Dear Labor:

Recently, I became aware of a proposed rule that would require brokers to act in the best interest of their clients rather than be allowed to enrich themselves at their clients' expense.

It is appalling that many in the financial services industry are opposing this rule. The resistance to this rule shows just how much the rule is needed.

As a citizen I respectfully ask that our elected representatives and government agencies prioritize the interests of those struggling to save for retirement rather than allowing the savings of Americans to be used as the personal piggyback of brokers who wish to put their own interests before clients.

Sincerely,

Mr. Randy Christensen
