III. ENFORCEMENT OF LAWS ON CHILD LABOR

The government has established institutional mechanisms for the enforcement of laws and regulations on child labor (Table 5). However, gaps exist within the authority of enforcement agencies that may hinder adequate enforcement of their child labor laws.

SIGNIFICANT ADVANCEMENT

Table 5. Agencies Responsible for Child Labor Law Enforcement

Organization/Agency	Role
Ministry of Labor (MOL)	Enforces child labor laws. Through the National Project to Eradicate Child Labor (PETI), monitors and identifies cases of child labor; assesses penalties; promotes public awareness campaigns to prevent child labor; provides technical assistance to local governments on child labor; and identifies victims of child labor for the Ministry of Economic and Social Inclusion (MIES) to provide social services. (2) Using the Unified System of Registration of Child Labor (SURT), collects information on child laborers and refers children to appropriate government services. (1,2)
Ministry of Social and Economic Inclusion (MIES), Office of Special Protection to Vulnerable Populations	Conducts routine inspections in the informal sector for child labor and provides remediation services to child laborers and their families. (1,9) Through its Office of Special Protection to Vulnerable Populations, maintains a national anti-child labor program involving coordination with civil society organizations and local governments. (1,2) Finances the activities of these organizations at the local level and focuses on familial child labor and child labor in the informal sector. (2)
Attorney General's Office (AGO)	Enforces criminal laws against child labor, hazardous child labor, commercial sexual exploitation, and human trafficking. (9,30) The AGO's Specialized Victim Witness Protection Program provides immediate support and shelter to victims and witnesses willing to press charges and testify against their abusers, and coordinates referrals for further assistance with other government agencies. (9)
Ministry of Government (MOG)	Oversees and evaluates all police actions, including the National Police Unit for Crimes against Children and Adolescents (DINAPEN). (9,21) DINAPEN investigates all crimes against children, including abuse, sexual exploitation, sex tourism, smuggling, kidnapping, exploitative child labor, and forced labor. (9,31) DINAPEN's National Investigative Unit against Trafficking in Persons and Illicit Smuggling of Migrants also investigates child trafficking cases, assists victims, and arrests traffickers. (32)
Office of the Prosecutor	Tries cases related to the worst forms of child labor. (1)

Labor Law Enforcement

In 2020, labor law enforcement agencies in Ecuador took actions to combat child labor (Table 6). However, gaps exist within the operations of the Ministry of Labor (MOL) that may hinder adequate labor law enforcement, including human resource allocation.

Table 6. Labor Law Enforcement Efforts Related to Child Labor

Overview of Labor Law Enforcement	2019	2020
Labor Inspectorate Funding	$4,171,420 (1)	$2,874,793 (2)

Reciprocal Referral Mechanism Exists Between Labor Authorities and Social Services	Yes (1)	Yes (2)

As of November 2020, officials conducted 284 inspections specifically related to child labor complaints, though the overall number of inspections was greatly reduced due to nationwide mobilization restrictions under the pandemic. (2) Officials from the National Project to Eradicate Child Labor (PETI) also accompanied labor inspectors for 3,845 verifications and labor inspections not specific to child labor to determine whether companies were hiring children. During these verifications, PETI officials also provided technical advice on current legal regulations and the process of hiring adolescents between 15 and 17 years of age in permitted activities. (2) MOL officials reported the identification of 346 children in child labor conditions in 2020 as a result of labor inspections, though they did not provide information on how many children were removed from child labor situations. (2) MIES also reported it had assisted approximately 11,530 children and adolescents vulnerable to child labor. (2)

In 2020, there were 160 labor inspectors in the country, a decrease of 54 inspectors from 2019. There are also no inspectors in the country dedicated only to child labor issues. (2) The number of labor inspectors is likely insufficient for the size of Ecuador's workforce, which includes over 8 million workers. According to the ILO's technical advice of 1 inspector for every 15,000 workers in developing economies, Ecuador would employ about 534 labor inspectors. (1,2,35,36) During the reporting period, there was also a significant reduction in the amount of funding dedicated to the labor inspectorate. This reduction in funding was due to government-wide budget cuts prompted by the pandemic. (2) MOL acknowledged that this sort of unannounced budget cuts complicated their planning and program execution efforts during the reporting year. (2) Research also indicates that inspectors' coverage of the agricultural sector is insufficient, even though most children work in this sector. (9)

The MOL also reported that the labor inspectorate lacked the necessary resources, such as transportation and equipment, to fulfill its mandate. (1) Furthermore, inspectors do not have sufficient knowledge of child labor laws and lack training on identifying victims of trafficking in persons. (1,16,18) According to the MOL, Ecuador's labor inspectors focus primarily on formal sector employment. (1,37) Although Ecuadorian laws and regulations governing child labor are comprehensive, those regarding hazardous work are not enforced equally in rural areas and family-run businesses. (2,9,37)

The government does not publish information from the Unified System of Registration of Child Labor (SURT). (9,18)

Criminal Law Enforcement

In 2020, criminal law enforcement agencies in Ecuador took actions to combat child labor (Table 7). However, gaps exist within the operations of the criminal enforcement agencies that may hinder adequate criminal law enforcement, including a lack of training for criminal investigators on the worst forms of child labor.

Table 7. Criminal Law Enforcement Efforts Related to Child Labor

Overview of Criminal Law Enforcement	2019	2020
Initial Training for New Criminal Investigators	Yes (1)	Yes (2)
Training on New Laws Related to the Worst Forms of Child Labor	N/A (1)	N/A (2)
Refresher Courses Provided	Yes (1)	Yes (34)
Number of Investigations	172 (1)	330 (2)
Number of Violations Found	Unknown (1)	Unknown (2,34)
Number of Prosecutions Initiated	103 (1)	277 (2)
Number of Convictions	Unknown (1)	Unknown (2)
Imposed Penalties for Violations Related to the Worst Forms of Child Labor	Yes (1)	Yes (2)
Reciprocal Referral Mechanism Exists Between Criminal Authorities and Social Services	Yes (1)	Yes (2)

In 2020, the Ministry of Government (MOG) conducted various trainings for investigators in the context of broader trafficking in persons trainings, but they did not conduct specific child labor-related trainings. (2) The State's Attorney General executed several virtual and in-person training sessions through the Directorate of Training and Mission Strengthening during the reporting period. In February and March, officials offered training on conducting specialized forensic interviews with minors and sexual violence victims. (2) In total, 49 prosecutors and support staff attended. (2) In August and November 2020, officials taught the advanced course on children and adolescents' rights online, emphasizing the border population. Nine public officials participated from the provinces of Carchi and Esmeraldas. (2)

SIGNIFICANT ADVANCEMENT

During the reporting period, MOG's Human Trafficking Investigation Unit investigated 16 cases of trafficking in persons for sexual exploitation and one for labor exploitation. The National Police Unit for Crime against Children and Adolescents (DINAPEN) investigated six cases regarding forced labor or other forms of labor exploitation and one case of trafficking for labor exploitation. (2) In addition, DINAPEN's Child and Adolescents Protection Unit reported 43 new investigations in 2020, including 7 for trafficking in persons for sexual exploitation and 1 for labor exploitation. No information on the number of victims was available to be included in this report. (2) The Attorney General's Office reported that 39 individuals were indicted for child labor crimes. However, the government did not provide information on the exact number of violations found and convictions made for the worst forms of child labor in 2020 for inclusion in this report. (2) Additionally, the Specialized Victim Witness Protection Program rescued six minors from trafficking related to sexual exploitation through November. It also provided social services to 20 children in 2020 in the provinces of Sucumbios, Pichincha, Napo, El Oro, Azuay, Guayas, and Tungurahua. (2)

The Attorney General's Office reported that the budget allocated to SPAVT between 2014 and 2020 decreased consistently, from $1,165,259 in 2014 to $256,916 in 2020. (2) Civil society reports that the National Investigative Unit and DINAPEN lack resources to adequately investigate trafficking in persons cases. (32)

A reciprocal referral mechanism exists between law enforcement and social services for victims of human trafficking; however, civil society reports that the mechanism is at times ad hoc. (1,2) Shelters serve only girls who have been victims of sex trafficking. There are no specialized shelters for boys or girls who have been victims of labor trafficking. (15) Although the MIES will generally assign child victims to shelters depending on space availability, the National Investigative Unit and MIES officials cite a lack of shelters in many provinces as a primary constraint in victim assistance. (1,9,16,31,38)

IV. COORDINATION OF GOVERNMENT EFFORTS ON CHILD LABOR

The government has established mechanisms to coordinate its efforts to address child labor (Table 8). However, gaps exist that hinder the effective coordination of efforts to address child labor, including for the provision of social services for victims of the worst forms of child labor.

Table 8. Key Mechanisms to Coordinate Government Efforts on Child Labor

Coordinating Body	Role & Description
Inter-Institutional Committee for the Eradication of Child Labor	Coordinates government efforts to combat child labor. Includes participation from MOL, DINAPEN, AGO, and MIES. (9,21) Regional inter-agency sub-committees on children and adolescence represent local governments on the committee. (1) Although research was unable to determine whether the national coordinating body was active during the reporting period, 40 regional inter-agency committees were active in 2020 and continued to report cases of child labor to MOL via SURTI. (2)
Inter-Institutional Coordinating Committee for the Prevention of Trafficking in Persons and Illicit Traffic in Migrants	Coordinates government efforts to combat human trafficking, including child trafficking. Established as part of the National Plan to Combat Human Trafficking, Sexual and Labor Exploitation, and Other Forms of Exploitation, which has since been updated. (30) Met periodically in 2020 to coordinate government anti-trafficking in persons efforts, including child trafficking. This committee continued implementing an updated National Plan to Combat Human Trafficking in 2020, and MOG continued chairing this coordinating mechanism. (2)
Technical Secretariat for the Lifetime Plan	Convenes government ministries to discuss issues, including child labor. (39) During the reporting period, it sent out technical brigades to remote areas in all provinces of the country to assist vulnerable populations, including children, and provided them with medical checkups, along with other basic social services. (2)
National Council for Inter-Generational Equity (CNII)	Coordinates inter-agency efforts to protect vulnerable populations, including children. Local autonomous governments also participate in coordinating mechanisms to combat child labor and implement the guidelines provided by CNII and are responsible for ensuring the correct application of norms related to child labor. (39) Although research was unable to determine activities taken by the National Council during the reporting period, local autonomous governments continued to monitor and assist children in child labor conditions through their technical working groups in 2020. (2)
Inter-Agency Sub-Committee for the Eradication of Child Labor ( Mesa Interinstitucional de Erradicación del Trabajo Infantil )	Coordinates regional efforts to address child labor. (40) Participants include MIES; regional councils of Childhood and Adolescence; ministries of Education, Labor, and Interior; DINAPEN; and AGO. (38,40) Research was unable to determine whether this coordinating body was active during the reporting period.

Coordination between ministries providing social services has improved in recent years, but the government continues to have difficulties ensuring that some children rescued from working in the informal sector receive adequate social assistance. (41,42)

V. GOVERNMENT POLICIES ON CHILD LABOR

The government has established policies related to child labor (Table 9). However, policy gaps exist that hinder efforts to address child labor, including the approval of the national action plan on child labor.

Table 9. Key Policies Related to Child Labor

Policy	Description
National Project to Eradicate Child Labor (PETI) (2015–2017)	Establishes a strategy to eradicate child labor in Ecuador by 2021 and prevent hazardous child labor in agriculture, manufacturing, construction, and mining. Led by MOL, the plan operates under the National Plan for Good Living. (6,9,43) A new 3-year national plan to eradicate child labor is still awaiting executive approval, which is reportedly needed to improve inter-agency coordination. Although implemented by MOL as a pilot initiative, PETI operates without a permanent budget guaranteeing a dedicated agency in charge of efforts to combat child labor. (1) As of the time of this report, MOL and the other agencies involved in eradicating child labor continued to work under this policy. (2)
National Action Plan to Combat Trafficking in Persons (2019–2030)	Aims to prevent, investigate, and impose legal sanctions against human trafficking with a focus on human rights, mobility, and gender, as the majority of victims in Ecuador are women. Launched in December of 2019, it includes U.S.-funded support through the IOM, it is the government's first multi-sectoral plan on trafficking that establishes goals for every public sector institution to address human trafficking. (44-46) In 2020, several initiatives were carried out under this policy, including MIES' launch of the National Strategy for Prevention, Care and Protection of People in Situations of Begging, Child Labor, Street Dwellers and Other Rights Violations. (2)
Lifetime Plan ( Plan Toda Una Vida ) (2017–2021)	Aims to support vulnerable populations from birth to advanced age through a series of social welfare programs. Aims to reduce child labor of children ages 5 to 14 to 2.7 percent by 2021. (18,47) Led by the Technical Secretariat for the Lifetime Plan. (48) In 2020, remained the government's signature social program to assist vulnerable populations, including children. (2)

In 2020, the MOL signed a Framework Agreement for Inter-Institutional Cooperation with the Association of Municipalities of Ecuador for the implementation of public policies, plans, programs, and actions aimed at the prevention and eradication of child labor. (2)

VI. SOCIAL PROGRAMS TO ADDRESS CHILD LABOR

In 2020, the government funded and participated in programs that include the goal of eliminating or preventing child labor (Table 10). However, gaps exist in these social programs, including the adequacy of efforts to address all worst forms of child labor.

Table 10. Key Social Programs to Address Child Labor

Program	Description
Business Network for a Child Labor Free Ecuador	UN initiative that seeks to gain commitment from participating industries to promote the prevention and elimination of child labor in their supply chains, trains businesses on child labor prevention, and creates employment opportunities for the parents of children engaged in child labor. (49) As a public-private partnership, it aims to exchange best practices and design strategies towards the progressive eradication of child labor among industries and their value chains. The program focuses on three geographic hubs in Azuay, Pichincha, and Guayas provinces. (2) In 2020, the network executed the “Train of Dreams, Return to Classes” project to adapt to new virtual educational realities during the pandemic. (2) The project benefitted 205 children previously removed from child labor by local NGO Miners of Dreams, providing the children with access to digital resources to facilitate their continued education virtually. (2)
National Program to Combat Child Begging†	Seeks to raise awareness about child begging and aims to facilitate social services for children begging in the streets. (9) The government did not provide information on activities undertaken to implement this program in 2020 for inclusion in this report.
Palma Futuro (2019–2022)	$6 million regional project funded by the U.S. Department of Labor and implemented by Partners of the Americas to improve the implementation of social compliance systems that prevent and reduce child labor and forced labor in palm oil supply chains. (50) In 2020, activities continued in Santo Domingo de las Tsachilas. (2) For additional information, please see our website .

SIGNIFICANT ADVANCEMENT

Program	Description
Youth Impulse ( Impulso Joven )†	Seeks to increase job training and higher education opportunities for at-risk youth, support youth entrepreneurship through preferential loans, and connect employers with at-risk youth. (9) The government did not provide information on activities undertaken to implement this plan in 2020 for inclusion in this report.

‡ The government had other social programs that may have included the goal of eliminating or preventing child labor. (9,42,51-53)

In 2020, technical teams from MIES visited families to raise awareness on the importance of school attendance and other typical childhood activities essential to the integral development of children. These teams usually comprise a psychologist, social worker, and a protection service specialist. (2) Through June 2020, they visited 8,425 families to help keep their children in school despite the partial lockdown triggered by the pandemic. MIES also delivered financial protection bonuses to families due to the additional economic hardships faced during the first stages of the pandemic. (2) In total, 950,000 people benefited from these government programs through June. (2) In addition, the government sustained funding levels under its "Toda Una Vida" social program and continued to publicly highlight its social brigade activities during the reporting period despite budget cuts across the public sector. These initiatives also included an expansion of monthly social payments between April and June while the government imposed mandatory lockdowns to combat the pandemic. (2)

Although civil society stakeholders commended the government's social programs, they reiterated that these programs only make limited interventions in sectors in which child labor is most prevalent, specifically the informal and agricultural sectors. (9) While the government used the social registry to provide additional social assistance payments to vulnerable families during the pandemic, research found that the registry had not been updated since 2015 and some of the most vulnerable families may have been overlooked for those payments. Civil society notes that an update to the social registry should prioritize the most vulnerable populations at risk of child labor—single mothers with more than one child. (2)

VII. SUGGESTED GOVERNMENT ACTIONS TO ELIMINATE CHILD LABOR

Based on the reporting above, suggested actions are identified that would advance the elimination of child labor in Ecuador (Table 11).

Table 11. Suggested Government Actions to Eliminate Child Labor

Area	Suggested Action	Year(s) Suggested
Enforcement	Increase the number of labor inspectors to meet the ILO's technical advice.	2009 – 2020
	Ensure that the labor inspectorate is properly funded so that inspectors receive sufficient resources, including transportation and equipment, to adequately carry out their duties. Ensure that inspections sufficiently cover sectors in which child labor has been reported, including the agricultural sector and the informal sector.	2014 – 2020
	Ensure that labor inspectors have sufficient knowledge of existing laws, penalties, processes, and training in victim identification to conduct inspections and refer victims to social services.	2015 – 2020
	Ensure that laws and regulations governing child labor, especially hazardous labor, are enforced consistently throughout the country, including in rural areas and family-run businesses.	2016 – 2020
	Publish information on the number of criminal violations found and convictions of crimes related to the worst forms of child labor.	2019 – 2020
	Ensure that criminal investigators, including the National Police Unit for Crimes against Children and Adolescents and the Specialized Victim Witness Protection Program, receive sufficient resources to investigate cases of the worst forms of child labor and refer victims to services.	2019 – 2020
	Ensure that investigators receive sufficient resources, including shelters for victims, to investigate cases of the worst forms of child labor and refer victims.	2016 – 2020
	Strengthen the provision of specialized services for victims of human trafficking.	2018 – 2020

Area	Suggested Action	Year(s) Suggested
Coordination	Ensure that key coordinating committees and councils, including the Inter-Institutional Committee for the Eradication of Child Labor, the Inter-Agency Sub-Committee for the Eradication of Child Labor, and the National Council for Inter-Generational Equity convene and undertake activities on a regular basis to address the worst forms of child labor.	2019 – 2020
	Strengthen coordinating mechanisms among ministries providing social services to victims of child labor, especially in the informal sector.	2015 – 2020
Government Policies	Update the National Plan to Eradicate Child Labor to ensure adequate funding for implementation and effective inter-agency coordination.	2019 – 2020
	Transition the National Plan to Eradicate Child Labor from its original pilot project status to a permanent directorate with a permanent budget.	2020
Social Programs	Conduct a comprehensive child labor survey so that there is sufficient data to inform government actions to eliminate child labor.	2018 – 2020
	Enhance efforts to eliminate barriers and make education accessible for all children, including indigenous and refugee children and children from rural areas, by increasing classroom space and teachers, addressing teen pregnancy issues, and providing adequate transportation.	2014 – 2020
	Enhance efforts to address exploitative labor practices and labor trafficking of migrant and refugee children.	2018 – 2020
	Ensure that children of refugees and migrants have full access to education.	2018 – 2020
	Ensure that all social programs that address child labor, including the National Program to Combat Child Begging and Youth Impulse, are active and publish information on activities taken during the reporting period.	2019 – 2020
	Ensure that social programs make interventions in sectors in which child labor is most prevalent, specifically in the informal and agricultural sectors.	2018 – 2020
	Ensure that the social registry includes families most vulnerable to child labor by updating the list of recipients of social assistance.	2020

In 2020, Egypt made moderate advancement in efforts to eliminate the worst forms of child labor. The government announced $50 million in additional funding to support the Takaful and Karama program, which allowed the provision of cash assistance to 309,748 new families to support school attendance for their children. On November 10, 2020, the National Coordinating Committee for Combating and Preventing Illegal Migration and Trafficking in Persons launched the second phase of its "Together Against Human Trafficking" awareness campaign in partnership with the International Organization for Migration. The campaign included a public service announcement featuring prominent Egyptian celebrities that was broadcast on television and displayed on billboards and buses. Additionally, the Ministry of Manpower approved a new action plan for implementing the Accelerating Action for the Elimination of Child Labor in Supply Chains in Africa program. However, children in Egypt are subjected to the worst forms of child labor, including in commercial sexual exploitation, sometimes as a result of human trafficking, and in quarrying limestone. The government did not publish data on the enforcement of child labor laws, and programs to combat child labor are insufficient to adequately address the extent of the problem.

I. PREVALENCE AND SECTORAL DISTRIBUTION OF CHILD LABOR

Children in Egypt are subjected to the worst forms of child labor, including in commercial sexual exploitation, sometimes as a result of human trafficking, and in quarrying limestone. (I-3) Table I provides key indicators on children's work and education in Egypt. Data on some of these indicators are not available from the sources used in this report.

Table I. Statistics on Children's Work and Education

Children	Age	Percent
Working (% and population)	5 to 14	4.9 (Unavailable)
Attending School (%)	5 to 14	80.9
Combining Work and School (%)	7 to 14	5.2
Primary Completion Rate (%)		104.6

Source for primary completion rate: Data from 2019, published by UNESCO Institute for Statistics, 2021. (4)

Source for all other data: International Labor Organization's analysis of statistics from Demographic and Health Survey (DHS), 2014. (5)

Based on a review of available information, Table 2 provides an overview of children's work by sector and activity.

Table 2. Overview of Children's Work by Sector and Activity

Sector/Industry	Activity
Agriculture	Farming, including the production of cotton (2,6-10)
	Caring for livestock (10,12-14)
	Fishing, activities unknown (13,15)
Industry	Quarrying† limestone (1,2,6)
	Making bricks (1,2,6,16,17)
	Working in carpentry workshops (13,18)
	Working in marble workshops (19,20)
	Construction, activities unknown (6,10,17,21)
Services	Domestic work (2,6,14,17,22)
	Driving tuktuks (2,6,23,24)
	Repairing automobiles (2,6,25)

Sector/Industry	Activity
Services	Street work, including selling goods and collecting garbage (2,7,21,26)
Categorical Worst Forms of Child Labor‡	Domestic work as a result of human trafficking (2,3,15)
	Commercial sexual exploitation, sometimes as a result of human trafficking (2,3,6,27,28)
	Forced begging, sometimes as a result of human trafficking (2,3,6)
	Trafficking of drugs, sometimes as a result of human trafficking (3,28)

† Determined by national law or regulation as hazardous and, as such, relevant to Article 3(d) of ILO C. 182.

‡ Child labor understood as the worst forms of child labor per se under Article 3(a)–(c) of ILO C. 182.

Egyptian children are exploited in forced labor, domestic service, street begging, drug trafficking, quarrying, and agricultural work in Egypt. (3) Some children are forced by their immediate and extended families into sexual exploitation, begging, and domestic and factory labor. (3,28) In addition, some girls are subjected to commercial sexual exploitation under the pretext of temporary marriage, sometimes called "summer marriage," to wealthy foreign men, mostly from Persian Gulf countries. (2,6,27) Egyptian children—particularly from Fayoum and Damietta—are transferred to Europe, where they are exploited in bonded child labor, commercial sexual exploitation, and drug dealing. (2,3,10,29)

Children in Egypt face barriers to education, including access to identity documentation and associated costs of attending school. Enrolling in public school requires a certified birth certificate, which many children born out of wedlock in Egypt lack. (2) Children drop out of school because of school-related costs, such as educational supplies, transportation, clothing, and food. (2,9,13,15) A lack of qualified teachers, poorly maintained schools, sanitation issues, classroom density, lack of infrastructure, and violence in schools also prevent children from attending school. (2) In rural communities, children face difficulties due to long commuting distances. Girls face additional barriers to education, especially in rural Egypt, including harassment and violence at school and on the way to school, as well as cultural barriers. (2,15,30)

The government offers refugee children access to the public education system; however, refugee children are subjected to racism, violence, and bullying. In response, some non-Egyptians residing in the country, such as those from Sudan, South Sudan, and Syria, have organized independent school systems unaffiliated with the government for their children. (2,31) Only 39,000 of the more than 150,000 Syrian children in Egypt are officially registered with the Egyptian public school system. (31)

II. LEGAL FRAMEWORK FOR CHILD LABOR

Egypt has ratified all key international conventions concerning child labor (Table 3).

Table 3. Ratification of International Conventions on Child Labor

Convention	Ratification
 ILO C. 138, Minimum Age	✓
 ILO C. 182, Worst Forms of Child Labor	✓
 UN CRC	✓
 UN CRC Optional Protocol on Armed Conflict	✓
 UN CRC Optional Protocol on the Sale of Children, Child Prostitution and Child Pornography	✓
 Palermo Protocol on Trafficking in Persons	✓

The government has established laws and regulations related to child labor (Table 4). However, gaps exist in Egypt’s legal framework to adequately protect children from the worst forms of child labor, including the prohibition of some forms of hazardous work such as brickmaking.

Table 4. Laws and Regulations on Child Labor

Standard	Meets International Standards	Age	Legislation
Minimum Age for Work	Yes	15	Article 64 of the Child Law (32)
Minimum Age for Hazardous Work	Yes	18	Article 1 of Ministry of Manpower's Decree 118 (33)
Identification of Hazardous Occupations or Activities Prohibited for Children	Yes		Articles 1–2 of Ministry of Manpower's Decree 118 (33)
Prohibition of Forced Labor	Yes		Article 89 of the Constitution; Article 291 of the Penal Code; Articles 2–3 of the Law on Combating Human Trafficking (32,34,35)
Prohibition of Child Trafficking	Yes		Article 89 of the Constitution; Article 291 of the Penal Code; Articles 2–3 of the Law on Combating Human Trafficking (32,34,35)
Prohibition of Commercial Sexual Exploitation of Children	Yes		Article 116-bis(a) of the Child Law; Article 291 of the Penal Code; Articles 2–3 of the Law on Combating Human Trafficking; Articles 1–4 and 6 of the Law on the Combating of Prostitution (32,35,36)
Prohibition of Using Children in Illicit Activities	Yes		Article 34 of the Law on Narcotics; Article 65 of the Child Law; Article 2.2 of Ministry of Manpower's Decree 118 (32,33,37)
Minimum Age for Voluntary State Military Recruitment	No	15	Ministry of Defense Guidelines on Youth Volunteers in the Armed Forces (38)
Prohibition of Compulsory Recruitment of Children by (State) Military	Yes		Article 1 of the Law on Military and National Service (39)
Prohibition of Military Recruitment by Non-state Armed Groups	Yes		Article 7-bis(b) of the Child Law (32)
Compulsory Education Age	Yes	15‡	Article 59(1) of the Child Law; Articles 80 and 238 of the Constitution (32,34)
Free Public Education	Yes		Article 54 of the Child Law (32)

‡ Age calculated based on available information (40,41)

The law prohibits hazardous occupations and activities for children, including in quarrying, tanning, welding, spraying pesticides, and carrying heavy loads. (33) However, the types of hazardous work prohibited for children do not cover brick production, an area of work in which there is evidence of exposure to hazardous temperatures. (2,16)

III. ENFORCEMENT OF LAWS ON CHILD LABOR

The government has established institutional mechanisms for the enforcement of laws and regulations on child labor (Table 5). However, gaps exist within the authority of enforcement agencies that may hinder adequate enforcement of their child labor laws.

Table 5. Agencies Responsible for Child Labor Law Enforcement

Organization/Agency	Role
Ministry of Manpower	Enforces child labor laws and regulations through its inspection department, including receiving and investigating child labor complaints. Inspectors conduct labor inspections and report violations to the police, which operates under the Ministry of Interior. (2,6) If police investigations confirm criminal activity, cases are subsequently sent to the Prosecutor General's Office, which operates under the Ministry of Justice. (6,2)
Ministry of Interior	Investigates human trafficking and commercial sexual exploitation of children. Reports violations to the Public Prosecution Office under the Prosecutor General's Office. (2,6)
Ministry of Justice, Prosecutor General's Office	Prosecutes violation of laws related to the worst forms of child labor and human trafficking. (2,6)
Ministry of Local Development	Provides administrative and logistical support for the enforcement of child labor laws. Administers the Child Protection Committees. (2,6)
Administrative Control Authority	Investigates government corruption and human trafficking, and reports violations to the Ministry of the Interior, which refers cases for prosecution. (2,42)

MODERATE ADVANCEMENT

Labor Law Enforcement

In 2020, labor law enforcement agencies in Egypt took actions to combat child labor (Table 6). However, gaps exist within the authority of the Ministry of Manpower that may hinder adequate labor law enforcement, including the authority to assess penalties.

Table 6. Labor Law Enforcement Efforts Related to Child Labor

Overview of Labor Law Enforcement	2019	2020
Labor Inspectorate Funding	Unknown (6)	Unknown (2)
Number of Labor Inspectors	Unknown (6)	Unknown (2)

In 2020, the Ministry of Manpower trained 527 labor inspectors in occupational safety and hazard laws and regulations. In addition, the ILO in Egypt trained 140 inspectors on conventions against child labor, international laws, and regulations as part of the Accelerating Action for the Elimination of Child Labor in Supply Chains in Africa (ACCEL Africa) project. (2) These trainings took place throughout the country, including in Alexandria, Beheira, Fayoum, Sharkia, and Kafr al-Sheikh governorates. The ACCEL Africa Project also provided refresher courses for 240 Egyptian labor inspectors. (2) However, sources report that the number of inspectors receiving training on child labor policies was insufficient to deal with the scope of the problem. Moreover, labor inspectors in Egypt do not have the authority to inspect informal workplaces, leaving children working outside of the formal economy vulnerable to exploitation. (2)

Although the number of labor inspectors is unknown, according to the ILO's technical advice of a ratio approaching 1 inspector for every 15,000 workers in developing economies, Egypt would employ about 1,607 labor inspectors because its workforce consists of more than 24.11 million workers. (43-45)

The government did not provide information on its labor law enforcement efforts for inclusion in this report. (2)

Criminal Law Enforcement

In 2020, criminal law enforcement agencies in Egypt took actions to combat child labor (Table 7). However, gaps exist within the operations of the criminal enforcement agencies that may hinder adequate criminal law enforcement, including in referring child victims to social services.

Table 7. Criminal Law Enforcement Efforts Related to Child Labor

Overview of Criminal Law Enforcement	2019	2020
Initial Training for New Criminal Investigators	Unknown (6)	Unknown (2)

Imposed Penalties for Violations Related to the Worst Forms of Child Labor	Unknown (6)	Unknown (2)
Reciprocal Referral Mechanism Exists Between Criminal Authorities and Social Services	Yes (6)	Yes (2)

In 2020, Egypt investigated 156 trafficking cases, including 365 victims, 242 of whom were children. The government also secured convictions for child traffickers, including two individuals in Fayoum governorate for trafficking children abroad to work, two individuals for attempting to sell their 15-year-old sister into a temporary marriage, and six individuals for exploiting children in sexual trafficking and begging. (28)

The government did not provide information on its criminal law enforcement efforts specific to the worst forms of child labor for inclusion in this report. (2)

IV. COORDINATION OF GOVERNMENT EFFORTS ON CHILD LABOR

The government has established mechanisms to coordinate its efforts to address child labor (Table 8).

However, gaps exist that hinder the effective coordination of efforts to address child labor, including efficacy in accomplishing mandates.

