Over time I have learned proper options trading. This has allowed me to build my IRA to a level I deem worthy. Some of these option trades benefit rather than increase risk. Why this is of concern to the Federal Government is beyond me. Frankly, I resent the intrusion of the government into my investments. They need to get the hell out of micromanaging my life any more than they already are. The aforementioned bill should never become law. It is simply a bad idea. The government wants adults to be self-supporting. This said, let me be self supporting by earning for my future. RIN-AB32 needs to never see the light of day.
