General Comment

I am extremely disturbed by the aspect of this proposed rule change that would limit people's ability to invest in sustainable funds. ESG funds have been around for decades and performance can demonstrably be shown to be as effective as similar classes of investments. As an individual investor, the ability to invest in sustainable funds, in particular those that are helping vs hurting climate change is critical to me. To remove this capability from millions of investors seems like a significant reduction in choice vs a 'protection'.
