserted that they assumed they would be given the chance to "elaborate" on their arguments at the April 11 conference call. In order to allow Respondents an opportunity to fully respond to the Administrator's motion, I allowed them to submit a supplemental response on an expedited schedule.

Background

Respondents operate a traveling amusement park and employed nonimmigrant employees through the H-2B program. In the Application for Temporary Employment Certification ("Form 9142"), Respondents requested certification for 246 workers to work as "Amusement and Recreation Attendants" from February 1, 2013, to October 31, 2013. Mot., Ex. 2. The Administrator subsequently issued a Determination Letter finding that during the period from February 1, 2013, to April 24, 2013, Respondents substantially failed to comply with the requirement to provide proper job classification information on the Form 9142 and DHS Form I-129. Mot., Ex. 1. The Administrator found that Respondents violated requirements of the H-2B program by employing nonimmigrant employees as Amusement and Recreation Attendants when the actual duties they performed were not recreation or amusement attendant duties. Mot. at 2. The Administrator sought back wages for the allegedly misclassified employees and assessed a civil money penalty in the amount of $10,000.[3] Mot., Ex 1.

Respondents subsequently requested a hearing on the Administrator's determination. See 29 C.F.R. § 503.43; Mot., Ex 3. Respondent included a "general statement" of reasons why the determination was in error, as well as 16 issues for hearing. Mot., Ex. 3.[4]

The Administrator's Motion to Quash

On April 2, 2019, Respondents served two notices of deposition. The first was for Carrie Aguilar, the then-Wage and Hour investigator in this matter.[5] Mot., Ex 4. The second notice was issued for the Administrator's "corporate representative" on thirty enumerated topics under 29 C.F.R. § 18.64(b)(6). The topics listed are:

1. Each topic covered in Administrator's interrogatories, request for production of documents, or requests for admissions.
2. Respondent's timekeeping and payroll practices.
3. The prosecuting party's methodology for and the calculation of civil monetary penalties, back wages, and other remedies and recoverable damages.
4. The identity of all witnesses or employees interviewed or contacted by the Prosecuting Party.
5. The substance of all witness or employee interviews conducted by the Prosecuting Party.
6. All communications between any witness or employee and the Prosecuting Party.
7. All communications between any representative for the Respondent and the Prosecuting Party.

[3] The Administrator originally calculated the amount of back wages due as $24,987.60, based on nine misclassified employees. The Administrator sought leave to amend the determination to revise the amount of back wages due to $23,952.60, based on ten misclassified employees. The Administrator's motion for leave to amend is granted in a separate order.

[4] A number of Respondents' arguments were disposed of in the Order Denying Summary Decision issued on November 14, 2018. For example, I rejected Respondents' argument that neither the 2008 H-2B regulations nor the procedural portions of the 2015 H-2B regulations are enforceable. Other arguments appear irrelevant, such as "Respondents did not offer job terms and working conditions that were less favorable than those offered to temporary foreign workers" or "Respondents did not substantially fail to restrict H-2B workers to an approved itinerary." These are not allegations made in the Administrator's determination.

[5] Ms. Aguilar is now the Assistant District Director of the Portland District Office.

8. The deponent's job title, duties, education, background, training, work experience, and expertise.
9. The Prosecuting Party's history of assessing and enforcing penalties related to the allegations of a violation in this case.
10. Records or other information generated as a result of your investigation of the Respondent.
11. The Prosecuting Party's contention as to when the Respondent first committed any violations of the H-2B program.
12. The Prosecuting Party's contention as to the factual basis for applying the "incidental-duty" rule and the "dual-position" rule to the allegations in this case.
13. All deficiencies that you have identified in Respondent's regulatory compliance, as well as wage and hour or payroll practices.
14. All failures to comply with industry custom and practice, or the prevailing practices for the traveling amusement industry, that you have identified in Respondent's wage and hour or payroll practices.
15. The basis for your contention, if any, that the Respondent violated the Fair Labor Standards Act, or is not exempt from that statute.
16. The basis for your contention that the Respondent willfully misrepresented any material fact.
17. The basis for your contention that the Respondent substantially failed to meet any legal requirement or condition when petitioning for an H-2B labor certification or petition.
18. The basis for your contention that the Respondent substantially failed to comply with any legal requirement or condition as an H-2B employer.
19. The factual basis for your contention that the Respondent is not entitled to take a credit for providing its employees with bunkhouses, local convenience travel, in and out of country travel, prepayment plans, spot-to-spot variation in prevailing wages, and other facilities identified in Respondent's answers to interrogatories.
20. Approved procedures for determining approved tasks for SOC code 39-3091 (amusement and recreation attendants).
21. The factual basis, if any, for disputing the calculation of the cost basis to provide bunkhouses, as calculated in Butler 01682-01685.
22. The factual basis, if any, for disputing the calculation of the cost basis to provide local convenience travel, as calculated in Butler 01759-01816.
23. The factual basis, if any, for disputing the calculation of international or relocation travel, as identified and calculated in Butler 01701-01758.
24. The factual basis, if any, for disputing that the Respondent overpaid its H-2B workers.
25. The factual basis, if any, for disputing that the Respondent paid the personal income taxes of the H-2B workers.
26. The factual basis, if any, that Respondent violated the H-2B regulations in any way.
27. The factual basis, if any, that Respondent knew that it was employing H-2B workers in a manner that violated the H-2B regulations.
28. The factual basis, if any, that Respondent knowingly or recklessly violated the H-2B regulations.
29. The factual basis, if any, that the information was reasonably available from which Respondent could have determined that it was violating the H-2B regulations.
30. The factual basis, if any, that any of the Respondent's violations were substantial.

Mot., Ex. 5.

The Administrator does not object to the deposition of Ms. Aguilar or object to producing an "Agency representative" to address six of the above-listed topics. Specifically, the Administrator does not object to topics covered in #3, #8, #10, #19, and #26. Mot. at 10. However, the Administrator objects to 24 of the above-listed topics and therefore moves to quash those topics in the notice of deposition. Mot. at 3-4. The Administrator groups its objections to the other topics into four categories: overbroad and nonspecific; uniquely within Respondents' own personal knowledge of facts or their practices; facts protected by the Government's Informants Privilege; and, matters beyond the scope of the violation at issue. Additionally, the Administrator seeks a protective order for Ms. Aguilar's deposition to preclude inquiry into the quashed topic areas. Mot. at 4. The Administrator also argues that Respondents may not seek information that is "wholly irrelevant to any claims or defense" and seeks to quash discovery on topics that "subject[] the Administrator to the undue burden of addressing irrelevant topic matters," citing 29 § 18.56(c)(3).

Respondents object to the motion to quash and argue that the Administrator should not be allowed to frustrate discovery and it "makes little sense to restrict broad questioning of a corporate representative." Am. Opp. at 1.

Legal Standard

The Rules of Practice and Procedure for Administrative Hearings Before the Office of Administrative Law Judges found at 29 C.F.R. Part 18 apply in this matter. 29 C.F.R § 503.44(a). When those rules are silent and no other authority controls, the Federal Rules of Civil Procedure apply. 29 C.F.R. § 18.10(a). A party may obtain discovery regarding any matter, not privileged, that is relevant to any party's claim or defense. 29 C.F.R. § 18.51(a). Relevant information need not be admissible if the discovery appears reasonably calculated to lead to the discovery of admissible evidence. Id. A party may notice a deposition to a governmental agency, but "must describe with reasonable particularity the matters for examination." 29 C.F.R. § 18.64(b)(6); see also Fed. R. Civ. P. 30(b)(6). The named organization must then designate one or more persons to testify on its behalf "about information known or reasonably available to the organization." Id. When a claim of privilege is made, the party must expressly make the claim and describe the nature of the privileged material in a manner that permits assessment of the claim. 29 C.F.R. § 18.51(e)(1). A judge must quash or modify a subpoena that "[r]equires disclosure of privileged or other protected matter, if no exception or waiver applies . . . ." 29 C.F.R. § 18.56(c)(3). Additionally, under 29 C.F.R. § 18.52(a), a party may move for a protective order to protect against annoyance, embarrassment, oppression, or undue burden or expense in responding to discovery requests. The judge may grant such a motion upon a showing of good cause. 29 C.F.R. § 18.52(a).

Discussion

1. Date of the Deposition

An initial dispute was that the depositions were noticed for April 15, 2019, at 10:00 a.m., a date that the Administrator's counsel is unavailable. Additionally, April 15, 2019, is the fact discovery deadline. However, the Administrator "assumes the parties will be able to reschedule this date to a mutually convenient date," and in their supplemental Opposition, Respondents indicated

"the parties quickly agreed to a schedule," although it was outside the discovery cut-off. Therefore, the date of the depositions does not appear to be an issue in dispute.[6]

2. Category 1: Overbroad, Nonspecific, and Irrelevant

The first "category" of topics to which the Administrator objects contains only the first listed topic: "Each topic covered in Administrator's interrogatories, request for production of documents, or requests for admissions." Mot. at 5-6. The Administrator argues this topic should first be quashed for being too vague. Second, the Administrator argues that the topic should be quashed because the topic is an example of "gamesmanship and abuse of the process" and shows a lack of good faith. Finally, the Administrator argues the topic seeks irrelevant information since the Administrator's awareness of issues solely within Respondents' knowledge had no bearing on the issues in this case.

Respondents contend that asking about the topics designated in the Administrator's discovery requests is not overbroad because if they are "overbroad or irrelevant then the Administrator should not have asked them in the first place."

I find that noticing a deposition on the topics covered in the Administrator's discovery requests generally is not "reasonably particular" within the meaning of Section 18.64(b)(6). The scope of the Administrator's interrogatories, requests for production, and requests for admissions was broad, spanning a number of subjects. Respondents' argument that if the topics are overbroad and irrelevant, the Administrator should not have asked them, is not persuasive. The Administrator argues the topic is overbroad in the context of Section 18.64(b)(6)'s particularity requirement, not that the topics in general were overbroad. The Administrator's irrelevancy argument refers to the fact that Respondents are seeking information about the Administrator's knowledge regarding information the Administrator sought from Respondents. While potentially marginally relevant, Respondents' pursuit of this information is simply confusing. While I do not find that Respondents listed this as a topic in bad faith, the request fails to describe with reasonable particularity the matter for examination. Therefore, the Administrator's request to quash Topic #1 is granted.

3. Category 2: Matters Uniquely Within Respondents' Own Knowledge

According to the Administrator, eleven topics fall in this category and Respondent should not be allowed to pursue them at a deposition. These eleven topics are:

Topic #2: Respondent's timekeeping and payroll practices.
Topic #7: All communications between any representative for the Respondent and the Prosecuting Party.
Topic #12: The Prosecuting Party's contention as to the factual basis for applying the "incidental-duty" rule and the "dual-position" rule to the allegations in this case.
Topic #20: Approved procedures for determining approved tasks for SOC code 39-3091 (amusement and recreation attendants).
Topic #21: The factual basis, if any, for disputing the calculation of the cost basis to provide bunkhouses, as calculated in Butler 01682-01685.

[6] Respondents requested leave to conduct the depositions after the discovery cut-off date of April 15, 2019, which is granted as the parties are in agreement.

Topic #22: The factual basis, if any, for disputing the calculation of the cost basis to provide local convenience travel, as calculated in Butler 01759-01816.
Topic #23: The factual basis, if any, for disputing the calculation of international or relocation travel, as identified and calculated in Butler 01701-01758.
Topic #24: The factual basis, if any, for disputing that the Respondent overpaid its H-2B workers.
Topic #25: The factual basis, if any, for disputing that the Respondent paid the personal income taxes of the H-2B workers.
Topic #27: The factual basis, if any, that Respondent knew that it was employing H-2B workers in a manner that violated the H-2B regulations.
Topic #29: The factual basis, if any, that the information was reasonably available from which Respondent could have determined that it was violating the H-2B regulations.

The Administrator notes that the purpose of a Section 18.64(b)(6) deposition is to inquire about the organization's knowledge, and that it is a "truthseeking process." Mot. at 7, citing Taylor v. Illinois, 484 U.S. 400 (1988). The Administrator contends that these requests violate the "letter and spirit of discovery" because Respondents are seeking information about their own practices. Id. Additionally, the Administrator argues that "the Administrator's awareness of issues solely within Respondents' personal knowledge has no bearing on whether Respondents violated the H-2B regulations." Id.

Respondents argue that the fact Respondents "may already know something about [a] topic" does not mean that it is not appropriate to ask about the topic in order to "narrow the dispute." Am. Opp. at 4. Respondents contend that "[i]f in fact the Administrator has no intent to offer evidence to dispute Respondents' evidence, then they should say so under oath." Id. Respondents also assert that the Administrator is misreading the designated topics. For example, Topic #20 asked about the procedures for choosing a job code, which is not within Respondents' knowledge.

Topics #21, #22, #23, #24, #25, #27, and #29 seek information about the Administrator's factual basis for disputing Respondents' defenses, which is relevant to the matter at hand. I do not see how asking about the Administrator's "factual basis" to refute Respondents' arguments is improper or inquiring only into information known to Respondents. If the agency as an organization has no information on any of these topic, the representative can indicate that at the deposition. The Administrator's motion to quash these topics is denied.

Topic #7 seeks information regarding all communications between any representative for the Respondents and the Administrator. This is similarly not knowledge solely known to Respondents and the Administrator's request is denied. However, questions on this topic are subject to the protections of the Government's Informant Privilege discussed below, to the extent that any of these communications involved an individual who provided confidential information to the Administrator.

Topic #2 refers to Respondents' timekeeping and payroll practices. While it is not clear if an agency representative would have specific knowledge about Respondents' timekeeping and payroll practices, given the broad scope of discovery, I find that this is a permissible topic to designate in a Section 18.64(b)(6) notice. The Administrator's duty is to designate a person to "testify about information known or reasonably available to the organization." If the requested information is not known or reasonably available, the Administrator's representative can so indicate at the deposition. If the Administrator considers this information to be irrelevant, counsel may object at the deposition and renew any such objection at the hearing. However I do not find it so irrelevant or in violation of the "letter and spirit of discovery" as to warrant preventing any questioning on the topic.

Topics #12 and #20 do not seem to refer to information that would solely be within Respondents' knowledge. Topic #12 asks about the Administrator's "contention as to the factual basis for applying the 'incidental-duty' rule and the 'dual-position' rule to the allegations in this case." One of Respondents' arguments in their request for a hearing was that the Administrator failed to apply the "incidental activities" rule to this case. Mot., Ex. 3. Therefore, while the topic appears to be misstated—the allegation is that any such rule was not applied—it appears relevant. The Administrator attached a declaration from Ms. Aguilar averring that she does not know what these terms mean. Aguilar Decl. ¶¶ 10, 11. If this is the Administrator's position, a representative can say so at a deposition. The Administrator's request regarding Topic #12 is denied. Similarly, Topic #20 refers to "Approved procedures for determining approved tasks for SOC code 39-3091 (amusement and recreation attendants)." This is not something solely within Respondents' knowledge and is relevant given that the Administrator contends Respondents employed H-2B workers as amusement and recreation attendants but had the H-2B workers performing duties that corresponded with different job codes with a different prevailing wage. The Administrator's request with regard to Topic #20 is denied.

In sum, the Administrator's request to quash or preclude the questions on these eleven topics is denied.

4. Category 3: Requests Subject to the Government's Informant Privilege

The Administrator's objection to Topics #4, #5, and #6 are based on the Government's Informant Privilege, which protects against the disclosure of information that could be used to identify individuals who furnish information about potential violations of law to the government. Mot. at 7-9, citing In re Perez, 749 F.3d 849, 855 (9th Cir. 2014).

Respondents argue that since it noticed the depositions, the Administrator has produced redacted witness statements. Respondents contend that "[a]t a minimum, Respondents should be permitted to ask questions based upon the material that has now been produced" and if a privilege applies, it should be asserted at the time. Am. Opp. at 4. Respondents contend they should be allowed to ask about the interview process or data that does not identify sources.

The Ninth Circuit has noted the importance of the privilege, in part in order to prevent retaliation and to foster "candid dialog" between informants and government investigators. In re Perez, 749 F.3d at 855-57. The confidentiality of a person who provides information in connection with an enforcement action is also protected by the H-2B regulations. 20 C.F.R. § 655.50(d) ("The WHD Administrator shall, to the extent possible under existing law, protect the confidentiality of any person who provides information to the Department in confidence in the course of an investigation or otherwise under this subpart."); see also 29 C.F.R. § 503.7(c).

Topic # 4 seeks "The identity of all witnesses or employees interviewed or contacted by the Prosecuting Party." This topic violates the Government's Informant Privilege and is therefore quashed. Topic #5 refers to "The substance of all witness or employee interviews conducted by the Prosecuting Party" and Topic #6 refers to "All communications between any witness or employee and the Prosecuting Party." These topics are only allowed to the extent that the information sought does not reveal the identity of the cooperating individuals or any information that would reveal the individual's identity.

5. Category 4: Irrelevant Requests and Requests Beyond the Scope of the Violations

The Administrator objects to nine topics based on their irrelevance. These topics are:

Topic #9: The Prosecuting Party's history of assessing and enforcing penalties related to the allegations of a violation in this case.
Topic #11: The Prosecuting Party's contention as to when the Respondent first committed any violations of the H-2B program.
Topic #13: All deficiencies that you have identified in Respondent's regulatory compliance, as well as wage and hour or payroll practices.
Topic #14: All failures to comply with industry custom and practice, or the prevailing practices for the traveling amusement industry, that you have identified in Respondent's wage and hour or payroll practices.
Topic #15: The basis for your contention, if any, that the Respondent violated the Fair Labor Standards Act, or is not exempt from that statute.
Topic #16: The basis for your contention that the Respondent willfully misrepresented any material fact.
Topic #17: The basis for your contention that the Respondent substantially failed to meet any legal requirement or condition when petitioning for an H-2B labor certification or petition.
Topic #28: The factual basis, if any, that Respondent knowingly or recklessly violated the H-2B regulations.
Topic #30: The factual basis, if any, that any of the Respondent's violations were substantial.

The Administrator argues that parties are only entitled to discovery relevant to a party's claim or defense and that the topics listed above are not relevant to the violations determined by the Administrator or the Respondents' defenses. Mot. at 9-10. Respondents argue that this proceeding is not governed by any formal rules of evidence, and therefore "relevance is not a particularly demanding standard." Am. Opp. at 5. While Respondents are correct that there are no formal rules governing the admission of evidence at the hearing,[7] the admissibility of evidence is not at issue at this point in the proceedings. Instead, the scope of discovery as described in 29 C.F.R. § 18.51(a) is the appropriate standard to apply: discovery may be had regarding to any party's claim or defense and relevant information need not be admissible if the discovery appears reasonably calculated to lead to the discovery of admissible evidence. Regardless, as explained further below, I find that the topics listed above are relevant and discoverable, with the exception of Topics #9, #11, and #13.

Respondents argue Topic #9 is relevant because "the Administrator's enforcement polices for these specific violations are related to the factors that must be considered to adjudge [civil money penalties]." Am. Opp. at 6. Respondents also argue that the Administrator's prior practice is a "rule" that it "may wish to invoke as a defense." Id. Respondents' explanation does not persuade me that this topic is relevant to the claims and defenses in this case. Respondents do not explain what they mean by the "factors that must be considered to adjudge" civil money penalties. To the extent they seek information about the factors that the Administrator considered in the calculation of the civil money penalties in this case, this request is covered by Topic #3. Inquiry into the Administrator's determination of the civil money penalties in this case is clearly relevant. However, to the extent that Respondents seek information about the Administrator's policies in general or historical examples of assessing penalties for similar violations, I find this request overbroad and not reasonably calculated to lead to the discovery of relevant, admissible evidence. Therefore, the Administrator's request regarding Topic #9 is granted.

Respondents argue that Topic #11, timing of Respondents' violations, is relevant to the statute of limitations issue. This issue was decided in my November 14, 2018 Order Denying Summary Decision and therefore is no longer relevant. The Administrator's request regarding Topic #11 is granted.

Respondents contend that Topic #13 is relevant because they need to know if the Administrator intends to claim that Respondents engaged in other regulatory deficiencies. The Determination Letter issued by the Administrator delineate which violations are at issue. This request does not appear relevant to any party's claim or defense and therefore the Administrator's request regarding Topic #13 is granted.

Topics #14 and #15 are related to defenses Respondents are asserting: that they complied with industry custom and practice and that they are not subject to the FLSA, which relates to their argument they are entitled to certain credits. Respondents contend they are entitled to discovery as to the Administrator's opinion on these topics. I find that these topics are relevant to Respondents' defenses, and therefore they are an appropriate subject for discovery. The Administrator's request with regard to these topics is denied.

Similarly, Topics #16, #17, #28, and #30 relate to the Administrator's claims. The Administrator is claiming that Respondents substantially failed to comply with the H-2B program requirements, which is one basis for imposing a civil money penalty. Therefore Topic #17 and Topic #30 are clearly relevant. While it does not appear that the Administrator is contending that Respondents "willfully misrepresented any material fact" or acted "recklessly," I find discovery on Topics #16 and #28 are reasonably calculated to lead to the discovery of admissible evidence, considering that these are arguments the Administrator could make. If the Administrator considers this information to be irrelevant, counsel may object at the deposition and renew any such objection at the hearing. The Administrator's request with regard to these topics is denied.

In sum, with regard to this category of objections, the Administrator's request is granted as to Topics #9, #11, and #13.

ORDER

1. Consistent with the discussion above, the Administrator's Motion is granted as to the following topics: Topic #1, Topic #4, Topic #9, Topic #11, and Topic #13.

2. Respondents may inquire into Topics #5, #6, and #7 only the extent that the information sought does not reveal the identity of the cooperating individuals or any information that would reveal the individual's identity.

3. The Administrator's Motion is denied in all other respects.

SO ORDERED.

RE: Administrator v. Butler Amusements, Inc. et al.

ADMINISTRATOR, WAGE AND HOUR DIVISION, UNITED STATES DEPARTMENT OF LABOR, Prosecuting Party, v. BUTLER AMUSEMENTS, INC. and MICHAEL BRAJEVICH, Respondents.	ADMINISTRATIVE PROCEEDING Case No. 2018-TNE-00019 ADMINISTRATOR'S PREHEARING STATEMENT

Pursuant to the Court's Order of November 30, 2018, and 29 C.F.R. §18.80(c)[1], the Administrator provides the following:

(1) Name of Party

This statement is submitted by the Plaintiff, the Administrator of the Wage and Hour Division, U.S. Department of Labor.

(2) Issues of Law

Most issues of law were resolved by this Court's November 14, 2018 Order Denying Summary Decision. The remaining issues of law for the Administrator are as follows:

- Whether Respondents violated the 20 C.F.R. §655.22(n) (2008 Regulations), when they

[1] The identification of issues in this Statement is taken from 29 C.F.R. §18.80(c).

compensated employees as recreation and amusement attendants who were not performing recreation and amusement attendant job duties;

- Whether computed backwages remedy the violation of 20 C.F.R. §655.22(n), and;

- Whether civil money penalties in the amount of $10,000 remedy the violation of 20 C.F.R. §655.22(n).

(3) Precise Statement of Relief Sought

The Administrator seeks backwages of $23,952.60[2] for nine nonimmigrant workers, and a civil money penalty of $10,000 for Respondents' failure to comply with the requirements of the H-2b program for the 2013 season for nine nonimmigrant workers.

(4) Stipulated Facts

The Administrator has proposed stipulations to Respondents but has not been made aware that Respondents agree to the proposed stipulations. Respondents have not proposed any stipulations to the Administrator.

(5) Disputed Facts

The Administrator believes the following facts are in dispute:

(i) The duties performed by the nine[3] nonimmigrant workers for whom the Administrator has calculated backwages;

(ii) The amount of backwages due each nonimmigrant employee.

(6) Plaintiff's Witness List

Regional Enforcement Coordinator Ramon Huaracha Estimated Time on Direct: 1 hour

U.S.DOL: Wage and Hour Division
700 Ygnacio Valley Road, Suite 300
Walnut Creek, CA 94596

[2] Pending this Court's approval of the Administrator's unopposed April 9, 2019 Motion for Leave to Amend the amount in the Summary of Violations.

[3] Properly, there are ten nonimmigrant employees due backwages. The Administrator inadvertently left a nonimmigrant worker off the list of re-computed backwages in his trial exhibits. The Administrator may move this Court to conform the remedy to the evidence before, during, or after the hearing.

It is expected that Regional Enforcement Coordinator Huaracha's testimony will explain and prove the backwages due nonimmigrant workers and the civil money penalty assessed against Respondents.

Former Wage Hour Investigator Carrie Aguilar Estimated Time on Direct: 2 hours

U.S. DOL: Wage and Hour Division
620 SW Main Street, #423
Portland, OR 97205

It is expected that former Wage Hour Investigator Carrie Aguilar's testimony will prove the Administrator's determination that nonimmigrant workers performed duties not specified in, and ultimately uncompensated by Respondents' TEC. It is further expected that Ms. Aguilar will explain her reconstruction of backwages due and demonstrate it is reasonable though it be approximate.

Ms. Aguilar is presently the Assistant District Director of the Portland District Office.

Witnesses whose deposition will be offered:

The Administrator does not presently have any deposition to offer in lieu of direct testimony. Ms. Aguilar's deposition and the deposition of an Agency designated representative pursuant to 29 C.F.R. §18.64(b)(6) will be taken on April 19, 2019 but no transcript is presently available necessary to satisfy this pretrial deadline.

Rebuttal witnesses and/or exhibits need not be disclosed.

(7) Joint Exhibits

So as to avoid duplication, the Administrator has withdrawn three previously-marked trial exhibits exchanged with Respondents prior to this Prehearing Statement (prior exhibits B, F, and S) and will rely instead on Respondents' previously-marked trial exhibits (respectively: originally-marked 19, 5, and 48). No joint exhibits have been marked.

Re: Administrator v. Butler Amusements, Inc.
Case No. 2018-TNE-00019

Dear Judge Clark:

I am writing to request Your Honor's reconsideration of the hearing location.

During the scheduling conference on November 29, 2018, this issue was discussed at length and it was agreed that the hearing would be held in San Francisco. This was based on the fact that my client's mobile amusement operation and nearly all of our anticipated witnesses would be operating within an hour of San Francisco. Obviously, this would also be more convenient for Your Honor. The only witness in Portland is the Wage and Hour investigator.

The scheduling order itself repeated that the hearing would be in Portland, but this appeared to be merely a matter of repeating the previous version of that same document without updating the new ruling. Counsel had discussed this issue and agreed that the hearing would be in San Francisco as originally order. Respondents have made trial and travel plans based on the original determination that the hearing would be in San Francisco.

Sincerely,

R Wayne Pierce

RE: Administrator v. Butler Amusements, Inc. et al.
Case No. 2018-TNE-00019

Dear Judge Clark:

Further to our Prehearing Conference this morning, please find the Administrator's Second Motion to Amend the List of Employees due Backwages and their amounts. As the Court requested, I included a chart of each employee's name, the job duties they performed, and the total amount of backwages sought.

So as to maintain consistency with the Administrator's Trial Exhibits, I am also attaching Trial Exhibit I to reflect the information contained in the Secretary's Motion. In the event the Court grants the motion, the Secretary will substitute the attached Exhibit I.

So as to avoid duplicate exhibits, the Administrator intended to rely on Respondents' Exhibit 19 for the Administrator's Determination Letter. Should the Court grant the attached Motion, the Summary of Violations attached to Respondents' Exhibit 19 will need revision as well. If the instant Motion is granted, I will provide all copies of the revised Summary of Violations (Respondents' Exhibit 19, page 5) at the hearing.

Thank you.

Very truly yours,

ADMINISTRATOR, WAGE AND HOUR DIVISION, UNITED STATES DEPARTMENT OF LABOR, Plaintiff, v. BUTLER AMUSEMENTS, INC. and MICHAEL BRAJEVICH, Respondents	ADMINISTRATIVE PROCEEDING Case No. 2018-TNE-00019 ADMINISTRATOR'S SECOND MOTION TO AMEND THE EMPLOYEES DUE BACKWAGES AND THE AMOUNTS DUE

COMES NOW the the Prosecuting Party, the Administrator of the Wage and Hour Division (the "Administrator"), and, pursuant to 29 C.F.R. §18.33 and the Court's Prehearing Conference of April 29, 2019, requests the Court amend the list of employees due backwages in this matter and the amounts due. This amendment is necessary to correct the Administrator's inadvertent failure to include one nonimmigrant employee in the amendment approved by the Court on April 12, 2019.

As provided during the parties' Prehearing Conference with the Court on April 29, 2019, the individual inadvertently left off the April 12 amendment, Sergio Guzman, does not present new information; Mr. Guzman was always included both as a basis for Respondents' violation and as an employee due backwages. The backwages due Mr. Guzman were provided to Respondents during the investigation.

The final list of nonimmigrant employees due backwages, the amount due, and the occupation each nonimmigrant performed is as follows:

Name	Occupation	Amount Due
Gustavo Gamero	Driver	$ 3,229.60
Sergio Guzman	Driver	$ 3,229.60
Jaime Hernandez	Shop Worker	$ 3,297.80
Saul Estadillo Herrera	Driver	$ 3,229.60
Omar Lopez	Supervisor	$ 3,051.40
Antonio Mendez	Supervisor	$ 574.00
Jose Ivan Ortega	Driver	$ 2,936.00
Fernando Preza	Driver	$ 3,229.60
Felipe Villegas Quijano	Shop Worker	$ 4,177.80
Marilu Zepeda	Administrative	$ 226.80
	Total:	$27,182.20

To reiterate the Administrator's position as stated in the Court's Prehearing Conference, there were always ten employees who formed the basis of Respondents' violations. Originally, nine of these nonimmigrant employees were due backwages; backwages were not initially calculated for Marilu Zepeda. However, in preparation for hearing, the Administrator revised the backwage calculations. During this revision, Mr. Guzman was inadvertently omitted from the Administrator's list.

Mr. Guzman is now included in the list above and in the Administrator's Trial Exhibit I, pages 1-3 (marked pages 213-215). The Administrator attaches his Trial Exhibit I consistent with this Motion.

Respectfully submitted this 29th day of April, 2019.

Re: Administrator v. Butler Amusements, Inc.
Case No. 2018-TNE-00019

Dear Judge Clark:

Please accept this letter as our submission on whether the following issues will be resolved during the hearing next week. We do object to trying to respond to so many issues in less than 5 hours. Effectively, this amounts to an extensive motion for summary judgment with the sanction of evidence preclusion, the deadline for which the Administrator allowed to pass.

I. Issues of Law

Whether the Administrator's charges contravene the statute of limitations or laches.

This issue has been raised, in part, because the Administrator improperly charged the case as a substantial failure rather than a willful misrepresentation. According to the Administrator's official interpretations published on his website and marked as Respondent's Exhs. 96 and 101, misclassification should have been charged as willful misrepresentation. If charged as a willful misrepresentation, the violation occurred at the time the application was submitted, see Kersten v. Lagard, Inc., No. 06-111, 2008 Westlaw 4820115, at *5 (Admin. Rev. Bd. Oct. 17, 2008) (the statute of limitations accrues on the date when the employer misrepresented a material fact in the labor certification), which was well outside of the 5-year statute of limitations. The prior summary judgment ruling was premised on the case being charged as a substantial failure, which was not correct.

This issue has also been raised because the only ruling was directed to Respondent's motion for summary judgment. As a motion for summary judgment, our motion could be denied because we failed to establish the affirmative defense as a matter of law. Such a ruling does not address whether Respondents would lose these defenses as a matter of law, nor were the Respondents on notice that they were in jeopardy of losing on a motion that was never filed.[1] If the Administrator had chosen to file his own motion for summary judgment, Respondents would have been free to pursue these issues at that time, or have requested reconsideration that there was no basis for determining the stature limitations adversely to Respondents as a matter of law. The Administrator has never filed such a motion for summary judgment. The Respondents are still entitled to present their factual evidence to show that the statute of limitations started more than 5 years before the determination letter was filed.

Finally, Respondents' motion for summary judgment was denied for laches for failing to establish undue delay and prejudice as a matter of law. Opinion at 19 (Nov. 14, 2018). There has been no ruling that Respondents cannot do so as a factual matter, nor were they on notice of any obligation to do so. And because the evidence related to laches should be admitted under all circumstances, there is no reason to artificially dissect the evidence in the belief that it was limited to statute of limitations alone. That would unnecessarily prolong the trial and create avoidable issues.

Whether the 2008 Rules and 2015 procedural regulations are enforceable.

Once again, the Administrator never pursued a motion for summary judgment on this issue. We will agree that this issue was addressed in the summary judgment ruling and have raised it only for the purpose of preserving it. By doing so, we should not be interpreted as waiving the same issue for the purpose of statute of limitations or laches.

Whether the Administrator has an enforceable regulation advising employers that are exempt from the Fair Labor Standards Act how to complete Form ETA 9142 or I-129.

There has been no ruling on the issue of whether there has been a violation when the regulations do not specify how an FLSA-exempt employer is to complete the applications. To the extent that the Administrator's theories do not establish how FLSA-exempt employers are to proceed, or do not establish such an obligation unambiguously, that is a valid defense and undercuts the Administrator's ability to show a willful violation.

The Administrator must show that Respondents knew the statutory or regulatory duty applied to their conduct. See McLaughlin v. Richland Shoe Co., 486 U.S. 128, 134 (1988) (rejecting a willfulness standard that required nothing more than the employer's awareness that the statute possibly applied to it). Thus, an agency with enforcement authority must provide notice of its interpretation of what is prohibited before it may impose penalties. General Elec. Co. v. United States Env'tl Protection Agency, 53 F.3d 1324, 1330-32 (D.C. Cir. 1995); Satellite Broadcasting Co. v. Federal Communications Comm'n, 824 F.2d 1, 3-4 (D.C. Cir.

[1] Respondents believe that there is supporting case law on the impropriety of granting summary judgment against the movant in the absence of a cross-motion for summary judgment, but there is insufficient time to research it.

1987) (agency may not penalize for a violation without first providing notice of its interpretation). Without such notice when the regulations do not unambiguously apply, the Administrator has failed to show that the FLSA-exempt employer knew of the violation.

During the conference call this morning, the Administrator represented for the first time that employers exempt from the FLSA are not entitled to wage credits, while those covered by the FLSA are entitled to wage credits not only for complying with the FLSA, but for complying with the H-2B regulations. No such regulatory requirement existed in 2008, and Respondents should be entitled to present their evidence as a basis for establishing that there was no such violation. Furthermore, this was the ruling in Administrator v. Wade Shows (Apr. 10, 2015) (nothing in the 2008 regulations prohibits FLSA-exempt employers from claiming a wage credit for housing), a copy of which is marked as Respondents' Exh. 100. There are several other exhibits that Respondent intends to introduce, such as Exhs. 80 & 83, which further establish that Respondents were entitled to wage credits when calculating remedies and did not violate any regulations by taking them.

This point is illustrated in 20 C.F.R. § 655.22 (g) (1) (2009), which indicates that deductions must be "specif[ied]" and "reasonable," but goes on to indicate that "an employer subject to the FLSA may not make deductions that would violate the FLSA." The corresponding preamble corroborates that different rules apply to FLSA-exempt employers, 73 Fed. Reg. 78020, 78037 (Dec. 19, 2008) (relying upon 20 C.F.R. § 655.104 (p)). This is just a single example of why this is an issue that should be submitted for hearing and should not be foreclosed by a preliminary ruling.

II. Disputed Fact Issues

Whether the Respondents reasonably or in good faith relied upon Department of Labor or State Workforce Agencies' regulations, interpretations, administrative practice, or enforcement policy.

As described above, Respondents intend to introduce evidence that they relied on DOL interpretations. Respondents also relied upon WHD's enforcement actions in other cases.

This is a valid defense. Exh. 1, Wage and Hour Division, Field Operations Handbook § 53a01 (1993). Such reliance also undercuts the ability of the Administrator to show willfulness, which is a necessary element to establish a "violation" based upon a substantial failure. The Administrator must establish that Respondents violated a statutory or regulatory duty willfully. See Trans World Airlines v. Thurston, 469 U.S. 111, 128 n. 22 (1985) (rejecting as "harsh" a willfulness standard that called for nothing more than showing a statutory violation); Morello Bros. Constr., Inc., No. 85-DBA-116, 1987 Westlaw 247058, at *7 (OALJ Apr. 16, 1987) ("willfully simply means a voluntary intentional violation of a known legal duty") (quoting United States v. Drape, 668 F.2d 22, 26 (1st Cir. 1982)). The elements that the Administrator must prove to establish a "violation" are specified in the Opinion at 11-12 (Nov. 14, 2018).

Whether the Respondents reasonably or in good faith relied upon professional counsel.

In the same way, regulated entities are entitled to rely upon professional advice, and such reliance undercuts the ability of the Administrator to prove willfulness. Respondents must commit a "'willful failure,'" which means "a knowing failure or a reckless disregard with respect to whether the conduct was contrary" to 8 U.S.C. § 1184 (c) or the 2008 Rules. § 655.65 (e). DOL adopted this standard by expressly relying upon McLaughlin v. Richland Shoe Co., 486 U.S. 128 (1988) and Trans World Airlines v. Thurston, 469 U.S. 111 (1985). § 655.65 (e). McLaughlin noted that "willful" is synonymous with voluntary, deliberate, and intentional, and held that it means the employer "either knew or showed reckless disregard for the matter of whether its conduct was prohibited by the statute." McLaughlin, 486 U.S. at 133. Willfulness is not established by conduct that is "merely negligent" but not reckless, such as the absence of a reasonable belief that the employer was complying with the statute, or a good-faith but incorrect "assumption" that the employer was complying. McLaughlin, 486 U.S. at 133, 134, 135 & n. 13. Willfulness is not shown when the employer "simply knew of the potential applicability" of the statute. Trans World, 469 U.S. at 127. See also Wayne J. Griffin Elec., Inc., No. 93-05, 1993 Westlaw 537380, at *4 (W.A.B. Oct. 29, 1993) (Where the employer "has explicit knowledge of violative wage payment practices" and "takes no action to correct the wrong, and violations continue," employer has acted willfully). Nor is willfulness shown through inadvertence, A. Vento Constr., No. 87-51, 1990 Westlaw 484312, at *3 (W.A.B. Oct. 17, 1990), or "inaccurate," but not falsified, records that omitted several employees' names, Gaines Elec. Serv. Co., No. 87-48, 1991 Westlaw 494684, at *3 (W.A.B. Feb. 12, 1991).

To show a knowing or reckless violation, both the McLaughlin and Trans World Airlines cases illustrate that employers are entitled to rely upon legal advice and professional agents to properly handle H-2B applications. McLaughlin, 486 U.S. at 134 (seeking legal advice shows the employer's reasonableness, not recklessness); Trans World, 469 U.S. at 129 (employer sought legal advice whether its conduct violated the statute and modified its policy based on that advice, even though the union disagreed with the new policy and the employer believed that the revised action was unnecessary; no evidence that employer was told by counsel that its new policy was discriminatory). Further, the Supreme Court has firmly established in both of those cases that the Administrator must establish that Respondents' interpretation was so baseless as to be reckless. Trans World, 469 U.S. at 129-30.

Whether the Respondents reasonably or in good faith believed that they had committed no violation.

As discussed above, Respondents' reasonable or good faith belief means that they have not proceeded willfully. As such, this is a valid defense and evidence should be received on it.

Whether the Administrator unjustifiably delayed filing the determination letter to the prejudice of Respondents.

This issue preserves as a factual issue the basis for determining statute of limitations or laches. Our reasons for believing that is an issue for the hearing were stated above.

Sincerely,

R Wayne Pierce

RESPONDENTS' OPPOSITION TO MOTION TO AMEND

Pursuant to 29 C.F.R. § 18.33 (d), Respondents oppose the motion to amend and say:

FACTS

1. This timeline is relevant to the factual context for the motion for leave to amend:
   - November 7, 2012 – Respondent signed and submitted its ETA Form 9142. R. Exh. 7.[1]
   - December 14, 2012 – DOLETA issues Respondent's labor certification. R. Exh. 8.
   - February 2, 2013 – Relevant H-2B workers begin working for Respondent. R. Exh. 45.
   - March 22, 2013 – The Administrator initiates the audit. R. Exh. 12.
   - November 22, 2013 – The Administrator reports findings for 10 workers totaling $25,946.80, R. Exh. 14, and partially reveals how the amount was calculated.
   - December 27, 2013 – Respondents oppose the Administrator's calculations.
   - February 25, 2014 – The Administrator eliminates H-2B worker Marilu Zepeda and modifies the findings for the remaining 9 workers to a total of $24,987.60, but does not reveal the method by which the amount was calculated. R. Exh. 16.
   - February 6, 2018 – After nearly 4 years with no communication or other contact, the Administrator issues a determination letter. The determination letter does not contain the names of individual workers or the number of workers involved, but does reflect alleged back wages of $24,987.20. R. Exh. 19.

[1] Respondent relies upon and cites to its trial exhibits, which will be available in full at the hearing.

- November 29, 2018 –The issue of proposed amendments was a discussion topic at the prehearing conference pursuant to 29 C.F.R. § 18.44 (d) (2).
- December 14, 2018 – The Administrator issues written discovery containing a list of 9 individuals with alleged back wages totaling $24,987.60. R. Exh. 105. Concurrently, the Administrator issues initial disclosures claiming back wages of $24,987.60. R. Exh. 106. Although required to include the "computation" for calculating damages in those initial disclosures, as well as produce copies of those documents "on which each computation is based," 29 C.F.R. § 18.50 (c) (1) (i) (C), no such computations or supporting documentation was produced.
- April 8, 2019 – Pursuant to the scheduling order, the parties mailed trial exhibits. What was then marked as Exhibit K (now Exhibit I) reflected 9 workers, including Marilu Zepeda but not Sergio Guzmán, for a total of $23,952.60. Respondents' counsel was out-of-state and was not able to review the documents during the next 3 days.
- April 9, 2019 – The Administrator informed Respondents' counsel by telephone that the amount of back wages needed to be amended by lowering it to a total of $23,952.60. No explanation was provided for how that amount was determined. When Respondents' counsel asked if there were any other changes, he was advised that there were no other changes, so he consented to the proposed amendment. If the Administrator had truthfully represented that Marilu Zepeda was being injected back into the case, Respondents would have opposed leave to amend.

- April 9, 2019 – Later that day, the Administrator filed a motion for leave to amend the determination letter. The motion incorrectly asserts that the determination letter had identified 9 workers, but, in fact, it had not identified any workers. The motion represented that the Administrator had now "carefully reviewed" the back wage calculations, and was revising the number of workers from 9 to 10 and the total back wages to $23,952.60. The motion did not identify any workers or the method by which the calculations were made. The motion incorrectly asserts that it "merely replaces the amount of the back wages sought by the Administrator," which was also the (mis)representation on which Respondent had not opposed the motion. No schedule of workers or itemized back wages was included.
- April 12, 2019 – The Administrator's proposed amendment was granted.
- April 15, 2019 – According to the scheduling order, the Administrator was to serve expert reports or disclose non-experts pursuant to 29 C.F.R. § 18.50 (c) (2). The Administrator made no disclosures, including no disclosures of anyone qualified to determine job classifications and associated wage rates.
- April 15, 2019 – The Administrator's prehearing statement indicated that the Administrator was seeking $23,952.60 for 9 workers. A footnote indicated that there were 10 workers and that the Administrator "may" seek leave to amend, but did not assert a revised amount.

ARGUMENT

The Administrator never acknowledges that there are relevant rules of procedure. Currently, the rules briefly state that the judge "may allow parties to amend and supplement their filings," 29 C.F.R. § 18.36, without attempting to differentiate between the significance of pleadings and other filings. At the time of the alleged misconduct in 2013, the corresponding rule provided that complaints could be amended "upon such conditions as are necessary to avoid prejudicing ... the rights of the parties," and "if ... reasonably within the scope of the original complaint." 29 C.F.R. § 18.5 (b). The Federal Rules of Civil Procedure apply if the A.L.J. rules of procedure are not "control[ing]." 29 C.F.R. § 18.10 (a).

> The Supreme Court has specifically referred to reasons for denying leave to amend:
> Undue delay, bad faith or dilatory motive on the part of the movant, repeated failure to cure deficiencies by amendments previously allowed, undue prejudice to the opposing party by virtue of the allowance of the amendment, futility of the amendment, etc.

Foman v. Davis, 371 U.S. 178, 182 (1962).