Table 8. Key Mechanisms to Coordinate Government Efforts on Child Labor

Coordinating Body	Role & Description
National Council for Childhood and Motherhood (NCCM)	Coordinates enforcement of laws related to child labor, including its worst forms. Provides technical support and training about child labor for the Ministry of Manpower's inspectors. (47) Identifies and monitors at-risk children. Manages two 24-hour hotlines and receives reports of child labor and child trafficking. (15) During the reporting period, received a portion of a $1,250,000 grant to upgrade its hotlines, which included increasing receiving and processing capacity and adding services for migrant children. (28) In 2020, participated in a meeting of the National Steering Committee for the National Action Plan for Combating the Worst Forms of Child Labor and Supporting Families. (2) In January 2020, NCCM instituted standard operating procedures for child protection cases, including cases of child trafficking. (3)
National Steering Committee for the National Action Plan to Eliminate the Worst Forms of Child Labor and Supporting Families	Coordinates efforts to implement the National Action Plan to Eliminate the Worst Forms of Child Labor and Supporting Families. Membership includes the ministries of Manpower, Social Solidarity, Education, Agriculture, Interior, Planning, Finance, Investment and International Cooperation, Trade, Justice, Health, Local Development, and Awqaf, in addition to NCCM, the National Council of Women, the Central Agency for Population and Statistics, the National Media Agency, and Al Azhar University. (2,6) In July 2020, the committee held its second meeting ever, which was co-chaired by the Ministry of Manpower and ILO and included 25 representatives from domestic agencies and international organizations, to assess progress made on the National Action Plan and to plan future activities. Among the meeting outcomes were a ministerial decree to institutionalize the committee, a unified list of 2021 priorities, and plans to conduct trainings and further cooperate with the Accelerating Action for the Elimination of Child Labor in Supply Chains in Africa (ACCEL Africa) project. (2)
National Coordinating Committee for Combating and Preventing Illegal Migration and Trafficking in Persons (NCCPIM and TIP)	Coordinates efforts to combat human trafficking. (48) Led by an ambassador appointed by the Prime Minister, comprises 29 government entities, including the ministries of the Interior and Manpower. (15) Reports indicate that NCCPIM and TIP's mandate being limited to the handling of two crimes—illegal immigration and trafficking—hinders its ability to raise awareness about trafficking as a distinct crime and draws attention away from local forms of trafficking. In January 2020, NCCPIM and TIP partnered with an international organization to provide anti-trafficking training to 20–25 judges in specialized human trafficking courts. (3) NCCPIM and TIP also organized 24 capacity-building workshops related to human trafficking during the reporting period. (28) On November 10, 2020, NCCPIM and TIP launched the second phase of its "Together Against Human Trafficking" awareness campaign in partnership with IOM. The campaign included a public service announcement featuring prominent Egyptian celebrities that was broadcast on television and displayed on billboards and buses. (28) Other awareness efforts took place throughout the reporting period, including a social media campaign with the participation of the Prime Minister, Minister of Foreign Affairs, Minister of Social Solidarity, NCCPIM and TIP's chairperson, National Council for Human Rights (NCHR) directors, NCCM leaders, President of the Federation of NGOs, heads of UN agencies in Egypt including IOM and UNODC, and NGOs. (28)
Child Protection Committees	Coordinate child protection efforts at the local level in partnership with community organizations. Led by the Ministry of Social Solidarity and chaired by local governors in each governorate, with subcommittees at each police station. (15) In 2020, the government maintained 320 child protection committees. (3)

MODERATE ADVANCEMENT

V. GOVERNMENT POLICIES ON CHILD LABOR

The government has established policies that are consistent with relevant international standards on child labor (Table 9).

Table 9. Key Policies Related to Child Labor

Policy	Description
National Action Plan Against the Worst Forms of Child Labor and Supporting Family (2018–2025)	Aims to eliminate the worst forms of child labor by 2025 and identify roles of government agencies responsible for assisting child laborers. (2,15) Developed in 2017 and formally adopted in 2018, the strategic objectives of the National Action Plan include expansion of the child labor knowledge base; capacity building of agencies providing support; social protection, with links to existing programs; enhanced education, including vocational education for children; and advocacy and awareness raising. (17) In 2020, ILO and the ministries of Manpower, Social Solidarity, and Agriculture, along with NCCM, worked together to implement the National Action Plan by continuing to mobilize resources, develop institutions, review legislation, and cooperate on an inter-institutional level. (2)
National Strategy for Combating and Preventing Trafficking in Persons (2016–2021)	Aims to maintain referral mechanisms, train law enforcement officials, and combat trafficking of street children. (2,15) Active in 2020. (3)
National Strategy for Childhood and Motherhood (2018–2030)	The child labor chapter aims to promote dialogue on child labor legislation, including updating the hazardous work list; building the capacity of relevant government agencies, such as the Ministry of Manpower and NCCM; developing programs to address child labor; and expanding educational and vocational training opportunities. (2,13) Active in 2020. (2)

VI. SOCIAL PROGRAMS TO ADDRESS CHILD LABOR

In 2020, the government funded and participated in programs that include the goal of eliminating or preventing child labor (Table 10). However, gaps exist in these social programs, including the adequacy of programs to address the full scope of the problem.

Table 10. Key Social Programs to Address Child Labor

Program	Description
Expanding Access to Education and Protection for At-Risk Children in Egypt (2016–2021)	$32 million, EU-funded project implemented by UNICEF in cooperation with the Ministry of Education and NCCM to expand access to education for 36,000 children, including 6,000 children with disabilities, and to support 15 Child Protection Committees in 15 governorates. (51) Active in 2020. (52)
Solidarity and Dignity Program (Takaful and Karama)†	Funded by the Ministry of Social Solidarity, this program promotes school attendance and health monitoring for children by providing income supplements to poor families. (2,13) This partnership between the government and the World Food Program, UNDP, UNICEF, and the World Bank offers income supplements to poor families under the conditions that household children maintain at least an 80 percent attendance record in school and that mothers and children under age 6 provide demonstrable evidence of having been seen at health clinics four times per year. (2) In March 2020, the Government of Egypt declared $50 million in additional funding to support the Takaful and Karama program. Between March and October 2020, 309,748 new families were added as project participants to this program. (2) In November 2020, the program aided 11.1 million people by providing $1.3 billion in benefits. (2) Despite these increases, reporting indicates that need remains for additional families to be added to this program. (2)
Children without Shelter†	Ministry of Social Solidarity-operated shelters for victims of human trafficking, child victims of trafficking and forced labor, and other vulnerable individuals. The Dar as-Salam shelter, operated by NCCM and the NGO Face, provides social services, including psychological counseling and health services. (53) Mobile units in 10 governorates work to reintegrate children with their families or place them in foster care. (54) Active in 2020. (55)
ACCEL Africa (2018–2022)	Aims to eliminate child labor in the cotton, textiles, and ready-made-garments sectors; implemented by ILO and funded by the Dutch government. ACCEL Africa- Egypt partners with the ministries of Manpower, Education, Social Solidarity, and Agriculture, as well as NCCM to improve policy, legal, and institutional frameworks. (56) During the reporting period, the Ministry of Manpower committed to a new action plan for implementing the program. (2) Also in 2020, ILO launched a pilot program for an internet-based referral mechanism under the ACCEL Africa project. (2)

† Program is funded by the Government of Egypt.

Although Egypt has programs that target child labor, the scope of these programs is insufficient to fully address the extent of the problem, particularly for commercial sexual exploitation and quarrying limestone.

VII. SUGGESTED GOVERNMENT ACTIONS TO ELIMINATE CHILD LABOR

Based on the reporting above, suggested actions are identified that would advance the elimination of child labor in Egypt (Table 11).

Table 11. Suggested Government Actions to Eliminate Child Labor

Area	Suggested Action	Year(s) Suggested
Legal Framework	Ensure that the types of work that children perform in Egypt that expose them to hazardous temperatures, such as brick production, are prohibited for children under age 18.	2017 – 2020
	Ensure that the law establishes age 16 as the minimum age for voluntary recruitment by the state military with safeguards for voluntariness.	2019 – 2020
Enforcement	Publish information on labor law enforcement efforts.	2011 – 2020
	Strengthen the labor inspectorate by authorizing inspectors to assess penalties.	2017 – 2020
	Ensure the number of labor inspectors in Egypt meets the ILO's technical guidance.	2018 – 2020
	Increase the number of inspectors receiving training on child labor policies.	2019 – 2020
	Publish information on criminal law enforcement efforts.	2011 – 2020
Coordination	Ensure that the National Coordinating Committee for Combating and Preventing Illegal Migration and Trafficking in Persons effectively addresses trafficking as a distinct crime.	2020
Social Programs	Ensure universal access to free public education, especially for girls, by addressing the cost of school fees, supplies, violence in schools, lack of documentation, and other barriers to education.	2010 – 2020
	Expand programs to address the full scope of the child labor problem, particularly in commercial sexual exploitation and in quarrying limestone.	2010 – 2020
	Expand the Takaful and Kamara program to ensure that children are able to stay in school.	2020

In 2020, El Salvador made moderate advancement in efforts to eliminate the worst forms of child labor. Multiple government agencies worked with the International Labor Organization to prepare the 2019 report "New Forms of Child Labor: Use and Recruitment of Boys, Girls and Adolescents for Illicit Gang Activities in El Salvador," which evaluates the relationship between gangs and children to highlight the worst forms of child labor. The government also published results from its Annual Multipurpose Household Survey, which identifies child labor prevalence in the country. Furthermore, the government made publicly available the labor inspectorate's level of funding and increased the number of labor inspectors from 107 to 124. However, children in El Salvador are subjected to the worst forms of child labor, including in commercial sexual exploitation and in illicit activities, each sometimes as a result of human trafficking. Children also perform dangerous tasks in the harvesting of coffee. Law enforcement agencies continued to lack sufficient resources to enforce child labor laws throughout the country. Gaps also remained related to the implementation of key policies to address child labor.

I. PREVALENCE AND SECTORAL DISTRIBUTION OF CHILD LABOR

Children in El Salvador are subjected to the worst forms of child labor, including in commercial sexual exploitation and in illicit activities, each sometimes as a result of human trafficking. Children also perform dangerous tasks in the harvesting of coffee. (1-6) In 2020, the Director General of Statistics and Census published results from the 2019 El Salvador Annual Multipurpose Household Survey, which found that around 93,283 children between the ages of 5 and 17 are working in El Salvador, an 8.48 percent decrease since 2018. (7,8) The survey also found that more than 60 percent of child laborers live in rural communities and around 40 percent do not attend school. (7,8) Table 1 provides key indicators on children's work and education in El Salvador.

Table 1. Statistics on Children's Work and Education

Children	Age	Percent
Working (% and population)	5 to 14	3.6 (39,269)
Attending School (%)	5 to 14	92.7

	Forced begging, domestic work, agricultural labor, construction, work in textiles, and street work (2,4-7)

† Determined by national law or regulation as hazardous and, as such, relevant to Article 3(d) of ILO C. 182.

‡ Child labor understood as the worst forms of child labor per se under Article 3(a)–(c) of ILO C. 182.

Children in El Salvador often lack economic and educational opportunities and are vulnerable to the worst forms of child labor, including commercial sexual exploitation. They are also recruited by gangs for illicit activities such as delivering threats, collecting extortion money, conducting surveillance activities, trafficking drugs, and committing homicides. (1,3,4,6,7,16) Gangs also often force young girls into domestic servitude, including providing childcare, and into sexual exploitation. Reports indicate that those who resist forced gang labor have been assaulted or killed. (4,6,7) El Salvador's Trafficking in Person's Special Prosecutor and local NGOs have indicated that adolescent girls with limited education are among the most at risk of being trafficked. (3,16) LGBTI adolescents are also at risk of being forced into commercial sexual exploitation by gangs. (4)

Children often emigrate to escape violence, extortion, and forced recruitment by gangs, in addition to seeking economic opportunities and family reunification. Human trafficking is also a driver of child migration. (2,3,6,17-19) Gangs target adolescent girls for forced commercial sex, causing them and sometimes their entire families to flee El Salvador in fear. Once en route, however, girls and other children from El Salvador remain vulnerable to human trafficking and commercial sexual exploitation. (2,3,6,17-19)

Multiple reports, including by third-party monitoring groups, indicate that the use of child labor in sugarcane harvesting has decreased since 2010. (1) However, despite ongoing government efforts to address child labor in this sector, recent data demonstrating the impact of specific government programs have not been published. (1)

At schools, children are recruited, extorted, and harassed by gangs, which may cause them to stop attending school. (7) This situation is aggravated by the fact that a majority of schools are located in communities where gangs are present. (20,21) Indigenous children are sometimes threatened by gang members for crossing gang territorial lines that are set across ancestral indigenous land, forcing some of them to drop out of school. (22) Children who do not attend school are more vulnerable to child labor, including its worst forms. (1,2,17,23) Children in El Salvador face numerous barriers to education such as insufficient funds allocated to education and precarious school infrastructure. (21) Poverty, particularly in rural areas, also presents a barrier to education in El Salvador because children leave school to contribute to family incomes. (21) According to the Comprehensive Law of Protection of Childhood and Adolescence, a lack of identity documents should not prevent school enrollment. However, research indicates that children are still being required to have birth certificates to enroll in schools, in contravention of national law. (4,7) According to the Ministry of Education, this is standard procedure in every school in the country. In the cases when a child does not have a birth certificate, the school will consider their enrollment, but there is no guarantee of admission. (24) This practice may be having an adverse effect on the enrollment rates of children in school, because the cost for these documents is prohibitive for very poor families. (4,7) Limited reporting also indicates that children from indigenous communities disproportionately lack access to education. (1,4,7)

In the 2019 El Salvador Annual Multipurpose Household Survey published during the reporting year, the government highlighted the number and age of child laborers, but it did not include information about the sectors in which children were working, as well as details on the specific worst forms of child labor children were subjected to. (7)

II. LEGAL FRAMEWORK FOR CHILD LABOR

El Salvador has ratified all key international conventions concerning child labor (Table 3).

Table 3. Ratification of International Conventions on Child Labor

	Convention	Ratification
	ILO C. 138, Minimum Age	✓
	ILO C. 182, Worst Forms of Child Labor	✓
	UN CRC	✓
	UN CRC Optional Protocol on Armed Conflict	✓
	UN CRC Optional Protocol on the Sale of Children, Child Prostitution and Child Pornography	✓
	Palermo Protocol on Trafficking in Persons	✓

The government has established laws and regulations related to child labor (Table 4). However, gaps exist in El Salvador's legal framework to adequately protect children from the worst forms of child labor, including the minimum age for work compared to the compulsory age for basic education.

Table 4. Laws and Regulations on Child Labor

Standard	Meets International Standards	Age	Legislation

MODERATE ADVANCEMENT

The maximum fine for all labor violations in the Labor Code remained at $60 during the reporting period, as the revisions increasing fines approved by the Legislative Assembly Committee of Labor in 2019 were not ratified by the full legislature. (1,4,7) In addition, the minimum age for work is lower than the compulsory education age, which may encourage children to leave school before the completion of compulsory education. (34,35)

III. ENFORCEMENT OF LAWS ON CHILD LABOR

The government has established institutional mechanisms for the enforcement of laws and regulations on child labor (Table 5). However, gaps exist within the operations of enforcement agencies that may hinder adequate enforcement of their child labor laws.

Table 5. Agencies Responsible for Child Labor Law Enforcement

Organization/Agency	Role
Ministry of Labor and Social Welfare (MTPS)	Inspects worksites for labor violations, including child labor, and monitors working conditions for adolescents who are granted work authorization. (4,13) Maintains a child labor unit dedicated to child labor law enforcement issues. (36) Refers cases of the worst forms of child labor to the Office of the Attorney General. (4)
Ministry of Justice and Public Security	Enforces criminal laws related to the worst forms of child labor through the Office of the Attorney General and the National Civil Police (PNC), both of which maintain special trafficking in persons units to investigate and prosecute human trafficking, including child trafficking. (4,11,13,28,37) The PNC maintains a hotline that receives complaints about human trafficking for sexual and labor exploitation. (38)
The Salvadoran Institute for the Complete Development of Children and Adolescents	Receives referrals from law enforcement agencies on cases of criminal exploitation of children, including for forced labor, human trafficking, and commercial sexual exploitation. Provides child victims with services, including shelter, medical attention, psychological help, and legal advice. (39)

Labor Law Enforcement

In 2020, labor law enforcement agencies in El Salvador took actions to combat child labor (Table 6). However, gaps exist within the operations of the Ministry of Labor and Social Welfare (MTPS) that may hinder adequate labor law enforcement, including financial resource allocation.

In 2020, the labor inspectorate conducted 258 child labor-specific inspections and identified 1 minor working, with appropriate work authorization. (7) A total of 23,262 labor inspections were conducted during the year, representing approximately 185 inspections carried out by each inspector. This is a high number of inspections conducted by each inspector, and it is likely that this high number impacts the quality of such inspections. (7)

The MTPS has indicated that its budget is insufficient to address workers' rights. (7) Furthermore, despite the addition of 17 inspectors in 2020, the total number of labor inspectors is likely insufficient for the size of El Salvador's workforce, which includes more than 2.7 million workers. According to the ILO's technical advice of a ratio approaching 1 inspector for every 15,000 workers in industrializing economies, El Salvador would employ about 180 labor inspectors. (42) In addition, inspectors focus primarily on the formal sector in urban areas due to resource constraints, despite the size of El Salvador's informal sector. (4,7,40) During the reporting period, inspectors did not receive training on the subject of child labor. (7)

Article 627 of the Labor Code specifies a default fine of no more than $60 per violation of all labor laws, including child labor laws. (25) Reports indicate that this amount is insufficient to deter labor violations. (3,37)

Criminal Law Enforcement

In 2020, criminal law enforcement agencies in El Salvador took actions to combat child labor (Table 7). However, gaps exist within the operations of criminal enforcement agencies that may hinder adequate criminal law enforcement, including allocating financial resources.

Table 7. Criminal Law Enforcement Efforts Related to Child Labor

Overview of Criminal Law Enforcement	2019	2020
Initial Training for New Criminal Investigators	Unknown (4)	No (7)
Training on New Laws Related to the Worst Forms of Child Labor	N/A	N/A (7)
Refresher Courses Provided	Yes (4)	No (7)

Imposed Penalties for Violations Related to the Worst Forms of Child Labor	Yes (16)	Unknown (7)
Reciprocal Referral Mechanism Exists Between Criminal Authorities and Social Services	Yes (1)	Yes (7)

In 2020, the National Civil Police opened a total of 14 cases for investigation related to child labor violations. During the reporting period, the government reported two cases related to the sexual exploitation of children, in which one victim was rescued for each case. In one case, three subjects were arrested, and in the other, eight subjects were detained. (7) The Salvadoran Institute for the Complete Development of Children and Adolescents (ISNA) reported four adolescent trafficking victims rescued by police and placed in the ISNA Regional Trafficking in Persons Shelter. (7) The total number of violations found, prosecutions initiated, number of convictions, and penalties imposed related to the worst forms of child labor in 2020 were unknown because the government did not provide this information for inclusion in this report.

The Attorney General's Office stated the need for more investigators and analysts due to the complexity of the investigations and the specialized investigation technique required. (7) Reports also indicate that the Ministry of Justice and Public Security is underfunded and unable to support a sufficient number of investigators to collect and analyze evidence to process case backlogs. (1,16,40) In addition, research found that increased coordination between the National Civil Police and the Office of the Attorney General is needed to improve the investigation and prosecution of criminal child labor violations. (44) Salvadoran police chiefs and prosecutors noted that difficulties in collecting, sharing, and gaining actionable insights from investigative information remain a challenge, especially because investigative bodies lack the capabilities to share information electronically. (3,38)

IV. COORDINATION OF GOVERNMENT EFFORTS ON CHILD LABOR

The government has established mechanisms to coordinate its efforts to address child labor (Table 8). However, gaps exist that hinder the effective coordination of efforts to address child labor, including efficacy in accomplishing mandates.

MODERATE ADVANCEMENT

Table 8. Key Mechanisms to Coordinate Government Efforts on Child Labor

Coordinating Body	Role & Description
National Committee for the Eradication of Child Labor	Determines and implements government efforts to combat child labor. Chaired by MTPS, includes 12 government agencies, along with representatives from labor unions, business associations, and NGOs. (12,13) Maintains a web-based monitoring system that allows government agencies to share and analyze information to coordinate the implementation of the Roadmap. (13) Research was unable to determine whether the National Committee for the Eradication of Child Labor Coordinating Body was active during the reporting period.
National Council Against Trafficking in Persons	Coordinates government efforts to combat human trafficking and implements the National Policy Against Trafficking in Persons. (13,35) Led by the Ministry of Justice and Public Security and composed of 11 government agencies. (13,28) Research was unable to determine whether the National Council Against Trafficking in Persons Coordinating Body was active during the reporting period.
National Council for Children and Adolescents (CONNA)	Develops policies to protect the rights of children, including those regarding child labor, and implements LEPINA and the National Policy for the Comprehensive Protection of Children and Adolescents in El Salvador (PNPNA). (13,26,45,46) Responds to cases involving the violation of children's rights by providing victim assistance. (47) Research was unable to determine whether the CONNA Coordinating Body was active during the reporting period.
Departmental and Local Committees for Children's and Adolescents' Rights	Implement CONNA's policies, including PNPNA, at the departmental and municipal levels, and receive complaints of child rights violations. (13,26) Research was unable to determine whether the Departmental and Local Committees for Children's and Adolescents' Rights Coordinating Bodies were active during the reporting period.

During the reporting period, multiple government agencies worked with the ILO to prepare the 2019 report "New Forms of Child Labor: Use and Recruitment of Boys, Girls and Adolescents for Illicit Gang Activities in El Salvador", a report that evaluates the relationship between gangs and children to highlight the worst form of child labor. (7)

V. GOVERNMENT POLICIES ON CHILD LABOR

The government has established policies related to child labor (Table 9). However, policy gaps exist that hinder efforts to address child labor, including the implementation of child labor issues into relevant national policies.

Table 9. Key Policies Related to Child Labor

Policy	Description
Roadmap to Make El Salvador a Country Free of Child Labor and Its Worst Forms	Serves as the government's principal policy for eliminating the worst forms of child labor. Aims to eliminate all child labor by 2020, by reducing poverty, improving education and health, protecting children's rights, and raising awareness of child labor. (48) Chaired by MTPS along with the Ministry of Education, the Ministry of Foreign Relations, the Ministry of Economy, the Ministry of Health, and the Ministry of Agriculture and Livestock. (7) In December 2020, under this policy, MTPS planned and launched the Plan of Labor Inspections to Determine Cases of Trafficking in Persons and Child Labor, but the results of the plan remain unknown. (7,49) However, some reporting indicates that under this plan the government closed several establishments either temporarily or permanently. (24) This plan consisted of a nationwide inspections operation to identify cases of human trafficking and child labor in bars and nightclubs. (49)
PNPNA (2013–2023)	Sets government policies aimed at guaranteeing children's rights and protecting children from violence and harm, including the worst forms of child labor. Other objectives include reducing poverty and improving health services and access to quality education for children, including children with disabilities. (12,46) Research was unable to determine whether activities were undertaken during the reporting period to implement the PNPNA.
National Policy Against Trafficking in Persons	Defines a comprehensive plan to combat human trafficking of adults and children for labor and commercial sexual exploitation. Aims to improve prevention efforts, victim assistance, prosecution, inter-agency coordination, training, and anti-corruption efforts. (50,51) Research was unable to determine whether activities were undertaken during the reporting period to implement the National Policy Against Trafficking in Persons.
Educated El Salvador Plan	Outlines six priorities for improving El Salvador's national education system, including increasing security in schools and improving access to education for vulnerable groups, including children engaged in child labor. (13,52) Research was unable to determine whether activities were undertaken during the reporting period to implement the Educated El Salvador Plan.

‡ The government had other policies that may have addressed child labor issues or had an impact on child labor. (1,3,37,53-58)

During the reporting period ISNA participated in the formulation of the National Early Childhood Policy, through which mostly low-income parents can leave their children in a safe environment during the workday so that the children are not in contact with the work activities of their parents. (7) However, the government has not included child labor elimination and prevention strategies in the National Youth Policy (2010–2024). (59) The MTPS reported that the COVID-19 pandemic seriously affected the planning established for the reporting period and their ability to carry out work for these policies. (7)

VI. SOCIAL PROGRAMS TO ADDRESS CHILD LABOR

In 2020, the government funded and participated in programs that include the goal of eliminating or preventing child labor (Table 10). However, gaps exist in these social programs, including the adequacy of programs to address the full scope of the problem.

Table 10. Key Social Programs to Address Child Labor

Program	Description
Human Trafficking Public Awareness Campaigns†	Government public awareness campaigns implemented by CONNA and the Ministry of Foreign Affairs to raise awareness about the dangers of human trafficking. Includes the “Protection Starts at Home” awareness program and the “Call 1 2 3” Hotline, which promote respect toward the physical, psychological, and sexual integrity of children and adolescents. (13,43,44,60) The “Call 1 2 3” Hotline offers children and adults the ability to consult specialists in emergency situations. (61) Research was unable to determine whether activities were undertaken during the reporting period to implement this initiative.
Sustainable Families Programs‡	Set of government programs focused on improving health, education, productivity, and security, and eliminating poverty through inclusive and sustainable economic growth and access to public services. Include Health and Education Bonus Programs that assist families with cash transfers conditioned on children’s school attendance and health checkups. (50,62,63) Research was unable to determine whether activities were undertaken during the reporting period to implement the Sustainable Families Programs.
School Prevention and Security Plan†	Programs implemented by the Ministry of Justice and Public Security and the PNC in schools with high levels of violence. Includes activities such as provision of psychological help, online classes, skills workshops for youth, and increased police patrols. (64-67) Research was unable to determine whether activities were undertaken during the reporting period to implement the School Prevention and Security Plan.
USDOL-Funded Projects	Projects which aim to reduce the incidence of child labor, including: Youth Pathways-Central America (2015–2021) , a $17 million project implemented by Catholic Relief Services in El Salvador and Honduras; and Reducing Incidence of Child Labor and Harmful Conditions of Work in Economic Strengthening Initiatives (RICHERS) (2017–2021) , a $1.6 million project implemented by the Grameen Foundation in El Salvador and the Philippines. (60,68-70) Additional information is available on the USDOL website .

‡ The government had other social programs that may have included the goal of eliminating or preventing child labor. (1,3,11,65,71-73)

Despite efforts to combat human trafficking, services for adolescent male human trafficking victims are limited, which may leave them vulnerable to being trafficked again. (38) Although the government implements several programs to reduce the worst forms of child labor by assisting poor families and school children, research found no evidence that the government has programs that assist child laborers who may not be living with their families and not attending school, such as children engaged in domestic work.

VII. SUGGESTED GOVERNMENT ACTIONS TO ELIMINATE CHILD LABOR

Based on the reporting above, suggested actions are identified that would advance the elimination of child labor in El Salvador (Table 11).

Table 11. Suggested Government Actions to Eliminate Child Labor

Area	Suggested Action	Year(s) Suggested
Legal Framework	Raise the minimum age for work from age 14 to the age up to which education is compulsory.	2018 – 2020
Enforcement	Provide sufficient funding and resources to the Ministry of Labor and Social Welfare and criminal law enforcement agencies to fully enforce child labor laws and investigate cases involving the worst forms of child labor, including in the informal sector.	2010 – 2020
	Increase the number of labor inspectors to meet the ILO’s technical advice.	2018 – 2020

MODERATE ADVANCEMENT

Area	Suggested Action	Year(s) Suggested
Enforcement	Ensure and verify that child labor themes are included in annual refresher courses for inspectors.	2018 – 2020
	Establish monetary penalties for child labor violations that are proportionate to the nature and seriousness of the offense.	2009 – 2020
	Collect and publish complete information on training for new criminal investigators and data on the number of criminal violations found, and penalties imposed related to the worst forms of child labor.	2019 – 2020
	Improve coordination between the National Civil Police and the Office of the Attorney General in their investigation and prosecution of criminal cases related to the worst forms of child labor, including by developing information-sharing capabilities.	2014 – 2020
Coordination	Ensure that all coordinating bodies are able to carry out their intended mandates.	2018 – 2020
Government Policies	Integrate child labor elimination and prevention strategies into the National Youth Policy for 2010–2024.	2014 – 2020
	Publish activities undertaken to implement key policies related to child labor during the reporting period.	2020
Social Programs	Collect and publish government statistics evaluating the impact of collaborative projects targeting child labor in sugarcane production.	2016 – 2020
	Publish activities undertaken to implement key social programs to address child labor during the reporting period.	2020
	Remove barriers to education, such as birth registration requirements, and ensure access for all children, including students of indigenous descent.	2011 – 2020
	Ensure that adequate services are available for all human trafficking victims, including adolescent males.	2020
	Implement programs to support child laborers who may not be living with their parents, including child domestic workers.	2017 – 2020
	Ensure annual surveys that provide data on child labor include information on specific child labor work sectors and the worst forms of child labor.	2020

NO ADVANCEMENT – EFFORTS MADE BUT COMPLICIT IN FORCED CHILD LABOR

In 2020, Eritrea is receiving an assessment of no advancement. Despite initiatives to address child labor, Eritrea is receiving an assessment of no advancement because it had a policy of being complicit in the use of forced child labor in more than isolated incidents. Government officials continued to force students in grade 12, some of whom are under the age of 18, to participate in military training elements of the government's compulsory national service program. Otherwise, the government made efforts by maintaining funding for its education programs, and expanding schooling in rural areas prior to the onset of the COVID-19 pandemic. Children in Eritrea are subjected to the worst forms of child labor, including in forced military training associated with national service and forced agricultural labor. Moreover, Eritrea's minimum age protections do not apply to children working outside formal employment relationships, and therefore do not conform to international standards. In addition, the government does not have a mechanism to coordinate its efforts to address the worst forms of child labor.

I. PREVALENCE AND SECTORAL DISTRIBUTION OF CHILD LABOR

Children in Eritrea are subjected to the worst forms of child labor, including in forced military training associated with national service and forced agricultural labor. (1) Table 1 provides key indicators on children's work and education in Eritrea. Data on some of these indicators are not available from the sources used in this report.

Table 1. Statistics on Children's Work and Education

Children	Age	Percent
Working (% and population)	5 to 14	Unavailable
Attending School (%)	5 to 14	Unavailable
Combining Work and School (%)	7 to 14	Unavailable
Primary Completion Rate (%)		60.3

Source for primary completion rate: Data from 2018, published by UNESCO Institute for Statistics, 2021. (2) Data were unavailable from International Labor Organization's analysis, 2021. (3)

Based on a review of available information, Table 2 provides an overview of children's work by sector and activity.

