General Comment

I disagree with your statement that "individual retirement investors have much greater responsibility for directing their own investments, but they seldom have the training or specialized expertise necessary to prudently manage retirement assets on their own."

Please. How paternalistic can government get?

Don't limit our ability to trade options in our IRA accounts.

I believe that the drafters of this are well-meaning, but with the vast majority of we citizens are not the fools you take us to be, and I personally am offended by your eagerness to arbitrarily limit the rights of the rest of us to protect the few fools.

Dump this legislation, please. And please turn your attention to removing your well-meaning but misguided foot from the neck of personal freedom.