I. THE AMENDMENT SHOULD BE DENIED BECAUSE IT IS FUTILE

In this case, the amendment should be denied because the Administrator will not be calling any witnesses capable of determining job classifications and the associated wage rates. The deadline for such disclosures has now come and gone.

It was readily apparent from the Administrator's corporate representative that the Administrator has no probative evidence to present from any witness qualified to address job classifications. The Administrator's representative was completely unfamiliar with the governing guidance documents for determining appropriate job classifications. Those documents have been marked as R. Exhs. 49-75, 88-91, and 99. The ruling on the motion should be deferred until the evidence can be presented to establish that it would be futile to permit the amendment.

II. THE AMENDMENT SHOULD BE DENIED BECAUSE OF REPEATED FAILURE TO CURE DEFICIENCIES BY AMENDMENTS

The amendment should be denied because the Administrator keeps changing his tune.[2] The original calculation occurred on November 22, 2013. Both the number of workers and the method and amount involved were amended for the first time on February 25, 2014. The amount was modified in the determination letter on February 6, 2018. The amount was modified again in the initial disclosures on December 14, 2018. The identity of the workers, the number of workers, and the method and amount were modified once again in the Administrator's original trial exhibits on April 8, 2019. The very next day, the Administrator claimed a "careful review" had now revealed a different set of workers, number of workers, and method and amount, so formal leave to amend was filed. Thus, in the space of 6.5 years, the Administrator has taken 6 different positions and now wants to take a 7th position. Enough is enough. "Litigation must not be allowed to become the carnival game of 'pitch till you win.'" McNeill v. Brady, 1991 Westlaw 165678 (D.D.C. Aug. 6, 1991).

III. THE AMENDMENT SHOULD BE DENIED BASED UPON UNDUE DELAY

It is appropriate to consider the Administrator's "undue delay." Undue delay is a sufficient basis alone to deny leave to amend. Forstman v. Culp, 114 F.R.D. 83, 88 (M.D.N.C. 1987) (citing Sweetheart Plastics, Inc. v. Detroit Farming, Inc., 743 F.2d 1039, 1043 n. 2 (4th Cir. 1984) and Woodson v. Fulton, 614 F.2d 940 (4th Cir. 1980)). "Delay becomes fatal at some period in time," and "when there has been an apparent lack of diligence, the burden shifts to the movant to prove that the delay was due to excusable neglect." Chitamacha Tribe v. Harry L. Laws, Inc., 690 F.2d 1157, 1163 (5th Cir. 1982). If the moving party was aware of the facts upon which the amendment was based for some time before the filing of the motion to amend, this would not constitute "excusable neglect." Federal Ins. Co. v. Gates Learjet Corp., 823 F.2d 383, 387 (10th Cir. 1987); First National Bank v. Master Auto Serv. Corp., 693 F.2d 308, 314 (4th Cir. 1982). The movant must demonstrate some "valid reason for its neglect and delay," especially when the case has been pending for a considerable amount of time. Hayes v. New Eng. Millwork Distributors, Inc., 602 F.2d 15, 19-20 (1st Cir. 1979).

The Administrator has not offered a single reason why its grossly untimely amendment is the result of "excusable neglect." The Administrator has been working this case for 6.5 years. During a 4-year stretch from February, 2014, through February, 2018, there was literally no contact and no communication between the parties. The lengthy delay was entirely the Administrator's fault, and any minimal prejudice to the Administrator is entirely of its own making.

It is also significant that the Administrator's current predicament is the result of his own dilatoriness. Presumably, if a proper initial disclosure had been made, with computations and supporting documentation, that should have eliminated this long-running saga.

This is not a case of the Administrator being misled, but rather a case of the Administrator pursuing his own convenience. It was simply convenient for the Administrator to fail to

- produce computations and documentation during the investigation,
- include computations, number of workers, and documentation in the determination letter,
- produce computations and documentation during initial disclosures,
- seek relief until 9 days before trial,
- disclose why the motion for leave was not filed at least 21 days (i.e., April 17, 2019) before the hearing, as mandated by 29 C.F.R. § 18.33 (c) (2), and
- provide an affidavit or supporting points and authorities, as mandated by 29 C.F.R. § 18.33 (c) (4).

The Administrator made a strategic choice that it would reveal no useful information, even when mandated. Having made that choice, the Administrator should live with the consequences.

IV. THE AMENDMENT SHOULD BE DENIED BECAUSE OF THE UNDUE PREJUDICE TO THE RESPONDENTS

The proposed amendment will certainly prejudice the employer. The 21-day rule is intended to avoid just this sort of last-minute rush. The Administrator was also required to accurately state the amount of back wages in the determination letter itself. 20 C.F.R. § 655.70 (c) (1). The requirement for initial disclosures is also intended to avoid just this sort of situation. Respondents were also prejudiced by the Administrator's misrepresentation that the prior amendment was limited solely to the amount of calculated back wages, when it also involved the addition of Marilu Zepeda, as well as the representation that the administrator "may" move to amend. All of these actions prejudiced the Respondents because it was simply too late and the relevant deadlines had expired to allow the Respondents to effectively defend themselves or file for summary judgment.

The Administrator has seriously prejudiced Respondents' defense. For 4 years, the Administrator did absolutely nothing. This far outstripped the 3-year record retention requirements under the H-2B program. 20 C.F.R. §§ 655.6 (e); 655.10 (i); 655.15 (c); 655.15 (j); 655.21 (c); 655.30 (c). This retention requirement was adopted because the Secretary of Labor specifically recognized that retaining records for 5 years was too burdensome. 73 Fed. Reg. 78020, 78023, 78043 (Dec. 19, 2008). The Administrator then chose to intentionally underdevelop the case with no worker-by-worker calculations in the determination letter or calculations and supporting documents in the initial disclosures. As a result, Respondents were led to believe that there would be no charged violations, and that they certainly would not include Marilu Zepeda or Sergio Guzmán.[3]

With the passage of 6.5 years, Respondents' defense has also suffered with the loss of witnesses and the memories of those witnesses remaining. Although the vast majority of Respondent's H-2B workers return each year, there is a small percentage that does not return. Specifically, out of the 10 workers at issue, only 3 of them are still working for the company, and that does not include Marilu Zepeda or Sergio Guzmán. Further, the general manager for the unit involved, Mr. Kurt vom Berg, was extensively interviewed by the Administrator but has since left the company's employment.

As a result of the Administrator's actions, Respondents have not presented a defense as to Marilu Zepeda. Unlike the other workers, there was no reason to identify the wage rate for the alleged job classification and alternative job classifications for Ms. Zepeda (R. Exhs. 42-43), represent the Administrator's position on back wages (R. Exh. 44), determine her hours worked (R. Exh. 45) or wages earned (R. Exh. 46), or calculate whether her wage credits outstripped any purported back wages (R. Exh. 47). Similarly, there was no reason to obtain job code descriptions, such as O*Net summary reports, detailed reports, and code connectors, as well as SOC job codes. Nor was there any reason to introduce alternative job code descriptions or perform searches of job titles to identify appropriate matches. All of this material was obtained for other workers and marked as R. Exhs. 50-75. Nor did the Respondents have any reason to ask probing questions of the Administrator's corporate representative during the deposition conducted on April 19, 2019.

And once the Administrator withdrew Sergio Guzmán, Respondents no longer had any reason to prepare a defense as to that individual. Thus, unlike the other workers, there was no reason to identify the wage rate for the alleged job classification and alternative job classifications for Mr. Guzmán (R. Exhs. 42-43), represent the Administrator's position on back wages (R. Exh. 44), determine his hours worked (R. Exh. 45) or wages earned (R. Exh. 46), or calculate whether his wage credits outstripped any purported back wages (R. Exh. 47). Nor did the Respondents have any reason to ask probing questions of the Administrator's corporate representative during the deposition conducted on April 19, 2019.

Under similar circumstances, there are numerous decisions rejecting such belated amendments. E.g., Deasy v. Hill, 833 F.2d 38, 40-41 (4th Cir. 1987) (prejudice found because defendant did not have opportunity to develop a defense to a new claim not made in original complaint); Forstman v. Culp, 114 F.R.D. at 88 (denying leave to amend because amendment would require reopening of discovery and the filing of another summary judgment motion); McCann v. Frank B Hall & Co., 109 F.R.D. 363, 367-68 (N.D. Ill. 1986) (denying leave to amend because would prompt need for additional discovery at a time when it was substantially completed). At the time of the purported misclassification, the purpose of the rules of procedure was to ensure that the proceedings were "conducted expeditiously," and "the parties shall make every effort at each stage of a proceeding to avoid delay." 29 C.F.R. § 18.1 (a).

Further, this amendment will immediately prejudice Respondents by increasing the costs of this litigation. Respondents will be forced to move for additional and entirely-redundant discovery vehicles, thereby jeopardizing their right to trial as scheduled. This additional expense will fall inequitably on the employer. This was entirely avoidable if the allegations had been pursued during the original discovery.

It is also important to note that the Administrator easily could have precluded the situation by providing more detail in the determination letter, complying with the rules governing initial disclosures, acting sooner to issue its calculations or pursue an amendment, and not misrepresenting the purpose or effect of the amendment.

CONCLUSION

For the foregoing reasons, Respondents request that the motion to amend be denied. Alternatively, the motion should be deferred until all relevant evidence can be presented at the hearing.

RE: Administrator v. Butler Amusements, Inc. et al.
Case No. 2018-TNE-00019

Dear Judge Clark:

During the the April 29, 2019 Prehearing Conference, the Court accepted the Administrator's three issues of law.[1] The Court gave Respondents the opportunity to brief why certain issues listed in Respondents' Prehearing Statement should be accepted as issues in this case. Respondents' Prehearing Statement includes thirteen un-numbered "issues of law." Statement of April 15, 2019, pp. 1-2. Issue Nos. 1, 2, and 9[2] were declined by this Court. The Court permitted Respondents' briefing on Issue Nos. 3, 4, 5, 6, 8, 10, 11, 12 and 13. Issue No. 7 was accepted without further authority.

Respondents have failed to provide this Court with the persuasion or authority to accept Issue Nos. 3, 4, 5, 6, 8, 10, 11, 12, and 13. Accordingly, these enumerated issues should be rejected because they will unnecessarily complicate, confuse, conflate, or otherwise not address the violations of the regulations which form the basis of this enforcement case.

I. Issues of Law

Respondents do not identify specifically which issues of law their argument addresses. The Administrator's assumptions are included below.

Statute of Limitations and Laches

Under this heading, Respondents apparently address Issue Nos. 1, 2, 3, and 4.[3]

The Administrator charged Respondents with a "substantial failure" violation. See 20 C.F.R. §655.60 (enumerating three violations of H-2b program: willful misrepresentations to [1] (i) whether Respondents violated the H-2b regulations when they compensated employees as recreation and amusement attendants when the employees were not performing recreation and amusement attendant duties; (ii) whether computed backwages remedy the violation of 20 C.F.R. §655.22(n), and; (iii) whether civil money penalties remedy the violation of 20 C.F.R. §655.22(n).

[2] The numbers applied are to each of Respondents' separate paragraphs in their Prehearing Statement.

[3] The Administrator's notes reflect that Issue Nos. 1 and 2 were declined by the Court.

ETA, substantial failures to comply with conditions, and misrepresentations to the State Department); §655.65(c) (permitting CMPs exceeding $10,000 for either a "substantial failure" or "any willful misrepresentation"). Nevertheless, Respondents' argue that the violation found here had to have been charged as a "willful misrepresentation," not a "substantial failure." This argument is unsupported. While Respondents would have rather that the Administrator charged them with a "willful misrepresentation" so that they can offer different arguments (given that the Court has rejected their prior statute of limitations argument), they offer no authority requiring the Administrator to have done so. Respondents must litigate the case that this is, not the case they want it to be.

Furthermore, Respondents' latest argument --apparently in response to the Court's summary judgment ruling-- was never raised in their Notice of Hearing, which required them to enumerate "the specific reason or reasons why the party believes [the Administrator's] determination is in error." 29 C.F.R. §503.43(b); see also Respondents' Request for a Hearing (Feb. 28, 2018) at pp. 1-4. Thus, this 'substantial failure' v. 'willful misrepresentation' issue is not an affirmative defense for Respondents, not because they did not raise it in a summary judgment motion, but because they failed to raise it in their Notice of Hearing.

FLSA Exemption
Under this heading, Respondents apparently address Issue Nos. 6 and 8.

In their Request for Hearing, Respondents admitted they are exempt from the FLSA.[4] Respondents' Request for a Hearing (Feb. 28, 2018) at p. 2. Yet, Respondents here appear to take an FLSA concept that applies to overtime and minimum wage (the concept that the 29 U.S.C. §203(m) definition that "wage" "includes the reasonable cost ... to the employer of furnishing ... [an employee with board, lodging, or other facilities...") and apply that same definition to the wage paid in an H-2b matter.

Because the voluntary H-2b program requires each employer to specifically state the wage payable to each nonimmigrant whose entry into the United States the employer is requesting (as opposed to the FLSA's requirement that merely a minimum wage rate must be paid), Respondents cannot have it both ways. Respondents can't define the minimum wage they're paying to three separate authorizing agencies of the U.S. Government, and then argue that that same wage should be less because Respondents voluntarily provide housing (or food or travel) to their nonimmigrant workforce.

Respondents point to the Order in Admin. v. Wade Shows, Inc., Case No. 2013-TNE-1 (ALJ: Apr. 10, 2015) for the proposition that "nothing in the 2008 regulations prohibits FLSA-exempt employers from claiming a wage credit for housing" (Respondents' Letter of April 29, 2019 at p. 3; Respondents' Trial Exhibit 100, p. 8). Regardless of what Wade Shows stands for, the entire decision has been vacated by the ARB and Respondents' citation to it is misleading and not well taken. Wade Shc ws, Inc., ARB Case No. 15-052, ALJ Case No. 2013-TNE001 (ARB: Apr. 12, 2017) (attached a s Exhibit 1). Despite Respondents' allusions to the contrary, Respondents provide no autho ity for their position.

II. Disputed Fact Issues

Respondents' Pre hearing Statement include seven separately enumerated, un-numbered paragraphs. Stat ment at p. 3. Respondents agreed with the Court that these separately enumerated para raphs are at least "related" if not the same as the thirteen un-numbered disputed issues of law.

Respondents app ear to try to convince this Court that even though they voluntarily applied for the H-2b progran , filled out various applications and forms which indicate the terms and conditions they v ould apply to their nonimmigrant workforce, and promised that all information they provided wa s true and accurate, they can nonetheless violate the terms of the H-2b program by finding somec ne with legal and/or professional advice who tells them (wrongly) what to do, and thus they car not be charged with a violation.

Respondents' po ition is entirely contrary to the purpose of the H-2b program, the enforcement regulations which guide it, and the Administrator's authority to cite violations.

So that the heari g in this matter can focus on the issues which are truly in dispute in this enforcement mat er, the Administrator urges this Court to decline to accept Respondents' Issue Nos. 3, 4, 5, 6, 8. 10, 11, 12, and 13.

Very truly yours

v.

WADE SHOWS, INC.,

RESPONDENT.

ARB CASE NO. 15-052

ALJ CASE NO. 2013-TNE-001

DATE: APR 12 2017

BEFORE: THE ADMINISTRATIVE REVIEW BOARD

ORDER DISMISSING APPEAL

This case arises under the H-2B provisions of the Immigration and Nationality Act (INA), 8 U.S.C.A. §§ 1101(a)(15)(H)(ii)(b) (Thomson West 2005 & Supp. 2016.), and its implementing regulations at 20 C.F.R. Part 655, subpart A (2016). After an investigation, the Department of Labor's Wage and Hour Division (WHD) cited Respondent Wade Shows, Inc., for several violations based on its H-2B visa application and assessed monetary penalties. Wade Shows appealed, and an Administrative Law Judge (ALJ) issued an order on April 10, 2015, granting in part and denying in part the motions for summary judgment that the parties filed.

Wade Shows filed a timely Petition for Review with the Administrative Review Board (ARB) on May 10, 2015, seeking "protective review" of the summary judgment decision. The Administrator filed a response on May 14, 2015, stating that, because Wade Shows had filed a subsequent motion to dismiss with the ALJ, the summary judgment decision was not ripe for appeal. By Order dated June 16, 2015, the ARB granted the Administrator's request to hold the Petition for Review in abeyance pending the ALJ's decision on Wade Shows' motion to dismiss.

By Order dated January 31, 2017, the ARB directed the parties to file a status report. In its response, the Administrator stated that it did not oppose the ARB's dismissal of this case with prejudice and vacatur of the ALJ's April 10, 2015 decision. In its response, Wade Shows agreed with the Administrator that the ARB should dismiss its appeal. Wade Shows also asked that the ARB vacate the ALJ's monetary penalty of $4,500.00.

Accordingly, the ARB dismisses this appeal and vacates the ALJ's April 10, 2015 decision in its entirety.

SECOND ORDER GRANTING IN PART MOTION TO AMEND AND RECONSIDERING APRIL 12 AMENDMENT ORDER

This matter arises under the H-2B provisions of the Immigration and Nationality Act ("INA"), 8 U.S.C. §§ 1101, et seg., and the implementing regulations at 20 C.F.R. Part 655, Subpart A.[1] The matter is set for hearing on May 8 and 9, 2019, in San Francisco, California.

On April 29, 2019, I held a previously scheduled telephonic prehearing conference with the parties to discuss the hearing proceedings. The prehearing conference was not recorded. During the conference, the Administrator's request to amend the number of employees and amount of back wages owed was addressed. I gave the parties an opportunity to further address the amendment issue in writing. After discussion with the parties, and after reviewing their supplemental briefing, the following order is issued.

Background

During the prehearing conference held on April 29, 2019, the Administrator sought to amend the determination letter for a second time. Essentially, the Administrator argued that due to a drafting error, the name and amount of back wages sought for Sergio Guzman was inadvertently left out of an earlier motion to amend, which was granted on April 12, 2019 ("April 12 Amendment"). The earlier motion to amend sought to revise the number of misclassified workers from nine to ten, adding Marilu Zepeda, and revise the amount of the back wages due. As discussed below, the second motion to amend is granted as to Sergio Guzman and the total back wages sought are increased accordingly. Regarding Ms. Zepeda, the request to include back wages for Ms. Zepeda is denied.

Prior to the April 29 request, on April 9, 2019, the Administrator filed a Motion to Amend the determination letter. The original February 6, 2018 Determination Letter included violations for nine misclassified nonimmigrant workers and referenced back wages due in the amount of $24,987.60. In preparing for hearing, the Administrator "carefully reviewed the back wages sought for misclassified nonimmigrant employees," and sought to revise the number of misclassified workers from nine to ten and revise the amount of the back wages due to $23,952.60. Counsel for the Administrator indicated she conferred with Respondents' counsel on April 8, 2019, and that Respondents did not oppose the motion. I granted the motion on April 12, 2019.

The Administrator contends that the current motion to amend merely seeks to include Mr. Guzman's name and wages due because they were inadvertently omitted in the April 12, 2019 amendment. The Administrator contends that Sergio Guzman was inadvertently not included in the April 12 amendment, but that he has always been included both as a basis for the Respondents' violation and as an employee due back wages. Including Mr. Guzman's back wages due, the total amount sought for back wages is now $27,182.20. Regarding the earlier amendment, the Administrator argues that "there were always ten employees who formed the basis of Respondents' violations" and that for Marilu Zepeda, back wages were simply not calculated because it was believed that she was not due any back wages. The Administrator contends that Mr. Guzman is due $3,229.60, and that Ms. Zepeda is due $226.80.

Respondents object to the amendment on the grounds that amendment is untimely and futile, that the Administrator has repeatedly failed to cure deficiencies by amendment, that the entire matter has been brought with undue delay, and because it would result in undue prejudice. Having considered the Administrator's position and Respondents' arguments in opposition, I have determined that amendment is permitted as to Mr. Guzman, but deny the amendment as to Ms. Zepeda.

Discussion

Addition of Ms. Zepeda

In the April 12 Amendment, the Administrator added Ms. Zepeda, who had previously been identified and then removed from the claim. The Administrator then calculated the total amount of back wages due as $23,952.60, inadvertently omitting Mr. Guzman from the calculations. However, the record refutes the Administrator's contention that Ms. Zepeda was always a part of the claim. In the first motion to amend, the Administrator "revised the number of misclassified workers from nine to ten," in addition to revising the amount. Further, the February 6, 2018 determination letter refers only to nine employees, and in the Administrator's brief in response to Respondents' motion for summary decision, the Administrator stated that while the investigation found that a tenth employee had been employed as an office administrative worker, the Administrator was "not pursuing that claim in this proceeding." Therefore, it appears that Ms. Zepeda was not "always a part of the claim," as the Administrator argues.

Even though Respondents do not explain why they did not object once they discovered that Ms. Zepeda was listed in the Administrator's trial exhibits, they assert that the inaccurate calculation of back wages and the addition of Ms. Zepeda prevented them from "effectively defend[ing] themselves or fil[ing] for summary judgment." Respondents also contend that there was no reason to prepare a defense as to Ms. Zepeda's wage rate, hours, any potential credits, and other information relating to Ms. Zepeda's job. Nor did Respondents have an opportunity to "ask probing questions" of the Administrator's corporate representative regarding Ms. Zepeda.

The April 12 Amendment was unopposed, but the Administrator told Respondents that the total amount of back wages sought had decreased to $23,952.60. Had the amendment been drafted correctly, the amount would have increased since Mr. Guzman's back wages were left out. In essence, Respondents' non-opposition was based on an incorrect calculation by the Administrator. Had the Administrator calculated the amount correctly, it is conceivable that Respondents would have opposed the amendment. Therefore, based upon the arguments of counsel now, I have reconsidered and deny the earlier order granting the amendment that added Ms. Zepeda. She was clearly removed from the case as early as February 24, 2014, which was the Administrator's consistent position until April 9, 2019. There is no reason to believe that she was "always part of the claim" as the Administrator argues. Respondents point is well-taken that they were not given sufficient notice that they had to defend against the claim with regard to her. Therefore, the amendment to add Ms. Zepeda is denied.

Amendment Regarding Mr. Guzman

In contrast, since the initial investigation Mr. Guzman was always one of the employees that the Administrator alleges is entitled to back wages. He was inadvertently omitted when the Administrator recalculated damages according to the April 12 Amendment. Respondents were aware since 2013 that they had to defend the claim with regard to Mr. Guzman. The fact that the Administrator revised the amount allegedly owed to these workers does not change the fact that Respondents knew they had to defend the claim with regard to Mr. Guzman. While it would have been much clearer if the Administrator stated consistent calculations over the course of the investigation and this proceeding, there is no demonstrable prejudice to Respondents in including Mr. Guzman for the hearing as he has always been one of the nine workers on which the alleged violations were based. Contrary to Respondents' characterization, Mr. Guzman was never "withdrawn," he was just momentarily not included in the calculation of back wages and in the trial exhibits. I do not find any prejudice to Respondents by including Mr. Guzman in the back wages owed calculation. Respondents have also not shown that the increase in the amount sought is prejudicial. If there are additional exhibits that Respondents did not include related to Mr. Guzman, they may supplement their exhibits.

The amendment is granted as to Mr. Guzman and denied as to Ms. Zepeda.[2] Therefore, the following back wages are part of the case:

[2] I have fully considered each of Respondents arguments and do not find them persuasive with regard to the inclusion of Mr. Guzman's recalculated back wages as an issue for the hearing. While the motion was not filed 21 days prior to the hearing, see 29 C.F.R. § 18.33 (c)(2), the Administrator stated that the failure to include Mr. Guzman was inadvertent and I do not find his inclusion prejudicial, as explained above. Respondents' arguments regarding the futility of amendment, failure to previously cure deficiencies, and undue delay are unconvincing.

ORDER FOLLOWING PREHEARING CONFERENCE

This matter arises under the H-2B provisions of the Immigration and Nationality Act ("INA"), 8 U.S.C. §§ 1101, et seg., and the implementing regulations at 20 C.F.R. Part 655, Subpart A.[1] Attorney P. Wayne Pierce represents the Respondents. Attorney Jeannie Gorman represents the Administrator. The matter is set for hearing on May 8 and 9, 2019, in San Francisco, California.

On April 29, 2019, I held a previously scheduled telephonic prehearing conference with the parties to discuss the hearing proceedings. The prehearing conference was not recorded. During the conference, a number of issues were raised and I gave the parties an opportunity to further address their concerns in writing. I have issued a separate ruling on those issues simultaneously, as well as on the Administrator's motion to amend, with this prehearing conference order. After discussion with the parties, and after reviewing their supplemental responses, the following order is issued.

A. HEARING INFORMATION: The hearing is scheduled for May 8 and 9, 2019, from 9:00 a.m. and end by 4:30 p.m. each day. The hearing will be held at the San Francisco Office of Administrative Law Judges Courtroom, 90 - 7th Street, Suite 4-815, San Francisco, California, 94103. The times of the hearing may be changed depending on how the witness testimony and evidence is proceeding. The parties agreed that 2 days should be sufficient to complete the hearing, and the parties must make every effort to complete the hearing during that time.

[1] This matter is brought under the substantive 2008 H-2B regulations at 20 C.F.R. Part 655, Subpart A, and the 2015 H-2B procedural regulations at 29 C.F.R. Part 503.

B. SETTLEMENT DISCUSSIONS: The parties had not engaged in meaningful settlement discussions. Mr. Pierce stated that he did not have settlement authority from his clients. The parties were directed to engage in good faith settlement discussions to resolve this matter without the need for a hearing. Mr. Pierce was directed to discuss settlement with his client and then make a resolution offer to the Administrator. The parties should explore all options for settlement, and should bear in mind that holding firm to an all or nothing proposal is seldom helpful in settlement negotiations.

C. ISSUES FOR HEARING:

1. Did Respondents violate 20 C.F.R. § 655.22(n) (2009) when they compensated 9 nonimmigrant workers/employees as recreation and amusement attendants who were not performing recreation and amusement attendant job duties during the 2013 season?

2. If so, to remedy the violations, should Respondents pay $26,955.40 in back wages as calculated by the Administrator?

Name	Occupation	Amount Due
Gustavo Gamero	Driver	$3,229.60
Sergio Guzman	Driver	$3,229.60
Jaime Hernandez	Shop Worker	$3,297.80
Saul Estadillo Herrera	Driver	$3,229.60
Omar Lopez	Supervisor	$3,051.40
Antonio Mendez	Supervisor	$574.00
Jose Ivan Ortega	Driver	$2,936.00
Fernando Preza	Driver	$3,229.60
Felipe Villegas Quijano	Shop Worker	$4,177.80
Total Back Wages		$26,955.40

3. Should Respondents be ordered to pay $10,000 in civil money penalties for violating 20 C.F.R. § 655.22(n) (2009)?[2] Should a non-retaliation order be included if the Administrator prevails in this matter?

4. Was Respondent Michael Brajevich properly charged in his individual capacity and therefore liable for any violations in his individual capacity?

5. Additional issues listed by Respondents:
   a. Did Respondents willfully misrepresent its application or substantially fail to comply with the 2008 Rules?
   b. Did Respondents willfully misclassify certain H-2B workers in knowing and substantial violation of the 2008 Rules?

[2] The Administrator is not seeking debarment.

c. Does the Administrator have an enforceable regulation that precludes the Respondents from meeting its prevailing wage obligations through non-cash value or facilities?
d. Does the Administrator have an enforceable regulation advising employers that are exempt from the Fair Labor Standards Act how to complete Form ETA 9142 or I-129?
e. Did the Administrator improperly calculate back wages by failing to include full-value credit for non-cash value or facilities provided to the employees, such as bunkhouses, local convenience travel, in and out of country travel, income taxes, a prepayment plan, variations in the prevailing wage from one location to another, bonuses, reimbursement of employee expenses, and food?
f. Did Respondents reasonably or in good faith rely upon Department of Labor or State Workforce Agencies' regulations, interpretations, administrative practice, or enforcement policy?
g. Did Respondents reasonably or in good faith relied upon professional counsel?
h. Did Respondents reasonably or in good faith believe that they had committed no violation?
i. Does the doctrine of laches preclude liability if the Administrator unjustifiably delayed filing the determination letter to the prejudice of Respondents?

D. STANDARD OF REVIEW: The parties agreed that the standard of review for this matter is de novo. Therefore, I will apply a de novo standard of review for all purposes in this matter.

E. EXHIBITS:
1. Administrator: Exhibits A to Q. Respondents had questions regarding exhibits G, I, and P. All other exhibits will be admitted at the hearing.
2. Respondents: 1 to 24, 25 w/d, 26 to 71, 72 w/d, 73 to 106. The Administrator had general objections on relevancy grounds because many of the exhibits related to credits and offsets.

F. WITNESSES: A total of 8 witnesses are anticipated to testify live at the hearing. Respondents were unsure whether additional witnesses would be called. All witnesses will be examined so that they only need to appear one time at the hearing. The parties should make every effort to complete the examination after two rounds of questioning (i.e. direct, cross, re-direct, re-cross). The parties should also closely examine their evidence to determine if any witnesses may be excluded from the list.
1. Administrator (2 witnesses): Ramon Huaracha, Carrie Aguilar.
2. Respondents (6 witnesses): Michael Brajevich (live), Tom Shobaken (phone), Steve Nittler (phone), Kelly Butler (phone), Gena Tuttle (phone), James Judkins (phone).
3. No later than 3:00 p.m. on May 3, 2019, Respondents must clarify and specifically list what witnesses will be testifying in person or by phone at the hearing.
4. The parties should meet and confer no later than 12 noon Pacific Time on May 7, 2019, to discuss the order of witnesses that will testify each day of the hearing. Since the Administrator is only calling two witnesses, Respondents should be given a realistic time to have witnesses available to begin testimony as soon as the Administrator's case is complete.

5. A number of witnesses will be called by telephone. It is the responsibility of the person calling the witness by phone to make sure they have all exhibits necessary for a complete examination. The courtroom does have a phone that will be capable of conference calls.

G. INTERPRETERS: Respondents stated that they may have witnesses testify with the aid of a translator/interpreter. Respondents will provide any interpreter necessary for the hearing.

H. STIPULATED FACTS: The parties had not agreed to any stipulated facts. They were directed to meet and confer regarding agreed facts to the extent possible.

I. OPENING STATEMENTS: Each party is permitted to make an opening statement that is limited to no more than 15 minutes.

J. CLOSING ARGUMENTS: The parties agreed to submit written closing briefs. The briefing schedule will be discussed at the hearing. No oral closing arguments will be permitted at the closing of the hearing.

SO ORDERED.

FURTHER ORDER REGARDING HEARING ISSUES

This matter arises under the H-2B provisions of the Immigration and Nationality Act ("INA"), 8 U.S.C. §§ 1101, et seg., and the implementing regulations at 20 C.F.R. Part 655, Subpart A.[1] Attorney P. Wayne Pierce represents the Respondents. Attorney Jeannie Gorman represents the Administrator. The matter is set for hearing on May 8 and 9, 2019, in San Francisco, California.

On April 29, 2019, at 10 a.m., I held a previously scheduled telephonic prehearing conference with the parties to discuss the hearing proceedings. The prehearing conference was not recorded. During the call, I questioned Respondents about a number of issues they listed as issues for the hearing. Many of the issues I considered to be disposed of based by my rulings in the November 14, 2018 Order Denying Summary Decision. Respondents asserted during the prehearing conference that the issues decided in the November 14, 2018 Order Denying Summary Decision were not properly decided because the Administrator did not file a cross-motion for summary decision. I afforded Respondents an opportunity to argue why these issues should be addressed in the hearing by the close of business on April 29, 2019, in addition to a number of other issues.[2] I have issued a separate ruling on other issues raised at the prehearing conference as well as a separate prehearing conference order.

[1] This matter is brought under the substantive 2008 H-2B regulations at 20 C.F.R. Part 655, Subpart A, and the 2015 H-2B procedural regulations at 29 C.F.R. Part 503.

[2] In their briefing on the issues, Respondents objected be "trying to respond to so many issues in less than 5 hours" and asserted that "[e]ffectively, this amounts to an extensive motion for summary judgment with the sanction of evidence preclusion, the deadline for which the Administrator allowed to pass." To the extent I sought briefing on whether the issues addressed in the Order Denying Summary Decision, Respondents in fact had over five months to address this issue. The Order Denying Summary Decision was issued on November 14, 2018. Respondents presumably read the order and were aware that I had decided certain issues, such as that the 2008 H-2B regulations applied, that the statute of limitations was 5 years, and that under this statute of limitations, the determination was not untimely, in addition to Below, I have examined the major issues raised by Respondents in their prehearing conference statement. Generally, the Administrator argues that including many of the issues identified by Respondents "will unnecessarily complicate, confuse, conflate, or otherwise not address the violations of the regulations which form the basis of this enforcement case." However, I do not find that the inclusion of the majority of Respondents' enumerated issues will unnecessarily complicate the hearing or the determination of the issues. The issues listed by Respondents will be included as issues for hearing, with the exceptions noted below.

A. Analysis of Summary Decision

This Office's rules provide that upon motion, a judge shall grant summary decision if the movant shows that there is no genuine dispute as to any material fact and the movant is entitled to decision as a matter of law. 29 C.F.R. § 18.72(a). In rendering a decision independent of the motion, a judge may grant summary decision for a non-movant "[a]fter giving notice and a reasonable time to respond." 29 C.F.R. § 18.72(f); Fed. R. Civ. P. 56(f). The Ninth Circuit has "long recognized that, where the party moving for summary judgment has had a full and fair opportunity to prove its case, but has not succeeded in doing so, a court may enter summary judgment sua sponte for the nonmoving party." Albino v. Baca, 747 F.3d 1162, 1176–77 (9th Cir. 2014), citing Cool Fuel, Inc. v. Connett, 685 F.2d 309, 311 (9th Cir. 1982); see also Celotex Corp. v. Catrett, 477 U.S. 317, 326 (1986) ("district courts are widely acknowledged to possess the power to enter summary judgments sua sponte, so long as the losing party was on notice that she had to come forward with all of her evidence."). "Even when there has been no cross-motion for summary judgment, a district court may enter summary judgment sua sponte against a moving party if the losing party has had a 'full and fair opportunity to ventilate the issues involved in the matter.'" Gospel Missions of Am. v. City of Los Angeles, 328 F.3d 548, 553 (9th Cir. 2003)) (quoting Cool Fuel, Inc., 685 F.2d at 312). In Gospel Missions of America, granting summary decision sua sponte was not error where the salient issues had been presented in the moving party's summary judgment motion and the record showed that the nonmoving party had a full and fair opportunity to address the issues.[3] other issues of law. If Respondents had a quarrel with those rulings, they could have filed a motion for reconsideration or a renewed motion for summary decision. Instead, Respondents chose to wait until their prehearing statement was due to include these issues as issues for the hearing, and wait until the prehearing conference, one week before the hearing, to argue that none of the rulings in the Order for Summary Decision could stand since the Administrator did not file a cross-motion. It is disingenuous for Respondents to now object to being given a short amount of time to brief the issue of why they believe the Order Denying Summary Decision was in error, when this short timeframe is of their own making.

[3] This practice serves the purpose underlying motions for summary decision. See 10A Charles A. Wright, Arthur R. Miller & Mary K. Kane, Federal Practice and Procedure § 2720.1 (4d ed.) ("[T]he practice of allowing summary judgment to be entered for the nonmoving party in the absence of a formal cross-motion is appropriate. It is in keeping with the objective of Rule 56 to expedite the disposition of cases and, somewhat more remotely, with the mandate of Rule 54(c) requiring the court to grant the relief to which a party is entitled 'even if the party has not demanded that relief in its pleadings.'"); see also Gibson v. Mayor and Council of City of Wilmington, 355 F.3d 215, 224 (3rd Cir. 2004) (summary judgment was granted sua sponte immediately before trial on a purely legal issue); Leyva v. On the Beach, Inc., 171 F.3d 717, 720 (1st Cir. 1999) (sua sponte summary judgment order was upheld where the targeted party received a fair opportunity to "put its best foot forward" on the issue); Artistic Entertainment, Inc. v. City of Warner Robins, 331 F.3d 1196, 1202 (11th Cir. 2003) (per curiam) (where a "legal issue has been fully developed, and the evidentiary record is complete, summary judgment is entirely appropriate even if no formal notice has been provided."). While a court has power sua sponte to grant summary judgment to non-movant when there has been a motion but no cross-motion, "great care must be

While the Administrator did not in fact file a formal cross-motion for summary decision, as discussed above, such a formal cross-motion is not necessary to issue summary decision in the Administrator's favor as long as Respondents had a full and fair opportunity to address the issues. On April 25, 2018, the parties filed a joint request to stay discovery while the parties briefed legal issues. The parties agreed that "phasing the case in this way will both facilitate settlement or substantially narrow any necessary discovery." On May 9, 2018, I issued an order vacating the hearing, staying proceedings, and setting a briefing schedule. I noted that the parties requested to resolve certain legal issues without the need to incur additional ligation expense while they do so and agreed to stay the proceedings while they litigated the legal issues. On June 18, 2018, the parties filed a Joint Motion for Enlargement of Time. The parties stated that the reason for the briefing schedule entered on May 9, 2018, "was the belief that the early disposition of controlling issues of law would dispose of or substantially narrow the case, or otherwise best position the parties to pursue alternative resolution." Respondents further requested to submit an amended motion for summary decision "so that the objective of an early disposition of controlling issues of law may be accomplished."

In response to Respondents' motion, on multiple issues the Administrator argued for a dispositive ruling, not just that Respondents had failed to establish no genuine dispute as to any material fact. For example, in addition to other arguments, the Administrator argued that the 2008 H-2B regulations applied and that the enforcement proceeding was "plainly actionable," that back wages were available as a remedy, and that the statute of limitations accrued after February 6, 2013, and that the action was timely. Respondents had the opportunity to reply to the Administrator's arguments. Respondents' counsel also stated in an affidavit attached to the reply that he "vigorously emphasized [to the Administrator's counsel] that early motions would be ineffective if the Administrator's opposition simply declared that there was a factual dispute for which discovery was necessary." The Administrator's counsel then "asked a series of questions to satisfy herself that these issues were ripe for disposition by motion" and then "agreed that these issues were ripe for early disposition." In their reply, Respondents noted that the Administrator had not moved for summary decision, and "[a]ccordingly, Respondent has refrained from submitting its own factual issues," but did not address the fact that there were legal issues "ripe for early disposition," to use Respondents' counsel's phrase.

After a review of the record, I am satisfied that Respondents had sufficient notice that the issues they presented in their motion for summary decision were ripe for disposition, and that they had a "full and fair opportunity" to address the issues. The parties stayed discovery to resolve certain legal issues with the goal of either narrowing the issues for hearing or facilitating settlement. The Administrator argued for disposition of the legal issues in its favor, to which Respondents had the opportunity to respond. Respondents had ample opportunity to "ventilate the issues involved," Cool Fuel, Inc., 685 F.2d at 312, and in no way could have been taken by surprise by the adjudication of issues that the parties requested I decide. To present issues for adjudication in this manner and exercised to assure that original movant has had adequate opportunity to show that there is genuine issue and that his or her opponent is not entitled to judgment as matter of law." Kassbaum v. Steppenwolf Prods., Inc., 236 F.3d 487, 494 (9th Cir. 2000); see also Buckingham v. United States, 998 F.2d 735, 742 (9th Cir. 1993) ("a litigant must be given reasonable notice that the sufficiency of his or her claim will be in issue . . . ."). "Reasonable notice implies adequate time to develop the facts on which the litigant will depend to oppose summary judgment." Portsmouth Square Inc. v. Shareholders Protective Comm., 770 F.2d 866, 869 (9th Cir. 1985); O'Keefe v. Van Boening, 82 F.3d 322, 324 (9th Cir. 1996); see also Osler Inst., Inc. v. Forde, 333 F.3d 832, 836 (7th Cir. 2003) ("In short, summary judgment should not take a party by surprise.").

then on the eve of trial proclaim that because there was no formal cross-motion for summary decision filed by the Administrator the issues remain to be resolved at the hearing is misguided.

In their prehearing conference statement, Respondents identified certain legal issues that were decided on summary decision and are no longer at issue in this hearing:

1) Whether the 2008 Rules and 2015 procedural regulations are enforceable.
2) Whether the Administrator's charges contravene the statute of limitations [see discussion below]
3) Whether the remedy of back wages are authorized for any purported misclassification.

In sum, Respondents' argument that the issues decided in the Order Denying Summary Decision remain issues for hearing because the Administrator did not file a cross-motion for summary decision is rejected. On certain issues, Respondents' motion was denied because there were factual disputes that needed to be decided at hearing or because Respondents had not provided sufficient factual support to rule in their favor (i.e., on the issue of laches, discussed below). Such issues must still be determined after a hearing. However, regarding the remaining issues discussed and definitely decided in the summary decision order, I consider such issues to be disposed of by that ruling.

B. FLSA Exemption

In the Order Denying Summary Decision, I did not rule regarding whether Respondents can claim housing credits if they are FLSA-exempt. I determined that the housing credit issue was more properly addressed at the hearing. The Administrator argues that Respondents' arguments regarding the housing credit should be rejected. However, these are arguments that should be made in the hearing or closing brief.

Respondents also argue that the regulations do not specify how an FLSA-exempt employer is to complete applications, and that this supports a defense to the charge of a willful failure to comply with the relevant statutory and regulatory requirements. This argument was not previously addressed and is appropriate to list as an issue for the hearing.

C. Laches and Statute of Limitations[4]

Respondents argued in their briefing that the issue of the statute of limitations and the doctrine of laches are proper issues for the hearing.

1. Laches

Without deciding whether the doctrine of laches can be applied against the Administrator, I determined in the Order Denying Summary Decision that Respondents had not established that the doctrine of laches precluded the Administrator from bringing this action. I did not find that [4] The Administrator argues that these issues were not listed in Respondents' request for a hearing, and therefore they have been waived. The Administrator did not make this argument previously, either in the summary decision briefing or in any other motion, and I find that at this late date, such an argument should not preclude the laches issue from being heard.

Respondents cannot show laches as a matter of law, only that they had failed to support their assertions in their motion for summary decision. Therefore, the parties may address this issue at the hearing or in post-hearing briefs.

2. Statute of Limitations

Regarding the statute of limitations issue, Respondents first contend that "[a]ccording to the Administrator's official interpretations published on his website and marked as Respondent's [sic] Exhs. 96 and 101, misclassification should have been charged as willful misrepresentation." Respondents then argue that based on the ARB's ruling in Kersten v. Lagard Inc., ALJ No. 2005-LCA-017, ARB No. 06-111 (ARB Oct. 17, 2008), if the violation was charged as a willful misrepresentation, the violation occurred at the time the application was submitted. Respondents contend that the summary decision order "was premised on the case being charged as a substantial failure, which was not correct."

Respondents previously argued that statute of limitations began to run the date the application was approved, December 14, 2012, because the Administrator could have initiated a determination letter based on any misrepresentation in the application at this date. I rejected this argument in my Order Denying Summary Decision and held that because the alleged violations occurred from February 1, 2013, through April 24, 2013, the proceeding was timely commenced since the Determination Letter was issued on February 6, 2018, which is before April 24, 2018. I consider this issue to be decided in the Order Denying Summary Decision consistent with the discussion above regarding sua sponte rulings on summary decision.

To the extent Respondents' current briefing on this issue could be construed as a renewed motion for summary decision on the statute of limitations issue, it is denied. See 29 C.F.R. § 18.33(f). Regardless of whether a misclassification of violations "should have been charged as willful misrepresentation," the case cited by Respondents does not support their position that a statute of limitations begins to run when the temporary labor certification application is submitted. In Kersten, a case arising under the H-1B visa provision of the INA, the complainant alleged the employer made false or incorrect statements in its labor condition applications ("LCAs") because he performed duties in addition to those listed in the LCA, which specified he would be working as a quality control engineer. The LCAs were filed in 1999 and 2002. Between 1999 and 2002, the complainant worked beyond the duties associated with the quality control engineer job title. However, the complainant admitted that he performed only quality control engineer duties from September 2002 to September 2003. He filed his complaint in April 2004. The H-1B provisions provide that a complaint must be filed no later than 12 months after the date of the alleged failure to meet a condition specified in the LCA or an employer's misrepresentation of a material fact in the LCA. The ALJ held that since the complainant admitted that he did not perform duties in addition to those listed in the 2002 LCA and thus was not underpaid, the employer did not continue to violate the terms of the 2002 LCA after September 2002. Since the complaint was filed more than 12 months after September 2002, the ALJ concluded that these claims were time-barred. The ARB held that the record supported the ALJ's conclusion. Respondents' assertion that this case stands for the proposition that "the statute of limitations accrues on the date when the employer misrepresented a material fact in the labor certification" is inaccurate, at best, given the discussion by the ARB.