Table 2. Overview of Children's Work by Sector and Activity

Sector/Industry	Activity
Agriculture	Farming, activities unknown (1,4,5)
	Herding livestock (1,4-7)
Industry	Mining, including gold (8)
	Small-scale manufacturing (9)
Services	Domestic work, including fetching water and firewood (5,9)
	Working in auto mechanic shops, bicycle repair shops, tea and coffee shops, metal workshops, grocery stores, the Asmara bowling alley, and open markets (1,4,6,9-11)
	Street work, including vending, cleaning cars, and begging (1,5,9)
Categorical Worst Forms of Child Labor‡	Compulsory participation in national service or military training associated with national service prior to age 18, and in forced agricultural and domestic work (1,9,12-15)
	Commercial sexual exploitation, sometimes as a result of human trafficking (15)

‡ Child labor understood as the worst forms of child labor per se under Article 3(a)–(c) of ILO C. 182.

NO ADVANCEMENT – EFFORTS MADE BUT COMPLICIT IN FORCED CHILD LABOR

The Proclamation on National Service No. 82/1995 establishes compulsory military training and service, known as National Service, for all citizens ages 18 to 40. (1,13,16) To graduate from high school and meet the compulsory training component of national service, students are required to complete their final year of schooling (grade 12) at the Warsai Yekalo Secondary School located at the Sawa military complex. Each year, 11,000 to 15,000 students enter grade 12 at Sawa, and while many of these students have typically reached age 18, some are reportedly as young as age 16. (1,13-15,17) The 4 months spent at Sawa are devoted to mandatory military training, which includes military discipline and procedures, weapons training, a survival exercise, and a two-to-four week war simulation. Some conscripts were forced to perform agricultural labor on government-owned farms. (14,16,18) In addition, conscientious objectors, including young Jehovah's Witnesses, are not given an alternative to military service and are prevented from receiving a high school diploma, a national ID card, a regional residence card, subsidized staples, or any kind of official employment unless they agree to military service. This leaves them vulnerable to becoming involved in illegal activity, including the worst forms of child labor. (19,20)

Eritrean children face a future of indefinite national service assignments, inability to earn higher wages in the private sector without completion of national service assignments, and notoriously harsh conditions at Sawa. These factors underlie an ongoing exodus of unaccompanied minors from the country. (4,14,21-23) Adolescent children, some as young as age 14, who attempted to leave Eritrea were sometimes detained or forced to undergo military training, despite being younger than the minimum age of 18 for compulsory military recruitment. (4,14,24,25) It is unclear if age verification procedures are consistently applied prior to new Sawa graduates being sent to active military service. (1,26) In addition, the military periodically conducts roundups, known as giffas, to perform identity checks. There have been reports that giffas have resulted in the imprisonment of children alleged to be attempting to evade compulsory national service and recruitment into the military. (12,14,27) The government did not collect or publish data on child work, child labor, or the worst forms of child labor during the reporting period. (1,9)

Children, particularly in rural areas, lack access to teachers, classrooms, transportation, uniforms, and school supplies. (1,14,18,28) To address the shortfall, the government has deployed teachers to less populated regions to educate rural and nomadic children. (1,9) The government's national development agenda prioritizes the expansion of schooling in rural areas. (1,29,30) However, teachers may flee the country to avoid open-ended conscription into Eritrea's national service system. The resulting staff shortages and high absenteeism rates compound these challenges. (14)

Restrictions imposed to contain the pandemic led to nationwide school closures, with the government suspending the free provision of education to most students in March 2020. (1) During the reporting period, as many as 300,000 children were out of school, a situation that continued to deteriorate throughout the year. (31) Prior to the pandemic, children attended public school in one of two daily shifts, allowing them to work and attend school simultaneously. Following pandemic-related school closures, however, children were observed working throughout the day. (1)

II. LEGAL FRAMEWORK FOR CHILD LABOR

Eritrea has ratified all key international conventions concerning child labor (Table 3).

Table 3. Ratification of International Conventions on Child Labor

	Convention	Ratification
	ILO C. 138, Minimum Age	✓
	ILO C. 182, Worst Forms of Child Labor	✓

NO ADVANCEMENT – EFFORTS MADE BUT COMPLICIT IN FORCED CHILD LABOR

Convention	Ratification
 UN CRC	✓
 UN CRC Optional Protocol on Armed Conflict	✓
 UN CRC Optional Protocol on the Sale of Children, Child Prostitution and Child Pornography	✓
 Palermo Protocol on Trafficking in Persons	✓

The government has established laws and regulations related to child labor (Table 4). However, gaps exist in Eritrea's legal framework to adequately protect children from the worst forms of child labor, including the minimum age for work.

Table 4. Laws and Regulations on Child Labor

Standard	Meets International Standards	Age	Legislation
Minimum Age for Work	No	14	Article 3, 68 of the Labor Proclamation (32)
Minimum Age for Hazardous Work	No		Articles 3, 35, and 69 of the Labor Proclamation (32)
Identification of Hazardous Occupations or Activities Prohibited for Children	No		Article 69 of the Labor Proclamation (32)
Prohibition of Forced Labor	Yes		Articles 108(c), 297, and 316 of the Penal Code (33)
Prohibition of Child Trafficking	Yes		Articles 297, 315–318 of the Penal Code (33)
Prohibition of Commercial Sexual Exploitation of Children	No		Articles 305–306 and 313–318 of the Penal Code (33)
Prohibition of Using Children in Illicit Activities	No		Articles 390–392 of the Penal Code (33)
Minimum Age for Voluntary State Military Recruitment	No
Prohibition of Compulsory Recruitment of Children by (State) Military	Yes		Articles 7–8 of the Proclamation on National Service (13)
Prohibition of Military Recruitment by Non-state Armed Groups	No		Articles 109(e) and 111(b) of the Penal Code (33)
Compulsory Education Age	No	14‡
Free Public Education	No		Article 21 of the Constitution (34)

The Labor Proclamation's minimum age protections do not apply to children working outside formal employment relationships, such as those who are self-employed. This does not conform to international standards requiring all children to be protected by the minimum age to work. (32) In addition, Article 69 of the Labor Proclamation authorizes the Minister of Labor to issue a list of activities prohibited to children under age 18; however, the government has not determined by national law or regulation the types of hazardous work prohibited for children. Likewise, the Labor Proclamation's hazardous work protections do not apply to children working outside formal employment relationships. (32,38)

Laws governing the use of children in illicit activities are not sufficient because offering and procuring a child for the production of drugs is not criminally prohibited. (33) In addition, laws regarding the commercial sexual exploitation of children are insufficient because the use of a child for prostitution is not criminally prohibited, although there are criminal penalties associated with the procurement of children under age 14. (33) The government announced in 2015 that it was considering drafting a new criminal code prohibiting the commercial sexual exploitation of children, but it is unclear whether that was drafted or put into effect. (18,39,40) Furthermore, voluntary military service of children under age 18 is not authorized in Eritrea because the Proclamation on National Service No. 82/1995, which requires compulsory national service from all citizens ages 18 to 40, defines national service in such a way that it is limited to people in that age group. (13)

While Eritrea does not appear to have any laws guaranteeing free basic education or setting the compulsory education age, several government policies provide free and compulsory basic education to all children below the age of 14, including the Education Sector Development Plan, the National Education Policy, and the Comprehensive National Child Policy. (38,41,42)

III. ENFORCEMENT OF LAWS ON CHILD LABOR

The government has established institutional mechanisms for the enforcement of laws and regulations on child labor (Table 5). However, gaps exist within the operations of enforcement agencies that may hinder adequate enforcement of their child labor laws.

Table 5. Agencies Responsible for Child Labor Law Enforcement

Organization/Agency	Role
Ministry of Labor and Social Welfare (MoLSW)	Enforces labor laws and investigates labor abuses, including child labor. (17,39) According to the government, child labor inspectors operate in every administrative zone. (43)
Eritrean Police	Enforce laws and investigate referred cases of child trafficking and commercial sexual exploitation of children. (9)
Citizen Militia	Performs night patrols and refers cases of commercial sexual exploitation of children or other exploitative practices to the Eritrean police. (9)

Labor Law Enforcement

In 2020, labor law enforcement agencies in Eritrea took actions to combat child labor (Table 6). However, gaps exist within the operations of the Ministry of Labor and Social Welfare (MoLSW) that may hinder adequate enforcement, including the lack of referral mechanisms.

MoLSW closed amid widespread lockdowns to contain the pandemic. Inspectors therefore had limited access to workplaces in 2020. (1,9) Although the labor inspectorate did not share a detailed breakdown of sectors inspected during the reporting period, prior reporting indicates MoLSW targeted sectors in urban areas, including manufacturing, sales, and hospitality. (1,9,30) Due to a lack of resources, inspectors were unable to access sites in remote areas and the informal sector, in which child labor is likely to occur. (9) Because child labor laws do not extend to private farms and homes, MoLSW did not inspect private residences for child labor violations. (1) Moreover, research indicates that the number of labor inspectors is likely insufficient for the size of Eritrea's workforce, which includes approximately 2.7 million workers. (45) According to the ILO's technical advice ratio approaching 1 inspector for every 40,000 workers in less developed economies, Eritrea would employ about 68 labor inspectors. (45,46)

NO ADVANCEMENT – EFFORTS MADE BUT COMPLICIT IN FORCED CHILD LABOR

Labor inspectors, in collaboration with the local administrations and police, are empowered to identify and prosecute child labor violations. Penalties for labor violations are assessed in coordination with inspectors, administrators, and the police, and are adjudicated by judicial authorities. (1)

In 2020, MoLSW worked with the ILO to develop an enhanced labor officer training program. However, the pandemic delayed its implementation. (1) Research was unable to determine whether reciprocal referral mechanisms exist between labor authorities and social services. (9,10) The government did not provide information on its labor inspectorate funding for this report. (1)

Criminal Law Enforcement

In 2020, criminal law enforcement agencies in Eritrea took actions to combat child labor (Table 7). However, gaps exist within the operations of the criminal enforcement agencies that may hinder adequate criminal enforcement, including lack of criminal law enforcement data.

Table 7. Criminal Law Enforcement Efforts Related to Child Labor

Under the Proclamation on National Service No. 82/199, all Eritreans over the age of 18 must undergo 6 months of compulsory military training at the National Military Training Center. Despite evidence that children younger than age 18 are forced to participate in military training, research did not identify measures taken by the government in 2020 to ensure children were not subjected to compulsory military training. (9,14,32) The government does not publicly release information on its criminal law enforcement efforts. (9)

IV. COORDINATION OF GOVERNMENT EFFORTS ON CHILD LABOR

Research found no evidence that the government has established mechanisms to coordinate its efforts to address child labor.

Eritrea's 43 Child Wellbeing Committees, which operate at the local level, coordinate representatives from the political, health, educational, legal, and civil society sectors. They are charged with ensuring that children in distress receive specialized care. (1) While the committees were active in 2020, research found that their mandates are focused on reducing female genital mutilation and child marriage and do not extend to efforts to address child labor. (1,9,10)

V. GOVERNMENT POLICIES ON CHILD LABOR

The government has established policies related to child labor (Table 8). However, policy gaps exist that hinder efforts to address child labor, including mainstreaming child labor issues into relevant policies.

Table 8. Key Policies Related to Child Labor

Policy	Description
Comprehensive National Child Policy	Addresses underlying causes of child labor through studies of and assessments on the nature and conditions of child labor; designs advocacy and public awareness campaigns to sensitize on the worst forms of child labor; and empowers communities and the public sector to monitor and prevent child labor from occurring. (30,41) The policy calls for the provision of free and compulsory basic education to all children irrespective of gender, sex, ethnicity, religion, or disability. (47) A ban on gatherings due to the pandemic led to suspension in education sensitization campaigns in 2020. However, the government continued to allocate resources in furtherance of these policy objectives in 2020. (1,48)
Education Sector Development Plan (2018–2021)	Establishes 8 years of free and compulsory education for all children. (29,49) Includes a strategy to ensure equitable access to education for all children, including in nomadic communities, through the provision of portable classrooms. (29,30) Virtual learning was generally not widely available due to low levels of Internet and radio availability. (1,50) However, in April, the Ministry of Education (MoE) began providing TV-transmitted instructions for secondary education. (50,51) Moreover, UNICEF supported MoE's plans to finalize media-transmitted instructions for basic education in July 2020. (48,50) MoE also trained 180 complementary elementary education facilitators, and enrolled 5,900 out-of-school children in the remote communities of Gash-Barka, Northern Red Sea and Anseba Zobas. (51)

‡ The government had other policies that may have addressed child labor issues or had an impact on child labor. (42)

VI. SOCIAL PROGRAMS TO ADDRESS CHILD LABOR

In 2020, the government funded and participated in programs that may contribute to eliminating child labor (Table 9). However, gaps exist in these social programs, including capacity to address the problem in all sectors.

Table 9. Key Social Programs to Address Child Labor

Program	Description
Complementary Elementary Education (CEE)†	Government program created under the Education Sector Development Plan that addresses the educational needs of out-of-school children ages 9 to 14 in remote and rural areas. Condenses 5 years of elementary education into a 3-year program to allow students to either mainstream into formal education at the secondary level or access vocational education. (5,18,29) UNICEF pledged to support continuity of education for over 600,000 children in 2020–2021. (31,48,50) In 2020, the UN worked with MoE to develop continuity of education plans and expedite safe school reopening, including through the distribution of 50,000 bars of soap to promote handwashing. With MoE, UNICEF also trained 180 facilitators in basic education skills in CEE centers. (1,50,51)
UNICEF Country Program (2017–2021)	$19.5 million ($31 million requested) UNICEF-funded program nested under the UN-Eritrea Strategic Partnership Cooperation Framework (2017–2021); in collaboration with the government, expands access to quality basic education for all children, and protects children from violence, exploitation, and abuse. (52-54) UNICEF's Mine Risk Education program was suspended in 2020 due to school closures. (48,50) However, through the Community-Based Rehabilitation program, UNICEF and MoLSW provided mental health and psychosocial support to over 300 vulnerable children, including those with disabilities. (48,50) In addition, UNICEF worked with MoE to train facilitators and establish non-formal complementary education centers catering to older children. (50) Following countrywide school closures in March, UNICEF also provided technical support to MOE for TV-transmitted primary and secondary instruction. Moreover, MoLSW translated parenting and hygiene recommendations into Tigrinya and disseminated them through national newspapers and radio programs with UNICEF's support. (50)
Better Migration Management	EU-led program encompassing 11 countries in North, Central, and East Africa, and aims to address the international labor market, including trafficking of children. The Eritrean government joined the program on May 28, 2019. (9,55) Research was unable to determine whether the policy was implemented during the reporting period.

Research found no evidence of programs that target children working in agriculture, domestic work, and street work, or that address all worst forms of child labor in the country.

VII. SUGGESTED GOVERNMENT ACTIONS TO ELIMINATE CHILD LABOR

Based on the reporting above, suggested actions are identified that would advance the elimination of child labor in Eritrea (Table 10).

Table 10. Suggested Government Actions to Eliminate Child Labor

Area	Suggested Action	Year(s) Suggested
Legal Framework	Ensure that all children are protected by minimum age laws, including those who are self-employed.	2010 – 2020
	Determine the types of hazardous work prohibited for children and ensure that all children are protected by hazardous work prohibitions, including children in the informal sector.	2015 – 2020
	Criminally prohibit the use of a child for prostitution.	2014 – 2020
	Criminally prohibit procuring and offering a child for the production of drugs.	2013 – 2020
	Criminally prohibit the recruitment of children under age 18 by non-state armed groups.	2016 – 2020
	Establish by law free basic public education.	2016 – 2020
Enforcement	Publish information on labor inspectorate funding, total number of inspections conducted at worksites, number of violations, number of targeted, routine, and unannounced inspections, number of violations for which penalties were imposed and collected, and whether complaint mechanisms and reciprocal referral mechanisms are in place.	2009 – 2020
	Increase the number of labor inspectors to meet the ILO's technical advice.	2018 – 2020
	Ensure labor inspectors are provided sufficient resources, including transportation, to access sites in which child labor is likely to occur.	2019 – 2020
	Publish information on criminal law enforcement efforts, including initial and refresher training for new investigators, and data on the number of criminal investigations, violations, prosecutions, and convictions related to the worst forms of child labor, and if reciprocal referral mechanisms exist.	2019 – 2020
Coordination	Establish coordinating mechanisms to directly address child labor.	2009 – 2020
Government Policies	Ensure that children under age 18 are not placed in military or agricultural labor assignments as part of national service.	2009 – 2020
Social Programs	Ensure that all children have access to education by building more schools and removing financial and religious barriers to attendance, as outlined in the 2018 Education Sector Development Plan.	2010 – 2020
	Collect and publish data on the extent and nature of child labor to inform policies and programs.	2009 – 2020
	Institute programs to address child labor, including in agriculture, domestic work, street work, and the worst forms of child labor, including in commercial sexual exploitation.	2009 – 2020

In 2020, Eswatini made minimal advancement in efforts to eliminate the worst forms of child labor. The Government of the Kingdom of Eswatini published their first-ever uniform guidelines for providing shelter and care for victims of human trafficking and gender-based violence. However, children in Eswatini are subjected to the worst forms of child labor, including in forced domestic work, forced livestock herding, and commercial sexual exploitation, each sometimes as a result of human trafficking. Significant gaps in the legal framework remain, including gaps in minimum age protections, a lack of legislation regulating the labor conditions under Kuhlehla and other customary practices, and a de facto compulsory education age that does not meet international standards. In addition, minimum age protections only apply to children working in industrial undertakings, which does not conform to international standards that require all children to be protected by the minimum age to work.

I. PREVALENCE AND SECTORAL DISTRIBUTION OF CHILD LABOR

Children in Eswatini are subjected to the worst forms of child labor, including in forced domestic work and forced livestock herding, each sometimes as a result of human trafficking. (1-4) Table 1 provides key indicators on children's work and education in Eswatini.

Table 1. Statistics on Children's Work and Education

Children	Age	Percent
Working (% and population)	5 to 14	11.7 (35,368)
Attending School (%)	5 to 14	92.5
Combining Work and School (%)	7 to 14	13.0
Primary Completion Rate (%)		94.5

Source for primary completion rate: Data from 2018, published by UNESCO Institute for Statistics, 2021. (5)

Source for all other data: International Labor Organization's analysis of statistics from Multiple Indicator Cluster Survey 4 (MICS 4), 2010. (6)

Based on a review of available information, Table 2 provides an overview of children's work by sector and activity.

Table 2. Overview of Children's Work by Sector and Activity

Sector/Industry	Activity
Agriculture	Farming, including growing corn and harvesting sugarcane (1)
	Raising and herding livestock, including cattle, buffalo, goats, swine, horses, donkeys, and sheep (1,3,7,8)
Services	Domestic work (1,8-10)
	Street work, including working as vendors, bus attendants, taxi conductors, porters, and car washers (1,2,4,8)
Categorical Worst Forms of Child Labor‡	Forced labor in livestock herding, domestic work, farming, and market vending, each sometimes as a result of human trafficking (2,4,11-13)
	Commercial sexual exploitation, sometimes as a result of human trafficking (2,4,8,10,12-14)
	Use in illicit activities, including growing drugs such as marijuana (3,8,10,13)

‡ Child labor understood as the worst forms of child labor per se under Article 3(a)–(c) of ILO C. 182.

According to results from the 2014 Survey on Child Labor in Herding in Rural Areas in Eswatini, published by the Government of the Kingdom of Eswatini and the ILO, an estimated 72,332 child laborers under the age of 15 raise bovines and 20,680 raise sheep and goats, primarily in the rural areas of Hhohho, Manzini, Shiselweni, and Lubombo. (7) Children perform physically arduous tasks while herding in the grasslands and mountainous regions, and risk occupational injury and disease from exposure to dangerous tools, insecticides, and herbicides.

Eswatini

MINIMAL ADVANCEMENT

Children’s injuries sustained during livestock herding include open wounds, fractures, dislocations and sprains, fever, extreme fatigue, and snake bites. (7) In addition, there is evidence of children’s current and growing participation in the production—but not the dealing or trafficking—of marijuana, which remains illegal under Swati law. (8,13)

The government provides free primary education from grade one through grade seven, and subsidizes secondary education for the approximately 70 percent of Eswatini’s children who are orphaned or vulnerable. At the lower secondary and upper secondary levels, however, the cost of school fees was a barrier for students whose families lacked sufficient funds to sustain their enrollment. (8,15)

II. LEGAL FRAMEWORK FOR CHILD LABOR

Eswatini has ratified all key international conventions concerning child labor (Table 3).

Table 3. Ratification of International Conventions on Child Labor

Convention	Ratification
 ILO C. 138, Minimum Age	✓
ILO C. 182, Worst Forms of Child Labor	✓
 UN CRC	✓
UN CRC Optional Protocol on Armed Conflict	✓
UN CRC Optional Protocol on the Sale of Children, Child Prostitution and Child Pornography	✓
 Palermo Protocol on Trafficking in Persons	✓

The government has established laws and regulations related to child labor (Table 4). However, gaps exist in Eswatini’s legal framework to adequately protect children from the worst forms of child labor, including the minimum age for work.

Table 4. Laws and Regulations on Child Labor

Standard	Meets International Standards	Age	Legislation
Minimum Age for Work	No	15	Article 234 of the Children's Protection and Welfare Act; Section 97 of the Employment Act (16,17)
Minimum Age for Hazardous Work	Yes	18	Article 236 of the Children's Protection and Welfare Act; Article 29 of the Constitution (16,18)
Identification of Hazardous Occupations or Activities Prohibited for Children	No		Articles 233 and 236–237 of the Children's Protection and Welfare Act (16)
Prohibition of Forced Labor	Yes		Article 75 of the Children's Protection and Welfare Act; Sections 144 and 145 of the Employment Act; Article 13 of the People Trafficking and People Smuggling (Prohibition) Act; Articles 17 and 29 of the Constitution (16-19)
Prohibition of Child Trafficking	Yes		Article 75 of the Children's Protection and Welfare Act; Article 13 of the People Trafficking and People Smuggling (Prohibition) Act (16,19)
Prohibition of Commercial Sexual Exploitation of Children	Yes		Sections 42–46 of the Crimes Act; Sections 13–15 and Sections 23-28 of the Sexual Offences and Domestic Violence Act (20,21)
Prohibition of Using Children in Illicit Activities	Yes		Articles 16 and 49 of the Children's Protection and Welfare Act (16)
Minimum Age for Voluntary State Military Recruitment	Yes	18	Section 17 of The Umbutfo Swaziland Defence Force Order (22)
Prohibition of Compulsory Recruitment of Children by (State) Military	N/A*		Section 17 of The Umbutfo Swaziland Defence Force Order (22)

Standard	Meets International Standards	Age	Legislation
Prohibition of Military Recruitment by Non-state Armed Groups	No
Compulsory Education Age	No	12/13‡	Section 10 of the Free Primary Education Act (23)
Free Public Education	No		Section 3 of the Free Primary Education Act (23)

* No conscription (22)

‡ Age calculated based on available information (24)

Both the Children's Protection and Welfare Act and Section 97 of the Employment Act apply minimum age protections to children working in industrial undertakings, but neither covers children working in domestic and agricultural work. (16,17) Children working in the agricultural sector often work long hours, carry heavy loads, work in remote areas, and risk exposure to harmful pesticides. (7) There is also no identification of hazardous occupations or activities prohibited for children based on the current legislation. (9,16,17)

Although Section 10 of the Free Primary Education Act requires parents to send their children to school for the completion of primary education, this educational attainment is typically at ages 12 or 13. As a result, children who complete primary education at ages 12 to 14 are vulnerable to child labor, as they are not required to be in school but also cannot legally work because they are under age 15, the minimum age for work. (9,23,24) In addition, the Free Primary Education Act provides for free schooling for 7 years, although basic education is a total of 9 years and includes lower secondary education. The failure to provide complete free basic education may increase the risk of children's involvement in the worst forms of child labor. (23,25)

Previous reports indicated that local chiefs required residents, including children, to participate in non-communal tasks such as seasonal weeding. This work was performed through the customary practice of Kuhlehla. (26) In 2020, there were no reports that local chiefs forced residents or children to work, and research indicates that the practice is rare or non-existent, and not innate to the customary practice of Kuhlehla (a practice in which people render services to the local chief or king). Still, the ILO has requested that the government issue legislation to regulate the nature and conditions of Kuhlehla, and ensure that the law explicitly states the voluntary nature of participation in such work. (26)

A draft amendment to the Employment Act No. 5/1980 received initial feedback from Eswatini's Labor Advisory Board (LAB) in 2019 and is still awaiting a final review from the ILO and a second review by the LAB before being sent to the Cabinet and Parliament for approval. The draft bill would extend minimum age protections to children working in agriculture and domestic service, allow labor inspectors to enter private homes and farms to carry out inspections, and criminalize the recruitment of children by non-state armed groups. (15)

III. ENFORCEMENT OF LAWS ON CHILD LABOR

The government has established institutional mechanisms for the enforcement of laws and regulations on child labor (Table 5). However, gaps exist within the authority of enforcement agencies that may hinder adequate enforcement of child labor laws.

Table 5. Agencies Responsible for Child Labor Law Enforcement

Organization/Agency	Role
Ministry of Labor and Social Security	Enforces child labor laws and promotes relations between labor, government, and business through tripartite dialogue. (15)
Royal Eswatini Police Services	Investigates cases involving the worst forms of child labor. Informs victims of sexual offenses, including commercial sexual exploitation, of available counseling and other support services, including Post Exposure Prophylactics. (21,27)

Eswatini

MINIMAL ADVANCEMENT

Organization/Agency	Role
Trafficking in Persons Secretariat	Plays the lead role in coordinating anti-trafficking efforts. Coordinates some of the outreach programs along with the other elements of the prevention. (28)
Director of Public Prosecutions	Prosecutes cases involving the worst forms of child labor, and refers child victims to social and legal support services. (12,21) Responsible for implementing victim identification guidelines and referral mechanisms for victims of human trafficking and those at risk. (24)

The Department of Social Welfare offered rehabilitative services to victims of child labor, including orphans, and referred suspected cases of child labor to the Royal Eswatini Police Services (REPS) or to the Ministry of Labor and Social Services (MLSS). (8,15)

Labor Law Enforcement

In 2020, labor law enforcement agencies in Eswatini took actions to combat child labor (Table 6). However, gaps exist within the authority of MLSS that may hinder adequate labor law enforcement, including the authority to assess penalties.

Table 6. Labor Law Enforcement Efforts Related to Child Labor

Overview of Labor Law Enforcement	2019	2020
Labor Inspectorate Funding	$900,000 (29)	Unknown (8)
Number of Labor Inspectors	15 (29)	Unknown (8)
Inspectorate Authorized to Assess Penalties	No (15)	No (17)
Initial Training for New Labor Inspectors	Yes (15)	Yes (8)
Training on New Laws Related to Child Labor	N/A (15)	N/A (8)

Unannounced Inspections Conducted	Yes (15)	Yes (8)
Complaint Mechanism Exists	Yes (15)	Yes (8)
Reciprocal Referral Mechanism Exists Between Labor Authorities and Social Services	Yes (15)	Yes (8)

Research indicates that labor inspectors lacked sufficient resources, such as vehicles, to conduct inspections. (1,8,10,24,27) In addition, based on the number of labor inspectors in the previous year, there remains a lack of labor inspectors for the size of Eswatini's workforce, which includes approximately 427,900 workers. (30) According to the ILO's technical advice of a ratio approaching 1 inspector for every 15,000 workers in developing economies, Eswatini would employ about 29 labor inspectors, and would require the hiring of approximately 14 additional inspectors to meet this threshold. (31,32)

Although research indicates that some inspections were conducted during the reporting period, it is unknown how many total inspections were conducted. Inspectors are not, however, allowed to assess penalties; labor inspectors instead have to identify the labor violations and report them to the appropriate law enforcement authority. (8)

Criminal Law Enforcement

In 2020, criminal law enforcement agencies in Eswatini took actions to combat child labor (Table 7). However, gaps exist within the operations of the criminal enforcement agencies that may hinder adequate criminal law enforcement, including allocation of financial resources.

Table 7. Criminal Law Enforcement Efforts Related to Child Labor

Overview of Criminal Law Enforcement	2019	2020
Initial Training for New Criminal Investigators	Yes (15)	Yes (8)
Training on New Laws Related to the Worst Forms of Child Labor	Yes (15)	N/A (8)
Refresher Courses Provided	Yes (15)	Yes (8)
Number of Investigations	5 (29)	1 (8)
Number of Violations Found	0 (29)	1 (8)
Number of Prosecutions Initiated	4 (33)	1 (8)
Number of Convictions	1 (33)	Unknown (8)
Imposed Penalties for Violations Related to the Worst Forms of Child Labor	No (29)	Unknown (8)
Reciprocal Referral Mechanism Exists Between Criminal Authorities and Social Services	Yes (15)	Yes (8)

The government provided limited information during the reporting period.

Research continues to indicate that REPS lacked sufficient resources to fulfill its full mandate in terms of carrying out investigations. (8, 15)

IV. COORDINATION OF GOVERNMENT EFFORTS ON CHILD LABOR

The government has established mechanisms to coordinate its efforts to address child labor (Table 8).

However, gaps exist that hinder the effective coordination of efforts to address child labor, including efficacy in accomplishing mandates.

Table 8. Key Mechanisms to Coordinate Government Efforts on Child Labor

Coordinating Body	Role & Description
Children's Services Department	Evaluates and reviews existing national legal instruments governing the treatment of children to ensure compliance with international child treatment standards, provisions, and practices. Also monitors and evaluates national policies, plans, and programs, and ensures that stakeholders collaborate and contribute toward a national child development agenda. (27) Research was unable to determine whether the Children's Services Department was active during the reporting period.
The Anti-Human Trafficking Task Force	Coordinates the implementation of the People Trafficking and People Smuggling (Prohibition) Act of 2009 with the support of the Trafficking in Persons Secretariat. Formulates policies and programs to prevent and suppress human trafficking and people smuggling, including programs to provide assistance to victims and increase the public's awareness of the causes and consequences of human trafficking and smuggling, and exchanges information on cases of human trafficking among relevant stakeholders, including the police, immigration officers, social workers, and prosecutors. (19) Staff received one training session during the reporting period that was hosted by IOM. (8, 13)

During the reporting period, a tripartite committee, consisting of the Royal Eswatini Police Services, the Director of Public Prosecutions, and the Trafficking in Persons Secretariat, met to report on cases and ensure appropriate interventions were being taken. However, due to the COVID-19 pandemic, in-person meetings were canceled or postponed. (13)

Although the government has coordinating mechanisms that address human trafficking, the government does not have a coordinating mechanism to address all relevant child labor issues, including child labor in agriculture and domestic work. In addition, resource constraints, poor communication, and a lack of coordination between staff working on the Anti-Human Trafficking Task Force has resulted in confusion about the mandates of these bodies, how to accomplish their missions, and the overall effectiveness of the task force. (10, 15)

MINIMAL ADVANCEMENT

V. GOVERNMENT POLICIES ON CHILD LABOR

The government has established policies related to child labor (Table 9). However, policy gaps exist that hinder efforts to address child labor, including a lack of implementation.

