

In 2015, Nicaragua made a moderate advancement in efforts to eliminate the worst forms of child labor. The Government conducted its first human trafficking prosecutions under the Law Against Trafficking in Persons, which went into effect in February 2015 and raises penalties for the trafficking of children and adolescents to 19 to 20 years' imprisonment. The Government also reported conducting trafficking in persons prevention and awareness programs that reached 112,359 individuals, including law enforcement officials. The Ministry of Education expanded the National School Supply Program, which provided 700,000 packages of school supplies and 3 million textbooks to children in need. However, children in Nicaragua are engaged in the worst forms of child labor, including in street work and in commercial sexual exploitation sometimes as a result of human trafficking. National policies to eliminate child labor and protect children have not been fully implemented, and the Government appears to lack a specific and consistent mechanism to coordinate efforts to address child labor. In addition, the Labor Inspectorate is reported to lack the human and financial resources it needs to adequately enforce child labor laws across the country.

I. PREVALENCE AND SECTORAL DISTRIBUTION OF CHILD LABOR

Children in Nicaragua are engaged in the worst forms of child labor, including in street work and in commercial sexual exploitation sometimes as a result of human trafficking.(1-4) Table 1 provides key indicators on children's work and education in Nicaragua.

Data on working children, school attendance, and children combining work and school are not comparable with data published in the previous version of this report because of differences between surveys used to collect the data.(6)

‡ Child labor understood as the worst forms of child labor per se under Article 3(a) – (c) of ILO C. 182.

In Nicaragua, children are subjected to commercial sexual exploitation, particularly in Granada, Managua, the Caribbean Coast, and San Juan del Sur.(27, 30) It has been reported that children in Nicaragua who lack identification documents, sometimes because of a lack of birth registration, are at an increased risk of human trafficking and commercial sexual exploitation.(8) An estimated 20 percent of children born in Nicaragua lack birth certificates.(31)

Education is free and compulsory in Nicaragua. However, costs associated with school supplies and transportation make it difficult for some children, in particular those from poor backgrounds and rural areas, including the Caribbean coastal region, to attend.(23, 32-34) Some sources indicate that secondary schools have not received adequate assistance and that secondary school attendance remains low, increasing the risk that older children engage in exploitative work.(3, 30, 34)

II. LEGAL FRAMEWORK FOR THE WORST FORMS OF CHILD LABOR

The National Assembly approved the Law Against Trafficking in Persons – Nicaragua’s first anti-trafficking law – through a two-stage process in December 2014 and January 2015; it was enacted in February 2015.(41, 46) The law amends the Penal Code by raising penalties for the procurement of prostitution from 4 to 6 years’ imprisonment to 8 to 10 years; it also applies these penalties to an expanded set of criminal offenses that include benefitting commercially from and managing prostitution.(40, 41) These penalties are increased to 12 to 15 years’ imprisonment when the victim is a child or adolescent. The law also raises penalties for the trafficking of children and adolescents from 10 to 12 years’ imprisonment to 19 to 20 years.(40, 41) Additionally, the law specifies that exploitative child labor figures among an expanded set of criminal offences that may be prosecuted as human trafficking.(41)

Nicaraguan law is not clear regarding the age up to which education is compulsory. Article 121 of the Constitution states that primary school education is compulsory without specifying an age.(38) Under Articles 19 and 23 of the Education Law, education is compulsory only through the sixth grade, which it specifies is up to age 12 and the end of primary school.(44) Article 43 of the Childhood and Adolescence Code states that both primary and secondary school education are compulsory, suggesting up to age 17, but does not specifically state an age.(37) The lack of clarity regarding the age up to which education is compulsory and the potential gap between the compulsory education age and the minimum age for work may leave children vulnerable to child labor, including its worst forms.(3, 47)

III. ENFORCEMENT OF LAWS ON THE WORST FORMS OF CHILD LABOR

The Government has established institutional mechanisms for the enforcement of laws and regulations on child labor, including its worst forms (Table 5).

