General Comment

I need to know if the advice I am receiving is from someone looking out for my interests or their own. I need to know who a prospective advisor is working for, and if he or she has a personal financial incentive for giving me specific advice as to which funds to invest in.

This has already been extensively analyzed, and there is no public benefit for further delay. The sooner this rule is fully in force, the better for the people it is intended to help.

Thank you for allowing me to comment.
