PROBLEM TO BE ADDRESSED
Children work as mechanics, porters, tourist guides, street vendors, and beggars in Morocco. They are also found working as weavers in the carpet industry; in agriculture and livestock herding; and in small family-run workshops that produce ceramics, woodwork, and leather goods, among other sectors. Young girls, often from rural areas, serve as urban domestic servants where they often work long hours, are exposed to toxic substances, employ dangerous tools, bear heavy loads, and suffer isolation, both physical and social.

RESULTS
The project withdrew 3,994 and prevented 7,668 children from exploitive work, primarily in agriculture. Target geographic areas were the Gharb and Taroudant regions of Morocco.

Intermediate objectives include:

- Raise awareness among Moroccan society and selected key actors of the negative consequences of child labor;
- Expand the knowledge base on WFCL in Morocco;
- Strengthen the capacity of the relevant organizations to develop initiatives to address WFCL;
