General Comment

This legislation is crucial to the significant percentage of Americans who suffer with mental illness. It is time to remove the stigma from mental illness that has kept such suffering in a class separate from physical illness. As a mental health practitioner offering neurofeedback treatment I can state clearly that all illness is physical--the brain can and does change PHYSICALLY as a result of treatment, whether that be through new technologies such as neurofeedback, or old technologies such as psychotherapy. It is time for PARITY.
