General Comment

While I have never traded options through my retirement account, I know people who do as a means of reducing risk. Let me repeat that, they use options as a means of reducing risk in their retirement accounts. More importantly, let people live their lives. If they want to assume risk, let them. We are not children, and are capable of weighing risks and making decisions. Please, do not restrict options trading in retirement accounts, and leave us to be free to make decisions and live our lives.
