SOURCE DOCUMENTATION REQUIREMENTS FOR FISCAL YEAR
(FY) 2010 TAA DATA ELEMENT VALIDATION

Trade Adjustment Assistance Data Element Validation Instructions

Validation Instruction: These instructions present the data elements, reference numbers, formats, element definitions, federal sources, state/grantee sources, and validation rules needed to perform data element validation. The federal sources are the generic, federally recommended source documentation. The "State/Grantee Sources" column can be used to enter state-specific versions of the federally approved documentation.

VALIDATION RULES

Two types of validation rules exist:

1. If the validation instruction says MATCH: Enter a checkmark in the box in the pass column if the data on the worksheet match the data in the source documentation. Enter a checkmark in the box in the fail column if the data on the worksheet do not match the data in the source documentation or if no source documentation is found.

To match, the data on the worksheet must be the same as the data in the source documentation. For example, if the worksheet says a participant's date of exit is July 1, 2002, then the source documentation must also have July 1, 2002 as the exit date. The validator must validate all data elements that have checkboxes next to them.

2. If the validation instruction says SUPPORT: Enter a checkmark in the box in the pass column if the data on the worksheet are supported by the data in the source documentation. Enter a checkmark in the box in the fail column if the data on the worksheet are not supported by the data in the source documentation or if no source documentation is found.

To support, the data on the source documentation must provide evidence that the data on the worksheet are correct. This instruction is used when information must be interpreted or processed before it can be used to assess the accuracy of the data on the participant records. For example, source documentation can support waiver from training requirement.

MISSING AND INVALID RECORDS

There are four conditions used to describe higher level data problems:

1. If a record is missing from the office in which it is supposed to be, the validator should check the box at the top of the worksheet that says "Missing Record." No other elements should be validated.

2. If the validator cannot determine where a record is supposed to be located, the validator should check the box at the top of the worksheet that says "Unable to Locate." No other elements should be validated.

3. If a record for a person not registered in TAA has wrongly been included in the extract file, the validator should check the box at the top of the worksheet that says "Invalid Record." No other elements should be validated.

4. If a record has a wrong Social Security Number (SSN), the validator should check the "Wrong SSN" checkbox AND validate all data elements listed on the worksheet.

TYPES OF SOURCE DOCUMENTATION

For most data elements, the validation instructions provide multiple forms of acceptable source documentation. If the state collects multiple sources for the same data element and the sources conflict, the most reliable source should be used to determine if the element passes or fails. For example, for Employed in first full quarter after exit (Ref# 11) UI wage records are more reliable than supplemental data sources. Validators should use their best judgment when deciding the most reliable source to validate an element.

For the most part, definition of a particular source is clear. States have, however, had questions about three sources -- Cross-Match, State Management Information System (MIS), and Case Notes. Definitions for these elements are:

- 1. Cross-Match: A cross-match requires validators to find detailed supporting evidence for the data element. An indicator or presence of an SSN in a non-TAA database is not sufficient evidence. For example, veteran status can be determined by a cross-match with the veteran's database. It is not sufficient to find that the sampled SSN is present in this database; validators must also find dates of service, separation, and discharge information.*
- 2. State MIS: Unless otherwise noted, state MIS refers to specific, detailed information that is stored in the state information system that supports an element. An indicator, such as a checkmark on a computer screen, alone is not acceptable source documentation. For example, state MIS is acceptable source documentation for date entered training. To be an acceptable source to validate this date, in addition to the date of first training, the state MIS should have detailed information about the type of training and the organization that provided the training. This detailed information makes valid source documentation and makes it unnecessary for such states to validate this data element in local offices.*
- 3. Case Notes: Case notes refer to either paper or online statements by the case manager that identify a participant's status for a specific data element, the date on which the information was obtained, and the case manager who obtained the information.*
