General Comment

RE: Docket ID: EBSA-2010-0050 This notice may be protection for individuals who use investment advisors and/or brokers. And it appears to restrict advisory letters, purchased by individuals from suggesting options in their letters. It also appears to restrict money managers from taking action within IRAs that would include options for any use. HOWEVER, it also appears to restrict the owner of an IRA from making options sales and purchases. This is a violation of my rights as an individual investor. I don't believe it is constitutional to tell me, an individual IRA owner, what I can and cannot buy/sell in my IRAs. If this legislation passes, I will support the class action suit that is being discussed amongst online chat. This is another example of government intervention in private individual matters.
