The guarantee shall be void from the beginning should the Worker voluntarily abandon this employment before the end of the contract period or in the event the Worker is terminated for a lawful job-related reason, and the employer notifies the NPC, and DHS in the case of an H-2A worker, in writing or by any other method specified by the Department or DHS in a manner specified in a notice published in the Federal Register not later than 2 working days after such abandonment occurs and this will relieve the employer from subsequent transportation and subsistence costs and the 3/4th guarantee.

D). The payroll period shall be weekly. Workers will be paid weekly with a 1 week holding period.

E). Employer will provide a worker referred through the SWA Interstate System forty (40) hours of work for the week beginning with the anticipated date of need, unless the employer has amended the date of need by notifying the local employment service office at least 10 working days prior to the original date of need. Employer will not pay for voluntary trips back to their residence due to family emergencies, or vacations.

The amount of such transportation payment will be equal to the Worker's actual transportation costs not to exceed the most economical and reasonable common carrier transportation charges for the distance involved. In lieu of the above payments to the workers for transportation, the employer reserves the right to charter or otherwise arrange to provide for transportation at the employer's election. Subsistence reimbursement shall be ~~$44.60~~ $11.86 per day, without producing documentation of actual expenses, or will otherwise be paid as per 20 CFR 655.122(h) only to those employees who are eligible under the H-2A program regulations for subsistence pay. Maximum Amount to be reimbursed with receipts is $46.00. By way of illustration and not in limitation of the foregoing, the employer will not pay transportation for such worker if he does not have suitable documents to comply with proof of identity and employment eligibility requirements of IRCA, if he is discharged for lawful job-related reasons, if he has knowledge at the place of recruitment that he cannot perform the duties of the job as described above or if he abandons this employment when he is needed by the Grower. If the grower reimburses the worker prior to the 50% date, and the worker is terminated for cause or abandons prior to the 50% date, the grower reserves the right to recapture that reimbursement.

Employer will provide, pay, or reimburse transportation and subsistence under this agreement if the worker is terminated because of work related injury caused by this/these crop activities and is so certified by a doctor acceptable to employer before leaving employers farm, or termination resulting from an Act of God, as outlined in 655.122(o), which makes fulfillment of this contract impossible as provided in paragraph 18C or if the worker is displaced by a U.S. worker under DOL's 50% rule.

Employer will offer free transportation for workers living in employer's housing facility both to and from the daily work site. The use of the transportation by the worker is voluntary; no worker will be required as a condition of employment to utilize the transportation offered by the employer. Workers are free to choose their own means of transportation at their own expense.

For US workers who complete the work contract and are eligible for the outbound transportation benefit, or if the employee is terminated without cause, and the worker has no immediate subsequent H2a employment, or an H2a workers that is displaced due the employers obligation under the USDOL 50% rule, the Employer will provide or pay for the worker's reasonable cost of return transportation and subsistence from the place of employment to the place from which the worker departed to work for the employer, except when the worker will not be returning to the place of recruitment due to subsequent employment with another employer. If the subsequent employer has not agreed to provide or pay for the worker's transportation to the subsequent place of employment, the Employer will provide or pay for the transportation and subsistence to the subsequent place of employment in lieu of providing or paying for such expenses from the place of employment to the place from which the worker departed to work for the employer. If the subsequent employer has agreed to provide or pay for the worker's transportation and subsistence to the subsequent place of employment the Employer will not provide or pay for such expenses. The Employer reserves the right to arrange charter or other return transportation. Workers eligible for this benefit who do not wish to avail themselves of employer arranged return transportation would be provided their outbound transportation and subsistence by check. If a worker choses to not use the employer arrange transportation then they will only be reimbursed for the transportation not included in the employer arranged (Mexican transportation, border crossing and daily subsistence.) In those circumstances, the grower will distribute the checks, as soon as all work is completed, as determined by the employer, and the worker is ready to depart. Workers may select any means of transportation home they choose, however, the reimbursement is limited to the most economical and reasonable common carrier transportation cost for the distance involved. Workers who arrange their own transportation understand they assume all liability and hold harmless the grower/association for any damages, injuries, and personal or property losses.

RE: Sun Valley Orchards LLC

Dear Sir/Madam:

Your application seeking temporary labor certification under the H-2A temporary agricultural program has been certified. On March 3, 2015, this office accepted for consideration an application from you requesting H-2A temporary labor certification for 40 Farmworkers and Laborers, Crop, Nursery, and Greenhouse job opportunities. In accordance with Departmental regulations at 20 Code of Federal Regulations (CFR) § 655, Subpart B, it has been determined that a sufficient number of able, willing and qualified U.S. workers have not been identified as being available at the time and place needed to fill all of the job opportunities for which certification has been requested and that employment of the H-2A workers will not adversely affect the wages and working conditions of workers in the United States similarly employed.

Therefore, the Department grants certification for 40 Farmworkers and Laborers, Crop, Nursery, and Greenhouse job opportunities. You must comply with all assurances, guarantees and other requirements contained in Departmental regulations at 20 CFR § 655, Subpart B and 20 CFR § 653, Subpart F.

Upon receipt of this notification, you will need to submit to the U.S. Citizenship and Immigration Service (USCIS) California Service Center the I-129 Form that is required in conjunction with an H-2A application. The USCIS petition can be obtained at http://www.uscis.gov.

IMPORTANT NOTE: The employer must sign and date the ETA Form 9142 prior to submission to USCIS California Service Center.

Enclosed is a bill for fees assessed for the H-2A certification. Non-payment or untimely payment may be considered a substantial violation subject to the procedures in Departmental regulations at 20 CFR § 655.182.

Important Reminders:

- In accordance with Departmental regulations at 20 CFR § 655.120(b), if the prevailing hourly wage or piece rate is adjusted during a work contract, and is higher than the highest of the AEWR, the prevailing wage, the agreed-upon collective bargaining wage, or the Federal or State minimum wage, in effect at the time the work is performed, the employer must pay at least that higher prevailing wage or piece rate upon notice to the employer by the Department. The Department posts all current prevailing hourly wages and piece rates to the Department of Labor's Agricultural On-Line Wage Library (AOWL). You are encouraged to visit the AOWL website at http://www.foreignlaborcert.doleta.gov/aowl.cfm for the updated wage rates.

- You must continue to cooperate with the State Workforce Agency (SWA) by accepting all referrals of eligible U.S. workers who apply (or on whose behalf an application is made) for the job opportunity until the end of the recruitment period as set forth in Departmental regulations at 20 CFR § 655.135(d). The end date of your obligation to consider all referrals under the 50 percent rule is calculated by the SWA based on the date the H-2A worker departed for the employer's place of business, which is assumed to be three days prior to the first date of need. However, if the H-2A worker will not depart for your place of employment three days prior to the first date of need, Departmental regulation 20 CFR § 655.135(c) requires you to inform the SWA in writing of the new expected departure date.

- You must update and maintain the recruitment report throughout the recruitment period including the 50 percent period as specified in Departmental regulations at 20 CFR § 655.156(b). This supplement to the recruitment report must meet the requirements of Departmental regulations at 20 CFR § 655.156(a)(1)-(4). The employer must sign and date this supplement to the recruitment report and retain it for a period of no less than three (3) years. The supplement to the recruitment report must be provided upon request.

- You are also reminded that in accordance with Departmental regulations at 20 CFR § 655.122(n), the termination of workers for cause and abandonment of the job by workers are to be reported in writing to the Department and to the Department of Homeland Security (DHS) within two (2) business days of the termination or discovering abandonment. To make compliance with this requirement simple and fast, the employer may e-mail the notification directly to the Chicago NPC using TLC.Chicago@dol.gov. Your requests will be handled as expeditiously as possible. Employers without internet access may also send written notification by facsimile to (312) 886-1688 (ATTN: H-2A Abandonment and Termination) or U.S. mail to the following address:

  U.S. Department of Labor
  Employment and Training Administration
  Office of Foreign Labor Certification

ATTN: H-2A Abandonment and Termination

- In accordance with Departmental regulations at 20 CFR § 655.135(i), employers must inform H-2A workers of the requirement that they must leave the United States at the end of the period certified by the Department or separation from the employer, whichever is earlier, unless the H-2A worker is being sponsored by another subsequent employer.

- In accordance with Departmental regulations at 20 CFR § 655.122(q), employers must provide to H-2A workers no later than the time at which the workers apply for the visa, or to workers in corresponding employment no later than on the day work commences, a copy of the work contract between the employer and the workers in a language understood by the worker as necessary or reasonable. For H-2A workers going from an H-2A employer to a subsequent H-2A employer, the copy must be provided no later than the time an offer of employment is made by the subsequent H-2A employer.

- In accordance with Departmental regulations at 20 CFR § 655.135(l), employers must post and maintain in a conspicuous location at the place of employment, a poster provided by the Secretary of the Department of Labor in English, and to the extent necessary, any language common to a significant portion of the workers if they are not fluent in English, which sets out the rights and protections for workers. A copy of the poster is available at http://www.dol.gov/whd/resources/posters.htm.

- Departmental regulations at 20 CFR § 655.180, allow the Department to conduct audit examinations of certified H-2A applications. The applications selected for audit will be chosen within the sole discretion of the Department. If your certification has been selected for audit, you are reminded that you must submit the documentation requested in the audit letter within the specified timeframe. Failure to comply with the audit process may result in a finding by the Certifying Officer to revoke the labor certification and/or debarment of the employer from future filings of H-2A temporary labor certification applications. Additionally, the audit findings and underlying documentation may be provided to the Department of Homeland Security or another appropriate enforcement agency. Referrals of any findings that an employer discouraged an eligible U.S. worker from applying, or failed to hire, discharged, or otherwise discriminated against an eligible U.S. worker, to the Department of Justice, Civil Rights Division, Office of Special Counsel for Unfair Immigration Related Employment Practices.

- In accordance with Departmental regulations at 20 CFR § 655.170, employers may request to extend (by more than two (2) weeks) the period of employment on certified H-2A applications in writing, to the Chicago NPC. The employer may e-mail the request directly to the Chicago NPC using the address:

NOW THEREFORE, in consideration of the payment(s) made by the AGER of the established dues, admission fees and other assessments and such costs as are charged/assessed from time to time for providing the services requested by the AGER, and for other good and sufficient consideration, including the mutual promises contained in this Agreement, pursuant to the applicable requirements of 20 CFR § 655. which are New Year's Day, January 1; Martin Luther King, Jr.'s birthday, the third Monday in January; Presidents Day, the third Monday in February; Memorial Day, the last Monday in May; Independence Day, July 4; Labor Day, the first Monday in September; Columbus Day, the second Monday in October; Veteran's Day, November 11; Thanksgiving Day, the fourth Thursday in November; and Christmas Day, December 25. On certain of these days, work may be available. If the worker at the conclusion of his work agreement has been afforded less employment opportunity than required under this provision, the worker will be paid at his average hourly rate for the hours, in addition to those actually offered, up to the hourly equivalent of the guaranteed number of days. In determining whether the guarantee of employment has been met, any hours which the Worker fails to work during a workday, when the Employer offers him the opportunity to work, and all hours of work actually performed shall be counted toward meeting this guarantee.

C). This employment guarantee shall be terminated before the end of the Period of Employment if the services of the workers are no longer required for reasons beyond the control of the Employer due to fire, frost, flood, drought, hail, other Act of God (AOG) which makes fulfillment of this contract impossible. (CO will be notified and employer will seek approval for AOG's) In such cases, the employer will make efforts to transfer workers to other comparable employment acceptable to workers. If such transfer is not effective, workers will be returned at Employer's expense to the place from which Worker, without intervening employment, came to work for employer. In the event of such termination, the 3/4-guarantee period ends on the date of termination. The guarantee shall be void from the beginning should the Worker voluntarily abandon this employment before the end of the contract period or in the event the Worker is terminated for a lawful job-related reason, and the employer notifies the NPC, and DHS in the case of an H-2A worker, in writing or by any other method specified by the Department or DHS in a manner specified in a notice published in the Federal Register not later than 2 working days after such abandonment occurs and this will relieve the employer from subsequent transportation and subsistence costs and the 3/4th guarantee.

D). The payroll period shall be weekly. Workers will be paid weekly with a 1 week holding period.

E). Employer will provide a worker referred through the SWA Interstate System forty (40) hours of work for the week beginning with the anticipated date of need, unless the employer has amended the date of need by notifying the local employment service office at least 10 working days prior to the original date of need. If the employer fails to notify the order-holding office, then employer shall pay an eligible worker referred through the interstate clearance system $11.29 per hour for the first week, starting with the original anticipated date of need. 40 hrs x $11.29 = $451.60 gross (before taxes). The employer may require the worker to perform alternative work if the guarantee cited in this section is invoked. If the worker fails to notify the order-holding office of his continuing interest in the job no sooner than nine working days and no later than five working days before the date of need, the worker will be disqualified from the above-mentioned assurance.

F). The Employer will furnish to the worker, on or before each payday one or more written statements showing the worker's total earnings for the pay period, his hourly rate or piece rate (if applicable); the hours of work which have been offered to the worker, the total hours actually worked by the worker, beginning and ending times, an itemization of all deductions made from the worker's wages; the worker's net pay; the employer's name, address and IRS identification number. Employer will abide by all regulations at 20 CFR 655.122(j)(k).

19. Transportation: The Employer will not advance transportation and subsistence costs to Workers for transportation to the place of employment.

This subparagraph applies only to Workers who cannot reasonability return to their residence the same day. After the workers have completed 50% of the work contract. All eligible applicants will have their inbound reasonable transportation expenses reimbursed, one time only. Domestic applicants from outside of the normal commuting distance that voluntary chose not to reside in the employer provided housing, the employer will pay for the initial inbound transportation reimbursement. However, the employer will not reimburse any workers for daily transportation cost whether commuting from inside or outside of the area of intended employment. Employer will not pay for voluntary trips back to their residence due to family emergencies, or vacations.

The amount of such transportation payment will be equal to the Worker's actual transportation costs not to exceed the most economical and reasonable common carrier transportation charges for the distance involved. In lieu of the above payments to the workers for transportation, the employer reserves the right to charter or otherwise arrange to provide for transportation at the employer's election. Subsistence reimbursement shall be $11.86 per day, without producing documentation of actual expenses, or will otherwise be paid as per 20 CFR 655.122(h) only to those employees who are eligible under the H-2A program regulations for subsistence pay. Maximum Amount to be reimbursed with receipts is $46.00. By way of illustration and not in limitation of the foregoing, the employer will not pay transportation for such worker if he does not have suitable documents to comply with proof of identity and employment eligibility requirements of IRCA, if he is discharged for lawful job-related reasons, if he has knowledge at the place of recruitment that he cannot perform the duties of the job as described above or if he abandons this employment when he is needed by the Grower. If the grower reimburses the worker prior to the 50% date, and the worker is terminated for cause or abandons prior to the 50% date, the grower reserves the right to recapture that reimbursement.

Employer will provide, pay, or reimburse transportation and subsistence under this agreement if the worker is terminated because of work related injury caused by this/these crop activities and is so certified by a doctor acceptable to employer before leaving employers farm, or termination resulting from an Act of God, as outlined in 655.122(o), which makes fulfillment of this contract impossible as provided in paragraph 18C or if the worker is displaced by a U.S. worker under DOL's 50% rule.

The use of the transportation by the worker is voluntary; no worker will be required as a condition of employment to utilize the transportation offered by the employer. For US workers who complete the work contract and are eligible for the outbound transportation benefit, or if the employee is terminated without cause, and the worker has no immediate subsequent H2a employment, or an H2a workers that is displaced due the employers obligation under the USDOL 50% rule, the Employer will provide or pay for the worker's reasonable cost of return transportation and subsistence from the place of employment to the place from which the worker departed to work for the employer, except when the worker will not be returning to the place of recruitment due to subsequent employment with another employer. If the subsequent employer has not agreed to provide or pay for the worker's transportation to the subsequent place of employment, the Employer will provide or pay for the transportation and subsistence to the subsequent place of employment in lieu of providing or paying for such expenses from the place of employment to the place from which the worker departed to work for the employer. If the subsequent employer has agreed to provide or pay for the worker's transportation and subsistence to the subsequent place of employment the Employer will not provide or pay for such expenses. The Employer reserves the right to arrange charter or other return transportation. Workers eligible for this benefit who do not wish to avail themselves of employer arranged return transportation would be provided their outbound transportation and subsistence by check. If a worker choses to not use the employer arrange transportation then they will only be reimbursed for the transportation not included in the employer arranged (Mexican transportation, border crossing and daily subsistence.) In those circumstances, the grower will distribute the checks, as soon as all work is completed, as determined by the employer, and the worker is ready to depart. Workers may select any means of transportation home they choose, however, the reimbursement is limited to the most economical and reasonable common carrier transportation cost for the distance involved. Workers who arrange their own transportation understand they assume all liability and hold harmless the grower/association for any damages, injuries, and personal or property losses.

RE: Sun Valley Orchards LLC

Dear Sir/Madam:

Your application seeking temporary labor certification under the H-2A temporary agricultural program has been certified. On April 23, 2015, this office accepted for consideration an application from you requesting H-2A temporary labor certification for 60 Farmworker and Laborer, Crop, Nursery, And Greenhouse job opportunities. In accordance with Departmental regulations at 20 Code of Federal Regulations (CFR) § 655, Subpart B, it has been determined that a sufficient number of able, willing and qualified U.S. workers have not been identified as being available at the time and place needed to fill all of the job opportunities for which certification has been requested and that employment of the H-2A workers will not adversely affect the wages and working conditions of workers in the United States similarly employed.

Therefore, the Department grants certification for 60 Farmworker and Laborer, Crop, Nursery, And Greenhouse job opportunities. You must comply with all assurances, guarantees and other requirements contained in Departmental regulations at 20 CFR § 655, Subpart B and 20 CFR § 653, Subpart F.

Upon receipt of this notification, you will need to submit to the U.S. Citizenship and Immigration Service (USCIS) California Service Center the I-129 Form that is required in conjunction with an H-2A application. The USCIS petition can be obtained at http://www.uscis.gov.

IMPORTANT NOTE: The employer must sign and date the ETA Form 9142 prior to submission to USCIS California Service Center.

Enclosed is a bill for fees assessed for the H-2A certification. Non-payment or untimely payment may be considered a substantial violation subject to the procedures in Departmental regulations at 20 CFR § 655.182.

Important Reminders:

- In accordance with Departmental regulations at 20 CFR § 655.120(b), if the prevailing hourly wage or piece rate is adjusted during a work contract, and is higher than the highest of the AEWR, the prevailing wage, the agreed-upon collective bargaining wage, or the Federal or State minimum wage, in effect at the time the work is performed, the employer must pay at least that higher prevailing wage or piece rate upon notice to the employer by the Department. The Department posts all current prevailing hourly wages and piece rates to the Department of Labor's Agricultural On-Line Wage Library (AOWL). You are encouraged to visit the AOWL website at http://www.foreignlaborcert.doleta.gov/aowl.cfm for the updated wage rates.

- You must continue to cooperate with the State Workforce Agency (SWA) by accepting all referrals of eligible U.S. workers who apply (or on whose behalf an application is made) for the job opportunity until the end of the recruitment period as set forth in Departmental regulations at 20 CFR § 655.135(d). The end date of your obligation to consider all referrals under the 50 percent rule is calculated by the SWA based on the date the H-2A worker departed for the employer's place of business, which is assumed to be three days prior to the first date of need. However, if the H-2A worker will not depart for your place of employment three days prior to the first date of need, Departmental regulation 20 CFR § 655.135(c) requires you to inform the SWA in writing of the new expected departure date.

- You must update and maintain the recruitment report throughout the recruitment period including the 50 percent period as specified in Departmental regulations at 20 CFR § 655.156(b). This supplement to the recruitment report must meet the requirements of Departmental regulations at 20 CFR § 655.156(a)(1)-(4). The employer must sign and date this supplement to the recruitment report and retain it for a period of no less than three (3) years. The supplement to the recruitment report must be provided upon request.

- You are also reminded that in accordance with Departmental regulations at 20 CFR § 655.122(n), the termination of workers for cause and abandonment of the job by workers are to be reported in writing to the Department and to the Department of Homeland Security (DHS) within two (2) business days of the termination or discovering abandonment. To make compliance with this requirement simple and fast, the employer may e-mail the notification directly to the Chicago NPC using TLC.Chicago@dol.gov. Your requests will be handled as expeditiously as possible. Employers without internet access may also send written notification by facsimile to (312) 886-1688 (ATTN: H-2A Abandonment and Termination) or U.S. mail to the following address:

- In accordance with Departmental regulations at 20 CFR § 655.122(q), employers must provide to H-2A workers no later than the time at which the workers apply for the visa, or to workers in corresponding employment no later than on the day work commences, a copy of the work contract between the employer and the workers in a language understood by the worker as necessary or reasonable. For H-2A workers going from an H-2A employer to a subsequent H-2A employer, the copy must be provided no later than the time an offer of employment is made by the subsequent H-2A employer.

- Departmental regulations at 20 CFR § 655.180, allow the Department to conduct audit examinations of certified H-2A applications. The applications selected for audit will be chosen within the sole discretion of the Department. If your certification has been selected for audit, you are reminded that you must submit the documentation requested in the audit letter within the specified timeframe. Failure to comply with the audit process may result in a finding by the Certifying Officer to revoke the labor certification and/or debarment of the employer from future filings of H-2A temporary labor certification applications. Additionally, the audit findings and underlying documentation may be provided to the Department of Homeland Security or another appropriate enforcement agency. Referrals of any findings that an employer discouraged an eligible U.S. worker from applying, or failed to hire, discharged, or otherwise discriminated against an eligible U.S. worker, to the Department of Justice, Civil Rights Division, Office of Special Counsel for Unfair Immigration Related Employment Practices.

The worker agrees to work for assigned employer(s) whenever work is available during the full remaining period of employment even though work may be slack at times. The worker understands that if the worker quits or is terminated for cause prior to the end of the period of employment, the worker will not receive the 3/4 guarantees discussed below and will not receive certain transportation reimbursements discussed below. Excessive tardiness and/or absences will not be tolerated and will result in termination.

Daily individual work assignments, crew assignments, and location of work, will be made by and at the sole discretion of the farm manger and/or farm supervisor as the needs of the farming operation dictate. Workers may be assigned a variety of duties in any given day and/or different tasks on different days. Workers will be expected to perform any of the listed duties and work on any crop as assigned by the worker's supervisor.

Harvesting specifications, in particular, can change from time to time during the season due to crop or market conditions, even on the same crop. Workers will be expected to conform to the specific instructions given for each day's work.

The farm owner/supervisor or a designated employee will provide instructions and general supervision. However, field workers will be expected to perform their duties in a timely and proficient manner without close supervision.

Other Conditions of Employment: A). Discipline and/or Termination: Employer may discipline and/or terminate the worker for lawful job-related reasons and so notify the Job Service local office of the termination if the worker: a) refuses without justified cause to perform work for which the worker was recruited and hired, b) commit serious act(s) of misconduct or serious or repeated violation(s) of Work Rules c) fails after completing the training period to perform the work as specified in Item F-5 and Attachment, d) malingers or otherwise refuses without justified cause to perform as directed the work for which the Worker was recruited and hired; e) provides other lawful job-related reason(s) for termination of employment, f) abandons his employment. h) falsifies identification, personnel, medical, production or other work related records, i) fails or refuses to take a drug test, or j) commits acts of insubordination, k) the employer may terminate the worker (foreign or domestic) with notification to the employment service if employer discovers a criminal conviction record or status as a registered sex offender that employer reasonably believes, consistent with current law, will impair the safety and living conditions of other workers. Reason beyond employer's control" includes termination of workers, if he not a U.S. worker because a U.S. worker makes himself available for the job under DOL's 50% rule. Workers must notify the employer prior to voluntarily terminating their employment. All wages due will be forwarded to the last known address for Workers that leave without providing notice. It is imperative that workers provide a complete and accurate address to the employer no later than the first day of employment. These employers have a no complete, no rehire policy. Termination for lawful job related reasons before the specified ending date listed in this application will disqualify the employee from future employment opportunities with this employer. Workers who abandon their employment without notice during the period covered by this work agreement will be disqualified from future employment opportunities with this employer. Voluntary resignation before the specified ending date listed in this application may disqualify the employee from future employment opportunities with this employer. For workers who resign their employment voluntarily, the employer will consider and evaluate special circumstances and hardship cases on a case-by-case basis. Employees, without exception, are required to notify appropriate supervisory staff prior to voluntarily terminating their employment to be considered and eligible for exemption to the no complete - no rehire policy.

Workers are guaranteed that their total earnings will be at least equal to the AEWR of $11.29 per hour for all hours worked in a pay period. If a worker's total earnings in any pay period in which the worker has worked at a piece rate are less than the AEWR of $11.29 for all hours worked in the pay period, the employer will increase the worker's pay to the guaranteed minimum of $11.29 per hour for the total hours worked in the pay period.

Due to weather and crop conditions, the employer reserves the right to temporary increase the listed piece rates, or add a piece rate. The employer also reserves the right to completely do away with the piece rate all together to ensure a quality product and fair earnings. Employer reserves the right to add a piece rate, with notification to workers, prior to adding the rate.

NATIONAL AGRICULTURAL CONSULTANTS LLC
H-2A CONSULTING SERVICES, AGENCY REPRESENTATION AND INDEMNIFICATION AGREEMENT

This H-2A Consulting Services, Agency Representation and Indemnification Agreement (the "Agreement") entered into by and between National Agricultural Consultants LLC (the "Agent/Consultant"), an agricultural labor consultant and agent with an expertise in the H-2A Governing Regulations at 20 CFR § 655 in its entirety and the U.S. DOL ESA Wage and Hour H-2A enforcement regulations at 29 CFR § 501, in the state of and under the laws of North Carolina and Sun Valley Orchards, a fixed site agricultural producer(s)/employer(s), by definition at 20 CFR 655.103(b) in the state of NJ (the "Agricultural Employer, 'AGER' ") who is a client of the Consultant.

WHEREAS, the Agent/Consultant is qualified and capable as an Agent/Consultant of rendering agent and consulting services, certain specific administrative services, and other limited services (necessary to assist facilitation of the AGER in obtaining domestic and/or supplementary foreign workers to participate in the H-2A program (8 USC 1101(a)(15)(H)(ii)(a); 8 USC 1188) ("H-2A workers") to meet the AGER's seasonal agricultural labor requirements; and

WHEREAS, the AGER acknowledges, understands and agrees that it is personally and solely responsible for compliance with all applicable farm employee labor and employment laws and provisions of the H-2A program, including the Application for Temporary Employment Certification, the Clearance Order, and the Worker Agreement; and

WHEREAS, the AGER desires to avail themselves of the Agent and Consulting services, administrative services, and other limited services provided by the Agent/Consultant in order to secure domestic and/or supplementary foreign workers to meet the AGER's seasonal agricultural labor requirements for the calendar year beginning January 1, 20 15;

NOW THEREFORE, in consideration of the payment(s) made by the AGER of the established dues, admission fees and other assessments and such costs as are charged/assessed from time to time for providing the services requested by the AGER, and for other good and sufficient consideration, including the mutual promises contained in this Agreement, pursuant to the applicable requirements of 20 CFR § 655. The Agent/Consultant will provide Agent and Consultative services to represent, prepare and/or assist the AGER, as necessary, to interact with all appropriate government agencies involved in the H-2A program application processes, including but not limited to US Department of Labor ("DOL"), US Department of Homeland Security ("DHS"), US State Department("DOS"), and the respective State Workforce Agency(s) ("SWA"). The parties hereto further agree as follows:

A. The Consultant's Obligations

(1) The Agent/Consultant, with input and review from AGER, will prepare and submit to the AGER to review, modify, approve, and/or execute, and authorize submission to the applicable government agency for processing, all forms and documents, required, pursuant to applicable laws and DOL, DHS, and State Department regulations, to obtain US workers and/or H-2A workers from the Republic of Mexico. The AGER provides explicit authorization to Consultant to prepare all necessary forms and documents, with emphasis added, for the Consultant to populate and prepare the I-129 petition on behalf of the AGER who will then review, modify, approve, execute and submit, or authorize submission, to U.S. CIS per the petition filing instructions.

(2) The Consultant, on behalf of the AGER, will provide certain administrative supportive services associated with the domestic recruitment requirements established by DOL regulations. Such tasks shall be limited exclusively to preparing the ETA 790 Form and attachments, subject to review, modification, approval, and execution by the AGER, and to be submitted by the AGER, or authorize Agent/Consultant to submit, in order to list the domestic job order with the appropriate State Workforce Agency ("SWA"), preparing ad copy for the AGER to review, modify and authorize the Agent/Consultant to place advertisements in newspapers on behalf of the AGER as directed by DOL, providing certain supportive services to AGER when/if needed by AGER to prepare AGER to properly interview and document US referrals made directly to the AGER from a SWA, and preparing and submitting to AGER for review, approval, execution and submitting, or authorization for Agent/Consultant to submit, the necessary recruitment report with DOL. The AGER agrees that it, solely, is soliciting employees as required by the Federal Regulation and the AGER has reviewed the required ad and approved the content before Agent/Consultant submits it to the newspaper for print on behalf of AGER. The AGER and DOL determine, solely and exclusively, the terms and conditions disclosed in the ad, when and where it is placed. By preparing ad copy for AGER consideration and authorization, the Agent/Consultant IS NOT performing or engaging in MSPA related Farm Labor Contracting activities such as soliciting. I, the AGER, am exclusively soliciting employees for myself as required by Federal law.

(3) The Agent/Consultant will maintain, or, assist the AGER to maintain contacts that may be needed, from time to time, by the Agent/Consultant or AGER, either directly or through its designated representatives, with SWA's, DOL, DHS, and DOS; and, other state and federal governmental agencies, and government contractors acting on behalf of or performing administrative actions on behalf of government agencies necessary to effectuate the successful administrative participation in the H-2A program and for other purpose(s) described in this Agreement.

(4) The Agent/Consultant has not sought or received payment of any kind from any employee subject to 8 USC 1188 for any activity related to obtaining the H-2A labor certification in compliance with 20 CFR § 655.135(j).

(5) The Agent/Consultant, who IS NOT an attorney and is not providing legal advice to the AGER, MAY, under the limited terms of this agreement, act as the agent of the employer, with any government or private entity, as necessary to assist the employer with participating in the H-2A program. This document IS NOT, nor should it be construed, as a Power of Attorney, limited or otherwise. The AGER acknowledges understanding and agreement that they should always consult with a qualified attorney to have all of their legal questions answered, if any.

B. The Agricultural Employer's Obligations

(1) The AGER agrees to comply timely with all reasonable policies, procedures, and schedules established by the Agent/Consultant which it considers essential for the proper operation of the program to obtain domestic workers and/or H-2A workers, successful participation, and to promote compliance with applicable laws and regulations.

(2) The AGER acknowledges that it is familiar with the regulations and requirements of the H-2A program and agrees to comply with all of the terms and conditions of employment described in the AGER's Agricultural and Food Processing Clearance Order, ETA Form 790 and attachments, and Application for Temporary Employment Certification, ETA 9142 and attachments, (collectively the "Job Order") and with the agricultural work agreement, which describes all the material terms and conditions of employment and that is entered into with both U.S. and H-2A workers by the AGER. The AGER agrees to comply with all obligations imposed on the AGER as an employer of domestic and/or H-2A workers found in applicable law and regulations, including without limitation, those at 20 CFR Part 653 (DOL Interstate Clearance Order regulations); 20 CFR Part 655 (DOL H-2A Regulations); 29 CFR Part 501 (DOL Wage and Hour Enforcement Regulations); and applicable provisions at 8 CFR Parts 214, 215, and 274a (DHS regulations); and to always cooperate with all government agencies with jurisdiction. The AGER agrees to comply with ALL applicable laws and relevant regulations and specifically, but not limited to, 20 C.F.R. 655.120(wages), 122(content of job offer), 135(assurances and obligations), 153(contact former US workers), 155(referral of US workers), 167(document retention requirements) of the H-2A regulations.

(3) In particular, but not limiting the foregoing, the AGER agrees a) to pay their worker's required wages and benefits; b) to make only those deductions from their worker's paychecks that are required by law and only those deductions allowed by law; c) to provide housing as required by law that meets all applicable standards in effect at the time of occupancy; d) to timely reimburse required transportation and daily subsistence costs; e) to provide written detailed wage statements of their worker's total earnings, start time and stop time, nature of work each day, hourly rate and/or piece rate of pay, the hours of employment which had been offered to their worker, the hours actually worked by their worker, and itemization of all deductions made from their worker's wages and, if piece rates are used, the units produced daily, the AGER's name, address and Federal Tax Identification or Social Security Number; f) to terminate their worker only for lawful job related reasons; g) to secure and maintain workers' compensation coverage for each worker for the entire period of employment, with no lapses in coverage; h) to employ any qualified US worker(s), or to interview and hire any qualified US worker(s) who applies directly to the AGER in accordance with the applicable regulations at 20 CFR 655; i) that the Consultant and the AGER are not and shall not be joint employers with respect to any of the AGER's employees. The Agent/Consultant does not exercise any control over any of the AGER's employees and does hold any indicia of employment with respect to the AGER's employees. The AGER is the sole and exclusive employer.

(4) The AGER agrees to pay timely any judgment or penalty entered against the AGER and arising out of the AGER's violation of its obligations under applicable law or regulation, and to indemnify and hold harmless the Agent/Consultant and any of its other AGER Clients for such judgments or penalties and any attorneys' fees and costs incurred by the Agent/Consultant or other AGER Clients in defending against such alleged violation. The AGER acknowledges that the laws and regulations governing the employment of domestic agricultural workers and H-2A workers are subject to disputed and differing legal interpretations in various jurisdictions. Therefore, the AGER agrees that in matters in which a claim is made or litigation is instituted against the Agent/Consultant, the Agent/Consultant may exercise its discretion a) to settle such matters on behalf of the Agent/Consultant and the AGER on terms it deems appropriate; b) to litigate such matters; and c) to determine whether such settlements, judgments, penalties, costs and attorneys fees will be borne by the AGER out of whose alleged action or inaction the claim was based or, what amount, if any, will be borne by the Agent/Consultant and/or shared among its other AGER Clients. The terms of this Paragraph B.(4) survive any future separation from AGER and the Agent/Consultant by the AGER and the term of this Agreement.

(5) The AGER agrees to pay the Agent/Consultant any assessment levied by the Agent/Consultant as the AGER's share of legal and any other expense or liability incurred by the Agent/Consultant in defending, prosecuting or settling any dispute relating to an application for H-2A certification, claim, litigation, or administrative complaint or appeal, whether or not arising out of claims against the AGER or arising out of the fault of the AGER, in accordance with a formula approved by the Agent/Consultant. The terms of this paragraph B.(5) survive any future separation from AGER and the Consultant by the AGER and the term of this Agreement.

United States Department of Labor

Pursuant to a timely request by Respondent for a hearing on the assessment of $369,703.22 in unpaid wages and $212,250.00 in civil money penalties, a hearing has been duly determined to be appropriate and pursuant to regulations is therefore required to be held to inquire into matters arising under the provisions of the Immigration and Nationality Act (INA), 8 U.S.C. § 1101, et seq. as amended by the Immigration Reform Control Act of 1986, Pub. L. 99-603, § 301, 100 Stat. 3359, 3411 and the implementing regulations.

The unpaid wages and civil money penalties were assessed on June 22, 2016, pursuant to 29 C.F.R. § 501.16(a)(1) as a result of alleged violations of regulations, as described in the June 22, 2016 Notice of Determination, including but not limited to 20 C.F.R. § 655.122(g) (failure to comply with meals requirement), § 655.122(p) (failure to comply with requirements regarding paycheck deductions), and § 655.122(i) (failure to comply with the three-fourths guarantee). The Administrator hereby amends the June 22, 2016 Notice of Determination to allege that Respondent also violated: (1) § 655.122(p) by making unreasonable deductions from workers' paychecks, insofar as Respondent sold workers beverages and other goods at a profit and/or in violation of state law; (2) § 655.122(i) by terminating workers without cause; and 3) 29 C.F.R. §

The matter is accordingly hereby referred to the Chief Administrative Law Judge for designation and hearing in accordance with the INA, its implementing regulations, and 29 C.F.R. § 501.37(a).

Subject: Notice of Determination of Wages Owed and Assessing Civil Money Penalties

Case Reference Number: 1765359

Dear Sir(s):

An investigation conducted by this office of Sun Valley Orchards, LLC d/b/a Sun Valley Orchards, relating to the requirements applicable to the employment of H-2A and other workers under the Immigration and Nationality Act (INA) as amended by the Immigration Reform and Control Act (IRCA) (8 U.S.C. 1101(a)(15)(H)(ii)(a),1184(c) and 1186) in Flemington, New Jersey, covering the period from April 13, 2015 through October 10, 2015, disclosed that Sun Valley Orchards, LLC failed to comply with Section 218 of the INA and applicable regulations at 20 C.F.R. Part 655 and 29 C.F.R. Part 501.

As a consequence of these H-2A violations, $369,703.22 in unpaid wages are owed to one hundred and forty seven workers. The specific violations and the wages owed associated with them are set forth in the attached matrix entitled Summary of Violations.

In addition, pursuant to Section 218(g)(2) of the INA and its implementing regulations at 29 C.F.R. Part 501, civil money penalties are hereby assessed in the amount of $212,250.00. The specific violations and the civil money penalties associated with them are set forth in the attached matrix entitled Summary of Violations.

The full amount(s) reflected above $581,953.22 is due and payable within 30 days to "Wage and Hour Division, U.S. Department of Labor." Payments by certified check or money order should be delivered or mailed to:

U.S. Department of Labor
Wage and Hour Division
The Curtis Center, Suite 850 West
170 S. Independence Mall West
Philadelphia, PA 19106-3317

The fact that the above sanctions/remedies are being imposed for the H-2A violations found at this time does not preclude the taking of other enforcement action as is deemed appropriate by the Department of Labor, or the additional assessments of back wages or civil money penalties for violations of the H-2A provisions found at some future time. Such other enforcement action may include the pursuit of unpaid wages, injunctive action, specific performance of the work contract, and denial or revocation of temporary alien agricultural labor certification.

The dollar amount(s) reflected above constitute a debt owed to the Federal government. This debt is subject to the assessment of interest, administrative cost charges and penalties in accordance with the Debt Collection Act of 1982, and departmental policies. Interest will be assessed at the Treasury Tax and Loan Account Rate on any balance outstanding from the date of this notice, accruing from the notice date. Administrative cost charges will be assessed to help defray the Government's cost of collecting this debt. A penalty at the rate of 6% will be assessed on any portion of the debt remaining delinquent for more than 90 days. In order to avoid these charges, forward payments to the office listed above by the indicated due date.

You have the right to request a hearing on the determination that any or all of the violations occurred. Such request must be dated and in writing; must contain specific reasons why you believe that the violations for which you have been charged did not occur; and must be received within 30 days from the date of this letter by the Administrator, Wage and Hour Division, U.S. Department of Labor, 200 Constitution Avenue, N.W., Room S-3502, Washington, D.C. 20210, with a copy to this office. The procedure for requesting a hearing is provided in Section 501.33 of Regulations, 29 CFR 501. If a request for a hearing is not received within the time specified, the determination of the Administrator shall become the final and unappealable Order of the Secretary.

We would like to call to your attention that when a request for a hearing is filed with the Wage and Hour Administrator, the matter is referred to the Chief Administrative Law Judge. A formal hearing is then scheduled for a final determination with respect to the alleged violations. At such hearing you may, by yourself or through an attorney retained by you, present such witnesses, introduce such evidence and establish such facts as you believe will support your position.

Copies of Section 218 of INA and Regulations, 20 CFR Part 655 and 29 CFR Part 501 can be viewed at www.dol.gov.

Finally, we wish to point out that there may be a question as to the deductibility of civil money penalties paid as a business expense under the Internal Revenue Code. In this regard, you may wish to contact the Internal Revenue Service.

Sincerely,

Charlene Rachor
District Director

Summary of Violations

Regulatory Requirement Violated	Summary Description	Unpaid Wages Owed	Civil Money Penalty
20 C.F.R. §655.122(d)(1)	Employer failed to provide for or secure housing for those workers who are not reasonably able to return to their permanent residence at the end of the work day, without charge to the worker, that complies with the applicable housing safety and health standards. Specifically, the investigation disclosed that the housing facility provided for workers was missing window screens and had screen doors not in good repair contributing to the insect infestation throughout the camp. Several bathroom sinks did not have hot water, refuse containers throughout facility were missing fly tight lids and multiple mattresses used by occupants for sleeping purposes were directly on the floor without a bed frame.	$0.00	$3,600.00
20 C.F.R. §655.122(g)	Failure to comply with "meals" requirement(s). Specifically, the investigation disclosed that the employer failed to provide free and convenient cooking and kitchen facilities to the workers that would enable them to prepare their own meals. The job offers for these contracts specifically stated that these facilities would be provided to workers. When the employer provides a meal plan, the job offer for the contract must state the charge for such meals, including drinks. The job offer for these contracts does not contain disclosure of meal charges and as such all meal and drink charges must be returned to the workers resulting in back wages being due to 147 affected workers.	$234,079.28	$198,450.00
20 C.F.R. §655.122(h)(4)	Failure to provide transportation in compliance with all applicable Federal, State, or local laws and regulations between the worker's living quarters and the employer's worksite without cost to the worker. Specifically, the investigation disclosed that three of the five vehicles used to	$0.00	$7,500.00 transport workers had insufficient tread on the tires for safe operation and one had a non-functioning rear directional. Additionally, the five vehicles used to transport H-2A and corresponding workers were operated by drivers who failed to possess valid, unexpired driver's licenses recognized by the State of New Jersey for operation of same.

20 C.F.R. §655.122(i)	Failure to comply with the three-fourths guarantee. Specifically, the investigation disclosed that 19 of the H-2A workers on the first contract of 2015 did not meet the ¾ guarantee since they were constructively forced to return home prior to the end of the contract period due to the myriad of misrepresentations on the contract, poor housing conditions, lack of transportation and general mistreatment by the employer and or his farm labor contractor. Additionally, 6 other workers employed in 2015 did not meet the ¾ guarantee based on a review of payroll records.	$135,623.94	$1,350.00
20 C.F.R. §655.122(q)	Failure to comply with requirement to disclose the work contract. Specifically, the investigation disclosed that the employer provided a copy of the worker contract that did not contain the actual conditions of employment. The contracts do not address the "meal plan" charges and misrepresent that free cooking facilities will be provided to the workers along with free transportation to purchase food. The kitchen facilities were locked, workers had no access to the kitchen for preparation of meals and transportation to purchase food was not provided.	$0.00	$0.00
20 C.F.R. §655.122(p)	Failure to comply with "deductions" requirement(s). Specifically, the investigation disclosed that the job offer did not specify "all" the deductions not required by law which the employer will make from workers' pay checks. The "meal plan" was not disclosed in the job offer or the contract. The back wages associated with this violation and penalty for same are addressed above in 20 CFR 655.122(g).	$0.00	$0.00

29 C.F.R. §501.5	The investigation disclosed that Russell J. Marino sought to have covered workers waive rights conferred under sec. 218 of the INA, regulations at 20 C.F.R. § 655, or regulations at 29 C.F.R. § 501. Specifically, the investigation disclosed that the employer and or his farm labor contractor coerced workers leaving the contracts prior to the ending date to sign a form created by Sun Valley Orchards, LLC stating that they were leaving early for "personal reasons" in an attempt to have them waive their ¾ guarantee rights as party to the contracts. Workers left the job early due to the conditions stated above in 20 CFR 655.122(i) and/or because of misrepresentations by the employer and/or his farm labor contractor.	$0.00	$1,350.00

Re: Request For Hearing Regarding Notice of Determination of Wages Owed and Assessment of Civil Money Penalties, No. 1765359 dated June 22, 2016

Dear Dr. Weil and Ms. Rachor:

Sun Valley Orchards, LLC ("Sun Valley") has retained this firm in connection with the above-referenced matter. Sun Valley requests a hearing as to every factual and legal issue raised by the Notice of Determination of Wages Owed and Assessment of Civil Money Penalties, No. 1765359 dated June 22, 2016 ("Notice").

Sun Valley Orchards is a family farm operated by 4 generations of the Marino family dating back almost 100 years. Sun Valley grows, packs, and distributes fresh market freestone peaches, cucumbers, squash, pickles, peppers, and asparagus on more than 2,000 acres of farmland in Swedesboro, New Jersey. Sun Valley is one of the largest growers, shippers, and packers in New Jersey.

The 2015 growing season was Sun Valley's first in the H-2A program after it was unable to find and hire enough qualified people to perform the seasonal work. For the 2015 season, which was the season giving rise to the current case, the Department of Labor ("DOL") certified Sun Valley for 40 workers for the period of April 13, 2015 to October 10, 2015 and 60 workers for the period of June 1, 2015 to October 10, 2015.

The Wage and Hour Division of DOL (WHD) investigated Sun Valley with respect to the H-2A certifications for the period of April 13, 2015 through October 10, 2015. The WHD Notice dated June 22, 2016 contends the Sun Valley failed to comply with the requirements of the DOL H-2A regulations. The Notice provides few details but has two primary allegations against Sun Valley: (1) that workers were not offered three-fourths of the hours of work as set forth in the job orders; and (2) the workers were provided a meal plan instead of cooking facilities for them to use on their own. The Notice also seeks civil money penalties (CMPs) related to allegations of minor housing and local transportation issues, and claiming that workers were asked to waive their rights under the H-2A program. There are also allegations for which no back wages or civil money penalties are associated in the Notice. In all, WHD seeks $369,703.22 in back wages for 147 workers and $212,250.00 in CMPs.

Sun Valley requests a hearing on every factual and legal issue raised by the Notice. The Notice alleges the violations described above, but fails to identify any of the workers or offer any information that would support those allegations. Sun Valley denies that it committed any of the violations alleged, and will defend itself vehemently against these charges. The allegations are false and the assessment of back wages and CMPs are legally unsupportable and erroneous.

The Notice appears (although it is impossible to discern with certainty, given the lack of information provided) to assess back wages for 100% of the DOL-approved meal rate that the workers paid for the 3 prepared meals per day for 6 months that the workers ate without raising an issue – not the difference between the fair market value of the meals provided and the cost of purchasing their own groceries and preparing their own meals (which would exceed the cost of the actual meals provided). The H-2A regulations absolutely do not require double-payment of this sort – essentially providing 6 meals per day per worker for the entire season. To the extent that the Administrative Law Judge finds any violation of the terms and conditions of the job order regarding meals for workers, the method used by WHD for calculating back wages and CMPs is clearly erroneous.

With respect to the three-fourths guarantee allegations, 20 C.F.R. § 655.122(n) provides that the obligation to offer (or pay for) the hours in question ends if the worker voluntarily terminates employment and the employer reports the early termination to DOL's Chicago National Processing Center (CNPC) and DHS. Here, there were two groups of workers who terminated employment before the end of the period-of-need in the job order. One group left very early in the season, but turned in their employee ID cards and signed documents explaining their reason for terminating their employment early. Sun Valley timely provided the required notice of these departures to CNPC and DHS, as required in the regulations. The workers were not asked to "waive their rights," since they had already decided to terminate their employment voluntarily (at great disadvantage to Sun Valley, which needed a full complement of workers to perform the work on the farm), they were simply asked to execute a document explaining why they had made their decision, as part of Sun Valley's reporting to CNPC and DHS on the voluntary terminations. For workers who terminated their employment late in the season, they had already worked and been compensated for at least three-fourths of the hours offered in the job order. Thus, no back wages (or CMPs) are owed for either group of workers, pursuant to DOL's own regulations.

In addition to the factual and legal arguments set forth above, Sun Valley reserves its right to challenge the June 22 Notice based on all legal grounds available to it. Beyond these arguments, which will establish that Sun Valley has no liability for any of the alleged violations, Sun Valley challenges the calculation and assessment of CMPs. None are warranted because there were no violations, but the amounts assessed are at or near the maximum possible. The Notice offers neither explanation nor factual basis for these calculations. Application of the factors listed in 29 C.F.R. § 501.19(b) for determining appropriate CMPs shows that the CMPs are too high, assuming for the sake of argument, that there is an underlying back wage liability. Sun Valley demands strict proof that the CMPs were properly assessed and assessed in the correct amount.

For all of the foregoing reasons, Sun Valley Orchards denies all of the allegations asserted in the WHD Notice dated June 22, 2016, requests an evidentiary hearing before an Administrative Law Judge on these charges, and demands strict proof of any of the alleged violations and calculation of back wages and civil money penalties.

Sincerely,

Respondent, Sun Valley Orchards, LLC ("Sun Valley" or "Respondent"), respectfully submits this brief in opposition to the Administrator's Motion for Partial Summary Decision ("Adm. Br.") and in further support of Respondent's Motion for Summary Decision. On the key factual issues of the case, the Administrator does not challenge the Respondent's account. On the two central questions before the Court, the three-fourths guarantee claim involving the early-departing H-2A workers and the meal and drink purchases from Mr. Hernandez, the Administrator has not come forward with facts or legal argument to rebut Sun Valley's position. Their own brief undercuts the arguments upon which they rely and only further buttresses Respondent's request for summary decision in this case.

For example, the Administrator seeks more than $400,000 from Sun Valley on a theory that the farm "required workers to pay for meals." Adm. Br. 1. When it comes to explaining this position, however, 30 pages later, the Administrator notes that several Sun Valley workers did not purchase meals from Mr. Hernandez. Id. at 32-34. Rather than addressing this obvious inconsistency, which demonstrates clearly that the workers were not required to buy meals from Mr. Hernandez and several actually chose not to do so, the Administrator treats this as simply a minor issue related to the calculation of damages.[1] Having long since decided that Sun Valley is guilty of something – if not so sure what or why – the Administrator

[1] The Administrator has the gall to seek credit for showing "mercy" in not trying to collect amounts that were never paid for a violation that never occurred. Id. Sun Valley can certainly be forgiven for being less than exuberantly grateful for the Administrator's belated willingness to reduce the meals-related claim by a whopping $380.00 out of the $432,529.28 sought.

doggedly refuses to let something as pesky as facts get in the way of that determination.

The Administrator fails to advance a credible theory, much less proof based on undisputed fact, that would support its claim for partial summary decision or prevent summary decision being granted to Sun Valley. For all of the reasons set forth in Sun Valley's motion for summary decision and memorandum of law in support, as well those set forth in this memorandum of law, Sun Valley respectfully submits that it is entitled to summary decision on all claims and asks the Court to enter an order dismissing the order of reference in its entirety.

ARGUMENT

The Administrator does not move for summary decision on three of the largest claims in the case: (1) the three-fourths guarantee claim for the workers who quit after one week; (2) the purchase of soft drinks and beer from Mr. Hernandez; and (3) the "compel" to waive rights claim involving Russell Marino, Jr. This is a curious tactical decision, but should not prevent the Court from granting summary decision in favor of Sun Valley on these issues, for all of the reasons set forth in Respondent's opening brief.

I. Sun Valley Fully Complied With Its Three-Fourths Guarantee

A. The Early-Departing Group of Workers Were Not Fired, They Quit

The testimony of the three early-departing H-2A deponents closely matches the testimony of Joe Marino, Russell Marino, Jr., and Agustin Hernandez. Specifically, that group of 19 workers were unable or unwilling to perform the work for which they were hired – asparagus harvesting – so they decided to leave as a group, despite pleas from the Marinos to stay so that the entire asparagus crop would not be lost.

The Administrator may make a last-minute effort to challenge this by claiming that these workers had an erroneous "belief" that they had been fired, but their testimony was clear – both as to what they told the Marinos and Mr. Hernandez at the time in early May 2015, and in their recollections 2 years later – that they were only willing to stay if they could work on other crops, so they left by choice. Sun Valley had no reason in the world to terminate these 19 workers at the height of the harvest season – their departure caused serious losses to the farm. An argument that they were terminated for underperforming is simply not plausible.[2]

Nor is an argument that the "conditions" led to "constructive discharge" of the workers. As set forth in Sun Valley's opening brief, the reasons that the deponents gave for requesting the meeting with the Marinos varied slightly, but clearly centered on a concern that they were working hard and wanted more respect. None of the workers testified that they felt that they had to quit because of torn screens, broken tail lights, or any of the other violations alleged by the Administrator. Hard work, being required to do the job that was applied for and hired for, and being pushed to work faster to bring in a fast-growing and fast-rotting crop do not constitute grounds for constructive discharge.

[2] While Sun Valley consistently asserts that these 19 workers left on their own accord and against the pleas of Russell Marino, Jr. and Joe Marino, even if they believe that they were terminated by the Marinos for refusing to harvest asparagus, such a refusal would constitute termination for cause under 20 C.F.R. § 655.122(n) and would have terminated Sun Valley's three-fourths guarantee obligation to them.

These 19 workers were not terminated by Sun Valley, they quit. In the parlance of the H-2A regulations, they "voluntarily abandon[ed] employment before the end of the contract period." 20 C.F.R. § 655.122(n). That decision to voluntary abandon employment terminated Sun Valley's three-fourths guarantee obligation to them on the spot. To find in favor of the Administrator on this issue would be a triple-punishment to Sun Valley. They paid significant amounts just to participate in the H-2A program, including round-trip transportation for these 19 workers, for essentially one week of work. Those workers quit the job, leaving the crop to rot, causing significant losses to Sun Valley. Sun Valley had to hire and transport other workers to New Jersey to replace these quitting workers, paying them wages to perform the jobs that should have been performed by the original group. To now require Sun Valley to pay these workers thousands and thousands of dollars for months of work that they never performed, on top of all these other losses and expenses, would be as absurd as it would be devastating to this family farm. As such, summary decision in favor of Sun Valley is not only appropriate, but required as a matter of law.

B. The August 2015 Layoffs After the Pepper Failure Occurred After The Workers Met Their Three-Fourths Guarantee Target.

With respect to the six other workers for whom the Administrator seeks back wages and CMPs under a three-fourths guarantee theory, the Administrator's calculation of three-fourths of the hours is similar to Sun Valley's, within a few hundred dollars. As discussed in Sun Valley's opening brief, Sun Valley's calculations (which have been provided with their opening brief) show that all but two workers worked more than three-fourths of the hours for the job order – not just were offered, but actually worked those hours. One of the other workers was Dario Morales Acosta, who specifically testified that he missed several weeks with an injured toe, during which time the rest of the crew worked the hours that he was "offered" while he was unable to work. The other was Jose Islas Larraga, who started on the earlier contract but voluntarily terminated his employment, without warning or notice, on June 15, 2015, which ended Sun Valley's three-fourths guarantee obligation to him under Section 655.122(n). Summary decision is proper for this claim, based on the undisputed facts of the case and records provided.

C. The Early Departure Forms Were Neither Coerced Nor a Waiver

While the Administrator does not address the issue in its opening brief, Sun Valley reiterates its position that summary decision is appropriate as to the allegation that Russell Marino, Jr. "coerced" anyone into waiving their rights under the H-2A regulations. As set forth in Respondent's opening brief, the form was simply intended to document that the workers left before the end of the contract period, as part of Sun Valley's mandatory reporting to DOL and DHS of such early departures. Mr. Marino was not present when the forms were provided to the workers, when the workers completed the form, nor when the forms were collected. The workers were given the option to check whichever box they chose, they spoke with a representative in Mexico of their choosing about which box to check, and the workers chose different boxes from one another. Finally, at no point in this litigation has Sun Valley relied on those documents as proof of the workers' motives in terminating their employment early – either the group that quit after one week or the group let go after the pepper crop failed. These forms were in no way "coerced" and in no way used to achieve any "waiver" of rights. Summary decision on this claim is appropriate and should be granted.

II. The Housing and Transportation Claims Are Overstated

The Administrator attempts to portray the housing and transportation claims in the most dramatic and inflammatory terms. Sun Valley takes the health and safety of its workers seriously and treats the workers as part of the family. The housing is inspected annually before the season begins (and always passed that inspection), but young men will not always maintain their living quarters to the standards expected by WHD. Screens will be torn, floors will not be swept, mud is tracked in, and trash can lids that were that at the beginning of the season will be misplaced. This does not rise to the level of putting "workers' health and safety at risk" (Adm. Br. at 28), however. Sun Valley directed Mr. Hernandez to keep the housing in good condition and he, in turn, delegated that duty to multiple workers to perform. To the extent that the housing fell below the necessary standards, it could have been quickly fixed, but does not support the penalties assessed in this case.

On the specific allegation of a mattress on the floor, this is part of the inspection performed by the New Jersey Department of Labor prior to the season. See inspection reports provided with Respondent's Opening Brief. A worker choosing to move his mattress onto the floor does not justify a finding of a violation, much less the assessment of CMPs.

The safety issues regarding transportation are well-received, and Sun Valley has already taken steps to resolve them, from tire treads to broken tail lights, and will continue to improve practices on safety issues across-the-board. To the extent that any violations are found, Sun Valley respectfully asserts that the level of CMPs should be reduced.[3]

III. Sun Valley Has Zero Liability for Meals or Drinks Purchased by its Workers from Agustin Hernandez

The lion's share of the Administrator's claim arises from cash payments made by some of Sun Valley's workers to Agustin Hernandez for prepared meals. As set forth in Respondent's opening brief and addressed more briefly herein, Sun Valley complied with its obligations under the H-2A regulations and its approved job orders by furnishing a kitchen to prepare meals, and the decision to purchase meals from Mr. Hernandez was left to the workers – some of whom chose to do so and some of whom did not. Even if the Court were to conclude that the kitchen was not "available" to the workers as stated in the job order, the remedy of providing absolutely free meals to the workers for the entire season, hundreds of thousands of dollars of such meals, is ridiculous and not supported by the H-2A regulations. The Administrator makes no effort whatsoever to weigh the cost the workers would have incurred had they purchased and cooked their own meals, nor considered that absolutely no profit accrued to Sun Valley from the preparation or purchase of prepared meals. Finally, the claim for back wages and CMPs arising from the purchase of drinks from Mr. Hernandez is outrageous and finds neither support in the law nor accuracy in its attempted calculation. For all of these reasons, and those reasons set forth in the opening brief, Sun Valley respectfully asks the Court to enter summary decision and dismiss these claims in their entirety.

[3] The Administrator's repeated references to "hidden busses" or allegations of an attempted "cover-up" by Sun Valley amount to nothing more than unsupported and defamatory speculation, beneath the dignity of the Department.

A. Sun Valley Furnished and Paid Utilities for a Full Kitchen

The Administrator disputes the extent to which Sun Valley's kitchen was "available" to workers, but does not dispute that Sun Valley furnished and paid the utilities for a full kitchen. The claim that Mr. Hernandez locked the kitchen during off-hours was made by only one witness (Dario Morales Acosta at 12-13), but specifically contradicted by the remaining witnesses. The Administrator's own brief notes that workers were seen using the kitchen after-hours, completely undercutting Mr. Morales Acosta's unsupported and erroneous claim. Adm. Br. at 18-19. Further undercutting the testimony of Mr. Morales Acosta was the further testimony of Mr. Morales Acosta. He specifically stated that none of the workers ever asked to use the stoves or refrigerators (DMA 38). That testimony, unlike his phantom lock, was supported by his co-workers. CCR 65 (no one ever asked about using the kitchen); HLCT 37 (no workers ever raised issues about the kitchen with Marinos). Sun Valley does not have a policy excluding its workers (H-2A or domestic) from using the kitchen in the housing unit. JM 78.

The individual choices or understanding of the workers do not point to the systematic exclusion from the kitchen that the Administrator must demonstrate to counter the undisputed fact that Sun Valley furnished, maintained, and paid the utilities for a large kitchen for its workers. Summary decision on this issue would eliminate the meal charge issue in its entirety, as Sun Valley did just what it promised in its job orders. Sun Valley respectfully asks the Court to grant summary decision on this ground and dismiss the Administrator's meal claims.

B. Review of Undisputed Facts About Payments for Hot Meals

Although the parties may disagree about the legal significance of some of these facts, they do not dispute the accuracy of such facts:

- Some of Sun Valley's workers paid $75 to $80 per week to Agustin Hernandez to provide them with three hot meals per day.
- Some workers chose not to purchase meals, soft drinks, or beer from Mr. Hernandez, and had no trouble from Sun Valley for this choice.
- DOL's allowable weekly meal charge for 2015 was $83.02 ($11.86 daily x 7 days/week). 80 Fed. Reg. 9482 (Feb. 23, 2015).
- Sun Valley's 2015 job orders did not state that it would collect a "meal charge" from its workers that season.
- No money was deducted from Sun Valley's workers' pay checks.
- No money was paid to Sun Valley; only ever paid to Mr. Hernandez.

Other facts have been established clearly in the record already, including that Sun Valley never gave Mr. Hernandez any instructions about how to operate the kitchen or who could use the kitchen, nor did it set any rules for how he ran the kitchen. JM 36; AH 106-107. These facts are beyond dispute and do not remotely support the Administrator's $400,000+ claim for back wages and CMPs.

C. The Administrator's "Agency" Argument Has No Bearing Here

Counsel for the Administrator has provided an excellent law review article on the subject of actual or apparent agency. Unfortunately, there is nothing in that discussion standing for the proposition at issue here – that a payment to someone who is not the employer of an H-2A worker triggers some sort of duty by the H-2A employer to "repay" the full amount of that payment. Under agency law principles, Mr. Hernandez may (or may not) be authorized to enter into vendor contracts and Sun Valley may (or may not) be held liable for tortious conduct that he might engage in. But those are significantly different than determining whether Sun Valley met its

H-2A program requirements, much less requiring Sun Valley to pay hundreds of thousands of dollars to former employees for amounts voluntarily paid by them to Mr. Hernandez.

The one and only case cited by the Administrator in which both agency principles and the H-2A program regulations appear is Ramos-Barrientos v. Bland, 661 F.3d 587 (11th Cir. 2011). A closer read of Ramos-Barrientos beyond its passing reference to the Restatement (Third) of Agency, however, reveals that that case was an FLSA minimum wage case under Section 203(m), in which the Eleventh Circuit specifically agreed with the defendant-employer that it was not liable for payments to third parties for meals, rejecting the agency liability theory advanced by plaintiffs.

The "agency" theory falls apart when applied to the Administrator's shifting theory of Sun Valley's alleged liability for the meal purchases. As discussed below, the Administrator does not seem to be arguing that the amounts paid to Mr. Hernandez exceeded either the actual cost of the meals nor the DOL-approved rate for H-2A employers to charge employees for meals. So, a theory that Mr. Hernandez was "acting on behalf of" Sun Valley in collecting an improper amount of money from the workers cannot be the reason for liability.

The Administrator does, however, make repeated reference to the Global Horizons cases, particularly the 2010 decision in "Global Horizons II." 2010-TAE-0002 (Dec. 17, 2010) (Order on Partial Summary Decision). That decision marks the single instance in which any court has ordered the full repayment of meal charges collected from H-2A workers without disclosure. The theory applied for that ruling related to the concern that an employer might gain some advantage with respect to the adverse effect wage rate by earning a profit on meal charges. Id. at 8 ("If workers agree to meal prices that afford a profit to the employer, the effect is the same as if the employer paid below-market wages."). Under that theory, the agency principles have no bearing, because it is the actual flow of money between the H-2A workers and the employer that gives rise to liability. Here, there is no dispute at all that the workers received 100% of the AEWR in their paychecks, without any amounts withheld by Sun Valley. Some, but not all, of the workers purchased meals from Agustin Hernandez and gave him cash for these meals. None of that money came back into Sun Valley's accounts or in any way reduced their wage bills. Thus, the basis for Mr. Hernandez acting as an agent or an independent actor is utterly irrelevant – the money changed hands twice, but never came back to Sun Valley, which was precisely the concern raised in Global Horizons II.

D. The Administrator Fails to Account for the Cost the Workers Would Have Incurred in Preparing Their Own Meals

The U.S. Department of Agriculture (USDA) is the definitive source on food and nutrition issues in the United States. USDA publishes monthly reports calculating the cost for individuals or families to prepare their own food, on either a weekly or monthly basis. Attached as Exhibit 1 are two examples of these reports, "Official USDA Food Plans: Cost of Food at Home at Four Levels, U.S. Average, April 2015" and September 2015. Reports and explanations of the reports and their methodology are available from the Center for Nutrition Policy and Promotion's website, at www.cnpp.usda.gov. The "average" food plans represent what USDA considers a "nutritious diet" for children of different ages, adult males and females of different ages, couples without children, and families of 4. For each age/gender/family cohort, with four different plan levels are calculated under reports issued in 2007 that consider the activity level and caloric requirements for the relevant person/family's diet: "Thrifty"; "Low-cost"; "Moderate-cost"; or "Liberal."[4] When the Department of Labor last issued H-2A regulations – those covering the range production of livestock in October 2015 – it received comments indicating that the most accurate calculation of meal costs for H-2A workers, given that most are young men performing vigorous outdoor work, would be the "Liberal plan" for Males age 19-50. See, 80 Fed. Reg. 62958, 62996, 63032 (Oct. 16, 2015). Unlike the rules for other H-2A workers, which expressly permit meal charges or requiring workers to purchase their own food, the Department declined to permit an offset of wages based on the cost of free food that the open-range rules require ranchers to provide their herders. Id. The unique itinerant and remote nature of that work, compared to "normal" H-2A work performed on fixed-site farms, was the justification for this conclusion – a departure from longstanding H-2A requirements that the Department acknowledged in the 2015 rulemaking. Id. at 62981-83.

For April 2015, the Liberal Plan for 19-50 year old males, as calculated by USDA, cost $86.30 per week. For September 2015, the weekly cost was $86.50. As the Court would likely agree, New Jersey is above average in many ways, including in the price of groceries. Still, even under the 50-state average from USDA, these

[4] The USDA reports are available at the following locations:
https://www.cnpp.usda.gov/sites/default/files/usda_food_plans_cost_of_food/TFP2006Report.pdf ("Thrifty")
https://www.cnpp.usda.gov/sites/default/files/usda_food_plans_cost_of_food/FoodPlans2007AdminReport.pdf (other 3 levels) amounts are consistent with the DOL-approved meal charge amount of $83.02 per week ($11.86 daily x 7 days/week). 80 Fed. Reg. 9482 (Feb. 23, 2015).

Thus, had Agustin Hernandez not offered to prepare meals for the workers and, instead, left them to their own devices to purchase and prepare food in the kitchen provided by Sun Valley, the workers would have lost between $6.30 and $11.50 per week. It absolutely defies logic or credibility to assert that these workers were somehow worse off by purchasing meals from Mr. Hernandez than they would have by fending for themselves. The workers came out ahead in the bargain, and the attempt to recover an additional $128,130.00 in "back wages" from Sun Valley beggars belief and should not be endorsed by this Court.

E. The Other "Deduction" Cases Do Not Support the Administrator's Position, Either

The Administrator points to Matter of Seasonal Ag Services, Inc., 2014-TAE-0006 (Dec. 5, 2014), for the principle that an award of back wages should be in the full amount of "undisclosed deductions." Adm. Br. at 32. The specific deductions in that case, however, were all expressly forbidden charges in the H-2A program: a $100 recruitment fee and a "work boot deduction." Id. at 3. Those were the back wage payments that the Court required in that case. Payment of recruitment fees are explicitly forbidden under 20 C.F.R. § 655.135(j), and treated extremely seriously (as they should be) by DOL, USCIS, and the State Department, as these fees are often linked to human trafficking. The work boot deduction is also expressly barred in the H-2A rules, under 20 C.F.R. § 655.122(f), requiring the employer to provide "without charge or deposit, all tools, supplies and equipment required to perform the duties assigned."

The payments at issue in Seasonal Ag Services are, therefore, qualitatively different than the amounts paid to Mr. Hernandez for meals and/or drinks. Other than the sui generis situation of open-range sheepherders, discussed below, H-2A employers are specifically permitted to charge H-2A workers for the cost of serving prepared meals. 20 C.F.R. §§ 655.122(g) and 655.173. There is a separate requirement to disclose the amounts of such charges, if they are to be collected by an employer, but it is indisputably appropriate for workers to pay for prepared meals rather than expecting a free lunch (and breakfast and dinner).

Furthermore, the "back wages" amounts in Seasonal Ag Services were actually collected and held by the H-2A employer, making the payment to the workers a "repayment" or disgorgement of amounts improperly received. Disgorgement is an equitable remedy, "measured by the defendant's profits." Edmonson v. Lincoln Nat'l Life Ins. Co., 725 F.3d 406, 415 (3d Cir. 2013), cert. denied, 189 L. Ed. 2d 173 (2014); quoting Restatement (Third) on Restitution and Unjust Enrichment, § 51 cmt. a (2011). Disgorgement serves to prevent unjust enrichment, but may not be used punitively. SEC v. Teo, 746 F.3d 90, 103 (3d Cir. 2014), cert. denied, 2014 U.S. LEXIS 7689 (Nov. 17, 2014), citing SEC v. First City Fin. Corp., 890 F.2d 1215, 1231 (D.C. Cir. 1989); see also Commodity Futures Trading Comm'n v. American Metals Exch. Corp, 991 F.2d 71, 76 (3d Cir. 1993) (disgorgement designed to be remedial and not punitive; "Disgorgement does not penalize, but merely deprives wrongdoers of ill-gotten gains.").

The parties have stipulated, as part of their pre-hearing disclosures, that Sun Valley did not withhold or deduct any amounts from its workers' paychecks for meals, and that the payments made by the workers with their own money were only ever to Mr. Hernandez and never to Sun Valley, itself. See Joint Stipulation of Agreed Facts and Joint Exhibits, at ¶¶ 22-25 (filed June 16, 2017); see also Administrator's Responses to Respondent's First Set of Requests for Admissions #10 ("Administrator admits that Sun Valley's payroll records do not show any such deductions from the paychecks."), #14 (Agustin Hernandez received payment from Sun Valley's workers), #19 and #20 (Agustin Hernandez, not Sun Valley, sold beer and soft drinks in 2015); Administrator's Responses to Respondent's First Set of Interrogatories #16 ("The Administrator is not aware of documents showing payments workers made to Sun Valley through Sun Valley managers other than Agustin Hernandez.").

The theory of "deductions" does not hold water. As discussed in Arriaga v. Florida Pac. Farms, LLC, 305 F.3d 1228 (11th Cir. 2002), offered in support of the Administrator's theory, the issue was FLSA minimum wage payments, with the Court concluding that inbound transportation costs must be reimbursed in the first pay period – those are amounts indisputably owed to workers under the H-2A regulations not, as here, meal costs unrelated to travel periods which are the worker's sole responsibility under those regulations. The Administrator, time and again, fails to offer a cogent or convincing theory for recovering six-figure payments related to these meal payments, and summary decision should be entered on behalf of Sun Valley on this issue.

F. Sun Valley Has No Liability for the Workers' Drink Purchases

On the issue of the drinks purchases, as with any back-wage or CMP claim, there are two questions: (1) has the Administrator met her burden of proof that Sun Valley committed a violation?; and (2) if so, is the recovery sought appropriately and accurately calculated? The answer to both questions is "no" in this case. While the Administrator does not seek summary decision on whether the drinks were sold improperly, the Administrator's motion somehow does seek judgment awarding CMPs for that issue. See Adm. Br. at 36-38; Declaration of Charlene L. Rachor at ¶¶ 7-15. This procedural quirk is ultimately just an oddity, however, since the Administrator has failed to establish that Sun Valley should have any liability for the workers' purchase of these drinks, nor even that Mr. Hernandez acted improperly in selling those drinks, much less that the "back of the envelope" estimates used to calculate "back wages" were remotely accurate.

The Administrator has not shown that the workers were entitled to free soft drinks or beer, nor even soft drinks or beer at wholesale prices. Workers were provided ample water at all times and could choose or not choose to purchase these drinks with their own money. Even if the Court declines to grant Sun Valley's motion for summary decision on this issue, it would still be inappropriate to grant summary decision to the Administrator on this issue, summary decision should be entered for Sun Valley on this issue, as with the others.

IV. The CMPs Are Inappropriately High and Improper Here

Although the Administrator asserts this Court's authority to increase CMPs beyond those claimed by the Administrator or set forth in the Notice of Determination or even Order of Reference, counsel does not point to any case where an ALJ has actually done so.[5] In fact, it is far from certain that the imposition of civil money penalties in the enforcement of an agency regulation is even Constitutional, absent a right to a jury trial. See, e.g., Tull v. United States, 481 U.S. 412 (1987) (Seventh Amendment requires jury trial for agency collection of civil penalty).

But the Court need not consider any of these arguments, as the Administrator has failed to establish any violations that would give rise to such CMPs in this case. For all the reasons stated above, each of the claims should be dismissed completely, regardless of the amounts improperly calculated.

CONCLUSION

Counsel for the Administrator continues their campaign to vilify and defame the Marino family and Sun Valley Orchards, but they fail to advance a cognizable theory for recovery of back wages or civil money penalties in this case. The parties agree on most of the operative facts of the case, and those facts simply do not support the Administrator's claims. Sun Valley respectfully asks that the Court dismiss the Complaint in its entirety against them as soon as possible.

In the Matter of ADMINISTRATOR, WAGE AND HOUR DIVISION, U.S. DEPARTMENT OF LABOR Plaintiff v. SUN VALLEY ORCHARDS, LLC Respondent.	)	Case No.: 2017-TAE-00003

ADMINISTRATOR'S PRE-HEARING STATEMENT

Pursuant to the Court's January 18, 2017 Initial Notice of Hearing and Prehearing Order § e, the Court's June 8, 2017 Order Granting the Parties Joint Motion To Extend by One Week Certain Pre-Hearing Deadlines, and 29 C.F.R. §18.80(c), the Administrator of the Wage and Hour Division ("the Administrator") submits the following Pre-Hearing Statement.

I. Issues of Law to be Determined:

(a) Whether Sun Valley violated 20 C.F.R. § 655.122(p) because its manager and crew leader Agustin Hernandez—an "affiliated person"—made unlawful deductions in operating a company store selling drinks, beer, and other items at inflated prices and in violation of state law, depriving workers of the offered wage.

(b) Whether Sun Valley's failure to provide free and convenient kitchen access to its workers, its failure to disclose in advance the $75-$80 per-week meal charge, and its weekly charges for those meals, violated 20 C.F.R. §§ 655.122(g), (p), and (q).

(c) The calculation of back wages owed for violations of 20 C.F.R. §§ 655.122(g), (p), and (q).

(d) Whether Sun Valley constructively discharged nineteen of its H-2A workers in May 2015 because of intolerable conditions of employment, or terminated these workers after they complained about the conditions of employment, without having offered them "employment for a total number of work hours equal to at least three-fourths of the workdays" in their work contracts, in violation of 20 C.F.R. § 655.122(i).

(e) Whether Sun Valley also violated 20 C.F.R. § 655.122(i) by improperly failing to offer the three-fourths guarantee to an additional five workers whose work ended before the end of the 2015 growing season.

(f) Whether Sun Valley violated 29 C.F.R. § 501.5 by seeking to have terminated workers waive their rights under 20 C.F.R. part 655, subpart B, specifically the right to the three-fourths guarantee.

(g) Whether Sun Valley 20 C.F.R. § 655.122(d)(1)(i) by having housing that failed to meet the applicable OSHA standards, including the lack of garbage can lids, proper door screens, and a window screen (which led to an insect infestation).

(h) Whether the Administrator's assessment of $7,500 in civil money penalties for Sun Valley's various transportation violations, including its longstanding and ongoing practice of having unlicensed drivers transport workers on public roads on a daily basis, was appropriate in light of the CMP factors provided in 29 C.F.R. 501.19.[1]

(i) Whether the Administrator's assessment of $204,750 in civil money penalties against Sun Valley for its other myriad violations was a reasonable applicable of the CMP factors provided in 29 C.F.R. § 501.19 and is entitled to deference.[2]

[1] Sun Valley apparently does not dispute that its transportation practices violated 20 C.F.R. 655.122(h)(4). See Sun Valley June 15, 2017 Memorandum of Law in Opposition to Administrator's Motion for Partial Summary Decision at 6 (in response to the Administrator's summary decision arguments as to transportation violations, Sun Valley stated only that "[t]he safety issues regarding transportation are well-received, and Sun Valley has already taken steps to resolve them, from tire treads to broken tail lights, and will continue to improve practices").

[2] The parties have filed cross-summary decision motions and some of these issues may be resolved before trial.

III. Stipulated Facts

See June 15, 2017 Joint Stipulation of Facts previously filed with the Court.

IV. Material Facts in Dispute

(a) Whether the nineteen H-2A workers who departed from Sun Valley in May 2015 did so because they had voluntarily abandoned their employment; because they had been compelled to leave due to intolerable working conditions; or because Sun Valley had fired them all at a staff meeting where they had complained about the Sun Valley terms and conditions of employment.

(b) The number of hours of work that Sun Valley offered to these workers and to an additional five workers who departed before the end of the 2015 growing season.

(d) The number of drinks, beer, and other items that workers purchased from Sun Valley's company store and Agustin Hernandez.

(e) Whether Sun Valley provided free and convenient kitchen access to its workers.

RESPONDENT SUN VALLEY ORCHARDS' PRE-HEARING STATEMENT

Respondent, Sun Valley Orchards, LLC ("Sun Valley"), respectfully submits the following Pre-Hearing Statement in accordance with the Court's Initial Notice of Hearing and Prehearing Order dated January 18, 2017, and the Rules of Practice and Procedure for Administrative Hearings Before the Office of Administrative Law Judges, 29 C.F.R. § 18.80.

I. Stipulations, Joint Exhibits, Meet-and-Confer

Counsel for the parties have met and conferred, in good faith, and assembled a statement of stipulated facts and joint exhibits, which Counsel for the Administrator has previously filed with the Court on behalf of the parties on or about June 15, 2017.[1] Counsel have also exchanged witness and exhibits lists and objections thereto, and have met and conferred as to those objections. The information provided in this document reflects those discussions. Respondent's objections to the Administrator's exhibits are set forth in Appendix A to this document.

[1] Sun Valley incorporates that filing by reference here, particularly as to those elements set forth in 29 C.F.R. §§ 18.80(c)(4), (c)(7), and (d).

II. Issues of Law To Be Determined

A. As set forth in Respondent's Motion for Summary Decision, the Administrator has made several claims against Sun Valley regarding the farm's participation in the H-2A program during the 2015 growing season.

B. The overarching issue is whether the Administrator of the Wage & Hour Division ("Administrator"; "WHD") has carried its burden of that Sun Valley should pay back wages and civil money penalties (CMPs) in the amounts assessed for the violations alleged.

1. Has WHD carried its burden of proving that Sun Valley failed to comply with the "meals" requirement(s) of 20 C.F.R. § 655.122(g)?

a. Did Sun Valley furnish free and convenient cooking and kitchen facilities to its workers to enable them to prepare their own meals?

b. If some of Sun Valley's workers chose to purchase prepared meals from someone other than Sun Valley, were those purchases within the DOL-approved meal charge?

c. Is Sun Valley responsible for reimbursing workers for soft drinks, snacks, and beers that they chose to purchase from someone other than Sun Valley?

d. If Sun Valley has any liability, has WHD accurately calculated those amounts?

2. Has WHD carried its burden of proving that Sun Valley failed to comply with the three-fourths guarantee requirements of 20 C.F.R. § 655.122(i)?

a. Did the group of 19 workers who departed Sun Valley in the first week of May, after approximately 1 week of work, do so voluntarily or were they terminated without cause?

b. Did the group of 5 workers who departed Sun Valley later in the season meet their three-fourths guarantee for hours offered?

3. Has WHD carried its burden of proving that Russell Marino, Jr. "coerced" workers departing before the end of the contract period into waiving their rights in violation of 29 C.F.R. § 501.5?

4. Has WHD carried its burden of proving that Sun Valley failed to provide safe housing for its non-local workers in violation of 20 C.F.R. § 655.122(d)(1)?

5. Has WHD carried its burden of proving that Sun Valley failed to provide safe local transportation in violation of 20 C.F.R. § 655.122(h)(4)?

6. Has WHD carried its burden of proving that Sun Valley failed to disclose the work contract in violation of 20 C.F.R. § 655.122(q)?

7. Has WHD carried its burden of proving that Sun Valley failed to comply with the "deductions" requirement in violation of 20 C.F.R. § 655.122(q)?

8. For each allegation, has WHD carried its burden of proving the accuracy and appropriateness of its back wage and CMP calculations?

III. Precise Statement of the Relief Sought

Sun Valley respectfully asks the Court to dismiss the Order of Reference and all claims asserted by the Administrator against Sun Valley.

IV. Facts Disputed by the Parties

There are a number of facts upon which the parties agree, as set forth in their Joint Disclosures, but as to the relevance or legal consequences of which the parties disagree. The following are facts disputed by the parties.

- Whether Sun Valley furnished "free and convenient" kitchen facilities to its workers.
- Whether the group of 19 workers quit in May 2015 or were terminated without cause.

- The number of hours offered or worked by the remaining 5 workers included in the Administrator's three-fourths guarantee claim.
- The steps taken by Joe Marino and Russell Marino, Jr. to convince the workers to stay.
- Whether Sun Valley had a "policy" against workers using the kitchen facilities that Sun Valley provided.
- Whether Agustin Hernandez was "affiliated with" or an "agent" of Sun Valley for purposes of meal, snack, or drinks purchases.
- Whether Sun Valley "coerced" any of the early-departing workers to waive their rights.
- The costs associated with meals and drinks and WHD's calculation of damages.

V. List of Witnesses Respondent Expects to Call

Sun Valley expects to call two witnesses, Joseph Marino and Russell J. Marino, Jr., for its case-in-chief. Sun Valley will not call any expert witnesses at trial.

Joe Marino will testify about the following:

- The history and organization of Sun Valley Orchards, LLC.
- That Sun Valley needed workers in 2015 for a number of jobs, including harvesting asparagus and picking peppers.
- The early May 2015 meeting when 19 of the H-2A workers walked off the job.
- The steps taken by the Marinos to get the workers to stay.
- The losses incurred when the workers left.
- The failure of the pepper crop.
- The decision to let go workers based on the pepper crop failure.
- The provision of kitchen facilities for meals for workers.
- The lack of a policy to exclude workers from the kitchen.
- Sun Valley not receiving any payments from workers nor taking any payroll deductions.
- Steps taken to inspect housing and vehicles ahead of each growing season.

Russell Marino, Jr. will testify about each of the topics identified for Joe Marino, plus the following additional topics:

- The three-fourths guarantee targets for the workers let go in August after the failure of the pepper crop were calculated carefully using Sun Valley's payroll records, and the workers let go were chosen because they had already met their guarantees.
- The use of early departure forms was part of Sun Valley's reporting to DOL and DHS and did not include any "coercion" or attempt to effect a waiver of rights by the workers.
- He observed the condition of worker housing and kitchen facilities in 2015 and did not observe any problems.

[2] By agreement of the parties, pages 59-73 of the Administrator's Response will be excluded, as they include the names and personal contact information of Sun Valley's H-2A employees for the 2015 season. The names of the employees are separately provided in the parties' Joint Disclosures, so the inclusion of their personal information here is unnecessary.

[3] By agreement of the parties, page 342a will be added as the second page of the English translation of that statement, in the interests of completeness and context.

VII. Estimate of Time Required to Present Case-in-Chief

Sun Valley estimates that, in the event that a trial is necessary after the Court rules on the parties Motions for Summary Decision, no more than one day would be required to present Respondent's case-in-chief.

VIII. Additional Information

Sun Valley has no additional information regarding specialized equipment, nor other information that may aid the parties' preparation for trial. To the extent that any prior statements by potential witnesses are in the possession or control of the Administrator and have not been produced during discovery, based on the assertion of an "informant's" privilege, that such statements will be provided at trial.

UNITED STATES DEPARTMENT OF LABOR
OFFICE OF ADMINISTRATIVE LAW JUDGES
CHERRY HILL, NEW JERSEY

In the Matter of ADMINISTRATOR, WAGE AND HOUR DIVISION, U.S. DEPARTMENT OF LABOR Plaintiff v. SUN VALLEY ORCHARDS, LLC Respondent.	Case No.: 2017-TAE-00003

ADMINISTRATOR'S PRE-HEARING MOTION FOR AN ORDER TO COMPEL THE HEARING APPEARANCE OF RESPONDENT'S EMPLOYEE AGUSTIN HERNANDEZ

The Administrator intends to call Respondent's employee and manager Agustin Hernandez to testify at the hearing in this matter. Because Mr. Hernandez is within Respondent's control, the Administrator of the Wage and Hour Division ("Administrator") respectfully submits this motion for an order pursuant to 29 C.F.R. § 18.12(b)(3) to ensure Mr. Hernandez's appearance at trial.

The Parties Have Conferred but Have Not Reached Agreement Before Today's Pre-Hearing Motion Deadline

The parties have been conferring in good faith in an attempt to reach agreement that Respondent Sun Valley Orchards, LLC produce Mr. Hernandez at the hearing of this matter, scheduled for July 18-21, 2017. See Declaration of Jason E. Glick dated June 27, 2017 ("Glick Decl.") ¶ 6. However, because the parties have not been able to reach such an agreement by today's deadline for pre-hearing written motions, 29 C.F.R. § 18.33(c)(1), the Administrator submits this motion today to ensure that the Court has sufficient time to consider the issue should the parties not resolve this dispute.

The Administrator plans to call Mr. Hernandez as a witness, but Respondent does not. Glick Decl. ¶ 5. After receiving Respondent's preliminary witness list, counsel for the Administrator began to confer with Respondent's counsel on June 22 in attempt to reach agreement either to use Mr. Hernandez's deposition testimony in lieu of his attendance at trial, or to ensure that Respondent would produce Mr. Hernandez as a hearing witness. Id. ¶¶ 5–6. The parties continued to confer on June 23, 26, and 27. Id. ¶ 6. Based on Respondent's representations to date, the Administrator is hopeful that the parties will reach agreement that Respondent will produce Mr. Hernandez to testify at trial. Id. ¶ 7. In that connection, Respondent's counsel has authorized the Administrator to report that Respondent is "already working to make [Mr. Hernandez] available, and believe[s] that this motion is premature and pointless." Id. ¶ 8. Because Respondent has not finally committed to ensuring Mr. Hernandez's attendance in advance of the pre-hearing motion deadline, the Administrator submits this motion today in an abundance of caution. Id. ¶ 9.

This Court Has the Power to Compel the Hearing Attendance of Mr. Hernandez, Respondent's Employee

Administrative Law Judges have the power to "[c]ompel the . . . appearance of witnesses within a party's control." 29 C.F.R. § 18.12(b)(3); see also Immanuel v. U.S. DOL, 139 F.3d 889, at *6 (4th Cir. 1998) (unpublished) (citing former 29 C.F.R. § 18.29(a)(3)) (distinguishing such power from subpoena power).

Respondent currently employs Mr. Hernandez as a manager and crew leader. See Glick Decl. ¶¶ 3–4. Accordingly, his attendance at the hearing is squarely within Sun Valley's control. See, e.g., Dentsply Int'l Inc. v. Dental Brands for Less LLC, 2016 WL 868335, at *2 (S.D.N.Y.

Mar. 4, 2016); Wang v. Phoenix Satellite Television US, Inc., 2014 WL 116220, at *4 (S.D.N.Y. Jan. 13, 2014); United States v. Brown Univ., 772 F. Supp. 241, 243 (E.D. Pa. 1991).

For the reasons stated above, the Administrator respectfully requests that the Court issue an order compelling Respondent to ensure the attendance of Mr. Agustin Hernandez at the hearing of this matter from July 18 to 21, 2017, on a date mutually agreeable to the parties, or for such other relief as may be appropriate.

DECLARATION OF JASON E. GLICK PURSUANT TO 28 U.S.C. § 1746

I, Jason E. Glick, declare under penalty of perjury that the following is true and correct:

1. I am an attorney at the Office of the Solicitor, U.S. Department of Labor. I am one of the attorneys who represents the Administrator of the Wage and Hour Division ("Administrator") in the above-captioned case.

2. I submit this declaration in support of the Administrator's Pre-Hearing Motion for an Order to Compel the Hearing Appearance of Respondent's Employee Agustin Hernandez, based on facts known to me.

3. Agustin Hernandez, Russell J. Marino, Jr. and Joseph Marino all testified at their depositions that Mr. Hernandez is Respondent's employee. See, e.g., Administrator's Motion for Partial Summary Decision dated June 1, 2017, at 5, 23 (citing J. Marino Dep. 49:7–8, 60:4–14; R. Marino Dep. 64:23–65:2, 181:12–17; Hernandez Dep. 59:22–24, 156:11–14).

4. Page 21 of Respondent's June 1, 2017 motion for summary decision described Agustin Hernandez as "[o]ne of Sun Valley's non H-2A employees."

5. Late on the evening of June 16, 2017, Respondent served its Pre-Hearing Disclosures and Exchanges, including a witness list that did not include Respondent's employee Agustin Hernandez.

6. Beginning on June 22, 2017, and again on June 23, June 26, and June 27, my co-counsel Jacob Heyman-Kantor and/or I have conferred with Respondent's counsel in an attempt to reach agreement either that the parties may use Mr. Hernandez's deposition testimony in lieu of his attendance at trial, or to ensure that Respondent would produce Mr. Hernandez as a hearing witness.

7. Based on Respondent's representations, the Administrator understands that Respondent anticipates being able to guarantee Mr. Hernandez's attendance at the hearing but has not yet been able to commit to that.

8. Respondent's counsel authorized the Administrator to "report [Respondent's] position as — we are already working to make [Mr. Hernandez] available, and believe that this motion is premature and pointless."

9. Given today's deadline for pre-hearing written motions, the Administrator makes this motion today in an abundance of caution and to avoid last-minute motion practice should the parties be unable to reach an agreement.

I declare under penalty of perjury that the foregoing is true and correct.

Re: In re Sun Valley Orchards, LLC 2017-TAE-00003

Dear Judge Timlin:

Please find enclosed the parties' stipulation regarding Agustin Hernandez's appearance at trial. Accordingly, the Administrator withdraws her June 27 motion to compel Mr. Hernandez's attendance at trial.

At the upcoming July 5, 2017 prehearing telephone conference, in addition to discussing logistics for remote witness testimony (subject to the Court's granting leave for such testimony), the Administrator would also like to discuss logistics for submitting video deposition testimony for witnesses who are outside the United States or more than 100 miles from the hearing location.

Respectfully submitted,

Jeffrey S. Rogoff

ORDER DENYING PARTIES' MOTIONS FOR SUMMARY DECISION

This matter arises under the Immigration and Nationality Act ("INA") Temporary Alien Employment H-2A visa program, 8 U.S.C. Sections 1101(a)(15)(H)(ii)(a); 1188(c), as implemented by regulations at 29 C.F.R. Part 501. A hearing is scheduled for July 18, 2017 at Cherry Hill, New Jersey.

On June 2, 2017, the Administrator filed a Motion for Partial Summary Decision. The Respondent also filed a Motion for Summary Decision that same day. The parties' motions included multiple supporting exhibits, such as interrogatory answers, job orders, payroll records, photos of Respondent's facilities, party declarations, and deposition transcripts. Both parties filed memoranda of law in opposition to each other's motions for summary decision on June 16, 2017.

In cases before this tribunal, the standard for summary decision is analogous to that developed under Rule 56 of the Federal Rules of Civil Procedure. Frederickson v. The Home Depot U.S.A., Inc., ARB No. 07-100, slip op. at 5 (ARB May 27, 2010). A motion for summary decision shall be granted "if the movant shows that there is no genuine dispute as to any material fact and the movant is entitled to decision as a matter of law." 29 C.F.R. § 18.72(a). A dispute is genuine if sufficient evidence exists on each side so that a rational trier of fact could resolve the issue either way. Adler v. Wal-Mart Stores, Inc., 144 F.3d 664, 670 (10th Cir. 1998). A fact is material if proof of that fact would have the effect of establishing or refuting one of the essential elements of a cause of action or a defense asserted by the parties. Matsushita Elec. Indus. Co. Ltd. v. Zenith Radio Corp., 475 U.S. 574, 586 (1986).

The party moving for summary decision carries the burden of proof. Celotex Corp. v. Catrett, 477 U.S. 317, 322 (1986). When considering a motion for summary decision, an ALJ does not assess credibility or weigh conflicting evidence, as all evidence must be viewed in the light most favorable to the non-moving party and all reasonable inferences made in her favor. T.W. Elec. Serv., Inc. v. Pac. Elec. Contractors Ass'n., 809 F.2d 626, 630-31 (9th Cir. 1987); see also Tolan v. Cotton, 134 S. Ct. 1861, 1866 (2014) (per curiam).

Upon review of the parties' motions for summary decision, supporting exhibits, and memoranda of law in opposition, the undersigned finds that multiple genuine issues of material fact exist. In particular, there is conflicting testimony regarding the central elements of the Administrator's claim; e.g., whether the employees had full access to Respondent's kitchen facilities, whether manager Augustin Hernandez acted as Respondent's agent in selling prepared meals to the employees, whether the employees left prior to completion of their contract due to termination or resignation, whether Respondent sought to have the employees waive their three-fourth guarantee rights under the contract, and whether Respondent's housing and transportation fell below the applicable safety requirements. Resolution of these issues would require the undersigned to assess the credibility of deponent testimony and weigh conflicting evidence on the basis of a cold record, which is inappropriate when considering motions for summary decision.

For these reasons, the parties' motions for summary decision are DENIED.

SO ORDERED.

PROCEEDINGS

(10:04 a.m.)

JUDGE TIMLIN: Okay. Good morning, everyone. This is a hearing, Case Number 2017-TAE-00003. It is in the matter of the Administrator, Wage and Hour Division, U.S. Department of Labor versus Sun Valley Orchards, LLC. And there was a related case against -- 2017-MSP-00002, versus Agustin Hernandez d/b/a Agustin Hernandez FLC, but that case has been settled, so we're only here on the Sun Valley matter.

This Sun Valley matter involves an action under the Immigration and Nationality Act Temporary Alien Employment H-2A visa program, which can be found at 8 U.S. Code Sections 1101(a)(15)(H)(ii)(a), 1188(c), and is implemented by regulations at 29 C.F.R. Part 501.

And at this time, Sun Valley representative, I'm Theresa Timlin and I'm the Administrative Law Judge who's going to decide this case. And at this time I'm going to ask the Administrator, who is the prosecutor in this case, to enter their appearance, please.

MR. HEYMAN-KANTOR: My name is Jacob Heyman-Kantor and with me is Jason Glick from the Department of Labor.

JUDGE TIMLIN: Okay. And for Sun Valley Orchards?

MR. SCHULTE: My name is Christopher Schulte for Sun Valley Orchards.

JUDGE TIMLIN: Okay. And I think there was -- before we came on the record, Mr. Heyman-Kantor, you said you wanted to make a preliminary motion for sequestration. Do you want to do that now?

MR. HEYMAN-KANTOR: Yes, we would like to move to sequester witnesses.

JUDGE TIMLIN: Okay. Any response, Mr. Schulte?

MR. SCHULTE: No objection.

JUDGE TIMLIN: Okay. So we're going to sequester witnesses, so that means each party gets one party representative that can stay in the courtroom and hear all testimony, but everybody else who is a potential witness has to leave the room. So if there's anybody else hanging out here who's a potential witness -- who's your party representatives, just so I know?

MR. SCHULTE: Joseph Marino.

MR. MARINO: Joe Marino.

JUDGE TIMLIN: Marino, okay. And who are you using, Mr. Heyman-Kantor, as a party representative?

MR. HEYMAN-KANTOR: Steve Risko.

JUDGE TIMLIN: And what's his role?

MR. RISKO: I'm the Assistant District Director for the Wage and Hour Division, Southern New Jersey.

JUDGE TIMLIN: Okay, great. Okay.

And Mr. Marino is?

MR. SCHULTE: Co-owner of Sun Valley Orchards.

JUDGE TIMLIN: Okay, great. All right. I'm assuming the people who are talking out in the hall are potential witnesses. Is that what's going on? I'm just thinking we should close the door.

MR. HEYMAN-KANTOR: I can ask them to do that.

JUDGE TIMLIN: Well, I'm not concerned about the noise, maybe the court reporter is, but I'm concerned about the -- yeah.

All right, do we have any joint stipulations that the parties want to present before we get started?

MR. HEYMAN-KANTOR: Your Honor, we have filed with the Court joint stipulations of fact and also joint exhibits. I believe those would have been received by the Court on June 16th.

JUDGE TIMLIN: Probably, but do you want to read them into the record just so that they're fresh in my head?

MR. HEYMAN-KANTOR: Sure. Well, there's several pages. There's about 42 paragraphs.

JUDGE TIMLIN: Oh, okay. I'm just wondering because I'm sure that you filed them, but since there's been so many things filed, you might want to present a copy to me so that I'll have it with me --

MR. HEYMAN-KANTOR: Okay.

JUDGE TIMLIN: -- to make it an exhibit.

MR. HEYMAN-KANTOR: Okay. Here's a copy.

JUDGE TIMLIN: Okay. So what I'm going to do with this, Mr. Schulte, I'm going to make this an ALJ -- this is the Joint Stipulation of Agreed Facts and Joint Exhibits, and I'm going to make this ALJ Exhibit 1. And that way it stays as an exhibit of the case so that it won't get lost when we go to make the decision.

(Whereupon, the document referred to as Administrative Law Judge Exhibit 1 was marked and received into evidence.)

JUDGE TIMLIN: Okay. And in terms of joint exhibits, this is identified -- let me look at the last page. Okay, so the parties are offering Joint Exhibits 1 through 10 that are described on page 12 of ALJ Exhibit 1, and I'm assuming that there's no objection to the joint exhibits, so I'm going to admit them into evidence, all right?

(Whereupon, the documents referred to and previously marked for identification as Joint Exhibits 1 through 10 were received into evidence.)

MR. HEYMAN-KANTOR: Yes.

JUDGE TIMLIN: Okay.

MR. HEYMAN-KANTOR: Do you have a copy?

JUDGE TIMLIN: No, I don't. Thank you. All right.

Do you want to admit -- do we want to do your exhibits, admit what's admissible now or do you want to admit them as you're going through the exhibits? And I kind of prefer to get everything in that's not under dispute, that's not going to be objected to.

MR. HEYMAN-KANTOR: There are a couple of Respondent's exhibits that we have objections to, that we want to highlight for the Court.

JUDGE TIMLIN: Okay.

MR. HEYMAN-KANTOR: But otherwise, I think we're --

JUDGE TIMLIN: Well, let's do yours first. How many exhibits do you have that are just Administrator exhibits? I'm looking at one of the binders. There's nine binders and it looks like there's -- you've marked them as PX for Plaintiff, Plaintiff's Exhibits 1 through 41.

Mr. Schulte, are there any of those of which you are going to have objections to?

MR. SCHULTE: I think several of them, and we filed that with the Court as well. I could just share that with the parties. I think we filed that with the Court.

JUDGE TIMLIN: I'm sure you did. Do you know which ones they are?

MR. SCHULTE: It would be, I want to say, around June 21, there should be a table that references by exhibit.

JUDGE TIMLIN: I think we're going to -- I think I'm going to hold it and we'll admit them as you start to offer them and you'll object as they come up.

MR. SCHULTE: It should go fairly quickly as we go.

JUDGE TIMLIN: And I have other files in this case, too, so --

MR. SCHULTE: Okay.

JUDGE TIMLIN: So the Plaintiff is going to have 41 exhibits. You're going to have how many exhibits?

MR. SCHULTE: I believe we have 30.

JUDGE TIMLIN: Right, 1 through 30.

MR. HEYMAN-KANTOR: Some of our exhibits we're simply offering to the Court as evidence, the deposition transcripts and videos of the workers, so those might come up. We stipulated to them being admissible, though, at trial.

JUDGE TIMLIN: What we'll do at the very end, anything that hasn't come in through a witness, we'll just go over, objections will be raised and I'll make rulings. Otherwise, bring them in through your witnesses, both of you, and we'll deal with the objections as they come up, okay?

MR. HEYMAN-KANTOR: Yes, Your Honor.

JUDGE TIMLIN: All right. So let's do -- Mr. Heyman-Kantor, do you have an opening?

MR. HEYMAN-KANTOR: Yes, Your Honor.

H-2A workers leave their home country and travel hundreds or thousands of miles to rural locations around the United States where they do not know anyone and do not speak the language. These workers typically live on farms where they're dependent on their employers for transportation and any access to the outside world.

Because of their vulnerable situation, Congress and the Department have put in special rules, special protections, for H-2A workers and domestic migrant workers. Chief among those protections are that an employer must disclose the working conditions, including any meal targets implemented before H-2A workers travel to the farm, and also that neither the employer nor any affiliated person may profit off these workers' isolation.

But Sun Valley violated these rules. It told the government and the workers that all employees would have free and open access to a kitchen; they would not be charged anything for meals. In fact, the workers did not have kitchen access and had no practical alternative but to pay Sun Valley at least $75 a week for meals. Many workers did not want the meal plan, some even going so far as to spend at least $75 a week to try to use dangerous electrical appliances in their bedrooms to try and cook canned meals and save money.

Sun Valley's lead manager, Agustin Hernandez, also operated the company store, selling workers drinks and other items at a profit. Because of their isolation, workers who wanted to drink anything other than water while working long hours in the fields had little choice but to purchase drinks from their boss at inflated prices. This arrangement supplemented the earnings of Sun Valley's crew leader, but pushed workers' wages below the minimum rate.

Beyond the company store and unlawful meal deductions, workers were also confronted with other intolerable work conditions. Among other things, Sun Valley transported workers from a housing facility to the fields each day in unsafe buses driven by workers who lacked driver's licenses; housed them in a dormitory that lacked proper screens and was infested with insects. Many of them worked picking vegetables for long hours, farming on those in the job order at a pace that many could not keep up with.

Despite their precarious and isolated circumstances, after several weeks, 19 workers decided to bring their conditions of employment to the attention of one of the company's owners. These workers would have been justified to simply quit as their working conditions were so intolerable as to amount to constructive discharge. When they dared to complain, they were fired. By doing so, Sun Valley violated the H-2A requirement that workers be allowed to work for at least 75 percent of the season, unless there is good cause to fire them.

After firing these workers, Sun Valley instructed them to sign forms, falsely stating that they had resigned for personal reasons. Sun Valley did the same thing to other workers it admittedly terminated later in the season.

Your Honor, the Administrator expects to call several former Sun Valley workers who will talk about the conditions of employment that I've just described, and will also supplement the testimony of six workers whom the Administrator has already deposed. The Administrator will also call a Wage and Hour investigator who, among other things, will testify about how approximately $376,000 in back wages were calculated. These back wages are derived primarily from the undisputed amounts that workers were charged for meals, Sun Valley's own payroll records which show the number of hours the workers worked short of the three-quarters guarantee, and from the average number of drinks the workers bought at inflated prices.

Finally, the Administrator will also call a Wage and Hour district director who will explain how approximately $212,000 in civil money penalties were assessed and how that assessment was reasonable.

In its case-in-chief, Sun Valley will likely try to shift the blame to its manager, Agustin Hernandez, but it cannot do that for two reasons. First, the H-2A rules hold employers responsible for the conduct of affiliated persons, which are defined broadly to include an employer's manager. And second, when a company applies to hire H-2A workers, it guarantees that the conditions of employment will match what is in the employer's H-2A application. The entire integrity of the H-2A program depends on employers not being able to outsource H-2A liability to third parties. If they could, then the government and the H-2A workers, who travel far from home, would not be able to rely on the promises in the job orders in the texts.

Your Honor, at bottom, this is a simple case. Sun Valley promised to the government and to H-2A workers certain basic living conditions in terms of employment and they failed to live up to those promises, exploiting its vulnerable and isolated workers in numerous ways. To ensure the integrity of the H-2A program and make workers whole, Sun Valley must pay the back wage they're owed. Sun Valley must also pay the civil money penalties that are needed to deter it and others from taking advantage of low-wage farm workers.

JUDGE TIMLIN: Okay, thank you.

Mr. Schulte, do you want to open now or reserve?

MR. SCHULTE: I'd rather reserve, Your Honor.

JUDGE TIMLIN: Okay. All right.

And Mr. Heyman-Kantor, do you have a witness for me?

MR. GLICK: The Administrator calls as a first witness Marco Giovanny-Maldonado, who is in the hallway.

JUDGE TIMLIN: Okay.

MR. GLICK: He will testify through an interpreter.

JUDGE TIMLIN: Okay. Can you just give me his last name again? His last name?

MR. HEYMAN-KANTOR: Yes. Wait until we get --

JUDGE TIMLIN: We'll wait.

MR. HEYMAN-KANTOR: Yeah, and that spelling is different.

JUDGE TIMLIN: Okay.

MS. DOGGETT: Where would you like me, Your Honor, over here?

JUDGE TIMLIN: Yeah.

MS. DOGGETT: Okay.

JUDGE TIMLIN: There's no chair there. We need a chair for the witness. I don't know how that happened. Do you need a chair, also? Okay. We'll see how it goes and if you change your mind, we'll get you a chair.

MS. DOGGETT: There are two interpreters, so we might help each other out.

JUDGE TIMLIN: So if there's two interpreters, I should probably swear you both in at the same time, then. Can you bring her in too?

MS. DOGGETT: I did.

JUDGE TIMLIN: Oh, did you?

MS. DOGGETT: Um-hum.

JUDGE TIMLIN: Okay. All right, so I'm going to swear the interpreters in first. Just state your names for the record, please.

MS. DOGGETT: Gwen Doggett, G-w-e-n, D-o-g-g-e-t-t.

JUDGE TIMLIN: And your name?

MS. OLIVARES: Lissette Olivares, L-i-s-s-e-t-t-e, O-l-i-v-a-r-e-s.

Whereupon,

GWENYTH DOGGETT AND LISSETTE OLIVARES

were duly sworn to interpret the questions from English into Spanish and the answers from Spanish into English to the best of their knowledge and ability.

JUDGE TIMLIN: Okay, great.

Okay. So now, Mr. Glick, I missed his last name.

MR. GLICK: Maldonado.

JUDGE TIMLIN: Maldonado, M-a-l-d-o-n-a-d-o?

MR. GLICK: That's exactly right, Your Honor.

JUDGE TIMLIN: Great, okay.

Okay, Mr. Maldonado, if you can raise your right hand.

Whereupon,

MARCO GIOVANNY MALDONADO

was called as a witness by and on behalf of the Plaintiff, and after having been first duly sworn, was examined and testified as follows:

JUDGE TIMLIN: Okay, thank you. Okay, Mr. Glick.

DIRECT EXAMINATION

BY MR. GLICK:

Q. Mr. Maldonado, good morning.
A. Good morning.
Q. Did you work at a company called Sun Valley?
A. Yes.
Q. Do you remember what year that was?
A. Two years ago in 2015.
Q. And which months did you work there?
A. In the month of May. How long was I there?
Q. About how long were you there?
A. A couple of weeks.
Q. Did you work at Sun Valley on a visa?
A. Uh-huh. Yes.
Q. Do you remember what kind of visa that was?
A. H-2A.

JUDGE TIMLIN: Ms. Doggett, just make sure he understands that it's important to say yes or no. If he says something like uh-huh, that doesn't help us with the record.

THE WITNESS: Okay.

JUDGE TIMLIN: Thank you.

BY MR. GLICK:

Q. Was that your first time working on an H-2A visa?
A. No.
Q. Did you have experience working in agriculture before you worked at Sun Valley?
A. Yes.

Q. Where was that?
A. I worked on a farm in the state of Michigan.
Q. Any other experience working in agriculture?
A. In my country.
Q. I'd like to talk to you more about the work that you did at Sun Valley. What kind of work did you do there?
A. Picking, in agriculture.
Q. Was there a particular kind of picking?
A. Yes, asparagus.
Q. What was that work like?
A. You had to bend over and pick them from the ground.
Q. What was it like for you doing that kind of work?
A. It's hard.
Q. What made it hard?
A. Because it's not easy to be bent over all the time and it's heavy work.
Q. When you worked at Sun Valley, how many hours a day did you work?
A. It could be 12 hours or more, depending on the job.
Q. How were those hours decided?
A. We had to work until we had finished picking.
Q. Who decided whether you had finished picking?
A. The man in charge.
Q. What was the name of the man in charge?
A. Agustin.

Q. Could you work fewer hours than the hours that Agustin set?

A. We would work less if he would tell us we could go and rest.

Q. When did he tell you to go and rest?

A. Well, if he would notice if you were tired or exhausted, he would tell you to go rest.

Q. When you worked at Sun Valley, how many times did Agustin tell you to go and rest?

A. I don't remember exactly, but it was quite a few.

Q. Did you ever tell Agustin anything in response?

A. I would tell him that I didn't want to stop working, I wanted to work and then I would just rest a little bit.

Q. What did Agustin say in response to that?

A. He would say no. He would tell me to leave.

Q. Now, I'd like to talk a little bit more about what it was like working in the fields at Sun Valley. Were there bathrooms in the fields?

A. At the beginning, no.

Q. And then later?

A. Yeah, they did put some in later, but they weren't appropriate, because they were in trailers but the trailers were on their side and you really couldn't use them very well.

Q. When you were working in the fields at Sun Valley, what did you do if you needed to go to the bathroom?

A. At the time that I worked there, I didn't use the bathroom, only on my lunch hour.
Q. What about in the afternoon?
A. I didn't go.
Q. Was there water to drink when you worked in the fields?
A. At the beginning, no, but afterwards we asked for water and they brought us jugs of water, but the water wasn't clean and it was dirty.
Q. When they brought you the water, was there -- let me scratch that. Did the water ever run out?
A. Yes, we had to drink, there wasn't any more.
Q. How often did that happen?
A. I don't remember.
Q. Now I want to turn your attention to how you ate when you worked at Sun Valley. What did you do for food when you worked at Sun Valley?
A. When we arrived they told us that they were going to sell us food and that we had to pay $80 a week for food.
Q. Who told you that?
A. The man in charge.
Q. Was that Agustin?
A. Yes.
Q. What did that $80 a week cover?
A. Well, it would cover the food. They would give us breakfast in the morning and then lunch and then dinner.

Q. Where did you eat the breakfast?

A. They had a dining room area at the farm.

Q. Where was that dining room?

A. There was the bedrooms, the dormitories, then the dining room and then the bathrooms.

Q. Was the dining room in the dormitories?

A. No.

Q. Was there a kitchen at Sun Valley?

A. Yes.

Q. Where was the kitchen?

A. In the dining room. There were tables where we sat and then on one side there was a kitchen where they prepared the food for us.

Q. Could you prepare your own food?

A. No.

Q. Why not?

A. We did not have an exclusive use of the kitchen. They told us that they would prepare the food and that they would give it to us, so the kitchen was for their use.

Q. Did you have any use of that kitchen?

A. No, we didn't have anything to prepare with, only they did.

Q. Did you have a choice about whether to pay for that food?

A. Since they didn't have another kitchen to prepare our food, we had to consume the food that they sold us.

Q. Now I want to go back to the meals during the day. Where did you eat the lunch?

A. We would have breakfast in the dining room, and then we go out to the fields and then we would return to the dining room for lunch.

Q. Did you eat lunch in the same place you ate breakfast?

A. Yes.

Q. How did you actually obtain the food?

A. Well, at the time when we would arrive at the dining room, they always had food ready, so we would go by with our trays and plates and they would serve it to us.

Q. Did the lunch include any beverages?

A. No.

Q. Did the dinner include any beverages?

A. No.

Q. Did you have anything to drink at lunch when you ate at Sun Valley?

A. Yes.

Q. What did you drink at lunch?

A. Juice, soda.

Q. How did you obtain those beverages?

A. When you would walk into the kitchen with your plate to get food, there was a couple of refrigerators there that had soda and juice and we would take one.

Q. Could you take those beverages for free?

A. No. When you got to the end and they would see what you had to drink, they would write that down in a notebook to charge you later.

Q. And what about at dinner, did you drink anything at dinner?

A. Yes.

Q. Did you have to pay for those beverages?

A. Yes, any drink that we wanted to consume during lunch or dinner we had to pay for.

Q. Now I'd like to talk about -- go back to your work at the fields at Sun Valley. Did you drink anything other than water in the fields when you worked at Sun Valley?

A. So, yes, we did have water and when the manager brought the water out, he also came out with a cooler. In the cooler there was soda and juice, energy drinks, and if you took one, then he would write that down in a notebook and then you also had to pay for them.

Q. So for those drinks, when did you actually end up paying?

A. Everything that was consumed, as far as drinks, was written in a notebook and then on payday that was taken out of the pay, whatever we had spent on drinks.

Q. How often was payday?
A. Every week.
Q. I believe it was your testimony that you paid $80 a week for the meals.
A. Only for food, yes.
Q. When did you actually pay that $80?
A. After I got my check, I went to the dining room and asked how much I owed and that's when they told me and that's when I paid it.
Q. Now, in a typical day working in the fields at Sun Valley, when did you purchase the first drink?
A. We would go out early in the morning and I can't tell you exact times, but when I got thirsty, then I would get one of the drinks because the tap water that they gave us had a bad taste to it. So I don't know how many I consumed in a day.
Q. Did you usually purchase a beverage in the morning when you worked in the fields?
A. More than one. Maybe two, three, four.
Q. Was that two to four in the morning or during some other period of time?
A. That was in a period of time from 6:00 to 12:00. And then we would go to lunch and then in the afternoon when we came back I also consumed more drinks.
Q. And about how many drinks did you consume in a typical afternoon after lunch?

A. Three.
Q. What kind of drinks did you purchase in the fields?
A. Well, juice, Gatorade, soda.
Q. Did you see whether other workers purchased soft drinks in the fields?
A. Yes, usually all the drinks he had with him, he ran out because everybody was buying them.
Q. Did you see whether -- are you referring to Agustin or someone else?
A. About what?
Q. Who brought the drinks to the field?
A. Agustin.
Q. Did Agustin ever refill his supply of drinks during the day?
A. Yes.
Q. How do you know that?
A. So during the course of the morning there were a lot of workers and he would leave and then come back with more drinks.
Q. Do you know whether the other workers purchased about the same number of drinks as you or less or more?
A. I don't know.
Q. Now I'd like to talk about the kitchen again. Other than the beverages that we've been talking about, did you ever purchase anything else in or near the kitchen?

A. Well, cookies for example. There were some things that you could buy if you wanted to eat them.
Q. Did you see beer for sale?
A. Yes, they did sell that.
Q. Did you see cigarettes for sale?
A. Uh-huh. Yes.
Q. Did you see toilet paper for sale?
A. Yes.
Q. What about soap?
A. Yes.
Q. Where did you see the beer for sale?
A. There was a small house in front of the dining room, I don't know who lived there, but if you wanted it they would go there and get it.
Q. Who was that?
A. I did see some people buying it and I saw Agustin going to get the beer.
Q. Did you ever buy beer from Agustin?
A. Yes.
Q. How many times?
A. Twice.
Q. Do you remember how much you paid for the beer?
A. No, I don't remember.
Q. Do you remember what quantity of beer you bought from Agustin?

A. A 12-pack of beer.
Q. Were those cans or bottles or something else?
A. Cans.
Q. Now I want to go back to the cigarettes. Where did you see those for sale?
A. When they sold them to me, they got them from the kitchen.
Q. Who got them for you?
A. Agustin was usually the one that was there in the kitchen.
Q. Did you buy cigarettes from Agustin?
A. Yes, once.
Q. What size was the pack of cigarettes?
A. One twenty, twenty count.
Q. Do you remember how much you paid?
A. No.
Q. Did you see any of your coworkers buy cigarettes at Sun Valley?
A. Yes, many.
Q. Did they buy those from Agustin or someone else?
A. Everything that we bought we bought there. We didn't have any other options.
Q. So the cookies, did you buy those at the kitchen at Sun Valley?
A. Yes.

Q. Who sold those?
A. Agustin, right there in the kitchen.
Q. So everything else you told me about that was for sale at Sun Valley, was that -- were those items that you bought at the kitchen at Sun Valley?
MR. SCHULTE: Objection, he never said that he bought anything from Sun Valley. He's only ever said Agustin.
JUDGE TIMLIN: Objection sustained. Rephrase.
BY MR. GLICK:
Q. The other items that you told me about that you saw at the kitchen, do you know who sold them?
A. The man in charge there at Sun Valley sold them.
Q. During the time you worked at Sun Valley, did you ever leave Sun Valley?
A. Yes, I left there.
Q. Before you left in the end, were there any other times you left to go shopping or some other reason?
A. When we first arrived, they took me to a place and I bought a blanket and a pillow because we didn't have that.
Q. How did you get to that place?
A. One of the workers took us.
Q. Did that worker take you for free?
A. No, they charged us $10 per person.
Q. Other than that trip, did you ever leave Sun Valley to go shopping on any other times?

A. Yes, I did go to a store to send money.
Q. How did you get to that store?
A. A worker from there took us.
Q. Did they take you for free?
A. No, they also charged us $10.
Q. Why did you pay $10 for each of those rides?
A. Because if I didn't pay for it, I wouldn't be able to go.
Q. Now, in terms of the kitchen, what time of day were you able to purchase those items you were telling me about?
A. The kitchen opened earlier before work, maybe 5:00 a.m.
Q. Was there a time during the day or night when the kitchen was closed?
A. When we came back from work in the evening we would have dinner and then it was open for another hour or two hours and then it would close and then we couldn't buy anything else.
Q. And during the hours when the kitchen was open, could you store anything of your own in the kitchen?
A. I didn't have anything to store.
Q. Now I want to talk to you about the living area at Sun Valley. You lived at Sun Valley during the time you worked there?
A. Yes.
Q. Where was that?

A. The dormitory was a large room with bunk beds, one person on top and one person on the bottom.

Q. What were the bunk beds like?

A. Well, they were metal and when we arrived, the mattress was very thin and so that's why we wanted to go into the town, into the store to buy blankets and pillows to make it more comfortable.

Q. In the dormitory, was there a place where you could store food?

A. No.

Q. Was there a place where you could refrigerate anything?

A. No.

Q. Where did you store your clothes?

A. Well, my suitcase. I never took the clothes out of the suitcase that I arrived with. I would keep them there and then the dirty clothes would go into a bag.

Q. Why did you store your clothes that way?

A. I didn't have anywhere else to put it.

Q. Where were the bathrooms in the dormitories?

A. Outside the dormitory, across from the dormitory, the area with the bathrooms.

Q. What were those bathrooms like?

A. Well, they were separated, the toilets were in one area and the showers were in another area. And the toilets did not have doors, they just had like plastic curtains. Some of them didn't even have that, and they were in very poor condition, very dirty.

Q. Were there ever any insects in the bathrooms?

A. Mosquitoes.

Q. Were there mosquitoes in the bathroom?

A. Yes.

Q. Was there enough hot water in the bathrooms?

A. Not enough. Sometimes there wasn't enough hot water.

Q. What would you do then?

A. Take a shower with cold water.

Q. During the time you worked at Sun Valley, did you ever do laundry?

A. Yes.

Q. How did you do your laundry?

A. The one time that I did wash clothes, next to the shower there were a couple of tubs with faucets, and so I would fill it with water and I would wash my clothes by hand there.

Q. Why did you do your laundry that way?

A. Well, because we were told that if we wanted to go to a Laundromat, then a worker would have to take us and we would have to pay for that anyway. So I opted to just do it on my own, by hand, and then I hung it up outside to dry.

Q. Who told you that the rides would be charged in that way?

A. From the very beginning that we got there, they told us that if we needed to leave there for any reason, that there were workers there that owned cars and could give us rides but that we would have to pay for those rides.

Q. Who explained all that?

A. The guy in charge of Sun Valley.

Q. I just want to make sure the record is clear. What was the name of that person?

A. Agustin.

Q. Do you remember where you were when he told you that?

A. We were outside the dormitory and we just arrived.

Q. Now, I want to talk about how you got from the dormitories to and from the fields. Did you walk or take a vehicle or something else?

A. There was a field; it was right next to the dormitory and we could just walk to that. But then there were some other fields that were further away and we go by a school bus to there.

Q. Who drove those school buses?

A. The workers.

Q. How did you know that they were workers?

A. Because I would see them in the fields with us.

Q. So they also worked for Sun Valley?

A. Yes.

Q. About how many days a week would you ride on one of those school buses?

A. The days that I worked there, almost every day I had to get on the bus.

Q. And then on those days about how many times would you ride the bus?

THE INTERPRETER: The interpreter does not understand the question.

BY MR. GLICK:

Q. Let me clarify it. Would you ride the bus to get to the fields?

A. Yes.

Q. Did you also take the bus any other time during the day?

A. Yes. When we were in the fields that were further away, when it was lunchtime the bus would come and take us to lunch.

Q. And after lunch would you take the bus again?

A. Yes.

Q. About how long would you ride on the bus each of those times?

A. Well, the ones that were closer, about 10 or 15 minutes. There was one field that was further away and maybe that was a 20- to 30-minute ride.

Q. In terms of those rides -- let me ask, how much time did you have to eat for lunch?

A. I was told that lunch would be one hour, but a lot of times after 40, 45 minutes the man in charge would tell us it's time to go back to the field.

Q. And then would you go back to the fields?

A. Yes.

Q. Now, other than Agustin, do you remember the names of anyone else who supervised workers at Sun Valley?

A. When I signed my contract, I was told that my boss was Russell Marino, Jr.

Q. When did you sign that contract?

A. I signed the contract in Mexico.

Q. When you worked at Sun Valley, did you ever interact with Russell Marino, Jr.?

A. Only once, the day I decided to leave.

Q. So before that date, did you ever see Russell Marino, Jr. while you worked in the fields?

A. No.

Q. Did you ever see Russell Marino, Jr. while you ate your meals?

A. No.

Q. All right. Did you ever have the opportunity to ask any questions of Russell Marino, Jr.?

A. Well, on the last day, some of my coworkers and I wanted to talk to him because we were very -- we were upset about the working conditions there, but we were not able to talk to him because he got very upset.

Q. What were you concerned about?

A. Well, the living conditions, I didn't like them and the way in which we were treated by the man in charge, we didn't appreciate that either, and we wanted to talk about it, but we weren't able to.

Q. So what did you do that day?

THE INTERPRETER: Your Honor, could I just -- could we switch?

JUDGE TIMLIN: Yes.

(Pause.)

JUDGE TIMLIN: Okay, repeat your question, Mr. Glick.

BY MR. GLICK:

Q. That day you were just telling me about, what did you next -- do next that day?

A. The next day I was there and then I left.

Q. I want to go back one day. I believe you were telling me that you sought an opportunity to talk about some concerns that you had.

A. Yes.

Q. And did you explain that you tried to talk to someone about those concerns?

A. After we saw this, we wanted to speak directly to our boss, but we couldn't.

Q. And when you say boss, what is the name of that person you're referring to?

A. Russell.

Q. So what did you end up doing?

A. Well, when we wanted to speak to him, he arrived very angry, screaming. He started saying many things, but to be honest, I couldn't understand everything that he said because some things were in English. But basically, he said that he didn't need us and if we weren't happy there, we could leave.

Q. And how did you understand that part?

A. Because some of my coworkers, they understand, they understand English, the ones who were with me, and the man also speaks some Spanish.

Q. Where were you during that interaction?

A. We were outside of the dormitories.

Q. Did you have an opportunity personally during that meeting to explain any of your concerns?

A. Well, once I saw that this man was really angry, no, I didn't speak.

Q. Why not?

A. Well, because we were there and there were many of us, actually there were many of us who went. Many of us wanted to speak to him and this man was very angry. He was screaming.

Q. Did any of your coworkers have the opportunity to speak to him that day?

A. Yes.

Q. What did that person say?

A. I remember that that person wanted to speak to him, but he was angry. And we wanted to express that we were unhappy, that we were not in accord with what was happening, but he didn't let us.

Q. When you went to the meeting that day, did you plan to stay at work in Sun Valley or leave or what was your plan?

A. That day that this happened, they had sent me and another coworker to go and plant. We were working and so far as I know, it was the father of Russell who arrived. And so we were working, and I was with my companion and we working with the machine, and I think it was my companion who planted something wrong. And so this man got down from the tractor and he was very angry. He told my coworker to get out and actually, he even grabbed him by the arm. And after having scolded him, we continued working and when lunchtime came, we got together with other coworkers and we made a collective decision to go and speak to him.

Q. And was that a decision to say something in particular?

A. Well, yes, our intention was to work as well, but unfortunately, because of these problems that wasn't possible.

Q. After that meeting was it possible to continue working at Sun Valley?

A. Yes. Well, yes, when we went to spoke to this man, our intention was to continue working. We wanted to explain to him the things that we were not happy with, but the intention was to continue working.

Q. And so by the end of the meeting, where did things stand?

A. When we spoke to this man and we started to leave, we actually still stayed there.

Q. And what happened next?

A. We left.

Q. Did you sign any documents before you left?

A. Yes, they gave us a sheet that was signed by the boss and it also had some, had some indications. We had to signal what the motive was for our departure.

Q. Was any information filled out on that form before you received it?

A. No, it just had already come signed.

MR. GLICK: Your Honor, may I have permission to approach the witness?

JUDGE TIMLIN: Sure.

MR. GLICK: I'm going to show the witness JX-8, page 91. Counsel has a copy in his binder.

JUDGE TIMLIN: JX what?

MR. GLICK: JX-8.

JUDGE TIMLIN: 8.

MR. GLICK: Page 91.

BY MR. GLICK:

Q. Mr. Maldonado, I'm showing you a document that is stamped at the bottom JX-8, page 91. Do you recognize this document, JX-8, page 91?

A. Yes.

Q. What is this document?

A. Well, this document, when they told us that we needed to fill it out before the meeting, it came in English and in Spanish.

Q. And is JX-8, page 91, the document that you filled out?

A. I think it didn't have this mark, but the content, yes, I think --

Q. Is the mark that you're referring to where it says JX-8, page 91?

A. Uh-huh. Yes.

Q. Other than the mark JX-8, page 91, is anything different about this document than when you filled it out that day?

A. Just that it had an English part and then also a translation into Spanish.

MR. HEYMAN-KANTOR: And if I could ask the translator to translate the line immediately to the right of the X.

(Whereupon, the interpreter translated the text for the witness.)

BY MR. HEYMAN-KANTOR:

Q. Mr. Maldonado, did you check that option?

A. I don't think that I had marked the option that said that I had to leave because of personal issues or personal problems.

Q. May I retrieve the binder? Did you leave Sun Valley because of personal problems?

A. Well, I left because of the problems that I had with my boss and when we went to speak to him and when he said we should leave, well, I decided to leave.

Q. Before your boss told you that you should leave, had you decided to leave?

MR. SCHULTE: Objection, he actually didn't testify to that at all. Misstates testimony.

JUDGE TIMLIN: Wait, don't answer. Don't answer. Restate your objection.

MR. SCHULTE: Misstates testimony. He did not testify that he was told to leave.

JUDGE TIMLIN: I'm going to overrule it. I thought I heard him say that his boss told him to leave.

MR. SCHULTE: If I may, Your Honor, he said if you want to leave, you can, and then he testified twice that he chose to leave. It's subtle, but it makes a difference.

MR. GLICK: Your Honor, may I be heard?

JUDGE TIMLIN: Yes, you can be heard. What you heard is not what I heard, but go ahead, Mr. Glick.

MR. GLICK: I was simply going to call attention to the witness' most recent response, which I believe is consistent with the question that I had phrased.

JUDGE TIMLIN: Right, I was just paying attention to the thing he had just recently said also. Can we just erase that question and start it over again? Go ahead, Mr. Glick.

BY MR. GLICK:

Q. Before you attended the meeting that day, did you plan to leave Sun Valley?

A. No.

Q. Why did you leave Sun Valley?

A. I made the decision to leave Sun Valley because at the moment that I went to that meeting with my boss, he was overbearing, he was aggressive, and he told us that he didn't need us and that if we wanted to leave we could leave, so I decided to leave.

Q. Did you want to leave?

A. No.

MR. GLICK: If I could have one moment, Your Honor.

JUDGE TIMLIN: Sure.

(Pause.)

MR. GLICK: I just have a couple more questions at this time.

JUDGE TIMLIN: Sure.

BY MR. GLICK:

Q. Going back to the soft drinks that you purchased at Sun Valley --

MR. SCHULTE: Objection. Again, we've made this objection before and he said he purchased it from Agustin.

JUDGE TIMLIN: Yes. Rephrase it to say going back to the soft drinks that he said that he purchased from Agustin.

MR. GLICK: Understood.

BY MR. GLICK:

Q. The soft drinks that you purchased from Agustin, the soft drinks that you purchased when you were working at Sun Valley --

MR. SCHULTE: Objection, it's the same exact phrasing.

JUDGE TIMLIN: Well, there's a difference between "when you were working at Sun Valley" or "soft drinks you purchased from Sun Valley." I understand that there's a distinction there so I'm going to allow the "soft drinks that you purchased when you were working at Sun Valley." And I understand that your argument is that he didn't purchase them from -- he's testified that he purchased them from Agustin.

MR. GLICK: Thank you.

BY MR. GLICK:

Q. The soft drinks that you purchased when you were working at Sun Valley, do you remember how much those cost?

A. Well, the prices were varied. I don't remember exactly the price for each, but they had different prices.

Q. Did you ever pay in cash at the moment that you purchased those beverages?

A. No, I believe everything was written down and when they paid me my first check, it was withdrawn.

MR. GLICK: I have no further questions at this time.

JUDGE TIMLIN: Why don't we take a five-minute break before we start cross-examination, okay? So we'll go off the record.

(Off the record at 11:25 a.m.)

(On the record at 11:33 a.m.)

JUDGE TIMLIN: All right, Mr. Schulte, your witness.

CROSS-EXAMINATION

BY MR. SCHULTE:

Q. Good morning, Mr. Maldonado. I just have a few questions for you. How many days did you work at Sun Valley?

A. I think it was a few weeks.

Q. A few weeks. So how many weeks do you think it was?

A. Two.

Q. Two, okay. And so when you would go to work every day, would you -- they scan your bar code and record it into a computer, right?

A. Yes.

Q. Okay. And so every day that you worked would be recorded in that system; am I right?

A. Yes.

Q. So the computer should have an accurate record of how many days you actually worked, right?

A. Yes.

Q. Okay. So if the computer said that you worked for seven days and not for two weeks, would that be right or would your memory now be right?

A. Well, actually, when they brought us in to work, we didn't start working right away and they had us there for a few days.

Q. How many days?

A. I don't remember.

Q. Okay. When were you first paid?

A. When we arrived -- well, after working a week, they paid us on a weekend.

Q. So on Friday, the end of the week that you worked?

A. Yes.

Q. Okay. And did you have American cash with you before that?

A. I don't remember, because when I arrived we went to buy the blanket and that type of thing and I remember being very short on money.

Q. Okay. And you had worked on an H-2A visa in Michigan. Was that before 2015 or after?

A. It was one year before working at Sun Valley.
Q. Have you ever worked on a visa in the United States since then?
A. The first time I came to the United States, that was in Michigan. The second time it was in Sun Valley.
Q. Have you ever worked since then on a visa?
A. Yes. After Sun Valley and up until now, I have been working with a visa.
Q. You had a different visa in 2015 after you left Sun Valley?
A. Yes. When I was at Sun Valley it was an H-2A. At the job I'm currently at, it's an H-2B.
Q. Okay, that wasn't the question. In 2015 after you left Sun Valley, did you come back to the U.S. on a different visa?
A. Yes.
Q. Okay, when was that? When did you come back?
A. The next year.
Q. Okay. In 2015, did you come back to the United States in 2015 on a different visa?
A. No.
Q. Okay. And 2016 was an H-2A?
A. No.
Q. H-2B?
A. Yes.

Q. And 2017, H-2B?
A. Yes.
Q. Now, in 2016 and 2017, did your H-2B employer provide meals?
A. Even they sell us meals. We have a living space, we have a kitchen and we cook.
Q. Did your employer provide the living space and the kitchen?
MR. GLICK: Objection, relevance.
JUDGE TIMLIN: Yeah, what is the relevance?
MR. SCHULTE: Just by way of comparison. The complaint is that the meal charge was unreasonable in 2016. I'm just trying to get to -- or 2015, rather -- what his comparable experience has been in other years.
MR. GLICK: The H-2B regulations provide for different requirements than H-2A regulations.
JUDGE TIMLIN: Right. If he's on an H-2B, it's another thing.
MR. SCHULTE: No, I understand. I'm just saying the point is that he purchased meals. The idea was kind of how much that would cost him to purchase that and what he would pay in rent, you know, kind of what -- if the idea is that he had lost money in 2015, I want to know what he's paying the other years. Our contention is that he came out ahead in 2015 by having a very affordable meal.

JUDGE TIMLIN: I think you could ask him questions about his situation in Michigan where he was also on an H-2A visa, but I don't think you can ask him -- I don't think you can compare H-2B, his situation as an H-2B worker to his situation as an H-2A worker.

MR. SCHULTE: My question isn't his visa status, it's that he would still purchase meals, he's still a human being who ate the meals in those years.

JUDGE TIMLIN: Right. No, I understand, I understand that. But Mr. Glick's point was that the whole setup is different.

MR. SCHULTE: No, I understand. I'm not saying his employers were required to in those years. I'm saying he clearly is still alive, so he purchased and ate meals in those years somewhere.

MR. GLICK: Your Honor, may I be heard?

JUDGE TIMLIN: Yes.

MR. GLICK: On the cost of the meals, we have objections in a variety of Respondent's proposed exhibits regarding this question of cost. The cost to purchase meals in some other place is not an issue in this case.

JUDGE TIMLIN: I mean, that's also -- I mean, I think that's also somewhat of a -- thing. So you have two problems here, Mr. Schulte, because you have two different kinds of visas and you also have two different situations. You have a situation where they cook their own meals, they purchase their own -- well, the witness just said they purchase their own food and prepare meals versus this other situation that he had where meals were provided that they had at a cost. So again, I think you can explore what the situation was in Michigan, but I don't think you can explore the situations since then.

MR. SCHULTE: Okay. Again, there's no claim that his employers owed him that on H-2B visas. While I understood kind of what H-2B requirements are, part of it is, though, that he chose to keep coming back, you know, based on his decision-making process in coming. Part of the Administrator's argument is that this disclosure was required so that the workers could make an informed choice about whether to come to the United States or not, and part of it is, you know, a fairness issue that they were paying some amount of out-of-pocket and questioned whether that is a reasonable amount that was charged to them or not.

JUDGE TIMLIN: But how are you helping yourself since his decision to return was on a different type of visa altogether?

MR. SCHULTE: Because he knew when he came here that he would be paying for his food and he still chose to come here.

JUDGE TIMLIN: But he's on a different visa. He's not an H-2A --

MR. SCHULTE: That's right.

JUDGE TIMLIN: -- employee anymore. I'm not following an argument that says -- I mean, if he had come back on another H-2A visa, I could see where you could maybe make that argument, but he chose to not come back on an H-2A visa at all and come back on a different kind of visa.

MR. SCHULTE: Okay, I'll start with the Michigan and then --

JUDGE TIMLIN: Okay.

MR. SCHULTE: -- we can see where that goes.

JUDGE TIMLIN: All right, go ahead.

BY MR. SCHULTE:

Q. When you came to Michigan in 2014, were meals provided to you or did you purchase meals?

A. When I arrived in Michigan, I was given a living space, I was given a bedroom, there was access to a kitchen, there was access to a laundry room. We had all the amenities.

Q. That really wasn't the question. Were meals prepared for you or did you buy your own food?

A. I prepared food.

Q. How much did it cost per week to buy your groceries?

A. The living space where I was located, it was shared by four people, so we would share. The food costs would be between 35 to $40.

Q. And how long would it take you to prepare lunch? If you came back, would you cook your lunch?

A. In the morning I would prepare my own breakfast. In the afternoon I would prepare my lunch. I would already come with my lunch prepared.

Q. You would come where with your lunch prepared?

A. We would go out to the fields to pick apples.

Q. So would you prepare your lunch before you went to the field and stay in the field all day?

A. Yes.

Q. So you didn't have a hot lunch?

A. Well, no.

Q. Okay. Why didn't you go back to that job in 2015?

A. Because the boss told us in the period that I was there, in the moment that I went there, the boss told us that he was going to bring us back, but I don't know why he ended up not bringing us back.

Q. Had you picked apples before that year?

A. No.

Q. Were you good at picking apples?

A. I did it with a lot of effort.

Q. Okay. I'll take that as a no. Had you ever picked asparagus before?

MR. GLICK: Objection. Is counsel testifying?

JUDGE TIMLIN: I'm taking that as an aside that it does not count as testimony. Okay, go ahead. The question was had he ever picked asparagus before.

THE WITNESS: No.

BY MR. SCHULTE:

Q. Is picking asparagus easier or harder than picking apples?

A. Every job is difficult, but it's different.

Q. Not harder, not easier, exactly the same?

A. It's a little harder.

Q. Okay. When you got the copy of the job order before you came to the United States in 2015, did it say that you'd be picking asparagus?

A. Yes.

Q. How far from the asparagus fields was the dormitory?

A. There was one field that was right beside the dormitory.

Q. Did you work in that field most of your time during your week?

A. The days that I would work, that we started -- well, they had their own way to start. We would start in one field and then we would go to the next.

Q. Right. Did you mostly work in the fields that were near the dormitories?

A. That's where we would begin, but there were more.

Q. Okay. How many times did you ask to cook food in the kitchen?

A. Well, when we arrived they told us that they were going to sell us the meals. There wasn't a kitchen.

MR. SCHULTE: Objection, nonresponsive.

BY MR. SCHULTE:

Q. The question is how many times did you ask to use the kitchen?

A. I didn't ask. I didn't ask to use it because I didn't have anything to prepare.

Q. When you went to the store, did they sell food at the store?

A. Yes.

Q. But you didn't buy any?

A. No, I had nowhere to store it.

Q. Did you ask to store it in the refrigerator?

A. No.

Q. Did you put anything in the locker that Sun Valley provided you?

A. There were lockers, but there were few and they were mainly occupied when I arrived.

Q. Okay. Why didn't you mention that before when they asked where you kept your gear?

A. They asked me where, they asked me if I had a place to put my things and I said no.

Q. When they asked you before if there were beverages available at lunch or dinner, was water available?

A. I don't understand.

Q. I'm going to try to make it more simple. Was water available at lunch or dinner?

A. Well, there was always water coming from the pump, but it wasn't good.

Q. Do you know if the water was inspected by anyone before you arrived?

A. No.

Q. No. Do you know if the housing was inspected before you arrived?

A. I don't know.

Q. You don't. If you had the choice, would you prefer to drink water or soft drinks or juice?

A. Water.

Q. Then why did you purchase drinks when you were in the field?

A. Because when we asked for water and they took us water, I tried the water and it had a bad taste, so I opted to purchase the drinks and not drink the water.

Q. So if other people testified that that wasn't true, would they be telling the truth or would you?

MR. GLICK: Objection.

JUDGE TIMLIN: It's sustained. No, I sustained that one.

BY MR. SCHULTE:

Q. When you're home do you prefer water or juice?
MR. GLICK: Objection, relevance.
JUDGE TIMLIN: Overruled.
THE WITNESS: When I'm at my house, I drink water.
BY MR. SCHULTE:
Q. You never drink juice or soft drinks?
A. When I go out to work, first I drink water but I also bring a soda for lunchtime, but I prefer water.
Q. When you worked in Michigan did you only drink water or did you drink other things?
A. Water.
Q. Only water?
A. They offered us bottles of water. However, if we wanted to drink soda or something else, we would bring it in our own lunchbox, but that was personal use.
Q. Did you buy that yourself?
A. Yes. When we were working, we would share food costs, but if you wanted to buy soda or juice then that was a personal cost.
Q. How much would it cost to buy a soda or a juice, then, in Michigan?
A. I don't remember.
Q. In your jobs since Sun Valley, in 2016 and '17, did your employers provide you with free sodas or juice there?
MR. GLICK: Objection, relevance.

JUDGE TIMLIN: I'll allow it.

THE WITNESS: I don't understand the question.

BY MR. SCHULTE:

Q. Okay. Let's take for example, for 2016, did your H-2B employer give you juice or soft drinks for free?

A. No.

Q. Did you ever buy your own?

A. With this employer, when we -- if I want to buy juice or soda, I have to buy it with my own money.

Q. When you say that the -- you said in your testimony before that the cost was taken out of your pay. What do you mean by that?

A. That means that they write down what you consume and when you go to cash your check or get your check, it's deducted.

Q. Okay, deducted is a term of art, that's a specific legal term. Did you receive your full check and then you gave cash to Agustin or to someone else?

MR. GLICK: Objection to the first part of the question.

JUDGE TIMLIN: Okay. When there's an objection, can you just --

THE INTERPRETER: Stop.

JUDGE TIMLIN: -- stop? I'm sustaining the objection to the first part of the question, but the second part of your question was actually fine, so --

MR. SCHULTE: I'll rephrase, Your Honor.

JUDGE TIMLIN: Yeah.

BY MR. SCHULTE:

Q. When you received your paycheck, did you receive the full amount of the check and then give money from that to Agustin afterward?

A. Yes.

Q. Did you ever give any money to anyone else at Sun Valley?

A. Just when they gave me a ride.

Q. Did you ever ride in the school bus, in the bus to go to the store that Sun Valley provided?

A. No, it was just to go to work.

Q. So rather than go when the rest of the group went to the store, if you went on a different day with a private worker, you would pay that private worker?

MR. GLICK: Objection.

JUDGE TIMLIN: Basis for the objection?

MR. GLICK: Confusing and there's no testimony about modes of transportation.

JUDGE TIMLIN: Right, I think -- yeah. I think you are -- you're kind of making assumptions and adding some facts in that haven't come out in his testimony. His testimony was that the -- his testimony was that he took -- that he could pay somebody for rides in their personal cars to get to stores and that he used the school bus just to go work. There's been no testimony that the school bus was available for any other use, so --

MR. SCHULTE: Okay, but it was offered because I just didn't want to -- I wanted to clarify that there was an alternative, that free transportation was provided and that if he chose to go on other days than that --

JUDGE TIMLIN: Okay, then you have to ask that question because --

MR. SCHULTE: Okay.

JUDGE TIMLIN: -- that has not been established at all.

BY MR. SCHULTE:

Q. Okay. Was there an opportunity provided by Sun Valley to take you to the store?

A. No.

Q. Okay. Did any of the Marinos ever see you buy sodas or buy drinks from Agustin?

MR. GLICK: Objection, personal knowledge.

MR. SCHULTE: Whose personal knowledge?

JUDGE TIMLIN: Yeah.

MR. SCHULTE: The question is whether the Marinos saw it. Can we do something?

JUDGE TIMLIN: Right. Well, yeah.

MR. SCHULTE: I'll rephrase.

BY MR. SCHULTE:

Q. Were they ever present when you purchased -- did you ever see them when you were buying drinks from Agustin?

A. There was a man who was always making rounds around there, but I don't know if he saw it.

Q. Do you know who that man was?

A. I don't know his name.

Q. Okay. But you know it wasn't Russell Marino?

A. No. So far as I understood, it was his father.

Q. You testified earlier that you saw his father when you were planting. Was he the same man?

MR. GLICK: Objection, misstates testimony.

JUDGE TIMLIN: Okay, wait. Actually, I'm going to allow the question because I did hear him say that Mr. -- that Russell Marino, Jr.'s father was at the field that one day. So yeah, he can answer.

THE INTERPRETER: I'm sorry, can I have the question again?

MR. SCHULTE: Of course, I'll try again.

JUDGE TIMLIN: Right, right, right.

BY MR. SCHULTE:

Q. Had you ever seen Russell Marino, Sr. while you were working at Sun Valley?

A. Yes.

Q. Was he the man that you saw walking around?
A. Around where?
Q. The man you said who was walking around when you were buying drinks.
A. What I was trying to express was the fact that he was always around there. I don't know if he was observing us buying.
Q. Okay. Was it this man?
A. No.
Q. Okay. Was it Russell Marino, Jr.?
A. No.
Q. Russell Marino, Sr.?
A. As I mentioned before, I believe it was his father, but I don't know for sure.
Q. How many paychecks did you get from Sun Valley?
A. From working, one.
Q. From one, okay. Were any amounts withheld on the check? You know, so you had earned wages and there were amounts withheld on the check.
A. No.
Q. Did you ever give money to Sun Valley, to any of the Marinos?
A. No.
Q. Okay. You testified earlier that you bought two 12-packs of beer; is that right?

A. I said what I remember.
Q. Was it correct that you said that there were two 12-packs?
A. Yes.
Q. And you drank all of those beers yourself?
A. No.
Q. How many did you drink?
A. I don't remember. It could've been two or three. I wasn't by myself.
Q. What did you do with the rest?
A. It wasn't completely mine.
Q. Okay. You testified that the hot water ran out. Would there be more hot water if you waited?
A. I don't know.
Q. Did you ever try?
A. I looked for the hot water. I opened it and there wasn't any, and I took a shower.
Q. So you never waited, was the question.
A. Well, I waited a little, enough to have it come out.
Q. No, no. I mean not a few seconds from when you turn it to when it comes out of the tap. I mean a few minutes after somebody's left the shower until there's hot water again.
MR. GLICK: Objection, misstates testimony.
JUDGE TIMLIN: I'll allow it.
THE WITNESS: Yes, I waited.

BY MR. SCHULTE:

Q. Okay. Who did you complain to about the cold water?

A. One of the coworkers commented to the person in charge, but they never said anything.

Q. I object to that as hearsay. Did you ever speak to anyone?

JUDGE TIMLIN: You kind of opened the door because you asked the question.

MR. SCHULTE: No, I asked who did he speak to.

JUDGE TIMLIN: Oh, okay. All right, agreed.

MR. SCHULTE: Not who did someone else tell.

MR. GLICK: The rules of hearsay, first of all, are not strictly applied in these proceedings and in H-2A regulations.

JUDGE TIMLIN: I understood that it wasn't -- I would actually strike it as nonresponsive to the question because --

MR. SCHULTE: That's fine.

JUDGE TIMLIN: -- the question was did you complain. And he went somewhere else with that. So move on.

BY MR. SCHULTE:

Q. Okay. As far as drinking water and the taste of drinking water, did you personally ever complain about that?

A. Yes.

Q. Who did you talk to?

A. The first time I tried that water, I told the person in charge that it did not taste good.

Q. Who was the person in charge?

A. Agustin.

Q. When was that?

A. While I was working there in the fields.

Q. What day? Your first day there, after seven days?

A. Yes, the first day I worked there.

Q. Did you ever talk to anyone else about it?

A. No.

Q. You never told Mr. Marino?

A. No.

Q. Did you ever tell Russell Junior?

A. No.

Q. Did you ever say anything to Mr. Marino?

A. No.

Q. Did you ever say anything to Russell Junior?

A. No. If we had a question, we had to go through the man in charge.

Q. What do you mean you had to? Who told you that?

A. The man in charge was always the one that was with us. The Marino men were in the area but they never came close enough --

Q. Did you ever try? I'm sorry. Did you ever try to speak with them?

A. The last day we were there we tried to talk to the boss.

Q. Was Mr. Joe Marino at the meeting that you talked about earlier?

A. No.

Q. Was there anyone else from the Marino family at the meeting other than Russell Junior?

A. It was he and Agustin when we wanted to talk to him.

Q. No one else, not Russell Senior, not Russell's uncle?

A. No, no.

Q. If you had known about the meal charge, would you still have come to work at Sun Valley?

A. Yes.

Q. The meals that were prepared, how was the food, was it good food?

A. It was so-so.

Q. Are you a better cook?

A. Yes.

Q. Yeah. How much of your time was spent cutting asparagus compared to other jobs?

A. I don't understand the question.

Q. Okay, never mind. How many workers were living in the dormitory while you were there?

A. I don't know exactly how many, but there were a lot of us.

Q. Fifty, a hundred?

A. I don't know.
Q. No idea?
A. No, there were a lot.
Q. More than 19?
A. There were a lot of us. There was a mixture of those of us that had been contracted and arrived there, plus the ones that were already there. We were all mixed together.
Q. Okay. So how many people left with your group?
A. It was 19 of us.
Q. And how many people were left?
A. When we arrived, there were already people there with visas. So when we left, I don't know how many were left.
Q. How many people were left that lived in the dormitory?
A. How many were left? I don't know.
Q. Were there more left than were in your group or more in your group than were left?
A. I think it was about half.
Q. And the half that stayed, they were living in the same dormitory?
A. Yes.
Q. Using the same bathrooms?
A. Yes, the bathrooms and showers that were there were the same for all of us.
Q. Eating the same food?

A. Yes.
Q. Buying the same soft drinks?
A. Yes, everybody bought them.
Q. Doing the same work in the field?
A. Yes.
Q. Drinking the same water?
A. After I left, I don't know if they continued to drink the same water, but while I was there, yes, we all drank the same water.
Q. Was there any difference between the group that left and the experience of the group that stayed?
A. No, I don't understand.
Q. What you described as your experience at Sun Valley, was that any different from the experience of the workers who stayed?
A. The experience that we had, those of us that left, yes, it was the same.
Q. Okay. Do you know why Russell Marino, Jr. came to the dormitory on your last day?
A. Because at lunchtime we told the man in charge, Agustin, that we wanted to talk to Russell.
Q. Did you tell him that you wouldn't go back to work?
A. No, we weren't going to stop working. We just wanted to talk to him about the things that we were unhappy about. But the only thing that ended in that meeting was that he told us he didn't need us and we could leave.

Q. That's not what you said before, is it?

A. I don't understand.

Q. Didn't you say that he told you, if you don't -- Agustin told you, if you don't like it, you can leave?

A. No, Agustin was there, but the one that said it was the boss.

Q. Who's the boss?

A. Russell Marino, the man who contracted us.

Q. Okay. Did he ever tell you had to leave?

A. Yes. When the whole thing happened and he got very angry and yelled, yes, he told us he did not need us and we could leave.

Q. You could leave?

A. Yes.

Q. Did he say you could not come back to work?

A. He practically fired us.

Q. Did he actually fire you?

A. We did not want to have this conversation in order to leave. We wanted to have a conversation with him to explain the things we were unhappy about, but that we were not able to do that.

Q. That wasn't the question. Did he actually fire you and tell you could not continue to work there?

MR. GLICK: Objection, compound and calls for a legal conclusion.

MR. SCHULTE: I'll rephrase.

JUDGE TIMLIN: Yeah, the compound part I'll sustain.

BY MR. SCHULTE:

Q. Okay. Did he tell you you couldn't come back to work?

A. He told us he didn't need us and if we wanted to leave we could leave and we opted to leave.

Q. Okay. Does asparagus grow very quickly?

A. Yes.

Q. What happens if you don't cut it?

A. As far as I know, asparagus grows from one day to the next and if it doesn't get cut, it grows too large and then it's not any good anymore.

Q. Okay. Did anyone at the meeting tell you that they needed workers to be able to pick the asparagus?

A. I don't understand.

Q. Did Joe Marino ask you to stay because the asparagus would be ruined if you didn't pick it?

MR. GLICK: Objection. His testimony was that Joe Marino wasn't present at this meeting.

JUDGE TIMLIN: Right, that's what I heard, too. Yeah, I think you have to ask a different question. I'm sorry, Mr. Schulte.

MR. SCHULTE: Okay.

JUDGE TIMLIN: Maybe at some point there will be testimony that Mr. Joe Marino was there, but at this point there hasn't been that testimony. So the question that you have to ask can't assume that.

BY MR. SCHULTE:

Q. Okay, there will be, but for now, did anyone at the meeting tell you that Sun Valley needed workers to be able to cut the asparagus?

A. Which meeting?

Q. The meeting with Russell Marino.

A. When we had the meeting with him, we already knew that we had to cut the asparagus. When we signed the contract it laid out what --

Q. Okay.

A. -- we were supposed to be picking.

Q. You understood that you took an oath and you need to tell the truth. You need to take that very seriously and pay close to attention when I ask the questions.

MR. GLICK: Objection.

JUDGE TIMLIN: Yeah.

MR. SCHULTE: He's given nonresponsive answers to about two-thirds of my questions. I don't know what his agenda is, but it's not to answer our questions.

JUDGE TIMLIN: Okay. Okay, I can instruct him on that and you can ask to give him an instruction on that without any of the preface.

MR. SCHULTE: Okay.

JUDGE TIMLIN: Okay.

So Mr. Maldonado, I want you to listen closely to what he asks you and answer the exact question that he asked you.

THE WITNESS: Yes.

JUDGE TIMLIN: Okay, okay. So now --

MR. SCHULTE: Thank you.

BY MR. SCHULTE:

Q. Did anyone at the meeting tell you that Sun Valley would lose its asparagus crop if the workers left?

A. No.

Q. No. Was it possible for the workers who remained to be able to do all of the farm work for the whole crew?

MR. GLICK: Objection, calls for speculation.

JUDGE TIMLIN: Right, I'm not sure how he would know that, so sustained.

BY MR. SCHULTE:

Q. Was there enough work for all of the workers who were there? Were you kept busy?

A. Yes.

Q. Would it be difficult for half as many workers to do the same amount of work?

MR. GLICK: Objection.

JUDGE TIMLIN: Basis?
BY MR. SCHULTE:
Q. If you know.
JUDGE TIMLIN: Overruled. He can answer.
THE WITNESS: Well, it could be difficult, yes.
BY MR. SCHULTE:
Q. How many hours a day were you working?
A. It could be 12 or more.
Q. How many hours are in a day? How many are there in each day?
THE INTERPRETER: The interpreter's not understanding your question.
MR. SCHULTE: In a day, how many hours are there?
THE INTERPRETER: Work hours?
MR. SCHULTE: No, just a day. One time around.
THE WITNESS: I don't understand.
BY MR. SCHULTE:
Q. Okay. From noon one day to the -- there are 24 hours in a day, right?
A. Yes.
Q. Okay. So if half as many people are doing the same work, they would have to do it for twice as long, right?
A. No, I don't understand.
Q. Of course not. Okay, have you spoken with counsel here about your appearance today?

A. Yes.
Q. When?
A. I spoke with the two attorneys last year and then this year and then with the worker -- well, with both of these attorneys I spoke to last year.
Q. Do you remember what time of year?
A. I don't remember the date last year.
Q. Did they call you or did you call them?
A. I had contact with a man from the Department of Labor. His name is Jose, but I had contact with him first and then I spoke to the attorneys.
Q. Did he call you first or did you call him?
A. He called me.
Q. Okay. Do you know how he found your phone number?
A. No.
Q. Are you sure?
A. I don't remember.
Q. Did you ever call anyone else about your work at Sun Valley?
A. I don't understand.
Q. After you worked at Sun Valley, did you ever pick up the phone and call someone else about that work?
A. No.
Q. Did you ever speak to anyone other than the three people you've mentioned, Jose and the two lawyers here, about your work at Sun Valley?

A. I did not speak to anyone else.

Q. No one else? No organization in Mexico?

MR. GLICK: Objection, assumes facts not in evidence.

MR. SCHULTE: The question was did he.

JUDGE TIMLIN: It's overruled.

THE WITNESS: Not me.

BY MR. SCHULTE:

Q. No. Do you know how -- did Jose tell you how he got your phone number?

MR. GLICK: Objection, asked and --

JUDGE TIMLIN: I don't know that it was asked and answered, so it's okay.

THE WITNESS: They were in touch with some other of my coworkers and I believe one of them gave him my number.

BY MR. SCHULTE:

Q. Is that what Jose told you?

A. I don't remember.

Q. Do you know how many -- who else he spoke with?

MR. GLICK: Objection, personal knowledge and informant's privilege.

JUDGE TIMLIN: I'm just wondering how closely it's tied into the informant's privilege. I'm not sure where we're going with this.

MR. GLICK: I mean, I have a concern. I think some of this is -- I appreciate Mr. Schulte should have an opportunity to make, you know, some limited inquiry here. I'm not sure of its relevance, but I don't see it going anywhere.

JUDGE TIMLIN: Yeah, I'm just concerned, Mr. Schulte, about where you're going.

MR. SCHULTE: What's the concern with the informant's privilege?

JUDGE TIMLIN: Yeah.

MR. SCHULTE: No, I'm sorry, what is the concern?

JUDGE TIMLIN: That you're asking him -- if you start asking him about identities of other people that he's -- other people who may have spoken to the Department of Labor, it seems to me that that's treading into the government informant's privilege and I don't think you can go there.

MR. SCHULTE: He doesn't hold the privilege, though.

JUDGE TIMLIN: I understand, which is why I don't understand why the government hasn't been objecting and jumping up and down, but they haven't, so go ahead.

MR. SCHULTE: So we can't know who the accusers are here?

