Departments of Social Welfare and Public Prosecutions	Enforces laws on child trafficking. (31) Operates four homes and provides social services for child trafficking victims. (8,35)

In 2018, it was reported that the Fiji Police Force and the Department of Immigration began meeting quarterly to discuss human trafficking issues involving foreign nationals.(7) In addition, during the reporting period, the Fiji Police Force formalized the Human Trafficking Unit (HTU) to improve police anti-trafficking efforts within the country. (17)

Labor Law Enforcement

In 2018, labor law enforcement agencies in Fiji took actions to combat child labor (Table 6). However, gaps exist within the operations of MEPIR that may hinder adequate labor law enforcement, including a decrease in the number of labor inspectors.

Table 6. Labor Law Enforcement Efforts Related to Child Labor

Overview of Labor Law Enforcement	2017	2018
Labor Inspectorate Funding	Unknown	$3.25 million (7)
Number of Labor Inspectors	106 (36)	71 (7)

Complaint Mechanism Exists	Yes (2)	Yes (7)
Reciprocal Referral Mechanism Exists Between Labor Authorities and Social Services	Yes (2)	Yes (7)

In 2018, MEPIR set a goal of conducting 4,600 labor inspections between June 2018 and June 2019. (7) This would include 3,800 inspections in the formal sector, 800 in the informal sector, and 30 in child labor. The Ministry has also set the reduction of child labor as a strategic priority for the government, allocating a budget of $160,000 budget to meet this goal.(7) MEPIR conducted outreach campaigns, including an additional 12,000 inspections in rural areas such as sugarcane farms.(7,38)

The Child Labor Unit within MEPIR was disbanded, and now all labor inspectors are expected to look for child labor violations during inspections.(7) Inspections are conducted in the workers' language, including English, Fijian Hindi, and vernacular Fijian. (2) Unannounced inspections are permitted within the informal sector, but inspectors must first seek the business owners' permission before conducting the inspection. If there is reasonable cause to believe that prior notification of an inspection will prejudice the performance of the inspector's duties, a police officer must accompany the inspector during the inspection. (7)

The Ministry of Women, Children, and Poverty Alleviation continued to fund the National Child Helpline for children who seek counseling, advice, and referrals for support services, and those who use it to report cases of child neglect and abuse. Research suggests that the helpline has received 33,643 calls since it was established in 2016. (37,39) In addition, the Inter-agency Committee on Child Abuse is responsible for sharing information on child labor cases, and when a referral is made, the committee is required to monitor the case. (2,4,7)

Criminal Law Enforcement

In 2018, criminal law enforcement agencies in Fiji took actions to combat child labor (Table 7). However, gaps exist within the operations of the criminal enforcement agencies that may hinder adequate criminal law enforcement, including training for criminal investigators.

Table 7. Criminal Law Enforcement Efforts Related to Child Labor

Overview of Criminal Law Enforcement	2017	2018
Initial Training for New Criminal Investigators	Unknown	Yes (7)
Training on New Laws Related to the Worst Forms of Child Labor	N/A (2)	N/A (7)
Refresher Courses Provided	Unknown	Yes (7)
Number of Investigations	Unknown	2 (7)
Number of Violations Found	Unknown	2 (7)
Number of Prosecutions Initiated	0 (37)	1 (7)
Number of Convictions	0 (37)	0 (7)
Imposed Penalties for Violations Related to The Worst Forms of Child Labor	Unknown	Unknown (40)
Reciprocal Referral Mechanism Exists Between Criminal Authorities and Social Services	Yes (2)	Yes (7)

During the reporting period, subject matter experts conducted 10 lectures on human trafficking topics, including the exploitation of child labor, for law enforcement officials. (7) Additionally, the HTU conducted seven major trafficking-in-persons awareness trainings, including for new police recruits and public prosecutors. (17)

In Fiji, child labor cases can be referred, on a case-by-case basis, to the Department of Social Welfare and Public Prosecutions by criminal authority agencies, including the Fiji Police Force. (2,7)

During the reporting period, there were two criminal investigations into child labor, specifically involving the “selling of minors under the age of 18 years,” and “aggravated sexual servitude and domestic trafficking in children.” (7) In the ongoing case of aggravated sexual servitude and domestic trafficking of children, the accused was charged with one count of aggravated sexual servitude and three counts of domestic trafficking. There were no convictions during the reporting period. (7)

IV. COORDINATION OF GOVERNMENT EFFORTS ON CHILD LABOR

The government has established mechanisms to coordinate its efforts to address child labor (Table 8). However, gaps exist that hinder the effective coordination of efforts to address child labor, including the inactivity of the Inter-Agency Trafficking Task Force.

Table 8. Key Mechanisms to Coordinate Government Efforts on Child Labor

Coordinating Body	Role & Description
Inter-Agency Network	Chaired by the Ministry of Labor. (38) Focuses on child labor issues at the district and provincial level. Monitors and reports cases of non-compliance. (41) Comprises inter-agency committees in nine towns in Fiji. (35,36) This body was active during the reporting period.
Inter-Agency Taskforce on Beggars	Addresses issues concerning children who beg and other exploited children. (35) Enforces zero-tolerance policy on child begging. (9) Ministry of Social Welfare and police regularly conduct patrols to identify and assist children. This body was active during the reporting period. (38)
Inter-Agency Trafficking Task Force	Implements the National Plan of Action to Eradicate Trafficking in Persons and Child Trafficking. Headed by the Department of Immigration. (8,35,36)

MODERATE ADVANCEMENT

Coordinating Body	Role & Description
Inter-Agency Committee on Child Abuse	Develops policies and procedures for the prevention of child labor, including training for communities, schools, and industries in which child labor occurs. (37) Investigates child labor cases, refers children to school, and monitors the cases when a referral is made. (2,4,7,37) Shares information on child labor cases, including the worst forms of child labor. (7) During the reporting period, data from 2016-2017 were released that indicated the committee co-facilitated 59 Prevention of Child Abuse and Neglect campaigns.
Regional Inter-Agency Committees on Child Abuse	Works on child labor issues. Comprising NGOs, Fiji Police Force, Public Prosecutor's Office, Solicitor General's Office, Department of Social Welfare, MEPIR, Ministry of Health, and Ministry of Education. (7)

The Inter-Agency Trafficking Task Force has not been active since 2012, and the lack of coordination may limit the government's effectiveness in efforts to combat child trafficking. (8,9) The Inter-Agency Working Group on People Trafficking, outlined in the National Plan of Action to Eradicate Trafficking in Persons and Child Trafficking, has yet to be activated. (17)

Research was unable to determine whether the Regional Inter-Agency Committees on Child Abuse were active during the reporting period.

V. GOVERNMENT POLICIES ON CHILD LABOR

The government has established policies related to child labor (Table 9). However, policy gaps exist that hinder efforts to address child labor, including the lack of a national child labor action plan.

Table 9. Key Policies Related to Child Labor

Policy	Description
United Nations Pacific Strategy (2018–2022)†	A multinational strategic framework, comprising 14 South Pacific nations, created to address, develop, and implement strategic economic development priorities in the South Pacific, including eliminating child labor and the worst forms of child labor. (44)
Free Education Grant	Provides bus passes to students, and boats and outboard motors for island communities with staff and students commuting to school, with $220,000 from the Ministry of Education in 2018. (7) Provides 12 years of tuition-free education for children with Fijian citizenship in 904 eligible primary and secondary schools, with 52 schools to be added over the next 2 years. Provided approximately $32 million for tuition-free education and textbooks during the 2017–2018 fiscal year, an increase from the previous year. (19,30,37,45,46) This policy was active during the reporting period.

† Policy was approved during the reporting period.

During the reporting period, the government continued to support all existing anti-child labor policies. In addition, the Government of Fiji has set a goal to accelerate the eradication of child labor by 2025, and forced labor, modern slavery, and human trafficking by 2030. (7) Although the government completed a draft of the National Plan of Action to Eradicate Trafficking in Persons and Child Trafficking in 2011, the plan has not been implemented. (3,17,42,40,47) Additionally, the government has not yet approved a draft National Action Plan for Child Labor, the 5-Year Strategic Plan for Combating Child Labor, the National Plan of Action to Eradicate Trafficking in Persons and Child Trafficking, or the National Action Plan on the Eradication of Child Labor. (7,19,29,37,48,49)

VI. SOCIAL PROGRAMS TO ADDRESS CHILD LABOR

In 2018, the government funded and participated in programs that include the goal of eliminating or preventing child labor (Table 10). However, gaps exist in these social programs, including addressing the needs of children in rural areas.

Table 10. Key Social Programs to Address Child Labor

Program	Description
UNICEF Pacific Multi-Country Child Protection Program (2018–2022)*	Multi-country program in 14 Pacific Island countries. (51) Prioritizes children's rights including the elimination of the worst forms of child labor. Aligned with the UN Pacific Strategy 2018–2022. (51) During the reporting period, sponsored trainings for government officials on the rights of children, including trainings on child abuse and child labor. Provided $126,000 to the Ministry of Education to enhance government capacity to provide child protection services. (38)

Safety Net Project†	Program that funds rehabilitation services for females who are under 18 and victims of commercial sexual exploitation. Receives referrals from various entities, including the Fiji Police. (52) This program was active during the reporting period. (38)
Food Voucher and Bus Fare Assistance†	Ministry of Education program that provides to families, whose combined annual income is less than $7,382, $24 in food vouchers and subsidized bus fares to offset the cost of education for children attending remote schools. (30,37,41,45,46) This program was active during the reporting period. (38)
Tuition Fee Free Grant†	Ministry of Education began to provide a subsidized tuition fee free grant for early childhood education centers or students attending preschool. (19) This program was active during the reporting period. (38)
Child Protection Program†	Administered by the Ministry of Women, Children, and Poverty Alleviation. In 2018, the government provided $550,000 to enact recommendations from the Committee on the Convention on the Rights of the Child. (7)
Child Protection Allowance†	Administered by the Ministry of Women, Children, and Poverty Alleviation. In 2018, funding increased by $1.1 million, and now assists 1,030 recipients, including single mothers, widows, and children. (7)
The Poverty Benefit Scheme†	Administered by the Ministry of Women, Children, and Poverty Alleviation. Assists 25,000 people with cash benefits and food vouchers. (7) In 2018, received 15 percent increase in funding to $18.5 million. (7)
Homes of Hope†	NGO program that assists victims of sexual abuse and human trafficking. The Ministry of Women, Children, and Poverty Alleviation contributed $90,000 during the reporting period. (7)

* Program was launched during the reporting period.

‡ The government had other social programs that may have included the goal of eliminating or preventing child labor. (9,53)

During the reporting period, the government provided $900,000 to the Ministry of Youth and Sports for programs dealing with job training and skills development. Additionally, the government has set the goal of conducting five child labor training sessions for the sugarcane industry. (7)

However, the government has insufficient social programs available to address the particular needs of child victims of human trafficking and commercial sexual exploitation, especially for boys and for children in remote areas. (54,55) NGOs provide limited support services, but these are concentrated in the capital city of Suva. (54,56)

VII. SUGGESTED GOVERNMENT ACTIONS TO ELIMINATE CHILD LABOR

Based on the reporting above, suggested actions are identified that would advance the elimination of child labor in Fiji (Table 11).

Table 11. Suggested Government Actions to Eliminate Child Labor

Area	Suggested Action	Year(s) Suggested
Legal Framework	Ratify the UN CRC Optional Protocol on the Sale of Children, Child Prostitution and Child Pornography and the UN CRC Optional Protocol on Armed Conflict.	2013 – 2018
	Establish by law free basic public education.	2016 – 2018
	Ensure that the law's light work provisions are specific enough to prevent children from involvement in child labor.	2015 – 2018
	Ensure that the law criminally prohibits the recruitment of children under age 18 by non-state armed groups.	2016 – 2018
Enforcement	Allow unannounced inspections within the informal sector without having to first request permission from the owner.	2018
Coordination	Ensure that the Inter-Agency Trafficking Task Force meets regularly to address implementation of the National Plan of Action to Eliminate Trafficking in Persons and Child Trafficking and to strengthen government efforts to combat the worst forms of child labor.	2014 – 2018
	Activate the Inter-Agency Working Group on People Trafficking by implementing the National Plan of Action to Eliminate Trafficking in Persons and Child Trafficking.	2018
	Ensure that the Regional Inter-Agency Committees on Child Abuse meet regularly.	2018

Area	Suggested Action	Year(s) Suggested
Government Policies	Finalize and implement the National Action Plan for Child Labor, the 5-Year Strategic Plan for Combating Child Labor, the National Plan of Action to Eliminate Trafficking in Persons and Child Trafficking, and the National Action Plan on the Eradication of Child Labor.	2013 – 2018
Social Programs	Collect and publish data on the extent and nature of child labor to inform policies and programs.	2017 – 2018
	Increase the availability of support services for child victims of commercial sexual exploitation and human trafficking, including adequate counseling and specialized shelters, especially for boys and for children in remote areas.	2010 – 2018

In 2018, Gabon made a minimal advancement in efforts to eliminate the worst forms of child labor. The government investigated 16 individuals for forced child labor and signed bilateral agreements with Benin and Togo to combat child trafficking. The Senate also approved amendments to the Penal Code that increased penalties for human trafficking. Despite new initiatives to address child labor, Gabon is receiving an assessment of minimal advancement because it failed to conduct worksite inspections during the reporting period. Children in Gabon engage in the worst forms of child labor, including in commercial sexual exploitation. Children also engage in child labor in domestic work. The government also lacks prohibitions against the use of children in illicit activities and the minimum age for work provisions only apply to children in formal employment relationships, excluding children who work in the informal sector. In addition, labor inspectors do not have the authority to assess penalties, and they lack the basic resources, such as transportation, fuel, and office supplies, necessary to conduct investigations.

I. PREVALENCE AND SECTORAL DISTRIBUTION OF CHILD LABOR

Children in Gabon engage in the worst forms of child labor, including in commercial sexual exploitation. Children also engage in child labor in domestic work. (1-8) Table 1 provides key indicators on children's work and education in Gabon. Data on some of these indicators are not available from the sources used in this report.

Table 1. Statistics on Children's Work and Education

Children	Age	Percent
Working (% and population)	5 to 14	22.3 (83,073)
Attending School (%)	5 to 14	94.4
Combining Work and School (%)	7 to 14	23.3
Primary Completion Rate (%)		Unavailable

Primary completion rate was unavailable from UNESCO Institute for Statistics, 2019. (9)

Source for all other data: International Labor Organization's analysis of statistics from Deuxième Enquête Démographique et de Santé au Gabon (EDSG-II), 2012. (10)

Based on a review of available information, Table 2 provides an overview of children's work by sector and activity.

Table 2. Overview of Children's Work by Sector and Activity

Sector/Industry	Activity
Agriculture	Fishing, including the production and sale of smoked fish (1)
Industry	Working in sand quarries† (1-3)
	Working in brick factories (1)
Services	Domestic work (1,4-7)
	Street vending, including cleaning market spaces at night and carrying heavy loads† (1,7)
	Garbage scavenging (1)
	Working in restaurants (2,3)
Categorical Worst Forms of Child Labor‡	Working in transportation† and as mechanics (1-3,8)
	Forced labor in markets, restaurants, handicraft shops, sand quarries, farming, animal husbandry, fishing, domestic work, and as mechanics, each sometimes as a result of human trafficking (1,5,11,12)
	Commercial sexual exploitation, sometimes as a result of human trafficking (6,7,11,13-15)

† Determined by national law or regulation as hazardous and, as such, relevant to Article 3(d) of ILO C. 182.

‡ Child labor understood as the worst forms of child labor per se under Article 3(a)–(c) of ILO C. 182.

Gabon

MINIMAL ADVANCEMENT – EFFORTS MADE BUT REGRESSION IN PRACTICE THAT DELAYED ADVANCEMENT

Gabon is primarily a destination and transit country for victims of child trafficking from other countries in Central and West Africa. (4,6,8,13,14,16,17) Some parents entrust their children to intermediaries who promise education and safe work opportunities; instead, these children are sometimes subjected to child trafficking for labor exploitation. However, there is limited evidence of child trafficking occurring within Gabon. (14,17) Data on child labor have not been collected in Gabon since 2012. (18)

Although the Law on General Education guarantees the right to free and compulsory education, in practice students must pay for supplies and school fees, which may be prohibitive. (8,19) Rural areas also lack schools and teachers, and education beyond primary school is often unavailable. (1,8,20,21) Reports suggest that some children, especially girls, are sexually abused at school. (2,8,11,22) In addition, children living in remote areas may not receive birth certificates, which are often required for school enrollment, and children who do not attend school are more vulnerable to child labor. (1,2)

II. LEGAL FRAMEWORK FOR CHILD LABOR

Gabon has ratified all key international conventions concerning child labor (Table 3).

Table 3. Ratification of International Conventions on Child Labor

Convention	Ratification
 ILO C. 138, Minimum Age	✓
ILO C. 182, Worst Forms of Child Labor	✓
 UN CRC	✓
UN CRC Optional Protocol on Armed Conflict	✓
UN CRC Optional Protocol on the Sale of Children, Child Prostitution and Child Pornography	✓
 Palermo Protocol on Trafficking in Persons	✓

The government has established laws and regulations related to child labor (Table 4). However, gaps exist in Gabon's legal framework to adequately protect children from the worst forms of child labor, including the minimum age for work.

Table 4. Laws and Regulations on Child Labor

Standard	Meets International Standards	Age	Legislation
Minimum Age for Work	No	16	Article 177 of the Labor Code; Article 2 of Decree N° 0651/PR/MTEPS Establishing Individual Exceptions to the Minimum Age for Admission to Employment (23-25)
Minimum Age for Hazardous Work	Yes	18	Article 1 of the Hazardous Work List (23-26)
Identification of Hazardous Occupations or Activities Prohibited for Children	Yes		Articles 2, 3, and 5 of the Hazardous Work List (23-26)

In December 2018, the Senate approved amendments to the Penal Code, which would criminalize all forms of human trafficking and increase penalties. However, the president has yet to sign these amendments, which is required for promulgation. (1,33) Furthermore, laws related to child trafficking are not in line with international standards, because they do not prohibit child trafficking for the purpose of sexual exploitation. (23,27,29)

Article 2 of Decree N° 0651/PR/MTEPS Establishing Individual Exceptions to the Minimum Age for Admission to Employment permits children under age 16 to perform light work with parental permission. However, it does not set a minimum age for light work or specify the kinds of light work that are allowed. (25) In addition, although the Labor Code prohibits work by children under age 16, the minimum age protections do not apply to children outside of formal work relationships, which does not conform to international standards that require all children be protected under the law. (3,23)

The law also does not criminally prohibit producing child pornography or procuring or offering children for pornographic performances. (12,29)

III. ENFORCEMENT OF LAWS ON CHILD LABOR

The government has established institutional mechanisms for the enforcement of laws and regulations on child labor (Table 5). However, the absence of worksite inspections conducted at the national level in Gabon impeded the enforcement of child labor laws.

Table 5. Agencies Responsible for Child Labor Law Enforcement

Organization/Agency	Role
Ministry of Public Administration, Innovation, Public Services, and Labor (MOL)	Receives, investigates, and addresses child labor complaints through its inspectors. (20) Refers cases of child trafficking to the Ministry of the Interior's Police Force for investigation and the Ministry of Health, Social Protection and National Solidarity (MSPNS) for social services. (1)
Ministry of the Interior's Police Force	Enforces laws, investigates child labor violations, and refers cases to the Ministry of Justice and Human Rights for prosecution. (1,20)
Ministry of Justice and Human Rights	Enforces child labor laws by prosecuting child labor cases. Assists in supporting victims of child trafficking while prosecutors and investigators prepare their cases. (1)
Ministry of Health, Social Protection and National Solidarity (MSPNS)	Provides social services and assistance to vulnerable children, assists in repatriation or resettlement processes for victims of child trafficking, and operates shelters for victims of child trafficking. (1,14)

Labor Law Enforcement

In 2018, the absence of worksite inspections conducted at the national level in Gabon may have impeded the enforcement of child labor laws. (Table 6)

Table 6. Labor Law Enforcement Efforts Related to Child Labor

Inspectors lack the resources, including transportation, fuel, and office supplies, necessary to conduct inspections. (1,3,20) Inadequate resources, including an insufficient number of inspectors, may also hamper the labor inspectorate’s capacity to adequately monitor the informal sector. (20) Labor inspectors in Gabon are responsible for reconciling labor disputes, which may detract from their primary duty of inspection. (37) The government did not provide information on labor inspectorate funding or the number of labor inspectors for inclusion in this report. (1)

Criminal Law Enforcement

In 2018, criminal law enforcement agencies in Gabon took actions to combat child labor (Table 7). However, gaps exist within the operations of the criminal enforcement agencies that may hinder adequate criminal law enforcement, including insufficient financial resources.

Table 7. Criminal Law Enforcement Efforts Related to Child Labor

Overview of Criminal Law Enforcement	2017	2018
Initial Training for New Criminal Investigators	No (34)	No (1)
Training on New Laws Related to the Worst Forms of Child Labor	N/A (34)	N/A
Refresher Courses Provided	Yes (34)	Yes (37,38)
Number of Investigations	1 (14)	0 (1)
Number of Violations Found	65 (14)	50 (20)

Imposed Penalties for Violations Related to the Worst Forms of Child Labor	No (14)	No (1)
Reciprocal Referral Mechanism Exists Between Criminal Authorities and Social Services	Yes (34)	Yes (1)

During the reporting period, the Ministry of Justice, with the support of UNICEF, organized a training for immigration officials on identifying and investigating trafficking cases. (14,37) However, like labor inspectors, police investigators lack resources, such as transportation, fuel, and office supplies, and coordination among enforcement agencies is weak. (1,12,14)

In general, the prosecution of child trafficking cases in Gabon can be difficult due to a lack of training, infrequent convening of the Criminal Court, a failure to prioritize cases involving children, and a backlog of cases. (12,14,15)

MINIMAL ADVANCEMENT – EFFORTS MADE BUT REGRESSION IN PRACTICE THAT DELAYED ADVANCEMENT

There are currently 17 pending cases of child trafficking, but no prosecutions were initiated during the reporting period. (38) Research indicates that some child trafficking perpetrators falsified documents to make victims appear older than age 18 to avoid punishment under Gabon’s child trafficking laws. (7,14)

IV. COORDINATION OF GOVERNMENT EFFORTS ON CHILD LABOR

The government has established mechanisms to coordinate its efforts to address child labor (Table 8). However, gaps exist that hinder the effective coordination of efforts to address child labor, including a lack of adequate funding.

Table 8. Key Mechanisms to Coordinate Government Efforts on Child Labor

Coordinating Body	Role & Description
Inter-ministerial Committee for the Fight Against Child Trafficking (CNSLTE)	Coordinates national efforts against child trafficking and other worst forms of child labor. Led by MOL, includes representatives from four other ministries and civil society. (1,20) Removes children from exploitative labor situations, provides social services, and repatriates victims when appropriate. (8,14,20) Disseminates the National Manual of Procedures for the Care of Child Victims of Trafficking, which establishes a series of procedures to return victims of child trafficking to their country of origin or facilitate their integration into Gabon. (38) Operated on an ad hoc basis in 2018 to respond to victim needs. (1)
National Observatory for Children’s Rights	Coordinates the implementation of the UN CRC, including the promotion of children’s right to education and protection against all forms of exploitation and abuse. (8) Establishes and oversees committees to protect children’s rights in all provinces. (39)
Local Vigilance Committees	Administered by the CNSLTE and located in provincial capitals, identifies potential cases of child trafficking, intercept victims, and assist children at risk of child trafficking. (8,18)

Research indicates that the Inter-ministerial Committee for the Fight Against Child Trafficking (CNSLTE) lacked sufficient funding, and members sometimes used their own funds to support trafficking victims. (1,38) In addition, both the National Observatory for Children’s Rights and Local Vigilance Committees were inactive during the reporting period. (1)

V. GOVERNMENT POLICIES ON CHILD LABOR

The government has established policies related to child labor (Table 9). However, policy gaps exist that hinder efforts to address child labor, including failure to implement a policy covering all relevant forms of child labor.

Table 9. Key Policies Related to Child Labor

Policy	Description
CNSLTE’s 2017–2018 Plan of Action	Aims to address the worst forms of child labor, with a focus on increasing prosecution of offenders and shortening the length of time victims spend at shelters. (1,38)
Economic Recovery Plan (2017–2019)	Aims to balance public finances, diversify the economy, and reduce poverty. Includes the goal of improving the quality of public education, addressing the teacher deficit, and accelerating the construction of classrooms. (40) This plan was not implemented in 2018. (33)

In 2018, the Government of Gabon signed bilateral agreements with Benin and Togo to combat child trafficking. (41,42) However, research found no evidence of an active policy to address child labor, and implementation of the CNSLTE’s Plan of Action was limited due to funding constraints and strikes by civil servants. (1,38)

The government has not included child labor elimination and prevention strategies in the UNDAF (2018–2022), the National Youth Policy of Gabon, and the Education Policy (2010–2020). (5,43,44)

VI. SOCIAL PROGRAMS TO ADDRESS CHILD LABOR

In 2018, the government participated in programs that may contribute to preventing child labor (Table 10). However, gaps exist in these social programs, including the adequacy of programs to address the full scope of the problem.

Table 10. Key Social Programs to Address Child Labor

Program	Description
Shelters for Children in Need	Shelters that provide social services to victims of child labor and child trafficking. The government provided in-kind support to shelters run by civil society organizations. (1,5,14,16,36) Victims receive medical care, literacy training, and reintegration support. (1) In 2018, provided services to 50 victims of child trafficking and signed an agreement with a local hospital to procure medical care for children. (38)

Although Gabon has programs that target child labor, the scope of these programs is insufficient to fully address the extent of the problem. (1) Research also indicates that shelter space is insufficient to accommodate all victims, and the government decreased funding for shelters and NGOs that provide social services to human trafficking victims and other vulnerable children. (1,5,14,15,15,18)

VII. SUGGESTED GOVERNMENT ACTIONS TO ELIMINATE CHILD LABOR

Based on the reporting above, suggested actions are identified that would advance the elimination of child labor in Gabon (Table 11).

Table 11. Suggested Government Actions to Eliminate Child Labor

Area	Suggested Action	Year(s) Suggested
Legal Framework	Ensure that minimum age protections are extended to children working outside of formal employment relationships.	2017 – 2018
	Establish criminal prohibitions for child trafficking for the purpose of sexual exploitation	2015 – 2018
	Establish criminal prohibitions for producing child pornography and procuring or offering children for pornographic performances.	2015 – 2018
	Establish criminal prohibitions for using children in illicit activities, including both producing and trafficking of drugs.	2009 – 2018
	Establish criminal prohibitions for the recruitment of children under age 18 for use in armed conflict by non-state armed groups.	2016 – 2018
	Ensure that the legal framework for light work establishes a minimum age no younger than age 13, determines activities that are considered light work, and specifies the conditions under which light work may be undertaken.	2013 – 2018
Enforcement	Publish information on the funding level for the labor inspectorate and number of labor inspectors, and ensure both inspectors and investigators receive adequate funding and resources to carry out inspections and investigations.	2009 – 2018
	Strengthen the labor inspectorate by authorizing inspectors to assess penalties, and conduct routine and unannounced inspections, including in the informal sector.	2014 – 2018
	Ensure that the government conducts an adequate number of labor inspections and criminal investigations.	2018
	Ensure that labor inspectors are not tasked with conciliation or arbitration duties, and that they can carry out their primary duties of inspection and monitoring throughout the country.	2009 – 2018
	Ensure that prosecutions related to criminal violations of child labor laws are carried out and that perpetrators are punished in accordance with the law.	2016 – 2018
Coordination	Ensure that coordinating bodies have sufficient funds to carry out their mandates and that all coordinating bodies are active.	2013 – 2018
Government Policies	Adopt a policy that addresses child labor, including in activities such as domestic work and work in transportation, and ensure that existing policies have sufficient resources to be implemented.	2015 – 2018
	Integrate child labor elimination and prevention strategies into existing policies.	2014 – 2018
Social Programs	Conduct a national child labor survey or similar research to determine the specific activities carried out by working children to inform policies and programs.	2014 – 2018
	Ensure that children have access to education by eliminating school fees, increasing the number of teachers and schools in rural areas, and ensuring that schools are free from sexual abuse; make efforts to provide all children with birth registration.	2010 – 2018
	Expand existing programs to address the scope of the child labor problem and ensure that the government continues to provide adequate support to victims of child labor, including sufficient shelter space for victims.	2010 – 2018

In 2018, The Gambia made a moderate advancement in efforts to eliminate the worst forms of child labor. During the year, the government published detailed information related to the criminal enforcement of child labor and allocated $36,000 in funding to the National Agency

Against Trafficking in Persons for the 2018 fiscal year. It also provided trainings to hotel staff in support of the Code of Conduct of The Gambia Tourism Authority for the Protection of Children. However, children in The Gambia engage in the worst forms of child labor, including in commercial sexual exploitation, sometimes as a result of human trafficking and forced begging. Gaps in the law remain, including that children may commence an apprenticeship in the informal sector at the age of 12, an age below the compulsory education age of 16. Although the government has adopted various policies addressing human trafficking, research also found no evidence of a policy on other worst forms of child labor. In addition, the scope of social programs is insufficient to fully address the extent of the problem, as programs do not reach all children working in agriculture and domestic work, or those vulnerable to human trafficking, commercial sexual exploitation, forced begging, and street work.

I. PREVALENCE AND SECTORAL DISTRIBUTION OF CHILD LABOR

Children in The Gambia engage in the worst forms of child labor, including in commercial sexual exploitation, sometimes as a result of human trafficking, and forced begging. (1-5) Table 1 provides key indicators on children's work and education in The Gambia.

Table 1. Statistics on Children's Work and Education

Children	Age	Percent
Working (% and population)	5 to 14	20.1 (105,013)
Attending School (%)	5 to 14	63.6
Combining Work and School (%)	7 to 14	10.3
Primary Completion Rate (%)		70.2

Sector/Industry	Activity
Categorical Worst Forms of Child Labor [†]	Commercial sexual exploitation, sometimes as a result of human trafficking (1-5,11,14)
	Forced begging by Koranic teachers (1-4,8)
	Forced labor in domestic work and street vending, each sometimes as a result of human trafficking (2,5)

[†] Determined by national law or regulation as hazardous and, as such, relevant to Article 3(d) of ILO C. 182.

[‡] Child labor understood as the worst forms of child labor per se under Article 3(a)–(c) of ILO C. 182.

In The Gambia, children are trafficked internally and subjected to commercial sexual exploitation, forced labor, and domestic work. Girls and boys from West African countries, including Benin, Ghana, Guinea, Guinea-Bissau, Liberia, Nigeria, Senegal, and Sierra Leone are trafficked for commercial sexual exploitation. (3,4,15) Tourists from Britain, Germany, Scandinavia, the Netherlands, and Canada also subject children to commercial sexual exploitation in brothels and motels in tourist areas. (4,16) In The Gambia, it is a common practice to send boys to receive education from Koranic teachers, or marabouts, who sometimes force Koranic students, or almudus, to beg in the streets for money and food and to conduct street vending. (15,17,18)

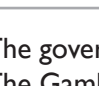

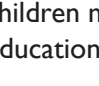

Article 30 of the Constitution mandates free compulsory education. However, families are sometimes required to buy books and uniforms, contribute to examination fees, and provide direct financial support to the school through a school fund, which families often cannot afford. Absence from school due to unpaid school fees increases children’s vulnerability to child labor. (19,20) In addition, inadequate teaching facilities, low numbers of teachers in rural areas, and limited access to clean water in schools create barriers for children to access education. (3,18)

The government has not conducted research to determine labor activities carried out by children, including in agriculture, domestic work, and forced begging, to inform policies and social programs. (18)

II. LEGAL FRAMEWORK FOR CHILD LABOR

The Gambia has ratified most key international conventions concerning child labor (Table 3).

Table 3. Ratification of International Conventions on Child Labor

Convention	Ratification
 ILO C. 138, Minimum Age	✓
 ILO C. 182, Worst Forms of Child Labor	✓
 UN CRC	✓
 UN CRC Optional Protocol on Armed Conflict	✓
 UN CRC Optional Protocol on the Sale of Children, Child Prostitution and Child Pornography	✓
 Palermo Protocol on Trafficking in Persons	✓

The government has established laws and regulations related to child labor (Table 4). However, gaps exist in The Gambia’s legal framework to adequately protect children from the worst forms of child labor, including that children may commence an apprenticeship in the informal sector at the age of 12, an age below the compulsory education age of 16.

Table 4. Laws and Regulations on Child Labor

Standard	Meets International Standards	Age	Legislation
Minimum Age for Work	Yes	16	Article 43 of the Children’s Act (21)
Minimum Age for Hazardous Work	Yes	18	Article 44 of the Children’s Act; Article 46 of the Labor Act (21,22)

Standard	Meets International Standards	Age	Legislation
Identification of Hazardous Occupations or Activities Prohibited for Children	Yes		Articles 44–45 of the Children’s Act (21)
Prohibition of Forced Labor	Yes		Article 41 of the Children’s Act (21)
Prohibition of Child Trafficking	Yes		Articles 30 and 39 of the Children’s Act; Articles 28 and 56 of the Trafficking in Persons Act; Article 13 of the Tourism Offences Act (21,23,24)
Prohibition of Commercial Sexual Exploitation of Children	Yes		Articles 26–27, 29–32, and 34 of the Children’s Act; Articles 7–9 of the Tourism Offences Act (21,24)
Prohibition of Using Children in Illicit Activities	Yes		Articles 31 and 36–37 of the Children’s Act (21)
Minimum Age for Voluntary State Military Recruitment	Yes	18	Article 59 of the Children’s Act (21)
Prohibition of Compulsory Recruitment of Children by (State) Military	N/A*
Prohibition of Military Recruitment by Non-state Armed Groups	Yes		Article 31(c) of the Children’s Act (21)
Compulsory Education Age	Yes	16‡	Article 18 of the Children’s Act (21)
Free Public Education	Yes		Article 30 of the Constitution; Article 18 of the Children’s Act (20,21)

* No conscription (25)

‡ Age calculated based on available information (20,21,26,27)

In The Gambia, children may commence an apprenticeship in the informal sector at the age of 12, which makes them vulnerable to engage in child labor and not complete basic education. (21)

III. ENFORCEMENT OF LAWS ON CHILD LABOR

The government has established institutional mechanisms for the enforcement of laws and regulations on child labor (Table 5). However, gaps exist within the operations of the Ministry of Trade, Industry, Regional Integration and Employment’s Department of Labor that may hinder adequate enforcement of their child labor laws.

Table 5. Agencies Responsible for Child Labor Law Enforcement

Organization/Agency	Role
Ministry of Trade, Industry, and Regional Integration and Employment	Conducts labor inspections and enforces labor laws pertaining to hazardous child labor through its Department of Labor. (3,19)
Department of Social Welfare (DSW)	Combats forced child labor; coordinates the handling of human trafficking victims, and works closely with social welfare officers in police units. (28) Operates a 24-hour hotline to address human trafficking, and in collaboration with The Gambia Tourism Board, maintains a database of individuals suspected of pedophilia or child trafficking. (5) Maintains an electronic database that contains information on cases requiring child protection, including those involving labor and human trafficking violations. (5,25) Housed under the Ministry of Health and Social Welfare. (3)
Child Protection Alliance (CPA)	Promotes children’s rights and child protection services. Raises awareness about child exploitation. (29-31) Members include government departments, civil society organizations, UN agencies, NGOs, child and youth organizations, and bilateral institutions. (30) Trains journalists about child sex tourism and government officials on the UN Convention on the Rights of the Child. (32,33) Maintains 15 child protection centers across the country to monitor, identify, and report potential cases of child abuse and trafficking in persons. (18)
Children’s Court	Adjudicates cases involving children and determines guardianship of child abuse victims, including child laborers, referred to the court by the DSW. (34) In 2018, there were three courts for seven regions in the country. (3,18)
National Agency Against Trafficking in Persons (NAATIP)	Investigates suspected cases of human trafficking. Members include investigators, police, members of the National Intelligence Agency, and five prosecutors. (18,35) Gathers evidence for the NAATIP director, who can recommend that the NAATIP prosecutor file charges for human trafficking violations. (18,35)

Organization/Agency	Role
Tourism Security Unit	Prevents unaccompanied children from entering tourist areas and patrols tourist areas for child labor and criminal violations, such as commercial sexual exploitation and human trafficking. Has a dedicated child protection division. (17,19,28)
Community Child Protection Committees	Raises awareness and reports cases of labor issues, including child labor, to the authorities through 15 operating committees across the country. (18,25)
Neighborhood Watch Groups	Monitors neighborhoods for child exploitation with support from the DSW. Maintains 11 existing groups established by the DSW in urban areas near tourist resorts. (16,18,28)
Village Development Committees	Serves as volunteer arbiters and mediators for community disputes involving children and other matters. (3)
Gambia Police Force Child Welfare Unit	Oversees all situations involving children's welfare. (31) Collaborates with the CPA, the SDW, NGOs and other agencies as the designated governmental coordinating body for all child welfare activities in The Gambia. (3,36)
The Gambia Tourism Board	Combats commercial sexual exploitation of children in tourist areas. (17) Educates the public about child sex tourism and the consequences for violating the Code of Conduct for the Protection of Children and the Tourism Act. In collaboration with the DSW, maintains a database of individuals suspected of pedophilia or child trafficking. (18,37)

In 2018, research was unable to determine whether members of the 1,500 Village Development Committees were trained on child protection and the worst forms of child labor. (3,18) Reports indicate that the Department of Social Welfare-organized Neighborhood Watch Groups remain largely inadequate, as they are not empowered to investigate or report cases, are untrained, and only 2 of the 11 groups are occasionally active. (16)

Labor Law Enforcement

In 2018, labor law enforcement agencies in The Gambia took actions to combat child labor (Table 6). However, gaps exist within the operations of the Ministry of Trade, Industry, Regional Integration, and Employment that may hinder adequate labor law enforcement, including investigation planning.

Table 6. Labor Law Enforcement Efforts Related to Child Labor

Overview of Labor Law Enforcement	2017	2018
Labor Inspectorate Funding	Unknown (3)	Unknown (18)
Number of Labor Inspectors	7 (3)	7 (18)

Reciprocal Referral Mechanism Exists Between Labor Authorities and Social Services	Yes (3)	Yes (18)

The number of labor inspectors is likely insufficient for the size of The Gambia's workforce, which includes more than 700,000 workers. According to the ILO's technical advice of a ratio approaching 1 inspector for every 40,000 workers in less-developed economies, The Gambia would employ about 19 labor inspectors. (38,39) Per the law, inspectors are not authorized to inspect private homes or farms in which children may be working in violation of the minimum age for work. (3,18) The government did not provide information for inclusion in this report on its labor inspectorate funding, and the number of labor inspections conducted, including those conducted at worksite.

Criminal Law Enforcement

In 2018, criminal law enforcement agencies in The Gambia took actions to combat child labor (Table 7). However, gaps exist within the operations of the criminal enforcement agencies that may hinder adequate criminal law enforcement, including enforcement of penalties.

Table 7. Criminal Law Enforcement Efforts Related to Child Labor

Overview of Criminal Law Enforcement	2017	2018
Initial Training for New Criminal Investigators	Yes (3)	Yes (18)
Training on New Laws Related to the Worst Forms of Child Labor	Unknown (3)	N/A (18)

Imposed Penalties for Violations Related to The Worst Forms of Child Labor	Unknown	N/A(36)
Reciprocal Referral Mechanism Exists Between Criminal Authorities and Social Services	Yes (3)	Yes (18)

Training on the topic of human trafficking was held for security forces, in cooperation with ECOWAS, as part of a one-day event in advance of the opening of the Senegambia Bridge along the Trans-Gambia Highway near the town of Farafenni. (4) Although Articles 39 and 40 of the Children’s Act prohibit human trafficking and slave dealing of children and carry a penalty of life imprisonment, a source indicates that penalties are not fully applied, possibly hindering enforcement and emboldening violators. (25,36) The government began prosecution of two Nigerian nationals for commercial sexual exploitation of four Nigerians—one minor and three adults—trafficked to The Gambia. (18,25)

IV. COORDINATION OF GOVERNMENT EFFORTS ON CHILD LABOR

The government has established mechanisms to coordinate its efforts to address child labor (Table 8). However, gaps exist that hinder the effective coordination of efforts to address child labor, including the lack of adequate funding and the inactivity of some coordinating bodies during the reporting period.

Table 8. Key Mechanisms to Coordinate Government Efforts on Child Labor

Coordinating Body	Role & Description
National Coordination Committee on Child Labor	Coordinates child labor enforcement processes, including prosecutions of the worst forms of child labor. Led by the DSW, comprises representatives from UNICEF, Department of Labor, NAATIP, Action Aid, Ministry of Basic and Secondary Education, Gambia Teachers Union, Young People in the Media, and the Inspector General of Police. (3) Research was unable to determine whether the coordinating body was active in 2018.
National Agency Against Trafficking in Persons (NAATIP)	Coordinates, administers, and monitors the implementation of the Trafficking in Persons Act. Shares information among law enforcement agencies. Created under the Ministry of Justice. Convenes and leads monthly meetings with the National Trafficking in Persons Task Force, focusing on multiple sectors in which human trafficking occurs across the country. (17,28) The Task Force includes NAATIP, Ministry of Justice, Department of Immigration, Department of Social Welfare, Ministry of Foreign Affairs, Women’s Bureau, Gambia Radio and Television Services, Center for Street Children, and Gambia Police Force. (40) In 2018, government funding for the NAATIP was $36,000, with assurances that funding would double to $72,000 in 2019. (36)

The government continued to provide limited funding to the NAATIP, with no direct funding for advocacy and training of officials; thus hindering the NAATIP’s ability to conduct investigations on trafficking in persons. (3,4,16,18)

V. GOVERNMENT POLICIES ON CHILD LABOR

The government has established policies related to child labor (Table 9). However, policy gaps exist that hinder efforts to address child labor, including the lack of a national child labor policy.

Table 9. Key Policies Related to Child Labor

Policy	Description
National Child Protection Strategy (2016–2020)	Outlines strategies to improve child protection, including addressing the worst forms of child labor, by increasing awareness and strengthening coordination among government agencies. (41) Research was unable to determine actions taken to implement this policy in 2018.
National Trafficking in Persons Action Plan (2016–2020)	Organizes governmental efforts to combat human trafficking. Drafted by the Ministry of Justice and the NAATIP, which is responsible for updating and implementing the action plan. In 2018, the action plan was extended until 2020, yet implementation was limited due to a lack of funding. (4,18,25,42)
The Gambia and Senegal Trafficking Memorandum of Understanding	Coordinates the two countries' efforts to address human trafficking through meetings, information sharing, improved laws, and prevention, protection, and assistance activities. (18) Research was unable to determine actions taken to implement this policy in 2018. (25)
Code of Conduct of The Gambia Tourism Authority for the Protection of Children	Raises awareness of commercial sexual exploitation of children in the tourism industry and among tourists. (17,43) Requires new hotel staff to be trained on the Code at the beginning of the annual peak tourism season. (17) In 2018, the government reported new hotel staff received this training by the Gambia Tourism Authority as part of the policy's implementation. (18,36)

‡ The government had other policies that may have addressed child labor issues or had an impact on child labor. (18)

Although the government has adopted various policies addressing human trafficking, research found no evidence of a policy on other worst forms of child labor. (18)

VI. SOCIAL PROGRAMS TO ADDRESS CHILD LABOR

In 2018, the government funded and participated in programs that include the goal of eliminating or preventing child labor (Table 10). However, gaps exist in these social programs, including the adequacy of programs to address the full scope of the problem.

Table 10. Key Social Programs to Address Child Labor

Program	Description
Combating Child Sex Tourism Project	CPA project, funded by ECPAT Netherlands, that raises awareness about commercial sexual exploitation of children, the Tourism Offences Act, and the Code of Conduct among Tourism Security Unit personnel, hoteliers, travel agencies, and other tourism stakeholders. (1) Research was unable to determine actions taken in 2018.
Street Children Center†	Drop-in center in Talinding Kunjang run by the DSW with support from international organizations, foreign NGOs, and local businesses. Provides medical care, food, and counseling to street children, including human trafficking victims and almudus . (17,28) In 2018, research indicated that this center continued to operate with the DSW providing a monetary allocation to the shelter for meals. (4)
Conditional Cash Transfers to the Majaalis‡	Ministry of Education program in partnership with the Institute for Social Reformation, an Islamic NGO based in The Gambia, that gives marabouts food rations and approximately $2 monthly for each student if the marabouts do not force students to beg. (16,18,28) Provides teachers for English, mathematics, and science subjects to Koranic schools. (1,17) As of 2018, the program reached 17 schools throughout all regions encompassing 1,500 children. (16)

‡ The government had other social programs that may have included the goal of eliminating or preventing child labor, including its worst forms. (44)

Although The Gambia has programs that target child labor, the scope of these programs is insufficient to fully address the extent of the problem. Programs do not reach all children working in agriculture and domestic work or those vulnerable to human trafficking, commercial sexual exploitation, forced begging, and street work. (18)

VII. SUGGESTED GOVERNMENT ACTIONS TO ELIMINATE CHILD LABOR

Based on the reporting above, suggested actions are identified that would advance the elimination of child labor in The Gambia (Table 11).

Table 11. Suggested Government Actions to Eliminate Child Labor

Area	Suggested Action	Year(s) Suggested
Legal Framework	Harmonize provisions of the Children's Act and the Labor Code that regulate apprenticeships and ensure that children are at least 14 years of age before beginning workplace apprenticeships.	2017 – 2018
Enforcement	Ensure that village development committees receive training on the worst forms of child labor.	2017 – 2018
	Increase the number of labor inspectors responsible for enforcing labor laws, including laws related to child labor, to meet the ILO's technical advice.	2016 – 2018
	Ensure the labor inspectorate has authority to conduct inspections on farms and in homes.	2017 – 2018
	Ensure penalties for child trafficking are stringent enough to deter violations.	2016 – 2018
	Publish information on the labor inspectorate's funding levels and total inspections, including those conducted at worksites.	2012 – 2018
	Ensure neighborhood watch groups are properly trained and empowered to investigate and report cases of child labor.	2018
Coordination	Ensure the NAATIP has sufficient funding to conduct investigations on trafficking in persons.	2012 – 2018
	Ensure that the National Coordination Committee on Child Labor meets regularly and carries out activities to support its mandate.	2018
Government Policies	Undertake activities in support of the National Child Protection Strategy, National Trafficking in Persons Action Plan, and The Gambia and Senegal Trafficking Memorandum of Understanding.	2017 – 2018
	Adopt a policy that addresses all relevant worst forms of child labor, including commercial sexual exploitation.	2015 – 2018
Social Programs	Undertake activities in support of the Combating Child Sex Tourism Project.	2017 – 2018
	Expand existing programs to address the scope of the child labor problem.	2010 – 2018
	Enhance opportunities for children to access education by providing adequate teaching facilities and clean water, and assigning teachers to rural areas.	2017 – 2018
	Ensure that children can complete primary school by subsidizing or defraying the cost of books, uniforms, and other fees.	2010 – 2018
	Conduct research to determine the activities carried out by children, including in agriculture, domestic work, and forced begging, to inform policies and social programs.	2017 – 2018

In 2018, Georgia made a moderate advancement in efforts to eliminate the worst forms of child labor. The government passed the 2018 Law on Occupational Safety to allow unannounced inspections in harmful, hazardous, and heavy industries, and carried out 90 unannounced inspections in these industries during the reporting period. The 2019 Law on Occupational Safety grants labor inspectors the ability to enter any business for occupational health and safety reasons without prior notification starting in late 2019. The government also approved a National Action Plan on Human Trafficking for 2019–2020 to protect and integrate street children through issuing identity documents and inclusive education. However, children in Georgia engage in the worst forms of child labor, including in forced begging, sometimes as a result of human trafficking. Children also perform dangerous tasks in agriculture. The labor inspectorate is allowed to conduct unannounced inspections only in harmful, hazardous, and heavy industries, and requires a court order to inspect all other businesses in the country. In addition, the compulsory education age leaves 15-year-old children vulnerable to the worst forms of child labor, as they are not required to be in school but are not legally permitted to work full time.

I. PREVALENCE AND SECTORAL DISTRIBUTION OF CHILD LABOR

Children in Georgia engage in the worst forms of child labor, including in forced begging, sometimes as a result of human trafficking. (1-4) Children also perform dangerous tasks in agriculture. (1,2,5,6) Table I provides key indicators on children’s work and education in Georgia.

Table I. Statistics on Children’s Work and Education

Children	Age	Percent

Agriculture	Farming, activities unknown (2,9)
Services	Street work, including begging and collecting scrap metal (2,4,9,10)
Categorical Worst Forms of Child Labor‡	Commercial sexual exploitation, sometimes as a result of human trafficking (1-4) Forced begging, sometimes as a result of human trafficking (1-4)

‡ Child labor understood as the worst forms of child labor per se under Article 3(a)–(c) of ILO C. 182.

Georgia is a source and transit country for child trafficking, especially of girls, to Turkey, China, the United Arab Emirates, and Cyprus. (3,4) Sources report that Roma and Azerbaijani Kurd ethnic minorities and refugee and internally displaced children from Georgia, Armenia, and Moldova are subjected to forced begging in Georgia. (2-4,11) Estimates suggest that 1,000 to 2,000 children earn a living by begging, primarily caused by poverty or domestic violence. (2,4,11) Many of the child beggars are from Roma communities. (4,11) Children from Roma communities lack identity documents and, therefore, have challenges accessing education. (2) In addition, socially vulnerable children and those who live in rural areas have difficulty accessing education.(2,12) Children who do not attend school are vulnerable to the worst forms of child labor.

Lack of information limits an assessment of the types of work that children perform and the sectors in which they work in Abkhazia and South Ossetia. (2,3)

II. LEGAL FRAMEWORK FOR CHILD LABOR

Georgia has ratified all key international conventions concerning child labor (Table 3).

Table 3. Ratification of International Conventions on Child Labor

Convention	Ratification
 ILO C. 138, Minimum Age	✓
 ILO C. 182, Worst Forms of Child Labor	✓
 UN CRC	✓
 UN CRC Optional Protocol on Armed Conflict	✓
 UN CRC Optional Protocol on the Sale of Children, Child Prostitution and Child Pornography	✓
 Palermo Protocol on Trafficking in Persons	✓

The government has established laws and regulations related to child labor (Table 4). However, gaps exist in Georgia's legal framework to adequately protect children from the worst forms of child labor, including the identification of hazardous occupations or activities prohibited for children.

Table 4. Laws and Regulations on Child Labor

Standard	Meets International Standards	Age	Legislation
Minimum Age for Work	No	16	Article 4 of the Labor Code of Georgia (13)
Minimum Age for Hazardous Work	Yes	18	Article 4 of the Labor Code of Georgia; Articles 2 and 5 of the Law on Occupational Safety (13,14)
Identification of Hazardous Occupations or Activities Prohibited for Children	No		Article 4(4) of the Labor Code of Georgia; Articles 2 and 5 of the Law on Occupational Safety (13,14)
Prohibition of Forced Labor	Yes		Article 30 of the Constitution of Georgia; Articles 143-i, 143-ii, and 143-iii of the Criminal Code of Georgia; Law of Georgia on Combating Human Trafficking (15-17)
Prohibition of Child Trafficking	Yes		Articles 143, 143-1, 143-2, 143-3, and 172 of the Criminal Code of Georgia; Law of Georgia on Combating Human Trafficking (16,17)
Prohibition of Commercial Sexual Exploitation of Children	Yes		Articles 171, 253, 255, 255-1, and 255-2 of the Criminal Code of Georgia (17)
Prohibition of Using Children in Illicit Activities	Yes		Article 171 of the Criminal Code of Georgia (17)
Minimum Age for Voluntary State Military Recruitment	Yes	18	Article 10 of the Law of Georgia on Military Duty and Military Service (18)
Prohibition of Compulsory Recruitment of Children by (State) Military	Yes		Articles 9 and 21 of the Law of Georgia on Military Duty and Military Service (18)
Prohibition of Military Recruitment by Non-state Armed Groups	No		Article 410 of the Criminal Code of Georgia (17)
Compulsory Education Age	Yes	15‡	Articles 2 and 9 of the Law of Georgia on General Education (19)
Free Public Education	Yes		Article 22 of the Law of Georgia on General Education (19)

‡ Age calculated based on available information (19)

In 2018, the government passed the Law on Occupational Safety that forbids minors from working in harmful, hazardous, and heavy (3H) industries. According to the law, the specific 3H industries will be determined by the government in consultation with partners; trade unions; employers' associations; and the Ministry of Labor, Health, and Social Affairs (MoLHSA). (2,14,20)

Also, Article 143-I of the Criminal Code was amended during the reporting period, which introduced pimping as a crime, developed a temporary working group under the Interagency Anti-Trafficking Coordination Council, and simplified evidence collection for human trafficking. (4,24-26)

The labor law governing child labor is not in compliance with international standards because it does not apply to informal work. (13,27) The compulsory education age leaves children age 15 vulnerable to the worst forms of child labor because they are not required to be in school but are not legally permitted to work full time. In addition, although Article 4 of the Labor Code establishes age 14 as the minimum age for participation in work that is not harmful to the moral, physical, and mental development of the child, the law does not stipulate specific activities in which children under the legal working age are allowed to engage. (13,27)

The law does not sufficiently criminalize non-state armed groups from recruiting children under age 18 because it applies only to mercenaries. (17)

III. ENFORCEMENT OF LAWS ON CHILD LABOR

The government has established institutional mechanisms for the enforcement of laws and regulations on child labor (Table 5). However, gaps exist with the authority of the Ministry of Labor, Health, and Social Affairs that may hinder adequate enforcement of their child labor laws.

Table 5. Agencies Responsible for Child Labor Law Enforcement

Organization/Agency	Role
Ministry of Labor, Health, and Social Affairs (MoLHSA)	Oversees child welfare issues and pursues enforcement of labor laws. (2) Receives complaints through the Child Protection and Social Programs sub-department, and refers complaints of child labor violations to law enforcement agencies for investigation. (25)
Department of Labor Inspection within MoLHSA	Enforces occupational safety and health laws, as well as prohibitions of forced labor and human trafficking. (9)
Department of Labor and Employment Policy within MoLHSA	Addresses labor and employment issues, and revises existing laws and policies to be in accordance with international standards. (25)
Social Services Agency within MoLHSA	Administers social benefits such as targeted social assistance, healthcare, and vouchers for day care. (2) Employs social services agents who identify qualifying families for services, and social workers who oversee child protection and family welfare cases. (9)
Ministry of Internal Affairs (MoIA)	Enforces criminal laws related to child labor and child trafficking, and investigates NGO and civilian reports of potential child labor violations. (6) Operates a hotline that is available in Georgian, Russian, and English. (4)
Central Criminal Police Department within MoIA	Leads criminal investigations of trafficking in persons, including the trafficking of children, through the Division for Combating Human Trafficking and Illegal Migration. (4) Identifies human traffickers and collates data on traffickers across various agencies through the Information-Analytical Department. (28) Investigates possible human trafficking schemes by deploying teams of two law enforcement officials in Mobile Units to investigate companies offering suspicious work opportunities abroad. (29) In 2018, Mobile Units inspected 71 locations. (4)
District Police Units within MoIA	Collects information on minors in each jurisdiction and visit minors' families to inform them of their rights. (25) Conduct classes for school teachers on children's rights.
Human Rights Department within the MoIA*	Ensures prompt responses to human trafficking crimes and compose suggested recommendations for investigations. (4)
Prosecutor General's Office within the Ministry of Justice	Investigates large-scale cases of child trafficking. (6) Headquartered in the Prosecution Service of Georgia under the Prime Minister's Office. (25)
Joint Child Referral Mechanism	Ensures interagency coordination of the enforcement of child labor laws and enumerates the procedures for referring children subject to any form of violence, including labor exploitation, to child protective services. (2,4) After any ministry identifies a case of child exploitation, MoIA registers the case. MoLHSA then assesses the child's condition, provides shelter and rehabilitation services to the child as needed, and monitors the child's case. (6)

* Agency responsible for child labor enforcement was created during the reporting period.

MODERATE ADVANCEMENT

Following the abolition of the labor inspectorate in 2006, Prime Minister’s Decree No. 81, signed in March 2015, established a Department of Labor Inspection in MoLHSA. (30-32) However, existing legislation hampers enforcement of labor laws by the Department of Labor Inspection. In particular, although the new 2018 Law on Occupational Safety allows unannounced inspections, labor inspectors can only conduct them in 3H industries. (2,14) Furthermore, the Law on Oversight of Entrepreneurial Activity requires government agencies, including the Department of Labor Inspection, to acquire a court order to inspect any private business. (32,33) However, a 2019 Law on Occupational Safety grants labor inspectors the ability to enter any business for occupational health and safety reasons without prior notification and removes the requirement that the Department of Labor Inspection acquire a court order to inspect private businesses starting in late 2019. (4) In addition, the government passed Decrees 382 and N01-25N to determine rules for labor safety inspections. (2,21-23)

In 2018, the Prosecution Service of Georgia separated from the Ministry of Justice and now has the primary responsibility for setting criminal justice policy related to criminal prosecutions. (2)

MoLHSA’s jurisdiction was expanded during 2018 to allow the Department of Labor Inspection to detect labor exploitation and inform law enforcement officials of potential victims of human trafficking, including children. (2,24)

Labor Law Enforcement

In 2018, labor law enforcement agencies in Georgia took actions to combat child labor (Table 6). However, gaps exist within the authority of MoLHSA that may hinder adequate labor law enforcement, including penalty assessment authorization.

Table 6. Labor Law Enforcement Efforts Related to Child Labor

In 2015, the Department of Labor Inspection in MoLHSA created a pilot initiative to monitor compliance with occupational safety and health laws and laws prohibiting forced labor and human trafficking. The initiative continued to function during the reporting period. (9,30,35) The pilot program is an initial step toward establishing a labor inspectorate and is intended to build the capacity and credibility of the inspectorate when the organization is fully established. (35,36)

Currently, except in cases of suspected human trafficking or forced labor violations, the Department of Labor Inspection is only able to conduct monitoring of 3H industries and the 150 companies that volunteered to participate in the pilot program, and it must give companies 5 days’ notice prior to a monitoring visit until the new law on Occupational Safety takes effect in September 2019. (25,30,37,38) Labor monitors conducted 511 monitoring site visits, 90 of which were unannounced. Visits were only conducted in 3H industries, and no violations of child labor were found. (2) In addition, labor monitors are able to impose sanctions and assess penalties for violations found only in 3H industries. (2)

A source reported that because the State Monitoring Program does not have sanctioning authority and its findings are confidential, the monitoring has little impact on workers. (25,38,39) The number of labor monitors is likely insufficient for the size of Georgia's workforce, which includes more than 1.9 million workers. (53) According to the ILO's technical advice of a ratio approaching 1 monitor for every 20,000 workers in transition economies, Georgia would employ about 100 labor monitors. (54, 55)

During the reporting period, labor monitors received 3-day trainings from the ILO on new labor laws and best practices on labor law enforcement. (2)

Criminal Law Enforcement

In 2018, criminal law enforcement agencies in Georgia took actions to combat child labor (Table 7). However, gaps exist within the operations of the criminal enforcement agencies that may hinder adequate criminal law enforcement, including investigation of forced begging.

Table 7. Criminal Law Enforcement Efforts Related to Child Labor

Overview of Criminal Law Enforcement	2017	2018
Initial Training for New Criminal Investigators	Yes (40)	Yes (2)
Training on New Laws Related to the Worst Forms of Child Labor	Yes (40)	Yes (2)

Imposed Penalties for Violations Related to The Worst Forms of Child Labor	0 (20)	0 (20)
Reciprocal Referral Mechanism Exists Between Criminal Authorities and Social Services	Yes (40)	Yes (2)

Law enforcement agencies received training on the worst forms of child labor, including forced labor, child trafficking, and the use of children in illicit activities. (4) Ministry officials, including prosecutors and investigators, participated in trainings and seminars organized by the Police Academy of the Ministry of Internal Affairs (MoIA). (2,4) In 2018, law enforcement officials were trained on human trafficking at border checkpoints; 16 trainings were organized for law enforcement officials and prosecutors on legislation review, interagency coordination, and illegal transportation of migrants. (4) Criminal investigators also were unable to investigate and prosecute any potential human trafficking cases, including of children, in Abkhazia and South Ossetia because they remain occupied by Russian forces and are outside of central government control. (4,20)

During the reporting period, the Social Services Agency referred 11 cases of minors involved in forced labor to the MoIA and provided services to 328 children, 270 of which were directed to crisis centers. (2) In addition, authorities investigated and convicted two individuals as a result of their participation in the worst forms of child labor, each receiving 9-year prison sentences for forcing children to beg. (2,25) However, a source reported that forced begging needs to be addressed broadly, rather than as isolated incidents. (4) Gaps remain in the identification and removal of street children as well. (4)

IV. COORDINATION OF GOVERNMENT EFFORTS ON CHILD LABOR

The government has established mechanisms to coordinate its efforts to address child labor (Table 8). However, gaps exist that hinder the effective coordination of efforts to address child labor, including coordination among agencies.

MODERATE ADVANCEMENT

Table 8. Key Mechanisms to Coordinate Government Efforts on Child Labor

Coordinating Body	Role & Description
Interagency Commission for the Implementation of the UN CRC	Monitors implementation of the Child Rights chapter of the National Human Rights Action Plan, which is based on provisions of the UN CRC. Held meetings in 2018 and contributed to drafting legislation. (25)
Interagency Anti-Trafficking Coordination Council for the Implementation of Measures Against Human Trafficking	Coordinates government efforts against human trafficking, including efforts to protect and rehabilitate victims. (6) Refers child victims to shelters to receive social services. Chaired by the Minister of Justice and comprises representatives from state agencies and non-state entities. (4,6) In 2018, approved a National Action Plan on Human Trafficking for 2019–2020. (2,25,41)
Prosecution Service of Georgia Working Group	Established in 2017 to address labor trafficking issues under the framework of the Prosecution Service Strategy for 2017–2021. (2,42) Met in 2018 to discuss investigative techniques, victim services, successful prosecutions, and combating labor trafficking. (2) The corresponding 2019 Action Plan for the Prosecution Service includes increasing awareness of victim services and developing a list of high-risk businesses for inspections. (2)

Coordination on cases between the labor inspectorate and the Criminal Police Department has traditionally been sporadic. (4)

V. GOVERNMENT POLICIES ON CHILD LABOR

The government has established policies related to child labor (Table 9). However, policy gaps exist that hinder efforts to address child labor, including the scope of existing policies.

Table 9. Key Policies Related to Child Labor

Policy	Description
National Human Rights Strategy (2014–2020)†	Identifies human rights priorities, including the protection of children’s rights. Includes objectives to strengthen the provision of services to vulnerable children, such as those living and working on the streets, and requires implementation of ILO C. 138 and C. 182. (43,44) The National Human Rights Action Plan for 2018–2020 has a chapter on children’s rights and lays out actions for government commitment toward developing a broad-based approach to fighting violence against children. (2,45)
National Action Plan on Trafficking in Persons (2017–2018)†	Supports the development of policy and the implementation of activities to address human trafficking. Includes plans to conduct research on commercial sexual exploitation and forced labor with a particular focus on the exploitation of minors. (34) In 2018, approved a National Action Plan for 2019–2020. The plan commits the government to protect and effectively integrate street children, such as issuing identify documents and increasing school enrollment. (2,41,46)
EU Association Agreement and Association Agenda	Outlines a framework for cooperation between Georgia and the EU. Requires Georgia to institute a number of initiatives to protect children’s rights, including addressing child poverty, providing adequate resources to the Public Defender to undertake work for children, and focusing on measures to protect children against all forms of violence. (6,47) The government continued its support for the program in 2018. (2)

‡ The government had other policies that may have addressed child labor issues or had an impact on child labor. (2,48)

In 2018, the government announced its intention to become a Pathfinder Country for the Global Partnership to End Violence Against Children. In doing so, the government has committed to end violence against children, including by combatting child trafficking and increasing school inclusion through the use of broad-based approaches. (2,49)

Although the government has established policies to address child begging and trafficking, and child labor in street work, research found no evidence of a policy to address child labor in agriculture.

VI. SOCIAL PROGRAMS TO ADDRESS CHILD LABOR

In 2018, the government funded and participated in programs that include the goal of eliminating child labor (Table 10). However, gaps exist in these social programs, including the adequacy of programs to address the full scope of the problem.

Table 10. Key Social Programs to Address Child Labor

Program	Description
Improved Compliance with Labor Laws in the Democratic Republic of Georgia	$2 million USDOL-funded grant implemented by ILO to work with the Government of Georgia to improve its ability to enforce labor laws, including child labor laws, and adhere to international labor standards. Key objectives include supporting the establishment of adequate labor law enforcement mechanisms in Georgia through labor inspection and promoting effective tripartite cooperation. (50) Additional information is available on the USDOL website.
Research on Street Children†	MoLHSA, MoIA, and UNICEF-administered program to conduct qualitative research on street children. (2,34) In July 2018, a final report was released and identified main gaps such as the need for increased cooperation between Georgia and Azerbaijan on law application, outreach to minority populations and families of street-connected children, legal reform on child protection, and police investigation of cases. (4,11)
Targeted Social Assistance Program and Child Benefit Program†	Social services agency-administered social assistance programs designed to eliminate poverty, especially child poverty. The Child Benefit Program is intended to halve extreme poverty among children, and covers about a quarter of the most vulnerable families with children. (51) Active in 2018. (2)
Social Rehabilitation and Childcare Program†	Government program with a 2018 budget of $11.2 million that provides assistance to children at high risk of abandonment and children with disabilities; also places abandoned children in appropriate care. (2,6,9,33,34)
State Fund for Protection and Assistance of (Statutory) Victims of Human Trafficking†	MoLHSA program to protect, assist, and rehabilitate trafficking and domestic violence victims, including minors. (6) Implements the government's Rehabilitation and Reintegration Strategy, which includes operating shelters for trafficking victims in Batumi and Tbilisi. In 2018, received a budget of $2.04 million. (2)
Education-Focused Programs for Vulnerable Children†	The Ministry of Education and Science funds multiple programs to promote the inclusion of vulnerable children in education. (2) Initiatives include a program designed to increase the participation in school by street children, victims of forced begging, and children who are seasonal agricultural workers; a program to increase the number of Georgian language teachers in communities with large ethnic minority populations; and a program to distribute free textbooks to public school students. (2,9) In 2018, funding for free textbooks, school buses, and inclusive education increased from the previous year. (2)
UNICEF Country Program (2016–2020)	Joint effort by UNICEF and the Government of Georgia to improve social inclusion of the most vulnerable children. (52) In 2018, worked on a draft code on the rights and freedoms of children, which was submitted to Parliament. (2)

‡ The government had other social programs that may have included the goal of eliminating or preventing child labor. (2,4)

During the reporting period, the government issued grants to NGOs to raise awareness about children living and working on the streets and the state services available to them. (2) Although Georgia has programs that target child labor, the scope of these programs is insufficient to fully address the extent of the problem, especially with regard to street children. (2,4)

VII. SUGGESTED GOVERNMENT ACTIONS TO ELIMINATE CHILD LABOR

Based on the reporting above, suggested actions are identified that would advance the elimination of child labor in Georgia (Table 11).

Table 11. Suggested Government Actions to Eliminate Child Labor

Area	Suggested Action	Year(s) Suggested
Legal Framework	Ensure that the minimum age for work applies to all children, including those in informal work.	2017 – 2018
	Determine and codify the types of hazardous work prohibited for children, in consultation with employers' and workers' organizations.	2016 – 2018
	Increase the age up to which education is compulsory to age 16, the minimum age for work.	2009 – 2018
	Ensure that the law's light work provisions are sufficiently specific to prevent children from involvement in child labor.	2016 – 2018
	Ensure that the law criminally prohibits the recruitment of children under age 18 by non-state armed groups.	2016 – 2018

Area	Suggested Action	Year(s) Suggested
Enforcement	Ensure that the Department of Labor Inspection has funding to employ a sufficient number of inspectors; that inspectors are capable of performing quality targeted, complaint-based, and unannounced inspections in all sectors and businesses on all labor laws; and that inspectors have the ability to assess penalties.	2009 – 2018
	Ensure that legislation permits the Department of Labor Inspection to enter the premises of all businesses to conduct unannounced inspections, and empowers inspectors to impose sanctions for the violation of labor laws.	2015 – 2018
	Increase the number of labor inspectors to monitor and combat child labor.	2018
	Ensure that cases of forced begging are recognized as criminal acts and receive appropriate and thorough investigation by the police.	2014 – 2018
Coordination	Increase coordination between the Department of Labor Inspection and Criminal Police Department.	2018
Government Policies	Adopt a policy that addresses all relevant forms of child labor, including child labor in agriculture.	2017 – 2018
Social Programs	Collect and publish data on the extent and nature of child labor to inform policies and programs, especially on agriculture and in Abkhazia and South Ossetia.	2018
	Make additional efforts to register children from Roma communities and provide them with identity documents, and ensure that these groups can access education.	2018
	Expand existing programs to address the scope of the child labor problem, especially for street children.	2018

In 2018, Ghana made a moderate advancement in efforts to eliminate the worst forms of child labor. The government secured at least 14 convictions for offenses related to the worst forms of child labor, approved the National Plan of Action Phase II on the Elimination of the Worst Forms of Child Labor, and launched a strategy to combat child labor in the fishing sector. Additionally, representatives from the government met with counterparts from Burkina Faso, Benin, and Togo to discuss coordinating efforts to combat cross-border trafficking. However, children in Ghana continue to engage in the worst forms of child labor, including in fishing and cocoa harvesting, sometimes as a result of human trafficking. Prohibitions related to the commercial sexual exploitation of children and the use of children for illicit activities do not meet international standards. The government also has not acceded to the UN CRC Optional Protocol on the Sale of Children, Child Prostitution and Child Pornography, and resource constraints severely limited government social protection agencies' abilities to fully implement social programs during the reporting period.

I. PREVALENCE AND SECTORAL DISTRIBUTION OF CHILD LABOR

Children in Ghana engage in the worst forms of child labor, including in fishing and cocoa harvesting, sometimes as a result of human trafficking. (1-5) Table 1 provides key indicators on children's work and education in Ghana.

Table 1. Statistics on Children's Work and Education

Children	Age	Percent
Working (% and population)	5 to 14	24.7 (1,721,914)
Attending School (%)	5 to 14	91.7
Combining Work and School (%)	7 to 14	25.3

Based on a review of available information, Table 2 provides an overview of children's work by sector and activity.

Table 2. Overview of Children's Work by Sector and Activity

Sector/Industry	Activity
Agriculture	Producing cocoa,† including land clearing, using machetes and cutlasses for weeding, collecting cocoa pods with a harvesting hook, breaking cocoa pods, working in the vicinity of pesticide spraying, and carrying heavy loads† of water (2,5,8-14)
	Production of palm oil† and cotton, including weeding, harvesting, and acting as scarecrows (11,14,15)
	Herding livestock, including cattle,† hunting, and work in slaughterhouses (14,16,17)
	Fishing,† including for tilapia; preparing bait, nets, and fishing gear; launching, paddling, and draining canoes; diving for fish; casting and pulling fishing nets and untangling them underwater; sorting, picking, cleaning, smoking, transporting, and selling fish; cleaning and repairing nets; and building and repairing boats (1-3,8,10,12,14,15,18-21)
Industry	Quarrying† and small-scale mining,† sometimes for gold, including using mercury, digging in deep pits, crushing rocks by hand, carrying heavy loads,† and operating machinery† (2,4,11,12,18,22-25)
	Manufacturing and working in sawmills† (4,11)
	Construction and bricklaying or carrying brick (14,16)

Sector/Industry	Activity
Services	Domestic work† (9,13,14,18)
	Transporting heavy loads as kayaye † (3,8,14,18,26,27,28)
	Work in transportation,† activities unknown (4)
	Electronic waste and garbage scavenging,† including sorting scavenged items† and transporting items for sale† (29-32)
	Street work,† including begging,† small-scale vending, and working at restaurants or bars† (4,11,14,33)
Categorical Worst Forms of Child Labor‡	Commercial sexual exploitation, sometimes as a result of human trafficking (8,13,17,18,34-36)
	Forced labor in begging; agriculture, including herding; fishing, including for tilapia; artisanal gold mining; domestic work; and street work, including vending and carrying heavy loads, each sometimes as a result of human trafficking (1,3,14,17,19,20,37-39)
	Forced ritual servitude for girls known as trokosi , including in domestic work for priests (3,12,14,18,27,34,36,39,40)

† Determined by national law or regulation as hazardous and, as such, relevant to Article 3(d) of ILO C. 182.

‡ Child labor understood as the worst forms of child labor per se under Article 3(a)–(c) of ILO C. 182.

The majority of children subject to human trafficking are transported within Ghana for labor in cocoa, domestic work, commercial sexual exploitation, gold mining, and fishing. Children as young as age 4 are subjected to forced labor in fishing in the areas around Lake Volta, sometimes as a result of human trafficking. (17,20,24,27,34,38,39) In December 2018, 42 children between the ages of 5 and 16 who had been transported from Central and Greater Accra were rescued from labor exploitation on Lake Volta. (41,42) During the reporting period, the government identified 22 children who were victims of sex trafficking. (8) Children also use sharp tools and are exposed to agro-chemicals while working in the cocoa sector. (5,11) In addition, girls as young as 13 years of age from rural northern regions of Ghana travel to urban centers to work as kayaye carrying heavy loads on their heads in markets, and are particularly vulnerable to sexual abuse and exploitation. (28)

According to the Constitution and the Education Act, primary education in Ghana is free and compulsory from kindergarten through junior high school. (43,44) However, in practice, children must pay for school uniforms, fees, and materials, which may be prohibitive for many families. (1,3,9,12,24,29,36,45,46,47) In addition, factors such as a shortage of classrooms, long distance to schools, absence of sanitation facilities, overcrowding in urban areas, sexual harassment of girls in schools, physical violence, verbal abuse, and poor educational infrastructure, particularly in rural areas, severely limit access to education for many children. (1,9,12,14,24,36,45,47) In response, the government has made efforts to increase the accessibility of public education, including by building schools to reduce the distance students must travel, providing school uniforms, lifting birth registration requirements for enrollment, and extending free education through high school. (48,47) Although uniforms and birth certificates are required for admittance into free public school, in practice students are not denied admission if they do not have uniforms or birth certificates. (49) The extension of free senior high school throughout the country has resulted in an influx of students and overcrowded schools. To address this issue, in 2018, the government introduced a dual-track system whereby students, typically between the ages of 13 and 17, may attend school in alternating semesters and take advantage of opportunities such as vocational training when they are not in school. (8,49) However, reports suggest that such opportunities are often not readily available. As a result, these children are vulnerable to recruitment into child labor. (8) The government operates 14 national schools for deaf and blind students. (47)

II. LEGAL FRAMEWORK FOR CHILD LABOR

Ghana has ratified most key international conventions concerning child labor (Table 3).

Table 3. Ratification of International Conventions on Child Labor

Convention	Ratification
 ILO C. 138, Minimum Age	✓
ILO C. 182, Worst Forms of Child Labor	✓

	Convention	Ratification
	UN CRC	✓
	UN CRC Optional Protocol on Armed Conflict	✓
	UN CRC Optional Protocol on the Sale of Children, Child Prostitution and Child Pornography
	Palermo Protocol on Trafficking in Persons	✓

The government has established laws and regulations related to child labor (Table 4). However, gaps exist in Ghana's legal framework to adequately protect children from the worst forms of child labor, including the use of children in commercial sexual exploitation.

Table 4. Laws and Regulations on Child Labor

Standard	Meets International Standards	Age	Legislation
Minimum Age for Work	Yes	15	Section 89 of the Children's Act (50)

‡ Age calculated based on available information (58)

In February 2018, the government approved the National Plan of Action Phase II on the Elimination of the Worst Forms of Child Labor (NPA2), and in doing so, effectively approved the Hazardous Child Labor Activity Framework (HAF). The HAF serves as a guide to implement the NPA2 and extends the scope of prohibited hazardous work activities to work in agriculture, domestic work, and lake fishing. (8,49,59) However, supplementary implementing regulations to the Labor Act, which were drafted in 2016 and include protections for domestic workers, were not issued in the reporting period. (49,60) In addition, Ghana's laws do not criminally prohibit the use of a child in pornographic performances. (61)

MODERATE ADVANCEMENT

III. ENFORCEMENT OF LAWS ON CHILD LABOR

The government has established institutional mechanisms for the enforcement of laws and regulations on child labor (Table 5). However, gaps exist within the authority of the Ministry of Employment and Labor Relations (MELR) that may hinder adequate enforcement of their child labor laws.

Table 5. Agencies Responsible for Child Labor Law Enforcement

Organization/Agency	Role
Ministry of Employment and Labor Relations (MELR)	Enforces child labor laws. In 2018, budgeted approximately $67,000 for activities to combat child labor. (8) In September 2018, organized a national forum to discuss and review the Ghana Child Labor Monitoring System (GCLMS), a monitoring, data collection, and referral mechanism. (62)
Ministry of Local Government and Rural Development	Oversees District Assemblies. Labor inspectors from District Assemblies investigate child labor violations, educate employers on compliance with child labor laws, and conduct inspections. (1,63,48) Within District Assemblies, Social Services subcommittees enforce child labor provisions in the informal sector. (50,64) In 2018, District Assemblies in Ada and Afram Plains funded and organized ceremonies to commemorate World Day Against Trafficking in Persons. (42,64) Additionally, in 2018, both Aowin and Adansi North districts published medium term development plans which aim to facilitate intra-district collaboration and coordination on addressing child labor in cocoa production and in mining. (62,65,66)
Ministry of the Interior (MOI)	Through its Ghana Police Service (GPS), investigates, arrests, and prosecutes cases related to the worst forms of child labor and operates a 24/7 hotline for reporting crimes. (67) Within the GPS, the Domestic Violence and Victim Support Unit and Anti-Human Trafficking Unit (AHTU) investigate cases and provide support to victims. (3,14,37,48) Through its Ghana Immigration Service, combats human trafficking through Anti-Human Smuggling and Trafficking Units. (67-69)
Ministry of Justice's Office of the Attorney General	Combats child labor by prosecuting child labor and child trafficking crimes. (48) Within the Economic and Organized Crime Office, the Human Trafficking Unit shares responsibility with the AHTU for combating human trafficking, confiscating proceeds from human trafficking, and providing ongoing training for law enforcement on prevention measures. (70,71) In February 2018, the governing board of the Economic and Organized Crime was inaugurated, and the number of staff on the board was increased from four to seven. (42)
Minerals Commission	Inspects licensed mining sites and raises awareness among criminal law enforcement agencies of laws that apply to the mining sector. (24)
Ministry of Gender, Children, and Social Protection (MOGCSPP)	Combats child labor and leads government efforts to combat human trafficking. (67) Through its Department of Social Welfare (DSW), operates shelters for vulnerable children, administers juvenile justice, and implements programs to combat child labor. (14,70,72) Through its Human Trafficking Secretariat, oversees the creation, implementation, and review of human trafficking policies and ensures proper monitoring, evaluation, and data collection. (67) Operates a hotline to facilitate access to social services, including for victims of human trafficking. The hotline received 3,599 calls in 2018. (8,69)
Community Child Protection Committees (CCPCs)/District Child Protection Committees (DCPCs)	Receive complaints of child labor violations at the community and district levels, respectively, and report cases to the GPS, DSW, or traditional authorities, who work with the police to conduct investigations. (24,73,74) Participate in the GCLMS to monitor, prevent, and withdraw children from the worst forms of child labor in more than 600 communities nationwide as part of the Child and Family Welfare Policy. (16,33,46) During the reporting period, many communities either had defunct CCPCs or lacked CCPCs, and some districts' DCPCs were inactive. (75)

Although the Attorney General's Department is responsible for prosecuting child trafficking violations, there were an insufficient number of state attorneys designated to prosecute human trafficking crimes. Instead, the majority of cases were handled by the Ghana Police Service (GPS) prosecutors, who often have minimal formal legal training and are limited by procedural rules not applicable to state attorneys. (49,67)

Labor Law Enforcement

In 2018, labor law enforcement agencies in Ghana took actions to combat child labor (Table 6). However, gaps exist within the authority of the MELR that may hinder adequate labor law enforcement, including the authority of labor inspectors to assess penalties.

‡ Data are from January 1, 2018 to November 30, 2018.

The number of labor inspectors is likely insufficient for the size of Ghana's workforce, which includes almost 12 million workers. (76) According to the ILO's technical advice of a ratio approaching 1 inspector for every 15,000 workers in industrializing economies, Ghana would employ about 833 inspectors. (76,77) Inadequate resources, including funding, transportation, office space, and office supplies, hamper the labor inspectorate's capacity to enforce child labor laws, particularly in the informal sector in which child labor is most common. (8,24,63,48) Formal referral mechanisms continued to be hindered by lack of shelter space and transportation for victims. The government did not provide data on the number of child labor violations identified. (48)

Criminal Law Enforcement

In 2018, criminal law enforcement agencies in Ghana took actions to combat child labor (Table 7). However, gaps exist within the operations of the criminal law enforcement agencies that may hinder adequate criminal law enforcement, including financial resource allocation and training for criminal investigators.

Table 7. Criminal Law Enforcement Efforts Related to Child Labor

Overview of Criminal Law Enforcement	2017	2018
Initial Training for New Criminal Investigators	Yes (39,67)	Yes (8)

Imposed Penalties for Violations Related to The Worst Forms of Child Labor	Unknown	Yes (8)
Reciprocal Referral Mechanism Exists Between Criminal Authorities and Social Services	Yes (48)	Yes (8)

During the reporting period, 64 police and immigration officials received training on child labor as part of a trafficking-in-persons training. (8) Additionally, during the reporting period the Central Regional Police Command organized a sensitization for school children in Cape Coast to raise awareness of child trafficking. (21)

Members of parliament have attempted to discourage investigations or prosecutions of child trafficking offenses, and high staff turnover limits the government's ability to investigate and prosecute these offenses.

Ghana

MODERATE ADVANCEMENT

(39,63,48,67,69,82) In December 2018, the government in conjunction with an NGO partner rescued 42 child victims of trafficking who were engaged in exploitative labor on Lake Volta. The traffickers were identified as political party officials. They sought the assistance of a member of parliament who threatened to shut down the NGO's office. (41,42,83) The case is currently pending in court. (42)

According to the GPS, in 2018, nine child labor trafficking cases were prosecuted. As a result of these prosecutions, 14 defendants were convicted of violating the Children's Act of 1998 by engaging a child in exploitative and hazardous work. (64) Convicted individuals were required to pay a fine of approximately $309 and sign a statement committing to good behavior. (8) All victims received support including shelter, medical attention, nutrition, and counseling from either government or NGO providers. (8) During the reporting period, the Accra Circuit Court sentenced a woman to 5 years in prison under the Human Trafficking Act for her involvement in selling a 14-year-old boy for $20. (84,85) Additionally, in 2018, the courts convicted 3 other individuals on labor trafficking charges involving children in violation of the Human Trafficking Act. Two defendants were sentenced to 5 years of hard labor, and one defendant was sentenced to 7 years of hard labor. (42,86)

Criminal law enforcement agencies continued to note that poor inter-agency coordination and insufficient resources for transportation and victim support resulted in under-reporting of cases and hampered enforcement efforts. (12,34,37,39,67,69) In addition, coordination among government officials on human trafficking issues was uneven across the country. The government relies heavily on NGOs to identify cases of child trafficking, and cooperation improved during the year. (67,75,82) In October and November 2018, five Ghanaian law enforcement officials participated in a week-long training on combating human trafficking and sexual exploitation of children held at the U.S.-sponsored International Law Enforcement Academy in Botswana. During the reporting period, authorities identified 22 children who had been transported for purposes of commercial sexual exploitation. (42)

IV. COORDINATION OF GOVERNMENT EFFORTS ON CHILD LABOR

The government has established mechanisms to coordinate its efforts to address child labor (Table 8).

Table 8. Key Mechanisms to Coordinate Government Efforts on Child Labor

Coordinating Body	Role & Description
National Steering Committee on Child Labor	Coordinate government efforts to combat the worst forms of child labor; and oversee implementation of the National Plan of Action Phase II on the Elimination of the Worst Forms of Child Labor (NPA2), which includes implementation of the GCLMS. (48,67,87,88) Led by the MELR's Child Labor Unit (CLU) and includes representatives from other ministries, employers' and workers' organizations, and civil society. (1,48,87,89,90) In 2018, the Committee held two meetings, and convened a national two-day forum in September to review the GCLMS. (8,91) From August to September 2018 traveled to four districts to conduct monitoring visits of the implementation of child labor projects. (92)
Inter-Ministerial Committee to Combat Human Trafficking	Aims to prevent Ghanaian migrants from becoming victims of human trafficking. (69) Comprising MELR, MOGCSF, Ministry of Justice, and MOI. In October 2018, committed to using the Trafficking in Persons Information System to improve case tracking. (8)
MELR's Child Labor Unit (CLU)	Facilitates the development of policies and laws to combat child labor, coordinates interventions to combat child labor, and oversees child protection committees at the district level. (3,23,24,63,74,87) Provides technical support to ministries, departments and agencies, employers' and workers' organizations, and international agencies such as ILO, IOM, and UNICEF. (1,48) In 2018, allocated $107,000 to carry out its work and conducted child labor monitoring exercises in 4 cocoa districts. (8)

V. Government Policies on Child Labor

The government has established policies related to child labor (Table 9). However, policy gaps exist that hinder efforts to address child labor, including mainstreaming child labor issues into relevant policies.

Table 9. Key Policies Related to Child Labor

Policy	Description
National Plan of Action Phase II on the Elimination of the Worst Forms of Child Labor (NPA2) (2017–2020)†	Aims to address gaps identified in the first NPA (2009–2015), improve coordination, and reduce the worst forms of child labor to 10 percent by 2021, with a focus on the fishing, mining, and cocoa sectors. (11,49,88,89) Approved by the Cabinet in February 2018 and launched in May 2018. Will review GCLMS and the development of protocols and guidelines to declare child labor-free zones; expected to be finalized in 2019. (8,62) Activities include providing school uniforms and supplies to needy students to motivate attendance, improving access of older children to apprenticeship opportunities, and improving enrollment of needy families in areas with high prevalence of child labor. (8)
National Plan of Action for the Elimination of Human Trafficking in Ghana (NPA) (2017–2021)	Aims to improve data collection, enhance victim protection, increase accountability for perpetrators, and conduct prevention and outreach, including an expansion of the Livelihood Empowerment Against Poverty (LEAP) Program. (93) During 2018, the government printed and distributed awareness-raising materials, including posters and billboards, and organized community awareness-raising events. In addition, the government organized stakeholder meetings to track progress of NPA implementation and took preliminary steps to establish a shelter for child victims of trafficking. (42,49)
Hazardous Child Labor Activity Frameworks	Includes the Hazardous Child Labor Activity Framework and the Hazardous Child Labor Activity Framework for the Cocoa Sector. Developed in consultation with workers' and employers' organizations, identify hazardous activities that should be prohibited for children. (53,59,94) In 2018, with approval of NPA2, both frameworks entered into force. (8,49)
2010 Declaration of Joint Action to Support the Implementation of the Harkin-Engel Protocol (2010 Declaration) and Its Accompanying Framework of Action	Joint Declaration by the Governments of Ghana, Côte d'Ivoire, and the United States, and the International Cocoa and Chocolate Industry. (95-97) Provides resources and coordinates with key stakeholders on efforts to reduce the worst forms of child labor in cocoa-producing areas. (95,96) Ensures that all project efforts implemented under the Declaration and Framework align with Ghana's national action plans to promote coherence and sustainability. (95-97) USDOL-funded projects and some industry-funded projects carried out activities in support of this policy during the reporting period. (97)
Bi-Lateral Commitments to Combat Cross-Border Trafficking	Joint declaration signed by the First Ladies of Côte d'Ivoire and Ghana to combat the worst forms of child labor and advocate for sub-regional cooperation with other First Ladies. (98) A subsequent cooperative agreement between the two governments further operationalizes the declaration, which targets high-risk sectors, provides protection to victims, improves coordination, and prosecutes offenders. (99,100) A Memorandum of Understanding (MOU) with the Government of Jordan formalizes labor recruitment practices and provides for support and repatriation of Ghanaian victims of human trafficking in Jordan. (70) During the reporting period representatives from the government met with counterparts from Burkina Faso, Benin, and Togo to discuss coordinating efforts to combat cross-border crime including human trafficking. (101)
Minerals and Mining Policy of Ghana	Prohibits child labor in mining and stipulates children who visit mining sites must be supervised. (102) In May 2018, district mining officers of the Minerals Commission participated in a workshop organized by ILO to build capacity in identification of child labor at mining sites, and the process for referring these children to social services. As a result of this workshop, a digital inter-ministerial child labor monitoring tool known as Galamstop was developed. (62) In August 2018, the Minerals Commission, CLU, and ILO made recommendations for the inclusion of provisions on child labor in a proposed amendment to the Minerals and Mining Policy. (62)
Strategy on Anti-Child Labor and Trafficking in Fisheries†	Ministry of Fisheries and Aquaculture Development policy that aims to significantly reduce the incidence of child labor in fisheries by improving child protection systems and increasing prosecution of offenders. (103)

‡ The government had other policies that may have addressed child labor issues or had an impact on child labor. (37,104)

In October 2018, the government participated in a workshop on the methodology of the 2018–2019 survey being conducted by NORC at the University of Chicago on the prevalence of child labor in cocoa-growing areas in Ghana. The survey fieldwork commenced in November 2018 and concluded in January 2019. (105) During the reporting period, the Cabinet approved NPA2, which aims to reduce the prevalence of the worst forms of child labor by establishing social policy and institutional capacity to eliminate and prevent all forms of child labor. (8,11) The National Migration Policy does not include child labor elimination and prevention strategies. (38,106)

VI. SOCIAL PROGRAMS TO ADDRESS CHILD LABOR

In 2018, the government funded and participated in programs that include the goal of eliminating or preventing child labor (Table 10). However, gaps exist in these social programs, including funding and adequacy of programs to address the problem in all sectors.

Table 10. Key Social Programs to Address Child Labor

Program	Description
USDOL-Funded Projects	USDOL projects that aim to eliminate child labor. These projects include: Adwuma Pa (2018–2022), $5 million project implemented by CARE; Combating Forced Labor and Labor Trafficking of Adults and Children in Ghana (2017–2021), $2 million project implemented by Verité; Assessing Progress in Reducing Child Labor in Cocoa-Growing Areas of Côte d'Ivoire and Ghana (2015–2019), $3 million project implemented by NORC at the University of Chicago; Mobilizing Community Action and Promoting Opportunities for Youth in Ghana's Cocoa-Growing Communities (MOCA) (2015–2019), $4.5 million project implemented by Winrock International; CARING Gold Mining Project (ASGM), $5 million project implemented by ILO in Ghana and the Philippines; and the Global Action Program on Child Labor Issues (GAP), a research project implemented by ILO in 10 countries. Some projects may be in support of the 2010 Declaration to combat child labor in the cocoa sector. (107-110) Additional information is available on the USDOL website.
U.S. Government-Funded Projects	USG-funded projects aim to improve child protection measures in partnership with the host government. Includes Child Protection Compact Partnership (CPC) (2015–2020), $5 million USDOS-funded project implemented by IOM and local NGO Free the Slaves; Accelerating Care Reform (2016–2020), $8 million USAID- project implemented by the DSW and UNICEF to strengthen the social welfare system; LEAP 1000 (2014–2019), $12 million USAID- project implemented by UNICEF to strengthen the existing LEAP program and fund cash transfers to 6,200 poor households; Sustainable Fisheries Management Project (2014–2020), $24 million USAID-funded project implemented by CRC/URI which includes activities aimed at reducing child labor in the fishing sector which assisted the Ministry of Fisheries and Aquaculture Development to develop a child labor and trafficking strategy that was launched in October 2018; the Complementary Basic Education Program, a $40 million joint contribution between USAID and the UK's Department for International Development to support Ghana's Ministry of Education' efforts to educate and re-integrate out-of-school children into the basic school system; and the USAID-UNICEF $37 million jointly funded Learning Support program, which helps increase inclusive education services for special needs children in primary schools. (8,111-116)
Industry-Funded Projects	Projects aim to increase sustainability in the cocoa sector, improve farmer livelihoods, improve access to education, and combat the worst forms of child labor in cocoa-growing areas. Some projects may be in support of the World Cocoa Foundation's CocoaAction (2014–2020) initiative and the spirit of the 2010 Declaration. (97,117,118) During the reporting period, the government engaged with international partners by conducting child labor surveys in cocoa-growing communities. (8)
Awareness Raising Activities†	Large-scale events by MOGCSP, AHTU, MOI, and MELR to raise awareness of child trafficking issues through radio and television broadcasts, public events, and community activities. (42,69,119) In 2018, the government printed and distributed 1,000 copies of the NPA, and 4,000 flyers and 2,000 posters intended to raise awareness of human trafficking issues, including child trafficking. (42)
Livelihood Empowerment Against Poverty (LEAP)†	MOGCSP-administered conditional cash transfer program that provides monetary support to poor households with orphans and vulnerable children on the condition that these children attend school, receive vaccinations, and regularly visit health care facilities. (24,120-122) Serves over 213,000 households throughout the country. (122) During the reporting period, members of the LEAP unit trained senior officials in Ghana's metropolitan, municipal, and district assemblies (MMDAs) in all but the Volta and Eastern Regions on human trafficking and child labor trends, Ghana's efforts to address the issues, and the role MMDAs can play to address trafficking. (42)
Educational Programs†	The Ghana Cocoa Board's Child Education Support Program rehabilitates and builds schools in cocoa-growing areas. (123,124) Ministry of Education-funded programs under the Free Compulsory Universal Basic Education aim to increase school attendance and enrollment. (104,124) Include MOGCSP's Ghana School Feeding Program, which aims to reduce malnutrition and improve attendance among students; the Capitation Grant Scheme, which helps defray the cost of basic education for students in public primary schools; and the Ghana Education Service—Girls' Education Unit, which places girls' education officers at the regional and district levels and mobilizes communities to enroll more girls in school. (1,121,122,125,126) The Ghana Education Service program includes the distribution of 400,000–500,000 free school uniforms and exercise books to districts with poor enrollment rates. (121,126,127) In 2018, MOGCSP-run Ghana School Feeding Program provided meals to nearly 2 million school children daily. (128) During the reporting period, the government, in conjunction with WFP and MasterCard Foundation, conducted a cost-benefit analysis of the school feeding program, which determined that by investing $356 in feeding 1 student over an 8-year period, $1,173 could be generated. (129)
MOGCSP Programs†	Include programs to support vulnerable children. Program to Assist Kayayei provides rehabilitation and reintegration support; "Get Off the Street" program aims to remove children from the street and reintegrate them into family and educational settings; Human Trafficking Fund provides financial support to victims. (69,72) During the reporting period, "Get Off the Street" program rescued 78 children in Accra, placing children in vocational training and providing psychiatric treatment to children found to be heavy drug users. (64)

Program	Description
m-Birth	Ministry of Local Government and Rural Development program, supported by UNICEF and Tigo, to transition from a manual birth registration process to automated birth registration. (130,131) Between 2016 and 2018, 926,405 births were registered using m-Birth. In 2018, UNICEF and the government evaluated the m-Birth initiative and found that since 2014, over 87 percent of registered births were attributed to m-Birth in the target region. (132) During the reporting period, the government used lessons learned from m-Birth to begin the development of more sophisticated birth registration software. (132)

‡ The government had other social programs that may have included the goal of eliminating or preventing child labor. (67,125,133,134)

The Child Labor Unit, the GPS's Anti-Human Trafficking Unit, the Ministry of Gender, Children and Social Protection, and local NGOs cite the lack of funding as one of the primary obstacles in implementing programs to address child labor. (48,69,135) In addition, government-run shelters for abused children are poorly managed and did not receive sufficient funding during the reporting period. (3,39,67,135) In 2018, the government spent approximately $43,000 to refurbish the Madina shelter for child victims of trafficking which was not yet operational by the end of the reporting period. (8,136)

Although the government has worked closely with industry, NGOs, and international organizations to implement child labor programs in cocoa, fishing, and mining, the magnitude of these programs remains insufficient to address the scope of the problem. (58)

VII. SUGGESTED GOVERNMENT ACTIONS TO ELIMINATE CHILD LABOR

Based on the reporting above, suggested actions are identified that would advance the elimination of child labor in Ghana (Table 11).

Table 11. Suggested Government Actions to Eliminate Child Labor

Area	Suggested Action	Year(s) Suggested
Legal Framework	Accede to the UN CRC Optional Protocol on the Sale of Children, Child Prostitution and Child Pornography.	2013 – 2018
	Ensure that laws criminally prohibit all forms of commercial sexual exploitation of children, including by prohibiting the use of a child in pornographic performances.	2009 – 2018
	Ensure that laws criminally prohibit the use of children in all illicit activities, including for the production and trafficking of drugs.	2016 – 2018
	Ensure that the law criminally prohibits the recruitment of children under age 18 by non-state armed groups.	2015 – 2018
Enforcement	Ensure that prosecutors who have received sufficient legal training oversee and lead the prosecution of cases involving the worst forms of child labor, that government officials do not intervene in criminal investigations, and that these cases are prosecuted according to the law.	2015 – 2018
	Publish information on the amount of funding allocated to the labor inspectorate and ensure inspectorates have adequate resources, including office space, transportation, and supplies to adequately carry out their mandate throughout the country.	2009 – 2018
	Strengthen the Labor Inspectorate by ensuring inspectors conduct targeted routine and unannounced inspections and are authorized to assess penalties for labor violations.	2014 – 2018
	Ensure that labor inspectors receive periodic refresher training.	2013 – 2018
	Increase the number of labor inspectors to meet the ILO's technical advice.	2010 – 2018
	Establish a mechanism to track cases of child labor for referral to law enforcement or social services providers.	2014 – 2018
	Ensure that criminal enforcement agencies coordinate adequately and receive adequate resources for transportation and victim support.	2015 – 2018
Government Policies	Integrate child labor elimination and prevention strategies into existing policies.	2013 – 2018

Area	Suggested Action	Year(s) Suggested
Social Programs	Improve access to education by eliminating school-related fees, increasing the number of classrooms, improving access to schools, providing sanitation facilities, and prohibiting sexual harassment in schools.	2010 – 2018
	Ensure that social programs receive sufficient funding to carry out their objectives.	2014 – 2018
	Expand the availability of government-supported shelter services for child victims.	2016 – 2018
	Create, replicate, and expand effective models for addressing exploitative child labor in the cocoa sector.	2009 – 2018

In 2018, Grenada made no advancement in efforts to prevent the worst forms of child labor. Although research found no evidence that child labor exists in Grenada, no study of child labor has been done to confirm this. The government's ability to prevent children from becoming engaged in the worst forms of child labor is limited because existing laws do not comprehensively prohibit child trafficking and the commercial sexual exploitation of children. In addition, there are insufficient prohibitions against children's involvement in hazardous work and illicit activities, including the production and trafficking of drugs.

I. PREVALENCE AND SECTORAL DISTRIBUTION OF CHILD LABOR

Research found no evidence that child labor exists in Grenada.(1) According to the Education Act, public education is free and all children are required to attend school until age 16.(2) However, in practice, some school boards deny access to pregnant girls and adolescent mothers. (3) According to the most recently available data, the primary completion rate for Grenada was 106.0 percent in 2017.(4)

Data on key indicators on children's work and education are not available from the sources used in this report.

II. LEGAL FRAMEWORK FOR CHILD LABOR

Grenada has ratified all key international conventions concerning child labor (Table 1).

Table 1. Ratification of International Conventions on Child Labor

Convention	Ratification
 ILO C. 138, Minimum Age	✓
ILO C. 182, Worst Forms of Child Labor	✓
 UN CRC	✓
UN CRC Optional Protocol on Armed Conflict	✓
UN CRC Optional Protocol on the Sale of Children, Child Prostitution and Child Pornography	✓
 Palermo Protocol on Trafficking in Persons	✓

The government has established laws and regulations related to child labor (Table 2). However, gaps exist in Grenada's legal framework to adequately protect children from the worst forms of child labor, including the prohibition of using children in illicit activities.

Table 2. Laws and Regulations on Child Labor

Standard	Meets International Standards	Age	Legislation
Minimum Age for Work	No	16	Article 32 of the Employment Act (5)
Minimum Age for Hazardous Work	No
Identification of Hazardous Occupations or Activities Prohibited for Children	No
Prohibition of Forced Labor	Yes		Article 25 of the Employment Act; Article 4 of the Constitution; Articles 9–11 of the Prevention of Trafficking in Persons Act (5-7)
Prohibition of Child Trafficking	No		Articles 9–11 of the Prevention of Trafficking in Persons Act (7)

NO ADVANCEMENT

Standard	Meets International Standards	Age	Legislation
Prohibition of Commercial Sexual Exploitation of Children	No		Articles 137 and 188 of the Criminal Code; Article 12 of the Electronic Crimes Bill; Article 10 of the Prevention of Trafficking in Persons Act (7-9)
Prohibition of Using Children in Illicit Activities	No
Minimum Age for Voluntary State Military Recruitment	N/A†
Prohibition of Compulsory Recruitment of Children by (State) Military	N/A†
Prohibition of Military Recruitment by Non-state Armed Groups	No
Compulsory Education Age	Yes	16	Articles 2 and 15 of the Education Act (2)
Free Public Education	Yes		Articles 15 and 16 of the Education Act (2)

† No standing military (10)

Grenada's minimum age for work does not meet international standards because Article 32 of the Employment Act allows holiday employment for children under age 16 without specifying the minimum age, types of work, or number of hours permitted for such work. The Prevention of Trafficking in Persons Act does not sufficiently prohibit the trafficking of children, despite establishing heightened penalties for traffickers of children, because it requires the use of force, threats, abuse of power, or other forms of coercion to classify an act as human trafficking. (7) The Criminal Code, Electronic Crimes Bill, and Prevention of Trafficking in Persons Act do not comprehensively prohibit the commercial sexual exploitation of all children. (7-9)

III. ENFORCEMENT OF LAWS ON CHILD LABOR

The government has established institutional mechanisms for the enforcement of laws and regulations on child labor (Table 3). However, gaps exist within the authority of the Ministry of Labor that may hinder adequate enforcement of their child labor laws.

Table 3. Agencies Responsible for Child Labor Law Enforcement

Organization/Agency	Role
Ministry of Labor	Enforces laws related to child labor through its Labor Commission, which generates a list of workplaces to inspect and employs labor officers who make unannounced visits to all on the list. (1)
Royal Grenada Police Force	Investigates crimes and enforces laws related to child labor. Helps the Child Protection Agency and the Ministry of Social Development and Housing provide emergency services to children. (1)
Ministry of Legal Affairs	Prosecutes criminal cases of child abuse in consultation with the Child Protection Agency. (1)
Child Protection Agency	Enforces laws related to child labor by receiving and investigating reports of child abuse. Provides social and protective services to abused children, including by requesting court emergency protection orders. (12-15)
Ministry of Social Development and Housing	Oversees the Child Abuse Hotline and investigates reports of child abuse. Refers child abuse cases to the Child Protection Agency and criminal cases to the police. (14, 15) Enforces laws related to school attendance and provides programs to support school attendance. (15-16)
Ministry of Education	Enforces laws related to school attendance through employment of truancy officers. Combats student absenteeism by monitoring students' attendance and facilitating students' access to school transportation and meals. (11, 16, 17)

Labor Law Enforcement

In 2018, research did not find information on whether labor law enforcement agencies in Grenada took actions to combat child labor (Table 4). In addition gaps exist within the authority of the Ministry of Labor that may hinder adequate labor law enforcement, including penalty assessment authorization.

Table 4. Labor Law Enforcement Efforts Related to Child Labor

Overview of Labor Law Enforcement	2017	2018
Labor Inspectorate Funding	$187,266 (13)	Unknown (1)
Number of Labor Inspectors	6 (13)	6 (1)

The government employs six inspectors, two of whom have responsibility for inspections on child labor as part of their portfolios. (1) If inspectors find a violation, they must inform the Royal Grenadian Police Force (RGPF), which then conducts a criminal investigation. If the RGPF finds sufficient evidence of a violation, the RGPF may submit findings for possible prosecution by the public prosecutor's office. (1) The Labor Commission determines which inspections to conduct by generating a list of workplaces to inspect. Labor officers then make unannounced visits to all on the list. It is unclear how many child labor inspections, if any, were conducted. (1) The government has not created or implemented a specific mechanism for filing and responding to complaints about child labor. The government is also significantly underfunded and labor inspection and enforcement are not given funding priority. (1)

Criminal Law Enforcement

Research did not find information on whether criminal law enforcement agencies in Grenada took actions to combat child labor. Gaps exist within the operations of the criminal enforcement agencies that may hinder adequate criminal law enforcement, including training for criminal investigators.

Table 5. Criminal Law Enforcement Efforts Related to Child Labor

Overview of Criminal Law Enforcement	2017	2018
Initial Training for New Criminal Investigators	No (13)	Unknown (1)
Training on New Laws Related to the Worst Forms of Child Labor	N/A (13)	Unknown (1)

Imposed Penalties for Violations Related to The Worst Forms of Child Labor	N/A (13)	Unknown (1)
Reciprocal Referral Mechanism Exists Between Criminal Authorities and Social Services	Yes (13)	Yes (1)

The government does not publicly release information on its criminal law enforcement efforts.

NO ADVANCEMENT

IV. COORDINATION OF GOVERNMENT EFFORTS ON CHILD LABOR

As there is no evidence of a problem, there appears to be no need for mechanisms to coordinate efforts to address child labor.

V. GOVERNMENT POLICIES ON CHILD LABOR

As there is no evidence of a problem, there appears to be no need for policies to address child labor. However, the government refers adolescent mothers and girls who leave school due to pregnancy to the Program for Adolescent Mothers rather than reintegrating them into the mainstream educational system. (15,18)

VI. SOCIAL PROGRAMS TO ADDRESS CHILD LABOR

As there is no evidence of a problem, there appears to be no need for programs to address child labor. However, research found no evidence of current research on the worst forms of child labor in Grenada. (1)

Based on the reporting above, the following actions would advance the continued prevention of child labor in Grenada (Table 6).

Table 6. Suggested Government Actions to Eliminate Child Labor

Area	Suggested Action	Year(s) Suggested
Legal Framework	Establish the minimum age for hazardous work at age 18 and identify hazardous occupations and activities prohibited for children.	2009 – 2018
	Prohibit the use of children in illicit activities, including drug production.	2011 – 2018
	Establish minimum age requirements of at least age 13 for holiday employment and define the activities, conditions, and number of hours permissible for such work.	2014 – 2018
	Ensure that the law establishes sanctions for all perpetrators of child trafficking, including in cases that do not show force, threats, or coercion.	2015 – 2018
	Enact legislation prohibiting the use, procuring, or offering of a child for all forms of commercial sexual exploitation.	2016 – 2018
	Ensure that the law criminally prohibits the recruitment of children under age 18 by non-state armed groups.	2016 – 2018
Enforcement	Provide sufficient funding and resources to allow agencies responsible for the enforcement of labor laws to fulfill their mission.	2015 – 2018
	Publish labor and criminal law enforcement data, including: information on the number and type of labor inspections; information on criminal inspectors' training; and the number of investigations, violations found, prosecutions initiated, and convictions in criminal law enforcement of the worst forms of child labor.	2016 – 2018
	Authorize the labor inspectorate to assess penalties.	2015 – 2018
	Ensure that labor inspectors and criminal investigators receive training related to the worst forms of child labor.	2015 – 2018
	Publish data on labor inspectorate funding.	2018
	Ensure that labor inspectors conduct labor inspections.	2018
	Create and implement a complaint mechanism specifically for filing and responding to complaints on child labor.	2018
Government Policies	Adopt and implement a policy to address the reintegration of pregnant girls and adolescent mothers in mainstream education.	2016 – 2018
Social Programs	Collect and publish data on the extent and nature of child labor to inform policies and programs.	2009 – 2018

SIGNIFICANT ADVANCEMENT

In 2018, Guatemala made a significant advancement in efforts to eliminate the worst forms of child labor, and The Public Ministry created a new regional Anti-Trafficking Unit in Quetzaltenango to improve and expedite the prosecution of trafficking cases. The government also published a functioning guide for the Departmental Committees for the Prevention and Eradication of Child Labor and launched 21 committees. In addition, the government reactivated its National Working Group for the Prevention and Protection of Children and Adolescents against Sexual Exploitation in Activities Related to Travel and Tourism and conducted a population and housing survey with updated data on child labor that will be published in 2019. However, children in Guatemala are engaged in the worst forms of child labor, including in commercial sexual exploitation, sometimes as a result of human trafficking. Children also perform dangerous tasks in agriculture. The lack of a sufficient number of labor inspectors and resources limited the Ministry of Labor and Social Security's (MTPS) ability to combat the worst forms of child labor. In addition, existing social programs are insufficient to reach all children engaged in exploitative labor and, in particular, do not target children engaged in domestic work or agriculture.

I. PREVALENCE AND SECTORAL DISTRIBUTION OF CHILD LABOR

Children in Guatemala are engaged in the worst forms of child labor, including in commercial sexual exploitation, sometimes as a result of human trafficking. Children also perform dangerous tasks in agriculture. (1-5) The Guatemalan Government's National Statistics Institute collected data for a population and housing census in 2018 that includes up-to-date statistics on child labor, but the census will not be published until 2019. (1) Table 1 provides key indicators on children's work and education in Guatemala.

Table 1. Statistics on Children's Work and Education

Children	Age	Percent

† Determined by national law or regulation as hazardous and, as such, relevant to Article 3(d) of ILO C. 182.

‡ Child labor understood as the worst forms of child labor per se under Article 3(a)–(c) of ILO C. 182.

Indigenous children account for more than half of child laborers in Guatemala, and children in rural areas are more likely to work than children in urban areas. (32,33) In agriculture, working conditions for children involve using machetes and other dangerous tools. (18) Children as young as age 5 work in coffee fields picking coffee beans and mixing and applying pesticides. (34,35)

Children, both Guatemalan-born and from other countries, are engaged in commercial sexual exploitation, including in sex tourism. (31) Girls, LGBTI persons, and indigenous Guatemalans are particularly vulnerable to trafficking. (31) Traffickers are increasingly using social media to recruit children. (30) Multiple sources indicate that children are recruited into gangs to serve as lookouts, couriers, and drug dealers. (1)

Significant barriers to accessing education exist in Guatemala, particularly for girls, indigenous children, and children in rural areas. (1,18) Education is free in Guatemala, although only through grade 6 and there is an insufficient number of primary and secondary schools. (36) A lack of teachers, schools, transportation, and sanitary facilities at public schools, as well as fees charged at private schools, all create barriers to education. (1)

Reports conclude that there is a high degree of illiteracy among girls. (5,37,38) Due to the heightened security risks for girls traveling alone, girls in rural areas have lower enrollment rates in secondary school than boys. (27) Indigenous children in general have lower enrollment rates compared to other children. (5) There are not enough qualified teachers to provide instruction in the predominant native languages and classroom materials available in these languages are insufficient. (18,38,39) Furthermore, the education system is also unable to address the needs of students with disabilities. (1,27)

II. LEGAL FRAMEWORK FOR CHILD LABOR

Guatemala has ratified all key international conventions concerning child labor (Table 3).

Table 3. Ratification of International Conventions on Child Labor

	UN CRC Optional Protocol on the Sale of Children, Child Prostitution and Child Pornography	✓
	Palermo Protocol on Trafficking in Persons	✓

The government has established laws and regulations related to child labor (Table 4). However, gaps exist in Guatemala's legal framework to adequately protect children from the worst forms of child labor, including provisions for light work for children.

Table 4. Laws and Regulations on Child Labor

‡ Age calculated based on available information (2,50,55,56)

Although Articles 32 and 150 of the Labor Code allow MTPS to authorize children under age 14 to work under exceptional circumstances—including if MTPS determines that children must work to support their family due to poverty—the law does not define the total number of hours, kinds of tasks, or age range applicable for this exception, which is inconsistent with international standards on light work. (40) MTPS indicated that no such exceptions have been granted since 2016. (1,57)

III. ENFORCEMENT OF LAWS ON CHILD LABOR

The government has established institutional mechanisms for the enforcement of laws and regulations on child labor (Table 5). However, gaps exist within the operations of MTPS that may hinder adequate enforcement of their child labor laws.

Table 5. Agencies Responsible for Child Labor Law Enforcement

Organization/ Agency	Role
Ministry of Labor and Social Security's (MTPS) Inspection Division	Enforces child labor laws, including prohibitions on the worst forms of child labor, by inspecting businesses and responding to child labor complaints. (2) Refers children found in child labor to government social services and complaints to the MTPS Adolescent Workers Protection Unit. (58-60) Refers cases of worst forms of child labor to the Secretariat Against Sexual Violence, Exploitation, and Trafficking in Persons (SVET) and unresolved cases to labor courts for review and sanctions, as appropriate. (2)
National Civil Police	Investigates cases of child trafficking through the Trafficking in Persons and Forced Labor Unit located within the Special Investigation Police, and operates a hotline to receive reports of suspected child trafficking cases. (17,61)
Public Ministry, Special Prosecutor's Office	Receives case referrals involving the worst forms of child labor from labor inspectors. Investigates cases of human trafficking and forced labor through the Special Prosecutor's Office Against Human Trafficking. (2)
Solicitor General's Office	Receives complaints regarding the exploitation of children. Initiates legal proceedings and ensures the legal representation of children whose rights have been violated. (61)

Labor Law Enforcement

In 2018, labor law enforcement agencies in Guatemala took actions to combat child labor (Table 6). However, gaps exist within the operations of MTPS that may hinder adequate labor law enforcement, including financial resource allocation and inspection planning.

Table 6. Labor Law Enforcement Efforts Related to Child Labor

In 2018, MTPS' Ministerial Accord 285-2017 entered into effect. The accord contains instructions for the imposition of administrative sanctions for labor violations by the General Labor Inspectorate. (64,68) The accord supports implementation of Decree 7-2017, which re-established the Ministry of Labor's authority to impose sanctions for labor law violations, including child labor violations. (1,69) Guatemala's Law of the National System of Protection for Children and Adolescents, which aims to overhaul the country's child protection system, received a second reading during the reporting period but requires several more procedural steps before possible approval. (1)

MTPS published on its website 2018 labor inspectorate data that included plans for localized and regional inspections specific to the worst forms of child labor. (1) However, the number of labor inspectors is likely insufficient for the size of Guatemala’s workforce, which includes more than 4.6 million workers. According to the ILO’s technical advice of a ratio approaching 1 inspector for every 15,000 workers in developing countries, Guatemala would employ about 308 labor inspectors. (70,71) In addition, the ratio of inspectors to number of inspections conducted suggests that each inspector carried out approximately 163 inspections during the year, which may be high and impact the quality of inspections conducted. (1)

Although labor inspectors may conduct unannounced inspections, reports indicate that the timing of some inspections has become predictable, taking place when employers are required to pay quarterly bonuses. (17,18) Announced inspections, or inspections that occur at a predictable time, are more likely to allow time for employers to temporarily hide or remove children who may be engaged in child labor. In addition, although laws governing the minimum age for work and hazardous work apply in both the formal and informal sectors, labor inspectors rarely inspect informal workplaces where child labor violations are most likely to occur. (1,2,27)

Some reports question the quality of inspections for child labor violations, particularly the scope and coverage across industries. (17,18) Civil society organizations state that, during worksite inspections, labor inspectors often meet only with business owners or supervisors and bypass conducting worker interviews. (8,72) Inspectors conducted 1,406 child-labor specific inspections in 2018, but civil society organizations also report that labor inspectors are not appropriately trained to perform inspections for child labor. (1,11,13)

Although the government has created a mechanism for filing complaints regarding child labor, reports state that the mechanism is not efficient in responding to those complaints. (1,27)

Criminal Law Enforcement

In 2018, criminal law enforcement agencies in Guatemala took actions to combat child labor (Table 7). However, gaps exist within the operations of the National Civil Police that may hinder adequate criminal law enforcement, including training for criminal investigators.

Table 7. Criminal Law Enforcement Efforts Related to Child Labor

Overview of Criminal Law Enforcement	2017	2018
Initial Training for New Criminal Investigators	Yes (27,65)	Yes (1)
Training on New Laws Related to the Worst Forms of Child Labor	N/A	Yes (1)
Refresher Courses Provided	Yes (27,65)	Yes (1,64)
Number of Investigations	Unknown	112 (1)
Number of Violations Found	140 (27)	44 (62)
Number of Prosecutions Initiated	4 (27)	55 (1)
Number of Convictions	Unknown	12 (1)

Reciprocal Referral Mechanism Exists Between Criminal Authorities and Social Services	Yes (27)	Yes (1)

In 2018, the labor exploitation unit in the Attorney General’s Office conducted 41 investigations, with 95 percent related to child labor crimes. Details about the cases were not available. (1) The Attorney General’s Office prosecuted 50 individual defendants in cases related to the use of children for commercial sexual exploitation, including prostitution, pornographic performances, and pornography. Twelve individuals were convicted for child labor crimes, including crimes related to the worst forms of child labor. (1) Despite the convictions, Guatemala’s Penal Code allows for the commutation of sentences of less than 5 years, and all individuals who were sentenced to fewer than 5 years were released from detention after paying a fine. (1)) In addition, although the government established specialized courts—including a 24-hour court in Guatemala City—to hear cases of human trafficking of adults and children and gender-based violence, judges are often unable to schedule hearings and trials in a timely manner. (72)

Guatemala

SIGNIFICANT ADVANCEMENT

During the reporting period, the Solicitor General’s Office reported two cases of forced child labor and two cases of forced child begging, but details about these cases were not available. The Ministry of Labor reports that in 2018, 102 child and adolescent victims were removed from situations of exploitation and referred to social services. (1) The Attorney General’s Office indicated that criminal investigators received training on child labor issues and on current laws, and regional staff in Quetzaltenango received training on trafficking in persons. USAID also noted that child labor trainings and trainings on new laws were held in several municipalities along border regions where child exploitation is common. (1) However, local NGO reports indicate that training is insufficient outside the capital. (1,27) The Public Ministry has noted a need for training on the recruitment of children by criminal groups. (65) Law enforcement agencies also lack sufficient vehicles, fuel, and criminal investigators, particularly outside Guatemala City. (18,73) The Public Ministry created a new regional Anti-Trafficking Unit in Quetzaltenango as part of efforts to improve and expedite the prosecution of trafficking cases. (31) However, the Ministry of Labor noted that resources are still insufficient to carry out complex criminal investigations. (1)

IV. COORDINATION OF GOVERNMENT EFFORTS ON CHILD LABOR

The government has established mechanisms to coordinate its efforts to address child labor (Table 8). However, gaps exist that may hinder the effective coordination of efforts to address child labor, including coordination between agencies and civil society.

