

Application for Reconsideration Trade Adjustment Assistance (TAA) and Alternative Trade Adjustment Assistance (ATAA) for Workers

PROCESSING INSTRUCTIONS

Background. The Trade Adjustment Assistance (TAA) and Alternative Trade Adjustment Assistance (ATAA) for Workers program (TAA/ATAA program) is authorized under Title II of the Trade Act of 1974, as amended (19 U.S.C. § 2271 et seq.) (“the Act”). The TAA program provides workers who have been adversely affected by foreign trade with opportunities to obtain skills, credentials, resources, and support necessary to become reemployed. The TAA/ATAA program offers the following services to eligible workers: employment and case management services, training, out of area job search and relocation allowances, income support, as well as, additional benefits for workers age 50 or older to find reemployment and additional support. Filing a petition is the first step in qualifying for TAA/ATAA program benefits and services. In response to a filing, the Department conducts an investigation to determine whether foreign trade was an important cause of the workers’ job loss or threat of job separation. After the investigation, the Department issues a determination regarding the worker group’s eligibility to apply for TAA/ATAA program benefits and services. A state workforce representative will notify workers in a certified worker group of the determination, at which time the individual worker may apply for eligibility of benefits and services at a local American Job Center. Additional information is available on our website at www.dol.gov/agencies/eta/tradeact/.

Filing Instructions. A request for reconsideration applies to a petition for certification of eligibility to apply for adjustment assistance for a group of workers that was terminated or for which a negative determination was rendered following an investigation by the Department, or for the termination or partial termination of a certification. A valid application for reconsideration, including attachments, is treated as a public document.

Who May File an Application for Reconsideration?

- A worker; a union or other duly authorized representative of such worker(s) in the firm; the employer(s) of such worker(s); American Job Center operators or partners, including State workforce officials, employment security agencies, or dislocated worker unit and rapid response team members.

How to File a Valid Application for Reconsideration:

- The following information must be completed for an application for reconsideration to be considered valid: the name and contact information of the applicant(s); the name or a description of the group of workers on whose behalf the application for reconsideration is filed; the petition number identified on the petition or determination that is the subject of the application for reconsideration; the reasons for believing that the termination of the investigation, denial, or termination or partial termination of a certification is erroneous, including any issues which the applicant asserts require further investigation; any information that may support the application for reconsideration, including material not considered prior to the termination of the investigation, denial, or termination or partial termination of a certification; and the signature(s) of the party, or representative thereof, requesting reconsideration. Required fields are marked with an asterisk (*).

How to File an Application for Reconsideration with the U.S. Department of Labor:

There are three methods to file an application for reconsideration with the Department. Please submit the application using only one of the methods below; submitting the same application using multiple methods will not speed the process but can slow the process.
