General Comment

I depend upon my ability to use options in my self directed retirement accounts to create the returns I need to sustain myself during retirement. This ruling, while well intended will most certainly severely limit my and that of millions of other self directed investors ability to accomplish our goals. Do not punish the millions of retirement savers who are law abiding, responsible citizens with this poorly written attempt to create fairness or as a horribly condescending, paternal effort to protect individuals from the consequences of their own choices. Use targeted rules specifically designed by seasoned, reasonable experts not this blunt overreaching contrivance. Again, do not limit my right to succeed or fail as I make decisions.