Table 8. Key Mechanisms to Coordinate Government Efforts on Child Labor

Coordinating Body	Role & Description
National Commission for the Eradication of Child Labor (CONAPETI)	Coordinates government policies and efforts to combat child labor. (2) Led by the Vice President’s office and composed of several government ministries, as well as representatives from industry associations and trade unions. (26) Held four regular sessions during the reporting period, including one session in which it approved the Departmental Committees for the Prevention and Eradication of Child Labor (CODEPETI)’s Functional Guide, which sets the criteria for how departmental committees should function and how child labor cases specifically should be handled. (1,73,74)
CODEPETI	Coordinate government efforts to combat child labor at the departmental or regional level. Composed of department-level representatives of CONAPETI member agencies as well as NGO and business representatives. (2,17) In 2018, the government provided training to institutions that are part of CONAPETI and CODEPETIs, and socialized the 21 CODEPETIs on principles outlined in Guatemala’s Roadmap for the Prevention and Elimination of the Worst Forms of Child Labor. (1)
Intra-Institutional Coordination Protocol to Assist Minor Working Persons	Sets guidelines for MTPS inspectors to identify child laborers, remove children from the worst forms of child labor, and coordinate services for such children with other government agencies. (43,62) Research was unable to identify specific implementing activities carried out under the protocol during the reporting period.
SVET	Coordinates all government efforts against human trafficking, including for commercial sexual exploitation of children and forced child labor, by responding to cases and providing support for victims. Operates shelters to serve minor victims of trafficking and a hotline to file child sex tourism complaints. Led by the Vice President’s Office. (61) In 2018, transferred management of its three shelters for victims of trafficking in persons, sexual violence, and exploitation to the Secretariat of Social Welfare to improve the quality of specialized assistance for victims. In 2018, SVET also reactivated its National Working Group for the Prevention and Protection of Children and Adolescents against Sexual Exploitation in Activities Related to Travel and Tourism (MENACESNNA). (31) In addition, SVET published a protocol for providing specialized attention to children in trafficking in persons shelters and distributed the protocol to public and private shelters nationwide. (31)
CIT	Develops and manages initiatives to combat human trafficking. Relaunched by SVET in 2016, co-chaired by the Ministry of Foreign Affairs, and includes 28 government and civil society institutions. (61) In 2018, expanded its membership by eight government institutions and civil society organizations. (31)
MENACESNNA	Targets sexual exploitation of children and adolescents in the travel and tourism sector. (24) Oversees the Code of Conduct Against Sex Tourism, a mandatory code for trade group membership that forbids providing services to customers believed to be engaging in commercial sexual exploitation of children. Presided over by SVET and includes 10 government, private sector, and civil society institutions. (24) In 2018, MENACESNNA continued to implement its 2018–2022 strategic plan and developed an annual operation plan for 2019 that seeks to expand program efforts. MENACESNNA also conducted public awareness campaigns, such as trainings for the national taxi association, and targeted advertisements at Guatemala City movie theaters during popular children’s films. (31)

In 2018, the Office of the Vice President of the Republic issued resolution 01 2017 for enforcement of protocols pertaining to the operations of the Departmental Committees for the Prevention and Eradication of Child Labor and the Intra-Institutional Coordination Protocol to Assist Child Laborers. (1)

Despite improvements in interagency coordination to address trafficking, there continues to be a lack of effective coordination among other government institutions and civil society actors who provide services and protection to victims of child labor. (4,17,75)

V. GOVERNMENT POLICIES ON CHILD LABOR

The government has established policies related to child labor (Table 9). However, policy gaps exist that may hinder efforts to address child labor, including the implementation of several policies.

Table 9. Key Policies Related to Child Labor

Policy	Description
Roadmap for the Prevention and Elimination of the Worst Forms of Child Labor (2016–2020)	Aims to prevent and eradicate child labor by addressing poverty; guaranteeing rights to health for children and adolescents; guaranteeing access to education, especially for children in or at risk of child labor; coordinating and enforcing child labor laws; raising awareness regarding risks and consequences of child labor; and implementing a system to monitor and evaluate child labor. Led by CONAPETI and CODEPETIs. (21,75-78) The government launched its Public Policy for the Comprehensive Protection of Children and Adolescents in March 2018 as part of the Roadmap. The policy includes a section addressing child labor and designates CONAPETI as the entity in charge of the issue. (1) As part of the Roadmap, the government swore in 21 CODEPETIs and developed working plans for the committees. (1)
Protocol for Identifying and Assisting Child and Adolescent Victims of Commercial Sexual Exploitation	Establishes procedural guidelines for government agencies and NGOs responsible for the protection and care of child and adolescent victims of commercial sexual exploitation. Overseen by the Secretariat of Social Welfare and Departmental Social Welfare Offices and implemented by SVET. (2,79) Research did not reveal whether any actions were taken under this policy in 2018.
Inter-institutional Protocol for the Protection and Attention of Victims of Human Trafficking	Provides instruction on how to process sex crimes, including commercial sexual exploitation of children, and how to assist prospective victims of trafficking in persons. (24,43,80) In 2018, SVET carried out actions to strengthen the standards and operations of the three shelters for victims of human trafficking, including training for workers who are part of the multidisciplinary teams. (62)
Public Policy on Human Trafficking and the Comprehensive Protection of Victims (2014–2024)	Aims to guarantee protection for and comprehensive attention to human trafficking victims, and promote prevention, detection, prosecution, and sanction of this crime. (81) Includes a National Plan of Strategic Action that directs the government's actions on preventing and combating human trafficking. (17,31,82) In 2018, SVET developed a monitoring exercise of the Public Policy. (31) SVET also provided trainings to local institutions in Spanish and four Mayan languages, as well as developed and distributed informational materials related to the prevention of human trafficking. (62)

‡ The government had other policies that may have addressed child labor issues or had an impact on child labor. (19)

VI. SOCIAL PROGRAMS TO ADDRESS CHILD LABOR

In 2018, the government funded and participated in programs that include the goal of eliminating or preventing child labor (Table 10). However, gaps exist in these social programs, including the adequacy of efforts to address the problem in all sectors.

Table 10. Key Social Programs to Address Child Labor

Program	Description
Business Network for the Prevention and Elimination of Child Labor in Guatemala (Red Empresarial)	Program that aims to promote prevention and eradication of child labor. Created in 2015, and members include the ministries of Education and Agriculture, MTPS, CONAPETI, ILO, UNICEF, the UN Food and Agriculture Organization, and representatives from the private sector. (19,83-86) The network held eight coordinating meetings in 2018. (87)
I Don't Allow Sexual Exploitation of Children in Tourism‡	SVET-administered national campaign against the commercial sexual exploitation of children in tourism. (3) SVET launched the campaigns "Be Careful with Grooming" to prevent online grooming of children and adolescents between ages 10 and 15 for sexual abuse and "Protecting Our Greatest Treasure" to create awareness of sexual exploitation of children in tourism and travel activities. (30,88) SVET reported that it updated the intra-institutional detection and action protocol for immediate response on cases of sexual exploitation against children and adolescents in travel and tourism in August 2018. (62)

Human Trafficking Referral and Grant Funding†	Program that provides funding to NGOs to assist child victims of human trafficking for commercial sexual exploitation. (82) Research did not identify actions undertaken during the reporting period to carry out this program.
Committed to First (Comprometidos con Primero) Program (2017–2019)	Program that seeks to decrease school dropout rates and increase enrollment and advancement to the next grade at a national level. (27) Goals include generating conditions to achieve competency in reading and writing, providing teacher training, conducting diagnostic evaluations, and supplying educational materials and pedagogical support. (89,90) Aims to serve 35,000 first grade students. (90) Though approved in 2017, Guatemala began enacting the program in 2018. (1)
Ministerio de Desarrollo Social Poverty Reducing Programs‡	Conditional Cash Transfer for Education and Health Program (Mi Bono Seguro) provides cash assistance to families with school-age children, conditioned on children's school attendance. (27,60,91) Food Assistance Program (Mi Bolsa Segura) provides food assistance to poor families, with the requirement that their children attend school. (27,60,92) Young Protagonists (Jóvenes Protagonistas) provides at-risk adolescents with training and formative activities outside school hours. (27,91,93) My Secure Dining Hall (Mi Comedor Seguro) provides access to food to people in situations of poverty, crisis, and emergency, including children. (94) My First Employment (Mi Primer Empleo) places working-age youth in apprenticeship programs and grants them on-the-job training and a monthly stipend. (27,91) My Middle School Scholarship (Mi Beca Educación Media), for children between ages 11 and 24, and My College Scholarship (Mi Beca Educación Superior), for children between ages 16 and 28, promote access to school and college through cash assistance to children who are in situations of poverty and extreme poverty in rural and urban areas. (94) The government continued to fund the conditional cash transfer programs and increased funding in 2018 by 9.4 percent. (1)

‡ The government had other social programs that may have included the goal of eliminating or preventing child labor. (24,95-97)

Civil society organizations indicate that social programs are inadequately funded, are susceptible to local political influences, and fail to reach the rural interior of the country outside urban areas. (1) Although the government has implemented programs to assist children and families, research found no evidence of government programs specifically designed to assist children engaged in hazardous work, including those in agriculture and domestic service. (4)

Conditions in government-run children's shelters are not adequate, and the government has not ensured the protection and safety of children under its care. (37) In addition, the environment for the implementation of social programs that address child labor remains unsafe, and the government has done little to investigate or prevent further instances of threats, intimidation, and violence—such as the murders of individuals working on social programs, including NGO officials, human rights workers, judges, and labor activists. (98)

VII. SUGGESTED GOVERNMENT ACTIONS TO ELIMINATE CHILD LABOR

Based on the reporting above, suggested actions are identified that would advance the elimination of child labor in Guatemala (Table 11).

Table 11. Suggested Government Actions to Eliminate Child Labor

Area	Suggested Action	Year(s) Suggested
Legal Framework	Eliminate the exception allowing some children under age 14 to work, or establish a light work framework for children ages 12 to 14 outlining restrictions on working conditions, type of work, and number of hours of work.	2010 – 2018
	Criminally prohibit the recruitment of children under 18 into non-state armed groups.	2016 – 2018
Enforcement	Increase the number of labor inspectors to meet the ILO's technical advice and ensure the ratio of inspections conducted per inspector does not impact quality.	2015 – 2018
	Ensure that labor inspectors and criminal investigators have sufficient resources and staff to conduct inspections and investigations in all geographical areas of the country.	2009 – 2018
	Ensure that inspectors carry out inspections in the informal sector, an area in which child labor is known to occur.	2018

Area	Suggested Action	Year(s) Suggested
Enforcement	Improve the quality of inspections by ensuring that inspectors receive adequate training, meet with all relevant parties, including workers, and dedicate the necessary time to carry out more comprehensive inspections, including in informal workplaces.	2017 – 2018
	Ensure that the timing of labor inspections is not predictable so that they can be truly unannounced as recommended by international standards.	2016 – 2018
	Dedicate more staff and train criminal law enforcement officials, particularly those outside the capital, on laws related to the worst forms of child labor.	2013 – 2018
	Make publicly available the total amount of child labor penalties collected, and the number of routine child labor inspections targeted, as well as the number of violations for the worst forms of child labor.	2018
	Ensure that hearings and trials addressing human trafficking and gender-based violence in specialized courts are scheduled in a timely manner.	2016 – 2018
	Improve adequacy of child labor complaint mechanism to ensure timely responses to complaints.	2018
Coordination	Strengthen coordination efforts to institutionalize relationships between civil society representatives and government agencies that provide services to victims of child labor.	2013 – 2018
Government Policies	Undertake activities to implement the Protocol for Identifying and Assisting Child and Adolescent Victims of Commercial Sexual Exploitation.	2017 – 2018
Social Programs	Conduct research on child labor activities in the production of garments and make the information public.	2018
	Make education accessible for all children, including girls and indigenous children, children with disabilities, and children living in rural areas, by recruiting and training more qualified teachers, providing instruction in indigenous languages, building additional schools, and removing school fees and transportation costs.	2015 – 2018
	Ensure that social programs are implemented, well-funded, able to carry out their objectives, and reach populations outside urban centers, and report on yearly activities.	2018
	Initiate social programs to address child labor in agriculture and domestic work, and for children who perform other types of hazardous work.	2009 – 2018
	Ensure high standards of safety and care for children in government-run shelters and expand shelter capacity to prevent overcrowding.	2016 – 2018
	Ensure the safety of NGO officials, human rights workers, judges, and labor activists to facilitate a secure environment for the implementation of social programs that address and prevent child labor.	2017 – 2018

In 2018, Guinea made a minimal advancement in efforts to eliminate the worst forms of child labor. The government organized a training course on forced labor and trafficking in conjunction with the ILO for members of the police and gendarmerie and published statistics related to the criminal enforcement of child labor laws. However, children in Guinea engage in the worst forms of child labor, including in mining and forced begging. Children also perform dangerous tasks in agriculture. The government lacks a coordinating mechanism and national policy to address all relevant worst forms of child labor, and corruption in law enforcement agencies and the judiciary may impede enforcement efforts. In addition, the government does not implement sufficient social programs to address the extent of the child labor problem.

I. PREVALENCE AND SECTORAL DISTRIBUTION OF CHILD LABOR

Children in Guinea engage in the worst forms of child labor, including in mining and forced begging. (1,2) Children also perform dangerous tasks in agriculture. (2-4) Table 1 provides key indicators on children's work and education in Guinea.

Table 1. Statistics on Children's Work and Education

Children	Age	Percent
Working (% and population)	5 to 14	32.3 (1,152,064)
Attending School (%)	5 to 14	49.6
Combining Work and School (%)	7 to 14	19.2
Primary Completion Rate (%)		61.1

Source for primary completion rate: Data from 2016, published by UNESCO Institute for Statistics, 2019. (5)

Source for all other data: International Labor Organization's analysis of statistics from Demographic and Health Survey, 2012. (6)

Based on a review of available information, Table 2 provides an overview of children's work by sector and activity.

Table 2. Overview of Children's Work by Sector and Activity

Sector/Industry	Activity
Agriculture	Farming and carrying heavy loads† in the production of cashews, cocoa, and coffee (2,7-11)
	Herding livestock (2,7)
	Fishing, including capturing and processing fish (2,7,8,12-14)
Industry	Mining† granite, gold, and diamonds (1-3,7,8,10)
	Manufacturing, activities unknown (7)
	Construction,† including carrying materials and the fabrication of construction materials, such as bricks (4,7,15,16)
Services	Street work, including as market vendors, beggars, petty traders, shoe shiners, and porters in the transportation sector (2-4,7,8,13,17-19)
	Working in restaurants and informal cottage industries, including as waitresses (2,7)
	Domestic work (2,3,8,10,12,14,20)
Categorical Worst Forms of Child Labor‡	Forced labor as market vendors and in domestic work, mining, herding, fishing, and farming, each sometimes as a result of human trafficking (2,7,8)
	Commercial sexual exploitation, sometimes as a result of human trafficking (2,18,20,21)
	Forced begging by Koranic teachers (2,8,20,21)

† Determined by national law or regulation as hazardous and, as such, relevant to Article 3(d) of ILO C. 182.

‡ Child labor understood as the worst forms of child labor per se under Article 3(a)–(c) of ILO C. 182.

Guinea

MINIMAL ADVANCEMENT

Children in Guinea are exploited domestically and abroad for forced labor, commercial sexual exploitation, and domestic servitude. Some Guinean boys are subjected to forced labor in gold and diamond mining, including in Senegal and Mali, while Guinean girls are exploited in domestic work and commercial sexual exploitation in various West African and Middle Eastern countries.(2,7-24)

Boys placed in the care of Koranic schools in Guinea are sometimes forced by their teachers to beg on the street or to work in fields, and must then surrender the money they have earned to their teachers. (2,8,9,21,23) In addition, through the system of confiage, parents who are unable to care for their children send them to relatives or strangers who are expected to provide food, shelter, and schooling to the children in exchange for housework. In practice, some of these children receive care and an education, while many become domestic workers and are victims of labor exploitation and abuse. (8,13,22)

The Constitution guarantees free compulsory primary education, but many children do not attend school. Birth registration is required to attend school in Guinea, and some Guinean children lack identity documents, which may affect their access to education. (25) In addition, the lack of school infrastructure, cost of school fees and supplies, shortage of teachers, and reported school violence impede access to education, which may increase the vulnerability of children to the worst forms of child labor. (2,3,8,13,21)

II. LEGAL FRAMEWORK FOR CHILD LABOR

Guinea has ratified all key international conventions concerning child labor (Table 3).

Table 3. Ratification of International Conventions on Child Labor

	Convention	Ratification
	ILO C. 138, Minimum Age	✓
	ILO C. 182, Worst Forms of Child Labor	✓
	UN CRC	✓
	UN CRC Optional Protocol on Armed Conflict	✓
	UN CRC Optional Protocol on the Sale of Children, Child Prostitution and Child Pornography	✓
	Palermo Protocol on Trafficking in Persons	✓

The government has established laws and regulations related to child labor (Table 4). However, gaps exist in Guinea's legal framework to adequately protect children from the worst forms of child labor, including the minimum age for work.

Table 4. Laws and Regulations on Child Labor

Standard	Meets International Standards	Age	Legislation
Minimum Age for Work	No	16	Article 137.5 of the Labor Code; Article 412 of the Child Code (26,27)
Minimum Age for Hazardous Work	Yes	18	Articles 2–4 of Order 2791 Working Conditions for Employees Aged Under 18 Years; Article 137.4 of the Labor Code (15,27)
Identification of Hazardous Occupations or Activities Prohibited for Children	Yes		Articles 415–418 of the Child Code; Articles 2 and 4 of Order 2791 Working Conditions for Employees Aged Under 18 Years; Article 135 of the Mining Code; Article 137.6 of the Labor Code (15,26-28)
Prohibition of Forced Labor	Yes		Articles 194–195 and 323 of the Penal Code; Articles 4 and 137.6 of the Labor Code; Articles 356–360, 385, and 397–399 of the Child Code (26,27,29)
Prohibition of Child Trafficking	Yes		Articles 195 and 323–324 of the Penal Code; Articles 356–360 and 385 of the Child Code (26,29)

Standard	Meets International Standards	Age	Legislation
Prohibition of Commercial Sexual Exploitation of Children	Yes		Articles 346–348 and 355 of the Penal Code; Articles 356–360 of the Child Code (26,29)
Prohibition of Using Children in Illicit Activities	Yes		Article 137.6 of the Labor Code; Article 383 of the Child Code; Article 344 of the Penal Code (26,27,29)
Minimum Age for Voluntary State Military Recruitment	Yes	18	Article 429 of the Child Code (26)
Prohibition of Compulsory Recruitment of Children by (State) Military	N/A*
Prohibition of Military Recruitment by Non-state Armed Groups	Yes		Article 792.7 of the Penal Code; Article 429 of the Child Code (26,29)
Compulsory Education Age	Yes	16	Article 6, Title I of Education Decree 97/196/PRG/SGG (30)
Free Public Education	Yes		Article 23 of the Constitution (31)

* No conscription (32)

The revised Child Code including a more specific list of hazardous child labor activities in all relevant sectors was submitted to the National Assembly and is now pending a vote. (4,13,16,32) Guinean law prohibits hazardous occupations and activities for children; however, these prohibitions do not cover agriculture. Children working in this sector may be exposed to unhealthy environments, including hazardous substances and dangerous equipment. (7,8,15,25,27) Article 2.6 of Order 2791 prohibits children under age 18 from working in the extraction of minerals and materials from mines and quarries, but Article 135 of the Mining Code permits children below the age of 16 to work in mines and quarries as assistants. This exemption allows an opportunity for children to perform hazardous activities legally. (15,28)

Guinean law allows children between the ages of 12 and 14 to perform light work in the domestic work and agriculture sectors. (15,26) However, the law does not prescribe the number of hours per week permitted for light work, nor does it specify the conditions under which light work may be done as defined by international standards on child labor. (15,25) The Labor Code imposes only a minimum age for children employed by employers and does not address situations in which children work on their own account, which does not conform to international standards that require all children to be protected under the law establishing a minimum age for work. (25,27,33,34)

III. ENFORCEMENT OF LAWS ON CHILD LABOR

The government has established institutional mechanisms for the enforcement of laws and regulations on child labor (Table 5). However, gaps exist within the operations of the Ministry of Labor that may hinder adequate enforcement of their child labor laws.

Table 5. Agencies Responsible for Child Labor Law Enforcement

Organization/Agency	Role
Ministry of Labor (MOL)	Enforces all labor laws, including those related to child labor through its labor inspectorate. (13,25,35) Oversees the Child Labor Monitoring and Surveillance System, which aims to identify and remove children from exploitative labor conditions. (21)
Office for the Protection of Gender, Children, and Morals (OPROGEM) Special Police Unit	Investigates cases related to the protection of minors, including the worst forms of child labor. (2,4,13,18,32) Formulates, plans, and monitors all activities, programs and policy measures for safeguarding vulnerable population groups and protecting morality. (14)
Ministry for Social Action, Promotion of Women and Children (MASPFE)	Provides protection and social services for victims of child labor and human trafficking. (8,13)
Ministry of Justice	Monitors cases of children referred to social services centers through its National Directorate of Supervised Education and Youth Protection. (4)

Labor Law Enforcement

In 2018, labor law enforcement agencies in Guinea took actions to combat child labor (Table 6). However, gaps exist within the operations of the Ministry of Labor that may hinder adequate labor law enforcement, including allocation of financial and other resources.

During 2018, the government employed 200 individuals as part of its labor inspectorate and conducted 488 inspections, of which 7 focused exclusively on child labor. The government does target construction sites. (4) The labor inspectorate does not have a dedicated budget and only maintains a single vehicle with a portion of each inspector's salary used to cover fuel costs for inspection trips, restricting its ability to conduct labor inspections. (4,20)

Criminal Law Enforcement

In 2018, criminal law enforcement agencies in Guinea took actions to combat child labor (Table 7). However, gaps exist within the operations of the criminal enforcement agencies that may hinder adequate criminal law enforcement, including with the allocation of financial and human resources.

Table 7. Criminal Law Enforcement Efforts Related to Child Labor

Overview of Criminal Law Enforcement	2017	2018

In 2018, a director and deputy director were nominated to lead the Ministry of Justice's National Directorate of Supervised Education and Youth Protection. (4)

The Office for the Protection of Gender, Children, and Morals (OPROGEM) Special Police Unit remained understaffed, underfunded, and without sufficient office supplies, transportation, or fuel to enforce laws related to the worst forms of child labor. (4,13,32,37) In addition, corruption in law enforcement agencies and the judiciary may impede efforts to combat the worst forms of child labor. (2,20,23,24)

IV. COORDINATION OF GOVERNMENT EFFORTS ON CHILD LABOR

The government has established mechanisms to coordinate its efforts to address child labor (Table 8). However, gaps exist that may hinder the effective coordination of efforts to address child labor, including efforts to address all forms of child labor.

Table 8. Key Mechanisms to Coordinate Government Efforts on Child Labor

Coordinating Body	Role & Description
National Committee to Combat Trafficking in Persons and Similar Practices (CNLTPPA)	Coordinates anti-human trafficking efforts, including for children. Led by the Ministry for Social Action, Promotion of Women and Children (MASPFE), includes representatives from OPROGEM, MOL, and other ministries. (2,8,18,23) In 2018, the CNLTPPA organized a training session on forced labor and trafficking in conjunction with the ILO for approximately 30 members of the police and gendarmerie. CNLTPPA also organized three awareness campaigns targeting local communities along Guinea's border with Sierra Leone and Senegal. (16,20)
Committee for Monitoring, Protection, and Defense of the Rights of the Child (CGSDE)	Implements, coordinates, and monitors government efforts on child protection. Led by MASPFE. (18,32,38) Research was unable to determine specific activities undertaken during the reporting period. (16)

Limited budgets for the CNLTPPA and the CGSDE affect their ability to operate and coordinate efforts to address child labor. (2,13,32,37) Although the government has established a coordination mechanism on human trafficking, research found no evidence of mechanisms to coordinate the government's efforts to address child labor.

V. GOVERNMENT POLICIES ON CHILD LABOR

The government has established policies related to child labor (Table 9). However, policy gaps exist that hinder efforts to address child labor, including covering all worst forms of child labor.

Table 9. Key Policies Related to Child Labor

Policy	Description
National Development Plan (2016–2020)	Seeks to promote sustainable development and social equality. Overseen by the Ministry of Planning and International Cooperation and supported by the World Bank. (39,40) Includes activities to combat commercial sexual exploitation of children, human trafficking, and child labor. (39) In 2018, research found no evidence of activities undertaken. (16)

Research found no evidence of a generalized child labor policy. (4,14,34)

VI. SOCIAL PROGRAMS TO ADDRESS CHILD LABOR

In 2018, the government participated in programs that include the goal of eliminating or preventing child labor (Table 10). However, gaps exist in these social programs, including the adequacy of efforts to address the problem in all sectors.

Table 10. Key Social Programs to Address Child Labor

Program	Description
Decent Work Country Program (2016–2019)	Seeks to develop a National Action Plan for the elimination of child labor, including all its worst forms. Overseen by the MOL and supported by the ILO. (41) In 2018, research was unable to determine whether any actions were undertaken.
World Bank Country Program	World Bank projects in Guinea that aim to increase access to quality basic education and youth employment, improve school infrastructure, and strengthen safety nets for vulnerable populations, especially those affected by the Ebola virus disease outbreak. (42-45) In 2018, research was unable to determine whether any actions were undertaken. (16)

Research found that the scope of programs implemented by the Government of Guinea is insufficient for the extent of the problem, including addressing children engaged in agriculture, domestic work, forced begging, mining, and street work.

Guinea

Reports indicate that social services available are not effective to meet the needs of the victims, and, as a result, the government relied on NGOs to provide shelter and other basic services to victims. Moreover, financial shortfalls still constrain services. (2,4,13,20,23,32,37)

VII. SUGGESTED GOVERNMENT ACTIONS TO ELIMINATE CHILD LABOR

Based on the reporting above, suggested actions are identified that would advance the elimination of child labor in Guinea (Table 11).

Table 11. Suggested Government Actions to Eliminate Child Labor

Area	Suggested Action	Year(s) Suggested
Legal Framework	Ensure that children under age 18 are prohibited from performing hazardous work that falls into an R.190 category, such as agriculture.	2014 – 2018
	Ensure that all children are prohibited from participating in hazardous mining.	2010 – 2018
	Ensure that light work provisions of the law are specific enough to prevent children from involvement in child labor.	2015 – 2018
	Ensure that all children are protected by law, including children working outside of a formal employment relationship and children who are self-employed.	2009 – 2018
Enforcement	Provide consistent initial training and refresher training for labor law enforcement officials, and initial training for criminal law enforcement officials along with increased resources to adequately enforce child labor laws.	2009 – 2018
	Publish information on labor inspectorate funding, and the numbers of violations, prosecutions, convictions, and imposed penalties related to the criminal enforcement of child labor laws.	2011 – 2018
	Establish a referral mechanism between the Ministry of Labor and the Ministry for Social Action, Promotion of Women and Children to protect and rehabilitate children involved in child labor.	2016 – 2018
	Address corruption in law enforcement agencies and the judiciary that impedes efforts to combat the worst forms of child labor.	2015 – 2018
Coordination	Establish coordinating mechanisms to combat child labor.	2010 – 2018
	Ensure that the National Committee to Combat Trafficking in Persons and Similar Practices and the Committee for Monitoring, Protection, and Defense of the Rights of the Child receive adequate funding to fulfill their missions.	2010 – 2018
	Ensure that Committee for Monitoring, Protection, and Defense of the Rights of the Child is active and undertakes activities.	2018
Government Policies	Adopt a policy that addresses all relevant worst forms of child labor.	2014 – 2018
	Undertake activities in support of the National Development Plan.	2018
Social Programs	Enhance efforts to eliminate barriers and make education accessible for all children by assisting unregistered children to obtain birth and identity documentation that entitles them to attend school; improve school infrastructure and increase teacher availability; remove school-related fees; and ensure the safety of children in schools.	2010 – 2018
	Ensure that social services are properly funded and adequate to meet the needs of victims of the worst forms of child labor.	2010 – 2018
	Institute programs to address the worst forms of child labor, including in agriculture, domestic work, forced begging, mining, and street work.	2010 – 2018

In 2018, Guinea-Bissau made a moderate advancement in efforts to eliminate the worst forms of child labor. The government implemented the Code of Conduct Against Sexual Exploitation in Tourism by conducting various awareness raising campaigns on the commercial sexual exploitation of children for hotel and night club owners, and throughout Bissau and the Bijagós Archipelago. The government also hired 13 additional labor inspectors and, in conjunction with NGO partners, provided more than 150 child victims of human trafficking for forced begging with reintegration, medical assistance, and shelter. However, children in Guinea-Bissau engage in the worst forms of child labor in forced begging. Children also engage in child labor in agriculture. In addition, the government has not determined the types of hazardous work prohibited for children and law enforcement officials do not receive the appropriate training and resources to adequately conduct inspections and prosecute cases of child labor. Furthermore, social programs do not fully address the extent of the problem in the country.

I. PREVALENCE AND SECTORAL DISTRIBUTION OF CHILD LABOR

Children in Guinea-Bissau engage in the worst forms of child labor in forced begging. (1,2) Children also engage in child labor in agriculture. (1) According to a national child labor survey, more than 169,200 children ages 5 to 17 work; 85 percent of these children work in agriculture. (3) Table 1 provides key indicators on children's work and education in Guinea-Bissau. Data on some of these indicators are not available from the sources used in this report.

Table 1. Statistics on Children's Work and Education

Children	Age	Percent
Working (% and population)	5 to 14	57.4 (Unavailable)
Attending School (%)	5 to 14	68.1
Combining Work and School (%)	7 to 14	48.4
Primary Completion Rate (%)		64.3

Source for primary completion rate: Data from 2010, published by UNESCO Institute for Statistics, 2019. (4)

Source for all other data: International Labor Organization's analysis of statistics from Multiple Indicator Cluster Survey 5, 2014. (5)

Based on a review of available information, Table 2 provides an overview of children's work by sector and activity.

Table 2. Overview of Children's Work by Sector and Activity

Sector/Industry	Activity
Agriculture	Farming, including the production of cashews (1,3,6)
	Fishing, activities unknown (1,3)
Services	Domestic work (1,3,7)
	Street work, including car washing, shoe shining, and vending (1,2,8)
Categorical Worst Forms of Child Labor‡	Commercial sexual exploitation, sometimes as a result of human trafficking (1,2,9)
	Forced labor in domestic work, agriculture, and street work, including begging, each sometimes as a result of human trafficking (1,2,9-11)

‡ Child labor understood as the worst forms of child labor per se under Article 3(a)–(c) of ILO C. 182.

In Guinea-Bissau, organized networks of human traffickers affiliated with Koranic schools force boys to beg within the country and in The Gambia, Guinea, Mali, and Senegal. Although many Koranic school teachers provide religious education as traditionally intended, some force the students, known as talibés, to beg on the streets for money and food. (1,2) Most talibés originate from the predominantly Muslim areas of Bafatá and Gabú in the eastern region of the country. (1,2)

Guinea-Bissau

Boys are forced to work in street vending in Guinea-Bissau; they also are trafficked for forced labor in agriculture, mining, and street vending in Senegal. Boys from Guinea-Bissau and boys from neighboring countries are forced to beg and harvest cashews. (2,6) Girls are subjected to forced labor in street vending and domestic work in Guinea-Bissau and Senegal. Girls also are engaged in commercial sexual exploitation in the Bijagós Archipelago of Guinea-Bissau, on mainland Guinea-Bissau in bars and hotels, and in Senegal. (2,7,9)

In 2018, the government became more politically stable, with Parliament reopening in April. However, due to the previous years of instability, the government's ability to address child labor may have been affected during the reporting period. (12-14)

II. LEGAL FRAMEWORK FOR CHILD LABOR

Guinea-Bissau has ratified all key international conventions concerning child labor (Table 3).

Table 3. Ratification of International Conventions on Child Labor

	Convention	Ratification
	ILO C. 138, Minimum Age	✓
	ILO C. 182, Worst Forms of Child Labor	✓
	UN CRC	✓
	UN CRC Optional Protocol on Armed Conflict	✓
	UN CRC Optional Protocol on the Sale of Children, Child Prostitution and Child Pornography	✓
	Palermo Protocol on Trafficking in Persons	✓

The government has established laws and regulations related to child labor (Table 4). However, gaps exist in Guinea-Bissau's legal framework to adequately protect children from the worst forms of child labor, including with regard to the minimum age for work.

Table 4. Laws and Regulations on Child Labor

Standard	Meets International Standards	Age	Legislation
Minimum Age for Work	No	14	Article 146 of the General Labor Law (15)
Minimum Age for Hazardous Work	Yes	18	Article 148 of the General Labor Law (15)
Identification of Hazardous Occupations or Activities Prohibited for Children	No		Article 148 of the General Labor Law (15)
Prohibition of Forced Labor	Yes		Articles 2, 4, and 15 of the Law to Prevent and Combat Human Trafficking; Article 106 of the Penal Code (16,17)
Prohibition of Child Trafficking	Yes		Articles 2, 4, and 15 of the Law to Prevent and Combat Human Trafficking (17)
Prohibition of Commercial Sexual Exploitation of Children	Yes		Articles 3–5 of the Law to Prevent and Combat Human Trafficking; Articles 134 and 136 of the Penal Code (16,17)
Prohibition of Using Children in Illicit Activities	Yes		Articles 3 and 7 of the Decree on Narcotic Substances (18)
Minimum Age for Voluntary State Military Recruitment	Yes	17	Article 31 of Law No. 4/99 (19)
Prohibition of Compulsory Recruitment of Children by (State) Military	Yes		Article 2 of Law No. 4/99 (19)

Standard	Meets International Standards	Age	Legislation
Prohibition of Military Recruitment by Non-state Armed Groups	No
Compulsory Education Age	Yes	15‡	Articles 12–13 of the Education System Law (20)
Free Public Education	No		Article 12 (2) of the Education System Law (20)

The minimum age for work is not in compliance with international standards, as the law's minimum age protections do not apply to children working without a work contract. (15,21) The government has not determined by national law or regulation the types of hazardous work prohibited for children. (15)

The Education System Law states that basic education is compulsory and lasts 9 years; however, it only makes basic education free through grade six, leaving children in grades seven through nine without access to free basic education. (20) In addition, as the minimum age for work is lower than the compulsory education age, children may be encouraged to leave school before the completion of compulsory education. (15,20)

III. ENFORCEMENT OF LAWS ON CHILD LABOR

The government has established institutional mechanisms for the enforcement of laws and regulations on child labor (Table 5). However, gaps exist within the operations of the Ministry of Labor and Public Administration that may hinder adequate enforcement of their child labor laws.

Table 5. Agencies Responsible for Child Labor Law Enforcement

Organization/Agency	Role
Ministry of Labor and Public Administration	Enforces child labor legislation in collaboration with the ministries of Interior and Justice, and the National Institute for Women and Children (IMC). (22)
Ministry of Interior's Public Order Police and National Guard	Combat child labor through the prevention of child trafficking. (8,23)
Judicial Police's Women and Children Brigade	Investigates the worst forms of child labor and refers cases to the IMC and NGOs. The brigade comprises nine officers. (1)

Labor Law Enforcement

In 2018, labor law enforcement agencies in Guinea-Bissau took actions to combat child labor (Table 6). However, gaps exist within the operations of the Ministry of Labor and Public Administration that may hinder adequate labor law enforcement, including training for labor inspectors.

In 2018, although the number of inspectors increased, the government reported that the number of labor inspectors was insufficient to target the scope of the problem. In addition, enforcement of child labor laws remains challenging due to the lack of resources for inspections. (1)

Criminal Law Enforcement

In 2018, criminal law enforcement agencies in Guinea-Bissau took actions to combat child labor (Table 7). However, gaps exist within the operations of the criminal enforcement agencies that may hinder adequate criminal law enforcement, including financial resources.

‡ Data are from January 2018 to August 2018.

The National Institute for Women and Children (IMC) identified 159 child victims of human trafficking for forced begging. The IMC, in partnership with NGO stakeholders, assisted these children with reintegration, medical assistance, and shelter. (14)

During the reporting period, the UNODC trained 23 law enforcement officials on conducting human trafficking investigations. In addition, the IOM conducted several training sessions on human trafficking prevention, victim assistance and implementation of child referral monitoring mechanisms for government and law enforcement officials. (14,26) However, the government reported that training for criminal law enforcement officials and resources for criminal investigations were insufficient. (1)

IV. COORDINATION OF GOVERNMENT EFFORTS ON CHILD LABOR

The government has established mechanisms to coordinate its efforts to address child labor (Table 8). However, gaps exist that may hinder the adequate coordination of efforts to address child labor, including efficacy in accomplishing mandates.

Table 8. Key Mechanisms to Coordinate Government Efforts on Child Labor

Coordinating Body	Role & Description
Inter-Ministerial Commission to Fight Child Labor	Coordinates the government's efforts to prevent and eliminate child labor; established in 2010. (1,24) In 2018, conducted awareness-raising campaigns, two regional conferences in Bafatá and Gabú, and a national conference in Bissau. (14)

Coordinating Body	Role & Description
National Committee to Prevent and Combat Trafficking in Persons	Coordinates government efforts to combat human trafficking. Led by the IMC. (1,27) In 2018, with the support of the International Organization for Migration, implemented awareness-raising activities in Gabú, Bafatá, Cacheu and Bissau. (1)
National Institute for Women and Children (IMC)	Coordinates with NGOs and other partner organizations to rehabilitate and reintegrate child victims of exploitation. (8) In 2018, concluded and disseminated the Code of Conduct Against Sexual Tourism in the Bijagós Islands, São Domingos, Cacheu and Bissau. In addition, with the assistance of the Ministry of Tourism, trained various hotel owners and managers on the prevention of sexual tourism. (14)

V. GOVERNMENT POLICIES ON CHILD LABOR

The government has established policies related to child labor (Table 9). However, policy gaps exist that may hinder efforts to address child labor, including funding and implementation.

Table 9. Key Policies Related to Child Labor

Policy	Description
National Policy for the Protection of Children and Adolescents (2018–2030)	Guides the government's policies for combating violence towards children, including child labor. (28) Research was unable to determine whether activities were undertaken to implement this policy during the reporting period.
National Action Plan on Human Trafficking (2015–2018)	Guided the government's efforts to prevent and combat trafficking in persons. (27) In 2018, policy was not implemented due to a lack of funding. (2)
Code of Conduct Against Sexual Exploitation in Tourism	Seeks to raise awareness on commercial sexual exploitation of children and child trafficking in Guinea-Bissau, particularly in the Bijagós Archipelago. (29) In December 2018, IMC conducted an awareness session with hotel and night club owners on the Code. Awareness campaigns also took place in Bissau and in the Bijagós Archipelago, where girls are known to be engaged in commercial sexual exploitation. (1)
UN Country Partnership Framework (2016–2020)	Aims to assist in promoting free and universal birth registration, and enforcing human trafficking and child labor provisions. (30) Since 2016, helped IMC reintegrate 132 talibés with their families; and provided access to shelter, schools, and psychological and medical assistance. (31) In 2018, conducted awareness raising activities on talibés to more than 1,500 people throughout Gabú and Bafatá. In addition, held capacity-building trainings on enhancing criminal justice response to trafficking in persons and strengthening the protection of victims to over 40 stakeholders, including judicial police, National Guard and NGOs working with human trafficking victims. (32)

VI. SOCIAL PROGRAMS TO ADDRESS CHILD LABOR

In 2018, the government participated in programs that include the goal of eliminating and preventing child labor (Table 10). However, gaps exist in these social programs, including the adequacy of programs to address the full scope of the problem.

Table 10. Key Social Programs to Address Child Labor

Program	Description
UNICEF Country Program (2016–2020)	UNICEF-funded program in collaboration with the government to prevent and combat child trafficking through education, social protection mechanisms, and capacity-building for law enforcement officials. (33) Active in 2018. (1)
Friends of the Child (Associação dos Amigos da Criança) Shelters	Donor-funded program, with government support, implemented by an NGO that provides social services to vulnerable children, including victims of the worst forms of child labor. (14,34) In 2018, provided identification and reintegration services to 150 children. (14)

‡ The government had other social programs that may have included the goal of eliminating or preventing child labor. (35)

In June 2018, the Inter-Ministerial Commission to Fight Child Labor conducted awareness-raising activities, two regional conferences in Bafatá and Gabú, and a national conference in Bissau to promote the prevention and reporting of child trafficking. However, reports indicate that the government has not conducted any national public awareness-raising campaigns on human trafficking, including child trafficking. (14,36)

Guinea-Bissau

MODERATE ADVANCEMENT

Reports indicate that services provided by shelters do not meet international standards due to funding constraints. (14) In addition, although Guinea-Bissau has programs that target child labor, the scope of these programs is insufficient to fully address the extent of the problem.

VII. SUGGESTED GOVERNMENT ACTIONS TO ELIMINATE CHILD LABOR

Based on the reporting above, suggested actions are identified that would advance the elimination of child labor in Guinea-Bissau (Table 11).

Table 11. Suggested Government Actions to Eliminate Child Labor

Area	Suggested Action	Year(s) Suggested
Legal Framework	Ensure that all children are protected by law, including children without a work contract.	2015 – 2018
	Determine by national law or regulation the types of hazardous work prohibited for children, after consultation with employers' and workers' organizations.	2009 – 2018
	Ensure that the law criminally prohibits the recruitment of children under age 18 by non-state armed groups.	2016 – 2018
	Ensure that all 9 years of basic education are free.	2015 – 2018
	Raise minimum age for work to the age up to which education is compulsory.	2018
Enforcement	Publish law and criminal enforcement data, including information on labor inspectorate funding, the ability of the inspectorate to assess penalties, the number of prosecutions initiated, convictions secured, and imposed penalties for violations related to the worst forms of child labor.	2009 – 2018
	Impose penalties for convictions related to the worst forms of child labor.	2018
	Strengthen the labor inspectorate by initiating routine inspections rather than performing inspections solely based on complaints received, and by initiating targeted inspections based on the analysis of data related to risk-prone sectors and patterns of serious incidents.	2016 – 2018
	Establish a mechanism to receive child labor complaints.	2016 – 2018
	Establish referral mechanisms to ensure that children found during labor inspections and criminal investigations are referred to social services providers.	2016 – 2018
	Ensure that law and criminal enforcement officials receive adequate training and resources to inspect, investigate, and prosecute cases of child labor.	2009 – 2018
	Ensure that the number of law enforcement officials is sufficient to address the scope of the problem.	2018
Government Policies	Ensure implementation of key policies related to child labor, including the National Policy for the Protection of Children and Adolescents.	2017 – 2018
Social Programs	Ensure that facilities have adequate resources to assist victims of the worst forms of child labor.	2015 – 2018
	Expand existing programs to address the scope of the child labor problem.	2009 – 2018
	Significantly increase efforts to raise national awareness of human trafficking, including child trafficking.	2018

In 2018, Guyana made a moderate advancement in efforts to eliminate the worst forms of child labor. In August 2018, the government established, within the Guyana Geology and Mines Commission, a trafficking in persons unit responsible for registering and categorizing local and foreign workers, including children, in the hinterland. The government also approved the National Policy on Child Labor that aims to eradicate child labor by 2025, and contributed $300,000 to NGO-run shelters for human trafficking victims. However, children in Guyana continue to engage in the worst forms of child labor, including in mining and in commercial sexual exploitation, sometimes as a result of human trafficking. Law enforcement agencies have insufficient financial and human resources to enforce laws related to child labor, including its worst forms, and existing laws do not fully prohibit using children in certain forms of child labor. Moreover, the government does not have targeted social programs to fully address the extent of the child labor problem in the country.

I. PREVALENCE AND SECTORAL DISTRIBUTION OF CHILD LABOR

Children in Guyana engage in the worst forms of child labor, including in mining and commercial sexual exploitation, sometimes as a result of human trafficking. (1-6) The 2014 Multiple Indicator Cluster Survey indicated that children living in Guyana's interior are more likely than other children to be engaged in child labor, with 37 percent of children ages 5 to 17 living in the interior engaged in child labor. The survey also indicated that 41 percent of children living in Amerindian households engage in child labor, with 34 percent of these children engaged in hazardous work. (1) Table 1 provides key indicators on children's work and education in Guyana.

Table 1. Statistics on Children's Work and Education

Children	Age	Percent
Working (% and population)	5 to 14	20.1 (Unavailable)
Attending School (%)	5 to 14	97.1
Combining Work and School (%)	7 to 14	22.1
Primary Completion Rate (%)		97.7

Based on a review of available information, Table 2 provides an overview of children's work by sector and activity.

	Use in illicit activities, including planting marijuana and smuggling drugs, weapons, and goods (2,4)

† Determined by national law or regulation as hazardous and, as such, relevant to Article 3(d) of ILO C. 182.

‡ Child labor understood as the worst forms of child labor per se under Article 3(a)–(c) of ILO C. 182.

Children in Guyana, including girls as young as age 12, are involved in commercial sexual exploitation in Georgetown and the country’s interior. There are reports of young girls in mining communities being subjected to commercial sexual exploitation as a result of human trafficking. (2,4-6) Children are engaged in informal, small-scale mining in which they wash gold, operate dangerous machinery, and are exposed to hazardous chemicals. (4,5)

Children in Guyana’s interior and rural areas have limited access to education due to poor infrastructure, long distances to schools, transportation costs, and a shortage of qualified teachers. This leads to decreasing enrollment and high dropout rates among students, particularly in secondary school. (2,4,5,18,19)

II. LEGAL FRAMEWORK FOR CHILD LABOR

Guyana has ratified all key international conventions concerning child labor (Table 3).

Table 3. Ratification of International Conventions on Child Labor

Convention	Ratification

ILO C. 182, Worst Forms of Child Labor	✓
 UN CRC	✓
UN CRC Optional Protocol on Armed Conflict	✓
UN CRC Optional Protocol on the Sale of Children, Child Prostitution and Child Pornography	✓
 Palermo Protocol on Trafficking in Persons	✓

The government has established laws and regulations related to child labor (Table 4). However, gaps exist in Guyana’s legal framework to adequately protect children from the worst forms of child labor, including sufficient prohibition of commercial sexual exploitation of children.

Table 4. Laws and Regulations on Child Labor

Standard	Meets International Standards	Age	Legislation

* No conscription (3)

Although the Employment of Young Persons and Children Act prohibits hazardous work for anyone under age 18, the law does not fully protect adolescents ages 16 and 17 from engaging in hazardous work. Part 1, Article 2 of the Employment of Young Persons and Children Act prohibits night work for minors employed in industry. However, the Act also provides an exception that permits adolescents ages 16 and older to perform certain work requiring continuity through day and night, including gold mining reduction work and the production of iron, steel, glass, paper, and raw sugar. This work is performed without legal provisions that ensure adolescent laborers' health, safety, and morals are fully protected or that they receive specific instruction or training in these activities. (20)

Guyanese law does not sufficiently prohibit all commercial sexual exploitation of children as it does not prohibit the use, procuring, and offering of a child for pornographic performances. (5,25,29) Although Article 50(1) of the Protection of Children Act prohibits selling or giving drugs to children, the law does not specifically prohibit the use, procuring, or offering of a child for the production and trafficking of drugs. (26,30)

III. ENFORCEMENT OF LAWS ON CHILD LABOR

The government has established institutional mechanisms for the enforcement of laws and regulations on child labor (Table 5). However, gaps exist within the operations of the Ministry of Social Protection that may hinder adequate enforcement of their child labor laws.

Table 5. Agencies Responsible for Child Labor Law Enforcement

Organization/Agency	Role
Ministry of Social Protection	Monitors and enforces child labor laws in collaboration with the Ministry of Education, Forestry Commission, Geology and Mines Commission, National Insurance Scheme, and Guyana Police Force. The Chief Labor Officer handles special investigations stemming from child labor complaints and oversees routine labor inspections. (5) Includes a Trafficking in Persons Unit and the Childcare and Protection Agency, to which children identified during labor inspections are referred. (5)
Guyana Police Force	Enforces criminal laws related to the worst forms of child labor, including human trafficking, commercial sexual exploitation, and the use of children in illicit activities. Works in consultation with the Director of Public Prosecutions, the Ministry of Public Security, the Ministry of Social Protection, the Ministry of Education, and the Ministry of Indigenous Peoples' Affairs, depending on the circumstances of each case. (5)
Ministry of Public Security	Leads enforcement of human trafficking laws. Chairs the Inter-Ministerial Task Force on Combating Trafficking in Persons. (5)

MODERATE ADVANCEMENT

Labor Law Enforcement

In 2018, labor law enforcement agencies in Guyana took actions to combat child labor (Table 6). However, gaps exist within the operations of the Ministry of Social Protection that may hinder adequate labor law enforcement, including human resource allocation.

Table 6. Labor Law Enforcement Efforts Related to Child Labor

During the reporting period, law enforcement officials found 21 child labor violations, 8 of which were categorized as the worst forms of child labor, including 7 violations for commercial sexual exploitation of children, and 1 for child labor exploitation. (31)

The number of labor inspectors is likely insufficient for the size of Guyana's workforce, which includes over 313,000 workers. According to the ILO's technical advice of a ratio approaching 1 inspector for every 15,000 workers in developing economies, Guyana would employ roughly 21 inspectors. (32,33) In 2018, the number of labor inspectors decreased to 15 due to the delinking agencies within the Ministry of Social Protection. The government recognizes the number of inspectors is not sufficient to adequately monitor Guyana's workforce, including the interior where child labor is most prevalent. (4,5,13) Furthermore, inspectors have insufficient resources to conduct inspections in remote areas, including transportation and accommodation. (5)

Although the number of labor inspections increased during the reporting period, each inspector conducted approximately 115 inspections. It is unknown whether the reported activity of 115 inspections per inspector impacted the quality of inspections. (5)

The government has acknowledged challenges in monitoring and enforcing the provisions established in Articles 41 and 46 of the Occupational Safety and Health Act, which aim to protect children from work that may harm their physical health or emotional development. (17)

Criminal Law Enforcement

In 2018, criminal law enforcement agencies in Guyana took actions to combat child labor (Table 7). However, gaps exist within the operations of the criminal enforcement agencies that may hinder adequate criminal law enforcement, including human resource allocation.

Reciprocal Referral Mechanism Exists Between Criminal Authorities and Social Services	Yes (13)	Yes (5)

During the reporting period, the government reported a 20 percent increase in human trafficking victim identification resulting from continuous awareness raising campaigns and trainings on methods to identify and refer victims to appropriate social services. (5,34) In addition, the government established a Trafficking in Persons Unit within the Geology and Mines Commission, which must register and categorize local and foreign workers in the hinterland, and conduct spontaneous inspections to ensure that workers in these areas are not exploited. (34)

The government has acknowledged that there is an insufficient number of staff members in the Ministry of Social Protection's Trafficking in Persons Unit. (12,35) Although the government has conducted training for law enforcement, prosecutors, and judicial officers; prosecutions of human trafficking cases can take 24 months or longer to conclude. (34) In addition, with only 33 justices and magistrates, the courts have a backlog of cases and more than a 2-year waiting period on all legal matters. (16,31)

IV. COORDINATION OF GOVERNMENT EFFORTS ON CHILD LABOR

The government has established mechanisms to coordinate its efforts to address child labor (Table 8). However, gaps exist that may hinder the adequate coordination of efforts to address child labor, including efforts to address all forms of child labor.

Table 8. Key Mechanisms to Coordinate Government Efforts on Child Labor

Coordinating Body	Role & Description
Inter-Ministerial Taskforce on Combating Trafficking in Persons	Reports on the nature and magnitude of human trafficking in Guyana and documents government's response. Carries out public education campaigns and promotes prevention measures. (5) Combats commercial sexual exploitation of children and the use of children in illicit activities. Members include the participation of 16 government ministries. (16,36) Chaired by the Minister of Public Security. Participating member agencies include: the Ministries of Amerindian Affairs, Natural Resources and Environment, Education, Legal Affairs, and Foreign Affairs. (16,37) In 2018, provided training to the Guyana Police Force, including guidelines for interviewing victims; implemented public awareness campaigns on trafficking in persons; and drafted the 2019–2020 National Action Plan on Trafficking in Persons. (34, 36)
National Tripartite Committee	Addresses national labor legislation and policy. Includes representatives from government agencies, labor unions, and employers, including the Ministry of Social Protection, the Consultative Association of Guyanese Industries, the Guyana Trades Union Congress, and the Federation of Independent Trade Unions of Guyana. (16,38,39) Research was unable to determine whether the National Tripartite Committee was active during the reporting period.
Commission on the Rights of the Child	Protects and promotes children's rights in accordance with the UN CRC, which includes addressing the worst forms of child labor. In 2018, the Commission on the Rights of the Child began drafting a new strategic plan to replace the previous Five-Year Strategic Plan that ended during the previous reporting period. (5)

Although the government has established the Inter-Ministerial Task Force on Combating Trafficking in Persons, research found no evidence of mechanisms to coordinate efforts to combat other worst forms of child labor.

MODERATE ADVANCEMENT

V. GOVERNMENT POLICIES ON CHILD LABOR

The government has established policies related to child labor (Table 9). However, policy gaps exist that hinder efforts to address child labor, including whether child labor elimination and prevention strategies were addressed in the National Education Policy.

Table 9. Key Policies Related to Child Labor

Policy	Description
National Policy Toward the Elimination of Child Labor (2018–2025)	Aims to prevent and eliminate child labor in all its forms by 2025 by reconciling gaps and inconsistencies within existing national policies with ratified international conventions. Establishes a national framework to coordinate, enforce, monitor, and evaluate all efforts to combat child labor, and increases protections to vulnerable indigenous children in the hinterland. (40) Approved in April 2019. (41)
Inter-Ministerial Task Force on Combating Trafficking in Persons Action Plan (2017–2018)	Seeks to prevent and raise awareness about human trafficking, provide direct assistance to victims, improve law enforcement's capacity to identify and respond to human trafficking, and strengthen interagency coordination and referral mechanisms. (9,42,43) In 2018, Inter-Ministerial Taskforce trained Toshihos (leaders of indigenous villages) in mining districts on human trafficking victim assistance and identification methods; developed and launched an information booklet on the rights of victims and another on trafficking in persons legislation; and conducted awareness raising campaigns across Guyana.(34)

‡ The government had other policies that may have addressed child labor issues or had an impact on child labor. (44)

The government is developing a Memorandum of Understanding (MOU) with Brazil to establish standard operating procedures for handling human trafficking cases involving Brazilian nationals. The MOU addresses protocols for the treatment and repatriation of trafficking in persons victims. (34)

The government has not included child labor elimination and prevention strategies in the National Education Policy. The Commission on the Rights of the Child began drafting a new strategic plan to replace the previous Five-Year Strategic Plan; however, research was unable to determine whether the new strategy includes child labor elimination and prevention strategies. (5,17,44)

VI. SOCIAL PROGRAMS TO ADDRESS CHILD LABOR

In 2018, the government funded and participated in programs that include the goal of eliminating or preventing child labor (Table 10). However, gaps exist in these social programs, including adequacy to address the problem in all sectors.

Table 10. Key Social Programs to Address Child Labor

Program	Description
Guyana Decent Work Country Program (2017–2021)†	Aims to improve working conditions and increase respect for international standards, social protection, economic opportunities, and social dialogue. Includes plans to conduct research and raise awareness on child labor; develop a national child labor policy, and establish coordination mechanisms to prevent and respond to child labor and forced labor. (45) Research was unable to determine whether activities were undertaken to implement the Guyana Decent Work Country Program during the reporting period.
Prevention and Elimination of Child Labor in the Americas Project	Government of Brazil-funded regional cooperation project to address child labor. In 2017, the Government of Guyana published the ILO's Rapid Assessment of Child Labor in Guyana and indicated the report will inform the government's development of a national child labor policy. (4) Research was unable to determine whether activities were undertaken to implement the Prevention and Elimination of Child Labor in the Americas Project during the reporting period.
Child Labor Hotline‡	Government-funded project implemented by the Ministry of Social Protection that provides a hotline accessible to the public for reporting cases of child labor. Active in 2018. (5,12,13)
Human Trafficking Hotline‡	Government-funded hotline to assist human trafficking victims. Active in 2018. (6)
Shelter for Domestic Violence Victims‡	Government-funded, NGO-run shelter that houses victims of domestic violence and human trafficking, including children. Provides services, including psychological counseling and practical skills training. (5) Accommodates teenage girls under age 16 who are placed at the shelter at the request of the government's Childcare and Protection Agency. (5) Receives $50,000 annually from the government. (46) Active in 2018. (5)

Program	Description
School Meals and Uniforms†	Government-funded program that provides hot meals to 16,000 students at schools in the interior and transportation for students in several remote areas. All students in government-run schools, from nursery to secondary school, receive vouchers to purchase school uniforms, shoes, and backpacks. (16,47) Active in 2018. (5)
5Bs Program†	Government-funded program that provides boots, boats, buses, bicycles, books, and breakfast to school children to improve access to education. (13,19) Active in 2018. (5)
Child Advocacy Center	Funded by private sector donations and implemented by the Ministry of Social Protection and NGOs to provide services for abused children. The Ministry of Social Protection's Childcare and Protection Agency oversees the center and makes referrals. (42) Research was unable to determine whether activities were undertaken to implement the child advocacy center during the reporting period.
Board of Industrial Training†	Government-funded program that aims to deter early school dropouts by providing job skills to at-risk youth between ages 15 and 17 who may not otherwise be able to complete their formal education. Active in 2018. (5)

In 2018, the government contributed $300,000 to NGO-managed shelters that provide services for human trafficking victims, including victims of child trafficking. (34)

The scope of government programs targeting the worst forms of child labor is insufficient to fully address the extent of the problem, including child labor in the mining industry and commercial sexual exploitation of children. (13,46)

VII. SUGGESTED GOVERNMENT ACTIONS TO ELIMINATE CHILD LABOR

Based on the reporting above, suggested actions are identified that would advance the elimination of child labor in Guyana (Table 11).

Table 11. Suggested Government Actions to Eliminate Child Labor

Area	Suggested Action	Year(s) Suggested
Legal Framework	Ensure that the law fully protects all children under age 18 from engaging in hazardous work, including night work.	2010 – 2018
	Ensure that the law sufficiently prohibits all commercial sexual exploitation of children by prohibiting the use, procuring, and offering of a child for pornographic performances.	2010 – 2018
	Ensure that the law sufficiently prohibits the use of children for illicit activities by prohibiting the use, procuring, or offering of a child for the production or trafficking of drugs.	2016 – 2018
	Ensure that the law criminally prohibits the recruitment of children under age 18 by non-state armed groups.	2016 – 2018
Enforcement	Increase the number of labor inspectors trained and responsible for providing enforcement of child labor laws to ensure a sufficient number of inspectors are available to carry out labor inspections.	2015 – 2018
	Authorize the labor inspectorate to assess penalties.	2016 – 2018
Enforcement	Ensure that the labor inspectorate receives sufficient funding to monitor the interior, where child labor is most prevalent.	2011 – 2018
	Ensure the appropriate application of Articles 41 and 46 of the Occupational Safety and Health Act to ensure that children are not engaged in work that may harm their physical health or emotional development.	2015 – 2018
	Ensure the Ministry of Social Protection's Trafficking in Persons Unit is sufficiently staffed to carry out its mandate.	2018
	Dedicate more resources, including judicial personnel, to address the backlog of cases and ensure cases are concluded in a timely manner; including cases related to the worst forms of child labor.	2010 – 2018
Coordination	Establish coordinating mechanisms to combat child labor, including all its worst forms, and ensure that the National Tripartite Committee engages in regular meetings and coordination efforts.	2014 – 2018
Government Policies	Ensure child labor elimination and prevention strategies are integrated in the newly drafted 5-Year Strategic Plan on the Rights of the Child and in the National Education Policy.	2010 – 2018

Area	Suggested Action	Year(s) Suggested
Social Programs	Ensure that children are not prevented from attending school because of transportation costs.	2014 – 2018
	Increase the number of qualified teachers, particularly in rural and interior areas.	2015 – 2018
	Develop new initiatives and expand existing programs to reach all children involved in the worst forms of child labor, including programs addressing child labor in the mining industry and commercial sexual exploitation of children.	2010 – 2018

In 2018, Haiti made a minimal advancement in efforts to eliminate the worst forms of child labor. During the year, the government established, trained, and deployed a specialized unit of border police known as the POLIFRONT to combat transnational crime, including human trafficking. It also secured 17 convictions for crimes related to the worst forms of child labor. However, children in Haiti perform dangerous tasks in agriculture and domestic work. Children are also placed in orphanages where some are subsequently used for domestic work. Haiti lacks a clear, easily applicable minimum age for domestic work and a list of hazardous occupations prohibited to children. Limited resources for the enforcement of child labor laws impede government efforts to protect children from the worst forms of child labor. In addition, social programs to combat child labor are insufficient to adequately address the extent of the problem.

I. PREVALENCE AND SECTORAL DISTRIBUTION OF CHILD LABOR

Children in Haiti perform dangerous tasks in agriculture and domestic work. (1-7) Table 1 provides key indicators on children's work and education in Haiti. Data on some of these indicators are not available from the sources used in this report.

Table 1. Statistics on Children's Work and Education

Children	Age	Percent
Working (% and population)	5 to 14	34.4 (815,993)
Attending School (%)	5 to 14	92.4
Combining Work and School (%)	7 to 14	34.9
Primary Completion Rate (%)		Unavailable

Primary Completion Rate was unavailable from UNESCO Institute for Statistics, 2019. (8)

Source for all other data: International Labor Organization's analysis of statistics from Enquête Mortalité, Morbidité et Utilisation des Services, 2012. (9)

Based on a review of available information, Table 2 provides an overview of children's work by sector and activity.

Table 2. Overview of Children's Work by Sector and Activity

Sector/Industry	Activity
Agriculture	Harvesting sugarcane, collecting cut sugarcane, grinding sugarcane, and clearing land for sugarcane production (1)
	Raising livestock (7)
	Capturing and processing fish (1,6,10)
Industry	Construction, including transport of construction materials such as sand and rocks (1,4,6,10)
	Producing metal crafts (11)
Services	Domestic work (2,3,12-14)
	Transporting and selling alcohol† and tobacco (6)
	Street work, including vending, begging, shining shoes, washing cars, and carrying water, firewood, goods, and luggage in public markets and bus stations (4-7,10)
Categorical Worst Forms of Child Labor‡	Forced labor in domestic work, agriculture, street vending, and begging, each sometimes as a result of human trafficking (3-6,14-16)
	Use in illicit activities, including by criminal groups in drug trafficking (17)
	Commercial sexual exploitation, sometimes as a result of human trafficking (4,5,10,18-20)

† Determined by national law or regulation as hazardous and, as such, relevant to Article 3(d) of ILO C. 182.

‡ Child labor understood as the worst forms of child labor per se under Article 3(a)–(c) of ILO C. 182.

Haiti

A 2015 study found that there were approximately 286,000 child domestic workers in Haiti, 207,000 of whom were lagging behind in school or had significantly lower school enrollment rates. (5,10,13,14,21) Some parents who are unable to care for their children send them to residential care centers or to relatives or strangers who are expected to provide the children with food, shelter, and schooling in exchange for household work. In practice, some of these children receive care and access to education, while many others become victims of labor exploitation and abuse. (2-4,12,14,22)

In addition, Haiti has over 750 orphanages that house over 25,000 children who may be vulnerable to trafficking and child labor in lieu of attending school. (21) According to a Ministry of Social Affairs and Labor's Institute of Social Welfare and Research (IBESR) study, the majority of Haiti's orphanages fail to comply with government standards for care. The government has stated that after a grace period, which ends in July 2019, it will begin closing remaining non-compliant orphanages. In 2018, the Government of Haiti closed eight orphanages where there was evidence of child labor for domestic work and prevention of children from attending school. (21,23-25) The government is instead focusing on promoting child fostering to prevent child labor in institutions. (23-25)

Children are trafficked both internally and externally, primarily to the Dominican Republic, other Caribbean countries, South America, and the United States. NGOs have reported that children illegally crossing the Haiti-Dominican Republic border are often accompanied by adults paid to act as the children's parents or guardians until they reach the Dominican Republic. (5,6,10,26) Some of these children are reunited with relatives in the Dominican Republic, while others engage in commercial sexual exploitation, domestic work, agriculture, street vending, and begging. (5,6,10,27)

During 2018, the Government of the Dominican Republic continued involuntarily repatriating individuals with irregular migration status to Haiti, pursuant to Dominican law. (14,28-31) Some of these individuals, including children, are Dominican-born persons of Haitian descent. (32) Some of these children were residing in Haiti in camps near the border with the Dominican Republic, where schools and other basic services are not available. In addition, these children may not speak French or Haitian Creole, the languages of instruction in public Haitian schools. (4,14,16,33,34) These children, including those who have been deported to Haiti or who left voluntarily, are vulnerable to the worst forms of child labor. (5,34)

The Constitution of Haiti provides free and compulsory primary education. (35-37) In addition, while many children in Haiti are not registered at birth, unregistered children are able to access social assistance services and educational programs provided by the government. However, public schools often charge fees for books, uniforms, and school materials. Because private schools represent approximately 90 percent of existing schools, most Haitian children are enrolled in private schools that charge tuition and other fees, which make education prohibitive to many families. (4,6,7,14,38,39) Other children, especially in rural areas, do not attend school due to the lack of school infrastructure and limited availability of teachers. Out-of-school children are more vulnerable to the worst forms of child labor. (4,7,16) In addition, the Ministry of Education recommends that a child be between 11 and 13 years of age when transitioning to secondary school. Past this age threshold, overage children must integrate into a special group that attends school during the evening shift. (40-42) However, research did not find evidence that schools provide instruction during evening shifts for special groups. (41,43)

II. LEGAL FRAMEWORK FOR CHILD LABOR

Haiti has ratified all key international conventions concerning child labor (Table 3).

Table 3. Ratification of International Conventions on Child Labor

	Convention	Ratification
	ILO C. 138, Minimum Age	✓
	ILO C. 182, Worst Forms of Child Labor	✓
	UN CRC	✓
	UN CRC Optional Protocol on Armed Conflict	✓
	UN CRC Optional Protocol on the Sale of Children, Child Prostitution and Child Pornography	✓
	Palermo Protocol on Trafficking in Persons	✓

The government has established laws and regulations related to child labor (Table 4). However, gaps exist in Haiti's legal framework to adequately protect children from child labor, including with the minimum age for work and the compulsory education age.

Table 4. Laws and Regulations on Child Labor

Standard	Meets International Standards	Age	Legislation
Minimum Age for Work	No	16	Article 10 of the Law Organizing and Regulating Labor (44)
Minimum Age for Hazardous Work	Yes	18	Article 334 of the Labor Code; Article 2 of the Act on the Prohibition and Elimination of All Forms of Abuse, Violence, Ill Treatment, or Inhumane Treatment Against Children (Act of 2003) (45,46)
Identification of Hazardous Occupations or Activities Prohibited for Children	No		Articles 333–336 of the Labor Code (46)
Prohibition of Forced Labor	Yes		Article 4 of the Labor Code; Article 2 of the Act of 2003; Article 1.1.11 of the Anti-Trafficking in Persons Law (45-47)
Prohibition of Child Trafficking	Yes		Article 2 of the Act of 2003; Article 1.1.1 of the Anti-Trafficking in Persons Law (46,47)
Prohibition of Commercial Sexual Exploitation of Children	Yes		Article 2 of the Act of 2003; Articles 279–281 of the Penal Code; Article 1.1.17 of the Anti-Trafficking in Persons Law (46-48)
Prohibition of Using Children in Illicit Activities	Yes		Article 72 of the Law on the Control and Suppression of Illicit Drug Trafficking; Article 2 of the Act of 2003 (46,49)
Minimum Age for Voluntary State Military Recruitment	No
Prohibition of Compulsory Recruitment of Children by (State) Military	Yes		Article 268 of the Constitution (36)
Prohibition of Military Recruitment by Non-state Armed Groups	Yes		Article 70 of the Penal Code; Article 2 of the Act of 2003 (46,48)
Compulsory Education Age	No	15	Article 23 of the Decree on the Reorganization of the Haitian Education System (36)
Free Public Education	Yes		Articles 32.1 and 33 of the Constitution (35)

The Labor Code applies only to workers who perform work under a formal employment agreement, which does not conform to international standards that require all children to be protected under the law establishing a minimum age for work. (7,46,50) In addition, as the minimum age for work is 16, children age 15 are vulnerable to child labor because they are not required to attend school but also are not legally permitted to work. (36,44)

In addition, it is unclear whether there is a minimum age for domestic work because the Act on the Prohibition and Elimination of All Forms of Abuse, Violence, Ill Treatment, or Inhumane Treatment Against Children of 2003 (Act of 2003) annulled Chapter 9 of the Labor Code, which set a minimum age for domestic work at 12. (7,46,47,50)

Haiti

MINIMAL ADVANCEMENT

The Labor Code prohibits children ages 16 to 18 from working at night in industrial jobs and in establishments that serve alcohol. (45) However, the types of hazardous work prohibited for children do not cover agriculture, an area of work in which children are exposed to hazardous substances and agents, and to temperatures that can damage their health. In addition, in 2014 the Government of Haiti drafted a hazardous work list for children under age 18, but the draft hazardous work list remains unapproved by Parliament for the fourth consecutive year; in addition, the current draft does not include all tasks in which children perform dangerous work, such as harvesting, collecting, and grinding sugarcane. (6,17,41,51-55) However, Haiti's National Tripartite Committee stated that it wants to update the draft hazardous work list and submit it to Parliament for approval in 2019. (41)

In November 2017, the government re-established Haiti's armed forces to assist with natural disaster relief, border security, and development projects. (56) Although Haiti's Constitution establishes the age for compulsory military recruitment at age 18, and sources suggest recruitment materials set the minimum age for voluntary recruitment at age 18, research could not find evidence of a law that establishes the age for voluntary military recruitment. (36,57,58)

III. ENFORCEMENT OF LAWS ON CHILD LABOR

The government has established institutional mechanisms for the enforcement of laws and regulations on child labor (Table 5). However, gaps exist within the authority of the Ministry of Social Affairs and Labor (MAST) that may hinder adequate enforcement of their child labor laws.

Table 5. Agencies Responsible for Child Labor Law Enforcement

Organization/Agency	Role
Ministry of Social Affairs and Labor (MAST)	Enforces laws related to child labor by receiving complaints, conducting investigations, and referring cases to juvenile courts. (45,59) MAST's Institute of Social Welfare and Research (IBESR) agents perform child protection inspections and are responsible for accrediting residential care centers. Develops and implements programs to raise awareness of child labor and provide social services to child victims of labor exploitation. (3,10,59,60)
Brigade for the Protection of Minors (BPM)	Investigates crimes of the worst forms of child labor, including child trafficking and commercial sexual exploitation. Submits investigations to judicial authorities for criminal prosecutions and refers child victims to IBESR. (3,60) Housed under the Haitian National Police. (10)
POLIFRONT	Enforces Haiti's Customs Code and investigates transnational crimes, including child trafficking. Cooperates with the Dominican Republic Border Police. (61-63) Housed under the Haitian National Police. Created in 2014 and deployed in 2018. (61-64)

Labor Law Enforcement

In 2018, labor law enforcement agencies in Haiti took actions to combat child labor (Table 6). However, gaps exist within the authority of MAST that may hinder adequate labor law enforcement, including with penalty assessment authorization.

In 2018, MAST allocated $709,000 to the IBESR which employed 104 agents throughout Haiti, a decrease from 150 agents employed in 2017. These agents included 48 child protection agents and approximately 20 social workers to handle child protection cases, including those involving child labor. (10,17,41) Each IBESR regional bureau includes a child protection section that employs five to seven agents. During the reporting period, IBESR conducted child protection inspections in commercial and industrial establishments. (6,17) Reports indicate that the lack of sufficient resources, such as means of transportation, fuel, and appropriately equipped workplaces, hampered MAST's enforcement efforts, including IBESR's capacity to enforce child labor laws. (6,17,67,68) In addition, penalties of $58 (5,000 HTG) for violating child labor laws are insufficient to deter violations. (45)

IBESR also manages the "133" hotline that receives complaints about situations requiring child protection. (5,10,69) However, the hotline functions exclusively in Port-au-Prince, leaving rural areas without a mechanism to receive child labor complaints. (16) The number of calls related to child labor received during 2018 is unknown.

Criminal Law Enforcement

In 2018, criminal law enforcement agencies in Haiti took actions to combat child labor (Table 7). However, gaps exist within the operations of the criminal enforcement agencies that may hinder adequate criminal law enforcement, including with financial and human resources.

Table 7. Criminal Law Enforcement Efforts Related to Child Labor

Overview of Criminal Law Enforcement	2017	2018
Initial Training for New Criminal Investigators	No (10)	No (17)
Training on New Laws Related to the Worst Forms of Child Labor	Unknown (6)	Yes (17)
Refresher Courses Provided	Yes (10)	Yes (17)
Number of Investigations	991 (6)	834 (17)
Number of Violations Found	178 (10)	345 (17)
Number of Prosecutions Initiated	Unknown (6)	17 (17)

In 2018, the Brigade for the Protection of Minors (BPM) maintained a staff of 80 agents in 24 offices around the country, including in 4 offices along the Haiti-Dominican Republic border. (10,17) Given the large number of reported cases of the worst forms of child labor in the country, the number of criminal law enforcement agents is inadequate. (70) BPM investigated 834 cases of child trafficking, forced child labor, use of children in illicit activities, and commercial sexual exploitation of children, and reported that it found 345 cases of violations of laws related to the worst forms of child labor. In addition, the BPM reported that it secured 17 convictions for crimes related to the worst forms of child labor. (17) In August 2018, 2 individuals were charged with attempting to traffic 25 children between the ages of 3 and 6 to an unlicensed orphanage with the intent of soliciting donations from visiting foreigners. (71) Despite these efforts, reports indicate that the BPM's lack of trained staff, equipment, transportation, and funding hampered their ability to enforce laws related to the worst forms of child labor. (5,6,10,51)

In 2018, the Haitian National Police deployed the first specialized unit of the POLIFRONT to the border city of Ouanaminthe, Haiti's busiest border crossing, to combat human trafficking and the illicit drug trade. This unit is made up of more than 100 officers who received training on border management, including combating trafficking in persons, and will work with Dominican border agents. (17,61,62,70) During the year, POLIFRONT arrested at least 81 alleged traffickers and trained the second class of POLIFRONT recruits. POLIFRONT also referred 173 unaccompanied minors to IBESR. (21,61,64,72) During the reporting period, the government worked with an NGO to train judges and magistrates throughout Haiti on the 2014 Anti-Trafficking in Persons Law and its implementation. (21)

During the reporting period, the Government of Haiti conducted seven additional prosecutions for trafficking in persons and obtained six convictions for two separate trafficking in persons cases. (21) One case involved five Haitian pastors who were convicted in absentia under the 2014 Anti-Trafficking Law. The pastors were found guilty of attempting to traffic 5 children between the ages of 4 and 14 to the Dominican Republic. (21)

An informal referral mechanism between BPM, IBESR, and NGOs is in place to provide reintegration services to victims of the worst forms of child labor. (5,10) BPM also manages the “188” hotline that receives notifications of alleged violations related to the worst forms of child labor. (73) However, like the IBESR hotline, the “188” hotline functions exclusively in Port-au-Prince, which makes reporting cases involving the worst forms of child labor more difficult in rural areas. The hotline receives an average of 50 calls per week, and of those calls, BPM usually identifies 3 or 4 cases that require follow up. (10,21,74)

IV. COORDINATION OF GOVERNMENT EFFORTS ON CHILD LABOR

The government has established mechanisms to coordinate its efforts to address child labor (Table 8). However, gaps exist that hinder the effective coordination of efforts to address child labor, including with coordination in accomplishing mandates.

Table 8. Key Mechanisms to Coordinate Government Efforts on Child Labor

Coordinating Body	Role & Description
National Tripartite Commission for the Elimination of the Worst Forms of Child Labor	Develops policies, approves programs, and coordinates, monitors, and evaluates efforts to combat child labor in Haiti. Chaired by MAST, includes representatives from IBESR, BPM, and local and international organizations. (75)
National Committee for the Fight Against Trafficking in Persons (CNLTP)	Coordinates actions against human trafficking, and provides protection and rehabilitation services to victims. Chaired by IBESR, includes representatives from MAST, BPM, and other ministries. In 2018, the Government of Haiti earmarked a budget of $490,000 for the CNLTP which is a four-fold increase from 2016–2017, the last time the CNLTP was funded. (21,48,76)
Child Protection Working Group	Implements, coordinates, and monitors efforts on child protection, including protection for child domestic workers. Chaired by IBESR, comprises non-governmental stakeholders and officials from various ministries. (77,78)

There was no evidence that the National Tripartite Commission for the Elimination of the Worst Forms of Child Labor conducted meetings or took action to combat child labor during the reporting period. (6,41)

V. GOVERNMENT POLICIES ON CHILD LABOR

The government has established policies related to child labor (Table 9). However, policy gaps exist that hinder efforts to address child labor, including adopting a new national child labor action plan.

Table 9. Key Policies Related to Child Labor

Policy	Description
National Child Protection Policy (2016–2020)	Aims to protect children from abuse, violence, and labor exploitation, and promotes improved access to education and livelihood services for vulnerable children, with a focus on domestic workers. Led by IBESR and supported by international donors. (79,80)
National Strategic Development Plan (PSDH) (2014–2019)	Highlights the need to prohibit child labor to ensure sustained and equitable economic growth. Overseen by the Ministry of Planning and External Cooperation and the Ministry of Economy and Finance. (81,82)

Policy	Description
National Action Strategy for Education for All (2011–2018)	Aims to increase access to quality primary education, particularly for vulnerable populations, by subsidizing school fees for both public and private schools. The strategy is overseen by the Ministry of Education and supported by international donors. (83,84) In December 2018, the World Bank published a report of the policy advancements and found that Haiti had satisfactorily completed all benchmarks. (42)

During the reporting period, the government did not approve the National Action Plan to Combat Child Labor, drafted in 2014. (17,55) In addition, reports indicate that efforts to implement the National Action Plan to Combat Trafficking in Persons have been slowed by high-level staff turnover at MAST and insufficient allocation of resources. (10,70,71,85) Research was unable to determine whether activities were undertaken to implement the National Child Protection Policy and the National Strategic Development Plan during the reporting period. (41)

VI. SOCIAL PROGRAMS TO ADDRESS CHILD LABOR

In 2018, the government funded and participated in programs that include the goal of eliminating or preventing child labor (Table 10). However, gaps exist in these social programs, including with regard to the adequacy of efforts to address the problem in all sectors.

Table 10. Key Social Programs to Address Child Labor

Program	Description
Protecting the Working Conditions of People/ Proteje Kondisyon Travay Moun (PWOKONTRAM) (2013–2019)	$9.99 million USDOL-funded project implemented by Catholic Relief Services to provide services to households and children engaged in or at risk of engaging in child labor or other exploitative working conditions in agriculture. (39,86) The project reached roughly 7,343 children with educational services and 4,946 households to improve their livelihoods. In addition, the project supports the capacity of the Haitian Civil Registrar system to legally document more than 3,100 individuals. (87,88) In 2018, provided educational services to 1,547 children. (87,88) Additional information is available on the USDOL website.
National Free Education Program (PSUGO)†	Government program to increase poor children's access to education. Includes school grants intended to eliminate school fees and accelerated learning programs for students who are lagging in school. (74) In 2018, worked with the World Bank to pilot a sustainable data collection strategy to track student progress for primary non-public schools. (71)
UNICEF Country Program (2017–2021)	$24 million UNICEF-funded program supporting the government's efforts to improve education, health, social inclusion, and protection for children in Haiti. In 2018, provided 22,000 children with school supplies. (92-97)
Government Child Shelter, Census, and National Child Protection Database‡	Government program to support child protection. Through IBESR, implements the government's regulatory framework for residential care centers (e.g., orphanages and shelters), collects information on vulnerable children, and tracks them through the National Child Protection Database. (97) Has identified almost 30,000 children residing in 770 shelters nationwide. (10) In 2018, the IBESR announced that it intends to close 398 orphanages that fail to meet the basic standards of care for children or which have been found to subject children to the worst forms of child labor if they do not take measures to become compliant with basic standards by July 2019. IBESR is promoting child fostering as an alternative to institutional care. (23-25)
Providing an Education of Quality in Haiti (2016–2022)	$30 million World Bank-implemented program that aims to strengthen public management of the education sector, improve learning conditions, and increase enrollment of students in selected public and non-public primary schools. (98,99) In 2018, provided community education grants to 8,546 primary school students. (100)

‡ The government had other social programs that may have included the goal of eliminating or preventing child labor. (91,101,102)

Despite IBESR's efforts to collect information for the National Child Protection Database, it does not fully capture all relevant information, including the number of displaced street children and children engaged in domestic work. Although Haiti has programs that target the worst forms of child labor, the scope of these programs is insufficient to fully address the extent of the problem, particularly in domestic work, agriculture, and child trafficking. (10,103)

VII. SUGGESTED GOVERNMENT ACTIONS TO ELIMINATE CHILD LABOR

Based on the reporting above, suggested actions are identified that would advance the elimination of child labor in Haiti (Table I I).

Table I I. Suggested Government Actions to Eliminate Child Labor

Area	Suggested Action	Year(s) Suggested
Legal Framework	Ensure that minimum age protections apply to children in informal employment arrangements.	2014 – 2018
	Establish by law a compulsory education age equal to the minimum age for work.	2017 – 2018
	Clarify the minimum age for work, including for domestic work.	2009 – 2018
	Adopt a list of hazardous occupations and activities, and ensure that the hazardous occupations and activities prohibited for children are comprehensive and include work in hazardous agricultural environments.	2009 – 2018
	Ensure that the law establishes a minimum age for voluntary recruitment by the state military at 18 or at 16 with safeguards for voluntariness.	2018
Enforcement	Publish information on labor inspectorate funding, the number of labor inspectors and whether labor inspectors received adequate training, the number and type of labor inspections, violations and penalties related to child labor.	2013 – 2018
	Create meaningful penalties for employing children in contravention of the Labor Code.	2009 – 2018
	Ensure that the number of labor and criminal law enforcement agents and training and resources for labor and criminal enforcement agencies are sufficient to adequately enforce laws related to child labor, including its worst forms.	2013 – 2018
	Authorize the inspectorate to assess penalties.	2013 – 2018
	Strengthen enforcement capacity of the Ministry of Social Affairs and Labor and the Institute of Social Welfare and Research by initiating targeted child protection inspections, rather than by performing inspections based solely on complaints received.	2013 – 2018
	Expand the hotlines operated by the Brigade for the Protection of Minors and the Institute of Social Welfare and Research to facilitate reporting of child exploitation cases in areas beyond Port-au-Prince, including in rural areas; publish information related to the number of calls related to child labor.	2013 – 2018
Coordination	Ensure that the National Tripartite Commission for the Elimination of the Worst Forms of Child Labor meets regularly and takes action to fulfill its mission.	2017 – 2018
Government Policies	Approve the National Action Plan to Combat Child Labor.	2016 – 2018
	Ensure that appropriate funding exists to effectively implement the National Action Plan to Combat Trafficking in Persons.	2016 – 2018
	Provide information and ensure implementation of the National Child Protection Policy and the National Strategic Development Plan.	2017 – 2018
Social Programs	Enhance efforts to eliminate barriers and make education accessible for all children by removing school-related fees in public schools; increase the number of schools and teachers, especially in rural areas and camps near the border with the Dominican Republic; ensure that public schools offer instruction in both French and Haitian Creole; meet the specific educational needs of vulnerable populations, including recent arrivals from the Dominican Republic; and ensure children who start their education late or repeat grades are allowed to transition to secondary school.	2009 – 2018
	Expand the National Child Protection Database, including by identifying displaced street children and children in domestic work.	2010 – 2018
	Expand existing social programs to address the scope of the child labor problem, particularly in domestic work, agriculture, and child trafficking.	2010 – 2018

In 2018, Honduras made a moderate advancement in efforts to eliminate the worst forms of child labor.

The National Congress approved a new penal code that updates penalties for human trafficking. The Secretariat of Labor and Social Security (STSS) also released a new national strategy for its labor inspectorate, and the Inter-agency Commission against Commercial Sexual Exploitation and Trafficking in Persons obtained administrative and budget autonomy. As part of implementing its Roadmap to Eliminate Child Labor, Honduras installed a National Council for Youth and Adolescents, and the country became only the second in Central America to join the Regional Action Group for the Americas against the Sexual Exploitation of Girls, Boys and Adolescents in Tourism Travel. Although the government made meaningful efforts in all relevant areas during the reporting period, it did not provide information about criminal law enforcement efforts related to the worst forms of child labor, limiting the ability to assess the adequacy of its criminal enforcement. Children in Honduras engage in the worst forms of child labor, including in commercial sexual exploitation as a result of human trafficking and recruitment by gangs into illicit activities. Children also engage in child labor in agriculture. Labor and criminal law enforcement agencies experience financial and human resource challenges that may hinder adequate law enforcement. In addition, the government's social programs that address child labor in agriculture do not appear sufficient to address the scope of the problem nationwide, and the government lacks social programs to eliminate child labor in other dangerous activities, such as fishing, mining, and domestic work.

I. PREVALENCE AND SECTORAL DISTRIBUTION OF CHILD LABOR

Children in Honduras engage in the worst forms of child labor, including in commercial sexual exploitation as a result of human trafficking and in agriculture. (1-3) Table 1 provides key indicators on children's work and education in Honduras.

Table 1. Statistics on Children's Work and Education

Children	Age	Percent
Working (% and population)	5 to 14	8.6 (158,891)
Attending School (%)	5 to 14	87.7

	Forced begging (20,31,34)
	Use in illicit activities, including by gangs in committing homicides, extortion, and selling and trafficking drugs (1,20,24,31,35,36)

† Determined by national law or regulation as hazardous and, as such, relevant to Article 3(d) of ILO C. 182.

‡ Child labor understood as the worst forms of child labor per se under Article 3(a)–(c) of ILO C. 182.

Honduras’ National Statistics Institute reported that 404,642 children between the ages of 5 and 17 worked in 2018. (1) Reports indicate that 20 percent of the Honduran population is of indigenous or African descent and that children from these groups are particularly vulnerable to child labor, including its worst forms. (1,32,35,37,38) Children who lack economic and educational opportunities are the most vulnerable and are also among the most likely to migrate to other countries. Once en route, they are also vulnerable to human trafficking and commercial sexual exploitation. (32,33,39,40)

In Honduras, access to education is often limited and some reports indicate that approximately 220,000 children between the ages of 5 and 17 lack access to the educational system. More than 75 percent of these children live in rural areas, where lack of funding for schools, and in many cases, lack of any secondary schools, remain a problem. (1,36) However, one NGO reported that some 1.5 million children around the country lacked access to education in 2018. Limited infrastructure and violence originating from gang activity also present barriers to access for both children and educators. (1)

II. LEGAL FRAMEWORK FOR CHILD LABOR

Honduras has ratified all key international conventions concerning child labor (Table 3).

Table 3. Ratification of International Conventions on Child Labor

Convention	Ratification
 ILO C. 138, Minimum Age	✓
ILO C. 182, Worst Forms of Child Labor	✓
 UN CRC	✓
UN CRC Optional Protocol on Armed Conflict	✓
UN CRC Optional Protocol on the Sale of Children, Child Prostitution and Child Pornography	✓
 Palermo Protocol on Trafficking in Persons	✓

The government has established laws and regulations related to child labor (Table 4). However, gaps exist in Honduras’ legal framework to adequately protect children from the worst forms of child labor, including the minimum age for work compared to the compulsory education age.

Table 4. Laws and Regulations on Child Labor

Standard	Meets International Standards	Age	Legislation
Minimum Age for Work	Yes	14	Article 120 of the Code on Childhood and Adolescence; Article 15 of the Executive Agreement STSS-211-01; Article 32 of the Labor Code (41-43)

Prohibition of Child Trafficking	Yes		Articles 6 and 52 of the Law Against Trafficking in Persons (Decree 59-2012); Articles 2 and 10 of the Executive Agreement STSS211-01; Article 8 of the Legislative Decree 35-2013 (41,45,47)
Prohibition of Commercial Sexual Exploitation of Children	Yes		Article 134 of the Code on Childhood and Adolescence; Articles 6 and 52 of the Law Against Trafficking in Persons (Decree 59-2012); Articles 2 and 10 of the Executive Agreement STSS211-01; Articles 148 and 149A-E of the Penal Code (41,42,45,46)
Prohibition of Using Children in Illicit Activities	Yes		Article 134 of the Code on Childhood and Adolescence; Article 10 of the Executive Agreement STSS211-01; Articles 6 and 52 of the Law Against Trafficking in Persons (Decree 59-2012); Article 8 of the Legislative Decree 35-2013 (41,42,45,47)
Minimum Age for Voluntary State Military Recruitment	Yes	18	Articles 2 and 12 of the Executive Agreement STSS211-01 (41)
Prohibition of Compulsory Recruitment of Children by (State) Military	N/A*
Prohibition of Military Recruitment by Non-state Armed Groups	Yes		Articles 2 and 10 of the Executive Agreement STSS211-01 (41)
Compulsory Education Age	Yes	17	Articles 8, 13, and 21–23 of the Fundamental Law of Education; Articles 36 and 39 of the Code on Childhood and Adolescence (42,48)
Free Public Education	Yes		Articles 7, 13, and 21–23 of the Fundamental Law of Education; Article 36 of the Code on Childhood and Adolescence; Article 171 of the Constitution (42,48,49)

* No conscription (41)

In January 2018, Honduras' National Congress approved a new penal code that is scheduled to take effect in November 2019. (3,50) Article 9 of the new law enables the application of criminal penalties under Honduran law against any individual who comes under Honduran jurisdiction for committing a range of crimes in any territory, including for human trafficking. (51)

As the minimum age for work is lower than the compulsory education age, children may be encouraged to leave school before the completion of compulsory education.

III. ENFORCEMENT OF LAWS ON CHILD LABOR

The government has established institutional mechanisms for the enforcement of laws and regulations on child labor (Table 5). However, gaps exist within the operations of the Secretariat of Labor and Social Security (STSS) that may hinder adequate enforcement of their child labor laws.

Coordinates with Honduran National Police to investigate crimes and protect victims. (24,53)
Public Ministry's Technical Agency for Criminal Investigations (ATIC)	Investigates and technically supports criminal prosecutions conducted by the Public Ministry, including by the OSPC, such as those related to human trafficking, commercial sexual exploitation, and child pornography. (15,20,24)
Prosecutorial Task Force to Combat Criminal Smuggling of Unaccompanied Children and Trafficking in Persons	Investigates and prosecutes criminal organizations that engage in the illegal smuggling of unaccompanied children and human trafficking. Overseen by the Special Prosecutor Against Organized Crime and the Special Prosecutor for Children. (34,54)
Directorate of Childhood, Adolescence, and Family (DINAF)	Formulates, coordinates, and implements national plans concerning children and their families; monitors children's rights, including by investigating complaints of child labor and ensuring that victims receive government services; and coordinates state efforts with civil society institutions to protect children. Overseen by the Secretariat of Development and Social Inclusion. (20,55-57)

Labor Law Enforcement

In 2018, labor law enforcement agencies in Honduras took actions to combat child labor (Table 6). However, gaps exist within the operations of the STSS that may hinder adequate labor law enforcement, including human resources.

Table 6. Labor Law Enforcement Efforts Related to Child Labor

In 2018, Honduras released a new national strategy for the General Directorate for Labor Inspections that re-envisioned the entire inspection process, primarily by consolidating all inspection duties under the labor inspectorate. (62) In addition, the labor inspectorate was provided additional resources for transportation, fuel, and other necessities during the reporting period. (1) Nonetheless, labor union confederations, employer organizations, and human rights organizations have indicated that the level of funding and resources for the General Directorate for Labor Inspections is insufficient to enforce child labor laws nationwide. (1,36) Furthermore, revisions to the administrative procedures for measuring the performance of the labor inspectorate resulted in a significant drop in the number of worksite inspections conducted in 2018. (63)

The number of labor inspectors is likely insufficient for the size of Honduras' workforce, which includes over 3.7 million workers. According to the ILO's technical advice of a ratio approaching 1 inspector for every 15,000 workers in industrializing economies, Honduras would employ about 249 labor inspectors. Furthermore, the ratio of inspectors to number of inspections suggests that each inspector conducted 151 inspections during the year, which is a high number and may impact the quality of inspections. (1,64,65)

While STSS encountered 2 cases of child labor in 2018, the Directorate of Childhood, Adolescence, and Family (DINAF) reported removing 97 children from child labor and providing all of these children with social services. (1) During the reporting period, inspections were carried out across a myriad of sectors but did not include businesses in the informal sector, even though children in Honduras are known to work in this sector. STSS and civil society partners have all indicated that the number of inspections conducted is insufficient to address the scope of labor violations in the country, including child labor violations. (1,36,61) In particular, reports indicate that the STSS conducts most inspections in the urban areas of Tegucigalpa and San Pedro Sula, while rural areas and indigenous communities, in which hazardous activities in agriculture and fishing or diving are concentrated, have had insufficient inspections to address the scope of the problem. (28,37,66)

NGOs report that STSS procedures for responding to child labor complaints are often not followed, largely due to institutional weaknesses and a lack of resources. (20) Furthermore, there does not appear to be an adequate mechanism for the STSS and DINAF to refer cases of child labor to each other, and reports also indicate that DINAF lacks sufficient resources to effectively carry out its mandates. (20,24,36)

In 2018, only 40 inspectors received refresher training on child labor and/or hazardous child labor. The STSS indicated the training provided during the reporting period was insufficient. (1,63)

Criminal Law Enforcement

In 2018, criminal law enforcement agencies in Honduras took actions to combat child labor (Table 7). However, gaps exist within the operations of the criminal enforcement agencies that may hinder adequate criminal law enforcement, including financial resources.

Table 7. Criminal Law Enforcement Efforts Related to Child Labor

Two individuals were sentenced by the Supreme Court of Justice in 2018 on child pornography charges. (3) However, reports indicate that the level of funding and resources available to criminal law enforcement agencies is insufficient to meet agency needs. (57)

IV. COORDINATION OF GOVERNMENT EFFORTS ON CHILD LABOR

The government has established mechanisms to coordinate its efforts to address child labor (Table 8).

Honduras

MODERATE ADVANCEMENT

Table 8. Key Mechanisms to Coordinate Government Efforts on Child Labor

Coordinating Body	Role & Description
National Commission for the Gradual and Progressive Eradication of Child Labor	Coordinates government policies and efforts on child labor issues. Chaired by STSS and includes officials from eight government ministries, DINAf, the Supreme Court, and other government entities. (52,67,68) Oversees regional sub-commissions, led by STSS and DINAf officials, which implement national efforts at the local level. (52,67,68) During the reporting period, the National Commission did not hold any meetings. However, the Commission's technical council held two meetings to review actions taken by various sectors to combat child labor. (1)
Inter-Institutional Commission Against Exploitation and Commercial Sex Trafficking (CICESCT)	Prevents, tends to the victims of, and prosecutes crimes of sexual exploitation and trafficking in persons. Comprising representatives from 35 organizations, including several government ministries, NGOs, and private companies. (69) Oversees 19 local CICESCT committees and implements the Strategic Plan to Combat Commercial Sexual Exploitation and Human Trafficking. (35) In 2018, CICESCT achieved budget and administrative autonomy and was relocated under the Ministry of Human Rights. (3,69)
Migration Task Force*	Convenes several government ministries to collaborate on addressing irregular migration, including combating the risks associated with trafficking in persons. Initiated in 2018 and chaired by Honduras' First Lady Ana Garcia de Hernandez. (3)
Secretariat of Social Development and Inclusion (SEDIS)	Coordinates social protection policies and the provision of services to vulnerable populations. (70) SEDIS indicated that in 2018 it had invested over 60,000 USD in the Vida Mejor conditional cash transfer program and had provided services to over 350,000 families across the country. (71)

*Mechanism to coordinate efforts to address child labor was created during the reporting period.

V. GOVERNMENT POLICIES ON CHILD LABOR

The government has established policies that are consistent with relevant international standards on child labor (Table 9).

Table 9. Key Policies Related to Child Labor

Policy	Description
Roadmap for the Eradication of Child Labor in Honduras	Aims to eradicate all forms of child labor by 2020 and to improve the government's response to child labor issues. Works at the national, regional, and sub-regional levels and addresses poverty, health education, and social development. (72,73) Implemented by STSS. (20,72) Held three sessions of the Guarantee System for Rights of Children and Adolescents in Honduras during 2018, including the installation of the National Council for Youth and Adolescents, which is chaired by the Secretariat General of Coordination of Government. (1,74)
Strategic Plan to Prevent and Eliminate Child Labor (2016–2020)	Identifies lines of action for preventing and eliminating child labor, including by increasing child labor law enforcement, strengthening engagement with the private sector, developing procedures for inter-agency coordination, and developing social programs to support children removed from child labor. (68) Implemented by STSS and other executive and judicial branch agencies, and employers', workers', and other civil society organizations. (68) Includes the U.S.-Honduras Labor Rights Monitoring and Action Plan (2015–2018), which aims to improve the enforcement of labor laws, including laws related to child labor, by implementing legal and policy reforms, strengthening STSS, enhancing enforcement activities, and increasing outreach efforts. (75) In 2018, the U.S. and Honduras agreed to extend the action plan into 2019. (3)
Strategic Plan to Combat Commercial Sexual Exploitation and Human Trafficking in Honduras (2016–2022)	Establishes national priorities to combat commercial sexual exploitation and human trafficking in four principal areas: (1) prevention and awareness; (2) investigation, prosecution, and punishment of violations; (3) detection, assistance, and protection of victims; and (4) coordination and cooperation. (76) In 2018, CICESCT held workshops and trainings with NGOs and international donors, and developed and disseminated information materials, including translations for vulnerable Miskito and Garifuna populations. (3)
First Public Policy and National Action Plan on Human Rights	Aims to implement the government's national and international human rights commitments, including those addressing child and forced labor. (24,77) Research was unable to identify relevant activities undertaken to implement this policy during the reporting period.

‡ The government had other policies that may have addressed child labor issues or had an impact on child labor. (78-84)

In 2018, the Colombian and Honduran Ministries of Labor held an exchange to examine best practices for the prevention and elimination of child labor particularly in the coffee sector, and more generally in the agricultural sector. (1,3)

VI. SOCIAL PROGRAMS TO ADDRESS CHILD LABOR

In 2018, the government funded and participated in programs that include the goal of eliminating or preventing child labor (Table 10). However, gaps exist in these social programs, including the adequacy of programs to address the full scope of the problem.

Table 10. Key Social Programs to Address Child Labor

Program	Description
Better Life Voucher (Bono Vida Mejor)†	Conditional cash transfer program that aims to reduce poverty by providing financial assistance to households after parents ensure their children participate in health, education, nutrition, and other programs. (40,85) Objectives include the elimination of child labor. (28) In 2018, the Secretaría de Desarrollo e Inclusión (SEDIS) carried out the second phase of the program with cash transfers to nine departments. (86) IDB reported in 2018 that the Bono Vida Mejor program had reduced poverty by 12.2 percentage points in Honduras. (85)
Program for the Reintegration of Returned Unaccompanied Migrant Children†	Government program that assists unaccompanied migrant children who have been returned to Honduras. Implemented by the National Institute for Migration, the Ministry of Foreign Affairs, DINAF, SEDIS, and the National Center for Social Sector Information. (87) In 2018, DINAF sent regional reintegration teams to 10 departments across the country to respond to specific cases of children who returned to the country. (88)
Program to Prevent Sex Tourism Involving Children and Adolescents†	Government program that aims to raise awareness and provide training on sex tourism for the tourism industry. Implemented by the Honduran Tourist Board, the Ministry of Tourism, and the Tourism Institute. (72,89) In 2018, registered 238 companies, each signing a code of conduct for the protection of children and adolescents against commercial sexual exploitation. (3)
USDOL-Funded Projects	USDOL projects that aim to eliminate child labor through technical assistance to businesses, direct services to Honduran youth, and capacity building with the Honduran government. These projects include: $2 million Addressing Child Labor and Forced Labor in the Coffee Supply Chain in Honduras (2017–2020); $16.5 million Youth Pathways Central America (2015–2020); and $8.7 million Bright Futures (2014–2019). During the reporting period, 28 youths from San Juan completed a training course in coffee management, and the project established 10 new youth bank groups to promote and implement youth-led community development projects. (91) Additional information is available on the USDOL website.
USAID-Funded Projects	USAID-funded projects, including Honduran Youth Alliance, which focuses on gang prevention, including for vulnerable youth; Strengthening Capacity to Build a Culture of Peace, which aims to improve citizen security, including for at-risk youth; and Improving Education for Work, Learning, and Success, which aims to increase educational opportunities for youth. (66,92)

‡ The government had other social programs that may have included the goal of eliminating or preventing child labor. (24,28)

In 2018, Honduras became only the second Central American country to join the Regional Action Group for the Americas against the Sexual Exploitation of Girls, Boys, and Adolescents in Tourism Travel. (3)

Although the Government of Honduras funds or participates in social programs that aim to eliminate child labor in forced begging, commercial sexual exploitation, and the illegal recruitment of children into gang-related activities, research did not identify programs that specifically target children working in other dangerous activities, such as fishing, mining, and domestic work. In addition, social programs that address child labor in agriculture do not appear to be sufficient to address the scope of the problem nationwide.

VII. SUGGESTED GOVERNMENT ACTIONS TO ELIMINATE CHILD LABOR

Based on the reporting above, suggested actions are identified that would advance the elimination of child labor in Honduras (Table 11).

Honduras

MODERATE ADVANCEMENT

Table 11. Suggested Government Actions to Eliminate Child Labor

Area	Suggested Action	Year(s) Suggested
Enforcement	Raise the minimum working age of 14 to conform with the compulsory education age of 17.	2018
	Ensure that agencies such as the Secretariat of Labor and Social Security; the Directorate of Childhood, Adolescence, and Family; the Special Prosecutor for Children; and other criminal and labor enforcement agencies have sufficient funding and resources to address the worst forms of child labor nationwide.	2010 – 2018
	Increase the number of labor inspectors to meet ILO's technical advice and to ensure a sufficient number to carry out quality labor inspections; and conduct a sufficient number of inspections to address the scope of child labor in Honduras.	2010 – 2018
	Follow established procedures for responding to child labor complaints and carrying out labor inspections in areas in which child labor is prevalent, such as rural areas, the informal sector, and indigenous communities where children engage in agriculture and fishing or diving.	2018
	Ensure that all labor inspectors receive training on child labor and make information about the initial training for new criminal investigators publicly available.	2014 – 2018
	Ensure that there is an adequate, reciprocal referral mechanism between the Secretariat of Labor and Social Security and the Directorate of Childhood, Adolescence, and Family for the enforcement of labor laws and the provision of social services for child labor victims.	2014 – 2018
	Publish complete information on criminal law enforcement efforts related to the worst forms of child labor, such as trainings held, number of investigations conducted, and number of convictions.	2015 – 2018
Government Policies	Ensure resources are available for the implementation of the Policy on Human Rights and report on actions taken to carry out the policy during the reporting period.	2018
Social Programs	Increase access to education by increasing funding to schools, building more schools, particularly in rural areas, and enhancing efforts to protect students from gang recruitment and violence.	2014 – 2018
	Expand social programs that address child labor in agriculture and create programs that aim to prevent children from migrating and to eliminate child labor in other dangerous activities, such as fishing, mining, and domestic service.	2009 – 2018
	Ensure social programs reach the children who are most vulnerable to child labor, including children of African descent and indigenous children.	2017 – 2018

SIGNIFICANT ADVANCEMENT

In 2018, India made a significant advancement in efforts to eliminate the worst forms of child labor. The government drafted the Trafficking of Persons (Prevent, Protection and Rehabilitation) Bill, which criminalizes and enhances penalties for aggravated forms of trafficking, including trafficking for the purposes of forced labor, bonded labor, and begging. It also established a new task force to implement the Child and Adolescent Labor (Prohibition and Regulation) Act and distributed a new data collection form that requires state governments to annually report to the National Crime Records Bureau specific details of human trafficking cases that occur at the district level. During the reporting period, police and child protection officers in several states conducted raids to rescue children from hazardous child labor and commercial sexual exploitation. In addition, the Government of the National Capital Territory of Delhi issued standard operating procedures for the immediate release of financial assistance to adults and children rescued from bonded labor and drafted a policy to combat human trafficking. However, children in India engage in the worst forms of child labor, including in forced labor producing garments and quarrying stones. Children also perform dangerous tasks in the production of thread and yarn. Hazardous work prohibitions do not include all occupations in which children work in unsafe and unhealthy environments for long periods of time, and penalties for employing children may be insufficient to deter violations.

I. PREVALENCE AND SECTORAL DISTRIBUTION OF CHILD LABOR

Children in India engage in the worst forms of child labor, including in forced labor producing garments and quarrying stones. Children also perform dangerous tasks in the production of thread and yarn. (I-3) Table I provides key indicators on children's work and education in India.

Table I. Statistics on Children's Work and Education

Children	Age	Percent

Sector/Industry	Activity
Industry	Manufacturing garments, weaving silk fabric and carpets, producing raw silk thread (sericulture), spinning cotton thread and yarn, and embellishing textiles with silver and gold (zari) (3,21-28)
	Manufacturing glass bangles,† imitation jewelry, locks,† brassware,† and polishing gems (29-37)
	Rolling cigarettes (bidis),† manufacturing incense sticks (agarbatti),† fireworks,† and matches† (38-41)
	Manufacturing footwear and bags, producing leather goods and/or accessories,† and stitching soccer balls (42-46)
	Producing bricks,† quarrying and breaking sandstone† and granite,† and mining and collecting mica† and coal† (2,47-54)
Services	Domestic work (55,56)
	Working in hotels, food service, and tourism services (57-61)
	Street work, including scavenging and sorting garbage (62)
Categorical Worst Forms of Child Labor‡	Forced labor in agriculture, including producing hybrid cottonseed and harvesting sugarcane, each sometimes as a result of human trafficking (63-65)
	Forced labor in producing bricks, quarrying stones, and in rice mills (2,66-71)
	Forced labor in producing garments and carpets, spinning cotton thread and yarn, and embroidering silver and gold into textiles (zari) (1,23,24,27,72-75)
	Forced labor in producing bangles, imitation jewelry, leather goods, plastic goods, footwear, and bags (34,36,37,76-81)
	Forced labor in domestic work and begging, each sometimes as a result of human trafficking (55, 65, 82, 83)
	Commercial sexual exploitation, sometimes as a result of human trafficking (65, 84)
	Recruitment of children by non-state armed groups for use in armed conflict (65,85)
Use in illicit activities, sometimes as a result of human trafficking, including the use of children to commit theft, traffic other children, and recruit other children for commercial sexual exploitation (86,87,88)

† Determined by national law or regulation as hazardous and, as such, relevant to Article 3(d) of ILO C. 182.

‡ Child labor understood as the worst forms of child labor per se under Article 3(a)–(c) of ILO C. 182.

Within India, children are trafficked for commercial sexual exploitation and for forced labor in domestic service. (65,84) Children are also forced to work as bonded laborers in brick kilns and stone quarries to pay off family debts owed to moneylenders and employers. (2,89) Children from India’s rural areas migrate or are trafficked for employment in industries such as spinning mills and cottonseed production, in which they are forced to work in hazardous environments for little or no pay. (23,63) In addition, non-state armed groups reportedly force children to serve as spies, couriers, and soldiers in the states of Bihar, Chhattisgarh, Jharkhand, Maharashtra, West Bengal, and Odisha, and as soldiers in Jammu and Kashmir. (85,90,) Maoist groups sometimes used children as human shields in confrontations with security forces. (92) Unverified reports allege national security forces also use children as informants and spies. (90) Some female child soldiers reported that commanders recruited and used them in part for sexual exploitation, including practices indicative of sexual slavery. (65,85,90)

Child victims of commercial sexual exploitation, forced labor, and human trafficking are more likely to be children from marginalized groups, such as low-caste Hindus, members of tribal communities, and religious minorities. (65) Children from marginalized groups also face barriers to accessing education. Teachers sometimes subject these children to discrimination and harassment. (93,94)

II. LEGAL FRAMEWORK FOR CHILD LABOR

India has ratified all key international conventions concerning child labor (Table 3).

Table 3. Ratification of International Conventions on Child Labor

Convention	Ratification

ILO C. 182, Worst Forms of Child Labor	✓
 UN CRC	✓
UN CRC Optional Protocol on Armed Conflict	✓
UN CRC Optional Protocol on the Sale of Children, Child Prostitution and Child Pornography	✓
 Palermo Protocol on Trafficking in Persons	✓

The government has established laws and regulations related to child labor (Table 4). However, gaps exist in India's legal framework to adequately protect children from the worst forms of child labor, including the prohibition of recruitment of children by non-state armed groups.

Table 4. Laws and Regulations on Child Labor

Standard	Meets International Standards	Age	Legislation
Minimum Age for Work	Yes	14	Section 3(1) of the Child and Adolescent Labor (Prohibition and Regulation) Act (95)

Free Public Education	Yes		Section 3 of the Right of Children to Free and Compulsory Education Act (104)

* No conscription (105)

In 2018, the Ministry of Women and Development drafted a new anti-trafficking bill titled, The Trafficking of Persons (Prevent, Protection and Rehabilitation) Bill. The bill would criminalize and enhance penalties for aggravated forms of trafficking, including trafficking for the purposes of forced labor, bonded labor, and begging. (106) However, the bill must be approved by both houses of parliament and the president to become law. (107)

SIGNIFICANT ADVANCEMENT

As the minimum age for work is lower than the compulsory education age, children may be encouraged to leave school before the completion of compulsory education. (95,104) Despite evidence that children work in unsafe and unhealthy environments for long periods of time in spinning mills, garment production, carpet making, and domestic work, not all children under age 18 are prohibited from working in occupations related to these sectors. (21,25,3,96)

Although sources report that the minimum age for voluntary recruitment into India's Armed Forces is 16 and that individuals must be 18 to be deployed, research did not uncover a copy of the pertinent legislation. (108)

III. ENFORCEMENT OF LAWS ON CHILD LABOR

The government has established institutional mechanisms for the enforcement of laws and regulations on child labor (Table 5). However, gaps exist within the operations of the state government Labor Inspectorates that may hinder adequate enforcement of their child labor laws.

Table 5. Agencies Responsible for Child Labor Law Enforcement

Organization/Agency	Role
State Government Labor Inspectorates	Conduct labor inspections, including inspections for child labor. Enforce child labor laws, including assessing penalties for violations found during inspections. (107) Refer children to Child Welfare Committees for protection and rehabilitation services. (99)
State and Local Police	Enforce laws pertaining to child labor and human trafficking. (108) Submit information to District Magistrates to determine if a case should be prosecuted in District Court. (109) Refer children to Child Welfare Committees for protection and rehabilitation services. (99)
State and District-level Anti-Human Trafficking Units	Investigate cases of human trafficking. Established in 264 local police jurisdictions throughout India. (108)
Central Bureau of Investigation's Anti-Human Trafficking Unit	Investigates and prosecutes cases involving the kidnapping and trafficking of women and children by professional gangs operating across multiple states. Takes on cases by request of, or in agreement with, state governments. (110)
Child Welfare Committees	Refer children in need of care and protection to welfare services providers under the Integrated Child Protection Scheme, including children involved in hazardous work, begging, and human trafficking, as well as those living on the streets. (99) Established 710 committees across the 660 districts in India. (111)
Vigilance Committees	Rescue, release, and rehabilitate bonded laborers and family members. Assembled at the district and subdivision levels by the District Magistrate. (97)

Labor Law Enforcement

In 2018, labor law enforcement agencies in India took actions to combat child labor (Table 6). However, gaps exist within the operations of the state government labor inspectorates that may hinder adequate labor law enforcement, including that the number of labor inspectors may be insufficient for adequate enforcement.

The Constitution of India gives state governments primary responsibility for the enforcement of labor laws. The central government seeks to collect data on national and state actions taken to address child labor violations. (107, 118, 119) Penalties for violating the Child and Adolescent Labor (Prohibition and Regulation) Act are likely insufficient to deter employers from hiring children. (107) Penalties include imprisonment for 6 months to 2 years and/or fines ranging from $300 to $700, but imprisonment is rare and maximum fines are infrequently levied. (95)

The government reported rescuing 66,169 children from child labor situations in 2018-2019 under the National Child Labor Project scheme; however, it did not provide information on the number of violations in which financial or other penalties were imposed and then collected for these violations. (115, 120)

Criminal Law Enforcement

In 2018, criminal law enforcement agencies in India took actions to combat child labor (Table 7). However, gaps exist within the operations of the criminal enforcement agencies that may hinder adequate criminal law enforcement, including the lack of data on state government efforts to investigate, prosecute, and convict crimes involving the worst forms of child labor.

Table 7. Criminal Law Enforcement Efforts Related to Child Labor

Overview of Criminal Law Enforcement	2017	2018
Initial Training for New Criminal Investigators	Yes (114)	Unknown (107)

The Constitution of India gives state governments primary responsibility for criminal law enforcement. (113, 118) During the reporting period, police and child protection officers in some states conducted raids and other law enforcement actions to rescue children from hazardous child labor and forced labor. The greatest numbers of children were withdrawn from work in Madhya Pradesh, West Bengal, and Uttar Pradesh states. (56, 121, 116)

While the National Crime Records Bureau collects law enforcement data from state governments regarding criminal cases involving the worst forms of child labor, the government has not released comprehensive data for the 2017 or 2018 reporting periods. (122) However, the Ministry of Labor and Employment reported to Parliament that in 2018 there were 624 prosecutions and 586 convictions in cases involving violations of the Child Labor Act, although it did not provide sentencing data for these cases. (115, 116) News reports indicate that some perpetrators received prison sentences for trafficking children for commercial sexual exploitation during the reporting period. (123, 124)

In several states, lack of thorough investigations into suspected human trafficking crimes by local and state-level law enforcement, reported cases of physical and sexual abuse of trafficking victims residing at shelter homes, and poor oversight of government-run and government-funded shelter homes created an atmosphere of impunity for shelter home employees to engage in sex trafficking and forced labor, including of children. In Deoria (Uttar Pradesh state), despite 20 letters from the district government requesting district authorities to shut down a government-funded but privately-operated shelter home whose registration was cancelled in 2017, police continued to send over 400 women and children to the shelter home over the period of two years, and shelter home employees exploited many in sex trafficking. (90,125) When the abuse became known, the district officer was suspended and law enforcement authorities arrested the shelter home manager and four employees three days after the initial raid on charges of child trafficking. (125) In a separate case in Agra in October 2018, a judge convicted the warden of a state government-run shelter home with a sentence of life imprisonment for selling shelter home residents, including children, into sex trafficking. (90,125)

During the reporting period, a report commissioned by the Bihar state government identified abuse, varying in forms and degrees of intensity, prevalent in more than 100 government-funded women and child care institutions across the state, including “grave concerns” requiring immediate attention in 17 institutions. In one case, government officials were reportedly complicit in child sex trafficking and forced labor of children. (90) Investigations were launched, evidence of physical and sexual abuse of victims emerged, and a number of prosecutions were initiated. (125) NGOs commended the Bihar government for undertaking the study and allowing the investigator full authority to report on all institutions without interference. In November, India’s Supreme Court ordered the Central Bureau of Investigation to take over investigation of the 17 shelter homes with the gravest concerns of abuse and subsequently mandated that all state governments in India audit the condition and supervision of state-run and state-funded shelter homes. (90,127) The National Commission for Protection of Child Rights audited 7,023 homes that provide shelter to children and at the end of the reporting period was finalizing the information to be submitted to the Supreme Court. (90,127)

IV. COORDINATION OF GOVERNMENT EFFORTS ON CHILD LABOR

The government has established mechanisms to coordinate its efforts to address child labor (Table 8).

Table 8. Key Mechanisms to Coordinate Government Efforts on Child Labor

Coordinating Body	Role & Description
Task Force to Implement the Child Labor Act*	Coordinates the oversight mechanism to ensure the effective implementation of the Child and Adolescent Labour (Prohibition and Regulation) Act. Led by Ministry of Labor and Employment (MOLE) and consists of 12 officials from the federal and state governments. (128) Convened the first task force meeting in October 2018. (129)
Central Advisory Board on Child and Adolescent Labor	Convenes board members to review the implementation of existing legislation and programs related to child labor, as well as proposes new welfare measures for child labor. Chaired by MOLE and consists of 45 board members, including government officials and NGO representatives. (130) In January 2018, MOLE convened a meeting of the board. (131)
National Commission for the Protection of Child Rights	Ensures that all laws, policies, programs, and administrative mechanisms are in accordance with the constitutional protections for children and the UN CRC. Inquires about child rights violations and failures to properly implement laws relating to child protection. (132) State Commissions for Protection of Child Rights have also been established in all 29 states and in 6 territories, including Delhi. (133) During the reporting period, the National Commission for the Protection of the Child Rights conducted two statutory meetings, and 29 state commissions convened for a workshop on the functioning of State Commissions for Protection of Child Rights. (134-136)
National Human Rights Commission	Monitors implementation of the Bonded Labor System (Abolition) Act. Monitors state governments’ actions to identify, release, and rehabilitate bonded laborers through quarterly submissions and exploratory and investigative missions. (137,138)
Platform for Effective Enforcement for No Child Labor (PENCIL) Portal	MOLE-operated online portal that allows government officials, NGOs, and law enforcement to share information and coordinate on child labor cases at the national, state, and local levels in an attempt to improve enforcement of child labor laws and the implementation of the NCLP scheme. (156,157) Between September 2017 and November 2018, 565 complaints were recorded through the portal. (107)

* Mechanism to coordinate efforts to address child labor was created during the reporting period.

V. GOVERNMENT POLICIES ON CHILD LABOR

The government has established policies related to child labor (Table 9). However, policy gaps exist that hinder efforts to address child labor, including lack of state action plans for the elimination of child labor for all state governments.

Table 9. Key Policies Related to Child Labor

Policy	Description
National Policy on Child Labor	Describes actions for combating hazardous labor for children, including implementing legislation and providing direct assistance to children. (142) During the reporting period, the policy was implemented through programs operated by MOLE and the Ministry of Women and Child Development (MWCD). (143,144)
National Plan of Action for Children	Identifies priority actions for achieving the objectives set out in the National Policy for Children (NPC). (153,154) Aims to establish bridge courses and age appropriate classes for children rescued from child labor and child trafficking to meet the NPC objective to ensure that all out-of-school children have access to education. In addition, seeks to develop community-based prevention, rescue, rehabilitation and reintegration mechanisms and to strengthen institutional mechanisms to address the worst forms of child labor in order to meet the NPC objective that all children are protected from exploitation. (153,154) During the reporting period, the policy was implemented through programs operated by MOLE and MWCD. (143,144)
State Action Plans on Child Labor	Detail state governments' activities and programs to eliminate child labor. Child labor action plans are in place in only 10 state governments: Andhra Pradesh, Bihar, Gujarat, Jharkhand, Karnataka, Meghalaya, Orissa, Punjab, Tamil Nadu, and Uttar Pradesh. (107,145-152) Research was unable to determine what activities were undertaken to implement the state action plans during the reporting period.

In 2018, the Government of the National Capital Territory drafted the “Policy on Rehabilitation and Combating Trafficking of Women and Children,” which seeks to establish a rehabilitation fund for women and children who were trafficked for commercial sexual exploitation. The draft policy also establishes district and state-level coordination committees to undertake prevention and rehabilitation activities. (115,155)

VI. SOCIAL PROGRAMS TO ADDRESS CHILD LABOR

In 2018, the government funded and participated in programs that include the goal of eliminating or preventing child labor (Table 10). However, gaps exist in these social programs, including in the oversight of government-run, government-funded, and privately-run shelter homes that provide assistance to victims of the worst forms of child labor.

Table 10. Key Social Programs to Address Child Labor

Program	Description
National Child Labor Project (NCLP) Scheme†	MOLE program that operates at the district level to identify working children, withdraw them from hazardous work, and provide them with education and vocational training. Sets up and administers NCLP schools, mainstreams children into formal education, and provides them with stipends, meals, and health checkups. (143) Comprises approximately 3,000 NCLP special training centers that accommodate approximately 120,000 children. (143) Between April 1, 2017 and March 31, 2018, the program rehabilitated 47,345 children who were rescued from child labor. (107)
Integrated Child Protection Scheme (ICPS)†	MWCD scheme that provides children in need of protection—including children withdrawn from hazardous work, forced labor, and human trafficking—with food and accommodation in government-run shelter homes, as well as non-institutional care in foster homes and adoptive families. Provides rehabilitation and reintegration services to rescued children. (144) Through the Welfare of Working Children in Need of Care and Protection program, provides non-formal education and vocational training to street children and working children living in urban areas not covered by NCLP schemes. The budget allocated for the program was increased during the reporting period. (144)
Childline†	MWCD-funded 24-hour toll-free emergency telephone service for children in distress. Includes Childline India Foundation-operated telephone service in cities across India, which connects children in need of assistance with hospitals, child welfare committees, shelter homes, and police. (144,158) During the reporting period, MWCD approved the expansion of the program to new locations. (144)
TrackChild and Khoya-Paya†*	MWCD-implemented online portal that tracks missing children and facilitates information sharing about missing and vulnerable children among stakeholders, including child protection units, police stations, and Child Welfare Committees. (144,159) Track Child's Khoya-Paya (Lost and Found) website allows parents and the general public to report and search for missing children. Program was active during the reporting period. (144,160)
Central Sector Scheme for Rehabilitation of Bonded Laborers, 2016†	MOLE program that rescues and rehabilitates adult and child bonded laborers. Provides rescued bonded laborers with financial assistance and social protection services. (143) Supports funding of surveys at the district level on the prevalence of bonded labor and the rehabilitation of bonded laborers identified through the surveys. As of September 30, 2017, more than $14 million was provided to state governments for the rehabilitation of 289,222 bonded laborers. (143)

Program	Description
Anti-Human Trafficking Activities†	MWCD-operated anti-human trafficking activities, in collaboration with NGOs and state governments. (161) Support projects to help reintegrate, rehabilitate, and repatriate human trafficking victims, including children, through the Ujjawala scheme. Also provides short-term housing and rehabilitation services, including vocational training for women and adolescent girls, through the Swadhar Greh scheme. (161) Programs were active during the reporting period. (115,161)
Measurement, Awareness-Raising, and Policy Engagement (MAP 16) Project on Child Labor and Forced Labor*	USDOL-funded project implemented by the ILO to conduct research and develop new survey methodologies, improve awareness, strengthen policies and government capacity, and promote partnerships to combat child labor and forced labor. (162) In 2018, the ILO consulted with the State Governments of Bihar, Chhattisgarh, and Uttar Pradesh to identify program outcomes, which will include designing policies that converge government-programs relevant to child labor, updating state and district child labor survey questionnaires to align with India's amended Child Labor Act, and developing trainings to address knowledge gaps on child labor. For additional information, please see our website.