JUDGE TIMLIN: You can continue with your questions. Go ahead.

BY MR. SCHULTE:

Q. That's okay. You testified that there were bathrooms available in the field on trailers; is that right?

A. Yes.
Q. Okay. For your work at Sun Valley, was there any time that you worked that you feel like you weren't paid for?
A. No.
Q. Do you feel that Sun Valley owes you any money?
A. No.
MR. SCHULTE: No further questions.
JUDGE TIMLIN: Okay, any redirect?
MR. GLICK: Briefly, Your Honor.
JUDGE TIMLIN: Okay. Because what I want to do is finish with this witness. I'm going to have a few questions. I want to finish with him and then we'll take a break for lunch.
MR. GLICK: Understood.
JUDGE TIMLIN: Yeah. Go ahead.

REDIRECT EXAMINATION

BY MR. GLICK:
Q. Mr. Maldonado, before you worked in Michigan, did you receive any information about whether you would have to pay for meals?
A. I don't understand the question.
Q. Did you receive any documents about the work in Michigan before you went to work there?
A. Yes, a contract.
Q. Do you remember whether that contract said anything about whether you would be given free access to a kitchen?

A. No, it doesn't specify.

Q. Now, when you worked at Sun Valley, did you have any opportunity to complain to any of the Marinos?

A. No.

Q. Did you have an opportunity to complain to the Marinos about the housing?

A. No. And the day we tried to, that's when everything happened.

Q. Do you know anything about what happened at Sun Valley after you left?

A. No.

Q. Do you know who kept working there?

A. No.

Q. Did anyone else -- I believe you testified that there were 19 people who left around the time you did.

A. Yes.

Q. Were all those people present at the meeting with Russell Marino, Jr. that day?

A. Yes.

MR. GLICK: I have no further questions at this time.

JUDGE TIMLIN: Any recross based on the redirect?

MR. SCHULTE: Very quickly, Your Honor.

RECROSS-EXAMINATION

BY MR. SCHULTE:

Q. How many times did you bring concerns to Agustin Hernandez about the housing conditions?

MR. GLICK: Objection, outside of the scope.

JUDGE TIMLIN: Well, I'm going to allow it because you asked about complaints to the Marinos, so I think it's vaguely related. Go ahead.

THE WITNESS: Could you repeat the question, please?

BY MR. SCHULTE:

Q. Of course. How many times did you bring your complaints to Agustin Hernandez about housing?

A. I think we only said once or twice. It was uncomfortable.

Q. Okay. So before you quit, you never said anything directly to the Marinos?

MR. GLICK: Objection, misstates the testimony and assumes facts not in evidence.

JUDGE TIMLIN: Well, you asked him if he had -- well --

MR. GLICK: The predicate about quitting.

JUDGE TIMLIN: Oh, I see what you're saying. Can you rephrase it to say before you left?

BY MR. SCHULTE:

Q. Before you decided to leave, did you ever say anything to the Marinos, any of them?

A. No. The day that we tried to say something was the day of the meeting and things didn't go well.

MR. SCHULTE: Okay, nothing further.

JUDGE TIMLIN: Okay. So now I have some questions. At the field, you said there were some bathrooms in trailers.

THE WITNESS: Yes.

JUDGE TIMLIN: But you couldn't use them because they were on their side. I don't understand what you mean by on their side.

THE WITNESS: They had a base but it wasn't firm, it wasn't firmly installed. They looked like they were installed improperly, so it was kind of on an angle.

JUDGE TIMLIN: Okay. When they brought the water out to the field in the jugs, did they provide cups?

THE WITNESS: Yes.

JUDGE TIMLIN: Okay. I'm also trying to get a picture of the relationship -- were the dormitories in a separate building from the dining room and the kitchen?

THE WITNESS: No, it was only one.

JUDGE TIMLIN: So there was one big building. Part of it had a sleeping area, part of it had a dining room and there was -- and a kitchen?

THE WITNESS: It was one building. The dormitories were on one side and then the kitchen and the tables with the dining room and then the bathrooms.

JUDGE TIMLIN: Bathrooms and kitchen, okay. I think part of my confusion is because sometimes we use the word dormitory to refer to a building that has sleeping areas, but I think he is using dormitory to just mean areas where you sleep. Okay.

THE WITNESS: Yes.

JUDGE TIMLIN: Okay. And you said you couldn't prepare your own food because the kitchen was for their use and I want to know who you mean by "they".

THE WITNESS: The cooks. The ones that prepared the food.

JUDGE TIMLIN: Okay. Was Agustin one of the cooks?

THE WITNESS: No.

JUDGE TIMLIN: So there were other people who prepared -- who worked as cooks to prepare the meals?

THE WITNESS: Yes.

JUDGE TIMLIN: Okay. When you said that if you got soda or juice to drink, they would write it down in a notebook; again, I need to know who they --

THE WITNESS: Agustin.

JUDGE TIMLIN: Agustin, okay.

THE WITNESS: The man in charge.

JUDGE TIMLIN: He was the only one with a notebook that was writing things down?

THE WITNESS: Sometimes if he wasn't there, some of the other people that were doing the cooking would sign your name in the notebook and then write it down.

JUDGE TIMLIN: Okay. When you washed your laundry by hand, there was -- it was the tubs that were in the bathroom that was the separate building?

THE WITNESS: It was in the same area of the showers.

JUDGE TIMLIN: Okay. And how did you dry your clothes?

THE WITNESS: I would hang it up outside. It would dry in the air.

JUDGE TIMLIN: Was there a place to hang clothes outside?

THE WITNESS: No.

JUDGE TIMLIN: And what did you use for soap?

THE WITNESS: I bought some there.

JUDGE TIMLIN: Where? Where did you buy the soap?

THE WITNESS: Where they were selling the things.

JUDGE TIMLIN: Okay, so where they sold the cigarettes and drinks, they were also -- they also sold soap?

THE WITNESS: Yes.

JUDGE TIMLIN: You were talking about a timeline on that day of the meeting. There was a time when you were out with another person planting and the person who you believed was the father of Russell Marino, Jr. arrived and got off his tractor. Was that in the field?

THE WITNESS: So, yes, we were in the field and we were planting and he arrived in his truck, and that's when he stopped the tractor and got the guy out of the tractor and yelled at him.

JUDGE TIMLIN: So it was a coworker who was on the tractor?

THE WITNESS: Yes.

JUDGE TIMLIN: Okay. And did that all happen before Russell Marino, Jr. came to the dormitory for the meeting?

THE WITNESS: It was the same day, but it was in the morning before the meeting.

JUDGE TIMLIN: And the meeting was after lunch?

THE WITNESS: Yes.

JUDGE TIMLIN: Okay. Do you still have the -- does he still have a copy of the joint exhibit, Joint Exhibit 8 at page 91, the thing that we were looking at before?

MR. GLICK: May I approach, Your Honor?

JUDGE TIMLIN: Is that your handwriting on all of the lines where there's handwriting?

THE WITNESS: When they gave me this paper my name was already on it.

JUDGE TIMLIN: The name at the top, it says Maldonado, Marco Giovanny? Okay.

THE WITNESS: Yes.

JUDGE TIMLIN: Who wrote the next -- I can't even make out what that word is there on the next line.

THE WITNESS: It was already there.
JUDGE TIMLIN: That was already there. How about the X? Did you write that or was that already there?
THE WITNESS: I did.
JUDGE TIMLIN: Okay. And then you printed your name and signed your name?
THE WITNESS: Yes, I put my name down.
JUDGE TIMLIN: Okay. And who put down the date?
THE WITNESS: It was already there.
JUDGE TIMLIN: Okay. And the name below that?
THE INTERPRETER: Which line are you referring to, Your Honor?
JUDGE TIMLIN: The one that says "Print name of witness" and it looks like --
THE WITNESS: It was already there.
JUDGE TIMLIN: That was already there, okay. So the only thing you did, you did the X and printed your name and wrote your signature?
THE WITNESS: Yes.
JUDGE TIMLIN: The part that was in Spanish that we don't have here, did you have to fill out any parts of that, too?
THE WITNESS: Yes.
JUDGE TIMLIN: Okay. All right. When you were having this meeting, and I think it was Mr. Marino, Jr. said that he didn't need you and you could leave, what did you understand him to mean by that?

THE WITNESS: I understood that I needed to leave.

JUDGE TIMLIN: Okay. And you started to work and then you got paid on the first Friday?

THE WITNESS: I don't remember.

JUDGE TIMLIN: Did you work on Saturday and Sunday?

THE WITNESS: Yes, we worked Saturdays and Sundays.

JUDGE TIMLIN: Did you have any days off?

THE WITNESS: It's just that I was there for such a short time, so when I first arrived they just had us there without working and then I worked and then I left.

JUDGE TIMLIN: Okay. And there were no days that you were there that you were not working?

THE WITNESS: At the beginning when we first arrived we weren't working for a few days.

JUDGE TIMLIN: Okay. Okay. In Michigan in 2014 you said that you shared food costs with four people and it was about 35 to $40 a person. Was that for a week of food?

THE WITNESS: Yes, per week per person.

JUDGE TIMLIN: Okay. The attorney, Mr. Schulte, was asking about picking apples versus picking asparagus and you said every job is different. One is a little harder, but which one is harder, asparagus or apples?

THE WITNESS: Asparagus.

JUDGE TIMLIN: Okay. At home in your house in Mexico, when you drink water, are you drinking water from the tap or bottled water?

THE WITNESS: Bottled water.

JUDGE TIMLIN: Where were you when you received your pay?

THE WITNESS: I don't understand.

JUDGE TIMLIN: Were you in the field or were you at the dormitories?

THE WITNESS: In the dormitory.

JUDGE TIMLIN: Okay. And did you receive cash or a check?

THE WITNESS: Check.

JUDGE TIMLIN: And then was it -- how did you cash the check?

THE WITNESS: The man in charge, Agustin, cashed it for us.

JUDGE TIMLIN: And when he cashed it, he held back some of the money for the food and drinks?

THE WITNESS: No, he gave me the money and then I paid for it.

JUDGE TIMLIN: Okay. Were there more meetings than just that one meeting with Mr. Russell Marino, Jr.?

THE WITNESS: No.

JUDGE TIMLIN: Okay. Did you go back to the fields that day after that meeting?

THE WITNESS: No.

JUDGE TIMLIN: How did you come to sign this piece of paper saying that you were going to leave; was that the same day?

THE WITNESS: The same day, at the meeting.

JUDGE TIMLIN: Did he come to the meeting with these papers?

THE WITNESS: No. When he came to the meeting, we talked and then he left -- Agustin, the man in charge, left and came back with the papers.

JUDGE TIMLIN: Agustin brought the papers back?

THE WITNESS: Yes.

JUDGE TIMLIN: Okay. Did Mr. Marino, Jr. tell him to go get the papers?

THE WITNESS: Yes, they left together. He told us he was going to bring papers back.

JUDGE TIMLIN: Oh, okay. Okay. All right. So Mr. Glick, did that bring up anything for you?

MR. GLICK: If I could ask just one question, Your Honor.

JUDGE TIMLIN: Sure.

FURTHER REDIRECT EXAMINATION

BY MR. GLICK:

Q. The building with the dormitory and also the kitchen, were there separate doors?

A. Yes.

Q. Was there any way to get from the place where you slept into the kitchen without walking outside?

A. No.

MR. GLICK: Nothing further, Your Honor.

JUDGE TIMLIN: Any recross?

MR. SCHULTE: Very quickly, Your Honor.

JUDGE TIMLIN: Sure.

FURTHER RECROSS-EXAMINATION

BY MR. SCHULTE:

Q. The Judge just asked you about the form that you were given to sign. Who gave you the form?

A. Agustin, the man in charge.

Q. What did Russell Marino, Jr. tell you about the form?

A. After the meeting, he told us that he was going to go get some papers for us to sign so that we can leave and then he came back with the papers.

Q. Who came back?

A. Agustin.

Q. Okay. Did Russell tell you which box to check?

A. No.

Q. Did any of the workers call anyone in Mexico to ask them about the form?

A. No.

Q. Did you talk to any of the workers about the form before you signed it?
A. Yes.
Q. What did you say?
A. We didn't know what we had to do first.
Q. No, what did you say?
A. What I understood in Spanish, I tried to pick the option that I had to leave because of problems.
Q. Why did you pick that one?
A. Because the other options indicated that I didn't want to work or I didn't like the work and that's not why I was leaving, so I didn't want to mark them.
Q. Do you know what happened to the Spanish half of the form?
A. Yes. In fact, they gave me a copy and they kept a copy, and my copy is in Mexico.
Q. And that's the Spanish half was your copy?
A. Yes.
Q. Okay. Have you seen different costs for food in different parts of the country?
MR. GLICK: Objection, outside of the scope.
JUDGE TIMLIN: It is outside of the scope. I'm sorry. I mean, it's --
MR. SCHULTE: You had asked about the price of food in Michigan. I just wanted to establish --

JUDGE TIMLIN: Okay, you're right, I did ask that -- so you're right, okay. So that's fine, you can ask.

BY MR. SCHULTE:

Q. I'll repeat. Does food cost different amounts in different parts of the United States?

A. Yes.

MR. SCHULTE: Okay, nothing further.

JUDGE TIMLIN: Any?

MR. GLICK: No, Your Honor.

JUDGE TIMLIN: Okay. So I just have one more question, though. The people who were at the meeting, the workers who were at this meeting, did any of the workers decide not to leave?

THE WITNESS: No, all of us that were at the meeting left.

JUDGE TIMLIN: Okay, thank you. Did that bring up anything for anybody?

MR. GLICK: No, Your Honor.

JUDGE TIMLIN: Okay. So can Mr. Maldonado be excused?

MR. GLICK: Absolutely.

JUDGE TIMLIN: Okay. Thank you very much, Mr. Maldonado, for your time this morning. And you are excused. I would ask, because this hearing is still going on, that you don't talk to any of the other people who may be witnesses in this case until the whole hearing is finished.

THE WITNESS: No problem.

JUDGE TIMLIN: Great. Okay.

All right, it is --

THE INTERPRETER: Is he excused to leave?

JUDGE TIMLIN: Yes, he can leave, right? You guys are --

MR. GLICK: Okay.

(Witness excused.)

JUDGE TIMLIN: Okay. So it is a little bit after 1:00. Why don't we come back at 2:15, so that'll be enough time to get some lunch and rest a bit.

MR. GLICK: Can we go off the record?

JUDGE TIMLIN: Yes.

(Whereupon, at 1:04 p.m. a lunch recess was taken and the proceedings were reconvened at 2:19 p.m.)

AFTERNOON SESSION

(2:19 p.m.)

JUDGE TIMLIN: Do you have another witness for me?

MR. GLICK: Yes, Your Honor. The Administrator calls Mr. Gustavo Marquez Perez.

JUDGE TIMLIN: Perez?

MR. GLICK: I believe it's P-e-r-e-z.

JUDGE TIMLIN: If you can please stand for me. Raise your right hand.

Whereupon,

GUSTAVO MARQUEZ PEREZ

was called as a witness by and on behalf of the Plaintiff, and after having been first duly sworn, was examined and testified as follows:

JUDGE TIMLIN: Okay. Go ahead.

DIRECT EXAMINATION

BY MR. GLICK:

Q. Good afternoon, Mr. Marquez Perez.

A. Good afternoon.

Q. Did you work at a company called Sun Valley?

A. Yes.

Q. When was that?

A. It was in 2015.

Q. Do you remember which months?

A. It was around May. The day --

Q. About how long did you work there?
A. Maybe two weeks.
Q. Did you work at Sun Valley on a visa?
A. Yes.
Q. Do you remember what kind of visa?
A. H-2B. Excuse me, H-2A.
Q. It was an H-2A visa?
A. Yes.
Q. So I'd like to talk to you a little bit about the work that you did at Sun Valley.
A. Okay.
Q. What kind of work did you do there?
A. Cutting asparagus.
Q. Anything else?
A. During the time that I was there, just that.
Q. What was the work like?
A. It was being bent over the entire time cutting.
Q. Who supervised you?
A. Someone in charge. The name is Agustin. The last name I don't remember.
Q. What was Agustin like as a supervisor?
A. He was a little hard.
Q. How so?
A. He would make a lot of comparisons.
Q. What do you mean by that?

A. Well, the thing is there were other people there working, that had spent years working already. In the time that we were working, he wanted us to be able to work at the same pace as the others who had already been working there.

Q. What would Agustin say to you?

A. How could it be that they were further ahead and we were behind?

Q. What hours did you work at Sun Valley?

A. 5:30 a.m. to 6:00. I don't remember exactly. In the morning until 6:00 in the afternoon, 12 hours we were there.

Q. Who decided those hours?

A. Well, Agustin.

Q. Could you have worked fewer hours?

MR. SCHULTE: Objection, speculation.

JUDGE TIMLIN: Overruled. He can answer.

THE WITNESS: Well, the thing is there was a small confusion there because when we went to sign the paperwork, the contract, they said they were going to pay us by hour. But afterwards when we arrived at the farm, they told us that we were going to be paid by contract.

BY MR. GLICK:

Q. What do you mean, paid by --

A. Actually, they never explained to us well if they were going to be paying us by the hour or by contract.

Q. What does it mean to pay by contract?

A. It's what was done throughout the course of the day.
Q. So did you have a choice about how many hours to work in a day?
A. No.
Q. How many breaks did you have during the day?
A. Just the lunch hour.
Q. Any other shorter breaks?
A. I don't remember.
Q. Were there bathrooms in the fields where you worked?
A. No.
Q. When you were working in the fields, what did you do if you needed to go to the bathroom?
A. I never had that issue.
Q. Was there water available to drink when you were working in the fields?
A. Sometimes. It wasn't always.
Q. What times was there water and what times was there not water?
A. The thing is sometimes there was, sometimes there wasn't some times of the day. Some times of the day, like once in the morning and then it was finished.
Q. So I'd like to ask you a bit about the food you ate when you -- while you worked at Sun Valley. How did you eat at Sun Valley?
THE INTERPRETER: Did you ask how he eats?

BY MR. GLICK:

Q. What did you do for food during the time you worked at Sun Valley?

A. The person in charge sold us the food.

Q. And who was that person?

A. Agustin.

Q. How much did he sell the food for?

A. I think it was $75 per week.

Q. What did that $75 per week cover?

A. It was the coffee in the morning and the food at lunchtime.

Q. Did it cover anything else?

A. A jar for water.

Q. What about dinner?

A. Dinner? I don't remember, no.

Q. Did you have a choice about whether to pay that $75 a week?

A. No.

Q. Who explained to you that there was a $75-a-week charge?

A. Agustin.

Q. When did he explain that?

A. When we first arrived.

Q. What did he say?

A. That they, their family, made the food and we had to pay $75.

Q. Where were you when Agustin explained that?

A. When we first arrived, because we were the ones who asked him.

Q. Do you remember where? Were you at Sun Valley at the time?

A. Yes.

Q. Do you remember what part of the -- what part of Sun Valley, what place?

A. Specifically, no.

Q. What had you asked him about?

A. If they had a kitchen for us.

Q. And what did he respond?

A. No, that they made the food and that we had to pay them $75 a week.

Q. Could you prepare food there?

A. No.

Q. Who made the food?

A. I remember it was his wife and a brother, the brother of his wife.

Q. Where did they make the food?

A. In an area there by where the rooms were.

Q. Where was that area, specifically, in relation to the rooms?

A. Well, it's a part that's all together, it's united.

Q. Is there a door from the rooms into the place where they made the food?
A. There's a wall, yes.
Q. Where is that wall?
A. Well, it's like it has a corridor and there is the kitchen and it's in a corner and it's separated.
Q. So could you prepare your own food in that kitchen?
A. No.
Q. Could you store any food in that kitchen?
A. No.
Q. Why not?
A. Because they would close it.
Q. When did they close it?
A. In the afternoons.
THE INTERPRETER: I'm sorry, just a clarification. In Spanish -- could be afternoon or evening.
BY MR. GLICK:
Q. Oh. Do you know more specifically about what time of day they closed the kitchen?
A. Not exactly.
Q. Was it before dinner or after dinner?
A. It was in the evening after we arrived from work.
Q. What about before the kitchen was closed, could you store anything of your own in the kitchen?
A. No.

Q. Why not?
A. Because from the beginning they said the food was sold, you can't just go into the kitchen.
Q. Was there anything else sold at the kitchen?
A. Yes.
Q. What else?
A. Soft drinks, energy drinks.
Q. Who sold the soft drinks?
A. It was him. What I mean is the people who were there.
Q. I just want to make sure I understand. Which people?
A. The people I mentioned before, his wife and the brother and his wife.
Q. Who sold the energy drinks?
A. It was all together, the kitchen and then the refrigerators that had the drinks inside.
Q. Did you purchase any of those soft drinks?
A. Yes.
Q. Did you purchase them at the kitchen?
A. In the kitchen, and they would also take them to the fields.
Q. Who took the drinks to the fields?
A. He did, Agustin.
Q. And did you also purchase those drinks in the fields?
A. Yes.

Q. Why did you purchase those beverages?
A. Because, as I mentioned before, sometimes the water was not consistent.
Q. What do you mean by that?
A. That sometimes there was water and sometimes there wasn't.
Q. So in a typical day when you worked at Sun Valley, when would be the first time that you purchased one of those beverages?
A. As part of the day or --
Q. What time of day?
A. In the morning, 9:00 a.m., 10:00. I don't remember the exact time.
Q. What kind of beverage would you purchase in the morning?
A. In general, Gatorade.
Q. Do you remember how much the Gatorade cost?
A. Not exactly.
Q. How did you pay for the Gatorade?
A. If we were carrying cash, we'd pay that moment. And if not, there was a list where it would be written down and by the end of the week, we would pay them.
Q. Who kept that list?
A. He did.
Q. I just want to make sure I understand which person.

Who is he?

A. Agustin.

Q. So after purchasing the Gatorade in the morning on a typical day, when would you purchase the next beverage, if any?

A. As I said before, part of the day. It could be in the morning, in the afternoon.

Q. About how many beverages did you purchase on a typical day when you worked at Sun Valley?

A. Exactly, I don't know. Between eight or nine.

Q. And who did you buy all of those beverages from?

A. What do you mean, from him?

Q. Did you purchase those beverages from the same people you were telling me about before or anybody else?

A. No, him, him. Just him.

Q. Agustin?

A. Agustin.

Q. Did you see any other items for sale in the kitchen at Sun Valley?

A. Yes.

Q. What else?

A. Juices, cookies, potato chips. Beer, too.

Q. Where were all those items?

A. In the fridge. Well, the drinks would be inside the fridge and the potato chips would be in a display.

Q. Where was that display?

A. In the kitchen.
Q. Potato chips were on display in the kitchen at Sun Valley?
A. Yes.
Q. Where was that display of potato chips in relation to the refrigerator you mentioned?
A. Well, almost everything was together.
Q. Did you buy juice at the kitchen in Sun Valley?
A. Yes.
Q. Do you remember how often you bought juice?
A. Almost every day.
Q. What about the beer in the kitchen in Sun Valley, did you ever buy that?
A. No.
Q. Did you see anyone else buy that beer?
A. Yes.
Q. What did you see?
A. When they buy the beer -- the brand is Victoria, I think it's called. Sometimes one at a time of the meal, but no more.
Q. Did you see who those -- who sold those beers?
A. Agustin's family.
Q. Did you see beer sold at Sun Valley any other time than during the meals?
A. Yes, later. After we finished working.

Q. What did you see at that time?
A. Well, yes, they would come out with the beers.
Q. Where did they come out from?
A. From the kitchen.
Q. Who came out from the kitchen?
A. Well, the workers.
Q. How often did you see workers come out of the kitchen with those beers?
A. Sometimes. I don't remember exactly how many times.
Q. Now, I want to ask you some questions about the way that you were paid at Sun Valley.
A. Okay.
Q. How were you paid for your work?
A. A check.
Q. And then I think you mentioned before that there were times that if you didn't pay for something in cash, you would pay for it later?
A. Yes. The thing is we would sign the check, but Agustin would cash it.
JUDGE TIMLIN: Okay, just make sure he understands that he has to say yes or no, he can't say um-hum because it won't work for the record.
THE WITNESS: Okay.
MR. GLICK: Could the court reporter repeat the last answer, please?

COURT REPORTER: Which one was it, the one prior question?

MR. GLICK: The most recent answer.

COURT REPORTER: The only thing is with my machine, I would have to go back 25 minutes and --

(Crosstalk.)

MR. GLICK: Oh, I'm sorry.

JUDGE TIMLIN: I think that the last answer that I heard was -- you were asking him about pay, he said he was paid by check and then he said that Agustin would cash it and that's when I interrupted.

MR. GLICK: Thank you, Your Honor.

BY MR. GLICK:

Q. So I understand correctly, Agustin would cash the checks?

A. Yes.

Q. What happened after that?

A. Well, from there we would have to pay for the food and if we had any pending debts for the drinks, then we would have to pay that.

Q. Now, during the time you worked at Sun Valley, did you ever leave Sun Valley to go to any stores?

A. Yes.

Q. And did you buy anything at those stores?

A. No, just for personal use.

Q. Well, did you buy something for personal use?
A. Yes.
Q. What?
A. Soap, shampoo. I don't know.
Q. Where did you buy those things?
A. We went to Wal-Mart.
Q. How did you get there?
A. We paid that worker there, who was working there, too, to take us.
Q. How much did you, personally, pay?
A. Ten dollars.
Q. And why did you pay $10 --
A. The question that you asked, personally?
Q. Did you pay $10 yourself for the ride?
A. Yes.
Q. Do you know how much the workers paid for that ride?
A. All of us, we paid $10.
Q. How do you know how much the other people paid?
A. We all went together.
Q. Did you hear them?
A. They told us that they were going to charge us the $10.
Q. Who charged the $10?
A. The guy who took us, the person who took us.
Q. Was that another worker at Sun Valley?

A. Yes.
Q. Why did you pay $10 to a worker to go to a Wal-Mart?
A. Because we didn't have another option.
Q. Did Agustin ever explain to you that there was an option to get a ride to a store?
A. No.
Q. What about a ride to the Laundromat?
A. No.
Q. How did you do your laundry at Sun Valley?
A. We had to pay to go to wash them.
Q. Did you pay to go wash your clothes?
A. Yes.
Q. How much did you pay?
A. Ten dollars.
Q. Who did you pay?
A. The person who took us, the guy that I mentioned before.
Q. How did you find that person to give you a ride?
A. There among the people, they knew him and they knew that he gave rides.
Q. I want to talk a little bit more about the housing at Sun Valley.
A. Okay.
Q. What was the housing like?
A. Well, as I mentioned before, there were rooms. Well, a kitchen was included there. It was attached. There were two rooms, there were two rooms specifically for the people -- for those of us who worked there and there were lights.

Q. Was there a refrigerator in your room?

A. No.

Q. Was there a place to store food?

A. No.

Q. Now, what about the bathrooms, were there bathrooms in or near the housing?

A. No. There were bathrooms, but they were in another place.

Q. Were they near the place where you lived?

A. Yes, they weren't too far.

Q. What were the bathrooms like?

A. They were very bad.

Q. In what way?

A. Almost always dirty. Some of them would move, they were unstable.

Q. What wasn't stable?

A. It was like they were tilted and they moved.

Q. Are you referring to a sink or a toilet or a something else?

A. The toilet.

Q. Was there hot water in the bathrooms?

A. Not always.

Q. Was there ever a time that you wanted to take a shower and there wasn't enough hot water?
A. Yes.
Q. What did you do?
A. With cold water.
Q. Now, the fields that you worked at at Sun Valley, where were they located in relation to where you lived?
A. Close to where we stayed.
Q. Did you walk from the housing to the fields or get a ride or some combination?
A. There was a combination because the fields were in sections.
Q. When you rode on a vehicle, what kind of vehicle was that?
A. It was like a school bus.
Q. What did the bus look like?
A. Yellow colored, like the kind to take kids to school.
Q. And when you rode on those buses, who drove the buses?
A. One of the same workers.
Q. How did you know that they were workers?
A. Because they would be picking with us.
Q. Did you recognize them, some -- working near them in the fields?
A. Yes.

Q. I want to ask a little bit more about who supervised you at Sun Valley.
A. Okay.
Q. I think that you mentioned that Agustin was in charge of some things?
A. I didn't understand.
Q. Was Agustin a supervisor at Sun Valley?
A. Yes.
Q. Did he supervise you?
A. Yes.
Q. Did anyone else supervise you?
A. No.
Q. Did you ever have a question that you raised to Agustin?
A. Yes.
Q. Was there anyone else that you could ask questions to?
A. No.
Q. Do you know the names of any of the owners of Sun Valley?
A. Just Russell, Russell Marino.
Q. Do you know if that was Russell Marino, Sr. or Russell Marino, Jr.?
A. Junior.
Q. How do you know that that was Russell Marino, Jr.?

A. Because on the task board there was an entry that said the names of bosses, it said Russell Marino, Jr.

Q. Did you have any interactions with Russell Marino, Jr. when you worked at Sun Valley?

A. Yes.

Q. About how often did you interact with him?

A. Just once.

Q. When was that?

A. It was the day that we went to have the meeting with Agustin. Actually, we didn't even recognize him from before, we never met him before. We just met him at that meeting.

Q. So you had a meeting with Russell Marino, Jr.? How did you end up knowing that it was -- was that a yes?

A. Yes.

Q. How did you know that it was Russell Marino, Jr. at that meeting?

A. Because Agustin said it was him.

Q. Do you know if anyone had asked to speak with Russell Marino, Jr. that day?

A. Yes.

Q. Who asked to speak with him?

A. Almost all of us.

Q. Were you part of that group?

A. Yes.

Q. Why did you ask to speak with Russell Marino, Jr.?

A. Because of the conditions we were in, because we didn't have a place to cook, because of the bathrooms, because of the way the installations were, and because of the way Agustin treated us.

Q. Did you have an opportunity to actually speak with Russell Marino, Jr. about those issues?

A. No, the opportunity didn't come.

Q. What did happen when you met with Russell Marino, Jr. that day?

A. Well, he arrived very upset, cursing.

Q. What else happened?

A. Well, we tried to explain to him -- Agustin was there, too -- about being easier on us, about the time we were spending and comparisons with people who had been there longer. But he said how is it possible, how is it possible that you can't keep up with the others?

Q. What happened next?

A. Well, we didn't talk much. He said that we weren't necessary, that he didn't need us, and there were other people with visas.

Q. What happened next?

A. Well, practically he told us he didn't need us anymore.

Q. What did you understand by that?

A. That there wasn't, there wasn't any way to continue there.

Q. After that meeting, did you continue to work at Sun Valley?

A. No.

Q. And did you end up going back to Mexico?

A. Yes.

Q. Before you went back to Mexico, did you sign any documents?

A. Sheets.

Q. Who gave you that sheet?

A. Agustin.

Q. When was that in relation to the meeting that you were talking about?

A. I don't understand that.

Q. Did Agustin give you that sheet the same day as the meeting or a different day?

A. Yes, yes.

Q. Did Agustin say anything when he gave you that sheet?

A. Yes, that we had to sign it.

Q. Did he say anything else?

A. No.

Q. Did you sign the form?

A. Yes.

Q. Before you received the form, was there anything written in or filled out already?

A. Yes, my name was on it.
Q. I'd like to turn to JX-8, page 104. Mr. Marquez Perez, I believe that in front of you is a binder. The Interpreter is turning to page JX-8, page --
THE INTERPRETER: JX-8?
MR. GLICK: JX-8, page 104. And if I may approach just to make sure we're all on the same page?
JUDGE TIMLIN: Sure.
BY MR. GLICK:
Q. So I'm going to call this document JX-8, page 104. Do you recognize this document?
A. Yes.
Q. How did you recognize JX-8, page 104?
A. This document is the paper that Agustin gave us.
Q. And did you make any marks on this paper?
A. Yes.
Q. Did you make the -- I'm going to read in English from a line where there's an X to the side. "I need to return to my home country because of personal reasons." Do you see that line?
A. Yes.
Q. And it's a little bit faint but I'm pretty sure there's an X to the left of that line.
A. Yes.
Q. Did you make that mark, that X?

A. Yes.
Q. Why did you choose that mark -- choose that line on JX-8, page 104?
A. Because he told us that that was the best option so that we wouldn't have problems and they wouldn't either.
Q. What did you understand by that?
A. Yeah, because we didn't want any problems trying to get a visa later on.
Q. And when you said that that would also avoid problems for them, what did you understand by that?
A. That that would be the end of it, that there wouldn't be any more problems.
Q. And I just want to make sure I'm clear. Who was it who was explaining that to you?
A. Agustin.
Q. Did anyone else explain anything to you about this form?
A. No.
Q. If I could ask the Interpreter to close the binder at least for now, please.
Mr. Marquez Perez, did you leave Sun Valley for personal reasons?
THE INTERPRETER: I'm sorry, I didn't catch the name.
MR. GLICK: Marquez Perez.
THE WITNESS: No.

MR. GLICK: No further questions at this time.

JUDGE TIMLIN: Okay, cross?

CROSS-EXAMINATION

BY MR. SCHULTE:

Q. Good afternoon, sir. I just have a few questions for you.

A. That's fine.

Q. At that meeting where you spoke with Russell Marino, Jr., was anyone else there on behalf of Sun Valley?

A. Only Agustin and Marino.

Q. Have you seen this man before?

A. Never.

Q. Never?

A. Never.

Q. He was not at that meeting?

A. No.

Q. How many people were at the meeting?

A. At least 19 or 20. I don't remember.

Q. And did all of the people that went to the meeting leave Sun Valley afterwards?

A. Yes, the majority did. I don't remember.

Q. Do you know how many people -- how many workers did not leave Sun Valley after that meeting?

A. No, I don't remember.

Q. Was that group about half the number? Was it a third of the number? Do you have a sense of how many people were there?

A. The majority.

Q. The majority left or the majority stayed?

A. Left.

Q. Was it roughly the same number that stayed as left or --

MR. GLICK: Objection, asked and answered.

MR. SCHULTE: No, he just said majority.

JUDGE TIMLIN: Yeah, he said majority. A majority is a majority.

BY MR. SCHULTE:

Q. Was it close to the same or were there many more that left than stayed?

A. The people that were at the meeting, the majority of us left.

Q. Right, but that group compared to the total number of people at Sun Valley, how many -- what percentage or what proportion was the group that left out of the total workforce?

A. Maybe half. I don't remember.

Q. How many workers were there when you got there?

A. In all, I don't remember exactly, no.

Q. Okay. You said that you signed a contract. Where did you sign that?

A. In Mexico.

Q. And what did you have to sign?
A. So it was related to how much we were going to earn, how much time we were going to be there, and what the -- what would we be harvesting.
Q. And where on the form would you sign the form?
A. The bottom part.
Q. Okay. Have you ever worked in the United States on other visas other than in 2015 in Sun Valley?
A. Yes.
Q. What kinds of visas?
A. H-2B.
Q. Have you ever worked on another H-2A visa?
A. No.
Q. And in which years did you work as an H-2B?
A. 2014.
Q. Any other years?
A. No.
Q. Are you on a visa now?
A. Yes.
Q. Is this 2014?
A. No.
Q. Okay. So are you working on a visa now as well?
A. Yes.
Q. What type of visa?
A. H-2B.

Q. Okay, any other years?
A. No.
Q. So you did not work in 2016?
A. 2014, I had an H-2B.
Q. Okay, in 2016?
A. 2016, no. I'm sorry, yes, that's true. Yes.
Q. I don't mean this to be complicated. I was trying to -- what type of work did you do in each of these years, in 2014, in 2016 and in this year?
MR. GLICK: Objection, relevance.
JUDGE TIMLIN: No, I'll allow it.
THE WITNESS: In 2014, it was landscaping. Did you say 2016?
MR. SCHULTE: '16.
THE WITNESS: Landscaping, also.
BY MR. SCHULTE:
Q. In 2017?
A. Landscaping.
Q. Why did you choose farm work in 2015?
A. It sounded interesting and for a little bit more money.
Q. Why haven't you done more H-2A work since then?
A. Because when they asked me -- when they offered me the H-2B, they asked if I had experience and I did for 2014.
Q. Did you ever apply for another H-2A job since then?

A. No.
Q. And is it the same employer for all three H-2B visas?
A. Yes.
Q. Is it the same all three years?
A. Um-hum.
Q. In the same place?
A. Yes.
Q. Where is that?
A. Vera Cruz.
Q. No, no, where is the last employer?
A. Can you repeat the question?
Q. Where did you work on your H-2B visa in each of those years?
A. In 2014 I was in Mississippi; 2016 and 2017 here in Pennsylvania.
Q. Okay. Did the employer in Mississippi try to hire you back?
MR. GLICK: Objection, relevance on this line of questioning.
JUDGE TIMLIN: Yeah, where are you going, Mr. Schulte?
MR. SCHULTE: I'll move on.
JUDGE TIMLIN: Okay.
BY MR. SCHULTE:
Q. You said that other than at the meeting you never spoke with Russell Marino, Jr.; is that right?

A. No.

Q. At the meeting did you say anything to him?

A. No.

Q. Did you talk with the other workers before the meeting about wanting to have a meeting?

A. Yes.

Q. What did you say?

A. I said yes. Can you repeat the question?

Q. What did you say to the other workers?

A. What I talked to the other workers about?

Q. Yes, before the meeting.

A. That we needed to talk to him and wanted to talk to him and explain -- we wanted to explain all the conditions we were working under and we wanted to know if he was informed of the conditions we were working under because we had never seen him before.

Q. Had you ever tried to tell him about the conditions before that?

A. To Russell?

Q. Right.

A. I never saw him.

Q. Did you ever ask to see him before that?

A. No.

Q. Did you ever bring these complaints to Agustin?

A. Yes.
Q. When?
A. About a week after I started working there.
Q. And how many days did you work at Sun Valley?
A. Maybe two weeks.
Q. Do you remember how many workdays that included?
A. I don't remember.
Q. The record said that you worked for six days. Does that sound right?
A. No, it was more.
Q. Every day that you worked they scanned your bar code saying that you were working, right?
A. Yes.
Q. Were there any days that you worked that they did not scan your bar code?
A. No, I don't remember.
Q. Okay. So if the computer said that you worked for six days, do you have an explanation for why that's incorrect?
MR. GLICK: Objection, personal knowledge about the computer.
MR. SCHULTE: If he worked six days --
JUDGE TIMLIN: I'm going to sustain the objection.
BY MR. SCHULTE:
Q. You talked about drinking water in the fields and you said that there were times that there was not water; is that right?

A. There were times that there was no water.

Q. Okay. Have you ever been interviewed by someone at the Department of Labor about your work at Sun Valley?

A. Yes.

Q. When was that?

A. On various occasions.

Q. What were those occasions?

A. I can't remember if it was one time last year, but it's been three, four times.

Q. Okay. Do you remember who spoke with you each time?

A. Yes.

Q. Who?

A. With Jose and with the attorneys.

Q. How many times with the attorneys?

A. Three times.

Q. How many times with just Jose?

A. Five times. I've had multiple meetings with him. Maybe more. I don't remember exactly.

Q. So eight total conversations?

A. Including his, yes.

Q. And what did you talk about with him?

A. Why we left there, what was going on and all of that.

Q. And did he call you first or did you call him?

A. He called.

Q. Did you ever complain to anyone before you spoke with him?
A. No.
Q. Did he ask you if there was water in the field?
A. Who?
Q. Jose.
A. Yes.
Q. What did you tell him?
A. Sometimes.
Q. Okay, I have a report here that he made of your interview, where you said there was water in the fields for the workers to drink. You never told him that sometimes there was not water. Why wouldn't he have written that down?
MR. GLICK: Objection, speculation.
JUDGE TIMLIN: It's a very imprecise --
MR. SCHULTE: Okay.
JUDGE TIMLIN: -- question and you have --
MR. SCHULTE: I'll try again.
JUDGE TIMLIN: Especially since he said he's spoken with Jose at least five times.
MR. GLICK: The objection also extends to why did Jose not write something down.
JUDGE TIMLIN: Right.
MR. GLICK: I'm not sure what basis this witness has for answering that question.

JUDGE TIMLIN: Right, that's why I'm saying it needs to be reformulated.

BY MR. SCHULTE:

Q. Okay, I'll try again. How many of those five conversations -- in how many of those five conversations did you tell him that the water ran out?

A. I don't remember.

Q. Okay. Did you ever tell him there was always water in the fields?

A. No.

MR. SCHULTE: Okay, Your Honor, I'm not sure how else to introduce this. I mean, we have a contemporaneous report from that time.

JUDGE TIMLIN: You can introduce it as a contemporaneous report or you can use it -- you could probably use it to refresh his recollection or you can use it as -- however you want --

MR. SCHULTE: Okay.

JUDGE TIMLIN: -- to introduce it.

(Pause.)

MR. SCHULTE: I'm sorry, Your Honor, thank you for your patience.

JUDGE TIMLIN: That's okay.

BY MR. SCHULTE:

Q. When you were working on your H-2B jobs, did you ever bring outside drinks to work?

A. On occasion, yes.

Q. When you worked in Mississippi, would you drink Gatorade?

A. Yes.

Q. Was it very hot there?

A. Yes.

Q. Was water provided?

A. Yes.

Q. But you still drank Gatorade?

A. Yes.

Q. Why?

A. Sometimes you don't feel like drinking water, you want to drink something different.

Q. Fair enough. When you arrived at Sun Valley, were you taken to get a Social Security card?

A. I already had it with me.

Q. Okay. Did Agustin tell you that there would be a bus or a van to take workers to go do laundry?

A. No.

Q. Do you remember what day of the week you went to Wal-Mart?

A. No.

Q. Did you buy any food there?

A. No.

Q. Did you ever ask to use the refrigerator?
A. No.
Q. Did you ask to use the stove?
A. No.
Q. Microwave?
A. No.
Q. What were the specific items that you wanted to tell Russell Marino at the meeting?
A. That we needed a place to cook, and that the bathrooms were not good, and as far as work, we needed more time to learn how to harvest asparagus. And also about the transportation, that we needed transportation to go do our laundry and buy things.
Q. At that meeting, was this man at the meeting?
A. No.
Q. Was Russell Marino, Jr.'s father at the meeting?
A. No.
Q. Did anyone from the Marino family ask the workers to stay in order to pick asparagus?
A. No.
Q. Did they ask you to stay for any reason?
A. No.
Q. Does asparagus grow quickly?
A. Yes.
Q. How often do you have to harvest it?

A. Daily.
Q. What happens if you don't?
A. I don't know, I guess it goes to waste.
Q. Had you ever worked in asparagus before that summer?
A. No.
Q. You said that someone told you that there were more -- other people with visas. Who said that?
THE INTERPRETER: Could you repeat the question?
MR. SCHULTE: Yeah, sorry.
BY MR. SCHULTE:
Q. Did someone tell you that there were other people with visas?
A. I don't understand the question.
Q. Okay, I might've misheard. So how many people left after the meeting?
A. I don't know the exact number. The majority.
Q. The majority of the people at the meeting or the majority of the workers total?
MR. GLICK: Objection, asked and answered.
JUDGE TIMLIN: He can answer.
THE WITNESS: The majority of the people in the meeting.
BY MR. SCHULTE:
Q. Okay. But you also testified that it was roughly half of the total workforce, right?

A. I don't understand the question.
Q. The workers who left after the meeting, was that about half of the workforce, total?
A. In general, all of them?
Q. Yes.
A. Yes. I don't know how many more --
Q. Do you think it would be easier or harder for them to complete their work with 19 workers leaving?
MR. GLICK: Objection, assumes facts not in evidence. There's no testimony that work was completed in the absence of particular workers.
JUDGE TIMLIN: I'll allow it.
THE WITNESS: Would you please repeat the question?
BY MR. SCHULTE:
Q. Sure. Would it have been harder or easier for Sun Valley to harvest vegetables without 19 workers there?
A. It would be harder.
MR. SCHULTE: Okay. No further questions.
JUDGE TIMLIN: Any redirect?
MR. GLICK: Briefly, Your Honor.

REDIRECT EXAMINATION

BY MR. GLICK:
Q. Mr. Marquez Perez, did you have any experience working in agriculture before you went to work at Sun Valley?
A. Yes.

Q. What kind of experience?
A. In the fields we cultivate corn, beans, chiles.
Q. What was that work like?
A. The beans and the chile peppers, it's about the same/ It has to be like the asparagus, you have to be bent over.
Q. So you have experience working bent over?
A. Yes.
Q. Were you willing to remain at Sun Valley working bent over?
A. Yes.
Q. Did you have the opportunity to keep working at Sun Valley after that meeting with Russell Marino, Jr.?
A. My understanding was no.
MR. GLICK: I have no further questions.
JUDGE TIMLIN: Any recross?
MR. SCHULTE: Yes, please, Your Honor.

RECROSS-EXAMINATION

BY MR. SCHULTE:
Q. Did anyone ever say you were fired, you must leave?
A. Well, Agustin.
Q. What did he say?
A. That we were not working out, so they were going to ask for other people with visas.
Q. That's not what I asked. Did anyone ever say you were fired, you must leave?

A. There wasn't anyone else.
Q. No, we'll try this one more time. Did anyone ever tell you you were fired, you may not work here anymore, you must leave?
A. No.
Q. Okay. If the work were easier would you have stayed on?
A. Depends.
Q. If the bathrooms were cleaner?
A. It would depend on what agreement we could make with the boss.
Q. Okay. And you said that no one told you which box to check on the form, right?
MR. GLICK: Objection, misstates testimony.
JUDGE TIMLIN: I don't know whether it misstates his testimony. What I do know is that it's beyond the scope of the redirect, but --
MR. GLICK: Your Honor, it's also outside the scope of the redirect.
MR. SCHULTE: That's fine.
JUDGE TIMLIN: Yeah.
MR. SCHULTE: He said what he said. Okay, that's all I have.
JUDGE TIMLIN: Is that it for -- okay, let's see what I've got. When you started testifying, you were talking about being paid by the hour or being paid by contract and you said that by contract meant what was done through the course of the day. Are you trying to say that by contract means that you would get paid based on how much gets picked?

THE WITNESS: When we arrived, we were under the understanding that it was per hour. But then when we got there, Agustin said that we would be working under contract and he never did clear up what we were doing.

JUDGE TIMLIN: And did the contract that you signed say anything about the number of hours that you would be working?

THE WITNESS: No.

JUDGE TIMLIN: Okay. But it did say how much you would be paid for each hour that you worked?

THE WITNESS: Yes.

JUDGE TIMLIN: And Agustin set the hours that you would work each day?

THE WITNESS: Yes, I guess so.

JUDGE TIMLIN: Was it just Agustin's wife and her brother who were doing the cooking?

THE WITNESS: Yes, there was no one else.

JUDGE TIMLIN: So just the two people?

THE WITNESS: Yes.

JUDGE TIMLIN: How did you know that they were Agustin's wife and her brother?

THE WITNESS: The workers that had been there longer said that.

JUDGE TIMLIN: Okay. Does he still have Joint Exhibit 8, page 104?

THE INTERPRETER: The binder's closed, Your Honor.

JUDGE TIMLIN: Okay, can you just find that? It's page 104 of Joint Exhibit 8. It's the one that we looked at before.

THE INTERPRETER: That was the other interpreter --

JUDGE TIMLIN: Oh, sorry.

THE INTERPRETER: That's all right. Okay.

JUDGE TIMLIN: Okay, okay. This paper, Agustin gave you this paper?

THE WITNESS: Yes.

JUDGE TIMLIN: Was Mr. Russell Marino, Jr. in the room when you were given this paper?

THE WITNESS: No.

JUDGE TIMLIN: Okay.

THE WITNESS: He had left.

JUDGE TIMLIN: Was some of this paper already filled out before you got it?

THE WITNESS: Yes.

JUDGE TIMLIN: Okay. What parts did you fill out?

THE WITNESS: My signature and the X.

JUDGE TIMLIN: Okay. After this meeting, did you think that you could have stayed on to continue working?

THE WITNESS: After the paper?

JUDGE TIMLIN: No, after the meeting. Before the paper.

THE WITNESS: No.

JUDGE TIMLIN: Why not?

THE WITNESS: He said we weren't working out for him.

JUDGE TIMLIN: And by "he," you mean Agustin?

THE WITNESS: Agustin, and Russell were there.

JUDGE TIMLIN: Okay. Well, who said you weren't working out?

THE WITNESS: Agustin was translating.

JUDGE TIMLIN: Ah. The work that you were doing before with corn and beans and chiles, was that in Mexico?

THE WITNESS: Yes.

JUDGE TIMLIN: Okay. Okay, did that bring up anything, Mr. Glick?

MR. GLICK: Nothing for me, Your Honor.

JUDGE TIMLIN: Mr. Schulte?

MR. SCHULTE: Just a couple, Your Honor.

JUDGE TIMLIN: Sure.

FURTHER RECROSS-EXAMINATION

BY MR. SCHULTE:

Q. When Agustin spoke to you, was he translating for what Russell had said or was he speaking for himself?

A. Who? I did not understand the question.
Q. There was only two people there. When Agustin said to you that you weren't working out, was he speaking for himself or was he translating something that Russell said in English?
A. Something that Russell had said.
Q. Did Russell speak to you in Spanish?
A. No.
Q. At all?
A. After that, he said he was sorry.
Q. That was the only thing -- those are the only two words he said in Spanish?
A. That I remember, yes.
Q. That whole meeting he only said two words in Spanish?
A. He was sorry that he had arrived and he was so upset and he was apologizing for that. I don't remember anything else.
Q. And he said that in Spanish?
A. Yes.
Q. But nothing else?
A. Not that I remember.
Q. Okay. Can you go to Tab JX-1 in that binder, please? Is that the contract that you saw when you were in Mexico?
THE INTERPRETER: The first page?
MR. SCHULTE: Any of it, the whole exhibit.

THE INTERPRETER: All these pages of the contract?
MR. SCHULTE: Um-hum.
BY MR. SCHULTE:
Q. Well, let me go back. Do you recognize that? Have you ever seen that document before?
A. I don't remember.
Q. You don't remember if you've seen it or you don't remember the document?
A. I don't remember the document.
Q. What did the document look like that you signed?
A. It was similar to this, but a lot less pages.
Q. Okay. If you'd go to page 12. Does that explain what the different piece rates were for different types of crops?
MR. GLICK: Objection. I'm not sure what the foundation is.
JUDGE TIMLIN: Well, I think -- no, I think he's coming off of my questions about the -- what it meant to be paid by contract, so the objection's overruled.
MR. GLICK: Maybe if he can be fair about where the witness' attention is directed, particularly because this document is in English.
JUDGE TIMLIN: Right, that's a good point.
Mr. Schulte, if you could point him to where you want him to look at.

BY MR. SCHULTE:

Q. Sure. The table with the dollar amounts, does that explain a commodity and a rate and the number of units?

MR. GLICK: Just continuing this line of objection, is there something that could be translated for the witness?

MR. SCHULTE: Maybe we can explain it quickly. He doesn't need to. The idea of being paid on the fixed hourly rate as opposed to the piece rate, it says in the paragraph above the table here, that to the extent that the piece rate packing -- or the pick rate is not sufficient to get him above the AEWR, then they would be paid a flat AEWR.

JUDGE TIMLIN: Right, okay. I understand that and that's certainly an argument that you can make with respect to when we're talking about the contract. I don't know if he is the witness that you're going to --

MR. SCHULTE: Okay, he expressed --

JUDGE TIMLIN: Because he doesn't speak -- I mean, because I don't know that he can actually read this and understand what it says because it's in English.

MR. GLICK: I would also point out that there's not been foundation that this is a document that the witness has seen before or signed.

MR. SCHULTE: This is the document that would've been provided as part of the recruitment in Mexico. It's his Form 790 that's filed with the Department.

JUDGE TIMLIN: Okay, but he -- I mean, the only thing that I remember -- I mean, the only thing that he has said about this document is that he doesn't remember this document and that it has less pages than the one he signed, so that makes it difficult for you to ask further questions about it.

MR. SCHULTE: Okay, fair enough. But the rates would be identical in whatever form, but this was the form that was provided in Mexico, whether he remembers it or not.

JUDGE TIMLIN: Okay.

MR. GLICK: That's an assertion by counsel, but there's not a foundation for it through this witness.

JUDGE TIMLIN: Right. Well, either you guys are going to have to tell me that you agree that -- you're going to have to have some kind of stipulation that you agree that this is the contract that was provided to everybody or you're going to have to bring in a witness who's going to testify that this was the contract that everyone had. But in any event, this is not the right guy.

MR. SCHULTE: That's fine. Then we're all set. Nothing further.

JUDGE TIMLIN: Okay. Did that bring up anything for you?

MR. GLICK: Give me one moment.

(Pause.)

MR. GLICK: Nothing further from the Administrator.

JUDGE TIMLIN: Okay, okay. Thank you, Mr. Marquez Perez, for coming in and testifying today. You are excused from the hearing, so you can leave. I will ask, because this hearing is going to go on for a few more days that you not discuss your testimony with anyone else who might be a witness in this case, until the hearing is over.

THE WITNESS: Okay.

(Witness excused.)

JUDGE TIMLIN: Okay, great. Thank you. Let's go off the record for a minute.

(Briefly off the record.)

JUDGE TIMLIN: So let me come somewhere where she can see me.

UNIDENTIFIED SPEAKER: I can move the camera to the corner --

JUDGE TIMLIN: Oh, you can move the camera.

UNIDENTIFIED SPEAKER: Yes.

JUDGE TIMLIN: Okay, so I can stay where I am.

UNIDENTIFIED SPEAKER: Yes.

JUDGE TIMLIN: And I'll yell, I guess. Can I have the translator give me her name, please?

MR. HEYMAN-KANTOR: Can you give us your name, Interpreter?

MS. GARCIA: Sure. My name is Maria Teresa Garcia.

MR. HEYMAN-KANTOR: There may be another interpreter

there.

JUDGE TIMLIN: Okay. Ms. Garcia, is there any other translator there with you?

MR. HEYMAN-KANTOR: Is there any other interpreter with you?

MS. GARCIA: Yes, there is.

JUDGE TIMLIN: Okay. And can you put your name on the record?

MR. HEYMAN-KANTOR: Should I bring this to you?

JUDGE TIMLIN: I think maybe I'm better to come to you. Leave the phone where it is. Right, okay. And can the second interpreter put her name on the record?

MS. DE LA GARMA: Yes, my name is Marcela de la Garma. My surname is spelled d-e, l-a, G-a-r-m-a.

JUDGE TIMLIN: Okay. Can I have you both raise your right hand, please?

Whereupon,

MARIA GARCIA and MARCELA DE LA GARMA

were first duly sworn to interpret the questions from English into Spanish and the answers from Spanish into English to the best of their knowledge and ability.

JUDGE TIMLIN: Okay. So now we need the -- obviously, my back is to the camera, so it's very weird, right? So I should move this way?

UNIDENTIFIED SPEAKER: Yes.

JUDGE TIMLIN: Okay. So we need the witness to stand and raise his right hand. I'm sorry.

UNIDENTIFIED SPEAKER: No, if you step back, Your Honor.

JUDGE TIMLIN: If I step back, can he hear?

UNIDENTIFIED SPEAKER: Let's try.

JUDGE TIMLIN: Okay. Okay.

Whereupon,

JOSE MANUEL BALTAZAR CHEGUEZ

was called as a witness by and on behalf of the Plaintiff, and after having been first duly sworn, was examined and testified as follows:

JUDGE TIMLIN: Okay, please tell him he has to answer yes or no, he cannot nod his head because we're going to have a written transcript.

THE WITNESS: Yes.

JUDGE TIMLIN: Okay. All right, your witness. Go ahead.

DIRECT EXAMINATION

BY MR. HEYMAN-KANTOR:

Q. Okay, can you please state your name for the record?

A. Jose Manuel Baltazar Cheguez.

Q. And did you work for a company called Sun Valley Orchards?

A. Yes.

Q. When?
A. I don't remember very well, but it seems like it was two years ago.
Q. How long did you work there?
A. One month and a half, approximately.
Q. And did you work on an H-2A visa?
A. Yes.
Q. How did you find out about the position?
A. By news of a contractor.
Q. Did you end up working at Sun Valley?
THE INTERPRETER: Would you repeat that for me, please?
BY MR. HEYMAN-KANTOR:
Q. I'd like to talk to you a little bit about your work at Sun Valley. What was your work like?
A. We picked asparagus and we planted cucumbers and sweet peppers.
Q. Anything else?
A. And we harvested peaches.
Q. Before working at Sun Valley, did you have any experience doing agricultural work?
A. Yes.
Q. Can you tell us about that experience?
A. Working in the fields picking and harvesting.
Q. What kind of crops did you work on before Sun Valley?

A. Corn, sweet potatoes, and watermelon.
Q. Did you pick any asparagus?
A. Yes, at the farm.
Q. And how much time -- how much experience did you have working in agriculture before working at Sun Valley?
A. Since I was little I always worked with my family in the farm.
Q. Now, when you worked at Sun Valley did you have a supervisor?
A. Yes.
Q. And what was his name?
A. Agustin.
Q. What was he like?
A. He was short, white, and dark hair.
Q. What was he like as a supervisor?
A. Bad.
Q. How so?
A. He did not treat us well and he was always threatening us he'd send us back to Mexico and stuff like that.
Q. And did he have any -- did he ever criticize your work in the fields?
THE INTERPRETER: Would you repeat that for me?
BY MR. HEYMAN-KANTOR:
Q. Yes. Did he ever criticize the work that was happening in the fields?

A. Yes.
Q. What did he say?
A. For example, when we were working at our own rhythm, he would want us to work faster.
Q. What hours did you work at Sun Valley?
A. Twelve hours a day.
Q. From what time to what time?
A. From 5:00 to 5:00, 6:00 to 6:00, 7:00 to 7:00.
Q. Who decided the hours?
A. Agustin.
Q. Could you work less?
THE INTERPRETER: Would you repeat that for me?
BY MR. HEYMAN-KANTOR:
Q. Could you work fewer hours?
A. No.
Q. Were there bathrooms in the fields?
A. No.
Q. How did you go to the bathroom in the fields?
A. We couldn't do anything. We had to wait until we were finished because we couldn't leave the field at all.
Q. Was there drinking water in the fields?
A. No. He had an icebox and he would sell to us Coke or Gatorade or Monster.
Q. Were any other drinks sold in the fields?
A. Only those. And crackers and cookies and cakes.

Q. I'd like to turn back to that in a moment, but first I want to ask you a little bit about how you ate at Sun Valley.

A. Sure.

Q. How did you eat at Sun Valley?

A. He would sell -- sell lunch to us and in the morning, he would sell to us sweet bread or sweet rolls and coffee.

Q. And who is "he"?

THE INTERPRETER: Would you repeat that for me?

BY MR. HEYMAN-KANTOR:

Q. Who is "he"?

A. Agustin.

Q. Did he or anyone -- you know, how was this arrangement with the meals explained to you?

A. No one explained this to us. We wanted to have a way to purchase our own food so that we could prepare it for ourselves, but we didn't have that and he just --

Q. So how much did the meals cost?

A. We paid by the week. Approximately 75 U.S. per week just for the meals.

Q. And what meals did that include?

A. The coffee and the sweet rolls in the morning and lunch.

Q. What about dinner?

A. We didn't want to eat because it was the same food.

Q. Was dinner offered to you?

THE INTERPRETER: Would you repeat that for me?
BY MR. HEYMAN-KANTOR:
Q. Was dinner offered to you?
A. Yes.
Q. And was there water available to drink at the meals?
A. No, we had to purchase soft drinks.
Q. Did you have a choice about whether to participate in this meal plan?
THE INTERPRETER: I'm sorry, the connection is very poor and sometimes -- would you repeat your question, please?
BY MR. HEYMAN-KANTOR:
Q. Did you have a choice about whether to participate in the meals, in the meal plan?
A. No, there was no other choice, you would have to. There was not other food.
Q. Why didn't you cook your own food?
A. We didn't have a stove, we didn't have anything.
Q. Why didn't you use the stoves in the kitchen?
A. We were not allowed to.
Q. So what drinks were available to purchase during the meals?
A. Coke, Gatorade, bottled water, and some soft drinks.
Q. You previously talked about how drinks were sold in the fields. What drinks were sold in the fields?
A. Gatorade, Coke, Monster.

Q. Anything else?
A. That's it.
Q. What were the prices of these drinks?
A. I don't remember very well, but for Coke, it was in a can and it was two or three, and Gatorade, it was three U.S.
Q. What about Monster?
A. It was a bit more expensive. I think it was like five.
Q. What about the bottled water?
A. One U.S.
Q. Were there any other soft drinks sold?
A. Not that I remember.
Q. I'd like to walk through a typical day at the farm to get an understanding of when you would drink or purchase these drinks. So when would you have your first drink in a typical day?
A. We would start working early in the morning and then by around 10:00, we were already very tired and the sun was out and it was hot and warm and we were thirsty. And we would continue working until noon and then we would ask him to allow us to stop for a bit, and then when he would drive in his truck and that's when we could purchase the Coke or the Gatorade if we wanted to. We didn't have to pay right away. He would have a --
Q. So you'd drink at 10:00 a.m. and you'd drink at noon.

Did you have any other drinks during this typical day?

A. Yes. Also in the afternoon about 4:00, we'd buy one more.

Q. And any others during this typical day?

A. That would be it.

Q. Okay. So what was going on -- sorry, what would be going on during your day at 10:00 a.m., was there a break or were you just working in the fields at that time?

A. Well, I was working on the fields.

Q. And what about at noon?

A. That was lunchtime, so that's when you could buy a soft drink.

Q. And at 4:00 p.m., was that a break during work, a short break or were you working?

A. No, it was a break that I would take on my own to rehydrate myself.

Q. After you ended work, would you typically have a drink after work ended?

A. I asked them to take me to Wal-Mart so that I could purchase like a case of bottled water and I put that at my bed and that's what I drank in the evening.

Q. So how many drinks would you have in total that you purchased from Agustin during a typical day?

A. Three to four.

Q. And typically, how many of these would be -- could you say what types of drinks these would typically be, like the number of Gatorades, for example?

THE INTERPRETER: Do you want to re-ask the question?

BY MR. HEYMAN-KANTOR:

Q. Yes. Could you say what types of drinks you'd drink in a typical day, for example, the number of Gatorades you drank in a day?

A. Maybe two Gatorades, one Coke, one Coke during lunchtime.

Q. And what about how many Monsters in a typical day?

A. One.

Q. Now, what about your coworkers, did they also purchase drinks?

A. Of course, they would.

Q. Did they typically buy more drinks than you or fewer drinks or the same number?

A. I do not know how many they bought.

Q. Did you feel that yours was a typical amount or unusually high or unusually low?

A. I think it was the average number of drinks.

Q. Could you store drinks in the refrigerators in the kitchen?

A. No.

Q. Why not?

A. Because the refrigerator was where the -- store. We didn't have any access to that store.

Q. Where was the store located?

A. It was in the field. Right where our rooms were, the store was right there.

Q. And what else was sold at this store other than the -- if anything, other than the items we talked about?

A. They also sold beer.

Q. Anything else?

A. Cookies, chips.

Q. Anything else?

A. And cigarettes.

Q. Do you know how much the cigarettes were?

A. They were $10 a package.

Q. Did you purchase any cigarettes?

A. Yes, I did.

Q. How often?

A. I would buy a couple of cigarettes a day, maybe.

Q. And how many cigarettes are in those packets?

A. Twenty cigarettes.

Q. Did you purchase any cookies?

A. Yes.

Q. How much did those cost?

A. To be honest, I do not recall how much they were.

Q. How about the chips, did you purchase any chips?

A. I did.

Q. How much did those cost?
A. I would even buy instant noodle soup.
Q. And so you mentioned beer, cigarettes, cookies, chips, sodas, soup. Anything else that was sold there?
A. And of course, they would sell our meals to us there.
Q. Where were the meals sold in relation to the store?
A. Right there at the store, in the front of the store they had a kitchen.
Q. All right. Now, you mentioned chips. Do you remember how much the chips cost?
A. I don't remember.
Q. How about the soup?
A. I don't remember.
Q. Now, earlier you said you purchased some water from Wal-Mart. How did you get to Wal-Mart?
A. There were some guys that worked for him and they would drive us in the cars and it would cost us $10 to go to Wal-Mart.
Q. And was there any free transportation provided to go to a store when you were at Sun Valley?
A. No.
Q. What else did you purchase at Wal-Mart, if anything, besides water?
A. Toilet paper, toothpaste, things for my personal use.
Q. Why did you purchase toilet paper?

A. Because when the company doesn't keep -- didn't have any toilet paper in the bathroom. I would also buy soap.

Q. Was there soap available at Sun Valley?

A. No.

Q. During your time at Sun Valley, did you ever speak -- did you ever have -- how many times during your time at Sun Valley did you speak with the Marinos?

A. All the time that I was there.

Q. When was the first time that you spoke to Russell Marino, Jr.?

A. One day that we wanted things, because we wanted to talk with him, but I cannot remember exactly what date it was.

Q. Before that day, did you ever speak to Russell Marino, Jr.?

A. No. We only talked to Mr. Agustin.

Q. So tell me about that day that you spoke to Russell Marino, Jr. What happened?

A. Well, he arrived to the place where we were staying at the company and he started screaming and yelling in an arrogant way, and he asked us why we didn't want to work and he stated that he paid a lot of money for us.

Q. And what else was said?

A. We couldn't really understand what he was saying because he started speaking in English and he started talking to Agustin, instead.

Q. Was anything else said at the meeting?
A. Well, Mr. Agustin would say that we didn't want to work, and it's the opposite; we wanted to work, but we were not being treated as we should be treated.
Q. What was wrong with the treatment?
THE INTERPRETER: Sorry, could you repeat the question?
BY MR. HEYMAN-KANTOR:
Q. What was wrong with the treatment?
A. I'm not sure why Mr. Agustin wanted us to rush when it came to producing for him, because he would bring back some of my coworkers and he was saying that he was going to send them back to Mexico.
Q. And what do you mean by send back? Was that a punishment or was he giving people a break or what was that?
A. He was threatening us.
Q. And why would he send workers back?
A. I guess he wanted us to be really fast when it came to our producing, he didn't want us to stay behind and we told him we are not animals. He wanted us to rush and run through the fields, but we were going to work at our own pace. We are not perfect.
Q. Now, did you or any of the workers explain, at this meeting, what you were unhappy with?
A. Yes, we said that to Agustin so that Agustin would translate that to Mr. Russell, but I'm not sure whether he said that or not because we were not able to understand English.

Q. Did Agustin translate anything to all of you?

A. He just said that Mr. Russell had said that in order for us not to have any problems, we needed to sign a paper for us to go back to Mexico and the paper said that we were returning because a family member had had an accident and that was for us not to be in trouble and for him also not to get in trouble.

Q. So after this meeting concluded, what happened next?

A. Well, we just stayed there and he said that he was going to get the papers, but Mr. Russell never came back with the paper, it was Mr. Agustin who came back with the paper, and the papers were already signed.

Q. Who were they signed by?

A. Russell.

Q. And what did the paper say?

A. It said that we were resigning from Sun Valley company because a family member had died. It had different options for us to choose from.

Q. There should be a folder near you marked JX-8, page 92. Do you see a folder with that on it?

A. Yes.

Q. Can you open that folder? Now, do you have it open?

A. Yes.

Q. Now, next to the -- is that your signature on the page?
A. Yes.
Q. Is this the paper that you were referring to earlier?
A. Yes.
Q. Did you check where it says "I need to return to my home country because a family member is sick or injured or has died"?
A. Yes.
Q. Okay. Now, was a family member sick at that time?
A. No, nobody was sick. We just signed this paper so that we didn't have any problems when we returned back.
Q. All right. Now, how soon did you get this paper -- how much time passed between the meeting and your receipt of this paper?
A. This document was brought to us after the meeting, not during the meeting, but after the meeting, and I don't remember exactly how many days after the meeting we got the paper.
Q. All right. So when you went into that meeting -- I mean, would you have been willing to stay and keep working?
A. Of course.
Q. What if the working conditions were going to stay the same, would you have continued to work there?
A. Yes, because we had a six-month contract and we had to stay to finish that, but unfortunately, this happened.

Q. Why did you want to stay?

A. Because I had a six-month contract.

Q. Now, what about your coworkers, did they want to stay and keep working or did they want to leave?

A. Every one of us wanted to stay. We all wanted to stay.

MR. HEYMAN-KANTOR: I have no further questions at this time.

JUDGE TIMLIN: Okay. Do you guys want to switch so you can do cross?

MR. SCHULTE: Can you see me okay? Can you hear me?

THE INTERPRETER: Yes.

CROSS-EXAMINATION

BY MR. SCHULTE:

Q. I just have a few questions for you. Good afternoon. You said that everyone in your group wanted to stay; is that right?

A. Yes.

Q. And how many people were in that group?

A. I cannot remember.

Q. Ten people, a hundred people? A rough estimate.

A. Maybe around 20.

Q. Okay. Were those all of the workers at Sun Valley at that time?

A. Under a visa, it was approximately 20, 22 -- 20 persons. But there were also illegal workers.

MR. SCHULTE: Okay, I object; it was nonresponsive.

BY MR. SCHULTE:

Q. But how many U.S. workers were there, non-visa workers?

A. U.S. workers or the non-U.S. workers?

Q. The non-visa workers. The workers not there on a visa.

A. There was another group of workers without a visa, maybe 20, 27 people.

Q. So just to make sure I have the math right, so you said there were about 20 workers in your group. All of them had visas, right?

A. Yes.

Q. Okay. And you said there were about 27 visa workers total at the farm, right?

A. No, that's not what I said. I said there were 20-something workers with a visa and 20-something workers working illegally.

Q. Okay. So after your group of about 20 workers left, how many visa workers were left, were remaining at Sun Valley?

THE INTERPRETER: Sorry, would you repeat that question?

MR. SCHULTE: Sure, sorry about that.

BY MR. SCHULTE:

Q. Other than your group of 20 workers with visas, how many other visa workers were there?

A. Without a visa?

Q. No, with a visa.

A. It was only us.

Q. So all of the visa workers were in the group?

A. Yes.

Q. And you all left after the meeting?

A. We stayed there for two days, approximately --

Q. Okay. And after two days when you left, there were no visa workers left at the farm?

A. I'm not sure.

Q. But all of the visa workers were in your group at the meeting?

A. Yes.

Q. And all of the workers who were at the meeting left?

A. I'm not sure. As I said, me and my coworkers, we left. But I'm not sure if some of us stayed and continued to work or if they also left.

Q. Okay, but there were some who had visas who did not leave with you?

THE INTERPRETER: I'm sorry, would you repeat that question?

BY MR. SCHULTE:

Q. There were workers who had visas who did not leave with your group?

THE INTERPRETER: Would you please repeat that question?

BY MR. SCHULTE:

Q. There were workers at Sun Valley with visas who did not leave with your group?

A. I left with a group of people, but since not all of us would fit in the truck, some of us remained there, but I'm not sure whether they left or if they stayed there.

Q. How many people were in the group that did not fit in the truck?

A. The ones that remained, I'm not sure.

Q. Ten, twenty, five? How many?

A. Maybe 10.

Q. Okay. So what happens if you don't pick asparagus every day?

A. What happens if you don't pick asparagus every day or what do you mean, in terms of the company or of the work or --

Q. In terms of the asparagus and then in terms of the company.

A. If you don't pick asparagus during one day, it starts growing because of the sun.

Q. And if it keeps growing and no one cuts it, what happens to it?

A. Well, it goes soft. The crop is no good, but you still have one specific size.

Q. And then what happens to the company?

THE INTERPRETER: Could you repeat that question?

BY MR. SCHULTE:

Q. And then what would happen to the company?

MR. HEYMAN-KANTOR: Objection, vague.

JUDGE TIMLIN: It's overruled.

THE WITNESS: They'd lose it.

BY MR. SCHULTE:

Q. Okay. Did anyone tell you to check the box for -- that you had a sick family member?

A. Agustin said that we didn't have any problems. That's what he told us.

Q. Okay. Did he tell all of the workers the same thing?

A. I'm just speaking for myself because I asked him and he told me that I should choose that option so that I didn't have any problems when I wanted to come back to the U.S. and work for another company. That's what he said to me and I --

Q. What was your concern with checking a different box?

A. Well, we didn't have any concerns. He was just guiding us and we did it out of fear because we were afraid that we couldn't go back to the U.S. and work.

Q. What were you afraid of? Why do you think that would happen?

A. That maybe we could not be able to come back to the U.S. and work.

Q. Why not?

THE INTERPRETER: We're switching interpreters.

MR. SCHULTE: Okay, sorry.

(Pause.)

BY MR. SCHULTE:

Q. Why wouldn't you be able to come back to the U.S.?

A. Because we were afraid. He had told us before, he had told us that we had to so that we could go to Mexico because our family member got sick or died.

Q. Okay. Had you ever worked on an H-2 visa other than in 2015?

A. No.

Q. Have you worked on an H-2A or H-2B visa since 2015?

A. No.

Q. Had any of the other workers in your group worked on an H-2A before?

MR. HEYMAN-KANTOR: Objection, calls for speculation and --

MR. SCHULTE: If he knows.

THE WITNESS: I don't know that.

MR. SCHULTE: Okay, problem solved.

JUDGE TIMLIN: Yes. Sometimes it works out that way.

BY MR. SCHULTE:

Q. Did any of the other workers in the group speak with anyone outside the group other than Agustin about how to complete the form?

MR. HEYMAN-KANTOR: Objection, calls for speculation.

BY MR. SCHULTE:

Q. If you know.

THE INTERPRETER: Should I translate?

MR. SCHULTE: Please.

JUDGE TIMLIN: Yes.

THE WITNESS: No, just Agustin.

BY MR. SCHULTE:

Q. Okay. You said that you were there for about a month and a half; is that right?

A. Yes.

Q. When did you arrive there?

A. I think it was during the month of April, but I don't remember the date.

Q. Was it late in the month of April, the beginning of the month? You know, roughly.

A. Maybe during the middle of April.

Q. Okay. On the form that you have in front of you, what's the date that appears on that form?

THE INTERPRETER: Do you want me to read or do you want to --

MR. SCHULTE: For him to read and then if you could interpret his answer.

THE WITNESS: It says 5/6/15, but I wrote it backwards. I wrote --

THE INTERPRETER: I can explain that, if I may.

MR. SCHULTE: Please. Please, yes.

THE INTERPRETER: What happens is that in the United States you spell the date month, day, and year, and in Mexico we start the date day, month, and year. So that's what he means, that's why he says it's backwards, because it says 5/6. So in Spanish is that it says -- I don't know if I made that clear for you.

MR. SCHULTE: That did. Thank you.

BY MR. SCHULTE:

Q. Do you believe you signed that form on May 6th or on June 5th?

A. We do it differently in Mexico than in the United States.

Q. Okay, the same question. Did you sign the form in May or did you sign the form in June?

A. I don't remember.

Q. Was it near Cinco de Mayo? Do you remember if it was near a holiday or is there something that would help you remember?

A. No, I can't remember.

Q. Okay. Did you ever ask Agustin if you could put something in the refrigerator?

A. No, never.

Q. Did you ever ask Russell Marino?

A. No.

Q. Did you ever ask anyone if you could use a stove?

A. No, we were not going to eat in -- if we would ask for it we were sure that they were going to say no, because that was -- we couldn't, you know, do our own cooking there.

Q. But you never asked, you never tried to find out, did you?

A. No.

Q. How many stoves were there in the kitchen?

THE INTERPRETER: Would you repeat that for me, please?

MR. SCHULTE:

BY MR. SCHULTE:

Q. Of course. How many stoves were in the kitchen?

A. I don't remember.

Q. How many refrigerators?

A. Maybe around three.

Q. Other than Agustin and Russell Marino, was anyone else from the Marino family at the meeting?

A. No.

Q. Did Russell speak Spanish to you at the meeting?

A. Just when he came in yelling.

Q. He was yelling in Spanish?
A. Yes.
Q. And then after that he only spoke English?
A. In English --
Q. Okay. Did Russell give you the form to sign?
A. No, Agustin gave it to me.
Q. Did Russell tell you how to fill out the form?
A. No, Agustin did.
Q. What was it that you wanted from the meeting? What was the goal?
A. That we could work at a pace.
Q. And if he had given you that, would you have kept working?
A. If we had accepted the paper or what, what do you mean?
Q. No, no. If he had let you work at a pace you were more comfortable with, would you have kept working there?
A. Of course, that's all we wanted.
MR. SCHULTE: Okay. No more questions for me. Thank you.
JUDGE TIMLIN: Any redirect?
MR. HEYMAN-KANTOR: No. No, Your Honor.
JUDGE TIMLIN: Okay, so I have --
MR. SCHULTE: I won't trade seats, but I could hop back here if it's --

JUDGE TIMLIN: Well, maybe we can bring the phone over here.

MR. SCHULTE: Will it reach you?

MR. HEYMAN-KANTOR: Yeah. We can try.

(Crosstalk.)

JUDGE TIMLIN: Yeah. Yes, turn the camera.

UNIDENTIFIED SPEAKER: Do you need the microphones over here?

JUDGE TIMLIN: I've got a couple. Okay, Mr. Baltazar, I have a couple questions. I know that you said that you paid a certain amount of money, about $75 U.S., for your meals.

THE INTERPRETER: My apologies, Your Honor, but I can hardly hear you.

JUDGE TIMLIN: Okay, let me get closer. Is this better? Is this better?

THE INTERPRETER: That's much better, Your Honor.

JUDGE TIMLIN: Okay. I know you said you paid about $75 a week for your meals. Did that amount change if you did not eat dinner?

THE WITNESS: No, that was the fee for meals per week to everyone.

JUDGE TIMLIN: Okay. And the reason you did not eat the dinner is because it was the same food that you had had for lunch? Okay. Is the reason you did not want the dinners because the food was the same food you had at lunch?

THE WITNESS: Yes. I would rather buy instant noodle soup.

JUDGE TIMLIN: You talked about the store. Whose store was it? Okay. Who had the store, who owned the store?

THE WITNESS: Mr. Agustin.

JUDGE TIMLIN: How does he know that?

THE WITNESS: Because you could say that he was the owner. For example, if a different truck would drive into the fields to sell food or beverages to us, he would tell them to go away. We could only purchase from him.

JUDGE TIMLIN: I know the store sold drinks and snacks and cigarettes. Did it sell any other things that were not food?

THE WITNESS: Beer.

JUDGE TIMLIN: Okay. Did it sell things that you needed for personal use, like soap or toilet paper?

THE WITNESS: There was no point of telling him that I needed them because he was not going to buy them for us.

JUDGE TIMLIN: Okay. Did all of the workers, whether they worked on a visa or not, live in the same dormitories?

THE WITNESS: Yes. It was like a large barn and was full of bunk beds all around and the bathrooms were all together. There was no privacy at all. There were no doors dividing the bathroom from anything.

JUDGE TIMLIN: Did the visa workers all start at the same time that Mr. Baltazar started work?

THE WITNESS: Yes, all at the same time.

JUDGE TIMLIN: And were there other workers already working there?

THE WITNESS: No, it was the same.

JUDGE TIMLIN: Okay, okay. Mr. Heyman-Kantor, anything?

MR. HEYMAN-KANTOR: I don't have anything.

JUDGE TIMLIN: Mr. Schulte?

MR. SCHULTE: No. Thank you, Your Honor.

JUDGE TIMLIN: Okay. That is all of our questions. Thank you very much for testifying. Are we doing more live video?

MR. GLICK: Not today.

THE INTERPRETER: Are those all the questions, Your Honor?

JUDGE TIMLIN: Yes, those are all of our questions. I want to thank him for testifying and I want to tell him that, because this hearing has some more days to go, he shouldn't talk about his testimony with other people who might be witnesses.

THE WITNESS: I'm actually not in touch with any of them.

JUDGE TIMLIN: Okay, very good. Okay, thank you very much.

(Witness excused.)

JUDGE TIMLIN: Okay, folks. Mr. Glick, Mr. Heyman-Kantor, it is 5:22. I'm hoping you're telling me that that's all the witnesses for today.

MR. HEYMAN-KANTOR: Yes, Your Honor.

JUDGE TIMLIN: Okay. All right. So we'll reconvene tomorrow right at ten o'clock, okay, and we'll start with Mr. Hernandez.

MR. GLICK: Thank you.

JUDGE TIMLIN: All right. And everything is fine here. As you can see, you know, this is a locked room with a keypad, so you don't have to move all your stuff overnight.

MR. HEYMAN-KANTOR: Thank you very much.

MR. SCHULTE: Thank you.

JUDGE TIMLIN: Sure.

(Whereupon, at 5:22 p.m., the hearing in the above-entitled matter was adjourned, to be reconvened on the following day, Wednesday, July 19, 2017 at 10:00 a.m.)

PROCEEDINGS

(10:04 a.m.)

JUDGE TIMLIN: All right, we have finished with Mr. Baltazar. So does the Administrator have another witness for me?

MR. HEYMAN-KANTOR: Yes, Your Honor. We call Agustin Hernandez. I also request permission to produce him as a hostile witness; he's identified with the adverse party and I've got to question using leading questions.

JUDGE TIMLIN: Sure. I'm fine with that, unless you object.

MR. SCHULTE: He was called by them. He's already been deposed, you know, using normal questions the first time around and it went fine, so I'm not sure why that's appropriate now. He's their witness.

MR. HEYMAN-KANTOR: Under Federal Guidance 611(c), a party -- a witness that is identified with an adverse party, you can ask leading questions. Mr. Hernandez is a long-time employee of Sun Valley. He's a current employee, Sun Valley produced him, testified here, so under 611(c).

JUDGE TIMLIN: I'm going to grant the request. Okay. And the sequestration order is still in place, so I don't know if there's people who are in here who don't need to be in here. I see a lot of my law clerks in here, so that's good. They're fine.

Mr. Hernandez. And we're using a translator for Mr. Hernandez?

MR. HEYMAN-KANTOR: Only if --

JUDGE TIMLIN: Okay.

UNIDENTIFIED SPEAKER: Does he sit there and --

JUDGE TIMLIN: Yeah, okay. And we have the same translators from yesterday, so I'm just reminding you guys, you guys are still under the same oath that I administered yesterday.

UNIDENTIFIED SPEAKER: Yes, Your Honor.

JUDGE TIMLIN: Mr. Hernandez, can you please raise your right hand?

Whereupon,

AGUSTIN HERNANDEZ

was called as a witness by and on behalf of the Plaintiff, and after having been first duly sworn, was examined and testified as follows:

JUDGE TIMLIN: Okay.

DIRECT EXAMINATION

BY MR. HEYMAN-KANTOR:

Q. Mr. Hernandez, how are you doing this morning?

Okay, can you understand me when I speak?

A. Oh, just --

Q. Okay. And so I'd like to start off with some general questions about your relationship with Sun Valley. So how long have you been working for the company?

A. For 27 years.
Q. And your father also worked for Sun Valley?
A. Yes, he did.
Q. And your son drives a bus at Sun Valley?
A. My son, yes.
Q. And your wife works in a kitchen located at Sun Valley?
A. Yes, yes.
Q. And you don't work for anyone other than Sun Valley?
A. No.
Q. In fact, since starting at Sun Valley you never worked for anyone else?
A. No.
Q. Since you started working at Sun Valley you never applied to work anywhere else?
A. No.
Q. Sun Valley deducts taxes from your pay?
A. Yes.
Q. And Sun Valley's always done that?
A. Yes.
Q. And during the winter in the off-season, you don't work for Sun Valley?
A. No.
Q. So in January 2015, you were not employed?

A. No.
Q. And you collected unemployment?
A. Yes, I was collecting.
Q. I'd like to ask you a little bit about your job duties at Sun Valley during 2015. If I ask a question and I don't specify the year, please understand it's about 2015, okay?
A. Um-hum.
Q. Your job duties included supervising farm workers?
A. Yes.
Q. And, in fact, you spent most of your time supervising farm workers?
A. Yes.
Q. When a farm worker had a question related to Sun Valley, you're the person that they would go to to get the answer?
A. Yes.
Q. Workers almost never asked a question of the Marinos?
A. No, no.
Q. And they almost never speak to the Marinos?
A. Almost never, no.
Q. You also have job duties related to worker housing at Sun Valley?
A. Yes.
Q. At the beginning of the season, you check out the housing to see if anything needs to be fixed?

A. Yes, me and one of the Marinos.

Q. During the season you inspect the worker housing at least twice a week?

A. Yes.

Q. Including the bathrooms?

A. They be cleaned twice a week.

Q. So you inspect the bathrooms during the --

A. Yes.

Q. -- course of the season?

A. Um-hum.

Q. You inspect them on a weekly basis?

A. No, twice a week.

Q. You inspect them twice a week?

A. Yes.

Q. During the season if something is broken in the housing, like a toilet, you'd either tell -- you'd either fix it yourself or you'll tell the Marinos to hire someone to fix it?

A. Yes.

Q. I'd like to ask you some questions about what role you had, if any, related to recruiting workers.

A. Um-hum.

Q. In early 2015, Russell Marino, Jr. told you that Sun Valley would be hiring H-2A workers?

A. Yes.
Q. And that you could choose some of these H-2A workers?
A. Yes, I do.
Q. And you chose 10 or 15 people?
A. More or less like 15 people.
Q. You also called some workers to tell them that there was work?
A. Yes.
Q. And workers called you to see if there was work?
A. Yes.
Q. You would get these calls and make these calls during the time that you were working at Sun Valley?
A. No, before.
Q. But some of them were after you started working?
A. Yes. Some of them, yes.
Q. When you accepted a worker to work at Sun Valley, Sun Valley would never later reject that worker, correct?
A. Correct.
Q. I'd like to talk to you a little bit about how workers become oriented when they arrive to Sun Valley for the growing season.

In early 2015, when workers arrived, you would tell them about the housing?

A. Um-hum, yes.
Q. And the work duties?

A. Yes.
Q. And the rules of the camp?
A. Yes.
Q. About keeping the bathrooms clean?
A. Yes.
Q. And about going to bed early?
A. Yes.
Q. And you'd tell them about the hours of work?
A. Yes, um-hum.
Q. And the pay?
A. And the pay, yes.
Q. Now, you also told them, when they arrived, about the kitchen?
A. Yes.
Q. And how there's only one kitchen at Sun Valley? Can you answer it verbally with a yes or no, just so the court reporter can --
A. There's only one kitchen, yes.
Q. Okay. And you would tell them about the cost of the meals?
A. Yes.
Q. And you explained to them that there wasn't enough room for everyone to cook in the kitchen?
A. Yes.
Q. And when you said that, that was -- that was the truth, there isn't enough room for everyone to cook in the kitchen?

A. It is true.

Q. And workers cannot cook their own meals in the kitchen? Is that correct?

A. That's correct.

Q. And workers were also not allowed to cook in their bedrooms, correct?

A. Correct.

Q. If a worker didn't want to participate in the meal plan, their options were to eat outside or to order a delivery meal, correct?

A. Yes.

Q. And there was no extra room in the kitchen refrigerators for workers to store anything, correct?

A. Correct.

Q. And no workers stored groceries in the refrigerators, correct?

A. Sometimes they did, but little things like, I don't know, milk or, you know, something minor.

Q. Very little?

A. Very little, yes.

Q. At some point before April 2015 -- scratch that.

When the Marinos were telling you about how they were going to hire H-2A workers, Russell Marino told you that you could keep charging for meals, correct?

A. Yes.
Q. During that meeting they said that Sun Valley's role with relation to the kitchen would change a bit, yes?
A. Um-hum.
Q. Yes?
A. Yes.
Q. But the one change was that instead of Sun Valley paying the cooks' wages, you would do so?
A. Yes.
Q. In 2015 there were cooks in the kitchen who cooked the meals for the workers?
A. Yes.
Q. You paid the cooks in cash?
A. Yes.
Q. Workers paid either $75 or $80 a week for those meals?
A. Yes.
Q. And you used that money to pay the cooks?
A. Yes.
Q. And to buy groceries?
A. Yes.
Q. And to purchase the blender?
A. Yeah, the new items for -- the one in the kitchen, yes.

MR. HEYMAN-KANTOR: I'd like to show the witness an exhibit. It says 17-1.

JUDGE TIMLIN: Which --

MR. HEYMAN-KANTOR: PX 17-1.

JUDGE TIMLIN: Just so you know, it's not in evidence at the moment. It's not in evidence at this point.

MR. HEYMAN-KANTOR: Yes, Your Honor. No, that is actually not -- let me look at it.

JUDGE TIMLIN: 17-1?

MR. HEYMAN-KANTOR: Yes, yes. In Binder 6.

JUDGE TIMLIN: Oh, okay. I see. Okay.

BY MR. HEYMAN-KANTOR:

Q. This is your handwriting on PX 17-1?

A. Yes.

Q. And this document is a record of workers who paid for meals during the week of April 15th?

A. Yes.

MR. HEYMAN-KANTOR: Your Honor, I move to admit this exhibit, PX 17-1.

JUDGE TIMLIN: Any objection?

MR. SCHULTE: No.

JUDGE TIMLIN: It's admitted.

(Whereupon, the document referred to and previously marked for identification as Plaintiff Exhibit 17-1 was received into evidence.)

BY MR. HEYMAN-KANTOR:

Q. Where it says $75 next to the workers' names, this is the cost of the meal plan for that week?

A. Yes.

Q. The check mark next to the person's name means the person paid the meal charge that week?

A. Yes.

Q. And do you see where it says 16 times 75 at the bottom? That means that 16 workers paid $75 that week?

A. Yes.

Q. You kept these kind of tallies in 2015 on a regular basis? You kept sheets like this, keeping track of workers' pay on a regular basis?

A. Oh, yes. Yes.

MR. SCHULTE: Objection, there's nothing about worker pay.

JUDGE TIMLIN: Yeah, can you rephrase that? I don't think this was a fair step.

MR. HEYMAN-KANTOR: I'll rephrase.

JUDGE TIMLIN: It sounded like it was their -- what they were being paid.

MR. HEYMAN-KANTOR: I'll rephrase.

BY MR. HEYMAN-KANTOR:

Q. You kept track of what workers paid for meals on papers like this on a weekly basis?

A. Yes.

Q. All right, if you could turn to the next exhibit, PX 17-12.

MR. SCHULTE: dash-2?

MR. HEYMAN-KANTOR: Sorry, dash-2. Thank you, thank you.

BY MR. HEYMAN-KANTOR:

Q. These are names on the left, these are names of Sun Valley workers?

A. Yes.

Q. And these are their signatures on the right column?

A. Yes.

Q. And workers sign this form -- when the workers signed this form it meant that they paid for the meal plan that week?

A. Yes.

MR. HEYMAN-KANTOR: I move to enter this into evidence.

JUDGE TIMLIN: Any objection?

MR. SCHULTE: Only to the extent that it's hearsay that there's any representation by these workers as to having done anything. To the extent that it's offered for the truth of some other matter.

MR. HEYMAN-KANTOR: It's a business record and it's kept routinely.

MR. SCHULTE: It wasn't kept by the business and it certainly wasn't kept by the Respondent.

JUDGE TIMLIN: I don't know that you've asked him enough questions to actually establish at this point that this is what this is. I don't even know how he knows that -- whose signatures these are. I think you need to do -- I think you need to ask a few more questions.

BY MR. HEYMAN-KANTOR:

Q. All right. Workers would pay for meals on a weekly basis?

A. Yes.

Q. And they would give money to you or someone in the kitchen?

A. Yes, to me.

Q. And when they gave the money, they would sign here?

A. Yes.

Q. And this was done every week?

A. Yes.

MR. HEYMAN-KANTOR: This is a record that the employer's agent is keeping on a regular basis. It's a part of the admission.

JUDGE TIMLIN: You haven't established that this is something that -- who created this, you haven't established that this is something that he maintained or created.

MR. HEYMAN-KANTOR: Okay.

JUDGE TIMLIN: I still think that you need some more questions.

BY MR. HEYMAN-KANTOR:

Q. Okay. So you received this sheet from -- this blank sheet before it was signed by -- from Sun Valley?

A. Yes.

Q. And this is a document that Sun Valley created in the office?

A. Yes.

Q. And they would hand it to you?

A. Yes.

Q. And this was a regular activity in the kitchen, that took place in the kitchen?

A. Yes.

Q. And you were the custodian of these records? You maintained them? You kept them?

A. Yes.

Q. And it was important to ensure that workers, only workers who signed, had actually paid for the meals?

A. Yes.

Q. And you verified personally that they paid for the meals when they signed?

A. Yes.

Q. So every week the worker would pay?

A. Yes.
Q. And then you would have them sign?
A. They sign, yes.
MR. HEYMAN-KANTOR: All right. Your Honor, under 8036, records of regularly conducted activity, the record was made at or near the time by someone with knowledge. The record was kept in the course of regularly conducted activity of a business or an organization; it was -- making the record was a regular practice and it has, you know, been shown by the person who's the custodian of the records and there's nothing indicating a lack of trustworthiness in the record.
JUDGE TIMLIN: Okay. Mr. Schulte, do you want to be heard?
MR. SCHULTE: Yes. On 17-1, that's a record that he created that's recording, you know, his contemporaneous understanding and recollection of this. This form was created by Sun Valley to reflect that these people had received their paychecks and was used as that. Sun Valley would get their signatures on this -- JUDGE TIMLIN: Okay. Well, wait. That has not been -- there's been no testimony why Sun Valley -- I don't want to accept that because there's no testimony to that.
MR. SCHULTE: That's fine.
JUDGE TIMLIN: Why it was --
MR. SCHULTE: That's not why the form --

JUDGE TIMLIN: The only thing that I know is that this is a sheet of paper that he got and it was created in Sun Valley's office and it was given to him. That's the only testimony we've had so far.

MR. SCHULTE: Okay. We've not had testimony that these signatures are the signatures of these workers, that there's any match to them or that there's any representation. It's being offered for the idea to prove that there was a payment. He's saying that, you know, he would record that there were payments and we saw that in 17-1. We don't know that these are these workers' signatures and we don't know that that's the worker attesting that they had made this payment. It's being offered for some improper purpose.

MR. HEYMAN-KANTOR: Your Honor, the witness has said that he has personal knowledge of what happened. He would watch them give the money and he'd watch them sign and make sure they were signed.

JUDGE TIMLIN: I guess what I'm confused about and maybe it is because you're asking leading questions and, you know, maybe it would actually be better off if you were a little less leading. This is what I know about this record. This is a record that someone gave him. Someone from Sun Valley Orchard's office gave him a blank sheet of paper and he had the workers sign the blank sheet of paper and this is something that he did on a regular basis and he kept this -- he kept this not blank, it's obviously filled out with people's names and dates. But what I don't -- the connection that I'm not seeing is, because you haven't asked him, is what was this for. Because counsel's suggesting that this was to record that they got paychecks; you're suggesting that this is to record that they paid for their meals, but I haven't heard the witness tell me what it's for.

And so I'm reluctant to -- I'm reluctant to --I think that you have, in some senses, met your burden that this is a business record. What I'm not -- and I don't think -- what I haven't heard is a business record that shows me what. But I do think it's admissible as a business record, I just don't know what the significance of it is. So to that extent, the objection is overruled and the document can come in as a business record. I'm just warning you that at this point it has no context.

(Whereupon, the document referred to and previously marked for identification as Plaintiff's Exhibit 17-2 was received into evidence.)

BY MR. HEYMAN-KANTOR:

Q. Why did you keep these records?

A. Because sometimes the Department of Labor comes and they ask for their records of on what am I spending the money.

I have to show the spending.

Q. And spending money for what?

A. For the food.

Q. Is this for food that workers would eat?

A. Yes.

Q. So in 2015 -- and so you keep -- you use this form and keep track of who paid for meals?

A. For everything, yes.

Q. Including who kept --

A. Including that.

Q. Workers would sign a form like this every week indicating that they paid for meals?

A. Yes.

Q. Workers would get paid on Friday afternoons from Sun Valley?

A. Could you repeat that?

Q. Sure. Workers would receive their paychecks from Sun Valley --

A. Their paychecks.

Q. -- on Friday afternoons?

A. Yes.

Q. And they would also pay for the meals on Friday afternoons?

A. Afternoon, yes.

Q. And in April 2015, Russell Marino, Jr. told you to keep track of the payments for the meals?

A. Yes.

Q. And Russell Marino, Jr. checked in with you later about whether you were indeed keeping track of who was paying for meals?

A. No.

Q. So Russell Marino would occasionally ask you -- did Russell Marino afterwards ask you, during 2015, that you kept track of who was paying for meals?

A. Sometimes he has.

Q. In the past you've had discussions with Harry Marino about the meal plan?

A. No.

Q. You talked about the fact that you were offering meals to workers with Harry Marino?

A. I don't remember how I talked to him. Maybe I did. I don't remember.

Q. Before 2015 you talked to Harry Marino about the meals?

A. Yes, um-hum.

Q. And you've also talked to Russell Marino, Jr. about the meals?

A. Yes.

Q. And one of the things that you discussed with the Marinos is how much you were going to charge for the meals?

A. Yes.
Q. And Russell Marino, Jr. occasionally entered the kitchen?
A. Yes, yes.
Q. And Harry Marino did so also?
A. Yes.
Q. Russell Marino, Jr., in fact, visited the kitchen at least once a month in 2015?
A. Yeah, at least. Yes.
Q. In 2015 there was a poster up in the kitchen about minimum wage laws?
A. I think, yes.
Q. And Joe Marino put that up?
A. Yes.
Q. I'd like to change course a little bit and ask you a bit about -- sorry. So back up. We were talking about how workers get paid on Friday afternoons from Sun Valley. Yes?
A. Yes.
Q. And they're paid by paychecks, by checks?
A. Checks. Yes.
Q. And many of the workers don't have their own bank accounts in New Jersey?
A. No.
Q. So you would help them by taking their paychecks to the bank?

A. Yes, I always been doing that. They sign and they handed the checks to me and I go to the bank and cash them.

Q. And then you take the cash back and return it to the workers?

A. Yes.

Q. And you did that in 2015 on a regular basis?

A. Yes.

Q. I'd like to talk to you a little bit about your sales of drinks and other items to Sun Valley's workers. So during the 2015 growing season, you purchased drinks at Sam's Club?

A. Yes.

Q. And you sold some of those same drinks to Sun Valley workers?

A. Yes.

Q. You sold drinks to workers in Sun Valley's fields?

A. Once or twice a day. Sometimes when it's too hot, it will --

Q. All right, thank you.

A. Sometimes, yes.

MR. SCHULTE: Objection, Your Honor. Let him answer. I mean, if counsel's going to testify, at least let the witness get his full answer out.

MR. HEYMAN-KANTOR: Your Honor, it was a yes or no question and he had answered the question.

MR. SCHULTE: It's a direct exam, just let him finish.

JUDGE TIMLIN: Yeah, I think you should let him finish. I understand that I did grant you permission to treat him as a hostile witness, but I haven't heard anything from him right now that's been hostile, so unless that changes I think he should be allowed to finish his answers.

MR. HEYMAN-KANTOR: All right.

JUDGE TIMLIN: So, I mean, I understand. You're asking leading questions and that's fine because I've given you permission to do that, but I think he can -- I think he should be allowed to finish his answers. If it turns out that he's hostile, then we'll rein him in. Okay? But right now I haven't seen any evidence of that.

MR. HEYMAN-KANTOR: Right, just my request was probably based on he's identified with an adverse party. I'm not sure that he's --

(Crosstalk.)

JUDGE TIMLIN: Right. I understand that he's identified with an adverse party, but that in and of itself isn't enough unless he's giving you -- unless he's giving you untruthful answers or answers that are nonresponsive, none of which I've heard so far, okay? So go ahead, continue.

BY MR. HEYMAN-KANTOR:

Q. You sold workers drinks and other items from a room on Sun Valley's premises?

A. In the kitchen.
Q. And these drinks that you sold, you'd store them in refrigerators, yes?
A. In one big refrigerator that I have.
Q. That was in the kitchen?
A. Yes, in the kitchen.
Q. And is the refrigerator owned by Sun Valley?
A. Not that one.
Q. You stored some drinks in refrigerators owned by Sun Valley?
A. No, just one.
Q. Do you remember taking a deposition in this case?
A. Yes.
Q. And it was a deposition where everything you said was recorded by a court reporter?
A. Yeah, Tony.
Q. And you swore to tell the truth?
A. Yes.
Q. And that was the same oath that you took today?
A. Yes.
MR. HEYMAN-KANTOR: I'd like to show the witness a copy of his deposition.
JUDGE TIMLIN: Sure. You can approach.
MR. HEYMAN-KANTOR: Would you like a copy?
UNIDENTIFIED SPEAKER 1: Close the door?

JUDGE TIMLIN: Close that door, yeah.
UNIDENTIFIED SPEAKER 2: Actually, we can close this.
COURT REPORTER: Would you like a copy, Your Honor?
JUDGE TIMLIN: Sure.
BY MR. HEYMAN-KANTOR:
Q. And if you could please turn to page 55. All right, if you look at line 10. I'm going to read aloud and if you could please read to yourself. Line 10:
"Question: Any other place that you store the sodas?
"Answer: Yeah, a little room I call the storage room. I call the storage room.
"Question: Where is the storage room?
"Answer: It's inside the kitchen.
"Question: Who owns the kitchen?
"Answer: Sun Valley.
"Question: Who owns the refrigerator?
"Answer: Sun Valley.
"Question: Does Sun Valley own all five refrigerators?
"Answer: Yes."
Did I read that correctly? Did I read that correctly?
A. Yes. Yes, when you --
Q. Thank you.
MR. SCHULTE: Objection, Your Honor. He was still testifying.

THE WITNESS: Yes.

JUDGE TIMLIN: Okay, just let him finish his answer.

THE WITNESS: Yeah, when you were asking me, I was thinking to store in the -- to make them cold, to cool them. But yes, we have the little storeroom in the back, was a little storeroom. But I was thinking in getting cold, because you say you -- what I hear, if I keep the sodas in the back room, refrigerators.

MR. HEYMAN-KANTOR: Thank you.

THE WITNESS: Um-hum. So it was not -- storeroom.

BY MR. HEYMAN-KANTOR:

Q. During the growing season in the mornings, you would bring a cooler with drinks in it to the field?

A. In the morning and sometimes in the afternoons.

Q. And you'd have drinks in it that you would sell to workers?

A. If they want the drinks, yes. If they don't want, they don't have to buy it. They drink water or just take a rest.

Q. And you would refill the cooler before the afternoon break?

A. No.

Q. Sometimes you did that?

A. In the mornings.

Q. You would put --
A. Yes.
Q. -- drinks in the mornings and sometimes before the afternoon breaks?
A. Sometimes.
Q. And then you sold drinks to workers in the mornings?
A. Like I said, it's an option of either they want to buy from me. If not, then what.
Q. So you would sell them in the mornings?
MR. SCHULTE: Objection, Your Honor. This is the third time around.
BY MR. HEYMAN-KANTOR:
Q. And you would sell them -- okay.
JUDGE TIMLIN: Okay, let's -- well-taken objection, but go ahead, continue.
BY MR. HEYMAN-KANTOR:
Q. You would sell drinks to workers in the afternoons?
A. Sometimes.
Q. Workers would buy drinks from the store in the kitchen after dinner?
A. If they want to, yes.
Q. And they could buy drinks at lunch?
A. If they want to, yes.
Q. The drinks you sold to workers who would only -- the drinks you offered for sale to workers included sodas?

A. Yes.
Q. Monster energy drinks?
A. Yes.
Q. Red Bulls?
A. Yes.
Q. Bottled water?
A. No.
Q. The sodas and the Monsters and the Red Bulls, they were sold at the same price, whether they were sold in the fields or in the kitchen?
A. Yes.
Q. You would buy sodas in 24-packs?
A. Yes.
Q. You would pay 13 to $14 for a 24-pack of soda?
A. Yes.
Q. Workers were charged $1 per soda?
A. Seventy-five cents, I think. Sometimes -- I don't remember, it was - 2015, it was 75, I think.
Q. Is it possible it was a dollar in 2015? For soda?
A. It's possible, but I remember -- I remember 75. Maybe it's possible.
Q. You would buy Monster energy drinks in 24-packs?
A. Yes.
Q. You'd pay $32, about, for a 24-pack of Monsters?
A. Yes.

Q. Workers were charged $1.50 for Monster?
A. Yes.
Q. You'd also buy Red Bulls in 24-packs?
A. Yes.
Q. You'd pay 30 or $31 for a 24-pack of Red Bull?
A. Yes.
Q. Workers were charged $1.50 for Red Bull?
A. Yes.
Q. All right. Sun Valley workers, on average, would purchase about three or four drinks a day from you?
A. Some of them, not all of them because they go to the store and they buy their own -- their own drinks, their own stuff. So --
Q. So workers --
A. -- not of all them, not all of them.
Q. The workers who didn't go to the store would buy three to four drinks from you a day?
A. Yeah, some of them. Yes.
Q. You'd also buy and resell sweet breads to workers?
A. Sweet bread? No. Sweet bread is -- the one I sell is like muffins.
Q. Muffins.
A. No sweet bread. The bread, we give it to the -- it's part of the meal plan.
Q. Was it the muffins that you'd pay $8 for a 12-pack of?

A. Something like that. Yeah, something like 8, $10. I don't remember.

Q. And workers were charged 75 cents for a sweet bread?

A. Yes.

Q. You sold pastries in the fields for 75 cents?

A. No.

Q. No?

A. No.

Q. You sold snacks to workers?

A. Yeah, like chips. Yes.

Q. And chips were 75 cents?

A. Yes.

MR. HEYMAN-KANTOR: I'd like to show the witness another exhibit, PX 17-3.

BY MR. HEYMAN-KANTOR:

Q. Is that in there? Yes. Do you see these two photographs on this page, 801?

A. Yes.

Q. And these are photographs of the store that we've been talking about?

A. It's not a store, it's the kitchen.

Q. This is the kitchen --

A. Um-hum.

Q. -- where you sold items from?

A. Yes.
Q. And this is the -- in the top photo, this is where sodas were refrigerated that you sold?
A. Yes.
Q. And the bottom photo on the left are the soups that were sold there?
A. Yeah, a lot of soups. Yes.
Q. And when workers purchased items from here, the money was stored in the cash register in the middle of that second photo?
A. Yes.
MR. HEYMAN-KANTOR: I move to admit these into evidence.
JUDGE TIMLIN: Any objection?
MR. SCHULTE: No.
JUDGE TIMLIN: Okay, they're admitted.
(Whereupon, the document referred to and previously marked for identification as Plaintiff Exhibit 17-3 was received into evidence.)
BY MR. HEYMAN-KANTOR:
Q. All right. You can put that away. You can close it. Thank you.
I'd like to talk to you a little bit about Sun

Valley's housing. There are six worker bedrooms at Sun Valley?

A. Yeah, six.

Q. How many beds are in those bedrooms?

A. It's like 20 bunker --

THE INTERPRETER: You say double beds?

THE WITNESS: Double.

BY MR. HEYMAN-KANTOR:

Q. Were they bunk beds?

A. Bunk beds, yes.

Q. All right. And H-2A workers stay there free of charge? Do H-2A workers get free housing there?

A. Yes, free housing. Yes.

Q. And domestic workers?

A. Yes.

Q. And Sun Valley provides workers with sheets for the --

A. Yes.

Q. But not pillows, correct?

A. No pillows.

Q. There's also a bathroom in those housing facilities?

A. Yes.

Q. In 2015, two sinks -- well, let me ask you another question. How many sinks are there in Sun Valley's bathrooms?

A. Like seven or eight.

Q. Okay. And in 2015, two of those sinks were broken?

A. Could be, I don't remember. Sometimes they get broke and they fix it.

Q. All right. I'd like to show the witness his deposition again. Take a look at page 111. If you'd look at lines 23 to 24. If you could just read lines 23 and 24 to yourself and look up when you're done.

(Whereupon, the witness reviewed the document.)

THE WITNESS: Yes.

BY MR. HEYMAN-KANTOR:

Q. All right, does that refresh your recollection about whether any sinks were broken in the bathrooms in 2015?

MR. SCHULTE: Objection, Your Honor. What he said to the question. How is counsel's question refreshing anything other than that he asked the question before?

MR. HEYMAN-KANTOR: I'm asking if the deposition transcript refreshed his recollection.

MR. SCHULTE: Okay.

JUDGE TIMLIN: I think that was proper. He asked him to read a couple lines and asked him if it refreshed his recollection, so that's fine.

BY MR. HEYMAN-KANTOR:

Q. Does that refresh your recollection about whether any sinks were broken at Sun Valley in 2015?

A. Yes.

Q. And were two sinks broken at Sun Valley in 2015?

A. Yes. It looks like that, yes.
Q. And were --
MR. SCHULTE: Objection, Your Honor, just to be clear. What he's pointing to there was beyond the scope of what he'd ask him about and if we're going to put that in, I would move that he continue on to page 112 where he specifically says, "I fixed it or send somebody to fix it."
MR. HEYMAN-KANTOR: I'm just refreshing his recollection, not entering it into evidence.
MR. SCHULTE: Okay, he's mischaracterizing his testimony then.
MR. HEYMAN-KANTOR: All right.
MR. SCHULTE: He's testified before -- I mean, he's trying to change his testimony and he testified before that if things were broken, he fixed it. He testified consistently with that two months ago and now he's trying to excerpt it out so that it looks like the sinks remained broken.
MR. HEYMAN-KANTOR: He can ask that on his redirect.
JUDGE TIMLIN: Yes, you can. So objection overruled.
BY MR. HEYMAN-KANTOR:
Q. All right. In 2015, at some point, there were two screen doors that were ripped?
A. Yeah, maybe they were, but I -- later on I fixed them. As soon as I found out, I fixed them.
Q. And there were three bathroom windows that didn't have screen doors?

A. Could be.

MR. SCHULTE: Objection, Your Honor. The windows didn't have doors?

BY MR. HEYMAN-KANTOR:

Q. Screen -- sorry. Let me rephrase. The bathroom windows did not have screens, correct?

A. Everything has screens.

Q. You're sure that all the bathrooms had screens in the windows in 2015?

A. I think -- I'm pretty sure. Maybe they could be broken, but --

Q. Can you turn to page 116 of your deposition? Now, you can look at page -- at lines 14 -- 14 to 25, just read those to yourself. To yourself.

(Whereupon, the witness reviewed the document.)

THE WITNESS: Oh, the windows, there's the windows that are above the screen doors, yes.

BY MR. HEYMAN-KANTOR:

Q. Thanks. You can close that. So by screen doors, do you mean the windows don't have screens?

A. Yeah, the windows don't.

Q. So if you open one of those windows, there's nothing preventing anything from going in and out from the window, correct?

A. Correct.

Q. In the bathrooms, there are times when the hot water would run out?

A. Sometimes when they come, everybody comes and they want to take a shower at once, they run out of hot water and they have to wait a little bit so the water -- time to get water.

Q. I'd like to ask you a little bit about transportation at Sun Valley. In 2016, Sun Valley provided workers free transportation to a Laundromat in town?

A. In '16, yes.

Q. All right. And that free transportation started towards the end of the 2015 growing season?

A. There's always been free transportation. There's always been. But they start to rent at this transportation company in the end of -- in the middle of '15, I think, or '16. I think it was '16 when they hired this transportation company. But in 2015, when the guys came from Mexico, I offered them free transportation from the -- on the rent (verbatim) from the company.

Q. All right. You sometimes would tell them to try to get a ride from other workers with vans?

A. No, no. They would come to me and they ask me if -- how can they do to get transportation to the store or -- do Laundromat or do personal things. This is when I told -- talked to those guys, they know.

Q. So when a worker wanted to go to a store other than the Laundromat --

A. Um-hum.

Q. -- you would refer them to another worker who had a car?

A. No, I ask -- once I talk to them, I told them to talk to those guys and they would know. But after that, I never say anything about that. I don't mess with that.

Q. And so by other guys, you're talking about other farm workers?

A. Yes.

Q. And you've done that in other years, you've told workers to talk to other farm workers to get a ride?

A. Yeah, because they know -- they got friends outside of the camp and they will come and they pick them up and they take them. I don't know how that works.

Q. And you don't know whether they charge for those rides?

A. I don't deal with that.

Q. So I'd like to ask you also about transportation between Sun Valley's dormitory and the fields.

A. Um-hum.

Q. One of the fields is a 15-minute drive from the dormitory?

A. Yes.
Q. And it would take a couple hours to walk from the dormitory to that field?
A. If they walk or somebody walks, maybe, could be.
Q. So Sun Valley would use buses to transport the workers to the fields?
A. Yes.
Q. And you select the drivers for those buses?
A. Yes.
Q. And you select them from amongst Sun Valley's farm workers?
A. Yes.
Q. And you do so when the workers arrive for the season at the farm?
A. Yes.
Q. And sometimes there are no farm workers who have a New Jersey driver's license, correct?
A. Correct.
Q. And you told Sun Valley's owners about the difficulty you've had finding workers with New Jersey driver's licenses?
A. Yes, I did once. Yes.
Q. And you did this before 2015?
A. Before, yes.
Q. And so to select drivers, one thing you'll ask the farm workers is who has a Mexican driver's license?

A. Correct.
Q. You also ask who has experience driving?
A. Yes.
Q. And if a worker has either a Mexican driver's license or driving experience, you'll let them drive?
A. Yes.
Q. In 2015, some of the drivers had only Mexican driver's licenses?
A. Yes.
Q. In 2017, I guess the current year, one of your drivers is your son?
A. Yes.
Q. And he has a New Jersey driver's license?
A. Yes.
Q. And there are two other driver's licenses -- excuse me. There are two other drivers. You don't know whether they have New Jersey driver's licenses?
MR. SCHULTE: Objection, what year are we talking about now?
JUDGE TIMLIN: Yeah.
MR. HEYMAN-KANTOR: 2017, the current year.
MR. SCHULTE: Well then, objection. Outside the scope. What possible concern does that have to do with --
JUDGE TIMLIN: Do we have a violation for people driving without driver's licenses in 2017?

MR. HEYMAN-KANTOR: We will later talk about our CMP assessments, and that is related to post-dated conduct.

JUDGE TIMLIN: Okay, I'll allow it.

BY MR. HEYMAN-KANTOR:

Q. Just to recap, your son is one of the drivers and he has a New Jersey driver's license?

A. Correct.

Q. And the other drivers, you haven't asked them to show you their driver's licenses?

A. No.

Q. All right. I'd like to talk about some workers whose employment ended in August 2015. So around that time, many of the peppers at Sun Valley became diseased and died?

A. Correct.

Q. And there wasn't enough work for all of the farm workers?

A. Correct.

Q. So Sun Valley needed to let go of some workers?

A. Correct.

Q. They needed to let go about 44 workers?

A. Correct.

Q. And Russell Marino told you to tell the workers about this?

A. Correct.

Q. And it was up to you to determine which workers to let go?

A. I talked to them and I asked them about who wanted to leave and, like, nobody wanted to leave, nobody came to me. I picked them out.

Q. So you chose, ultimately, who would be let go?

A. Yes.

Q. And you were more willing -- you were more likely to let go a worker who didn't want to work a lot of hours?

A. Not that they don't want to work a lot of hours, they were troublemakers, a lot of troublemakers.

Q. And workers who refused to work on the weekends were more likely to be let go?

A. It wasn't because of that. There was a group of six or seven guys that they never work on the weekends and it was fine for me. But they will talk too much and they will talk to other guys, talking bad about the company or me, about the food, about everything. They not happy working there, always complaining about everything.

Q. So that's why you let those workers go?

A. It was one of the reasons.

Q. And one of the reasons was they weren't working on the weekends?

A. No.

Q. But those workers did not work on the weekends?

A. Only seven was, six or seven.

Q. Those six or seven did not work on the weekends?
A. Um-hum.
Q. In the fields, when you sold drinks to workers who wanted to buy the drinks, you would sometimes record who purchased a drink in a notebook?
A. Sometimes when they ask me to, because they don't have money or a way or they forgot their wallet in the dormitory sometimes.
Q. All right. All right. And we were talking about the kitchen. Your wife is one of the cooks in the kitchen?
A. Yes, correct.
Q. And that's the kitchen that provides meals that workers purchase on a weekly basis?
A. No, purchase the meal plan.
Q. And you don't -- in terms of the -- sorry. How many other cooks were in the kitchen?
A. Two, two more.
Q. Two more. And the records of worker purchases of drinks in 2015, you don't still have that, correct, all those records?
A. No.
Q. And the meal plan that you worked on in 2015, there have been meals provided from that kitchen to workers in prior years?
A. Yes.

Q. Yes. How many years back have workers been getting meals from the kitchen there?

A. Always since we start to -- since we opened up -- they always pay weekly.

Q. Now since 1990?

A. It was like '97, '98, something like that. I don't remember.

Q. And workers have been paying for meals going back that far, as well?

A. Yes.

Q. And they paid a weekly fee for the meals?

A. Yes.

Q. And they paid you for the meals?

A. Yes.

MR. HEYMAN-KANTOR: No further questions.

JUDGE TIMLIN: Okay.

MR. SCHULTE: Thank you, Your Honor.

JUDGE TIMLIN: Yeah.

CROSS-EXAMINATION

BY MR. SCHULTE:

Q. Good morning, Mr. Agustin. Did any of the workers ever pay money directly to Sun Valley that you're aware of? Or did they only pay you?

A. The meal plan?

Q. Meal plan, drinks, any other --

A. No, I mean --

MR. HEYMAN-KANTOR: Objection, compound question.

THE WITNESS: They paid me.

MR. SCHULTE: Your Honor, I think it's late in the game for him to object to the form. If he's confused, he can say so.

JUDGE TIMLIN: Well, I don't think it's late in the game for that. You can object to form at any point, but it was a compound question which doesn't help you, so --

MR. SCHULTE: Okay, I'll break it down.

JUDGE TIMLIN: -- just separate it out.

BY MR. SCHULTE:

Q. For meals, did any of the workers ever pay Sun Valley for meals?

A. No.

Q. For drinks?

A. No.

Q. For housing?

A. No.

Q. For rides?

A. No.

Q. For laundry?

A. No.

Q. Okay. When you went to the bank, had the bank already prepared envelopes with the workers' cash in it based on information from Sun Valley?

A. Yes, in the office, they fax the list, the payroll, and when I get to the bank, they give me the envelopes with the money.

Q. Okay. And the envelopes are already sealed by the bank, right?

A. Sealed.

Q. With the worker's name on it?

A. Yes.

Q. So you don't get a lump sum of money, you get envelopes for each worker?

A. Yes.

Q. Okay. And you never take any of the money out of --

A. Never.

Q. -- the workers' pay?

A. Never.

Q. Is it because the workers don't want their own bank accounts; they don't want to pay the fees?

MR. HEYMAN-KANTOR: Objection, calls for speculation.

JUDGE TIMLIN: I'm not sure how he would know, but you can ask.

THE WITNESS: They never have asked me, have asked me to help them to open a bank account. They are not interested in that.

BY MR. SCHULTE:

Q. Okay. Did you ever buy drinks from anywhere other than Sam's Club?

A. No, sometimes the Mexican store, Barbarrio (ph.).

Q. Okay, is that more expensive, usually, than Sam's Club?

A. Yes.

Q. Okay. You brought water to the fields for the workers to drink every day?

A. Every day, every day.

Q. Was water available at meals?

A. Yes.

Q. Okay. So if they bought drinks is it because they wanted something different than water?

A. Yes.

Q. And does Sun Valley pay for gas for your truck?

A. Yes, they pay all the bills.

Q. Okay. For driving around, to fuel up your truck?

A. Yes.

Q. Okay. Were there any workers who didn't choose to be on the meal plan?

A. Not until 2015, when these two or three guys came to me and they say they don't want to pay me. It's the only year I had that.

Q. Okay. Were they disciplined in any way for not being part of the meal plan? Did you punish them?

A. No, no.
Q. Were they fired?
A. I never say -- I didn't say anything.
Q. Did Sun Valley punish, fire them?
A. No.
Q. Okay. Did any of the workers in 2015 ask you if they could store food in the refrigerator?
A. Never. Never came to me and ask me for that.
Q. Did they ever ask to use the stoves?
A. No.
Q. Now, you talked about the size of the kitchen. If workers wanted to cook in multiple shifts, would that have been possible?
A. When we are cooking all the food, something is possible, if it is without everything's busy and it's a mess inside. But if one of them would've come to me and they ask me to do that, we could make arrangement or talk to somebody and make arrangement to -- then they would come to me.
Q. When the H-2A workers arrived in 2015, had workers been living there before they got there?
A. Yes, there was about 18, 20 guys living there.
Q. Okay. Were they in one room or were they spread out across all six bedrooms?
A. They were spread out in two or three, three -- I think three bedrooms, I think.

Q. Okay. Were you there when the New Jersey Department of Labor did its housing inspection in 2015?
A. Yes.
Q. Did they tell you that there were any problems with the housing?
A. No.
Q. Did they complain about the screens?
A. Everything was fine.
Q. No problems with the water?
A. No.
Q. Okay. And when the hot water runs out, if they wait a few minutes there will be more hot water, right?
A. Yes.
Q. If a worker brought a complaint to you about a condition of the housing, what would you do?
A. If it's something minor, I will fix it. I will fix it myself. If it is something major, I will tell somebody so they can send someone that's outside --
Q. Okay. Were there any complaints by the workers about housing in 2015 that you didn't fix through one of those two ways?
A. No.
Q. You talked about free rides to the Laundromat. Near the Laundromat, are there other stores there?
A. Just like McDonalds or WaWa, but is not big stores around.

Q. Were there places to buy food there?

A. Yes.

Q. You talked already about the workers let go in August. Did you have the final say as to who would be let go or did anybody else have a role in that?

A. No, I got -- I, too, got to pick them up and I -- I pick them up and I guess -- the final list.

Q. Did Russell Marino, Jr. look at that list?

A. I gave to him. I guess he saw it, but he don't know the names, he don't know much of the names.

Q. Okay. Do you know if he looked at anything else after you gave him the list?

A. I don't know.

Q. In the work contract, do you know if it says that there will be work on weekends? If you know.

A. As far as I know, the H-2A workers, they -- if they don't want work to on the weekends, they don't have to and we can't force them. But if they -- most of them, they are willing to work, they want to work.

Q. Okay. And the workers that were let go, you may have said this before, but that wasn't the reason that they were let go?

A. No, it wasn't. No.

Q. Are there lockers in the dormitory rooms?

A. Yes.
Q. And the workers can store their material there?
A. Yeah. Um-hum, yes.
Q. Was there anyone who paid for meals that would skip meals?
A. Sometimes before I got this list, some -- I knew some guys that they cheat, but it didn't really matter to me. One or two guys maybe cheat, but I don't know. I'm not sure.
Q. And just to clarify, when you say cheat, you mean they would eat the meals but not pay you?
A. They no pay, yeah.
Q. But if they paid you, they would always eat the meal?
A. Yes.
Q. Okay. Are you familiar with the Department of Labor's limit on how much a meal charge can be for the week?
A. Yes.
Q. Did you ever charge more than that?
A. No, never.
Q. Let's go to a new area. The workers who left in May of 2015, how long had they been there, how long had they been working there before they decided to go?
MR. HEYMAN-KANTOR: Objection, Your Honor. That's outside the scope. I didn't ask any questions about those workers.
JUDGE TIMLIN: He did not, but you actually were doing cross, so he's doing direct, so I think he can.

MR. HEYMAN-KANTOR: So he can ask these questions open-ended, that I asked?

JUDGE TIMLIN: Yeah, yeah.

BY MR. SCHULTE:

Q. How long were the workers at Sun Valley?

A. I think a week or a little bit over a week.

Q. Okay. Did they come to you at some point and ask to speak with you about concerns?

A. No.

Q. Did they ever ask to talk to the Marinos?

A. When they try about three or four days of work, they were not happy. That's when one of them told me to -- that they want to talk to the boss.

Q. And what were they like as workers? How did they perform?

A. They were not country guys, country workers, they were like more like city workers and they couldn't stand the -- they couldn't perform the work.

Q. What did you do to help them, if anything?

A. I would come to them, I would work along with them and I show them how to do things and teach them how to move, how to bend, teach them everything, and they couldn't do the work.

Q. And what types of work were they doing while they were there?

A. Cut asparagus.

Q. Is that hard work?

A. Yes, it's tough. It's the toughest work we have.

Q. When they asked to speak to Russell, what did you do?

MR. HEYMAN-KANTOR: Objection, that's not in evidence.

MR. SCHULTE: He just testified that they had asked to speak with Russell to talk about their working conditions.

JUDGE TIMLIN: Well, I think he said they asked to talk to the boss.

MR. SCHULTE: Oh, I'm sorry.

BY MR. SCHULTE:

Q. When they asked to talk to the boss, what did you do?

A. I told him, but he couldn't come that day or the next day because he was very busy and he was until they decide to stop complete, but he come to the camp.

Q. Okay. And just to clear a couple -- when you said the boss, who was that?

A. Russell.

Q. Okay.

A. Russell, Jr.

Q. And when you said they quit, you mean they stopped for the day or they stopped altogether?

A. I think that some of them, they stop for the day and the last day, they find out that they -- they decide not to continue and they stop, they quit --

Q. Did you tell them they couldn't work?

A. No. No, I didn't say that.

Q. Okay. Did Sun Valley need them to keep working?

A. Yes, we had all those -- it was very hot.

Q. How many people were in that group?

A. Nineteen. Nineteen, twenty guys.

Q. Is that a big part of the Sun Valley workforce at the time?

A. Yes, just about the highest --

Q. Okay. And after you told Russell about their concerns, did he come and meet with them?

A. Yes.

Q. Did anyone else meet with them?

A. Joe Marino.

Q. Okay. And where was the meeting?

A. At the camp.

Q. Okay. What did the workers say when Russell got there?

A. They were -- I don't even know, I don't even remember what some people they say, but they would say that they wouldn't be able -- they won't keep working, and Russell Marino was asking what was wrong, but then they never say anything about the camp; it was the work, that they couldn't perform it.

Q. What did they say about the work?
A. That it was too hard, they wanted to leave.
Q. Okay.
A. They decide to leave.
Q. And did they say that to Russell and Joe?
A. Yes.
Q. What did Russell and Joe say to them?
A. He was trying to convince them, trying to convince them to stay, but then they say okay, you want to go, that's fine.
Q. And you can't force them to work if they don't want to?
A. No, no.
Q. And so did that group decide, as a group, to leave?
A. There was about five, five or six guys that they were more likely to go. The other guys, some of the other guys, they were like -- I see them like they want to stay, but they were pulling -- I don't know how to say it, but they were talking -- they were like a little --
JUDGE TIMLIN: Mr. Hernandez, if it's easier for you, you can tell the story in Spanish and it can be translated for you.
THE WITNESS: Okay.
JUDGE TIMLIN: Because if you're having trouble with the English words, that's why we have the translator here.

THE WITNESS: Okay.

JUDGE TIMLIN: Okay?

THE WITNESS: Yes.

JUDGE TIMLIN: So do you want to continue the story?

THE WITNESS: That time when he came or they, the bosses, they came out of the room and Russell Marino told them what the problem was. And they began to say that the work was too hard and they wanted to leave. Russell Marino was a little bit upset. When Mr. Joey arrived, Mr. Joe told them that it was fine if they left, that that was new to them, they could leave. And he told them it was fine for them to leave, but we needed them to sign the document saying that it was voluntary, it was a voluntary decision, that they wanted to leave.

BY MR. SCHULTE:

Q. And was it a voluntary decision?

A. Yes, they decided. They were the ones who decided.

Q. Just to clarify, I don't know if it's the translation. When Russell arrived, did he say -- did you say he said what the problem was or he asked what the problem was?

A. He asked what the problem was.

Q. Thank you. Do you know if the workers were from the same area as one another?

A. Yes, they were. I don't know if they were from the same town, but they were from the same state, yes.

Q. And how many other H-2A workers other than those in the group did you have at the time?

A. There still were, there were like 15 to 20. Twenty.

Q. And where those workers from the same area in Mexico as the workers in the group?

A. No. Some were, some weren't, but many weren't.

Q. Did any of those workers quit?

A. No.

Q. Were those workers doing the same type of work as those workers in that group?

MR. HEYMAN-KANTOR: Objection, leading.

MR. SCHULTE: Were they.

JUDGE TIMLIN: Were they is -- I mean, it's still asking for yes or no.

MR. SCHULTE: Okay.

THE WITNESS: Si.

MR. HEYMAN-KANTOR: No, don't.

JUDGE TIMLIN: But -- yeah. Let's see if he can rephrase it. We're not going to count that answer.

BY MR. SCHULTE:

Q. What type of work were the workers who stayed doing?

A. The same thing, cutting asparagus, the same type of work.

Q. And where were those workers living?

A. In the fields, in the dormitories in the fields.

Q. And how did those workers get their meals?

A. Through me, in the kitchen.
Q. Other than that group of 19 workers, did any of the other workers there complain about the housing?
A. No, none.
Q. I should -- sorry, I'm sorry. I didn't mean to step on you. To clarify, did any of those workers complain about housing at the meeting with Russ and Joe?
MR. HEYMAN-KANTOR: Objection, confusing.
JUDGE TIMLIN: It's okay, he can ask it.
THE WITNESS: Not with me, not with him, no.
BY MR. SCHULTE:
Q. Did any of the workers outside that group complain about the work conditions?
A. No.
Q. In your 27 years at Sun Valley, has there ever been a group this large that's quit?
A. Never. At most, five or six have left, but never 19 or 20.
MR. SCHULTE: Nothing further, Your Honor. Thank you.
JUDGE TIMLIN: Any recross?
MR. HEYMAN-KANTOR: Can we have a short break?
JUDGE TIMLIN: Yeah, it's a good time to take a short break, 10 minutes. But actually, 10 minutes we'll go off the record. Can I see counsel up here for a minute?

(Off the record at 11:21 a.m.)

(On the record at 11:31 a.m.)

JUDGE TIMLIN: Mr. Schulte had finished, so Mr. Heyman-Kantor, you're back up again.

REDIRECT EXAMINATION

BY MR. HEYMAN-KANTOR:

Q. So at this May 2015 meeting, were you translating?

A. No.

Q. Is it possible that some of the workers didn't understand what Russell Marino was saying?

MR. SCHULTE: Objection. How does he know what the workers understood?

JUDGE TIMLIN: If he knows.

THE WITNESS: Russell was speaking in Spanish.

BY MR. HEYMAN-KANTOR:

Q. Is it possible that some of the workers didn't understand what he was saying?

MR. SCHULTE: Objection, same question. Asked and answered.

JUDGE TIMLIN: I'll allow it.

THE WITNESS: No, he speaks very well.

BY MR. HEYMAN-KANTOR:

Q. So after this meeting, then, you distributed these departure forms to the workers?

A. Yes.

MR. HEYMAN-KANTOR: Those are all the questions I had. I just wanted to make sure, I had it in my notes that PX-17-1 was admitted, is that right?

JUDGE TIMLIN: Yes, 17-1, 17-2, and 17-3 were all admitted.

MR. HEYMAN-KANTOR: Okay.

JUDGE TIMLIN: There were objections to 17-2, but I did admit it.

MR. SCHULTE: Just to clarify before a quick --

JUDGE TIMLIN: Um-hum.

MR. SCHULTE: I guess it's redirect. For 2, it was admitted as a business record, but not necessarily -- because there's a double hearsay issue as to the representations by the workers, so that was the part that was --

JUDGE TIMLIN: Right, okay. Yeah, I -- in terms of whether or not it was their signatures?

MR. SCHULTE: What the significance is of that.

JUDGE TIMLIN: What's the significance of the signature? Okay. I understand that, yeah.

MR. SCHULTE: Okay.

MR. HEYMAN-KANTOR: But --

JUDGE TIMLIN: Okay.

MR. HEYMAN-KANTOR: -- is that an inadmissibility issue or --

JUDGE TIMLIN: It's not, it's a purpose -- it's not really, it goes -- it doesn't really go to the admissibility so much as what value I'm going to take from it.

So okay, Mr. Schulte.

MR. SCHULTE: A couple questions.

RECROSS-EXAMINATION

BY MR. SCHULTE:

Q. Counsel just asked about the forms that you gave to the workers; is that right?

A. Yes.

Q. Was Russell there when the workers completed the forms?

A. I don't think so.

Q. Did he tell them which box to check?

A. He told them that they could mark whatever box was best for them. He did not want to compromise them.

Q. Do you know if any of the workers spoke with anyone in Mexico before completing the form?

A. On the last day of work, yes, they spoke to their local agent in Mexico.

Q. Do you know what they spoke about?

MR. HEYMAN-KANTOR: Objection, foundation. I don't know how he would know this.

MR. SCHULTE: My question is do you know.

JUDGE TIMLIN: Yeah, it was a "do you know" question, so it can go. You can answer it.

THE WITNESS: What was the question?

BY MR. SCHULTE:

Q. Of course. Do you know what they talked about with that person?

A. Yes, because I was there so I heard the conversation and they were wondering what they should do and whether this would compromise their position if they left because the work was very heavy.

Q. Did you talk to someone on the phone?

A. The local agent did ask to speak with me, and I did, and he asked me if I thought the work was too heavy and I said yes.

Q. Did the Marinos -- oh, sorry.

THE INTERPRETER: The interpreter would like to correct.

THE WITNESS: He asked me if the work was heavy and I said yes.

MR. SCHULTE: Thank you.

BY MR. SCHULTE:

Q. Did the Marinos tell you how to run the kitchen?

MR. HEYMAN-KANTOR: Objection, outside of the scope.

JUDGE TIMLIN: It is outside of the scope of the recross, so I'm not sure how you'd get there.

MR. SCHULTE: Okay.

JUDGE TIMLIN: Okay.

MR. SCHULTE: Nothing further, then.

JUDGE TIMLIN: Okay. Do you have anything else?

MR. HEYMAN-KANTOR: Nothing, Your Honor.

JUDGE TIMLIN: Okay, so my turn. I want to understand a little bit about this meal plan. Did the way that the meals were provided change in 2015 from how they had been done in 2014?

THE WITNESS: The only thing that changed was the cost. In 2014 it was a little less expensive and it cost a little more in 2015.

JUDGE TIMLIN: Okay. So you were still the person who was in charge of running this meal plan?

THE WITNESS: Yes.

JUDGE TIMLIN: Okay. And I thought that at one point you said that Russell Marino told you that you could charge the workers for the meals, but of what I wasn't sure is whether you were talking about junior or senior.

THE WITNESS: Junior.

JUDGE TIMLIN: Okay. And from the money that you charged for the meals, what did you do with that money after you got the money, what did you use it for?

THE WITNESS: I buy all the things that are necessary from three different stores and I pay the cooks.

JUDGE TIMLIN: And there's three cooks that you're paying?

THE WITNESS: Yes.

JUDGE TIMLIN: Do you pay them by the hour or do you pay them a certain amount a week?

THE WITNESS: A certain amount per week.

JUDGE TIMLIN: You receive all your pay from Sun Valley Orchards?

THE WITNESS: Correct.

JUDGE TIMLIN: Okay. Are you paid by the hour or are you paid a certain amount per week?

THE WITNESS: Per hour and commission.

JUDGE TIMLIN: What is your commission based on?

THE WITNESS: The product that is packaged.

JUDGE TIMLIN: Okay, so if you successfully package more asparagus, you actually get a little extra money?

THE WITNESS: Correct.

JUDGE TIMLIN: So if you're working by the -- if you're being paid by the hour, what is your schedule?

THE WITNESS: The same as the workers except for an extra hour at the end of the day, or half an hour.

JUDGE TIMLIN: Okay. And how many days a week are you working those hours?

THE WITNESS: Seven days.

JUDGE TIMLIN: So when you go to buy the groceries for the meal plan, are you doing that during your hours that you're working for Sun Valley Orchard?

THE WITNESS: No, I don't go to the stores to make a purchase. Two stores make deliveries and I send my wife to the other store.

JUDGE TIMLIN: Okay. The stores that make deliveries, who orders the food?

THE WITNESS: I do.

JUDGE TIMLIN: And when do you order the food?

THE WITNESS: Thursdays or Fridays.

JUDGE TIMLIN: Okay. And when does your wife go to the third store?

THE WITNESS: On Saturdays.

JUDGE TIMLIN: Okay. Do the cooks work on Saturdays and Sundays?

THE WITNESS: Seven days.

JUDGE TIMLIN: How many meals a day was your wife preparing?

THE WITNESS: Usually, two. We give them coffee and bread in the morning and then she cooks for lunch and dinner.

JUDGE TIMLIN: Okay. What happens if the money that you take from the employees is not enough to cover the cost of the food and the cooks?

THE WITNESS: That does happen during the first four or five weeks of the season and then I put in money from my own pocket.

JUDGE TIMLIN: Okay. And then later in the summer does it work the other way, that you actually get extra money than what you're spending?

THE WITNESS: Yes, as the summer goes along, there are more people there and then there's more money and so then slowly I begin to recuperate what I've invested.

JUDGE TIMLIN: Do you make a profit?

THE WITNESS: No.

JUDGE TIMLIN: Are you paying your wife's wages?

THE WITNESS: Yes.

JUDGE TIMLIN: And the other two cooks, are they related to you?

THE WITNESS: No.

JUDGE TIMLIN: Okay. At one point I think you said that there was a point at which Sun Valley Orchards wanted to know what you were spending the money on and you told them it was for food, but I wanted to know when you said -- who at Sun Valley Orchards wanted to know?

THE WITNESS: I wasn't referring to Sun Valley. I was referring to the Department of Labor.

JUDGE TIMLIN: When did you talk to the Department of Labor?

THE WITNESS: In 2015, yes.

JUDGE TIMLIN: Okay. And that was the U.S. Department of Labor and not the New Jersey Department of Labor?

THE WITNESS: It wasn't state, it was federal.

JUDGE TIMLIN: Okay, yeah. Okay. I know that out in the fields you sold soda and you said you did not sell bottled water. Okay.

THE WITNESS: No, I do not sell water in bottles.

JUDGE TIMLIN: Was there water available at the fields?

THE WITNESS: Yes.

JUDGE TIMLIN: Describe what you had available there for water.

THE WITNESS: So we have two trucks and on those trucks there are water jugs. There might be four, maybe five water jugs and as they get empty, then I send somebody to refill them.

JUDGE TIMLIN: And are they refilled from tap water?

THE WITNESS: Yes.

JUDGE TIMLIN: Have the workers ever said anything to you about their concern about drinking tap water?

THE WITNESS: No, not that year, but before that, I did get a couple of complaints, but the problem was that there was a problem with the filter.

JUDGE TIMLIN: So do these jugs have filters?

THE WITNESS: No, where we go to fill them.

JUDGE TIMLIN: Oh, okay. Where do you go to fill them?

THE WITNESS: We would go back to the camp and when there was a problem there, then I would go to another packaging place that also has water and filled them there.

JUDGE TIMLIN: Okay. Okay, I'm not quite sure I understand what "the camp" means.

THE WITNESS: The dorms.

JUDGE TIMLIN: Oh, okay. And this water that's -- these jugs that are on the truck, are they kept cool in any way?

THE WITNESS: Yes, I do freeze water in gallon containers and I put in a whole gallon of ice in, in the morning.

JUDGE TIMLIN: Okay. Mr. Heyman-Kantor was asking you some questions about the prices of the sodas and the Monster and Red Bull drinks that you buy and I might have some of the numbers wrong, but you were buying sodas in 24-packs?

THE WITNESS: Sometimes 24 and sometimes they would come in packs of 30.

JUDGE TIMLIN: Okay. And that was from Sam's Club?

THE WITNESS: Yes.

JUDGE TIMLIN: Okay. And how much, generally, was a pack of soda costing you?

THE WITNESS: About, I'm not sure, maybe 12, 13, but I'm not really sure.

JUDGE TIMLIN: Dollars? Twelve to thirteen dollars?

THE WITNESS: Yes.

JUDGE TIMLIN: Okay. And then you were selling for about -- at one point you said 75 cents, then you said maybe a dollar per can.

THE WITNESS: Yes.

JUDGE TIMLIN: In the dormitory you said that there are six worker bedrooms with bunk beds and I missed the number of bunk beds that you said there were.

THE WITNESS: So in five of the dorms there are 18 to 12 -- I'm sorry, 18 to 20 bunk beds and then in the small room there's about eight. No, no, that can't be right. Maybe 10 or 12 bunk beds.

JUDGE TIMLIN: And so you're sleeping -- in one of the rooms you can sleep maybe up to 40 guys and in the smaller room up to about 24 guys?

THE WITNESS: No, there's 20 sleeping in each room.

JUDGE TIMLIN: Okay, okay. Got it. The free transportation, is it in a school bus or a van?

THE WITNESS: It's a small school bus.

JUDGE TIMLIN: Okay. Is that the thing that your son drives?

THE WITNESS: Yes.

JUDGE TIMLIN: Was he driving it in 2015?

THE WITNESS: No.

JUDGE TIMLIN: But now, in --

THE WITNESS: Now, yes.

JUDGE TIMLIN: Okay. And is that available to take guys to the Laundromat whenever they need to go to the Laundromat?

THE WITNESS: Yes. If they ask me, yes.

JUDGE TIMLIN: Okay. How many trips to the Laundromat are you making -- or the bus is making a week? Yeah, 2015. Sorry.

THE WITNESS: In 2015, they were going twice a week.

JUDGE TIMLIN: Okay. And did it go any other places besides the Laundromat and the fields?

THE WITNESS: No.

JUDGE TIMLIN: Okay. So if someone wanted to go somewhere else, I think you said you just referred to "those guys." I'm not sure what you meant by "those guys."

THE WITNESS: The other workers that have cars.

JUDGE TIMLIN: And who are those other workers? They're not H-2A guys?

THE WITNESS: In 2015 there were two that were not H-2A.

JUDGE TIMLIN: Okay. And they had cars?

THE WITNESS: Yes.

JUDGE TIMLIN: Okay. At one point in 2015, the peppers caught a disease and you had to let some workers done (verbatim) and you said --

THE INTERPRETER: I'm sorry, Your Honor. You had to let the workers?

JUDGE TIMLIN: I'm sorry, the workers go. Sorry. Let the workers go. And you said that Russell Marino told you to tell the workers, but again, I don't know if you meant junior or senior.

THE WITNESS: Junior.

JUDGE TIMLIN: Okay. And I think you said nobody volunteered to leave?

THE WITNESS: No.

JUDGE TIMLIN: So you picked out the guys that you felt were the troublemakers?

THE WITNESS: Yes.

JUDGE TIMLIN: And this happened after the group in May, the 19 guys left the job?

THE WITNESS: Yes, correct.

JUDGE TIMLIN: So what were these guys complaining about that you thought they were troublemakers?

THE WITNESS: There were about six or seven who always complained; they were complaining about the work, they were complaining and saying that, you know, they weren't earning as much as other places, and other places the work was better. And then the others I just picked randomly.

JUDGE TIMLIN: And you let go 44 guys?

THE WITNESS: Yes.

JUDGE TIMLIN: It's all guys; it's all men, right?

THE WITNESS: Yes.

JUDGE TIMLIN: Okay. And I think Mr. Heyman-Kantor was asking you some questions about people working on weekends and you said of the 44 there were only about six or seven -- of the 44 that you let go, only six or seven of them did not work weekends?

THE WITNESS: Yes, correct.

JUDGE TIMLIN: Okay. Did you keep anyone on the job who did not work weekends?

THE WITNESS: Of course.

JUDGE TIMLIN: Okay. How many guys did you keep, total?

THE WITNESS: If I'm not mistaken, about 60, there were about 60.

JUDGE TIMLIN: So you had about a hundred guys; you let go 44, kept 60?

THE WITNESS: Correct.

JUDGE TIMLIN: And out of that 60 that stayed, how many of them did not work on weekends?

THE WITNESS: There were several of them, but it wasn't every weekend. Sometimes they would just ask for a day off and they needed rest and I would say it was okay.

JUDGE TIMLIN: And at that point in the summer were you still working seven days a week? The guys, were the workers still working seven days a week?

THE WITNESS: So, yes, but after the work slowed down, then we would take Sundays off sometimes to rest.

JUDGE TIMLIN: Okay. In the dormitories where the bunk beds are, you said there also are lockers for storage?

THE WITNESS: Correct.

JUDGE TIMLIN: Are there as many lockers as there are beds?

THE WITNESS: In one room, no. It's a little less.

JUDGE TIMLIN: And which room is that?

THE WITNESS: About five, number five.

JUDGE TIMLIN: Okay, is it one of the big rooms or one of the smaller rooms?

THE WITNESS: One of the big ones.

JUDGE TIMLIN: And it's about how many short? How many --

THE WITNESS: I'm not sure, but I think about two. In all, it's about four or five.

JUDGE TIMLIN: Okay. So if all of the beds were full, maybe four or five guys would not have lockers?

THE WITNESS: More or less.

JUDGE TIMLIN: How often in 2015 were all the beds filled?

THE WITNESS: Almost never.

JUDGE TIMLIN: You described the workers, the unhappy workers at the meeting in May as being city workers not country workers, and I just wanted to know what you meant by calling them city workers.

THE WITNESS: I asked the others that knew them and they said that they weren't used to working hard and that they lived in towns. So they did other types of work in Mexico, so they weren't used to heavy work on the farm and so that's why I said that they were city.

JUDGE TIMLIN: So city workers are not hard workers, I say, as a city worker?

(Laughter.)

THE WITNESS: Some, yes.

MR. SCHULTE: If you want to trade, we could arrange a swap for a week or something.

JUDGE TIMLIN: That's okay. I'm too fair. I don't do that well in the sun. Okay.

Then you had this meeting. You were at the meeting, also, that Russell Jr. came to with the workers who were unhappy in May?

THE WITNESS: Yes.

JUDGE TIMLIN: And you said Russell Jr. was trying to convince them to stay. When he was trying to convince them to stay, what language was he speaking in?

THE WITNESS: In Spanish. But he was telling them that we had a lot of work, and if they left, that that was going to compromise us.

JUDGE TIMLIN: Okay. At what point in the meeting did Joe Marino show up?

THE WITNESS: Not even 10 minutes. Five, ten minutes after.

JUDGE TIMLIN: Did he say anything to anyone?

THE WITNESS: No.

JUDGE TIMLIN: How long did the meeting last?

THE WITNESS: Fifteen minutes, maybe a little more.

JUDGE TIMLIN: How many of the workers spoke up?

THE WITNESS: I only remember one.

JUDGE TIMLIN: Okay. So that's all I have, so we go back to Mr. Heyman-Kantor. Anything off of what I had?

MR. HEYMAN-KANTOR: I do have a few questions.

FURTHER REDIRECT EXAMINATION

BY MR. HEYMAN-KANTOR:

Q. Mr. Hernandez, you said partly your pay is based on a commission?

A. Yes.

Q. And that's based on how much the workers -- how hard the workers work?

MR. SCHULTE: Objection, Your Honor. That's not what he testified. Mischaracterizes testimony.

JUDGE TIMLIN: I'm going to allow it. Go ahead.

THE WITNESS: It depends on how much is picked, not how hard they work.

BY MR. HEYMAN-KANTOR:

Q. So the more they pick, the more you earn?

A. Well, not necessarily.

Q. Well, explain that. If the workers pick twice as much one week than the prior week, won't you get paid more in the week they pick twice as much?

A. Yes, of course, but that doesn't happen.

Q. But your pay varies somewhat from one week to another?

A. Yes, it varies.

Q. And that's, in part, based on -- that the commission bears?

A. Yes.

Q. And that's because the amount the workers pick varies from one week to another?

A. Yes, because sometimes there's less, sometimes there's more.

Q. I want to ask you a bit more about the meal plan. Am I right that in 2014, Sun Valley, itself, paid the cooks for their wages?

A. Yes.

Q. And in 2015, you paid the cooks?

A. Yes.

Q. And in 2016, you paid the cooks?

MR. SCHULTE: Objection, Your Honor. This is the same issue that came up before. I'm not aware of any violations related to 2016.

MR. HEYMAN-KANTOR: In 2016, on their job order, they talk about how it's their meal plan, so it's the same meal plan.

MR. SCHULTE: And it's the same objection. That has nothing to do with what happened in 2015.

MR. HEYMAN-KANTOR: There was a question -- this goes to the issue of agency, of whose meal plan is it. Is it the Sun Valley meal plan or is it the meal plan at --

JUDGE TIMLIN: Okay.

MR. SCHULTE: You can't retroactively create agency based on what they did a year later.

MR. HEYMAN-KANTOR: It's not retroactive, it's -- if they're sometimes calling it their meal plan, sometimes they're saying it's not their meal plan, that speaks to whether it's the Sun Valley meal plan.

MR. SCHULTE: There's nothing in the -- well, first of all, that's not in evidence so, I mean, talking about what's in the 2016 plan. We can represent the 2016 plan does not say it's their meal plan.

JUDGE TIMLIN: Now I've lost track of the question. We don't have violations for 2016, but is this something that comes into the civil money penalty calculation?

MR. HEYMAN-KANTOR: No, Your Honor, it goes to the issue of agency.

JUDGE TIMLIN: Okay. And are you trying to tell us that there was something -- or are you trying to establish that there was something different in 2015 from 2016?

MR. SCHULTE: No, we aren't talking about 2016 at all. I'm trying to find out what they are.

JUDGE TIMLIN: Was there -- okay. I'm going to allow the question for now. I'll sort it out later when -- I mean, there's a difference, I think, when you're dealing with this in ALJ trials and you're not dealing with a jury. It's easier to be a little bit more lax about what comes in and what doesn't come in because I'll figure it out later whether it's relevant or not.

MR. HEYMAN-KANTOR: Fair enough.

JUDGE TIMLIN: Okay. So yes, the question can be asked -- not that I remember the question, but go ahead.

BY MR. HEYMAN-KANTOR:

Q. So in 2014, Sun Valley paid direct -- itself, paid the cooks in the kitchen?

A. Yes.

Q. In 2015, you paid the cooks?

A. Yes.

Q. And in 2016, the meal plan and the kitchen operations were the same as the meal plan and the kitchen operations in 2015?

A. Yes.

Q. Earlier, you were talking a bit about the limit for the amount that can be charged for meals. You knew about that limit -- did you know about that limit --

JUDGE TIMLIN: Okay, here's the problem, Mr. Heyman-Kantor, because I'm going to stop you, because what you should be focusing on now is questions that came up based on my questions.

MR. HEYMAN-KANTOR: Yes.

JUDGE TIMLIN: And I'm not sure that I was asking any questions about this.

MR. HEYMAN-KANTOR: I may be wrong; I thought you asked him where he got the limit on the charges for the meal plans from.

JUDGE TIMLIN: I don't think I did, but okay. I'll allow it for now, but I'm just warning you to -- you know, you have to keep your recross based on what I raised just as I'll do the same with Mr. Schulte. So I'll allow that question, but not again. I've lost the question.

MR. HEYMAN-KANTOR: You know, I'll just move on to --

JUDGE TIMLIN: Okay.

MR. HEYMAN-KANTOR: -- another topic.

JUDGE TIMLIN: Yeah.

BY MR. HEYMAN-KANTOR:

Q. All right, so were those buses -- could workers use those buses to get to the Laundromat in 2015 during the whole season or just later on in the season?

A. Any time they asked me for it, it was at their disposal and I remember sending it out once or twice a week.

Q. And that was starting from the very beginning of the season?

A. Yes.

Q. And until the very end of 2015?

A. Yes.

Q. Open your deposition transcript and take a look at page 267. Take a look at line 4. I'm going to read starting on line 4.

"Question: Sun Valley, in 2015, Sun Valley's workers used Sun Valley's buses to travel to the Laundromat?

"Answer: Yes, a few times."

Did I read that correctly?

A. Yes.

MR. HEYMAN-KANTOR: I have no further questions.

JUDGE TIMLIN: Okay. Mr. Schulte.

MR. SCHULTE: Thank you, Your Honor. I'll try to be brief.

FURTHER RECROSS-EXAMINATION

BY MR. SCHULTE:

Q. The Judge asked you about your conversation with Russell Jr. about charging for meals. Did Russell ever tell you how to run the kitchen?

A. No.

Q. They didn't pick the menu?

A. No, never.

Q. Okay. You mentioned buying food and paying the cooks. Did you do anything else with the meal money in 2015?

A. No, it was for what it was intended for.

Q. Did you buy anything to put in the kitchen?

A. We always are buying little things like a microwave or a blender and then replacing things that get broken.

Q. She asked you if the amount that the workers pay for meal charges was less than the amount that you paid in expenses, you would bear that loss, right?

A. Yes, sometimes.

Q. Did Sun Valley give you money to cover that loss?

A. No.

Q. There's a question about the water quality. Were you there when the New Jersey Department of Labor did the water inspection in 2015?

A. It was the water company that did the inspection. The Department of Labor never tried the water.

Q. Okay, but they did -- there was an outside inspection done in 2015?

A. Yes.

Q. Do they do that every year?

A. Yes.
Q. There were questions about the commission for pay. Is that based on the quality of what's picked or just the total weight?
A. More than anything, it's the quality of the product.
Q. Okay. And you're paid based on the amount of asparagus that's packed out, you know, good quality asparagus that's packed out, you get a commission for that?
A. Yes.
Q. So without workers to cut asparagus in 2015 for part of the year, you would earn less money, right?
A. Yes.
Q. Did the New Jersey Department of Labor count the number of beds when they did their inspection?
A. The truth is I did not see it.
Q. Okay. When do you go to buy drinks, is that during work hours or do you go at night?
A. I send my wife during the day and sometimes I go at night and sometimes I go with my wife at night.
Q. Okay. Did Sun Valley start using a charter bus company or an outside bus company to take workers to the Laundromat at some point?
A. Yes, in 2016 they started from the beginning.
Q. Did they do it in 2015 late in the year?
A. I'm not sure.

Q. Okay. You talked about the number of beds that were used. How many open beds were there at different times in 2015 in the housing?

A. About 15 or 20.

Q. At the meeting in May, did you translate for Joe at all?

A. No.

Q. Okay. And the reason, on the commission we talked about before about the quality, what would happen if you didn't have standards for the quality for what was picked?

A. If the product is bad, then it gets thrown out and I don't get a commission.

MR. SCHULTE: Okay, thank you.

JUDGE TIMLIN: Okay.

MR. HEYMAN-KANTOR: Just a couple questions, very few, I think.

FURTHER REDIRECT EXAMINATION

BY MR. HEYMAN-KANTOR:

Q. Where do you keep the money when workers purchase drinks? Where do you keep the money?

MR. SCHULTE: Objection, Your Honor, that's beyond the scope of my questions and I think your questions.

MR. HEYMAN-KANTOR: It goes to, we've been talking about money and how he keeps the money and whether he's, you know, making --

MR. SCHULTE: I don't remember any questions about where money was kept.

MR. HEYMAN-KANTOR: It's not about where they're kept, but just about whether -- the money for the meal plan.

JUDGE TIMLIN: I know I asked him a lot of questions about the meal plan. I'll allow it.

THE INTERPRETER: Could I just have the question repeated?

MR. HEYMAN-KANTOR: Sure.

BY MR. HEYMAN-KANTOR:

Q. When workers bought drinks from you, where did you keep the money?

A. When they buy it during the day, I have a money drawer or a register.

Q. What about when they buy it in the fields?

A. If they pay for it there, then I put it in my pocket.

Q. And where do you keep the money when they buy meals, where is that kept?

A. That I hold on to and then the next day it's used to buy things. On Friday, I receive it and then on Saturday it's used.

Q. And if you're a little bit short on the money for food, say in the beginning of the season, will you use money from the drinks to purchase food?

A. Yes.

Q. And so sometimes you put the money from the meals and the drinks together?

A. Yes, because everything is together. They pay everything together, so yes.

MR. HEYMAN-KANTOR: I have no further questions.

JUDGE TIMLIN: Okay, I still have a question, sorry. The workers all go out to the field together at the same time and then they leave at the end of the day at the same time?

THE WITNESS: Yes, in general, but I often have two to three groups, so they go out in different times and they can come back at different times.

JUDGE TIMLIN: Okay. And are they paid like you, based on how much is picked?

THE WITNESS: Yes, it's according to the quantity and according to the quantity, yes.

JUDGE TIMLIN: But there's a minimum that they have to make to make the -- for their hours, for them to make the minimum wage for their hours?

THE WITNESS: No, it's the opposite. The more they pick, they actually receive a bonus.

JUDGE TIMLIN: Right, I understand. But if they didn't pick enough, they would still get a minimum rate?

THE WITNESS: Yes, the hourly.

JUDGE TIMLIN: Right. And that's in the contract?

THE WITNESS: Yes.

