General Comment

I want to provide ESG Funds as an alternative in our company's retirement plan offerings. We all know, the world is changing quickly and that includes the world of finance. Those stronghold funds of the past that have been stable for decades don't have any guarantee that they'll be strong in the future. Take, for example, Chesapeake Energy Corp. For 31 years it performed well but has now filed for bankruptcy. Allowing ESG Funds at least gives fund managers the option of researching promising sustainable companies, which could prove far more profitable in the long run as more and more companies and individuals look to make better decisions for a more healthy, sustainable world.
