To Whom It May Concern:

I am writing to express my concern that insurance plans will be mandated to provide contraceptives and sterilization. I oppose this move. I would ask, as the very least, that the requirement be amended to allow not just churches to opt out as a conscience objector, but ANY individual or company with a moral objection to do so. Why should any American (individual or company) be forced to subsidize (through the higher premiums that everyone will have to pay to cover these services) services that they have a moral objection to? Not only should ALL religious organizations be able to opt out (rather than just churches), but there should not even be a requirement that the individual or company be "religious" in order to have a moral objection that is honored.
