Via this email, I implore you to do the right thing and support requiring financial advisors to be restrained from consumer abuse by imposing the necessary fiduciary duties upon them.

The fact that they have not had this duty as yet is mind boggling and only makes me, and every other consumer, less able to trust our financial markets. We "little guys" are really sick of feeling cheated, and sick of feeling that our government is not looking out for us.

Please do the right thing and pass this important consumer protection.

Thank you,
Deborah Brady