JUDGE TIMLIN: Okay. So that means individual workers can make different amounts based on how much they pick?

THE WITNESS: Yes, but it's not individual, it's per group. If there's a group that has 30 workers, then they're more likely to pick more.

JUDGE TIMLIN: So at the end of the day when you're looking at -- you're kind of assessing the quality of the product, you're looking at it for an entire group, not for each individual picker?

THE WITNESS: Yes, but it's in the packaging. We have a tablet and we enter all that information, the quantity that was picked, and then it comes out. This one comes out of there.

JUDGE TIMLIN: Okay, okay. Why did the meal plan change from 2014 to the way that it was in 2015 where you were paying the cooks rather than Sun Valley?

THE WITNESS: Because before 2015, Sun Valley would pay the cooks and then I would extract from their pay 55 or $60. But it's not that I would take it, they would pay me. And later when they entered the H-2A program in 2015, they decided -- so in 2015, they decided that they were no longer going to pay the cooks because of the higher incurred cost because of the H-2A program.

JUDGE TIMLIN: So was 2015 the first H-2A year for Sun Valley?

THE WITNESS: Correct.

JUDGE TIMLIN: Okay. And what were the cooks paying you for?

THE WITNESS: It was always done like that from many years ago, they always paid for everything.

JUDGE TIMLIN: Okay. In 2015 who picked the menu?

THE WITNESS: The cooks, and then they would check with me.

JUDGE TIMLIN: Is Joe's Spanish as good as Russell Jr.'s?

THE WITNESS: I haven't heard Joe speak Spanish.

JUDGE TIMLIN: Okay, okay. Did that bring up anything for you?

MR. HEYMAN-KANTOR: No, Your Honor.

JUDGE TIMLIN: You?

MR. SCHULTE: Nothing, Your Honor.

JUDGE TIMLIN: All right. Thank you very much, Mr. Hernandez, for your time this morning. You can be excused. Again, as I told everybody, because there's a sequestration order in place, you can't discuss your testimony with anyone who might be a witness in this case until the hearing is over.

THE WITNESS: Can I say one more thing?

JUDGE TIMLIN: Yeah.

THE WITNESS: There's been a lot of talk now about food and there's been a lot of interest in the food and in the meals, and I just want to clarify that I don't do it and I've never done it with an interest in making a profit. And I've always been involved in the meal production and in the food and there's never been an issue, there's never been a complaint as there was in 2015.

JUDGE TIMLIN: Okay.

THE WITNESS: That's it.

JUDGE TIMLIN: Thank you.

(Witness excused.)

JUDGE TIMLIN: Okay, all right. We can go off the record.

(Whereupon, at 12:34 p.m. a lunch recess was taken and the proceedings were reconvened at 2:11 p.m.)

AFTERNOON SESSION

(2:11 p.m.)

JUDGE TIMLIN: Okay, we're on the record and I'll note for the record that the translators that we're using today for this hearing are the same two translators that we used from Mexico yesterday, and so I'm just reminding you that you're still sworn and under oath to translate faithfully.

Okay. Mr. Zavala Almanza, I need you to raise your right hand.

Whereupon,

PEDRO ZAVALA ALMANZA

was called as a witness by and on behalf of the Plaintiff, and after having been first duly sworn, was examined and testified as follows:

JUDGE TIMLIN: Okay, thank you. Just let him know, also, that he needs to say yes or no and not nod his head or say uh-huh, okay?

All right. Yeah, turn the camera, too.

MR. HEYMAN-KANTOR: Can you hear me?

THE INTERPRETER: Yes.

DIRECT EXAMINATION

BY MR. HEYMAN-KANTOR:

Q. Can you please state your name for the record?

A. Pedro Zavala Almanza.

Q. Did you work at Sun Valley Orchards?

A. Yes.
Q. When?
A. 2015.
Q. Do you remember when during 2015, you worked at Sun Valley?
A. I think it was June and July.
Q. Is it possible you worked from the beginning part of August?
A. Yes, I think so.
Q. Did you work on the H-2A visa or on some other visa?
A. H-2A.
Q. And what did you do at Sun Valley?
A. I would pick peach and also cucumber, the small kind of cucumber. And also a large kind of cucumber. We also planted cucumbers. We also picked green peppers. And we would remove the stakes from the soil in the green pepper crops. And we would also remove the wooden stakes from the crops. We would also place the wooden stakes in the soil.
Q. What was it like working at Sun Valley?
A. It was a bit hard, but we never said no.
Q. Who supervised you?
A. I just remember that they called him Chal.
Q. And who supervised him?
A. Agustin.
Q. What was Agustin like?

A. He was a bit tough to workers.
Q. And did he ever directly supervise you?
A. Yes.
Q. How often did he supervise you?
A. I don't understand your question.
Q. Who decided the hours that you worked?
A. Agustin.
Q. And what were the hours that you worked?
A. From 5:00 or 6:00 a.m. to 5:00 or 6:00 p.m.
Q. And could you work fewer hours if you wanted to?
A. Yes, I knew I could.
Q. Were there bathrooms in the fields?
A. No, only at the green pepper ranch, that's where there was bathrooms.
Q. So how did you go to the bathrooms in the field?
MR. SCHULTE: Objection, Your Honor. If I could interject.
JUDGE TIMLIN: Okay, wait. Wait, wait.
MR. HEYMAN-KANTOR: Wait. Wait a second.
MR. SCHULTE: So just --
(Crosstalk.)
JUDGE TIMLIN: Okay, wait. Wait.
MR. HEYMAN-KANTOR: Hold on one second.
JUDGE TIMLIN: I'm sorry, there was an objection, so I want to hear the objection before he --

MR. HEYMAN-KANTOR: There's an objection.

JUDGE TIMLIN: Before you have him answer the question.

MR. SCHULTE: I'm just trying to see where this is going. I don't believe this is one of the workers for whom a three-quarter guarantee is being sought; is that right?

MR. HEYMAN-KANTOR: That's correct.

MR. SCHULTE: Okay. And he was there after the workers who left in May, so I'm not sure, kind of -- there's no claims related to bathroom usage, related to the work that he did. All of this seems to be -- just in the interest of time, I don't see where any of this is going, what the period he's talking about.

MR. HEYMAN-KANTOR: He worked at Sun Valley, so the conditions of employment there.

JUDGE TIMLIN: But are there issues about the bathroom access for farm workers?

MR. HEYMAN-KANTOR: I think it's, you know, part of -- it's certainly relevant for the workers who had a three-quarter guarantee violation and --

MR. SCHULTE: The ones who -- have you got there?

MR. HEYMAN-KANTOR: Well, what the conditions were like after they left sheds light on what they were like before.

MR. SCHULTE: No, it doesn't. And we've already had three different witnesses to testify as to that.

MR. HEYMAN-KANTOR: It's the same year.

JUDGE TIMLIN: I understand it's the same year, but what -- are there claims that are specific to this, to these guys who came in in June, July, and August?

MR. HEYMAN-KANTOR: Yes, I believe that he is going to testify about how he purchased toilet paper from Agustin and so that's more sales at a profit that were improper.

JUDGE TIMLIN: Okay. So on that, that's fine, but there's not claims -- there's not claims for June, July, and August involving the working conditions in the fields.

MR. SCHULTE: Correct.

MR. HEYMAN-KANTOR: Correct.

JUDGE TIMLIN: Okay, so --

MR. HEYMAN-KANTOR: Well, the housing, but --

MR. SCHULTE: No, there are no claims related to that. Generally, to the housing, that's come in, but that's not -- it's not to do with the workers choosing to leave.

MR. HEYMAN-KANTOR: I can make an offer of proof that this witness would testify about how he purchased toilet paper from Agustin at inflated prices.

JUDGE TIMLIN: Okay, I think we've gotten to that question. I thought you were talking about the issues about bathrooms in the fields. Is that -- how is that --

MR. HEYMAN-KANTOR: Right. It's relevant to the purchases of toilet paper. If there are bathrooms with toilet paper there, then --

JUDGE TIMLIN: But he's already testified there's no bathrooms in the field.

MR. HEYMAN-KANTOR: Right, which is -- I can ask him whether there was toilet paper in the field, you know, or toilet paper was provided in the field.

MR. SCHULTE: And again, Your Honor, it's not in evidence yet, but just again in the interest of trying to wrap this up, the auditors came through in July and found that there were bathrooms there and that there was toilet paper there; that's specifically not an allegation in the case. That's from the Department's own investigator.

JUDGE TIMLIN: But I am a little concerned about time because I know you guys have, you know, other witnesses too. So to the extent that you're going to question him, I'd like you to kind of focus on violations that affect the period of time when he was working there, okay?

MR. HEYMAN-KANTOR: All right.

JUDGE TIMLIN: So I'm going to sustain the objection. So he does not have to answer that question, okay? I don't know if they --

MR. HEYMAN-KANTOR: I would just like to make, just very briefly --

JUDGE TIMLIN: Yes.

MR. HEYMAN-KANTOR: -- an offer of proof that if he were able to testify, he would -- it would shed light on the working conditions that are relevant to, in our view, to May conditions for the new workers.

JUDGE TIMLIN: I think it would be easier for you to do that if he had been there in May and June and July, but because he didn't come until after that first -- that set of 19 guys left, that becomes more difficult.

MR. HEYMAN-KANTOR: Okay.

JUDGE TIMLIN: So continue.

BY MR. HEYMAN-KANTOR:

Q. Was there water in the fields?

MR. SCHULTE: Again, objection. This is the same thing. There's no allegation about water in the fields. The Wage and Hour investigators came through and found that there was water in the fields and proceeded to put that in their report.

MR. HEYMAN-KANTOR: Wait, hold on.

JUDGE TIMLIN: Just wait because there's an objection.

MR. HEYMAN-KANTOR: This is the same -- there's more of a reason to buy drinks at inflated prices from Agustin, there's no water.

JUDGE TIMLIN: Okay. Well, I'm going to allow that. If there's going to be testimony about the drink buying, then the water in the field becomes relevant so, yes, you can ask that. Yes, you can -- ask him that question and he can answer it.

BY MR. HEYMAN-KANTOR:

Q. All right. Was there water in the fields?

A. Yes.

Q. And what was it like to drink?

A. It was water from the tap, the same water that they had at their ranch.

Q. Was there any problems with the flavor or was it good water?

A. Yes, it tasted differently.

Q. Did it taste good or bad?

A. Bad.

Q. How do you eat at Sun Valley?

A. We ate right there at the ranch.

Q. Were the meals free or did they cost money?

A. They cost money.

Q. How much were they?

A. Eighty dollars. No drinks included.

Q. And who did you pay for the meals?

A. To Agustin.

Q. Did you have a choice about whether to participate?

THE INTERPRETER: Sorry, could you repeat that question for me, please?

MR. HEYMAN-KANTOR: Yeah.

BY MR. HEYMAN-KANTOR:

Q. Did you have a choice about whether to participate in the meal plan?

A. Yes.

Q. Did you participate in the meal plan for the entire growing season?

A. No.

Q. How long did you participate in the meal plan for?

A. For a month.

Q. And why did you participate in it during that time?

THE INTERPRETER: Sorry, could you repeat your question for me, please?

MR. HEYMAN-KANTOR: Yes.

BY MR. HEYMAN-KANTOR:

Q. Why did you participate in the meal plan during that first month?

A. Because Agustin -- the meals. He would always give us the same.

Q. And why did you choose initially to participate in it?

A. Because we didn't know about any other.

Q. And what did you -- so after the month, what did you do?

A. I talked to Agustin, I asked him for permission to see if I was able to cook there. He said that he could not authorize that, that I should buy a stove from Wal-Mart, one of those small stoves, so that I could cook in my room. He said that he was okay with that.

Q. Now, when you say you asked if you could cook there, what did "there" -- where are you referring to?

A. There in my room, where I slept.

Q. You said Agustin could not authorize you to cook in a certain place. What was Agustin talking about?

A. There where he would cook the meals that he was going to feed us.

Q. So could you cook your own meals in the kitchen?

A. No, not in the kitchen, in my room where I slept.

Q. And why did you want to cook in your room?

A. Because I didn't want to eat the exact same food every single day.

Q. So when you started cooking in your bedroom, where did you get food to cook from?

A. From Wal-Mart.

Q. And the food you bought from Wal-Mart, was that more expensive or less expensive than the meal plan?

A. It was cheaper.

Q. Did anyone else cook in the bedroom?

A. Three more friends of mine.

Q. Could everyone cook in the bedroom?

A. Yes, because before we installed that stove there, we asked whether they agreed and they said yes.

Q. Now, could all of the workers at Sun Valley have cooked in their own bedrooms?

MR. SCHULTE: Objection, calls for speculation.

JUDGE TIMLIN: I'm going to allow it.

THE WITNESS: No.

BY MR. HEYMAN-KANTOR:

Q. Why do you say that?

A. Because that started annoying Agustin.

Q. What happened?

A. They started to get upset with the people, my friends, that cooked with me.

Q. Who started to get upset?

A. Agustin.

Q. And to your knowledge, did anyone ask -- anyone else ask to cook in addition to those three people in the bedroom?

A. No, no one else.

Q. Why not?

MR. SCHULTE: Objection, he's asking for why other people didn't do something.

JUDGE TIMLIN: It is somewhat speculative.

THE WITNESS: Because after my three coworkers talked with him, he realized that everyone would want to do the same thing and that's why he became upset with us.

BY MR. HEYMAN-KANTOR:

Q. Who did he become upset with?
A. With my other coworkers that had -- to cook there.
Q. How would you get to the Wal-Mart to buy food?
A. I had to pay so that someone would take me.
Q. How much were the rides?
A. Ten dollars.
Q. Was there any free transportation offered by Sun Valley?
A. No.
Q. I'd like to ask you about drinks. Did you drink anything in the fields?
A. Yes.
Q. Where did you get those drinks from?
A. Agustin would sell them.
Q. And what did he sell?
A. He would sell sodas, Red Bull, Monster.
Q. Anything else?
A. Not in the field.
Q. Where did he sell -- did he sell anything anywhere else?
A. At the ranch.
Q. What did he sell there?
A. Beer.
Q. Anything else?
A. I can only remember that.

Q. Did he sell any soup?
A. I think he sold instant noodle soup called Maruchan.
Q. Did he sell any toilet paper?
THE INTERPRETER: Could you repeat the question for me, please?
BY MR. HEYMAN-KANTOR:
Q. Did he sell toilet paper?
A. Yes.
Q. Any other kinds of drinks?
A. Only sodas, Monsters, and beer. That's what he sold there at the ranch.
Q. And how much did the -- how much did he charge for the sodas?
A. One or two dollars.
Q. How about for the Monsters?
A. Two dollars.
Q. How about for the soup?
A. To be honest, I never bought that soup.
Q. How about the toilet paper?
A. One or two dollars.
Q. Did you ever buy the toilet paper?
A. Yes.
Q. How often?
A. I don't understand your question.
Q. How often did you buy toilet paper from Agustin?

A. Twice a week.
Q. And did you use the toilet paper in the -- at the dormitory or in the fields or somewhere else?
A. I had to take the toilet paper to the field.
Q. Was there no toilet paper provided in the fields?
A. No.
Q. Could you estimate how many other workers purchased toilet paper from Agustin?
A. Approximately around 80 people.
Q. And do you know if they would buy the same amount as you or less or more?
A. We bought the same amount.
Q. I'd like to talk to you about the drinks that you purchased and go through a typical day. When would you purchase the first drink in the day?
A. During the break.
Q. And what time was that?
A. Nine a.m.
THE INTERPRETER: Please wait, the interpreters are going to switch.
(Pause)
BY MR. HEYMAN-KANTOR:
Q. And so you'd buy your first drink at 9:00 a.m. When would you buy your next drink?
A. During our lunch. That would be at noon.

Q. And when would you buy your third drink?
A. When I went back to the house after work.
Q. What time would that be?
A. Around 5:00 and 6:00 p.m.
Q. And in a typical day would you have any more drinks?
A. Only once I bought something, one beer.
Q. How much was the beer?
A. Five U.S. It was like a large family size beer.
Q. In terms of the nonalcoholic drinks, how many would you have? What number of drinks would you have typically in a day?
A. Three to four.
Q. And when would you have the fourth drink?
A. About getting ready to go to bed.
Q. Now, the other workers, the other farm workers, would they have generally -- would they purchase more drinks or fewer drinks or the same number of drinks as you?
A. More or less all drank more or less the same.
Q. And where did you -- from whom did you purchase those drinks?
A. Agustin.
Q. And what about the other workers that you were talking about, where did they buy the drinks?
A. Agustin.
MR. HEYMAN-KANTOR: Just one second.

(Pause)

BY MR. HEYMAN-KANTOR:

Q. So whose decision was it for you to leave -- for you to stop working at Sun Valley?

THE INTERPRETER: Could you repeat the question for me, please?

MR. HEYMAN-KANTOR: Yes.

BY MR. HEYMAN-KANTOR:

Q. Whose decision was it for you to leave, for you to stop working at Sun Valley?

MR. SCHULTE: Objection, Your Honor, there's no three-quarter guarantee for him. This is the same objection as the beginning. The reason that he left or didn't leave --

MR. HEYMAN-KANTOR: Hold on one moment.

MR. SCHULTE: -- is completely irrelevant.

MR. HEYMAN-KANTOR: It's relevant to the -- coerced workers to waive their rights.

JUDGE TIMLIN: Okay, I'm going to allow the question. Go ahead.

MR. SCHULTE: I'm sorry, just for a second, Your Honor.

JUDGE TIMLIN: Sure.

MR. SCHULTE: If there's no three-quarter guarantee plan, there's no right to be waived. He simply -- you know, the reason that he puts down for the form, depending on when he left, there would still be reporting requirements to the Department of Labor and to Homeland Security reporting that an H-2A worker terminated the limit. But there are no rights at issue for him to have waived or not waived.

MR. HEYMAN-KANTOR: This is a practice. There's a group of workers who all were instructed to sign these forms, they were all --

MR. SCHULTE: That's not the testimony --

MR. HEYMAN-KANTOR: -- false and --

MR. SCHULTE: That is not at all the testimony.

MR. HEYMAN-KANTOR: I'm explaining why I'm asking about this.

MR. SCHULTE: You can explain, but you can't make up your own testimony.

JUDGE TIMLIN: Okay. Well, then you have to let him ask so we can get actual testimony, so I'm going to allow the question.

MR. SCHULTE: I'm sorry, Your Honor, but he's had five witnesses already talk about the forms.

JUDGE TIMLIN: This is the first witness that has -- that's been -- this is the first farm worker witness who has testified about this period of time after the group that left in May, so I think that it's fine for him to ask about how he came to leave the job and I'm going to allow it.

BY MR. HEYMAN-KANTOR:

Q. Whose decision was it that you stopped working at Sun Valley?

A. They gave us a paper and they asked us to sign the paper.

Q. Who asked you to sign it?

A. Agustin.

Q. Did he say anything to you before he gave you the paper?

A. He said that there was now little work so that we were going to be sent back to Mexico.

Q. And how many people did he say that to?

A. To all the ones that were left there.

Q. Did you have any choice about leaving?

A. No, there was no choice.

Q. Did you want to keep working?

MR. SCHULTE: Objection, Your Honor. This is now way beyond kind of what was provided in the form and what was requested of them in signing the form. His decision to stay or leave is completely irrelevant. There's no claim about his work or being terminated.

MR. HEYMAN-KANTOR: It's relevant to Sun Valley's scheme of instructing workers to complete false forms and misstating why they stopped working at Sun Valley. And he's part of the same group of other workers whose three-quarters violation did occur and so they were all --

MR. SCHULTE: That's fine. You can ask those witnesses; they're all available to you. If you had a worker via violation claim, you could call him.

MR. HEYMAN-KANTOR: It's the same instructions to all the workers regardless of the number of hours they worked.

MR. SCHULTE: Then how can it be a request for a waiver of rights if some of them had rights to waive and some of them didn't?

MR. HEYMAN-KANTOR: It's relevant whether Sun Valley is telling the truth to the Department of Labor or not.

JUDGE TIMLIN: I'm going to allow the question. I think, again, because this is not a jury trial, I'm a lot more liberal about what can come in and what can't come in because I think I have the ability to sort out later, you know, what to base the decision on, so I'm going to allow the testimony.

MR. HEYMAN-KANTOR: All right.

JUDGE TIMLIN: If it ends up not being relevant to any of the violations, then it won't be discussed in the decision.

BY MR. HEYMAN-KANTOR:

Q. Did you want to keep working at Sun Valley when Agustin said this to you?

A. To state the truth, yes, I wanted to perform my contract.

Q. And did you sign any -- did Agustin ask you to sign any documents?

A. Yes.

Q. And what did he say about whether you should sign the document?

THE INTERPRETER: Would you repeat that for me, please?

MR. HEYMAN-KANTOR: Sure.

BY MR. HEYMAN-KANTOR:

Q. What did he tell you with relation to why you should sign the document?

A. He said that we had to sign it, that there was no other choice, that we couldn't do anything about it.

Q. Did he specify what he might do if you didn't sign it?

A. No.

Q. Do you have any understanding of what he might do?

A. No.

Q. Who else was around -- was anyone else around when Agustin asked workers to sign these forms?

A. Yes.

Q. Who else?

A. Russell Marino. And I don't remember the other's last name.

Q. Were there any other farm workers there?

A. Yes.

Q. How many?

A. Around 30.

MR. HEYMAN-KANTOR: All right. Your Honor, after the prehearing statements were filed, this worker sent to us the second half of the departure form, which is in Spanish.

JUDGE TIMLIN: Um-hum.

MR. HEYMAN-KANTOR: I'd like to -- the departure form is, for him, JX-8 page 144, and I'd like to introduce as an exhibit the second -- the bottom half in Spanish, as PX-42.

JUDGE TIMLIN: Have you exchanged it with Mr. Schulte?

MR. HEYMAN-KANTOR: I did send it to him several weeks ago.

JUDGE TIMLIN: Any objection?

MR. SCHULTE: Yes, Your Honor. There's no foundation for this. They haven't explained how this came to them, you know, given any kind of explanation of where the document's from or why it wasn't provided earlier.

MR. HEYMAN-KANTOR: We hadn't provided it earlier because we didn't have it earlier. I would, you know, show it to the witness and ask him to --

JUDGE TIMLIN: Right. I think he can see it and let's lay a foundation and then I'll decide whether or not it can come in.

BY MR. HEYMAN-KANTOR:

Q. So if you could please look, there should be an envelope near you marked DOL03847.

THE INTERPRETER: What's the number again, sir?

MR. HEYMAN-KANTOR: DOL03847.

JUDGE TIMLIN: You said JX-8, but is there a page number?

MR. HEYMAN-KANTOR: Well, the current document is JX-8 page 144. The one I'm showing him is not -- needs to be marked.

JUDGE TIMLIN: Right, right. No, I understand that that would be separate. I was looking for his. Page 144, sorry. Go ahead.

BY MR. HEYMAN-KANTOR:

Q. All right, so if you look there, is that your handwriting on this document?

A. Yes.

Q. And so is this the -- this is the form that you were given by Agustin?

A. Yes.

MR. HEYMAN-KANTOR: I move to admit this as PX-42.

MR. SCHULTE: This doesn't explain how -- what this is that he sent. This is not the form. This is potentially a photograph that was sent possibly through third parties, possibly directly, with no explanation of how they came to have it.

JUDGE TIMLIN: Right. Can you just get some more information about how he came to have this document --

MR. HEYMAN-KANTOR: Okay.

JUDGE TIMLIN: -- who took the picture of it and how it got to --

MR. HEYMAN-KANTOR: Okay.

JUDGE TIMLIN: -- you guys and when it got to you guys?

BY MR. HEYMAN-KANTOR:

Q. How did you obtain this document?

A. Agustin gave it to me.

Q. All right. And did you take a photo of this document?

A. Yes, but my cell phone broke, so I don't have it anymore.

Q. And did you send this photo to anyone?

A. Yes.

Q. And why did you do that?

A. Because I was asked to.

Q. All right. Who asked you to?

A. The Department of Labor. I don't remember the name.

Q. And does this appear to be an accurate copy of the form that you received from Agustin?

A. What do you mean?

Q. Does this look like the form that you took a photo of?

A. Yes.

Q. And did you send this photograph -- do you recall approximately when you sent this photograph?

A. Not exactly, but I think like eight days --

MR. HEYMAN-KANTOR: Move to admit it.

MR. SCHULTE: What was the answer to that?

JUDGE TIMLIN: Eight days ago. He sent it about eight days ago to the Department of Labor.

MR. SCHULTE: Just to the Department?

JUDGE TIMLIN: He said he didn't -- he sent this and he didn't remember who.

MR. SCHULTE: We can sort it out on cross. So this is not the document that he originally had, this is a copy of a photograph of a document.

JUDGE TIMLIN: This is a copy of a photograph. It is of the document he originally had, right. The --

MR. HEYMAN-KANTOR: Right, right.

MR. SCHULTE: Okay.

JUDGE TIMLIN: Okay, so it's admitted.

(Whereupon, the document referred to and previously marked for identification as Plaintiff Exhibit 42 was received into evidence.)

BY MR. HEYMAN-KANTOR:

Q. And why did you check where there's a checkmark there?

A. Because Agustin told me to sign there on that X.

Q. What does it say next to the X?

A. Work has -- there's not much work now and I would like to go back home.

Q. Is that accurate that you wanted to quit?

MR. SCHULTE: Objection, Your Honor, that's not what the form says.

THE WITNESS: No.

JUDGE TIMLIN: What it says is he wanted to go back home. What you asked is, is it accurate that he wanted to quit. Could you just rephrase it to be more --

MR. HEYMAN-KANTOR: All right. You can look at the top of the form. Maybe the interpreter could read what it says next to the person's name at the top right, to the witness in Spanish and then to us in English.

THE INTERPRETER: Do you want me to read it, to read what it says in English?

MR. HEYMAN-KANTOR: Yes, please.

THE INTERPRETER: "My name is Pedro Zavala Almanza. I think I need to quit my job, my job in SVC, Sun Valley farm."

MR. HEYMAN-KANTOR: That's actually --

(Crosstalk.)

THE INTERPRETER: "I have knowledge that I have been offered additional work for the rest of my contract. However, I want to quit now because of the following reason. I understand that it is required by federal law to go back to home immediately and also by the agency of U.S. government which will be notified. I am sick or I have been injured."

MR. HEYMAN-KANTOR: All right.

THE INTERPRETER: Do you want me to read it in Spanish?

MR. SCHULTE: I think the form speaks for itself. You have the English version and the Spanish already. This is a bad use of our time.

MR. HEYMAN-KANTOR: It's fine. I'm going to ask another question.

JUDGE TIMLIN: Yeah, something else.

BY MR. HEYMAN-KANTOR:

Q. Is it true, that beginning part that you wanted to quit your job?

A. No.

Q. All right. Now, that second sentence where it says I've been offered additional work for the rest of my contract, was that true? Were you offered additional work for the rest of your contract?

A. No.

MR. HEYMAN-KANTOR: I have no further questions.

JUDGE TIMLIN: Okay. Okay, let's move the camera and also Mr. Schulte can ask his questions.

CROSS-EXAMINATION

BY MR. SCHULTE:

Q. Good afternoon, sir. Can you hear me okay?

THE INTERPRETER: If you could get closer to the phone, please.

MR. SCHULTE: Okay, I'll try again. Is that better?

THE INTERPRETER: Yes.

BY MR. SCHULTE:

Q. Okay. You mentioned that -- you talked about drinks available at meals. Was water available at the meals?

A. Yes.

Q. Okay. Before you took the job, did you receive a copy of the job contract?

A. I think so.

Q. Did the job contract promise work for the entire period or for some percentage of the period?

THE INTERPRETER: Would you repeat the beginning of the question for me?

MR. SCHULTE: Sure.

BY MR. SCHULTE:

Q. Did the job contract promise you work for each day of the work period or for some part of the work period?

A. It said that there would be work every day if -- that we would be able to work every day if there were work and if we were willing to work.

Q. Okay. Do you remember where it said that in the contract? Is that the exact wording?

A. No.

Q. Okay. You said that Agustin was upset that workers didn't participate in the meal plan; is that right?

A. Yes, I said that.

Q. Did he punish those workers?

A. He would press them more at work.

Q. Did they fire any of those workers?

A. No.

Q. Did you ever talk to any of the Marinos about the meals?

THE INTERPRETER: Would you repeat for me, please?

BY MR. SCHULTE:

Q. Did you ever speak with anyone in the Marino family about meals?

A. No.

Q. Did you ever take the Sun Valley van or bus to go to the Laundromat?

A. I did not take it.

Q. Did other workers?

A. Yes.

Q. Do you know if they were charged to take that?

A. No, they did not charge them.
Q. Did you ever see any workers preparing food in the kitchen after meals?
A. No.
Q. Did you have breaks during the workday while you were in the field?
A. Only one break.
Q. When did you buy drinks in the afternoon, then?
A. We did not buy drinks in the afternoon, but until we reached the house.
Q. Did Russell Marino, Jr. tell you anything about the form that we talked about earlier?
A. I don't understand your question, sir.
Q. When you were given the form to sign, did Russell Marino, Jr. tell you anything about the form?
A. No.
Q. Did he say anything to the group of workers when you were told that you were going to be sent home?
A. I don't understand if your question is if he told something to the other workers or if he said something to me.
Q. Either one.
A. No.
Q. He didn't explain why there wasn't enough work?
A. Russell? No.
Q. He didn't thank you for coming and for your hard work?

A. Yes.

Q. So he did say something?

A. That was just when we were getting ready to go on the bus.

Q. What else did he say, then?

A. That was it.

Q. Did he tell you that in Spanish or in English?

A. Agustin was there and it was Agustin saying that he was saying thank you for being there and your hard work.

Q. Russell was speaking in English or was speaking in Spanish?

A. He spoke a little bit of Spanish, but he almost didn't know how to speak it in Spanish.

Q. Could you understand him?

A. Yes.

Q. Okay. When did your cell phone break?

THE INTERPRETER: Sir, could you repeat that question for me?

MR. SCHULTE: Sure. When did his cell phone break?

MR. HEYMAN-KANTOR: Objection, relevance.

JUDGE TIMLIN: I'm going to allow it because that was part of his testimony about this document. Go ahead.

THE INTERPRETER: I'm sorry, I have to verify this just for me. Did you say when did his cell phone break --

MR. SCHULTE: Correct.

THE INTERPRETER: -- or ring?

MR. SCHULTE: The former, break. Stop working.

THE WITNESS: I don't recall exactly when.

BY MR. SCHULTE:

Q. A week ago, two weeks ago?

A. Maybe around a week ago.

Q. So you remember how much you paid for toilet paper two years ago but you don't know if your phone broke in the last week?

MR. HEYMAN-KANTOR: Objection, that's abusive, badgering.

JUDGE TIMLIN: He doesn't have to answer that.

Go ahead, Mr. Schulte. Continue, please.

BY MR. SCHULTE:

Q. Who did you speak with at the Department of Labor?

A. With the lawyers.

Q. When was that?

A. It was around eight days ago.

Q. Was that the first time you'd spoken with anyone from the Department of Labor?

A. To them, yes.

Q. Who else did he speak with?

A. Lillian.

Q. I'm sorry, could you repeat that? The phone crackled for a second.

A. With Lillian.

Q. Who is Lillian?

A. She's a worker from the Department of Labor.

Q. Did you talk to her on the phone?

A. Yes.

Q. Did she call you or did you call her?

A. She called me.

Q. When was that?

A. I cannot recall exactly when that was.

Q. Was it a month ago, a year ago?

MR. HEYMAN-KANTOR: Objection, relevance.

THE WITNESS: About two months ago.

MR. SCHULTE: Two things. Goes to the timing of when he would have produced that document, and also goes to bias as to being influenced by someone claiming to be from the Department.

JUDGE TIMLIN: I'm going to allow it anyway. It's already in, two months ago.

BY MR. SCHULTE:

Q. And she told you she was from the Department of Labor?

A. Yes.

Q. Did she talk to you about the form that you looked at earlier?

A. No.
Q. And did you talk to anyone else before you talked to Lillian two months ago from the Department of Labor?
A. No.
Q. Did you talk to anyone after you talked to her two months ago but before you talked to the lawyers eight days ago?
A. No.
Q. Are you sure?
A. With a friend of Lillian.
Q. And who is that?
MR. HEYMAN-KANTOR: I'm not sure of the relevance of this. The exhibit has been stipulated --
(Crosstalk.)
THE WITNESS: Marcella Ramirez.
MR. HEYMAN-KANTOR: The English version of it. I'm not --
MR. SCHULTE: I'm sorry --
(Crosstalk.)
JUDGE TIMLIN: Well, he does get to put the objection before he answers the question.
MR. SCHULTE: Okay.
JUDGE TIMLIN: So he's saying he's objecting to this on relevance grounds. I'm not sure where you're going with this, Mr. Schulte.
MR. SCHULTE: Well, two things. I mean, first of all, he seems to be looking down and possibly getting answers from somebody. It's not clear who else is there. We don't have the ability to see him kind of in person, so kind of the context in which he's testifying --

JUDGE TIMLIN: Well, you can certainly ask him who else is there.

MR. SCHULTE: I will.

JUDGE TIMLIN: But I don't know why -- I don't know --

MR. SCHULTE: The other is that no statements have been provided prior to this under the informant's privilege. We don't get to know anything about him until he shows up here. We've been given nothing from him, no statements to the Department. Now it turns out he's been speaking to someone that he thinks is the Department for several months and we have no records of it.

JUDGE TIMLIN: That was not his testimony, Mr. Schulte.

MR. SCHULTE: Okay.

JUDGE TIMLIN: He said that someone from the Department, he named her as either Leeann or Lillian, called him about two months ago, that's who he spoke to, and then he spoke with the lawyers about eight days ago. And then you've continued to press him on this and I don't know where you're going.

MR. SCHULTE: The question is who has been speaking with him, you know, what -- who has been preparing him for this, has he given statements to these people, who are they with.

(Crosstalk.)

MR. SCHULTE: It's not clear that they're even in the Department.

MR. HEYMAN-KANTOR: These people are -- we discussed this earlier with the Court, they spoke to these workers on behalf of the Department.

JUDGE TIMLIN: Who, what people?

MR. SCHULTE: What people?

JUDGE TIMLIN: Who are you talking about now? I'm lost.

MR. HEYMAN-KANTOR: The organization that facilitated -- that's facilitating this remote testimony and who has --

(Crosstalk.)

MR. SCHULTE: And sorry, Your Honor --

JUDGE TIMLIN: Mr. Marino, you are not a witness.

MR. MARINO: All right.

JUDGE TIMLIN: You can have private conversations with your attorney, but I really -- it does not help your case --

MR. MARINO: I'm sorry.

JUDGE TIMLIN: -- if I hear you.

MR. MARINO: Okay.

JUDGE TIMLIN: Okay? Okay. So this was stuff that we did for this discussion prior to us getting into the hearing, that -- when we were talking about the Bennie Efey (ph.) depositions?

MR. HEYMAN-KANTOR: Yes. Yes, Your Honor.

JUDGE TIMLIN: Is that what you're talking about?

MR. HEYMAN-KANTOR: Yes.

JUDGE TIMLIN: I think that, then, it is open for him to explore anything in terms of how he prepared -- how Mr. Almanza prepared for this and who he spoke to. Yeah, I'm going to allow it.

MR. SCHULTE: Thank you, Your Honor. I'll try to keep it brief.

BY MR. SCHULTE:

Q. Do you remember the name of Lillian's friend that you spoke with?

A. Marcella Ramirez.

Q. When did you speak with her?

A. I don't understand the question.

Q. When did you speak with Marcella?

A. It was before I spoke to Lillian.

Q. Three months ago, four months ago, how long ago?

A. Around three months.

Q. Did she call you or did you call her?
A. She called me.
Q. Okay. Was she also from the Department of Labor?
A. Yes.
Q. And are Marcella and Lillian located in Mexico or the United States?
A. Mexico.
Q. Before you spoke with Marcella three months ago, have you spoken with anyone else from the Department of Labor?
A. No.
Q. And you spoke with Marcella one time or multiple times?
A. Multiple times.
Q. How many?
A. Around three or four times.
Q. When else did you speak with her?
A. Just those times.
Q. When were those times?
A. About four times -- it was her. The second time she called me to tell me that she was going to put me on the line, and the third time she called me to tell me that they were going to contact me from the Department of Labor.
Q. When was the third time?
A. When I was going to talk to a lawyer from the Department.

Q. Have you spoken to the lawyers from the Department more than one time?

A. I just remember that time.

Q. And that was eight days ago?

A. Yes, approximately.

Q. Did you ever give any documents to Lillian or Marcella?

A. I didn't give it to her, I sent it.

Q. When was that?

A. Eight days ago.

Q. And you sent that to Lillian or to Marcella?

A. To Lillian.

MR. SCHULTE: Your Honor, I'm not sure how to bring this in without Lillian or without asking counsel, but are we allowed to find out how it came to go from Lillian to be in the case? The testimony was that he sent it to someone at DOL. That seems to not be true.

MR. HEYMAN-KANTOR: He's also said that he thought Lillian was from DOL, so it seems like he sent it to her. I would object also to your prior allegation about the statement. We've given over all statements, all non-privileged documents to you, so --

JUDGE TIMLIN: I'm not sure that it -- I mean, clearly, I'm not sure that it matters --

MR. SCHULTE: Okay.

JUDGE TIMLIN: -- really, in terms of whether or not the document is admissible. Yeah, he seems to have conflated these two women in Mexico with the U.S. Department of Labor, but I think that's also understandable.

MR. SCHULTE: Okay. The concern is that the Department can't subcontract out its investigations and then avoid providing records that are produced to these friendly parties.

MR. HEYMAN-KANTOR: And again, we provided all non-privileged documents that were responsive. The investigation was --

JUDGE TIMLIN: I mean, he has been consistent throughout that he didn't send it in until eight days ago.

MR. SCHULTE: Okay.

JUDGE TIMLIN: And that seems to match with when he was talking to the attorneys, so --

MR. SCHULTE: Fair enough.

BY MR. SCHULTE:

Q. When was the last -- have you ever met Lillian in person?

A. Yes.

Q. When was that?

A. Yesterday.

Q. Why didn't you mention that before?

A. Because you hadn't asked before.

Q. I asked when you had spoken with Lillian.

(Audio Interference.)

BY MR. SCHULTE:

Q. I'm sorry, could you repeat the answer?

A. A month ago.

Q. Have you ever met Marcella in person?

A. No.

Q. Did you see anyone from their group today?

A. From who?

Q. From Lillian's group.

A. I don't know.

Q. How many people are in the room right now?

A. Just her.

THE INTERPRETER: He pointed at me.

BY MR. SCHULTE:

Q. Where is the other interpreter?

A. I don't know.

Q. And where are you today?

A. In Mexico City.

Q. Whose office are you in?

A. Hers.

Q. Who's her?

A. From the one person interpreting to English.

MR. SCHULTE: Okay. No more questions, thank you.

JUDGE TIMLIN: Okay, you're done with cross?

MR. SCHULTE: Yeah.

JUDGE TIMLIN: Okay, so we have to switch back and forth.

MR. HEYMAN-KANTOR: Yeah, I have a couple more questions.

JUDGE TIMLIN: Yeah, I'm sure you do. Just hold tight, we're just moving people to the camera and the microphone.

(Pause)

JUDGE TIMLIN: Okay.

REDIRECT EXAMINATION

BY MR. HEYMAN-KANTOR:

Q. Mr. Almanza, just a few more questions for you. Is it possible that you and I spoke on the phone on June 30th?

A. What's your name?

Q. Jacob or Hacobo (as spoken).

A. Yes.

Q. And is it possible that you sent the -- that you texted the document around July 5th?

A. Yes.

Q. I'd like to ask you a couple questions about the substance. You talked about how there was a free ride to the Laundromat. When, during the 2015 season, did that become available?

A. During one month.

Q. How long had you been there when the free rides began?
A. One month.
Q. How many people could fit on this bus?
A. Around 20 people.
Q. And how often did it go?
A. Just once.
Q. Once per week, once per month?
A. Just once a week.
Q. And why didn't you take the bus?
A. Because I would wash my clothes at the ranch.
Q. And why did you prefer to wash your clothes at the ranch than at the Laundromat?
A. Because sometimes there wasn't enough time to go and there weren't any more buses that could take us.
Q. Why wasn't there enough time to go?
A. Because we would arrive late from work.
Q. Was there enough room on the bus for everyone, for all the farm workers?
A. No, no.
Q. So where, exactly, did you do your laundry?
MR. SCHULTE: Objection, Your Honor. I think we're outside --
THE WITNESS: In the bathroom.
MR. SCHULTE: -- of the scope of cross.

MR. HEYMAN-KANTOR: They brought up the laundry, the laundry van, and I want to explain how --

JUDGE TIMLIN: Yeah, I think --

MR. SCHULTE: I never asked him where he did his laundry and I just asked if he was aware that there was a bus to take workers somewhere.

MR. HEYMAN-KANTOR: They're suggesting that there was free transportation for everyone.

JUDGE TIMLIN: Well, I can tell you that if he doesn't ask it, I'm going to ask it, so -- I mean, it was on my list of questions to ask.

BY MR. HEYMAN-KANTOR:

Q. Where did you do the laundry?

A. It was a sink.

Q. And how often did you do laundry there?

A. Whenever I had some time to do that and if I needed to and if I had time to, that's when.

Q. Did you do it once a week, once a month, how often?

A. Three or four times a week.

Q. Did anyone else wash their clothing in the sink?

A. The rest of the coworkers.

Q. So approximately how many people would wash their clothes by hand at Sun Valley?

A. Around 50.

Q. And do you know why they washed their clothes by hand rather than take the bus?

A. Because we wouldn't fit.

MR. HEYMAN-KANTOR: We don't have any more questions.

JUDGE TIMLIN: Any recross based on that?

MR. SCHULTE: I just have a quick question for counsel. When was his document provided to us?

MR. GLICK: I believe it was July 12th.

MR. SCHULTE: Okay. And that was after he provided it to you?

MR. HEYMAN-KANTOR: The week after we received it, yes.

MR. SCHULTE: I mean, the discovery requests were months ago. They had this for a week and didn't send it until two days before trial. Was there a privilege issue; was there some reason not to produce the document before that?

MR. HEYMAN-KANTOR: Well, we received this after discovery closed and I think it was six days ago. I didn't do the math, but --

MR. SCHULTE: It's actually 14 days ago and the duty to produce is ongoing.

MR. HEYMAN-KANTOR: What's the concern with the documents? It's exactly --

MR. SCHULTE: I'm concerned with the tactics of kind of hide the witness and hide the exhibit. I mean, it's the same nonsense that's been going on through the entire investigation and prosecution.

MR. HEYMAN-KANTOR: And you've known the entire time that he signed this document. You gave him the document, you kept a copy, you had the English copy as a joint exhibit for a long time. There's nothing being hidden. We turned it over shortly after we received it.

JUDGE TIMLIN: Did you guys have a Spanish -- did you guys give the Spanish version to these guys to take home without --

MR. SCHULTE: They would keep the Spanish half. The English half would stay with the company to be part of a report to the government.

JUDGE TIMLIN: I guess I'm having a hard time considering that you -- I'm having a hard time kind of trying to figure out what the prejudice is, considering that this is something that you guys created and you had at all times that English version. So why does it -- why does the Spanish -- the fact that they've come up with --

MR. SCHULTE: The concern is just --

JUDGE TIMLIN: -- the Spanish version matter?

MR. SCHULTE: I guess it doesn't. I mean, it's any more than why it's essential that we haven't gone through the whole thing to introduce it today. The English version is already part of the joint exhibit. I don't know why we're going through the exercise of having the Spanish one even come in, but I also don't understand why they couldn't produce this in a timely manner. I haven't heard an excuse for why they'd sit on it for a week.

JUDGE TIMLIN: Yeah, I'm not really sure why you had to sit on it for a week, but I don't -- I mean, that's not good practice. I don't know that that's, again, not going to affect the admissibility, but it does not put you guys in a good light to get documents and then after discovery closes and not turn them over right away. But it's not so egregious that I'm going to sanction them in any way, so it's going to come in.

MR. SCHULTE: I understand. The content of it is not an issue --

JUDGE TIMLIN: Yeah.

MR. SCHULTE: -- so much as the practice.

JUDGE TIMLIN: Okay.

MR. SCHULTE: So with that, I have no more questions for the witness.

JUDGE TIMLIN: All right. Okay, so great.

MR. GLICK: Would you like me to bring you a phone?

JUDGE TIMLIN: Yeah, bring me -- and switch the camera around. Okay, so I'm going to ask a few questions.

When you were describing what it was that you did, I know that you said you picked peaches and two types of cucumbers and green peppers. You planted cucumbers and then you took something out of the soil for the peppers? What was it that you took out of the soil?

THE WITNESS: Wood posts, stakes and plastic.

JUDGE TIMLIN: Plastics?

THE INTERPRETER: Plastic.

JUDGE TIMLIN: Okay. In addition to Agustin, you said you had another supervisor and I didn't catch his name.

THE INTERPRETER: Your Honor, may I ask him to write it down on a tablet for me?

JUDGE TIMLIN: Yes, because I'm not understanding it either.

THE INTERPRETER: Chal. And it's spelled C-h-a-l.

JUDGE TIMLIN: Chal, okay. I'm sure that's helpful to the court reporter, too, who probably also didn't know how to spell it.

He said that he went to Wal-Mart. When he decided to not be on the food plan, he went to Wal-Mart and bought a small stove. Could he describe the stove for me?

THE WITNESS: Sure. It was a small stove or range with just two burners. It was an electric range. It was very small. I paid around 22.30 U.S. for it.

JUDGE TIMLIN: So was it something that would sit on, say, a table or did it stand alone on the floor?

THE WITNESS: Yeah, you have to put it on a table.

JUDGE TIMLIN: Okay, okay. I understand what that is, then.

He also said he bought his food that he was going to cook at Wal-Mart. How often did he go to Wal-Mart to buy his food?

THE WITNESS: I don't understand the question.

JUDGE TIMLIN: Did he go to Wal-Mart every day to buy his food or did he go once a week, once every two weeks?

THE WITNESS: Once a week.

JUDGE TIMLIN: How did he store the food that he bought when he was back at the dormitories?

THE WITNESS: Next to my bed.

JUDGE TIMLIN: Did he have any -- did he have any way to keep it cool?

THE WITNESS: No.

JUDGE TIMLIN: Did he ever ask if he could store it in the kitchen refrigerators?

THE WITNESS: No, because they were already full with soft drinks.

JUDGE TIMLIN: Okay. When we were looking at the form that you have, this form in Spanish, he said that "he" told me to sign on that X, and I just want to know who "he" was.

THE WITNESS: Agustin.

JUDGE TIMLIN: Okay, thank you. He said someone told him, again he used the word "he," that there was -- that he could work every day if there was work and if Mr. Almanza was willing to work. Who was it that said that to him?

THE WITNESS: The contract said it.

JUDGE TIMLIN: The contract said it, okay. It's in the written document?

THE WITNESS: Yes, it is written on a document.

JUDGE TIMLIN: Okay. I know he said that he did not talk to the Marino -- the people in the Marino family about his meals. Did he ever talk to people in the Marino family about anything?

THE WITNESS: Yes.

JUDGE TIMLIN: What kinds of things did he talk to them about?

THE WITNESS: About the rides.

JUDGE TIMLIN: The rides?

THE WITNESS: The rides to the store, to the Laundromat.

JUDGE TIMLIN: How were the Marinos involved in the rides to the store and the Laundromat?

THE WITNESS: They said that they were going to talk to Agustin about it and he would then, when Agustin gave us that truck or van to go to have our laundry done.

JUDGE TIMLIN: Oh, okay. So he talked to the Marinos because he needed rides to the store and the Laundromat and they told him they would have Agustin take care of that?

THE WITNESS: Yes.

JUDGE TIMLIN: Okay. Okay, that's all I have.

Did that bring up anything for you, Mr. Heyman-Kantor?

MR. HEYMAN-KANTOR: No, Your Honor.

JUDGE TIMLIN: Mr. Schulte?

MR. SCHULTE: No, thank you.

JUDGE TIMLIN: Okay. Okay, we have no more questions for you. We thank you very much for your time. I will tell you that this hearing is still continuing and so I would ask that you not speak to anyone else who might be coming to testify until the hearing is completely over.

THE WITNESS: Yes.

JUDGE TIMLIN: Okay, thank you.

(Witness excused.)

JUDGE TIMLIN: Do you want to deal with this?

MR. GLICK: Sure, I will.

JUDGE TIMLIN: Let's go off the record.

(Off the record at 3:49 p.m.)

(On the record at 4:00 p.m.)

JUDGE TIMLIN: And does the Department have any more witnesses for me?

MR. GLICK: Yes, Your Honor. The Administrator calls Jose Perez.

JUDGE TIMLIN: Okay, Mr. Perez.

MR. GLICK: And just in preparation, there's a couple binders that we're likely to refer to this afternoon. I think our Plaintiff's --

JUDGE TIMLIN: Okay.

MR. GLICK: The first binder is 8, 9 and then Binder A, which is the Joint Exhibits.

JUDGE TIMLIN: Okay, that's Joint 8 and 9. Oh, of course it's at the very bottom of the box here.

Okay, please stand and raise your right hand for me. Whereupon,

JOSE PEREZ

was called as a witness by and on behalf of the Plaintiff, and after having been first duly sworn, was examined and testified as follows:

JUDGE TIMLIN: Okay. Start with your direct.

DIRECT EXAMINATION

BY MR. GLICK:

Q. Good morning, Mr. Perez.

A. Good morning.

Q. What's your current occupation?

A. I am an investigator with the U.S. Department of Labor, the Wage and Hour Division.

Q. A particular office, district, region?

A. I work in the Southern New Jersey District Office in Lawrenceville, New Jersey.

Q. How long have you worked there?

A. Approximately six years.
Q. Have you been a Wage and Hour investigator that whole time?
A. The entire time.
Q. What are your duties as a Wage and Hour investigator?
A. I conduct investigations with business under several federal statutes, the Fair Labor Standards Act, the Immigration and Nationality Act, under H-2A, H-2B, H-1B investigations.
Q. Any other statutes involving farms?
A. I also enforce the Migrant and Seasonal Workers Protection Act and also the OSHA field sanitation requirements.
Q. And during your time as an investigator with the U.S. Department of Labor, about how many investigations have you personally been involved in?
A. Approximately 200, I would say.
Q. How many of those were of agricultural employers?
A. In excess of a hundred.
Q. Could you break it down for us by statute of those in excess of 100, you know, how many were under each relevant statute?
A. I would say a vast majority would be under the Migrant and Seasonal Workers Protection Act. I would say approximately between 5 and 10 cases would be the H-2A regulations.
Q. Is there any overlap between what you look for in investigations under the H-2A regulations versus the Migrant and Seasonal Protection Act?

A. No, they're done in conjunction with one another, if an H-2A employer has a job order.

Q. If the employer you're investigating does not have workers under an H-2A visa, are there any things that you would look at in an investigation under the Migrant and Seasonal Workers Protection Act that would be sort of overlapping with what you'd look for in an H-2A investigation?

A. Well, you look at all of the investigations in regards to the housing safety and conditions. If there are workers being transported using vehicles, you would inspect the safety of the vehicles. You also look for the driver's license of those vehicle operators.

Q. Is it fair to say you look for all of those things in an H-2A investigation?

A. Yes, sir.

Q. Anything else that you would look for specifically in an H-2A investigation?

A. Under the H-2A, there's certain job contractual requirements. For example, there's a prevailing wage rate that must be paid to workers. There's also requirements under the contract for a specific job for a specific period of time. There's also job offer requirements in regards to hours of the work. There's also in relation to responsibilities of meals or kitchen facilities made available to the workers. There's also any deductions that are going to made are also indicated in the job order.

Q. Have you had training in how to carry out investigations under the H-2A regulations?

A. I did.

Q. What kind of training?

A. I attended Basic II training under the Division.

Q. What does that generally include?

A. It includes training in regards to agricultural enforcement and investigations. It covers all aspects of the Migrant and Seasonal Workers Protection Act, how to properly conduct those investigations. It also covers the H-2A requirements and how to conduct those investigations as well.

Q. Now, I want to turn your attention -- were you involved in an investigation of Sun Valley Orchards in 2015?

A. Yes.

Q. What has your role been in that investigation?

A. I am the lead investigator.

Q. As an investigator in that case, did you visit Sun Valley in 2015?

A. Yes, I did.

Q. How many times?

A. I visited the farm approximately, I would say, maybe five times.

Q. And approximately when were those visits?

A. The first visit was in July of 2015. The following visit -- I'm sorry, it was July 21st, 2015. The following visit was July 22nd, 2015. I then visited the farm again in the first week of August; I want to say August 6th. I then visited the farm again in late September to late October of 2015. And then I visited the farm again in January, January-February of 2016.

Q. And focusing on those visits in July and August of 2015 for now --

A. Yes.

Q. -- what did you do when you visited Sun Valley?

A. I actually presented myself at the office and I introduced myself and told them who I was. I requested certain records from the office manager, Lisa Justice. I conducted the housing and vehicle inspections to assure safety and health of the workers. I also visited the fields to check for OSHA field sanitation issues and make sure there were portable toilets and make sure there was water being disposed in single-use cups. I also spoke to some of the workers. I met with Mr. Russell Marino, Jr. I met with the field boss, Agustin Hernandez. I also met with Agustin Hernandez's wife. Elia Pinon, I believe her name is.

Q. Did anyone else from the Wage and Hour Division accompany you on those visits in July and August of 2015?

A. Yes, my colleague, Investigator John Crudup was always with me.

Q. What did Mr. Crudup do on those visits?

A. He helped me interview Agustin Hernandez. He helped me conduct the housing and the vehicle inspections. He assisted in conducting the OSHA field sanitation check.

Q. And were you present during the time when Mr. Crudup interviewed Agustin Hernandez?

A. Yes, I was.

Q. Were you there the entire time?

A. Yes.

Q. Were you able to hear Mr. Crudup's questions?

A. Yes.

Q. And were you able to hear Mr. Hernandez's responses?

A. Yes.

Q. During those visits, did you review any records?

A. I reviewed the job orders, two of the job orders that Sun Valley Orchards had opened, and I also reviewed payroll and time records for the 2015 growing season. I also reviewed some records for -- time and payroll records for the 2014 growing season.

Q. Subsequent to those visits, did you obtain additional records from anyone at Sun Valley?

A. I obtained the entire season payroll records for 2016 -- I'm sorry, 2015 in late September/early October from the field boss, Agustin Hernandez. I also obtained the receipts for the food purchase, for the -- for up to that period of time.

Q. Had you asked Sun Valley for those payroll records before they sent them to you?

A. I requested them on my initial visit for -- you know, my initial visit to the office.

Q. And what about after the end of the season in 2015, did you request additional payroll records?

A. I requested additional payroll records, as the season was ending, from Russell Marino, Jr.

Q. Did Sun Valley provide you additional payroll records?

A. Yes, they did.

Q. I believe you testified that you reviewed the job orders from Sun Valley in 2015.

A. I did.

Q. There is a binder on that table and I'm not sure which -- you know, top or bottom, but there is -- it's labeled Binder A on the side and on the front and I'd like you to turn to the tab marked JX-1, please. Let me know when you're there.

A. I am.

Q. Do you recognize JX-1, page 1?

A. Yes.

Q. Do you recognize the subsequent pages stamped JX-1 at the bottom through JX-1, page 18?

A. Yes.

Q. What is JX-1?

A. This is the job order filled out by Sun Valley Orchards requesting H-2A workers for the 2015 growing season.

Q. How do you recognize JX-1?

A. I reviewed it.

Q. Does JX-1 correspond to a particular period of time within 2015?

A. It states, on Section 9, anticipate a period of employment. It says April 13th, 2015 to October 10th, 2015.

Q. Now, I'd like you to turn to the next tab, JX-2, and specifically call your attention to JX-2, page 23 and the subsequent pages up through JX-2, page 41. Let me know when you've had a chance to review that.

(Whereupon, the witness reviewed the document.)

THE WITNESS: I reviewed that.

BY MR. GLICK:

Q. Do you recognize JX-2?

A. Yes. It's Form 9142A submitted by Sun Valley Orchards requesting H-2A workers for the period of April 13th, 2015 to October 10th, 2015.

Q. Have you seen JX-2 before?

A. Yes, I have.

Q. When did you first see JX-2?

A. During my investigation.

JUDGE TIMLIN: I'm a little confused. Are we looking at the same thing, because JX-2 does not appear to be a form to me. It appears to be a letter from ETA.

MR. GLICK: You have to go back four pages, that's the cover letter for it.

JUDGE TIMLIN: So go to what's marked as JX-2, page 23?

MR. GLICK: That's right.

JUDGE TIMLIN: Okay. Sorry. I'm sorry, I didn't mean to interrupt you.

MR. GLICK: I realize it may be confusing. If I may, I believe what stands in its entirety as JX-2 is the form of the document in which it was produced in discovery by Respondent and this is the -- so we've included the full document.

JUDGE TIMLIN: Okay, okay.

BY MR. GLICK:

Q. Mr. Perez, could you please turn to JX-3, page 42, and tell me when you've had a chance to review it enough to tell me whether you recognize it?

A. I do.

Q. What is JX-3?

A. That's the second job order for Sun Valley Orchards requesting H-2A workers for the period of June 1st, 2015 through October 10th of 2015.

Q. How were you able to answer so quickly that you recognized JX-3?

A. Because I looked at them.

Q. You looked at JX-3 before?

A. Prior, yes.

Q. How many times have you looked at JX-3, if you have an estimate?

A. A good amount of times.

Q. From previously reviewing JX-3, is JX-3 similar to JX-1 or different or how much?

A. They're similar. They just have a different number of workers requested.

Q. What about the dates?

A. The dates are for similar periods of time. The previous job order was for April and this one's for June.

Q. JX-3 is from what period of time up until what period of time?

A. June 1st, 2015 through October 10th, 2015.

Q. And based on your prior review of these documents, much of the content of JX-3 is similar to that of JX-1?

A. Yes, they're identical.

Q. Now, I'd like to turn your attention to JX-4 and again, skipping over just the first few pages to JX-4, page 62. Just to try to speed things along a little bit, is this -- do you recognize JX-4?

A. I do.

Q. And not to rush you, but is it similar to JX-2?

A. Yes, it is.

Q. What differences, if any, are there between JX-2 and JX-4?

A. It's for a different period of time and also requesting more workers.

Q. What period of time does JX-4 correspond to?

A. June 1st, 2015 through October 10th of 2015.

Q. And you've reviewed JX-4 before?

A. I have.

Q. Are you familiar with its contents?

A. I am.

Q. So I want to focus in now on the housing at Sun Valley. I believe you testified briefly that you inspected Sun Valley's housing in 2015.

A. I did.

Q. And that was with Mr. Crudup?

A. That's correct.

Q. How did you and Mr. Crudup go about investigating Sun Valley's housing?

A. We actually -- I'm sorry. I contacted Russell Marino, Jr. via telephone and he didn't pick up the phone and I contacted the field boss, Agustin Hernandez, via telephone, as well, and he picked up and just to, you know, let him know that we were on the property and to let them know that we needed to inspect the housing. He said he would contact Russell and Russell would call me back, which he did just briefly a few minutes afterwards. So I indicated to Russell that I needed to inspect the housing, which he invited me to. He said, you know, you know where the housing is, I'll meet you there a little bit later on. I said thank you. So I inspected the housing with John Crudup. We determined that the housing was built prior to the 1980s, so we used ETA standards.

A. Let me just pause there. How did you determine that the housing was built prior to 1980?

A. Well, I've actually conducted a previous investigation on Sun Valley in 2013 and Russell Marino, Jr. had verified that it was built prior to 1980.

Q. And you mentioned something about ETA standards.

A. Yeah, ETA standards, there's two sets of standards that we use when we inspect the housing.

Q. And just generally, what do ETA standards cover?

A. It covers the housing and safety of the -- I'm sorry, the housing and safety and health of the facility. It goes over certain requirements, for example, electrical use for discharge of water. It covers screens, it covers potential fly infestations, it covers a lot of different aspects.

Q. And where on Sun Valley's property did you go in the course of inspecting Sun Valley's housing?

A. I went to the dormitory housing camp located on Route 45. I think it's 1321 Route 45.

Q. Mr. Perez, I'd like to ask you to turn to the tab marked PX-33 which is in Binder Number 9.

THE WITNESS: Are you finished with this one?

MR. GLICK: You can close that binder for now, thank you.

THE WITNESS: Number 9, you said?

MR. GLICK: Binder 9. Relatively toward the front. PX-33. The first page of that exhibit, PX-33, page 1085.

BY MR. GLICK:

Q. Do you recognize this photograph?

A. Yes.

Q. How do you recognize PX-33, page 1085?

A. I took the picture.

Q. When did you take the picture?

A. When I first arrived on the farm property to inspect the housing.

Q. And is PX-33, page 1085 a fair and accurate representation of what you observed when you arrived to inspect Sun Valley's housing?

A. That's correct.

MR. GLICK: Your Honor, I'd like to move PX-33, page 1085 into evidence.

JUDGE TIMLIN: Just the one page?
MR. GLICK: Maybe to speed things along, I'd like to admit all of PX-33. I believe --
JUDGE TIMLIN: Mr. Perez, did you take all of the pictures that are part of PX-33?
THE WITNESS: Yes, I did, Your Honor.
JUDGE TIMLIN: And you took them all at the same time while you were conducting your inspection?
THE WITNESS: Yes, I did, Your Honor.
JUDGE TIMLIN: Okay. Any objection to PX-33, the photographs?
MR. SCHULTE: Sorry, there's a number of photos, it's more than just the one page in there. Those were all taken at the housing?
JUDGE TIMLIN: That was his testimony.
BY MR. GLICK:
Q. Mr. Perez, could you take a few minutes to look at the pages in PX-33 that are -- and tell us, are there any of these pictures that you didn't take at the housing at Sun Valley in 2015?
(Whereupon, the witness reviewed the photographs.)
THE WITNESS: Yes, these were all taken at the housing. I took them personally.
MR. SCHULTE: No objection.
JUDGE TIMLIN: They're admitted. Okay.

(Whereupon, the document referred to and previously marked for identification as Plaintiff's Exhibit 33 was received into evidence.)

BY MR. GLICK:

Q. So focusing on PX-33, page 1085, could you tell us, you know, making reference to this photograph, what did you observe about Sun Valley's housing? Let me back up. I want to make sure that we have a good sense of sort of what the housing actually looks like. I understand you took this photograph, so could you please explain to the Court what you observed on this day when you took this photograph?

A. So this actual photograph I was taking, you know, looking directly at some of the worker housing. Right in front of you, you see two doors located and those are the entry points for the workers. The workers are set in rooms with double bunk beds. They have approximately, I want to say, 20 to 30 workers per room. It's a wide open-space area. They're divided by cinder wall block along the middle to separate both rooms. There's also that open space area that you see there that's blacked out. That's the area where there are tables for the workers to eat. Just inside there -- you can barely see it -- there's actually entry doors into the kitchen area.

Q. Could you back up a moment?

A. Yes.
Q. What were the two doors that you referred to?
A. The two doors are -- if you look to the left of the building there's two windows and then there's a door.
Q. What does that door go into?
A. It's the door that leads into the workers' dormitory.
Q. And then where is the second door that you referred to?
A. If you actually step two windows down you'll see the second door.
JUDGE TIMLIN: Moving to the right?
THE WITNESS: I'm sorry. Yes, correct. Sorry, Your Honor.
JUDGE TIMLIN: That's okay. Both of the doors look to be gray with like a window on the top of them.
THE WITNESS: Yeah, they have a slight trim, I guess, on the top.
BY MR. GLICK:
Q. Now, turning to PX-33, page 1086, the next page, what is this a photograph of?
A. This is just looking off to the right a little bit. Right in front of you, you can see it a little bit here, the tables where the workers eat. That is also additional worker housing to the right of that. You also see the entry doors there. There's two windows and then there's a door and then to the right, there's also -- you see the window and that's also a door to the right of that. You can make out, on the right-hand side of the picture, the additional building where the workers have the bathroom and the shower facilities.

Q. Now, turning to page --

JUDGE TIMLIN: Okay, wait, because I'm not quite following this, so I want to make sure that I understand what I'm looking at. So on this, we have this kind of open area with a roof over it and you can see some tables and that's the eating area. And then to the right of that is a small window with a window air conditioner and kind of a lower roof. What is that?

THE WITNESS: Right behind that is actually the kitchen area, Your Honor.

JUDGE TIMLIN: That's the kitchen.

THE WITNESS: Yes.

JUDGE TIMLIN: And then kind of behind and to the right of that I see two more windows, a little outside grill and another gray door. What is that?

THE WITNESS: That's worker housing.

JUDGE TIMLIN: Okay. And then to the right of that is one window and another doorway somewhat obscured by the telephone pole. What is that?

THE WITNESS: That's also additional worker housing, Your Honor.

JUDGE TIMLIN: Okay. And then to the right of that, but still attached, there's a lower-roof building again with kind of a reddish roof. What is that?

THE WITNESS: That's also additional worker housing.

JUDGE TIMLIN: Okay. And then in kind of the foreground on the right side cut off there's another building. What is that?

THE WITNESS: That's the building that the workers have the bathroom and shower facilities.

JUDGE TIMLIN: Okay, that's what I didn't understand. Thank you.

THE WITNESS: You're welcome.

BY MR. GLICK:

Q. Turning to page -- to PX-33, page 1087, this sort of more zooms in in the middle, is that right?

A. That's correct.

Q. What, if anything, can be seen more clearly in this photograph?

A. In this picture you could actually see the tables a little bit better and you could also start making out the doors on the right-hand side leading into the kitchen.

Q. Now, if you could please turn to page -- to PX-33, page 1089.

A. 89?

Q. 1089.

JUDGE TIMLIN: Not 1088?

MR. GLICK: That's right.

JUDGE TIMLIN: Okay.

BY MR. GLICK:

Q. What is this a photograph of?

A. These are the doors that actually lead into the kitchen, right underneath the covering that you saw there with the open space where the dining room tables are.

Q. So the doors depicted in PX-33, page 1089 are the same doors that you referred to when you were looking at PX-33 -- I'm sorry, PX-33, page 1087 is the door to enter the kitchen?

A. That's correct.

Q. Are there doors from the worker housing directly into the kitchen?

A. No.

Q. Now, leaving aside these photographs for the moment, did you enter the dorm facility during your inspection in 2015?

A. Yes, both myself and Investigator John Crudup entered the facility and did a worker room-by-room inspection.

Q. And what did you personally observe when you entered the worker housing?

A. Entering each room individually, the first thing you notice was flies actually hitting you in the face as you were walking into the dorm room. There was a large amount of flies present inside the worker housing.

Q. What else did you observe in the worker housing?

A. There was a window in the bathroom facility that was missing a screen. Several doors were not tight-fitting. The screens on some of the doors were -- had holes in them, so there was -- the doors themselves weren't actually tight-fitting, which probably encouraged the presence of the flies inside the dormitory. There was some mattresses located on the floor in one of the dorm rooms where workers were sleeping on.

There was also -- I'm trying to recollect, sorry. Sorry, you can actually see it in one of the pictures that we looked at. There's the garbage cans that are actually missing lids. They're actually located right next to the dormitory housing. So there was actually flies, you know, inside the dormitory housing probably from that as well.

Q. I want to go through some of what you just mentioned in more detail. So what did you observe about the -- scratch that. I want turn to Binder 8, PX-28. Specifically PX-28, page 1049.

A. Binder 8?

Q. That's right. Let us know if you don't have Binder 8 up there.

A. Which PX do you want me to turn to?

Q. PX-28.

A. Okay.

Q. PX-28, page 1049. Let me back up. Could you please take a few minutes to look at PX-28 and tell me whether you took these photographs in PX-28?

A. The whole entire PX-28?

Q. Yes.

A. Sure.

(Whereupon, the witness reviewed the photographs.)

THE WITNESS: I reviewed them.

BY MR. GLICK:

Q. Did you take all of the photographs in PX-28?

A. I did.

Q. When did you take those photographs?

A. On my initial visit to the dormitory housing where we conducted the inspection.

Q. Do the photographs in PX-28 fairly and accurately represent what you observed during that inspection?

A. That's correct.

MR. GLICK: Your Honor, I'd like to move all the pages of PX-28 into evidence.

JUDGE TIMLIN: Any objection?

MR. SCHULTE: No.

JUDGE TIMLIN: They're admitted.

(Whereupon, the document referred to and previously marked for identification as Plaintiff's Exhibit 28 was received into evidence.)

BY MR. GLICK:

Q. Now, specifically PX-28, page 1049, what is that a photograph of?

A. That's one of the entry doors leading into the worker dormitory.

Q. Can you tell anything about the condition of the door or the screen in PX-28, page 1049?

A. Sure. There's actually a large gap on the door that can be easily seen.

Q. Could that door close?

A. No.

Q. Turning to page 1050, what is page 1050 a photo of?

A. It's actually a photo of the screen that was torn in one of the doors.

Q. Which door?

A. One of the entry doors leading into the dormitory housing of the workers.

Q. And whose hand is that?

A. That's my colleague's, John Crudup.

Q. And what is he holding?

A. He's holding a pen through the -- holding the shield open itself.

Q. Did Mr. Crudup use a pen to alter the condition of the screen that day?

A. No, he just used it to show that, you know, the screen itself was broken.

Q. Is that the condition the screen was in when you arrived at Sun Valley's housing that day?

A. That's correct.

Q. If you could turn, please, to page 1051. What is page 1051 a photo of?

A. Well, that's a photo of the additional screen that was -- that had a hole through it in the dormitory housing for the workers.

Q. Is that Mr. Crudup's hand again holding a pen?

A. That's correct.

Q. Did Mr. Crudup disturb the condition of the screen?

A. No, he just used the pen to show that there was an actual hole in the screen.

Q. And page 1052, if I could turn your attention there, what is page 1052 a photo of?

A. That's a picture of one of the entry doors leading into the worker dormitory housing. As you can tell, the screen is, you know, torn, I guess you can call it.

Q. And is that Mr. Crudup's hand again?

A. No, that's my hand.

Q. And did you insert this clipboard into the screen that day?

A. I did, to show that it was loose.
Q. Before you arrived to inspect the housing, was the dormitory door in the same condition as depicted in this photograph?
A. That's correct.
Q. And specifically, when did you take these photographs in PX-28?
A. My first visit to the farm, which would've been July 21st, 2015.
Q. Now, I want to move on to the garbage cans that you mentioned and ask you to turn the page to page 1053. What is page 1053 a photograph of?
A. It's actually a side view of the dormitory housing where the workers are and you can see the garbage cans lined up right outside where the doors are and you can tell that they have no lids on top of them.
Q. And the next page, page 1054, what does page 1054 show?
A. That's a closer shot of the dormitory housing that shows the door itself with the gap and the garbage cans are located right next to the door, itself.
Q. And there are no lids visible in this photograph?
A. There are no visible lids on the cans, themselves.
Q. Did you observe lids near the cans that day?
A. No.

Q. And you took this photograph in late July of 2015 at Sun Valley?

A. That's correct.

Q. The next page, 1055, what is page 1055 a photograph of?

A. It's garbage cans located next to the door right outside the worker housing. That's to the right-hand side of the buildings.

Q. Are there lids on those cans?

A. No, no lids on those cans.

Q. You mentioned an issue with mattresses, is that right?

A. That's correct. There were two mattresses located on the floor in one of the dormitory housings that was being occupied by workers.

Q. If I could call your attention to the next page, PX-28, page 1056, what is page 1056 a photograph of?

A. That's a picture of the mattresses on the floor and as you can tell there's worker belongings right on top of it and to the side of it.

Q. In the course of your investigation did you learn whether workers slept on these mattresses on the floor?

A. Yes.

Q. What did you learn?

A. I learned that the worker next to the window was actually sleeping there for some time.

Q. How did you learn that?

A. I spoke with him.

Q. Did you inspect the bathroom facility located near the worker housing?

A. I did.

Q. What did you do when you inspected the bathroom?

A. We entered the facility, both myself and my colleague, Investigator John Crudup, and as we entered the door, once again we were actually hit in the face with flies that were located inside the bathroom facilities.

Q. What else did you observe when you -- you entered the bathroom facilities?

A. We entered the bathroom facilities and we inspected the toilet area, we inspected the shower area, we inspected the sink area. We noticed that some of the sinks did not have hot water. We did this by turning the actual faucets on to determine that there was no hot water.

Q. How long did you let the hot water run? Excuse me, how long did you let the water run?

A. I would say approximately two to three minutes to determine that there was no hot water present.

Q. During your inspection of the bathroom, were there any other issues that you observed?

A. Yeah, there was -- right out in front of the sinks there's a window that was missing -- it was actually missing the outside part of the screen that would prevent flies from -- any insects, actually, from coming into the bathroom facilities.

Q. Was it missing a screen entirely or just --

A. Yeah, entirely, it was completely missing. There was no screen there whatsoever.

Q. And I'd like to ask you to turn to PX-28, page 1046. It's the first page in PX-28. What is page 1046 a photograph of?

A. That's the window that I'm referring to, that has no screen on it, to the bathroom facility and it is located right above the sinks.

Q. Did you take that photograph during your -- for the bathroom?

A. I did.

Q. And page 1047, what is page 1047 a photograph of?

A. It's the same window, it's just a closer-up shot that you can see that there's actually no screen present.

Q. During your inspection of the bathroom, did you open that window?

A. No, it was already open.

Q. Did Mr. Crudup open that window?

A. No, it was already open.

Q. Going back to those garbage cans for a moment, did you observe whether anything was in those garbage cans when you inspected the housing?

A. Yeah, some of the garbage cans contained some food remnants, you know, and there was flies visibly inside of them.

Q. Was there anything else in the garbage cans?

A. There was some cans, empty cans. Soda --

Q. Now, I believe you testified that you had inspected Sun -- you conducted or participated in an investigation of Sun Valley prior to 2015.

A. That's correct.

Q. Did you personally inspect Sun Valley's housing prior to 2015?

A. Yes, during the 2013 investigation.

Q. During the 2013 investigation, did you observe any similar problems with Sun Valley's housings as you observed in 2015?

A. Yes, I did. The garbage cans was one of the things that I noticed. There were several screens also that were -- that needed to be repaired.

Q. Now, I want to talk more about the eating area and the kitchen that you mentioned a bit ago. Did you enter the kitchen during your investigation of Sun Valley in 2015?

A. I did.

Q. And what did you observe when you entered?

A. As you walk into the kitchen area there's some slide-door refrigerators right on front. To the left as you enter, there's a table top with a cash register. Behind that on the wall there's stove burners. To the right of that across the way, there's refrigerators, one particular electric cooler. There's also some standup refrigerators. In the back, there's additional burners and behind that, I believe it's a walk-in cooler, a small walk-in cooler.

Q. Did your investigation determine whether Sun Valley's workers were able to use the kitchen in 25 to cook?

A. Yes, my investigation determined that they did not have access to the kitchen facilities.

Q. How did you determine that?

A. By speaking to the workers and speaking to the field boss, Agustin Hernandez, and also his wife, Elia Pinon.

Q. And what did they all tell you?

A. They told me that the workers did not have access to the kitchen facilities to cook their own meals.

Q. Did Elia Pinon tell you that?

A. Yes, she did.

Q. Did Agustin Hernandez tell you that?

A. Yes, he did.

Q. Did Sun Valley workers tell you that?

A. Yes.

Q. When did they tell you that?

A. When I interviewed them.

Q. When did you interview Elia Pinon?
A. On my subsequent visit to the farm. It was July 22nd, 2015.
Q. And I believe you testified that you and Mr. Crudup interviewed Mr. Hernandez together.
A. We did.
Q. When was that interview?
A. That was also on July 22nd.
Q. During those interviews, did you learn what the workers ate?
A. Yeah, we determined that the workers were being provided with breakfast, which consisted of coffee and a piece of bread, like toast of sorts. They were provided with lunch, which consisted of rice and beans with some sort of meat: chicken, beef, pork. Then they were provided with also dinner, which consisted of also rice, beans and some sort of meat.
Q. Did you learn who prepared those meals?
A. The field boss's spouse and some of the workers in the kitchen prepared those meals.
Q. Did you learn whether those meals were provided for free or at a cost?
A. They were provided at a cost, at a weekly cost of between 75 and $80 a week.
Q. And where again is that kitchen, exactly?
A. The kitchen is located, as you're looking at the dormitory housing, right in the covered area, the space through the dining area where workers eat. Right inside of that area there's those two doors that you showed me before. Through those doors are the kitchen facilities.

Q. It's right in the middle of -- it's right on either side of Sun Valley worker dormitories?

A. Yes, it is.

MR. GLICK: Your Honor, I want to make sure I don't run out of time right before you have to go. I'm sort of trying to wind down on one topic.

JUDGE TIMLIN: Yes, I think that's good. Yes.

MR. GLICK: Obviously, please let me know.

JUDGE TIMLIN: Yeah.

BY MR. GLICK:

Q. If we could turn back to Binder A, the JX exhibits, Binder A, JX-1, page 2.

A. JX-2?

Q. JX-1, page 2. This was one of Sun Valley's job offers from 2015?

A. That's correct.

Q. What did JX-1 say, if anything, about meals in 2015?

A. On this particular page, on Section 14, it states that "employers will furnish free cooking and kitchen facilities to those workers who are entitled to live in the employer's housing so that workers may prepare their own meals.

Workers will buy their own groceries. Once a week, the employers will offer to provide, on a voluntary basis by the workers, free transportation to assure workers' access to the closest store where they can purchase groceries."

Q. Now, please turn to page 4 of JX-1. What did Sun Valley's job offer indicate, if anything, about whether there would be deductions made from workers' pay for meals?

A. If you look at the column where it says deductions, it states Social Security, federal tax, state tax, meals, and if you notice to the right of that, it's indicated as no deductions taken for that.

Q. Now, jumping to JX-3, page 43, is there anything different in the second job offer about what's explained about meals at Sun Valley?

A. No, it's the same. Do you want me to read it?

Q. Are you familiar with the content?

A. I am, I am.

Q. Is there anything different about the explanation of meals in page 43 than on page 2?

A. No, it's the same.

Q. And what about the deductions issue on page 45, is there anything different on page 45 as compared to page 4 with respect to whether there would be deductions for meals?

A. This job order also indicates that there will be no deductions made for meals.

Q. Did Sun Valley's workers have access to the kitchen to prepare their own meals?

A. No, they did not.

Q. Did Sun Valley furnish free cooking and kitchen facilities to its workers in 2015?

A. No, they did not.

Q. And did you learn whether Sun Valley provided free transportation to assure workers' access to the closest store where they can purchase groceries in 2015?

A. Yeah, I determined that Sun Valley was not providing transportation to the workers. It was actually being provided by Agustin Hernandez's employees. They were charging workers between 10 and $15 a worker to be transported to the closest town.

Q. How did you learn that?

A. Through employee interviews.

Q. Did Russell Marino, Jr. tell you anything during the 2015 investigation about whether Sun Valley provided workers with transportation to town?

A. Yeah, he acknowledged that he did not provide transportation for the workers, and during subsequent years, he would provide it.

Q. Did you learn whether Sun Valley deducted money from workers' pay for their meals?

A. Yes.

Q. What did you learn?

A. There was deductions made from the workers' wages for meals and also drinks.

MR. SCHULTE: Your Honor, I would object. He's asking for a legal conclusion as to the deductions taken.

(Crosstalk.)

JUDGE TIMLIN: Okay, wait. Okay, wait, wait. Mr. Marino, really --

MR. MARINO: This is hard to listen to, Your Honor. This is hard to listen to and I'm sorry.

JUDGE TIMLIN: Well, if it becomes difficult to listen to, then you have to step out.

MR. MARINO: This is hard to listen to.

JUDGE TIMLIN: Then you have to step out because then it becomes distracting for me, because at this time I've lost track of the question and the objection.

MR. MARINO: There were no deductions taken.

JUDGE TIMLIN: So can you restate the question?

MR. GLICK: Yes, I'll ask the question again.

BY MR. GLICK:

Q. What did you learn about how workers paid for their meals in 2015?

A. The workers would be paid at the end of the week and as they were being paid, they would have to pay for the meal costs they incurred during that week and also the drinks that were purchased during that week and also beer that was purchased during the week.

Q. Did you learn when the workers made those payments in relation to receiving their pay?

A. They would receive their pay, which would be cashed out, and they would then pay Agustin Hernandez for the meals, the drinks that they purchased, and also the beer.

Q. Did the Wage and Hour Division determine in 2015 that Sun Valley made deductions from workers' pay for meals?

A. Yes, we did.

MR. MARINO: No, that's impossible. That's impossible. I'm going to leave the room.

JUDGE TIMLIN: Mr. Marino --

MR. MARINO: I'll leave the room. That's impossible.

JUDGE TIMLIN: Okay.

MR. MARINO: That's impossible. It never happened, okay, it never happened.

BY MR. GLICK:

Q. Mr. Perez, could you elaborate on why that determination was made?

A. Well, the workers received their wages and Agustin Hernandez, who's an employee of the farm, would -- you know, he was the person that was providing the meals -- would require the workers to pay for the meals and the drinks and the beer after they had received their wages. So it was a deduction that was taken from their wages. Their wages were not given to them outright.

Q. And that was the same determination with regard to the meals, as well as to drinks?

A. That's correct.

Q. Did you learn whether any workers at Sun Valley prepared their own meals in 2015?

A. During the investigation, I determined there was approximately four or five workers who managed to cook on their own. They purchased a cooking apparatus and they prepared their own meals in the dormitory housing.

MR. GLICK: If we could go back Binder 9, PX-34. There are four pages here and the first is page 1103.

THE WITNESS: I'm sorry, which PX?

MR. GLICK: PX-34, please.

BY MR. GLICK:

Q. Do you recognize the photographs in PX-34?

A. Yes, I do.

Q. Did you take these photographs?

A. I did.

Q. When did you take the photographs in PX-34?

A. During my inspection of the housing facility on July 21st.

Q. Do the photographs in PX-34 fairly and accurately depict what you observed during your investigation of the housing facility?

A. They do.

MR. GLICK: Your Honor, I would move to admit PX-34 into evidence.

JUDGE TIMLIN: Any objection?

MR. SCHULTE: No.

JUDGE TIMLIN: Okay, they're admitted.

(Whereupon, the document referred to and previously marked for identification as Plaintiff's Exhibit 34 was received into evidence.)

MR. GLICK: Thank you, Your Honor.

BY MR. GLICK:

Q. What do the photographs in PX-34 show?

A. It shows the cooking apparatus and the surrounding area that the workers were using to prepare their own meals.

Q. Let me turn your attention specifically to PX-34, page 1106. Could you describe what page 1106 shows?

A. This actually shows the cooking apparatus on a chair. You can actually see the cord right where the chair -- the top of the chair is, just dangling down and this is the cooking apparatus they were using to cook. If you actually look on the floor, there is some tortillas on the floor that the workers were using to eat. To the right of it you actually see the cooking oil and eggs underneath the chair.

Q. During your inspection of the worker housing facility, did you observe any refrigerators in the rooms where the workers have their beds?

A. No, there was no refrigerators where the workers were sleeping, their sleeping quarters. All the refrigerators were located in the kitchen.

Q. Do you know whether previous investigations of Sun Valley by the Wage and Hour Division made any findings about meals at Sun Valley?

A. Yeah. During the 2013 investigation, Sun Valley -- it was determined that Sun Valley was -- Agustin Hernandez was facilitating a similar meal plan where he was charging workers $65 a week for meals; also selling them drinks at a profit.

Q. And what, if anything, was a violation with regard to the $65 a week for meals?

A. It was determined that there was a profit being made from the meal plan on a week-by-week basis. Back wages were computed and Sun Valley agreed to the findings. Russell J. Marino, Jr. signed the WH-56 form. He also agreed to oversight over the kitchen operations to make sure that Agustin Hernandez did not charge an excess of profit for meals and also for drinks.

Q. And what you just explained about what Mr. Russell Marino, Jr. said, did you hear Mr. Marino, Jr. say that?

A. Yes, I did.

Q. When did you hear him say that?

A. During the 2013 investigation during my visits to the farm and during our initial conferences.

MR. GLICK: I don't want to go on too much longer. Maybe this would be a good time to stop.

JUDGE TIMLIN: This would be a great time because -- yeah. All right. So you'll continue to be under oath. You're not to discuss your testimony overnight because you're going to be back in the morning and resume the stand, okay?

THE WITNESS: Yes, Your Honor.

JUDGE TIMLIN: All right, we can go off the record. Thanks. We'll start at 9:00.

(Whereupon, at 5:04 p.m., the hearing in the above-entitled matter was adjourned, to be reconvened on the following day, Thursday, July 20, 2017 at 9:00 a.m.)

(9:34 a.m.)

JUDGE TIMLIN: What's going on?

MR. GLICK: So counsel for the Administrator, you know, is concerned about the conduct of Mr. Marino in the courtroom, and in particular, Mr. Perez has expressed concerns about his physical safety.

There are three incidents in particular that we'd like to raise to the Court. The first was during Mr. Perez' testimony, Mr. Perez could hear the witness refer to him by name, Jose, responding with comments such as "that never happened," "bullshit."

And second, just before Mr. Perez' testimony began yesterday, in the hallway, Mr. Perez heard Mr. Marino refer to him as "this fucking asshole," while walking behind him in the hall.

Moreover, the day before, on the first day of trial, while Mr. Perez was waiting outside in the hallway, Mr. Marino -- well, Mr. Perez was standing very close to one wall, and Mr. Marino walked by extremely closely; inappropriately closely.

Whether inadvertent or intentional, this course of conduct has made Mr. Perez very uncomfortable about testifying, and frankly, I think if witnesses before Mr. Perez had not been translating through an interpreter, that same course of conduct would have been more of an issue as well, and we feel we have no choice but to request the exclusion of Mr. Marino from the courtroom during Mr. Perez' testimony.

Pursuant to 29 C.F.R. 18.87, the Court has the authority to order the exclusion of a representative for this kind of course of conduct. And of course, we understand the need for a party representative to confer with counsel, and are certainly willing to take reasonable breaks or other accommodations to facilitate Respondent's participation in trial.

MR. SCHULTE: You've already brought this up, Your Honor. I've talked to him, and I'll -- I'm going to talk to him again today to tell him to be quiet. The idea that the Investigator's personal safety is at issue, is ridiculous. He's in no danger. He's bigger. He's a man with a badge. You know, there's no -- but he's not happy to hear him talking, but he's not going to do anything about it. I can ask him to be quiet, I don't want him to disrupt the proceedings, but the idea that we should go forward with no one from the company present?

JUDGE TIMLIN: Well, here's my question: is there any possibility to get somebody else from the company present rather than Joe?

MR. SCHULTE: Not really. I mean, there may have been if we'd known about it before 30 seconds ago, but --

JUDGE TIMLIN: Because, I mean, he's been pretty disruptive and we're going into Day 3, and he was disruptive on the first day, and then you and I spoke about it -- well, all of counsel spoke about it together as a sidebar off the record yesterday morning, and he was fine during Mr. Hernandez' testimony, but then as the afternoon went on, and I never raise my voice, and raised my voice twice yesterday in response to his comments.

At the same time, I'm very concerned about you not having somebody at counsel table with you, so I think maybe what we can do right now is let's bring -- let's start the hearing. I will, on the record, tell him that if it gets to the point where I can hear him, and I -- you know, that he's had his chances and he will have to leave, and he will not be able to sit in the hearing room.

He can sit in the hall and you can consult with him whenever you need to, but he won't be able to be present, and see if that calms him down. I don't want to just exclude him at this point because I don't think -- I think he needs a chance to -- and I think it's very extreme thing.

In the meantime, you might want to have -- you might want to, because we've got all day today and probably tomorrow too, you might want to get on the phone with your client and see if they can send somebody that's not Joe.

MR. SCHULTE: They really can't. I mean, they're -- this is the height of their season. It's enough to lose him.

JUDGE TIMLIN: Yeah, I understand that. I do -- I understand and I understand it's a family business but, you know, if he's back on the farm, isn't there somebody -- you know?

MR. SCHULTE: They do different jobs.

JUDGE TIMLIN: They do different jobs.

MR. SCHULTE: His brother, Russell, who will be testifying tomorrow, handles the irrigation. With the weather, this is -- he's working, you know, sun up to sun down.

JUDGE TIMLIN: Isn't there somebody named Harry, or what about the father?

MR. SCHULTE: He hasn't really been involved with this. He wouldn't know. He's pushing 70 and he's not part of the H-2A process at all and doesn't really get around to the workers.

JUDGE TIMLIN: And who's the other guy that they mentioned, Harry?

MR. SCHULTE: There's an Uncle Harry who does other jobs on the farm, but is the same age of the father and is not involved with the application process at all. It really is the next generation -- it's Russ and Joe -- that run the farm.

JUDGE TIMLIN: All right. I'm going to -- I'm not going to kick him out yet, but he's on very -- he's on a very short rope and I will make that clear to him.

MR. SCHULTE: Understood. And just so we're clear, though, the issue is disrupting the proceedings. There's no -- this idea of some kind of physical safety, I think is out of bounds.

JUDGE TIMLIN: But I do -- but at the same time, I have to take -- I do have to take people's perceptions seriously and I want -- I need my witnesses to be able -- need all witnesses, your witnesses -- I would feel the same way if your people were coming in and saying, well, there's all these government folks, and they're scowling at me and making me feel uncomfortable.

It is a very tight space out there and, you know, we've been having conversations in our own office about the fact that we're doing more and more of these larger trials where we have, you know, lots of witnesses and we don't have adequate space for them. When this building -- when we moved in here and this building was designed, it was not designed with that idea. I think they were more thinking, you know, black lung hearings and longshore hearings where you have counsel and one witness and nobody else, and so we didn't set up for this. So we're having conversations in our own office about how to address this space issue.

But it's tight quarters and I don't want anyone feeling uncomfortable. And, you know, if that means -- if that -- if Mr. Perez feels uncomfortable that concerns me, because I want him to be able to testify. If anybody -- if your witnesses feel uncomfortable that concerns me, because I want them to be able to testify, okay?

MR. GLICK: Your Honor, if I may, we'd request that the instruction that the Court give, you know, specifically refer to commentary during the witness' testimony, because in addition to the question about the witness' perception about his safety, there is an effect, you know, again, whether inadvertent or not, about running commentary and responding to testimony under oath that something is not true, and I think there's a cumulative effect there. And any such commentary would be grounds for an exclusion order.

JUDGE TIMLIN: No, I understand that. Yeah.

MR. SCHULTE: There's no jury here. I mean, you know to disregard.

JUDGE TIMLIN: Right. It's just me. It's just me, but again, I think it's going be -- it would be hard for your guys to testify about the conditions on the farm and have Mr. Perez sitting back there saying, that's a lie, that's not what I saw, that's not true, at an audible level. I mean, that's difficult.

So, yeah, I will talk about the fact that witnesses need to be able to say what they're going to say without any commentary from anybody other than the attorneys. No one else gets to talk, okay?

MR. SCHULTE: Fair enough.

MR. GLICK: Thank you, Your Honor.

MR. SCHULTE: Thank you.

JUDGE TIMLIN: All right.

(Off the record at 9:41 a.m.)

(On the record at 9:45 a.m.)

JUDGE TIMLIN: Before we resume Mr. Perez' testimony, I do have to address one issue that was raised with me this morning, like in a conference with all of the attorneys on the record, but without other people present. Mr. Marino, I understand that this is your family's business and this is a very personal matter to you, but --

MR. MARINO: Understood.

JUDGE TIMLIN: -- you really need to control your commentary. This is a very small room. I think we've talked about that before. Everybody can hear --

MR. MARINO: Understood.

JUDGE TIMLIN: -- anything that's said. And the last thing that I want to do is to have to ask you to leave the hearing.

MR. MARINO: No, I understand. I understand.

JUDGE TIMLIN: The only people that should be talking when there is a witness testifying on the stand are the attorneys and me. That's it.

MR. MARINO: Understood.

JUDGE TIMLIN: No one else. Write notes. Write down --

MR. MARINO: I understand. I understand.

JUDGE TIMLIN: Okay.

MR. MARINO: I apologize. I just -- it is, it is very hard to listen to.

JUDGE TIMLIN: Okay. All right.

MR. MARINO: But it's understood, and thank you.

JUDGE TIMLIN: All right. Okay. I'll also say that, you know, it's very tight quarters outside. We don't have really good waiting space, so when you guys are outside of the hearing room, it might be better if people just, you know, one party on one end of the hall and one party on the other end of the hall and you just try not to come into contact.

All right. With that, let's resume the hearing. I think, Mr. Glick, you were questioning Mr. Perez on direct. Mr. Perez, I'll remind you you're still under oath.

MR. PEREZ: Yes, Your Honor.

MR. GLICK: Thank you, Your Honor.

Whereupon,

JOSE PEREZ,

the Plaintiff herein, having been previously sworn, was examined and testified as follows:

DIRECT EXAMINATION (cont.)

BY MR. GLICK:

Q. So, Mr. Perez, I wanted to continue asking you some questions about your investigation of Sun Valley in 2015, and specifically -- and first, I'll ask you, in 2015, did you determine whether anyone at Sun Valley charged workers for anything other than meals?

A. I determined that Agustine Hernandez, the field boss, was charging workers for drinks, and also beer. There was additional items that were sold as well. There were soups, there was toilet paper, there was also, like, cookies, snacks of sorts, bags of potato chips.

Q. Where were all of those items sold?

A. They were sold in the store.

Q. In which store?

A. In the kitchen.

Q. Is that the kitchen at Sun Valley?

A. The kitchen at Sun Valley.

Q. Who sold those items?

A. Agustine Hernandez or his spouse, Elia Pinon.

Q. How did you determine that Mr. Hernandez, or his spouse, sold those items in Sun Valley's kitchen?

A. We interviewed both Agustine Hernandez and his wife, and also interviewed the workers.

Q. And did you personally interview those individuals?

A. Yes.

Q. When did you conduct those interviews?

A. I conducted them in the farm and also during subsequent calls to workers in Mexico.

Q. Now, I believe there should still be a binder on the witness stand labeled Binder 9, and I would like you to turn to the first tab of Binder 9, PX-32. And could you please take a few moments, or as long as you need to review PX-32, all of the pages, and tell me when you've done so.

(Witness reviews document.)

THE WITNESS: I looked through them.

BY MR. GLICK:

Q. Do you recognize the documents in PX-32?

A. Yeah. These are pictures that I took of the kitchen at Sun Valley.

Q. When did you take the pictures in PX-32?

A. On my initial visit on July 21st.

MR. GLICK: Your Honor, I would move to admit PX-32 into evidence.

JUDGE TIMLIN: Any objection?

MR. SCHULTE: No objection.

JUDGE TIMLIN: They're admitted.

(Whereupon the document referred to and previously marked for identification as Plaintiff's Exhibit 32 for identification was received into evidence.)

BY MR. GLICK:

Q. Now, Mr. Perez, on the first page, PX-32, Page 1079, what does this show?

A. Oh, these are the beer that was contained in one of the --

Q. I apologize to interrupt. I meant Page 1075. I apologize if I may have misspoke.

A. 1075? This is the register and some of the soups that are present as you walk into the kitchen at Sun Valley. You can see some of the refrigerators in the background to the right-hand side; the stove cook tops are right behind this area here in the front; the front desk; the register area.

Q. Could you explain a bit more just about just exactly where the stove tops are shown in this photograph at Page 1075?

A. If you actually see the coffee container on the left-hand side? If you just see right behind there, you can actually make out the stoves on the left-hand side.

Q. Now, turning the page to Page 1076, what is this a photograph of?

A. This is a photograph of refrigerators. As you walk into the kitchen, straight on the front, you see the refrigerators. To the right-hand side, you see some of the potato chips and the cookies that were sold as well. These are the sliding glass door refrigerators that you would commonly see like at a store, like a supermarket or convenience store.

And then there's the standup refrigerator with the white doors, and then there's the cooler on the left-hand side. It's also a refrigerator.

Q. Did you determine what was inside either of the two refrigerators on the left-hand side of Page 1076?

A. In the refrigerator, on the white one, the standup one, that's where the beer was contained. The beer --

Q. Is that the farthest left photo -- refrigerator, or the second from the left?

A. Second from the left. And on the left-most one, I believe that was cooked food that was stored, and meats.

Q. Now, turning to Page 1077, what is this a photograph of?

A. These are the inside of that refrigerator, the standup refrigerator. You see some of the beer on each different section, even on the door itself.

Q. What brands of beer are shown in Page 1077?

A. On the middle section you see Corona, on the bottom section you see Coors Light, and you can make out the brand, Modelo, which is a Mexican beer. Can't necessarily see the name brands on the top.

Q. Now, turning to Page 1079 of PX-32, what is this a photograph of?

A. This is also a photograph of the contents of the refrigerator.

Q. Is that the same refrigerator as Page 1077?
A. Yes.
Q. Can you identify any other brands of beer in Page 1079?
A. On the top one, you can actually make out Budweiser in the top right-hand side of the picture.
Q. And how can you tell that the photographs in Page 1077 and 1079 are the same as the refrigerator you identified on Page 1076?
A. I took the pictures.
Q. And turning back to the soft drinks that you testified about in Sun Valley's kitchen, what did Mr. Hernandez tell you about those soft drinks?
A. He told me he would sell them to the workers at certain prices, you know, on an individual basis. He would sell the drinks. He would sell Coke. He would sell Gatorade. He would sell Monster drinks. I think that's basically it.
Q. Did Mr. Hernandez say how frequently he sold soft drinks to Sun Valley's workers in 2015?
A. He would sell them -- he would sell drinks to them every day, both in the field and in the kitchen. And he was -- a lot of it was sold during breaks. Also during mealtimes, both lunch and at dinner.
Q. Do you remember how many drinks per day Mr. Hernandez told you that he sold to Sun Valley's workers?

A. I think he stated an average of four a day, maybe, per worker.

Q. And what did Agustine Hernandez' spouse tell you about the sale of soft drinks at Sun Valley?

A. She also indicated that the drinks were sold to the workers at certain prices. She indicated that they were sold both in the kitchen and in the field; that the drinks were purchased Sam's Club, and she said that the workers purchased an average of four beers -- I'm sorry, four beers, four drinks, and sometimes up to eight drinks, per day.

Q. And did Agustine Hernandez' spouse tell you who sold those drinks to Sun Valley's workers?

A. Her husband, Agustine Hernandez.

Q. Now, did you request any documents from Mr. Hernandez during your investigation of Sun Valley in 2015?

A. Yeah. We requested that all the receipts for the meal purchases and for the drink purchases that he had up to that point where the investigation was occurring, and he did provide that to us.

Q. Now, what do you mean by purchases of meals and purchases of drinks?

A. I'm sorry, he provided the receipts for the purchases of the food that was used to cook, to prepare the meals for the workers. He did not have purchase receipts for drinks, though.

Q. Did you request records from Mr. Hernandez of sales of meals to the workers?

A. Yes. He was able to provide limited amount of records to show each worker's payment on a weekly basis, but he was not able to provide the drinks or the beer.

Q. Did you request record from Mr. Hernandez of his sales of beverages to Sun Valley workers in 2015?

A. Yes.

Q. And he didn't provide those records?

A. No.

Q. Now, did the receipts that you obtained from Mr. Hernandez show anything about the prices he paid for beverages in 2015?

A. It was little to no receipts containing beverages in those receipts. According to Agustine Hernandez, he was informed by Russell Marino, Jr. that he did not need to keep the receipts for the drinks and that he can charge whatever he wanted for the drinks.

MR. SCHULTE: Objection, Your Honor. This is -- at this point, it's triple hearsay. He's testifying what someone told him that someone else had told him that he'd heard from somebody else. I mean, all of these people are going to be -- or either have been or will be witnesses and weren't asked about this.

MR. GLICK: Your Honor, these are statements of party opponent in the course of their employment. If the witnesses have testified or will testify, they're subject to cross-examination.

JUDGE TIMLIN: Yeah. They're also statements he gathered during the course of his investigation, so I'm going to allow it. I recognize though -- I mean, I do recognize that hearsay has its own -- has certain problems with reliability, and certainly, if Mr. Russell Marino, Jr. testifies, he -- and he testifies, you can certainly ask him about it.

MR. SCHULTE: That's one of the layers, but Mr. Hernandez was on the stand for half the day yesterday and wasn't asked about any of these things and he's not a party opponent. He was originally a party. None of these charges were brought against him and then the case was dismissed against him.

MR. GLICK: Can we be heard? Mr. Hernandez is a person affiliated, you know, with a party opponent. He is an employee of Sun Valley, as he testified. He was making these sales in the course of his conduct as an agent, and under federal rule of evidence 801(d)(2)(d), his statements of a -- if such a person come in, if hearsay is to even be considered.

JUDGE TIMLIN: Right. I think because he's an employee and somewhat of a supervisory level, I know there's other issues about agency, but for the purposes of statements that he gave during the course of the investigation to the investigators, I don't --

MR. SCHULTE: I'm sorry to interrupt. I think, Your Honor, there's a difference between being a crew leader and supervisor and being an owner, such that he could bind the company. I think that the scope of his, you know, "management," is limited to kind of overseeing the workers in the field. I mean, he does not have the ability to, you know, take a position that would bind the company.

JUDGE TIMLIN: Well, I don't know that it's binding the company in any way in terms of this particular statement, which was that the investigator testified that Ms. Hernandez said that Mr. Russell Marino, Jr. told me I didn't have to keep receipts. I'm not sure how that binds the company in any way, but I think that it does come in as part of information that he gathered during the course of his interview when he -- during the course of his investigation during interviews with employees, no matter what the level of the employee is.

MR. SCHULTE: Okay.

JUDGE TIMLIN: So you can continue.

BY MR. GLICK:

Q. Mr. Perez, I'd like to, in the same binder, Binder 9, turn your attention to PX-36, which begins -- PX-36 begins at Page 1115. Please take your time to review PX-36 and let me know when you are finished with it.

(Witness reviews document.)

THE WITNESS: I reviewed them.

BY MR. GLICK:

Q. Okay. With respect to the typewritten documents in PX-36, what are these documents?

A. These are receipts provided by Agustine Hernandez in regards to the food purchases that he made in order to provide the meals to the workers on a weekly basis.

Q. When did Mr. Hernandez provide those records?

A. He provided this to us on our second visit to the farm.

Q. When was that visit?

A. I think it was July 22, 2015.

MR. GLICK: Your Honor, I'd move to admit PX-36 into evidence.

JUDGE TIMLIN: Any objection?

MR. SCHULTE: I just have a question, Your Honor. Some of these are clearly not receipts.

MR. GLICK: If I may clarify. Your Honor, pursuant to the Court's individual practice rules, we have included typewritten copies of many handwritten documents, marked such pages with a suffix, T, and previously provided these copies to counsel.

JUDGE TIMLIN: Oh, okay. So obviously -- so for instance, if we're looking at PX-36, Page 1117, and PX-36, Page 1117T, 1117T is a typewritten reconstruction of the handwritten receipt at 1117?

MR. GLICK: That's correct, Your Honor.

JUDGE TIMLIN: Okay. Does that --

MR. SCHULTE: And who prepared those?

JUDGE TIMLIN: Who prepared the -- Mr. Perez, who prepared the typewritten transcriptions of the handwritten receipts?

THE WITNESS: I don't know.

MR. GLICK: Your Honor, if I may. Counsel for the Administrator prepared copies.

JUDGE TIMLIN: Oh, okay. Counsel did, because -- and actually, I think that's in our rules, is that we do want, when you've got handwritten anything that you bring into evidence, I think our rules do ask for a typewritten transcription. So they've been prepared by counsel's office.

MR. SCHULTE: Okay. They do. I just wanted that on the record. Thank you, Your Honor.

JUDGE TIMLIN: Okay. So other -- so no objection then?

MR. SCHULTE: No.

JUDGE TIMLIN: Okay. So then the 36, Plaintiff's Exhibit 36, is admitted.

(Whereupon, the document referred to and previously marked for identification as Plaintiff's Exhibit 36 was received into evidence.)

MR. GLICK: Thank you. Your Honor, I intend to ask Mr. Perez questions about -- with regard to the handwritten documents, because I believe that's where the foundation's established for Mr. Perez' knowledge of those documents.

JUDGE TIMLIN: Right.

BY MR. GLICK:

Q. So Mr. Perez, turning to Page PX-36, Page 1141. Let me know when you have reviewed that document, Page 1141, please.

A. The actual receipt or the transcription?

Q. The actual receipt. The document that is stamped PX-36, Page 1141, with no T afterwards.

A. Okay. I'm there.

Q. Does Mr. Hernandez' name appear on Page 1141?

A. If you look under the heading of "City/State/Zip", it's got his name, "Agustin".

Q. And above that and to the right, is there a date written Page 1141?

A. July 19, 2015, if I'm reading that correctly.

Q. Well, is it clear, at least, that this is a document dated sometime in July 2015?

A. That's correct.

Q. And the exact day of the month, it may be less clear, but the month and the year are quite clear?

MR. SCHULTE: Objection, Your Honor. Who's the witness here?

JUDGE TIMLIN: Right. Can we try not to lead?

MR. GLICK: Fair enough. I was just trying to move things along.

BY MR. GLICK:

Q. Is this document dated July 2015 or some other month and year?

A. Well, it's dated July 2015.

Q. Now, looking below on the row number with a small typewritten 7 on the left-hand side, could you please read the handwritten entry next to the typewritten 7?

A. Are you referring to the number 5 next to the 7?

Q. Yes. Please read across that --

A. It indicates, "Quantity: 5," and right next to it says, "Coca-Cola," and it indicates, "lata," which is Spanish for can.

Q. To the left of Coca-Cola, can you read what's written?

A. I can't really make that out. I believe it's 36 or --

Q. And to the right of Coca-Cola, lata, what else is written in Row 7?

A. It indicates the number 13.

Q. What column is the number 13 in?

A. Under "Price".
Q. And to the right of the number 13?
A. It indicates "65".
Q. And what column is that written in?
A. "Amount".
Q. Mr. Perez, do you speak Spanish?
A. Yes, I do.
Q. Do you read Spanish?
A. Yes, I do.
Q. Are you fluent in Spanish or less than fluent?
A. Very fluent.
Q. Does Page 1141 indicate anything about the purchase of cans of Coca-Cola by Agustin Hernandez in July 2015?
MR. SCHULTE: Objection. Calls for a conclusion. The document either speaks for itself or, you know, they need more foundation as to the actual purchase.
JUDGE TIMLIN: It does kind of speak for itself. Can you move on?
MR. GLICK: I can ask another question.
JUDGE TIMLIN: Yeah.
BY MR. GLICK:
Q. Is Page 1141 a receipt that Mr. Hernandez provided to you?
A. I believe so.
Q. Does Page 1141 indicate the price that was paid for Coca-Cola?

A. It shows that under "Amount", it shows "$65" for -- at $13, I guess, a unit, for five Coca-Cola, I guess, cases.

MR. GLICK: Your Honor, may I approach the witness and pass him a calculator?

JUDGE TIMLIN: Sure.

MR. GLICK: Mr. Perez, I'm handing you a calculator. Could you please divide 13 divided by 36, using a calculator?

MR. SCHULTE: Objection, Your Honor. What's the basis for 36?

MR. GLICK: The witness testified that the number written next to the word, "Coca-Cola", is 36.

MR. SCHULTE: Okay. I didn't hear him testify to that and I'm not sure that we've established what that means.

JUDGE TIMLIN: Yeah. I'm not -- I actually thought that he wasn't clear about what that was, so whether that was even the number. I think -- I understand -- I think I know where you're trying to go, Mr. Glick, but I don't think this is necessarily the most clear receipt to try to get there.

MR. GLICK: I understand it may not be the clearest receipt but -- and maybe that goes to the weight of the evidence, but I believe that Mr. Perez has testified that he read the number 36 on this document, along with the other numbers.

MR. SCHULTE: It's not clear that was the testimony and it's certainly not clear from the document that that's what that even says. If they wanted to know how many cans were in a unit, they had Agustin here to ask him. He was there when it was purchased.

MR. GLICK: I'll move on.

JUDGE TIMLIN: Okay.

BY MR. GLICK:

Q. Mr. Perez, please put the calculator, as well as this document, aside.

Mr. Perez, did you ask Mr. Hernandez why --

A. Can I close the binder?

Q. Yes, please do. Did you ask Mr. Hernandez why most of the receipts he provided did not contain information about the beverages he purchased?

A. He said he was told that he did not need to keep those receipts by Russell Marino, Jr.

Q. During the course of your investigation at Sun Valley, did anyone at Sun Valley provide documentation of the amounts of beverages sold to workers?

A. No.

Q. Did you ask for such documentation?

A. I did.

Q. Before 2015, did you ever discuss the sales of drinks at Sun Valley with anyone at Sun Valley?

A. I discussed the selling of the drinks at a profit to both Agustin Hernandez and Russell Marino, Jr.

Q. What did Mr. Marino, Jr. say, if anything?

A. He acknowledged the fact that the drinks that Agustin Hernandez was selling were at a profit and he agreed to have the prices lowered to reflect costs associated with the drinks being provided, but no profit being made from that.

Q. Do you know whether Sun Valley Orchards paid any back wages as a result of a previous investigation?

A. In 2013, they paid back wages to workers for the profit that was made from drinks and meals that were being sold to the workers.

Q. What was the year of the conversation you referred to a moment ago in which Mr. Marino, I believe you testified something to the effect that, agreed to lower the prices of beverages?

A. It was in the summer of 2015. I'm not sure about the month. Maybe June, July.

Q. I want to make sure --

JUDGE TIMLIN: 2015?

THE WITNESS: I'm sorry. I'm sorry. 2013.

BY MR. GLICK:

Q. Is it your testimony that this conversation with Mr. Marino, Jr. about lowering the price of the beverages, again, what year was it?

A. 2013.

Q. Are you sure?
A. Yes.
Q. In 2013, what statute or regulation was that investigation of Sun Valley by the Wage Hour Division conducted under?
A. It was conducted under the Migrant and Seasonal Workers Protection Act and the Fair Labor Standards Act.
Q. Now, I'd like to turn your attention to -- before I move on, why did you not -- why was the investigation in 2013 not conducted pursuant to the H-2A regulations?
A. Because there was no H-2A workers in 2013. I believe the first time that Sun Valley used the H-2A workers was in 2015.
Q. Are there different standards under the H-2A regulations and MSPA?
A. There's similar requirements under both. H-2A has different requirements in regards to wages paid to workers in regards to the period of employment or the anticipated period of employment. There's also conditions regarding the disclosure aspect of any deductions that were taken out of the pay. There's protections in regards to the hours offered under H-2A. There's no such requirement under the Migrant and Seasonal Workers Protection Act.
Q. Now, turning back to the sales of beer by Mr. Hernandez, how did you determine that Mr. Hernandez sold beer in 2015?

A. It was acknowledged by workers. We interviewed workers onsite and also via telephone.

Q. Did the workers tell you anything about when they purchased that beer from Mr. Hernandez?

A. They purchased it when the -- in the afternoon, when the day was through.

Q. Did the workers tell you anything about the price they paid to Mr. Hernandez for beer?

A. They indicated paying $2 per can for each beer that they purchased from Mr. Hernandez.

Q. During your investigation of Sun Valley in 2015, did you observe any piles of discarded cans at Sun Valley?

A. Yeah. Across the way in the dormitory housing, there's a recycling area where we noticed large piles of cans of soda, bottles of Coca-Cola, Monster, and beer cans.

Q. Now, again, in Binder 9, I'd like you to turn to PX-33, specifically, PX-33, Page 1094.

JUDGE TIMLIN: And that document's already been admitted into evidence.

MR. GLICK: Thank you, Your Honor.

BY MR. GLICK:

Q. Mr. Perez, are you at Page 1094?

A. Yes, I am.

Q. What is this a photograph of?

A. This is a photograph of a pile of cans which are right across the way from the dormitory housing. If you look closely, you can see cans of Monster, Coca-Cola, the cans made out of -- with the stripes, are the same cans, the Budweiser, that we saw in the refrigerators before. There's beer on the left-hand side, Corona beer.

Q. Where is Page 1094 in relation to any other buildings at Sun Valley?

A. It's directly across from the dormitory housing.

Q. On Page 1095, what is Page 1095 a photograph of?

A. In that area, there was some cans that were crushed and they would put them into crates. And these are additional cans on the floor, as you can see, Coca-Cola, Budweiser, Monster.

Q. Where is Page 1095 in relation to, you know, any other buildings at Sun Valley you've testified about?

A. It's directly across from the dormitory housing.

Q. And Page 1099, please. What is Page 1099 a photograph of?

A. This is a closer look at the actual pile of cans that we saw. You can start making out other brands. There's Sunkist, there's beer cans, Modelo, there's Monster, there's Coca-Cola, there's Mountain Dew.

Q. I'd like you to take a few minutes to look at the other photographs between Page 1096 and Page 1102.

A. Okay.

Q. Have you had an opportunity to review Pages 1096 to Page 1102?

A. I did.

Q. And are Pages 1096 to 1102 photographs of the same place or different places?

A. No, same place that -- where all the beer cans and all the cans were located.

Q. Now, Mr. Hernandez, I'd like to turn your attention to Sun Valley's transportation.

A. Can I close the binder?

Q. Yes. We may open it again, but for now, please close the binder.

Now, I believe you testified that your investigation had something to do with Sun Valley's transportation?

A. Yes. We inspected the vehicles that they use to transport the workers, the school buses that they use to transport the workers over road surfaces between the dormitory housing and fields on the farm and off the farm.

Q. I'd actually like to go back to the same binder, Binder Number 9, and now PX-35? Just focusing just on the first page, Page 1107, what is Page 1107?

A. It's a picture of the workers in the field.

Q. How do you recognize this as a picture of the workers in the field?

A. I took the picture. You actually see Agustin Hernandez standing up to the left-hand side, and then you see the -- two of the school buses that they use to transport the workers in the background.

Q. When did you take this photograph at Page 1107?

A. I took this on our first visit to the farm on July 21st.

Q. In what year?

A. 2015.

MR. GLICK: Your Honor, I'd move to admit PX-35, just Page 1107, into evidence.

JUDGE TIMLIN: Okay. Any objection to Page 1107?

MR. SCHULTE: Only as to relevance, but not really. I mean, there's -- I'm not sure. There's not really a dispute that there were workers there picking peppers.

MR. GLICK: Mr. Hernandez, who I believe already mentioned and I believe will testify that in this picture, a picture of Sun Valley's fields, there are vehicles located, you know, visibly in the same photograph of the fields, and this is relevant to the question of the transportation of Sun Valley's workers.

MR. SCHULTE: I don't think anyone has said that the workers weren't transported. I'm not really sure where we're going, but there's -- the photo is what it is.

JUDGE TIMLIN: I mean, the testimony was the testimony from, I think, Mr. Hernandez, or some of the worker witnesses, and certainly Mr. Perez, is that the transportation was provided in school buses, and I do see school buses in this picture so I see it as somewhat relevant, so I'm going to --

MR. SCHULTE: I think at worst it's redundant, but there's -- the photo speaks for itself.

JUDGE TIMLIN: Okay. I'm going to admit it. Go ahead.

(Whereupon, the document referred to and previously marked as Plaintiff's Exhibit 35, Page 1107, for identification was received into evidence.)

BY MR. GLICK:

Q. Mr. Hernandez, do you recognize any vehicles in the photograph at Page 1107?

A. In 1107?

Q. Yes, just Page 1107.

A. Are you referring to the school buses or --

Q. Are there school buses in Page 1107?

A. Yes. They're in the background.

Q. Did you observe these school buses at other times during your investigation of Sun Valley?

A. Yes. We viewed them being used to transport the workers between the dormitory housing and fields over road surfaces.

Q. Now, setting aside the binder at least for the moment, could you tell us more, Mr. Perez, about what you did during your investigation of Sun Valley's transportation in 2015?

A. We inspect the vehicles to assure the safety aspect of them, to make sure that they have proper operating devices on the vehicle. We check for the headlights, we make sure that the windshield wipers are working, we check the horn, we check all the blinkers, we check the tread on the tires, we check to make sure that there's no exhaust being diverted inside the cabin, we make sure that there's a safe way to be removed from the bus, for example, an emergency exit, and that its operational.

Q. Did you do all of that in 2015 at Sun Valley?

A. Yes. Me and my colleague, Investigator John Crudup, inspected five vehicles, five school buses, that are used to transport the workers.

Q. And specifically, in that -- in your time at Sun Valley in 2015, what did you do to inspect the vehicles?

A. Well, we would -- one of the investigators, in this case, Investigator John Crudup, would enter the vehicle and he would turn the ignition on the vehicle, and I would stand outside of the vehicle, and we would, one-by-one, turn on the headlights, we would check the horn, we would check the windshield wipers, we would make sure all the blinkers are working in the front of the vehicle and in the rear of the vehicle. And after that inspection was conducted, we both would take a walk around the bus to make sure that the tread on the tires was adequate.

Q. And you did all of that in 2015 at Sun Valley?

A. Yes.

Q. Did you do anything to determine the condition of Sun Valley's vehicles in 2015?

A. No, I mean, we inspected every single vehicle to make sure that they were in good working order. We determined that some of the vehicles had bald tires that needed to be replaced.

Q. Let me first ask, how many vehicles did you inspect at Sun Valley in 2015?

A. Five vehicles.

Q. What kind of vehicles?

A. They were school buses. They were 15-passenger school buses, mini school buses, I guess you can refer to them as.

Q. Do you know who owned those vehicles?

A. Sun Valley Orchards.

Q. How do you know that?

A. Well, it was pointed out to us by Russell Marino, Jr. that those were the vehicles for the farm, and also inside the farm, under the registration, they were registered to Sun Valley Orchards and also insured by Sun Valley Orchards. And it was verified that those were the school buses that the workers were being transported by Agustin Hernandez in the field.

Q. When you say it was verified, what do you mean by that?

A. Well, he verified that those were the school buses that they were using to transport the workers to the field.

Q. Did he tell you that?

A. Yes.

Q. What days, if you remember, did you conduct this investigation, or this part of the investigation of Sun Valley's vehicles?

A. On July -- on my first visit to the farm, which was July 21st, and on my subsequent visit, which is the day after, on July 22nd.

Q. Were you with Mr. Crudup on one of those days, or both, or neither?

A. I was with Mr. Crudup every time I was on the farm, on both days.

Q. How many vehicles did you inspect with Mr. Crudup on July 21st?

A. Two vehicles.

Q. What about on July 22nd?

A. Three vehicles.

Q. Why did you inspect some vehicles on one day and some on another day?

A. Well, not all the fields are located next to each other. There are some fields that the workers are working at that are located some distance from the farm, maybe 15, 20 miles away, maybe even more.

Q. Did you observe any of those vehicles at Sun Valley in operation in 2015?

A. Yes.

Q. What did you observe?

A. On July 22nd, after inspecting the vehicles, the three vehicles, the three small school buses, we noticed that one of the vehicles was being operated at a high rate of speed from one field to another field. We followed the vehicles, obviously staying within the speed limit, and they were driving in excess speed.

Q. How could you tell the speed that that vehicle was driving at?

A. Well, we were driving the speed limit between, I would say, 35 and 45 miles an hour, and they were way ahead of us.

Q. And did you see that vehicle come to a stop that day or did it --

A. It came to a stop and we observed approximately 21 workers exiting the vehicle. As we were driving behind the vehicles, we would actually see some of the workers sitting on coolers, not sitting on seats.

Q. How do you know how many workers were riding on that vehicle?

A. We -- both myself and Mr. Crudup counted them as they exited the vehicle, and we inquired from the driver, Fredi Berto, as to how many workers were being transported in that particular vehicle. He acknowledged 21.

Q. How did -- where did you see that vehicle stop before those 21 workers exited?

A. It stopped at a field to exit the -- I'm sorry. It stopped at a field to, I think it was fertilize or something to that effect.

Q. How do you know the name of the driver, Fredi Berto?

A. Because I spoke with him.

Q. Did Mr. Fredi Berto work at Sun Valley, do you know?

A. Yes. He actually was one of Agustin Hernandez', like, field supervisors, I guess you can refer to him as. He provided me with his driver's license as well.

Q. And what kind of driver's license did he provide you with?

A. I believe it was a Mexican driver's license.

Q. You saw his driver's license that day?

A. Yes.

Q. Do you know whether it had expired or was still valid?

A. I would have to look at the picture of the driver's license.

Q. Did you take a picture of the driver's license?

A Yes.

Q. Now, do you still have the Binder Number 8 on this stand? I'd like you turn to, in Binder 8, PX-30, Page 1064. The first page in PX-30 in Binder 8.

A. 1064, you said?

Q. 1064.

A. Okay.

Q. Do you recognize Page 1064?

A. Yes. It's a picture of Fredi Berto's driver's license that he provided to me.

Q. Is this the picture that you mentioned a moment ago taking?

A. Yes.

Q. How do you know that?

A. I took the picture.

Q. Would you please take some time to review the rest of PX-30? PX-30 continues at Page 1065 and goes through Page 1072.

(Witness reviews document.)

THE WITNESS: I reviewed them.

BY MR. GLICK:

Q. Do you recognize PX-30, Pages 1065 through 1072?
A. Yes, I do.
Q. How do you recognize the rest of the pages in PX-30?
A. Well, I took the pictures of the driver's licenses.
Q. When did you take those pictures?
A. July 22, 2015.
MR. GLICK: Your Honor, I'd move PX-30 into evidence.
JUDGE TIMLIN: Any objection?
MR. SCHULTE: Just a question about the redactions.
JUDGE TIMLIN: Ah, yes.
MR. GLICK: The redactions are for personally identifiable information, such as identification numbers that may coincide with, you know, sort of, national identification numbers, birth dates, that sort of thing, and I believe these redactions were identified as such when these documents were originally produced to counsel, but again, they're all just personally identifiable information.
There may be also their health status information.
MR. SCHULTE: I'm not sure that's a privilege.
JUDGE TIMLIN: It might be under the HIPAA, but I don't know that health -- even if it's not a privilege, I don't know that health status is necessarily relevant but, so I mean, given that these have pictures, names, and I guess, some of them have expiration dates -- some of them aren't the greatest quality, but --

MR. SCHULTE: I think they're partial so that goes to the weight more than admissibility, so they are what they are.

MR. GLICK: Your Honor, if I may, we produced these documents in May to counsel and never heard any objection, but moreover, even if some of this information isn't informally privileged, it's certainly, you know, private information that there are bars on the government from disclosing.

JUDGE TIMLIN: Right. I mean, I'm actually thinking, Mr. Schulte, that if they had not redacted this, I wouldn't want to take it into evidence.

MR. SCHULTE: That's right. But for other information that's been provided, we received a password-protected file, and then the exhibit that's introduced into the record, being a public proceeding, would be redacted, but I don't --

MR. GLICK: Well, we -- I'm sorry.

MR. SCHULTE: Go ahead.

JUDGE TIMLIN: Wait. Okay. I'm lost.

MR. SCHULTE: There were other materials where they would provide information with Social Security numbers, you know, information like that, with the understanding that to the extent they were filed with the Court, it would be redacted at this time. I don't think the information has ever been provided to us.

JUDGE TIMLIN: Oh, the information on the actual licenses?

MR. GLICK: Well, the only information that we've provided that is personally identifiable, without redactions, are records that came directly from Sun Valley in the first place; for instance, payroll records where worker's Social Security numbers are listed, and there may not be a need to redact that information in a document production, but it was, nonetheless, provided in an encrypted way to protect it.

Now, with regard to other information that didn't come from Respondent, we're not at liberty to disclose personally identifiable information such as health -- and I'm really not sure what the issue is. I think it's quite clear the limited scope of the redactions with reference to the documents, and if there's any issue with the Spanish, we can certainly, you know, get into further where the lines are redacted, but I'm not sure what the problem is.

MR. SCHULTE: The concern is, we don't know what we don't know, but I think kind of on the limited basis, kind of for the information that is provided, there's no objection to the information that is provided. It's just raising an ongoing concern that there's a constant drumbeat of us not getting the information.

MR. GLICK: Well, I'd certainly object to the characterization that there's a lack of information. The Government has produced a few thousand pages of documents in this case, produced them in a timely fashion, produced subsequent documents after the close of discovery, turned over any witness statements a week before trial. There hasn't been any basis for any general statement about the Government's compliance with discovery and even beyond its obligations.

JUDGE TIMLIN: Well, I also think in terms of this particular exhibit, the issue before right now before me is whether this particular exhibit is admissible. And I don't think there's any -- I mean, you haven't told me that they didn't turn over to you this version of this particular exhibit. I can tell you right now, I would not have accepted this exhibit if it included any personally identifiable information because this is going to become a public record. This is a record of this here.

MR. SCHULTE: Understood.

JUDGE TIMLIN: And so -- and to the extent that you wanted to make the argument that they should have turned this over to you without redactions at some earlier point, that probably should have been raised at that point; when they turned the information over, you should have raised it to me as a part of a discovery motion that you weren't getting complete discovery.

So I'm going to admit the information because I think that -- I'm going to admit the document, so end of that. It's admitted. Okay. Continue.

(Whereupon, the document referred to and previously marked for identification as Plaintiff's Exhibit 30 was received into evidence.)

MR. GLICK: And, Your Honor, just -- can I just make the record a bit clearer, correct that PX-30 is admitted into evidence?

JUDGE TIMLIN: Yes. All of PX-30 is admitted into evidence.

MR. GLICK: Thank you, Your Honor.

BY MR. GLICK:

Q. Now, Mr. Perez, I believe you testified a moment ago that it would help you to look at a photograph to answer one of my questions?

A. Yes.

JUDGE TIMLIN: Does he even remember the question?

MR. GLICK: So I'm going to get back to the question.

THE WITNESS: Thank you.

BY MR. GLICK:

Q. Do you -- having looked at PX-30, Page 1064, do you remember whether Mr. Fredi Berto's driver's license was valid or expired in 2015?

JUDGE TIMLIN: And just so that the record's clear, because I'm sure the court reporter's problem, I have a bit of trouble with this too, when you keep referring to Mr. Fredi Berto, Fredi Berto is his first name, that's his full first name, and he actually has a couple -- his name is actually Fredi Berto Villasenor Hernandez. That's who we're referring to, right?

MR. GLICK: Yes.

JUDGE TIMLIN: I mean, I understand for shorthand purposes, you may just want to call him Fredi Berto, but I think the record should be clear about who we're talking about.

MR. GLICK: Understood. I was trying to take my cue from the witness' specific testimony with the name.

JUDGE TIMLIN: Right.

BY MR. GLICK:

Q. So let me ask, Mr. Perez, Investigator Perez, do you know the full name of Fredi Berto, the driver that you saw at Sun Valley that day in 2015?

A. Yeah. From the license it says Fredi Berto Villasenor Hernandez.

Q. And Page 1064 is a copy of the license that Mr. Villasenor Hernandez showed you in 2015?

A. Yes.

Q. Was Mr. Villasenor Hernandez' license expired or valid in 2015?

A. It was actually expired. If you notice on the bottom right-hand corner of the driver's license, in certain cultures, you would put the day first, the month second, and the year third, so in this case, it indicates that this driver's license had expired on November 29, 2014.

Q. And where exactly are you looking on Page 1064?

A. On the bottom right-hand corner of the driver's license.

Q. What color is the letter that you are -- letters that you are reading?

A. I'm referring to the red letters. They indicate, "Expira 29-11-2014".

Q. Do you know whether Mr. Villasenor Hernandez had any additional driver's license in 2015?

A. No, this is what was provided.

Q. How do you know he didn't have any -- do you know whether he had any other driver's licenses?

A. This is the one that was provided.

MR. SCHULTE: Objection. Non-responsive.

MR. GLICK: The answer is the answer.

JUDGE TIMLIN: Yeah, it is what it is, so move on.

BY MR. GLICK:

Q. Did you examine the driver's licenses of any of Sun Valley's other driver's licenses in 2015?

A. Yeah, there was three drivers in total that we were provided driver's licenses of that were transporting workers on a school bus.

Q. How did you have an opportunity to review those licenses?

A. It was provided to us when we visited the -- when we followed the vehicle that Fredi Berto Villasenor Hernandez was driving to the farm, because the workers were eating lunch, and we requested the driver's license of all the drivers at that moment.

Q. I want to make sure I understand, at what moment exactly did you request other driver's licenses?

A. When we visited the dormitory housing where the workers were eating lunch, where they were centrally located, where all the buses were centrally located, we requested the driver's licenses from Agustin Hernandez.

Q. What did you actually ask Mr. Hernandez for?

A. The driver's licenses of the drivers that were driving the vehicles that were transporting the workers.

Q. And did Mr. Hernandez give you licenses in return?

A. Yes.

Q. How much time did it take for Mr. Hernandez to give you those licenses?

A. A few minutes. Five, ten minutes at the very most.

Q. Did you see where Mr. Hernandez went before returning after five or ten minutes?

A. No, I mean, he was in the -- he was walking in the camp.

Q. And what did you see when you reviewed those driver's licenses that Mr. Hernandez returned to you?

A. Well, we noticed that some of the -- well, the driver's licenses were all Mexican driver's licenses. It was no U.S. driver's licenses provided.

Q. Did you take photographs of all the driver's licenses that Mr. Hernandez gave you that day?

A. I did.

Q. Do you see in PX-30, whether or not there are photographs of those additional licenses?

A. Yes.

Q. What do you see in PX-30 about whether these are photographs of additional licenses Mr. Hernandez gave you?

A. I mean, these are the driver's licenses that were provided to us when we requested them.

Q. Well, let me call your attention, specifically, to Page 1076. What is Page 1076?

A. It was a driver's license that was provided to us.

Q. When was it provided to you?

A. On July 22nd.

Q. And what state, or region, or province, government agency is this driver's license issued by?

A. Well, it says, on the very top, it indicates, "Licencia Federal de Conductor", and it has the picture of the emblem of Mexico in the right-hand corner, so it's a Mexican driver's license.

MR. SCHULTE: Sorry, Your Honor, not by way of objection, but just in the interest of moving this along, the records all speak for themselves. Is there a way we can fast forward through this part of him reading them?

JUDGE TIMLIN: Right. I mean, I think this is what -- it seems to me that the things we want to know is, whose driver's license, is it from Mexico or not from Mexico, or from the U.S., and is it expired or fine. So let's just -- for each one, for this -- Sanchez, Villasenor, I think it's clear.

You've testified that it's a Mexican driver's license. Is there an expiration date on it?

THE WITNESS: If you actually look on the middle section, it indicates the initial date of January 20, 2012 until January 20, 2017, so this license was valid at the time to operate the vehicle in Mexico, not the United States.

JUDGE TIMLIN: Okay. Go ahead.

BY MR. GLICK:

Q. And, Investigator Perez, Page 1070. What government agency issued the license in 1070?

A. It's actually Mexico. It's the State of Michoacan. Do you see that on the top right-hand corner?

Q. So is your testimony that you were given copies of three driver's licenses by Mr. Hernandez that day?

A. Yes.

Q. Besides those --

JUDGE TIMLIN: Okay. Because you are kind of going over the same territory, so the only thing I want to know on Page 1070, whose driver's license is that?

THE WITNESS: The driver's license of one of the drivers, Jose Manuel Villasenor Vargas. It's a current driver's license. It was valid. The expiration date would be September 4, 2016.

BY MR. GLICK:

Q. Investigator Perez, when you say that Mr. Villasenor Vargas' driver's license is valid, was valid, what do you mean by that?

A. It was valid to operate a vehicle in the country of Mexico, not in the United States.

MR. SCHULTE: Objection, Your Honor. I haven't heard any foundation for his expertise in motor vehicle law.

JUDGE TIMLIN: Right. So yeah, if you're going to say that, we need some foundation for that.

BY MR. GLICK:

Q. When you testified that this driver's license was valid, were you expressing an opinion about whether it was a valid driver's license to operate any vehicles in New Jersey in 2015 or were you not expressing an opinion about that?

A. No, it's actually fact, as part of the Migrant and Seasonal Workers Protection Act regulations. We also enforce state law. In the State of New Jersey, you are required to possess an international driver's license that is obtained at the country of origin prior to being about to drive in your -- in the State of New Jersey.

Q. I'm sorry, but I just want to ask a reasonable question, do you -- is it your opinion that -- was it your testimony that Page 1070 is a photograph of a driver's license that was valid to operate in New Jersey in 2015?

A. No, it's not valid to operate.

MR. SCHULTE: Same objection, Your Honor.

JUDGE TIMLIN: Okay. I guess, because I'm not really understanding, maybe I'm missing something, but you just said that in New Jersey, if you have an international driver's license issued from your country of origin, you can drive in New Jersey, so what's the problem?

THE WITNESS: It's an additional permit that's required. You have to obtain an international driver's license.

JUDGE TIMLIN: So these are -- you don't consider these international driver's licenses.

THE WITNESS: No, these are not international driver's licenses.

JUDGE TIMLIN: And how do you know that?

THE WITNESS: Because you have to obtain a different international driver's license where the information itself is transcribed into English from the New Jersey Department of Motor Vehicles.

JUDGE TIMLIN: And you know that because of what?

THE WITNESS: My expertise.

JUDGE TIMLIN: Okay. Where do you get this expertise from?

THE WITNESS: In conducting the investigations with -- in relation to the driver's licenses that are required to operate vehicles.

JUDGE TIMLIN: Because -- okay. So is this part of your job as a Migrant and Seasonal Worker Protection -- I mean, migrant investigator?

THE WITNESS: Yes, Your Honor.

JUDGE TIMLIN: Is that you have to understand the state laws?

THE WITNESS: Yeah. Various states have different laws.

MR. GLICK: Your Honor, I don't want to interrupt, but I'm not really sure we need to bring this information now in regard to, you know, Mr. Perez is not an expert on law and we haven't called him as such, and I want to just move on --

JUDGE TIMLIN: Right. No, I know, but he --

MR. SCHULTE: You're questioning him as such.

JUDGE TIMLIN: The question that counseled raised, you know, counsel was objecting because he was saying he doesn't -- there's no foundation to think that Mr. Perez would have any reason to know whether or not you're allowed, under New Jersey state law, to drive on a Mexican license. Mr. Perez is explaining that there's something called an international license that you have to have if you're under New Jersey state law.

I need to know how he -- why he would have any reason to know. I certainly don't have any knowledge of New Jersey state law about this, so I want to know why. He's explaining that this is part of his job as a wage hour investigator to know your -- I think you need to establish that.

MR. GLICK: Fair enough, Your Honor. We are happy to submit briefing, and we will on the issue of any of these legal questions. And it's not our intention to introduce that for Mr. Perez, and I withdraw the question about the validity of licenses and want to move on.

JUDGE TIMLIN: Okay. All right. Let's move on then.

BY MR. GLICK:

Q. Investigator Perez, were there other --

A. Can I close this?

Q. Yes, please go ahead. Did you determine in 2015 whether there were more than three people driving Sun Valley's vehicles?

A. Yes. There were five people that were driving vehicles.

Q. Were those other people driving Sun Valley's workers or something else?

A. Yeah, they were transporting workers from the fields to the -- I'm sorry, from the dormitory housing to the fields.

Q. How did you determine that there were five people driving vehicles?

A. Well, I, firsthand, saw them driving the vehicles from the dormitory housing as they were leaving to go back to the fields. They were sitting in the passenger's seat of each vehicle.

Q. Well, where were you --

JUDGE TIMLIN: Passenger's seat?

THE WITNESS: I'm sorry, the driver's seat.

BY MR. GLICK:

Q. Where were you such that you could observe who was driving?

A. I entered the vehicles and I requested driver's licenses from the drivers.

Q. So where were you when you entered the vehicle?

A. I entered the vehicle through the passenger's side door and I requested the driver's license. We were physically located in the worker housing in the dormitory section.

Q. So where were the vehicles parked? I assume the vehicles were parked before you entered the vehicles?

A. Yes. They were being readied -- they were being filled with workers to be taken to the fields to work.

Q. Where were the vehicles parked immediately before you entered the vehicles?

A. They were parked in the dormitory housing.

Q. And so talk me through what you did to determine who was driving those vehicles.

A. When Agustin Hernandez presented the driver's licenses for the three workers, I requested, what about the other -- I asked from him what about the other driver's licenses from the other operators, and he disregarded the question. So I proceeded to inquire from the other workers, from the other drivers, you know, to show me their driver's license. And I asked them for their driver's license, so I entered the vehicle, I walked inside the vehicle, and I asked them, in Spanish, to present me with their driver's license, and they indicated not having a driver's license.

I then notified Agustin Hernandez and told him, these workers are not allowed to drive vehicles. They have no driver's license. They're not authorized to operate the vehicles. And he disregarded the question -- the fact altogether and he let the drivers leave with -- full of workers.

Q. How many drivers did you determine did not have any driver's licenses in 2015 at Sun Valley?

A. There was two drivers that didn't possess driver's licenses at all. They refused to even provide me with their names.

Q. During your investigation in 2015 of Sun Valley, did any drivers present you with a U.S. driver's license?

A. No.

Q. Did any drivers present you with a Canadian license?

A. No.

Q. Did Mr. Hernandez present you with any U.S. driver's licenses for Sun Valley's workers?

A. No.

Q. Did Mr. Hernandez present you with any Canadian driver's licenses for Sun Valley's workers?

A. No.

Q. Okay. Now, I'd like to ask you some other questions related to Sun Valley's vehicles and their condition in 2015. Did you take any photographs, any other photographs, of Sun Valley's vehicles in 2015 during your inspection of --

A. Yeah, we documented the vehicles as we were conducting the inspections, in regards to taking front, center pictures to show the driver's license. We would take rear side pictures to show the license plate in the back to be able to identify each vehicle. We would take pictures of the registration and the insurance information for each vehicle, so we can actually identify each vehicle. If there was any safety violations that we identified during the inspection, we also took pictures of that.

Q. So I'd like to turn your attention back to Binder 8 and the tab marked PX-29, please. Please take a moment, or as much time as you need, to review PX-29, Pages 1057 through 1063.

A. I did.

Q. What are the documents in PX-29?

A. These are pictures of the vehicles that we inspected and these are the violations we identified; the safety violations we identified.

Q. Did you take the photographs in PX-29?

A. I did.

Q. When did you take them?

A. On July 21st and July 22nd.

Q. When did you take the photographs in PX-29?

A. July --

Q. I apologize. Where did you take the photographs in PX-29?

A. I took them in the fields where the workers were -- where the vehicles were stopped at, where the workers had been driven to.

MR. GLICK: Your Honor, I move PX-29 into evidence.

JUDGE TIMLIN: Any objections?

MR. SCHULTE: No.

JUDGE TIMLIN: No? Okay. Admitted.

(Whereupon, the document referred to and previously marked for identification as Plaintiff's Exhibit 29 was received into evidence.)

BY MR. GLICK:

Q. Mr. Perez, I believe you testified earlier about bald tires on some of Sun Valley's vehicles in 2015?

A. That's correct.

Q. What did you observe about those bald tires in 2015?

A. The bald tires contained almost no tread on them, so they would -- they were required to be repaired/replaced.

Q. I'd like to call your attention to Page 1059, PX-29, Page 1059, what is this a photograph of?

A. This is a photograph of one of the tires. I insert -- this is my hand. As you see there, I'm using a pen, to show that there's no tread on the actual tire. So you can see it with the pen.

Q. How does the pen show anything about the tread on the tire?

A. If there was any tread on the tire, the pen would actually go down into the tread. There was no tread on it.

Q. Did you observe whether the pen went down into the tire, regardless of what's shown in this photograph, on that day, did you observe whether the pen went down into the tire?

A. Yeah, it didn't go down.

Q. How many tires did you observe were bald on Sun Valley's vehicles in 2015?

A. Of the five vehicles, I believe three of them had worn tires, two, three. I'm not sure.

Q. Did you perform this pen exercise on each of those three tires?

A. Yes.

Q. Are Pages 1058 to 1063 photographs of those three tires or some other tires?

A. I believe those are the three tires.

Q. Did you observe any other issues with the condition of Sun Valley's vehicles in 2015?

A. There was one vehicle that contained a rear directional that was, the glass on it was shattered, and I believe the bulb was not functioning. It was inoperational.

Q. How did you determine whether the bulb was functioning or not in that vehicle?

A. Well, we inspected each vehicle. Investigator John Crudup sat inside the vehicles and we conducted the inspection from inside and outside, and we tested each directional, both the front and the rear, and we noticed that the rear one, passenger's side, was not operational, was not in operation.

Q. So I just want to focus specifically on this one bulb that you told me about not being functional. Did you turn on the vehicle or Mr. Crudup?

A. Mr. Crudup turned on the vehicle and we did a point-by-point inspection of the directional signals and the directional signal of the rear passenger was not working.

Q. I'd like you to turn to PX-29, Page 1057, please. What is this a photograph of? Page 1057.

A. This is a photograph of the rear of the vehicle. It shows the license plate on the left-hand corner. It indicates XAJZ35, and on the right-hand side, on the passenger's side, you see the shattered glass.

Q. Where is that shattered glass?

A. On the right-hand side.

Q. Does Page 1057 show any lights on or not?

A. No, it does not.

Q. Did you observe that day whether the rear of that bus had an operational passenger turn signal?

A. Yeah, it wasn't functioning.

Q. Were there any operational rear passenger turn signals on XAJZ35 that day of your inspection?

A. Yeah, the left ones worked. The left rear worked; the right rear did not.

Q. So on the right rear side of XAJZ35, there was no functioning turn signal?

MR. SCHULTE: Objection, Your Honor. This is painful enough to go through once, but three times is too much.

JUDGE TIMLIN: Okay. Yeah, actually, yeah, you sound like you're kind of repetitive here. So ask him in an open question, because you're not -- you should not be leading him. Let him tell the story, and then move on to the next document.

MR. GLICK: Understood.

BY MR. GLICK:

Q. When you observed the condition of XAJZ35 during your inspection, how many functioning turn signals were there on the rear of the vehicle?

MR. SCHULTE: Your Honor, this is the same material. This is now four and five times already.

JUDGE TIMLIN: Right.

MR. SCHULTE: I think we've established it pretty clearly.

JUDGE TIMLIN: Right.

MR. SCHULTE: We're going to be here all day.

MR. GLICK: Fair enough.

JUDGE TIMLIN: Yeah, move to the next one.

BY MR. GLICK:

Q. Investigator Perez, prior to 2015, did you, the Wage and Hour Division, conduct any inspections of Sun Valley's vehicles?

A. We did. We inspected the vehicles, but at that time, the vehicles were not being operated.

Q. What time are you referring to?
A. In 2013, when we conducted that investigation.
MR. GLICK: I want to move on to another topic, but wonder if I could take a short break first.
JUDGE TIMLIN: Sure. Right. We've been going at it for an hour and a half. It's 11 o'clock. So let's come back at 11:10.
MR. GLICK: Thank you.
(Off the record at 11:03 a.m.)
(On the record at 11:16 a.m.)
JUDGE TIMLIN: Okay. Continue, Mr. Glick.
BY MR. GLICK:
Q. Investigator Perez, did you learn anything during the investigation in 2015 into Sun Valley about workers who left Sun Valley before September 2015?
A. There were workers that had left in early May and also again then in August of 2015.
Q. So starting with that first group, do you know why those workers departed Sun Valley in May 2015?
A. Workers indicated being -- you know, leaving Sun Valley because of some of the conditions present, and also some indicated being terminated.
Q. Did any of Sun Valley's owners tell you about why those workers left in May?
A. Russell Marino, Jr. indicated that the workers had left because they couldn't handle the work. Agustin Hernandez, the field boss, also indicated that the workers couldn't handle the work. It was too tough for them.

Q. The workers who left in August 2015, do you know why they left?

A. They were terminated. They were no longer required.

Q. How do you know that?

A. I interviewed the workers.

Q. When?

A. In August of 2015.

Q. Did you interview those workers at Sun Valley or somewhere else?

A. I interviewed them physically at Sun Valley.

Q. And did you see them working when you went to Sun Valley that day?

A. No. I was actually going to the farm to return the purchase receipts to Agustin Hernandez that he had provided and I noticed it was a significant amount of workers in the dormitory housing, just playing soccer or just standing around. After returning the receipts to Agustin Hernandez' spouse, Elia Pinon, I asked the workers as to why they weren't working, and they said that they had been terminated two days prior to that, and that they were returning to Mexico later that week.

Q. Did the workers tell you anything about whether or not they signed any documents?

A. Yeah. During the conversations with the workers, they presented a document showing that the -- I'm sorry, that they were given that indicated several reasonings that they were leaving.

Q. Did you learn during the investigation whether Sun Valley notified any government agencies about the reasons why those workers stopped working in August 2015?

A. Yeah. In the process of the investigation, I requested records, both from Sun Valley and also from State Workforce Agency, in regards to the notification of workers having left, those notices indicating workers leaving for personal reasons.

Q. Mr. Perez, in Binder Number 9, I'd like you to turn to PX-39, please. Could you please review the documents in PX-39 and let me know when you've done so?

A. I reviewed them.

Q. Do you recognize the documents at PX-39?

A. Yes, I do.

Q. How do you recognize PX-39?

A. These are some of the documents that you provided me with and I've also received other copies myself from State Workforce Agency.

Q. How did you obtain those documents from the State Workforce Agency?

A. I emailed a State Workforce representative and he provided the notifications that were made in regards to the requirement for the abandonment or job termination of H2A workers.

MR. GLICK: Your Honor, I move PX-39 into evidence.

JUDGE TIMLIN: Any objection?

MR. SCHULTE: I'm sorry, Your Honor. I think there's a hearsay objection, but it's -- if the Court's inclined to accept hearsay evidence, then --

MR. GLICK: Well, may I? We're not introducing PX-39 for the truth of the matter of why the workers departed, but of what was recorded to government agencies about departure, so it goes to state of mind rather than the truth of the matter.

MR. SCHULTE: It's the state of mind of someone who's not the company.

JUDGE TIMLIN: Well, wait, I thought -- it's my understanding that you're not introducing it for the state of mind -- they're introducing it for the purposes of this is the notice that Sun Valley Orchards provided to the State Department of Labor, which would show that Sun Valley provided notice to the State Department of Labor that workers left.

MR. SCHULTE: Which they did, as they were required to. There's no dispute over that.

JUDGE TIMLIN: So what's the hearsay part of that?

MR. SCHULTE: That declarant, or, you know, the person making these statements is not the one introducing it, that it's a statement outside the court.

JUDGE TIMLIN: That it's coming from a state agency, that these are the documents that a state agency provided to --

MR. SCHULTE: Well, there's some documents --

JUDGE TIMLIN: -- the state agency provided to the federal agency in response to a request for documents that would establish that whether Sun Valley did or did not notify the state agency that the employees were leaving? I don't see the problem.

MR. SCHULTE: Well, there's a separate chain of custody issue of this. There's nobody from the state agency saying that they got these or anything about the documents, but the point that they're being offered for is not that these documents exist. I mean, they're clearly in front of us, but, you know, to the extent that they're being offered to -- as a statement by anyone, you know, as to the content of the document. I don't think that's appropriate.

JUDGE TIMLIN: Would you prefer that there be no evidence that they gave notice that these employees left? I don't understand.

MR. SCHULTE: No, we agree that notice was given. The concern is the extent to which counsel is going to use this. If it is just to represent that notice was given, then so be it.

MR. SCHULTE: Well, we plan to, you know, lay the foundation for PX-39 and draw out specific evidence. I would dispute counsel's representation that there is no dispute about anything about the notifications. We've, you know, addressed this issue in our summary judgment briefing, and I don't want to get into it, but there are questions about the adequacy of notice on -- that these documents are relevant, so we intend to draw that testimony out.

And moreover, these are, I think quite clearly, or we can establish that these are emails produced by Sun Valley in discovery, and the witness has testified that he's reviewed them and that he had also, you know, previously seen copies of them and they're made by Sun Valley's agent.

MR. SCHULTE: And again, there's no issue that they did or didn't give notice. I mean, there's a separate set of penalties if you fail to provide notice of workers terminated more than 30 days before the end of the contract, payable to Homeland Security and Department of Labor's ETA. That's not part of the case.

JUDGE TIMLIN: Right. No, I understand. I'm a little confused now because what you're introducing, you just said that these are documents that Sun Valley provided to the Department of Labor, but what I'm seeing are emails to the Department of Labor, not from Sun -- or maybe, I don't know who this one individual is.

MR. GLICK: If I wasn't clear, we have evidence of this, but this is Sun Valley's agent.

JUDGE TIMLIN: Wicker is Sun Valley's agent?

MR. GLICK: Does Sun Valley dispute that these are documents produced in discovery?

JUDGE TIMLIN: You guys produced these to them, these emails?

MR. SCHULTE: Yes.

JUDGE TIMLIN: Then what's the problem?

MR. SCHULTE: That doesn't mean that they're admissible or they're not hearsay; the scope of discovery is obviously different than the scope of admissibility at a hearing. Their request was any documents related to your participation in the H-2A program in 2015. These are. I mean, notice was given when workers are terminated; it's required to be given or we pay penalties to other agencies for that.

The question is both relevance, but also that doesn't mean that it's admissible or admissible for the content of the statements by someone else to -- by a third party to a fourth party.

MR. GLICK: Your Honor, we intend to admit these as the notice that was given. There are issues about the completeness of notice as to specific workers.

JUDGE TIMLIN: Right. Yeah. Otherwise they wouldn't be fighting it so hard.

MR. GLICK: We do not dispute that some notice was given, but there's clearly a dispute about the content of the notice.

JUDGE TIMLIN: The content of the notice, and that's --

MR. SCHULTE: And again, Your Honor, we're not disputing it because we're trying to hide anything, I just think that counsel needs to follow the rules.

MR. GLICK: I'm not sure what rule is at issue. The documents are not being introduced for the truth of the reason that the workers left, but for the --

MR. SCHULTE: I'm not clear what the reason is, I think.

JUDGE TIMLIN: Well, who created -- who is Warren Wicker?

MR. GLICK: My understanding --

JUDGE TIMLIN: I mean, the emails are from Warren Wicker and they're sent to someone at dhs.gov, someone at ETA, a Raphael Despacio (ph.) at dol.state.nj.us. They're copied to Russ. I'm assuming that's one of the two Marinos. Margie Cover (ph.), I don't know who that is. Lisa Justman (ph.). So these are documents that you guys gave to the Department of Labor.

MR. SCHULTE: Correct. We were -- you can see, we were -- you know, people at Sun Valley were copied on the email and so they were records in our possession that were responsive, potentially, to discovery requests.

JUDGE TIMLIN: To discovery. So --

MR. GLICK: Your Honor, may I?

JUDGE TIMLIN: Yeah, go ahead.

MR. GLICK: My understanding is that Warren Wicker is an agent of Sun Valley who submitted documents on Sun Valley's behalf to participate in the H-2A program. For example, there are documents in Joint Exhibits 1 through 4, including, you know, contract between Warren Wicker's company and Sun Valley regarding that agency relationship between Sun Valley and this entity, National Agricultural Consultants, LLC.

I really don't think there's any dispute that these are the notifications that Sun Valley provided via its agent, and I think there's some very narrow and specific questions we plan to ask, and I'm not going to --

JUDGE TIMLIN: Right. I mean, besides the header of the email, the content appears to be a notice from Mr. Wicker to the U.S. Department of Labor, ETA, OFLC, the State Workforce Agency of New Jersey, about the -- specifically, to the H-2A program union, and it says -- it talks about Sun Valley is notifying the United States Department of Labor.

So this is a document that someone purportedly on behalf of Sun Valley, is telling the Department of Labor something. I don't get why this is a hearsay problem. I mean, isn't this a document that your client created so that your client could notify the government agency that they terminated -- that certain employees left and the reasons for the fact that those employees left?

MR. SCHULTE: There may be a hearsay exception that applies, Your Honor, but it's clearly -- it's hearsay prima facie. The question and as far as the conclusion that this was something that Sun Valley created, that's not here. And so, I mean, if it's being offered for the purpose of saying that Warren Wicker told the government that these workers left on this day, that's fine. There's no objection there. The concern is the scope and if that's the reason it's being offered, then it's a question of, literally, why?

JUDGE TIMLIN: Well, not only -- I guess not only that -- I mean, not only that, I guess, that you're offering it not only to say that Warren Wicker told the government that Sun Valley wanted to let the government know that certain workers left and who the workers were, and the reasons -- when the workers left and the reasons for their leaving.

MR. GLICK: The reasons reported on Sun Valley's behalf --

JUDGE TIMLIN: The reasons that Warren Wicker reported them leaving.

MR. SCHULTE: It may go to weight or to relevance, and not to admissibility. If Your Honor's inclined to accept it, that's fine, but we have issues as to what this means, but

I mean --

JUDGE TIMLIN: Okay. And that certainly is --

MR. SCHULTE: -- they are -- these are documents.

JUDGE TIMLIN: -- that certainly is something you can argue, is what it means, but okay. They're admitted.

All right. You can continue, Mr. Glick.

(Whereupon, the document referred to and previously marked for identification as Plaintiff's Exhibit 39 was received into evidence.)

BY MR. GLICK:

Q. Mr. Perez, PX-39, Page 1191, does this page indicate the reasons Sun Valley informed government agencies that workers departed on a particular date?

MR. SCHULTE: Objection, Your Honor. I mean, I think as we've discussed for a while now, this is not Sun Valley saying anything. I mean, the documents say what they say. I don't think we need his interpretation as to what someone who's not part of this email is saying through it.

MR. GLICK: Does Sun Valley dispute that these are the notifications that --

JUDGE TIMLIN: Yeah, I guess that's what I'm not understanding. So you're saying that Mr. -- are you arguing that Mr. Wicker made up this whole thing about employees leaving and why they left?

MR. SCHULTE: I'm saying we don't know and I'm saying that Mr. Perez definitely doesn't know. I'm just not sure that this is the witness to get into anyone's intent, much less get behind the emails.

JUDGE TIMLIN: Okay. So then I think the question -- but I think then an allowable question might be, Mr. Perez, you gathered information that you led you to a conclusion that workers -- as to the reasons that workers left.

THE WITNESS: Yes, it certainly wasn't for personal reasons.

JUDGE TIMLIN: So what did this -- and this information is the information in Exhibit 39.

THE WITNESS: Yes.

JUDGE TIMLIN: What conclusions did you draw after reviewing that information?

THE WITNESS: That it was falsely reported that workers were leaving for personal reasons when they were, in fact, leaving because they were terminated or for other circumstances.

JUDGE TIMLIN: Okay. That's a big leap, that the false conclusion is a big leap. Okay. So when you looked at this, what information did you have from this?

THE WITNESS: Well, it indicates that the workers returned for personal reasons.

JUDGE TIMLIN: Okay. So this told you that the workers returned for personal reasons. Did you have other information that you gathered during the course of your investigation that made you question these documents?

THE WITNESS: Yes. When I conducted subsequent interviews with workers, they suggested that they did not leave for personal reasons.

MR. GLICK: Your Honor, may I continue?

JUDGE TIMLIN: Now you can continue.

MR. GLICK: Thank you.

BY MR. GLICK:

Q. PX-39, Page 1194. Does Page 1194 indicate the reason that workers departed on August 8, 2015?

A. And indicated under the reasoning it suggests, "Workers returned home for personal reasons."

Q. Now, Mr. Perez, did you have an opportunity to review a complete set of the notifications provided on Sun Valley's behalf of the workers who left in 2015?

A. I did.

Q. Did any of those notifications list a worker named Jose Eslas Larraga?

A. No, they did not.

Q. Turning away from this document for the time, did you review Sun Valley payroll records as part of your investigation?

A. I did. Can I close the binder?
Q. Yes, please. What kind of payroll records did you review?
A. I reviewed time and payroll records for the entire growing season for 2015.
Q. How did you obtain those payroll records?
A. I requested them from Russell Marino, Jr., and it was provided by the office manager, Lisa Justice, in paper format.
Q. Did you make any findings as a result of your review of those payroll records in 2015?
A. Using the payroll records, I was able to transcribe the entire season's payroll records, and the hour records, and it indicated that there were workers that did not meet the 3/4 threshold as required for H-2A regulations.
Q. How many hours was Sun Valley required to offer its workers in 2015?
A. According to both job orders, they indicated 40 hours per week offered. It indicated 7 hours Monday through Friday, 0 hours for Saturday, and 5 hours for Sunday.
Q. Do you have Binder 7 on the witness stand? I'd like you to turn --
A. Just a second.
Q. Do you have Binder 7, Mr. Perez?
A. Yes, I do.