* Program was launched during the reporting period.

‡ The government had other social programs that may have included the goal of eliminating or preventing child labor. (163)

In 2018, the Government of the National Capital Territory of Delhi issued standard operating procedures for the immediate release of financial assistance to adults and children rescued from bonded labor. (164) However, state governments lack similar procedures, sometimes failed to recognize bonded labor cases, and often did not issue release certificates or provide more than the initial financial assistance to bonded labor victims. (115,165) In 2018, state governments did not provide full compensation to any bonded labor victims. In addition, NGOs in some states reported problems with obtaining initial compensation. (90) The delays in distributing financial assistance reportedly contributed to the re-victimization of bonded laborers, including children. (90, 126) In addition, state governments conduct district-level surveys on bonded labor under the Scheme for Rehabilitation of Bonded Labor, but data were not available on the number of victims of bonded labor, including children. (115)

During the reporting period, media, NGOs, and Indian authorities documented a persistent lack of oversight as well as negligence in government-run, government-funded, and privately-run shelter homes, sometimes resulting in abuse and trafficking of residents, including children. In one case, 30 girls residing at a shelter home were reportedly exploited in sex trafficking. (90) In addition, due to unsafe conditions and forcible detention in government-run and -funded shelter homes, some sex trafficking victims—including children—ran away, and at least one attempted suicide in the shelter home during the reporting period. In several instances, government-funded shelter homes continued to operate despite significant gaps in mandatory reporting and allegations of abuse. (90) In response, the government began developing a comprehensive program for quarterly monitoring and reporting on the country's 7,023 shelter homes that provide care to children. (90,127)

In August 2018, the central government committed to audit all shelter homes for children. As of September, authorities had surveyed approximately one-third of all shelter homes. (90) In September, the state of Uttar Pradesh issued interim guidelines for the management of shelter homes in the state, and the Bihar state government announced that it would assume management of all government-funded and NGO-run shelter homes by December 2018; it is unknown whether this transfer of management has taken place. Also in September, the Supreme Court ordered the Ministry of Women and Child Development (MWCD) to formulate a child protection policy to prevent abuse in government-run and -funded shelter homes. (90) A draft policy was released for public comment in December 2018. The Supreme Court further implored the MWCD to present an update on incidents of child sexual abuse in all shelter homes; MWCD had not produced this report by the close of the reporting period. (90,127)

In April 2018, to improve data collection and reporting, the Government of India distributed a new comprehensive form that requires all state governments to annually report to the National Crime Records Bureau specific details of human trafficking cases that occur at the district level. (90,127)

VII. SUGGESTED GOVERNMENT ACTIONS TO ELIMINATE CHILD LABOR

Based on the reporting above, suggested actions are identified that would advance the elimination of child labor in India (Table I I).

Table I I. Suggested Government Actions to Eliminate Child Labor

Area	Suggested Action	Year(s) Suggested
Legal Framework	Ensure that the types of hazardous work prohibited for children under age 18 are comprehensive, especially in the sectors in which children work in unsafe and unhealthy conditions for long periods of time such as in spinning mills, garment production, carpet making and domestic work.	2016 – 2018
	Ensure that the law criminally prohibits the recruitment of children under age 18 by non-state armed groups.	2016 – 2018
	Publish the legal instrument that establishes the minimum age for voluntary recruitment into India's armed forces.	2018
	Raise the minimum age for work to the age up to which education is compulsory.	2018
Enforcement	Collect and publish national-level data on labor law enforcement, including the amount of funding for the labor inspectorate, the number of labor inspectors, the number of inspections conducted at workplaces, and the number of penalties imposed and collected for child labor law violations.	2014 – 2018
	Create meaningful penalties for employment of children in prohibited child labor to ensure that they adequately deter violations.	2014 – 2018
	Collect and publish national-level data from all state governments on whether new criminal investigators receive training, the number of criminal investigations, and punishments for all crimes involving the worst forms of child labor. Clarify in existing data whether cases reported involve multiple offenders.	2009 – 2018
	Fully implement the standard operating procedures that provide financial assistance to victims, including children, rescued from bonded labor.	2018
	Investigate suspected abuses and misconduct at government-run and government-funded shelter homes.	2018
	Ensure that public officials that facilitate or participate in the worst forms of child labor are held accountable.	2018
Government Policies	Work with state governments that do not currently have state action plans for the elimination of child labor to establish such plans.	2011 – 2018
	Publish information about activities that were undertaken to implement the state action plans during the reporting period.	2018
Social Programs	Penalize education officials who engage in discrimination and harassment of children, and reduce barriers to education, in particular for children from marginalized communities.	2014 – 2018

In 2018, Indonesia made a moderate advancement in efforts to eliminate the worst forms of child labor.

The government substantially increased its labor inspectorate funding from $2.1 million in 2017 to $10.2 million with specific funds allocated to enforcing child labor regulations. It also conducted 19,792 labor inspections and continued working with the International Organization for Migration to establish a comprehensive integrated Trafficking in Persons database. However, children in Indonesia engage in the worst forms of child labor, including in commercial sexual exploitation, sometimes as the result of human trafficking. Children also perform dangerous tasks in plantation agriculture, including in palm oil and tobacco production. The Ministry of Manpower continued to lack the financial resources and personnel necessary to adequately enforce child labor laws throughout the country. In addition, the Domestic Workers Protection Bill, which has been under consideration since 2010, continued to languish in parliament.

I. PREVALENCE AND SECTORAL DISTRIBUTION OF CHILD LABOR

Children in Indonesia engage in the worst forms of child labor, including in commercial sexual exploitation, sometimes as the result of human trafficking. Children also perform dangerous tasks in plantation agriculture, including in palm oil and tobacco production. (1-10) Table 1 provides key indicators on children's work and education in Indonesia. Although the government collects national data on working children ages 5 through 14, it does not publish the data.

Table 1. Statistics on Children's Work and Education

Children	Age	Percent
Working (% and population)	10 to 14	3.7 (816,363)
Attending School (%)	10 to 14	92.4

	Domestic work and fishing, sometimes as a result of human trafficking (2,15,17,32)
	Commercial sexual exploitation, including use in the production of pornography, sometimes as a result of human trafficking (2,13,29,32,33)

† Determined by national law or regulation as hazardous and, as such, relevant to Article 3(d) of ILO C. 182.

‡ Child labor understood as the worst forms of child labor per se under Article 3(a)–(c) of ILO C. 182.

Children, mostly girls, are subjected to forced domestic work and commercial sexual exploitation abroad, primarily in Malaysia, Taiwan, and the Middle East; within the country, children are also subjected to forced domestic work and commercial sexual exploitation, particularly in Batam, Jakarta, Bali, Bandung, Bogor, Surabaya, and Medan. Research found that between 35,000 to 200,000 children in Indonesia work in the commercial sex trade. (2,8,13,34,35)

Children working in tobacco farming—especially in the provinces of East Java, Central Java, and West Nusa Tenggara—are exposed to pesticides, work long hours, and work in extreme heat. (2,3,9,36,37) Children working on agricultural plantations, including palm oil, coffee, and rubber plantations, collect fallen palm fruitlets and plants, and spray toxic herbicides. (2,4,10,38,39) Children are often recruited by family members to help adult palm oil laborers meet harvest quotas, which sometimes results in children working long hours into the night or dropping out school. (40,41)

Although the National Education Law mandates free education, research indicates that schools impose additional fees on students to cover school activities and educational items. These added expenses may hinder students’ ability to attend school. (2) Refugee children, as well as Indonesian children without proper birth documentation, face a barrier to accessing education because the government requires children to possess a government-sponsored student identification number to sit for exams and obtain a school completion certificate. In 2018, the government launched an online application system to process birth certificates, instead of applying in person, thereby helping Indonesian children obtain birth documentation more quickly so they can attend school. (14,42) Also in 2018, the Ministry of Foreign Affairs and Ministry of Education and Culture built schools near the Indonesia-Malaysia border of Sarawak, and Sabah, Malaysia, to increase education access for children of palm oil migrant laborers. (43)

II. LEGAL FRAMEWORK FOR CHILD LABOR

Indonesia has ratified all key international conventions concerning child labor (Table 3).

Table 3. Ratification of International Conventions on Child Labor

The government has established laws and regulations related to child labor (Table 4). However, gaps exist in Indonesia's legal framework to adequately protect children from the worst forms of child labor, including from being trafficked.

Table 4. Laws and Regulations on Child Labor

Standard	Meets International Standards	Age	Legislation
Minimum Age for Work	Yes	15	Article 69 of the Manpower Act; Law on the Ratification of ILO C. 138 (44,45)

Identification of Hazardous Occupations or Activities Prohibited for Children	Yes		Annex F of Ministerial Decree No. 235: Jobs that Jeopardize the Health, Safety, or Morals of Children (46)
Prohibition of Forced Labor	Yes		Article 74 of the Manpower Act; Articles 1–6 and 17 of the Law on the Eradication of the Criminal Act of Trafficking in Persons; Article 83 of the Law on Child Protection (45,47,48)
Prohibition of Child Trafficking	No		Article 83 of the Law on Child Protection; Articles 1–6 and 17 of the Law on the Eradication of the Criminal Act of Trafficking in Persons (47,48)
Prohibition of Commercial Sexual Exploitation of Children	Yes		Article 74 of the Manpower Act; Articles 81–82 of the Law on Child Protection; Article 297 of the Penal Code; Section 3 of the Law on the Ratification of the Rights of the Child Optional Protocol on the Sale of Children, Child Prostitution, and Child Pornography; Articles 4–12 and 37 of Law on Anti-Pornography (20,45,48-51)
Prohibition of Using Children in Illicit Activities	Yes		Article 74 of the Manpower Act; Articles 67, 78, and 89 of the Law on Child Protection (45,48)
Minimum Age for Voluntary State Military Recruitment	Yes		Article 28 of Law No. 34/2004 on the Indonesian National Armed Forces (52)
Prohibition of Compulsory Recruitment of Children by (State) Military	Yes		Article 28 of Law No. 34/2004 on the Indonesian National Armed Forces (52)
Prohibition of Military Recruitment by Non-state Armed Groups	Yes		Article 3(d) of Law No. 9/2012 on Ratifying the Optional Protocol to the Convention on the Rights of the Child on the Involvement of Children in Armed Conflict (53)
Compulsory Education Age	Yes	15	Article 48 of the Law on Child Protection; Articles 6 and 34 of the Act on the National Education System (48,54)
Free Public Education	Yes		Article 34 of the Act on the National Education System (54)

The government has yet to pass the draft Domestic Workers Protection Bill. This bill outlines the circumstances under which children ages 15 through 17 can perform non-hazardous domestic work, including requiring the parent's permission to execute the employment contract and prohibiting work at night. (20,55-59) Indonesia's prohibitions against child trafficking are insufficient because the Law on the Eradication of the Criminal Act of Trafficking in Persons requires threats, the use of force, or coercion to be established for the crime of child trafficking. (32,47,48)

III. ENFORCEMENT OF LAWS ON CHILD LABOR

The government has established institutional mechanisms for the enforcement of laws and regulations on child labor (Table 5). However, gaps exist within the operations of the Ministry of Manpower (MOM) that may hinder adequate enforcement of their child labor laws.

Indonesia

Table 5. Agencies Responsible for Child Labor Law Enforcement

Organization/Agency	Role
Ministry of Manpower (MOM) Directorate General of Labor Development and Supervision and Directorate of Norms Supervision of Women and Child Workers	Provides information to employers on child labor laws and regulations, and works with law enforcement officials to prosecute child labor violators. (60) Refers children found during inspections to the local Women's Empowerment and Family Planning Body or to the Integrated Service Center for Empowering Women and Children for appropriate social services. In the case of the Directorate of Norms Supervision of Women and Child Workers, receives complaints of child labor by telephone, fax, or email. (14)
National Police, including Women and Children's Service Unit	Conducts inspections and raids; makes arrests in response to crimes, including those related to the worst forms of child labor. (29,61)
Ministry of Women Empowerment and Child Protection (MoWECP)	Coordinates the provision of social services to children, including those involved in child labor. In cooperation with the Ministry of Communications, operates a children's helpline in 20 provinces to receive complaints regarding child protection. (14)

Labor Law Enforcement

In 2018, labor law enforcement agencies in Indonesia took actions to combat child labor (Table 6). However, gaps exist within the operations of the MOM that may hinder adequate labor law enforcement, including an insufficient number of labor inspectors.

Despite increasing its labor inspectorate funding in 2018, the government noted that there are still insufficient funds to cover office infrastructure, transportation, and gasoline for vehicles, which hampered labor inspectors' ability to carry out inspections. (14) Inspectors have the authority to conduct unannounced inspections in the formal sector; however, they are prohibited from inspecting private farms and homes in which the majority of child labor occurs. (3,14) Despite this prohibition, the Ministry of Women Empowerment and Child Protection responds to reports of child labor in the informal sector. (62) In 2018, the MOM conducted 10,528 routine labor inspections. Even though there was a large number of labor inspections in 2018, the MOM and the ILO believe that there are additional unreported child labor violations because of the government's lack of authority to inspect the informal sector. (14) These unreported child labor violations included 91 child labor cases, 80 commercial child sexual exploitation cases, and 92 child prostitution cases, all occurring in the informal sectors. (14,39)

Ministry of Manpower officials disclosed that there are an insufficient number of inspectors to cover the entire country, and the MOM continued to employ and rely on community-based monitors and neighborhood chiefs to report incidences of children engaged in domestic work. (14) The number of labor inspectors is likely insufficient for the size of Indonesia's workforce, which includes approximately 126 million workers. According to the ILO's technical advice of a ratio approaching 1 inspector for every 15,000 workers in less developed economies, Indonesia would employ about 8,407 labor inspectors. (14,63,64) The MOM trained 118 new labor inspectors and investigators on child labor, hazardous child labor, and worst forms of child labor law enforcement. (14)

Criminal Law Enforcement

In 2018, criminal law enforcement agencies in Indonesia took actions to combat child labor (Table 7). However, gaps exist within the operations of the criminal enforcement agencies that may hinder adequate criminal law enforcement, including insufficient training for criminal investigators.

Table 7. Criminal Law Enforcement Efforts Related to Child Labor

Overview of Criminal Law Enforcement	2017	2018
Initial Training for New Criminal Investigators	Yes (2)	Yes (14)

In 2018, the Indonesian National Police investigated 28 child trafficking cases. The National Commission of Indonesian Child Protection reported 329 cases of child sexual exploitation, including 65 cases of human trafficking, 80 cases of commercial sexual exploitation, and 93 cases of child prostitution. (14) Also in 2018, USDOJ provided training on the dangers of online child sexual exploitation, and interview and effective communication skills to more than 500 Indonesian National Police personnel, NGOs, and civic organizations. (43) However, government data on criminal law enforcement efforts related to child labor, including the number of investigations, violations found, prosecutions initiated, and convictions, are not available—the government has a system to aggregate this information, but it has encountered challenges in classifying child labor cases, including developing case tags to accurately represent and aggregate comprehensive child labor data. (14,39) Although criminal law enforcement personnel received training on human trafficking laws that covered children, research found the current child labor-specific regulations to be insufficient. (2)

IV. COORDINATION OF GOVERNMENT EFFORTS ON CHILD LABOR

The government has established mechanisms to coordinate its efforts to address child labor (Table 8). However, gaps exist that hinder the effective coordination of efforts to address child labor, including funding for child labor committees.

Table 8. Key Mechanisms to Coordinate Government Efforts on Child Labor

Coordinating Body	Role & Description
Provincial-Level and District-Level Regional Action Committees	Coordinate and monitor policy and program efforts and develop action plans to eliminate the worst forms of child labor at the local level. (65) Indonesia has provincial-level task forces in all 34 provinces and 192 district-level committees. (66) In 2018, these action committees were active and continued developing, coordinating, and monitoring action plans at the local level. (14)

(66) Provides vocational training and scholarships to school-aged children to reduce susceptibility to human trafficking. (68) In 2018, MoWECP established Community Watch groups (a collaborative effort with local governments, NGOs, community figures, and village stakeholders) in 314 villages in 31 municipalities and 14 provinces to combat human trafficking at the local level. (39)
Provincial and District Task Forces for the Prevention and Handling of Human Trafficking	Coordinate prevention and anti-trafficking efforts at the local level. (68) Commonly chaired by the local Integrated Service Center for Women and Children or the local Office of Social Affairs. Operates in 32 provinces and 191 out of 438 districts. (32,34) In 2018, these Task Forces created sub-task forces, led by the Ministry of Social Affairs (MoSA), to coordinate local meetings. (39)
Sub-Task Force on the Prevention of Child Participation in Trafficking in Persons	Organizes regular coordination meetings, provides technical trainings on human trafficking for government officials, and produces publications on the prevention of trafficking in persons. (14) Chaired by the Ministry of Education and Culture Director for Early Childhood, Non-formal, and Informal Education. (67) In 2018, 80 participants, including education agency officials and monitoring officials for junior and senior high schools and vocational schools, attended a workshop on preventing trafficking in persons. (39)
Indonesian Child Protection Commission (KPAI)	Monitors the implementation of the Child Protection Law and child protection policies and provides recommendations on the child protection framework to the President of Indonesia. (48,69) In 2018, KPAI monitored a total of 329 commercial child exploitation cases, of which 91 were child labor, 80 were commercial sexual exploitation, and 93 were child prostitution. (43)

The National Task Force to Combat Trafficking in Persons notes that some Provincial and District Task Forces lack sufficient funding and fail to incorporate its recommendations into their plans of action to adequately guide efforts to eliminate the trafficking of women and children. (20,35) These recommendations include empowering community activists to organize public awareness campaigns and conduct technical trainings to educate communities in provinces that are vulnerable to human trafficking, integrating and aligning human trafficking programs with other government programs to improve government efforts to combat human trafficking and avoid duplication, supporting cross-sectoral offices to establish the Internet for Children Program, and supporting the Ministry of Social Affairs' (MoSA) and the Ministry of Health's agreement on rehabilitation programs for human trafficking victims. (70)

V. GOVERNMENT POLICIES ON CHILD LABOR

The government has established policies that are consistent with relevant international standards on child labor (Table 9).

Table 9. Key Policies Related to Child Labor

Policy	Description
National Action Plan (NAP) for the Elimination of the Worst Forms of Child Labor (2002–2022)	Provides a policy framework for the elimination of child labor. Specific activities include improving data collection on the worst forms of child labor, increasing awareness-raising and advocacy efforts, and formulating regulations and policies to prohibit the worst forms of child labor. (61,71-73) In 2018, the government distributed NAP materials to businesses, NGOs, and villages in five regions in Indonesia. (14)
National Action Plan on Preventing Trafficking in Persons (2015–2019)	Guides the work of the National Task Force to Combat Trafficking in Persons. Aims to improve health and social rehabilitation services, as well as repatriation and social reintegration services, for human trafficking victims; update anti-human trafficking regulations; and strengthen the investigation of human trafficking cases and the prosecution of perpetrators. (74) Enhances coordination among task force members and between national and international stakeholders. (74) In 2018, agencies working on trafficking in persons issues identified and submitted their existing trafficking in persons databases to the International Organization for Migration, which is working with the government to establish a comprehensive integrated database. (43)
Roadmap Toward a Child Labor-Free Indonesia in 2022 (2014–2022)	Supports implementation of the NAP for the Elimination of the Worst Forms of Child Labor. Aims to mainstream the elimination of the worst forms of child labor into relevant national policies; strengthen coordination between stakeholders at the national, provincial, and district levels; and enhance the capacity of stakeholders to eradicate child labor. (67,75) In 2018, the government assisted 68 companies to implement child labor elimination programs, including reducing child labor through corporate social responsibility funding and campaigning local governments to allocate funding to reduce child labor. (14) The roadmap creates Child Labor-Free Industrial Zones. (39)

VI. SOCIAL PROGRAMS TO ADDRESS CHILD LABOR

In 2018, the government funded and participated in programs that include the goal of eliminating or preventing child labor (Table 10). However, gaps exist in these social programs, including education-related fees for children in school.

Table 10. Key Social Programs to Address Child Labor

Program	Description
USDOL-Funded Projects	USDOL projects aim to build government capacity to address child labor by improving occupational safety and health for young workers, strengthening legal protections and social services delivery for child domestic workers, and improving child labor and forced labor data collection and research methodology. Includes PROMOTE: Decent Work for Domestic Workers to End Child Domestic Labor (2012–2018), a $5 million project implemented by ILO-IPEC; and Building a Generation of Safe and Healthy Workers: Safe and Healthy Youth (2014–2019), an $11.5 million project implemented by ILO with Indonesia as one of the countries. (40,76) Additional information is available on the USDOL website.
Child Trafficking Services†	MoSA and other government agency programs that provides social rehabilitation and shelter services for child victims of trafficking. (77,78) In 2018, MoSA conducted an assessment on participants' eligibility for Program Kesejahteraan Sosial Anak (social cash transfers for disadvantaged children, including victims of violence or exploitation such as trafficking) as well as on rehab and shelter services for them. (39)
Cash Transfer Programs†	Provides conditional cash transfers to help with formal and informal education opportunities and health expenses for vulnerable groups, including street children, abandoned children and infants, children facing criminal charges, children with disabilities, the poorest families, and child laborers who dropped out of school. Includes Smart Indonesia Program (KIP), a card that provides educational grants to all school-aged children whose families have a Family Welfare card or meet eligibility criteria covering both formal and informal education; Child Social Welfare Program (Program Kesejahteraan Sosial Anak), which provides conditional cash transfers to children; and Family Welfare Card (Kartu Keluarga Sejahtera), which provides a bank account and consolidates all financial assistance programs, including children's education and health funds, for low-income families. (14) In 2018, the government provided KIP cards to 19.4 million students, the government allocated $497,000 to 7,000 abandoned children under age 18 through the Child Social Welfare Program, and a total of 10 million families received payments of $132 through the Family Welfare Card program. (14,39)
Education Programs	Block Grants for Schools (Bantuan Operasional Sekolah)† grant program compensates schools for the loss of income from waiving school fees for poor and vulnerable children in primary, junior secondary, and senior high schools. (14,41) Minimum Service Standards of Basic Education Program improves access to quality public education by limiting the distance of primary and junior secondary schools from children's households, specifying minimum teacher-student ratios, and identifying minimum teacher education qualifications. (79,80) Community Learning Centers (CLCs)† provide education for children of palm oil workers. (34,81) Reducing Child Labor to Support the Family Hope Program (PPA-PKH)† provides special education services to prepare children who dropped out of school to work so they can return to school. Aims to reduce child labor among households targeted by PKH. (14) In 2018, there were 51 new CLCs added in Sabah (Kota Kinabalu, Tawau) and Kuching (Serawak). (34,81) Also in 2018, PPA-PKH helped more than 7,000 families in 56 districts/cities and 10 provinces. (14) The government also allocated approximately $3.26 billion for Block Grants for Schools program distributed evenly among primary, junior secondary, and senior high schools for poor and vulnerable children across Indonesia. Lastly, an evaluation was conducted to determine whether the Minimum Service Standards for Basic Education Program was achieving its objectives. (39)

‡ The government had other social programs that may have included the goal of eliminating or preventing child labor. (2)

VII. SUGGESTED GOVERNMENT ACTIONS TO ELIMINATE CHILD LABOR

Based on the reporting above, suggested actions are identified that would advance the elimination of child labor in Indonesia (Table 11).

Table 11. Suggested Government Actions to Eliminate Child Labor

Area	Suggested Action	Year(s) Suggested
Legal Framework	Ensure that threats, the use of force, or coercion does not need to be established for the crime of child trafficking.	2018
Enforcement	Permit labor inspectors to inspect private farms and homes for child labor violations.	2018
	Significantly increase the number of labor inspectors to meet the ILO's technical advice to provide adequate coverage of the workforce.	2010 – 2018
	Institutionalize refresher training for labor inspectors on laws related to child labor, including its worst forms.	2017 – 2018

Indonesia

Area	Suggested Action	Year(s) Suggested
Enforcement	Publish criminal enforcement information, including the number of investigations conducted, violations found, prosecutions initiated, and convictions for crimes relating to child labor, including its worst forms.	2009 – 2018
	Ensure that all criminal law enforcement personnel receive training on child labor regulations.	2017 – 2018
	Ensure that labor inspectorate funding covers infrastructure, transportation, and fuel requirements to enable labor inspectors to carry out inspections.	2018
Coordination	Sufficiently fund Provincial and District Task Forces and require them to incorporate the recommendations of the National Task Force to Combat Trafficking in Persons into their plans of action on the elimination of trafficking of women and children.	2016 – 2018
Social Programs	Publish data on child laborers ages 5 through 14.	2016 – 2018
	Enhance efforts to eliminate barriers to education, including removing school-related fees and ensuring that all children are able to obtain a government-issued student identification number so they can attend school.	2016 – 2018
	Conduct research to determine the types of activities carried out by children, including in the plantation agriculture (palm oil), construction, and street work sectors, to inform social policies and programs.	2014 – 2018

MINIMAL ADVANCEMENT – EFFORTS MADE BUT CONTINUED PRACTICE THAT DELAYED ADVANCEMENT

In 2018, Iraq made a minimal advancement in efforts to eliminate the worst forms of child labor. The Iraqi Kurdistan Parliament endorsed the Iraqi Law to Combat Human Trafficking. The Iraqi Ministry of Labor and Social Affairs increased the number of inspections, shut down several brick factories for violations of child labor laws, and continued its cash transfer program for at-risk children and families. However, despite new initiatives to address child labor, Iraq is receiving an assessment of minimal advancement because it continued a practice that delayed advancement in eliminating the worst forms of child labor. Iraqi and Kurdistan Regional Government (KRG) authorities continued to inappropriately detain and prosecute without legal representation children allegedly affiliated to ISIS—some of whom were victims of forcible recruitment and use—including using abusive interrogation techniques and torture to gain children’s confessions instead of screening these children as potential human trafficking victims. In addition, in 2018, some militia groups affiliated with the Popular Mobilization Forces, including Iranian-backed groups, recruited boys younger than age 18 to fight in Syria and Yemen. While these forces operated under the umbrella of the Popular Mobilization Forces—which was legally incorporated into the Iraqi defense forces in 2016—they generally remained outside of the command and control of the Iraqi government. Children in Iraq engage in other worst forms of child labor, including forced begging and commercial sexual exploitation, each sometimes as a result of human trafficking. Labor law enforcement suffers from an insufficient number of labor inspectors and a lack of funding for inspections, authority to assess penalties, and labor inspector training. There is no child labor policy in the Iraqi Kurdistan Region, and research could not find information on the implementation of the existing policy in Iraq. The government also continues to lack programs that focus on assisting children involved in the worst forms of child labor.

I. PREVALENCE AND SECTORAL DISTRIBUTION OF CHILD LABOR

Children in Iraq engage in the worst forms of child labor, including in forced begging and commercial sexual exploitation, each sometimes as a result of human trafficking. (1-4) Table 1 provides key indicators on children’s work and education in Iraq. Data on some of these indicators are not available from the sources used in this report.

Table 1. Statistics on Children’s Work and Education

Children	Age	Percent
Working (% and population)	5 to 14	5.3 (454,330)
Attending School (%)	5 to 14	75.0
Combining Work and School (%)	7 to 14	4.2
Primary Completion Rate (%)		Unavailable

Primary completion rate was unavailable from UNESCO Institute for Statistics, 2019. (5)

Source for all other data: International Labor Organization’s analysis of statistics from Multiple Indicator Cluster Survey 4, 2011. (6)

Based on a review of available information, Table 2 provides an overview of children’s work by sector and activity.

Table 2. Overview of Children’s Work by Sector and Activity

Sector/Industry	Activity
Agriculture	Farming, including the production of dairy products (3,7,8)
	Herding livestock (8)
	Fishing, activities unknown (3)
Industry	Construction (7,8)
	Working in carpentry workshops (8,9)
	Making bricks (3,10-12)
	Working in factories, including glass, household cleaners, paint, steel, garments and textiles, perfume, electrical materials, and plastic recycling (3,7,8,10,11,13,14)
Services	Street work, including selling goods, pushing carts, cleaning cars, and begging (3,12,14-17)
	Working at gas stations† and auto repair and other shops (3,11,18-20)
	Working in landfills, scavenging and collecting garbage† and scrap metal (11,12,14,15,21,22)
	Domestic work (8)
	Working in hotels, restaurants, and tea houses (3,8,20)
Categorical Worst Forms of Child Labor‡	Use in illicit activities, including drug and weapon trafficking, sometimes as a result of human trafficking (3,4,24)
	Domestic work as a result of human trafficking (25-28)
	Forced begging, sometimes as a result of human trafficking (3,4)
	Commercial sexual exploitation, sometimes as a result of human trafficking (1,2,4,12,26,29,30)
	Recruitment of children by non-state armed groups for use in armed conflict (3,4,31)

† Determined by national law or regulation as hazardous and, as such, relevant to Article 3(d) of ILO C. 182.

‡ Child labor understood as the worst forms of child labor per se under Article 3(a)–(c) of ILO C. 182.

Despite ISIS losing control over the last remaining territory in Iraq in 2017, ISIS continued to carry out deadly attacks in Iraq throughout 2018. (68) ISIS continued to abduct and forcibly recruit and use children in combat and support roles, including as human shields, informants, bomb makers, executioners, and suicide bombers; some of these children were as young as the age of 8 and some were mentally disabled. (4,31)

In 2018, NGOs reported that some PMF-affiliated militias, including Iranian-backed Harakat Hezbollah al-Nujaba (HHN) and Asaib Ahl al-Haq (AAH), recruited boys younger than the age of 18 to fight in Syria and Yemen. Some AAH and Kataib Hizballah (KH) members or brigades recruited children, most commonly out of schools. (4) Some of the forces in the HHN, AAH, and KH militias operate under the umbrella of the Popular Mobilization Forces (PMF), which was legally incorporated into the Iraqi defense forces in 2016, but they generally operate outside of the command and control of the Iraqi government. (3,4,37) There were no reports of child soldiers used within the Iraqi military. (4)

During the reporting period, multiple sources reported the Kurdistan Worker’s Party and People’s Protection Units, operating in the Iraqi Kurdistan Region and Sinjar, continued to recruit and use children. Local NGOs reported that 2018 Yezidi militias in Sinjar, including the pro-KRG Ezidixan Protection Force and Sinjar Command Force, recruited approximately 10 to 20 Yezidi boys. (4)

Throughout the country, some girls were subjected to commercial sexual exploitation through temporary marriages. (25) This practice involves a dowry paid to the girl’s family and an agreement to dissolve the marriage after a predetermined length of time. (38) Syrian girls from refugee camps in the Kurdistan region were sometimes forced into early or temporary marriages with Iraqi or other refugee men; some KRG authorities allegedly ignored, or accepted bribes to ignore such cases, including those in which girls are sold multiple times. (25) NGOs reported in 2018 that women and girls in IDP camps, whose family members have alleged ties to ISIS, continued to endure a complex system of sexual exploitation, sex trafficking, and abuse by armed actors residing in the camps, security and military officials, and camp personnel controlling access to humanitarian assistance and services. Iranian girls were subjected to commercial sexual exploitation in the Kurdistan

Region and Iraqi girls were trafficked to other Arab states in the region and to Europe for commercial sexual exploitation. (4) Child laborers were also exposed to sexual violence and abuse. (12)

In previous years, ISIS sold boys, who they considered too young or too weak to engage in armed conflict, into forced domestic work. (27,28) ISIS kidnapped and trafficked Yezidi children to Turkey for exploitation. (4) Some children in IDP camps who were suspected of having ties to ISIS were blocked from obtaining civil documentation and returning home or were subjected to commercial sexual exploitation. (4,39)

Children faced numerous barriers to accessing education, including displacement, the lack of schools nearby, the use of schools as shelters by internally displaced persons (IDPs), costs of transportation and school supplies, lack of sufficient educational facilities, and IDPs' and refugees' lack of identification documents. (3,7,12,26,40,41) In addition, children with suspected ties to ISIS may not have access to identification documents required for school enrollment. (39) According to UNICEF, over half of the schools in Iraq required repairs and the education of 3 million children had been interrupted. (3) UNICEF also reported that while 92 percent of children enroll in primary schools, only half of children from economically disadvantaged families complete primary school and only a quarter complete secondary education. (42) Additionally, some 50,000 Syrian refugee children do not attend formal school; however, this number is over-inclusive as it also counts children who receive permissible non-formal education. (43) For these refugees, the majority of whom live in the Kurdistan Region, access to education was limited because of security concerns, school-related costs such as transportation and uniforms, and language issues, due to most classes in the Kurdistan Region being taught in Kurdish, which Syrian children do not understand, rather than Arabic. (44)

As of October 2018, 1.86 million people, including about 900,000 children remained internally displaced, while 4.1 million individuals, including over 2 million children, had returned home to newly accessible areas. (45) This makes children vulnerable to child labor and child trafficking and limits the government's ability to address the worst forms of child labor.

II. LEGAL FRAMEWORK FOR CHILD LABOR

Iraq has ratified all key international conventions concerning child labor (Table 3).

Table 3. Ratification of International Conventions on Child Labor

The government has established laws and regulations related to child labor (Table 4). However, gaps exist in Iraq's legal framework to adequately protect children from child labor, including the prohibition of child trafficking.

	Kurdistan Region	Yes		Article 10 of the Kurdistan Regional Government Ministry of Education Law (54)

* No conscription (51)

‡ Age calculated based on available information

Article 117 of the Constitution of Iraq recognizes Kurdistan, which comprises the provinces of Dohuk, Erbil, Sulaimaniya, and Halabja, as a federal region. (55-58) Article 121 grants the Kurdistan region the right to exercise legislative and executive powers. (55) The Iraqi Kurdistan Parliament must endorse any laws passed by the Government of Iraq after 1991 for such laws to enter into force in the Iraqi Kurdistan Region. (56-58)

In Iraq, Article 1 of the Law to Combat Human Trafficking requires force or coercion to be present as an element of the crime of child trafficking, which is inconsistent with international standards, including Article 3 of the Palermo Protocol. (49) In July 2018, the Iraqi Kurdistan Parliament endorsed the Iraqi Law to Combat Human Trafficking, which means the operative trafficking standard there is also not in compliance with international standards. (59)

In Iraq, the provisions of the 2015 Labor Law protecting children from hazardous work do not apply to children ages 15 to 17 working in family businesses under the authority of family members. (46)

MINIMAL ADVANCEMENT – EFFORTS MADE BUT CONTINUED PRACTICE THAT DELAYED ADVANCEMENT

Moreover, under the Iraqi Education Law and under the Law on Compulsory Education, children are required to attend primary school for only 6 years, which is typically up to age 12. (52,53,60) This standard makes children ages 12 to 15 particularly vulnerable to child labor, because they are not required to be in school, yet they are not legally permitted to work.

III. ENFORCEMENT OF LAWS ON CHILD LABOR

The government has established institutional mechanisms for the enforcement of laws and regulations on child labor (Table 5). However, gaps exist within the authority of the Ministry of Labor and Social Affairs (MOLSA) that may hinder adequate enforcement of their child labor laws.

Table 5. Agencies Responsible for Child Labor Law Enforcement

Organization/Agency	Related Entity	Role
Ministry of Labor and Social Affairs (MOLSA)	Iraq	Enforces child labor laws and regulations through its Child Labor Unit. Conducts research on child labor through its Childhood Welfare Authority. Receives complaints of child labor cases. (3)
Kurdistan Regional Government's Ministry of Labor and Social Affairs (KMOLSA)	Kurdistan Region	Enforces child labor laws and regulations in the Iraqi Kurdistan Region. Police units of the Kurdistan Regional Government's Ministry of Interior (KMOI) play a supporting role in the daily activities of the Ministry. (3)
Ministry of Interior	Iraq	Enforces criminal laws on the worst forms of child labor. Collaborates with MOLSA, the Iraqi Industries Federation, and the Confederation of Trade Unions to conduct inspection campaigns. (3) Maintains a hotline for victims of human trafficking that is routed directly to the Ministry's Anti-Trafficking Department. (3)
Kurdistan Regional Government's Ministry of Interior (KMOI)	Kurdistan Region	Investigates cases of commercial sexual exploitation and human trafficking. (3) In 2018, KRG established a Counter Trafficking Directorate within KMOI. (59)

Labor Law Enforcement

In 2018, labor law enforcement agencies in Iraq took actions to combat child labor (Table 6). However, gaps exist within the authority and operations of MOLSA that may hinder adequate labor law enforcement, including an insufficient number of labor inspectors, and lack of funding for inspections, inspectors' lack of authority to assess penalties, and insufficient labor inspector training.

Iraq

In 2018, although the exact numbers are unknown, MOLSA inspectors increased the number of inspections and shut down several brick factories in which children had been engaged in child labor. (3) Although the number of labor inspectors in Iraq during the reporting period is unknown, in 2018 the number of labor inspectors was likely insufficient for the size of Iraq’s workforce, which includes over 8.9 million workers. (61) According to the ILO’s technical advice of a ratio approaching 1 inspector for every 15,000 workers in industrializing economies, Iraq would employ about 593 labor inspectors. (62,63)

In 2018, the KRG Ministry of Labor and Social Affairs (KMOLSA) did not provide child labor training to inspectors. However, the KMOLSA and the KRG Ministry of the Interior responded to referrals of child labor. (3) KMOLSA employed 21 labor inspectors who carried out 8,872 inspections. (64) This is a high number of inspections conducted by each inspector, and it is unknown whether this high number affected the quality of such inspections. Nevertheless, inspectors receive a small budget for transportation to worksites. The monthly budget for each of the 3 provincial directorates is about 1 million dinars (approximately $840). (64) When inspectors identify child labor violations, they can issue warnings and instructions, or refer cases to court. In 2018, KMOLSA inspectors referred 82 cases to the court. (64)

Criminal Law Enforcement

In 2018, criminal law enforcement agencies in Iraq took actions to combat child labor (Table 7). However, gaps exist within the operations of the criminal enforcement agencies that may hinder adequate criminal law enforcement, including training for criminal investigators and prosecution planning.

Table 7. Criminal Law Enforcement Efforts Related to Child Labor

Overview of Criminal Law Enforcement	2017	2018
Initial Training for New Criminal Investigators	No (7)	Unknown (3)
Training on New Laws Related to the Worst Forms of Child Labor	No (7)	N/A

Reciprocal Referral Mechanism Exists Between Criminal Authorities and Social Services	Yes (7)	Yes (3)

In 2018, Iraqi and KRG authorities continued to inappropriately detain and prosecute without legal representation children allegedly affiliated to ISIS—some of whom were victims of forcible recruitment and use—and used abusive interrogation techniques and torture to gain children’s confessions; the government did not screen these children as potential human trafficking victims. (4,32-36)

During the reporting period, the Ministry of Interior held several training workshops on countering human trafficking in which officials of the Ministry of Justice and MOLSA participated. (59) However, the KRG did not provide training for criminal investigators. (3)

In 2018, the Government of Iraq convicted 53 individuals of human trafficking, although it is unknown how many of these cases involved children. (59)

KRG officials stated that courts can refer cases of the worst forms of child labor to the KRG Ministry of Labor and Social Affairs. (13) The KRG Ministry of Interior investigated 85 cases of human trafficking, at least 2 of which involved children who were forced to beg. (3,59) KRG also convicted 7 individuals of human trafficking but it is not known whether any of the cases involved children. (59) Despite these efforts, the government did not investigate or hold anyone criminally accountable for continued allegations of unlawful recruitment and use of child soldiers. Furthermore, the government also failed to investigate and hold criminally accountable military and security personnel for credible allegations of the sexual exploitation of girls in IDP camps. (4) An NGO reported in 2018 that police occasionally detained children engaged in street begging and kept them in custody before releasing them; police did not screen these children for trafficking nor refer them to appropriate protection services. (4)

Between 2014 and 2018, KRG officials rescued approximately 1,600 children who had been kidnapped, sold multiple times, and subjected to commercial sexual exploitation. (3) Some KRG authorities allegedly ignored, or may have accepted bribes to ignore, such cases, including those in which girls are sold multiple times. (4)

Some child victims of human trafficking and forced labor were held legally responsible for acts committed while being trafficked, particularly immigration violations. (25,58,65) Lack of sufficient coordination among judicial authorities and security forces across governorates led to re-arrests of some children previously cleared of charges related to ISIS. (66,67)

IV. COORDINATION OF GOVERNMENT EFFORTS ON CHILD LABOR

The government has established mechanisms to coordinate its efforts to address child labor (Table 8). However, gaps exist that hinder the effective coordination of efforts to address child labor, including coordination among agencies to effectively process cases of children suspected of having ties with ISIS.

Table 8. Key Mechanisms to Coordinate Government Efforts on Child Labor

Coordinating Body	Related Entity	Role & Description
Inter-ministerial Committee on Child Labor	Iraq	Coordinates overall government efforts to combat child labor, research policies regarding child labor, and design and manage projects. Members included representatives from MOLSA and four other ministries. (18) In 2018, the Committee worked with UNICEF and other UN agencies on the development of an action plan to address the recruitment and use of children in armed conflict, although the action plan was not finalized at the end of the reporting period. (3)
Central Committee to Combat Trafficking in Persons	Iraq	Oversees the implementation of the Law to Combat Human Trafficking and serves as the national coordinating body on trafficking in persons. Led by the Ministry of Interior, and includes representatives from five ministries, the KRG Ministry of Interior, and two other state entities. (13,18) However, due to lack of sufficient coordination between judicial authorities and security forces in 2018, some children, who were suspected of affiliation with ISIS, cleared of allegations, and released from custody, were sometimes re-arrested for the same allegations. (32,66) In 2018, the Committee continued to oversee the implementation of the Law to Combat Human Trafficking. (3)
KRG High Committee on Human Trafficking	Kurdistan Region	Established in 2016, members include representatives of the KRG Ministry of Labor and Social Affairs and KRG Ministry of the Interior. In 2018, the High Committee supported the endorsement of the Iraqi Law to Combat Human Trafficking by the Iraqi Kurdistan Parliament. (3)
KRG Council of Ministers	Kurdistan Region	KRG Ministry of Interior and KRG Ministry of Labor and Social Affairs coordinate on child labor in the Iraqi Kurdistan Region through the KRG Council of Ministers. In 2018, the two KRG ministries coordinated on child labor issues. (3)

The KRG High Commission on Child Welfare has been inactive for several years and no longer plays a role in coordination efforts; instead, the KRG Council of Ministers provides the auspices under which KRG agencies coordinate on child labor issues. (3)

V. GOVERNMENT POLICIES ON CHILD LABOR

The government has established policies that are consistent with relevant international standards on child labor (Table 9). However, policy gaps exist that hinder efforts to address child labor, including coverage of all worst forms of child labor.

Table 9. Key Policies Related to Child Labor

Policy	Related Entity	Description
Child Protection Policy (2017–2022)	Iraq	Provides a holistic approach to addressing children’s needs, including ameliorating the child labor situation in the country through prevention, protection, and rehabilitation programs such as a poverty alleviation initiative, and educational and mental health services. Includes a component to provide rehabilitation and reintegration activities for children previously engaged in armed conflict and children who experienced trauma during the period of ISIS occupation. (3) Research was unable to determine whether activities were undertaken to implement this policy during the reporting period.

Based on available information, there were no child labor policies in the Kurdistan Region. (3)

VI. SOCIAL PROGRAMS TO ADDRESS CHILD LABOR

In 2018, the government funded and participated in programs that include the goal of eliminating child labor (Table 10). However, gaps exist in these social programs, including services to address the full scope of the problem.

Table 10. Key Social Programs to Address Child Labor

Program	Related Entity	Description
Informal Education†	Iraq	Government-supported informal education systems, including evening school programs and the fast education mode that encourages children ages 12 to 18 who have dropped out of school to continue their education. (3) Research was unable to determine what steps were taken in 2018 to implement this program.
Conditional Subsidies Program†	Iraq	Provides assistance to low-income families for children to stay in school and out of the workforce. In 2018, MOLSA continued to provide cash assistance to low-income families to send their children to school. (3)
Shelters for Human Trafficking Victims†	Iraq	MOLSA-operated shelter in Baghdad for human trafficking victims, including children involved in the worst forms of child labor; other facilities are in Basrah, Kirkuk, and Ninewa provinces. (3) Research was unable to determine what steps were taken in 2018 to implement this program.

Neither the Government of Iraq nor the KRG reported efforts to provide protection services to demobilized child soldiers of ISIS or the PMF, thus failing to prevent re-victimization or re-recruitment of these children into armed groups. (4) Likewise, research found no evidence of specific active programs to support children engaged in commercial sexual exploitation.

VII. SUGGESTED GOVERNMENT ACTIONS TO ELIMINATE CHILD LABOR

Based on the reporting above, suggested actions are identified that would advance the elimination of child labor in Iraq (Table 11).

Table 11. Suggested Government Actions to Eliminate Child Labor

Area	Suggested Action	Year(s) Suggested
Legal Framework	Ensure that the laws comprehensively prohibit child trafficking in all parts of Iraq, including the Kurdistan Region, and do not require force or coercion for its application, in accordance with international standards.	2015 – 2018
	Ensure that hazardous work protections apply to all children, including children working in family businesses under the authority of family members.	2016 – 2018
	Ensure that the law in Iraq criminally prohibits the use of children in illicit activities, including in the production and trafficking of drugs.	2015 – 2018
	Ensure that the law criminally prohibits the recruitment of children under age 18 by non-state armed groups.	2013 – 2018
	Increase the age of compulsory schooling in Iraq to at least age 15, the minimum age for work.	2009 – 2018

Area	Suggested Action	Year(s) Suggested
Enforcement	Ensure that children under age 18 cannot join armed groups affiliated with the Popular Mobilization Forces to engage in combat.	2016 – 2018
	Publish law enforcement information, such as the funding of the labor inspectorate, number of inspectors, inspections, and violations.	2011 – 2018
	Authorize the labor inspectorate to assess penalties.	2017 – 2018
	Ensure that labor inspectors and criminal investigators receive training courses on child labor.	2016 – 2018
	Increase the number of labor inspectors to meet the ILO technical advice and ensure adequate funding to adequately enforce legal protections against child labor, including its worst forms.	2011 – 2018
	Determine whether the inspection ratio for each labor inspector is appropriate to ensure the quality and scope of inspections.	2018
	Publish information on criminal law enforcement on the worst forms of child labor in Iraq and the Iraqi Kurdistan Region.	2013 – 2018
Enforcement	Ensure that child victims of human trafficking are not prosecuted; that children are not arrested, detained, or denied services solely on the basis of their family members' perceived ties to ISIS; and that children suspected of ISIS affiliation are not subjected to torture.	2015 – 2018
Coordination	Through enhanced coordination among government agencies, ensure that children previously cleared of charges related to armed conflict are not at risk of re-arrest and re-prosecution.	2017 – 2018
Government Policies	Implement the Child Protection Policy in Iraq, and adopt a child labor policy in the Iraqi Kurdistan Region.	2018
Social Programs	Ensure that children are discouraged from enlisting in armed groups and receiving military training.	2015 – 2018
	Ensure that universal access to education is consistent with international standards, including for refugee and internally displaced children.	2013 – 2018
	Implement programs to address child labor in relevant sectors in Iraq, such as commercial sexual exploitation, informal education programs and shelters for human trafficking victims, and demobilize and reintegrate children engaged in armed groups.	2009 – 2018

In 2018, Jamaica made a moderate advancement in efforts to eliminate the worst forms of child labor.

The government published the results of its Jamaica National Youth Activity Survey and increased its number of labor inspectors to meet recommended international enforcement standards. Jamaica also amended a key piece of legislation related to human trafficking and established the U.S.-Jamaica Child Protection Compact Partnership to combat child trafficking.

However, children engage in the worst forms of child labor, including in commercial sexual exploitation, sometimes as a result of human trafficking, and illicit activities. Children also perform dangerous tasks in agriculture, fishing, construction, domestic work, and in wholesale and retail. Jamaica's labor inspectorate lacks the authority to assess penalties for labor law violations and although the government has laws prohibiting the use of children in some illicit activities, it does not provide higher penalties for using, procuring, or offering children for the production and distribution of drugs compared to those for using adults.

I. PREVALENCE AND SECTORAL DISTRIBUTION OF CHILD LABOR

Children in Jamaica engage in the worst forms of child labor, including in commercial sexual exploitation, sometimes as a result of human trafficking, and illicit activities. (1,2) Children also perform dangerous tasks in agriculture, fishing, construction, domestic work, and in wholesale and retail. (3) Table 1 provides key indicators on children's work and education in Jamaica. Data on some of these indicators are not available from the sources used in this report.

Table 1. Statistics on Children's Work and Education

Children	Age	Percent
Working (% and population)	5 to 14	6.2 (30,111)
Attending School (%)	5 to 14	98.9
Combining Work and School (%)	7 to 14	7.2
Primary Completion Rate (%)		Unavailable

Based on a review of available information, Table 2 provides an overview of children's work by sector and activity.

Table 2. Overview of Children's Work by Sector and Activity

Sector/Industry	Activity
Agriculture	Farming, activities unknown (1,3,4)
	Fishing, activities unknown (1,3,5)
Services	Garbage scavenging, collecting scrap metal (1,6)
	Working in gardens, shops, and markets (1,4,5,7,8)
	Domestic work (1,4,6,8-12)
	Street work, including peddling goods and services, begging,† and vending (1,4,12,13)
Categorical Worst Forms of Child Labor‡	Commercial sexual exploitation, sometimes as a result of human trafficking (2,4,12,14)
	Forced labor in domestic work(2,4,9)
	Use in illicit activities, including executing financial scams and serving as drugs and guns couriers (1,2,4,6,8,12,14-17)

† Determined by national law or regulation as hazardous and, as such, relevant to Article 3(d) of ILO C. 182.

‡ Child labor understood as the worst forms of child labor per se under Article 3(a)–(c) of ILO C. 182.

Jamaica

MODERATE ADVANCEMENT

In 2018, the Statistical Institute of Jamaica and the ILO released the results of the Jamaica National Youth Activity Survey, which estimated that 53,274 children are engaged in child labor in Jamaica, with 48.9 percent engaged in hazardous work. Children perform hazardous work primarily in the domestic sector, in agriculture and fishing, in the wholesale and repair sectors, and in construction. (18) Children in rural areas are more likely to work, work more hours, and engage in hazardous work than children in urban areas. (3,18)

Jamaica is a destination and source country for commercial sexual exploitation of children. Jamaican children are trafficked for commercial sexual exploitation and forced labor to countries including the United States, the United Kingdom, and Canada. (9) Sources indicate that children, sometimes at the behest of parents or criminal leaders referred to as “dons,” are forced into commercial sexual exploitation. (1) Young girls, immigrant children, lesbian/gay/bisexual/transgender/intersex youth, children from poor families, and children from rural areas are particularly vulnerable to human trafficking and child sexual exploitation. (2,4)

Children also continue to be recruited by criminal organizations to engage in illicit activities, such as gang violence, guns and drug smuggling, and financial fraud, including lottery scamming. (1,2,4,14,17) Child domestic workers may be subjected to domestic servitude, and some children are subjected to forced begging. Many children are reported missing in Jamaica, some of whom may be subjected to forced labor. (2,4,19)

Although the law mandates free public education and school attendance rates are high, the cost for transportation, food, books, and clothing creates barriers to education for some children. (1)

II. LEGAL FRAMEWORK FOR CHILD LABOR

Jamaica has ratified all key international conventions concerning child labor (Table 3).

Table 3. Ratification of International Conventions on Child Labor

Convention	Ratification
 ILO C. 138, Minimum Age	✓
ILO C. 182, Worst Forms of Child Labor	✓
 UN CRC	✓
UN CRC Optional Protocol on Armed Conflict	✓
UN CRC Optional Protocol on the Sale of Children, Child Prostitution and Child Pornography	✓
 Palermo Protocol on Trafficking in Persons	✓

The government has established laws and regulations related to child labor (Table 4). However, gaps exist in Jamaica’s legal framework to adequately protect children from the worst forms of child labor, including the prohibition of using children for the production and distribution of drugs.

Table 4. Laws and Regulations on Child Labor

Standard	Meets International Standards	Age	Legislation
Minimum Age for Work	Yes	15	Article 34(1) of the Child Care and Protection Act (20)
Minimum Age for Hazardous Work	Yes	18	Article 34(3) of the Child Care and Protection Act (20)
Identification of Hazardous Occupations or Activities Prohibited for Children	Yes		Articles 34(3)(b) and 41 of the Child Care and Protection Act of 2004; Section 55 of the Factories Act: Docks (Safety, Health and Welfare) Regulations; Section 18 of the Mining Act; Section 49 of the Factories Act: Building Operations and Works of Engineering Construction Regulations (20-23)

Standard	Meets International Standards	Age	Legislation
Prohibition of Forced Labor	Yes		Section 4 of the Trafficking in Persons (Prevention, Suppression and Punishment) Act; Section 10 of the Child Care and Protection Act (20,24)
Prohibition of Child Trafficking	Yes		Section 4 of the Trafficking in Persons (Prevention, Suppression and Punishment) Act; Section 10 of the Child Care and Protection Act (20,24)
Prohibition of Commercial Sexual Exploitation of Children	Yes		Section 4 of the Trafficking in Persons (Prevention, Suppression and Punishment) Act; Section 3 of the Child Pornography (Prevention) Act; Section 40 of the Sexual Offences Act (24-26)
Prohibition of Using Children in Illicit Activities	No		Section 4 of the Criminal Justice (Suppression of Criminal Organizations) Act (27)
Minimum Age for Voluntary State Military Recruitment	Yes	18	Section 18(2) of the Defence Act (28)
Prohibition of Compulsory Recruitment of Children by (State) Military	N/A*
Prohibition of Military Recruitment by Non-state Armed Groups	No
Compulsory Education Age	Yes	16	Section 28 of the Child Care and Protection Act (20)
Free Public Education	Yes		Section 13(k) of the Jamaican Charter of Fundamental Rights and Freedoms (29)

* No conscription (24)

In 2018, the government amended the Trafficking in Persons (Prevention, Suppression and Punishment) Act to allow human trafficking victims to pursue restitution in civil court. (2,4,30,31) The Jamaican government also initiated the process to amend the Child Care and Protection Act (CCPA) to increase the potential penalty of child trafficking from 10 to 20 years imprisonment, and to require that human trafficking cases be tried in Circuit Court. However, the planned revision of the Act would still allow for the payment of a fine in lieu of jail time. (2,4)

A Joint Select Committee convened in 2018 to consider other amendments to the CCPA and agreed to ban child labor in nightclubs, massage parlors, casinos/gaming areas and other places in which alcohol or mood-altering substances are served or likely used. The recommended amendment will be further debated in 2019. (4) The government continued to debate the Occupational Safety and Health Bill which was referred to a Joint Select Committee in November of 2018 but still has not been passed. (4) Regulations associated with the bill, if passed, will specify light work activities permitted for children ages 13 and 14. (1,4,32)

Still, Jamaican laws do not specifically include higher penalties for perpetrators who use, procure, or offer a child for the production and distribution of drugs. (20,27,33) Also, as the minimum age for work is lower than the compulsory education age, children may be encouraged to leave school before the completion of compulsory education.

III. ENFORCEMENT OF LAWS ON CHILD LABOR

The government has established institutional mechanisms for the enforcement of laws and regulations on child labor (Table 5). However, gaps exist within the operations of the Ministry of Labor and Social Security (MLSS) that may hinder adequate enforcement of child labor laws.

MODERATE ADVANCEMENT

Table 5. Agencies Responsible for Child Labor Law Enforcement

Organization/Agency	Role
Ministry of Labor and Social Security (MLSS)	Enforces and administers child labor laws in the formal sectors of the economy. The Child Labor Unit within MLSS coordinates and shares information with other agencies to address child labor issues. (34)
Child Protection and Family Services Agency (CPFSA)	Monitors and investigates suspected child labor violations and oversees efforts to address child labor. Housed under the Ministry of Education, Youth, and Information. (1,32,34) Receives complaints of child abuse, child labor, child trafficking, and commercial sexual exploitation of children through a hotline. Refers suspected cases of child abuse to law enforcement. (1,34)
Office of the Children's Advocate	Independently investigates reports of child abuse; partners with other agencies, including the CPFSA and police, to promote protection of children and address child labor. (34)
Jamaica Constabulary Force (JCF)	Enforces criminal laws, including those related to the worst forms of child labor. Investigates, through the Anti-Trafficking in Persons Unit, cases of child trafficking and commercial sexual exploitation. (34) Investigates, through the Center for the Investigation of Sexual Offenses and Child Abuse, cases of child and sexual offenses, and educates the public about sexual offenses against children. (1,35)
Office of the Director of Public Prosecutions	Prosecutes cases involving the worst forms of child labor. Protects and promotes human rights for all citizens. (36)
Office of the National Rapporteur on Trafficking in Persons	Monitors government efforts in protecting human trafficking victims, prosecuting cases, and implementing preventative measures. (4)
Ministry of Justice Victim Services Division	Provides emotional support, crisis management, and special intervention projects for children and adults. (4) Assists child victims of crime through the Children in Court Program, which offers victims access to social workers and counselors. (37)

Labor Law Enforcement

In 2018, labor law enforcement agencies in Jamaica took actions to combat child labor (Table 6). However, gaps exist within the authority of the MLSS that may hinder adequate labor law enforcement, including penalty assessment authorization.

Table 6. Labor Law Enforcement Efforts Related to Child Labor

Overview of Labor Law Enforcement	2017	2018

In 2018, Jamaica increased the MLSS budget by 12 percent compared to 2017. The Ministry also retrained a significant portion of its existing labor inspectorate staff to increase the number of labor inspectors from 13 to 150, bringing the Labor Inspectorate in line with the ILO's technical advice for the ratio of inspectors to the size of the country's workforce. (4,39) The MLSS reported in 2018 that it had sufficient resources for facilities, transportation, fuel, and other necessities. (4) In July 2018, the Jamaican Labor Inspectorate took part in an ILO workshop to instruct trainers on Labor Inspection, Child Labor, and Occupational Safety and Health. (40) In 2018, one child was removed from labor as a result of labor inspections. (4)

However, inspectors still do not have the authority to assess penalties, and only 90 of the 150 inspectors received training on child labor. Furthermore, ongoing refresher training, though available, is not required unless an administrative order or policy directive is issued. (4)

Child labor in Jamaica is mostly found in the informal sector; however, labor inspectors conduct inspections primarily in the formal sector, such as factories, building sites, docks, and ships. In 2018, there were no inspections in the informal sector, such as in rural areas, on family farms, or in homes. (1,4,6) Despite the presence of domestic child labor in Jamaica, inspectors are not allowed to enter and inspect private residences. (4)

Criminal Law Enforcement

In 2018, criminal law enforcement agencies in Jamaica took actions to combat child labor (Table 7). However, gaps exist within the operations of the criminal enforcement agencies that may hinder adequate criminal law enforcement, including allocating human resources.

Table 7. Criminal Law Enforcement Efforts Related to Child Labor

Overview of Criminal Law Enforcement	2017	2018
Initial Training for New Criminal Investigators	Yes (1)	Unknown
Training on New Laws Related to the Worst Forms of Child Labor	N/A (1)	Unknown

Reciprocal Referral Mechanism Exists Between Criminal Authorities and Social Services	Yes (1)	Unknown

In 2018, the Jamaican government increased the Ministry of National Security’s budget by 9 percent compared to 2017. (4) Jamaica undertook several efforts to increase awareness of human trafficking, including joining the Blue Heart Campaign against Human Trafficking, a UN international awareness-raising initiative. In addition to identifying five cases of child sexual exploitation, the government also convicted at least two individuals involved in cases of child trafficking and commercial sexual exploitation of a child. (2)

During the reporting period, the MLSS published the “Standard Operating Procedures for Labour Officers, Inspectors (OSH and NIS), Investigators, and Social Workers,” which provides instructions to government workers when they encounter cases of human trafficking. (2) However, research indicates that the conviction rates for child labor crimes are very low in relation to the prevalence of these crimes, and cases take a long time to prosecute. Furthermore, bureaucratic processes inhibit the adequateness of the Counter-terrorism and Organized Crime Investigation Branch Anti-Trafficking Unit in investigating and prosecuting human trafficking cases. (4) Sources also indicate that prosecutors need additional training on the application of trafficking in persons laws for adequate prosecution of cases. (41)

IV. COORDINATION OF GOVERNMENT EFFORTS ON CHILD LABOR

The government has established mechanisms to coordinate its efforts to address child labor (Table 8). However, gaps exist that hinder the effective coordination of efforts to address child labor, including clarity of institutional mandates and coordination among agencies.

MODERATE ADVANCEMENT

Table 8. Key Mechanisms to Coordinate Government Efforts on Child Labor

Coordinating Body	Role & Description
MLSS Program for the Elimination of Child Labor	Coordinates the government's child labor policies and programs and identifies gaps in legislation across ministries. Collaborates with other ministries, such as the Ministry of Education, Youth, and Information, (CPFSA), the Ministry of Justice's National Task Force Against Trafficking in Persons (NATFATIP), and the Ministry of National Security, to address gaps in legislation. (42) Research was unable to identify whether this coordinating mechanism was functioning during the reporting period.
National Task Force Against Trafficking in Persons (NATFATIP)	Facilitates information exchanges between government agencies and external stakeholders and creates momentum for counter-trafficking efforts. Led by the Ministry of Justice, includes ministries and agencies across the government. Oversees implementation of the country's National Action Plan to Combat Human Trafficking. (6) Meets regularly with JCF, the Director of Public Prosecutions, and relevant ministries. (6,34) In 2018, NATFATIP, in collaboration with the U.S. Embassy in Jamaica, hosted a public forum for civil servants, academics, and law enforcement officials to discuss human trafficking trends and current investigations. (2)

Although the Child Protection and Family Services Agency has assumed a coordinating function between various agencies charged with protecting children, the organization is not mandated or resourced to play this role. As such, Jamaica lacks an effective agency to coordinate between child labor, human trafficking, and other child-related issues. (4)

V. GOVERNMENT POLICIES ON CHILD LABOR

The government has established policies related to child labor (Table 9). However, policy gaps exist that hinder efforts to address child labor, including the need for updated action plans in relevant policies.

Table 9. Key Policies Related to Child Labor

Policy	Description
National Action Plan to Combat Human Trafficking (2015–2018)	Identifies objectives, actions, and responsible agencies to combat trafficking in persons, including commercial sexual exploitation of children and forced child labor, through prevention, protection, and prosecution. (17) The government's National Action Plan to Combat Human Trafficking (2015–2018) is out of date and there do not appear to be any plans to update or replace it. No substantive actions to execute policies under this plan were observed during the reporting period. (4)

The government indicated that it is still implementing its out-of-date National Action Plan on Child Labor 2015–2108 plan. The government is currently drafting a new Action Plan that it intends to release in 2019. (4,43) Child labor prevention and elimination strategies are still not integrated into the Compulsory Education Policy. (6,44)

VI. SOCIAL PROGRAMS TO ADDRESS CHILD LABOR

In 2018, the government funded and participated in programs that include the goal of eliminating or preventing child labor (Table 10). However, gaps exist in these social programs, including adequacy of programs to address the full scope of the problem.

Table 10. Key Social Programs to Address Child Labor

Program	Description
Program for Advancement through Health and Education (PATH)†	$35 million, Government of Jamaica and World Bank-funded, conditional cash transfer program that helps reduce child labor by requiring participants to attend school at least 85 percent of the academic days in a month. (45-47) The government increased funding for its PATH program in 2018, doubling the budget for its Rural Transportation Program and expanding it to all 12 parishes, thus providing school transportation to a total of 7,500 rural children. (4)
Citizen Security and Justice Program (CSJP)†	Cooperative crime and violence prevention initiative between the Government of Jamaica, the Inter-American Development Bank, the Department of Foreign Affairs, Trade and Development of Canada, and the Department for International Development of the United Kingdom of Great Britain and Northern Ireland. Provides services to 50 vulnerable communities in 8 different parishes, and includes the goal of preventing gangs, criminals, and other actors from recruiting children. (4) In 2018, the government increased funding for the CSJP for the 2018–2019 fiscal year by approximately 10 percent compared to 2017–2018. (4)

Program	Description
USDOL-Funded Projects	USDOL projects that aim to eliminate child labor through technical assistance and research. These projects include: Global Research on Child Labor Measurement and Policy Development (MAP), a research project implemented by the ILO in 10 countries to increase the knowledge base on child labor by collecting new data, analyzing existing data, and building capacity of the government to conduct research in this area; and Country Level Engagement and Assistance to Reduce Child Labor II (CLEAR II), a $7 million project implemented by Winrock International and Lawyers without Borders in 6 countries aimed at reducing child labor through improved legislation, monitoring and enforcement, and national plan implementation. (48,49) Through the CLEAR II project, the government continued to review and finalize regulations pertaining to child labor, including light work and hazardous works lists, under the Occupational Safety and Health Bill. The project also provided technical assistance to the government for the development of a National Action Plan on Child Labor. (4,40) As part of the MAP project, Jamaica officially launched its National Child Labor Survey. (48) Additional information is available on the USDOL website.
U.S.-Jamaica Child Protection Compact (CPC) Partnership	Jointly-developed, 4-year plan partially funded by the U.S. government to enhance the efforts of the Jamaican government to combat child trafficking. Finalized in 2018, Jamaica committed to providing staff and resources to fulfill the project's objectives. (2)

‡ The government had other social programs that may have included the goal of eliminating or preventing child labor. (50-52)

Although Jamaica funds education-related social programs, current resources are insufficient and social programs do not fully address the scope and magnitude of the problem, including the worst forms of child labor. (4) Research found no evidence of programs targeting children working in agriculture, street work, commercial sexual exploitation, and other worst forms of child labor.

VII. SUGGESTED GOVERNMENT ACTIONS TO ELIMINATE CHILD LABOR

Based on the reporting above, suggested actions are identified that would advance the elimination of child labor in Jamaica (Table 11).

Table 11. Suggested Government Actions to Eliminate Child Labor

Area	Suggested Action	Year(s) Suggested
Legal Framework	Ensure that legislation includes higher penalties for the use of children for the production and distribution of drugs.	2009 – 2018
	Raise the minimum working age of 15 to conform with the compulsory education age of 18.	2018
	Pass legislation that will determine the specific light work activities and hours permissible for children ages 13 and 14 to facilitate enforcement.	2014 – 2018
	Ensure that the law criminally prohibits the recruitment of children under age 18 by non-state armed groups.	2016 – 2018
Enforcement	Authorize the labor inspectorate to assess penalties.	2014 – 2018
	Ensure that yearly refresher training is mandatory for all labor inspectors.	2018
	Collect and publish complete data on labor and criminal law enforcement efforts.	2018
	Ensure that labor inspections are conducted not only in the formal sector, such as factories, building sites, docks, and ships, but also in the informal sector in urban and rural communities.	2014 – 2018
	Provide sufficient training for prosecutors to address the worst forms of child labor, such as child trafficking.	2018
	Address bureaucratic barriers to effective investigation and prosecution of human trafficking cases, and ensure these cases are prosecuted in a timely manner.	2018
Government Policies	Reinstate and approve the National Action Plan on Child Labor and update or replace the National Action Plan on Human Trafficking	2016 – 2018
	Integrate child labor elimination and prevention strategies into the Compulsory Education Policy.	2014 – 2018
Coordination	Ensure that the Child Protection and Family Services Agency and any other relevant agency or coordinating body has the authority and resources necessary to effectively coordinate child labor policies.	2018
	Ensure that the Ministry of Labor and Social Security is implementing its Program for the Elimination of Child Labor.	2018

Area	Suggested Action	Year(s) Suggested
Social Programs	Ensure that school costs, such as uniforms, books, and transportation, do not diminish access to free public education.	2017 – 2018
	Expand programs to assist child laborers who are involved in street work, commercial sexual exploitation, agricultural work, and other worst forms of child labor.	2013 – 2018

In 2018, Jordan made a moderate advancement in efforts to eliminate the worst forms of child labor. The government increased the number of labor inspections for the second consecutive year and enrolled over 130,000 Syrian refugee children in schools. In addition, the government continued to provide shelter, educational, and financial services to children engaged in child labor, including in the city of Irbid and in the Palestinian refugee camp in Marka. However, children in Jordan engage in the worst forms of child labor, including in street work. Children also perform dangerous tasks in agriculture. Insufficient resources hampered the Ministry of Labor’s capacity to ensure compliance with child labor laws in the agricultural sector. Despite government efforts, Syrian children still face barriers to accessing education due to costs associated with transportation, school fees, and supplies, among other issues. In addition, the government did not implement sufficient social programs to fully address child labor, particularly in agriculture, construction, and street vending.

I. PREVALENCE AND SECTORAL DISTRIBUTION OF CHILD LABOR

Children in Jordan engage in the worst forms of child labor, including in street work. (1-3) Children also perform dangerous tasks in agriculture. (4-6) Based on the 2016 National Child Labor Survey, approximately 70,000 children ages 5 to 17 are engaged in child labor, most commonly in agriculture and retail trade. Approximately 80 percent of child laborers are Jordanian and about 15 percent are Syrian. (5) Boys constitute nearly 90 percent of those involved in child labor. (5) Table 1 provides key indicators on children’s work and education in Jordan. Data on some of these indicators are not available from the sources used in this report.

Table 1. Statistics on Children’s Work and Education

Children	Age	Percent

† Determined by national law or regulation as hazardous and, as such, relevant to Article 3(d) of ILO C. 182.

‡ Child labor understood as the worst forms of child labor per se under Article 3(a)–(c) of ILO C. 182.

While Syrian children are granted access to Jordanian public schools, over 73,000, or nearly one third of all Syrian refugee children, were not enrolled in formal or informal education in academic year 2017–2018. (3,27) These children face barriers to education, including bullying and harassment, the costs of transportation, uniforms, and school materials, and they are unprepared for their appropriate grade level due to interruptions in their early years of schooling. (6,28-31)

In order to expand education access for Syrian children, in 2017 Jordan waived a requirement for documentation for school enrollment. The government also continued to address the overcrowding of classrooms by providing double-shifted schools. (32,33) Out of approximately 3,800 schools in the country, Jordan had more than 746 double-shifted schools. (19,34,35) In 2018, 207 of the latter were for refugee children, mainly Syrian. (27,36) At these double-shifted schools, Jordanian children attend in the morning and Syrian children attend in the afternoon. (22,37) However, Jordanian and Syrian children attending double-shifted schools are vulnerable to child labor because the school hours are considerably shorter, and fewer school hours leave more time for work. (34,38)

II. LEGAL FRAMEWORK FOR CHILD LABOR

Jordan has ratified all key international conventions concerning child labor (Table 3).

Table 3. Ratification of International Conventions on Child Labor

Convention	Ratification

ILO C. 182, Worst Forms of Child Labor	✓
 UN CRC	✓
UN CRC Optional Protocol on Armed Conflict	✓
UN CRC Optional Protocol on the Sale of Children, Child Prostitution and Child Pornography	✓
 Palermo Protocol on Trafficking in Persons	✓

The government has established laws and regulations related to child labor (Table 4). However, gaps exist in Jordan’s legal framework to adequately protect children from the worst forms of child labor, including non-state armed groups’ recruitment of children.

Table 4. Laws and Regulations on Child Labor

Standard	Meets International Standards	Age	Legislation
Minimum Age for Work	Yes	16	Article 73 of the Labor Code (39)

Free Public Education	Yes		Article 20 of the Constitution (46)

* No volunteers are accepted to join the armed forces. (36,47)

III. ENFORCEMENT OF LAWS ON CHILD LABOR

The government has established institutional mechanisms for the enforcement of laws and regulations on child labor (Table 5). However, gaps exist within the operations of the Ministry of Labor (MOL) that may hinder adequate enforcement of their child labor laws.

Table 5. Agencies Responsible for Child Labor Law Enforcement

Organization/Agency	Role
Ministry of Labor (MOL), Directorate of Labor Affairs and Inspection	Enforces labor laws, including those on child labor. Maintains a hotline to receive labor-related complaints, including complaints of child labor. (19) Identifies cases of child labor through worksite inspections and refers cases to the relevant services. Registers instances of child labor in a National Child Labor Database, which allows ministries to monitor and track children as they are identified and referred to services. (48) The hotline has operators during office hours, although operators who spoke foreign languages are not always available. The hotline has an automated message recording after 3 p.m. (27,36) The phone number is difficult to locate, and based on available information, operators rarely respond to voicemails left after working hours. (27,36)
Ministry of Labor, Child Labor Unit	Coordinates government efforts to campaign against child labor, conducts training, and raises awareness about child labor issues. (22)
Public Security Directorate, Criminal Investigation Unit	Investigates and prosecutes violations of the Penal Code, including allegations of the worst forms of child labor. Operates a section to combat human trafficking. (19)
Joint Anti-Trafficking Unit of the Ministry of Labor and Public Security Directorate	Investigates cases of human trafficking and forced labor, refers cases for prosecution, and coordinates with foreign embassies to identify victims of human trafficking and repatriate workers. (49)

Labor Law Enforcement

In 2018, labor law enforcement agencies in Jordan took actions to combat child labor (Table 6). However, gaps exist within the operations of the MOL that may hinder adequate labor law enforcement, including inspection planning.

In 2018, the MOL identified 671 violations of child labor laws, involving 737 children. (3) When a labor inspector identifies a child laborer, the inspector issues a warning and a fine and asks the employer to send the child home while the inspector is still present. (34) A warning requires the employer to sign a pledge declaring that they will cease employing children. Without the pledge, the MOL can close the business. (22) The information about the child is then shared with the Ministry of Social Development, which contacts the family to identify the appropriate social services needed. If a child labor violation has been identified, the labor inspector conducts unannounced follow-up inspections at the worksite to ensure compliance. (34) As of November 2018, the MOL had issued 591 warnings, and 413 businesses signed pledges declaring that they will cease employing children. (51)

In 2018, although the MOL conducted more labor inspections than the previous year, it employed 65 fewer labor inspectors. (3,19,35) The current number of labor inspectors is likely insufficient for the size of Jordan's workforce, which includes more than 2.295 million workers. (3,52) According to the ILO's technical advice of a ratio approaching 1 inspector for every 15,000 workers in developing economies, Jordan would employ about 153 inspectors. (53,54)

Insufficient regulations and resources, and the migratory nature of the agricultural sector hampered the MOL's capacity to ensure compliance with child labor laws in the agriculture sector. (3,19,55) Based on the 2016 National Child Labor Survey, 43 percent of child laborers ages 5 to 14 work in agriculture. (5) In addition to ongoing national budget constraints, the MOL has not issued regulations on labor inspections in agriculture, which further limits its oversight in this sector. (34,55)

Jordanian children identified during labor inspections are referred to the Child Labor Unit of the Ministry of Social Development. (34,56) In contrast, Syrian refugee children who are identified during labor inspections were separated from their families and taken to the Azraq refugee camp. (34,57,58) The International Rescue Committee (IRC), with funding from UNICEF and UNHCR, operated a 24-hour reception center in Azraq that received Syrian refugee children picked up for both labor and other law infractions. If the child has extended family in the camp, the IRC placed the child in the family members' home. (27,59) Otherwise, the child stayed in housing at the reception center, where they are provided with a full range of services while the IRC negotiated with Jordanian officials to return the child to their family outside the camp, which may take days to months. (27,59) Consequently, families that live in the Zaatari refugee camp traveled a long distance to Azraq to reunite with their children. (27,34,57,58) Those families that live in host communities (i.e., about 80 percent of all Syrian refugees) feared that by presenting themselves at Azraq, they may also be forced to stay at the Azraq camp and lose some benefits. (27,57,58) As of early 2019, the IRC closed the reception center, thereby reducing the number of children detained in the Azraq camp; however, according to UNICEF, the practice of detaining minors engaged in illegal labor continues, although at a reduced level. (27)

Criminal Law Enforcement

In 2018, criminal law enforcement agencies in Jordan took actions to combat child labor (Table 7). However, gaps exist within the operations of the criminal enforcement agencies that may hinder adequate criminal law enforcement.

Table 7. Criminal Law Enforcement Efforts Related to Child Labor

In 2018, the Joint Anti-Trafficking Unit conducted 23 workshops, with approximately 30 participants per session. Police officers and Ministry of Social Development staff participated in other trainings to counter human trafficking. (36) During the reporting period, the Joint Anti-Trafficking Unit investigated 301 cases, 20 of which were found to be human trafficking cases and an additional 13 were cases of forced labor. The Ministry of Justice prosecuted 18 cases of human trafficking that began in 2018, and 12 cases initiated previously but which led to convictions in 2018. (27,36) Research was unable to determine whether investigations were conducted on cases of forced begging or commercial sexual exploitation of children, even though there is evidence of these worst forms of child labor. (22-25)

IV. COORDINATION OF GOVERNMENT EFFORTS ON CHILD LABOR

The government has established mechanisms to coordinate its efforts to address child labor (Table 8). However, gaps exist that hinder the effective coordination of efforts to address child labor, including efforts to address all forms of child labor.

Table 8. Key Mechanisms to Coordinate Government Efforts on Child Labor

Coordinating Body	Role & Description
National Committee on Child Labor	Formulates new policies, amends legislation as necessary, and oversees the implementation of child labor policies, including the National Framework to Combat Child Labor. Led by MOL, members include three other ministries, plus international and civil society organizations. (61) Although the Committee did not meet in 2018, the ILO worked with committee members to finalize the unified inspection checklist to be used during labor inspections. (62)
National Committee for the Prevention of Human Trafficking	Coordinates government efforts to combat human trafficking; chaired by the Ministry of Justice. Other members include representatives from 10 state agencies, including the Counter Trafficking Unit, which is in charge of human trafficking investigations. (63) The Counter Trafficking Unit is jointly operated by the Public Security Directorate and MOL. (36) The Committee met on an ad hoc basis in 2018, and in October, it established a technical committee to meet monthly and coordinate government efforts to counter human trafficking. The Committee carried out an awareness-raising campaign, consisting of 211 lectures, including in the Zaatari refugee camp; TV interviews on the rights of domestic workers and resources available to them; and the affixing of stickers, which included the hotline number for reporting human trafficking cases, on passports of workers who entered Jordan as laborers. (36)

MODERATE ADVANCEMENT

Although Jordan has a National Committee for the Prevention of Human Trafficking to coordinate efforts to address trafficking in persons, it does not have coordinating mechanisms to address other forms of child labor, including street and farm work. (64)

V. GOVERNMENT POLICIES ON CHILD LABOR

The government has established policies that are consistent with relevant international standards on child labor (Table 9). However, policy gaps exist that hinder efforts to address child labor, including implementation.

Table 9. Key Policies Related to Child Labor

Policy	Description
National Framework to Combat Child Labor	Outlines the roles and responsibilities of key government agencies, including the ministries of Education, Labor, and Social Development; NGOs; and other stakeholders involved in identifying and responding to cases of child labor. Based on the Framework, MOL inspectors monitor child labor and refer cases to the ministries of Social Development and Education for the provision of services. (65) In 2018, the government began working to update the National Framework, with emphasis on training and mentoring as new focal points for the Ministry of Social Development and Juvenile Police. (66) Also during the reporting period, at least 27 officials from MOL, Ministry of Social Development, and the Ministry of Education participated in training on the electronic National Child Labor Database, Jordan's child labor monitoring system for reporting and coordinating government services to child laborers. (66)
Jordan Response Plan for the Syria Crisis (2016–2018)	Integrates a refugee-oriented humanitarian response with a strategic plan for increasing resilience of local communities. The plan has a particular focus on economic strengthening, education, and social protection. (29) In academic year 2017–2018, nearly 130,000 Syrian refugee children were enrolled in formal education, and approximately 29,000 additional children attended informal education. (3)
Plan of Action to Eliminate Child Labor in Tourism in Petra	Employs counselors to respond to children at risk of truancy, raise children's awareness of the hazards of child labor and the significance of education, incorporate child labor prevention strategies into mainstream programs for legally employed children ages 16 and older, and inform students about high-quality employment in the tourism sector. (67) The policy was not implemented in 2018. MOL and the Ministry of Social Development expressed concern that there were no official employers in Petra with whom the ministries could engage. (62)

VI. SOCIAL PROGRAMS TO ADDRESS CHILD LABOR

In 2018, the government funded and participated in programs that include the goal of eliminating or preventing child labor (Table 10). However, gaps exist in these social programs, including the adequacy of services to address child labor in all sectors.

Table 10. Key Social Programs to Address Child Labor

Program	Description
Measurement, Awareness-Raising, and Policy Engagement Project on Child Labor and Forced Labor (MAP16)*	USDOL-funded project implemented by the ILO to conduct research and develop new survey methodologies, improve awareness, strengthen policies and government capacity, and promote partnerships to combat child labor and forced labor. (68) Additional information is available on the USDOL website.
Ministry of Social Development, Child Labor Unit†	Supports children engaged in child labor; returns them to school, and provides services to their families; provides vocational training for youth; organizes training on child labor for families; and maintains the website of the National Child Labor Database. (69) In 2018, the Ministry continued to work on bylaws to establish standard operating procedures on how to handle cases of child labor to replace the current ad hoc process. (64) Three surveys were finalized in 2018 that covered East Amman, Zatar camp, and Zarqa. The Unit implemented the case management methodology with Terre Des Hommes in Zarqa and Save the Children in Irbid. (62)
Child Begging Assistance†	Ministry of Social Development's centers in Madaba and Delail (Zarqa) provide social services to children engaged in begging. (27) In 2018, the Ministry continued to provide services to children engaged in begging. (3) Likewise, the center in Madaba was active in 2018 and provided services to children. (62)
Social Support Center in Marka†	ILO and MOL-funded center operated in cooperation with the ILO at Marka, the Palestinian refugee camp. Activities include identifying child laborers, providing services such as non-formal education, and assisting families in finding alternate forms of supplemental income. (19) In 2018, MOL continued to provide services to children, engaged in child labor. Services include non-formal education, rehabilitation and training programs for children who have dropped out of school, and helping families identify alternative sources of income. (3)

Program	Description
National Aid Fund†	Under the Ministry of Social Development, the Fund pays families approximately $63 a month through a conditional cash transfer program to withdraw their child from the labor market and re-enroll them in school. (19) In 2018, the Ministry continued this program. (3)
Non-Formal Education Centers‡	Funded by USAID and UNICEF and operated by the Ministry of Education and local NGO Questscope, these centers throughout the country seek to bring school dropouts, including those engaged in or at risk of child labor, back into the educational system. Children attend classes 3 hours a day in a flexible learning environment, with class sizes of around 20 students and specially trained teachers. (34,38) Targets children ages 13 and older. Upon completion of the curriculum, students receive a certificate indicating equivalency of a 10th-grade education. (38) A center in Petra provides services to children at risk of child labor in the tourism industry in Petra. (70) In academic year 2017–2018, over 29,000 children received non-formal education. (3)

* Program was launched during the reporting period.

† Program is funded by the Government of Jordan.

‡ The government had other social programs that may have included the goal of eliminating or preventing child labor. (71)

Although Jordan has programs that target child labor, the scope of these programs does not fully address the extent of the problem, including in agriculture, construction, and street vending.

VII. SUGGESTED GOVERNMENT ACTIONS TO ELIMINATE CHILD LABOR

Based on the reporting above, suggested actions are identified that would advance the elimination of child labor in Jordan (Table 11).

Table 11. Suggested Government Actions to Eliminate Child Labor

Area	Suggested Action	Year(s) Suggested
Legal Framework	Ensure that the law criminally prohibits the recruitment of children under age 18 into non-state armed groups.	2016 – 2018
Enforcement	Improve the quality of the Ministry of Labor's hotline by ensuring operators, including those who speak foreign languages, are available outside business hours and ensuring the translated recorded message is of high quality.	2018
	Publish information about the number of inspections at worksites and the number of penalties imposed and collected for child labor violations.	2015 – 2018
	Increase the number of labor inspectors to meet the ILO technical advice.	2018
	Ensure that Ministry of Labor inspectors have the resources needed to carry out inspections in the agricultural sector, and ensure that regulations are issued to mandate labor inspections in agriculture.	2014 – 2018
	Ensure that refugee children identified during labor inspections are referred to social services and are not separated from their families by being taken to the Azraq refugee camp.	2016 – 2018
	Ensure that investigations are conducted on forced begging and commercial sexual exploitation of children, and publish information about the number of violations, prosecutions, and convictions involving child victims.	2015 – 2018
	Coordination	Ensure that the National Committee for the Prevention of Human Trafficking is able to carry out its intended mandate.
Establish coordinating mechanisms to combat all worst forms of child labor.		2018
Government Policies	Implement the Plan of Action to Eliminate Child Labor in Tourism in Petra.	2018
Social Programs	Continue to expand access to education for all children, including providing after-school programs or extending school hours.	2013 – 2018
	Institute programs to address the worst forms of child labor in agriculture, construction, and street vending.	2013 – 2018

In 2018, Kazakhstan made a minimal advancement in efforts to eliminate the worst forms of child labor. The Ministry of Education and Science, in cooperation with other government agencies, carried out targeted joint inspection operations in areas where child labor may occur, and the government adopted a new national action plan to counter trafficking in persons. However, children in Kazakhstan engage in the worst forms of child labor, including in cotton harvesting and commercial sexual exploitation. The government lacks programs to address child labor in cotton harvesting, as well as current, comprehensive, and detailed research on child labor. The government also does not have a policy that addresses all relevant forms of child labor in the country. In addition, the complaint mechanism did not allow for anonymous individuals to report violations of labor laws, and not a single case of child labor was reported to government hotlines on children's issues.

I. PREVALENCE AND SECTORAL DISTRIBUTION OF CHILD LABOR

Children in Kazakhstan engage in the worst forms of child labor, including in cotton harvesting and commercial sexual exploitation. (1-4) Table 1 provides key indicators on children's work and education in Kazakhstan.

Table 1. Statistics on Children's Work and Education

Children	Age	Percent
Working (% and population)	5 to 14	3.2 (79,690)
Attending School (%)	5 to 14	90.7
Combining Work and School (%)	7 to 14	3.6
Primary Completion Rate (%)		109.7

Source for primary completion rate: Data from 2018, published by UNESCO Institute for Statistics, 2019. (5)

Source for all other data: International Labor Organization's analysis of statistics from Multiple Indicator Cluster Survey 3, 2006. (6)

Based on a review of available information, Table 2 provides an overview of children's work by sector and activity.

Table 2. Overview of Children's Work by Sector and Activity

Sector/Industry	Activity
Agriculture	Farming, including producing vegetables, weeding, collecting worms, and harvesting cotton† (2,7-14)
Industry	Construction,† activities unknown (4,12,14)
Services	Working in markets and on the streets, including transporting and selling items (4,11,12,14-17)
	Domestic work, including child care (4,14)
	Working in gas stations (4,15)
	Car washing (4,12,15-17)
	Working as bus conductors (4,18)
Categorical Worst Forms of Child Labor‡	Working in restaurants† as waiters (15,16,19)
	Commercial sexual exploitation as a result of human trafficking (1,3) Forced begging as a result of human trafficking (3,4)

† Determined by national law or regulation as hazardous and, as such, relevant to Article 3(d) of ILO C. 182.

‡ Child labor understood as the worst forms of child labor per se under Article 3(a)–(c) of ILO C. 182.

There is no current and comprehensive research on child labor in Kazakhstan that can provide details about the number of children working in different sectors, the nature of their work, or the hazards involved.

Kazakhstan

MINIMAL ADVANCEMENT

Migrant children from the Kyrgyz Republic, some of whom may be unaccompanied, may engage in work in Kazakhstan. (14) Migrant children who are above the minimum working age theoretically have a right to a legal work permit, which would entitle them to work protections such as limited work hours. However, in practice, migrant children often cannot obtain legal work permits because they do not list “work” as their purpose for visiting the country when entering Kazakhstan. Thus, migrant children are often unable to work legally and have their labor rights protected. (14,20) Migrants from the Kyrgyz Republic, including children, do not obtain work permits due to lack of information, fear, corruption, and discrimination against migrants. For Kyrgyzstani children over age 16, unregulated status means that they may be subject to administrative fines, arrest, and detention with adults. (14) Children in an unregulated migration status also do not have the same free access to education as Kazakh citizens. (14) In addition, some school officials require migrants to provide individual identification numbers for enrollment, even though it is not legally required. This makes access to education even more difficult. (14) Some such children fall victim to forced child labor in Kazakhstan. (14)

II. LEGAL FRAMEWORK FOR CHILD LABOR

Kazakhstan has ratified all key international conventions concerning child labor (Table 3).

Table 3. Ratification of International Conventions on Child Labor

Convention	Ratification
 ILO C. 138, Minimum Age	✓
ILO C. 182, Worst Forms of Child Labor	✓
 UN CRC	✓
UN CRC Optional Protocol on Armed Conflict	✓
UN CRC Optional Protocol on the Sale of Children, Child Prostitution and Child Pornography	✓
 Palermo Protocol on Trafficking in Persons	✓

The government has established laws and regulations related to child labor (Table 4). However, gaps exist in Kazakhstan’s legal framework to adequately protect children from the worst forms of child labor, including the minimum age for work.

Table 4. Laws and Regulations on Child Labor

Standard	Meets International Standards	Age	Legislation
Minimum Age for Work	No	16	Article 31 of the Labor Code (20)
Minimum Age for Hazardous Work	No	18	Article 26.1(2) of the Labor Code; Article 153 of the Criminal Code (20,21)
Identification of Hazardous Occupations or Activities Prohibited for Children	Yes		Article 26.1(2) of the Labor Code; Decree of the Minister of Health and Social Development No. 944 of 2015 (20,22)
Prohibition of Forced Labor	Yes		Article 7 of the Labor Code; Article 135 of the Criminal Code (20,21)
Prohibition of Child Trafficking	Yes		Article 135 of the Criminal Code (21)
Prohibition of Commercial Sexual Exploitation of Children	Yes		Articles 134–135 and 312 of the Criminal Code (21)
Prohibition of Using Children in Illicit Activities	Yes		Articles 132–133 and 135.2(9) of the Criminal Code; Article 26.1(2) of the Labor Code (20,21)
Minimum Age for Voluntary State Military Recruitment	Yes	19	Article 38.1(2) of the Military Service Act (23)
Prohibition of Compulsory Recruitment of Children by (State) Military	Yes		Article 31 of the Military Service Act (23)

Standard	Meets International Standards	Age	Legislation
Prohibition of Military Recruitment by Non-state Armed Groups	Yes		Article 41 of the Law on Children's Rights; Articles 132 and 267 of the Criminal Code (21,24)
Compulsory Education Age	Yes	17‡	Article 30 of the Constitution (25)
Free Public Education	Yes		Article 8.2 of the Education Act (26)

‡ Age calculated based on available information (27,28)

According to Articles 26.1(2) and 31 of the Labor Code, protections, such as the minimum age for employment and prohibitions on hazardous work, are not extended to children engaged in non-contractual employment. (20)

Because the minimum age for work in Kazakhstan is lower than the compulsory education age, children may be encouraged to leave school before the completion of compulsory education.

III. ENFORCEMENT OF LAWS ON CHILD LABOR

The government has established institutional mechanisms for the enforcement of laws and regulations on child labor (Table 5). However, gaps exist within the operations of the Ministry of Labor and Social Protection that may hinder adequate enforcement of their child labor laws.

Table 5. Agencies Responsible for Child Labor Law Enforcement

Organization/Agency	Role
Ministry of Labor and Social Protection	Enforces child labor laws and conducts labor inspections through the Ministry's Committee on Labor, Social Protection and Migration. (29)
Ministry of Education and Science	Receives child labor complaints. An official from the province- or oblast -level Department of Education responds to reports of child labor and determines whether law enforcement should investigate the case. (29) If the case is in agriculture, local officials meet with parents and school officials to reinforce that children should be in school during the academic year. The Ministry's Center for the Adaptation of Minors provides assistance to victims of the worst forms of child labor and makes referrals to appropriate government services or NGOs for further assistance. (29)
Ministry of Internal Affairs	Identifies and carries out initial investigation of criminal cases of the worst forms of child labor. Through the Anti-Trafficking Unit of the Criminal Police Department, identifies and investigates cases of child trafficking. (29) The Anti-Trafficking Unit employed 40 officers during the reporting period (39)

Labor Law Enforcement

In 2018, labor law enforcement agencies in Kazakhstan took actions to combat child labor (Table 6). However, gaps exist within the operations of the Ministry of Labor and Social Protection that may hinder adequate labor law enforcement, including lack of an appropriate number of inspectors.

The number of labor inspectors is likely insufficient for the size of Kazakhstan's workforce, which includes more than 8.97 million workers. (29, 32) According to the ILO's technical advice of a ratio approaching 1 inspector for every 20,000 workers in transitional economies, Kazakhstan would employ about 449 inspectors. (33,34)

In June 2018, the Ministry of Education and Science, in cooperation with other government agencies, carried out targeted joint inspection operations (raids) in areas in which children were likely to engage in child labor, such as local markets, gas stations, and construction sites. The operations were part of an annual Twelve Days Against Child Labor campaign to detect child labor. (29) The raids resulted in about 9,000 site visits, during which officials identified 3 children working in gas stations. Also, in June 2018, the Ministry of Internal Affairs, in cooperation with other agencies, carried out an investigative campaign in which police identified 34 children in child labor, 2 of whom worked in the agriculture sector. (29) This investigative campaign fell outside the cotton harvest season, which is generally September through November, despite evidence that children engage in child labor to pick cotton. (2,35) Based on available information, penalties were assessed for four of the six child labor violations identified in regular labor inspections by the Ministry of Labor and Social Protection. (29)

In addition to regular inspections, the labor inspectors at the Ministry of Labor and Social Protection can respond to complaints of violations as long as they are not anonymous. The hotline of the Ministry of Education and Science's Committee for the Protection of Child Rights and the hotline of the Ombudsman for Children's Rights collectively received more than 2,800 calls, none of which were related to child labor. (29)

Criminal Law Enforcement

In 2018, the government's criminal law enforcement agencies in Kazakhstan took actions to combat child labor (Table 7). However, gaps exist within the operations of criminal law enforcement agencies that may hinder adequate criminal law enforcement, including investigation planning.

Table 7. Criminal Law Enforcement Efforts Related to Child Labor

In 2018, the Ministry of Internal Affairs' Legal Academy in the city of Karaganda held 7 training sessions for 116 police officers on the worst forms of child labor, including commercial sexual exploitation of children. In addition, the Law Enforcement Academy of the Prosecutor General's Office conducted 2 training sessions for 93 prosecutors. (29) The Judicial Training Institute of the Supreme Court in Nur-Sultan (previously Astana) conducted 2 training sessions for 65 judges on the protection of trafficking victims, including children. (29) Nevertheless, an international organization reported that the regional offices of the Ministry of Internal Affairs do not receive sufficient training to counter human trafficking. (14)

During the reporting period, the Ministry of Internal Affairs investigated 11 cases, including the commercial sexual exploitation of 9 children. Two perpetrators were convicted, and the nine victims were referred to social services. (29)

IV. COORDINATION OF GOVERNMENT EFFORTS ON CHILD LABOR

The government has established mechanisms to coordinate its efforts to address child labor (Table 8). However, gaps exist that hinder the effective coordination of efforts to address child labor, including coordination efforts.

Table 8. Key Mechanisms to Coordinate Government Efforts on Child Labor

Coordinating Body	Role & Description
Committee for the Protection of Children's Rights	Works to protect children from exploitation. Operates under the Ministry of Education and Science at the oblast -level departments of education. (36) In 2018, the Committee participated in awareness-raising campaigns. (29)
Interagency Trafficking in Persons Working Group	Coordinates efforts to combat human trafficking and recommends improvements to anti-human trafficking legislation, prevention strategies, protection of victims, and the prosecution of offenders. (38) Chaired by the Ministry of Internal Affairs and the Ministry of Labor and Social Protection on a 2-year rotational basis. Its members include 13 state bodies, 2 international organizations, and 5 NGOs. The working group met twice in 2018. (29)
Ombudsman for Children's Rights	Monitors observance of the rights of children. Receives and responds to complaints about violations of children's rights. (4) In 2018, the office received calls unrelated to child labor. (29) The only reception office of the Ombudsman for Children's Rights is located in Nur-Sultan, making it difficult for complaints of violations in remote oblasts to be reported to the authorities. (14)

In 2018, the National Coordination Council on Child Labor did not meet. NGOs reported that it ceased to function due to lack of action and coordination of the parties involved. (29)

V. GOVERNMENT POLICIES ON CHILD LABOR

The government has established policies related to child labor (Table 9). However, policy gaps exist that hinder efforts to address child labor, including implementation of policies covering all worst forms of child labor.

Table 9. Key Policies Related to Child Labor

Policy	Description
National Action Plan to Counter Trafficking in Persons (2018–2020)†	Addresses priority areas, including (1) prevention of forced child labor in the cotton and construction sectors, (2) exchange of information among government agencies on human trafficking and child pornography, (3) research on the worst forms of child labor and the provision of recommendations, and (4) raising awareness of human trafficking among children. (29)

† Policy was approved during the reporting period.

Although the government adopted a new policy to counter human trafficking, it lacked an overall policy to address other forms of child labor.

VI. SOCIAL PROGRAMS TO ADDRESS CHILD LABOR

In 2018, the government funded and participated in programs that include the goal of eliminating or preventing child labor (Table 10). However, gaps exist in these social programs, including the adequacy of programs to address the problem in all sectors.

Table 10. Key Social Programs to Address Child Labor

Program	Description
Shelters for Trafficking Victims†	Funded by the government and operated by NGOs, shelters provide legal, psychological, medical, and educational services to survivors of human trafficking in nine cities, including Nur-Sultan and Almaty. The shelters provided services in 2018. (39)

Program	Description
Awareness-Raising Campaigns†	Raise public awareness on child labor issues. (4) In 2018, the Ministry of Education and Science, with the cooperation of other agencies, implemented the Twelve Days Against Child Labor campaign, consisting of nearly 32,000 national and local events, such as meetings, seminars, conferences, and competitions. (29)

‡ The government had other social programs that may have included the goal of eliminating or preventing child labor. (40)

Although the Government of Kazakhstan implemented programs to raise awareness about child labor in 2018, research found no evidence that it has carried out programs to assist children engaged in child labor, including in the production of cotton.

VII. SUGGESTED GOVERNMENT ACTIONS TO ELIMINATE CHILD LABOR

Based on the reporting above, suggested actions are identified that would advance the elimination of child labor in Kazakhstan (Table 11).

Table 11. Suggested Government Actions to Eliminate Child Labor

Area	Suggested Action	Year(s) Suggested
Legal Framework	Ensure that the law's minimum age provisions and hazardous work prohibitions apply to all children, including those working without an employment contract.	2016 – 2018
	Raise the minimum age for work to the age up to which education is compulsory.	2018
Enforcement	Increase the number of labor inspectors to meet the ILO's technical advice.	2014 – 2018
	Ensure that all investigators receive training on the TIP Law.	2018
Coordination	Ensure that individuals in remote areas of the country are able to file complaints about child labor violations with the Ombudsman for Children's Rights.	2018
Government Policies	Adopt and implement a national policy that covers all forms of child labor.	2017 – 2018
Social Programs	Conduct research to gather comprehensive data on child labor, including the activities carried out by children working in the construction and services industries, to inform policies and programs.	2013 – 2018
	Ensure that all children have access to education, particularly children with irregular migration status.	2018
	Institute programs to address child labor, particularly in the production of cotton.	2014 – 2018

In 2018, Kenya made a minimal advancement in efforts to eliminate the worst forms of child labor. The government greatly increased the number of labor inspectors, inspections conducted, and child labor violations identified. However, children in Kenya engage in the worst forms of child labor in commercial sexual exploitation. Children also engage in child labor in agriculture. Kenya has yet to ratify the UN CRC Optional Protocol on the Sale of Children, Child Prostitution and Child Pornography. In addition, the minimum age for work law does not protect children working outside the scope of a formal employment contract or in circumstances in which children derive no benefit from their labor. The government has also not committed sufficient resources to child labor enforcement.

I. PREVALENCE AND SECTORAL DISTRIBUTION OF CHILD LABOR

Children in Kenya engage in the worst forms of child labor in commercial sexual exploitation, sometimes as a result of human trafficking. Children also engage in child labor in agriculture. (1,2) Table 1 provides key indicators on children's work and education in Kenya. Data on some of these indicators are not available from the sources used in this report.

Table 1. Statistics on Children's Work and Education

Children	Age	Percent
Working (% and population)	5 to 14	35.6 (3,736,030)
Attending School (%)	5 to 14	85.8
Combining Work and School (%)	7 to 14	23.0
Primary Completion Rate (%)		102.0

Source for primary completion rate: Data from 2016, published by the UNESCO Institute for Statistics, 2019. (3)

Source for all other data: International Labor Organization's analysis of statistics from Population and Housing Census, 2009. (4)

Based on a review of available information, Table 2 provides an overview of children's work by sector and activity.

Sector/Industry	Activity
Categorical Worst Forms of Child Labor†‡	Commercial sexual exploitation, sometimes as a result of human trafficking (1,5,17-22)
	Use in illicit activities, including drug trafficking (1,6,23)
	Begging, street vending, domestic service, herding livestock, fishing, and work on tobacco farms, sometimes as a result of human trafficking (1,5,18,21,22,24,25)

† Determined by national law or regulation as hazardous and, as such, relevant to Article 3(d) of ILO C. 182.

‡ Child labor understood as the worst forms of child labor per se under Article 3(a)–(c) of ILO C. 182.

Kenyan children are victims of human trafficking within and outside the country, and they are exploited to engage in domestic work, agricultural work, fishing, begging, and street vending. Children are also victims of commercial sexual exploitation in tourism-heavy areas, such as Nairobi and Kisumu, and on the coast in informal settings. (22,26,27) In rural areas, poverty drives some families to engage in trafficking children to urban centers for domestic work. (28) Children are also victims of commercial exploitation in drug production sites (khat), near gold mines, and along major highways; and they are sexually exploited by fishermen on Lake Victoria. (22) In addition, children in Kenya scavenge dumpsites and streets for scrap material, including metal and glass. (5) These children earn about $1 to $2 per day by sorting through waste, while often risking injury and exposing themselves to infectious diseases, such as tetanus. Evidence suggests that these children are also exposed to mercury due to e-waste recycling and gold mining. (5) Reports also indicate that children ages 10 to 17 mine or harvest sand and work in Busia, Homa Bay, Kilifi, Kitui, Machakos, and Nakuru counties increasing their likelihood of developing aggravated asthma, lung or heart disease, and cancer. (10, 14, 29) Most children who are engaged in child labor, including commercial sexual exploitation, are girls; however, boys are also involved. (5, 30)

Kenyan law mandates free education and prohibits schools from charging tuition fees. However, the cost of unofficial school fees, books, and uniforms prevents some children from attending school. (14,31-35) The Births and Deaths Registration Act mandates birth registration; however, many children living in the country are not registered at birth. As a result, non-registered children have difficulty accessing services such as education because they must provide a birth certificate before enrolling in school or sitting for exams. (36-38) Teacher and school shortages further hinder children’s access to education. (1) Sources indicate that sexual abuse by teachers also negatively affects children’s school attendance. (39-41) In addition, in isolated cases, some school administrators deny pregnant girls admittance to schools. (42-44)

The government, in coordination with UNICEF, has previously published data on child poverty and its potential to increase vulnerability to engage in child labor. (8,45) The last national child labor survey was conducted in 2000. (4) As a result, data may no longer accurately reflect the current child labor situation in Kenya.

II. LEGAL FRAMEWORK FOR CHILD LABOR

Kenya has ratified most key international conventions concerning child labor (Table 3).

Table 3. Ratification of International Conventions on Child Labor

Convention	Ratification
 ILO C. 138, Minimum Age	✓
ILO C. 182, Worst Forms of Child Labor	✓
 UN CRC	✓
UN CRC Optional Protocol on Armed Conflict	✓
UN CRC Optional Protocol on the Sale of Children, Child Prostitution and Child Pornography
 Palermo Protocol on Trafficking in Persons	✓

In 2000, Kenya signed but has not yet acceded to the UN CRC Optional Protocol on the Sale of Children, Child Prostitution and Child Pornography. Commercial sexual exploitation of children continues to be a serious problem in Kenya. (40)

The government has established laws and regulations related to child labor (Table 4). However, gaps exist in Kenya's legal framework to adequately protect children from the worst forms of child labor, including the gap between the compulsory education age and minimum age for work.

Table 4. Laws and Regulations on Child Labor

‡ Age calculated based on available information (53)

In 2018, Kenya began implementing free secondary education for all Kenyans. (40) In 2017, the Parliament drafted the Children Bill; however, during the reporting period, it had not yet come into effect. (40) The proposed law prohibits child labor, hazardous work for children, the use of children in armed conflict, and the use, procurement, and offering of children for forced labor, slavery, and debt bondage. (54) However, the proposed bill has the same gap as the current law regarding coverage of children working without a formal contract. (54) The current Children Act does not prohibit child labor for children employed outside of the scope of a contractual agreement or in circumstances in which children derive no benefit from their work directly or indirectly. (34,46) In addition, the Employment Act applies only to workers who perform work under a formal employment agreement, which does not conform to international standards that require all children to be protected by the minimum age. (46)

The government has reported that children are required to attend school only until age 14, making children ages 14 and 15 vulnerable to child labor because they are not required to attend school, yet cannot legally work. (53)

MINIMAL ADVANCEMENT

III. ENFORCEMENT OF LAWS ON CHILD LABOR

The government has established institutional mechanisms for the enforcement of laws and regulations on child labor (Table 5). However, gaps exist within the operations of the Ministry of Labor, Social Security and Services (MLSSS); the National Police Service; and the Office of the Director of Public Prosecutions that may hinder adequate enforcement of their child labor laws.

Table 5. Agencies Responsible for Child Labor Law Enforcement

Organization/Agency	Role
Ministry of Labor, Social Security and Services (MLSSS)	Enforces labor laws, including those related to child labor, through county labor officers in Kenya's 47 counties. (5,55) Directs activities to eliminate child labor through its Child Labor Division. Coordinates services provided to children to ensure that child protection activities are being implemented countrywide, and maintains records on children and the services provided to them. (5)
National Police Service	Enforces laws related to the worst forms of child labor. (5) Includes a unit focused on the prevention of commercial sexual exploitation of children, child trafficking, and the use of children in illicit activities. (40) The Tourism Police Unit addresses commercial sexual exploitation of children in the tourism industry. (8)
Office of the Director of Public Prosecutions	Enforces laws through the prosecution of criminal offenses, including labor-related offenses. (1)

Labor Law Enforcement

In 2018, labor law enforcement agencies in Kenya took actions to combat child labor (Table 6). However, gaps exist within the operations of the MLSSS that may hinder adequate labor law enforcement, including the authority to assess penalties.

Table 6. Labor Law Enforcement Efforts Related to Child Labor

[†] Data are from July 1, 2016 to June 30, 2017.

The number of labor inspectors is likely insufficient for the size of Kenya's workforce, which includes more than 19 million workers. According to the ILO's technical advice of a ratio approaching 1 inspector for every 15,000 workers in developing economies, Kenya would employ about 1,321 labor inspectors. (58-60) Reports suggest that the MLSSS budget is inadequate and may hamper the labor inspectorate's capacity to enforce child labor laws. (2,5,40,61) Labor inspectors cannot issue fines or penalties, but they can send a compliance letter to employers stipulating how long the employer has to correct the violation. (2) In May 2018, MLSSS reported conducting capacity training for 30 labor inspectors. Between July 1, 2017, and June 30, 2018, MLSSS hired 25 new labor inspectors with plans to have at least 1 labor inspector in each county. (40) The government operates an emergency, toll-free, nationwide child hotline to report child abuse, including child labor, and refers callers to organizations for social protection services. (5,62) The government did not provide information about its labor inspectorate funding and training for inclusion in this report. (40)

Criminal Law Enforcement

In 2018, criminal law enforcement agencies in Kenya took actions to combat child labor (Table 7). However, gaps exist within the operations of the National Police Service and the Office of the Director of Public Prosecutions that may hinder adequate criminal law enforcement, including investigation planning.

Table 7. Criminal Law Enforcement Efforts Related to Child Labor

Overview of Criminal Law Enforcement	2017	2018

Reports indicate that during the 2017 elections, women and girls were subjected to gender-based violence, including sexual exploitation, and that the government has still not properly investigated nor prosecuted suspected perpetrators. (63-65) In past years, the government allocated funds to anti-human trafficking efforts; however, no allocation was made to address child labor. Information on funding is not available for the reporting period. (8,40)

The government did not provide complete information on its criminal enforcement efforts for inclusion in this report. (40)

IV. COORDINATION OF GOVERNMENT EFFORTS ON CHILD LABOR

The government has established mechanisms to coordinate its efforts to address child labor (Table 8). However, gaps exist that hinder the effective coordination of efforts to address child labor, including efficacy in accomplishing mandates.

Table 8. Key Mechanisms to Coordinate Government Efforts on Child Labor

Coordinating Body	Role & Description
National Steering Committee on Child Labor	Oversees efforts to eliminate child labor. (5) Comprising government agencies, private employers, workers' organizations, and civil society organizations. Chaired by the Permanent Secretary, with coordination duties performed by the MLSSS Child Labor Division. (16) Research could not determine whether the committee met during the year.
National Council for Children's Services	Coordinates government efforts on child-related issues, including child labor. (5) Operates the National Children Database, which collects comprehensive data on children, including child labor. (5) Research could not determine whether the committee met during the year.
National Labor Board	Advises the Cabinet Secretary of Labor, Social Security and Services on all issues related to labor and employment, including legal and policy issues. (16) Research could not determine whether the committee met during the year.
Counter-Trafficking in Persons Advisory Committee	Coordinates the implementation of policies related to human trafficking and provide prevention and protection services to victims under the Counter-Trafficking in Persons Act. (50) Comprising multiple government agencies, private employers, workers' organizations, and civil society organizations. (26) Research could not determine whether the committee met during the year.
Local, Advisory, and District Child Labor Committees	Coordinate activities to eliminate child labor at the local level. (5) Research could not determine whether the committee met during the year.

MINIMAL ADVANCEMENT

Although the government has coordination mechanisms, research could not find information about their accomplishments during the year.

V. GOVERNMENT POLICIES ON CHILD LABOR

The government has established policies related to child labor (Table 9). However, policy gaps exist that hinder efforts to address child labor, including funding and mainstreaming child labor issues into relevant policies.

Table 9. Key Policies Related to Child Labor

Policy	Description
National Policy on the Elimination of Child Labor (2016)	Proposes strategies to prevent, identify, withdraw, rehabilitate, and reintegrate children involved in child labor, including its worst forms. (66) Under this policy, the government has established 12 out of 13 desired child labor-free zones. (28) Research was unable to determine whether activities were undertaken to implement the National Policy on the Elimination of Child Labor during the reporting period.
National Employment Policy (2017)	Mandates reporting on the number of children withdrawn from child labor and the progress of child labor-free zones. (40) Research was unable to determine whether activities were taken to implement the National Employment Policy during the reporting period.
Framework for the National Child Protection System for Kenya (2011)	Describes the laws and policies that protect children from violence and exploitation, and the roles and responsibilities of the government to protect children from exploitative work. (67) Research was unable to determine whether activities were undertaken to implement the Framework for the National Child Protection System for Kenya during the reporting period.
County Integrated Development Plans	Serves as a guide for a county's development planning processes. Required of all counties in Kenya. (68) For example, 2013-2017 plans addressed child labor on coffee and tea estates in Kiambu County and the issue of street children in Turkana County; however, research could not determine if updated plans covering 2018-2022 address child labor. (69,70,71) Research was unable to determine whether activities were undertaken to implement County Integrated Development Plans during the reporting period.

‡ The government had other policies that may have addressed child labor issues or had an impact on child labor. (72)

The National Plan of Action Against Sexual Exploitation of Children in Kenya did not include a corresponding budget. (62) Child labor elimination and prevention strategies do not appear to be integrated into the UN Development Assistance Framework, the Policy for Alternative Provision of Basic Education and Training, the Kenya National Social Protection Policy, or the National Education Sector Support Program. (2,73,74)

VI. SOCIAL PROGRAMS TO ADDRESS CHILD LABOR

In 2018, the government funded and participated in programs that include the goal of eliminating or preventing child labor (Table 10). However, gaps exist in these social programs, including the adequacy of programs to address the full scope of the problem.

Table 10. Key Social Programs to Address Child Labor

Program	Description
Projects to Combat Child Labor and Increase Education Access†	Government programs that aim to combat child labor, including its worst forms, such as commercial sexual exploitation of children and child trafficking. Child Protection and Rescue Centers temporarily house child victims and provide counseling and reintegration services for children; Kitui County Child Rescue Center withdraws and rehabilitates child laborers and provides counseling and life skills training. (2) The School Meals Program serves hot lunch to 2 million vulnerable children, resulting in improved school attendance. (1,5,75) The Government of Kenya provided safe custody of children in need of special protection. Services were provided for children who were abandoned, sexually abused, rescued from trafficking, and in need of rehabilitation. (8)
National Safety Net Program for Results‡	Includes $411 million, government-funded, 5-year cash transfer and social safety net program, with support from the World Bank. Benefitted 353,000 households by assisting families of working children, orphans, and vulnerable children to meet their basic needs and pay for school-related costs. For fiscal years 2017 and 2018, the government allocated $93 million for orphans and vulnerable children. (8)
USDOL-Funded Projects to Combat Child Labor and Support Youth Apprenticeships	USDOL-funded projects to combat child labor and support youth apprenticeships. Includes $3 million Better Utilization of Skills for Youth (BUSY) Through Quality Apprenticeships (2016–2020), and $1.4 million Promoting Apprenticeship as a Path for Youth Employment in Kenya Through Global Apprenticeship Network (GAN) National Networks (2016–2018). Additional information is available on the USDOL website.

Program	Description
UN Agency-Implemented Projects	Humanitarian Assistance Program, UNICEF-implemented program provided educational services to 156,000 children and nutritional services to 189,000 children in 2018. (76) The Ministry of Public Service, Youth, and Gender Affairs collaborates with the UN Population Fund to establish gender-based violence recovery centers for victims, including children. (8)
Child Labor Free Supply Chain Certifications	Government program supported by the EU and Cesvi, an NGO. Develops child labor-free supply chain certifications. (5,8,77)

† Program is funded by the Government of Kenya.

‡ The government had other social programs that may have included the goal of eliminating or preventing child labor. (1,78-80)

Although Kenya has programs that target child labor, the scope of these programs is insufficient to fully address the extent of the problem, especially the commercial sexual exploitation of children.

VII. SUGGESTED GOVERNMENT ACTIONS TO ELIMINATE CHILD LABOR

Based on the reporting above, suggested actions are identified that would advance the elimination of child labor in Kenya (Table 11).

Table 11. Suggested Government Actions to Eliminate Child Labor

Area	Suggested Action	Year(s) Suggested
Legal Framework	Ratify the CRC Optional Protocol on the Sale of Children, Child Prostitution and Child Pornography.	2013 – 2018
	Ensure that minimum age laws apply to children working in non-contractual employment.	2011 – 2018
	Raise the compulsory education age to 16 to be equivalent to the minimum age for work.	2013 – 2018
Enforcement	Authorize labor inspectors to assess penalties for labor law violations.	2010 – 2018
	Publish information about labor inspectorate funding, training provided to labor inspectors on the worst forms of child labor, and the number of child labor violations imposed and penalties collected.	2009 – 2018
	Ensure the Ministry of Labor, Social Security and Services has sufficient financial and human resources to address labor violations.	2017 – 2018
	Publish information about criminal law enforcement's efforts to investigate, prosecute, and convict perpetrators of the worst forms of child labor, and training held related to the worst forms of child labor.	2009 – 2018
	Increase the number of labor inspectors to meet the ILO's technical advice.	2015 – 2018
Coordination	Publish information about child labor coordination activities, including meetings during the year, and efforts to address child labor issues.	2016 – 2018
Government Policies	Ensure that child labor policies are implemented, and publish information about activities under these policies, such as the National Plan of Action Against Sexual Exploitation of Children in Kenya.	2017 – 2018
	Ensure that County Integrated Development Plans address child labor.	2018
	Integrate child labor elimination and prevention strategies into the UNDAF, National Education Sector Support Program, Kenya National Social Protection Policy, and Policy for Alternative Provision of Basic Education and Training.	2013 – 2018
	Include a budget in the National Plan of Action Against Sexual Exploitation of Children in Kenya.	2013 – 2018
Social Programs	Update data on child labor by conducting a national child labor survey.	2014 – 2018
	Ensure that children can attend primary school, either by ensuring that school is free of fees or by subsidizing or defraying the cost of school fees, books, and uniforms.	2010 – 2018
	Improve access to education by training new teachers, ensure that pregnant girls can remain in school, address sexual abuse by teachers in schools, and increase birth registrations for children.	2010 – 2018
	Expand existing programs to address the scope of the child labor problem, including children engaged in commercial sexual exploitation.	2009 – 2018

In 2018, Kiribati made a minimal advancement in efforts to eliminate the worst forms of child labor. The government implemented the United Nations Pacific Strategy, which applies a strategic framework to develop and employ economic development strategies, including eliminating the worst forms of child labor. However, although research is limited, there is evidence that children in Kiribati perform dangerous tasks in construction and street vending. Existing laws do not identify hazardous occupations and activities prohibited for children, and the government has not adopted a national policy to combat the worst forms of child labor.

I. PREVALENCE AND SECTORAL DISTRIBUTION OF CHILD LABOR

Although research is limited, there is evidence that children in Kiribati perform dangerous tasks in construction and street vending. (1) Table 1 provides key indicators on children's work and education in Kiribati. Data on some of these indicators are not available from the sources used in this report.

Table 1. Statistics on Children's Work and Education

Children	Age	Percent
Working (% and population)	5 to 14	Unavailable
Attending School (%)	5 to 14	Unavailable
Combining Work and School (%)	7 to 14	Unavailable
Primary Completion Rate (%)		99.5

Source for primary completion rate: Data from 2016, published by UNESCO Institute for Statistics, 2019. (2) Data were unavailable from International Labor Organization's analysis, 2019. (3)

Based on a review of available information, Table 2 provides an overview of children's work by sector and activity.

Table 2. Overview of Children's Work by Sector and Activity

Sector/Industry	Activity
Agriculture	Cutting toddy palm trees for toddy (1) Fishing and harvesting clams (1)
Industry	Construction, cargo loading, and seafaring (1,3,4)
Services	Street work, including vending and working in kava bars (1,3) Domestic work (3)
Categorical Worst Forms of Child Labor‡	Commercial sexual exploitation aboard fishing vessels (4)

‡ Child labor understood as the worst forms of child labor per se under Article 3(a)-(c) of ILO C. 182.

During the reporting period, evidence indicated that a small number of underage girls were allegedly engaged in commercial sexual exploitation with crewmembers from foreign fishing vessels. In exchange, the girls received cash, alcohol, food, and goods. (4) Additionally, the government did not collect or publish data on child labor in 2018.

Children face barriers to accessing education due to associated costs and the lack of schools in remote areas. (1,3,5) Most children with disabilities do not have access to an education. (6)

II. LEGAL FRAMEWORK FOR CHILD LABOR

Kiribati has ratified all key international conventions concerning child labor (Table 3).

