General Comment

This regulation is an assault on decency. We need less government regulations designed to favor private interest fossil fuel companies at the expense of socially and environmentally beneficial investments. This is just another example of poor leadership and abuse of power. Let the financial experts do their job and stay out of it. There is no evidence of wrongdoing or that we need the government to step in. Quite frankly we don't need this regulation or the government's control here. It looks very much like big oil company interests are once again paying off our politicians at the expense of the little guy and the air we breathe.
