General Comment

It seems patently unfair to have pensioners money put at risk because someone has a political agenda. Public sentiment is truly divided on the "ESG" issue and to allow fund managers to force their political view of the "ESG" flies in the face of what I believe is their fiduciary duties. Pension fund managers need to be concerned with the protection and growth of the pension holders money period. There is no other role for them to play. "ESG" investing puts pensioners future at extreme risk and surely is a violation of the fund manager's duty under the law.

This proposed DOL rule protects the retirement funds for all American regardless of their political affiliations. To me that's the priority.