Kiribati

MINIMAL ADVANCEMENT

Table 3. Ratification of International Conventions on Child Labor

Convention	Ratification
 ILO C. 138, Minimum Age	✓
ILO C. 182, Worst Forms of Child Labor	✓
 UN CRC	✓
UN CRC Optional Protocol on Armed Conflict	✓
UN CRC Optional Protocol on the Sale of Children, Child Prostitution and Child Pornography	✓
 Palermo Protocol on Trafficking in Persons	✓

The government has established laws and regulations related to child labor (Table 4). However, gaps exist in Kiribati's legal framework to adequately protect children from the worst forms of child labor, including identification of hazardous occupations or activities prohibited for children and the prohibition of child trafficking.

Table 4. Laws and Regulations on Child Labor

Standard	Meets International Standards	Age	Legislation
Minimum Age for Work	Yes	14	Section 115 of the Employment and Industrial Relations Code (7)

Prohibition of Military Recruitment by Non-state Armed Groups	Yes		Sections 118(1)(e) of the Employment and Industrial Relations Code (7)
Compulsory Education Age	Yes	15	Section 7 of the Education Act (10)
Free Public Education	Yes		Section 11 of the Education Act (10)

Kiribati's penal code does not criminalize the use, procurement, or offering of children for pornography or pornographic performances. Kiribati's penal code also does not criminalize the use of children for prostitution and does not criminalize the procurement or offering of boys ages 15-18 for prostitution. (6,8) Additionally, as the minimum age for work is lower than the compulsory education age, children may be encouraged to leave school before the completion of compulsory education.

The government has not identified, by national law or regulations, the types of hazardous work prohibited for children. Under article 116 of the Employment and Industrial Relations Code, the laws do not specify the activities and hours of work per week that are acceptable for children engaged in light work, or the conditions under which light work can be undertaken. (7) Kiribati's laws prohibiting child trafficking are insufficient because they do not specifically prohibit the domestic trafficking of children. (7,9)

III. ENFORCEMENT OF LAWS ON CHILD LABOR

The government has established institutional mechanisms for the enforcement of laws and regulations on child labor (Table 5). However, gaps exist within the operations of the Ministry of Employment and Human Resources (MEHR) that may hinder adequate enforcement of their child labor laws.

Table 5. Agencies Responsible for Child Labor Law Enforcement

Organization/Agency	Role
Ministry of Employment and Human Resources (MEHR)	Enforces labor laws, including those related to child labor. (11)
Kiribati Police Force	Enforces criminal laws related to the worst forms of child labor. Investigates cases of human trafficking and sexual exploitation of children through a special Domestic Violence and Sexual Offenses Unit. (12)
Child Protection Officer, Ministry of Women, Youth and Social Affairs (MWYSA)	Removes children from harmful situations, including as a result of sexual exploitation and harsh or exploitative labor. (11,13) Assists with the implementation of the Children, Young People and Family Welfare Act. Coordinates the Safenet referral system. (4)

Labor Law Enforcement

In 2018, labor law enforcement agencies in Kiribati took actions to combat child labor (Table 6). However, gaps exist within the operations of the MEHR that may hinder adequate labor law enforcement, including labor inspector training.

Table 6. Labor Law Enforcement Efforts Related to Child Labor

During the reporting period, the government had resource and capacity constraints that restricted all services and activities. Additionally, the government's limited ability to inspect and report on child labor issues was further affected by geographical distances, isolation, sparse population, and Internet connectivity challenges. (4)

The government has a standard operating procedure that outlines how to conduct labor inspections, and includes a checklist template that requires information on the ages of all workers. (4)

Criminal Law Enforcement

Research did not find information on whether criminal law enforcement agencies in Kiribati took actions to combat child labor (Table 7).

Additionally, the government did not provide information for most of its criminal law enforcement efforts.

IV. COORDINATION OF GOVERNMENT EFFORTS ON CHILD LABOR

The government has established mechanisms to coordinate its efforts to address child labor (Table 8).

Table 8. Key Mechanisms to Coordinate Government Efforts on Child Labor

Coordinating Body	Role & Description
Kiribati National Human Rights Taskforce	Coordinates national UN reports. (4) MEHR and MWYSA are members. This taskforce was active during the reporting period. (15)

V. GOVERNMENT POLICIES ON CHILD LABOR

The government has established policies related to child labor (Table 9). However, policy gaps exist that hinder efforts to address child labor, including coverage of all worst forms of child labor.

Table 9. Key Policies Related to Child Labor

Policy	Description
Children, Young People, and Families Welfare System Policy, 2013	Focuses on strengthening the welfare system, in part, by implementing services to prevent the abuse, violence, neglect, and exploitation of children and young people, including in hazardous labor. (13) During the reporting period, launched the first Kiribati Women's and Children's Crisis Center, and developed the Safenet Interagency Protocol to strengthen its response to abuse, violence, and neglect of children and women. (16)
United Nations Pacific Strategy (2018–2022)†	A multinational strategic framework, comprising 14 South Pacific nations, created to address, develop, and implement strategic economic development priorities in the South Pacific, including eliminating child labor and the worst forms of child labor. (17) In 2018, provided technical assistance to ensure availability of quality coordinated services for women and children in response to abuse, violence, neglect, and exploitation. Supported Kiribati National Post-Secondary Readiness Taskforce to address school retention at secondary school level, and revised Technical and Vocational Education and Training (TVET) programs to ensure streamlining from secondary to tertiary levels. (16)

‡ The government had other policies that may have addressed child labor issues or had an impact on child labor. (18,19)

During the reporting period, the Government of Kiribati continued to support all existing anti-child labor policies; however, research found no evidence of a policy that focuses specifically on combating the worst forms of child labor. (4)

VI. SOCIAL PROGRAMS TO ADDRESS CHILD LABOR

In 2018, the government funded and participated in programs that included the goal of eliminating or preventing child labor (Table 10). However, gaps exist in these social programs, including adequacy to address the problem in all sectors.

Table 10. Key Social Programs to Address Child Labor

Program	Description
UNICEF Pacific Multi-Country Child Protection Program (2018–2022)*	Multi-country program in 14 Pacific Island countries. (20) Prioritize children's rights including the elimination of the worst forms of child labor. Aligned with the UN Pacific Strategy 2018-2022. (20)
Safenet†	Ministry of Women, Youth and Social Affairs-coordinated program that allows government, churches, and NGOs to provide assistance to victims found in exploitative and violent situations. (11, 14) During the reporting period, the government developed the Safenet Inter-agency Protocol to strengthen its response to abuse, violence, and neglect against children and women. (16)
Hotlines‡	Ministry of Women, Youth and Social Affairs and police-supported 24-hour hotline for children to report violations, request information, or obtain access to services. (12, 14) In addition, the Domestic Violence and Sexual Offenses Unit operates two 24-hour phone-line services for reporting exploitation and abuse. (21) This program was active during the reporting period. (15)

* Program was launched during the reporting period.

† Program is funded by the Government of Kiribati.

‡ The government had other social programs that may have included the goal of eliminating or preventing child labor. (4)

During the reporting period, through the 2016–2019 Educational Sector Strategic Plan and the Kiribati Education Improvement Program, the government is working to improve school infrastructure and standards. (4, 22, 23) Due to their efforts, from 2016–2017, two of the largest primary schools in South Tarawa and one on Kiritimati Island were rehabilitated. This included the refurbishing of classrooms, improved access to sanitation facilities and potable water, and improved access for children with disabilities. (4) Additionally, in 2018, the Government of Kiribati provided transportation to school for students in the outer islands, and in collaboration with the Australian government and UNICEF, the government has improved learning spaces, access, and sanitation at schools. (4)

Although the government has implemented Safenet and Hotlines programs to assist children in exploitative and abusive situations, research found no evidence that the government has carried out programs specifically designed to assist children who are working in construction and street vending.

VII. SUGGESTED GOVERNMENT ACTIONS TO ELIMINATE CHILD LABOR

Based on the reporting above, suggested actions are identified that would advance the elimination of child labor in Kiribati (Table 11).

Table 11. Suggested Government Actions to Eliminate Child Labor

Area	Suggested Action	Year(s) Suggested
Legal Framework	Determine the types of hazardous work prohibited for children, in consultation with employers' and workers' organizations.	2011 – 2018
	Ensure that the law specifies the activities and number of hours of work per week that are acceptable for children engaged in light work, and the conditions under which children can engage in light work.	2015 – 2018
	Ensure that the law specifically prohibits the domestic trafficking of children.	2015 – 2018
	Raise the minimum age for work to the age up to which education is compulsory.	2018
	Ensure that the Penal Code criminalizes the use, procuring, and offering of all children for prostitution, pornography, and pornographic performances.	2018
Enforcement	Institutionalize training for labor inspectors, including providing refresher courses.	2017 – 2018
	Collect and publish data on the enforcement of criminal laws prohibiting the worst forms of child labor, including information on refresher courses provided to investigators, the number of investigations performed, the number of violations found, the number of prosecutions initiated, the number of convictions, and the number of penalties imposed for violations.	2012 – 2018

Area	Suggested Action	Year(s) Suggested
Enforcement	Strengthen the labor inspectorate by initiating targeted inspections based on analysis of data related to risk-prone sectors and patterns of serious incidents.	2017 – 2018
	Ensure sufficient resources to support enforcement activities to eliminate the WFCL.	2018
	Institute a reciprocal referral mechanism between criminal authorities and social services.	2018
	Increase the number labor inspectors.	2018
Government Policies	Adopt a policy that addresses the worst forms of child labor.	2014 – 2018
Social Programs	Enhance efforts to eliminate barriers to education, and make education accessible for all children by alleviating school fees and increasing access to schools in remote locations.	2014 – 2018
	Ensure that children with disabilities are given access to education.	2018
	Collect and publish data on the extent and nature of child labor to inform policies and programs.	2017 – 2018
	Implement social programs to address all relevant forms of child labor, including in construction and street vending.	2017 – 2018
	Implement programs to address the issue of commercial sexual exploitation of young girls with crew members from foreign fishing vessels.	2018

In 2018, Kosovo made a moderate advancement to eliminate the worst forms of child labor. The government passed a new Criminal Code that prohibited the recruitment of children into non-state armed groups and increased penalties for producing, using, or involving children in the production, possession, or procurement of child pornography. Teachers in Prizren Municipality were also trained on identifying children at risk of being trafficked, and the Kosovo Police received child trafficking training, including on the use of children in commercial sexual exploitation and illicit activities. In addition, the government enacted a Children's Rights Action Plan for 2019 to 2021 that aims to improve the social, economic, and legislative rights of children. However, children in Kosovo engage in the worst forms of child labor, including in commercial sexual exploitation, sometimes as a result of human trafficking. Children also perform dangerous tasks in street work. The labor inspectorate and Centers for Social Welfare continue to face financial and human resource constraints that may impede their ability to adequately address child labor problems. In addition, human trafficking shelters lack sufficient funding to properly accommodate and treat child trafficking victims.

I. PREVALENCE AND SECTORAL DISTRIBUTION OF CHILD LABOR

Children in Kosovo engage in the worst forms of child labor, including in commercial sexual exploitation, sometimes as a result of human trafficking. Children also perform dangerous tasks in street work. (1-4) No recent data were available, but a Multiple Indicator Cluster Survey (MICS) conducted from 2013 to 2014 determined that 5,398 children in Kosovo were engaged in child labor. (5) A parallel MICS targeting the Roma, Ashkali, and Balkan Egyptian communities in Kosovo found that 2,168 children from these communities were engaged in child labor. (6) Table 1 provides key indicators on children's work and education in Kosovo. Data on some of these indicators are not available from the sources used in this report.

† Determined by national law or regulation as hazardous and, as such, relevant to Article 3(d) of ILO C. 182.

‡ Child labor understood as the worst forms of child labor per se under Article 3(a)–(c) of ILO C. 182.

Kosovo is a source and destination country for child trafficking, especially of girls. (3,4,15) Children are sometimes coerced into forced labor, such as in massage parlors by organized criminal groups. (3,4,16-18) Kosovo children and children from neighboring countries, especially Albania, are also subjected to forced begging, primarily in Prizren and Pristina, with most coming from the Roma, Ashkali, and Balkan Egyptian minority ethnic groups. (1,2,3,12,16,19-23) Economically vulnerable Kosovo children are also forced to work in construction and agriculture to support their families. (12)

Ashkali, Balkan Egyptian, and Roma children, especially girls, sometimes experience difficulty accessing education, because birth certification is required for attending school in Kosovo. (2,11,24-28) Some Ashkali, Balkan Egyptian, and Roma children have challenges obtaining a birth certificate, which makes school enrollment difficult. (2,29,30,28) Children who do not attend school are vulnerable to the worst forms of child labor. (31)

II. LEGAL FRAMEWORK FOR CHILD LABOR

Kosovo holds a unique status vis-à-vis UN recognition that complicates its ratification of international agreements (Table 3).

Table 3. Ratification of International Conventions on Child Labor

Convention	Ratification

UN CRC Optional Protocol on the Sale of Children, Child Prostitution and Child Pornography	N/A
 Palermo Protocol on Trafficking in Persons	N/A

Article 22 of Kosovo’s Constitution incorporates the UN CRC into its national legal framework. (32) Despite Kosovo’s unique status, the country works with the UN through the Common Development Plan (2016–2020), which is implemented by the UN Kosovo Team, focusing on promoting international standards and human rights. (67)

The government’s laws and regulations are in line with relevant international standards (Table 4).

‡ Age calculated based on available information (41)

The government approved the draft Law on Child Protection at its first reading in October 2018 and passed it in June 2019. (2,20,39,43-45) The law criminalizes violence, abuse, exploitation, and neglect of children, including using a child as a beggar, and prohibits the use of children in additional illicit activities. (17,39)

The government enacted a new Criminal Code that increased penalties for producing, using, or involving children in the production, possession, or procurement of child pornography. (2,3,37,46) In addition, it prohibits the recruitment of children by non-state armed groups. (37)

III. ENFORCEMENT OF LAWS ON CHILD LABOR

The government has established institutional mechanisms for the enforcement of laws and regulations on child labor (Table 5). However, gaps exist within the operations of the Ministry of Labor and Social Welfare (MLSW) and elsewhere in the government that may hinder adequate enforcement of their child labor laws.

Table 5. Agencies Responsible for Child Labor Law Enforcement

Organization/Agency	Role
Ministry of Labor and Social Welfare (MLSW) Labor Inspectorate	Conducts inspections to enforce child labor laws and refers all cases of children involved in hazardous work to MLSW Regional Centers for Social Work (CSWs). Through regional CSWs, provides social services to impacted children who are found begging or are victims of human trafficking, and compiles cases into a nationwide database. (14) The Department of Social Welfare removes children engaged in hazardous child labor. (47)
Kosovo Police (KP)	Enforces criminal laws on forced child labor and commercial sexual exploitation of children. Through the Anti-Trafficking Unit, enforces laws on child trafficking. (14,48) Operates under the Ministry of Internal Affairs (MOIA). (43)
Ministry of Justice	Enforces criminal laws on forced child labor, child trafficking, and commercial sexual exploitation of children through special anti-human trafficking coordinators and mechanisms. (48,49) In 2018, appointed a special coordinator for human trafficking in western Kosovo. (3)
Ministry of Education, Science, and Technology	Conducts education inspections on balance of students' school and work hours. (50)

MODERATE ADVANCEMENT

In 2018, the labor inspectorate (LI) and Kosovo Police (KP) Anti-Trafficking Unit continued to forward cases to Centers for Social Work (CSWs) or NGO-run human trafficking shelters, as needed. (2) However, there was limited inter-ministerial communication between the Ministry of Internal Affairs (MOIA) and MLSW. (15,51) The MOIA, MLSW, and NGOs expressed the limited capacity of CSWs to address cases of child labor due to limited human resource capacity, knowledge of child labor issues, and coordination with the MLSW. (2,10,12,21,23)

Labor Law Enforcement

In 2018, labor law enforcement agencies in Kosovo took actions to combat child labor (Table 6). However, gaps exist within the operations of the MLSW that may hinder adequate labor law enforcement, including training on child labor for labor inspectors.

Table 6. Labor Law Enforcement Efforts Related to Child Labor

Overview of Labor Law Enforcement	2017	2018

Reciprocal Referral Mechanism Exists Between Labor Authorities and Social Services	Yes (11)	Yes (2)

In 2018, inspections were conducted in the public and private sectors, with a special focus on the construction sector, an industry in which child labor is known to occur. (2,11) Labor inspectors have the authority to conduct inspections in all formal sectors, but they do not have the jurisdiction allowing them to investigate informal sectors. (2,11) The LI did not employ Serbian-speaking staff and did not conduct inspections in areas with ethnic Serb majorities. (2,10,15) Labor inspectors have the authority to inspect private farms; however, due to a lack of human resource capacity to adequately cover all sectors and regions, the CSWs, which also face human resource and budgetary constraints, typically conduct these inspections. (2,10,11,31,46,51,53)

The LI had an overall strategy for conducting child labor inspections and incorporated identification of child victims of human trafficking in its strategy for 2017–2021. (2,11,49,54,55) Labor inspectors receive initial training when hired; however, these trainings do not cover child labor as a separate category. (11,15) In 2018, the LI reported a lack of refresher trainings on child labor, including on hazardous child labor laws. (11,52,56)

The LI's mandate allows it to investigate for working children between ages 15 and 18 who have entered into an employment contract for a limited period of time. When child labor is discovered, the LI issues the penalty and works with the KP to remove the child from child labor. (2) During the reporting period, one violation was found and referred to the KP; however, according to NGO and media reports, the number of cases reported does not fully reflect the actual number of child labor cases. (2,12,15)

Criminal Law Enforcement

In 2018, criminal law enforcement agencies in Kosovo took actions to combat child labor (Table 7). However, gaps exist within the operations of the criminal enforcement agencies that may hinder adequate criminal law enforcement, including training for criminal investigators and prosecutors.

Table 7. Criminal Law Enforcement Efforts Related to Child Labor

Overview of Criminal Law Enforcement	2017	2018
Initial Training for New Criminal Investigators	Yes (11)	Yes (2)
Training on New Laws Related to the Worst Forms of Child Labor	N/A (11)	Yes (2)
Refresher Courses Provided	Yes (11)	Yes (2)
Number of Investigations	19 (49)	12 (3)
Number of Violations Found	19 (49)	12 (3)
Number of Prosecutions Initiated	Unknown (11)	Unknown (2)
Number of Convictions	Unknown (11)	Unknown (2)
Imposed Penalties for Violations Related to The Worst Forms of Child Labor	Unknown (15)	Unknown (15)
Reciprocal Referral Mechanism Exists Between Criminal Authorities and Social Services	Yes (11)	Yes (2)

During the reporting period, judges and prosecutors, including 22 newly appointed prosecutors, received training on anti-human trafficking. Teachers in Prizren Municipality were trained on identifying children at risk of being trafficked and the KP received child trafficking training, including on the use of children in commercial sexual exploitation and illicit activities. (2,3) The KP reported that resources and trainings for the KP related to child labor were sufficient in 2018. (2,3)

Legal training on human trafficking for prosecutors and judges was insufficient, causing inadequate prosecutions and incorrect legal application. (11,16,17,43,54) In addition, better supervision and standardized data collection of human trafficking cases, as well as specialization of prosecutors and judges, would improve the pace and quality of case processing. (3,22,31,54,55)

The KP systematically tracks the children referred to CSWs as a result of investigations conducted by its domestic violence and trafficking units. (11,30,48) However, CSWs reported the need for a shelter and short-term care services for child labor victims. (2) In addition, CSWs did not adequately identify cases of forced begging, which are typically classified as parental neglect or abuse. (3)

IV. COORDINATION OF GOVERNMENT EFFORTS ON CHILD LABOR

The government has established mechanisms to coordinate its efforts to address child labor (Table 8). However, gaps exist that hinder the adequate coordination of efforts to address child labor, including efficacy in accomplishing mandates.

Table 8. Key Mechanisms to Coordinate Government Efforts on Child Labor

Coordinating Body	Role & Description
Committee for Prevention and Elimination of Child Labor	Coordinates government policies to combat child labor. Oversees and provides policy guidance for activities to prevent and eliminate child labor. Comprises representatives of government agencies, the KP, trade unions, and an NGO. (47) Chaired by MLSW. (11) Active in 2018. (2,54)
Child Labor Monitoring System	Addresses child labor at the municipal level, identifies and provides existing child services, documents child labor trends, and evaluates local responses to child labor. (14)
National Agency Against Trafficking in Persons	Coordinates policy implementation, and monitors and reports on actions to combat child trafficking through a National Anti-Trafficking Coordinator (NATC). (16,56,57) NATC is a deputy Interior Minister. (15,52) Includes representatives from the government, judiciary, municipal offices, NGOs, and the international community. (43,52) Met regularly in 2018 with a focus on improving border collaboration on human trafficking with Albania and reviewing the National Action Plan. (3)
Municipal Local Action Committees	Prevent and eliminate child labor and report to the Child Labor Monitoring System. Members include representatives from schools, municipal education departments, and the KP. (29,47) Active in 2018. (54)

MODERATE ADVANCEMENT

In late 2013, the MLSW began using new software to collect and process data on labor violations and make these data available to all ministries and law enforcement bodies. (14) During the reporting period, however, the Child Labor Monitoring System continued to lack quality data analysis, and there was unsatisfactory data sharing between municipal authorities and the MLSW. (10,11,15,43,57)

V. GOVERNMENT POLICIES ON CHILD LABOR

The government has established policies related to child labor (Table 9). However, gaps exist that hinder efforts to address child labor, including funding to support the implementation of policies.

Table 9. Key Policies Related to Child Labor

Policy	Description
Children's Rights Action Plan (2019–2021)†	Aims to improve social, economic, and legislative rights and protection of children through developing institutions at the local and national levels. (54,58) Includes an accompanying Children's Rights Strategy (2019–2023). (54,58) The Strategy includes five objectives, one of which is the prevention, protection, and reintegration of child laborers. (54)
National Strategy and Action Plan Against Trafficking in Persons (2015–2019)	Aims to prevent and combat human trafficking by raising awareness, identifying victims, and strengthening criminal law enforcement. (59,60) In 2018, helped improve the government's ability to combat trafficking of children involved in begging and other illicit commerce. (2) The KP participated in raids, awareness campaigns, and trainings to combat child labor.
Strategy for the Inclusion of Roma and Ashkali Communities (2016–2020)	Focuses on employment, social issues, healthcare, and housing for the Ashkali and Roma communities. Aims to strengthen rights and full integration into society. (61) A special educational component promotes inclusive education for children from these communities. (62)
Kosovo Education Strategic Plan (2017–2021)	Emphasizes the inclusion of vulnerable minorities in the education system, especially for preschool children of the Roma, Ashkali, and Balkan Egyptian communities. Establishes regulations at the municipality level to facilitate preschool enrollment and raises awareness on school attendance and enrollment. (63) Active in 2018. (54)
Regulation on the Implementation of the Rights of Children Through a Child Friendly Municipal Governance System†	Protects and promotes the rights of children. (64) Ensures that municipalities are child friendly and guarantees that all children receive social services, education, and safety. (64) Includes a draft Strategy and Action Plan. (54,65) In 2018, the Regulation on the Implementation of the Rights of Children was approved at the local levels. (54)

† Policy was approved during the reporting period.

The government has not included child labor elimination and prevention strategies into the Strategy for the Inclusion of Roma and Ashkali Communities, and very little progress was made on the Strategy due to absence of political will and budget limitations. (15,52,54,66)

VI. SOCIAL PROGRAMS TO ADDRESS CHILD LABOR

In 2018, the government funded and participated in programs that include the goal of eliminating or preventing child labor (Table 10). However, gaps exist in these social programs, including funding.

Table 10. Key Social Programs to Address Child Labor

Program	Description
Measurement, Awareness-Raising, and Policy Engagement (MAPI6) Project on Child Labor and Forced Labor†	USDOL-funded global project implemented by the ILO to (1) improve the knowledge base on child labor, forced labor, and human trafficking; (2) improve awareness of these issues through the use of data-driven techniques; (3) strengthen policies and improve the capacity of governments and other stakeholders to combat child labor, forced labor, and human trafficking through national, regional, and global initiatives; and (4) strengthen partnerships to accelerate progress in combating child labor, forced labor, and human trafficking. In 2018, USDOL conducted a workshop to identify how to combat child labor in the country. (51) Additional information is available on the USDOL website.
Hope and Homes for Children†	Government-funded NGO shelter. Accommodates child victims of abuse or human trafficking. (53) Active in 2018 by caring for child victims of human trafficking. (53,54)
UN Common Development Plan (2016–2020)	Funded and implemented by the UN Kosovo Team. Focuses on promoting international standards and human rights safeguards of migrants and the social protection and educational inclusion of the Roma, Ashkali, and Balkan Egyptian communities. (67) Active in 2018. (54)

Program	Description
Hotline†	Government-operated hotline for victims of domestic violence and human trafficking. Increased the total number of operators from one to two in 2018. (3) In 2018, received 929 calls, 8 of which were related to human trafficking. (3)

† Program is funded by the Republic of Kosovo.

‡ The government had other social programs that may have included the goal of eliminating or preventing child labor. (3,68)

The government continued to support social assistance to at-risk families and provided free school meals and textbooks. (2) In addition, three municipalities established interagency case management roundtables, led by the CSWs, to encourage tackling child abuse at the local level. (2,21,69) However, Hope and Homes for Children and reintegration services for victims of human trafficking did not receive sufficient funding. (3,54)

VII. SUGGESTED GOVERNMENT ACTIONS TO ELIMINATE CHILD LABOR

Based on the reporting above, suggested actions are identified that would advance the elimination of child labor in Kosovo (Table 11).

Table 11. Suggested Government Actions to Eliminate Child Labor

Area	Suggested Action	Year(s) Suggested
Enforcement	Ensure that staff members at Centers for Social Work have sufficient capacity and resources, such as personnel and training, to address the specific needs of child labor victims and properly screen child beggars.	2018
	Publish information on labor and criminal law enforcement, including the number of child labor penalties imposed that were collected, number of criminal law enforcement prosecutions initiated, and number of convictions related to child labor.	2018
	Ensure mechanisms exist to enforce protections for children in the informal sector.	2017 – 2018
	Ensure that labor inspectors conduct child labor inspections on private farms and in areas with ethnic-Serb majorities.	2017 – 2018
	Incorporate topics on child labor in trainings for new employees and refresher courses, and ensure trainings on new child labor laws for all labor inspectors.	2017 – 2018
	Ensure that the penalties in the legal framework regulating the crime of human trafficking are correctly applied, including by providing training and supervision to prosecutors and judges on the legal framework for human trafficking cases.	2012 – 2018
Coordination	Increase inter-ministerial communication within the Ministry of Internal Affairs and between the Ministry of Internal Affairs and the Ministry of Labor and Social Welfare to adequately combat child labor and commercial sexual exploitation.	2012 – 2018
	Improve the capacity of the Child Labor Monitoring System to better analyze data on child labor and improve data sharing between municipal authorities and the Ministry of Labor and Social Welfare.	2013 – 2018
Government Policies	Integrate child labor elimination and prevention strategies into the Strategy for the Inclusion of Roma and Ashkali Communities.	2016 – 2018
	Fully fund and implement the Strategy for the Inclusion of Roma and Ashkali Communities so that victims of child labor receive sufficient social services.	2016 – 2018
Social Programs	Collect and publish data on the extent and nature of child labor to inform policies and programs.	2017 – 2018
	Make additional efforts to register Ashkali, Balkan Egyptian, and Roma children at birth.	2011 – 2018
	Fully fund and operate shelters that house child victims of trafficking for interviewing and accommodating child victims.	2016 – 2018

In 2018, the Kyrgyz Republic made a minimal advancement in efforts to eliminate the worst forms of child labor. The government continued evening classes for secondary school students in districts with high numbers of child laborers and a cash transfer program for families living in difficult situations. However, children in the Kyrgyz Republic engage in the worst forms of child labor, including in commercial sexual exploitation, sometimes as a result of human trafficking. Children also engage in child labor in agriculture. The government's child trafficking laws are not in line with international standards, and research indicates that the State Inspectorate on Ecological and Technical Safety employed an insufficient number of labor inspectors. In addition, the compulsory education age remained lower than the minimum age for work.

I. PREVALENCE AND SECTORAL DISTRIBUTION OF CHILD LABOR

Children in the Kyrgyz Republic engage in the worst forms of child labor, including in commercial sexual exploitation, sometimes as a result of human trafficking. (1-4) Children also engage in child labor in agriculture. (5-9) Table I provides key indicators on children's work and education in the Kyrgyz Republic.

Table I. Statistics on Children's Work and Education

Children	Age	Percent
Working (% and population)	5 to 14	33.9 (397,407)
Attending School (%)	5 to 14	86.5
Combining Work and School (%)	7 to 14	41.0
Primary Completion Rate (%)		103.8

Source for all other data: International Labor Organization's analysis of statistics from National Child Labour Survey, 2014. (11)

Based on a review of available information, Table 2 provides an overview of children's work by sector and activity.

Table 2. Overview of Children's Work by Sector and Activity

Sector/Industry	Activity
Agriculture	Cultivating cotton, tobacco,† rice, potatoes, sugar beets, and wheat (3,5-9,12-15) Raising cattle and sheep (3,8,12,13,16)
Industry	Coal mining† (3,9,12,13,16,17) Brick making (3,12,13,16) Construction, including lifting and portering construction materials, and cutting metal sheets for roofs (3,13,16-18)
Services	Working in bazaars, including loading and unloading goods, portering, collecting plastic bottles and garbage, and selling items, including food and newspapers (2,5,7,9,15,16,19-21) Washing cars (7,16) Working in restaurants and cafes, including serving food and washing dishes (5,12,16,22) Street work, including begging and shoe shining (1,12,14,15) Domestic work, including child care (1,2,6,9,14)
Categorical Worst Forms of Child Labor‡	Forced labor in raising cattle and sheep, sometimes as a result of human trafficking (3,9) Commercial sexual exploitation, sometimes as a result of human trafficking (1-4) Use in illicit activities, including trafficking drugs, as a result of human trafficking (4,23)

† Determined by national law or regulation as hazardous and, as such, relevant to Article 3(d) of ILO C. 182.

‡ Child labor understood as the worst forms of child labor per se under Article 3(a)-(c) of ILO C. 182.

Kyrgyz Republic

MINIMAL ADVANCEMENT

Hazardous child labor is most prevalent in the oblasts (provinces) of Naryn and Osh. (21) Children from the Kyrgyz Republic who travel to Kazakhstan to work, either with their parents or unaccompanied, cannot attend school due to lack of documentation. These children engage in child labor in Kazakhstan in construction, farming, herding, or selling products in the market; some fall victim to forced child labor. (24) There is some evidence that children migrate with their families to work in the cotton fields in Kazakhstan. (25)

The inability to enroll in school makes children from a variety of circumstances vulnerable to child labor. (3,20,26-28) According to UNICEF, an estimated 650,000–750,000 citizens of the Kyrgyz Republic work abroad, and an additional 1 million are internal migrants. (26,28) Some children, who are left behind when their parents migrate to work in other countries or other areas of the Kyrgyz Republic, could not access their birth certificates or guardianship documents, which are required for school enrollment. (5,12,26,28-30) Many ethnic Lyuli children, a group of approximately 3,500 Central Asian Roma people living in the Kyrgyz Republic, are also prevented from attending school due to not having the required documentation. (27,31) Similarly, many migrant children lack registration documents. (26) Children with disabilities and those living and working on the street also have difficulty accessing education. (3,20) According to the Ministry of Education and Science, residence registration is not required for children to attend school; however, research reports that some schools require residence registration, known as propiska, for school enrollment. (2,3,6,32)

II. Legal Framework for Child Labor

The Kyrgyz Republic has ratified all key international conventions concerning child labor (Table 3).

Table 3. Ratification of International Conventions on Child Labor

Convention	Ratification
 ILO C. 138, Minimum Age	✓
ILO C. 182, Worst Forms of Child Labor	✓
 UN CRC	✓
UN CRC Optional Protocol on Armed Conflict	✓
UN CRC Optional Protocol on the Sale of Children, Child Prostitution and Child Pornography	✓
 Palermo Protocol on Trafficking in Persons	✓

The government has established laws and regulations related to child labor (Table 4). However, gaps exist in the Kyrgyz Republic's legal framework to adequately protect children from the worst forms of child labor, including prohibition of child trafficking.

Table 4. Laws and Regulations on Child Labor

Standard	Meets International Standards	Age	Legislation
Minimum Age for Work	No	16	Article 18 of the Labor Code (26)
Minimum Age for Hazardous Work	Yes	18	Article 294 of the Labor Code; Article 15 of the Code on Children (26,27)
Identification of Hazardous Occupations or Activities Prohibited for Children	Yes		Article 294 of the Labor Code; Decree 314; Annex I of Decree 548 (26,29,33)
Prohibition of Forced Labor	Yes		Article 10 of the Labor Code; Article 15.2 of the Code on Children; Article 1 of the Law on Preventing and Combating Human Trafficking; Article 124 of the Criminal Code (26,27,30,31)
Prohibition of Child Trafficking	No		Article 1 of the Law on Preventing and Combating Human Trafficking; Article 124 of the Criminal Code (30,31)
Prohibition of Commercial Sexual Exploitation of Children	Yes		Article 157 of the Criminal Code; Articles 5 and 15 of the Code on Children (27,30)

Standard	Meets International Standards	Age	Legislation
Prohibition of Using Children in Illicit Activities	Yes		Articles 157, 247, 249, and 375 of the Criminal Code; Articles 5 and 15 of the Code on Children (27,30)
Minimum Age for Voluntary State Military Recruitment	Yes	18	Article 24.1 of the Law on Military Service (32)
Prohibition of Compulsory Recruitment of Children by (State) Military	Yes		Articles 17.1 and 22.1 of the Law on Military Service (32)
Prohibition of Military Recruitment by Non-state Armed Groups	Yes		Articles 124, 226–2, 229, and 375 of the Criminal Code (30)
Compulsory Education Age	No	15‡	Article 16 of the Law on Education (34)
Free Public Education	Yes		Article 16 of the Law on Education (34)

‡ Age calculated based on available information. (34)

According to Article 6 of the Labor Code, protections to children granted in the labor code, such as the minimum age of employment and prohibitions on hazardous work, are not extended to children engaged in non-contractual employment. (26)

The prohibitions against child trafficking are insufficient because they require threats, the use of force, or coercion to be established for the crime of child trafficking. (30,31)

Children in the Kyrgyz Republic are required to attend school only until grade nine, which is typically when they reach age 14 or 15. (5,6,35) This standard makes children ages 14 and 15 vulnerable to child labor because they are not required to be in school, but they also are not yet legally permitted to work.

III. ENFORCEMENT OF LAWS ON CHILD LABOR

The government has established institutional mechanisms for the enforcement of laws and regulations on child labor (Table 5). However, gaps exist within the authority of the State Inspectorate on Ecological and Technical Safety that may hinder adequate enforcement of their child labor laws.

Table 5. Agencies Responsible for Child Labor Law Enforcement

Organization/Agency	Role
State Inspectorate on Ecological and Technical Safety	Monitors work sites and refers child laborers to social services. Coordinates with the Inspectorate for Minors' Affairs in the Ministry of Internal Affairs, the Prosecutor General's Office, and regional State District Administration authorities to enforce child labor laws. (16)
Ministry of Internal Affairs, Inspectorate for Minors' Affairs	Enforce criminal laws related to child labor, including its worst forms. Conducts independent inspections and joint raids with the State Inspectorate on Ecological and Technical Safety to find neglected or abused children. Refers children to social institutions for care. (16)
Prosecutor General's Office	Enforces and applies labor-related laws, including labor inspections and investigations of child labor violations, in coordination with the State Inspectorate on Ecological and Technical Safety. (16)
Oblast Administration	Enforces child labor laws at the oblast (province) level. (16)
Ministry of Labor and Social Development	Serves as the key government agency for children's issues. Protects children and families in difficult living situations, including child laborers. Coordinates with oblast -level authorities to investigate violations of child labor laws. (16)

Labor Law Enforcement

In 2018, labor law enforcement agencies in the Kyrgyz Republic took actions to combat child labor (Table 6). However, gaps exist within the authority of the State Inspectorate on Ecological and Technical Safety that may hinder adequate labor law enforcement, including human resource allocation.

‡ Data are from January 1, 2018 to September 30, 2018.

In 2018, the State Inspectorate on Ecological and Technical Safety employed 30 labor inspectors. (37) The number of labor inspectors is likely insufficient for the size of the Kyrgyz Republic's workforce, which includes over 2.8 million workers. (41) According to the ILO's technical advice of a ratio approaching 1 inspector for every 20,000 workers in transitioning economies, the Kyrgyz Republic would employ about 142 labor inspectors. (20,42,43) The State Inspectorate on Ecological and Technical Safety acknowledged that the number of labor inspectors was inadequate to ensure appropriate enforcement of child labor laws. (20) According to the ILO, the Inspectorate lacked sufficient funding to carry out inspections. (16)

During the reporting period, the State Inspectorate on Ecological and Technical Safety identified 236 child laborers. Separately, investigators of the Inspectorate for Minors' Affairs of the Ministry of Internal Affairs identified 554 child laborers. (37)

As of January 1, 2019, a 2-year moratorium on labor inspections came into effect, as a result of which inspections can only be conducted in emergency situations, such as a case in which a worker's life is in danger. (44-46) The Prime Minister described the moratorium as a measure to "improve the business environment." (65)

Criminal Law Enforcement

In 2018, criminal law enforcement agencies in the Kyrgyz Republic took actions to combat child labor (Table 7). However, gaps exist within the operations of the criminal enforcement agencies that may hinder adequate criminal law enforcement, including training for criminal investigators.

Table 7. Criminal Law Enforcement Efforts Related to Child Labor

† Data are from January to September 2017.

In 2018, 46 judges, 49 prosecutors, and 91 police officers participated in trainings on human trafficking. The Ministry of Internal Affairs provided 600 officials with training to counter human trafficking. (48) During the reporting period, inspectors of the State Inspectorate on Ecological and Technical Safety identified 8 children engaged in the worst forms of child labor. Additionally, the Ministry of Internal Affairs' Inspectorate for Minors' Affairs identified 22 children engaged in worst forms of child labor. (37) The government also identified 36 child victims of human trafficking. (48) It is unclear whether these two sets of statistics overlap.

The government investigated cases of human trafficking involving children. (48) Five individuals were convicted of human trafficking charges during the reporting period; it is unclear whether these overlapped with cases of child trafficking. (48)

Reports suggest Kyrgyz police officers sexually exploit female trafficking victims, including some younger than age 18. Concerns persist about police misconduct, including allegations that police threaten and extort sex trafficking victims, including minors, and reports indicate that police accept bribes from alleged traffickers to drop cases. (4)

IV. COORDINATION OF GOVERNMENT EFFORTS ON CHILD LABOR

The government has established mechanisms to coordinate its efforts to address child labor (Table 8). However, gaps exist that hinder the effective coordination of efforts to address child labor, including coordination among agencies.

Table 8. Key Mechanisms to Coordinate Government Efforts on Child Labor

Coordinating Body	Role & Description
Children's Affairs Commission	Assesses the needs of children in difficult situations, including child laborers; creates individual development plans; and monitors service delivery. Members include social workers from regional Departments of Child Protection of the Ministry of Labor and Social Development and law enforcement authorities. (16) In 2018, the Commission met regularly to ensure implementation of individual action plan and service delivery, as described in the Regulations on the Procedure for the Identification of Children and Families in Difficult Situations. (16,40)
Coordination Council for Social Protection and Children's Rights	Develops policies to eliminate child labor. (49) Chaired by the Deputy Prime Minister, members include representatives from the Ministry of Labor and Social Development and three other ministries. (50,51) Met quarterly in 2018. (16)
Coordination Council on Migration	Monitors and combats human trafficking as a key priority. Chaired by the Deputy Prime Minister for Social Issues. Members include representatives from the Office of the President, government ministries, international organizations, and NGOs. (52) In 2018, the Council held 4 meetings. (48)

Based on available information, lack of nation-wide information sharing between government agencies and NGOs prevented stakeholders from identifying children at risk of human trafficking. (16)

V. GOVERNMENT POLICIES ON CHILD LABOR

The government has established policies related to child labor (Table 9). However, policy gaps exist that hinder efforts to address child labor, including implementation.

Table 9. Key Policies Related to Child Labor

Policy	Description
Inter-agency Action Plan on Measures to Prevent the Involvement of Children in the Worst Forms of Child Labor (2016–2018)	Aims to address the worst forms of child labor by identifying children at risk of child labor, including those in difficult living situations; providing social services; conducting awareness-raising campaigns, including seminars for social pedagogues and forums for children and their parents on hazardous work; sharing experiences and best practices with international organizations and NGOs; and creating a manual on child protection for labor inspectors. (53,54) In 2018, the Children's Affairs Commission implemented this plan. Social workers and law enforcement officers met regularly to ensure service delivery to children. (16)
Regulations on the Procedure for the Identification of Children and Families in Difficult Situations	Establishes the process for identifying children in difficult living situations, including those engaged in the worst forms of child labor. Receives complaints, conducts outreach activities, devises individual action plans, removes children from the worst forms of child labor, and provides financial and educational services. (40) The Children's Affairs Commission met regularly to consider individual cases of children and to ensure individual development plans are implemented within 6 months. (16,40)
National Action Plan to Combat Trafficking in Persons (2017–2020)	Improves legal framework on human trafficking; improves dissemination of information on human trafficking risks for migrants and vulnerable populations; raises awareness about protections for victims and criminal penalties for perpetrators; and improves coordination among government agencies, NGOs, and international partners. (55) In June, government agencies, in cooperation with international organizations, developed a standardized media plan to increase public awareness of human trafficking. During the reporting period, the government held a national campaign called "100 Days to Prevent Human Trafficking" to raise awareness about human trafficking that reached approximately 10,000 people through roundtable discussions, press conferences, song and dance contests, and TV programs. (48)

The government has not included child labor elimination and prevention strategies in the National Education Strategy and Roadmap on Out-of-School Children. (35,56)

VI. Social Programs to Address Child Labor

In 2018, the government funded and participated in programs that include the goal of eliminating or preventing child labor (Table 10). However, gaps exist in these social programs, including implementation and adequacy of programs to address the full scope of the problem.

Table 10. Key Social Programs to Address Child Labor

Program	Description
Combating Child Labor in Central Asia - Commitment Becomes Action (PROACT CAR Phase III) (2010–2018)	$4.57 million Government of Germany-funded 8-year project implemented by the ILO to mainstream child labor issues into national policies and legislation, build the capacity of stakeholders, and provide direct services to children withdrawn from the worst forms of child labor. (56,57) In 2018, the ILO held a 2-day event, in which 18 teams of information technology experts competed in creating a mobile application to help track the status of a case and included child labor identification, needs assessment, and recommendations for services. The Ministry of Labor and Social Development planned to test the app as a child labor monitoring system in a pilot program. (58)
Evening Classes for Child Laborers†	Government-funded program that provides evening classes to secondary school students in districts with high numbers of child laborers. (36) In 2018, the Bishkek Mayor's Office provided funding for the schools in Bishkek. (16)
Social Support for Children and Families in Difficult Living Situations†	Government-funded program to monitor places where children may be working, with a primary focus on bazaars, and to return these children to school. (59) Research did not find information about the implementation of this program in 2018.
Cash Transfer Program†	Government-funded cash transfer program for families living in difficult situations, including families with children engaged in child labor. (49) In 2018, the Ministry of Labor and Social Development continued to provide cash assistance to such families. However, based on available information, the amount of assistance appears to be low. (60)
Ministry of Education and Science National School Attendance Database†	Government-funded program implemented by the Ministry of Education and Science to pilot a national electronic database to track children who do not attend school. Following development and use throughout the country, database information is intended to be shared with the Ministry of Labor and Social Development to assist children engaged in child labor. (6) The database is meant to provide information to the Ministry of Internal Affairs on cases of criminal violations of child labor laws. In addition, school social pedagogues would use the database to work with families, ensuring that children attend school. (6) Research did not find information about the use of the database in 2018.

Program	Description
Support of Family and Protection of Children (2018–2028)†	Government-funded program that includes limited activities to address child labor, including revising Decree 314, the hazardous work list for children. Responsible for organizing competitive bids for projects, including one that will result in four new social services centers by 2020 for families and children in difficult living situations. Provides local administrations with income-generating ideas for families in difficult living situations. (61,62) Research did not find information about the implementation of this program in 2018.

† Program is funded by the Government of the Kyrgyz Republic.

‡ The government had other social programs that may have included the goal of eliminating or preventing child labor. (63,64)

Although the Kyrgyz Republic has programs that target child labor, the scope of these programs is insufficient to fully address the extent of the problem, particularly in commercial sexual exploitation as a result of human trafficking and in agriculture, including cultivating cotton.

VII. SUGGESTED GOVERNMENT ACTIONS TO ELIMINATE CHILD LABOR

Based on the reporting above, suggested actions are identified that would advance the elimination of child labor in the Kyrgyz Republic (Table 11).

Table 11. Suggested Government Actions to Eliminate Child Labor

Area	Suggested Action	Year(s) Suggested
Legal Framework	Ensure that the law's minimum age provisions and hazardous work prohibitions apply to all children, including those working without an employment contract.	2014 – 2018
	Ensure that child trafficking laws do not require an element of force or deception and are in accordance with international standards.	2015 – 2018
	Ensure that the age up to which education is compulsory is the same as the minimum age for work.	2014 – 2018
Enforcement	Publish information about the funding of the State Inspectorate; the number of labor inspections at worksites; the number of violations and penalties imposed and collected; information regarding whether inspections are targeted; and the number of convictions related to the worst forms of child labor.	2011 – 2018
	Strengthen the labor inspection system by providing child labor training for labor inspectors and new criminal investigators.	2014 – 2018
	Significantly increase the number of labor inspectors to meet the ILO's technical advice. Provide inspectors with adequate training and resources to conduct inspections.	2012 – 2018
	Lift the moratorium on labor inspections.	2018
	Ensure that criminal law enforcement agencies investigate and prosecute violations related to the worst forms of child labor, including cases of possible police complicity in abusing victims.	2015-2018
	Ensure nation-wide information sharing among stakeholders, including government agencies and NGOs, to identify and protect children at risk of human trafficking.	2018
Government Policies	Integrate child labor elimination and prevention strategies into the National Education Strategy and the Roadmap on Out-of-School Children.	2015 – 2018
Social Programs	Ensure that all children have access to free education, including Lyuli children, children with disabilities, those living and working on the street, and those without birth certificates and guardianship documents.	2009 – 2018
	Implement all social programs, including Social Support for Children and Families in Difficult Living Situations, the Ministry of Education and Science National School Attendance Database, and the Support of Family and Protection of Children program.	2016 – 2018
	Expand existing programs to address the scope of the child labor problem, particularly in commercial sexual exploitation as a result of human trafficking and in agriculture, including cultivating cotton.	2014 – 2018

In 2018, Lebanon made a moderate advancement in efforts to eliminate the worst forms of child labor. The Ministry of Education and Higher Education adopted the Policy for the Protection of Students in the School Environment to protect children's right to education. The government also issued a new regulation for Syrian refugee children ages 15 to 17 that improves their access to education. In addition, the President launched a children's choir to raise awareness on child labor and empower former child laborers. However, children in Lebanon engage in the worst forms of child labor, including in construction and in forced labor in agriculture. Children also engage in child labor in the production of potatoes and tobacco. The Ministry of Labor's budget was unable to cover equipment, personnel, and transport costs to conduct inspections, and labor inspectors do not have the authority to assess penalties. In addition, programs targeting child labor remained insufficient to fully address the extent of the problem.

I. PREVALENCE AND SECTORAL DISTRIBUTION OF CHILD LABOR

Children in Lebanon engage in the worst forms of child labor, including in construction and forced labor in agriculture. (1-4) Children also engage in child labor in the production of potatoes and tobacco. (2,3) Table 1 provides key indicators on children's work and education in Lebanon. Data on some of these indicators are not available from the sources used in this report.

	Forced labor in agriculture, sometimes as a result of human trafficking (1-4,13)
	Forced recruitment of children by non-state armed groups for use in armed conflict (37,38)

† Determined by national law or regulation as hazardous and, as such, relevant to Article 3(d) of ILO C. 182.

‡ Child labor understood as the worst forms of child labor per se under Article 3(a)–(c) of ILO C. 182.

Child labor has increased, and conditions that affect Lebanese and Syrian children have worsened since the influx of Syrian refugees into Lebanon starting in 2011. (14,18,39) As of December 2018, over 948,000 Syrian refugees in Lebanon were registered with UNHCR, and more than half of them were children. (40) Child labor is also prevalent in other refugee communities in Lebanon, including the Palestinian and Iraqi communities. (18,41)

Syrian girls are trafficked into Lebanon for commercial sexual exploitation under the guise of marriage. (4,20) Some boys are also subjected to commercial sexual exploitation, particularly boys who work and Kurdish boys from Syria. (20,42) Working on the streets is especially common among refugee children from Syria, including Palestinians from Syria. (26)

The UN reported that several armed groups recruited children to be used as guards or in support roles, such as in carrying weapons or food. (38)

Syrian children are also subjected to forced labor in agriculture. (1-4) Some Syrian refugee children and their families in the Bekaa Valley are kept in bonded labor in agriculture to pay for makeshift dwellings provided by landowners. (1,4,14,43) Adult Syrian refugees face legal restrictions that allow them to only work in agriculture, construction, and sanitation. (2,44) To work legally, they also need to be registered with the UNHCR or have local sponsors. (44) These restrictions on adults make children vulnerable to child labor. (13,45)

In the last few years, the government waived fees for public primary schools and opened second shifts in about 240 schools. (16) But the public school system in Lebanon lacks the capacity to accommodate the large number of school-age Syrian refugee children. (2,46) Some schools refuse to enroll students who lack documentation, contradicting the official policy. (18,47,48) Over 50 percent of Syrian refugee children and 35 percent of Palestinian refugee children were not enrolled in formal education. (27,48-50) Children in Lebanon, particularly Syrian refugee children, face barriers to accessing education, including the cost of transportation and supplies, occupation of schools by armed groups or use as shelters, fear of passing checkpoints or of violence, lack of private sanitation facilities for girls, discrimination, bullying, corporal punishment, and a different curriculum in Lebanon than in their country of origin. (3,16-18,49,51-55) Children with disabilities, particularly Syrians, are either denied access to schools or do not receive additional tailored services. (54) In addition, some refugee children from Iraq and Syria do not attend Lebanese schools because many classes are taught in French or English, and refugee children do not speak these languages. (51,55) Lebanese and refugee children who work in agriculture often do not attend school during harvesting and planting seasons. (56,57) One local organization observed a direct correlation between school dropout rates and an increase in child labor. (27)

II. LEGAL FRAMEWORK FOR CHILD LABOR

Lebanon has ratified most key international conventions concerning child labor (Table 3).

Table 3. Ratification of International Conventions on Child Labor

Convention	Ratification
 ILO C. 138, Minimum Age	✓
 ILO C. 182, Worst Forms of Child Labor	✓
 UN CRC	✓
 UN CRC Optional Protocol on Armed Conflict	✓
 UN CRC Optional Protocol on the Sale of Children, Child Prostitution and Child Pornography	✓
 Palermo Protocol on Trafficking in Persons	✓

The government has established laws and regulations related to child labor (Table 4). However, gaps exist in Lebanon's legal framework to adequately protect children from the worst forms of child labor, including the prohibition of debt bondage.

Table 4. Laws and Regulations on Child Labor

Standard	Meets International Standards	Age	Legislation
Minimum Age for Work	Yes	14	Article 22 of the Labor Code (58)
Minimum Age for Hazardous Work	Yes	18	Article 1 of Decree No. 8987 (59)
Identification of Hazardous Occupations or Activities Prohibited for Children	Yes		Annex 1 of Decree No. 8987 (2,59)
Prohibition of Forced Labor	No		Article 8 of Decree No. 3855; Article 569 of the Penal Code (60,61)
Prohibition of Child Trafficking	Yes		Articles 586.1 and 586.5 of the Penal Code (61)
Prohibition of Commercial Sexual Exploitation of Children	Yes		Articles 507–510, 523–527, 586.1, and 586.5 of the Penal Code (61)
Prohibition of Using Children in Illicit Activities	Yes		Articles 586.1, 586.5, and 618 of the Penal Code (61)
Minimum Age for Voluntary State Military Recruitment	Yes	18	Article 30 of the National Defense Law (62)
Prohibition of Compulsory Recruitment of Children by (State) Military	N/A*
Prohibition of Military Recruitment by Non-state Armed Groups	Yes		Article 586.1 of the Penal Code; Annex 1 of Decree No. 8987 (59,61)
Compulsory Education Age	Yes	15‡	Article 49 of the Education Law (63)
Free Public Education	Yes		Article 49 of the Education Law (63)

* No conscription (64)

‡ Age calculated based on available information (41)

In Lebanon, basic education is compulsory. (63) Children generally complete basic education at age 15. (41) As the minimum age for work is lower than the compulsory education age, children may be encouraged to leave school before the completion of compulsory education.

Laws related to forced labor are insufficient because there is no legislative provision that provides criminal penalties for the exaction of forced labor, and debt bondage is not criminally prohibited. (61,65)

Government officials have clarified that although Article 610 of the Penal Code criminalizes begging, Article 26 of the Delinquent Juveniles Law, which takes precedence over the Penal Code, stipulates that in cases of begging, the child is considered in danger and entitled to receive protective measures. (61,66,67)

III. ENFORCEMENT OF LAWS ON CHILD LABOR

The government has established institutional mechanisms for the enforcement of laws and regulations on child labor (Table 5). However, gaps exist within the authority of the Ministry of Labor that may hinder adequate enforcement of their child labor laws.

Table 5. Agencies Responsible for Child Labor Law Enforcement

Organization/Agency	Role
Ministry of Labor	Enforces child labor laws through desk review and workplace inspections. Acts as government focal point for child labor issues and hosts the National Steering Committee on Child Labor. (2) The Ministry's Child Labor Unit raises public awareness about child labor and the right to education. Receives complaints on child labor violations on its Child Labor Unit hotline. (2)
Internal Security Forces	Enforces laws regarding child labor through the Anti-Human Trafficking and Morals Protection Bureau. (2)
Ministry of Justice	Prosecutes violations of the Penal Code in coordination with the Internal Security Forces. Maintains general data and statistics on criminal violations involving child labor. (2) Refers at-risk children to shelters and protection services. Coordinates, through signed agreements, with civil society organizations to provide social workers that oversee court proceedings involving juveniles and deliver services to them, including children engaged in begging. (2)
Ministry of Social Affairs	Refers children identified by the Internal Security Forces and the Ministry of Justice to protective institutions, such as health centers. Refers children to shelters through its Higher Council for Childhood. (2)
Directorate of General Security	Focuses on immigration and border protection. Works with farmers union to address child labor in agriculture. (2)

According to local observers, the Ministry of Labor's hotline is not fully functional and works for a limited number of hours on official workdays. It does not have a system to register incoming calls. (27)

Labor Law Enforcement

In 2018, labor law enforcement agencies in Lebanon took actions to combat child labor (Table 6). However, gaps exist within the authority of the Ministry of Labor that may hinder adequate labor law enforcement, including penalty assessment authorization.

Table 6. Labor Law Enforcement Efforts Related to Child Labor

In 2018, the Ministry of Labor and the Directorate of General Security held extensive training on issues, including child labor. However, based on available information, the Ministry did not cover the costs of equipment and transportation needed by labor inspectors to carry out their duties. (2) Child labor inspections are generally a result of a complaint, particularly in the formal sector. However, based on available information, child labor is nearly non-existent in the formal sector. (2,18,70) Research could not identify the number of labor inspectors in 2018, but there were 45 labor inspectors in Lebanon in 2017. (2,27) The number of labor inspectors is likely insufficient for the size of Lebanon’s workforce, which includes over 2.1 million workers. (71) According to the ILO’s technical advice of 1 inspector for every 15,000 workers in developing economies, Lebanon would employ roughly 144 labor inspectors. (72,73)

The government does not publicly release information on its labor law enforcement efforts. (2)

Criminal Law Enforcement

In 2018, criminal law enforcement agencies in Lebanon took actions to combat child labor (Table 7). However, gaps exist within the operations of the criminal enforcement agencies that may hinder adequate criminal law enforcement, including the allocation of financial resources.

Table 7. Criminal Law Enforcement Efforts Related to Child Labor

Overview of Criminal Law Enforcement	2017	2018

In 2018, the Internal Security Forces provided training to officers on investigative procedures and protection of at-risk children. It also provided initial training on countering human trafficking. (2) The Internal Security Forces, the Lebanese Armed Forces, and the Directorate of General Security received training on countering human trafficking. (76)

The government investigated 26 cases, but it is unknown how many of these were related to criminal violations of child labor laws. (2) The government also prosecuted cases of forced begging among Syrian children, but the number of prosecutions is unavailable because there is no centralized record system in the Ministry of Justice. (76)

The Ministry of Justice stated that a lack of sufficient human resources hindered the government’s ability to address child labor. (18) The Internal Security Forces stated they needed additional information technology equipment. (2)

The government does not publicly release information on its criminal law enforcement efforts. (2)

IV. COORDINATION OF GOVERNMENT EFFORTS ON CHILD LABOR

The government has established mechanisms to coordinate its efforts to address child labor (Table 8).

Table 8. Key Mechanisms to Coordinate Government Efforts on Child Labor

Coordinating Body	Role & Description
National Steering Committee on Child Labor	Raises awareness; coordinates efforts among government agencies; establishes standard practices; develops, enforces, and recommends changes; and ensures that government agencies comply with the law. Led by the Minister of Labor, includes representatives from six other ministries and other institutions and international organizations. (18) The Committee met once in 2018, but canceled a subsequent meeting due to the absence of a Minister of Labor. (2)

Lebanon

Coordinating Body	Role & Description
National Steering Committee on Trafficking in Persons	Coordinates efforts against human trafficking, including child trafficking. Based at the Ministry of Labor and meets on a monthly basis. (18) In 2018, the Committee met every month. (76)
UNICEF and UNHCR	Coordinate efforts to address the needs of children affected by the Syrian refugee crisis in Lebanon. Maintain interagency standards for child protection. The UN representatives identify crucial concerns, including factors that make children vulnerable to child labor. Make recommendations to the government on the use of resources, including referral services. (18) In 2018, UN agencies and international and local NGOs coordinated child protection efforts through Child Protection Working Groups. (2)

V. GOVERNMENT POLICIES ON CHILD LABOR

The government has established policies related to child labor (Table 9). However, policy gaps exist that hinder efforts to address child labor, including implementation.

Table 9. Key Policies Related to Child Labor

Policy	Description
National Action Plan on the Elimination of the Worst Forms of Child Labor (2013–2019)	Establishes strategies for addressing child labor, including improving enforcement of child labor laws and expanding access to education. (43,77) In 2018, the President, working with the ILO and the NGO Beyond, established the National Choir Against Child Labor, made up of 180 children who have previously been engaged in child labor. The children's choir is meant to empower children, encourage them to stay in school, and advocate against child labor. (2,78)
Work Plan to Prevent and Respond to the Association of Children with Armed Violence in Lebanon	Provides the policy framework for the prevention of children's involvement in armed conflict. (53) Research was unable to determine whether activities were undertaken to implement this policy during the reporting period. However, based on available information, approximately 40 children were kept in detention centers for previous activities related to armed conflict. (2)
Policy for the Protection of Students in the School Environment†	Protects children's right to education and promotes non-violence in schools by establishing mechanisms to receive complaints of violence, mistreatment, and bullying and addresses those cases while safeguarding children's privacy. Trains school staff and officials on identifying risk factors. (79,80) In 2018, the Ministry of Education and Higher Education, in cooperation with UNICEF, trained 55 Ministry employees and 600 points-of-contact in 300 schools on their roles in the implementation of this policy. (79)

† Policy was approved during the reporting period.

VI. SOCIAL PROGRAMS TO ADDRESS CHILD LABOR

In 2018, the government funded and participated in programs that include the goal of eliminating or preventing child labor (Table 10). However, gaps exist in these social programs, including adequacy of programs to address the full scope of the problem.

Table 10. Key Social Programs to Address Child Labor

Program	Description
Child Protection Program	Joint program by UNICEF and the Ministry of Social Affairs. Addresses child labor through interventions, including psychological counseling; raising awareness among employer; and working with employers to decrease working hours for children and improve working conditions. (81) In 2018, UNICEF worked with government agencies and civil society organizations to provide case management and psychosocial support to children, including children working on the streets. The Ministry of Social Affairs, along with civil society organizations and UNICEF, launched a child protection information management system and a free electronic training course intended to educate frontline social workers on child protection and case management issues. (2,79) UNICEF also worked with partners in the city of Tripoli to ensure that vulnerable children received services such as conditional cash transfer and income-generating activities for their parents. (2)
Country Level Engagement and Assistance to Reduce Child Labor (CLEAR)	USDOL-funded capacity-building project implemented by the ILO. Aims to improve enforcement of child labor laws and policies in Lebanon. (34) In 2018, the Ministry of Labor worked with the ILO to hold a national workshop to train labor inspectors and other government officials on Decree No. 8987 on hazardous child labor. Engaging with key national and international stakeholders, the project helped revise the National Action Plan on the Elimination of the Worst Forms of Child Labor to include Syrian children. (34) The revised National Action Plan was pending adoption due to the lack of a Minister of Labor. The project, working with the NGO Beyond, trained 300 children on how to advocate against child labor among their peers and raise awareness in the community about the negative consequences of child labor. (34) For additional information, please see the USDOL website.

Program	Description
Reaching All Children through Education (RACE II) (2017–2021)	Donor-funded 5-year project, implemented by the Ministry of Education and Higher Education and partners to ensure quality education opportunities for children ages 3 to 18, regardless of nationality, through holistic interventions that address the demand and availability of quality public education, including non-formal education. (82) In 2018, the program covered school fees and provided remedial and homework support activities for Lebanese and non-Lebanese children. (2)
National Poverty Alleviation Program†	Funded by the government and foreign donors, this Ministry of Social Affairs program pays school tuition and book costs for 74,000 families living in extreme poverty. (41) Research was unable to determine what steps were taken in 2018 in the implementation of this program.

In 2018, Lebanon adopted a new regulation to allow Syrian refugee children, who turn ages 15 to 18 after entering Lebanon, to obtain residency by presenting their Syrian individual status record instead of a passport or national identity card. This regulation enables access to education for these children. (83)

The scarcity of shelters for child trafficking victims results in some children being placed in juvenile detention centers. (57) The lack of shelters and resources to handle child labor and human trafficking cases puts children at a heightened risk of further exploitation. (33) Although Lebanon has programs that target child labor, the scope of these programs is insufficient to fully address the extent of the problem, including in forced child labor in agriculture and construction.

VII. SUGGESTED GOVERNMENT ACTIONS TO ELIMINATE CHILD LABOR

Based on the reporting above, suggested actions are identified that would advance the elimination of child labor in Lebanon (Table 11).

Table 11. Suggested Government Actions to Eliminate Child Labor

Area	Suggested Action	Year(s) Suggested
Legal Framework	Accede to the CRC Optional Protocol on Armed Conflict, which the government signed in 2002.	2013 – 2018
	Raise the minimum age for work to the age up to which education is compulsory.	2018
	Ensure that forced labor and debt bondage are criminally prohibited.	2015 – 2018
Enforcement	Ensure that there is an adequate mechanism to receive and log child labor complaints and refer them for investigation.	2017 – 2018
	Track and publish information on labor law enforcement, including the number of labor inspectors and inspections.	2009 – 2018
	Authorize the labor inspectorate to assess penalties.	2015 – 2018
	Provide Ministry of Labor inspectors with proper funding and necessary transportation, and ensure that they are able to conduct labor inspections in areas where child labor is prevalent, including the informal sector.	2011 – 2018
	Increase the number of labor inspectors to meet the ILO's technical advice.	2016 – 2018
	Publish information on criminal enforcement of child labor laws.	2009 – 2018
	Ensure that criminal law enforcement agencies have necessary funding, human resources, and equipment to investigate and prosecute criminal cases of child labor, in accordance with the law.	2017 – 2018
Government Policies	Ensure that the Work Plan to Prevent and Respond to the Association of Children with Armed Violence in Lebanon is implemented, and that children previously associated with armed conflict receive social and rehabilitation services rather than being detained.	2017 – 2018
Social Programs	Build on current efforts to improve access to public education for all children.	2010 – 2018
	Ensure that the National Poverty Alleviation Program is implemented.	2017 – 2018
	Increase the number of shelters for child victims of human trafficking and other forms of child labor.	2013 – 2018
	Expand programs to fully address the extent of child labor.	2013 – 2018

In 2018, Lesotho made a moderate advancement in efforts to eliminate the worst forms of child labor. The Ministry of Labor and Employment assigned labor inspectors to operate a Child Labor Desk within the ministry, and provided recommendations that supported the expansion of inspections into the informal sector. However, children in Lesotho continue to engage in the worst forms of child labor, including in animal herding, domestic work, and commercial sexual exploitation, each sometimes as a result of human trafficking. Lesotho's compulsory education age is below the minimum age for work, leaving children in between these ages vulnerable to child labor. The government lacks sufficient mechanisms to combat child labor, and labor inspections are not conducted in high-risk sectors, including the informal sector.

I. PREVALENCE AND SECTORAL DISTRIBUTION OF CHILD LABOR

Children in Lesotho engage in the worst forms of child labor, including in animal herding, domestic work, and commercial sexual exploitation, each sometimes as a result of human trafficking. (1,2) Table 1 provides key indicators on children's work and education in Lesotho. Data on some of these indicators are not available from the sources used in this report.

Table 1. Statistics on Children's Work and Education

Children	Age	Percent
Working (% and population)	5 to 14	28.1 (124,632)
Attending School (%)	5 to 14	80.7
Combining Work and School (%)	7 to 14	25.3
Primary Completion Rate (%)		78.9

Source for primary completion rate: Data from 2016, published by UNESCO Institute for Statistics, 2018. (3)

Source for all other data: International Labor Organization's analysis of statistics from Multiple Indicator Cluster Survey 2, 2000. (4)

Based on a review of available information, Table 2 provides an overview of children's work by sector and activity.

Table 2. Overview of Children's Work by Sector and Activity

Sector/Industry	Activity
Agriculture	Herding animals, including cattle† (1,2)
	Farming, including planting, applying pesticides, and harvesting (5-9)
Services	Domestic work (1,2,10)
	Street work, including vending, and trading (5,8)
Categorical Worst Forms of Child Labor‡	Commercial sexual exploitation, domestic work, and animal herding, each sometimes as a result of human trafficking (1,2)
	Use in illicit activities, including burglary and theft (5,6)

† Determined by national law or regulation as hazardous and, as such, relevant to Article 3(d) of ILO C. 182.

‡ Child labor understood as the worst forms of child labor per se under Article 3(a)–(c) of ILO C. 182.

Lesotho is a source, transit, and destination country for human trafficking. Children in Lesotho are subjected to commercial sexual exploitation and forced to work as domestic workers and animal herders, each sometimes as a result of human trafficking. Children involved in animal herding are exposed to harsh weather conditions, sometimes leading to death. (1,2,6) Children, especially orphans, sometimes voluntarily travel to South Africa for domestic work, and upon arrival are subsequently detained in prison-like conditions and sexually exploited. (1,6) During the reporting period, one case of child trafficking was reported. (1)

The government has published no data on the prevalence of child labor, including its worst forms. Statistics from a Multiple Indicator Cluster Survey and Labor Force Survey (including a child labor module) are scheduled for release in 2019. (1,5)

The Lesotho Population-based HIV Impact Assessment reported in 2017 that the HIV rate in adults (ages 15–59) was 25.6 percent, the second-highest HIV rate in adults worldwide. (5,11) Many children in Lesotho become orphans due to the high rate of HIV among adults and are vulnerable to trafficking. (1,2,9,12-14) Children, mostly orphans driven by poverty, migrate from rural to urban areas to engage in commercial sexual exploitation. (9)

Many children face limited access to education due to a shortage of teachers and schools, causing them to travel long distances. In Lesotho, primary education is free; however, secondary education incurs a fee that is cost prohibitive for many families. (1) Children with disabilities encounter difficulties with ill-equipped educational facilities and untrained teachers. (15) These factors increase a child’s vulnerability to the worst forms of child labor, such as human trafficking.

UNICEF reported a 45 percent rate in birth registrations. NGOs confirmed that the low number of birth registrations results in children becoming stateless. (16,17) In 2018, the Ministry of Home Affairs deployed officers at various hospitals and clinics to register births and partnered with UNICEF to register births at select schools. During the reporting period, the number of registered children from 0 to 15 years went from 53,377 in 2017 to 62,736 in 2018. (1)

II. Legal Framework for Child Labor

Lesotho has ratified all key international conventions concerning child labor (Table 3).

Table 3. Ratification of International Conventions on Child Labor

Convention	Ratification
 ILO C. 138, Minimum Age	✓
ILO C. 182, Worst Forms of Child Labor	✓
 UN CRC	✓
UN CRC Optional Protocol on Armed Conflict	✓
UN CRC Optional Protocol on the Sale of Children, Child Prostitution and Child Pornography	✓
 Palermo Protocol on Trafficking in Persons	✓

The government has established laws and regulations related to child labor (Table 4). However, gaps exist in Lesotho’s legal framework to adequately protect children from the worst forms of child labor, including with regard to the compulsory education age.

Table 4. Laws and Regulations on Child Labor

Standard	Meets International Standards	Age	Legislation
Minimum Age for Work	Yes	15	Article 124(1) of the Labour Code; Article 228(1) of the Children’s Protection and Welfare Act (18,19)

* No conscription (18)

‡ Age calculated based on available information (24)

Education is compulsory in Lesotho through age 13, which makes children age 14 particularly vulnerable to child labor because they are not required to be in school and have not reached the minimum age for work. (12,19)

III. ENFORCEMENT OF LAWS ON CHILD LABOR

The government has established institutional mechanisms for the enforcement of laws and regulations on child labor (Table 5). However, gaps exist within the operations of these mechanisms that may hinder adequate enforcement of their child labor laws.

Table 5. Agencies Responsible for Child Labor Law Enforcement

Organization/Agency	Role
Ministry of Labor and Employment (MOLE)	Enforces minimum age requirements under child labor laws, including for hazardous occupations. Assesses compliance with child labor laws as part of general labor inspections. (25,26)
National Police, Child and Gender Protection Unit (CGPU)	Investigates criminal child labor violations and works in conjunction with MOLE to enforce child labor laws, including those related to hazardous and forced child labor, commercial sexual exploitation, and child trafficking. (25,27)
Public Prosecutor's Office	Prosecutes child labor law offenders. (25)
Children's Court	Enforces criminal laws related to the worst forms of child labor. (25)

In 2018, the Ministry of Labor and Employment (MOLE) updated the Lesotho Labor Code pending validation. (1) The draft labor code includes a minimum age for labor of 15 and strengthens provisions to combat the worst forms of child labor. The Ministry for Social Development submitted drafting instructions to the Parliamentary Council for amendment of the Children's Protection and Welfare Act of 2011. (1) These recommendations supported the authorization of the labor inspectorate to conduct inspections in the informal sector; however, at this time it has not been implemented. (5)

Labor Law Enforcement

In 2018, labor law enforcement agencies in Lesotho took actions to combat child labor (Table 6). However, gaps exist within the operations of MOLE that may hinder adequate labor law enforcement, including insufficient resource allocation.

‡ Data are from April 1, 2018 to November 1, 2018.

In 2018, labor law enforcement agencies in Lesotho participated in trainings and workshops to combat child labor. Two labor inspectors were assigned to the Child Labor Desk within MOLE and held awareness-raising campaigns in four districts in Lesotho on the causes of child labor and prevention measures. (1) Reports indicate that funding is inadequate for the labor inspectorate to carry out investigations. (12,28)

Criminal Law Enforcement

In 2018, criminal law enforcement agencies in Lesotho took actions to combat child labor (Table 7). However, gaps exist within the operations of the criminal enforcement agencies that may hinder adequate criminal law enforcement, including coordination of efforts to address child labor, jurisdictional challenges within courtrooms, limited funding and personnel, and a complicated network of stakeholders. (2)

Table 7. Criminal Law Enforcement Efforts Related to Child Labor

The National Police's CGPU does not have guaranteed funding; rather, it receives funding from the general operation budget of the National Police. Reports indicate that the CGPU receives insufficient or no funding to carry out child labor investigations. (8,12,25) There is also no evidence of any funding for combating child labor being provided to Public Prosecutor's Office, or the Children's Court. (1)

In 2018, 69 immigration and police officers received training on integrated border management and counter-trafficking through the Government of Japan's Border Security and Management Project. (1) In addition, 585 community members and 6,444 students at border towns in Mafeteng and Qacha's Nek also received training on counter-trafficking. (1)

IV. COORDINATION OF GOVERNMENT EFFORTS ON CHILD LABOR

The government has established mechanisms to coordinate its efforts to address child labor (Table 8). However, gaps exist that hinder the effective coordination of efforts to address child labor, including efficacy in accomplishing mandates.

Table 8. Key Mechanisms to Coordinate Government Efforts on Child Labor

Coordinating Body	Role & Description
Program Advisory Committee on Child Labor (PACC)/National Task Team	Led by MOLE's Child Labor Unit, the team includes representatives from government ministries, trade unions, NGOs, and international organizations. (25) In 2018, PACC convened four times to develop a new Action Plan on the Elimination of Child Labor. (1)
National Orphans and Vulnerable Children Coordinating Committee (NOCC)*	Strengthens coordination on issues related to orphans and vulnerable children at the national level. In 2018, the Committee conducted quarterly meetings. (1)
Multi-Sectoral Committee on Combating Trafficking in Persons	Spearheads anti-trafficking in persons initiatives and approves legislation and policies to prevent human trafficking. Chaired by the Commissioner of Refugees, includes government ministries; local government members; and representatives from NGOs, international organizations, and faith-based organizations. (29) In 2018, the committee participated in the development of the National Development Strategic Plan II that includes goals for addressing child labor and social factors that make children vulnerable. (1,30)
District Child Protection Teams	Coordinates child protection matters, including child labor, at the district level. Led by the Ministry of Social Development, include representatives from the government, private sector, NGOs, and community support groups. (25) In 2018, District Child Protection Teams met and held training sessions. The teams also referred cases of child labor and child trafficking to authorities. (31)
Community Coordination Teams*	Monitors, addresses, and refers instances of at-risk children or those involved in hazardous work. (1) Research was unable to determine whether Community Coordination Teams were active in 2018.

* Mechanism to coordinate efforts to address child labor was created during the reporting period.

In 2018, the Bureau of Statistics worked on finalizing a Multiple Cluster Survey and Labor Force Survey, which includes a child labor module. MOLE, Ministry of Social Development, and NGOs held a knowledge-sharing workshop to educate key stakeholders on child labor. (1)

V. GOVERNMENT POLICIES ON CHILD LABOR

The government has established policies related to child labor (Table 9). However, policy gaps exist that hinder efforts to address child labor, including implementing a new national child labor action plan.

Table 9. Key Policies Related to Child Labor

Policy	Description
National Anti-Trafficking in Persons Strategic Framework and Action Plan (2013–2018)	Supported the national and international obligations and commitments regarding human trafficking, in support of the vision to eliminate all forms of trafficking in persons in Lesotho. Provided victim protection, successful arrests and prosecutions of offenders, and preventive measures. (32) In 2018, the office of the Commissioner of Refugees held sensitization sessions with villages near the border posts in Qacha's Nek and Mafeteng districts. (1) In addition, two billboards were erected at border crossings to raise awareness on the signs of human trafficking, and informational pamphlets were printed in Sesotho and distributed. (1,2)
National Strategic Plan on Vulnerable Children (2012–2018)	Safeguarded the rights of orphans and vulnerable children to an education, promoted access to apprenticeships and vocational and life skills programs for orphans and vulnerable children, and implemented child labor prevention programs. (34,35) Research could not determine whether activities were undertaken for this program during the reporting period.
Lesotho UNDP (2013–2018)	Included actions to build the capacity of the government, social partners, and civil society to eliminate child labor. Promoted education for children, supported youth employment, and built the government's capacity to provide social welfare services to vulnerable children. (36) In 2018, UNDP assisted the Bureau of Statistics in increasing its data collection capacity, including gathering data for the development of a Labor Survey that incorporates a child labor module. (1)

Policy	Description
Kingdom of Lesotho: Poverty Reduction Strategy Paper—National Strategic Development Plan (2012/2013–2016/2017)	Identified child protection services (CGPU, social welfare, health, and the justice system) and their capacity to respond adequately to cases of violence, abuse, and exploitation of children, including child labor. Outlined prevention measures. (1,37) In 2018, communities engaged in child labor awareness and established two radio programs on child labor protection and prevention measures. District teams attended four meetings. (1)

Although the government released a draft labor policy in 2018 that proposed harmonizing existing legislation with international labor standards regarding child labor, the Cabinet has yet to approve the policy. (1,5) The government made some progress toward drafting a new National Action Plan for the Elimination of Child Labor, replacing the previous policy that expired in 2017, by convening the Program Advisory Committee on Child Labor. (1) However, the government has not included child labor elimination and prevention strategies in existing policies, such as the Education Sector Strategic Plan. (38)

VI. SOCIAL PROGRAMS TO ADDRESS CHILD LABOR

In 2018, the government funded and participated in programs that include the goal of eliminating or preventing child labor (Table 10). However, gaps exist in these social programs, including the adequacy of programs to fully address the scope of the problem.

Table 10. Key Social Programs to Address Child Labor

Program	Description
Orphans and Vulnerable Children (OVS) Scholarship Program†	Government program that pays for tuition, uniforms, supplies, and boarding fees for orphans and vulnerable children. (1) In 2018, the government increased its budget for OVC Scholarship program to $5 million and increased the number of vulnerable children provided with tuition fees, uniforms, and stationery to 23,304 children. (1,31)
School Feeding Program†	Incentivizes primary school children from impoverished backgrounds to attend school and improves retention. Approximately 389,000 children received a daily meal at school in 2017 and 2018. (1,39)
Child Grant Program† (CGP)	Provides social cash transfers to impoverished households and orphans and vulnerable children with the aim of increasing access to basic needs such as food, health, and education. The program is implemented by the Ministry of Social Development and funded by the EU. UNICEF provides technical support. (1,39) During the reporting period, approximately 27,000 vulnerable families and 80,000 children received support. (1,39)

† Program is funded by the Government of Lesotho.

‡ The government had other social programs that may have included the goal of eliminating or preventing child labor. (32)

In 2018, the government increased budget allocations for social protection programs that included the School Feeding Program, Orphans and Vulnerable Children Scholarship Program, and the Child Grant Program. (1,39) However, the scope of social programs that focus on child labor is insufficient to fully address the extent of the problem, especially concerning child labor in cattle herding, domestic work, and commercial sexual exploitation of children.

The government continued to incorporate human trafficking lessons in the primary school curriculum (Standard 7). (8,40)

VII. Suggested Government Actions to Eliminate Child Labor

Based on the reporting above, suggested actions are identified that would advance the elimination of child labor in Lesotho (Table 11).

Table 11. Suggested Government Actions to Eliminate Child Labor

Area	Suggested Action	Year(s) Suggested
Legal Framework	Establish 15 as the age up to which education is compulsory to match the minimum age for full-time work.	2010 – 2018
Enforcement	Provide adequate funding and training for labor inspectors and criminal investigators to address the worst forms of child labor.	2009 – 2018
	Ensure that labor inspections are conducted in all relevant sectors, including the informal sector.	2014 – 2018
	Ensure that the labor inspectorate is authorized to assess penalties.	2009-2018
Coordination	Ensure that the Community Coordination Teams are active and undertaking activities in support of their missions.	2018
Government Policies	Publish data on the prevalence of child labor, including its worst forms.	2018
	Ensure that there is a policy for the elimination of child labor to replace the expired National Action Plan for the Elimination of Child Labor.	2018
	Integrate child labor elimination and prevention strategies in existing youth policies, such as the Education Sector Strategic Plan.	2012 – 2018
	Publish information about the implementation of child labor-related policies.	2017 – 2018
Social Programs	Institute programs that address push factors that promote child labor, including the high HIV rate in adults.	2017 – 2018
	Ensure that children with disabilities have equal access to education.	2018
	Address educational and logistical gaps resulting in reduced opportunities for secondary education, including shortage of teachers, secondary school fees, and barriers for children with disabilities.	2018
	Increase birth registrations of children to reduce their vulnerability to the worst forms of child labor.	2017 – 2018
	Expand existing programs to address the scope of the child labor problem.	2015 – 2018

In 2018, Liberia made a minimal advancement in efforts to eliminate the worst forms of child labor. During the reporting period, the government significantly increased the number of labor inspectors from 31 to 50. In addition, the Anti-Human Trafficking Task Force collaborated with international organizations, NGOs, and high-level officials to conduct a two-month long public awareness campaign around World Day Against Trafficking. However, children in Liberia engage in the worst forms of child labor, including in forced domestic work. Children also perform dangerous tasks in the production of rubber, and the mining of gold and diamonds. The Liberia National Police's Women and Children Protection Section and the National Commission on Child Labor continue to lack sufficient resources to conduct investigations and enforce child labor laws. The compulsory education age is also lower than the minimum age for work, making 15-year-old children vulnerable to the worst forms of child labor because they are not required to attend school while also not legally permitted to work until age 16. In addition, social programs are not sufficient to address the scope of the problem in the country, particularly where child labor is prevalent.

I. PREVALENCE AND SECTORAL DISTRIBUTION OF CHILD LABOR

Children in Liberia engage in the worst forms of child labor, including in forced domestic work. (1) Children also perform dangerous tasks in the production of rubber, and the mining of gold and diamonds. (2) Table 1 provides key indicators on children's work and education in Liberia.

Table 1. Statistics on Children's Work and Education

	Commercial sexual exploitation, sometimes as a result of human trafficking (1, 16, 17)

† Determined by national law or regulation as hazardous and, as such, relevant to Article 3(d) of ILO C. 182.

‡ Child labor understood as the worst forms of child labor per se under Article 3(a)–(c) of ILO C. 182.

Liberian children are sometimes victims of human trafficking for commercial sexual exploitation, domestic work, forced begging; and of forced labor in street vending, alluvial diamond mining, artisanal gold mining, and in the production of rubber. Children are also transported from Liberia to Côte d’Ivoire, Guinea, Nigeria, and Sierra Leone. (1,5) Research found that there is a difference in child labor activities in rural communities compared to urban communities. Children in rural communities, like Margibi County, engage in rubber tapping and coal burning activities to a greater degree; children in cities and surrounding urban communities, particularly Monrovia and the communities in Montserrado County, crush rocks, work in homes, and sell goods. (11) The government has yet to collect comprehensive data on child labor activities to inform policies and social programs. (6)

Section 9 of the Children’s Law mandates free primary education from grades 1–9, but the cost of uniforms, transportation, books, and school supplies limits access to education for some children. For secondary school students (grades 10–12), reports indicate there is a shortage of teachers, insufficient learning materials, a lack of educational facilities, and inadequate transportation, all of which limit access to education. (6) Moreover, by coercing students with the promise of good grades, some teachers sexually exploit students, resulting in children avoiding or dropping out of school. (6,8,16) Reports also indicate the ongoing practice of sending boys and girls to initiation “bush schools” for rituals that traditionally were intended to transition a child into adulthood. Boys transition into what is referred to as the Poro society by undergoing rituals such as tattooing and circumcision. (18) The initiation of girls into the Sande society may include female genital mutilation and other rituals. This practice often interferes with official schooling and can lead to girls dropping out of school, early marriage, and teenage pregnancy. (6,18) Children removed from school to participate in initiation ceremonies are vulnerable to child labor since many do not return to school after the ceremonies. (18)

Liberian parents are required by law to register their infants within 14 days of birth. (19) Birth registration is technically required for parents to enroll their children in school. However, only 25 percent of children under age 5 have birth certificates. (20) Children who are not enrolled in school are more vulnerable to the worst forms of child labor.

II. LEGAL FRAMEWORK FOR CHILD LABOR

Liberia has ratified some key international conventions concerning child labor (Table 3).

Table 3. Ratification of International Conventions on Child Labor

Convention	Ratification
 ILO C. 138, Minimum Age
ILO C. 182, Worst Forms of Child Labor	✓
 UN CRC	✓
UN CRC Optional Protocol on Armed Conflict
UN CRC Optional Protocol on the Sale of Children, Child Prostitution and Child Pornography
 Palermo Protocol on Trafficking in Persons	✓

The government has established laws and regulations related to child labor (Table 4). However, gaps exist in Liberia's legal framework to adequately protect children from the worst forms of child labor, including the gap between the compulsory education age and minimum age for work.

Table 4. Laws and Regulations on Child Labor

Standard	Meets International Standards	Age	Legislation

Children in Liberia are required to attend school only up to, but not including, age 15. This standard makes 15-year-old children vulnerable to the worst forms of child labor because they are not required to attend school, but they are not legally permitted to work until age 16. (22,27) Although Section 74 of the Labor Law prohibits employment of children under age 16, the penalty of a fine of less than $1 for violations is insufficient to deter offenders. (21,29)

III. ENFORCEMENT OF LAWS ON CHILD LABOR

The government has established institutional mechanisms for the enforcement of laws and regulations on child labor (Table 5). However, the exceptionally low number of worksite inspections conducted at the national level in Liberia impeded the enforcement of child labor laws.

Table 5. Agencies Responsible for Child Labor Law Enforcement

Organization/Agency	Role
Ministry of Labor (MOL)	Conducts worksite inspections and addresses child labor violations. (5,7)
Ministry of Gender, Children and Social Protection (MOGCSP)	Assists the MOL with the investigation of child labor cases and acts as the lead advisory agency on policy formulation, coordination, and monitoring of child protection policies through its Children Protection and Development Division. Monitors the government's efforts on compliance with the Universal Declaration of Human Rights, the UN Convention on the Elimination of All Forms of Discrimination against Women, UN CRC, and the African Union protocols on women and children. Organization/Agency	Role
Liberia National Police (LNP) Women and Children Protection Section (WACPS)	Investigates human trafficking cases involving women and children under the guidance of the LNP. (31)
LNP Anti-Trafficking Unit	Ensures that human trafficking training is integrated into police orientation. Collaborates with the WACPS to investigate human trafficking cases. (32)
Bureau of Immigration and Naturalization	Enforces the Alien and Nationality Law of Liberia and protects the border from illegal entry of migrants. Aids in combating human trafficking by detecting fraudulent immigration documents. (7)
Liberian Transnational Crime Unit	Coordinates responses to international organized criminal activities, including monitoring and prosecuting criminal violations involving arms, human trafficking, and drug trafficking. (6)
Ministry of Justice (MOJ)	Promotes and executes the rule of law for public safety, including the prosecution of child labor perpetrators. (33)

Labor Law Enforcement

In 2018, labor law enforcement agencies in Liberia took actions to enforce labor laws (Table 6). However, gaps continue to exist within the operations of the Ministry of Labor (MOL) that may hinder adequate labor law enforcement, including the worst forms of child labor.

Table 6. Labor Law Enforcement Efforts Related to Child Labor

The MOL's collective budget for fiscal years 2017 and 2018 is $1.7 million, but the amount of funding dedicated to the labor inspectorate remains unknown. (35) Research was unable to determine the cause for the significant increase in the reported number of inspections during the year. Generally, labor inspections are conducted in the formal sector instead of the informal sector, in which children are most likely to be found engaging in child labor. (2) In addition, the lack of funding and logistical support results in the underutilization of the labor inspectorate's complaint mechanism. (6,31)

In 2018, the MOL reported an increase from 31 to 50 in the number of labor inspectors. (10) Although inspectors cannot assess penalties, they can impose corrective measures such as issuing fines and notices of compliance, and filing a complaint with the hearing board. (6,31) The lack of penalty assessment authorization and limited funding hamper the inspectorate's enforcement of child labor laws. (2,6,36)

Criminal Law Enforcement

In 2018, criminal law enforcement agencies in Liberia took actions to combat child labor (Table 7). However, gaps exist within the operations of the Liberia National Police (LNP) that may hinder adequate criminal law enforcement, including financial resource allocation.

Table 7. Criminal Law Enforcement Efforts Related to Child Labor

Overview of Criminal Law Enforcement	2017	2018

Although the government did not provide comprehensive data on the number of prosecutions or convictions, reports indicate a female accused of trafficking two Sierra Leoneans into Liberia with the intention of selling them into forced labor, including a child, was successfully prosecuted and convicted during the reporting period. The accused received a sentence of eight years imprisonment. (1,10,38)

The LNP reported limited funding to carry out its enforcement duties. (5) The LNP's Women and Children Protection Section also reported having limited resources to conduct investigations, including a lack of vehicles, fuel, sufficient training, finances, communications equipment, and investigative equipment. (5,39) In addition, data on the number of child endangerment cases prosecuted by the Ministry of Justice are not disaggregated for child labor violations. (2,5)

IV. COORDINATION OF GOVERNMENT EFFORTS ON CHILD LABOR

The government has established mechanisms to coordinate its efforts to address child labor (Table 8). However, gaps exist that hinder the adequate coordination of efforts to address child labor, including financial support of the National Commission on Child Labor (NACOMAL).

Table 8. Key Mechanisms to Coordinate Government Efforts on Child Labor

Coordinating Body	Role & Description
National Commission on Child Labor (NACOMAL)	Coordinates government and civil society activities concerning child labor. Led by the MOL and comprising representatives from 16 organizations, including international and civil society organizations. (40) Assists in coordinating child labor investigations. (41) Seeks to reform national child labor laws and create a national child labor database, which would assist surveys on the extent of child labor issues in Liberia. (40) During the reporting period, NACOMAL held meetings with outside stakeholders on child labor, participated in steering committee meetings, and coordination with the trafficking in persons Secretariat on anti-human trafficking efforts. (42)
National Steering Committee on Child Labor	Implements child labor policies. Chaired by the MOL and comprising government officials and workers' organizations. (5) Includes four subcommittees on resource mobilization, advocacy, training and legal development, and monitoring and evaluation. The Steering Committee held approximately one meeting per quarter during the reporting period. (42)
Child Protection Network	Coordinates child protection efforts through monthly meetings to discuss child protection issues, including child labor and human trafficking. Chaired by the MOGCSF, comprising MOL, the Ministry of Health and Social Welfare, WACPS, civil society organizations, and several NGOs. (7) With support from international and national organizations, coordinates referrals of child victims of abuse to social services providers. (7) In 2018, the Network met regularly throughout 10 months of the year, and some of its members participated in a 2-day workshop on child protection. (10)
Anti-Human Trafficking Task Force	Coordinates anti-human trafficking activities. Chaired by MOL, comprising the Commissioner of the Bureau of Immigration and Naturalization; LNP; and representatives from MOJ, Ministry of Foreign Affairs, and Ministry of Internal Affairs. (6) Met regularly during the reporting period. (38)

During 2018, the NACOMAL reported it had a budget for salaries but no budget allocated for program activities. (10)

V. GOVERNMENT POLICIES ON CHILD LABOR

The government has established policies related to child labor (Table 9). However, policy gaps exist that hinder efforts to address child labor, including mainstreaming child labor issues into relevant policies.

Table 9. Key Policies Related to Child Labor

Policy	Description
National Action Plan on Elimination of Child Labor†	Aims to reduce child labor and the worst forms of child labor by 50 percent by 2030. Establishes three strategic objectives, including increasing public awareness on the causes and consequences of the worst forms of child labor, strengthening the legal and institutional frameworks in order to reduce child labor, and increasing social services and protection for children of vulnerable households. (42)
National Action Plan for Trafficking in Persons	Outlines the government's anti-human trafficking efforts, including those for child victims. (7) Although the current Plan expired in December 2018, the government extended it until June 2019 while it began drafting a new Action Plan covering 2019–2024. The new Plan was finalized in March 2019. (38)
National Child Welfare and Protection Policy	Focuses on the implementation and enforcement of existing child protection laws. (6) Research was unable to determine whether activities were undertaken to implement the National Child Welfare and Protection Policy.
Direct Assistance and Support to Trafficked Victims Standard Operation Procedures	Establishes roles and responsibilities for coordinating government assistance to human trafficking victims. (32) Provides shelter and care to children who may have been human trafficking victims. (43) Research was unable to determine whether activities were undertaken to implement the Direct Assistance and Support to Trafficked Victims Standard Operation Procedures during the reporting period.
National Social Welfare Policy	Prioritizes the development of action plans and policies that target children engaged in the worst forms of child labor, including child trafficking. (44) Research could not determine whether activities were undertaken to implement the National Social Welfare Policy during the reporting year.

† Policy was approved during the reporting period.

During the reporting period, the government did not renew key policies that may have a direct or indirect impact on child labor victims, including the National Strategy for Child Survival or the National Health Policy, both of which are policies that should address the issue of rehabilitation and care to child laborers. In addition, child labor elimination and prevention strategies are not included in the following policies: Revised National Youth Policy, Education Sector Plan, Rubber Industry Master Plan, and the National Employment Policy. (45-51)

VI. SOCIAL PROGRAMS TO ADDRESS CHILD LABOR

In 2018, the government funded and participated in programs that include the goal of eliminating or preventing child labor (Table 10). However, gaps exist in these social programs, including with regard to adequacy of programs to address the full scope of the problem.

Table 10. Key Social Programs to Address Child Labor

Program	Description
Anti-Trafficking Awareness Campaign†	Government-funded program implemented by MOL, which aims to use radio and billboard messages to raise public awareness on human trafficking. (8,32) In 2018, MOL conducted an anti-trafficking public awareness campaign during the country's first World Day Against Trafficking in Persons. (10)
Shelter†	MOGCSP-operated shelter for vulnerable street children that includes a case management system. (6) Active in 2018. (10)
USDOL-Funded Projects to Combat Child Labor	County Level Engagement and Assistance to Reduce Child Labor (CLEAR) II, implemented by Winrock International and partners Verité and Lawyers Without Borders to build the capacity of the government to address child labor. (2,52,53) Additional information is available on the USDOL website.
U.S. Government-Funded Projects on Education for Adolescent Girls	U.S. Government-funded projects that aim to improve access to education and improve child protection. Includes New Accelerated Quality Education Activity (2016–2019), $33.9 million USAID-funded project implemented by the Education Development Center; Providing Support for the Education of Girls with Disabilities, implemented by USAID with partnership and support from Liberia's Ministry of Education; Increasing Support for Out-of-School Girls and Youth, implemented by USAID; and McGovern-Dole International Food For Education and Child Nutrition Program. (54-56) Through programs of the USDOS Bureau of Educational and Cultural Affairs, female high school students participate in short and long-term exchanges to promote education, empowerment, and leadership skills. (43) Active in 2018. (10)

Program	Description
Liberia Social Safety Nets Project (2017–2021)	$10 million World Bank-funded 4-year project implemented by MOGCSP that aims to establish key national safety net delivery systems and provide support for low-income households. (57) Active in 2018. (10)

† Program is funded by the Government of Liberia.

‡ The government had other social programs that may have included the goal of eliminating or preventing child labor. (58-64)

In the previous year, the Liberia Institute of Statistics and Geo-Information Services and the MOL, with support from USAID and UNDP, conducted a 2017 Labor Force Survey, which reportedly includes a child labor component. (6) However, the government did not analyze or release any data in 2018. (10) Although the government funds social programs, they are not sufficient to address child labor, including in domestic work, the production of rubber, and the mining of gold and diamonds.

VII. SUGGESTED GOVERNMENT ACTIONS TO ELIMINATE CHILD LABOR

Based on the reporting above, suggested actions are identified that would advance the elimination of child labor in Liberia (Table 11).

Table 11. Suggested Government Actions to Eliminate Child Labor

Area	Suggested Action	Year(s) Suggested
Legal Framework	Ratify the UN CRC Optional Protocol on the Sale of Children, Child Prostitution and Child Pornography, and the UN CRC Optional Protocol on Armed Conflict.	2013 – 2018
	Ensure that penalties for employing children under the minimum age for work are stringent enough to deter violations.	2014 – 2018
	Raise the compulsory education age to be consistent with the minimum age for employment.	2016 – 2018
Enforcement	Authorize the labor inspectorate to assess penalties for child labor violations.	2017 – 2018
	Conduct an adequate number of worksite inspections to combat child labor, including its worst forms.	2017 – 2018
	Publish information on the labor inspectorate's funding and the number of child labor violations found.	2016 – 2018
	Ensure that labor inspections are conducted in the informal sector in which research indicates children are working.	2016 – 2018
	Ensure that the labor inspectorate's complaint mechanism is adequately supported and operational.	2017 – 2018
	Ensure adequate funding for child labor enforcement agencies, such as the Ministry of Labor, the Liberia National Police, and the Women and Children Protection Section, and provide necessary training for such officials to enforce child labor laws.	2010 – 2018
	Disaggregate the child endangerment cases prosecuted through the Ministry of Justice to determine the number of child labor violations.	2016 – 2018
Coordination	Publish information on criminal law enforcement's investigations conducted, violations found, prosecutions initiated and convictions secured, related to the worst forms of child labor.	2017 – 2018
	Ensure adequate funding for the National Commission on Child Labor's program activities to address child labor.	2017 – 2018
Government Policies	Integrate child labor elimination and prevention strategies into relevant policies.	2010 – 2018
	Renew or develop policies that improve youth literacy rates and improve the health care delivery systems, such as the National Strategy for Child Survival and the National Health Policy.	2015 – 2018
	Publish information about the activities taken to implement policies that address child labor.	2017 – 2018
Social Programs	Collect and publish comprehensive research data to determine child labor activities and to inform policies and programs.	2013 – 2018
	Improve access to education by subsidizing the cost of school fees and reduce barriers to education by building additional schools, addressing sexual abuse in schools, providing adequate transportation and ensuring that children are registered at birth.	2012 – 2018
	Ensure the practice of "bush schools" does not prematurely remove children from school before the compulsory education age.	2017 – 2018
	Expand existing social programs to address the scope of the child labor problem, especially in domestic work, the production of rubber, and the mining of gold and diamonds.	2009 – 2018

In 2018, Madagascar made a moderate advancement in efforts to eliminate the worst forms of child labor. The government adopted a new decree to make child labor legislation more comprehensive and approved the ratification of International Labor Organization Convention 189 on Domestic Workers and Protocol 29 of 2014 to the Forced Labor Convention. The government also partnered with outside organizations to increase awareness of child labor and strengthen child labor law enforcement in isolated regions. In addition, the government continued to participate in a number of programs targeting the worst forms of child labor, including expanding a cash transfer program to benefit 65,000 households in 7 regions of Madagascar. However, children in Madagascar engage in the worst forms of child labor, including in commercial sexual exploitation and mining. Children also perform dangerous tasks in agriculture, including in the production of vanilla. Although the government made meaningful efforts in all relevant areas during the reporting period, the government failed to impose penalties for violations related to the worst forms of child labor. In addition, limited resources for the enforcement of child labor laws may impede government efforts to protect children from the worst forms of child labor and social programs to combat child labor are insufficient to adequately address the extent of the problem.

I. PREVALENCE AND SECTORAL DISTRIBUTION OF CHILD LABOR

Children in Madagascar engage in the worst forms of child labor, including in commercial sexual exploitation and mining. (1-4) Children also perform dangerous tasks in agriculture, including in the production of vanilla. (5-9) Table 1 provides key indicators on children's work and education in Madagascar.

Table 1. Statistics on Children's Work and Education

Children	Age	Percent
Working (% and population)	5 to 14	22.1 (1,206,992)
Attending School (%)	5 to 14	69.1
Combining Work and School (%)	7 to 14	15.4
Primary Completion Rate (%)		67.6

Based on a review of available information, Table 2 provides an overview of children's work by sector and activity.

	Forced labor in mining, quarrying, begging, and domestic work (1,2,7,17,20)

† Determined by national law or regulation as hazardous and, as such, relevant to Article 3(d) of ILO C. 182.

‡ Child labor understood as the worst forms of child labor per se under Article 3(a)–(c) of ILO C. 182.

Children in Madagascar, predominantly girls, are lured by peers, family members, and pimps to engage in commercial sexual exploitation, particularly in tourist locations and mining areas. (1,2,17,23) Children as young as age 10 are also involved in mining gold, stones, and sapphires in the regions of Analamanga, Anosy, Ilakaka, and Vakinankaratra. Children in the mining sector suffer from respiratory problems and diseases such as diarrhea and malaria, and are also at risk of injury from collapsing mines. (4,7,16,17,20,21,23) In addition, children working in the production of vanilla in Madagascar are exposed to toxic substances and extreme temperatures; they transport heavy loads, and work for long hours. There are reports that children are increasingly recruited by adults to engage in vanilla theft because they are less likely to be searched by security forces or subjected to mob retaliation. (5,8,14,15,18,30)

Although the Constitution guarantees free compulsory education, access to education is impeded due to a lack of school infrastructure and qualified teachers, limited transportation services in rural areas with long distances to schools, the cost of school fees and supplies, and reported school violence, leaving children vulnerable to the worst forms of child labor. (14,16,17,31-34) During the reporting period, Madagascar was hit by 2 tropical storms, affecting school attendance for an estimated 50,000 children, which, coupled with the suspension of other social services, increased children’s vulnerability to human trafficking and labor exploitation. (35)

II. LEGAL FRAMEWORK FOR CHILD LABOR

Madagascar has ratified all key international conventions concerning child labor (Table 3).

The government’s laws and regulations are in line with relevant international standards (Table 4).

‡ Age calculated based on available information (38)

In 2018, the government adopted a decree that expands the list of occupations or activities prohibited for children under age 18 to include underwater and underground work, work in night clubs and massage parlors, and work in agriculture that exceeds their strength. (18,37,39,43)

In addition, during the reporting period, the Malagasy Parliament approved the ratification of the ILO Convention 189 on Domestic Workers and ILO Protocol 29 on Forced Labor. Workshops to draft bills to comply with these conventions are planned in 2019, pending the president's signature of the instruments of ratification and their delivery to the ILO. (18,44,45)

Madagascar's Labor Code sets the minimum age for work as 15. However, the Labor Code also states that the minimum age cannot be less than the age of completion of compulsory education. In 2008, Madagascar amended its education law to raise the age of compulsory education to 16, effectively raising the minimum age for work to 16 as well. (33,36,38)

III. ENFORCEMENT OF LAWS ON CHILD LABOR

The government has established institutional mechanisms for the enforcement of laws and regulations on child labor (Table 5). However, gaps exist within the authority of the Ministry of Civil Services and Labor Division for the Prevention, Abolition, and Monitoring of Child Labor (PACTE) that may hinder adequate enforcement of their child labor laws.

Table 5. Agencies Responsible for Child Labor Law Enforcement

Organization/Agency	Role
Ministry of Civil Services and Labor Division for the Prevention, Abolition, and Monitoring of Child Labor (PACTE)	Enforces child labor laws and coordinates, trains, and evaluates all activities toward the elimination of child labor. (31,32,46)
Ministry of Justice	Enforces laws pertaining to violence against children, including human trafficking and commercial sexual exploitation. (2,46) Works with Department-level courts to prosecute child labor cases. (17,47)
National Civil Police Force Morals and Minors Brigade	Investigates criminal cases involving minors, including issues pertaining to human trafficking and commercial sexual exploitation, mainly in urban areas. Housed under the Ministry of Public Security. (2,7,17,46)

(17) In collaboration with UNICEF, manages 780 child protection networks to protect children from abuse and exploitation in all 22 regions of Madagascar. (2,17,49,50)

Labor Law Enforcement

In 2018, labor law enforcement agencies in Madagascar took actions to combat child labor (Table 6). However, gaps exist within the authority of PACTE that may hinder adequate labor law enforcement, including penalty assessment authorization.

Table 6. Labor Law Enforcement Efforts Related to Child Labor

The number of labor inspectors is likely insufficient for the size of Madagascar's workforce, which includes more than 13.4 million workers. According to the ILO's technical advice of 1 inspector for every 40,000 workers in less developed economies, Madagascar would employ about 335 labor inspectors. (51-53) In addition, the concentration of labor inspectors in the capital hampers the government's capacity to enforce child labor laws in rural areas, especially in the agricultural sector. (3,7,17,31,46) During the reporting period, officials from the Ministry of Civil Services and Labor reported that labor inspectors have not received training on the new child labor decree, but they have carried out an information exchange on the decree. (18) In addition, the new law expanding the list of hazardous occupations has not been disseminated and lacks any real enforcement. (18)

In 2018, the Government of Madagascar reported that 25 labor inspectors were in training, with an additional 50 new recruits registered for training beginning in 2019. (18) Government officials have indicated that this amount was insufficient to carry out its mandate during the reporting period. In addition, reports indicate that PACTE lacked trained staff, equipment, and funding to manage existing child labor databases and conduct adequate child labor inspections. (7,17,46,54) During the reporting period the government allocated approximately $490,000 to the Directorate of Labor and Social Laws, which includes the labor inspectorate, but research could not confirm what amount was disbursed to the inspectorate. (54)

Criminal Law Enforcement

In 2018, criminal law enforcement agencies in Madagascar took actions to combat child labor (Table 7). However, gaps exist within the operations of the criminal enforcement agencies that may hinder adequate criminal law enforcement, including financial and human resources.

Table 7. Criminal Law Enforcement Efforts Related to Child Labor

Overview of Criminal Law Enforcement	2017	2018
Initial Training for New Criminal Investigators	Unknown (17)	Yes (18)
Training on New Laws Related to the Worst Forms of Child Labor	N/A (17)	Unknown (18)

Number of Investigations	778 (55)	559 (18)
Number of Violations Found	78 (55)	35 (18)
Number of Prosecutions Initiated	Unknown (17)	Unknown (18)
Number of Convictions	Unknown (17)	Unknown (18)
Imposed Penalties for Violations Related to The Worst Forms of Child Labor	Unknown (17)	Unknown (18)
Reciprocal Referral Mechanism Exists Between Criminal Authorities and Social Services	Yes (24,56)	Yes (18)

During the reporting period, the National Civil Police Force Morals and Minors Brigade (PMPM) investigated an estimated 596 complaints of crimes against children, such as rape and violence. Of these cases, 35 were for child labor and 15 for child trafficking. (18) It is unclear, however, how many prosecutions were initiated from these complaints and whether these cases led to convictions. (18)

The Ministry of Justice, with support from international donors, provided training on anti-trafficking legislation to law enforcement actors, including the PMPM and the National Gendarmerie Child Protective Services. (18) Despite these efforts, reports indicate a lack of trained staff, equipment, and transportation to adequately conduct criminal law enforcement efforts related to the worst forms of child labor. (7,18,57,58)

In 2018, a new anti-corruption court was established to handle trafficking cases. A second court is expected to be operational in Toamasina in 2019. (18,44,59) During the reporting period, law enforcement officials received training from the National Bureau to Combat Human Trafficking on trafficking in persons victim identification and referral. (18,44) In addition, the Ministry of Population, with support from the International Organization for Migration and Nippon Foundation, inaugurated a new shelter for human trafficking victims in Antananarivo. (18,60)

IV. COORDINATION OF GOVERNMENT EFFORTS ON CHILD LABOR

The government has established mechanisms to coordinate its efforts to address child labor (Table 8). However, gaps exist that hinder the effective coordination of efforts to address child labor, including funding.

Table 8. Key Mechanisms to Coordinate Government Efforts on Child Labor

Coordinating Body	Role & Description
National Committee on the Fight Against Child Labor (CNLTE)	Coordinates programs, advises on child labor legislation and regulations, and implements the National Action Plan to Eliminate the Worst Forms of Child Labor. Led by the Ministry of Civil Services and Labor. (3,17,61,62) In 2018, implemented awareness-raising campaigns on child labor. (18)
Regional Child Labor Committees (CRLTE)	Coordinate, monitor, and evaluate all regional activities relating to the elimination of child labor. The 10 regional committees identify activities to promote the elimination of child labor and compile, analyze, and report child labor data to PACTE. (46,61,63) In 2018, the Sava regional committee carried out trainings for child protection network actors on the child protection system international and national legal framework. The Sava regional committee also validated a regional social convention that includes specific provisions on child labor cases. (18) During the reporting period, an additional 20 local child labor committees were established to improve monitoring of child labor cases and victim referrals. (18)

Coordinating Body	Role & Description
National Bureau to Combat Human Trafficking	Coordinates anti-human trafficking efforts in Madagascar and take responsibility for implementing the National Action Plan to Combat Trafficking in Persons. Chaired by the Office of the Prime Minister, includes representatives from the Ministries of Civil Services and Labor, Justice, and Population and Social Affairs. (2,3,40,64) In 2018, provided training to law enforcement actors on anti-trafficking legislation, investigation methods, and victim identification and referral. The Government of Madagascar did not allocate funding to the National Bureau to Combat Human Trafficking during the year, but did adopt a decree intended to give it more autonomy and facilitate budget allocation. (18,44)
National Child Protection Committee	Guides and coordinates national child protection policy and programs. Chaired by the Minister of Population and Social Affairs, comprises a steering committee and a technical commission of specialists. (46,65) In 2018, in collaboration with UNICEF released a study on violence against children, which included information on workplace violence affecting victims of child labor. (18,55,66)

In 2018, the National Committee on the Fight Against Child Labor, Regional Child Labor Committees, and the National Bureau to Combat Human Trafficking lacked sufficient funding to effectively operate and coordinate efforts to address child labor. (14,18,29,32,34,47)

V. GOVERNMENT POLICIES ON CHILD LABOR

The government has established policies related to child labor (Table 9). However, policy gaps exist that hinder efforts to address child labor, including funding and implementation.

Table 9. Key Policies Related to Child Labor

Policy	Description
National Action Plan to Eliminate the Worst Forms of Child Labor (2004–2019)	Aims to eliminate the worst forms of child labor by strengthening child labor laws, conducting awareness-raising campaigns, mobilizing funds for social programs, and updating databases on child labor. Led by the CNLTE. (7,56,61) In 2018, the PACTE division of the Ministry of Civil Services and Labor conducted sensitization on child labor in Antananarivo, and organized discussions with regional child labor committees to assess the implementation of the Plan in the regions of Vakinankaratra, Haute Matsiatra, and Amoron'i Mania. (18)
National Action Plan to Combat Trafficking in Persons (2015–2019)	Seeks to enhance the legal framework to prevent human trafficking, effectively implement human trafficking laws, and provide protection and care for victims. Overseen by the National Bureau to Combat Human Trafficking. (1,17,64,67) In 2018, inaugurated a new shelter for human trafficking victims in Antananarivo. (18,60) However, reports indicated that the government did not provide sufficient funding to implement the National Action Plan in 2018. (18,44)
Code of Conduct for the Protection of Children in the Tourism Industry	Aims to prevent commercial sexual exploitation of children in the tourism industry. Implemented by the Ministry of Tourism and supported by the ILO and UNICEF. (68-71) In 2018, monitored 178 operators who adhered to implementing the Code of Conduct. (18)
National Social Protection Policy	Aims to protect children from abuse, violence, and exploitation and promotes improved access to education and livelihood services for vulnerable children. Led by the Ministry of Population, Social Protection and the Promotion of Women and supported by international donors. (3,72-74) In 2018, published a study on violence against children that included information on violence experienced by victims of child labor. (18,55,66)
National Development Plan (2015–2019)	Aims to promote sustainable development and social equality. Overseen by the Ministry of Economy and Planning and supported by the ILO's Decent Work Country Program. (3,75,76) Includes a budget of $83,000 to specifically combat commercial sexual exploitation of children and child labor in domestic work, mining, quarrying, and other hazardous sectors. (32,75-77) In 2018, conducted awareness-raising activities for World Day Against Child Labor. (78)
Education Sector Plan (2018–2022)	Aims to expand access to education and improve the quality of education. Overseen by the Ministry of Education. (9,17,46,79) In 2018, activities included training teachers on a new education program for grade 10 and reorganizing the academic calendar so that holidays coincide with the rainy season to avoid closing schools due to flooding or humanitarian crises. (18)

† The government had other policies that may have addressed child labor issues or had an impact on child labor. (76,80)

VI. SOCIAL PROGRAMS TO ADDRESS CHILD LABOR

In 2018, the government funded and participated in programs that include the goal of eliminating or preventing child labor (Table 10). However, gaps exist in these social programs, including adequacy of programs to address the problem in all sectors.

Table 10. Key Social Programs to Address Child Labor

Program	Description
Project Supporting Sustainable and Child Labor Free Vanilla-Growing Communities in Sava (2016–2020)	USDOL-funded $4 million project implemented by the ILO that aims to reduce child labor in the vanilla-producing areas of the Sava Region. (3,81,82) In 2018, organized workshops to integrate Madagascar as a pathfinder country in Alliance 8.7 to tackle forced and child labor and support the implementation of the Anti-Child Labor Code of Conduct of Vanilla Producers. During the reporting period also supported CRLTEs in finalizing child labor inspection templates. (18,83,84) Additional information is available on the USDOL website.
UNICEF Country Program (2015–2019)	UNICEF-funded $288,000 program that supports the government's efforts to improve education, health, nutrition, and protection for children in Madagascar. (18,85) In 2018, activities included training child protection network actors on the legal framework of the child protection system, providing economic support to families living in mining communities, and providing assistance to 300 street children. Also implemented a program to combat commercial sexual exploitation of children in the regions of Diana, Nosy Be, Atsimo-Andrefana, Toliara, and Mangily. (18,86)
Social Support and Reintegration Centers†	Government program that provides social and reintegration services for victims of child labor. Includes the Manjary Soa Center and the Vonjy Centers in Antananarivo, Toamasina, Nosy Be and Mahajanga. (2,17,87) In 2018, the Mitsinjo Center for human trafficking victims was opened with support from the IOM and Nippon Foundation. (18,60)
Public Investment Program for Social Action†	Ministry of Civil Services and Labor $34,700 program that supports school enrollment and training for street children. (20,46,56) In 2018, provided services for 296 street children. (88)
Cash Transfer Program (2017–2019)†	Ministry of Population, Social Protection and the Promotion of Women $35 million program, supported by the World Bank and UNICEF, that aims to provide cash assistance for families with school-age children, conditioned on children's school attendance. In 2018, expanded program to benefit 65,000 households in the south of Madagascar. (17,18,45,89,90)
Education for All Programs (2015–2019)	Government of Norway and World Bank-funded projects that aim to improve the quality of and access to primary education, and provide school feeding programs in the southern regions of Androy, Anosy, and Atsimo-Andrefana. Led by the Ministry of Education. (56,91,92) In 2018, provided trainings on a new grade 10 educational program for teachers in several regions. (18)

† Program is funded by the Government of Madagascar.

‡ The government had other social programs that may have included the goal of eliminating or preventing child labor. (86,93-95)

Research found that basic health and social services available to victims of the worst forms of child labor are not adequate to meet current needs. (2,7,14,17,46) Although Madagascar has programs that target child labor, the scope of these programs is insufficient to address the extent of the problem, particularly in agriculture, commercial sexual exploitation, domestic work, begging, and mining. (7,20,34,56)

VII. SUGGESTED GOVERNMENT ACTIONS TO ELIMINATE CHILD LABOR

Based on the reporting above, suggested actions are identified that would advance the elimination of child labor in Madagascar (Table 11).

Table 11. Suggested Government Actions to Eliminate Child Labor

Area	Suggested Action	Year(s) Suggested
Enforcement	Ensure that the number of labor inspectors conforms to the ILO's technical advice.	2015 – 2018
	Authorize the labor inspectorate to assess penalties.	2017 – 2018
	Ensure that labor and criminal law enforcement officials receive adequate funding and training to enforce child labor laws adequately, including in rural areas.	2009 – 2018
	Publish enforcement information related to child labor, including labor inspectorate funding, the number of labor inspections conducted, violations found, penalties imposed, the criminal law enforcement prosecutions initiated, and the number of convictions.	2013 – 2018
	Ensure that existing databases function to gather enforcement data on child labor, including by providing adequate funding.	2009 – 2018
	Disseminate and enforce the new decree expanding the list of hazardous occupations for children.	2018
Coordination	Ensure that the National Committee on the Fight Against Child Labor, the Regional Child Labor Committees, and the National Bureau to Combat Human Trafficking receive adequate funding to effectively operate and coordinate to fulfill their missions.	2014 – 2018
Government Policies	Ensure that appropriate funding exists to effectively implement the National Action Plan to Combat Trafficking in Persons.	2016 – 2018

Area	Suggested Action	Year(s) Suggested
Social Programs	Enhance efforts to eliminate barriers and make education accessible for all children, including those in rural communities, by removing fees for supplies and school-related costs, increasing school infrastructure and transportation services, hiring sufficiently qualified teachers, and ensuring children's safety in schools.	2011 – 2018
	Ensure that social protection systems have adequate funding and staff to provide appropriate services to victims of the worst forms of child labor.	2014 – 2018
	Expand the scope of programs to address child labor in agriculture and the worst forms of child labor in agriculture, commercial sexual exploitation, domestic work, and mining.	2014 – 2018

In 2018, Malawi made a moderate advancement in efforts to eliminate the worst forms of child labor. The government debated an amendment to the Employment Act that would prohibit tenancy farming, and passed the Tobacco Industry Bill of 2018, which requires tobacco growers to report on efforts to eliminate child labor in tobacco farming. It also finalized the National Children’s Policy, which will begin implementation in 2019. In addition, government inspectors also facilitated the removal of more than 1,000 victims of child labor and referred them to social services provided by the Ministry of Gender, Children and Social Welfare. However, children in Malawi continue to engage in the worst forms of child labor, including in the harvesting of tobacco and in commercial sexual exploitation, sometimes as the result of human trafficking. In addition, gaps continue to exist in labor law enforcement related to child labor, including financial resource allocation.

I. PREVALENCE AND SECTORAL DISTRIBUTION OF CHILD LABOR

Children in Malawi engage in the worst forms of child labor, including in the harvesting of tobacco and in commercial sexual exploitation, sometimes as the result of human trafficking. (1) Table 1 provides key indicators on children’s work and education in Malawi.

Table 1. Statistics on Children’s Work and Education

Children	Age	Percent
Working (% and population)	5 to 14	43.2 (1,965,690)
Attending School (%)	5 to 14	89.9

	Forced begging (13,20)
	Use in crimes (13,20)

† Determined by national law or regulation as hazardous and, as such, relevant to Article 3(d) of ILO C. 182.

‡ Child labor understood as the worst forms of child labor per se under Article 3(a)–(c) of ILO C. 182.

Children in Malawi are engaged in hazardous work in the production of tobacco. (9,14,20,22) Children who handle tobacco risk illness from nicotine absorption, including green tobacco sickness. They are exposed to pesticides, chemicals, and harsh weather conditions; they also utilize sharp tools. (7,9,23) Some children work alongside family members who are tenants on tobacco farms. (1,5,23,24) In the tenancy system, tenants’ pay is based on the quantity and quality of tobacco sold to farm owners after the harvest season, and parents have an incentive to use their children to increase their earnings. Tenants often incur loans during the growing season; in many case, they are unable to repay these debts, resulting in entire families being placed in debt bondage. (1,25,26) Many children working under these conditions do not attend school. (5,23)

Most child trafficking for labor in Malawi takes place internally. (13,20) Boys from southern Malawi are particularly vulnerable, and are forced work on tobacco farms in Malawi’s northern and central regions; they are also forced to work as cattle herders and in the brickmaking industry. (13,20,27) Child trafficking also takes place from Malawi to other countries, including Mozambique, South Africa, Tanzania, and Zambia. (21,27) Child victims of human trafficking may be charged for their clothing, food, housing, and transport. They may also be forced to work in debt bondage because of these charges and be unable to return home or support themselves. (20,28)

Girls from rural areas sometimes move to larger cities in search of work. In some cases, they are provided clothing and lodging from brothel owners and, if unable to find other work, engage in commercial sexual exploitation to pay off their debts. (1,13,20,27)

Primary education is tuition-free, and in September 2018, the government abolished secondary school fees to facilitate access to secondary education. However, considerable barriers to education exist, including families’ inability to pay required school-related expenses, such as books and uniforms. (1,21,29-31) Long distances, poor school infrastructure, and the lack of water, electricity, and sanitation facilities also negatively impact children’s attendance at school. In addition, safety concerns may negatively affect attendance; reports indicate that children are sometimes victims of sexual assault at school. (5,7,15,21,29,32,33) Additionally, many girls in grades six to eight are pulled from school to perform domestic work at home. (29)

Children with family members with HIV/AIDS may need to assume responsibility as heads of their households, including working to support their families. These children, especially those who are orphaned, are at increased risk of entering into the worst forms of child labor. (34)

II. LEGAL FRAMEWORK FOR CHILD LABOR

Malawi has ratified all key international conventions concerning child labor (Table 3).