Q. Investigator Perez, I'd like you to turn to PX-23. And please take a look at the pages in PX-23 beginning at Page 853.

A. The entire exhibit?

Q. Yes, please, as necessary too. So in terms of what you've reviewed so far, have you seen those pages at PX-23 before?

A. Yeah, these are the payroll records that were provided in paper format by Lisa Justice, the office manager at Sun Valley Orchards.

Q. Is PX-23 a complete copy of those payroll records?

A. It appears so.

Q. How many pages, approximately, are at PX-23?

A. Approximately 70 pages, I would say.

Q. Do you know about how many pages Sun Valley provided you with payroll records in 2015?

A. I couldn't recall. It was a lot of pages.

Q. Was it more than 70; less than 70?

A. Possibly more. I'm not sure.

MR. GLICK: Your Honor, I move PX-23 into evidence, and as we've identified in our, you know, exhibit tab, this is an excerpt of Sun Valley's payroll records. I believe there wasn't any objection by Respondent in their objections.

JUDGE TIMLIN: Okay. And I will note, because we had this discussion earlier, there are redactions in this of the Social Security numbers. Any objection to --

MR. SCHULTE: No, Your Honor, and just to clarify that it's an excerpt and that these are not -- just to clarify that.

JUDGE TIMLIN: Okay.

MR. SCHULTE: Okay. These are partial records.

JUDGE TIMLIN: So they're admitted.

(Whereupon, the document referred to and previously marked for identification as Plaintiff's Exhibit 23 was received into evidence.)

BY MR. GLICK:

Q. Investigator Perez, what kind of information is contained in PX-23?

A. It's the payroll runs, the payroll inquiry check view, for both U.S. domestic workers and H-2A workers. The information indicates the employee number on the left-hand column, the employee's name, identifiable Social Security number, if there is one; right below that it indicates the hours that they worked and the hours that they were paid for.

And if you go across, they have deductions taken, for, like, Social Security, Medicare, state withheld taxes, and then you have the net amount on the right-hand column. At the very top you have the pay period that it accounts for.

Q. Thank you. Now, Investigator Perez, could you please turn to Page 869? What is Page 869?

A. It's a payroll run for the period of June 3, 2015 through June 9, 2015, for H-2A workers, it appears.

Q. How can you tell that this is a payroll, Page 869, for H-2A workers?

A. It has no deduction for federal taxes, Social Security taxes, or Medicare taxes.

Q. Now, turning to Page 871, does Page 871 indicate the number of hours that worker Miguel A. Elizondo Soto worked?

A. Miguel A. Elizondo Soto worked 32.75 hours.

MR. GLICK: Your Honor, I would request permission to transcribe some of these numbers on to this flip chart as a demonstrative.

JUDGE TIMLIN: Sure.

BY MR. GLICK:

Q. In what week did Mr. Elizondo Soto work 32.75 hours?

A. The pay period stated above, on the right-hand section, it indicates June 3, 2015 through June 9, 2015.

Q. Investigator Perez, please turn to Page 876. How many hours did Mr. Elizondo Soto work the work week ending June 16th?

A. So the pay period June 10, 2015 through June 16, 2015, Miguel A. Elizondo Soto worked 51.51 hours, according to the payroll records.

Q. Please turn to Page 879. How many hours did Mr. Elizondo Soto work the week ending June 23rd?

A. For the pay period June 17, 2015 to June 23, 2015, Miguel Elizondo Soto worked 82.23 hours.

Q. Please turn to Page 884. How many hours did Mr. Elizondo Soto work the week ending June 30th?

A. For the work week June 24, 2015 to June 30, 2015, Miguel A. Elizondo Soto worked 10.75 hours.

Q. Please turn to Page 892. How many hours did Mr. Elizondo Soto work the week ending July 7th?

A. So for the work week July 1, 2015 to July 7, 2015, Miguel A. Elizondo Soto worked 43 hours.

Q. Please turn to Page 895. How many hours did Mr. Elizondo Soto work the week ending July 14th?

A. For the pay period July 6th -- I'm sorry, July 8, 2015 to July 14, 2015, Miguel A. Elizondo Soto worked 70.51 hours.

Q. Could you please repeat the number so I make sure I hear it correctly?

A. 70.51.

MR. SCHULTE: What page is this last one on?

JUDGE TIMLIN: 895.

MR. SCHULTE: We're still on 895?

JUDGE TIMLIN: We just finished with 895.

MR. SCHULTE: Okay. Gotcha.

MR. GLICK: Is everyone ready for me to continue?

JUDGE TIMLIN: Yeah.

BY MR. GLICK:

Q. Investigator Perez, would you please turn to Page 904? How many hours did Mr. Elizondo Soto work the week ending July 21st?

A. So for the work week July 15, 2015 to July 21, 2015, Miguel A. Elizondo Soto work 57.75 hours.

Q. Please turn to Page 908. How many hours did Mr. Elizondo Soto work the week ending July 28th?

A. So for the work week July 22, 2015 to July 28, 2015, Miguel A. Elizondo Soto worked 63.25 hours.

Q. Please turn to Page 919. How many hours -- I'll wait until you're ready.

A. Sorry. Just give me a minute.

Q. Take your time. Are you on Page 919?

A. Yes, I am.

Q. How many hours did Mr. Elizondo Soto work the week ending August 4th?

A. So for the work week of July 29, 2015 to August 4, 2015, Miguel A. Elizondo Soto worked 59.25 hours.

Q. Other than the weeks that you've read out and that I wrote on this flipchart, do you whether Mr. Elizondo Soto worked any other hours in 2015?

A. I don't believe so.

Q. What is that based on?
A. That's based on the payroll records provided by Sun Valley Orchards.
Q. Are those records that you only reviewed today during your testimony or beforehand?
A. These are records that I reviewed during my investigation.
Q. Investigator Perez, I'd like to ask you to use a calculator that I previously provided you to add up this number of hours.
A. I'm finished.
Q. What is the total number of hours?
A. The total number of hours is 471.
Q. Mr. Perez, do you have a Binder Number 1 in front of you?
A. 1?
Q. Binder 1. And if anyone doesn't, please let me know and I'll make sure you get Binder 1.
PX-1. Investigator Perez, could you open Binder 1 to PX-1, Page 1, please? Do you recognize PX-1?
A. Yes, I do.
Q. What is PX-1?
A. This is the analysis that I conducted for the back wage computations for the 3/4 guarantee for the H-2A workers at Sun Valley Orchards during 2015.

MR. GLICK: Your Honor, I move PX-1 into evidence.

JUDGE TIMLIN: Any objection?

MR. SCHULTE: I'm sorry, did Mr. Perez say that he had created this record?

JUDGE TIMLIN: Yeah. He created this when he was doing his analysis for back wage computations.

MR. SCHULTE: Then no objection.

JUDGE TIMLIN: It's admitted.

(Whereupon, the document referred to and previously marked for identification as Plaintiff's Exhibit 1 was received into evidence.)

BY MR. GLICK:

Q. Investigator Perez, when you created PX-1, did you rely on any documents?

A. I relied on the payroll and time records provided by Sun Valley Orchards for the complete growing season of 2015.

Q. And in PX-1, how many -- did you determine the number of hours that Mr. Elizondo Soto worked at Sun Valley in 2015?

A. I determined that he had worked, according to the payroll and the time records provided by Sun Valley Orchards, he worked 471 hours.

Q. Is there a particular you're looking in PX-1?

A. I'm looking under the column that states, "HRS WRKD", which stands for hours worked.

Q. Could you please explain all the various columns in PX-1 with reference to Miguel A. Elizondo Soto?

A. Sure. The first column is stated as, "First", which is the first name of the worker. The next column would be stated as, "Last", which is the last name of the worker. The next column is, "EE Number", which stands for employee number as provided according to payroll records for Sun Valley Orchards.

The first pay period worked, which is the week ending date. This is the last day of the work week where the worker first appeared on the payroll record. The last pay period worked, which is the ending date of when they last appeared on the payroll record, according to Sun Valley Orchards' records. The start of the pay period is the initial starting point of the pay period. The contract end date, which is the contract end date as stated by the job orders submitted for H-2A for Sun Valley Orchards.

In regards to weeks, it's the period of time from the start of the pay period to the contract end date. The job offered hours per week is the job offered hours per week as stated in the job order by Sun Valley Orchards for H-2A workers. Federal holiday hours is federal holiday hours as -- that fell in the period of employment from the period the workers worked until the contract end date, that were deducted from the hours offered.

The total workday hours between the first pay period and the contract end date is all the hours that would have been worked during that period of time. The 3/4 guarantee is just that number, the previous column, the total workday hours between first pay period and contract end date, multiplied by 3/4, which would be the 3/4 threshold required for hours to be offered for Sun Valley to be in compliance with H-2A regulations.

The next column is hours worked, which is hours worked according to the payroll records and the time records provided by Sun Valley Orchards during 2015 growing season.

The next column is variance, if there is any variance between one end column and the other column, which is the 3/4 guarantee and the hours worked column.

AEWR hourly rate, which is the prevailing wage rate as stated in both job orders by Sun Valley Orchards for 2015, and the 3/4 guarantee back wages -- it's the previous column -- the AEWR hourly rate, multiplied by the variance between the 3/4 guarantee and the actual hours worked.

Q. And so for Mr. Elizondo Soto, specifically, which numbers did you use to calculate 897.56?

A. So I used the variance between the hours that Mr. Elizondo Soto worked and the actual 3/4 guarantee that he was required to meet in order to be in compliance.

Q. Is that methodology that you've been describing the same that you used for all of Sun Valley's workers?

A. I did.

Q. Now, why did you use $11.29 as part of these calculations?

A. I used the prevailing wage rate as stated in the job orders, even though at times, there were employees that actually earned in excess of $11.29 an hour because they were piece rate paid.

Q. Would it have been appropriate to use a number other than $11.29 in performing these calculations?

A. Could have used the higher amount, because that's -- that would have been the required rate.

MR. SCHULTE: Objection, Your Honor. That's a legal conclusion and, frankly, I don't think it's an accurate legal conclusion. But I guess we --

JUDGE TIMLIN: Right. No, I'll let this testimony stand, with the understanding that ultimately I'm going to make the legal conclusions.

MR. SCHULTE: Fair enough.

BY MR. GLICK:

Q. Investigator Perez, is there information in Sun Valley's job orders that indicates whether or not Sun Valley was required to pay workers a number other than $11.29 an hour under any circumstances?

A. There was. In the job orders, it stated a piece rate paid for individual items picked, such as peppers and other vegetables, including peaches. The workers -- according to that job order, the workers are always guaranteed to be paid at least the $11.29 an hour prevailing wage rate.

There were certain instances where workers earned more than that because they were piece rate paid, so there was additional hourly rate, besides the $11.29 an hour.

Q. Now, in the calculations you performed in PX-1, why did you use the hours worked in Sun Valley's payroll records as opposed to some information about the hours offered to Sun Valley's workers?

A. Well, in the payroll records, and in the time records, provided by Sun Valley Orchards, there's never an indication of hours offered on neither the payroll records nor the time records.

Q. Did you review all of the payroll records that Sun Valley produced during the investigation?

A. I did.

Q. Going back to Binder 7, please. Please turn to PX-24. What is PX-24?

A. It's the payroll summary for individual workers for hours worked that Sun Valley provided.

Q. Is PX-24 a payroll summary for some weeks or all weeks?

A. I think it's an -- it's not the complete listing, because it's only for -- I think it's only an excerpt for a number of weeks. It's not the complete set. I think the last week it goes through, as far as I can tell, May 12, 2015, so it's not the complete season.

MR. GLICK: Your Honor, I move to admit PX-24 as an excerpt of payroll records.

JUDGE TIMLIN: Any objection?

MR. SCHULTE: Again, with the same thing that it's an excerpt and not purported to be complete.

JUDGE TIMLIN: Right. It's admitted. Okay. Go ahead.

(Whereupon, the document referred to and previously marked for identification as Plaintiff's Exhibit 24 was received into evidence.)

BY MR. GLICK:

Q. Does PX-24 indicate information about hours that Sun Valley's workers worked or were offered, or --

A. It just indicates the hours that they worked on an individual basis. It doesn't indicate anything about hours offered.

Q. I'd like you to turn to Page 933, please. And --

JUDGE TIMLIN: Can you give me the page number again?

Sorry.

MR. GLICK: The page number?

JUDGE TIMLIN: Yeah.

MR. GLICK: Page 933 of PX-24, please.

JUDGE TIMLIN: Sorry.

BY MR. GLICK:

Q. Where, on Page 933, is there information about hours worked?

A. There's several columns there. The first column is date, the second column is job, the third column is farm field, the fourth column indicates total time, and there's a column right next to that that indicates "REG." That's the regular hours worked on an individual basis, and totaled out at the bottom.

Q. So is total time the information about total hours worked, or is REG, or something else information about total hours worked?

A. REG is the total hours worked.

Q. And can you please turn to PX-25? What is PX-25?

A. This is the payroll summary for each worker on an everyday basis. It indicates the hours worked on an everyday basis.

Q. Have you seen PX-25 before?

A. Yes, I have.

Q. When have you seen PX-25 before?

A. This was actually provided by Sun Valley.

Q. Is PX-25 all of Sun Valley's payroll records or some excerpt?

A. I believe this is an excerpt. I'm not sure. I think this is an excerpt. I'm not 100 percent sure.

MR. GLICK: Your Honor, I move to admit PX-25 as an excerpt of Sun Valley's payroll records in 2015.

JUDGE TIMLIN: Any objection?

MR. HEYMAN-KANTOR: Your Honor, can I just point out that counsel and party representative have been talking a lot and making comments, and I don't know what the witness can hear, if it's interfering with anything, but I think they should speak outside or pass Post-It notes.

JUDGE TIMLIN: Right. It is a little distracting, but at the same time, he should be able to consult with his party representative. So, I mean, if you need some time, I'm willing to go off the record to give you guys some time.

MR. SCHULTE: It's okay. We're just trying to keep moving things along, Your Honor. I'm trying to consult about this in real time.

JUDGE TIMLIN: Okay. Do you have any objection to the admission of payroll -- of, sorry, Plaintiff's Exhibit 25?

MR. SCHULTE: As a partial exhibit, no.

JUDGE TIMLIN: Okay. So then it's admitted. All right. Continue, Mr. Glick.

(Whereupon, the document referred to and previously marked for identification as Plaintiff's Exhibit 25 was received into evidence.)

BY MR. GLICK:

Q. Mr. Perez, again, so Page 948, if you could call your attention to Page 948 of PX-25?

A. Yes.

Q. Does Page 948 indicate information about how many hours certain workers worked?

A. Under the column, REG, it indicates the total hours worked on a daily basis.

Q. How do you know that that column, REG, is the information about hours worked?

A. Because it's reflective of the payroll records, the summary payroll records.

Q. What do you mean by that?

A. You compare these hourly records to the payroll records and they match.

Q. Putting Binder 7 aside for a moment and back to Binder 1, PX-1.

A. PX-1?

Q. Yes. PX-1, please.

A. Okay.

Q. Is Jose D. Eslas Larraga one of the workers that you included in 3/4 guarantee calculations?

A. That's correct.

Q. Why did you include Jose D. Eslas Larraga in these calculations?

A. Well, he actually did not -- he failed to meet the threshold for the 3/4 guarantee and there was no notification made to the State Workforce Agency, or other agencies, about Mr. Eslas Larraga ever departing Sun Valley Orchards during 2015.

Q. Mr. Perez, I'd like you to turn to Binder Number 9. Binder 9, PX-40. And I just want to briefly ask you about this document before turning over to another topic.

A. I'm sorry, which PX?

Q. PX-40, please. PX-40, Page 1217. Have you seen PX-40 before?

A. Yes. It's the petition for non-immigrant workers for H-2A by Sun Valley Orchards for 2015 growing season. It was submitted by National Agriculture Consultants, which is Sun Valley's agent that they employed in the matter of H-2A recruitment of workers.

Q. When did you previously see this document, PX-40?

A. During my investigation.

MR. GLICK: Your Honor, I move PX-40 into evidence.

JUDGE TIMLIN: Any objection?

MR. SCHULTE: Have we laid a foundation for how he came to have that document or the relevance of -- well, the relevance you can get into later, but --

JUDGE TIMLIN: How did you come to have this document, Mr. Perez?

THE WITNESS: I obtained in the matter of my investigation.

JUDGE TIMLIN: Who'd you obtain it from?

THE WITNESS: Additional federal government agency.

JUDGE TIMLIN: That being Homeland Security?

THE WITNESS: That's correct.

JUDGE TIMLIN: Okay.

MR. SCHULTE: I'm not sure why that's so secret, but the document is what it is.

JUDGE TIMLIN: Okay. So is there no objection then?

MR. SCHULTE: I mean, I guess the question is sort of the purpose for which it's offered?

MR. GLICK: Yeah. And I just want to lay a foundation while Investigator Perez is on the stand, briefly, in case it is necessary later, just to establish -- just that foundation.

JUDGE TIMLIN: Yeah. I think it's fine. Yeah. I don't think -- it's probably not relevant. Okay. Go ahead, Mr. Glick.

MR. GLICK: I'm sorry for the jumping around, but I would like to go back to Binder 1 and PX-1, please. Investigator Perez, are you at PX-1?

THE WITNESS: Yes.

BY MR. GLICK:

Q. Specifically, the hours worked column, I want to make sure I understand, where did you obtain the information listed in the hours worked column?

A. I retrieved them from the payroll and time records provided by Sun Valley Orchards for the entire season of 2015.

Q. How did you take that information from the payroll records -- what did you do with it?

A. I took each payroll record on a week-by-week basis for every single worker and I transcribed the workers name, the employee number -- I'm sorry, their first and last name, the employee number; if there was any available identifiable, like, Social Security numbers, for example, I also indicated in there, and I transcribed them on a week-by-week basis. I took the hours worked from the payroll and the time records and I created an Excel spreadsheet that would allow me to separate each worker individually to determine how many hours that they worked.

Q. Is the hours worked column an accurate total of the information that you reviewed in Sun Valley's payroll records?

A. Yes.

Q. Did you transcribe the information from Sun Valley's payroll in the same way for all of Sun Valley's workers?

A. I did.

Q. Why does this document only list some of Sun Valley's workers?

A. Well, these are the H-2A workers that were -- for the 2015 growing season. There was several -- there were workers that were found to not be in violation of the 3/4 guarantee. There were workers that actually met the 3/4 guarantee and actually exceeded it.

Q. Are those workers listed on PX-1?

A. No, they're not.

Q. Now, I wanted to talk to you about some other calculations. Could you please turn to PX-2, Page 2? What is PX-2?

A. This is the back wage computations that I created for meal, drinks, and beer for H-2A workers. Based on my analysis and my transcribing of the payroll records, as you can see, on a week-by-week basis, I was able to separate each worker individually, their designation as either an H-2A worker or a domestic worker, their payroll hours worked, according to the payroll and time records, the charges for meals that were made during that particular week, the amounts of drinks that were purchased during that particular week, and the profit made from the purchasing of the beer made by Agustin Hernandez.

Q. Is PX-2 part of your investigation of Sun Valley

Orchards in 2015 or some other investigation?

A. No, these are from the 2015 investigation.

MR. GLICK: Your Honor, I move PX-2 into evidence.

JUDGE TIMLIN: Any objection?

MR. SCHULTE: Yes, Your Honor. When was the table created?

JUDGE TIMLIN: You can answer that.

THE WITNESS: It was created in the process of my investigation in 2015.

MR. SCHULTE: It was created in 2015?

THE WITNESS: Yes.

MR. SCHULTE: And your testimony was that this reflects the amount of drinks that each worker actually consumed each week.

THE WITNESS: Yes.

MR. SCHULTE: Each worker consumed exactly, to the penny, the same number of drinks each week, week in, week out --

JUDGE TIMLIN: Okay. Wait.

MR. GLICK: Your Honor, I object. This testimony -- question is not necessary to determine the admissibility of the document.

MR. SCHULTE: It's offered for the accuracy. If it's not offered for accuracy, then that's a different conversation.

MR. GLICK: The document --

JUDGE TIMLIN: Wait. I actually think Mr. Glick's statement is well taken. I mean, I don't think -- I think that that's certainly something that you can be cross-examining him on in terms of how he made his calculations and how he came up with this, but for now, do you have any objections to this as a document that he created? You can cross-examine him on --

MR. SCHULTE: That's fine.

JUDGE TIMLIN: -- his conclusions later.

MR. SCHULTE: The objection is more to the representation, you know, used to introduce it as an accurate statement of anything. The fact that it's a table with numbers that he put together, is what it is.

JUDGE TIMLIN: Okay.

MR. GLICK: Your Honor, I'd like to just lay a further foundation before --

JUDGE TIMLIN: Not that you need to, Mr. Glick, because I've already admitted it, so why don't we move on.

(Whereupon, the document referred to and previously marked for identification as Plaintiff's Exhibit 2 was received into evidence.)

MR. GLICK: Thank you, Your Honor.

BY MR. GLICK:

Q. Mr. Perez, were there any revisions to your computations that you made at any point in your investigation of Sun Valley?

A. There were several revisions that I made for the 3/4 guarantee, I think, on two separate instances. There was a transcription error that I made of possibly like one or two workers.

Q. And did those revisions of the 3/4 guarantee computations have to do with the number of hours that certain workers worked?

A. That's correct.

Q. Does PX-2 have information about hours workers worked?

A. Yeah. It's the column stated, payroll hours worked.

Q. And is PX-2 the most recent computations performed for the back wages of meals and drinks or some other version?

A. I believe so. These are the final version.

Q. So I want to focus first on the computations you performed for the meals. Could you please explain how you computed the computations for the meals?

A. The meals computation was created based on information obtained from the worker interview statements and interview statements by Agustin Hernandez, also by his wife, Elia Pinon, in addition to documents provided by Agustin Hernandez as to what the charges were to the workers on a week-by-week basis.

It was stated clearly by Agustin Hernandez during the investigation that there was -- the meal charges were 75 per week for each worker, in addition to $80 per week during several weeks. It wasn't clear whether it was -- Agustin Hernandez indicated charging $80 for two weeks, but based on the documentation, it wasn't -- and interviews that I conducted, it wasn't clear whether it was two or three weeks that was -- that the $80 per week were used.

Q. Did you transcribe that $75 or $80 number into PX-2?

A. I did.

Q. Where did you transcribe that?

A. Indicated under the meal section.

Q. How did you determine which weeks to list or how many weeks to list for a worker in PX-2?

A. Well, I used the transcription that I made on a week-by-week basis of every single worker and, you know, to total out the hours that they actually worked. And I used the same records in order to write down the meals, charges, that would be made on a week-by-week basis.

Q. Did you make that transcription for all of Sun Valley's workers?

A. Yes, U.S. and H-2A workers.

Q. And so which weeks did you list $75 as opposed to some other number?

A. Whatever the payroll ending week, when the worker was indicated on the payroll, I transcribed either $75 or $80 per week.

Q. Are there workers for whom you -- who worked at Sun Valley whom you didn't list in PX-2 for -- under the meals column?

A. There was several workers that did not pay according to the meal plan, according to Agustin Hernandez.

Q. Which workers were those?

A. There were some of the workers that Agustin Hernandez did not require to pay for the meals, even though they were eating meals.

Q. And which workers were those?

A. I don't remember their names, but it was between, I want to say eight and ten workers as stated by Agustin Hernandez.

Q. Was there anything particular about those eight to ten workers?

A. They were usually -- it included Agustin Hernandez, his son, and several friends or family members.

Q. And other than those workers that you just described, were there other Sun Valley workers whom you did not calculate a meals back wage in certain weeks?

A. Yeah. There were several workers that was found to be cooking for themselves. I believe we looked at the evidence in regards to the stovetop they were using to cook for themselves. I think it was four or five workers during, I believe it was, maybe four or five weeks that I did not compute back wages for under the meals for those weeks, because they prepared meals on their own.

Q. Why did you include U.S. workers or, in other words, non-H-2A workers in PX-2?

A. Because under H-2A regulations, you have to -- you can't discriminate between H-2A and domestic workers. They have to receive equal treatment.

Q. What do you mean by equal treatment?

A. You can't provide preferential treatment to H-2A workers over domestic workers.

Q. Does that have anything to do with back wages?

A. Well, you would have to compute equally for them.

MR. SCHULTE: I would object, Your Honor. First, it's a legal conclusion, and second, and we could talk about this later, I guess, but I mean, just to clear it up now, the H-2A requirements are to provide meals for local workers. I don't think this is a preferential treatment issue. It's just a question of whether meals are provided.

If people who are not required to get meals purchased meals, that's a different legal theory than they're advancing for the other recovery of meal charges, and I haven't heard any foundation that there was any requirement for the U.S. workers listed here to, you know, get any kind of meal.

MR. GLICK: Is there an objection to -- well, I mean, this is --

JUDGE TIMLIN: He's objecting to Mr. Perez' characterization of the law regarding H-2A versus domestic workers.

MR. GLICK: And we can --

JUDGE TIMLIN: And again, I'm going to -- I mean, I don't personally really care what Mr. Perez' conclusion is as to the law --

MR. SCHULTE: Okay. Fair enough.

JUDGE TIMLIN: -- because I'm going to decide what the law says.

MR. SCHULTE: Okay. I just wanted to put a pin in that for now to clarify that we're kind of hammering this issue and it's --

JUDGE TIMLIN: Yeah. But I mean, I do think it's fair for him to explain his thought process and how he came up with the numbers that he came up with and what went through that. Whether he's right on the law, I get to decide that.

MR. SCHULTE: Okay.

JUDGE TIMLIN: Okay.

MR. SCHULTE: Just if the testimony is sort of how he concluded as opposed to, this is what the law requires. There's a difference.

JUDGE TIMLIN: -- the idea is that I don't get to decide what the law is.

MR. SCHULTE: I'm sure they would prefer it that way.

JUDGE TIMLIN: No. That was kind of a joke.

MR. SCHULTE: 60/40?

JUDGE TIMLIN: An interesting expression.

MR. HEYMAN-KANTOR: I was looking at the flag, Your Honor.

JUDGE TIMLIN: Okay. Yes. All right. So right, I mean, I only get to decide what the law is to the extent that the ARB tells me that I'm right, ultimately, and they only get to decide to the extent that a certain court tells them that they're right. So anyway, so that's where we are.

MR. GLICK: Understand, Your Honor. And I'd like to keep moving.

JUDGE TIMLIN: Yes. Let's keep going.

BY MR. GLICK:

Q. I want to focus on the drinks and the beer aspect of these computations. Could you please explain your computations for those columns?

A. The drinks, it's a stated amount on a weekly basis based on the charges that Agustin Hernandez stated that the workers paid for each drink. I came up with an average amount that he charged for each drink, and once again, according to Agustin Hernandez' admittance in his interview statement, I used that average to multiply it times the amount of drinks that workers indicated having purchased on a daily basis, and I multiply that times the amount of days in a week, which are seven.

Q. Why did you determine that there were back wages owed for drinks?

A. Well, there was an actual profit that was being made from the selling of the drinks and it was never disclosed in the job order.

Q. Did you determine whether or not the sales of those drinks reduced Sun Valley's workers' wages below an offered wage?

A. Yeah. The amount that was being charged, it caused a profit, so it brought them below the promised wage of $11.29 an hour, as stated in the job orders by Sun Valley.

Q. And how did you determine that the drinks were sold at a profit?

A. I used Elia Pinon's statement. She indicated that they -- her and her husband would purchase the drinks at Sam's Club, and from looking at the actual receipts, we -- I indicated that they were using Sam's Club located in Deptford, New Jersey. One of the receipts stated a phone number on the very top and, you know, looking at the phone number listing, it indicated Deptford, New Jersey.

I looked at the website for Sam's Club and I looked at the, you know, various drinks that they were selling on the farm, like Coke, Sprite, Monster drinks, and I noticed a per unit amount, and I determined that based on the per unit amount, there was a profit being made by Agustin Hernandez when he sold those drinks.

MR. HEYMAN-KANTOR: Your Honor, can I just state quickly that I heard the party representative for Sun Valley say the word "bullshit" under his breath. I don't know if Your Honor can hear it, but those comments are not appropriate, Your Honor.

MR. SCHULTE: Is it counsel's feelings that are hurt or the witness? I --

JUDGE TIMLIN: It's more the distraction of --

MR. SCHULTE: Was the witness distracted? Did you hear anything?

MR. GLICK: Your Honor, I would request that if we have a continued discussion, that we maybe take this at a sidebar or do some --

MR. SCHULTE: No, it's -- there's no need to waste my time, but I haven't heard that the witness is --

JUDGE TIMLIN: I'm just going to tell you again, you have to try to keep your personal opinions to yourself or walk out of the room, okay?

BY MR. GLICK:

Q. Investigator Perez, now with regard to the beer, how did you determine the amount of beer in PX-2?

A. According to the workers in their interview statements, they indicated purchasing a certain amount of beers per day, every day. I determined that, you know, the price of beer by visiting a local wholesaler, and looking at the per unit price for each beer, similar to those sold at Sun Valley, the Budweisers, the Coors Lights. Because beer is not required for subsistence, I would assume, I did not include the entire purchase amount. I thought it was proper to use jus the profit that was made from that.

Q. What wholesaler, specifically, did you visit?

A. I visited a local Costco.

Q. Why did you go to a Costco?

A. Because that's the only membership I have for wholesaler that sells alcohol.

Q. Well, why did you pick that store and not some other store?

A. I assumed the fact that they were using wholesalers to purchase drinks, then I would assume they would also purchase beer using the same wholesaler.

Q. Did anyone at Sun Valley, Agustin Hernandez or anyone else, tell you where the beer was purchased?

A. No, they actually denied that they were selling beer to workers.

Q. At what price of beer did you observe at the Costco?

A. I believe it was Bud Light, if I remember correctly.

Q. Investigator Perez, could you please go to Binder 8 and PX-27? PX-27, Page 1044. What is Page 1044?

A. It's a picture that I took in 2014 at a local Costco that indicates the price per unit for a 30-case of Coors Light.

Q. I just want to make sure the record is clear, what year was that?

A. It states on the bottom right-hand corner of the price, August 14, 2015.

Q. So it was in 2015 or 2014?

A. Yes. 2015.

Q. Does this document refresh your recollection of the price of beer that you observed in 2015?

A. Yes.

Q. How much was the price?

A. It's $20.99 for a 30-case of Coors Light beer.

Q. So going back to PX-2, how did -- could you please explain the -- how this amount in the beer column was determined?

A. Which binder?

Q. I'm sorry. Binder Number 1, PX-2.

A. So the beer themselves, according to workers, they were paying $2 per beer they were purchasing from Agustin Hernandez. Based on the workers' accounts, they indicated purchasing a certain amount per day, and then I was able to determine the profit that was made from each selling of each beer, and I multiply that times the amount of days in the week. And this just, once again, the profit from the selling of the beer is not reflective of the actual purchase price of workers.

Q. And what was the actual math that you performed with regard to the beer?

A. I determined an actual profit that was being made for the selling of each beer by Agustin Hernandez, I multiply that to the amount of -- the average amount of beers that workers indicated purchasing that on a daily basis, and I multiply that times the amount of days in a week, which is seven.

Q. So on PX-2, Page 2, could you just walk us through the computations you performed with regard to this first worker, Carlos Cruz Reyes?

A. So on a week-by-week basis, the payroll week ending date is the payroll week ending where the worker stated that he had worked hours. According to the payroll records provided by Sun Valley, the meal charges is the meal charges that would have been made by Agustin Hernandez for the worker to actually eat that week, the drinks would be the average amount of drinks purchased times the amount of -- the average amount of price charged by Agustin Hernandez, and then the beer amount would be the actual profit that was being made by Agustin Hernandez for the purchasing -- for the selling of the beer to each worker.

Q. So what does the total column indicate in the middle of Page 2 underneath the line, 8/7/2015?

A. The column on the bottom indicates payroll hours worked, according to the payroll records, the total amount of meal charges that the worker would have had to pay during that period of time; it indicates the amount of drinks that were purchased based on the entire period of time, and the entire money that would be returned back to the worker, based on the profit that Agustin Hernandez made for the selling of the beer.

Q. So what is the total amount paid for meals by Carlos Cruz Reyes in PX-2, Page 2?

MR. SCHULTE: Objection, Your Honor. I mean, we've been patient in reading this line-by-line. I think the table is pretty self-explanatory. If there's any way that we can move past this?

MR. GLICK: I just want to make sure it's clear with regard to the numbers before moving on.

MR. SCHULTE: Is there any lack of clarity, Your Honor?

JUDGE TIMLIN: I actually do have questions about it that have been whittled down but, I mean, I think if he just uses the one person and then moves on, that should be sufficient.

BY MR. GLICK:

Q. Investigator Perez, could you just explain how the computations for meals, drinks, and beer were performed Carlos Cruz Reyes in reference to the actual numbers?

A. Are you referring to the total amount or?
Q. Does the total amount show the total back wages for Carlos Cruz Reyes?
A. It does.
Q. So please explain the total column for Carlos Cruz Reyes.
A. So the total column, I started with the payroll hours worked to show the summation of all the hours worked that that particular worker had worked at Sun Valley during 2015. The meals, it's every single meal charge that was made during each individual week, with the summation at the bottom, and then the drinks --
Q. And how much was the total meal charges for Carlos Cruz Reyes?
A. During the period -- his period of employment, was $1,215.
Q. And for the drinks?
A. $618.88.
Q. And what does $618.88 represent?
A. That's the drinks total that he would have purchased during that period of time that he was employed.
Q. And what is the total in the beer column for Carlos Cruz Reyes?
A. $291.20.
Q. What does $291.20 refer to?

A. That's the profit that was made by Agustin Hernandez when he sold the beers to the worker during his period of employment in 2015.

Q. And that rightmost column, what is that column?

A. That's the summation of all the totals for meals, drinks, and beer.

Q. What's the header in that column in the upper right?

A. It's total meals, drinks, and beer back wages.

Q. And what's the total amount of meals, drinks, and beer back wages for Carlos Cruz Reyes?

A. $2,125.08.

Q. So I want to turn away from PX-2 now and ask you, Investigator Perez --

A. Can I close the binder?

Q. Yes. Thank you very much. During the investigation, did Sun Valley Orchards offer explanations for the findings that the Wage and Hour Division made with regard to the meals?

A. There was a response by both Joe Marino and Russell Marino, Jr., indicating that the workers had access to the kitchen facilities if they wanted to.

Q. Did Sun Valley Orchards have an explanation for the 3/4 guarantee issue?

A. Russell Marino, Jr. indicated that he did the 3/4 guarantee on a week-by-week basis and he assured that all workers met that 3/4 guarantee threshold. In regards to the workers that left in May, he responded by indicating that they had left for personal reasons, that they were not -- they weren't up to the job.

Q. Was that consistent with your findings about the 3/4 guarantee?

A. No, it was not.

Q. Did Sun Valley Orchards have explanation about the transportation issues?

A. During our final conference, Russell Marino, Jr. indicated that he had verified at the beginning of the season that workers had driver's licenses and he indicated not being able to control who drives the buses on a daily basis.

Q. Did Sun Valley Orchards have an explanation about the housing issues?

A. After the housing inspection, we actually met with Russell Marino, Jr. He met us at the dormitory housing, myself and my colleague, Investigator John Crudup, and we walked the actual camp and we showed him each violation individually. We entered the bathroom facility and he, you know, wanted -- we showed him the missing screen, and also the sinks. He wanted to test the sinks for himself and he acknowledged that the sinks did not have hot water running to them, and he actually thanked me for pointing that out to him. He indicated that he had contacted the plumber immediately and had it fixed right away.

Q. And what about with regard to the -- actually, Your Honor, I'm trying to wrap-up, could I just confer with my colleague for one moment?

JUDGE TIMLIN: Yep.

(Pause.)

BY MR. GLICK:

Q. Just have a couple more questions and I'm going to make reference to Binder 9. PX-37. Investigator Perez, what is PX-37?

A. It's part of the documentation that Agustin Hernandez provided to us when we requested the receipts and the amounts that he collected from the workers. On the very top, on the left-hand side, it indicates "Miercoles," which is the word Wednesday in Spanish.

Q. Before we get into the content of the documents, you've seen PX-37 before?

A. Yes, I have.

Q. When were these documents provided to you?

A. It was provided to me during the 2015 investigation at Sun Valley by Agustin Hernandez.

MR. GLICK: Your Honor, I move PX-37 into evidence.

JUDGE TIMLIN: Any objection?

MR. SCHULTE: This is the same issue we had with this document yesterday. I think there's actually several different kinds of documents.

JUDGE TIMLIN: Right. That's what I was just going say. Did we talk about this document yesterday? I don't have any --

MR. SCHULTE: I think it was a different document that looks the same, especially the later pages.

MR. GLICK: So I believe the portions of it were exhibits to the deposition of Mr. Hernandez, and were introduced as such, and specifically, Page 1166, PX-37, Pages 1166 and 1167, I don't have the specific Hernandez deposition exhibit number in front of me, but the DOL Bates stamp matches --

JUDGE TIMLIN: Oh, okay.

MR. GLICK: -- PX-17-2, Pages 799 and 800.

JUDGE TIMLIN: These are all documents that you obtained during the course of your investigation from Mr. Hernandez?

THE WITNESS: Is it all right if I look at all the documents?

JUDGE TIMLIN: Yeah, please.

THE WITNESS: It is, Your Honor.

JUDGE TIMLIN: Okay. And what's the purpose of -- what was -- Mr. Hernandez provided these to you in response to your request for what? What were you asking for?

THE WITNESS: I requested from him an actual amount that -- he usually keeps a listing of the workers that paid him so he can sign-off on it so he knows exactly how much he's receiving from workers on a week-by-week basis. He was doing the same thing during the 2013 investigation. He was -- on the bottom of this, it's actually a reflection of the 2013 investigation where I requested that he keep receipts on a week-by-week basis and he would add up the amounts of the receipts.

It's that Russell Marino, Jr. requested from -- that Agustin perform as well during 2013.

JUDGE TIMLIN: Okay. So you asked for something showing him what people were paying and then this is what he gave you in response.

THE WITNESS: Yeah. He keeps not the best of records. A lot of them are handwritten notes. If you actually look through them, some of them, it indicates the worker's signature, where they would pay him, and the worker would actually sign, showing that he did pay them. There's some additional workers at the bottom that he would include as well. There's some workers that show, during those records, the words, "no pago," which is Spanish for, no pay.

JUDGE TIMLIN: Okay. Any objection?

MR. SCHULTE: We didn't hear from any of the workers saying that they'd signed anything. This is the objection, is that to the extent it's records that Agustin created, you know, and testified that he created, that's fine. That's not this.

He wasn't shown this to say whether he created it or not.

And then as far as the content, or the context of the signature, I think that's, at this point, triple hearsay, because it's somebody signing something, giving it to someone, him giving it to the inspector, and that inspector introducing it into court.

I don't -- as far as interpreting the intent of what these documents mean, maybe I'm getting ahead of myself with the -- maybe it depends, kind of, the purpose for which it's being introduced.

MR. GLICK: I don't think we intend to go much further here, and Mr. Hernandez did testify yesterday that he maintained these records, he maintained them regularly, as part of his practice of keeping track of worker's payments for meals.

MR. SCHULTE: He wasn't shown any of these records.

JUDGE TIMLIN: Well, at least not all of them.

MR. SCHULTE: Not all the records. I apologize.

JUDGE TIMLIN: All right. I understand your concerns, but you can further explore on cross-examination.

Go ahead.

(Whereupon, the document referred to and previously marked for identification as Plaintiff's Exhibit 37 was received into evidence.)

BY MR. GLICK:

Q. Investigator Perez, just a couple more questions. PX-37, Page 1166 and 1167, is this one of the documents that you reviewed as part of making the back wage computations?

A. 1166 and 1167?

Q. Yes.

A. Yes.

Q. And what did you determine from -- I'd like you to turn to Page 1167, in the bottom. Did you use anything on this page to determine the amount that workers were paying for meals?

A. If you look at the bottom, this is Agustin Hernandez indicating, 98, which is the number of workers, if you look on the right-hand column next to the worker's names, that paid him $80 for an amount of $7,840.

MR. SCHULTE: Objection, Your Honor. This is exactly what we're going to. We don't know that this was Agustin writing this, he wasn't shown this, identifying it as having created it or written that, much less what the numbers mean or signify.

If he's testifying as to his conclusion or how he prepared his calculations, so be it, but to have the document speak to that, or try to buttress his conclusion, I think is improper.

MR. GLICK: I believe the witness has testified at least as to how he used the document and I can continue to explore that if it's not yet clear, but I think --

MR. SCHULTE: It's not lack of clarity, it's that you're trying to get something else in.

JUDGE TIMLIN: The issue is that we don't -- I mean, we know that -- we do know, at least from Mr. Perez' testimony, we know that Mr. Hernandez gave these to him. What we don't know is -- we know that Mr. Hernandez gave these to him in response to a request for documents showing how much the employees were paying for their meals.

What we don't know is who made all the little notations and did the counting and the totaling, but it's -- but we do know that Mr. Perez has testified that he relied on this as Mr. Hernandez' statement that this is what he prepared. So with that understanding, that that's all that this is, I mean, there are -- yes, are there questions about the document? Sure. Was it the best way to rely -- is this the best technique, was just to rely on them based on Mr. Hernandez' representation that here's what I've got in response to the question? I don't know, but I'm going to --

MR. GLICK: Your Honor, I would just, you know, for the record, I believe that there was additional testimony by Mr. Hernandez about these and similar documents, and certainly, the record will --

JUDGE TIMLIN: Well, at least about --

MR. SCHULTE: Not about this page.

JUDGE TIMLIN: There was testimony about maybe one or two pages, I don't know, I'll have to go back to the transcript to see which pages he testified about. Continue.

BY MR. GLICK:

Q. Investigator Perez, other than PX-37, did Mr. Hernandez provide any other records that showed the amount that workers paid for meals in 2015?

A. No, I mean, this appears to be the records that he did provide. No additional records were provided. He maintained similar records during 2013. As I was glancing through them, I noticed one of the pages that I recognized from the 2013 investigation, which was the employee listing.

Q. So Investigator Perez, could you please turn to Page 1181? What date does this document, Page 1181, go through?

A. I'm sorry?

Q. What date does Page 1181 go through?

A. Are you referring to the check date?

Q. What's the date on the check date column?

A. July 17, 2015.

Q. Did Mr. Hernandez provide records of meals payments through later in the season in 2015?

A. No, not that I remember.

MR. GLICK: I have no further questions for Investigator Perez at this time.

JUDGE TIMLIN: Okay. Ten to 1:00, why don't we take a -- let's go off the record.

(Off the record at 12:48 p.m.)

(On the record at 2:06 p.m.)

JUDGE TIMLIN: It's time for cross-examination.

MR. SCHULTE: Thank you, Your Honor.

CROSS EXAMINATION

BY MR. SCHULTE:

Q. Hello, Investigator Perez. Is investigator, is that an okay title or?

A. That's correct.

Q. Perez. Is my emphasis on the first --

A. Perez.

Q. Okay. So I just wanted to make sure I get it right, because otherwise, we go through it wrong 300 times.

You testified that in your six years with the department you've done about 200 investigations; is that right?

A. Approximately. Yeah.

Q. About five or ten were H-2A employers?

A. That's correct.

Q. Closer to five; closer to ten?

A. I would have to look back.

Q. Okay. And two investigations involving Sun Valley, though?

A. Yeah, 2015 and 2013.

Q. Okay. So out of the 200, H-2A isn't a big part of your work.

A. It's not. It's not a big part of our office work in general.

Q. Okay. And how many of the H-2A audits did you find back wages of?

A. I don't want to tell you an invalid number. I would have to look back at -- you know, maybe, I don't know, maybe 50 percent. I'm not really sure. Maybe 50 percent.

Q. How many had CMPs owed?

A. I would say a big portion of them as well.

Q. About half or almost, pretty much, all of them.

A. I would say, maybe all of them.

Q. Okay.

A. I would have to look at back of my records, really look over them.

Q. When did you first review the job order for Sun Valley for 2015?

A. Once the case was assigned to me, I reviewed it on the Internet and then I reviewed it once again after the case was assigned to me.

Q. When was the case first assigned to you?

A. Sometime in 2015, maybe June. I'm not sure.

Q. So it was before you --

A. June, July.
Q. -- visited Sun Valley?
A. Yes.
Q. About a month before?
A. No, I don't think it was that long. It would have had to have been in July. Had to have been in July then.
Q. Okay. And who assigned the case to you?
A. My supervisor.
Q. Who's that?
A. Mr. Risko.
Q. And do you know how the case came into your office?
MR. GLICK: Objection. The answer calls for information that's privileged under the deliberative process privilege.
MR. SCHULTE: No, it doesn't.
MR. GLICK: It's an investigator file --
JUDGE TIMLIN: I don't know that it's deliberative process.
MR. GLICK: And, Your Honor, there may be informative privileges as well.
JUDGE TIMLIN: Right. It could carry that into informative privilege, but at this point, it hasn't gotten there yet.
MR. GLICK: The question itself is calling for information that, you know, the very answers to which can reveal information about the bases for investigations. That very information itself is protected by the court, the informative privilege.

MR. SCHULTE: What's the interest being protected? If I can clarify, I will rephrase to say, do not tell me the name of any worker and do not -- I don't even know what else -- you know, if that's the concern, is the identity of a worker --

MR. GLICK: Your Honor, the basis for which an investigation is begun is, itself, a privileged topic. These privileges were identified in our discovery responses and there were no objections made on those very specific redactions. I'd also object -- also try to understand a relevance grounds for where this is going.

JUDGE TIMLIN: Counsel, why do you want to know why the investigation was started?

MR. SCHULTE: Basically, you know, was it -- is it a random audit, was it a follow-on to the 2013? We haven't -- the workers that have testified all said that they were first contacted by Mr. Perez and so they wouldn't have initiated it, so we know that. The question is --

MR. GLICK: And I think that response itself reveals the precise concern here, where investigations --

JUDGE TIMLIN: I guess that's what my question is, is there really a privilege in disclosing -- is there really a privilege in disclosing whether an investigation started as a result of a complaint, as a routine follow-up, as a result of some kind of audit? Is there -- I don't know what the privilege is if that's --

MR. GLICK: The core of the law enforcement privilege is information about, you know, why investigations are begun, why they're not begun, when it would -- there's a concern about detection, about employers being able to sort of determine what conditions would potentially subject them to an investigation or not, and the particular ways in which, you know, investigations are started.

MR. GLICK: This isn't a drug raid or something, Your Honor, I mean --

JUDGE TIMLIN: You know what?

MR. GLICK: And I think --

JUDGE TIMLIN: I want you to hold this question because I want to do -- I need to do a little research because I'm not sure that I agree with your view. But for now, I don't want you to ask that question, but I will allow -- I want to look into this and make a more informed ruling, then I'll give an opportunity to ask it if you need to later. I mean, if it's important later.

MR. SCHULTE: Okay.

MR. GLICK: Your Honor --

MR. SCHULTE: Is he still going to be available later? Just to try to work out the timeline as far as --

JUDGE TIMLIN: Well, if he's not available, we have somebody else from Wage and Hour that you're planning on bringing to testify too, right?

MR. GLICK: That's right.

JUDGE TIMLIN: Who will also know the answer to that same question.

MR. GLICK: Yes, but, Your Honor, I would also request an opportunity to further, you know, discuss this before ruling to the extent that the research brings up additional questions, because --

JUDGE TIMLIN: Right.

MR. GLICK: -- there are concerns, again, about the informant's privilege.

JUDGE TIMLIN: I mean, I just don't know -- I don't -- I know what the issue is, I just -- I'm much more familiar with the law on this when it comes to things like OSHA or OSCC, but I'm not as familiar with it when it comes to Wage and Hour, so I want to -- I need to do a little educating on myself and then we can have a more intelligent conversation, okay? That's all I'm saying.

MR. GLICK: Understood.

JUDGE TIMLIN: And I -- we're going to hold -- so we're just going to hold the question and certainly, we'll either -- if I decide the question's an appropriate question and I overrule their objection, we'll either put Mr. Perez back on or we'll get somebody else from Wage and Hour who can answer that question.

MR. SCHULTE: Okay. And in my questions, I'll try to steer clear of anything that might identify any individuals or methods.

JUDGE TIMLIN: Okay.

BY MR. SCHULTE:

Q. So again, without naming any individuals or any of the former or then present Sun Valley workers, you mentioned that you had spoken with -- you'd reached out to the Sam's Club; is that correct?

A. In relation to what?

Q. As part of your investigation. I'm trying to find kind of who outside Sun Valley, who else you would have spoken to who was not a worker.

A. I'm sorry, Sam's Club?

Q. Did you speak to someone at a Sam's Club about prices?

A. No, I didn't speak to anybody at a Sam's Club. You know, I actually visited their website. I don't know if that's part -- is it what you're referring to?

Q. Okay. Did you ever go there in person?

A. To Sam's Club physically?

Q. Yeah.

A. No, I didn't.

Q. Okay. Have you spoken with any outside groups, again, not any workers, about this case?

MR. GLICK: Objection, Your Honor. The informant's privilege is again implicated in terms of where an investigation may have come from, who would bring any issues to the Department's attention in any given case, whether or not it's a particular worker. And I'm, again, concerned that this line of questioning is going in that direction.

MR. SCHULTE: Your Honor, I tried to make clear that I'm not asking for a worker's name and I wanted to make clear to the witness to please don't give a witness' name, but we've had testimony already that there are outside groups that are involved in the case that have been essentially subcontracting the Department's work and handing over material to the Department. I'm not sure what their -- the protection would be for them. There's no relationship between them and Sun Valley. There's no danger to them. I mean, frankly, there's no danger to foreign workers living in another country. This isn't a mob informant in fear for his life. I mean, these are people in a foreign country under no jeopardy whatsoever.

MR. GLICK: So whether or not someone is an individual or not an individual, the information that comes to the Department is not -- can still be protected by the informant's privilege, and I also don't understand the relevance.

JUDGE TIMLIN: I mean, that could be -- there also could be a trolling effect in terms of whether or not groups would want to talk to the government if they felt that their conversations would -- the government were subject to disclosure, so I'm --

MR. SCHULTE: It's a fundamental fairness question too. If we're being accused of something, I think the privilege needs to give -- you know, be limited to the extent necessary to provide the protection to them, but it can't just be, they would rather we not know.

MR. GLICK: The informant's privilege protects the identity of people beyond employees. It can extend to the question of whether a complaint was made or not, the question of whether if a complaint was made, it was by an individual or not.

JUDGE TIMLIN: See, that's where I'm not so sure. I mean, I think certainly it would extend -- it does extend beyond employees. Whether it extends to the point that you can't answer the question as to whether there was a complaint or not, I'm not -- regardless of who the complaint was from, whether it was from an employee or group, a person walking down the street, I'm not sure that it -- I'm not sure that just by disclosing that there was a complaint, that that treads into deliberative -- or I mean, into government informant. That's what I'm trying to -- that's what I'm trying to assess.

MR. GLICK: Well, I think the question of whether -- why an investigation is started also goes back to the other privileges that I mentioned, including investigative files, and I think that these are privileges that are held very seriously and need an opportunity to brief these issues.

The accuser in this case is the Administrator. This case is brought by the Administrator. There is ample opportunity to assess what the facts --

JUDGE TIMLIN: But there's also an issue -- and I'm more familiar with this because I know this is kind of a hot issue in the OFCCP, but there's an issue about what entitles the government to go into an employer's workplace to do an investigation and whether or not that decision is, you know, justified, whether or not there's justification, because there is an intrusion into the operations of the employer anytime the government steps on their property.

And so, you know, that's why I know like there's been whole hearings -- lately, I mean -- one that's been very public has been with OFCCP attempting to get records from Google, and Google fighting that because -- and OFCCP having to justify how they came to the decision that they should be able to get records from Google.

MR. GLICK: And, Your Honor, I mean, that is just to say, obviously it's a different case, but it's also there are different issues. There's no question here about the propriety or the understanding about the entering the farm. There's no need in the H-2A context for there to be a complaint as a predicate for the admissibility of an investigation. And I think it may be a different issue under other statutes or other programs, but there is a difference here.

JUDGE TIMLIN: Right. And that's what I'm struggling with because I don't know enough about -- I don't know enough about how the government comes to investigate H-2A employers. And maybe what we need more is, maybe I need a more general tutorial from either Mr. Perez, or someone else, about what the different mechanisms are that would start an H-2A investigation other than a complaint. I'm assuming there are other mechanisms to start these investigations besides complaints.

THE WITNESS: Yes, Your Honor.

JUDGE TIMLIN: Can you tell me what, just generally --

MR. GLICK: Your Honor, I --

JUDGE TIMLIN: You're saying that I can't even ask that.

MR. GLICK: I'm sorry. I think I just want to make sure the questions are sort of general about investigations.

JUDGE TIMLIN: Yeah.

MR. GLICK: And I don't want to intrude on your --

JUDGE TIMLIN: I just want to generally know what the different -- what are the mechanisms for initiating an H-2A complaint -- initiating an H2-A investigation. One would be that Wage and Hour gets a complaint.

THE WITNESS: Yes.

JUDGE TIMLIN: What other mechanisms?

THE WITNESS: If, for example, you just mentioned the fact of a complaint was submitted to the administration in regards to some potential violations under either a number of clauses under H-2A. There's investigations that are conducted without a complaint base that are assigned directly by our superiors to us.

JUDGE TIMLIN: You know, and what -- how do those get picked? How do they -- how do those, generally, that are not complaint-related, how do they come up?

THE WITNESS: I'm not -- I wish I could tell you, I'm not --

JUDGE TIMLIN: You don't have a -- okay.

THE WITNESS: I'm just the investigator. I get a case and I conduct the investigation.

JUDGE TIMLIN: Okay. So here's my next question then, because he may not be the right person for this question. Do you even know why you got this assignment?

THE WITNESS: I do.

JUDGE TIMLIN: Oh, okay. Okay. So you are the right person to ask.

MR. GLICK: Your Honor, I would -- it was my understanding there was no objection to the initiation of this investigation, not at the time of the investigation, not at the time of any visits, not in the course of this case, and I'm not sure what --

MR. SCHULTE: How would there be an objection at that time?

JUDGE TIMLIN: Well, no, you absolutely could object and say --

MR. SCHULTE: You're not entitled to. No, but I mean --

JUDGE TIMLIN: You're not entitled to enter our property.

MR. SCHULTE: That certainly doesn't waive the argument at trial to find out the answer. I mean, a grower has -- an employer has a right to know whether the government's watching them or kind of why they've come to them or started this process.

JUDGE TIMLIN: But why -- explain to me why it's -- once the investigation has started and violations have been issued, why is the reason for the investigation any longer an issue?

MR. SCHULTE: It matters why because, you know, if this is sort of -- if this is just a random audit, then that ends it. There's no more questions. If this was not complaint-driven, it's just their number came up, that they are to look at, you know, two different growers a year and this is one of the ones that came up, or they're to check each H-2A application every fifth year or something like that, no more questions. We'll -- you know, that's that.

But the question is, you know, is this driven by a problem that the workers had or the testimony before was that the Department went looking for workers, you know, went after people to try to find a problem as opposed to, you know, did anybody have a problem at the time. Part of the question was, did the workers have a time when they quit -- an issue when they quit, particularly the workers who left in May, kind of the state of mind at the time.

If anybody complained at the time, not identifying any particular person, that's a different thing than they were just going come out anyways and, you know, think they've stumbled into a case.

And also, I mean, and apart from that, the specific question was about outside groups. I mean, that's kind of back to the earlier question.

JUDGE TIMLIN: Right. But that goes into the whole issue about government informers and who's a government informer, and --

MR. SCHULTE: But also --

JUDGE TIMLIN: -- could be, an outside could be -- outside group could be a government informer and you wouldn't actually -- you wouldn't be entitled to that information. And I think actually you wouldn't even be entitled to know that it was an outside group as opposed to a former employee as opposed to the wife of Mr. Hernandez.

I mean, you wouldn't -- an inside employee is what I meant. I just --

MR. SCHULTE: Just so that we're clear, the informant's privilege, that's not specific to workers? That could be --

JUDGE TIMLIN: No, it's -- I may be wrong, but I think it belongs to the government.

MR. GLICK: The government asserts the informant's privilege to protect against retaliation concerns, to protect the space in which -- for a complaint to be made if a complaint is made. The informant's privilege has to be invoked in any case regarding this line of questioning precisely to protect whether a complaint was made or not, because that is also part of the related, you know, investigative techniques privilege.

And again, the government has experience with retaliation concerns, speaking as a general matter, but the privilege, again, is a general privilege that has to be invoked in every case. If it was only an objection when there was a complaint, it would reveal precisely the answer and then that's what the privilege also protects.

JUDGE TIMLIN: Right. It's a -- I understand it could be privilege.

MR. SCHULTE: What possible retaliation could there be? I fail to see -- I mean, if it's a current employee, I absolutely understand, and we don't even want to know that. If it's a foreign entity operating in a foreign country, particularly the one impersonating the Department, I think that's relevant and I think that's important to know. And, I mean, there's -- what possible way would a pepper farm in New Jersey have to take any possible action against a foreign organization?

JUDGE TIMLIN: But it's not -- it isn't necessarily action that this particular farm might take against an organization. It's more this kind of overall chilling effect that organizations, if they felt like -- would feel less -- be less willing to share information with the government if they, I mean, felt that they weren't.

MR. SCHULTE: Yeah, for this particular group, Your Honor, they're very transparent, very active, put their name out there. They appear at the quarterly H-2A stakeholder meetings at the Department of Labor very quarter, every three months, they're there, you know, identifying themselves as being from that organization. There's nothing secret about their involvement or their advocacy on this issue.

MR. GLICK: Your Honor, just responding generally, the concern is about retaliation against former employees. It can come in various ways. And again, speaking generally, it can come from blacklisting of employees who may apply on a regular basis, who will apply in the future, the protections against retaliation under the H2A regulations are broad, they even apply beyond employers, and there may be other persons that can take adverse action against employees, and this is all, again, part of the core concern.

JUDGE TIMLIN: I guess, right, my -- but my ultimate question still comes down to this. What -- because it sounds like, I mean, I don't know, but it sounds like you have already identified some kind of a group that you think was involved in this and so why does it matter that that be on record?

MR. SCHULTE: But we don't know what they told them. We don't know --

JUDGE TIMLIN: But it doesn't matter. It doesn't -- I mean, even if they -- I don't know that this group exists, I don't know that there is such a group, that this group exists, that they spoke to the government in any way, other than it does seem like there was, maybe, some funding to facilitate getting witnesses to come in for depositions.

MR. SCHULTE: They --

MR. GLICK: And, Your Honor --

JUDGE TIMLIN: Go ahead.

MR. GLICK: Mr. Schulte's question is, as you point out, assumes facts not in evidence about -- you know, about a number of things, including, you know -- well, there's no evidence of involvement, as you said, about at any particular time during the investigation of the group that Mr. Schulte is referring to.

MR. SCHULTE: And if that's the answer, then that ends the inquiry there.

JUDGE TIMLIN: But I don't know that that's an -- I don't even know that that's an answer that you're entitled to. That's what that's -- I mean, that's their argument is that that's not an answer that you're entitled to get, and my question to you is, why does it matter? I mean, why does it matter? I mean, what matters in terms of my jurisdiction is, Wage and Hour went out, they did an H-2A investigation, and now they're alleging certain violations, which would have financial impact on Sun Valley, and I need to figure out from the facts, whether or not the facts that they developed in their investigation justify the violations and the penalties and they were correct to calculate.

So I'm not sure that any of my jurisdiction and what you need to defend against has anything to do with these questions, which is, you know, how did the investigation start and who did you talk to, what organizations did you talk to other than the employees while you were out during your investigation.

MR. SCHULTE: And if his investigation were limited to what you described, where he went to the farm, he's talking about things he saw: I looked at a bus, I saw a bus, I looked at payroll records that were provided, I counted it up, they were paid $8 an hour instead of $11, something like that, that's fine. Then it doesn't matter how it got started. But if much of his testimony comes in through phone calls with people in other countries, you know, through checking with people after they were no longer at Sun Valley, and so we have no way to -- it just comes -- it just gets whitewashed through him having heard it and then presenting this second or third-hand information and it becomes immediately trustworthy. We have no way to know, I think, the basis for it, how it came to be --

JUDGE TIMLIN: He didn't testify at all that he got any information from anyone other than former employees that he interviewed: Mr. Hernandez, Mr. Hernandez' wife, Mr. Russell, Jr. I didn't hear any testimony -- and that he went to a store website, and he went to Costco.

MR. SCHULTE: That's why we were asking the question.

JUDGE TIMLIN: That's been the extent of his testimony.

MR. SCHULTE: The fact that he hasn't mentioned it yet doesn't mean that it didn't happen.

JUDGE TIMLIN: But it certainly isn't something -- I mean, to the -- the fact that he didn't mention it means that as far as I'm concerned, it's not in front of me. There's been no evidence of that.

MR. SCHULTE: Right. And --

JUDGE TIMLIN: It's not something I'm going to use to make my decision. I'm going to use, to make my decision, the documents he's put in front of me that he's explained and the interviews that I heard, the people who came in here and testified, you know, the employees, either because they were in Mexico or they were here in New Jersey. Those are the -- that's all I've got.

MR. SCHULTE: Yeah. So for workers who did testify, for the workers who testified either in person or remotely, the informant's privilege has been waived essentially for them, correct?

MR. GLICK: The government has revealed their names by their appearance, and to the extent that any statements --

JUDGE TIMLIN: And they gave prior statements.

MR. GLICK: -- from whatever relevant documents exist and they weren't privileged, we've turned them over.

JUDGE TIMLIN: Right.

MR. SCHULTE: So can I inquire as to how he came to be in touch with them or his communications with them?

MR. GLICK: But of the communications there also implicate the -- I mean, there may be certain permissible questions. There may be other privileges, such as work product, that may extend to certain questions, but --

JUDGE TIMLIN: Then let's take it question by question.

MR. SCHULTE: So by work product, do they mean counsel's work product?

JUDGE TIMLIN: Well, I'm assuming they mean counsel's work product. That's what --

MR. SCHULTE: Okay. Not the witness' work products.

JUDGE TIMLIN: No, I mean, that's not work product. There may be deliberative privilege issues in terms of to the extent that the witness and other folks in his agency had conversations.

MR. SCHULTE: Correct. But his conversations outside the Department, specifically, not with counsel, not with supervisors, would be fair game.

MR. GLICK: I mean, I think it may be easier to take it on a question-by-question basis whether there's anything objectionable, but I think --

JUDGE TIMLIN: To the extent that his conversations don't tread into government informer's privilege area, yeah, I think you can ask them.

MR. SCHULTE: So specific to the workers who testified?

MR. GLICK: Yes.

JUDGE TIMLIN: Let's hear the questions.

MR. SCHULTE: Okay.

THE WITNESS: I'm going to drink some water. Sorry.

MR. SCHULTE: Yeah. No, no, go ahead. That's thirsty work.

BY MR. SCHULTE:

Q. Are you familiar with the -- you've been here earlier in the week. Are you familiar with the workers who have testified, let's start with, in person, in court?

A. Are you referring to the workers --

Q. Former Sun Valley employees who've testified here in court earlier in the week.

A. Yeah.

Q. Okay. Had you spoken with them prior to seeing them outside the courtroom this week?

A. Yes, I did.

Q. When was the first time you spoke with them?

MR. GLICK: Objection. If we could just clarify the particular witness or what the universe of witnesses here or --

MR. SCHULTE: The witnesses who testified in person this week.

JUDGE TIMLIN: Witnesses who've testified in person in this hearing.

MR. GLICK: I'm sorry.

THE WITNESS: Can you repeat the question?

BY MR. SCHULTE:

Q. Sure. When was the first time you spoke with them?
A. Probably in January of 2016.
Q. Okay. When did you issue your final report in the case?
A. I want to say, maybe, May or June of 2016. I'm not -- I don't know exactly.
Q. Okay. Did you come to Sun Valley to give them your findings and have an in-person meeting with them?
A. Yes, I did.
Q. When was that?
A. I believe that was in February of 2016.
Q. Okay. How did you come by the contact information for the workers you spoke with in January?
A. The information --
MR. GLICK: I'm going to object that there is information that we've redacted in discovery --
MR. SCHULTE: I'm not asking --
MR. GLICK: -- regarding how certain information was obtained.
MR. SCHULTE: I'm not asking him what the contact information is. I don't need a secret phone number. I just wondered how he came to be in touch with them.
MR. GLICK: I withdraw the objection.
JUDGE TIMLIN: Okay. Go ahead. You can answer him.
THE WITNESS: Can you ask the question again, please?

BY MR. SCHULTE:

Q. Sure. How did you come by their contact information when you talked to them -- before you talked to them in January of 2016?

A. I obtained the contact information from an additional federal agency.

Q. What agency?

A. The Department of Homeland Security.

Q. Okay. You can just say their name. It's not a state secret.

A. Okay.

MR. GLICK: -- I may assert privileges. It's not for counsel.

JUDGE TIMLIN: Wait. I totally --

MR. SCHULTE: I have no idea either.

JUDGE TIMLIN: You spoke way too fast, Mr. Glick. Say that again.

MR. GLICK: Counsel made a characterization about whether or not certain information was a "state secret". I object to the commentary on --

JUDGE TIMLIN: Okay. I'm hearing that just as editorial and that's okay. This is -- there's no jury. Okay. Yeah. You're allowed to name other federal agencies.

THE WITNESS: Thank you.

BY MR. SCHULTE:

Q. And you asked them for the information. Did you give them a list of names that you wanted contact information for?

A. The request was actually made by our regional agricultural coordinator, James Mooney, to the Department of Homeland Security in regards to some workers.

Q. Okay. All of the workers? Some of the workers?

A. The workers that were identified to have left Sun Valley in May of -- sorry, mix-up the years, 2005 -- 2015. Sorry.

Q. Okay. And only workers from that group of 19.

A. Yes.

Q. Okay. Without saying which worker, did you ever speak with any former workers who had left Sun Valley at any other time?

A. Outside -- I'm sorry, are you -- what group are you --

Q. Outside of those 19 --

A. Okay.

Q. -- did you ever have occasion to contact former Sun Valley employees after they'd left Sun Valley at some other time, other than that group of 19?

A. I believe I spoke to a few other workers. Yeah.

Q. Was that while they were at Sun Valley or when they had gone home?

A. That's after the fact. I was also in the approximate time of 2016.

Q. Okay. So your testimony was that Mr. Mooney had requested the contact information for those 19. How did you come by the contact information for some of these other workers?

A. Which -- the workers you're referring to --

Q. Not in the 19. The other workers we were just talking about.

A. That's with counsel. Are you referring to conversations I've had with other workers?

Q. Correct.

A. That's with conversations I've had with -- over the phone with our -- Mr. Glick and Mr. Heyman-Kantor.

Q. Okay. So that was after you had completed your report. That's in the context of trial preparation.

A. Yes. Is that what you're referring to?

Q. Correct. Without identifying the group or any individual workers, have there been any individuals you've spoken with outside of those people and outside of counsel in preparation for the trial?

MR. GLICK: Objection. Vague.

JUDGE TIMLIN: If he can answer it. Can you try to answer? I mean, he's being necessarily vague because if he gets much more specific, he's going to tread into privilege area, so I'm going to allow the question.

THE WITNESS: I'm sorry, what was the question?
MR. SCHULTE: I'll try it one more time.
THE WITNESS: Yeah. Sorry.
MR. SCHULTE: I'll take a shot.
BY SHCULTE:
Q. So not naming a specific group, not naming individual workers, and not talking about conversations with counsel or your co-workers, is there anybody else that you've -- and not who they are -- but just were there other conversations with any other groups?
A. Not that I recollect.
Q. So outside of Department of Labor employees, you've only ever spoken with current or former Sun Valley employees about the case?
A. I would say so, yeah. Never really spoken to anyone about the case.
Q. Any emails?
A. Not that I -- no I don't think so.
Q. Any texts?
A. No, I don't use text.
Q. All right. You testified yesterday that the Sun Valley records show deductions from worker pay; is that right?
A. The deductions for what? I'm sorry.
Q. Deductions from worker's pay.
A. The records?

Q. Was that your testimony?
A. The records don't show deductions from worker's pay. There's no -- are you referring to like federal taxes, state taxes? Are you --
Q. Any deductions. You were just talking about generally, deductions?
A. I mean, there are deductions shown on the payroll for federal tax, and state tax, there's Medicare, Social Security.
Q. Okay. Anything else?
A. Not that I recall. No.
Q. Do you have any records showing payments to Sun Valley, LLC from any of the workers?
A. No.
Q. Okay. Any amounts withheld from the workers, other than the areas that you discussed about taxes?
A. No, not that I saw from the payroll records.
Q. During your inspection of the housing, you talked about the number of bedrooms and how there were bunk beds in the various rooms. Were all of the bunks occupied when you did your inspection?
A. I would say, yes, the vast majority of them were. I remember that I requested assistance from Russell Marino, Jr. to get the correct measurements out of one particular room, which he did, just to make sure that it was the proper space.
Q. Okay. Wasn't really the question. Were all of the bunks occupied when you visited?

A. I would have to say, yes.

Q. Okay. A second ago you said the majority were.

A. Yeah. I mean, I'm trying to recollect from memory. This is something that happened two years ago.

Q. Okay. But they were at 100 percent capacity?

A. I don't recollect exactly if they were at 100 percent capacity.

Q. Were there any bunks that didn't have mattresses on them?

A. I don't recollect. I know there was two mattresses on the floor, but I don't remember any bunk beds missing --

Q. Do you know how they got there?

A. No.

Q. Do you know if there were bunks that were available?

A. No.

Q. Do you know how many workers the housing was approved for?

A. I believe 170 was approved for.

Q. So you think there were 170 workers at the time?

A. I would have to review the payroll records to even try to make an estimate whether it was or not.

Q. Okay. So for how many workers in this case are back wages sought?

A. I think 154, maybe. I'm not sure --

Q. Really?
A. -- off the top of my head.
Q. What would refresh your recollection? I mean, you had pretty specific recollection earlier as to, you know, line-by-line, so --
A. Well, you're asking me an overall question.
Q. Overall. Just sort of how many workers would have been there at the time that year?
A. That time that year?
Q. No, how many workers would have been there at any given time in 2015?
A. I would have to look at the payroll records. I mean, it varies week by week. They have different job orders. Different amount of workers during different times of the year.
Q. Okay. Do you think there were more workers there than the housing was approved for?
A. I wouldn't think so. No, I wouldn't think so.
Q. If there were, that would be a violation?
A. It would.
Q. And you would have assessed that?
A. I would have.
Q. Did you?
A. No.
Q. So there weren't.
A. No.

Q. Okay. So there were as many or fewer workers than they were approved for.

A. I would say so, yes.

Q. And as part of the approval process from the Department of Labor from New Jersey, there needs to be a bed for each worker?

A. It does.

Q. So there were at least as many beds as there were workers.

A. We could assume so. Yeah.

Q. Okay. So the assessment of penalties based on there not being enough beds is incorrect, right?

MR. GLICK: Objection.

JUDGE TIMLIN: Was there some allegation? What's the basis of the objection?

MR. SCHULTE: Part of the charge is that there were mattresses on the floor. The workers were forced to sleep on the floor. And, in fact, there were enough beds for everyone. If a worker chose to sleep somewhere else, it's not because of a shortage of beds.

MR. GLICK: Some of that assumes facts not in evidence. The violation is for mattresses on the floor. The testimony is, that came in through this witness, is that he observed mattresses on the floor.

JUDGE TIMLIN: Right. And there's pictures of mattresses on the floor. So I don't -- you know, I don't know that -- I think that it confuses -- you might be confusing some violations.

MR. SCHULTE: I think the --

JUDGE TIMLIN: I don't think -- they weren't assessed for not having enough beds.

MR. SCHULTE: I'm not sure why they're assessed then.

JUDGE TIMLIN: They were assessed for having mattresses on the floor. Was there a fine for not having mattresses on the floor -- or, I mean, for having mattresses on the floor?

MR. SCHULTE: There was, Your Honor.

MR. GLICK: And that is the factual basis for one of the housing violations.

JUDGE TIMLIN: That is. Okay.

MR. SCHULTE: The question goes to the idea, and we'll flesh this out in a second, that if a worker chose to sleep somewhere else, that's their right. They could choose not to take the housing at all, but if they moved their bed, that's not an employer violation. If a bed is made available and they choose not to use it, they can't force the worker to sleep on a bed.

The housing met the requirements. It was inspected, as it has been for the last 30-plus years, passed with flying colors. The workers are free to choose where they sleep.

That's not an assessable violation.

MR. GLICK: There's tons of facts that are not in evidence here about the overall compliance on the various regulations. There's a lot of speculation here about the reason for the mattresses on the floor. I think the questions for this witness would have to do with what he knows, but not, you know, the ultimate question of whether this was then a violation.

JUDGE TIMLIN: Because one of the things that did not happen with Mr. Perez is, I didn't ever -- I actually never got a sense of what he -- what violations were ever cited and maybe you're saving that for a different witness, so specifically what's the violation involving mattresses? What's the actual alleged violation?

MR. GLICK: It's a violation of 20 C.F.R. 654.416(a). Permit me one moment, Your Honor.

JUDGE TIMLIN: Right.

MR. GLICK: So I'm reading from the regulation:

"Sleeping facilities shall be provided for each person. Such facilities shall consist of comfortable beds, cots, or bunks, provided with clean mattresses."

The next subsection:

"Any bedding provided by the housing operator shall be clean and sanitary."

If there's a question about whether Mr. Perez knows, you know, why a mattress is on the floor, and I think that's sort of the line of questioning, but --

MR. SCHULTE: I think the violation, as he's worded it, or, you know, the requirement in the regulation is that a bed be provided, and so instead of alleging that a bed was not provided, they just simply allege mattress on the floor, trying to imply that a bed was not provided and so they had to sleep on the floor.

The questioning went to whether a bed was provided and his testimony was, it was provided.

JUDGE TIMLIN: Well that wasn't exactly his testimony. His testimony was that he couldn't remember whether there were any empty -- whether there were empty bunk beds, or not empty bunk beds, or whether there were -- but anyway.

MR. SCHULTE: He later testified, Your Honor, just to clarify, that there were not more people sleeping there than there were beds approved for them, so the number of workers was less than or equal to the number of beds.

JUDGE TIMLIN: Okay. So, okay. Let's move on.

BY MR. SCHULTE:

Q. Did you ever do any follow-up visits to look at the housing after you were there on July 22nd?

A. I actually inspected the housing on July 21st.

Q. Okay. And then when did you speak with Russell Marino, Jr. about the condition of the housing?

A. On the 21st.
Q. Did you ever go back and look at the housing?
A. I have -- I want to say maybe on the 22nd.
Q. Okay. Any time after that?
A. I don't believe so. No.
Q. Okay. So you don't know when the repairs were made after that?
A. No. Russell Marino, Jr. indicated that he would remedy the issues right away, particularly with, you know, the hot water and the screens that were torn.
Q. Okay. Are you familiar with the New Jersey housing inspection that was performed before that season?
A. Yes. Mr. Marino, Jr. provided that to me.
Q. Okay. And did that identify any of these problems that you found?
A. No, that was prior to worker occupancy.
Q. Okay. So prior to worker occupancy, there were no problems with the housing.
A. No. That was identified obviously in the --
Q. Do they generally do a good job at the New Jersey Department of Labor?
A. I would guess so, yeah.
Q. So if there were changes to the condition of housing later, it would have been while workers were living there.
A. Yes.

Q. Is it reasonable to conclude that it was workers who either tore the screen or removed the screen?

A. I would say so. Yes.

Q. Okay. Or who tracked mud into the housing or into the bathroom?

A. I would guess so. They're the ones living in the dormitory.

Q. Okay. But you never went back to check in on the conditions?

A. No, not after the 22nd. I was -- I'm sorry, let me just clear that. I was present at the camp on August 6th, if that answers your question.

Q. But not in the way of, kind of checking all the windows and doors?

A. No, no.

Q. When you talked to the workers about their use of the kitchen, or their access to the kitchen, did any of the workers tell you that they had spoken with the Marinos about the kitchen?

A. They indicated having been approached by Agustin Hernandez and being informed that they did not have access to the kitchen facilities.

Q. Right. That wasn't the question, was it?

A. It was?

Q. Did any of the workers tell you that they'd spoken with the Marinos about the kitchen?

A. No. I'm sorry, no.

Q. Did any of the workers tell you that they had asked to use permission and been denied?

A. From Agustin Hernandez.

Q. When did they ask for it?

A. I would say when they arrived on the farm.

Q. What did they ask -- how many workers asked to use the kitchen?

A. I don't know the exact amount.

Q. But they specifically said they -- what did they ask to use?

A. They asked to cook on their own as it was stated in the job order.

Q. That's not what I asked. Did they ask to use some of the appliances in the kitchen?

A. They asked to use the kitchen to cook, I'm assuming so.

Q. Okay. Did they ask -- they didn't ask the Marinos though?

A. No, not that I remember.

Q. How big is the kitchen? About the size of this room?

A. I would say, approximately this size, approximately, maybe a little bit bigger.

Q. How many stoves --

A. Different shape.
Q. I'm sorry. How many stoves were there?
A. I would say maybe three stoves.
Q. How many refrigerators?
A. There was a walk-in cooler, there's a box refrigerator, there was the one containing the beer, there's the slide one -- I would say five, maybe.
Q. Okay. So a room this size, it would be close quarters if you had 150 people trying to use it all at once, right?
A. I would say so.
Q. But if they came through in shifts, it would be more manageable to have that many people cook in that size room.
A. Oh, well, yeah.
Q. Did any of the workers say that they'd paid cash to the Marinos?
A. No.
Q. Did they say that they'd paid cash to anyone other than Agustin or Elia?
A. They indicated paying for -- cash for rides to the city for laundry and to cash their checks.
Q. Did you check to see if there were rides made available to the workers by Sun Valley as part of your inspection?
A. Yes.

Q. What did you find?
A. They were not provided.
Q. When was that, in July?
A. I'm sorry?
Q. When were they not provided?
A. They just weren't provided in general.
Q. Throughout the entire season?
A. Russell Marino, Jr. indicated that he did not provide it during the 2015 season.
Q. When did he say that?
A. During our final conference in February 2016.
Q. Did they give any rides to either -- basically, to wire transfer money home to Mexico?
A. No.
Q. To go to the Laundromat?
A. No.
Q. Okay. When you asked Agustin about selling, you know, drinks and sodas, did he answer you right away?
A. Yeah. He acknowledged the fact that he was selling drinks.
Q. He didn't try to hide that?
A. No.
Q. Without naming their names, how many of the workers out of that group of 19 did you talk to?
MR. GLICK: Objection. It's clearly the informant's privilege, the number of workers beyond, you know, those who have testified. The extent of cooperation, the -- we turned over all of the statements and the content of those statements is there, but the number of workers can, again, reveal information about worker cooperation, the extent of it. There were very narrow redactions on that issue in the documents that were produced to counsel, and again, no objection to this time on that issue.

JUDGE TIMLIN: Okay. I will sustain it.

MR. SCHULTE: Is it permissible to ask him, out of the entire pool of workers for the 2015 season? Because again, the issue there is not to identify any of the workers, by any means, but there was averaging used in his calculations of the drink cost, where he had spoken to particular workers and then used that as a sample size to set an amount.

MR. GLICK: If I may, I think a question about the way in which a sample size for a particular damage was issued was calculated wouldn't present a problem, you know, based on -- and I think that there was -- such information was, in fact, disclosed, namely the breakdown of that damages.

JUDGE TIMLIN: Right. I think that that question is fine, but the kind of previous question, because he is trying to -- he does have a right to figure out what, you know, what you based your average on, if you base your average on talking to one employee out of 100 or 20 out of 100, so yes, that's permissible.

BY MR. SCHULTE:

Q. Okay. Out of all of the workers -- and again, making it clear not to identify any of the workers or even when they came or left, how many did you ask from the 2015 season about how many drinks they purchased in a given day?

A. Are you asking in relation to people I had spoke to on the phone, people I spoke to in person?

Q. In any capacity.

A. I would have to give you an estimate.

Q. That's fine.

A. Okay. Maybe 20, 25 people.

Q. Okay. So when you performed your estimate for the number of workers used in the drink calculation, you used a pool, that same pool of 20 to 25 workers?

A. Yes.

Q. Okay. It wasn't eight workers or possibly nine workers to make that calculation?

MR. SCHULTE: The form we had, and I could find it, but I didn't want to interrupt the Court, showed a significantly smaller pool used to create that average.

MR. GLICK: If there was a question about a document --

MR. SCHULTE: I was just trying to --

JUDGE TIMLIN: I mean, you can show him the document and question him about it, but his testimony was 20 to 25 workers.

MR. SCHULTE: Okay. That's fine. I'll look for it later.

BY MR. SCHULTE:

Q. Can you open to PX-33?

A. Binder 9, right?

Q. Yes. Actually, before you open it, your testimony was that you had -- you went to a Costco to get the price of beer?

A. Yes.

Q. Why did you choose Costco?

A. It's the only place that I have a membership for, wholesaler.

Q. Do you have a membership at Shop-Rite?

A. Shop-Rite is not a wholesaler.

Q. Okay. Why did you go to a wholesaler?

A. It's the only wholesaler that I know that sells alcohol.

Q. That's not the question. Why did you go to a wholesaler in the first place?

A. Well, Elia Pinon indicated that they purchased their drinks at a wholesale place.

Q. Did she say Costco?

A. She indicated Sam's Club.

Q. Do you carry a badge as part of your duty as a Wage Hour investigator?

A. I do.

Q. Does that give you access to locations that other people might not?

MR. SCHULTE: Objection. Where is this going?

MR. GLICK: He's testifying that he wasn't able to look at something that was more relevant evidence, so instead he chose something that had nothing to do with what they had told him about.

MR. GLICK: Withdraw the objection.

JUDGE TIMLIN: Go ahead. You can answer.

BY MR. SCHULTE:

Q. Did you try to go to Sam's Club?

A. No.

Q. They didn't turn you away?

A. No. You need a membership to enter Costco.

Q. Or possibly a badge?

A. I wouldn't use my badge in that format.

Q. I'm sorry, to go back. You need a membership to enter Costco?

A. Yes.

Q. Do you need one to enter Sam's?

A. Yes.

Q. To even look in the door?

A. I'm not sure what you're referring to. You're looking in the door, like access to the facility?
Q. Correct.
A. Yes.
Q. You do?
A. Yes.
Q. How about B.J.'s?
A. Yes.
Q. Okay. Are you sure?
A. I would assume so. I'm not a member -- I don't have a membership for B.J.'s.
Q. Have you ever tried?
A. Yes.
Q. They turned you away?
A. Yes.
Q. At the door?
A. At the door.
Q. Okay. Did you try to go to a Sam's?
A. Yes.
Q. As part of your investigation here? You just said you did not.
A. No, not as part of this investigation. You asked me in general terms.
Q. Did you try as part of this investigation?
A. I'm sorry?

Q. Did you try as part of this investigation?
A. No. No.
Q. Did you call them?
A. No.
Q. Why did you choose Costco then?
A. I'm sorry?
Q. Why did -- did anyone say that they had gone to a Costco?
A. No. I chose Costco because that's the membership that I have for a wholesaler.
Q. Did you try to corroborate that or see if those numbers were accurate or compared to other stores?
A. What numbers are you referring to?
Q. The price of Coors Light that you photographed.
A. That's the only place that I know that sells beer wholesale, because I have a membership for that.
Q. So that's the only wholesaler that sells beer in this part of New Jersey?
A. The part of New Jersey where I live, yes.
Q. Is that near where the Sun Valley farm is located?
A. No.
Q. So you're in a different part of the state in a store that no one said they went to.
A. Yes.
Q. Why did you go to the one near you and not to the one near the farm?

A. Because I have a -- there's no Costco in the immediate area where the farm is located.

Q. Right. That's why they didn't go there. Did you try any of the stores that were actually near the farm?

A. No.

Q. Okay. And the photograph you took was of the price of Coors Light, right?

A. I would have to look -- yes. I would have to look back at the pictures, but I believe so.

Q. We can go back to the record. I'm just trying to --

A. Yeah.

Q. That sounds right to you?

A. Sounds right. Yeah.

Q. Okay. Can you go to now Volume 9, PX-33, 1099? Actually, you can start on 1094. Can you look through 1094 through 1102?

A. Yes.

Q. Okay. How many cans of Coors Light do you see?

A. I don't see any.

Q. How many cans are there here, roughly? Obviously you don't have to count them.

A. I wouldn't know.

Q. A few hundred?

A. I would say so. I'm not sure.

Q. Would you agree that it's a large pile?
A. Yeah, it's a large pile of cans.
Q. And there's no Coors Light cans.
A. I can't really tell Coors Light on these cans.
Q. Okay. Look at some of the close-ups.
A. Subsequent pictures?
Q. Any of the pictures. All the way up to 1102.
A. Yeah. I don't see any Coors Lights there.
Q. Did any of the workers tell you they drank Coors Light?
A. No. They indicated Budweiser, Corona, and Modelo.
Q. Okay. So what was the -- how much does a case of Corona cost in 2015?
A. I'm not sure.
Q. Did you ever look?
A. No.
Q. How much was Budweiser?
A. I'm not sure.
Q. So you went to a store that was not the store they went to and got the price for something that nobody bought.
A. Um-hum.
Q. And based on that, you assessed tens of thousands of dollars in back wages?
A. Yes.
Q. Generally speaking, is foreign beer more expensive than domestic beer?

A. I wouldn't know.
Q. Do you drink beer?
A. No.
Q. Never?
A. Never.
Q. Would you consider yourself an expert in beer?
A. I don't drink beer.
Q. Generally, as an expert?
A. Not sure what an expert in beer is.
Q. Would you say you have more or less knowledge about beer than the average person?
A. I have no knowledge of beer.
Q. So less.
A. No knowledge. I'm not sure what -- are you talking about quality, quantity --
Q. Fair enough. Asked and answered.
A. Can I close the binder?
Q. Please. Did any of the workers ever tell you that they used the kitchen?
A. No.
Q. Did anybody who worked in the kitchen tell you that any of the workers used the kitchen?
A. No, none of the -- the kitchen workers acknowledged that the workers did not have access --

Q. They never used it.
A. Yeah.
Q. Okay. Can you go to PX-19? Figure out what binder that is. Binder 6. This would be Exhibit 19 -- PX-19. Do you recognize that document?
A. This is a translation of the interview statement taken of Agustin's wife, Elia Pinon.
Q. Did you prepare that statement?
A. Yes.
Q. You prepared it at the time -- around the time of your interview with her?
A. Yeah. I translated it after the fact.
Q. Okay. Do you have any reason to think that's not accurate?
A. No.
Q. Okay. Can you turn the page to 810?
A. Okay.
Q. Can you go to the fourth line from the end of that paragraph, starting with the word, "If"?
A. Yes.
Q. What does that sentence say?
A. Says, "If a worker needs to use the kitchen to reheat food, Felix will allow them to enter the kitchen, but he always stays with the worker the entire time."
Q. Okay. So workers did use the kitchen.

A. Not to prepare their own meals.
Q. What were they preparing?
A. According to this statement it says, "to reheat food."
Q. What's the difference between food and meal?
A. I don't understand.
Q. I don't either. It says that they were -- you're making a distinction that they weren't preparing meals, but they were preparing food.
A. They weren't allowed to cook. I mean, I'm just speaking in general terms, meals, a prepared meal, food is just maybe some random food that they're trying to reheat, that they possibly purchased.
Q. You don't know. You don't know that, do you?
A. No, I don't.
Q. Okay. So when you said before that nobody who worked in the kitchen said that workers prepared food in the kitchen, is that accurate?
A. That's accurate.
Q. You still say that after reading this statement that says the opposite of that?
A. Well, this says that they didn't have access -- they only had access to reheat food --
Q. Right. And you just said --
A. -- not to prepare food.

Q. My question to you was, did people who worked in the kitchen ever tell you that workers went into the kitchen to prepare food?

A. Yeah, this says reheat food, not prepare food.

Q. Okay. I'm sorry. Fine. The statement says what it says. So they used some process to turn food into something that they would eat.

A. In relation to this interview statement?

Q. How does one prepare food otherwise?

A. I would say to cook it.

Q. So your testimony is that only when you're converting it from a raw state to a state ready to eat, not heating food.

A. I'm not sure about the question. Are you referring what my idea of preparing a meal, like cooking from my own, or reheating food, what the difference between one or the other?

Q. No, the question was, did anybody tell you this, and then you were drawing a distinction, but we can move on.

Do you know what part of the MSPA regulations speak to selling drinks?

A. Which part? The part of the MSPA? You mean Migrant and Seasonal Workers Protection Act?

Q. The same.

A. Yeah. There's a reference to the FLSA in regards to selling products to workers, you know, at a profit.

Q. So it's in the FLSA that -- it's not in --

A. Yeah. MSPA takes its elements from the FLSA, Section 3(m).

Q. Okay. So there's no separate violation in MSPA beyond there being a FLSA issue?

A. I'm not sure --

Q. So if you --

A. If you could clarify.

Q. Sure. Does MSPA create a requirement that doesn't already exist in FLSA on that issue?

A. Not that I recollect. Not to that context, I would say.

Q. Okay. And so -- and in 3(m), what does that provide?

A. That means an employer can take credit for only the cost of something that they're selling to a worker.

Q. What do you mean by, take credit?

A. Well, it's the cost associated with providing that product.

Q. But what do you mean by, take credit for it?

A. Take credit is just a terminology that we use in Wage and Hour.

Q. That's not really answering it. What do you mean by -- what does it mean to say that you take credit for providing something?

A. Well, if they're -- whatever it costs for them to provide what they're actually selling to the workers. That's what I mean by taking credit. You can only sell it for what their -- what it costs to provide it.

Q. Okay. Does it mean that -- by take credit, you mean, kind of offset the wages as kind of a payment in kind?

MR. GLICK: Objection. This is beginning to get into testimony that calls for a legal conclusion. The witness has testified to his understanding of some of these regulations at this point and as Your Honor has pointed out, the legal conclusion is something that is not this witness' determination.

JUDGE TIMLIN: I don't think he's gone there yet. He can continue. Overruled.

MR. GLICK: Also, I want to understand the relevance of --

MR. SCHULTE: It's the whole theory. That's trying to cover a significant amount of money based on profit taken for drinks.

MR. GLICK: That sounds like an argument about the legal relevance of some of the testimony.

MR. SCHULTE: He was the one who calculated the back wages. We're trying to understand his basis. He was asked a number of questions this morning that called for his expertise. He's completed Basic II, which includes all of these statutes.

JUDGE TIMLIN: Right. I'm overruling the objection. You can answer the question.

THE WITNESS: What was the question again? Sorry.

BY MR. SCHULTE:

Q. Sure. So under 3(m), when you talk about taking credit for something --

A. Yeah.

Q. -- does that speak to kind of offering something in kind as opposed to just cash payments?

A. In kind?

Q. Housing, goods and services, food --

A. Yes.

Q. So to kind of makeup the FLSA minimum requirement as to minimum wage, so if you gave someone, say, $5 an hour in cash, but then $2.25, averaged out, for all the soda they could drink while they were working at a restaurant, the idea is that it would be in kind.

A. Okay. Yes.

Q. And that's what -- when they speak to taking credit for something, that's what they mean.

A. Yes.

Q. And so the credit is limited to what the employer's cost for that.

A. Yes.

Q. Okay. That's not a prohibition of selling it for profit, though, is it?

A. No. This current investigation is a H-2A investigation.

Q. Okay. Where in the H-2A regulations does it speak to sales for profit?

A. It doesn't speak to sales for profit, but it wasn't disclosed on the job order. The profit itself is determined based on what it was being sold at.

Q. So who signed the H-2A job contract?

A. I believe it was Russell Marino, Jr.

Q. Okay. And who's the employer listed there?

A. Sun Valley Orchards.

Q. And what was their profit?

A. Of what exactly?

Q. The profit you're talking about, that they improperly collected.

A. The profit was made by their agent, Agustin Hernandez, who's acting on behalf of Sun Valley.

Q. So Sun Valley Orchards, LLC, did they collect a profit?

A. Their employee did.

Q. But did that reduce their -- the amount that they paid their workers? Did they use that as a credit?

A. Well, it brought the workers below the promised wage rate of $11.29 an hour.

Q. Okay. We asked before if there were any deductions in the pay, you said that they received the full amount in their paychecks.

A. They did.

Q. And so you calculated worker by worker whether, even for weeks in which they would do piece rate, that their pay actually dipped below $11.29 for each hour worked?

A. Yes.

Q. Where is that calculation?

A. It's not a calculation in here. If they were brought below any amount that they were being charged, would bring them below the $11.29 an hour.

Q. But if they were earning piece rate, you know, they picked a significant number of peaches, and so they made $20 for an hour.

A. There was never that amount that was earned by a worker.

Q. What was the most that a worker made in an hour?

A. I would have to look at all the payroll records, but I would say, maybe, $11.75 an hour.

Q. That was the most anyone ever made on piece rate?

A. I would say. I'm just going off of memory here. I would have to look at all the payroll records for --

Q. But you checked for each hour that each worker worked.

A. I check the payroll and time records.

Q. For each worker, for each hour.

A. Well, I did the transcribing of all of the records.

Q. Right, but you actually looked at each of those records and figured out what their cost for drinks was for a given hour and you found that they dropped below the $11.29 each hour that they worked.

A. When an H-2A order is in place and you indicate -- whatever the higher rate you're paying, that becomes your prevailing wage rate. You can't bring them below the promised wage of $11.29 an hour, but the fact of the matter that you pay them at piece rate and that increased you past the $11.29 an hour, that became the rate in effect.

Q. Okay. So does the H-2A rule speak to payment below the adverse effect wage rate or to the piece rate?

A. I don't believe it mentions -- I mean, I'm going off of memory here. I'm not really sure.

Q. That's what we're doing today.

A. I would have to look at the regulations in regards to that.

Q. Okay. But you looked at that at some point and you feel confident that you measured it based on the piece rate and not the A work?

A. Yeah. The piece rate was -- I mean, it would bring the workers just above the $11.29 an hour.

Q. Okay. So your testimony is the most that you remember seeing anybody make in an hour is $11.79.

A. Could be more. I can't -- I mean, there's a lot of payroll records. I would have to go --

Q. There are. But you looked through all of them for each hour.

A. I did. I looked through all of them.

Q. For each of 150 workers.

A. For all the workers on the payroll.

Q. Okay. How many worker hours was that for the season?

A. I'm sorry?

Q. How many hours and how many workers would that have been for the season?

A. I don't understand the question.

Q. Well, we talked earlier that you calculated there were 500 hours for this worker, you checked each of those 471 hours?

A. Well, yeah, I transcribed the records from the payroll records and I --

Q. No, I understand.

A. -- was able to --

Q. You wrote down the numbers, but did you look at each of the hours as to what he was paid?

A. I looked at all the payroll records.

Q. That's not my question. Did you look at each of the hours and figure out if he was paid $11.29 in each of those hours?

A. I don't understand the question. I'm sorry.
Q. I'm not sure how to put it any differently. Did you look at each hour that he worked and figure out if he made that or not for each hour?
A. Are you referring -- I'm sorry, are you referring to the time records that matched the payroll records? Is that what you're referring to?
Q. Any records.
A. Well, I looked at all the records, if that answers your question.
Q. It doesn't, but it doesn't seem like we're going to. If we can go to the -- I think in this binder. Let me figure out which exhibit's the best one for you. That's not it. Here we go. If you could go to Exhibit 2, PX-2, in Volume 1? Actually, before that, if you can just go to Page 1, it's the same volume, but PX-1, Page 1.
A. I'm sorry, PX-1?
Q. Yep. Page 1. Right there. When you were calculating the 3/4 guarantee, what was the starting date that you used for calculating the number of weeks?
A. I used the start date when the workers first showed up on the payroll.
Q. So they all started on the exact same day -- or this group in the middle?
A. Yes. Those are the -- I'm sorry, that's the first pay period worked where the workers showed up. This is when they first showed up on the payroll record.

Q. So what do you mean by first -- that's the week ending on that day?

A. Yeah. That's the week ending date when they first showed up on the payroll.

Q. And you used that as the whole week or as part of a week?

A. It's the week that they worked.

Q. Right. No, so if you go over a few columns to the number of weeks, they all end in 0.525?

A. Yes.

Q. How did you calculate that based on -- did you use that first week as one of those weeks?

A. Well, that's actually -- that 0.525 is in relation to the last work week on the contract, which is October 10, 2015.

Q. Right.

A. That's only a partial work week. Based on the payroll records, I believe the week began on Wednesday and ended on Tuesday. The work week started on Wednesday and ended on Tuesday, so the hours offered on that work week, on the last work week, would be seven hours for Wednesday, seven hours for Thursday, and seven hours for Friday, which would make 21 hours offered during that week.

Q. And that's the 3/7.

A. That's the 0.525.
Q. Or 4/7, I guess.
A. Yeah, I guess. So you divide that number by 40 hours, by a week, and it gives you the partial week itself instead of the full week.
Q. Right. In the first week that they worked, though, did they start on a Wednesday?
A. I would have to look at the time records.
Q. Did you look when you created this?
A. I looked at, overall, the time records. I spot checked them.
Q. Okay. So since the 0.525 is on the last week --
A. Yes.
Q. -- they would have had to all started on a Wednesday?
A. Well, that covers the entire period of time, from the time that they would have began to the contract end date.
Q. Right. But that would be an even number of weeks going through. If the 0.525 is only for that last week, the other weeks were all even numbers.
A. Yeah. The five two weeks is a partial -- the last week for the contract itself would be a partial week. That's where the 0.525 comes from.
Q. Right.
A. It's not a total week.
Q. Correct. So if you take out the 0.525, you have either 23 or 18, which is a whole week.

A. That's correct.

Q. Right. So did they start on a Wednesday?

A. I'm not sure, just using this.

Q. Were you ever sure?

A. I would have to look at the time records that match.

Q. Did you check that? Did you calculate it based on their start date? Because it seems like they all started on the same day of the week.

A. They all -- I indicated the first starting week of the payroll that they would commence working.

Q. Right. So did you measure their 3/4 guarantee based on when they started or assuming a whole week?

A. Assuming a whole week.

Q. Okay. Is that the right way to calculate it?

A. There was some workers that indicated having arrived prior to their start date.

Q. It's not about when they arrived, it's when they -- their start date of work is the measurement date, right?

A. Um-hum.

MR. GLICK: Objection.

JUDGE TIMLIN: What is this?

MR. GLICK: It misstates the law at issue.

JUDGE TIMLIN: Okay. I don't know if he said anything about a law, but I felt the question was just whether he calculated out a full week at the start.

MR. GLICK: Maybe I misunderstood the question, but it sounded to me like essentially a misstatement of the law on which the 3/4 guarantee is actually based.

JUDGE TIMLIN: What was your question?

MR. SCHULTE: Is that the correct way to calculate it, using the whole week for the first week.

JUDGE TIMLIN: Oh, okay. Then that -- that's -- I see what you said. Then you are asking him to draw the legal -- you could ask him if it's his practice to calculate that way.

MR. SCHULTE: Yeah, I think we know the answer to that. I think the question is whether that's the correct practice.

JUDGE TIMLIN: Well, yeah. He's not the witness to ask that. He's not the witness to answer that.

BY MR. SCHULTE:

Q. So did you calculate it based on their first workday after they arrived at the farm?

A. I mean, I used the first week ending for when they first arrived on the payroll itself.

Q. So not when they arrived at the farm, but just sort of --

A. No.

Q. -- just assuming the full week --

A. Yes.
Q. -- that they should have worked 40 hours no matter when they arrived during the week.
A. Yes.
Q. So if they arrived on a Monday, it would show, say, 7 hours of work on that Tuesday, but you would have assume 40 hours.
A. I'm not following your thought.
Q. Sure. I'll go through it again.
A. Yeah.
Q. So the work week runs Wednesday through the following Tuesday, right?
A. That's correct.
Q. And so, presumably, there are 40 hours expected for that period, from Wednesday to Tuesday. So if a worker arrived on a Monday, when would you start the calculation?
MR. GLICK: Could I just ask for clarification, what is meant by calculation in here? Because there's a lot of different numbers at issue and I think it might help following.
MR. SCHULTE: He seems to have used the full week as opposed to -- the calculation is meant to start on the day after the worker arrives, so it goes by day and not by the whole pay period. You can't assume -- you know, if a worker is short by 33 hours, it's because he worked the one hour -- one day that he was supposed to, it's not because he didn't work the rest of the 40 hours.

MR. GLICK: That assumes facts not in evidence. I think it might help to clarify whether we're talking about the numerator or the denominator.

JUDGE TIMLIN: Okay. Now I'm really lost.

MR. SCHULTE: That's definitely what I was going to.

MR. GLICK: Well, is the question about the number of hours counted as work hours or about the period of how many hours the company is required to provide? I mean, either is a fair question --

JUDGE TIMLIN: I thought the question just had to do with that column marked weeks.

MR. SCHULTE: Exactly right.

JUDGE TIMLIN: And that he's trying to figure out -- because he gave them -- because the week ended -- because the H-2A period ended on October 10th, and that's actually in the -- I don't know the day for 2015 is, but that's in the middle of the work week, so he figured out for the end period that there was -- that they should only get a partial credit for that last week, and my understanding is that he's trying to figure out is, did he only give them partial credit for the first week if he didn't -- if they didn't work a full week.

MR. SCHULTE: It's a slight twist, it's that, not whether he gave them credit for that partial week, because if they worked, their hours would be reflect sort of whether they calculated the 3/4 guarantee target, you know, kind of what the total is. My concern is that they overstated the number of hours that should have been offered in the first week before a worker arrived.

MR. GLICK: I think that clarification is helpful, but maybe the question could be clarified along those grounds, just to sort of --

MR. SCHULTE: They've set the bar too high, essentially, that the number of hours that he's saying should have been worked exceeds the number of hours that the law requires should have been offered.

MR. GLICK: Without agreeing to that characterization, I think that that kind of more specific question is a clearer question.

JUDGE TIMLIN: Okay. Then you can ask that question.

THE WITNESS: What was the question? Sorry.

JUDGE TIMLIN: I confess that I'm not following that.

MR. SCHULTE: This is more math than we should have to do in this heat.

JUDGE TIMLIN: I have no idea what you're talking about at this point.

MR. SCHULTE: Okay.

JUDGE TIMLIN: I mean, I thought I understood, but really, at this point, I don't.

MR. SCHULTE: Okay. You're the only audience that matters, so if it's not working, I'll move past.

BY MR. SCHULTE:

Q. When you calculated the total number of workday hours between the first pay period and contract end, do you see that column?

A. I'm sorry, which?

Q. It's the one, two, three, four, five, sixth from the right.

A. One, two, three, four, five, six. So I'm sorry, total workday hours between first pay period and contract end date?

Q. Yes.

A. Okay.

Q. Okay. So when you say first pay period, how many days did you include in that pay period for purposes of calculating how many hours should have been -- or could have been worked in a full period?

A. Forty hours.

Q. Okay. So that would only make sense if the workers all arrived on a Tuesday.

A. I'm sorry, yes.

Q. Did all of these workers arrive on a Tuesday, even though it was all different times of the year?

A. I would have to look at the time records.

Q. Did you look at it when you created this?

A. I looked at it when I was creating the overall spreadsheet.

Q. Did you look at it when you created this table?

A. Well, this table was derived from the numbers I had when I transcribed all the payroll and time records.

Q. Right. But when you -- was there another table where you calculated the number of weeks?

A. In regards to?

Q. The weeks column; three columns to the left of where we were.

A. The weeks column itself?

Q. Yeah.

A. No, I counted from the time when the first week began to the end of the contract date.

Q. Right. So did you measure based on their arrival date or based on just, there was pay in that pay period, we're going to count 40 hours for that pay period?

A. There was pay in that pay period and it was assumed that they had the whole week.

Q. Okay. Why would you assume that?

A. Because some workers indicated having arrived prior to the -- them being on the payroll.

Q. When did they say they arrived?

A. A week to two prior to arriving on the farm.

Q. Okay. So did you measure it based on their arrival or based on their work?

A. I just measure it based on the first week that they would have been made available.

Q. Okay.

A. You want me to close this or?

Q. Sure. We looked at pictures of school buses in the field. You testified that you inspected every single vehicle that Sun Valley used; is that right?

A. I inspected the school buses that they used to transport the workers to and from the field.

Q. Okay. But you said -- you testified every single one?

A. The school buses, yes.

Q. Okay. And it's your job to be thorough and to check everything, right?

A. Yes.

Q. Okay. What was the speed limit on the road where you saw the bus?

A. I would say, if I had to recollect, anywhere between 35 and 40 miles an hour, maybe even 45.

Q. Okay. Generally, when you're driving, do the highway signs give a range of speed?

A. Usually, yes. They weren't on a highway, though.

Q. They give you a range? Like on the -- if you're driving down 295, it'll say 55 to 60?

A. No, it tells you an actual amount.
Q. Right. Do you know the amount?
A. I don't remember the amount.
Q. Did you know it at the time?
A. Yeah, I remember it. Yeah. I'm sorry, at the time, I did see the speed limit itself, but it was anywhere between 35 and 45. I can't recollect at this time. I didn't take a picture of it. I was driving.
Q. Okay. So you were driving, say, 35 to 40 miles per hour?
A. Yeah. I was driving the speed limit.
Q. Do you know what the normal procedure is when a vehicle is undergoing a safety inspection from the state?
A. They use a form to identify certain criteria to look for, like the headlights. The same inspection that we do.
Q. Okay. They use ballpoint pens to check tread depth?
A. I don't know what they use.
Q. Could it be a micrometer?
A. I'm not sure what they use.
Q. You don't. Okay. Would you be surprised if they used ballpoint pens?
A. I'm not sure what they used.
Q. What does bald mean to you, in terms of tires?
A. Bald means no tread.
Q. No tread at all?

A. Yeah.
Q. Okay. In the pictures we saw earlier, there was tread on the tires, though, right?
A. Not the ones that I identified. There might be some on the backside. You might confusing one tire to the other. If you want, we can look back at the pictures.
Q. Let's do it. Where are we, Exhibit 29? Volume 8?
A. 8?
Q. Yep.
A. Sorry. Let me just --
Q. Go to, say, 1876, 77, 8, anywhere through there.
A. I'm sorry, which page are we on?
Q. Take your pick. Page 1058, 9, 60, all the way through. Your testimony that there's no tread on that whatsoever?
A. No, you can see the slight tread marks.
Q. So there is tread on there.
A. There's a slight tread on it.
Q. Is that bald?
A. If you would look at the actual tire.
Q. Right. Your testimony was that bald means no tread whatsoever.
A. Bald means no tread, yeah.
Q. Right. Is this bald?
A. I mean, it's bald to me. It appears bald to me.

Q. So is there some standard other than the one that you gave a second ago?
A. Standard in relation to what?
Q. Saying bald means no tread.
A. That's my interpretation.
Q. Right. And this meets your interpretation of no tread?
A. There's slight tread, I mean, I guess you can say.
Q. What's the standard under MSPA?
A. I believe it's 1/32 of an inch of tread.
Q. And how much tread was on this?
A. There was none, basically.
Q. None basically or none at all?
A. If you can look at it, the pen doesn't even go into the -- at all into the tread.
Q. I don't know how far you pushed the pen in. What's the measurement on that?
A. I would say, zero.
Q. That's zero. So you can see the dark spot along side it, I mean, it's clearly not as much as --
A. I'm sorry, which picture are you referring to?
Q. The one with the pen, that you're looking at.
A. Okay. The one with the pen?
Q. What page are you, 59?
A. 59, yes. 59 and 60.

Q. Let's try 1060 then.
A. Okay.
Q. Is the pen resting in a groove there?
A. Yeah. It's resting in the groove.
Q. Okay. What's a tread? Is that the groove or kind of a difference in height between parts of a tire?
A. Yeah, I guess that would be the groove that runs across the middle.
Q. Okay. And how -- what's this measurement?
A. There's barely any measurement there. I wouldn't be able to tell you.
Q. That wasn't the question, what was the -- how many inches is that?
A. What's -- inches in what, exactly? Are you referring to the MSPA requirement?
Q. What an inch?
A. 1/32, is that what you're referring to?
Q. Yeah. How does this compare to that standard?
A. I mean, I didn't have a penny on me at the time, so I used my pen.
Q. Do you have a ruler?
A. No.
Q. How do you measure something without a ruler?
A. You're measuring, you know, almost millimeters of tread.

Q. How many millimeters though?
A. It's 1/32 of an inch, is the regulation.
Q. Right. You said you measured in millimeters. How many?
A. I'm looking at it. From the picture, you can't really tell.
Q. You can't tell.
A. No.
Q. But you just knew.
A. Yeah. I mean, it had no tread on it, so.
Q. What are these lines going from left to right?
A. In this picture?
Q. Yeah.
A. 1060? The left -- are you talking where the pen is resting?
Q. Where the pen is, behind that, behind that.
A. Those are the grooves on the tire.
Q. And what's the difference between a groove and a tread?
A. Well, the tread is the complete mark on the tire.
Q. Can you have a groove without an area that's not grooved? Wouldn't that just be -- like, the table doesn't have grooves. It's all the same level. Is the tire like that or are there different heights at different points?
A. It would be different heights at different points.

Q. Okay. Go back a couple pages to look at that taillight. What does shattered mean to you?

A. Shattered means broken.

Q. Broken at all?

A. Broken.

Q. Okay. They're two words that mean the exact same thing. Okay. You said you believed the bulb wasn't functioning. Are you sure?

A. Yes.

Q. Okay. You've become more sure since this morning?

A. Well, we conducted the vehicle safety inspection and the bulb wasn't working.

Q. Why do you think the workers left in May?

A. They left. They left because similar -- can I put this away?

Q. Sure.

A. The workers indicated having left -- some indicated being left because they were terminated, some left because of the conditions at the farm.

Q. Did you try to resolve the difference between those two?

A. No.

Q. Do you think that some were fired and some quit?

A. I believe some were terminated and some, you know, left because of the conditions.

Q. Okay. That's just different ways to say the same thing. You think that some were fired and some were not fired?
A. I mean, you can put it in those terms if you life.
Q. Some were terminated and some were not terminated?
A. I would say some were terminated and maybe some left because of the conditions. I'm not sure if you want to --
Q. So there's some out of that group that were not terminated.
A. I would say. You'd have to speak to the workers.
Q. But you did.
A. I did.
Q. And so you don't have kind of a single idea of why they all left? There were different reasons, you think?
A. Yeah. I mean, different reasons for workers leaving. Some thought they were terminated, you know, some thought that they left -- I'm sorry, some thought, some left because of the conditions at the farm.
Q. Did they all leave together?
A. Are you referring to the group of 19?
Q. Yes.
A. Okay. I believe so.
Q. Was there another group -- was there another group in May that left?
A. No, no, I'm saying, in the group in August that left.
Q. All right. We were talking about May.

A. Yeah. Did they all leave together, is that what your question is?

Q. Yes.

A. Yeah, I believe so.

Q. Did they talk to you about a meeting they had with the Marinos?

A. With Agustin Hernandez and Russell Marino, Jr.

Q. Okay. Did they mention Joe Marino at the meeting?

A. No.

Q. Nobody mentioned that?

A. No, not that I remember.

Q. What did they say happened at the meeting?

A. They indicated that they requested from Agustin to meet with Russell Marino, Jr. to tell him about some of the things that they were not necessarily happy about in regards to the hours they were working and things in that matter. That was my recollection.

Q. Did they give any other reasons beyond the hours that they were working?

A. I believe they indicated saying something about the actual work that they were performing on the farm.

Q. Okay. Anything beyond, you know, work conditions?

A. In regards to the meeting?

Q. As to what their issue was that they wanted to raise that they -- what they had told you.

A. About the meeting itself or just -- I'm just talking about --

Q. Did the workers give you any other reason they were trying to -- that they were requesting a meeting?

A. Not that I remember. Not that I remember.

Q. Did you talk to the Marinos about the meeting?

A. I don't remember. I don't remember if I ever did talk to any of the Marinos about it.

Q. That's the biggest part of the claim and you're not sure if you talked to the growers about that?

A. If that's a conversation I had, you know, I would have to -- I don't think I did. I'm not sure if I did. I don't think I did.

Q. Is that unusual to -- I mean, that's -- it's a significant part of the claim, right?

A. In regards to what exactly?

Q. The 3/4 guarantee for those 19 workers.

A. Yeah. I spoke to Russell about -- I asked him, you know, about the 19 workers, and he has said that they left, that they couldn't take the job, that they couldn't take the work, that was the extent of our conversation. I didn't talk to him about the meeting.

Q. Okay. And what did you take from that statement?

A. Which statement?

Q. That Russell gave you about the workers leaving?

A. I mean, it was early on in the investigation, so I didn't know what the circumstances were.

Q. When did you talk to him about it?

A. It was, I would say maybe in July, on July 21st or July 22nd, I was there.

Q. Okay. And when did you talk to the -- not indentifying any individuals, but when did you talk to people from that group about the meeting?

A. About the meeting itself?

Q. Yeah.

A. After the fact.

Q. When?

A. January 2016, maybe. I don't know.

Q. So you talked to him within two months of the meeting, and then you talked to them ten months after the meeting, or nine months after the meeting.

A. Yeah.

Q. But you believe their story.

A. I'm just reporting on the investigation findings.

Q. Right. But you made a finding that they had been terminated.

A. I made a finding that some were terminated and some left due to the conditions at the farm.

Q. Okay. Without identifying any of them, how many were terminated?

A. I couldn't tell you.

JUDGE TIMLIN: Are you talking about -- are you talking about both the May group and the August group or are you just talking about the May group?

THE WITNESS: I think he's relating to --

MR. SCHULTE: Just May, hopefully.

THE WITNESS: -- just the May group.

JUDGE TIMLIN: And you're saying that they left for different reasons in May, that some of the 19 were terminated and some of the 19 left for some other reason?

THE WITNESS: It was my impression that some left because they thought they were terminated and some left because of the conditions at the farm in relation --

JUDGE TIMLIN: So they had different reasons, that group.

THE WITNESS: I believe so. Yes.

JUDGE TIMLIN: Okay. Sorry. I didn't mean to interrupt.

MR. SCHULTE: That's okay.

JUDGE TIMLIN: Go ahead.

MR. SCHULTE: It's a better question than I would have asked, so thank you.

BY MR. SCHULTE:

Q. Was there breakdown out of the 19, kind of, 10 said one, 9 the other, 15-4?

A. I don't remember that specific.
Q. Did you talk to all of them?
A. No.
Q. Without identifying who, do you have any idea of how many said one, how many said the other? Not saying speaking for all 19 if you didn't talk to them, but you talked to 3 people that thought they were quitting and 4 thought that they wanted to?
A. I couldn't tell you off the top of my head exactly.
Q. Do you remember, would you have written that down in a report somewhere?
A. No. I mean, when I was taking the interview statements, I would have written it in the interview statement.
Q. Okay. I'm sure there's no unprivileged version here, Your Honor. Is there anything that would refresh your recollection as to that?
A. No. I mean, I took the interview statements. Whatever the interview statements indicate, that's what the worker stated.
Q. That would refresh your recollection about what they stated.
A. I mean, I would have to read interview by interview, if that's what you're indicating.
Q. Okay. But you don't know how many statements you took.

A. No. I took a good amount of them. Now, you're referring solely from --

Q. Only May.

A. -- May, yeah. That's a good amount of them.

Q. That, you don't remember.

A. Yeah.

Q. Okay. Why did -- did you bring it up first to Russell or did he bring it up to you?

A. About what, exactly?

Q. About the worker's meeting in May.

A. I didn't talk to Russell about the meeting in May.

Q. You just said you did.

A. No, I said the workers of the -- the 19 workers that left, I talked to them about -- I didn't talk to them about no meeting because I didn't know there was a meeting until after I talked to the workers.

Q. Okay. Did you talk to -- did Russell bring up the workers departing in May first or did you bring it up to him?

A. I asked him about it because Agustin had brought it to my attention.

Q. Was that the first you heard about it, was from Agustin?

A. Yes.

Q. So before you started the investigation, you didn't know that 19 workers had left in May.

A. Not that I recollect. I don't think so.
Q. You may have? You don't know?
A. I don't think I would've known.
Q. Okay. That wasn't part of the reason for the investigation?
MR. GLICK: Objection.
JUDGE TIMLIN: Right. Now, you're going --
MR. SCHULTE: Okay.
JUDGE TIMLIN: Yeah. That's sustained.
MR. SCHULTE: Fair enough.
BY MR. SCHULTE:
Q. When you visited the fields, was there water available to the workers?
A. When I did visit the fields, there was water available. I believe I took a picture.
Q. Was there ever a time that you were there that there was not water available?
A. No. I was there on -- in the fields on three occasions. There was always water in the fields.
Q. Okay. How many times do you usually visit an employer when you are conducting an audit of them?
A. I don't conduct audits. I conduct investigations.
Q. Okay. When you conduct the investigations, how many times do you usually visit an employer?
A. It depends. It really does.

Q. What's the most?

A. I can't say. Are you speaking in relation to, like, agriculture?

Q. Let's start with farms. Yeah, agriculture.

A. It depends. You know, it depends. You can sometimes start and end an investigation in one day. Sometimes it takes longer. I mean, it takes additional visits.

Q. Out of the five to ten H-2A audits you've done, what's the average amount of time?

A. Amount of time, what exactly?

Q. The average number of times in which you will visit the farm for your investigation?

A. I mean, that's not something I can speak of from memory. More than once, obviously.

Q. Ten times? Does that seem like a lot?

A. That seems like a lot. I'm not sure.

Q. Is four about average or high?

A. I'm not sure.

Q. You don't know. Great. Do you pull any of the workers out of the field while you're there in July of '15?

A. I actually interviewed workers in the field while they were working.

Q. Did they continue working while you were there or did you pull them aside?

A. I pulled some aside and some continued working.

Q. How long did you talk to the ones you pulled aside?
A. I don't know, maybe like 15 minutes, at the most 20 minutes. I'm not sure.
Q. Fifteen minutes.
A. Fifteen.
Q. It wasn't longer?
A. I don't think so.
Q. Were there bathroom facilities available in the field while you were there?
A. Yes.
Q. Okay.
A. Are you talking about portable --
Q. Porta-Johns.
A. -- portable toilets?
Q. Trailer-based ones that were brought along.
A. Yes. Yes.
Q. Okay.
A. The fields that I did visit did have them.
Q. Okay. If you had reason to believe that there was a violation, you would write up an assessment -- or assess a violation for that probably, right?
A. Yeah. It's an OSHA field sanitation violation to not provide portable toilets in an actual amount or provide water with cups, single-use cups.
Q. Okay. And washing stations for your hands?

A. And hand washing stations, correct.
Q. Did you assess any violations of those regulations in this case?
A. No.
Q. Okay. Can we assume from that that there were none?
A. No violations, you mean?
Q. That you didn't find any?
A. Yes. Yes. That's correct.
Q. Okay. When you spoke with the Marinos about the 3/4 guarantee issue, did you go back to -- for the final conference with them in 2016?
A. I did.
Q. You spoke with them about the 3/4 guarantee claim?
A. That's correct.
Q. Okay. Did they ever raise the issue of the signed forms to you at that time?
A. I don't remember from the meeting if they -- well, it was brought up, but I don't remember in what context it was brought up.
Q. What was the reason they gave for why they believe there was not a 3/4 guarantee violation?
A. I believe that Russell indicated -- Russell, Jr. indicated that they left voluntarily.
Q. Okay. Were they relying on the signed forms?
A. I don't remember exactly what they were relying on.

Q. They present them to you at the meeting or, you know, argue that the --

A. No. They never presented anything to me at the meeting.

Q. Okay. Were the workers paid for every hour worked in 2015?

A. I believe so.

Q. Did you find any shortfalls where somebody had -- was not paid fully for their either piece rate or hourly work?

A. No. I didn't determine that.

Q. Is that unusual for agriculture audits?

A. Investigations, you mean?

Q. Investigation. I apologize.

A. I remember in 2015 -- maybe Mr. Marino can fill you in better -- they used a tracking system to scan workers when they were going to each additional field. I believe it was Russell mentioned -- Russell, Jr. mentioned to me it was some sort of, like, way of tracking the hours worked for FDA purposes. I'm not sure.

Q. Is that common among agricultural employers?

A. I mean, it's a system that Russell, Jr. said he used, so I'm not sure.

Q. Okay. You said that you had done a number of investigations of agricultural employers in the last six years, have you seen any other farm that used that kind of system?

MR. GLICK: Objection. Relevance of other farms use of payroll systems.

JUDGE TIMLIN: Yeah. What is the relevance?

MR. SCHULTE: It's offered to show that they were going above and beyond, and that, you know, their level of compliance and the accuracy of their records.

MR. GLICK: I think that answer answers the point. I don't -- they're trying to sort of bolster their -- I think the issue of the tracking of the hours is not an issue and we haven't put, in fact, the hours worked at issue, and certainly not the hours worked of any other employers at issue.

JUDGE TIMLIN: Right.

MR. GLICK: There is a dispute among the parties about the hours worked, but I --

JUDGE TIMLIN: Here's my problem. It's completely unrelated to this. We've been going for almost two hours and I need a concentration break, so I was going to actually ask you a good point where we can stop, because at this point, I'm having -- I'm not -- I'm going to overrule the objection, but I don't want you to spend a lot of time on this.

MR. SCHULTE: That was the last in that line.

JUDGE TIMLIN: Okay.

THE WITNESS: I'm sorry, what was the question again?

BY MR. SCHULTE:

Q. Sure. Out of the agricultural employers you've conducted investigations of, have you seen other growers that use this kind of barcode system to track worker's work hours?

A. I would say, probably not.

MR. SCHULTE: Okay. If you want to take a break, we can jump out of it, but that was the end of that line.

JUDGE TIMLIN: Yeah, whenever you move to a different topic. I think we all -- I mean, maybe we don't all, but I do. I just need a break, so let's -- it's 10 of 4:00, let's go off the record and come back at 4 o'clock.

(Off the record at 3:50 p.m.)

(On the record at 4:26 p.m.)

JUDGE TIMLIN: Thank you, everyone, for your patience. Go ahead.

MR. SCHULTE: Okay. Are we all set or do we need to --

JUDGE TIMLIN: Yeah. We're back on the record. Go ahead.

MR. SCHULTE: Okay. I didn't know if you need to cover anything from the -- okay.

JUDGE TIMLIN: Yeah. No, no. No, that was -- I may come back to you at some other point, but we have to --

MR. SCHULTE: Fair enough. Not to rush you. I just wanted to -- I didn't want to step on your toes.

JUDGE TIMLIN: Nick has to do some research first.

MR. SCHULTE: Okay. I just didn't want to step on your toes.

JUDGE TIMLIN: Yeah.

BY MR. SCHULTE:

Q. Did you test the water that was available in the fields? Did you check it in any way in 2015 as part of your --

A. I'm sorry, which -- what are you --

Q. I'll back up. So as part of your investigation into Sun Valley in 2015, you said that there was water available for the workers in the fields.

A. Oh, yes. To drink.

Q. Did you --

A. To drink.

Q. Drinking water. I'm sorry.

A. Yes.

Q. Not hand washing, but the drinking water. Did you do any tests? Did you check the water?

A. I checked to make sure that it was cool and there was no odor to it.

Q. Did you find any odor?

A. No, not that I -- no.

Q. Okay. Do you know if, as part of the housing inspection for migrant farm camps, the state requires an independent check on the water quality?

A. Yes, they do. They're required to pass inspection in regards to certain contaminants that may be present in the water.

Q Okay. And if a farm doesn't pass that test, they won't be certified to have workers there, right?

A. That's correct.

Q. Okay. One of the workers that we talked about at some length before was Mr. Miguel Elizondo Soto, do you remember that?

A. Yeah, from the --

Q. That's this gentleman here.

A. Yeah, from the example.

Q. Yes. He's testified in this, so his identity is not at issue. He gave a deposition earlier in the case.

A. Okay.

Q. Was he one of the workers that you had spoken with as part of your investigation?

A. I would have to look over the interview statements to verify. I spoke to a lot of people.

Q. Okay. You don't remember him in particular?

A. There was a lot of workers that I spoke to.

Q. Do you remember anyone that had chicken pox that season?

A. I don't remember anybody that had chicken pox, no. You mean, that they were contaminated with chicken pox, that they were infected with it?

Q. They had a case of it. Yes, they were sick at some point during the 2015 season.

A. I don't remember that at all.

Q. Okay. Did you talk to any of the -- do you remember talking to any workers who were sick or injured for some part of the 2015 season?

A. Sick or injured? I don't recollect off the top of my head. There might have been a worker that had a foot injury, if I -- I'm just going off of memory here.

Q. Okay. Do you think he missed any work in connection with that? Was it a fairly serious injury or?

A. I'm not sure. I would have to look at the -- you're referring to people that I interviewed or people that I just talked to in general?

Q. Or if you'd heard from anybody else. You're, were you aware of any workers being sick or injured that year?

A. I know that -- I remember a worker had -- I might be mixing up, I'm sorry. I might be mixing up cases, but there might have been a foot injury of sorts. I'm not really sure. I'm not really sure.

Q. Okay.

A. Foot, leg, something to that effect.

Q. If a worker missed work because of illness, but the other workers worked on that day, would they have been offered those hours that the other workers all worked?

MR. GLICK: Objection to the extent this is, you know, a conclusion of the term offered in the 3/4 guarantee regulation.

MR. SCHULTE: That's almost all he's been talking about today. He's been giving his opinion for the last two days.

JUDGE TIMLIN: I'm going to overrule it.

THE WITNESS: What's the question again?

BY MR. SCHULTE:

Q. I'll try again. Yeah, if a worker were sick or injured and unable to work in a given day, but the remaining workers on the crew did, do you think that they were offered the hours that the other workers worked that day?

A. If they were available -- I'm sorry, if they were available to work, they should have been offered the same hours. If they were sick or injured, as you indicated, you know, they might have some -- a sickness or an illness that they may still be able to work.

Q. So the only reason that they would not get credit as having offered the hours is if the worker were healthy enough to have worked?

A. I mean, that's your -- I guess that's your interpretation?

Q. No, I'm asking you. I meant there to be an inflection at the end of that.

A. Oh, as a question?

Q. Yeah.
A. Okay. Well, could you repeat the question?
Q. Sure. The only way for an employer to get credit for having offered hours for purposes of the 3/4 guarantee is if the worker were healthy --
A. Ready, willing, and able to work?
Q. Correct.
A. Yes.
Q. Where's that in the regulations?
A. I'm referring to your comment as to if they were available to work.
Q. Right. No, I'm saying, your belief is that to get credit as being offered, they had to be ready, willing, and able -- or willing and able at least.
A. Yeah. Usually employers will document the fact that if a worker is injured or unable to work.
Q. So say a worker is injured for two weeks. During that time period, the rest of the crew works, let's just say, 80 hours, during that two-week period. How many hours was that worker offered during that time period?
A. In regards to the same work that was being performed by the other workers?
Q. With regard to calculating them reaching the guarantee under the contract.
A. If they were available to work, they would have been offered the same amount of hours if they were available to work.

Q. Okay. And your belief is that that is included in the DOL H-2A regulations?

A. I would have to review the regulations.

Q. I mean, you wouldn't say it if you didn't think that was true.

A. I'm just stating my opinion.

Q. Okay. With respect to Mr. Jose Eslas Larraga, you have in PX-2, for your 3/4 guarantee calculation, I believe? No, I'm sorry, PX-1, Page 1 again. PX-1.

A. Binder 1?

Q. Binder 1, Page 1. Yep.

A. Okay. What's the -- Jose Eslas Larraga?

Q. Eslas Larraga. He should be the one, two, three, four, fifth from the bottom.

A. Yeah. I see him.

Q. The basis for -- you had him as having his last day of work was June 9th; is that right?

A. That's correct.

Q. Okay. And what was the reason that his work ended on that day?

A. I'm not sure.

Q. Was he fired?

A. I'm not sure.

Q. Does it matter?
A. I'm not sure.
Q. You don't know if it matters, the reason he stopped working?
A. Well, I'm not sure why -- you're asking me why he stopped working. I'm not sure why he stopped working.
Q. Well, that was his -- was that his end date; his last day worked?
A. That was -- yes.
Q. Was June 9th.
A. Yes. I believe so. Yeah.
Q. Okay. How do you know that?
A. It's indicated in here as being the last pay period work week.
Q. So there's no more payroll entries for him after that payroll period.
A. After 6/9?
Q. Correct.
A. I would believe not.
Q. Okay. But your position, based on this, is that $2,751.94 are owed to him for 3/4 work guarantee back wages.
A. Sorry, let me just follow the line.
Q. Sure.
A. $2,751.94. That's correct.
Q. Okay. What's the basis for that liability?

A. This was never -- for -- I'm sorry, I'm following the wrong line. For Eslas Larraga, his abandonment, or his termination of employment, was never reported to U.S. DOL.

Q. Okay. Do you believe that he kept working after that?

A. I don't know. That's --

Q. Do you know if he abandoned work?

A. I'm not sure.

Q. Doesn't that matter?

A. I'm not sure if he abandoned or --

Q. If a worker --

A. His employment -- his termination -- well, his termination, his end of employment with Sun Valley Orchards was never reported as it was required to under the H2A regulations.

Q. Okay. So you're using the terms interchangeably, whether he was -- whether he quit or whether he was terminated.

A. I'm not sure whether he quit or he was terminated.

Q. Okay. If you quit, doesn't that end your 3/4 guarantee?

A. I'm sorry?

Q. If a worker quits their job, you know, leaves voluntarily --

A. If they leave voluntarily.

Q. That's why we're talking about this in the context of the May workers.

A. Okay.
Q. If they left voluntarily, then there's no requirement to pay 3/4 guarantee, right?
A. That's correct.
Q. Okay. But you don't know if he quit or was fired.
A. No.
Q. But you think he was owed the money anyways?
A. Well, he was never reported to U.S. DOL as having, to use your wording, abandoned, terminated his employment, you know.
Q. Would Sun Valley, the LLC who signed the H-2A contract and paid the workers --
A. Can I close this or do you want me --
Q. Please. Yeah. Would they make more money or less money based on the number of drinks that the workers bought?
A. I'm sorry, what was the question?
Q. Would Sun Valley, the orchard, the LLC, would they make more money or less money based on how many drinks the workers bought?
A. The workers weren't purchasing the drinks from Sun Valley. They were purchasing from their agent, Agustin Hernandez.
Q. Okay. Would it change Sun Valley's wage burden or kind of, you know, labor costs?
A. I'm not sure.

Q. Basically, if they had a certain number of workers who worked a certain number of hours, they owed them money, that's set based on the number of hours the workers worked, right?

A. Okay. I'm not following.

Q. That's how wages work, right?

A. Yeah, you work and you get paid.

Q. Correct. So if the workers drank ten sodas a day during that period, would Sun Valley owe them any less money?

MR. GLICK: Objection.

MR. SCHULTE: Part of the Government's theory here, Your Honor, is -- well, I mean, we can hear what the basis is. I'm sorry.

JUDGE TIMLIN: What's the basis for the objection, Mr. Glick?

MR. GLICK: We're treading close to the ultimate question of whether money is owed.

JUDGE TIMLIN: Well --

MR. SCHULTE: I think it's going to the theory of why it might be.

JUDGE TIMLIN: Right. I think he can ask about the -- I think he can ask about wage hours theory. That's fine. Objection is overruled.

MR. SCHULTE: Okay. I'll move through it quickly, Your Honor.

BY MR. SCHULTE:

Q. The amount that -- so the workers work a certain number of hours and that sets how many -- how much money they're owed, you know, those hours times their wage rate, just keeping it simple, without piece rate.

A. Okay.

Q. They work a certain number of hours, there's a wage rate, that's how much they're owed, right?

A. Okay.

Q. If they drank ten drinks a day, would Sun Valley owe them more money or less money than how much they owed based on the work?

A. I'm not following you. Like, I'm not --

Q. Would their consumption of soda in any way change the requirement to pay them those wages?

A. You're relating drinking soda to being paid, is that -- I'm not -- I'm sorry, I'm not following where you're going.

Q. I'm not really either. That's part of the theory here, but I think the testimony that -- so they wouldn't --

A. If you could just be clear. I'm not really sure.

Q. Sure. Maybe a hypothetical would help. So they have ten workers -- let's just say there's one worker. Keep it simple. One worker, works 40 hours at $10 an hour, he would be owed?

A. Based on that math, it would be $400.
Q. Okay. If he bought one soda a day for that work week, how much would he be owed in wages?
A. Was he purchasing the -- hypothetically, what was he purchasing the soda from?
Q. Say, from a Wawa.
A. Okay.
Q. How much would the employer owe him for his wages for that week?
A. I mean, that's -- I mean, that just sounds vague because he would be -- the employer wouldn't have to -- I mean, I'm not really sure, but --
Q. Okay. I don't -- maybe a more --
A. It's confusing. It's just very confusing. You're trying to apply Wawa to the --
Q. Yeah. It's not meant to be. I think -- he would still be owed $400 for the week no matter what he spent the money on, right?
A. Well, yeah. I mean, whether he -- I mean, if he's purchasing, you know, going to a Wawa and purchasing a drink, that's -- he's purchasing a drink. I'm not sure --
Q. Okay. And so if he was purchasing it from a friend of his, still the same $400. He has to be paid for every hour he's worked, right?
A. If he's working.

Q. Right. That's assuming he's done the work. He earns that money.

A. Yeah.

Q. If he buys it back from the company, they still have to give him the $400, right?

A. He's buying the drink from the --

Q. They pay him the money and then he chooses to buy from them.

A. Okay.

Q. They still, in the first place, have to pay him his $400.

A. I'm sorry. Just so I'm following you.

Q. Yeah.

A. So he gets this $400 and he's choosing to purchase a drink from his --

Q. Whatever he buys from them.

A. Okay.

Q. They still owe him the $400.

A. From the company. From the company.

Q. Sure.

A. Okay.

Q. They still owe him $400 for his work, right?

A. Yes.

Q. So it doesn't reduce their requirements to him. That's set by his work.

A. Yeah. They're required to pay him the $400.
Q. Okay. If he bought ten drinks, same answer, right? It's irrelevant to them. It's based on his work.
A. He's still owed the $400.
Q. Correct.
A. The time that he works, he's still owed for the entire time he's --
Q. Did Sun Valley ever pay the workers based on whether they bought meals or bought drinks?
A. Well, the deduction brought them -- brought the workers below the promised wage rate.
Q. And we talked about this before, that's not reflected in the payroll records, right?
A. No.
Q. Okay. So if a -- we covered that already. We talked about for the beer charges, you only assess a penalty based on what you calculated using the Costco Coors Light model to be the profit?
A. Yes, just the profit.
Q. Okay. And why was that? Why not the whole amount?
A. I mean, I'm assuming that the purchasing of beer is not necessarily required for subsistence, so, I mean, it's -- you know, it's not like water that you need to survive.
Q. Okay. And you also testified that water was made available to the workers in the field, right?

A. The times that I was there, yes.
Q. Was water available to them in the dining hall?
A. I don't remember seeing --
Q. Were you ever there at mealtime?
A. I was. I was.
Q. You don't remember if you saw water or not.
A. I don't remember if I saw water or not.
Q. Did workers tell you there was or wasn't?
A. I believe workers did tell me that water was available.
Q. Okay. So is Monster necessary for subsistence?
A. I would assume so. I mean, it is probably water-based.
Q. So is beer. I know you're not an expert, but beer is actually made out of water too.
A. I'm not expert on beer. Okay. I didn't know that.
Q. What about Red Bull?
A. Is it water-based?
Q. That's the test for --
A. No, I'm asking. I'm not sure. Is that the line of questioning you're leading to?
Q. I don't think that's the right test, is whether it's water-based. That's your test.
A. Okay.
Q. Is Red Bull necessary for subsistence?

A. I'm not sure.
Q. If you don't drink Red Bull, will you die?
A. I'm not sure.
Q. Do you drink Red Bull?
A. No.
Q. Have you died? It's a yes or no.
A. Have I died?
Q. Yeah.
A. Am I sitting here in front of you?
Q. Apparently.
A. Apparently?
Q. Yeah.
A. That's your answer?
Q. You're the witness.
JUDGE TIMLIN: All right. Come on. Let's move on. It's getting very late.
BY MR. SCHULTE:
Q. So do you think it's necessary for subsistence?
A. What's your question?
Q. Is Red Bull necessary for subsistence?
A. Possibly.
Q. Okay. Is water available here?
A. It should be.
Q. But you've chosen to bring an outside drink for yourself, right?

A. Yes.
Q. Okay. Why?
A. It's the water I drink.
Q. Okay. People can choose --
A. It's readily available to me.
Q. But people can choose drinks that they want, right?
A. They can.
Q. All right. In the pay records you had here, you said that there weeks when some workers didn't buy meals. Is that reflected in the table?
A. It is.
Q. Can you go to PX-2 and show me some of those weeks?
A. The binder, Binder 1?
Q. Binder 1, PX-2, start on Page 2.
A. You want me to just go through the whole exhibit or?
Q. Just tell me when you find one.
A. Okay. Just tell you the first one that I come across? Is that what you --
Q. Sure. Let's start there.
A. Okay. If you go to Page -- PX-2, Page 10?
Q. Yep.
A. Okay. This Armando Rodriguez Heimas (ph.).
Q. Okay.
A. Is that --
Q. That's one. So he's an H-2A worker who did not participate in the meal plan?

A. That's correct.

Q. From the first week he was there.

A. Yes.

Q. Okay. Do you know if he was -- he seems to have worked for a while. Do you know if he was fired for not participating in it?

A. I'm sorry. I'm looking back at the page before, because he starts on the page before.

Q. Okay. If you go to Page 10, it seems like he was there through --

A. Yeah. He was there through the whole season, it appears.

Q. Okay. Any other H-2As?

A. You want me to keep flipping?

Q. Sure.

A. Okay. If you look on Page 22; PX Page 22.

Q. Yep.

A. Do you see a name at the top? He starts from the page prior, but he continues on the following page, Page 22.

Q. Okay.

A. The name Gustavo Cuellar Romero (ph.)?

Q. Okay. And he continued working after he had stopped the meal plan, right?

A. Yes.

Q. Okay. But he kept buying drinks while he wasn't on the meal plan? He was buying other food, but he kept buying drinks there?

A. I would guess so. Yes.

Q. Yes or no, did he buy drinks?

A. I would assume so. Yes.

Q. But you don't know.

A. Don't know.

Q. Did every worker buy beer?

A. It was indicated in various interview statements that I took that the majority of the workers were purchasing beer.

Q. That's not the same thing, is it?

A. Difference between what and what?

Q. The majority and everyone? 50 percent and 100 percent aren't the same thing.

A. Majority is majority. I'm not sure if you're trying to --

Q. That's not 100 percent. Are there any workers that were not -- will not be -- that you're not seeking money for beer?

A. There might be under the domestic workers.

Q. Okay. So all of the H-2As drank beer.

A. I would assume so. Yes.

Q. Okay. You assume?

A. Yeah. Agustin Hernandez didn't keep records of who he sold beer to or not.

Q. Okay. But you were able to talk to them, right?

A. TO who, exactly?

Q. The H-2A workers.

A. Yes.

Q. They all told you that they drank beer.

A. Some of them did, some of them didn't.

Q. Some of them didn't drink beer.

A. Some didn't acknowledge drinking beer.

Q. Okay. But they're still getting paid for buying beer from your statement.

A. That's correct.

Q. Why?

A. Because some workers indicated the vast majority of workers purchasing beer.

Q. Right, but you specifically -- not the majority, you talked to specific workers who didn't drink beer.

A. If I indicated that, it would reveal who told me what exactly.

Q. Okay. I'm not sure I understand. You said that you talked to specific H-2A workers, and without identifying them, you talked to specific H-2A workers who did not drink beer.

A. Some of them acknowledged not drinking beer.

Q. Right. Can you show me which ones on this list?

A. No, I can't.

Q. Why not?
A. Because it wouldn't be shown on this list.
Q. Why wouldn't they be shown on this list if they didn't drink beer?
A. Because some of them indicated the vast majority of them did drink beer.
Q. But we're talking in circles now. If there were particular workers that didn't drink beer, why would they get back wages for buying beer?
A. Because if I indicated down on here then you would know that this worker told me that he didn't drink beer. It would reveal the worker's interview statement, basically.
Q. No, it wouldn't. I mean, it reveals how many hours they worked and it doesn't tell me who the worker is.
A. It would reveal that -- the beer, itself, would have been zeroed out.
Q. So in order to maintain the privilege, you're willing to charge Sun Valley for money that these workers never spent, never paid to Agustin.
A. Well, Agustin didn't keep proper records.
Q. That's not at issue here. You're trying to get back wages for people to cover up the idea of who you talked to?
MR. GLICK: Objection. Argumentative.
MR. SCHULTE: That's what he said. He's told me that he doesn't want us to know who he talked to, so he's willing to charge money that was never paid.

MR. GLICK: Counsel made a characterization about what is and is not at issue as a part of the question.

JUDGE TIMLIN: I understand the point, so let's move on.

MR. SCHULTE: Okay.

THE WITNESS: You want me to close this or leave it open?

MR. SCHULTE: Not yet.

BY MR. SCHULTE:

Q. For your drink calculation, what was the basis for the per-drink price?

A. It was what Elia Pinon indicated that the workers were charged, and also using Agustin Hernandez' statement.

Q. Did you ask the workers what they paid?

A. Yeah.

Q. You didn't use that?

A. No.

Q. Why not?

A. Because some of the workers indicated more, that they paid more, but I used Agustin and Elia Pinon's because they were the one that were selling the drinks.

Q. So the workers' testimony on that to you, months later, was less accurate?

A. They might have not recollected the amounts that they actually purchased.

Q. That's fair. It's well after the fact. Whose drinks per day calculation did you use?

A. I'm sorry?

Q. When you calculated how many drinks per day in order to figure it out, you would have the price per drink, drink per day, days per week.

A. Okay.

Q. Days per week is easy, you've explained the price, how many -- how did you figure out the drinks per day?

A. It was based on interview statements that I took of workers.

Q. Okay. Why did you use that for that, but not for the price? You used their testimony for one factor, but not the other.

A. I used their testimony for what they indicated of purchasing in drinks.

Q. Right.

A. Yeah.

Q. Did anybody else tell you what -- how many drinks workers drank per day?

A. Agustin Hernandez and I believe, Elia Pinon, indicated just about the same amount; average amount.

Q. Okay. And they talked to you in July, right?

A. Yeah.

Q. But you used the worker's estimate for that --
A. I'm sorry?
Q. -- for the number of drinks.
A. I interviewed those workers.
Q. But you didn't us Agustin's estimate, you used the workers.
A. I'm not sure what you're relating to.
Q. Okay. Go to PX-37 for a second. That's going to be in Binder 9.

JUDGE TIMLIN: Can you give me the exhibit number again?

MR. SCHULTE: Sure. PX-37.

JUDGE TIMLIN: 37. Okay.

MR. SCHULTE: And it's going be 1142, is the page number.

THE WITNESS: I'm sorry, 1 --

MR. SCHULTE: The first page of Exhibit 37.

THE WITNESS: Okay. 1142?

MR. SCHULTE: Correct.

THE WITNESS: Okay.

BY MR. SCHULTE:

Q. What's the first word on that page?
A. On the very top?
Q. Yep.
A. It says, "Miercoles".

Q. Okay. And you testified that means Wednesday; is that right?

A. It's Wednesday.

Q. Okay. What's your understanding of what that signifies in relation to this page?

A. It indicates probably that Agustin collected this amount of money from these workers on that date.

Q. Okay. And when were the workers paid?

A. They would be paid on the -- I'm sorry, I don't remember that exactly. I know the work week ran Wednesday to Tuesday. I don't remember what the payday was.

Q. Could it have been Friday?

A. I'm not sure. I could look back at the interview statements if you -- I'm not really --

Q. Okay. Just for the moment, I'll represent that the testimony yesterday was that it was Friday; does that sound right?

A. Okay. Yeah. I'm not sure.

Q. Okay.

A. But yeah.

Q. And so the workers then paid him five days later?

A. Well, I guess so. Yeah, I'm not sure. I'm not sure what the Wednesday pertains to. Maybe that's something that Agustin Hernandez can clarify.

Q. Do you have any reason to think it wasn't, you know, made at the time?

A. I'm not sure.

Q. Or it wasn't accurate?

A. I'm not sure.

Q. Did the workers tell you anything different?

A. No.

Q. Okay. Did you ever follow up with Agustin for more records about the meals after you talked to him in July about that?

A. No.

Q. So do you know that the workers paid for meals at each of the weeks after that?

A. No.

Q. Okay. So you assessed back wages for that?

A. Yeah.

Q. Could you have gone back and asked? You went back two more times, right?

A. I went back -- yes, two additional times.

Q. Was Agustin there?

A. I don't recollect seeing him.

Q. When were you back again?

A. I was there -- I returned the records on August 6th, to Agustin's wife, and I was -- the only time I was back after that was in September, I want to say, or September, late September, early October.

Q. Were there still workers there?
A. I don't think so. I don't remember. I went to the office. I didn't go to the actual fields or to the dormitory housing.
Q. Okay. So you didn't check, you didn't look for Agustin --
A. No.
Q. -- to follow up to get more records?
A. No.
Q. You just calculated it based on the first part of the season instead.
A. That's correct.
MR. SCHULTE: Okay. That's all.
THE WITNESS: Can I close this or?
MR. SCHULTE: Yeah.

REDIRECT EXAMINATION

BY MR. GLICK:
Q. Mr. Perez, do you still have the Binder A on the stand?
A. Binder A?
Q. Binder A.
A. Yeah.
Q. Could you please turn to JX-10, Page 160?
A. I'm sorry, 10?
Q. JX-10, Page 160.

A. I'm there.

Q. In the middle row, at the bottom, does this refresh your recollection about the exact number of workers for whom back wages were calculated?

A. I'm sorry, where are you referring to? Oh, yeah, the failure to comply with meals, all the way at the bottom?

Q. Does this list the number of workers for whom back wages were calculated?

A. Yes, 147.

Q. So if we could go to Binder 9, please? And specifically, PX-32, Page 1079.

A. Okay.

Q. Actually, I want to change the page, still PX-32, but Page 1077. What brands of beer do you see, if any, on the bottom shelf of the refrigerator in Page 1077?

A. On the bottom row, there's Coors Light and Modelo.

Q. And was Coors Light the beer that you calculated the back wages based on?

A. Yes.

MR. SCHULTE: Your Honor, just to -- it's not an objection, but just to clarify, I just wanted to get to the plug to charge a phone in.

JUDGE TIMLIN: Oh, yeah, yeah, that's fine.

MR. SCHULTE: I just didn't want to kind of surprise the witness.

JUDGE TIMLIN: No, that's fine. Go ahead. Sorry, Mr. Glick.

BY MR. GLICK:

Q. So in -- I apologize for all the binder jumping, but I want to move through this quickly. In Binder 1 now, Binder 1, PX-2, Mr. Schulte asked you some questions about these calculations and I want to start with the --

A. I'm sorry, which binder?

Q. Binder 1, PX-2, Page 2.

A. PX-2?

Q. Um-hum.

A. Okay.

Q. Why did you have to reconstruct the amount of the beer charges?

A. Because there was no records kept of the beers that were sold to the workers.

Q. And how did you determine the amount for each worker?

A. It was based on an average of what workers indicated that they purchased.

Q. How many beers was that average?

A. I believe it was, I mean, I'm going off of memory here, maybe one or two per day.

Q. Did Agustin Hernandez keep any records of to whom he sold beer?

A. No.

Q. Flipping back to PX-1, in making these back wage computations in PX-1, do you refer to all of the records that Sun Valley provided in terms of payroll or only some of them?

A. I refer to the ones that were provided to me.

Q. Did you transcribe information from all of those records?

A. I did.

Q. Did you follow the same practice in transcribing information from those payroll records for all of the workers?

A. That's correct.

MR. GLICK: Your Honor, just as an evidentiary matter, I would move to admit PX-1. I mean, it's admitted, but specifically as a summary of voluminous records pursuant to Rule of Evidence 1006.

JUDGE TIMLIN: Okay. Wait, I'm lost. Tell me again what you're doing.

MR. GLICK: Apologize for that.

JUDGE TIMLIN: You're moving to -- it's already in, and --

MR. GLICK: It's in evidence, but I specifically wanted to make a record that this can be treated as a summary of voluminous records under Rule of Evidence 1006. The computations are, I believe the witness has testified, a transcription of the full payroll records. We have those full payroll records and informed they were provided, available for reference to the Court under Rule 1006. They take up multiple binders.

JUDGE TIMLIN: Mr. Schulte?

MR. SCHULTE: Were those binders provided? Are those otherwise in --

MR. GLICK: So the full copies of the payroll records produced from Sun Valley to us and we have them -- there's a copy available for inspection under the rule, and I think --

JUDGE TIMLIN: They weren't produced to me.

MR. SCHULTE: Okay.

JUDGE TIMLIN: Okay. What he's saying is, you guys produced voluminous records, which Mr. Perez has testified he transcribed and reduced into this summary of back wages owed, and they don't want to have to give me all of the payroll records as -- and enter all of the payroll records into evidence, so they just want to admit this as a summary of all the payroll records pursuant to Federal Rule of Evidence 1006. And I'm asking if you have an issue with that. I mean --

MR. SCHULTE: I'm certainly not volunteering you to read all of the binders, but I think that the records speak for themselves. To the extent you had questions, I think it would be fair to go to them rather than -- this is kind of a second or third-hand version of it. It's already introduced as evidence, so it -- for whatever weight you want to give it, it's there.

JUDGE TIMLIN: Right. I mean, I guess --
MR. SCHULTE: The concern is just precluding review of anything else. To the extent that this is to the exclusion of any records, I don't think that's appropriate, but I think that for what it purports to say, it is what it is.
JUDGE TIMLIN: But is -- are you two going to take the position that the summary, in some way, is inaccurate or that the --
MR. SCHULTE: Yes.
JUDGE TIMLIN: -- calculations are inaccurate?
MR. SCHULTE: Yes.
JUDGE TIMLIN: Then are you prepared to put -- then you would have to, it seems to me, enter into evidence whatever payroll records you're relying on to show that it's inaccurate.
MR. SCHULTE: Okay.
JUDGE TIMLIN: Okay?
MR. SCHULTE: Exactly. That's fine.
JUDGE TIMLIN: Okay. Because -- okay. All right. I understand what -- okay.
MR. GLICK: Just so the record is clear what we're talking about, I just want to understand, is there a ruling on our request?
JUDGE TIMLIN: Yeah. I'm going -- I mean, I will admit it as a summary of voluminous records, subject to the employer showing me that there's some inaccuracies in the summary.

MR. GLICK: Understood, Your Honor.

JUDGE TIMLIN: Okay? So I'm going to admit it as a summary of the payroll records, but I'm giving you the opportunity if there's inaccuracies in the summary, you certainly should present --

MR. SCHULTE: Exactly.

JUDGE TIMLIN: -- the original documents and show me how it's wrong.

MR. SCHULTE: That's all I was asking. I wasn't expecting --

JUDGE TIMLIN: Okay?

MR. GLICK: Understood, Your Honor.

JUDGE TIMLIN: Okay.

BY MR. GLICK:

Q. Mr. Perez, Mr. Schulte asked you some questions about what it meant for hours to be offered to a worker. Did Sun Valley maintain any records of the reasons why a worker did not work on a particular date?

A. No, not as indicated in their time records or any other records that they provided.

Q. And do you know if a worker leaves an H-2A employer for any reason, is there -- does the employer need to report that to government agencies?

A. Yeah. They're required to report the absence of the worker, either termination of abandonment, to State Workforce Agency, and the U.S. DOL, USIS, you know, within 30 days, I believe the rule is.

Q. Are you sure about that number of days?

A. I'm not sure on it. I'm just going off of memory here.

Q. So in Binder 8 now, could I turn your attention to PX-29? PX-29, Page 1062.

A. I'm sorry, which PX?

Q. PX-29.

A. Page?

Q. Page 1062. Now, you were asked some questions about the tires that you inspected. Is the condition of the tread on this tire the same across the whole tire or is it different in any way?

A. It appears to be more worn-out on the front than it is on the backend, on the further part of the picture.

Q. How do you tell that?

A. Well, you can clearly see the tread on the backend of it.

JUDGE TIMLIN: Can you just explain to me what you mean by back and front when I'm looking at these pictures?

THE WITNESS: Yeah. I'm looking at it like -- sorry, I'm looking at it like this.

MR. SCHULTE: Which exhibit are we on, Your Honor?

JUDGE TIMLIN: Okay. So you've turned it so that it's --

THE WITNESS: It's facing --

JUDGE TIMLIN: -- it's horizontal --

THE WITNESS: Yeah.

JUDGE TIMLIN: -- and the Page 29 -- PX-29, Page 1062 printing is actually vertical, not horizontal. Okay. So now tell me what -- still, I want to know what you mean by back and front.

THE WITNESS: Can I just show you on the picture?

JUDGE TIMLIN: No, because if you show me on the picture, it's not going to show up on the record.

THE WITNESS: Okay.

JUDGE TIMLIN: So you have to use your words.

THE WITNESS: So it's the front end of the tire, I would say the right most -- if you're looking at it horizontally, the bottom end of the tire itself, where the tread is less visible than it is on the top end.

JUDGE TIMLIN: Okay. But the top end meaning the top of the picture and --

THE WITNESS: The top of the picture.

JUDGE TIMLIN: -- the bottom end meaning the bottom of the picture.

THE WITNESS: Yes, Your Honor.

JUDGE TIMLIN: Okay. All right. Go ahead. I'm sorry, Mr. Glick.

BY MR. GLICK:

Q. And why is it important for -- is it important for all of the tire to have adequate tread?

A. Yeah, in order to maintain stability on a road surface.

Q. And on -- if we could turn the page to PX-29, Page 1063. Is this tire -- is the tread of this tire the same throughout or different in one part?

A. I'm looking at it horizontally again. The tread on the bottom is more worn-out than the one on the top.

Q. And when you say, bottom, is that closer to --

A. The outside part of the tire.

Q. There are some letters and numbers on this page in two places.

A. Okay.

Q. With reference to some of those numbers, could you tell us which part of the tire is more worn-out?

A. The bottom part of the tire, where the numbers DOL01910 are shown, are more worn-out than the other section of the tire.

Q. And when part of a tire is worn-out, does some of it touch the ground more than the other part or equally?

A. Some of it will actually not be touching the ground.

Q. Which part is that?

A. It would be the higher end of it, that's not worn-out. Probably means that the tire itself is imbalanced.

MR. GLICK: I'd like to go to Binder 6 in PX-19, document that Mr. Schulte asked some questions about. Your Honor, I would move to admit PX-19 into evidence based on the foundation laid during the cross of Mr. Hernandez.

JUDGE TIMLIN: Any objections?

MR. SCHULTE: No, Your Honor.

JUDGE TIMLIN: Okay. It's admitted. Okay. Go ahead. You can continue.

(Whereupon, the document referred to and previously marked for identification as Plaintiff's Exhibit 19 was received into evidence.)

BY MR. GLICK:

Q. So I'm on PX-19, Page 809, can you remind us, what is PX-19?

A. That's the translated interview statement of Agustin Hernandez' spouse, Elia Pinon.

Q. I'm looking about eight lines up from the bottom of Page 809, there's a sentence that begins, "Workers are not", in the middle of the page. Could you begin reading at that point, please?

A. Sure. It indicates, "Workers are not allowed to enter the kitchen to cook their own meals. We sometimes give the workers permission to use the microwave to reheat the food in the kitchen." You want me to continue?

Q. For two more sentences, please.

A. Okay. "The workers are not allowed to put their own food in the refrigerators in the kitchen. The kitchen is always closed, except when we are cooking the meals."

Q. And if you could turn the page, please, to Page 810.

A. Okay.

Q. The sentence four lines down, the sentence beginning, "Felix and I", could you please read that --

A. Sure.

Q. -- those next two sentences?

A. Sure. "Felix and I are the only" -- I'm sorry -- "the only ones who have keys to open the kitchen door. If a worker needs to use the kitchen to reheat food, Felix will allow them to enter the kitchen, but he stays with the worker the entire time."