The statute of limitations is not an issue that will be addressed at the hearing.

D. Definition of Substantial Violation

Respondents argued that showing a "substantial failure"-type violation requires showing a "willful failure," and that several of the issues they listed related to this showing (for example, their good faith reliance on counsel). The Administrator argued that Respondents should not be able to rely on legal or professional advice that "tells them (wrongly) what to do" and therefore avoid being charged with a violation. The Administrator's argument goes more to the substance of the dispute rather than whether these issues should be considered at the hearing. As explained below, Respondents' enumerated issues regarding whether they acted in good faith will be issues for the hearing as the H-2B regulations define "substantial violation" as "willful failure that constitutes a significant deviation from the terms and conditions of the labor condition application or the DHS Form I–129."

Section 655.60 of the 2008 H-2B regulations, titled "Violations," provides that the Administrator shall determine whether the employer has:

> (a) Filed a petition with ETA that willfully misrepresents a material fact.
> (b) Substantially failed to meet any of the conditions of the labor certification application attested to, as listed in § 655.22, or any of the conditions of the DHS Form I–129, Petition for a Nonimmigrant Worker for an H–2B worker in 8 CFR 214.2(h).
> (c) Misrepresented a material fact to the State Department during the visa application process.

20 C.F.R. § 655.60 (2009). The relevant definition of "substantial violation" and "willful" is found at Section 655.65, which is titled "Remedies for Violations":

> (d) Substantial failure in paragraph (b) of this section shall mean a willful failure that constitutes a significant deviation from the terms and conditions of the labor condition application or the DHS Form I–129, Petition for a Nonimmigrant Worker for an H–2B worker or successor form.
> (e) For purposes of this subpart, "willful failure" means a knowing failure or a reckless disregard with respect to whether the conduct was contrary to sec. 214(c) of the INA, or this subpart. See McLaughlin v. Richland Shoe Co., 486 U.S. 128 (1988); see also Trans World Airlines v. Thurston, 469 U.S. 111 (1985).

20 C.F.R. § 655.65 (2009). Confusingly, Section 655.65(d), quoted above, states that "substantial failure in paragraph (b) of this section shall mean . . ." but paragraph (b) of "this section" does not mention "substantial failure." See 20 C.F.R. § 655.65(b) (2009) (discussing the remedies for termination by layoff).[5] Paragraph (c) of Section 655.65 does mention "substantial failure" in connection with the assessment of a civil money penalty:

[5] "Upon determining that an employer has terminated by layoff or otherwise any employee described in § 622.55(k) of this part, within the period described in that section, the Administrator may assess civil money penalties that are equal to the wages that would have been earned but for the layoff at the H–2B rate for that period, not to exceed $10,000. No civil money penalty shall be assessed, however, if the employee refused the job opportunity, or was terminated for lawful, job-related reasons." 20 C.F.R. § 655.65(b).

> The Administrator may assess civil money penalties in an amount not to exceed $10,000 per violation for any substantial failure to meet the conditions provided in the H–2B Application for Temporary Employment Certification or the DHS Form I–129, Petition for a Nonimmigrant Worker for an H–2B worker or successor form, or any willful misrepresentation in the application or petition, or a failure to cooperate with a Department audit or investigation.

20 C.F.R. § 655.65(c) (2009). The definition of "substantial failure" is therefore unclear from merely examining the regulations, although it is logical to assume that "substantial failure" in Section 655.60(b) has the definition proscribed in Section 655.65(d)-(e).

Fortunately, the statute provides some clarity that the regulations lack. Section 214(c)(l4) of the INA states that if DHS finds "a substantial failure to meet any of the conditions of the petition to admit . . . a nonimmigrant worker under [8 U.S.C. § 1101(a)(l5)(H)(ii)(b)] or . . . a willful misrepresentation of a material fact in such petition," it may impose such administrative remedies, including civil monetary penalties, as it determines to be appropriate. 8 U.S.C. § 1184(c)(14)(A). The statute continues: "In this paragraph, the term 'substantial failure' means the willful failure to comply with the requirements of this section that constitutes a significant deviation from the terms and conditions of a petition."[6] 8 U.S.C. § 1184(c)(14)(D).

An examination of this statutory and regulatory language shows that a "substantial failure" means "willful failure," and that this "willfulness" requirement is not limited to the assessment of the civil money penalty. "Willful failure" means a knowing failure or a reckless disregard with respect to whether the conduct was contrary to Section 214(c) of the INA, or the 2008 H-2B regulations. 20 C.F.R. § 655.65(e); 8 U.S.C. § 1184(c)(14)(D). Section 655.65(e) references McLaughlin v. Richland Shoe Co., 486 U.S. 128 (1988) and Trans World Airlines v. Thurston, 469 U.S. 111 (1985) for guidance on "willful failure." This standard for "willfulness" means conduct that is "voluntary," "deliberate," or "intentional," and requires "more than a showing of negligence on the employer's part." McLaughlin v. Richland Shoe Co., 486 U.S. at 128. A violation is willful if the employer "either knew or showed reckless disregard for the matter of whether its conduct was prohibited." Id. at 133. An act is not "willful" if the employer simply knew potential violations were "in the picture." Trans World Airlines, Inc. v. Thurston, 469 U.S. at 127. See also Adm'r., Wage & Hour Div. v. Peter's Fine Greek Food, Inc., ALJ No. 2011-TNE-00002, slip op. at 37-38 (ALJ Sept. 25, 2013) (noting that substantial failure means willful failure that constitutes a significant deviation from terms and conditions of temporary labor certification application).

In this matter, the Administrator alleges that Respondents engaged in a "substantial violation" and therefore the issues related to whether Respondents engaged in a "willful failure" are relevant and appropriate for the hearing.

[6] In addition, "the highest penalties shall be reserved for willful failure to meet any of the conditions of the petition that involve harm to United States workers." 8 U.S.C. § 1184(c)(14)(C).

As previously noted, I have issued a separate order following the prehearing conference where I have listed the issues for hearing. Any other issues raised by Respondent and not specifically addressed are denied.

SO ORDERED.

PROCEEDINGS

(9:00 o'clock a.m.)

JUDGE CLARK: Good morning. We're on the record. I'm calling the case of Administrator, Wage & Hour Division, versus Butler Amusements, Inc., and Michael Brajevich, case number 2018-TNE-00019.

Today is May 8, 2019. We are in San Francisco, California. This is the time and the place for the hearing.

My name is Richard Clark. I have been assigned to this matter for all purposes.

Will the parties state their appearances for the record, starting with Ms. Gorman.

MS. GORMAN: Good morning, Your Honor. Jeannie Gorman, U.S. Department of Labor, Office of the Solicitor out of Seattle.

JUDGE CLARK: Good morning. Mr. Pierce.

MR. PIERCE: Yes, good morning, Your Honor. Wayne Pierce representing the Respondents. And my office is in Annapolis, Maryland.

JUDGE CLARK: Good Morning, Mr. Pierce. Okay. So I did issue a prehearing conference order of May 2nd, 2019 setting out our issues for the hearing and some other matters. We'll get to those in a moment.

Just a couple of ground rules I want to talk about before we get started. We have restrooms out in the hallway.

But they require a key, which is with the court reporter. There's one for the men's room and one for the women's room. They are very valuable keys. They are hard to get replaced. So if you use them, bring them back to where they are. We have to account for them at the end of the day, just so you know that.

I prefer to take a little later lunch. We'll probably take a lunch break about 12:30. It makes the afternoon go a little bit shorter, as well.

So let's go ahead and jump in.

Ms. Gorman, you had said that there were a few things you wanted to talk about or put on the record. So why don't you go ahead and tell us what they are?

MS. GORMAN: Thank you, Your Honor. Do you mind if I stay seated?

JUDGE CLARK: No, I don't mind.

MS. GORMAN: Thank you. In one of the prehearing orders, because there were three that all came in kind of a spate, one of your prehearing orders dealt with the elimination of back wages for Marilu Zepeda.

JUDGE CLARK: Yes.

MS. GORMAN: And I would like to make an oral motion for reconsideration on the inclusion of Ms. Zepeda The grounds are -- I have three grounds.

The first is that the Respondent's Trial Exhibit 14 shows her as part of the case. And the Respondents were on notice that she was a basis for the violations, for the CMP's.

Here it is the Respondents who are in the best position to know when they employ people in positions, other than the TEC position of recreation and amusement attendant, which I might refer to as the RAA, just because it's shorter, if that's okay with people.

The Administrator is just trying to figure out what happened.

So Ms. Zepeda was one of those people employed in a position, other than the RAA position. Respondents knew that because they employed her.

From a notice basis, the Respondents always had notice that she was performing these other duties.

And so, we -- the Administrator asks this Court to reconsider its decision to exclude Ms. Zepeda.

JUDGE CLARK: Okay. Are there any other issues that you want to raise? Do you want to take a moment? Let's hear them all first.

MS. GORMAN: No. Actually, Mr. Pierce solved my other issue, which I think I raised to the Court, which was the PII issue, in Mr. Pierce's exhibits. And he did provide me PII redacted exhibits this morning. So that is a non issue, as well.

JUDGE CLARK: Great. Mr. Pierce, regarding Ms. Zepeda?

MR. PIERCE: Yes, Your Honor. I think we covered all this. There was an original calculation performed in conjunction with the original final conference. Ms. Zepeda was one of about 10 names. That was subsequently revised.

About a month later, she was dropped. Her name did not show up again until about three weeks ago or something like that.

Your order also pointed out that there was a footnote in there, and obviously, in my Motion for Summary Judgment last summer, and specifically said they were no longer pursuing any claims related to her.

So she's been out for five years or more, and deserves to be -- remain out.

And as we indicated in our opposition, I haven't heard a case regarding her, because we were never on notice that she was part of this, on the alternative job codes and searches and things like that. And we just haven't done that.

JUDGE CLARK: Okay. Mr. Pierce, Ms. Gorman indicated in your Exhibit 14, you had information about Ms. Zepeda, so you were on notice, potentially, that she was going to be part of the case when you did your exhibits. So tell me about that.

MR. PIERCE: That's the one I referenced earlier, Exhibit 14, the original calculation of back wages. It's in the numbers in front of you, Your Honor.

And it includes 10 names. It was subsequently amended about two months later, and she was specifically dropped, and has been dropped since until a few weeks ago.

JUDGE CLARK: Ms. Gorman, anything further?

MS. GORMAN: No.

JUDGE CLARK: Okay. And if I recall, the amount of back wages to Ms. Zepeda was approximately $227.00.

MS. GORMAN: It was like 266. It was something --

JUDGE CLARK: Two hundred, $300.00.

MS. GORMAN: Yes, it was.

JUDGE CLARK: Okay. I have considered the arguments of the parties. I'm going to deny the request to reconsider, and add Ms. Zepeda. The prior ruling will stand. Anything else, Ms. Gorman, before we get started?

MS. GORMAN: The only thing that I've got is, as I indicated previously to the Court in some pre-trial indication, the Administrator is relying on Respondent's Exhibits for a few of the exhibits so as to avoid any duplication.

And the Summary of Violations and Remedy are attached to the determination letter,

I have new ones, but they are two Respondent's

Exhibits. I don't know if -- the new ones will reflect your current order of the back wage amounts.

So I have these to amend, if this is not included yours. This is Respondent's Exhibit 19, and this would be the last page.

And I didn't want to get into unilaterally amending Respondent's Exhibits without the Court's knowledge.

JUDGE CLARK: I appreciate that.

MS. GORMAN: Thank you.

JUDGE CLARK: Has Mr. Pierce seen these?

MR. PIERCE: We have. And I believe it is the correct page.

JUDGE CLARK: Okay. So you have no objection to it being the correct page. Which page number would it be?

MS. GORMAN: It would be the last page.

JUDGE CLARK: I have Exhibit 19, the last page.

MS. GORMAN: And so the amounts should be 2695540.

JUDGE CLARK: That's what's here.

MS. GORMAN: That's the one, thank you. Then I don't need this. Nothing else.

JUDGE CLARK: Okay. Let's go ahead and talk about who our potential witnesses are then today. So Ms. Gorman, you're still just calling your two witnesses. Is that correct?

MS. GORMAN: That is correct.

JUDGE CLARK: And how long do you think your entire case will take? Will you be done this morning?

MS. GORMAN: We might be.

JUDGE CLARK: Okay.

MS. GORMAN: It might depend on Cross, of course. But for my Direct, certainly we'll be done this morning. I wouldn't imagine that Ms. Aguilar would probably -- we might be looking at an hour and a half, perhaps two hours. Mr. Huaracha, we're probably looking at a half an hour to 45 minutes.

JUDGE CLARK: Okay. Very good. Then Mr. Pierce, we talked off the record. But I want you to put on the record who you're actually going to call, either by phone, or in person here today, or today or tomorrow.

MR. PIERCE: By phone, we would have Mr. Steve Nittler, CPA. By phone, Mr. Tom Shobaken.

We are reserving the right to have rebuttal by phone from either Kelly Butler or Gena Tuttle. But I think that will be unlikely. Then live testimony from Mr. Brajevich.

JUDGE CLARK: Okay, thank you. So originally, I had shown seven witnesses. But you're just going to call the three and maybe the two rebuttal.

MR. PIERCE: That is our intention.

JUDGE CLARK: Okay. And there were a number of witnesses who might need a Spanish translator. And you don't need that at all. You're not calling any witnesses who will need a translator?

MR. PIERCE: We pursued it in alternative ways, so that's correct.

JUDGE CLARK: Okay, very good. Okay. We'll move on to the exhibits then. I have two large binders in front of me here, Exhibits 1 through 106. There's a separate one for 26. Have you renumbered your exhibits? I know you had withdrawn a couple. Are they still here?

MR. PIERCE: There is a place holder in there saying that they're withdrawn. But there is no renumbering. Once we Bates stamped and photo-copied, they were set.

JUDGE CLARK: Okay. I see 25 was withdrawn. And 72 was withdrawn. Ms. Gorman, have you seen these exhibits?

MS. GORMAN: I believe so. Hopefully they're the same things that Mr. Pierce sent to Ms. Aguilar prior to her deposition.

JUDGE CLARK: Okay. There's a total of 106 exhibits, two of them withdrawn, 25 and 72 are both withdrawn.

(Respondent's Exhibit Nos. 1 through 24, 26 through 71, 73 through 106 were marked for identification)

JUDGE CLARK: Twenty-six has its own binder. Any objection to the Respondent's Exhibits?

MS. GORMAN: Not to admissibility or authenticity, Your Honor, only the relevancy objections that I've previously indicated. I can go through those again, if you like. But I might need a moment.

JUDGE CLARK: If you have specific objections to specific exhibits on relevance grounds, you can put that on the record.

If you just have your general -- which I think you raised at the prehearing conference, that they're related to the non-cash value, that type of thing, I'm going to overrule those objections based upon my ruling.

But if you want to put specific objections on the record, go ahead.

MS. GORMAN: I have no specific objections, Your Honor.

JUDGE CLARK: Okay. Mr. Pierce, anything further regarding your exhibits?

MR. PIERCE: I'll just orient you that the second notebook, Exhibit 26 is separate because that's the payroll, and it's unwieldy.

JUDGE CLARK: I appreciate you breaking it out like that. Okay. So regarding the Respondent's Exhibits then, I have 1 through 24, which are admitted -- 25 is withdrawn -- 26 to 71 are admitted. Seventy-two is withdrawn. Then 73 to 106 are admitted.

(Respondent Exhibit Nos. 1 through 24, 26 through 71 and 73 through 106 were received into evidence.)

JUDGE CLARK: Let's turn to the Administrator's Exhibits.

MS. GORMAN: You don't have them yet?

JUDGE CLARK: I don't. Thank you very much. I have one binder of the Administrator's Exhibits, A through Q.

(Administrator Exhibit Nos. A through Q were marked for identification.)

JUDGE CLARK: And Mr. Pierce, at the prehearing conference, you had a couple of questions about three exhibits, G, I and P. Do you have any objections to the exhibits at this point?

MR. PIERCE: My only objection, Your Honor, you've already addressed in one of your rulings. The calculations in Exhibit I, I think should not reflect Mr. Guzman. But you've already ruled.

JUDGE CLARK: Have you any further objections to the exhibits then?

MR. PIERCE: No.

JUDGE CLARK: Then Administrator's Exhibits A through Q are admitted into the record.

(Administrator Exhibit Nos. A through Q were received into evidence.)

JUDGE CLARK: I think that takes care of the exhibits. Anything further regarding exhibits, Ms. Gorman?

MS. GORMAN: Just one thing with our Exhibit I, we did eliminate Ms. Zepeda from that exhibit.

JUDGE CLARK: I did notice.

MS. GORMAN: Okay.

JUDGE CLARK: I did note that. So it does have 26,955.40. Anything further regarding exhibits, Mr. Pierce?

MR. PIERCE: No, Your Honor.

JUDGE CLARK: Okay. We've talked about the witnesses. I've listed the issues in the Prehearing Conference Statement on pages two and three. Anything further regarding the issues for hearing this morning, Mr. Pierce?

MR. PIERCE: No, Your Honor.

JUDGE CLARK: Okay. Anything else before we get started this morning, Ms. Gorman?

MS. GORMAN: No.

JUDGE CLARK: Thank you. And Mr. Pierce?

MR. PIERCE: I think I should ask for a rule on sequestration of witnesses. I'm not sure who is their representative and would be entitled to stay.

JUDGE CLARK: Okay. I do grant that order to have witnesses wait in the hallway until they're actually called. Ms. Gorman, you just have the two witnesses. Why don't you tell us if somebody needs to go in the hallway?

MS. GORMAN: Sure. The Administrator's representative today is Assistant District Director Aguilar. And Mr. Huaracha is seated behind her.

If the Court grants sequestration, then I will ask Mr. Huaracha to go out.

JUDGE CLARK: Okay. Is he going to be your first witness?

MS. GORMAN: He will not.

JUDGE CLARK: He will not, okay. And you had an objection to Mr. Huaracha being in the courtroom?

MR. PIERCE: Yes.

JUDGE CLARK: Okay. I will grant that standard. So I'm sorry, Mr. Huaracha, you'll have to go stand out in the hallway. I don't know how long it's going to be. You may go downstairs to the coffee shop, and Ms. Gorman can call you. But you'll have to go outside, sir. Anything else, Mr. Pierce?

MR. PIERCE: No, Your Honor.

JUDGE CLARK: Okay. Opening statement, Ms.

Gorman.

OPENING STATEMENT

BY MS. GORMAN:

Thank you, Your Honor. The H-2B program allows a registered employer to circumvent national immigration laws, and determine who can enter this country for a specified period of time performing specified work, which does not displace domestic workers.

In exchange for this extraordinary authority, three branches of the U.S. government require an employer to provide and certify the accuracy of information about work locations, worker identity, worker pay, and the nature of work performed.

Each employer who participates in the H-2B program does so voluntarily.

Each employer identifies the job description each non immigrant employee will be performing. Here, this job skill is recreation and amusement attendant.

This case is about whether Respondents misclassified nine employees.

The Administrator will prove that Respondents asked for approval to employ recreation and amusement attendants. Respondents promised to pay such attendants a particular and specified rate of pay.

Respondents employed nine people in job positions, other than recreation and amusement attendant. And Respondents failed to pay those employees performing other duties commensurate with the actual duties that they performed.

Respondent's violations was also back wages to the nine employees, and civil money penalties, which I may refer to as CMP's.

Given that Respondents kept no contemporaneous records of hours worked, contemporaneous records of days worked, and contemporaneous records and the location of where each non-immigrant employee worked, the Administrator has had to reconstruct back wages.

The Administrator seeks back wages in the amount of 26,955.40 for nine employees, CMP's for the Respondent's violation, and an order precluding Respondent's retaliation against any past, present or future employee, given the disclosure of the names of those who provided the Administrator with information.

JUDGE CLARK: Thank you. Mr. Pierce, would you care to make an opening?

MR. PIERCE: As I indicated, I would prefer to wait until the beginning of my case.

JUDGE CLARK: Okay. Ms. Gorman, you may call your first witness.

MS. GORMAN: Thank you, Your Honor. The Administrator calls Carrie Aguilar.

JUDGE CLARK: Ms. Aguilar, would you come forward? Ms. Aguilar, before you have a seat, would you raise your right hand?

Whereupon,

CARRIE AGUILAR

having been first duly sworn by the Administrative Law Judge, was examined and testified as follows:

JUDGE CLARK: Have a seat, please. And if you would state your name, and spell it for the record?

THE WITNESS: Carrie Aguilar, C-a-r-r-i-e, A-g-u-i-l-a-r.

JUDGE CLARK: Thank you. And Ms. Aguilar, just a few things before we get started: So we're recording everything that's said here. This doesn't necessarily amplify. It doesn't amplify, so keep your voice up so Ms. Gorman can hear you.

Let the lawyers ask you the complete question before you answer, because we can't record two people at the same time.

If someone makes an objection, you just stop talking, and I'll let you know whether you can answer the question.

If you don't understand something, let us know. Or if you need a break or something, let us know. Okay?

Ms. Gorman, go ahead.

MS. GORMAN: Yes, Your Honor. I don't see that the witness has the Respondent's Exhibits. Oh, you do? Excellent. Okay, I didn't see them.

(JUDGE, MS. GORMAN & WITNESS SPEAK OVER EACH OTHER)

THE WITNESS: Should I grab them?

MS. GORMAN: You may want them in front of you, yes, I may be referring to them.

JUDGE CLARK: Okay. We're set. Ms. Gorman.

MS. GORMAN: Thank you.

DIRECT EXAMINATION

BY MS. GORMAN:

Q Ms. Aguilar, are you currently employed?

A Yes.

Q With whom are you employed?

A U.S. Department of Labor.

Q With a particular agency?

A Wage & Hour Division.

Q Okay. What is your job title?

A Assistant District Director.

Q How long have you been in that job?

A Since 2015.

Q And what are your job duties as an ADD or Assistant District Director?

A I manage the office. I supervise directly investigators, deal with administrative operations of the office, personnel issues.

Q Prior to your job as an ADD, were you employed with the U.S. Department of Labor?

A Yes.

Q And what was your job title?

A Investigator.

Q And how long did you hold the position of an investigator?

A From 2009 until 2015.

Q What were your duties as a Wage & Hour investigator?

A I investigated employers under different acts, FLSA, H-2B, H-2A, HISPA.

Q And prior to your job as a Wage and Hour investigator, did you work for the Department of Labor?

A No.

Q Prior to your job as a U.S. Department of Labor employee, did you have any other experience in your field?

A Yes.

Q What was that experience?

A I worked for the State of Oregon.

Q And what did you do for the State of Oregon?

A I started as a business and employment specialist, helping job seekers find work, write resumes, helping employers post jobs to the job bank.

Q And you said you started in that position. Did you have any other positions with Oregon?

A Yeah, my final position with the state was working as an operations and policy analyst, working as a trainer for business and employment specialists, training them on the same job duties I just explained.

Q Okay. And for what period of time did you work for the State of Oregon?

A From 2002 to 2009.

Q And I just want to get a sense of the job duties that you performed in all the positions you held with the State of Oregon.

A So as an employment specialist, I spent a lot of time writing jobs, which the employers would give us information, like positions they were recruiting for. And I would type the job duties, the minimum requirements, and also code those jobs into the job banks using SOFT codes so they were more searchable.

I also helped job seekers create profiles in the job banks, including the jobs that they had experience in, coding those with a SOFT code, and the job that they were looking for.

Q Okay. Anything else? Does that also include the operations and policy analyst?

A So as an analyst, I trained on policy, and also how to perform the jobs that I had performed as an employment specialist, helping job seekers, helping employers.

Q You mentioned SOFT codes, Ms. Aguilar. What does that stand for?

A Standard Occupational Classification, I believe.

Q Were you determining then, the job classification for different types of jobs?

A That's correct.

Q Based on what? What factors was that determination based on?

A Based on the job duties. So we would have job listings -- would have to be coded so they would match the job seekers. So seekers may have experience working as a cook or working in a restaurant.

We would put in the SOFT codes in their profile. And if it's a job listing for a cook, they would have to be coded the same so they would match.

Q Okay. You mentioned that as a Wage Hour investigator, you performed investigations of employers in different statutory areas. Correct?

A Yes.

Q As a Wage Hour investigator, approximately how many investigations have you been involved in?

A As an investigator, I completed around 20 or 25 cases every year.

Q And so you were an investigator for eight years. Correct? From --

JUDGE CLARK: Six years.

BY MS. GORMAN:

Q Six years?

A Yeah.

Q Six years, pardon me. Okay. So approximately 120 or so investigations?

A Sure.

Q And as an ADD, how many investigations have you been involved with in a supervisory or mentor or managerial capacity?

A I supervise directly between four and six investigators. And I advise them and review their cases. And each investigator will complete about 20 cases a year --

Q Okay.

A -- depending, between 20 and 35.

Q On those investigations that you have reviewed or managed, as an ADD, have any of them been H-2B?

A Yes.

Q And approximately how many or what percentage of the cases that you review are in the H-2B field or area?

A Right. Our office does about six H-2B cases a year.

Q Are you the only ADD in your office?

A Yes, in Portland.

Q In Portland, okay. So you would be -- you would be reviewing, or somehow have managerial responsibility over those six H-2B cases in Portland?

A Yes, I would advise the investigator through the case under investigation, and I would review all of those cases.

Q And in your experience as either a Wage Hour investigator or an Assistant District Director, have you ever interviewed employees?

A Yes.

Q Approximately how many employee interviews have you taken as a Wage Hour investigator?

A A lot. Probably about 1,000

Q And does that -- that includes -- do you take interviews as an ADD, as well?

A Yes, sometimes.

Q Okay. And so that 1,000, approximate 1,000 includes both as a Wage Hour investigator and an ADD?

A Correct.

Q How do you determine the reliability of the information that you are provided during an interview, an employee interview?

A I would take into account the demeanor of the individual I'm interviewing. And I would later, or depending on when I get the records, cross reference that with the records available, and other information.

Q Have you ever been interviewing a witness and concluded either while the interview is going on, or after the interview, that you were not being told the truth?

A Yes.

Q What factors -- what did you look at to reach your conclusion that you weren't being -- I want to know what you considered for your conclusion that you weren't being told the truth?

A Sometimes employees will be either too quick to answer a question, maybe spitting out an answer before I finish my question.

Maybe they will be extremely reticent, and not answer at all, speak very quietly.

Sometimes I believe people are lying when they use words they wouldn't typically use, maybe like industry-type jargon that I don't think they would normally use.

Sometimes if they are very quick to approach me, and they really want to talk to me, it seems like that is not typical behavior.

If they can see that there is a video camera, like if I'm interviewing folks in a conference room, and there's a video camera, and they know that there's a video camera, they think perhaps the Employer is watching, then I wouldn't put a whole lot of credence in that interview, and if there's other people around, and it's not a private space.

Q Okay. Did you become involved in the investigation of Butler Amusements and Michael Brajevich?

A Yes.

Q How did you become involved?

A I was assigned the case.

Q And what was your involvement in this case?

A I was the lead investigator.

Q And what were you -- what was your -- what task were you assigned to complete when you were assigned this case?

A I was assigned to investigate the case, be the face of the agency with the employer in the case, and coordinate the activities of the other investigators.

Q Were you asked to make a determination about the case, about -- about this employer?

A Yes.

Q What was the determination that you were asked to make at the beginning of the case?

A Whether or not the employer was in compliance with the H-2B.

Q How do you determine compliance with H-2B?

A I would look at the attestations, and determine whether or not they were complying with what they had promised when they signed off on the attestations and the TEC.

Q Anything else, other than the attestations and the TEC?

A I looked at their compliance under the FLSA, as well.

Q And when you say TEC, what are you referring to?

A The Temporary Employment Certification, the 9142.

Q Okay. So in terms of determining compliance, you looked at the attestations and the TEC, you looked at compliance with the FLSA. Was there any other -- was there anything else that you looked at?

A I don't think so.

Q When you refer to the TEC, what does the TEC consist of?

A The TEC consists of a packet of information from -- that the office receives from ETA. It includes a letter, the determination letter from ETA to the Employer, the 9142, the job order, equipment report, copies of the newspaper advertisements. I think that's all.

Q Did you come to a conclusion at the end of your investigation?

A Yes.

Q Is it a conclusion or a determination?

A Determination.

Q Okay. And then I want to talk about from the beginning of the case, going on forward to your determination. What was the first thing that you did upon case assignment of the Butler Amusements and Michael Brajevich?

A I reviewed the -- the reg's, our internal guidance on H-2B. I looked at the information from ETA. I looked up the company on the Internet.

Q Why did you look up the company on the Internet?

A So I could learn more about the company, about the organization of the company, how big it was, how many employees they might have, where they were.

Q What was the first thing that you did to start your investigation after your review of the things you just testified to?

A The reg's. I sent a letter to the Employer.

Q Okay. And you've got three booklets in front of you. I'm going to refer to the Administrator's book. It is in green. Those are the Administrator's Exhibits.

And the other are the Respondent's Exhibits, and I may be referring to those 26 exhibits in a binder. We looked at that this morning.

Calling your attention to Exhibit A of the Administrator's Exhibits, and the Administrator's Exhibits are numbered within each exhibit, A-1, A-2, A-3, these pages. Then all pages are numbered consecutively, also, going through this whole document.

Do you recognize this document in Exhibit A?

A Yes.

Q What is it?

A The appointment letter.

Q Is this the one that you just testified to that you sent out?

A Yes.

Q Is -- is this letter significant in your investigation?

A Yes.

Q Why?

A It is the first contact with the Employer. It alerts them that we are going to be conducting an investigation. And it is also the first written request for records that the Employer would have received.

Q Did you receive records from the Employer as a result of this letter?

A Yes.

Q What happened after you sent out this letter, and you received records -- records in response?

A I met with the Employer's representative, and their attorney.

Q Who did you meet with?

A Mr. Pierce and -- I forget the gentleman's name.

MR. PIERCE: Tom Shobaken.

THE WITNESS: Yes. Thank you.

BY MS. GORMAN:

Q Did you meet with them in person, or over the phone?

A In person. We met at their office in Beaverton.

JUDGE CLARK: And I'm sorry, I missed who you said the representative was.

THE WITNESS: Mr. Pierce?

JUDGE CLARK: I'm sorry, the second person, the second name.

THE WITNESS: Shobaken.

MR. PIERCE: S-h-o-b-a-k-e-n.

JUDGE CLARK: Thank you.

BY MS. GORMAN:

Q What happened after the meeting with Mr. Shobaken and Mr. Pierce?

A I -- I'm not sure if I received the records prior to the meeting or after. But at some point in there, I received the records.

And then we planned to do an on-site visit to the fair where we would conduct interviews and a tour.

Q And did you do that --

A Yes.

Q -- on site? When was the on-site? When was the on-side visit to the Employer's location?

A I believe it was April 23rd.

Q Okay. And that was in Santa Barbara?

A Yes, so 23rd or 24th.

JUDGE CLARK: Of 2013?

THE WITNESS: Yes.

BY MS. GORMAN:

Q Okay. So, so far in your investigation, we've got your records review -- first, your case assignment, your records review of the TEC and other compliance documents, your sending out of the appointment letter, which is Exhibit A, the meeting with Mr. Pierce and Mr. Shobaken, the on-site visit.

You mentioned a tour. Were you given -- were you, you being the Wage and Hour Division, given a tour of the area when you got on site to the fair in Santa Barbara?

A Yes, they showed us around.

Q Who? Who -- who showed you around?

A I was shown around by the supervisor, Antonio. And I also wanted to point out that I did advise Mr. Pierce's office. I called them on the Friday prior to our site visit, letting them know that we were going to be there.

Q And who? You said we. Who was with you? Was anybody else with you on site?

A Yes.

Q Okay. Who else was with you?

A There were four or five other Wage Hour investigators and the regional immigration coordinator, Mr. Huaracha.

Q After the on-site interviews, did you -- what next did you do in your investigation?

A The night after our first on-site, so that was the night of the 23rd, I reviewed all of the interviews taken by my colleagues. Then we went out the next day and got more interviews.

Q Okay. And what did you -- what was the next step in your investigation after that next day, that second day of gathering interviews?

A Went back to Portland and reviewed records.

Q And what did you do next?

A Reviewed the records to determine if there was any kind of violation.

Q And you said -- you testified that you came up with a determination.

A Yes.

Q Correct?

A We did, citing one violation.

Q Okay. You testified earlier that you reviewed the TEC. Why is it that you reviewed the TEC? For what purpose?

A The TEC is a document that the Employer signs, that they're agreeing to certain terms and conditions, and that is what we use to determine whether they are in compliance.

Q I'm going to call your attention to the Administrator's Exhibit C, as in cat. Do you recognize this document?

A Yes.

Q What is it?

A It's the 9142.

Q And so you refer to this document as the TEC, and all the other associated documents with it as the TEC?

A Correct.

Q Okay. And you just testified that this document includes the Employer's promises. I'm going to call your attention to total page number 15 and 16.

A Yes.

Q And are those the attestations that you just testified to?

A Yes.

Q And it says it's Part B Employer Declaration or Declarations. Or, is it just Declaration? Sorry, it's singular.

A Yeah.

Q Out in the middle of the page at 15 and going on to about the middle of the page of 16. Correct?

A Yes.

Q Okay. Other than the attestations that are included in the TEC, are there any other records that you reviewed, which set forth the Employer's obligations for the H-2B program, as the Department of Labor enforces it?

A No.

Q Are you familiar with the ETA determination letter?

A Yes.

Q Okay. And I'm going to call your attention to Exhibit B of the Administrator's Exhibits. And there are -- there are two different determination letters here going from total page three to total page seven. Did you review both of these documents?

A Yes.

Q And do these documents have any significance -- significance for your investigation?

A Yes, they're part of the TEC, and they advise the Employer of their obligation.

Q Is it your position that the Employer -- that the obligations that the ETA determination letter sets forth are also obligations that the Employer must comply with?

A Yes.

Q And you also testified that you reviewed -- that you reviewed records that you received from the Employer?

A Yes.

Q Okay. And I'm not going to go through every single one of them. But I just want to get a sense as to what you received and what you reviewed.

Calling your attention to Exhibit E of the Administrator's Exhibits -- oh, yeah -- was that a document that you received from the Employer?

A Yes.

Q Did you review this document during your investigation?

A Yes.

Q Was this document helpful to you during the investigation?

A Yes.

Q Okay. I think that -- okay. Calling your attention to Exhibit G, as in girl, did you receive this document from the Employer?

A Yes.

Q Did you review it during your investigation?

A Yes.

Q And was it helpful to your determination?

A Yes.

Q Okay. And actually, I'm going to go back to Exhibit E for just a minute, and close the circle on this one. Why was Exhibit E helpful to you during your determination?

A E tells me the name of the employee, and what they were paid.

Q Okay. I know that I redacted some information in E that I didn't need to redact. I'm just trying to get the Respondent's Exhibit, which does not include that redacted information. Just give me one moment, please. Oh, okay, that's it.

And I will ask you to go to Exhibit 26 of the Respondent's trial Exhibits, and page 1035.

A Yes.

Q Okay. The Administrator's Exhibit E has redacted two entire columns. And there was -- there was no PII information that was redacted from those two columns that is reflected in the Employer's Exhibit 26 at page 1035. Do you see that information?

A Yes.

Q Did you consider that information during your investigation?

A Yes.

Q Was it -- was it helpful or significant to you?

A Yes.

Q Why?

A This shows that there were individuals under the SSN column that are indicated as drivers.

Q Why was that significant?

A Because they were -- these are the individuals that other information also -- were also indicated were performing semi-truck driver duties, instead of the recreation and amusement attendant duties.

Q And you are looking at Exhibit -- did you use the information in either Exhibit E or the Respondent's Exhibit 26 that starts on page 1035, did you use it for any other purpose, other than what you just testified to?

A Well, like I said before, it also shows the pay rate of the individuals. So some of them are classified here as drivers.

And also, it tells me that there are some individuals that are paid a significant amount more than others.

Q And then, calling your attention to Exhibit G, what information in that exhibit did you find -- or, did you use for your investigation?

A G, page 205 also indicates the job title of shop, and it has listed the names of two different H-2B employees, which other information in my case file also indicated were workers performing full-time shop duties, and not ride attendant duties.

That next page, G4, 206 lists management, including two H-2B employees, Antonio Mendez, who I indicated earlier showed me around the fair, and Omar Lopez, who both of them, in conjunction with other information in the case file, led us to the conclusion that they were performing supervisory duties, instead of recreation and amusement attendant.

Q Calling your attention to Exhibit H of the Administrator's Exhibits, did you receive this? This is just a few pages of, I believe many documents that you received. Correct?

A Yes.

Q Okay. And did you consider these documents during your investigation?

A Yes.

Q Okay. Why were they -- why were they important or significant? Or, what did you consider with regard to them?

A It does tell me how much people were paid, draws and the net payment.

Q The draws and the net? I'm at Exhibit H.

A Yes, on some of them -- so I'm looking at those three little papers that are copied on this page. So the middle on the bottom, it shows the pay, draw and the net.

Q Oh, I see. I see. In the top right on each of the small slips?

A Yes.

Q Okay. Or, what I assume are small slips, and they are multiple on this page. So other than the draws and the net, did you use this document? This is a sample of the documents that you received. Right?

A Yes.

Q Okay. So you received many, many more than just these four or five pages?

A Correct.

Q Other than the draw and the nets, did you credit the documents, these types of documents with any other information?

A Not really. It's difficult to get a lot of information from these. You can see the next paper to the right of the one that I just talked about, in the middle bottom of the page, there's no way to tell who that employee is. It's cut off.

It appears to be signatures. There's dates and times, and significant breaks. So I looked at all of that. It wasn't was extremely helpful.

Q Did you credit these documents? Did you receive -- pardon me. Did you credit these documents as credible documents for the information that they reflected?

A No.

Q Did you ever receive any source documentation for these -- for these summaries that appear here?

A No.

Q In other investigations, have you received time cards with typed information for times in and times out? Is that something common that you have seen as either a Wage Hour investigator or an Assistant District Director?

A It's not common, but I have seen it.

Q And has it either always been credible, or always been incredible in your mind? I mean does the fact that it's typed have any bearing on the credibility of the document?

A Yes, I would give much more credit to something that was more contemporaneous, handwritten, perhaps, or an actual time card.

Q Why?

A It shows interaction with the document that a worker would have, instead of just someone sitting in front of a computer typing in times.

Q So the information in the document at Exhibit H that you credited was the -- you credited the pay information. Correct?

A Yes.

Q The draw information --

A Yes.

Q -- in the top right in each of the forms. The name of the employees, where you could glean it?

A Yes.

Q And any other information?

A No.

Q How many employees were interviewed by the Wage and Hour Division for this case?

A Around 30.

Q And I'll call your attention to the documents in Exhibit F, as in Frank. Are you familiar with those pages of documents?

A Yes.

Q Did you create it?

A I did.

Q And what -- what -- what does the document show?

A It lists a summary of the interviews -- not a summary. It lists the first name, last name, job title, and the exhibit number from my case file of the interviews.

Q How many of these interviews did you -- did you take personally, just approximately?

A I believe I took five interviews.

Q And the remaining interviews were taken by your Wage and Hour colleagues?

A Correct.

Q And did you -- do you speak, and/or read and write Spanish, Ms. Aguilar?

A Yes.

Q And for the five interviews that you took, were they -- in which language were they taken?

A English and Spanish. I might have taken more interviews because I interviewed all of the folks, applicants that were by phone.

Q So they are not all employee interviews?

A That's correct.

Q So under the job title, I see one, two, three, four applicants?

A Yes.

Q And why would you take applicant interviews?

A To test the validity of the recruitment report, to ask if people were offered the job, if they wanted the job.

Q And these would be non H-2B workers?

A Correct.

Q Okay. So I generally call them domestic workers.

A Okay.

Q Is that a reasonable term?

A Sure.

Q Okay. I mean just because they are domestic to the United States, and they haven't crossed the border to find a job.

A Correct.

Q And you testified that you do it to test the information in the recruitment report. What does that mean?

A The Employer has an obligation to hire U.S. workers, qualified U.S. workers before they are hiring H-2B workers.

So part of the recruitment report is a list of U.S. workers or domestic workers who applied for the job, and were not hired. Or, they may have been hired. They have different categories on their report.

So part of what we do in the investigation is call the applicants, ask them, "Did you apply, how did you apply, what did they tell you, were you hired, why were you not hired, did you want the job if you did get it," that kind of thing.

Q Did you determine that any of the applicants that were interviewed for this case would have taken the job for a recreation and amusement attendant position?

A I don't remember off hand. I do know that we didn't have any violations with regard to recruitment. So there were no discernible issues there.

Q Did you ask any of the applicants, or did any of your colleagues ask any of the applicants whether they would accept a job in a position, other than recreation and amusement attendant?

A I did the applicant interviews, and I don't believe that was part of my questions.

Q Is it common in wage hour investigations, to have more than one person taking interviews?

A It's not uncommon for larger cases.

Q Does -- does this case constitute a larger case?

A Yes.

Q Why?

A The number of employees.

Q The total number of employees?

A That's correct.

Q Okay. Does it affect the investigation, depending on who is taking the interviews?

A As the lead investigator, it was my responsibility to review the interviews taken by my colleagues, and determine if follow-up questions had to be asked, or additional interviews had to be taken. So I don't think it affected the overall case.

Q Okay. I'd like to talk about the information that you got from the interviews. Did -- did -- did your review of -- did the interviews that you took yourself, as well as your review of the interviews that your colleagues took, did that provide you with information that you included in your overall determination as to whether this Employer was in compliance with the H-2B statutes?

A Yes.

Q Okay. Let's talk about that information. What information did you get from the employee interviews?

A The employees themselves described working full time in occupations, other than ride attendant.

Employees cross referenced other employees who were working outside of the ride attendant classification, saying, "Antonio is my supervisor, Omar is my supervisor," and tells them what to do.

"I work as a semi-truck driver all the time." The general manager, things in his statement, "I have two full-time H-2B's working in the parts shop."

Marilu is an H-2B, also. I understand she is not part of the case anymore.

But the supervisor, the general manager said that Antonio was his left hand man. He talked about the lack of reliability of the time records.

Q And how did they talk about the lack of reliability of the time records? What did they say with regard to that?

A Varying things: "I don't have a time sheet. Sometimes I fill out time records. We used to have a time sheet. Now we don't. They say our time starts an hour before the fair. My supervisor told me when to show up. I don't know about time records."

Q So did you ever determine that some employees for Butler had time records, were the ones saying, "I don't have a time sheet. I never filled this out."

A Yes.

Q Okay. You mentioned, I believe that you took the interview of a management individual named Kurt Vomburg?

A That's correct.

Q Okay. And I'll call your attention to Exhibit F at page F-137. You don't see it? Oh, I'm sorry. It's total page 201.

A Okay. This is in Spanish. Tell me the page number again?

A There we go.

Q Okay. They are both numbered within the exhibit, and also consecutively. So I did both, because I want the judge to be happy. So this is the interview that you took of Mr. Vomburg?

A These are notes from a conversation I had with Mr. Vomburg.

Q So you mentioned that Mr. Vomburg -- I believe that you just testified that Mr. Vomburg said that two employees were full time working in non RAA positions. And I would ask you where that information is on this interview?

A Okay So a few references in the first paragraph, the fourth line, the end of that line says, "My left hand, I guess would be Antonio Mendez. He's been coming back for 12 years. He is in charge, and is a spectacular supervisor."

The next line, "The supervisor in charge of Kiddie Land is Billie Truax. Under him is Omar Lopez. Omar is H-2B, and so is Antonio."

And it continues to CDL truck drivers just driving tractor/trailers, they don't operate the rides. Some of the truck drivers are H-2B workers.

Marilu is in the office. She doesn't provide inspection paperwork. She is an H-2B worker, too.

Q Okay. Good.

A So that is different than the two H-2B workers in the shop, which is the last two lines of this page. "We have a shop here on site that travels with us. They do repair and welding. All the employees in the shop are H-2B workers."

Q So let's start at the beginning for the first reference, what you just testified to regarding Mr. Mendez. Why is what Mr. Vomburg said -- is what Mr. Vomburg said in the notes that you have, is that a problem for the H-2B program with regard to Mr. Mendez?

A Yes, he's not working as an amusement ride attendant. He is a supervisor.