Table 5. Agencies Responsible for Child Labor Law Enforcement

Organization/Agency	Role
Ministry of Labor (MITRAB)	Enforce labor laws and set child labor policy priorities.(19, 48) Conduct labor inspections through its General Labor Inspectorate, including child labor inspections through its Child Labor Inspections Unit. Conduct training on child labor issues and inspections, and coordinate with other public and private agencies.(9, 49, 50) Maintain a mailbox in each of Nicaragua’s 17 departments to receive complaints of child labor violations.(51)
Nicaraguan National Police (NNP)	Investigate cases of child labor and human trafficking through the Police Intelligence Unit, which detects crimes; the Special Crimes Unit, which investigates crimes; and 54 Women’s Commissions, which work on prevention and protection.(9, 19, 49) Maintain a hotline for receiving reports on the welfare of children, including those in danger of exploitation.(51)
Ministry of Governance	Coordinate participation between MITRAB and NNP in labor inspections in which employers resist inspection.(51)
Prosecutor General’s Office	Prosecute cases of child trafficking, commercial sexual exploitation, and the use of children in illicit activities. Contains 2 national-level and 35 department-level prosecutors that prosecute these and other crimes.(9, 19, 49)
Human Rights Attorney for Children	Assist in the enforcement of laws relating to child labor and hazardous child labor.(9, 19)
Ministry of the Family, Adolescence, and Childhood (MIFAN)	Maintain a hotline for receiving reports on human trafficking and commercial sexual exploitation.(51) Assist in providing officials with training on child labor violations.(31)

In 2015, the overall budget for the Ministry of Labor (MITRAB) was approximately $3 million, with approximately $1 million allocated for the labor inspectorate.(52) NGO’s report that MITRAB’s budget is the third-lowest of all government ministries and that MITRAB lacks sufficient resources to adequately enforce child labor laws.(51, 52)

During the reporting period, MITRAB employed 98 labor inspectors whose responsibilities included investigating child labor violations. NGO’s report that the number of inspectors is insufficient to address the scope of the child labor problem in Nicaragua.(19) According to the ILO’s recommendation of one inspector for every 15,000 workers in industrializing economies, Nicaragua should employ roughly 199 inspectors in order to adequately enforce labor laws throughout the country.(55-57)

MITRAB reported conducting 1,321 inspections of worksites from January to November 2015.(52) Also during the reporting period, the Government conducted 1,272 inspections that focused on commercial sexual exploitation and forced labor that were preventative in nature.(53) Government officials and child labor experts have reported that child labor inspections throughout the country, and those in agricultural areas in particular, are limited due to resource and personnel constraints.(9, 19, 51) Complete information on the geographic distribution of labor inspections and the sectors in which they occurred was not publicly available.(51)

As a result of inspections, MITRAB reported 539 infractions of child labor laws.(52) Among these, 86 children were found working in hazardous conditions. MITRAB reported removing these children from hazardous work and referring them for services.(52) However, research could not determine whether a reciprocal referral mechanism exists between social service providers and labor authorities.

Criminal Law Enforcement

In 2015, criminal law enforcement agencies in Nicaragua took actions to combat the worst forms of child labor (Table 7).

Table 7. Criminal Law Enforcement Efforts Related to the Worst Forms of Child Labor

The Government reported that criminal law enforcement officials received training on the new Law Against Trafficking in Persons, which went into effect on February 25, 2015.(53) The Government also reported conducting human trafficking prevention and awareness programs that reached 112,359 individuals. Participants included government criminal investigators, prosecutors, judges, and other law enforcement officials.(53) Research did not find the number of criminal investigators employed by the Nicaraguan National Police (NNP) or Prosecutor General’s Office during the reporting period.

