General Comment

DOL,

I retired from the securities industry approximately 18 months ago. I have IRA accounts and even though I was a qualified investment professional I have worked with another qualified investment professional to consult with to manage my accounts. I neither require nor want your assistance to handle my investments nor those of my husband. IRA's were meant for the individual to be able to make his own decisions with his retirement monies. The government's track record with managing Social Security funds does not recommend that it has any expertise in this area. Leave our IRA and 401-K retirement fund decisions to the individuals who earned the money. No help wanted from the government.
