I am completely opposed to a government takeover or management of retirement accounts.

Federal and state governments are demonstrably incapable of managing their own finances. If they took over private accounts in the way suggested by this proposal, they would no doubt figure out some way to squander the savings of the American people. Our hard-earned money would be used to provide pork so that politicians could be reelected. It would be a moral abomination, and the American economy would never recover.

The government should keep its hands off of my retirement funds.