Table 9. Key Policies Related to Child Labor

Policy	Description
National Strategic Framework and Action Plan to Combat People Trafficking (2019–2023)	Assigns responsibilities on combating human trafficking to relevant government agencies and provides services to victims. (34) Aims to improve protection for victims, prosecution for offenders, and continued prevention efforts. (34) Research was unable to determine whether actions were undertaken to implement this policy during the reporting period.
National Children's Policy (2009–Present)	Represents the policy framework of the Children's Protection and Welfare Act and aims to promote the rights of children, protect children from all types of abuse and exploitation, including child labor, and improve the quality of education. (35) Research was unable to determine whether actions were undertaken to implement this policy during the reporting period.

The Government of the Kingdom of Eswatini published their first-ever uniform guidelines for providing shelter and care for victims of human trafficking and gender-based violence. (8) In addition, the government worked with ILO to draft a new Action Plan on the Elimination of Child Labor for 2019–2025. While the Action Plan has been reviewed and approved by LAB and the Social Dialogue Committee, it has yet to be presented to the Cabinet for adoption due to the pandemic. (8,15)

Although the Government of the Kingdom of Eswatini has adopted a policy related to human trafficking, research found no evidence of an adopted policy on other relevant worst forms of child labor, including commercial sexual exploitation and the use of children in illicit activities. (8,15) Child labor elimination and prevention strategies are also not included in the Eswatini Education and Training Sector Policy. (8)

VI. SOCIAL PROGRAMS TO ADDRESS CHILD LABOR

In 2020, the government funded and participated in programs that include the goal of preventing child labor (Table 10). However, gaps exist in these social programs, including the adequacy of programs to address the full scope of the child labor problem.

Program	Description
Strengthen the Coordination Mechanism to Respond to Trafficking in Persons and Ensure Justice and Protection for All Victims of Trafficking in Eswatini (2019–2021)	IOM-funded, 2-year project that aims to improve protection of human trafficking victims by developing regulations and guidelines, including for shelters, and training staff from the Anti-Human Trafficking Task Force. (8)
Free Primary Education Program†	Provides funding to ensure free primary education to approximately 24,000 children starting from age 6 for a period of 7 years or up to grade 7. (1,24,27,37) Research was unable to determine whether activities were undertaken to implement this program during the reporting period.

The offices of the Prime Minister and the Deputy Prime Minister continued to work with the Trafficking in Persons Secretariat and the Catholic Church to explore the establishment of a shelter to improve the quality of care available to victims of human trafficking. (33) Although Eswatini has programs that target child labor, the scope of these programs is insufficient to fully address the extent of the problem. (33,38,39)

VII. SUGGESTED GOVERNMENT ACTIONS TO ELIMINATE CHILD LABOR

Based on the reporting above, suggested actions are identified that would advance the elimination of child labor in Eswatini (Table 11).

Table 11. Suggested Government Actions to Eliminate Child Labor

Area	Suggested Action	Year(s) Suggested
Legal Framework	Ensure that minimum age provisions extend to all children, including those working in agriculture and domestic work.	2013 – 2020
	Ensure that the hazardous occupations and activities prohibited for children are comprehensive and cover agricultural undertakings and domestic work.	2012 – 2020
	Adopt legislation that prohibits the recruitment of children under age 18 by non-state armed groups.	2016 – 2020
	Establish a compulsory education age that is consistent with the minimum age for work.	2009 – 2020
	Establish by law free basic public education through lower secondary education.	2018 – 2020
	Adopt legislation that regulates the work performed through traditional practices like Kuhlehla .	2017 – 2020
Enforcement	Collect and publish comprehensive statistics on enforcement efforts, including labor inspectorate funding, the number of inspectors, the number of inspections conducted at worksites, the number of violations, the number of convictions, and the number of penalties imposed and collected.	2020
	Authorize the labor inspectorate to assess penalties.	2016 – 2020
	Provide labor inspectors with refresher courses on the worst forms of child labor.	2017 – 2020
	Provide adequate resources to labor inspectors and criminal investigators so they can fulfill their mandates.	2013 – 2020
	Increase the number of labor inspectors to meet the ILO's technical advice.	2016 – 2020
Coordination	Ensure that all coordinating bodies are active and have the necessary resources to be able to fulfill their mandates as intended.	2019 – 2020
	Establish a coordinating mechanism that addresses all child labor issues, including children working in agriculture and domestic work.	2015 – 2020
	Improve coordination and communication among coordinating bodies to clarify mandates to combat all forms of child labor.	2018 – 2020
Government Policies	Implement child labor-related policies, including the National Children's Policy, National Strategic Framework, and Action Plan to Combat People Trafficking.	2017 – 2020
	Adopt a policy that addresses all relevant worst forms of child labor, including commercial sexual exploitation and the use of children in illicit activities.	2019 – 2020
	Integrate child labor elimination and prevention strategies into the Eswatini Education and Training Sector Policy.	2010 – 2020
Social Programs	Ensure that children are able to access free basic education, including paying or eliminating school fees for lower secondary education.	2013 – 2020
	Ensure that social programs to address child labor are implemented in accordance with their mandates.	2018 – 2020
	Ensure a minimum quality of standard care in shelters for victims of child trafficking.	2017 – 2020
	Develop social protection programs to assist children engaged in child labor in domestic work and herding.	2014 – 2020

In 2020, Ethiopia made moderate advancement in efforts to eliminate the worst forms of child labor. Under the Prevention and Suppression of Trafficking in Persons and Smuggling of Persons Proclamation No. 1178, the government overhauled its national counter-trafficking framework, amending penalties for debt bondage, slavery, human trafficking, and certain forms of child labor and sexual exploitation. With external support, the Ministry of Education also announced a school feeding project benefiting 163,021 pre-primary and primary-age students in five regional states. In addition, the Ministry of Labor collaborated with the ILO to develop a digital inspection system, which was completed in 2020. However, children in Ethiopia continue to be subjected to the worst forms of child labor, including in forced labor in domestic work and in commercial sexual exploitation. The law in Ethiopia does not include free basic education or a compulsory age for education, leaving children vulnerable to the worst forms of child labor. Social programs to combat child labor have also not sufficiently targeted sectors with high incidences of child labor.

I. PREVALENCE AND SECTORAL DISTRIBUTION OF CHILD LABOR

Children in Ethiopia are subjected to the worst forms of child labor, including forced labor in domestic work and commercial sexual exploitation. (1-4) According to the results of a 2015 national child labor survey published in 2018, almost 16 million children from the ages of 5 to 17 engaged in child labor. A majority of these children were found in the regions of Oromia, Amhara, and the Southern Nations, Nationalities, and Peoples' Region (SNNPR). (5) The Ethiopian Central Statistics Agency (CSA) did not collect data on child labor during the reporting period. However, the CSA, UNICEF Ethiopia, and the Center for Evaluation and Development published a report entitled "Child Labor Analysis in Ethiopia 2020." (6,7) The report supplemented CSA's 2015 Ethiopia National Child Labor Survey with new data on hard-to-reach children working in urban areas. (6,7) Table 1 provides key indicators on children's work and education in Ethiopia.

	Recruitment of children by non-state armed groups for use in armed conflict (6,17)

† Determined by national law or regulation as hazardous and, as such, relevant to Article 3(d) of ILO C. 182.

‡ Child labor understood as the worst forms of child labor per se under Article 3(a)–(c) of ILO C. 182.

Ethiopian children voluntarily travel to Amhara, a region bordering a key irregular migration route to Europe, to harvest sesame. This sector is allegedly linked to overland smuggling networks, with children earning enough to fund passage to Europe via North Africa. (14,15) Many others journey through Djibouti en route to Persian Gulf states, where they are often intercepted, repatriated, and later routed to a transition center in Addis Ababa. (14) Somaliland intercepts between 50 and 100 children a week, many under the age of 13, from Amhara and Oromia on their way to the Middle East. (14,27) Children who begin as voluntary migrants may be forced into commercial sexual exploitation, or become victims of forced labor. (22,23) Research on child trafficking victims from SNNPR and Oromia indicates that 85 percent were rescued from or escaped domestic work, while 2/3 suffered exploitation and abuse. While 55 percent of the surveyed children were sent to Addis Ababa by family, another 11 percent were actively exploited by brokers within their communities. (26) The children surveyed were mostly from families that continue to play a role in financing and coercing their children to go abroad or to urban areas to look for work. (22,25,28) Trusted community members, known as manamasas, recruit and groom vulnerable youth on behalf of local and international human trafficking syndicates. (23,29) Traffickers also exploit children from rural areas surrounding Addis Ababa and other regions of the country for forced labor in the weaving industry, street vending, construction, and domestic work. (10,23,25) Traffickers exploit Ethiopian girls in commercial sex and domestic servitude in neighboring countries. (23) In addition, children in Oromia and Amhara reportedly harvest and sell khat, a stimulant to which they may become addicted due to bodily contact with the plants’ excretions during harvest. (12,14) The plant releases two highly addictive central nervous system stimulants – cathinone and cathine – whose acute and long-term neurological effects include khat-induced psychosis. (13,14)

In November 2020, a conflict erupted in northern Tigray between government forces and the Tigray People's Liberation Front (TPLF); the conflict is ongoing. (30) By early December, more than 45,000 Ethiopians fleeing the war had crossed into Sudan, up to one-half of whom were children. (30) Hundreds of children crossed the border alone, leaving them vulnerable to labor exploitation and human trafficking. Moreover, unconfirmed reporting indicates the TPLF has recruited children, most of them teenagers, during the conflict. (6,17,30,31) Reports on the Tigray conflict also indicate sexual and gender-based violence is being used against women and girls. (32,33) At least 200 rape victims under the age of 18 were admitted to local hospitals in January; the majority reported that perpetrators wore Ethiopian army uniforms. (34) A military blockade has also disrupted emergency humanitarian aid distribution networks. (33,34) As a result of the ongoing violence in Tigray, some 2.3 million children in the region lack access to humanitarian assistance, and 1.3 million were unable to attend school. (6,35,36) In addition, 12,000 children who fled to Sudan to escape the conflict in Tigray had no access to education other than makeshift classrooms set up by NGOs operating across the border. (17,37)

Precise figures are in dispute, although the UN and other humanitarian organizations estimate that 1.1 million children were displaced in 2020, 66 percent due to armed conflict. (12,35,36,38) Ethnic unrest was also recorded in Oromia, Amhara, and SNNPR, and research suggests the Oromo Liberation Army-Shane may have recruited child soldiers. (6,39)

In 2020, COVID-19 pandemic-induced school closures affected an estimated 26 million children, 77% of whom are of primary school age. (17,40) With infrastructure for remote learning effectively non-existent, many children remained out of school for many months, and some have still not returned. These children are acutely vulnerable to exploitation and abuse, including child labor. (17,40) Armed conflicts and resulting humanitarian crises have also disrupted education in other parts of the country. Children in rural areas face additional barriers to education, including the distance they must travel to reach school; a lack of sanitation, which especially affects adolescent girls; sexual harassment; the requirement to pay for uniforms and supplies; and a lack of teachers. Somali and Afar regions had the lowest rates of school attendance, with only 38.6 percent of school-age children enrolled in the Somali region and 50.2 percent enrolled in the Afar region. (5,6,41) Armed elements, including the TPLF and the Ethiopian National Defense Force, targeted schools in Tigray with rocket and artillery fire. Non-state armed groups in Tigray and the western part of Oromia also occupied schools for military purposes. (12,27,42,43) These factors increase children's risk of entering the workforce at a young age. (11,12,36,41)

II. LEGAL FRAMEWORK FOR CHILD LABOR

Ethiopia has ratified all key international conventions concerning child labor (Table 3).

Table 3. Ratification of International Conventions on Child Labor

The government has established laws and regulations related to child labor (Table 4). However, gaps exist in Ethiopia's legal framework to adequately protect children from the worst forms of child labor, including free and compulsory education.

‡ Age calculated based on available information (6)

In February 2020, the government enacted the Prevention and Suppression of Trafficking in Persons and Smuggling of Persons Proclamation No. 1178, and the law was published in April. (29,48) The proclamation amends penalties for commercial sexual exploitation of children, child trafficking, and certain forms of child labor exploitation. (6,48) However, under the new law, the recruitment of children by non-state armed forces is not criminalized. (48) Moreover, not all Ethiopian laws related to child labor are in compliance with international standards. The types of hazardous work prohibited for children do not cover traditional weaving, an area of work in which there is evidence that children use dangerous machinery, equipment, and tools, and lift or transport heavy loads. (44,46) Moreover, Article 89.5 of the Labor Proclamation allows children ages 15 to 16 to engage in certain forms of hazardous work following the completion of a government-approved and inspected vocational training course. This contradicts ILO C. 138, which prohibits hazardous work for all children under age 16. (44,50) The Government of Ethiopia notes that, in practice, children begin apprenticeships after the completion of 10th grade, typically at age 16 or 17. (51) The Ministry of Labor and Social Affairs (MOLSA) is currently revising the accompanying Directive on Prohibited Occupations for Young Workers; research has not determined whether this will extend further protections to young workers. (12,17) Finally, Ethiopia does not have a minimum compulsory education age, and its laws do not provide for free public education. (6)

III. ENFORCEMENT OF LAWS ON CHILD LABOR

The government has established institutional mechanisms for the enforcement of laws and regulations on child labor (Table 5). However, gaps exist within the authority of enforcement agencies that may hinder adequate enforcement of their child labor laws, including financial resource allocation.

Table 5. Agencies Responsible for Child Labor Law Enforcement

Organization/Agency	Role
Ministry of Labor and Social Affairs (MOLSA)	Conducts labor inspections of formal worksites through its regional Bureaus of Labor and Social Affairs. (12) Through its National Referral Mechanism (NRM), coordinates victim referral to social services providers. (28)
Ethiopian Federal Police Commission	Enforces criminal laws against the worst forms of child labor, including child trafficking and the commercial sexual exploitation of children. (12) Combats child trafficking and assists vulnerable children through its Special Child Protection Units in Addis Ababa and other major cities. (12,24,52) Refers cases to the Ministry of Women, Children, and Youth (MoWCY), which develops and implements programs to protect vulnerable children and monitor alleged violations of child protection laws, including the worst forms of child labor. (1,53) MoWCY also maintains rehabilitation centers and coordinates foster families for children rescued from the worst forms of child labor. (12)
Office of the Attorney General	Prosecutes criminal violations of child labor laws, including through its Special Investigative Unit for Women and Children. (12)

Labor Law Enforcement

In 2020, labor law enforcement agencies in Ethiopia took actions to combat child labor (Table 6). However, gaps exist within the authority of MOLSA that may hinder adequate labor law enforcement, including financial and human resource allocation.

Table 6. Labor Law Enforcement Efforts Related to Child Labor

Unannounced Inspections Conducted	Yes (12)	Yes (17)
Complaint Mechanism Exists	Yes (12)	Yes (17)
Reciprocal Referral Mechanism Exists Between Labor Authorities and Social Services	Yes (12)	Yes (17)

The government imposed a state of emergency in March and April of 2020 to mitigate community transmission of COVID-19. To protect inspectors and workers, MOLSA only conducted complaint-based inspections during this period. (17) In 2020, labor inspections focused on the construction, mining, and agricultural sectors, including the floricultural industry, in which child labor is known to occur; the government also conducted on-site inspection in local languages. Nevertheless, data on violations are not aggregated at the national level, and the government did not publish the number of child labor violations identified as a result of these inspections. (4,12,17) Labor inspectors refer child labor violations to judicial authorities, who are able to assess penalties. (6,44) During the reporting period, however, the government did not provide information on prosecutions or convictions related to child labor. (17)

Although the total number of labor inspectors dropped from the previous reporting period, the inspectorate hired 74 new labor inspectors in 2020, bringing the total number of inspectors to 621. (17) In 2020, the government began to implement a strategy to automate and digitalize inspection workplace systems. MOLSA collaborated with ILO to develop a digital inspection system, which was completed in 2020. (6) Implementation is planned for 2021. (17) With support from the German Society for International Cooperation, the labor inspectorate provided Training-of-Trainers (ToT) sessions on the 2019 Labor Proclamation and the use of labor inspection monitoring equipment. The ToT trainings were provided three times during the reporting period. (17)

However, the number of labor inspectors remains insufficient for the size of Ethiopia's workforce, which includes 52.8 million workers. According to the ILO's technical advice of a ratio approaching 1 inspector for every 40,000 workers in less developed economies, Ethiopia would employ about 1,321 inspectors. (54,55) In addition, MOLSA and other stakeholders report that a lack of resources and poor coordination among agencies hampered their ability to enforce child labor laws. (4,12)

Criminal Law Enforcement

In 2020, criminal law enforcement agencies in Ethiopia took actions to combat child labor (Table 7). However, gaps exist within the operations of the criminal enforcement agencies that may hinder adequate criminal law enforcement, including collecting and publishing enforcement statistics.

Table 7. Criminal Law Enforcement Efforts Related to Child Labor

Overview of Criminal Law Enforcement	2019	2020
Initial Training for New Criminal Investigators	Yes (12)	Unknown (6,17)
Training on New Laws Related to the Worst Forms of Child Labor	Unknown (12)	Unknown (6,17)
Refresher Courses Provided	Yes (12)	Unknown (6,17)
Number of Investigations	Unknown (12)	Unknown (6,17)
Number of Violations Found	Unknown (12)	Unknown (6,17)
Number of Prosecutions Initiated	Unknown (12)	Unknown (6,17)
Number of Convictions	Unknown (12)	Unknown (6,17)
Imposed Penalties for Violations Related to the Worst Forms of Child Labor	Unknown (12)	Unknown (6,17)
Reciprocal Referral Mechanism Exists Between Criminal Authorities and Social Services	Yes (12)	Yes (6)

The 2020 Prevention and Suppression of Trafficking in Persons and Smuggling of Persons Proclamation stipulates aggravated penalties for criminal convictions involving children for a number of offenses, including debt bondage, slavery, human trafficking, and certain forms of labor and sexual exploitation. (48) Under the new legislation, crimes against a child or a mentally ill or physically disabled person carry sentences of 10–20 years and a fine of $742–$2,472 (30,000–100,000 birr). (26,48) Moreover, for the first time in 20 years, the Attorney General’s Office disaggregated prosecution datasets for transnational and internal trafficking-in-persons violations. However, the government did not otherwise provide criminal law enforcement data for inclusion in this report. (4,12,23) Enforcement efforts continued to focus on transnational human trafficking for the purpose of forced labor, to the detriment of internal human trafficking, including trafficking children for the purposes of commercial sexual exploitation. (23)

Ethiopian immigration and border patrol authorities refer human trafficking victims to NGO-run shelters, in which victims are given first aid and assistance to return home. Although the shelters do not disaggregate data for children, NGOs reported that many of those receiving services were younger than age 18, some of whom may have been returning from the Persian Gulf States. (28)

IV. COORDINATION OF GOVERNMENT EFFORTS ON CHILD LABOR

The government has established mechanisms to coordinate its efforts to address child labor (Table 8). However, gaps exist that hinder the effective coordination of efforts to address child labor, including coordination between agencies.

Table 8. Key Mechanisms to Coordinate Government Efforts on Child Labor

Coordinating Body	Role & Description
National Steering Committees	Include the National Steering Committee on the Worst Forms of Child Labor, which coordinates activities on the worst forms of child labor. Members include MOLSA, the MoWCY, and the Ministry of Education. (4,22) The National Steering Committee Against Sexual Abuse and Exploitation of Children also develops action plans and coordinates activities to combat the commercial sexual exploitation of children. (22,53) The committee was not active during the reporting period. (56)
MOLSA National Forum to Eliminate the Worst Forms of Child Labor	Combats the worst forms of child labor at the national level. The forum was not active during the reporting period. (4,6,56)

Coordinating Body	Role & Description
National Anti-Human Trafficking and Smuggling Mechanisms	The government overhauled its national counter-trafficking framework during the reporting period. (26) Under Proclamation 1178/2020, the new structure organizes over 32 government and non-government entities into the National Council and the National Partnership Coalition (NPC). The National Council is responsible for the creation of policies and strategies for the prevention of smuggling and trafficking in persons and issuing directives. (26) The Deputy Prime Minister chairs the Council, which includes representatives from the Federal Attorney General's Office, the Ministry of Foreign Affairs, the Ministry of Peace, MOLSA, the Refugees and Returnees Affairs Agency, MoWCY, the Commission of Job Creation, the Ministry of Health, the Federal Police Commission, the National Bank, the Central Statistics Agency, the National Intelligence and Security Services, Regional Governments, the Civil Societies Agency, and religious institutions. (26) In 2020, the Council passed the directive for NRM, which establishes the legislation underpinning the NRM's implementation. (26) The NPC, meanwhile, is accountable to the National Council. Its mandate includes researching policies and strategies, developing directives for the national referral system, and preparing program and action plans for implementation. (26) The NPC also oversees ten working groups that specialize in multiple anti-trafficking in persons sectors, including a Women and Children Support and Protection Working Group. (26) The government's efforts are supplemented by IOM-funded community awareness centers and by the German Society for International Cooperation's Better Migration Management Project, which is focused on capacity building. (29)
National and Regional Task Forces on Orphans and Vulnerable Children	Promote children's rights; chaired by members of the federal government and state ministers and led by the MoWCY in all nine regional capitals and two city administrations. (53,57) Research was unable to determine whether task forces were active during the reporting period.

Limited committee budgets, overlapping mandates, and poor coordination between the committees and agencies hindered coordination efforts to address child labor at a national and regional level. (22,28)

V. GOVERNMENT POLICIES ON CHILD LABOR

The government has established policies related to child labor (Table 9). However, policy gaps exist that hinder efforts to address child labor, including implementation.

Table 9. Key Policies Related to Child Labor

Policy	Description
National Education and Children's Policies	Promote children's rights and combat child trafficking, commercial sexual exploitation, and the worst forms of child labor. The National Children's Policy facilitates access to quality primary and secondary education for out-of-school youth, including in rural areas, and provides measures against exploitation and trafficking in persons. (58) National policies to improve access to quality education include the Education Sector Development Program V (2015–2020), which aimed to improve attendance rates and learning outcomes through enhanced equity, access, quality, and efficiency; the Ethiopian Education Development Roadmap (2018–2030), which aims to make education free and compulsory; the Education and Training Policy, which prioritizes government support for education through grade 10; the Pastoralist Area Education Strategy, which provides for alternative education in pastoralist communities; and the National Technical & Vocational Education & Training Strategy, which aims to improve access to vocational education for girls and out-of-school children. (41,59–62) The government has not included child labor elimination and prevention strategies in the Education Sector Development Program, the National Technical & Vocational Education & Training Strategy, or the National Youth Policy. (60–62)
National Action Plan to Eliminate the Worst Forms of Child Labor (2016–2020)	Includes guidelines on child labor identification, withdrawal, reintegration, and educational policies. Overseen by the National Steering Committee on the Worst Forms of Child Labor. (4) In 2020, labor inspectors received training on a digital workplace inspection system, with implementation planned for 2021. (17)
The United Nations Development Assistance Framework (2016–2020)	Promoted improved access to education and livelihood services for vulnerable children. Sought to protect children from abuse, violence, and exploitation, and to rehabilitate victims of violence and exploitation. (64) Research was unable to determine whether activities were undertaken to implement this policy during the reporting period.
National Human Rights Action Plan II (2016–2020)	Aimed to promote human rights in line with Ethiopia's second Growth and Transformation Plan. Objectives included the creation of detailed manuals on crime investigation, combating both domestic and international trafficking in persons, and improving the ability of civil society organizations to secure local funding towards these objectives. (65,66) The plan also covered human rights violations in the private sector and encouraged private sector companies to undertake human rights due diligence to prevent child labor, forced labor, and other human rights violations. (65,66) Research was unable to determine whether activities were undertaken to implement this policy during the reporting period.

‡ The government had other policies that may have addressed child labor issues or had an impact on child labor. (53,67–72)

MODERATE ADVANCEMENT

In 2019, Ethiopia became a Pathfinder country under Alliance 8.7. This involves accelerating progress toward achieving commitments under Sustainable Development Goal (SDG) Target 8.7, which calls for the eradication of child labor by 2025, and the elimination of forced labor, modern slavery, and human trafficking by 2030. (73) To this end, in 2020, Ethiopia's Minister of Labor and Social Affairs attended a virtual conference with SDG Alliance 8.7 Pathfinder countries, during which she shared Ethiopia's pandemic tripartite workplace response protocol. (17) The minister also spoke at the High-Level Political Forum on Sustainable Development, which took place in July 2020 under the auspices of the Economic and Security Council. The aim of the meeting was to develop effective measures to eradicate forced labor; end modern slavery and human trafficking; secure the prohibition and elimination of the worst forms of child labor, including recruitment and use of child soldiers, and, by 2025, end child labor in all its forms. (6)

VI. SOCIAL PROGRAMS TO ADDRESS CHILD LABOR

In 2020, the government funded and participated in programs that include the goal of eliminating child labor (Table 10). However, gaps exist in these social programs, including adequacy of programs to address the full scope of the problem.

Program	Description
Government of Ethiopia Programs*†	In 2020, the Ministry of Education announced a school feeding project benefiting 163,021 pre-primary and primary school students in 499 schools in 5 regional states. The project targets Oromia, Amhara, Sidama, Somali, and Afar, and its goal is to improve attendance and learning. (17) The Global Partnership for Education, a USAID partner, provided $21.4 million for the project, which will be implemented by Save the Children. (17) The government also allocated $48,223,349 (1.9 billion birr) to the same regions to feed 1.4 million students. (17) In 2020, the Addis Ababa City Administration also provided meals, books, and writing equipment to more than 300,000 students. (6) In an effort to address the challenge of lack of food, some schools instituted school feeding programs. Separately, the government established an initiative to provide temporary shelter for destitute urban children. At the direction of Ethiopian Prime Minister Abiy Ahmed, the government set aside two hectares of land in Akaki Kality Sub City; the Tewodros Ashenafi Foundation then provided $634,357 (25 million birr) for the construction of a transitional shelter with a holding capacity of 2,000 children. (6) The Foundation handed over management of the facility to the Addis Ababa Bureau of Labor and Social Affairs in May 2020. (17) The shelter provides basic services, including psychosocial support, life skills, and education and training, to enable children's reintegration into society. The initiative is part of Ethiopia's national reform agenda. (6,17)
World Vision Programs	Includes Effective Approaches in Ending the Worst Forms of Child Labor (EAPEC) (2019–2022), an international program designed to test and measure innovative approaches to reduce the worst forms of child labor; targets approximately 500,000 at-risk youth in the Democratic Republic of Congo, Central African Republic, and Ethiopia, including victims of child commercial sexual exploitation and child soldiering, and children engaged in hazardous work. The program's efforts are coordinated by World Vision, with funding by a consortium of NGOs and multilaterals, including UN Global Compact, the Global Compact UK, War Child UK, Thompson Reuters, and the private sector. (14,74,75) In 2020, World Vision expanded training programs designed to build detection capacity to all nine regional governments. The NGO trained regional labor inspector team leads to operate monitoring equipment. (17) In addition, World Vision is working directly with Ethiopia's nine regional governments to incorporate child labor issues into their action plans. (14)
World Bank-Funded Projects†	Includes ET Productive Safety Nets Project 4 (PSNP 4) (2014–2020)†, a $2.77 billion project that aimed to improve access to social safety nets, including cash and in-kind transfers to orphans and vulnerable children. As of December 2020, 8,300,000 individuals had benefited from the program. (76,77-81) The Ethiopia General Education Quality Improvement Program for Equity (GEQIP-E) (2017–2022)† is a $300 million program that works with the Ministry of Education to improve education quality and access. (82-77) GEQIP-E worked with the Ministry of Education to create budget lines for school grants and textbooks. (78,79) The World Bank approved the Urban Productive Safety Net and Jobs Project (2020–2025)* on September 30, 2020. The project will target disadvantaged youth and the urban poor through labor market inclusion programs, including 6 month apprenticeship programs. (17,84)
UNICEF-Funded Programs	Includes UNICEF-funded programs to improve social safety nets and improve access to education include Child-to-Child and Accelerated School Readiness programs, which extend educational opportunities to internally displaced children, and the Integrated Safety Nets Program (2017–2023). (12,85) UNICEF, the Swedish International Development Agency, and MOLSA are also jointly funding the Urban Productive Safety Net Program, which aims to improve nutritional and educational outcomes in Amhara and Addis Ababa through cash transfers and linking participants to basic social services. (12,86) In 2020, UNICEF educational services reached 1 in 5 vulnerable children in Ethiopia, providing them with early learning, informal, and non-formal educational services. (7,35)

Program	Description
USDOL-Funded Project*	Includes She Thrives: Reducing Child Labor in Ethiopia's Agricultural Sector using a Gender-Focused Approach (2020-2025) , a $5 million USDOL-funded, 4 year project implemented by Cooperative for Assistance and Relief Everywhere, Inc. to use a gender mainstreaming approach to address child labor in coffee production in Oromia and the Southern Nations, Nationalities, and Peoples' Region. (87) Additional information is available on the USDOL website .

* Program was launched during the reporting period.

† Program is co-funded by the Government of Ethiopia. (17,18)

‡ The government had other social programs that may have included the goal of eliminating or preventing child labor. (88,89)

Although the government participates in and implements several programs to combat child labor, these programs do not sufficiently target sectors with high incidences of child labor, such as agriculture and domestic work. (4) There is also a paucity of rehabilitation and reintegration centers throughout the country for victims of child trafficking or commercial sexual exploitation. (3,22) Moreover, both government and NGO-run shelters were unable to accept referrals of vulnerable children during the first months of the pandemic because they had to create separate areas for newcomers to quarantine. (6)

VII. SUGGESTED GOVERNMENT ACTIONS TO ELIMINATE CHILD LABOR

Based on the reporting above, suggested actions are identified that would advance the elimination of child labor in Ethiopia (Table 11).

Table 11. Suggested Government Actions to Eliminate Child Labor

Area	Suggested Action	Year(s) Suggested
Legal Framework	Raise the minimum age at which children may enter hazardous work following vocational training from age 15 to age 16, in line with ILO C. 138.	2009 – 2020
	Ensure that the types of hazardous work prohibited for children are comprehensive, including hazardous tasks in traditional weaving.	2016 – 2020
	Criminalize the recruitment of children by non-state armed groups.	2020
	Establish by law free basic education.	2012 – 2020
	Establish by law a compulsory education age, and ensure that the age is consistent with the minimum age of employment.	2012 – 2020
Enforcement	Strengthen the labor inspectorate by permitting labor inspectors to assess penalties.	2013 – 2020
	Increase the number of labor inspectors to meet the ILO's technical advice.	2015 – 2020
	Ensure that labor inspectors have sufficient resources to conduct inspections in all sectors and are able to coordinate adequately with other agencies.	2009 – 2020
	Ensure that both domestic and transnational child trafficking cases are investigated and violations punished.	2013 – 2020
	Gather, disaggregate, and publish information on the number of child labor violations found and penalties applied and collected, the number of investigations conducted, prosecutions initiated, and convictions obtained.	2009 – 2020
Coordination	Clarify individual mandates for coordinating mechanisms charged with combating child labor, and enhance inter-committee communication, coordination, and collaboration.	2015 – 2020
	Ensure all coordinating bodies are funded and able to carry out their intended mandates.	2020
Government Policies	Integrate child labor elimination and prevention strategies in the Education Sector Development Program, the National Technical & Vocational Education & Training Strategy, and the National Youth Policy.	2013 – 2020
	Ensure existing policies and action plans to address the worst forms of child labor are implemented as intended.	2018 – 2020
	Publish activities undertaken to implement key policies related to child labor to address child labor during the reporting period.	2020
Social Programs	Increase access to education for all children by decreasing the distance to schools in rural areas, hiring additional teachers, constructing sanitation facilities, and eliminating school-related costs.	2010 – 2020
	Develop or expand social protection programs to withdraw children from all sectors, including agriculture and domestic work.	2009 – 2020
	Ensure that social services, such as rehabilitation and reintegration centers, are available throughout the country.	2009 – 2020

Falkland Islands (Islas Malvinas)

MINIMAL ADVANCEMENT

Although research found no evidence that child labor exists in the Falkland Islands (Islas Malvinas), in 2020 the government made minimal advancement in efforts to prevent the worst forms of child labor. During the reporting period, the Safeguarding Children's Board met quarterly and published an annual report on activities through March 2020. The minimum ages for work and for hazardous work do not meet international standards, and the law does not prohibit adults from using, procuring, and offering a child for the production and trafficking of drugs.

