General Comment

It appears this new regulation will restrict the trading of options within an IRA. While in general that may appear to be "safer" for an individual, use of options trading, in particular selling covered calls, done properly, can greatly enhance the performance, income generation, and long-term performance of an IRA.

As such, if this regulations restricts use of options trading in the IRA, I personally feel this is a mistake and will result in a personal loss to me.

I kindly request you reconsider this provision.

Respectfully,

Terry Starbuck