The Government reported that as of February 2015, the Law Against Trafficking in Persons was the principal basis for all suspected human trafficking prosecutions and related convictions.(53) However, NGOs that work on human trafficking issues reported that the number of investigations was low compared with the scope of the problem.(53)

In 2015, the budget for the NNP and the Prosecutor General’s Office was not made publicly available. Reports from NGOs indicate that the NNP has insufficient resources, including a lack of personnel, equipment, vehicles, and funding, to carry out criminal investigations. NGO’s also report that the NNP’s Women’s Commissions are functionally inoperational.(31, 46, 54)

The Government and NGOs have reported that, according to a process developed by the National Coalition Against Trafficking in Persons (CNCTP), victims of the worst forms of child labor are referred by the NNP to the Ministry of the Family, Adolescence, and Childhood (MIFAN), which then refers them to NGOs for services. Reports indicate that this method of referral has been successful.(46)

IV. COORDINATION OF GOVERNMENT EFFORTS ON THE WORST FORMS OF CHILD LABOR

The Government has established mechanisms to coordinate its efforts to address child labor, including its worst forms (Table 8).

Table 8. Mechanisms to Coordinate Government Efforts on Child Labor

Coordinating Body	Role & Description
National Social Welfare System (SNBS)	Coordinate efforts on child labor and ensure that government institutions protect the rights of, and provide social services to, children and adolescents as part of its mandate to assist the Nicaraguan population. Nicaragua

MODERATE ADVANCEMENT

Coordinating Body	Role & Description
National Coalition Against Trafficking in Persons (CNCTP)	Coordinate efforts to address human trafficking for labor and commercial sexual exploitation, including the implementation of the Strategic Plan Against Trafficking in Persons. Led by the Ministry of Governance and comprising the NNP, Prosecutor General's Office, governmental ministries, the Supreme Court of Justice, and civil society organizations.(19, 41, 53, 58) Coordinate Nicaragua's participation in the Central American Regional Coalition Against Trafficking in Persons.(31)
Ministry of the Family, Adolescence, and Childhood (MIFAN)	Maintain a guide for the provision of assistance to victims of commercial sexual exploitation and coordinate between agencies responsible for their care.(30) Part of the SNBS.(51)

In 2015, the Government reported that the National Social Welfare System (SNBS) is the mechanism that coordinates efforts to address child labor.(51, 52) However, NGO reports indicate that the SNBS does not comprise a specific and consistent coordinating mechanism due to limited coordination among constituent ministries and a lack of resources dedicated to combating child labor.(51) Coordination between the SNBS and NGOs that address child labor is also limited. In addition, research did not find that the SNBS published information during the reporting period on its child labor coordination efforts or how it monitored the implementation of national policies, such as the Strategic Plan for the Prevention and Elimination of Child Labor and the Protection of Young Workers (PEPETI).(52)

NGOs working on human trafficking issues reported that the CNCTP, as well as its regional working groups, were largely inactive following the enactment of the Law Against Trafficking in Persons in February 2015. Reports also indicate that the CNCTP did not appoint its Executive Secretariat, which is mandated by the Law Against Trafficking in Persons.(53)

While MIFAN maintains a guide for providing assistance to child victims of commercial sexual exploitation, reports indicate that the Government had no formal procedures for the identification of human trafficking victims among high-risk populations, including children who are trafficked for commercial sexual exploitation.(30, 46) MIFAN appears to be responsible only for the care of child trafficking victims under age 13, and the extent of its coordinating role is unclear.(30, 58)

V. GOVERNMENT POLICIES ON THE WORST FORMS OF CHILD LABOR

The Government of Nicaragua has established policies related to child labor, including its worst forms (Table 9).

