

In 2018, Nigeria made a moderate advancement in efforts to eliminate the worst forms of child labor. The government adopted the Edo State Trafficking in Persons Prohibition Law, which codified the Edo State Taskforce for implementation. Nigeria's National Agency for the Prohibition of Trafficking in Persons received $715,100 for victim care in 2018, a three-fold increase over its 2017 allocation, and government officials appropriated $3.8 million to provide training and education materials to raise awareness among youth of the dangers of human trafficking. Criminal investigators also conducted 314 investigations into the worst forms of child labor, resulting in 5 convictions. Although the government made meaningful efforts in all relevant areas during the reporting period, Nigeria's security forces continued to detain children for prolonged periods of time due to their alleged association with Boko Haram, including girls who were used as concubines. Children engage in the worst forms of child labor, including in quarrying granite and gravel, commercial sexual exploitation, and armed conflict. Other gaps remain, including inconsistencies regarding child labor in the legal framework, and the minimum age for work is below international standards. Furthermore, there are not enough labor inspectors to provide sufficient coverage of the workforce, and social programs are not sufficient to address the scope of the problem.

I. PREVALENCE AND SECTORAL DISTRIBUTION OF CHILD LABOR

Children in Nigeria engage in the worst forms of child labor, including in quarrying granite and gravel, commercial sexual exploitation, and armed conflict. (1-4) Table 1 provides key indicators on children's work and education in Nigeria.

Based on a review of available information, Table 2 provides an overview of children's work by sector and activity.

Sector/Industry	Activity
Categorical Worst Forms of Child Labor‡	Commercial sexual exploitation, including use in the production of pornography, sometimes as a result of human trafficking (4,8,12,14,18,19)
	Forced begging; domestic work; street vending; textile manufacturing; mining and quarrying gravel, granite, and gold; and labor in agriculture, including in cocoa, each sometimes as a result of human trafficking (4,8,14,20,21)
	Recruitment of children by non-state armed groups for use in armed conflict and in non-conflict support roles (4,14,22-24)

‡ Child labor understood as the worst forms of child labor per se under Article 3(a)–(c) of ILO C. 182.

In northern Nigeria, many families send children from rural to urban areas to live with Islamic teachers and receive a Koranic education. These children may receive lessons, but teachers often force them to beg on the streets and surrender the money they collect. (14,25,26) Furthermore, these children are highly vulnerable to recruitment by Boko Haram, which continued to forcibly recruit and use child soldiers in combat and support roles, as well as suicide bombers and concubines. (3,4,22-24,26,27) Unlike in previous years, there were no new reports that the Civilian Joint Task Force (CJTF), a non-state self-defense militia involved in fighting Boko Haram, recruited or used children during the reporting period. (28,29)

Benin City, the capital of Edo state, is a major human trafficking hub in Africa, but increased enforcement efforts may have caused some human trafficking rings to shift their focus to other areas of southern Nigeria. (29-31) Girls from Nigeria are sent to North Africa and Europe for forced labor and commercial sexual exploitation. (26,31-35) Children from West African countries experience forced labor in Nigeria, including in granite and gold mines. (4,20)

In 2018, the security situation in Nigeria continued to worsen, due to attacks by insurgency groups such as Boko Haram and conflicts in rural areas between farmers and herders. (29) This resulted in the displacement of about 2 million people, of which 56 percent were children. (23,26,36) Some girls, particularly unaccompanied minors, were subjected to commercial sexual exploitation in internally displaced persons (IDP) camps and military barracks, often by members of the Nigerian military, the CJTF, and other camp security personnel in exchange for food. (4,23,26,27,29,34,37-40) Research was not able to determine the scale of this problem in 2018.

Although free and compulsory education is federally mandated by the Education Act, little enforcement of compulsory education laws occurs at the state level. School fees are often charged in practice, and the cost of materials can be prohibitive for families. (8,41) When families experienced economic hardship, the enrollment of boys was typically prioritized over the enrollment of girls. Other barriers to education include a lack of teachers, sexual harassment, inadequate sanitation facilities, and fear of abduction or attack by Boko Haram while at school, particularly for girls in the northeastern part of the country. (8,13,23,26,42,43) Furthermore, schools may be used to house IDPs or occupied by government armed forces in their campaign against Boko Haram and the Islamic State-West Africa. (24,27,44) Almost 1,400 schools have been destroyed since 2009, and more than 57 percent of schools in Borno State were closed in the 2017/2018 school year due to violence in the area, leaving about 3 million children without access to education. (24,27)

II. LEGAL FRAMEWORK FOR CHILD LABOR

Nigeria has ratified all key international conventions concerning child labor (Table 3).

