General Comment

The government is running social security into the ground and who knows what state the health care industry will be in by the time Washington is done with it. When the government is allowed to make financial decisions for the tax payers we always end up on the short end of the stick, take Obama care for instance, American tax payers have to pay more and can't keep their doctors, while Congress immediately tried to exempt themselves from the plan. Either Washington is inept or they don't have my best interests at heart either way I want to make my own decisions concerning my money and future