Table 9. Policies Related to Child Labor

Policy	Description
Roadmap for the Elimination of the Worst Forms of Child Labor	Sets the goal of eliminating the worst forms of child labor by 2016, and all forms of child labor by 2020.(51, 59, 60)

Plan of Integrated Attention	Prioritizes assistance for children and adolescents who work in stone quarries, mines, and in African palm cultivation. Involves coordination among several national ministries and local municipalities in order to determine the extent of child labor; create an action plan to uphold the rights of working children and adolescents to education, recreation, and health care; and promote better livelihoods for the families of working children and adolescents.(48, 64, 65)

Policy	Description
Inter-Ministerial Agreement on the Sustained Development of Children's Rights (2013)	Aims to make Nicaragua a country free from child labor, including hazardous child labor, through inter-ministerial cooperation channeled through the SNBS. Participating ministries agree to jointly create an action plan to address child labor and to generate dignified work for adolescents permitted to work.(67) Signed by MITRAB, MIFAN, MINED, the Presidents of the National Assembly and the Supreme Court, as well as by representatives from unions, the private sector, and NGOs.(67)
Policy on Special Protection for Children and Adolescents (Decreto No. 20-2006)	Focuses and consolidates the Government's guiding principles, objectives, and strategies on children's and adolescents' rights. Seeks to mainstream the recognition and defense of children's rights, including protections against child labor and commercial sexual exploitation, in policy areas such as social protection, development, and education.(68)
National Coalition Against Trafficking in Persons Strategic Plan (2014–2015)	Addresses human trafficking through directives shared by national and international public and private actors. Focuses on planning and monitoring efforts for awareness-raising, prevention, prosecution, and assistance for victims and their reintegration.(46)
Strategic Education Plan (PEE) (2011–2015)*	Articulates national educational strategies with development objectives that prioritize the building of human capital. Based on three core areas: (1) equality of access to free, universal education; (2) improved quality; and (3) increased institutional strength.(69, 70)
Declaration of the Regional Initiative: Latin America and the Caribbean Free of Child Labor (2014–2020)	Aims to increase regional cooperation on eradicating child labor by 2020 through signatories' efforts to strengthen monitoring and coordination mechanisms, government programs, and South-South exchanges. Reaffirms commitments made in the Brasilia Declaration from the Third Global Conference on Child Labor (October 2013), and signed by Nicaragua at the ILO's 18th Regional Meeting of the Americas in Lima, Peru (October 2014).(71-73)
Declaration of the Vice-Ministers of the XX Regional Conference on Migration†	Aims to strengthen regional cooperation in order to protect the human rights of migrants, especially youth and children, in countries of origin, transit, and destination, including by increasing opportunities for education and employment. Adopted by Nicaragua at the XX Regional Conference on Migration in Mexico City (November, 2015).(74-76)
XIX Inter-American Conference of Ministers of Labor†	Promotes decent work with social inclusion throughout the Americas. Held in Cancún, Mexico; participating countries adopted the Declaration of Cancún 2015 which aims in part to foster policies to eliminate labor exploitation, including child labor, and to promote education and vocational training for youth.(77, 78) Participating countries also adopted a Plan of Action that prioritizes the elimination of child labor, including through data collection, enforcement of labor laws, and the development of social protection policies for children and families.(77, 79)
Panama Declaration (2012)	Establishes commitments among Central American countries, Belize, and the Dominican Republic to implement country-based actions to eradicate the worst forms of child labor. MITRAB highlighted good practices and lessons learned from its child labor programs in coffee plantations and stone quarries.(80-85)

* Child labor elimination and prevention strategies do not appear to have been integrated into this policy.

† Policy was approved during the reporting period.

The Government's Roadmap for the Elimination of the Worst Forms of Child Labor sets the goal of eliminating child labor in Nicaragua by 2020. However, research has not found a comprehensive action plan for its full implementation.(3, 86) The Government has developed a Strategic Plan to combat human trafficking through the CNCTP for 2014–2015.(46) However, research did not find information on this Strategic Plan publicly available, and the full extent of its implementation is unknown.(46, 53) NGOs working on human trafficking issues have reported that the Government lacks adequate resources to implement the victim care assistance procedures prescribed in the plan.(53)

VI. SOCIAL PROGRAMS TO ADDRESS CHILD LABOR

In 2015, the Government of Nicaragua funded and participated in programs that include the goal of eliminating or preventing child labor, including its worst forms (Table 10).