Q And did you determine that Mr. Mendez is a supervisor?

A Yes.

Q And with regard to Mr. Lopez, the second individual that you just referenced?

A The same, he was working as a supervisor, not as a recreation and amusement attendant.

Q And then further on in that same paragraph, where Mr. Vomburg references all the truck drivers, why is that significant for your investigation?

A Driving a semi truck is very different from being an amusement ride attendant. And that was not -- semi-truck driver was not on the TEC.

Q Okay. And the last reference that you indicated was the last line on the page, or the last paragraph on the page. The shop workers, why -- why is that significant here?

A They are not performing ride attendant duties.

Q I want to go back to the TEC. I probably did not ask you about this. Calling your attention to Exhibit C, as in cat, please, the first page of this document that you testified to is the 9142, which is part of the TEC.

In the B, section B, temporary need information, in number three, it says that it's the SOC occupation title. Do you see that?

A Yes.

Q What did that -- what did that mean? Why is that significant?

A This is the job classification for which they are requesting workers.

Q And how many workers was this Employer requesting?

A Two hundred and forty-six.

Q And you see that in section seven of this document?

A That's correct.

Q And in number two, there is a SOC -- is that a SOC code? If I refer to it as SOC code, is that correct?

A Yes.

Q In box number two of section B, do you know what that stands for, the 393091?

A It's the code associated with amusement and recreation attendant.

Q And was that part of the documents that you reviewed prior to -- at the beginning of your investigation in this case?

A Yes.

Q You reviewed the SOC code?

A Yes.

Q And what does that mean? Why do you review the SOC code?

A Because there are job duties associated with that, and that would inform the types of questions I would want to ask, and I would advise my colleagues to ask, if the employees were indeed, performing those job duties.

Q And then in number four, the TEC says that all of these amusement and recreation attendant jobs are full-time jobs. Correct?

A Yes.

Q Okay. All right, thank you. Other than the documents that you received from the Employer -- oh, actually, no. I'm sorry.

I want to ask you about something else. Pardon me.

I'm going to reference the Respondent's Exhibit 26 again, and various pages in here. I'm going to start or begin, and I want to call your attention to page 120, please.

JUDGE CLARK: Are you there?

THE WITNESS: Yes.

BY MS. GORMAN:

Q Was this document a document that you received from Louis Wandiss during your investigation, Ms. Aguilar?

A I believe so.

Q And did you consider this document for the determination that you made for your investigation?

A Yes.

Q What information did you use from this document? Oh, let's see. First, can you describe what this document is, what you took it to be?

A So this is a summary of the job, provides the job they were performing, their base pay, and different deductions, net pay.

Q Are you aware that this Employer has a ride called The Driver?

A No.

Q What -- what -- what -- when we see driver in the ride column, how do you interpret that information?

A As a semi-truck driver.

Q That the employee was performing semi-truck driver duties?

A Um-hum. Yes.

Q And then there's a date up here, it looks like. It's kind of at an angle with what I believe is the location for this summary. Do you see that?

A Yes.

Q Okay. Did you credit that date information?

A Yes.

Q Okay. So we were going through the information that you -- that you got from this document that you used for your determination.

And you said that in the ride column where it indicates driver, you used that information?

A Correct.

Q And is there any other column or other type of information that you -- that you also accredited from this document for your determination?

A The pay.

Q Why the pay?

A I believe the pay listed here is what the employees received.

Q Okay. And why? Why is that an issue in your investigation?

A The employees that are -- that were misclassified, working outside of a classification were paid more than the other, the ride attendant.

The majority of the employees, if you'll look down the column, you'll see a lot of folks paid in the 300 to 400 range.

The employees that are -- that were misclassified were paid more than that. And so in computing the back wages, I gave the Employer credit for the higher salaries they were paid.

Q I see. Okay. Let me just see if I can understand what you're saying. Where an H-2B worker was -- where you determined that a H-2B worker was misclassified, when you went to the back wage reconstruction to determine how much that employee was due, you used this higher rate of pay as what they had already received, so they wouldn't have like a double recovery?

A Right.

Q Okay. Did I say that right in terms of what you did?

A Right.

Q Is there anything else that you'd like to add?

A No.

Q So other than using this information for the amount that an employee was -- do you remember off the top -- sorry. I'm interrupting myself. Pardon.

Do you remember the amount that this Employer said that they would pay all recreation and amusement attendants from the TEC? It's in Exhibit C.

A Yeah, I have it opened.

Q Okay.

A The basic rate of pay offered listed on the TEC is 323.60 to 368.40 per week.

Q And where do you see that?

A It's page 12, C-5.

Q So then anything above 368.40, this Employer would be paying more than what they were -- they were -- they applied to their workers.

MR. PIERCE: Objection, Your Honor. I would object to the relevance of this. There is no allegation regarding pay rate in this case.

The only violation that we are here for is whether or not they were acting in the job code or not.

What they were paying is not a part of any allegation.

JUDGE CLARK: Ms. Gorman, would you care to be heard?

MS. GORMAN: Yes. I think what they were paid goes directly to the remedies that the Administrator seeks here for the back wages.

JUDGE CLARK: The objection is overruled.

BY MS. GORMAN:

Q Okay. So you used the information in the ride column that we just talked about for the driver. Were there any non-RAA jobs, other than driver, in this document that you considered?

A This particular document, no.

Q Okay. So when I see people listed as office -- I'll take some specific examples to make sure here. I see maybe the sixth or seventh employee down, Jessie Bogue, B-o-g-u-e. Do you see that?

JUDGE CLARK: On Exhibit 26, page 120?

MS. GORMAN: Yes.

THE WITNESS: I don't see.

JUDGE CLARK: May I see your page? No, that's the same page that she's looking at.

THE WITNESS: Okay, got you, thank you.

MS. GORMAN: Thank you, Your Honor.

BY MS. GORMAN:

Q Okay. Do you see Jessie Bogue?

A I see it, yes.

Q And I see that Jessie Bogue says office and then $300.00?

A Right.

Q But Mr. or Ms Bogue was not an H-2B employee. Correct?

A Right.

Q Okay.

A So what I would do is take a look at this. And if the employee was office, I would look at that and see Jessie Bogue and then compare it to a list of H-2B employees.

And if they are not an H-2B employee, it doesn't matter. They can hire or they can employ them in any capacity they want. They're a U.S. worker.

Q Okay. And so the only H-2B workers listed on this document then that don't have a ride associated with them, were drivers -- were drivers. I think you just said driver. And I don't think I see any shop for H-2B workers?

A Yeah, and I would have to check the names of the drivers on this particular page. But there's lots of other pages that are very similar to this that do have the driver and the H-2B worker name.

And there's other pages similar to this for other weeks or other locations that have the names of the individuals working in the shop, Marilu in the office, and the supervisors or managers, Antonio and Omar.

Q Okay. I just want to take a look at a few more, just to make sure that we've got this. The Respondent's Exhibit 26, page 279?

A Yes.

Q And was this a document -- you're on page 279?

A Yes.

Q Was this a document that you received during your investigation, Ms. Aguilar?

A Yes.

Q And did you consider this document for your final determination, as part of your final determination?

A Yes.

Q Okay. And I'm going to take your previous testimony that what you relied on, because this is the same type of document, albeit for looks like a different location or a different date period than the one that we were just looking at, in the ride column, I see the designation for driver for the first person is Randall Ackerman. But that's not an H-2B worker. Right?

A Correct. I don't believe I see any drivers who are also H-2B workers on this particular document.

Q Okay. So I see driver supervisor Salvador Garcia. Do you see that?

A Yes.

Q I think that's more than halfway down. Did you determine whether Mr. Garcia was an H-2B worker?

A I don't remember.

Q Okay. But when you received this document, you would have double checked the information that you received on the document with your list of H-2B workers?

A Absolutely.

Q Okay. And I'm just, I'm curious about this. The highest paid person on this document is about four or five from the bottom. And it is Horje Aguilar Penya. Do you see that?

A Yes.

Q And he's got the ride, Shrek listed for him?

A Yes.

Q And the pay of $500.00 a week, which is, as I said, the highest paid individual on the list for actually both sheets. Do you know why that is?

A No.

Q Did you determine whether or not Mr. Penya was an H-2B worker?

A I don't remember.

Q And page 370 of Exhibit 26, did you receive this document during your investigation?

A Yes.

Q And this document does not appear to have lots of last names.

JUDGE CLARK: Mine has last names, part of it does, I guess. Some do. Some don't.

MS. GORMAN: Right. Okay.

BY MS. GORMAN:

Q And did you -- so you were just testifying in detail about the same kind of format of documents. Did you use this document in the same way that you testified previously when we were looking at this form of document?

A Yes.

Q So for the name of the ride, where it doesn't say the name of the ride, whether or not that person was an H-2B worker, and whether they were perhaps a misclassified H-2B worker?

A That's correct.

Q Okay. And then, also for the pay, for your reconstruction of back wages, how much, to credit the Employer with already having paid that particular employee?

A Yes.

Q Okay. And anything else on this document?

A No.

Q Okay. I see for the columns -- we didn't talk about this. But you were mentioning, when we were looking at a previous document, the draws for employees. Do you see that column?

A Here, yes.

Q Did that go into your determination of a violation here?

A No.

Q And then the next column here is uniforms. Did you consider -- do you know what uniforms means on this document?

A I believe it means when an employee was charged for a replacement uniform, yes.

Q Okay. What is your understanding of why employees have to pay for a uniform?

A I understand that employees were given one shirt. And any additional shirts they would have to wear as part of their uniform, they were required to buy.

JUDGE CLARK: Ms. Aguilar, would you pull that microphone down just a little bit? I think it's amplifying just a little too much.

BY MS. GORMAN:

Q Is there any other information, other than the information we just talked about that you received from these summary sheets that we haven't already talked about?

A I don't believe so.

Q Okay. There are many, many of these summary sheets in the documents that you received from the Employer. Correct?

A Yes.

Q Okay. And I can identify them here, but I don't think that we need to do that now, unless you received some information different from them than what we've already talked about.

A No.

Q Okay. Thank you. Other than the documents that you received from the Employer, the documents that you reviewed from the Employer's application to voluntarily participate in the H-2B program, the interviews that you took, the interviews that you reviewed that your colleagues took, was there anything else that you considered before making a determination about this Employer's compliance with the H-2B program?

A The only additional thing would be the information that we got on the tour on site, personal observations.

Q What kind of information did you gather from personal observation that you used for your determination?

A Well, I determined that, for example, Marilu was misclassified. I conducted her interview in an office where she was surrounded by notebooks of information that she had compiled, and that was her primary duty.

So that, in addition to what she told me, I was looking at where she was working.

I also observed the shop that the two H-2B workers were working out of. It was an enclosed area, parts and grease, you know, like a repair shop where they had indicated they were working all day.

We saw the semi-trucks coming. I didn't interview the driver, but my colleagues did. They looked at the semi-truck. They told me it was a semi-truck.

I saw, as I was being led around on the tour by Antonio, it was very typical of other tours I had received in other places of business, and a supervisor would take me around and tell me this is this person and, you know, act as a person of authority. I also relied on that.

Q Okay. So other than the things that I just mentioned, as well as your personal observations, was there any other source of information that you relied on for your determination at the conclusion of your investigation?

A I don't think so.

Q And what was your determination?

A That there were -- employees were misclassified --

Q Okay.

A -- and were paid incorrectly.

Q And why do you say that they -- is it that they were paid less than what was listed in the TEC?

A No.

Q Why do you make that conclusion?

A Because they were paid well over. The maximum amount here is 368.40. However, if an Employer does things properly, and wants to recruit a semi-truck driver, for example, they would be issued a wage rate. And it's associated with a SOC code, and it tells you what the mean H-2B rate is, if you look it up. It's available publicly. And it's well over the amount that they were paid, and that's why they were due back wages.

Q And so, you took the amount that they should have received for the job that they were performing, deducted the amount that they received, and then concluded that they were due the remainder?

A That's correct. That happens a lot in wage hour investigations.

Q The misclassification?

A Misclassification, yes. So it's something that we do a lot.

Q Okay. And have you seen it before in H-2B cases?

A Yes.

Q Have you seen it -- was it like this that you've seen it before? Or, was it structured a little differently?

A It was a different industry. But it was someone who was performing duties that were outside of the duties that were on the TEC, and/or that should have been paid at a higher rate.

Q And so what job positions did you determine that employees were performing outside of the recreation and amusement attendant jobs?

A Semi-truck drivers, supervisor and shop, shop mechanics.

Q And did you determine remedies for these violations?

A Yes.

Q And I'll call your attention, please, to Exhibit I of the Administrator's Exhibits. Do you recognize this exhibit?

A Yes.

Q What is it, Ms. Aguilar?

A Back wage computations.

Q Who created this document?

A I did.

Q Okay. I'd like to go through it. In the WWE column, the first column, what does that stand for?

A Work Week Ending.

Q Okay. And it looks like we've got a period of time roughly from the beginning of February to -- or, from work week ending February 9th to April 20th. Is that consistent for all these employees?

A No.

Q Okay. Why not?

A The last person listed on page 213 was Avon Ortega. His work week ending is 2/16, not 2/9.

Q Why?

A Because I received from the Employer information about when the workers crossed the border. And he came over later.

Q So you started the work week for the period that the employee was actually on the ground, willing and able to work as an H-2B worker?

A Working outside of their classification, yes, absolutely.

Q Okay. Okay, yeah, fair enough. Okay. So next is the employee name. That's fairly self-explanatory. And then the Job Performed, I see that on the first page, we've got the three drivers, the next page, one driver, two supervisors. And then, the last page, two shop workers?

A Yes.

Q And that is the -- what you just testified to, the jobs that these employees were actually performing that were outside the recreation and amusement attendant job?

A That's correct.

Q And the location, why do you have location in here? Where did you get that information from?

A Okay. The location is based on the itinerary that is listed in the TEC signed by the Employer. It matters because the rate of pay varies based on the locality.

Q Do you determine that rate of pay based on locality?

A No.

Q Where does it come from, that information?

A I pulled it from an FLC data center website.

Q So I want to call your attention, please, to the Administrator's Exhibit C, as in cat, page number Exhibit C-13, which is overall, page 20.

A Yes.

Q Okay. Is this the itinerary that you just testified to that has the list of locations?

A Yes.

Q And is it your understanding that this document is created by the Employer? Correct?

A It's part of the TEC.

Q Okay. And you see the letterhead up at the top?

A Yes.

Q Okay. And it says Butler Amusements and it's got a corporate office address, okay. And so this is where you got the information for the different locations?

A That's correct.

Q Okay, thank you. Going back to Exhibit I, so you just testified that all -- that the rate of pay changes by location.

And yet, for the wage rate, I see that it remains the same for all the locations. Can you explain that?

A I used an average.

Q Okay. So still in Exhibit I, I'll call your attention to -- I apologize for the numbering on this, but I wanted it to be oriented the same -- page 216. The number is in the top left. That's my mistake. Two one six, are you at the top of it?

A Yes.

Q Yes, okay. And what -- did you create this document?

A Yes.

Q What is it?

A It is a summary of the different locality pays for the different locations for 2013.

Q So down at page 217, I see that in bold, there is an average wage rate for each of the -- each of the four. We're really only concerned with three of them here now, but each of the four different job positions?

A Correct.

Q And that is the average that you used that is reflected on page 213?

A Yes.

Q Okay.

JUDGE CLARK: Ms. Gorman, just one question: On page 213, the first page of Exhibit I, one of the columns is total PWR. The PWR stands for?

THE WITNESS: Prevailing wage rate.

JUDGE CLARK: Thank you.

MR. PIERCE: May I have just a moment? Counsel, I can't find the page she's referencing.

JUDGE CLARK: Okay. We'll go off the record briefly.

(Off the record.)

JUDGE CLARK: Back on the record.

BY MS. GORMAN:

Q So we were going through the document in Exhibit 213, Ms. Aguilar?

A Yes.

Q Okay. And we just talked about the wage rate and where you came up with that. So that is going to vary based on the different job positions. Correct, job titles?

A Yes.

Q So for drivers, I see that average rate is 19.84. But for a supervisor, it's $20.06?

A Correct.

Q Okay. And so those averages reflected on pages 216 and 217 is kind of your math of how you got -- came up with the average?

A Yes.

Q And then Weekly Rate Paid, do you see that column?

A Yes.

Q And is that the information that you took from the Employer's documents that we were just going over with a relatively fine-tooth comb, right, in terms of what the Employer had already paid the workers?

A Correct.

Q And did that weekly rate, did it ever vary for any of these time periods? I mean, it looks like it's all the same?

A Yes.

Q Okay. Did you take that from individual documents of the time period? Or, did you average that out? Or, did you just use the same rate? How did you come up with that amount in the Weekly Rate Paid?

A I don't remember if any of them had a change. I would hope it would be reflected here. But I honestly don't remember.

Q Fair enough. And Total PWR Due, that PWR stands for?

A Prevailing wage rate.

Q And what is that? How do you come up with that, the dollars in that column?

A That prevailing wage rate is associated with the SOC code. So the SOC code for driver has a prevailing wage rate associated with it that I got from the FLC data center. And this total is that hourly H-2B rate times 40.

Q Why did you use 40?

A Forty is what is listed on the TEC.

Q And those are hours worked a week?

A That is what the Employer has certified that they are going to employ the H-2B workers.

Q Okay. I'm going to call your attention to the documents in Exhibit J. Do you recognize these documents?

A Yes, that list is a print out from the FLC data center.

Q Did you print these out?

A Yes.

Q So you indicated that the total PWR or the total prevailing wage rate due for a driver for this period of time was 793.60. Right?

A Yes.

Q And so I'm looking at the document overall, page 219 at Exhibit J.

A Yes.

Q And I see in the last bolded column up at the top, Mean Wage for an H-2B Worker at 21.32 an hour, 44,346 a year. Correct?

A Yes.

Q And if you -- did you take that wage rate and then divide it appropriately to come up with the hourly rate that we see in the total PWR?

A That's correct. This rate makes up part of the amounts that I averaged to get to the 19 whatever that I used.

Q I see. So you just used an average of the PWR for each of the different locations for each of the different jobs?

A Correct.

Q Okay. Can an Employer use an average like that for the jobs that he is performing -- that he is having his H-2B workers perform?

A No.

Q Why?

A They need to pay based on the locality of where they are at the time. What I did was reconstruction.

Q Why is it okay for Wage and Hour to do it with the averages, but an Employer can not?

A I don't have access to their records. And this is to remedy the violations that occurred. This is part of our process that we do in all types of cases, take averages based on the best information that we have.

Q So this FLC data center data that we're looking at in Exhibit J, that was the source for the information that you contained, that you reflected in the total PWR Due column of Exhibit I. Correct?

A Yes.

Q Sorry, that was a little confusing. And then the Total Due column, how did you -- is that just match to come up with that total, too?

A Correct. It was what was due, minus what was paid.

Q Okay. And the HW times WW column, what do those letters stand for?

A Hours worked for work week, so it was it was 40.

Q And did you have information that employees were working either less or more than 40 hours a week?

A I didn't have a lot of information to determine the exact number of hours worked per work week.

Q So before, when we were looking at the documents with the little slips of paper, which was Exhibit H, yes, Exhibit H, at least for these first few pages that I included here as a sample, and with Exhibit 26 of the Respondent's Exhibits, I don't see any that say 40 hours a week.

I'm looking at page number 207. There's no 40. I'm looking at page 218. Some of them, the information is not reflected, but I don't see any that say 40, the same thing with page 209, page 210, I think all, as well as the next page, 211 and 212. None of them say 40 hours.

Do you -- do you -- do you know why?

A I don't know why they don't say 40 hours.

Q Okay. But yet, you used 40 hours?

A Yes.

Q Did you credit -- so going back to Exhibit H, did you credit the information for the total number of hours worked as reliable in Exhibit H?

A No.

Q And why not?

A That doesn't correspond with the information that I received in interviews. And these records, on their face, don't look reliable to me.

Q Why?

A They're reflecting sometimes eight-plus hours a day and breaks. And it doesn't correspond with the information brought to me by the workers.

Q So I just wanted to go by what you just said about the breaks. I'm looking at page number 207, and the summary or the document for Javier Hernandez in the left. Is Mr. Hernandez one of the H-2B employees for whom back wages were calculated?

A No.

Q Okay.

A I don't believe so.

Q Okay. Okay, then we'll look at Mr. Mendez on the same page, kind of the last one on the bottom right. Mr. Antonio Mendez, is he an H-2B worker for whom back wages were calculated?

A Yes, I believe so.

Q Okay. So looking at the information for Friday, April 19th, 2013. And this document says that Mr. Mendez started work at 10 a.m., worked until 11 p.m., but looks like he was only compensated for four and a half hours that day. Do you see that?

A Yes.

Q And we've got eight point five of breaks. I don't know if that's eight and a half numbers of breaks, or if that's eight and a half hours of breaks. Do you know? Do you know why that is?

A No.

Q Did you speak with Mr. Mendez?

A Yes.

Q Did he ever tell you that he had a significant amount of breaks during an average day of working?

A No.

Q And go back to Exhibit I, please. We just talked about the HW times WW, the hours worked times work week of 40, and the Total Due for Employee is the last column. And this was -- and tell me how you came up with the total due per employee.

A It adds up on the weekly total due column, come up with a total.

Q So the total due then, is a product of the total due, so 293.60 times -- by 11 work weeks give us a total of 3.229.60?

A That's correct.

Q And that's done for each employee for whom you determined back wages?

A Yes.

Q The period of investigation here from the beginning of February, you testified that you used the date that employees came in. Why did you want -- why did Wage Hour's investigation only go through April 20th? Or, the work began April 20th?

A Right. Typically when we conduct an investigation, the period of investigation is a look back on the date we go on site or conduct the initial conference two years. So that's why we did it that way.

This one, we just limited to the period of validity of the TEC. So it's typically less than two years. But it did stop on the date of the site visit.

Q But this Employer actually employed all of these employees through the end of the year. Right, or close to the end of the year?

A The TEC certifies them for a period much longer than my period of investigation.

Q And I'm looking at the TEC in Exhibit C, and the dates for which the Employer requested H-2B employees goes from February 1st, 2013 to October 31st, 2013?

A Yes.

Q Could Wage Hour then have calculated back wages for all these employees through the end of the year?

A Yes.

Q Why didn't you?

A It was a management decision to limit the investigation to that particular period.

Q When you were -- when you were a Wage Hour -- you were a Wage Hour investigator for this investigation, and you were not part of management when this investigation -- when you concluded your investigation. Correct?

A Correct.

Q When did you become an ADD?

A The summer of 2015.

Q Okay. So we just went through the remedies of back wages with Exhibit I. Were there any other remedies that you either determined or recommended as a result of your determination that there were violations of the H-2B program?

A Yes, I recommended a CMP.

Q And what is the process for recommending CMP's?

A I look at the violation. I, in discussion with management, determine whether or not we're going to cite a violation. And then, I include it as a recommendation to my manager as an investigator.

Q I'm going to call your attention to the Employer's Exhibit Number 19, please, and the page number, Exhibit 19, page five. Do you see? Is that a summary of violations and remedy?

A Yes.

Q And what's the -- what's the back wages assessed in the document that you've got? We -- we were changing this document based on Court rulings. So I just want to make sure you've got the right one.

A It says 26,935.40.

Q Okay. And that's the total amount of back wages that you calculated to these nine employees. Correct?

A No -- wait, yes. Sorry. Yes, it is.

Q That's okay. Thank you. And is this, the document that we're looking at, the summary of violations that you used to determine that CMP's be recommended?

A I don't understand the question.

Q Okay. I'm wondering whether there's another document that you used to -- to reflect your recommendation that CMP's be assessed, or whether it's this document that we're looking at.

A This is the notification to the Employer that the manager is assessing a CMP. As an investigator, I didn't give this to the Employer. I wouldn't have given this to the Employer.

Q As a Wage Hour investigator?

A Correct.

Q Okay. You would have if you were management?

A Right.

Q Okay. Okay. Did you recommend a CMP of $10,000.00?

A I did.

Q Why did you recommend a CMP of $10,000.00?

A Based on the violation.

Q What was it about the violation that -- that warranted a $10,000.00 CMP?

A Well, it was a clear violation of one of the attestations, and the CMP is $10,000.00.

Q Okay. And actually, I don't think we only talked about the specific attestation that you determined that this Employer violated. Calling your attention to Exhibit C, which is the TEC --

A Yes.

Q Okay. We were talking about the attestations at C-8 and C-9, pages 15 and 16. Okay. Which attestation did you determine that this Employer violated?

A Thirteen.

Q Okay, 13 is on page 16. Correct?

A Yes.

Q Okay. And can you read what attestation 13 says?

A The base of temporary need, the reasons for temporary need, and number of worker positions being requested for certification have been truly and accurately stated on the application.

Q What part of that attestation did this Employer violate?

A The worker positions being not the number of workers, but the reasons for temporary need doesn't include semi-truck drivers, supervisors, added shop workers.

Q I see. So the reason itself was -- did not correspond with what you -- your findings during your investigation?

A Correct.

Q Okay. Anything else in terms of the attestations?

A Well, it's not accurately stated on the application that they needed the recreation and amusement attendants, that number, because they didn't put them all in it.

Q I see. So they requested 246 recreation amusement attendants. But they didn't actually employ 246 recreation amusement attendants, because some employees were employed in different jobs?

A That's correct.

Q I see. Okay, did I get that right?

A Yes.

Q Okay. Anything else with regard to attestation 13 and this Employer's violation of it?

A I don't think so.

Q Okay. Did you formally advise the Respondents of your findings?

A Yes.

Q And what was the vehicle that you used for that advice?

A I had a phone conference with Mr. Pierce discussing the findings when I submitted my file to my -- before I submitted my file to my manager discussing that I found this classification, and that there were back wages, too.

Q And calling your attention to the Respondent's Exhibit 19 --

A Yes.

Q -- are you there?

A Yes.

Q Do you recognize that document?

A Yes.

Q And what is that document?

A This is the determination letter.

Q Is this the Wage and Hour Division's formal notification to the Employer of the violations found, and the remedies to cure those violations?

A Yes. And this discusses not only back wages, but the CMP's.

Q I think we only have one copy of this document in this case. But I'm aware that this is actually the second determination letter that was issued to this Respondent. Is that your understanding, as well?

A Yes.

Q Why is that? I mean, there was a first one that was issued prior to February 6th. Is that correct?

A Yes. It was close in time before February 6th. And it was sent to the address that we had on file for Butler Amusements, and it was returned to our office.

Q So what did you do in your office to issue this one?

A We rescinded the letter, and sent this one.

Q Was there any reason for the rescission, other than the fact that the address to the Employer was wrong?

A No.

Q That was the only reason?

A That was the only reason.

Q And that was about a week or two before the February 6th date?

A About a week, I believe, yes.

Q Okay. When you interviewed employees in this case, did any of them express reservations to you about talking to you or talking to Wage Hour?

A No, not particularly.

Q Did anyone seem particularly nervous?

A No.

Q Did you have any reason to doubt the reliability of the information that the employees were providing to you during the interviews?

A No.

Q Did any of your colleagues indicate that they had reservations about crediting the information that they were receiving from employee witnesses during the interviews?

A No.

Q Did you have any reason to suspect that any -- any person that you spoke to during the interviews in this case wasn't telling you the truth?

A No.

Q Did your colleagues ever let you know that they had reservations, that they had concerns that anyone that they interviewed or talked to during the investigation of this case wasn't telling them the truth?

A No.

MS. GORMAN: Thank you, Ms. Aguilar. I have nothing further.

JUDGE CLARK: Thank you. Mr. Pierce, you're going to have Cross-Examination. Correct?

MR. PIERCE: Yes.

JUDGE CLARK: Let's go ahead and take a 10-minute break. We'll start back at 11. You can step down.

THE WITNESS: Thank you.

JUDGE CLARK: We'll be off the record.

(Off the record.)

JUDGE CLARK: We are back on the record. All parties are present. Ms. Aguilar has retaken the stand. Cross-Examination, Mr. Pierce.

MR. PIERCE: Your Honor, may I ask for a clarification on one point before I begin?

JUDGE CLARK: Yes.

MR. PIERCE: The order that you issued -- one of the orders that you issued at the end of last week had a statement in it about examination would be structured so that each witness isn't on the stand more than once.

The question that I wanted to ask is if the next witness comes, and Ms. Aguilar has information that contradicts what the second witness said --

JUDGE CLARK: Okay.

MR. PIERCE: -- am I allowed to call her as part of my case?

JUDGE CLARK: If there is a reason that we reach that you think you need to call somebody a second time, we will certainly address that.

So if there is some rebuttal or something that you think is different and you need an explanation, we can certainly talk about that.

But the idea here is that if you have an examination, questions you want to ask of Ms. Aguilar, you should ask them the entire time that she's here, so that we're not doing their case, taking her off the stand, then put her on for your case.

MR. PIERCE: Yes, I like the fact that you have that rule. Many judges have that rule. I just wanted to know how it works in the real world.

JUDGE CLARK: Okay. Usually all the questions are asked. But if something comes up in another witness' testimony that contradicts, or needs some explanation, I would entertain the idea of putting her back on the stand for you to ask her questions.

MR. PIERCE: I understand.

JUDGE CLARK: Okay. And you may proceed.

MR. PIERCE: Thank you. Good morning, Ms. Aguilar. About two weeks ago, I took your deposition by telephone.

CROSS-EXAMINATION

BY MR. PIERCE:

Q Do you recall that?

A I do.

Q And at that time, you were held out as the Administrator's representative. You remember that?

A Yes.

Q And as the Administrator's agency representative, it was your job to gather the information that the agency had on all the issues that were presented at that time. Correct?

A Yes.

Q And it was your job to use reasonable diligence to go out and actually gather that information, so that I would be able to have the benefit of the entire agency's knowledge on the topics that you were interrogated on. Correct?

A Yes.

Q It's true, is it not, that you are not an expert in the H-2B program? Correct?

MS. GORMAN: I do object because I think it calls for a legal conclusion. I don't know.

JUDGE CLARK: I'm going to overrule the objection. You can answer that question.

THE WITNESS: I've conducted several investigations under H-2B, and I have supervised and reviewed several H-2B investigations.

MR. PIERCE: Okay.

BY MR. PIERCE:

Q Well, I asked you that same question a couple weeks ago, if you were an expert in the H-2B program. Your answer at that time was you were not. Correct?

A Yes.

Q It's also true, is it not, that you are not an expert in how job coding is performed by your sister agency, the Office of Foreign Labor Certification? Correct?

MS. GORMAN: I'm going to object to the characterization of sister agency.

JUDGE CLARK: Rephrase your question, Mr. Pierce. Just ask the question.

BY MR. PIERCE:

Q You're aware of who the Office of Foreign Labor Certification is within the Employment and Training Administration?

A Yes.

Q They are the sub agency that is charged with actually performing job code analysis and issuing prevailing wage determinations. Correct?

A Yes.

Q You are not an expert in how the OFLC issues job coding or prevailing wage determinations. Correct?

A Correct.

Q And the case that we're here for today is solely based on a purported violation of the 2008 Department of Labor regulations. Correct?

A Correct.

Q We're not here for violations of program security regulations. Correct?

A Correct.

Q We're not here for violations of sub-regulatory guidance documents. Correct?

MS. GORMAN: Objection. Vague. I don't know what he's talking about.

JUDGE CLARK: Mr. Pierce, rephrase your question. But also, she has admitted that we are only here for the 2008 reg's. So why are you going through all these other questions?

MR. PIERCE: Because they are instrumental. There are no regulations in point. All the guidance documents are the only ones that are relevant in this case.

And I am trying to establish that we didn't violate those in her eyes.

JUDGE CLARK: Okay. Ask your question again.

BY MR. PIERCE:

Q It is also true that we're here not based on any violations of sub-regulatory guidance documents. Correct?

A Yes.

Q Okay. Let's get the time line down. The 9142 application was actually signed by the Employer on November 7th of 2012. Correct?

You see a copy of that as my Exhibit Number 7, and you see the cover letter on page one, and internally on pages 20 and 21, this document was signed and submitted on November the 7th of 2012. Correct?

A Yes.

Q And it was ultimately approved with the labor certification on December 14th of 2012. That is marked as my Exhibit Number 8.

A Okay.

Q And that allowed Butler Amusements to then proceed to USCIS. And you see as Exhibit 10 that they proceeded to USCIS on December the 17th. Correct?

A Yes.

Q And that resulted in approval, marked as Exhibit 11, as of January the 4th of 2013?

A What exhibit are we on?

Q Eleven, upper left corner, the Notice of Action from USCIS indicates January the 4th approval?

A Fourth, yes. Yes, sir.

Q And under the regulations that we're here for, the 2008 regulations, actually attached and applied, once the Butler Amusements was approved by the Department of Labor, Correct?

A Yes.

Q And in the case of these workers, they were processed through the Monterey Consulate in almost all cases on January the 30th of 2013. You see some of that as Exhibit 24?

A Yes.

Q So if you look on Exhibit 24, the first page, line number 19 is one of the individuals involved here, Saul Estadillo Herrera, indicating that he had an appointment with Monterey Consulate on January the 30th?

A Yes.

Q And that these individuals, by and large, started working for the Butler company on February the 2nd, but possibly earlier, of 2013. Correct?

MS. GORMAN: Objection. Calls for speculation. Outside this witness' knowledge.

JUDGE CLARK: Can you answer that question?

THE WITNESS: I don't know if they worked before the period of employment from the TEC.

JUDGE CLARK: Overruled. The answer will stand.

MR. PIERCE: I don't think that's what my question was, though.

BY MR. PIERCE:

Q You agree that they had started working at least by February the 2nd of 2013. Correct?

A Yes.

Q It could have been earlier. But they were definitely working by February the 2nd.

MS. GORMAN: I'm going to object because it mischaracterizes this witness' prior testimony. She testified that some employees, that at least one employee wasn't in the country by that date, which is why she adjusted the start date for her computations.

JUDGE CLARK: I think it's overruled. You can ask your next question. Can you answer that question? Ask it again, Mr. Pierce, I'm sorry.

BY MR. PIERCE:

Q You will agree that the workers had started working no later than February 2nd, and they possibly could have started before February the 2nd of 2013?

A I don't think they could start before the date of intended need on the TEC, which was February 2nd.

Q Okay.

A February 1st, sorry.

Q I'm merely restating your deposition testimony from a couple weeks ago, where you did indicate that on pages 42, 43 and 48 of your deposition.

Do you agree that they could have started working earlier than February 2nd?

A I suppose that's possible.

Q And your letter indicated that you were initiating the investigation as of March 22nd of 2013. Do you recall seeing that earlier?

A The appointment letter?

Q Yeah, the one asking for documents.

A Yes.

Q And when you originally had the final conference, you and I chatted by telephone. You provided me with your original back wage calculation. That is marked as my Exhibit 14. Correct?

A This is a summary of unpaid wages. It's not the computations.

Q Okay. But the computations that are reflected here, the amounts don't match the amounts that you have testified to today. Correct?

A That's correct.

Q And the reason is because, according to what you've said previously, that you based all of these wages on the assumption that the only relevant wage was Santa Barbara, California, which is where they happened to have been working when you interviewed them. Correct?

A These computations are based off the H-2B rate for Santa Barbara as part of my reconstruction, yes.

Q And that was a mistake. You should not have based it only on Santa Barbara. Correct?

A It would be more accurate to use the average of the locality pays for the different areas on the itinerary. And that's why we revised it.

Q Well, it goes beyond being more accurate. There's actually a special procedure that says entertainers, like a carnival operation, are allowed to vary their wages based on the individual location. Correct?

A I don't know about that special procedure.

Q You're not familiar with it?

A No.

Q And based on that initial interaction, I sent you an e-mail the following month. That's marked as Exhibit 15, in which I raised a variety of issues with your calculations.

Correct?

A Yes.

Q And one of the issues that you and I talked about, do you remember, was whether or not you were using 2014 wage data, instead of the 2013 wages. Do you remember that?

A Not specifically.

Q That doesn't stick out in your mind?

A No.

Q Okay. Go to Exhibit 16.

JUDGE CLARK: One six?

MR. PIERCE: Sixteen, yes.

BY MR. PIERCE:

Q This was your revised wage calculation a couple months after the original calculation. Correct?

A Yes.

Q And these numbers also don't match the testimony that you gave today, do they?

A That's correct.

Q And it's now gone from 10 down to nine workers. Correct?

A Yes.

Q And you see in the cover letter, the first page of Exhibit 16, where you are flagging to the wage data available?

A Yes.

Q That's because I had raised whether or not you were using the 2014, versus the 2013 wages. Do you recall that?

A I don't recall that. But I see that this is the FLC data center website.

Q Okay. What is the reason why the wages, as calculated in Exhibit 16, are wrong, according to your testimony today?

A These were not computed using the average wages considering the different localities.

Q What were they computed based upon?

A The locality pay for Santa Barbara.

Q You repeated it?

A Yes. I don't recall exactly, but I know that this is not based off -- this, Exhibit 16 is not based off of the average.

Q Okay. When you say you don't recall exactly, do you know the basis for -- on which you calculated the numbers reflected in Exhibit 16?

A I believe it's based off of the locality pay for the Santa Barbara area.

Q So you repeated the same mistake that you had made in the original calculation.

MS. GORMAN: Objection. Mischaracterization, and asked and answered.

THE WITNESS: I repeated the same methodology.

JUDGE CLARK: Hang on a second. I'm going to overrule the objection, and allow you to ask the question. But you did -- you are sort of going over the same question, Mr. Pierce. But go ahead and answer the question.

THE WITNESS: I repeated the same methodology.

MR. PIERCE: Okay. But that's really not the case.

BY MR. PIERCE:

Q Look at Exhibit 14. And compare it now to 16. The amount that you have for, I believe every single one of these workers is different. Correct?

MS. GORMAN: I don't think you mean 16.

JUDGE CLARK: So go ahead. Do you understand the question?

THE WITNESS: The amounts are different.

MR. PIERCE: Right. So you could not have used the same methodology.

BY MR. PIERCE:

Q Could you?

A The same prevailing wage rate for the Santa Barbara area, I believe. I know that I didn't include the different localities until recently.

Q All right. Then why do the numbers vary in the space of a couple months?

A I don't remember.

Q Okay. And once you sent me the e-mail marked as Exhibit 16, there was no further communication between you and your office, and myself or the Butler organization for the next four years. Correct?

A Can I go back?

It looks like the difference -- a difference, just looking at these and comparing the documents --

JUDGE CLARK: I'm sorry, let's go ahead and answer his question first.

THE WITNESS: Okay.

JUDGE CLARK: And then if you need to clarify something, then we can step back. So answer his question first.

THE WITNESS: Repeat your question, please.

BY MR. PIERCE:

Q The question was from the time you sent Exhibit 16 in February of 2014 until you sent the determination letter in February of last year, during those four years, there was no communication between you and your office and the Butler organization. Correct?

A Yes.

Q There was no warning that the case was still alive or anything like that. Correct?

A Correct.

JUDGE CLARK: So Mr. Pierce, she has indicated she might need to correct her answer regarding the numbers on Exhibit 16. Did you want to go back? Or, do you want Ms. Gorman to pick that up?

MR. PIERCE: I don't have any reason to go back.

BY MR. PIERCE:

Q And it is also true, is it not, Ms. Aguilar, that you don't even have an explanation for why it took four years before we heard back from you, do you?

A No.

Q You agree with me?

A I don't have an explanation.

Q And when you issued the determination letter that is marked as Exhibit 19, it rescinded the prior letter. Correct?

A Yes.

Q And by rescinding it, the prior letter, it effectively didn't exist anymore. Correct?

A Yes.

Q And then since that time, looking now at Exhibit 19, actually, once the determination letter was filed, that number of just short of 25,000 in back wages continued to be your calculation for the next 14 months. Correct?

A Yes.

Q And it wasn't until about a month ago that you decided to change your calculation. Why?

A To include the different locality pays.

Q And why did you decide that that was now necessary, and it hadn't been necessary for the prior six and a half years?

A To make it more of an accurate reflection of the wages.

Q Because you recognized that it was important to actually determine the wages where the fellows worked. Correct?

A Again, it would be a more accurate reflection of what was likely due at the time.

Q And when you say you used the first page, look at Exhibit 7, page 15.

JUDGE CLARK: That's page 1274. Correct?

MR. PIERCE: Yes.

THE WITNESS: Yes.

MR. PIERCE: Just for Your Honor's benefit, I believe in all instances, my exhibits have individual exhibit numbers, like page 15.

The larger Bates number is the number in which they were produced to opposing counsel.

JUDGE CLARK: Oh, I see. Okay, thank you. It's not consecutive numbering, got it. So we're going off the exhibit number and the page number. Thank you.

MR. PIERCE: Yes, all my references will be to that. All right.

BY MR. PIERCE:

Q So page 15 is the page that you worked off of in order to come up with the average you're talking about. Correct?

A Yes.

Q There happens to be 35 locations on there. How many of those did those gentlemen actually work at?

A I don't know.

Q Well, it was available to you, wasn't it?

A I don't know.

Q You were shown the Administrator's Exhibit E?

A Yes.

Q And there are three pages to that. And this exhibit actually has the nine gentlemen that are involved in this case. Correct?

A Yes.

Q And across the top of each page, it actually says where they worked. It says Butler Amusements, Butch's Unit. Do you see that?

A Yes.

Q Do you know what Butch's Unit means?

A Yes.

Q You are aware that the Butler Amusements operation splits into multiple units because they don't always have huge spots where the entire carnival can come and work at one place?

A Correct.

Q So they break apart into littler units to be able to pick up smaller spots. Correct?

A Yes.

Q And all these gentlemen actually worked for Butch's Unit. Correct?

A Okay.

Q You agree with me?

A I don't know if they worked for that unit the entire time. I didn't see their names on this document. It's my understanding that employees went with the rides. So I don't know that. Maybe they moved around as classified workers, as well.

Q Well, they moved the rides because the show would end. They would operate for a week or two weeks. That one would end. Then it would move to the next one. Right?

A I meant the rides between the units.

Q Well here, your exhibit indicates that the nine gentlemen that we're talking about today worked for Butch's Unit. And if you would now look at Exhibit 27?

So this exhibit, are you aware, actually says the locations where each of the three units within the Butler operation worked during the 2013 season?

A Okay.

Q And Butch's Unit represents the two columns that we see right down the middle of Exhibit 27. Right?

A That's what it says.

Q And then, flipping, if you would, to Exhibit 28, this is a summary of where the various parts of Butch's Unit operated during the 11 weeks that are germane to this case. Do you see that?

A Yes.

MR. PIERCE: And they are cross correlated. Your Honor, the Bates numbers down the right hand margin are the original production. Those are not trial exhibit numbers.

JUDGE CLARK: Okay.

MR. PIERCE: But they are all found in Exhibit 26 as part of the payroll.

JUDGE CLARK: Thank you.

BY MR. PIERCE:

Q And those locations for Butch's Unit actually correspond to four areas of intended employment. Correct?

A Looking at it, yes, I can -- yeah.

Q You see Riverside County?

A Correct.

Q They start off in Riverside County. Then about a third of the way down, they jump to Maricopa County, Arizona. Then there's a little bit of a jaunt into Yuma County, Arizona. And then the remainder is spent in the Santa Barbara County area. Correct?

A Yes, that's what it shows.

Q And then those four intended areas of employment drive the wage rates because it's down at the county level where the area of intended employment is determined that allows you to get these alternative wage rates. Correct?

A Correct.

Q So you actually did an average of 35 locations where these gentlemen only worked eight of them. And in fact, you only needed to look at four areas of employment, not 35, in order to figure out where -- what wage rates they were talking about. Correct?

A Yes.

Q Okay. In this case, Ms. Aguilar, you agree that Butler Amusements has established that it is exempt under the 13(a)(3) under the Fair Labor Standards Act. Correct?

A Yes, that's correct.

Q There is no dispute about that?

A No.

Q Within the labor certification that was approved by ETA, there are multiple references to the fact that the Butler operation follows prevailing practice in the industry. Do you remember seeing that language?

A Yes.

Q And then it goes on to reference things such as a weekly salary, housing and transportation. It is true, is it not, that you personally have no idea what that means?

A I don't know what prevailing practice means. Is that your question?

Q Yes.

A Yes.

Q And it's more specific. You don't have any idea what the prevailing practice is in the carnival or mobile amusement industry. Correct?

A Yes.

Q And because you don't know what the industry practice is, you have no idea if Butler actually complied with what they said they were going to do?

A Correct.