Table 3. Ratification of International Conventions on Child Labor

Convention	Ratification
 ILO C. 138, Minimum Age	✓
ILO C. 182, Worst Forms of Child Labor	✓

UN CRC Optional Protocol on Armed Conflict	✓
UN CRC Optional Protocol on the Sale of Children, Child Prostitution and Child Pornography	✓
 Palermo Protocol on Trafficking in Persons	✓

The government has established laws and regulations related to child labor (Table 4). However, gaps exist in Malawi's legal framework to adequately protect children from the worst forms of child labor, including the minimum age for work and the military recruitment by non-state actors.

Table 4. Laws and Regulations on Child Labor

Standard	Meets International Standards	Age	Legislation
Minimum Age for Work	No	14	Section 21 of the Employment Act (35)
Minimum Age for Hazardous Work	Yes	18	Section 22 of the Employment Act; Section 23 of the Constitution (35,36)

* No conscription (41)

Malawi currently lacks a legal framework for the tenancy system which is often used in tobacco production, and leaves children vulnerable to the worst forms of child labor. Families working under the tenancy system are particularly vulnerable to debt bondage because loans advanced to farmers operating under this arrangement are often of a higher value than the profits farmers receive from crop yields. (1,25,26,42,43) In 2018, the Cabinet debated an amendment to the Employment Act that would prohibit tenancy farming. However, the government decided to defer consideration of the amendment until the ILO completes a study on the extent of tenancy farming in Malawi. (29)

The government also passed the Tobacco Industry Bill 2018 which requires tobacco growers to report on issues of child labor. (44,45) Growers found using child labor may be subject to a fine of $2,800 or imprisonment for up to one year. The Commissioner may also cancel the registration of a tobacco grower if the grower fails to submit a report that is satisfactory. (46)

Section 21 of the Employment Act sets the minimum age for employment at age 14 in agricultural, industrial, or non-industrial work. (35) The minimum age is not extended to workers in third-party homes, such as in domestic work, or non-commercial agriculture in which children are known to work. (35) Although non-state armed groups are not known to recruit children for military activities in the country, Malawi law does not meet international standards because it does not explicitly prohibit this practice.

During the reporting period the government reviewed categorizations of hazardous work under the Occupational Safety, Health and Welfare Act, and determined that tasks associated with domestic work and non-commercial agriculture will not be categorized as hazardous. (29,46)

III. ENFORCEMENT OF LAWS ON CHILD LABOR

The government has established institutional mechanisms for the enforcement of laws and regulations on child labor (Table 5). However, gaps exist within the operations of the Ministry of Labor (MOL) that may hinder adequate enforcement of their child labor laws.

Table 5. Agencies Responsible for Child Labor Law Enforcement

Organization/Agency	Role
Ministry of Labor (MOL)	Performs inspections and investigates all labor complaints, including those related to child labor. (14) The Child Labor Unit monitors and implements child labor law compliance through child labor monitoring visits. (6,47)
District Labor Offices	Enforce the child labor laws at the district level. (14)
Malawi Police Service	Investigates suspected cases involving the worst forms of child labor. Analyzes and operationalizes systems to track trafficking trends. (48)
Ministry of Gender, Children, Disability and Social Welfare (MOG) Department of Child Development	Provides child protection and development services. (32)
Ministry of Homeland Security	Enforces human trafficking laws and prosecutes human trafficking offenses. (49)
Ministry of Justice and Constitutional Affairs	Prosecutes criminal offenders. (50)

Labor Law Enforcement

In 2018, labor law enforcement agencies in Malawi took actions to combat child labor (Table 6). However, gaps exist within the operations of MOL that may hinder adequate labor law enforcement, including financial resource allocation.

Table 6. Labor Law Enforcement Efforts Related to Child Labor

Overview of Labor Law Enforcement	2017	2018
Labor Inspectorate Funding	Unknown	$98,000 (29)
Number of Labor Inspectors	122 (1)	65 (47)

Number of Labor Inspections Conducted	Unknown	1,324 (29)
Number Conducted at Worksite	Unknown	556 (29)
Number of Child Labor Violations Found	Unknown	1,085 (29)
Number of Child Labor Violations for Which Penalties Were Imposed	Unknown	Unknown (29)
Number of Child Labor Penalties Imposed that Were Collected	Unknown	Unknown (29)
Routine Inspections Conducted	Unknown	Yes (29)
Routine Inspections Targeted	Unknown	Yes (29)
Unannounced Inspections Permitted	Yes (1)	Yes (29)

Overview of Labor Law Enforcement	2017	2018
Unannounced Inspections Conducted	Unknown	Yes (29)
Complaint Mechanism Exists	Yes (1)	Yes (29)
Reciprocal Referral Mechanism Exists Between Labor Authorities and Social Services	Yes (1)	Yes (29)

During the reporting period, inspectors facilitated the removal of 1,085 victims of child labor and referred them to social services provided by the Ministry of Gender, Children and Social Welfare. Social services providers facilitated counseling for sexually abused children, placement in school for school-aged children, and vocational skills training for others. (29,46)

The number of labor inspectors is likely insufficient for the size of Malawi's workforce, which includes more than 7 million workers. (51) According to the ILO's technical advice of a ratio approaching 1 inspector for every 40,000 workers in least developed economies, Malawi would employ about 175 labor inspectors. (52,53) Enforcement of child labor laws remains challenging due to the lack of resources for inspections. (1,29,54)

In December 2018, the Employers Consultative Association of Malawi partnered with the MOL to develop and adopt a child labor code of conduct to better ensure private sector compliance with the government's efforts on the elimination of child labor. (29,46) The government supports a child protection helpline operated by an NGO that identifies cases of child sexual and labor exploitation. (20) Research did not find information on the number of calls related specifically to child labor.

Criminal Law Enforcement

In 2018, criminal law enforcement agencies in Malawi took actions to combat child labor (Table 7). However, gaps exist within the operations of the criminal enforcement agencies that may hinder adequate criminal law enforcement, training for criminal investigators.

Table 7. Criminal Law Enforcement Efforts Related to Child Labor

Overview of Criminal Law Enforcement	2017	2018
Initial Training for New Criminal Investigators	Yes (51)	Unknown (29)
Training on New Laws Related to the Worst Forms of Child Labor	Unknown (1)	Unknown (29)
Refresher Courses Provided	Unknown (1)	Unknown (29)
Number of Investigations	Unknown	Unknown (29)
Number of Violations Found	Unknown	Unknown (29)
Number of Prosecutions Initiated	Unknown	Unknown (29)
Number of Convictions	Unknown	Unknown (29)
Imposed Penalties for Violations Related to The Worst Forms of Child Labor	Unknown (55)	Unknown (55)
Reciprocal Referral Mechanism Exists Between Criminal Authorities and Social Services	Yes (1)	Yes (46)

Specialized units for child labor issues do not exist within the Malawi Police Service or the Directorate of Public Prosecutions, which may impede the ability of the government to enforce criminal laws related to child labor. (29) In addition, children who are the victims of commercial sexual exploitation are sometimes arrested by the police and detained alongside adults. In some instances, these children fall victim to abuse, including sexual extortion, by the police. (29)

Many children in Malawi lack birth certificates. The inability of law enforcement officials to verify the ages of child victims may have impeded efforts to prosecute traffickers under the Child Care, Protection and Justice Act and the Trafficking in Persons Act. (54)

MODERATE ADVANCEMENT

IV. COORDINATION OF GOVERNMENT EFFORTS ON CHILD LABOR

The government has established mechanisms to coordinate its efforts to address child labor (Table 8). However, gaps exist that hinder the effective coordination of efforts to address child labor, including a lack of coordination efforts.

Table 8. Key Mechanisms to Coordinate Government Efforts on Child Labor

Coordinating Body	Role & Description
National Steering Committee on Child Labor	Provides policy guidance to support the elimination of child labor and implementation of the National Action Plan on Child Labor. Chaired by the Ministry of Agriculture, includes representatives from government ministries, trade unions, employers, development partners, and civil society organizations. (17,34) The National Steering Committee on Child Labor did not meet in 2018. (55)
National Technical Working Group on Child Labor and Protection	Oversees child protection issues. Chaired by the MOG, includes representatives from the government, international organizations, development partners, and NGOs. (14,17,20) The National Technical Working Group met once during the reporting period. (55)
District Child Protection Committees	Coordinates all child protection activities at the district level and improve local coordination on child protection issues. (17,20) The District Child Protection Committees met regularly during the reporting period, and provided recommendations to District Executive Committees, which met once a month. (55)
National Coordination Committee Against Trafficking in Persons	Mandated by the Trafficking in Persons Act of 2015. (6) Coordinates and oversees investigations and prosecutions, training, victim care, and human trafficking data collection. (56) Met once in 2018. (54)

Although the government has established coordinating bodies to address child labor, research was unable to determine outcomes of coordination efforts and found no evidence that these bodies function as meaningful coordinating mechanisms.

V. GOVERNMENT POLICIES ON CHILD LABOR

The government has established policies related to child labor (Table 9). However, policy gaps exist that hinder efforts to address child labor, including implementation.

Table 9. Key Policies Related to Child Labor

Policy	Description
National Children's Policy	Aims to facilitate the coordination of all policies related to the needs of children to ensure child protection, including the prevention of child labor and trafficking. (57) The policy was finalized during the reporting period, and approved in January 2019. (47)
Child Protection Strategic Plan (2012–2018)	Outlines the responsibilities of MOL, Malawi Police Service, and MOG in coordinating efforts to combat child labor. (12,17,58) Between April and November 2018, an evaluation of the Child Protection Strategic Plan was conducted with support from UNICEF. The findings and recommendations from the evaluation will be used to develop a new child protection strategy, and refine UNDAF. (12,55)
National Action Plan for Vulnerable Children (2015–2019)	Provides a framework for the development of district implementation plans. (59,60) Research was unable to determine whether activities were undertaken to implement the National Action Plan for Vulnerable Children during the reporting period.
National Plan of Action Against Trafficking in Persons (2017–2022)	Outlines objectives to counter trafficking in persons: strengthen prevention; provide support and protection for victims; strengthen detection, investigation, and prosecution of offenses; encourage partnership and coordination; and conduct research, monitoring, and evaluation. (61,62) Research was unable to determine whether activities were undertaken to implement the National Plan of Action Against Trafficking in Persons during the reporting period.
UNDAF (2019–2023)	Recognizes child labor as a common constraint to the creation of decent and productive employment. Signed between the government and the UN in September 2018, proposes strategies to address child labor, including prioritizing investments in child education, ensuring schools are safe from violence, and providing vocational skills for out-of-school children. (12,63,64)

† Policy was approved during the reporting period.

‡ The Government had other policies that may have addressed child labor issues or had an impact on child labor.

In 2018, the government began reviewing the National Action Plan on Child Labor with technical assistance from the ILO, and anticipates launching the plan in 2019. (29,46) An evaluation concluded in November 2018 found that the Child Protection Strategic Plan target for reducing the prevalence of child labor has not been achieved. (12) The draft National Child Labor Policy, which would provide the government, civil society, and other partners with a framework to implement child labor prevention programs and activities, is still undergoing national review that includes circulation among ministries. (1,6,14,17,30)

The government has not integrated child labor elimination and prevention strategies into either the National Youth Policy or the National Education Sector Plan. (65,66)

VI. SOCIAL PROGRAMS TO ADDRESS CHILD LABOR

In 2018, the government funded and participated in programs that include the goal of eliminating or preventing child labor (Table 10). However, gaps exist in these social programs, including implementation.

Table 10. Key Social Programs to Address Child Labor

Program	Description
Global Research on Child Labor Measurement and Policy Development (MAP)	USDOL-funded research project implemented by the ILO in 10 countries to increase the knowledge base around child labor by collecting new data, analyzing existing data, and building capacity of governments to conduct research in this area. (67) Additional information is available on the USDOL website.
Achieving Reduction of Child Labor in Support of Education II (ARISE) (2015–2018)	$4.7 million Japan Tobacco International (JTI)-funded, 3-year project to promote economic empowerment, raise awareness of child labor, and provide education support. (68) In July 2018, the project partnered with Lilongwe University of Agriculture and Natural Resources to incorporate child labor issues into the curriculum. In October 2018, in conjunction with the Ministry of Education, developed a guide on establishing anti-child labor clubs, and trained teachers and established anti-child labor clubs in 18 schools reaching 5,789 children. (69) Supported the development of a code of conduct for employers on the elimination of child labor in Malawi, which was published in December 2018. (70) Project ended in December 2018. (29)
Child Labor Monitoring System†	MOL system in pilot districts that identifies working children. Collects various data including school attendance. (17) Research was unable to determine whether activities were undertaken to implement the Child Labor Monitoring System during the reporting period.
National Social Cash Transfer Program†	MOG program that supports low-income families in high-risk districts to enable children to stay in school. As of September 2017, 430,000 children participated in the program. (51) Research has shown a decrease in child labor rates among participants of this program. (71,72) Research was unable to determine whether activities were undertaken to implement the National Social Cash Transfer Program during the reporting period.
Complimentary Basic Education Program†	$1.1 million government-funded project that promotes school enrollment for children who are removed from child labor. To date, an estimated 11,000 children have graduated from this program. (59)
Malawi Social Action Fund IV (2014–2019)	$70 million, World Bank-funded, 5-year project that provides loans for community development and social support programs, including work opportunities, skill-building, and cash transfers. (17,59) To date the program has established 2 integrated and functional safety net delivery systems; reached 985,635 regular participants and 225,000 emergency response participants under the public works program; trained 24,208 people in livelihood and skills development activities; and formed and strengthened 5,241 Community Savings and Investment Promotion and other livelihood groups. (51)
Orphans and Vulnerable Children Intervention†	$4.9 million, USAID and President's Emergency Plan for AIDS Relief-funded program that, in partnership with MOG, provides education, child protection services, birth registration, and shelter and care to vulnerable children from birth to age 17 through the establishment of Community Based Care Centers. (73) Research was unable to determine whether activities were undertaken to implement the Orphans and Vulnerable Children Intervention during the reporting period.
Girls Empowerment Programs	USAID-funded and Save the Children-implemented projects that focus on reducing structural and cultural barriers to girls' access to education. Projects include Let Girls Learn (2016–2021) and Girls' Empowerment through Education and Health Activity (2014–2018) in Balaka and Machinga districts. (6,73) In 2018, the Ministry of Education, Science and Technology, in conjunction with Save the Children, hosted a conference highlighting progress made in the implementation of the Inclusive Education in Malawi Program. (74) In 2018, with U.S. Government support, the Government of Malawi adopted an Adolescent Girls and Young Women strategy focusing on health, education, gender equality, and economic empowerment. (55,75)
Birth Registration Program†	EU and UNICEF-funded program that ensures nearly all health facilities in Lilongwe register children at birth and supports government electronic storage of birth data collected at the district level. The government's National Registration Bureau supports hospital birth registrations in Zomba and Mulanje districts. (20) The U.S. Centers for Disease Control and Prevention supports birth registration in Blantyre, Chitipa, and Ntcheu districts. (13) UNICEF supports birth registration in Lilongwe. (59) To date, efforts made to link national identification registration and birth registration databases to facilitate birth registration for children under age 16 have resulted in the registration of 4.5 million children. (55)

Program	Description
National Registration and ID Program†	$50 million government and UNDP co-funded program that aims to register all Malawians. (76) In 2017, 9 million people over the age of 16 and 4.5 million under the age of 15 were registered. By July 2018, 90 percent of the national registration identity cards were distributed. (56,77)

† Program is funded by the Government of Malawi.

‡ The government had other social programs that may have included the goal of eliminating or preventing child labor. (14,78)

Although Malawi has programs that target child labor, the scope of these programs is insufficient to fully address the extent of the problem in all relevant sectors, including agriculture and commercial sexual exploitation.

VII. SUGGESTED GOVERNMENT ACTIONS TO ELIMINATE CHILD LABOR

Based on the reporting above, suggested actions are identified that would advance the elimination of child labor in Malawi (Table 11).

Table 11. Suggested Government Actions to Eliminate Child Labor

Area	Suggested Action	Year(s) Suggested
Legal Framework	Ensure that all forms of children's work, including work conducted by children in private homes (domestic service) and on non-commercial farms, receive legal protection, including a minimum age for work that complies with international standards.	2009 – 2018
	Raise the minimum age for work from 14 years to the age up to which education is compulsory.	2018
	Ensure legal protection for children working in the tenancy system.	2009 – 2018
	Ensure that the law criminally prohibits the recruitment of children under age 18 by non-state armed groups.	2016 – 2018
	Enforcement	Publish information on the number of penalties that were imposed and collected for child labor violations.
Enforcement	Increase the number of labor inspectors to meet the ILO's technical advice.	2017 - 2018
	Increase resources to the labor inspectorate to conduct regular child labor inspections.	2009 – 2018
	Disaggregate data on child labor from child protection hotline calls and publish the information.	2014 – 2018
	Publish information on training for criminal law investigators and the number of investigations, violations, prosecutions, and convictions.	2013 – 2018
	Ensure that children who are engaged in commercial sexual exploitation are not arrested and detained.	2018
Coordination	Ensure all coordinating bodies are able to carry out their intended mandates.	2018
Government Policies	Ensure that activities are undertaken to implement key policies related to child labor.	2016 – 2018
	Renew the National Action Plan on Child Labor for Malawi.	2017 – 2018
	Integrate child labor elimination and prevention strategies into the National Education Sector Plan and the National Youth Policy.	2011 – 2018
Social Programs	Ensure that additional educational costs, exposure to sexual violence, and the impact of HIV/AIDS do not serve as barriers to education.	2012 – 2018
	Ensure that activities are undertaken to implement key programs related to child labor.	2017 – 2018
	Increase the scope of existing social programs to reach more children at risk of the worst forms of child labor; and develop specific programs to target children in agriculture and commercial sexual exploitation.	2011 – 2018
	Ensure all children are registered at birth, and increase efforts to register children who were not issued birth certificates at birth.	2018

In 2018, Maldives made a minimal advancement in efforts to eliminate the worst forms of child labor. The Maldives Police Service conducted awareness-raising programs for 36 guesthouse operators and resort managers on protecting children from commercial sexual exploitation within the tourism industry. Although research is limited, there is evidence that children in Maldives engage in the worst forms of child labor, including in forced labor in domestic work and commercial sexual exploitation, each sometimes as a result of human trafficking. The government has not determined specific hazardous occupations or activities that are prohibited for children, and the law does not sufficiently prohibit commercial sexual exploitation of children. Moreover, the government does not have a coordinating mechanism, policy, or program that addresses all relevant worst forms of child labor in the country.

I. PREVALENCE AND SECTORAL DISTRIBUTION OF CHILD LABOR

Although research is limited, there is evidence that children in Maldives engage in the worst forms of child labor, including in forced labor in domestic work and commercial sexual exploitation, each sometimes as a result of human trafficking. (1-3) Table 1 provides key indicators on children's work and education in Maldives. Data on some of these indicators are not available from the sources used in this report.

Table 1. Statistics on Children's Work and Education

Children	Age	Percent
Working (% and population)	5 to 14	3.9 (2,364)
Attending School (%)	5 to 14	79.5
Combining Work and School (%)	7 to 14	4.0
Primary Completion Rate (%)		94.7

Source for primary completion rate: Data from 2017, published by UNESCO Institute for Statistics, 2019. (4)

Source for all other data: International Labor Organization's analysis of statistics from Demographic and Health Survey, 2009. (5)

Based on a review of available information, Table 2 provides an overview of children's work by sector and activity.

Table 2. Overview of Children's Work by Sector and Activity

Sector/Industry	Activity
Services	Domestic work (1,2)
Categorical Worst Forms of Child Labor‡	Commercial sexual exploitation, sometimes as a result of human trafficking (1-3)
	Forced labor in domestic work, sometimes as a result of human trafficking (1-3)
	Use in the trafficking of drugs (6)

‡ Child labor understood as the worst forms of child labor per se under Article 3(a)–(c) of ILO C. 182.

No current data are available on child labor in Maldives, and a national survey on child labor has not been conducted. Maldivian children from the outer islands are brought to the capital, Malé, for domestic work. Some of these children are reported to be victims of forced labor and sexual abuse. (2) In addition, some girls from Bangladesh and Maldives are trafficked for commercial sexual exploitation to Maldives. (2) There also are some reports of foreign tourists engaging in commercial sexual exploitation of children. (3)

II. LEGAL FRAMEWORK FOR CHILD LABOR

Maldives has ratified all key international conventions concerning child labor (Table 3).

MINIMAL ADVANCEMENT

Table 3. Ratification of International Conventions on Child Labor

ILO C. 182, Worst Forms of Child Labor	✓
 UN CRC	✓
UN CRC Optional Protocol on Armed Conflict	✓
UN CRC Optional Protocol on the Sale of Children, Child Prostitution and Child Pornography	✓
 Palermo Protocol on Trafficking in Persons	✓

The government has established laws and regulations related to child labor (Table 4). However, gaps exist in Maldives' legal framework to adequately protect children from the worst forms of child labor, including determining the types of hazardous work prohibited for children.

Table 4. Laws and Regulations on Child Labor

Standard	Meets International Standards	Age	Legislation
Minimum Age for Work	Yes	16	Section 6 of the Employment Act (7)

Free Public Education	Yes		Article 36(b) of the Constitution of the Republic of Maldives; Article 5(b) of the Law on the Protection of the Rights of Children (11,12)

* No conscription (13)

The law does not prohibit using, procuring, and offering children for pornographic performances. (9) In addition, the recruitment of children by non-state armed groups is not prohibited.

Research did not uncover an English version of the 2014 amendment to the Law on the Protection of the Rights of Children for review.

III. ENFORCEMENT OF LAWS ON CHILD LABOR

The government has established institutional mechanisms for the enforcement of laws and regulations on child labor (Table 5). However, gaps exist within the operations of the Labor Relations Authority (LRA) that may hinder adequate enforcement of child labor laws.

Table 5. Agencies Responsible for Child Labor Law Enforcement

Organization/Agency	Role
Labor Relations Authority, Ministry of Economic Development (MED)	Enforces the Employment Act, including child labor provisions. Conducts labor inspections and issues fines for violations. (6,7)
Family and Child Protection Department, Maldives Police Service (MPS)	Investigates complaints of child labor and commercial sexual exploitation. Refers cases to the Prosecutor General's Office for prosecution and the Ministry of Gender and Family to provide victim services. (11) Employs eight officers in Malé to investigate child labor cases, including child commercial sexual exploitation and child pornography cases. (11)
Family and Child Protection Services, Ministry of Gender and Family	Receives referrals of children who have been exploited, including in commercial sexual exploitation and drug trafficking, and provides care for such victims. (6)
Anti-Human Trafficking Department, MPS	Investigates human trafficking-related offenses and enforces laws prohibiting trafficking in persons. Employs five officers to investigate human trafficking cases. (2,11)

Labor Law Enforcement

In 2018, labor law enforcement agencies in Maldives took actions to combat child labor (Table 6). However, gaps exist within the operations of the LRA that may hinder adequate labor law enforcement, including the lack of referral mechanisms.

Table 6. Labor Law Enforcement Efforts Related to Child Labor

Overview of Labor Law Enforcement	2017	2018

Unannounced Inspections Conducted	No (14)	Yes (6)
Complaint Mechanism Exists	Yes (14)	Yes (6)
Reciprocal Referral Mechanism Exists Between Labor Authorities and Social Services	No (14)	No (6)

The LRA lacks the financial and human resources necessary to adequately conduct inspections. Inspectors also have not received training on the identification and remediation of child labor. (6,15) In addition, although the labor inspectorate is authorized to assess penalties, no fines were issued in practice due to a lack of coordination between the LRA and the Maldives Inland Revenue Authority, which has the mandate to receive the payment of the fines. (6,7)

Criminal Law Enforcement

In 2018, criminal law enforcement agencies in Maldives took actions to combat child labor (Table 7). However, gaps exist within the operations of the Family and Child Protection Department of the Maldives Police Service (MPS) that may hinder adequate criminal law enforcement, including lack of resources for investigators.

MINIMAL ADVANCEMENT

Table 7. Criminal Law Enforcement Efforts Related to Child Labor

Overview of Criminal Law Enforcement	2017	2018
Initial Training for New Criminal Investigators	No (14)	Yes (6)
Training on New Laws Related to the Worst Forms of Child Labor	N/A (14)	N/A
Refresher Courses Provided	N/A (14)	Yes (6)
Number of Investigations	21 (14)	1 (6)

Number of Prosecutions Initiated	Unknown (14)	0 (6)
Number of Convictions	0 (14)	0 (6)
Imposed Penalties for Violations Related to The Worst Forms of Child Labor	Unknown	Unknown
Reciprocal Referral Mechanism Exists Between Criminal Authorities and Social Services	Yes (14)	Yes (6)

Investigators have insufficient funding and resources, such as office facilities and transportation. (14) Police and other officials also have inadequate training on procedures for identifying human trafficking victims and providing referrals to protective services, including for children. (2)

IV. COORDINATION OF GOVERNMENT EFFORTS ON CHILD LABOR

The government has established mechanisms to coordinate its efforts to address child labor (Table 8). However, gaps exist that hinder the effective coordination of efforts to address all forms of child labor.

Table 8. Key Mechanisms to Coordinate Government Efforts on Child Labor

Coordinating Body	Role & Description
Anti-Human Trafficking National Steering Committee	Manages all anti-human trafficking activities and implements the country's Anti-Human Trafficking National Action Plan. Chaired by MED leadership and consists of 11 participating government agencies. (3,8)

Research found no evidence of mechanisms to coordinate efforts to address all child labor, including its worst forms. Although the government has established the Anti-Human Trafficking National Steering Committee, this coordinating mechanism did not meet during the reporting period. It is reported that the failure of this steering committee to meet during this time has delayed the adoption of standard operating procedures for the identification, protection, and referral of victims. (3)

V. GOVERNMENT POLICIES ON CHILD LABOR

The government has established policies related to child labor (Table 9). However, policy gaps exist that hinder efforts to address child labor, including coverage of all forms of child labor.

Table 9. Key Policies Related to Child Labor

Policy	Description
Anti-Human Trafficking National Action Plan (2015–2019)	Establishes the government's goals to combat human trafficking, including establishing institutions, coordinating activities, raising awareness, and building capacity. (16)

Reporting indicates that little progress was made to implement the Anti-Human Trafficking National Action Plan during the reporting period and the Anti-Human Trafficking National Steering Committee failed to monitor its implementation. (3) Research also found no evidence of a policy designed to specifically address child labor.

VI. SOCIAL PROGRAMS TO ADDRESS CHILD LABOR

In 2018, the government funded and participated in programs that include the goal of eliminating or preventing child labor (Table 10). However, gaps exist in these social programs, including adequacy to address the problem in all sectors.

Table 10. Key Social Programs to Address Child Labor

Program	Description
Family and Child Service Centers†	Nineteen Ministry of Gender and Family-operated centers that provide psychosocial support for child victims of abuse and exploitation, four of which provide temporary shelter for victims. (14)
National Victim Support Hotline (Number 1696)†	MED-operated hotline dedicated to receiving reports of human trafficking and child labor. Supported by the MPS and Maldives Immigration. (17)
Child Helpline (Number 1412)†	Ministry of Gender and Family-operated helpline established with the support of the MPS and UNICEF to receive reports of child abuse cases. (14)

† Program is funded by the Government of Maldives.

In 2018, the MPS conducted awareness-raising programs for 36 guesthouse operators and resort managers on protecting children from commercial sexual exploitation within the tourism industry. (6,18) However, Family and Child Services centers and shelters lack adequate financial and human resources, and staff are inadequately trained to deal with cases involving abused and exploited children. (14) In addition, research was unable to determine what activities were undertaken during the reporting period to implement existing social programs. These programs also do not specifically address the commercial sexual exploitation of children, use of children for drug trafficking, or forced labor in domestic work.

VII. SUGGESTED GOVERNMENT ACTIONS TO ELIMINATE CHILD LABOR

Based on the reporting above, suggested actions are identified that would advance the elimination of child labor in Maldives (Table 11).

Table 11. Suggested Government Actions to Eliminate Child Labor

Area	Suggested Action	Year(s) Suggested
Legal Framework	Determine the types of hazardous work prohibited for children, in consultation with employers' and workers' organizations.	2009 – 2018
	Criminally prohibit all forms of commercial sexual exploitation of children, including procuring, offering, and using children for pornographic performances.	2016 – 2018
	Ensure that the law criminally prohibits the recruitment of children under age 18 by non-state armed groups.	2016 – 2018
	Publish the 2014 amendment to the Law on the Protection of the Rights of Children.	2016 – 2018
Enforcement	Ensure that the labor inspectorate receives training that specifically focuses on child labor issues, including training for new employees.	2009 – 2018
	Establish a referral mechanism between labor authorities and social services.	2016 – 2018
	Ensure that the labor inspectorate receives sufficient resources to enforce child labor laws.	2017 – 2018
	Provide sufficient funding and training to the police and prosecutors, and ensure that investigators have the resources necessary to enforce laws on the worst forms of child labor.	2013 – 2018
Coordination	Establish a coordination mechanism to combat child labor.	2009 – 2018
	Ensure that the Anti-Human Trafficking National Steering Committee meets to fulfill its mandates as required by law.	2018
Government Policies	Ensure that the Anti-Human Trafficking National Action Plan is being implemented and its implementation is monitored.	2018
	Adopt a policy to address the worst forms of child labor.	2014 – 2018
Social Programs	Conduct and publish research on the worst forms of child labor, including commercial sexual exploitation and trafficking of children.	2009 – 2018
	Conduct a national child labor survey and publish the results.	2014 – 2018
	Provide sufficient funding, human resources, and staff training for Family and Child Service centers and shelters that serve abused and exploited children.	2018
	Publish information about activities that were undertaken to implement social programs, including the national hotlines.	2017 – 2018
	Implement and provide sufficient resources for programs that address the worst forms of child labor, including the commercial sexual exploitation of children, the use of children for drug trafficking, and forced labor in domestic work.	2009 – 2018

In 2018, Mali made a moderate advancement in efforts to eliminate the worst forms of child labor. The government finalized the National Action Plan to Combat Trafficking of Persons and allocated a budget of $10 million over 5 years for implementation. The government also convicted 1 perpetrator for attempting to traffic 3 children to Cote d'Ivoire and provided services to 53 victims of child soldiering, of which 21 were reunited with their families. Finally, under the National Policy for Promotion and Protection of Children, the government conducted activities to increase birth registration. However, children in Mali engage in the worst forms of child labor, including in hereditary slavery and in armed conflict. Children also perform dangerous tasks in agriculture, particularly in the production of cotton and rice. Mali's law does not comprehensively prohibit hereditary slavery in cases where recruitment, transport, transfer, harboring, or receipt of a person is not involved nor does the law explicitly prohibit using, procuring, or offering children for illicit activities. In addition, resource constraints severely limited the government's ability to fully implement the National Plan to Combat Child Labor, and existing social programs are insufficient to adequately address the extent of the problem, particularly in artisanal gold mining, hereditary slavery, and debt bondage.

I. PREVALENCE AND SECTORAL DISTRIBUTION OF CHILD LABOR

Children in Mali engage in the worst forms of child labor, including in hereditary slavery and in armed conflict. (1-5) Children also perform dangerous tasks in agriculture, particularly in the production of cotton and rice. (2,6) Table 1 provides key indicators on children's work and education in Mali. Data on some of these indicators are not available from the sources used in this report.

	Commercial sexual exploitation, sometimes as a result of human trafficking (2,19-22)
	Forced recruitment by armed rebel and extremist Islamic militia groups for use in armed conflict (2,4,23-25)
	Hereditary slavery (1,17,19,27)
	Forced begging by Koranic teachers, sometimes as a result of human trafficking (2,12,19)

† Determined by national law or regulation as hazardous and, as such, relevant to Article 3(d) of ILO C. 182.

‡ Child labor understood as the worst forms of child labor per se under Article 3(a)–(c) of ILO C. 182.

Children, especially of the Bellah community (also known as black Tuaregs), are subject to hereditary slavery in northern Mali. (1,17,19,27) Some children are born into slavery, while others are born free, but remain in dependent status through which they are forced to work with their parents for their former masters in exchange for food, money, and lodging. Child slaves perform agricultural or domestic labor and are often sexually abused. (19,28) In addition, children, particularly those of Songhai ethnicity, work in debt bondage in the northern salt mines of Taoudenni. (19,29)

Children involved in artisanal gold mining in western and southern Mali are exposed to toxic substances and extreme temperatures, transport heavy loads, and work long hours. (2,12-15) Some boys placed in the care of Koranic teachers for education are forced by their teachers to beg on the street or to work in fields, after which they must then surrender the money they have earned to their teachers. (2,12,19,29)

In 2018, intermittent fighting and violence in central and northern Mali continued, resulting in the killing and displacement of children. (14,19,23,26,30) Although the incidence of child soldiers decreased during the reporting period, children continued to be forcibly recruited and trained by non-state armed groups, including the Coordination of Movements for Azawad, the National Movement for the Liberation of Azawad, the High Council for the Unity of Azawad, the Arab Movement of Azawad, and Tuareg Imghad and Allies Self-Defense Group (GATIA), all signatories of the 2015 Peace Accord. (4,25,30) Research found evidence of ties between the government and GATIA, a non-state armed group led by a Malian general, including the provision of in-kind support to GATIA. (2,5,31,32) In 2018, the Directorate for the Promotion of Children and Family (DPCF) within the Ministry for the Promotion of Women, Children, and Family (MPFEF) reported identifying 53 cases of children used by armed groups, and other cases of forced recruitment of child soldiers during the reporting period are being confirmed. DPCF reported that there are cases of children who previously returned to their families but were recruited again by armed groups. (33)

Although the Constitution guarantees free and compulsory education, many children, especially girls, do not attend school because parents are expected to pay fees for registration, uniforms, books, and materials, which are prohibitive for many impoverished families. (2,17,29,34,35) Many children in Mali are not registered at birth. Unable to present their birth certificate, unregistered children may have difficulty accessing services, including education. (2,29,36,37) In addition, evidence suggests that incidences of physical, psychological, and sexual abuse, including corporal punishment, prevent some children from remaining in school. (17,29,38) During the reporting period, numerous attacks on schools in northern Mali resulted in lootings, destruction of learning materials and infrastructure, and occupancy of school facilities by armed groups. (2,4,14,23,24,39-41) Many teachers and students remained displaced, and some teachers in insecure areas felt that it was unsafe to return to school. (2,14,42) In addition, during the reporting period, 735 schools remained closed, preventing 225,000 children from accessing education due to continuing conflict and displacement. (43-45) Beginning in December 2018, the majority of primary and secondary school teachers throughout the country went on a series of non-continuous strikes causing many schools to close. The strikes ended in May 2019, and the Ministry of Education extended the school year until July 2019 in order to salvage the school year. (46-48) The lack of access to education and lack of teacher availability may increase the risk of children's involvement in the worst forms of child labor. (40)

II. Legal Framework for Child Labor

Mali has ratified all key international conventions concerning child labor (Table 3).

Table 3. Ratification of International Conventions on Child Labor

The government has established laws and regulations related to child labor (Table 4). However, gaps exist in Mali's legal framework to adequately protect children from the worst forms of child labor, including recruitment by non-state armed groups and using children in illicit activities.

Table 4. Laws and Regulations on Child Labor

Standard	Meets International Standards	Age	Legislation
Minimum Age for Work	Yes	15	Article L.187 of the Law 2017-021 modifying the Labor Code (49)
Minimum Age for Hazardous Work	Yes	18	Hazardous Occupations List; Article 1 of the 2017-4388 Amendment to Hazardous Occupations List; Article D.189.14 of the Labor Code (50-52)
Identification of Hazardous Occupations or Activities Prohibited for Children	Yes		Hazardous Occupations List; Article 1 of the 2017-4388 Amendment to Hazardous Occupations List; Article 189 of the Labor Code (50-52)
Prohibition of Forced Labor	No		Article L.6 of the Law 2017-021 modifying the Labor Code; Article 1 of the Trafficking in Persons Law (49,53)
Prohibition of Child Trafficking	Yes		Article 244 of the Penal Code; Article 7 of the Trafficking in Persons Law; Article 63 of the Child Protection Code (53-55)
Prohibition of Commercial Sexual Exploitation of Children	Yes		Article 228 of the Penal Code; Article 1 and 7 of the Trafficking in Persons Law; Article 57 of the Child Protection Code (53-55)
Prohibition of Using Children in Illicit Activities	No		Article 183 of the Penal Code; Articles 18 and 50 of the Child Protection Code (54,55)
Minimum Age for Voluntary State Military Recruitment	Yes	18	Article 17 of the Child Protection Code; Articles 31.23 and 31.31 of the Penal Code; Article 5 of the Military General Statute (54-56)
Prohibition of Compulsory Recruitment of Children by (State) Military	Yes		Article 17 of the Child Protection Code; Articles 31.23 and 31.31 of the Penal Code; Article 5 of the Military General Statute (54-56)
Prohibition of Military Recruitment by Non-state Armed Groups	No		Articles 31.23, 31.31, and 32 of the Penal Code (54)
Compulsory Education Age	Yes	15‡	Articles 26 and 34 of the Law of Education (57)
Free Public Education	Yes		Article 18 of the Constitution (58)

‡ Age calculated based on available information (54)

The Labor Code allows children between the ages of 12 and 14 to perform domestic or light seasonal work, as long as it does not impede school attendance or exceed 4.5 hours of work per day. (50) However, the law

Mali

does not specify the conditions under which light work may be undertaken. (49,59) Although, Mali's Trafficking in Persons Law criminalizes slavery that occurs as a result of trafficking, it does not criminalize hereditary slavery in cases which do not involve the recruitment, transport, transfer, harboring, or receipt of a person. In addition, Malian law does not prohibit using, procuring, or offering a child for the production and trafficking of drugs as established by international standards. (1,2,20,53,55)

The Child Protection Code provides protection for children under age 18, while the Penal Code establishes criminal penalties for several of the worst forms of child labor. For example, Articles 50 and 58 of the Child Protection Code identify begging as a form of economic exploitation of children, while Article 183 of the Penal Code specifies punishments for engaging a child in begging. (12,54,55) However, the Penal Code does not provide penalties for some of the prohibitions enumerated in the Child Protection Code. (54,55) Specifically, Article 17 of the Child Protection Code prohibits children under age 18 from participating in armed conflicts or joining the armed forces, yet Articles 31.23 and 31.31 of the Penal Code provide criminal penalties only for those recruiting and enlisting children under age 15. (54,55,60)

The Inter-Ministerial Circular on the Prevention, Protection, and Rehabilitation of Child Soldiers references Article 28 of the Penal Code, which states that crimes committed out of self-defense or under a force that could not be resisted should not be penalized as prescribed by the Penal Code. Although the Inter-Ministerial Circular states that Article 28 of the Penal Code is applicable to children involved in armed conflict, the Circular does not define the age range of the children it covers. (54,61) Considering the non-existence of criminal penalties in the Child Protection Code and the lack of criminal penalties in the Penal Code for those who recruit and enlist children ages 15 and older, the absence of a defined age range in this Inter-Ministerial Circular may leave children ages 15 to 17 unprotected. (54,61)

III. ENFORCEMENT OF LAWS ON CHILD LABOR

The government has established institutional mechanisms for the enforcement of laws and regulations on child labor (Table 5). However, gaps exist within the operations of the Ministry of Labor that may hinder adequate enforcement of their child labor laws.

Table 5. Agencies Responsible for Child Labor Law Enforcement

Organization/Agency	Role
Ministry of Labor's National Directorate of Labor	Enforces labor laws and investigates Labor Code infractions, including those regarding child labor. (29,62,63)
Ministry of Justice	Initiates and coordinates with courts the implementation of laws related to the worst forms of child labor. (19,62)
Ministry of Internal Security's Police Brigade for the Protection of Morals and Children	Investigates crimes against children, including human trafficking and commercial sexual exploitation. (2,19)
Ministry for the Promotion of Women, Children, and the Family (MPFEF)	Develops and implements programs to protect vulnerable children and to monitor alleged violations of child labor laws, including those related to the worst forms of child labor. (34,62,63)

Labor Law Enforcement

In 2018, labor law enforcement agencies in Mali took actions to combat child labor (Table 6). However, gaps exist within the operations of the Ministry of Labor that may hinder adequate labor law enforcement, including insufficient financial and human resource allocation.

Table 6. Labor Law Enforcement Efforts Related to Child Labor

In 2018, the National Directorate of Labor employed 70 inspectors and 39 controllers, of which 3 inspectors and 12 controllers were dedicated to child labor. The number of labor inspectors is likely insufficient for the size of Mali's workforce, which includes approximately 6.5 million workers. According to the ILO's technical advice of a ratio approaching 1 inspector for every 40,000 workers in less developed countries, Mali would employ about 161 inspectors. (33,64-66) One labor inspector in each region is designated as the point of contact for the National Unit to Fight Against Child Labor (CNLTE) to facilitate regional coordination. Although all regions have labor inspectors, government services are limited or non-existent in some areas due to the insecurity caused by the presence of non-state armed groups. (2,33) According to the Government of Mali, increasing decentralization efforts have allowed ministry funds to be allocated to regional labor inspectorates so that they can carry out inspections. Despite this, only three regional directorates have vehicles to carry out inspections, and the CNLTE lacks a vehicle for its services. (33) In addition, reports indicate that a lack of trained staff, equipment, transportation, and funding hampered the labor inspectorate's ability to conduct child labor inspections and legal proceedings, especially in remote areas of northern Mali. (2,29,59,67)

Although the government revised the Labor Code and hazardous occupation list in 2017, labor inspectors had not received training on the amended Labor Code and hazardous occupation list by the end of the reporting period. (68)

Criminal Law Enforcement

In 2018, criminal law enforcement agencies in Mali took actions to combat child labor (Table 7). However, gaps exist within the operations of the criminal enforcement agencies that may hinder adequate criminal law enforcement, including insufficient financial and human resource allocation.

Table 7. Criminal Law Enforcement Efforts Related to Child Labor

Mali

MODERATE ADVANCEMENT

In 2018, the Ministry of Internal Security's Moral Brigade employed 28 staff, 3 more than in 2017. Despite this, there are reports that the number of law enforcement agents is inadequate given the prevalence of the worst forms of child labor in the country. (33) Although the total number of investigations conducted throughout the country during the reporting period is unknown, the Appeals Court of Bamako reported that the Morals Brigade investigated 1 case of child trafficking and secured a conviction of 4 years imprisonment for the individual who attempted to traffic 3 children ages 14 to 16 to Côte d'Ivoire. In addition, the Morals Brigade reported eight cases of mistreatment of child domestic workers. (33)

In addition to an operational budget, the government provided the Morals Brigade with 31 gallons of fuel for each 3-month period. (33) During the reporting period, the government funded and organized anti-trafficking awareness trainings for judges, prosecutors, and law enforcement officers and conducted an additional training for community leaders and marabouts. The government also distributed 200 copies of the Trafficking in Persons Law to judges, prosecutors, and magistrates who took part in Ministry of Justice-led trainings. (25) IOM also held trainings for government officials and non-governmental actors on combatting trafficking in persons and victim identification and referral. (25)

Despite these efforts, there is a lack of trained staff, equipment, transportation, and funding to adequately conduct criminal law enforcement efforts related to the worst forms of child labor, particularly in remote areas. (5,33,69) Reports indicate that because of political instability, which may hinder labor and criminal law enforcement efforts in northern Mali, the prevalence of hereditary slavery, forced labor, and trafficking in persons has worsened since the conflict began in 2012. (5,29,30,33)

In 2018, the Morals Brigade received training from the UN Multidimensional Integrated Stabilization Mission in Mali Child Protection Office and from the EU Capacity Building Mission in Mali. During the reporting period, MPPEF provided medical and psycho-social support to 53 children associated with armed groups and reunited 21 with their families. (33)

Research found no indication that the government either investigated or prosecuted individuals alleged to have illegally recruited and used child soldiers. (25)

An informal referral mechanism exists among NGOs, UN bodies, police, and other government agencies to allow withdrawal of children from armed conflict and provide social services to victims of the worst forms of child labor. In 2018, the government worked with local organizations to withdraw and provide reintegration services to 109 child victims of human trafficking. (25,33) Despite these efforts, reports indicate that resources and facilities available to social services agencies are inadequate. (5,29,33,62)

IV. COORDINATION OF GOVERNMENT EFFORTS ON CHILD LABOR

The government has established mechanisms to coordinate its efforts to address child labor (Table 8). However, gaps exist that hinder the effective coordination of efforts to address child labor, including a lack of coordination between key bodies.

Table 8. Key Mechanisms to Coordinate Government Efforts on Child Labor

Coordinating Body	Role & Description
National Unit to Fight Against Child Labor (CNLTE)	Coordinates Mali's efforts to eliminate child labor, especially its worst forms. Chaired by the Ministry of Labor and includes representatives from other government ministries, civil society, and worker and employer organizations. (2,20,70,71) In 2018, received a budget of $70,000 to conduct activities including conducting labor inspections on farms. (33)
National Coordinating Committee for the Fight Against Trafficking in Persons and Associated Practices	Coordinates government efforts to combat human trafficking. Chaired by the Ministry of Justice and includes various government agencies and civil society groups. (2,19,72,73) In 2018, finalized the National Plan of Action to Combat Trafficking of Persons (PAN) 2018–2022, which was published in January 2019. (69,74)

Coordinating Body	Role & Description
Inter-Ministerial Committee to Prevent Grave Violations Against Children	Conducts awareness-raising campaigns to prevent the recruitment and use of children in armed conflict and implements reintegration programs for former child soldiers. (2) Conducts joint missions with international partners to determine the presence of children in armed conflict. (62) Led by MPFEF. (2) In 2018, continued to train regional actors in the protocol to release and transfer children associated with armed groups and forces. (33)
Artisanal Gold Mining Summit Committee	Comprising gold mining associations and local government officials that monitor the recommendations from a 2014 summit on artisanal mining, including the ban on child labor in artisanal gold mines. (75,76) In 2018, collaborated with the Embassies of Canada and Switzerland and mining companies to establish a commission charged with examining issues in gold mining, including the use of child labor. (33)

Reports indicate that there is confusion with regard to roles and a lack of coordination between the CNLTE and the National Coordinating Committee for the Fight Against Trafficking in Persons and Associated Practices. (19,30,72) In addition, the CNLTE indicated that budget constraints continue to hamper its effectiveness as a whole. (2,33)

V. GOVERNMENT POLICIES ON CHILD LABOR

The government has established policies related to child labor (Table 9). However, policy gaps exist that hinder efforts to address child labor, including insufficient funding and ineffective implementation.

Table 9. Key Policies Related to Child Labor

Policy	Description
National Plan to Combat Child Labor (PANETEM) (2011–2020)	Aims to eliminate the worst forms of child labor by strengthening child labor laws, training relevant government officials, and mobilizing funds for social programs to withdraw children from child labor. Implemented by CNLTE. (6,59,76) In 2018, CNLTE reported a lack of funding for PANETEM and no resources to evaluate its progress. (33)
Roadmap to Combat Child Labor in Agriculture (2015–2020)	Seeks to enhance the legal framework and build the capacity of the government to prevent child labor in agriculture. Led by the Ministry of Agriculture and supported by the Food and Agriculture Organization (FAO) of the UN. (77-80) In 2018, conducted a workshop with the ILO; produced pictures for awareness about child labor; and recruited a consultant to conduct a study on the agriculture, fishing, and livestock farming sectors. (68)
National Plan of Action to Combat Trafficking in Persons (PAN) (2018–2022)†	Aims to enhance the legal framework to prevent human trafficking, improve implementation of the laws, and provide effective protection and care for victims. Led by the National Coordinating Committee for the Fight Against Trafficking in Persons and Associated Practices. (5,74) In 2018, the government retroactively allocated a budget of $2 million to implement activities. (69,74)
National Policy for Promotion and Protection of Children (2015–2019)	Aims to protect children from abuse, violence, and exploitation and promotes improved access to education and livelihood services for vulnerable children, especially those affected by armed conflict. (2,81) Overseen by MPFEF. (2) In 2018, supported formal registration of children at birth by conducting awareness-raising campaigns and sharing information with other government departments involved in birth registration. (33)
Inter-Ministerial Circular and the Protocol on the Release and Transfer of Children Associated with Armed Groups and Armed Forces	Provides a framework that highlights the responsibility of the government to prevent children's involvement in armed conflict, and protect and reintegrate those children who become involved. (2,82,83) In 2018, organized a workshop on child soldiering and protecting children in emergencies for local government representatives and regional technical officers in regions affected by armed conflict. (33)
National Strategic Education Sector Plan (2017–2026)	Sets out a comprehensive map to improve the quality of and access to basic and secondary education, especially in conflict-affected areas of northern Mali. Led by the Ministry of Education and supported by international donors. (59,62,84) In 2018, the Government of Mali allocated $771,000 to basic education. (33)

† Policy was approved during the reporting period.

‡ The government had other policies that may have addressed child labor issues or had an impact on child labor. (2,4)

In 2018, the government published the National Plan of Action to Combat Trafficking of Persons (PAN) for 2018–2022, which calls for the establishment of a formal body to coordinate government efforts to combat trafficking in persons and allocates a budget of $10 million for the 5-year period or $2 million per year. The government has pledged to contribute $350,000 annually and intends to mobilize development partners and the private sector to provide the remaining financial support needed to implement the plan. (25)

Mali

MODERATE ADVANCEMENT

The government indicated that efforts to implement the National Plan to Combat Child Labor have been slow due to insufficient allocation of resources. (2,33)

VI. SOCIAL PROGRAMS TO ADDRESS CHILD LABOR

In 2018, the government participated in programs that include the goal of eliminating or preventing child labor (Table 10). However gaps exist in these social programs, including adequacy of efforts to address the problem in all sectors.

Table 10. Key Social Programs to Address Child Labor

Program	Description
South-South Cooperation for the promotion of decent work in cotton-producing countries (2015–2019)	$6.8 million Government of Brazil-funded project that aims to improve working conditions in the cotton sector, including by combating child labor. (86,87) Research was unable to determine whether activities were undertaken to implement the program during the reporting period.
Decent Work Country Program (2016–2018)	Identified two objectives of decent work: (a) to create jobs and guarantee rights at work for vulnerable populations, and (b) extend social protection and promote social dialogue. (76) Included activities in support of PANETEM. Overseen by the Ministry of Labor and supported by the ILO. (76) Research was unable to determine whether activities were undertaken to implement the Decent Work Country Program during the reporting period. (68)
Clear Cotton Project on Child Labour and Forced Labour (2018–2022)*	An $8.5 million EU and FAO-funded global project implemented by the ILO to combat child labor and forced labor in cotton and textile supply chains. (33,88)
Combating Descent-Based Slavery Program	USDOS-funded program implemented by the American Bar Association to combat hereditary slavery and forced child labor in Mali. (3,89) In 2018, held a conference on combating hereditary slavery in the Kayes region. (68,90)
National Disarmament, Demobilization, and Reintegration Program	$25 million UN Multidimensional Integrated Stabilization Mission in Mali-implemented program that aims to provide reintegration services to former combatants in Mali, including children. (2,42,91) By 2018, 17 of the 24 planned sites for disarmament, demobilization, and reintegration had been built, each site with the capacity to receive 750 combatants, including children. (33)
Global Action Against Trafficking in Persons and the Smuggling of Migrants	$13 million EU-funded, global project implemented by UNODC, UNICEF, and IOM to combat human trafficking and migrant smuggling. (92,93) In 2018, Government of Mali representatives attended a sub-regional conference on combating migrant smuggling. (68,94)
USAID Country Program (2016–2020)	$600 million USAID-funded program that supports the government's efforts to improve education, food security, and health; and to provide humanitarian assistance in crisis areas. In 2018, provided quality basic and secondary education to vulnerable communities in northern Mali, including by re-opening schools, training teachers, and providing school kits for students. (2,33,95)

* Program was launched during the reporting period.

‡ The government had other social programs that may have included the goal of eliminating or preventing child labor. (2,96-99)

In 2018, the government funded training events conducted by an NGO working in the artisanal gold mining sector for 375 stakeholders on the national Trafficking in Persons law and on victim identification and referral. (25)

Although Mali participates in some programs to reduce the worst forms of child labor, these programs are insufficient to fully address the scope of the problem, especially in artisanal gold mining, slavery, and debt bondage. (2) In addition, Mali does not fund or participate in programs to address child labor in domestic work, fishing, forced begging, and commercial sexual exploitation. (100)

VII. SUGGESTED GOVERNMENT ACTIONS TO ELIMINATE CHILD LABOR

Based on the reporting above, suggested actions are identified that would advance the elimination of child labor in Mali (Table 11).

Table 11. Suggested Government Actions to Eliminate Child Labor

Area	Suggested Action	Year(s) Suggested
Legal Framework	Criminally prohibit the use, procurement, or offering of children for the production and trafficking of drugs.	2009 – 2018
	Ensure that the Labor Code specifies the conditions under which light work may be undertaken to prevent child labor.	2015 – 2018
	Criminally prohibit hereditary slavery.	2017 – 2018
	Criminally prohibit the recruitment of children under age 18 into non-state armed groups and in any armed conflict, and ensure that the specific ages of children protected by the Inter-Ministerial Circular on the Prevention, Protection, and Reintegration of Children in Armed Conflict comply with international standards.	2013 – 2018
	Enact laws to provide penalties for violations of the worst forms of child labor, including the use of children under age 18 in armed conflict.	2009 – 2018
Enforcement	Publish complete information on the type of labor inspections, violations, and penalties related to child labor.	2010 – 2018
	Increase the resources, training, and number of labor inspectors to meet the ILO's technical advice, and increase the number of criminal investigators responsible for enforcing laws related to child labor to provide adequate coverage of the workforce.	2012 – 2018
	Take measures to adequately enforce laws related to child labor, particularly in northern Mali, and increase efforts to ensure that perpetrators of the worst forms of child labor, including the use of child soldiers and hereditary slavery, are prosecuted in accordance with the law.	2013 – 2018
	Ensure that government social services have sufficient resources and facilities to provide the necessary care for victims of the worst forms of child labor.	2016 – 2018
Coordination	Streamline coordination across government agencies, including by ensuring effective coordination among the National Unit to Fight Against Child Labor, the National Coordinating Committee for the Fight Against Trafficking in Persons and Associated Practices, and other relevant agencies.	2010 – 2018
	Ensure that the National Unit to Fight Against Child Labor has sufficient resources to coordinate efforts to address child labor.	2012 – 2018
Government Policies	Ensure that the National Plan to Combat Child Labor is implemented, including by allocating sufficient financial and human resources.	2012 – 2018
Social Programs	Enhance efforts to eliminate barriers and make education accessible for all children, including girls and those living in conflict-affected areas, by removing school-related fees, increasing school infrastructure, increasing teacher availability, providing school supplies, and taking measures to ensure the safety of children and teachers in schools.	2010 – 2018
	Increase birth registration rates to ensure that children have access to social services, including education.	2010 – 2018
	Expand existing programs to fully address child labor, especially in artisanal gold mining, slavery, and debt bondage.	2014 – 2018
	Institute new programs to address child labor in domestic work, fishing, forced begging, and commercial sexual exploitation.	2009 – 2018
	Ensure the military and non-state armed groups do not occupy schools.	2018

MINIMAL ADVANCEMENT – EFFORTS MADE BUT CONTINUED POLICY AND PRACTICE THAT DELAYED ADVANCEMENT

In 2018, Mauritania made a minimal advancement in efforts to eliminate the worst forms of child labor. During the year, the government approved a new General Child Protection Code that expanded the number of hazardous occupations or activities prohibited for children, increased penalties to deter violations, and established birth registration as a right and duty. The government also established National Council for Child Protection and allocated a budget of $100,000 to manage social centers for vulnerable children, including talibés. Despite these new initiatives to address child labor, Mauritania is receiving an assessment of minimal advancement because it continued to implement a practice and policy that delayed advancement in eliminating the worst forms of child labor. During the reporting period, criminal law enforcement authorities did not make adequate efforts to combat slavery and its vestiges.

Specifically, the government did not adequately prosecute or secure convictions in slavery cases, and reports continue to indicate that some government actors, including police and judicial authorities, are unwilling to pursue such cases. In addition, since 2011, the government has required proof of marriage and biological parents' citizenship for children to obtain a birth certificate. As a result, children born out of wedlock and many Haratine and sub-Saharan ethnic minority children, including those of slave descent, have been prevented from being registered at birth. Because birth certificates are required for enrollment in secondary school in Mauritania, children as young as age 12 cannot access education, making them more vulnerable to the worst forms of child labor. Children in Mauritania engage in the worst forms of child labor, including in indentured and hereditary slavery. Children also perform dangerous tasks in agriculture, particularly in herding cattle and goats. The government did not make sufficient efforts to raise awareness of laws that prohibit slavery and enforce some laws related to the worst forms of child labor, including on hereditary slavery and forced begging. In addition, lack of financial resources severely limited the relevant government agencies' ability to fully implement policies, and social programs to combat the worst forms of child labor are insufficient to adequately address the extent of the problem.

I. PREVALENCE AND SECTORAL DISTRIBUTION OF CHILD LABOR

Children in Mauritania engage in the worst forms of child labor, including in indentured and hereditary slavery. (1,2-5) Children also perform dangerous tasks in agriculture, particularly in herding cattle and goats. (1,7-9) Table 1 provides key indicators on children's work and education in Mauritania. Data on some of these indicators are not available from the sources used in this report.

MINIMAL ADVANCEMENT – EFFORTS MADE BUT CONTINUED POLICY AND PRACTICE THAT DELAYED ADVANCEMENT

Based on a review of available information, Table 2 provides an overview of children’s work by sector and activity.

Table 2. Overview of Children’s Work by Sector and Activity

Sector/Industry	Activity
Agriculture	Herding and caring for cattle, camels, goats, and sheep (1,7-9,12-14)
	Fishing, catching shrimp and fish (1,8,9,13,14)
Industry	Crushing gravel (14,15)
Services	Domestic work (1,7-9,16,17)
	Working as car mechanics, painters, and carpenters (1,8,9,13)
	Garbage scavenging (1,9,13)
	Street work, including vending, shoe shining, begging, [†] and in the transportation sector (1,8,9,13,14)
Categorical Worst Forms of Child Labor [‡]	Forced begging as a result of criminal gang recruitment and coercion by Koranic teachers (1,6,8,17,18)
	Commercial sexual exploitation, sometimes as a result of human trafficking (6,9,5)
	Use in illicit activities, including selling drugs (6,9,13)
	Indentured and hereditary slavery (1,2-12,16,18-20)
	Forced labor in domestic work, sometimes as a result of human trafficking (6,8,13,5)

[†] Determined by national law or regulation as hazardous and, as such, relevant to Article 3(d) of ILO C. 182.

[‡] Child labor understood as the worst forms of child labor per se under Article 3(a)–(c) of ILO C. 182.

Children in Mauritania, especially from the Haratine ethnic minority, continue to be exploited as slaves and endure slave-like practices, particularly in rural and remote areas of the country. Some children are born into slavery; others are born free but remain in a dependent status and are forced to work with their parents for their former masters in exchange for food, money, and lodging. (4,6,8,9,19-22) Child slaves herd animals, such as cattle and goats; perform domestic labor; and are often sexually exploited. (4,6,15,16,23)

In Mauritania, it is a traditional practice to send children to Koranic teachers to receive an education. However, some Koranic teachers (marabouts) force their students (talibés) to beg on the streets for long hours and to surrender the money they have earned. (6,7-9,18)

Since 2011, the Government of Mauritania has required proof of marriage and biological parents’ citizenship to obtain a birth certificate. (24,25) As a result, children born out of wedlock and many Haratine and sub-Saharan ethnic minority children, including from families of slave descent, have been prevented from being registered at birth. Because birth certificates are required to enroll in secondary school in Mauritania, many children as young as age 12 cannot access education, making them more vulnerable to the worst forms of child labor. (12,9,13,18,21,22,25-27) There are also reports that the civil registration process is confusing and time-consuming. Moreover, applicants have faced additional hardship due to the closure of registration centers outside the capital and staff’s lack of training. (25,28)

In June 2018, the President of Mauritania called on registration centers to streamline procedures to acquire the legal documents necessary for children to access schools. In addition, the General Child Protection Code, enacted in the same month, establishes the right to birth registration. (29-31) During the reporting period, the Ministry of Social Affairs, Childhood, and the Family and the National Agency for Register of Population and Securities (ANRPTS) reached an agreement to facilitate the registration of children without birth certificates. The government compiled a preliminary list of 30,000 unregistered children; their registration is expected to begin in 2019. (32,33) During the reporting period, the ANRPTS also aired messages through national radio and television channels to encourage the population to obtain registration documents. (33)

Ministry of Education officials report that an April 2016 decree requiring all children ages 10 and older to have a national identity card to take part in national examinations has not been applied systematically. The decree has not been withdrawn, and this continues to leave room for different interpretations. (33) In addition, the lack of school infrastructure and limited availability of teachers, especially in rural areas, impede access to education, which may increase children’s vulnerability to the worst forms of child labor. (19,34-36) Children from families of slave descent, especially from the Haratine ethnic minority, also face barriers to accessing education due to ethnic discrimination. (12,7,20,21,37)

In 2018, Mauritania hosted approximately 57,000 Malian refugees. (38) During the reporting period, the Government of Mauritania, in collaboration with the UNHCR, began to issue birth certificates to approximately 7,600 Malian refugee children. (32,38,39) Refugee children may have difficulty accessing education, which makes them particularly vulnerable to engaging in the worst forms of child labor, including being recruited by non-state armed groups. (6,13,27,40,41)

II. LEGAL FRAMEWORK FOR CHILD LABOR

Mauritania has ratified most key international conventions concerning child labor (Table 3).

Table 3. Ratification of International Conventions on Child Labor

Convention	Ratification
 ILO C. 138, Minimum Age	✓
ILO C. 182, Worst Forms of Child Labor	✓
 UN CRC	✓

The government has established laws and regulations related to child labor (Table 4). However, gaps exist in Mauritania's legal framework to adequately protect children from child labor, including the identification of hazardous occupations or activities prohibited for children.

MINIMAL ADVANCEMENT – EFFORTS MADE BUT CONTINUED POLICY AND PRACTICE THAT DELAYED ADVANCEMENT

In June 2018, the Government of Mauritania enacted the General Child Protection Code, which set the minimum age for work at age 16. (29,31,51) The Code allows children ages 16 and 17 to work as long as it does not occur at night, exceed 8 hours per day, or impede school attendance. In addition, the Code prohibits the employment of children in work that exposes them to physical, psychological, or sexual abuse; work with dangerous machinery, equipment, and tools; and work in unhealthy environments, which may expose children to hazardous substances or temperatures. (31) However, the Code does not determine the types of work that are hazardous, including work domestic work, an area in which there is evidence of children carrying heavy loads and working long hours. (8,31) The Code increases the penalties associated with violations of child labor laws up to $41,000, and criminalizes commercial sexual exploitation of children and forced begging. It also increases the prison term for trafficking children from 10 to 20 years. (13,31,52,53)

The Labor Code allows children ages 12 and older to perform light work, as long as it does not impede their school attendance, does not exceed 2 hours per day, and is authorized by the Ministry of Labor. (42) However, the Labor Code does not specify the activities in which light work may be permitted. (54) In addition, although the General Child Protection Code should be read as superseding the Labor Code, the Labor Code has not been revised to reflect the increase in the minimum age for work from age 14 to age 16 that the 2018 law established. (31,42) Children in Mauritania are required to attend school only up to age 14. This standard makes children ages 14 through 16 vulnerable to child labor, because they are not required to attend school but are not legally allowed to work. (31,49)

III. ENFORCEMENT OF LAWS ON CHILD LABOR

The government has established institutional mechanisms for the enforcement of laws and regulations on child labor (Table 5). However, gaps exist within the operations of the Ministry of Labor that may hinder adequate enforcement of their child labor laws.

Table 5. Agencies Responsible for Child Labor Law Enforcement

Organization/Agency	Role
Ministry of Labor's Directorate of Labor and Inspection	Enforces labor laws and investigate Labor Code infractions, including violations related to minimum wage and hazardous work. (17,55,56)
Ministry of the Interior's Special Brigade for Minors	Investigates crimes against children, including human trafficking, and monitors religious schools (mahadras) to ensure that children are not forced to beg on behalf of their teachers. Mainly operates in Nouakchott. (9,17,37,57,58)
Ministry of Social Affairs, Childhood, and the Family (MASEF) Office of Childhood	Develops and implements programs to protect vulnerable children and monitor alleged violations of child labor laws, including those related to the worst forms of child labor. Manages the Centers for the Protection and Social Integration of Children. (9,17,55)
Ministry of Justice's Directorate of the Judiciary for the Protection of Children	Coordinates child protection issues and oversees the Special Brigade for Minors and tribunals that sentence child offenders. (15,17,57)
National Commission for Human Rights (CNDH)	Advocates the eradication of slavery, receives human rights complaints, and conducts investigations on human rights violations, including the worst forms of child labor. Independent ombudsman body. (9,17,37,63)
Commissariat on Human Rights and Humanitarian Action	Coordinates the development and implementation of government policies related to human rights, including those related to the worst forms of child labor. Carries out awareness-raising campaigns to combat slavery and human trafficking. Semi-autonomous body, under the supervision of the Office of the Prime Minister. (5,55,64)
National Agency to Fight Against the Vestiges of Slavery, Integration, and Fight Against Poverty (Tadamoun)	Develops and implements programs to tackle poverty, promotes the integration of refugees, and rehabilitates former slaves. (19,55,65) Files complaints on behalf of citizens who accuse their employers of practicing slavery, and brings cases of alleged slavery to the authorities for investigation. (3,6,63,66) In 2018, signed a memorandum of understanding with the National Agency for Register of Population and Securities (ANRPTS) to register all vulnerable individuals beginning in 2019, including children taking part in the Tekavoul cash transfer program, which targets 100,000 vulnerable households. (33)
Anti-Slavery Courts	Prosecute crimes related to slavery and provide free legal assistance to victims, including children. The three regional courts located in Nema, Nouakchott, and Nouadhibou were created under the Roadmap and Action Plan for the Eradication of the Vestiges of Slavery. (6,67-69)

Labor Law Enforcement

In 2018, labor law enforcement agencies in Mauritania took actions to combat child labor (Table 6). However, gaps exist within the operations of the Ministry of Labor that may hinder adequate labor law enforcement, including financial resource allocation.

Table 6. Labor Law Enforcement Efforts Related to Child Labor

In 2018, the Ministry of Labor employed 47 full-time labor inspectors and 20 full-time labor controllers, and 19 trainee labor inspectors were enrolled at the National School of Administration. Although the General Child Protection Code was implemented during the reporting period, labor inspectors did not receive training on this law. (29-31) In addition, reports indicate that the Ministry of Labor lacked equipment, training, transportation, and funding to conduct child labor inspections, especially in remote locations and in the informal sector, which employs more than 40 percent of the workforce. (13,17,36,55,58,73-76)

Labor inspectors prepare reports when they find a labor violation and may include a recommendation for a penalty; however, they must file the reports with the Ministry of Justice. The Ministry of Justice will then assess the penalty for the labor violation. (72) In addition, the penalties established for violating child labor laws are insufficient and do not generally deter violations. (15,77)

In 2018, the labor inspectorate conducted unannounced labor inspections for the first time; previous labor inspections had been conducted only after a complaint was filed and the worksite received notice of the inspection. Labor inspectors visited seven worksites that had previously been the subjects of labor complaints; however, it is unclear whether any of these complaints were related to child labor. (72)

Criminal Law Enforcement

In 2018, criminal law enforcement agencies in Mauritania took actions to combat child labor (Table 7). However, gaps exist within the operations of the criminal enforcement agencies that may hinder adequate criminal law enforcement, including the investigation and prosecution of criminal cases related to hereditary slavery and forced child begging.

During the reporting period, the Special Brigade for Minors employed 30 officers and received training on laws related to the worst forms of child labor, including the new General Child Protection Code. According to international organizations and NGOs, there is little to no coordination among enforcement agencies. (29,72) Efforts made by criminal law enforcement authorities to combat the worst forms of child labor, including hereditary slavery, remained inadequate, given the magnitude of the problem. (6)

In 2018, the combined budget of the three Anti-Slavery Courts was $19,444, which experts and court officials agree is inadequate. In addition, court officials have not received training in enforcement of the 2015 anti-slavery law, and Mauritanian judicial officials often dismiss or fail to refer cases to the Anti-Slavery Courts due to a lack of training. (32,78) During the reporting period the Ministry of Justice, in collaboration with the UN Human Rights Office of the High Commissioner and the ILO, organized a 2-day workshop on the 2015 law criminalizing slavery and on the needs of the specialized anti-slavery courts, in which 40 law enforcement officials participated. In addition, the Ministry, in collaboration with the International Organization for Migration, conducted a workshop that reviewed existing legislative frameworks on trafficking in persons in Mauritania and other countries in the region. (32,79)

In March 2018, the Anti-Slavery Court of Nouadhibou secured two separate convictions for slavery crimes, including child slavery. In one case, the court sentenced two offenders to 20 years' imprisonment and ordered them to pay about $14,500 in restitution to the victims. However, neither of the offenders has been imprisoned—one died prior to the conviction date, and the other fled prosecution prior to the trial and was tried in absentia. (53) In the second case, the individual was sentenced to 10 years' imprisonment and ordered to pay about $7,000 in restitution to the victims; however, the offender, alleging health concerns, was granted a compassionate provisional release from imprisonment in June 2018. (53,80-82) During the reporting period, the Nouakchott Anti-Slavery Court heard a third slavery case, which was dismissed because the defendant's lawyers argued that their client had not been informed about the transfer of the case to the Anti-Slavery Court. In addition, there were seven pending cases before the Anti-Slavery Court of Nema, and five new anti-slavery cases were initiated during the reporting period. (32) In May 2018, a number of judicial officers were transferred to different posts, which resulted in the removal of experienced judges from the Nema and Nouakchott Anti-Slavery Courts. The Government of Mauritania announced a second judicial "reshuffle" in December 2018, intended to strengthen the Anti-Slavery Courts. (32,83,84)

According to the 2015 anti-slavery law, the only entities other than Tadamoun that can file criminal cases on behalf of former slaves are legally registered human rights associations that have been operating for 5 years in Mauritania. The government continued to prevent the registration of some anti-slavery organizations and associations that work for the promotion and protection of human rights of the Haratine ethnic minority and former slave groups. As a result, these organizations continue to be unable to submit complaints on behalf of these groups, even though the anti-slavery organizations may have been operating in the country for 5 or more years. (78,85,86)

MINIMAL ADVANCEMENT – EFFORTS MADE BUT CONTINUED POLICY AND PRACTICE THAT DELAYED ADVANCEMENT

In addition, there are reports that investigative judges who receive anti-slavery cases may try to pressure slavery victims to drop their cases or accept mediation in lieu of prosecution. The investigative judges may also drop slavery-related charges or classify the case as a lesser crime. (29,32,78) The obstacles that victims of slavery encounter in filing complaints and the government’s failure to adequately investigate these cases may be due to the insufficient allocation of resources by the government and a lack of political will to prosecute these cases to their maximum legal liability. (29,32,78) In addition, two laws adopted in 2018 by the Government of Mauritania have drawn widespread concern in the international community. The anti-discrimination law, enacted in January, and the law on apostasy-related crimes, adopted in April, may be used to retaliate against anti-slavery organizations and restrict their ability to function, including their ability to file criminal cases or advocate for the end of slavery. (78,85,87-91) Although by the end of 2018 there were no reports that the laws has been used against anti-slavery organizations, there are still concerns that the laws could impede access to justice or services for victims of slavery, including children. (78,85,90,92,93)

In August 2018, according to civil society organizations, two members of the anti-slavery organization Initiative for the Resurgence of the Abolitionist Movement (IRA) were arrested and imprisoned under false charges. (94-96) In December 2018, the Nouakchott Court of Appeals rejected an order to transfer the leader of the IRA to a criminal court. The two members were released on December 31, 2018. (97-99) Although the government has released 11 of the 13 members of the IRA who were arrested in June 2016 for their alleged participation in a Nouakchott riot and membership in the unregistered organization, 2 remain in prison. Some of the freed IRA members claimed that they were tortured while they were in police custody. (6,86)

Evidence suggests that some police, prosecutors, and judges do not investigate cases of slavery after complaints are received, and that the government has prosecuted cases for lesser offenses to avoid bringing a slavery case to trial. In some cases, this is due to allegations of corruption or lack of political will to prosecute suspected slaveholders, or it may be due to misunderstanding of the 2015 Anti-Slavery Law. (6,100) Enforcement authorities, including the Anti-Slavery Courts, lack personnel, funding, and training to adequately coordinate and enforce laws related to the worst forms of child labor. (4,6,12,13,67,69,74,101)

IV. COORDINATION OF GOVERNMENT EFFORTS ON CHILD LABOR

The government has established mechanisms to coordinate its efforts to address child labor. (Table 8) However, gaps exist that hinder the effective coordination of efforts to address child labor, including efforts to address all forms of child labor.

Table 8. Key Mechanisms to Coordinate Government Efforts on Child Labor

Coordinating Body	Role & Description
National Council for Child Protection*	Established during the reporting period, aims to develop and implement policies and programs to eradicate all forms of violence against children, including child labor. Chaired by the Prime Minister’s adviser on social affairs and includes stakeholders in children’s affairs. (28,32,59-62) The Ministry of Labor did not participate in the activities of the National Child Protection Council.
Inter-ministerial Technical Committee on Human Rights	Coordinates and monitors government efforts to promote human rights in Mauritania, including those related to the UN CRC. Led by Commissioner for Human Rights, Humanitarian Action and Relations with Civil Society and includes representatives from the Tadamoun , CNDH, and other ministries. (3,55,102,103) Although the Committee met weekly in 2018, it did not produce any specific outcomes due to structural reorganization, which took place during the reporting period. (32)

* Mechanism to coordinate efforts to address child labor was created during the reporting period.

Research suggests that the lack of inclusion of relevant civil society groups, including worker and employer organizations, hampers the ability of the Inter-ministerial Technical Committee on Human Rights to carry out efforts to promote human rights, including combating slavery and its vestiges. (2,55,67)

V. GOVERNMENT POLICIES ON CHILD LABOR

The government has established policies related to child labor (Table 9). However, policy gaps exist that hinder efforts to address child labor, including funding and implementation of key policies.

Table 9. Key Policies Related to Child Labor

Policy	Description
National Action Plan to Eliminate Child Labor (2015–2020)	Aims to eliminate the worst forms of child labor by strengthening child labor laws, training relevant government officials, implementing awareness-raising campaigns, and mobilizing funds for social programs to withdraw children from child labor. Overseen by the Ministry of Labor. (1,8,13,55) In 2018, with assistance from ILO, organized a workshop in Kaedi to build the capacity of labor inspectors and non-governmental actors to combat child labor. (32)
Strategy for Accelerated Growth and Sustainable Development (2016–2030)	Aims to reduce poverty, promote sustainable development, and increase access to fundamental social services. Overseen by the Ministry of Economic Affairs and Development. (105,106) Integrates strategies to increase birth registration and access to compulsory education, strengthen social protection systems for children, and support efforts to combat slavery, including its vestiges. (105) In 2018, MASEF and ANRPTS collaborated to compile a list of 10,000 children without documentation through national child protection systems. The registration process for these children is expected to begin in 2019. (32,107)

In 2018, the government, in collaboration with UNICEF and Save the Children, organized a workshop to begin updating and aligning the draft National Child Protection Strategy with the General Child Protection Code, which was adopted during the reporting period. (5,32,108) Although the government continued to review the National Action Plan to Combat Trafficking in Persons that was drafted in 2015, it did not officially adopt the Plan during the reporting period. (6,109,110) Reports indicate that efforts to implement most of the key policies related to child labor, particularly the National Action Plan to Eliminate Child Labor, have been delayed due to insufficient allocation of resources. (9,13,29,32,34,70,74)

VI. SOCIAL PROGRAMS TO ADDRESS CHILD LABOR

In 2018, the government funded and participated in programs that include the goal of eliminating or preventing child labor (Table 10). However, gaps exist in these social programs, including the adequacy of efforts to address the problem in all sectors.

Table 10. Key Social Programs to Address Child Labor

Program	Description
From Protocol to Practice: A Bridge to Global Action on Forced Labor (2015–2020)	USDOL-funded global project implemented by the ILO to support global and national efforts aimed at countering the forced labor of adults and children through the 2014 ILO Protocol and supporting the Recommendation to C. 29 on Forced Labor. (111,112) In 2018, conducted a training on the 2015 Anti-Slavery Law for law enforcement officials, including labor inspectors, magistrates and judges of inquiry from the Special Criminal Courts, in collaboration with UNHCR and the Ministry of Justice. (32,108) The Ministry of Public Service, Labor and Administration Modernization convened a research roundtable for a qualitative study examining forced labor and employment relationships leading to risk of forced labor. The Ministry of Justice, the Office of the Commissioner for Human Rights and Humanitarian Action, Direction of the Social Register, Tadamoun , Directorate of Employment, and representatives from civil society, including human rights organizations, attended this roundtable. (32,108) Additional information is available on the USDOL website.
Technical Support on Social Dialogue and Labor Administration (2017–2018)	A $328,000 ILO-funded project to build the capacity of the Ministry of Labor to improve enforcement of labor laws, including those related to child labor. (113) Research was unable to determine whether activities were undertaken to implement the Technical Support on Dialogue and Labor Administration during the reporting period.
Cash Transfer Tekavoul (2015–2020)	A $29 million Tadamoun program, supported by the World Bank, that provides cash assistance to families with school-age children, conditioned on children's school attendance. (114) In 2018, held a regional workshop for local government and civil society representatives, during which the Tadamoun Director declared the program's goal to reach 100,000 beneficiary households by 2021. (32,115,116)
Program to Eradicate the Effects of Slavery†	Government program that supports the reintegration and rehabilitation of former slaves. (6,66) In 2018, the program opened 19 schools and continued to implement income-generating activities in communities of slave descendants and other vulnerable populations. (5,29,32,117,118)

Program	Description
Centers for the Protection and Social Integration of Children†	MASEF-operated program that provides food, shelter, education, and vocational training to vulnerable children, many of whom are talibés . Operates in Aleg, Kaedi, Kiffa, Nouadhibou, Rosso, and Nouakchott. (9,17,36) In 2018, the government allocated a budget of $100,000 to manage the centers, which allowed them to provide services to 360 children, and conducted a capacity-building workshop with Save the Children for center staff on protecting migrant children from human trafficking and exploitation. (5,32,119)
Access to Justice and Human Rights Program	USDOS- and USAID-funded program implemented by the American Bar Association to promote the social and political rights of marginalized groups, including former and current child victims of slavery. (120-122) Research was unable to determine whether activities were undertaken to implement the Access to Justice and Human Rights Program during the reporting period.
Decent Work for Migrant Youth in the Fishing Sector (2017–2021)	A $17 million ILO- and Government of Germany-funded, 4-year project that aims to promote decent work among migrant youth working in the artisanal fishing sector in Mauritania. Aims to reach at least 9,000 recipients by the second year of the project and conduct an analysis of child labor in the fishing sector. (125,126) Research was unable to determine whether activities were undertaken to implement the Decent Work for Youth in the Fishing Sector during the reporting period.
UNICEF Country Program (2012–2018)	A $10.3 million UNICEF-funded program that supported the government's efforts to improve education, birth registration rates, social inclusion, and protection for children, including refugees. (15,127,128) In 2018, provided access to education for 5,500 refugee children in the M'Bera camp, inaugurated the National Council for Child Protection, and published the Mauritania Country Program for 2018–2022. (32,59,129-131)

† Program is funded by the Government of Mauritania.

Since 2016, the Government of Mauritania has opened 43 schools in communities largely populated by slave descendants, including 19 schools during the reporting period. (32)

Although Mauritania has social programs that target child labor, the scope of these programs is insufficient to fully address the extent of the problem, especially in agriculture, herding, and domestic work, and for children in hereditary and indentured slavery. (15,55,134) Moreover, some government officials do not acknowledge that slavery continues to exist. (2,4,22,55,74) In addition, the lack of recent data on slavery limits the government's ability to develop effective social programs to comprehensively address this issue. Existing social programs for former slaves and awareness of the national laws on slavery are insufficient. (2,3,7,22)

VII. SUGGESTED GOVERNMENT ACTIONS TO ELIMINATE CHILD LABOR

Based on the reporting above, suggested actions are identified that would advance the elimination of child labor in Mauritania (Table 11).

Table 11. Suggested Government Actions to Eliminate Child Labor

Area	Suggested Action	Year(s) Suggested
Legal Framework	Ensure that the law's provisions on light work are specific enough to prevent children from being involved in child labor.	2015 – 2018
	Ensure that domestic work is included in the hazardous work list.	2009 – 2018
	Ensure that the age up to which education is compulsory is equal to the minimum age for work.	2018
Enforcement	Increase the personnel, training, and resources for labor and criminal law enforcement agencies, including the Anti-Slavery Courts, to adequately enforce labor laws, especially in remote areas and in the informal sector.	2010 – 2018
	Strengthen the labor inspection system by authorizing the labor inspectorate to assess penalties and initiate routine and targeted inspections, rather than performing inspections solely based on complaints received.	2014 – 2018
	Increase efforts to ensure that cases of the worst forms of child labor, including hereditary slavery and forced begging, are investigated and prosecuted in accordance with the law.	2016 – 2018
	Publish information on the number of labor inspections, child labor law violations, and penalties assessed, and the number of criminal investigations, violations found, prosecutions, and convictions related to the worst forms of child labor.	2011 – 2018

Area	Suggested Action	Year(s) Suggested
Enforcement	Legally recognize civil society organizations that work to protect the human rights of the Haratine ethnic minority and former slave groups, in particular those that assist victims of slavery in filing cases, register births, and ensure access to education, and ensure that legislation is not used to impair their ability to function.	2017 – 2018
	Ensure that Tadamoun pursues its mandate to submit complaints of slavery on behalf of victims.	2017 – 2018
	Hold government officials accountable for alleged corruption and mishandling of legal cases related to crimes on the worst forms of child labor, including on slavery offenses.	2017 – 2018
	Ensure the safety of anti-slavery activists, and allow peaceful public discourse and assembly on slavery, slavery-like practices, and the vestiges of slavery free from government interference.	2011 – 2018
	Ensure that penalties are high enough to deter violators of child labor laws.	2015 – 2018
	Ensure that labor inspectors are trained on the General Child Protection Code.	2018
Coordination	Ensure that relevant civil society organizations are included in the Inter-ministerial Technical Committee on Human Rights.	2017 – 2018
	Ensure the Ministry of Labor's participation in the National Child Protection Council.	2018
Government Policies	Ensure that key policies related to child labor, particularly the National Action Plan to Eliminate Child Labor, receive sufficient funds for effective implementation.	2016 – 2018
	Approve the National Action Plan to Combat Trafficking in Persons.	2015 – 2018
Social Programs	Enhance efforts to eliminate barriers and make education accessible for all children, including those from families of slave descent and refugees, by increasing school infrastructure and teacher availability, especially in rural areas.	2011 – 2018
	Ensure that all children are able to obtain birth certificates to increase their access to secondary education and reduce their vulnerability to the worst forms of child labor.	2016 – 2018
	Expand the scope of programs to address child labor, including in agriculture, herding, and domestic work, and the worst forms of child labor, including hereditary and indentured slavery.	2009 – 2018
	Implement a continuous awareness-raising program for government officials on the laws related to slavery and the worst forms of child labor.	2012 – 2018
	Conduct research and collect data on slavery to inform the development of effective policies and programs to identify and protect children who are at risk.	2010 – 2018
	Increase funding for social programs that provide services to former slaves.	2015 – 2018

- 134 U.S. Embassy- Nouakchott. Reporting. March 16, 2016.

In 2018, Mauritius made a moderate advancement in efforts to eliminate the worst forms of child labor. The government implemented a National Sports Policy that created a structured after-school program for children. It also increased its labor inspections by 200 percent and approved a Special Education Needs Bill, which will reduce barriers to education for children with special needs. However, children in Mauritius engage in the worst forms of child labor, including in commercial sexual exploitation, sometimes as a result of human trafficking. Children also engage in child labor in construction, vending, and working in apparel shops and restaurants. The government lacks a national policy to address all relevant worst forms of child labor. The Coordinating Committee on Child Labor, established in 2017, is no longer active and social programs to combat child labor are insufficient to address the extent of the problem.

Agalega Islands, Cargados Carajos Shoals, and Rodrigues are not shown.

I. PREVALENCE AND SECTORAL DISTRIBUTION OF CHILD LABOR

Children in Mauritius engage in the worst forms of child labor, including in commercial sexual exploitation, sometimes as a result of human trafficking. (1-3) Children also engage in child labor in construction, vending, and working in apparel shops and restaurants. (1,2,4) Table 1 provides key indicators on children's work and education in Mauritius. Data on some of these indicators are not available from the sources used in this report.

Table 1. Statistics on Children's Work and Education

Children	Age	Percent
Working (% and population)	5 to 14	Unavailable
Attending School (%)	5 to 14	Unavailable
Combining Work and School (%)	7 to 14	Unavailable
Primary Completion Rate (%)		98.2

Source for primary completion rate: Data from 2017, published by UNESCO Institute for Statistics, 2019. (5)
Data were unavailable from International Labor Organization's analysis, 2019. (6)

Based on a review of available information, Table 2 provides an overview of children's work by sector and activity.

	Working in apparel shops and restaurants (2)
	Street work, including vending, begging, and carrying goods in public markets (1,2,10,11)
Categorical Worst Forms of Child Labor‡	Commercial sexual exploitation, sometimes as a result of human trafficking (1,3,9)
	Use in illicit activities, including selling drugs (2,9)

‡ Child labor understood as the worst forms of child labor per se under Article 3(a)–(c) of ILO C. 182.

Mauritius

MODERATE ADVANCEMENT

Some children in Mauritius are brought into commercial sexual exploitation by their peers or family members, or through fraudulent offers of other employment. (1,3,8) Mauritius has never conducted a national child labor survey and, therefore, information on the prevalence of child labor in the country is limited. (2) The government does not publish data on child labor or the worst forms of child labor, further limiting their ability to fully address the issue. (9)

Evidence suggests that incidents of physical and psychological abuse, including corporal punishment of students by teachers, prevent some children from attending school, which increases their risk of engaging in the worst forms of child labor. Due to discrimination, children with disabilities face significant barriers in accessing education. (1,12,13) However, in November 2018, the Cabinet approved a Special Education Needs Bill, which includes establishing a regulatory authority to address and advocate for individuals with special needs, including children. (9,14)

In November 2018, the Anti-Drug and Smuggling Unit organized an anti-drug trafficking workshop with school administrators to address the increase in the number of child victims engaged in drug trafficking. (9)

II. LEGAL FRAMEWORK FOR CHILD LABOR

Mauritius has ratified all key international conventions concerning child labor (Table 3).

Table 3. Ratification of International Conventions on Child Labor

ILO C. 182, Worst Forms of Child Labor	✓
 UN CRC	✓
UN CRC Optional Protocol on Armed Conflict	✓
UN CRC Optional Protocol on the Sale of Children, Child Prostitution and Child Pornography	✓
 Palermo Protocol on Trafficking in Persons	✓

The government has established laws and regulations related to child labor (Table 4). However, gaps exist in Mauritius' legal framework to adequately protect children from the worst forms of child labor, including the military recruitment of children by non-state armed groups.

Table 4. Laws and Regulations on Child Labor

Standard	Meets International Standards	Age	Legislation
Minimum Age for Work	Yes	16	Sections 6 and 12 of the Employment Rights Act (15)

For several years, the government has been considering adopting the Children's Bill, which aims to strengthen the existing legal framework to combat the worst forms of child labor. The bill, however, has yet to be finalized. (2,9,10,23,24)

III. ENFORCEMENT OF LAWS ON CHILD LABOR

The government has established institutional mechanisms for the enforcement of laws and regulations on child labor (Table 5). However, gaps exist within the authority of the Ministry of Labor, Industrial Relations, Employment, and Training (MOLIRE) that may hinder adequate enforcement of their child labor laws.

Table 5. Agencies Responsible for Child Labor Law Enforcement

Organization/Agency	Role
Ministry of Labor, Industrial Relations, Employment, and Training (MOLIRE)	Enforces all labor laws, including those related to child labor. (25)
Office of the Ombudsperson for Children	Investigates any suspected or reported cases of child labor or violation of a child's rights, proposes laws and policies to advance children's rights, and implements trainings on child protection laws and prevention. (26,27)
Police Brigade for the Protection of Minors (Minors' Brigade)	Investigates crimes related to the worst forms of child labor, including child trafficking and commercial sexual exploitation. (23) Maintains a database of all trafficking incidents involving children, and refers all cases of commercial sexual exploitation to the Child Development Unit. (28)
Office of the Director of Public Prosecutions	Undertakes criminal proceedings on laws related to the worst forms of child labor in coordination with the Minors' Brigade and the judicial courts. (29,30)
Ministry of Gender Equality, Child Development and Family Welfare's (MOGE) Child Development Unit	Enforces legislation related to children and implements policies and social programs related to child development. (2,3,31) Provides social services to victims of the worst forms of child labor, including human trafficking. Provides trainings and awareness campaigns against human trafficking, including the commercial sexual exploitation of children. (2,3,31)

Labor Law Enforcement

In 2018, labor law enforcement agencies in Mauritius took actions to combat child labor (Table 6). However, gaps exist within the authority of MOLIRE that may hinder adequate labor law enforcement, including authorization to assess penalties.

Table 6. Labor Law Enforcement Efforts Related to Child Labor

†Data are from January 1, 2017 to October 31, 2017. (2)

In 2018, MOLIRE increased their investigations in shops, markets, and restaurants during the summer holidays—November and December—when incidents of child labor are most prevalent; however, NGOs report that there is an insufficient number of labor inspections conducted in the informal sector, where there is evidence of child labor. Additionally, MOLIRE reported that labor inspections are not carried out in homes or private farms because labor inspectors are required to receive advance consent from the owner in order to conduct an inspection. (9)

Criminal Law Enforcement

In 2018, criminal law enforcement agencies in Mauritius took actions to combat child labor (Table 7). However, gaps exist within the operations of criminal enforcement agencies that may hinder adequate criminal law enforcement, including insufficient resource allocation.

Table 7. Criminal Law Enforcement Efforts Related to Child Labor

Overview of Criminal Law Enforcement	2017	2018
Initial Training for New Criminal Investigators	Yes (2)	Yes (9)
Training on New Laws Related to the Worst Forms of Child Labor	N/A (2)	N/A (9)

Reciprocal Referral Mechanism Exists Between Criminal Authorities and Social Services	Yes (2)	Yes (9)

The first prosecution for child trafficking under the Combating Trafficking in Persons Act took place in 2017 and was transferred to the court system with a final resolution in March 2018, resulting in a conviction with a sentence of three years imprisonment. (34) In February 2018, one case of commercial sexual exploitation of a child was reported to the Minors' Brigade; however, as of November 2018, the case was still under investigation. (9) Research revealed that criminal law enforcement agencies lacked staff, transportation, and other resources to properly enforce criminal laws related to the worst forms of child labor. (35,36) In addition, reports indicate that coordination between the police and the Office of the Director of Public Prosecutions has been limited, mainly due to a lack of training and insufficient case tracking, which hinders efforts to investigate and prosecute child trafficking cases. (29,34) The government does not publicly make available information on its criminal enforcement efforts, and did not provide complete information for inclusion in this report.

The Ministry of Gender Equality, Child Development and Family Welfare's (MOGE) Child Development Unit's mutual assistance agreement with the Minors' Brigade was revised in 2017, which changed the referral process and improved services to victims of the worst forms of child labor. This agreement remained in place in 2018, and the government continued operating a shelter dedicated to female victims of child commercial sexual exploitation. (2,9,34)

In 2018, the Child Development Unit trained 17 newly recruited officers on investigating reports of commercial sexual exploitation of children. (37) In addition, the police's Family Protection Unit and Minors' Brigade conducted more than 110 outreach campaigns on the dangers and consequences of engaging in child sex trafficking, which reached more than 31,000 people. (3)

IV. COORDINATION OF GOVERNMENT EFFORTS ON CHILD LABOR

The government has established mechanisms to coordinate its efforts to address child labor (Table 8). However, gaps exist that hinder the effective coordination of efforts to address child labor, including coordination among agencies.

Table 8. Key Mechanisms to Coordinate Government Efforts on Child Labor

Coordinating Body	Role & Description
Inter-Ministerial Committee on Human Trafficking	Coordinates anti-trafficking efforts in Mauritius. Chaired by the Attorney General's Office and comprising representatives from MOLIRE, MOGE, and other ministries. (39,40) The committee met regularly during the reporting period. (9)
High Powered and Working Together Committee	Coordinates and implements activities on children's rights, including efforts to combat the worst forms of child labor. Chaired by the MOGE. (2,31) The High Powered and Working Together Committee did not meet in 2018. (32)
National Children's Council	Under the auspices of MOGE, coordinates child protection efforts in Mauritius as an independent, para-governmental entity. (2,35) In 2018, The National Children's Council provided information on child protection issues, including child trafficking, to 6,851 students in primary and secondary schools. (3)

In 2018, the Coordinating Committee of Child Labor, established by MOLIRE in February 2017, was no longer active. While the High Powered and Working Together Committee continues to exist, research was unable to determine whether it was active during the reporting period. (9) The government's efforts to combat the worst forms of child labor were hindered by a lack of coordination, information-sharing, and policy-making decisions between key coordinating mechanisms, as well as by lack of consultation with NGOs working on child protection issues. (2,9)

V. GOVERNMENT POLICIES ON CHILD LABOR

The government has established policies related to child labor (Table 9). However, policy gaps exist that hinder efforts to address child labor, including coverage of all the worst forms of child labor.

Table 9. Key Policies Related to Child Labor

Policy	Description
Child Safety Online Action Plan	Aims to prevent online sexual exploitation of children by strengthening the legal framework and developing awareness-raising programs. Implemented by the Ministry of Information and Communication Technology, in conjunction with the MOGE, the Minors' Brigade, and the Office of the Ombudsperson for Children. (41) In 2018, the government organized an Internet safety workshop for Safer Internet Day and conducted Internet safety education programs in schools and community centers, reaching 1,850 individuals. (32,42)
Education and Human Resources Strategy Plan (2008–2020)	Aims to improve equity of access to primary, secondary, and technical and vocational education, and to provide social services for youth. Overseen by the Ministry of Education. (43,44) In 2018, the National Assembly passed the Special Education Needs Bill to establish a regulatory authority to address and advocate for children with special needs in primary and secondary education. (14,45)
Government Development Program—Achieving Meaningful Change (2015–2019)	Aims to increase access to social protection services for vulnerable populations, including children, and emphasizes a zero-tolerance policy for the use of children in drug trafficking. (46-48) In 2018, the government organized workshops with school administrators to develop strategies to combat drug trafficking in schools. (49,50) The Commission of Enquiry on Drugs submitted its final report outlining recommendations to address drug trafficking in Mauritius. (51)
National Sports and Physical Activity Policy (2018–2028)†	Provides a structured sports program available to all ages. The policy focuses on children and young adults and is available after school hours, to help reduce children's vulnerability to child labor and illicit activities. (9,52)

† Policy was approved during the reporting period.

Mauritius

MODERATE ADVANCEMENT

Research found no evidence of policies to combat other worst forms of child labor, such as commercial sexual exploitation. In addition, the National Plan to Combat Human Trafficking, drafted in 2016, has yet to be adopted by the government. (2,39,53-55)

VI. SOCIAL PROGRAMS TO ADDRESS CHILD LABOR

In 2018, the government funded and participated in programs that include the goal of eliminating or preventing child labor (Table 10). However, gaps exist in these social programs, including the adequacy of programs to address the full scope of the problem.

Table 10. Key Social Programs to Address Child Labor

Program	Description
Awareness-Raising Programs on Commercial Sexual Exploitation and Human Trafficking†	Government program created to educate the public on preventing commercial sexual exploitation of children and human trafficking. (56) In 2018, MOGE and the National Children's Council conducted awareness campaigns on child abuse prevention and the prevention of sexual abuse and commercial sexual exploitation of children, reaching approximately 2,500 individuals. (32)
Community Child Protection Program†	Government program that supports child protection activities nationwide by identifying children at risk for abuse and neglect and rehabilitating child abuse victims. (2,31) In 2018, the government, in partnership with an NGO, conducted awareness-raising campaigns on commercial sexual exploitation of children and human trafficking in primary and secondary schools, reaching approximately 6,851 children and 487 adults. (32)
Drop-in Centers, Shelters, and Institutional Care†	Government programs that provide rehabilitation services to victims of commercial sexual exploitation and human trafficking. Monitored by the Child Development Unit. (23,29,31) In 2018, the government continued its annual grant of $409,960 for the operation of a daycare center, a children's shelter, and a drop-in center for trafficking victims. The government also continued its operation of a shelter capable of hosting up to 32 children, provided reintegration services, and placed child trafficking victims into families. (3)
IOM Country Program	IOM program to build capacity of relevant government agencies to protect children from exploitation and human trafficking. (53,57) Active in 2018. (24)
Education Assistance Programs†	Government programs that increase access to quality primary education for vulnerable children, including the Eradication of Absolute Poverty Program, which provides educational support to 7,500 households in 229 geographic pockets of poverty and in the Education Priority Zones; designed to provide equal opportunities to primary school children throughout the country. (44) In 2018, programs continued to provide meals and school materials to children from vulnerable families. (45)

† Program is funded by the Government of Mauritius.

Although the government has established an oversight body to improve the effectiveness of institutional care facilities and shelters, evidence suggests that there continues to be a lack of appropriate standards of care, inadequate provision of services, and overcrowding in some centers that house orphans, child victims of commercial sexual exploitation, and child victims of other types of abuses. (29,34,52,56,58,59)

VII. SUGGESTED GOVERNMENT ACTIONS TO ELIMINATE CHILD LABOR

Based on the reporting above, suggested actions are identified that would advance the elimination of child labor in Mauritius (Table 11).

Table 11. Suggested Government Actions to Eliminate Child Labor

Area	Suggested Action	Year(s) Suggested
Legal Framework	Ensure that the law criminally prohibits the recruitment of children under age 18 into non-state armed groups.	2016 – 2018
	Finalize and implement legislation to harmonize legal protections for children, such as The Children's Bill.	2018
Enforcement	Strengthen the labor inspectorate by authorizing inspectors to assess penalties.	2015 – 2018
	Increase the amount of training, human resources, and funding for agencies responsible for enforcing criminal laws related to the worst forms of child labor.	2011 – 2018
	Improve coordination between the police and the Director of Public Prosecutions to ensure that violations are adequately prosecuted.	2017 – 2018
	Publish information regarding the number of criminal investigations conducted.	2018
	Increase the number of labor inspectors to meet the ILO's technical advice.	2018

Area	Suggested Action	Year(s) Suggested
Enforcement	Allow labor inspectors to conduct unannounced inspections in homes and on private farms.	2018
	Increase the number of targeted inspections in the informal sector, including the number of inspections occurring outside of summer holiday months.	2018
Coordination	Ensure that all coordinating bodies, including the High Powered and Working Together Committee, are active and are able to carry out their intended mandates.	2017 – 2018
	Ensure that coordination mechanisms share information and policy-making decisions to combat the worst forms of child labor.	2012 – 2018
Government Policies	Adopt a policy that addresses the worst forms of child labor, including commercial sexual exploitation.	2014 – 2018
	Adopt the draft National Plan to Combat Human Trafficking.	2017 – 2018
Social Programs	Collect and publish data on the prevalence of child labor in Mauritius to inform policies and programs.	2013 – 2018
	Ensure that all children, including those with disabilities, can attend school without fear of physical or psychological abuse.	2014 – 2018
	Ensure that victims of commercial sexual exploitation have access to comprehensive and quality social services.	2010 – 2018

MINIMAL ADVANCEMENT – EFFORTS MADE BUT REGRESSION IN LAW AND PRACTICE THAT DELAYED ADVANCEMENT

In 2018, Moldova made a minimal advancement in efforts to eliminate the worst forms of child labor. The government passed Government Decree No. 378 to grant financial allowances to children left without parental care until they reach the age of 18. Labor inspectors also attended regional anti-trafficking workshops, including a policy planning workshop organized by the Permanent Secretariat for the National Committee for Combating Trafficking in Persons and the Organization for Security and Cooperation in Europe. However, despite new initiatives to address child labor, Moldova is receiving an assessment of minimal advancement because of a regression in law and practice that delayed advancement in eliminating the worst forms of child labor. In August 2018, the government amended Law No. 131 through Law No. 179, indicating that the State Labor Inspectorate does not have legal authority to conduct on-site inspections without at least first requesting and then receiving insufficient documentation from the business being inspected or conducting a risk assessment that finds reasonable indicators of a possible violation. The amendments to Law No. 131 allow announced on-site inspections only if the State Labor Inspectorate gives the business owner five day's notice that the inspection will be conducted within ten business days. Unannounced inspections, even those based on a complaint, including at the request of law enforcement or other state bodies, are permitted only based on a risk assessment that indicates an immediate threat to the environment, life, health, or property. These stringent new measures have been interpreted by the State Labor Inspectorate as stripping the body of its ability to conduct unannounced on-site inspections. Other stakeholders maintain that unannounced inspections are still possible when required conditions are met. In addition, when any inspection is conducted, the labor inspector must now only focus on the alleged violation outlined in the complaint; if other violations, such as child labor, are uncovered, they cannot be addressed. Children in Moldova engage in the worst forms of child labor, including in commercial sexual exploitation, sometimes as a result of human trafficking. Children also engage in child labor in agriculture. Moldova lacks a sufficient number of labor inspectors to provide sufficient coverage of the workforce. In addition, training is needed for new investigators and, due to government restructuring, no occupational health and safety inspections, including of hazardous child labor, were conducted during the reporting period.

I. PREVALENCE AND SECTORAL DISTRIBUTION OF CHILD LABOR

Children in Moldova engage in the worst forms of child labor, including in commercial sexual exploitation, sometimes as a result of human trafficking. Children also engage in child labor in agriculture. (I-5) Table I provides key indicators on children's work and education in Moldova.

	Domestic work (2,4,18)
	Working in wholesale, retail, restaurants, and transportation (2,4,13,16,17)
Categorical Worst Forms of Child Labor‡	Commercial sexual exploitation and forced begging, each sometimes as a result of human trafficking (2-5,8,20)

† Determined by national law or regulation as hazardous and, as such, relevant to Article 3(d) of ILO C. 182.

‡ Child labor understood as the worst forms of child labor per se under Article 3(a)–(c) of ILO C. 182.

Lack of information limits an assessment of the types of work that children perform and the sectors in which they work, including for the secessionist region of Transnistria. (2,4,20) The Transnistrian region is not under the control of Moldovan central authorities, who are prevented from carrying out inspections and law enforcement there. (21)

Both boys and girls are recruited for commercial sexual exploitation. (1,3-5,22) Traffickers recruit children as young as age 10 for prostitution and other forms of commercial sexual exploitation. (1) Moldova is also a destination for child sex tourism. (3,5,13,20,22)

Child trafficking, particularly of children suffering from familial neglect, continues to be a concern in Moldova and Transnistria. (2,5,8,14,23,24,25) The number of children left behind by migrant parents is increasing in both regions. These children are particularly vulnerable to child labor and human trafficking, especially those in orphanages or boarding schools. (2,5,8,12,18,23,26,25) Vulnerable children from Transnistria are at an increased risk of being trafficked through Ukraine’s Odessa region. (27,28) Victims from the Turkic-speaking autonomous territorial region of Gagauzia in Moldova were also likely to be trafficked to Turkey for commercial sexual exploitation. (5)

Although the Education Code provides for free and compulsory education until age 18, sometimes parents are asked to pay informal fees for supplies and gifts to teachers. (12,19,29) Occasional discrimination by some school officials and other non-Roma students may create barriers to access education. Roma children are particularly vulnerable to school dropout. (2,18,25,31)

II. LEGAL FRAMEWORK FOR CHILD LABOR

Moldova has ratified all key international conventions concerning child labor (Table 3).

Minimum Age for Voluntary State Military Recruitment	Yes	18	Article 12 of Law No. 162-XVI on the Status of Servicemen (40)
Prohibition of Compulsory Recruitment of Children by (State) Military	Yes		Article 28 of Law No. 1245-XV on the Preparation of Citizens for Homeland Defense (41)
Prohibition of Military Recruitment by Non-state Armed Groups	Yes		Article 26 of the Law on the Rights of the Child; Article 206(d) of the Criminal Code (36,38)
Compulsory Education Age	Yes	18	Article 13 and 152 of the Education Code of 2014 (42)
Free Public Education	Yes		Article 35 of the Constitution; Article 9 of the Education Code of 2014 (35,42)

As the minimum age for work is lower than the compulsory education age, children may be encouraged to leave school before the completion of compulsory education.

III. ENFORCEMENT OF LAWS ON CHILD LABOR

The government has established institutional mechanisms for the enforcement of laws and regulations on child labor (Table 5). However, gaps exist within the authority of the Ministry of Health, Labor, and Social Protection that may hinder adequate enforcement of their child labor laws.

Table 5. Agencies Responsible for Child Labor Law Enforcement

Organization/Agency	Role
Ministry of Health, Labor, and Social Protection's State Labor Inspectorate (SLI)	Enforces child labor laws. (2,4) Manages the National Referral System to Protect and Assist Victims and Potential Victims of Trafficking in Human Beings (NRS), which has been implemented in all of Moldova's regions; each regional coordinator works directly with law enforcement, NGOs, and schools, and leads victim rehabilitation efforts. (2,8) Builds the capacity of multidisciplinary teams at the local level, which includes community social assistants, police officers, and NGO workers to improve victim identification and referral for crisis intervention and rehabilitation. (48) Through the National Coordination Unit and Child Labor Monitoring Unit (CLMU), coordinates activities related to the protection of victims and those vulnerable to human trafficking. In 2018, the CLMU had one inspector. (28)
Center for Combating Trafficking in Persons (CCTIP)	Leads criminal investigations and arrests perpetrators, including for the trafficking of children for both labor and sexual exploitation. (2) Subdivision of the Ministry of the Interior with criminal investigators. (4,12) Works with the Border Police Inspectorate, National Corruption Center, Customs Service, and the Security and Intelligence Service (SIS). (2) SIS enforces criminal laws against child trafficking and sexual exploitation through cooperation and information exchange with the Border Police, the National Corruption Center, and the Customs Service. (2,12,49)
Prosecutor General's Office (PGO) for Organized Crime and Special Cases (PCCOCS) and Anti-Trafficking Bureau	Monitor and analyze trafficking in persons cases in the Anti-trafficking Bureau within the PGO. (5) Include an investigative and prosecution unit within the national-level Specialized Prosecution Office for Organized Crime and Special Cases (PCCOCS). (1) In 2018, PCCOCS employed 10 prosecutors to work on human trafficking during the investigative stages, and in 2019 nine special judges were nominated to work on human trafficking cases. (5) A specialized unit within the Anti-trafficking Bureau focuses on child pornography.
People's Advocate (Ombudsman)	Specializes in child protection issues, including child labor, and defends children's constitutional rights. Public authorities, officials, and institutions are required to cooperate with the Ombudsman. (12)
Ministry of Justice (MOJ)	Enforces criminal laws against child trafficking and sexual exploitation. (2,4,49) Drafts, consults, and proposes all processes related to criminal legislation for the government's approval before they enter into force. (50)

Due to government restructuring in 2017-2018, the authority to enforce occupational safety and health (OSH) regulations was removed from the mandate of the State Labor Inspection (SLI) and given to other agencies, such as the National Public Health Agency, National Food Safety Agency, and Technical Surveillance Agency. (2,4,51,52) The move affected the ability to conduct OSH inspections and adequately detect hazardous child labor. (53-55) In addition, the responsibilities of the Child Labor Monitoring Unit (CLMU) within the SLI structure have not been clearly defined, and its role has changed under Law No. 131 from coordinating child labor monitoring with the broader SLI to merely requesting a report of child labor from other agencies when child labor is found. (28) This has affected the SLI's enforcement capabilities in terms of detecting child labor. (53)

The Prosecutor General's Office Anti-trafficking Bureau, which monitors human trafficking investigations, including child trafficking, recently expanded its mandate to investigate online and digital child sexual exploitation cases. (21)

Labor Law Enforcement

In 2018, labor law enforcement agencies in Moldova took actions to combat child labor (Table 6). However, gaps exist within the authority of the Ministry of Health, Labor, and Social Protection that may hinder adequate labor law enforcement, including the lack of unannounced inspections in sectors in which child labor is known to occur.

[†] Data are from January 1, 2017 to November 30, 2017.

[‡] Data are from January 2018 to November 2018.

The SLI inspects labor relations of enterprises, institutions, and organizations, regardless of their type or legal form. (2,57) Law No. 140 and Law No. 131 outline the primary responsibilities of the SLI, including how and when labor inspections occur. (58-60) Although the SLI can inspect private farms, it cannot inspect private homes and does not have jurisdiction to inspect enterprises in Transnistria. (2,53)

The number of labor inspectors is likely insufficient for the size of Moldova's workforce, which includes over 1,295 million workers. (62) According to the ILO's technical advice of a ratio approaching 1 inspector for every 20,000 workers in transition economies, Moldova would employ roughly 65 labor inspectors. (62,63) The SLI has also reported that the number of labor inspectors is insufficient in order to adequately conduct child labor inspections. (2) In addition, Decree 788, which was amended during the reporting period, placed a limit on the total number of inspectors that can be hired to a total of 45 labor inspectors covering 10 territories. (21,53,54,64) As a result the total number of labor inspectors decreased by 42 from the previous year. (2,57)

As a result of August 2018 amendments to Law No. 131 and government restructuring in 2017–2018, the SLI no longer has authority to investigate workplace accidents and enforce penalties for OSH violations, including of hazardous working conditions for children. (58,61) There are 13 inspectors employed by 10 non-SLI agencies who can conduct discretionary OSH inspections only in specific areas outlined in the law. (2) In 2018, while three new labor inspectors received trainings on OSH, no OSH inspections, including of hazardous child labor, were conducted by these 10 agencies due to the lack of knowledge and training. (53,54) Therefore, the SLI was mandated to continue to inspect severe workplace injuries until June 2019, when all OSH-related inspections will be permanently transferred to the 10 other non-SLI agencies. (53,54,61)

Both government and NGO sources reported that the child labor violations identified by the government during the reporting period did not reflect the magnitude of the child labor problem in Moldova due to legal changes that impacted the government's ability to conduct announced and unannounced inspections. (28,53,54,64) In 2018, the government passed Law No. 179, which amends Law No. 131 to mandate that all inspections be done by desk inspections first, rather than worksite inspections. (86) According to these amendments, the SLI also does not have any legal authority to conduct an on-site inspection without at least first requesting and then receiving insufficient documentation from the business being inspected or conducting a risk assessment that finds reasonable indicators of a possible violation. (58,86) The amendments to Law No. 131 allow announced on-site inspections only if the SLI gives the business owner a five day notice that the inspection will be conducted within ten business days. (58,86) Unannounced inspections, even those based on a complaint, including at the request of law enforcement or other state bodies, are permitted only based on a risk assessment that indicates an immediate threat to the environment, life, health, or property. (86) The introduction of these strict measures has limited the SLI’s ability to conduct unannounced on-site inspections; no unannounced inspections were conducted in 2018. These measures affected the SLI’s ability to conduct child labor inspections during the year. (2,58,65,66)

When an inspection is being conducted, the labor inspector can only focus on the alleged violation outlined in the complaint, even if other violations, such as child labor, are observed. (53,61)

In 2018, 15 minors were detected and removed from child labor by labor inspectors and police officers. In addition, labor inspectors attended regional workshops on how to combat human trafficking, including a policy planning workshop organized by the Permanent Secretariat for National Committee for Combating Trafficking in Persons (NCCTIP) and OSCE. (2)

Criminal Law Enforcement

In 2018, criminal law enforcement agencies in Moldova took actions to combat child labor (Table 7). However, gaps exist within the operations of the criminal enforcement agencies that may hinder adequate criminal law enforcement, including insufficient training for new criminal investigators.

Table 7. Criminal Law Enforcement Efforts Related to Child Labor

† Data are from January 1, 2017 to December 1, 2017.

‡ Data are from January 2018 to November 2018.

During the first 11 months of 2018, the Center for Combating Trafficking in Persons (CCTIP) identified 53 children as victims of human trafficking, of which 34 were engaged in commercial sexual exploitation, 17 were victims of labor trafficking, and 2 were trafficked for begging. In 2018, more than 900 law enforcement officials and prosecutors in CCTIP received more than 14 trainings related to laws, sexual assault crimes, and the use of digital information in investigating and prosecuting cybercrimes. (2,5) The National Institute of Justice (NIJ) also provided training on human trafficking and institutionalized its own cybercrime trainings. The number of trainings in 2018 was considered sufficient in strengthening law enforcement capacity. (2)

In Moldova in recent years, there has been an increase in child online sexual exploitation and sexual abuse. In 2018, the government identified 20 cases in which human trafficking victims were recruited via the Internet. During 2013–2018, the Prosecutor General’s Office opened 185 cases of online child sexual exploitation, including child pornography. (21) In 2017–2018, of these cases 78 child trafficking cases involved child online sexual exploitation. The National Institute of Justice, which trains prosecutors and judges, has institutionalized a 1-day training module on “Identification, investigation and trial of crimes against children with the means of Informational Communication Technologies (ICTs).” (21)

In 2017, CCTIP arrested a boarding school director who trafficked children for sexual and labor exploitation. In September 2018, the court sentenced him and an accomplice to 17 years and six months in prison and forced him to pay damages incurred to the children. (2,5,12,67) The court ordered both to pay a minor victim $47,080. In total, 23 people were sentenced to prison related to commercial sexual exploitation of minors during the reporting period. (2)

MINIMAL ADVANCEMENT – EFFORTS MADE BUT REGRESSION IN LAW AND PRACTICE THAT DELAYED ADVANCEMENT

Authorities do not possess sufficient ability to identify potential victims. (5) Prosecutors, members of the judiciary, and law enforcement continue to be implicated and/or administratively punished for corrupt practices related to human trafficking. (5) Legislation providing special interview services for child victims of trafficking is not uniformly applied, causing re-traumatization. (5)

Online recruitment, solicitation of sexually explicit content, and online threats are inconsistently regarded as child trafficking or sexual harassment, which is considered to be a less serious crime. (2) In addition, law enforcement failed to use special investigation measures to investigate child pornography, which investigators fail to classify as a serious crime. (2)

Sources have reported that newly hired staff at CCTIP lack knowledge on human trafficking and how ICT is used to facilitate human trafficking crimes. (5)

IV. COORDINATION OF GOVERNMENT EFFORTS ON CHILD LABOR

The government has established mechanisms to coordinate its efforts to address child labor (Table 8). However, gaps exist that hinder adequate coordination of efforts to address child labor, including coordination efforts of the National Steering Committee on the Elimination of Child labor.

Table 8. Key Mechanisms to Coordinate Government Efforts on Child Labor

Coordinating Body	Role & Description
National Steering Committee on the Elimination of Child Labor (NSC)	Coordinates work on child labor issues at the national level among representatives from workers' organizations, NGOs, academia, and government. (4,68,69)
National Committee for Combating Trafficking in Persons (NCCTIP)	Coordinates efforts to prevent and combat child trafficking and child sexual exploitation. Members include the SLI, SIS, Agency for Public Services, and other government departments. (2,4,12,27) Drafts legislation related to human trafficking, participates in anti-trafficking campaigns, and develops national action plans. (8) Met three times in 2018 to assess progress on human trafficking. (5)
National Council for the Protection of Child Rights	Coordinates national efforts to combat child exploitation and improve access to education. (12) Includes the Deputy Minister of Health, Labor, and Social Protection, and representatives from the Ministry of Justice, Education, Interior, Foreign Affairs and European Integration, and others. (70) Has a working group to discuss existing gaps in the current birth registration process and develop recommendations. (70,71) Met twice in 2018. (28)

The government passed Government Decree No. 143, which includes strategies to improve coordination on child welfare among education, healthcare, and social protection professionals. (28,46)

The National Steering Committee on the Elimination of Child Labor did not meet in 2018. (28)

During the reporting period, the structure of the Permanent Secretariat of the National Committee for Combating Trafficking in Persons (NCCTIP) was merged with the Permanent Anti-trafficking Secretariat, the Secretariat of the National Child Protection Council, and the Secretariat for the National Commission for Collective Consultation and Bargaining. (2,72) This change may affect the ability of the government to counter human trafficking and assist victims because the number and authority of human trafficking specialists were reduced. (5,28) In addition, a source reported that the budget and resources were insufficient for NCCTIP. (5)

V. GOVERNMENT POLICIES ON CHILD LABOR

The government has established policies that are consistent with relevant international standards on child labor (Table 9).

Table 9. Key Policies Related to Child Labor

Policy	Description
Child Protection Strategy (2014–2020)	Includes the goals of preventing and combating violence, neglect, and the exploitation of children. (73,74) In 2018, Government Decision No. 143 was passed, which outlines how employees in primary healthcare and kindergarten teachers can intervene in child situations of serious concern preventing risks related to child welfare. In addition, community social assistants were trained on child rights protection, and social support services in the sum of $2.5 million were allocated to support families with children. (28,46,55)
Action Plan for Preventing and Combating Trafficking in Human Beings (2018–2020)†	Outlines how law enforcement agencies work to combat human trafficking, provides support to victims of human trafficking, develops the skills of professionals, and aims to create standards for the operation of victim witness rooms for children, among other tasks. (5,75) Plan will be carried out by the Permanent Secretariat Directorate of NCCTIP. (5) Launched in 2018 and includes an accompanying National Strategy for 2018–2023. (5,75)
Moldova Strategy Country Note Program Priorities (2018–2022)†	Focuses on the realization of all children’s rights, including education and health, especially for children from ethnic minorities, children from low-income families, children with disabilities, and children left behind as a result of migration. (76) Launched in 2018. (55)
Moldova-EU Association Agenda (2017–2019)	Protects and promotes children’s rights. (55,69) In 2018, a draft law was written to amend current legislation on legal representation of children’s rights and interests, and custody and legal responsibility for childcare, including children whose parents have gone abroad. (55)
Moldova Action Program (2016–2018)	Promoted the rights and protection of children, including preventing and combating violence, neglect, and exploitation. (77) In 2018, in partnership with the Center for Child Abuse Prevention, the government began developing a set of indicators for assistance and referral of child victims or potential child victims of violence. (55)
Action Plan to Support the Roma People (2016–2020)	Aims to promote social inclusion of Roma. Includes the goals of education, social protection, and combating discrimination. (78,79) Funded by the government, private partnerships, and the EU. In 2018, provided access to social services and facilitated the provision of Roma mediators. (55)
Action Plan on the Promotion of Internet Safety for Children and Teenagers (2017–2020)	Encourages a safer digital environment for children and teenagers by reducing illegal content on the Internet and educating children about its dangers. (80) Yearly reports on implementing the Action Plan are to be submitted to the government. (80) Active in 2018 by creating an app dedicated to online safety for children. (55,81)

† Policy was approved during the reporting period.

VI. SOCIAL PROGRAMS TO ADDRESS CHILD LABOR

In 2018, the government funded and participated in programs that include the goal of eliminating or preventing child labor (Table 10). However, gaps exist in these social programs, including the adequacy of programs to address the full scope of the problem.

