General Comment

This rule will not lead to better outcomes for the American investor. It requires an undue burden of proof that an investment consideration is allowable regarding sustainability, while not requiring the same burden of proof for any other investment consideration.

This is big government at its worst, and we are frustrated to see this administration leave behind its small government values. In America, we value free thought and decision making. This rule tells us how to think about investing and how not to, under the guise of protecting people's retirements.