Q All right. Let's talk about credits for a moment. You are aware that a credit is an amount that an Employer can use in order to offset legal obligations. Do you agree with that?

A That's true sometimes, yes.

Q And in this case, it's true, is it not, that under the 2008 regulations, they don't actually say what might apply when someone is exempt from the Fair Labor Standards Act, such as the Butler operation, do they?

A There is no language to that effect in the 2002 reg's.

Q And therefore, they are not bound by exclusions or rules that apply in FLSA cases. Correct?

A I don't understand the question.

Q Well, you're aware of something called the primary benefit rule that's found in 29 CFR Section 531?

A Yes.

Q And that's a Fair Labor Standards Act concept. Correct?

A Yes.

Q That is something that the Butler operation is exempt from, and doesn't have bearing on the credits that they might claim in this case. Correct?

A I suppose.

Q Okay. And certainly there is nothing in the 2008 regulations to suggest that concepts like the primary benefit rule at Section 531 applies to the Butler operation. Correct?

A Correct.

Q And if it turns out that Judge Clark finds that the credits exceeded the amount of back wages that you have calculated, under those circumstances, you agree that no back wages would be due. Correct?

A Well, if the judge ordered that they were offset by the credit, then it would be based on his decision.

Q All right. We have also established in your prior deposition you have never heard of something called a prepayment plan?

A That's correct.

Q You didn't take the time to go back and refresh with the Field Operations Handbook, did you?

A I didn't.

Q Okay. But the Field Operations Handbook is something that you use with some frequency as guidance as you go about performing your obligations. Correct?

A It's part of the guidance we use when we conduct our investigations, yes.

Q You also, from time-to-time, have to make -- use, and find authoritative, Wage and Hour Division opinion letters that have been issued over the years. Correct?

A We use opinion letters, as well, as part of our investigations to determine compliance.

Q And even under those circumstances, the concept of a prepayment plan, where someone pays in advance, but then uses that credit later, if hours go up, is something that you're not familiar with. Correct?

A That's correct.

Q Are you aware that there have been many, many other audits conducted by your peers of other carnival operations that have in fact, approved the use of prepayment plans?

A I'm not aware of that.

Q In the case of housing, you're aware that the Butler operation provided mobile bunk houses in which the fellows had a place to live. Correct?

A Yes.

Q And that has a value. Correct?

A I suppose.

Q Normally, you and I and anyone else is going to have a housing cost. Right?

A I didn't have to pay for my hotel room last night because my Employer sent me here to testify.

Q Okay. But you would agree with me that normally, even an H-2B employee is going to have a housing cost. That's just a fact of life. Yes?

A Normally, H-2B employees have a housing cost, so yes.

Q And the fact that the Butler operation was paying for that housing cost bestowed a benefit on those workers. Correct?

A I believe that the Employer benefitted by having the employees with them on site at every carnival. And so the Employer benefitted by housing them.

Q Well, that's a restatement of the primary benefit rule that you already acknowledged doesn't apply here?

A That's our position on this case.

Q That's the rule that you already acknowledged doesn't apply here. Correct?

A No. I stated that it is to the benefit of the Employer, not the employee, that they have their itinerate work force sleeping on site and available for work when they need them.

Q Okay. That is a concept that comes out of the primary benefit rule. Correct?

A Yes.

Q Something that you have already agreed doesn't apply to the Butler operation. Correct?

A I don't know.

Q The rules changed in 2015. But in the year that we're talking about in 2013, mobile Employers were allowed to take a credit for providing of housing. Correct?

A I'm sorry. You asked me -- can you restate the question?

Q In 2013, the year that we're here for, mobile Employers were allowed to take a credit for providing of housing?

A I don't know the answer to that.

Q But certainly you're not aware of anything in the 2008 regulations that prohibited that. Correct?

A I don't know the answer to that.

Q All right. Let's look at the Administrator's Exhibit H. You there?

A Yes.

Q You recall that when you did your on site, you actually went to some individuals in the office. And they actually provided you some working documents of how they processed payroll. Correct?

A I remember vaguely, yes.

Q And it included samples like what you see in Exhibit H. Correct?

A Yes.

Q And you got them directly from the Employer because everything I gave to you had a Bates stamp number across the bottom of it. And these, in Exhibit H, do not.

A Okay. Yes.

Q And you are aware that these are actually time records, aren't they?

A These are what I was provided when I asked for time records, yes.

Q And in fact, now that we've agreed that the Butler operation is not bound by record keeping under the Fair Labor Standards Act, you would also agree that there's no time keeping responsibilities placed on an Employer who is exempt from the Fair Labor Standards Act in 2013. Correct?

A Under the FLSA, they're not required to keep time records, that is correct.

Q And the 2008 regulations don't say anything at all about keeping time records, do they?

A I don't -- I don't believe so.

Q So Butler has taken on a responsibility, which is to generate time records, as reflected in Exhibit H, that they weren't even obligated to do in the eyes of the pertinent federal requirements. Correct?

A They're not required to keep time records under the FLSA. That's correct.

Q Or, under the 2008 regulations?

A Correct.

Q And they even went to the effort of typing it up. And you have a problem that they typed up the answers, rather than handwriting them in?

A I testified that I don't believe these are credible time records.

Q And one of your reasons was because you said they typed it?

A Yes.

Q You think that makes this less legible?

A No.

Q You think the fact that these are now fully documented and countersigned by the responsible or relevant employee makes them not credible?

A Please repeat your question.

Q Okay. You see the signatures that each one of these slips has?

A Yes.

Q Those are the employees to whom that money is going to be paid, isn't it?

A I believe so.

Q Okay. And the protocol within the Butler operation was you sign this, you get paid in cash, and you are also verifying the reported hours as reflected on that slip. Right?

MS. GORMAN: Objection. Calls for speculation. She can't testify to what their prevailing practices are.

JUDGE CLARK: Overruled. You can answer the question. She can answer the question, if you know.

THE WITNESS: What was the question? Sorry.

BY MR. PIERCE:

Q These gentlemen are counter signing that not only are they being paid the correct amount, but that they are verifying how many hours they worked?

A I don't know what was in their minds when they signed the papers.

Q Then why did you ignore this evidence?

MS. GORMAN: Objection. That mischaracterizes what she said.

JUDGE CLARK: Sustained. Rephrase your question.

BY MR. PIERCE:

Q You have about maybe 1,500 pages with thousands of counter signed slips in them verifying by the relevant employee how many hours they worked. Why did you ignore all that evidence?

MS. GORMAN: Same objection.

JUDGE CLARK: It's a little argumentative. Rephrase your question, Mr. Pierce. Ask her a different question.

BY MR. PIERCE:

Q What weight did you give in your calculations? Let's look at Antonio Mendez on the first page of Exhibit H. Antonio Mendez counter signed that he worked 34 hours that week, not the 40 that you claim. Why did you disregard what the man signed off on?

A I don't know that he signed off on acknowledging 34 hours. I can see a little piece of paper with a signature. I understand from the interviews that employees had to sign something to get their pay, their cash. So I don't know what he was acknowledging or not acknowledging when he signed it.

Q Well, why didn't you ask? You were there. You were talking to the responsible people. Why didn't you ask them?

A There's a lot of questions that I probably should have asked that I didn't.

Q Why didn't you ask me? You could've sent me a letter, and I would've responded to you, as I did on multiple occasions. Correct?

A You responded to my e-mails, yes.

Q Okay. So you could've asked the individuals on site. You could have asked me as their contact. You're in town there in Portland where their headquarters are. You could have asked, if you wanted to know this. Correct?

A I would need to ask the individual workers what it was. If I wanted to know the answer to the question you're posing, if the employees were really acknowledging that they actually worked the hours that are listed here, I would have to ask the employees. I didn't do that.

Q Okay. Nor did you make the request that you be allowed to have a supplemental interview to establish that. Correct?

A Correct.

Q And you see here that page 210 within Exhibit H actually has a dollar figure at the top. Well, sometimes they're cut off. You see the dollar figure for the cash?

A Yes.

Q Your understanding is that they were actually being paid the full amount as reflected, and that no income taxes were withheld. Correct?

A I believe they were paid the amount that is reflected here. I have no idea about income taxes.

Q Are you aware that Butler was paying the income taxes for the guys?

A No.

Q Is there anything wrong with an Employer taking a credit for having paid someone else's obligation to pay income taxes?

A I would have to look into that. I've never come across that before.

Q All right. You are aware that in order for an H-2B worker to work in this country, they have to get in and out of the country, and that that costs money. Correct?

A Yes.

Q And so as to this relocation travel, in-and-out of country travel, you are aware that the 2008 regulations do not prohibit an FLSA-exempt Employer like Butler, recovering through credit the payment of relocation travel?

A I don't know that that's discussed in the reg's. What's your question?

Q Okay. Well, it actually is addressed. But you don't know if it's addressed?

A Correct.

Q So whatever the reg's say is what they say. But you don't know if it's prohibited. Correct?

A Correct.

Q And in the case of relocation travel -- and you went into this a little bit on your Direct Examination. Sometimes when you don't have all the information, it's a reasonable thing to make reasonable conclusions.

A Yes.

Q So for example, one of our documents is a collection of relocation travel documents for outbound, going back to Mexico.

It would be a reasonable conclusion to say that inbound travel would be roughly the same cost as it would be to go outbound. Correct?

A Possibly.

Q Well in fact, you said that was a reasonable conclusion to make in your deposition on page 67. Remember that?

A Okay.

Q And it is also a reasonable conclusion to make that for the 187 or 246 or whatever the number is, to take the total amount, $25,000.00, let's say, divide it by the number of workers in order to be able to get the per worker relocation travel cost. That's a reasonable thing to do?

A Yes.

Q You are also aware of something called local convenience travel?

A Yes.

Q The guys talked in their witness statements about going to Wal-Mart, going to the laundry mat, going to get food, whatever. In order to make that happen, they need wheels. Right?

A Yes.

Q And the Butler operation made that kind of convenience travel available to their workers. Correct?

A Yes.

Q That's another benefit being bestowed on them. They can come and go, you know, all those things considered, to be able to use the company equipment, to be able to go do things of a personal errand nature. Yes?

A Yes.

Q All right. In this particular case, Ms. Aguilar, let's shift to the violations. You agree that a misrepresentation is a violation that occurs when a fact is misrepresented in the application itself. Correct?

A Yes.

Q And that is something that occurs at the time that the application is submitted. Correct?

A Yes.

Q And in this case, you have not charged that there was a misrepresentation of fact at the time that any document was submitted to the government by Butler. Correct?

A Yes.

Q In fact, the only allegation that is made in this case is for a substantial failure. Correct?

A Yes.

Q A substantial failure occurs later in time when the Employer does not actually perform the terms and conditions that they had agreed to up front during the course of the season. Correct?

A Yes.

Q And in this instance, you have charged for only one count, and that count is that individuals, nine of them, were working outside of their occupation for which they had not been approved. Correct?

A They were working outside of the classification that was listed on the signed and approved TEC.

Q I think we're saying the same thing. And that type of violation means you're not accusing the Butler operation of misstating something in the petition or the application. Correct?

A The violation that was cited was that they substantially failed to comply with the promises that they signed off on in the TEC, which is that that employee was a recreation and amusement attendant.

Q So that, for example, you are not proceeding on the basis that they chose the wrong job code. Correct? They just didn't work within their job code. But you're not saying there was something wrong when they chose that job code.

A Well, I understand that they employed the vast majority of the H-2B workers in that job code. And there were these exceptions that were working outside of it.

Q In order to be able to make the violation that you cited, there needs to be a statutory or regulatory duty that the Butler operation has violated. Correct?

A Yes.

Q And in fact, job occupation is nowhere to be found in the 2008 regulations, is it?

A That's correct.

Q And the determination letter also has a reference to the I-129. You have indicated there was no violation of the 2008 DHS regulations. Correct?

A The violations are referenced on the determination letter, including the regulatory citations.

Q And there are no citations in the determination letter for having violated USCIS regulations. Correct?

A I don't believe so.

Q And in fact, the 2008 regulations do not require that an Employer in 2013 work H-2B workers only in the job code that was requested. Correct?

A The Employer has signed the attestations on the TEC that everything on there is true and accurate. And that TEC contains one occupation, not four.

So the fact that they did not comply with what they attested to by employing workers outside of the single occupation on the TEC resulted in the violation.

Q Okay. Stick with my question.

A Okay.

Q The 2008 regulations do not require that H-2B workers act only within the job code that was requested. Correct?

A I don't know. I would have to look at the regulations.

Q You don't know?

A Correct.

Q That's why we're here. Right? A violation of the 2008 regulations supposedly says we can't do that. I have asked you is there such a regulation. And you are not sure.

A The regulation is the one that is listed on the determination letter.

Q Okay. And you are aware that at your deposition, pages 81 through 82, 87 and 102, couple weeks ago, you told me that there was no 2008 regulation that limited the Employer to the job code that they had requested. Do you remember that?

A Not specifically.

Q Do you doubt that that's the case?

A I believe you.

Q And if we now look at Exhibit 96, I'm going to try and do this concurrently, 96 and 101.

A Okay.

Q We went over this before at your deposition. You recognize Exhibits 96 and 101 as information that the Division posted on its website as changes were proposed in the 2012 regulations -- those are in Exhibit 96 -- and the changes that were actually implemented in 2015. Those are found in Exhibit 101.

A Yes.

Q And in both of these, they're comparing the way it used to be under the 2008 regulations with what it would become under the 2012 rules, which were never implemented, or the 2015 rules that we still operate under today. Correct?

A Yes.

Q And in both instances, when they recount the state of the regulations on the question of must you operate within your job code, let's look first at Exhibit 96, page three.

Towards the bottom in the left hand column, it says certified occupation.

A Yes.

Q It says that in order to make a case for acting outside of your certified occupation, inaccurate statements in the application must be pursued as willful misrepresentations.

A That's incorrect.

Q Is that what it says?

A No, it says may be pursued.

Q May be, okay. And then the change, the new information in the right column is that Employers may not place H-2B workers in a job opportunity not certified in the application. Right?

A I see that.

Q And the same change occurred and was actually implemented in page five of the 2015 regulations word-for-word. Correct?

A What page are you looking at, please?

Q Page five, Exhibit 101.

A Yes.

Q So the change, what was new is that it now was a regulation that actually says what you're here for today, which is you must work within your job code. Correct?

A This is clarifying, and narrowing, and being more specific as to what was under the prior reg's.

Q Okay. And in fact, if you look at Exhibit 76, page 42 --

A Yes.

Q -- the change that was proposed in 2012, implemented in 2015 was, in the first column, in sub paragraph small letter (l) towards the bottom, where it says the Employer will not place any H-2B workers employed pursuant to this application outside the area of intended employment --

A Yes.

Q -- the words were inserted in 2012 and 2015 to read "or in a job opportunity not." Did you know that?

MS. GORMAN: I'm going to object for relevance, Your Honor. It is talking about the 2015 reg's. We are not here for that.

JUDGE CLARK: Overruled. I'm going to let him finish the examination. Go ahead, Mr. Pierce. Ask that question again.

BY MR. PIERCE:

Q Did you know that 2012 and 2015 actually inserted the language that the Employer may not place someone in a job opportunity not listed on the 9142 application. Did you know that?

A No.

Q And if I took the time to show you the Preamble language associated with that change, did you know that it was proposed because it didn't exist in the 2008 regulations?

A I didn't know that.

Q All right. And in fact, the 2008 regulations really don't say a thing about how to request or how to obtain a job code, do they?

A I don't believe so.

Q You agree with me?

A Yes.

Q And if we look now in the same exhibit, 76, page 38, this section, 655.10 in the 2008 regulations actually spells out how to go about getting a prevailing wage determination. Correct?

A I'm sorry. Where are you looking?

Q Exhibit 76, page 38, left hand column, Section 655.10 actually spells out how to go about getting a prevailing wage determination for the H-2B program.

A Okay.

Q And drop down almost to the bottom of the first column, sub paragraph two. You might miss it. The only thing that it actually says pertinent to why we're here today in that sub paragraph is if the job opportunity is not covered by a collective bargaining agreement, the prevailing wage for labor certification purposes shall be the arithmetic mean, except as provided in paragraph (b)(4), which is not relevant, of the wages of workers similarly employed at the skill level. Do you see that?

A Yes.

Q Do you know what those words mean, at the skill level?

A Not specific to this. I think it's talking about the H-2B prevailing wage rate.

Q Right. You are aware that in 1998, the Department of Labor split its H-2B wages into two levels, and in 2005, split them into four levels. Did you know that?

A No.

Q Did you know that in 2009, some guidance document was issued by the OFLC specifying how to determine a prevailing wage rate under the H-2B program?

A No.

Q Did you know that when Butler applied to OFLC for its prevailing wage determination, that the OFLC proceeded under the guidance document in that 2009 document?

A I didn't know that, no.

Q Did you know that Judge Jerome Davis in the Eastern District of Pennsylvania issued an injunction in March of 2013 prohibiting the Department of Labor from implementing those four words, at the skill level? Did you know that?

A No.

Q Did you know that the Department of Labor issued regulations on April 24th, 2013 indicating that they were on an emergency basis going to implement mid season supplemental prevailing wage determinations?

A No.

Q That was the same day that your investigation ended. Do you realize that?

A Okay.

Q And that regulation, on a go-forward basis, not retroactive to your investigative period before April 24th, actually implemented a requirement to apply the mean wage rate. Did you know that?

A No.

Q Did you know that the mean wage rate means that you take the four levels, the four skill levels that are referenced in the 2008 regulations, and average them to get the mean rate?

A No.

Q Did you know that for the last several months of the 2013 wages, when you commented in your Direct Examination and said H-2B, in parenthesis, mean, that's because the 2013 regulations adopted that after your investigation ended?

A No.

Q Did you know that for the case that we're here for today, you were supposed to determine the skill level for the various individuals in order to determine a prevailing wage rate?

A That I was supposed to? I'm sorry. Could you repeat the question?

Q Did you know that in order to be able to make a determination as to back wages in this case, you needed to be able to determine the skill level that the individuals were going to be paid at?

A No.

Q Did you know that when the Butler operation applied for its prevailing wage determination in 2013 for the 2013 season, if you look at Exhibit 5, page four --

A Okay.

Q -- you see towards the upper right where it says wage level, and it has level one, two, three and four --

A Yes.

Q -- they were provided with a prevailing wage determination for level one?

A Yes.

Q Do you know what it takes in order to be able to qualify for a level one?

A No.

Q Do you know that OFLC always determined, at that time span, if you were proceeding under the OES wage level, a skill level, which they were required to do by the 2008 regulations?

A I don't -- can you repeat the question?

Q Did you know that OFLC was required by the 2008 regulations to always make a skill level determination, one through four, as reflected in Exhibit 5?

A No, I did not know that.

Q It is also true, is it not, that the 2008 regulations say absolutely nothing about what an Employer must do to stay within their job code? Correct?

A Yes.

Q They say nothing about what a carnival operator must do in order to keep a recreation or amusement attendant in the job code. Correct?

A Correct.

Q It says nothing about what the amusement employer can't do to be able to keep them within the job code. Correct?

A Correct.

Q Now your citation, you told us in your deposition a couple weeks ago, was for failing to state the reasons for temporary need. Remember that?

A Yes.

Q And that is something that actually is found in the regulations, as you have cited. But in order to be able to make that case, you have to show that Butler falsely indicated something in its labor certification request. Correct?

A I don't know as I sit here.

Q Well, look at Exhibit 72, page 42.

MS. GORMAN: Exhibit 72 is withdrawn.

MR. PIERCE: I'm sorry. Did I say that? Seventy-six.

BY MR. PIERCE:

Q Seventy-six, page 42, you with me?

A Forty-two?

Q Forty-two.

A Yes.

Q Top of the middle column, sub letter N, that's the paragraph that you have cited based upon. Correct?

A I believe so.

Q And in order to be able to pursue an enforcement action against the Butler operation for misstating -- excuse me -- regarding the reasons for temporary need, the labor certification must have not truly and accurately stated something in the application itself.

It actually says where to go find that information. Correct?

A Repeat the question, please?

Q Okay. In order to be able to make the allegation that you have made, there must have been a misstatement in the application itself. Correct?

A Correct.

Q But that's not your case. That would make it a misrepresentation.

A So they stated that they were --

Q Answer my question first.

A Okay.

Q In order to be able to make the allegation in sub paragraph N, there must have been a misstatement in the application. Correct?

A Yes.

Q And that would make it a misrepresentation case. Correct?

A Not necessarily.

Q Is that not what it says? There must be a misstatement on the application?

A What it says. But that's not the question I'm hearing you ask.

Q In order to be able to find a misstatement in the application, that necessarily means that this is a misrepresentation. Correct?

A Not necessarily, no.

Q In order to be able to find a false statement, as sub paragraph N requires, regarding the reasons for temporary need, you would look to the statement of temporary need. Correct?

A Yes.

Q And that is the only place you would look to be able to find a misstatement in the reasons for temporary need?

A Yes.

Q And in fact, if we look at the statement of temporary need, Exhibit 7, page three, right at the bottom, there's a big box that says Temporary Need, See Addendum.

And if you now would flip to page 19, you see the statement of temporary need there. Correct?

A Yes.

Q And during your deposition, you had a chance to read through this. It is your testimony that there isn't a single statement contained in that statement of temporary need that was false. Correct?

A Yes.

Q It is also true that, if you look at Section 655.10, which has almost nothing to say about prevailing wage determinations, it is also true that it says nothing at all about how much detail to provide when you're requesting a job code. Correct?

A Okay. Yes.

Q And there is no regulatory requirement as to how many job tasks, for example, need to be provided. Correct?

A I don't know.

Q I mean we looked at it. There is really nothing in the regulations that says how much job tasks need to be identified.

A Okay.

Q And the same is true with the I-129. There is no information that is required by USCIS when making a statement for a petition for an H-2B worker. Correct?

A I suppose. I don't -- I don't know.

Q Let's talk a little bit more about the violations here. It is also true that you are not even sure whether it is your responsibility as part of this enforcement action to show whether or not Butler violated a regulatory duty. Correct?

A They were found in violation.

Q And that's not my question.

A Oh, okay.

Q My question is you're not even sure if you have to prove that. Correct?

MS. GORMAN: Objection to the extent that it calls for a legal conclusion. When you put the "prove" in there, that's a problem.

JUDGE CLARK: I'm going to sustain that. Please rephrase your question, Mr. Pierce.

MR. PIERCE: Okay.

BY MR. PIERCE:

Q When I took your deposition earlier, I believe -- and I can refer you to it, if we need to. But you do not regard it as part of your responsibility to establish that Butler violated a regulatory duty in order to be able to proceed today. Correct?

A I believe that they were in violation, and we did show that as part of the investigation.

Q Okay. But at your deposition, page 104, you told me that you were not sure if you had to show that. Do you remember that?

A I think I was confused by the terminology you were using.

Q Okay. Well, given that the 2008 regulations say virtually nothing about how to make job requests, and you're totally unfamiliar with the 2009 prevailing wage determination guidance, can we now conclude that you really don't know how to go about by stating or describing a job that has many different responsibilities?

A I don't think those things preclude me from computing back wages.

Q No, that's not my question.

A Okay.

Q Do you have a basis to establish a violation of regulations as to how best to describe a job when there aren't even any rules for doing it?

A I'm confused by the question.

Q You expected job descriptions to be better or more accurate or something. How is it that Butler was going to conform to that when there wasn't even a rule established as to what it was to do?

A Well, the job descriptions for the approved occupations is available, and those are job duties that the workers were supposed to be performing.

And the majority of the workers that worked for Butler under the H-2B program were performing those duties.

It was the exceptions that we found that constituted the violation of misclassification, because they were not performing duties of the recreation and amusement attendant.

Q Okay. I made several references to the 2009 OFLS prevailing wage determination guides. Do you recognize Exhibit 86 as such a document?

A Eighty-six?

MS. GORMAN: The question was does she recognize the document?

MR. PIERCE: Yeah.

BY MR. PIERCE:

Q Do you recognize it? Have you ever seen it before?

A No.

Q Okay. Are you aware that when Butler applied with OFLC, they applied what I'm going to call the job title test?

A No.

Q Did you know that?

A I did not know that.

Q Where OFLC asked that they give their best shot at providing a job title, did you know that?

A I did not know that.

Q And did you know that if Butler had gone on the OFLC job title search function, that they could put in certain job titles and get back suggested job codes?

A Yes.

Q Because I went over that with you.

A Yes.

Q But until I deposed you a couple of weeks ago, you didn't even know that you could do a job title search. Correct?

A I don't remember.

Q All right. So if we put in -- let's look at Exhibit 63. If we put in a job title of amusement mechanic, the number one suggested job code was exactly the one that we chose, 393091. Correct?

A Yes.

Q And the one that you chose is about halfway down the second page in Exhibit 63. Correct?

A Yes.

Q And then if we had done a similar job title search on the same website for the term amusement driver, Exhibit 58, the job title search for amusement driver, the number one match was exactly the job code that we chose, 393091.

And the one that you settled on was about halfway down the first page. Correct?

A Yes. As I said in the deposition, if you keep putting in amusement, it's going to pull up the job title that has amusement in it. It's a key word search.

Q And as I asked you in that same deposition, there is nothing in the regulations that says we can't put the word amusement in a job title search, is there?

A No.

Q We can put in any words we like in order to come up with a job title search, can't we?

A I suppose.

Q And then the third one, Exhibit 67, a search for the job title amusement supervisor, the number one match is exactly the job code that we chose, 393091.

And the job code that you matched is at the top of the second page. Right?

A Yes.

Q And in fact, under that 2009 OFLC guidance document, that is the beginning of the process, is to do a job title search. Did you know that?

A No.

Q Did you know that in order to be able to continue with that process, that then the burden shifts to OFLC to do the kinds of things that you think need to be done? And it's not Butler's responsibility to do them?

A I don't know.

Q All right. In your allegations, as I understand it, let's start with the drivers, the thing that you're most concerned about is that five individuals were driving semi-trucks. Would you agree?

A I don't know if that's the thing I'm most concerned about. Those were among the workers who were misclassified, yes.

Q Okay. But the fact that you're most keyed on is that they were driving semi-trucks. Right?

A They were performing solely truck-driver duties. That's when we made the determination that they were misclassified.

Q Well, look at, if you would, Exhibit 51, page two. Do you see there towards the bottom, under tools used by amusement -- first of all, let me explain what this is.

Do you recognize the detailed report associated with the recreation and amusement attendant job code as the OFLC makes this available through ONET. Correct?

A Yes.

Q Twenty-some pages with lots of detail. Now go to page two.

A Yes.

Q Towards the bottom, did you know that the tools used by amusement and recreation attendants includes cargo trucks or material transport trucks?

A I see that listed.

Q As tools used by the job code requested by Butler. Now look on page three towards the top, amusement and recreation attendants, also, use or drive mini vans, passenger vans, and a couple lines down, street cars and freeway cars.

A That's what it says.

Q And then on page 11, these same amusement and recreation workers that we requested towards the bottom of page 11 operate vehicles, operate mechanized devices, operate equipment, including running, maneuvering and navigating or driving vehicles, mechanized equipment, forklifts, passenger vehicles, aircraft or watercraft. See that?

A I see that.

Q As approved job functions for an amusement operator?

A Approved? I think these are, okay.

Q Do you think anybody is operating an aircraft without a license in this country?

JUDGE CLARK: What is the relevance, Mr. Pierce?

MR. PIERCE: Well, she has made several references to CDL, as if that has some significance. I'm establishing that there is a licensing requirement, I have to believe, for aircraft.

JUDGE CLARK: You can answer the question, if you know.

THE WITNESS: I do not know.

JUDGE CLARK: Okay.

MR. PIERCE: All right.

BY MR. PIERCE:

Q Let's look at amusement mechanics. As I understand your testimony, what you were most concerned about was that there was a designated area. There was lubricants. There was spare parts. There was a work bench. Is that kind of the thrust of what you were concerned about?

A I was concerned about performing machine shop, repair work duties solely, and not helping people on rides.

Q All right. So if we look again at Exhibit 51, page two towards the top, amusement and recreation attendants inspect equipment, perform repairs, minor repairs, adjust or maintenance tasks and oiling, lubricate. You see that?

A Yes.

Q Next line underneath that, they maintain inventories for equipment or parts. You see that?

A Okay.

Q On page six, these same amusement ride and attendant operators are responsible for performing -- about in the middle -- equipment maintenance, performing routine maintenance on equipment and determining when and what kind of maintenance is needed.

A I'm sorry, what page are you on?

Q Page six, close to the middle, slightly below the middle.

A Page six, okay. These are all referring to skills. And what was the question?

Q You are aware that amusement attendants are performing these kinds of maintenance on equipment, and determining when and what kind of maintenance is used, and the very next line, they are repairing machines or systems using needed tools, and the line after that, they are performing trouble shooting.

A Right, I think that is referring to skills. If you look on page five, I believe this is a print out continuation of the following page. So those are skills that one who could perform this job may have.

Then there's numbers on the left hand column that I'm not quite sure, there's higher and lower numbers. So I don't know how that relates to the actual SOC code.

Q Okay. And the page 11, these same individuals, the ones you've called mechanics, amusement ride attendants, also towards the middle of page 11, repairing and maintaining electrical equipment, repairing and maintaining mechanical equipment, including servicing, repairing, adjusting and testing machines, devices, moving parts of equipment. Right?

A I see it says that. But I'm still concerned about the number 14. I don't know how that relates to that description.

Q Okay. And as to your third category for supervisors, amusement attendants on page three, close to the middle, it says administration and management.

A Under the knowledge category?

Q Right. They have coordination of people and resources. You agree with that?

A Knowledge of coordination of people and resources, that's what I'm reading, yes.

Q Page six, there also at the top of the page, these amusement attendants are responsible for controlling operations and managing the time of others. Do you agree with that?

A No, because that's again, referring to the skills on the prior page. That's a skill set associated with the SOC code. It's not a job duty.

Q Okay. So there is a distinction there that is not found in the regulations. Is that what you just said? Does the regulation say anything about differentiating --

MS. GORMAN: Can she answer the question that he asked?

JUDGE CLARK: Overruled. Ask the question.

BY MR. PIERCE:

Q Do the regulations in 2008 say anything at all about how to differentiate between job duties and skills?

A Well, the English language, it says right here what a skill is. And later on, it says abilities. So I don't know. You would have to go to the regulations to find that definition. It's right on the page.

Q Do the regulations even name or reference the ONET online detailed reports for any job code, whatsoever?

A I don't believe so.

JUDGE CLARK: Mr. Pierce, it's 12:30. Do you want to take our break now? I don't know if you're closing in on something here. I don't want to stop you. I don't know if you have more still to go. How much more do you have, do you think?

MR. PIERCE: We should stop.

JUDGE CLARK: How much more do you have of this witness?

MR. PIERCE: I'm going to say maybe 30 or 40 minutes. And I will try to edit during the break.

JUDGE CLARK: Okay. Thank you. We are going to take our lunch break then. Is 45 minutes enough time?

Does anybody think that they will need more time?

You might have to go outside the building and come back through Security. If we take an hour lunch, is that going to stop us from finishing this case by 4:30 tomorrow?

MR. PIERCE: I think, Judge, we're on track.

MS. GORMAN: He would know. He would know better than I.

JUDGE CLARK: Okay. Anything for the record before we go to lunch, Mr. Pierce?

MR. PIERCE: No.

JUDGE CLARK: Ms. Gorman?

MS. GORMAN: No.

JUDGE CLARK: Okay. Then we will be off the record. We will take an hour lunch. One thirty back here. Thank you very much. Off the record.

(Whereupon, the luncheon recess was taken from 12:32 until 1:33 o'clock p.m.)

---o0o---

AFTERNOON SESSION 1:33 O'CLOCK P.M.

JUDGE CLARK: On the record. All parties are present. Ms. Aguilar has retaken the stand. She was on Cross-Examination. Mr. Pierce, do you have more questions?

MR. PIERCE: I do. Yes, Your Honor.

JUDGE CLARK: Go ahead.

BY MR. PIERCE:

Q Ms. Aguilar, we were talking about amusement supervisors. And I just want to finish off the Exhibit 51 references. On page six, the second line, you see that amusement attendants are responsible for managing the time of others.

JUDGE CLARK: You are referring to your Exhibit 76. Right?

MR. PIERCE: Fifty-one.

JUDGE CLARK: Fifty-one, okay. And what page are we on?

MR. PIERCE: Page six.

JUDGE CLARK: Thank you. Go ahead.

BY MR. PIERCE:

Q Did you hear?

A Please repeat.

Q One of the authorized skills for amusement attendants is managing the time of others. Correct?

A That appears to be here, yes.

Q All right. And on page 10, amusement attendants are responsible for handling complaints, settling disputes, resolving grievances and conflicts. Correct?

A Where are you looking?

Q In the middle, resolving conflicts?

A Yes, that's listed here.

Q Right. They also are responsible a couple lines lower for scheduling the work of others?

A Yes.

Q And in your deposition, you were especially concerned because you had observed supervisors giving directions to subordinates. Do you remember that?

A I remember stating that, and I remember observing that, yes.

Q Okay. And in fact, even amusement attendants, also on page 10 towards the bottom, are also directing or providing guidance and direction to subordinates. Correct?

A It's listed as a work activity, yes.

Q And on page 13, amusement attendants, in the middle, are responsible for coordinating, or leading of others. Correct?

A On page 13, coordinate or lead others. How important is it to coordinate or lead others in accomplishing work activities in this job? It has a 33 for very important, and 20 for important. I don't know what that means.

Q Okay. And then on page 51 -- excuse me -- page 18, towards the bottom, one of the work styles associated with amusement attendants is to provide leadership. Correct?

A Where are you looking?

Q Third line from the bottom, leadership?

A Requires a willingness to lead, take charge and offer opinions. Okay, I'm reading that.

Q That's one of the traits associated with an amusement attendant?

A It is a work style rated at 54, yes.

Q Okay. Now in order for somebody like Butler to properly fill out their paperwork, the Department provides some instructions on how to do that, do they not?

A I don't know.

Q So if you look at Exhibit 4?

A Okay.

Q It is true, is it not, that you have never seen, nor reviewed the instructions for submitting an I-141 to get a prevailing wage? Correct?

A I don't work for ETA. I've never seen this.

Q Right. Same question for Exhibit 6, you have never seen or reviewed the instructions for filling out an I-142?

A Correct.

Q Same question for Exhibit 9, you've never seen or reviewed the instructions for filling out an I-129?

A Correct.

Q You are aware that each of these documents has wording to the effect, across the top of the first page, asking that someone like Butler actually take the time to read these in order to fill out the forms, as requested, do they not?

A What was your question?

Q These various instruction booklets have wording across the top of the first page, asking that Butler actually take the time to review this in order to properly fill out the forms. Correct?

A Yes, it says to read these instructions carefully to properly complete this form.

Q And you don't have any problem if Butler actually followed and relied on these, do you?

A I have a problem? I don't understand the question.

Q Would it be a reasonable thing for the Butler Amusements folks to actually read and follow the published instructions for completely and properly filling out the forms?

A It would be reasonable for them to follow the printed instructions.

Q And in fact, you don't really even know, because the regulations don't say, what the right test is for how to go about specifying someone's job code. Correct?

A Correct.

Q And given that the regulations don't specify the test, you don't even know how Employers are supposed to fill out a 9142, do you?

A That's not part of my job.

Q Okay. But it is part of the job of someone who wants to apply. Do you agree with that?

A It is part of the job of an Employer who wants to apply to the H-2B program?

Q Right.

A Yes.

Q Okay. Now you have never heard of the incidental duty rule. Correct?

A Correct.

Q You are not aware of any other programs that allow an Employer to have an employee, H-2B employee do incidental duties to what they were approved for. Correct?

A I'm not aware of that.

Q Nor are you aware of a dual position rule in which there is any guidance that talks about if someone is holding dual positions, how do you go about job coding them. Correct?

A I'm not aware of that.

Q A dual position might be, for example, let's say you want a pilot. But you want the pilot also to have an engineering degree. That could be an example of what I'm talking about, a dual position.

You have never heard of any rules that talk about how to assign job codes when there are dual positions. Correct?

A I don't see how having a degree as a pilot would be two different roles. But I'm not familiar on what the term that you're using.

Q All right. Let's look at Exhibit 98. Do you recognize --

A I'm there.

Q Do you recognize Exhibit 98 as some extracts from the OFLC's frequently asked questions and answers right around the time that you were thinking about your audit, February of 2013?

A It appears to be a print out from an e-mail dated February, 2013, yes.

Q Okay. And if you actually follow the chain, the e-mail link wasn't working. So I had someone in my office coordinate with OFLC so we could get access to this. Look now at page four towards the bottom.

A Yes.

Q The next to the last paragraph, first sentence reads, "A combination of occupations for the tasks and skills listed in the job description are outside the norm of a single occupation, and instead, are appropriate to a different occupation, may result in an additional point added to the work sheet. Do you know what that means?

A No.

Q That means that instead of giving a wholly different job code, you may get moved one grade higher from level one to level two or level two to level three. Do you understand that that can happen? That's an option here.

A I'm not familiar with the process of ETA in this. And I would feel uncomfortable answering, interpreting this document without having had the opportunity to look at it and read it.

Q Okay. You have never heard of a rule like that. Instead of a completely different job code, you can adjust. There's flex in the system based on what wage level is chosen. You've never heard of that. Right?

A Correct.

Q Now let's talk for a minute about willfulness. Your investigation, you have spent more than 100 hours investigating this file?

A I believe I testified to that in the deposition.

Q Okay. And you have also spent hours just researching the job code question. Correct?

A Yes.

Q And in point of fact, if you look at Exhibit 76, page 30 --

A Okay.

Q -- at the top of the middle column, your boss, the Secretary of Labor estimated that the entire application process would take a little bit over an hour and 20 minutes. Do you see that?

A Yes.

Q You spent hours just determining the job code, didn't you?

A I wanted to be very certain that the violations that I cited -- the violation that I cited would be able to be evidenced by a different SOC code that I was selecting.

So I was very careful to spend time to look at the different occupations, review the associated job duties and pick the ones that best reflected the classified work that those individuals were performing.

Q Okay. You are aware that your determination letter has Mr. Brajevich's name, personally?

A Yes.

Q And it's also true that you do not know of any evidence that Mr. Brajevich knew what these fellows were doing in another unit. Correct?

A Correct.

Q You don't have any evidence to know whether Mr. Brajevich knew whether they were in or out of the job code.

A Correct.

Q I have shown you the 2009 prevailing wage determination guide that OFLC was using in 2013. It is true, is it not, that you are aware of no reason why Butler could not rely on that document when submitting their application.

A I don't know about the application process. I don't know how to answer the question.

Q Okay. You are also aware that from time-to-time, your peers in other carnival cases investigate issues and make determinations, and may or may not make comments associated with that. Correct?

A I'm aware of other investigations of Employers in the carnival industry conducted by Wage Hour, yes.

Q And are you aware that the Field Operations Handbook has a provision in it which indicates that Employers can rely upon non prosecutorial decisions in other audits? Did you know that that exists?

A Say that reference again, please?

Q Chapter 53, Your Honor, I attached this, I think last week to one of my documents, but Chapter 53 of the Field Operations Handbook has a provision in it indicating that the Wage and Hour Division acknowledges that one Employer can rely on the decision not to pursue, not to file a determination letter in another audit. Did you know that?

A No.

Q Did you know that that same portion of the Wage and Hour's Field Operations Handbook indicates that an Employer should rely on advice or comments that they receive from investigators on cases?

A Employers should rely on comments and advice that they receive from investigators, yes.

Q Because that's helpful. Right?

A I would hope so.

Q Except that you are under instructions not to actually put advice in writing, aren't you?

A The determination letter was in writing.

Q Right. I'm not talking about the determination letter. I'm talking about advice on compliance, instructions, recommendations. You are instructed not to put that kind of thing in writing. Correct?

A That's correct, yes. At an investigator level, we don't provide written guidance to Employers.

Q And in fact, your Division used to, for a long time, issue opinion letters, stopped issuing opinion letters to the public in 2009, and didn't resume that until about a year ago?

A That sounds correct, yes.

Q That was another way that Employers like Butler could get information to be able to answer complicated questions like, "How do we job code and how do we comply when the rules don't even say."

MS. GORMAN: Objection. Calls for speculation.

JUDGE CLARK: Sustained. Rephrase your question.

BY MR. PIERCE:

Q Access to opinion letters is another way that Employers would get useful information to be able to comply.

MS. GORMAN: Came objection.

JUDGE CLARK: I'll let you answer that question.

THE WITNESS: Yes, I suppose.

BY MR. PIERCE:

Q And you don't suggest that Butler has a higher standard of care than what you personally have used when you have investigated this case, do you?

A I don't understand higher standard of care.

Q Well, you spent 100 hour. You have accomplished various things that you have testified about. You don't think that Butler had a responsibility to do even more than what you yourself did, given the unlimited amount of time for the last six years, do you?

A I would expect any Employer who is under investigation to spend as much time as they needed to defend themselves. It depends on the Employer. There are a lot of different factors. I don't know.

Q Okay. That's all I'm asking.

A Okay.

Q When Butler was under the gun, they're running a business. They've got to make a submission. They sign off on something that their agent has prepared.

You're going to expect that they're going to exercise more care than what you did, given the luxury of six years to investigate it. Do you?

A I don't know that I would compare an investigation with the submission of an application for workers. I don't know what goes through an Employer's mind when they are requesting H-2B workers.

Q Well, certainly you would say whatever you have done in your investigation was reasonable, would you not?

A My investigation was very reasonable.

Q Okay. When I had you in deposition a couple of weeks ago, you had never heard of the term, significant deviation. Is that still true?

A I've -- I've heard the term, significant deviation.

Q You are aware that is -- are you now aware that is a mandatory item to be able to make the case that we are here for today?

A Yes.

Q You were not aware of that two weeks ago. Correct?

A Using that terminology, I was confused by the terminology that was used during the deposition. But I am aware that the Employer was found in violation, and we found them to be in violation in substantially failing to comply with the terms and conditions of the 9142.

Q Okay. I'm not asking about substantially complying. I'm asking about significant deviation.

A Okay.

Q Your testimony on page 144 of your deposition, which is Exhibit 41, was that you did not know if there was any evidence of a significant deviation. Do you remember that?

A Okay, yes, I remember that, the question, yes.

Q That is still the case today?

A Can you rephrase the question, or repeat the question for me?

A Is it still the case today that you do not know of any evidence of whether there was a significant deviation?

A Yes.

Q All right. On the issue of back wages, it is true, is it not, that in some of the witness statements, the guys thought that if they showed up at noon and came off the job at midnight, that they had worked 12 hours that day, even if they had six hours of breaks? Do you remember that communication problem?

A No.

Q You don't remember any examples of that occurring in the witness statements?

A Not that example, no.

Q Okay. When you decided that all of these nine workers had actually worked 40 hours to the man every week for 11 weeks, we never actually guaranteed that they were going to work 40 hours, did we?

A That was what was listed on the TEC.

Q That's not my question.

A Okay.

Q We never guaranteed that they were going to receive 40 hours every week.

A That's correct.

Q And in fact -- and I'll show it to you, if you like. But the 9142 said hours vary widely. They are not fixed or predictable. Do you remember that language?

A I will agree that that is in the 9142 without having to look at the exhibit.

Q Thank you. And that is just one way in which Butler was communicating we're not guaranteeing that these guys are going to work 40 hours. Right?

MS. GORMAN: Objection. Calls for speculation. She doesn't know what Butler was thinking.

JUDGE CLARK: Sustained. Rephrase.

MR. PIERCE: Okay. I'll move on, Your Honor.

BY MR. PIERCE:

Q And one of your reasons, as I understand it, for down grading the fact that Butler voluntarily took on the responsibility of maintaining time sheets is because they invested even more overhead and even more resources getting them typed. Is that really your testimony?

A Say that again.

Q Is it really your testimony that Butler's time sheets are not credible because they invested more time and overhead to type them up?

A No. I think my testimony is that they looked suspect on their face because they were typed up. It doesn't have anything to do with how much time it took or didn't take to type them up.

Q But you recognize that they were investing resources to go the extra step to type them up. You recognize that. Right?

A I suppose it would take me hours to type little sheets of paper.

Q Of course it would. Somebody had to put that in?

A They had to?

Q Where do you think those came from?

A I don't know.

Q You didn't bother to ask.

A What was your question?

Q I'm serious. Did you bother to ask? You were there. Gena Tuttle, you interviewed her. She works in the office, is involved in payroll. Did you ask her, "Where did these sheets come from, how are they generated?"

