General Comment

I strongly oppose the new proposed rule that bars 401k portfolio managers from investing in ESG-related companies. Not only is this pure, undisguised malice aimed at our future generations who will rely on a more sustainable planet and society in order to survive, but it is also financially irresponsible. It has been proven over time that ESG-related companies perform better are in fact less risky than other investments. There is no reason for this rule other than to destroy both our planet and our society and I will not support such efforts in my own country.