I. PREVALENCE AND SECTORAL DISTRIBUTION OF CHILD LABOR

Research found no evidence that child labor exists in the Falkland Islands (Islas Malvinas). (1,2) Data on key indicators on children's work and education in the Falkland Islands (Islas Malvinas) are not available from the sources used in this report.

II. LEGAL FRAMEWORK FOR CHILD LABOR

British Overseas Territories (BOTs) recognize the jurisdiction and sovereignty of the United Kingdom (UK), but are not constitutionally part of the UK. They are self-governing, except in the areas of foreign affairs and defense. (2) The Falkland Islands (Islas Malvinas) generally incorporate English Law Ordinances to the extent permitted by local circumstances and subject to modification by local laws. Under Article 35(4) of the ILO Constitution, when the UK ratifies a Convention, the Territory must consider if it will accept the Convention. (2) If the Convention is accepted, it is considered applicable to that territory. The following Conventions have been extended to and accepted by the Falkland Islands (Islas Malvinas) (Table 1). (2)

Table 1. Ratification of International Conventions on Child Labor

Convention	Ratification
 ILO C. 138, Minimum Age
ILO C. 182, Worst Forms of Child Labor	✓
 UN CRC	✓
UN CRC Optional Protocol on Armed Conflict
UN CRC Optional Protocol on the Sale of Children, Child Prostitution and Child Pornography
 Palermo Protocol on Trafficking in Persons

The Government of the Falkland Islands (Islas Malvinas) has established laws and regulations related to child labor (Table 2). However, gaps exist in the Falkland Islands' (Islas Malvinas') legal framework to adequately protect children from the worst forms of child labor, including the minimum age for work and the prohibition of using children in illicit activities.

Table 2. Laws and Regulations on Child Labor

Standard	Meets International Standards	Age	Legislation
Minimum Age for Work	No	14	Section 3 of the Employment of Children Ordinance (3)
Minimum Age for Hazardous Work	No	16	Section 3 of the Employment of Children Ordinance; Sections 3 and 4A of the Employment of Women, Young Persons, and Children Act (3,4)
Identification of Hazardous Occupations or Activities Prohibited for Children	No		Section 3 of the Employment of Children Ordinance; Section 3 of the Employment of Women, Young Persons, and Children Act (3,4)
Prohibition of Forced Labor	Yes		Section 117 of the Crimes Ordinance of 2014; Chapter 1, Section 4 of the Constitution Order (5,6)

Falkland Islands (Islas Malvinas)

MINIMAL ADVANCEMENT

Standard	Meets International Standards	Age	Legislation
Prohibition of Child Trafficking	Yes		Section 87 of the Crimes Ordinance of 2014; Part I, Sections 57–60 of the Sexual Offences Act (5,7)
Prohibition of Commercial Sexual Exploitation of Children	Yes		Sections 259–263 of the Crimes Ordinance of 2014; Part I of the Sexual Offences Act (5,7)
Prohibition of Using Children in Illicit Activities	No
Minimum Age for Voluntary State Military Recruitment	Yes	17
Prohibition of Compulsory Recruitment of Children by (State) Military	N/A*
Prohibition of Military Recruitment by Non-state Armed Groups	No
Compulsory Education Age	Yes	16	Education Amendment Ordinance; Chapter I, Section 12 of the Constitution Order (6,8)
Free Public Education	Yes		Education Amendment Ordinance; Chapter I, Section 12 of the Constitution Order (6,8)

* No conscription (9)

The minimum age of 14 for work and the minimum age of 16 for hazardous work are not in compliance with international standards. In addition, as the minimum age for work is lower than the compulsory education age, children may be encouraged to leave school before the completion of compulsory education. (4,10) The Government of the Falkland Islands (Islas Malvinas) has not determined by national law or regulation the types of hazardous work prohibited for children, other than industrial undertakings. (3,4) The law also does not prohibit adults from using, procuring, or offering a child in the production and trafficking of drugs.

III. ENFORCEMENT OF LAWS ON CHILD LABOR

As there is no evidence of a problem, there appears to be no need for enforcement actions to address child labor, including its worst forms. However, the Government of the Falkland Islands (Islas Malvinas) has established an institutional mechanism for the enforcement of laws and regulations on child labor (Table 3).

Table 3. Agencies Responsible for Child Labor Law Enforcement

Organization/Agency	Role
Royal Falkland Islands Police	Enforces laws including those protecting children against abuses. Participates in the Safeguarding Children Board. (11,12)

IV. COORDINATION OF GOVERNMENT EFFORTS ON CHILD LABOR

As there is no evidence of a problem, there appears to be no need for mechanisms to coordinate efforts to address child labor. However, the Government of the Falkland Islands (Islas Malvinas) has established a mechanism to coordinate efforts to address child labor (Table 4).

Table 4. Key Mechanisms to Coordinate Government Efforts on Child Labor

Coordinating Body	Role & Description
Falkland Islands Safeguarding Children's Board	Ensures children's welfare, including protection from sexual abuse. Chaired by the Director of Health and Social Services, members include the Education Department, the Attorney General's Chambers, Social Services, Royal Falkland Islands Police, healthcare professionals, members of the Legislative Assembly, and a representative from the military community. (12) Meets quarterly and published an annual report in October 2020. (13)

V. GOVERNMENT POLICIES ON CHILD LABOR

As there is no evidence of a problem, there appears to be no need for policies to address child labor.

VI. SOCIAL PROGRAMS TO ADDRESS CHILD LABOR

As there is no evidence of a problem, there appears to be no need for programs to address child labor.

VII. SUGGESTED GOVERNMENT ACTIONS TO ELIMINATE CHILD LABOR

Based on the reporting above, suggested actions are identified that would advance the continued prevention of child labor in the Falkland Islands (Islas Malvinas) (Table 5).

Table 5. Suggested Government Actions to Eliminate Child Labor

Area	Suggested Action	Year(s) Suggested
Legal Framework	Ratify international conventions on child labor.	2020
	Raise the minimum age for work to at least 15 and up to the age to which education is compulsory in all sectors.	2017 – 2020
	Ensure that the minimum age for hazardous work is age 18 and that national law determines prohibited work activities for children.	2015 – 2020
	Ensure that the law prohibits the use of children in illicit activities, including in the production and trafficking of drugs.	2013 – 2020
	Ensure that the law criminally prohibits the recruitment of children under age 18 by non-state armed groups.	2012 – 2020
Social Programs	Collect and publish data on the extent and nature of child labor to inform policies and programs.	2017 – 2020

In 2020, Fiji made moderate advancement in efforts to eliminate the worst forms of child labor. The government approved its first National Action Plan and National Strategy for Combating Human Trafficking, which contains provisions to address child labor, including its worst forms, and child trafficking in Fiji. Also during the reporting period, the Inter-Agency National Human Trafficking Committee met for the first time since 2011. However, children in Fiji are subjected to the worst forms of child labor, including in commercial sexual exploitation, sometimes as a result of human trafficking. Children also perform dangerous tasks in agriculture. Fiji's light work provisions are not specific enough to prevent children from being involved in child labor. In addition, social programs undertaken by the government are insufficient to support children vulnerable to commercial sexual exploitation, human trafficking, and involuntary domestic work.

I. PREVALENCE AND SECTORAL DISTRIBUTION OF CHILD LABOR

Children in Fiji are subjected to the worst forms of child labor, including in commercial sexual exploitation, sometimes as a result of human trafficking. Children also perform dangerous tasks in agriculture. (1-4) Table 1 provides key indicators on children's work and education in Fiji. Data on some of these indicators are not available from the sources used in this report.

Table 1. Statistics on Children's Work and Education

Children	Age	Percent
Working (% and population)	5 to 14	Unavailable
Attending School (%)	5 to 14	Unavailable
Combining Work and School (%)	7 to 14	Unavailable
Primary Completion Rate (%)		108.9

Source for primary completion rate: Data from 2019, published by UNESCO Institute for Statistics, 2021. (5)

Data were unavailable from International Labor Organization's analysis, 2021. (6)

Based on a review of available information, Table 2 provides an overview of children's work by sector and activity.

Table 2. Overview of Children's Work by Sector and Activity

Sector/Industry	Activity
Agriculture	Cutting,† loading,† weeding, and spraying chemicals† on sugarcane (1,7)
	Planting, picking, and using chemicals† on tobacco (1)
	Collecting and splitting coconuts; harvesting rice; planting, harvesting, weeding, and spraying fertilizers on roots (including dalo and yaqona ); and planting and harvesting other kinds of fruits and vegetables† (1)
	Pig farming and goat and cattle herding (1)
	Fishing† and deep-sea diving† (1,7)
Services	Street work, including pushing wheelbarrows for shoppers in markets, vending, washing cars, shining shoes, begging, and selling fruit and other foods (1,7-10)
	Domestic work (1,7)
	Working in garages, in retail shops, or roadside stalls (7)
	Collecting bottles† and scrap metal† (1,7)
Categorical Worst Forms of Child Labor‡	Commercial sexual exploitation, sometimes as a result of human trafficking (1,4,7,10-16)
	Use in the production of pornography (7,14,15)
	Forced labor in agriculture, begging, and domestic work, each sometimes as a result of human trafficking (4)
	Use in illicit activities, including drug trafficking (17,18)

† Determined by national law or regulation as hazardous and, as such, relevant to Article 3(d) of ILO C. 182.

‡ Child labor understood as the worst forms of child labor per se under Article 3(a)–(c) of ILO C. 182.

MODERATE ADVANCEMENT

Children are subjected to commercial sexual exploitation in Fiji, particularly by family members, taxi drivers, foreign tourists, businesspersons, and crew on foreign fishing vessels. (1,4,7,10-12,15,16,19) The NGO Pacific Dialogue and the ILO stated that they have received reports of children subjected to organized prostitution, including being advertised online. (20) In addition, research shows that children in Fiji are subjected to online commercial sexual exploitation, including child pornography. (14-16) Parents sometimes send their children to live with families in cities or near schools to facilitate their continuing education and to perform light household work. Research found that some of these children are vulnerable to involuntary domestic work or are forced to engage in sexual activity in exchange for food, clothing, or shelter. (4,10,21) Street children in Fiji are vulnerable to multiple forms of labor and sexual exploitation, such as commercial sexual exploitation and human trafficking. (7,10,16,22) In addition, there were some media reports of children involved in selling drugs in Fiji. (17,18)

During the reporting period, Tropical Cyclone Yasa hit Vanua Levu, one of Fiji's main islands, causing destruction of homes, schools, and buildings, and leaving thousands of children vulnerable. (7) The Ministry of Education, Heritage and Arts, with support from UNICEF, is in the process of identifying damages to school buildings as part of the government's disaster response. (23) In addition to natural disasters, the COVID-19 pandemic profoundly impacted students' access to education in Fiji. Nationwide school closures affected low-income families, single parent families, and children with special education needs. (7) Overall, natural disasters and the pandemic increased children's vulnerabilities to the worst forms of child labor and human trafficking in Fiji. (10)

II. LEGAL FRAMEWORK FOR CHILD LABOR

Fiji has ratified most key international conventions concerning child labor (Table 3).

Table 3. Ratification of International Conventions on Child Labor

Convention	Ratification
 ILO C. 138, Minimum Age	✓
ILO C. 182, Worst Forms of Child Labor	✓
 UN CRC	✓
UN CRC Optional Protocol on Armed Conflict
UN CRC Optional Protocol on the Sale of Children, Child Prostitution and Child Pornography
 Palermo Protocol on Trafficking in Persons	✓

During the reporting period, the Fijian Parliament approved reports on the review of the UN CRC Optional Protocol on Armed Conflict and the UN CRC Optional Protocol on the Sale of Children, Child Prostitution and Child Pornography. Recommendations for ratification will be implemented through a legislative amendment. (7,24,25)

The government has established laws and regulations related to child labor (Table 4). However, gaps exist in Fiji's legal framework to adequately protect children from the worst forms of child labor, including identification of light work activities permissible for children.

Table 4. Laws and Regulations on Child Labor

Standard	Meets International Standards	Age	Legislation
Minimum Age for Work	Yes	15	Article 92 of the Employment Relations Promulgation (26)
Minimum Age for Hazardous Work	Yes	18	Article 40 of the Employment Relations (Administration) Regulations; Hazardous Occupations Prohibited to Children Under 18 Years of Age Order (27,28)

Standard	Meets International Standards	Age	Legislation
Identification of Hazardous Occupations or Activities Prohibited for Children	Yes		Hazardous Occupations Prohibited to Children Under 18 Years of Age Order (28)
Prohibition of Forced Labor	Yes		Articles 6 and 91 of the Employment Relations Promulgation; Articles 20–21 of the Immigration Act; Articles 102–103 and 111–121 of the Crimes Decree (26,29,30)
Prohibition of Child Trafficking	Yes		Article 91 of the Employment Relations Promulgation; Article 20 of the Immigration Act; Articles 111–121 of the Crimes Decree (26,29,30)
Prohibition of Commercial Sexual Exploitation of Children	Yes		Article 91 of the Employment Relations Promulgation; Articles 225–227 of the Crimes Decree; Article 62A of the Juveniles (Amendment) Act (26,30,31)
Prohibition of Using Children in Illicit Activities	Yes		Article 91 of the Employment Relations Promulgation; Article 58 of the Juveniles Act (26,32)
Minimum Age for Voluntary State Military Recruitment	Yes	18	Article 7 of the Royal Fiji Military Forces Act (33)
Prohibition of Compulsory Recruitment of Children by (State) Military	Yes*		Article 7 of the Royal Fiji Military Forces Act (33)
Prohibition of Military Recruitment by Non-state Armed Groups	No
Compulsory Education Age	Yes	15	Compulsory Education Order; Compulsory Education Regulations (34)
Free Public Education	Yes		Article 31 of the Constitution of Fiji (35)

* No conscription (33)

The Employment Relations Promulgation specifies the conditions under which children ages 13 to 15 may engage in light work, but does not include a list of activities that are permissible. (26,36)

III. ENFORCEMENT OF LAWS ON CHILD LABOR

The government has established institutional mechanisms for the enforcement of laws and regulations on child labor (Table 5). However, gaps exist within the operations of enforcement agencies that may hinder adequate enforcement of their child labor laws.

Table 5. Agencies Responsible for Child Labor Law Enforcement

Organization/Agency	Role
Ministry of Employment, Productivity, and Industrial Relations (MEPIR)	Lead agency responsible for enforcing laws related to child labor. Investigates places of employment and child labor law violations. (7) Maintains a 24 hour phone line to accept reports of child labor and refers children to social services when appropriate. (2,7) With the establishment of a Labor Inspection System on Child Labor, over 200 child labor cases have been investigated since 2011. (37,38)
Employment Relations Tribunal	Adjudicates alleged violations of child labor provisions in the Employment Relations Promulgation. (7)
Fiji Police Force	Investigates criminal violations regarding child labor, child trafficking, and commercial sexual exploitation. Enforces laws on child trafficking, commercial sexual exploitation, and illicit activities. (7) Maintains a Human Trafficking Unit and provides training to other police units focused on combating human trafficking. (19) Collaborates with the Australian Federal Police to combat potential child sex tourism by Australian nationals, who comprise the largest tourist group visiting Fiji. (39)
Department of Immigration	Responsible for immigration services, refugee services, and efforts to combat human trafficking. Administers and enforces Immigration, Passport, and Citizenship Acts. (7) Coordinates with the Fiji Police Force to investigate cases involving underage victims of commercial sexual exploitation and human trafficking, which are then tried in the criminal court system. (7)
Office of the Director of Public Prosecutions	Enforces laws on child trafficking. (40)

MODERATE ADVANCEMENT

Labor Law Enforcement

In 2020, labor law enforcement agencies in Fiji took actions to combat child labor (Table 6). However, gaps exist within the operations of the Ministry of Employment, Productivity, and Industrial Relations (MEPIR) that may hinder adequate labor law enforcement, including that inspectors must first seek the business owners' permission before conducting inspections in the informal sector.

Table 6. Labor Law Enforcement Efforts Related to Child Labor

Overview of Labor Law Enforcement	2019	2020
Labor Inspectorate Funding	$3.9 million (20)	Unknown (7)
Number of Labor Inspectors	73 (20)	45 (7)
Inspectorate Authorized to Assess Penalties	Yes (20)	Yes (26)
Initial Training for New Labor Inspectors	Yes (20)	No (7)
Training on New Laws Related to Child Labor	N/A (20)	N/A
Refresher Courses Provided	Yes (20)	Yes (7)
Number of Labor Inspections Conducted	3,562 (20)	843 (7)
Number Conducted at Worksite	3,562 (20)	843 (7)
Number of Child Labor Violations Found	41 (20)	0 (7)
Number of Child Labor Violations for Which Penalties Were Imposed	0 (20)	0 (7)
Number of Child Labor Penalties Imposed that Were Collected	N/A (20)	0 (7)
Routine Inspections Conducted	Yes (20)	Yes (7)
Routine Inspections Targeted	Yes (20)	No (7)
Unannounced Inspections Permitted	Yes (20)	Yes (26)
Unannounced Inspections Conducted	Yes (20)	Yes (10)
Complaint Mechanism Exists	Yes (20)	Yes (7)
Reciprocal Referral Mechanism Exists Between Labor Authorities and Social Services	Yes (20)	Yes (7)

The Child Labor Unit within MEPIR was disbanded, and now all labor inspectors are expected to look for child labor violations during inspections. (20) During the reporting period, the government employed 45 labor inspectors, down from 73 in 2019. However, government officials confirmed that the number of inspectors was sufficient to enforce labor laws in Fiji. (7) Inspections are conducted in the workers' language, including English, indigenous Fijian (iTaukei), and Hindi. (2) The Department of Labor conducted 843 inspections during the reporting period and confirmed that no major child labor violations were detected. However, it was reported that the department resolved minor complaints received about children selling food on the street through briefings with parents about child labor laws, rather than imposing penalties. (7)

Although information on the budget allocation to the Department of Labor for the 2020/2021 fiscal year is available, there is no breakdown information available for the allocation to the labor inspectorate. (7)

During the reporting period, MEPIR announced that 231 children engaged in child labor had been withdrawn and returned to school or admitted to technical training programs. (41)

Criminal Law Enforcement

In 2020, criminal law enforcement agencies in Fiji took actions to combat child labor (Table 7). However, gaps exist within the operations of the criminal enforcement agencies that may hinder adequate criminal law enforcement, including training for criminal investigators.

Table 7. Criminal Law Enforcement Efforts Related to Child Labor

Overview of Criminal Law Enforcement	2019	2020
Initial Training for New Criminal Investigators	Yes (20)	Unknown (7)
Training on New Laws Related to the Worst Forms of Child Labor	N/A (20)	N/A
Refresher Courses Provided	Yes (20)	Unknown (7)

Table 7. Criminal Law Enforcement Efforts Related to Child Labor (Cont.)

Overview of Criminal Law Enforcement	2019	2020
Number of Investigations	2 (20)	Unknown (7)
Number of Violations Found	2 (20)	Unknown (7)
Number of Prosecutions Initiated	1 (20)	0 (7)
Number of Convictions	1 (20)	0 (7)
Imposed Penalties for Violations Related to the Worst Forms of Child Labor	Yes (20)	No (7)
Reciprocal Referral Mechanism Exists Between Criminal Authorities and Social Services	Yes (20)	Yes (7)

In Fiji, criminal authority agencies, including the Fiji Police Force, can refer children found in cases of the worst forms of child labor on a case-by-case basis to the Department of Social Welfare. (7)

IV. COORDINATION OF GOVERNMENT EFFORTS ON CHILD LABOR

The government has established mechanisms to coordinate its efforts to address child labor (Table 8).

Table 8. Key Mechanisms to Coordinate Government Efforts on Child Labor

Coordinating Body	Role & Description
Inter-Agency Network	Focuses on child labor issues at the district and provincial level. Monitors and reports cases of non-compliance. (42) Chaired by the Ministry of Employment, Productivity and Industrial Relations. (43) Comprises inter-agency committees in nine towns in Fiji. (42) This coordinating body was active during the reporting period. (7)
National Coordinating Committee on Children	Coordinates child labor and child safety enforcement efforts. Comprising the Fiji Police Force, the Public Prosecutor's Office, the Solicitor General's Office, the Department of Social Welfare, MEPIR, the Ministry of Health, the Ministry of Education, and NGOs that work on child labor issues. (7) This coordinating body was active during the reporting period. (7)
Inter-Agency Committee on Child Abuse	Investigates child labor cases, refers children to school, and monitors cases when a referral is made to the Department of Social Welfare. (2,3,44) Shares information on child labor cases, including the worst forms of child labor. (7) This coordinating body was active during the reporting period. (7)
Inter-Agency Taskforce on Beggars	Addresses issues concerning children who beg and other exploited children. Ministry of Social Welfare, Women, and Poverty Alleviation and police regularly conduct patrols to identify and assist children. (43) This coordinating body was active during the reporting period. (7)
Inter-Agency Working Group on Human Trafficking	Oversees the human trafficking case management system by providing guidance on referral procedures when a potential human trafficking case, including child trafficking, is identified. (46,47) Led by the Ministry of Defense, National Security, and Policing and the Office of the Prime Minister, comprising technical working groups with senior government officials and assisted by international partners and civil society organizations. (48)

V. GOVERNMENT POLICIES ON CHILD LABOR

The government has established policies related to child labor (Table 9). However, policy gaps exist that hinder efforts to address child labor, including implementation.

Table 9. Key Policies Related to Child Labor

Policy	Description
United Nations Pacific Strategy (2018–2022)	A multinational strategic framework, comprising 14 South Pacific nations, created to address, develop, and implement strategic economic development priorities in the South Pacific, including eliminating child labor and the worst forms of child labor. (49) Research was unable to determine whether activities were undertaken to implement the United Nations Pacific Strategy (2018–2022) during the reporting period.
National Action Plan and National Strategy for Combatting Human Trafficking†	Establishes oversight of anti-trafficking in persons operations and enhances the capabilities of law enforcement, including police, immigration, border security, and other regulatory bodies, to address the worst forms of child labor, including commercial sexual exploitation and the use of children in the production of pornography, as a result of human trafficking. (7,46,50,51)
Free Education Grant	Provides 12 years of tuition-free education for children with Fijian citizenship in 904 eligible primary and secondary schools. Also provides bus passes to students, and boats and outboard motors for island communities with staff and students commuting to school. (20) During the reporting period, the Ministry of Education (MOE) funded $93,000 for the provision of boats and outboard motor engines to support students' transportation accessibility to schools, particularly for students in Fiji's maritime islands and rural areas. (7)

† Policy was approved during the reporting period.

MODERATE ADVANCEMENT

Fiji is a Pathfinder country under Alliance 8.7, which involves a commitment to accelerate action toward achieving Sustainable Development Goal Target 8.7, which calls for the eradication of child labor by 2025, and forced labor, modern slavery, and human trafficking by 2030. (53)

VI. SOCIAL PROGRAMS TO ADDRESS CHILD LABOR

In 2020, the government funded and participated in programs that include the goal of eliminating or preventing child labor (Table 10). However, gaps exist in these social programs, including addressing the needs of victims of commercial sexual exploitation, human trafficking, and involuntary domestic work from being sent to live with other families.

Table 10. Key Social Programs to Address Child Labor

Program	Description
UNICEF Pacific Multi-Country Child Protection Program (2018–2022)	Multi-country program in 14 Pacific Island countries. Prioritizes children's rights including the elimination of the worst forms of child labor. Aligned with the UN Pacific Strategy 2018–2022. (54) Research was unable to determine whether activities were undertaken to implement the UNICEF Pacific Multi-Country Child Protection Program (2018–2022) during the reporting period.
Education Assistance Programs†	MOE Food Voucher and Bus Fare Assistance program provides $24 in food vouchers and subsidized bus fares to families with combined annual income of less than $7,382 to offset the cost of education for children attending remote schools. (44,55) MOE Tuition Fee Free Grant program provides subsidized tuition fee free grants for early childhood education centers or students attending preschool. (56) Both programs were active during the reporting period. (7)
Child Protection Program and Allowance†	Ministry of Women, Children, and Poverty Alleviation (MWCPA) Child Protection Program raises awareness of, and enacts recommendations from, the UN CRC. (20) In 2020, the government allocated $6 million in funding for child protection allowance for approximately 8,366 households in Fiji, and increase from $230,000 in 2019. (7) MWCPA Child Protection Allowance assists single mothers, widows, and children. (45)
Trafficking Victims Rehabilitation Programs†	Safety Net Project funds rehabilitation services for females who are under age 18 and victims of commercial sexual exploitation. Receives referrals from various entities, including the Fiji Police. (43) This program was active during the reporting period. (43) Homes of Hope is an NGO program that assists victims of sexual abuse and human trafficking. (20,45)
Measurement, Awareness-Raising, and Policy Engagement Project on Child Labor and Forced Labor (MAPI6)	$105,000 USDOL-funded global project implemented by the ILO, which aims to strengthen policies and improve the capacity of governments and other stakeholders to combat child labor, forced labor, and human trafficking through national, regional, and global initiatives. (57) For additional information, please see our website .

‡ The government had other social programs that may have included the goal of eliminating or preventing child labor. (7)

During the reporting period, the government increased its budgetary allocation to the Ministry of Women, Children, and Poverty Alleviation (MWCPA) and their child services programs. These allocations include $147,000 in grants for NGOs caring for children under the care of MWCPA's Department of Social Welfare and $98,000 for the national child helpline. (7)

Although Fiji has a program that targets child labor, the scope of this program is insufficient to fully address the extent of the problem, including children who may be sent to live with other families and subjected to commercial sexual exploitation, human trafficking, and involuntary domestic work. (4,20) While NGOs provide limited support services, these are concentrated in the capital city of Suva. (58)

VII. SUGGESTED GOVERNMENT ACTIONS TO ELIMINATE CHILD LABOR

Based on the reporting above, suggested actions are identified that would advance the elimination of child labor in Fiji (Table 11).

Table I I. Suggested Government Actions to Eliminate Child Labor

Area	Suggested Action	Year(s) Suggested
Legal Framework	Accede to the UN CRC Optional Protocol on Armed Conflict.	2013 – 2020
	Accede to the UN CRC Optional Protocol on the Sale of Children, Child Prostitution and Child Pornography.	2013 – 2020
	Ensure that the law criminally prohibits the recruitment of children under age 18 by non-state armed groups.	2016 – 2020
	Ensure that the law's light work provisions are specific enough to prevent children from involvement in child labor.	2015 – 2020
Enforcement	Publish information on the labor inspectorate's funding.	2020
	Strengthen the labor inspectorate by initiating targeted inspections based on analysis of data related to risk-prone sectors and patterns of serious incidents.	2020
	Publish criminal law enforcement information, including initial training for new criminal investigators, refresher courses, the number of investigations conducted, and the number of violations found for crimes relating to child labor, including its worst forms.	2020
Government Policies	Publish activities undertaken to implement the United Nations Pacific Strategy (2018–2022) during the reporting period.	2020
Social Programs	Collect and publish data on the extent and nature of child labor to inform policies and programs.	2017 – 2020
	Publish activities undertaken to implement the UNICEF Pacific Multi-Country Child Protection Program (2018–2022) during the reporting period.	2020
	Increase the availability of support services for children vulnerable to commercial sexual exploitation, human trafficking, and involuntary domestic work from living with other families.	2010 – 2020

In 2020, Gabon made minimal advancement in efforts to eliminate the worst forms of child labor. In November, the Ministry of Justice, in coordination with UNICEF, began operating a hotline to alert authorities to possible child abuse cases, including instances of child labor. However, despite new initiatives to address child labor, Gabon is receiving an assessment of minimal advancement because it continued to implement a practice that delayed advancement to eliminate child labor. The government failed to provide evidence it conducted worksite inspections during the reporting period. Labor inspections are a key tool for identifying child labor violations, and their absence makes children more vulnerable to the worst forms of child labor. Children in Gabon are subjected to the worst forms of child labor, including in commercial sexual exploitation, sometimes as a result of human trafficking. Children also engage in child labor in domestic work. Gabonese law regarding minimum age for work provisions only applies to children in formal employment relationships, which does not conform to international standards that require all children to be protected by the minimum age for work. In addition, labor inspectors do not have the authority to assess penalties, and they lack the basic resources necessary to conduct investigations.

I. PREVALENCE AND SECTORAL DISTRIBUTION OF CHILD LABOR

Children in Gabon are subjected to the worst forms of child labor, including in commercial sexual exploitation, sometimes as a result of human trafficking. Children also engage in child labor in domestic work. (1-7) Table 1 provides key indicators on children's work and education in Gabon. Data on some of these indicators are not available from the sources used in this report.

Table 1. Statistics on Children's Work and Education

Children	Age	Percent
Working (% and population)	5 to 14	22.3 (83,073)
Attending School (%)	5 to 14	94.4
Combining Work and School (%)	7 to 14	23.3
Primary Completion Rate (%)		Unavailable

Primary completion rate was unavailable from UNESCO Institute for Statistics, 2021. (8)

Source for all other data: International Labor Organization's analysis of statistics from Deuxième Enquête Démographique et de Santé au Gabon (EDSG-II), 2012. (9)

Based on a review of available information, Table 2 provides an overview of children's work by sector and activity.

Table 2. Overview of Children's Work by Sector and Activity

Sector/Industry	Activity
Agriculture	Fishing, including the production and sale of smoked fish (10,11)
Industry	Working in sand quarries† (1-3,11)
	Working in brick factories (10,11)
Services	Domestic work (4-7,10,11)
	Street vending, including windshield cleaning, cleaning market spaces at night, and carrying heavy loads† (1,7,10)
	Garbage scavenging (10,11)
	Working in restaurants (2,3)
	Working in transportation, including minibuses,† and as mechanics (1-3,10,11)

MINIMAL ADVANCEMENT – EFFORTS MADE BUT CONTINUED PRACTICE THAT DELAYED ADVANCEMENT

Sector/Industry	Activity
Categorical Worst Forms of Child Labor†	Forced labor in markets, restaurants, handicraft shops, sand quarries, gold mines, farming, animal husbandry, fishing, domestic work, and as mechanics, each sometimes as a result of human trafficking (1,5,11,12)
	Commercial sexual exploitation, sometimes as a result of human trafficking (6,7,11,13,14)

† Determined by national law or regulation as hazardous and, as such, relevant to Article 3(d) of ILO C. 182.