MR. GLICK: Thank you. Your Honor, I may have no further questions. I just wanted to also extend our request about the summary of voluminous records to PX-2. If there's any foundation further that's required, I could ask Mr. Hernandez those questions, but this is, you know, further transcription of those voluminous records, specifically the number of hours worked according to Sun Valley's own payroll records, where the witness has so testified.

MR. SCHULTE: Same arrangement, Your Honor.

JUDGE TIMLIN: Okay. So again, I will admit PX-2 pursuant to Federal Rule of Evidence 1006, as a summary of voluminous records, subject to the -- having the opportunity to show any inaccuracies by presenting the full records.

MR. GLICK: Thank you, Your Honor.

JUDGE TIMLIN: Okay?

MR. GLICK: I have no further questions at this time.

JUDGE TIMLIN: All right. Recross.

MR. SCHULTE: Just a couple, and I promise to keep it quick.

RECROSS EXAMINATION

BY MR. SCHULTE:

Q. On the same page, before -- did you close it already? Oh, shoot.

A. Yeah. I'm sorry.

Q. That's okay. So PX-19, Page 810.

A. Yes.

Q. Go to the very beginning of the fourth line, can you just read that first sentence.

A. I'm sorry, which line?

Q. Line 4, very beginning.

A. "My husband"? Is that --

Q. No. I have it as, "None of the workers."

A. Oh, I'm sorry. The next line. "None of the workers have asked me to use the kitchen to cook their own meals." Do you want me to continue or?

Q. Nope. That's good.

A. Okay.

Q. Do you have any training in automotive repair?

A. No.

Q. Tire operations?

A. No.

Q. Engineering?

A. No.

Q. Okay. What's the tread depth on Page 1063?

A. Oh, PX-19?

Q. Yep. No, Page 30. 29, rather. I'm sorry, 29. It's going to be Volume 8.

A. What was the -- I'm sorry, what was the --

Q. 1063.

A. 1063. I'm sorry, what was the question?

Q. How deep is the tread there?

A. You can't tell.

Q. Okay. Is that the relevant standard for MSPA compliance is tread depth, though, right?

A. Yeah, 1/32 of an inch.

Q. Okay. You testified that there were the violations related to 147 workers; is that right?

A. Are you --
Q. Is that -- that was your answer to Mr. Glick.
A. Yeah, I mean, that's in relation to what they pointed out. Yeah.
Q. Right. Were all those workers there at the same time?
A. They were there during various points during the season.
Q. But was there a point where there were 147 there at the same moment or did some leave at different times and others came?
A. I'm not sure. They would --
Q. You don't know how many.
A. Yeah, I'm not sure.
Q. Good enough. Thank you.
A. I think they were there at the same time.
JUDGE TIMLIN: That's it? I think you want to go get your phone? Yeah, you can go get your phone.
Mr. Glick, any redirect?
MR. GLICK: No, Your Honor.
JUDGE TIMLIN: All right. This is -- this goes back all the way to the beginning of your testimony. And I think you said that one of the things you did when you were doing these investigations, you read job orders, payroll, and time records, and I just wanted to be clear that I know what you're referring to when you use the word job orders.

THE WITNESS: The job orders are the H-2A job orders that Sun Valley filed for in 2015.

JUDGE TIMLIN: And is that -- there's -- that is reflected by some exhibit that's been entered, right?

THE WITNESS: I believe we looked at one of the exhibits. I'm not sure which.

JUDGE TIMLIN: Maybe counsel can help me.

MR. GLICK: I would represent that the job orders are JX-1 and JX-3.

MR. SCHULTE: That's right.

JUDGE TIMLIN: JX-1 and 3. Okay. I just -- it's a term that I'm not familiar with, even though -- but I'm not sure if it's -- You said that when you were inspecting the housing, that you knew because of your prior investigation in 2013 that this housing had been built prior to 1980, and suggested that ETA standards differ based on the date of construction of the building?

THE WITNESS: Yeah. There was different standards that we apply. There's OSHA standards --

JUDGE TIMLIN: Okay.

THE WITNESS: -- which are any buildings erected after 1980 or if there's been like significant modifications made to buildings. Again, you would consider the OSHA standards.

JUDGE TIMLIN: So OSHA has one set of standards that apply to buildings built after 1980 and one set of standards that apply to buildings built --

THE WITNESS: Yeah, ETA standards apply to buildings built prior to that.

JUDGE TIMLIN: ETA standards.

THE WITNESS: Yeah, ETA standards.

MR. SCHULTE: I'm sorry, Your Honor, just to interject, if it's helpful, when OSHA came online in 1980 -- we had submitted comments when they were proposing a rule change on this last year, so it's not expert testimony, but the Employment Training Administration of DOL had standards for farm worker housing that were already in place when OSHA came online, so they grandfathered in properties that were already in place then, and so just like with ADA or something like that, unless there's substantial changes or new construction, the standards in place when it was built will remain in effect.

MR. GLICK: If I may, Your Honor, just for -- the parties have entered a stipulation regarding a deed that the housing was built, in case that is helpful.

JUDGE TIMLIN: Okay. What was the -- what's the stipulation?

MR. GLICK: It's Paragraph Number 20 on Page 3 of the Joint Stipulation of the Agreed Facts.

MR. SCHULTE: And the standards are roughly the same, but they're slightly different, as to square footage, things like that, but they're essentially farm worker housing quality standards.

JUDGE TIMLIN: Okay. And the stipulation that gives the date that it was built, does it also -- is there also a stipulation that there was no major modifications so that these prior -- that these ETA standards would be the applicable standards?

MR. SCHULTE: If there wasn't, I'm happy to do one on the record now.

MR. GLICK: No objection. Our position is that the ETA standards apply.

JUDGE TIMLIN: So the stipulation, basically -- so our stipulation is basically that the -- it's the ETA standards that apply.

MR. SCHULTE: Correct.

JUDGE TIMLIN: Okay.

MR. SCHULTE: And that's what used by the New Jersey Department of Labor to certify at the beginning of the year and that's what's used by Wage Hour when they inspect.

JUDGE TIMLIN: Okay. I wasn't -- it just was something I didn't know anything about.

MR. GLICK: And just so the record is clear, the Administrator has agreed to the stipulation about the ETA standards applying. I know Mr. Schulte made other comments that I don't specifically --

MR. SCHULTE: Oh, I'm sorry. Yeah, I meant to limit my -- to that comments, Your Honor.

JUDGE TIMLIN: Yeah. The stipulation is just that this was housing that was built prior to 1980 and that the ETA standards apply to the housing. We're happy with that?

MR. GLICK: Yes, Your Honor.

MR. SCHULTE: Without major changes since then, to the extent that that's useful.

JUDGE TIMLIN: Right. Without major -- are you able to stipulate without major changes?

MR. GLICK: Yes, Your Honor.

JUDGE TIMLIN: Okay. All right. Can we look at Exhibit 33 -- and I'll tell you right now, I have no idea what binder this is. Oh, it's Binder 9.

THE WITNESS: 33, Your Honor?

JUDGE TIMLIN: Yeah. And let's look at specifically, Page 1089. Okay. Oh, no, let's not look at 1089. That's not going to help with my question. Actually, look at 1087. And I'm kind of -- I started by referring to 1089, because 1089 shows the doors that go into the kitchen from that middle area that we can see on 1087 where the tables are, right?

THE WITNESS: That's correct, Your Honor.

JUDGE TIMLIN: Okay. And one of the things that you said is that there's no doors from the dormitories into the -- where the sleeping quarters are. Maybe I shouldn't say dormitory. There's no doors from the sleeping quarters into the kitchen, that they would have to come out of the sleeping quarters, go into that kind of open area where the tables are, enter the kitchen through those two doors.

THE WITNESS: That's correct, Your Honor.

JUDGE TIMLIN: So my question is, that makes sense to me for the sleeping quarters that are on the left, but there's also sleeping quarters on the right of the picture, right?

THE WITNESS: That's correct, Your Honor.

JUDGE TIMLIN: Are there doors from the sleeping quarters on the right into the kitchen?

THE WITNESS: No, there are not.

JUDGE TIMLIN: Okay. That's what I wanted to know. And I don't know that I remember where this picture was, which picture this was, but there was a picture -- oh, okay. Looks like it's Exhibit 28, which is probably Binder 8. And looking at Page 1056, which shows these -- the two mattresses that are on the floor, and the question that I had was, did you observe any -- looking at -- did you observe any -- because it looks like they are metal bunk beds, did you observe any metal bunk beds that did not have mattresses on them?

THE WITNESS: I do not remember, Your Honor.

JUDGE TIMLIN: You inspected in 2013, and you saw the housing, and you testified that you saw, at that time, similar issues involving these garbage cans without lids, and windows without screens, but my question is, between 2013 and 2015, would you say that those issues, the lack of complete screens, unbroken screens, and the garbage cans without lids, had those conditions gotten better, worse, or stayed the same?

THE WITNESS: I'm sure they probably stayed the same. I'm not really -- can't necessarily speak to them.

JUDGE TIMLIN: Okay. I was just thinking --

THE WITNESS: Yeah.

JUDGE TIMLIN: -- about in terms of what you saw. You think, essentially, it was kind of the same.

THE WITNESS: I would say so, Your Honor.

JUDGE TIMLIN: What language did you interview Elia Pinon in?

THE WITNESS: Spanish, Your Honor.

JUDGE TIMLIN: When you interviewed Mr. Hernandez, what language did you interview him in?

THE WITNESS: I didn't interview him.

JUDGE TIMLIN: Okay.

THE WITNESS: I was present for his interview.

JUDGE TIMLIN: Mr. Crudup interviewed him.

THE WITNESS: Yes, Your Honor.

JUDGE TIMLIN: What did he interview -- what language --

THE WITNESS: English, Your Honor.

JUDGE TIMLIN: Does Mr. Crudup speak Spanish?

THE WITNESS: No, he does not, Your Honor.

JUDGE TIMLIN: Okay. Did you get any information from either Mr. Hernandez or Ms. Pinon about why there were weeks where the cost was $80 as opposed to weeks where the cost was $75?

THE WITNESS: No, I don't remember there being a reasoning for it, a justification, I would say, Your Honor.

JUDGE TIMLIN: It just was what it was.

THE WITNESS: Yes, Your Honor.

JUDGE TIMLIN: But they agree that there were certain weeks there was, like -- and it looks from your payroll records that maybe it was, like, three weeks there in June.

THE WITNESS: Yeah. It wasn't necessarily clear based on the records that Mr. Hernandez provided, whether it was two or three weeks. I believe in his interview statement, as we were taking it, he had indicated that it was two weeks, Your Honor.

JUDGE TIMLIN: Okay. You made an interesting comment at one point when you were testifying about the workers paying other workers $10, $15 in order to be transported to the closest town, and what caught my ear was that your testimony was that Agustin Hernandez' employees charged $10 to $15 to the workers to be transported to the closest town. Did he have employees that were separate and different from Sun Valley's employees?

THE WITNESS: No, what I meant by that was, Your Honor, is when Sun Valley separates the workers from the ones that Agustin Hernandez would recruit to come work at the farm as opposed to the H-2A workers, which Agustin Hernandez did not recruit to come work at the farm. That's what I mean by Agustin's workers. It would be the --

JUDGE TIMLIN: So they're domestic guys?

THE WITNESS: Yes, Your Honor.

JUDGE TIMLIN: And he -- and when you say "he recruits," explain how that works.

THE WITNESS: According to Agustin Hernandez, he would contact -- he's been working at the farm for a significant amount of years.

JUDGE TIMLIN: Yeah, I think he said 27 years.

THE WITNESS: Yeah. He's been working there for -- so he knows when the season starts. He has a lot of contact with a lot of migrant agricultural workers that he calls prior to the season starting, just to make sure that they know to be there at a certain time. So he contacts them by phone when he's in New Jersey, and he lets them know, you know, I need you to be present in New Jersey at this time, on this date, to commence working. He's got a -- that's what I refer to as Agustin's employees.

JUDGE TIMLIN: Okay. And they're -- so they were already in the country, they've maybe gone to some other location for other agricultural work, and he -- but he's used them before, so he calls them up and says, hey, come down and start, this property's almost ready, and they come down.

THE WITNESS: That's correct, Your Honor.

JUDGE TIMLIN: And then there's these other employees that come in just for the season through the H-2A program that he doesn't know because he didn't recruit them.

THE WITNESS: That's correct, Your Honor.

JUDGE TIMLIN: Got it. And that's why you called them his employees.

THE WITNESS: Yeah. The payroll is actually -- that Lisa Justice provided, some of them would differentiate Agustin workers from -- that was their designation, Sun Valley Orchard's designation, Agustin's workers, as opposed to H-2A.

JUDGE TIMLIN: Right.

MR. SCHULTE: Your Honor, I'm sorry, not an objection, but I mean, just to interject, I think his testimony was that he also recruited some -- or identified some of the H-2A workers.

JUDGE TIMLIN: Right. Okay. He may have.

MR. SCHULTE: Right.

JUDGE TIMLIN: But what I want to make -- what I wanted to be clear is, they're still Sun Valley employees, they just -- you call them his workers because he recruited them.

THE WITNESS: Yeah.

JUDGE TIMLIN: But they're still people on Sun Valley's payroll.

MR. SCHULTE: Yeah. I think they meant domestic, or something like that.

JUDGE TIMLIN: Right. Okay.

THE WITNESS: Yeah, corresponding workers.

JUDGE TIMLIN: Yeah. Okay.

MR. SCHULTE: Yeah.

JUDGE TIMLIN: That was what I was trying to figure out. Okay.

You said you were very fluent in Spanish and I just wanted to know, is Spanish your first language?

THE WITNESS: Yes, it is, Your Honor.

JUDGE TIMLIN: Can we look at Exhibit 33, which is in Binder 9, Page 1094? And you will probably -- to help me with this, you're probably going to have to also reference Page 1085. 1094 shows a picture of cans piled against the cinderblock wall, and you testified that these were cans outside the dormitory, directly across from the housing. So then if we look at Page 1085, can you tell me in relationship to 1085, or maybe there's a better picture even, but can you tell me in relationship to 1085 or 1086, where the cinderblock wall with all the cans were?

THE WITNESS: Certainly, Your Honor. If you're looking at the left-most part of the block building?

JUDGE TIMLIN: Okay. On 1085.

THE WITNESS: On 1085. It's directly across from there, on the opposite side, so it would be exactly as you're pointing to on your left shoulder.

JUDGE TIMLIN: Okay. So off of the -- out of the picture, not behind the building, but in front of the building, because you've got this building, you've got some cars and trucks parked in front of it -- well, three cars, one truck -- and you're saying if you were approaching the building, you'd be approaching from where this cinderblock area is with all the cans.

THE WITNESS: That's correct, Your Honor.

JUDGE TIMLIN: Okay.

THE WITNESS: It's a little bit further back to the -- a little bit further to the left as well.

JUDGE TIMLIN: So look at 1086, and on the right-hand side, we have the bathhouse, right, the shower, bath facilities, is it -- was that cinderblock wall kind of across from that bathhouse or was it still further back away from the dormitories?

THE WITNESS: It was further back. It was a little bit further back from there.

JUDGE TIMLIN: Okay. So is this area where this dormitory is, is it like a fenced in with a cinderblock wall around it?

THE WITNESS: I'm sorry, the --

JUDGE TIMLIN: Or I'm trying to picture the cinderblock, because this -- is there a wall around the whole kind of area where the housing is, like a --

THE WITNESS: Like a fence surrounding the entire -- no, there isn't. It's actually right behind this block building here, it's asparagus fields --

JUDGE TIMLIN: Um-hum.

THE WITNESS: -- to the left of it, there's peaches that are grown. If you're coming off the street, you actually have to go up a slight hill, very slight, right into the worker housing, and when you actually drive into the worker housing, this is what you see. You're driving up this center part here.

JUDGE TIMLIN: And do you see this cinderblock area with all the cans?

THE WITNESS: As you're driving into it, it's to the left-hand side.

JUDGE TIMLIN: Okay.

THE WITNESS: It's something that you see. It's the square cinderblock area.

JUDGE TIMLIN: Okay. In talking about transportation, and the buses -- and this might be just a term of art, but you used it, I didn't -- I'm not familiar with, you said that you saw them use the buses to transport workers over road surfaces, and I wanted to know what you meant by road surfaces.

THE WITNESS: What I refer to over road surfaces, Your Honor, is asphalt surfaces. These are roads, paved road, not farm property.

JUDGE TIMLIN: Okay. So basically you're talking about actual roads off the property of the farm.

THE WITNESS: That's --

JUDGE TIMLIN: Because, I mean, it's possible that there could be asphalt roads on the farm. I don't know that there are or there aren't, but that's not really what you're talking about. What you're talking about is, they took these vehicles off of the farm property and rode them down the streets of whatever town this farm is in to move them -- move the workers to different fields.

THE WITNESS: That's correct, Your Honor.

JUDGE TIMLIN: Okay. That's what you meant. Okay.

MR. SCHULTE: Just one more quick interjection. We have a Google Earth picture that will kind of orient the building to the cans, if it's helpful. It's not an exhibit, but just for your mind, if it helps to --

JUDGE TIMLIN: Yeah. No, that's okay. I think the testimony was fine.

MR. SCHULTE: Okay.

JUDGE TIMLIN: I just want to, when I look at the pictures with the transcript in front of me, understand where we're looking at. I want to look at 29, which is in Binder Exhibit 28, and the first page is the one school bus, but then you have one, two, three, four, five, six pictures of tire tread, and I think you said something about three worn tires, and what I was trying to understand is, were there three tires on this one vehicle, three vehicles that had bad tires? It wasn't clear to me.

THE WITNESS: Certainly. It's actually -- it was three individual tires on three separate vehicles. So it was one tire per vehicle.

JUDGE TIMLIN: And how will I know which vehicle which tire is for?

THE WITNESS: I'm not sure that's clear from these pictures. I took them in -- when I'm taking these pictures, I'm taking them as I'm taking the pictures of the vehicles?

JUDGE TIMLIN: Right.

THE WITNESS: So it would be associated with a certain vehicle. As I'm conducting the inspection -- or vehicle, I take a front side picture of the vehicle, I take a rear side picture of the vehicle, and then I take any violations, if any violations are identified in there subsequently, so I can't necessarily pinpoint using these pictures.

JUDGE TIMLIN: And this -- the vehicle that we have the picture of that has the -- that you took the picture of taillight, that's not necessarily one of the vehicles that had bad tires.

THE WITNESS: I don't recollect.

JUDGE TIMLIN: You don't remember. Okay.

THE WITNESS: I do not remember.

JUDGE TIMLIN: But it was only --

THE WITNESS: It was one tire on three vehicles.

JUDGE TIMLIN: It was three different tires -- three individual tires on three separate vehicles.

THE WITNESS: That's correct, Your Honor.

JUDGE TIMLIN: One tire per vehicle.

THE WITNESS: That's correct, Your Honor.

JUDGE TIMLIN: Okay. I believe we'll look at PX, I think it's, 1 -- because I really want to understand. One question, you talked about hours offered and there were lots of questions about hours offered. There's a column that talks about hours worked and I'm trying to figure out the relationship between -- I don't know what you mean by hours offered in relationship to hours worked. So if you could --

THE WITNESS: You want me to --

JUDGE TIMLIN: Yes.

THE WITNESS: Yeah, you want me to explain using this chart?

JUDGE TIMLIN: Yeah.

THE WITNESS: So what I mean by hours worked is the hours that were actually worked by each individual worker during the growing season, according to payroll records and time records provided by Sun Valley Orchards, Your Honor.

JUDGE TIMLIN: Okay. And that would mean that for every -- so you look at their payroll records and, say, just taking the first guy, Mr. Salso (ph.), it says, 107 hours worked, and that means that on his -- on all the payroll records for Mr. Salso, if you counted up all of the hours that he got paid for, it was 107.

THE WITNESS: That's correct, Your Honor.

JUDGE TIMLIN: And that would be over the course of the time, and if there were times when he didn't work because he was sick or injured, that they wouldn't -- those hours wouldn't count into his hours worked because he didn't get paid for them.

THE WITNESS: That's correct, Your Honor.

JUDGE TIMLIN: Okay. So then when you guys started talking about -- and really, all of you guys were talking about it -- hours offered, what does that mean?

THE WITNESS: With regards to hours offered is that the H-2A employer is required to offer a certain amount of hours to the worker and be able to record those hours offered to the worker, so that they meet the responsibility of the 3/4 guarantee at the end of the season. What we regard to as hours offered is simply the hours that the worker is offered by the employer, you know, to work.

JUDGE TIMLIN: And is that reflected in the job order?

THE WITNESS: The job -- yeah, Your Honor. The job order indicates 40 hours offered per week, at a minimum.

JUDGE TIMLIN: Okay. At a minimum. That if you come here on this job offer from Mexico to New Jersey, we're offering you 40 hours a week for the period of time from the beginning date on the job offer to the end date on the job offer.

THE WITNESS: That's correct, Your Honor.

JUDGE TIMLIN: And that's what you mean by hours offered.

THE WITNESS: Yeah. That's correct, Your Honor.

JUDGE TIMLIN: Okay. And so -- and the H-2A regulations, your understanding of the H-2A regulations is that the employer is required to pay 3/4 of whatever that hours offered is based on the beginning date and the end date.

THE WITNESS: That's correct, Your Honor.

JUDGE TIMLIN: Okay. But the beginning date isn't necessarily the beginning date on the job offer; it's the beginning date that the guy showed up ready to the work.

THE WITNESS: That's correct. According to the regulations, the clock starts on the 3/4 guarantee, and Mr.

Schulte spoke to it briefly, that it starts the day after they show up on the property, Your Honor.

JUDGE TIMLIN: Okay. So one of the guys testified that -- I think, yeah, I think one of the guys -- one of the workers testified that they came and there were a couple days that they weren't working -- they came here, there were a couple days that they weren't working, then they went out to the fields and started working.

THE WITNESS: Okay.

JUDGE TIMLIN: And it would be -- and it's your understanding of the regulations that, not the day that they came here, but the next day, whether they were working or not, that's when the clock starts.

THE WITNESS: Yes, Your Honor.

JUDGE TIMLIN: Okay. So 24 were these payroll summary exhibits, and I think we looked at Page 933.

THE WITNESS: I'm sorry, PX-24?

JUDGE TIMLIN: PX-24, Page 933. We were looking at Mr. Eslas Larraga at the top of the page. And --

THE WITNESS: I'm sorry, what page is that, Your Honor?

JUDGE TIMLIN: 933.

THE WITNESS: 933.

JUDGE TIMLIN: And this is a company payroll summary, so maybe you don't know the answer to this, but I'm hoping you do, since we would move along. So if you look at Mr. Eslas Larraga and we see that on 4/29 in 2015, is a Wednesday, there's something that says, "Total Time: 9, REG: 9, Pieces: 11, Pieces REG: 11", and then "Total Amount: 101.61. And is there a difference between total time and the REG time?

THE WITNESS: I believe that the total time and REG time, the REG time is the total time that they worked, the -- I'm sorry, and that's confusing, because of the wording, Your Honor, but total time would indicate the hours worked according to piece rate paid and, I mean, if that's incorrect, I'd like clarification.

JUDGE TIMLIN: Okay. I'm not getting that. Okay. I'm still not fully understanding what --

THE WITNESS: So the total time, and it's difficult because the total time is actually not total time. The total time would be the piece rate paid time that the employee might have worked, and the regular time is the total hours actually worked.

JUDGE TIMLIN: Okay. And then what's this "pieces" and "pieces REG" mean?

THE WITNESS: I believe that's in reference to when they're piece rate paid, Your Honor.

JUDGE TIMLIN: So I'm just -- I mean, what I'm trying to figure out is, if you were calculating out back wages, I can't figure out, looking at this, what his hourly rate was, what -- how many hours he --

THE WITNESS: The better --

JUDGE TIMLIN: -- actually worked. I mean, maybe there's a better one than Mr. Eslas Larraga that you can show me what's going on.

THE WITNESS: Well, I mean, you can even look at the one underneath and Juarez -- I'm sorry, Javier Juarez Hernandez?

JUDGE TIMLIN: Um-hum.

THE WITNESS: If you notice, the left-hand column where it says, "Total Time", and the right-hand column, where it says, "REG", match identical.

JUDGE TIMLIN: Okay.

THE WITNESS: And at the bottom, it totals out the hours, 59 -- 54.75. So the time rate was $11.29 per hour. The payroll -- the other payroll summary is better to look at. This is actually confusing because it's got too many listings, Your Honor.

JUDGE TIMLIN: Okay. So --

THE WITNESS: I'm not sure if I can --

JUDGE TIMLIN: Because, you know, then I see things that -- I mean, going back to Mr. Eslas Larraga, I see Saturday, May 2nd, "Total Time: 2, Regular Time: 12".

THE WITNESS: Yeah. So the total hours worked for that day would be 12 hours. According to this, he was employed as a piece rate paid employee for two hours.

JUDGE TIMLIN: Oh, so -- okay. So, wait. So they're not paid as a piece rate worker for all of the hours that they work there, only paid as a piece rate worker for maybe some of the hours?

THE WITNESS: Sometimes, yeah. When they're -- if they're working as a piece rate paid, they would be paid the piece rate pay, and then those hours would be separated out from the hours that they would be working just not piece rate paid.

For example, if workers are paid on a piece rate bases, maybe they're picking peppers, for example. When they're working on an hourly rate, maybe they're doing something else as --

JUDGE TIMLIN: Planting.

THE WITNESS: -- planting, pruning, you know, things of that nature, Your Honor.

JUDGE TIMLIN: Okay. Okay. Back to Binder 1, Plaintiff's Exhibit 2, which is the one that talks about the -- this is your calculation for meals, drinks, and beer. And I understand what you did for meals, because we took either the $75 or the $80 and just used that. On drinks, you talked about -- you took an average number of drinks per -- from your interviews, from the information you gathered, you figure out kind of an average number of drinks the guys were drinking every day, and I guess an average cost for these drinks based on your information. The profit -- and then you said they only charged based on the profit and I'm trying to figure out how you got to 3868 as a profit number.

THE WITNESS: Well, 3,868 would be the total charges that they purchased the drinks at.

JUDGE TIMLIN: So then you're not charging just for the profit.

THE WITNESS: No, for the total amount of the drinks.

JUDGE TIMLIN: That's the -- so the drinks, it was for the entire amount of the drinks?

THE WITNESS: That's correct, Your Honor.

JUDGE TIMLIN: That wasn't a profit-based thing. But in beer, you said you just charged for profit?

THE WITNESS: That's correct, Your Honor.

JUDGE TIMLIN: Why did you distinguish between drinks and beer?

THE WITNESS: I mean, for the purpose that Mr. Schulte indicated, for subsistence, you know, a beer -- maybe beer can be a choice, as opposed to --

JUDGE TIMLIN: But you still made this assumption that everybody was drinking -- you averaged out -- I mean, some people may not have been drinking, some people may have been drinking, but in order to make this -- in order to be able to do this at all, you made an assumption that there was an average amount that workers were drinking in terms of beer and gave that to everybody.

THE WITNESS: That's correct, Your Honor.

JUDGE TIMLIN: But how did you get to an 18 -- how did you conclude that $18.20 was the weekly profit on beer?

THE WITNESS: So I was able to determine the profit per unit based on the amounts I determined that they were purchasing, that, you know, you can visit a local wholesaler and purchase the beer at. I divided the amount of units in that box of beer, Your Honor, and I divided it by the amount that was -- that it was purchased at, you know, that I assumed that it was purchased, and that gave me an actual cost.

So I took the amount that workers indicated purchasing beer from Agustin Hernandez, I believe it was $2 per beer, per can, and I subtracted one figure from the other, and that gave me the actual profit that was made by Agustin Hernandez from the selling of the beer per unit.

I then multiply that times the average that workers told me that they would purchase per day, which I believe it was two, Your Honor, and I multiply that number times the days in the week, which is seven, Your Honor.

JUDGE TIMLIN: With the understanding that some guys might not have bought any beer and some guys might have had many, many more than two.

THE WITNESS: That's correct, Your Honor.

JUDGE TIMLIN: Okay. And if I sat down and looked at your picture of your Coors and figured out the amount, that that would be how I would get to that $18.20.

THE WITNESS: That's correct, Your Honor.

JUDGE TIMLIN: Okay. On the same exhibit, you took kind of this set amount for meals, set average amount for drinks, set average amount for beer, and then for, say -- so for Mr. -- the very first guy, Carlos Cruz Reyes, you also have a notation there under payroll hours worked that the first week he worked 4 hours, then worked 27, then he worked 84. Did the number of hours worked affect your calculations in terms of back wages owed for drinks, beer, and meals?

THE WITNESS: No, Your Honor.

JUDGE TIMLIN: Okay. That's just there -- so that that total for Mr. Cruz Reyes of 949.48 hours worked does not bear any relationship to the back wage amount of $2,125.08.

THE WITNESS: That's correct, Your Honor.

JUDGE TIMLIN: Okay. So basically you were just, for each week that the guy was there, regardless of how -- for each payroll week that the guy was there, regardless of how many hours they actually worked, they would've been kind of assessed the same charge for meals, average charge for beer, average charge drinks.

THE WITNESS: That's correct, Your Honor.

JUDGE TIMLIN: Okay. And this is just your understanding of the way the regulations work, right? H-2A has this 3/4 guarantee, and if a worker leaves for truly personal reasons, like, you know, they get a call, their mother is sick or dying, they need to go back to Mexico, and the company does what they're supposed to do, they notify the -- they notify all these agencies, USIS, and DOL and the State Workforce Agency, that this guy is leaving because he has a family illness and he needs to leave, does that then cut out that 3/4 guarantee?

THE WITNESS: That's correct, Your Honor.

JUDGE TIMLIN: Okay. So if they left for personal reasons, there's no liability for the 3/4 guarantee.

THE WITNESS: That's correct, Your Honor.

JUDGE TIMLIN: But if -- okay. So when you went back in August, was it just to return documents? Did you gather any new documents when you returned in August?

THE WITNESS: No, I was just in the area to return the receipts that had been provided to me by Agustin Hernandez and, I'm sorry, I made photocopies of them, and I returned -- I actually had contact with Agustin and I asked him where he wanted for me to leave the documents, and he indicated leaving them with his wife at the kitchen, and that's why I went to the kitchen and I returned the documents to her.

JUDGE TIMLIN: And what was your purpose for going back in September?

THE WITNESS: I requested the entire season payroll and time records for Mr. Russell Marino, Jr.

JUDGE TIMLIN: Right. And they hadn't -- they weren't ready in July because the season was --

THE WITNESS: It was, the season wasn't ended yet, Your Honor.

JUDGE TIMLIN: Okay. If you had gone to Shop-Rite, which is a retail place, rather than Costco, which is a wholesale, you expect the price of the drinks and the beer to be different?

THE WITNESS: Yes, I would say so.

JUDGE TIMLIN: In what way?

THE WITNESS: They would probably not sell as large quantities as a wholesaler would.

JUDGE TIMLIN: And so how would that affect the cost?

THE WITNESS: The cost would actually be higher.

JUDGE TIMLIN: So by using --

THE WITNESS: Per unit. I'm sorry. Per unit.

JUDGE TIMLIN: The cost per unit would be higher at a retail establishment.

THE WITNESS: That's correct, Your Honor.

JUDGE TIMLIN: So by using the wholesale, you were going for a lower cost per drink.

THE WITNESS: That's correct, Your Honor.

JUDGE TIMLIN: Which -- okay. That would mean the profit would be higher.

THE WITNESS: The profit would be higher. Correct, Your Honor.

JUDGE TIMLIN: Got it. Okay. We talked about the workers who left in May. You said some were terminated and some left because of the conditions, the working conditions. If they left because of the working conditions, not because they were terminated, would that still entitle them to the 3/4 guarantee?

THE WITNESS: Yeah, that means they were constructively discharged.

JUDGE TIMLIN: Okay. So you see that as a constructive discharge. Okay. So in your view, even though you said you think that there were different reasons that workers left in May, all of the reasons would still have not -- would still -- required the employer to pay the 3/4 guarantee.

THE WITNESS: That's correct, Your Honor.

JUDGE TIMLIN: Okay. So it doesn't matter which of the 19 left for which reason.

THE WITNESS: That's correct, Your Honor.

JUDGE TIMLIN: What, if you know -- and this is kind of talking about Mr. Eslas Larraga -- is there some understanding that the regulations require, H-2A regulations require the employer to report whenever an employee is no longer there, no longer working there? If they don't report it, what's the remedy for -- what's the government's remedy if they don't report it?

THE WITNESS: If they don't report it, it means that the government itself has never been informed of the whereabouts of a particular person, so they would be out of status of sorts.

JUDGE TIMLIN: But -- okay. I didn't -- maybe I didn't ask the best question.

THE WITNESS: Are you referring to as to why we would determine --

JUDGE TIMLIN: Yeah. Kind of -- I'm kind of trying to figure out, is there some other -- I mean, you said -- you essentially said, because you -- this guy stopped showing up on the payroll, but you didn't find any notification to the, you know, government agencies for why he stopped showing up on the payroll, so you assessed the 3/4 guarantee. If he had been -- if they had reported that he wasn't there -- that this guy just took off, you know, he abandoned his job and they had properly reported that, there'd be no 3/4 guarantee for him.

THE WITNESS: No, as long as the abandonment was proper; as long as it was the reasons as stipulated to the government that he was no longer employed at the farm.

JUDGE TIMLIN: But I'm wondering, is there some other remedy, some other thing that happens to employers for failure to report someone who leaves the job, besides this 3/4 guarantee.

THE WITNESS: No, from my interpretation of the H-2A regulations, it's pretty clear that, you know, the notice requirement by the employer to different, you know, government agencies, not only state, but federal, I'm not sure there's any additional, you know?

JUDGE TIMLIN: Okay.

MR. SCHULTE: Your Honor, I'm sorry, if it helps, there is a per-day penalty to USCIS, and I believe to the ETA, a different part of DOL, for the reporting requirements to them. The USCIS one is included in their own H-2A rules in 8 C.F.R. 214.2, I think.

JUDGE TIMLIN: Okay.

MR. GLICK: And, Your Honor, we're happy to further brief the reporting requirements. They're not exclusive.

JUDGE TIMLIN: Yeah. Obviously, you're going to brief it, but I'm just trying to get my head around kind of his testimony. The issue on the drinks, is it the -- no, never mind. I know what that is.

MR. GLICK: Your Honor, I don't want to interrupt the line of questioning, but I do want to talk about a scheduling matter, if --

JUDGE TIMLIN: Yeah. Okay.

MR. GLICK: My understanding is that the Administrator's last witness has an appointment tomorrow with a government agency, and I'm just trying to get a little more information about her schedule.

MR. HEYMAN-KANTOR: Yes. She has an appointment tomorrow morning that she can't miss.

JUDGE TIMLIN: And who's your witness?

MR. HEYMAN-KANTOR: It's the District Director who's involved in assessing civil money penalties.

JUDGE TIMLIN: Okay. And she -- how long is her appointment?

MR. HEYMAN-KANTOR: I don't know length of time. I don't think it's near here.

JUDGE TIMLIN: Oh, it's not near here. Well, we're clearly not going to get to her today.

MR. SCHULTE: How long would her testimony be on the calculations?

MR. HEYMAN-KANTOR: I might be able to adjust it somewhat, but I anticipated about an hour for the direct, but there might be -- we could talk and --

MR. SCHULTE: I think the calculations have been provided. I think -- was that an exhibit? Was that a joint exhibit? It was certainly a party exhibit. So, I mean, kind of the line-for-line numbers kind of speak for themselves. If there's something that's not reflected on the page that she could shed light on or, you know, flesh out, that's one thing, but --

MR. HEYMAN-KANTOR: She would talk primarily about how the factors were considered and why --

JUDGE TIMLIN: Right. So we do have to put that evidence on, what factors were considered, and I do have to do that, and then you have a right to cross-examine here. I mean, there are other ways of getting her testimony besides her showing up here tomorrow, if that's -- if she has a meeting that she can't miss. Let's go off the record.

(Off the record at 6:03 p.m.)

(On the record at 6:16 p.m.)

JUDGE TIMLIN: Okay. So we tried to deal with some administrative issues, which we have not completely sorted out.

Was there a difference in terms of the drinks per day between what the workers were telling you and what Mr. Hernandez and Ms. Pinon were telling you?

THE WITNESS: No, the average that I actually determined, that I used, was actually right in line with what Mr. Hernandez and Ms. Pinon indicated.

JUDGE TIMLIN: What did they tell you?

THE WITNESS: I believe they said four. Elia Pinon indicated anywhere between 4 and 8. And I think the average used was somewhere in lines of 4.4, or something to that effect.

JUDGE TIMLIN: Okay. So should we keep going or do you guys want to start with him tomorrow morning? Do you want to finish his --

MR. GLICK: It's fine with the Administrator. I would like to ask, obviously, counsel as well, but with the witness.

JUDGE TIMLIN: Yes, can we keep going and finish with Mr. Perez today?

MR. SCHULTE: Yes, please.

JUDGE TIMLIN: You guys can all hang on?

THE WITNESS: Thank you, Your Honor.

JUDGE TIMLIN: Sure. Okay. So what redirect do you have Mr. Glick, after -- based off of my questions?

MR. GLICK: Understood, Your Honor. I'd like to pass up a calculator to the witness.

JUDGE TIMLIN: Sure.

REDIRECT EXAMINATION

BY MR. GLICK:

Q. I'd like to go to PX-27, Page 1044. Are you on Page 1044, Mr. Perez?

A. I am.

Q I believe it was your testimony that you divided the price by the number of units to determine the per unit cost of the beer; is that correct?

A. That's correct.

Q. Could you please use the calculator to divide -- well, what is the price of the beer in Page 1044?

A. For a 30-pack case of 12-ounce beers, it indicates $20.99.

Q. Could you please use the calculator to divide 20.99 divided by 30?

A. Okay.

Q. What's the total on the calculator?

A. 0.699966, and so on and so on.

Q. What does that round to, to the nearest cent?

A. Seventy cents.

Q. And could you clear out the calculator, please? I'm going to ask you another question in a moment. I'd like to turn your attention to, in Binder 1, PX-2, Page 2.

What was the amount of weekly back wages you determined for beer for each worker?

A. $18.20.

Q. And am I correct that your testimony was that the price of the can you used in these calculations was $2?

A. That's correct.

Q. Could you please use the calculator to do 18.20 divided by 2, and then is it fair to say there's 7 days in a week?

A. I would hope so.

Q. And then divide it by 7.

A. Okay.

Q. And what's the amount on the calculator?

A. 1.3.

Q. What is $2 minus 70 cents?
A. 1.3.
Q. That math I just took you through, is that the way that you computed the profit for beer?
A. That's correct.
Q. And the $18.20 back wages?
A. That's correct.
Q. Now, you talked a little bit about wholesale stores, do you remember that?
A. I did.
Q. When you say a wholesale store, or when you talked about wholesale stores today, what kind of store do you mean?
A. In regards to places in the lines of Costco, B.J.'s, places that sell large quantities of items at a lower price.
Q. Are those places that members of the public can enter?
A. Yes.
Q. To buy things -- can people buy things for their personal use as opposed to for business use?
A. Yes.
Q. And did Agustin Hernandez shop at one of those kinds of stores in 2015?
A. Sam's Club, I believe, is the one he used.
Q. Now, in Binder 9, I'd like to turn your attention to the last exhibit, PX-41, marked PX-41, at this point, for identification, Page 1227.

A. PX-41?

Q. That's right.

A. And which page?

Q. PX-41, Page 1227.

A. Okay.

Q. Do you recognize PX-41?

A. I do.

Q. What is PX-41?

A. It's an email that I sent to Russell Marino, Jr. requesting certain information in regards to the investigation.

Q. When did you send that email?

A. I sent it on September 28, 2015.

Q. And is there another email that's part of PX-41, Page 1227?

A. It's the Russell Marino, Jr.'s response indicating, "No problem, but I thought that would have been the thing we did."

Q. Investigator Perez, does this document, PX-41, refresh your recollection about when you obtained the full set of payroll records that you described?

A. Yes. It would have been in Tuesday, October 6th.

Q. So sometime after September 2015?

A. That's correct. I indicated on the email below, by Tuesday, October 6th.

MR. GLICK: Based on that, Your Honor, I would move to admit PX-41 into evidence.

JUDGE TIMLIN: Any objection?

MR. SCHULTE: No, Your Honor.

JUDGE TIMLIN: Okay. It's admitted.

BY MR. GLICK:

Q. Now, for the remainder of my questions, I want to focus on the -- some of the questions related to the 3/4 guarantee issue, so one of the binders I'd like to use is Binder 1 and the other is Binder 7. And in a moment, I'll refer to specific pages.

MR. SCHULTE: At this point, Your Honor, I'm not sure if we're still within the scope of what you had talked to him about.

JUDGE TIMLIN: So what were you -- I missed what you said you were going to --

MR. GLICK: Sure. So, Your Honor asked him questions about, for instance, the columns on the payroll summary pages, and I wanted to ask some questions that I think may clarify how to read some of these records and also how they would link up to the computations.

JUDGE TIMLIN: Yeah. Okay. Then he's still on the scope. It's still okay. Yeah, you can continue.

BY MR. GLICK:

Q. In Binder 7, Investigator Perez, could you please turn to PX-25?

A. Okay.

Q. Page 957.

A. Okay.

Q. So on Page 957, I'd like to focus on the worker Rios Baltista con Mateo (ph.).

A. Okay.

MR. SCHULTE: I'm sorry -- oh, sorry, I see it.

BY MR. GLICK:

Q. So you were explaining something about the difference between the total time and the REG columns?

A. That's correct.

Q. How many hours did Mateo Rios Baltista work of the week ending June 9, 2015?

A. According to this record, it indicates he worked 75.50 total hours.

Q. And if you could try to hold your place there and also look at PX-23, Page 869.

JUDGE TIMLIN: 23?

MR. GLICK: That's correct, Your Honor. Comparing

Page 869 to Page 957.

THE WITNESS: I'm sorry, what page on PX-23?

MR. GLICK: 869.

THE WITNESS: Okay.

BY MR. GLICK:

Q. With reference to Page 869, how many hours did Mateo Rios Baltista work the week ending June 9, 2015?

A. According to these records, 75.50 total hours.

Q. Is that the same number as on Page 957?

A. That's correct.

Q. Now, back on Page 957, do you use the total time column at all in calculating 3/4 guarantee --

A. No, I use the regular, which is the total hours worked.

Q. And then, generally speaking, is the red column number higher or lower than the total time?

A. It's actually higher.

MR. SCHULTE: Your Honor, if I can just object to the line of questioning. I don't think we've established, you know, the basis for his knowledge of the operation of this payroll software.

MR. GLICK: There hasn't been made any reference to software, but I believe what I'm trying to do is something the witness has already testified to, is that there's consistency in these records in terms of hours worked across, you know, two types of payroll run records, as to the number of hours.

JUDGE TIMLIN: And I think -- I might have misspoke the question too; I don't know that he needs to have -- Mr. Schulte, I don't know that he needs to have knowledge about the software.

MR. SCHULTE: Well, just as far as explaining what REG means or what total time means. I mean, we'll put on the Marinos tomorrow, who, you know, purchased and operate the software, and can explain kind of what is represented in the numbers. I mean, his calculations, we've gone through that ad nauseum. I mean, as far as kind of explaining the significance of different numbers, we can talk through that tomorrow.

MR. GLICK: Well, I think it's important to establish while this witness is here, clearly, what records he used, and Your Honor had asked him questions about some of the differences in these columns, and I'm trying to establish the witness' knowledge or familiarity --

MR. SCHULTE: I haven't heard him explain the basis for his knowledge of kind of what each one means, you know, kind of how he knows what the report is speaking to.

JUDGE TIMLIN: I'm not as interested in the basis for his knowledge as to what each one means as I am for what ones he chose to look at when he's calculating out back wages. That, I am interested in, because -- and that's where I kind of lost the question, Mr. Glick, because I thought you referred to something that I don't even see here, which was, if I'm looking at PX-25, I don't see any reference to total hours worked. I see total time, REG time, total pieces, pieces REG, and total amount.

So I'm overruling the objection, but I'm confused about your question, so if you could maybe -- you probably need to restate it.

MR. GLICK: Fair enough, Your Honor.

BY MR. GLICK:

Q. Investigator Perez, which kind of payroll records did you primarily use in transcribing hours information into the computations?

A. I used a combination of payroll run inquiry check view, which is PX-23.

Q. Were there occasions in which you used other records?

A. On several occasions, there was additional payroll records that were provided by Sun Valley that did not have the payroll run inquiry, that had the hours worked.

JUDGE TIMLIN: Okay. See, when you said, "I used a combination of" --

THE WITNESS: Sorry. I used a combination of payroll run inquiry and --

JUDGE TIMLIN: And?

THE WITNESS: -- the payroll summary, which is the regular hours.

JUDGE TIMLIN: Which is PX-25.
THE WITNESS: Yeah. Sorry, Your Honor.
JUDGE TIMLIN: So you looked at both.
THE WITNESS: I looked at both, but I primarily used the payroll run inquiry.
BY MR. GLICK:
Q. And when you looked at the payroll run inquiry, PX-23, which column did you use to transcribe the hours information?
A. The column stated as hours.
Q. When you used PX-25, or the payroll summary records, which columns did you use to transcribe the hours information?
A. REG.
Q. Why didn't you use the total time column in transcribing the hours?
A. Because the total hours worked is under REGs, not under total time.
Q. Mr. Perez, I believe you were asked questions about circumstances in which a worker arrived at Sun Valley Orchards and did not begin working the very next day, do you remember that?
A. That's correct. Yeah, I do remember.
Q. In that instance, what date did you use to determine the beginning period for calculating the 3/4 guarantee?
A. I still used the date that they first showed up on the payroll as opposed to the date that they potentially arrived on the farm.

Q. Would that increase or decrease the back wages that you calculated for that worker?

A. That would increase the back wages.

Q. Would it --

JUDGE TIMLIN: What would increase the back wages? The date that they first showed up on the payroll or the day that they first showed up on the --

THE WITNESS: The date that they first arrived.

JUDGE TIMLIN: First arrived. So if you had used the date that they first arrived, that would increase the 3/4 guarantee amount.

THE WITNESS: That's correct, Your Honor.

JUDGE TIMLIN: Okay. That wasn't -- I'm sorry, when you use things like that, it doesn't make it clear. Okay. Go ahead.

BY MR. GLICK:

Q. And just so the record is clear, you used the date of the -- corresponding to the first pay period on which the worker appeared on the payroll?

A. That's correct.

MR. GLICK: I have no further questions at this time, Your Honor.

JUDGE TIMLIN: Okay. Mr. Schulte?

MR. SCHULTE: I'm be mercifully quick, Your Honor.

RECROSS EXAMINATION

BY MR. SCHULTE:

Q. The Judge asked you a question about the condition of the screens and trashcans in 2013 versus 2015. You said they were about the same. It wasn't the exact same issues, though, was it?

A. No, there were additional issues in 2013.

Q. No, no, I meant the same screens and the same cans. The housing would have been inspected in -- beginning of the 2014 season and the beginning of the 2015 season by New Jersey DOL, right?

MR. GLICK: Objection. It's vague and compound.

MR. SCHULTE: I'll break it up.

JUDGE TIMLIN: Yeah.

BY MR. SCHULTE:

Q. So the housing would have been inspected at the beginning of the 2014 and 2015 season, right?

A. Yes, by New Jersey Department of Labor.

Q. Okay. So that was after your 2013 audit, but before 2015 audit, there were two New Jersey -- investigation, I'm sorry.

A. Thank you.

Q. Investigation. I apologize. There were two inspections by New Jersey DOL in-between those two investigations.

A. Yes.

Q. Okay. So in order to have passed that inspection, those issues would have had to have been fixed in-between, right?

MR. GLICK: Objection. Speculation.

MR. SCHULTE: If you know.

THE WITNESS: I mean, they would not receive the housing certificate, so workers could not occupy the residence, without, you know, being in good standing order.

MR. SCHULTE: Okay.

THE WITNESS: If that's what you're asking.

MR. SCHULTE: Yes. Thank you.

THE WITNESS: You're welcome.

BY MR. SCHULTE:

Q. You referred to a local wholesaler. Local to whom? You said you went to a local wholesaler to check prices. Local to whom?

A. Local to me.

Q. Okay. And you referred to Agustin's actual profit for beer. Do you mean his estimated profit?

A. I would say his profit from the selling of the beer in regards to adding an adjective to estimated.

Q. It's your word. You used the phrase, his actual profit.

A. His actual profit from the selling of the beer.
Q. Right. Do you know his actual profit?
A. No.
Q. Okay. You have an estimate.
A. Estimated.
Q. What was Sun Valley's profit for the beer?
A. They didn't -- they weren't the ones selling the beer. Agustin Hernandez was selling the beer.
Q. Okay. How many workers departed in August of 2015?
A. I couldn't tell you off the top of my head. I couldn't give you an exact number.
Q. Okay. You have four workers listed here in PX-1, for whom you say back wages are owed for 3/4 guarantee, correct?
A. Can I look at PX --
Q. Please.
MR. GLICK: Objection. This is more of a question to clarify where this fell within the scope of the judge's examination.
JUDGE TIMLIN: Again, Mr. Glick, and maybe it's just because the hour is late, but you're speaking so fast that I have no idea what you just said, other than objection. I lost after you that.
MR. GLICK: I apologize, Your Honor.
JUDGE TIMLIN: So slow down.
MR. GLICK: I'm objecting to the question as possibly outside of the scope of Your Honor's examination and may be missing something, but it's not clear to me where the scope was.

JUDGE TIMLIN: Okay. Except that I really haven't heard the question, other than that locating at PX-1.

MR. SCHULTE: And it'll be extremely quick. I promise. And it just goes to the issue of the 3/4 guarantee discussion that you had with him as far as the August departures.

JUDGE TIMLIN: Okay. That's within the scope, so go ahead.

MR. SCHULTE: Okay.

BY MR. SCHULTE:

Q. Do you see the last four names on here going from Mr. Luna Gonzalez through Mr. Morales Acosta?

A. It's PX-1?

Q. Correct. Yeah, Page 1.

A. So you're referring to --

Q. It should be the last --

A. -- the last one, two, three -- the last four entries?

Q. That's right.

A. Okay.

Q. Those are the only four here that related to an August departure, right?

A. That's correct. One, two, three, four. Yes.

Q. Okay. Do you have a rough idea of how many workers left with that group?

A. It would just be a guess, 30, 40, I'm not really sure.

Q. Okay. So most of those workers are not owed 3/4 guarantee, right?

A. That's correct.

Q. Okay. Do you know, did you talk to all four of these?

MR. GLICK: Objection. Now I think we're really getting beyond the scope.

MR. SCHULTE: The question was the reason for their departure. You had asked kind of what the effect would be if the workers left by choice.

MR. GLICK: And I'd just add, the informant's privilege issue with regard to questions about workers who have not --

JUDGE TIMLIN: Right. I mean --

MR. GLICK: -- in this case, had given statements.

JUDGE TIMLIN: -- yeah, you can't --

MR. SCHULTE: I'm not asking what any individual worker said, just did he speak to them.

MR. GLICK: The number of workers listed here is --

JUDGE TIMLIN: Right. That's where he can't go.

MR. SCHULTE: But I don't need to know what they said. There's nothing about their discussion with him. They could have said they had a great time, they could have said they had a terrible time; it makes no difference to us.

JUDGE TIMLIN: Well, he could actually testify more about, generally, what --

MR. SCHULTE: I'll rephrase. Yeah, no, it's --

JUDGE TIMLIN: Generally, what people told him, he can testify about. What he can't testify about is whether he talked to those four workers.

MR. SCHULTE: Okay.

MR. GLICK: Your Honor, if I may add, the closer the questions get to a very limited number of workers, then questions about what people said begin to overlap with, obviously, whether he's spoken --

JUDGE TIMLIN: Right, which is why I sustained the objection.

MR. SCHULTE: Correct. I apologize, Your Honor.

JUDGE TIMLIN: Okay.

BY MR. SCHULTE:

Q. Did you talk to any workers who told you that they were sick or injured?

A. I believe I -- I might have not interviewed them. I'm not sure if I interview them or not, but I did -- I remember having a conversation, but I don't remember the context of that conversation.

Q. Okay. Is it possible that it was one of the workers in that group?

MR. GLICK: Objection. Same objection, informant's privilege.

MR. SCHULTE: I'm just asking whether they were injured. The concern is that the reason -- if there were 30 or 40 workers who left, and they all met their 3/4 guarantee and they were all working the same schedules every day, and then there were four workers here who didn't, we're just looking for an explanation that there were hours offered to them that they didn't work, which would suggest that they were not, in fact, owed back wages.

JUDGE TIMLIN: I guess the question, and actually, this will be my question, which doesn't get into -- I hope doesn't get into informant's privilege, because you're treading pretty close to the line.

MR. SCHULTE: Okay.

JUDGE TIMLIN: Why did you -- if 30 to 40 workers left in August, why did you only seek back wages for 4?

THE WITNESS: Those other workers had met their 3/4 guarantee threshold, Your Honor.

JUDGE TIMLIN: Oh, through the time, because they had -- because of when they started versus when they ended, and these guys started in June?

THE WITNESS: That's correct, Your Honor.

JUDGE TIMLIN: Okay. Does that answer the question?

MR. SCHULTE: I don't think so. I don't think that's the reason for the difference.

BY MR. SCHULTE:

Q. Did the other workers out of the 30 or so that left, start on different dates than these workers?

A. I can't speak to that. I would have to look back at all the transcriptions.

Q. Okay. But if you go up the list here. So there were, essentially --

JUDGE TIMLIN: Could they have met the 3/4 threshold just based on the amount of money that they had already earned as opposed to when their start date was?

THE WITNESS: No. They would have to work a certain amount of hours as opposed to earning a certain amount of money.

JUDGE TIMLIN: Right. So we could -- but say -- okay. So say these other guys that left of the 30, the other, let's say, 26 guys who left, who you're not -- in August, who you're not looking for the 3/4 guarantee, and you're saying that you're not looking for it because they met the threshold, could they have earned that threshold because during the period of time that they were there they worked longer hours?

THE WITNESS: They could have -- it's a number of reasons why they could have -- there could be one of them, Your Honor.

JUDGE TIMLIN: Because they worked longer hours because they started on earlier dates than --

THE WITNESS: That's correct, Your Honor.

JUDGE TIMLIN: -- June. And, okay, I don't know if that helps you.

MR. SCHULTE: It might.

BY MR. SCHULTE:

Q. Could it also be that some of those workers were working on days when these workers weren't, but were present at Sun Valley?

A. I mean, it could be. I mean, there's vast amounts of reasons why that could be. That's just one of them.

Q. Okay. That may be enough. There were 19 workers that left in May. Were there other workers that were there at the time that did not leave?

A. I believe so. I believe so.

Q. H-2As and domestic?

A. Yes.

Q. Okay. And they were working under the same working conditions as the ones who left, right?

A. I would suppose. Yeah. They were there during the same time.

Q. Good enough. Do you know if Sam's Club sells beer?

A. No.

Q. Do you know if Agustin or Elia used any other wholesale clubs?

A. That's the one that they indicated that they used to purchase all the drinks from.

Q. Do you have reason to believe that they shopped at any others?

A. No, that's the information that they gave me.

Q. Okay. You don't know if they sell beer or you don't know -- you know that they don't?

A. I went by whatever information they provided me; Agustin Hernandez.

Q. No, no, no, I'm sorry. I'm going back a question.

A. Sorry.

Q. As far as Sam's Club selling beer, was the answer, no, you don't know one way or another, or you know that they affirmatively do not sell beer?

A. I don't know whether they sell beer or not.

MR. SCHULTE: Okay. Sorry. Thank you, Your Honor.

MR. GLICK: Your Honor, may I just ask a couple quick questions?

JUDGE TIMLIN: Go ahead.

REDIRECT EXAMINATION

BY MR. GLICK:

Q. Did Sun Valley maintain records of the reasons why workers did not work on a particular day?

A. The payroll nor the time record indicated why any particular worker did not work on any particular day. It was not reflective of that.

Q. And when you researched price information at Sam's Club for beverages, what Sam's Club location did you use?

MR. SCHULTE: Objection. His testimony was specifically that he never went to Sam's Club.

JUDGE TIMLIN: He did testify that he did some Internet research about Sam's Club.

MR. GLICK: That's correct, Your Honor.

MR. SCHULTE: Just to know that there's a location, but he specifically said he'd never been in a Sam's Club and is not a member, and was prevented from doing so.

JUDGE TIMLIN: I thought he testified that he looked at ads or something.

MR. SCHULTE: Okay. I'm sorry. He's probably the best person to --

JUDGE TIMLIN: Yeah. He's the best person to ask, so ask your question.

THE WITNESS: Yeah. I actually looked at -- I did a little bit of online research in regards to the pricing available at Sam's Club for items sold by Agustin Hernandez at Sun Valley to the workers. I looked at some of the soda, which is the Coke, the Sprite; I looked at the Gatorade, I looked at chips, I looked at soup -- I think Ramen noodle soup -- and I looked at -- I think that was it. I think. I don't think I looked at anything else.

BY MR. GLICK:

Q. When you consulted those prices, did you do anything to determine whether those prices were at a particular location?

A. I used the location that Agustin Hernandez indicated on his receipts. I took the phone number from the receipts, and I Googled it, and it came up as the Deptford, New Jersey location.

MR. GLICK: I have no further questions, Your Honor.

MR. SCHULTE: Just a couple.

JUDGE TIMLIN: Go ahead.

RECROSS EXAMINATION

BY MR. SCHULTE:

Q. Was that for delivery of those items, kind of a mail-order website?

A. No, it was the receipt from Sam's --

Q. No, no, I'm sorry. The online prices that you checked.

A. Yes.

Q. Was that a flyer kind of listing what the prices would be if you walked into the store or was that the price for members to kind of have something delivered to them?

A. I'm not -- it didn't indicate anything about delivery. It just indicated the price, the total --

Q. Could you purchase it on the website or was it just a list of prices?

A. Well, just a list of the item. I didn't have any --

Q. But if you click on the item, would it take you to a page where you could purchase it?

A. I don't remember. I don't --

Q. Generally, do stores have websites that just list the prices?

A. I would say so, yeah.

Q. You've seen store websites that do that? They just list their current in-store prices?

A. Yes.

MR. SCHULTE: Okay. Nothing else.

MR. GLICK: No further questions, Your Honor.

JUDGE TIMLIN: Okay. I just want to make sure that I understood you on this issue about when you were reviewing the payroll records. Was there or was there not information on the payroll records explaining reasons why any particular worker might not have worked on any particular day?

THE WITNESS: No, Your Honor.

JUDGE TIMLIN: There was no --

THE WITNESS: No reasons.

JUDGE TIMLIN: So they didn't have -- there were no notations on the payroll records saying, sick, or --

THE WITNESS: No, Your Honor. There was no indication.

JUDGE TIMLIN: Okay. They either -- all it reported was the hours worked.

THE WITNESS: That's correct, Your Honor.

JUDGE TIMLIN: Okay. Did that bring up anything for you guys?

MR. SCHULTE: Just a quick one. And that's based on their electronic hour tracking system that you talked about with the scanning barcodes?

MR. GLICK: Assumes facts not in evidence. The testimony was about payroll records produced, not a --

JUDGE TIMLIN: Well, if he knows.

RECROSS EXAMINATION (cont.)

MR. SCHULTE:

Q. Do you know how they gather the information for the hours worked for a day?

A. They use the hours tracking system with the scanner to track the workers' hours, if that's what you're asking.

Q. Okay. Exactly right. Did you ask them separately for a report on worker's time when they were sick?

A. No, I did not.

MR. SCHULTE: Okay. Nothing else.

MR. GLICK: Your Honor?

JUDGE TIMLIN: Go ahead.

REDIRECT EXAMINATION

BY MR. GLICK:

Q. Investigator Perez, did you ask Sun Valley Orchards for all time and payroll records for H-2A and domestic workers for the 2015 season?

A. That's correct.

MR. GLICK: No further questions.

RECROSS EXAMINATION

BY MR. SCHULTE:

Q. Did they provide you all the time and payroll records?

A. Based on my request.

Q. Is a description of when workers were sick a payroll record?

A. That's -- I'm not sure what the answer --

Q. Is it possible that -- but you never specifically asked for that.

A. No, I asked for all time and payroll records in regards to the workers, H-2A and domestic.

Q. But you're not sure if that would include the sick excuse or not.

A. No.

MR. SCHULTE: Okay.

MR. GLICK: No further questions, Your Honor.

JUDGE TIMLIN: Okay. Mr. Perez, I think we're done with you.

MR. PEREZ: Thank you, Your Honor.

JUDGE TIMLIN: All right. Let's go off the record.

(Whereupon, at 6:48 p.m., the hearing in the above-entitled matter was adjourned, to be reconvened on the following day, July 21, 2017.)

PROCEEDINGS

(9:37 a.m.)

JUDGE TIMLIN: I want to address the one issue that -- the one question that Mr. Schulte had wanted to ask Mr. Perez, and the Government had raised the issue of, objected to the question on the grounds of informant privilege and law enforcement investigatory privilege, and I wanted to do a little bit of research, which I've done. And basically it comes down to the privileges are not completely -- you know, there is a balancing test. The way the law works is there's a balancing test and you have to kind of balance the public interest in nondisclosure against the need of a particular litigant for access to the privileged information. And at this point I'm finding that the balancing test weighs more in the favor of the public interest against the disclosure. So I'm not going to allow you to ask the question.

MR. SCHULTE: Okay. So just on the limited issue of whether it was --

JUDGE TIMLIN: What was, what was the --

MR. SCHULTE: -- random or complaint driven.

JUDGE TIMLIN: -- impetus for starting the investigation in 2015.

MR. SCHULTE: And just so that we're clear, that's not the informant privilege because it's not -- we're not looking for who was the informer.

JUDGE TIMLIN: Right. Well, they're arguing both that it was a law enforcement investigatory privilege and a government informant privilege in that --

MR. SCHULTE: Okay. Just --

JUDGE TIMLIN: That was my understanding, right?

MR. GLICK: That's correct, Your Honor.

MR. SCHULTE: And just so that we're clear, kind of the basis for the decision is both privileges or just the one?

JUDGE TIMLIN: I'm fine -- both. There's a balancing test for both privileges, and I'm finding in both interests, that in both situations the balance lies more with the Government's need --

MR. SCHULTE: Okay. And just --

JUDGE TIMLIN: -- to protect the information.

MR. SCHULTE: Yeah, I understand. I'm not -- I don't expect you to change your mind.

JUDGE TIMLIN: Yeah. No, I understand.

MR. SCHULTE: I just want it understood that -- so that question goes to the informant's privilege, too.

JUDGE TIMLIN: Right? Both. You were raising both?

MR. GLICK: That's correct, Your Honor.

JUDGE TIMLIN: Right.

MR. SCHULTE: The concern is that there's some potential for retaliation against --

JUDGE TIMLIN: You know, I don't say it's not a potential for retaliation, and it's not just a potential for retaliation again by your client. It's more of the overall chilling effect type of potential that other individuals, that other participants in the H-2A program, that other agencies that are enforcing the H-2A program would find that there's a chilling -- that disclosing this information would have an overall chilling effect.

MR. SCHULTE: Okay. And again, we weren't looking necessarily -- I mean, if you'd allowed it, we would have tried to, but that question itself doesn't go to the identity of anybody. So it's -- how could someone be chilled without being identified?

JUDGE TIMLIN: It's -- go ahead.

MR. GLICK: Your Honor, I mean, and Your Honor has correctly characterized the issue as a general one of the ability of people of organizations to speak up in the instances in which they do make complaints is necessary to protect as a general matter, and if it came to light that any particular individual, that a complaint was in fact made, that strikes at the core of the Government's interest in protecting the ability of complainants.

JUDGE TIMLIN: Well, not just complainants, but any -- because it's not just an informant's privilege issue. There's a whole issue about this law enforcement investigatory privilege, too. And so I think that's also where the Government has certain interests in, you know, encouraging citizens to give the Government information and allow them to conduct their investigations.

MR. GLICK: Your Honor, I may?

JUDGE TIMLIN: Yes, go ahead.

MR. GLICK: There's also an additional point. There's a new relevance that has been shown it is a privilege, and then I believe that would be an additional basis if Your Honor wishes for this finding.

JUDGE TIMLIN: Well, I mean that's basically why when I weighed the balance, I didn't -- I felt that your need for the information did not outweigh the Government's need to protect the information. That was ultimately my decision.

MR. SCHULTE: Okay.

JUDGE TIMLIN: Okay. Everybody good on that one?

All right. So at the end of yesterday, we were finished -- I think we were finished with Mr. Perez's testimony. So it's still the Government's case. So where are we guys?

MR. GLICK: And we wanted to address the remaining exhibits that the Administrator has put forth.

JUDGE TIMLIN: Okay.

MR. GLICK: And go through the exhibits that we would move to admit at this time.

JUDGE TIMLIN: Okay.

MR. GLICK: And so PX-3 through PX-14 are excerpts of the depositions of workers that were taken pursuant to this Court's order in April to preserve their testimony. And the parties have stipulated in paragraph 42, the parties joint stipulations, that these -- the stipulation is:

> "In the accordance with 29 C.F.R. Section 18.55(a), the parties stipulate the true and accurate transcripts or videos of the depositions or portions thereof may be used at the hearing to the extent that doing so would be admissible under the applicable rules of evidence as if the declarant were present in testifying at the hearing."

Now the excerpts the Administrator has put forth in PX-3 through PX-14 are true and accurate copies of the excerpts of the depositions and corresponding video clips.

JUDGE TIMLIN: Okay. So, Mr. Schulte, any objection to the Plaintiff's Exhibits 3 through 14?

MR. SCHULTE: Yes, Your Honor, and the same would, should apply to all of them. They're all, these are the remote de bene esse depositions that you're familiar with that were taken a couple months ago.

JUDGE TIMLIN: Right.

MR. SCHULTE: The -- if he's going to interrupt, I'll just wait.

JUDGE TIMLIN: Okay.

MR. SCHULTE: I think you can go. Are you sure?

JUDGE TIMLIN: No, go ahead.

MR. SCHULTE: You sure?

MR. GLICK: Yes.

MR. SCHULTE: Okay. It's hearsay. I mean, it's testimony out of court, offered for the truth submitted therein, and I don't believe that the witnesses' unavailability has been established in any way. We spoke about this briefly at the prehearing conference, I guess it's a couple of weeks ago now, that the Solicitor was going to introduce some information or at least make some representation or some explanation for why these witnesses were not available to testify at trial, and I've not heard anything about that.

MR. GLICK: Your Honor, I can represent that all six witnesses, at the most recent --

JUDGE TIMLIN: Wait, there's -- why do I have -- you said 3 through 14 -- 1, 2, 3, 4, 5, 6, 7, 8, 9, 10, 11 -- that's 12, not 6. Am I missing something?

MR. SCHULTE: It's the transcript and the video are separate exhibits.

JUDGE TIMLIN: Oh.

MR. SCHULTE: Thank you.

JUDGE TIMLIN: Okay. So maybe that's part of my problem is maybe I need to know. So, 3 is a deposition of Carlos -- let's go through them so I know who they all are -- Carlos Cervantes, because -- Ramirez.

MR. GLICK: Yes, Your Honor. And there is, I believe an exhibit list as a cover page at the beginning of Binder 1, if that's helpful.

JUDGE TIMLIN: And then there's a -- wait. There's a 3-1. Are you also moving that into evidence?

MR. GLICK: That's correct, Your Honor. An exhibit to that deposition.

JUDGE TIMLIN: And then 4 is the video?

MR. GLICK: That's correct.

JUDGE TIMLIN: Cervantes Ramirez. Okay.

And then we have, is it, Mr. Elizondo Soto. No, right he did not -- he was not one of the ones who testified. So, 5 is the deposition of Mr. Elizondo Soto. And you're also moving in 5-1?

MR. GLICK: That's correct, Your Honor.

JUDGE TIMLIN: And 6 is his video?

MR. GLICK: Yes, Your Honor.

JUDGE TIMLIN: Okay. 7 is the deposition of Mr. Silva Lopez, and again we have a 7-1 that you're moving in?

MR. GLICK: Yes.

JUDGE TIMLIN: And then 8's the video?

MR. GLICK: Yes, Your Honor.

JUDGE TIMLIN: 9 is Mr. Cinta Tegoma?

MR. GLICK: Yes.

JUDGE TIMLIN: You might -- I don't know if you have an extra copy, but you might want to provide a copy of this list to the court reporter so he can get all the names spelled correctly.

And there's also a 9-1?

MR. GLICK: That's correct. I don't know if we have another copy at this moment. We can certainly provide it to the court reporter.

JUDGE TIMLIN: Thank you.

And then 10 is actually Mr. Cinta Tegoma's video. 11 is Mr. Garcia Dominguez. And then are you also moving in 11-1?

MR. GLICK: Yes, Your Honor.

JUDGE TIMLIN: What was it, the next exhibit to that? And 12 is his video.

And 13 is Dario Morales Acosta's deposition. There's a 13-1, which is an exhibit to that deposition.

And then 14 would be the video for Mr. Morales Acosta.

MR. GLICK: That's correct, Your Honor.

JUDGE TIMLIN: Okay. And so you're moving all of those in. And there's an argument that unavailability has not been established. So --

MR. GLICK: So two points, Your Honor. First, I can represent that the most recent information we have, which is from late June and early July is that all six witnesses as of those dates planned to be in Mexico throughout the entire schedule of the trial, July 18th through 21st. And under 29 C.F.R. 18.55(a)(6)(2), "A witness is unavailable either if more than 500 miles from the place of the hearing or is outside of the United States."

And second, the unavailability point is even only an issue over if the testimony is being introduced over an objection. And there's even a stipulation in that all parties have signed that these depositions can come in.

MR. SCHULTE: If they meet the rules.

MR. GLICK: And the rule is that if there's no objection, the hearsay issue goes away because it is admissible as if the deponent were present and testifying under 18.55(a)(1), but back to the unavailability point, that there's two independent bases for admitting these depositions in their entirety, as well as the corresponding videos and exhibits.

JUDGE TIMLIN: Do you want to respond? Because the rules, it seems -- I mean --

MR. SCHULTE: Were they unavailable this week to testify remotely?

JUDGE TIMLIN: Well the --

MR. SCHULTE: We had a number of witnesses that testified that way.

JUDGE TIMLIN: It doesn't seem to matter under 18.55(6) that -- or (a)(6), sorry -- 18.55(a)(6), when I'm reading it:

"Unavailable witness. A party may use for any purpose a deposition of a witness, whether or not a party, if the Judge finds that the witness is more than 100 miles from the place of hearing or is outside the United States, unless it appears that the witness's absence was cleared by party offering the deposition."

So unless you can show that they, you know, that the Government put these guys outside the boundaries of the United States --

MR. SCHULTE: Yeah.

JUDGE TIMLIN: -- it doesn't seem like -- it seems like if they're out of the United States then their deposition can come in, whether or not they, you know, could have --

MR. SCHULTE: I don't think the Department of Labor put them outside the United States. The Homeland Security certainly did, but I understand your point. It's not necessarily that they were unavailable to have been in Cherry Hill for the week, but we had a number of witnesses who are in Mexico and perfectly able to testify in front of Your Honor. I'm not sure why these couldn't.

JUDGE TIMLIN: I'm not sure why they couldn't have either, but I don't know that it matters the way the rule's written, unfortunately. I mean, I -- and, you know, and I told everybody and it seems like they did make some effort to get hold of a couple people to testify from Mexico, because I told everybody that I much preferred it to have some, do some kind of live testimony, which we did with a couple gentlemen.

But the rule, itself doesn't require proof that they were unavailable to testify by video deposition. And it only requires establishing that they weren't in the United States.

MR. SCHULTE: And they meet that clearly. So it essentially goes to the weight or credibility. And, you know, with all of the concerns about CDM's fingerprints all over it, and all the issues that we talked about before, I mean that's, but that's for you to determine.

JUDGE TIMLIN: Right. Okay.

MR. GLICK: Your Honor, I object to the characterization about the bias issues. Mr. Schulte had a full and fair opportunity to cross-examine these witnesses including any statements, including, you know, the sense of cross-examination about conversations that the witnesses had, you know, including the counsel and others, and there's been no showing. And I think there could be no showing of any wrong doing or bias.

JUDGE TIMLIN: All right. So with the understanding the objection, that having read the rule, I'm going to admit the depositions, the exhibits to the depositions, and the video excerpts from the depositions. So they're all -- so everything between Plaintiff's Exhibits 3 and 14 are admitted.

(Whereupon, the documents referred to and previously marked for identification as Plaintiff's Exhibits 3 through 14 were received into evidence.)

MR. SCHULTE: It may be getting ahead of ourselves, but when Respondent puts in its exhibits, I'm assuming the ruling would be the same for any excerpts that we had?

JUDGE TIMLIN: Absolutely, yes.

MR. SCHULTE: And the Counsel wouldn't object to that?

MR. GLICK: Well, as to the general admissibility, that's true. We've made specific objections to certain passages including on relevance grounds but as a, you know, which is a separate issue from the 18.55 --

JUDGE TIMLIN: Objections that were made during the depositions?

MR. GLICK: Yes, Your Honor.

MR. SCHULTE: And the same for ours.

JUDGE TIMLIN: Yeah.

MR. SCHULTE: But I mean that's a given.

JUDGE TIMLIN: Yes, right. That's a given. Okay.

MR. GLICK: And, Your Honor, the next group of exhibits that we move to admit are PX-15 through PX-16-1.

So PX-15 is the excerpts of the deposition transcript of Mr. Russell Marino, Jr. PX-16 is excerpts of the deposition transcript of Mr. Joseph Marino, also a 30(b)(6) witness. And then are three attached exhibits to those depositions, first PX-15-1, second, PX-15-2, which are both exhibits to Mr. Russell Marino, Jr., deposition; and finally PX-16-1, an exhibit to Mr. Joseph Marino's deposition. And these deposition transcripts are admissible as statements, as the party admission statements of a party opponent under Federal Rule of Evidence 801(d)(2)(D) offered against a party.

JUDGE TIMLIN: Any objection?

MR. SCHULTE: I'm not sure that they're all admissions. I mean, both witnesses will be testifying today, so if they have questions for them, I think they can just ask them now while you're here.

JUDGE TIMLIN: I guess I'm curious as to since they're both going to be here and available for cross-examination, why you are admitting their deposition for testimony?

MR. GLICK: There are, this is of course somewhat of a limited time here. We fully intend to examine them, to cross-examine them, but there are -- but the rules of evidence establish that their statements are admissible without regard to their, you know, presence at the trial.

JUDGE TIMLIN: Give me the rule again on party admissions.

MR. GLICK: Federal Rule of Evidence 801(d)(2)(D).

JUDGE TIMLIN: Okay. I think, I think, Mr. Schulte, even though -- I think, first of all, I don't know how much attention I'm going to pay to the depositions if I have the witnesses in front of me and they're cross-examined. But I do think that they do -- the whole statement counts as an admission, as an admission of a party opponent whether, you know, I don't think the rule was intended for us to go line by the line on these depositions.

MR. SCHULTE: No. For what it's worth, for some of the exhibits to the depositions, I'm not sure that those are necessarily representations by the party.

JUDGE TIMLIN: So what are these exhibits. Let's take them in turn. 15-1, Notification of Worker Departures. Is that something that you're objecting to?

MR. SCHULTE: Yes.

JUDGE TIMLIN: And your grounds?

MR. SCHULTE: That it does not fit within the hearsay exception that they've offered for its admission, or within the Rule of Evidence offered for the admission of the other exhibits. It's not an admission by a party.

MR. SCHULTE: So Your Honor --

JUDGE TIMLIN: Go ahead, Mr. Glick.

MR. GLICK: -- PX-15-1 is an excerpt of an exhibit that was admitted yesterday over similar hearsay objection.

And I'm looking for -- I believe it was PX-39.

JUDGE TIMLIN: This -- it's the same thing as PX-39?

MR. SCHULTE: It's a smaller. It's only two pages out of what was already admitted as 39.

JUDGE TIMLIN: So it's a portion of 39. So --

MR. SCHULTE: So it's also redundant, as a further objection.

JUDGE TIMLIN: Right. Why do we need it, if we've already --

MR. GLICK: Well, I think it's helpful just --

JUDGE TIMLIN: -- got a more complete version?

MR. GLICK: It sort of goes to completeness, that it ties together the deposition testimony and the exhibit that was referenced. It facilitates the Court's review of the relevant passages of the deposition.

MR. SCHULTE: It's not a statement by Sun Valley, either.

MR. GLICK: Well, that --

MR. SCHULTE: But their admissions by agents? Is that now included?

MR. GLICK: Well, let me read from Rule of Evidence 801(d)(2)(D).

"Admission by a party opponent is defined as a statement that is not hearsay." And then the rule continues, "If the statement is offered against a party and is (D) a statement by the party's agent or servant concerning the matter within the scope of the Agency or employment made during the existence of the relationship."

And within the parties' Joint Exhibits, there is a contract between this entity, National Agricultural Consultants, and Sun Valley Orchards. I don't have the page number in the actual -- it's JX-2, page 40, JX-2, page 41. And it's quite clear that there's an agency relationship, even if this is not considered a statement by Sun Valley itself, notwithstanding the fact that on its face it says, "To whom it may concern, Sun Valley Orchards, LLC is hereby notifying the United States Department of Labor," et cetera.

MR. SCHULTE: That's fine.

JUDGE TIMLIN: Okay.

MR. SCHULTE: It's already in there anyways, so it's --

JUDGE TIMLIN: Right. Plus I've already admitted it.

So what about this 15-2?

MR. SCHULTE: They're going to take the same position. It's the job order filed by the agent with the Government.

JUDGE TIMLIN: It's a job order?

MR. SCHULTE: Yeah.

JUDGE TIMLIN: All right, so we're --

MR. GLICK: Just for the record, it is a different document. It is a job order from 2016 that, for which there was a foundation laid during the deposition and --

JUDGE TIMLIN: Okay.

MR. SCHULTE: That, I mean the objection there is relevance, but that's up to you.

JUDGE TIMLIN: Right. Okay. I'm going to admit that.

(Whereupon, the documents referred to and previously marked for identification as Plaintiff's Exhibits 15 through 15-2 were received into evidence.)

JUDGE TIMLIN: Now let's look at -- now, if we're talking about Joseph Marino's deposition, what's the 16-1 to Joseph Marino's deposition?

MR. GLICK: 16-1 is insurance records for Sun Valley Orchard's vehicles, and it goes to establish ownership. It's not offered as new evidence.

JUDGE TIMLIN: So are you objecting to that?

MR. SCHULTE: Is this offered as an admission of a party?

JUDGE TIMLIN: It's just being offered to establish that they own the vehicles.

MR. GLICK: That's correct, Your Honor. It's not -- and therefore it's not hearsay.

MR. SCHULTE: It's offered for the truth of the matter. I'm not sure why it's not hearsay. It's prepared by apparently United Farm Family Insurance Company, you know, offering a substantive statement.

JUDGE TIMLIN: Are you denying that they own the vehicles?

MR. SCHULTE: No. I mean, that is what it is. You're right. Never mind. Take it, take if off.

JUDGE TIMLIN: All right. They're admitted. Okay, so 16 and 16-1 is admitted. Okay. So what else do we have?

(Whereupon, the documents referred to and previously marked for identification as Plaintiff's Exhibits 16 and 16-1 were received into evidence.)

MR. GLICK: Your Honor, PX-22 through 24 are Respondent's responses to various discovery requests propounded by the Administrator.

JUDGE TIMLIN: Okay. I'm confused, because I thought the PX-23 were the payroll excerpts, and that we already admitted that. And 24 were also payroll --

MR. SCHULTE: I'm sorry, I misspoke.

JUDGE TIMLIN: -- summary excerpts that we also admitted?

MR. SCHULTE: That is correct. I meant to refer to PX-20, 21 and 22.

JUDGE TIMLIN: Okay. And so tell me again what these are. These are Respondent's responses to admissions and interrogatories?

MR. SCHULTE: That's correct. One set of requests for admissions. Two sets of interrogatories.

JUDGE TIMLIN: Hang on a minute. So you're offering all three.

Any objections Mr. Schulte?

MR. SCHULTE: Parts of it. You see that they're referred to as joint responses. Those were produced at a time when there's still a pending matter related to Agustin Hernandez. I'm not sure that that's relevant to this, but that's -- again, that's the weight to which you would grant to it, as opposed to -- I mean, the statements are what they are. I mean, we've provided them to counsel as part of discovery.

JUDGE TIMLIN: Okay. And so you're considering that weight because some of it involves the --

MR. SCHULTE: It sort of is a representation by somebody who's not part of the litigation, who's, you know, not in the case. So it's, you know, his responses I don't -- I would argue do not bind Sun Valley. So you can tell from the questions kind of which ones are directed to him, and which ones to Sun Valley.

JUDGE TIMLIN: Right. Okay. With that understanding, I'm going to admit these documents.

(Whereupon, the documents referred to and previously marked for identification as Plaintiff's Exhibits 20, 21 and 22 were received into evidence.)

JUDGE TIMLIN: Okay. Go ahead Mr. Glick.

MR. GLICK: Those are the exhibits that we move at this time, but there could be something further depending on the foundation that's laid, you know, at the later time.

JUDGE TIMLIN: Got it. Okay. So then now that we've discussed that, what's next?

MR. GLICK: Right, so we don't have anything further at this time, Your Honor. Of course, we discussed plans to call an additional witness later on this afternoon, but I'm not ready to do that at this moment for reasons discussed yesterday. But we would remind the Court before proceedings continue about the sequestration order depending on your next witness today.

JUDGE TIMLIN: Right. The sequestration order's still in effect, so once we put a witness on the stand, then everybody who is a potential witness will have to leave except for the party representative.

Okay. So at this point, it's not that they're resting, but for convenience in the matters, it's now your turn. So --

MR. SCHULTE: Fair enough.

JUDGE TIMLIN: So, you have a -- oh, you wanted to reserve your opening, right?

MR. SCHULTE: If possible, Your Honor, yes.

JUDGE TIMLIN: So, let's, let's hear your opening.

MR. SCHULTE: I'll keep it brief.

JUDGE TIMLIN: Okay.

MR. SCHULTE: If we can even remember from, you know, days ago when Counsel was clean shaven, the opening statement was that promises were made to the workers and, you know, detailing, describing horrible conditions and mistreatment of the workers. You've now heard basically their entire case in chief or all their factual witnesses certainly. It's just not there.

This is a company who has been in business for many years. It's a family business. They are on their, I believe fourth generation working there now. They did their homework going into this. They did not participate in H-2A lightly. They took it serious, you know, hired the National Ag Consultants, this outside company to help them through this process, but it was their first year there.

The workers came. The workers worked. Some of them weren't up to the job as they described. This is hard work. This is physical work. There'll be more testimony about that And it's not for everyone. And so some of the workers, you know, weren't able to keep up and decided that it wasn't for them and went home.

There were other workers working in the exact same conditions, who did not. These workers weren't fired. It would make no sense to have fired them. They desperately needed these workers. That's why they were in the program in the first place, was to get essential workers.

So as a result of these workers leaving, it caused them significant losses and it put them on their heels for the rest of the season. These things tend to -- when it rains, it pours. That year, they also had excessive rain that led to a bacterial infection that essentially blighted their pepper crop. It meant that there just wouldn't be a harvest there.

So just compounding the injury to them, but it also meant that there just simply wasn't enough work for 120 workers. They went through, you know, in consulting with their H-2A agent knew that they had to meet the three-quarter guarantee that they made promises to these workers. They chose workers that had already met that. They looked through their records, and we'll talk about those records and kind of how they're kept, and chose workers only that had met that standard. So those were the workers that were let go in August.

As far as the housing, it had met its inspection at the beginning of the year. When you have 120, you know, 20-something young men living in a place, it tends to not be at Hilton-level conditions. They took steps to keep it clean. When these were pointed out by Mr. Perez, they resolved it immediately. And that's -- but no one has testified that that's why the workers left in April, nor that the conditions were any different for all the workers who stayed. So to the extent that there were housing issues, those were fixed immediately. The bedding issue we've talked about and we'll bring up again briefly.

On the meals, none of the workers asked to use the kitchen. There may have been some lack of clarity between Agustin and the workers as to the availability of the kitchen, but you'll hear testimony that they, the workers would have been accommodated, steps would have been taken. They could have cooked in shifts. They could have come through, prepared their meals if they wanted to. They would have had access to the entire kitchen, refrigerators and stoves. They just, they simply didn't ask. There was a kitchen available.

To the extent that they chose to pay for meals, they never paid Sun Valley for that. Sun Valley didn't make one penny on that. All of the money and all of the risk was borne by Agustin. He collected the money. If he was short, that was his risk. If he made money, he would put it back into the kitchen.

For drinks and for beer, same thing. That was his side business, just as if the workers were buying from a Shop Rite or Wawa, that's up to them. Nobody forced them to do this. There was plenty of water available. If they wanted something different, they're grown men and they can get something different. That's up to them, though. They did that with their free and clear cash after they got their paychecks.

And then the final issue that I believe that is under review here is the waiver forms -- well, the so-called waiver forms. These are standard forms that were provided by their agent, simply to report the reasons for workers terminated. They were never forced to sign these. There was no attempt to get any waiver. Frankly, there's nothing to have been waived. The first group of workers left voluntarily. That's how it was reported.

The latter group of workers were terminated after they met their three-quarter guarantee. There were no rights to have been waived there. The forms were simply provided. The workers chose what to fill out. And Sun Valley as of no point, you know, used those as a defense, you know, as the basis for an argument the workers left. The proof is already there that the workers left. So the idea that they were somehow coerced or threatened to giving up any rights, there were no rights, there was no threat, and there was no waiver.

But basically this is a penalty in search of a violation. If you look at the amount sought here, I mean, we're talking about high six figures, you know, $600,000 plus for potentially a misunderstanding. The workers didn't know if they quit. They didn't know if they were fired. They weren't sure what they could use, what they couldn't. They're throwing the book at this employer. They're treating them as worse than Global Horizons, or kind of the worst of the worst, basic slave condition H-2A employers. These penalties are much higher. They're looking for penalties that were specifically rejected in those cases as extreme. They're just -- they would have you believe that this employer's a monster, and you've heard, and you'll hear today that that's just absolutely not the case.

JUDGE TIMLIN: Thank you. Okay. Do you have a witness ready?

MR. SCHULTE: Lisa Justice, first witness, Your Honor.

JUDGE TIMLIN: Anyone else, except for your party representative out.

MR. MARINO: You're going to kick me out?

MR. SCHULTE: Yeah, I'm sorry. Russ has to go, but you can stay.

MR. MARINO: I can stay? Thank you.

Your Honor, could I please plug it in?

JUDGE TIMLIN: Yeah. Yeah.

MR. MARINO: Thank you.

JUDGE TIMLIN: Ms. Justice, if you could stand and raise your right hand for me.

MS. JUSTICE: Yeah.

Whereupon,

LISA JUSTICE,

A witness on behalf of the Respondent herein, having been first duly sworn, was examined and testified as follows:

JUDGE TIMLIN: Okay. Okay.

MR. SCHULTE: Okay.

JUDGE TIMLIN: Go ahead.

MR. SCHULTE: Thank Your Honor.

DIRECT EXAMINATION

BY MR SCHULTE:

Q. Good morning, Ms. Justice.

A. Good morning.

Q. Can you give us your name for the record, please?

A. Sure. Lisa Justice.

Q. And do you work at Sun Valley Orchards?

A. Yes.

Q. And what is your title there?

A. Payroll Manager.

Q. Okay. And as the payroll manager, what sorts of things do you do at the farm?

A. I just run the payroll weekly.
Q. Okay. And are you familiar with the payroll software then?
A. Yes.
Q. The reports that are created by that?
A. Yes.
Q. What is the, what are the payroll programs that are used? What kind of technology is used to generate --
A. We use a system called PET Tiger to keep -- it's all the recordkeeping that they do in the field, the jobs they do, the times, et cetera. And then from that system, we use Famous. We import that information into our Famous program and it generates their paychecks.
Q. Okay. And can you describe just briefly kind of how PET Tiger works in the field?
A. Sure. When we receive new employees, they all get an ID badge with a barcode. And Agustin has his iPad and he scans everybody in, in the field that they're working and the job that they're doing. And so it calculates the time that they start, and then as they change jobs through the day, he'll scan them to their next job and then out. He scans them out at the end of the day.
Q. Okay. And is there something in PET Tiger to track how much is picked or piece rates?
A. Yes. We input them manually based on the pack-outs for the day and/or from that particular field. So after that, they pick peppers for the day, or whatever. When they pack the lot, that particular field, may not be that day, maybe the next day, but once it's packed, they have a pack-out report, and they input those pieces or we put, input those pieces into the system. Then it generates, it distributes the pieces based on their time worked.

Q. Okay. If a worker doesn't scan in the morning, what would the PET Tiger show for the day?

A. Well, first it'll show an error. Sometimes, if they don't have a time in at all, or a time out at the end of day, if they don't have a -- if they for some reason, you know, it missed their card or it didn't read the card. And then we would go in and manually put it in to get rid of any possible errors.

Q. Okay. What about if they neither scanned in or out, they just were out for the whole day?

A. In that case, they wouldn't get, you know, they would come back and say, I didn't get paid for this job if they were missed. Because there's so many, it's hard to tell exactly, you know, if someone was missed.

Q. Okay. If they were sick or injured and didn't, they just didn't work for the day, it wasn't that they were missed, what would happen?

A. They just wouldn't get paid.

Q. Okay.
A. For that day.
Q. What would PET Tiger show for that day?
A. They wouldn't have an entry of any kind.
Q. Okay. Are you familiar with something called a Job Card Payroll Summary?
A. Yes.
Q. And which system prepares that?
A. PET Tiger.
Q. Okay. What information is used to create that report?
A. All of the timecards, the scanning ins and outs for the day.
Q. Okay. And then what happens? Do you generate the payroll from that, or do you use something else?
A. Yeah. I usually go through and make sure there's no errors. Well, they have to be fixed daily. And then that gets exported into the Famous software, and then we generate the checks from there.
Q. Okay. And is there -- what's the name of the report that's created by the Famous software?
A. There's multiple ones. There's an unpaid detail that will give you everything that's unpaid. So once it gets into Famous, I'll run that. I've learned to keep a record of that just as a backup showing my totals all match. I look, you know, and I check the number of employees and the total dollars, and make sure it transfers in correctly and everybody's there. And then I just run a calculation and then run their checks.

Q. Okay. Is there something called a payroll run inquiry, or check view?

A. Yes. That is after the checks are printed, there's an inquiry button on the display. And that just kind of gives you a breakdown of all the checks that were run in that pay run and gives the employees their, you know, name and their ID number and the amount that they earned.

Q. Okay. Going back, we'd talked about the piece rate.

A. Yes.

Q. If a worker doesn't pick a, picks -- let me rephrase. How is that calculated?

A. It's based on the pack-out that we input. So if an employee works two hours in the field picking peppers and the system distributes him 30 pieces, he gets paid that 30 pieces plus the rate for that job.

Q. Okay. So is it on top of the hourly rate, or is it instead of for some reason?

A. That's in spite of the hourly rate. If they don't make their hourly rate for that particular job, the system automatically calculates the difference and pays them so that they always make their hourly rate.

Q. Okay. So on the payroll run inquiry, there's a column for other wages.
A. Yes.
Q. Is that where that would be captured?
A. Yes.
Q. So that would show the pay up to reach the $11.29?
A. Correct.
Q. Okay. And the PET Tiger System, when did you start using that at Sun Valley?
A. In 2015. That was our first year.
Q. Okay. At the beginning of the season?
A. Yes.
Q. Okay. So before any of the workers started, it was in place ready for them?
A. Yeah, we started all around the same time.
Q. Okay. And have you used Famous before or was that also new?
A. I've used it for other things. Not for payroll. It was the first time we had used the payroll module for that.
Q. Okay. We'll cover the payroll summary in a second.
Do you send any material as part of the payroll to the bank?
A. I do. I send a check register with all of the employees getting paid that week and then they -- so this way they know the checks that are coming in so they can prepare themselves. They start getting the envelopes ready.

Q. Okay. What do they do with the envelopes? Do you know?

A. I know Agustin goes to the bank with their checks, and they cash out each one.

Q. Okay. And are the envelopes ready when he gets there?

A. I think so, but they go item by item. They go, he hands them a check and then they have to physically cash it out, but the envelopes are ready.

Q. Okay.

A. So if somebody's check isn't there, they put it back in the bank.

Q. Okay. Do you handle deductions from pay? Is that part of what's handled in Famous?

A. What kind of deductions?

Q. Taxes, Social Security, things like that?

A. Yeah, it all generates automatically.

Q. Okay. Are there, do you know what deductions were taken from worker's pay in their paychecks in 2015?

A. Well, for H-2A workers, none. They're not required to have anything taken out. And then just based on dependents and things like that, the computer generates the taxes automatically.

Q. Okay. But other than amounts that are paid to the government, were there any amounts that were deducted and kept by Sun Valley?

A. No.

Q. Okay.

MR. SCHULTE: If I can approach, Your Honor? I only have the one copy of this, so --

JUDGE TIMLIN: Sure.

MR. GLICK: Mr. Schulte, may I ask what document?

JUDGE TIMLIN: What are you --

MR. SCHULTE: It's going to be PX-24 in Binder 7.

JUDGE TIMLIN: Then why isn't the Binder up there then?

MR. SCHULTE: Oh, even better.

JUDGE TIMLIN: Right. Is Binder 7 up there?

MR. GLICK: I would imagine so.

MR. SCHULTE: I forgot that those were, those were still hand marked.

THE WITNESS: So this PX-1 --

JUDGE TIMLIN: Yeah.

MR. SCHULTE: The binders are. It's Binder 7.

JUDGE TIMLIN: And you're looking for PX-24.

THE WITNESS: PX-24. Okay.

JUDGE TIMLIN: Take your time.

BY MR. SCHULTE:

Q. Okay. Do you recognize that report?

A. Yes.
Q. Did you prepare that report?
A. Yes.
Q. Can you explain to me the difference between the total time column and then the REG column next to it?
A. Okay. The total time would be the total hours that they worked that day. And the regular time should always be the same. And if we had overtime, you know, the regular time would be 40 hours. The overtime would be over that. But we don't have overtime so that's not factor. But the total time and the regular time should always be the same. It's just their time for the day.
Q. Were there any times in 2015 where they weren't the same?
A. Yeah, there was a glitch in the system. For some reason it wouldn't -- I don't know why it didn't distribute them both in the same, you know, same amounts. But they should always be the same. And that's since been fixed.
Q. Okay. And what was the -- can you tell us more about the nature of the glitch in 2015?
A. I don't really know what the basis was. All I just remember seeing some reports where the total time would be different from the regular time. On this particular one, it's all the same it appears. But they should always be the same.
Q. Can you jump down to page 929?

A. 929. Okay. I didn't go that far. Okay.
Q. Look at Mr. Balthazar.
A. Yes.
Q. Look at the May 3, 2015. So it shows no total time but 12 hours and 25, or 12.25 hours regular time.
A. Right.
Q. Is that one of the glitches you talked about?
A. Yes.
Q. If you look at the line above that, it shows two hours total time, and 12 hours regular.
A. Right.
Q. Is that the same issue?
A. Yes.
Q. Okay. So do you know what had happened or kind of what the actual number of hours worked would have been?
A. It should have been the 75. I would think it would be the most of two. Because if you look across, on Sunday he has no total time, but he had regular time and he did earn wages for that day. So it --
Q. Okay. Was there ever a time where the entry for the total time category was more than the regular time?
A. I don't remember. Not that I -- I'd have to look. I don't remember, no.
Q. But generally the issue was the regular time exceeded the total?

A. Yeah. I believe.
Q. Okay. And then since then you fixed that so that the zero line --
A. Yeah, that was all in some updates that we had.
MR. GLICK: Objection, repeat the question with less leading.
MR. SCHULTE: We're just trying move over it.
JUDGE TIMLIN: Yeah.
MR. SCHULTE: I'm sorry.
JUDGE TIMLIN: Be a little less leading.
MR. SCHULTE: Fair enough.
BY MR. SCHULTE:
Q. Have you looked at any records as part of the trial preparation for this for workers who left in August for whom the Government is claiming three-quarter guarantee?
A. Yes.
Q. Okay. Do you know how many workers that is?
A. In total?
Q. Yeah, or roughly, if you know.
A. Originally there was like 20-something.
MR. SCHULTE: Okay. That was it, Your Honor. We just wanted to explain those columns, those initially that had come up.
JUDGE TIMLIN: Okay. So the question you asked about the three-quarter guarantee of those employees, you didn't want her to answer that?

MR. SCHULTE: Actually, I do. Thank Your Honor. I appreciate that.

BY MR. SCHULTE:

Q. Sorry. Switching binders. Okay, if we go to now Respondent's exhibits, RX-4. And for this one we don't have a fourth set, so I'll just, I'll bring it up to you.

A. Okay.

Q. Do you recognize that document?

A. Yes.

Q. And how do you recognize it?

A. It's one that I ran to show the hours worked for -- it shows the year, but it breaks it down by month.

Q. Okay. And could you go to Binder 1, page 1? Should be under PX-1. It'll be just behind that first tab.

A. Okay.

Q. The table there. In the first exhibit I showed you, the report that you said that you had run. What information did you use to prepare that record?

A. It's a detailed report, and you can run it by employee and pay dates. And I think if there's -- and then it generates, this particular report generates their hours for the month and their total pay.

Q. And those are broken down in a month-to-month basis?

A. Yes.

Q. So it's a summary for their work for the season?
A. Correct.
MR. GLICK: Yeah, kind of the same objection regarding leading.
JUDGE TIMLIN: What -- I didn't hear any of that because first off, he hasn't offered it, and --
MR. GLICK: I apologize. I have, I meant to object to the leading nature of some of the questions.
JUDGE TIMLIN: Got it. Okay. Again --
MR. SCHULTE: Sure.
JUDGE TIMLIN: -- little less leading.
MR. SCHULTE: I'll keep it open-ended.
JUDGE TIMLIN: Okay.
MR. SCHULTE: I'm sorry, I was just trying to --
JUDGE TIMLIN: That's okay.
MR. SCHULTE: We have a lot to get through.
BY MR. SCHULTE:
Q. So which records would have provided the data that generated that report?
A. All the payroll records that are through the season.
Q. Is that -- so that's a summary of all of the records?
A. Yes. It's a summary of all --
Q. I'm sorry. Go ahead.
A. -- of their hours and wages earned.
Q. Okay. And was that based on the PET Tiger system?

A. Yes, that's where it originates.

Q. Okay. Can you compare the numbers that you have for the total from the report that you ran with the numbers in the bottom four lines of PX, Exhibit PX-1 there?

A. Okay.

Q. Are those the same workers, some of the same workers?

A. Yes.

Q. Are there more workers on your report, or more workers on this document?

A. In binder, there's workers in the binder's report.

Q. No, I'm sorry. How many workers are on the report that you prepared?

A. Six.

Q. Okay.

JUDGE TIMLIN: Oh, because you started to kind of talk about the substance of the document, did you want to move it into evidence?

MR. SCHULTE: Sure. Yes, Your Honor. We'd move Exhibit PX-1 into evidence, and move it into the summary of voluminous record, just as we discussed yesterday.

JUDGE TIMLIN: Not, PX-1, but the Respondent's Exhibit 1.

MR. SCHULTE: RX-1, I'm sorry.

JUDGE TIMLIN: RX-1.

MR. SCHULTE: We're the R.

JUDGE TIMLIN: Okay. So any objection to Respondent's Exhibit 1?

MR. GLICK: I believe there's been a foundation laid for what the document itself, but as to the summary issue, they haven't identified the particular records. And also I haven't heard that the other requirements in Rule 1006 are met, including that there's no copy of those records available for inspection by the Court or parties. But no objection to continued questioning, you know, regarding this document, itself.

JUDGE TIMLIN: Okay. I'm going to admit it.

(Whereupon, the documents referred to and previously marked for identification as Respondent's Exhibit 1 were received into evidence.)

MR. SCHULTE: And do you need more on the voluminous records issue, or just admit it for whatever it says? It comes to the same thing. It's based on the same records that -- we can give you the same several thousand pages if you're interested.

JUDGE TIMLIN: Okay. I don't think that would hurt. But not -- it's admitted for the same, in the same way -- we're going to treat it in the same way that we treated the other, which I think was Plaintiff's Exhibit 1 and 2. They're the ones that, it's 201, 2006, it was it.

MR. SCHULTE: Yeah. And just to be clear, sorry. I referred to it, at first I referred to it as PX-1, which is definitely not that. It's RX-4.

JUDGE TIMLIN: Right. You're right.

MR. SCHULTE: I, that I understand, RX-4.

JUDGE TIMLIN: It's RX-4. Oh shoot. Okay.

MR. SCHULTE: That's, that's my mistake. I apologize for that.

JUDGE TIMLIN: Okay. That's okay.

MR. SCHULTE: The exhibits are starting to blur a little.

JUDGE TIMLIN: Right. Apparently for me, too. Okay. Go ahead Mr. Schulte.

MR. SCHULTE: Okay.

BY MR. SCHULTE:

Q. So in the loose page, in RX-4.

A. Yes.

Q. Is there a total in there?

A. Of hours?

Q. Correct.

A. Yes.

Q. Okay.

A. And it breaks it down monthly.

Q. Okay. And can you see on PX-1, is there a column for hours or H-R-S, W-R-K-D?

A. H-R-S, yes.

Q. Okay. Going -- and you said that you saw that these last four names from Mr. Luna Gonzales through Mr. Morales Acosta?

A. Yes.

Q. Are those, do those names appear on the report that you created?

A. Yes.

Q. And can you compare for Mr. Luna Gonzales the total on your report to the total on the hours worked column on PX-1?

A. On my report, it says 708.39. And on here, it says 515.27, .27.

Q. Okay. For Mr. Elizondo Soto, same thing?

A. My report says 715.26. And on here it says 471.

Q. And for, what's it say for Mr. Rayatappa (ph.)?

A. My report is 690.06 and on here is 475.

Q. Okay, and last one, Mr. Morales Acosta?

A. My report 486.34 and 352.23.

Q. Okay. Do you see a lot of payroll reports in the course of your work there?

A. Just certain ones.

Q. Okay.

A. I don't run everything. I just run what I use for my, you know, proving out my own payroll and stuff.

Q. Okay. Did the numbers of the people that are working in the same work week tend to be about the same or is there a wide variation between from one worker to another?

A. They're usually about the same depending on the crew, I guess. When they work, sometimes they work in different crews. So Crew 1 will do one thing and another crew will do another thing, and they'll have roughly the same hours. But overall, they're close because they pretty much work the same work day.

Q. Okay. Nothing further. Thank you.

JUDGE TIMLIN: Okay. Cross-examination?

MR. GLICK: Yes, Your Honor. May I first approach the Witness with a calculator so that I can continue --

JUDGE TIMLIN: Sure.

MR. GLICK: -- my examination from the table?

CROSS-EXAMINATION

BY MR GLICK:

Q. Good morning Ms. Justice.

A. Hi.

Q. I'll just going to hand you a calculator and --

A. Right, thank you.

Q. -- I'll just give you a few minutes to run some calculations.

A. Sure.

Q. So is it your testimony this morning that you prepared this loose document, which I'm going to call RX-4?

A. Yes.

Q. And does RX -- is it your testimony that RX-4 shows total hours worked by some of Sun Valley's employees?

A. Yes, that's what the program tells me.

Q. And that's the total hours worked?

A. I believe so.

Q. And RX-4 shows the total hours work month-by-month. Is that your testimony?

A. Yes.

Q. And does RX-4 also show the total wages for those workers in the 2015 season?

A. Yes.

Q. The total wages paid.

A. Yes.

MR. GLICK: Your Honor, may I use the easel again --

JUDGE TIMLIN: Yes.

MR. GLICK: -- as demonstrative. I'm going to turn the page.

JUDGE TIMLIN: Sure.

MR. GLICK: Thank you.

JUDGE TIMLIN: What are we going to -- what are you planning on doing with that at the end of the hearing? I mean, it's kind of demonstrative things?

MR. GLICK: Maybe I could address that question in just a moment and --

JUDGE TIMLIN: Yeah.

MR. GLICK: -- finish this?

JUDGE TIMLIN: I don't want to wreck your concentration. So we'll -- but at some point we need to have that discussion.

MR. GLICK: Absolutely, Your Honor.

JUDGE TIMLIN: Okay.

BY MR. GLICK:

Q. Ms. Justice, so how many -- how much was Mr. Elizondo Soto paid in total in 2015?

A. $5,531.33.

Q. How many hours did Mr. Elizondo Soto work in 2015?

A. Seven, 15, 26.

Q. And what was the minimum hourly rate Sun Valley promised to pay its workers in 2015?

A. $11.29.

Q. And was that per hour or per piece?

A. Per hour.

Q. Now I'd like you to use the calculator to divide $5,531.33 by 715.26, and I'm just going to write the word hours here.

A. 7.73.

Q. Are you saying Sun Valley paid Mr. Elizondo Soto $7.73 per hour in 2015?

A. No.

MR. MARINO: No, no. This is, here's the report --

MR. HEYMAN-KANTOR: Objection, Your Honor. It's --

JUDGE TIMLIN: Okay. Again, Mr. Marino. We can't --

MR. MARINO: I'm sorry, Your Honor. It's just --

JUDGE TIMLIN: -- hear you. I know. I know. But let your counsel handle, handle these things.

MR. GLICK:

Q. Ma'am, Ms. Justice, what was the number, what is the number of hours that Mr. Elizondo Soto worked according to PX-1 in 2015?

A. 715.

Q. All right. I'm sorry, according to PX-1.

A. Oh, PX --

Q. I understand --

A. I'm sorry. Wrong one, 471.

Q. Now, could you please divide using the calculator first to clear it out and divide $5,531.33 by 471.

A. $11.74.

Q. Is it more likely that Sun Valley paid Mr. Elizondo Soto $11.74 per hour in 2015, or $7.73 in 2015?

A. The 471.

Q. I'm sorry, what was your answer?

A. The 471, would be a more realistic --

JUDGE TIMLIN: The 471 hours.

BY MR. GLICK:

Q. According to RX-4, again RX-4, how many hours did Mr. Elizondo Soto work in August 2015?

A. 715.26.

JUDGE TIMLIN: So that's, that's total hours. I think he wanted you to look at August.

A. Oh. Oh, I'm sorry, 40, 40.37.

Q. I'm going to write hours in August. Is that okay?

A. Yep.

Q. I'm going to add 2015 here. Now there should be a Binder 7 on the table there. Could you please turn to PX-25, page 978.

A. 978?

Q. 978, and let me know when you're there.

JUDGE TIMLIN: It's almost at the very end of the --

MR. SCHULTE: Your Honor, if it's helpful, just sort of as an officer of the Court, I just want to clarify that the exhibit was mistaken. I will withdraw it. You know, we can explain kind of what the disparity was, but the calculations were correct. I mean, we can go through week by week, but I will concede this issue to Counsel if it moves us along. The numbers were right. The numbers that we had double counted something and Ms. Justice can explain why that report was incorrect, but essentially the numbers in PX-1, I realize now were fine.

MR. GLICK: Your Honor, I object -- I appreciate there's a concession coming here, but as to the specific vouching that Mr. Schulte's doing, I would like the opportunity to finish examining Ms. Justice. And I promise to keep it brief. Counsel, of course, can't testify about the content for her.

MR. SCHULTE: No, but she will, and we can explain it. I understand he wants to take a victory lap and make us look bad, but we can, we can clear this up. I was wrong. As an officer of the Court, I didn't want to, I don't want to mislead you, and if he hadn't covered this, you know, we can clear this up now.

MR. GLICK: Your Honor, may I just ask I think a final round of question just to close the loop on this particular line?

JUDGE TIMLIN: But are you withdrawing the RX-4? Is that what you're doing?

MR. SCHULTE: Yes.

JUDGE TIMLIN: So if they're going to withdraw RX-4, why do we need to close the loop?

MR. GLICK: Well, I believe it still relevant to show the accuracy Sun Valley has put at issue on this case, the computations that Investigator Perez has performed. And the --

JUDGE TIMLIN: But right now they're conceding that. I mean and maybe I -- let me make sure I understand the concession. The concession is that for these August employees who are listed here in PX-1, on page 1 at the bottom, which would be Mr. Luna Gonzales, Mr. Elizondo Soto, Mr. Rayatappa, and Mr. Morales Acosta, that the calculations that the Government did in PX-1 are actually the correct calculations. That meant, RX-4, that there's an error in that and you're withdrawing it?

MR. SCHULTE: Precisely.

JUDGE TIMLIN: Okay. So given that, I don't think you need to do anything more with that exhibit and that math.

MR. GLICK: Understood, Your Honor.

JUDGE TIMLIN: Okay?

MR. GLICK: If you could give me one moment to --

JUDGE TIMLIN: Sure.

MR. GLICK: -- determine whether I have further questions for Ms. Justice, just because --

JUDGE TIMLIN: Now, and I know, and it's hard when you're in your examination to be pushed out of it. So take your time.

MR. GLICK: And I certainly will endeavor to keep it very short. I want to keep things moving this morning. And again, if it helps to clarify, Your Honor, there still -- Your Honor, I would like, I would like to finish examining.

JUDGE TIMLIN: Let him finish and then --

MR. SCHULTE: That's fine. I apologize.

JUDGE TIMLIN: -- there'll be redirect. Let him finish because it really is his witness right now.

MR. SCHULTE: Fair enough.

JUDGE TIMLIN: So go ahead.

BY MR. GLICK:

Q. So, Ms. Justice, I believe you were testifying about the PET Tiger System?

A. Yes.

Q. And that shows the hours -- or let me rephrase. The PET Tiger System keeps track of the number of hours workers work at Sun Valley on a daily basis?

A. Yes.

Q. And if a worker doesn't work for some reason, the PET Tiger System doesn't show anything at all about that worker for that day?

A. Correct.

Q. It doesn't show the reason that worker didn't work on that particular day?

A. No.

Q. Not on a daily basis?

A. I'm sorry?

Q. The PET Tiger doesn't keep track of the reasons why a worker doesn't work on a daily basis?

A. No.

Q. On any basis?

A. Mm-mm.

MR. GLICK: I have no further questions at this time.

JUDGE TIMLIN: Okay. Yeah, yeah, go ahead. Oh, wait. Do you still have a question? Yeah, sorry.

MR. GLICK: I do Your Honor. Sorry, Mr. Heyman-Kantor is helping me out.

BY MR. GLICK:

Q. Does the PET Tiger System keep track of the number of hours that a worker at Sun Valley is offered?

A. No.

Q. Does the Famous system keep track of the number of hours that a worker is offered?

A. No.

MR. GLICK: I have no further questions at this time.

JUDGE TIMLIN: Okay.

MR. SCHULTE: And this is brief.

REDIRECT EXAMINATION

BY MR. SCHULTE:

Q. Apart from those records, if there's an error, if somebody's coded in but not coded out, or coded out but not coded in, what do you do to figure out what happened?

A. I would call Agustin to find out if he really, you know, if he clocked in at this time, or what time he left just to make sure that the times are correct.

Q. Okay. Does Agustin generally know what the workers are doing?

A. Yes, usually. Since it was the first year, he was keeping some records manually just to -- because I was having questions. I was like, so how many guys worked here, or whatever, but because there were -- you know, it was new, so I wanted to make sure all my information in there was correct.

Q. Do you think he -- that if a worker was sick, would he know?

A. By memory, usually.

Q. Okay.

MR. SCHULTE: That's all. Thank you.

THE WITNESS: Okay.

JUDGE TIMLIN: Anything on redirect?

MR. GLICK: No, Your Honor.

JUDGE TIMLIN: Okay. I have a couple.

Now, Ms. Justice has, I don't necessarily know that the jargon out in the field, so when you were talking about the, I guess the piece, I guess it's the piece rate, you just talked about that's something that's input manually by the pack-out. I don't know you mean by "pack-out," so --

THE WITNESS: When after everything is picked, they bring it into the packing house. And they'll pack it. And if after they're packing the peppers or whatever, they'll have so many boxes. So they input into the system how many boxes of extra large or small, medium, whatever the sizes are, and they input that into the Famous system. And it generates a report that shows you how many piece, you know, it calculates it out to the same pieces by each size and then there's totals on there.

JUDGE TIMLIN: Okay. And are the boxes tracked by individual worker, by crew, by overall crop? How are they tracked?

THE WITNESS: They are tracked by lot. I don't run those reports so I'm not really -- they come in, they'll tag it when it comes out of the field to show what field it was in. That'll be the lot. And then because we'll have, you know, different crews, they may be both picking peppers, but one might be in Field A and one might be in Field B. So when they come in from the field, they mark it if it's Field A or Field B. And then when they pack it, they do the same thing. And then this way, when we run our reports, we know that everybody that worked in Field A picked, you know, they got this many boxes from that field that day, and that's how many pieces get distributed for those men and same with Field B.

JUDGE TIMLIN: So, say you have a given crew that's working in Field A on a given day.

THE WITNESS: Yeah.

JUDGE TIMLIN: And they're picking, let's say peppers.

THE WITNESS: Right.

JUDGE TIMLIN: And there's ten guys on the crew. I'm making up numbers because I don't know -- there's ten guys in the crew and they end up with 100 boxes of peppers. And they would just divide the 100 boxes of peppers by the ten guys?

THE WITNESS: Correct.

JUDGE TIMLIN: And they'd all get credit for ten boxes of brown peppers.

THE WITNESS: Yes. Yes.

JUDGE TIMLIN: Okay. Got it. Thanks. That was what I was trying to figure out. Yeah, because then you just have the system distributes that either of you were talking about, if they spend two hours picking peppers, the system distributes 30 pieces and so that's kind of the --

THE WITNESS: Right.

JUDGE TIMLIN: -- same thing. And now this is through the Famous System?

THE WITNESS: Through the PET Tiger System.

JUDGE TIMLIN: Oh, through the PET Tiger System?

THE WITNESS: Yes.

JUDGE TIMLIN: Okay. Did that -- okay. When we were looking at 24, which is in Binder 7, and you may not even need to look at for that, but at one point we were looking at page 929 and looking at what the employee balances are, and you pointed out -- and we noticed that there's a difference between the hours work in the REG Column, and you were saying, you explained that there was a glitch in the system, and what I just wanted to make sure is when Payroll was doing the payroll, what number were they using? Were they -- do you always use the REG time?

THE WITNESS: When I double check everything, I usually check the money. So whatever's in PET, I'll look at the total for that particular payroll. And then when it gets into Famous, I check to make sure that number is the same, so I know that they're making the correct wages.

JUDGE TIMLIN: So what you're -- so in terms of deciding which is the right number of hours, you're basically going to look at the money and see if it matches REG time or matches the other number?

THE WITNESS: Right, because there's so many employees, it's just easier to, you know, look at the total.

JUDGE TIMLIN: Okay. And how do you know that that number's right? That --

THE WITNESS: Good question.

JUDGE TIMLIN: I mean, like, because if there's a glitch in the system, if there's something wrong with the system --

THE WITNESS: Right. Well, what I did that year, I would go through every day and fix any errors that were -- because it would be highlighted in red, make sure the times were correct in there. And I kind of ball-parked every crew to make sure their start times and end times were the same.

JUDGE TIMLIN: Oh, right, because the system shows you start times and end times.

THE WITNESS: Correct.

JUDGE TIMLIN: So that's how you get their hours worked.

THE WITNESS: And then every little job in between. So I could search it by crew and usually the same crews work the same jobs and once in a while you get somebody that changes in the middle, but overall they all work the same job. And so I would eyeball it. I would just go through every day before I ran the payroll that week to make sure everybody's start times and end times were around the same. And if they weren't, I would call Agustin; did this guy really start later? Did he, you know, I would ask him and he would give me, you know, if there was a question, he'd answer it.

JUDGE TIMLIN: And I don't know if you know this, but so they scan into, their badges into Agustin's iPad.

THE WITNESS: Correct.

JUDGE TIMLIN: Do they scan out at lunch time and scan back in at the end of lunch time?

THE WITNESS: No. The system automatically deducts an hour for lunch.

JUDGE TIMLIN: So just scan in in the morning, and then at the end of the day, they scan out?

THE WITNESS: Correct.

JUDGE TIMLIN: Okay. All right. Did that bring up anything for anybody? Your witness first, so?

MR. GLICK: No thank, Your Honor.

JUDGE TIMLIN: Okay.

MR. SCHULTE: No, nothing for me, Your Honor.

JUDGE TIMLIN: Okay, great. Thank you, Ms. Justice for your time. Do you need time?

MR. SCHULTE: Yes, thanks. I'll go get Russell, Jr.

JUDGE TIMLIN: Right. Okay. And I think you are actually excused from the court. You don't have to hang around anymore.

MS. JUSTICE: Okay. Thank you.

(Witness excused.)

JUDGE TIMLIN: Okay. You know what, before we put him on the stand, because it's -- let's take an 11 minute break and come back at 11:00.

(Off the record at 10:48 a.m.)

(On the record at 11:01 a.m.)

JUDGE TIMLIN: Okay. Your next witness.

MR. SCHULTE: Russell Marino, Jr., Your Honor.

JUDGE TIMLIN: Okay. Come on up.

Whereupon,

RUSSELL MARINO, JR.,

A witness on behalf of the Respondent herein, having been first duly sworn, was examined and testified as follows:

JUDGE TIMLIN: Okay. Go ahead.

DIRECT EXAMINATION

BY MR. SCHULTE:

Q. Good morning.

A. Good morning.

Q. Can you give your name for the record?

A. Russell J. Marino, Jr.

Q. And are you associated with Sun Valley Orchards in anyway?

A. Yes, I'm owner/operations manager.

Q. Are you familiar with the day-to-day operations of the farm?

A. Yes.

Q. Do you have any role with the farm's participation in the H-2A program?

A. Yes.

Q. What's that?

A. Initially, I've done all research and everything, looked into to it, looked into the consulting firm who we have hired to help us along the way get all the paperwork and everything in order, and going through the rules, regulations. I go to the meetings. I bring a few of my workers with me to the meetings so they understand what's going on and, you know, what we're getting into.

Q. Okay. And who runs those meetings?
A. It varies. Usually it's a collective meeting. The Department of Labor runs it. For the most part, Department of Labor.
Q. Okay. You said that you talked to, that you'd done research before you participated. What did that involve?
A. Primarily, we went around to several growers collectively as a company, several growers that were participants in the H-2A program for several years, and just talked through a few things with them and they explained how it was one of the best decisions they had made. And we just started to go ahead and move forward with it.
Q. Okay. When did you first use it?
A. In 2015.
Q. Okay. Now you still have used it since then?
A. Ever since.
Q. Okay. Can you give us a description of the farm? You know, what are some of the crops you grow there, you know, how long?
A. Okay. We primarily farm fresh produce, which is very labor intensive: green bell peppers, asparagus, zucchini, pickles, cucumbers, eggplant and peaches as well. And everything we grow is fresh market. We pack as well.
Q. How long has your family been running the farm?
A. Currently we're on our fourth generation now at the farm.

Q. Okay. When did they start, the family; when was it?

A. '60s, '70s. I'm not even, I'm not exactly sure.

Q. How important is having farm workers there to the work that you do?

A. It's essential. Without them, we definitely could not do it without them. Again, it's very labor intensive.

Q. Okay. And how much do you interact with them?

A. I would like to think quite a bit. I'm definitely on their level on a day-to-day basis, throughout the day, every day. I couldn't imagine getting through my day without their help. That's, well, I could put it that way. I don't know the best way to put it. But I've always got, I always have six to maybe even upwards of a dozen guys helping me just to get through my day, every day.

Q. And how would you describe your management style, your relationship to them?

A. Well, I explain to them, because they often, out of respect, you know, boss man, Mr., sir, however they want to put it, and I always explain to them, there is no boss man here. There is no sir. We're all a team. We work collectively. And I would never ever ask them to do something I wouldn't do myself. Just to show them the respect and I get their respect in return.

Q. Okay. Do you speak Spanish?

A. Yes.

Q. Have you ever had any of the workers, you know, have trouble understanding you when you talk to them?

A. No. I mean, it's not the best Spanish. It's not perfect. It's not grammar. It is slang, but that's most of our help speaks in the slang form. But no, as long as I see the task at hand is, you know, performing how I kind of explain to them, then I think everybody understand what has to go on.

Q. Okay. Going to the beginning of the 2015 growing season, what was one of the -- what were some of the first crops that would come on line? What are the jobs --

A. Asparagus was definitely a first crop.

Q. Okay. When do you start harvesting that?

A. May.

Q. Okay.

A. End of April, May.

Q. And can you describe more about the harvest process?

A. Again, very labor intensive. You're in a bent over position, you know, throughout the whole process. Down on the ground just cutting the spears, individual spears and making little bunches, and there's a certain way you have to place them in the field so the group that comes behind can pick them up. They don't have to trip over the whole field. So it's hard work. There's no doubt.

Q. Do you do some of the work with them?

A. Yes, in the spring when we get new arrivals or whatever, guys that maybe require a little bit extra training or, you know, you just want to show them the most efficient way so they're not hurting themselves by doing it the hard way. You want to cite out of experience, learn that, you know, it's best to do it this way. Look, this is, see how the guys are doing it, and, you know, we work alongside with them. Yes, absolutely.

Q. Is there a learning curve involved?

A. Yes, yeah, I'd say, but with just about everything, I mean, everything that we do, it's somewhat unique, what we do and how we do it. So agricultural in general is, so.

Q. Do you think you're better at it now than when you first started on it?

A. With my experience, I would hope so.

Q. Okay. When we were talking about the beginning of the season, did you have any role in the housing inspection?

A. Yes. I wouldn't physically do the work myself, but we would have guys go in there; they would paint, clean, replenish any kind of trash cans, screens, doors, all that kind of stuff. And I would be in constant communication with Hipolito Lagares (ph.). He's an inspector for Department of Labor, I believe. He does all the pre-occ inspections. I give him the water samples and testing and all that stuff, and he -- now that we are involved in the H-2A program, I believe he has to take all the information, the pre-occ inspection that everything passed, the water passed, and everything has to go off to Chicago, I think now to start the whole process for the H-2A.

Q. Okay. Does he work for the state of New Jersey or for the federal government? Who's his employer?

A. I believe it's the state.

Q. Okay. And does he send it to the state or does he send to somewhere else?

A. I believe it goes to the state, as well as Chicago.

Q. Okay. What -- Chicago is?

A. There's some kind of headquarters out there. I'm not exactly sure what the name is on that.

Q. Okay. Is that part of the H-2A program?

A. Mm-hmm.

Q. Okay.

A. Mm-hmm.

Q. In 2015, did he approve the housing?

A. Yes.

Q. Did you do -- you mentioned water testing. Did you do that in 2015?

A. Yes.

Q. What was the result of the inspection?

A. Everything came back okay. There was no correction necessary, as usual. And things went on as were.

Q. Okay. Now going back to May of 2015, was there a point where -- how often do you talk to Agustin -- strike that.

So how often do you talk to Agustin?

A. Every day. Throughout the day, several times a day.

Q. Okay. What kind of things did he talk to you about?

A. Just placement of the crew. Here recently, I call him throughout the day just checking on the guys making sure everybody's okay in this heat. And that's, that's primarily -- my uncle, he kind of dictates where the guys are going to go and what they're going to pick and what direction they're going to, you know, move from commodity to commodity. And I just kind of oversee that. And also, if say I'm irrigating a specific farm and they get there and the water may be on, you know, they're always -- not always, but they might call me, hey, the water's on, could you, you know, shut the water off, or maybe I'll switch zones and things like that. So, yeah, we're always in communication of just the day-to-day happenings, I guess on the farm.

Q. Okay. Are you ever in the fields when workers are working?

A. All day. All day. Yeah.

Q. Do you have occasion to see if there is drinking water available to workers?

A. Yes. In fact, I often go get water from the water truck myself throughout the day. And if I'm not near the actual group of men, and say, I have a few guys working with me, I always have a cooler in the back of my Gator, and I'm always giving the guys cold water, make sure they have water, and I need water myself. So, yeah, always outside.

Q. Does Sun Valley provide bathrooms in the field?

A. Yes.

Q. All right. Did you during 2015?

A. Yes.

Q. The whole season?

A. Yes.

Q. Okay. Was there at time when Agustin came to you with any concerns from workers?

A. No. Again, I always ask him, you know, on behalf of the men, is everyone okay. Is everything -- and I know, I've had these conversations with him throughout the spring. Yeah, when we have new arrivals and they're back for the new year and everything, I always ask him, everybody's okay? Everybody's good with the food? Everybody's good? Yeah, yep, everybody's good. Do you have everything you need? Do you need anything else? More blankets, more mattresses, more mattress covers, anything you need, just you got to let me know. And, you know, I check with him all through that.

Q. Did he ever come to you and say workers wanted to talk to you?

A. No. No, not that I know of. Again, you know, I give them ample opportunities to, you know, I present them with that opportunity, that I'm here. I'm available. Just call me. I'm always a phone call away, if I'm that far away. Otherwise, I'm like a ways to me, across the field.

Q. And do you talk to the workers ever --

A. Yes.

Q. -- during the season?

A. Yep.

Q. And any of them raise any concerns with you?

A. No. And again, I eat lunch with the guys quite often. We have a farm in Maddington, called the Maddington Farm. It's about 12 to 15 miles away from the homestead, I guess. And rather than come all way and then go all the way back, I'll eat lunch with the guys. And same thing, I mean the comradery with the guys, I can ask them several times, is everybody good? And you got enough water? Oh yeah, lot of water. Good water. Yeah, we're happy. Okay, good. And I've yet to eat the same thing twice. And it's phenomenal.

Q. What kind of food do they have?

A. It's primarily Mexican food. And I think I'm starting to get used to the spices.

Q. What are some of the meals that you've had there lately?

A. I really haven't had any chicken and rice yet, because I know I've heard most camps are, you know, just the general consensus of how these guys might eat is chicken and rice, chicken and rice. Well, I haven't had chicken and rice yet. It's been some kind of pork or beef or just they're always mixing it up, always mixing it up. But again, I haven't had the same thing twice.

Q. What's a -- any breakfast that you've had there lately? What kinds of things would you have for that?

MR. GLICK: Your Honor, I object to the relevance of recent food.

JUDGE TIMLIN: Right. What timeframe are we talking about? Are we talking about 2017 or 2015?

BY MR. SCHULTE:

Q. We can talk about 2015, specifically.

A. Yeah. Yeah.

Q. Do you, do you remember --

A. Exactly the same.

Q. Okay.

A. 2015 was no different.

Q. Okay. If workers are away from the dorms, are there other places that they would ever buy food?

A. There are other places I would assume are available to them. I mean, sure, just like if you wanted to go to WAWA or something like that, but it's much more convenient for them to buy onsite as a convenience.

Q. Maybe I should clarify based on the -- in 2015, did anyone come to the farm to provide food there?

A. Yeah, we've had what they call food trucks come to the yard often. The guys will get tacos off the back of the truck. We've had other trucks come, but they sell boots or hats or whatever else, and there's never been any objection to any of that stuff, so.

Q. Okay. Did anyone ever approach you in 2015 to ask for a meeting?

A. Yes. The 19 guys that are in question, they did. They wanted to come talk after several attempts for them to form, they just, they finally just wanted to have a meeting and have a talk with me and wanted to me, I guess to hear exactly what they had to say.

Q. Okay. And do you remember when that was roughly?

A. I don't, I don't know the exact date. It was beginning of May, I believe. Midday. Again, I was in Maddington. So I came here for lunch that day and we had a brief meeting shortly thereafter I finished up grabbing a bite to eat, went and talked with the guys.

Q. Okay. And where did you meet with them?

A. At our camp.

Q. Okay. In the dining area? In the bedroom area?

A. It was actually a room when you come down there outside of the bedrooms. There was a few. There was some guys inside and I asked everyone to come out so nobody was like, well, I wasn't there, or I didn't hear what you had to say. So I had everyone come outside and we gathered outside. And Agustin and I, and then later on my brother showed up, sat down and talked with the guys.

Q. Okay. How many of the workers talked to you?

A. There was one guy doing most of the talking, but there might have been one or two, maybe even three guys who might have had a few things to say. But primarily it was one guy did most of the talking.

Q. What were the other workers doing while they were talking?

A. They were kind of with their, you know, their heads down, and I mean they were, I think they were listening and taking it all in. And when I would say something, the guy would kind of look at the group and he would say to them, you know, whatever I said, or he would ask them, well, what do you think about that? And what do you think about what he just said? And they were kind of, you know, mumble to the ground and never really spoke up. And he was just kind of, I don't want to say he would answer for them, but he did most of the talking.

Q. Okay. And when you spoke to them, would you speak in Spanish or English?

A. Spanish.

Q. Did Agustin translate for you at all during the meeting?

A. If there was something that I felt that may have been in question, that I couldn't -- because the Spanish I use from day-to-day is just that, it's for getting through my day, and for work purposes and I don't really all the time use like certain terminology. So if there was something that maybe I knew I wasn't clear on, I would Agustin, hey, could you explain this to them for me.

Q. Okay. Do you feel confident --

A. Or he'd ask them.

Q. I'm sorry. Do you feel confident that they understood what you're saying?

A. Yeah, and they were all shaking their head. And as I was speaking they're, you know, they would, when I would get done speaking, they would drag right away, like, in a manner that, yeah, they understood what I say, and they would kind of mumble amongst each other. So, I mean, seeing that I was getting a reaction from the guys, I would say that, you know, they understood me.

Q. Okay. And who spoke first at the meeting?

A. I believe maybe I might have asked Agustin to just kind of open up for me, like open up the general, kind of what we were about to talk about. And then I tried to do most of the talking after that.

Q. And what did he say?

A. And I think he was speaking, I mean, he was speaking in Spanish, and I kind of understood that he was explaining to them that, hey, listen guys, we're here and, yeah, we want to listen to what you have to say. But understand that we've given you ample time to pick up the work, to perform, to understand how to do your work, and we've been more than patient. And like he kind of went on through that stuff, and I just kind of reiterated the best that I could what he had said. And it just went on from there.

Q. What was your understanding of what the workers wanted to talk to you about at the meeting?

A. Well, for the most part, there was -- they just wanted me to understand that the work was hard, and they didn't think they could do it. And I got the feeling that it was more of a -- I even don't know what the word is -- like they felt that maybe they had let us down in some way that they couldn't perform their work, you know, and they said that they had just tried and tried. I even had one guy say that he -- he like chimed in, in the middle of this one guy talking. He said, listen, this work, plain and simple, this is for real men. This work is for real men, okay. And they just wanted to explain that they couldn't do the work. We give them -- we were more than patient and tried to work with them. We tried to work with them aside from the rest of the guys, you know, just took them aside and worked directly with them, side-by-side. And that, they just, they couldn't get it, which is no big deal. I mean, a guy could have been good for something else, some kind of warehouse working, which we didn't offer at that time.

Q. Do you offer that now?

A. We do now.

Q. And when you say offer, what do you mean by that?

A. In the contract. In 2015, it was just for field work, harvesting, field maintenance, things like that. There was nothing to do with the packing house or running the forklifts, or the warehousing and nothing, none of that work. Now we do it. We've seen how good the program has worked out so now we just encompassed everything, and we have H-2A guys for everything now.

Q. Okay. And do you know what happens if an employer uses H-2A workers outside the jobs that are listed in the contract?

A. Yeah, somehow, some way they get penalized. You know, if that job description does not include that specific job, yeah, I don't want to say it's illegal or anything like that, but yeah, there is ramifications for that for sure.

Q. Okay, so, but in --

A. Negative ramifications.

Q. Sorry. In 2015, what were the jobs that you could have H-2A workers do?

A. Harvesting. Primarily harvesting. Thinning peach trees, trimming peach trees. For the most part, field work. Field work. Yeah.

Q. If you remember, did the 2015 job order say that workers would be picking asparagus?

A. Yes.

Q. Did the workers at the meeting bring up other concerns to you beyond the work?

A. No, primarily it was about the work. They addressed the work.

Q. Okay. And what did you say in response?

A. I just explained to them that, you know, okay, okay, guys, we've tried to do what we can. I think we've exhausted all of our options here, and I'll have to start the process here, and being that I was new in the H-2A program, I had to see what the correct process was to, okay, and we're going to let these guys go, or we're going to send them on their way, however we had to do it. And because my first phone call was to Theresa.

Q. Okay, now, just that's getting ahead of that a little bit. Did the workers tell you that they wanted to leave?

A. Yes.

Q. What did they say?

A. They said that they just couldn't do the work, and that they wanted to go back home. It was, they said, that if the work was going to be like that all season, there'd be no way they would get through the year.

Q. Okay. Did you fire them?

A. No, absolutely not.

Q. Why not?

A. We desperately needed men, especially that time of the year. Our asparagus crop was coming into full swing. And you can literally sit and turn and watch it grow on a hot day, and we were catching the hot, real hot weather that specific spring. And 19 guys can do an awful lot of work. And I even explained to them, I said, listen, guys, you can go out there and do your best, and even if you cut a third of what the rest of the crew cuts, at least they have to cut a third less. If you guys leave, these guys, man, they've got a lot of work ahead of them. And no, I desperately needed them in my work. I felt that I had tried every -- we had tried everything we could on there. Tried to work with them, tried to accommodate whatever we could.

Q. Did you try to convince them to stay?

A. Yeah. And I think I asked them probably at least twice, maybe even three times during that little meeting if that was their final answer. And I just, I kind of didn't want to accept that, that these 19 guys were going to leave me. And I kind of knew what kind of situation I would be in, so I asked them again. Yeah, they were pretty firm in their decision.

Q. Do you remember how long they'd been working?
A. I don't even know if it could have been a week. A week, ten days at the most.
Q. Did Sun Valley pay for transportation to bring them to New Jersey?
A. Absolutely.
Q. And back?
A. We paid for their visas. Yes, paid -- and back? I believe so.
Q. About how much does it cost for the whole process, to apply for them and transport them?
A. Between the consulting firm, all the advertisements that we have to advertise in the newspapers, for any newspapers, their transportation up here, their visas, things like that, it's -- we figure it to be around $1,000 per man.
Q. Regardless of how long they're there?
A. Regardless of how long they're there.
MR. GLICK: Objection, leading.
JUDGE TIMLIN: Try to stay away from leading questions, please.
MR. SCHULTE: Okay.
BY MR. SCHULTE:
Q. After the workers left, did you take any steps to get additional workers?
A. Yes. Yeah, we got another 19 or 20 guys just as fast as possible. And that usually takes at least two week, two weeks a window, and they had to do all they could to get me the guys back in two weeks, their replacements.

Q. Did you have to pay the same kind of fees for those guys?

A. Yes. Yes.

Q. Did you lose any asparagus during the time when they were gone?

A. Yes. Once it gets -- there's a certain length, it's pretty much garbage. And again, you could sit there and watch it grow. So by the time that small crew that we were left with got over the fields, it was starting to stretch out and get away from us.

Q. You mentioned before that your first call was to Theresa. What did she tell you?

A. She just told me what the process would be. Here's the one, two, three. Well, this is what we have to do, and start by doing this and getting them to sign that and do this on that form. It seemed like a lot at the time. It was a little overwhelming, but we followed through and did everything to the letter. At least I thought we did.

Q. Did she tell you about the form?

A. Yes.

Q. What did she say?

A. She said she would email me a form, and this is what you need and get them to sign it. Give them the Spanish, because it was English on top, Spanish on the bottom. It's kind of outlined, just fold it in half for it. You know, they sign, date it, rip it in half. They keep the Spanish version or they throw it in the trashcan, whatever they want to do. And we keep the English one on file.

Q. So did you write that form?

A. No. No.

Q. Did you have any part in the contents of it?

A. No. That was emailed directly from Theresa. I printed it out in my office several copies and had them fill them out.

Q. Let me see if I can show you something. Okay, and so when she emailed them to you, what did you do with them?

A. I simply printed them out and brought them to the camp. Agustin was there. And several pens. And they dated them, signed them, top and bottom, and ripped them half. And I took back the English versions back to the office that we have still on -- I have a file. And left them with the Spanish version.

Q. Did you tell them which box on the form they needed to check?

A. No. I simply explained to them the options. And the way that Theresa explained it to me that, because there's several options on that form. I didn't want to have to check off the box that said we were terminating them because they couldn't do the work or whatever on that form they say. I gave them the option to check off the box that said that they were returning home because for personal reasons, dot, dot, dot.

And the way Theresa explained it to me, that would be just the right thing to do for them for their future employment. Because field work may not have been for them, they may have been able to do warehouse working or something else. And I didn't want to, you know, put a little mark on their form, saying that, okay, this guy can't -- I had to fire this guy. I didn't want to say that, not that I was firing them anyway. But I gave them the option to personal reasons for that reason just so in the future they wouldn't have any problem getting picked off a list for future work.

Q. Theresa was the one that told you about that, right?

A. Yes.

Q. Okay.

MR. SCHULTE: Can I approach -- actually, I don't have to.

BY MR. SCHULTE:

Q. Can you open -- is there a Binder A in that stack on the left there? That stack of black binders there, there should be one that says, Binder A, JX 1 through 10.

JUDGE TIMLIN: What exhibit would it be?

MR. SCHULTE: We're going to JX-8, please.

BY MR. SCHULTE:

Q. Okay. Do you recognize that form?

A. Yes.

Q. Is that the form we were talking about?

A. Yes.

Q. And who prepared that?

A. Theresa.

Q. Okay. Just so we're clear, is one of the choices there that the worker was fired?

A. No.

Q. Okay. And were any of the workers fired?

A. No.

Q. Did you tell them which of these, one, two, three, four, five, six boxes to check?

A. No. And again, the Spanish version was provided for them so they could definitely read the whole form themselves.

Q. Okay. If you flip to JX-9 for a second. Is that the complete form?

A. Yes.

Q. Okay. And do you see the date on the form?

A. Yes.

Q. What's that?

A. 8/8/15.

Q. Do you remember if it was the same form in May?

A. It was the same form, yeah.

Q. Did you threaten the workers in any way as far as filling out the form?

A. No, absolutely not.

Q. Did you tell them that they had sign it or something bad would happen?

A. No.

Q. Was it their choice to how to fill it out?

A. Yes.

Q. And what did you do with the English part of the form?

A. Brought them back to the office and put them in a file somewhere.

Q. Did you ever mention the form to Jose Perez when he came?

A. Yeah, I believe so.

Q. Okay. You mentioned in 2015, the food trucks and the meals with the workers in the dining hall. Did you ever share other kinds of food with them?

A. Every now and then, I'll -- yes, yes, I have. I'll get back there sometimes in there, and if I'm working late and I'm back around home, I'll stop in there and grab something for dinner.

Q. Do you ever --

A. It just quick and convenient.

Q. Do you ever get outside food to bring to them?

MR. GLICK: Objection, relevance here.
JUDGE TIMLIN: What's the reason?
MR. SCHULTE: What's the objection?
JUDGE TIMLIN: Relevance?
MR. SCHULTE: It goes to kind of the nature of the working relationship.
JUDGE TIMLIN: Okay, go ahead.
THE WITNESS: Yeah, I do it. I'll bring them Dunkin things in the spring. Some cold days that we're laying plastic and working outside doing pipe work, whatever it may be, I brought them Dunkin things, and I get a big thing of coffee and get them a couple dozen donuts. Yeah, absolutely, I do.
BY MR. SCHULTE:
Q. What about if it's hot out?
A. I always -- again, I always have a cooler in the back of my Gator and give them water, all time cold water, any time.
Q. Anything else when it's hot?
A. No. Well, that's pretty much just plain water.
Q. Okay. Did you ever notice that the water had run out in the field?
A. No. Every time I've gone up to the truck there's water in the trucks.
Q. Do you know if they refill it?
A. Yeah. Yeah, throughout the day there was, I think there's one or two guys and that's all they do is replenish the water.

Q. Is there water in the dining room?

A. Yes.

Q. At all the meals?

A. Yes.

Q. Do you have any say over the price that workers buy drinks from Agustin?

A. No.

Q. Do you have any role in that?

A. No.

Q. Does anyone else in Sun Valley?

A. No.

Q. Do you get any of that money?

A. No.

Q. What about for beer?

A. Absolutely no.

Q. Any -- if -- who runs the meal plan?

A. Agustin.

Q. Okay. Does anyone else collect money for that?

A. No.

Q. Do you know what would happen if the cost of the meals was greater than the amount of that he took in, what would happen?

A. Yeah, he would get otherwise the difference, I would, I would imagine. If it's over whatever the, what is it called, the AR, AEWR, whatever it is.

Q. I think we had it back -- I think I was unclear. I'm sorry. That if he, the amount that he had to pay for food and workers was more than the amount that he earned so that he was losing money, would Sun Valley pay him?

A. Nope, that's, that's only his deal.

Q. Okay. Did you ever tell him how much to charge for meals?

A. No. No.

Q. Did he know -- did you ever talk to him about the government limit?

A. For meal plan, absolutely, yes.

Q. Okay. Do you know if he ever charged more than that?

A. As far as I know, no, he hasn't.

Q. Okay. Does Sun Valley get any of the money from that?

A. No.

Q. Okay.

MR. SCHULTE: Nothing else at this time, Your Honor. Thank you.

THE WITNESS: Can I get a glass of water, please?

JUDGE TIMLIN: Sure.

MR. GLICK: Thank you. Thank you, Your Honor.

CROSS-EXAMINATION

BY MR. GLICK:

Q. Good morning, Mr. Marino.
A. Good morning.

A. Yes.
Q. And you have a lot of responsibilities?
A. Yes.

Is that your signature?
A. Yes.
Q. And going back to page 1 of JX-1, do you recognize this document?
A. Yes.

Q. That's the job order that Sun Valley filed in 2015?
A. Okay.
Q. It's one of the job orders Sun Valley filed in 2015, right?
A. Yes.
Q. And turning to JX-3 please. JX-3 is another of the job orders is another of the job orders that Sun Valley filed in 2015?
A. Okay.
Q. Do you recognize JX-3?
A. Yes.
Q. Is it the job order that Sun Valley filed in 2015?
A. Looks like it.
Q. And can you turn to page 47 please? That's your signature?
A. Yes.
Q. The company that you hired in 2015 was National Agricultural Consultants?
A. That's correct.
Q. Did you provide information to National Agricultural Consultants to fill out the job orders?
A. Yes.
Q. You reviewed the drafts that the agency prepared?
A. Yes.
Q. You made some changes to the drafts?

A. I'm sure I did.
Q. You made a few rounds of changes?
A. Probably.
Q. And then you signed the job orders?
A. Yes.
Q. You reviewed the job orders before signing them?
A. Yes.
Q. The New Jersey Department of Labor inspected Sun Valley's housing in 2015?
A. Yes.
Q. That was in February of 2015?
A. Yes.
Q. That was before the agricultural workers arrived?
A. It has to be inspected before they arrive. Pre-occupancy inspection.
Q. And workers began arriving in April?
A. I'm not exactly sure, but yeah, I think so.
Q. It was after February?
A. Mm-hmm.
Q. Could I just ask for the court reporter to make sure to --
A. Yes.
Q. -- answer verbally?
A. Okay.
Q. And workers arrived in Sun Valley after February,

2015?

A. Yes.

Q. They didn't arrive before February 2015?

A. No.

Q. Once the workers arrived, you didn't enter the worker housing in 2015?

A. Not their bedrooms, no.

Q. You didn't enter their bedrooms?

A. No.

Q. Now I want to ask more about the kitchen at Sun Valley. You ate at that kitchen sometimes in 2015?

A. Yes.

Q. You ate with some of the workers?

A. Yes.

Q. You didn't pay for those meals that you ate at the kitchen?

A. I think we tried to.

Q. Agustin didn't collect any money from you?

A. No. Most of the time he would tell me no.

Q. He never collected money from you for the meals?

A. No.

Q. And in 2015, you brought Agustin to some meetings with the U.S. Department of Labor?

A. Yes.

Q. You made sure he understood there were limits on how much he could charge for meals?

A. Yes.
Q. You wanted to make sure that he understood those limits?
A. Yes.
Q. And you sometimes accompanied Agustin to those meetings?
A. Every time.
Q. You told him to keep receipts for the grocery purchases that he made?
A. Yes.
Q. And you never told Agustin that he had to allow workers to cook in the kitchen?
A. Say that again.
Q. In 2015, you never told Agustin he had to permit workers to cook in Sun Valley's kitchen?
A. I never told him to tell the guys that they couldn't work, cook in the kitchen.
Q. And you never told him, you never told Agustin that he had to permit them to cook in Sun Valley's kitchen?
A. I don't believe I ever told him that, no.
Q. You never told him that?
A. Not that I recall. I told him to accommodate the guys however he had to.
Q. When you ate at the kitchen at Sun Valley, that was during lunch?

A. Primarily.

Q. You never saw workers cooking in the kitchen at lunch time?

A. No.

Q. Sun Valley's kitchen wasn't big enough for many workers to cook simultaneously?

A. No.

Q. Would it have been expensive to build a bigger kitchen at Sun Valley?

MR. SCHULTE: Objection, Your Honor. That's speculation and I don't see how it relates. The kitchen was there. The kitchen was built as with testimony that was yesterday, 30 some years ago.

JUDGE TIMLIN: It is speculative. Move on, Mr. Glick.

BY MR. GLICK:

Q. Agustin basically had complete control over the kitchen at Sun Valley?

A. Yes.

Q. So he could prevent a worker from cooking in it?

A. I suppose so.

Q. And that kitchen we've been talking about, that's Sun Valley's kitchen?

A. It's part of the whole complex, you know, of the whole facility, yes.

Q. Sun Valley owns the kitchen?

A. Yes.

Q. Sun Valley pays for the gas?

A. Yes.

Q. Sun Valley pays for the electricity?

A. Yes.

Q. In fact, there's a separate electric meter for the kitchen?

A. Yes.

Q. Sun Valley pays for that separate electric bill for the kitchen?

A. Yes.

Q. There's a separate gas tank for the kitchen?

A. Yes.

Q. Sun Valley pays that separate gas --

A. Yes.

Q. -- for the kitchen?

A. Yeah. Yes.

Q. So Mr. Schulte asked you some questions about workers who left in August.

A. Okay.

Q. I'd like to talk a little bit more about that.

MR. SCHULTE: Objection, Your Honor. I don't think we talked about that.

JUDGE TIMLIN: The workers who left in August?
MR. SCHULTE: Well, there --
MR. GLICK: I think we only talked about May.
MR. SCHULTE: There was, there was testimony about the, I mean, at least first the damage to crops because of --
JUDGE TIMLIN: It wasn't.
MR. GLICK: -- disease and also with regard to a form JX-9 signed in August. And I thought it was the same form as in May. I think those two things link together.
JUDGE TIMLIN: Okay. I do remember both of those.
MR. GLICK: Okay, Your Honor. I just --
JUDGE TIMLIN: Go ahead.
MR. GLICK: Yes, Your Honor.
BY MR. GLICK:
Q. There was no crop failure in August 2015?
A. Yes.
Q. Too many workers were still on the payroll for the work that remained?
A. That's correct.
Q. You decided to let some of the workers go?
A. Yes.
Q. And you were involved in coming up with a list of workers to let go?
A. Yes.
Q. You personally explained to those workers that you would let them go?

A. Yes.
Q. And you gave those workers forms to sign before they left?
A. Yes.
Q. That was the same kind of form that the workers who left in May signed?
A. Yes.
Q. Okay. I believe you testified that those forms had no box for a worker to indicate that they'd been terminated?
A. That's correct.
Q. Again in that same binder, Mr. Marino, Binder A, if you could please turn to JX-8, page 114, sort of in the middle of the range of pages in JX-8. Are you at page 114?
A. Yes.
Q. I'm going to read starting in the middle of the first line, if you could read along with me. "I do hereby resign my job with SVO, farm name."
Mr. Marino, did I read that correctly?
A. Yes.
Q. And is that your signature on JX-8, page 114.
A. It's not my signature. It just says print. That's my printed name.
Q. It's your name?
A. Yes.

Q. And it's dated August 8, 2015?
A. Yes.
Q. The workers who left in August were terminated?
A. It says, "Work has slowed down, and I would like to return home." Work slowed down and they returned home.
Q. The workers who left in August were terminated?
A. Because work slowed down.
Q. They didn't resign?
A. Work slowed down. And work slowed down so they returned home.
Q. You didn't give them a choice?
A. If I have to answer that question, I guess not.
Q. So they didn't resign?
A. I guess not. As a technicality, I guess not.
Q. I think there should be another binder on the table, it's labeled Binder 9. If I could ask you to find Binder 9 please. And can you please turn to the tab marked PX-39? Once you're at PX-39, page 1191, please. Are you at page 1191?
A. Yes.
Q. Sun Valley filed notices to government agencies when worker left in 2015?
A. Okay.
Q. Is that right?
A. Yes.
Q. Sun Valley used it's agent to file these notifications to the government agencies?

A. They notify the proper agencies, yes. Yes.

Q. And Sun Valley used the Agent to make the notifications?

A. Yes.

Q. I'm going to read some passages from page 1191 and I'd like to ask you to read along with me. In about a third of the way down the page, maybe halfway, "The Sun Valley Orchards, LLC is hereby notifying the United States Department of Labor of the failure to show up for work, finishing work three days early, termination, or leaving work." And then it continues, "The reason for the notification, workers returned for personal reasons."

Did I read that correctly?

MR. SCHULTE: Objection, Your Honor. We've covered this already. This is an exhibit that speaks for itself. I'm not sure what the relevance of any of that.

JUDGE TIMLIN: I think it's relevant. I'm not sure where Mr. Glick's going with it, but I think he gets -- he certainly can read the document and ask questions based on the document.

MR. SCHULTE: Do we have a -- have we established that the witness has seen the document? I mean, why is he interpreting someone else's email?

MR. GLICK: I mean it's, I think it's been, I can certainly make further questions for a foundation maybe first.

JUDGE TIMLIN: Yeah. You want to, yeah. Let's, let's get a better foundation.

BY MR. GLICK:

Q. Has established that there were notifications filed. Mr. Marino, on the fourth line from the top, next to the cc line, Russ is written there. That's your name?

A. Yes.

Q. The Sun Valley's notifications to government agencies, you were cc'd on those emails?

A. Yes.

Q. You were cc'd on this email, page 1191.

A. Yes.

Q. On August 21, 2015?

A. Yes.

MR. GLICK: I believe that is quite an adequate foundation for Mr. Marino to continue testifying about it.

MR. SCHULTE: I haven't heard him say that he's seen it before.

JUDGE TIMLIN: I think since -- I think he's copied on it, so I'm going to allow to continue questioning him on it. And he is a principal of the company, and this is --

MR. SCHULTE: Okay.

JUDGE TIMLIN: -- a notice sent on behalf of the company by an agent of the company --

MR. SCHULTE: But if the question is --

JUDGE TIMLIN: -- to the National Agricultural Center and he's copied on it. I think he can answer questions about it.

MR. SCHULTE: Okay.

JUDGE TIMLIN: And if he didn't see it before, then I have questions about how much attention he's paying to his job, okay. Because if he didn't see -- if he's running the H-2A program for his company, which he's testified that he does --

MR. SCHULTE: Yeah.

JUDGE TIMLIN: -- and he's using a consultant to make these reports, which he's testified that he's paid for the consultant, and he's being cc'd on an email from the consultant that the consultant has sent on SVO's behalf to a government agency, and he hasn't seen it, I would have some issues with that.

MR. SCHULTE: Yeah, no, no. I didn't mean to suggest he hadn't seen it. I just think that the foundation is essential to it and if the question is, what did someone, what did your agent mean when he said something --

JUDGE TIMLIN: Well, we didn't hear the question yet, so let's get the question first. But you can continue to question on it.

MR. GLICK: Okay. Thank you, Your Honor.

BY MR. GLICK:

Q. This is a notification regarding 25 workers. Is that right?

A. Yes.

Q. On page 1191?

A. Yes.

Q. A notification regarding workers absent as of August 8, 2015?

A. That's correct.

Q. These 25 workers didn't leave for personal reasons.

MR. SCHULTE: Objection, Your Honor. None of these 25 are at issue in the case. The Administrator has conceded that they all met their three-quarter guarantee. The reason reported for why they did or didn't leave is irrelevant.

MR. GLICK: I would point out that there's a common incident of the termination of a group of workers. And I can turn to another exhibit, but I believe it will be clear very soon that there were two notifications sent corresponding to the same group, and the same justification was given for the group as a whole.

Now there are only certain workers who are ultimately at issue in terms of the three-quarters calculation, but the common course of conduct in regard to these 44 workers is what's at issue here.

JUDGE TIMLIN: Don't you think you should be using whatever exhibit applies to the workers who are seeking back wages?

MR. GLICK: And I'm happy to go there right now, but because it's broken up into two notifications, I think it's important to sort of establish the overlap, or the perfect overlap I would put it, between the two emails and the number of workers.

JUDGE TIMLIN: But the -- well the document's in evidence. So let's go to the one that's more relevant to the people who you're seeking back wages for.

MR. GLICK: Thank you, Your Honor.

BY MR. GLICK:

Q. Mr. Marino, I'd like to ask you to turn to page, still in PX-39, to page 1194, please. Page 1194 is another notification of worker departures. Is that right?

A. Yes.

Q. A notification by Sun Valley?

A. Yes.

Q. Filed through Sun Valley's agent?

A. Yes.

Q. An email sent on August 21, 2015?

A. Yes.

Q. You were cc'd on this email?

A. Yes.

Q. I'm going to read again in the middle of the page, and I'll keep it quick here. Next to the number 1, the reason for the notification, "Workers returned home for personal reasons."

Mr. Marino, did I read that correctly?

A. Yes.

Q. And turning the page to 1195.

MR. SCHULTE: I'm sorry, Your Honor. I mean, just that given that time is short, this was a statement to other agencies, not to Wage Hour, not part of this investigation. It was not offered to assert a defense against three-quarter guarantee. This was presented to other agencies. There's no accusation that it was not accurately stated by their agent to these agencies. Those agencies, to the extent that they have issues with it, are perfectly capable of raising that issue. I don't see where this gets us in the case.

MR. GLICK: Your Honor, at least two points. The first is that this is the notification that an H-2A employer is supposed to file under circumstances when workers depart. And so there's not going to be any other notification at issue. It's a notification to the U.S. Department of Labor among other agencies.

And second, frankly, it goes to the credibility of the reasons for workers departure overall.

MR. SCHULTE: Is there a -- we've conceded that the workers in August were terminated without cause. There was not enough work and they -- we can argue as to whether all or only some of them, most of them met their three-quarter guarantee. That's a separate issue. But what was told to ETA or Homeland Security, I don't see how that makes that more or less likely, or assisted in the termination.

MR. GLICK: There are specific reasons given for workers departure in various forms in 2015 to government agencies. If the assertion is that the Agent actually has a role in the creation of the termination, or of the forms, and is also filing the notifications, there's the same sort of overall question of the reliability of the information given for workers' departure. This was all part of the same circumstances.

MR. SCHULTE: Again, the defense has never been that those workers left by choice, those four. They were terminated. There may be a dispute as to the accounting as to how many hours were worked, how many were offered. We've heard plenty about that. There's no, there's no use of the form that's as a defense to claim that they left by choice and were properly reported and so therefore that terminated the three-quarter guarantee. That's an issue for the first 19. That's a separate thing. But this -- this has nothing to do with anything.

MR. GLICK: If there's a concession that the reasons given for the workers departure in August was not correct, we can certainly move on.

JUDGE TIMLIN: Let's move on.

BY MR. GLICK:

Q. Mr. Marino, there's another binder that I'm not sure that you have, and I just need to take a moment to make sure you have a copy.

MR. GLICK: And for the Court and for Counsel, looking at Binder 3, going to be PX-15 hyphen -- I'm sorry, what number?

JUDGE TIMLIN: He might not have it up here. I don't know.

THE WITNESS: What --

MR. SCHULTE: What exhibit?

MR. GLICK: I'm sorry. I stopped speaking in mid-sentence. In Binder 3, PX-15-2, which I believe has been admitted into evidence.

MR. GLICK: May I approach, Your Honor, the witness?

JUDGE TIMLIN: Yes.

MR. GLICK: Mr. Marino, I'm handing you Binder 3.

MR. SCHULTE: And on this, Your Honor, it was admitted into evidence. It's a Government document. It speaks for itself. I guess we'll find out what the relevance is. I'll save my objection. But, and --

JUDGE TIMLIN: Okay.