Table 10. Key Social Programs to Address Child Labor

Program	Description
Decent Work Country Program (2016–2020)	ILO program that aims to gather statistics on the prevalence of child labor; build the capacity of the labor inspectorate, and combat labor exploitation in the construction and agriculture sectors. (83)
50 Inspired Actions (2019–2030)*	UNICEF-implemented project that aims to end violence against children through regulations, government policies, reporting mechanisms, and awareness raising. (2,82)
Center for Protection and Assistance for Victims of Human Trafficking	Child victims of human trafficking are offered legal and social support, accommodation, psychological assistance, and family reunification services. (4) Active in 2018. (28)
Shelters for Victims of Human Trafficking†	Government-funded shelters for children from Moldova and Transnistria. (27) Offer accommodations, rehabilitation, and reintegration services. (84) The Chisinau shelter provided services to 19 children in 2018. (5)
Child Helpline (2014–2018)	Implemented by La Strada. (4) Provided psychological counseling and information to parents and children experiencing violence, neglect, or exploitation. Assisted 3,532 children and received 5,441 calls in 2018. (2)
Hotlines†	One human trafficking hotline is managed by the MHLSP and refers cases within the National Referral System. (5) The NGO National Center for the Prevention of Child Abuse also manages a child helpline, which received 5,853 calls in 2018. In addition, the General Prosecutor’s Office managed the Anti-Trafficking Green Line Telephone. (5) Moreover, La Strada managed the national hotline for women and children, which received 3,096 calls in 2018. (5)

Program	Description
Social Aid Program and Social Support for Families with Children†	In the case of the Social Aid Program, implemented by the district departments of social assistance and family protection and has provided aid for low-income families since 2008. (2,85) In 2018, allocated $12 million for assistance during the winter. (2) Regarding the Social Support Service for Families with Children, has operated since 2013 and expanded in 2018 to cover the entire country with the government allocating $2.5 million for families. (2)

* Program was launched during the reporting period.

† Program is funded by the Government of Moldova.

‡ The government had other social programs that may have included the goal of eliminating or preventing child labor. (2,5)

In 2018, the government passed Government Decree No. 378 to grant daily allowances to children left without parental care until the age of 18. (43,44) During the reporting period, the government allocated $600,000 for these allowances to 2,600 children. (24,28,45)

Existing social programs do not meet the current level of need, particularly for child victims of trafficking requiring long-term care and children working in agriculture. (5)

VII. SUGGESTED GOVERNMENT ACTIONS TO ELIMINATE CHILD LABOR

Based on the reporting above, suggested actions are identified that would advance the elimination of child labor in Moldova (Table 11).

Table 11. Suggested Government Actions to Eliminate Child Labor

Area	Suggested Action	Year(s) Suggested
Legal Framework	Raise the minimum age for work to the age up to which education is compulsory.	2018
Enforcement	Ensure that labor inspectors can conduct on-site and unannounced inspections.	2018
	Increase the number of labor inspectors and funding for the State Labor Inspectorate to ensure that it provides inspectors with the financial resources necessary to inspect child labor.	2012 – 2018
	Ensure that OSH inspections are carried out in all sectors where child labor is known to occur so that child labor violations are accurately reflected.	2018
	Ensure that investigators, including police officers and CCTIP, receive training on laws and investigative techniques related to the worst forms of child labor, especially for online child pornography and children left behind without parental care.	2016 – 2018
Coordination	Ensure that the National Steering Committee on the Elimination of Child Labor meets and carries out their mandate.	2013 – 2018
	Ensure all coordinating bodies are able to carry out their intended mandates against human trafficking.	2018
Social Programs	Collect and publish data on the extent and nature of child labor to inform policies and programs, including for the secessionist region of Transnistria.	2013 – 2018
	Enhance efforts to eliminate barriers to education by removing informal fees for school supplies.	2018
	Institute targeted support programs that eliminate discrimination and violence against Roma children and promote equal access to education.	2014 – 2018
	Ensure sufficient support for child trafficking victims and children working in agriculture.	2015 – 2018

MINIMAL ADVANCEMENT – EFFORTS MADE BUT CONTINUED PRACTICE THAT DELAYED ADVANCEMENT

In 2018, Mongolia made a minimal advancement in efforts to eliminate the worst forms of child labor. The government conducted two major surveys on child labor and protection issues. In addition, the Family, Child, and Youth Development Agency, the General Agency for Specialized Investigation, and the ILO conducted a joint training on preventing child and forced labor for 64 child rights officers and labor inspectors. However, despite new initiatives to address child labor, Mongolia is receiving this assessment because the government did not permit the labor inspectorate to conduct unannounced inspections, which may have impeded the enforcement of child labor laws. Children in Mongolia engage in the worst forms of child labor, including in forced begging and commercial sexual exploitation. Children also perform dangerous tasks in mining and horse jockeying. Mongolia continues to have a number of legal statutes that do not meet international standards for the protection of children.

I. PREVALENCE AND SECTORAL DISTRIBUTION OF CHILD LABOR

Children in Mongolia engage in the worst forms of child labor, including in forced begging and commercial sexual exploitation. Children also perform dangerous tasks in mining and horse jockeying. (1-3,4) Table I provides key indicators on children's work and education in Mongolia. Data on some of these indicators are not available from the sources used in this report.

Table I. Statistics on Children's Work and Education

Children	Age	Percent
Working (% and population)	5 to 14	13.2 (Unavailable)
Attending School (%)	5 to 14	96.3
Combining Work and School (%)	7 to 14	14.1
Primary Completion Rate (%)		92.6

Source for primary completion rate: Data from 2017, published by UNESCO Institute for Statistics, 2019. (5)

Source for all other data: International Labor Organization's analysis of statistics from Multiple Indicator Cluster Survey 5, 2013. (6)

Based on a review of available information, Table 2 provides an overview of children's work by sector and activity.

Table 2. Overview of Children's Work by Sector and Activity

Sector/Industry	Activity
Agriculture	Animal husbandry,† including herding† (2-8,9)
Industry	Construction,† including carrying and loading bricks, cement and steel framework, mixing construction solutions such as lime or cement,† binding steel framework, and cleaning at the construction site† (2,3,8,9-11)
	Mining† coal,† gold, and fluorspar (2,3,8,9,10,12-14)
Services	Horse jockeying† (1,3,8,9,15,16)
	Scavenging in garbage dumpsites (2,3,9,17)
	Handling freight† (2,3,9)
	Domestic work† (3,9,16)
	Ticket-taking for public transportation† (3,9,16)
	Street work, including vending† and washing cars (9,18,19)
Categorical Worst Forms of Child Labor‡	Commercial sexual exploitation, including use in the production of pornography (3,7,9,20)
	Forced labor in begging (3,7)
	Forced labor in construction, mining, agriculture, horse jockeying, animal husbandry, industrial sectors, and contortionist work. (7,11)

† Determined by national law or regulation as hazardous and, as such, relevant to Article 3(d) of ILO C. 182.

‡ Child labor understood as the worst forms of child labor per se under Article 3(a)–(c) of ILO C. 182.

Mongolia

MINIMAL ADVANCEMENT – EFFORTS MADE BUT CONTINUED PRACTICE THAT DELAYED ADVANCEMENT

Mongolian children are generally trafficked internally for the purpose of commercial sexual exploitation in saunas, bars, hotels, karaoke clubs, and massage parlors. (3,7,9,17,21) Children also work as horse jockeys and face a number of health and safety hazards, including exposure to extremely cold temperatures, risk of brain and bone injuries, and fatal falls. (1,9,15,21-24) Participation in pre-training and horse racing during the November 1–May 1 racing season may also negatively impact children’s school attendance, particularly when children as young as age 7 can participate in horse racing. (15,22,24) Furthermore, 9 out of 10 children exploited in situations of hazardous work are boys. (2,3,8) According to Mongolia’s National Child Labor Survey, children’s employment is more prevalent in rural areas than in urban areas. (2,25)

As the mining industry continues to grow in the southern part of Mongolia, there is increased risk for children, particularly girls, of being exploited in prostitution by drivers waiting to cross the border into China. Nightlife establishments in and around mining towns also pose a risk of sexual exploitation of children. (7) Mining workers sometimes leave their children at home alone while on extended shift rotations, during which time the children are at elevated risk of sex trafficking. Child forced labor also occurs in connection with artisanal mining. (4)

The GASI conducted two major surveys in 2018, one on the use of child horse jockeying nationwide, and the other on the nationwide prevalence and distribution of child labor. These surveys were made publically available upon request in October 2018. (9,26) As a result of the nationwide inspections conducted in conjunction with the surveys, 53 children under the age of 7 were prevented from participating in horse races, and 495 children were found working in the informal sector. (9) In addition, the Ministry of Justice and Home Affairs provided funding to a local NGO to conduct a survey on the prevalence of labor exploitation, including trafficking in persons. (26)

II. LEGAL FRAMEWORK FOR CHILD LABOR

Mongolia has ratified all key international conventions concerning child labor (Table 3).

Table 3. Ratification of International Conventions on Child Labor

Convention	Ratification
 ILO C. 138, Minimum Age	✓
ILO C. 182, Worst Forms of Child Labor	✓
 UN CRC	✓
UN CRC Optional Protocol on Armed Conflict	✓
UN CRC Optional Protocol on the Sale of Children, Child Prostitution and Child Pornography	✓
 Palermo Protocol on Trafficking in Persons	✓

The government has established laws and regulations related to child labor (Table 4). However, gaps exist in Mongolia’s legal framework to adequately protect children from the worst forms of child labor, including the minimum age for work.

Table 4. Laws and Regulations on Child Labor

Standard	Meets International Standards	Age	Legislation
Minimum Age for Work	No	16	Article 109 of the Law on Labor (27)
Minimum Age for Hazardous Work	Yes	18	Article 141 of the Law on Labor; List of Jobs and Occupations Prohibited to Minors (27,28)
Identification of Hazardous Occupations or Activities Prohibited for Children	Yes		List of Jobs and Occupations Prohibited to Minors; Law on the National Naadam Holiday (28,29)

Standard	Meets International Standards	Age	Legislation
Prohibition of Forced Labor	No		Articles 16.4 and 16.10 of the Criminal Code; Article 7 of the Law on Labor; Article 7 of the Law on the Rights of the Child (27,30-32)
Prohibition of Child Trafficking	Yes		Law on Combating Trafficking in Persons; Article 13.1 of the Criminal Code (30,32,33)
Prohibition of Commercial Sexual Exploitation of Children	No		Articles 12.3, 13.1, and 16.8–16.9 of the Criminal Code; Articles 8.1.3 and 10.2 of the Combating Pornography and Prostitution Act 30,32,34)
Prohibition of Using Children in Illicit Activities	No		Articles 16.1–16.4 and 16.8–16.10 of the Criminal Code (30,32)
Minimum Age for Voluntary State Military Recruitment	Yes	18	Article 12 of the Law on Military (35)
Prohibition of Compulsory Recruitment of Children by (State) Military	Yes		Article 12 of the Law on Military (35)
Prohibition of Military Recruitment by Non-state Armed Groups	No
Compulsory Education Age	Yes	16	Article 46 of the Law on Education (36)
Free Public Education	Yes		Article 16 of the Constitution of Mongolia; Articles 6.1-6.3 of the Law on Education (37,38)

In January 2018, the government passed Government Resolution No. 19, which prohibits children under the age of 12 from participating in winter and spring races held between the first day of the Lunar New Year and May 1st. Additionally, in March 2018, the government amended the List of Jobs and Occupations Prohibited to Minors to prevent children under the age of 12 from participating in horse jockeying and training from the Lunar New Year (sometime between the end of January and the end of February) through May 1st. (9,39) However, because the Lunar New Year is a vague timeframe with a different start date every year, child horse jockeys can still work as early as January. (21)

Mongolia's legal framework does not meet several international standards to protect children. (30,32,33) The minimum age for work does not apply to children in the informal sector or to those who are self-employed. (27) The Child Rights Protection Law does not specifically criminalize penalties for forced labor or slavery. Laws do not specifically criminalize forced labor other than forced begging and forced hazardous work. (27,30-32) Laws related to the commercial sexual exploitation of children do not create criminal penalties for the use of children in prostitution. (30,32,34) Furthermore, laws prohibiting the use of children in illicit activities do not criminally prohibit the use, procurement, or offering of a child for the production and trafficking of drugs. (30,32)

During the reporting period, the Ministry of Labor and Social Protection, in conjunction with the ILO, launched a study to determine all necessary legal framework amendments required for Mongolia to ascend to the ILO's Protocol of 2014 to the Forced Labor Convention. (26)

III. Enforcement of Laws on Child Labor

The government has established institutional mechanisms for the enforcement of laws and regulations on child labor (Table 5). However, gaps exist within the authority of the General Agency for Specialized Inspection (GASI) that may hinder adequate enforcement of their child labor laws.

Table 5. Agencies Responsible for Child Labor Law Enforcement

Organization/Agency	Role
General Agency for Specialized Inspection (GASI)	Enforces labor laws, including those related to child labor. Conducts inspections at registered businesses. (19) As an independent agency, reports to the Deputy Prime Minister. (18) This agency was active during the reporting period. (39)

Organization/Agency	Role
Family, Child, and Youth Development Agency (FCYDA)	Implements and promotes government policies, legislation, and projects for children; supports child development and social participation; prevents children from becoming victims of violence; and provides social services. (39) Maintains a nationwide database for tracking case status and social services needs of vulnerable children; accessible from local and central offices. (9) Maintains a nationwide, toll-free Child Helpline, “108,” that captures child labor and child rights violations and is staffed by 22 employees, a social worker, and response team available 24 hours a day. (3,9,40,41) Reports to the Ministry of Labor and Social Protection. This agency was active during the reporting period. (39)
National Police Agency	Maintains primary responsibility for investigating criminal cases. (39) Provides protection to victims and witnesses throughout the judicial process. Reports to the Ministry of Justice and Home Affairs. (39) There are several divisions and departments under its authority that work to enforce laws on child labor. The Metropolitan Police Department oversees police operations in Ulaanbaatar’s nine district police offices, enforces labor laws, and identifies children in hazardous labor. (18,19) The Crime Prevention Division works to protect unattended children on the streets, and identifying and returning children to their parents or referring them to Child Care and Protection Centers. (39) The Juvenile Crime Prevention Unit protects children from being victims of crime and prevents them from committing crimes. (9,42) The Organized Crime Division, located under the Criminal Police Department, receives referrals, and opens formal criminal investigations into human trafficking and sexual exploitation cases, while working with the Prosecutor’s Office to decide whether or not to take a case to court. Oversees the Anti-Trafficking Unit. (18,19,43,44) The National Police Agency was active during the reporting period. (39)

During the reporting period, there were reports of authorities from the Metropolitan Police Department and the Criminal Police Department who were fining, arresting, detaining, and charging child trafficking victims for crimes and administrative offenses. (7,26)

Labor Law Enforcement

In 2018, labor law enforcement agencies in Mongolia took actions to combat child labor (Table 6). However, gaps exist within the authority of GASl that may hinder adequate labor law enforcement, including inspection planning.

Table 6. Labor Law Enforcement Efforts Related to Child Labor

Overview of Labor Law Enforcement	2017	2018

In 2018, the Family, Child, and Youth Development Agency (FCYDA) employed 32 officers who oversaw child protection issues, including child labor. (9) In addition, the FCYDA launched a fingerprinting registration system to improve regulation of child jockeying. (24) However, NGO and government officials reported that the enforcement of child labor laws remained challenging due to the legal requirement that GASl must give employers 48 hours advance notification before conducting an inspection, which provides employers with enough time to conceal violations. (3,7,9)

MINIMAL ADVANCEMENT – EFFORTS MADE BUT CONTINUED PRACTICE THAT DELAYED ADVANCEMENT

Two to three times each year, the government conducts internal trainings for labor inspectors. In July 2018, with funding from the EU, GASI, FCYDA, and the ILO, the government organized training on preventing child and forced labor for 64 child rights officers and labor inspectors. (9) In November 2018, the U.S. Embassy sponsored an International Visitor Leadership Program training session for 10 senior-level GASI officials. The training focused on occupational, safety, health issues, and best practices to address child labor issues. (9)

The government only provides child labor inspections at horse racing events once a year. During these inspections, the government verifies that riders meet minimum age requirements, use safety equipment, and obtain required insurance. (9)

During the reporting period, the government and NGOs noted that funding and resources for inspectors were insufficient, as was the total number of inspectors. (7,9,21,26) It was noted that there were no inspectors specifically dedicated to child labor. (9) Additionally, the number of labor inspectors is likely insufficient for the size of Mongolia’s workforce, which includes about 1.2 million workers. According to the ILO’s technical advice of a ratio approaching 1 inspector for every 15,000 workers in developing economies, Mongolia would employ about 80 labor inspectors, which would require the hiring of 17 additional inspectors to meet this threshold. (45,46)

Criminal Law Enforcement

In 2018, criminal law enforcement agencies in Mongolia took actions to combat child labor (Table 7). However, gaps exist within the operations of criminal enforcement agencies that may hinder adequate criminal law enforcement, including insufficient training for criminal investigators.

Table 7. Criminal Law Enforcement Efforts Related to Child Labor

Overview of Criminal Law Enforcement	2017	2018
Initial Training for New Criminal Investigators	Unknown	Yes (9)
Training on New Laws Related to the Worst Forms of Child Labor	No (3)	Unknown (9)

Number of Investigations	Unknown	Unknown (9)
Number of Violations Found	Unknown	Unknown (9)
Number of Prosecutions Initiated	Unknown	Unknown (9)
Number of Convictions	Unknown	Unknown (9)

Reciprocal Referral Mechanism Exists Between Criminal Authorities and Social Services	Yes (3)	Yes (9)

In 2018, there were 15 separate trainings focused on trafficking in persons, preventing the sexual exploitation of children, improving investigative tactics, and enhancing the provision of support services. (9,39)

Police officers reported a general lack of knowledge and training on how to apply criminal trafficking laws to cases of commercial sexual exploitation of children. Authorities use provisions of the Criminal Code, which carry less stringent penalties when boys are the victims of human trafficking due to the misconception among many government officials that only girls can be victims of human trafficking. (4) As a result, many cases that could have been prosecuted under the human trafficking article of the Criminal Code were instead prosecuted under related articles of the Criminal Code that carry lighter penalties. (4,19,47)

The National Police Agency’s Organized Crime Division investigators use an 11-question risk assessment checklist to help them accurately identify human trafficking victims. Investigators refer victims who meet more than five of the criteria to short- or long-term care facilities. (3,9) The FYCDA runs a temporary (24 to 168 hours) shelter for children, but they have the ability to provide a maximum of 6 months shelter service, depending on the severity of the case. (3,9)

Mongolia

MINIMAL ADVANCEMENT – EFFORTS MADE BUT CONTINUED PRACTICE THAT DELAYED ADVANCEMENT

Due to the issuance of 3 separate directives to its supporting agencies asking for improved public awareness and better identification methods, the FCYDA was able to identify 534 children working in sectors on the List of Jobs and Occupations Prohibited to Minors who were potential victims of child labor. All of these children were screened using the 11-question risk assessment checklist, and received health, education, and social services. (9) During the reporting period, there were reports that child sex trafficking victims were penalized with fines. (9)

IV. COORDINATION OF GOVERNMENT EFFORTS ON CHILD LABOR

The government has established mechanisms to coordinate its efforts to address child labor (Table 8).

Table 8. Key Mechanisms to Coordinate Government Efforts on Child Labor

Coordinating Body	Role & Description
National Committee for Children	Serves as overall coordinating body for nationwide child protection efforts. Implements the National Program on Child Development and Protection (2017–2021). (9) During the reporting period, met for the first time on May 8, 2018, to discuss their work plan. (39)
Anti-Trafficking Sub-Council	Coordinates government efforts to combat human trafficking and monitors implementation of anti-trafficking legislation. Functions as part of the Council on Crime Prevention under the Ministry of Justice and Home Affairs. (11,19,26) Has 15 members representing 12 different organizations, including two NGOs. (11) During the reporting period, met to discuss their work plan for the year. (39)

V. GOVERNMENT POLICIES ON CHILD LABOR

The government has established policies that are consistent with relevant international standards on child labor (Table 9).

Table 9. Key Policies Related to Child Labor

Policy	Description
National Program on Child Development and Protection (2017–2021)	Incorporates the National Program for the Elimination of the Worst Forms of Child Labor and National Action Plan. (3) Coordinates child labor and child protection issues through the Ministries of Labor and Social Protection; Education, Culture, Science and Sports; and Health. (3) During the reporting period, in an effort to advance the National Program on Child Development and Protection, FCYDA accredited 41 NGOs to assist in providing child protection services. (9,48) This policy was active during the reporting period. (39)
National Program on Combating Trafficking in Persons (2017–2021)	Aims to strengthen efforts to prevent and combat different types of human trafficking, including the commercial sexual exploitation of children, and to improve protective services for victims. (3,7,17) This policy was active during the reporting period. (39)
State Policy on Herders (2016–2020)	Describes the acceptable minimum conditions and criteria for employing children in herding. (49) Activities include projects to improve housing and access to information for herders, and ensure that children engaged in herding receive an education. Each year, the government allocates 1 percent of its budget to implement the policy. (50) This policy was active during the reporting period and in its second phase. (39)
Three-Pillar Development Policy (2018–2020)†	Calls for improvements in education, health, social welfare, and labor policies through 2020. Priorities include the education, safety, and health of vulnerable children. (48) This policy was active during the reporting period. (39)

† Policy was approved during the reporting period.

VI. SOCIAL PROGRAMS TO ADDRESS CHILD LABOR

In 2018, the government funded and participated in programs that include the goal of eliminating child labor (Table 10). However, gaps exist in these social programs, including funding of programs to address the full scope of the problem in all sectors.

MINIMAL ADVANCEMENT – EFFORTS MADE BUT CONTINUED PRACTICE THAT DELAYED ADVANCEMENT

Table 10. Key Social Programs to Address Child Labor

Program	Description
Children's Money Program†	General Agency for Social Welfare and Service, General Agency for State Registration, and Human Development Fund program that distributes approximately $8 per month to children under age 18 whose families meet certain economic criteria. (3,53) This program was active during the reporting period. (39)
School Lunch Program‡	Government program that subsidizes meals to encourage low-income children to attend school, particularly at the secondary level. (19) This policy was active during the reporting period. (39)

† Program is funded by the Government of Mongolia.

‡ The government had other social programs that may have included the goal of eliminating or preventing child labor. (18)

NGOs reported that the $8 per month funding for families participating in the Children's Money Program is insufficient. (9,39)

VII. SUGGESTED GOVERNMENT ACTIONS TO ELIMINATE CHILD LABOR

Based on the reporting above, suggested actions are identified that would advance the elimination of child labor in Mongolia (Table 11).

Table 11. Suggested Government Actions to Eliminate Child Labor

Area	Suggested Action	Year(s) Suggested
Legal Framework	Ensure that laws clearly and comprehensively criminalize using, procuring, or offering all children under age 18 for prostitution, the production of pornography, and pornographic performances.	2014 – 2018
	Ensure that the minimum age for work applies to children in the informal sector and those that are self-employed.	2018
	Ensure that the law criminally prohibits using, procuring, or offering of children under age 18 in the production and trafficking of drugs.	2016 – 2018
	Ensure that all forms of forced labor are criminally prohibited.	2016 – 2018
	Ensure that the law criminally prohibits the recruitment of children under age 18 by non-state armed groups.	2016 – 2018
	Ensure that laws adequately prohibit children under the age of 18 from horse racing at all times of the year.	2017 – 2018
Enforcement	Cease fining, arresting, detaining, or charging child trafficking victims with crimes and administrative offenses, as a result of having been subjected to human trafficking.	2018
	Increase the number of labor inspectors to meet the ILO's technical advice.	2014 – 2018
	Publish information on the labor inspectorate funding and the number of labor inspections conducted at worksites.	2015 – 2018
	Publish criminal law enforcement data, including the number of investigations, violations found, prosecutions initiated, and convictions achieved.	2017 – 2018
	Ensure that investigators receive training on new laws related to the worst forms of child labor.	2017 – 2018
	Strengthen the inspection system by permitting the General Agency for Specialized Inspections to provide sufficient funding, allocate resources, and conduct unannounced inspections, including conducting regular inspections at horse racing events.	2013 – 2018
Social Programs	Ensure that the Children's Money Program is sufficiently funded to support its participants.	2018

In 2018, Montenegro made a moderate advancement in efforts to eliminate the worst forms of child labor. The Ministry of Interior's Beggar Task Force investigated 246 people, out of which 33 were juveniles, and 22 children were sent to Social Welfare Centers. Labor inspectors also received trainings on forced child labor and informal work from the Ministry of Interior's Office for the Fight Against Trafficking in Persons and the ILO. In addition, the Supreme State Prosecutor and Police Director adopted a decision to establish a Counter Human Trafficking Task Force, and the government passed the Strategy for Inclusive Education, which aims to provide education to all children in the country, including children with disabilities. Moreover, the Shelter for Victims of Human Trafficking, Forced Begging, and Forced Marriages helped four minors in 2018. Although the government made meaningful efforts in all relevant areas during the reporting period, the government did not secure convictions related to the worst forms of child labor. Children in Montenegro engage in the worst forms of child labor, including in forced begging and commercial sexual exploitation, each sometimes as a result of human trafficking. In addition, research found that the scope of programs to address child labor in street work or forced begging is insufficient.

I. PREVALENCE AND SECTORAL DISTRIBUTION OF CHILD LABOR

Children in Montenegro engage in the worst forms of child labor, including in forced begging and commercial sexual exploitation, each sometimes as a result of human trafficking. (1,3-5,6) Table 1 provides key indicators on children's work and education in Montenegro.

Table 1. Statistics on Children's Work and Education

Children	Age	Percent
Working (% and population)	5 to 14	18.3 (77,591)
Attending School (%)	5 to 14	91.6
Combining Work and School (%)	7 to 14	19.9
Primary Completion Rate (%)		90.4

Source for primary completion rate: Data from 2017, published by UNESCO Institute for Statistics, 2019. (7)

Source for all other data: International Labor Organization's analysis of statistics from Multiple Indicator Cluster Survey 5, 2013. (8)

Based on a review of available information, Table 2 provides an overview of children's work by sector and activity.

Table 2. Overview of Children's Work by Sector and Activity

Sector/Industry	Activity
Services	Street work, including vending small goods and begging (1,9-12)
Categorical Worst Forms of Child Labor‡	Commercial sexual exploitation as a result of human trafficking (5,6,13,14)
	Forced begging, sometimes as a result of human trafficking (5,12,15)
	Domestic work as a result of human trafficking (15-17)
	Use in illicit activities, including drug trafficking and harvesting (3,4)

‡ Child labor understood as the worst forms of child labor per se under Article 3(a)–(c) of ILO C. 182.

Montenegro is a source, destination, and transit country for children trafficked for forced labor, including forced begging, especially among Romani children. (3,5,10,12,6) Some Romani girls from Montenegro are sold into servile marriages in Montenegro and Kosovo, where they are also forced into domestic servitude. (16-18,6)

Montenegro

MODERATE ADVANCEMENT

Children, especially girls, are trafficked for commercial sexual exploitation, internally and transnationally within the region and to Western Europe. (5,12,19,6)

Some Roma, Ashkali, and Balkan Egyptian children experience challenges in obtaining birth registration, which sometimes makes school enrollment difficult, increasing their vulnerability to engage in child labor. (4,5,10-12,20,21) The higher rate of unregistered children is mostly due to registration costs, parents' lack of awareness of the importance of registration, and parents' lack of identification documents. (22,21) In addition, some children with disabilities, especially in rural areas, experience difficulty accessing education and have limited government social services available. (4,21,23,24)

II. LEGAL FRAMEWORK FOR CHILD LABOR

Montenegro has ratified all key international conventions concerning child labor (Table 3).

Table 3. Ratification of International Conventions on Child Labor

Convention	Ratification
 ILO C. 138, Minimum Age	✓
 ILO C. 182, Worst Forms of Child Labor	✓
 UN CRC	✓
 UN CRC Optional Protocol on Armed Conflict	✓
 UN CRC Optional Protocol on the Sale of Children, Child Prostitution and Child Pornography	✓
 Palermo Protocol on Trafficking in Persons	✓

The government's laws and regulations are in line with relevant international standards (Table 4).

Table 4. Laws and Regulations on Child Labor

Standard	Meets International Standards	Age	Legislation
Minimum Age for Work	Yes	15	Article 16 of the Labor Law (25)
Minimum Age for Hazardous Work	Yes	18	Article 17 of the Labor Law (25)
Identification of Hazardous Occupations or Activities Prohibited for Children	Yes		Articles 104 and 106 of the Labor Law; Articles 7–8 of the Regulations on Measures of Protection in the Workplace (25,26)
Prohibition of Forced Labor	Yes		Article 444 of the Criminal Code; Articles 28 and 63 of the Constitution (27,28)
Prohibition of Child Trafficking	Yes		Articles 444–446 of the Criminal Code (28)
Prohibition of Commercial Sexual Exploitation of Children	Yes		Articles 209–211 of the Criminal Code (28)
Prohibition of Using Children in Illicit Activities	Yes		Articles 300–301 of the Criminal Code (28)
Minimum Age for Voluntary State Military Recruitment	Yes	18	Articles 47, 188, and 195 of the Declaration of the Law on the Army of Montenegro; Articles 162–163 of the Law on the Armed Forces (29,30)
Prohibition of Compulsory Recruitment of Children by (State) Military	N/A*		Articles 47, 188, and 195 of the Declaration of the Law on the Army of Montenegro; Articles 162–163 of the Law on the Armed Forces (29,30)
Prohibition of Military Recruitment by Non-state Armed Groups	Yes		Article 444 of the Criminal Code (28)
Compulsory Education Age	Yes	15	Article 4 of the Law on Primary Education (31)
Free Public Education	Yes		Article 75 of the Constitution (27)

* No conscription (29)

The Regulations on Measures of Protection in the Workplace prescribes workplace protections and prohibits specific hazardous activities for children, including workplaces that would expose them to physical, biological, or chemical hazards. (9,26)

III. ENFORCEMENT OF LAWS ON CHILD LABOR

The government has established institutional mechanisms for the enforcement of laws and regulations on child labor (Table 5). However, gaps exist within the operations of the Ministry of Labor and Social Welfare (MLSW) that may hinder adequate enforcement of their child labor laws.

Table 5. Agencies Responsible for Child Labor Law Enforcement

Organization/Agency	Role
Labor Inspectorate	Leads and monitors the enforcement of labor laws, including those that protect working children and affect working conditions throughout the country. (2,3,9,22,32,33) Part of the Inspectorate General. (34)
Police Directorate within the Ministry of Interior	Investigates and enforces criminal laws on forced labor and human trafficking for commercial sexual exploitation. (2,32,35) Coordinates law enforcement actions, including identification of victims of human trafficking. (2,3,35) Prevents and investigates child begging by removing child beggars from the streets through the Beggar Task Force. (5,14)
Supreme State Prosecutor	Collects data on the number of police investigations, convictions, and court rulings, and submits them to the Office for the Fight Against Trafficking in Persons. (2,3,35,36)
Ministry of Justice	Enforces the Criminal Code by prosecuting crimes against children, including human trafficking, child begging, and child abuse. (3,33)
Ministry of Labor and Social Welfare (MLSW)	Protects children and families by providing social, child, and family protection in its Social Welfare Centers. Identifies potential victims of human trafficking. (2,3,35)
Ministry of Interior's Office for the Fight Against Trafficking in Persons (OFTIP)	Coordinates efforts against human trafficking among relevant institutions and international organizations, harmonizes legislation, maintains data on human trafficking, and funds hotlines and shelters for victims of human trafficking. (2)
Ombudsman's Deputy for the Rights of the Child	Monitors the situation of children using strategies such as visiting schools and institutions, holding focus groups, maintaining email hotlines, and writing blogs for children. (2,3,32)

During the reporting period, to streamline the victim referral process, the Supreme State Prosecutor and Police Director adopted a decision to form a Counter Human Trafficking Task Force, which will be a team with representatives from the police, prosecution, Ministry of Interior, Ministry of Justice, and NGOs. (5) A special unit within the Police Directorate will also be formed to target human trafficking and illegal migration. (5)

Labor Law Enforcement

In 2018, labor law enforcement agencies in Montenegro took actions to combat child labor (Table 6). However, gaps exist within the operations of the MLSW that may hinder adequate labor law enforcement, including inspection planning.

† Data are from January 2017 to November 2017.

The labor inspectorate has 15 offices that proactively plan labor inspections, with an increase in inspections during the summer tourist seasons in specific sectors, such as trade and catering. (2,3,9,22,38) Labor inspectors can inspect registered farms and Social Welfare Centers (SWCs) can inspect family farms to detect child labor. (3) If child labor is found by SCWs, they can work with labor inspectors and criminal law enforcement.

Children found during labor inspections can be sent to SWCs and accommodated in a government-financed, NGO-run shelter for human trafficking victims. (2,3,38) There are 29 labor inspectors who cover employment relations and 10 who cover health safety issues at work. (3) All inspectors monitor the enforcement of child labor. (2,3,38) The government maintains a database on children involved in begging but does not collect or publish data on the worst forms of child labor. (4)

During the reporting period, labor inspectors received trainings on forced child labor from the Ministry of Interior's Office for the Fight Against Trafficking in Persons (OFTIP) and the MLSW. (3) In addition, 19 labor inspectors received training from the ILO on the informal economy and protecting youth at work. (3,4) The labor inspectorate deemed funding to be sufficient for 2018. (3)

Criminal Law Enforcement

In 2018, criminal law enforcement agencies in Montenegro took actions to combat child labor (Table 7). However, gaps exist within the operations of the criminal enforcement agencies that may hinder adequate criminal law enforcement, including prosecution planning.

† Data are from January 2017 to November 2017.

A new eight-member police unit investigates human trafficking and illegal migration within the Police Directorate. (4) Police investigate children working on the street, and those who are found begging or require social assistance can be accommodated in a public institution, called a Ljubović, for up to 30 days while parents are located. (2,3,9,39) When parents are not available, children are referred to local SWCs. (3)

However, continuous victim identification training is needed for the police, judiciary, and prosecutors. (5,14) In addition, gaps remain in prosecutions and the number of convictions related to human trafficking. (40,3,5,34)

During the reporting period, according to the government, resources were sufficient for combating human trafficking. (3,5) OFTIP organized a training on early identification of human trafficking, including the worst forms of child labor. OFTIP and the OSCE also held seminars for 15 police officers on human trafficking for labor exploitation. (3,5) In addition, seminars on public awareness on human trafficking, including the use of children in commercial sexual exploitation, were organized in Bijelo Polje, Tivat, and Podgorica by OFTIP and the State Human Resources Agency for 50 employees of local municipalities. (5,36) In 2018, as part of the Beggar Task Force, 246 people were investigated, out of which 33 were juveniles, and 22 children were sent to SWCs. (3)

IV. COORDINATION OF GOVERNMENT EFFORTS ON CHILD LABOR

The government has established mechanisms to coordinate its efforts to address child labor (Table 8).

Table 8. Key Mechanisms to Coordinate Government Efforts on Child Labor

Coordinating Body	Role & Description
Office of the National Anti-Trafficking Coordinator (Human Trafficking Office)	Coordinates efforts, projects, and legislation against trafficking in persons and the worst forms of child labor among relevant government institutions and international organizations. (2,3) Collects and maintains data on investigations and court rulings. A task force monitors and promotes activities related to combating human trafficking, and assesses the progress of objectives established in action plans. (2,3) Includes government representatives, NGOs, and international organizations. (2) Active in 2018. (4)
Council for the Rights of the Child	Implements and monitors the government's commitments pursuant to the UN CRC, and initiates adoption of legislation to promote and protect the rights of children. Chaired by the MLSW and has 12 other members. (2,3,41-43) Met once in 2018. (3)

V. GOVERNMENT POLICIES ON CHILD LABOR

The government has established policies related to child labor (Table 9). However, policy gaps exist that may hinder efforts to address child labor, including mainstreaming child labor issues into relevant policies.

Table 9. Key Policies Related to Child Labor

Policy	Description
Strategy for Prevention and Protection of Children from Violence (2017–2021)	Strengthens the national framework in preventing violence against children, including improving legislation and the judicial system. (3,44) Includes providing care and services for child victims or those at risk of violence. Aims to eliminate violence against children in the country by 2021. (44) Active in 2018. (4)
National Strategy for Combating Human Trafficking†	Outlines objectives for combating human trafficking by raising public awareness, strengthening the capacity for victim identification and service provision, improving interagency coordination, and raising the efficiency of prosecutions. (23,45) The strategy and yearly action plan are evaluated and adopted through reports prepared with government and civil society collaboration. (23) Prepared a new strategy for 2019–2024 that aims to increase prosecutions and victim identification. (3,46,47)
Strategy for the Social Inclusion of Roma and Egyptians (2016–2020)	Aims to create social inclusion of Roma and Egyptians by increasing school attendance and birth registration, and preventing child begging and human trafficking. Implemented by the Ministry for Minority and Human Rights. (48)
Guidelines for the Treatment of Unaccompanied Minors	Provides accommodation, protection, and rehabilitation for minors and other vulnerable groups. Implemented by the MLSW. (46,49) Active in 2018. (4)
Strategy for the Development of the Social and Child Protection System (2018–2022)	Builds an integrated social and child protection system, including monthly social assistance, health care, and a child allowance that is contingent upon school attendance. (1) Contains an integrated Action Plan for 2018. (4,46,50)
Strategy for Inclusive Education (2019–2025)†	Aims to include inclusive education for all children in the country, including children with disabilities. (51) Will review the work of steering committees to ensure that all educational goals are met, specify the work of mobile teams, and continuously improve the literature in the schools to be inclusive of all. (51)

† Policy was approved during the reporting period.

The government has not included child labor elimination and prevention strategies in the Strategy for Prevention and Protection of Children from Violence. (50)

Research was unable to determine whether activities were undertaken to implement the Strategy for the Social Inclusion of Roma and Egyptians during the reporting period.

VI. SOCIAL PROGRAMS TO ADDRESS CHILD LABOR

In 2018, the government funded and participated in programs that include the goal of eliminating or preventing child labor (Table 10). However, gaps exist in these social programs, including adequacy of programs to address the problem in all sectors.

Table 10. Key Social Programs to Address Child Labor

Program	Description
UNICEF Country Program (2016–2021)	Addresses access to social services for children, synchronizes the legal framework with EU and UN standards, implements and monitors policies relevant to children, and applies the principles of the UN CRC. (4,16,36) Had a campaign in 2018 on media literacy to ensure that all children are prepared for school attendance. (4,36)
Development of Standard Operating Procedures for the Treatment of Children Deprived of Parents or Unaccompanied	Implemented by the Ministry of Interior's Human Trafficking Office and UNICEF. (14) Goals include standardizing procedures among all relevant institutions for dealing with unaccompanied children and children separated from parents, ensuring compliance with both international and national laws for children. (52) Includes procedures on identifying, accommodating, and integrating the children. (52) The standard operating procedures were implemented during the reporting period. (36)
Shelter for Victims of Human Trafficking, Forced Begging, and Forced Marriages†	Run by the NGO Montenegrin Women's Lobby and the government. The shelter provides accommodations for children who are separated from adults and victims of forced begging and forced marriages. (39) The government continued to operate the shelter and provided accommodations to four minors in 2018. (3)
Hotline for Victims of Human Trafficking†	SOS Hotline† funded by the Human Trafficking Office and run by the NGO Montenegrin Women's Lobby. Provides advice, connects victims with service providers, and raises public awareness. (23,35) Received 565 calls during the reporting period. (5)

† Program is funded by the Government of Montenegro.

‡ The government had other social programs that may have included the goal of eliminating or preventing child labor. (5,53,54)

Despite the government funding the Shelter for Victims of Human Trafficking in 2018, funding must be renewed yearly, and NGOs were dissatisfied with the level of funding. (3) In addition, the provision of services to individuals with disabilities who are victims of human trafficking is limited. (5)

Although the Government of Montenegro has programs that target child labor, the scope of these programs is insufficient to fully address the extent of the problem, especially for street work and forced begging.

VII. SUGGESTED GOVERNMENT ACTIONS TO ELIMINATE CHILD LABOR

Based on the reporting above, suggested actions are identified that would advance the elimination of child labor in Montenegro (Table 11).

Table 11. Suggested Government Actions to Eliminate Child Labor

Area	Suggested Action	Year(s) Suggested
Enforcement	Consistently track and publish information about children involved in the worst forms of child labor.	2017 – 2018
	Provide continuous victim identification training to police, the judiciary, and prosecutors.	2017 – 2018
	Increase the number of prosecutions and convictions of perpetrators involved in commercial sexual exploitation.	2017 – 2018
Government Policies	Integrate child labor elimination and prevention strategies into national policies for all children, including in the Strategy for Prevention and Protection of Children from Violence.	2018
	Ensure that the Strategy for the Social Inclusion of Roma and Egyptians is active.	2018
Social Programs	Make additional efforts to register children from the Ashkali, Balkan Egyptian, and Roma communities.	2012 – 2018
	Build the capacity of schools and other services and programs to accommodate and provide services to children with disabilities.	2015 – 2018
	Increase funding for human trafficking shelters, including for individuals with disabilities who are victims of human trafficking.	2018
	Expand existing programs to address the scope of the child labor problem, especially in street work and forced begging.	2018

Although research found no evidence that child labor exists in Montserrat, the government made a minimal advancement in efforts to prevent the worst forms of child labor in 2018. During the reporting period, the Labor Office used media programming to inform children and adults of the legal age to work in the country. However, the government has not determined by national law or regulation the types of hazardous work prohibited for children. In addition, the law does not prohibit the involvement of children in illicit activities.

I. PREVALENCE AND SECTORAL DISTRIBUTION OF CHILD LABOR

Research found no evidence that child labor exists in Montserrat. (1-5)

Table 1 provides one key indicator on children's education in Montserrat for which information is available. Data on other key indicators are not available from the sources used in this report.

Table 1. Statistics on Children's Work and Education

Children	Age	Percent
Working (% and population)	5 to 14	Unavailable
Attending School (%)	5 to 14	Unavailable
Combining Work and School (%)	7 to 14	Unavailable
Primary Completion Rate (%)		68.9

Source for primary completion rate: Data from 2007 published by UNESCO Institute for Statistics, 2019. (6)
Data were unavailable from International Labor Organization's analysis, 2019. (7)

II. LEGAL FRAMEWORK FOR CHILD LABOR

British Overseas Territories (BOTs) recognize the jurisdiction and sovereignty of the United Kingdom (UK), but they are constitutionally not part of the UK. They are self-governing, except in the areas of foreign affairs and defense. (8) Domestic UK law does not generally apply unless explicitly extended in Montserrat. (2) Under Article 35(4) of the ILO Constitution, when the UK ratifies a Convention, the Territory must consider if it will accept the Convention. If the Convention is accepted, it is considered applicable to that territory. (2,8) No key international conventions concerning child labor have been extended to Montserrat (Table 2).

Table 2. Ratification of International Conventions on Child Labor

Convention	Ratification
 ILO C. 138, Minimum Age
 ILO C. 182, Worst Forms of Child Labor
 UN CRC
 UN CRC Optional Protocol on Armed Conflict
 UN CRC Optional Protocol on the Sale of Children, Child Prostitution and Child Pornography
 Palermo Protocol on Trafficking in Persons

The Government of Montserrat has established laws and regulations related to child labor (Table 3). However, gaps exist in Montserrat's legal frameworks to adequately protect children from the worst forms of child labor, including the prohibition of using children in illicit activities.

Free Public Education	Yes		Chapter II, Part 1 of the Education Act (12)

* No conscription (13)

Children under age 18 may not be employed at night or in occupations designated as hazardous. (9) The Minister of Labor for Montserrat is entrusted with the responsibility of deciding what constitutes hazardous work, but Montserrat has not determined by national law or regulation the types of hazardous work prohibited for children. (9) The law does not criminally prohibit the recruitment of children by non-state armed groups. The law does not criminally prohibit the use of children in illicit activities. (13)

III. ENFORCEMENT OF LAWS ON CHILD LABOR

As there is no evidence of a problem, there appears to be no need for enforcement actions to address child labor. However, in Montserrat, the UK government has established institutional mechanisms for the enforcement of labor laws (Table 4).

Table 4. Agencies Responsible for Child Labor Law Enforcement

Organization/Agency	Role
Department of Labor	Prohibits employment of children, pursuant to the Labor Code of 2012, under the Labor Commissioner. (14,15)
Royal Montserrat Police Service	Enforces laws involving children in violation of the labor law. (14)
Department of Social Services	Employs social workers to work on child protection issues. (14)

During the reporting period, the Labor Office used the media to inform children and adults of the legal age to work in the country. (16)

IV. COORDINATION OF GOVERNMENT EFFORTS ON CHILD LABOR

As there is no evidence of a problem, there appears to be no need for mechanisms to coordinate efforts to address child labor.

V. GOVERNMENT POLICIES ON CHILD LABOR

As there is no evidence of a problem, there appears to be no need for policies to address child labor.

VI. SOCIAL PROGRAMS TO ADDRESS CHILD LABOR

As there is no evidence of a problem, there appears to be no need for programs to address child labor.

VII. SUGGESTED GOVERNMENT ACTIONS TO ELIMINATE CHILD LABOR

Based on the reporting above, suggested actions are identified that would advance the continued prevention of child labor in Montserrat (Table 5).

Table 5. Suggested Government Actions to Eliminate Child Labor

Area	Suggested Action	Year(s) Suggested
Legal Framework	Determine the types of hazardous work prohibited for children, in consultation with employers' and workers' organizations.	2017 – 2018
	Ensure that the law criminally prohibits the use of children in illicit activities.	2011 – 2018
	Ensure that the law criminally prohibits the recruitment of children under age 18 by non-state armed groups.	2016 – 2018

In 2018, Morocco made a moderate advancement in efforts to eliminate the worst forms of child labor. The government published information on criminal and labor law enforcement efforts, in addition to investigating and prosecuting criminal cases involving child labor violations. Moreover, it operated child protection centers and continued to fund the Tayssir Conditional Cash Transfer Program, providing direct cash transfers to qualifying families whose children meet school attendance criteria, reaching more than 2 million students in 2018. The government also launched social programs focused on providing vocational training to at-risk youth, and assistance to street children at risk of child labor. In addition, it drafted legislation to enhance enforcement abilities in the artisanal sector, specifically allowing labor inspectors to enter into private workshops employing any number of employees. However, children in Morocco engage in the worst forms of child labor, including forced domestic work. Children also engage in child labor in producing artisanal handicrafts. Although the government made meaningful efforts in all relevant areas during the reporting period, laws related to the minimum age for work and the use of children for illicit activities do not meet international standards. The scope of government programs that target child labor is insufficient to fully address the extent of the problem.

I. PREVALENCE AND SECTORAL DISTRIBUTION OF CHILD LABOR

Children in Morocco engage in the worst forms of child labor, including forced domestic work. Children also engage in child labor in agriculture. (1-9) Government statistics from 2017 showed 30,545 children ages 7 to 15 working; however, the government has not yet made the full data set available, including microdata, leaving the nature and causes of children's involvement in specific forms of child labor unknown. (10,11) Table 1 provides key indicators on children's work and education in Morocco.

Table 1. Statistics on Children's Work and Education

Children	Age	Percent
Working (% and population)	10 to 14	4.5 (150,178)
Attending School (%)	6 to 14	82.9
Combining Work and School (%)	10 to 14	0.7
Primary Completion Rate (%)		92.7

Based on a review of available information, Table 2 provides an overview of children's work by sector and activity.

Categorical Worst Forms of Child Labor†	Commercial sexual exploitation, sometimes as a result of human trafficking (4-9,18,23)
	Forced domestic work, sometimes as a result of human trafficking (3-6,9,20)
	Begging as a result of human trafficking (4-6,9)
	Illegal sand extraction (25)

† Determined by national law or regulation as hazardous and, as such, relevant to Article 3(d) of ILO C. 182.

‡ Child labor understood as the worst forms of child labor per se under Article 3(a)–(c) of ILO C. 182.

Morocco is a source, destination, and transit country for children subjected to forced labor and sex trafficking. (7,8,18,24,26)

According to local union observations, rural Moroccan girls, some as young as age 6, are recruited for domestic work in private urban homes. Girls from Cameroon, Côte d’Ivoire, Democratic Republic of the Congo, Nigeria, and Senegal are brought to Morocco for this same purpose. (6,8,27) Some of these girls are subjected to physical and verbal abuse, excessive working hours without regular periods of rest or days off, and no access to educational opportunities. (6,8,27)

Children face barriers to accessing education, including distance to schools, inadequate transportation, prohibitive costs associated with attending school, and the lack of safety and inclusiveness to accommodate students of diverse backgrounds and abilities. These barriers to education increase vulnerability to child labor, especially in rural areas. (1,3,6,23,28) Children with disabilities face additional barriers to education, such as inadequate facilities and support. (6,19,29) Some migrant children, particularly unaccompanied children from sub-Saharan Africa and rural children, face additional barriers to accessing education, such as lack of knowledge of the language of instruction. Furthermore, because birth certificates are required to attend school past the fifth grade, many unregistered children remain out of school and vulnerable to child labor. (23,30,31)

II. LEGAL FRAMEWORK FOR CHILD LABOR

Morocco has ratified all key international conventions concerning child labor (Table 3).

Table 3. Ratification of International Conventions on Child Labor

The government has established laws and regulations related to child labor (Table 4). However, gaps exist in Morocco’s legal framework to adequately protect children from the worst forms child labor, including prohibiting the use of children in illicit activities.

Following the passage of the Law on Setting Up Employment Conditions of Domestic Workers in 2016, the law entered into force on October 2, 2018. However, despite regulations to inform agencies on implementing the law, enforcement issues remain, such as the inability of labor inspectors to inspect closed private residences, where many domestic workers are employed. (23,39) In 2018, the Government of Morocco drafted legislation to enhance enforcement abilities in the artisanal sector, specifically allowing labor inspectors to enter private workshops employing any number of employees. (9,40) In addition, in 2018, the Government of Morocco instated military conscription for the national armed forces with an age of 19. (41)

Currently, the law does not provide explicit protections for self-employed children, those who work in the traditional artisan or handicraft sectors for businesses with fewer than five employees, or those who work on private farms or in residences. Despite assurances from the Government of Morocco that inspectors could inspect in the case of any established labor relationship, often verified through witnesses in the absence of contracts, there is an absence of explicit legal protections that conform to international standards, which require all children to be protected under the law establishing a minimum age for work. (5, 11, 22, 32, 40, 42, 43) In addition, the types of hazardous work prohibited for children do not fully cover sectors in which child labor is known to occur or sectors in which work conditions may harm children's health, safety, and morals. (33) Moroccan law does not define using, procuring, or offering of children for either the production or trafficking of drugs as a separate crime; nor does it provide for increased penalties in such cases. (31, 39)

III. ENFORCEMENT OF LAWS ON CHILD LABOR

The government has established institutional mechanisms for the enforcement of laws and regulations on child labor (Table 5). However, gaps exist within the operations of the Ministry of Labor and Vocational Integration (MOLVI) that may hinder adequate enforcement of their child labor laws.

Table 5. Agencies Responsible for Child Labor Law Enforcement

Organization/Agency	Role
Ministry of Labor and Vocational Integration (MOLVI)	Enforces child labor laws and oversees programs on child labor as lead agency through its child labor task force. (3, 5, 9, 23, 31) Provides occupational health and safety services, administers social security, and organizes labor inspections and employment services through nationwide satellite offices. (3)
Ministry of the Interior	Enforces prohibitions on trafficking in persons and prostitution and other exploitative crimes involving minors, as established in the Penal Code, through the General Directorate of National Security. (5, 9, 23)

(45) Implements the Integrated Public Policy on the Protection of Children. (4,5) Supports 142 Child Reception Centers that provide services to child victims of violence. (31)
Ministry of Foreign Affairs and International Cooperation	Coordinates efforts to reduce migrant vulnerability to child labor through its Delegate Ministry in Charge of Moroccans Living Abroad and Migration Affairs. Promotes migrant children's access to public education facilities and other social services and assistance. (3,44,46)
Ministry of National Education, Vocational Training, Higher Education, and Scientific Research	Provides education and job training to children, including former child domestic workers and migrant youth through the Office of Vocational Training and Work Promotion centers. (31,40,44)

In 2018, the Office of the General Prosecutor selected 42 prosecutors nationwide from the courts of appeals as responsible for handling trafficking in persons cases. (9)

Labor Law Enforcement

In 2018, labor law enforcement agencies in Morocco took actions to combat child labor (Table 6). However, gaps exist within the authority of the MOLVI that may hinder adequate labor law enforcement, including penalty assessment authorization.

† Data are from January 1, 2017 to September 30, 2017. (47)

The sectors most frequently inspected included trade, agriculture, and metal and woodwork. There are 22 inspectors dedicated to agriculture, as well as 23 engineers and 18 physicians in charge of health and safety labor inspections, and the government also has 54 dedicated child labor points of contact distributed across the country in various governmental departments. (23,31,44,47) During 2018, labor inspectors participated in 18 separate training sessions, and during the first 9 months of the year removed 14 children under the age of 15 from dangerous working conditions. In the first 9 months of 2018, the government conducted 25,822 labor inspections, including 263 focused on child labor. Last year's reported figures referred only to inspections focused on child labor. (23) The government prescribes a quota of 20 labor inspections per inspector each month, conducted in the formal market. (40)

Insufficient resources, including an insufficient number of inspectors, hamper the labor inspectorate's capacity to enforce child labor laws. (5,39,48,49) Although Morocco employs 297 labor inspectors, the number of labor inspectors is likely insufficient for the size of Morocco's workforce, which includes more than 12 million workers. According to the ILO's technical advice of a ratio approaching 1 inspector for every 15,000 workers in industrializing economies, Morocco should employ about 800 inspectors. (48,50,51) The official procedures involved in processing child labor violations require the participation of several agencies for each case, which places considerable administrative burdens on labor inspectors. (2) Government officials, local stakeholders, and the ILO Committee of Experts on the Application of Conventions and Recommendations report that the penalties against companies that employ children in hazardous work, set forth in the Labor Code, are insufficient deterrents. (22,48)

Criminal Law Enforcement

In 2018, criminal law enforcement agencies in Morocco took actions to combat child labor (Table 7). However, gaps exist within the operations of the criminal enforcement agencies that may hinder adequate criminal law enforcement, including publication of criminal law enforcement data.

Table 7. Criminal Law Enforcement Efforts Related to Child Labor

Criminal authorities refer victims to appropriate social services through coordination with the government's 54 dedicated child labor points of contact across other government entities and through civil society actors. (23,39)

IV. COORDINATION OF GOVERNMENT EFFORTS ON CHILD LABOR

The government has established mechanisms to coordinate its efforts to address child labor (Table 8).

Table 8. Key Mechanisms to Coordinate Government Efforts on Child Labor

Coordinating Body	Role & Description
Technical Committee Under the Special Ministerial Commission for Children for the Protection and Improvement of Childhood	Ensures inter-sectoral coordination and monitoring for implementing international conventions on children's issues through a committee of 25 government bodies, chaired by the Head of the Government of Morocco. Establishes strategies and mechanisms to implement national policies and plans for child protection and coordinates the management of efforts at the local and regional levels. (31) In 2018, the committee met twice to coordinate inter-agency policies and programs, and to create an action plan for 2019. (23)

V. GOVERNMENT POLICIES ON CHILD LABOR

The government has established policies that are consistent with relevant international standards on child labor (Table 9).

Table 9. Key Policies Related to Child Labor

VI. SOCIAL PROGRAMS TO ADDRESS CHILD LABOR

In 2018, the government funded and participated in programs that include the goal of eliminating or preventing child labor (Table 10). However, gaps exist in these social programs, including the adequacy of efforts to address the problem in all sectors.

Table 10. Key Social Programs to Address Child Labor

Program	Description
Measurement, Awareness-Raising, and Policy Engagement Project on Child Labor and Forced Labor (MAPI6)*	USDOL-funded project implemented by ILO to conduct research and develop new survey methodologies, improve awareness, strengthen policies and government capacity, and promote partnerships to combat child labor and forced labor. Additional information is available on the USDOL website.
Tayssir Conditional Cash Transfer Program†	MSWFSD program that provides direct cash transfers to qualifying families whose children meet school attendance criteria. Aims to increase school enrollment and reduce dropout rates, particularly in rural areas, with 832,500 recipients in 2015–2016 and 509,475 recipients in 2016–2017. (3,11,46) In 2018, the program provided assistance to 2,087,200 students from low-income families. (23)
Government-Funded Shelters and Centers‡	MSWFSD's Entraide Nationale agency manages three key shelter and support centers – the Child Protection Units, Social Assistance Centers, and Orientation and Accompaniment Centers for People with Disabilities – to provide services to child victims of all types of violence, street children, migrant children and refugees, and those with disabilities. (39,40,44,47,54) Other shelters and service centers include student dormitories and training and integration programs for vulnerable children. (39,40,44,47) In 2018, the government operated 82 Child Protection Units across the country, and conducted a campaign in Marrakech in November to raise awareness in schools on the domestic service law. (40)
After-School Program for a Second Chance (E2C)†	Provides students with afterschool educational assistance as part of non-formal education program. (4,44) In 2018, program officials from the Direction of Non-Formal Education, which manages the program, noted that follow-up efforts in October to reach students who failed to return to school reached more than 30,000 students, facilitating the return to educational institutions of approximately one third of them. (40)
Government-funded Projects*†	MSWFS-funded project Mouwakaba assists 2,700 at-risk youth in 6 cities with vocational training. The Cities without Street Children project provides assistance to homeless children in Casablanca and Méknes. (23)
USAID-Funded Projects to Address Child Labor	USAID projects in Morocco that aim to increase the social and economic inclusion of at-risk youth (ages 10–24) living in the marginalized neighborhoods of Tangier and Tetouan. Includes Favorable Opportunities to Reinforce Self-Advancement for Today's Youth (FORSATY) (2012–2017), a $12.77 million project implemented by Search for Common Ground. (48)

* Program was launched during the reporting period.

† Program is funded by the Government of Morocco.

‡ The government had other social programs that may have included the goal of eliminating or preventing child labor. (2-5,9,44,47,48)

In 2018, the government continued a regularization campaign to provide legal status and documentation to foreign migrants. (9) Although the government has programs that target child labor, the scope of these programs is insufficient to fully address the extent of the problem, including for children engaged in forced domestic work. (3,39,44)

VII. SUGGESTED GOVERNMENT ACTIONS TO ELIMINATE CHILD LABOR

Based on the reporting above, suggested actions are identified that would advance the elimination of child labor in Morocco (Table 11).

Table 11. Suggested Government Actions to Eliminate Child Labor

Area	Suggested Action	Year(s) Suggested
Legal Framework	Ensure that laws prohibit children from being used, procured, or offered for the production and trafficking of illicit drugs.	2015 – 2018
	Ensure that all children are protected by law, including children who are self-employed, work for artisan and handicraft businesses with fewer than five employees, or work on private farms or in residences.	2009 – 2018
	Ensure that the types of hazardous work that may harm children's health, safety, and morals are prohibited and comprehensive.	2016 – 2018
	Implement regulations related to the Law on Setting Up Employment Conditions of Domestic Workers.	2017 – 2018

Area	Suggested Action	Year(s) Suggested
Enforcement	Publish information on the funding of the labor inspectorate.	2015 – 2018
	Increase the number of labor inspectors responsible for enforcing laws related to child labor to meet the ILO technical advice and ensure sufficient labor inspectorate resources.	2012 – 2018
	Streamline child labor enforcement procedures among government agencies.	2013 – 2018
	Publish information on the convictions pertaining to the criminal law enforcement of child labor.	2012 – 2018
	Increase penalties for employers who use children in hazardous work.	2012 – 2018
	Publish information on the number of convictions and imposed penalties pertaining to the criminal enforcement of child labor laws.	2017-2018
	Authorize the labor inspectorate to assess penalties.	2017 – 2018
Social Programs	Take measures to ensure children's safety in schools; remove barriers to education, especially for children with disabilities, language issues, rural children, and migrant children; and increase birth registration rates.	2013 – 2018
	Expand existing programs to address the full scope of the child labor problem, including in forced domestic work.	2013-2018
	Collect and publish microdata on the extent and nature of child labor to inform policies and programs, including in agriculture, industry, and services.	2016 – 2018

In 2018, Mozambique made a moderate advancement in efforts to eliminate the worst forms of child labor. The government amended the Law on the National System of Education, raising the compulsory education age to 15. The government also drafted a revision to the Labor Law establishing 15 as the minimum age for work and eliminating the exception that allows children as young as age 12 to work. Furthermore, the Attorney General's Office significantly increased its training capacity and expanded training for law enforcement officers, including a series of workshops for journalists focusing on victim identification and reporting methods that ensure victim safety and improve the government's ability to prosecute human trafficking cases. However, children in Mozambique engage in the worst forms of child labor, including in forced domestic work. Children also perform dangerous tasks in the production of tobacco. Labor inspectors do not receive sufficient training, and the government lacks both the appropriate resources to enforce child labor laws and a coordination mechanism to address child labor. In addition, existing programs are insufficient to fully address the extent of the problem in Mozambique.

I. PREVALENCE AND SECTORAL DISTRIBUTION OF CHILD LABOR

Children in Mozambique engage in the worst forms of child labor, including in forced domestic work. (1-5) Children also perform dangerous tasks in the production of tobacco. (6) Table 1 provides key indicators on children's work and education in Mozambique. Data on some of these indicators are not available from sources used in this report.

Table 1. Statistics on Children's Work and Education

Children	Age	Percent
Working (% and population)	5 to 14	22.5 (1,526,560)
Attending School (%)	5 to 14	69.5
Combining Work and School (%)	7 to 14	22.4
Primary Completion Rate (%)		46.4

Source for all other data: International Labor Organization's analysis of statistics from Multiple Indicator Cluster Survey 3, 2008. (8)

Based on a review of available information, Table 2 provides an overview of children's work by sector and activity.

	Forced labor in agriculture, domestic work, mining, and vending, each sometimes as a result of human trafficking (1-5)
	Use in illicit activities, including drug trafficking, stealing, and assisting poachers in the illegal poaching industry (1,6,13)

† Determined by national law or regulation as hazardous and, as such, relevant to Article 3(d) of ILO C. 182.

‡ Child labor understood as the worst forms of child labor per se under Article 3(a)–(c) of ILO C. 182.

Mozambican children, lured from rural areas with promises of work and educational opportunities, are subjected to forced domestic work and commercial sexual exploitation in urban areas in Mozambique and South Africa. (2,3,5) Research indicates that Mozambican children are also trafficked to South Africa for forced labor in agriculture, street vending, and commercial sexual exploitation. (2,5)

Reports indicate cases of children in situations of debt bondage in the artisanal mining sector. Several accidents, including some that resulted in deaths, have been documented by local authorities in this sector. (26,27)

Although primary education is free, families must provide school supplies and uniforms. (28,29) Moreover, barriers to education for children include lack of schools, classroom space, and trained teachers. Many students, particularly in rural areas, face difficulties traveling long distances to get to school. (28,30-32) In addition, physical and sexual abuse is common in schools. Research found that some male teachers demand sex from female students. (1,29)

II. Legal Framework for Child Labor

Mozambique has ratified all key international conventions concerning child labor (Table 3).

Table 3. Ratification of International Conventions on Child Labor

Convention	Ratification
 ILO C. 138, Minimum Age	✓
ILO C. 182, Worst Forms of Child Labor	✓
 UN CRC	✓
UN CRC Optional Protocol on Armed Conflict	✓
UN CRC Optional Protocol on the Sale of Children, Child Prostitution and Child Pornography	✓
 Palermo Protocol on Trafficking in Persons	✓

The government has established laws and regulations related to child labor (Table 4). However, gaps exist in Mozambique’s legal framework to adequately protect children from the worst forms of child labor, including the minimum age for work.

Table 4. Laws and Regulations on Child Labor

Standard	Meets International Standards	Age	Legislation
Minimum Age for Work	No	15	Article 26 of the Labor Law; Article 4 of the Regulations on Domestic Work (33,34)
Minimum Age for Hazardous Work	Yes	18	Article 23 of the Labor Law (34)

Prohibition of Commercial Sexual Exploitation of Children	Yes		Articles 5 and 10–11 of the Trafficking in Persons Law; Articles 226–227 of the Penal Code (36,37)
Prohibition of Using Children in Illicit Activities	Yes		Articles 33 and 40 of the Law on Drugs (38)
Minimum Age for Voluntary State Military Recruitment	Yes	18	Article 23 of the Law on Military Service (39)
Prohibition of Compulsory Recruitment of Children by (State) Military	Yes		Article 2 of the Law on Military Service (39)
Prohibition of Military Recruitment by Non-state Armed Groups	Yes		Articles 5 and 10 of the Trafficking in Persons Law (36)
Compulsory Education Age	Yes	15‡	Article 6 of the Law on the National System of Education; Article 41 of the Law of Basic Child Protection (40,41)
Free Public Education	Yes		Article 41 of the Law of Basic Child Protection (40)

‡ Age calculated based on available information (40,41)

In November 2018, the government amended the Law on the National System of Education, raising the minimum compulsory education age to 15. The law was signed by the President and became effective in March 2019. (16,41)

The Regulations on Domestic Work allow children ages 12 to 15 to conduct domestic work with the permission of their legal guardian. (33) The Labor Law also states that children ages 12 to 15 may work under certain conditions defined by the Council of Ministers. (34) The minimum age of 12 for light work is not in compliance with international standards. (42) However, in 2018 the government drafted a revision to the Labor Law establishing 15 as the minimum age for work, which would eliminate the current exception that allows children as young as age 12 to work; the draft was submitted to Parliament for consideration. (16,43)

The Labor Law's minimum age protections do not apply to children working outside of formal employment relationships; however, the Ministry of Labor, Employment, and Social Security began developing new regulations to protect children working in the informal sector. (34,42,44,45)

III. ENFORCEMENT OF LAWS ON CHILD LABOR

The government has established institutional mechanisms for the enforcement of laws and regulations on child labor (Table 5). However, gaps exist within the operations of the Ministry of Labor, Employment, and Social Security that may hinder adequate enforcement of their child labor laws.

Mozambique

Table 5. Agencies Responsible for Child Labor Law Enforcement

Organization/Agency	Role
Ministry of Labor, Employment, and Social Security	Enforces child labor laws and regulations. The labor inspectorate works with the National Police Force to enforce criminal law. (16) Monitors implementation of the National Action Plan to Combat the Worst Forms of Child Labor. (46)
Ministry of Industry and Trade's General Inspectorate of Economic Activities	Enforces child labor laws and regulations. (16)
National Police Force	Enforce all criminal laws, including those related to the worst forms of child labor. The criminal investigation branch has a seven-person unit devoted to combating human trafficking and violence against women and children. The unit investigates cases and refers them to the Attorney General's Office. (16)
Attorney General's Office	Coordinates the government's efforts against human trafficking and receives cases for prosecution from the criminal investigation branch of the National Police Force. (16)

Labor Law Enforcement

In 2018, labor law enforcement agencies in Mozambique took actions to combat child labor (Table 6). However, gaps exist within the operations of the Ministry of Labor, Employment, and Social Security that may hinder adequate labor law enforcement, including training for labor inspectors.

Table 6. Labor Law Enforcement Efforts Related to Child Labor

Reports indicate that the number of labor inspectors is likely insufficient for the size of Mozambique's workforce, which includes approximately 13 million workers. (18,48,49) According to the ILO's technical advice of a ratio approaching 1 inspector for every 40,000 workers in less developed countries, Mozambique would employ about 325 labor inspectors. (50,51) Insufficient training and limited financial resources may also hamper the labor inspectorate's ability to enforce child labor laws. (45,48) The government does not publicly release information on its labor law enforcement efforts. (16)

The National Action Plan to Combat the Worst Forms of Child Labor requires training for inspectors and law enforcement officials; however, research was unable to verify whether these trainings took place during the reporting period. (16)

Ministry of Labor, Employment, and Social Security officials can refer victims of child labor to either the police or social workers from the Ministry of Gender, Children, and Social Action (MGCAS) for family assessments and potential placement of these children in foster homes. (52)

Criminal Law Enforcement

In 2018, criminal law enforcement agencies in Mozambique took actions to combat child labor (Table 7). However, gaps exist within the operations of the criminal enforcement agencies that may hinder adequate criminal law enforcement, including allocating financial resources.

Table 7. Criminal Law Enforcement Efforts Related to Child Labor

Although the government did not provide disaggregated data on child trafficking, reports indicate that there were cases of child trafficking which resulted in arrests and the initiation of prosecutions. (16,53,54) In November 2018, in Zambézia Province, 3 traffickers were taken into custody after attempting to sell a 17-year-old boy; the case is being processed through the courts. During a raid by police, 2 children under age 16 were found being trafficked to work in the agricultural sector in the Democratic Republic of the Congo. (54) Due to an increase in human trafficking activity, police strengthened border security and worked with community leaders to raise awareness in the province. (54) In the capital city of Maputo, two suspects were apprehended after attempting to traffic a large number of children to South Africa. (53)

In 2018, the Attorney General's Office significantly increased its training capacity, expanded the training of law enforcement officers, and developed for journalists a series of workshops emphasizing victim identification and proper reporting methods to safeguard the victims and improve the government's ability to prosecute human trafficking cases. (45)

Criminal law enforcement officials work with the MGCAS and the National Reference Group for the Protection of Children and Combating Trafficking in Persons to coordinate referrals of children to social service providers. (18) Furthermore, the MGCAS has a standard operating procedure for handling victims of domestic abuse, including human trafficking victims. This procedure incorporates an intake form used nationwide by law enforcement officials, including border officials, to collect the necessary data from victims and ensure that they receive professional care and referrals to appropriate services. (45)

IV. COORDINATION OF GOVERNMENT EFFORTS ON CHILD LABOR

The government has established mechanisms to coordinate its efforts to address child labor (Table 8). However, gaps exist that hinder the effective coordination of efforts to address child labor, including efficacy in accomplishing mandates.

Mozambique

MODERATE ADVANCEMENT

Table 8. Key Mechanisms to Coordinate Government Efforts on Child Labor

Coordinating Body	Role & Description
National Reference Group for the Protection of Children and Combating Trafficking in Persons	Coordinates efforts to combat all forms of human trafficking. Led by the Attorney General's Office. (55) Provincial-level groups coordinate regional efforts to combat human trafficking. (48) During the reporting year, groups were expanded to all provinces and districts in the country, with improvements in areas of protection, assistance and reintegration of victims. (56) Conducted training for media, magistrates and other professionals combating human trafficking, including examination of current policies and laws with the aim of providing better coverage of the situation in the country. (57)
National Commission on Children's Rights	Oversees and reports on children's rights in Mozambique to the African Charter and other international bodies and performs consultations and deliberations on national action plans and legislation. Led by the Ministry of Gender, Children, and Social Action. (52) Research was unable to determine whether the National Commission on Children's Rights was active during the reporting period.
Ministry of the Interior's Women and Children's Victim Assistance Units	Provides services to children who have been victims of crimes, including human trafficking. Operates countrywide through facilities in more than 215 police stations. (48,58) Research was unable to determine whether Ministry of the Interior's Women and Children's Victim Assistance Units were active during the reporting period.
Ministry of Gender, Children, and Social Action (MGCAS)	Operates three dedicated centers for human trafficking victims, providing support and reintegration services, including to child trafficking victims. In 2018, reintegrated seven child trafficking victims with their families. (45,59) In addition, launched a campaign to remove children from the streets of the city of Maputo and began a study to estimate the number of street children. As of May 2018, removed 65 children from the streets. (60)

Research did not find a coordination mechanism dedicated solely to addressing child labor beyond the scope of human trafficking.

V. GOVERNMENT POLICIES ON CHILD LABOR

The government has established policies related to child labor (Table 9). However, policy gaps exist that hinder efforts to address child labor, including lack of implementation of existing policies.

Table 9. Key Policies Related to Child Labor

Policy	Description
National Action Plan to Combat the Worst Forms of Child Labor (2017–2022)	Aims to map 70 percent of occurrences of worst forms of child labor by province and activity by 2019, and to withdraw 20,000 children from the worst forms of child labor and enroll them in the Basic Social Subsidy program. (46) Mandates the coordination of several key government agencies, including the Attorney General's Office and MGCAS. A multi-sector group comprising representatives from government, civil society, employers, and unions, including the informal sector, was also created in the plan to address child labor issues. (16) Research was unable to determine whether activities were undertaken to implement the National Action Plan to Combat the Worst Forms of Child Labor during the reporting period.
National Action Plan for Children II (2013–2019)	Establishes four priority areas for government action against child labor: child survival, child development, child participation, and child protection. (61) Research was unable to determine whether activities were undertaken to implement the National Action Plan for Children II during the reporting period.

‡ The government had other policies that may have addressed child labor issues or had an impact on child labor. (62)

Although the National Action Plan on Trafficking in Persons was not approved during the reporting period, the outline of both the action plan and its referral mechanism, which contains provisions that address victim identification, have been in widespread use by law enforcement for more than 2 years. (45)

VI. Social Programs to Address Child Labor

In 2018, the government funded and participated in programs that include the goal of eliminating or preventing child labor (Table 10). However, gaps exist in these social programs, including adequacy to address the problem in all sectors.

Table 10. Key Social Programs to Address Child Labor

Program	Description
Basic Social Subsidy Program†	Government and donor-funded program that provides financial subsidies to orphaned children living in poor and vulnerable households, and child heads of households. Aimed at improving secondary school attendance, and reaching more than 3.3 million direct program participants by 2024. (64,65) Research was unable to determine whether activities were undertaken to implement the Basic Social Subsidy Program during the reporting year.
Programs for Street Children‡	Government and civil society operate 176 shelters that provide education, occupational training activities, and health and psycho-social care for street children. (66,67) Active in 2018. (16)
Victims of Violence Centers‡	Government-funded program implemented by the Ministry of the Interior's Women and Children's Victim Assistance Units that provide temporary shelter, food, limited counseling, and monitoring for victims of crime following reintegration. Includes 22 centers located throughout the country. (48,59) Active in 2018. (16)
Speak Child-116	NGO-funded program that works with the government to run a hotline to receive complaints of child abuse, including those related to child labor and sexual exploitation. (44) In September 2018, participated in a collaborative workshop with SMS Biz, a hotline for adolescents led by a local NGO. The workshop focused on improving victim care and inter-organizational cooperation. (68)
Memorandum of Understanding to Combat Child Labor in Tobacco Growing (2018–2021)*	$1.2 million, 3-year project, funded by the Eliminating Child Labor in Tobacco Growing Foundation, focusing on education, awareness raising, institutional capacity-building, and revision of the government's legal framework. Incorporates training for law enforcement officials. (69-71)
Internet Watch Foundation Website*	Internet Watch Foundation launched a dedicated website, established by the government, to report suspected cases of online commercial sexual exploitation of children, including their use in the production of pornography. (72-74)
Trafficking in Persons Awareness Campaign*†	The Attorney General's Office launched several campaigns aimed at raising public awareness of human trafficking during the reporting period. Conducted numerous awareness-raising activities at the central and provincial levels aimed at informing the public about the various manifestations of human trafficking, and equipping communities with defensive strategies and prevention methods. (45,75)

* Program was launched during the reporting period.

† Program is funded by the Government of Mozambique.

‡ The government had other social programs that may have included the goal of eliminating or preventing child labor. (76)

Although a draft report on the analysis of national child labor data from the Integrated Household Survey was completed in 2017, the government has not yet published the study's findings. (63)

Research found no evidence that the government has carried out programs to assist children engaged in domestic work. The scope of existing programs is also insufficient to fully address the extent of the child labor problem.

VII. Suggested Government Actions to Eliminate Child Labor

Based on the reporting above, suggested actions are identified that would advance the elimination of child labor in Mozambique (Table 11).

Table 11. Suggested Government Actions to Eliminate Child Labor

Area	Suggested Action	Year(s) Suggested
Legal Framework	Ensure that all children are protected under the law, including children working outside of formal employment relationships.	2015 – 2018
	Approve a revision to the Labor Law establishing 15 as the minimum age for work.	2018
Enforcement	Make law enforcement information publicly available, including labor inspectorate's funding, number and training of labor inspectors, type of labor inspections conducted, child labor violations found, and number of child labor penalties imposed and collected, as well as the training of investigators responsible for enforcing laws related to the worst forms of child labor and the number of violations found and convictions achieved.	2009 – 2018
	Allocate sufficient resources for law enforcement agencies, including by increasing the number of labor inspectors to provide adequate coverage of the workforce.	2009 – 2018
	Provide labor inspectors with sufficient training and financial resources to ensure their capacity to enforce child labor laws.	2009 – 2018

In 2018, Namibia made a moderate advancement in efforts to eliminate the worst forms of child labor. The government passed the Combating of Trafficking in Persons Act and approved the National Referral Mechanism that directs first-line response teams on how to detect and provide services to victims of trafficking. In addition, it also provided substantive training for law enforcement pertaining to child protection, including child labor. However, children in Namibia engage in the worst forms of child labor, including in commercial sexual exploitation, sometimes as a result of human trafficking. Children also engage in domestic work and street work. Hazardous work prohibitions for children in the services sector are not comprehensive. In addition, social programs do not address child labor in agriculture.

I. PREVALENCE AND SECTORAL DISTRIBUTION OF CHILD LABOR

Children in Namibia engage in the worst forms of child labor, including in commercial sexual exploitation, sometimes as a result of human trafficking. Children also engage in domestic work and street work. (1,2) Table 1 provides key indicators on children’s work and education in Namibia. Data on some of these indicators are not available from the sources used in this report.

Table 1. Statistics on Children’s Work and Education

Children	Age	Percent
Working (% and population)	5 to 14	Unavailable
Attending School (%)	5 to 14	Unavailable
Combining Work and School (%)	7 to 14	Unavailable
Primary Completion Rate (%)		77.5

Source for primary completion rate: Data from 2017, published by UNESCO Institute for Statistics, 2019. (3)
Data were unavailable from International Labor Organization’s analysis, 2019. (4)

Based on a review of available information, Table 2 provides an overview of children’s work by sector and activity.

Table 2. Overview of Children’s Work by Sector and Activity

Sector/Industry	Activity
Agriculture	Tending and herding cattle (1,2,5)
Services	Domestic work (5-8)
	Working in bars (shebeens) (5,9)
	Street work, including selling candies, fruits, handicrafts, and cell phone air time vouchers (1,10,11)
Categorical Worst Forms of Child Labor‡	Commercial sexual exploitation, sometimes as a result of human trafficking (1,8)
	Forced labor in agriculture and domestic work, each sometimes as a result of human trafficking (1,5,12)

‡ Child labor understood as the worst forms of child labor per se under Article 3(a)–(c) of ILO C. 182.

Children are trafficked within Namibia for forced labor in agriculture, cattle herding, domestic work, and commercial sexual exploitation. San children are particularly vulnerable to forced labor on farms or in homes. (1,8) Some Angolan children are trafficked into Namibia for forced labor in cattle herding. (1,8) The government has not collected and published data on child labor, including its worst forms, to inform policies and social programs.

MODERATE ADVANCEMENT

II. LEGAL FRAMEWORK FOR CHILD LABOR

Namibia has ratified all key international conventions concerning child labor (Table 3).

Table 3. Ratification of International Conventions on Child Labor

Convention	Ratification
 ILO C. 138, Minimum Age	✓
ILO C. 182, Worst Forms of Child Labor	✓
 UN CRC	✓
UN CRC Optional Protocol on Armed Conflict	✓
UN CRC Optional Protocol on the Sale of Children, Child Prostitution and Child Pornography	✓
 Palermo Protocol on Trafficking in Persons	✓

The government has established laws and regulations related to child labor (Table 4). However, gaps exist in Namibia's legal framework to adequately protect children from the worst forms of child labor, including the lack of a comprehensive hazardous work list that includes children's work in the services sector.

Table 4. Laws and Regulations on Child Labor

Standard	Meets International Standards	Age	Legislation
Minimum Age for Work	Yes	14	Chapter 2, Article 3(2) of the Labor Act (13)
Minimum Age for Hazardous Work	Yes	18	Article 15(2) of the Constitution; Chapter 2, Article 3(4) of the Labor Act (13,14)
Identification of Hazardous Occupations or Activities Prohibited for Children	Yes		Chapter 2, Articles 3(3)(d) and 4 of the Labor Act; Section 234 of the Child Care and Protection Act (13,15)
Prohibition of Forced Labor	Yes		Article 9 of the Constitution; Chapter 2, Article 4 of the Labor Act; Section 15 of the Prevention of Organized Crime Act; Articles 202 and 234 of the Child Care and Protection Act (13-16)
Prohibition of Child Trafficking	Yes		Section 15 of the Prevention of Organized Crime Act; Sections 202 and 234 of the Child Care and Protection Act; Chapter 2, Article 3(2) of the Combating Trafficking in Persons Act (15-17)
Prohibition of Commercial Sexual Exploitation of Children	Yes		Section 2 of the Combating of Immoral Practices Amendment Act; Section 234 of the Child Care and Protection Act (15,18)
Prohibition of Using Children in Illicit Activities	Yes		Section 234 of the Child Care and Protection Act (15)
Minimum Age for Voluntary State Military Recruitment	Yes	18	Section 17 of Defense Act I of 2002 (Government Notice 189 of 2010) (19)
Prohibition of Compulsory Recruitment of Children by (State) Military	N/A*
Prohibition of Military Recruitment by Non-state Armed Groups	Yes		Section 234(1)(b) of the Child Care and Protection Act (15)
Compulsory Education Age	Yes	16	Section 53 of the Education Act (20)
Free Public Education	Yes		Section 38 of the Education Act (20)

* No conscription (21)

The Namibian Parliament passed the Combating of Trafficking in Persons Act in February 2018, which aligns Namibian law with the Palermo Protocol. The act criminalizes trafficking in persons and related offenses, protects and assists victims, and provides for the coordinated implementation and administration of the act. (8,17)

Although there are hazardous work prohibitions for children, these prohibitions do not specifically include hazardous work in the services sector. The Ministry of Labor, Industrial Relations and Employment Creation

(MLIREC) reported that, in 2013, it drafted additional hazardous work prohibitions, which were subsequently approved by the Tripartite Labor Council and scheduled to be published in the gazette by the end of the current Namibian fiscal year. (22,23) Because the minimum age for work is lower than the compulsory education age, children may be encouraged to leave school before the completion of compulsory education.

III. ENFORCEMENT OF LAWS ON CHILD LABOR

The government has established institutional mechanisms for the enforcement of laws and regulations on child labor (Table 5). However, gaps exist within the authority of the MLIREC that may hinder adequate enforcement of their child labor laws.

Table 5. Agencies Responsible for Child Labor Law Enforcement

Organization/Agency	Role
Ministry of Labor, Industrial Relations and Employment Creation (MLIREC)	Enforces child labor laws and investigates allegations of violations, including forced labor, and cases involving human trafficking and the commercial sexual exploitation of children. Works with the Ministry of Safety and Security (MSS), the Ministry of Gender Equality and Child Welfare (MGECW), the Namibia Central Intelligence Service, and the Ministry of Education (MOE) on child labor matters. (24) Leads these ministries on joint inspection teams. (24)
Ministry of Safety and Security (MSS)	Enforces criminal laws and jointly conducts site visits with labor inspectors. (24,25) Handles enforcement through the Namibian Police. (24-26)
Ministry of Gender Equality and Child Welfare (MGECW)	Collaborates with the Namibian Police Force's Gender-Based Violence Protection Units (GBVPUs) on cases involving human trafficking and commercial sexual exploitation of children. (24) Removes children from child labor situations during inspections, and transfers them to a regional GBVPU to receive assistance from MGECW social workers. (27)
Joint Child Labor Inspection Committee	Coordinates activities to enforce child labor laws. Committee includes MLIREC, MSS, and MGECW. (24) Refers children identified during labor inspections to MGECW social workers or to an MGECW shelter for care. (24)

Labor Law Enforcement

In 2018, labor law enforcement agencies in Namibia took actions to combat child labor (Table 6). However, gaps exist within the operations of the MLIREC that may hinder adequate labor law enforcement, including its lack of inspection planning and execution in all relevant sectors and geographic regions.

Table 6. Labor Law Enforcement Efforts Related to Child Labor

Overview of Labor Law Enforcement	2017	2018
Labor Inspectorate Funding	$2,384,000 (28)	$2,550,000 (24)

Namibia

MODERATE ADVANCEMENT

Research indicates that the MLIREC primarily conducts inspections in the formal agricultural sector and urban areas, leaving children working in remote rural areas less protected.(5) It was previously reported that although inspectors have the legal authority to inspect private farms, they often encounter difficulties accessing the farms due to locked gates. In an effort to access farms with locked gates, the inspectorate began working with the Namibia Agricultural Union. (24,29)

Criminal Law Enforcement

In 2018, criminal law enforcement agencies in Namibia took actions to combat child labor (Table 7). However, gaps exist within the operations of the Ministry of Safety and Security and the Namibian Police Force that may hinder adequate criminal law enforcement, including investigation and prosecution planning.

Table 7. Criminal Law Enforcement Efforts Related to Child Labor

Overview of Criminal Law Enforcement	2017	2018
Initial Training for New Criminal Investigators	Unknown (28)	Yes (24)
Training on New Laws Related to the Worst Forms of Child Labor	Unknown (28)	Yes (24)
Refresher Courses Provided	Yes (28)	Yes (24)
Number of Investigations	Unknown (28)	3 (24)
Number of Violations Found	Unknown (28)	2 (24)
Number of Prosecutions Initiated	Unknown (28)	0 (24)
Number of Convictions	Unknown (28)	0 (24)
Imposed Penalties for Violations Related to The Worst Forms of Child Labor	Unknown (28)	Unknown (24)
Reciprocal Referral Mechanism Exists Between Criminal Authorities and Social Services	Yes (28)	Yes (24)

The Namibian Police Force operates a toll-free hotline for reporting crimes, including child trafficking. An NGO operates another hotline for victims of gender-based violence and child exploitation to access information about available resources and get referrals to relevant government social services providers. (30) Research could not find information about the number of complaints concerning child labor, including its worst forms, received through the Namibian Police Force's toll-free hotline. In September 2018, the Namibian Cabinet approved the National Referral Mechanism to direct first-line response teams on how to detect and provide services to victims of trafficking. (8)

During the reporting period, criminal investigators received a series of trainings addressing child labor, including the Gender-Based Violence/Violence Against Children/Violence Against Women training program for law enforcement agencies. (24) Four training sessions were conducted across the country over a nine-month period. A total of 230 professionals were trained, including 78 police investigators. Police, prosecutors, and social workers were trained on essential services provision and integration, as well as their responses to gender-based violence incidents. (24) The United Kingdom's National Crime Agency carried out a Child Exploitation and Online Protection training for police officers and social workers from the Ministry of Gender Equality and Child Welfare (MGE CW) and the Ministry of Health and Social Services, which focused on relevant provisions of the legal framework, the importance of case identification, risk factors, analysis, safety plan development, and the provision of victim-centered services. (24) In addition, instructors from all police training facilities were trained on recently developed manuals related to gender-based violence, violence against children, and trafficking in persons. (8,24)

IV. COORDINATION OF GOVERNMENT EFFORTS ON CHILD LABOR

The government has established mechanisms to coordinate its efforts to address child labor (Table 8). However, gaps exist that hinder the effective coordination of efforts to address child labor, including efficacy in accomplishing mandates.

Table 8. Key Mechanisms to Coordinate Government Efforts on Child Labor

Coordinating Body	Role & Description
Inter-Ministerial Committee on Child Labor	Coordinates government policies and efforts to combat child labor. Comprises officials from MLIREC, MOE, MGECW, MSS, and the Office of the Ombudsman. (24) Met quarterly in 2018, producing forms and procedures that would better distinguish child labor issues from other issues, such as adult labor or other forms of child mistreatment. (31)
Gender-Based Violence Protection Units (GBVPU)	Provides victim protection services to children rescued from the worst forms of child labor. Fifteen units arrange lodging and medical and psychosocial care for victims. (24) Consists of personnel from MLIREC, the Ministry of Home Affairs and Immigration, the Namibian Police Force, MGECW, and MOE. (23) Research was unable to determine whether services were provided to victims of child labor during the reporting period.
Child Care and Protection Forums	Addresses child protection issues and coordinates services in the country at the regional and constituency levels. Raises community awareness of the signs of child mistreatment and available services. (32) Participants include 14 regional councils, MGECW social workers, police, teachers, government agencies, NGOs, community leaders, churches, and other local-level stakeholders. Met several times during the year. (31)
Permanent Task Force for Children	Implements and coordinates services for children at the national level. (24) Includes key ministries, NGOs, development partners, and bilateral agencies. Met on a quarterly basis in 2018. (24)

The Child Care and Protection Forums were sponsored by the Global Fund until the end of 2018. The MGECW is working to identify zero-cost solutions for the program's continuation. (31) Their goal is to raise community awareness of the signs of child mistreatment and available services, and they are typically well-received by communities. The forums include social workers, police, teachers, magistrates, NGOs, and anyone involved in managing the mistreatment of children. (31)

V. GOVERNMENT POLICIES ON CHILD LABOR

The government has established policies related to child labor (Table 9). However, policy gaps exist that hinder efforts to address child labor, including the continuing lack of a child labor policy.

Table 9. Key Policies Related to Child Labor

Policy	Description
Decent Work Country Program (2018–2022)†	Outlines strategies to promote decent work in Namibia. Prioritizes employment promotion, enhances social protections, and strengthens social dialogue and collaboration. (8,33) Program goals include the reduction of forced labor and child labor cases. (33) The program was renewed in August 2018 with a memorandum of understanding (MOU) among employers, ILO, the Government of Namibia, and employees (through two unions—the National Union of Namibian Workers and the Trade Union Congress of Namibia). (8,23) The MOU includes specific actions targeting child labor, including a child labor survey. The current 2018 report is a draft, though implementation is in process. (23-25)
National Development Plan V (2017/2018–2021/2022)	Includes goals for addressing child trafficking and protection concerns. (24,34) Research was unable to determine whether the government undertook activities to implement National Development Plan V during the reporting period.

† Policy was approved during the reporting period

‡ The government had other policies that may have addressed child labor issues or had an impact on child labor. (35)

Namibia currently has no child labor policy. However, the MGECW worked to finalize a National Agenda for Children, which is a draft, UNICEF-supported document. The draft agenda includes procedural instructions for each ministry and stakeholder that cover specific types of cases of child mistreatment. (31) In addition, the draft agenda includes a monitoring and evaluation plan, which is overseen by the MGECU with required periodic reports. (31) The government also reviewed and finalized a new Plan of Action on Gender-Based Violence covering the period 2019–2023. (8,36) Child labor elimination and prevention strategies are not integrated into the National Protection Referral Network or the Education for All National Plan of Action. (36,37)

VI. SOCIAL PROGRAMS TO ADDRESS CHILD LABOR

In 2018, the government funded and participated in programs that include the goal of eliminating or preventing child labor (Table 10). However, gaps exist in these social programs, including the adequacy of programs to address the full scope of the child labor problem.

Table 10. Key Social Programs to Address Child Labor

Program	Description
Combating Human Trafficking Initiative (2016–2019)	USDOS-funded, 3-year project implemented by IOM, in collaboration with the Government of Namibia, to combat trafficking in persons. (8,38,39) Under this initiative, the Namibian Parliament passed the Combating of Trafficking in Persons Act. (24)
Namibian School Feeding Program†	Government program that provides mid-morning meals to school children. Serves 330,000 pre-primary and primary school students in 1,400 schools in all 14 regions. (23,24,29) Program was active in 2018. (24)
National Youth Service†	Government program that offers training in civic education, national voluntary service, and job skills to unemployed youth, some of whom have never attended school. According to the national budget estimates for fiscal years 2018 and 2019, allocated $6 million for 2017–2018, which is a 34 percent decrease from the $9 million for the previous year. (32) According to NGOs, includes skill-building programs for youth. (32) Program is ongoing and received government support in 2018. (24)
Shelters and Victim Services†	Government and NGO shelters provide safe accommodation, meals, clothing, toiletries, psychosocial support, legal assistance, medical services, and access to education. (8) Registered residential child care facilities provide services for children experiencing mistreatment and neglect. The government provides subsidies, either per child or as a percentage of operating expenses, for private shelter facilities. (1,31) Facilities received government support in 2018 and are continually operating. (31)

† Program is funded by the Government of Namibia.

Although the Government of Namibia provided assistance to vulnerable children and services to some victims of child labor, research found no evidence of programs specifically addressing children working in agriculture or domestic work.

VII. SUGGESTED GOVERNMENT ACTIONS TO ELIMINATE CHILD LABOR

Based on the reporting above, suggested actions are identified that would advance the elimination of child labor in Namibia (Table 11).

Table 11. Suggested Government Actions to Eliminate Child Labor

Area	Suggested Action	Year(s) Suggested
Legal Framework	Ensure that the hazardous occupations and activities prohibited for children are comprehensive.	2014 – 2018
	Raise the minimum age for work to the age up to which education is compulsory.	2018
Enforcement	Ensure that inspections occur in all sectors to provide minimum age law protections to all children, including those in remote rural areas.	2016 – 2018
	Ensure that training is provided to labor inspectors on new laws related to child labor.	2018
	Publish information on the number of penalties imposed for violations related to the worst forms of child labor.	2018
	Publish information on the number of complaints concerning child labor received through the Namibian Police Force’s toll-free hotline.	2018
Coordination	Ensure all coordinating bodies are able to carrying out their intended mandates.	2018
Government Policies	Establish a National Child Labor Policy.	2017 – 2018
	Integrate child labor elimination and prevention strategies into relevant policies.	2013 – 2018
	Publish information about implementation of the Decent Country Work Program and National Development Plan V.	2016 – 2018
Social Programs	Conduct research on the prevalence of child labor to inform the development of policies and social programs.	2013 – 2018
	Institute programs to address child labor in agriculture and domestic work.	2009 – 2018

In 2018, Nepal made a moderate advancement in efforts to eliminate the worst forms of child labor. The government launched the Nepal Labor Force Survey, which will be able to provide valuable information on child labor, including the number of children engaged in hazardous work. It also drafted revisions to the Child Labor Act of 2002, with the aim of raising the minimum age to 18 for entry into hazardous work and ensuring that the list of hazardous work for children is comprehensive. In addition, the government created a new National Child Labor

Elimination Committee to coordinate efforts to address child labor and passed the new National Master Plan to End Child Labor, which prioritizes ending the worst forms of child labor by 2022, and all forms of child labor by 2025. Moreover, the government launched a Decent Work Country Program and the Social Security Fund Program to support workers and their families and combat child labor. However, children in Nepal engage in the worst forms of child labor, including in commercial sexual exploitation, sometimes as a result of human trafficking. Children also perform dangerous tasks in the production of bricks. The Department of Labor's budget, the number of labor inspectors, and available resources and training are all insufficient for enforcing labor laws, including those related to child labor. Furthermore, children age 17 are excluded from the protections of the country's hazardous work list, leaving them vulnerable to the worst forms of child labor.

I. PREVALENCE AND SECTORAL DISTRIBUTION OF CHILD LABOR

Children in Nepal engage in the worst forms of child labor, including in commercial sexual exploitation, sometimes as a result of human trafficking. Children also perform dangerous tasks in the production of bricks. (1-3) Table 1 provides key indicators on children's work and education in Nepal.

Table 1. Statistics on Children's Work and Education

Based on a review of available information, Table 2 provides an overview of children's work by sector and activity.

[†] Determined by national law or regulation as hazardous and, as such, relevant to Article 3(d) of ILO C. 182.

[‡] Child labor understood as the worst forms of child labor per se under Article 3(a)–(c) of ILO C. 182.

Children are trafficked for commercial sexual exploitation both within and outside Nepal, including to India, the Middle East, Asia, and Sub-Saharan Africa. (2,6,20,28,30-32) Many children in Nepal are engaged in the production of bricks, which exposes them to hazardous working conditions, including carrying heavy loads, using dangerous machinery, and working in extreme heat. (1,33) During the reporting period, news outlets announced that an agreement had been met between the government and the Federation of Nepal Brick Industries to end the use of child labor in the brick industry, creating a committee to oversee this process and inspect brick factories to ensure that no children are employed. (34,35)

In addition, traffickers promise families work and education opportunities for the children, but instead bring them to often under-resourced and unregistered orphanages in urban centers, where they exploit them commercially to attract charitable donations from foreigners. There are reports that some orphanages keep children in destitute and unsanitary conditions and force them to beg on the streets. (28)

Due to a lack of reliable data and information at the national level, it is difficult to accurately report on the status of children engaged in hazardous work. During the reporting period, NGOs continued to report that children were working in brick kilns carrying loads, preparing bricks, and performing other tasks for extended periods of time; however, the number of children working in this sector continues to gradually decrease. (18) Carpet factories are considered to be in the formal sector, but many of the subcontractors working in the informal sector use child labor further down the supply chain. (18)

As the government has increased the number of raids in the entertainment sector, the number of children working in this sector is decreasing; and with an increased awareness regarding child labor, NGOs are seeing a decrease in child labor across all sectors. During the reporting period, the ILO, in coordination with the Central Bureau of Statistics (CBS), launched the Nepal Labor Force Survey, which will be able to provide valuable information on child labor, including data on the number of children engaged in hazardous work. (18) In addition, the CBS included a forced labor module that, for the first time, surveyed adults and children age 5 and older. Funded by the Bridge Project and implemented by the ILO and CBS, this module will provide a clearer picture of the forced labor situation within Nepal. (18)

Some children, particularly girls, face barriers to accessing education due to lack of sanitation facilities, geographic distance, costs associated with schooling, household chores, and lack of parental support. (3,36) In Nepal, 32.4 percent of schools lack separate toilet facilities for girls, which can deter them from attending school, especially when they are menstruating. (18) Barriers for attending school for school-age boys include pressure to find employment, migration to work outside of Nepal, and issues with drugs and alcohol. Children with disabilities face additional barriers to accessing education, including denial of school admission. (3,18,37)

The government allows Bhutanese refugee students in grades 9–12 to attend local public schools at no cost, but enrollment remains restricted for younger children. UNHCR provides parallel free education at lower grades to refugees in the two remaining refugee camps in the country. (18) During the reporting period, the government allowed NGOs to provide primary- and secondary-level schooling to Tibetans living in the country. Tibetan refugees had no entitlement to higher education in public or private institutions. (18) More than 700 refugees and asylum seekers from Pakistan, Burma, Afghanistan, Sri Lanka, Bangladesh, Somalia, Iran, Iraq, and the Democratic Republic of the Congo are not recognized as having the status of refugees, but the government allows UNHCR to provide some education, health, and livelihood services to these refugees. These refugees lack legal access to public education and the right to work. (18)

From July 2017 to July 2018, more than 40 school blocks were retrofitted, and the Central Level Project Implementation Unit is currently committed to reconstructing 6,456 of the 7,509 schools that were affected by the 2015 earthquakes. Of these 6,456 schools, 4,089 have been fully reconstructed, 1,990 are under construction, and 377 have been selected for reconstruction. (22)

II. LEGAL FRAMEWORK FOR CHILD LABOR

Nepal has ratified most key international conventions concerning child labor (Table 3).

Table 3. Ratification of International Conventions on Child Labor

Convention	Ratification

The government has established laws and regulations related to child labor (Table 4). However, gaps exist in Nepal's legal framework to adequately protect children from the worst forms of child labor, including the lack of a minimum age for hazardous work that is consistent with international standards.

Table 4. Laws and Regulations on Child Labor

Compulsory Education Age	No	13‡	Article 31 of the Constitution (2,45)
Free Public Education	Yes		Section 16D of the Education Act (45,46)

* No conscription (45,47)

‡ Age calculated based on available information (48)

The government is amending the Child Labor (Prohibition and Regulation) Act, 2056 (2000) to better accord with the 2015 constitution, as provincial governments have been given more authority over issues such as child labor. During the reporting period, the Parliament passed the Free and Compulsory Education Act, 2018, which aims to ensure compulsory and free education. (18,43,49) In addition, the Ethnic Discrimination and Untouchability (Crime and Punishment) Act (amendment) 2018 was passed during the reporting period, which will help create a conducive atmosphere for the children of marginalized communities to attend school, thereby reducing forced child labor. (18,50)

The new Labor Act enacted in 2017 covers workers in both the formal and informal sectors, and explicitly prohibits forced and child labor. (18,40) In September 2018, the Children's Act 1990 was amended, changing the definition of a child as below age 18. (18,51)

The minimum age for hazardous work is not consistent with international standards because it does not prohibit children age 17 from engaging in hazardous work. (38,52) The types of hazardous work prohibited for children also do not include brickmaking, a sector in which there is evidence that work involves carrying heavy loads and being exposed to hazardous substances. (11,38) The government is still reviewing and revising the current Child Labor Act of 2002, with the aim of raising the minimum age for entry into hazardous work to age 18, while also ensuring that the types of hazardous work prohibited for children are comprehensive. (18)

Laws related to child trafficking are insufficient because they do not clearly criminalize recruitment, harboring, receipt, or transportation in the absence of force, fraud, or coercion. (41) However, the amended Children's Act prohibits the use of children in pornography. (43) The legal framework also does not explicitly prohibit the use of a child in the production of pornography. (42) In addition, the legal framework prohibiting the use of children in illicit activities is insufficient, because it does not prohibit the use of children in the production of drugs or extend to children who are age 17. (42)

Although the Constitution prohibits the recruitment of children by non-state armed groups, there is no specific legislation penalizing this practice. (45,47,53) In addition, children in Nepal are required to attend school only up to age 13. This standard makes children age 13 vulnerable to child labor because they are not required to attend school but are not legally permitted to work. (45,48,54)

III. ENFORCEMENT OF LAWS ON CHILD LABOR

The government has established institutional mechanisms for the enforcement of laws and regulations on child labor (Table 5). However, the exceptionally low number of worksite inspections conducted at the national level in Nepal may have impeded the enforcement of child labor laws.

Table 5. Agencies Responsible for Child Labor Law Enforcement

Organization/Agency	Role
Department of Labor, Ministry of Labor, Employment, and Social Security (MoLESS)	Enforces labor laws, including those involving child labor. Investigates and holds hearings in 10 District Labor Offices. (55) In March 2018, the Ministry of Labor and Employment was renamed the Ministry of Labor, Employment, and Social Security. (28,56)

Organization/Agency	Role
Nepal Police, Women and Children Service Directorate	Investigates crimes involving women and children, including human trafficking. Conducts work through the Nepal Police Women and Children Service Centers in all 77 districts. (57,58) The Nepal Police handles complaints received about child labor in districts without a District Labor Office. (55)
Ministry of Land Reform and Management	Enforces laws that prohibit bonded labor in agriculture. (3)
Monitoring Action Committees, Ministry of Women, Children, and Senior Citizens (MWCSC)	Investigate reports of commercial sexual exploitation at the district level, including the exploitation of children in the adult entertainment sector. (28,61)

The new Labor Act authorizes the creation of labor offices to carry out regular inspections to find out whether children are employed, rescue children who are illegally employed, and take action against employers responsible for illegally employing children. When requested by the labor offices, the local administration, police, or any other concerned body must provide assistance to carry out these duties. (18)

Despite these new efforts to combat child labor, NGOs have noted that during the reporting period, the government often failed to adequately implement legal provisions against child labor, which led to the failure of the government to take meaningful action against perpetrators. (18,43) This is perpetuated by high turnover rates in government staff, leading to gaps in personnel capacity. (43)

Labor Law Enforcement

In 2018, the exceptionally low number of worksite inspections conducted at the national level in Nepal may have impeded the enforcement of child labor laws (Table 6).

[†] Data are from July, 2016 to July, 2017.

[‡] Data are from July, 2017 to July, 2018.

The Department of Labor's (DOL) 2017–2018 fiscal year (July 16, 2017–July 15, 2018) budget for inspections focused specifically on child labor was NRs 100,000 (approximately $1,000), which was lower than the previous year's budget. The budget for labor inspections was NRs 400,000 (approximately $4,000), representing a slight decrease from the previous fiscal year. (43) During the reporting period, government child labor inspections led to the rescue of 75 children, and 59 of those children were rehabilitated. Under the new Constitutional provision and updated federal structure, the provincial governments have been given more authority, including the task of overseeing child labor monitoring and inspection. (18,43)

Nepal

MODERATE ADVANCEMENT

The government and NGOs agreed that the fines and employer-paid compensation outlined in the Child Labor (Prohibition and Regulation) Act were not adequate as deterrents to child labor violations. (3,59) The government has also confirmed that it calls on NGOs to assist with official inspections, because it lacks funding and resources and also to increase transparency. (18) The government and NGOs state that most child labor occurs in the informal sector, including in companies with less than 10 employees and those that are not registered with the government. However, the government conducted most of its labor inspections in the formal sector. (18,54) Although the government claims to monitor companies regularly, NGOs report that due to resource limitations, enforcement agencies respond only to child labor complaints. (18)

In addition, the number of labor inspectors is likely insufficient for the size of Nepal's workforce, which includes more than 16.8 million workers. According to the ILO's technical advice of a ratio approaching 1 inspector for every 15,000 workers in developing economies, Nepal should employ about 1,120 inspectors. (62-64) Although labor inspectors periodically receive training on child labor laws and inspection, this training does not necessarily adhere to any formal schedule. (55) In August 2018, DOL hired additional labor officers who are currently undergoing on-the-job training, but DOL noted that the number of inspectors was still inadequate and limited the government's adequateness in dealing with child labor issues. (18,54)

In 2018 the Ministry of Labor, Employment, and Social Security organized a training of trainers on child labor inspection curriculum, developed by Country Level Engagement and Assistance to Reduce Child Labor II, for capacity building of child labor inspection staff. A follow-up training was delivered to the Panauti Municipality stakeholders to raise awareness of child labor. (18)

The government did not provide information on its labor law enforcement efforts, including training on new laws related to child labor, the number of labor inspections conducted at worksites, the number of imposed penalties for child labor violations, and the number of imposed penalties that were collected for inclusion in this report.

Criminal Law Enforcement

In 2018, criminal law enforcement agencies in Nepal took actions to combat child labor (Table 7). However, gaps exist within the operations of the criminal enforcement agencies that may hinder adequate criminal law enforcement, including the enforcement of laws that prohibit bonded labor in agriculture.

Table 7. Criminal Law Enforcement Efforts Related to Child Labor

Once fully operational, the newly formed Anti-Trafficking in Persons Bureau within the Nepal Police, headed by a Senior Superintendent of Police, will assist in children's rescue, rehabilitation, and coordination for arrest of perpetrators. (18,28) The establishment of this bureau will allow the Government of Nepal to meet some of the obligations arising out the process of acceding to the Palermo Protocol. (28) In addition, the Nepal Police's Crime Investigation School conducts trainings for all levels of police personnel in juvenile justice, child rights, and laws relating to child labor issues. (18)

From July 2017 to July 2018, the Nepal Police identified 180 children who were victims of trafficking; from July 2018 to November 2018, the police identified 53 children who were victims of trafficking, 49 of whom were female. (18) Data on the purpose of trafficking, the community of origin, or destination were not provided. According to the data received from the Office of the Attorney General, from July 2017 to July 2018, cases with 68 child victims of trafficking from different parts of the country were filed in courts. (18)

The government lacks both the human resource and financial capacity to enforce laws prohibiting crimes related to the worst forms of child labor, and it lacks the resources to maintain a centralized database of cases involving the worst forms of child labor, including child trafficking. (8,18,62)

The government did not provide information on its criminal law enforcement efforts, including information on whether there were initial trainings for new employees or refresher courses offered. The government also did not provide disaggregated data on child labor, including the number of violations found, the number of initiated prosecutions, the number of convictions, as well as the number of penalties imposed for violations related to the worst forms of child labor for inclusion in this report.

IV. COORDINATION OF GOVERNMENT EFFORTS ON CHILD LABOR

The government has established mechanisms to coordinate its efforts to address child labor (Table 8).

Table 8. Key Mechanisms to Coordinate Government Efforts on Child Labor

Coordinating Body	Role & Description
Labor Relations, Child Labor Prevention, and Information Section	Coordinates policymaking on child labor inspection guidelines and monitors implementation of guidelines. (63,64) Consists of a senior factory inspector, two labor officers, and a senior assistant in MoLESS. Confers with MWCSC, Central Child Welfare Board (CCWB), Department of Labor, and District Labor Offices. (63) During the reporting period, held two meetings to discuss the provisions of the new constitution and programs aimed at combating child labor. (43)
National Network Against Child Labor	Coordinates the referral of children who are found in child labor to social services. (65) Consists of District Labor Officers, District Women and Children Officers, officers from the Nepal Police Women and Children Service Centers, Chief District Officers, NGOs, and thousands of youth clubs. (57) This body was active during the reporting period. (43)
National Coordination Committee on Human Trafficking	Coordinates the implementation of anti-human trafficking laws, policies, and programs at the central, district, and local levels of government. Led by MWCSC and consists of government officials and NGO representatives. (57,61) This body was active during the reporting period. (43)
National Human Rights Commission	Monitors and receives complaints on child rights violations. (60) Reports on the status of human trafficking victims and coordinates with civil society organizations through the Office of the Special Rapporteur on Trafficking. (57,60) In September 2018, released the ninth edition of its trafficking report. During the reporting period, concluded a qualitative study on the situation of women and children in the entertainment sector. (28)
Central Child Welfare Board, MWCSC	Coordinates with MoLESS and civil society to formulate and implement child protection and child labor-related policies. (55,60) Receives and documents complaints through the national hotline, in coordination with NGOs. Maintains Central Emergency Fund intended for use in humanitarian support for children. (18,66) Supports 12 Child Helplines in 12 districts. (18) This body was active during the reporting period. (43)
District Child Welfare Boards	Reports on child welfare activities, monitors child care homes, mobilizes resources for children at risk, receives and responds to child protection cases, and establishes mechanisms to refer children to social services. Consists of social workers, medical practitioners, and government officials. (60,67) This body was active during the reporting period. (43)
National Child Labor Elimination Committee*	Provisioned by the Nepal Master Plan. Chaired by the Secretary of MoLESS. (18) This body was active during the reporting period. (43)
National Planning Commission	Chaired by the Prime Minister. Formulates a national vision, periodic plans, and policies for development. (18) Assesses resource needs, identifies sources of funding, and allocates budget for socioeconomic development. (18) During the reporting period, carried out 11 monitoring activities in coordination with other government agencies, NGOs, and human rights organizations. (43)

* Mechanism to coordinate efforts to address child labor was created during the reporting period.

V. GOVERNMENT POLICIES ON CHILD LABOR

The government has established policies related to child labor (Table 9). However, policy gaps exist that hinder efforts to address child labor, including updating the National Plan of Action on Combatting Trafficking in Persons, Especially Women and Children to better align with the constitutional transition to federalism.

Nepal

MODERATE ADVANCEMENT

Table 9. Key Policies Related to Child Labor

Policy	Description
National Master Plan (NMP-II) to End Child Labor (July 2018–July 2028)†	Prioritizes ending the worst forms of child labor by 2022, and all forms of child labor by 2025. Uses five strategies to achieve goals. Established annual monitoring evaluation and reporting system through which information will be made publicly available. (18,68) During the reporting period, MoLESS formed a subcommittee Interagency Working Group (IAWG) composed of nine NGOs and UN agencies to help advance the implementation of the NMP-II. IAWG is currently drafting the action plan for the implementation of the NMP-II in coordination with MoLESS. (18) This policy was active during the reporting period. (43)
School Sector Development Plan (2016/17–2022/23)	Aims to expand access to education and provide alternative schooling and non-formal education to vulnerable populations, including children who are out of school and at risk of entering the worst forms of child labor. Overseen by the Ministry of Education, Science and Technology. (3,18) This policy was active during the reporting period. (43)
National Plan of Action on Combating Trafficking in Persons, Especially Women and Children (2011–2022)	Promotes and protects the rights of human trafficking victims and survivors, and outlines policies for providing justice and punishing perpetrators. (69) This policy was active during the reporting period. (43)

† Policy was approved during the reporting period.

‡ The government had other policies that may have addressed child labor issues or had an impact on child labor. (3)

There is a need to update the National Plan of Action so that it better aligns Nepal’s anti-trafficking programming with the constitutional transition to federalism, as well as to better address forced labor. (2,28)

VI. SOCIAL PROGRAMS TO ADDRESS CHILD LABOR

In 2018, the government funded and participated in programs that include the goal of eliminating or preventing child labor (Table 10). However, gaps exist in these social programs, including adequacy to address the problem in all sectors.

Table 10. Key Social Programs to Address Child Labor

Program	Description
Social Security Fund Program*	Launched in 2018. MoLESS program aimed to help support workers and their families through a tripartite contribution policy, an important initiative to help combat and prevent child labor. (18,71)
Child Helpline—1098†	MWCSC- and Child Workers in Nepal-funded helpline operated by the Nepal Telecommunications Authority. (18,59) Responds to calls about missing children, child abuse, child labor, child trafficking, and child sexual abuse in 13 districts and municipalities in Nepal, as well as in Bangladesh, Bhutan, India, Maldives, Pakistan, and Sri Lanka. (55,59,72) Provides rescue services, medical treatment, counseling, legal support, skills training, and shelter services. (28) This program was active during the reporting period. (43)
Decent Work Country Program, Nepal (2018–2022)*	ILO, MoLESS, Federation of Nepalese Chambers of Commerce and Industry, and Joint Trade Union Coordination Center-implemented program. Enables decent work for all through sustainable, inclusive, and gender-responsive economic growth. (18) Strengthens institutional capacities, enhances social dialogue, and applies fundamental conventions and other international labor standards. Serves as a guiding document for ILO and social partners in organizing interventions to promote decent work in Nepal. (18)
Support for Schools‡	MoLESS program that supports schools for children ages 5–16 who are at risk of working in the worst forms of child labor. Provides scholarships to cover associated schooling costs for children outside the Kathmandu Valley to attend a local public school, and works with local NGOs to verify that children are attending class. (8) This program was active during the reporting period. (43)
Hamro Samman (“Our Respect”) (2017–2022)	USAID-funded project, implemented by Winrock International, to strengthen national and local efforts to counter trafficking in persons, improve civil society advocacy and engagement, and increase private sector partnerships to empower survivors and prevent trafficking of at-risk populations. (3,18,77) This program was active during the reporting period. (43)
“Hello Sarkar”	Initiative established by the Office of the Prime Minister. Receives child labor complaints from the public through a hotline, Facebook, and Twitter. (18) During the reporting period, received 9,790 complaints through the hotline and social media, including cases related to child labor. (43)
National Center for Children at Risk—Hotline No. 104†	CCWVB and Nepal Police jointly run hotline operated from Bhrikutimandap, Kathmandu. (18,28) Per the Nepal Police, about four to five children on average are rescued from child labor every month from informal sectors, such as transportation, domestic help, tea shops, and restaurants, through the complaints received through the hotline. (43)

Program	Description
USDOL-Funded Projects	USDOL projects in Nepal focus on both forced labor and child labor, including eliminating child labor in its worst forms. These projects include Sakriya, implemented by World Education, Inc.; From Protocol to Practice: A Bridge to Global Action on Forced Labor (The Bridge Project), implemented by the ILO; Closing the Child Labor and Forced Labor Evidence Gap: Impact Evaluations, implemented by Vanderbilt University; Closing the Child Labor and Forced Labor Evidence Gap: Impact Evaluations, implemented by the University of Notre Dame; and Country Level Engagement and Assistance to Reduce Child Labor II (CLEAR II), implemented by Winrock International. (73,74) Additional information is available on the USDOL website.

* Program was launched during the reporting period.

† Program is funded by the Government of Nepal.

During the reporting period, DOL spent nearly NRs 950,000 (approximately $9,500) for various child labor awareness-raising activities. DOL proposed NRs 3.6 million (approximately $31,500) to help organize an anti-child labor public outreach campaign in all seven provinces, including preparing audiovisual material for fiscal year 2018–2019. Due to a limited budget, DOL will reach out to potential partners outside the government to raise funds. (18,28)

However, gaps exist in these social programs, including with regard to barriers to education, as well as programs that support child victims of commercial sexual exploitation and children working in the production of bricks.

VII. SUGGESTED GOVERNMENT ACTIONS TO ELIMINATE CHILD LABOR

Based on the reporting above, suggested actions are identified that would advance the elimination of child labor in Nepal (Table 11).

Table 11. Suggested Government Actions to Eliminate Child Labor

Area	Suggested Action	Year(s) Suggested
Legal Framework	Accede to the Palermo Protocol on Trafficking in Persons.	2013 – 2018
	Ensure that laws are in line with ILO C. 182 by raising the minimum age to age 18 for entry into hazardous work.	2009 – 2018
	Ensure that the types of hazardous work prohibited for children are comprehensive and include sectors in which there is evidence of child labor, including brickmaking.	2015 – 2018
	Ensure that the legal framework comprehensively and criminally prohibits the trafficking of children in accordance with international standards.	2015 – 2018
	Ensure that the law criminally prohibits the use of children through age 17 in the production and trafficking of drugs.	2015 – 2018
	Ensure that the law criminally prohibits the recruitment of children under age 18 by non-state armed groups.	2016 – 2018
	Ensure that the age up to which education is compulsory is the same as the minimum age for work.	2009 – 2018
Enforcement	Provide sufficient resources for the collection, storage, and publication of data on labor and criminal law enforcement actions, including the number of violations, prosecutions, convictions, and the number of penalties imposed for violations related to the worst forms of child labor.	2009 – 2018
	Provide sufficient resources to create a centralized database to track and monitor cases of the worst forms of child labor.	2009 – 2018
	Increase the number of labor inspectors to meet the ILO's technical advice.	2010 – 2018
	Ensure that legal provisions against child labor are implemented and enforced against perpetrators.	2018
	Provide data on criminal law enforcement efforts, including information on initial trainings for new employees or refresher courses offered.	2018
	Ensure the Department of Labor's budget is sufficient to adequately enforce child labor laws.	2016 – 2018
	Provide information on labor law enforcement efforts, including training on new laws related to child labor, the number of labor inspections conducted at worksites, the number of imposed penalties for child labor violations, and the number of imposed penalties that were collected.	2018
Increase penalties to ensure sufficient deterrence of child labor law violations.	2015 – 2018

Area	Suggested Action	Year(s) Suggested
Enforcement	Provide additional resources to criminal law enforcement agencies so they are able to enforce laws prohibiting crimes related to the worst forms of child labor.	2011 – 2018
	Strengthen the labor inspectorate by initiating routine targeted inspections rather than performing inspections solely based on complaints received.	2017 – 2018
	Improve human resource capacity, including increasing the number of child labor inspections especially in the informal sector.	2018
Government Policies	Adopt a policy that addresses all relevant worst forms of child labor, such as forced labor of children, and use of children in illicit activities.	2016 – 2018
	Update the National Plan of Action on Combating Trafficking in Persons, Especially Women and Children to better address forced labor and align it with anti-trafficking programming.	2018
Social Programs	Eliminate barriers to education, especially for girls and children with disabilities, including the lack of sanitation facilities at schools, long distances to schools, fees associated with schooling, pressure to find employment, migration to work outside of Nepal, and issues with drugs and alcohol.	2013 – 2018
	Collect and publish data on child labor and its worst forms, particularly in regards to hazardous work.	2018
	Create social programs that support child victims of commercial sexual exploitation, as well as children working in the brick industry.	2018

In 2018, Nicaragua made a minimal advancement in efforts to eliminate the worst forms of child labor. The government released its National Action Plan against Human Trafficking and provided trainings to government officials on identifying and caring for victims of human trafficking. However, children in Nicaragua engage in the worst forms of child labor, including in commercial sexual exploitation, sometimes as a result of human trafficking. Children also perform dangerous tasks in agriculture. National policies to eliminate child labor and protect children have not been fully implemented, and the government lacks a specific and consistent mechanism to coordinate efforts to address child labor. In addition, the government does not dedicate sufficient resources to child labor law enforcement and does not publish complete criminal law enforcement data on child labor.

I. PREVALENCE AND SECTORAL DISTRIBUTION OF CHILD LABOR

Children in Nicaragua engage in the worst forms of child labor, including in commercial sexual exploitation, sometimes as a result of human trafficking. Children also perform dangerous tasks in agriculture. (1-3) Table I provides key indicators on children's work and education in Nicaragua.

Table I. Statistics on Children's Work and Education

Children	Age	Percent
Working (% and population)	10 to 14	47.7 (342,076)
Attending School (%)	10 to 14	88.3
Combining Work and School (%)	10 to 14	40.3
Primary Completion Rate (%)		85.4

Based on a review of available information, Table 2 provides an overview of children's work by sector and activity.