A I believe she in her statement, talks about how she typed them up.

Q All right. And did she -- you were there in the office. It was all laid out for you. Did you ask to see any documentation that corroborated what she was typing?

A I'm sure I asked for any and all records that would show me the hours worked by the employees, as we do in all our investigations.

Q And you would, of course, have documented that in your interview statement of her. Correct?

A That I asked for all the payroll records? Not necessarily, no.

Q Okay. Well, you were there talking to the person who is in charge of payroll for that unit. Why would you not ask that question?

A I think I just testified that I probably did. As a matter of course, as a Wage Hour investigator. It is an automatic practice to ask for any and all records that relate to time and attendance, payroll.

Q All right. And as a general rule, you accept that time sheets are more reliable for the most accurate method for tracking time, as a general matter?

A I would say each case is different.

Q You are aware that the Fair Labor Standards Act has a requirement for tracking of hours?

A Absolutely.

Q But it doesn't actually specify the method to be used, does it?

A No, it does not.

Q Does it specify that tracking of hours needs to be counter signed by the responsible employees, so there's not disputes in the future as to how many hours they worked?

A There is no requirement for counter signing.

Q So Butler was going above and beyond by having counter signing there to eliminate the possibility of disputes. Do you agree with that?

A I have no idea why they would ask employees to sign, or what the employees were thinking, or what Butler was thinking.

Q And you didn't ask anyone. Right?

A I didn't ask them what they were thinking when they signed, no.

Q No. When you were there, talking to Gena Tuttle --

A Yes.

Q -- or Kirk Vomburg, general manager or former general manager, you didn't ask him, "Well, why do you have these guys sign these sheets, what's the purpose of that," did you?

A No.

Q And your Exhibit I, the Administrator's Exhibit I, the first week for these nine gentlemen, you have them all working in either Yakima, Washington or Holtville, California. Do you have any evidence that any of those gentlemen were working at those locations during those weeks?

A No. Well, the reason, as I explained before, the reason I used those locations and the locality, the corresponding locality pay was based on the itinerary that was in the 9142.

Q Right. And we have gone over that, and I have shown you evidence as to which of the four areas of the itinerary employment they actually worked at.

Those areas of itinerary employment do not include Holtville or Yakima. Do they?

A What document are you referring to?

Q My Exhibit 28.

A I'm there.

Q Okay. Butch's Unit wasn't anywhere near Yakima, Washington or Holtville, California, was it?

A This is a summary, is that correct, of the documents provided to the -- to me during the investigation?

Q It is a summary taken from payroll records as to where these folks were working, that's correct.

A Okay, thank you for the clarification. What was your question?

Q These nine gentlemen were not anywhere near Yakima, Washington or Holtville, California, were they?

A I don't know where Holtville is. But I know where Yakima is, and it's not close.

Q You would also agree that instead of pulling the number of 40 hours per week off of a document, it would be better to use actual work hours. Correct?

A For reconstruction, we typically use the most reasonable estimation. So if we have reliable, reasonable indication of what the actual hours worked were, yes, that's what I would go with.

In this case, it was what was on the signed 9142, not just a random document.

Q Okay. In those 100 hours or so that you spent on this file, how many of them were spent reviewing the payroll? Any idea?

A I don't know.

Q Was it any?

A Yes.

Q And when you converted the statement that 40 hours was going to be the new guaranteed amount, did you bother to see what the instruction booklet describes those numbers as?

A I don't know what you're talking about.

Q Okay. The instruction booklet that is marked as

Exhibit 6 --

A Instruction, okay.

JUDGE CLARK: I thought she testified she had never seen that.

THE WITNESS: I did. And I have not.

MR. PIERCE: Okay, that's fine.

BY MR. PIERCE:

Q The form itself says basic hours. Did you know that?

A As I have not seen it before --

Q No, no, no. The form, the 9142 --

A The 9142, okay, we're moving back to that.

Q -- says what are the basic hours.

A Okay.

Q Basic hours isn't defined, is it?

A Not that I know of.

Q It's not a guarantee, is it?

A No.

Q But you treated it as a guarantee by saying these guys worked 40 hours.

A I computed back wages for them based on a work week of 40 hours.

Q Okay. You also agree, do you not, Ms. Aguilar, that if these individuals are entitled to a higher wage rate, they are only entitled to the higher wage rate for those hours when they were working in a different job code. Correct?

A Yeah, the back wages are based on when they were working in a different job code, correct.

Q But it's not reflected. I mean, you've got to be able to establish they actually spent every minute of every day in these other job codes. Correct?

A I think that -- I know that the case file shows that these employees were working full time in the other positions, and that's what I based my findings on.

Q Well, that's not actually answering my question. I'm not asking you if it's full time. You've got to be able to show that they spent every minute of every day working in the other job code in order to be able to pay them the higher rate. Right?

A I don't know that the standard of proof is that high, every minute of every day.

Q Well, you have agreed, did you not, that they only get paid for the higher code when they are actually working at that other job?

A Correct.

Q You are also aware that Butler did not request any experience, a higher level of experience as part of their application. Correct?

A I think you indicated that earlier.

Q And because they were not asking for a higher level of experience, that's exactly the scenario where a level one wage rate should be used, is it not?

A I do not know.

Q All right. You also agree, do you not, Ms. Aguilar, if hours are not available through the otherwise comprehensive time keeping method, it is reasonable to say we'll take the average of the hours that we do have for the week, and use that average, if we happen to be missing numbers in another week?

A If the time cards, or method of time keeping is reliable, and speaking hypothetically, and I'm reconstructing back wages, and if I have time cards for a representative sample, but I don't have time cards for a period in my current investigation, it is reasonable to take averages based on the assumption that the time period in which there are records, those records are reliable.

Q Okay. Now as to the CMP's, it is true, is it not, that you do not remember whether there was a basis for awarding the maximum available CMP's because of the provision in the regulations for matching up back wages? Correct?

A Please repeat.

Q You are aware that there is a provision in the 2008 regulations that allows maxing out of CMP's, if back wages are greater than $10,000.00. You're aware of that?

A Yes.

Q And you don't remember if that was the basis by which you max'd out CMP's. Correct?

A So as the investigator, I recommended the CMP's to the management at the time, correct. And what was your question?

Q You don't remember if the reason why they were maxed out is because back wages were calculated as greater than $10,000.00?

A I don't remember.

Q Okay. Look at Exhibit 76, page 46.

A Yes.

Q The right hand column, right in the middle provides seven factors, would you agree, were mandatory considerations in order to determine civil monetary penalties. Correct?

A Correct.

Q And when we go through these mandatory factors, you were able to tell me two weeks ago that you agree as to number one, that Butler had a clean prior history, no violations?

A I do, yes. And I want to clarify that these are not mandatory, but they are factors that we consider.

Q Well --

A We refer to them as mitigating factors.

Q Okay. But in your deposition, you referred to these as mandatory.

A No.

Q Okay.

A If so, I'd like to clarify that. We refer to them as mitigating factors.

Q Is that the hang up, word choice?

A Mandatary, versus mitigating? Or, very different words?

Q Right. These seven factors need to be considered in all cases where civil monetary penalties were imposed. Correct?

A These are factors that I considered when computing and recommending the CMP in this case.

Q Were you required to consider them?

A I did consider them. I don't know if I was required to.

Q All right. As to item number two, you agreed in your deposition that there was only a small number of workers who were affected by this?

A Yes.

Q Correct. But you can't tell us how much that influenced the allocation of the maximum $10,000.00 CMP. Correct?

A Correct.

Q And as to the remaining factors, three through seven, which cover a variety of things, you were not able to say what conclusions you drew as to any of those seven factors. Correct?

A I can't recall at this time.

MR. PIERCE: All right. That's all, Your Honor.

JUDGE CLARK: Thank you, Mr. Pierce. Ms. Gorman, anything further?

MS. GORMAN: Yes. Thank you, Your Honor.

REDIRECT EXAMINATION

BY MS. GORMAN:

Q Ms. Aguilar, early on in your Cross-Examination, we were talking about the distinction between Exhibits 15 and 16. And I don't think you were given the opportunity to actually explain.

These are Defendant's Exhibits -- Respondent's Exhibits, pardon me, to explain the difference. I think you began to explain that, and then, didn't get the opportunity to finish. So I want to just give you the opportunity.

So Exhibit 15 is an e-mail from Mr. Pierce to you dated in December of 2013, and Exhibit 16 is a cover page of an e-mail from you to Mr. Pierce in February of 2014. And then, it includes the Wage Hour Form 56, Right?

A Um-hum.

JUDGE CLARK: Does this ring a bell to you, Ms. Aguilar, because my understanding was you had talked about you used the average wage or something to tabulate the difference between the two calculations, and you realized you had done something different?

And that was what I thought you were trying to clarify. If Ms. Gorman's question is different, that's what I remember you were talking about.

THE WITNESS: I believe it is a little bit different because in these two instances, I wasn't using the average. There was something that -- now I remember. The difference was that Marilu is on one of them and not the other.

BY MS. GORMAN:

Q And she is not included on the 56. But she is also not an issue in this case anymore?

A Right.

Q So and that was the only difference between them?

A The wage rates are different. The back wage totals per employee are different, including the fact that Marilu wasn't on the revised 56.

Q And is that because in Exhibit 15, you were using the rate for Santa Barbara County, and you were using a different prevailing wage rate for the 56 in Exhibit 16?

A I remember there being a mistake with the wage rates that I used for the first 56, and I don't remember specifically what it was.

Perhaps it was -- I think, to the best of my recollection, I used the wage rates that were in effect when I did the comps, and maybe not. I don't know. It was the wrong thing.

So either Mr. Pierce pointed it out, or I found it before, and I sent him the revised wage -- or revised 56 with an updated total.

And the reason that Marilu wasn't on it was that she had earned -- she was paid more by Butler than what I had computed for back wages using the revised updated rates.

Q Okay. So the 56 then, at Exhibit 16 was more reliable than the previous 56 that you provided to the Employer?

A Yes, I was trying to do a more correct version.

Q Right, okay. And you have revised your back wages since then, as well. Right?

A Correct.

Q Okay.

A Yeah.

Q And as they stand today for trial, do you have any concern that they are not as accurate as Wage and Hour can reconstruct back wages?

A I do not have any concerns.

Q Okay. Mr. Pierce also was asking you about no communication for four years in this case. Were you aware that the enforcement of the H-2B program was interrupted by various court cases and decisions that were beyond your control?

A I was aware of that.

Q Okay. And were you given guidance then in terms of by management, either at the national level or the regional level to, if you will, suspend enforcement of H-2B for a period of time, sometime between 2013 and 2018?

A I was aware. I wasn't a manager at that time, and I had submitted my case as an investigator. So it was out of my hands for a long period.

Q Okay. But that was the reason why, right, is because the whole program was in an unsettled state?

A Correct.

Q There has been a lot of talk about Exhibit 28, Respondent's Exhibit 28, if you could go to that for a moment, please?

A Yes.

Q Did you receive this document during your investigation?

A No.

Q Seeing it here today, was that the first time you've seen this document?

A Yes.

Q And then I want to go to the TEC, which is Exhibit

C of the Administrator's Exhibits. And it's going to be C-13, page 20.

A Yes.

Q Okay. And this is the Employer's itinerary attached to the TEC. Correct?

A Yes.

Q We may have covered this, but I think this was a point during your Cross-Examination, as well. Can you tell me why you used the itinerary during your investigation to determine the prevailing wage rate due?

A Because the wage rates vary based on locality.

Q During your investigation, did this Employer provide you with any specific information as to where each employee was working during the period of your investigation, which geographic location employees were working?

A No.

Q Did you then use the itinerary in the TEC as the best evidence available to you, because you didn't have any information about where employees were specifically working? You used the information in the itinerary as the best estimate of the locations where employees could have been working during the 11 weeks or so of your investigation?

A That's correct.

Q Does the Wage and Hour Division enforce prevailing industry standards on the TEC?

A No.

Q Can prevailing -- are you aware that prevailing industry standards can trump the requirements that an Employer has when filling out and submitting a TEC?

A No.

Q Could any H-2B Employer have credit offsets from the back wages due?

A Possibly.

Q Regardless of whether they are exempt from the FLSA. Right?

A Yeah.

Q And does an H-2B Employer have to keep time records in order to comply with the TEC?

A It's not specifically required.

Q Okay. How does it help an Employer to keep specific time records?

A If they would like to show the actual hours that employees are working, they can do that with records.

Q And were you provided reliable records of actual hours employees were working in this investigation?

A I don't believe so.

Q Okay. And going back to the TEC, which is Exhibit C of the Administrator's Exhibits, I want to go to C-3, page 10. And under box (f), job offer -- I'm sorry.

Under job offer information and job description, it says number of hours -- number of hours of work per week in number two. Do you see that?

A Yes.

Q Does that indicate to you in any way, shape or form the second hours?

A No. Well, it says basic next to 40.

Q Okay. And is there a distinction in your mind between basic hours and overtime hours?

A No. Well, okay, sorry. Basic hours, I would assume are hours 40 or fewer. Overtime would be any hours over 40.

Q So the word, basic, then you think applies to whether or not there are 40 or more hours, not 40 or less?

A I guess. I don't know.

Q You don't know, okay. As a Wage Hour investigator, you enforce the labor terms in the TEC. Correct?

A Yes.

Q Is the number of hours worked per week that an Employer promises to an employee, an H-2B non immigrant worker one of the labor provisions that you, as a Wage Hour investigator would enforce?

A Yes.

Q I just asked you whether an H-2B Employer is required to keep time records to comply with the TEC, and you said not necessarily. Then I asked you how would it benefit the Employer.

And now I'm going to ask you the converse. How would it -- how would not having time records be to an H-2B Employer's detriment?

A If there were evidence collected during the investigation that employees worked -- said in interviews, for example, that they worked 60 hours a week, and that they were paid a flat salary and it wasn't enough to cover them, if they don't have time records to dispute what employees are saying, or other evidence gathered in the course of the investigation, that could be of detriment to them.

Q In what way?

A They wouldn't be able to prove that they weren't working those hours.

Q And their liability would be higher. Right?

A Yes.

Q Without a sustainable defense?

A Yes.

Q During the investigation, did this Employer ever ask for credits or offsets to the back wage liability?

A It wasn't part of a formal negotiation. As the investigator, I wanted the Employer to settle the back wages. And during the course of the investigation, and also part of our discussions after I presented the findings, were about these credits.

But they were never applied because the Employer wouldn't negotiate.

Q Wouldn't negotiate the back wages?

A Right. They wanted to settle back wages and CMP's at the same time, and I couldn't do that as an investigator.

Q Okay. Did you ever discuss credits or offsets with this Employer or their representative?

A Yes.

Q During the investigation?

A Yes.

Q What credits? Do you recall what credits or offsets you discussed with them, that I would assume they were asking for?

A Right. They were for the lodging and transportation, as I remember.

Q Do you remember any others?

A I don't recall at this time.

Q So the transportation, was that the incidental kind of once they get to a location, if folks need to go and do their laundry, that incidental transportation?

Or, was it the inbound or outbound travel from their home country?

A I don't remember.

Q It could have been either?

A Yes.

Q Okay. So the lodging offset, what did you tell this Employer during the investigation when they brought up a credit or an offset? I'm using the terms interchangeably, and I don't mean to confuse you.

But what did you tell them when you were discussing the lodging credit or offset?

A That we wouldn't allow it.

Q Why?

A Because it was for the benefit of the Employer.

Q Okay. Was there any other reason?

A I don't remember if we discussed another reason why we wouldn't allow it.

Q Did you ever inspect the lodging that this Employer provided to their H-2B employees?

A No.

Q Did you ever go inside the lodging?

A No.

Q Okay. Have you been involved in any cases whether the FLSA was in the mix or not, previous cases where an Employer was asking for a lodging credit, and you approved the lodging credit?

A Yes.

Q What is required when you -- and to take your ADD hat off and to put your investigator hat back on -- what did you look at when you previously in previous Wage Hour cases, approved a lodging credit?

A It would have to be reasonable. It would have to be actual cost. It would have to be -- the employee would have to have a choice whether or not to partake in that, and it would have to meet health and safety standards.

Q Did this Employer provide you any information during your investigation that the lodging that they provided to their employees was at a reasonable cost?

A I don't think so.

Q Did this Employer provide you -- I'm sorry. I think I misstated. I'm going to ask that question again.

Did this Employer provide you any information during the course of your investigation that the lodging that they provided to their employees was reasonable?

A I don't know.

Q During the course of your investigation, did this Employer provide you any information that the lodging that they provided to their employees was at actual cost?

A I've seen the cost basis here, and at the deposition. I don't know if that was provided to me before. I don't remember.

Q Did the Employer here provide you with any information during your investigation that the lodging that they provided to their employees met health and safety codes?

A No.

Q Did the Employer here provide you with any information during the course of your investigation that the lodging that they provided to their employees was given at an employee's -- was provided at an employee's choice? An employee had a choice to either accept or decline the lodging?

A No.

Q With regard to transportation, even though you don't, as we sit here today, you can't remember which type of transportation it was, whether it was the incidental transportation or the inbound or outbound transportation -- there was discussion about the outbound transportation here.

During the course of your investigation, did this Employer ever provide you with information regarding the transportation offset that they were seeking, and the actual cost of that transportation?

A I don't believe so.

Q Does the Wage and Hour Division enforce DHS regulations, Ms. Aguilar?

A No.

Q I'm going to ask you to turn to Exhibit 96 of the Respondent's trial Exhibits.

A Yes.

Q Okay. Can you please read the -- this is a table, and there are three lines on the left hand side. Then before the table begins, there is a line that is centered. Can you please read that line?

A This guidance does not supersede the INA or H-2B regulations.

Q Thank you. And Exhibit 101, can you please read the language that comes with this exhibit that's underneath the WHD H-2B, side-by-side comparison of the 2009 and 2015 rules?

A This guidance does not supersede the INA or H-2B regulations.

Q Thank you. You had a pretty extensive discussion with Mr. Pierce about these two exhibits. And we can go to the actual line which I think we were talking about.

You were talking with him about certified occupation on both of these documents.

But my question to you, whether you want to refer to that or to something else in this, is the Wage and Hour Division precluded from charging a substantial failure violation of the H-2B reg's?

A No.

Q With regard to Exhibits 96 and 101, is there anything that you're aware of with those exhibits, either at the time that they were discussed in your deposition, or as you sit here today, is there anything in these documents that suggests that the guidance in these documents in any way trumps or overrules the requirements of the TEC, the 9142?

A No.

Q Isn't it true that whenever you find a violation of an attestation in the TEC, there will always be a statement in the TEC that the violation found conflicts with?

A Yes.

Q So the idea that the violation occurs at one point for a substantial failure violation, and at another point of time, for a willful misrepresentation violation, it's always going to be after the TEC has been approved. Correct?

A Say that again?

Q I think you answered my question the first time. I think I'm just going to -- I believe that you just testified that the Wage and Hour Division can charge a substantial failure violation of the TEC. Correct?

A That's correct.

Q What is that based on?

A When they don't comply with the attestations signed off on the TEC.

Q And that non complying part would come after the TEC has been approved. Correct?

A Yes.

Q Because you, as a Wage and Hour investigator, need a TEC that has specified standards to compare against what the Employer is actually doing?

A Yes, it has to be certified, absolutely.

Q Right, a certified TEC?

A Right.

Q Exactly. Certified by not Wage Hour, by other federal agencies?

A Correct.

Q Okay. And you and Wage and Hour have their delegation of authority. And they enforce the Labor Standards portion of the TEC?

A That's correct.

Q Okay. Then there was a fair amount of discussion about the specific job duties of the three non RAA jobs that we've got at issue in this case, the truck drivers, the supervisors and the shop workers.

Why did you conclude the truck drivers were not the same as RAA?

A There is a separate SOC code for a semi-truck driver that very much lists the duties, the requirements of driving a semi-truck, not as incidental or low-rated duty, but as a primary duty of that job.

Q Why did you conclude that the supervisor position was not the same as a recreation and amusement attendant?

A Because there was another SOC code that is more closely aligned with the position of the supervisor.

Q And does that SOC code list the duties of a supervisor?

A Yes.

Q And during the course of your investigation, did you determine that those H-2B workers who you determined were performing supervisory duties were more closely aligned with the supervisor SOC, the job duties in the supervisor SOC code?

A Yes.

Q And why did you conclude that shop workers were not the same job duty as the recreation and amusement attendant position?

A The shop workers, I selected a distinct SOC code for, because there is a SOC code that more closely aligns with the primary duties that were performed by those individuals.

Q What responsibility does an H-2B Employer have to accurately define the job position?

A They're signing off that it's true and correct when they sign the 9142. So it's their responsibility, just like all the other information in that, that it's true and accurate.

Q There was discussion, also, with Mr. Pierce about the amusement driver, and amusement mechanic. Do you recall that line of questioning?

A Yes.

Q Okay. And there were -- I think it's Exhibit 51, which is the 393091 SOC code for recreation and amusement attendant.

JUDGE CLARK: That's Employer's 51?

MS. GORMAN: You don't need to. I'm actually just referencing that part of the Cross-Examination. You may want to, and that's fine. But let me ask my question.

THE WITNESS: Sure.

BY MS. GORMAN:

Q Do you think that if an Employer wanted to accurately determine the job duties of a semi-truck driver for an amusement and carnival operation, that the search for an amusement driver, quote/unquote, open quote, amusement driver, closed quote, would be an appropriate search in ONET in order to determine what the job duties of that position were?

A No.

Q Why?

A Because the primary duty of the driver, even though they're hauling rides, is to drive. So I would put in driver or truck driver or semi-truck driver.

Q Why do you think the inclusion of the word, amusement, would somehow not yield accurate results?

A Well after the second or third time putting in the word, amusement, it's clear that the only job title that has amusement in it is amusement and recreation attendant.

Q During the course of your investigation, you looked at SOC codes in this case. Correct?

A Yes.

Q And you spent some time looking at SOC codes?

A Yes.

Q Did you ever see a job position with the word, amusement in it that was not the amusement and recreation attendant job position?

A No.

Q Would an airline pilot be eligible to enter the country and work under the H-2B program?

A I don't believe so.

Q Why?

A I think the H-2B program is for low-skill, entry-level work.

Q By definition, right?

A Yes.

Q When you made your determination in this case of the violation, did that determination include naming Michael Brajevich personally?

A Yes, he is on the determination letter.

Q Why was he named personally?

A Because he signed the 9142.

MS. GORMAN: Thank you. Nothing further.

JUDGE CLARK: Anything further?

MR. PIERCE: I do have a few.

RECROSS-EXAMINATION

BY MR. PIERCE:

Q Ms. Aguilar, following up on those topics, I wrote down and I heard you say that the reasons why you were adjusting your back wage calculations late '13 going into 2014 was using revised, updated rates. There weren't any updated rates, were there?

A Not updated by ONET or OFLC data center. And again, I'm going off of my memory. But the way I remember the sequence of events was having a conversation with you, presenting the back wages.

I believe there was some kind of a dispute about the calculations, revising them and giving them to you, revised numbers in February.

Q Okay. Look at my Exhibit 68.

A Yes.

Q Do you recognize this as basically a screen shot for what data bases are available from the OFLC historical data base?

A Yes.

Q So those wages that are relevant to this case are right in the middle, July '12 through June of 2013. Correct?

A Yes.

Q They weren't updated again until the next year. So when you were looking at these numbers, there was no revision in late '13 going into '14?

A No. That wasn't my testimony. I don't think that OFLC data was different. I think I made a miscalculation, if I remember correctly, based on the numbers that I chose to use in my first computation.

It wasn't that they had been updated and I found out later, it was like, "I made a mistake, here's the revised version."

Q Okay. I heard you say that we did not give you any evidence at all as to where these folks worked. Do you remember saying that?

A Um-hum.

MS. GORMAN: Say yes.

THE WITNESS: Yes. Sorry.

BY MR. PIERCE:

Q Why don't you pull out Exhibit 26?

A Yes.

Q Do you remember getting a series of e-mails from my assistant to which we attached 35 separate locations with payroll information, each PDF being its own payroll location? Do you remember that?

A I remember receiving the e-mail with the records from your assistant. And I don't remember how those were provided to me. I mean, I remember it was e-mail, but I don't remember the designation that you're talking about.

Q I sent you a courtesy copy of the document that we had developed in house identifying Bates number so-and-so. That's the location that these records apply to. You don't remember seeing that?

A No.

Q Okay. So look at the very first page of Exhibit 26. See it?

A Yes.

Q So that's the external envelope in which these pay stubs were found, Indio, California. Did you realize that?

A Yes, it says Indio.

Q Right. And if we keep going through here, here's another Indio, second week on page 26.

A Okay.

Q They're different weeks.

A No, they're the same.

Q No, they're not. Looking on page two --

A It looks the same to me.

Q Look on page two. You see a pay week starting there of January 28th?

A Yes.

Q Then you go to page 27, the pay week is starting on February the 4th.

A Right. Page 26 looks to be the same as page one.

Q A different week for the same location, Indio, because the unit didn't move.

A Okay.

JUDGE CLARK: I'm sorry. Go ahead. I apologize. Go ahead.

BY MR. PIERCE:

Q And we can -- here's another one, Indio again, page 65, yet another week at the same location. And then if you look at the pages that follow and do what I did in Exhibit 45, see Exhibit 45?

In Exhibit 45, we've pulled out the recorded working hours per week, identifying the location based on a packet in which that information was found. Do you see that? And then it's cross referenced.

MS. GORMAN: Wait. Can she answer the question, please?

THE WITNESS: Where is the packet? I don't see reference to a packet on Exhibit 45.

BY MR. PIERCE:

Q See on Exhibit 45 underneath of every hourly entry, there's a Bates number that's six digits long.

MS. GORMAN: Exhibit 45?

MR. PIERCE: Exhibit 45 has hours per week for each of the nine gentlemen.

JUDGE CLARK: A chart, correct?

MR. PIERCE: Yes.

JUDGE CLARK: So for line number one, it says Indio number three, 11 through 17 February, and there's a six-digit number in that first box. Is that what you're talking about?

MR. PIERCE: Zero, zero, zero, one, three, zero.

BY MR. PIERCE:

Q Do you see where that is?

A Yes.

JUDGE CLARK: And Mr. Pierce, what is your question about that now?

BY MR. PIERCE:

Q If we go to that page in Exhibit 26, that gentleman, Saul Estadillo counter signed the time sheet indicating that he worked 37.5 hours that week in that location. Correct?

A Yes. Well, he signed. There's a signature on there, and there's a record, description of hours, yes.

Q Okay. So we did give you exactly where these guys worked. You just had to do some work. Right?

A There were a lot of records that you provided, and they did look a lot -- they looked like this. They were in fact, these records, and they were provided in PDF.

And given your summary, some of the records are Bates stamped, for example, Gustavo, the second gentleman.

I'm looking at the third column from the right. Looks like he has 38.5 hours on here, and there's two different Bates stamped documents. One is 000495. The other one is 001214.

So in order for me to be able to find those 38.5 hours, which I already indicated in my testimony that I don't find credible, I would have to go through 900 different pages to be able to find them within the records that you provided.

Q Isn't that your job?

A Usually records are provided in a way that makes it more obvious what -- let me rephrase. If I had given credence to the hours that the records were purported to show, I would have done the many, many hours it would have taken to have gone through this.

But since I didn't give credence to these hours, it was not a good use of resources for me to go through and spend hundreds of hours to try to pin down the portion of the page relevant to that particular individual's purported time records.

Q Well, except that it wouldn't have taken you hundreds of hours to do it. Would it?

A I don't know how long it would've taken. I do remember having discussions with my supervisor about the records and how they were produced, and getting advice, and determining the best course of action on how to proceed with the case.

Q Okay. And they were produced to you exactly in the way that the Butler organization maintains them. You realize that.

A Okay.

Q You didn't want us to specially mix them up for you, did you?

JUDGE CLARK: That's argumentative.

THE WITNESS: Mix them up? No.

JUDGE CLARK: Don't answer the question, Ms. Aguilar. Mr. Pierce, can you move on to something else, or ask another question?

BY MR. PIERCE:

Q Now on your testimony regarding the bunk housing, all the items that you testified to, whether it's the employee's choice, whether there's a health and safety code, something like that, those are all FLSA concepts, aren't they?

A Factors we look at when we are deciding whether or not to provide credit to an Employer for lodging.

Q And where in the 2008 regulations does it say you won't provide bunk house credit if there is no employee choice?

A It doesn't say that.

Q Where does it say in the 2008 regulations you won't provide bunk house credit if there is a health or safety violation?

A It doesn't say that.

Q You also gave some testimony to Ms. Gorman about what was the primary duty of these individuals, or what was most closely aligned with their job duties.

My question is where, in the 2008 regulations, does it lay out the primary duty or the most closely aligned test, as you testified to?

A It's not in there.

Q What guidance document establishes the primary duty or the most closely aligned test, as you testified to?

A I'm not familiar with guidance documents.

MR. PIERCE: That's all.

JUDGE CLARK: Ms. Gorman, anything further?

MS. GORMAN: No. Thank you, sir.

JUDGE CLARK: Ms. Aguilar, you are done. Thank you so much. You can step down.

(Witness excused.)

JUDGE CLARK: Okay. It is 10 to three. We are going to take a brief recess, then call our next witness, which is Mr. Huaracha. Correct?

MS. GORMAN: Actually, no, Your Honor.

JUDGE CLARK: Who is our next witness?

MS. GORMAN: The Administrator rests.

JUDGE CLARK: No further witnesses, okay. I have a quick question. I should have asked this first thing this morning. At the prehearing conference, we discussed stipulated facts.

As I understood, Ms. Gorman had submitted something to you, Mr. Pierce. And you hadn't had a chance to look that over and review them. Did you forget to give me stipulated facts? Or, were you not able to reach them in this matter?

MS. GORMAN: The latter, sir.

JUDGE CLARK: Okay.

MR. PIERCE: I reviewed them, and there wasn't a basis where we could.

JUDGE CLARK: Okay. The Administrator has rested their case, a little unexpected without Mr. Huaracha. Are you prepared to start your case at 3:00?

MR. PIERCE: I need to get a couple guys on the phone.

JUDGE CLARK: Are you going to call them first before Mr. Brajevich?

MR. PIERCE: Yes.

JUDGE CLARK: Okay. We will be back on the record at 3:00. I'll come back at three. We will arrange to get the people on the phone starting at three. So we're going to take a break until three. We're off the record.

(Off the record.)

JUDGE CLARK: We are on the record after a break.

The Administrator has rested their case.

We are starting with Respondent's case at this point. Mr. Pierce, would you care to make an opening statement?

MR. PIERCE: No.

JUDGE CLARK: Okay. We have a witness who is testifying by telephone. Mr. Nittler, are you there?

MR. NITTLER: Yes.

JUDGE CLARK: This is Judge Clark. I'm going to go ahead and swear you in as a witness. Mr. Pierce is going to ask you questions, and Ms. Gorman is going to ask you some Cross-Examination questions.

We are recording everything that is said here. And you are on a speakerphone, but it's really difficult to hear you, and I think you're probably having a hard time hearing us, too, a little bit. So you keep your voice up, and we're all going to keep our voices up. Okay?

MR. NITTLER: Yes.

JUDGE CLARK: You need to talk louder than you normally would. It will probably seem awkward because you're talking into your phone. But you need to keep your voice up as loud as you can get it for us. All right?

MR. NITTLER: Okay.

JUDGE CLARK: If you could raise your right hand?

MR. NITTLER: Yes.

Whereupon,

STEVEN NITTLER

having been first duly sworn, was called as a witness herein, and was examined and testified as follows:

JUDGE CLARK: Would you state your name and spell it for our record?

THE WITNESS: Steven A. Nittler, S-t-e-v-e-n, A, N-i-t-t-l-e-r.

JUDGE CLARK: Okay. Thank you. And Mr. Nittler, as I said before, Mr. Pierce is going to ask you some questions first. You have to speak out loud. And because we're recording everything, you have to say yes or no. You can't say, "Uh-huh," or "Uh-uh." Plus, we can't see your head, anyway, if you were to shake your head. So make sure you use yes or no. Okay?

THE WITNESS: Yes.

JUDGE CLARK: If you don't understand something, let us know and I'll have our attorneys rephrase the question. Okay?

THE WITNESS: Yes.

JUDGE CLARK: Okay. And if somebody makes an objection, just stop talking and I'll let you know whether you can answer the question. Fair enough?

THE WITNESS: Yes.

JUDGE CLARK: Okay. Mr. Pierce, go ahead.

MR. PIERCE: Good afternoon, Mr. Nittler. You have been introduced.

DIRECT EXAMINATION

BY MR. PIERCE:

Q Can you tell us where you're sitting, or where you are based today?

A I'm at my office at 2270 Douglas Boulevard, Roseville, California.

Q And what is your profession, sir?

A Certified public accountant.

Q How long have you had your license?

A Since 1982.

Q And we have marked a copy of your resume as Exhibit 23.

A Excuse me, since 1981.

Q All right. We'll give you credit. How long have you provided CPA-related services to the Butler organization?

A Since -- since 1986. It could be since 1985.

Q Do you have a broader based practice that goes beyond just the Butler Company?

A Yes.

Q How big is your practice?

A Approximately 250 clients.

Q Are you happy that April 15th has now passed?

A Yes, but a large backlog.

Q All right. Now in the course of your working with the Butler organization, what is your role? And what kind of records do you wind up with?

A Okay. I'm the outside certified public accountant. And that entails primarily tax work. And then supporting the tax work, we also prepare the general ledger.

And in our efforts to prepare the general ledger, we receive detailed information from each location, and we take that information and record it. And that includes both checking account information, credit card information, and cash transaction information.

We end up with one go-to source for all the transactions for the year. And that general ledger source is what we use to justify the preparation of the tax returns.

Q Now if I was to ask you to focus on the year 2013, is there some way for you to quantify how much substantiation or supporting documentation that you would wind up with for the Butler company?

A Yes. If I were to stack one page on top of another page in a nice, neat, orderly stack, it would be about six feet tall. So that's, I don't know, 25, 30,000 pages.

Q And that's each year?

A Each year. It takes 2,500 to 2,800 hours a year to document and prepare the general ledger accounting and then, all the tax work.

Q And this is the full-blown accounting services, where you enter notes and things like that into the file?

A Yes.

Q In the course of your work preparing the taxes, et cetera, do you have access to the Butler financial information?

A Yes. I mean, the word, financial information, is a big word. It encompasses a lot of things. But, yes.

Q And did you, at my request, identify some information that would be relevant to identifying and qualifying the Butler company for the FLSA exemption?

A Yes.

Q And there are two exhibits. I sent you some exhibits in advance. You have those available to you?

A Yes.

Q The first exhibit, Number 20, can you describe what material you put together in Exhibit 20?

A Okay. Hang on. So Exhibit 20 is a one-page, one-sentence document that says this is a collection of confidential financial documents that provides the source material for populating the Respondent's exemption from the Fair Labor Standards Act as calculated in Exhibit 21. So do you want me to comment on 21?

Q And then there is -- should have been about 115 pages of source material attached to Exhibit 20?

A Yes.

Q And what source material did you gather that fills out the remainder of Exhibit 20?

A Okay. All right. Exhibit 20 has a spreadsheet on top that is two and a quarter pages long that lists each location for the 2012 year that's the basis for the 2013 calculation.

And the revenue by location is broken out between rides, concessions, which means games, and food, and the supporting detail for each of the numbers in the summary of each location is a collection of two months worth of documents. So we took two months as a sample, and pulled the location summary for that location.

So those are the actual source documents that come from the field to us to record the revenue for that week or that location.

We didn't pull the whole year's worth of documents -- they're available -- because that would be a mountain of paperwork.. So we did two months.

So that's Exhibit 20, the summary spreadsheet on top of all locations, and then two months worth of detail to prove it for the months of March and September behind the spreadsheet.

Q Okay. And based on your source material and your knowledge of the Butler operation, were you able to complete a calculation as reflected in Exhibit 21?

A Yes.

Q And where did you go? You talked about having the detail for March and September, I believe. Where did you go to be able to get the numbers that are reflected in Exhibit 21?

A Okay. On the summary spreadsheet, the first several pages of Exhibit 20, that is the location by location revenue. And that revenue is supported by a location summary from the field.

And we took all of that information for the entire year, all the locations for the whole year, the put it into that spreadsheet summary on Exhibit 20. And those are total by month.

So the revenue totals by month on Exhibit 20 are then rolled to Exhibit 21.

So all these revenue numbers are based on all the information that comes from the field by location.

Q Okay. Could you walk us through the calculation that is reflected in Exhibit 21?

A Okay. Exhibit 21, we took the monthly revenue, and you'll see in the third column from the left, January, February, March, April, May, through December.

And the fourth column over is the actual dollar amount of revenue for that month. The month of January had no revenue. That's what the reference A stands for.

The month of February had SEALED. You can see that. The grand total for the year is the SEALED

Once we had all 12 months month-by-month, we then allocated the six lowest to the fifth column, and the six highest to the sixth column, and then did the mathematics for the FLSA of the six lowest and the six highest, and then arrived at the SEALED

Q And that is your understanding of the formula for determining the FLSA exemption for an amusement operator?

A Yes.

MR. PIERCE: And Your Honor, I would move for -- I'm not sure what -- confidentially or something. These numbers are highly proprietary. If a transcript is prepared, I'd like to be able to do something to protect these numbers which we will be hopefully out of here when completed.

JUDGE CLARK: Okay. Ms. Gorman, any objection to that?

MS. GORMAN: No.

JUDGE CLARK: So what I'll do is I'll order that portion of his testimony and these two exhibits, I'll order them sealed, pursuant to FOIA.

Then you'll have a chance, if somebody were to seek that information. The FOIA exemption is determined at the time somebody makes a request for the information.

But I will find that it should be sealed at this point, and that the FOIA process -- you'll be notified that somebody wants the information, and you'll be able to litigate it at that point, because that is done through a different part of my office.

MR. PIERCE: Okay.

JUDGE CLARK: Does that make sense? So I'll make sure that I make a note that Respondent's Exhibits 20 and 21 and the examination of Mr. Nittler regarding the revenue numbers are sealed per FOIA exemption.

MR. PIERCE: Yes.

JUDGE CLARK: Okay. Thank you.

MR. PIERCE: You're welcome.

BY MR. PIERCE:

Q And Mr. Nittler, the final number, SEALED that was your understanding that that would qualify because it was lower than a third?

A Yes.

Q Let's move now to the bunk house issue. And I had talked with you about how much effort it would take, and how much material you had that would substantiate the bunk house cost. Could you describe how much volume we would be talking about to be able to track down information related to the bunk house cost?

A Yes. The calculation of the bunk house cost is if we were 100 percent detailed out in every aspect that we possibly could, it would probably be thousands of pages of detail work.

And that would, of course, take countless hours.

And that is also assuming that the records that the Butler organization maintains has the documents, you know, the underlying documentation from the field exactly in that way.

So for anything that isn't exactly in that way, we would have to use alternative methodologies to determine what an allocated cost would be, one of the allocated elements of cost of bunk houses.

In an effort to calculate an accurate number, we did go to the use of some calculated estimated numbers.

Q And if the counsel for the Administrator had wanted to come and look at this sizeable packet of material, you would have made that available to her?

A Yes.

Q And it was based on your review of that material that you were able to come up with a calculation for the bunk house cost?

A Yes. Our review starts with the general ledger because that's the document that contains all of the recordings of the various expenditures.

And then you can -- anyone can certainly take the general ledger and go identify the actual document. And then we can go pull the actual document to show it, like for instance, if there was a particular invoice.

In my effort to calculate the bunk house cost, I relied on the general ledger without reviewing the underlying documents much, because we recorded the general ledger from those documents. So it would just be redundant work if somebody did that.

Now all that documentation is available, if anyone wants to see an actual item of it.

MR. PIERCE: Let me shift you now to the calculation in Exhibit 31. And Your Honor, for your benefit, there are several copies of the calculation. There is a legibility issue in the original version. So we inserted a slightly different version to make it more readable.

JUDGE CLARK: Okay.

BY MR. PIERCE:

Q Could you walk us through what it is that you are measuring here in Exhibit 31 related to the bunk house?

A Okay. The spreadsheet that I have in front of me has one, two, three, four, five, six, seven, eight, nine, 10, 11, 12, 13, 14, 15, 16, 17, 18, 19, 20, 21, 22, 23, 24, 25 columns. And the columns start on the left with a bunk house, a VIN number, you know, for identification purposes.

The operating unit, the calculation number, one, two, three, four, five, that's just for us to numerically identify which one we're dealing with.

Then there is acquisition and depreciation information. Then we start with the cost. Now the cost column, one, two, three, four, five, six, seventh column from the left is a number that comes from the depreciation schedule.

The depreciation schedule is an accumulation of equipment from year-to-year that is the acquisition and disposition from the inception of the company through 2013.

So we went and identified in the depreciation schedule, bunk houses, and put them on the schedule, this spreadsheet. So there are 24.

One, two, three, four, the fourth column from the left shows the number we assigned, and they're in numerical order, one, two, three, four, all the way up to 24.

The next column over shows the date acquired. So we could go to the depreciation schedule and identify that bunk house.

Now if you go to the first bunk house, on the left, it says -- of the spreadsheet, it says 997 deck bunk house, 48-foot. All right.

One, two, three, four, five, six, seventh column from the left, it says the cost, and you'll see that on the heading of that column. It'll say cost is 30,000. That's the number that we can trace to the depreciation schedule.

So in 1996, there was the purchase of a bunk house for $30,000.00 that's sitting on this depreciation schedule.

Going through this list, there are 24 acquisitions of bunk houses.

Q And the goal of this process was to confirm what the cost basis was for providing of the bunk houses in 2013?

A Yes. Correct, in 2013, that's how many bunk houses we had supported by the depreciation schedule.

The columns to the -- oh, I'll continue going down the cost column. So in determining the cost of operating bunk houses, there are more elements, besides the bunk house itself.

There's -- sometimes, there is an additional trailer cost that has to be added to it. More currently, bunk houses and trailers are built together.

But that doesn't mean that in the past, the bunk house and the trailer were built. They were invoiced together. So we did have some cases where invoicing for the bunk house and for the trailer were separate. And my schedule here takes that into account.

So bunk house number one, the 97 deck, we had a cost of 30,000, and we didn't have a separate trailer cost. In other words, the trailer cost was included in the cost of the bunk house.

And then, we had a 2010 air conditioner purchase which was associated to that bunk house.

And then, we had the semi-tractor, the Freightliner that pulled the bunk house.

Most of these bunk houses are of a size that requires a pretty hefty tractor to pull them. A pickup truck won't do it. You know, it's a safety issue among other things.

When you look at the first item, the first bunk house, the total cost is 78,339.

So we created the total cost for every bunk house, and basically, it is those elements. It is the bunk house, the tractor and then, if there were additional costs, like an air conditioner or something.

All right. After we calculated the total cost of each bunk house, we then created, calculated a current depreciation. And some of those bunk houses are old enough where there is no longer a current depreciation.

And then, some later down the list were more recent purchases, where there still is depreciation.

If you look on that first one, we're showing a depreciation for the air conditioner. It's in column D, if you can see that, Current Year Depreciation, column D, as in dog. It says $1,083.00. And then, the semi depreciation is 6,441.

The next column over is just the total accumulated depreciation we've taken from the date of purchase forward.

The next column over, starting with the column that's marked M, repair/maintenance bunk house, from that point to the right, these are costs that are associated with operating the bunk house. So they'll be allocations of repairs and mattresses, insurance, fuel, driver cost, certain taxes.

So starting with the column M that says repairs, maintenance bunk house, what we did there is we went to our general ledger and we took the total amount of bunk house expenses for repair and maintenance.

And if you go to page two of this spreadsheet, a little bit below the middle of the page, you'll see a number in that column of 126,905. So that's a number off the general ledger.

So we allocated that evenly amongst the bunk houses, except for one that we could specifically identify to a particular bunk house.

The next column is also an M column. It says mattresses. So those are obvious. You know, they're mattresses that we had expenditures for that we specifically knew they were mattresses. So we allocated those out evenly.

The next column says insurance. Now insurance, we allocated insurance on the tractor. We didn't allocate any insurance for the bunk house. We should have.

The way the insurance invoices are, you don't just get to go to the insurance invoice and pick out bunk houses.

So the tractors are easier to pick out and calculate some kind of an average number for all their tractors and apply it here. Bunk houses, no.

So we were conservative in that regard, and didn't show an insurance.

