General Comment

Dear representative;

Although the general goal of reducing fees and conflict of interest between brokers and investors in the Proposed Rule is sound, the section restricting the trading of options in IRA accounts seriously undercuts the spirit of the changes.

I have taken the time to learn proper options trading and eliminating my ability to do this in my retirement accounts removes a vitally important method of reducing risk on my portfolio. Options trading availability is very important to growing my retirement funds in a safe and prudent manner. I feel that the current level of options trading verification is adequate in retirement accounts.

Please do not pass this rule in its current form!

Thank you.