Table 2. Overview of Children's Work by Sector and Activity

Sector/Industry	Activity
Agriculture	Harvesting coffee, bananas, tobacco,† and sugarcane (1,3,6,7)
	Raising livestock (8,9)

Industry	Construction,† including transporting materials (8,9)
	Quarrying† of pumice and limestone, and mining† of gold (3,9,10)
	Production of gravel (crushed stones)† (11,12)
Services	Domestic work (8,9)
	Work in transportation† and as couriers† (8,9)
	Work in tourism and hotel industry (8)

Categorical Worst Forms of Child Labor‡	Commercial sexual exploitation, sometimes as a result of human trafficking, and use in the production of pornography (2,8-10,16) Domestic work as a result of human trafficking (17) Forced begging, sometimes as a result of human trafficking (10,17) Drug production and drug trafficking (8)

† Determined by national law or regulation as hazardous and, as such, relevant to Article 3(d) of ILO C. 182.

‡ Child labor understood as the worst forms of child labor per se under Article 3(a)–(c) of ILO C. 182.

Information about the prevalence of child labor in Nicaragua is limited because the last known national survey on child labor was published in 2012. (8,18) However, available research indicates that children are subjected to commercial sexual exploitation, particularly in Granada, Managua, the Caribbean Autonomous Regions, and San Juan del Sur. (10,16,19) Children from poor, rural areas, those in the Caribbean Autonomous Regions, and migrants from the Northern Triangle countries, are particularly vulnerable. (10) Limited research suggests that the 2018 political upheaval in Nicaragua resulted in Nicaraguan National Police focusing resources on responding to anti-government protests, possibly impacting public security and leaving children more vulnerable to commercial sexual exploitation. (8,10)

Children in Nicaragua who lack identification documents, sometimes due to a lack of birth registration, may not have access to social services and are at an increased risk of human trafficking and commercial sexual exploitation. (20) An estimated 15 percent of children born in Nicaragua lack birth certificates. Although the government’s birth registration campaign is advancing, it has not reached all children, especially in remote areas. (21,22)

Education is free and compulsory in Nicaragua; however, costs associated with school supplies and transportation make it difficult for some children, particularly those from poor backgrounds and rural areas, to attend school. (8,23,24) Limited research indicates that investment in secondary schools has lagged behind investment in primary schools and that secondary school attendance remains low, increasing the risk that older children engage in exploitative work. (1,24,25)

II. LEGAL FRAMEWORK FOR CHILD LABOR

Nicaragua has ratified all key international conventions concerning child labor (Table 3).

Table 3. Ratification of International Conventions on Child Labor

Convention	Ratification
 ILO C. 138, Minimum Age	✓
ILO C. 182, Worst Forms of Child Labor	✓
 UN CRC	✓
UN CRC Optional Protocol on Armed Conflict	✓
UN CRC Optional Protocol on the Sale of Children, Child Prostitution and Child Pornography	✓
 Palermo Protocol on Trafficking in Persons	✓

The government has established laws and regulations related to child labor (Table 4). However, gaps exist in Nicaragua’s legal framework to adequately protect children from the worst forms of child labor, including establishing a compulsory education age.

Table 4. Laws and Regulations on Child Labor

Standard	Meets International Standards	Age	Legislation
Minimum Age for Work	Yes	14	Article 131 of the Labor Code; Article 73 of the Childhood and Adolescence Code; Article 84 of the Constitution (26-29)
Minimum Age for Hazardous Work	Yes	18	Articles 130 and 133 of the Labor Code; Article 1 of Ministerial Agreement No. JCHG-08-06-10; Articles 2 and 74 of the Childhood and Adolescence Code (26-28,30)
Identification of Hazardous Occupations or Activities Prohibited for Children	Yes		Articles 1–7 of Ministerial Agreement No. JCHG-08-06-10; Article 133 of the Labor Code (26,30)
Prohibition of Forced Labor	Yes		Article 40 of the Constitution; Articles 61–63 of the Law Against Trafficking in Persons; Articles 182–183 and 315 of the Penal Code (29,31,32)
Prohibition of Child Trafficking	Yes		Articles 61–63 of the Law Against Trafficking in Persons; Articles 182–183 and 315 of the Penal Code (31,32)
Prohibition of Commercial Sexual Exploitation of Children	Yes		Article 61 of the Law Against Trafficking in Persons; Articles 175–183 of the Penal Code; Articles 5 and 26 of the Childhood and Adolescence Code (28,31,32)
Prohibition of Using Children in Illicit Activities	Yes		Article 61 of the Law Against Trafficking in Persons; Articles 358–359 and 362 of the Penal Code; Article 71 of Law 285 (Reform to the Narcotics Law); Article 79 of the Childhood and Adolescence Code (28,31-33)
Minimum Age for Voluntary State Military Recruitment	Yes	18	Annex 1 of the Code on the Organization, Jurisdiction, and Social Welfare of the Military (34)
Prohibition of Compulsory Recruitment of Children by (State) Military	N/A*
Prohibition of Military Recruitment by Non-state Armed Groups	Yes		Article 509 of the Penal Code; Article 95 of the Constitution (29,31)
Compulsory Education Age	No	12‡	Article 121 of the Constitution; Articles 19 and 23 of the Education Law; Article 43 of the Childhood and Adolescence Code (28,29,35)
Free Public Education	Yes		Article 121 of the Constitution; Articles 8, 19, and 23 of the Education Law; Article 43 of the Childhood and Adolescence Code (28,29,35)

* No conscription (29)

‡ Age calculated based on available information (28,29,35)

Nicaraguan law is not clear regarding the age up to which education is compulsory. Article 121 of the Constitution states that primary school education is compulsory, but it does not specify an age. (29) Under Articles 19 and 23 of the Education Law, education is compulsory only through the sixth grade, which it specifies is up to age 12 and the end of primary school. (35) Article 43 of the Childhood and Adolescence Code states that both primary and secondary school education are compulsory, suggesting up to age 17, but it does not specifically state an age. (28) The lack of clarity regarding the age up to which education is compulsory and the potential gap between the compulsory education age and the minimum age for work may leave children vulnerable to child labor, including its worst forms. (36)

III. ENFORCEMENT OF LAWS ON CHILD LABOR

The government has established institutional mechanisms for the enforcement of laws and regulations on child labor (Table 5). However, gaps exist within the operations of the Ministry of Labor (MITRAB) that may hinder adequate enforcement of their child labor laws.

Nicaragua

MINIMAL ADVANCEMENT

Table 5. Agencies Responsible for Child Labor Law Enforcement

Organization/Agency	Role
Ministry of Labor (MITRAB)	Enforces labor laws and sets child labor policy priorities. Conducts labor inspections through its General Labor Inspectorate, and conducts child labor inspections through its Child Labor Inspections Unit. (37) Conducts training on child labor issues and inspections. Maintains a mailbox in each of Nicaragua's 17 departments to receive complaints of child labor violations. (37)
Nicaraguan National Police (NNP)	Addresses cases of child labor and human trafficking through the Police Intelligence Unit, which detects crimes, and the Special Crimes Unit, which investigates crimes. Maintains a hotline for reporting violations of children's rights. (37,38)
Ministry of Governance	Coordinates participation between MITRAB and NNP in labor inspections in which employers resist inspection. (37)
Prosecutor General's Office	Prosecutes cases of child trafficking, commercial sexual exploitation, and the use of children in illicit activities. Contains 2 national-level and 35 department-level prosecutors who prosecute these and other crimes. (37)
Human Rights Attorney for Children	Assists in the enforcement of laws related to child labor and hazardous child labor. (37)
Ministry of the Family, Adolescence, and Childhood (MIFAN)	Maintains a hotline for receiving reports on human trafficking and commercial sexual exploitation. Assists in providing officials with training on child labor violations. (39)

Labor Law Enforcement

In 2018, labor law enforcement agencies in Nicaragua took actions to combat child labor (Table 6). However, gaps exist within the operations of MITRAB that may hinder adequate labor law enforcement, including resource allocation.

Table 6. Labor Law Enforcement Efforts Related to Child Labor

† Data are from January 2017 to October 2017.

A lack of resources may hinder MITRAB's capacity to enforce child labor laws. (8,9,41) The number of labor inspectors is likely insufficient for the size of Nicaragua's workforce, which includes approximately 3 million workers. According to the ILO's technical advice of a ratio approaching 1 inspector for every 15,000 workers in industrializing economies, Nicaragua would employ about 203 inspectors. (42-44) Government officials and NGOs have reported that child labor inspections throughout the country, particularly in agricultural areas, are limited due to personnel constraints and insufficient transportation and other resources. (38) Furthermore, Nicaragua has a large informal and rural workforce, and the General Labor Inspectorate may be unable to adequately cover the country's vulnerabilities to and magnitude of labor violations. (9)

In 2018, MITRAB signed 6,479 cooperative agreements with employers to prevent the hiring of minors and to protect the rights of adolescent workers. (40) The Ministry removed 8 children from work sites as a result of labor inspections and the Government of Nicaragua reported overseeing work site conditions for 2,186 adolescent workers. (8,40)

Criminal Law Enforcement

In 2018, criminal law enforcement agencies in Nicaragua took actions to combat child labor (Table 7). However, gaps exist within the operations of the criminal enforcement agencies that may hinder adequate criminal law enforcement, including a lack of publicly available enforcement data to inform monitoring and investigations of the worst forms of child labor.

Table 7. Criminal Law Enforcement Efforts Related to Child Labor

Overview of Criminal Law Enforcement	2017	2018
Initial Training for New Criminal Investigators	Unknown (9)	Yes (8)
Training on New Laws Related to the Worst Forms of Child Labor	Unknown (9)	Yes (8)
Refresher Courses Provided	Unknown (9)	Yes (8)
Number of Investigations	Unknown (9)	Unknown (8)
Number of Violations Found	Unknown (9)	Unknown (8)
Number of Prosecutions Initiated	12 (9)	Unknown (8)
Number of Convictions	2 (9)	Unknown (8)
Imposed Penalties for Violations Related to The Worst Forms of Child Labor	Unknown	Unknown
Reciprocal Referral Mechanism Exists Between Criminal Authorities and Social Services	Yes (9)	Yes (8)

Research did not find the number of criminal investigators employed by the Nicaraguan National Police or Prosecutor General’s Office during the reporting period. Other key enforcement information was similarly not available. (9)

The government investigated two cases of commercial child sexual exploitation, but NGOs found this number low compared to the severity of the problem in the country. (8) NGOs have reported that criminal law enforcement efforts related to the worst forms of child labor do not effectively address the scope of the problem. (45) NGOs have also indicated that criminal law enforcement agencies lack sufficient financial resources to adequately carry out criminal investigations. (45,46)

IV. COORDINATION OF GOVERNMENT EFFORTS ON CHILD LABOR

The government has established mechanisms to coordinate its efforts to address child labor (Table 8). However, gaps exist that hinder the effective coordination of efforts to address child labor, including financial resources.

Table 8. Key Mechanisms to Coordinate Government Efforts on Child Labor

Coordinating Body	Role & Description
National Social Welfare System (SNBS)	Coordinates efforts on child labor and ensures that government institutions protect the rights of children and provide social services to them as part of its mandate to assist the Nicaraguan population. Comprises various government ministries, including MITRAB, MIFAN, the Ministry of Education (MINED), the Ministry of Health (MINSAs), and the Ministry of Governance. (41) Through a project funded by IOM, 10 trainings were conducted and 239 officials from agencies within SNBS were trained in the prevention, care, and protection of child trafficking victims. (40,47)
National Coalition Against Trafficking in Persons (CNCTP)	Coordinates efforts to address human trafficking for labor and commercial sexual exploitation. Led by the Ministry of Governance and comprises law enforcement agencies, the Supreme Court of Justice, and NGOs. (19) In 2018, the Government of Nicaragua released its National Action Plan on Human Trafficking 2018–2022. It also released its National Strategy for the Comprehensive Care and Assistance to Victims of Human Trafficking, which lays out goals and actions to be carried out by CNCTP. (40,48)
Ministry of the Family, Adolescence, and Childhood (MIFAN)	Maintains a guide for the provision of assistance to victims of commercial sexual exploitation and coordinates among agencies responsible for their care, as a part of the SNBS. (38) During the reporting period, 40 government officials from various ministries received training on the Guide for the Detection and Care of Victims of Human Trafficking and Sexual Exploitation. (40)

Nicaragua

MINIMAL ADVANCEMENT

The Government of Nicaragua indicated that, in 2018, the CNCTP held regular regional dialogues through 15 department and 43 municipal level working groups, coordinated by the Ministry of the Interior. (10) However, local civil society organizations working on human trafficking issues reported that, for the third year in a row, CNCTP did not engage local civil society, despite being required to do so by law. Local civil society organizations were unable to corroborate increased CNCTP activity in the local working groups. (10,19) The CNCTP also did not appoint its Executive Secretariat, which is mandated by the Law Against Trafficking in Persons. (10)

Reporting indicates that the National Social Welfare System (SNBS) does not have a specific and consistent coordinating mechanism due to limited coordination among constituent ministries and a lack of financial resources dedicated to combating child labor. (12,38) In addition, coordination between the SNBS and NGOs that address child labor is limited. (39)

Although the Ministry of the Family, Adolescence, and Childhood maintains a guide for assisting child victims of commercial sexual exploitation, reports indicate that the government had no formal procedures for the identification of human trafficking victims among high-risk populations, including children who are trafficked for commercial sexual exploitation. (17,49,50)

V. GOVERNMENT POLICIES ON CHILD LABOR

The government has established policies related to child labor (Table 9). However, policy gaps exist that hinder efforts to address child labor, including implementation of the Roadmap for the Elimination of the Worst Forms of Child Labor.

Table 9. Key Policies Related to Child Labor

Policy	Description
Roadmap to make Central America, Panama, and the Dominican Republic a Child Labor Free Zone	Sets the goal of eliminating the worst forms of child labor by 2015 and all forms of child labor by 2020. (1,51) There was no indication during the reporting period that the government took actions to implement the Roadmap. (8)
Good Government Plan	Sets development goals for government ministries, including MITRAB, MINED, and MINSa. Prioritizes human trafficking investigations; aims to protect children from commercial sexual exploitation; and commits to training teachers, creating 1,000 primary school teaching positions, and increasing access to education, including for indigenous and Afro-descendant children. (52) Research was unable to determine whether activities were undertaken during the reporting period to implement the Good Government Plan. (8)

VI. SOCIAL PROGRAMS TO ADDRESS CHILD LABOR

In 2018, the government funded and participated in programs that include the goal of eliminating or preventing child labor (Table 10). However, gaps exist in these social programs, including the scope of their operations.

Table 10. Key Social Programs to Address Child Labor

Program	Description
Love Program (Programa Amor)†	MIFAN program that supports vulnerable or impoverished children, including children involved in child labor, such as street work. Provides educational assistance for children and vocational training for parents. (37,53) Overseen by Nicaragua's Vice President in coordination with MINED, MINSa, MITRAB, and the Ministry of Governance. Includes children from birth to age 6 through the Love Program for the Smallest Ones. (37,53)
Educational Bridges (Puentes Educativos)†	MITRAB and MINED public-private partnership that provides education to children of coffee workers to prevent child labor during coffee harvests. (54) In 2018, provided services to over 200 children at 5 coffee farms in San Ramon, Matagalpa. (55)
Integral School Meal Program (Merienda Escolar)†	MIFAN and WFP initiative that provides children and adolescents with meals at school to address poverty and improve attendance. (38,39) In 2018, the government carried out 3 national-level distribution phases, providing food to a total of 1,200,000 Nicaraguan students. (56)
National School Supply Program (Paquete Escolar)†	MINED program that distributes packages of school supplies to preschool, primary, and secondary school children in the poorest districts to increase attendance and completion rates. (39) The government planned to distribute 700,000 packages in the year 2018, and reports indicate the program was implemented throughout the reporting period. (57)

Program	Description
Birth Registration Campaign†	Government initiative, in coordination with Save the Children and UNICEF, to advance birth registration campaigns. (9)

† Program is funded by the Government of Nicaragua.

‡ The government had other social programs that may have included the goal of eliminating or preventing child labor. (58-60)

During the reporting period, Nicaragua’s Ministry of the Interior received technological and computer equipment as part of the “Contribuir al Fortalecimiento de la Coalición Nacional Contra La Trata de Personas en Nicaragua” project funded by the International Organization for Migration, which aims to strengthen Nicaragua’s National Coalition Against Trafficking in Persons (CNCTP). (40,47)

The government coordinates with NGOs to provide human trafficking victims with medical, educational, legal, and psychological assistance in NGO-run shelters. (19) However, the government did not create any new programs or expand on any existing programs addressing child labor during the reporting period. (8) Rather, political upheaval in Nicaragua in 2018 resulted in the government diverting resources from social programs to respond to protests and violence. (8) The scope of current social programs is not sufficient to assist children who are trafficked or engaged in the worst forms of child labor, including commercial sexual exploitation. (37) NGOs indicate that the regions most affected by human trafficking, such as the Caribbean Autonomous Regions, lack adequate care facilities, and that children who are victims in human trafficking in these areas are referred to NGO shelters in Managua. (50)

The government does not report funding levels for or specific activities undertaken by the Love Program, and sources report that the program is underfunded. (37,38,41) Research was unable to determine what actions were taken to implement the Love Program and the Birth Registration Campaign.

VII. SUGGESTED GOVERNMENT ACTIONS TO ELIMINATE CHILD LABOR

Based on the reporting above, suggested actions are identified that would advance the elimination of child labor in Nicaragua (Table 11).

Table 11. Suggested Government Actions to Eliminate Child Labor

Area	Suggested Action	Year(s) Suggested
Legal Framework	Ensure that the law is consistent and provides a compulsory education age that is not less than the minimum age for work.	2014 – 2018
Enforcement	Increase the number of labor inspectors to meet the ILO’s technical advice.	2009 – 2018
	Publish complete labor law enforcement data, including information about work site inspections, number of child labor violations, and penalties imposed for violations.	2015 – 2018
	Ensure that the Ministry of Labor has sufficient funding to fully enforce child labor laws and to ensure personnel and resource needs are met.	2018
	Publish complete criminal law enforcement data related to the worst forms of child labor, including number of investigations, violations, prosecutions, and convictions.	2014 – 2018
	Ensure that criminal law enforcement efforts are sufficient to address the scope of the problem and that agencies have funding and resources necessary to carry out duties.	2014 – 2018
Coordination	Establish an adequate mechanism for identifying human trafficking victims among high-risk populations.	2018
	Increase collaboration and resources of the National Social Welfare System ministries to ensure that the government has a specific and consistent mechanism to coordinate efforts to address child labor, including with NGOs, and publicly report on their efforts.	2014 – 2018
Government Policies	Ensure that the National Coalition Against Trafficking of Persons works with local civil society organizations to address human trafficking issues, and ensure that it establishes its Executive Secretariat, as mandated by the Law Against Trafficking in Persons.	2015 – 2018
	Take steps to implement the Roadmap for the Elimination of Child Labor and the Good Government Plan, and publish information about these efforts.	2009 – 2018

In 2018, Niger made a moderate advancement in efforts to eliminate the worst forms of child labor. The Supreme Court set a legal precedent banning the practice of wahaya, a form of slavery in Niger in which men buy girls born into slavery, typically between ages 9 and 11, as “fifth wives.” The government also adopted a law to provide protection and assistance to internally displaced persons, including children, to prevent their exploitation in the worst forms of child labor. More than 300 judges, magistrates, and law enforcement officials received training on investigating and prosecuting trafficking in persons cases, and government officials participated in a regional workshop to reinforce counter-trafficking coordination among member countries of the Economic Community of West African States. In addition, the government continued to educate religious leaders on how to combat the worst forms of child labor and implemented several other programs to address the worst forms of child labor, including a program that aims to combat human trafficking and migrant smuggling. However, children in Niger engage in the worst forms of child labor, including in hereditary slavery and mining. Children also perform dangerous tasks in agriculture. Although the government made meaningful efforts in all relevant areas during the reporting period, existing child labor laws and regulations do not apply to children in unpaid or non-contractual work. Gaps in labor law enforcement, such as funding to conduct labor inspections, have also left children unprotected from the worst forms of child labor. In addition, social programs to combat child labor are insufficient to adequately address the extent of the problem.

I. PREVALENCE AND SECTORAL DISTRIBUTION OF CHILD LABOR

Children in Niger engage in the worst forms of child labor, including in hereditary slavery and mining. (1-4) Children also perform dangerous tasks in agriculture. (5-7) Table 1 provides key indicators on children’s work and education in Niger.

Table 1. Statistics on Children’s Work and Education

Children	Age	Percent
Working (% and population)	5 to 14	42.9 (2,516,191)
Attending School (%)	7 to 14	48.0
Combining Work and School (%)	7 to 14	22.1
Primary Completion Rate (%)		73.2

Source for all other data: International Labor Organization’s analysis of statistics from Demographic and Health Survey, 2012. (9)

Based on a review of available information, Table 2 provides an overview of children’s work by sector and activity.

Table 2. Overview of Children’s Work by Sector and Activity

Sector/Industry	Activity
Agriculture	Production of rice, fruits, nuts, and vegetables (3,5,6)
	Herding and caring for livestock, including cattle (3,6,7)
	Fishing (6)
Industry	Quarrying† and mining† for trona, salt, gypsum, natron, and gold (1,2,10-14)
	Mechanical repair,† welding,† and metal work† (15)
	Working in construction,† tanneries,† and slaughterhouses† (6,7,16)

Sector/Industry	Activity
Services	Street work, including as market vendors, begging, [†] and scavenging garbage (2,7,16)
	Domestic work (2,3,7,10)
Categorical Worst Forms of Child Labor [‡]	Commercial sexual exploitation, sometimes as a result of human trafficking (3,4,17-19)
	Forced recruitment of children by non-state armed groups for use in armed conflict (4,7,19,20)
	Hereditary and caste-based slavery, including for cattle herding, agricultural work, domestic work, and sexual exploitation (3,4,17,19,21,22)
	Forced begging for Koranic teachers (2-4,17,22)
	Forced labor in domestic work and mining, each sometimes as a result of human trafficking (4,10,24,25)

[†] Determined by national law or regulation as hazardous and, as such, relevant to Article 3(d) of ILO C. 182.

[‡] Child labor understood as the worst forms of child labor per se under Article 3(a)–(c) of ILO C. 182.

Children in Niger, especially boys and girls from the Arab, Djerma, Peulh, Tuareg, and Toubou ethnic minorities, continue to be exploited as slaves and endure slave-like practices, particularly in distant western and northern regions and along the border with Nigeria. Some children are born into slavery; others are born free but remain in a dependent status and are forced to work with their parents for their former masters in exchange for food, money, and lodging. (3,4,26) A civil society organization specializing in assisting victims of traditional slavery reported that most victims do not self-identify or file complaints against their former masters due to lack of reintegration services and dependency on their former masters. (27) A particular form of slavery in Niger is the wahaya practice, in which men buy girls born into slavery, typically between ages 9 and 11, as “fifth wives.” Child slaves, including those involved in the practice of wahaya, are forced to work long hours as cattle herders, agricultural workers, or domestic workers, and are often sexually exploited. (10,17,21,22,26-29) As with those involved in hereditary slavery, the children of wahaya wives are considered slaves and are passed from one owner to another as gifts or as part of dowries. (7,17,26,29,30)

In 2019, Niger’s Supreme Court set legal precedent by ruling wahaya to be illegal. However, the process for enforcing the ruling is unclear. (27,31,32) Anti-slavery organizations have indicated that they will conduct awareness-raising campaigns for the ruling so that more affected women will bring cases to court. (33)

In Niger, it is also a traditional practice to send boys (talibés) to Koranic teachers (marabouts) to receive religious education. However, there are limited reports that some of these boys are forced by their teachers to perform manual labor or to beg on the streets and surrender the money they earn. (2-4,17,19,34)

During the year, Boko Haram attacked numerous villages in the Diffa region along Niger’s border with Nigeria, which caused an influx of Nigerian refugees and Nigerien IDPs and strained the government’s resources for addressing child labor. Evidence suggests that Boko Haram forcibly recruited Nigerien children in the Diffa region. (7,20,35-38) In addition, refugee and internally displaced children may have difficulty accessing education, which makes them particularly vulnerable to engaging in the worst forms of child labor, including recruitment by non-state armed groups. (10,20,30,34)

There are reports of Nigerien children migrating seasonally or being trafficked to Algeria and other neighboring countries where they are forced to engage in begging or commercial sexual exploitation. (38-43) In 2015, this reportedly prompted a non-public agreement between the Nigerien and Algerian authorities for the repatriation of Nigerien migrants from Algeria. In 2018, West African migrant convoys, some of which included unaccompanied or non-Nigerien children, traveled from Algeria to Niger. (41,43-48) These children are highly vulnerable to being re-trafficked or experiencing further exploitation in forced labor, begging, or commercial sexual exploitation in Niger. (4,18,19,39,49,50) International organizations and the Government of Niger’s Directorate of Child Protection provided social services, shelter, and access to education to these unaccompanied migrant children, and they are working to resettle or repatriate the foreign unaccompanied children. (19,38,39,49,50)

Although the Constitution of Niger provides for free education, in practice, this provision is not enforced adequately because many children, especially girls, do not attend school. (7,30,34,51) The lack of school infrastructure, school materials, and limited availability of teachers, especially in rural areas, impeded access to education, which may increase the vulnerability of children to the worst forms of child labor. (3,18,30,52,53)

II. LEGAL FRAMEWORK FOR CHILD LABOR

Niger has ratified all key international conventions concerning child labor (Table 3).

Table 3. Ratification of International Conventions on Child Labor

The government has established laws and regulations related to child labor (Table 4). However, gaps exist in Niger's legal framework to adequately protect children from the worst forms of child labor, including the minimum age for work.

Niger

MODERATE ADVANCEMENT

In 2018, Niger was the first African country to pass a law to protect and assist IDPs. The Law for the Protection and Assistance to Internally Displaced Persons establishes special protections for internally displaced children and penalties of 15 to 30 years in prison and a monetary fine of $3,400 to $8,600 for anyone who recruits internally displaced children to partake in hostilities, or for the purpose of sexual exploitation. (60-62)

Although the Labor Code establishes age 14 as the minimum age for work, it does not apply to workers in the informal economy, which does not conform to international standards that require all children to be protected under the law by establishing a minimum age for work. (63)

In 2018, the Ministry of Primary Education, Literacy, the Promotion of National Languages and Civic Education indicated that the President of Niger had committed to guaranteeing free and compulsory education for children until age 16. However, the Government of Niger has not provided a copy of the legislative or regulatory text that makes education compulsory and free until age 16. (64,65) Article 2 of the Law on the Orientation of the Educational System in Niger guarantees education for all children ages 4 to 18 but does not establish a compulsory education age. (66) In addition, in December 2017, the government passed a decree to promote girls' access to education and to prevent girls from leaving school before completing basic education. (65,67)

III. ENFORCEMENT OF LAWS ON CHILD LABOR

The government has established institutional mechanisms for the enforcement of laws and regulations on child labor (Table 5). However, gaps exist within the authority of the Ministry of Employment, Labor and Social Security (MELSS) that may hinder adequate enforcement of their child labor laws.

Table 5. Agencies Responsible for Child Labor Law Enforcement

Organization/Agency	Role
Ministry of Employment, Labor and Social Security (MELSS)	Enforces labor laws and investigates Labor Code infractions, including those on child labor. In addition, conducts awareness-raising programs to combat child labor. (3,15,68,69)
National Agency to Fight Against Trafficking in Persons and Illegal Migrant Transport (ANLTP/TIM)	Implements policies and programs developed by the National Commission to Coordinate Efforts to Combat Trafficking in Persons (CNCLTP), conducts awareness campaigns about human trafficking, provides training and education to reduce the risk of human trafficking, and maintains a hotline to receive complaints on human trafficking. (4,70-72)
Ministry for the Promotion of Women and Child Protection	Works with law enforcement officials to provide vulnerable children with social and reintegration services, including education and counseling, in 54 Centers for Prevention, Promotion, and Protection (CEPPP) across the country. (3,13,73)
National Civil Police Force Morals and Minors Brigade	Investigates criminal cases involving minors, including issues pertaining to human trafficking, commercial sexual exploitation, and hereditary slavery. Housed under the Ministry of Interior and Public Security. (13,17,74)
Ministry of Justice's District and Magistrate Courts	Enforces criminal laws related to child labor through 10 district courts and 30 magistrate courts. (13,15,68)
Regional and Vigilance Committees	Prevent child trafficking by alerting law enforcement of activities linked to human trafficking, directing victims of human trafficking to law enforcement, and working closely with the Minister of Interior to raise awareness of child labor. Vigilance committees, which exist in 30 localities, report suspected cases of illegal transport of minors to the police. (75,76)
National Human Rights Commission	Receives complaints and conducts investigations of human rights violations, including hereditary slavery. (3,68)

Labor Law Enforcement

In 2018, labor law enforcement agencies in Niger took actions to combat child labor (Table 6). However, gaps exist within the authority of the MELSS that may hinder adequate labor law enforcement, including lack of financial and human resources.

During the reporting period, the MELSS employed 47 labor inspectors, which is likely insufficient for the size of Niger's workforce, which includes approximately 6.5 million workers. According to the ILO's technical advice of a ratio approaching 1 inspector for every 40,000 workers in less developed countries, Niger would employ about 163 labor inspectors. (77-79) Reports indicate the government lacks equipment, transportation, and funding to conduct labor inspections and legal proceedings, especially in remote locations and in the informal sector, which employs more than 40 percent of the workforce. (7,31,68,80)

Criminal Law Enforcement

In 2018, criminal law enforcement agencies in Niger took actions to combat child labor (Table 7). However, gaps exist within the operations of the criminal enforcement agencies that may hinder adequate criminal law enforcement, including prosecution planning and allocating financial resources.

Table 7. Criminal Law Enforcement Efforts Related to Child Labor

In 2018, the Government of Niger reported it trained more than 300 judges, police investigators, and staff from the National Agency to Fight Against Trafficking in Persons and Illegal Migrant Transport (ANLTP/TIM). These trainings covered human trafficking investigation procedures, laws, and chain of custody for trafficking victims. (39) In addition, the government held a regional meeting in Niamey, with the governments of Burkina Faso, Chad, Mali, and Mauritania, and international organizations, during which the countries pledged to increase coordination in combating trafficking in persons in the region. (81,82) In 2017, the ANLTP/TIM partnered with an international organization to build the first shelter for human trafficking victims, including children, in Zinder; however, the shelter had not opened by the end of 2018 because a ministerial decree is needed to authorize operations. (22,39,71)

Niger

MODERATE ADVANCEMENT

During the reporting period, the government investigated 28 cases related to trafficking in persons and rescued 70 victims; however, it is unclear how many of these cases involved children. Although the ANLTP/TIM maintains and publicizes a hotline to report trafficking in persons crimes, the number of calls received by the hotline that involve child trafficking is unknown. (22,39) Evidence does not show that criminal law enforcement authorities made meaningful efforts to address the use of children for forced mining, forced begging, or traditional forms of caste-based servitude and hereditary slavery. (2,23,30,71,83) Reports indicate that inadequate resources, including insufficient personnel, funding, and training, hamper the capacity of enforcement authorities to coordinate and enforce laws related to child labor. (7,22,23,83)

An informal referral mechanism between NGOs, the police, and government social services is in place, but the resources and facilities available to social services agencies remain inadequate. (4,15,22) Although the exact number of children removed from the worst forms of child labor is unavailable, removal of children from child labor occurs only in extreme exploitative cases, such as child trafficking or forced labor, according to the MELSS. (84)

IV. COORDINATION OF GOVERNMENT EFFORTS ON CHILD LABOR

The government has established mechanisms to coordinate its efforts to address child labor (Table 8). However, gaps exist that hinder the effective coordination of efforts to address child labor, including funding.

Table 8. Key Mechanisms to Coordinate Government Efforts on Child Labor

Coordinating Body	Role & Description
National Steering Committee on Child Labor	Coordinates programs, advises on child labor legislation and regulations, and reviews proposals for action plans for the ILO-IPEC country program. Chaired by MELSS. (13,18,69,85)
National Commission to Coordinate Efforts to Combat Trafficking in Persons and Illegal Migrant Transport (CNCLTP/TIM)	Coordinates efforts to combat human trafficking, and develops and implements policies and programs related to human trafficking. (18,23,57,72) Includes representatives from the MELSS and civil society organizations. (70,85) In 2018, the CNCLTP/TIM supported the ANLTP/TIM to conduct training for law enforcement agencies and raise awareness on laws related to combating trafficking in persons and illicit migrant smuggling. (39)
National Committee to Combat Child Labor in Agriculture	Coordinates policies and programs to combat child labor in agriculture. (86) Chaired by the Ministry of Agriculture, includes representatives from the MELSS and the Ministry for the Promotion of Women and Child Protection, as well as non-governmental stakeholders. (87)

In 2018, the Government of Niger participated in a workshop to reinforce counter-trafficking coordination between member countries of ECOWAS. During the reporting period, the government also dedicated $127,000 to the National Commission to Coordinate Efforts to Combat Trafficking in Persons and Illegal Migrant Transport (CNCLTP/TIM) and ANLTP/TIM, an increase of $7,000 from 2017. (39) However, reports indicate that budget constraints hampered the effectiveness of the CNCLTP. (22,23,71) In addition, research was unable to determine whether the National Steering Committee on Child Labor was active or received any funding during the reporting period. (15)

V. GOVERNMENT POLICIES ON CHILD LABOR

The government has established policies related to child labor (Table 9). However, gaps exist that may hinder efforts to address child labor, including implementation of these policies.

Table 9. Key Policies Related to Child Labor

Policy	Description
National Action Plan to Combat Trafficking in Persons (2014–2018)	Aimed to enhance the legal framework to prevent human trafficking, adequately implement the laws, and provide effective protection and care for victims, including children. Led by the ANLTP/TIM. (18,72,76,88) In 2018, the ANLTP conducted a publicity program to help Nigeriens understand and identify trafficking in persons. The campaign included broadcasting anti-trafficking in persons messages via radio and television. In addition, the ANLTP/TIM conducted an education program for religious leaders on combating the forms of child trafficking most closely linked to cultural and religious traditions, such as forced begging, forced labor, and domestic work. (39)

Policy	Description
Plan for Social and Economic Development (PDES) (2017–2021)	Aims to promote sustainable development and social equality. Overseen by the Ministry of Planning. (18,89) Includes activities to improve access to education for vulnerable populations, especially migrant children, and to combat street work and forced begging by children. (89) Research was unable to determine whether activities were undertaken to implement PDES during the reporting period.
National Social Protection Strategy	Aims to improve the quality of, and access to, basic education and health services; includes strategies to combat child labor. Overseen by the Ministry for the Promotion of Women and Child Protection. (17,90) Research was unable to determine whether activities were undertaken to implement National Social Protection Strategy during the reporting period.
UNDAF (2014–2018)	Promoted improved access to education for vulnerable children and aimed to build government capacity to address child labor. Fell under the direction of the Ministry of Planning and received support from international donors. (91,92) Research was unable to determine whether activities were undertaken to implement UNDAF during the reporting period.
Education and Training Sectorial Program (2014–2024)	Sets out a comprehensive map to improve the quality of, and access to, basic and higher education. Led by the Ministry of Education. (18,52,93) In 2018, the Government of Niger allocated 15 percent of its budget to education and adopted a decree for establishing protections for girls in school. (64,65,94)

‡ The government has other policies that may have addressed child labor issues or had an impact on child labor. (18)

The Government of Niger has not adopted the draft National Action Plan to Combat Child Labor, which was drafted in 2015 and aims to eliminate the worst forms of child labor in Niger by 2025. (18,19,95)

VI. SOCIAL PROGRAMS TO ADDRESS CHILD LABOR

In 2018, the government funded and participated in programs that include the goal of eliminating or preventing child labor (Table 10). However gaps exist in these social programs, including adequacy of efforts to address the problem in all sectors.

Table 10. Key Social Programs to Address Child Labor

Program	Description
From Protocol to Practice: A Bridge to Global Action on Forced Labor (2015–2019)	USDOL-funded global project implemented by ILO to support global and national efforts aimed at combating forced labor of adults and children under the 2014 ILO Protocol and supporting Recommendation to C.29 on Forced Labor. (95,96) In 2018, a pre-situational analysis was carried out to be used as a basis for developing a national plan of action against slavery in Niger. (97) Additional information is available on the USDOL website.
Global Action Against Trafficking in Persons and the Smuggling of Migrants	$11 million EU-funded global project implemented by UNODC, UNICEF, and the International Organization for Migration (IOM) to combat human trafficking and migrant smuggling. (98,99) In 2018, conducted trainings in combating and identifying trafficking in persons and treatment of children associated with non-state armed groups for law enforcement officials, and formed regional child protection committees. (100-104)
CEPPP†*	Government program replacing the Judicial and Preventive Education Services, in collaboration with UNICEF, to provide food, shelter, education, and vocational training to street children, many of whom are victims of child labor. (2,3,105) In 2018, operated 54 centers nationwide. (73)
Project to Reduce Child Labor in Agriculture (2016–2018)	$247,000 Food and Agriculture Organization-funded program, implemented by the Ministry of Agriculture, that aimed to combat child labor in the agriculture sector, with a focus in the regions of Niamey, Tillabery, Dosso, and Tahoua. (106-108) Research was unable to determine whether activities were undertaken to implement the Project to Reduce Child Labor in Agriculture in 2018.
UNICEF Country Program (2014–2018)	UNICEF-funded program that supported the government's efforts to improve children's education, birth registration rates, and social inclusion, and to strengthen child protection programs, including for children of refugees in the Diffa region. (18,111,112) In 2018, in collaboration with IOM, UNHCR, and the Government of Niger's Directorate of Child Protection, provided services, including shelter, access to education and training, and reunification and repatriation for unaccompanied migrant children. (38,113)
World Bank Country Program	Aims to increase access to quality basic and secondary education, improve school infrastructure, and strengthen safety nets for vulnerable populations. (114) In 2018, constructed 195 primary school classrooms and 168 secondary school classrooms. In addition, 99,577 children have benefited from school canteens since the beginning of the project. (115)

* Program was launched during the reporting period.

† Program is funded by the Government of Niger.

Although Niger has programs that target child labor, the scope of these programs is insufficient to fully address the problem, especially in agriculture, herding, mining, and caste-based servitude. Niger also lacks a specific program to assist children exploited by religious instructors. (15,22-24,83,95)

Niger

VII. SUGGESTED GOVERNMENT ACTIONS TO ELIMINATE CHILD LABOR

Based on the reporting above, suggested actions are identified that would advance the elimination of child labor in Niger (Table 11).

Table 11. Suggested Government Actions to Eliminate Child Labor

Area	Suggested Action	Year(s) Suggested
Legal Framework	Establish a compulsory education age equal to the minimum age of employment.	2016 – 2018
	Ensure that the law's minimum age provisions and protections apply to self-employed children and those in unpaid or non-contractual work.	2015 – 2018
	Establish implementing regulation to ensure enforcement of the Nigerien Supreme Court ruling that bans of the practice of wahaya .	2018
Enforcement	Increase the resources and number of labor inspectors and criminal investigators responsible for enforcing labor laws to provide adequate coverage of the workforce and meet the ILO's technical advice.	2009 – 2018
	Ensure that inspections and enforcement efforts take place in the informal sector and remote locations, in which most child labor occurs.	2014 – 2018
	Increase efforts to ensure that perpetrators of the traditional forms of caste-based servitude, hereditary slavery, and forced mining and begging are prosecuted according to the law.	2010 – 2018
	Publish complete information on inspections, violations, and penalties related to child labor.	2012 – 2018
	Ensure that government social services providers have sufficient resources and facilities to provide the necessary care to all children withdrawn from hazardous labor.	2015 – 2018
	Disaggregate complaints made to the National Agency to Fight Against Trafficking in Persons and Illegal Migrant Transport's hotline by number of children trafficked.	2013 – 2018
Coordination	Ensure that key coordinating mechanisms, such as the National Commission to Coordinate Efforts to Combat Trafficking in Persons and Illegal Migrant Transport and the National Steering Committee on Child Labor, are active and receive adequate funding to fulfill their missions.	2011 – 2018
Government Policies	Adopt and implement the National Action Plan to Combat Child Labor.	2009 – 2018
	Ensure that the policies to combat the worst forms of child labor are implemented.	2016 – 2018
Social Programs	Enhance efforts to eliminate barriers and make education accessible for all children, including girls, refugees, internally displaced children, and children in rural communities, by increasing school infrastructure, teacher availability, and school supplies.	2013 – 2018
	Expand the scope of programs to address the worst forms of child labor, including in agriculture, herding, mining, and caste-based servitude.	2009 – 2018
	Implement a program to target and assist children exploited by religious instructors.	2011 – 2018
	Implement the Project to Reduce Child Labor in Agriculture.	2018

In 2018, Nigeria made a moderate advancement in efforts to eliminate the worst forms of child labor. The government adopted the Edo State Trafficking in Persons Prohibition Law, which codified the Edo State Taskforce for implementation. Nigeria's National Agency for the Prohibition of Trafficking in Persons received $715,100 for victim care in 2018, a three-fold increase over its 2017 allocation, and government officials appropriated $3.8 million to provide training and education materials to raise awareness among youth of the dangers of human trafficking. Criminal investigators also conducted 314 investigations into the worst forms of child labor, resulting in 5 convictions. Although the government made meaningful efforts in all relevant areas during the reporting period, Nigeria's security forces continued to detain children for prolonged periods of time due to their alleged association with Boko Haram, including girls who were used as concubines. Children engage in the worst forms of child labor, including in quarrying granite and gravel, commercial sexual exploitation, and armed conflict. Other gaps remain, including inconsistencies regarding child labor in the legal framework, and the minimum age for work is below international standards. Furthermore, there are not enough labor inspectors to provide sufficient coverage of the workforce, and social programs are not sufficient to address the scope of the problem.

I. PREVALENCE AND SECTORAL DISTRIBUTION OF CHILD LABOR

Children in Nigeria engage in the worst forms of child labor, including in quarrying granite and gravel, commercial sexual exploitation, and armed conflict. (1-4) Table 1 provides key indicators on children's work and education in Nigeria.

Table 1. Statistics on Children's Work and Education

Children	Age	Percent
Working (% and population)	5 to 14	31.1 (13,924,739)
Attending School (%)	5 to 14	76.2
Combining Work and School (%)	7 to 14	26.8
Primary Completion Rate (%)		73.8

Source for primary completion rate: Data from 2010, published by UNESCO Institute for Statistics, 2019. (5)

Source for all other data: International Labor Organization's analysis of statistics from Multiple Indicator Cluster Survey 4, 2011. (6)

Based on a review of available information, Table 2 provides an overview of children's work by sector and activity.

Table 2. Overview of Children's Work by Sector and Activity

Sector/Industry	Activity
Agriculture	Production of manioc/cassava, cocoa, rice, and tobacco (2,7,8)
	Fishing, activities unknown (9)
	Herding livestock (8)
Industry	Mining and quarrying of granite and gravel (1,2)
	Artisanal gold mining and processing (1,8,10,11)
	Harvesting sand (1,11)
	Construction, including making bricks and carrying construction materials (2,8)
Services	Domestic work (2,8,12-14)
	Collecting money on public buses, washing cars, and automotive repair (1,8,12,13,15)
	Street work, including vending, begging, and scavenging (1,2,8,12,13,15,16)

Sector/Industry	Activity
Categorical Worst Forms of Child Labor‡	Commercial sexual exploitation, including use in the production of pornography, sometimes as a result of human trafficking (4,8,12,14,18,19)
	Forced begging; domestic work; street vending; textile manufacturing; mining and quarrying gravel, granite, and gold; and labor in agriculture, including in cocoa, each sometimes as a result of human trafficking (4,8,14,20,21)
	Recruitment of children by non-state armed groups for use in armed conflict and in non-conflict support roles (4,14,22-24)

‡ Child labor understood as the worst forms of child labor per se under Article 3(a)–(c) of ILO C. 182.

In northern Nigeria, many families send children from rural to urban areas to live with Islamic teachers and receive a Koranic education. These children may receive lessons, but teachers often force them to beg on the streets and surrender the money they collect. (14,25,26) Furthermore, these children are highly vulnerable to recruitment by Boko Haram, which continued to forcibly recruit and use child soldiers in combat and support roles, as well as suicide bombers and concubines. (3,4,22-24,26,27) Unlike in previous years, there were no new reports that the Civilian Joint Task Force (CJTF), a non-state self-defense militia involved in fighting Boko Haram, recruited or used children during the reporting period. (28,29)

Benin City, the capital of Edo state, is a major human trafficking hub in Africa, but increased enforcement efforts may have caused some human trafficking rings to shift their focus to other areas of southern Nigeria. (29-31) Girls from Nigeria are sent to North Africa and Europe for forced labor and commercial sexual exploitation. (26,31-35) Children from West African countries experience forced labor in Nigeria, including in granite and gold mines. (4,20)

In 2018, the security situation in Nigeria continued to worsen, due to attacks by insurgency groups such as Boko Haram and conflicts in rural areas between farmers and herders. (29) This resulted in the displacement of about 2 million people, of which 56 percent were children. (23,26,36) Some girls, particularly unaccompanied minors, were subjected to commercial sexual exploitation in internally displaced persons (IDP) camps and military barracks, often by members of the Nigerian military, the CJTF, and other camp security personnel in exchange for food. (4,23,26,27,29,34,37-40) Research was not able to determine the scale of this problem in 2018.

Although free and compulsory education is federally mandated by the Education Act, little enforcement of compulsory education laws occurs at the state level. School fees are often charged in practice, and the cost of materials can be prohibitive for families. (8,41) When families experienced economic hardship, the enrollment of boys was typically prioritized over the enrollment of girls. Other barriers to education include a lack of teachers, sexual harassment, inadequate sanitation facilities, and fear of abduction or attack by Boko Haram while at school, particularly for girls in the northeastern part of the country. (8,13,23,26,42,43) Furthermore, schools may be used to house IDPs or occupied by government armed forces in their campaign against Boko Haram and the Islamic State-West Africa. (24,27,44) Almost 1,400 schools have been destroyed since 2009, and more than 57 percent of schools in Borno State were closed in the 2017/2018 school year due to violence in the area, leaving about 3 million children without access to education. (24,27)

II. LEGAL FRAMEWORK FOR CHILD LABOR

Nigeria has ratified all key international conventions concerning child labor (Table 3).

Table 3. Ratification of International Conventions on Child Labor

Convention	Ratification
 ILO C. 138, Minimum Age	✓
ILO C. 182, Worst Forms of Child Labor	✓

 Palermo Protocol on Trafficking in Persons	✓

The government has established laws and regulations related to child labor (Table 4). However, gaps exist in Nigeria's legal framework to adequately protect children from the worst forms of child labor, including the minimum age for work.

Table 4. Laws and Regulations on Child Labor

Standard	Meets International Standards	Age	Legislation
Minimum Age for Work	No	12	Section 59(1) of the Labour Act; Sections 28 and 29 of the Child's Right Act (45,46)
Minimum Age for Hazardous Work	Yes	18	Section 59(5) and (6) of the Labour Act; Sections 28, 29, and 277 of the Child's Right Act (45,46)
Identification of Hazardous Occupations or Activities Prohibited for Children	No		Sections 59–61 of the Labour Act; Section 28 of the Child's Right Act; Section 23 of the Trafficking in Persons (Prohibition) Enforcement and Administration Act (45-47)
Prohibition of Forced Labor	Yes		Sections 13, 22, and 24–25 of the Trafficking in Persons (Prohibition) Enforcement and Administration Act; Sections 28 and 30 of the Child's Right Act (46,47)
Prohibition of Child Trafficking	Yes		Section 13 of the Trafficking in Persons (Prohibition) Enforcement and Administration Act; Section 30 of the Child's Right Act (46,47)
Prohibition of Commercial Sexual Exploitation of Children	Yes		Sections 13–17 of the Trafficking in Persons (Prohibition) Enforcement and Administration Act; Sections 30 and 32 of the Child's Right Act; Section 23 of the Cybercrimes Act (46,47,48)
Prohibition of Using Children in Illicit Activities	Yes		Section 19 of the Trafficking in Persons (Prohibition) Enforcement and Administration Act; Sections 25–26 and 30 of the Child's Right Act (46,47)
Minimum Age for Voluntary State Military Recruitment	Yes	18	Section 28 of the Armed Forces Act; Section 34 of the Child's Right Act (46,49)
Prohibition of Compulsory Recruitment of Children by (State) Military	Yes*
Prohibition of Military Recruitment by Non-state Armed Groups	No		Section 19 of the Trafficking in Persons (Prohibition) Enforcement and Administration Act (47)
Compulsory Education Age	Yes	15	Sections 2 and 15 of the Education Act; Section 15 of the Child's Right Act (46,50)
Free Public Education	Yes		Sections 2–3 of the Education Act; Section 15 of the Child's Right Act (46,50)

* No conscription (49)

In 2018, Edo State adopted the Edo State Trafficking in Persons Prohibition Law, which codified the Edo State Taskforce Against Human Trafficking and provides a comprehensive framework for the prevention, detection, and prosecution of human trafficking. (14,51) This is the first state-level legislation prohibiting human trafficking in Nigeria, and it complements federal legislation. (29)

The Federal Child's Right Act (CRA) codifies the rights of children in Nigeria and must be adopted and implemented by each state to become law in its territory. (26,46) To date, 26 states and the federal capital territory have adopted and implemented the CRA; all 10 of the remaining 10 states are in northern Nigeria. (26,52)

Nigeria

MODERATE ADVANCEMENT

The laws in Nigeria regarding minimum age for employment are inconsistent. The CRA supersedes all legislation related to children, yet it states that the provisions related to young people in the Labour Act still apply to children. This includes Section 59, which sets the minimum employment age at 12, in contradiction to the CRA, which only permits children under age 18 to engage in light work for family members. (45,46) The Labour Act also permits children of any age to do light work in agriculture and domestic work if they are working with a family member. Furthermore, the minimum age protections in the Labour Act do not apply to children who are self-employed or working in the informal economy. (45,53) Furthermore, as the minimum age for work is lower than the compulsory education age, children may be encouraged to leave school before the completion of compulsory education.

Although the Labour Act forbids the employment of youth under age 18 in work that is dangerous to their health, safety, or morals, it does not establish the types of hazardous activity that are prohibited to children under age 18. (45,53) The National Steering Committee for the Elimination of the Worst Forms of Child Labor developed a report in 2013 that identified hazardous child labor in Nigeria; however, the government has yet to determine by law or regulation the types of hazardous work prohibited for children. (2,53)

Although the CRA criminalizes using, procuring, and offering a child in the production and trafficking of drugs, the 10 states that have not yet ratified the CRA have no legislation in place to criminalize this activity. (26,46) Lastly, children are not excluded from the Terrorism Prevention Act's penalty of life imprisonment for assisting in acts of terrorism. (54)

III. ENFORCEMENT OF LAWS ON CHILD LABOR

The government has established institutional mechanisms for the enforcement of laws and regulations on child labor (Table 5). However, gaps exist within the operations of the Ministry of Labor and Employment (MOLE) that may hinder adequate enforcement of their child labor laws.

Table 5. Agencies Responsible for Child Labor Law Enforcement

Organization/Agency	Role
Labor Inspectorate, Ministry of Labor and Employment (MOLE)	Deploys labor inspectors across 36 state labor offices and the federal capital territory to enforce federal child labor laws. (8,26,55)
National Agency for the Prohibition of Trafficking in Persons and Other Related Matters (NAPTIP)	Enforces laws against human trafficking and exploitative labor. Coordinates with the Ministry of Women's Affairs and Social Development and state governments to provide child victims with social services and reunite trafficked children with their families. (8,14,26) Operates hotlines for victims in Abuja and each zonal command center. (29) In 2018, launched an app, iReport, that allows users to report cases of human trafficking. (56)
Nigeria Police	Enforces all laws prohibiting forced child labor and commercial sexual exploitation. Collaborates with NAPTIP on human trafficking enforcement. (8)
Nigeria Immigration Service	Collaborates with NAPTIP to enforce laws against child trafficking. (8)
Edo State Taskforce Against Human Trafficking*	Enforces the Edo State Trafficking in Persons Prohibition Law as well as other laws prohibiting trafficking in persons, and investigates all cases of child trafficking and forced child labor. Includes an Investigation and Security Unit tasked with the prevention and detection of human trafficking cases. (51) As of March 2019, investigated 56 cases and filed charges in 20 cases. (29,57)

* Agency responsible for child labor enforcement was created during the reporting period.

Labor Law Enforcement

In 2018, labor law enforcement agencies in Nigeria took action to combat child labor (Table 6). However, gaps exist within the operations of MOLE that may hinder adequate labor law enforcement, including human resource allocation.

Of the 24,646 inspections conducted in 2018, 7,394 were dedicated child labor inspections. A total of 48 children were removed from situations of child labor during the reporting period. Social services were provided to a number of children, including enrolling 333 children in primary or secondary education and reuniting 316 children with their families. (58) However, enforcement of child labor laws remains challenging due to the lack of resources for inspections, and research did not find mechanisms to enforce existing protections for children in the informal sector. (58,60)

Although the Government of Nigeria significantly increased the number of labor inspectors, the total number of labor inspectors is likely insufficient for the size of Nigeria's workforce, which includes approximately 60 million workers. According to the ILO's technical advice of a ratio approaching 1 inspector for every 15,000 workers in industrializing economies, Nigeria would employ about 4,005 labor inspectors. (61,62)

Criminal Law Enforcement

In 2018, criminal law enforcement agencies in Nigeria took actions to combat child labor (Table 7). However, gaps exist within the operations of the criminal enforcement agencies that may hinder adequate criminal law enforcement, including investigation planning.

Table 7. Criminal Law Enforcement Efforts Related to Child Labor

Overview of Criminal Law Enforcement	2017	2018
Initial Training for New Criminal Investigators	Yes (63)	Yes (29)
Training on New Laws Related to the Worst Forms of Child Labor	N/A	Unknown
Refresher Courses Provided	Yes (63)	Yes (29)
Number of Investigations	25† (64)	314 (8)
Number of Violations Found	3 (59)	72 (29)
Number of Prosecutions Initiated	10† (64)	12‡ (65)
Number of Convictions	10† (64)	24‡ (65)

† Data are from January 2017 to September 2017.

‡ Data are from April 2018 to February 2019.

NAPTIP's 2018 operating budget was about $11.9 million, more than double its 2016 budget. (29) During the reporting period, the Government of Nigeria convicted a total of 48 individuals in 28 cases of adult and child trafficking between April 2018 and February 2019, the most in a given year and almost double the previous year's

Nigeria

total number of convictions. (29,65) At least three government officials are being prosecuted for exploitation of a minor, two for child trafficking-related offenses, and the other for commercial sexual exploitation. (29)

Criminal law enforcement authorities continued to detain children for their alleged association with Boko Haram, including girls who were victims. (4,24,26,27,37,40) Although the government released some of the children and referred them to social services providers, many remained in detention facilities for prolonged periods. (4,24,26)

IV. COORDINATION OF GOVERNMENT EFFORTS ON CHILD LABOR

The government has established mechanisms to coordinate its efforts to address child labor (Table 8). However, gaps exist that hinder the effective coordination of efforts to address child labor, including efficacy in accomplishing mandates.

Table 8. Key Mechanisms to Coordinate Government Efforts on Child Labor

Coordinating Body	Role & Description
National Steering Committee for the Elimination of the Worst Forms of Child Labor	Coordinates efforts to combat child labor. Led by MOLE, and comprises representatives from seven governmental agencies, faith-based organizations, NGOs, ILO, and UNICEF. (8) Research was unable to determine whether this body was active during the reporting period.
Inter-Ministerial Taskforce on Trafficking in Persons	Coordinates child labor issues related to human trafficking. Chaired by NAPTIP. (8) Met throughout the reporting period and drafted a Protocol for Identification, Safe Return, and Rehabilitation of Trafficked Persons and considered NATIP's 2018–2023 national action plan. (4)
State Steering Committees on Child Labor	Guide state-level implementation of the National Policy on Child Labor. (8) Research was unable to determine whether this body was active during the reporting period.

V. GOVERNMENT POLICIES ON CHILD LABOR

The government has established policies related to child labor (Table 9). However, policy gaps exist that hinder efforts to address child labor, including implementing a new national child labor action plan.

Table 9. Key Policies Related to Child Labor

Policy	Description
NAPTIP 2019 Plan of Action†	Provides a framework for mobilizing NAPTIP and all stakeholders involved in combating human trafficking, with an emphasis on enforcement, prosecution, and provision of victim services. (66) NAPTIP also held consultations with stakeholders to develop a longer 5-year action plan. (29)
National Action Plan for Preventing and Countering Violent Extremism	Designed to end the recruitment and use of children by CJTF. Aims to promote the protection of children's rights, ensure that suspects under age 18 are treated in accordance with international law, and provide for disarmament, demobilization, and reintegration for children previously associated with CJTF. (67-69) In 2018, CJTF conducted awareness-raising activities to prevent child recruitment and cooperated with Borno state officials and the UN Country Task Force on Monitoring and Reporting during verification and screening procedures, resulting in the release of 833 children, some as young as 11 years old. (24,28,29)

† Policy was approved during the reporting period.

‡ The government had other policies that may have addressed child labor issues or had an impact on child labor. (70)

Although the Government of Nigeria has adopted policies on human trafficking and the use of children in armed conflict, research found no evidence of a policy on other worst forms of child labor since the conclusion of the National Policy on Child Labor in 2017.

VI. SOCIAL PROGRAMS TO ADDRESS CHILD LABOR

In 2018, the government funded and participated in programs that include the goal of eliminating or preventing child labor (Table 10). However, gaps exist in these social programs, including the adequacy of efforts to address the problem in all sectors.

Table 10. Key Social Programs to Address Child Labor

Program	Description
Decent Work Country Program II (2015–2018)	ILO-implemented project in coordination with the government that aims to combat child labor, including its worst forms. Aims to build government capacity to conduct child labor surveys and establish community-based child labor monitoring systems. (42) In 2018, under this program, ILO supported capacity-building workshops in six areas; continued implementation of the Freedom of Movement of Persons and Migration in West Africa Project (2013–2020); and began implementing a regional project titled Accelerating Action for the Elimination of Child Labor in Supply Chains in Africa, which will focus on the gold and cocoa sectors. (71)
NAPTIP Shelters for Human Trafficking Victims†	Government-funded program that operates 10 shelters in Nigeria, with a total capacity of 315 victims. Shelters provide legal, medical, and psychological services, as well as vocational training and business management skills. (4,14) Continued to provide services to victims in 2018. (29)
Measurement, Awareness-Raising, and Policy Engagement Project on Child Labor and Forced Labor	USDOL-funded project implemented by ILO to conduct research and develop new survey methodologies, improve awareness, strengthen policies and government capacity, and promote partnerships to combat child labor and forced labor. Additional information is available on the USDOL website. (72) In 2018, completed data collection on forced child labor in conflict zones in three countries, including Nigeria. (73)
World Bank-funded Programs	Projects which aim to improve access to education. Includes: National Social Safety Nets Project (2016–2022), a $50 million project that aims to provide primary school lunches and offer conditional cash transfers based on children's enrollment; Nigeria Partnership for Education Project (2015–2019), a $100 million project that aims to improve access and quality of education in selected states, particularly for girls; and the Better Education Service Delivery for All (BESDA) (2017–2022), a $611 million project which aims to increase access to education for out-of-school youth and improve literacy. (74-76) In 2018, as part of BESDA, provided cash transfers to 256,000 households in 13 states, awarded 15,221 grants to primary schools, and disbursed 15 grants to focus states. (77-79)
Safe Schools Initiative	Donor-funded program implemented by the government and international organizations that aims to improve access to education in northeastern Nigeria. (25,80,81) In 2018, signed the letter of endorsement for the Safe Schools Declaration, which commits the government to take steps to decrease the likelihood that schools, students, and teachers will be attacked. (24,82)

† Program is funded by the Government of Nigeria.

‡ The government had other social programs that may have included the goal of eliminating or preventing child labor. (83)

NAPTIP received $715,100 for victim care in 2018, more than a threefold increase from its 2017 allocation, and the government appropriated $3.8 million to provide training and education materials to discourage vulnerable youth from becoming victims of human trafficking. (8) However, this funding was insufficient to address the full scope of the problem, and research found no evidence of programs to specifically address children engaged in agriculture, quarrying, commercial sexual exploitation, domestic work, and illicit activities.

VII. SUGGESTED GOVERNMENT ACTIONS TO ELIMINATE CHILD LABOR

Based on the reporting above, suggested actions are identified that would advance the elimination of child labor in Nigeria (Table 11).

Table 11. Suggested Government Actions to Eliminate Child Labor

Area	Suggested Action	Year(s) Suggested
Legal Framework	Raise the minimum age for work to the age up to which education is compulsory; ensure that national legislation on the minimum age for work is consistent; and that all children are protected, including those who are self-employed.	2012 – 2018
	Ensure that provisions related to light work conform to international standards.	2009 – 2018
	Ensure that the types of work determined to be hazardous for children are prohibited by law or regulation for all children under age 18.	2009 – 2018
	Ensure that using, procuring, and offering a child for the production and trafficking of drugs are criminally prohibited in all states.	2015 – 2018
	Ensure that the law criminally prohibits the recruitment of children under age 18 by non-state armed groups.	2016 – 2018
	Amend the Terrorism Prevention Act to prohibit the punishment of children for their association with armed groups.	2016 – 2018

Area	Suggested Action	Year(s) Suggested
Enforcement	Publish information on the training of labor inspectors and criminal investigators, as well as other enforcement data, including whether targeted routine inspections were conducted and if penalties were imposed for violations related to the worst forms of child labor.	2009 – 2018
	Significantly increase the number of labor inspectors to meet the ILO's technical advice. Ensure that labor inspectors receive sufficient resources to enforce child labor laws.	2016 – 2018
	Ensure that a mechanism exists for enforcing existing protections for children working in the informal sector.	2010 – 2018
	Cease the practice of detaining children associated with armed groups for prolonged periods of time and refer these children to social services providers.	2015 – 2018
Coordination	Ensure that all coordinating bodies are active and able to carry out their mandates as intended.	2018
Government Policies	Adopt a policy that addresses all relevant worst forms of child labor, including the commercial sexual exploitation of children and forced child labor in granite, gravel, and cocoa production.	2018
Social Programs	Ensure that all states adopt programs to offer free education and expand existing programs that provide funds to vulnerable children, especially girls, to cover school fees and the cost of materials.	2014 – 2018
	Ensure an adequate number of trained teachers and provide sufficient educational infrastructure for children, particularly girls, to access schools. Remove all armed groups and forces from schools and compounds.	2015 – 2018
	Establish and expand programs that prevent and remove children from child labor in agriculture, quarrying, armed conflict, commercial sexual exploitation, domestic work, and illicit activities.	2009 – 2018

Although research found no evidence that child labor exists in Niue, the government made a minimal advancement in efforts to eliminate the worst forms of child labor in 2018. The government implemented the United Nations Pacific Strategy, which includes economic development strategies, including eliminating child labor and the worst forms of child labor. However, the government has not established adequate legal protections to prevent the worst forms of child labor. The law does not criminally prohibit the use, procuring, or offering of a child for prostitution, the production of pornography, or pornographic performances, or the use of children for illicit activities, including for the production and trafficking of drugs. In addition, Niue has not established a minimum age for work and lacks a law that prohibits hazardous occupations and activities for children.

I. PREVALENCE AND SECTORAL DISTRIBUTION OF CHILD LABOR

Research found no evidence that child labor exists in Niue.

II. LEGAL FRAMEWORK FOR CHILD LABOR

Niue is self-governing in free association with New Zealand and is fully responsible for its internal affairs. (1) Since 1988, no treaty signed, ratified, accepted, approved, or acceded to by New Zealand extends to Niue, unless it was done expressly on behalf of Niue. (2) Niue has ratified one key international convention concerning child labor (Table 1).

Table 1. Ratification of International Conventions on Child Labor

Convention	Ratification
 ILO C. 138, Minimum Age
 ILO C. 182, Worst Forms of Child Labor
 UN CRC	✓
 UN CRC Optional Protocol on Armed Conflict
 UN CRC Optional Protocol on the Sale of Children, Child Prostitution and Child Pornography
 Palermo Protocol on Trafficking in Persons

The government has established laws and regulations related to child labor (Table 2). However, gaps exist in Niue's legal framework to adequately protect children from the worst forms of child labor, including the prohibition of using children in illicit activities.

Table 2. Laws and Regulations on Child Labor

Standard	Meets International Standards	Age	Legislation
Minimum Age for Work	No

Although Niue's Public Service Regulations prohibit the permanent employment of any person under age 18 in public service, Niue has not established a minimum age of work in the private sector. (8,9) Niue has not determined the types of work that are hazardous for children. Niue also does not prohibit slavery or slavery-like practices such as forced labor. (8) Niue's trafficking provision does not clearly criminalize domestic trafficking or trafficking of children in the absence of force, fraud, or coercion. (3) Niue does not criminalize the use, procurement, or offering of children for prostitution, pornography, or pornographic performances. Niue does not criminalize the use of children in illicit activities, including in the production and trafficking of drugs. (8) There are no armed forces in Niue. New Zealand is responsible for the defense of the territory at its request and consultation. (7)

III. ENFORCEMENT OF LAWS ON CHILD LABOR

The government has established relevant institutional mechanisms for the enforcement of laws and regulations on child labor (Table 3).

Table 3. Agencies Responsible for Child Labor Law Enforcement

Organization/Agency	Role
Niue Police Department	Enforces all laws, including those related to child labor, on behalf of the Government of Niue. (10,11)
Department of Justice	Investigates crimes, including cases involving the worst forms of child labor. (10)

Labor Law Enforcement

As there is no evidence of a problem, there appears to be no need for labor law enforcement actions to address child labor.

Criminal Law Enforcement

As there is no evidence of a problem, there appears to be no need for criminal law enforcement actions to address child labor.

IV. COORDINATION OF GOVERNMENT EFFORTS ON CHILD LABOR

As there is no evidence of a problem, there appears to be no need for mechanisms to coordinate efforts to address child labor. However, the Government of Niue has established mechanisms to coordinate efforts to prevent child labor (Table 4).

Table 4. Key Mechanisms to Coordinate Government Efforts on Child Labor

Coordinating Body	Role & Description
National Coordinating Committee	Coordinates the implementation of the UN CRC, monitoring and implementing child protection policies at the national level. (2)

V. GOVERNMENT POLICIES ON CHILD LABOR

As there is no evidence of a problem, there appears to be no need for policies to address child labor. However, the Government of Niue has established a policy related to child labor (Table 5).

Table 5. Key Policies Related to Child Labor

Policy	Description
United Nations Pacific Strategy (2018–2022)†	A multinational strategic framework program consisting of 14 South Pacific nations to address, develop, and implement strategic economic development priorities in the South Pacific, including eliminating child labor and the worst forms of child labor. (12)

† Policy was approved during the reporting period.

VI. SOCIAL PROGRAMS TO ADDRESS CHILD LABOR

As there is no evidence of a problem, there appears to be no need for programs to address child labor.

VII. SUGGESTED GOVERNMENT ACTIONS TO ELIMINATE CHILD LABOR

Based on the reporting above, the following actions would advance the continued prevention of child labor in Niue (Table 6).

Table 6. Suggested Government Actions to Eliminate Child Labor

Area	Suggested Action	Year(s) Suggested
Legal Framework	Establish a minimum age for work of at least age 15 that equals the compulsory age of education.	2013 – 2018
	Establish age 18 as the minimum age for hazardous work and determine the types of hazardous work prohibited for children under age 18 in consultation with employers' and workers' organizations.	2013 – 2018
	Ensure that laws criminally prohibit trafficking of children domestically and internationally for commercial sexual exploitation and forced labor, and do not require the use of force to be established for the crime of trafficking.	2016 – 2018
	Ensure that laws criminally prohibit the use, procuring, and offering of a child for prostitution, the production of pornography, and pornographic performances.	2016 – 2018
	Ensure that laws criminally prohibit the use of children in illicit activities, including the production and trafficking of drugs.	2013 – 2018
	Ensure that the law criminally prohibits the recruitment of children under age 18 into non-state armed groups.	2016 – 2018
	Ensure that laws criminally prohibit forced labor, including debt bondage, the sale and trafficking of children, and slavery.	2016 – 2018

Although research found no evidence that child labor exists on Norfolk Island, the government made no advancement in efforts to prevent the worst forms of child labor in 2018. The legal framework does not have a minimum age for work for children. In addition, the law does not fully protect children from commercial sexual exploitation or hazardous work.

I. PREVALENCE AND SECTORAL DISTRIBUTION OF CHILD LABOR

Research found no evidence that child labor exists in Norfolk Island. (1)

II. LEGAL FRAMEWORK FOR CHILD LABOR

Norfolk Island is included as part of the territory of the Australian Commonwealth, which provides for its defense. (2-5) All legislation of the Federal Parliament applies, unless specifically excluded. (4) Because Australia has ratified most key international conventions concerning child labor, the following conventions apply to Norfolk Island (Table 1).

Table 1. Ratification of International Conventions on Child Labor

	Convention	Ratification

The Norfolk Island Employment Act 1988 and the Norfolk Island Criminal Code remain in force. (1,5-7) The government has established laws and regulations related to child labor (Table 2). However, gaps exist in Norfolk Island's legal framework to adequately protect children from the worst forms of child labor, including the minimum age for work.

Table 2. Laws and Regulations on Child Labor

Prohibition of Child Trafficking	No		Sections 271.1A, 271.4, and 271.7 of the Commonwealth Criminal Code Act of Australia (9)
Prohibition of Commercial Sexual Exploitation of Children	No		Section 93N of the Criminal Law Amendment Act; Articles 122–124 of the Norfolk Island Criminal Code 2007 (10,11); and Sections 271.4 and 271.7 of the Commonwealth Criminal Code of Australia (9)
Prohibition of Using Children in Illicit Activities	No		Articles 303 and 305 of the Norfolk Island Criminal Code 2007 (11); and Sections 309-310 of the Commonwealth Criminal Code of Australia (9)

* No conscription (12)

Norfolk Island does not have a minimum age for work. Under the Norfolk Island Employment Act, children younger than age 15 may begin working with certain limitations. (8,15) This is not in compliance with international standards because it allows for the employment of children under the age of 15. Further, as the minimum age for work is lower than the compulsory education age, children may be encouraged to leave school before the completion of compulsory education. (16) Laws related to child trafficking are not sufficient as the recruitment, harboring, transfer, and receipt (domestically) of children for forced labor and commercial sexual exploitation are not clearly prohibited. (9,10) Laws related to illicit activities do not criminalize the use, procuring, and offering of children for the production of drugs. (9,11)

In addition, the government is not in compliance with international standards because it does not have a minimum age for hazardous work and has not identified hazardous occupations prohibited for children. The prohibitions on commercial sexual exploitation do not protect all children under 18 and do not criminalize using a child for prostitution. (11)

III. ENFORCEMENT OF LAWS ON CHILD LABOR

Although there is no evidence of a problem, the Government of Australia has established institutional mechanisms for the enforcement of laws and regulations on child labor, which apply to Norfolk Island. Norfolk Island also has its own institutional mechanisms to enforce labor laws and regulations on child labor (Table 3).

Table 3. Agencies Responsible for Child Labor Law Enforcement

Organization/Agency	Role
Norfolk Island Labor Inspectors	Inspect places of employment for violations. Authorized to issue stop-work orders when violations are found, including child labor violations. (8)
Child Welfare Officers	Enforces laws prohibiting commercial sexual exploitation of children. Provides outreach and establishes community programs to raise awareness about commercial sexual exploitation of children. (17)
Australian Federal Police	Enforces criminal laws related to the worst forms of child labor. (18) In the case of the Child Protection Operations Team, coordinates and investigates online and multi-jurisdictional online child sex exploitation issues, including child pornography. (19) In the case of Human Trafficking Teams, investigates human trafficking for the purpose of transnational sexual and labor exploitation. (20)

Labor Law Enforcement

As there is no evidence of a problem, there appears to be no need for enforcement actions to address child labor.

Criminal Law Enforcement

As there is no evidence of a problem, there appears to be no need for criminal law enforcement actions to address child labor.

IV. COORDINATION OF GOVERNMENT EFFORTS ON CHILD LABOR

Although there is no evidence of a problem, the Government of Australia has established mechanisms to coordinate government efforts on child labor (Table 4).

Table 4. Key Mechanisms to Coordinate Government Efforts on Child Labor

Coordinating Body	Role & Description
Interdepartmental Committee on Human Trafficking	Chaired by the Attorney General's Department, deals with child labor issues, including its worst forms, from a human trafficking perspective. Consists of 10 government agencies, including the Australian Federal Police, Department of Employment, and Department of Foreign Affairs. (1,20) This Committee was active in 2018, but information regarding its work was unavailable for inclusion in this report. (21)

V. GOVERNMENT POLICIES ON CHILD LABOR

Although there is no evidence of a problem, the Government of Australia has established policies related to child labor (Table 5).

Table 5. Key Policies Related to Child Labor

Policy	Description
National Action Plan to Combat Human Trafficking and Slavery 2015–2019	Outlines cooperation and participation by government and non-government entities to combat human trafficking and slavery, including commercial sexual exploitation of children. (1,22) While this policy was in effect in 2018, research was unable to determine whether activities were undertaken to implement it during the reporting period.

VI. SOCIAL PROGRAMS TO ADDRESS CHILD LABOR

As there is no evidence of a problem, there appears to be no need for programs to address child labor.

VII. SUGGESTED GOVERNMENT ACTIONS TO ELIMINATE CHILD LABOR

Based on the reporting above, the following actions would advance the continued prevention of child labor in Norfolk Island (Table 6).

Table 6. Suggested Government Actions to Eliminate Child Labor

Area	Suggested Action	Year(s) Suggested
Legal Framework	Ensure that the minimum age for work is in compliance with international standards, including by ensuring that it is not lower than the compulsory age for education.	2016 – 2018
	Establish laws to prohibit children under age 18 from engaging in hazardous work and identify hazardous occupations and activities prohibited for children in consultation with employers' and workers' organizations.	2010 – 2018
	Ensure that child trafficking, including the recruitment, harboring, transfer, and receipt of children for forced labor and commercial sexual exploitation, is clearly criminalized both domestically and internationally.	2018
	Ensure that the law prohibits using, offering, and procuring a child under age 18 for commercial sexual exploitation, including prostitution.	2017 – 2018
	Ensure that laws related to illicit activities criminalize the use of children, including in the production of drugs.	2016 – 2018

In 2018, North Macedonia made a moderate advancement in efforts to eliminate the worst forms of child labor. The government amended the Labor Relations Act to prohibit children under the age of 15 or those who have not completed compulsory education from working, except under limited circumstances. Additionally, funding was sufficient for both labor and criminal law enforcement to combat child labor, and the National Coordination Body for Protection of Children from Abuse and Neglect was reconstituted. However, children in North Macedonia engage in the worst forms of child labor, including in forced begging and commercial sexual exploitation. The law's minimum age protections do not apply to children who are self-employed or working outside formal employment relationships. In addition, labor inspectors are unevenly distributed across the country, causing some businesses to be inspected more than others.

I. PREVALENCE AND SECTORAL DISTRIBUTION OF CHILD LABOR

Children in North Macedonia engage in the worst forms of child labor, including in forced begging and commercial sexual exploitation. (1,2-7,8) Table 1 provides key indicators on children's work and education in North Macedonia. Data on some of these indicators are not available from the sources used in this report.

Table 1. Statistics on Children's Work and Education

Children	Age	Percent
Working (% and population)	5 to 14	18.3 (44,161)
Attending School (%)	5 to 14	86.8
Combining Work and School (%)	7 to 14	19.5
Primary Completion Rate (%)		91.3

Source for primary completion rate: Data from 2015, published by UNESCO Institute for Statistics, 2019. (9)

Source for all other data: International Labor Organization's analysis of statistics from Multiple Indicator Cluster Survey 4 (MICS 4), 2011. (10)

Based on a review of available information, Table 2 provides an overview of children's work by sector and activity.

Table 2. Overview of Children's Work by Sector and Activity

Sector/Industry	Activity
Agriculture	Farming, activities unknown (1,3)
Services	Street work, including vending small items, cleaning vehicle windshields, scavenging, and begging (4-6,11)
Categorical Worst Forms of Child Labor‡	Commercial sexual exploitation, sometimes as a result of human trafficking (1,2,8,12)
	Forced begging, sometimes as a result of human trafficking (1,8,12)
	Domestic work as a result of human trafficking (2,7,13-15)
	Forced labor as wait staff and dancers in restaurants, bars, and nightclubs (16,2,15)

‡ Child labor understood as the worst forms of child labor per se under Article 3(a)–(c) of ILO C. 182.

Most children involved in child labor in North Macedonia engage in street work, including vending small items, cleaning vehicle windshields, and begging. (1,16,5,6) Some children engage in begging to help support their families, while others are forced to beg. The majority of children involved in street work are of the Roma, Balkan Egyptian, and Ashkali ethnicities. (1,3,5-8) Although North Macedonia has data on child labor from 2011, it does not include information on children's work by sector. (1,6)

North Macedonia

MODERATE ADVANCEMENT

The majority of victims of child trafficking in North Macedonia are girls, between the ages of 12 to 18, who have been trafficked domestically for commercial sexual exploitation and forced labor in restaurants, bars, and nightclubs. (1,2,8,13,17) Roma girls, especially, are also trafficked for forced marriages in which they are subject to sexual and labor exploitation. (1,2,8,13,14,18)

Unaccompanied children from Afghanistan, Iraq, Iran, Syria, and other states continued to transit through the country, either legally or illegally, and were vulnerable to trafficking for labor and commercial sexual exploitation. (8,12,19,20) In 2018, the IOM identified 3,132 migrants transiting the country illegally, of which 20 percent were children and 8 percent unaccompanied. (2,20)

Increased government funding for textbooks and programs to eliminate barriers to education has increased school attendance rates among Roma children. (21-23) However, the government was unable to fully meet Roma children's need for teaching in Romani due to a shortage of qualified teachers, and the number of Romani children who complete school is still low. (17,23,24) Birth certification is sometimes required for attending school in North Macedonia, and some Roma children had difficulty accessing education due to a lack of birth registration and identity cards. (3,25,24) Classes for children with intellectual disabilities have disproportionately high numbers of Roma children due to discrimination, based in part on faulty screening procedures for assessing intellectual disabilities. (17,21)

II. LEGAL FRAMEWORK FOR CHILD LABOR

North Macedonia has ratified all key international conventions concerning child labor (Table 3).

Table 3. Ratification of International Conventions on Child Labor

The government has established laws and regulations related to child labor (Table 4). However, gaps exist in North Macedonia's legal framework to adequately protect children from child labor, including the minimum age for work.

Prohibition of Compulsory Recruitment of Children by (State) Military	N/A*		Article 62 of the Law on Defense (31)
Prohibition of Military Recruitment by Non-state Armed Groups	Yes		Articles 122, 322-a, and 404 of the Criminal Code (29)
Compulsory Education Age	Yes	16	Articles 4, 5, 47, and 172 of the Law on Primary Education; Article 3 of the Law on Secondary Education (32,33)
Free Public Education	Yes		Article 44 of the Constitution (26)

* No conscription (31)

In 2018, Parliament expanded protections for children in the Labor Relations Act. Now children under age 15 or children who have not completed compulsory education cannot work, except in activities that are legal, do not harm their education, health and safety, and for a specific number of hours. (27) During the reporting period, the government also passed amendments to the Law on Social Protection which, during 2018 and 2019, aims to facilitate access to allowances for children, including children with disabilities, establish preschools at the municipal levels, and promote inclusive education. (34-36)

The Criminal Code was amended to ensure children who committed crimes under duress while being trafficked will not be punished for such acts. (2,29,37)

However, the minimum age for work is not in compliance with international standards because the law's minimum age protections do not apply to children who are self-employed or working outside formal employment relationships. (5,27) In addition, because the minimum age for work is lower than the compulsory education age, children may be encouraged to leave school before the completion of compulsory education.

III. ENFORCEMENT OF LAWS ON CHILD LABOR

The government has established institutional mechanisms for the enforcement of laws and regulations on child labor (Table 5). However, gaps exist within the operations of the Ministry of Labor and Social Policy (MLSP) that may hinder adequate enforcement of their child labor laws.

Table 5. Agencies Responsible for Child Labor Law Enforcement

Organization/Agency	Role
Ministry of Labor and Social Policy (MLSP)	Works with the police to seek out street children in need of assistance and tracks cases of forced child labor through the Department of Social Inclusion. (38,39) Registers complaints about hazardous child labor and investigates children's participation in street work through 30 Centers for Social Work (CSWs) and the Ombudsman's Office, which includes a special unit for the investigation of violations of child rights and refers complaints to the State Labor Inspectorate. (3,5,11,40) When child labor is detected, the child is removed, put under the care of a CSW, and interviewed by a social worker. The child is then either returned to their family or taken to a safe house. (11) CSWs serve to counsel, educate, and assist victims of trafficking in persons. (3)
State Labor Inspectorate (SLI)	Enforces child labor laws and transmits cases of suspected criminal law violations to the Public Prosecutor. Inspectors conduct a minimum of 60 target and compliant-based cases per month. (39,40)

Organization/Agency	Role
Ministry of Interior (MOI)	Enforces laws related to hazardous child labor. Investigates cases of child trafficking, commercial sexual exploitation, and the use of children in illicit activities through its special police unit for organized crime, corruption, and human trafficking. (40) Mobile teams continued their operations throughout 2018 in Skopje, Kumanovo, Tetovo, Bitola, and Gevgelija to identify street children and remove them from hazardous situations. (1,17,19,41) In April 2018, an anti-human trafficking task force, established by the National Commission for Trafficking in Persons and Illegal Migration, was established and operational with 53 members. (2)
Public Prosecutor's Office	Prosecutes criminal law violations, including those involving the worst forms of child labor. (42) Has an Organized Crime and Corruption Unit with four prosecutors dedicated to cases of child abuse and the worst forms of child labor. The Skopje Basic Prosecutor's Office has eight prosecutors for child abuse cases. (15,43)
Office of the National Referral Mechanism	Refers potential cases of child victims of human trafficking to law enforcement authorities for investigation and refers potential victims to social services. (38,43)

Labor Law Enforcement

In 2018, labor law enforcement agencies in North Macedonia took actions to combat child labor (Table 6). However, gaps exist within the operations of the MLSP that may hinder adequate labor law enforcement, including human resource allocation.

North Macedonia's State Labor Inspectorate (SLI) is responsible for enforcing all labor laws, including laws on child labor, in all sectors of the formal economy and can assess fines at any point of the inspection. (3) While the SLI does not have a specific strategy for conducting inspections, unannounced inspections in all sectors are permitted, including on legally-registered private farms. (6,44) Inspectors can also inspect private homes and farms with a valid warrant. (3)

All labor inspectors received trainings on labor laws, including on child labor. The Council of Europe trained 44 labor inspectors, Ministry of Interior officials, mobile teams, and social workers on building the capacity for identification, assistance, and referrals of victims of human trafficking. (2,17) In addition, the National Commission for Trafficking in Persons and Illegal Migration (National Trafficking in Persons Commission) trained labor inspectors and social workers from 30 Centers for Social Work (CSWs) on human trafficking for the purposes of labor exploitation. (2,17)

During the reporting period, the number of labor inspectors decreased from 74 to 54 due to a large number of retirements. (1) While funding was considered sufficient for inspectors to perform their regular duties, government officials reported that the number of labor inspectors is insufficient to cover all of the formal businesses in the country, and some businesses are inspected more often than others because of the uneven distribution of inspectors throughout the country. (1) In addition, sources reported that labor inspectors did not consistently identify victims of human trafficking properly. (2,17)

As in previous years, the MLSP lacks a central database; however, inspection results are disseminated throughout relevant departments within the MLSP. (17)

Criminal Law Enforcement

In 2018, criminal law enforcement agencies in North Macedonia took actions to combat child labor (Table 7). However, gaps exist within the operations of the criminal enforcement agencies that may hinder adequate criminal law enforcement, including investigation planning.

Table 7. Criminal Law Enforcement Efforts Related to Child Labor

In North Macedonia, legal requirements mandate that public prosecutors receive a 24-month training on child labor, including on forced child labor, child trafficking, the recruitment and use of child soldiers, and the use of children in illicit activities. (17) Police investigators receive trainings yearly, when new legislation is passed, and refresher trainings. (1) During the reporting period, judges and prosecutors received trainings on various forms of human trafficking, including for labor exploitation. In addition, the Organization for Security and Co-operation in Europe provided a training on human trafficking guidelines for police officers, prosecutors, and judges. (17) Police officers also received specialized trainings on human trafficking along migrant routes and identification of vulnerable populations. (2)

Investigators and prosecutors worked together to convict four separate individuals in two different cases in 2018 for trafficking of children for sexual and labor exploitation. (2)

In 2018, criminal investigators reported sufficient resources to adequately perform their investigations. (1) However, sources reported that border agents were unable to properly identify victims of human trafficking and proper coordination was lacking at the local municipal levels. (2,17) In addition, referral of cases between the National Referral Mechanism, CSWs, and police lacked coordination. (2)

IV. COORDINATION OF GOVERNMENT EFFORTS ON CHILD LABOR

The government has established mechanisms to coordinate its efforts to address child labor (Table 8). However, gaps exist that hinder the adequate coordination of efforts to address child labor, including efficacy in accomplishing mandates.

Table 8. Key Mechanisms to Coordinate Government Efforts on Child Labor

Coordinating Body	Role & Description
National Coordination Body for Protection of Children from Abuse and Neglect	Oversees implementation of the National Action Plan for Prevention and Countering Abuse and Neglect of Children. Led by MLSP. (1) Comprises representatives from other ministries, civil society, WHO, and UNICEF country offices. (1,3,45) Reconstituted and met in 2018 with an increased focus on child labor abuse and coordination among government agencies. Completed a report. (1,17,23)
National Commission for Trafficking in Persons and Illegal Migration (National Trafficking in Persons Commission)	Coordinates the work of all institutions involved in combating human trafficking. Led by the National Anti-Trafficking in Persons Coordinator with 14 representatives from 9 governmental institutions under the MOI. (2,3,40) Includes the Sub-Committee for the Fight Against Trafficking in Children, which serves as an advisory body to the National Trafficking in Persons Commission on all forms of child trafficking. (2,7,40,46)

In 2018, the National Commission for the Protection of the Rights of Children was disbanded due to inactivity. (1,17)

In 2018, the National Trafficking in Persons Commission held quarterly meetings and provided guidance to local anti-human trafficking commissions to implement their local action plans, among other activities. However, sources reported that the local commissions needed to build their capacity to adequately combat human trafficking. (2)

V. GOVERNMENT POLICIES ON CHILD LABOR

The government has established policies related to child labor (Table 9). However, policy gaps exist that hinder efforts to address child labor, including implementing a new national child labor action plan.

Table 9. Key Policies Related to Child Labor

Policy	Description
National Action Plan against Trafficking in Persons and Illegal Migration (2017–2020)	Focuses on preventing human trafficking by reducing the vulnerability of at-risk populations, improves identification of victims, and increases efforts to combat human trafficking for forced labor, including forced child begging. (3,12,47) Active in 2018. (1,17)
National Strategy for the Fight Against Poverty and Social Exclusion (2010–2020)	Addresses social protection, social inclusion, health, education, and employment of children. (40) Aims to increase birth registration for Roma and other minorities, expand patrol services to identify and support street children, and improve the provision of social services for children involved in street work and begging. Implemented by the MLSP. (40,48)
National Action Plan for Education (2016–2020)†	Aims to expand inclusive education and improve education for the Roma community. Seeks to increase the number of Roma students in preschools and elementary schools and decrease the number of Roma students in primary schools for children with special needs. (49) Includes a Strategy for 2018–2025. (17,50) In 2018, enrolled approximately 510 Roma children in schools and introduced a system to monitor the development of children with disabilities. (51-53)

† Policy was approved during the reporting period.

During the reporting period, the government added funding specifications to the goals in the National Strategy and National Action Plan against Trafficking in Persons and Illegal Migration (2017–2020). (1) The funding allocations will help hold the responsible ministries accountable for combating child trafficking. (1) The government also passed the National Action Plan for Coordination of Children from Abuse and Neglect (2019-2021) in 2019. (23)

Research was unable to determine whether activities were undertaken to implement the National Strategy for the Fight Against Poverty and Social Exclusion (2010–2020). (17)

Although the Government of North Macedonia has adopted policies aimed to combat child trafficking, research found no evidence of a policy on other worst forms of child labor. The National Coordination of Children from Abuse and Neglect is preparing a 5-year strategy to protect children from violence. (23)

VI. SOCIAL PROGRAMS TO ADDRESS CHILD LABOR

In 2018, the government funded and participated in programs that include the goal of eliminating or preventing child labor (Table 10). However, gaps exist in these social programs, including funding and adequacy of programs to address the full scope of the problem.

Table 10. Key Social Programs to Address Child Labor

Program	Description
MLSP Day Centers, Shelter, and Social Worker Trainings†	Operates 2 day centers that can accommodate 60 children and partially funds 2 other centers, operated by NGOs, that can accommodate 80 children. (3,11,54) Supports a transit center for street children. (54) Runs an ongoing program to instruct foster families on how to accommodate child trafficking victims. (11) In 2018, increased the number of foster families. (1) Provides counseling, education, and assistance with registration documents to street children and child human trafficking victims at 30 CSW facilities. (14,40)
“Red Button” Hotline	MOI-operated website application to report child abuse, human trafficking, hate crimes, or violence. Created to improve identification and timely referral of human trafficking cases, especially among migrants. (2) Active in 2018. (17)
Center for Victims of Human Trafficking and Transit Center for Foreign Victims of Trafficking†	MLSP funds and NGO Open Gate/La Strada operates the Center for Victims of Human Trafficking shelter that provides housing, basic services, and reintegration services to victims. (17) The MOI supports the Transit Center for Foreign Victims of Trafficking, operated by NGOs. (1,3,55) In 2018, MLSP increased funding to the Center for Victims of Human Trafficking and 31 individuals were provided with assistance. (17)
UNICEF Projects	UNICEF partners with the government and NGOs to provide projects for child protection, detection and referral of child victims of violence, and educational integration of vulnerable children, including Roma and migrant children. (17) These projects include the Program for the Protection of Children Against Violence (2016–2020), the UNICEF Country Program (2016–2020), and the Home for Every Child Program. (11,17,56,57) Active in 2018. (17)
Inclusion of Roma Children in Preschool Education†	MLSP project implemented in cooperation with the Roma Education Fund and 19 government units. Part of the 2014–2020 Roma Strategy. (41,58) Aims to support the integration of Roma children by increasing the number of Roma children in preschool. (3,11) MLSP, MOI, and Ministry of Justice are all part of the project work plan. (59) Held workshops for teachers in 2018. (1,23)
Educational Seminars for Roma Students and Teachers	Provides educational seminars to Roma students, teachers, and NGOs on the associated risks of forced marriages between minors. (1) The program continued its activities in 2018. (1)

† Program is funded by the Government of North Macedonia.

‡ The government had other social programs that may have included the goal of eliminating or preventing child labor. (1,2,60-62)

Programs funded by donors typically were not continued by the government after funding expired. (11,7,19,23) Also, day centers and other programs have not reduced child begging or the number of children on the streets, especially among Roma children, suggesting that existing programs were insufficient in combating child labor. (3,11,19,22,23,59)

VII. Suggested Government Actions to Eliminate Child Labor

Based on the reporting above, suggested actions are identified that would advance the elimination of child labor in North Macedonia (Table 11).

Table 11. Suggested Government Actions to Eliminate Child Labor

Area	Suggested Action	Year(s) Suggested
Legal Framework	Ensure that labor law protections apply to all children, including self-employed children and children working outside formal employment relationships.	2015 – 2018
	Raise the minimum age for work to the age up to which education is compulsory.	2018
Enforcement	Ensure that labor inspections are conducted equally throughout the country to promote compliance with child labor laws in all geographical regions through a specific strategy.	2017 – 2018
	Provide labor inspectors with an electronic system to record and share data on inspections with the entity receiving the citation, and publish the information.	2009 – 2018
	Ensure law enforcement agencies proactively identify child trafficking victims and border agents coordinate to properly identify victims of human trafficking.	2015 – 2018
	Publish information on the total number of prosecutions initiated for criminal law enforcement.	2018

Area	Suggested Action	Year(s) Suggested
Coordination	Ensure that police, social workers from the Centers for Social Work, and National Referral Mechanism coordinate properly when referring cases of child labor.	2018
	Build the capacity of local commissions to adequately combat human trafficking.	2018
Government Policies	Ensure that the National Strategy for the Fight Against Poverty and Social Exclusion is active.	2018
	Create and implement a National Action Plan on Child Labor.	2017 – 2018
Social Programs	Conduct research to determine the activities carried out by children engaged in child labor, including those in street work and those subjected to commercial sexual exploitation	2013 – 2018
	Reduce barriers to education by increasing the number of teachers who can provide education in the Romani language and eliminate the practice of placing Romani children in schools for children with intellectual disabilities based on ethnicity. Make additional efforts to register Roma children at birth.	2014 – 2018
	Increase funding dedicated to combating child labor, and ensure that child beggars are taken off the streets permanently.	2015 – 2018

In 2018, Oman made a moderate advancement in efforts to eliminate the worst forms of child labor. The Sultan of Oman promulgated a new Penal Code that enhanced penalties related to commercial sexual exploitation of children. The National Committee for Combating Human Trafficking signed an agreement with the Oman Lawyers Association to allow attorneys to represent victims of human trafficking on a pro bono basis. The Committee also launched and began implementing a new National Action Plan for Combating Human Trafficking and conducted awareness-raising activities. Although research is limited, there is evidence that children in Oman engage in child labor, including in fishing and selling items in kiosks. The government lacks a reciprocal referral mechanism between the labor inspectorate and social services.

I. PREVALENCE AND SECTORAL DISTRIBUTION OF CHILD LABOR

Although research is limited, there is evidence that children in Oman engage in child labor, including in fishing and selling items in kiosks. (1,2) Table 1 provides key indicators on children's work and education in Oman. Data on some of these indicators are not available from the sources used in this report.

Table 1. Statistics on Children's Work and Education

Children	Age	Percent

Attending School (%)	5 to 14	Unavailable
Combining Work and School (%)	7 to 14	Unavailable
Primary Completion Rate (%)		107.6

Source for primary completion rate: Data from 2017, published by UNESCO Institute for Statistics, 2019. (3)

Source for all other data: Data were unavailable from ILO's analysis, 2019. (4)

Based on a review of available information, Table 2 provides an overview of children's work by sector and activity.

Table 2. Overview of Children's Work by Sector and Activity

Sector/Industry	Activity

	Begging† (5)

† Determined by national law or regulation as hazardous and, as such, relevant to Article 3(d) of ILO C. 182.

Limited evidence suggests that children with disabilities may face barriers to accessing education, because some school buses are not wheelchair accessible and there is a lack of resources to provide equal educational services to intellectually disabled students.

II. LEGAL FRAMEWORK FOR CHILD LABOR

Oman has ratified all key international conventions concerning child labor (Table 3).

MODERATE ADVANCEMENT

Table 3. Ratification of International Conventions on Child Labor

The government's laws and regulations are in line with relevant international standards (Table 4).

Table 4. Laws and Regulations on Child Labor

In January 2018, a new Penal Code was adopted and entered into force, repealing the previous Penal Code of 1974. (13) The new Penal Code increased penalties for some crimes, including increases in prison time, and added the amount of fines. Changes include increasing prison time from 5 to 10 years for inciting a child to commit prostitution, and from a minimum of 3 months to a minimum of 1 year for earning a living from a third party's engagement in prostitution. (13,17)

III. Enforcement of Laws on Child Labor

The government has established institutional mechanisms for the enforcement of laws and regulations on child labor (Table 5). However, gaps exist within the authority of the Ministry of Manpower that may hinder adequate enforcement of their child labor laws.

Table 5. Agencies Responsible for Child Labor Law Enforcement

Organization/Agency	Role
Ministry of Manpower	Monitors and enforces child labor laws, conducts labor inspections, and shares information with the Royal Oman Police on labor and criminal law violations when penalties are pursued. (6)
Ministry of Social Development	Enforces the Child Law, including by receiving complaints and referring cases to the Royal Oman Police and the Office of Public Prosecutor. (6)
Royal Oman Police	Monitors and enforces the Child Law, including its provisions related to child labor, and refers cases to the Office of Public Prosecutor. (6)
Office of Public Prosecutor	Prosecutes human trafficking and sexual exploitation cases in court with assistance from the Royal Oman Police. (6,18)
Child Protection Committee	Protects children from exploitation, receives complaints and reports of child labor, and investigates reported cases to determine whether children are engaged in prohibited activities or whether working has negative effects on their health or education. (6,19)

Labor Law Enforcement

In 2018, labor law enforcement agencies in Oman took actions to combat child labor (Table 6). However, gaps exist within the authority of the Ministry of Manpower that may hinder adequate labor law enforcement, including penalty assessment authorization.

In 2018, the Ministry of Manpower provided four refresher courses to inspectors, including on international labor standards and dispute resolution. A Ministry official stated that in Muscat governorate alone, the government conducted 3,593 labor inspections. (20)

Criminal Law Enforcement

In 2018, the government's criminal law enforcement agencies appeared to function adequately in addressing child labor (Table 7).

Table 7. Criminal Law Enforcement Efforts Related to Child Labor

In 2018, the government, in cooperation with UNODC, provided training to approximately 150 government officials. The trainings covered issues such as the mechanisms to implement the Law to Combat Human Trafficking, and techniques to investigate human trafficking cases. (24) The government investigated 11 cases of alleged human trafficking, initiated 5 prosecutions, and convicted 15 individuals. However, none of the officially reported cases involved child victims of trafficking. (25)

IV. COORDINATION OF GOVERNMENT EFFORTS ON CHILD LABOR

The government has established mechanisms to coordinate its efforts to address child labor (Table 8). However, gaps exist that hinder the effective coordination of efforts to address child labor, including the omission of the Ministry of Manpower from the National Committee on Implementing the UN CRC.

Table 8. Key Mechanisms to Coordinate Government Efforts on Child Labor

Coordinating Body	Role & Description
National Committee on Implementing the UN CRC	Led by the Ministry of Social Development, oversees the implementation of the UN CRC, including its provisions related to child labor and its worst forms. There are subcommittees in all 11 governorates. (6) Other members include three other state agencies. The Ministry of Manpower is not represented. (6) Research was unable to determine whether the National Committee on Implementing the UN CRC was active during the reporting period.
National Committee for Combating Human Trafficking	Oversees the National Plan for Combating Human Trafficking. Includes the Royal Oman Police and 10 other state agencies. (6) The Committee drafted the National Action Plan for Combating Human Trafficking, which was approved and adopted in March 2018. (23) In December 2018, the Committee signed an agreement with the Oman Lawyers Association to allow the Association to represent victims of human trafficking on a pro bono basis. (26)

V. GOVERNMENT POLICIES ON CHILD LABOR

The government has established policies related to child labor (Table 9). However, policy gaps exist that hinder efforts to address child labor, including covering all worst forms of child labor.

Table 9. Key Policies Related to Child Labor

Policy	Description
National Plan for Combating Human Trafficking (2018–2020)†	Aims to raise awareness among migrant workers on their rights and responsibilities and to raise awareness on countering human trafficking through leaflets, posters, websites, and social media. Established a human trafficking task force, including representatives from the Ministry of Manpower, the Royal Oman Police, the Ministry of Social Development, and other agencies, to follow up on cases of human trafficking. Established specialized human trafficking units in the Court of Appeals in Muscat and in the above-mentioned ministries. Regulates domestic work and allows for inspection of homes upon receipt of complaints from domestic workers; and provides annual training to government agencies and private companies on countering human trafficking. (27) In 2018, the government began implementing the action plan and established the interagency task force. The government also began raising awareness of human trafficking through broadcasting television interviews with police and prosecution officials. (20) In March 2019, the Ministry of Manpower released a video in Arabic and English that clarified the rights and responsibilities of migrant workers. (24) Migrant workers have the right to obtain a labor card, receive monthly wages and overtime rates, and file a complaint if, for example, they do not receive their payments on time. Migrant workers are responsible for respecting the laws and social customs in Oman; they can work only for the employer for whom they are authorized to work and may not leave that employer. (28)

† Policy was approved during the reporting period.

Although the Government of Oman has adopted the National Plan for Combatting Human Trafficking, research found no evidence of a policy to address all forms of child labor, including in farming and fishing.

VI. SOCIAL PROGRAMS TO ADDRESS CHILD LABOR

In 2018, the government funded and participated in programs that include the goal of eliminating or preventing child labor, which cover the main sectors where child labor has been identified in the country (Table 10).

Table 10. Key Social Programs to Address Child Labor

Program	Description
Social Security Cash Transfer Program†	Provides assistance to children in low-income families, including educational services. (19) The program continued in 2018 and the Oman Human Rights Commission helped families who had previously faced problems receiving subsidies access services. (20)

† Program is funded by the Government of Oman

In December 2018, the Oman Human Rights Commission declared that 2019 will be the Year of the Child, placing emphasis on training children and teachers on the Child Law so that children are aware of their rights and less vulnerable to exploitation. (20)

VII. SUGGESTED GOVERNMENT ACTIONS TO ELIMINATE CHILD LABOR

Based on the reporting above, suggested actions are identified that would advance the elimination of child labor in Oman (Table 11).

Table 11. Suggested Government Actions to Eliminate Child Labor

Area	Suggested Action	Year(s) Suggested
Enforcement	Collect and publish data on labor inspectorate funding, the number of inspections and those conducted at worksites, and whether targeted inspections were conducted.	2013 – 2018
	Authorize the inspectorate to assess penalties.	2017 – 2018
	Establish a referral mechanism between labor law enforcement and social services.	2014 – 2018
Coordination	Ensure that the National Committee on Implementing the UN CRC is able to carry out its intended mandate and that the Ministry of Manpower participates in the Committee.	2016 – 2018
Government Policies	Develop a national policy to address all forms of child labor.	2013 – 2018
Social Programs	Collect and publish data on the extent and nature of child labor to inform policies and programs.	2017 – 2018
	Ensure that all children have equal access to education, including the children of migrant workers and children with disabilities.	2011 – 2018

In 2018, Pakistan made a moderate advancement in efforts to eliminate the worst forms of child labor. All four provincial governments started conducting child labor surveys, which will constitute the first nationwide child labor survey since 1996. The federal government also passed the Prevention of Trafficking in Persons Act and convicted its first child pornography case. In addition, Khyber Pakhtunkhwa, Punjab, and Sindh provinces each adopted new policies that will address child labor. However, children in Pakistan engage in the worst forms of child labor, including in forced domestic work and in bonded labor in brick kilns and agriculture. Although the federal and provincial governments made meaningful efforts in all relevant areas during the reporting period, the federal government and Balochistan Province have not established a minimum age for work or hazardous work in compliance with international standards. In addition, provincial governments do not have the resources necessary to adequately enforce laws prohibiting child labor.

I. PREVALENCE AND SECTORAL DISTRIBUTION OF CHILD LABOR

Children in Pakistan engage in the worst forms of child labor, including in forced domestic work and in bonded labor in brick kilns and agriculture. (1,2) Table 1 provides key indicators on children's work and education in Pakistan. Data on some of these indicators are not available from the sources used in this report.

† Determined by national law or regulation as hazardous and, as such, relevant to Article 3(d) of ILO C. 182.

‡ Child labor understood as the worst forms of child labor per se under Article 3(a)–(c) of ILO C. 182.

Pakistan consists of four provinces—Balochistan, Khyber Pakhtunkhwa, Punjab, and Sindh—and the Islamabad Capital Territory, each of which is responsible for all social services, including those related to labor, within their areas. Law enforcement responsibilities are shared between the federal and provincial governments. (45) When available, data and information are included for the federal and provincial governments in this report.

In 2018, all four provincial governments began conducting child labor surveys, which together will constitute a nationwide child labor survey. The surveys were funded in 2017 and are on track to be completed in 2019. (8) The most recent national child labor survey was conducted in 1996, and the lack of recent data has hampered the ability of the federal and provincial governments to accurately assess the scope and prevalence of child labor. (46)

Many child domestic workers are working under conditions of forced labor, including debt bondage, sexual assault, and extreme physical abuse. (2,25) Some children work with their families as bonded laborers in the production of bricks. (6,37,47) In addition, non-state armed militant groups forcibly recruited and used children in terrorist activities, including suicide attacks. These militant groups include Tehreek-e-Taliban Pakistan, and reports state that children were recruited from madrassas (Islamic religious schools). (8,48)

Many children face barriers to accessing education due to high rates of teacher absenteeism, inadequate facilities, lack of transportation, and corporal punishment, which may deter children from attending school. (8,49,50) Moreover, while reports state that the total number of terrorist attacks have decreased since 2009, armed groups and extremist groups continue to attack and threaten students, teachers, and schools, disrupting children’s access to education. (48,51)

II. LEGAL FRAMEWORK FOR CHILD LABOR

Pakistan has ratified most key international conventions concerning child labor (Table 3).

The government has established laws and regulations related to child labor (Table 4). However, gaps exist in Pakistan's legal framework to adequately protect children from the worst forms of child labor, including the minimum age for work and hazardous work.

* No conscription (75)

The federal and provincial governments have concurrent jurisdiction over labor legislation. (80) According to the Constitution, both federal and provincial governments can pass legislation on criminal law. (81)

In 2018, the federal government enacted the Prevention of Trafficking in Persons Act, which brings the law into compliance with international standards by exempting children from the requirement that force, fraud, or coercion must be proven to constitute trafficking and by including all trafficking for forced labor and commercial sexual exploitation. (67) In addition, the National Assembly passed a bill entitled the Islamabad Capital Territory Prohibition of Employment of Children Act, which would prohibit the employment of children age 14 and younger in any establishment, including agricultural and household establishments. The bill would also prohibit the employment of adolescents ages 15–18 from employment in hazardous work and establishes a schedule of hazardous work prohibited for adolescents. (82) The Senate must approve the bill before it can be enacted. (8) Lastly, a law banning domestic work for children under age 15 in Punjab Province came into effect in early 2019. (83,84)

However, Pakistan's federal and provincial laws are not completely in compliance with international standards on child labor. The federal government's minimum age for work is not in compliance with international standards because it does not extend to informal employment. Sindh Province's laws setting the minimum age for work also do not extend to informal work or factories that employ fewer than 10 persons. (61,62) The federal minimum age for hazardous work also does not comply with international standards because it is below age 18. (64) Balochistan Province has not established a minimum age for employment or for hazardous work, and, therefore, federal child employment laws apply in Balochistan. (46,64) In addition, hazardous work prohibitions for the federal government and the Khyber Pakhtunkhwa, Punjab, and Sindh provinces do not cover brickmaking and domestic work, for which there is evidence that children are exposed to environmental health hazards in brickmaking and physical abuse in domestic work. (19,26,56,60,63,64)

Federal law does not prohibit the use of children for prostitution or pornographic performances. (66) In addition, federal and provincial laws, with the exception of Punjab provincial law, do not prohibit the use of children in drug production and drug trafficking. (60,72) The federal and provincial governments, with the exception of Punjab Province, have not enacted laws that prohibit the recruitment and use of children by non-state groups for armed conflict. (11)

III. ENFORCEMENT OF LAWS ON CHILD LABOR

The government has established institutional mechanisms for the enforcement of laws and regulations on child labor (Table 5). However, gaps exist within the operations of the provincial labor inspectorates that may hinder adequate enforcement of their child labor laws.

Table 5. Agencies Responsible for Child Labor Law Enforcement

Organization/Agency	Role
Provincial Labor Inspectors	Inspects industrial areas and markets to identify child labor violations, enforces provincial labor laws, and pursues legal action against employers. (11)
Labor Courts	Assesses penalties for labor violations. (8,85,86)
Provincial and Regional Police	Enforces violations of federal and provincial laws, including the Pakistan Penal Code, Prevention of Trafficking in Persons Act, and the Bonded Labor System (Abolition) Act, concerning the worst forms of child labor. Refer children taken into custody to Child Protection Officers. (11,83)
District Vigilance Committees	Implements the Bonded Labor System (Abolition) Act and assists in rehabilitating bonded laborers. Reports to the District Magistrate. (11,65)
Federal Investigation Agency, Anti-Trafficking Unit	Enforces transnational human trafficking-related laws, particularly the Prevention of Trafficking in Persons Act. Cooperates with other governments on human trafficking cases, operates a hotline for victims, and publishes information on anti-trafficking efforts on its website. (8,11)
Child Protection Units	Takes into custody at-risk children, including those rescued from exploitative labor situations. Presents cases of children taken into custody to the Child Protection Court or the appropriate authority. Established in Punjab, Khyber Pakhtunkhwa, and Sindh provinces. (11,72,74,87-89)

During the reporting period, the Government of Balochistan Province had not yet established Child Protection Units throughout the Province as mandated by the 2016 Balochistan Child Protection Act; however, in 2018, the provincial government did launch a pilot Child Protection Unit in Quetta in preparation for establishing additional units. In addition, while District Vigilance Committees are functioning in Punjab Province and reportedly functioning in Sindh Province, they are not yet functional in Balochistan and Khyber Pakhtunkhwa provinces. (37,90)

Labor Law Enforcement

In 2018, labor law enforcement agencies in Pakistan took actions to combat child labor (Table 6). However, gaps exist within the operations of the Provincial Labor Inspectors that may hinder adequate labor law enforcement, including lack of data on provincial government efforts to enforce child labor laws.

† Data are from January - September 5, 2018 (93)

Following the devolution of federal powers to provincial governments, the provinces are responsible for enforcing labor laws, including those involving child labor law violations. (11) Provincial labor departments collect comprehensive data on labor law enforcement at the district level. However, there is no centralized repository for the data, nor any regular mechanism for reporting it to the federal government. (8) Therefore, limited labor inspection data are available for the provincial governments.

Based on 2017 data, the number of labor inspectors is likely insufficient for the size of Pakistan's workforce, which includes approximately 64 million workers. According to the ILO's technical advice of a ratio approaching 1 inspector for every 15,000 workers in developing economies, Pakistan would employ about 4,259 labor inspectors. (95-97) Labor inspectorates do not receive sufficient resources, which may hamper the labor inspectors' ability to inspect workplaces. (44,83,98,99) For example, labor departments in Khyber Pakhtunkhwa, Punjab, and Sindh provinces did not provide funds to cover the cost of transportation to conduct inspections. (8) In Sindh Province, it is reported that inspectors stopped conducting unannounced inspections due to complaints of harassment filed against inspectors by employers. (94) Across the provinces, fines and penalties were assessed infrequently and were insufficient to deter employers from using child labor. (45,100)

In 2018, efforts were made by the provincial governments to increase labor inspectorate capacity and enforce child labor laws. For example, the Government of Sindh Province hired 32 new labor inspectors, and labor inspectors in Punjab Province received training through the ILO's Strengthening Labor Inspection Systems in Pakistan project. (8) Between January and August 2018, the Punjab Labor Welfare Department found 65 cases of child labor during inspections of 482 brick kilns, and 33 cases of child labor during inspections of 732 establishments. (93)

During the reporting period, Sindh Province also strengthened protections against child labor by enacting the Sindh Home-Based Workers Act. The act requires the establishment of a Sindh Workers Welfare Board, which is mandated to conduct a survey of home-based work for the identification and removal of hazardous conditions, and to discourage the use of child labor in home-based work. (101)

Criminal Law Enforcement

In 2018, criminal law enforcement agencies in Pakistan took actions to combat child labor (Table 7). However, gaps exist within the operations of the criminal enforcement agencies that may hinder adequate criminal law enforcement, including data on federal and provincial government efforts to enforce laws criminally prohibiting the worst forms of child labor.

Table 7. Criminal Law Enforcement Efforts Related to Child Labor

Overview of Criminal Law Enforcement	2017	2018

While the federal and provincial governments do not publish data on efforts to enforce laws prohibiting the worst forms of child labor, the federal government did report on efforts to enforce Section 366/A of the federal Penal Code prohibiting the procurement of minor girls under age 18. (8,92) In 2018, there were 2 registered cases involving Penal Code Section 366/A in Khyber Pakhtunkhwa Province, 19 in Punjab Province, and 7 in Sindh Province. In addition, there was 1 case prosecuted in Khyber Pakhtunkhwa Province, 18 in Punjab Province, and 2 in Sindh Province. During the reporting period, Pakistan's federal government also convicted its first perpetrator in a child pornography case. The perpetrator was sentenced to 7 years in prison for distributing child pornography as part of an international child pornography cyber network. (8,102,103)

In 2018, Punjab Province strengthened protections for forced labor victims, including children, by adopting the Punjab Bonded Labour System (Abolition) Amendment Act, which increased penalties for employing bonded laborers by requiring perpetrators to both serve time in prison and pay a fine. (104)

IV. COORDINATION OF GOVERNMENT EFFORTS ON CHILD LABOR

The government has established mechanisms to coordinate its efforts to address child labor (Table 8). However, gaps exist that hinder the effective coordination of efforts to address child labor, including fulfilling mandates to establish coordinating mechanisms.

Table 8. Key Mechanisms to Coordinate Government Efforts on Child Labor

Coordinating Body	Role & Description
Provincial Child Labor Units	Coordinates and initiates interventions against child labor at the provincial level. (91)
Provincial and Federal Tripartite Consultative Committees	Advises on the enforcement of labor laws, including child labor laws and monitors the functioning of labor departments at the provincial level. Monitors the implementation of provinces' proposed interventions on child and forced labor at the federal level. (91)
Interagency Task Force	Coordinates the anti-human trafficking efforts of the Ministry of the Interior; intelligence and law enforcement agencies; the Ministry of Law and Justice; and the Ministry of Foreign Affairs. Supports 27 Federal Investigation Agency anti-trafficking units that work with provincial and district police officers to monitor and combat domestic and transnational human trafficking. (37,106) Maintains an Integrated Border Management System. (107)
Balochistan Child Protection Commission	Coordinates efforts related to child protection at the provincial and district levels, advises on relevant policies and legislation, and supports the implementation of child protection referral mechanisms. Led by the Balochistan Social Welfare Department, various government departments, including the Education, Health and Labor departments, and law enforcement agencies. (89)
Khyber Pakhtunkhwa Child Protection and Welfare Commission	Coordinates efforts to enhance the safety, welfare, and well-being of children at the provincial and local levels. Reviews and monitors implementation of provincial laws and regulations related to child labor and those that affect the rights of children. (72) Led by the Province's Social Welfare, Special Education and Women Empowerment Department. (108)
Punjab Child Protection and Welfare Bureau	Coordinates the protection of destitute and neglected children by appointing child protection officers, supervising child protection units, and establishing child protection institutions and child protection courts. Chaired by an elected member of the board, which consists of three department secretaries, three members of the provincial assembly, and representatives from NGOs and academia. (74)
Sindh Child Protection Authority	Coordinates efforts to ensure the rights of children in need of special protection, including child laborers, by establishing child protection units and appointing child protection officers. Reviews and proposes amendments to existing laws and monitors the implementation of laws relevant to the protection of children. (88) Headed by the provincial minister, members include two parliamentarians, lawyers, social activists, and representatives from departments that deal with children's issues. (109)

In 2018, the federal government enacted the Islamabad Capital Territory Child Protection System Act, which mandates the establishment of a Child Protection Advisory Board. Once established, the board's responsibilities will include advising the government on the implementation of relevant laws and policies, ensuring that the child protection mechanism is effective, maintaining a case management system, regulating caregiver organizations, and submitting an annual report. (110) However, the federal government has not yet established the National Commission on the Rights of the Child as mandated by law. (8) Research was unable to determine whether existing coordinating bodies were active during the reporting period.

V. GOVERNMENT POLICIES ON CHILD LABOR

The government has established policies related to child labor (Table 9). However, policy gaps exist that hinder efforts to address child labor, including mainstreaming child labor issues into relevant policies.

Table 9. Key Policies Related to Child Labor

Policy	Description
Sindh and Punjab Provincial Plans of Action to Combat Bonded Labor	Details how the Sindh and Punjab provinces plan to revise their bonded labor laws. Includes plans to strengthen the capacity of labor inspectors, generate awareness of bonded labor, improve reporting, and computerize labor inspection data. (111) During the reporting period, research was unable to determine what steps were taken to implement these plans
Sindh Labor Policy†	Seeks to protect vulnerable workers, including children. Includes goals to enforce laws dealing with hazardous child labor, extend the minimum age for employment in domestic and home-based work, ensure minimum wages for working children, and increase access to education and training. (112) Research was unable to determine what steps were taken to implement this policy.

‡ The government had other policies that may have addressed child labor issues or had an impact on child labor. (116-120)

† This policy was implemented during the reporting year.

In 2018, it was reported that the Khyber Pakhtunkhwa provincial cabinet approved a child labor policy, which would be the first child labor policy in Pakistan. Research has been unable to find a copy of the child labor policy. (8,121) During the reporting period, Punjab's provincial government also approved Punjab Labor Policy 2018, which is reported to include goals to conduct a Province-wide child labor survey, launch an online reporting and case management system for child labor, provide trainings for labor inspectors on child labor laws, and enroll out-of-school children in education programs. (122,123) Research has been unable to find a copy of the new labor policy. (8)

The provincial governments' education policies have not included child labor elimination and prevention strategies. (116-119)

VI. SOCIAL PROGRAMS TO ADDRESS CHILD LABOR

In 2018, the government funded and participated in programs that include the goal of eliminating or preventing child labor (Table 10). However, gaps exist in these social programs, including the adequacy of programs to address the full scope of the problem.

Table 10. Key Social Programs to Address Child Labor

Program	Description
Bait-ul-Mal Programs†	Government-funded programs that aim to remove children from child labor, including its worst forms, and to increase vulnerable children's access to education. Programs include the National Centers for Rehabilitation of Child Labor and the Child Support Program. (124,125) During the reporting period, research was unable to determine what steps were taken to implement this program during the reporting period.
Elimination of Child Labor and Bonded Labor Project (Integrated Project for Promotion of "Decent Work for Vulnerable Workers" in Punjab Province)†	Punjab Province-funded programs that aim to provide education to vulnerable children, rehabilitate bonded laborers working in brick kilns, promote integration and coordination of government responses, strengthen legislation, increase the capacity of law enforcement and service providers, and increase the knowledge base on these issues. (47,127,128) Project activities have been on hold since the transition to a newly elected provincial government in August 2018. (8)
ILO-Funded Projects	ILO projects in Pakistan aimed to eliminate child labor, including the $216,000 project Sustaining GSP Plus Status by Strengthened National Capacities to Improve International Labor Standards (ILS) Compliance and Reporting (2015–2018), and the $465,000 project Elimination of Child Labor and Promotion of Decent Work in the Stora Enso Value Chain in Pakistan (2015–2018). (129)

† Program is funded by the Government of Pakistan.

The social programs of the federal and provincial governments are insufficient to address the prevalence and scope of Pakistan's child labor problem. Existing programs also do not provide enough protection and rehabilitation services for bonded child laborers and victims of human trafficking. (37) Government initiatives are needed to specifically target child labor in the informal sector, including child labor and forced child labor in domestic work. (99) Furthermore, additional social programs are necessary to raise awareness and provide assistance to children used by non-state militant groups to engage in armed conflict. (130)

VII. SUGGESTED GOVERNMENT ACTIONS TO ELIMINATE CHILD LABOR

Based on the reporting above, suggested actions are identified that would advance the elimination of child labor in Pakistan (Table II).