MR. SCHULTE: -- no. Actually at this point, you know, any questions about it, this was for a period that's not at issue in the case.

MR. GLICK: Your Honor, there's been testimony about the consistency of certain practices at Sun Valley over time. I believe in particular in regards to the kitchen, and there are issues regarding the CMPs, regarding post-investigation commitment to compliance. There's relevance generally in terms of the agency and who was in control of the company at issue in this case, and --

MR. SCHULTE: No, there isn't. Like it, like the --

JUDGE TIMLIN: Well, I thought there was a whole big issue about agency and --

MR. SCHULTE: Not about who's in control of the company.

JUDGE TIMLIN: But -- go ahead.

MR. GLICK: I think that there's, there -- I understand the Respondent has put at issue the extent of Mr. Hernandez's agency, the relative roles of the various individuals involved in the company, and the scope of agency. I mean --

MR. SCHULTE: And this document speaks to none of those.

JUDGE TIMLIN: I haven't heard his questions yet on this document, but the document is in evidence, so he can ask questions about the document and we can address them one by one in terms of whether or not they're relevant. But this document itself is in evidence. And my understanding, I mean, to the extent that -- and I think we've talked about this before. To the extent that one of the factors that comes into this decision about issuing CMPs has to do with behavior after the 2015 growing season, I think it has that relevance. We'll see if they can tie that up. I don't know if they can tie that up with this particular document. I haven't heard enough yet.

MR. SCHULTE: Okay.

JUDGE TIMLIN: Go ahead, Mr. Glick.

BY MR. GLICK:

Q. Mr. Marino, Sun Valley participated in H-2A program in 2016?

A. Yes.

Q. And Sun Valley filed another job order?

A. Yes.

Q. In the 2016 job order -- first may I ask you to open in Binder 3 to PX-15-2? Let me know when you're there.

MR. SCHULTE: Your Honor, my understanding --

THE WITNESS: Yes.

JUDGE TIMLIN: Although, this is in Binder 3. This is where we've been, 15-2?

MR. SCHULTE: Yes.

MR. GLICK: Yes, Your Honor.

JUDGE TIMLIN: Oh, okay. Okay. I thought you were sending me somewhere else, okay.

MR. GLICK: I'm sorry.

MR. SCHULTE: To the extent the question's getting into the deep, the contents of this job order, could we have some kind of foundation? Or, you know, some kind of explanation of how this relates to CMPs, if that's the reason that it's offered.

MR. GLICK: One of the factors at issue in the CMP calculations is commitment to compliance, and therefore it was post-investigation conduct can be relevant.

MR. SCHULTE: This was filed before the WH-56 was served. The determination notice in this case dates from June of 2016. Documents that were filed herein, this looks like February of 2016, I'm not sure what that says or doesn't say about future compliance going forward.

JUDGE TIMLIN: I don't actually know either because we haven't had any questions. So --

MR. SCHULTE: I'm not sure how any question could be.

MR. GLICK: Well, those --

JUDGE TIMLIN: I want to --

MR. SCHULTE: The dates --

JUDGE TIMLIN: I want to --

MR. SCHULTE: -- are the dates.

JUDGE TIMLIN: -- hear the questions.

MR. GLICK: -- certainly intend to keep it short. And as I believe I argued, there are questions again related to agency at issue here.

JUDGE TIMLIN: All right. Go on.

MR. GLICK:

Q. Mr. Marino, do you recognize PX-15-2?

A. Yes.

Q. This is a job order Sun Valley filed in 2016?

A. Okay.

Q. Is it?

A. Yes.

Q. Could you please turn to page 509? Let me know when you're there.

A. Okay.

Q. That's your signature on page 509?

A. Yes.

Q. And I'm now going to page 505. So I'm going to read from near the top. Please read along silently with me.

MR. SCHULTE: Objection. Two-fold, Your Honor. The document's here, it's in evidence. I mean, if we can avoid the reading exercise of it. But also, I'm still waiting to hear where this -- and maybe it will, but the contents of this is relating to either agency or future compliance. Those are the two grounds offered.

MR. GLICK: I think there's nothing on this page that's --

JUDGE TIMLIN: The problem, Mr. Schulte, is you keep objecting before he even asks the question. So until I hear the question, and I'm not --

MR. SCHULTE: I understand. But in the --

JUDGE TIMLIN: I'm not meaning to be short with you. But I'm, all I'm hearing -- I heard a lot of preliminary information which he's done to establish it, is this a document that Mr. Marino recognizes. This is a document that Mr. Marino signed. But yet you haven't given him an opportunity to ask any substantive questions in which I could determine --

MR. SCHULTE: Okay.

JUDGE TIMLIN: -- whether or not those questions are related to his allegation, if this document is going towards establishing some lack of future compliance or disregard for the laws or what. I forget what the whole argument was. But let him ask the questions, and then we'll figure out, okay? Sorry.

MR. GLICK: Your Honor, I intend to go there quite quickly, and I don't want to further represent what, where the question is going --

JUDGE TIMLIN: And if there's a way, Mr. Glick, that you can point him to the paragraph that you're -- that's in issue and just ask him to read it to himself, and then ask questions from it rather than reading it, if that will speed up the process, then let's do that.

MR. GLICK: Absolutely, Your Honor.

JUDGE TIMLIN: Okay? Because I can read too. We can all, all read.

MR. SCHULTE: And for what it's worth, Your Honor, this is also outside the scope of direct.

MR. GLICK: There was testimony about the kitchen, about the meals at Sun Valley.

JUDGE TIMLIN: Yeah, then it's not outside the scope of direct. Go ahead. I'm assuming this is going to get us to housing and the kitchen. So go ahead.

MR. GLICK: Speaking of the kitchen, Your Honor.

BY MR. GLICK:

Q. Mr. Marino, can you please read the first two sentences on page 505? They begin in, "Employers will furnish." Let me know when you're finished.

A. I'm finished.

Q. Those statements about meals being provided at a cost, those were accurate in 2016?

A. Yes.

Q. And nothing changed about the kitchen in Sun Valley in 2016?

A. No.

Q. The 2015 job order should have been worded the same way.

MR. SCHULTE: Objection. It calls for a conclusion and speculation.

JUDGE TIMLIN: Yeah, sustained. Go ahead, continue.

BY MR. GLICK:

Q. Was it accurate in 2015 that Sun Valley -- let me rephrase the question.

Was it accurate in 2015 that three meals per day were provided at a cost?

A. Yes.

Q. The job order for 2015 didn't disclose that cost?

A. No. It was an oversight.

Q. It's your testimony that it was, the 2015 job order should have been worded differently?

A. Yes.

MR. SCHULTE: Objection, Your Honor. Never mind.

JUDGE TIMLIN: Yeah, he --

MR. SCHULTE: He already answered.

JUDGE TIMLIN: He answered it.

BY MR. GLICK:

Q. In 2015, Agustin Hernandez provided the meals in the kitchen at Sun Valley?

A. Yes.

Q. And in 2016, Agustin Hernandez provided the meals in the kitchen in Sun Valley?

A. Yes.

Q. The same way?

A. Yes.

Q. Now I want to turn briefly to transportation at Sun Valley. Mr. Marino, you never told workers in 2015 about whether there was transportation provided to town?

A. Yes, there was.

Q. You never told the workers about that transportation?

MR. SCHULTE: Objection, Your Honor. Misstates.

THE WITNESS: Yeah, it --

MR. SCHULTE: It's in the job order. We've established painstakingly this morning that he signed the job order. The workers received it, he told them. Counsel's misrepresenting it.

MR. GLICK: Two points, Your Honor. First, the question was more specific, was about Mr. Marino's own statements or not about -- to workers about that transportation. And secondly, I think it's already been established that here are significant questions about the accuracy of the job order. And so the job order certainly didn't speak for itself in terms of the conditions on the ground.

MR. SCHULTE: But that we're -- the objection isn't to the accuracy of that. We've established that already. It's that he said that. If he wants to clarify, did he orally say it, you know, was there a meeting, something like that, that's fine. But he can't say that it was never told to them.

JUDGE TIMLIN: Can you rephrase your question, please?

MR. GLICK: Yes, Your Honor.

BY MR. GLICK:

Q. After the workers arrived at Sun Valley in 2015, no one from Sun Valley management told the workers about the transportation?

A. Not formally. But when the bus was getting ready to leave to go into the town, they said, okay, whoever wants to go, get on the bus, we're going to the town just like your contract says that every one of you have a copy of.

MR. SCHULTE: Your Honor, is it possible to not have Counsel stand behind us while we're taking notes?

JUDGE TIMLIN: Can you stand over on the other side Mr. Heyman-Kantor? I know, I had been meaning to ask you to stand further back.

MR. HEYMAN-KANTOR: Just ask me, and I would be happy to do it, too.

JUDGE TIMLIN: Yeah, but -- that's better. Thank you.

BY MR. GLICK:

Q. So now I wanted to turn to that May meeting that you were telling us about earlier this morning. So there was a time when Agustin told you there was an issue with the workers?

A. Yes.

Q. It was important to figure out what the issue was?

A. Yes.
Q. And you arrived at the camp relatively quickly that day?
A. Yes.
Q. Before you arrived in the camp, your perception was that the workers didn't want to do the work?
A. That's correct.
Q. You thought they had already made up their mind?
A. The way Agustin had explained it to me, he said that they were -- they had their mind made up and they wanted to return home.
Q. So that's what you understood even before you arrived to the camp?
A. Yes.
Q. And when you arrived at the camp, Agustin was there, too?
A. Yes.
Q. Mr. Joe Marino wasn't there?
A. Not for the first few moments, no.
Q. No one else from Sun Valley management was there?
A. Not yet.
Q. During that meeting, you spoke Spanish to the workers?
A. Yes.
Q. You spoke Spanish for most of the meeting?

A. Yes.
Q. Only had Agustin translate a relatively small portion in the meeting?
A. That's correct.
Q. And I understand your Spanish is questionable?
A. I guess so. I -- that's open for interpretation I would believe.
Q. Your conjugation isn't very good?
MR. SCHULTE: Was there testimony about this?
JUDGE TIMLIN: He mentioned grammar. He did say his grammar, so --
MR. SCHULTE: Okay.
BY MR. GLICK:
Q. Your conjugation isn't very good in Spanish?
A. I'm not sure what part of my Spanish is not perfect.
Q. You don't always conjugate your verbs when you speak Spanish?
A. I guess not.
Q. Your conjugation isn't very good?
A. I guess not good.
Q. And you were also nervous at that meeting?
A. I don't know nervous as so much as anxious to get the answers. I like to understand what was going on.
Q. You didn't know the names of any of the workers who spoke at the meeting?

A. No. I have -- no, I didn't know.
Q. You have the power to fire workers at Sun Valley?
A. Is that a statement or a question?
Q. It's a question.
A. Okay.
Q. You have the power to fire workers at Sun Valley?
A. Because you're asking all questions, they're like statements. I believe so, if the proper procedure is followed.
Q. You testified that, you know, after the meeting, you started the process of letting the guys go.
A. That's correct.
MR. SCHULTE: Okay, objection. Could we clarify which meeting?
MR. GLICK: The meeting --
JUDGE TIMLIN: Yeah, we're talking about -- we've been talking about the May meeting, so I'm assuming we're still talking about the May meeting. Was there more than one May meeting?
MR. SCHULTE: No, I didn't know.
JUDGE TIMLIN: Yeah. He -- this whole, I think this whole series has been about the May meeting.
MR. GLICK: That's correct, Your Honor.
BY MR. GLICK:
Q. And after that May meeting, you brought forms for the workers to sign?

A. Yes.
Q. Those forms already indicated that the workers were resigning?
A. Yes.
Q. The forms said that before you gave them to the workers?
A. I'm sorry?
Q. The forms, before you gave the forms to the workers, the forms already said that the workers would be resigning?
A. Yes. And that's why I brought that form with me to the camp after the meeting, after it was determined that they were resigning.
Q. You had Agustin make sure that the workers signed the forms?
A. Well, he helped me pass them out and pass some pens out, and collect them back so I could make sure I got them all back to put in the office.
Q. You were there when some of the workers signed those forms, right?
A. Yes.
Q. You suggested how some of the workers should check the box in the forms?
A. I simply made a suggestion, yes.
MR. GLICK: Your Honor, I have no further questions at this time.

JUDGE TIMLIN: Redirect.

MR. SCHULTE: Just a couple, Your Honor.

JUDGE TIMLIN: Okay.

REDIRECT EXAMINATION

BY MR. SCHULTE:

Q. Do you have Exhibit 15-2, again? That's Binder 3.

A. In Binder 3?

Q. I believe, yeah.

A. Okay.

Q. Do you know which year the Department of Labor is seeking money from you for?

A. 2015.

Q. Any other years?

A. No.

Q. Okay. In that first paragraph there, it says that --

JUDGE TIMLIN: Which page are you on?

THE WITNESS: Yeah, on 504?

MR. SCHULTE: I'm sorry, page 505. Sorry.

BY MR. SCHULTE:

Q. Question 14, "Employer will furnish meals." Does Sun Valley furnish the meals?

A. No.

MR. GLICK: Objection. The document --

JUDGE TIMLIN: Okay. I --

MR. GLICK: -- doesn't say those exact words.

JUDGE TIMLIN: I don't see -- I was going to say, I do not see those words in there.

MR. SCHULTE: I'm sorry. "Employers will furnish workers living in employer-provided housing with three meals per day." Are we on the right page, 505?

JUDGE TIMLIN: Oh yeah, on the right page. Okay, now I see what you're saying.

MR. SCHULTE: Sorry, the very first line.

BY MR. SCHULTE:

Q. So Sun Valley is the employer?

A. Yes.

Q. Nobody else gives paychecks to these workers?

A. No.

Q. Okay. But does Sun Valley furnish the meals?

A. No.

Q. Does Sun Valley take deductions from pay?

A. Absolutely no.

Q. Okay. Is this statement accurate?

A. No.

Q. Okay. If you could go to Binder A, back to JX-1, page 2.

A. I'm sorry, you said JX-2?

Q. JX-1, page 2. Should be the same, Question 14.

A. Yes.

Q. Did Sun Valley furnish cooking and kitchen facilities

in 2015?

A. Yes.

Q. Did the worker's pay Sun Valley for that?

A. No.

Q. Were the workers taken to the store to buy food if they wanted?

A. Yes.

Q. Okay. So is that accurate?

A. No.

Q. Which part is inaccurate?

A. That employers will furnish the meals.

Q. No, no, no. I'm sorry. In 2015, it says that they will furnish facilities.

A. Oh, facilities, yes.

Q. Okay.

A. Yeah, yeah we did. Yes.

Q. Okay. Do you know of any workers that Agustin prevented from cooking in the kitchen?

A. No.

Q. Nobody. Did anyone --

A. I don't know if anybody even ever asked to cook in the kitchen.

Q. Did anyone ask you?

A. No.

Q. Did Agustin tell you he had blocked anyone?

A. No.

Q. What did you tell the workers as they were getting on the bus as they left in August?

A. The gentlemen that we let go early because of the crop loss? I just, I thanked them for their services and hoped to see them again. And I believe some of them have returned. A lot of them have returned.

Q. And do you handle orientation when the workers come?

A. Yeah, sometimes I'm there. Yes, sometimes.

Q. Who primarily speaks to them and explains the rules to them?

A. Primarily, Agustin. But again, there are a lot of return workers and they pretty much, they know the big picture. They know what's going on.

MR. SCHULTE: Okay, no more questions. Thank you. Nothing further.

JUDGE TIMLIN: Anything off of that?

MR. GLICK: Nothing from me, Your Honor.

JUDGE TIMLIN: Okay, my turn.

When you were talking about the inspection of the housing in early 2015, you gave a name of the inspectors and I didn't catch their name.

THE WITNESS: Hipolito Lagares.

JUDGE TIMLIN: And can you -- do you have any idea how to spell that?

THE WITNESS: Yes. It's just exactly how it sounds H-I-P-O-L-I-T-O, Largares. It's L-A-R-G-E-S (sic) I believe.

JUDGE TIMLIN: Okay. Okay. And you said something about having a cooler in the back of your Gator. What's a Gator?

THE WITNESS: It's like a little 4-by, like a little side by side, little four wheeler.

JUDGE TIMLIN: Like an ATV?

THE WITNESS: Yes.

JUDGE TIMLIN: Because then that's just a brand name on it?

THE WITNESS: Yes.

JUDGE TIMLIN: Okay. How long does the asparagus season last? How many weeks do you spend picking asparagus?

THE WITNESS: How many weeks?

JUDGE TIMLIN: Yeah.

THE WITNESS: Six to eight.

JUDGE TIMLIN: And is it one concurrent with other things that you're growing? Or are you only picking asparagus and then you move on to picking other things?

THE WITNESS: We're cutting asparagus on the yellow basis. We're not harvesting anything else. However we are transplanting that time of year. We are seeding all the other vegetable crops to go into the greenhouse.

JUDGE TIMLIN: Okay. And that transplanting work and seeding work, who's doing that?

THE WITNESS: The same men.

JUDGE TIMLIN: So that's also the H-2A guys?

THE WITNESS: Yes. That's all in their contract. And we're laying plastic as well, and irrigation installation, all that kind of stuff.

JUDGE TIMLIN: So it was your testimony that when these guys came to you in May, you desperately needed them. You didn't want them to leave?

THE WITNESS: That's correct.

JUDGE TIMLIN: Did you consider giving them different work than picking the asparagus?

THE WITNESS: And I believe some of the men did transplant one day or so. But the asparagus at the time, the harvesting definitely takes precedence over any of those other jobs. Because it's -- that's what we do. We grow stuff to harvest it.

JUDGE TIMLIN: Did you talk to them about the fact that this is the first crop of the season, and that if they hung on for a while there'd be other work --

THE WITNESS: Yeah.

JUDGE TIMLIN: -- that might not be as --

THE WITNESS: We explained to them. We explained to them. I mean, we explained that the work would get -- harvesting would be different, maybe not as intense. But they just said, you know, if the work is going to be this hard all year, then we're not going to make it, is what they told us. And yes, I did explain to them that harvesting other crops would be different.

JUDGE TIMLIN: Who's Theresa?

THE WITNESS: Theresa Ward is the, I guess --

JUDGE TIMLIN: What's her last name?

THE WITNESS: Theresa Ward.

JUDGE TIMLIN: Ward.

THE WITNESS: W-A-R-D.

JUDGE TIMLIN: Okay.

THE WITNESS: She is the owner and I would believe managing. I mean, she's very active in her company of National Agricultural Consulting.

JUDGE TIMLIN: Okay. So she was your contact there --

THE WITNESS: That's correct.

JUDGE TIMLIN: -- that you dealt with --

THE WITNESS: That's correct.

JUDGE TIMLIN: -- whenever you had issues?

I think when you were talking about the housing and it went through an inspection, and that's before the guys come. And I know you said that, you know, when you learned that things that needed to be repaired, you were kind of -- and I think you said something about cleaning them. How are the dormitories cleaned when the guys are living in them?

THE WITNESS: We have a minimum of one guy. He pretty much stays back the camp after the meals, or even first thing in the morning, and it's his job to pick up around the camp. He mows the lawn around the camp. He may even help the cooks with the heavy lifting if they have to bring a lot of supplies in, you know, load the freezers up, things like that. He pretty much stays around the camp.

JUDGE TIMLIN: How are the bathrooms cleaned and maintained?

THE WITNESS: That same guy.

JUDGE TIMLIN: Does he clean inside the dormitory homes where their bedrooms are?

THE WITNESS: He doesn't go into their personal spaces. Generally, on the outside of the dormitory. He really doesn't go into personal spaces. I mean, you can probably understand why. I mean I'm sure guys have things there that they don't want touched or moved or anybody running around in their rooms.

JUDGE TIMLIN: So with respect to the kitchen, Sun Valley pays for the utilities, the gas and electric for the kitchen. It has a separate meter, separate gas tank. And it's Sun Valley's building. There's a lot -- there was some testimony that you weren't here for about what's inside the kitchen in terms of refrigerators and stoves, and Mr. Hernandez testified that one of the things that he does with some of the money that he gets is that he might buy a small appliance, like he might replace a microwave. But if one of the larger appliances, say one of the refrigerators or one of the stoves were to break or stop functioning, who would fix it or replace it? Who --

THE WITNESS: Depending on the situation and what it may be, I know just recently in the spring, we replaced one of the commercial stoves/ovens, and I believe last year we might have --

JUDGE TIMLIN: And when you say "we," you mean SVO?

THE WITNESS: Yes.

JUDGE TIMLIN: Sorry. Sun Valley.

THE WITNESS: Sorry, Sun Valley, yes.

JUDGE TIMLIN: Okay.

THE WITNESS: And I believe last year we may have replaced their freezer, a chest freezer.

JUDGE TIMLIN: Okay. So the larger appliances are something that Sun Valley's going to be replacing?

THE WITNESS: Again, depending on the situation. And now we were primarily responsible for the initial equipment in the kitchen, but not responsible -- we took responsibility for the initial equipment in the kitchen. And I believe he's added, you know, some other refrigerators, things like that to keep the drinks and stuff like that cold.

JUDGE TIMLIN: Right, okay.

You had this crop failure in August of 2015, and you no longer had enough work for folks. And you don't let go everybody, but you let go a group of guys, about 25 guys.

THE WITNESS: Yes.

JUDGE TIMLIN: Who decided who was being let go?

THE WITNESS: It was more of a collective choice, however the three-quarter guarantee definitely took precedence over that situation.

JUDGE TIMLIN: So when you say collective, who was involved in the collective?

THE WITNESS: Well, Agustin and myself primarily, and then Lisa was involved somewhat with just the arithmetic to make sure that the three-quarter guarantee was met. And there was a few names on the initial list that Agustin and I had compiled and they hadn't met the three-quarter guarantee. So I just took it upon myself to choose, I don't know how many guys it was, five, six, seven guys off the payroll list that did meet their three-quarter guarantee.

JUDGE TIMLIN: Okay. So if Agustin testified that he made the choice and he picked guys that he thought were troublemakers, that wouldn't be accurate?

THE WITNESS: I don't believe so, because at that point, no, I don't know why he would say troublemakers. I don't believe we have any troublemakers.

JUDGE TIMLIN: Okay.

THE WITNESS: I wish I could load all my guys up and bring them here and testify for me.

JUDGE TIMLIN: Okay.

THE WITNESS: But can't do that.

JUDGE TIMLIN: Okay. On that form at JX-8, which I think is in Binder A, I think you said it has -- where it has your name, you said that that's your printed name, that's not your signature. But is that your handwriting?

THE WITNESS: Yes.

JUDGE TIMLIN: You were obviously -- you work and relied on this National Ag Consulting to make, to do some of these forms and file them for you. The form that was sent in and -- I'm going to forget the exhibit number that was sent in in August. Is it 39? I don't, it might be. Yeah. It's Exhibit 39. But that form that was sent in in August that you were copied on the email, did you have any discussions about what the form was going to say? Did you do the back and forth like you did with the job order?

THE WITNESS: I did not. And however, I did take notice that it said that the workers returned home for personal reasons, and I kind of assumed the same thing that she put that out of good faith for them not to have any kind of issues with them getting future employment.

JUDGE TIMLIN: And that would be in line with a prior conversation you had with her?

THE WITNESS: Yeah. That, and that's why initially the initial form that I had filled out, I explained to the guys that they could check off that they were returning home for personal reasons --

JUDGE TIMLIN: Okay.

THE WITNESS: -- for them not to have issues in future employment.

JUDGE TIMLIN: Where did you learn to speak Spanish?

THE WITNESS: Just around the farm.

JUDGE TIMLIN: So it's not -- you didn't study it in high school or college or anything?

THE WITNESS: I had six years between high school and college, but it didn't really do me any good. I tell my guys all the time that you never learn how to swim unless you get in the water.

JUDGE TIMLIN: The guys that left in May, I think you told Mr. Glick that -- or he asked you to confirm that you didn't know their names. Do you at some point come to know the guys' names?

THE WITNESS: Yes. Yeah, and I've --

JUDGE TIMLIN: And how long does that usually take?

THE WITNESS: I mean to know the guys' names on a general crew, the harvesting crew, I may know a few here and there if they've helped me at some point. But let it be known that if there's any kind of guys that's helping me on a daily basis or even a weekly basis, I know their name. And I even have their cell number. I have texts in my phone that I text them in Spanish. I mean, we just have that rapport amongst each other with that mutual respect that I like to have.

JUDGE TIMLIN: Okay, all right. He's your witness. Any, did that bring up anything for you?

MR. SCHULTE: Just a couple quick ones.

REDIRECT EXAMINATION (cont.)

BY MR. SCHULTE:

Q. The Judge had kind of asked you about kind of the maintenance around the housing. If somebody tells you there's a problem that needs fixing, does that ever happen?

MR. GLICK: Objection, just to the form of the question.

MR. SCHULTE: I'll, I'll rephrase.

JUDGE TIMLIN: Yeah. Yeah, let's get that -

BY MR. SCHULTE:

Q. Does the person who does the work around the camp ever tell you that they've spotted a problem that should be fixed?

A. He may bring it up to Agustin. In turn he tells me, and then I either get a carpenter, plumber, electrician, or what it may be. Unless he can fix it himself, it gets taken care of.

Q. Okay. And you also talked about kind of the ability for that group of 19 workers to do other jobs and not asparagus. Were there enough workers without those 19 to harvest the asparagus?

A. No.

MR. SCHULTE: That was all. Thank you.

JUDGE TIMLIN: Anything for you, Mr. Glick?

MR. GLICK: Right, just a few questions.

RECROSS EXAMINATION

BY MR. GLICK:

Q. The group of workers who were laid off in August for the pepper issues, that was 44 workers in total. Is that right?

A. Without looking at the documentation, I wouldn't know. If you had that in front of you, you would know better than me. I really don't know off the top of my head.

Q. Is it possible it was more than 25?

JUDGE TIMLIN: Yeah, I'm sorry. I put that number --

THE WITNESS: I don't know.

JUDGE TIMLIN: -- out there. And I know that that may not at all be the number. I just, I think that I had the idea of 25 from looking at the one form, but I realized that there was actually more than one form. So, yeah. I'm sure it's more than 20. I'm sure that the records will show the accurate amount and --

MR. SCHULTE: There's no need to impeach the Judge.
JUDGE TIMLIN: Yeah. That was, yes.
MR. GLICK: I just -- that was --
JUDGE TIMLIN: That was me misspeaking, not you misspeaking.
MR. GLICK: Certainly not meaning --
JUDGE TIMLIN: Yeah, okay.
MR. GLICK: -- to get into another question.
JUDGE TIMLIN: Sorry about that, Mr. Glick. Anything else?
BY MR. GLICK:
Q. You mentioned who Theresa was. Warren Wicker, that's Theresa's husband; is that correct?
A. Yes, I believe so. I don't know their exact relationship being that they don't have the same last name.
Q. Warren Wicker works at the same company as Theresa?
A. He used to. Warren Wicker used to -- okay. Warren Wicker used to be her partner back in 2015. In 2016, her and her husband went off on their own. I believe his name is Doug, Doug Ward. So now it's Theresa, Doug, there's a whole team of people that work at, and but it's still NAC.
Q. Now the workers who left in early May, 2015, you testified that they didn't work at Sun Valley for very long?
A. Yeah, I don't believe so.
Q. They only were there for at most a couple weeks?

A. At most a couple weeks, I believe.
Q. So you didn't get a chance to work with them very extensively?
A. No.
Q. Did you have their cell phone numbers?
A. No.
Q. You didn't text them?
A. No.
MR. GLICK: No further questions, Your Honor.
JUDGE TIMLIN: Okay, thank you Mr. Marino.
THE WITNESS: Thank you, Your Honor.
(Witness excused.)
MR. HEYMAN-KANTOR: Your Honor, I think we have another witness who is traveling in now from Pennsylvania, and I wanted to know if we expect to have her on the clock.
JUDGE TIMLIN: Who? We -- yeah. Let's go off the record.
(Whereupon, at 12:46 p.m., the proceedings were adjourned for a lunch recess, and were subsequently reconvened at 2:01 p.m.)

A F T E R N O O N S E S S I O N

(2:01 p.m.)

COURT REPORTER: Back on the record.

JUDGE TIMLIN: So, what's the word on your --

MR. HEYMAN-KANTOR: She estimated 45 minutes until she'll be here.

JUDGE TIMLIN: Great. So then we'll start with -- okay.

Whereupon,

JOSEPH MARINO,

A witness on behalf of the Respondent herein, having been first duly sworn, was examined and testified as follows:

JUDGE TIMLIN: Great. Have a seat.

DIRECT EXAMINATION

BY MR. SCHULTE:

Q. Good afternoon, sir. Can you state your name for the record, please?

A. Joe Marino.

Q. Do you have -- I'm sorry -- do you have any involvement with Sun Valley Orchards?

A. Yes, I do.

Q. What is that?

A. I'm co-owner.

Q. What are your responsibilities there?

A. I do all of our sales. I'm in charge of all of our IPM program. That includes also the applications themselves, all administrative duty oversight, basically spend a lot of time in our main location office areas because I do sales. And then all matters involving the business side of things: purchases, major business decisions, business endeavors, researching the things that we're going to do new and then we kind of collectively discuss after that, but more the business side of our company.

Q. Okay. One quick diversion just to possibly head off another question. What is IPM?

A. Integrated Pest Management. It's our practice for applying and use of pesticides and herbicides.

Q. Okay. Thank you.

Were you part of a decision at some point to start using the H-2A Program?

A. Yes. We all were involved. Primarily, I guess maybe I should clarify the ownership of the company.

So the ownership of the company is currently still, there's four equal partners: my father Russell, Sr., my uncle Harry Marino, my brother Russell, Jr. Marino, and myself, all equal partnership. They are older in age, and we all are all involved in final decisions of major changes in the business, but reality is myself and my brother do most of the leg work and most of the research and development before collectively coming to a consensus.

But, yes, I was actively involved with that alongside of my brother Russell.

Q. What year was that?

A. So we started talking about it after the 2014 season. And, again, I feel it's probably pertinent to discuss the nature of our business prior to that and why we made the decision --

MR. HEYMAN-KANTOR: I'm going to object as Non-responsive. These questions are calling for narratives and he's speaking about things that aren't within the call of the question.

JUDGE TIMLIN: Tell me again what the question was, please? What --

MR. SCHULTE: I just asked him to describe them entering the program in 2015. I can --

JUDGE TIMLIN: Yeah, I don't know that, that --

MR. SCHULTE: I mean it's --

JUDGE TIMLIN: -- it's not, I don't know that that was non-responsive. I'm going to allow him to continue.

Sorry about that, go ahead.

THE WITNESS: So we had, in 2015 was the first year that we decided to try the H-2A Visa Program Service. The reason for that, the company has been in business, like I said, I'm fourth generation. We've always been a produce farm. We've always had hired help, mostly always migrant labor.

We've always had migrant housing. We've always -- and the way it always originated even back when I was a little kid, our crew leader, Pedro Ruiz, ran the crew. It was all men at the time. It was very -- it wasn't as big as it is now, but the arrangement always was, you know, Pedro always had a guy that could cook and he also worked in the fields, as well, alongside the guys. He would always pull him out of the field an hour early to prepare the meals for the guys. We always paid all the expenses, but never had anything to do with food or meals. It was always run by the crew leader. Always.

MR. HEYMAN-KANTOR: Your Honor, I just want to, for the record, reiterate my objection. This was, the question did not ask about how meals were provided decades ago.

MR. SCHULTE: It's relevant testimony, Your Honor, and in the interest of time if he's willing to testify without me having to give more questions, I think that's only for everyone's benefit.

MR. HEYMAN-KANTOR: I need a right to object if I find the question's inappropriate. That's the reason for the calls for narrative objection.

MR. SCHULTE: Is there something inappropriate in what he said?

JUDGE TIMLIN: Yeah, I think what -- I agree that he went somewhere that wasn't with the answer but the thing is, is that where it went isn't someplace that's irrelevant to the story, so --

MR. HEYMAN-KANTOR: I guess my concern is I don't know if he's going to say something next that's objectionable on some basis and I need an opportunity, I don't want to --

JUDGE TIMLIN: That's rights.

MR. HEYMAN-KANTOR: -- be interrupting this.

JUDGE TIMLIN: That's true. That's true. So we need -- okay, so I want you to finish the story about, that you started about the cook, but then stop, take a breath. Let your counsel ask you questions, because the idea is that if he asks a question and it's not a question that's appropriate, then the Government can object and I can make a ruling and it makes the record clearer then. And, you know, he's a good lawyer, your lawyer, so he can ask the questions that will get the whole story out.

THE WITNESS: All right. Understood.

JUDGE TIMLIN: Okay? But just for now finish what you were saying about the -- that there was a history of having a cook who prepared the meals and Sun Valley did the, paid the expenses of the --

THE WITNESS: Yeah. So --

JUDGE TIMLIN: -- where you left off.

THE WITNESS: Sun Valley has always provided a kitchen facility, the appliances. It has never been involved in any way, shape or form thereafter with food or expenses or anything. And we always paid the cook up into, before we got into H-2A Visa Program because they were always an employee working other responsibilities outside of that. It was just somebody that they'd take out early to prepare the food before the guys could get there so they'd have time to eat.

Fast forward to why we got into the visa program.

JUDGE TIMLIN: Okay so that's where you need to stop --

THE WITNESS: Okay.

JUDGE TIMLIN: -- and let your counsel answer.

BY MR. SCHULTE:

Q. Were there changes from before you were in the H-2A program to when you entered the H-2A program in 2015 related to the kitchen?

A. No.

Q. Okay. Were there any changes in the kitchen, in the staffing?

A. No.

Q. Did the workers continue to work in the field or were they only --

A. No.

Q. -- in the kitchen?

A. Wait. Ask the question again. I'm not --

Q. Sorry, from 2015, beginning -- let's just limit it to 2015. Do the kitchen workers work in the field?

A. No.
Q. At one point, did the kitchen workers work in the field? Not those workers, but were there workers in the kitchen who worked in the field as well?
A. For what time period? I'm not --
Q. Prior to 2015?
A. Much prior, yes.
Q. And that was, who paid them?
A. Well, Sun Valley paid them because they were doing farm work.
Q. Okay.
A. Sun Valley paid them like we paid every employee.
Q. Does Sun Valley pay the kitchen employees since 2015?
A. No.
Q. Do you know how they're paid?
A. Agustin Hernandez pays the cooks.
Q. And do you know where he gets the money to pay them?
A. I do not.
Q. Okay. Does Sun Valley take taxes out for those workers?
A. No.
Q. Handle payroll?
A. No.
Q. Oversee them?
A. No.

Q. Tell them what to cook?
A. No.
Q. Okay. Does Sun Valley pay the utilities for the kitchen?
A. Yes.
Q. We talked about the decision to go into the H-2A program. What was the company's labor experience prior to 2015 as far as the workforce?
A. We're a relatively large farm. We're an attractive place to work for employees. We've been able to, up until 2014, to acquire domestic, I guess you'd want to say "employees." 2014 became an extremely difficult year in order to do that. We had a terrible season labor-wise as far as being able to accomplish the work that we had of crops planted. It was a devastating financial loss in 2014. We walked away from fields of cucumbers just to be able to pull grass in pepper crops. It was just appalling. We knew we had to make a change. A lot of growers in the area -- not a lot -- there's a few growers in the area that have used H-2A Visa Program.
To some of my reservations, you can talk about the decision making process, I've been involved in agriculture politics forever. My father has, too. I attend a lot of meetings, a lot of seminars. I've listened firsthand to Maureen Torrey, owner of Torrey Farms from New York State, for years speak about the horrors of the H-2A Visa Program and it's --

MR. HEYMAN-KANTOR: Objection, Your Honor, I, can I just interject this -- It's complexity -- this is --

JUDGE TIMLIN: Okay, you have to stop for a minute.

MR. HEYMAN-KANTOR: This is non-responsive. We're putting in a lot of hearsay here and it's just --

JUDGE TIMLIN: Okay. Again, I think, do a few sentences and then try to stop so that he can ask you questions because you're getting a little far from the question.

THE WITNESS: It's a lot of information. And our full process into getting to where we got, it wasn't taken lightly and I would like the Court to understand that, just the way we had a chance to understand from the other witnesses what their experience has been.

MR. HEYMAN-KANTOR: Your Honor, I'm going to object again. The counsel makes arguments, not the witness.

MR. SCHULTE: He's just explaining himself, Your Honor, you know.

JUDGE TIMLIN: I understand.

MR. SCHULTE: Okay.

JUDGE TIMLIN: I would ask you to try to either visually signal him or something to tell him that he's answered your question and now that it's time for you to ask another question, so that we can get back into kind of the groove of question, answer, question, answer.

MR. SCHULTE: Okay.

BY MR. SCHULTE:

Q. Did you go to any meetings with agricultural groups that mention the H-2A program before you decided to join it?

A. Yes.

Q. What was your opinion of the program based on those meetings?

A. It's a tough program, in my opinion. It's a tough program in the very beginning to make sure you have all your ducks in a row so that you don't end up in a position that I'm sitting in right now. I was fearful of that from the beginning. And we did everything that we thought we could to proactively enter into this, going into the 2015 season by meeting with other growers that were already actively in it, getting some advice. All the major things that we could think about as far as handling the labor, the payroll, how we were going to change payroll in order to make it fair and be able to kept track of things. A lot of decisions made in the winter of 2014 going into the application process in 2015.

Q. You mentioned the payroll systems. Can you describe those to us?

A. Yeah. So when we decided to get in the H-2A Visa Program, as everyone in this room knows, there's a prevailing wage that goes along with that. That was another almost deterrent. So we knew we had to change our pay, approach to payroll to try and deal with this. So at an hourly, at a set hourly rate we decided and we talked with other growers who did this as well, we implemented a piece rate incentive program for the first time in 2015

The piece rate incentive was in two parts. For the employees, so those piece rates that are in the contract, they're incentives, not pay rates. So their pay rate is 11 -- what was it, $11.29 at the time. That's a given. They can't make any less than that. However, we've given the employee now an opportunity that if they want to perform better than another group or they want to work harder, they can make more money. They will make more money. And it keeps our costs at a fixed rate. However, if the crop isn't there, it's not plentiful enough, it takes them too long to harvest a crop, they don't make enough pieces, they're already guaranteed that $11.29.

Now if you think about that, you got 120 people on the payroll doing multiple jobs at multiple times, harvesting in multiple locations, start thinking that thought process through, how am I going to keep track of all this and it be right at the end of the day so that the man that does this hard work at the end of the day and he gets his check at the end of the week, it's right? So we had to go and look into software and hardware in order to assist in this.

Q. And were you part of the decision as to which software?

A. I was the one that found the software and the hardware. So the two systems, we already operated under Famous Software. Famous Software is our accounting software. It's our overall general ledger, sales and receipts.

MR. HEYMAN-KANTOR: I'm going to object again that the question was, was he part of the decision to use a new payroll. That was the only question.

JUDGE TIMLIN: True, that is a yes/no question.

THE WITNESS: Yes.

JUDGE TIMLIN: So stop there and he'll ask you the next question.

BY MR. SCHULTE:

Q. How many software systems did you choose to use beginning in 2015?

A. Two.

Q. Okay. Let's start with the accounting system. Can you tell us about the Famous system, how much it cost to set that up and what was involved with that?

A. Famous, we had already been using. Famous is our general ledger, overall accounting software, sales, packing, receiving, all that is all through Famous. It's a broad-based software. That has different levels of use, and for each level of use you pay for its use. It's like software. So to unlock the payroll module, it cost us $12,000 that year to utilize Famous Payroll System.

Q. Okay. And was there another software that integrated with that?

A. Yeah, so I learned about PET Tiger, Tiger Jill, this company, Orange Enterprises that makes a pretty slick -- or not pretty slick -- a very awesome software system to do employee data collection from the field. It's grower-based, it's field-based. It's large in California; a lot of California growers use it. That's why we had to pay the money to Famous to unlock the payroll because PET Tiger works in conjunction with Famous.

Q. How much did PET Tiger cost to set up?

A. That cost us in total with iPads --

MR. HEYMAN-KANTOR: I'm going to --

THE WITNESS: -- and scanners, $48,000.

MR. HEYMAN-KANTOR: I'm going to object as to relevance.

JUDGE TIMLIN: Well, there has been testimony about the payroll system. So --

MR. HEYMAN-KANTOR: But I don't see how the cost of it is relative.

MR. SCHULTE: It goes to their efforts at compliance, Your Honor.

JUDGE TIMLIN: Okay. Then it's fine.

BY MR. SCHULTE:

Q. There was testimony earlier about how, you know, pack-out data is added. Can you explain or shed some light on how the pack-out data is incorporated?

A. Yes. So to clarify the piece rate and how it's acquired, there are some jobs that are per individual: trimming trees, packing asparagus is individual pieces. By and large, the harvesting in the field is done in groups. And so if a group goes and picks peppers and they pick 100 bins of peppers today, that 100 bins of peppers gets put, scanned into PET Tiger. Those 100 bins come into our warehouse. They get lotted and tagged for that group. When they get run through our machinery and boxed into various sizes and whatever they're coming out to be, those bins then from the pack-out report get taken, the bins get taken out and the guys get paid for the packed out boxes. They're paid on quantity, not quality. They do not get deducted, docked in any way, shape or form for what they pick.

Q. Is there a difference in kind of their piece rate payments versus the commission that Agustin made, that we talked about?

A. Yes. So Agustin's, it's not really commission, it's a piece rate incentive as well for him. He used to get a commission. We took -- that went away in 2015. He now has a piece rate incentive, but his is not on quantity, it's on quality because he is the manager of the men in the field. He is the man that is supposed to -- him and among his other managers that he has with the groups, to direct the men in, direct the employees to harvest a crop properly for what we need for market. Otherwise the guys that are out there getting a piece rate quantity incentive, they would just run out there and pick as much as they could and fill as many bins as they could without regard to the quality of which they're harvesting.

So Agustin has got an incentive. He only gets paid on certain quality items that we expect in the packing house. So he has an incentive to oversee the crews, that they pick correctly. The crews are getting everything that they have coming to them for as hard as they work. They get paid on total quantity.

Q. If a worker, the amount that they pick and the corresponding piece rate for that doesn't get them to the $11.29, how much would they be paid for that hour?

A. The $11.29. But the Tiger figures that out. That's the reason why we went with the system. Tiger keeps track of the time. They're scanned when they start a job and they're scanned when they end the job. So those pieces, if a guy leaves that job early sick or we had to take him to another job to do another item and he's pulled out of that group, he's scanned out of that job for that period of time.

So say he only worked for two hours with that group picking peppers, the rest of the guys worked the full time. Well, he may only get -- he's going to get his allocation of the pieces based on the time he spent at the job. That's what the system tracks and allocates so that it's fair to everybody. He doesn't get the same amount of pieces as everyone else that stayed in that job at that, at that time.

MR. SCHULTE: Okay. I don't have an extra copy of this one so I'll just, I'll give you this one. But for Counsel and for Your Honor, it's -- we're going to look at RX-2, just page 13, please. It's in the R Binder. It should be the --

JUDGE TIMLIN: Right.

MR. SCHULTE: Actually we've got a series of those, I'm sorry, you're right. So it's --

JUDGE TIMLIN: I found that.

MR. SCHULTE: -- should be Volume 1, Exhibit 2. And just page 13.

BY MR. SCHULTE:

Q. Do you recognize that document?

A. Yes.

Q. Where do you know it from?

A. The current one from -- which year is this? This is 2015. It's the camp inspection report, the current one for this year is hanging up in our office. It's where they -- that's where we put them when we get them. They have to be in a conspicuous location.

Q. Okay. And you've seen this before today?

A. Mm-hmm.

Q. Does --
A. Well, that year I would have seen it hanging up on the wall in the office.
Q. Right. This seems to be an accurate copy of it?
A. Mm-hmm.
Q. Okay, if we can --
JUDGE TIMLIN: Make sure -- yeah.
THE WITNESS: Yes. I'm sorry. Yes.
MR. SCHULTE: Yes. Can we introduce just this one page as the exhibit?
JUDGE TIMLIN: Well --
MR. SCHULTE: So this is going to be --
JUDGE TIMLIN: So any -- yeah -- that's fine.
Any objection to the admission of RX-2, page 13?
MR. HEYMAN-KANTOR: I would object as to relevance. We've never cited them for failing to pass a beginning of the year inspection.
MR. SCHULTE: There are two grounds, Your Honor. It's less about the condition of the housing at the time of inspection. It's more they brought into question the number of available beds. That's one of the charges against the company is that not enough beds were made available. This speaks to the occupancy and in turn the number beds for that number of workers. It's for fairly limited purposes.
MR. HEYMAN-KANTOR: I withdraw the objection.

JUDGE TIMLIN: Okay. It's admitted.

(Whereupon, the document referred to and previously marked for identification as Respondent's Exhibit 2, page 13 was received into evidence.)

BY MR. SCHULTE:

Q. Okay. Is there a box there that refers to the maximum housed?

A. Yes.

Q. What's the number there?

A. 136.

Q. And what's your understanding of what that means?

A. The housing is approved for 136 occupants.

Q. And are you familiar with the housing standards for the camp housing?

A. No.

Q. In general terms?

A. In general terms, possibly.

Q. Do you know if those standards require a bed for each worker?

A. Oh, I -- yeah, sure.

Q. Okay. So based on this record, do you know how many beds were available for workers in that year?

A. 136.
Q. Do you know how many workers were at Sun Valley at any given time in that year?
A. 120 was the maximum at the height of employment.
Q. And did all 120 live in the housing?
A. Yes.
Q. Were there any --
A. No, I -- in that record you'd have to take two off because Agustin and his son are part of that payroll and they live in their own house. So two less than, one, I -- say 118, possibly.
Q. And do you know how many lockers were made available in that year?
A. I do not. I don't. To be honest with you, I don't. It's part of -- not part of my responsibility. I don't, I'm not actually in, I'm not --
Q. Okay. Do you what was provided in terms of bedding that year?
A. I don't know personally because I don't handle that part of it.
Q. Okay.
A. But if we were approved for 136, 136 would have had to been observed by the agent that did the inspection of the housing.
Q. Okay. Just going back to the packing data for a second. Does Lisa input that or does someone else input that?

A. No. So it's a couple moving targets. So like I said, it starts in the field with the bins because they pick into bins. When we run it through our packing house to box it for shipments, it's then Monica Constentino (ph.), my nephew, Dominick Marino.

Dominick Marino is the warehouse manager and operations supervisor of the warehouse. He makes sure that, Monica and him make sure that the lots that come in are tagged appropriately so when we run them, they're run separate and pieces that come from that then out of Famous are -- Famous Packing Module generates a pack-out report. It's very specific of what came out of it. It includes the lot number, the date, the run time, the various packages that came out of it and totals.

He then takes that total and puts that into PET Tiger. He'll take the 100 bins out and then he puts the packages in because they're getting paid for packages, not bins. A bin could be -- I'm just using numbers -- could be 60 packages worth of packed-out product. So they obviously want to get paid on -- their pay rate is on the package, not the bins. But we put the bins in initially so there's a checks and balances because the run, the pack run, states the amount of bins that went in. And this way the employees, if ever questioned, well, I think this would have packed out better, there's always a bin per box ratio on every pack-out. And you could just determine from there, and if something ever came up drastically short or drastically higher you'd have to have a reason for that. Product was no good or somebody a mistake, so --

Q. You talk about the product not being good. What would happen if -- what does it mean if the product isn't good, that's harvested? What's the situation?

A. We try to pack as many seconds. We have some customers, I do have some customers that will take a number 2 quality product. Not a lot. Unfortunately, a lot of stuff does go to waste and spread in fields. However, we do, and always have, supported Farmers Against Hunger. It's a program that comes to our place once a week and picks up stuff that is unsalable.

Q. Going back to the 2015 season, did you ever meet with Agustin before the season to talk to him about the change to the H-2A program?

A. Yes.

Q. What did you talk about with him?

A. We talked about the fact that we were going to try it. We needed to know how many, because we weren't doing it 100 percent. We needed to know how many domestics he expected that he was going to be able to retain from previous years, because the number's been getting harder and harder every year.

And then how many that he would expect that we would have needed through H-2A.

And we talked about any recommendations that he could make as far as, you know, knowing some of the employees, and I think he did the best he could to come up with some people that were in the program that he knew. And I think the first group, that might have been some that he had contact with.

Q. You mentioned returning U.S. workers. Were there workers in 2015 who had been at Sun Valley in previous years?

A. Yes.

Q. Do you know about how many?

A. I do not. I do not.

Q. Okay, but do you know if any of the workers who worked there in 2015 have come in years after that?

A. Yes. They have.

Q. The workers who were there in 2015 who had been there in previous years, do you know if they were familiar with kind of how the farm operated?

A. Yes.

Q. As far as local transportation?

A. Yes.

Q. Did they know about meals?

A. Yes.

Q. Before they came?

A. Yes.

Q. Okay. Did you ever talk to Agustin about keeping receipts?

A. Yes, we've told Agustin for years. Again, we do not run the food program, but there's always been a food program available to the guys. This is always the way it's been and we've always told him, you run this, your stuff better be in order when they come in and ask for receipts, because you cannot make a profit on the men. I'd always been clear about that. We've told him over and over and over again. Even though we don't do it and we have no hand in it, nothing is ever deducted. We don't -- I had nothing to do with it.

It's been very -- I have been very adamant over the years, this food thing, you better know what you're entitled to; go to the meetings with my brother and make sure you follow the rules. That's -- I've always done -- I've always said that.

Q. What is Sun Valley's role, if any, in setting the price of drinks there?

A. Absolutely nothing.

Q. Meal prices?

A. Nothing. None, at all.

Q. Menus?

A. Nothing. Nothing to do with it.

Q. So your brother Russell testified about the form he received from Theresa. Did you have any part in that?

A. No, I did not.
Q. Did you ever create a form --
A. No, I didn't.
Q. -- in-house?
A. No.
Q. Were you at the meeting in May with the workers?
A. Yes, I was.
Q. Do you know where the meeting was?
A. Yeah, it was at the camp, migrant camp.
Q. Where in the camp? Remember, we saw the picture kind of before?
A. So you look at the picture, as you're approaching, the dining tables are in the middle, the kitchen to the right, and it was to the right of that. The part of the building I believe in a couple of the pictures you couldn't make out the rest of it. It was down that end.
Q. Okay. And where is that building located with respect to some of the asparagus fields?
A. It's surrounded by asparagus.
Q. How far is it from the dorm to the field?
A. At some points it's 15, 20 feet.
Q. Could you hear what everyone said at the meeting?
A. I could only understand what was translated through Agustin and when I asked questions what, I understood everything that was explained to me. Yes.

Q. Okay. Before you got to the meeting, did anyone tell you why there was going to be a meeting?

A. Well, yeah. I got a phone call from -- again, we have different responsibilities and my guess, my brother had already been hearing there was issues that these guys didn't want to do the work. Agustin obviously was having problems from day one. And then when it finally comes to a head and decisions are being made, then we call each other. And I got a phone call saying, hey, we got 19 guys that want to leave. I'm like, what, you're kidding me? I mean, they just got here and the asparagus is growing by the minute, and you got 19 guys who want to leave? Yeah, they're at the camp now, they want to talk, and I'm heading over there. I said, well I'll be there as quick as I can. And I went over there.

Q. Okay. How long had they been there at that point?

A. I'm not sure. I think they got, I think they got one paycheck. They might have been there a little longer than a week as far as total time. I don't know for certain.

Q. Okay. Based on what Agustin was translating, interpreting at the meeting, did you have an understanding about what the workers' position was?

A. They seemed more -- they seemed to me that they didn't want to do the work. They flat out said they didn't want to do the work. They said the work was too hard, that this is not for them.

There definitely was one guy doing all the talking. Two other guys I remember chimed in at a few points, you know, saying the same thing. We can't keep up the pace. This is not what we expected. And some of the other guys kind of seemed like they were even thinking about staying.

We told them, we need you bad. You obviously see the amount of acres of asparagus. And we planned for that. We needed 40 guys, minimum, to walk over that much asparagus. Nineteen now want to leave. This is like, it's, it was a terrible feeling.

My brother even told them, listen, this is not about pride this is, just be honest. If this is not what you want to do, nobody's mad, nobody's upset. If that's your decision, you're leaving, you want to go home, nobody's mad at you. But you have to tell us what you want to do. You're either staying to work, or you're leaving because we have to make decisions. We got to call the agent. We got to call -- and it's not easy, you just don't go down the street and go replace 19 guys. We know the wheels are already spinning in our head. This is like, we won't be able to replace these guys if they leave for at least two weeks. What do we do for two weeks?

Q. Whose choice was it that they left?

A. They all decided they were leaving. They all looked at one another and the one guy asked the other guys, what do you want to do, we want to leave? And they all, yeah. One by one, yeah we're leaving. My brother asked them twice. That's your final decision? You're leaving? Yes, we want to go home. Nothing we can do. So I left and I told Russ, I said make sure you call Theresa and make sure you do everything that we're supposed to do to document this. And, again, we're scared of that. It's the first year in H-2A program. We want to make sure that everything happens the way that it needs to happen. Then, I left with confidence that he was going to do it the way it had to be done.

Q. And what happened to the asparagus fields?

A. We couldn't keep up to it. It was unusually hot, particularly that week. It was unusually hot and it was growing fast. And 19 less guys, the guys that were left to pick, they couldn't walk over it within a day's time. And when it's that hot, you literally could almost watch it grow, that fast. So what they picked in the morning was already, the next day's stuff was already too tall and the heads were spreading and it was you just cut it on the ground. The guys would cut on the ground until they got to grass that was marketable.

Q. And for the parts that weren't marketable, were you able -- you weren't able to sell those?

A. No, you can't. That's just the, it's the, I say, it's just the frustrating thing about asparagus. There's just that sweet spot of, you need at least seven inches of green with a tight head or you can't market it. They won't take it.

The bunch itself is seven inches. If they cut it too short, we can't market it. It goes to waste. If it grows too fast and the head spreads, now they consider that to be the head went to flower and the customers won't take it.

So it's very -- there's a -- you need to be very conscious of cutting asparagus. And then everybody's -- I don't know if everybody's eaten asparagus, you see how big it is. It's very thin. It takes a lot of one pieces of asparagus to make up a 28 pound box. So every blade that's out there is important to try to get it to be marketable.

Q. How much do your customers have to do with the size or quality of the goods that you pack-out?

A. I don't understand the question.

Q. Do you decide and they'll take whatever you sell, or do they tell what kind they want?

A. No. Certain customers have certain specs. Your retailers want the certain size asparagus, but that has no bearing on the job that it was picked. That has to do with the diameter, and that only has to do with the asparagus and how it comes out of the ground. There's no bearing on how it was harvested.

Q. Did Sun Valley lose money as a result of those workers leaving?

A. Yeah. Everything we cut on the ground, we -- yeah, we had to cut asparagus on the ground.

Q. Okay. Did Sun Valley fire any of the workers then?

A. No. No. And I want to be on the record, Sun Valley has never fired anyone. Ever.

Q. Well, were there any workers that were let go because of, you know, there was not enough work?

A. Yes.

Q. Okay. Other than that, is that what you're talking about?

A. Yes, but I don't consider them to be fired. They, again, they weren't fired. They were let go to lack of work.

Q. What's the -- other than that group of 19 and then the group that were let go we talked about, what's the largest group of workers that's ever left Sun Valley?

A. There's always, with farm labor and as many people as we employ, there's always going to be a few fluctuations in payroll. Even on a weekly basis we've had it. Never more than three, maybe four at a time. Guys used to typically come in small groups, either related -- family members, brothers, cousins, friends. And if one wants to leave, he usually takes the other two or three with him. Never, never, never a large group of guys, ever. Never.

Q. If you had one or two workers that weren't happy with their job, what can you do to address their concerns?

A. If any concerns were ever brought up, we've always dealt with any issues that have come our way.

Q. Instead of 19 workers, say there was one worker who didn't like picking asparagus, could you have done anything to accommodate that?

A. We would accommodate it in the same way with the 19. We would ask them to stay. If it was one guy or 19, we needed all 40 guys. We needed all 40 guys. And not only that, it's not a walk-in. This is a huge investment into an employee with this program. My brother testified and that's what we have quantitated it to. It's cost us $1,000 per employee to participate in the program. That's everything all in, visas and advertising --

MR. HEYMAN-KANTOR: I object again. This is, the question is -- he is non-responsive. This is beyond the scope of the question.

JUDGE TIMLIN: I lost the question. I did lose the question because he does tend -- because you do tend to ramble, Mr. Marino. Not ramble -- I understand what, I mean, and I understand, but I did lose the question. What was the question?

MR. SCHULTE: We can start with a new one.

JUDGE TIMLIN: Yeah.

BY MR. SCHULTE:

Q. What was the cost involved with bringing workers to the farm from foreign countries?

A. For which, domestic or --

Q. H-2A workers.

A. H-2A workers, we've quantitated, we've put it at a figure of about $1,000 per employee to participate.

Q. You've had -- did you pay that for the 19 workers who left?

A. Yes.

Q. Do you have to pay that for the replacement workers to fill their spots?

A. Yes. Yes.

Q. Can you describe what happened with the pepper crop in 2015?

A. Yeah, so it was unusually wet season. We had a slight hail storm on that crop which introduced an injury to the pepper crop. And then bacteria set in and bacteria's a very, very, very tough disease to control, especially when you have a point of entry and you have the weather we had. And it spread through the field like you went through there with a torch. Pepper is a long-term crop and it's a big part of our business, 200 acres worth of work and the largest volume crop which we harvest. And we usually pick peppers four times for market and then we'll pick the rest of the season into September, October for processing. It's a lot of work. Gone. We picked them, one-and-a-half times we made it over the field and that was it. There was nothing left to pick. It was over.

Q. Without the peppers to pick, did that change your labor needs?

A. Yeah. Everything we based our projections on for the program were based on having a pepper crop throughout the season. I mean, I said it's 200 acres worth of work.

Q. How many times in a healthy season will you go through the same pepper field?

A. Four times for market and then after that it's processor for as long as they'll keep producing peppers, straight into as late as October.

Q. Apart from the meeting we talked about in May, did any of the workers ever bring concerns to you in 2015?

A. No.

Q. If they had, what would you do?

A. I, or Agustin -- me, it doesn't usually get directed to me but if it did, I would pull Agustin and find out what's going on. What are the issues? Why is it not being addressed?

Q. Apart from the 19 who quit in May, do you know how many H-2A and domestic workers were still there?

A. So that year domestic workers did the peach trimming. I'm going to guess, without looking at the payroll records directly, I'm going to say maybe there were 20. There were 20 employees there before the first H-2A application employees arrived, and I don't think we got the full request on the first round. I think there was about 36 H-2A. So maybe just under 60 in total, but I -- without looking exactly, but about 60.

Q. So, but the people, out of that number, how many were working in the asparagus crop?
A. All of them.
Q. Okay. So without leading, how many workers would have been left after the 19?
A. Less than 40.
Q. Okay. Were they doing the same work as those 19?
A. Yes.
Q. Living in the same housing?
A. Yes.
Q. Eating the same meals?
A. Yes.
Q. Did any of them ever raise concerns with you?
A. No.
Q. Did you ever hear from Agustin that they'd raised concerns with him?
A. No.
Q. With Russell?
A. No.
Q. How many of the workers that you had in -- do you know if any of the workers you had in 2015 continued to work with Sun Valley in future years? Or in subsequent years, rather?
A. Repeat the question?
Q. Did any of the 2015 workers ever return to Sun Valley after that year?

A. Oh, yes.

Q. Did they return this year?

A. Yes.

Q. Did any of the workers named on any of the -- any of the workers for whom back wages are sought ever return?

A. Yes.

Q. Did they ever complain in the later years?

A. No.

Q. Okay. Does Sun Valley deduct any amount from workers' paychecks for --

A. Only what's required by law.

Q. And what is involved in that?

A. Whatever is required by law in pay taxes, if they're non-H-2A. If it's H-2A, there's nothing deducted.

Q. Okay. So only taxes paid to the government?

A. Mm-hmm.

Q. Does Sun Valley --

A. Or, yes. I'm sorry.

Q. Okay, sorry. Does Sun Valley profit in any way from Agustin's sale of drinks?

A. No.

Q. Meals?

A. No.

Q. Beer?

A. No.
Q. Chips?
A. No.
Q. Does that change your total wage costs in any way?
A. No.
MR. SCHULTE: At the risk of this being open-ended and we can signal to cut it off, I'm just going to ask a more open-ended question and see where it goes.
JUDGE TIMLIN: Mm-hmm.
BY MR. SCHULTE:
Q. Unlike some of the other witnesses, you've had the opportunity to hear some of the other testimony. Was there anything that you'd heard that you would like to elaborate on or explain?
MR. HEYMAN-KANTOR: I'm going to object. That calls for narrative. There's been an immense amount of --
JUDGE TIMLIN: Yeah, that's --
MR. HEYMAN-KANTOR: -- testimony in this case.
JUDGE TIMLIN: -- going to be way too, that's way too far.
MR. SCHULTE: Okay. That's why I was saying that we can signal to --
JUDGE TIMLIN: Yeah, that's --
MR. SCHULTE: -- shut it off.
JUDGE TIMLIN: -- way too broad. Sorry.

BY MR. SCHULTE:

Q. Is there anything else you can tell me about the meal charges that we've missed?

A. Not that I'm --

Q. About the 19 workers who left in May?

A. No.

Q. In the years -- in 2016, start with that. In 2016 what was the largest number of workers that left Sun Valley at any one time?

A. To my knowledge, I don't think any.

Q. Were the working conditions the same in 2016 as '15?

A. Always.

Q. 2017?

A. Yes.

Q. Any large groups leave this year?

A. No.

MR. SCHULTE: Okay. Nothing further on direct, Your Honor.

JUDGE TIMLIN: Okay. Cross?

MR. HEYMAN-KANTOR: Yes, just give me a moment, Your Honor.

JUDGE TIMLIN: Sure.

CROSS-EXAMINATION

BY MR. HEYMAN-KANTOR:

Q. So you said earlier that Sun Valley spent around $70,000 for the new payroll system. Or how much, how much did you say?

A. It's about $12,000 with Famous and $48,000, I believe and change with PET Tiger.

Q. So about $60,000?

A. Yeah, give or take.

Q. Okay. And you say your revenue, Sun Valley's gross annual income in 2015 was about $7 million or $8 million?

MR. SCHULTE: Objection, Your Honor. This is both beyond the scope of direct and irrelevant even if had covered it.

MR. HEYMAN-KANTOS: Well, it's relevant because --

JUDGE TIMLIN: He did bring in issues about the cost of what they paid for the software, what they paid for the employees. So I'm going to find that it's relevant.

BY MR. HEYMAN-KANTOR:

Q. So I'll repeat it. Would you say that the gross annual income for Sun Valley in 2015 was about $7 million or $8 million?

MR. SCHULTE: And I would object to the basis. That's not in evidence.

MR. HEYMAN-KANTOR: I'm asking a question.

JUDGE TIMLIN: He's asking a question. He can disagree if it's not, if it's --

THE WITNESS: I can't even testify to that without my tax records in front of me.

BY MR. HEYMAN-KANTOR:

Q. It was probably more than $5 million?

A. Could have been.

Q. Could have been? Could have been $10 million?

A. No.

Q. Okay. If you could -- how about your net annual income for 2015 could that be about $4 million or $5 million?

A. Not without looking at my tax information.

Q. Okay. Can you -- do you have Binder 9 near you? If you take a look at PX-40. If you look at page 1222.

A. Okay.

Q. This is your brother's, Russell Marino, Jr.'s signature there.

A. Yes.

Q. Okay. And if you look at page -- and this is a -- if you look at page 1217, this is an I-129 petition for non-immigrant worker.

A. What page?

Q. 1217.

A. What's the question?

Q. This is an I-129 petition for non-immigrant worker.

A. Okay.

Q. Then if you look at page 1221. Do you see where it says, gross annual income $7,500,000.

MR. SCHULTE: Objection, Your Honor. The question was about the 2015 income.

JUDGE TIMLIN: I think this is the one point I was going to --

MR. SCHULTE: This is a document that was signed in March of 2015, so I'm not sure what you're actually referring to, but it was not referring to the income from 2015.

BY MR. HEYMAN-KANTOR:

Q. All right, well, let me ask you this. It says -- fair point. So in 2014, did Sun Valley Orchards' have $7,500,000 in gross annual income?

A. I do not know.

Q. Do you have any reason to doubt that it did?

A. I don't know what the figure was.

Q. You can put the binder away.

A. Mm-hmm.

Q. So you bought this new system after the 2014 growing season was over?

A. Yes.

Q. And the reason you bought it was to keep track of worker hours and pay?

A. Correct.

Q. And the reason you needed it was because of the new piece rate that you, Sun Valley implemented?

A. Correct.

Q. The H-2A program doesn't require workers to be paid on a piece rate, correct?
A. No, it does not.
Q. And you had said earlier that workers -- that in 2015, that workers never complained to you?
A. No.
Q. The H-2A workers in 2015 are from Mexico, correct?
A. To the best of my knowledge, I believe.
Q. And you don't speak Spanish?
A. No, I do not.
Q. So these workers would have complained to Agustin, if they had a problem?
A. Sure. That's the chain of command.
Q. So you testified earlier about your -- about what happened at the May 2015 meeting? And when I say, May 2015 meeting, I'm talking about any involvement talking about the workers who were, whose work ended in 2015.
A. Yeah, I understand.
Q. You understand what I'm referring to?
A. I understand.
Q. And you remember, you testified that you remember what Russell said?
A. Part of what he said, from what I can remember.
Q. You remember what the workers said?
A. Part of what they said, yes. That it --

Q. They're talking about how someone chimed in to interrupt someone else?

A. I mean, I don't understand "chimed in. What do you --

Q. You used that phrase, that a worker chimed in to say something in the meeting.

A. Yeah, they were, one or two would -- there was one guy generally speaking like he was speaking on behalf of all them, and he would make a few comments and then look at the guys, and the only -- I believe my testimony was, only one or two other guys chimed in with anything else to offer.

Q. And you're --

A. Not everyone spoke. Not every, not all 19 of those employees spoke. They shook their heads and they, you know, looked at each other, but not every, not all of them spoke.

Q. But you remember what Agustin translated to you?

A. To some degree.

Q. And you remember what Russ said at the meeting?

A. Part of what he said.

Q. And this is from your own personal recollection?

A. This is from what I remember taking away because it was very distinct in what was said, yes.

Q. Do you remember being deposed in this case?

A. Yes.

Q. And during that deposition, you took an oath?

A. Yes.
Q. To tell the truth?
A. Yes.
Q. And that's the same oath that you took here.
A. Yes.
MR. HEYMAN-KANTOR: I'd like to approach the Witness and show him his deposition.
JUDGE TIMLIN: Sure.
MR. HEYMAN-KANTOR: There you go, Your Honor. It's a copy.
JUDGE TIMLIN: Okay. Thanks.
BY MR. HEYMAN-KANTOR:
Q. All right. Could you please turn to page 51? All right, if you look at line 9, I'm going to read aloud and if you could please read to yourself silently.
"Question: Who spoke at that meeting?
"Answer: My brother, Agustin.
"Question: Did anyone else speak?
"Answer: I don't recall.
"Question: Did you speak at that meeting?
"Answer: I don't recall. I don't remember what was said. Again, I'm under oath so everything I answer has got to be the truth and don't remember, so."
Did I read that correctly?
A. Yes.

Q. All right. I'd like to move to page 52, on line 8. This is just little less than a page down.

"Question: Did Russ speak Spanish at that meeting?

"Answer: Yes.

"Did you understand what he said?

"Answer: No.

"Question: Did Russ speak English at that meeting?

"Answer: Yes.

"Question: What did he say?

"Answer: I don't remember."

Did I read that correctly?

A. Yes, you did.

Q. All right. I'm going to move a little bit further down line 21, on that same page.

"Question: Did you understand when he spoke?

"Answer: English?

"Question: Anything he said. Did you understand it?

"Answer: When he spoke English.

"Question: Do you know what he said?

"No.

"Question: Who spoke first at that meeting?

"Answer: I don't recall.

"Question: How many workers spoke?

"Answer: I don't recall.

"Question: Was it more than one?

"Answer: I don't recall.

"Question: Was anyone upset at that meeting?

"Answer: No."

All right. Did I read that correctly?

A. Yes, you did.

Q. All right, I'd like to move to the next page. Page 54, line 4.

"Question: Did the workers explain any concerns they had at that meeting?

"Answer: I don't recall. Again, I'm going to tell you again, I don't know specifically what was said. I just explained the mood of the meeting. I explained the intent, what was going on. I can't recall from the 2015, the exact words of what was said, who said what, when, where and how. I don't, I don't remember. So move onto the next one.

"Is there anything else about the meeting in 2015 that we haven't discussed that you do remember?

"Answer: No.

"Question: Do you have notes, do you have any notes from that meeting?

"Answer: No."

Did I read that correctly?

A. Yes, you did.

MR. HEYMAN-KANTOS: No further questions.

JUDGE TIMLIN: Okay. Any redirect?

MR. SCHULTE: Just a couple, Your Honor.

MR. HEYMAN-KANTOR: You can -- you know, I'll take that back.

JUDGE TIMLIN: Is there anything else?

MR. SCHULTE: Your Honor, if I may approach?

JUDGE TIMLIN: Yeah.

MR. SCHULTE: Thank you.

REDIRECT EXAMINATION

BY MR. SCHULTE:

Q. That May meeting that we were just talking about. Isn't that an important time in that season?

A. Yes.

Q. Something that would have left an impression with you?

A. Yes.

Q. Why is that?

A. It was a tough thing to happen at a tough time in the season.

Q. Something that you'd remember that stuck out, out of that year?

A. Yes.

Q. Okay. And so that's why you were able to tell us, you know, what you recall from that meeting now?

A. Yes.

Q. Was there any doubt, while you were at the meeting or afterward whether the workers wanted to leave or not?

A. No. They said they wanted to go home.

Q. You're very clear on that?

A. Yes.

Q. Do you know if other growers in this area use PET Tiger or not?

A. None.

Q. Okay. Even the H-2As?

A. None.

Q. Is it -- what's the reputation of the program? What have you heard about that program?

A. It's used widely in California on large farms.

Q. Is it considered state of the art?

A. Very much so.

Q. Okay.

MR. SCHULTE: Nothing else.

MR. HEYMAN-KANTOR: No question from the Administrator, Your Honor.

JUDGE TIMLIN: All right, let's see what I've got. You kind of took care of the first question, which is what is IPM, and you already answered that.

And you may not know the answer to this, but you testified that Agustin pays -- in 2015, Agustin was paying the cooks in his kitchen. Do you know whether he handles the taxes and deductions for the payroll?

THE WITNESS: I do not.

JUDGE TIMLIN: When you talked about this whole system, this PET Tiger System where the guys scan, I just want to make sure that I understand. So the guys scan in the morning when they go to their field assignment, and that scan tells you what field they're working on and who they are and what time they started?

THE WITNESS: Yes, and what group they're a part of.

JUDGE TIMLIN: And what group they're a part of. And then if their group -- because they wouldn't move individually, they move in a group?

THE WITNESS: They mostly move as a group. It'd be rare to take someone individually, but on occasion it could happen.

JUDGE TIMLIN: But their group, or an individual gets sent to a different job during the course of the day on a different field, do they scan out of that one field and into another field?

THE WITNESS: Yeah, they don't have to physically scan. In the iPad that runs the software, you can change an employee's job in the iPad. He doesn't have to be physically scanned.

JUDGE TIMLIN: Oh, so Agustin could do that?

THE WITNESS: Yes. He could do that.

JUDGE TIMLIN: He could say, okay, well, now I'm sending you over to this other farm field.

THE WITNESS: Yes. As well as two or three, I mean there's three iPads in total, being each -- I know Chao has an iPad and a scanner. And, I'm not sure who else uses them, but there's three, three maybe four in use daily.

JUDGE TIMLIN: Who was the other person besides Agustin you mentioned?

THE WITNESS: That I know of is Chao.

JUDGE TIMLIN: Chao? Oh, okay. I think we heard his --

THE WITNESS: Yeah. Agustin designates a person to manage. There's, I think three groups. He can't be everywhere at once.

JUDGE TIMLIN: Right. I think we heard the same before.

THE WITNESS: Yes.

JUDGE TIMLIN: So they -- and so anyone who has an iPad can manually input data into the iPad about where guys are working?

THE WITNESS: Yes. And change their jobs and their locations.

JUDGE TIMLIN: But one of the things that the -- and I think this came out with Ms. Justice, but one of the things that the system does not pick up is things like sick days or somebody got injured or somebody --

THE WITNESS: No. No, Your Honor.

JUDGE TIMLIN: -- you know, took the day off, a work day.

THE WITNESS: We've never kept a record. No, we never kept a record of that. We've never. You know, family business. We've always tried to treat people as we wanted to be treated, and if somebody doesn't want to work that day, they just, they don't have to work.

JUDGE TIMLIN: But and they don't get paid?

THE WITNESS: And they don't get paid.

JUDGE TIMLIN: Right.

THE WITNESS: And you work, you get paid, so --

JUDGE TIMLIN: All right.

THE WITNESS: But certainly we will if it's needed.

JUDGE TIMLIN: That is for you coming towards the end of things, but a lot of the questions that I've had throughout the week have already been answered.

When you said some of the 2015 workers have returned for 2016 or returned in 2017, are they H-2A workers or domestic workers who returned, or both?

THE WITNESS: Both.

JUDGE TIMLIN: And some of the H-2A workers who came in 2015, are H-2A workers that came because Agustin recruited them, he already knew them?

THE WITNESS: He tried to some extent. And, yeah.

JUDGE TIMLIN: So you had a few?

THE WITNESS: A few. I don't know the exact number. The first year's tough because you don't know a lot of people.

JUDGE TIMLIN: All right. Did that bring up anything for you?

Okay. Thank you.

THE WITNESS: All right.

JUDGE TIMLIN: You can step down and go back to your seat at the table.

(Witness excused.)

JUDGE TIMLIN: Mr. Schulte?

MR. SCHULTE: We have no more witnesses. Do you want to take care of exhibits briefly?

JUDGE TIMLIN: Yeah. Yeah, why don't we do that. Do you know where your District Director is, folks?

MR. HEYMAN-KANTOS: She's here I'm told.

JUDGE TIMLIN: She's here. Okay. So let's do their exhibits, and then we'll bring her in to testify. And we may have to take a quick break before that because I'm running out of paper. Okay. I've gone through three pads so far.

MR. HEYMAN-KANTOS: I'm running out of Post-its, so Your Honor, we could have a --

JUDGE TIMLIN: So okay. Go ahead. So I don't have a whole lot from you. I just have that you've offered --

MR. SCHULTE: We have the pictures with John.

JUDGE TIMLIN: It was on page 13 of Respondent's 2.
MR. SCHULTE: Correct.
JUDGE TIMLIN: And you did offer Respondent's Exhibit 4, but then you withdrew it.
MR. SCHULTE: We've withdrawn that.
JUDGE TIMLIN: So the rest of the things in this binder are the other things you were attending for them?
MR. SCHULTE: Yes, please.
JUDGE TIMLIN: Okay.
MR. SCHULTE: Exhibit -- well, and these may be a matter of judicial notice, so I don't know if that would be technically an exhibit or goes to the admissibility issue, but we can raise three government documents quickly. RX-5 is a Federal Register notice issued by the Department.
JUDGE TIMLIN: Okay. Let me find the right --
MR. SCHULTE: It should also be in -- actually, you know, I --
JUDGE TIMLIN: Yeah.
MR. SCHULTE: -- think that's the only one.
JUDGE TIMLIN: RX-5.
MR. GLICK: Your Honor --
JUDGE TIMLIN: And you have a list here, right? Yeah.
MR. SCHULTE: Yes.
JUDGE TIMLIN: Okay. Yes, go ahead.

MR. GLICK: The Administrator certainly has no objection to RX-5. I'm not sure it even needs to be entered as an exhibit, and we certainly have concerns about the relevance of the information here. But, it's clearly a Federal Register.

JUDGE TIMLIN: Yeah, right. Well, I -- you know what, I'm going to admit it just because then it's easy for me to find.

(Whereupon, the document referred to and previously marked for identification as Respondent's Exhibit No. 5 received into evidence.)

MR. SCHULTE: For purposes of reference?

JUDGE TIMLIN: Yeah.

MR. SCHULTE: The next two would be RX-7 and RX-8. Those are USDA documents referring to calculations of, basically cost of preparing food at home in 2015.

MR. GLICK: I wish to object on, in addition to relevance of the document that a foundation for each of these exhibits.

JUDGE TIMLIN: What are you using this for?

MR. SCHULTE: Essentially to show what the cost to -- part of the issue was sort of the cost of the meal plans as -- for calculation of damages, $75 to $80 per week, as opposed to what a weekly cost would be to prepare food kind of generally in the market.

JUDGE TIMLIN: So would it be -- so would it be your position that if I were to find that -- let me just, let me just talk this through, Mr. Glick. If I were to find that there was some back wages due for employees for the meal plan, you would argue from these USDA amounts that I would still have, that I would reduce it by whatever it would normally cost if somebody had a kitchen in their house and could prepare meals?

MR. SCHULTE: And more specifically that the plans, the cost associated here are actually slightly greater than the Department of Labor allow cost from the previous document and are actually consistently more than the amount that was actually charged to the worker. So that any amounts that they paid was less than they would have paid on the market.

MR. GLICK: Your Honor, and this issue has come up in the parties' briefing today, and I certainly expect it to continue to be an issue. And briefly, the question of the relevance of cost information by, you know, the regulation particularly 20 C.F.R. Section 655.122 and Subsections (g), (p) and (q) together are quite clear that the issue is disclosure. And it would completely defeat the purpose of the disclosure requirement if an employer were permitted to argue that a plan, you know, was at some permissible cost, because the entire point of disclosure -- and again, this is getting into the merits by the relevance of an estimate of cost. I mean, there's also been no foundation for these particular pages here.

JUDGE TIMLIN: Well, they're, I mean --

MR. SCHULTE: The Government publication that --

JUDGE TIMLIN: Right, it's --

MR. SCHULTE: -- I think there could be a matter of judicial notice but just for ease of reference, if --

JUDGE TIMLIN: And I'm not saying one way or the other whether I'm buying that argument. But if you're going to make the argument then we might as well put the government plan, the USDA meal plan pieces in just so that I don't have to go searching for them. I understand the objection, but I'm going to admit them.

(Whereupon, the documents referred to and previously marked for identification as Respondent's Exhibit No. 7 and 8 were received into evidence.)

JUDGE TIMLIN: Go ahead.

MR. SCHULTE: Exhibits 9 and 10 are Administrator's responses to interrogatories and requests for admissions.

JUDGE TIMLIN: Okay. Any objection?

MR. GLICK: No objection other than the objections stated within the documents.

JUDGE TIMLIN: All right. Hold on.

MR. SCHULTE: Sorry.

JUDGE TIMLIN: I have to log it. Okay, go ahead.

(Whereupon, the documents referred to and previously marked for identification as Respondent's Exhibit No. 9 and 10 were received into evidence.)

MR. SCHULTE: The next we can, videos, agree it's 11 through 19 are all transcript excerpts. None of the videos associates are exhibits. Just the straight transcripts excerpts from the witnesses who were disposed pretrial.

JUDGE TIMLIN: Okay. So here's my question. Did you guys submit transcript excerpts or whole transcripts?

MR. GLICK: We submitted excerpts of the depositions that were put into evidence.

JUDGE TIMLIN: Okay. So you submitted excerpts and you submitted excerpts. So --

MR. SCHULTE: There may be some overlap, Your Honor, but it's not 100 percent, certainly.

JUDGE TIMLIN: All right. Well, I -- if I let them in for you guys, then I'm going to let them in for their guys, because obviously, you know, you didn't have a -- did you have an objection here?

MR. GLICK: Well, I have a couple of points that are similar in the nature of objections. First, the Federal Rule of 801, Federal Rule of Evidence 801(d)(2)(d), pursuant to which the Court admitted the depositions of Mr. Russell Marino, Jr. and Mr. Joseph Marino, were offered against party. And the wholesale admission of all the other excerpts, you know, sort of against the Administrator is not consistent with the rule. I understand there may be some questions about completeness and there may be particular pages in Respondent's excerpts of those two depositions, but I don't think the whole transcript comes in automatically. It's essentially bolstering --

MR. SCHULTE: We don't want the whole transcript, Your Honor. Just pieces. The same as theirs.

JUDGE TIMLIN: I understand what you're saying, Mr. Glick, but I have to say, I mean, and I understand that if they're offering it, then it isn't really in the Administrator's interest. I get that technically. But I do have concerns about completeness, and I would not feel comfortable taking your excerpts from the transcript and not taking their excerpts from the transcript. That just seems to some extent fundamentally unfair. So, I'm going to admit the -- and that's 11, 12 and 13.

MR. GLICK: May, Your Honor, I believe --

JUDGE TIMLIN: Go ahead.

MR. GLICK: I believe it was 12 and 13, because 11 --

JUDGE TIMLIN: Is Mr. Hernandez.

MR. GLICK: And we haven't, we did not yet move to admit the deposition of Mr. Hernandez. We would move to do so if the Court is moving Respondent's Exhibit 11.

JUDGE TIMLIN: Ah, okay. I see what you're doing. So do you want -- so are you still moving Mr. -- what's your basis for bringing Mr. Hernandez's deposition in? Because they have not admitted that as -- they have not admitted any excerpts from Mr. Hernandez's deposition as a party admission against interest. Mr. Hernandez was here and he testified. So what would be the interest for your perspective in bringing in that hearsay evidence?

MR. SCHULTE: And if they're not going to introduce the transcript then I won't need to either.

JUDGE TIMLIN: Okay.

MR. SCHULTE: It's essentially for completeness.

JUDGE TIMLIN: So we're going to withdraw -- 11 is not coming in.

MR. SCHULTE: Okay.

JUDGE TIMLIN: Okay. So we have 12 and 13. And then let's -- then we've got 14 is the Cinta Tagoma; 15 is Cervantes Ramirez; 16 is Garcia Dominguez; and 17 is Silva Lopez. Let me make sure -- 18, Elizondo Soto; and then 19 is Morales Acosta.

And these are all deposition excerpts that --

MR. SCHULTE: These will correspond to the excerpts that --

JUDGE TIMLIN: You'd like --

MR. SCHULTE: -- from the same batch of de bene esse.

JUDGE TIMLIN: -- to put in excerpts from these depositions.

MR. GLICK: That's correct.

MR. SCHULTE: They'd also provided the video excerpts.

JUDGE TIMLIN: Right.

MR. SCHULTE: We, you know, didn't have the original videos to edit, so these are just the written transcript.

JUDGE TIMLIN: So are you objecting to their excerpts on any grounds?

MR. GLICK: Well, on two grounds. One as to the particular excerpts as to relevance; we raised those objections in our pretrial objections submitted to the Court a few weeks before trial. And then objections made at the time of the deposition as to form and other such issues.

JUDGE TIMLIN: Right. Well, those objections -- right. Well, again, if I found their -- if I found your offerings of excerpted depositions relevant, I'm going to let them put in their excerpts too.

MR. GLICK: I would ask that we be permitted if there are particular passages to which we have made timely objections, that we'd be able to continue to assert those in the course of briefing.

JUDGE TIMLIN: Right. Absolutely, and when I go through the deposition transcripts, if there's objections from either side that are outstanding, I'll take a look at them too, and address them.

MR. SCHULTE: Thank Your Honor. And so just, so we're, so those are both kind of --

JUDGE TIMLIN: They're all admitted.

(Whereupon, the documents referred to and previously marked for identification as Respondent's Exhibits 12 through 19 are received into evidence.)

MR. SCHULTE: -- contemporaneous, you know, objections, but also the ones filed with the Court a couple of weeks ago.

JUDGE TIMLIN: Right.

MR. SCHULTE: For both parties, right?

JUDGE TIMLIN: Right, for both parties. Okay.

MR. SCHULTE: And that's it, Your Honor.

JUDGE TIMLIN: Okay. So that's, so, okay. Okay, then let's take just a real short break, like five minutes, then we'll bring in the District Director and I'll bring in more paper.

(Briefly off the record.)

COURT REPORTER: We're on the record.

JUDGE TIMLIN: Oh sorry, on the record.

COURT REPORTER: That's okay.

JUDGE TIMLIN: Oh my God. It's been so many days. I've been forgetting.

Whereupon,

CHARLENE RACHOR,

A witness on behalf of the Plaintiff herein, having been first duly sworn, was examined and testified as follows:

JUDGE TIMLIN: Okay, great. Have a seat.

DIRECT EXAMINATION

BY MR. HEYMAN-KANTOR:

Q. Good afternoon, Ms. Rachor. What is your current occupation?

A. District Director of the Southern New Jersey District Office for the Wage and Hour Division.

Q. What are your duties in that position?

A. I have many duties. I oversee investigations in all of the laws that we enforce. I supervise investigators and support staff. And I have various administrative duties. I also issue letters regarding findings of investigations, including H-2A determination letters.

Q. Do you have any role with civil money penalty assessments?

A. I do. I oversee and approve civil money penalty assessments and those civil money penalty assessments are issued to employers by way of letters, documents.

Q. How long have you worked for the Department of Labor?

A. I've worked for the Department of Labor for just over 20 years.

Q. What positions have you held?

A. I was a wage hour investigator for nine years. I was an assistant district director in the Wilkes-Barre, Pennsylvania District Office for eight, and I've been district director here in Southern New Jersey for about three-and-a-half.

Q. How many investigations have you supervised or worked on involving agricultural labor?

A. I have either participated as an investigator or supervised 88 agriculture-related investigations.

Q. And how many investigations have you supervised or worked on where you were involved in considering civil money penalty assessment?

A. Well, in all of those, that number, 88 investigations, I would have been involved in considering civil money penalty assessments, either in the investigator role or as a manager.

Q. Have you had any training in carrying out investigations under the H-2A program?

A. I have. Part of basic investigator training or what we call Basic 1, Basic 2, which I had early in my career. In 2007, I participated in an advanced agricultural training class. And then in 2015, I believe we all took H-2A CMP training via our web-based learning system.

Q. I'd like to ask you about your role in this case involving Sun Valley Orchards. Did you have any role in the civil money penalty assessment in this case?

A. I did. I reviewed the civil money penalty computations that were done by Investigator Perez. I approved those computations and ultimately we issued the assessment letter, which has my signature on it.

Q. Let me show you an exhibit. Do you have Binder 8 in front of you, JX-1 to 10, it says on the front?

JUDGE TIMLIN: It's one of the black binders.

THE WITNESS: Yeah, I don't think I have that up here.

JUDGE TIMLIN: This one?

THE WITNESS: Oh great, here it is. Yep, on the floor, buried under someone else.

BY MR. HEYMAN-KANTOR:

Q. Can you please turn to JX-10, page 155? Do you recognize this document?

A. Yes, this is the H-2A determination letter that was issued in June of 2016.

Q. Can you turn to page 157? Is that your signature?

A. Yes, that's my signature.

Q. So you're familiar with this document?

A. Yes, I am.

Q. And what was your role with this document?

A. I reviewed and approved the civil money penalties that are referenced in this document.

Q. Okay. So I'd like to ask you about some of those civil money penalties, and specific citations. If you could turn to page 160.

A. Okay.

Q. I'm first going to go to the -- ask you about the wage-related citations. So if you see this second citation where it says on the left "20 C.F.R. 655.122(g)." What was that citation for?

A. This citation refers to the violations with the failure to provide free and open kitchen facilities which were noted on the H-2A job order that would be provided to the workers. And an H-2A does require that either the employer provide meals or provide free and open kitchen facilities for the workers to prepare their meals. And indeed, that's what was indicated on the job order. Except that when the workers arrived, they found out that they were going to be participating in a meal plan that had charges that they would incur.

Q. And were any civil money penalties assessed for this citation?

A. Yes.

Q. How much?

A. $198,450.

Q. How did Wage Hour go about in determining how much to assess?

A. Well, we started with the base amount for that particular violation which is $1,500. For this violation we assessed on a per person basis, as opposed to per requirement. And that means that we assessed that base amount for each particular worker that was affected by that.

Q. Why did you do it on a per person rather than per requirement basis?

A. Well, for a number of reasons. One, there were a large amount of workers affected. This was certainly a violation that was a violation right on the face of the job order. And it's a serious violation because the workers are expecting to come and have these free and open kitchen facilities to make their own meals, and instead they're going to be incurring charges.

MR. SCHULTE: Sorry to interrupt, Your Honor, but just to the extent that -- I guess we can get into it later, but having, we're now talking at least triple hearsay as to what the workers thought or knew.

JUDGE TIMLIN: I don't think she said anything about what the workers thought or knew. I thought she said that it was a serious --

MR. SCHULTE: Because the work --

JUDGE TIMLIN: -- because it on the face of the job orders --

MR. SCHULTE: The workers expected something.

JUDGE TIMLIN: -- it notified the workers that they were going to have something when they got here that they did not have was the basis of her decision.

MR. SCHULTE: But she's talking about what the workers thought. Or what the workers knew.

JUDGE TIMLIN: I'm going to overrule that because that's not the way I heard it. What I heard, it was that it was -- that one of the factors that she looked at was on the face of the job order.

So, okay, continue.

BY MR. HEYMAN-KANTOR:

Q. After you -- after Wage Hour decided to assess on the per person rather than per requirement basis, what did Wage Hour do next in determining the amount of civil money penalties assessed?

A. Well, again, looking at that base amount of $1,500, there's just a number of factors that we consider as far as reducing that amount.

Q. Do you have those factors memorized by heart?

A. I do not.

Q. Right.

MR. HEYMAN-KANTOR: Your Honor, I'd like to refresh the Witness' recollection with the civil money penalty factors.

JUDGE TIMLIN: Sure.

MR. HEYMAN-KANTOR: A copy for you. For you. For you.

BY MR. HEYMAN-KANTOR:

Q. All right. Can you tell me are these the factors? These are, what I handed you is 29 C.F.R. 501.19. Are these factors here in Subsection B, are these the factors that Wage Hour considered?

A. Yes.

Q. And how many of these factors did Wage Hour consider?

A. Well, we would consider all of the factors and whether or not there is, you know, there's relevance or evidence to support a reduction by going through each one of the factors.

Q. And did you consider -- did you do a separate consideration of these factors for different workers, depending on how many meals they purchased? Or was it a uniform assessment, or was it done some other way?

A. It was a uniform assessment.

Q. Can you explain how you considered these factors?

A. Yes. The first factor listed on here, B-1 discusses previous history, prior history of the employer. We did allow a 10 percent deduction for this particular factor because there was no prior H-2A history with Sun Valley Orchards. So that would take 10 percent off of that base amount of $1,500.

The second factor, the number of H-2A workers and corresponding workers involved as a result of the violation, we did not allow a 10 percent reduction for that because there's a large amount of workers affected by this violation, 147.

The third factor, the gravity of the violation, just from what I said a few minutes earlier, you know, we felt that this was indeed a very serious violation. And it's really like a breach of a contract, really. You know, the job order spells out working conditions, pay rates, and those are what the workers expect when they come here. So we felt that was serious.

The fourth factor talks about efforts being in good faith to comply. We didn't feel that there were good faith efforts to comply through previous investigative history with Marino Brothers and Sun Valley, not under H-2A. They had meal plans before and it appears that the meal plan was certainly in place obviously with this investigation also, and then there was no effort made to discontinue the meal plan.

The fifth factor is the explanation from the person charged with the violation. And again, we didn't feel that there was really a good explanation for why the violation was occurring.

And the sixth factor is the commitment to future compliance and we didn't feel that there was indeed a good commitment to future compliance, so we didn't allow a reduction for this factor.

The seventh factor on the next page talks about the extent of financial gain to the person charged with the violation and also financial loss to the workers affected. And we didn't allow a reduction for that factor either for a number of reasons, and I think a very easy one is that obviously the workers having to pay $75 or $80 a week for the meal plan is certainly a financial loss to them, especially, you know, especially when they were coming here expecting not to have to pay for a meal plan.

Also there's opportunity for profit by the employer. Having to construct kitchen facilities to accommodate almost 150 workers, I think would have to be a big investment, and certainly that wasn't done. The workers had no free and open kitchen facilities. In fact, the kitchen that existed was locked. And also there was opportunity for profit by the employer because they had long standing employee who was basically put in charge of running the kitchen at a profit by charging the meal plan charges. So we didn't allow a reduction for that either. So the civil money penalty amount is basically $1,350 times 147.

JUDGE TIMLIN: Continue.

BY MR. HEYMAN-KANTOR:

Q. Yes. If you could look at page -- the next page. See where -- yes, sorry, that's JX-10, page 161, where it says, "655.122(p)" at the bottom. What was that violation for?

A. We charged that violation, again it's somewhat related to the other violation that we talked about, where this violation talks about a failure to comply with the deduction requirements. So, in other words, improper deductions that the workers incurred. So certainly the meal plan that wasn't disclosed on the job order is an improper deduction. There were also beer and other drinks that were being sold at a profit to the workers, so in essence that becomes an improper deduction to the workers.

Q. And were civil money penalties assessed for that citation?

A. We did not assess civil money penalties for that citation.

Q. Why not?

A. We felt again that in an effort to be reasonable, although we certainly could have incited a civil money penalty here, we thought the violation was somewhat similar to the violation we'd talked about with the failure to provide meals. But we did want to have it noted on record that indeed there was a violation with that.

Q. Did Wage Hour determine for certain that Sun Valley made a profit off, or that anyone made a profit off of the meals part of it?

A. Not to my knowledge.

Q. And if no profit was made would this civil money penalties still be justified?

A. They could still be justified because, again, there was no disclosure about the meal plan, so that in essence because an improper deduction. And the fact that we know the company store existed and they were selling drinks and beer, and they were certainly being sold at a profit, so we would still cite that violation.

Q. Now, I'd like to look at JX-10, page 161, the same page. It's the second one on that page, 6, subsection or section 655.122(q). What was that citation for?

A. This citation is in reference to the fact that the copy of the work contract that was provided to the workers really was not a true and accurate disclosure of what the true working conditions are. And again, that references the charges with the meal plan. You know, there were no meal plan charges listed on the job order when, in fact, there were meal plan charges to the workers. So we cited that violation again.

Q. Did Wage Hour assess any civil money penalties for that?

A. No, we did not.

Q. All right. Let's move up to violation, the citation directly above that still on page JX-10, page 161, where it says, where it refers to Section 655.122(i). What was that violation for?

A. This violation references the fact that there were two groups of workers. In fact, over 20 workers who did not receive the three-quarter guarantee required under H-2A regulations.

Q. And were civil money penalties assessed for that, for that violation?

A. Yes, they were.

Q. How much.

A. $1,350.

Q. And how did Wage Hour go about assessing civil money penalties for that violation?

A. Again, there's a base civil money penalty amount of $1,500. Now I think it's fairly clear that on this particular citation, we did the assessment per requirement as opposed to per worker. And again, I looked at all of the potential mitigating factors to see if any applied.

Q. And can you walk us through your consideration of those factors?

A. Yes. The first factor, again, I did allow the 10 percent reduction Sun Valley has no prior H-2A history. So that's where we end up with the $1,350. We did not allow a reduction for the other factors.

The second factor, the number of workers involved, there were over 20 workers involved with this violation that were owed back wages so we felt that there was no reduction justified.

The gravity of the violation, the third factor, again, this is a serious violation. We have workers who didn't receive wages that they were promised by the contract, and that in turn cuts down on the money that they can put in their pocket or potentially send home. So we didn't feel a reduction was justified there.

The fourth factor, the efforts made in good faith to comply, we didn't feel that there were good faith efforts to comply with that, and I'm sure we're going to get into later but, you know, we have workers who were basically constructively terminated, so we didn't feel that there was a need for a reduction there. The explanation from the person charged with the violation, we didn't feel that there was really indeed a good explanation from the employers to why that violation occurred.

The sixth factor, commitment to future compliance, again, there was really no commitment to future compliance in the determination letter, that Ms. Rachor has discussed of --

JUDGE TIMLIN: The $198,450.

MR. HEYMAN-KANTOR: Yes. Yes. That has not been increased at all. That has remained the assessment.

MR. SCHULTE: Does some part of that cover drinks? That's, I think if it's either zero --

JUDGE TIMLIN: Well, her testimony when --

MR. SCHULTE: -- or $200,000.

JUDGE TIMLIN: I mean when she gave her testimony and her reasoning for that, she didn't say anything that would suggest that it increased to add in drinks. It sounded like she started with $1,500, which is the base charge, and then she multiplied it by number of employees and then she took whatever mitigating deductions. And it didn't sound like there was any, that it didn't sound like there was any mention at all when she was talking about all of that, of drinks.

MR. SCHULTE: There were two things, Your Honor. She said that there were some workers who didn't purchase meals, but did purchase drinks, so there were CMPs assessed for them. And then there's also testimony that the part of the assessment was that the drinks needed to be included in the meal. So if it truly is zero, and there are no CMPs resulting from Agustin's sale of drinks to anybody, then you're absolutely right. We're not going to fight over zero. We'll take yes for an answer. But I can't tell from the explanation whether drinks are being assessed a CMP, or part of a CMP.

JUDGE TIMLIN: Okay, so that's a question you can ask her.

MR. SCHULTE: Okay.

JUDGE TIMLIN: Because that --

MR. SCHULTE: I don't know. Yeah.

JUDGE TIMLIN: And I thought I heard what I heard, but certainly you should explore that.

BY MR. SCHULTE:

Q. Is the sale of drinks the basis for any CMP?

A. No.

Q. So the 147 workers times $1,350, that's only for meals?

A. It's for the fact that the workers had to pay for a meal plan.

Q. Right, right. But I'm saying meals as in separate from drinks or beer or some other drinks, or some other, you know, were separate from beverages. Is there a difference of 147 for the $75 or $80 payment to Agustin for meals? That's -- is that the basis for the $198,450 we've been talking about?

A. Yes.

Q. No other reason?

A. My assessment was based on the fact that they purchased meals, which may have included a drink. There were also drinks that were sold separately for a profit for which we did cite the violation, but we didn't assess a CMP.

Q. Okay, that's the section (p), the deduction for the profit?

A. (p), yes.

Q. Okay. So when you say you did also take into account for the $198,000 the purchase of drinks, was that your testimony?

A. It includes the meal plan, which may have included a drink as part of that meal plan. I didn't assess a separate civil money penalty --

Q. I'm not sure I follow you. What drinks were included with the $75 or $80, the $75 payment for meals?

A. There would typically be drink included with the meal.

Q. I'm not sure. So we might be talking about two different things. So it was that there were, there was water or coffee provided or that there was purchases of additional --

A. I don't know what's --

Q. -- drinks?

A. I don't know which specific drink would be provided.

Q. Which drinks are you talking about? That's more important than what I think. Which drinks. you said you took into account that there were purchases of that, you took into account drinks as part of the $198,450.

A. Maybe to be clear, I took into account for the unlawful deduction violation, the purchase of drinks like that were sold at a profit, like beer or soft drinks or something like that.

Q. Okay. So for those violations, their back wages, but no CMPs whatsoever?

A. The back wages cover the meal plan issue.

Q. But not drinks?

A. Not specifically drinks only.

Q. So there's no part of this $234,000 that relates to the sale of soft drinks or beer?

A. That violation was cited under the 655.122(p) --

Q. Okay, so if I'm reading --

A. -- for drinks sold at a profit.

Q. -- that correctly, so that showing zero dollars for back wages and zero dollars for CMPs. Is that right?

MR. HEYMAN-KANTOR: Your Honor, I believe Counsel is confusing the issues. There was a change to the CMP and back wage assessments so that the amounts for drinks, the back wages for drinks were done under (p)(2). So --

JUDGE TIMLIN: But there are no back wages for drinks? I mean, there's no assessment of CMP or back wages for the sale of drinks from the coolers out in the field or from this LP or from the refrigerators?

MR. HEYMAN-KANTOS: Originally --

JUDGE TIMLIN: There may -- I don't care about originally. I care about right --

MR. HEYMAN-KANTOS: Right now, yes.

JUDGE TIMLIN: What I'm looking at and what I have to decide about

MR. HEYMAN-KANTOR: Right. The back wages for drinks were changed after germination there so that now they're under (p)(2). And that is what we put in our order of reference, under (p). So, and we've also put that in our, in all of our motion papers, and our --

MR. SCHULTE: You said except --

MR. HEYMAN-KANTOR: -- that we use in our prehearing statement as well, so.

MR. SCHULTE: -- in the notice issues in changing determinations, but -

BY MR. SCHULTE:

Q. So are you familiar with the back wages in the case, as well?

A. I am familiar with the total amount. I'm not familiar with specifics.

Q. Are you familiar with the components of it?

A. Not very familiar, no.

Q. Okay. Would that have been important to know for calculating the CMPs?

A. I know our investigator and I know he would do the back wages as accurately as possible. So my testimony and my involvement in the case was really more geared toward the civil money penalty assessments.

Q. Is it this investigator in particular or do you ever check into the back wages?

A. For the investigator that I specifically supervise, I do.

Q. Do you supervise this one?

A. No.

Q. You're in charge of the whole district though, correct?

A. Yes.

Q. But you don't supervise him?

A. I don't immediately supervise this particular investigator.

Q. Did someone else check his calculations?

A. I would think so.

Q. Okay. And again, with just going to the meals, leaving -- we'll finally put drinks in the rearview mirror. So just meals, like just on the plate, $75 a week. Why wasn't there a difference for there were some workers who were there for a week and some worker who were there for six months, and your position is that it should be the same penalty?

A. Yes.

Q. Why?

A. Any worker affected, whether it's a week or whether it's six months, or whether it's eight months.

Q. What about workers who had been there previously in previous years, paid for the meal plan and came back? Same position?

A. This investigation was done under the H-2A regulations. There was no H-2A history with this employer.

Q. Understood.

A. So if they used a meal plan before, it may not have been an issue, or it may have been an issue.

Q. It's not that they should have been penalized before. It's that if a worker was familiar with that, knew that and then came back in 2015 and knew about the meal plan, would that change your calculation?

A. No.

Q. Okay. But your testimony was that the workers expected one thing, and then were surprised by something else, right? That was the reason that this has such gravity?

A. Whether they were a returning worker or a new worker, the point of the H-2A job order is to specify the working conditions including whether or not there's going to be a meal plan charge or if there were, the employer's going to provide free meals, or the free and open kitchen facilities.

Q. So when and what context would a worker get free meals?

A. The employer could choose to provide free meals.
Q. Well, any employer could, but in H-2A context, when would an employer be required to provide free meals?
A. They can provide the free and open cooking facilities.
Q. That's not the same thing as providing a meal, though, is it?
A. Well, the regulations give the employer the option of providing meals, or providing the free and open kitchen facilities, or disclosing a meal charge if there is one.
Q. You referred to the good faith effort to comply. Did you look at subsequent year job orders for the employer?
A. No.
Q. Okay. What was your basis for concluding that they had made no effort to discontinue?
A. Evidence provided through the case file.
Q. What evidence was that?
A. The meal plan continued and the employees continued to pay for the meal plan.
Q. When did it continue?
A. I don't know specifically.
Q. No, but you said it continued. You know, from when, continued after what? What does that mean?
A. I don't know which particular date.
Q. Not a date. I mean, it continued after the investigator visited? It continued after the determination? After the WH-56 was provided? It continued after the findings were made to them? What, was there -- you meant something by that. I'm just trying to understand what you meant.

A. From my understanding and doing the CMP assessment, there was no effort to discontinue the meal plan once they were made aware.

Q. When were they made aware?

A. They would have been made aware as soon as the investigators found out about the meal plan or did the final conference.

Q. When was the final conference?

A. I don't know the specific date.

Q. Okay. Could it have been in early 2016?

A. I don't know.

Q. Would it have been during that season?

A. I really can't say specifically.

Q. Okay, so when you said no effort to discontinue, if there were no more workers there, I'm not sure I understand what that means. You know, when you say that they made no efforts to discontinue that, you must have some knowledge that it continued then.

A. From the evidence in the case file that the meal plan was how the workers got their food.

Q. Okay, but you didn't look at the job order for 2016?

regarding that particular violation.

And the seventh factor again talks about financial gain and loss to the workers. Certainly both existed here by not paying that three-quarter guarantee; certainly the employer gets a profit from that because of the wages that weren't paid out. And as far as the loss, you know, the workers didn't receive those wages, so it is wages that they didn't get that they were promised.

Q. Can you explain in general why is it three-quarters guarantee citation like this one, what do you -- why is that a problem in terms of gravity of the violation due to that factor?

A. Well, as I said, we have a situation where, you know, workers are -- H-2A allows an employer to bring over farmer workers, non-immigrant workers by laying out terms and conditions of employment basically in the form of a contract. The workers are provided a copy of that so they can see, okay, this is the money I'm going to earn. If they come here and they are terminated, forced to resign, and they don't receive that three-quarter guarantee, now that's wages that they've lost and perhaps they wouldn't have come.

Q. I'd like to turn to the next page, JX-10, page 162. There's just one citation there for Section 20 C.F.R. 501.5. What was that citation for?

A. This citation refers to the workers who were constructively terminated, forced to resign, having their rights interfered with. The evidence in our case file showed that the workers were forced to sign forms saying that they were leaving for their own personal reasons, when in fact that really wasn't the case. They had complained about poor working conditions, poor housing conditions, and general issues with how they were treated, and they were constructively terminated. So that's certainly an interference with their rights under the H-2A regulations.

Q. How much in civil money penalties were assessed for that citation?

A. $1,350.

Q. How did Wage Hour go about, and just in general in assessing civil money penalties? Well, let me say this. Were there any differences in the way that Wage Hour assessed civil money penalties for this violation as compared to the three-quarters guarantee citation?

A. No. We would again start with that base civil money penalty amount of $1,500, and look at potential mitigating factors to see if any would apply to reducing that amount. And here we assess a civil money penalty on a per requirement basis, as opposed to the per worker.

Q. All right. And just quickly, which factors, if any, did Wage Hour apply?

A. We applied a 10 percent reduction for the first factor. Again, the fact that there's no previous H-2A history with Sun Valley Orchards.

Q. Were any other factors applied?

A. No.

Q. Let me just ask you a couple of questions, just go through a couple of factors. So, factor 2, number of workers. How did Wage Hour consider that factor?

A. Well, we didn't allow a reduction for that factor because we felt that there was a significant number of workers affected by this particular violation. Again, like over 20. And for this particular violation that is -- it's serious. And even having one worker affected by this violation is serious. So we didn't allow a reduction for that.

Q. In terms of Factor 3, gravity of the violation, can you explain a little bit more how you considered that factor?

A. Well, again, the job order is really a promise to these workers of what they're going to be receiving, how they're going to be treated, what the working conditions will be. So certainly we consider the violation to have gravity because that's not what happened when they came here. So it's kind of like breaking a contract, breaking a promise. The workers were in essence coerced to sign forms noting that they were leaving for personal reasons. So for all of those reasons that I talked about, we wouldn't allow a reduction for that factor.

Q. All right. Why is asking workers to sign false forms a serious objection to --

MR. SCHULTE: Objection, Your Honor. That's his characterization.

MR. HEYMAN-KANTOS: I'm paraphrasing what she said.

JUDGE TIMLIN: Did she use the word false?

MR. SCHULTE: If you can just rephrase. I mean, the contents --

JUDGE TIMLIN: Yeah, can you just rephrase it and take out the word false.

MR. SCHULTE: The answer's kind of fine.

MR. HEYMAN-KANTOS: Sure.

Q. Why would having workers sign forms such as these be a serious violation on its own?

A. Because it's not an accurate description or not an accurate portrayal of what the actual circumstances were.

Q. All right. So I'd like to ask you about some of the non-wage related violations. If you could turn to JX-10, page 160. This first citation, what was that for?

A. This citation is regarding the housing safety and health violations that we found.

Q. And what were the specific citations for that?

A. We had a number of citations. There were some ripped screens, window screens in bathroom windows. Some screen doors that didn't fit tightly. Garbage cans that didn't have lids.

And then there were a couple of workers that were sleeping on the floor on mattresses. And there was some sinks, bathroom sinks that didn't have hot water.

Q. How much in civil money penalties were assessed for this citation?

A. $3,600.

Q. Okay. Let me ask you about some of the individual housing issues. So how much in civil money penalties were assessed for the bathroom screen, screen doors and garbage cans?

A. Well, again, for each particular violation, each of those violations, we started with the base civil money penalty amount of $1,500. And again, looking at each of those violations separately, we applied all of these, again, these mitigating factors to determine if there was a reduction that was appropriate.

Q. Did you apply them on a per worker, or per requirement basis, or some other basis?

A. It's basically on a per requirement basis. These are housing standard violations, so.

Q. And do you recall the amount of civil money penalties assessed for each of those specific issues?

A. Yes. Can I use a calculator?

Q. Yes.

A. Just to refresh my memory. Okay, so for the screens, the window screens, the screen doors, and the garbage can lids, each of those particular violations we assessed $900 a piece after applying the mitigating factors. For the mattresses on the floor and the hot water, after applying mitigating factors, each one of those violations was $450.

Q. So the mattress and the hot water, were those on per requirement or per worker basis?

A. Just per requirement.

Q. So let me focus on the bathroom screens, screen doors and garbage cans, which were $900 each. Can you walk us through the -- well, did Wage Hour consider the factors in the same way for these, for each of these three violations or differently?

A. The same way.

Q. Can you walk us through how Wage Hour considered the factors?

A. Yes. The first factor, we did allow the 10 percent reduction, again because there's no previous history for Sun Valley under the H-2A regulations.

The number of H-2A workers or workers in corresponding employment affected, we did not allow a reduction for that because certainly those types of violation affects all the workers that are in the camp.

The third, the gravity of the violation. These types of violations are indeed serious because if you have openings in window screens, or openings in doors, garbage can lids not on, it really creates the potential for an insect infestation or rodents, and the insects we found, there were mosquitoes, and large amount of mosquitoes and flies. So certainly that lends itself to saying that that particular violation has a lot of gravity to it. So we didn't allow a reduction for that.

Efforts made in good faith to comply. We did not allow a reduction for that because the violations weren't corrected immediately. Explanation from the person charged, we felt that there really wasn't a good explanation as to why the violations were occurring. There was indeed a commitment to future compliance, so we did allow a 10 percent reduction for that.

The seventh factor, the talking about the profit and loss, it really wasn't applicable for this situation, so we did allow a 10 percent reduction for that. And there actually isn't -- and what we consider an eighth factor, which is kind of like -- it's not really on this sheet, but it's like an overall factor to allow a reduction, basically looking at the totality of the violations and, you know, was there ever serious harm to the workers or something like that. And although there was an insect infestation in the camp, to our knowledge there was no serious illness or injury that occurred to the workers, so we did allow a 10 percent reduction for that.

Q. All right, thank you. And with the bathroom sinks and the mattress citations, they were $450 each. Can you, could you walk us through how those violations were cited?

A. Yes. Again, as I said earlier, each one starts at the base amount of $1,500. And we looked at all the factors. There were a couple of differences with these two particular violations. And I'm going to highlight those directly.

With the mattresses on the floor, we did allow a 10 percent reduction for Factor Number 2, which is the number of workers that were involved with the violation, and there were only two workers that we had evidence of that were actually sleeping on the floor with mattresses. So we felt that there wasn't a large amount of workers affected by that particular aspect of the violation, so we did allow a reduction for that.

We did allow a reduction for the gravity, Factor Number 3, for the mattresses because again to our evidence we had nothing to show that the workers were serious harmed. Certainly the potential does exist, but we didn't have evidence to show that any one was harmed by that.

For the mattresses, we did not allow a reduction for Factor Number 5. The explanation that we were given was that the employer didn't know there were people sleeping on the floor, which --

Q. And what about the other factors were, just in general, were other -- what other factors were applied, if any?

A. We did apply a Factor Number 6, the commitment to future compliance. We applied Factor Number 7, a 10 percent reduction for that because this particular issue with the mattresses on the floor didn't cause a financial gain to the employer or financial loss to the workers. And we did apply Factor Number 8, as well, which again, is not really listed here but --

MR. SCHULTE: I'm sorry, this isn't an objection, but just more kind of to clarify the record, did she cover Number 4?

JUDGE TIMLIN: Based on the good -- isn't that good faith?

MR. SCHULTE: Yeah, I just, I didn't --

JUDGE TIMLIN: In good faith? Yeah, if you didn't actually talk about that. You talked about the no good explanation, but you didn't talk about the good faith?

THE WITNESS: Okay.

JUDGE TIMLIN: Did you give them a deduction for good faith?

THE WITNESS: No, we did not.

JUDGE TIMLIN: And the reason?

THE WITNESS: We just felt that there was really no good faith effort to resolve that violation.

JUDGE TIMLIN: Okay. Continue Mr. Heyman-Kantor.

BY MR. HEYMAN-KANTOR:

Q. Sure. All right, so let me ask you about the transportation citations. JX-10, is on page 160, the bottom citation. What was that citation for?

A. This citation was in regard to failure to provide safe transportation for the workers and involved a number of kind of different violations under that.

Q. And what was the total amount of civil money penalties assessed for that?

A. $7,500.

Q. And what were the specific transportation citations that you, that were underlying that overall citation?

A. Well, there were five vehicles that were transporting workers and five drivers that were operating those vehicles, and none of those drivers had a license that was current and in compliance with the Jersey state law. So we had a violation for each of those five drivers.

In addition to that, three of the vehicles had one bald tire on each vehicle, and then there was also a vehicle that had a nonfunctioning rear signal light.

Q. All right, well, let's go through these categories of transportation violations. So with the driver's license violation, did you assess that? Did Wage Hour assess that on a per worker or per requirement or per violation basis?

A. Well, it's really like a per violation, per requirement basis.

Q. So how many violations were assessed for that?

A. So there were five violations, one for each of the drivers that didn't possess a valid license.

Q. All right. And did you apply the civil money penalties in the same way for each driver's license violation?

A. Yes, we did.

Q. And how did you go about applying that?

A. Again, the base amount for the civil money penalties is $1,500. And then we looked at all of these potential mitigating factors to determine if there was a legitimate reduction that should be applied.

Q. And can you walk us through the factors?

A. Yes. The first factor, we did allow a reduction for again there's no previous history for Sun Valley Orchards under the H-2A regulation, so there's a 10 percent reduction for that factor.

The number of workers, of H-2A workers and workers in corresponding employment that were affected, we did allow a reduction for this because each one of the vehicles carried 15 workers. So we allowed a reduction and said that the number of workers involved, since it was only 15, we allowed the 10 percent for that.

The gravity of the violation, we did not allow a 10 percent reduction for that because having unlicensed drivers operating vehicles is a serious and unsafe matter. You know, certainly we don't want unlicensed drivers or drivers that are not carrying a compliant driver's license driving workers.

Efforts made in good faith to comply, the fourth factor, we did not allow a reduction for this. An employee, Mr. Hernandez was told about the unlicensed drivers and really made no attempt to get that taken care of.

The fifth factor, the explanation from the person charged with the violation, we did not allow a reduction for that either. There really was no good explanation as to why there were unlicensed drivers.

Commitment to future compliance, we did allow a reduction for that because the employer did agree to future compliance.

The seventh factor, again talking about financial gain, really is not particularly applicable here, so we did allow a 10 percent reduction. There was no financial gain to the employer, or loss, financial loss to the workers.

And we did allow again that overall factor kind of number 8: we allowed a 10 percent reduction for that because there were no accidents that we knew of that occurred because of these violations, no harm to the workers.

Q. Thank you. Can you explain a little bit about the factors, the gravity of the violation? Why is it a serious violation for having drivers without licenses transport workers?

A. Well, basically, we don't know what their, what their history is. Can they even operate a vehicle? You know, are they safe to drive a vehicle? We don't know that unless they're properly licensed. So, you know, we certainly don't want to risk workers' safety and health by having them transported on open roads by people who don't have valid licenses.

Q. All right. Let me ask you about the buses with worn out tires. How many citations were for, did Wage Hour - sorry -- did Wage Hour assess civil money penalties for that citation?

A. Yes, we did.

Q. And how much?

A. Well, let me -- there were three vehicles that each had one bald tire. So we ultimately assessed $750 per vehicle.

Q. And did you go about assessing those -- sorry. You got about -- did Wage Hour go about assessing civil money penalties for those problems all in the same way or in different ways?

A. In the same way.

Q. All right. Can you just very briefly, you could say what factors you did apply or did not apply?

A. We did apply the first factor again. Again, there's no prior history so we allowed a 10 percent reduction for that.

The number of workers or workers, H-2A workers and workers in corresponding employment who were affected, again, each one of these vehicles carries 15 passengers so we felt that there weren't a large number of workers affected, so we allowed the reduction for that.

We did allow a reduction for Factor 3 for this violation, the gravity. There was one bald tire on each of three vehicles. The other three tires were indeed fine and had enough tread. So we allowed the 10 percent reduction for that. And that's really the main difference between the licensing violations.

Efforts made in good faith to comply, again, we didn't really see a real good faith effort to comply with that, this particular violation. And the explanation from the person charged, we did, again didn't allow a reduction for that because we didn't feel that there was a good explanation as to why the one tire was bald.

Commitment to future compliance, we did allow a reduction for that. There was indeed a commitment to future compliance from the employer.

The last two factors, again, Factor Number 7 talks about profit and loss, and this particular violation didn't really affect profit to the employer or a loss to the workers, so we allowed a 10 percent reduction for that. And then that last kind of overall factor, we allowed a 10 percent reduction for.

Q. All right. And what about -- you mentioned a citation for a bus with a rear directional light not working. What was, what amount of CMPs were assessed for that, if any?

A. That was the same amount, $400 and -- wait -- $750. I'm sorry.

Q. And how did you go about in assessing the civil money penalties for that, for that violation?

A. We did it in the same manner. Again, the base amount for the CMP would be $1,500 civil money penalty, using acronyms. And again, we would look at all of these potential mitigating factors.

Q. Okay. All right. Now, for the -- I think you had mentioned Factor 8. Are you certain that we, that Wage Hour applied a Factor 8, the catchall factor?

A. To the bald tires?

Q. The driver's license violations?

A. Let me just double check my -- unless I'm doing my math wrong.

Q. If I provide you with your declaration, would that refresh your recollection about the --

A. It probably would.

MR. HEYMAN-KANTOS: Your Honor, may I approach for the declaration?

JUDGE TIMLIN: Sure.

MR. SCHULTE: Take a look at this -

THE WITNESS: I stand corrected. I didn't consider Factor 8. There was a 40 percent reduction off of the $1,500 for each of the unlicensed drivers, which I did cover.

BY MR. HEYMAN-KANTOR:

Q. When you say -- did you consider the totality of the circumstances or did Wage Hour simply not consider other aspects of this? I just want to understand what you're saying by, you're saying Wage Hour didn't consider it or didn't apply.

A. We would have considered it. I didn't apply the 10 percent reduction.

Q. And let me ask you the same question for the tire treads and the broken lights. Are you certain that Wage Hour applied this miscellaneous factor for those violations?

A. It looks like we considered it, but we did not apply it.

Q. Earlier you talked about a mattress, civil money penalties for the mattresses. How much of the dollars or percentage of the total civil money penalties were assessed for that -- how big a part of the overall civil money penalty assessment were the mattress violations?

A. For the housing?

Q. No, in terms of -- I mean, how much in civil money penalties was assessed in this case?

A. For the mattress violation?

Q. No, for -- in the whole case? Do you recall?

A. The grand total --
Q. Yes.
A. -- of civil money penalties?
Q. Yes.
A. $212,250.
Q. And how much was for the mattress violation, civil money penalty?
A. $450.
Q. Do you know if this is -- was this the first time that Wage Hour investigated Sun Valley?
A. No.
Q. How do you know that?
A. I know that from the narratives that I've seen from previous case files.
Q. In these prior investigations did Wage Hour cite Sun Valley for anything?
A. Yes, we did.
Q. What?
A. In 2005 and 2006, there were transportation violations, again including for unlicensed drivers. And in 2013, I believe it was, there was an investigation which found meal charge violations. There were inflated charges for meals and drinks.
Q. And at the conclusion of these investigations, were any fines or back wages assessed?

A. Yes.

Q. And did Sun Valley pay any fines or back wages?

A. Yes.

Q. And you talked earlier about the civil money penalty assessment for the meals violations. Were any civil money penalties assessed for -- or rather, were any citations, were there any citations for drinks, violations related to sale of drinks and other items?

A. Yes, the sale of drinks was actually affected by two different citations. Certainly it was affected by the meals requirement to provide the meals or the free and open kitchen facilities, because part of the meal plan was including drinks. So certainly that's covered by that. But it's also covered by the citation about the unlawful deductions because there was not only just regular drinks being sold, but also beer and, you know, Monster drinks, things like that, that were being sold at profit.

Q. And were there separate civil money penalties that were assessed for the meal versus the drinks?

A. No.

Q. Why not?

A. Well, again, in an effort to be reasonable, we thought that most of the workers certainly by far ate the meals. But certainly probably all of them had drinks of some sort. So we just included the meals and the drinks together for that citation.

MR. HEYMAN-KANTOS: All right, no further questions.

JUDGE TIMLIN: Okay. Cross-examination?

MR. SCHULTE: Thank you.

CROSS-EXAMINATION

BY MR. SCHULTE:

Q. Is it safe to say, you're an expert in H-2A requirements, the regulations?

A. I can't say I'm an expert.

Q. Okay. How many H-2A investigations have you been a part of in your 20 years?

A. Either through investigating or through managing, I've been a part of 12 H-2A investigations.

Q. Okay. So about every two years, almost?

A. It's -- you can't really say that.

Q. On average?

A. Per year?

Q. Twelve divided by 20?

A. I can't really -- I mean, it would depend on the year.

Q. Do you need the calculator?

A. I don't because it really depends on the year and the nature.

Q. No, no, I'm not saying in any given year. That's the idea of an average, that it's over the whole total.

A. Okay.
Q. Before the 2015 training, when was your, the H-2A training you had before that?
A. In Basic 2, which was two years after I started, and then in 2007, I had Advanced Agricultural training.
Q. Okay. So when in 2015 was this training?
A. The particular month?
Q. Give or take, yeah?
A. I can't say.
Q. Okay. So the training that you had previous to that, under what set of H-2A regulations was that given?
A. It wouldn't have been in 2010, because it was in 2007.
Q. Okay. You just testified that the meal plan includes drinks. What do you mean by that?
A. That there would be a drink served with the particular meal.
Q. What kind of drink has to be served?
A. No particular kind of drink.
Q. Is water a drink?
A. Water is a drink.
Q. Was water served?
A. I don't know specifically.
Q. Okay. But, I mean, you've assessed almost $200,000 on this, I think you would know. So what drinks do you think should have been included in the meal?

A. I can't tell the employer what particular kinds of drinks.

Q. Was coffee provided?

A. I can't say.

Q. Okay, but a big part of this calculation -- and it's not just the $200,000 in civil money penalties, it's over $400,000 total, some of that relates to drink charges for soft drinks that the workers chose to buy. Which of those needed to be required to be provided for free as part of the meal?

A. I believe the regulation, must supply a drink, meals. It doesn't, I don't know of any specific requirement for a kind of drink.

Q. Good. But Wage Hour's conclusion was that all of those drinks needed to be provided for free?

A. All of the drinks that would come with a customary meal.

Q. Is Monster part of a customary meal?

A. Not for me, but I can't say for other people.

Q. So what does it mean to be a customary meal?

A. A breakfast, lunch or dinner.

Q. But what makes it customary? Everyone, you might drink, have a different breakfast. And what would make it a customary meal?

A. I would say that's fairly subjective. It certainly wouldn't include alcoholic beverages or drinks that are being sold at a profit.

Q. Who decides what's a customary meal?

A. We would look at the totality of the case and the circumstances and look at what the workers were being provided and what they were indeed consuming.

Q. So isn't that circular logic that if a worker drank something and it became part of a customary meal, it needed to be provided for free?

A. Well, again, under the H-2A regulations it is a requirement that the employer provide meals, which typically include a beverage of some sort, or provide the kitchen facilities for the workers to do that for themselves.

Q. Okay. Were there kitchen facilities there?

A. There were.

Q. Were they provided by the employer?

A. They were provided through the employer's, one of the employer's employees who ran the kitchen. And otherwise the kitchen was locked, was not accessible.

Q. At all times?

A. Yes, it was not accessible.

Q. Okay. You weren't here earlier. Who told you that the kitchen was locked at all times?

A. Well, the kitchen would have been locked for the workers. The only people that would have had access to the kitchen were the people preparing the meals.

Q. Right. What's the basis of your statement?

A. The case file evidence.

Q. Okay. And who said that?

MR. HEYMAN-KANTOR: Objection, seeking informant's privilege.

JUDGE TIMLIN: Right.

MR. SCHULTE: Well, no, no, no. I mean, it would seek informant's privilege if it wasn't somebody who has already testified. I mean, you don't need to, don't give me a name of somebody that's not part of the case, but I don't, I don't think --

MR. HEYMAN-KANTOR: I'm sure she'd --

MR. SCHULTE: -- testimony's come in that the kitchen was locked at all times. And so we're talking third or fourth degree hearsay. She's just offering statements about, you know, the facts to support her conclusion, without really knowing what those facts are, or the basis for them at least.

MR. HEYMAN-KANTOR: Her testimony is based on -- you can -- she can certainly say it was based on something, the investigator said that identifying a worker, that's informant privilege. If you're asking for what worker told her, or what worker made a statement about it.

BY MR. SCHULTE:

Q. Did any worker tell you that?

A. No.
Q. Who told you that?
A. The investigator.
Q. Okay. Did he tell you how he found out?
A. It would have come through interviews with workers.
Q. Okay. And if he had not testified, he testified for the last several days actually. You know, if he testified that -- if he did not testify that the kitchen was locked at all times, would that be different than what he told you previously?
A. Could you repeat that?
Q. I'll try. He testified for the last couple days. If he did not testify while he was here for hour and hour that the kitchen was locked at all times, would that have been consistent with what he had told you?
MR. HEYMAN-KANTOR: I want to object to mischaracterizing what that witness testified. He testified that workers were not allowed to use the kitchen, the part of the kitchen where you cook meals.
MR. SCHULTE: He never said the kitchen was locked, at any point.
MR. HEYMAN-KANTOR: There was a photo that was submitted.
JUDGE TIMLIN: Right. Right. There was testimony about the kitchen being locked at times. And there was certainly this testimony about the kitchen not being accessible to workers.

MR. SCHULTE: It's not their -- him, but okay. We'll move on.

JUDGE TIMLIN: Is it like -

BY MR. SCHULTE:

Q. But the Director's conclusion was that all of the soft drinks were required to be provided for free? Is that right?

A. All of the meals should be provided for free, or the workers can have access to make those meals themselves, and have access refrigeration to have their own beverages.

Q. And that's included, that's per the H-2A requirements?

A. Yes.

Q. H-2A requirements require meals to be provided for free?

A. Or so that the workers have access to the free and open convenient cooking facilities so that they can prepare their own meals.

Q. Okay. Where in the H-2A requirements does it speak of free meals?

A. I don't know the exact citation.

Q. Is it possible that it says meals can be provided for a charge?

A. It is possible, if that charge is disclosed.
Q. And if not, the meals are free?
A. The meals are being provided by the employer.
Q. And they must be free?
A. Free of charge. If there is a charge it needs to be disclosed.
Q. Who provided the meals?
A. The meals were provided by Mr. Hernandez and his wife.
Q. Okay. Did Sun Valley provide the meals?
A. Mr. Hernandez is an employee of Sun Valley.
Q. Okay. You spoke of the profit from the drinks. What was Sun Valley's profit in this case?
A. I don't know what their specific profit was, but the beer and the drinks that were sold in the company store were being sold at a profit.
Q. And what's the company store?
A. The company store is an area where drinks, cigarettes, beer were being sold.
Q. Who called it that?
A. It's a term that I guess I'm using colloquially. It's a store. A place where things are being sold. I won't call it a company store.
Q. Okay. Did the company sell anything?
A. Mr. Hernandez was selling beverages, drinks, cigarettes beer there. He is an employee of Sun Valley.

Q. Okay. And how much money was Sun Valley paid for that, for those drinks?

A. I don't know the answer to that.

Q. Was Sun Valley paid anything for those drinks?

A. The workers would have paid for the drinks.

Q. They paid Sun Valley?

A. They paid Mr. Hernandez, who's an employee of Sun Valley.

Q. Okay, then how much money did he give to Sun Valley?

A. I don't know the answer to that.

Q. Did he give any money to Sun Valley?

A. I don't know.

Q. Okay, but you're referring to Sun Valley's profit, so you must know that there was some money, right, or you wouldn't have said that?

A. The drinks were sold at a profit so, yeah, someone would have that profit. And according to the regulations, neither the employer nor a person affiliated with them can be obtaining a profit from the workers.

Q. Which regulations?

A. The H-2A regulations.

Q. Where does it use the word "profit"?

MR. HEYMAN-KANTOS: Objection, Your Honor. This is calling for a legal conclusion.

MR. SCHULTE: No, it's calling for, you know, she's already made the conclusion. I just wanted to know the basis.

MR. HEYMAN-KANTOS: And you're asking for a legal citation. She doesn't have the --

JUDGE TIMLIN: If you know. Answer if you know.

THE WITNESS: I don't have the specific citation.

BY MR. SCHULTE:

Q. Is it part of the meal plan reference somewhere else?

A. In the reference talking about unlawful deductions. I think it's 655.122(p)(2).

Q. Okay. And what's the concern with an employer, you know, earning a profit?

A. Well, the employer really shouldn't be profiting off of their workers.

Q. And, but what's the concern in the context of the H-2A program?

A. Well, the H-2A workers would be suffering a financial loss for that if their employer is profiting off of them. And the employer is having a privilege of bringing over those workers to perform whatever duties they have on their job order.

Q. Okay. Is there a concern to domestic workers who are not employed by the employer from that?

A. Certainly there could be. You know, there could be situations where not only is the employer profiting off the H-2A workers, but if those domestic corresponding workers are purchasing the same drinks, whatever it is at a profit.

Q. No, no, no. I'm talking about the U.S. workforce in general, that they're not employees, you know, that outside U.S. people who are not workers. Is there any impact on them?

MR. HEYMAN-KANTOR: I'm going to objection to relevance.

MR. SCHULTE: The theory that's been --

JUDGE TIMLIN: Yeah, I'm having a little trouble with the relevance there.

MR. SCHULTE: Sure. In their briefing for summary judgment and presumably yet to come, one of the arguments was that if an employer earns a profit, it affectively lowers their wage burden to their workers and makes H-2A less expensive than, you know, competing U.S. workers. That policy is not implicated here because there was no benefit to Sun Valley and no reduction in their wages.

MR. HEYMAN-KANTOR: It seems like he's arguing -- I mean, this is a regulation that maybe that would be grounds for something, a comment to change the regulation, but that's not --

MR. SCHULTE: It has to do with their interpretation of it, the purpose behind their enforcement.

JUDGE TIMLIN: My issue is I think that you -- and you're getting into kind of legal debates with this witness and that seem to be kind of running far afield of what the scope of the direct was, which was specifically about the factors that were considered in the CMP.

MR. SCHULTE: Okay.

JUDGE TIMLIN: So, I'm not sure -- I mean, I could, that as a legal argument, I'm looking forward to reading your briefs on these legal arguments. But this witness, on cross-examination, all she testified to were factors that they considered in terms of issuing violations and assessing CMPs.

MR. SCHULTE: Fair enough.

BY MR. SCHULTE:

Q. You said that you used a uniform assessment for all of the 147 workers without regard to meals, right?

A. Yeah, with regard to the meals.

Q. No, no, I'm sorry. Without regard to the number of meals that they ate?

A. No. We did not do that with regard to the number of meals that we ate.

Q. Why not?

A. We had evidence in the file which indicated that 139 of the workers did indeed eat meals. We don't know specifics on how each worker and how many meals that they ate, but the point of the violation is that all of the workers had meals or drinks, and/or drinks and meals. And the violation is in reference to the fact that according to the job order there was no meal charge and they were going to be provided either meals or a free and open kitchen facilities.

Q. And your position is that meals included Monster and Gatorade and Red Bull?

A. Meals include a drink or beverage. I don't know whether it includes Monster or Gatorade.

Q. But that's part of the basis for this calculation was that those drinks were not provided for free, and so therefore Sun Valley now has to pay workers for amounts that they purchased from someone else?

MR. HEYMAN-KANTOR: I'm going to object. He's confusing the issues. The drinks were cited on a different regulation that was changed in the order of reference. And she, the witness has talked about how they were cited under (p)(2).

MR. SCHULTE: I thought that's what we're still talking about under (g) here. Right?

MR. HEYMAN-KANTOR: Yes, that --

MR. SCHULTE: In fact, just the one right here?

MR. HEYMAN-KANTOR: She's testified under the same civil money penalties for the meals and the drinks. But that doesn't mean that -- the order of reference, if you look just two pages earlier, it talks about how the drinks were assessed under (p)(2).

MR. SCHULTE: Page 158?

MR. HEYMAN-KANTOR: Page -- a couple more -- page 153, JX-10. There's a (p), right there -- 122 (p), "By making unreasonable deductions from worker's paycheck insofar as employer's sold the workers beverages and other goods at a profit and under violation of state law."

BY MR. SCHULTE:

Q. Okay. So your testimony in response to questions from Counsel from the Solicitor's Office about drinks being included in the meal plan or, you know, profit from the drinks, that's not really the basis for the civil money penalties then, is it? That's purely a disclosure issue?

A. Well, the civil money penalty that was assessed under 655.122(g) specifically deals with the fact that on the job order there was a disclosure made, which was incorrect that there would be meals provided or free and open kitchen facilities and there weren't. There was a meal charge. There was a meal plan.

Q. What did the job order say?

A. The job order said that there would be free and convenient open kitchen facilities.

Q. Okay. Sorry, you -- it was unclear from that. So is it that it was not disclosed in the job order or that the drinks were not provided? What's the basis for CMPs related to drinks?

A. There are two violations that reference drinks. The meal violation, which typically there's a meal, there's a drink associated with a meal. The other violation for which we did not cite a civil money penalty which talks about the unlawful deductions is where there's a more specific reference to the profit from drinks being sold like the Monsters or the beer, whatever it might be. And also that there was no disclosure about the meal plan.

MR. SCHULTE: Okay, and just so I understand the objection, so were you saying that (p)(2) is the basis for the CMPs for drinks? I didn't understand what your issue was on --

MR. HEYMAN-KANTOR: The basis for the civil money penalty was amended in our order of reference. So just, the civil money penalties in the order of reference in our subsequent papers have made clear that --

MR. SCHULTE: But they're not.

MR. HEYMAN-KANTOR: Well, they have that it's the same amount of civil money penalties for the meal violations and for the drinks. The basis for the drinks can be found in (p)(2), but there were no increase in civil money penalties for the meals and the drinks. So the civil money penalties are -- just saying, and if you look at in our declaration, we've made that in -- sorry, in Ms. Rachor's declaration, she did, you know, make that clear. If you look at paragraph 9, which you should have there about.

BY MR. SCHULTE:

Q. Do the workers receive -- how much was deducted from each paycheck?

A. I don't know specifically. I didn't review the payroll records.

Q. Was any amount deducted from the H-2A worker's pay checks?

A. I don't know the answer to that either.

Q. Okay. But some part of $200,000 is based on there being a deduction from those paychecks?

A. The deduction doesn't have to necessarily be on the face of a record, of a payroll record. It can be money that's paid out of pocket by the workers.

Q. So they went to Walmart and purchased groceries. That can be a deduction?

A. I guess it could.

Q. How much would the deduction be? Would it vary by how much they bought at a store?

JUDGE TIMLIN: Okay. I'm just going to -- I'm a little bit confused about the kind of the amount of emphasis that you're putting on this when the deduction violation had no penalty assessed.

MR. SCHULTE: I think Counsel is saying that it had the same penalty assessed as the meals deduction of the $198,000.

JUDGE TIMLIN: Maybe I misunderstood her testimony, but I thought her testimony was that they didn't, they didn't do a separate assessment for the purchasing of drinks. That there was no -- and I'm looking in terms of the (p) violation, there's no civil money penalty assessed, and I'm --

MR. SCHULTE: I think the order of reference might have changed that. That's what I was trying to understand.

MR. HEYMAN-KANTOR: Yes. I guess, I think what maybe the confusion is, we're talking about two separate things. One is what led to the determination letter, and there was zero civil money penalties assessed under the deductions part of that. But after that, the Department of Labor has provided an alternative basis. It's the civil money penalties have not changed at all, and they're based -- and if you look at Ms. Rachor's declaration, she's talking about combining the civil money penalties, that's been so it is -- the civil money penalty assessment has not been changed. One basis is the meals, that workers were giving back money for meals. And alternative basis but no additional CMPs that workers were buying drinks at a profit. So either way, you have the same civil money penalty.

MR. SCHULTE: There may be a phrasing issue. It says, "no additional." Does that mean no CMPs for the drinks?

MR. HEYMAN-KANTOR: No, I mean that the amount of civil money penalties that were originally assessed, which is

A. I did not.

Q. Okay. If the job order for 2016 disclosed that there would be a charge for meals, would that change your calculations?

A. I don't know if there is a job order for 2016.

Q. If there were, would that have made a difference to you? What could they have done to have discontinued it?

A. I would say as soon as they were made aware that was a violation, then the meal plan charges should have ceased.

Q. What if the meal plan charges were disclosed after they were made aware? Would that have solved the problem?

A. Well, they have to be disclosed as part of the job order.

Q. Right. If they were disclosed as part of the next job order -- this may be faster just to show you.

A. Well, our investigation period was for the 2015 season, not 2016.

Q. Right, but your conclusion, one of the factors that you chose not to apply was that they did not discontinue something. So that implies that some action would be taken after they would be made aware of it. So you would need to know what they did later. I mean what was, what's done is done for, by the time before that, but would it make a difference what happened after? You're saying that one of the factors is what happened afterwards?

A. Well, again, our investigation period was 2015, not 2016. During that 2015 investigation period, we would have no idea what the 2016 job order would look like.

Q. I'm not sure how would somebody have -- but you made a specific point to say that they had made no effort to discontinue. I'm just trying to understand what that means.

A. I would say that it means that the violation continued.

Q. As in so after the date -- but that's always going to be measured from the date of the final conference, right?

A. Not necessarily.

Q. Well, if something was happening, and they were never told that that was an issue, of course, it would not discontinue, right? It -- when you --

A. I think it goes back to the job order itself. The employer signs the job order stating that they're attesting to what the conditions are in that job order. If the employer knows or has knowledge that there's going to be a meal plan and yet they're reporting on the job order that there's going to be free open kitchen facilities, how would we know in the future that in 2016, there's going to be a disclosure on the job order?

Q. The job order was provided before your determination letter were made. Would that have been a factor you'd want to know?

A. Yeah, well, I don't know that happened.
Q. Did you check?
A. I did not.
Q. Okay. So I'm not sure I understand what you would mean by, you know, that no effort was made to discontinue, if you didn't look into what was done afterwards. How can you say that you don't know what was done after the order?
A. The information that I had indicated that there was improper deductions for a meal plan that weren't disclosed on the job order. And I had no information indicating that the violation had stopped.
Q. And the time of the final conference, there were no workers there, though, because it was over the winter. What would it mean for it to have stopped after -- how could they have stopped? To say there was a commitment to compliance, they say, you're absolutely right, you know, what can we do from this day forward? What could they do?
A. They could --
MR. HEYMAN-KANTOS: Objection. He's testifying. He's saying when the final conference occurred. That's -- I don't even know if that's in evidence.
MR. SCHULTE: I think Mr. Perez testified to that.
JUDGE TIMLIN: There was testimony from Mr. Perez, but the testimony from this particular witness was that she didn't -- I don't think she said -- I think she said she didn't know when the final conference was. But the question about how could they have shown good faith, if that was your question?

MR. SCHULTE: Based or --

JUDGE TIMLIN: What could they have done to show --

MR. SCHULTE: Exactly, Yes.

JUDGE TIMLIN: -- show good faith? Not only is a valid question, it's a question I have, so I'm going to allow it.

BY MR. SCHULTE:

Q. So how, from -- that would be the moment where they would be alerted of an issue by the investigator. And they would say, in good faith we're going to, from this day forward, we're going to change our practices. How could they do that?

A. How could they do that? They could stop the charge for the meal plan, and either open the kitchen facilities or provide meals.

Q. Is there any other way?

A. Not that I know of.

Q. Okay, so --

A. They could file an amended job order.

Q. Well, what if the final conference is after the end of the job order?

A. Then they can't file an amended job order.

Q. Okay. And the workers have gone so, but they could say, in future years, we will either open it or disclose?

A. Yeah.
Q. Okay. If you can open -- what volume is that?
THE WITNESS: Volume, Binder 3.
BY MR. SCHULTE:
Q. If you go to, it's Exhibit 15-2. It's the last one. If you flip to the second page of that, so it'll be page 505, overall. Can you just read to yourself the first few sentence of that.
A. Okay.
Q. Okay. Can you go back one page to 504?
A. Okay.
Q. Can you see what season this covers?
A. 2016.
Q. Can you see the clearance order issue date?
A. 2/22/16.
Q. Okay. Would something like this constitute future compliance or an effort to discontinue what you thought was the problem?
A. Yes.
Q. Okay. And so this was sent to the Government in February of 2016. When is your determination in this case?
A. June, I believe.
Q. Okay. Did you ever --
A. The letter.
Q. Did -- you never looked at this document though,

before today?

A. I, no, I have not seen this document.

Q. Okay. Would this have been relevant if you had seen it?

A. It could be, yes.

Q. What other documents would have been relevant on that issue, of a good faith change?

A. This is probably the best one.

Q. Okay. So having seen this, if you were issuing the same calculations today, would you change that number?

A. I could.

Q. What other kinds of --

A. It could be a 10 percent mitigating factor.

Q. You referred to the financial gain or loss of -- oh, you can close that. I'm sorry. Get that out of your way.

The financial gain or loss is Factor 7 for the meals. Loss compared to what?

A. The loss for the workers and the money they had to put out for the meal plan.

Q. But a loss compared to what? Compared to having completely free meals?

A. I don't know that I would use that comparison.

Q. How much was their loss?

A. It would be whatever they paid for the meal plan.

Q. So the alternative was they would pay zero and have free meals?

A. The other alternative is that they have free and open kitchen facilities and they can buy their own food.

Q. Okay, and how much would -- did you factor in how much that food would be as far as calculating the loss?

A. No.

Q. Do you know if that food cost would have been more or less than $75 a week?

A. I don't know.

Q. So how do you know that that was a loss?

A. Because again, on the job order it specified that they would -- there was no charge for a meal plan.

Q. But their expectation in that case would have been -- the job order didn't say, did it, that there would be meals provided for free?

A. No, it didn't say that.

Q. Okay. Would a worker have expected to have been able to eat for free for the year?

A. I wouldn't think so.

Q. Okay. They would have expected that they would have to go out and buy groceries; there'd be some cost to them?

A. True.

Q. Okay. So you're measuring the loss based on their expectation versus reality, right?

A. It's on their expectation of what was indicated in the job order.

Q. Correct. Based on the job order, what they thought they were going to get versus what they got, right?

A. Yes.

Q. But you don't know what that was?

A. Specifically, no.

Q. Do you know if it even was a loss?

A. I don't know.

Q. Okay. But that was one of the factors was that the worker lost, and so there would be no 10 percent reduction there?

A. Because they did have to pay out of pocket $75 to $80 a week for the meal charge.

Q. As opposed, compared to what would they have paid?

A. I don't know what they would have paid otherwise.

Q. Would that matter in figuring out whether they lost money or not?

A. Well, again, looking at the circumstances surrounding this specific case and the specifics of the job order, there was an immediate loss to those workers because they had to pay out charges for the meal plan.

Q. But you don't know that. You just said you don't know how much they would have paid.

A. If they had bought meals on their own?

Q. Right.

A. I don't know the answer to that.
Q. Hypothetically, consider hypothetically if it cost them $100 to cook meals on their own, but $75 to eat these meals, would they have lost money?
A. No. In that situation, no.
Q. Okay. And when you refer to gain, whose gain?
A. It would be the employer.
Q. How much did Sun Valley gain?
A. I don't know specifically.
Q. Per worker per week?
A. Well, the employee who was running the kitchen, again, was charging the $75 to $80 a week. I don't know specifically what his profit was, but certainly he made money on operating the kitchen.
Q. Okay. But the penalties are against Agustin?
A. The penalties are against Sun Valley.
Q. Okay. So how much did Sun Valley gain?
A. I don't know specifically.
Q. Okay. Did Sun Valley gain anything?
A. I don't know.
Q. Okay. But the factor here -- so you don't know if there's a gain. You don't know if there's a loss, but you know that there was a gain and there was a loss?
A. I know that the kitchen was operated by a long-standing employee of Sun Valley, who was basically told to operate the kitchen.

Q. Who told him that?

A. The Marino's.

Q. Was he basically told that?

A. He was told that.

Q. When?

A. That he could operate the kitchen.

Q. He was -- who told you that?

A. That would be information in the case file and the investigator.

Q. Okay. So there are only two people that would have been in that conversation. Did the Marino's tell the investigator that?

A. And through interviews with employees.

Q. The employees knew what Agustin was told?

A. And Mr. Hernandez, I believe also indicated that he was in charge of funding the kitchen.

Q. What did he say that he gave to Sun Valley out of the money he was paid?

A. That, I don't know.

Q. Do you know that he -- do you know from some other means how much he paid Sun Valley for that?

A. I don't know the specifics.

Q. Do you know if there was anything?

A. I don't know.

Q. Okay. Then what was -- I'm not following what the gain was. You testified that you don't know what the loss was, and you don't know what the gain was, right?

A. I don't know specifics, no.

Q. But you know that there was a gain and that there was a loss?

A. There was money paid by the employees to the employer for their meal plans.

Q. When was it paid to the employer?

A. It was paid when they bought the meals.

Q. But who did they pay?

A. I don't know specifically.

Q. Okay. Isn't that relevant to knowing whether there's a gain or loss?

A. I am looking at whether the conditions in the job order were adhered to, and if they weren't. And then applying factors to those particular --

Q. Right. But to apply that factor, you need to know that there was a financial gain and a financial loss, right?

A. And the financial gain very simply is that they paid $75 to $80 a week for a meal plan.

Q. Right, but so --

A. And the employers incurred that loss.

Q. -- if they paid Agustin, did you gain from that?

A. Did I gain?

Q. Right.
A. No.
Q. Did I?
A. No.
Q. How did Sun Valley gain from him being paid?
A. He is an employee of Sun Valley.
Q. So if he goes, stops at the store on the way home tonight, gets a lottery ticket and gets money, how does Sun Valley gain from that?
A. I don't know.
Q. Do they?
A. I don't, I don't know. I can't testify to what his actions are outside of work or buying a lottery ticket.
Q. No, no, no. I'm not saying that he did. If he, you know, recoups some money, he earned some money on the outside, how does his employer gain from that? If you get money based on something, you have a great aunt that dies and gives you money, how does -- does the Department of Labor get money for that?
A. No.
Q. Okay. So if Agustin is paid something, how does Sun Valley gain from that?
A. I can't testify to the nature of their individual arrangements or --
Q. What would you want to know to determine whether they gained from that?

A. I don't think I have to know specifics. Mr. Hernandez was -- is not --

Q. Yeah, I'm not asking for kind of the terms of a contract or anything like that. I just want to know kind of, if you want to find gain, how would you find that they gained? What would you want to know from that?

A. I am looking specifically at the cost involved with the meal plan.

Q. That's not the same thing. Because the cost is paid -- if they went to a McDonald's there would be a cost involved with that. But again, Sun Valley wouldn't be paid for that, right?

A. No.

Q. Okay. What -- all right. When you referred to the base amount, do you still have the calculation, the sheet in front of you that had the list of factors?

A. Yes.

Q. And is that what sets the civil money penalty levels for H-2A, as well? Not just the factors to be applied, but kind of what the starting number would be? What the base amount would be?

A. Does this particular document set that?

Q. Does the regulation that this is a copy of?

A. The H-2A regulations would describe that.

Q. Is it included in Section 501.19?
A. I don't know the specific section that mentions that $1,500.
Q. Okay. If you flip to page 2, is that what's in page C, or item C?
A. Yes. It is. It is in Part C.
Q. Okay. And does that refer to the base amount?
A. Yes, that's what I'm calling the base amount.
Q. That's actually the maximum amount? Is that right?
A. There actually is consideration that can be given to a willful civil money penalty, which could potential raise that.
Q. Okay. And where is that referenced?
A. I don't know the specific reference, but there is -- there is a willful penalty charge.
Q. Okay. I see.
A. And there are other --
Q. It's in C-1. I'm sorry. You're absolutely right.
For the three-fourth guarantee workers, your testimony was that your basis for calculating that was that the workers were basically constructively terminated? Was that your -- does that sound familiar?
A. Yes.
Q. Okay. What does that mean?
A. That means that there were workers who believed they were terminated. And then there was also a group of workers that wanted to complain about poor housing conditions, poor working conditions, poor treatment, and after a meeting with Mr. Hernandez, they were asked to sign forms saying that they were leaving for their own personal reasons when, in fact, they weren't leaving for their own personal reasons.

Q. Is there a difference between someone believing they were terminated and being terminated?

A. There can be.

Q. If a worker mistakenly believes they were terminated, are they entitled to a three-quarter guarantee?

A. Well, whether they're mistakenly believing that they're terminated or whether they were actually terminated is really not a difference for us.

Q. Really?

A. There could be a characterization issue. But these workers believed that they were being terminated.

Q. Okay. So it doesn't matter to the Wage Hour Division whether they were actually terminated or not?

A. Well, we considered the workers to be terminated.

Q. They were terminated, or they believed they were terminated?

A. They were terminated.

Q. Without identifying any workers, those 19 workers said that they were terminated? They would all say that?

A. Well, there were two groups of workers.

Q. Right, there's no -- there's a separate issue as to the workers that were let go later. I'm talking about the 19 in May.

MR. HEYMAN-KANTOR: Your Honor, I would inform a further objection. He's asking whether all 19 of these workers said -- cooperated with the Department and reported being terminated. That is identifying he wanted them to know which of them --

JUDGE TIMLIN: Right. He can't -- you can't go there, I'm sorry, Mr. Schulte.

BY MR. SCHULTE:

Q. Would it make any difference to you if some of the workers did not say that they were terminated?

A. I would want to know what the totality of their understanding of the situation was and what actually happened.

Q. So if a worker were not, in fact, terminated, but mistakenly believed that and left the worksite, your position is they would still be owed a three-quarter guarantee for that?

A. If they believed that they were terminated?

Q. They said they had a subjective belief of that, but the objective facts were that they were not. They were never told that they were terminated, but they believed that they were.

MR. HEYMAN-KANTOR: Your Honor, I'm going to object.

It's calling for a legal conclusion. I think, I mean, there's constructive discharge, which Counsel knows is a different theory than termination. So I --

MR. SCHULTE: She's the one that introduced the idea of a belief in termination. Constructive discharge, we've talked about already.

MR. HEYMAN-KANTOR: Right. I think introduction of legal terms of subjective or objective factors is confusing the issues.

MR. SCHULTE: I'm not sure those are legal, but we'll move on. She may not know.

JUDGE TIMLIN: Okay.

BY MR. SCHULTE:

Q. You said that no good reason was given with respect to the three-quarter guarantee. What reason was given?

A. I was basing that factor on the fact that we have the forms that were signed by the workers that were indicating that they left for their personal reasons.

Q. Who gave the reason, or when you say that no good reason was given, who would give the reason? What does it mean to give the reason?

A. Well, it would mean the employer would need to give to some type of good reason as to why there was no three-quarter guarantee paid.

Q. Okay. So the question is what reason did the employer give you?

A. I wasn't at the final conference. I don't know that specifically.

Q. Did you read it somewhere else? You didn't have to be at the conference. But you had some reason to conclude that there was no good reason given

A. After reviewing the case narrative and the evidence in the case file, I decided not to apply that factor.

Q. Okay. And so based on your review of that, what reason was given?

A. That -- I don't know.

Q. But you know that none was?

A. There wasn't a good enough reason to substantiate a reduction.

Q. Okay. Is there anything that would reflect your recollection about what -- how good the reason was that was given?

A. Well, we were provided with forms showing that the workers signed off indicating they left for their own personal reasons. And when we had obtained interview statements and other evidence showing that they really were forced to sign those forms, and they didn't leave for their own personal reasons.

Q. Setting aside the idea that they forced to do anything, we'll get to that in a second, you know, did the employer give you those forms as the reason for the workers being let go?

A. I don't know if that was what was provided at the final conference.

Q. All right. So, I don't mean to keep going around the same issue over and over again. The question is what reason the employer gave you. I asked you what you looked at that would tell you whether it was a good enough reason given by the employer, and then you're describing something that the employer didn't give you as the reason. What did you rely on in deciding that the employer hadn't given you a good reason?

A. Well, the employer would need to substantiate that the employees really did indeed leave of their own volition and that they were leaving for their own personal reasons.

Q. And how would they have proved that to you?

A. I don't know, it could be any number of ways. We could have had statements from workers saying that they did indeed leave for their personal reasons.

Q. Okay. But none -- but they didn't offer the statements that you talked about. The employer didn't give those to you as the reason?

A. I don't know. I didn't see any such statements.

Q. No, no, no. The -- I'm sorry -- the signed worker documents. The employer didn't provide those as its reason?

A. The forms?

Q. Correct.
A. I don't know who provided them.
Q. Do you know if that was --
A. We had -- we saw copies of the forms.
Q. Do you know if that was -- but you don't know if the employer gave that as the reason?
A. I don't know.
Q. Okay. And it's less important for this than for the idea that they sought a waiver. You know, you said that the workers were forced to sign that. What do you mean by that?
A. The evidence in the case file indicated that they were informed that if they didn't sign those forms, they wouldn't be able to get back into Mexico, because their visas were good until October of 2015, so if they tried to return earlier, they wouldn't be let back in.
Q. Okay. We've had testimony from, I believe ten different H-2A workers. I don't recall any of them saying that.
MR. HEYMAN-KANTOR: Your Honor, he's testifying. The witness has not seen those. He's introducing facts that she does not have knowledge of.
JUDGE TIMLIN: Right. She wasn't here for any of -- she wasn't here for any of the testimonies, so I think you have to basically take at face value what she said her review of the case file was. I can certainly --

MR. SCHULTE: Okay.

JUDGE TIMLIN: -- you know, I certainly evaluate based on the testimony whether her -- what her stated reasons and her review of the case file matches what evidence is --

MR. SCHULTE: Okay. And fair enough.

JUDGE TIMLIN: -- coming to the file.

MR. SCHULTE: I'm a bit hamstrung, because I can't ask her how she did know, so I have to, you know, go over to the mattress on the floor issue.

BY MR. SCHULTE:

Q. What's the specific violation that's triggered by that? Is it that there's a mattress on the floor?

A. The mattress on the floor, meaning that there's not enough individual sleeping cots, or beds, or something for each individual worker.

Q. Would a bunk bed -- you mean the frame, kind of something other than the mattress, right?

A. An actual cot or bed, yes.

Q. Something to put --

A. Off the floor.

Q. -- the mattress onto? Okay.

A. And it can sometimes mean an indication of overcrowding.

Q. Okay, so --and again, you weren't, you weren't here for this, so we'll do this as a hypothetical. If there were testimony in a case that there were considerably more beds than workers were staying there, but there were still mattresses on the floor, would you assess a civil money penalty for the mattresses?

A. Yes. The employer is in control of and owns the housing. They're responsible for complying with the housing regulations.

Q. I'm not sure I made myself clear. So there were available beds, but the workers -- there were still mattresses put on the floor, would that still be a CMP?

A. Yes, it would.

Q. What -- under what violation?

A. Under the same one that we cited it under.

Q. Okay, but the requirement is to provide the bed, right? Was that your testimony?

A. Yes.

Q. Okay. If a bed were provided, but there were an additional mattress on the floor -- say there was room for six workers, there were four staying there, two of them took their mattresses onto the floor because it's cooler, something like that. Is the requirement to provide the four bunks? Or what's -- what's the requirement that's triggered there?

A. The requirement would be to provide the bed, cot, whatever.

Q. Okay. So if more beds were provided than there were workers, and yet some of the workers still put mattresses on the floor, would there be a CMP for that?

