General Comment

If this change will prevent investors from using options in their IRA accounts, this change should be stopped.

The use of options in a retirement account allows investors to make returns in the ZIRP environment that otherwise well-intended government fools have created.

You can only have bad unintended consequences with this change - why are you continually trying to destroy what little is left of America's middle class? You probably will not rest until we are all impoverished and living on government assistance, while your retirement benefits remain forever indexed and permanently guaranteed by 'we the people'.

This proposed change is disgusting.