The government has established laws and regulations related to child labor (Table 4). However, gaps exist in Nigeria's legal framework to adequately protect children from the worst forms of child labor, including the minimum age for work.

Table 4. Laws and Regulations on Child Labor

In 2018, Edo State adopted the Edo State Trafficking in Persons Prohibition Law, which codified the Edo State Taskforce Against Human Trafficking and provides a comprehensive framework for the prevention, detection, and prosecution of human trafficking. (14,51) This is the first state-level legislation prohibiting human trafficking in Nigeria, and it complements federal legislation. (29)

The Federal Child's Right Act (CRA) codifies the rights of children in Nigeria and must be adopted and implemented by each state to become law in its territory. (26,46) To date, 26 states and the federal capital territory have adopted and implemented the CRA; all 10 of the remaining 10 states are in northern Nigeria. (26,52)

Nigeria

MODERATE ADVANCEMENT

The laws in Nigeria regarding minimum age for employment are inconsistent. The CRA supersedes all legislation related to children, yet it states that the provisions related to young people in the Labour Act still apply to children. This includes Section 59, which sets the minimum employment age at 12, in contradiction to the CRA, which only permits children under age 18 to engage in light work for family members. (45,46) The Labour Act also permits children of any age to do light work in agriculture and domestic work if they are working with a family member. Furthermore, the minimum age protections in the Labour Act do not apply to children who are self-employed or working in the informal economy. (45,53) Furthermore, as the minimum age for work is lower than the compulsory education age, children may be encouraged to leave school before the completion of compulsory education.

Although the Labour Act forbids the employment of youth under age 18 in work that is dangerous to their health, safety, or morals, it does not establish the types of hazardous activity that are prohibited to children under age 18. (45,53) The National Steering Committee for the Elimination of the Worst Forms of Child Labor developed a report in 2013 that identified hazardous child labor in Nigeria; however, the government has yet to determine by law or regulation the types of hazardous work prohibited for children. (2,53)

Although the CRA criminalizes using, procuring, and offering a child in the production and trafficking of drugs, the 10 states that have not yet ratified the CRA have no legislation in place to criminalize this activity. (26,46) Lastly, children are not excluded from the Terrorism Prevention Act's penalty of life imprisonment for assisting in acts of terrorism. (54)

III. ENFORCEMENT OF LAWS ON CHILD LABOR

The government has established institutional mechanisms for the enforcement of laws and regulations on child labor (Table 5). However, gaps exist within the operations of the Ministry of Labor and Employment (MOLE) that may hinder adequate enforcement of their child labor laws.

Table 5. Agencies Responsible for Child Labor Law Enforcement

Organization/Agency	Role
Labor Inspectorate, Ministry of Labor and Employment (MOLE)	Deploys labor inspectors across 36 state labor offices and the federal capital territory to enforce federal child labor laws. (8,26,55)
National Agency for the Prohibition of Trafficking in Persons and Other Related Matters (NAPTIP)	Enforces laws against human trafficking and exploitative labor. Coordinates with the Ministry of Women's Affairs and Social Development and state governments to provide child victims with social services and reunite trafficked children with their families. (8,14,26) Operates hotlines for victims in Abuja and each zonal command center. (29) In 2018, launched an app, iReport, that allows users to report cases of human trafficking. (56)
Nigeria Police	Enforces all laws prohibiting forced child labor and commercial sexual exploitation. Collaborates with NAPTIP on human trafficking enforcement. (8)
Nigeria Immigration Service	Collaborates with NAPTIP to enforce laws against child trafficking. (8)
Edo State Taskforce Against Human Trafficking*	Enforces the Edo State Trafficking in Persons Prohibition Law as well as other laws prohibiting trafficking in persons, and investigates all cases of child trafficking and forced child labor. Includes an Investigation and Security Unit tasked with the prevention and detection of human trafficking cases. (51) As of March 2019, investigated 56 cases and filed charges in 20 cases. (29,57)

* Agency responsible for child labor enforcement was created during the reporting period.