The next column over says T, repair/maintenance for trucks. So that's for the tractor. And that number was calculated through an allocation of insurance. Oops, wait. Let me cut my calls off here. That's al allocation from the 2013 general ledger, and it's allocated evenly.

When you consider that we have, you know, these tens of thousands of pages, and these receipts that come to us in all shapes and sizes, and they're from the field, so these are people that are out there scrambling all the time, and they don't necessarily take a particular little receipt, and identify, you know, which tractor it is or which bunk house, if it was a repair item. They just pay the bill.

So there are plenty of times, the majority of the time, probably, where we don't have a specific reference to what it might be on a receipt. That's why we ended up doing an average allocation.

What we do know from the general ledger is there was 83,504 of repair/maintenance for trucks. Now that's the allocated trucks. That's the allocated total cost of the repairs.

The next column over says T, fuel. And for that first bunk house, it says $5,967.52. So it obviously takes fuel to transport a trailer from location to location.

And that calculation of fuel is based on some work that Tom Shobaken does on tracking miles for his Department of Transportation reporting. And we created an allocation based on Tom Shobaken's report. It is conservative.

If you go to page two of the spreadsheet, a little below the middle of the page, it'll say 118,767. That's the allocation of the fuel cost for the tractor heads going back and forth with the trailers. My impression is that that's a conservative number, also.

When Tom Shobaken does his calculations for the Department of Transportation for multi-state allocations for tractor and trailer usage, he will come up with his methodology to come up with numbers that might be double that, for instance. So we were conservative on our application.

Fuel costs, also, when you have a -- this gets a little confusing. Actually, I think I'll save that comment for a little bit later on where it might make a little more sense here.

A little bit later on is the next column, driver cost. Okay. Driver cost, if you go down to the second page in the middle, it says 245,376.

The driver cost is a calculation that we did of $600.00 a week gross pay, plus payroll tax is at nine percent, plus a 33 percent workers' comp, for 36 weeks, which is on average, that's conservative and then, for eight drivers. Okay.

Well, obviously, having 24 bunk houses at one point in time, it's going to be a lot more than eight drivers. And when you look at how that would work, if you were jumping from one location to the next location, and it's 50 miles, one driver can go back two, three, four times. So you don't need as many drivers for that day or that week for that bunk house.

If, however, you're driving from -- jumping from Sacramento to Idaho at 6 or 700 miles, you would need 24 drivers to transport 24 bunk houses.

So it's -- using eight drivers is certainly conservative. I'm not sure what the exact number would be. That's one of those areas where we would have to dig into some detail and try to figure out the number of drivers per jump that were working.

So when we take that 245,000 and allocate it out, that's the $10,00.00 -- $10,224.00 driver cost.

Now there is another element to be conservative of this, and that is the allocation of workers' comp. We use an overall allocation rate of 33 percent, which is also very likely conservative.

Because each state has their own workers' comp or you pay workers' comp separately in each state, some states have a workers' comp rate like Washington and Idaho, Arizona have workers' comp rates that are, let's say one third of what Butler pays in California.

So Butler in California, if you pay an employee $1,000.00, workers' comp, depending on the year, can run, you know, $800.00 on a thousand in wages.

So when we do our calculation here, we will certainly be conservative in how much the workers' comp allocation to drive cost would be.

The next column over, the next two columns are some of the taxes related to having tractor heads. So they're fairly small numbers. But they're based on allocations that Tom Shobaken gives us.

And then, going further to the right, there's a licensing cost to the Department of Motor Vehicles for trailers and tractors.

And those, if you look at my first bunk house there, the 97 bunk deck, we said $25.00 for the trailer, bunk house, and $100.00 for the tractor. Okay. We just picked a number.

If we went and dived into all the detail, I'm sure we're going to find that it's a bunch more than that.

The next column over -- so this is the second column from the right -- it says rent, $6,442.00. Okay. The grand total for the year of this rent cost is 110,662. That is the total amount of rent that Butler paid for the year for slip fees.

So when Butler goes to a location and they rent slips to put the bunk houses, that's how much they paid in rent. So we allocated that out.

Q Mr. Nittler, let me stop you there. You used the term slip fee. Is that the rent that is paid to the property owner to be able to park the equipment?

A Yes, exactly.

Q Okay.

A That number of 110,000 is off the general ledger and then we allocated it out. The last column is the utilities. So you can imagine that these bunk houses get hooked up so that the individuals have heating and air.

And you can also imagine that since a lot of the route is in the valley, is in the summer time, that the utilities run quite a bit.

So we took the location utilities, invoices, receipts that come from the location summaries out in the field. And that number recorded in the general ledger was 56,715. That's on the second page, in the middle of the page on the spreadsheet. And then we allocated that out equally amongst the bunk houses.

So if you take all 24 of these units calculated this way and divide it out, that's how you get $134.39, which is, at the very top of my spreadsheet, is that box.

Q That's intended to be the weekly cost per worker for that year of 2013?

A Yes, on a conservative calculation.

Q And the methodology that you went through and testified about, was that a methodology that is accepted in your profession?

A Yes.

Q Let's now move to Exhibit 33, and the relocation cost material. Could you explain what it is that you have gathered as part of Exhibit 33?

A Yes. One minute? Okay. Exhibit 33 is the travel airfare. Is that what you're after?

Q Or, whatever is in there. But it's related to relocation cost, in and out of country cost?

A Okay, yes. Now what we did here was we went through our records and we accumulated the cost of transportation out of the country for what came through the general ledger. So this is what we actually had receipts for, or some kind of document.

In 2013 -- well, let me make a general comment first. So every year, the sophistication of the industry, of the company, of the rides, of the accounting upgrades, it keeps getting better.

And the documentation of what was available for a cash business like this back in the eighties is much different than the documentation that's available for a cash business many times larger today.

So in 2013, this is a list, Exhibit 33 is a copy of a document that we actually had showing expenditures for personnel out of the country.

My suspicion, just as an accountant, is there is more. We just didn't have it.

Now I say that because this is a cash industry, and of course, it has a long history. And early on, it was very common in this industry for organizations to bring in revenue and pay out expenses and not capture the revenue and the expense gross, which means if you had a $100.00 revenue and you had a $90.00 expense, it was common for companies in the industry to not show the 100 and the 90, but to show the 10.

So the calculation of that income and all that kind of stuff was all fine. But it didn't necessarily show all the detail.

So like I say, from the 1980s to the 1990s to the 2000s, that progressively got better and better.

So in 2013, with the whole concept of H-2B workers and requirements for documentation, it was different than what it was -- you know, the level of understanding for that just even a few years later.

So for instance, if we were to take 2017 to demonstrate the extent of documentation, we have a lot more.

So 2013, I think my conclusion is I think there is a lot more expense. But this list, this package of documents is what we did have.

Q And based on your efforts, you were able to compile that into a chart what is marked as Exhibit 34?

A Yes.

Q And what are we seeing in Exhibit 34?

A Okay. The travel charges -- and it makes sense. The travel charges that we did see came from credit card charges.

So you'll see in the third column from the left Visa and American Express references. There is one check at the very top of the list there.

Let's see. You know, one other general understanding to put out is that when you're a traveling -- temporary traveling organization, and you have a location for one week in the middle of nowhere, let's say, and you're dealing with vendors, vendors don't want your checks. They don't have a high comfort level, that if something goes wrong with that check, that they're going to find you and be able to get paid.

So that's one reason why cash was used so much. It was available. And once you pay a vendor with cash, you know they're okay.

So the industry still does, you know, practices a lot of those same techniques that they had from years of operating that way.

The Butler organization, you know, millions and millions of dollars goes through banks with check support and then some credit card stuff and all that.

But there is still a large portion that's going through cash.

So this one, when we went through the general ledger, the specific identification of travel confirmations came mostly through the credit card, with one going through a check on a behalf account.

And we gleaned what we could in name and destinations. So some of them, you'll see. Two thirds of the way down my list, you'll see some CEA travel, C-E-A travel. It's a bus to the airport at LAX.

So the next question is, okay, "We bussed a lot of people to LAX. Do we have the LAX airfare receipt? No, I didn't locate one." But that doesn't mean it didn't happen because the people were transported. It means it might have been a cash transaction.

The check at the very top of the list, Dale Travel Services, you'll see that it had one of the routes that ends in September. It's up in Yakima, Washington. So you'll see that they transported by airfare 35 people to Mexico City. That's the $7,680.00 charged check payment.

And then, there were some individual ones, where the name, like Omar Pedro was listed. And we had some blanket ones. A little bit down the list, it's a credit card charge with -- referencing that it was 20 employees on September 28th for $4,400.00.

JUDGE CLARK: Can I stop you for a second?

MR. PIERCE: Hold on a second, Steve.

JUDGE CLARK: Mr. Pierce, I'm just wondering if there might be some way to speed this up a little bit. He's going through a lot of detail. I think the document sort of explains it. The columns are there.

I don't know if you can get to what numbers he wants me to know here. Or, if you think this is what I really need to know later, that's fine. But it seems like we're spending a lot of time going through sort of stuff that is almost self-explanatory from this document.

But I do appreciate some of the information about, you know, why there's not necessarily something there. Anyway, I'll turn it back over to you.

BY MR. PIERCE:

Q Mr. Nittler, in the case of Exhibit 34, there are two numbers at the bottom that appear to be compilations, 18,000 and some, and 8,000 and some.

Are those the two cumulative numbers that are relevant for in and out of country?

A That's the relevant documentation for the travel out of the country for -- based on receipts.

Q And there's no information here that directly pertains to what it costs to get the guys into the country. Correct?

A Correct.

Q And all these numbers, you believe were related to getting the H-2B workers back home, more or less at the end of the season?

A Correct.

Q All right. Let's look at Exhibit 35.

A Okay.

Q Could you just, you know, give us a thumbnail sketch of what you gathered for source documents in Exhibit 35 related to local convenience travel.

A Okay. Local convenience travel, I will use the wording passenger vans. So they have vans that are, you know, built to carry local passengers.

And they had -- on the depreciation schedule, we have one, two, three, four, five, six, seven, eight, nine, 10, 11, 12, 13, 14, 15, 16, 17. 18. 19.

And these passenger vans have a certain capacity. If you add them all up, it comes out to 231, so for an average of 12 per van.

We did similar to the bunk house. We -- we did an allocation of expenses, including the cost and a depreciable amount for that, vehicle insurance, which was also an allocation that was equal to each vehicle.

And then also, the repairs, we had an allocation for that that was equal.

Those are numbers based on general ledger, accumulated number. And we used for fuel and driver cost and license, the same numbers that we used for bunk houses.

So whether you're driving a passenger van or you're driving a semi that's pulling a bunk house, you're going to have the same driver costs.

When we take all the accumulated cost, which the calculation at the bottom of the spreadsheet shows that, the accumulated cost was 417,911.

And divide it out by 36 weeks, and the number of passengers, we get $50.25 per passenger per week.

Q Okay. And that was intended to follow similarly to the methodology you did related to the bunk house?

A Yes.

Q And this number of $50.25 was intended to capture the cost per week to be able to get the H-2B workers to Wal-Mart or Western Union, wherever they needed to get to?

A It would -- it would entail anything that the passenger vans are used for.

MR. PIERCE: All right. Your Honor, that's my Direct.

JUDGE CLARK: Ms. Gorman, any questions?

MR. PIERCE: Steve, hang on a second. We're going to switch gears with a new lawyer.

JUDGE CLARK: I wonder if we should move the phone over to Ms. Gorman.

MS. GORMAN: I'm okay.

JUDGE CLARK: Okay. Cross-Examination. Ms. Gorman, if you want, you can bring a chair up, if you like.

MS. GORMAN: I think I can come up there for just a moment. Thank you, Your Honor. Good afternoon, Mr. Nittler. My name is Jeannie Gorman. I'm an attorney for the U.S. Department of Labor.

CROSS-EXAMINATION

BY MS. GORMAN:

Q Can you hear me okay?

A Yes, I can.

Q Okay, excellent. Thank you. I just have a few questions. I didn't get my exhibits, actually. Mr. Nittler, I'm probably just going to dive in the middle here, because I'm a little at sixes and sevens here, not being at my desk. So pardon me. I might be jumping around. And my apologies to the Court, as well. Thank you.

So on Exhibit 33 -- you have a copy of all of the Respondent's Exhibits there. Right? They're two very large binders, sir.

MR. PIERCE: I just sent him the one set he's referencing.

MS. GORMAN: Oh, okay. You only sent him the ones that he's referencing.

BY MS. GORMAN:

Q So you have Exhibit 33. Correct?

A Yes.

Q Okay. And 33, do you see the page numbers at the bottom of those exhibits?

A Yes.

Q Okay, great. I'm looking at 33, page eight.

A Okay.

Q And I'm looking specifically down at the bottom. This is actually kind of the -- what looks like to be a handwritten, highlighted box. It starts with 9/24/13 and the date ends with 9/26. Do you see that?

A Yes.

Q And that indicates that -- oh, I can't add this quickly -- but something around 300 passengers, somewhere around there, were transported between 9/24 and 9/26. Is that right?

A Yes.

Q And did any of the documentation that you reviewed indicate those passenger names?

A Not related to the CEA travel.

Q Okay. And the CEA travel, you mean the C-E-A, that specific travel agency. Right?

A Correct.

Q So you don't know whether they were the H-2B non immigrant workers, or other workers. Correct?

A Correct.

Q I'm looking at Exhibit 34 on the first page. This is again related to travel, the travel confirmations?

A Yes.

Q And this shows that there were a total of 395 employees that were -- that somehow were charged -- not charged -- that Butler paid for for the period of time, looks like about the end of August to the beginning of October?

A These are the payments, you know, credit card charges with an estimated number of employees that the charge is related to.

Q Okay. But this was in the 2013 year. Correct?

A Yes.

Q Okay. Were you aware that Butler Amusements and Michael Brajevich applied to three different branches of the U.S. government to bring in 246 H-2B workers?

A I was not aware of the exact number.

Q Okay.

A The number of employees there is an estimated number just based on mathematics.

Q Okay. But you'll agree with me that 395 is a whole lot more than 246. Right?

A Yes.

Q Okay. Before, we were talking about the first exhibit. And I don't want to spend a whole lot of time with it, and I don't have it in front of me. So forgive me.

A May I? May I say something else there?

Q Oh, yeah. But there's no question pending, though.

A Okay.

JUDGE CLARK: Just wait for another question from Ms. Gorman.

THE WITNESS: Okay.

BY MS. GORMAN:

Q So I don't remember the exhibit number, but I think it was the first document we were talking about, where you were going through -- oh, this was the cost for the FLSA exemption. And you said that you used a sample of two months. Do you remember that?

A Yes.

Q And you used March and September as your two sample months. Is that right?

A Yes.

Q Why did you choose those months?

A Arbitrary.

Q You don't know -- I'm sorry. I didn't mean to interrupt you.

A Well, I wanted to pick two months that had plenty of activity, and also months that one would be in the six lowest, and one would be in the six highest. So I picked a month out of each.

The September month is one of the high months, SEALED SEALED out of the six highest. So there's a lot of activity.

And then, the February month, SEALED -- oh, the March month, I'm sorry, SEALED So there's a lot of activity in that month.

So when I pulled the documents to support it, they would have, you know, plenty of locations to see the underlying documentation.

Q Okay, thank you. Have you determined bunk house credit for Butler Amusements for any year, other than 2013?

A No.

Q Did you determine that all of the -- that all of Butler's employees slept in all of the bunk houses all of the time throughout the season?

A I would not be privy to information like that. I don't go out to the locations.

Q You don't actually know who slept in the bunk houses when. Right?

A No, I don't.

Q Okay. Were you ever provided with information from any source that -- where an employee or more than one employee indicated that they did not sleep in the bunk houses?

A No, I was not provided information like that. It's not something I would need to record general ledger accounting.

Q Are you aware that this Employer pays workers' compensation for their H-2B employees?

A I believe they do.

Q What is your belief based on?

A Invoices that we've seen.

Q Where you have lined up the H-2B employees and the non H-2B employees?

A No. I did not go into that detail, that level of analysis.

Q So you never actually, specifically determined that work comp costs were paid for H-2B employees. Right?

A No, I did not.

Q And you were never provided information specifically that work comp was paid for H-2B employees?

A I would have to go back and look at my 2013 detail of invoices to tell you if I have invoices for the workers' comp.

Q But your analysis, as we just went through it, does not include an analysis that specifically applies to the H-2B employees. Right?

A I'm confused. Which analysis are you talking about?

A I'm talking about -- well, we were talking about work comp. So I don't -- I don't have the exhibit. But I know that there was one schedule that you did that you were speaking to Mr. Pierce about that included the workers' compensation costs. Right? And I think it might have been the driving. Or, perhaps it was the depreciation on the bunk houses.

A Okay. Okay.

Q I don't remember specifically.

A Okay.

Q And like I said, I don't have my exhibits in front of me. So that's the analysis that I'm referencing.

A Okay. The Butler organization is audited for workers' comp every year. All years are always audited, regardless of what the workers' comp policy time frame is in California.

Q Okay. That wasn't my question, though.

A And workers' comp state fund doesn't -- it would be inconceivable that they would allow Butler to not pay workers' comp on employees of any type.

MS. GORMAN: Okay. Again, that wasn't my question. So I would move to strike as unresponsive.

JUDGE CLARK: I'm going to let the answer stand. Ask another question.

MS. GORMAN: Okay. I'm going to ask the same question because I don't think I got an answer to it.

JUDGE CLARK: Very good. Ask the question.

THE WITNESS: Okay.

MS. GORMAN: Thank you.

BY MS. GORMAN:

Q The analysis that you did into the depreciation of the vehicles does not include a distinct, a specific examination of the work comp costs for H-2B employees. Correct?

A Boy. Are you referring to the driver costs associated with a bunk house?

Q It was whatever schedule that you did that included the work comp costs.

A Okay. I think I know what you're referring to.

MR. PIERCE: Steve? Steve, hold on for a second.

JUDGE CLARK: Mr. Pierce, this is a little unusual because of the phone situation. And Ms. Gorman doesn't have her exhibits. Would you just reference the exhibit number that has the workers' compensation costs? I thought maybe it was 31.

MR. PIERCE: I don't know if I can answer that, Your Honor.

JUDGE CLARK: I think it's Exhibit 31.

MR. PIERCE: I was looking at 31, but I'm not seeing it.

JUDGE CLARK: It is Exhibit 31, it appears to be. That was the average housing cost. That's what had the rent, utilities, licenses. The OGOT, slash IFTA, I think was the column related to workers' comp.

Mr. Nittler, would you look at Exhibit Number 31, page one, please? And tell me if that document includes a column related to workers' compensation.

THE WITNESS: I'm sorry, are you talking to me?

MR. PIERCE: Yes.

JUDGE CLARK: Yes.

THE WITNESS: Please restate. I didn't hear.

JUDGE CLARK: Would you please look at Exhibit

Number 31?

THE WITNESS: Okay, 31.

JUDGE CLARK: Page one.

THE WITNESS: Yes.

JUDGE CLARK: And tell us if there is a column there that refers to workers' compensation costs.

THE WITNESS: Column T, driver costs has an element of workers' comp included.

JUDGE CLARK: Okay.

BY MS. GORMAN:

Q Do the numbers reflected in that column that the judge just identified for you, do they include a distinction between work comp costs for H-2B employees, and work comp costs for non H-2B employees?

A No. Workers' comp is based on dollars, not on what kind of personnel.

Q When you were talking -- when you were testifying about the definition -- or, the inclusion of drivers for the drivers' cost for what you termed as the incidental travel, do you remember that testimony?

A Yes.

Q Did your inclusion of drivers include any H-2B employees who were performing driving duties?

A I don't have knowledge of whether H-2B workers drove passenger vans or not.

Q Do you know whether the passenger vans only transported H-2B employees, or if it transported other employees, as well?

A I don't know. I'm not privy to people that were transported, H-2B or not.

Q Have you ever determined FLSA exemption status for any other Employer, other than Butler Amusements?

A No.

MS. GORMAN: Thank you, I have nothing further.

JUDGE CLARK: Mr. Pierce, any further questions?

MR. PIERCE: No.

JUDGE CLARK: Mr. Nittler, you are done. Thank you so much for your time today.

THE WITNESS: All right, thank you. Bye.

(Witness excused.)

JUDGE CLARK: He hung up the phone. Thank you again for letting us use your cellphone for that call.

MR. PIERCE: I think we have another one coming.

JUDGE CLARK: It is 4:20, however. So your next witness is Mr. Shobaken. How long do you anticipate him taking? I'm thinking we can just break for the day, and start again tomorrow morning, still with the idea that we're going to be done tomorrow. And doing two witnesses tomorrow seems pretty reasonable.

MR. PIERCE: It does.

JUDGE CLARK: Is Mr. Shobaken available tomorrow?

MR. PIERCE: I actually told him tomorrow was a more likely time.

JUDGE CLARK: Okay. Do you want to confirm with him? Or, do you want to just go ahead and start tomorrow morning? We'll start at 9:00. Do we anticipate being done by 4:30 tomorrow?

MR. PIERCE: I hope we're done before that.

JUDGE CLARK: Before lunch, maybe? I don't know. I don't know how long Mr. Brajevich is going to be. We need to make sure Mr. Shobaken is available.

(Off the record.)

JUDGE CLARK: Anything further for the record today, Ms. Gorman?

MS. GORMAN: No.

JUDGE CLARK: Mr. Pierce?

MR. PIERCE: No.

JUDGE CLARK: Then we will be adjourned until 9:00 tomorrow morning. Good night, everyone. Off the record.

(Whereupon, the proceedings concluded at 4:20 o'clock p.m.)

FINAL DETERMINATION

December 14, 2012

James K Judkins
32775 FM 106
Rio Hondo, TX 78583

ETA Case Number: H-400-12313-874905
Number of Openings: 246
Occupation: Amusement and Recreation Attendants
Period of Certification: 02/01/2013 - 10/31/2013

RE: BUTLER AMUSEMENTS, INC

Dear Sir/Madam:

Your application seeking temporary labor certification under the H-2B temporary nonagricultural program has been reviewed and certified. The Department of Labor (Department) has made a final determination on your Application for Temporary Employment Certification in accordance with Departmental regulations at 20 Code of Federal Regulations (CFR) sec. 655, Subpart A. Based on the documentation and attestations provided by the employer, the Department hereby certifies that a sufficient number of able, willing and qualified U.S. workers have not been identified as being available at the time and place needed to fill the job opportunities for which certification is sought, and the employment of the H-2B temporary workers in such labor or services will not adversely affect the wages and working conditions of U.S. workers.

The Application for Temporary Employment Certification, ETA Form 9142, has been certified and is enclosed.

Upon receipt of this notification, you will need to submit Form I-129 and all required documentation, including the original, certified H-2B Application for Temporary Employment Certification to the appropriate U.S. Citizenship and Immigration Service (USCIS) office. The USCIS application form and additional information can be obtained at http://www.uscis.gov.

Important Note

With respect to the offered wage guarantee, this certification assumes that the employer will pay the certified weekly wage for 40 hours of work per week, as indicated in Section G of the employer's ETA Form 9142. Please remember that consistent with the Department's regulations at 20 C.F.R. sec. 655.22(e) the employer is required to pay the H-2B workers and U.S. workers recruited in connection with an H-2B application, the certified offered wage during the entire period of the approved H-2B labor certification. The offered wage must equal or exceed the highest of the most recent prevailing wage that is or will be issued by the Department to the employer for the time period the work is performed, or the applicable Federal, State, or local minimum wage. If that prevailing wage was issued by the Department as an hourly wage (indicating that similarly-employed U.S. workers earn that wage for each hour of work), then the employer is required to pay H-2B or U.S. workers recruited in connection with an H-2B application at least that hourly wage for all hours worked, including those hours in excess of 40 hours of work per week. This requirement of the H-2B program is independent of any applicable exemption from the provisions of the Fair Labor Standards Act. Please remember that the H-2B regulations also require compliance with applicable State and local employment laws, which may require a higher rate of pay for overtime hours.

Important Reminders

In accordance with Departmental regulations at 20 CFR sec. 655.24(a), the Department has the authority to conduct audits of H-2B temporary labor certification applications. Employers with certified applications selected for audit will receive an official letter from our office requesting documentation in support of the application. Failure to comply with the audit process may result in the employer being placed on supervised recruitment in accordance with Departmental regulations at 20 CFR sec. 655.30, or debarment in accordance with Departmental regulations at 20 CFR sec. 655.31.

In accordance with Departmental regulations at 20 CFR sec. 655.22(f), upon separation from employment of H-2B worker(s) employed under the labor certification application, if such separation occurs prior to the end date of the employment specified in the application, the employer will notify the Department and DHS in writing of the separation from employment not later than 2 work days after such separation is discovered by the employer. An abandonment or abscondment shall be deemed to begin after a worker fails to report for work at the regularly scheduled time for 5 consecutive working days without the consent of the employer. Employees may be terminated for cause.

Terminations and job abandonment notifications sent to the Department, must be sent to the email address at H2B.Abandonment&Termination.Chicago@dol.gov. Employers without Internet access may also send written notification by facsimile to (312) 886-1688 (ATTN: H-2B Abandonment and Termination).

For all future applications or requests for extension, the employer must submit the most current:

- ETA Form 9142, Appendix B.1: http://www.foreignlaborcert.doleta.gov/pdf/ETA_Form_9142_APPENDIX_B1.pdf.

B. Employer Declaration

By virtue of my signature below, I HEREBY CERTIFY the following conditions of employment:

1. The job opportunity is a bona fide, full-time temporary position, the qualifications for which are consistent with the normal and accepted qualifications required by non-H-2B employers in the same or comparable occupations.
2. The job opportunity is not vacant because the former occupant(s) is (are) on strike or locked out in the course of a labor dispute involving a work stoppage.
3. The job opportunity is open to any qualified U.S. worker regardless of race, color, national origin, age, sex, religion, handicap, or citizenship, and the employer has conducted the required recruitment, in accordance with regulations, and has been unsuccessful in locating sufficient numbers of qualified U.S. applicants for the job opportunity for which certification is sought. Any U.S. workers who applied or apply for the job were or will be rejected only for lawful, job-related reasons, and the employer must retain records of all rejections.
4. The offered terms and working conditions of the job opportunity are normal to workers similarly employed in the area(s) of intended employment and are not less favorable than those offered to the foreign worker(s) and are not less than the minimum terms and conditions required by Federal regulation at 20 CFR 655, Subpart A.

6. The offered wage is not based on commissions, bonuses or other incentives, unless the employer guarantees a wage paid on a weekly, bi-weekly, or monthly basis that equals or exceeds the prevailing wage, or the legal Federal or State minimum wage, whichever is highest.

ADDENDUM TO ETA 9142

Section F.a.2. Number of Hours Per Week

This Mobile Entertainment Employer is a FLSA (13)(a)(3) exempt employer not subject to an hourly wage, overtime or recordkeeping requirements. The weekly wage has been calculated based upon a standard 40-hour week using the methodology detailed in Section G.1.

If state or local law requires overtime it will be calculated and paid as per applicable federal, state or local regulations. However for purposes of the Federal H-2B Program which respects the employers FLSA 13(a)(3) exemption, employer is not offering an overtime rate of pay nor overtime.

Section F.a.3. Hourly Work Schedule

The work schedule varies widely due to weather conditions, local event organizers, local customs, attendance at the event, day of the week, time of the year and a myriad of other factors. The employer will pay the weekly salary for each week that the worker is employed. Both the SWA and DOL in electronic filings require a set start time and set end time to be posted. The times being posted for recruitment and filing are to provide potential applicants and the agency with a general idea of the afternoon and evening schedules that are typical. Hours on week days will probably be reduced, hours on weekends will probably be increased, and all of the above named conditions can affect the hours actually worked. The employer is not representing to either the applicants or the agencies that these hours are fixed and predictable.

Section F.b.5. Post-Employment Drug and Background Checks

The background checks when conducted do not favor either US or H-2B workers, they are conducted on an equal basis for all employees. Employees come into contact with children at our entertainment events and our company policy, local sponsor policy and common industry practice means that the applicants must be able to pass post-employment background checks in regards to Megan's Law, Felonies and Convictions that would require the employee to register as a sexual offender or predator. Various states, counties, cities and venues require that mobile entertainment operators submit all employees to background checks prior to issuance of operating permits and/or credentials for the workers. These background checks, when conducted, are POST-EMPLOYMENT and are conducted by state/local permitting authorities and/or the venue and apply across the board to all workers, including owners and managers.

The background check is included as a term and condition of employment because employees come into contact with children at our entertainment events and our company policy, local sponsor policy and common industry practice means that the applicants must be able to pass post-employment background checks in regards to Megan's Law, Felonies and Convictions that would require the employee to register as a sexual offender or predator. Not only would we be considered negligent, we could be subject to litigation or criminal prosecution if employees were not subject to background checks. Many fairs (venues) mandate the background checks, so if they were not conducted we would not be able to operate.

We believe that the terms and conditions of employment are normal to similarly employed US workers in this industry. The OABA (Outdoor Amusement Business Association) in conjunction with the IAFE (International Association of Fairs and Expositions) published their "Best Practices" recommendations for Mobile

Entertainment Operators and the Venues, and in those recommendations in 2006, best practices in regards to hiring:

- "Methods and procedures for obtaining background checks on new employees should be shared by the parties."
- "Fairs and Mobile amusement operators should access web sites that provide a register of sex offenders, especially in states that enforce Megan's Law..."
- "The hiring practices of both parties should be examined and, whenever possible, steps should be taken to create better employee recruitment and training programs."

All of the mobile entertainment employers are subject to the same venue & regulatory requirements, so similarly employed workers (US and Foreign) would all be subject to the same terms and conditions.

Various states, localities and venues require either that either the employer conducts drug/background checks or they themselves conduct the drug/background checks prior to issuing operating permits/credentials for the event. As an example of guidelines applicable for industry: http://www.state.il.us/agency/idol/faq/faqcarn.htm These Illinois regulations require background check for all carnival employees and bar employment for convictions for various violent and sexual offences, require drug screening and are similar to local / venue regulations / requirements

These terms and conditions are not less favorable than those offered to H-2B workers because all of the mobile entertainment employers are subject to the same venue & regulatory requirements, so similarly employed workers (US and H-2B) would all be subject to the same terms and conditions.

Our terms and conditions of employment are not less than the minimum terms and conditions required by the regulation.

Further and without question, these tests will be administered equally between all US and H2B workers.

It is highly unlikely that any H-2B worker, who passed the background check conducted by the Department of State prior to visa issuance and the Department of Homeland Security CBP prior to visa issuance, would fail the background check, but if the background check indicated something serious (ie: Megan's Law Violation, Conviction for a Sexual Offence, Felony) then we would have to terminate the US or H-2B worker and follow all applicable regulations in providing transportation home, etc.

Section G.1. Basic Rate of Pay Offered

Mobile Entertainment Employer will pay the variable prevailing wage ($323.60 to $368.40, Average $347.88) as per 9141 Prevailing Wage Determination [P-400-12279-745190] attached. If there are changes in work locations, employer will obtain applicable prevailing wage for work location and pay such wage.

Section G.1.a. Overtime Rate of Pay

This Mobile Entertainment Employer is a FLSA (13)(a)(3) exempt employer not subject to an hourly wage, overtime or recordkeeping requirements. If state or local law requires overtime it will be calculated and paid as per applicable Federal, state or local regulations. However for purposes of the Federal H-2B Program which respects the employers FLSA 13(a)(3) exemption, employer is not offering an overtime rate of pay nor overtime.

Section G.3. Additional Wage Information:

On the date that the recruitment commenced the Department of Labor's H-2B Wage Methodology was subject to litigation. It is unknown if the Department will further postpone the effective date, or will be legally barred from implementing, the Wage Methodology for the Temporary Non-Agricultural Employment H-2B Program Final Rule, 76 FR 3452 (Jan 19, 2011).

Accordingly, the employer will pay the Variable Prevailing Wage Determination that is valid at the time of employment. Merit increases and/or bonuses may be awarded at employer discretion.

As per prevailing practices of the mobile entertainment industry for both similarly employed US and foreign workers:

- Employer makes available mobile housing valued at $125.00 per week.
- Employer makes available transportation from venue to venue and scheduled transportation to laundry, shopping valued at $25.00 per week.
- Employer is an Equal Opportunity, FLSA Section 13(a)(3) Exempt Employer. Depending upon applicable wage laws, wage to be paid as either weekly or hourly salary, no overtime expected.

If the wage to be paid is higher that the Variable Prevailing Wage Determination, the employer reserves the right to charge a fee for housing and transportation, but the effective rate of pay will not be lower than the Variable Prevailing Wage Determination.

I declare under penalty of perjury that I have read and reviewed this application and that to the best of my knowledge the information contained therein is true and accurate. I understand that to knowingly furnish false information in the preparation of this form and any supplement thereto or to aid, abet, or counsel another to do so is a felony punishable by a $250,000 fine or 5 years in the Federal penitentiary or both (18 U.S.C. 1001).

several dates there are multiple locations listed. Due to the nature of the business, there are some events that are large enough to support the entire carnival. At other points in time the show must spend some equipment (and workers) to additional locations. When our tour schedule requires our show to handle simultaneous locations or overlapping locations, employer will send workers to locations depending upon the venue and how many rides we will have operating at one venue in comparison to the number of rides operating at the other venues. Our unit continues with the other listed venues and we repeat the process when we encounter simultaneous or overlapping locations again.

3. Explain your temporary need for the beneficiary or beneficiaries' services (Attach a separate sheet if additional space is needed.)

Our family has been in the Carnival Business all of our lives,providing entertainment, rides, games and concessions on a seasonal basis. This company was founded in 1969.

We have a seasonal need for these workers, recurring on an annual basis. This is because we are open for a specific season each year and we are a traveling business, the work is evenings and weekends, and it is very difficult to find workers willing to travel from State to State. Even with the economic downturn people do not want to leave their homes and families to travel from event to event. We are unable to find available workers in the US to fill the positions to travel with the show.

This is a need that is seasonal and expected to be recurrent annually from February through October each year. The business has been seasonal since we began, completely shutting down for the months of November through end of January each year, and the need for seasonal workers has been constant.

We engage in extensive recruiting in hopes of fulfilling our seasonal needs. This recruiting process includes newspaper ads, using the DOL Job Search Protocol and help wanted signs at all of our locations. Our chronic need for employees is not filled.

While our need for temporary workers is recurrent annually, predictable and seasonal, the nature of the outdoor amusement business is that our events have longer hours and higher attendance when school is not in session, requiring an increase in staff when school vacation starts. We request permission for staggered entry for a limited number of workers when our temporary need increases based upon this business need.

FLSA exemption 13(a)(3) applies to this employer in State and Local venues that respect the FLSA exemption 13(a)(3). California Industrial Welfare Commission Order 10-2001 applies to this employer while working in the State of California. Employer follows prevailing practices for the Traveling Amusement Industry in regards to housing, transportation and weekly salary for workers.

Employer is traveling amusement operation. Above is a complete listing of booked and anticipated (pending) locations for the time period covered by this Job Order, listing city, county, state and prevailing wage listing from ONET/OES Site. It should be noted that for several dates there are multiple locations listed. Due to the nature of the business, there are some events that are large enough to support the entire carnival. At other points in time the show must spend some equipment (and workers) to additional locations. When our tour schedule requires our show to handle simultaneous locations or overlapping locations, employer will send workers to locations depending upon the venue and how many rides we will have operating at one venue in comparison to the number of rides operating at the other venues. Our unit continues with the other listed venues and we repeat the process when we encounter simultaneous or overlapping locations again.

- [ ] b. PeakLoad
- [ ] c. Intermittent
- [ ] d. One-time occurrence

2. Temporary need is: (Check one)

- [ ] a. Unpredictable
- [ ] b. Periodic
- [x] c. Recurrent annually

3. Explain your temporary need for the beneficiary or beneficiaries' services (Attach a separate sheet if additional space is needed.)

Our family has been in the Carnival Business all of our lives,providing entertainment, rides, games and concessions on a seasonal basis. This company was founded in 1969.

We have a seasonal need for these workers, recurring on an annual basis. This is because we are open for a specific season each year and we are a traveling business, the work is evenings and weekends, and it is very difficult to find workers willing to travel from State to State. Even with the economic downturn people do not want to leave their homes and families to travel from event to event. We are unable to find available workers in the US to fill the positions to travel with the show.

This is a need that is seasonal and expected to be recurrent annually from February through October each year. The business has been seasonal since we began, completely shutting down for the months of November through end of January each year, and the need for seasonal workers has been constant.

We engage in extensive recruiting in hopes of fulfilling our seasonal needs. This recruiting process includes newspaper ads, using the DOL Job Search Protocol and help wanted signs at all of our locations. Our chronic need for employees is not filled.

While our need for temporary workers is recurrent annually, predictable and seasonal, the nature of the outdoor amusement business is that our events have longer hours and higher attendance when school is not in session, requiring an increase in staff when school vacation starts. We request permission for staggered entry for a limited number of workers when our temporary need increases based upon this business need.

California Industrial Welfare Commission Order 10-2001 applies to this employer while working in the State of California. Above is a complete listing of booked and anticipated (pending) locations for the time period covered by this Job Order, listing city, county, state and prevailing wage listing from ONET/OES Site. It should be noted that for several dates there are multiple locations listed. Due to the nature of the business, there are some events that are large enough to support the entire carnival. At other points in time the show must spend some equipment (and workers) to additional locations. When our tour schedule requires our show to handle simultaneous locations or overlapping locations, employer will send workers to locations depending upon the venue and how many rides we will have operating at one venue in comparison to the number of rides operating at the other venues. Our unit continues with the other listed venues and we repeat the process when we encounter simultaneous or overlapping locations again.

Statement:

I am from Veracruz, Mexico. Maria Isabel is my wife and she also works for this company. She has a cell phone for the both of us. I do not remember the number. I have worked with this company for 9 seasons. I started at the beginning of February this year, that is when I arrived. I arrived to Indio, California. My wife has been working for Butler for 5 seasons. We are both here with a work visa. We have representatives from Butler in my town, Victor Apolinar, he is my brother. Butler does not ask anything for the paperwork , the visa or the passport. They arrange everything. Victor asked us for all of the required information, whether we had any problems with the police, our interest level. He explains the nature of the work and how it will be done here. We do not have to pay anything to get this job. We just pay for the passport. We pay like 1,500 pesos for the food, hotel and travel for the interview at the Monterrey consulate. The company pays for the transport to Indio, CA. The work schedule varies from one city to another, sometimes it is 38 hours per week, sometimes it is 40. The hours of the fairs, the number of days the fair operates and the hours of operations of the fair all determine our schedule. The maximum number of hours I've worked in one day is 6 hours in Inidio and in Fresno, for 6 days in that week. We vary the hours between various people, sometimes I work 2 hours and then rest for two hours, other times I work 1 hour and I rest 1 hour. We also share the shifts and if there are 10 hours of fair in one day, I work 5 hours and a coworker will work 5. In the fairs on the weekend they open 5-6 hour, on the weekdays 3-4 hours. The maximum number of hours that I've worked consecutively is 2 hours and then 2 hours of break. We usually we start at night, 10 to 12 hours and we share shifts. The time that we start to work varies. Today we began at 10 am checking the rides for about an hour. I used to work on another ride, Battle Ship, and they used a paper where we would write a description of the hours and work. We did not use this paper this year. I do not know if they write the hours on the inspection sheet when we begin and when we end. After inspecting the ride I am going to rest and have breakfast. I am going to begin again at 4 pm. I do not know who is in charge, but someone comes to check how many people are working on a ride and they write down the hours of work. They check on us when we start working. There is also a checker that comes by throughout the day, making the rounds and he also writes down the time that we start our shifts. They pay me $350 every week in cash. They put the hours worked on the paper and we sign that it is correct. That I have seen, sometime she hours are less than what we have worked in reality, but they always pay us the same amount regardless. When we set up the rides everyone stops at 12pm to eat lunch. I live in the housing, the trailers. There are 4 people in m trailer, there are 8-10 people in total in the 10 little rooms. They do not deduct anything from my check for the trailer, for light or water. Carmen is my wife. They take us to the store for food and laundry. We do not pay for transportation. I came with this ride in the truck from Concord to Santa Barbara. Juan, one of their drivers, drove the truck. We left at 2 in the morning on Monday after we took down the rides on Sunday night and we arrived at 7 or 7:30 am in the morning on Monday. Sometimes we travel from one city to another in the morning. They give us a shirt for the job and identification. We do not have to pay for this. I do not receive a bonus. I do the operation and inspection of the ride.

I have read this interview and it is true and correct.

el trabajo como es. No tenemos que pagar nada para conseguir el trabajo. Siempre pagamos para el pasaporte. Pagamos como 1500 pesos para cada hotel para la entrevista en [illegible] Malaysia. La compañía paga para el transporte a India LA. El horario de trabajo varía de un hotel a otro, a veces es 36 por semana, a veces 40. Los horarios de fin de semana, cuando dicen el fin de semana, el horario por el día del fin. El horario normal es 6 horas en India y en Francia por 6 días en los días de semana. Normalmente el horario entre varias personas. A veces trabajo 2 horas y descanso 2 horas, otra vez 1 hora de trabajo 1 hora de descanso. Todos comparten los turnos y si hay 10 horas de fin en un día, yo trabajo 5 horas y un compañero trabaja 5. En los fines de semana son 5-6 horas, en los días de la semana 3-4 horas. Lo mismo que trabajo siguiente es 2 horas y después 2 horas de descanso. Usualmente empezamos para la tarde y trabajamos 10-12 horas y comparten los turnos. La hora que empezamos a trabajar varía. Hay empezar con un compañero a las 10 a después el juego por más menos una hora. Antes trabajé en otro Bath/juego y ellos tenían un papel donde escribían y nos daban un papelito para llenar las horas de trabajo, en los juegos donde la estadía no necesitamos este papel este año. Nadie escribe las horas que empezamos y cuando terminamos. Después de empezar muy a descansar y cenamos. Después hay empezar de nuevo a las cinco. No se quien se encarga, pero alguien viene a chequear cuantas personas trabajan en un juego y las horas del trabajo.

as Rides Operator/Driver
(Occupation or description of duties)

Statement: I have worked for Butler Amusements, Inc. since 2001. Each year I return back to Mexico in October when my contract is completed. This year I started working for the company Butler Amusements in February 2013. I work for the company under the H-2B program. The company paid for my visa and they did not charge me.

I operate the Wave Swingers ride for the company. The Wage Swingers ride is not for children. I take the tickets from the persons who want to ride the Wage Swingers ride. I also make sure that the persons are secured in the ride. I also set-up and break down the ride when we leave to work at another city. Four workers operate the Wave Swingers ride. The same four workers set-up the ride in approximately six hours and we take five hours to break down the ride. Two workers operate the ride per work shift. When I operate the ride, I work two hours and then take a two hour break, and continue the same pattern until my work shift is over. When I take a break every two hours during my work shift, I do not work. If I start at 10:00 in the morning, I finish my work shift at 10:00 in the evening, or 12:00 in the morning depending when the fair closes, but never work more than six hours per work shift. My workweek opens on Monday and closes on Sunday. I work six to seven days per week. I regularly work 36 to 42 hours per week. On the last day of the fair, I can work 12 hours on that day because I need to break down the Wage Swingers ride.

I also drive a company van and transport workers to the cities where we are going to work. After the ride is broken down, I rest three hours and then drive the van and transport the workers where we are going to work. From Lompoc, California to Santa Barbara, it took one hour to arrive in Santa Barbara. From Santa Barbara we will be going to Indio or Barstow, California, and will drive approximately four or five hours. The time that I drive the van depends on how far we are going to work.

The company pays me a salary ... $575.00 per week. I am paid $525.00 to operate the Wave Swingers ride, and $50.00 to drive the van and transport the workers. It does not matter how far I drive the van, I am only paid $50.00 for each trip.

I am paid my salary in cash, and it is given to me in an envelope with the gross amount noted on the envelope. Nothing is deducted from my gross salary.

Mari Lou records the hours and days that I work, but I don't complete a time card. I don't know Mari Lou's last name.

The company gives me a polo shirt with the company's name Butler Amusements, and it is free. I buy a second polo shirt for work and it cost me $16.00.

The company gives me free living accommodations, and I live in a trailer.

My salary does not change when we go to different cities to work. I am not paid bonuses during each week.

My supervisor is Antonio Mendez and he supervises my work.

I do have a driver's license (Confidential, class C – observed by INV Jimenez).

"I have read the above and it is true to the best of my knowledge."

