General Comment

Please do not restrict trading of options within IRAs & ROTH IRAs. Options are wisely used to increase income and to buy insurance protection within an investment portfolio, including within an IRA or ROTH. Regulations envisioned to protect individuals should NOT be made on an account by account definition. If the SEC rules need to be improved for qualifying an individual's ability to use Options, such changes should be applied to individuals without restriction to the account in which that individual wishes to trade Options.

Sincerely, Steve Johnson