Labor Law Enforcement

In 2018, labor law enforcement agencies in Nigeria took action to combat child labor (Table 6). However, gaps exist within the operations of MOLE that may hinder adequate labor law enforcement, including human resource allocation.

Of the 24,646 inspections conducted in 2018, 7,394 were dedicated child labor inspections. A total of 48 children were removed from situations of child labor during the reporting period. Social services were provided to a number of children, including enrolling 333 children in primary or secondary education and reuniting 316 children with their families. (58) However, enforcement of child labor laws remains challenging due to the lack of resources for inspections, and research did not find mechanisms to enforce existing protections for children in the informal sector. (58,60)

Although the Government of Nigeria significantly increased the number of labor inspectors, the total number of labor inspectors is likely insufficient for the size of Nigeria's workforce, which includes approximately 60 million workers. According to the ILO's technical advice of a ratio approaching 1 inspector for every 15,000 workers in industrializing economies, Nigeria would employ about 4,005 labor inspectors. (61,62)

Criminal Law Enforcement

In 2018, criminal law enforcement agencies in Nigeria took actions to combat child labor (Table 7). However, gaps exist within the operations of the criminal enforcement agencies that may hinder adequate criminal law enforcement, including investigation planning.

Table 7. Criminal Law Enforcement Efforts Related to Child Labor

[†] Data are from January 2017 to September 2017.

[‡] Data are from April 2018 to February 2019.

NAPTIP's 2018 operating budget was about $11.9 million, more than double its 2016 budget. (29) During the reporting period, the Government of Nigeria convicted a total of 48 individuals in 28 cases of adult and child trafficking between April 2018 and February 2019, the most in a given year and almost double the previous year's total number of convictions. (29,65) At least three government officials are being prosecuted for exploitation of a minor, two for child trafficking-related offenses, and the other for commercial sexual exploitation. (29)

Criminal law enforcement authorities continued to detain children for their alleged association with Boko Haram, including girls who were victims. (4,24,26,27,37,40) Although the government released some of the children and referred them to social services providers, many remained in detention facilities for prolonged periods. (4,24,26)

IV. COORDINATION OF GOVERNMENT EFFORTS ON CHILD LABOR

The government has established mechanisms to coordinate its efforts to address child labor (Table 8). However, gaps exist that hinder the effective coordination of efforts to address child labor, including efficacy in accomplishing mandates.

Table 8. Key Mechanisms to Coordinate Government Efforts on Child Labor

Coordinating Body	Role & Description
National Steering Committee for the Elimination of the Worst Forms of Child Labor	Coordinates efforts to combat child labor. Led by MOLE, and comprises representatives from seven governmental agencies, faith-based organizations, NGOs, ILO, and UNICEF. (8) Research was unable to determine whether this body was active during the reporting period.
Inter-Ministerial Taskforce on Trafficking in Persons	Coordinates child labor issues related to human trafficking. Chaired by NAPTIP. (8) Met throughout the reporting period and drafted a Protocol for Identification, Safe Return, and Rehabilitation of Trafficked Persons and considered NATIP's 2018–2023 national action plan. (4)
State Steering Committees on Child Labor	Guide state-level implementation of the National Policy on Child Labor. (8) Research was unable to determine whether this body was active during the reporting period.

V. GOVERNMENT POLICIES ON CHILD LABOR

The government has established policies related to child labor (Table 9). However, policy gaps exist that hinder efforts to address child labor, including implementing a new national child labor action plan.

