To whom it may concern,

As I near retirement I can't think of anything more important than one having secure financial means. Its been my experience that most of us need to be protected when purchasing investments from those that may not have our best interest in mind.

Purchasing a car is not even comparable to a retirement plan. At a time when this country has left traditional pension plans and moved to 401k's the retiree needs to have the protection from those who seek profit over ones security in old age.

A financial advisor should have my best interest in mind before their own. Purchasing retirement is a one time get it right shot. There isn't any do-overs.

We need laws to protect the consumer such as they do in the United Kingdom and Australia.
