To whom it may concern,

Please cancel the above rule where options cannot be traded in an IRA retirement account.

I personally supplement my retirement income by using options. It takes away a method to assume less risk, while still having the ability to increase one's retirement account.

The brokerage companies do a very good job of qualifying people as to whether they are capable of trading options.

We do not need government to pass a blanket ruling which would help no one, while hurting many.
