

Planning Your Financial Future Webcast

April 27, 2022 2:00 pm – 3:30 pm

For college seniors and new entrants to the workforce, now is probably an exciting time in your life – a new job, new responsibilities, and new challenges! This is also a good time to start building your financial future. Starting this new phase of your life highlights the need for understanding basic financial steps you can take, like budgeting and managing debt. This is the key to your financial security, both now and in the future.

The pandemic presented new challenges in the economy and job market, and we know there are many financial demands you face. Some are immediate, like rent and student loan payments, and some are long-term goals, like saving for a home and retirement.

To help you get started, the U.S. Department of Labor, the U.S. Department of Education and the Federal Trade Commission will provide information and tools for creating your own financial plan to manage your money. Take charge of your financial future – join us for discussions on student loans, budgeting, credit and credit scores, managing debt, setting financial goals, taking advantage of employee benefits, saving for retirement, and more.

Develop the knowledge and habits to achieve your financial goals and long-term financial security. Start now so you can do the things you want to do in the future. The sooner you start planning and saving, the easier it will be. Get time on your side and sign up for this free webcast today!

Please register for the webcast and the link for the event will be emailed to you.

Individuals with disabilities who need special accommodations please email humphries.mark@dol.gov.

The list of attendees will be available upon request. Please email humphries.mark@dol.gov if you do not want your name shared.