The Department of Labor,

I am writing in support of the Department of Labor's fiduciary conflict of interest rule and I do not wish to see any delay of its implementation. This rule protects millions of Americans who depend on their retirement savings plans and trust that the financial advisors who sell them these plans are doing so in their best interest, rather than to profit a financial institution.

We deserve to receive high quality, honest advice, not a sales pitch disguised as advice. Delaying and possibly rescinding this rule would allow financial advisers and their firms to continue to engage in harmful practices that can rob clients of financial security in their retirement years. Surely it makes sense to implement this rule on April 10th, as was planned.

Sincerely,
Alana Torraca