Table 9. Key Policies Related to Child Labor

Policy	Description
NAPTIP 2019 Plan of Action†	Provides a framework for mobilizing NAPTIP and all stakeholders involved in combating human trafficking, with an emphasis on enforcement, prosecution, and provision of victim services. (66) NAPTIP also held consultations with stakeholders to develop a longer 5-year action plan. (29)
National Action Plan for Preventing and Countering Violent Extremism	Designed to end the recruitment and use of children by CJTF. Aims to promote the protection of children's rights, ensure that suspects under age 18 are treated in accordance with international law, and provide for disarmament, demobilization, and reintegration for children previously associated with CJTF. (67-69) In 2018, CJTF conducted awareness-raising activities to prevent child recruitment and cooperated with Borno state officials and the UN Country Task Force on Monitoring and Reporting during verification and screening procedures, resulting in the release of 833 children, some as young as 11 years old. (24,28,29)

† Policy was approved during the reporting period.

‡ The government had other policies that may have addressed child labor issues or had an impact on child labor. (70)

Although the Government of Nigeria has adopted policies on human trafficking and the use of children in armed conflict, research found no evidence of a policy on other worst forms of child labor since the conclusion of the National Policy on Child Labor in 2017.

VI. SOCIAL PROGRAMS TO ADDRESS CHILD LABOR

In 2018, the government funded and participated in programs that include the goal of eliminating or preventing child labor (Table 10). However, gaps exist in these social programs, including the adequacy of efforts to address the problem in all sectors.

Table 10. Key Social Programs to Address Child Labor

Program	Description
Decent Work Country Program II (2015–2018)	ILO-implemented project in coordination with the government that aims to combat child labor, including its worst forms. Aims to build government capacity to conduct child labor surveys and establish community-based child labor monitoring systems. (42) In 2018, under this program, ILO supported capacity-building workshops in six areas; continued implementation of the Freedom of Movement of Persons and Migration in West Africa Project (2013–2020); and began implementing a regional project titled Accelerating Action for the Elimination of Child Labor in Supply Chains in Africa, which will focus on the gold and cocoa sectors. (71)
NAPTIP Shelters for Human Trafficking Victims†	Government-funded program that operates 10 shelters in Nigeria, with a total capacity of 315 victims. Shelters provide legal, medical, and psychological services, as well as vocational training and business management skills. (4,14) Continued to provide services to victims in 2018. (29)
Measurement, Awareness-Raising, and Policy Engagement Project on Child Labor and Forced Labor	USDOL-funded project implemented by ILO to conduct research and develop new survey methodologies, improve awareness, strengthen policies and government capacity, and promote partnerships to combat child labor and forced labor. Additional information is available on the USDOL website. (72) In 2018, completed data collection on forced child labor in conflict zones in three countries, including Nigeria. (73)
World Bank-funded Programs	Projects which aim to improve access to education. Includes: National Social Safety Nets Project (2016–2022), a $50 million project that aims to provide primary school lunches and offer conditional cash transfers based on children’s enrollment; Nigeria Partnership for Education Project (2015–2019), a $100 million project that aims to improve access and quality of education in selected states, particularly for girls; and the Better Education Service Delivery for All (BESDA) (2017–2022), a $611 million project which aims to increase access to education for out-of-school youth and improve literacy. (74-76) In 2018, as part of BESDA, provided cash transfers to 256,000 households in 13 states, awarded 15,221 grants to primary schools, and disbursed 15 grants to focus states. (77-79)
Safe Schools Initiative	Donor-funded program implemented by the government and international organizations that aims to improve access to education in northeastern Nigeria. (25,80,81) In 2018, signed the letter of endorsement for the Safe Schools Declaration, which commits the government to take steps to decrease the likelihood that schools, students, and teachers will be attacked. (24,82)

‡ The government had other social programs that may have included the goal of eliminating or preventing child labor. (83)

NAPTIP received $715,100 for victim care in 2018, more than a threefold increase from its 2017 allocation, and the government appropriated $3.8 million to provide training and education materials to discourage vulnerable youth from becoming victims of human trafficking. (8) However, this funding was insufficient to address the full scope of the problem, and research found no evidence of programs to specifically address children engaged in agriculture, quarrying, commercial sexual exploitation, domestic work, and illicit activities.

VII. SUGGESTED GOVERNMENT ACTIONS TO ELIMINATE CHILD LABOR

Based on the reporting above, suggested actions are identified that would advance the elimination of child labor in Nigeria (Table 11).

Table 11. Suggested Government Actions to Eliminate Child Labor

Area	Suggested Action	Year(s) Suggested