Table 10. Social Programs to Address Child Labor

Program	Description
Program Lovet (Programa Amor)	MIFAN program that targets 20,000 children, primarily in Managua, who are impoverished or involved in child labor, including in street vending and garbage scavenging. Provides education for children and vocational training for parents.(19, 48, 58, 87, 88) Overseen by Nicaragua's First Lady in coordination with the, MINED, MINSa, MITRAB, and the Ministry of Governance.(87) Includes children from birth to age 6 through "Program Love for the Smallest Ones".(19, 89) In 2015, the program reported reaching 18,415 children and adolescents through a range of initiatives, including by providing educational materials and tutoring to help children complete school.(52)

Program	Description
First, I Learn (Primero, Aprendo)	Regional project supported by the European Union that promoted the eradication of child labor through access to education, among other avenues, in support of the Roadmap to Eliminate Child Labor.(90, 91) In Nicaragua, served children working in the agricultural sector in Jinotega.(92) Program ended in 2015.(52)
Educational Bridges (Puentes Educativos)†	MITRAB and MINED public-private partnership that provides education to children of coffee workers to prevent child labor during coffee harvests.(93-95) In 2015, the program continued to maintain and secure commitments from coffee farms to eliminate child labor in coffee production.(96)
Integral School Meal Program (Merienda Escolar)†	MIFAN and WFP initiative that provides more than 1 million children and adolescents meals at school to address poverty and bolster school attendance.(97, 98) Program is 70 percent funded by the Government of Nicaragua.(99) Plans to assist approximately 1.2 million children in 2016.(100)
National School Supply Program	MINED program to distribute packages of school supplies to preschool and primary school children in the poorest districts to increase attendance and completion rates. In 2014, program assisted 400,000 children.(101) In 2015, MINED expanded the program to provide 700,000 packages of school supplies to children from families in need. Program also provided 1.4 million textbooks to children in primary school, and 1.6 million textbooks to children in secondary school.(102)
La Chureca Project	$50 million Government of Spain-funded project that closed La Chureca garbage dump in Managua in 2013 and opened a recycling plant in its place. Accomplishments include the creation of a school that keeps children out of child labor, construction of houses, and employment for 258 families who had worked scavenging in the garbage dump.(103-106) In 2015, continued to assist beneficiaries.(107)
Birth Registration Campaign (Derecho a un Nombre)	Government initiative, in coordination with Save the Children and UNICEF, to advance birth registration campaigns.(31, 60, 108)
Pro-Child Program (Proniño)	MINED and Telefónica Foundation public-private partnership that increases educational opportunities for children to reduce and prevent child labor in line with ILO goals to eradicate the worst forms of child labor by 2020. Implemented with the assistance of local NGOs, assists children, families, and schools by helping to strengthen curricula and by working to support families' commitments to ensure children attend school.(109-111)
Elimination of Child Labor in Latin America (Phase 4) (2011–2015)	$4.5 million Government of Spain-funded, 4-year project implemented by ILO-IPEC to combat child labor in 19 countries, including Nicaragua.(112)
Education and Monitoring Program for the Eradication of Child Labor (2012–2015)	$1.3 million Government of Spain-funded, 2-year project implemented by ILO-IPEC that aims to strengthen public policies and government capacity to combat child labor in 19 countries in Latin America, including Nicaragua. Includes the objective of developing information systems on the worst forms of child labor.(112)

† Program is funded by the Government of Nicaragua.

