To Whom It May Concern,

I have just been informed that options trading will be restricted from IRA accounts. I'm sure you are aware that correct use of options can actually decrease portfolio risks and managed risk of options can actually be beneficial during various states of the economic cycle.

I have been trading stocks as well as options for over a decade. I have signed legal documents through my brokers that I am an experience option trader and understand my risks. My retirement account has grown very nicely since the crash and it has been specifically due training myself on economics, investing and trading. This would punish me as an investor since interests rates are next to nothing for the unforeseeable future.

Please do not put this restriction on qualified investors.

Sincerely,