‡ Child labor understood as the worst forms of child labor per se under Article 3(a)–(c) of ILO C. 182.

Gabon is primarily a destination and transit country for victims of child trafficking from other countries in Central and West Africa. (10,11,15,16) Some parents entrust their children to intermediaries who promise education and safe work opportunities; instead, these children are sometimes subjected to child trafficking for labor exploitation. (15,16) There are reports that child victims of forced labor mainly work in the informal sector as street vendors, often selling beauty products and fruits. Boys often work in fishing, microbus transportation, mechanics shops, and cleaning market spaces after they have closed. Reports also indicate that West African traffickers reportedly exploit children from their countries of origin to work in Libreville markets and in other urban centers, including Port-Gentil. (10,11,14,17)

Although the Law on General Education guarantees the right to free and compulsory education, in practice, students must pay for supplies and school fees, which may be prohibitive. (11,18) Rural areas lack schools and teachers, and education beyond primary school is often unavailable. (1,11,19,20) Research suggests that some children, especially girls, are sexually abused at school. (2,21) In addition, children living in remote areas may not receive birth certificates, which are often required for school enrollment, and children who do not attend school are more vulnerable to child labor. (1,2,11)

II. LEGAL FRAMEWORK FOR CHILD LABOR

Gabon has ratified all key international conventions concerning child labor (Table 3).

Table 3. Ratification of International Conventions on Child Labor

Convention	Ratification
 ILO C. 138, Minimum Age	✓
 ILO C. 182, Worst Forms of Child Labor	✓
 UN CRC	✓
 UN CRC Optional Protocol on Armed Conflict	✓
 UN CRC Optional Protocol on the Sale of Children, Child Prostitution and Child Pornography	✓
 Palermo Protocol on Trafficking in Persons	✓

The government has established laws and regulations related to child labor (Table 4). However, gaps exist in Gabon’s legal framework to adequately protect children from the worst forms of child labor, including the minimum age for work.

Table 4. Laws and Regulations on Child Labor

Standard	Meets International Standards	Age	Legislation
Minimum Age for Work	No	16	Article 177 of the Labor Code; Article 2 of the Decree on Establishing Individual Exceptions to the Minimum Age for Admission to Employment (22-24)
Minimum Age for Hazardous Work	Yes	18	Article 1 of the Hazardous Work List (22,23,25)

Standard	Meets International Standards	Age	Legislation
Identification of Hazardous Occupations or Activities Prohibited for Children	Yes		Articles 2, 3, and 5 of the Hazardous Work List (22,23,25)
Prohibition of Forced Labor	Yes		Article 4 of the Labor Code; Articles 3, 11–13, and 20 of Law N° 09/04 Preventing and Fighting Against Child Trafficking (22,26)
Prohibition of Child Trafficking	Yes		Articles 3, 11–14, and 20 of Law N° 09/04 Preventing and Fighting Against Child Trafficking; Article 278 bis of the Penal Code; Articles 225 to 225-7 of Gabon's 2020 Revised Penal Code (26,27)
Prohibition of Commercial Sexual Exploitation of Children	Yes		Articles 260, 261, and 263 of the Penal Code; Articles 225 to 225-7 and Articles 281-3 to 281-5 of Gabon's 2020 Revised Penal Code (27,28)
Prohibition of Using Children in Illicit Activities	Yes		Article 281-1 of Gabon's 2020 Revised Penal Code (27)
Minimum Age for Voluntary State Military Recruitment	Yes	18	Article 17 of the Law on the Organization of National Defense and Public Security (29)
Prohibition of Compulsory Recruitment of Children by (State) Military	Yes*		Article 17 of the Law on the Organization of National Defense and Public Security (29)
Prohibition of Military Recruitment by Non-state Armed Groups	No
Compulsory Education Age	Yes	16	Article 1 of the Constitution; Article 2 of Act N° 21/2011 on General Education; Article 340-6 of the Revised 2020 Penal Code (18,27,30)
Free Public Education	Yes		Articles 1.18 and 1.19 of the Constitution; Article 2 of Act N° 21/2011 on General Education (18,30)

* No conscription (31)

Although the Labor Code prohibits work by children under age 16, the minimum age protections do not apply to children outside of formal work relationships, which does not conform to international standards that require all children be protected under the law. (3,22)

Article 2 of Decree N° 065 I/PR/MTEPS Establishing Individual Exceptions to the Minimum Age for Admission to Employment permits children under age 16 to perform light work with parental permission. However, it does not set a minimum age, determine the activities in which light work may be permitted, prescribe the number of hours per week for light work, or specify the conditions in which light work may be undertaken. (24)

Articles 225 to 225-7 of the revised 2020 Penal Code prohibits the recruitment, transportation, transfer, harboring, and receipt of persons for the purposes of exploitation, and imposes stricter penalties for trafficking in children. In addition, Gabon's revised Penal Code now prohibits the use, procuring, and offering of children for prostitution, the production of pornography, and pornographic performances. (27)

III. ENFORCEMENT OF LAWS ON CHILD LABOR

The government has established institutional mechanisms for the enforcement of laws and regulations on child labor (Table 5). However, gaps exist within the operations of enforcement agencies that may hinder adequate enforcement of their child labor laws.

Gabon

MINIMAL ADVANCEMENT – EFFORTS MADE BUT CONTINUED PRACTICE THAT DELAYED ADVANCEMENT

Table 5. Agencies Responsible for Child Labor Law Enforcement

Organization/Agency	Role
Ministry of Employment, Public Function, Labor and Professional Training	Receives, investigates, and addresses child labor complaints through its inspectors. (19) Refers cases of child trafficking to the Ministry of the Interior's Police Force for investigation and the Ministry of Health, Social Protection and National Solidarity (MSPNS) for social services. (1)
Ministry of the Interior's Police Force	Enforces laws, investigates child labor violations, and refers cases to the Ministry of Justice for prosecution. (10,19) Refers cases of child labor to the MSPNS. The shelters for referred children are run by or work in close coordination with MSPNS. (1,15)
Ministry of Justice	Enforces child labor laws by prosecuting child labor cases. Assists in supporting victims of child trafficking while prosecutors and investigators prepare their cases. (1)

Labor Law Enforcement

In 2020, the absence of worksite inspections conducted at the national level in Gabon may have impeded the enforcement of child labor laws. (Table 6)

Table 6. Labor Law Enforcement Efforts Related to Child Labor

Overview of Labor Law Enforcement	2019	2020
Labor Inspectorate Funding	Unknown (10)	Unknown (11)

In January 2020, officials collaborated with an international organization to train approximately 70 law enforcement, social welfare, and civil society actors on victim-centered trafficking investigations. (14)

While the government did not provide information on labor inspectorate funding or the number of labor inspectors, research indicates inadequate resources, including an insufficient number of inspectors, may hamper the labor inspectorate's capacity to adequately conduct inspections and enforce labor laws throughout the country. (3,10,11,14,19) In addition, labor inspectors in Gabon are responsible for reconciling labor disputes, which may detract from their primary duty of inspection. (32)

Although inspectors have the authority to propose penalties to the court in accordance with legal guidelines, they do not have the authority to impose penalties since this is the purview of the court. (10)

Criminal Law Enforcement

In 2020, criminal law enforcement agencies in Gabon took actions to combat child labor (Table 7). However, gaps exist within the operations of the criminal enforcement agencies that may hinder adequate criminal law enforcement, including insufficient financial resources.

Table 7. Criminal Law Enforcement Efforts Related to Child Labor

Overview of Criminal Law Enforcement	2019	2020
Initial Training for New Criminal Investigators	No (10)	No (11)
Training on New Laws Related to the Worst Forms of Child Labor	N/A (10)	N/A (11)
Refresher Courses Provided	Unknown (10)	N/A (11)
Number of Investigations	1 (10)	Unknown (11)
Number of Violations Found	28 (10)	Unknown (11)
Number of Prosecutions Initiated	3 (10)	20 (17)
Number of Convictions	2 (10)	2 (17)
Imposed Penalties for Violations Related to the Worst Forms of Child Labor	Yes (10)	Unknown (11)
Reciprocal Referral Mechanism Exists Between Criminal Authorities and Social Services	Yes (10)	Yes (11)

In November 2020, the Ministry of Justice, in coordination with UNICEF, started operating a hotline, the Supermwana line, to alert authorities to possible child abuse cases; these cases include instances of child labor. In addition, the government removed 80 children from exploitative settings and provided social services to all of them. (11)

In 2020, 16 people were arrested for forced labor or sex trafficking; they have been jailed while awaiting prosecution at the next special criminal session. (17) One of these investigations involved a Togolese woman exploiting children and adults which ended with her arrest. The other investigation involved a 15-year-old girl who had been trafficked from Togo. (11)

Authorities reported 20 cases for prosecution during the year, according to the Ministry of Justice. UNICEF stated the government prosecuted 18 Beninese and Togolese traffickers in 2019. Research found that Gabonese authorities do not have a consistent mechanism to report human trafficking statistics to Post. (14)

Despite these efforts, research has shown that a lack of resources, insufficient training, infrequent convening of the Criminal Court, a backlog of cases, and weak coordination among enforcement agencies hampered criminal enforcement efforts. In addition, evidence indicates that some child trafficking perpetrators falsified documents to make victims appear older than age 18 to avoid punishment under Gabon's child trafficking laws. (7, 11, 15)

IV. COORDINATION OF GOVERNMENT EFFORTS ON CHILD LABOR

The government has established mechanisms to coordinate its efforts to address child labor (Table 8). However, gaps exist that hinder the effective coordination of efforts to address child labor, including efficacy in accomplishing mandates.

Table 8. Key Mechanisms to Coordinate Government Efforts on Child Labor

Coordinating Body	Role & Description
Inter-Ministerial Committee for the Fight Against Child Trafficking (CNSLTE)	Led by the Ministry of Labor, includes representatives from four other ministries and civil society. (1, 19) Removes children from exploitative labor situations, provides social services, and repatriates victims when appropriate. (15, 19) Disseminates the National Manual of Procedures for the Care of Child Victims of Trafficking, which establishes a series of procedures to return victims of child trafficking to their country of origin or facilitate their integration into Gabon. (33) Due to changes in the penal code, the CNSLTE became inactive during the reporting period. (10)
Ministry of Justice and Ministry of Interior	Coordinate national efforts against child trafficking and other worst forms of child labor. (1, 19)
National Observatory for Children's Rights	Coordinates the implementation of the UN CRC, including the promotion of children's right to education and protection against all forms of exploitation and abuse. Establishes and oversees committees to protect children's rights in all provinces. (34)
Local Vigilance Committees	Administered by CNSLTE and located in provincial capitals, identify potential cases of child trafficking, intercept victims, and assist children at risk of child trafficking. (35)
Ministry of Health, Social Protection and National Solidarity (MSPNS)	Provides social services and assistance to vulnerable children, assists in repatriation or resettlement processes for victims of child trafficking, and operates shelters for victims of child trafficking. (1, 15) MSPNS can also refer cases to the Ministry of Justice, which may pursue criminal charges. (10, 15)

MINIMAL ADVANCEMENT – EFFORTS MADE BUT CONTINUED PRACTICE THAT DELAYED ADVANCEMENT

Due to changes in the penal code criminalizing all forms of human trafficking, the Inter-Ministerial Committee for the Fight Against Child Trafficking became inactive pending corresponding changes to the 2004 law on child trafficking. Instead, the Ministries of Justice and Interior were charged with coordinating action against the worst forms of child labor, including child trafficking. (10)

Research also indicates that the other coordinating committees lacked sufficient funding and members sometimes used their personal funds to support human trafficking victims. (1,11,33) All coordination committees were inactive during the reporting period. (11)

V. GOVERNMENT POLICIES ON CHILD LABOR

Research found no evidence that the government has established policies to address child labor.

The government has not included child labor elimination and prevention strategies in the United Nations Development Assistance Framework (UNDAF) (2018–2022) or the Education Policy (2010–2020). (5,38,39)

VI. SOCIAL PROGRAMS TO ADDRESS CHILD LABOR

In 2020, the government funded and participated in programs that may contribute to preventing child labor (Table 9). However, gaps exist in these social programs, including the adequacy of programs to address the full scope of the problem.

Program	Description
Shelters for Children in Need	Shelters provide social services to victims of child labor and child trafficking. The government provided in-kind support to shelters run by civil society organizations. (1,5,15,40) Victims received medical care, literacy training, and reintegration support. (1) In 2020, provided services to 80 children who were rescued from exploitative settings. (11)

‡ The government had other social programs that may have included the goal of eliminating or preventing child labor. (33)

Although Gabon has programs that target child labor, the scope of these programs is insufficient to fully address the extent of the problem. (1,11) Research also indicates that shelter space is insufficient to accommodate all victims of human trafficking and other vulnerable children due to the government repeatedly decreasing funding for shelters and NGOs in previous years. (1,5,11,13,15,35)

VII. SUGGESTED GOVERNMENT ACTIONS TO ELIMINATE CHILD LABOR

Based on the reporting above, suggested actions are identified that would advance the elimination of child labor in Gabon (Table 10).

Table 10. Suggested Government Actions to Eliminate Child Labor

Area	Suggested Action	Year(s) Suggested
Legal Framework	Ensure that minimum age protections are extended to children working outside of formal employment relationships.	2017 – 2020
	Establish criminal prohibitions for the recruitment of children under age 18 for use in armed conflict by non-state armed groups.	2016 – 2020
	Ensure that the legal framework for light work establishes a minimum age no younger than age 13, determines activities that are considered light work, and specifies the conditions under which light work may be undertaken.	2013 – 2020
Enforcement	Publish information on the funding level for the labor inspectorate, number of inspections, and number of labor inspectors, and ensure both inspectors and investigators receive adequate funding, training, and resources to carry out inspections and investigations.	2009 – 2020
	Strengthen the labor inspectorate by having inspectors to assess penalties and conduct routine and unannounced inspections, including in the informal sector.	2014 – 2020

Area	Suggested Action	Year(s) Suggested
Enforcement	Ensure that labor inspectors are not tasked with conciliation or arbitration duties so that they can carry out their primary duties of inspection and monitoring throughout the country.	2009 – 2020
	Ensure that the government conducts an adequate number of labor inspections and criminal investigations.	2018 – 2020
Coordination	Ensure that coordinating bodies are sufficiently funded to carry out their mandates, remain active, and report on their activities.	2013 – 2020
Government Policies	Adopt a policy that addresses all relevant forms of child labor, including in activities such as domestic work and work in transportation.	2015 – 2020
	Integrate child labor elimination and prevention strategies into existing relevant policies.	2014 – 2020
Social Programs	Collect and publish data on the extent and nature of child labor to inform policies and programs.	2014 – 2020
	Ensure that children have access to education by eliminating school fees, increasing the number of teachers and schools in rural areas, and ensuring that schools are free from sexual abuse; and make efforts to provide all children with birth registration.	2010 – 2020
	Expand existing programs to address the scope of the child labor problem and ensure that the government continues to provide adequate support to victims of child labor, including sufficient shelter space for victims.	2010 – 2020

MINIMAL ADVANCEMENT – EFFORTS MADE BUT REGRESSION IN PRACTICE THAT DELAYED ADVANCEMENT

In 2020, The Gambia made minimal advancement in efforts to eliminate the worst forms of child labor. The National Agency Against Trafficking in Persons developed a National Referral Mechanism for victims of human trafficking, and the Gambia Tourism Authority for the Protection of Children trained hotel staff on the commercial sexual exploitation of children. However, despite these initiatives to address child labor, The Gambia is assessed as having made only minimal advancement because it implemented a practice that delays advancement to eliminate child labor. The labor inspectorate suspended inspections in March 2020 due to the COVID-19 pandemic. The government has not indicated when labor inspections will resume. Labor inspections are a key tool for identifying child labor violations, and their absence makes children more vulnerable to the worst forms of child labor. Children in The Gambia are subjected to the worst forms of child labor, including in commercial sexual exploitation, sometimes as a result of human trafficking, and in forced begging. Gaps in the law remain, including that children may commence an apprenticeship at the age of 12. In addition, labor inspectors lack legal authorization to inspect private homes or farms in which children may be working.

I. PREVALENCE AND SECTORAL DISTRIBUTION OF CHILD LABOR

Children in The Gambia are subjected to the worst forms of child labor, including in commercial sexual exploitation, sometimes as a result of human trafficking, and in forced begging. (1-6) Table 1 provides key indicators on children's work and education in The Gambia. Data on some of these indicators are not available from the sources used in this report.

Table 1. Statistics on Children's Work and Education

Children	Age	Percent
Working (% and population)	5 to 14	22.6 (unavailable)
Attending School (%)	5 to 14	78.2
Combining Work and School (%)	7 to 14	21.7
Primary Completion Rate (%)		78.9

Source for primary completion rate: Data from 2019, published by UNESCO Institute for Statistics, 2021. (7)

Source for all other data: International Labor Organization's analysis of statistics from the Multiple Indicator Cluster Survey 6 (MICS), 2018. (8)

Based on a review of available information, Table 2 provides an overview of children's work by sector and activity.

Table 2. Overview of Children's Work by Sector and Activity

Sector/Industry	Activity
Agriculture	Farming, including protecting crops against animals (1,5)
Industry	Working in carpentry, masonry, sewing, plumbing, and in metal welding workshops† (1,3,5,9) Mining† and quarrying† (3)
Services	Domestic work (1-3,5) Street work, including begging and vending (1-3,5,10) Scavenging for scrap metal and jewelry at dump sites (1,11) Working as taxi and bus attendants (1) Working as auto mechanics† (1,3,5,9)
Categorical Worst Forms of Child Labor‡	Commercial sexual exploitation, sometimes as a result of human trafficking (1-4,12-15) Forced begging by Koranic teachers (1-4) Forced labor in domestic work and street vending, each sometimes as a result of human trafficking (2,12)

† Determined by national law or regulation as hazardous and, as such, relevant to Article 3(d) of ILO C. 182.

‡ Child labor understood as the worst forms of child labor per se under Article 3(a)–(c) of ILO C. 182.

The Gambia

MINIMAL ADVANCEMENT – EFFORTS MADE BUT REGRESSION IN PRACTICE THAT DELAYED ADVANCEMENT

In The Gambia, children are trafficked internally and subjected to commercial sexual exploitation, forced labor, and domestic work. Girls and boys from other West African countries are allegedly trafficked for commercial sexual exploitation. (3,4,16,17) A civil society organization has alleged that some foreign nationals subject children to commercial sexual exploitation in brothels and motels in tourist areas and in private homes. (4,17-20) In The Gambia, it is a common practice to send boys to receive education from Koranic teachers who sometimes force students to beg in the streets for money and food and to conduct street vending. (16,19-22)

Article 30 of the Constitution mandates free compulsory education. However, families are sometimes required to buy books and uniforms, contribute to examination fees, and provide direct financial support to the school through a school fund, which families often cannot afford. (6,23) Absence from school due to unpaid school fees increases children’s vulnerability to child labor. (6,23) In addition, inadequate teaching facilities, low numbers of teachers in rural areas, and limited access to clean water in schools create barriers for children to access education. (3,19,22)

II. LEGAL FRAMEWORK FOR CHILD LABOR

The Gambia has ratified all key international conventions concerning child labor (Table 3).

Table 3. Ratification of International Conventions on Child Labor

Convention	Ratification
 ILO C. 138, Minimum Age	✓
ILO C. 182, Worst Forms of Child Labor	✓
 UN CRC	✓
UN CRC Optional Protocol on Armed Conflict	✓
UN CRC Optional Protocol on the Sale of Children, Child Prostitution and Child Pornography	✓
 Palermo Protocol on Trafficking in Persons	✓

The government has established laws and regulations related to child labor (Table 4). However, gaps exist in The Gambia’s legal framework to adequately protect children from the worst forms of child labor, including that children may commence an apprenticeship in the informal sector at the age of 12, which is below the compulsory education age of 16.

Table 4. Laws and Regulations on Child Labor

Standard	Meets International Standards	Age	Legislation
Minimum Age for Work	Yes	18	Articles 2, 41, 45, and 47 of the Children’s Act (24)
Minimum Age for Hazardous Work	Yes	18	Article 44 of the Children’s Act; Article 46 of the Labour Act (24,25)
Identification of Hazardous Occupations or Activities Prohibited for Children	Yes		Articles 42,44 and 45 of the Children’s Act (24)
Prohibition of Forced Labor	Yes		Article 20 of the Constitution; Articles 41 and 47 of the Children’s Act (23,24)
Prohibition of Child Trafficking	Yes		Articles 30 and 39 of the Children’s Act; Articles 28 and 56 of the Trafficking in Persons Act; Article 13 of the Tourism Offences Act (24,26,27)
Prohibition of Commercial Sexual Exploitation of Children	Yes		Articles 26, 27, 29–32, and 34 of the Children’s Act; Articles 7–9 of the Tourism Offences Act (24,27)
Prohibition of Using Children in Illicit Activities	Yes		Articles 31 and 37 of the Children’s Act (24)

Standard	Meets International Standards	Age	Legislation
Minimum Age for Voluntary State Military Recruitment	Yes	18	Article 59 of the Children's Act (24)
Prohibition of Compulsory Recruitment of Children by (State) Military	Yes		Article 59 of the Children's Act (24)
Prohibition of Military Recruitment by Non-state Armed Groups	Yes		Article 31(c) of the Children's Act (24)
The Compulsory Education Age	No	16‡	Article 18 of the Children's Act (24)
Free Public Education	Yes		Article 30 of the Constitution; Article 18 of the Children's Act (23,24)

‡ Age calculated based on available information (23,24,29)

Per Article 51 of the Children's Act of 2005, the minimum age to start an apprenticeship is 12, or after completion of basic education, in violation of ILO Convention 138. (24) Children in The Gambia are required to attend school up to age 16, but this standard makes children ages 16-18 vulnerable to child labor as they are not required to attend school, but are not legally permitted to work. (24)

III. ENFORCEMENT OF LAWS ON CHILD LABOR

The government has established institutional mechanisms for the enforcement of laws and regulations on child labor (Table 5). However, gaps exist within the authority of enforcement agencies that may hinder adequate enforcement of their child labor laws.

Table 5. Agencies Responsible for Child Labor Law Enforcement

Organization/Agency	Role
Ministry of Trade, Industry, and Regional Integration and Employment	Conducts labor inspections and enforces labor laws pertaining to hazardous child labor through its Department of Labor. (3,6)
Department of Social Welfare (DSW)	Combats forced child labor, coordinates the protection of human trafficking victims, and works closely with social welfare officers in police units. (19,20) Maintains an electronic database that contains information on cases requiring child protection, including those involving labor and human trafficking violations. (12,19,28) Housed under the Ministry of Health and Social Welfare. (3)
Children's Court	Adjudicates on criminal, civil, and care and protection cases involving children, and determines guardianship of child abuse victims, including child laborers, referred to the court by DSW. (20,30)
National Agency Against Trafficking in Persons (NAATIP)	Under the purview of the Ministry of Justice, investigates suspected cases of human trafficking. Staff include investigators, police, members of the National Intelligence Agency, and five prosecutors. (17,22,31,32) Gathers evidence for the NAATIP director, who can recommend that the NAATIP prosecutor file charges for human trafficking violations. (22,31) In addition, police and immigration officials have designated child and gender welfare officers who regularly receive training on identifying TIP cases and on offering immediate assistance. (32) During the reporting period, NAATIP conducted awareness campaigns and trainings on human trafficking. (5) NAATIP developed a National Referral Mechanism (NRM) for victims of human trafficking in The Gambia, incorporating an identification form to guide officials in proactive victim identification. The NRM's screening procedures are designed to identify victims of human trafficking among vulnerable groups, including children. (32)
The Gambia Police Force Child Welfare Unit	Oversees all situations involving children's welfare. Collaborates with Child Protection Alliance (CPA), DSW, NGOs, and other agencies as the designated governmental coordinating body for all child welfare activities in The Gambia. (3,19,33)
Tourism Security Unit	Prevents unaccompanied children from entering tourist areas and patrols tourist areas for child labor and criminal violations, such as commercial sexual exploitation and human trafficking. Has a dedicated child protection division comprising immigration, intelligence, police, and drug law enforcement officers. (6,19,36)

Organization/Agency	Role
Local Enforcement Agencies	Monitor neighborhoods for child exploitation with support from DSW. Maintain six Neighborhood Watch Groups established by DSW in urban areas near tourist resorts. (18-20,22) Serve as volunteer arbiters and mediators for community disputes involving children and other matters through Village Development Committees. (3) Raise awareness and report cases of labor issues, including child labor, to the authorities through 15 Community Child Protection Committees in operation throughout the country. (22,28)
The Gambia Tourism Board	Combats commercial sexual exploitation of children in tourist areas. (19) Educates the public about child sex tourism and the consequences for violating the Code of Conduct of The Gambia Tourism Authority for the Protection of Children. In collaboration with DSW, maintains a database of individuals suspected of pedophilia or child trafficking. (19,22,37)

Reports indicate that the Neighborhood Watch Groups remain largely inadequate, as they are not empowered to monitor or report cases, are untrained, and only some groups are occasionally active. (19,21)

In spite of an increase in the National Agency Against Trafficking in Persons' budget, reporting indicates that funding, reflecting widespread budgetary constraints, is still insufficient for training of officials, thus hindering the agency's ability to conduct investigations on trafficking in persons. (3,4,14,18,22,38)

Labor Law Enforcement

In 2020, labor law enforcement agencies in The Gambia took actions to combat child labor (Table 6). However, gaps exist within the authority of enforcement agencies that may hinder adequate enforcement of their child labor laws.

Table 6. Labor Law Enforcement Efforts Related to Child Labor

Overview of Labor Law Enforcement	2019	2020
Labor Inspectorate Funding	Unknown (19)	$15,576 (5)
Number of Labor Inspectors	7 (19)	4‡ (5)

‡ Data are from January 1 to March 30, 2020. (5)

During the reporting period, labor inspectors received initial training and monthly trainings on laws and enforcement of laws related to child labor and hazardous child labor. (5) The Gambian Government ceased labor inspections in March 2020, citing challenges related to the COVID-19 pandemic; as a result, no labor inspections occurred in sectors in which most child labor reportedly occurs. (5) The number of labor inspectors is likely insufficient for the size of The Gambia's workforce, which includes more than 700,000 workers. According to the ILO's technical advice of a ratio approaching 1 inspector for every 40,000 workers in less-developed economies, The Gambia would employ about 19 labor inspectors. (39,40) Per the law, inspectors are not authorized to inspect private homes or farms in which children may be working. (3,22)

MINIMAL ADVANCEMENT – EFFORTS MADE BUT REGRESSION IN PRACTICE THAT DELAYED ADVANCEMENT

Criminal Law Enforcement

In 2020, criminal law enforcement agencies in The Gambia took actions to combat child labor (Table 7). However, gaps exist within the operations of the criminal enforcement agencies that may hinder adequate criminal law enforcement, including enforcement of penalties.

Table 7. Criminal Law Enforcement Efforts Related to Child Labor

Overview of Criminal Law Enforcement	2019	2020
Initial Training for New Criminal Investigators	Yes (19)	Unknown (5)
Training on New Laws Related to the Worst Forms of Child Labor	N/A (19)	N/A (5)
Refresher Courses Provided	Yes (19)	Unknown (5)
Number of Investigations	0 (19)	Unknown (5)
Number of Violations Found	0 (19)	Unknown (5)
Number of Prosecutions Initiated	1 (19)	Unknown (5)
Number of Convictions	0 (19)	Unknown (5)
Imposed Penalties for Violations Related to the Worst Forms of Child Labor	N/A (19)	Yes (5)
Reciprocal Referral Mechanism Exists Between Criminal Authorities and Social Services	Yes (19)	Yes (5)

Although Articles 39 and 40 of the Children’s Act prohibit human trafficking and slave dealing of children, and although these crimes carry a penalty of life imprisonment, research indicates that penalties are not fully applied, possibly hindering enforcement and emboldening violators. (28,33) The government adopted a national referral mechanism with standard operating procedures to screen vulnerable populations, including child migrants and individuals in commercial sex, for trafficking indicators and to refer them for care; however, the government’s ability to proactively identify and aid trafficking victims, including child victims, is limited and additional training on the new procedures is needed for it to be fully implemented. (6,19,20)

IV. COORDINATION OF GOVERNMENT EFFORTS ON CHILD LABOR

The government has established mechanisms to coordinate its efforts to address child labor (Table 8). However, gaps exist that hinder the effective coordination of efforts to address child labor, including the inactivity of some coordinating bodies during the reporting period.

Table 8. Key Mechanisms to Coordinate Government Efforts on Child Labor

Coordinating Body	Role & Description
National Coordination Committee on Child Labor	Coordinates child labor enforcement processes, including prosecutions of the worst forms of child labor. Led by DSW, comprises representatives from UNICEF, Department of Labor, NAATIP, Action Aid, Ministry of Basic and Secondary Education, Gambia Teachers Union, Young People in the Media, and the Inspector General of Police. (3) Research was unable to determine whether the coordinating body was active in 2020.
National Trafficking in Persons Task Force	Coordinates, administers, and monitors the implementation of the Trafficking in Persons Action Plan and shares information among law enforcement agencies. (19,41) Includes NAATIP, Ministry of Justice, Department of Immigration, DSW, Ministry of Foreign Affairs, Women’s Bureau, Gambia Radio and Television Services, Center for Street Children, and The Gambia Police Force. (42) During the reporting period, the task force met regularly. (5,32)
Child Protection Alliance (CPA)	Promotes children’s rights and child protection services. Raises awareness about child exploitation. (19) Members include government departments, civil society organizations, UN agencies, NGOs, child and youth organizations, and bilateral institutions. (19) Trains journalists about child sex tourism and government officials on the UN Convention on the Rights of the Child. (34,35) Maintains 15 child protection centers across the country to monitor, identify, and report potential cases of child abuse and trafficking in persons. (19,22)

V. GOVERNMENT POLICIES ON CHILD LABOR

The government has established policies related to child labor (Table 9). However, policy gaps exist that hinder efforts to address child labor, including the lack of a national child labor policy.