A. No, there might not be.

Q. Okay. For the CMPs for the sinks without hot water, how many -- if some sinks had hot water and some didn't, would that meet the test? Or --

A. Well, we did allow some mitigating factors for that particular violation. But certainly if there's some sinks that have hot water and some that don't, we don't know who's using which sink, so --

Q. How many sinks have to be provided?

A. I don't know that off the top of my head.

Q. But is there a standard sinks per worker?

A. I would think there would be, but I don't know that specific.

Q. Okay. And you said that one of the factors there was good faith compliance? Or, you know, sorry, sort of that the conditions there weren't fixed immediately, right?

A. I think we allowed the mitigating factor for -- I'm going to have to reference my --

Q. And just to clarify -- I'm sorry -- because we were talking about mattresses and hot water a second ago. This is for the screens and screen doors, and trash can lids. You said that there was not a good faith compliance to, because they were not fixed immediately.

A. So we allowed the mitigating factor for future compliance, but not a mitigating factor for Factor 4, which is the good faith efforts to comply, because we didn't have any indication that there were serious efforts to prevent or mitigate the screens and the screen doors.

Q. Okay. So those are two different things. So "prevent" is sort of before the violation, "mitigate" is sort of fixing it once it's been pointed out, right? So was it one or the other? Was it both?

A. I had no indication that there was an effort to fix the problem.

Q. Okay. Who would've known if that effort were made to fix the problem?

A. Well, the employer should know if they're --

Q. And they did. I'll put it another way. If Investigator Perez had gone back to the housing and had looked at this, would he be able to tell if the fixes had been made or not?

A. He should have been able to.

Q. Okay.

A. If they were fixed.

Q. And if he went back to the housing and didn't look at it, would you have any way to know if they were -- they had made an effort to comply or not, or mitigate?

A. No, I wouldn't.

Q. Okay. So would it have, would it have helped you make that decision if he had looked at that?
A. If they were indeed fixed and if he looked at it.
Q. Okay. So this is a little bit of the sort of absence of proof is in the proof of absence. So the fact that he didn't look at it, that was your basis for concluding that they had not done it?
A. I don't, I don't know if he did or didn't.
Q. Okay, but he never told you that he had?
A. No.
Q. Okay. If he had, you would know that they -- you would be able to say that they had or had not complied, right?
A. True.
Q. Okay. But, so instead, you just concluded that they had not.
A. True.
Q. Good. And do you know how many times he had gone back to the farm though?
A. I don't.
Q. If he went back twice, does that seem possible?
A. I don't, I don't know how many times he went back.
Q. Okay. But that's the sort of thing that you would want to know to decide whether they were making an effort to comply or not?
A. Yes.

Q. You talked about the 2013 investigation of Sun Valley. Do you remember what the issues were that were raised in that? You testified to meal charges?

A. Yes.

Q. Were there any other issues?

A. Inflated charges for drinks.

Q. Anything else?

A. Not that I remember right now.

Q. Okay. Again, I just have the one copy, so. Do you remember how many, roughly how many workers were involved at that time?

A. I don't.

Q. Okay. If I can approach, Your Honor.

BY MR. SCHULTE:

Q. And this is going to be, this is RX-23, on page 325. Do you recognize that document?

A. I know what it is, yes.

Q. Okay. And what does that relate to?

A. This is the case summary report from the 2013 investigation.

Q. Okay. And if you look at the narrative part of the paragraph at the bottom, does it refer to any other findings that the Division made?

A. Housing violations.

Q. Okay. So housing, drink charges, screens?

A. Yes. Screen doors.
Q. Trash can lids?
A. It doesn't specifically mention trash can lids.
Q. So many of the same violations that you talked about here?
A. Yes.
Q. And what were the back wages assessed in that case?
A. $6,237.70.
Q. And what were the CMPs?
A. $1,000.
Q. Okay. And do you know what the back wages are in this case?
A. The total back wages?
Q. Yes.
A. Is in excess of $376,000 total.
Q. Okay. And the CMPs?
A. Is $212,250.

MR. SCHULTE: Okay. Your Honor, we've done the exhibits before, but I move to introduce PX-23.

JUDGE TIMLIN: Any objection?

MR. HEYMAN-KANTOR: We have no objection.

JUDGE TIMLIN: Okay. It's admitted.

(Whereupon, the documents referred to and previously marked for identification as Plaintiff's Exhibit 23 was received into evidence.)

JUDGE TIMLIN: Go ahead.

MR. SCHULTE: No more questions, Your Honor.

JUDGE TIMLIN: Okay, redirect.

REDIRECT EXAMINATION

BY MR. HEYMAN-KANTOR:

Q. Yes. So we talked before about a job order that was submitted in 2016 by Sun Valley. When a new job order is submitted, does that get submitted to your office or a different part of the Department of Labor?

A. No, it gets submitted to the ETA, the Employment Training Administration.

Q. Would you become automatically aware if an employer files a new job order?

A. No.

Q. Whose burden is it? Does the employer need to tell the Department about efforts at compliance, or is that or is that not -- is that something that's taken into account, for the employer, if the employer talks about efforts to compliance?

A. Normally in at least as early as the final conference, we would, we would certainly ask what their efforts for future compliance would be, and the employer should detail those to us.

Q. If an employer sent you a job order showing that prior issues were corrected, would that influence your consideration of these factors?

A. It could.

Q. And we talked about who's the Factor 7 involving gain or loss with respect to the meals. Now can this gain or loss, can the gain part of it, could that -- would there be a gain if the gain only went to the affiliated person rather than the employer itself?

A. Yes.

Q. If the affiliated person's spouse was able to make $700 a week for the sale of meals, would that be considered a gain?

A. Yes.

MR. SCHULTE: I'm sorry, affiliated with who? Is it that the spouse is affiliated?

MR. HEYMAN-KANTOR: I can rephrase if --

JUDGE TIMLIN: Yeah, if you can rephrase it and make it more specified.

BY MR. HEYMAN-KANTOR:

Q. If the spouse of an affiliated person gained a full time job, or a $700 a week job from the sale of meals, would that be considered a gain to the affiliated person?

A. Yes.

Q. Do you remember if the spouse of Agustin Hernandez submitted this, gave a statement in this case?

A. I believe she did.

Q. And do you know if there was anything about work in the kitchen that she said to the Wage and Hour Division?

A. I believe so, although I don't know specifics.

Q. Would employers not having to expand kitchen facilities, could that be considered a gain?

MR. SCHULTE: Objection. That's not the theory advanced so far. And how does she know how much an expanded kitchen costs?

JUDGE TIMLIN: I will allow it.

THE WITNESS: It could be.

BY MR. HEYMAN-KANTOR:

Q. About the efforts to compliance, in terms of analyzing that factor, does the Wage and Hour Division have to keep going back to a farm on a regular basis after the inclusion of an investigation to determine what efforts they made?

A. No.

MR. HEYMAN-KANTOR: All right. No further questions.

JUDGE TIMLIN: Any --

MR. SCHULTE: Just a couple. And I promise to make this quick, Your Honor.

REDIRECT EXAMINATION

BY MR. SCHULTE:

Q. I know that you're not automatically made aware of it, but would you have access to a job order?

A. I could.

Q. Are those publically available on iCERT?

A. They are publically available.

Q. So if one was posted to that before you made your decision, that's something that you could have looked at.

A. The employer really should have made us aware if it was there. How would -- I wouldn't know to look on there.

Q. Okay, but so it would be made aware based on your determination that wouldn't happen until later. How would they know to send it to you? Or why would -- do employers generally send you something after the final conference?

A. It has happened.

Q. How often?

A. I don't know. And I would think that they probably could have discussed that at the final conference, if they knew that they were going to apply for that next season.

Q. Well, the application that you looked at looked like it was filed in February, is that right? And you don't know when the final conference was?

A. I don't know specifically when it was.

Q. If final conference were before that, and they hadn't written the job order yet, what would they have told you?

A. They could have told us that that was their intention for the next year.

Q. But what if they hadn't made that decision at that point? Your testimony before was that you measured from the time of your determination that no effort had been made. No, I'm sorry. That's not true. Strike that. Your testimony before was that from the final conference, you were affirmatively stating that no effort had been made?

A. I don't know what happened after the final conference, and I wouldn't go looking on iCERT for a job order that I didn't know specifically existed.

Q. Generally speaking, an H-2A employer, are they usually in the program for one year and then never again? Or if they're in the program, do they usually stay in the program?

A. I can't testify to that. I don't know.

Q. Okay. Out of the H-2A employer --

A. Some continually use it, some may not. I don't know who, you know.

Q. Out of the ones that you have audited, and you've said that there are several, were they in the program for multiple years?

A. Some were.

Q. Most?

A. I can't say.

Q. No idea?

A. It's been a while since I've been in the field.

Q. Yeah, fair enough. In the scenario that Counsel mentioned, that if an affiliate -- if somebody pays their wife for a job, your testimony was that he gained by that?

A. They're a husband and wife, so I would -- they're both employees, I would think they'd --

Q. Right, no, no. But they're not both employees. The situation was that the husband is paying the wife.

MR. HEYMAN-KANTOR: Objection. He's testifying again. It's not --

MR. SCHULTE: No, I'm --

MR. HEYMAN-KANTOR: You're putting facts that she hasn't --

MR. SCHULTE: No. Was that not your scenario, if a husband pays his wife?

JUDGE TIMLIN: You did kind of open the door to this.

MR. SCHULTE: If I misunderstood the hypothetical, I'm open to be corrected.

MR. HEYMAN-KANTOR: All right, I'll withdraw the objection.

JUDGE TIMLIN: Go ahead.

BY MR. SCHULTE:

Q. Husband pays money, takes his money, pays the wife money to work for him. Your testimony was that the husband gains?

A. Could be a gain.

Q. In what sense?
A. If they're a husband and wife, my -- the money I make certainly is a gain to my husband.
Q. But if he paid you, the couple would net the same amount of money, right? If he takes $500.00 out of your bank account and then gives it to you, as a couple you still have the same net amount of money, right? You've not gained as a couple?
A. True.
Q. Okay. You testified that they're not required to go back and do investigations about subsequent events or compliance, right?
A. We wouldn't be required to go back.
Q. Okay, but if they did go back, is that something that would be useful to you to know in concluding that they had not made efforts?
A. Yes.
MR. SCHULTE: Okay. Nothing else, Your Honor.
MR. HEYMAN-KANTOR: Nothing further.
JUDGE TIMLIN: Okay. My turn.
When you were looking at the three-quarter guarantee and came up with your CMP for the three-quarter guarantee, we talked about the fact that it seems like there were two different situations. There was a situation in May where a group of 19 or 20 employees left, and then there was another situation in August where another group of employees left. And I think the way that the back wages that they calculated, four of them hadn't met their three-quarter guarantee. And so there's back wages for those four. In terms of figuring out the CMP, do you consider those two situations differently or did you consider them to be the same?

THE WITNESS: I considered them the same.

JUDGE TIMLIN: Why?

THE WITNESS: I just looked it at it in a uniform manner, and since they didn't meet the three-quarter guarantee, it didn't really factor into my decision as to, I guess who left when, and who was due a certain amount of back wages, who was due another amount of back wages.

JUDGE TIMLIN: Okay. And with that, it is saying in terms of your assessment as to the seriousness of the violation that in terms of some of the guys that didn't get the three-quarter guarantee were gone after, like a week or two early in May. Some of them worked for a good chunk of the season and didn't get it and left in August. Does that effect your evaluation in terms of how serious the violation for not meeting the three-quarter guarantee is?

THE WITNESS: Well, I looked at it in terms of that violation itself is serious, if someone is not getting the three-quarter guarantee.

JUDGE TIMLIN: Okay.

THE WITNESS: So I wouldn't, yeah, I didn't look at it specifically by employee.

JUDGE TIMLIN: Okay. When you were going through the CMP calculations for the housing conditions, I know you walked through the mattresses issue, but I didn't -- I don't think we walked through the sinks. Were you considering in terms of the two sinks that didn't have hot water, did you use the -- or did you give the same reductions that you gave for the mattresses? I think for the mattresses, you gave a reduction for history, for only two workers being affected, for no serious harm being done, for commitment to future compliance, for not affecting profit/loss, and then as a kind of overall violation. Was that -- did you use the same factors for the sinks or different?

THE WITNESS: I used the same factors, but there was a difference in one of the mitigating factors for the sinks.

JUDGE TIMLIN: Which one?

THE WITNESS: And I am actually going to just review my -- for the sinks, I did not do the reduction for Factor 2, which was the number of workers affected. Because the fact that there were sinks that didn't have hot water could potentially affect all of the workers that were in the camp.

JUDGE TIMLIN: And I think, I was looking at it and I actually took the mattresses -- I'm not sure if when I was listening to you, I wasn't sure that the math actually worked.

Are you -- is that another one where you talked about giving a 10 percent overall discount, are you sure that on that one you gave a 10 percent overall discount? And I don't remember which exhibit has the CMPs in it.

Mr. Heyman-Kantor, which one has the actual CMPs in it? Which exhibit was that?

MR. SCHULTE: I think it's in the Joint Exhibit.

JUDGE TIMLIN: It's a Joint Exhibit.

MR. SCHULTE: Under the last --

MR. HEYMAN-KANTOR: Yes.

MR. SCHULTE: JX-10.

MR. HEYMAN-KANTOR: Yes.

JUDGE TIMLIN: JX-10?

MR. HEYMAN-KANTOR: Yes.

JUDGE TIMLIN: Okay. That's what I didn't remember. So what I'm looking at, the housing conditions -- which, let's see --

THE WITNESS: And no, it's a 70 percent reduction. So I applied seven --

JUDGE TIMLIN: Let me see. Housing, okay. So housing, you ended up with $3,600 and I was trying to figure out how you got there.

THE WITNESS: Yeah, and I can actually --

JUDGE TIMLIN: And because some of it was for the screens and stuff.

THE WITNESS: Yes.
JUDGE TIMLIN: Screens and garbage cans. And I think there was like, for the screens --
THE WITNESS: For the screens --
JUDGE TIMLIN: -- doors, and garbage cans, it was like $900 each.
THE WITNESS: A piece.
JUDGE TIMLIN: A piece.
THE WITNESS: And there's three of those.
JUDGE TIMLIN: And there's three of those.
THE WITNESS: So that's 27.
JUDGE TIMLIN: And then for the --
THE WITNESS: $450 for the mattresses.
JUDGE TIMLIN: Okay.
THE WITNESS: I think this should add up correctly, if I'm doing this right.
JUDGE TIMLIN: And, right. And $450?
THE WITNESS: Yes.
JUDGE TIMLIN: Okay. So that then --
THE WITNESS: Yeah, that gets you to $3,600.
JUDGE TIMLIN: Right. And I guess that's where I was trying to figure out the mattresses and sinks. And even though you said you rated the sinks one differently, you ended up, it was still $450 --
THE WITNESS: Yeah.

JUDGE TIMLIN: -- per the sink violation.

THE WITNESS: There were a couple, there were a couple differences in the mitigating factors. One, the one was for the sinks, we applied Factor 2 because we were --

JUDGE TIMLIN: Okay.

THE WITNESS: Wait, I'm sorry.

JUDGE TIMLIN: Yeah.

THE WITNESS: I misspoke that time. We did not allow Factor 2 for a reduction.

JUDGE TIMLIN: Right.

THE WITNESS: Because for the sinks, because that potentially effects all of the workers. Whereas for the mattresses, I did a reduction for Factor 2, because there were only two people sleeping on mattresses on the floor.

JUDGE TIMLIN: Right. So when I went through the mattresses, I thought you mentioned six different 10 percent reductions. History, two workers affected, no serious harm, commitment to future compliance, profit/loss, no profit/loss, and then this overall one. And that gave me on the $1,500, a 60 percent reduction, which is a reduction of $900, which gets you to a $600 violation? But you actually talked before about it being a two $450 violation, also.

THE WITNESS: Yeah.

JUDGE TIMLIN: I was just trying to get a sense of how you got down to $450. What did I miss?

THE WITNESS: So for the mattresses, we gave 10 percent for Factor 1, 10 percent reduction for Factor 2, 10 percent for Factor 3, there's 10 percent for Factor 4.

JUDGE TIMLIN: Which one is that? Is that good faith?

THE WITNESS: Yeah.

JUDGE TIMLIN: Okay, that's the one I missed. So then, so actually --

THE WITNESS: So there was an additional --

JUDGE TIMLIN: -- there was a 70 percent --

THE WITNESS: Yes.

JUDGE TIMLIN: -- reduction, and that's how you got down to the $450.

THE WITNESS: Yes.

JUDGE TIMLIN: Now, but for the sink, which you still had $450, you didn't give a reduction for the number of workers, so did you give another reduction someplace else that I missed that -- because wouldn't that --

THE WITNESS: The sinks would be one. To be honest, I would have to look at my notes.

JUDGE TIMLIN: Okay.

THE WITNESS: I don't know which -- yeah.

JUDGE TIMLIN: Okay.

THE WITNESS: I know that the difference between the Factor 2 and the factor for each of those violations, but I would have to --

JUDGE TIMLIN: Okay, that's all right. We can go on. And then we -- and I think Mr. Schulte spent a lot of time on this, but I just want to make sure. The meal plan violation, because the CMP for that, what did not -- you didn't increase the CMP because of the sale of drinks on the side?

THE WITNESS: No.

JUDGE TIMLIN: Okay. In terms of figuring out that 140, and you said a factor on the meal plans of it being 147 affected workers, and I think there's been some testimony, I think you would agree that not all of the workers purchased from the meal plan. Was the problem that they were charged for meals or was the problem that their job order didn't disclose that they were going to be charged for meals?

THE WITNESS: Well, primarily it's that the job order did not disclose that they were going to be charged for meals. And then certainly carrying through to the fact there actually was a meal plan charge.

JUDGE TIMLIN: Okay. And that failure to disclose it, would it be your view -- I'm just trying -- would you agree that that would affect all 147, regardless of whether they ultimately used the meal plan or not?

THE WITNESS: Yes.

JUDGE TIMLIN: That failure to disclose? Okay. When you're calculating out the CMP, does the amount of the back wages that have been assessed influence your calculation of the CMP in any way?

THE WITNESS: It can in regard to some of the mitigating factors like Number 3, gravity. So certainly if there's a large amount of back wages.

JUDGE TIMLIN: Okay. So if there's a large amount of back wages --

THE WITNESS: We wouldn't --

JUDGE TIMLIN: -- you might be less inclined to --

THE WITNESS: -- apply that.

JUDGE TIMLIN: -- apply a reduction for gravity? Okay. Was that the case in this case?

THE WITNESS: Yes. It certainly contributed to not applying that reduction.

JUDGE TIMLIN: Okay. In terms of -- I mean, and I don't know if this is possible -- can an employer amend their job order mid-season?

THE WITNESS: They can.

JUDGE TIMLIN: Okay.

THE WITNESS: Yeah. If conditions change or they need more workers.

JUDGE TIMLIN: Okay. In your experience with Wage Hour investigators, and you certainly did Wage Hour investigations yourself, does the investigator discuss issues while, during, with the employer while onsite, or do they keep that -- or do they not discuss the things that they're seeing until they do the final conference?

THE WITNESS: Well, there's a number of circumstances that would, that would affect that. Certainly if there are conditions that exist or problems that exist that involve potential harm to workers or safety issues, something like that, you know, pesticide exposure to workers in the field, certainly we're going to bring that to the attention of the employer right away and try our best to have those situations remediated.

If there's an issue that requires us to gather more evidence or gather, you know, look at some more records before we -- you know, we don't want to make a premature approach to the employer when we don't have all the evidence together. So it could be a combination of both really.

JUDGE TIMLIN: So for instance, while Mr. Perez was out there, he -- and I don't know, and you may not know either -- it wouldn't have been unusual for him to say, hey guys, there's some problem -- while he's on site -- hey guys, there's problems with these sinks, that there's no hot water. But it wouldn't have been unusual for him to say there's problems with the way these guys are getting paid, and you may be, there may be a back wage issue liability.

THE WITNESS: Potentially. Like I said, it depends on --

JUDGE TIMLIN: Those are the kinds of things that some get told later, and some get told --

THE WITNESS: Yeah.

JUDGE TIMLIN: Okay. I just, I was just kind of curious.

THE WITNESS: I mean, always with housing and transportation issues, we're always going to bring those up as soon as we notice something.

JUDGE TIMLIN: Okay. All right. The evidence so far has been pretty clear that these guys paid for this meal plan. They didn't -- they paid Mr. Hernandez. They gave him money for the meal plan, and there hasn't been any evidence that Mr. Hernandez then passed on any of that money to the company, to Sun Valley Orchards. So, in your view, does that, the fact that that doesn't get passed, that money didn't get passed on effect the violation in any way?

THE WITNESS: No.

JUDGE TIMLIN: Why not?

THE WITNESS: Because the regulations require that not just the employer but any affiliated person. So in our view, certainly he's an affiliated person. He's worked for them for many, many years and has had meal plans before that he's administered. And, you know, not knowing anything about their specific relationships except the fact that, you know, there's an employee-employer relationship, and the fact that this is a clear violation of what was on the job order.

JUDGE TIMLIN: And I think there was some -- Mr. Schulte asked about the fact that does Mr. Hernandez gain if he's paying his wife? And would that, would it be different if he's paying his wife out of the wages he's being paid by Sun Valley, or if he's paying his wife out of the money that the employees were paying for meals? Would that change the calculation as to whether or not there's a gain to Mr. Hernandez?

THE WITNESS: I don't think so. I don't, I --

JUDGE TIMLIN: Like, I --

THE WITNESS: It's hard for me to say.

JUDGE TIMLIN: Okay, okay. I might not have done it very clearly, but I'm just thinking off the top of my head. I think that's all my questions.

So you do have any redirect?

REDIRECT EXAMINATION

BY MR. HEYMAN-KANTOR:

Q. We have some hypotheticals about an affiliated person. If an employer's spouse, let's say was gaining financially, would Wage Hour look into whether the spouse was giving money to the other spouse, for example?

A. We wouldn't look into a specific marital relationship.

Q. I mean, does Wage Hour generally investigate whether affiliated persons transfer money to the employer?

A. Not unless there's a clear indication of some type of contractual arrangement.

MR. HEYMAN-KANTOR: No further questions.

JUDGE TIMLIN: All right.

RECROSS-EXAMINATION

BY MR. SCHULTE:

Q. In a provision on affiliated person is -- where does that come up in the context? Not the section, but sort of where is that term used in the H-2A regulations? What does that apply to? Why would we look at whether somebody is an affiliated person or not?

A. Because that person shouldn't be, the affiliated person shouldn't be making a profit from the workers.

Q. Okay. So it's not in the meal section, it's only in the profit section? And you looked into whether Mr. Hernandez made a profit on the meals?

A. I don't know specifically what his profit would have been or --

Q. Okay. So if -- the reason we're talking about it, is that an affiliated person's finances matter as opposed to the employer is if there's a profit. But you don't know if he profited, if there were a profit?

A. All I know is that the meal plans were paid for by the workers and they were paid to him.

Q. How do you determine if something is --
A. I don't know what his specific profit was.
Q. How do you determine if there's a profit or not?
A. Well, you'd have to go through receipts and find out how much was spent.
Q. Okay, and so you did that?
A. I didn't go through the receipts, no. I didn't do the, I didn't investigate that.
Q. But you do know if there was a profit?
A. I know that there were receipts provided which didn't seem to account for all of the meal plan charges.
Q. Okay. And if you still have JX-10 on page 160, the meal charge here, the large charge, is that under the disclosure requirement or under the requirement to provide meals?
A. It's specifically that the job order disclosed that there would be either free and open facilities, that there would be free and open kitchen facilities provided to the workers. And that was not true. And they had to --
Q. Okay. Is there a separate claim, a separate violation for not disclosing something and a violation for not meeting the requirements in --
A. Well, this also addresses not disclosing it. There is a separate violation that actually specifically talks about the failure to comply with disclosing the work contract. And I think --

Q. Okay. And that's sub-Q, right?

A. Yes.

Q. Okay, and this is sub-G?

A. Yes.

Q. Does that -- so is there a disclosure requirement there or a providing meals requirement there?

A. There's the requirement to either provide the free and open kitchen facilities providing meals, or if there is a meal plan or some type of charge, it has to be disclosed.

Q. Okay. Were all, did all 147 workers that you've identified here pay for the meal plan?

A. I don't know specifically.

Q. Okay. I think you testified at some point that they did not, and the Judge had asked you that. Does that sound right? That --

A. Yes.

Q. -- it's possible that some did not pay?

A. It's possible that some did not pay.

Q. Okay. But then your statement to her was that it was because -- so for workers who did not pay anything for a meal plan, what's the theory for them recovering CMPs for that? Or, I'm sorry, or for the Government --

JUDGE TIMLIN: I was going to say that --

MR. SCHULTE: -- recovering CMPs, they don't get that.

JUDGE TIMLIN: Yeah, they don't get -

BY MR. SCHULTE:

Q. For the, for the Government recovering CMPs based on those workers?

A. Because the requirement would be there on the job order that they would be expecting that free and open kitchen facility for all workers, not just somebody who specifically bought a meal plan.

Q. Right. But that's speaking to the disclosure, right? That's a sub-Q. We're talking about workers, you know, actually getting the meal, paying for a meal or not paying for a meal, right?

A. Mm-hmm.

Q. So I think that was her question, was it a disclosure issue or was it an actual paying for meals issue?

A. Well, I would still say that it's both. I mean, we could have cited a separate CMP under the failure to comply with disclosing the work contract, but we didn't do that. We cited the civil money penalty under this, the meals requirement, 122 (g).

Q. But they're different, right? I mean if they were the exact same thing --

A. They are --

Q. -- they wouldn't have a (g) and a (q).

A. -- similar, but they're different.
Q. But they're related obviously, right?
A. Yes.
Q. But I think her question was, you know, were these workers, including the set of workers who did not pay for meals, is the issue that they weren't told about the meals? Or that they paid for the meals and shouldn't have had to pay?
A. That they paid for the meals. They shouldn't have had to pay because it wasn't disclosed on the work contract.
Q. Right. So, but we're talking about a group of workers who did not pay.
A. Yes. What was your question again?
Q. Yeah, no. So there's 147 workers. Some of them were not told about a meal, and your theory was that they were not told about a meal and paid for a meal. But there are additional workers who, you know, got the same job contract, but never paid for a meal.
A. True.
Q. Okay, but why are they treated the same under (g), which has to do with providing the meal, as the workers who did pay?
MR. HEYMAN-KANTOR: Your Honor, I want to object again. This is what we were talking about before. The determination letter was amended so that the drink, the CMPs for the drink charges were assessed --

JUDGE TIMLIN: We're not on drink charges.

MR. SCHULTE: I don't care about the drinks.

JUDGE TIMLIN: He's looking at the difference between (g) and (q).

MR. SCHULTE: I'm following on Your Honor's question just to hopefully shed light on that. But your question was why aren't all of the workers here when not all of the workers bought meals? Her testimony was it's because of the disclosure issue. And so I was bringing up, okay, well, there's a separate requirement for disclosure, and is this the same thing? I'm still not understanding why there's that disparity, that the full set is triggering CMPs.

MR. HEYMAN-KANTOR: Your Honor, she previously testified about how selling drinks at a profit is a violation. So --

JUDGE TIMLIN: Right, but we're not on drinks at all. So I think you're on -- we're not talking about drinks. We're talking about the issue of why. What was, what was the rationale behind using the multiplier of 147 employees for the CMP for the violation, for the meal plan? And what my question, and what Mr. Schulte seems to be following up on is, if the 147, if the violation that's at -- if the problem was that there was no notification in the job order, then that would affect all 147 people. And that would make sense, then, that your CMP would multiply by 147 people. But if the problem was -- if the reason you're assessing a CMP and multiplying it by the number of employees is because employees had to pay, not because there was this disclosure issue, but because they actually did pay, then why would -- I think what Mr. Schulte's asking is why wouldn't the CMP then be reduced for those employees that did not pay for the meal plan?

MR. HEYMAN-KANTOR: Right. I --

JUDGE TIMLIN: And do you understand? And it has nothing to do with the drinks. It has nothing to do with drinks. It just has to do with, is it, is the violation that's multiplied by 147, is it a CMP for a notice, the failure to disclose, or is it a CMP for the having to pay for meals? Got it?

MR. HEYMAN-KANTOR: I, right. And --

JUDGE TIMLIN: And that was my question and I -- and I'm pretty sure that's exactly what he's following up on. Okay?

MR. HEYMAN-KANTOR: So that -- and I think that's why the drinks and meals were combined. I think that the issues are related. The CMPs for the drinks violations were combined, so there wasn't extra CMPs even though some workers just got drinks. There were CMPs for workers having drinks, and were CMPs who were charged, who are unlawful charges for meals.

JUDGE TIMLIN: I guess, because my question -- because I thought there was no CMP for people having drinks.

So I just took that whole thing out of the equation.

MR. HEYMAN-KANTOR: There wasn't during the determination letter. But then that was --

JUDGE TIMLIN: Because I'm not that interested in the drinks issue. I'm interested in the issue of this -- and maybe Mr. Schulte might be interested in the drinks, but the issue I'm interested in is, is this: is the real, is the problem here the failure to disclose in the job order? And if that's the problem, then it makes sense that that problem would affect all 147 people that came in on an H-2A that did not disclose that they were going to have to pay for their meals. Or is the problem that they had to pay for their meals once they got there? Well, that would only affect the folks that actually did pay for their meals. Do --

MR. HEYMAN-KANTOR: Yeah, I understand where you're coming from.

JUDGE TIMLIN: That's where -- at least that's where I was coming from with my question. I don't know if -- and I would because he was, seemed to be following along that line, that's what I thought. So, you know --

MR. HEYMAN-KANTOR: Okay, understood.

JUDGE TIMLIN: -- maybe I'm wrong and he'll enlighten all of us that that's not what he was talking about. But that's, in terms of what's troubling me, that's what's troubling me. I'm trying to sort that out, okay? So, sorry

Mr. Schulte, I stepped --

MR. SCHULTE: No, and that's okay.

JUDGE TIMLIN: -- on your parade there.

MR. SCHULTE: And I feel slightly better for spending so much time on the drink issue before. Because if there was -- there were no CMPs for it, I would hate to waste the time. But it's -- I'm not more sure of what the answer is now than I was an hour ago, I think. But we'll move on.

BY MR. SCHULTE:

Q. So the 147 under -- you're assessing for 147 under 122 (g)?

A. Mm-hmm.

Q. And so, and that is because they paid for meals?

A. It's because they paid for meals when there was no disclosure on the form.

Q. I think we're confusing the two issues that I had. I mean --

A. And we could have cited a separate CMP for the people who said they didn't buy a meal under --

Q. Right. But you can only collect --

A. -- a different violation.

Q. -- the ones that you assess, right? If you, if you, didn't assess a CMP, you can't collect that now, right?

MR. HEYMAN-KANTOR: Your Honor --

THE WITNESS: True. I'm just -

BY MR. SCHULTE:

Q. So what you could have done is fine. But the, what this requirement is relates to actually buying the meal. There is a separate one for disclosure, so we're not talking about disclosure. That's not part of this, right? This, what we're talking about here is purchasing a meal triggered a meal for 147 workers.

A. Yes.

Q. Did 147 workers purchase meals?

A. No.

Q. Okay. You referred to post-certification, post-certification amendments to a job order. Kind of once ETA has certified a job order, that you can go back and amend the job order and change the number of workers?

A. It's possible.

Q. Okay.

A. If you needed additional workers.

Q. Okay. Is that based on your knowledge of the H-2A program, conversations with the ETA? How do you know that?

A. Knowledge of the program.

Q. Okay. Have you seen employers do that?

A. I have seen amended job orders.

Q. Amended post-certification? Or amended kind of as part of the certification process?

A. I don't recall.

Q. Okay. If I can make an offer of proof, right, just -- it's not really relevant, but just sort of as a narrow issue. Working with employers that file this, ETA specially will not allow that. Their policy is to never accept a post-certification.

MR. HEYMAN-KANTOR: I'm sorry.

MR. SCHULTE: You can take it, whether you're going to solve or not.

MR. HEYMAN-KANTOR: What is it -- I'm sorry -- can you repeat that?

JUDGE TIMLIN: He said that he's making an offer of proof that an employer would not be allowed once their job offer has been certified to amend that job offer.

MR. HEYMAN-KANTOR: Okay, that's not an offer of proof.

MR. SCHULTE: I understand that. That's --

MR. HEYMAN-KANTOR: Offers of proof are when you, when a Court does not allow testimony. That's the wrong --

MR. SCHULTE: Okay.

JUDGE TIMLIN: Right, okay.

MR. SCHULTE: I mean, the regulations speak for themselves. You can check later.

JUDGE TIMLIN: But I -- right.

MR. SCHULTE: If it's not, it's not allowed.

JUDGE TIMLIN: I think that's probably not that much of a major issue.

BY MR. SCHULTE:

Q. Some of your, some of the factors that you looked at had to do with the employer making efforts to change the conditions that had trigged a violation, right?

A. Mm-hmm.

Q. Okay, if -- and you talked about kind of when you would advise an employer of that or when you wouldn't. So if you don't tell the employer about the violation, how can you assess them for the violation from that time from between when you noticed it and when you told them later?

A. Well, it depends on the nature of what the violation is. And if the violation occurred, then it occurred and there's still a potential CMP assessment for whatever that violation might be.

Q. For --

A. When we have a closeout conference, we would make sure that the employer understands the violation and that they have some type of remedy for future compliance.

Q. Right. And as soon as you tell them, they'll have an opportunity to fix it. But we're talking about, you know, assessing penalties from the time from when you become aware of it until when you tell them. You know, just a question of, is that fair to the employer? You know, kind of how --

A. I can't speak to the fairness of the regulations. If the violation occurred, it occurred, and if it's subject to a civil money penalty assessment, we would consider that.

Q. Is there -- there's no duty by the Division to advise them of that or give them an opportunity to correct it before you penalize them for it?

A. It depends on what specific violation you're talking about.

Q. For any violation. If you know something and don't tell them to fix it, then you come back later and penalize them for the thing you didn't tell them to change. That's what we're talking about.

A. If there's, for example, a minimum wage overtime violation, and it's a repeat violation, if it happens again, we're going to still assess the CMP. We're going to consider the totality of the situation and the circumstances, but the violation occurred again. It wouldn't matter if it stopped halfway through the investigation.

Q. No, it's not that they stopped on their own. It's that, you know, the Division has no responsibility to give them a chance to fix it before they come assess penalties for it?

A. It's certainly within our, the investigator's purview to make them aware.

Q. Okay. And if they choose not to, then the numbers will go up and up?

A. I don't know if saying the numbers will go up and up is an accurate characterization. But again, we also want to make sure that we've gathered enough evidence to support citing the violation.

MR. SCHULTE: Right. Okay. Nothing else.

MR. HEYMAN-KANTOR: Nothing further, Your Honor.

JUDGE TIMLIN: Okay. I'm sorry. I'm still not -- okay. In terms, there's been a bunch of questions on this issue with profit and loss. Do you have to find a profit for the employer and a loss for the employee? Or could it be one or the other?

THE WITNESS: It could be one or the other.

JUDGE TIMLIN: Okay. And with respect to the (g) and the (q) violations, could you have -- just as you -- and you have the civil money penalty under (g)?

THE WITNESS: Mm-hmm.

JUDGE TIMLIN: Could you have instead put the civil money penalty under (q) and put no civil money penalty under (g)? And you made a decision not to assess a civil money penalty for (q).

THE WITNESS: I mean, we could have assessed a civil money penalty under (q). I doubt, I don't think that would have negated some type of civil money penalty under (g). Certainly not.

JUDGE TIMLIN: Got it. Okay. So you would have still done a (g) --

THE WITNESS: Yes.

JUDGE TIMLIN: -- whether you did a (q) or not?

THE WITNESS: Yes.

JUDGE TIMLIN: Okay. All right. That bring up anything? Anybody?

MR. SCHULTE: No, Your Honor.

JUDGE TIMLIN: You guys are first.

MR. HEYMAN-KANTOR: No, Your Honor.

JUDGE TIMLIN: Okay. Thank you for your -- and thank you for making the drive to be here today. I know you had a lot of other stuff on your schedule. Okay.

MR. HEYMAN-KANTOR: So, I guess the only thing left is to discuss, I don't know if there's anything other than the --

JUDGE TIMLIN: Oh, there's stuff left.

MR. HEYMAN-KANTOR: Okay. Sorry. Sorry, Your Honor. I just wanted to make sure no one was leaving.

JUDGE TIMLIN: There's no -- right. You don't have any more witnesses, Mr. Schulte, right?

MR. SCHULTE: No, Your Honor.

JUDGE TIMLIN: And you have no more witnesses?

MR. HEYMAN-KANTOR: Yes, correct. We rest.

JUDGE TIMLIN: So we're done with all the testimony in this case?

MR. HEYMAN-KANTOR: Yes.

JUDGE TIMLIN: So everybody's resting. So this is what I'm going to do.

MR. GLICK: Your Honor, if I may before --

JUDGE TIMLIN: No, it's okay.

MR. GLICK: Is the witness excused? Or can she --

JUDGE TIMLIN: Oh, yeah, yeah, yeah, yeah. I'm sorry. You're excused.

THE WITNESS: Thank you.

MR. GLICK: You may very well have said it; I'm just making it clear.

JUDGE TIMLIN: All right. Yes, you're excused.

(Witness excused.)

JUDGE TIMLIN: Okay, so I have stuff. I want to make sure I walk away with the things I'm supposed to have, and not walk away with things that I'm not supposed to have. I think these are things I'm not supposed to have. And it is my practice that if there's an exhibit that's in your binder that did not get admitted, I'm going to give it back to you because I don't want to figure out later what these stray exhibits are. So we're going to start with your exhibits.

And so we have, I have kind of straight all the way through that we've admitted, beginning with 1 all the way through 16 and 16-1. Now, if I look at -- so that binder's coming with me for sure. And that binder's coming with me. So that gets us to 17. Is there a 17 that's separate from 17-1? No?

MR. GLICK: Correct.

JUDGE TIMLIN: So it's 17-1, -2, and -3, they're all in. But you guys also have in here a 17-4, 17-5, 17-6. They were never offered. Am I right?

MR. GLICK: That's correct, Your Honor.

JUDGE TIMLIN: PX-18 was never offered?

MR. GLICK: Correct.

JUDGE TIMLIN: Okay. PX-19's in, 20's in, 21, 22, 23, 24, 25. Let's make two, 26 was not offered.

MR. GLICK: Correct, Your Honor.

JUDGE TIMLIN: Okay. PX-27 was discussed, but never offered.

MR. HEYMAN-KANTOR: We can move to admit that the two pages that were discussed of 27 if -- believe that the relevant information is essentially already in the record from the transcript, and perhaps it's clear as, and I need to find the --

JUDGE TIMLIN: It can't --

MR. HEYMAN-KANTOR: -- page numbers.

JUDGE TIMLIN: It counts for three pages. No, I'm sorry. There's four pages in here. There's, and there's the 1042, 1043, 1044, and 1045. And there are pictures of either cases of beer or prices for cases of beer. Are you moving to admit them?

MR. HEYMAN-KANTOR: We move to admit pages 1044 and 1045.

JUDGE TIMLIN: I don't think that's the ones you want to admit, because 1042 is one with the prices in it. I would, it, I mean --

MR. HEYMAN-KANTOR: Well, then I would move the whole exhibit. But I believe that Mr., Investigator Perez testified specially about page 1044.

JUDGE TIMLIN: Yeah.

MR. HEYMAN-KANTOR: And 1045 goes with it. We can offer the whole exhibit for completeness based on his testimony.

JUDGE TIMLIN: Okay, so any objections to these pictures of the beer? I mean, for what they're worth.

MR. SCHULTE: Just as to the relevance, yeah.

JUDGE TIMLIN: Right. Okay. So they're admitted so they can stay.

(Whereupon, the documents referred to and previously marked for identification as Plaintiff's Exhibit 27, were received into evidence.)

JUDGE TIMLIN: Then we have 28, it's in, 29, that takes us to 31. That was never offered.

MR. HEYMAN-KANTOR: Correct, Your Honor.

JUDGE TIMLIN: So that's okay. Then what do we got? Okay. Then we have 32, 33, 34 -- 35, you only offered the one page, which was 1107, which is the very first page. So the rest of them are not being offered? These are the pictures of the guys in the field.

MR. GLICK: That's correct, Your Honor. There was only testimony for that one page, and I don't think the rest are necessary.

JUDGE TIMLIN: Okay. You're going to have to figure it out by the page numbers because that won't have a tab on it.

MR. GLICK: I'm sorry, I'm not sure I understood.

JUDGE TIMLIN: I'm pulling out things that are not admitted.

MR. GLICK: Absolutely.

JUDGE TIMLIN: Because I'm going to hand them back to you.

MR. GLICK: I will take it through my working --

JUDGE TIMLIN: Most of the time you'll be able to figure out because the tab is there. But that one will be a little more difficult because there's no tab there.

MR. GLICK: Not a problem.

JUDGE TIMLIN: Because that was 35. Okay. PX-36 is in, 37 is in. 38, am I correct that that was never offered?

MR. GLICK: That's also correct.

JUDGE TIMLIN: Okay. PX-39 is in, 40 is in, 41 is in, and 42 is the thing that we got from the guy, Mr. Zavala Almanza. So that, and that's it.

MR. GLICK: That is my understanding as well, Your Honor.

JUDGE TIMLIN: Okay. So I seem to have binders -- no. Okay, well, I need all that one.

MR. GLICK: Your Honor, may I --

JUDGE TIMLIN: I'm looking at these.

MR. GLICK: Whenever you're ready.

JUDGE TIMLIN: It's fine. Just, okay. I need, I'm looking to make sure that what I have in here is, are all things, because there's binders that never got referred to, but there are things that are -- and before 16 is in. If I'm going to choose -- yes, okay. What I have, got it. And these --

MR. GLICK: Can we write a letter to the Court with the password so it's in writing?

JUDGE TIMLIN: Yes, please.

MR. GLICK: Thank you.

JUDGE TIMLIN: Okay. So I'm going to hand these, and I'm not -- I'm going to hand these back to you. I'm going to put --

MR. HEYMAN-KANTOR: Just a small -- and Your Honor is keeping the, assuming the Exhibit Appendix A, which has the minute numbers of the DVDs.

JUDGE TIMLIN: I hope so. Where is that?

MR. HEYMAN-KANTOR: That's right behind the exhibit list in front of Binder 1.

JUDGE TIMLIN: Yeah, I haven't given that back. No I'm not giving that back. No. Okay. I'm going, I'm keeping, if it's okay with you, I'm going to keep the box.

MR. GLICK: Of course.

JUDGE TIMLIN: All right. So we've done, dealt with Plaintiff's exhibits.

MR. GLICK: Well, while we're still on Plaintiff's exhibits, there's --

JUDGE TIMLIN: Sure.

MR. GLICK: -- a couple of points. As to PX-1 and PX-2, and they're included, they were also in, you've admitted and considered as the summaries of voluminous records, and in Rule 1006.

JUDGE TIMLIN: Right.

MR. GLICK: And I believe Respondent has not potentially rebutted their validity, and so I would just ask for a sort of definitive ruling that they are in now admitted as Rule 1006 summaries.

JUDGE TIMLIN: Yes, right.

MR. GLICK: Yeah.

JUDGE TIMLIN: Yes. Okay. Yes?

MR. GLICK: And finally as to the -- Your Honor had asked about the, there were handwritten pages. Certainly as to this page given --

JUDGE TIMLIN: Yes, right.

MR. GLICK: -- we, Respondent's possession, we don't have any position about this. But as to this first page, if it would be helpful to the Court, we could move it, admit it as an aid to the Court to, but I think it depends on the Court's preference.

JUDGE TIMLIN: It's all kind of laid -- I mean, I think it was helpful for your examination, but it is all kind of laid out in the payroll summary. So I don't think I necessarily need to keep it as some -- I don't need to keep either of those. So --

MR. GLICK: So, we'll take them back.

JUDGE TIMLIN: So, yes.

MR. GLICK: And that is all for, I mean, the Administrator on the exhibits.

JUDGE TIMLIN: That would probably be my preference. Here's -- yeah that's important. All right. So now we get to Respondent's -- here, let's move all these binders. Okay, we have --

MR. SCHULTE: We have for the first thing was at page 13. Everything before that -- Exhibit 1 is out completely.

JUDGE TIMLIN: Exhibit 1 is out. Okay.

MR. SCHULTE: Exhibit 2, only page 13 stays.

JUDGE TIMLIN: All right. Okay. 1's out, Exhibit 2 is just page 13, and Exhibit 3 is not in, Exhibit 4 was withdrawn. That takes us to 5, which is in. Okay. 6 was never offered, right?

MR. SCHULTE: Right.

JUDGE TIMLIN: RX-7 and 8, 9, 10, 11 -- no -- 7, 8, 9, and 10 are all in. RX-11 was not offered, right?

MR. SCHULTE: Agustin? Correct.

JUDGE TIMLIN: Hmm?

MR. SCHULTE: Agustin's? Yes, that's correct.

JUDGE TIMLIN: Okay.

MR. SCHULTE: But then 12 through 19 --

JUDGE TIMLIN: RX-12 is in, 13, 14, and 15 are all in. RX-16, 17, 18 in. RX-19 is in. Then nothing until 23?

MR. SCHULTE: Correct.

JUDGE TIMLIN: RX-23's in. And then nothing after 23?

MR. SCHULTE: Correct.

JUDGE TIMLIN: Okay. I'll return all these to you, so you can come and get your papers. All right. So that leaves the fun of figuring out all testimony's in, all the exhibits are in. You're going to email the password to me, or write, send me a letter with the password, something with the password?

MR. GLICK: I guess, open to the Court's preference being to --

JUDGE TIMLIN: Do you know what it is now? Do you want to write it on a piece of paper and give it to me?

MR. GLICK: If you could allow me to look at my email to be 100 percent sure before writing it down, and I can, but yes.

JUDGE TIMLIN: Yeah, why don't you do that, then --

MR. GLICK: I don't want to give the Court the wrong, the wrong information.

JUDGE TIMLIN: Well, why don't you do that, then you don't have to be sending it over the, through the --

MR. GLICK: Great.

JUDGE TIMLIN: -- Internet or whatever.

MR. HEYMAN-KANTOR: It's A-W-L-J-9, capital L. And there's a condition, 25LC.

JUDGE TIMLIN: The risk that it shows up on Wikipedia someday.

MR. HEYMAN-KANTOR: I've typed that in so many freaking times, I remember it well.

JUDGE TIMLIN: Okay. So now the only thing remaining then is the fun of the post-hearing briefs.

MR. HEYMAN-KANTOR: We would suggest six weeks after the transcripts are received.

JUDGE TIMLIN: I think that's probably totally fair. Is somebody going to let me know when the transcripts are received?

MR. HEYMAN-KANTOR: We could. We could talk and let you know.

JUDGE TIMLIN: Okay.

MR. SCHULTE: Do we have -- not to, not for a commitment of time, but, you know, a month --

MR. HEYMAN-KANTOR: I'm assuming a month. Is that --

JUDGE TIMLIN: It's usually a month.

COURT REPORTER: But this one's quite long. Usually it's about 45 pages an hour. So you can --

MR. HEYMAN-KANTOR: I have no idea what the --

COURT REPORTER: So like an hour's worth of testimony, I think like an hour's worth --

MR. HEYMAN-KANTOR: Maybe if the transcript comes later than we're expecting, then we can talk again and decide if there's any problem with the six weeks, and if there is, we could --

JUDGE TIMLIN: Right.

MR. HEYMAN-KANTOR: -- notify the Court or --

JUDGE TIMLIN: That's fine. So, I mean, I'm thinking it's July, I don't even know. I've lost track of the dates -- the 22nd?

COURT CLERK: The 21st.

JUDGE TIMLIN: 21st? 21st, okay. July 21st. So figure you're, I would figure, I would give you probably until, to expect not to see the transcript until the end of August. Say, the, we'll give them more than -- it's a long transcript, so August 31st. Six weeks after that takes us into mid-October. So we're talking about like somewhere around October 15th or 16th. Okay, I will not make it due on a Saturday or Sunday. So --

MR. GLICK: That's why I asked you. I have a different Wage Hour case and an H-2B case in mid-October, I think. So that's what I'm trying to figure out. But I think once we know better --

JUDGE TIMLIN: About the transcript?

MR. GLICK: -- about the transcripts, we can plan on --

JUDGE TIMLIN: All right. So you'll just, you guys will just keep me informed. And believe me, I can be, if it runs, if either of you run into a problem in terms of even the six week deadline, we can shift it back if we have to, that's okay. You know, just, you just have to let me know. So you guys will let me know when the transcript is in?

MR. HEYMAN-KANTOR: Yes, Your Honor.

JUDGE TIMLIN: And suggest in that letter what the six week date will be, but I'll be looking for it in mid-October. And then the other thing, briefs, anything?

MR. GLICK: May I, may I ask you a question? I'm sorry.

JUDGE TIMLIN: Absolutely.

MR. GLICK: On the briefs, just, is Your Honor's preference -- could you please explain the preference for the -- is it simultaneous briefs? Or what is --

JUDGE TIMLIN: Yes. Simultaneous briefs. Reply briefs only with my permission. So you guys both file your briefs on the same day, and whatever date we decide, that's your postmark date, okay?

MR. GLICK: Okay.

JUDGE TIMLIN: And that, if say it is October 16th, I want it postmarked by October 16th.

MR. GLICK: Got you.

JUDGE TIMLIN: I'm not telling you, you have to have it in my hands on October 16th.

MR. HEYMAN-KANTOR: So we could send it to you by regular mail?

JUDGE TIMLIN: You can send it to me by regular mail. And yes, they will be simultaneous briefs. If when you read the briefs of your opponent, you think there's some burning reason that you have to file a reply brief, you file a motion with me, explain to me why, and I will either grant it, or say, no, I've read and heard enough about this case, I don't want to read any more.

MR. SCHULTE: So just to be clear, it's one brief per side, period.

JUDGE TIMLIN: Exactly. Unless you get my permission. There is plenty for Nick and I to read as it is.

MR. SCHULTE: And this may be in the Court's rules, but in that same vein, is there -- do you have a page target in mind?

JUDGE TIMLIN: I do not have a firm rule on page limitations. However, you know, I don't want to read 200 pages of anything. I don't even really want to read 100 pages of anything. You know, be reasonable. That's all, that's all. And I don't have, yeah, I don't have rules as to its -- just get -- what I'm interested in is your legal arguments.

MR. SCHULTE: Okay.

JUDGE TIMLIN: Okay? I'm interested that you've covered all of the legal arguments that affect all of the violations, and all of the issues in the case.

Yeah, I actually spent many years in the Solicitor's Office and tried a lot of OSHA cases, which I don't do now anymore. But I filed a brief and proposed findings and conclusions of law in a case that the brief ran 500 pages. And that ALJ did institute a 50 page limit after that, on all the briefs. He's no longer with us, but, so yeah. Don't be, don't be -- really, don't be that one.

MR. SCHULTE: Was he pinned under it? Or a sanction, was that a sanction?

JUDGE TIMLIN: Don't be that lawyer, okay? That's all I'll tell you. Don't be that lawyer. You don't want to be the lawyer that causes the Judge the issue of page limitation on all future briefs, okay? This has been very interesting. We can go off the record.

(Whereupon, at 6:30 p.m., the hearing in the above-entitled matter was closed.)

2017-TAE-00003.

I'm going to ask you some questions this afternoon and if you don't understand anything, please let me know. I would also ask that you answer any questions of you today verbally so that the court reporter in the room here with me can take down your answers. 03:08

A. Yes.

Q. Could you please state your name?

A. Carlos Cervantes Ramirez. 03:08

Q. Mr. Cervantes Ramirez, do you have some identification with you today. Could I ask you to take any identification out and hold it up toward the camera, please?

A. (Witness complies). 03:09

Q. Could you raise it up a couple of inches please?

A. (Witness complies).

Q. Thank you very much. You can put that away. 03:09

Mr. Cervantes Ramirez, have you worked at a farm called Sun Valley?

A. Yes.

Q. When was that?

A. 2015.
Q. Do you remember what months?
A. From April to May.
Q. Other than from April to May of 2015, did you work at Sun Valley any other times? 03:09
A. No.
Q. How did you find out about the work at Sun Valley?
A. They gave us the contract at the company where I'm at. 03:10
Q. Where is that company?
A. I don't remember the name.
Q. Did you work at Sun Valley on a Visa? 03:10
A. Yes.
Q. What kind of Visa?
A. H2A.
Q. What was the work at Sun Valley like? 03:10
A. I was cutting asparagus.
Q. Do you remember what your schedule was like at Sun Valley?
A. From 7:00 a.m. to 7:00 p.m., sometimes even 8:00 or 9:00 p.m.

Q. How many days a week?
A. Seven days a week.
Q. Was the schedule the same each day of the week? 03:11
A. From Monday to Saturday it was and Sundays we only worked until noon or sometimes until 3:00.
Q. Who decided the schedule?
A. Agustin. 03:12
Q. Who is Agustin?
A. He was the supervisor of the farm.
Q. When you worked at Sun Valley, could you decide to work a different schedule than that? 03:12
A. No.
Q. What was Agustin like as a supervisor?
A. He was very strict.
Q. In what way? 03:12
A. He wanted us to work faster and he wouldn't let us rest.
Q. How do you know he wanted you to work faster?

A. He say that to us.
Q. How do you know he didn't want you to rest?
A. Because he was always asking us to produce more. 03:13
Q. What did he mean to produce more?
A. Because we cut asparagus, but he wouldn't tell us whether we had to do it by the hour or based on how much we produce.
Q. What did cutting asparagus at Sun Valley involve? 03:14
A. I don't understand your question. What do you mean? How I cut?
Q. Could you explain what it was like cutting asparagus at Sun Valley? 03:14
A. We had to crouch in order to cut the asparagus and we cut asparagus with a knife.
Q. When you cut asparagus at Sun Valley, were you crouched some of the time or only occasionally or most of the time? 03:15
A. All the time.
Q. Is that the way it was like cutting asparagus the whole time you were at Sun Valley or was it different sometimes?

A. All the time.
Q. What was the arrangement for eating meals when you worked at Sun Valley?
A. During the morning we had coffee and maybe a piece of bread and then at noon we had lunch and in the afternoon around 6:00 we had dinner. 03:16
Q. Was there a charge for those meals or was it free?
A. We had to pay $75 a week. 03:17
Q. Whom did you pay?
A. Agustin.
Q. Did you have a choice about whether or not to pay that $75 a week?
A. No. 03:17
Q. When you worked at Sun Valley, did you buy anything else from Agustin or anyone else at Sun Valley?
A. I would only buy from Agustin.
Q. What, if anything, did you buy from Agustin? 03:17
A. I would buy my meals, soda, cigarettes, potato chips.
Q. Did you buy anything else from

Agustin?

A. During the weekends I would buy one or two beers.

Q. Did you purchase anything else from Agustin? 03:18

A. No. Only that.

Q. Were any of the sodas, cigarettes, potato chip or beers included in the $75 a week fee?

A. No. 03:19

Q. When you worked at Sun Valley in a typical day, how many sodas did you buy?

A. Three or maybe four.

Q. What did that depend on?

A. Monster or a soda. 03:19

Q. Were there -- the days where you bought more drinks, was there a reason you bought more on that day?

A. Because water was not enough.

Q. What do you mean by that? 03:20

A. They would only take us a thermos of water, but when we ran out of it, we had to buy a soda or something to drink.

Q. Where were the thermoses?

A. They would be in Agustin's truck.
Q. Was this during the times you were working in the fields or some other time?
A. In the field.
Q. Was there a particular time of day when the water would run out? 03:21
A. Yes. Usually at lunch they would fill it up again and in the afternoon we went back to the field and then there was no water.
Q. How often did it happen when you worked at Sun Valley that the water in the thermoses would run out at some point? 03:21
A. Every day.
Q. During a typical day at Sun Valley, when is the first time in the day that you would purchase a beverage from Agustin? 03:22
A. Around 10:00 a.m. or 11:00 a.m.
Q. What kind of beverage was that?
A. A Monster.
Q. When is the next time in a typical day at Sun Valley that you would purchase a beverage from Agustin? 03:22
A. During lunch.
Q. What kind of beverage did you buy at lunch?

A. A soda.
Q. Any particular kind?
INTERPRETER DE LA GARMA ROMO: Could you say that again? 03:23
Q. Any particular kind of soda?
A. Coke.
Q. Any other kinds?
A. I don't remember the name, but there were other types of soda. 03:23
Q. Did you ever buy those other types of soda?
A. Yes.
Q. In a typical day at Sun Valley after lunch, when was the next time you purchased a 03:24 beverage?
A. At about 3:00 p.m. when we ran out of water.
Q. What kind of beverage?
A. Soda again or also water. They 03:24 would sell bottled water too.
Q. If you purchased an additional drink, what time of day would that be?
A. Later in the afternoon when we had dinner.

Q. What would you purchase then?

A. Another soda.

Q. Were there days you would purchase an additional beverage after that? 03:25

A. No. Not really. After that we would take a shower and then go to bed.

Q. I want to ask you about the costs of those beverages. How much did the Monsters cost that Agustin sold? 03:25

A. $3.

Q. How much did the soda cost?

A. 1.50.

Q. How much did the bottled water that Agustin sold cost? 03:26

A. $1.

Q. In any of those times of days, did you ever purchase more than one beverage at once?

A. No. I just usually bought one. 03:26

Q. When you were working in the fields, do you know if other workers in Sun Valley bought the same number of beverages as you or fewer or more?

A. Some would buy more.
Q. What percent of your coworkers at Sun Valley bought more than you, more beverages than you in the fields?
A. Like 50 percent. 03:27
Q. About how many beverages would those workers buy?
A. Maybe three more beverages than I did.
Q. How do you know that? 03:27
A. I would notice when we paid because I realized they were paying more than I did.
Q. In the fields did your other 50 percent of coworkers buy the same as you or less than you? 03:28
A. Since we were not together most of the times when we were at the fields, some would go in, some would leave. I'm not that sure about who bought what or how many beverages they bought. 03:28
Q. Sometimes you would find out how much your coworkers were paying for the beverages?
A. Sometimes they would pay $100. That included the meals and also all the beverages.

Q. How do you know how much your coworkers paid?
A. Because we would make a line in order to pay and then they would tell me I have to pay this much or I have to pay this other amount. Like that is how I found out. 03:29
Q. How often do you pay for those beverages that you bought from Agustin?
INTERPRETER DE LA GARMA ROMO: Interpreter needs clarification. Could you repeat the question? 03:29
Q. How often did you make payment for the beverages you purchased from Agustin?
A. Weekly when we received our paycheck. 03:30
INTERPRETER DE LA GARMA ROMO: The interpreters will switch now.
(Interpreter de la Garma Romo was relieved by Interpreter Errasti.) 03:30
Q. The beverages that you purchased from Agustin at the mealtime, did your coworkers purchase more than you at mealtime or less than you or the same?

A. It would just be one.
MR. GLICK: Objection.
Nonresponsive.
Q. Your coworkers at Sun Valley, did they purchase more beverages than you at the meals or fewer beverages or the same amount? 03:31
A. They sometimes bought more.
Q. What percent of your coworkers bought more?
A. Probably 50 percent. 03:31
Q. How much more than you did they buy?
A. Like three or four more than me.
Q. How do you know that?
A. We noticed when we paid.
Q. The coworkers who didn't buy more than you, did they buy the same or less? 03:32
A. More.
MR. GLICK: Objection.
Nonresponsive.
Q. The coworkers that did not buy more than you, did they buy the same or did they buy less than you at the meals? 03:32
A. The same.
MR. GLICK: Objection.

Nonresponsive.

Q. I want to make sure my question is clear so I'm going to ask it again. I don't know if it is coming across clearly.

Mr. Cervantes, I understand you testified about 50 percent of your coworkers purchased more beverages than you at mealtime. 03:33

A. Yes.

Q. I want to ask about the other half of your coworkers. Did they purchase the same as you or less? 03:33

A. They bought the same that I bought because we sometimes paid the same amount of money.

Q. How often did you buy cigarettes at Sun Valley? 03:33

A. One box per week.

Q. Did you buy those from Agustin or someone else?

A. Agustin. Agustin. 03:34

Q. How much was the box of cigarettes?

A. I don't remember to be honest.

Q. Do you remember how many cigarettes were in that box?

A. Twenty.
Q. Do you know if any of your coworkers bought cigarettes from Agustin?
A. Yes. Some of them. Some didn't smoke, but, yes, some bought from Agustin. 03:34
Q. How do you know that some of your coworkers bought cigarettes from Agustin?
A. Because once they saw me smoking and they asked me where I bought them and I told them Agustin sold them to me. 03:35
Q. The beer that you bought on the weekends at Sun Valley, was that also beer -- the beer that you bought on the weekends at Sun Valley, was that also purchased from Agustin?
A. Yes. 03:35
Q. How much did those beers cost?
A. I think it was $20. 24 beers.
INTERPRETER ERRASTI: Interpreter needs clarification from the witness.
MR. GLICK: I will ask another question. 03:36
INTERPRETER ERRASTI: Okay.
MR. GLICK: Did you translate exactly what the witness said? I'm asking the interpreter.

INTERPRETER ERRASTI: I didn't hear what you said.

MR. GLICK: Did you translate what the witness said? 03:36

INTERPRETER ERRASTI: I translated what he said because he didn't finish his question.

MR. GLICK: I will ask the next question, please. 03:36

Q. Mr. Cervantes, when you paid about $20 for beer, how many beers did that include?

A. It was 24 beers.

Q. Do you remember what brand of beer?

A. Bud Light, Budweiser and Caguama. 03:37

Q. Were those 24 beers cans or bottles or something else?

A. They were cans.

Q. Did your coworkers also purchase beer from Agustin? 03:37

A. Yes.

Q. How often did they buy beer from Agustin?

A. Just weekly.

Q. How do you know that?
A. We all bought those beers, we would give $5 each and we bought it altogether.
Q. Is that money you all paid to Agustin? 03:38
A. Yes.
Q. When you bought beer from Agustin, did you pay cash or pay a different way?
A. Cash.
Q. Did you pay at the end of the week 03:38 along with the meals or did you pay at a different time?
A. We paid along with meals.
Q. How did Agustin keep track of the money owed by the workers? 03:39
A. He had a notebook and he would take notes.
Q. Did you see him do that?
INTERPRETER ERRASTI: Can you repeat the question? 03:39
Q. Did you see him do that?
A. Yes, I saw that because he would have our name and what we would have to pay him and he would write it down every time we bought something.

Q. Do you know where Agustin kept that notebook?

A. He was the only one that had that notebook. 03:39

MR. GLICK: Objection.

Nonresponsive.

Q. Do you know where Agustin kept the notebook?

A. He had it with him in his van. 03:40

Q. Do you know what percent of your coworkers from Sun Valley purchased beer from Agustin?

A. Most of them, 90 percent.

Q. How do you know that? 03:40

A. Because there were people from other states that would come with us and they were the ones that used to drink more.

Q. Did some of your coworkers purchase more beer from Agustin than you did? 03:40

A. No.

Q. Did any of your coworkers purchase beer from Agustin during the week?

A. No.

Q. Mr. Cervantes, why did you purchase Monster when you were at Sun Valley?
A. Because I would get tired and supposedly Monster is good for exercising.
Q. Did you drink Monster at 10:00 or 11:00 in the morning because you were tired? 03:41
A. Yes.
Q. Do you know why you would be tired at 10:00 or 11:00 in the morning when you worked at Sun Valley? 03:42
A. Because we were crouching all the time.
Q. Did you feel tired?
A. Yes.
Q. How did you feel? 03:42
A. I had --
(The court reporter asked for a clarification.)
MR. GLICK: Could the interpreter repeat translation. 03:42
INTERPRETER ERRASTI: I had hip pain. Pain in the hips.
Q. Did you feel anything else when you were tired working at Sun Valley?

A. No. That was it.
Q. Do you know if there were any of your coworkers at Sun Valley who did not purchase beverages from Agustin while working in the fields? 03:43
A. No.
Q. During the time you worked at Sun Valley, did you ever buy anything outside of Sun Valley?
A. Yes, when we went out to cash our checks, they took us to a store, I would buy soap, soap for my clothes and toothpaste. And that was it. 03:43
Q. At that store, did you ever buy anything else? 03:44
A. I bought a 12 pack of Coca-Cola.
Q. Do you remember how much that 12 pack of Coca-Cola cost at that store?
A. It was 3.50, more or less.
Q. Did Agustin know whether you purchased that 12 pack of soda outside of Sun Valley? 03:44
MR. SCHULTE: Objection. How does he know what someone else knows?

A. No, he didn't.
Q. Do you know of any of your coworkers at Sun Valley who didn't buy beverages in the fields from Agustin?
A. We didn't have a way of buying anything. Just when we went out to cash our checks. 03:45
Q. Maybe my question wasn't clear.
Do you know if any of your coworkers did not purchase beverages in the fields from Agustin? 03:45
A. Well, we all bought there.
Q. The sodas that you purchased in that 12 pack outside of Sun Valley, was there a place for you to refrigerate them? 03:46
A. No.
Q. How did you get to that store where you purchased the 12 pack of soda?
INTERPRETER ERRASTI: I'm sorry. Could you repeat the question? 03:46
Q. How did you get to the store where you purchased the 12 pack of soda?
A. They took us in a bus, the same bus they used for moving us in the farm, but they charge us $10 to take us to the store.

Q. Who charged you the $10?

A. Agustin. Agustin told us that we had to give $10 to the driver that would take us to the store. 03:47

Q. Were there ever times when you worked at Sun Valley where you used a different kind of vehicle to leave the farm?

A. No.

Q. Did you ever get a ride for free to a place to wash your clothes while you worked at Sun Valley? 03:48

A. No.

Q. Did you ever get a free ride to go anywhere during the time you worked at Sun Valley? 03:48

A. No. Every time we went out, we had to pay.

Q. Was the amount that you had to pay always the same? 03:48

A. Yes, $10.

Q. How much did the potato chips you bought from Agustin cost?

A. $1 and there were others that would cost 1.50.

Q. What cost 1.50?

A. Well, chips.

Q. Did you ever buy any of the chips that cost 1.50? 03:49

A. Yes.

Q. How often did you buy chips from Agustin?

A. Weekends.

Q. Any other times. 03:49

A. No. Just weekend when we have some breaks.

Q. Is there anything else you bought from Agustin on the weekends?

A. Sometimes I bought an instant soup 03:50 because sometimes they offered those meals I didn't like so I preferred to eat the instant meals.

Q. How much did that instant soup cost?

A. It was $2. 03:50

Q. How often did you buy an instant soup from Agustin?

A. When I didn't like the food they cooked, I preferred eating instant soup.

Q. About how many times during the week did that happen?
A. Probably two or three times per week.
Q. What was it about the food you didn't like the other times? 03:51
A. When someone is not used to what they eat there, sometimes I didn't like it. It didn't taste good.
Q. Was there anything wrong with the food? 03:51
A. Something smelled like --
(The reporter asked for clarification.)
A. If something smelled like cow. Like a lot of beef. 03:51
Q. Was there anything else wrong with the food?
A. No. That was it.
Q. What was the housing like at Sun Valley when you worked there? 03:52
A. Well, we lived in a room with a lot of bunk beds.
Q. What else was the housing like?

A. It was just bunk beds.
Q. Was there any refrigerator in the dorms you could use?
A. No.
Q. What were the bathrooms like? 03:52
A. It was a room. On one side we had the showers and on the other side we had the toilets, but there were no curtains.
Q. Where were there no curtains?
A. None of the bedrooms. None in the 03:53 showers nor in the toilets.
Q. If you were using the toilet, could you see the person next to you?
A. Yes.
Q. Just part of their body or could you 03:53
see their whole body?
A. If someone walked in front of you, they would see that you were sitting there on the toilet.
Q. Would they see your whole body or 03:54
just a part of your body?
A. The whole body. There were no doors.
Q. Was there hot water in the bathroom?

A. Sometimes.
Q. What times was there not hot water?
A. Well, we were a lot in those rooms so water was not enough and we had to wait for someone to take a shower and then it would be us. 03:54
Q. Were there times where there was no hot water for you to use?
A. Yes, I think it was twice.
Q. Were the bathrooms clean? 03:55
A. No. Not very clean, but...
Q. What about in the fields, were there bathrooms for you to use in the fields?
A. No.
Q. Were there Port-a-Potties or some kind of portable toilet for you to use in the fields? 03:55
A. No.
Q. What would you do if you had to use the bathroom while working in the field? 03:56
A. We had to ask for permission and we would have to walk to the dorms. That's where the bathrooms were.
Q. Did Agustin always give you permission?

A. Well, he got upset and he said it was a way for us to just lose time.
Q. Did Agustin tell you to do anything instead? 03:56
A. No. He gave me permission to go to the bathroom, but he told me to hurry up.
Q. Could you always walk from the fields to the dorms?
A. Yes. 03:57
Q. Did you ever ride a bus or a van to get from the fields to the dorms?
A. No.
Q. What about to get from the dorm to the fields, did you ever ride a bus? 03:57
A. No. I had to run.
Q. I believe that you mentioned before that you took rides to the store and paid $10 to somebody; is that right?
A. Yes. 03:57
Q. Did you ever ride on those same vehicles to get between the dorms and the fields?
MR. SCHULTE: Objection. Asked and answered twice already.

A. Yes. They used those buses to take us to the field.

Q. How often did they use those buses to take you to the field? 03:58

A. Every day in the morning, at noon, at night. Those were the buses that they used to move us.

Q. How long was the ride?

A. Not too much. It would be like five minutes, but those were the buses that they used so we would move faster. 03:58

INTERPRETER ERRASTI: Interpreters need to switch.

(Interpreter Errasti was relieved by Interpreter de la Garma Romo.) 03:59

Q. Mr. Cervantes, whose decision was it that you left Sun Valley in May 2015?

A. Agustin.

Q. How do you know that Agustin decided that? 03:59

A. Because he took away our credentials and he said we should wait for the bus to come talk to us.

Q. When did Agustin take away your credentials?

A. I do not remember the exact date, but he would ask two people first and then three people and so on and so forth. I was one of the last persons that he asked to give the credentials to him. 04:00

Q. What credentials are you referring to?

A. It was a credential that had a photograph of us and that's what we used to check in in the mornings when we started working and at night when we came back. 04:00

Q. Did Agustin explain anything else when he took away your credentials? 04:01

A. Yes, he said we were not producing enough. We should go to the fields and the boss would come later on to talk to us.

Q. What time of day was it that Agustin took away your credentials? 04:01

A. Before lunch.

Q. Where were you?

A. We were in the field already.

Q. Were you working in the field?

A. Yes.
Q. What did you do next?
A. Well, we left the fields and we went back to the dorms and we waited for the next day which is when the boss came. 04:02
Q. What time of day did the boss come?
A. The next day at around 10:00 a.m. or 11:00 a.m.
Q. On the date that the boss came, did you work in the fields that morning? 04:03
A. No. We didn't work that day. We only worked the day before.
Q. Why didn't you work that day?
A. Because the day before Agustin had already told us that we were no longer going to 04:03 work.
Q. Where were you when the boss came at about 10:00 or 11:00 in the morning?
A. We were in the room where we slept.
Q. What happened next? 04:03
A. Well, we tried to go out so that we could talk to him, but he came in and he was yelling. He was slapping his hands. I'm not sure what he was saying because I don't understand English, but he did look very upset.

Q. What happened next?
A. Well, he pushed a coworker and then Agustin was also speaking in English and I'm not sure what they were saying, but then I was being told, I told you he is very grumpy and he is not very good at dealing with people.
Q. What happened next?
A. Well, then he continued speaking in English and moving his hands and then Agustin was telling us what Mr. Marino was saying and he had paid in order to get us here and he needed us to work as he said we should work.
Q. What happened next?
A. Then the boss left and Agustin told us to wait because he was going to get our paycheck and he told us not to worry about food because he would continue to give us food, that we only had to pay him at the end of the week.
Q. What happened next?
A. Agustin then gave us a paper that said that we were returning back home because a family member was sick. Actually I have the paper with me and it is supposed to be signed by Mr. Marino.

Q. What happened next?

A. Well, we signed the paper and then we just waited until we got our paycheck.

Q. I want to go back and ask you some questions about everything that you just told me. 04:07

Do you know what the name of the boss was?

A. The supervisor? 04:08

Q. I believe that you said that the boss was the person who was speaking English and sometimes was yelling. Do you know the name of that person?

A. The contract said Russ Marino Junior. 04:08

MR. SCHULTE: Objection. Nonresponsive.

Q. Do you know if the name of the boss was Russ Marino Junior? 04:09

A. That's what the contract said.

MR. SCHULTE: Same objection.

Q. Do you know the name of the person who was speaking English during that morning that you were telling me about?

A. Well, according to Agustin, his name was Marino Junior.
Q. Had you ever seen Mr. Marino Junior before he arrived at the dorms that morning at 10:00 or 11:00 in the morning? 04:09
A. No. We had not seen him before. When we first arrived, the only person to welcome us was Agustin.
Q. That morning, did Mr. Marino Junior speak Spanish at all? 04:10
A. No.
Q. Mr. Cervantes, do you understand English?
A. No. 04:10
Q. Did Agustin translate for Mr. Marino Junior into Spanish that morning?
A. Yes.
Q. How do you know that Mr. Marino Junior looked upset? 04:11
A. Because he was yelling and he was moving his hands around and he pushed a coworker of mine.
Q. During the time that Mr. Marino

Junior was yelling and waving his hands, do you know what he was saying?

A. No. I honestly don't know because I don't understand English.

Q. Did you speak to Mr. Marino Junior during that morning? 04:11

A. No. We were not able to talk to him and we didn't settle anything. He just said whatever he said and then he left and then Agustin spoke to us. 04:12

Q. Did any of your coworkers speak to Mr. Marino Junior that morning?

A. No.

Q. Before that morning, did you or any of your coworkers plan to tell Mr. Marino Junior anything if you had the opportunity to do so? 04:12

A. Yes.

Q. Do you know who it was who planned to speak with Mr. Marino Junior if they had the opportunity? 04:13

A. It was a group of 21 people and we told Agustin that we wanted to talk to Mr. Marino in order to know whether we were being paid by the hour or by the amount of production.

Q. Was there anything else that you told Agustin that you wanted to talk to Mr. Marino Junior about? 04:14

A. No. We only wanted to speak about work related topic.

Q. Any other work related topics that you wanted to speak to Mr. Marino Junior about?

A. We just wanted to know how we were getting paid, if it was by the hour or by now much we produced. 04:14

Q. Anything else you wanted to talk about?

A. Only about that because the paycheck didn't say whether we were being paid by the hour or by how much we produced. We just saw the final amount that we got paid. 04:14

Q. When did you tell Agustin that you wanted to speak to Mr. Marino Junior about that pay issue? 04:15

A. When we got the first paycheck because we would work the same number of hours, but some would get paid more and some would get paid less.

Q. Did you ever have an opportunity to ask Mr. Marino Junior about that pay issue?

A. No.

Q. During the meeting where Mr. Marino Junior was present, what did Agustin translate Mr. Marino as saying? 04:16

A. First he said that that's the reason why he didn't want to tell anything to the boss because the boss was very grumpy and he didn't want to deal with the workers. That's the reason Agustin was there, to be in charge. 04:16

Q. What else did Agustin translate Mr. Marino Junior as saying during that meeting? 04:17

A. He said that we had been fired. That we only had to wait so we got our paychecks and they were going to bring some papers that we had to sign so we didn't have any problems whenever we wanted to work in the USA. 04:17

Q. Do you know the name of the coworker that Mr. Marino Junior pushed that day?

A. I don't remember the name of that person because this was the first time that I went there and we didn't know everyone there since we come from different places.

Q. Did you see if something happened that made Mr. Marino Junior push that coworker? 04:18

A. No. No.

Q. Do you know why Mr. Marino Junior pushed that coworker?

A. No, I imagine it was because he was very upset. He just arrived and got out of the 04:20 truck and then we left the room where we were and we stood in front of him. We kind of surrounded him so we were able to listen to what he had to say and the coworker just approached and he somehow pushed him with his 04:20 hand and he went on speaking in English.

Q. I want to make sure I understand who pushed whom.

A. Mr. Marino pushed a coworker.

Q. Did anyone else push anyone else 04:20 that day?

A. No.

Q. Where were you standing when Mr. Marino Junior pushed that coworker?

A. I was almost right in front of him because we made a circle around him in order to listen to what he had to say and I was almost right in front of him.

Q. Did you see Mr. Marino Junior push the coworker? 04:21

A. Yes, I saw how he pushed him. He kind of moved him apart so that he wouldn't come close to him.

Q. Do you know why Mr. Marino Junior was upset that morning? 04:21

A. Because he was saying that he had paid for us and that we had to work under the conditions that he set.

Q. Did he say that to you? 04:22

A. Agustin said that that is what he was saying.

Q. Were you working under the conditions that you were supposed to be?

A. We worked under the conditions that he said. 04:22

Q. Did you personally ever refuse to work at Sun Valley?

A. No.

Q. Did other workers refuse to work at Sun Valley under any conditions?

A. No. We were all willing to work.

Q. How do you know that?

A. Well, we talked among each one of us and since I had gotten the money in order to pay for my transportation for my Visa for my passport, I had borrowed that money from someone, so I couldn't go back because I had to save enough money in order to pay. 04:23 04:24

Q. Do you know why Russell Marino thought that workers did not want to work under certain conditions at Sun Valley?

MR. SCHULTE: Objection. He has never said anything about Russell. 04:24

A. Because the job was very tough. We had to crouch all day and we had to spend many days -- many hours working.

Q. Did you ever complain about those work conditions? 04:25

A. It's because we worked for many long hours and then at the end of the day, the paychecks would be different. Some would get paid more and some would get paid less and

Agustin would also scold us because we were not producing enough. That's the reason we wanted to talk to Mr. Marino, in order to find out why some people were getting paid more and some people were getting paid less. 04:26

Q. Do you know if that's what Mr. Marino Junior was upset about that day?

MR. SCHULTE: Same objection. He only refer to a Mr. Marino.

A. Yes. 04:26

Q. Why do you think that?

A. Well, Agustin told us that he had said that he paid for us and that we had to follow the rules in his ranch.

Q. You mentioned a paper that Agustin brought to you at some point after that meeting with Mr. Marino Junior. When was it that Agustin brought that paper? 04:27

A. The next day in the morning after we had talked to the boss and he said that we had to sign the paper. 04:27

Q. Where were you when Agustin brought that paper?

A. In the place where we slept.

Q. Was anyone else there at that time?
A. Just the group of people that was there, that we were there together.
Q. How many people were in that group?
A. 21. 04:28
Q. Did you sign that paper?
A. Yes.
Q. Was the boss there when you signed it?
A. No. He was not there. Only Agustin was. 04:28
Q. Other than signing the paper, did you fill out anything else on that paper?
A. No. He filled in everything for us and we only signed. 04:29
Q. Do you know who filled in the rest of that paper?
A. No. We didn't see who signed them because he arrived in his truck and he took the papers from his truck and he called out our names and then gave us the documents and said we had to sign them, but I didn't see who filled in the document. 04:29
Q. Did you choose to leave Sun Valley

because you had a sick family member?
A. No.
Q. Did you choose to leave Sun Valley because you had a family member that died?
A. No. 04:30
Q. Did you choose to leave Sun Valley?
A. No.
Q. INTERPRETER DE LA GARMA ROMO: The interpreters will switch.
MR. GLICK: I would like to take a 04:31 short break, please. Just a couple of minutes.
INTERPRETER ERRASTI: Sure.
(A brief recess was taken.)
MR. GLICK: Everyone ready? 04:45
(Interpreter de la Garma Romo was relieved by Interpreter Errasti.)
Q. Mr. Cervantes, other than Agustin, were there any other supervisors or bosses that you interacted with at Sun Valley? 04:46
A. No.
Q. Do you see any other supervisors or bosses at Sun Valley?
A. We didn't see anyone else. We just

A. No.
Q. Do you have any plans to work on an H2A Visa this year?
A. No.
Q. Did you ever tell anyone from the Department of Labor that you might not be available for this deposition because you would be in the United States? 04:48
A. No.
Q. Any idea why they would think that? 04:48
MR. GLICK: Objection. Speculation.
A. I don't understand the question. Can you repeat it?
Q. It's okay. We can move on.
You said you had dinner around 6:00 p.m. most days. Is that correct? 04:48
A. Well, that was the official schedule that we got at the beginning, but it was not the case. Sometimes we left at 7:00 or 8:00 or 9:00. 04:49
Q. Would you work at sunset?
A. Yes.
Q. How would you work in the dark?
A. With the lights of the tractor.

MR. GLICK: Mr. Schulte, is it okay if I ask the court reporter to mark.

MR. SCHULTE: The record will reflect that the witness has what's been marked as Exhibit 25 and 26. 04:58

(Exhibit 26, Document, was marked for identification, as of this date.)

Q. Senor Cervantes, if you can look at Exhibit 25. Do you see a date on there next to your signature? 04:59

A. My name? Carlos Cervantes Ramirez. Then you can see my signature. The date, that's May the 6th, 2015. The name of the witness, Russ Marino Junior. I expect to return to my job once I have finished my 05:00 unexpected. I understand that I have to be in contact with my employer, the one I'm absent. I wish I can return on, length. I understand if I don't return I will quit and it will come into effect today and the U.S. agency will be 05:01 notified.

Q. Thank you, sir.

Do you recognize this document.

A. Yes.

Q. I think you answered this already, that's your signature on there?
A. Yes.
Q. Do you have any reason to believe that it was signed any date other than on May 6, 2015? 05:01
A. No. This is the right one because I have the original.
Q. You have the original?
A. Yes. 05:01
Q. Is the one that you have, it is this document, the Spanish half of the larger document you looked at earlier?
A. Well, I do have this one (indicating). 05:02
Q. Have you ever given a copy of this one to anyone?
A. No.
Q. Do you have any idea how it came to be in the folder in front of you, how the Department of Labor might have gotten that document then? 05:02
A. I sent a picture by, what's up, to Ms. Julia.

interpreter needs clarification from the witness.

MR. SCHULTE: Okay.

A. They stopped us from working at different times, some earlier, some later. We were some of the last ones that were prevented from working. 05:19

Q. Was everyone at the meeting at the same time or did some people come later while the meeting was already going? 05:19

A. Well, we left the housing one at a time because not all of us fit through the same door so one at a time left the housing. And we wanted to talk to him.

Q. What did you want to say to him? 05:20

A. We wanted to ask about our working conditions. We wanted to ask him whether we were being paid by the hour or by how much we produced.

Q. Did everyone want to ask the same question? 05:20

A. Yes, because we worked the same amount of time and some got paid more and some got paid less.

A. No.
Q. I want to make sure the question was clear. I'm asking about a conversation that Mr. Cervantes, you and I, had by phone last week. Do you remember if anyone else was on the phone? 05:30
A. Yes. José Perez.
Q. Do you remember whether Julia was on the telephone?
A. Yes, I think so. 05:30
Q. Did you have the choice whether to stay at Sun Valley and work picking other vegetables?
A. Yes.
Q. I'm not sure that the question was correctly translated so I'm going to ask it again. 05:31
Did you have the choice to stay at and work at Sun Valley and pick other vegetables? 05:31
A. No. The contract said something else, but when we got there at Sun Valley, it was just asparagus and that was it.
Q. If you could have stayed at Sun

Valley and kept picking asparagus, would you have stayed there?

A. Yes.

MR. GLICK: I have no further questions at this time. 05:32

MR. SCHULTE: Nothing more for me, thank you.

THE REPORTER: I assume you're ordering a copy of the transcript regular delivery? 05:32

MR. SCHULTE: Precisely right. Thank you.

MR. GLICK: Mr. Cervantes, thank you for taking the time today. I'm going to turn off the recording at this time. 12:55

EXAMINATION OF MIGUEL ANGEL ELIZONDO SOTO

BY MR. HEYMAN-KANTOR:

Q. Good afternoon. My name is Jacob

Heyman-Kantor and I'm an attorney with the U.S. Department of Labor. With me today is Jason Glick, another attorney with the U.S. Department of Labor.

A. Yes.

Q. We represent the Secretary of Labor in the matter of Sun Valley Orchards, LLC.

A. Yes.

Q. 2017-TAE-00003.

A. Yes.

Q. And we also represent the Administrator of the Wage and Hour Division in the matter of Agustin Hernandez, 2017-MSP-00002.

A. Yes, sir.

Q. Can you please state your name for the record?

A. My name is Miguel Angel Elizondo Soto.

Q. What is the best way to refer to you? Is Mr. Elizondo Soto correct?

A. Yes, perfect.

Q. Do you have any identification with you?

A. Yes, I have my passport.

Q. Can you show the passport up to the computer screen so we can see it? Maybe a little bit closer if you can. There we go. Thank you.

MR. HEYMAN-KANTOR: Let the record reflect that he is showing identification showing his name to the camera.

A. Yes.

Q. What is your primary language?

A. Spanish.

Q. Did you ever work for a company called Sun Valley Orchards?

A. Yes.

Q. When did you work for them?

A. June and July through August 1st, 2015.

Q. Were you there on an H2A visa?

A. Yes.

Q. How did you find employment with this company?

A. I came to the City of Celaya, here where we are, to file my application with the lady named Mayra.

Q. How did you find out about the employment opportunity?

A. Because I was looking for a job.

Q. How did you find out about this particular employer?

A. I just came to the office to submit my document just in case there was a job opportunity.

Q. So, I'd like to talk to you a little bit about what it was like at Sun Valley. Can you just describe generally what the work was like there?

A. We were there working harvesting pickles, zucchini and also working with peaches and cucumber.

Q. What else can you tell me about what the work was like in general?

A. We had to harvest the produce. We had to remove rubber from the field, the watering hoses. We had to remove the plastic from the field.

Q. Who supervised you?

A. We had a supervisor that was decided by the foreman.

Q. Who was the foreman?

A. Agustin Hernandez.

Q. What was Mr. Hernandez -- how did he treat you?

A. Very bad. He was racist. He didn't like us because we were from Guanajunto. He was very, very -- it was very clear that he didn't like us because we were from Guanajunto.

Q. What kinds of things would he say?

A. He used to say that we were from Guanajunto and that we were good for nothing.

Q. Did he give -- what kind of feedback did he give the workers about their work?

A. That it was not well done. He was never happy with our work. There was no way to please him.

Q. What were your hours at Sun Valley?

A. From 7:00 a.m. to 5:30 or 6:00 p.m.

Q. How many days a week did you work?

A. The seven days of the week.

Q. How was that schedule determined?

INTERPRETER GARCIA: Would you repeat that for me, please?

Q. Sure. How was that -- who decided -- strike that.

How was that schedule determined?

A. The foreman. Either the foreman or the puncher, the supervisor. There was a supervisor making sure that we were doing our job.

Q. In the hierarchy, who is higher, your supervisor or Agustin Hernandez?

A. Agustin was on top of the foreman or the supervisor.

INTERPRETER GARCIA: I'm sorry. I'll repeat.

A. Agustin was on top of the supervisor.

INTERPRETER GARCIA: Just excuse me. He wanted to make sure that the word supervisor meant (Spanish word). That was the question he asked to the interpreter.

Q. Okay. I appreciate it.

Could workers choose to work fewer hours at Sun Valley?

A. No, there was no choice. Actually, the foreman would threaten us that if we didn't work but he ordered, we were going to be sent back to Mexico.

Q. I'd like to ask you a little bit about how you ate at Sun Valley. Can you tell me about the meal plan?

A. With respect to the nutritional value of the meals, they were balanced. But we were against what that we felt it was given to us very expensive.

Q. How much was the meal plan?

A. 80 US dollars per week plus soda. In total, in a week, we would be paying $125 including soda and meals.

Q. Who did you pay this money to?

A. To Agustin.

Q. How was this arrangement explained to you?

A. Agustin did it.

Q. What did he say?

A. From the moment in which we arrived, he told us we needed to pay 80 U.S. for the meals and that any soda also needed to be paid for.

Q. When would you pay him?

INTERPRETER GARCIA: Would you repeat this for me, sir?

Q. When did you pay Agustin the $80?

A. Every time I received a check.

Q. When did you receive checks?

A. Every eight days, every week.

Q. How long did you participate in this meal plan?

A. A bit over one month and a half.

Q. What did you do after that month and a half?

A. Some of the coworkers got together and bought a little grill and I saw that they were able to do their own cooking in that grill, so I joined them.

Q. Where did they use the grill?

A. Inside the room.

Q. Was this in the room where you slept or a different room?

A. Yes, in the room where we had our bedroom because we were not allowed to go to the kitchen.

Q. Why weren't you allowed to go in the kitchen?

A. Agustin had his business in the kitchen. His business was the store and we were not allowed to go into the kitchen.

Q. How do you know you weren't allowed to go in the kitchen?

A. A few coworkers and I asked him once if we could go into the kitchen and fix us our dinner and he said no because that's where he has his store and we should not go into the kitchen.

Q. Could you store your food in the kitchen?

A. No. We couldn't access the kitchen.

Q. So, what kind of food did you -- were you -- did you eat after that month and a half?

A. We would eat beans, chicken, rice, zucchini, eggplant, eggs.

Q. I'd like to talk to you about during that first month and a half -- rather, I'd like to talk to you about, was Agustin selling anything other than the meal plan?

A. He would sell soda, Red Bull, Monster.

MR. SCHULTE: Sorry to interrupt. Are you getting kind of a cross signal on the line, too, or is that just here? It sounds like there's another call in the background.

INTERPRETER GARCIA: No, we're not. We're fine here.

MR. HEYMAN-KANTOR: Yeah, we're fine here, too.

MR. SCHULTE: It's just me. Okay, then. Carry on.

A. Repeating his answer, he said that he would sell Red Bull, Monster and orange soda and he also sells or sold beer, Caguana. Caguana, it's like a large beer.

INTERPRETER GARCIA: Now you're gone? Can you hear me?

MR. HEYMAN-KANTOR: Yes.

INTERPRETER GARCIA: We can't see you. We can only see Mr. Schulte.

MR. HEYMAN-KANTOR: Let us try to fix this.

INTERPRETER GARCIA: Okay. We can see you. We're fine. If you can hear me.

Q. Let me just back up a moment. Where did you -- you said you purchased some food. Where did you store the food that you purchased outside -- that you purchased outside of Sun Valley?

A. The supermarket at the office.

INTERPRETER GARCIA: Let me explain as the translator. In Mexico the store is sort of 7-11 and all those types of stores are called Oxxo, O-X-X-O. So, he's referring to the stores like convenience stores in the United States as Oxxo, even though they're not called that way here. His answer is that he would go to the supermarket or to the Oxxo.

Q. What I meant to ask is, where did he store the food? Where did they store the food that they bought?

A. Just in boxes.

Q. Where did you store the boxes?

A. Next to our beds.

Q. You stored chicken in the boxes?

A. No. It was usually canned food so that it would not go spoiled.

Q. Was the chicken in a can?

A. Yes, chicken in a can, beans in a can.

Q. Okay. Thank you.

I'd like to get back to what I was asking you about just before. So you were saying that Agustin sold orange soda, Red Bull, Monster and beer. Anything else?

A. No, that would be it.

Q. Did he sell anything aside from drinks, items other than drinks?

A. He would sell chips, cookies. I think that's it.

Q. What kind of soda did he sell?

A. Orange soda, Coke, Pepsi. I think he also sold Pepsi. I also believe there was like a grape soda.

Q. How much did he charge for these drinks?

A. One dollar for the soda. The canned Coke, one dollar. Red Bull and Monster, 1.50. And if you wanted to have a beer, Caguana would cost 5 U.S. I don't remember how much he would charge for a six-pack of beer.

Q. So, you recall it was $5 for a single beer?

A. Yes, one beer was the Caguana, the larger one.

Q. How much did the smaller beers cost?

MR. SCHULTE: Objection. He never testified about having smaller beers, only this kind. He's asked and answered this several times already.

MR. HEYMAN-KANTOR: All right. Let me rephrase.

Q. Were there different -- did Agustin sell multiple types of beer or only one kind of beer?

A. Several.

Q. Can you tell us the different kinds of beer?

A. Bud Light, Vicky.

INTERPRETER GARCIA: He's calling them Vicky, like V-I-C-K-Y. He's saying it's like a Mexican beer that's called Victoria. So, he's using Vicky as short for Victoria.

A. Those were in six-packs.

Q. Were the Bud Lights sold in six-packs or in singles or some other way?

A. Either way. However you wanted it. If you wanted a six-pack or if you want one of them loose.

Q. Could you buy the Victorias loose?

A. Yes.

Q. Could you buy the Caguanas in six-packs?

A. No.

Q. How much would a single Bud Light cost?

A. I'm not totally sure, but I think it was like $2.

Q. How much would a Vicky, a single Vicky, cost?

A. That would be price, like fixed price.

Q. Was it $2 for Bud Light and Victoria beers?

A. Yes.

Q. In addition to the Caguanas and the Bud Lights and Victorias, were there any other kinds of beers sold?

A. I think that was it.

Q. How much did Agustin sell the chips for?

A. 1.50.

Q. How much did he sell the cookies for?

A. I think 1.50 as well.

Q. So, during the course of a typical day, how many drinks would you purchase?

A. Five or six, depending.

Q. So, I'd like to walk through a typical day and maybe you can tell me what times of the day you'd buy what drinks.

A. When we left home, Agustin would offer us bread and chocolate. Then we would be taken to the fields and around 9:00 or maybe 10:00 to 11:00 we would have a short five-minute break. Then he would come and offer us drinks, but at that time he would only offer two types of drinks, either Red Bull or Monster and he would offer a sandwich.

Around 12:00 to 1:00 when it was lunchtime, I had to buy food from Agustin because we were in the field. I would either buy a Coke or an orange soda. Then we continued working and then sometimes, not that often, we would have another two to three-minute break. And once again, he would offer us either Red Bull or Monsters for that break.

When we were working and we drank these type of drinks, we felt like powered up, like we became accelerated. And then we would leave the field and around 5:30 or 6:00 we would have our dinner during which we would have another drink maybe.

At the dining room we had to buy soda or something because there was no water or anything else and we'd have to purchase soda. So we bought the soda from Agustin for our dinner, mainly to hydrate so that we would be ready to work for the following day.

Q. Thank you. I'd like to go through each of these times. At your first break, your first five-minute break, would you typically purchase a Red Bull or Monster?

A. Yes, because at that time when we were working with cucumbers or with pickles, we didn't -- there was no water around. So, we needed to hydrate. That's why we bought it and drank it. So, we bought either a Monster or a Red Bull or the sandwich that he had.

Q. Was the sandwich included in the meal plan or was that an additional cost?

A. No, we needed to pay it. It had an additional cost.

Q. How much was the sandwich?

A. 1.50.

Q. In a typical week, how many breaks -- how many short breaks would you have in the afternoon?

A. Maybe every other day. But there were weeks in which we did not have any afternoon break. It all depended upon the load of work.

Q. So, the way I'm -- to recap, you have one drink in your morning break, one drink in your noon break, one drink in your afternoon break. And how many drinks would you have at your dinner break?

A. One or two, just to hydrate.

Q. In your afternoon break, when there was an afternoon break, did you typically purchase a Red Bull or a Monster?

INTERPRETER GARCIA: Would you repeat the question? When or when there was not a break?

Q. When there was an afternoon break, would you typically purchase a Red Bull or Monster?

A. Yes, Monster would be the one that I would purchase. Monster.

Q. Would you typically drink two Monsters a day or one Red Bull and one Monster or two Red Bulls?

A. In the morning, a Red Bull. And in the afternoon, one Monster.

Q. Did your coworkers typically drink -- typically purchase the same number of drinks or more than that or fewer than the number that you purchased?

A. There were a few of them, a few dehydrated at the field, and they would purchase one or two more.

Q. Typically, did your coworkers purchase the same number or more or fewer than you drank?

A. The same.

Q. How do you know this?

A. Because I saw them. They were my coworkers and we were drinking. And if some of them were dehydrated, they would purchase two drinks.

Q. Would you see your coworkers drinking these drinks or did you hear about it or how did you come to know this?

A. I saw it myself. Actually, with these type of drinks, we actually felt with a lot of energy and we started doing our work very fast and running because they really powered us up. Personally speaking, I feel that those drinks really powered me up. I actually could feel my heart pumping faster.

Q. You said sometimes workers would buy more than one drink at a time. How many workers did this?

A. Maybe two or three of them.

Q. How often would those two or three buy more than one drink at once?

A. I'm not totally sure. But maybe twice a week. It all depended on each one's body, how they felt.

Q. How many beers did your coworkers typically purchase per week?

A. Besides my coworkers who were there by contract, there were also undocumented workers and they were the ones who would purchase more beers to get drunk. And maybe some of my coworkers also drank, the ones that were there by contract.

Q. How many beers a week would the -- strike that.

When I say H2A workers, I'm going to be meaning workers who were present in the United States on H2A visas like yourself. Do you understand?

A. Yes.

Q. When I say non-H2A workers, I'm going to be referring to the other workers who worked in the fields but were not on the visa you were on. Do you understand?

A. Yes.

Q. How many beers, typically, a week, would H2A workers drink?

A. Maybe five boxes per week. There were some that actually bought a lot.

Q. On a typical Friday night, how much would an average H2A worker buy in beer?

A. Five 24s.

INTERPRETER GARCIA: I'm asking permission to ask him to clarify for me.

MR. SCHULTE: I'm sorry. It's up to counsel to ask the questions. You can just interpret his answers. If counsel has a question about what he meant, he can follow up. Sorry.

INTERPRETER GARCIA: Okay.

Q. What do you mean by that?

A. With what?

Q. What do you mean by five 24s?

A. Five boxes of 24 each. I think it's 24 per case. Isn't that right? That's what they sell there?

Q. Okay. So, was Agustin also selling cases of 24 beers?

A. Yes, he did. He would sell six-packs or 24-pack cases and the Caguana.

Q. So, Caguanas were sold either in six-packs -- sorry. Sorry.

Are you saying Caguanas were sold in either six-packs or 24-packs?

A. I don't know about that because I did not buy those.

Q. Do you know how much Agustin charged for a 24-pack of Caguanas?

MR. SCHULTE: Objection. He didn't answer that they were sold in 24-packs. No foundation.

(Interpreter Jenkins relieved Interpreter Garcia.)

Q. You can answer.

A. He once saw that the undocumented workers once organized a party and he did see they were sold a case of Caguanas.

Q. What beers -- how many beers per H2A worker would a particular H2A worker have per week?

A. Just a few of them were drinking beer, not all of them. We would just see that they'd like go to the side and buy many cases, but I really couldn't give you a specific amount.

Q. How about the non-H2A workers, how many beers would they typically buy in a week?

A. I really don't know how many beers they were drinking because they were like separate from us. We were in our dorm and I really wouldn't know how many beers they were drinking. All I would see is, yes, they were buying beer and they would organize their parties, but that's all we'd see.

Q. Was there a time during 2015 when Agustin did not sell beer?

A. When the inspectors came out to check, he would no longer sell beer.

Q. How long did that occur?

A. That was towards the end when the inspectors came.

Q. How many days did Agustin stop selling beer for during that time?

A. About a week. Once the inspectors would be coming to the field, he modified everything.

Q. What else did he change?

A. Even the way he treated us.

INTERPRETER JENKINS: I asked him to clarify what is the word.

A. He said, also the hygiene in the field was really bad.

Q. What do you mean by that?

A. When we got there, everything was really dirty. The bathrooms were filthy, the showers, where we take showers were filthy, the dorms where we stayed.

Q. Turning back to the beer, what days of the week did Agustin sell beer?

A. It was open to whoever wanted to buy beer. But I would say -- but the days they would consume more beer was on Sunday.

Q. Could you buy beer all seven days a week or were there some days when it was closed?

A. No, it was open.

Q. What time during the day could workers buy beer?

A. When we came back from work.

Q. You previously talked about other workers buying beer. Did those workers purchase it from Agustin or from somewhere else?

A. At the beginning they were buying from Agustin and then after that they were buying it elsewhere.

Q. When did they start buying them from elsewhere?

A. That was towards the end. At least that's what I would observe. I wasn't drinking a lot. I would buy approximately two beers a week.

Q. So, how many weeks were left in the season when people started buying beer elsewhere?

A. That was like the last week.

Q. Where did Agustin sell the beers from?

A. Right there in the store in the diner -- in the dining room. He had it there in the fridge.

Q. How far was the dining room from where you slept?

A. Five to 15 meters away. It was right there in the building where we were staying.

Q. I'd like to ask you briefly a little bit more about the bathrooms. Can you tell me anything else about the bathrooms?

A. There was shit on the walls and on the toilets like rubbed on the walls -- on the toilets. There was toilet paper everywhere, dirty toilet paper everywhere. Some would piss outside of the toilets. In the showers there was even dirt, mud, hair, human hair everywhere. Where you would wash your hands, the sinks were all tarnished. There was also like water everywhere. Water and hair everywhere.

Q. I'm sorry, there was -- just to clarify, there was human -- was there human feces in the bathroom, on the bathroom?

A. Yes. From the very first time we arrived at the field, the bathrooms were under this condition. We took on the initiative to clean them and this was a completely useless effort because they did it again.

All the people who were working there on contract felt that we would get sick working in those conditions, so we decided to clean the bathroom. We told the foreman about the situation. He talked to the undocumented workers and asked them to please be more clean, but it was useless. They kept doing the same thing. So, we ended up just giving up. They weren't paying attention, so we just gave up.

Q. Are you referring to non-H2A workers?

A. Yes.

Q. Why did they do this?

A. It was mainly people from Michoacan.

Q. Why did they do this?

A. I don't know. Maybe it was their style. I really don't understand why they would do it. It was their way of doing things.

Q. Did the non-H2A workers share your bathroom or did they have other bathrooms?

A. No, we all had to share the same bathrooms.

Q. Did Agustin ever clean the bathrooms?

A. No. Well, towards the end when the inspectors came.

Q. Did anyone else at Sun Valley ever clean the bathrooms?

A. No.

Q. Did the bathrooms smell badly?

A. Horrible.

Q. What about the dorms? What were the dorms like?

A. It was the same case. The mattresses were all stained. They had a very bad affect. They looked very bad. There was actually an outbreak of measles and I got sick.

Q. Anything else remarkable about the dormitories?

A. I think that was all.

INTERPRETER JENKINS: I would like to make a correction. It was not measles. It was chicken pox.

A. There is also, there were garbage cans very close to the dorm and they would get full of flies and then these flies would end up in our dorms.

Q. All right. Thank you for telling me that. I'd like to move on and talk a little bit about transportation.

How would you get from the dorm to the fields?

A. We had these type of vans that we used as transportation.

Q. What were those vans like?

A. They were like micros where you could fit 20 people in them. I don't have the exact number or I don't remember how many people could fit in what they call micro -- microbuses.

Q. What condition were the buses in?

A. Inside these vans or these microbuses, there was a lot of dirt.

Q. How much time would you spend in these vans each day?

A. Every day.

Q. Can you estimate how much time; ten minutes, an hour, three hours?

A. It would depend in which field you were going to work at. It could be from 15 minutes to 30 minutes.

Q. And that's total per day, 15 to 30 minutes?

A. What do you mean?

Q. Fifteen to 30 minutes, is that the total round trip travel or is that just one way?

A. Fifteen minutes there and 15 minutes back, depending on where the field is. There was another field that was farther away and it took us 30 minutes to get there and another 30 minutes to get back.

Q. During the course of 2015, did you ever leave the farm?

A. Only when I got chicken pox. I mean I was staying. I was sleeping in the fields, but since I had fever, I could not go to work. And I would like to clarify that during this time I was being showed no preoccupation for us when I got sick. During this time that he got sick, I was being showed no concern for us.

Q. How long were you sick and not working?

A. About a week.

Q. Was there any transportation provided to you to do laundry?

A. Yes, there was one day out of the week that we used to go do our laundry.

Q. Was that transportation provided free of charge or was there a charge?

A. No. It was included.

Q. How much time would you have to do your laundry?

A. It would just depend on when we were all doing our laundry.

Q. Would you have time to shop at stores nearby?

A. Yes, there was a store nearby. At the end, that's where I would go buy my stuff. That's where I would go buy my food.

Q. Did you have time to go to the store on every trip to the laundry?

A. Yes. Sometimes, yes.

Q. What about the other times?

A. I was the last one to do the laundry and I wouldn't have time to go to the store.

Q. How many workers would go to the laundry together?

A. I can't remember with precision how many on the contract were there. But, for example, the group of workers that were hired from Guanajunto would receive the van to take the whole group.

Q. So, how many of you were there?

A. I don't remember because some people decided to leave the field.

Q. Approximately? Were there 10 or 20 or 50 or a hundred?

A. Around 25.

Q. Would there typically be 25 people on this van to the laundry?

A. Yes, 25 or more.

Q. How many people could do their laundry at a time?

A. It would depend on how many people there were on the laundromat. Sometimes there were no people there, so we would have 12 washing machines available to us.

Q. What I'm trying to understand is, why couldn't you go to the stores to buy food while the other people were doing their laundry?

A. Because sometimes I was the last one to do my laundry, so I just had to stay there, because as soon as my laundry would be done, we had to get in the van because the other people were already in the van waiting. But it also depended a lot on the driver we'd have that day. There was -- one of the drivers was nicer and he would let us buy stuff. And there was another driver that would just take us to our laundry and back.

Q. Why would that driver not let you stay longer?

A. I don't know. He would always say to us, I am just bringing you here to the laundromat and I have other things to do.

Q. Were there other trips into town aside from these laundry trips?

A. There were some trucks that would show up and they would take people to town after they worked.

Q. Would you ever go in those trucks?

A. Yes, because we would go out to get supplies, and we would have to pay $20 per person.

Q. How often did you take that transportation?

A. Once a week.

Q. How many workers would go on these trips in the trucks?

A. All of us. We would all go because we weren't just going to get supplies. We were also going to deposit. In fact, one of the cases where we would be going to make a deposit, the driver had borrowed a truck and it got stolen. So then somebody else had to come pick us up. And then they called the foreman and they would pick us up.

Q. If you had the free trip for the laundry, why did you still pay extra for the truck ride?

A. Mainly because we had to go make our deposits.

Q. What deposits are you talking about?

A. What I was earning, I was sending back to Mexico.

Q. How would you send it back?

A. You don't know how you send the money? You just -- you go to a store or where you could deposit the money so our relatives could get.

Q. Who did you -- aside from Agustin Hernandez, who in Sun Valley management, if anyone, did you interact with?

A. A Russell Marino, but he didn't speak any Spanish. So, there was no way to communicate with him. Whenever we were trying to explain anything to him, the person who talked on our behalf was Agustin. And sometimes we felt that he was not truly expressing what we wanted to express to Mr. Marino. I have nothing bad to say about Russell Marino. He always tried to lend us a hand. You could see that clearly.

Q. Did you interact with anyone else in Sun Valley management?

A. No.

Q. Did other workers interact with anyone else from Sun Valley management?

A. I just remembered that Russell Marino's son was also there. And he was also training to lend us a hand. You could see the attention that he would pay to us. I have nothing bad to say about them. They are excellent beings.

Q. Do you know Russell Marino's son's name?

A. No, I don't, not really.

Q. Did he speak Spanish?

A. He understood a little.

Q. Could he speak it?

A. A little. Very little.

Q. I'd like to talk to you a little bit about your departure from Sun Valley Orchards.

Do you remember what month you stopped working there?

A. August. 1st of August.

Q. Did you quit or were you fired or did you leave for some other reason?

A. Well, we didn't resign. We were sent back.

Q. Who sent you back?

A. Russell Marino's son told us that there was no more work and that we had to return to Mexico and it was quite sudden.

Q. Did he explain why he was sending you back?

A. Yes.

Q. What did he say?

A. So, he said he had done very badly in that season. That the plants had affected his bell peppers that we were harvesting.

Q. Did the foreman or anyone else at Sun Valley give you a document to sign around the time that your employment ended?

A. Yes, at the end Agustin did.

MR. HEYMAN-KANTOR: I'd like the court reporter to mark this as Exhibit 21.

(Exhibit 21, bilingual departure form, marked for identification, as of this date.)

Q. I'd like you to -- you should have a folder on the table that has Exhibit 21. Do you see that?

INTERPRETER JENKINS: Exhibit 21? I need clarification. 20 or 21?

MR. HEYMAN-KANTOR: 21.

A. Yes.

Q. Can you please hold that up to the camera so we can make sure what you're looking at?

(Witness complied.)

Q. Okay. You've got the right document.

Is this the document that you were handed around the time you were fired from Sun Valley?

MR. SCHULTE: Objection. That's not what he testified.

MR. HEYMAN-KANTOR: Let me rephrase.

Q. Is this the document that you were handed around the time that you were sent home?

A. Yes.

Q. I'd like you to look at another --

MR. HEYMAN-KANTOR: Sorry. Court reporter, can you mark this document as Exhibit 22?

(Exhibit 22, Miguel Angel Elizondo Soto's departure form, marked for identification, as of this date.)

Q. There should be a folder near you that says 22. Can you hold that up to the camera so we can confirm you have the right document?

(Witness complied.)

Q. Thank you. We've got the right document. So, this document which I've marked as Exhibit 22, is that your signature on the document?

A. Yes, it is mine.

Q. Did you complete this document?

A. Yes.

Q. Was anyone with you when you completed this document?

A. Yes, the foreman Agustin.

Q. Anyone else?
A. No, just him.
Q. Do you see where there's an X on the document on the left side?
A. Yes.
Q. Why did you put an X there?
A. The foreman told me to put an X there. He told us all to put an X there.
Q. And then after you completed this document, what did you do with it?
A. There were actually two documents. One was in English and one was in Spanish, and I kept the one in Spanish.
Q. What did you do with the English one?
A. I gave it back to Agustin.
Q. Did you ever see this document again?
A. The one that was in English?
Q. Correct.
A. No, it was left there.
Q. Everything that you've been talking about today about Sun Valley, was that all about the 2015 growing season?
A. Yes.
MR. HEYMAN-KANTOR: I have no further at maybe the Oxxo. Do you remember how much they cost there?

A. For each one, I think it was $2 a can, a small can, of the small ones.

Q. Were any of the Marinos ever there when Agustin was selling beer?

A. Let me think. No. I think this was something he was doing under the table without them finding out.

Q. Have you ever worked for other H2A employers?

A. No. It was my first year.

Q. Have you worked for any since then?

A. I have not had the opportunity again.

Q. Are you planning to do that this summer?

A. Let's hope so. I'm in need.

Q. Okay. Part of the pay at Sun Valley was what they call a piece rate so the more you harvest the more you're paid; is that right?

A. Yes.

Q. So that the faster you pick, the more you're paid, right?

A. It was a little confusing because the foreman would sometimes say we'd be paid on an hourly basis and others would say based on our performance. Sometimes we could not understand the foreman.

Q. But during times you were paid for performance, working faster meant more money?

MR. HEYMAN-KANTOR: Objection. Facts not in evidence.

A. He did not feel the difference. It was based on hours worked. At the end they would have like a receipt of the hours worked and it would always include hours worked and the check we would receive would be based on hours worked and the hours we worked would appear on that receipt.

Q. You got a receipt and signed something that said you got a check every week, right?

A. Yes.

(Interpreter Garcia relieved Interpreter Jenkins.)

Q. You said that you hadn't -- your interaction was with Agustin. Did you ever bring any complaints to Russell or Dominick or anyone else at Sun Valley?

A. No, because there was no way to express ourselves. Because of our dialect, we were not able to communicate with him.

Q. You mentioned that there were times when you had something that you needed to tell them and Agustin would interpret for you but you were concerned that he hadn't done it accurately. What was it that you were trying to tell them?

A. That we needed better hygiene and conditions in the field.

Q. And you had mentioned earlier the bathrooms. Were you talking about the bathrooms in the field or the bathrooms in the house?

A. In the house.

MR. SCHULTE: Okay. Thank you. No more questions for me. Thank you, sir.

MR. HEYMAN-KANTOR: We don't have any questions over here. I think we can go off the record.

MR. SCHULTE: I'm sorry. If we can go back on for a second. I just had a couple more. I apologize. I just found them.

BY MR. SCHULTE:

Q. Before today, have you spoken with the lawyer who was asking you questions from the Department of Labor?

EXAMINATION OF JOSE LUIS SILVA LOPEZ

BY MR. GLICK:

Q. Good morning, Mr. Silva Lopez.

A. Good morning.

Q. My name is Jason Glick and I am an attorney at the U.S. Department of Labor. I represent the Secretary of Labor in a case called -- in re Sun Valley Orchards, LLC, case number 2017-TAE-00003. I also represent the Administrator of the Wage and Hour Division in a case called in re Agustin Hernandez, case number 2017-MSP-00002. This morning I'm going to ask you some questions and if you don't understand something, I'd like you to just tell me that.

Okay?

A. Yes.

Q. Also, because there is a court reporter in the room with me recording everything that is said, it's very important that you answer the questions verbally rather than, for instance, simply by shaking your head.

A. Yes.

Q. Do you understand that?

A. Yes.

Q. Could you please state your name?

A. Jose Luis Silva Lopez.
Q. Is it okay if I call you Mr. Silva Lopez?
A. Yes.
Q. Do you have any identification with you this morning?
A. Yes. You want me to show it?
Q. Yes. Could you please hold up the identification up to the camera?
(Witness complied.)
Q. Could you hold it even a bit closer, please?
(Witness complied.)
MR. SCHULTE: Is there a way to get the camera facing the right direction? It seems to be reversing the images.
INTERPRETER GARCIA: I don't know how to do that.
A. Do you want me to call the lady from the CDM to do that? I have no idea how to do it.
MR. SCHULTE: That's all right.
Q. Okay. Please, you can take the identification down, please. Mr. Silva Lopez, have you ever worked at a company called Sun Valley?
A. Yes.

Q. When did you work there?
A. 2015.
Q. Do you remember what months?
A. June and July.
Q. What kind of work did you do there?
A. We picked cucumber, zucchini, peppers, peaches. We would also remove weeds from the fields, everything that has to do with the fields. We also worked with eggplant. I think that's all we harvested.
Q. Did you work at that company on a visa?
A. Yes.
Q. Do you know the name of that visa?
A. I think it's H2A.
Q. Could you tell me about how you applied for that H2A visa?
A. We came to the offices that are here in Celaya with the lady known as Mayra. I don't know if you know her. She's the one that hires us. So, we asked her if it was possible for us to be on a waiting list to be taken to the United States. We came twice and she said that there was nothing yet, but if anything would come out, she would call us. Then she called up to ask us to come to Celaya because there was a hiring opening.

Mayra took all the information about us and asked us to pay the visa fees at the bank. And then she said that they were going to leave in two days, so we got all organized for the trip. And then she sent us. We didn't know where we were going. We knew it was going to be New Jersey, but we didn't know the name of the company. So that's how the application was done by me.

Q. Was that the application to work at Sun Valley beginning in June 2015?

A. Yes.

Q. Could you tell me a little bit more about what it was like to work at Sun Valley?

A. We began working at 5:00 a.m. So we started working, picking cucumbers and cucumbers for pickles. At 9:00 they would give us a ten-minute break. Our lunch was at 12:00. They gave us one hour for lunch and at 1:00 we would go back picking. And then we kept on working until 5:00. We worked for 12 hours daily. And the work that we had to do was very difficult. The foreman said that even though we were hired on a contract, we were paid by the hour. To some of us he would yell and he would also use bad words and we didn't like that.

Also, the food that we had to pay. We had to pay 80 U.S. per week. And meals did not include beverages. We had to buy them separate. We thought that that was very unfair, but we couldn't do anything about it because we didn't have a kitchen. So we had no other choice but to do what the foreman said.

The first day that we arrived, bathrooms were very, very dirty. We had to clean them ourselves because we didn't like it. The beds on which we had to sleep were also very dirty. Some of my workmates got very sick with chicken pox because the beds were very dirty. The company did not take them to the hospital or anything and they had to pay for their own medicine. One of the coworkers that got sick with chicken pox, his father went to the United States to get him and brought him back.

Like two days after we arrived where we were already working, two or three people left and went somewhere else to find another job because they didn't like it there. So that was a typical day of work. And we would complain about it with the foreman, but he would just say that that was what the work was and that we had to do it that way. So that's what we did there.

Q. What was the foreman's name?

MR. SCHULTE: Before you go, I don't think it's a valid objection, but if Mr. Heyman-Kantor can raise it, that's not possibly responsive. I don't even remember what the question was, but that couldn't have been the answer to it.

Q. What was the foreman's name?

A. Agustin.

Q. Do you know his last name?

A. No, I don't remember his last name.

Q. You told us about the work schedule. Who decided that those were the hours that you would work at Sun Valley?

A. Agustin.

Q. What did Agustin explain about the work hours?

A. When we arrived, he told us that the beginning was going to be at 5:00 a.m. and that we will finish working at 5:00 p.m.

Q. Were there days that you worked different hours than that?

A. No, only those hours. Well, actually, at the beginning we started from 6:00 to 6:00 and then they changed it from 5:00 to 5:00.

Q. I'd like to go back to the meals that you mentioned. Can you explain what you received for that $80 a week that you mentioned?

INTERPRETER GARCIA: Would you repeat, please?

Q. What did you receive in exchange for the $80 a week?

A. You mean what type of food?

Q. What type of food?

A. During our lunch they would give us rice and beans and meat, soups. Every meal for lunch always had rice and beans. And we wanted to have different foods. We didn't like the food there that much because of that.

Q. How many meals a day were included in the $80 a week charge?

A. Two meals and one breakfast.

Q. Whom did you pay the $80 to?

A. Agustin.

Q. When would you make those payments?

A. Every Friday. We had to pay him one week in advance.

Q. Who explained to you the $80 a week arrangement for meals?

A. Agustin himself. It was his wife who prepared the food.

Q. Do you remember anyone explaining the $80 a week for meals to you when you arrived at Sun Valley?

A. No, just Agustin.

Q. What did Agustin explain?

A. He said that he was the one in charge for food and that 80 U.S. needed to be paid there. We didn't know that it did not include any beverages and we had to buy them apart. During our break he would go and sell beverages to us as well as bread and crackers or cookies. And that's it.

Q. Did Agustin explain that you could choose not to pay the $80?

A. No, he didn't say that.

Q. Was there an option to eat meals without paying the $80?

A. No, because we didn't have a kitchen.

Q. Was there a kitchen at Sun Valley?

A. Yes, but it was the one used by Agustin to feed the workers.

Q. Could you use that kitchen to prepare food?

A. No. We couldn't put anything inside the kitchen. We couldn't access the kitchen.

Q. Why couldn't you access the kitchen?

A. His wife was there and he was the one that managed it. He had there all his things, the fridges where he kept the beverages. It was like there was no other choice because we had to eat that way because we didn't have another way to fix our meals.

Q. Did you ever ask whether there was an opportunity for you to use the kitchen?

A. No.

Q. Do you know if anyone else asked permission to use the kitchen?

A. No. I don't think so because he would not allow it.

Q. Why do you think he would not allow it?

A. I don't think so because it was like his business.

Q. You mentioned beverages that were sold during the breaks. Could you tell me more about that?

A. Also during our lunch and dinner. During our break he would bring food and would sell it to us and the soda, he would sell them for one U.S. He also had Gatorade. During lunch and dinner it was exactly the same. You had to purchase your beverages and that was every day.

Q. On a typical day at Sun Valley in 2015, how many beverages did you purchase?

A. About three or four per day.

Q. Who did you buy those three or four beverages from?

A. Agustin.

Q. What times of day would you buy those beverages?

A. During the break, during lunch, during dinner and sometimes at night.

Q. What kind of beverage would you buy during the break?

A. Soda, Coke, Gatorade. Sometimes Monster or Red Bull.

Q. So the kind of beverage you purchased changed from day to day?

A. Yes.

Q. Did it depend on anything?
A. No, just what I liked at the time.
Q. What did you mean by soda?
A. It was a soft drink.
Q. Do you know the brand of that soft drink?
A. Coke, Sprite. There was an orange one.
Q. Were those all brands that Agustin sold?
A. Yes.
Q. Have you told me about all the different kinds of beverages that you would buy in a typical day at Sun Valley?
A. Gatorade of all flavors and also some high sugar drinks and also beer.
Q. How much did Agustin sell the Gatorade for?
A. One dollar.
Q. How much did Agustin sell the Coke for?
A. One dollar per Coke.
Q. How much did Agustin sell the Monster for?
A. Two dollars, 2.50.
Q. The other drinks you mentioned, the Sprite, the orange, the high sugar drinks, who did you buy those from?

A. Agustin. Agustin would sell.
Q. How much did Agustin sell the Sprite for?
A. Everything that was a soda would be $1.
Q. Does that include a high sugar drink?
A. No. Some of them were up to $5.
Q. Do you remember the brand name of any of those high sugar drinks?
A. No, I don't remember the brand name.
INTERPRETER GARCIA: May I explain one thing?
MR. SCHULTE: Not really.
INTERPRETER GARCIA: I mean to you. A word that I used.
MR. SCHULTE: Sure.
INTERPRETER GARCIA: Yes. The word that he used in Spanish is (Spanish word) and I translated it as a high sugared drink. The correct translation of (Spanish word) would be saline solution. I apologize.
Q. Mr. Silva Lopez, did you purchase high saline solution from Agustin?
A. Maybe one. I didn't really purchase that; only sodas or Monster.
Q. The number of drinks that you purchased a day from Agustin, how does that compare with other workers at Sun Valley during the time that you were there?

A. There were other coworkers that would drink more and also that would drink beer at night.

Q. In terms of the soda and the Monster, did other coworkers drink more than you or less than you?

MR. SCHULTE: Objection. Asked and answered.

INTERPRETER GARCIA: May he answer?

Q. In terms of the other sodas and the Monster, did other coworkers drink more than you or less than you?

A. There were some of them that would only purchase Red Bull or Monster.

Q. How do you know what the coworkers would purchase?

A. Because I would see them purchasing. We were all together during the breaks.

Q. So, when you were just telling me about other coworkers purchasing Red Bull and soda and Monsters, was that during the breaks?

A. Yes.

Q. And was that from Agustin?
A. Yes, Agustin sold everything.
Q. Did you also see your coworkers purchase beverages from Agustin at meals?
A. Yes, everyone would. Later we started to purchase cases of soda from the store ourselves because it was less expensive.
Q. When you purchased beverages at Sun Valley at night, where did you purchase them?
A. Agustin.
Q. Where at Sun Valley was that?
A. Sometimes we would pay money to get a ride to go to the store. I don't remember the little town that we used to go to buy the cases of soft drinks or soda.
Q. When you purchased beverages from Agustin in the evening, where was that?
A. In the kitchen.
Q. Was the kitchen closed at night?
A. He would close the kitchen at 8:00, more or less.
Q. Would you ever buy beverages from Agustin after he closed the kitchen?
A. No, because when the kitchen was closed, no one could go in.

Q. Did anyone ever open up the kitchen after it was closed for the evening?

A. Sometimes he would leave his brother-in-law in charge of the kitchen.

Q. What did Agustin's brother-in-law do?

A. He would sell them.

Q. Did he open up the kitchen again?

A. Yes. Or he would leave it open and he would close it later.

Q. When Agustin's brother-in-law left the kitchen open, could you use the kitchen?

A. No.

Q. Why not?

A. Because we were not allowed to go into the kitchen to cook or to do anything.

Q. Did you buy beer from Agustin?

INTERPRETER GARCIA: Would you repeat that for me, please?

Q. Did you buy beer from Agustin?

A. Sometimes in the afternoon.

Q. About how often?

A. About three days a week.

Q. Was it more on some days than other days?

A. No, it was the same.
Q. When you bought beer from Agustin, how many beers would you buy in a day?
A. Just one or two.
Q. What kind of beer did you buy from Agustin?
A. Bud Light and Budweiser.
Q. How much did those cost?
A. Canned beer cost 1.50. No, I'm not sure. Maybe it was two, two.
Q. Where at Sun Valley did Agustin store that beer?
A. In that same place, in the kitchen.
Q. Where in the kitchen?
A. He had a separate refrigerator just for beer and the other refrigerators were for the other drinks.
Q. Did you ever see that refrigerator for the beer?
A. Yes.
Q. When did you see it?
A. When we would go to pay for our food or when we would go to buy a drink, they were just right there, next to each other.

Q. Other than the kinds of beer that you bought from Agustin, did Agustin sell other kinds of beer?

A. He would also sell Mexican brand beer such as Caguana.

Q. How do you know that?

A. Because I saw other coworkers purchasing that beer.

Q. How often did you see other coworkers purchasing that beer?

A. Always in the evening or on Sundays. There were some of them that would get drunk there.

Q. How many days a week did you see coworkers purchasing beer from Agustin?

A. Every day, almost every day.

Q. Did your coworkers on average purchase less beer than you from Agustin or the same or more beer?

MR. SCHULTE: Objection. No foundation.

A. More beers than I did.

Q. How did you know that your coworkers purchased more beer than you from Agustin?

A. Because I saw them doing it and because some of them talked about it.

Q. What did you see them doing?

A. Outside the kitchen there were these benches where we used to have our lunch, where we used to eat, and that's where they would sit down to drink their beer.

Q. What did you hear them talking about?

A. When they were drinking beer?

Q. I believe you told me that one of the reasons you knew that your coworkers drank -- scratch that.

One of the reasons you knew that your coworkers purchased more beer from Agustin than you is that you heard them talking about it?

A. I saw them and they brought the beer to the bedroom and drank it there.

Q. Where did you see them bringing the beer from?

A. From the kitchen to the dorms.

Q. Did you ever store -- scratch that.

Did you ever buy beer from somewhere other than Agustin?

A. Sometimes when we used to go to the store.

Q. When you went to the store and bought beer, did you ever store that beer at Sun Valley's kitchen?

A. No.

Q. Do you know if your coworkers ever stored beer in Sun Valley's kitchen if they bought that beer somewhere outside of Sun Valley?

A. No. Because if they bought it from the store, they would drink it.

Q. Did Agustin sell anything else to the workers at Sun Valley that you haven't told me about this morning?

A. He would also sell to us the gloves with which we had to work.

Q. Why did you need those gloves?

A. To pick the cucumber, because the cucumber had like prickles or spindles, thorns and they would hurt us without gloves.

Q. How much did Agustin sell those gloves for?

A. Two dollars.

Q. How often did you buy those gloves from Agustin?

A. Once a week.

Q. Did your coworkers buy those gloves from

Agustin?

A. Yes.

Q. How do you know that?

A. Because I saw them doing it.

Q. How often would you see your coworkers buying those gloves from Agustin?

A. Not that frequently. But what happened is that when the gloves were torn, then we would need to buy more. So maybe once a week.

Q. Is there any other kind of food or drink or anything else that Agustin sold in 2015?

A. He would also sell snacks such as chips and Sabritas which is the brand name in Mexico. Snacks, candies. That's all I remember.

Q. Anything other than food or drink that Agustin sold?

A. No, I don't think so.

Q. Did you purchase those snacks that Agustin sold?

A. Sometimes.

Q. How much did they cost?

A. One dollar. He also sold cigarettes.

Q. How do you know that?

A. Because some of my coworkers would buy from him.

Q. Did you see your coworkers buy from him?

A. Yes.

Q. Where on the farm was that?

A. Same place in the kitchen for everything.

Q. Did you ever purchase cigarettes from Agustin?

A. No, I don't smoke.

Q. Any of the food or drinks that you told me about, was there ever a time when Agustin stopped selling any of them?

A. No. He always sold them.

Q. You mentioned sometimes you paid for a ride to buy things outside of Sun Valley. When did you start doing that?

A. Every week when we wanted to go and deposit money, we would pay for the ride because Agustin would only drive us to the laundry.

Q. When did you start paying for those rides?

A. About a week later.

Q. A week after what?

A. A week after we started working.

Q. When did Agustin start giving rides to go do laundry?

A. When we asked him. A group of us would gather and ask him to drive us to the laundry.

Q. When you left Sun Valley and bought something at the store, where would you store it?

A. Same place. In our dorm we had sort of a closet there.

Q. Did you have a refrigerator in the dorm?

A. No, there wasn't.

Q. Did you pay $80 a week at Sun Valley for meals the whole time you were at Sun Valley?

A. Yes.

Q. Did you work at Sun Valley any year other than 2015?

A. No.

Q. Is everything you told me this morning about purchasing things from Agustin, was that all during the year 2015?

A. Yes.

Q. Now, I want to talk a bit about the dormitories. You mentioned a bit about them before. But can you explain what the conditions in the dormitories were like at Sun Valley?

A. The mattresses were very dirty. On the floors there was a lot of dirt we had to clean ourselves. There were about 25 people per room. It was very, very hot and we did not have air conditioning. We would buy our own fans because it was very, very hot and we needed to ventilate. That is the way all the dorms were like there.

Q. Were those conditions true the whole time you were at Sun Valley?

A. Yes.

(Interpreter Jenkins relieved Interpreter Garcia.)

Q. Were there bathrooms near the dormitories at Sun Valley?

A. Yes, they were nearby.

Q. Can you tell me what those bathrooms were like?

A. All the toilets were there together and then the showers were separate and everything was very dirty. The water from the showers smelled bad. Sometimes there was hot water, but then the hot water would run out and there would only be cold water. Especially when everybody would try to take showers together at the same time, it would run out very quickly. Those were the bathrooms.

Q. What time of day did the water tend to -- did the hot water tend to run out?

A. After work in the afternoon we'd go get a shower and the people who were the last to take the shower wouldn't get any hot water.

Q. Did that happen to you that you didn't get hot water to take a shower?

A. Yes.

Q. How often did that happen to you at Sun Valley in 2015?

A. Around five times.

Q. Were there sinks in the bathroom at Sun Valley?

A. Yes.

Q. Was there hot water in those sinks?

A. I think so.

Q. Was there always hot water in the sinks?

A. No.

Q. When wasn't there hot water in the sinks?

A. When everybody would take showers and the hot water would run out.

Q. Did that ever happen to you that there was not hot water in the sink?

A. Well, we didn't use the sinks much.

Q. Now I want to ask about the transportation to the fields. Did you ride vehicles to get between the dormitory and the fields at Sun Valley?

A. Yes, we would take a bus.

Q. Did you take a bus every day?

A. Yes.

Q. How long would you ride on that bus in a typical day at Sun Valley?

A. It wasn't much. It was only like five or ten minutes. The field that was furthest away would be between 15 and 20 minutes away.

Q. That amount of time, was that one way or round trip?

A. Only one way.

Q. How many trips a day would you take between the dormitory and the fields?

A. Sometimes it would be up to three trips a day because we would be moved from one field to another.

Q. Did you ride the buses from the fields back to the eating area for lunch?

A. Yes. We would be taken back to the kitchen that was right there in the fields and that's where we would be taken to have lunch.

Q. So, in the morning would you ride on the bus to get from the dormitory to the field?

A. Yes.

Q. And then would you ride the bus back from the field to lunch?

A. Yes, in the company bus.

Q. What would be the next time you rode on the company bus in a typical day after lunch?

A. Well, lunch would be over at 1:00 and at 1:00 we'd go back to the field.

Q. Would you go back to the fields on the company bus?

A. Yes.

Q. And then would you ride the company bus from the field back to the dormitory at the end of the workday?

A. Yes.

Q. Were there also times that you rode the bus from one field to another field?

MR. SCHULTE: Objection. Asked and answered.

A. Yes.

Q. You mentioned that there were times when you got a ride to go do your laundry. What kind of vehicles did you ride on those trips?

A. It was the same buses of the company.

Q. On those trips to the laundromat, could you visit other stores?

A. No.

Q. Why not?

A. Because they were far from the laundromat.

Q. How far were those stores from the laundromat?

A. A 15-minute ride in car -- by car.

Q. Do you know if there were any other stores closer than that?

A. No, I don't know.

Q. Other than the foreman, Agustin, were there other people who supervised you at Sun Valley?

A. Yes. There were people with us in the fields in the tractors and they would supervise us.

Q. Do you know the names of any of those people?

A. No, I don't remember.

Q. Did you ever speak with any of those people?

A. Yes.
Q. What did you talk about?
A. Nothing very important, just things about the work, job.
Q. What language were those conversations in?
A. Spanish.
Q. Do you know if any of those people in the tractors --
A. These guys that were checking us were Mexican.
Q. Any of those people who you spoke with who were riding the tractors, were those the owners of Sun Valley?
A. No.
Q. Do you ever remember speaking to Russell Marino, Jr.?
A. Yes. He would go to the fields, but he didn't speak much to us. He would speak with Agustin.
Q. Could you hear those conversations?
A. No.
Q. How did you end up departing from Sun Valley?

A. You mean how I returned to Mexico?

Q. What happened, if anything, at Sun Valley before you left?

MR. SCHULTE: Objection, vague and confusing.

A. We were told that we were no longer going to work because pests had affected the bell pepper and the bus for 44 people was sent to bring us back to Mexico.

Q. Who told you that there was a pest problem at Sun Valley?

A. Agustin and the employer.

Q. Which employer?

A. Russell, Jr.

Q. Did they both tell you that?

A. Yes, there was actually a meeting right there in the field and Russell and Agustin told us this.

Q. What did they tell you?

A. Yes, that's what they told us, that there was a pest that affected the bell peppers in the field and this meant that there wasn't enough work for all of us. And that's why there was going to be a bus sent back to Mexico.

Q. When was that meeting?

A. I would say it was about four days before we came back to Mexico.

Q. Do you remember when -- what month that was?

A. July. Yes, July.

Q. Other than that meeting did Agustin or Russell tell you anything else about there wasn't enough work for everybody?

A. It was just that occasion.

Q. Did you have a choice about whether you could stay and work at Sun Valley?

A. No, because Agustin told us that we all had to return on the bus.

Q. Did you sign any document before leaving Sun Valley?

A. Yes.

Q. What kind of document did you sign?

A. It was a small piece of paper and part of it was in Spanish and part of it was in English.

Q. Do you remember anything else about that piece of paper?

A. I can't remember very much about what the piece of paper said, but I'm pretty sure it said that we had to abandon the work because there wasn't enough work and I think like 50 or 70 percent of the work had already been done.

Q. Mr. Silva Lopez, I believe there's a folder on the table marked as Exhibit 21. Do you see that folder?

A. Yes, Document 21. Yes.

Q. Could you open the folder that says 21, please? Can you please hold that document in the folder 21 up to the camera so we can verify which document you're holding?

(Witness complied.)

Q. Could you hold it a bit closer, please?

(Witness complied.)

Q. Even closer, please?

(Witness complied.)

Q. Could you lift up the document a few inches, please?

(Witness complied.)

Q. A little bit higher, please?

(Witness complied.)

MR. SCHULTE: Just have the record reflect that the camera issue is still there so the image is backwards. It's unclear what the document is.

Q. Thank you, Mr. Silva Lopez. You can sit down, please. Could you please keep the document out? Could you open the folder, please? Do you recognize this document, Exhibit 21?

A. I think so, yes.

Q. What do you recognize?

A. I see Russell Marino's signature and the date.

Q. Is there anything else that's familiar about this document?

A. Yes, the questions that are here and what it says at the bottom, too.

Q. What is familiar about those questions, if anything?

A. Because I remember the questions that were here in the lines. And I can't remember if I was asked to mark one.

Q. Is this document, Exhibit 21, the form that you were telling us about a few moments ago that you were given to sign before leaving Sun Valley?

A. I think so. I am not completely sure.

Q. Thank you. You can put that document back in the folder and put the folder down, please.

MR. GLICK: To the court reporter, I would ask that this document be marked as Exhibit 23, please.

(Exhibit 23, Jose Luis Silva Lopez's departure form, marked for identification, as of this date.)

INTERPRETER JENKINS: Could you repeat that? Is that something for us here?

(The requested portion was read by the reporter.)

MR. GLICK: I'll state for the record that this is a copy of a document that I sent to Mr. Schulte this morning called Exhibit 23.

Q. Mr. Silva Lopez, is there a folder on the table that says Exhibit 23?

INTERPRETER JENKINS: He asked for me to repeat the question.

A. Yes.

Q. Could you please open that folder? Could you please hold the document up to the camera?

(Witness complied.)

MR. SCHULTE: Just one last time, same objection as before regarding the camera.

Q. Thank you, Mr. Silva Lopez. You can -- please hold on to that document, Exhibit 23. Mr. Silva Lopez, do you recognize Exhibit 23?

A. Yes, I do recognize it.

Q. What about this Exhibit 23 do you recognize?

INTERPRETER JENKINS: Please repeat question for interpreter.

Q. What about this document, Exhibit 23, do you recognize?

A. It's the document that we had to sign and has our signature. It has Russell Marino's signature as well.

Q. Do you see an X marked on Exhibit 23?

A. Yes.

Q. Do you remember who wrote that X?

A. No, I do not remember.

Q. Thank you, Mr. Silva Lopez. You can put that folder with Exhibit 23 back down on the table.

Have you worked at any other companies in the United States on an H2A visa?

A. Yes.

Q. When was that?

A. In 2016.

Q. Do you know which ones?
A. I do not remember, no.
Q. Did you speak with anyone from Wage and Hour -- any of the investigators when they came to Sun Valley?
A. No, I do not.
Q. Do you know how many of your colleagues spoke with the investigators?
A. I would say like five of my coworkers.
Q. Okay. Thank you.
You mentioned that you had worked for another H2A employer last year. Where was that?
A. Which state?
Q. Start with that. Yes, please.
A. In Georgia.
Q. Do you remember the name of the farm?
A. Yes, I did know the name but I can't remember.
Q. What kind of vegetables or fruit did you work on at that farm?
A. We would plant and then we'd do the picking of cantaloupe. And then we also worked with blueberries, also zucchini. And the employer had stopped and took us to another city, Maryland, and there we were working with watermelon.

Q. Before you came to Sun Valley, had you done farm work while you were in Mexico?

A. Yes.

Q. How long?

A. With corn and strawberries for about two years.

Q. You talked about coming to the city and met with -- is it Meda? Is that right?

A. Lillian.

Q. No, I'm sorry. When you applied for the Josh at Sun Valley.

A. Mayra.

Q. Mayra. I apologize. What did she tell you about the work at Sun Valley?

A. Actually, she didn't tell us much about the work. I don't think she knew about the work we were going to do, just the place we were going to go to.

Q. Do you know the name of her company?

A. I don't remember.

Q. Did anyone other than Mayra tell you anything about the work at Sun Valley before you got your visa?

A. Not really. I had some coworkers and they gave us a little piece of paper. On this piece of paper, it mentioned what product we would be picking.

Q. Did it say anything about -- no, strike that.

You had come to Mayra looking for work in the United States, correct?

A. Yes.

Q. If you knew that the meals would be prepared for you instead of you cooking your own meals, would that have changed your decision to come to the U.S.?

A. I don't know. Maybe. I had a lot of need to go to the States and work. Maybe I would just go for that season.

Q. Were there any workers in 2015 while you were at Sun Valley who did not buy beer at all?

A. Yes. Some did not drink but I would say that the great majority did drink beer.

Q. Did they get into any trouble with Sun Valley for not buying beer?

A. No, because they were buying soft drinks and Gatorade.

BY MR. HEYMAN-KANTOR:

MR. HEYMAN-KANTOR: Does anyone have a cell phone near the phone because we're getting a little static reception? 03:44PM

INTERPRETER DE LA GARMA ROMA: Yes, we also have a bit of an issue with a sound. There's a popping sound constantly ongoing. If you could just give us one minute so we can figure out whether it's the cell phones in the room or something else. 03:45PM

(Discussion held off the record.)

MR. SCHULTE: While we're getting ready, is now a good chance -- on the transcript ordering to cover that now? The same arrangement, if we can do non-expedited just regular transcript will be great. Thank you. 03:45PM

MR. HEYMAN-KANTOR: Do you think we can move the camera a little bit up because we're 03:45PM only seeing the bottom half of your faces in Mexico? Thank you. Great.

INTERPRETER DE LA GARMA ROMA: Is that better? 03:46PM

MR. HEYMAN-KANTOR: Yes.

Q. All right, so let's begin.

INTERPRETER DE LA GARMA ROMA: I think you guys are going to have to call us again because we're still having that bad sound in our telephone. And it's difficult for us to listen to you. 03:46PM

MR. GLICK: Okay. We will call you back.

INTERPRETER DE LA GARMA ROMA: I'm going to hang up now. 03:46PM

(A brief recess was taken at this time.)

Q. Let's begin. My name is Jacob Heyman-Kantor. I represent the Administrator of the Wage and Hour Division of the U.S. Department of Labor in the matter of Sun Valley Orchards, LLC, 03:50PM 2017-TAE-0003. I'm going to ask you questions today. If you don't understand, please let me know. Please answer verbally so that the court reporter can take down what you say.

Can you please state your name for the 03:50PM record?

A. Hugo Leonel Cinta Tegoma.

Q. Do you have any identification with you, Mr. Cinta Tegoma? 03:50PM

A. Passport.

Q. Could you please show it to the camera? Just show one of them closely to the camera, if you could. A little bit closer, if you can.

(Witness complied.) 03:51PM

Q. All right. Thank you. Mr. Cinta Tegoma, thank you for coming here to this deposition. What time did you -- when did you leave your home to arrive at this deposition?

A. 11:00 p.m., 11:30 p.m. 03:52PM

Q. What day?

A. Last night.

Q. What was the total travel time between when you left and when you arrived?

A. From 11 to 12 hours. 03:52PM

Q. And were you traveling at night or during the day?

A. Part of the night and part of the day.

Q. Well, thank you for making the trip. Did you work for a company known as Sun Valley Orchards 03:53PM at some point?

A. Yes.
Q. When was that?
A. Can I check the date? 03:53PM
Q. Just to the best of your recollection.
A. 2015.
Q. At what time during the year?
A. The month was May.
Q. How many months did you work there? 03:53PM
A. Less than a month. Two or three weeks.
Q. Other than those two or three weeks in May of 2015, have you worked for Sun Valley Orchards at any other time?
A. No, that was the first time. 03:54PM
Q. When you worked at Sun Valley, were you on an H2A visa?
A. Yes.
Q. How did you find out about the employment opportunity working with Sun Valley Orchards? 03:54PM
A. There's an office that hires people so that they can work in the United States.
Q. Where is that office?
A. It's located in this city, the City of Poza Rica. 03:55PM

Q. Why did you decide to apply?

A. To get a job opportunity. I didn't have a job here in Mexico.

Q. Okay. So, I'd like to talk a little bit about what the work was like at Sun Valley. Maybe you can tell me, overall, what was it like in your experience? 03:55PM

A. Yes.

Q. Please tell us. 03:55PM

A. I arrived in May, in that month, but I don't remember the exact date. We knew that we were going to work on the fields and we were going to be harvesting asparagus, cucumber, eggplants and other type of vegetables that I don't remember that well. 03:56PM

Q. And what were your hours there?

A. We began working at 6:30 a.m. or 7:00 a.m. until 5:00 p.m. or 6:00 p.m.

Q. How many days a week?

A. From Sunday to Sunday. 03:56PM

Q. So you're saying seven days a week?

A. Yes. When the harvest was ready, we were going to work for seven days a week.

Q. Who determined the work schedule?

A. You had to harvest the asparagus so that 03:57PM

it didn't go to waste.

Q. All right. But did -- was there someone who told you your work schedule?

A. Yes, Agustin. 03:57PM

Q. Who is Agustin?

A. He's the supervisor or the person in charge of the ranch.

Q. What was he like?

A. In what way? What do you mean? 03:58PM

Q. How did he supervise the workers?

A. He was just like any other supervisor. He would arrive. He would check in and he would tell them that our production was very slow, that we were not working to our hundred percent, how much he 03:58PM wanted us to work, and since the beginning he said that we were not very useful for that job.

Q. What else did he say?

A. He told us that we needed to try harder. He was always on us. He was rushing us and he was 03:59PM always telling us that we needed to work faster.

Q. Did the workers ever say anything to him about the speed of the work?

A. Yes, most of them did.

Q. What did they say? 03:59PM

A. We told him that it was not logical that he was asking for something to happen that fast because we were human.

Q. Did Agustin ever punish anyone? 04:00PM

A. Yes. He punished me.

Q. How did he do that?

A. He took me out of the field and he told me that I was useless and that I was too slow, even when I was working at the same pace as other 04:00PM workers.

Q. How long did he take you out of the fields for?

A. Around two or three times.

Q. Did he punish any other workers? 04:01PM

A. Yes, he did the same to others.

Q. How many others?

A. I am not very sure, but I think it was from three to five people.

Q. And how did he punish them? 04:01PM

A. The same way, he took them out of the field.

Q. When you were working in the fields, what were you doing?

A. I was harvesting asparagus. 04:01PM

Q. Anything else?

A. No, because it was the season for asparagus.

Q. Did you have -- were there bathrooms in the fields? 04:01PM

A. No.

Q. So how did you relieve yourself?

A. It was a complete odyssey. We had to either hold it or run towards the trees. 04:02PM

Q. Was there water in the fields?

A. No, there wasn't any water.

Q. All right. Let me change the subject a little bit and talk about food. How did you eat at Sun Valley? 04:02PM

A. Mr. Agustin would sell us food.

Q. Did he sell you a weekly meal plan or food by the item or how was that arrangement?

A. It was a weekly arrangement. We had to pay for our meals weekly. 04:03PM

Q. Did Agustin sell anything else to the workers?

A. Yes. He would sell soda, Red Bull, Monster, beer, bread, milk, water and coffee.

Q. Can you repeat that list? I didn't quite 04:04PM get it all.

A. He would sell sodas, water, Red Bull, Monster, food, bread, milk and coffee.

Q. Did you buy anything in the fields? 04:04PM

A. Yes. Since there was no water, at around 8:00 a.m. or 9:00 a.m., he would bring Red Bull, sodas or water and we would buy from him. And then at noon he would bring some water.

Q. You know, let's go through a typical day. 04:05PM So, how many drinks would you purchase in a typical day?

A. On a typical day, I would have at the most three Monsters, but it was usually two.

Q. How many in total would you drink in all 04:05PM kinds of drinks? How many drinks would you purchase from Agustin?

A. It was usually in the morning and at noon that I would buy two Monsters, a soda and water, a bottle of water. 04:06PM

Q. So you're saying in a typical day you'd buy five drinks?

A. Yes.

Q. All right. So, when would you buy the first drink? 04:06PM

A. At around 8:00 a.m., 8:30 a.m.
Q. And what drink would that be?
A. A Monster.
Q. When would you buy the next drink? 04:07PM
A. At lunch.
Q. And what drink would that be?
A. Another Monster or a soda.
Q. And when would you buy the next drink?
A. Well, at that moment I would drink the 04:07PM Monster or another kind of beverage. But if I didn't drink the Monster or that beverage, then I would eat it right before I went back to work.
INTERPRETER DE LA GARMA ROMA: I apologize. No, he said "I would drink it." 04:08PM
Q. Okay. So, he would buy either a Monster or a soda at 12:00 and then -- is that right?
A. At noon I would buy two beverages, a Monster and another kind of drink and I would drink that beverage at that time and save the other one 04:08PM right for before I started going back to work.
Q. And would you buy any other drinks during the course of this typical day?
A. For dinner.
Q. What time was dinner? 04:08PM

A. 7:00, 7:30, sometimes 6:00. It would change.

Q. What would you buy then?

A. Another beverage. 04:09PM

Q. What kind of beverage?

A. Coke or another flavored drink.

Q. Would you buy any other drinks from Agustin during this typical day?

A. No. No, not any other type of drinks. I saw that other people would buy beer from him, but I didn't buy any. 04:09PM

Q. Did your coworkers typically purchase the same number of drinks from Agustin or fewer than you or more than you? 04:10PM

A. I think that maybe a little bit more.

Q. Did any of your colleagues not purchase any drinks from Agustin?

A. No. Everyone bought from him. We all did. 04:10PM

Q. When you had your first drink -- when you purchased your first Monster at 8:00 or 8:30, what was going on at that time? What were you doing at that time?

A. We were harvesting asparagus. During the 04:11PM break we would buy that drink or another one which is called Honey.

Q. So, when would your day start in the field? 04:11PM

A. 6:00, 6:30 a.m. or 7:00 a.m.

Q. And would you ever buy a drink in the afternoon?

A. Not any more because he would take some water. 04:12PM

Q. I'm sorry. Can you repeat that?

A. Not any more because he would take some water.

Q. Are you saying that towards the end -- towards the beginning you would buy a drink in the afternoon? 04:12PM

MR. SCHULTE: Objection. Mischaracterizing.

INTERPRETER DE LA GARMA ROMA: The interpreter needs clarification. Can you please explain what you mean? 04:12PM

Q. Can you explain what you mean by towards the end there would be water?

A. After 12:00 he would bring some water.

Q. Is that why you wouldn't bring -- is that 04:12PM

why you wouldn't drink -- I'm sorry.

Is that why you wouldn't purchase a drink from Agustin in the afternoon?

A. Sometimes I did because after drinking so much water, your stomach would hurt, so you would have to buy a Gatorade. 04:13PM

Q. Was the water good to drink or was there a problem with the water?

A. I don't think there was any problem with the water. It's just because we were working and sometimes if you have too much liquid, you feel like vomiting, but it's because you are putting a lot of effort in your work. But I don't think there was a problem with the water. 04:13PM 04:14PM

Q. Why did you drink Monster?

A. I thought that it's supposed to be an energetic drink, so it could help us work as much as Agustin was asking from us.

Q. These drinks that we've been talking about, were they included in the weekly meal plan? 04:14PM

A. Yes, because if you didn't have money to pay for them, he would give us credit.

Q. How much was the weekly meal plan?

A. It was $450, more or less. I am not that 04:15PM sure.

Q. Are you speaking in pesos?

A. Dollars.

Q. How often did you have to pay that? 04:15PM

A. I was there for a little while, so it was two or three weeks that I was there.

Q. Does that include the drinks or is that just the meals, that amount that you told us?

A. It includes everything, drinks and meals. 04:16PM

Q. Was there a specific price for the drinks?

A. Yes. There was, but I do not remember right now. I think it was $2 or $2.50 per Monster or maybe three. I cannot recall. 04:16PM

Q. What about the sodas?

A. $1.

Q. What about the water?

A. A dollar as well.

Q. What about the Red Bull? 04:16PM

A. I think that one was a little more expensive. I think it was 3.50, but I am not completely sure.

Q. When would you pay Agustin?

INTERPRETER ERRASTI: The interpreter 04:17PM needs clarification from the witness.

A. Every week when he gave us our paycheck, he would deduct the money that we owed him. So, for example, if I had made 900 pesos -- sorry, $900, and I owed him $500, I would at the end get $400. 04:18PM

Q. You were earlier saying that Agustin sold beer. How much was the beer?

A. I cannot tell you because, to be honest, I never bought any. 04:18PM

Q. How many of your coworkers purchased beer?

A. Most of them did.

Q. How many beers a week would your coworkers drink per person, if you can remember? 04:19PM

A. I think that weekly from Mondays through Fridays they would drink around five to six cases of 24 bottle beers, more or less.

Q. What kinds of beer were sold?

A. Corona and I think they also sold Modelo, Modelo Especial. 04:20PM

Q. Were they cans or bottles or how were they sold?

A. It was bottles and cans, both.

Q. How big were they? 04:20PM

A. This size, like my water bottle, they're called quarters.

Q. Were they all the same size?

A. Yes. And the cans might have been a little bit smaller and a little bit wider as well. 04:21PM

Q. How do you know your coworkers bought beer?

A. Because I would see them.

Q. How do you know the brands? 04:21PM

A. The same, because I was able to see them. I would see them in the trash can or in the room.

Q. The average worker, how many beers would they have on a Saturday evening?

A. Well, I think they would drink many. 04:22PM Maybe on average five or six, but I don't really know. And that's just in the weekends, on a Saturday.

Q. How much would they drink on a weekday, weeknight? 04:22PM

A. The same, five or six. That's just an estimate. It's not very exact.

Q. In your view, most workers were drinking five or six beers a day seven days a week or more than that or less than that? 04:23PM

A. I think I saw them drink, yes, three, four, five. I didn't pay much attention to them. Just to a couple of people that I did look at.

Q. Who did they buy the beers from? 04:23PM

A. Agustin.

Q. How do you know that?

A. Because he sold them. Once I went with a friend of mine so he would buy them.

Q. Where did Agustin sell them? 04:24PM

A. In the dining room and also in the house that he had.

Q. I'm sorry. Did you say house or box?

A. House.

Q. Where is this house? 04:24PM

A. In the ranch. At the ranch there was the dining room where we were and there was also a small house.

Q. Was anything else sold from this location? 04:25PM

A. I could not say where they sold something else because what I bought was just those beverages and I also saw people buying beer, but I'm not sure.

Q. Where was the beer stored?

A. In the dining room in those ones called 04:26PM fridges and also in the house, in the small house that I told you about.

Q. I'd like to ask you a little bit about the housing facilities. 04:26PM

A. Okay.

Q. Can you tell me, in general, what was the housing like?

A. The housing was a big space, like a big room and 30 to 36 people were living there. 04:27PM

Q. And what was it like?

A. What was it like in what way?

Q. Was it a good place to stay? Was it a bad place? How did you feel about it?

A. In my experience, it was a bad place. 04:27PM For me, it was a bad place.

Q. What was bad about it?

A. The beds, they were bunk beds and we didn't have any mattresses.

Q. What about the bathrooms? 04:28PM

A. They had the worst condition.

Q. What do you mean by that?

A. Well, the water that you use to take a shower, the water smelled bad. And they didn't clean the toilets. They would maybe sweep, but they 04:28PM would not actually wash them. They were very dirty.

INTERPRETER DE LA GARMA ROMA: The interpreters will switch now.

(Interpreter Errasti replaced Interpreter de la Garma Romo.) 04:29PM

MR. HEYMAN-KANTOR: Interpreter, could you move a little bit closer to the witness just so I can see you a little more? Thank you. 04:29PM

Q. I'd like to talk a little bit about the transportation. Did you ever have to get in a vehicle while at Sun Valley?

A. Yes.

Q. What kind of vehicles were there? 04:29PM

A. One of those yellow buses for kids. That's the transportation that we used for going to the field.

MR. HEYMAN-KANTOR: Court reporter, can you repeat that? 04:30PM

(The requested portion was read by the reporter.)

Q. What were those buses like?

A. They were two small buses.

Q. Where did the buses take you? 04:30PM

A. They just took us to the field. That was it.

Q. During your time at Sun Valley, did you ever leave the farm? 04:30PM

A. Yes, but I had to pay to go out.

Q. Who did you have to pay?

A. We had to pay to worker -- I'm not sure if he was a cousin or a relative of Agustin.

Q. How much did it cost? 04:31PM

A. At that time I think I paid $15.

Q. How many times did you leave Sun Valley during your course of employment?

A. I think that it was twice.

Q. Sorry. How much was it the two different times? How much did you have to pay? 04:31PM

A. I think that the first time I paid $10 and the second time it was 15. And it was the same thing for washing clothes. If I wanted to wash clothes, I had to pay so they would take me to the laundry. So I decided to wash my clothes by myself in the field? 04:32PM

Q. I'd like to talk to you a little bit about the end of your employment with Sun Valley.

Whose decision was it that you leave the 04:32PM

farm?

A. It was a decision taken by Mr. Russell.

Q. How did that come about?

A. Because we had a meeting, all the workers that were unsatisfied with the conditions and this meeting was with Agustin. 04:33PM

Q. Who else was there besides Agustin?

A. Mr. Russell was there and we were like 15 or 17 more persons in that meeting. 04:33PM

Q. How did that meeting come about?

A. So, we asked Agustin -- well, Agustin was being very harsh with us, so we asked him to set up a meeting with Mr. Russell. But he told us that Mr. Russell was really very violent and he was a nervous kind of person. So one day we just didn't show up to work, and I think that was the reason why Mr. Russell showed up. 04:34PM

Q. Why did you want to meet with Russell?

A. Well, because we didn't like the conditions that they were -- that we had to follow. They were too demanding with us. 04:35PM

Q. What did you plan to tell him?

A. Well, first of all, I was thankful with Mr. Russell because of the opportunity of giving me 04:35PM a job. And I was also somehow embarrassed because I couldn't give him what he wanted. But I wanted to continue if I had an opportunity to do so.

