General Comment

This great country is secular with a clear constitutional separation of church FROM state! Thus any and ALL religious organizations and institutions have NO RIGHT to dictate what is acceptable, allowable or legal under our system of government.

This being the case, they've NO business instructing or telling anyone what the rules or operation of legal health care rules ought to be!

Indeed, as these institutions enjoy a tax free status under law they've NO PLACE in interfering in the determination of rules or the rule of law in the matters of healthcare or any other issue for the reasons of "playing politics" which is clearly outside of their purview as a tax free entity that legally ought not operate to push their own religious dogmas and special interests.

I fully support the previous decision to include full coverage for contraception services and counseling as preventive services is the result of sound judgment about what is good for all society.

Thank You.