Statement:

I have worked for Butler maybe six seasons. I started to work this year in February in Indio, California. I have worked in eight locations since February.

I put up and tear down the rides. I am in charge of two employees and the ride called "Foot loose." I earn $350 each week. Pay day is Sundays. I receive cash in an envelope with my name on it. There are no deductions from my salary. I am cooking my own meals and I am not paying anyone to do it.

The employer is paying all my expenses from Nuevo Leon.

Normally, I am working six days each week. Normally I start at 9 am until 12 noon. I have an hour to eat and then I work 1 pm until 5 pm or 6 pm – depends on the day. (This is the schedule for putting up the rides)

During the fair, maybe 11 am until 1 pm and then a rest of one hour, and afterwards two or three hours of work and another hour break, until the fair is closed – maybe 10 pm or 11 pm or 12 pm. Usually, six to eight hours each day. Sometimes, the fair is open only at 5 pm until 10 pm or 11 pm.

Sundays – tearing down. Mondays we travel. Tuesdays and Wednesdays we are putting up the rides. The fair is usually Thursdays, Fridays, Saturdays, and Sundays.

The day of tearing down are long days. Maybe four hours to tear down a ride and we finish at 2 am or 3 am. The next day, Mondays, we are traveling to another location. I leave maybe at 8 am for another location.

There is no method to record my hours worked. The supervisor knows when I have to work. My supervisor is Antonio Mendez.

Taken/translated WHI Mortland

The least hours in a week is about 40 hours and the most hours are maybe 55 to 60 hours.

The workers working with me are working nearly the same hours each week, but they earn a little less - $325 or $330 each week.

I did not have to pay anyone to obtain this job here.

I have read this statement and it is true.

Statement:

I began working with the company as of January this season. This is the first time that I am working with this company. I found out about this job from friends and acquaintances from my town. They recommended me to another friend and I submitted an application. Jim receives the applications submitted from workers in Mexico, he is sent the information. Victor Apolinar received my application and he explained the travel, the length of the work, I received the information in writing and verbally. It had information about the length of the season, what I was going to be doing, the pay. As far as I know everyone receives this information. I did not have to pay anything to get this job, nor to submit my application. I came by bus and the company paid for the travel and the hotel. I have worked 5-6 carnivals this season. The work schedule does not vary that much between each fair. It depends on the hours and length of each fair. We begin about an hour before the fair opens to check all of the machinery of the ride. I work a maximum of 7 to 8 hours, we work in shifts and take breaks too. For example, if I work 2 hours I will rest 1 -2 hours and then I begin again. In one week from Monday to Sunday I work about 50-56 hours. There are times when we rest for the full day on a Monday or when there is no fair certain days. Everything depends on how many days the fair runs and when it opens. I will always work a maximum of 2 hours on a ride and then they require that we rest. The supervisor of the ride, Antonio on this Zipper ride, and the manager write down the hours that we work. I do not write down the hours that I work for myself. I see my hours in the pay stub that comes with my pay and up until now it has always been correct and I understand it. Write now we are working on the start up, we wash and clean the rides. This is work time and is included in the total hours that are included on the pay stub. I receive my pay every Sunday and my pay is $350 dollars in cash. I send the money to my family and I keep only what I use. They take a couple of us at a time in a company van to a store to send the money. There are assigned divers to do this. I do not pay for the transportation, it is free. They give everyone a shirt, a jacket, a hat and an ID, all of it for free. They do not charge us for any transportation. For example if there is a period of 5 pm to 12 am I work half of that time and I would have 2 breaks of 2 hours. I normally work 6 days a week 6 hours a day. Before Santa Barbara I was with Butler in Lompo, CA. We arrived here on Monday and stayed Tuesday and Wednesday, setting up, cleaning, constructing the rides all in those two days, Thursday we started the fair and we left on Sunday, we took down the rides and finished in 2- 3 hours. And we left at like 10 pm at night and we arrived in like 2 hours here. We always travel during the day this time was the exception. We usually leave at about 9 to travel to the next city. I always travel in one of the company vans, there are about 10 people per van. Everyone that works here travels in those vans. There are 8 rooms in each of the two trailers with two people in each room. There are up to 16 people in each trailer, but not all of the bunks are occupied. There are currently 14, there are lockers and space for bags and a separate place for eating. The travel from one city to another can vary from 2 to 10 hours depending on the distance. What was explained to me about the work when I was in Mexico was correct , in fact I receive more pay than what was explained to me originally, it was just a little bit more, the different rate was $340 or something like that. I do not know, and I do not think that I am going to receive a bonus. I found out that I got this job through Victor. He notified me and he told me when and how I was going to travel. We first arrived to the consulate in Monterrey and then directly to Indio in a special bus for everyone, all of the workers. I do not know anyone that has been fired, but an acquaintance left, I think it was his own decision. I do not know his name. I operate this ride, I check the security and I notify the electrician or manager if anything is wrong, I assemble an disassemble and clean the ride, those are my primary responsibilities. One could check their hours at the office.

Form WH-31 (Revised Jan. 2001)

Statement: I am in charge and operate the children's helicopter ride. I operate the ride and allow the children to enter the ride. I operate the children's helicopter ride each day. I am working for Butler Amusements, Inc. under the H-2B program. This is the first year that I work for Butler Amusements and I started on 04/15/2013.

I am being paid a salary of $325.00 per week. I am not paid hourly. I am paid in cash each week and payday is every Sunday. Nothing is deducted from my salary of $325.00 which is also my net pay. The money is given to me in an envelope. My workweek opens on Sunday and closes on Saturday.

I normally work from Sunday to Saturday, and work seven days per week. Last week I was off one day on Wednesday. I work from 10:00 in the morning to 10:00 in the evening with two hour breaks. I also work from 12:00 in the afternoon to 12:00 in the morning with two hour breaks. During my two hour breaks, I go to eat. I usually work ten hours per day. I work from 60 to 70 hours per week.

Last week I was working in Maricopa, California. Last week, I only worked two days in Maricopa. I also worked last week in Lompoc, California, and worked almost all week. I traveled twelve hours from Maricopa to Lompoc. I traveled one hour from Lompoc to Santa Barbara. The company transports me in a company's van to each city where we are going to work. The company does not charge me anything for transporting me. I don't drive the van. I do not work when I am being transported.

The company does not pay me bonuses.

The company gives me a polo t and a cap that has the name of F er Amusements, and I am not charged a fee. The company does not wash my polo shirt, so I have to wash the polo shirt. I wash the polo shirt with my other general clothes.

The company provides me with free living accommodations, and I live in a company's trailer. Eight live in the trailer.

The company does not deduct anything from my gross salary that I am paid.

Nobody records the hours that I work each day. My supervisor Omar (don't know his last name) verbally informs me what time we are going to work each day.

When I operate the helicopter ride, only two of us work. Me and my co-worker Ernesto Vidal operate the helicopter ride. I only work six hours from ten in the morning to ten in the evening, or from twelve in the afternoon to twelve in the morning. I work two hours and then take a two hour break throughout my work shift (for example from 10 am to 12 pm-work, 12 pm to 2 pm-break, 2 pm to 4 pm-work, 4 pm to 6 pm-break, 6 pm to 8 pm-work, and 8 pm to 10 pm-break).

The company does not charge me for the food that I eat. All the workers pitch in $40.00 each week and amongst ourselves we by our food.

The first time that I worked for the company was in Maricopa in April 2013.

I got the info about the job because I was unemployed and it was on Worksource Ellensburgepage. I applied directly through Worksource page. I got a phone call from them. But I decided to pursue other avenues. They left messages for me about the job and I didn't call them back. The messages said they'd like to schedule a time for and interview. I knew I wasn't going to pursue that avenue so I didn't call them back. I did get a job since then. I've been working for three months now. I did some free lance tutoring and now I'm working at a restaurant. I was looking for somewhere around $15-$20 per hour range. Which I knew I couldn't get with that company. If the wage were higher, it would have been more attractive.

I've read this and it's true to the best of my knowledge.

Assembling, Disassembling and Attending Rides

I work assembling and disassembling the rides. I can work on any type of rides big or small. I normally have a day and a half off. I normally have Mondays off and the half day that I have off varies depending on the week that the fair will be open. I work about 5 and a half days. Sometimes I work 6 days a week, but for the most part it is 5 and a half days. I normally start work about 9:00 am - 10:00 am. If I start at 9:00 am I will be off work at noon to eat then I start again at 1:00 pm and then we are off at 5:00 pm. This is only for when we are assembling. When the fair is open the work hours are not fixed, it all varies depending on the contract that the fair has. I could start at 11:00 am or at 3:00 pm and I can be off at 9:00 pm or 10:00 pm it all depends. I always have to start work 1 hour before the fair opens to check the rides. When the fair closes I do not have to stay afterwards to check the rides. When the fair closes I stop working. To disassemble the rides it takes less time as compared to assembling them. For example, for the Mardi Gras it takes about 6 hours to assemble but it takes about 2 hours to disassemble. When the fair is open I work about 2 hours and I am given a 2 hour break depending on how many people there are. This is the norm. I do not record the hours that I work because I already know my schedule, I do not know if the office records the hours. Before here I was working in Lompoc, CA. After here I am not sure where I'm going. I am taken in a 10 passenger van, I do not have to drive. I do not have to pay anything for the transportation. I am paid $350 a week in cash. This is all that I receive. There are no deductions made from my pay, not even for tools. Everyone buys their own food each week and deposits their own money. I live in the trailers that are in the back. I do not have to pay anything for the housing. I have to use a company shirt as a uniform and the company provided it to me. I wash my uniform with my other clothes. About 10 of us workers get together and pay the cook to cook our food every week, it's $45 but it also includes the food. I am from Veracruz. I came last year too and I worked the same hours. There is a person that lives in the same place where I live in Mexico that we go to to ask about the work that will start up again. I think his name is Juan but I really don't know. I do not have to pay anything to this person. From Veracruz to Monterey, where the consulate is, we pay the bus transportation which comes out to about 600 pesos. From Monterey to the first worksite the company pays for everything. Every year I have to fill out an application to work. I think the application is sent to the consulate for the interview. When we arrive from Mexico we do 3 – 4 drug tests throughout the season.

B-7

Truck Driver

I have been working as a driver for about 3 years now. My job is to drive the trailers with the rides. The distance of the route varies depending on the fair, it can be 2 – 10 hours. During the time when the workers are assembling the rides I am on standby for whatever the boss may need. I also do the checking of the trailer truck. I only drive the trailer truck, I do not drive the vans for the workers. The drivers that take the workers into town when they have the day off are other workers, I do not do that. I do not have a fixed schedule. When I am driving I cannot work more than 10 hours, I cannot work more because the Department of Transportation does not allow it. The other 10 hours I have to be on break, the remaining 3 – 4 hours I take to eat take and for breaks. When I am driving everything is written in the Transportation logbook. When I am driving I can work up to 60 hours a week, but I can also work 20 hours, it all depends on the distance of the fair. I drive in California, Arizona, Washington, Idaho, Nevada throughout the season. I can haul any type of rides big and small. I am paid each week $500 in cash, I am not given a stub. The pay is fixed each week no matter the hours. There are no deductions made from my pay for things like tools. My truck has a big space in the back and I sleep there. The company owns the truck and I am not charged for the use of the truck. When I am driving with the cargo I buy my own food, when I am at the place of the fair I can pay about $5.00 to the cook for a plate, if I am going to be at the place of the fair for about 2 weeks I can pay the cook about $45 for the food for the week. It is all voluntary. I do not have to use a uniform. I started working for the company about in 2002. When I return to my town in Veracruz I report to Victor Apolinar to inform him that I have returned. Victor calls us when the season will begin again. I pay about 1,000 pesos for the bus ride from my town to the consulate in Monterey and I am interviewed there. I also pay for the hotel about 150 – 200 pesos. The transportation from the consulate to the first worksite is paid for by the company. I was in Phoenix, AZ and Lompoc, CA before here. When the fair ends here there will be one in Barstow, CA and one in Indio, CA. Since I am the driver have to do the drug test in a U.S. clinic.

Statement: A guy in Mexico told me the information about the H-2B program. He also worked in the H-2B program. For this season I left Mexico on February 4 and arrived on February 10 in the United States. I came in a bus; I paid for my ticket from my house (in Puebla) to Monterrey. The company paid for my ticket from Monterrey to the United States. They also paid for my expenses, like food and hotel, from Monterrey to the United States. From Puebla to Monterrey I also paid for my food. I believe the company paid for my Visa. In total the trip from Puebla to the United States took about six days. The company made the travel arrangements. When I arrived to the United States I went to Indio, CA. I worked there for 14 days. The fair was open for two weeks, but there was one day to prepare and another day to take down everything. Before Santa Barbara we were in Lompoc. It only took one hour to come here from Lompoc. The fair in Lompoc ended this past Sunday. We left to come here in the morning on Monday at 12:00 AM. On days when the fair is open I work 6-8 hours a day. I also work six or eight hours the day before the first day of the fair to prepare everything. On days when the fair is open, for example, I work two hours and then rest two hours, these are how my shifts are. I do have days to rest, but it depends when the fair opens. There are some fairs when they record my time and others that do not do that. For example, here there is a (time) card where I put my starting hour and ending hour. I do not do work during my two hour breaks. If I want to go to the store I can. On average, I work 40 hours a week. My salary is weekly, $325.00. I pay the cook $40.00 a week for the food. I am paid in cash and given a receipt. The receipt says my name, my hours, and my salary. On average, I start work at 11:00 AM and end at 10:00 PM. But, in that time I take my breaks. I also do not need to pay to live in the trailer or for the t-shirts. I am not given bonuses. If I work more than 40 hours I am not given extra money, always just my normal salary.

STATEMENT:

I've worked here three seasons. Normally I work on the Playbox ride. But that went somewhere else. I came here in February, I arrived in Indio. I don't have any family working here. We have already done the training. The new ones have to do the training. The training is like 2-3 days. They start paying the week I got here. They pay $375 per week. They pay cash and don't take anything out. I don't pay for rent or transportation. I live in the bunk house. There are 12 of us. There is one person that you pay to make the food- it's $40 per week, three meals a day. It's enough food. The cook also works on the rides. The one who drives the bus is me- me and another person. I have a Mexican license, not one from here. There are 10 of us who ride in the bus. Normally, we go in the morning after we rest. They pay a little more to those who drive. We work between 4-8 hours a day. There are some days we have completely off. Like one day a week. If I work 2 hours, I leave for 2 hours for break. On my break I can walk around the fair, go back to the bunk house, talk on the phone, rest. The cook has the food ready and we serve ourselves lunch and dinner. Last year the hours were the same. They pay the same every week, it doesn't vary. They have the cash for us- it doesn't come with a stub. The one who are on the visa are the ones who live in the bunk houses. We have our own passports. They give us the uniforms free. We go out in the bus- they take us or if it's close, we walk. We don't have to ask permission, we just go. We don't pay for gasoline. They didn't give me a bonus. The drive between fairs is between 2-10 hours. We paid just the costs from the Consulate: hotel, food and 15 hours in bus from my town to the consulate and also the passport the rest, the company paid for. We don't have a written schedule. I just drove two times, first: 1.5 hours and 2nd: 8 hours. There is no one under 18 years old working here.

I've read this and it's true to the best of my knowledge.

Statement:

I have been working with this company for 9-10 years. I return each year for the season, which is approximately from February to October. I arrived at the end of January this year. I communicated with Victor Apolinar in the town where I live in Mexico. He told me about the job this year, the pay and that I was going to be doing the same work like in other years. I set up and take down the mechanical rides and I transport the mechanical rides from one town to another and I occasionally drive the guys around a pick-up truck and other company trucks. When we finish in one city and travel to another I use the truck to move the mechanical rides. I also drive the vans to take the other employees shopping at the local stores and to do laundry. My license is from California, Confidential. The stores that I drive them to here in Santa Barbara are close by. I work an average of 35-40 hours per week, not including the driving time. Sometimes I work from 6-8 hours a day. I can say exactly. For example there are times that we begin at 3 pm and we only work 3-4 hours. When we arrive to a new city and we are setting up the rides I usually work about 8 hours. After that, when the fair is open, they usually open 5-10 hours, I work a maximum of 2 hours with a break of 2 hours following. We always rest the same amount of hours that we work. I do not remember the name of the woman, but she is the one that keeps track of the hours that we work. The supervisors give her the information about the hours that we work. I usually work about 5 days a week, but there are days when I only work a few hours and other days that there are more. There are occasions that I use the vans every day to take the people to the stores. I do not give the information about the time I spend driving to the supervisors and they do not write down when we go and come back. It is not that formal, if there are 3 to 5 people we just go. The employees do not pay for the transportation. How much time is spent taking town the ride all depends on the kind of ride. I work on the Grand Carousel and I would say it takes about 6 hours to take it down.

Form WH-31 (Revised Jan. 2001)
B- 12

There are occasions when I help others with their rides after finishing mine, but that doesn't take much time. There is a book where I write down my hours worked for driving from one city to another, we have that information from the time that we started in January we have done that every single year. The time I spend transporting people so they can send money back to Mexico , to go shopping, to wash clothing, is about 6 hours per week. Sometimes its 10 minutes of driving to a place, the stores are always close by. I receive $470 every Sunday in cash, I receive an envelope, and everyone signs for them and the hours worked are there but it does not include the time for driving, just the time of operating the rides. I always receive the same pay, it does not matter where we are, or what city the fair is. I did not have to pay anything to get the job. The company is in charge of everything to get us here and for the visa. I paid about 600 -700 pesos to travel from my town to Monterrey and the company paid all the rest to India, CA. They give us money to eat along the way and the transportation is free. The company provides uniforms and IDs for free. I receive two uniforms. Everyone receives two entire uniforms. I did not buy any more than the two uniforms, I do not know if other people have bought more than two. There are no other deductions. I did not have to buy anything else to be able to do the work. The company paid for my license and my medical card, it was $130 -$140 dollars. The medical exam is good for 1-2 years depending on the person's health, the license is good for 5 years. The license is class C. When we have breaks there are no interruptions. We take our breaks without having to do any kind of work. One could leave the fair area if they wanted to. The company also pays for the exam and the license for the others that drive. I do not know how many other drivers there are . I live in the housing here. I do not pay for housing. I have my own separate room. The others have 10 -11 in a trailer. No one pays for this. There is a bonus at the end of the year. Last year I received $200. I do not know if everyone receives it. They give me the bonus for driving. The company provides the vans to travel from one city to another. If we finish taking down the fair at 6 am we will rest for a little bit and leave a bit later. We always travel from one city to another during the day. It is dangerous to travel at night. I imagine that others that drive also receive a bonus. I do not know if anyone has been fired this year. No one has to pay anything to get this job.

Statement:

I started working for Butler 10 years ago. Right now, I am like a leader or supervisor of 16 workers. I began in Indio, California on February 4, 2013 this year (more or less.)
We started work at 9 am in the morning until 6 pm or 7 pm yesterday with an hour lunch. Today we begin at 10 am until 9 pm. We are going to rest one or two hours today.
There is no method to record the hours worked. None of the workers have to record the hours worked.
Usually we are not working on Mondays. We are working six days each week normally. We are working eight or nine hours each day. I believe we are working 55 or 56 hours a week.
They pay me in cash each week. Pay day is Sunday.
They pay me $350 each week. The others receive $325.00 each week. The cook receives $40 each week for meals from each worker. There are no other deductions. The living quarters are free.
I am not driving any truck.
At the end of the fair maybe we are working until 2 am. Afterwards we travel to the next location. We arrive at maybe seven or eight in the morning – it depends.
Normally, it is a day off when we arrive at the next location on Monday.
Benny Hill is my supervisor. I had to pay transportation to arrive at the border.
Butler paid me transportation expenses from the border to Indio, California.
I have read this statement and it is true.

Statement: This year I arrived in the United States on January 31. I went directly to Indio, CA. For my first season, I knew lots of people from my hometown who were using the H-2B program. I asked them questions and they gave me information and the phone number to Victor. Victor is the contact person for the company. I only paid for the trip from my hometown to Monterrey (Consulate). The bus ticket cost about 800 pesos. The company paid my entire trip from Monterrey to the United States. I did not pay for my Visa, the company paid for it. Before this town (Santa Barbara) we were in Lompoc. I worked there for about eight days. The trip from Lompoc to here was no more than an hour. The fair in Lompoc closed this past Sunday. We left after the fair ended around 11:00 PM. We arrived here in Santa Barbara an hour later. Yesterday I worked five hours to assemble the rides and games. Yesterday I worked 12:00 PM to 5:00 PM. Today I worked 10:00 AM to 12:00 PM. I am finished for the day, but I am going to work for a little bit later because we are going to open the fair for a few hours. The starting time depends on what time the fair opens. But for example, if the fair opens at 11:00 AM

B-14

I am going to start work at 10:00 AM. The ending time is when the fair closes. I do not need to wash the rides after the ending time, we do all of that and prepare the next day. On average, I work six hours a day, but it is difficult to say exactly because the hours of all of the fairs are different. For example, during the week the hours of the fair are 4:00 PM to 10:00 PM. Then for the weekend the hours are more, like 10:00 AM to 10:00 PM. But, on those days I do not work the whole day, I take a break for an hour or two and then return for an hour or two. My job is with the rides, but I also cook for about 20 people. The company does not pay me to cook. Each person gives me $45.00 every Monday and with that money I go to the store and buy the food. When I go to the store, a friend gives me a ride, he has a license, and I do not. I do not need to work during my breaks, that time is mine. If I want to sleep I can. I am paid every Sunday in cash. I need to sign a receipt; I am not given a copy or a paycheck stub. I am paid $350.00. I pay $15.00 each season for new shirts. I do not need to pay money to live in the trailers. I do not use a (time) card or sheet to record my hours. In the past we did use those cards, where I write the starting and ending time, but right now we are not using those. There are no minors working here for the company. I work every day, but I do rest every eight days. On average, I work 40 or 42 hours a week. If I work more than 40 hours a week, I am paid the same, my weekly salary.

Assembling, Disassembling, Attending Rides

I started working for the company in 2001. I started in Indio, CA. I work assembling, disassembling and attending to the rides. I regularly work with the swinging chairs ride but if help is needed in the other rides I can go and help assemble, disassemble or attend to. When we assemble the rides I start at 9:00 am, I am given an hour to eat, I start again at 1:00 pm and I am off at 5:00 pm. We take about 2 days to assemble all of the rides. There are 4 of us that work on the swinging chairs ride. The fair today opens at 4:00 pm but I have to start work at 3:00 pm to check the rides before the people ride them. The fair closes today at about 11:00 pm. When the fair closes I am off work, I do not have to stay afterwards to work. During the time that the fair is open we generally work 2 hours and then we go on break for 2 hours. During the 2 hours I am completely free from work. I go to the bunkhouse to eat and rest, I am not working. The work schedule varies depending on the fair schedule for that town. We start to disassemble the rides when the fair closes. If the fair closes at 11:00 pm once the people exit we start to disassemble. We take about 6 hours to disassemble the rides, it takes a lot less to disassemble. About 2 or 3 hours after we disassemble the rides we go to the next town. I think that after here we will be going to Indio, CA. We go from place to place in the vans, only 9 passengers and the driver. Before there would be more passengers. I do not drive at all. I do not pay anything for the transportation. I work about 6 days a week. I really do not know how many hours a week I work, I have never paid attention to that. I do not record the hours that I work, I do not know if someone from the company records them. I am paid $410 in cash every week. This amount is the same for the entire season. The amount is the same no matter the place that I work at. I worked last year too and the pay and the hours were the same. I am given a receipt to sign but the company keeps a copy. I am given an envelope with the amount. There are no deductions made from my check. The company provides the tools for free. When I need a tool I check in my ID at the shop and then they let me borrow a tool. It is returned to me when I return the tool. At the start of the season I am given an ID and I do not pay for it. If someone loses it the company charges I think $10.00 to replace it. I have never lost mine. I am not charged for the bunkhouse. I get together with 10 – 12 other workers and we pay about $45 each so that the cook can buy the food and cook it for us. The cook also works assembling and disassembling the rides. I have 1 day off per week, typically it is on the Monday when we arrive in the new town. On the day off we are taken to town to wash clothes, buy things, deposit money. I am not charged for the transportation. I do not drive the van. Carlos sometimes drives the van, he is my fellow worker on the swinging chairs ride. Omar also sometimes drives the van. They also drive from worksite to worksite. The company gives us 1 shirt for work. The shirt is free. I bought another shirt because one shirt doesn't last the entire season because one sweats and the shirt gets worn out. The extra shirt is $15.00. Last year I also bought a sweatshirt which was $25.00. I bought the sweatshirt just to have it, I bought it voluntarily and I do not need it for work. The cap is not required, if one buys it it's voluntary. I do not know how much the cap is, I have never bought one. Victor Apolinar is the representative in my town in Mexico that tells us about the season once it will start up again. Every year I have to fill out an application and at the consulate in Monterey I am interviewed. I take a bus to the consulate in Monterey and I pay about 1,000 pesos, it takes about 16 hours. The company pays for the transportation from Monterey to the first worksite in the U.S. I do not have to pay anything to Victor. At the first town that we arrive typically during the week we will be given a drug test and also throughout the season. Typically at the Pleasanton fair we are given a drug test again, this is sometime around June.

Statement: I've been a supervisor for 6 years. On a typical day when we are open. I walk around to see if they are doing their jobs - 2 people on rides. I also deal with the complaints from the people at the fair. maybe they think the guys are rude or something. The ride operators call me if something on the ride breaks & they don't know how to fix it. The ride operators & foreman report to me. I fill out the roster - So does Omar Lopez. If an employee is sick I go and check up on them. The roster shows that they showed up to work. Most of the guys do - they may be late sometimes.

Statement:

I have worked for Butler for about 10 seasons. This year, I started to work in February –the 2nd or 3rd of February. I started in Indio, California – Chandler, Yuma, Maricopa – three malls in Arizona, Lompoc and then here.

I am in charge of the "Fireball" ride and two workers. I receive a salary of $500.00 each week - in cash – Sundays. I put up and tear down the "Fireball" with the two other employees. There is a uniform – it is only a T-shirt. The employer gives me one T-shirt free. But I have to pay $15.00 each for an extra. I need two or three T-shirts to work here and have a clean T-shirt for work.

Transportation is free- all- to go to a store or to go to another fair. The employer paid my expenses from Monterey Nuevo Leon.

It needs 5 or 6 hours to tear down the "Fireball." Maybe an entire day to put up the "Fireball" and sometimes I help on the other rides as well.

Sundays I begin maybe at 11:00 am and I am working until 4 am or 5 am the next morning. When the fair is open, I am working four hours, and after that a two hour rest break, and then 4 hours of work and two hours of rest. The time tearing down the ride, I have no rest breaks.

On Mondays, we have to travel to another location – but afterwards it is day off.

Tuesdays and Wednesdays usually are days for putting up the rides. We start at 8 am and we leave for lunch at 12.00 pm. We return at 1 pm and we work until 5 pm.

Thursdays – sometimes the fair is open – but it depends. We begin an hour before the fair is open – maybe 11 am, maybe 2 pm, maybe 4 pm. We work until 10:30 pm

Normally I am working 40 to 45 hours each week. The workers who are working with me work the same hours.

I am going to work until October 14, 2013.

and then return to work for two hours; these are how my shifts are. I do not do work during my breaks, if I want I can go to the store to buy clothes or wash my clothes if I need to. I do not know what time the fair is going to close here in Santa Barbara, but in Phoenix the fair closed at 10:00 PM. On average, when the fair is open I only work about five hours. After 10:00 PM, when the fair is closed, I do not need to do more work; I go to my trailer to sleep. I am paid in cash every week on Sundays. I am not given a paycheck stub or receipt; I am just given an envelope with my name and money. I pay $40.00 a week for the food. I do not need to pay to live in the trailer, or for the t-shirt I need to have, the t-shirt is free. I do not have a (time) card to record my hours, I also do not write my hours on a sheet of paper. I do not know if the foremen maintain my hours. To put up and construct all of the rides in my area it took about five hours (yesterday), because yesterday I took an hour break for lunch. When I need to wash my clothes, I go to the laundry mat. A guy takes me, I do not know if he is part of the H-2B program, but he does have a driver's license. I do not know if there are people working for the company who are less than 18 years old, but I believe everyone is older. I am paid $325.00 every week; the $40.00 I pay for food is apart. I give the money for the food to the cook. If I want, I could go to buy my food, but the $40.00 is cheap, and that is why I like it.

"I have read the above and it is true to the best of my knowledge."

(Occupation or description of duties)

Statement: This is my second week working for the company Butler Amusements. I began working in this month of April for Butler Amusements. I work and operate the Dragon Wagon ride. The ride is only for children. When I operate the Dragon Wagon ride, I take the tickets from the children and sit them in the ride. This is the first year that I work for Butler Amusements and I work under the H-2B program. My visa passport has all the H-2B information. I am only going to work six months in this country and will return back home more or less in October 2013.

The company is paying me $325.00 per week and I am being paid a salary. I am not paid per hour. Nothing is deducted from my salary. I am paid my gross salary in cash. I am paid every week and payday is on Sunday. The company pays me my salary in cash in an envelope with the amount noted on the envelope. The company does not give me a check stub because I am paid in cash.

I began working for the company in Maricopa, California, in the month of April 2013. From Maricopa, I went to work in Lompoc, California for Butler Amusements. From Lompoc we came to Santa Barbara, California, to work for Butler Amusements. We traveled between 8 to 10 hours from Maricopa to Lompoc, and 2 hours from Lompoc to Santa Barbara. The company transports me free to each city that we are going to work in. I am transported in a van. I don't drive the van. I don't know the name of the person who drives the van.

My workweek opens on Sunday and closes on Saturday. I work six or seven days per week. I work from 10:00 or 11:00 in the morning to 11:00 in the evening, or 12:00 midnight. Me and my co-worker operate the Dragon Wagon ride. During my work shift, I work two hours and take two hour breaks. I take a break every two hours during my work shift. When I take a break, my co-worker takes over my work shi' nd works. I am working six hours r ng my work shift each day. I work 36 to 42 hours per week. My supervisor is Omar (I don't know his last name) and he informs me each day what time I will start and stop working. No one records the hours that I work because I am paid a salary.

When the company transports me to another city, I don't work because I am being transported.

I don't know if the company is going to pay me bonuses because I just started working for the company Butler Amusements.

The company gives me a free polo shirt and cap to work and has the company's name Butler Amusements.

The company also provides me with free living accommodations in a trailer. I am not charged for the living accommodations or for transportation.

The company does not deduct anything from my gross salary.

Me and each worker pay a man whose name is Don Pillo $40.00 per week for the food that he cooks. Don Pillo also works for the company Butler Amusements. I can buy food in restaurants if I want to, but it is easier for Don Pillo to cook our food.

The company paid for my visa passport. The company also paid for my transportation from Mexico to the United States, and I am not going to be charged a fee.

Statement:

I have been working with this company for 10 years. I set up and break down the rides, the ride that I work on is the boat slide. I arrived in February, a friend of mine recommended me for the job, Isaurio. I filled out a work application this year, I handed it in to Isaurio Colio and I don't know who he hand it to from the company. Victor Apolinar called me after I filled out my application and he provided me information about the job, the pay. He arranged and sent us by bus to get our visas in Monterrey. I paid for the travel to Monterrey but from there on, the company paid for all of the expenses, the bus, food and all of the rest until we arrived in Indio, CA from the time that we began that trip. I work an average of about 40 hours or less each we, for example today I only worked two hours. On days when we are setting up the rides we work 2 – 8 hours depending on the ride. To disassemble it takes 4-5 hours. When we operate the ride we work 12 hours, split between 2 people with two hours for each shift for each person, for example if we open at 11 am and close at 11 pm. When we operate the rides our breaks are completely free, we do not have to do any kind of work during those breaks. Sometimes in somse of the cities they have a time clock, but not always. We fill out our own forms with our hours each day. The forms are in the office. Each person fills out their own form. Every Sunday I receive my pay I cash, they are never late with the pay, they hand them out at a specific time before we start working. We have buses to travel that transport 9 people, it used to be more people in each but there are new laws. We travel after we take down the carnival. Immediately after we finish deconstructing the rides we travel that next day. We usually leave between 6 am – 8 am in the morning, sometimes the carnival is smaller and we leave in the evenings, more quickly from the site. I receive $355 each week. We do not pay rent, nor for uniforms or IDs or anything else for deductions.
The company provides a complete uniform to everyone. If we lose an ID we do not have to pay. They provide transportation if we need to go shopping or to wash clothing and we do not have to pay for the transportation. I set up, take down and operate my ride and also if there is the need to help coworkers on another ride I give them a hand. I do not write down the hours for setting up and breaking down the rides in my total hours worked that I write down on the hours papers. We get 10 – 12 people together and we pay for a cook and the food for the week, but everything is voluntary. They pair up the new people with the more experienced workers as helpers. They pay them their normal salary. They include all of their hours worked learning the job in their total hours worked reported to the company each week. We hand in the information about our hours worked to the office to a young woman, Mari. It takes like 2-3 hours to set up my ride. Since I started working with this company I've never had to return the money for the trip from the Mexican border to Indio, CA.

The longest work day that I have had was in Sacramento because it opens at 10 am and it closes at 11, but it is not too hard because it is split between 2 people and we take turns. Flying Boat and Music Express are the largest rides, they have 3-4 people operating the ride and they share the work, taking turns between n 3 or 4 other people who also operate the ride. In Sacramento the fair runs for about 17 days, in that fair I worked all 17 days straight. The hours we work in a week varies a lot, sometimes 3-4 days, sometimes 7 days. There are rides that don't operate at all of the fairs, so they may have more days free. I have not heard of anyone that has been fired this season. They have people that have worked here in past seasons and know the rides well. They bring in people at the beginning of the season and later in the bigger fairs when they are short workers they bring in more people. We receive an envelope with our pay in cash, that's it. We do not receive a pay stub with our hours.
I have read the above interview and it is correct and true.

STATEMENT:

I remember applying for that job through the employment department. I got a call from them but I didn't want the job. I had just gotten married and didn't want to travel around. I have a full time job now and am not interested in working anywhere else. I've been working at this job for three months. Even if they had offered me a different kind of job, I wouldn't have taken it. I didn't want to travel and still don't.

I've read this and it's true to the best of my knowledge.

Statement:

This is my first year with Butler. I started to work twelve days ago. I worked two days in the Maricopa Fair and then Lompoc, California and I arrived here yesterday at 12:30 am in Santa Barbara.

I did not have to pay anyone to obtain my job here. I had to pay expenses until Monterey, Nuevo Leon. Afterwards, Butler pays the expenses to cross the border.

Sundays are pay days. Last Sunday was my first complete pay. I received $325.00 in cash. There is no pay stub.

We are no paying other expenses. Living Quarters, uniforms, transportation – all are free. I am buying my own meals.

In twelve days I received one day off. Usually I am working 40 hours a week.

There is no method to record my hours worked. Usually, I am working two or three hours and afterwards an hour or two hours of rest and afterwards two or three hours of work and then one hour or two hours of rest.

Tear down Sunday in the night for two hours – maybe until 10 pm and we travelled and arrived here maybe 12:30 in Santa Barbara. Monday (yesterday) I worked about 6 hours here. I started working at 11:00 am last Sunday in Lompoc. Omar and Benny are my supervisors.

I have read this statement and it is true.

Foreman, Ride Assembling, Disassembling and Attending

I work assembling, disassembling the rides and checking that everything is good. I always work with this ride, the zipper. I work about 4 or 5 days a week, it all varies. I normally have Mondays off. When I assemble the rises we start about 9:00 am - 10:00 am and I am off about 5:00 pm - 6:00 pm. We are given about an hour and a half or two hours to eat. When the fair is open the opening time is different, on the weekdays it normally opens at 4:00 pm and it closes at 10:00 pm. On the weekends it opens about 11:00 am and it closes about 11:00 pm. I do not have to record the hours that I work every day, I do not know if the office records the hours. Assembling the rides can take 4 – 5 hours. I have to start work about 1 hour before the fair opens to the public in order to check the rides. When the fair closes I stop working, I do not have to work anymore. On the same day that the fair closes on the last day we have to start to disassemble the rides, if it closes at 10:00 pm we immediately start to disassemble. When we are done disassembling at the place of the fair we move on to the next place. I ride as a passenger in a 10-passenger van, I do not drive. During the time that the fair is open I work 2 hours and I am off for 2 hours. During the 2 hours I am completely free from work, I do not work at all. I do not have to pay anything for the transportation in the van. Before here I was in Lompoc, CA and after here I will be going to Indio, CA. I am paid $350 per week in cash. If I work more or less each week the pay amount will be the same at $350. I do not have to pay anything from my salary for things like to tools. The company pays for all of the trailer housing. The company gives us a shirt for uniforms, if we ask for another one we have to pay about $15.00. I have not had to pay anything for uniforms. Everyone has to buy their own food. I pay $45 each week together with other workers for the food and for the cook. Each week we are taken into town to wash, deposit the money, buy things or for whatever we need. I came last year to work, I worked the same hours. In my town in Veracruz we have a representative that tells us about the work and when it will start up again for the season. His name is Victor, I do not know if he has his own business. When we return to our town in Veracruz we check in with Victor so that he'll know that we returned. I have to pay about 3,500 pesos to Victor and he takes care of the bus transportation from my town in Veracruz to Monterey. This amount also includes the paperwork that Victor does. The transportation from Monterey to the first worksite is paid for by the company. At the consulate I am interviewed for the job every year. I fill out an application in Mexico and again when I arrive in the U.S. When we arrive in the U.S. to work, on the same day that we fill out the application we have to do a drug test. Throughout the season we can be made to take the drug test at any time.

The employer paid for my bus ticket for my trip, from my house to Indio, CA. I did not pay for my Visa or for the application; the employer paid for them. I only work in the shop repairing things; I do not work with the rides. In my first year working for the company, I had a nephew who worked for Butler. He is the person who told me there was work here. My nephew gave me the (phone) number for Victor, the recruiter. I interviewed with Victor and he helped me with all of the papers and application. I did not pay Victor money for the interview or for the help. Victor also told me the job conditions, like information about my pay. For my trip I stayed in a hotel in Monterrey for two nights. I paid for my hotel and for my food for the two nights. Monterrey is where the consulate is. I paid 100 pesos for my hotel; I stayed with four other people. I have two years now only working in the shop, but in the past years I worked with the rides. During the hours when the fair is open, I just wait in the shop if anyone comes and needs something repaired. My hours are the hours when the fair is open. During the week I work four or five hours because the fairs are not open for many hours. But, I work a little more on the weekends because the hours of the fairs are more. On the weekends I work about six or seven hours. My shift starts one hour before the opening hour of the fair. When the fair closes I am finished with my day, I do not need to do more work. I and the other guy who works in the shop have an agreement for the breaks. If he wants to take a break, I work, and if I want to take a break he works. I am paid $395.00 each week in cash. My salary is always $395.00. I am not charged for the clothes or t-shirts. For me it is not necessary I have a company shirt, but I do have one. On average, I work 38 or 40 hours a week. At the beginning I was a ticket seller. after 2 years. I insisted I wanted something different. Then I started doing this little by little - now it's a big thing. My hours vary a lot. I don't have to drive anyone else - if I want to, I can - but I don't have to. On their breaks - the guys go & eat or sleep or go do laundry. They just go back to their bunkhouses or they may go look around at the fair grounds. They have the guys take a lot of breaks because sometimes we are open a long time. The heat is when they take more breaks because they can't work long periods. I'm paid a weekly salary. My salary increased when I moved to this position & when my responsibilities here grew. I would estimate that I work between 34-40 hours a week. I make work a long day one day, but the next day I'd quit early. Of the 100 workers we have here maybe around half are H2B workers. The US workers do a variety of jobs just like the H2B workers. The drivers bring me their log books. Some of the drivers are here now - others took the rides somewhere else. Kurt & Ron are

STATEMENT:

Notes from Meeting on 4/23/13 onsite at Santa Barbara Fair and Expo

I fill out the spreadsheet with the hours for each of the employees. We do payroll every week. They all get paid on Sunday. Everyone gets paid in cash. It comes in an envelope that has any draws recorded on it. The time cards that I make are stapled to the envelope. The employees check and sign the timecards and give it back to us. Then we put them in envelopes and mail them to headquarters. I do a summary of the hours that I send along with the signed timecards every week. On the days when the fair is open, the hours on the time cards are one hour before the fair opens and stops when the fair closes. The guys have to be at the rides an hour before to do safety checks. On the days the fair is not open, the time starts based on the time of the work call. The work call time for today was 10am. The supervisors report the actual hours to me- they let me know if someone didn't show up or was late. I enter in the times every day. I report to the supervisors of any employee is getting close to the cap- the cap is 38-39 hours. Then the supervisors make sure they aren't working more that week. Employees will rarely exceed 39 hours in a week. The supervisors fill out a roster that lists the ride and the guys who are assigned to that ride. The roster has a mark on it if the employee was there that day- it doesn't say the hours. There are 130 employees here today.

The CDL drivers also have time cards. They keep DOT log books as well. The trucking records are scanned by Marylu and sent to Santanilla and kept there.

I'm not sure of who the drivers of the vans that the guys go in from place to place are. I think one of them is Benny Hill. There are 2 vans and 2 or 3 busses that they use. – There are 5 vehicles total. The hours that they guys spend driving are not recorded. They do get paid extra for driving- but the drive time hours are not on the timecards. I didn't know we had to do that- but we probably should.

The only deductions we have are cash advances. We don't charge for rent. The meals and the cooks for the bunkhouses are arranged by the employees, we don't do any of that with payroll.

Usually a while the fair is open, employees will work 2 hours on 2 hours off. The set up usually take 3-4 hours. Sometimes we tear down the right after the fair closes on the last night- other times the tear down happens the next day, it depends on the schedule- but also there are local noise ordinances that we have to be aware of and not make too much noise after a certain hour or have the generators going after a certain hour. Last week, they did the tear down after the fair closed on Sunday. That's why you see hours on Monday for this week from 12 midnight to 3am. Days when the fair is not open, the hours on the time card are usually 9-5. Our weeks vary a lot depending on the schedule and the event. We sometimes have days where we only work 3 days and other days, we work 7.

The uniforms are a polo shirt and a hat- if they want it. Each employee is given their first set free. If they want any additional shirts or hats, they have to buy them for $15 for the shirts and the hats are $5-$7. We also give all the employees an ID card. If they lose the card, they have to pay $10 for a replacement- they started doing that because guys were losing them all the time. Since we started charging, they don't lose them as much.

STATEMENT:

Notes from Meeting on 4/23/13 onsite at Santa Barbara Fair and Expo

We just came from Lompoc, CA- it's about an hour away. They are just going to do the safety checks on the rides today. We will be open tonight, but only for the press. Tomorrow the fair starts and goes through Sunday. Today they'll start work at 10am, probably work till 12. Then they get the rest of the day off.
I am the General Manager here, my right hand is Bill Truax Confidential, my left hand, I guess would be Antonio Mendez. He's been coming back for 12 years. He's in charge of the spectaculars, he's the supervisor; under him is Raul Villa. The supervisor in charge of Kiddie Land is Vinnie Hill, under him is Omar Lopez. Omar is H2B and so is Antonio. The guy in charge of transportation- all the truck drivers, is Ron. The CDL truck drivers just drive the tractor trailers. They don't operate the rides- some of the truck drivers are H2B workers. Lance is my boss. Mary Lu is in the office- she does the ride inspection paperwork. She is an H2B worker too.

The guys go with the rides. We always start and end in Indio, California. The first H2B workers to come up are the ride foremen and the first men. Every ride has a foreman, first man and may have a helper. They learn the rides really well and stay with that ride. There are about 100 employees working here right now. We have 6 buses and pickups that the employees use for transportation.

The employees who work the spectaculars are paid $25 more a week. We do give pay raises, in $25 increments. The H2B will also get raises too- we make sure they start at the rate they left at when the next season starts. About 90% of our employees return year after year.

We have a shop here onsite that travels with us. They do repair and welding. All the employees in the shop are H2B workers.

The workers get break times throughout the day, they are rotating. From the hours of 7pm to 11pm everybody is working- that's our busy time when the fair is open.

Scott Grieves is the fair manager. The office manager is a gal named Pat.

The H2B workers live in the bunkhouses. There are 13 employees per bunk house. Each bunkhouse has 2 showers. There are tents for cooking outside the bunk houses. Each of the employees pay one guy in the bunk house $45 per week to buy food and cook all their meals for them. The cooks are H2B workers too- they work at the fair too- they get their salary, they just do the cooking on the side.