The Gambia

MINIMAL ADVANCEMENT – EFFORTS MADE BUT REGRESSION IN PRACTICE THAT DELAYED ADVANCEMENT

Table 9. Key Policies Related to Child Labor

Policy	Description
National Child Protection Strategy (2016–2020)	Outlined strategies to improve child protection, including addressing the worst forms of child labor, by increasing awareness and strengthening coordination among government agencies. (43) Research was unable to determine whether any activities took place in relation to this policy during the reporting period.
National Trafficking in Persons Action Plan (2016–2020)	Directs governmental efforts to combat human trafficking. (4,22,28,44) In December 2020, NAATIP gathered stakeholders to review and update the document. (32)
The Gambia and Senegal Trafficking Memorandum of Understanding	Coordinates the two countries' efforts to address human trafficking through meetings, information sharing, improved laws, and prevention, protection, and assistance activities. (22) Research indicates the government continued to support this policy during the reporting period. (5)
Code of Conduct of The Gambia Tourism Authority for the Protection of Children	Raises awareness of commercial sexual exploitation of children in the tourism industry and among tourists. (19,45) During the reporting period, at the beginning of the peak tourism season, new hotel staff were trained on the Code of Conduct of the Gambia Tourism Authority for the Protection of Children. (5)

‡ The government had other policies that may have addressed child labor issues or had an impact on child labor. (22)

VI. SOCIAL PROGRAMS TO ADDRESS CHILD LABOR

In 2020, the government funded and participated in programs that include the goal of eliminating or preventing child labor (Table 10). However, gaps exist in these social programs, including the adequacy of programs to address the full scope of the problem.

Table 10. Key Social Programs to Address Child Labor

Program	Description
Combating Child Sex Tourism Project	CPA project, funded by End Child Prostitution and Trafficking Netherlands, that raises awareness about commercial sexual exploitation of children, the Tourism Offences Act, and the Code of Conduct among Tourism Security Unit personnel, hoteliers, travel agencies, and other tourism stakeholders. (1) Research indicated that the project was active during the reporting year, but research did not determine whether specific activities were undertaken relative to the project. (38)
Street Children Center†	Drop-in centers run by DSW with support from international organizations, foreign NGOs, and local businesses. Provides medical care, food, and counseling to street children, including human trafficking victims and children of Koranic schools exploited for forced begging. (19) Drop in centers were in operation during the reporting period. (46)
Conditional Cash Transfers to Islamic Religious Schools (Majaalis)†	Ministry of Education program in partnership with the Institute for Social Reformation, an Islamic NGO based in The Gambia, that gives Koranic teachers food rations and approximately $2 monthly for each student if the Koranic teachers do not force students to beg. (18,22) Provides teachers for English, mathematics, and science subjects to Koranic schools. (1) Every month, a joint team of ministry officials and Institute for Social Reformation and Action representatives travel to each Koranic school participating in the program. (5) In 2020, support for the program continued at existing levels. 17 schools participated in the program throughout all regions and the program reached about 1,500 children during the reporting period. (5)

‡ The government had other social programs that may have included the goal of eliminating or preventing child labor. (47)

Child trafficking victims may choose to receive care from the government-run shelter, privately operated institutions, or in their own residence, and still receive government-provided resources regardless of chosen option. (32) Although The Gambia has programs that target child labor, the scope of these programs is insufficient to fully address the extent of the problem. Programs do not reach all children working in agriculture and domestic work or those vulnerable to human trafficking, commercial sexual exploitation, forced begging, and street work. (22,48)

VII. SUGGESTED GOVERNMENT ACTIONS TO ELIMINATE CHILD LABOR

Based on the reporting above, suggested actions are identified that would advance the elimination of child labor in The Gambia (Table 11).

MINIMAL ADVANCEMENT – EFFORTS MADE BUT REGRESSION IN PRACTICE THAT DELAYED ADVANCEMENT

Table 11. Suggested Government Actions to Eliminate Child Labor

Area	Suggested Action	Year(s) Suggested
Legal Framework	Raise the minimal age for workplace apprenticeships to age 14.	2017 – 2020
	Ensure that the age up to which education is compulsory is the same as the minimum age for work.	2020
Enforcement	Ensure that Neighborhood Watch Groups are empowered and properly trained to monitor and report cases of child labor.	2018 – 2020
	Increase the number of labor inspectors responsible for enforcing labor laws, including laws related to child labor, to meet the ILO's technical advice.	2016 – 2020
	Ensure that the labor inspectorate has authority to conduct inspections on farms and in homes.	2017 – 2020
	Continue conducting labor inspections and ensure labor inspections occur where child labor is known to occur.	2020
	Ensure that the National Agency Against Trafficking in Persons' budget is sufficient for training officials.	2020
	Implement standard operating procedures to provide for proactive child sex trafficking victim identification and access to remedy, including providing additional training.	2019 – 2020
	Publish information on criminal law enforcement investigation, violations, prosecutions, and convictions.	2020
	Ensure that penalties for child trafficking are comprehensively applied to deter violations and government officials are trained in the application of those penalties.	2016 – 2020
Coordination	Ensure that the National Coordination Committee on Child Labor meets regularly and carries out activities to support its mandate.	2018 – 2020
Government Policies	Undertake activities in support of the National Child Protection Strategy.	2017 – 2020
Social Programs	Report activities in support of the Combating Child Sex Tourism Project.	2017 – 2020
	Expand existing programs to address the full scope of the child labor problem.	2010 – 2020
	Ensure that children can complete compulsory schooling by subsidizing or defraying the cost of books, uniforms, and other fees.	2010 – 2020
	Enhance opportunities for children to access education by providing adequate teaching facilities and clean water, and increasing the number of teachers in rural areas.	2017 – 2020

In 2020, Georgia made moderate advancement in efforts to eliminate the worst forms of child labor. The government adopted amendments to the Labor Code that expanded and clarified the roles and duties of the Labor Inspectorate. The government also implemented its new Code on the Rights of the Child beginning in June. In addition, the Healthcare Minister approved a decree that defines hazardous work and light work, as well as lists occupations prohibited for children under 18. In spite of challenges posed by the COVID-19 pandemic, the government made notable efforts to directly address child labor and trafficking in persons, while initiating a number of programs to provide increased support to vulnerable populations. However, children in Georgia are subjected to the worst forms of child labor, including in forced begging, sometimes as a result of human trafficking. Children also engage in child labor in agriculture. Although the government made meaningful efforts in all relevant areas during the reporting period, the labor law governing the minimum age for work does not meet the international standard because it does not apply to informal work. In addition, the Criminal Code does not explicitly prohibit the use of children in illicit activities. Furthermore, the compulsory education age leaves children who are 15 years of age vulnerable to the worst forms of child labor, because they are not required to be in school but are not legally permitted to work full time.

I. PREVALENCE AND SECTORAL DISTRIBUTION OF CHILD LABOR

Children in Georgia are subjected to the worst forms of child labor, including in forced begging, sometimes as a result of human trafficking. Children also engage in child labor in agriculture. (1-4) Table 1 provides key indicators on children's work and education in Georgia.

Table 1. Statistics on Children's Work and Education

Children	Age	Percent
Working (% and population)	5 to 14	2.9 (13,547)
Attending School (%)	5 to 14	96.9
Combining Work and School (%)	7 to 14	3.7
Primary Completion Rate (%)		92.8

Based on a review of available information, Table 2 provides an overview of children's work by sector and activity.

Table 2. Overview of Children's Work by Sector and Activity

Sector/Industry	Activity
Agriculture	Farming, activities unknown (1,4,5)
Services	Street work, including begging and vending (1,4,6-8)
Categorical Worst Forms of Child Labor‡	Commercial sexual exploitation, sometimes as a result of human trafficking (8-10)
	Forced begging, sometimes as a result of human trafficking (1,4,8-10)

‡ Child labor understood as the worst forms of child labor per se under Article 3(a)–(c) of ILO C. 182.

Georgia

MODERATE ADVANCEMENT

Georgia is a source and transit country for child trafficking, especially of girls to Turkey and the United Arab Emirates for the purposes of commercial sexual exploitation. (6,10) Limited evidence indicates children may perform hazardous activities in construction. (11) Roma and Azerbaijani Kurd ethnic minorities and refugee and internally displaced children from Georgia, Armenia, and Moldova are subjected to forced begging and coerced into criminality in Georgia. (6-10,12) Estimates suggest that 1,000 to 2,000 children earn a living by begging, primarily caused by poverty or domestic violence. (4,6,7) During the reporting period, fewer children were reported to be engaged in begging as a result of economic contraction due to the COVID-19 pandemic, including a reduction in the tourism industry. (8) Many of the child beggars are from Roma communities. (6,8)

Lack of information limits an assessment of the types of work children perform and the sectors in which they work in the occupied regions of Abkhazia and South Ossetia, which are occupied by Russian forces and not under control of the central government. (1,4,10,13)

Children who do not attend school in Georgia are vulnerable to the worst forms of child labor. Socially vulnerable children, children from impoverished families, children with disabilities, and those who live in rural areas may have difficulty accessing education, in part due to a lack of identity documents. (1,12,14) Although the law provides a path for homeless and transient children to obtain identity documents, government outreach remains insufficient to address the issue. (12) During the reporting period, the government issued 12 temporary identification documents to minor foreign nationals (8 for homeless children and 4 for children victims of violence), 10 identity cards, 1 temporary residence card, and 5 biometric passports to homeless children and child victims of violence. (15) The identity cards ensure that such children are provided with additional state-funded services, including social, medical, and educational programs. (1) In addition, some children from Roma communities lack identity documents, and therefore have challenges accessing education. (12) However, UNICEF notes that some families continue to destroy identification and other documents in an effort to avoid interaction with state officials. (7,16)

II. LEGAL FRAMEWORK FOR CHILD LABOR

Georgia has ratified all key international conventions concerning child labor (Table 3).

Table 3. Ratification of International Conventions on Child Labor

	Convention	Ratification

The government has established laws and regulations related to child labor (Table 4). However, gaps exist in Georgia's legal framework to adequately protect children from the worst forms of child labor, including the minimum age for work.

Table 4. Laws and Regulations on Child Labor

Standard	Meets International Standards	Age	Legislation
Minimum Age for Work	No	16	Article 10 of the Labor Code of Georgia (17)
Minimum Age for Hazardous Work	Yes	18	Article 10 of the Labor Code of Georgia; Articles 2 and 5 of the Law on Occupational Safety; Resolution 381 Approving the List of Dangerous, Heavy, Harmful, and Hazardous Works (17-19)
Identification of Hazardous Occupations or Activities Prohibited for Children	Yes		Article 10(4) of the Labor Code of Georgia; Articles 2 and 5 of the Law on Occupational Safety; Resolution 381 Approving the List of Dangerous, Heavy, Harmful, and Hazardous Works (17-19)
Prohibition of Forced Labor	Yes		Article 30 of the Constitution of Georgia; Articles 143/1, 143/2, and 143/3 of the Criminal Code of Georgia; Law of Georgia on Combating Human Trafficking; Article 55 of the Code on the Rights of the Child (20-23)
Prohibition of Child Trafficking	Yes		Articles 143, 143/1, 143/2, and 143/3, and 172 of the Criminal Code of Georgia; Law of Georgia on Combating Human Trafficking (21,22)
Prohibition of Commercial Sexual Exploitation of Children	Yes		Articles 143/1, 143/2, and 143/3, 253–255, 255/1, and 255/2 of the Criminal Code of Georgia; Article 56 of the Code on the Rights on the Child (22,23)
Prohibition of Using Children in Illicit Activities	No		Article 171 of the Criminal Code of Georgia (22)
Minimum Age for Voluntary State Military Recruitment	Yes	18	Article 10 of the Law of Georgia on Military Duty and Military Service (24)
Prohibition of Compulsory Recruitment of Children by (State) Military	Yes		Articles 9 and 21 of the Law of Georgia on Military Duty and Military Service (24)
Prohibition of Military Recruitment by Non-state Armed Groups	No		Article 410 of the Criminal Code of Georgia; Article 59 of the Code on the Rights of the Child (22,23)
Compulsory Education Age	Yes	15‡	Articles 2 and 9 of the Law of Georgia on General Education (25)
Free Public Education	Yes		Article 22 of the Law of Georgia on General Education (25)

The new Code on the Rights of the Child entered into force in June 2020, establishing the right of children to be protected from harmful activities and forbidding forms of exploitation, including child labor and commercial sexual exploitation. (1,23) In addition, in November, the Healthcare Minister approved a decree that defines hazardous work and lists activities and occupations prohibited for children under age 18 including industrial work such as mining and construction, and work involving exposure to extreme temperatures, hazardous chemicals, or potentially dangerous elements, such as electricity or munitions. (26) In July, Parliament adopted amendments to the Criminal Code that strengthen penalties for child pornography. (8,22)

The labor law governing the minimum age for work is not in compliance with international standards because it does not apply to informal work. (17,27) The compulsory education age leaves children who are age 15 vulnerable to the worst forms of child labor because they are not required to be in school but are not legally permitted to work full time. Article 4 of the Labor Code specifies conditions under which children ages 14 and 15 may perform light work, and Article 14 prescribes the hours, but the law does not specify the activities in which light work is permissible. (17,27) Article 4 of the Labor Code stipulates that children under age 14 are allowed to work only in sport, art, and culture, as well as some advertising activities. (17,27) Lastly, Georgia's laws do not criminally prohibit the use, procuring, and offering of children for the production or trafficking of drugs. (22)

III. ENFORCEMENT OF LAWS ON CHILD LABOR

The government has established institutional mechanisms for the enforcement of laws and regulations on child labor (Table 5). However, gaps exist within the operations of enforcement agencies that may hinder adequate enforcement of their child labor laws.

MODERATE ADVANCEMENT

Table 5. Agencies Responsible for Child Labor Law Enforcement

Organization/Agency	Role
Ministry of Labor, Health, and Social Affairs (MoLHSA)	Oversees child welfare issues and pursues enforcement of labor laws. (1,12) Through the Department of Labor and Employment Policy, revises laws and policies to be in accordance with international standards. (28) Through the Social Services Agency, administers social benefits such as targeted social assistance, health care, and vouchers for day care, and employs social workers who oversee child protection. (4) Receives complaints through the Child Protection and Social Programs sub-department, and refers complaints of child labor violations to law enforcement agencies for investigation. (28) In 2020, enforced occupational safety and health laws, including those related to hazardous child labor, and enforced prohibitions on forced labor and human trafficking through the Department of Labor Inspection. (4) In January 2021, MoLHSA's Department of Labor Inspection became a separate Labor Inspection Service within MoLHSA. (8)
Ministry of Internal Affairs (MoIA)	Enforces criminal laws related to child labor and child trafficking. (1,4) Through District Police Units, collects information on minors in each jurisdiction and visits minors' families to inform them of their rights. (28) Through the Human Rights Department, ensures prompt responses to human trafficking crimes and suggests recommendations for investigations. (6) Operates a hotline that is available in Georgian, Russian, and English. (6)
Central Criminal Police Department within MoIA	Leads criminal investigations of trafficking in persons, including the trafficking of children, through the Division for Combating Human Trafficking and Illegal Migration. (1,6) Identifies human traffickers and collates data on traffickers across various agencies through the Information-Analytical Department. (29) Investigates possible human trafficking schemes by deploying teams of law enforcement officials in Mobile Units to investigate companies offering suspicious work opportunities abroad. (10,30)
Prosecutor's Office of Georgia	An independent entity separate from the Ministry of Justice which prosecutes criminal cases involving child exploitation, forced labor, and trafficking in persons. (9,31) Includes the Prosecution Service of Georgia Working Group, which addresses labor trafficking issues under the framework of the Prosecution Service Strategy for 2017–2021. (8,12)

In 2020, Parliament adopted a new Law on Labor Inspection that defines the basic scope, jurisdiction, and power of inspections, as well as the rights and obligations of the Labor Inspection Service. It also ensures effective implementation of labor laws.

The mandate of the Labor Inspectorate applies to all labor rights determined by the Labor Code, Law on Public Service, including forced labor, labor exploitation and occupational safety and health (OSH) norms as determined by the Organic Law of Georgia on Occupational Safety. (1,32) However, research indicates the Labor Inspectorate does not have the staff, resources, and training to fully conduct labor oversight responsibilities. (8,10)

In December 2020, the Prosecutor's Office met virtually with a working group that includes the Ministry of Justice (MoJ), the Ministry of Internal Affairs (MoIA), the Labor Inspectorate, and the Agency for State Care to discuss the challenges of detecting labor exploitation and child labor cases during the pandemic. This working group has met regularly since its establishment in 2017 as part of a 5-year strategy to address the difficulties of detecting and prosecuting child labor and forced labor. (1)

The Russia-occupied regions of Abkhazia and South Ossetia are not under the control of Georgian central authorities, who are prevented from carrying out inspections and law enforcement there. (1,13)

Labor Law Enforcement

In 2020, labor law enforcement agencies in Georgia took actions to combat child labor (Table 6). However, gaps exist within the operations of the Ministry of Labor, Health, and Social Affairs (MoLHSA) that may hinder adequate labor law enforcement, including resource allocation.

Table 6. Labor Law Enforcement Efforts Related to Child Labor

In September, Parliament adopted a new law that defines the role and authority of labor inspectors and the rights and obligations of the Labor Inspection Service. The mandate of the Labor Inspectorate applies to all labor issues, including forced labor and labor exploitation, collective bargaining agreements, and OSH norms. (1) Although the number of inspections increased significantly from 2019, the majority of inspections were conducted based on pandemic-related regulations. (1) Out of the 21,081 inspections conducted, only 188 inspections were conducted on OSH issues, and 90 inspections were conducted on forced labor and labor exploitation, including child labor. Although inspections took place throughout the country and in a range of economic sectors, no inspections were conducted in agriculture. (1) In 2021, new amendments to the Labor Inspectorate's mandate will come into effect that will grant labor inspectors the authority to conduct inspections on private farms and homes. (1,17)

The government reported a twofold budget increase for the Labor Inspectorate in 2020. (1,32,33) Despite a notable increase from 2019, the number of labor inspectors is still likely insufficient for the size of Georgia's workforce, which includes around 1.9 million workers. (35) In January, the government adopted a decree to increase the number of labor inspectors to 100 in accord with the ILO's technical advice of a ratio approaching 1 inspector for every 20,000 workers in transition economies, but this goal was not met during the reporting period. (1,32,33,36,37) In September, in close cooperation with the ILO, the Labor Inspectorate trained 57 newly recruited labor inspectors on identification of forced labor and labor exploitation cases. (8) The inspectors continue to cover labor issues related to both children and adults, including a specialized unit responsible for identifying child labor and trafficking violations. However, the government reported that only six inspectors were tasked with monitoring labor code violations, and the remainder were focused solely on OSH concerns. (1,33)

Criminal Law Enforcement

In 2020, the government's criminal law enforcement agencies appeared to function adequately in addressing child labor (Table 7).

Table 7. Criminal Law Enforcement Efforts Related to Child Labor

Law enforcement agencies received training on addressing the most relevant forms of child labor, including forced child labor, child trafficking, and commercial exploitation and use of children in illicit activities. In November, the MoJ and the International Center for Migration Policy Development, with support from the EU, conducted training on human trafficking and interviewing potential victims, as well as methods of identifying child labor and child forced begging. (1) The government employs Witness and Victim Coordinators, who participate in court proceedings by advocating for the interests of witnesses and victims and work to avoid re-victimization. Between April and December 2020, Witness and Victim Coordinators assisted 12 minor victims of trafficking in persons. (8) The Prosecutor's Office of Georgia (POG) conducted six training activities for prosecutors and investigators, including training covering human trafficking, child exploitation, online sexual exploitation of children, and usage of crypto currency within the sphere of child pornography. (8) The POG also launched a new 3 month-long training course for prosecutors on combating trafficking in persons. (1)

Following a 2019 joint Georgian, U.S., Australian, and Europol investigation of a child trafficking ring, in 2020, Georgian authorities convicted 23 people on multiple charges, including child trafficking and producing or selling child pornography. Sentences for those convicted ranged from 3 to 20 years' imprisonment, as well as fines and property confiscation. (1,8) In addition, the MoA initiated investigations into four alleged cases of forced begging of minors, resulting in one prosecution of a case involving two children. (1,8) Three other individuals were convicted of labor exploitation of minors. (1)

Criminal investigators were unable to investigate and prosecute any potential human trafficking cases, including of children, in Abkhazia and South Ossetia because they remain occupied by Russian forces and outside of central government control. (1,6,38)

The MoA continued to support the operation of six mobile task force units dedicated to anti-trafficking activities. The task force units continued to proactively interview individuals in vulnerable occupations and demographics, including hospitality workers and children living and working on the streets, to identify possible cases of labor exploitation and to advise them of their legal rights and available government services. (15)

IV. COORDINATION OF GOVERNMENT EFFORTS ON CHILD LABOR

The government has established mechanisms to coordinate its efforts to address child labor (Table 8). However, gaps exist that hinder the effective coordination of efforts to address child labor, including coordination among agencies.

Table 8. Key Mechanisms to Coordinate Government Efforts on Child Labor

Coordinating Body	Role & Description
Inter-Agency Commission for the Implementation of the UN CRC	Supervises implementation of the Child Rights chapter of the National Human Rights Action Plan, which is based on provisions of the UN CRC. (1,4) Met several times during 2020 and drafted a concept paper on psychological-social service centers for children victims of violence. Based on the paper, two psycho-social service centers for child victims of sexual violence will be established in Tbilisi and Kutaisi under the Agency for State Care. (1)
Inter-Agency Human Rights Council	Oversees law and policy on gender equality, children's rights, anti-discrimination, and the rights of people with disabilities. Chaired by the Prime Minister and includes government ministers and members of civil society. (1)

Coordinating Body	Role & Description
Inter-Agency Anti-Trafficking Coordination Council for the Implementation of Measures Against Human Trafficking	Coordinates government efforts against human trafficking, including efforts to protect and rehabilitate victims. (9) Drafts National Action Plans and other strategic government programs to address trafficking in persons and publishes biannual statistics on trafficking, including sexual and labor exploitation of minors. (1) Refers child victims to shelters to receive social services. Chaired by the Minister of Justice and comprises representatives from state agencies and non-state entities. (6,9) In 2020, worked to create specialized thematic working groups, including a group to draft a Governmental Strategy for 2021–2025 on Protection of Homeless Children from Violence, including Trafficking in Persons. Drafted guidelines for mobile units of the Agency for State Care to identify and assist children working and living on the streets. (8)
Public Defender of Georgia	Monitors the observance of human rights and freedoms in Georgia. Advises the government on the nation's laws, policies, and practices on human rights issues. (39) Publishes an annual parliamentary report on human rights in Georgia with a chapter dedicated to children's rights. (1) In 2020, monitored and reported on adverse effects of the pandemic on vulnerable child populations. (1)
Human Rights and Civil Integration Committee	Standing committee in Parliament that prepares new legislation and proposes amendments to existing laws relating to children's rights, trafficking in persons, and other human rights issues. Monitors and evaluates the government's compliance with and respect for national laws and international agreements. (40)
Joint Child Referral Mechanism	Ensures inter-agency coordination of the enforcement of child labor laws and enumerates the procedures for referring children subject to any form of violence, including labor exploitation, to child protective services. (1,6,12) Through MoIA, registers cases of child exploitation identified by any government ministry. Through MoLHSA, assesses the child's condition, provides shelter and rehabilitation services to the child as needed, and monitors the child's case. (1)

In 2020, the Interagency Human Rights Council met for the first time in several years to discuss the protection of human rights during the pandemic. (1,41) The Human Rights and Civil Integration Committee, with financial support from UNICEF, established a “Child Hotline” through the State Care Agency that provides free assistance to children by connecting them to the relevant governmental and non-governmental agencies. The hotline can provide both over-the-phone and in-person psychological support and counseling services for children and parents. (1)

The government developed a new coordination system between state agencies and municipalities in accord with the Code on the Rights of the Child. The Permanent Parliamentary Council on Protection of the Rights of the Child coordinated the establishment of Child Care and Protection units in 64 municipalities, and the government provided retraining to up to 200 social workers and 64 Code coordinators, as well as judges, lawyers, legal aid officers, and public servants. (1,8,15)

The Inter-Agency Anti-Trafficking Coordination Council for the Implementation of Measures Against Human Trafficking (A-TIP Council) began drafting the Governmental Strategy for 2021–2025 on Protection of Homeless Children from Violence, including Trafficking in Persons. (1) In December, the A-TIP Council's Secretariat issued a 2021–2022 State Action Plan, which addresses new challenges caused by the pandemic and provides for increased activities to detect online human trafficking recruitment. During the year, the Secretariat organized joint thematic meetings of different agencies to discuss human trafficking challenges. (1,8) The Central Criminal Police Department and MoLHSA's Labor Inspectorate began drafting an update to their Memorandum of Mutual Cooperation. However, a lack of transparency and clarity among the various coordinating bodies still hinders cooperation between them, the Labor Inspectorate, and law enforcement. (1,10,16)

V. GOVERNMENT POLICIES ON CHILD LABOR

The government has established policies related to child labor (Table 9). However, policy gaps exist that hinder efforts to address child labor, including the scope of existing policies.

MODERATE ADVANCEMENT

Table 9. Key Policies Related to Child Labor

Policy	Description
National Human Rights Action Plan (2018–2020)	Included a chapter on children's rights to lay out actions for government's commitment toward developing a broad-based approach to fighting violence against children. (12,42)
National Action Plan on Trafficking in Persons (2019–2020)	Supported the development of policy and the implementation of activities to address human trafficking. Committed the government to protect and effectively integrate street children, through measures such as issuing identity documents and increasing school enrollment. (1,9,12,43,44) In addition, the government approved a National Action Plan for 2021–2022. (1)
Code on the Rights of the Child	Commits the government to establish or implement a range of measures aiming to protect children from violence and hazardous child labor. (1,4,23) More than 200 judges and 600 lawyers received training on Georgia's Code on the Rights of the Child, which went into effect in June 2020. (1)

‡ The government had other policies that may have addressed child labor issues or had an impact on child labor. (12,45)

Although the government has established policies to address child begging, child trafficking, child labor in street work, and hazardous child labor, it does not have a policy to address child labor in agriculture.

VI. SOCIAL PROGRAMS TO ADDRESS CHILD LABOR

In 2020, the government funded and participated in programs that include the goal of eliminating child labor (Table 10). However, gaps exist in these social programs, including the adequacy of programs to address the full scope of the problem.

Table 10. Key Social Programs to Address Child Labor

Program	Description
Agency for State Care and for the (Statutory) Victims of Human Trafficking†	MoLHSA legal public entity under law that provides care and services for victims of trafficking and domestic and sexual violence, as well as for elderly, disabled, and orphan populations. (1) Implements the government's Rehabilitation and Reintegration Strategy, which includes operating shelters for victims of human trafficking in Batumi and Tbilisi. (12) Operates a hotline for potential victims of human trafficking with assistance available in eight languages. (8) In 2020, received a budget of $13.21 million. (1)
Ministry of Education, Science, Culture, and Sport‡	Oversees national primary education curriculum and vocational training programs. (1) Funds programs that promote the inclusion of vulnerable children in education. (1,12) Initiatives include a program designed to increase the participation in school by street children, victims of forced begging, and children who are seasonal agricultural workers; a program to increase the number of Georgian language teachers in communities with large ethnic minority populations; and a program to distribute free textbooks to public school students. (12,46) Leads anti-trafficking activities in elementary schools, high schools, and institutions of higher education. (8) In 2020, the government continued to fund inclusive education and allocated money to develop or renovate the infrastructure of education facilities. (1)
Targeted Social Assistance Program and Child Benefit Program†	Social Services Agency-administered social assistance programs designed to eliminate poverty, especially child poverty. In 2020, provided a variety of services, including shelters for homeless children, support for impoverished families, and daycare for vulnerable children. (1)
Social Rehabilitation and Childcare Program†	Provides assistance to children at high risk of abandonment and children with disabilities; places abandoned children in appropriate care. In 2020, received a budget of $11.26 million (GEL 37.4 million), compared to $12.37 million (GEL 35.9 million) in 2019. (1,4)
Strengthening Labor Law Enforcement	$8.75 million USDOL-funded grant to enhance the Government of Georgia's capacity to create, implement, and monitor the application of labor laws by working with ministries of labor, labor judges, and other judicial labor authorities. Uses data collected from labor inspections to identify gaps that facilitate violations and to support legal reforms to address them. (47) Additional information is available on the USDOL website . (48)

‡ The government had other social programs that may have included the goal of eliminating or preventing child labor. (1,6,12,49)

During the reporting period, the government conducted regular awareness-raising campaigns related to trafficking in persons. (1) The MoJ, in cooperation with IOM, conducted an awareness campaign in October focusing on forced begging with the message “Danger might be invisible at first.” The campaign's video clips were published through social networks and television broadcast, and banners were placed in Public Service Halls of most major cities, as well as at bus stops in Batumi and Tbilisi. (1,50) Although Georgia has programs that target child labor, the scope of these programs is insufficient to fully address the extent of the problem, especially regarding street children. (1,51) The Agency for State Care continued to operate crisis centers and shelters with additional precautions in place to prevent the spread of the pandemic, remained active in removing begging children from the streets, and provided services to 275 children in 2020. (I,8) Two child victims of forced begging were identified and referred to the Crisis Service Center in Tbilisi, where they received medical, social, psychological, and other relevant services. (I)

Due to the pandemic causing schools to move to distance learning, the Ministry of Education, Science, Culture, and Sport (MoES) created platforms for distance learning and launched the “TV School” educational project to broadcast the national curriculum’s standard lessons in Georgian, minority languages, and sign language. (I) The MoES also worked to make learning content available to children in penitentiary institutions and reviewed all vocational education programs to identify the components that could be delivered remotely. Vocational programs enrolled 9,500 students during the reporting period. (I,52) However, the Public Defender of Georgia noted that educational access remains inadequate for vulnerable children, including students with disabilities, street children, and children in state care. (I,53)

VII. SUGGESTED GOVERNMENT ACTIONS TO ELIMINATE CHILD LABOR

Based on the reporting above, suggested actions are identified that would advance the elimination of child labor in Georgia (Table I I).

Table I I. Suggested Government Actions to Eliminate Child Labor

Area	Suggested Action	Year(s) Suggested
Legal Framework	Ensure that the minimum age for work applies to all children, including those in informal work.	2017 – 2020
	Increase the age up to which education is compulsory to age 16, the minimum age for work.	2009 – 2020
	Ensure that the law’s light work provisions are sufficiently specific to prevent children from involvement in child labor.	2016 – 2020
	Ensure that the law criminally prohibits the use, procuring, and offering of children for the production and trafficking of drugs.	2019 – 2020
	Ensure that the law criminally prohibits the recruitment of children under age 18 by non-state armed groups.	2016 – 2020
Enforcement	Ensure that inspections are conducted in all economic sectors in which child labor violations may be present, including agriculture.	2019 – 2020
	Ensure that the Department of Labor Inspection within the Ministry of Labor, Health, and Social Affairs has funding to employ a sufficient number of inspectors and that inspectors are capable of performing quality targeted, complaint-based, and unannounced inspections in all sectors and businesses on all labor laws.	2009 – 2020
	Increase the number of labor inspectors to meet the ILO’s technical advice to monitor and combat child labor.	2018 – 2020
Coordination	Continue to increase coordination between the Department of Labor Inspection within the Ministry of Labor, Health, and Social Affairs and the Criminal Police Department.	2018 – 2020
Government Policies	Adopt a policy that addresses all relevant forms of child labor, including child labor in agriculture.	2017 – 2020
Social Programs	Collect and publish data on the extent and nature of child labor, including in agriculture, to inform policies and programs.	2018 – 2020
	Make additional efforts to register children from Roma communities, provide them with identity documents, and ensure that these groups can access education.	2018 – 2020
	Ensure that socially vulnerable children, children from impoverished families, and children who live in rural areas have access to education.	2019 – 2020
	Expand existing programs to address the scope of the child labor problem, especially for street children.	2018 – 2020

In 2020, Ghana made moderate advancement in efforts to eliminate the worst forms of child labor. The Ministry of Employment and Labor Relation's Child Labor Unit developed an Inter-Sectoral Standard Operating Procedure for child protection and family welfare, which provides a framework of agreed standards and procedures for stakeholders. In addition, the government opened a new shelter for child trafficking victims, significantly increased investigations and convictions of child labor crimes, and launched a training of trainers course for labor inspectors. However, children in Ghana are subjected to the worst forms of child labor, including in fishing and cocoa production and harvesting, each sometimes as a result of human trafficking. Prohibitions related to the commercial sexual exploitation of children do not meet international standards as the use of children in pornographic performances is not criminally prohibited, and the law also does not prohibit the use of children for illicit activities, including for the production and trafficking of drugs. In addition, the government has not acceded to the United Nations Convention on the Rights of the Child's Optional Protocol on the Sale of Children, Child Prostitution and Child Pornography, and resource constraints severely limited the government's ability to adequately enforce labor laws and implement social programs during the reporting period.

