General Comment

It is absolutely ridiculous to disincentivize ESG investments. It is not up to the federal government to pick winners and losers, only to protect the investor. As oil, coal, and other fossil fuel investments are souring in the public interest, it is only natural for people to seek alternatives and discouraging them from doing that will harm the investors. Oil, coal, and other fossil fuel investments will face many headwinds in the future, resulting in lower valuations and returns. Encouraging investments in stocks of these companies is detrimental to investors.
