General Comment

I feel, in the ever-changing internet based culture the U.S. has that allowing qualified plan administrators to give notice about certain disclosures being posted on a website is certainly acceptable. I commend the push for more efficiency and effective use of agency resources when addressing consistent and costly ERISA disclosures. Allowing agencies to notify via internet or paper (the individuals choice) will help to provide a more effective contact and will lead to more participants/beneficiaries being aware of and seeing disclosures posted on the applicable website.
