This will only lead to the privatization and full take over of personal retirement assets.

Our government is on a serious drunken binge of spending this country into oblivion. As investors and other countries begin to curb their funding of the US public debt, the government will continue the spending binge by borrowing (so called investing) out private retirement funds. What will start out as a voluntary option will become mandatory as the nation starves for more cash.

This country was not founded on such tyranny and such action must be prevented period, especially when disguised as an option early in the takeover.