The scope of current social programs does not appear to be sufficient to assist children who are trafficked or engaged in the worst forms of child labor, including commercial sexual exploitation.(19) While the Government provides medical, educational, and legal assistance to trafficking victims, international organizations and NGOs provide their shelter, food, clothing, and psychological assistance.(9, 46, 113) NGOs indicate that the regions most affected by human trafficking lack adequate care facilities, and that victims of the worst forms of child labor in these areas are referred to NGO shelters in Managua.(46)

NGOs also indicate that Program Love lacks overall effectiveness and transparency.(7, 9, 19) For example, while the Government reported that Program Love assisted 18,415 children and adolescents during the reporting period, information on the kind of assistance provided to beneficiaries, including on whether beneficiaries were engaged in child labor, was not publicly available.(51, 52)

Although the Government's birth registration campaign is advancing, it does not reach all children, especially in remote areas, and many children lack the documentation needed to access basic services.(108, 114-116) In an effort to promote birth registrations, Nicaragua's new Family Code, which was passed in 2014 and went into effect in 2015, provides for free birth registrations up to age 7.(60, 117)

VII. SUGGESTED GOVERNMENT ACTIONS TO ELIMINATE THE WORST FORMS OF CHILD LABOR

Based on the reporting above, suggested actions are identified that would advance the elimination of child labor, including its worst forms, in Nicaragua (Table 11).

Table 11. Suggested Government Actions to Eliminate Child Labor, Including its Worst Forms

Data provided is the gross intake ratio to the last grade of primary school. This measure is a proxy measure for primary completion. This ratio is the total number of new entrants in the last grade of primary education, regardless of age, expressed as a percentage of the population at the theoretical entrance age to the last grade of primary. A high ratio indicates a high degree of current primary education completion. Because the calculation includes all new entrants to last grade (regardless of age), the ratio can exceed 100 percent, due to over-aged and under-aged children who enter

55. CIA. The World Factbook, [online] [cited March 18, 2016]; <https://www.cia.gov/library/publications/the-world-factbook/fields/2095.html#131>. Data provided is the most recent estimate of the country's total labor force. This number is used to calculate a "sufficient number" of labor inspectors based on the country's level of development as determined by the UN.
56. ILO. Strategies and Practice for Labour Inspection. Geneva, Committee on Employment and Social Policy; November 2006. <http://www.ilo.org/public/english/standards/relm/gb/docs/gb297/pdf/esp-3.pdf>. Article 10 of ILO Convention No. 81 calls for a "sufficient number" of inspectors to do the work required. As each country assigns different priorities of enforcement to its inspectors, there is no official definition for a "sufficient" number of inspectors. Amongst the factors that need to be taken into account are the number and size of establishments and the total size of the workforce. No single measure is sufficient but in many countries the available data sources are weak. The number of inspectors per worker is currently the only internationally comparable indicator available. In its policy and technical advisory services, the ILO has taken as reasonable benchmarks that the number of labor inspectors in relation to workers should approach: 1/10,000 in industrial market economies; 1/15,000 in industrializing economies; 1/20,000 in transition economies; and 1/40,000 in less developed countries.
57. UN. World Economic Situation and Prospects 2012 Statistical Annex. New York; 2012. http://www.un.org/en/development/desa/policy/wesp/wesp_current/2012country_class.pdf. For analytical purposes, the Development Policy and Analysis Division (DPAD) of the Department of Economic and Social Affairs of the United Nations Secretariat (UN/DESA) classifies all countries of the world into one of three broad categories: developed economies, economies in transition, and developing countries. The composition of these groupings is intended to reflect basic economic country conditions. Several countries (in particular the economies in transition) have characteristics that could place them in more than one category; however, for purposes of analysis, the groupings have been made mutually exclusive. The list of the least developed countries is decided upon by the United Nations Economic and Social Council and, ultimately, by the General Assembly, on the basis of recommendations made by the Committee for Development Policy. The basic criteria for inclusion require that certain thresholds be met with regard to per capita GNI, a human assets index and an economic vulnerability index. For the purposes of the Findings on the Worst Forms of Child Labor Report, "developed economies" equate to the ILO's classification of "industrial market economies," "economies in transition" to "transition economies," "developing countries" to "industrializing economies, and "the least developed countries" equates to "less developed countries." For countries that appear on both "developing countries" and "least developed countries" lists, they will be considered "least developed countries" for the purpose of calculating a "sufficient number" of labor inspectors.
