Department of Labor,

I am 75 and I am living off my savings, like most retired Americans. It is extremely offensive to me and undoubtedly most Americans, retired or not, that their savings would be used, and put at risk, by people who are in the financial business to benefit themselves and themselves alone, using other peoples' money.

Preserve the fiduciary rule. Not doing so is enabling theft and corruption. I am sure you are depending on people not understanding what you are trying to do. Otherwise you would not dare propose such an outrageous action as abandoning the fiduciary rule.

S. Singh