General Comment

Taking away the opportunity to trade options in my retirement account would seriously impact my retirement income. I have been properly trained in the use of conservative strategies to generate on average about $1,000 per month when the opportunities arise. I write covered calls and sell puts on properly valued conservative securities that I would like to own to generate income and reduce my risk when buying these securities. Removing my ability to do these things would severely impact my economic freedom to generate income in the markets.