Q. What else did you want to tell him? 04:35PM

A. Well, that I was really very grateful and I wanted to keep working so I could feed my family because I couldn't get a job here in Mexico. But I wanted the conditions to be changed so they wouldn't be so demanding with us. Because I gave what I 04:36PM could, but my body could not help it any more, so --

Q. What was wrong with the conditions?

A. Well, they were really very demanding with us and I just think that we're not machines or animals. We're just people. People get tired. You 04:37PM cannot keep running all day long and that's what they wanted us to do, but I don't think that's possible.

Q. What did Agustin tell you when you said you wanted to speak to Russell? 04:37PM

A. What did I tell him?

Q. Who asked Agustin to meet with Russell?

A. All of us.

Q. How did Agustin respond?

A. He just -- he responded in a very bad 04:38PM way. He just said that we don't want to work, that we were just lazy. He also told us that Mr. Russell did not have time and he was a very nervous person.

Q. How much later after that conversation did you meet with Russell? 04:38PM

A. It was, like, for example, today in the afternoon we requested that meeting and then he went the other morning.

So, the example is like this. We spoke today in the afternoon with Agustin and the next day early in the morning Mr. Russell and Agustin showed up to the meeting. 04:39PM

Q. Why didn't you go to work that day?

A. We were tired and we just wanted to speak with Mr. Russell and we just wanted the conditions changed and Agustin kept pressing us all the time and he was demanding from us more and more all the time. We were tired because of the situation, not because of the work itself. 04:40PM

Q. What happened at the meeting?

A. When Mr. Russell arrived, he arrived yelling at us and he was telling us bad things. I decided to tell him something. I dared to do that.

Mr. Russell arrived to the meeting 04:41PM yelling at everyone and saying bad words and then I decided to speak with him.

Q. What happened next?

A. I can speak a little bit of English. So what I did was to express that I was grateful for the opportunity, but I also told him that I wanted him to change the conditions and I could see that he got goosebumps all over his skin. And he gets -- and he got truly upset after that. He actually tried to beat me. He didn't beat me but he tried to do so. And he's a very strong and tall guy. 04:41PM 04:42PM

So, he told us that we were lazy and that he had paid for us and he paid so we would go there to work. He also told us that he could buy more people and he could pay for more people. That's when he took the position to send us back to Mexico. 04:43PM

And, well, we had to pay for the transportation and that's when I told him that he had to pay for that because he was the one that fired us not because we quit. And that's the complaint that I gave him. So then Agustin and Mr. Russell planned an agreement. They gave it to us. We signed it and we had to pay to come back. 04:43PM

Q. I want to step back a little bit. So, 04:44PM

A. That they didn't ask us to work as machines. Well, we're human beings. I know we're workers, but every time I get a job, I try to give my best. 04:47PM

Q. What did you want changed about the work?

A. Well, not about the work itself. But more about the mindset, because they thought we were -- they didn't think we were people. They thought we were like animals and that we had to work nonstop. 04:48PM

Q. At the end of this meeting, did you feel like you had the option of staying?

A. No. Not at all, because he always thought he could buy more people to go to work. 04:48PM

Q. Did you have to sign -- sorry. Strike that.

Did you sign anything before you left Sun Valley?

A. Yes. 04:49PM

Q. What did you sign?

A. That I was leaving because I have family problems. He told us that was the only option that we had for us to get the money to come back to Mexico. 04:49PM

Q. Sorry. What money was that?
A. Money for transportation.
Q. Who said that?
A. What? 04:49PM
Q. Who told you that you needed to sign the form to get money for the transportation?
A. Agustin.
Q. Did you return home because a family member was sick? 04:50PM
A. No. I came back home because of the situation we're talking about.
Q. Had any family member of yours died around that time?
A. No, not at all. 04:50PM
Q. Had any family member been injured around that time?
A. No.
MR. HEYMAN-KANTOR: I need to take a short break, just a couple of minutes. 04:51PM
INTERPRETER ERRASTI: Sure.
(A recess was taken from 4:51 p.m. to 4:54 p.m.)
Q. I want to ask you a few more questions. So, who spoke during this meeting other than 04:54PM yourself?

A. Well, we actually all spoke.

Q. How many people were speaking?

A. Yeah, one at a time. Well, I speak a little bit of English. So what I was trying to do was to tell Mr. Russell what the others wanted to say because we didn't trust Agustin any longer. 04:54PM

Q. And does Russell speak Spanish?

A. No, he just speaks English. 04:55PM

Q. Was Agustin speaking at all?

A. Yes, both of them.

Q. Was Agustin translating or speaking on his own behalf?

A. Yeah, both. He spoke and he also translated what Mr. Russell was saying. 04:55PM

MR. HEYMAN-KANTOR: I have no further questions.

A. Can I ask something?

Q. Sure. 04:56PM

A. Mr. Agustin pointed me out as a leader, the one who organized that meeting. But it was a decision taken by all the members that participated in this meeting. Nobody was forced to be there and Mr. Agustin took it personal and he got really upset 04:57PM at me.

Q. How do you mean he got upset at you?

A. He kept saying that I was a bad leader that could not speak good Spanish and he mocked me, trying to speak bad English. And he sometimes didn't want to sell me food. 04:57PM

MR. HEYMAN-KANTOR: All right. Mr. Schulte, your witness.

MR. SCHULTE: Thank you. 04:58PM

EXAMINATION BY

MR. SCHULTE:

Q. Good afternoon, sir. I'll just have a few questions. We'll try to get you back home as soon as we can. 04:58PM

INTERPRETER ERRASTI: The interpreter would ask you to speak a little louder.

MR. SCHULTE: Sure. I'll pick up the handset, too. Is that better?

INTERPRETER ERRASTI: Thanks. 04:58PM

Q. You said even though you were the one who was able to speak English, the meeting was a decision by all of the workers. What do you mean by decision? What did they decide?

A. Well, seven or eight persons met and they 04:59PM asked me if I could help them because once we went to Walmart to pay and I helped them, so they wanted me to help them communicate with Mr. Russell.

Q. So, what did those seven or eight people want to communicate to Mr. Russell? 04:59PM

A. Well, the same thing, that he stop looking at us as slaves or animals or people he could just boss. He should understand that we had a human body and we got tired and that was it. 05:00PM

Q. How many people were at the meeting? How many workers were at the meeting?

A. We were around 15 to 17 people.

Q. And you said that the group had decided together. Had you spoken with the other people, not just the seven or eight you mentioned, but the entire group? 05:00PM

A. We all agreed that all those conditions were not good for us to work.

Q. You mentioned that you were willing to work long days but you wanted them to not treat you like an animal or a machine. Was it the length of day or how fast during the day they wanted you to work that was the problem? 05:01PM

A. Well, just they kept hurrying us up all 05:01PM the time and they were on top of us all the time and they were just really very demanding with us. That was the thing.

Q. But you were okay working long days? If they were more respectful, you would have been okay? 05:02PM

A. Yes, that is correct. And I worked at a farm in South Carolina and they didn't treat me the way they treated me in Sun Valley.

Q. Did you work long days at the farm in South Carolina? 05:02PM

A. Yeah, from 6:00 in the morning until 8:00 at night.

Q. Okay. What kind of crops did you work on on that farm? 05:03PM

A. It was strawberries, peaches, cucumber and squash.

Q. Is picking strawberries hard work?

A. Yes, it is a heavy work.

Q. Which is harder, strawberries or asparagus? 05:03PM

A. Asparagus is a bit harder, a little bit.

INTERPRETER ERRASTI: Interpreters need to switch.

MR. SCHULTE: Okay. Thank you. 05:04PM

Cinta Tegoma

(Interpreter de la Garma Romo replaced Interpreter Errasti.)

Q. Did any of the workers ever bring complaints to the Marino family about housing? 05:04PM

A. No.

Q. About the kitchen?

A. No.

Q. About the buses?

A. We told Mr. Agustin. 05:04PM

Q. Okay. Did you ever complain about buying drinks or buying meals from Agustin?

A. Yes.

Q. When was that?

A. I think so. I'm not quite sure but I told him that I wanted to wash my clothes and also to be able to buy water or sodas to drink. Because I had bought some water from elsewhere, but since there was too many of us at that place, it ran out really fast. So, I had to buy from Agustin. 05:05PM 05:06PM

Q. Who was it that you complained to?

A. I think I told Mr. Agustin. I think so. I cannot recall.

Q. Before the meeting with Mr. Russell had you ever spoken with him before? 05:06PM

A. No, because Agustin used to say that he was always very busy, very nervous and very worried.

Q. Did you ever speak with anyone else in the Marino family? 05:07PM

A. No. We always addressed Mr. Agustin.

Q. How long does it take to go from Monterrey to New Jersey?

A. It took us, I think, three nights and four days. I think so. I think so. I'm not that sure. 05:07PM

Q. Do you remember when you left Monterrey, what day?

A. I am not sure, but it was in May.

Q. You had your passport earlier. Is there a stamp in there or some notation of when you would have crossed into America in 2015? 05:08PM

A. Yes.

Q. Can you check that, please, and let me know when that was? 05:08PM

A. It was on April 22nd, 2015.

INTERPRETER DE LA GARMA ROMO: The interpreter wants to make a clarification. He's looking at the issue date of his visa.

MR. SCHULTE: I'm sorry. I missed that 05:08PM last part. What was that, your note you mentioned?

INTERPRETER DE LA GARMA ROMO: He is looking at the issue date of the visa. 05:09PM

Q. Is there a note in there that shows when you crossed the border?

INTERPRETER DE LA GARMA ROMO: He is pointing at the interpreter. Should I read you the date? 05:09PM

MR. SCHULTE: Please.

INTERPRETER DE LA GARMA ROMO: April 23rd, 2015.

Q. You said that you had gone to the store two times while you were in New Jersey. Would you always go on the same day of the week or was it different days? 05:09PM

A. It was different days.

Q. Do you remember what days?

A. No. To be honest, I have no idea. 05:10PM

Q. Was it after work?

A. No, it was before.

Q. What time of day would you go?

A. I think it was after 1:00 p.m.

Q. So, you'd work in the morning, have 05:10PM lunch, then go to the store and then go back to work?

A. No, that was before we started fully working at the fields. 05:10PM

Q. Both times were before you started working?

A. Yes.

Q. Do you see a folder in front of you? It should say, I believe, Exhibit 27. 05:11PM

A. Yes.

Q. Could you please open that folder? Do you recognize the document there?

A. Yes, I do.

Q. Is that your signature? 05:11PM

A. Yes.

MR. HEYMAN-KANTOR: Mr. Schulte, should we mark this as an exhibit?

MR. SCHULTE: Sorry. I just wanted him to authenticate. If we could please mark that as Exhibit 27. 05:12PM

(Exhibit 27, Hugo Leonel Cinta Tegoma departure form, marked for identification, as of this date.)

Q. Do you remember what day of the week it 05:12PM was that you met with Mr. Russell?

A. I have no idea.

Q. How long after the meeting with Mr. Russell did Agustin give you a form to sign? 05:12PM

A. After the meeting I am not quite sure. I think it was after one hour or two hours that they made the decision that they were going to give us the money so that we went back to Mexico.

Q. Do you know when -- did you get the form before they told you about that or after? 05:13PM

A. I got this form when they agreed that they were going to give us back our money.

Q. So, that was later the same day but the same day as the meeting with Mr. Russell? 05:13PM

A. Yes, it was after.

Q. Do you see on the form on the same line as your signature there's a date?

A. Yes. It's 5/6/15.

Q. Was that the date that you signed the form? 05:14PM

A. Yes, it is. As I said before, I wasn't very sure about the day. I was only sure that it was on May and it is May.

Q. You're absolutely right. Thank you. 05:14PM

So, if you started work in May -- I'm sorry. Scratch that.

You said the last day you worked was the day before the meeting with Mr. Russell; is that correct? 05:15PM

A. Could you repeat the question?

Q. Sure. I'm sorry. That was confusing. When was the last time that you worked at Sun Valley? 05:15PM

A. This document reads that -- it reads May 6th, then my last day would have been May 5th. I cannot completely recall, but I'm basing my answer on the date here.

Q. Do you have any reason to think that this document is not accurate? 05:15PM

A. I don't think so.

Q. So, if you got there in May and your last day was May 5th, how long did you work there?

A. We worked -- we worked nine to ten days, I think. Seven, eight, nine days, I think. 05:16PM

Q. How many days are there between May 1 and May 5?

A. Five.

Q. How did you work ten days in a five-day 05:16PM period?

A. A while ago you asked how long it took us and I cannot quite remember how many days it took us, but we did work for seven, eight days. 05:17PM

Q. Do you remember speaking to Jose Perez from the Department of Labor?

A. Yes, I had the pleasure of speaking with him.

Q. Do you remember when that was? 05:17PM

A. It was around one year and a half ago and also recently, too.

Q. When recently?

A. I think it was a month ago.

Q. Any time since then? 05:18PM

A. No. No. Only one year ago and one month ago I think I talked to him.

Q. Okay. Do you remember telling him when you went to the U.S. Consulate in Nonterrey?

A. Him? 05:18PM

Q. Yes.

A. No, he didn't ask me that.

Q. Okay. I have a report here that he prepared about your conversation which told him that you told him that you were in the U.S. Consulate in 05:19PM Monterrey on April 29th, 2015. Do you have any reason -- why would he have written that?

A. Well, as you know, sometimes you remember things completely well and sometimes you cannot quite remember everything. And a while ago that you asked me, I said no, and it must have been because it skipped my mind because I forgot about it. Right now I have some problems and some issues with my family, so maybe that is why I couldn't remember. But if it says that in that report, then probably I did answer that to him. It was a year and a half ago, so maybe that's why I cannot completely recall. 05:20PM 05:20PM

Q. Completely understandable. That was a long time ago. Since a year and a half ago was closer to when you had come to work at Sun Valley, is it more likely that that is accurate or what you are saying today is accurate? 05:20PM

INTERPRETER DE LA GARMA ROMO: Excuse me. The interpreter needs clarification. Could you repeat your question? 05:21PM

Q. Since your conversation with Mr. Perez a year and a half ago was closer to when you were at Sun Valley, is it more likely that that conversation was accurate or your memory today of when you came 05:21PM to New Jersey was accurate?

A. Yes.

Q. I'm sorry. Which one? The 2016 or today? 05:21PM

A. No, 2016.

Q. Before you came to Sun Valley, did you know you'd be working on asparagus?

A. Yes, yes.

Q. You said that Mr. Russell -- how did he word it? I just want to get the wording right. I'm sorry. 05:22PM

You said that Mr. Russell tried to beat you but he didn't. What happened specifically? Could you tell me more about that? 05:22PM

A. Well, yes, I can tell you about it. He was very nervous. He was actually very upset, even mad. And I was close to him, so I was able to see that he had goosebumps. He was even panting. And since I was talking to him and he was looking at me, I saw that was ne very angry. So he raised his arm and he put it close to his chest as if he were attempting to hit me, but he never hit me. I think he tried to hit me. And I thought that if he hit me, I could be able to defend myself. 05:24PM 05:24PM

Q. Can you show on the video what he did with his arm?

A. He was standing like this. He stared at me and he was very tall, as I said, and he did this (indicating). He looked at Agustin and then he calmed down. 05:25PM

Q. And everyone in the meeting, how far apart were they?

A. Maybe a meter away. They were in a circle and he was in the middle. 05:25PM

Q. Were you inside or outside?

A. I was also in the circle and fortunately or unfortunately I was closer to him.

Q. Were you all outdoors or in the house? 05:25PM

A. Outdoors.

Q. What time of day was this?

A. It was early. I think it would have been at 8:00 a.m. until 10:00 a.m., something like that.

Q. Was it raining or clear, sunny? 05:26PM

A. It was clear.

Q. So, everyone could see everyone else?

A. Yes. Yes.

Q. We spoke with two other workers who were at that meeting yesterday and neither of them said 05:26PM they thought he was going to beat anyone. Why would they not have remembered?

MR. HEYMAN-KANTOR: Objection. Mischaracterizes his testimony. 05:26PM

A. Well, because I saw him. I saw how he folded his arm and how he looked at me and I saw his arm and by the way that he folded it, I think that he wanted to hit me. But, as I said, he never hit me. Maybe he wanted to do something else with his 05:27PM arm and that's only what I thought he was going to do.

Q. You said that Agustin sold bread and coffee and milk. How much did he charge for those?

A. I have no idea because there was not a 05:28PM point in asking. You would just -- in asking about the price. You would just ask for something that you wanted and that was it. I think that they might have been $1 each.

Q. Did you ever buy those from him? 05:28PM

A. Yes, yes.

Q. How often?

A. It might have been three or five times that I had bread with coffee.

Q. Is it possible that that was included in 05:29PM

the meal plan?

A. It was apart. Milk and bread, maybe coffee. But we had -- but I'm sure that they charged us for it. 05:29PM

Q. I'm sorry. When you say apart, you mean as one word, apart as in separate or a part as included with?

A. When I say apart, I mean that, for example, bread would have a price and also breakfast would have one set price as well as lunch and dinner. 05:30PM

Q. What was the part for breakfast?

A. No. Breakfast was that. Breakfast was bread. 05:30PM

Q. How much was the lunch?

A. I think that per week we might have paid 70 to $80. I cannot recall.

Q. Earlier you testified that the meals were $450. Was that -- was the $70 just for lunch or $70 for all of the meals? 05:31PM

A. That was an example that I gave when I said 450. And he would, for example, write down what we had, the beverages that we had had during the morning and at lunch and at night. And since 05:32PM you were tired, you would lose count whether you had asked or what he had noted down or not. We were tired because of work and because there was so much pressure on us. 05:32PM

INTERPRETER DE LA GARMA ROMO: The interpreters will switch now.

(Interpreter Errasti replaced Interpreter de la Garma Romo.)

Q. You said that $450 was an example. Did you ever pay that much? 05:32PM

A. Yes, I think I paid like 430 or 450.

Q. How many times did you pay him?

A. Just once.

Q. How much was the meal portion of that? 05:33PM

A. It was just a normal dish. And tortillas, we had like seven or eight tortillas but because of the chemicals they add to the asparagus, maybe that's why we were not that hungry.

Q. The question was how much of the 430 or $450 was for the meal and how much was for other items? 05:34PM

A. Well, again, Agustin just told me once, this is how much you owe and that was it.

Q. He never -- did he ever tell anyone else 05:34PM how much the meal cost was?

A. No. No. I don't have any idea.

Q. You said you had worked in South Carolina before. How many years have you come to the United States on an H2A visa? 05:35PM

A. Well, I went to South Carolina and North Carolina.

Q. How many times?

A. Two times and to tobacco I was three times. And I spent 10 months in South Carolina. Once in South Carolina and the other time in North Carolina and three months working for the tobacco industry. 05:35PM

Q. Three months or ten months? 05:36PM

INTERPRETER ERRASTI: I'm sorry. I didn't hear that question.

Q. I'm sorry. You said three months or ten months?

A. Three. 05:36PM

Q. Those were three different times you came on an H2A visa?

A. Yes. North Carolina, South Carolina and New Jersey.

Q. Have you come -- have you gotten an H2A 05:36PM visa since 2015?

A. No.
Q. Are you planning on getting one this year? 05:36PM
A. No. Not H2A.
Q. H2B?
A. Yes.
Q. What kind of work will you be doing?
A. Landscaping. 05:37PM
Q. Do you know where?
A. That was in Memphis, Tennessee.
Q. When was that?
A. In 2016.
Q. Are you planning to get an H2A or an H2B visa for 2017? 05:37PM
A. Yes, H2B.
Q. Where will that be?
A. You mean the state?
Q. Yes. 05:37PM
A. I don't have an opportunity yet. I'm looking for an opportunity to get a job.
Q. Okay. Did Mr. Russell tell you anything about the form that we looked at earlier that you signed? 05:38PM

A. No.

Q. You mentioned much earlier when we were talking about you would drink Monster to get more energy; is that right? How does Monster make you feel? 05:38PM

A. Well, as I mentioned earlier, Monster is an energy drink. When you're tired, you drink it and, I don't know, you think that it boosts you up.

Q. What time would you drink one in the morning? 05:39PM

MR. HEYMAN-KANTOR: Objection. Asked and answered.

A. 8:00, 8:30 in the morning. It depends.

Q. Were you tired when you drank one? 05:39PM

A. Very, very tired because there was no water.

Q. Which gives you more energy, water or Monster?

A. Well, I drank a bottle of water and I think the one that gave me more energy was Monster. 05:39PM

Q. You said that the workers paid for their return travel. How much did you pay?

MR. HEYMAN-KANTOR: Objection. Mischaracterizes testimony. 05:40PM

A. That is correct.
Q. Was else did she ask you about?
A. Well, she asked me if I have the ability to come to the deposition and I told her I could come if I had time. 05:53PM
Q. Why did you tell her you had to leave Sun Valley?
A. Well, how Mr. Russell and Agustin behaved. 05:53PM
Q. What did you tell her about that?
A. Well, I told -- well, what I said was that Mr. Agustin pressed us all the time and Mr. Russell kept saying that he could buy people and that he could get more people if he needed and that he bought us all to go to work and that he kept telling us that we were lazy and that we didn't want to work. 05:54PM
Q. Did he say he bought you or he paid for you to come? 05:54PM
A. Yes, that he had paid for us to go there.
Q. Is that the same thing that you told Jose Perez?
A. Yes. More or less, something similar. Well, these are ideas. They have ideas of Mr. 05:55PM

Russell and ideas are not told just exactly as another different idea.

Q. What do you mean by ideas of Mr. Russell?

A. Well, I thought that he was a very demanding person and maybe that's because of power or money. And what I understood that he said was that he had bought us and that he had paid for us to work and that we were lazy and because of this I got a general idea of him. 05:55PM 05:56PM

Q. Is this the same sort of thing you talked about with Jason and Jacob?

A. Well, just that basically the same ideas, the same thoughts, the same dialogue.

Q. What else did you talk about with them? 05:56PM

A. That he sold us food, that he also sold beer, that there were no bathrooms.

Q. Did they ask you about the bathrooms and the beer?

A. Yes, yes, they asked all those questions. 05:57PM

Q. What else did they ask?

A. Well, first -- well, this is a little bit of how I remember things. First they asked for bathrooms. They asked if he sold beer. They asked if he sold food. If we had transportation, if they 05:57PM

CDM. Mischaracterizes.

A. Before? What do you mean before? I spoke to them a month and a half ago.

Q. I didn't mean earlier than that. I meant, did you possibly speak to someone more recently? 06:04PM

A. With Julia and with Mr. Jacob.

Q. Earlier today, do you remember speaking to me? 06:04PM

A. No. Well, yes, about the expenses of the hotel, that I didn't have to worry about that.

Q. No, I'm sorry. Did you and I speak using the video conferencing?

A. Yes. 06:05PM

Q. Was Jason Glick with me?

A. Yes.

Q. And Jose Perez, was he here with us?

A. Yes, he was also there. Yes.

Q. And we talked about what happened at Sun Valley? 06:05PM

A. Yes.

Q. All right. I want to ask you a bit more about your departure from Sun Valley. Is it your testimony that you were fired or that you quit? 06:06PM

Cinta Tegoma

MR. SCHULTE: Objection. Asked and answered.

A. I was fired.

Q. Did someone tell you you were fired? 06:06PM

A. No. Because if I had quit, I would have chosen the option that said that the work slowed down so I wanted to return. And I instead chose the option a family member was sick so I had to return home. 06:07PM

Q. Why do you say you were fired?

A. Because of what Agustin and Russell thought, that we were very lazy.

Q. Did Agustin tell you you could keep working or you had to stop working? 06:07PM

A. He took me out of the field one time.

Q. So, in the meeting, the meeting that we were speaking about earlier, did Russell or Agustin tell you that you had to go back to Mexico?

A. Yes. 06:08PM

Q. What did they tell you about that?

A. That we were lazy, that we didn't like to work and that we should go back to Mexico.

Q. After they said that, did you think you could keep working there? 06:08PM

A. Yes. We asked for the opportunity to continue to work there because we were there for work, but he said no. And then we told him if he had said no, then he should give us our money so that we could go back. 06:09PM

Q. What money was that?

A. For transportation.

Q. Did they pay for that transportation?

A. They gave us some money, but we had to sign this. 06:09PM

Q. Do you know why they paid for your transportation?

A. To my understanding, it's because it wasn't very convenient for them that we made a fuss about it. 06:10PM

Q. Earlier -- and thank you. I just want to jump back for a moment. Earlier during the video conference did Jason or I or Jose say anything about your hotel being paid for? 06:10PM

A. It was a possibility of those expenses could be covered.

Q. Did we say that or did you learn that from someone else?

A. Ms. Julia told me. 06:11PM

MR. HEYMAN-KANTOR: All right. Thank you. No more questions.

MR. SCHULTE: Just a couple more quick. Just a couple more questions for me. 06:11PM

BY MR. SCHULTE:

Q. Was Julia on the conference with Jose and Jacob and Jason and you?

A. No. No.

Q. When did she tell you about the hotel cost? 06:11PM

A. No. She didn't tell me about the cost of the hotel. She told me that if this was going to take longer, then they would give me a room. But she never mentioned anything about a cost. 06:12PM

Q. Did she say who would cover those expenses?

A. She told me that if I had the possibility to come here, then the expenses would be covered. But I don't know who was going to cover it for the expenses. 06:12PM

Q. Okay. Thank you. You said that you might have checked the box that said work had slowed down. Did work slow down?

A. No. I didn't say that. I said that 06:13PM that's the option that Russell or Agustin would have checked because that's what it says. It says work slowed.

Q. Who put the check on the form? 06:13PM

A. I did.

Q. What do you mean Russell would have put a check on the form?

A. Yes. Later on I might have said that but I'm getting confused. It's because I understood 06:14PM that the options that I was slow, but instead now that I'm reading it, I can see that it says work slowed.

Q. What would have happened if a worker checked the box that said they were slow? 06:14PM

MR. HEYMAN-KANTOR: Objection. Mischaracterizes this form.

A. This option says that work is slow. That means that they're almost isn't a lot of job or a lot of work to do. 06:14PM

Q. Were any of the workers concerned that if they reported on the form that they couldn't do the job that they would have trouble getting jobs in the future in the United States?

MR. HEYMAN-KANTOR: Objection. 06:15PM

Mischaracterizes facts in evidence.

A. Yes. To be honest, I did. I thought that if I chose that option, then I wouldn't be able to go back to the United States. My ignorance made me think that. 06:15PM

Q. Before you came to the United States, did you know that there would be a charge for meals or transportation?

A. No. I know based on my own experience that you buy your own food and that they usually have a van that takes you to Walmart. Usually to Walmart so that you could buy food. 06:16PM

Q. If you had known that, would you have come to the United States to work anyways? 06:16PM

A. Sometimes out of need we have to take that kind of mistreatments and humiliation.

Q. What mistreatment and humiliation?

A. Sometimes -- well, when you have to work -- when you're working as hard as you can and they are demanding more from you and also that you don't have a place to wash your clothes or a place to cook or that you have to eat things that you don't like to eat and you have to eat them, maybe I didn't use the right word when I said humiliation or 06:17PM 06:18PM

Q. How do you know that those were the prices that you told me for the beers?
A. Because when some of my colleagues bought beer, that's what I heard.
Q. Was there anything else that was sold at Sun Valley? 10:35
A. It was just that.
INTERPRETER ERRASTI: Interpreter needs to change.

(Interpreter Errasti was relieved by Interpreter de la Garma Romo.)

Q. Mr. Garcia, what days of the week did you purchase beer at Sun Valley?

A. I don't drink. I only heard what the other people asked when they bought the beer. 10:36

Q. How many beers did the other people purchase on a typical weekday?

A. They would never buy during their working hours. They would only buy them at night. 10:36

Q. At night during the week, how many beers would the workers typically buy?

A. Well, some of them would buy three or -- maybe three to five beers. 10:37

Q. Would other workers purchase a different number?

A. Yes, during the weekends they would buy two boxes of 24 can beers or sometimes even more. 10:37

Q. The beers that the workers purchased during the week at night, were those cans or $2 bottles or $5 bottles?

A. Some of them would buy the $5 bottles and others would buy the $2 beers.
Q. During the weekend, those cases, what kind of beers were in those cases?
A. They would buy Bud Light, Budweiser or Modelo. 10:38
Q. Were those cans or bottles?
A. Cans.
Q. Did you see the workers buy these cases of cans? 10:39
INTERPRETER DE LA GARMA ROMO: Interpreter needs clarification. Could you repeat the question?
Q. Did you see your coworkers purchase these cases of canned beers? 10:39
A. Yes.
Q. In a typical weekend, how many cases of beer did you see your coworkers buy?
MR. SCHULTE: Objection. Asked and answered on this specifically and I think we pretty well covered this. 10:39
A. It would go from one to two, sometimes three or even four cases.
Q. What did that depend on?

A. Well, maybe if they were tired or there was a lot of sun or if it was very hot.

Q. All of the beers you were telling me about, were those all sold by Agustin or his colleague? 10:40

A. Yes, both of them would sell them, Agustin and his colleague.

Q. Did anyone else sell those beers that you told us about?

A. No. Only they. 10:40

Q. What portion of the workers at Sun Valley did purchase beer versus those that didn't purchase beer?

A. Around maybe 10 or 12 people are the ones that would buy beer. 10:41

Q. How many other workers were at Sun Valley at the time that you worked there?

A. Mm-hmm, around 30, maybe 40 people.

Q. During the time you worked at Sun Valley, did you ever purchase anything from trucks that arrived near the fields? 10:42

A. Almost never did a truck go to the field. Only Agustin sold food, but there was one occasion or two occasions when there was a truck that sold food and soap and snacks and the truck was near the field.

Q. That truck or those one or two trucks that did go near the fields, did you purchase anything there? 10:43

A. We would buy soap or snacks because, to be honest, it was much cheaper.

Q. Did anyone at Sun Valley know that you purchased items from those trucks?

A. Yes. There was one time when 10:44 Agustin did notice that we were buying things from the truck and he was upset. He didn't want us to buy anything from the truck. He only wanted us to buy things from him.

Q. Did Agustin say anything else about 10:44 those trucks?

A. That we didn't have to buy from those trucks. That Agustin had everything. And that the trucks were not allowed to go inside. 10:45

Q. The beverages that were sold in the field at Sun Valley by Agustin, did everyone purchase those beverages?

A. Yes, most of the workers would buy them.

Q. Were there any workers who didn't buy them?

A. Maybe just a few of them and they would drink water from the tap. Water that Agustin would bring them, but it was not clean water. 10:46

Q. The time you worked at Sun Valley, where did you live?

A. There were dorms, rooms, and everyone slept there and we also had the kitchen there and the bathroom. 10:46

Q. What were the dorms like inside?

A. They were very simple. They were just one floor with bunk beds and we didn't have any windows. There was just a piece of cloth covering so that maybe dust wouldn't go in. 10:47

Q. What were the bathrooms like?

A. Well, there were many showers and they were divided by partitions, but the bathroom, the toilets and the showers were always dirty. There would be papers on the floor and sometimes if they didn't clean the 10:47 showers, there was even mud on the showers.

Q. Was there hot water in the bathrooms?
A. Yes, there was hot water, but it wasn't enough for everyone. Only maybe ten people would shower with warm water. 10:48
Q. Were there windows in the bathrooms?
A. No. There weren't any windows.
Q. What about the windows in the housing, I think you said that they were covered in a certain way? 10:49
A. They had screens for mosquitos. There was no glass on them. Only the top portion of the window was a glass. But the other part of the window was just a screen. 10:49
Q. How did you travel between the housing and the fields at Sun Valley?
A. Well, there were buses to take us to the fields, some of the fields, but other fields were just in -- around our housing, so we would walk to them. They were close and for those that were far away, we would use buses. 10:50
Q. The ones where you used the buses, about how many days a week did you use the buses to get to those fields?

A. Almost on a daily basis.
Q. How long was the ride from the dorm to the fields?
A. Maybe ten to fifteen minutes, the farthest. 10:51
Q. Is that each way or round trip?
A. That was one way and another ten or fifteen minutes on our way back.
Q. Did you ever travel from Sun Valley to go to any places outside of Sun Valley? 10:51
A. Do you mean before or during the time in Sun Valley?
Q. During the time you worked at Sun Valley, did you ever travel from Sun Valley to any place outside Sun Valley? 10:52
A. That was when Russell said we were not able to continue to work there. Only that time.
Q. Before that time did you travel from Sun Valley to any stores? 10:52
A. Oh, when we went to buy our cell phones. I don't recall exactly what the place was because they just took us really fast.

Q. How did you get to the place where you bought the cell phones?

A. Well, the people that work with Agustin, they already know the place because they have been working there for a while so it was through them. 10:53

Q. Who drove you to the store where you bought the cell phone?

A. One of Agustin workers, a person that he knew. 10:54

Q. Did that person give you a ride for free?

A. No. He charged us.

Q. How much did he charge?

A. It was $10 per person. 10:54

Q. What kind of vehicle did that person take you in to the cell phone store?

A. It was a van.

Q. What kind of van?

A. Well, I don't remember. I don't remember exactly what type of van, but it was a big van. 10:54

Q. The venicles that you rode between the housing at Sun Valley and the fields, what kind of vehicles were those?

A. It was a bus.
Q. What was the bus like?
A. It was a small bus. It was yellow and it said something like "school." 10:55
Q. When you were working in the fields, the water that was available for you to drink, what was that water like?
A. Well, that water didn't look very clean. It was tap water that we drank in the 10:56 fields.
Q. What didn't look clean about it?
A. It was maybe because of the piping, because the water was not crystal clear. It was a bit yellowed. 10:57
Q. Whose decision was it that you stopped working at Sun Valley?
A. The decision was made between Agustin and Russell.
Q. How did they make that decision? 10:57
MR. SCHULTE: Objection. Calls for hearsay. No basis for him to know that.
A. Because Agustin said that we were not very good for the work. We were not useful for him for the work.

Q. When did Agustin say that you weren't useful for the work?

A. It was during the second week.

Q. What happened during the second week? 10:58

A. Well, because some of us had a backache and we were tired. Some of us told him we could not work the rest of the day because we were not feeling that well. 10:59

Q. What happened after that?

A. Well, I think that maybe Agustin told Russell about it and then Russell came to the field and instead of asking us what is going on or how we felt or to find out about us, he was very upset and he was aggressive and he was shouting and he asked what is it that we wanted. 11:00

MR. SCHULTE: Objection. Nonresponsive and speculative. 11:00

Q. How long after you had the backache and stopped working did Russell come talk to you?

MR. SCHULTE: Objection. He never testified that he had a backache.

A. The next day.
Q. What time of day did Russell arrive to talk to you?
A. Around 10:00 a.m. 11:01
Q. Did you work that day before Russell arrived to talk to you?
A. No, I didn't work that day.
Q. Did other people work that day?
A. Maybe approximately half of the 11:01 people who were there worked.
Q. Did the other half of the people?
A. Yes, the other half were working. It is the people that had been working with him the longest. 11:02
Q. How many people didn't work that morning that Russell came to talk to you?
A. Around five, six people didn't work.
INTERPRETER DE LA GARMA ROMO: Interpreters needs to switch. 11:02
(Interpreter de la Garma Romo was relieved by Interpreter Errasti.)
INTERPRETER ERRASTI:
Q. Where were you at 10:00 a.m. that morning?

A. Worked in the field.

Q. Where were you when you first saw Russell that morning?

A. We are actually in the dorms waiting for him because we were being told that he was coming to speak with us. 11:03

Q. When did Agustin tell you that?

A. One day. It was in the afternoon when we didn't show up to work. 11:03

Q. What did Agustin tell you that afternoon?

A. He told us that Russell was coming the next day, but he also mentioned that Russell seemed to be upset because they decided to rest instead of working. 11:04

Q. Did Agustin say anything else that afternoon to you?

A. No. It was just that.

Q. Did you say anything to Agustin in response? 11:04

A. Well, I just told him if he was going to come, we were just going to wait for him and talk about the job.

Q. Did you hear any of your coworkers say anything else to Agustin in response?

A. No. Not really. We just waited for Russell to arrive.

Q. When Russell arrived, that was the next morning at 10:00 a.m.? 11:05

A. Yes.

Q. What happened when Russell arrived?

A. When he arrived, he was clearly upset and he was aggressive and he kept asking us why we didn't work and he also told us that he brought us from Mexico to work so why were we resting. 11:06

Q. Did Russell say anything else?

A. Yes, he asked us, do you want to work or not or what's happening here. 11:06

Q. What happened next?

A. And Russell was still upset. We ask him that we could probably use another type of work like instead of trying to grow other type of vegetables or pick other type of vegetables. 11:07

Q. Who spoke next?

A. But Russell told us that was the only job available for us.

Q. What happened next?
A. Then he told us, if you don't want to work here, you are going to have to go back to Mexico.
Q. What happened next? 11:08
A. Then he handed out a document that had different options -- that had different reasons and those reasons would be like the permission for going back to Mexico.
Q. What happened next? 11:08
A. And then Russell told us he was going to hire new people, that we could no longer be there.
Q. What happened next?
A. Well, since we couldn't stay in the 11:09 field, we all decided to come back to Mexico.
Q. What happened next?
A. Well, that's when we stopped being at the fields and we left and we just waited for our paycheck for the days we worked there 11:10 and we had to take a bus to come back.
Q. I'm going to ask you some questions going back to the beginning of what you were telling me about that time at Sun Valley.

A. Yes.
Q. At that meeting how did you know that Russell was upset?
A. Because you could tell in his face and he was upset because we were not working. 11:11
Q. What about his face did you notice?
A. He seemed to be very upset and he yelled at us in the field.
Q. Was Russell like that when he first arrived at 10:00 a.m. or not until some time later? 11:11
A. No, that's how he arrived.
Q. What language was Russell speaking?
A. English.
Q. Was he speaking English the whole time? 11:12
A. He used some words in Spanish, but Agustin was there all the time.
Q. What was Agustin doing during that time? 11:12
A. I think he was there just waiting for Russell to arrive. Because the other persons were working in the field and then he came where we were all waiting for him.

Q. After Russell arrived, what was Agustin doing?

A. He was just there doing nothing, listening and translating words Russell was saying. 11:13

MR. SCHULTE: The video is dropping out on the main screen. There you are.

MR. GLICK: It looks like it just appeared again.

MR. SCHULTE: Never mind. 11:13

Q. Do you understand what Agustin was translating?

A. No. No.

Q. Was Agustin translating what Russell said from English to Spanish? 11:14

A. Yes.

Q. Did you understand the Spanish that Agustin was using to translate?

A. Yes.

Q. Did you personally speak at that meeting? 11:14

A. Well, no, not really. We didn't have an opportunity to do that. Just one.

Q. How many other people were there at that meeting?

A. Well, at the beginning it was just us and then some people from the field came, where we were all in the meeting. They went to the bathroom and so then they decided to stay in the meeting. 11:15

Q. Before those other people arrived, how many people were present?

A. We were probably six to eight persons at the meeting. 11:16

Q. Did that include you?

A. Yes.

Q. Did that include Russell?

A. No. It was us and Russell and Agustin. 11:16

Q. Who else was part of that six to eight people?

A. Some of the other workers that worked in the same fields.

Q. After more workers joined, about how many people were present at that meeting? 11:16

A. It was probably three or four persons more that arrived afterwards.

Q. Who was the coworker who spoke at that meeting?

A. It was one of the workers that was in the previous day when we took a rest.
Q. Do you know if that worker was working at Sun Valley on an H2A Visa? 11:17
INTERPRETER ERRASTI: Interpreter needs clarification.
Q. Do you know if that worker was working at Sun Valley on an H2A Visa?
A. Yes. 11:17
Q. Was he working on an H2A Visa?
A. No.
Q. What did that person say at the meeting?
A. He asked us why was it that Russell 11:18 and Agustin were treating us that way, they should respect us as workers.
Q. What else did that coworker say?
A. He told us that they should respect us, that they should respect our rights and 11:19 they couldn't yell it off if we could reach an agreement if we just talked.
Q. Did that worker say anything else?
INTERPRETER ERRASTI: I'm sorry?

Q. Did that worker say anything else at that meeting?

INTERPRETER ERRASTI: Thank you.

A. He told us why is Agustin forcing you to work all this extra overtime. He told us, what, are you machines? Then the boss said that if others could keep working and doing this job, why couldn't we. He said this pain we felt, it was noting at all. It was just a minor back pain. 11:20

Q. After the boss said that, what happened next?

A. Russell was still very upset and he didn't listen to what we told him. We just -- we're not good for this job. Why can't we get a different job. 11:20

Q. At that meeting did you personally say that you wanted to quit Sun Valley?

A. No.

Q. At that meeting, did you hear any other workers say that they wanted to quit Sun Valley? 11:21

A. No. It was just like Russell decided, making that decision and then we would left -- we would have to leave.

Q. How did you know that that was Russell's decision?
A. Because well I think Russell and Agustin talked about this and we -- they probably decided we were not useful and not good for the job. 11:22
MR. SCHULTE: Objection. Same speculation as before and nonresponsive.
Q. Did Russell say anything to you that day that made you believe that you could not stand work at Sun Valley? 11:22
A. Yes, he just told us we were totally useless.
Q. Was there anything else that Russell said that day that made you think you couldn't work at Sun Valley any more? 11:22
A. I don't remember.
Q. After that meeting at Sun Valley that day, were you able to stay and work at Sun Valley? 11:23
A. We did not work after that meeting. Agustin told us we were going to get paid that we worked for and that was it and then we had to leave.

Q. Did Agustin tell you anything else?

A. No. That was it.

Q. Who else, if anyone, did Agustin tell that to? 11:24

A. He told this to the other persons that were in the meeting as well.

Q. Do you know if any of those other people who were at the meeting that day continued to work at Sun Valley after that 11:24 meeting?

A. The ones that were in the fields, they kept working, but the ones that were present in the meeting, we did not work any more. 11:24

Q. Who was it that gave you document to sign?

A. It was Agustin.

Q. When did he give you that document?

A. It was two or three days after we 11:25 stopped working.

Q. What did you do for those two or three days?

A. We did not work.

Q. Where were you when Agustin gave you that document?
A. We were at the dorms.
Q. What did Agustin say when he gave you that document? 11:26
A. He told us that Russell sent us those documents and we would go and then sign them.
Q. Did Agustin say anything else?
A. No. 11:26
Q. Did you sign the document?
A. Yes.
Q. Do you remember how you filled out the document?
A. I had just to select one option that 11:26
I would come back to Mexico.
Q. Which option did you select?
A. I selected the option that I was coming back to Mexico because of personal reasons. 11:27
Q. Why did you select that option?
A. Well, Agustin told us that that was a convenient option for us to choose because we would leave the country in a peaceful way and we wouldn't cause any trouble to the company nor to us.

Q. Did you leave Sun Valley for personal reasons?

A. No. 11:28

Q. Why did you leave Sun Valley?

A. Because Russell decided that we were not worth for the job.

Q. Do you remember if last year you told an investigator from the U.S. Department 11:28 of Labor that the reason you left Sun Valley was because the work conditions were different than the contract?

MR. SCHULTE: Objection. Are you impeaching your witness? 11:28

A. Yes.

Q. Did you leave Sun Valley because the work conditions were different than the contract?

A. Yes. 11:29

Q. Did you leave Sun Valley for any other reasons?

A. No, because of the conditions of the contract and the job.

Q. Was it your decision to leave Sun Valley?

A. No.

Q. Mr. Garcia, I would like you to look at a document that I believe is on the table in a folder marked Exhibit 21. 11:30

INTERPRETER ERRASTI: Should I hand it to him?

MR. GLICK: The folder marked Exhibit 21, please. 11:30

INTERPRETER ERRASTI: Interpreters are switching.

(Interpreter Errasti was relieved by Interpreter de la Garma Romo.)

Q. Mr. Garcia, could you please open that folder and hold the document inside up to the camera. 11:30

A. (Witness complies.)

Q. Could you please raise the document a few inches. 11:31

INTERPRETER DE LA GARMA ROMO: Interpreter needs clarification. Could you say that again?

Q. Could you raise up the document a few inches?

A. (Witness complies.)

Q. Closer to the camera, please.

A. (Witness complies.)

Q. Please hold it there for a few more moments. 11:31

MR. SCHULTE: If we can have the record reflect, I don't know if it is a camera quality issue, that is completely illegible on this end. 11:31

Q. Thank you, Mr. Garcia. You can hold the document down.

Do you recognize this document, Exhibit 21?

A. Yes. 11:32

Q. How do you recognize Exhibit 21?

A. Yes, because I can read the options that I read on that document and I had to choose one of them.

Q. Are the options on Exhibit 21 the same options that you had when Agustin gave you the document at the dorm? 11:33

MR. SCHULTE: Objection. He never indicated that this is the form that Agustin gave him at the dorm.

A. Yes.
Q. Thank you. You can close the folder.
MR. GLICK: I have no further questions at this time. I assume Mr. Schulte does. 11:34
MR. SCHULTE: You are correct.
EXAMINATION BY
MR. SCHULTE: 11:34
Q. Good morning. I have a few questions for you and it is possible that Mr. Glick will have some more.
The form that you were just looking at, did you ever get a copy of that form? 11:34
A. Yes.
MR. SCHULTE: I'm sorry. I didn't hear the answer.
INTERPRETER DE LA GARMA ROMO: The answer is yes. 11:35
Q. Who gave you a copy of that form?
A. Agustin.
Q. Did Russell Marino ever talk to you about that form?

A. No.
Q. Did he tell you which box to check on that form?
A. Yes.
Q. Who told you that? 11:35
A. Agustin.
Q. The question was did Russell Marino ever tell you what to do with the form.
A. No. He didn't mention anything.
Q. Do you know what Sun Valley would do with the form after it was completed? 11:36
A. No. I have no idea.
Q. Do you know if it would be sent to the government?
A. No. I have no idea. 11:36
Q. You have worked in the H2A program in years other than 2015, correct?
A. Yes.
Q. Do you know what would happen if an H2A worker reported that he couldn't do the job? 11:37
A. No.
Q. How many years have you worked in the H2A program?

A. Five years.
Q. Which years would those be?
A. 2008, 2009, 2010, 2011, and 2012.
Q. So was 2012 the last year you worked in the program? 11:38
A. Yes.
Q. Have you ever worked in the United States in any years other than those five years?
A. No. 11:38
Q. What types of work did you do in those years that you described, 2008 through 2012?
A. I was collecting tobacco -- picking tobacco. 11:39
Q. Any other crops?
A. Also sweet potato. Only those two crops.
Q. Had you ever worked asparagus before you had worked at Sun Valley? 11:39
A. No. Never.
Q. You mentioned at the meeting that someone had asked Agustin if the workers could work on another vegetable. Do you remember that?

A. They asked whether it was possible to do that, but Agustin said that that was the only choice that they had. That was the only work they had for them. 11:40

Q. If there was other work, would you have stayed to do that?

A. Yes.

Q. Remind me again, please, how many people were at the meeting by the end of the meeting? How many workers? 11:40

A. It was around eight to ten people.

Q. Do you remember how many people traveled back to Mexico with you on the bus at the end of that week? 11:41

A. The people that were fired from the field, though it was us, ten, well, approximately ten, us included, but in total it was twenty people. So it was probably ten people from the meeting and the other, I don't know the reasons why, but maybe they left the work because they didn't want to work any more, but I do not know the reasons. 11:42

Q. Were all of those workers from Veracruz?

A. Yes.
Q. Were there workers at Sun Valley while you were there from other parts of Mexico? 11:42
A. Some of them I think were from Caliente maybe, and others I think they were from Michoacan and they were acquaintances of Agustin that maybe the reason why they were there. 11:43
Q. In the job order that you reviewed in Monterrey before you came to New Jersey, did it say you would be working on asparagus?
A. Yes.
Q. Do you remember what day the meeting was? That meeting at 10:00 a.m., do you remember what day that would be? 11:43
A. I do not remember the exact day.
Q. Do you remember the date on which you signed the form that we talked about earlier? 11:44
A. I don't remember the exact day.
MR. SCHULTE: Side bar for a second. Is there a copy of the exhibit that you sent around, the signed copy that might be there in the room?

MR. GLICK: I believe it is there in a folder marked 24.

Q. Do you see a folder there marked Exhibit 24? 11:44

A. Yes. Can I take it?

Q. Yes, please, if you can open the folder and look at the document inside. Thank you. 11:45

Do you recognize that form?

A. Yes.

Q. Is that your signature?

A. The one over here on the bottom, yes. 11:45

Q. Does this refresh your recollection of when you might have signed the form?

A. Well, I'm able now to look at the date and I sort of remember the date, but I don't remember the exact day it was. 11:45

Q. Do you have any reason to think that you didn't sign this form on May 6, 2015?

A. No.

Q. You said that you signed this form about two to three days after the meeting with Russell; is that correct?

A. Yes.

Q. Do you think the meeting with Russell might have been on May 3rd or May 4th, something like that? 11:46

A. Probably.

Q. Do you remember what day you arrived at Sun Valley?

A. I cannot exactly remember, no. 11:47

Q. Do you remember what day of the week it was when you arrived?

A. No. I have no recollection of that, no.

Q. How many days total did you work at Sun Valley? 11:47

A. Two weeks.

Q. Do you know -- Mr. Glick mentioned you spoke to someone from the Department of Labor. Do you remember telling that person that you arrived in New Jersey on April 25, 2015? 11:48

A. Yes, I did speak to the investigator, but I honestly don't remember the date that I arrived to Sun Valley.

Q. Did you start working on the first day you arrived at Sun Valley?

A. No. The next day.

Q. You said that you were one of the workers who did not work the day before the meeting with Russell Marino; is that correct? 11:49

A. Yes.

Q. How many workers did not work that afternoon? 11:49

A. Around six people approximately.

Q. Before the meeting on -- before your meeting with Russell Marino, had you ever spoken with him before that?

A. No. We had never met him before. 11:50

Q. Had you ever met any of the other Marinos before that?

A. No. Nobody at all.

Q. I think you mentioned when you were talking about that meeting that this work is too hard. Why can't we get a different job. 11:50

Do you remember that?

MR. GLICK: Objection.

Mischaracterizes his testimony.

A. We didn't say that we couldn't do it. We just asked if we could rest a little so we could carry on with our job.

Q. After that, you have never worked in H2A since then, correct? 11:51

A. Yes, I haven't worked in that program since 2015.

Q. Go back and talk about asparagus. Does asparagus grow very quickly?

A. Yes. 11:52

Q. What happens if it is not harvested on a regular schedule?

A. It goes soft. It rots.

Q. Did Russell Marino or Agustin ever say that they needed workers to be able to work 11:52 on the asparagus?

A. No. I don't remember whether they said that or not.

Q. If they didn't have enough workers to pick the asparagus, what would happen to it? 11:53

MR. GLICK: Objection. Calls for speculation.

A. Then it, all the asparagus would have rotten.

Q. You said that there's only enough hot water for ten showers; is that correct?
A. Yes. The rest of the people would have to shower with cold water.
Q. So 30 people would shower with cold water every day? 11:53
A. You had to either shower with cold water or wait for the water to get warm again.
Q. You mentioned going to the store to buy cell phones. Did you buy anything else when you were at the store? 11:54
A. No.
Q. Did anyone else?
A. No. We just went there to buy cell phones and then we had to go back again. 11:54
Q. Did you ever go to the laundromat?
A. No.
Q. Do you know if anyone else did?
A. I do not know.
Q. Do you know who made the bathrooms dirty? 11:55
A. No. I do not know. It is just that they never cleaned. So if, for instance, you would take a shower and you had some dust on your sandals, then the dust would just stay there on the floor and then become mud.

Q. Did you ever clean the bathrooms?

A. No.

Q. Did Russell Marino threaten you that you had to sign the form? 11:56

A. Well, he said that we had to sign the form and that we had to choose that option so that he didn't have any problems with us and we didn't have any problems with him, and so that all of us would be in agreement, but apparently that is not the case and that's why all this is happening. 11:56

Q. Why do you think all this is happening? 11:57

A. Maybe Russell Marino wants to harm us in some way with the program or I do not know what's on his mind.

Q. How do you think he might harm you with the program? 11:57

A. Maybe complaining to the consulate or to any other agency. We do not know.

Q. Do you think he has done that?

A. It's probable that he has already where I live, about what it looks like and what grows in the place where I live and just that.

Q. Other than the meeting that we talked about earlier, that 10:00 a.m. meeting, did you ever complain to anyone in the Marino 12:32 family about the work?

A. No.

Q. About the housing?

A. No because nobody would pay us any visits. Not even Marino would go. 12:32

Q. Did you ever ask to speak with them?

A. Well, we would ask if he could come to the fields so we could speak with him about the conditions. Me and my coworkers, but Agustin said he didn't have time for that. 12:33

Q. How many times did you ask for him to come to the fields?

A. Just once.

Q. When was that?

A. Well, during the time that we worked 12:33 there.

Q. Near the beginning of the time you worked there or near the time when people didn't work in that afternoon, the last day?

A. It was approximately after a week that we had been working.

Q. Do you receive paychecks for your work at Sun Valley?

A. After two weeks, they paid us the two weeks that we had worked there. 12:34

Q. Were you paid for all of the hours that you worked?

A. Well, we actually didn't know whether we were being paid by hour or just for all the work that we had done. We were not very sure how they paid us. 12:35

Q. Do you think they owe you any money?

A. Actually I don't know.

Q. Okay. 12:35

Did you ever pay Sun Valley to buy sodas?

A. Yes, I paid Agustin. I paid Agustin.

Q. Did you ever pay the company? 12:36

A. No. Not the company.

Q. Did you ever pay the company for meals?

A. Not to the company.

Q. For transportation?
A. No, not to the company.
Q. Did the company ever tell you to buy those things from Agustin?
MR. GLICK: Objection. Confusing. 12:36
A. No. But it was impossible to buy from anywhere else because there was no means of transportation to get somewhere else to buy things and we couldn't use the kitchen to cook because the kitchen was always being used by 12:37 somebody else.
Q. Did you ever ask to use the kitchen?
A. Well, we asked Agustin whether we could use the kitchen to cook, but he said that there was no other place for us to buy things 12:37 because there was no means of transportation to get somewhere to buy things.
Q. Did Sun Valley deduct any amounts from your paycheck for meals or drinks?
A. No. 12:38
Q. How did you pay for those? In cash or by check?
A. Cash.
Q. If you had the choice between drinking water or drinking soda, which would you choose?

A. Well, in some cases I would choose to drink water and in other cases I would choose to drink soda. 12:39

Q. If you were at a restaurant, for example, sometimes you would drink water and sometimes you would drink soda?

MR. GLICK: Objection. Mischaracterizes his testimony. 12:39

A. Well, yes. Yes.

Q. Okay. Thank you, sir.

MR. SCHULTE: No more questions from me.

MR. GLICK: We have a few more questions. If you could give me a moment, please. 12:39

INTERPRETER DE LA GARMA ROMO: The witness is asking me who is going to make the questions? 12:40

MR. GLICK: I'm going to take a short break and then I will come back and we will continue.

MR. SCHULTE: I will step out for a moment. It should be one minute tops.

MR. GLICK: Of course.

(A brief recess was taken.)

MR. GLICK: Are we back on?

EXAMINATION BY 12:43

MR. GLICK:

A. Yes.

A. Because we were tired from our backs and it was aching.

Q. What would have had to change at Sun Valley for you to continue working there cutting asparagus? 12:45

MR. SCHULTE: Objection.

Speculation.

A. Well, maybe if we had been given another option, such as maybe collecting other vegetables or maybe planting, in the 12:45 plantation, that's what the other workers were doing. Us, the ones that were hired, we were just picking asparagus and maybe there were other jobs that were easier.

Q. Were you willing to stay at Sun 12:46 Valley spending some of your time cutting asparagus and some of your time doing other jobs?

A. Yes.

Q. How many hours a week were you 12:46 willing to work cutting asparagus at Sun Valley?

A. Yes. 12:47

Q. Was anyone else in the room with me yesterday as far as you know?

A. Yes.

Q. Who else?

A. Investigator Mr. José Perez. There was somebody else. I do not remember the last name of that person, but his name is Jacob. 12:48

MR. GLICK: I have no further questions at this time. But maybe Mr. Schulte does. 12:48

A. Yes, sir.

A. Yes, sir.

Q. Mr. Morales Acosta, do you have any identification with you?

A. Yes.

Q. Could you show that up to the camera?

(Witness complied.)

Q. Maybe a little bit closer. Okay. Thank you.

MR. HEYMAN-KANTOR: May the record reflect that the deponent showed identification showing his name.

Q. Mr. Morales Acosta, have you ever worked at a farm known as Sun Valley Orchards?

A. Yes, 2015.

Q. When during 2015 did you work there?

A. From June to August.

Q. Were you there on an H2A visa?

A. Correct.

Q. How did you find out about the opportunity?

A. Because of other workers from my same town.

Q. What town is that?

A. I am from San Jose Iturbide and my contractor is from the City of Celaya.

MR. HEYMAN-KANTOR: Interpreter, can you repeat that, please?

INTERPRETER GARCIA: It's a two-word name. M-A-N is the first word. I-T-U-R-B-I-D-E. That's the town where he is from. And the contractor is from the city of Celaya, C-E-L-A-Y-A.

Q. How did you apply for the position?

A. By using the visa.

Q. Can you tell a little bit more about that process?

INTERPRETER GARCIA: He's giving me a name. Can I ask him to write it down for me?

MR. HEYMAN-KANTOR: Okay.

A. I entered into a contract with Rossen [sic] Marino.

INTERPRETER GARCIA: And I'll spell the name for you. R-O-S-S-E-N [sic]. And the last name is M-A-R-I-N-O.

Q. What kind of work did you do at Sun Valley Orchards?

A. Vegetable harvesting.

Q. What was that work like?

A. Cutting peppers, planting peppers and other vegetables, zucchini. That's it.

Q. What did you do physically to do that work?

INTERPRETER GARCIA: Would you repeat the question for the interpreter?

Q. What did you have to do physically to do that work?

A. Just picking the cucumber when it was ready to be packed.

Q. Who supervised you?

A. Agustin, majordomo.

Q. Can you ask him when he said that word majordomo, did he mean the person's last name?

A. No, actually not. He was the second in charge.

INTERPRETER GARCIA: So he means the foreman. I have to adjust.

A. His supervisor was Agustin.

MR. HEYMAN-KANTOR: There was the word majordomo used. Is there an English translation?

INTERPRETER GARCIA: It's foreman. He said Agustin the foreman.

Q. What was Agustin like as a supervisor?

A. He was very hard. He said that we needed to work very fast so that we can complete one field and go to start another one.

Q. What else would Agustin say to the workers?

A. That we were there to work and the work was to gather the produce.

Q. What were your hours at the farm?

A. From 6:00 a.m. to 6:00 p.m.

Q. What days of the week did you work?

A. Every day including Saturdays and Sundays.

Q. What was the meal plan like at the farm?

A. It was only like a light breakfast at 10:00, lunch at 1:00 and then dinner at 7:00.

Q. How did you pay for the meals?

A. In cash.

Q. Who did you pay?

A. To Agustin at the end of the week, either Fridays or Saturdays.

Q. Why did you participate in the meal plan?

INTERPRETER GARCIA: Would you repeat that for me?

Q. Why did you participate in the meal plan?
A. Because we didn't have a place to cook for ourselves.
Q. Why didn't you cook in the kitchen?
A. The kitchen was closed as soon as the others ended eating.
Q. Why didn't you cook when others were eating?
A. Agustin's wife was the one that did the cooking and we were not there -- just a few of the workers were there.
Q. Why didn't you cook for yourself?
A. We didn't have a place to keep it. For example, we didn't have a refrigerator and we did not have a range or stove.
Q. Why couldn't you store food in the refrigerators there?
A. Because they kept the key to themselves and they didn't let us use the key.
Q. Who is they?
A. Agustin's relatives, Agustin himself, his wife and a nephew.
Q. Are these people who worked in the kitchen?

A. Yes.
Q. You mentioned a key. What is the key to?
A. The main door to the kitchen.
Q. How much did you pay for meals?
A. 100 U.S. per week.
Q. What did you drink in the fields?
A. During the light breakfast in the morning, sometimes Gatorade or a soda.
Q. What did you drink in the fields?
INTERPRETER GARCIA: You want me to repeat the question?
MR. HEYMAN-KANTOR: Yes, please.
A. They brought water from the kitchen to give us some in the afternoon.
Q. What else did you drink during the course of the day?
A. Sometimes at dinner, one beer.
Q. Did you drink anything else during the course of the day?
A. No, that's it.
Q. Where did you get the soda, Gatorade and beer?
A. Agustin sold them.
Q. Did he sell any other drinks?

A. Sometimes juices.
Q. Anything else?
A. No, that's it.
Q. Did Agustin sell any other items other than drinks?
A. Chips, soups and cigarettes.
Q. Anything else?
A. No. Just that, and the soda and the Gatorade.
Q. Was anything else sold from the kitchen?
A. No.
Q. So, typically, how many sodas or Gatorades would you drink in a day?
A. Sometimes three or four.
Q. If you can walk me through a typical day, what times would you purchase these sodas and Gatorades?
A. During the light breakfast at 10:00 in the morning, one soda. Between 12:00 or 1:00, another one. From 2:00 to 3:00 we drank the water that they provided. And at dinner Monster or soda.
Q. Can you repeat the first word?
INTERPRETER GARCIA: Monster. It's a power drink.

Q. When you say soda, do you mean Monster or are those two different things?

A. No, when I say soda, I mean Coke, Coca-Cola. Monster is different.

Q. Did Agustin also sell Monster?

A. Yes.

Q. You said at 10:00 a.m. you'll have one soda. At 12:00 or 1:00 you'll have one soda. Is that right?

A. Yes.

Q. Can you go back to, what else would you have during this typical day?

A. The three sodas and the water.

Q. When would you drink the third soda?

A. In the afternoon, around 6:00 or 7:00.

Q. Would you ever drink a fourth soda or drink?

A. Around 5:00 and 6:00 a.m. in the morning there was coffee.

Q. Was the coffee free or was there a charge?

A. It was included in the weekly meal plan.

Q. Were the other drinks included in the weekly meal plan?

A. No, those we needed to pay one dollar per drink.

Q. Was it the same price for the coke, Gatorade and Monster?

A. Soda and Gatorade, one dollar; Monster, two dollars.

Q. Before when you said you'd have a soda at 10:00 a.m., a soda at 12:00 or 1:00 p.m., and a soda at 6:00 or 7:00 p.m., what do you mean by soda? Let me strike that.

What time of day would you have the Monsters?

A. In the morning at 10:00 with a sandwich that Agustin sold to us as part of the light breakfast.

Q. Would you have a Monster at any other time during the day?

A. No, just one.

Q. When would you have a Gatorade?

A. At 1:00 and at 6:00 p.m.

Q. When would you have a Coke?

A. Sometimes during lunch in exchange of the Gatorade.

Q. Is it your testimony you'd have one drink at breakfast at 10:00 a.m., one drink at lunch at 12:00 or 1:00 p.m. and one drink at dinner at 6:00 or 7:00 p.m.?

A. Yes, plus the water that was provided between 11:00 to 3:00. That was the time in which it would be hotter.

Q. Was water provided after 3:00 p.m.?

A. Yes.

Q. Did the other workers in the fields drink more or less or about the same as you drank?

A. Some of them more because they purchased double for lunch or for breakfast.

Q. Do you mean by double? Do you mean two drinks for lunch or two drinks for breakfast?

A. Two for the lunch.

Q. Are you saying that most of the workers in the fields had more drinks than you had?

A. No, maybe just one-third of them. Not even one-half.

Q. The other half of workers, did they drink the same as you or less than you?

A. The same.

Q. How do you know how much the other workers drank?

A. Because we were all together in the same group and we were all together in one single dining room for lunch.

Q. Before you said that Agustin sold beer. How many beers per week did your coworkers drink?

A. About a six-pack.

Q. How do you know that?

A. I would see the empty cans in the trash when they put all the trash together.

Q. Do you know where your coworkers got the beer from?

A. Agustin had a refrigerator for the beer in the kitchen.

Q. How did the workers get the beer?

A. At the end of the day you could purchase it, just as the other drinks or beverages.

Q. How much did they cost?

A. I don't really remember. But maybe 12 U.S. per six-pack.

Q. How much beer did you purchase a week?

A. Two to three Cerveza Modelo.

INTERPRETER GARCIA: C-E-R-V-E-Z-A and the second word M-O-D-E-L-O.

Q. Is that a brand of beer?

A. Yes, it is.

Q. What other brands of beer were sold, if any?

A. There was a red one that I don't remember the name. I think Budweiser if that is a red can.

Q. Any other brands?

A. I think there was also Bud Light. I think.

Q. Who sold the other brands of beer?

A. They were all together in the same fridge opened by Agustin.

Q. How much did the Budweisers and Bud Lights cost?

A. I don't remember because I never purchased those. But they were cheaper.

Q. How much did it cost to buy a single Cerveza Modela?

A. Two dollars.

Q. What times of day could you buy beer?

A. Only in the evenings when we were ready to go to rest or sleep.

Q. So what was the earliest time and what was the latest time you could buy a beer?

A. If you wanted a beer, it had to be before

10:00. They would not sell to you after 10:00. And starting at 6:00, as soon as we were back from work.

Q. How many days of the week could you purchase beer?

A. Any day. There was not a day in which you couldn't.

Q. Could you purchase beers on Sunday?

A. Yes, actually on Saturdays and Sundays there was a larger sale than other days.

Q. Typically, how much did workers buy on Saturdays and Sundays?

A. I don't really remember, but maybe more than six per person.

Q. So, six on both -- typically it would be six per person Friday night and another six for the same person Saturday night?

A. Yes.

Q. Let's say the same typical person, how many beers would they buy during the rest of the week?

A. Maybe 20 throughout the week.

Q. Does that include Saturday and Sunday?

A. Yes.

Q. Where did you get cigarettes from?

A. From Agustin.

Q. How much did those cost?

A. I don't remember that because I never bought.

Q. Do you know how much the juices or chips or soup cost?

A. The soups and the juices, one dollar. And the chips, it was like the smaller back and they were just 50 cents.

Q. Was there any time during the season that Agustin did not sell beer?

A. Just when the surveyors were there because there was a survey made at the field and they asked us if we had a visa or how it was we were working there.

Q. When you say surveyor, do you mean an inspector from the Department of Labor?

MR. SCHULTE: Objection for a second before he answers. I mean, if you're going to testify for him, I understand it will save time. If we can make it less leading and just ask him direct questions. It's your witness.

MR. HEYMAN-KANTOR: Let me rephrase.

Q. What did you mean by surveyor? Did you mean an inspector from the Department of Labor?

MR. SCHULTE: Same objection. Just ask him if he knows. Don't tell him the answer that you want him to give.

MR. HEYMAN-KANTOR: You're making a speaking objection now.

Q. Did you mean inspector or did you mean investigator or did you mean something else by surveyor?

A. I think they were inspectors because they paid attention to the dorms, to the field and the transportation units.

Q. Do you know why Agustin didn't sell beer when the inspectors came?

A. I imagine because he did not have a permit or a license to sell it.

Q. Did Agustin do anything else differently when the inspectors came?

A. He did not sell beer. And of the transportation units that were usually used, there were two that were in very, very bad condition. Those two transportation units were not used when the inspectors were there.

Q. Do you know why those weren't used?

A. Maybe because he was going to be reprimanded because the transportation units were not in appropriate conditions to transport people.

Q. Were those transportation units buses or vans or cars or something else?

A. Buses, two buses, the small ones.

Q. What was wrong with those buses?

A. The side windows were broken. The seats were torn. The floor was open in some areas and the tires were in bad condition.

Q. When you say the floor was open in some areas, do you mean there were holes or something else?

A. Yes, there were like two holes. You could actually see the highway when we were on it.

(Interpreter Garcia was relieved by Interpreter Jenkins.)

Q. How often, if ever, during the 2015 growing season were those buses used to transport workers to the fields?

A. The first month and a half they were using them and then they weren't using them.

Q. At what point did they stop using the transportation?

A. It's when the surveyors or inspectors started to visit us.

Q. How often during that first month and a half did they use those two buses that they hid from the inspectors?

A. Every day. It was continuous.

Q. Just to recap, did you work at Sun Valley during any year other than 2015?

A. No. Only in 2015.

Q. So, everything that you're telling me about; the beer and the cigarettes, the drinks, the transportation, all of that, what year are you talking about?

A. Yes.

Q. In a typical day, how much time were you in a bus?

A. Thirty minutes in the morning, 25 minutes in the afternoon.

Q. In a typical week, how many days of the week did you go on a bus?

A. Four days out of the week.

MR. HEYMAN-KANTOR: One second. Mr. Schulte, we don't see you in the video. Are you still on the line?

MR. SCHULTE: I'm sorry. I'm here. I had you on mute. I can hear you but it's saying due to low bandwidth or local computer conditions, video is not available, so I can't see any of you either. Can you see each other?

MR. HEYMAN-KANTOR: We can. You can see us, Interpreter?

INTERPRETER JENKINS: Yes.

MR. HEYMAN-KANTOR: It sounds like a computer issue. If it's saying low bandwidth, that sounds like it might be in your office.

MR. SCHULTE: Okay.

MR. HEYMAN-KANTOR: Should we continue or do you want to ask your IT person for help?

MR. SCHULTE: Let's take a five-minute break and then we'll reset this. Let me see if I can close other things, but the bandwidth should not be an issue here.

MR. HEYMAN-KANTOR: We'll go off the record for five minutes and we're going to go off the recording.

MR. GLICK: Chris, to answer your question, we can see the witness and it's my understanding the witness can see us from what the interpreter is saying. I'm going to stop the recording at this time.

(A recess was taken from 11:20 a.m. to 11:29 a.m.)

MR. HEYMAN-KANTOR: Let's go back on the record.

Q. I just want to briefly ask you about the housing. Could you just describe in general what the housing was like at Sun Valley Orchards?

A. We slept individually. I don't know what you call those beds where there's one below and one on top. We were given mattresses and we had to buy our own blankets. I think that's it.

Q. Did everyone -- strike that.

What were the bathrooms like?

A. In the showers there was only cold water. There was no hot water to take showers. And sometimes where we would go to the bathroom it would be dirty. There was a person in charge of cleaning the bathrooms but this person did not always clean the bathrooms.

Q. What about the sinks?

A. Those were always maintained clean because they were right there at the entrance.

Q. Anything else remarkable about the housing or the bathrooms?

A. I would think that's all.

Q. I want to ask you a little bit about your personal experience working. Was there ever a time when you were injured or didn't work during the 2015 growing season?

A. Yes, for about a week and a half.

Q. Why did you not work for that week and a half?

A. I broke a toe when we were doing the picking.

Q. How did you break the toe?

A. A splinter went into my shoe from where they would stack the peppers.

Q. When did you -- let me talk a little bit about the circumstances around the end of your work at Sun Valley. How did you end up or why did you stop working at Sun Valley?

A. What happened is that there were three big storms and this affected three of the fields of peppers, so they said the only thing we would be doing is collecting the plastics from the fields, hoses and spikes.

Q. What do you mean by that? What plastic, hoses and spikes were in the fields?

A. This is put in the fields to place the product.

Q. Do these things help water the plants or help otherwise with the plants?

A. It's used in helping the germination, the idea is there won't be any cross-contamination from a different type of plant. And the hose is used for drip irrigation. And the spike is to hold the peppers once they're ripe. That way they won't fall?

Q. Why did you need to clear out the plastics, hoses and the spikes?

A. We had to make sure the field is completely empty because the tractor was going to come in and move the ground, the soil. So to move this soil, it had to be completely free of any plastic or hoses. That was the last work we did.

Q. What happened after you removed the plastics, hoses and the spikes?

A. We went back to the house. We were given about a day and a half to rest and then we got on a bus to go back to Mexico.

Q. Were you -- did you quit or were you fired?

A. There was a sheet that we were given that we had to sign where it said that there wasn't enough work for us any more.

Q. Did you quit or were you fired?

A. I would assume I was fired.

MR. HEYMAN-KANTOR: I'm passing to the court reporter a document which I'd like you to mark as Exhibit 20.

(Exhibit 20, Dario Morales Acosta's departure form, marked for identification, as of this date.)

Q. Mr. Morales Acosta, you should have a folder labeled 20 or Exhibit 20 on the table. Can you please take a look at that? Can you please hold that up to the camera so we can verify that you have the right document?

(Witness complied.)

Q. A little bit closer?

(Witness complied.)

Q. Okay. Thank you. We have the right document. It's Exhibit 20. Is that your signature on the document?

A. Yes.

Q. Why did you sign the document?

A. I signed it because Russell Marino said it was necessary for us to sign this document so we could return to Mexico.

Q. Why did you complete this document the way it's completed?

A. Because we had to fill it out to get on the bus.

Q. Were any instructions given to you about how to fill it out?

A. Yes, they said -- yes, we were indicated to mark the line one before last.

MR. HEYMAN-KANTOR: I'm sorry. Repeat that last thing, interpreter, please?

INTERPRETER JENKINS: They were supposed to select the one before last line.

Q. Who said that?

A. Agustin, the foreman.

Q. Just to clarify, when you say the one before last, do you mean the line where there is sort of some circular sort of checked off squiggle on the left side of the page?

A. Yes.

hours so we could do our own activities.

MR. SCHULTE: I have no more questions. Thank you, sir.

MR. HEYMAN-KANTOR: I may have a couple of questions. Just give me a moment.

(A brief recess was taken at this time.)

MR. HEYMAN-KANTOR: Okay. I have a few questions for you, if you don't mind.

BY MR. HEYMAN-KANTOR:

Q. To your knowledge, is it possible that you were in a building that CDM does not own?

A. Well, I know it's an office that's associated to services for migrants in Guanajunto.

Q. Yesterday you were in this same room as we are today; do you remember that?

A. Yes.

Q. And you and I spoke yesterday; do you remember that?

A. Yes.

Q. I wanted to ask you, before you said that your coworkers were told something about the kitchen. Can you tell me more about what your coworkers were told?

A. We were told that -- they were told, excuse me -- that they wanted to use the kitchen to cook, but they had to buy their own things and buy their own stove. And only about three coworkers bought them. And the rest of the food that was bought was canned foods that were used in the field.

Q. Did you hear this conversation personally from when it happened?

A. Yes, the whole group was gathered around when that decision was made.

Q. Who said that?

(Interpreter Jenkins was relieved by Interpreter Garcia.)

MR. HEYMAN-KANTOR: Let me reask the question.

Q. Who made that statement we just talked about?

A. Agustin, himself, told it to the coworkers and only three of them decided to do their meals on their own because, of course, it was going to be less expensive doing it that way than paying the 100 U.S.

Q. How many people were at this meeting?

A. Most of them.

Q. Can you give me an approximate number?

A. Around 30.

Q. Did Agustin explain why your coworkers could not use the kitchen?

A. No, he didn't. He just said that to them and that he it was not mandatory for any of us to eat that food or to drink those beverages.

Q. Okay. Now, in response to the questions from Mr. Schulte, you said that -- I'd like to talk a little bit about these trips to the laundry.

INTERPRETER GARCIA: Could you repeat that for me, please?

Q. I'd like to talk a little bit about the trips to the laundry that you were talking about earlier.

Would you always be able to go to the -- how much time would you be given to do the laundry?

A. About an hour and a half or two.

Q. Would you always have time to go to the store to buy food on that trip?

A. No. That would be a different trip on Saturday. We would go to the laundry twice a week.

Q. Did you pay for these trips?

A. Just if we were going to travel farther. For example, the trips to the laundry were paid by Agustin.

Q. And on the trips to the laundry, were you able to purchase food and other items?

A. Yes.

Q. Did you always have time to purchase other items on those laundry trips?

A. Yes. But, of course, we had to do that while the clothes were being washed, while they were in the machine because they would not wait for us if we needed more time.

Q. How much time would you have to go to the store while the laundry was being washed?

A. About 30 minutes or an hour.

MR. HEYMAN-KANTOR: All right. No further questions.

MR. SCHULTE: Just a couple of questions for me.

BY MR. SCHULTE:

Q. Did any of the Marino brothers speak with you about the meals?

A. No, they didn't. None of them. We just arrived and were taken to the dorms to make ourselves home. And it was Agustin the one who told us how the weekly meal plan worked.

Q. And you said that three of the workers chose to make their own meals and not take part in the meal plan; is that right?

A. Yes, but that was like in the middle of July.

Q. Did they get in trouble? Did they have any problems with the Marinos for doing that?

A. No. I don't think Russell was even aware that that was happening. He never asked about that.

Q. At the beginning of the last set of questions from Mr. Heyman-Kantor, he said that he spoke with you yesterday; is that correct?

A. Correct.

Q. Who else was there?

A. On this side, it was just me. On the other side there, I think there were three people.

Q. Do you know who those people were?

A. No, I don't remember their names.

Q. When I asked you earlier if you had ever spoken with Mr. Heyman-Kantor, you said you had not. That's not true, is it?

INTERPRETER GARCIA: Would you repeat the question for the interpreter, please?

MR. SCHULTE: Of course.

Q. When I had asked him earlier if he had ever spoken with Mr. Heyman-Kantor, he said no. That would not be correct, would it?

A. The answer is I talked with them yesterday.

Q. Have you ever spoken with them other than yesterday?

A. I guess so because they called me on my phone.

Q. When was that?

A. About a month ago. It was for the purpose of informing me about the case that was going to happen.

Q. What did they tell you?

A. They told me that I was going to be interviewed about where I had lived and that there was going to be a judge present with the purpose of making sure that it was me the one that was deposing.

Q. They told you about the judge a month ago?

A. Yes.

Q. Do you remember what else you talked about with them?

INTERPRETER GARCIA: The interpreter is just clarifying because he told me that it was he and I'm asking who he is. He said the judge. The answer from the witness is:

A. They told me it was going to be the judge the one that was going to decide on the case and if there were going to be sanctions or not.

Q. What do you mean by sanctions?

A. Because of the nonconformance to the rules that state how the visa workers should be treated.

Q. But what would the sanction be?

A. For example, they were going to be sanctioned if they mistreated the workers by making them work longer hours than the contract stated.

Q. Do you know if that is one of the issues in this case?

A. I am not sure but I know that the contract stated that we had to work 40 hours a week at the most and I am sure that we worked more than that.

Q. Have you ever worked on other H2A contracts?

A. No. This was the only company that I have worked for.

Q. Are you going to work on one this year?

MR. HEYMAN-KANTOR: Objection. Relevance.

MR. SCHULTE: He can answer.

A. Probably, yes, I will be working again, but with a different contractor.

Q. Do you know when that might start?

MR. HEYMAN-KANTOR: Objection, relevance.

INTERPRETER GARCIA: He has to answer?

MR. SCHULTE: Yes.

A. No. I don't know when I will start with that work. We're still waiting to know about that work.

Q. Do you know where that work will be?

MR. HEYMAN-KANTOR: Objection, relevance.

A. It would be for a different state and it would be in the state of Georgia.

Q. Do you know the name of the employer?

A. No. The only thing that I was asked for was my documentation, my passport number and ID proof.

MR. SCHULTE: Okay. No more questions. Thank you.

RUSSELL MARINO, JR., having been duly sworn, was examined and testified as follows:

- - - - -

BY MR. HEYMAN-KANTOR:

Q. Mr. Marino, good morning.

A. Good morning.

Q. Do you understand that you are under an oath and must answer my questions truthfully and to the best of your ability?

A. Yes.

Q. And do you understand this is the same oath that you would take in court?

A. Yes.

Q. So my name is Jacob Heyman-Kantor I'm here with my co-counsel, Jason Glick and I'm an attorney with the US Department of Labor, Office of the Solicitor and we represent the administrator of the Wage and Hour division in the matter of Sun Valley Orchards, LLC, 2017-TAE-00003. And we also represent the Secretary in the same matter of Agustin Hernandez, doing business as Agustin Hernandez

FLC, 2017-MSP-00002. And we represent the Secretary of Labor and the Administrator of the Wage and Hour Division.

So first, I would like to explain a little bit about the deposition process. Have you ever been deposed before?

A. No.

Q. Okay. So I'll -- let me just lay out some of the ground rules. The court reporter is here and you know, she's going to be taking down verbatim everything that you say, everything that I say. So it is important that you speak up and that you answer with a yes or a no or other verbal answer. A nod of the head or a shake of the head is not -- it doesn't work. Do you understand?

A. I understand.

Q. And we also can't talk over each other. So I'm going to do my best to wait until you finishing answering, if you could do your best to wait until I finish asking a question.

A. Okay.

Q. I may ask a question that I don't state very well or for some other reason, you don't understand. If you don't understand, can you let me know?

A. Yes.

Q. If you answer a question, I'm going to assume you understand it. Okay?

A. Okay.

Q. Because it's critical to get your full, complete and accurate answers today, I have to ask, are you taking any medication or drugs of any kind or have you consumed any cough syrup or medicine or something containing alcohol that might make it difficult for you to understand and answer my questions today?

A. No.

Q. Are you at all sick today?

A. No.

Q. Are there any medicines that you normally take that you haven't take today or yesterday?

A. No.

Q. Is there any reason why you cannot give full, complete and accurate testimony today?

A. No.

Q. If you need a break, please let me know and I'll make every effort to accommodate you. If we're in the middle of a question or a line of questions, I may insist we finish answering those questions, but otherwise, let me know if you need a break. Okay?

A. Okay.

Q. Now, during the deposition today, I'll use the term Sun Valley or farm or Sun Valley Orchards to refer to Sun Valley Orchards, the company that is part of this proceeding. Is that okay?

A. Yes.

Q. Now, unless I specify otherwise, I'm going to be -- my questions are going to be referring to the period between April 1st, 2015, and October 10, 2015. Do you understand?

A. Yes.

Q. And if I use the phrase "growing season," I'm referring to that time period as well. Okay?

A. Okay.

Q. When I refer to a worker who is working in the United States on an H-2A visa, I'm going to say H-2A worker. Does that make sense?

A. Okay.
Q. And when I'm going to refer to an agricultural worker who is working in the United States without an H-2A visa, I'm going to say domestic worker or non-H-2A worker, okay?
A. Yes.
Q. If you're ever unclear which kind of worker I'm referring to, please let me know.
A. Okay.
Q. So have you ever been involved in any kind of civil legal proceeding?
A. No.
Q. Any kind of criminal proceeding?
A. No.
Q. Any kind of legal proceeding whatsoever?
A. Divorce.
Q. Divorce. And did you testify under oath in that proceeding?
A. Yes.
Q. And was that in front of a judge?
A. It didn't get that far.
Q. But it was a deposition proceeding or what was the proceeding where you testified years. I mean not on the books when I was a child, it's just we did whatever we had to do to help out.

Q. Have you worked anywhere else?

A. No, never.

Q. And what's your educational background?

A. I have a four-year degree agricultural engineering from WVU.

Q. What was that?

A. From West Virginia University.

Q. Any other education?

A. No.

Q. Do you speak Spanish?

A. Yes.

Q. How good is your Spanish?

A. It gets the job done I guess. I don't know how I would rate that.

Q. Well, how did you learn Spanish?

A. By using it on the farm. I had four years in high school, four years in college and it didn't do me much good. You can't speak with the guys unless you use it and I use it every day. All day long. I work side by side with my guys.

Q. Do you read in Spanish?
A. I can struggle through it.
Q. Do you watch TV in Spanish?
A. No.
Q. When you speak to the workers, do they understand you 100 percent of the time?
A. I believe so.
Q. Do you understand them when they speak to you?
A. For the most part, yes.
Q. Are there sometimes, you said for the most part, are there times when they don't understand you?
A. Yes, but if so, I'll just kind of repeat myself until we're all on the same page.
Q. How is your Spanish compared to Joey Marino?
A. Better, much better.
Q. Does he understand when you speak in Spanish?
A. I don't know. I don't think so.
Q. So talking about before Sun Valley Orchards, when was it founded, the company?
A. In the, I believe, it was formed in early eighties. I believe. I think that information is in there somewhere. That was requested at some point.

Q. Are you familiar with a company known as Marino Brothers Corporation?

A. That was formed first before Sun Valley.

Q. When was that formed?

A. Early eighties. So I didn't know that you were aware of that. Marino Brothers was formed prior to Sun Valley. We kind of formed other companies, so Sun Valley was probably formed in the early 2000s.

Q. What's the difference between Sun Valley and Marino Brothers?

A. Now, I mean there is no difference. Virtually, no difference. There's just legality. Mostly legality, we were just, it was recommended that we kind of split everything up and an LLC formed to be protected.

Q. What was the form of Marino Brothers?

A. I'm sorry?

Q. What was, what -- was the corporate structure of Marino Brothers Corporation?

A. It was just, it was a farm. It was everything that we are now, but everything was just grouped together. So now everything is kind of segregated. The land, the trucking, cold storage, things like that are just separated.

Q. Okay. When you say separated, is it certain people own certain parts of it or --

A. No. Collectively, we all have, have ownership. You know, collectively, we all have ownership. We share ownership. Just separated I guess on paper to be protected legally. However that is, works out legally, again, I'm not a lawyer. I don't pretend to be.

Q. And I guess you all were not protected before when it was Marino Brothers Corporation?

A. No, I mean we're liable, everything would be liable, because it wasn't, there wasn't, I call it a firewall. When you're an LLC, well, you know all these things, when you're an LLC, you're protected up to that, that portion of your business, whether it be what you operate under, which is Sun Valley, and then you have Marino Brothers land and that's all the land that we farm or rent, own, whatever. So that's just how it's broken down.

Q. Actually, I may know less about corporations than you, I would think. So what are the percentage of ownership interest in Sun Valley Orchards?

A. There's four of us, we each have 25 percent.

Q. Who are the four?

A. Myself, my brother, my father and my uncle.

Q. And what are their names?

A. Joe Marino is my brother. Russell, Sr. is my father. And Harry, Jr. I guess is my uncle.

Q. Okay. And who owned Marino Brothers Corporation?

A. My father and his two brothers.

Q. One was Harry Marino?

A. Yes.

Q. And who was the other brother?

A. Sebastian.

Q. Do you belong to any work-related organizations outside of Sun Valley Orchards?

A. No.
Q. Any agricultural-related organizations?
A. No.
Q. How about your father, Russell Marino, Jr --
A. Yes.
Q. Senior, he does, what does he belong to?
A. I don't know the list, but I think a preservation program. Just several things that do with agricultural and again, I don't know exactly all the titles that he holds, but it's several. He's very active in the agricultural community, very active. Always has been. And that's all he's ever done his whole life.

MR. HEYMAN-KANTOR: Could we mark this as Exhibit 9.

- - - - -

(USDA Publication marked R. Marino Exhibit 9 for identification.)

- - - - -

BY MR. HEYMAN-KANTOR:
Q. So what I'm showing you here is a document from the Internet. It is from the United States Department of Agricultural and if you look on the last page, it says Russell J. Marino, chairperson. Is that your -- from you or your father?

A. I believe it's my father. I assume it's my father, but without reading the document, I don't know what it's for. It's definitely not me. I would assume it's my father.

Q. It says on the first page, Farm Service Agency New Jersey. Do you see that?

A. FSA, yes, it's definitely my father.

Q. Do you know what he does in connection with this group?

A. No.

Q. All right. You can give that back to me. Thanks.

So I'll ask you a little about the farm itself. So what's the farm like? How many fields does it have? How big is it?

A. We farm almost, we farm about 2500 acres. We're spread out through two counties, Gloucester and Salem County. The number of farms, I don't know that. I can -- I'd have to think about that. But we're spread out nonetheless. I don't know what else --

Q. Do you have more than ten fields would you say?

A. Yes.

Q. And are there dorms where people live on the farm?

A. We have one dormitory for labor.

Q. How many rooms are in the dormitory?

A. Including the kitchen and the bedroom, seven rooms maybe. Let me see. No. Maybe eight.

Q. Is it normally loud near the dormitories?

A. No.

Q. There aren't a lot of tractor noises?

A. No, no.

Q. How close are the fields to the dorms?

A. There's an asparagus field surrounding the dormitory.

Q. Any other fields?

A. No, it's right off of, off of a highway, Route 45, so it's just surrounded by the one farm.

Q. How far are the furthest fields from the dorms?

A. Ten, 15-minute ride.

Q. And who is in the management at Sun Valley Orchards?

A. In whole, as a whole?

Q. Yes.

A. All four of us collectively. And we each have our own individual responsibilities.

Q. So it would be yourself, your brother, Joe Marino, your father, Russell Marino, Sr. and your uncle, Harry Marino, Jr.?

A. Yes.

Q. Anyone else?

A. No.

Q. And what are your different roles?

A. My brother is primarily sales, IPM, Tractor work. My Uncle Harry, he directs the crew each day. He's in charge of the planting schedules. My father is in charge of greenhouses. And I do, I fill in all the other blanks. I irrigate. I set everything up. Any designs, irrigation designs, things like that, site planning, all that stuff.

Q. So you said Joe Marino does sales, IPM, tractor work, anything else?

A. I'm sure he does a million other things as we all do. I mean I can't explain every little thing that we do each day. But yeah, I'm sure there's other things that he does. I'm sure there's other things that I do.

Q. Does he do other things in connection with agricultural workers?

A. No.

Q. What's IPM?

A. Integrated pest management.

Q. And you said your father, Russell Marino, Sr. works with greenhouses. Does he do any other significant tasks?

A. Significant, every little aspect is significant and again, I'm sure he does other things as well. I mean I don't know to how much -- he runs for parts. Picks somebody up if they need to be picked up, brings us back, move things, help us move things around, just things along those lines.

Q. Does he do anything in connection with the domestic workers or the H-2A workers who work on the farms?

A. No.

Q. Now, you said your uncle, Harry Marino, Jr., directs the crew and is involved in planting. I'm sorry, can you say that again?

A. Planting, all the seeding, because we propagate everything. He does the seeding schedules, the planting schedules in fields and he's in direct contact with Agustin every day to direct the crew.

Q. And you said you were involved with -- I'm sorry, does Harry, Jr. have any other tasks?

A. Again, I'm sure he does. I couldn't begin to list them all.

Q. And the ones you listed are his biggest tasks?

A. Yes.

Q. And you said you've -- you're involved in irrigation design, set up and site planning. Any other tasks?

A. Again, a million other tasks that I can't even begin to list.

Q. But these are the three biggest ones?

A. Yes. Yes.

Q. Are you involved working -- do you have any tasks related to working with the domestic agricultural workers, H-2A workers?

A. Every day.

Q. What do you do with them every day?

A. Anything that has to do with those things that I -- if we have to do pipework, lay plastic, cultivate, set the irrigation pumps, construction lines and anything. I work directly with the help every single day. I always have at least two to eight guys with me throughout the day.

Q. And what did you mean by set up?

A. Like bringing it back from where we store everything in the wintertime back out to the fields. Irrigation pumps obviously go by the ponds and things like that. The field designs like how they're laid out. Just things along those lines.

Q. What's site plan?

A. If we're putting up more greenhouses, any kind of drainage that we have to address, you know, between my brother and I, we -- we try to do everything we can in-house ourselves. So whether it involves a transit, things like that, I guess that's when it's site work, there's usually a transit and stuff involved.

Q. And as part of your job, do you go into the fields?

A. Yes.

Q. Where the H-2A and domestic workers are working?

A. Yes.

Q. How often do you do that?

A. Every day.

Q. Why do you do that?

A. Because I'm a farmer and without the help, I couldn't do what I do.

Q. I guess I'm just wondering what like specific things are you going out to the fields to do with the workers?

A. Whether, I mean I may not be right in the row right standing next to the guy picking alongside them, but they may be working out in that field and I might be working over here by the pond. I mean and I drive through the fields. I do all the irrigation, all the irrigating, feeding. So yeah, I see the guys all the time. I eat lunch with them sometimes at the camp. Yeah, I just -- I'm very involved with the labor.

Q. And so typically how much time are you per day, are you in the fields with the workers?

A. Whatever a workday may consist of. I'm usually, usually I'm, I mean it's every day all day long throughout the day. Again, I work closely with the guys every single day. I don't know, whatever a workday may consist of.

Q. Is it typically more than several hours per day?

A. Yes.

Q. Will you go into their dorm rooms?

A. No.

Q. Never?

A. No.

Q. How often do you go in the kitchen?

A. Once a week.

Q. And why do you do that?

A. Again, if I'm eating lunch with the guys, how you get your lunch, you go in.

Q. You'll eat with the workers once a week?

A. Yeah, roughly.

Q. Do you interact with the workers in the evenings?

A. No.

Q. On the weekends?

A. No.

Q. Everything you've told me is about interacting with the workers, going to the fields, the bedrooms, the dorm rooms, the kitchen, is that all this true for 2015?

A. Yes.

Q. Does anyone from management go into the worker bedrooms?

A. No.

Q. So how do you check that the bedrooms are adequate?

A. That's Agustin's responsibility. That's one of his responsibilities. I just assure that everything is inspected and cleared prior to the help showing up.

Q. When is that?

A. That's usually two weeks prior to their arrival date.

Q. So when in 2015 was that?

A. I don't know. Off the top of my head, I don't know.

Q. Could it have been in March of 2015?

A. Usually the camp inspection is in March, because I know that's usually when the water testing is.

Q. In 2015, you may have gone there in March and might not have gone into the dorms again for many months?

A. Correct.

Q. Who supervises the workers in the fields?

A. Agustin.

Q. And anyone else?

A. If we are running through a field, my uncle and I, if we see something out of sorts, at any time we do if we need to.

Q. Is Agustin the main supervisor?

A. Yes.

Q. And if a worker needs to be instructed on how to do his job, who does that instruction?

A. Agustin.
Q. And if a worker -- who would be involved in disciplining a worker?
A. Discipline? I mean short answer, I guess it would be Agustin, not that we ever had to do that, not that I know of.
Q. If a worker were going to be fired, who would fire the worker?
A. Ultimately, I guess me.
Q. Can anyone else fire a worker?
A. Legally, I think any of us could, any of the owners could, I believe so. If it's done in the proper manner.
Q. Could Agustin?
A. Could he? Legally, I'm not sure. I would not give him that -- it would depend on the situation.
Q. Has he ever fired a worker?
A. He probably has.
Q. Who is involved in hiring workers for the fields?
A. Mostly Agustin.
Q. If a worker has a question or complaint, who would they raise that with?
A. Primarily Agustin.

Q. And by the way, when I'm referring to a worker, a worker in the fields, I'm referring to the H-2A workers or the domestic workers doing similar work. Is that clear?

A. I understand, yup.

Q. And would there ever be an occasion for a worker to talk to someone other than Agustin about a question or a complaint?

A. No.

Q. How often do the workers in the field interact with people other than Agustin at the farm?

A. I don't know.

Q. How often do workers in the fields bring -- have a discussion about work issues with -- strike that.

All right. Who pays the workers in the fields?

A. So my uncle does every Friday at the camp.

Q. Is this Harry Marino, Jr.?

A. Yes. We have a secretary that does payroll in her office and my uncle physically sees that every man gets their check and signs their check on a three-by-five, each man has their three-by-five card. It's a signature card.

Q. What's the three-by-five card?

A. It's a signature card, just to -- we take a visual to make sure that that signature lines up with the one from the week before to assure that that is in fact the same man every week.

Q. And do you store them somewhere in the office?

A. My uncle keeps them I believe at his house.

Q. And what's the secretary's name?

A. Lisa.

Q. Do you know her last name?

A. Justice.

Q. And what does she do with the payroll?

A. She conducts whatever business or whatever it has to do to make their checks out. She makes sure everything jives and --

Q. So is the process she prepares the checks and then Harry hands them to the workers in the fields and make sure they sign the card, three-by-five card?

A. Yes.
Q. Are workers ever paid in cash?
A. No.
Q. And how do workers -- do workers in the fields have bank accounts?
A. I don't know. I don't think so, no. The checks are brought to the bank and cashed in the manner of cash with their name on every -- the bank does that.
Q. How do you know about that process?
A. Because I just know that bank provides that service for me.
Q. Do you interact with the bank on this?
A. I mean unless there's an issue of some sort, I don't really have to.
Q. So do the workers take the checks to the bank?
A. No, Agustin does.
Q. So can you walk me through that process, how does -- how does Agustin get the checks, because you said the checks were given to the workers?
A. They were and then they give them back to Agustin and the bank has a roster and everything needs to jive when he gets there. Everything is faxed or e-mailed over to them from Lisa. And when he gets there, everything has to match up, all the numbers, the names and number of checks, all this stuff. Everything has to cross over.

Q. So do the workers sign over the checks to Agustin so he can use them at the bank?

A. They just sign the checks. And he goes, because for each individual man, they don't have a vehicle. So it's just a convenience for the men to have him do that.

Q. Is there a check cashing fee?

A. No.

Q. Have you had -- have you observed Agustin -- and everything you just said about the way that the pay works, is that all the same for 2015?

A. Yes.

Q. So have you had an opportunity to observe Agustin supervise the workers in the fields?

A. Yes.

Q. How does he go about supervising

A. In Mexico.
Q. Okay. The none H-2A --
A. I'm sorry the non-H-2As, yes.
Q. Who interviews them?
A. Agustin, because he speaks Spanish better than I do.
Q. Will anyone else meet with the non-H-2A worker during this interview process?
A. If need be, I will.
Q. Do you typically meet with them?
A. No.
Q. So typically, when a non-H-2A worker is hired, they just meet with Agustin?
A. Typically.
Q. Is that true for 2015?
A. Yes.
Q. Now, the H-2A workers, you say they interview in Mexico, who do they interview with?
A. I believe the company's name is CSI.
Q. Do you know what that stands for?
A. I forget. No, I don't. I forget.
Q. How does Sun Valley arrange for, you know, come to hire CSI?

A. Through NAC, National Agricultural Consultants. That's who we use for hiring of the H-2A workers.

Q. And when did Sun Valley start working with NAC?

A. I guess in late 2014 for the 15th season.

Q. Why did Sun Valley decide to work with them?

A. She was referred to us from another farmer, from another grower.

Q. Another farming company?

A. Yes.

Q. And who is she?

A. I'm sorry?

Q. You said she was referred.

A. I'm sorry, Theresa Ward. She's the owner and operator of NAC.

Q. And do you know how -- strike that. So after CSI interviewed these prospective H-2A workers, was there any further checking into these workers that Sun Valley Orchards did?

A. No.

Q. And so everything you've just told me about the non-H-2A hiring or the H-2A hiring, is that all true for 2015?

A. Yes.

Q. So I would like to ask you a little bit about when the workers arrive at the farm. So what happens when the workers first arrive?

A. Well, they have what I like to say, what I like to call orientation of some sort. They're trained on, what's it called, safety and things like that around the farm. There's a video. They sign a roster that they were presented the video, that they understand everything on the video. The H-2A workers are, it's usually the day they arrive, they all go to the Social Security office, get a Social Security number.

They are then, then they come to our office and they're all, they all have a photo ID worker card that's clipped on their shirt and that's how they're identified every day. That's how they're clocked in each day for payroll. So yeah, they're all input into the system. They get their picture taken. They get their ID card. They go back to the camp. And they start work the next day after that usually. If there's -- if there's work.

Q. And that orientation process you described is for both non-H-2A and H-2A workers?
A. Yes.
Q. So you said "they," so you run the orientation or does someone else run it?
A. Agustin usually plays the video for them.
Q. And the video is about safety?
A. Mostly on the farm and just safe agricultural practices.
Q. And so we talked about the videos, anything else in the orientation?
A. No.
Q. Is anyone else from management present in the orientation?
A. Sometimes I may be there.
Q. Anyone else from management?
A. No.
Q. What about your Uncle Harry?
A. No.
Q. Just basically the video, they sign the roster after watching the video, is that it in the orientation?
A. Yes.

Q. Are they told anything about work hours?
A. That's all explained in the contract.
Q. So no?
A. No.
Q. Are they explained anything about housing?
A. If need be, if there's questions.
Q. Who would explain that?
A. Most likely, Agustin.
Q. Who else might explain it?
A. Maybe myself.
Q. And anything explained about meals?
A. That's in the contract as well.
Q. Anything said at the orientation about meals?
A. If there's a question.
Q. Who would explain that?
A. Agustin.
Q. Anyone else?
A. Maybe myself.
Q. And is everything you just said true for 2015?
A. Yes.

Q. So what would be said by either yourself or Agustin about housing at the orientation?

A. If the guys had any questions on as to where they're staying, where the bathrooms are, things like that, just answer any questions that might come up.

Q. And what would be said by either you or Agustin about meals?

A. I mean unless there's a question, I mean just explain to them that you get three squares a day and I don't know, just, I don't know what would need to be said. I couldn't even think if there has ever been a question.

Q. Would you explain the cost?

A. No, because again, that's in the contract.

Q. All right. Well, let's talk a bit about Agustin Hernandez. That's who we have been talking about a little bit already. So what are Agustin's duties?

A. Primarily labor, obviously.

Q. Can I just interrupt you for one second?

A. Sure.

Q. Everything you were telling me about this orientation, setting up the orientation, was that all true for 2015?

A. Yes.

Q. So let's go back to Agustin, we were talking about his duties.

A. Yes, primarily labor, obviously anything that may be associated with the labor. His responsibilities mainly would be to make sure things are going correctly in the field as far as harvesting, whether it be any kind of maintenance in the field, you know, pulling weeds, things like that. Thinning, you know, anything that the help may be doing as far as their jobs.

Also he takes, we, he assumes responsibility to keep the vehicles clean, swept out. Keep the camp clean. The kitchen is immaculate. The bathroom is clean. When I say he's responsible, he may dictate or I mean delegate to another worker to do those things, make sure that the bathrooms are transported from farm to farm or field to field, wherever they need to be. Water is in the field.

And I assume what you're really asking for is the food. As far as the meals go, he's fully in charge of that, the kitchen. Getting the food to the camp, all the supplies it needs to make their meals. He assumes all that responsibility.

Q. And everything you said is true for 2015?

A. Yes.

Q. All right. When you say the help, are you referring to H-2A, non-H-2A workers in the fields?

A. Yes.

Q. So we've got Agustin supervises these workers, keeps the vehicles, camp and kitchen clean, involved in transporting bathrooms to the fields and water to the fields, is involved in everything associated with the meals. Any other tasks?

A. Again, I'm sure there are, but I couldn't begin to name them all. I'm sure there's a lot of significant things that he does that just get done. He assumes responsibility.

Q. Is he involved with transporting workers?

A. Sometimes.
Q. What does he do with that?
A. He may have to drive one of the buses.
Q. And who else would drive the buses?
A. The other workers that are assigned as drivers for the buses.
Q. How are they assigned?
A. Well, they have licenses, if they know how to operate a vehicle. You know, they're kind of -- I believe that's part of the orientation, I guess you could say, to determine who is going to be operating the vehicles.
Q. And who chooses who is going to operate?
A. Agustin.
Q. So we've got supervises the workers in the fields, keeps the vehicles, camp, kitchen clean, transporting the bathrooms, water and workers, doing the meals, any other tasks?
A. Again, I'm sure there are.
Q. Are those the biggest tasks?
A. Yes.

Q. And how is he assigned those tasks?
A. How does he or how is he?
Q. How is he?
A. I guess collectively through my uncle and myself and he's been with us for so long, he just, he knows how we operate and how we do things.
Q. But at some point, someone in Sun Valley management instructed him to do these tasks?
A. Sure.
Q. How is -- is there anything else about his duties that should be mentioned?
A. I don't think so.
Q. How is Agustin paid?
A. Through us every week.
Q. How much is he paid?
A. I don't know that. It's whatever, the amount of work he's done that week, he's paid for his time and his -- I don't know the answer to that.
Q. Well, do you know like his rate of pay?
A. It varies. It's based on pack-out and performance of what he does in the field.

It's based on a pack-out in the packing house, so it varies.

Q. Well, can you give me like an example just so I can understand this?

A. He'll get so much per packed out quality package. It may range from, I'm guessing, it's all actually, it's not in the contract. What the men get paid, it's in the contract. I'm trying to think how it works. I don't know if I can give you a concrete number so much per package, because I forget what it is. I have lot of numbers and stuff rolling around in my head.

Q. I mean is it more than $100 per package?

A. No, it's maybe five, six cents per package based on the quality of the pack-outs, but we're talking several thousand packages.

Q. Several thousands per week?

A. Per day. So per week, it's -- it adds up.

Q. What's in this package? How much is in each package?

A. Depending on the size and quality of the produce, whether it's peppers, cucumbers, pickles, zucchini, eggplants, peaches, all the commodities that we grow, asparagus, he gets so much per packed out finish quality marketable product.

Q. Is it like one pepper in a package or like 30 peppers?

A. Again, that ranges, it's usually in the 50 range, but I mean it's --

Q. So it might be 50 peppers per package, five or cents per package of 50 to 60 peppers?

A. Yes, something like that.

Q. So the more good, I guess, produce that his crews bring in, the more he gets paid?

A. Yes.

Q. And is that how he's paid for the entire growing season?

A. Yes.

Q. That's true for 2015?

A. Uh-huh.

Q. Does he receive any other type of pay?

A. No.

Q. He's not paid hourly?

A. No. I'm sorry, I don't know. I don't know if he -- I forget. I don't know.

Q. Who would know in management?
A. I think he is paid hourly. He keeps track of his hours. Yes. And then he gets a percentage on the packages as well.
Q. By percentage, you mean like perhaps five or six cents per package?
A. Right.
Q. Who knows the most about how he's paid from Sun Valley management?
A. Probably Agustin. Oh, from Sun Valley management. It doesn't sound like it, but I guess it would be me, but I would have to go back and review his file to see exactly how it's written up.
Q. Is he paid anything for the number of hours that other, that other workers in the fields work?
A. No.
Q. Now, how much of the year does Agustin work with Sun Valley?
A. Nine months.
Q. From when to when?
A. February to I'd say October.
Q. And how long has he been working with Sun Valley Orchards?

A. I'd have to look, but I'm guessing more than 25 years.

Q. And has he ever taken time off between -- is it always February to October for the last 25 years?

A. For the most part.

Q. Has he ever taken time off during, between February and October?

A. Relatively speaking, no.

Q. Did he ever take more than let's say a week, did he ever take a week off during that time?

A. If there was an emergency in Mexico, or even a local emergency, maybe if need be.

Q. And when was the last time he took a week off?

A. I don't know.

Q. If he wanted to take off some time from work, who would he -- who would he ask?

A. My uncle or myself. Yeah.

Q. And when was the last time he asked for time off like that?

A. I can't remember when.

Q. Would you automatically say yes?
A. No question.
Q. Why do you say that?
A. Because if he's asking for time off at that, in that time of the season, there's a really good reason for it and it's none of our business.
Q. Would he have to notify you -- has ever taken off without asking?
A. No.
Q. I just want to recircle back to a prior topic about pay, if you don't mind. So we said that he is paid hourly and based on the amount of -- based on the amount of packages that his crew brings in. Is there any other ways that he's paid?
A. No.
Q. Does he ever get a bonus?
A. We used to do that, we haven't for some years now.
Q. When did you stop the bonuses?
A. I don't know. I would have to look.
Q. What was the bonus based on?
A. Hours worked primarily.

Q. By?
A. Him.
Q. So if he worked many hours, Sun Valley would give him a bonus?
A. Yes.
Q. Why did that stop, that form of payment?
A. Because we changed the way of -- that he gets paid and we agreed collectively, him, my uncle and myself and my brother, I mean we all sat down like this and we agreed that we're going to have to stop doing any kind of bonuses for anybody.
Q. Why?
A. Just for cutbacks. Cutting back on payroll; saving money.
Q. Is Sun Valley Orchards less profitable now than it used to be?
A. Yes.
Q. What is your profit margin at Sun Valley?
A. I don't know. I can't answer that directly without looking.
Q. Are some years you're worried you're not going to make any profit?

A. Yes, last year, we didn't.
Q. What about in 2015?
A. Yeah, I believe we did. Again, I would have to look.
Q. Is that something that concerns you a lot?
A. Yes.
Q. Could you approximate your profits say in 2015 compared to prior years?
A. I can't. I know it was less.
Q. Okay. So in terms of the pay for Agustin, is he paid -- well, H-2A workers arrive, in 2015, they arrived in April?
A. Okay.
Q. And when did the other workers in the fields arrive?
A. I don't know. It varies.
Q. March or April?
A. Again, it -- possibly.
Q. I mean is there a period of time when between when Agustin starts and when the workers in the fields start?
A. Yes.
Q. How long is that typically?
A. Approximately if maybe a month.

He'd have to get the camp ready and things like that, just in preparation.

Q. What else does he do in that time period?

A. He may thin trees, peach trees. Not thin, I'm sorry, trim.

Q. Anything else?

A. No.

Q. And how is he paid during that period of time before the field workers arrive?

A. By the hour.

Q. Any other way?

A. No.

Q. Is there any period of time that he works at the end of the season after the H-2A or domestic workers have left?

A. No.

Q. All right. So do you think in 2015, was he doing these tasks during that first month of getting the camp ready and trimming the peach trees?

A. Sure.

Q. And he was paid by the hour then in 2015?

A. Yes.

Q. Is that the same rate that he's paid during the growing season?

A. Yes.

Q. So he's paid the same hourly rate from February all the way to October?

A. Yes. I'm sorry. Yes.

Q. And then on top of that, when the field workers arrive, he's also paid an extra amount based on the amount of packages that his crews bring in?

A. Correct.

Q. What instructions has Sun Valley Orchards given Agustin in terms of having to do his job?

A. Again, he's been with us for so long, it kind of goes without being said. It's kind of one of those things. But at some point, yeah, I'm sure it was all spelled out and explained to him 25 years ago.

Q. Who likely would have explained that?

A. At that time, most likely my father, but collectively probably him, the owners at the time.

Q. Have you ever had to explain to him how to do something?

A. I'm sure I have.

Q. And what kinds of things does Sun Valley management tell Agustin in terms of how to do his job?

A. Just how we would like things harvested, you know, we explain to him how we package things, so he understands how to harvest. We explain to him how we can sell certain products and how they have to appear or be packed out to be able to make it a marketable product. I don't know. I mean again, it just kind of, he kind of sees it, the gist of everything. He's one of the team players that he just sees the big picture and he understands. He has been there so long.

Q. And what instructions has Sun Valley management given him about how to supervise workers?

A. I don't know that I can say. I mean it may vary. I haven't had to do that for quite sometime, because again, his time that he has been there. We kind of, we respect how he conducts himself and how he would, he likes things done in the field, on the field level.

So we kind of, we let him police that. And if we see a problem, then we intervene.

Q. Have you ever intervened with a problem, has Sun Valley ever intervened?

A. No.

Q. Has Sun Valley Orchards ever considered disciplining him or firing him?

A. No.

Q. Has Sun Valley Orchards ever considered hiring another supervisor to supervise the workers in the fields?

A. No.

Q. What would be grounds for firing Agustin?

MR. SCHULTE: Objection. Speculation. You can answer, if you know.

THE WITNESS: Anything, any kind of criminal act against the company. Drugs. Just any kind of abuse, things along those lines.

BY MR. HEYMAN-KANTOR:

Q. What if he yelled at workers, would that be cause for discipline?

MR. SCHULTE: Same

objection.

THE WITNESS: Yeah, I don't know how I would answer that. Would it be called for discipline or to fire him?

BY MR. HEYMAN-KANTOR:

Q. If you saw him yelling at a worker, what would you do?

A. Intervene, ask him why. I wouldn't fire him on the spot, nor could I do that legally.

Q. Why couldn't you fire him on the spot?

A. Well, it's like a three strike rule is what we go by in our protocol.

Q. And what if he sold cigarettes, would that be allowed?

A. I don't know. Would it be allowed? Would it be allowed? If I don't know it's happening, what can I do about it?

Q. Well, if you found out he was selling cigarettes, would that be a -- would that be a problem for Sun Valley Orchards?

MR. SCHULTE: I'm just going to have a blanket objection to the whole line. We are talking about something that's complete speculation here. There's no facts of any of this.

THE WITNESS: Yeah, can I just say I don't know. I don't know.

BY MR. HEYMAN-KANTOR:

Q. What if he were selling beer at Sun Valley Orchards?

A. That's kind of the same angle, I think. If he was selling beer at Sun Valley Orchards? I believe that's between him and the help.

Q. So you wouldn't have a problem with that. You wouldn't tell him to stop?

A. I wouldn't encourage him to do it.

Q. Would you tell him to stop?

A. If it got out of hand.

Q. What does that mean?

A. If it got to the point where my workers couldn't work, and that's never happened.

Q. Does Agustin work for any other employers?

A. No.

Q. When he works for Sun Valley

Orchards, does he bring any of his own equipment?

A. No.

Q. And when Sun Valley Orchards pays him, does Sun Valley Orchards take out taxes?

A. Yes.

Q. Take out Social Security?

A. Sure. Whatever is required by law.

Q. Does Sun Valley Orchards give him a W-2 at the end of the year?

A. Yes.

Q. Does that W-2 cover all of his earnings?

A. Sure.

Q. Including the hourly rate that he's paid?

A. Yes.

Q. Including the amount he earns off the packages?

A. I'm sure it does.

Q. I want to talk a little bit more about your uncle, Harry Marino, Jr. So you said he directs the crew. What does that involve?

A. Well, basically, again, he, every day, he speaks with Agustin and if it's not clear where to pick up where we left off the day before, he'll explain to him, he'll lay out the day and Agustin will disperse a crew accordingly.

Q. Will he tell Agustin which fields the workers should be working in?

A. Well, not the individual workers, he would leave that to Agustin, so no.

Q. So Harry will say, for example, we need workers to be in these different fields. He'll identify the fields that workers need to work in?

A. Yes.

Q. And will he state how many workers need to go in the fields?

A. He may.

Q. So he might say we need 20 workers to go to field X?

A. Correct.

Q. And does Agustin have, does Agustin have to follow those directions?

A. Yes.

Q. Okay. So Harry, when does he have this conversation, Harry, with Agustin?

A. Prior to the beginning of the workday. Maybe quarter of six in the morning, whatever, whenever time we're starting.

Q. And how many days a week does this conversation happen?

A. Most likely seven.

Q. Seven days? Yes?

A. I'm sorry, yes, yes.

Q. Does Harry have any other interactions with Agustin regularly?

A. No.

Q. Does Harry do anything else in terms of directing the workers?

A. No, usually, no.

Q. You said Harry is involved in setting the planting schedule.

A. Yes.

Q. What does that involve?

A. On how we schedule the actual plantings in the field, when we begin and where it's going to be planted. What's going to be planted, different varieties, things of those nature -- of that nature.

Q. Let me actually back up. In terms of directing, how does he know which set of fields the workers do?

A. Again, he has been doing it all his life and he'll know what crop needs to be harvested first depending on what the weather may be. He may assume it might rain tomorrow or the next day, so he'll direct to go here first to be sure that that gets harvested, because that's more ready than say field Z. So he might do field X first. And it's just kind of an experience kind of thing where he'll take a visual and that's how he bases his decision.

Q. So will he drive out into the fields to observe?

A. Yes.

Q. And does Agustin ever disagree with Harry's decisions?

A. No.

Q. And now, earlier, you referred to, you have not talked about -- when you talk about management, you've talked about the owners of Sun Valley. Is there anyone who is not an owner who is also in management at Sun Valley?

A. Yes.

Q. Who?

A. Just a few other employees. They're employees, no ownership whatsoever, but they've shown responsibility and yes, they're in management.

Q. What are their names?

A. Dominic Marino. Monica Constantino. And I think that's generally it.

Q. What does Dominic Marino do?

A. He runs the packing house.

Q. Anything else?

A. Again, an array of -- a plethora of many other things.

Q. Does he doing anything involving workers in the fields?

A. No.

Q. What about Monica Constantino?

A. She also helps in the warehouse, shipping and receiving. Nothing with the labor.

Q. And is Dominic Marino is a relation?

A. He's my son.

Q. Why don't you refer to Agustin Hernandez as being in management?

A. And I'm sorry, and Agustin as well.

It just goes without being said, yes, Agustin as well.

Q. I want to talk to you in a little more detail about the workers in the fields. So in 2015 -- actually, let me back up. Is everything you just said true for 2015?

A. Yes.

Q. Okay. So in terms of what the workers in the fields do in 2015, did the H-2A and non-H-2A worker do the same tasks?

A. Yes.

Q. And would the workers be sent to multiple fields at once?

A. At once or in one day?

Q. In one day.

A. Yes.

Q. How many fields?

A. It would vary. Four, maybe five throughout the day, depending on where stuff is located and where we planted things that year. Each year is different. And each day is different.

Q. What would be the most number of fields you might have workers on in one day?

A. Four to five I would say.

Q. And how far apart are these fields from each other?

A. Some of them may be in close proximity to each other. Again, depending on the -- what the actual product may be, what's in season right then. Again, it varies.

Q. What would be the furthest that let's say one worker might be working from another worker in the fields on a given day?

A. Five, 6 miles.

Q. And are there different, are there different like crews would you say, like workers who typically work together at different fields?

A. Yes. Generally, the men police that themselves and they'll more or less form crews themselves, not themselves, but some men prefer working, they may be family, friends, things of that nature, where they would tend to want to work together as a group.

Q. And Agustin will decide which workers go to which fields?

A. Sure. If they request that, then that's absolutely, it just makes for, you know, no animosity, stuff like that.

Q. They might be working four or five fields at the same time?
A. The same day.
Q. Could it be the same time as well?
A. You mean different crews?
Q. Right.
A. Generally, we may have three, if you want to call them crews, separate crews that may be in three different fields or farms at the same time, yes.
Q. And could those fields or farms be 5 miles apart from each other?
A. They could be.
Q. And is there any supervision -- so Agustin can't be in more than one farm at the same time, so how are the workers supervised at the other farms?
A. He'll delegate to another responsible worker, say I'm going to go check on that group over there picking peppers, could you just kind of, you know, keep an eye on these guys and keep them in line, not in line, but you know what I mean, just keep them doing what they have to do and I'll be back.
Q. And is there water in the fields?

Q. Never during 2015?
A. Not that I know of.
Q. How can you be sure of that?
A. I mean I ask the help. I constantly ask Agustin, the guys have water. Everybody is good. Everybody is okay. How's everything at the camp? I constantly, I feel like I follow up on that as much as I can. As far as I know, nobody has ever brought it to my attention that they've not had water in the field.
Q. And do you ever drink from these coolers?
A. Sometimes.
Q. How does it taste?
A. Fine.
Q. Have you ever tasted an iron taste in it?
A. No. No.
Q. How many hours -- what's the workers' schedule on the fields?
A. That varies as well.
Q. Typically?
A. Typically, work is offered seven days a week. They're not required to work seven days a week. There's ample hours offered, they're not required. Typically, typically, in the heat of the season, right now, is not so, but when we're harvesting heavily, it could be upwards of a ten-hour day.

Q. How many days a week?

A. They're offered seven.

Q. And how many -- is there a minimum number of hours or days that workers have to work?

A. They're not required to work anything. We're required to offer a minimum of 40 hours, which we do.

Q. So if a worker worked, decided he wanted to work three days a week, would that be okay with Sun Valley?

A. They would have to be okay, or the contract says that we have X amount of, you know, they would be -- I don't think it says expected, whatever it says on the contract. However the wording is, that we work potentially seven days a week and potentially every bit of 40 hours a week, ranging from 40 to X, whatever it says in the contract. So if that man doesn't feel as though he fits that conditions. It varies.

Q. More than once a day typically?

A. At least twice a day.

Q. Are you ever with them during their breaks?

A. Sometimes.

Q. And have you ever seen them drinking anything on the breaks or in the fields other than water?

A. Yes.

Q. What have you seen them drinking?

A. Gatorade mostly.

Q. Anything else?

A. No.

Q. And Agustin sells those Gatorade to the workers?

A. I would assume so.

Q. You never asked?

A. No.

Q. And no one has ever told you?

A. No.

Q. And have you ever had a conversation with Agustin about the Gatorade or other drinks he may be selling in the fields?

A. No.

Q. All right. Let's talk about the actual meals. So what is the arrangement? How do workers eat?

A. They're offered a meal plan for their breakfast, lunch and dinner that they can participate in or they can choose not to. Yeah, I mean that's pretty much the gist of it I guess.

Q. Who offers the meal plan?

A. Agustin does.

Q. And how much does he charge for it?

A. Again, I believe that varies, I don't know the exact answer to that. I know it's a weekly charge and whatever the -- what's it AR or AWR, whatever that acronym is, it never exceeds that. It's usually well below that.

Q. Are you referring to the adverse effect wage rate?

A. So I guess it's not that. There's a number that they determine, it's, I don't know what it is right now, what the current, I believe it's 12 something or 11 something per day and it's under that. Always is. He knows he cannot exceed that.

Q. How does he know that?
A. He's told, I tell him. Because each year, I believe it changes almost every year, I believe.
Q. So you tell him each year what the new rate is?
A. Yes, I'm sorry.
Q. And did you tell him that in 2015?
A. I'm sure I did.
Q. At the beginning of the season?
A. Yes.
Q. And do you remember in 2015 when you had this conversation with him?
A. No.
Q. And what else did you say to him other than that maximum rate?
A. Nothing.
Q. And what other things -- scratch that. And you said you eat there once, you typically eat there once a week?
A. Maybe a little bit less than that, but typically.
Q. And how much does he charge you?
A. Normally nothing.
Q. Anyone else from Sun Valley management eat there?

A. No.

Q. Why do you eat there?

A. Comradery with my men.

Q. And how does Agustin determine how much to charge the workers other than going below that maximum rate?

A. He bases it on his cost of buying the supplies, what it costs to prepare it, and there's no profit made and he can't lose money. There's no profit made. So that's what it's based on.

Q. How do you know there's no profit made?

A. I make sure he knows -- he knows the laws. He goes to meetings with me. He knows the laws.

Q. So you've told him that you can't make a profit off this?

A. Yes. And he's been told that at meetings and he understands that.

Q. What meetings are these?

A. Labor meetings that are held throughout the different counties that, you know, prior to the season beginning and there's meetings held.

Q. So he -- these are meetings with the US Department of Labor?

A. Yes.

Q. And he will come to those meetings?

A. Yes.

Q. Will he come with people from Sun Valley management?

A. With me.

Q. And he did this in 2015?

A. Yes.

Q. And did you ask him to come with you to this meeting?

A. Yes.

Q. Why, why did you ask him to come with you?

A. Because he's directly responsible for that.

Q. What do you mean for that?

A. For the meals. I want him to be aware of the rules and regulations.

Q. So how do you -- is he paid during the time that he comes to the meeting?

A. No.

Q. When does the meeting take place?

A. Usually at nighttime.
Q. He comes with you to these meetings every year?
A. Yes.
Q. Do you require that he attends?
A. I don't require it. If he can't go for whatever reason, then he'll make it to the next one or whatever.
Q. Would he have to explain to you why he can't make it to the meeting?
A. He wouldn't have to. He could just say I can't go, I have a prior arrangement or whatever.
Q. So for these meals, who buys the groceries?
A. Agustin.
Q. And how does he pay for them?
A. I guess with his own money.
Q. And how many workers participate in the meal plan?
A. I don't know that.
Q. Approximately?
A. Most all of them.
Q. How many do you think do not participate in it?

A. I don't know.
Q. Fewer than ten?
A. Possibly. Maybe ten.
Q. Why do you -- scratch that. Strike that.
And are workers explained that they have a choice about the meal plan, is that ever explained?
A. I believe that's in the contract and I'm sure at some point they are, yes, orientation or --
Q. Have you heard that, have you said that at orientation?
A. I haven't.
Q. Has Agustin?
A. I'm sure he has.
Q. Have you heard it when you attended orientations?
MR. SCHULTE: Objection. The record said that he sometimes does.
THE WITNESS: Sometimes.
BY MR. HEYMAN-KANTOR:
Q. Have you ever heard him say this at the orientations?
A. In the question is brought up, if someone has a question about it.

Q. So some orientations he said it and some he hasn't, would that be fair?

A. Yes.

Q. Do you know whether in 2015 he told workers that the meal plan was optional at the orientation?

A. I'm sure he did, because that was our initial year that we got involved in the H-2A, so we had a lot of new workers. So I'm sure there was a lot of explanation that year.

Q. But you don't specifically remember?

A. No.

Q. So in addition to being told the maximum amount that he can charge workers for meals and that he can't earn a profit off the meals, what other guidance does Sun Valley give to Agustin about the meals?

A. None.

Q. There's no other oversight at all?

A. No. We respect that he'll conduct that in a professional manner.

Q. Has Sun Valley management been told anything about keeping records of purchases?

A. Yes. And he, yes, he keeps all his receipts, yes.

Q. And Sun Valley management has asked him to do that?

A. Yes.

Q. Is that you who asked him to do that?

A. Yes. It's brought up at the meetings that should there be an issue or a question, that's going to have -- that's required. That's the first thing they're going to ask for.

Q. And that is the meetings with the US Department of Labor?

A. Yes.

Q. So in addition to that, there have been other times when you told him, when you told Agustin that he should keep his receipts?

A. Yes.

Q. And has Sun Valley, anyone from Sun Valley Orchards asked to look at those receipts?

A. No.

Q. Never?

A. I don't think so. I haven't.

Q. Okay. So it seems like we have three things now, don't make a profit, don't sell the meals for more than a certain amount, keep your receipts. Is there anything else besides that that Sun Valley Orchards has told him to do with respect to the meals or the kitchen?

A. Just -- no, I don't think so.

Q. It seemed like you were about to say another thing.

A. No, I think that's it.

Q. Now, when did Agustin start being in charge of the kitchen?

A. 2015. Prior to that, he was still in charge of the kitchen, however, we -- yeah, 2015 that he was fully in charge of the kitchen.

Q. And why the change?

A. It just felt like us -- we had nothing to do with it anyway, so we just let him assume all responsibility.

Q. So what was it like before 2015?

A. The only difference was we paid the cooks. That is it. They got a paycheck from Sun Valley. Other than that, nothing changed.

Q. Who are the cooks there?
A. I don't know. I don't know their names.
Q. Who would know other than Agustin at Sun Valley Orchards?
A. Nobody. Agustin.
Q. So Sun Valley Orchards paid the workers, the kitchen staff?
A. Yes. The cooks most likely have changed since then. There's probably three different people now.
Q. So in 2014, for example, do you remember who were the cooks then?
A. I don't remember. I don't know their names. I'm sure we have it on file. We have a file for them.
Q. So would Lisa Justice have produced checks for them?
A. Yes, she'd be able to pull that, yes.
Q. And were those -- how much were the kitchen staff paid in 2014?
A. I forget. I don't know.
Q. Do you know if they were paid on a weekly or an hourly basis?

A. It was -- I don't know. I forget the last time we did it, I forget.

Q. Do you know if there was any turnover between the 2014 season and the 2015 season in the kitchen?

A. I'm sorry, turnover?

Q. Were the cooks in the kitchen the same people in 2015 as in 2014?

A. I don't know that. I don't know.

Q. Do you know who Agustin Hernandez is married to?

A. Currently, I should. She's one of the cooks. Current cooks. I forget her first name. I should definitely know it and I do know it. No, I guess no.

Q. All right. Well, she's Mrs. Hernandez I imagine?

A. Yes.

Q. So was she working in 2014 as a cook?

A. I don't know. I don't know.

Q. So before 2015, did the workers, how did the workers pay for the meals?

A. I don't know exactly.

Q. Well, who did they pay for the meals?

A. Agustin.
Q. And how were the groceries obtained?
A. Agustin.
Q. And did he change the amount that he was charging workers after, beginning in 2015?
A. I don't know. I don't know.
Q. So what's -- what's in the kitchen, refrigerators, freezers, what's in there?
A. Yes, just kitchen equipment, cooktops, ovens, sinks, refrigerators, freezers.
Q. How many freezers are in there?
A. I don't know. Three to four. Freezers, two.
Q. They're like standalone freezers?
A. Yes, I believe so.
Q. And how many refrigerators?
A. Three to four.
Q. And how many stoves?
A. There's three 6-burner stoves.
Q. And how many ovens?
A. I think three.

Q. Any other major appliances like that?

A. No.

Q. And when were the refrigerators and freezers and the ovens purchased?

A. I don't know.

Q. More than five years ago?

A. Possibly. Most likely.

Q. Who purchased them?

A. Most likely Sun Valley. The original equipment, Sun Valley. The ovens, the stoves, all the sinks, all the necessities, I know there's more equipment in there now than there used to be, Agustin probably put a few of them in there.

Q. But the fridges and the freezers were purchased by Sun Valley itself?

A. The initial equipment, yes.

Q. Well, you mentioned three ovens, three stoves, two freezers, three to four refrigerators, those were all purchased by Sun Valley?

A. I don't know. I don't know, the freezer, at least one freezer and at least two fridges.

Q. And how much did those freezers and refrigerators cost?
A. I don't know.
Q. And Sun Valley Orchards pays for the gas and electricity?
A. Yes.
Q. So Agustin, does he have to contribute to that?
A. No.
Q. Why did you change the way kitchen staff -- why did Sun Valley change the way kitchen staff were paid in 2015?
A. Again, we had nothing to do with it as it was, so we just, we asked Agustin if he would just assume full responsibility.
Q. And before 2015, Sun Valley Orchards was taking out tax and Social Security from the kitchen workers' checks?
A. Yes.
Q. Was there any conversation with Agustin about how he was going to do that?
A. No. No. Yes. We suggested that he open an account and do it all through a payroll service, a local payroll service. I don't know if he did that or not.

Q. So if workers did not want to eat, did not want to participate in the meal plan, how would they -- what would they do?

A. I guess they would prepare their own food.

Q. And how would they do that?

A. However you prepare food I guess. We were, we're required to bring them to town once a week, which we do. And they can purchase food that way, I would assume and take it upon themselves to pay way more than 11 bucks a day to eat. I'm not sure why they would do that, but I guess they could do it that way.

Q. And could they cook in the kitchen?

A. We would accommodate, he would accommodate, if need be.

Q. How do you know that?

A. I guess I don't know anything for sure, but I mean I would assume that he would. He would accommodate however need be.

Q. I mean did you ever tell him or did anyone at Sun Valley ever tell him that he needs to allow the workers to cook on their own in the kitchen?

A. No.
Q. So why do you think he would accommodate them?
A. Because I've seen guys in there before, you know, I'll get done some days relatively late and I'll be going through just passing through and I may peek in and I'll see guys in there making grilled cheese or whatever.
Q. What time is this, what time of day?
A. It varies. Like 8:00 o'clock. 7:00 o'clock, well after the guys have been home and they've eaten supper. I've seen that in instances.
Q. 7:30 p.m.?
A. Yes.
Q. Do you ever see them cooking at other times in there?
A. No, because again, I'm always working.
Q. You eat lunch once a week there, do you ever see them, workers cooking on their own during lunchtime?
A. No.

Q. Have you ever talked to workers about whether they use the kitchen to cook on their own?

A. No.

Q. So you were saying that workers can be, get transported outside of Sun Valley?

A. Yes.

Q. Let me, let me -- so Agustin basically had complete control over what happened in the kitchen?

A. Yes.

Q. So if he wanted to prevent a worker from cooking there, he could?

MR. SCHULTE: Objection, speculation. Go ahead, if you know.

THE WITNESS: I would assume so.

BY MR. HEYMAN-KANTOR:

Q. I mean would Sun Valley do anything to stop him from doing that?

MR. SCHULTE: Again, same speculation.

THE WITNESS: I don't know.

BY MR. HEYMAN-KANTOR:

Q. Who would know?

A. It would be me. I don't know if -- that's never been an issue, so I don't know what the situation would involve.

Q. So you're saying that Sun Valley Orchards provides free transportation to workers once a week; is that right?

A. Yes.

Q. Was that during 2015?

A. Yes.

Q. For the entire growing season?

A. I believe so.

Q. Did they do that, did Sun Valley Orchards do that in 2014?

A. No.

Q. So when did it first start?

A. Fifteen.

Q. When in 2015?

A. I'm not sure of that. I could look at our records, because we, obviously, we get charged for when they provide that service.

Q. A bus company provides the service?

A. Yes.

Q. What's the name of the bus company?

A. B.R. Williams.

Q. B.R. Williams?

A. Yes, bus company.
Q. And what buses do they provide?
A. It's like a school bus.
Q. And they send Sun Valley Orchards an invoice?
A. Yes.
Q. And that invoice says all the dates that the buses were provided?
A. Yes.
Q. And how many people can fit on that school bus?
A. I would say at least 40. I'm not exactly sure. I'm not a --
Q. And where did the school bus go?
A. To Bridgeton.
Q. To what?
A. Bridgeton.
Q. Bridgeton?
A. That's a nearby town.
Q. How do you spell that?
A. B-R-I, Bridgeton, like Bridge, town. Or ton, T-O-N, not town.
Q. And what's in Bridgeton?
A. So that was the closest town that had a laundromat, like convenience store, like Wal-Mart all in the same complex. So that's where we chose to go.

Q. Is there a name for that complex?

A. I'm sure there is. I don't know what it is.

Q. I guess if I looked for Wal-Mart and Google in Bridgeton, I'd find it?

A. I'm sure, yeah.

Q. And how are workers told about the bus?

A. Just verbally through Agustin. And it's offered every week on Thursday evening. And they know that through Agustin.

Q. What time on Thursday?

A. Again, that varies. This time of year, I believe they probably come at six or 6:30. And then when we get busier, I believe it comes at 7:00.

Q. So it departs from Sun Valley Orchards at that time?

A. Yes.

Q. And what time does it return?

A. Whenever the guys are done with their laundry or shopping. The bus stays there until the last man is on the bus, so it varies.

Q. And you said that Agustin tells the workers about this bus?
A. Yes.
Q. Does he tell them about it at orientation?
A. Perhaps.
Q. Have you heard him tell the workers about it?
A. No.
Q. You assume he tells them?
A. Yes.
Q. Has anyone else from Sun Valley Orchards management told the workers?
A. No.
Q. Now, in the dining area, are other things sold other than the meals?
A. I don't know.
Q. Have you ever seen sodas being sold?
A. Mostly Gatorade. I don't know. I don't know of anything else. I mostly see Gatorades.
Q. Have you seen chips being sold?
A. Yes.
Q. Soap?

A. Soap? No, I've never seen that.
Q. Have you seen shampoo being sold?
A. I would never eat soap or shampoo. I've never seen them sold at lunchtime, no.
Q. How about instant noodles, like soup?
A. No, not that I take notice.
Q. Pastries?
A. Perhaps, on occasion.
Q. So you've seen chips, Gatorade, and possibly pastries being sold. Have you seen anything else being sold from the kitchen area?
A. No.
Q. At other times other than lunch?
A. No.
Q. And who sells these items, the chips and the Gatorade and pastries?
A. If Agustin is there, I guess Agustin, I would assume.
Q. Anybody else?
A. I don't know.
Q. Were these items being sold before 2015?
A. I don't know.
Q. Have you ever seen beer being sold?

A. No.
Q. Do you know if Agustin kept receipts for these items?
A. I don't know.
Q. So you told him to keep receipts for the meal purchases?
A. Yes.
Q. But did you tell him to keep receipts for these purchases?
A. No.
Q. Why not?
A. Because by law, I'm required to keep the receipts for the meal plan that I provide, that Sun Valley Orchards offers the men on behalf of Sun Valley Orchards.
Q. So Sun Valley Orchards offers the meal plan, but not --
A. We offer it in the contract. It's known to them that we will, Sun Valley Orchards as a company has the means to provide a meal plan.
Q. And that is true for 2015?
A. Yes.
Q. So the guarantee is that Sun Valley Orchards in 2015 -- okay. Scratch it. I got

I don't know. I don't recall.

Q. Did workers have anything they asked to be changed?

A. As far as in the field?

Q. Anywhere.

A. Not that I recall. I don't remember.

Q. Is it possible they said something about that and you didn't understand it?

A. That I didn't understand it? No. I understand Spanish. No, I would understand it. I mean I would have definitely got the gist of it. Is my Spanish perfect, no.

Q. And I mean how did you feel during this meeting?

A. Disappointed, let down. Nervous that I needed to replace 19 guys that can do an awful lot of work if they put their mind to it and I had a lot of asparagus in the field growing. And I was kind of nervous that I wasn't going to get it cut.

Q. And so what, so you say in English like, so you said to them, did you say to them, you know, if you want to leave, you can leave?

A. Yes. I told them, I said it's your choice, if you want to leave, I can arrange that, but it's going to take me a little bit. It's a process. I explained to them it's a process and this is something new for me and I'll do whatever I have to do to get you guys back home.

Q. And what word did you use in Spanish for leave?

A. Salir.

Q. Is that spelled S-A-L-I-R?

A. That's correct.

Q. And I'm just, you know, do you use, do you like -- do you -- how is your conjugation, I just want to understand?

A. Conjugation is not 100 percent. That's probably my biggest fault with my Spanish, but I believe I get the point across. I mean it's a verb is a verb. It's to go, I would say salir. Like if I was saying you guys are going to go, I mean properly it would be salir nos or mos or something like that. I don't necessarily do that every time. But I mean the guys are sitting there shaking their head and they understood me and Agustin would help me out. He would reiterate some of the things I would say. And if there was something I wasn't sure of, I would speak directly to him in English and he would say well, he said or he wants to say or what he's trying to say, you know, so we were all on the same page.

Q. So the word you said properly would be S-A-L-I-R, N-O-S, is that --

A. No R, S-A-L-I, N-O-S, I believe. Salir -- no, there is an R, salir nos.

Q. And is -- all right. So when you speak in Spanish, you use the, are you familiar with the indicative tense versus subjunctive tense?

A. I guess.

Q. Imperative tense, do you know imperative tense?

A. Yes, I guess you could say that.

Q. Do you use the words differently for imperative tense?

A. I don't know. I don't know.

Q. And what things did Agustin translate for you during that meeting?

A. I don't know exactly, but just things that I want to be certain that they understood and I was clear or maybe I said it.

Then I would ask him to reiterate it in perfect Spanish. I mean by all means, I'll say it again and again, my Spanish is not 100 percent, but I don't think my Spanish is on the stand. If that's in question, then yeah, it's questionable, but for the most part, I get a lot of work done with my guys and that's all I do is speak Spanish all day long.

Q. And was Agustin translating the entire time during this meeting?

A. No, no.

Q. How much of what you said did he translate?

A. Twenty, 30 percent.

Q. But you don't remember what he translated versus what he did not?

A. No. If you're going to switch gears, could I use the restroom real quick?

Q. Sure.

A. Unless you want to continue on the same topic.

Q. I will be done in the next ten to 15 minutes, is that okay?

A. Yes.

Q. Then we're going to talk a little bit and see if there's more question.

A. That's fine.

Q. You know what, why don't you go to the bathroom.

A. Are you sure?

MR. GLICK: This is good. I would like a break.

MR. HEYMAN-KANTOR: He wants a break.

- - - - -

(A recess was taken at this time.)

- - - - -

BY MR. HEYMAN-KANTOR:

Q. So after the meeting, after this meeting ended with, what was the final thing that was said at the meeting?

A. That I would do what needs to be done to get them back home. Paperwork and transportation and stuff like that.

Q. And was it quiet in the fields when this conversation happened?

A. I mean there was no -- there was maybe one tractor going back and forth, a small tractor picking up the asparagus that the guys were cutting. And there was traffic in the background, but yeah, it was relatively quiet.

Q. I mean did that interfere with hearing?

A. I don't believe so.

Q. And have you told me everything about this meeting?

A. Yes.

Q. And so then the meeting ended, you said this and then what happened?

A. Well, I left and I believe Agustin went back out to the field and the guys just kind of hung out at the camp and waited to hear back from us when I found out what I had to do.

Q. And when did you see these workers next, if at all?

A. Maybe the next day when I brought all the forms there for them to sign and Agustin oversaw that they signed them. But I think I may have seen a few of the guys that day. I don't know that I saw them all. And then maybe the next day or maybe two days later.

Q. So the next day or two days later, you handed forms --

A. For them to sign that they were leaving voluntarily.

Q. And you gave them to Agustin?

A. Yes.

Q. And then Agustin gave them to the workers?

A. Yeah. And I collected them. I went back, he collected them or I collected them and they were all signed in English and Spanish, their form. It's the right form, I wanted to make sure, because again, this was all new to me.

Q. And so I'm sorry, you collected them or Agustin collected them?

A. He collected them from the workers and then I went back and got them from him.

Q. From Agustin?

A. Yes.

Q. And where did you -- sorry, the next one or two days after the meeting, you handed all the forms to Agustin and then how much later did you come back to get the forms?

A. A half hour.

Q. And how did you see workers, you said you saw a few workers filling out the forms, how did you see that?

A. I brought a bunch of pens and said I need you all to sign and left them there in the eating quarters right there and they were all gathered. They were all starting to come out to gather to sign. And again, not everybody was out there, but I did explain to a few guys, the guys that were out there that we could -- there was several boxes to check off as to why they were returning. And I explained to them, you know, I wasn't going to check the box that said they didn't want to do the work or whatever the box said, I forget the exact wording, because Theresa actually told me, explained to me that checking that box off might make it harder for the men in the future to get return work. So there was another box that said they want to return home to, I don't know if it said family emergency or they're homesick. I forget the exact word, but I explained to them, why, you know, you guys can check this box, but it's clear I'm not firing you. It's clear I need help. And I'm willing to train you guys and do what we got to do to get you guys out here and working. But that wasn't happening. So that it was clear I wasn't firing him.

Q. You reiterated that to them?

A. Yes.

Q. And how many workers did you say this to?

A. I don't know. It wasn't all of them right then. But they were all coming out to, they knew I -- they saw my truck and I think they were okay, good, we're going home, you know, the process, whatever, it's, they were anxious to get out of there.

Q. So there were several workers present during this conversation and was Agustin there?

A. Uh-huh.

Q. And did the workers say anything back to you?

A. Not that I recall.

Q. Did Agustin ever say anything to you about his views about these workers leaving?

A. No.

Q. So you spoke in Spanish during this meeting?

A. Yes.

Q. How long did this last, this conversation?
A. Five minutes.
Q. And what did the workers say back?
A. Nothing.
Q. And did you tell the workers they had to fill out these forms?
A. Well, it's required. I have to have proof as to why these guys are returning home prior to the end of their contract. I'm required to do that, yes.
Q. Did any of them not want to fill out a form?
A. No. In fact, I think a couple of guys shook my hand and thanked me.
Q. What were they thanking you for?
A. I'm not exactly sure, for giving them a chance. I don't -- I'm not exactly sure.
Q. And what happened next to these workers?
A. I don't remember the exact event -- sequence of events, but shortly thereafter, I believe they returned home.
Q. How did they get home?

to the farm? Those invoices are e-mailed. I'm going to say it's, if I were to guess, I believe it's more than 4,000.

Q. Is there any other things that today that you weren't, you said you didn't know the answer to that you might have something, an e-mail in your phone that would refresh your recollection?

A. It would depend on what it was.

Q. Nothing that you can recall?

A. Or what the question was. No, I don't recall directly.

Q. All right. So the workers are gone on a bus, they're gone. Now, after these workers departed -- you can put down your phone if that's okay.

A. Yeah, I'm sorry, I thought I was busy looking up that invoice.

Q. It's okay. Your estimate is enough.

A. Okay.

Q. So after those workers left, did any other H-2A or non-H-2A workers leave before the end of the 2015 growing season?

A. Yes.

Q. Who else left?
A. I don't know names.
Q. How many other workers left?
A. I'm not exactly sure. Left on their own or just work was done?
Q. Either one, separated from Sun Valley.
A. I mean either way, I don't know their names. Nor do I know the amount, the number of men. But there were, I think there were a few instances where a couple of guys may have left mid season. And then we had a group of guys that we explained to them that we just didn't have the crop and they had filled their three-quarter guarantee, I made sure of it before, that's how I came up with the names. Lisa and I went through and made sure each of them made their three-quarter guarantee before we put together any kind of list.
Q. So let's talk about that. What month did they leave in, this three-quarter guarantee group?
A. I believe it was, I want to say it was either at the very end of August or beginning part of September.

Q. How many workers were in this group?
A. I'm not sure.
Q. More than 30?
A. Possibly. For some reason, 34 is sticking out in my mind. I don't know. I forget.
Q. And tell me again why these, what happened, what the circumstances were?
A. We had a bad growing season, horrible growing season and we didn't have peppers, which is our largest commodity by volume.
Q. What kind of peppers?
A. Just regular green bell peppers.
Q. Was there bad weather or what --
A. Bad weather. It was a wet season and disease.
Q. And so Sun Valley determined that there were too many field workers?
A. Right.
Q. And Sun Valley came up with a number of workers that had to be let go?
A. Not had to be, but were asked to, explained to as to why. It wasn't just like,

12 minutes, you meant until the break or --

MR. HEYMAN-KANTOR: I'm very close now, I'm sorry. Off the record.

(Discussion was held off the record.)

BY MR. HEYMAN-KANTOR:

Q. So we were talking about the crops, the downturn of the crops in the 2015 growing season. Did Sun Valley put in any kind of insurance claim about that?

A. I believe we did. We did.

Q. What was --

A. It was just what do they call it, we did, we definitely did. It was just called crop, I forget the exact terminology, but we definitely did.

Q. And was it approved?

A. I don't know if it was approved. I don't know if the whole thing was approved. I think they were partially approved, if my memory serves me. But again, I could definitely pull those facts and figure that out.

Q. What company, do you know what the insurance company is called?

A. I don't. So that would be -- no, it would definitely be something, I could look all that stuff up back at the office.

Q. How much money did Sun Valley receive out of that insurance claim?

A. I don't know. I don't know the exact number and I forget how much we were approved for -- were in a state, was it state of emergency I believe that year? I might be the wrong terminology as well. I can't think of the terminology. It's crop, I forget, but if need be, I can get you all that. When we applied, when they came out and looked at everything. I mean they send inspectors out there to look at the product, look at the fields, inspect the fields, walk through the fields and determine just, just what the problem is.

Q. Is it a government program or private insurance?

A. I believe it's a government program.

Q. Is it the United States Department of Agricultural?

A. It may, it may be associated with them. Again, I'd have to look it all up to be certain. I don't want to give any kind of nonfactual information, because that would be pertinent.

Q. And do you have an e-mail that you can look at on your phone that might refresh your recollection?

A. 2015, I don't think my phone goes back that far, so no.

Q. How much money did you receive out of this claim?

A. I don't know.

Q. More than $50,000?

A. If we got anything, it may have been. If we, if we got anything, it may have been. But again, I'm not sure.

Q. You definitely submitted a claim for it?

A. Yes.

MR. HEYMAN-KANTOR: I'm going to introduce as Exhibit 10 this document. Take a look at that. Do you recognize that document?

A. Absolutely.
Q. So workers who were, can we call them fired, fired, is that fair?
A. No, they weren't fired.
Q. Laid off?
A. Okay.
Q. Let go. The workers who were let go, this group of workers in August or September, did they sign any --
A. Yes.
Q. -- resignation?
A. Yes.
Q. They signed resignation forms?
A. I don't know resignation, but they signed forms that they were being let go due to crop loss, absolutely.
Q. Does Sun Valley Orchards still have those forms?
A. Yes.
Q. And so those forms say that the workers left because of crop loss?
A. Yes.
Q. So the forms that Sun Valley Orchards gave workers who departed in around May, where were those forms obtained from?

A. I believe it's -- I believe from Theresa Ward at NAC.
Q. So she would have e-mailed them or mailed them to Sun Valley?
A. Probably e-mailed me and I just made copies.
Q. Do you usually correspond with Theresa via e-mail or via phone or both?
A. Both.
Q. Were there any other e-mails that you had with Theresa about the workers departing?
A. I don't know about e-mails, perhaps, I would have to really dig back. But most of that may have been phone conversations, but there was probably a few e-mails in there. But I don't know for sure.
Q. We're talking about 2015?
A. Right.
Q. And you haven't, so you haven't checked your e-mails for this?
A. No.
Q. No one else at Sun Valley has either?
A. Not that I know of. No, nobody else can get in my e-mail.

Q. And what about the forms in August, these workers who were let go in August or September, where did you get those forms? Where did Sun Valley get those forms?

A. From Theresa.

Q. Would those have been e-mailed or mailed to you?

A. Probably e-mailed. Yeah, e-mail.

Q. Would there have been other e-mail correspondence with Theresa about these workers?

A. Perhaps, again, I would have to dig back and look.

Q. And nobody from Sun Valley Orchards has looked for those yet?

A. Probably -- no, no.

Q. And do you know where Theresa gets those forms from?

A. I'm sure she just has them in her office. No, I don't. I don't know.

Q. And what did you do with these crop loss departure forms, can we call them that, is that fair?

A. Crop loss departure forms?

Q. The forms that were given to the August and September workers, the workers that left in August and September.

A. Just whatever their, I'm sure they have a heading, whatever. I'm sure they're called something. It's just to determine their termination of work or whatever, whatever they're called.

Q. Termination of work forms.

A. Okay.

Q. What did Sun Valley Orchards do with the termination of work forms?

A. I'm sure Lisa filed them away.

Q. Were they ever given to anyone outside of Sun Valley Orchards?

A. No.

Q. How about the forms collected in May, the workers that departed in May, Sun Valley Orchards still has those?

A. Yes.

Q. Were they given to anyone outside of Sun Valley Orchards?

A. No. They may have been given to you guys. Copies may have been given to you guys.

Q. Why did Sun Valley Orchards ask the workers who left in August or September to fill out these work termination forms?

A. To cover, so I'm covered, to explain as to why they left.

Q. To protect against what?

A. Yeah, to protect against this, this lawsuit. I mean the fact is the guys left early. They voluntarily signed that they were voluntarily leaving. And the guys that left later in the season, they signed forms and they met their three-quarter guarantee. So after the three-quarter guarantee, as far as I'm concerned, we can nitpick it and all we want but, they met their three-quarter guarantee, period. We only had the forms and the documentation to back everything up. That's just how you do things nowadays.

MR. HEYMAN-KANTOR: Mr. Schulte, we requested in our document requests all documentation, communications concerning reason for departure. We would ask that the forms related to the termination forms we have been discussing, any e-mails about this or about the May or June workers with Theresa be given to us as soon as possible.

MR. SCHULTE: Okay. If we have them, we'll produce what's responsive.

BY MR. HEYMAN-KANTOR:

Q. And these worker termination forms, did you hand them personally to the workers or did Agustin hand them to them or --

A. It was probably between both of us that we did it. I'm not exactly sure.

Q. Were any of the workers upset that they were being terminated?

A. I don't know. I mean -- I don't know.

Q. No one complained to you?

A. No. Not to me, no. And you're talking about the group that left towards the end of season?

Q. Yes, in August or September.

A. I don't believe so, no.

Q. So far we have been talking about two groups, the group that left in August or September and the group that left in May. Were there any other groups of workers who left during the 2015 growing season?

A. Groups of workers, no.

Q. How many other workers left during the growing season?

A. I don't know exactly. There was a few guys that left early on that just walked out of the field. There was one guy that had someone come pick him up out of the field and they just left. They just vanished. And that was all documented. It was all reported. Theresa reported it to whoever she has to report it to. So that was all kept check of. And there might have been, all my years run together, all the seasons run together, but I believe there may have been a few guys that left. I don't know if it was that season, again, they all run together. There might have been a few other guys, a couple of other guys left for whatever reason. Family emergency or what have you.

Q. During the 2015 growing season, did Sun Valley Orchards let anybody else go other than the group of workers who left in August or September that we have been talking about?

A. No, not that I know of, no.

MR. HEYMAN-KANTOR: I would like to introduce Exhibit 11.

- - - - -

(E-mail dated 8/21/15 marked R. Marino Exhibit 11 for identification.)

- - - - -

BY MR. HEYMAN-KANTOR:

Q. Do you recognize this document? Do you recognize this document?

A. Hold on, I'm looking at it, but I don't think so. No, I don't recognize it.

Q. All right, well, you see the cc line?

A. Yeah.

Q. Do you see that it says Lisa Justice and it has your name?

A. Uh-huh.

Q. Is this --

A. But you're asking me if I recognize it. I don't recognize it. I'm sure I've maybe glanced at it.

Q. Well, does this look like the list of workers who were let go in -- that we have been just talking about?

A. I'm assuming it is, but I wouldn't know without looking and cross-referencing it with my records. But I'm going to assume it is, since you guys have it.

Q. Do you know who Warren Wicker is?

A. It's Theresa's husband.

Q. Have you interacted with him in the past?

A. Just on the phone once or twice. Not in the last couple of years.

Q. Well, all right. Well, if you don't recognize it, I'll take it back.

A. Can I look at it, so maybe I will recognize it?

Q. Sure, if you're still looking at it.

A. Like what are you asking me about it, if I recognize it and I don't at first glance, but furthermore, like what are you getting at about this document? Why is this an exhibit?

Q. Well, it looks like an e-mail from, I guess I should --

A. It is an e-mail from Warren to me. I see that.

Q. Was Sun Valley Orchards in the practice of notifying the government when workers were separated from Sun Valley Orchards?

A. That's required.

Q. And how does Sun Valley Orchards do that?

A. I call Theresa or whoever in her office that handles that or I e-mail them and tell them that they have to notify whoever they have to notify. That's part of the service that they provide. That's what their agency does.

Q. And would you send them, would you e-mail this organization the list of workers that were separating?

A. Lisa probably did, because this list looks like it's comes from our type of payroll system that we used. And she may have, you know, because I'm sure there's Heather, yeah, because the spelling is correct. I mean this had to come from some kind of a -- some kind of document that Lisa sent to them.

Q. And this reminds you of the payroll system that Sun Valley Orchards has?

A. It kind of does.
Q. Why does it remind you?
A. I'm just looking at the way it's, the format.
Q. What about the format?
A. Just the format, the way it, the font, the columns and things like that. It appears to be similar. It may not be directly. It may be something that Theresa uses. I'm not exactly sure.
Q. So you think the payroll records at Sun Valley Orchards may have had the same order, for example, of client name, process date, consulate, that kind of thing?
A. The process date. Okay. Now I'm looking at it. No, this is most likely something from her office, some kind of software that they use. Probably compiled from a list that Lisa sent them.
MR. HEYMAN-KANTOR: Mr. Schulte, we would also ask for any documents or any e-mails exchanged between Sun Valley Orchards and this organization about the workers who were separated.

MR. SCHULTE: If there are any.

BY MR. HEYMAN-KANTOR:

Q. Do you know why this e-mail says, do you see where it says workers returned for personal reasons? Do you know why it says that when in fact the workers were let go?

A. I don't know why.

Q. If this e-mail refers to the workers we have been talking about, it's inaccurate in that statement, right?

MR. SCHULTE: Objection. There's no foundation that it does.

THE WITNESS: I'm not sure how to answer that anyway.

BY MR. HEYMAN-KANTOR:

Q. Okay. That's all I have about that exhibit. I think we agreed the workers who left who were separated in August or September did not leave for personal reasons?

A. Right. Crop loss or damage.

Q. So we talked a little bit before about the ETA, ETA Form 790 commonly referred to as a job order?

A. Okay.

Q. Do you know about that document?
A. Yes.
Q. What was your role in creating that document?
MR. SCHULTE: Not even an objection, if we can clarify, he wasn't creating the form, is there a particular document that you're asking about?
BY MR. HEYMAN-KANTOR:
Q. The ETA 790 job order for the 2015 growing season, did you have a role in completing the contents of those documents?
A. Yes.
Q. What was your role?
A. Spelling out I guess the way we farmed, what we farmed, how we farm it and how we harvest it, how we take care of it and I did that collectively with Theresa.
Q. Did anyone else at Sun Valley Orchards have a role in filling out that form?
A. Not directly filling it out, but there was discussions between my uncle and I.
Q. Harry Marino, Jr.?
A. Yes.

Q. Did he give you a recommendation about how to fill out the form?
A. No.
Q. What were the discussions about generally?
A. The wording. The commodities. The one-on-job descriptions, things of that nature.
Q. And then you had a conversation on the phone with Theresa?
A. Yes.
Q. This is Theresa Ward from the NAC?
A. Yes.
Q. Did you actually, do you personally type into the form or did Theresa do that?
A. No. I probably scratched down a few things on paper handwritten or I might have even, probably handwritten or maybe e-mail and just suggestions and then her with her experience doing this for so long, she came back with a few suggestions and between the two us, we ironed out a final ETA.
Q. Did you review the entire, and I'm speaking now, we're speaking now about both job orders that were effective for the 2015 season.
A. Yeah.

Q. So --
A. They should have been almost identical, right? I believe they were.
Q. I don't remember but. So you had a conversation, there were some things you wanted in there and she typed it up and she sent it back to you; is that correct?
A. Uh-huh. Yes.
Q. And then did you review the document?
A. Yes.
Q. Was it all accurate?
A. There was most likely a few changes I wanted to make and then she made them and then, like I said, we probably -- it probably went back and forth a few times until we came up with a document that we were both satisfied with.
Q. And then you signed the document?
