Re: Fiduciary Status

Dear President Trump,

I am writing with concern for your suggestion to possibly reduce or eliminate the fiduciary requirements for retirement advisors. I thought that we were in agreement that the interests of Wall Street were not in all of our best interests and that you were going after their greed. Surely while I hope most investment advisors have their clients best interests in mind while making suggestions for retirement accounts, having a fiduciary status as a requirement will reassure those of us retired, like myself, and those depending on these funds and expecting them, along with social security, to support their life with respect and grace.

Some members of Wall Street have demonstrated again and again that they cannot be trusted to work for all of our best interests. It was my understanding that you agreed with those of us citizens. Please modify and/or revise your directives concerning the fiduciary role of retirement advisors to protect the American public you represent.

Most Sincerely,

Gregory Antipa
