General Comment

The portion of this rule that would restrict the ability to trade options in an IRA is unfair to those like myself that have taken the time to learn to trade options in a safe manner. I only make option trades on solid businesses (KO, MCD, T, INTC, etc) as a means of generating extra income. This techniques has helped me generate a few thousand dollars over the last couple of years, I am very conservative in this trading but look to continue to use this technique now and after retirement to generate income. This rule would penalize all of us who have educated ourselves to use this trading technique responsibly.
