General Comment

Please know that this proposed "Definition of the Term Fiduciary; Conflict of Interest Rule-Retirement Investment Advice" rule will increase my exposure to stock market fluctuation whims. I'm against this proposed rule change. I've taken years of self-education and "practice" trading stock options before ever executing any option trade in real time. Stock options executed in an retirement account are safe tools to minimize my risks. This rule is a poor choice in protecting individuals who actively trade safely for extra income in their personal retirement accounts. In my opinion the large (investment/retirement) firms would like to restrict individual investor even more to require us to move dollars to them to charge additional fees.
