I just heard about this newly-proposed rule. It totally surprised me. I had to read it several times to try to understand it.

Several years ago, I learned about writing Covered Call Options, a safe and profitable way to generate additional income on my securities holdings. After learning the process, I found that it was considered such a safe investing tool that it was permitted in my IRA brokerage account. Since then, I have added thousands of dollars to my retirement fund, money that I would not otherwise have been able to earn.

I am against this new rule, as it would reduce my ability to make my IRA grow.
