Dear Sir or Madam:

I am writing to tell you I am against the “Conflict of Interest Rule—Retirement Investment Advice.”

I believe the proposal would add unnecessary and excessive burdens on advisors and result in unintended consequences. The president said everyone could keep their insurance and doctor under the Affordable Care Act. But then thousands of people lost their insurance and doctors. That is going to happen with this proposal. Smaller investors will probably lose their current adviser, and smaller investors who are newly retiring will have major difficulty finding an investment advisor to work with them.

These advisors are already regulated by federal and state agencies.

I do not like the idea that our president is trying to ram this through with no congressional say on the matter. You are rushing things through again.

Sincerely,

Susan Burch