Table II. Suggested Government Actions to Eliminate Child Labor

Area	Suggested Actions	Year(s) Suggested
Legal Framework	Accede to the Palermo Protocol on Trafficking in Persons.	2013 – 2018
	Ensure that the federal government's and Sindh Province's minimum age laws extend to all sectors and informal employment, regardless of the number of employees.	2011 – 2018
	Establish a minimum age for work of at least 14 in Balochistan Province.	2013 – 2018
	Establish a minimum age of 18 for hazardous work in Pakistan and Balochistan Province.	2009 – 2018
	Create comprehensive prohibitions against additional specific hazardous activities, such as brickmaking and domestic work.	2009 – 2018
	Ensure that the law criminalizes the use of children in all forms of commercial sexual exploitation, including for prostitution and pornographic performances.	2011 – 2018
	Ensure that the law prohibits the use of children in illicit activities, including in the production and trafficking of drugs.	2011 – 2018
	Ensure that the law criminally prohibits the recruitment and use of children under age 18 by non-state groups for armed conflict.	2015 – 2018
Enforcement	Establish Child Protective Units in Balochistan Province to ensure that services are in place to remove children from exploitative labor situations and refer them for appropriate child protection services.	2018
	Ensure that District Vigilance Committees that seek to ensure enforcement and implementation of bonded labor prohibitions are established and active throughout Pakistan.	2013 – 2018
	Publish enforcement data for child labor law violations, penalties imposed, and penalties collected for all provinces. In addition, publish information about labor inspectorate funding, the number of labor inspectors, the number of labor inspections conducted at the worksite, whether routine inspections were targeted, and whether unannounced inspections were conducted for all provinces.	2010 – 2018
	Establish a referral mechanism between criminal law enforcement agencies and social services in all provinces.	2018
	Create a centralized repository of labor law enforcement data and a regular mechanism for reporting it to the federal government, and make the data publicly available.	2018
	Increase the number of labor inspectors to meet the ILO's technical advice.	2016 – 2018
	Provide the funding necessary to adequately hire, train, equip, and cover the cost of transportation for inspectors to enforce child labor laws.	2010 – 2018
	Allow labor inspectors in all provinces to conduct inspections without notice and assess penalties.	2011 – 2018
	Ensure that fines and penalties are sufficient to deter employers from violating child labor laws.	2014 – 2018
	Publish information about criminal law investigations, violations found, prosecutions initiated, and the number of convictions in all provinces.	2016 – 2018
Coordination	Establish a referral mechanism between labor authorities and social services in all provinces.	2017 – 2018
	Establish a National Commission on the Rights of the Child Act, as mandated by federal law.	2018
Government Policies	Publish information on the activities undertaken by coordinating bodies.	2017 – 2018
	Publish information on the implementation of existing child labor policies.	2017 – 2018
Social Programs	Integrate child labor elimination and prevention strategies in the education policies of the provincial governments.	2014 – 2018
	Complete and publish child labor surveys at the federal and provincial levels.	2009 – 2018
	Implement programs to address high rates of teacher absenteeism, inadequate facilities, lack of transportation, and use of corporal punishment to ensure that all children have access to free and compulsory education, as required by law. Increase security for schools to protect children and teachers from attacks by non-state armed and extremist groups.	2011 – 2018
	Publish information on the activities undertaken to implement government programs, such as the Bait-ul-Mal programs.	2018
	Implement existing programs and increase the size and scope of government programs to reach children working in the informal sector and in the worst forms of child labor, including domestic workers, bonded child laborers, and other victims of human trafficking.	2009 – 2018
Implement programs to raise awareness of and provide assistance to children used by non-state militant groups to engage in armed conflict.	2011 – 2018

In 2018, Panama made a moderate advancement in efforts to eliminate the worst forms of child labor. The government drafted modifications to its hazardous work regulations, significantly increased its number of labor inspectors, and established a Regional Headquarters in Coclé to target child labor in areas outside the capital city. It also launched a national initiative to prevent violence against children, which includes the goal of eliminating child labor, and conducted a new study on child work, child labor, and the worst forms of child labor. However, children in Panama engage in the worst forms of child labor, including in commercial sexual exploitation, sometimes as a result of human trafficking. Children also perform dangerous tasks in agriculture. Although the government made meaningful efforts in all relevant areas, Panamanian law allows minors under age 16 to engage in hazardous work within training establishments, in violation of international standards. Moreover, the Labor Inspectorate lacks the authority to collect fines for labor violations, limiting its capacity to enforce laws on the worst forms of child labor.

I. PREVALENCE AND SECTORAL DISTRIBUTION OF CHILD LABOR

Children in Panama engage in the worst forms of child labor, including in commercial sexual exploitation, sometimes as a result of human trafficking. Children also perform dangerous tasks in agriculture. (1-10) The Ministry of Labor (MITRADEL) conducted a study on child work, child labor, and the worst forms of child labor in 2018, but the results have yet to be published. (1) Table I provides key indicators on children's work and education in Panama.

Table I. Statistics on Children's Work and Education

Children	Age	Percent
Working (% and population)	5 to 14	4.7 (32,858)
Attending School (%)	5 to 14	94.9
Combining Work and School (%)	7 to 14	4.9
Primary Completion Rate (%)		96.7

Source for primary completion rate: Data from 2014, published by UNESCO Institute for Statistics, 2019. (11)

Source for all other data: International Labor Organization's analysis of statistics from Encuesta de Trabajo Infantil (ETI), 2014. (12)

Based on a review of available information, Table 2 provides an overview of children's work by sector and activity.

Table 2. Overview of Children's Work by Sector and Activity

† Determined by national law or regulation as hazardous and, as such, relevant to Article 3(d) of ILO C. 182.

‡ Child labor understood as the worst forms of child labor per se under Article 3(a)–(c) of ILO C. 182.

Children in Panama are subjected to commercial sexual exploitation, mainly in tourist areas in Panama City and in beach communities. (6,7) In 2018, cases of forced labor involving indigenous, minor females from rural, poor border areas were reported, including for forced domestic service. (10)

According to the results of Panama’s 2016 survey on child labor, the highest prevalence of child labor is in rural areas and autonomous indigenous areas, or comarcas. The comarca Ngäbe Buglé and the provinces of Panama and Bocas del Toro had the highest number of children engaged in child labor. (2)

Although the Panamanian Constitution recognizes the right to education without discrimination, indigenous children and those in rural and Afro-Panamanian communities face barriers to accessing education due to a lack of transportation, infrastructure, technology, and teachers, particularly in the comarcas. (1,5,9,33-35) Children of indigenous descent often travel significant distances to reach school and experience frequent interruptions in their education due to family migration to work in agriculture. (6,34,35)

II. LEGAL FRAMEWORK FOR CHILD LABOR

Panama has ratified all key international conventions concerning child labor (Table 3).

The government has established laws and regulations related to child labor (Table 4). However, gaps exist in Panama’s legal framework to adequately protect children from the worst forms of child labor, including hazardous work and light work.

In 2018 and early 2019, MITRADEL drafted amendments to Decree Number 1 of 2016 to raise the minimum age for hazardous work, occupations, and activities to age 16 if the work is performed in a training facility, and to eliminate certain work exceptions for children ages 14 to 16. (1,45) Currently, Panama has a list of hazardous occupations prohibited for children under age 18 but it permits to perform such work in training programs starting at age 14, in violation of international standards. (41)

Although the Constitution, Family Code, and Labor Code set the minimum age for employment at age 14, the Family Code and Labor Code specify exceptions for domestic and agricultural work. (36-38) Article 716 of the Family Code permits children ages 12 to 14 to perform domestic and agricultural work as regulated by the Labor Code. (37) Article 119 of the Labor Code allows children ages 12 to 15 to perform light work in agriculture, if the work is outside regular school hours, and Article 123 allows children over the age of 12 to perform light domestic work. The Labor Code, however, does not define the kinds of tasks children may perform as light work or the total number of hours they may work. (38)

III. ENFORCEMENT OF LAWS ON CHILD LABOR

The government has established institutional mechanisms for the enforcement of laws and regulations on child labor (Table 5). However, gaps exist within the operations of MITRADEL that may hinder adequate enforcement of child labor laws.

Table 5. Agencies Responsible for Child Labor Law Enforcement

Organization/Agency	Role
Ministry of Labor (MITRADEL)	Enforces child labor laws through two directorates with direct authority over child labor matters: the Directorate Against Child Labor and for the Protection of Adolescent Workers (DIRETIPPAT), and the Labor Inspection Directorate. (46) The Labor Inspection Directorate enforces the Labor Code in areas in which children may be working, particularly in the formal sector. DIRETIPPAT is responsible for overseeing the enforcement of laws related to working children in the formal and informal sectors, planning and executing public policies, and carrying out education programs on child labor for employers, parents, and children. (46-49) Refers cases of children found in exploitative work to the Child and Adolescent Courts, or to the National Secretariat for Childhood, Adolescence, and Family (SENNIAF). (46)

(4) Monitors and coordinates a network of government services to address needs of vulnerable populations. (27,46) Runs shelters for victims of human trafficking, including minors. (51)
Childhood and Adolescence Police	Assists, collaborates with, and coordinates with authorities and organizations to address the education, prevention, protection, and rehabilitation of children, including those in child labor. (52,53) Supports SENNI AF inspections in areas with high rates of child labor. (27)

Labor Law Enforcement

In 2018, labor law enforcement agencies in Panama took actions to combat child labor (Table 6). However, gaps exist within the authority of MITRADEL that may hinder adequate labor law enforcement, including insufficient funding for operations.

Table 6. Labor Law Enforcement Efforts Related to Child Labor

In 2018, Panama increased its number of labor inspectors and is now in line with the ILO's technical advice. However, only six inspectors received specialized training in child labor investigations, even though all inspectors must investigate and enforce child labor laws. (1) MITRADEL identified 492 cases of adolescent and child labor, primarily in the agriculture and informal sectors, and provided education scholarships and integrated care to 1,502 minors through its Direct Action social program targeting children in at-risk communities. (1,54) The labor inspectorate conducted inspections across all 14 provinces in the agriculture, fishing, construction, and tourism industries as well as at street vending sites; 938 of these inspections were child labor related. MITRADEL officials encountered 14 child labor violations, and the Judicial Secretariat found 6 violations and will collect a total of $4,000 in penalties. (1)

MITRADEL and the National Secretariat for Childhood, Adolescence, and Family (SENNIAF) have implemented a secure 311 Complaint Line, as well as a website and social media platforms, to receive complaints. In 2018, SENNI AF responded to 34 complaints received through these services and initiated 1 investigation into child labor in the informal sector. (1) In addition, 30 SENNI AF staff members received training on child labor laws in 2018. (1)

MITRADEL has noted that the budget for the Directorate Against Child Labor and for the Protection of Adolescent Workers was insufficient to meet its commitments for coordination, implementation, and monitoring. In addition, its budget decreased from 2017 to 2018. (1,34,55,56) Civil society groups have stated that labor inspections in Panama focus primarily on the formal sector, leaving children in the informal sector vulnerable. (7,57) Moreover, unannounced labor inspections are not conducted in agricultural areas outside Panama City or in private farms or homes. (1,6)

Criminal Law Enforcement

In 2018, criminal law enforcement agencies in Panama took actions to combat child labor (Table 7). However, the government did not provide sufficient data on its criminal enforcement efforts, which limits the ability to assess the adequacy of criminal law enforcement agencies.

Table 7. Criminal Law Enforcement Efforts Related to Child Labor

The Government of Panama conducted 34 forced labor or sex trafficking investigations in 2018. Notably, two of those cases involved the rescue of two indigenous minors from forced labor situations. (10)

Child labor training was provided to 47 National Commission for the Prevention of Crimes of Sexual Exploitation (CONAPREDES) staff, as well as to 105 law enforcement officials, 55 prosecutors, and 21 members of the Maritime and Tourism Authorities. (1) Furthermore, in September 2018, the Trafficking in Persons Commission participated in an interagency event to combat sexual exploitation that was carried out by CONAPREDES and targeted school-age children in Panama. (10)

IV. COORDINATION OF GOVERNMENT EFFORTS ON CHILD LABOR

The government has established mechanisms to coordinate its efforts to address child labor (Table 8). However, gaps exist that hinder the effective coordination of efforts to address child labor, including coordination among agencies.

Table 8. Key Mechanisms to Coordinate Government Efforts on Child Labor

Coordinating Body	Role & Description
Committee for the Eradication of Child Labor and the Protection of Adolescent Workers (CETIPPAT)	Coordinates various efforts to combat child labor. Led by the First Lady of Panama and includes MITRADEL, the Ministries of Education, Health, and Agriculture, and representatives from civil society and organizations of workers and employers. (59) Conducts a National Child Labor Survey every 2 years. (6) In 2018, CETIPPAT held 8 coordinating meetings with more than 22 representatives from the private sector, labor, NGOs, and government agencies. The meetings focused on child labor trends and reduction strategies. (1)
Subcommittee to Combat Child Labor	Coordinates the Panamanian Institute for Sports and the Ministry of Education in their efforts to address child labor and its causes. Subcommittee of CETIPPAT. (7,34,49,60) In 2018, the subcommittees were located in Chiriqui, Veraguas, Herrera, Los Santos, Coclé, and Panama Oeste. (1)
Provincial Coordination Mechanisms	Identifies and reports cases of child labor at the local level and coordinates with CETIPPAT at the national level. Established in Bocas del Toro, Colón, and Darién, the commissions as of 2018 are now also located in Panama City, Panama Oeste, Coclé, Veraguas, Herrera, and Los Santos. (1,9)

National Commission for the Prevention of Crimes of Sexual Exploitation (CONAPREDES)	Coordinates, advises, and implements public policies for the prevention and eradication of sexual exploitation through specific actions, projects, and programs; studies related trends and prevalence. (59) Members include the Attorney General as well as the Ministries of Labor, Education, Social Development, and Health. Refers cases of sexual exploitation to the Attorney General's Office. (59) In 2018, investigated and discovered 153 children who were used in pornography. (1)

MITRADEL has noted the need for increased coordination on efforts to address child labor, including within the Ministry of Labor, and with social service agencies and referral mechanisms. (34)

V. GOVERNMENT POLICIES ON CHILD LABOR

The government has established policies related to child labor (Table 9). However, child labor elimination and prevention strategies do not appear to have been integrated into relevant policies.

Table 9. Key Policies Related to Child Labor

Policy	Description
Roadmap Towards the Elimination of Child Labor (2016–2019)	Aims to eliminate all forms of child labor in Panama by 2020 by strengthening anti-poverty, health, and educational programs and policies. (61-63) As part of the Roadmap, in 2018, the Panamanian Government expanded labor inspector trainings, unannounced inspections, and monitoring information systems. The government also expanded investigations to the Colon, Panama Oeste and San Miguelito districts and opened a Cocolé Regional Headquarters to target child labor in provinces and districts outside the capital. (1)
National Multisectoral Strategy for the Prevention of Violence against children and Adolescents, (2018–2022)†	Launched in 2018, the strategy aims to eliminate child labor and end the mistreatment, exploitation, trafficking, violence, and torture of children. The strategy was developed by the National Government through the National Intersectoral Committee for the Prevention of Violence against Children and Adolescents and SENNIAF, with technical support from UNICEF. (64,65)
National Action Plan for the Prevention and Elimination of Commercial Sexual Exploitation of Children and Adolescents	Aims to prevent and eliminate the commercial sexual exploitation of children and adolescents, including by providing services to victims, strengthening CONAPREDES, and raising awareness. Implemented by CONAPREDES, with support from the Public Ministry. (46,59,66) On November 27, 2018, CONAPREDES held a training for 25 Guatemalan officials on “Preventing child and adolescent sexual exploitation crimes” as part of the Action Plan. (67)
National Plan Against Trafficking in Persons (2012–2022)	Aims to combat human trafficking through prevention, victim assistance, and international cooperation. Includes provisions to protect child victims of human trafficking. (58,68) As part of the plan in 2018, the Government of Panama approved the Protocol for the Victim's Identification and Protection Unit to provide standard procedures to the Trafficking in Persons Commission Victim's Unit and to guarantee adequate standard of care for human trafficking victims. The Trafficking in Persons Commission also developed a training manual for members of the Victim's Identification and Protection Unit. (10)
Districts Free of Child Labor	Aims to establish cooperation agreements between MITRADEL and municipal councils to design and implement child labor eradication strategies. (9) In 2018 MITRADEL signed anti-child labor agreements with the municipalities of Copira, San Miguelito, Panama, Tonosi, Aguadulce, and Santiago. (1)

† Policy was approved during the reporting period.

The Coordination Agreement on Labor Migration between the Ministries of Labor of Costa Rica and Panama aims to strengthen dialogue on labor migration between the two countries, with an emphasis on indigenous Panamanian migrant workers, to ensure social protection of migrant workers and their families. The policy includes a bilateral technical committee to promote joint action to combat human trafficking, exchange information, and develop cooperative strategies and projects. (69) Although potentially a useful policy tool to combat child labor, child labor elimination and prevention strategies do not appear to have been integrated into this policy.

VI. SOCIAL PROGRAMS TO ADDRESS CHILD LABOR

In 2018, the government funded and participated in programs that include the goal of eliminating or preventing child labor (Table 10). However, gaps exist in these social programs, including their ability to reach the most vulnerable populations.

Table 10. Key Social Programs to Address Child Labor

Program	Description
USDOL-Funded Projects	USDOL projects that aim to eliminate child labor, including its worst forms, through research, improved monitoring and enforcement, policy development, and awareness raising. These projects include Educafuturo: Combating Child Labor; a $8.1 million, 5-year project implemented in Ecuador and Panama by Partners of the Americas; Building Effective Policies Against Child Labor; a $4.3 million, 5-year project implemented in Ecuador and Panama by ILO; Country Level Engagement and Assistance To Reduce Child Labor (CLEAR II), implemented by Winrock International and partners Verité and Lawyers Without Borders in seven countries; and Measurement, Awareness-Raising, and Policy Engagement (MAP 16), a $22.4 million, 6-year project implemented by ILO in several countries. (70-74) In 2018, ILO completed its study of the Panama sugar industry and held a verification workshop in November prior to publishing its findings. (75) Additional information is available on the USDOL website.
Direct Government Action Program for the Prevention and Eradication of Child Labor†	MITRADEL program implemented through the Institute for Training and Utilization of Human Resources that provides a network of social and economic services to child workers and children at risk of child labor. Services include provision of food and scholarships, support for sports activities, and social monitoring. (7,76) Under the Direct Government Action Program for the Prevention and Eradication of Child Labor, in 2018 MITRADEL conducted unannounced visits in the informal sector, investigated key risk factors that lead children to work before the legal age of employment, and informed indigenous communities about the negative consequences of child labor. (1)
Prevention and Eradication of Child Labor†	SENNIAF program that identifies children engaged in the worst forms of child labor, removes them from exploitative situations, and connects them to a network of social and economic services offered by the government. (27) In 2018, SENNI AF hosted forums in educational centers, provided study grants to 1,502 children, and conducted home wellness visits to verify that students were attending school. SENNI AF also developed a new case processing system to efficiently manage reports that reduced reporting processing times. (1)
National Council of Private Businesses Corporate Social Responsibility Program	Joint effort created by MITRADEL and the National Council of Private Businesses that involves a partnership with businesses across Panama to sign the Voluntary Agreement of Corporate Social Responsibility to prevent and eradicate child labor. (77) Research was unable to identify activities undertaken during the reporting period to implement the partnership.
Prevention and Care for Child and Adolescent Victims of Sexual Violence†	SENNIAF program that identifies children engaged in commercial sexual exploitation, removes them from exploitative situations, and provides them with social services. Conducts training workshops nationwide for professionals providing direct care to child and adolescent victims of sexual violence. (79) Research was unable to identify specific actions undertaken during the reporting period under this program.
Network of Opportunities†	Ministry of Social Development (MIDES) program that provides conditional cash transfers to families in extreme poverty, conditioned on their children's participation in health and education services and the acquisition of a birth certificate. Offers training to project participants to improve income-generating opportunities. (80) In 2018, MIDES reported that the program paid $6,852,000 in conditional cash transfers to 45,495 individuals. (81)

† Program is funded by the Government of Panama.

Although Panama has expanded programs that reach children in rural areas and from indigenous and Afro-Panamanian communities, various reports indicate that the scope of these programs is insufficient, and these children remain vulnerable to the worst forms of child labor. (33,82,83)

Despite policy efforts, the National Anti-Trafficking Commission acknowledges that funding for and availability of services for human trafficking victims remains insufficient to address the full scope of the problem. (10) Furthermore, although child victims of trafficking are able to receive services from local NGOs, Panama lacks programs to specifically address the needs of this population. (10) Government officials have also noted that despite funds dedicated to the prevention of crimes against children, Panama lacks a specific mechanism to direct funds toward child sexual abuse victims. (84,85)

VII. SUGGESTED GOVERNMENT ACTIONS TO ELIMINATE CHILD LABOR

Based on the reporting above, suggested actions are identified that would advance the elimination of child labor in Panama (Table 11).

Panama

MODERATE ADVANCEMENT

Table 11. Suggested Government Actions to Eliminate Child Labor

Area	Suggested Action	Year(s) Suggested
Legal Framework	Establish regulations that define the number of hours and types of activities that children between ages 12 and 14 can undertake as light work, to ensure that they are not exposed to hazardous labor.	2009 – 2018
	Ensure that the law protects children from hazardous work by establishing a minimum age of 18 for all children or by ensuring that children receive adequate training in the type of work being done and that the health, safety, and morals of the children are protected in accordance with international standards if children age 16 or 17 are allowed to perform hazardous work.	2013 – 2018
Enforcement	Collect and make available complete data on criminal enforcement efforts related to the worst forms of child labor, such as number of violations found, number of prosecutions initiated, penalties collected, and number of convictions.	2018
	Allocate sufficient funding for the Directorate Against Child Labor and for the Protection of Adolescent Workers to meet its commitments for coordination, implementation, and monitoring related to child labor.	2014 – 2018
	Ensure that labor inspectors conduct child labor inspections in the informal sector and unannounced inspections in agricultural areas outside Panama City.	2014 – 2018
	Ensure that all inspectors receive regular, specialized training on child labor issues	2018
Coordination	Increase coordination on efforts to address child labor, including within the Ministry of Labor, and with social services agencies and referral mechanisms.	2016 – 2018
	Integrate child labor elimination and prevention strategies into the Coordination Agreement on Labor Migration between the Ministries of Labor of Costa Rica and Panama.	2015 – 2018
Social Programs	Enhance efforts to eliminate barriers and make education accessible for all children, including children from rural areas and indigenous and Afro-Panamanian communities, by expanding existing programs, including school transportation	2014 – 2018
	Ensure that social programs to prevent and eradicate child labor, such as the partnership with the National Council of Private Businesses, are being implemented.	2018
	Establish programs and ensure sufficient funding to address the needs of human trafficking victims, including programs that provide services to child victims of human trafficking and sexual abuse.	2018

In 2018, Papua New Guinea made a minimal advancement in efforts to eliminate the worst forms of child labor. The Department of Community Development, Youth, and Religion distributed the first Child Care Center licenses, which are centers that provide a safe location for children removed by Child Protection Officers from situations deemed to be harmful to their health and safety. However, children in Papua New Guinea engage in the worst forms of child labor, including in commercial sexual exploitation, sometimes as a result of human trafficking. Children also perform dangerous tasks in mining. Papua New Guinea's laws do not specifically define the hazardous occupations and activities prohibited for children, nor do they prohibit using, procuring, or offering a child for illicit activities, including for the production and trafficking of drugs. Furthermore, insufficient resources hamper the labor inspectorate's capacity to enforce child labor laws.

I. PREVALENCE AND SECTORAL DISTRIBUTION OF CHILD LABOR

Children in Papua New Guinea engage in the worst forms of child labor, including in commercial sexual exploitation, sometimes as a result of human trafficking. (1,2) Children also perform dangerous tasks in mining. (3,4) Table 1 provides key indicators on children's work and education in Papua New Guinea. Data on some of these indicators are not available from the sources used in this report.

Table 1. Statistics on Children's Work and Education

Children	Age	Percent
Working (% and population)	5 to 14	Unavailable
Attending School (%)	5 to 14	Unavailable
Combining Work and School (%)	7 to 14	Unavailable
Primary Completion Rate (%)		79.3

Source for primary completion rate: Data from 2016, published by UNESCO Institute for Statistics, 2019. (5)
Data were unavailable from International Labor Organization's analysis, 2019. (6)

Based on a review of available information, Table 2 provides an overview of children's work by sector and activity.

Table 2. Overview of Children's Work by Sector and Activity

Sector/Industry	Activity
Agriculture	Working on tea, coffee, and palm oil plantations (7)
	Deep sea fishing, including harvesting sea cucumbers and pearls (4)
Industry	Mining, including gold mining (3,4)
Services	Domestic work (1,7)
	Street work, including scavenging for recyclables, begging, directing traffic, and sometimes directing traffic while begging (3,4,8)
	Working in markets, including unloading and carrying heavy bags of food (9)
Categorical Worst Forms of Child Labor‡	Commercial sexual exploitation, including working in bars, nightclubs, and brothels, and use in the production of pornography, each sometimes as a result of human trafficking (1,2)
	Forced domestic work (1,2)
	Illicit activities, including selling drugs (3,4,10)

‡ Child labor understood as the worst forms of child labor per se under Article 3(a)–(c) of ILO C. 182.

In Papua New Guinea, children are engaged in commercial sexual exploitation. (1,2) Some children from rural areas are sent to live with relatives or "host" families in cities, where they may be forced to perform domestic work to pay off family debts. (1-3)

Papua New Guinea

MINIMAL ADVANCEMENT

Research found that the threat of gender-based violence prevents many girls from attending school. (11) Children are commonly seen directing vehicle movements in and out of public parking spaces and directing traffic in busy urban business centers, especially during business hours. (4,12) Children also perform dangerous tasks in mining, for which they lack appropriate training and equipment, and in handling dangerous chemicals, including mercury used in gold mining. (4) Although the government has established a free education policy, in practice many schools charge fees for books, uniforms, and supplies. (13-15,16) The Tuition Fee-Free policy provides government subsidies to primary and secondary schools to cover the costs associated with accommodating additional children in school. However, some schools report not receiving the subsidy, and some have closed as a result. Lack of access to schools increases children's vulnerability to child labor. (4,17)

II. Legal Framework for Child Labor

Papua New Guinea has ratified some key international conventions concerning child labor (Table 3).

Table 3. Ratification of International Conventions on Child Labor

Convention	Ratification
 ILO C. 138, Minimum Age	✓
ILO C. 182, Worst Forms of Child Labor	✓
 UN CRC	✓
UN CRC Optional Protocol on Armed Conflict
UN CRC Optional Protocol on the Sale of Children, Child Prostitution and Child Pornography
 Palermo Protocol on Trafficking in Persons

The government has established laws and regulations related to child labor (Table 4). However, gaps exist in Papua New Guinea's legal framework to adequately protect children from the worst forms of child labor, including the identification of hazardous occupations or activities prohibited for children and the prohibition of commercial sexual exploitation of children.

Table 4. Laws and Regulations on Child Labor

Standard	Meets International Standards	Age	Legislation
Minimum Age for Work	Yes	16	Article 103 of the Employment Act (18)
Minimum Age for Hazardous Work	Yes	18	Article 54 of the Lukautim Pikinini Act (19)
Identification of Hazardous Occupations or Activities Prohibited for Children	No
Prohibition of Forced Labor	Yes		Article 43 of the Constitution of the Independent State of Papua New Guinea; Section 208 of the Criminal Code (20,21)
Prohibition of Child Trafficking	Yes		Section 208 of the Criminal Code (21)
Prohibition of Commercial Sexual Exploitation of Children	No		Articles 229J–229O and 229R–229T of the Criminal Code (22)
Prohibition of Using Children in Illicit Activities	No
Minimum Age for Voluntary State Military Recruitment	Yes	16	Section 30 of the Defence Act (23)
Prohibition of Compulsory Recruitment of Children by (State) Military	N/A*
Prohibition of Military Recruitment by Non-state Armed Groups	No
Compulsory Education Age	No
Free Public Education	No

* No conscription (24)

According to the Employment Act, children ages 11 through 16 may be allowed to work under certain conditions. The minimum age of 11 for light work is not in compliance with international standards, and the law does not specify the types of activities in which light work is permitted nor the number of hours per week that this work may be undertaken. (18,25) Papua New Guinea also does not have laws that prohibit using, procuring, or offering a child for illicit activities, including for the production and trafficking of drugs. (26) The law does not sufficiently protect children from commercial sexual exploitation, as using, procuring, and offering a child for pornographic performances are not criminally prohibited. (22)

III. ENFORCEMENT OF LAWS ON CHILD LABOR

The government has established institutional mechanisms for the enforcement of laws and regulations on child labor (Table 5). However, gaps exist within the operations of the Department of Labor and Industrial Relations that may hinder adequate enforcement of their child labor laws.

Table 5. Agencies Responsible for Child Labor Law Enforcement

Organization/Agency	Role
Department of Labor and Industrial Relations	Implements and enforces child labor laws. (27)
Department of Community Development, Youth, and Religion	Implements and oversees the Child Protection (Lukautim Pikinini) Act. (28) The Office of Child and Family Services enforces the Lukautim Pikinini Act, including provisions on child labor and its worst forms. (4, 12, 28)
Royal Papua New Guinea Constabulary	Enforces laws against commercial sexual exploitation of children and the use of children in illicit activities. (4) Includes the specialized Family and Sexual Violence unit, which includes protecting children's rights and safety. (4)

Labor Law Enforcement

In 2018, labor law enforcement agencies in Papua New Guinea took actions to combat child labor (Table 6). However, gaps exist within the operations of the Department of Labor and Industrial Relations that may hinder adequate labor law enforcement, including human resource allocation.

Table 6. Labor Law Enforcement Efforts Related to Child Labor

Overview of Labor Law Enforcement	2017	2018
Labor Inspectorate Funding	Unknown (3)	Unknown (4)

Unannounced Inspections Conducted	Yes (3)	Yes (4)
Complaint Mechanism Exists	Yes (3)	Yes (4)
Reciprocal Referral Mechanism Exists Between Labor Authorities and Social Services	No (29)	Unknown (4)

The Government of Papua New Guinea did not respond to requests for information related to labor law enforcement efforts. Labor inspectors sometimes carry out routine inspections in hazardous workplaces or in the manufacturing sector; however, due to limited personnel capacity, labor inspectors generally respond to specific child labor complaints on a case-by-case basis. (4,7,30,31) Insufficient resources hamper the labor inspectorate's capacity to enforce child labor laws, including administrative and budgetary constraints that prevented officers from receiving sufficient training. (3,4,32) The number of labor inspectors is likely insufficient for the size of Papua New Guinea's workforce, which includes approximately 3.68 million workers. According to the ILO's technical advice of a ratio approaching 1 inspector for every 15,000 workers in developing economies, Papua New Guinea would employ about 245 labor inspectors. (24,33)

Papua New Guinea

MINIMAL ADVANCEMENT

Criminal Law Enforcement

Research did not find information on whether criminal law enforcement agencies in Papua New Guinea took actions to combat child labor (Table 7).

Table 7. Criminal Law Enforcement Efforts Related to Child Labor

Overview of Criminal Law Enforcement	2017	2018
Initial Training for New Criminal Investigators	Unknown (3)	Unknown (4)
Training on New Laws Related to the Worst Forms of Child Labor	Unknown (3)	Unknown (4)
Refresher Courses Provided	Unknown (3)	Unknown (4)
Number of Investigations	Unknown (3)	Unknown (4)
Number of Violations Found	Unknown (3)	Unknown (4)
Number of Prosecutions Initiated	Unknown (3)	Unknown (4)
Number of Convictions	Unknown (3)	Unknown (4)
Imposed Penalties for Violations Related to The Worst Forms of Child Labor	Unknown (3)	Unknown (4)
Reciprocal Referral Mechanism Exists Between Criminal Authorities and Social Services	Unknown (3)	Unknown (4)

The Government of Papua New Guinea did not respond to requests for information related to criminal law enforcement efforts related to child labor. However, in 2018, the Department of Community Development, Youth, and Religion commenced ongoing Child Protection Officer trainings that clarified their roles—including preventing and responding to child sexual exploitation—under the Lukautim Pikinini Act. (4,19,34) The government also referred two child victims of commercial sexual exploitation as a result of human trafficking to care facilities for assistance. (35)

IV. COORDINATION OF GOVERNMENT EFFORTS ON CHILD LABOR

The government has established mechanisms to coordinate its efforts to address child labor (Table 8). However, gaps exist that hinder the effective coordination of efforts to address child labor, including efforts to address all forms of child labor.

Table 8. Key Mechanisms to Coordinate Government Efforts on Child Labor

Coordinating Body	Role & Description
National Anti-Human Trafficking Committee	Coordinates efforts to combat human trafficking. Chaired by the Department of Justice and the Attorney General, with representatives from more than 15 government agencies, NGOs, and international organizations. (34-36) Research was unable to determine activities undertaken by the National Anti-Human Trafficking Committee during the reporting year.

In 2018, the Department of Justice and the Attorney General trained 80 law enforcement officials and conducted a workshop for 32 judges on anti-human trafficking policies. However, research was unable to determine whether these trainings and workshops included child labor elimination components, including components on eliminating the worst forms of child labor. (35) Furthermore, it is reported that there is a lack of senior governmental leadership and participation at the National Anti-Human Trafficking Committee meetings. (35)

V. GOVERNMENT POLICIES ON CHILD LABOR

The government has established policies related to child labor (Table 9). However, policy gaps exist that hinder efforts to address child labor, including policy implementation.

Table 9. Key Policies Related to Child Labor

Policy	Description
National Action Plan to Eliminate Child Labor in Papua New Guinea (2017–2020)	Promotes government coordination efforts to eliminate the worst forms of child labor through more effective prevention, protection, rehabilitation, and reintegration measures and capacity building. (3,37) The government reported no activities undertaken by the National Action Plan to Eliminate Child Labor in Papua New Guinea during the reporting year. (4)
Papua New Guinea Trafficking in Persons National Action Plan (2015–2020)	Seeks to prevent human trafficking, protect victims, and prosecute offenders. (38) Research was unable to determine activities undertaken by the Papua New Guinea Trafficking in Persons National Action Plan during the reporting year as it did not report on efforts undertaken to identify child trafficking victims. (2)
Universal Basic Education Plan (2010–2019)	Promotes enrollment of children in school and aims to improve retention rates to ensure that children receive 9 years of basic education. (39,14) Research was unable to determine activities undertaken by the Universal Basic Education Plan during the reporting year.
Tuition Fee-Free Policy	Aims to improve access to education by abolishing school tuition fees and providing subsidies to cover costs for primary and secondary school children who cannot afford an education. (4,30,15,40) Research was unable to determine activities undertaken by the Tuition Fee-Free Policy during the reporting year.

In 2018, the government did not implement any National Action Plan to Eliminate Child Labor-related programs due to a lack of effective administrative planning and a lack of human and financial resources. (12) Research was unable to determine whether the Universal Basic Education Plan integrated child labor elimination and prevention strategies. (41)

VI. SOCIAL PROGRAMS TO ADDRESS CHILD LABOR

In 2018, the government funded and participated in programs that include the goal of eliminating or preventing child labor (Table 10). However, gaps exist in these social programs, including the adequacy of programs to address the full scope of the problem.

Table 10. Key Social Programs to Address Child Labor

Program	Description
Urban Youth Employment Project (2011–2018)†	Government and World Bank-funded project that provides youth with training, temporary jobs, and skills development through apprenticeship projects. (42) Research was unable to determine activities undertaken by the Urban Youth Employment Project during the reporting year.
I-Tok Kaunselin Helpim Lain†	Telephone hotline funded by the Government of Papua New Guinea to report child welfare concerns and physical or sexual violence. (43) In 2018, this hotline was not in service due to a lack of funding and human resources. (35)
Child Care Centers†	Centers that provide a safe location for children removed by Child Protection Officers from situations deemed to be harmful to their health and safety. In 2018, the Department of Community Development, Youth, and Religion distributed the first Child Care Center licenses. (4,12,19)

† Program is funded by the Government of Papua New Guinea.

Research was unable to determine whether the government carried out programs specifically designed to assist children engaged in commercial sexual exploitation, domestic work, or mining. Neither the Government of Papua New Guinea nor NGOs funded specific human trafficking victim services. (35,2,44) While I-Tok Kaunselin Helpim Lain was inoperable during the reporting year, the International Organization for Migration maintained a hotline that also provided anti-human trafficking information and resources. (35,45)

VII. SUGGESTED GOVERNMENT ACTIONS TO ELIMINATE CHILD LABOR

Based on the reporting above, suggested actions are identified that would advance the elimination of child labor in Papua New Guinea (Table 11).

Papua New Guinea

MINIMAL ADVANCEMENT

Table 11. Suggested Government Actions to Eliminate Child Labor

Area	Suggested Action	Year(s) Suggested
Legal Framework	Ratify the UN CRC Optional Protocol on Armed Conflict.	2018
	Ratify the UN CRC Optional Protocol on the Sale of Children, Child Prostitution and Child Pornography.	2014 – 2018
	Ratify the Palermo Protocol on Trafficking in Persons.	2014 – 2018
	Raise the minimum age for light work to 13 to comply with international standards, and ensure that the law's light work provisions are sufficiently specific to prevent children from involvement in child labor.	2015 – 2018
	Determine the types of hazardous work prohibited for children, in consultation with employers' and workers' organizations.	2009 – 2018
	Ensure that the law criminally prohibits using, procuring, and offering a child for illicit activities, including for the production and trafficking of drugs.	2014 – 2018
	Ensure that the law criminally prohibits using, procuring, and offering a child for pornographic performances.	2016 – 2018
	Ensure that the law criminally prohibits the recruitment of children under age 18 by non-state armed groups.	2016 – 2018
	Ensure that the law establishes a compulsory education age that is equal to the minimum age for employment.	2009 – 2018
Enforcement	Publish information on child labor law enforcement efforts undertaken, including labor inspectorate funding, the number of child labor violations found, and the number of child labor penalties imposed.	2014 – 2018
	Strengthen the inspection system by ensuring that inspectors conduct routine or targeted inspections in addition to those that are complaint-driven.	2014 – 2018
	Provide inspectors with the resources necessary to enforce labor laws and other laws that protect children from the worst forms of child labor.	2009 – 2018
	Establish a referral mechanism between labor and criminal law enforcement authorities and social services agencies to ensure that victims of child labor receive appropriate support services.	2014 – 2018
	Increase the number of labor inspectors to meet the ILO's technical advice.	2017 – 2018
	Institutionalize and fully fund training for labor and criminal inspectors on the worst forms of child labor, including training for new labor inspectors at the beginning of their employment.	2016 – 2018
	Publish information on the number of criminal law enforcement efforts undertaken, including the number of child labor investigations initiated, the number of child labor penalties imposed, and the number of criminal law enforcement convictions secured.	2017 – 2018
Coordination	Establish coordinating mechanisms to combat all forms of child labor, including the worst forms of child labor.	2009 – 2018
	Publish anti-child labor activities undertaken by government coordinating mechanisms.	2018
	Ensure that there is senior governmental leadership and participation at the National Anti-Human Trafficking Committee meetings.	2018
Government Policies	Fully fund, implement, and publish information about activities undertaken by the National Action Plan to Eliminate Child Labor in Papua New Guinea.	2017 – 2018
	Publish activities undertaken by the Papua New Guinea Trafficking in Persons National Action Plan.	2018
	Integrate child labor elimination and prevention strategies in the Universal Basic Education Plan.	2013 – 2018
	Publish activities undertaken by the Universal Basic Education Plan.	2018
	Fully fund and publish activities undertaken by the Tuition Fee-Free Policy, and fully reimburse schools for the added costs of accommodating additional students.	2018
Social Programs	Increase access to education by instituting programs to address gender-based violence against girls in schools and fully eliminating school-related fees.	2014 – 2018
	Collect and publish data on the extent and nature of child labor to inform policies and programs.	2017 – 2018
	Institute programs that assist children engaged in the worst forms of child labor in all relevant sectors, especially commercial sexual exploitation, domestic work, and mining.	2010 – 2018
	Fully fund and reopen I-Tok Kaunselin Helpim Lain .	2018
	Implement and fully fund human trafficking victim services, including services dedicated to the worst forms of child labor.	2018
	Publish activities undertaken by the Urban Youth Employment Project to address child labor.	2018

In 2018, Paraguay made a significant advancement in efforts to eliminate the worst forms of child labor. Recently elected President Mario Abdo Benitez and the Paraguayan Congress upgraded the Secretariat of Adolescents and Children to a full ministry-level body, which allows greater access to high-level political decisions and its own budget. The Ministry of Labor, Employment and Social Security also opened a new regional office in Filadelfia (Chaco region), and the Ministry of Women’s Affairs conducted training on human trafficking and avoiding victimization for 1,500 individuals in at-risk communities and high-risk industries. In addition, the National Commission to Prevent and Eradicate the Exploitation of Children updated its action plan for the 2018–2020 period and the government updated the National Strategy for the Prevention and Eradication of Child Labor and Protection of Working Adolescents for the 2018–2023 period. However, children in Paraguay are engaged in the worst forms of child labor, including in debt bondage in cattle raising, as well as domestic servitude, sometimes as a result of human trafficking. Limited funding for law enforcement agencies and social programs hampered the government’s ability to fully address the worst forms of child labor, particularly in rural areas.

I. PREVALENCE AND SECTORAL DISTRIBUTION OF CHILD LABOR

Children in Paraguay engage in the worst forms of child labor, including in cattle raising and domestic servitude, sometimes as a result of human trafficking. (1-3) The 2011 National Survey of Child and Adolescent Activities found that 21 percent of all Paraguayan children were engaged in hazardous work. (4) The 2015 Survey of Activities of Rural Area Children and Adolescents, published in 2016, identified 384,677 children engaged in child labor in agriculture. (1) Table 1 provides key indicators on children’s work and education in Paraguay.

Table 1. Statistics on Children’s Work and Education

Children	Age	Percent
Working (% and population)	10 to 14	8.2 (56,492)
Attending School (%)	5 to 14	94.8
Combining Work and School (%)	10 to 14	7.1
Primary Completion Rate (%)		89.1

Source for primary completion rate: Data from 2012, published by UNESCO Institute for Statistics, 2019. (5)

Source for all other data: International Labor Organization’s analysis of statistics from Encuesta Permanente de Hogares, 2016. (6)

Based on a review of available information, Table 2 provides an overview of children’s work by sector and activity.

Table 2. Overview of Children’s Work by Sector and Activity

Sector/Industry	Activity
Agriculture	Production of manioc/cassava, corn, beans, peanuts, peppers, sesame, sugarcane, tomatoes, lettuce, melons, sweet potato, onions, carrots, cabbages, yerba mate (stimulant plant), and charcoal (1,7-12)
	Raising poultry, hogs, cattle,† sheep, and goats and producing milk (4,9,10)
	Fishing, including using hooks and harpoons,† preparing bait, and cleaning fish† (1)

Sector/Industry	Activity
Industry	Construction, activities unknown, and production of bricks (3,4,7,8,10)
	Limestone quarrying† and gold mining† (3,4,7,8,10,13)
Services	Domestic work† (3,4,10,14-20)
	Street work,† including vending, shoe shining, and begging (2-4,7,8,20,21)
	Horse jockeying (7,20)
	Garbage dump scavenging† (4,22,23)
Categorical Worst Forms of Child Labor‡	Debt bondage in cattle raising, dairy farms, and charcoal factories (3,7,8,24,25)
	Commercial sexual exploitation and domestic servitude, each sometimes as a result of human trafficking (2,3,7,15,22,25,26)
	Use in the production of child pornography (3,7,8,27-30)
	Use in illicit activities, including drug smuggling and drug trafficking (3,7,8,22)

† Determined by national law or regulation as hazardous and, as such, relevant to Article 3(d) of ILO C. 182.

‡ Child labor understood as the worst forms of child labor per se under Article 3(a)–(c) of ILO C. 182.

Criadazgo, a practice in which middle-class and wealthy families informally employ and house child domestic workers from impoverished families, is pervasive in Paraguay; the 2011 National Survey of Child and Adolescent Activities estimated that more than 46,000 children were engaged in criadazgo. Many of these children are in situations of domestic servitude, subjected to violence and abuse, and highly vulnerable to sex trafficking. (2,4,11,17,30,31) Children are subjected to commercial sexual exploitation in Ciudad del Este; in the Tri-Border area between Paraguay, Argentina and Brazil; and along commercial shipping routes on the Paraguay River. (3,7,25,31) Children work alongside their parents in debt bondage on cattle ranches, dairy farms, and charcoal factories in the remote Chaco region. (3,7,8,24,25) Children shine shoes on the street and in government buildings, including the Supreme Court building.(8)

Children from rural and indigenous communities face difficulties accessing and completing their education, including language barriers and inadequate facilities and staff. (3,32,33) The 2011 National Survey of Child and Adolescent Activities indicated that children who speak Guaraní exclusively are more likely to be involved in child labor and have higher rates of school absence compared to other working children; poverty is pervasive in rural Paraguay, where Guaraní is the predominant language. (4,34) School buses or other forms of public transportation are limited in rural areas, and school infrastructure is often inadequate in rural and indigenous communities. The government has noted that girls from rural areas leave school at an earlier age than boys, and has estimated that more than 50 percent of children with disabilities could not attend school due to lack of access to public transportation. (7,8) Such challenges may leave these children more vulnerable to child labor. Approximately 13 percent of children engaged in child labor in agriculture do not attend school and 11.8 percent of working children ages 14 to 17 have not completed primary school. (1,35)

II. LEGAL FRAMEWORK FOR CHILD LABOR

Paraguay has ratified all key international conventions concerning child labor (Table 3).

Table 3. Ratification of International Conventions on Child Labor

The government has established laws and regulations related to child labor (Table 4). However, gaps exist in Paraguay's legal framework to adequately protect children from the worst forms of child labor, including the lack of prohibition of child recruitment by non-state armed groups.

Table 4. Laws and Regulations on Child Labor

Standard	Meets International Standards	Age	Legislation
Minimum Age for Work	Yes	14	Article 1 of Law No. 2332; Article 58 of the Childhood and Adolescence Code (36,37)
Minimum Age for Hazardous Work	Yes	18	Article 54 of the Childhood and Adolescence Code; Article 3 of Decree No. 4951; Articles 122 and 125 of the Labor Code; Article 15 of the First Employment Law; Article 5 of Law No. 5407 on Domestic Work (36-42)
Identification of Hazardous Occupations or Activities Prohibited for Children	Yes		Article 54 of the Childhood and Adolescence Code; Article 2 of Decree No. 4951; Article 15 of the First Employment Law; Articles 122, 125, and 389 of the Labor Code; Article 5 of Law No. 5407 on Domestic Work (36-42)
Prohibition of Forced Labor	Yes		Articles 5–7 of the Comprehensive Law Against Trafficking in Persons; Articles 125, 129, 223, and 320 of the Penal Code; Articles 10 and 54 of the Constitution (43-46)
Prohibition of Child Trafficking	Yes		Articles 6 and 7 of the Comprehensive Law Against Trafficking in Persons; Articles 125, 129, and 223 of the Penal Code; Article 54 of the Constitution (43-46)
Prohibition of Commercial Sexual Exploitation of Children	Yes		Articles 135 and 223 of the Penal Code; Article 2.19 of Decree No. 4951; Article 31 of the Childhood and Adolescence Code (36,38,44,46)
Prohibition of Using Children in Illicit Activities	Yes		Article 1 of Law No. 1657; Article 32 of the Childhood and Adolescence Code (36,47)
Minimum Age for Voluntary State Military Recruitment	Yes	18	Articles 3 and 5 of the Obligatory Military Service Law (48,49)
Prohibition of Compulsory Recruitment of Children by (State) Military	Yes		Articles 3 and 5 of the Obligatory Military Service Law (48,49)
Prohibition of Military Recruitment by Non-state Armed Groups	No
Compulsory Education Age	Yes	15	Article 2 of Law No. 4088; Article 32 of the General Education Law No. 1264 (50,51)
Free Public Education	Yes		Article 76 of the Constitution; Article 32 of the General Education Law No. 1264 (43,50)

In 2018, President Abdo Benitez and the Paraguayan Congress upgraded the Secretariat of Adolescents and Children (SNNA) to a full ministry-level body, the Ministry of Adolescents and Children (MINNA), giving it greater access to high-level political discussions and its own budget. (3,31,52,53) As the minimum age for work is lower than the compulsory education age, children may be encouraged to leave school before the completion of compulsory education. (36,37)

III. ENFORCEMENT OF LAWS ON CHILD LABOR

The government has established institutional mechanisms for the enforcement of laws and regulations on child labor (Table 5). However, gaps exist within the operations of the Ministry of Labor, Employment and Social Security (MTESS) that may hinder adequate enforcement of their child labor laws.

Table 5. Agencies Responsible for Child Labor Law Enforcement

Organization/Agency	Role
Ministry of Labor, Employment and Social Security (MTESS)	Enforces laws related to child labor, inspects workplaces for child labor, and fines companies found in violation of labor laws. Refers cases involving criminal violation of child labor to the MINNA. (3,9,10)
National Police	Maintain a special unit of 33 police officers, Anti-TIP Unit of the Paraguayan National Police, who handle complaints regarding trafficking in persons, including children, with offices in 5 cities. (3,9,10)
Public Ministry (Prosecutor's Office)	Enforces criminal laws related to the worst forms of child labor by investigating and prosecuting violators and providing support to local prosecutors throughout Paraguay. (3,10) Also maintains the Specialized Unit to Combat Human Trafficking and Sexual Exploitation of Children and Adolescents. (3)
Ministry of Adolescents and Children (MINNA)	Maintains a unit dedicated to fighting child trafficking and a hotline to report cases of human trafficking and commercial sexual exploitation of children. Provides social services to victims referred by law enforcement agencies. (3,9,10,24)
Attorney General's Office	Investigates and prosecutes cases of child labor involving human trafficking through the Anti-Trafficking in Persons Unit. Comprises 3 specialized prosecutors based in Asunción and 35 assistants. (3,9,18)
Ministry of Women's Affairs	Provides social services to female victims of human trafficking, half of whom are estimated to be children. Houses an office staffed with five personnel dedicated to combating trafficking of children. (3,9,10)

Labor Law Enforcement

In 2018, labor law enforcement agencies in Paraguay took actions to combat child labor (Table 6). However, gaps exist within the operations of the MTESS that may hinder adequate labor law enforcement, including financial resource allocation.

In 2018, the MTESS, in cooperation with Project Okakuaa, opened a new regional office in Filadelfia, located in the Chaco region and developed a campaign (Chaco Paraguayo con Trabajo Decente) to inform the public about its opening and to promote decent working conditions. (3,52) The MTESS' General Directorate for the Protection of Children and Adolescents also created a Complaints and Follow-up Office which is responsible for directing these types of requests to other areas within MTESS or to other relevant public agencies such as the anti-trafficking unit. (3)

Although Paraguay has ratified ILO C. 81, its labor inspectors are contractors rather than public officials and there are no inspectors dedicated solely to child labor issues. (3) Due to the instability of contract employment, the authority and training of these labor inspectors may be called into question. (55) The number of labor inspectors is likely insufficient for the size of Paraguay's workforce, which includes over 3 million workers. According to the ILO's recommendation of 1 inspector for every 15,000 workers in developing economies, Paraguay would employ about 229 inspectors. (53,56,57) Government agencies, international organizations, NGOs, and labor organizations agree that inadequate funding and the insufficient number of labor inspectors hamper the labor inspectorate's capacity to enforce child labor laws, especially in the informal sector, including in agriculture and domestic work. (3,7,23) The inspectorate is particularly limited by the lack of dedicated vehicles or travel funds. (3,7)

An additional constraint to labor law enforcement is the lack of efficient and timely cooperation by judicial authorities in granting workplace inspection search warrants to the Public Ministry and the MTESS when an employer does not permit an inspector to enter a workplace to conduct an inspection. The system is paper-based and orders routinely take more than 3 months to arrive. (3,8-11,58) Research was unable to determine whether the government has implemented a 2016 agreement with judicial and law enforcement authorities that would accelerate the authorization of search warrants.

Criminal Law Enforcement

In 2018, criminal law enforcement agencies in Paraguay took actions to combat child labor (Table 7). However, gaps exist within the operations of the criminal enforcement agencies that may hinder adequate criminal law enforcement, including the lack of a referral mechanism between criminal authorities and social services.

Number of Convictions	14 (55)	Unknown (3)
Imposed Penalties for Violations Related to The Worst Forms of Child Labor	Yes (55)	Yes (59)
Reciprocal Referral Mechanism Exists Between Criminal Authorities and Social Services	No (7)	No (3)

During the reporting period, the MTESS carried out both proactive and reactive inspections in sectors and geographical areas where children are at high risk of engaging in child labor, although inspections were general and not specifically seeking incidents of child labor. (3) The Attorney General's Office had 5 prosecutors, including a lead prosecutor, and 45 assistants specialized in and dedicated to combating trafficking in persons (TIP) who worked with other prosecutors throughout the country to investigate and prosecute traffickers. (31) In 2018, for the first time ever, the MINNA set aside a small budget specifically for TIP victim assistance, although the exact amount was not known. (31) The Attorney General's Office, in conjunction with the Spanish Agency for International Development Cooperation, conducted 4 training sessions on labor trafficking with approximately 800 government participants, including prosecutors, investigators, judges, migration officials, and inspectors. (31) During the reporting period, the MINNA assisted 70 human trafficking victims, of whom 48 received assistance at the MINNA-funded specialized shelter for underage victims of sex trafficking. (31) In May, the MINNA also conducted a nationwide public awareness and prevention campaign against child abuse, including sexual exploitation and human trafficking. (31)

However, government agencies, international organizations, NGOs, and labor organizations have observed a need for more specialized prosecutors to support local prosecutors nationwide and increase the Public Ministry's ability to investigate and prosecute cases involving human trafficking. (8,9,11,15) In addition, investigations were limited by insufficient resources, including vehicles, fuel, and logistical support. Overall, Paraguay’s criminal law enforcement agencies lack resources, including staff and training, to sufficiently identify, investigate, and prosecute cases of the worst forms of child labor. As a result, the number of convictions of crimes related to the worst forms of child labor is insufficient and existing penalties are inadequate deterrents. (3,7-11,15,60) In 2018, the National Police’s Anti-Trafficking Unit also reported that the budget allocated to anti-TIP efforts had decreased, forcing the closure of an office in Encarnación and lowering the staff from 50 to 38. (31)

IV. COORDINATION OF GOVERNMENT EFFORTS ON CHILD LABOR

The government has established mechanisms to coordinate its efforts to address child labor (Table 8). However, gaps exist that hinder the adequate coordination of efforts to address child labor, including a lack of financial and human resources.

Table 8. Key Mechanisms to Coordinate Government Efforts on Child Labor

Coordinating Body	Role & Description
National Commission to Prevent and Eradicate the Exploitation of Children (CONAETI)	Leads government efforts against child labor and includes representatives from MTESS, the Ministry of Justice and Human Rights, the Ministry of Women’s Affairs, the MINNA and other government agencies, and labor union representatives, industry associations, and NGOs. (3,10) In 2018, CONAETI updated its action plan for the 2018–2020 period, with the objective of strengthening the actions of the commission. (52)
Inter-Institutional Working Group on Preventing and Combating Human Trafficking	Coordinates inter-agency efforts to combat all forms of trafficking in persons, including child trafficking, and collects and reports statistics on those efforts. Headed by the Ministry of Foreign Relations and mandated to collect and report statistics on trafficking. (3,10,19,61) The group held two plenary sessions and three committee sessions in 2018. (31)
Defense Councils for the Rights of Children and Adolescents (CODENIs)	Coordinate efforts to protect children’s rights at the municipal level, including by maintaining a registry of adolescent workers and coordinating with vocational training programs for adolescents. (10,36) During the reporting period, CODENIs started a “CODENI in Your Community” series in which counselors began monthly visits to schools targeted by the Okakuaa Project to provide specialized guidance to families to prevent critical situations of child labor, link cases to the judiciary system, and increase awareness of the computer system that is used to register adolescent workers. (52) Also, in coordination with the Regional Office in Guairá and the MTESS, CODENIs led meetings to discuss the Registro del Adolescente Trabajador , a computer system that is used to register adolescent workers, and to inform companies and rural establishments on the legal provisions that must be met to hire adolescents. (52)

On September 13, 2018, following changes in government leadership, the new Minister of Labor Carla Bacigalupo and the new Minister of Adolescents and Children (MINNA) Teresa Martinez signed an agreement to work actively to combat the worst forms of child labor. (52) At this same meeting, representatives from the General Direction of Statistics, Surveys and Censuses also reported that they are working on the inclusion of a child labor module in their annual survey, the Encuesta Permanente de Hogares (EPH) for 2019. (52)

While the Inter-Institutional Working Group for Preventing and Combating Trafficking in Persons was effective in fostering dialogue and coordination among government agencies on anti-TIP efforts, it faced challenges in collecting and reporting statistics and a lack of participation from all relevant government agencies. (31) Government agencies responsible for addressing child labor share information and coordinate efforts informally, but coordination between the MTESS and the Ministries of Education and Health remains insufficient to combat the worst forms of child labor. In addition, the Defense Councils for the Rights of Children and Adolescents (CODENIs) require additional financial and human resources to fulfill their mission to address child labor. (3,8-10,18,62)

V. GOVERNMENT POLICIES ON CHILD LABOR

The government has established relevant policies related to child labor (Table 9). However, policy gaps exist that hinder efforts to address child labor, including implementation.

Table 9. Key Policies Related to Child Labor

Policy	Description
National Strategy for the Prevention and Eradication of Child Labor and Protection of Working Adolescents (2018–2023)†	Aims to raise awareness and strengthen enforcement of child labor laws. Provides child laborers with access to free quality education and offers livelihood alternatives for their families. (3,8,10) The government continued to support this strategy and updated it in 2018. (3,63)
National Strategy to Prevent Forced Labor	Aims to prevent and eradicate forced labor and care for victims. (62) The government did not provide information on actions taken under this strategy in 2018 for inclusion in this report.
National Plan for Development (2014–2030)	Aims to reduce social exclusion and poverty, including by preventing and eliminating child labor. (64) The government continued to implement this plan during the reporting period. The Technical Secretariat for Planning worked with UN agencies and Organization for Economic Cooperation and Development on implementation. (59)
National Plan on Human Rights	Promotes human rights, including the prevention and elimination of child labor and forced labor. (65) The government did not provide information on actions taken under this plan in 2018 for inclusion in this report.
Inter-Institutional Agreement on Government Procurement	Prohibits government procurement of goods or services involving child labor. Established between the MINNA and the National Bureau for Public Contracts. (66) The government did not provide information on actions taken under this agreement in 2018 for inclusion in this report.

† Policy was approved during the reporting period.

In 2018, the government updated the National Strategy for the Prevention and Eradication of Child Labor and Protection of Working Adolescents for the 2018–2023 period. (3,67) The plan includes goals of institutional strengthening of the MINNA, CODENIs and the MTESS, increased training and awareness campaigns on the worst forms of child labor, and improving education throughout the country. (67) The Government of Paraguay used the United Nations Millennium Goals as a guideline for the creation of the updated plan. (67)

VI. SOCIAL PROGRAMS TO ADDRESS CHILD LABOR

In 2018, the government funded and participated in programs that include the goal of eliminating or preventing child labor (Table 10). However, gaps exist in these social programs, including coverage and funding to fully address the problem in all sectors.

Table 10. Key Social Programs to Address Child Labor

Program	Description
USDOL-Funded Projects	USDOL projects that aim to eliminate child labor, including its worst forms, through research, improved monitoring and enforcement, policy development, and awareness-raising. These projects include Attaining Lasting Change (ATLAS), a $7.5 million project which aims to build the capacity of host governments to more adequately combat child labor, forced labor, and human trafficking; Country Level Engagement and Assistance to Reduce Child Labor (CLEAR), implemented by the ILO in 11 countries; and Paraguay Okakuaa (Paraguay Progresses), a $6 million project implemented by Partners of the Americas. (68,69) For additional information about USDOL's work, please visit our website.
Immediate Assistance Fund†	Provides immediate, temporary assistance to victims of child labor and human trafficking. Established by the Anti-Trafficking in Persons Unit of the Attorney General's office with support from International Organization for Migration. (3) In 2018, assistance included psychological examinations, hotel stays, assisted returns home, and food and furniture donations. (59)
Embrace Program (Programa Abrazo)†	MINNA program to assist children engaged in exploitative work by providing them and their families with health and education services, food deliveries, and cash transfers conditioned on children's school attendance and withdrawal from work. (3,70) Works closely with the NGO Fortalecer in the implementation of ILO-IPEC programs and with the Sugarcane Growers' Association, Ministry of Education and Culture, and CONAETI to set up programs tailored to at-risk children who work during the sugarcane harvesting season. (10) From January to June 2018, the program attended to 10,858 children. (71)
Combating Commercial Sexual Exploitation of Girls, Boys, and Adolescents in Trips and Tourism†	National campaign of the National Secretariat for Tourism and the Association of Female Tourism Executives to raise awareness on protecting children from commercial sexual exploitation. (18) Launched campaign in the Department of Itapúa in November 2018. (72)

Program	Description
Promotion of Decent Work in the Cotton Supply Chain (2016–2018)	Government of Brazil-funded project implemented by the ILO to promote decent work in cotton through exchanges on combating poverty and discrimination, preventing and eradicating child labor and forced labor, formalizing employment, and promoting youth employment and equality. (73,74) Due to implementation delays, this project remained ongoing in 2018. (59)
Well-Being Conditional Cash Transfer Program (Tekoporã)†	Government-administered program through the Secretariat for Social Action. Provides conditional cash transfers to families in rural communities. (9) Incorporates aspects of the Embrace Program, such as the family monitoring methodology, to ensure participant children do not engage in child labor. (10) In 2018, the program included an additional 118 families in the Department of Guairá. World Bank officials noted that their research shows it is the most successful social program in Paraguay in combating poverty and child labor. (75,76)

† Program is funded by the Government of Paraguay.

The 2012 Law Against Trafficking in Persons requires the Ministry of Women’s Affairs to provide compensation and financial assistance to victims of sexual and labor trafficking, including minors. In 2018, in contrast to previous reporting periods, the Ministry of Women’s Affairs did allocate a small amount of funding specifically for victim compensation and financial assistance, although NGO and government officials reported that compensation took too long to be helpful and in some cases drew unwanted attention to the victim. (9,11,15,31,45,77) The Ministry of Women’s Affairs also conducted training for 1,500 individuals in 2018 in at-risk communities and high-risk industries, including hospitality, on the nature of TIP and avoiding victimization. (31) Although Paraguay has programs that target child labor, the coverage and funding of these programs is insufficient to fully address the extent of the problem, and programs are limited by the absence of government education and health services in rural areas. Additional programs are needed to reach the large numbers of working children, especially in agriculture, including cattle herding and domestic work. (7,9,11,15)

VII. SUGGESTED GOVERNMENT ACTIONS TO ELIMINATE CHILD LABOR

Based on the reporting above, suggested actions are identified that would advance the elimination of child labor in Paraguay (Table 11).

Table 11. Suggested Government Actions to Eliminate Child Labor

Area	Suggested Action	Year(s) Suggested
Legal Framework	Ensure that the law criminally prohibits the recruitment of children under age 18 by non-state armed groups.	2016 – 2018
	Raise the minimum age for work to the age of completion of compulsory education.	2018
Enforcement	Ensure that the National Police’s Anti-Trafficking Unit is properly funded.	2018
	Strengthen the labor inspectorate by permitting inspectors to determine and assess penalties for child labor violations.	2016 – 2018
	Strengthen the labor inspectorate by making labor inspectors public officials rather than contractors.	2017 – 2018
	Increase the number of labor inspectors to meet the ILO’s technical advice and increase the funding and resources available to the labor inspectorate, including dedicated vehicles and travel funds, to build enforcement capacity to address child labor in the informal sector.	2009 – 2018
	Implement the agreement to accelerate authorization of workplace inspection search warrants to improve the cooperation mechanisms among judicial authorities and labor enforcement officials.	2013 – 2018
	Publish information on the number of prosecutions initiated and the number of convictions on cases related to the worst forms of child labor.	2018
	Establish a referral mechanism between criminal authorities and social services to ensure that victims of the worst forms of child labor receive appropriate services.	2016 – 2018
	Increase efforts to prosecute crimes related to the exploitation of children in the worst forms of child labor, including by hiring and training more specialized prosecutors; providing resources, such as vehicles and fuel, to enable investigations in remote areas; and increasing penalties for crimes.	2012 – 2018
Discontinue the practice of allowing children to shine shoes in government buildings, including the Supreme Court building.	2017 – 2018

Area	Suggested Action	Year(s) Suggested
Coordination	Strengthen interagency coordinating mechanisms, with particular focus on the communication between the Ministry of Labor, Employment and Social Security and the Ministries of Education and Health, to combat child labor, including its worst forms.	2013 – 2018
	Ensure that the Inter-Institutional Working Group for Preventing and Combating Trafficking in Persons fulfills its mandates, including in collecting and reporting statistics.	2018
	Provide additional financial and human resources to the Defense Councils for the Rights of Children and Adolescents to strengthen their ability to address child labor at the municipal level.	2017 – 2018
Government Policies	Publish information on activities taken under key policies that address child labor, including its worst forms.	2018
Social Programs	Further expand government programs to assist more families and children affected by child labor, including in agriculture and domestic work.	2010 – 2018
	Increase access to education for children vulnerable to child labor, particularly children with disabilities and children living in rural and indigenous communities where language barriers and lack of teachers is prevalent.	2014 – 2018
	Ensure that financial assistance programs for child trafficking and forced labor victims are properly funded.	2018

In 2018, Peru made a moderate advancement in efforts to eliminate the worst forms of child labor. The National Labor Inspection Superintendency opened two new inspection offices and added approximately $14 million to its 2018 budget. Peru's Congress also passed legislation to strengthen the labor inspectorate system by temporarily transferring competencies, functions, and staff from the Regional Governments to the National Labor Inspection Superintendency. In addition, the government renewed the National Plan to Combat Forced Labor and the National Policy Against Trafficking in Persons. However, children in Peru engage in the worst forms of child labor, including in mining and in commercial sexual exploitation, sometimes as a result of human trafficking. Peruvian law allows children ages 12 to 14 to do light work without specifying the activities in which children may work. In addition, labor law enforcement agencies in Peru lack sufficient inspectors and training to effectively combat child labor.

I. PREVALENCE AND SECTORAL DISTRIBUTION OF CHILD LABOR

Children in Peru engage in the worst forms of child labor, including in mining and in commercial sexual exploitation, sometimes as a result of human trafficking. (1,2) In the 2015 National Child Labor Survey, the government identified 1,619,200 children, ages 5 to 17, engaged in child labor. Rates of child labor were higher in the sierra and jungle regions than in the coastal region, and higher in rural areas than in urban areas. (3) The government estimated that 1,251,400 children, ages 5 to 17, were engaged in hazardous child labor and that 58.4 percent of these children worked in agriculture, fishing, or mining. The government also identified 70,500 children, ages 10 to 17, who were at risk of forced labor. (3) Table 1 provides key indicators on children's work and education in Peru.

	Commercial sexual exploitation, including in bars, nightclubs, brothels, and mining camps, each sometimes as a result of human trafficking (1,2,21)
	Growing and processing coca (stimulant plant), sometimes as a result of human trafficking, and transporting drugs (1,2,6,19,21,22)
	Counterfeiting U.S. dollars and lightbulbs (1,2,23,24)
	Recruitment of children by non-state armed groups for use in armed conflict (2)

† Determined by national law or regulation as hazardous and, as such, relevant to Article 3(d) of ILO C. 182.

‡ Child labor understood as the worst forms of child labor per se under Article 3(a)–(c) of ILO C. 182.

Children in Peru work in informal and small-scale mining, particularly for gold, sometimes in situations of forced labor, and are exposed to hazards, including wall and mine collapses, landslides, explosives accidents, and exposure to mercury and harmful gases. Near mining areas, children are also subjected to commercial sexual exploitation, sometimes as a result of human trafficking. (1,2,10,11,25-27) Remnants of the Shining Path terrorist group continue to use children in combat, domestic servitude, and drug trafficking. (1,2,19) Forced labor in support of narco-trafficking can include using hazardous chemicals to process coca or working as a drug courier. (1) The influx of over 800,000 Venezuelan migrants and refugees into Peru since 2017 may exacerbate child labor and human trafficking. (1,2,28) Government and civil society groups have noted specific cases of human trafficking in which Venezuelan victims were promised jobs upon arrival to Lima, only to be forced into prostitution to pay off a debt. (1)

Indigenous and Afro-Peruvian children and children from rural communities experience lower school enrollment and completion rates, with indigenous children especially vulnerable to dropping out of school and engaging in hazardous work in agriculture. (11,29,30)

II. LEGAL FRAMEWORK FOR CHILD LABOR

Peru has ratified all key international conventions concerning child labor (Table 3).

Table 3. Ratification of International Conventions on Child Labor

The government has established laws and regulations related to child labor (Table 4). However, gaps exist in Peru's legal framework to adequately protect children from the worst forms of child labor, including the lack of prohibition of child recruitment by non-state armed groups.

Table 4. Laws and Regulations on Child Labor

* No conscription

‡ Age calculated based on available information (37,42-45)

Although night work is on the hazardous work list, Article 57 of the Child and Adolescent Code allows a judge to authorize children ages 15 and older to engage in night work not exceeding 4 hours a day. The Child and Adolescent Code provides a light work exception for children as young as age 12 to receive work authorization without specifying the activities permitted. (1,31) In addition, as the minimum age for work is lower than the compulsory education age, children may be encouraged to leave school before the completion of compulsory education. (32,37,42-44)

III. ENFORCEMENT OF LAWS ON CHILD LABOR

The government has established institutional mechanisms for the enforcement of laws and regulations on child labor (Table 5). However, gaps exist within the operations of the Ministry of Labor and Promotion of Employment (MTPE) that may hinder effective enforcement of their child labor laws.

Table 5. Agencies Responsible for Child Labor Law Enforcement

Organization/Agency	Role
Ministry of Labor and Promotion of Employment (MTPE)	Sets national policies and guidelines for labor law enforcement, including for inspections. Responsible for supporting the National Labor Inspection Superintendency (SUNAFIL). (46,47) Maintains an online reporting service to receive complaints of labor law violations. (48)
National Labor Inspection Superintendency (SUNAFIL)	As part of the Ministry of Labor and Promotion of Employment, enforces labor laws in 16 regions. (1,49,50) Conducts labor inspections of employers who have more than 10 registered workers. (51) Maintains a special inspection group comprising 15 inspectors who conduct inspections targeting forced labor and child labor violations and train other inspectors on these topics. (1,8,52,53) Addresses possible child labor violations during inspections and refers cases of child labor to the Ministry of Women and Vulnerable Populations (MIMP) and the Public Ministry, as appropriate. (54)
Regional Directorates for Labor	Inspects employers with 10 or fewer registered workers and conducts labor inspections in regions without a SUNAFIL office. Following Congress' 2018 legislation to strengthen the labor inspectorate, the Regional Directorates now consist of one representative of the regional government, one representative of the MTPE, and one representative of SUNAFIL. (55)
Ombudsman's Department for Children and Adolescents	Coordinates government policies and programs that target children and adolescents. Assists the MTPE to investigate child labor complaints. (45)
Peruvian National Police (PNP)	Enforce criminal laws regarding child labor and child exploitation, and maintain a human trafficking investigation unit to investigate cases of child trafficking for labor and sexual exploitation. (1,2) Coordinate with the Public Ministry and MIMP to place rescued minors with family members or state social services. (1,2)
Public Ministry	Coordinates with MTPE, SUNAFIL, and the National Police to investigate and prosecute cases of criminal violations of child labor laws. Maintains a specialized human trafficking prosecutorial unit in the Public Prosecutor's Office. (56)
Ministry of the Interior (MININTER)	Investigates child trafficking cases. (1,45) Maintains a hotline to receive reports of human trafficking. Provides victims and the public with information on human trafficking, refers cases of human trafficking to the relevant government offices, and coordinates services for victims. (1,57,58)
MIMP Children's Bureau	Designs, promotes, coordinates, monitors, and evaluates government policies and programs for the well-being of children. (45,59) Provides social services to children found in the worst forms of child labor and refers cases to the MTPE. (52,60)

In July 2018, Peru's Congress passed legislation to strengthen the labor inspectorate system. (1,55) Under this legislation, the government temporarily transferred competencies, functions, and staff from the Regional Governments to the National Labor Inspection Superintendency (SUNAFIL), the central authority of the labor inspection system, for a period of 8 years. (61-63) The government also issued a resolution which formalized the existing Specialized Group of Labor Inspectors on Forced Labor and Child Labor. This group within SUNAFIL, comprising inspectors specialized in child labor and forced labor, closely coordinate inspection procedures with other government ministries. (1,53,64) The Government of Peru also increased SUNAFIL's budget for the third year in a row, adding approximately $14 million to the total budget. (1) SUNAFIL opened 2 new inspection offices in Ayacucho and Puno, resulting in a total of 16 offices across Peru's 25 regions and the Province of Lima. (1,2,50,65) SUNAFIL and the MTPE, in coordination with the Public Ministry, conducted multiple child labor courses during 2018, training over 1,000 labor inspectors and regional government officials. (1,66)

Labor Law Enforcement

In 2018, labor law enforcement agencies in Peru took actions to combat child labor (Table 6). However, gaps exist within the operations of the MTPE that may hinder effective labor law enforcement, including the lack of data on labor inspections.

The number of labor inspectors is likely insufficient for the size of Peru's workforce, which includes over 17 million workers. According to the ILO's technical advice of a ratio approaching 1 inspector for every 15,000 workers in industrializing economies, Peru would need to employ about 1,135 inspectors. (68-70) Although both the MTPE and SUNAFIL received budget increases for labor inspections in 2018, resources remain inadequate to enforce labor laws, especially in the informal sector, which remains a large portion of Peru's economy. (1) NGOs, the MTPE, and SUNAFIL reported that the number of labor inspectors and inspections remained inadequate and noted that insufficient training for inspectors and lack of funding for conducting inspections, hiring additional inspectors, and maintaining offices may have continued to hamper their enforcement of child labor laws, including in informal artisanal mining and domestic work. (1,6,71-73) Reports indicate that penalties for child labor were insufficient to deter violations, and enforcement in the informal sector is lacking. (1) NGOs and labor experts estimated that the MTPE collected approximately 10 percent of fines imposed in 2018. SUNAFIL collected no fines for child labor violations issued between 2014 and 2017 because the fines remained in the judicial appeals process. (1,6) In addition, many of Peru's inspectors are "auxiliary" or junior-level inspectors with limited authority to conduct inspections until they complete 2 years of service and an examination. (74) Auxiliary inspectors must have full inspectors supervise their inspection processes and review their inspection acts for any businesses with over 10 employees. (74,75) SUNAFIL reported plans to remove the auxiliary inspector classification and require that all inspectors at the national level be full-fledged inspectors with full authority. (75)

Criminal Law Enforcement

In 2018, criminal law enforcement agencies in Peru took actions to combat child labor (Table 7). However, gaps exist within the operations of the criminal enforcement agencies that may hinder effective criminal law enforcement, including insufficient financial resources.

In June 2018, SUNAFIL inspectors carried out a joint operation with Lima municipal authorities, the Lima Public Prosecutor's Office, and the Peruvian National Police (PNP) at the Las Malvinas industrial area in Lima, identifying three children working illegally with heavy equipment in printing shops. The children were turned over to the Lima Family Prosecutor's Office, and SUNAFIL fined the printing shop owners and launched an investigation of the printing shops. (1) In January 2018, during joint operations with the PNP, the Public Ministry, and the regional government authorities in the city of Huánuco, SUNAFIL identified 7 children ages 11 to 15 working illegally in restaurants and hostels. The PNP turned the children over to the Public Ministry and the business owners were fined. (1) During the reporting period, the National Police's Trafficking in Persons Unit expanded to 398 officers, up from 147 in 2017. (2) Peru also signed a trafficking in persons border agreement with Colombia in 2018 and a counter-human trafficking bilateral agreement with Spain in February 2019. (2) In 2018, the Public Prosecutor's Office also funded six specialized regional prosecutors who cover TIP crimes in the districts of Lima, Madre de Dios, Tumbes and Loreto. (1) The Public Ministry conducted over 25 TIP training sessions for prosecutors and police during the reporting period. (2) Despite these efforts, reports indicate that investigations and prosecutions were ineffective to deter child trafficking, particularly in illegal mining areas and bars. Such reports noted too few investigators, insufficient funding or resources to carry out investigations, low conviction rates, and inadequate training for MTPE investigators. (2,6,19,67,73) Although the Ministry of Women and Vulnerable Populations (MIMP) operates two shelters exclusively for human trafficking victims in Lima and Madre de Dios, there remains a lack of shelters and sustained specialized services for TIP victims throughout the country. (2)

IV. COORDINATION OF GOVERNMENT EFFORTS ON CHILD LABOR

The government has established mechanisms to coordinate its efforts to address child labor (Table 8). However, gaps exist that hinder the effective coordination of efforts to address child labor, including implementation of action plans.

Table 8. Key Mechanisms to Coordinate Government Efforts on Child Labor

Coordinating Body	Role & Description
National Commission for the Prevention and Eradication of Child Labor (CPETI)	Implements the National Strategy for the Prevention and Eradication of Child Labor. (1,48) Proposes public policies and coordinates, evaluates, and monitors government actions to combat child labor. Maintains subcommittees, including on informal mining, child labor in indigenous villages, and project evaluations. (45) Led by the MTPE, comprises representatives from 17 government agencies, including MININTER; the Ministries of Education and Justice; the Peruvian National Police; and business associations, unions, and NGOs. (45,76) The commission held 10 meetings during the reporting year and promoted the implementation of the National Strategy for the Prevention and Eradication of Child Labor. (1)
Regional Commissions for the Prevention and Eradication of Child Labor	Manages and implements regional public policy for the prevention and eradication of child labor. Present in all 25 regions of Peru. (77) Some Regional Commissions for the Prevention and Eradication of Child Labor have not fulfilled their mandate to create action plans to combat child labor, while others have action plans but have failed to provide the necessary funding to carry them out. (1,6,56)

Table 8. Key Mechanisms to Coordinate Government Efforts on Child Labor

Coordinating Body	Role & Description
National Commission Against Forced Labor	Coordinates government efforts to combat forced labor, including conducting research and awareness-raising campaigns, developing legislation, and strengthening Peru's institutional capacity to address forced labor. Led by the MTPE, with the participation of eight additional government ministries. (1) The commission completed an evaluation of the implementation of the National Plan to Combat Forced Labor in early 2018. (28)
Permanent Multi-Sectoral Commission on Illegal Mining	Coordinates government efforts to address illegal mining by developing programs to eradicate child labor and commercial sexual exploitation of children in mining areas. Led by the Prime Minister's Office, includes representatives of regional governments and six national government agencies, including the Ministry of Energy and Mines and MININTER. (78)
Multi-Sector Commission Against Trafficking in Persons	Leads and coordinates government efforts to combat human trafficking by designing, recommending, monitoring, and implementing policies to combat human trafficking, including of children. Chaired by MININTER, comprises 12 government agencies, including the MTPE, MIMP, and the Ministries of Justice, Education, and Health. (79) Continued coordination in 2018 through the Ministry of the Interior. (2)

During the reporting period, government agencies used data from the 2015 national child labor survey to inform their efforts to address child labor, enhancing coordination between SUNAFIL, the MTPE, the National Police, and local officials. (1,2) The agencies worked together on joint inspections, police operations, awareness training, and employment training for victims with an emphasis on rural areas. (1) In April 2018, SUNAFIL labor inspectors coordinated with the Public Ministry, the PNP, and Cajamarca Regional government officials to identify and rescue 2 girls ages 14 and 15 from working in a rural agricultural processing plant. The PNP and Public Ministry then placed the victims in the custody of the Cajamarca Family Prosecutor's Office, which notified their families; SUNAFIL fined the owners of the plant, and the Public Ministry launched a criminal investigation. (1)

V. GOVERNMENT POLICIES ON CHILD LABOR

The government has established policies related to child labor (Table 9). However, policy gaps exist that hinder efforts to address child labor, including funding.

Table 9. Key Policies Related to Child Labor

Policy	Description
National Strategy for the Prevention and Eradication of Child Labor (2012–2021)	Aims to eliminate the worst forms of child labor by improving livelihoods of low-income families, educational opportunities, and working conditions for adolescents; raising awareness of child labor; and increasing child labor law enforcement. (1,14,60,77) Also seeks to improve the quality of child labor data in Peru. (14) Continued implementation in 2018. (1)
A Peru Without Child Labor	Aims to prevent and eradicate child labor through a partnership between the government and a network of private businesses committed to supporting the National Strategy. (60,77,80) The government did not provide information on activities taken under this policy in 2018 for inclusion in this report.
National Action Plan for Children and Adolescents (2012–2021)	Establishes a comprehensive set of government policies for children and adolescents to eradicate the worst forms of child labor. (1,59,77) Continued implementation in 2018. (1)
National Plan to Combat Forced Labor (2017–2021)	Establishes policies and priorities for combating forced labor, including programs and projects focusing on the most vulnerable populations such as children. (77,81) Continued implementation in 2018. (1) The plan was renewed during the reporting period, however, funding was never secured to implement the renewed Plan, making it difficult to implement across the government. (1,2,6)
Inter-sectoral Protocol Against Forced Labor	Outlines the government's role in combating forced labor and provides for the housing, legal defense, and educational reintegration of children and adolescent victims of forced labor. Monitored by the National Commission Against Forced Labor. (77,82,83) The Government of Peru implemented this policy in 2018 by holding regional conferences and workshops on how ministries and regional governments should address forced labor cases, monitor forced labor risk factors, and establish strategies to identify victims and provides services. (2)
National Plan of Action Against Trafficking in Persons 2017–2021	Aims to prevent and reduce human trafficking by addressing root causes, prosecuting perpetrators, assisting victims, and strengthening programs for vulnerable populations, including child laborers. (1,2,84,85) Emphasizes the needs of human trafficking victims through a dedicated Victim Reintegration Plan. (1,2) The government did not provide information on activities taken under this policy in 2018 for inclusion in this report.

VI. SOCIAL PROGRAMS TO ADDRESS CHILD LABOR

In 2018, the government funded and participated in programs that include the goal of eliminating or preventing child labor (Table 10). However, gaps exist in these social programs, including the adequacy of efforts to address the problem in all sectors.

Table 10. Key Social Programs to Address Child Labor

Program	Description
USDOL-Funded Projects	USDOL projects that aim to eliminate child labor, including its worst forms, through research, improved monitoring and enforcement, policy development, and awareness-raising. These projects include Promoting Better Understanding of Indicators to Address Labor Trafficking in Peru, a $2 million, 4-year project implemented by Capital Humano y Social Alternativo (CHS); Proyecto Semilla (Seed Project): Combating Exploitative Rural Child Labor in Peru , a $16 million, 7-year project implemented by Desarrollo y Autogestión ; Consolidating and Disseminating Efforts to Combat Forced Labor in Brazil and Peru, a $6.8 million, 5-year project implemented by the ILO; Engaging Workers and Civil Society to Strengthen Labor Law Enforcement, a $2.8 million, 3-year project implemented by the American Center for International Labor Solidarity; Closing the Child Labor and Forced Labor Evidence Gap: Impact Evaluations, implemented by Innovations for Poverty Action; and From Protocol to Practice: A Bridge to Global Action on Forced Labor (The Bridge Project), a global project implemented by the ILO. For additional information about USDOL's work, please visit our website. (86-89)
Responsible Peru†	MTPE program to create formal youth employment opportunities, encourage adolescents to stay in school, and strengthen corporate social responsibility. (6,45) In 2018, the MTPE signed several agreements with private companies to develop public-private partnerships for corporate responsibility to help reduce child labor through an employment program that encourages adolescents to stay in school. (1)
Huánuco Project†	Improves school retention and attendance rates among child laborers in rural areas. In conjunction with the Together Program, assists approximately 4,000 children and 3,200 families by providing cash transfers, education, and livelihood services. (14,52,56) The government did not provide information on activities taken under this project in 2018 for inclusion in this report.
Carabayllo Project†	Provides scholarships, education assistance, psychological help, and other services to 1,000 families and 1,500 children to reduce urban child labor, especially in garbage dumps. (14,16,17,52,56) The government did not provide information on activities taken under this project in 2018 for inclusion in this report.
Learn Program (Yachay)†	MIMP program to increase protection and access to social services for children subjected to street work, begging, and commercial sexual exploitation. (93) In 2018, assisted approximately 8,000 minors in total and enabled over 6,000 children to reduce their work hours. (1)
Street Educators (Educaores de Calle)†	MIMP program under Yachay that provides counseling and training to children engaged in begging and street work. Operates 71 centers for educational activities, parent training, and workshops. (1,6,45,94) Connects working children and their families to educational and social services to withdraw them from exploitative work and improve family welfare. (95-97) The program assisted over 1,000 families in over 25 cities during the reporting period. (1,2)
Together Program (Juntos)†	Ministry of Social Development program, provides cash transfers to approximately 763,000 low-income households in 15 of the country's 25 regions. Provided services to nearly 900,000 families in 2018. (1,6,48,98)

† Program is funded by the Government of Peru.

In December of 2018, the Government of Peru officially announced its plan to combat the pervasive practice of illegal gold mining in the Amazonian region, which has historically fostered child labor, forced labor, and sex trafficking. Starting in early 2019, the government plans to focus efforts on social and economic development support to mining communities from key ministries, targeted assistance for human trafficking victims, and restoration of areas deforested and contaminated by mercury. (2) Under the Plan, MIMP will relocate victims of human trafficking, forced, and child labor to shelters in Cusco and other regions of the country. (2) Under the Semilla Project and the Adolescent Labor Reconversion Program, from 2016 to 2018 the MTPE provided employment training to over 2,000 youth ages 14 to 17 who had previously engaged in hazardous child labor in Junín and Pasco. (6,99) Reports indicate that existing social programs are not sufficient to fully address the problem of child labor in Peru, including the large number of children who perform dangerous tasks in agriculture. Peru also lacks targeted programs to assist children who are subjected to commercial sexual exploitation and children who work in mining, logging, and domestic work. (6,19,20)

VII. SUGGESTED GOVERNMENT ACTIONS TO ELIMINATE CHILD LABOR

Based on the reporting above, suggested actions are identified that would advance the elimination of child labor in Peru (Table 11).

Table 11. Suggested Government Actions to Eliminate Child Labor

Area	Suggested Action	Year(s) Suggested
Legal Framework	Ensure that children are either prohibited from engaging in night work with no exceptions or if children are permitted to engage in night work, that they are adequately protected.	2014 – 2018
	Ensure that the law criminally prohibits the recruitment of children under age 18 by non-state armed groups.	2016 – 2018
	Ensure that the law's light work provisions are specific enough to prevent children from involvement in child labor.	2017 – 2018
	Raise the minimum age for work to the age up to which education is compulsory.	2018
Enforcement	Publish information on the number of labor inspections conducted at worksites; the number of child labor violations found and for which penalties were imposed and collected; and the number of criminal investigations, violations, prosecutions, and convictions related to the worst forms of child labor.	2015 – 2018
	Ensure effective enforcement of child labor laws, particularly in the informal sector, including in artisanal mining and domestic work.	2009 – 2018
	Increase the collection rate of fines imposed for child labor law violations to deter future violations.	2015 – 2018
	Establish National Labor Inspection Superintendency (SUNAFIL) offices in all regions of Peru to support labor law enforcement throughout the country.	2017 – 2018
	Increase the level of funding and the resources allocated for criminal law enforcement related to the worst forms of child labor, including for increased training on the worst forms of child labor for criminal investigators.	2015 – 2018
	Conduct criminal investigations in mining areas and bars in which minors serve alcohol or are subjected to commercial sexual exploitation, and ensure that penalties are properly enforced.	2016 – 2018
Coordination	Ensure that Regional Commissions for the Prevention and Eradication of Child Labor (CPETIs) develop action plans to combat child labor and allocate sufficient funding to implement these plans.	2010 – 2018
Government Policies	Allocate sufficient funding to fully implement policies and plans to combat forced labor.	2013 – 2018
	Publish information on activities taken under key policies to address child labor.	2018
Social Programs	Enhance efforts to eliminate barriers and make education accessible for all children, in particular in indigenous and Afro-Peruvian communities and rural areas.	2014 – 2018
	Expand social programs to reach a greater number of children who perform dangerous tasks in agriculture; initiate social programs to address child commercial sexual exploitation, child labor in mining, child labor in logging, and child domestic work; and publish information on activities taken under all social programs that address child labor.	2009 – 2018

In 2018, the Philippines made a moderate advancement in efforts to eliminate the worst forms of child labor. The government commenced a nationwide profiling of child laborers and issued Administrative Order No. 142-18, Guidelines on the Profiling of Child Laborers and Provision of Service to Remove Them from Child Labor, to harmonize the process of removing children from child labor and referring them to appropriate services. It permanently closed down a motel that was found to engage children in prostitution and obscene shows, and approved the Guidelines on the Management of Compensation for Victim-Survivors of Online Sexual Abuse and Exploitation of Children. However, children in the Philippines engage in the worst forms of child labor, including in commercial sexual exploitation, sometimes as a result of human trafficking, and in armed conflict. Children also perform dangerous tasks in agriculture and gold mining. Although the government made meaningful efforts in all relevant areas during the reporting period, the government did not adequately protect children engaged in drug trafficking from inappropriate incarceration, penalties, or physical harm. In addition, the enforcement of child labor laws remains challenging, especially due to the limited number of inspectors, lack of resources for inspections, and inspectors' inability to assess penalties.

I. PREVALENCE AND SECTORAL DISTRIBUTION OF CHILD LABOR

Children in the Philippines engage in the worst forms of child labor, including in commercial sexual exploitation, sometimes as a result of human trafficking, and in armed conflict. Children also perform dangerous tasks in agriculture and gold mining. (1-8) The Survey on Children indicated that 3.2 million children ages 5 to 17 years engage in child labor, of which approximately 3 million engage in hazardous work. (9) Table 1 provides key indicators on children's work and education in the Philippines.

Table 1. Statistics on Children's Work and Education

Children	Age	Percent
Working (% and population)	5 to 14	7.5 (1,549,677)
Attending School (%)	5 to 14	93.7
Combining Work and School (%)	7 to 14	7.8
Primary Completion Rate (%)		104.0

† Determined by national law or regulation as hazardous and, as such, relevant to Article 3(d) of ILO C. 182.

‡ Child labor understood as the worst forms of child labor per se under Article 3(a)–(c) of ILO C. 182.

The use of children in illicit activities, specifically in the distribution, procuring, and selling of drugs, including a cheap methamphetamine known as shabu, has become a cause for concern in the Philippines. (7,9,27,34,35,37) The government continued its anti-drug campaign, which began in 2016 and did not adequately protect children engaged in drug trafficking from inappropriate incarceration, penalties, or physical harm. (38-43)

Children, primarily girls, are trafficked domestically from rural communities to urban centers and tourist destinations for the purpose of domestic work and commercial sexual exploitation. (31,33,48) Research indicates that the Philippines is the top global Internet source of online commercial sexual exploitation of children (OSEC). Children are induced to perform sex acts at the direction of paying foreigners and local Filipinos for live Internet broadcasts which usually take place in small Internet cafes, private homes, or windowless dungeon-like buildings commonly known as “cybersex dens.” (8,32,33,49-54) According to data on OSEC victims collected by the International Justice Mission Philippines, the average age of victims was 16 to 18 years, and the median age of the victims at the time of rescue was 12. (8,33,55) Additionally, according to the most recent available data from 2018 the Philippines Department of Justice’s Office of Cybercrimes reviewed over 576,000 reports of online child abuse and cybercrimes from the National Center for Missing and Exploited Children. (8,54,56)

Child soldiering by non-government militias and terrorist organizations, predominately in the southern island of Mindanao, remains a concern. (7,8,32,57) In Marawi City, many children as young as age 7 were recruited, paid, and trained as fighters by the Maute Group, a terrorist organization linked to the Islamic State of Iraq and Syria (ISIS). Additionally, research suggests that the Abu Sayyaf Group, the Bangsamoro Islamic Freedom Fighters, the Moro National Liberation Front, the National Democratic Front of the Philippines, and the New People’s Army continue to recruit children from schools for use as human shields, cooks, and fighters, while offering religious education and material incentives to join. (8,32)

The most recent Functional Literacy, Education and Mass Media Survey, published in 2015 with 2013 data, indicated that 10.6 percent of all school-aged children did not attend school. The highest percentage of children not in school was in the Autonomous Region in Muslim Mindanao, where the total was 14.4 percent. (8,58) In an effort to facilitate Muslim youth school attendance, the government conducted outreach activities to help facilitate a welcome environment in public schools for Muslim students, including a provision to include instructional materials and modules for the Arabic Language and Islamic Values Education program. (8) Additionally, the Department of Education increased the budget for schools in Mindanao. (59)

II. LEGAL FRAMEWORK FOR CHILD LABOR

The Philippines has ratified all key international conventions concerning child labor (Table 3).

Table 3. Ratification of International Conventions on Child Labor

‡ Age calculated based on available information (71)

As the minimum age for work is lower than the compulsory education age, children may be encouraged to leave school before the completion of compulsory education.

During the reporting period, the Institute of Government and Law Reform at the University of the Philippines Law Center established a Labor Code Revision Committee tasked with formulating proposed amendments to the existing Labor Code, and invited Department of Labor and Employment (DOLE) to discuss the minimum age for work. In December 2018, proposed amendments to Republic Act No. 9231 commenced with support from the ILO. (8) Additionally, the Bureau of Working Conditions met with the ILO to discuss hazardous forms of child work. (74) The initial stages of development on proposed amendments to Republic Act No. 9231 began in December 2018, with support from the ILO, and will continue with a roundtable discussion with stakeholders in early 2019. (8)

III. ENFORCEMENT OF LAWS ON CHILD LABOR

The government has established institutional mechanisms for the enforcement of laws and regulations on child labor (Table 5). However, gaps exist within the authority of the DOLE that may hinder adequate enforcement of their child labor laws.

Table 5. Agencies Responsible for Child Labor Law Enforcement

Organization/Agency	Role
Department of Labor and Employment (DOLE) - Bureau of Working Conditions	Enforces child labor and child trafficking laws. (33) Regularly trains inspectors and regional personnel. (8,79) Inspects establishments and monitors compliance with labor laws in the formal sector. (79) Registers DOLE enforcement activities using the Labor Law Compliance System, a management information system. (80) During the reporting period, hired 36 additional labor inspectors and is expected to hire an additional 100 labor inspectors by the end of 2019. (8,74) Additionally, in 2018, reported having removed 58 children from hazardous work situations and referred some families for livelihood assistance during the reporting period. (32)
Department of Labor and Employment (DOLE) - Bureau of Workers with Special Concerns (BWSC)	Oversees the profiling of child laborers. (74) Mandated to develop policies, programs, and systems. Provides advisory and technical assistance to the Labor Secretary and Regional Offices. (81)
Department of Social Welfare and Development (DSWD)	Rehabilitates and reintegrates child laborers. Coordinates regional Special Action Units, with at least one dedicated staff member per region to conduct rescue operations for child laborers, and cooperates with social workers to manage ongoing cases. Maintains 16 Crisis Intervention Units, operates 44 temporary or residential care facilities nationwide, and maintains social media accounts to address cases of child abuse and support child abuse victims, including children exploited in hazardous labor. (16,33,34) As of November 2018, DSWD provided assistance to 446 child laborers. (8)
Philippine National Police (PNP)	Investigates and prosecutes cases related to the worst forms of child labor. (8,12) In the case of the Women and Children's Protection Center (WCPC), enforces laws on child trafficking and commercial sexual exploitation of children. (12) Oversees the Internet Crimes Against Children Center, within the Anti-Trafficking in Persons Division of the PNP. (82)

Organization/Agency	Role
Rescue the Child Laborers Quick Action Teams (Sagip Batang Manggagawa – SBM QAT)	Leads the regional mechanism for rescuing children who work in exploitative situations. (83) Detects, monitors, and responds to incidents of child labor using a cooperative and inter-agency approach. (8,34,83) Chaired by DOLE. (83) During the reporting period, rescued 25 child laborers with 20 children removed from 3 establishments engaged in prostitution or obscene shows, and 5 children engaged in hazardous work. (8,33) To date SBM QAT has rescued 3,656 child laborers. (8)
National Bureau of Investigation (NBI)	Investigates and prosecutes child labor cases. (8,84,85) Operates a national Trafficking in Persons Task Force and a Task Force on the Protection of Children from Exploitation and Abuse. (84,85) During the reporting period, developed a NBI Manual and Standard Operating Procedures for trafficking in persons and OSEC cases. (33)
Philippine Drug Enforcement Agency (PDEA)	Enforces the Comprehensive Dangerous Drugs Act. (8,12) Maintains a national hotline for reporting cases of children used in illicit activities. Coordinates with the DSWD to assist during rescue operations. (12)
National Telecommunications Commission	Enforces the Anti-Child Pornography Law. Coordinates with Internet Service Providers to block websites containing child pornographic material. (67,75)
Department of Justice - Office of Cybercrime	Receives CyberTips reports from the U.S.-based National Center for Missing and Exploited Children regarding potential OSEC cases, conducts initial investigation into CyberTips, prioritizes cases, then sends cases to the PNP's Internet Crime Against Children Center for follow-up. (86) Launched in 2015. Comprised of legal and investigative divisions. (86)
Philippine Internet Crimes Against Children Center (PIACC) - WCPC, PNP*	Aims to combat the online sexual exploitation of children. Comprises the PNP WCPC and NBI Anti-Human Trafficking Division. Coordinates international investigations with the United Kingdom's National Crimes Agency (UK NCA) and the Australian Federal Police (AFP). (54,87,88) Receives funding from the UK NCA, AFP, and the U.S. Government. (54,87) Established in 2019. Function of the Anti-Trafficking in Persons Division within the PNP WCPC. (87)
Department of Information and Communication Technology - Cybersecurity Bureau	Provides preventative technological assistance to law enforcement and protects cybersecurity of Filipino citizens. (78) Oversees an anti-OSEC program comprised of awareness-raising programs, computer software, website monitoring, cybersecurity, and Visible Internet application. In October 2018, created an anti-OSEC video for communities, in collaboration with the Philippines Online Corporation. (78) Coordinated efforts with the Inter-Agency Council Against Child Pornography, and consulted with telecommunications companies and civil society organizations to produce the National Cybersecurity Strategy. (76,77,78) Launching an online hotline to report OSEC cases in collaboration with the National Computer Emergency Response Team in 2019. (78)

* Agency responsible for child labor enforcement was created during the reporting period.

Steps have been taken by the Philippine Drug Enforcement Agency (PDEA) and the Department of Social Welfare and Development (DSWD) to continuously monitor children involved in drug trafficking, making efforts to turn them over to juvenile detention centers, or “houses of hope” (Bahay ng Pag-asa), within 8 hours of the conclusion of their court proceedings. DSWD maintains that child victims of the anti-drug campaign are not placed in jail with adult criminals. (8,42) It has been reported that children in these detention centers are subjected to physical and emotional abuse, deprived of liberty, and forced into overcrowded and unhygienic cells. (42-46)

According to the PDEA, between January and October 2018, they rescued 793 minors during anti-drug operations nationwide. (8) The Presidential Communications Operations Office attested that, between July 2016 and November 2018, law enforcement arrested 1,861 minors for drug-related crimes. (8) There was a report that some children arrested for drug-related offenses claimed to have been beaten and abused by police, and forced to be photographed with drugs planted by police. (43,47) According to the Children's Legal Rights and Development Center, Inc., from January through July 2018, 18 children were victims of extrajudicial killings, bringing the total to 110 children killed since the beginning of the anti-drug campaign in 2016. (8,43)

In 2018, the DOLE issued two Administrative Orders related to child labor. (8) In March, DOLE issued Administrative Order No. 142-18, Guidelines on the Profiling of Child Laborers and Provision of Service to Remove Them from Child Labor, to harmonize the process of removing children from child labor, referring them to the appropriate agency, and assisting them with all necessary service(s) and intervention. (8,73) In October, DOLE issued Administrative Order No. 551, creating the Task Force Against Illegal Recruitment, Recruitment of Minor Workers, and Trafficking in Persons. This DOLE-led task force will allow the agency to have a more focused, concerted, coordinated, and effective program of action to help eliminate illegal recruitment, recruitment of minor workers, and trafficking in persons. Labor Law Enforcement

In 2018, labor law enforcement agencies in the Philippines took actions to combat child labor (Table 6). However, gaps exist within the authority of the DOLE that may hinder adequate labor law enforcement, including penalty assessment authority.

DOLE's Bureau of Working Conditions exceeded its initial target of 54,530 labor inspections, but enforcement of child labor laws remains challenging due to the lack of resources for inspections and the limited number of inspectors, especially in rural areas where many vendors are unregistered and highly mobile. (8,16,34,80) The number of labor inspectors is likely insufficient for the size of the Philippines's workforce, which includes approximately 42 million workers. According to the ILO's technical advice of a ratio approaching 1 inspector for every 15,000 workers in developing economies, the Philippines would employ about 2,852 labor inspectors. (8,90,91)

Scheduling routine inspections is based on the national target set by the DOLE Central Office, with regional offices implementing their inspections based on factors such as prevailing industries and geographical areas. (8,74) Despite this, enforcement of child labor protections is not sufficient for children employed in the informal sector and in small and medium-size enterprises, particularly in agriculture, due to DOLE's lack of capacity and resources. (8,53,92) While the Rescue the Child Laborers Quick Action Teams (SBM QATs) are permitted to conduct unannounced compliance visits in video karaoke bars, massage parlors, sauna and bath houses, and farms, they are not authorized to conduct visits in private homes to search for underage child domestic workers. (8,80) In March 2018, DOLE permanently closed down a motel that was found to engage children in prostitution or obscene shows.

The government did not provide information on its labor law enforcement efforts relating to the number of worksite inspections conducted, and the number of child labor violations found, penalties imposed, and penalties collected.

Criminal Law Enforcement

In 2018, criminal law enforcement agencies in the Philippines took actions to combat child labor (Table 7). However, gaps exist within the operations of criminal law enforcement agencies that may hinder adequate criminal law enforcement, including training of investigators. In addition, the government continued its anti-drug campaign, which began in 2016, and did not ensure that children in the worst forms of child labor were protected from inappropriate incarceration, penalties, or physical harm. (38,40,53,93,94)

Table 7. Criminal Law Enforcement Efforts Related to Child Labor

Police and armed persons killed children suspected of being involved in drug dealing. (7,47,96,97) In addition, there were collateral deaths of children caught in the crossfire during police operations connected to the drug war. (47,94,97,98) Some high-level government officials have suggested that killing suspected drug traffickers and users was necessary to wipe out drug-related crime, increasing the vulnerability of children being used in the drug trade. (39,47,94,99-101) Three police officers implicated in the drug war-related killing of a minor were charged with murder and later convicted. (38,46,54,93-95,102) The Philippine National Police (PNP) refer children involved in drug trafficking to the DSWD to receive shelter or rehabilitation programs. (8,36)

The government did not provide information on its criminal law enforcement efforts including whether initial training was provided for new employees, if refresher courses were offered, the number of violations found, prosecutions initiated, and convictions.

IV. COORDINATION OF GOVERNMENT EFFORTS ON CHILD LABOR

The government has established mechanisms to coordinate its efforts to address child labor (Table 8). However, gaps exist that hinder the effective coordination of efforts to address child labor, including the structure, functions, and funding of the National Child Labor Committee.

Table 8. Key Mechanisms to Coordinate Government Efforts on Child Labor

Coordinating Body	Role & Description
National Child Labor Committee (NCLC)	Coordinates national efforts to combat child labor. Chaired by DOLE. (8,103) Promotes information-sharing at the national, regional, and provincial levels. Comprises 16 government agencies, workers' organizations, 1 employers' group, and 1 umbrella NGO. (103) During the reporting period, conducted three regular meetings, and two special meetings. (54)
Inter-Agency Council Against Trafficking (IACAT)	Oversees the 1343 Actionline emergency hotline for trafficking in person victims. (33) Coordinates, monitors, and oversees efforts to combat human trafficking, including child trafficking. Co-chaired by the Department of Justice and the DSWD. (8,12,33,85) Comprises 24 anti-human trafficking task forces established in 8 regions and 7 interagency task forces in major seaports and airports. (12,16,80) In 2018, created eight new positions, expanding to 127 personnel with 13 additional staff assigned to Regional Task Forces in support of anti-TIP operations. During the reporting period, started its first year of implementation of the Prosecutor's Trafficking in Persons Case Management System (PTCMS). (33)
Inter-Agency Council for the Welfare of Children (CWC)	Operates a monitoring and response system to assist children engaged in armed conflict. (12) Initiates, promotes, and advocates policies and measures protecting children's rights. (8) In 2018, developed web-based system for reporting incidents of children in armed conflict, in order to implement the Monitoring, Reporting and Response System (MRRS). (33)
Inter-Agency Committee on Children Involved in Armed Conflict (IAC-CIAC)	Advocates for protecting children and preventing the involvement of children in armed conflict. Chaired by the CWC. (80) Coordinates and monitors the implementation of the Children in Armed Conflict Program Framework. (12) In 2018, developed an Advocacy and Communication Plan for children in armed conflict. (33)

Coordinating Body	Role & Description
Inter-Agency Council Against Child Pornography (IACACP)	Serves as the primary government coordinating mechanism to address child pornography. (8) Monitors and implements the Anti-Child Pornography Act. (104) Comprises 12 government agencies and 3 NGOs. (103) Chaired by the DSWD. (105) During the reporting period, approved the Guidelines on the Management of Compensation for Victim-Survivors of Online Sexual Abuse and Exploitation of Children. (33)
Juvenile Justice and Welfare Council	Leads community outreach and education efforts, through offices located throughout the country, to prevent the use of children in illicit activities, including drug trafficking. Manages livelihood, rehabilitation, food, and scholarship programming. (36) Overseen by DSWD. (106) During the reporting period, delivered on its targets and programs toward the achievement of its strategic outcomes, as well as the completion of three research studies. (54)
Task Force Against Illegal Recruitment, Recruitment of Minor Workers, and Trafficking in Persons*	Addresses illegal recruitment, recruitment of minor workers, and trafficking in persons. Coordinates all DOLE programs and initiatives (8) Chaired by the DOLE. (8)

* Mechanism to coordinate efforts to address child labor was created during the reporting period.

The draft executive order submitted by DOLE's Secretary to the Acting Head of the Presidential Management Staff that aims to reorganize the National Child Labor Committee (NCLC), redefine its functions, and allocate funds to support its projects and activities, thus accelerating the elimination of child labor in the Philippines, has not yet been signed by President Duterte. (7,8,74,103,107)

Additionally, during the reporting period, the Government of the Philippines revived formal coordination meetings with the UN regarding incidents of grave violation against children. These meetings sought to further understanding on how to respond appropriately to such cases. (8)

V. GOVERNMENT POLICIES ON CHILD LABOR

The government has established policies that are consistent with relevant international standards on child labor (Table 9).

Table 9. Key Policies Related to Child Labor

Policy	Description
Philippine Program Against Child Labor (2017–2022)	Aims to remove at least 630,000 children from child labor by the year 2022. (108,109) Implementation led by DOLE's BWSC. (110) This policy was active during the reporting period. (54)
National Strategic Action Plan Against Trafficking in Persons (2017–2021)	Aims to address labor trafficking and sex trafficking, including the online sexual exploitation of children. (111) This policy was active during the reporting period. (54)
Philippine Development Plan (2017–2022)	Aims to build the socio-economic resilience of individuals and families by reducing their vulnerability to various risks and disasters; this includes the goal of universal social protection for all Filipinos. (7) Aims to reduce the number of children engaged in child labor by 30 percent or roughly 630,000 children. (103) This policy was active during the reporting period. (54)
National Strategic Framework for Plan Development for Children (Child 21) (2000–2025)	Sets out broad goals for national government agencies, local governments, and NGOs to achieve improved quality of life for Filipino children by 2025. (85,113) Addresses concerns related to the worst forms of child labor under the section on children in need of special protection. (16) Chaired by the Council for the Welfare of Children. (8) This policy was active during the reporting period. (54)
Child Protection Compact Partnership (2017–2021)	Seeks to increase prevention efforts and protections for child victims of OSEC and labor trafficking, while holding perpetrators accountable. (114) Aims to improve the response to child trafficking, including live-streaming online of child sexual exploitation and child trafficking for labor purposes, by (1) increasing criminal investigations, prosecutions, and convictions; (2) strengthening the government's and civil society's capacities to identify and provide comprehensive services for victims; and (3) strengthening existing community-based mechanisms that identify and protect victims of child trafficking. (115,116) The government committing approximately $800,000 for its implementation. (89,114) This policy was active during the reporting period. (54)

Policy	Description
Philippine Plan of Action to End Violence Against Children (2017–2022)	Aims to gradually reduce violence against children through consultations with government institutions, local and international NGOs, civil society organizations, faith-based groups, professional associations, academe, private sector, parents, and children. (8,117) Consistent with Child 21 and the National Plan of Action for Children. Launched in November 2018 during the National Children’s Month celebration. (8) During the reporting period, government held a nationwide celebration of the 2018 World Day Against Child Labor; held a training on child labor for the Speakers Bureau and Writers Bureau, commenced profiling child laborers, and conducted four regular meetings of the NCLC. (8,54)
3rd National Plan of Action for Children (2017–2022)	Solidifies strategies, policies, and programs for children to achieve Child 21’s vision for Filipino children by 2025. Third and penultimate multi-sector, medium-term, rights-based, and results-oriented action plan. (8,113,118) This policy was active during the reporting period. (54)

‡ The government had other policies that may have addressed child labor issues or had an impact on child labor. (65,119,120)

VI. SOCIAL PROGRAMS TO ADDRESS CHILD LABOR

In 2018, the government funded and participated in programs that include the goal of eliminating child labor (Table 10). However, gaps exist in these social programs, including the provision of adequate services for victims of child pornography.

Table 10. Key Social Programs to Address Child Labor

Program	Description
Child Labor Prevention and Elimination Program†	DOLE anti-child labor program that implements local awareness-raising campaigns; institutes child labor-monitoring mechanisms; and requires neighborhoods to develop child labor elimination plans. (8,121,122) Includes a provision of livelihood assistance to parents of child laborers, Sagip Batang Manggagawa , and Project Angel Tree. (8) Project Angel Tree is a social service with local government agency benefactors, known as “angels,” who provide educational supplies to communities. (74) In July 2018, DOLE commenced a nationwide profiling of child laborers, with the aim of identifying and establishing a master list of child victims and offering them the necessary and appropriate services to help them withdraw from child labor. (8,123) As of the end of 2018, regional offices had profiled 85,528 child laborers, 57 percent of its goal to profile 150,000 child laborers. (8,74) Additionally, during the reporting period, Project Angel Tree provided school supplies, hygiene kits, food packs, and medical assistance to 3,625 children. (8)
Pantawid Pamilyang Pilipino Program (Conditional Cash Transfer Program)†	DSWD program that provides conditional grants to poor families with children to improve their access to health care, adequate nutrition, and education using local awareness-raising campaigns and child labor-monitoring mechanisms. (8,121,122) ILO supported the inclusion of a child labor module to the Family Development sessions for program participants. (8,34,124) Covers 1,627 cities and municipalities in 79 provinces in all 17 regions. (8,80) During the reporting period, the ILO supported the inclusion of a child labor module to the Family Development sessions for program beneficiaries. (8)
Livelihood for Parents of Child Laborers (Kabuhayan para sa Magulang ng Batang Manggagawa)†	DOLE program that provides livelihood assistance to parents, guardians, or other family members of child laborers. Seeks to prevent and eliminate child labor by providing necessary materials to start a livelihood undertaking. During the reporting period, 4,054 parents of child laborers were provided with livelihood assistance. (54)
Recovery and Reintegration Program for Trafficked Persons (RRPTP)†	DSWD and IACAT program that provides recovery and reintegration services to victims of human trafficking and raises awareness in vulnerable communities. Includes the National Referral System, which strengthens coordination among agencies providing services to human trafficking victims through the use of standard referral and reporting forms. (126) There are 149 referral networks established in 16 regions. (34) The RRPTP program assisted 2,318 victim survivors during the reporting period. (54)
Alternative Learning System Program†	Department of Education program that offers non-formal education to out-of-school children, including child laborers and children displaced from military conflict, and opportunities to attain a certificate of education equivalency. Received between $7–15 million and has assisted 500,000 children as of 2015. (127) This program was active during the reporting period. (54)

Program	Description
Strategic Helpdesks for Information, Education, Livelihood and Other Developmental Interventions (SHIELD) for Child Laborers	DSWD-led project implemented in 13 barangays in Catanduanes, Labo, Jose Panganiban, Paracale, Kananga, and Ormoc City, with support from the ILO CARING Gold Mining Project. Currently in a two year pilot, with official program launch in 2020. (74) Comprising three components including: (1) Child Labor Local Registry (CLLR); (2) Helpdesk and Convergence of Services; and (3) Advocacy, Organizing, and Capacity Building. (8,124) Focuses on areas with a high child labor incidence rate, with interventions based on data from the Child Labor Local Registry. (124) Utilizes three-pronged approach and multi-layered strategies to help eliminate the worst forms of child labor, particularly in the small-scale gold mining, deep sea fishing, and sugarcane industries. (8,128) During the reporting period, profiled 508 children through the CLLR, with 270 children found to be engaged in hazardous work, and 200 withdrawn from their situation. A total of 291 child laborers were removed from situations of the worst forms of child labor, falling short of the government's goal to remove 300 child laborers by the end of the calendar year. (8) Additionally, provided 446 child laborers with various services and interventions including, educational and livelihood assistance, medical assistance, birth registration, counselling, and other services. (8)
USDOL-Funded Projects	USDOL projects in the Philippines that aim to eliminate child labor in its worst forms, by improving the capacity of the national government, implementing the National Action Plan Against Child Labor, conducting research and data collection, developing strategic policies, drafting legislation, and supporting social services delivery for child domestic workers. These projects include "BuildCA2P: Building Capacity, Awareness, Advocacy and Programs Project" implemented by ChildFund International; "SAFE Seas", implemented by Plan International USA; "RICHES", implemented by the Grameen Foundation with the Philippines; "CARING Gold Mining Project", implemented by the ILO; "Building the Capacity of the Philippines Labor Inspectorate" implemented by the ILO; "Building a Generation of Safe and Healthy Workers: SafeYouth@Work" implemented by the ILO; "Country Level Engagement and Assistance to Reduce Child Labor (CLEAR)" implemented by the ILO; and "Closing the Child Labor and Forced Labor Evidence Gap: Impact Evaluations" implemented by Innovations for Poverty Action. (8,129-131,128) Additional information is available on the USDOL website.

† Program is funded by the Government of the Philippines.

‡ The government had other social programs that may have included the goal of eliminating or preventing child labor. (132,133)

Although programs exist to assist victims of human trafficking, the Philippines lacked sufficient programs to care for and rehabilitate children who have been victims of online commercial sexual exploitation, in large part because this is an emerging issue within the country. (34) In addition, there are not adequate programs to provide awareness of this crime and its impact on child victims. (49,51,52)

Although the government has implemented programs in small-scale mining, research found no evidence that it has carried out programs specifically designed to assist children engaged in commercial sexual exploitation, most notably, child pornography. (7,103) In addition, although the DSWD works in consultation with parents and community leaders to determine how best to assist children suspected of being involved in the drug trade, the DSWD does not have programs specifically designed to increase protections for or assistance to children engaged in drug trafficking to address their heightened vulnerability. (8)

VII. SUGGESTED GOVERNMENT ACTIONS TO ELIMINATE CHILD LABOR

Based on the reporting above, suggested actions are identified that would advance the elimination of child labor in the Philippines (Table 11).

Table 11. Suggested Government Actions to Eliminate Child Labor

Area	Suggested Action	Year(s) Suggested
Legal Framework	Raise the minimum age for work to the age up to which education is compulsory.	2018
Enforcement	Authorize the labor inspectorate to assess penalties.	2015 – 2018
	Increase the number of labor inspectors to meet the ILO's technical advice, and increase resources available to provide sufficient coverage of the workforce, particularly in rural areas where child labor is prevalent.	2014 – 2018
	Build enforcement capacity to address child labor protections for children employed in the informal sector, including agricultural work.	2017 – 2018

Area	Suggested Action	Year(s) Suggested
Enforcement	Publish labor and criminal law enforcement information, including the number of labor inspections conducted at worksites, the number of child labor violations, the number of child labor violations for which penalties were imposed, the number of child labor penalties imposed that were collected; whether initial trainings or refresher trainings were conducted for new criminal investigators; and the number of violations, prosecutions, and convictions.	2015 – 2018
	Enhance efforts to prevent the inappropriate incarceration of, and violence against, children suspected to be engaged in the production and trafficking of drugs.	2017 – 2018
	Continue to prosecute law enforcement officials and civilians responsible for the killing of children engaged in the drug trade.	2017 – 2018
	Allow SBM-QAT to conduct unannounced compliance visits in private homes.	2018
Coordination	Issue the proposed executive order to restructure the National Child Labor Committee and ensure it has the legal mandate and resources necessary to effectively coordinate national efforts to combat child labor.	2015 – 2018
Social Programs	Institute a program to address and combat the sexual abuse and exploitation of children in the production of child pornography, including live streaming.	2017 – 2018
	Provide specialized care and rehabilitative services for children who have been victimized through sexual abuse and exploitation via live streaming and in the production of child pornography by their families.	2017 – 2018
	Develop programs to increase protections for and provide assistance to children engaged in drug trafficking to address their heightened vulnerability.	2017 – 2018
	Ensure that Bahay ng Pag-asa child detention centers in the Philippines do not subject children to physical or emotional abuse, and that centers are provided with adequate resources to remedy overcrowding and unhygienic conditions.	2017 – 2018

In 2018, Rwanda made a significant advancement in efforts to eliminate the worst forms of child labor. The government adopted several new laws to strengthen protections for children, including a revised Labor Law, a comprehensive anti-trafficking law, a law imposing heightened penalties for the use of children in armed conflict or illicit activities, and the Law on Child Protection that supplements the existing 2012 law. The government also established the Rwanda Investigation Bureau, which conducts investigations into criminal matters, including child labor, and actively partnered with the United States Agency for International Development and the International Organization for Migration to conduct a research study on human trafficking trends in Rwanda. In addition, the government obtained one conviction in a child trafficking case and launched a 5-year advocacy campaign against child labor. However, children in Rwanda engage in the worst forms of child labor, including in forced domestic work, sometimes as a result of human trafficking. Children also perform dangerous tasks in agriculture. The number of labor inspectors does not meet the ILO's technical advice for the size of the workforce. In addition, resource constraints limited some government efforts to combat child labor, and social programs did not address all relevant sectors where child labor was present.

I. PREVALENCE AND SECTORAL DISTRIBUTION OF CHILD LABOR

Children in Rwanda engage in the worst forms of child labor, including in forced domestic work, sometimes as a result of human trafficking. Children also perform dangerous tasks in agriculture. (1-3) In 2018, the government released the results of the Fifth Integrated Household Living Conditions Survey conducted in 2016/2017, which revealed a decrease of 3 percentage points in the percentage of working children since the 2013/2014 survey. (4) Table 1 provides key indicators on children's work and education in Rwanda. Data on some of these indicators are not available from the sources used in this report.

Table 1. Statistics on Children's Work and Education

Children	Age	Percent
Working (% and population)	6 to 14	5.4 (156,522)
Attending School (%)	6 to 14	89.4
Combining Work and School (%)	7 to 14	4.9
Primary Completion Rate (%)		Unavailable

Primary completion rate was unavailable from UNESCO Institute for Statistics, 2019. (5)

Based on a review of available information, Table 2 provides an overview of children's work by sector and activity.

Sector/Industry	Activity
Agriculture	Production of bananas, beans, coffee, maize, potatoes, sorghum, sugarcane, and sweet potatoes, including carrying heavy loads† and wielding machetes (1,2)
	Forestry activities (1)
	Production of tea, including applying fertilizers,† carrying heavy loads,† planting, plucking tea leaves, and weeding (7)
	Fishing† (1)
Industry	Construction,† including laying bricks (1,3,8)
	Mining† tantalum ore (coltan) and quarrying (1,3,9)
Services	Domestic work† (1,2,8,10-12)
	Repair and cleaning of motorcycles and motor vehicles (1,13)
	Street work, including collecting scrap metal,† carrying heavy loads as porters,† and small-scale vending (1,13-16)
Categorical Worst Forms of Child Labor‡	Commercial sexual exploitation, sometimes as a result of human trafficking (12,13,17)
	Forced labor in agricultural and domestic work, each sometimes as a result of human trafficking (8,10,17)

† Determined by national law or regulation as hazardous and, as such, relevant to Article 3(d) of ILO C. 182.

‡ Child labor understood as the worst forms of child labor per se under Article 3(a)–(c) of ILO C. 182.

Data collected in a 2016/2017 national household survey showed that approximately 3.6 percent of all children in Rwanda are engaged in child labor, primarily in the agriculture and service sectors. (4) Although Rwanda is not a destination for child trafficking, it is a source and transit country for children, primarily those heading to Uganda, the Democratic Republic of the Congo, and elsewhere in East Africa for commercial sexual exploitation and forced labor in domestic work, and in the agricultural and industrial sectors.