I. PREVALENCE AND SECTORAL DISTRIBUTION OF CHILD LABOR

Children in Ghana are subjected to the worst forms of child labor, including in fishing and cocoa production and harvesting, each sometimes as a result of human trafficking. (1,2) During the reporting period, NORC at the University of Chicago released a report detailing findings from a sectorally representative survey conducted in Côte d'Ivoire and Ghana during the cocoa harvesting season of 2018–2019. This report found an increase in child labor (and hazardous child labor) in cocoa production during the 10-year timeframe since the survey in 2008–2009. (3) Table 1 provides key indicators on children's work and education in Ghana.

Table 1. Statistics on Children's Work and Education

Children	Age	Percent
Working (% and population)	5 to 14	13.0 (927,591)
Attending School (%)	5 to 14	89.9
Combining Work and School (%)	7 to 14	13.2
Primary Completion Rate (%)		93.8

Based on a review of available information, Table 2 provides an overview of children's work by sector and activity.

Table 2. Overview of Children's Work by Sector and Activity

Sector/Industry	Activity
Agriculture	Producing cocoa, including land clearing, using machetes and cutlasses for weeding, collecting cocoa pods with a harvesting hook, breaking cocoa pods, exposure to pesticides,† and carrying heavy loads† of water (1-3,6-12)
	Production of palm oil and cotton, including weeding, and harvesting (8,13)
	Herding livestock, including cattle, hunting, and work in slaughterhouses (14,15)

Sector/Industry	Activity
Agriculture	Fishing, including for tilapia; preparing bait, nets, and fishing gear; launching, paddling, and draining canoes; diving for fish; casting and pulling fishing nets and untangling them underwater; sorting, picking, cleaning, smoking, transporting, and selling fish; cleaning and repairing nets; and building and repairing boats (1,2,7,9,13,16,17)
Industry	Quarrying† and small-scale mining,† sometimes for gold, including using mercury,† digging in deep pits, crushing rocks by hand, carrying heavy loads,† and operating machinery† (8,9,18)
	Manufacturing† (8,11)
	Construction and bricklaying or carrying heavy loads (1,8,11)
Services	Domestic work (2,6,10)
	Transporting heavy loads as kayayei † (19,20)
	Work in transportation† (11)
	Street work,† including begging,† small-scale vending, and working at restaurants or bars† (8,18)
Categorical Worst Forms of Child Labor‡	Commercial sexual exploitation, sometimes as a result of human trafficking (1,10,15,21-24)
	Forced labor in begging; agriculture, including cocoa; herding; fishing, including for tilapia; artisanal gold mining; domestic work; and street work, including vending and carrying heavy loads; sometimes as a result of human trafficking (1,15,16,23-28)
	Forced ritual servitude for girls known as trokosi , including in domestic work for priests (9,21,22,27,29,30)

† Determined by national law or regulation as hazardous and, as such, relevant to Article 3(d) of ILO C. 182.

‡ Child labor understood as the worst forms of child labor per se under Article 3(a)–(c) of ILO C. 182.

A majority of children subject to human trafficking in Ghana are exploited for labor in cocoa production, domestic work, commercial sexual exploitation, gold mining, and fishing. Children as young as age 4 are subjected to forced labor in fishing in the areas around Lake Volta, sometimes as a result of human trafficking. (3,15,16,21,26-28) Children also use sharp tools and are exposed to agro-chemicals while working in the cocoa sector. (8,12) In addition, girls as young as age 13 from rural northern regions of Ghana travel to urban centers to work as kayayei, or female porters, carrying heavy loads on their heads in markets, and are particularly vulnerable to sexual abuse and exploitation. (19,20)

According to the Constitution and the Education Act, primary education in Ghana is free and compulsory from kindergarten through junior high school. (31,32) However, impoverished families often struggle to pay administrative fees and to purchase school supplies and uniforms, although research found that students are not prevented from enrolling due to a lack of uniform or birth certificate. (33,34) The dual-track system, introduced in 2018, allows secondary school students, typically between the ages of 13 and 17, to attend school in alternating semesters and take advantage of opportunities such as vocational training when they are not in school. (19,35) However, reports suggest that such opportunities are often not readily available or affordable. As a result, these children are vulnerable to exploitation in child labor during the times when they are not in school. (1,6,9,22,23,36) Although the government has significantly increased the overall number of children attending school, the system involves children rotating being in class a few months at a time, resulting in idle time for many students, which has had the unintended consequence of an increase in vulnerability to child trafficking or forced labor. (24) In addition, factors such as a shortage of classrooms, long distances to schools, absence of sanitation facilities, overcrowding in urban areas, sexual harassment of girls in schools, physical violence and verbal abuse in schools, and poor educational infrastructure, particularly in rural areas, severely limit access to education for many children. (1,6,9,22,36,37) In response, the government has made efforts to increase the accessibility of public education, including by building schools to reduce the distance students must travel, providing school uniforms, lifting birth registration requirements for enrollment, and extending free education through high school. (35,36) In addition, the government operates 14 national schools for visually and hearing impaired students. (34,36)

II. LEGAL FRAMEWORK FOR CHILD LABOR

Ghana has ratified most key international conventions concerning child labor (Table 3).

Table 3. Ratification of International Conventions on Child Labor

Convention	Ratification
 ILO C. 138, Minimum Age	✓
ILO C. 182, Worst Forms of Child Labor	✓
 UN CRC	✓
UN CRC Optional Protocol on Armed Conflict	✓
UN CRC Optional Protocol on the Sale of Children, Child Prostitution and Child Pornography
 Palermo Protocol on Trafficking in Persons	✓

The government has established laws and regulations related to child labor (Table 4). However, gaps exist in Ghana's legal framework to adequately protect children from the worst forms of child labor, including the use of children in commercial sexual exploitation.

Table 4. Laws and Regulations on Child Labor

Standard	Meets International Standards	Age	Legislation
Minimum Age for Work	Yes	15	Sections 89 and 92 of the Children's Act (38)
Minimum Age for Hazardous Work	Yes	18	Sections 91 and 92 of the Children's Act (38)
Identification of Hazardous Occupations or Activities Prohibited for Children	Yes		Articles 28.1d, 28.2, and 28.5 of the Constitution; Article 7 of the Labor Regulations Legislative Instrument; Sections 91 and 92 of the Children's Act; Article 58 of the Labor Act (31,38-41)
Prohibition of Forced Labor	Yes		Articles 16.1 and 16.2 of the Constitution; Articles 116–117 of the Labor Act; Sections 1–3 and 42 of the Human Trafficking Act; Sections 1 and 2 of the Human Trafficking Prohibition Legislative Instrument (31,39,42,43)
Prohibition of Child Trafficking	Yes		Sections 1 and 2 of the Human Trafficking Act; Sections 1 and 2 of the Human Trafficking Prohibition Legislative Instrument; Articles 21–25 of the Labor Regulations Legislative Instrument (40,42,43)
Prohibition of Commercial Sexual Exploitation of Children	No		Sections 101A, 107, 108, 110–111, 274–277, and 279–283 of the Criminal Offenses Act; Article 7(2) of the Labor Regulations Legislative Instrument (40,44)
Prohibition of Using Children in Illicit Activities	No
Minimum Age for Voluntary State Military Recruitment	Yes	18	Ghana Armed Forces General Eligibility (Recruits) (45)
Prohibition of Compulsory Recruitment of Children by (State) Military	Yes*		Ghana Armed Forces General Eligibility (Recruits) (45)
Prohibition of Military Recruitment by Non-state Armed Groups	No
Compulsory Education Age	Yes	15‡	Article 2.2 of the Education Act (32)
Free Public Education	Yes		Article 25.1.a of the Constitution; Articles 1.1, 1.2, and 2.2 of the Education Act (31,32)

‡ Age calculated based on available information (46)

Ghana's laws do not cover the procuring or offering of children in the production of pornography or the use, procuring, or offering of children for pornographic performance. Although Ghana has prohibited some hazardous work for children, the current hazardous work list does not cover all occupations or activities in which child labor is known to occur, including in cocoa production. (1,40,47,48)

III. ENFORCEMENT OF LAWS ON CHILD LABOR

The government has established institutional mechanisms for the enforcement of laws and regulations on child labor (Table 5). However, gaps exist within the operations of enforcement agencies that may hinder adequate enforcement of their child labor laws.

Table 5. Agencies Responsible for Child Labor Law Enforcement

Organization/Agency	Role
Ministry of Employment and Labor Relations (MELR)	Enforces child labor laws. (19) Conducts national dialogue on Child Labor-Free Zones and a workshop on Child Labor-Free Zones to discuss child labor in the cocoa industry. (1) During the last quarter of 2019, MELR and the chocolate industry, supported by UNICEF and ILO, developed a public-private partnership to end child involvement in the cocoa supply chain. (2) UNICEF supported the drafting of the gap analysis and the framework for action for this partnership. The proposed interventions in the partnership cover social protection, education, health, and child protection sectors. (2) Further, during the reporting period, the Ministry of Employment and Labor Relations established guidelines for Child Labor-Free Zones and began pre-testing the Ghana Child Labor Monitoring System. (49)
Ministry of Local Government and Rural Development's District Assemblies	Through labor inspectors, investigate child labor violations, educate employers on compliance with child labor laws, and conduct inspections. (1,47) Through social services subcommittees, enforce child labor provisions in the informal sector. (1,38)
Ministry of the Interior	Through its Ghana Police Service, investigates, arrests, and prosecutes cases related to the worst forms of child labor and operates a 24/7 hotline for reporting crimes. (1) Within the Ghana Police Service, the Domestic Violence and Victim Support Unit and Anti-Human Trafficking Unit investigate cases and provide support to victims. (1,25) Through its Ghana Immigration Service, combats human trafficking through Anti-Human Smuggling and Trafficking Units. (1,50,51)
Ministry of Justice's Office of the Attorney General	Combats child labor by prosecuting child labor and child trafficking crimes. (1) Within the Economic and Organized Crime Office, the Human Trafficking Unit shares responsibility with the Ministry of the Interior's Anti-Human Trafficking Unit for combating human trafficking, confiscating proceeds from human trafficking, and providing ongoing training for law enforcement on prevention measures. (52,53)
Ministry of Gender, Children, and Social Protection (MOGCSP)	Combats child labor and leads government efforts to combat human trafficking. (1) Through its Department of Social Welfare, operates shelters for vulnerable and abused children, administers juvenile justice, and implements programs to combat child labor. (9) Through its Human Trafficking Secretariat, oversees the creation, implementation, and review of human trafficking policies and ensures proper monitoring, evaluation, and data collection. (1) During the reporting period, with UNICEF, developed an Inter-Sectoral Standard Operating Procedure for child protection and family welfare. (2)

Although the Office of the Attorney General is responsible for prosecuting child trafficking violations, there was an insufficient number of state attorneys designated to prosecute human trafficking crimes. The majority of cases were handled by the Ghana Police Service prosecutors, whose lack of formal legal training impedes their ability to prosecute complex criminal cases. (33,34,54) Research indicates that slow communication and challenges in evidence collection between the Ghana Police Service and the Attorney General's office may have further hampered efforts to prosecute cases of child trafficking. (1)

The Inter-Sectoral Standard Operating Procedure for child protection and family welfare provides a harmonized framework of agreed standards, principles, and procedures for all child protection and family welfare stakeholders to understand each other's roles and responsibilities. It identifies specific procedures for the use of forms, tools, and guides by social services and other key stakeholders, and it holds stakeholders accountable to each other. (2)

Labor Law Enforcement

In 2020, labor law enforcement agencies in Ghana took actions to combat child labor (Table 6). However, gaps exist within the authority of the Ministry of Employment and Labor Relations that may hinder adequate labor law enforcement, including the authority of labor inspectors to assess penalties.

Table 6. Labor Law Enforcement Efforts Related to Child Labor

Overview of Labor Law Enforcement	2019	2020
Labor Inspectorate Funding	Unknown (1)	Unknown (2)
Number of Labor Inspectors	57 (1)	62 (55)

Number of Labor Inspections Conducted	328 (34)	213 (55)
Number Conducted at Worksite	160† (1)	Unknown (2,55)
Number of Child Labor Violations Found	32 (34)	8 (2,55)
Number of Child Labor Violations for Which Penalties Were Imposed	Unknown (1)	No (2,55)
Number of Child Labor Penalties Imposed that Were Collected	Unknown (1)	No (2,55)
Routine Inspections Conducted	Yes (1)	Yes (55)
Routine Inspections Targeted	Yes (1)	Unknown (2)
Unannounced Inspections Permitted	Yes (1,39)	Yes (39,55)
Unannounced Inspections Conducted	Yes (1)	Yes (55)
Complaint Mechanism Exists	Yes (1)	Yes (55)
Reciprocal Referral Mechanism Exists Between Labor Authorities and Social Services	Yes (1)	Yes (2,55)

† Data are from January 1, 2018 to November 30, 2019.

The number of labor inspectors is likely insufficient for the size of Ghana's workforce, which includes approximately 12,490,000 workers in both the formal and informal sectors. (1,34,56) According to the ILO's technical advice of a ratio approaching 1 inspector for every 15,000 workers in industrializing economies, Ghana would employ about 833 inspectors. (56,57) Research found that inadequate resources, including funding, transportation, office space, and office supplies, hamper the labor inspectorate's capacity to enforce child labor laws, particularly in the informal sector in which child labor is most common. (1,2,47) In addition, a formal referral mechanism continued to be hindered by the lack of funding, shelter space, and transportation for victims. (1,2)

Criminal Law Enforcement

In 2020, criminal law enforcement agencies in Ghana took actions to combat child labor (Table 7). However, gaps exist within the operations of the criminal law enforcement agencies that may hinder adequate criminal law enforcement, including financial resource allocation.

Table 7. Criminal Law Enforcement Efforts Related to Child Labor

Overview of Criminal Law Enforcement	2019	2020
Initial Training for New Criminal Investigators	Yes (1)	Unknown (2,55)
Training on New Laws Related to the Worst Forms of Child Labor	N/A (1)	N/A (2)
Refresher Courses Provided	Yes (1)	Yes (2)
Number of Investigations	36 (34)	119 (2)
Number of Violations Found	152 (34)	Unknown (2,55)
Number of Prosecutions Initiated	4 (1)	Unknown (2,55)
Number of Convictions	4 (1)	8 (2)
Imposed Penalties for Violations Related to the Worst Forms of Child Labor	Yes (1)	Yes (2)
Reciprocal Referral Mechanism Exists Between Criminal Authorities and Social Services	Yes (1)	Yes (2)

Research indicates that poor inter-agency coordination and insufficient resources for transportation and victim support resulted in underreporting of cases and hampered criminal enforcement efforts. (9,21,25,27,54) In addition, members of parliament have attempted to discourage investigations or prosecutions of child trafficking offenses, and high staff turnover limits the government's ability to investigate and prosecute these offenses. (1,51)

Ghana

MODERATE ADVANCEMENT

Lastly, criminal enforcement agencies lack the resources to properly monitor sectors in which the worst forms of child labor are known to occur. For example, on Lake Volta, the police do not have boats to patrol for forced child labor in fishing. (23)

The Ministry of Employment and Labor Relations, the Ministry of Gender, Children, and Social Protection, the Ministry of Justice, and the Ministry of the Interior are committed to using the Trafficking in Persons Information System, developed by the IOM. (1) Research was unable to determine whether the Trafficking in Persons Information System was used during the reporting period.

IV. COORDINATION OF GOVERNMENT EFFORTS ON CHILD LABOR

The government has established mechanisms to coordinate its efforts to address child labor (Table 8). However, gaps exist that hinder the effective coordination of efforts to address child labor, including an absence of reporting on efforts to address child labor.

Table 8. Key Mechanisms to Coordinate Government Efforts on Child Labor

Coordinating Body	Role & Description
National Steering Committee on Child Labor	Coordinates government efforts to combat the worst forms of child labor, and oversees implementation of the National Plan of Action Phase II on the Elimination of the Worst Forms of Child Labor, which includes implementation of the Ghana Child Labor Monitoring System. (1,58,59) Led by MELR's Child Labor Unit, includes representatives from other ministries, employers' and workers' organizations, and civil society. (1,58,60,61) In June 2020, conducted a sensitization and awareness-raising campaign. (2) In addition, in March 2020, and in partnership with Japanese International Cooperation Agency, the government launched the Protocols and Guidelines for Establishing Child Labor-Free Zones. (62)
Inter-Ministerial Committee to Combat Human Trafficking	Aims to prevent Ghanaian migrants from becoming victims of human trafficking. Comprises MELR, MOGCSF, the Ministry of Justice, and the Ministry of the Interior. (1,34) Research was unable to determine whether this coordinating body was active during the reporting period.
Ministry of Employment and Labor Relations Child Labor Unit	Facilitates the development of policies and laws to combat child labor, coordinates interventions to combat child labor, and oversees child protection committees at the district level. (58,63) Provides technical support to ministries, departments and agencies, employers' and workers' organizations, and international agencies such as ILO, IOM, and UNICEF, and is responsible for conducting labor inspections in all sectors except the security and intelligence agencies. (1) During the reporting period, conducted field visits in the Oti, Volta, Central, and Eastern regions. (2)
Human Trafficking Management Board	Advises the MOGCSF on anti-trafficking policy, promotes prevention efforts, facilitates the protection and reintegration of child trafficking victims, and administers the Human Trafficking Fund. Continued to meet quarterly to carry out these activities during the reporting period. (34)

V. GOVERNMENT POLICIES ON CHILD LABOR

The government has established policies related to child labor (Table 9). However, policy gaps exist that hinder efforts to address child labor, including implementation.

Table 9. Key Policies Related to Child Labor

Policy	Description
National Plan of Action Phase II on the Elimination of the Worst Forms of Child Labor (2017–2020)	Aimed to address gaps identified in the first National Plan of Action (2009–2015), improve coordination, and reduce the worst forms of child labor to 10 percent by 2021, with a focus on the fishing, mining, and cocoa sectors. (8,33,59,60) Research was unable to determine whether activities were undertaken to implement this policy during the reporting period.
National Plan of Action for the Elimination of Human Trafficking in Ghana (2017–2021)	Aims to improve data collection, enhance victim protection, increase accountability for perpetrators, and conduct prevention and outreach, including an expansion of the Livelihood Empowerment Against Poverty Program. (64) The government made a shelter for child victims of human trafficking that became fully operational in August 2020. (2,24)
Hazardous Child Labor Activity Frameworks	Includes the Hazardous Child Labor Activity Framework and the Hazardous Child Labor Activity Framework for the Cocoa Sector. Developed in consultation with workers' and employers' organizations, to identify hazardous activities that should be prohibited for children. (41,48,65) Research was unable to determine whether activities were undertaken to implement these policies during the reporting period.

Policy	Description
2010 Declaration of Joint Action to Support the Implementation of the Harkin-Engel Protocol (2010 Declaration) and Its Accompanying Framework of Action	Joint Declaration by the Governments of Ghana, Côte d'Ivoire, and the United States, and the International Cocoa and Chocolate Industry. (66-68) Provides resources and coordinates with key stakeholders on efforts to reduce the worst forms of child labor in cocoa-producing areas. (66,67) Ensures that all project efforts implemented under the Declaration and Framework align with Ghana's national action plans to promote coherence and sustainability. (66-68) USDOL-funded projects and some industry-funded projects carried out activities in support of this policy during the reporting period. (34) The annual Child Labor Cocoa Coordinating Group meeting scheduled for November 2020 was postponed. (2)
Minerals and Mining Policy of Ghana	Prohibits child labor in mining and stipulates that children who visit mining sites must be supervised. (69) Research was unable to determine whether activities were undertaken to implement this policy during the reporting period.
Strategy on Anti-Child Labor and Trafficking in Fisheries (2016–2020)	Ministry of Fisheries and Aquaculture Development policy that aimed to significantly reduce the incidence of child labor in fisheries by improving child protection systems and increasing prosecution of offenders. (70) With USAID support, 10 coastal District Assemblies in the Central Region received $934,674 to mainstream activities to combat child labor and child trafficking activities in their 2018–2021 Medium-Term Development Plans. (34) Research was unable to determine whether activities were undertaken to implement this policy during the reporting period.

‡ The government had other policies that may have addressed child labor issues or had an impact on child labor. (25,71,72)

Although the government made strides in the implementation of its National Plan of Action for the Elimination of Human Trafficking in Ghana, research indicates that the government relied heavily on NGOs to implement the mandates of this policy. Other areas that required further government attention included provisioning of shelters in more regions and districts, and providing adequate funding and logistics for rescue operations and victim protection. (23)

VI. SOCIAL PROGRAMS TO ADDRESS CHILD LABOR

In 2020, the government funded and participated in programs that include the goal of eliminating or preventing child labor (Table 10). However, gaps exist in these social programs, including funding and adequacy of programs to address the problem in all sectors.

Table 10. Key Social Programs to Address Child Labor

Program	Description
Industry-Funded Projects	Projects that aim to increase sustainability in the cocoa sector; improve farmer livelihoods, improve access to education, and combat the worst forms of child labor in cocoa-growing areas. Some projects may be in support of the World Cocoa Foundation's CocoaAction (2014–2020) initiative and the spirit of the 2010 Declaration. (68) In 2020, the industry announced that it will invest $30 million by 2025 in Child Learning and Education Facility, a new education fund in Côte d'Ivoire that is expected to reach 5 million children. (73) In addition, companies have joined together for a larger-scale CocoaAction program with an estimated $400 million investment by the Industry between 2015 and 2020. (74)
U.S. Government-Funded Projects	Projects that aim to improve child protection measures in partnership with the host government. These projects include: the Child Protection Compact Partnership (2015–2020), a $5 million USDOS-funded project implemented by IOM and local NGO Free the Slaves; Accelerating Care Reform (2016–2020), an $8 million USAID-funded project implemented by the Department of Social Welfare and UNICEF to strengthen the social welfare system; Sustainable Fisheries Management Project (2014–2020), a $24 million USAID-funded project implemented by University of Rhode Island's Coastal Resource Center; the Complementary Basic Education Program, a $40 million joint contribution between USAID and the United Kingdom's Department for International Development to support Ghana's Ministry of Education's efforts to educate and re-integrate out-of-school children into the basic school system; and the Learning Support program, a $37 million USAID-UNICEF-funded program that helps increase inclusive education services for special needs children in primary schools. (19,75,76)

MODERATE ADVANCEMENT

Program	Description
Educational Programs†	Ministry of Education-funded programs under the Free Compulsory Universal Basic Education aim to increase school attendance and enrollment. (72,77) MOGCSF's Ghana School Feeding Program aims to reduce malnutrition and improve attendance among students, its Capitation Grant Scheme helps defray the cost of basic education for students in public primary schools, and its Ghana Education Service—Girls' Education Unit places girls' education officers at the regional and district levels and mobilizes communities to enroll more girls in school. (78-80) Further, the Ghana Cocoa Board's Child Education Support Program rehabilitates and builds schools in cocoa-growing areas. (77,81)
MOGCSF Programs†	Programs that aim to support vulnerable children. Includes: the Program to Assist Kayayei , which provides rehabilitation and reintegration support; the temporary program "Get Off the Street," which aims to remove children from the street and reintegrate them into family and educational settings; the Human Trafficking Fund, which aims to provide financial support to victims; and the conditional cash transfer program, which aims to provide monetary support to poor households with orphans and vulnerable children on the condition that these children attend school. (51,78,82) Research was unable to determine whether activities were undertaken to implement these social programs during the reporting period.
USDOL-Funded Projects	USDOL projects that aim to eliminate child labor. These projects include: MATE MASIE (2020-2024) ,* a $4 million project being implemented by Winrock; Adwuma Pa (2018-2022) , a $5 million project implemented by CARE; Combating Forced Labor and Labor Trafficking of Adults and Children in Ghana and Côte d'Ivoire (2017-2021) , a $2 million project implemented by Verité; and Assessing Progress in Reducing Child Labor in Cocoa-Growing Areas of Côte d'Ivoire and Ghana (2015-2021) , a $3 million project implemented by NORC at the University of Chicago. (12) Additional information is available on the USDOL website .

† Program is funded by the Government of Ghana.

‡ The government had other social programs that may have included the goal of eliminating or preventing child labor. (54,79,83,84)

Research indicates a lack of funding as one of the primary obstacles in implementing programs to address child labor. (1,51) In addition, government-run shelters for victims of the worst forms of child labor are few, and the government relies significantly on NGO-run shelters to which they can refer rescued children. (1,27,34)

In partnership with USDOL through its Combating Forced Labor and Labor Trafficking of Adults and Children in Ghana and Côte d'Ivoire program, the government provided a 6-week online training of trainers starting November 2020 for 10 Ghanaian labor inspectors from the Ministry of Employment and Labor Relations on how to identify, address, and prevent forced labor using the ILO's forced labor indicators approach. The development of this program was in response to a 2019 needs assessment. (85)

Although the government has worked closely with industry, NGOs, and international organizations to implement child labor programs in cocoa, fishing, and mining, the breadth of these programs remains insufficient to address the scope of the problem. (46)

VII. SUGGESTED GOVERNMENT ACTIONS TO ELIMINATE CHILD LABOR

Based on the reporting above, suggested actions are identified that would advance the elimination of child labor in Ghana (Table 11).

Table 11. Suggested Government Actions to Eliminate Child Labor

Area	Suggested Action	Year(s) Suggested
Legal Framework	Accede to the UN CRC Optional Protocol on the Sale of Children, Child Prostitution and Child Pornography.	2013 – 2020
	Ensure that laws criminally prohibit all forms of commercial sexual exploitation of children, including by prohibiting the use of a child in pornographic performances.	2009 – 2020
	Ensure that laws criminally prohibit the use of children in all illicit activities, including for the production and trafficking of drugs.	2016 – 2020
	Ensure that the law criminally prohibits the recruitment of children under age 18 by non-state armed groups.	2015 – 2020

Legal Framework	Update the hazardous work list for children to cover all hazardous types of work outlined in ILO C. 182.	2020
Enforcement	Ensure that prosecutors who have received sufficient legal training oversee and lead the prosecution of cases involving the worst forms of child labor; that an adequate number of state attorneys are available to prosecute cases, that government officials do not intervene in criminal investigations, and that these cases are prosecuted according to the law.	2015 – 2020
	Publish information on the amount of funding allocated to the labor inspectorate, number of labor inspections conducted at worksites, number of child labor inspections found, imposed, and collected, and number of routine inspections targeted.	2009 – 2020
	Ensure that the inspectorates have adequate resources, including office space, transportation, and supplies, to adequately carry out their mandate throughout the country.	2009-2020
	Strengthen the labor inspectorate by authorizing inspectors to assess penalties for labor violations.	2014 – 2020
	Ensure that labor inspectors receive adequate training, including initial training for new inspectors.	2014 – 2020
	Publish data on number of child labor violations found and penalties initiated.	2019 - 2020
	Significantly increase the number of labor inspectors to meet the ILO's technical advice.	2010 – 2020
	Strengthen and fully fund the mechanism to track cases of child labor for referral between law enforcement and social services providers.	2019 - 2020
	Improve communication and coordination among criminal enforcement agencies to prosecute cases of the worst forms of child labor and provide adequate victim support.	2015 – 2020
	Ensure that the Trafficking in Persons Information System is used and publish any related activities.	2020
Coordination	Ensure that all coordinating bodies are active and report their activities.	2013 – 2020
Government Policies	Ensure that government policies are active, adequately funded, and publish information on their activities.	2013 – 2020
Social Programs	Improve access to education by eliminating school-related fees, increasing the number of classrooms, improving access to schools, providing sanitation facilities, and prohibiting sexual harassment and physical violence in schools.	2010 – 2020
	Ensure that opportunities such as vocational training are available to secondary school students enrolled in the dual-track system.	2019 - 2020
	Ensure that social programs are active and receive sufficient funding to carry out their objectives.	2014 – 2020
	Expand the availability of government-supported shelter services for child victims and ensure that all shelters are operational.	2016 – 2020
	Create, replicate, and expand effective models for addressing exploitative child labor in the cocoa, fishing, and mining sectors.	2009 – 2020

In 2020, Grenada made no advancement in efforts to prevent the worst forms of child labor. Although research found no evidence that child labor exists in Grenada, no official study of child labor has been done to confirm this. The government's ability to prevent children from being subjected to the worst forms of child labor is limited because existing laws do not comprehensively prohibit child trafficking and the commercial sexual exploitation of children. In addition, the government did not authorize the labor inspectorate to assess penalties.

I. PREVALENCE AND SECTORAL DISTRIBUTION OF CHILD LABOR

Research found no evidence that child labor exists in Grenada. (1)

Table 1. Statistics on Children's Work and Education

According to the Education Act, public education is free and all children are required to attend school until age 16. (3)

Data on key indicators on children's work and education are not available from the sources used in this report.

II. LEGAL FRAMEWORK FOR CHILD LABOR

Grenada has ratified all key international conventions concerning child labor (Table 2).

Table 2. Ratification of International Conventions on Child Labor

The government has established laws and regulations related to child labor (Table 3). However, gaps exist in Grenada's legal framework to adequately protect children from the worst forms of child labor, including the prohibition of using children in illicit activities.

Grenada's Employment and Education Act allows holiday employment for children under age 16 under the supervision of their parents. (10) This does not meet international standards because it does not specify the minimum age, types of work, or number of hours permitted for such work. (4, 11) The Prevention of Trafficking in Persons Act does not sufficiently prohibit the trafficking of children, despite establishing heightened penalties for traffickers of children, because it requires the use of force, threats, abuse of power, or other forms of coercion to classify an act as human trafficking. (6) The Criminal Code, Electronic Crimes Bill, and Prevention of Trafficking in Persons Act do not comprehensively prohibit the commercial sexual exploitation of all children. (6,8) The government also has not established laws that prohibit the use of children in illicit activities.

III. ENFORCEMENT OF LAWS ON CHILD LABOR

The government has established institutional mechanisms for the enforcement of laws and regulations on child labor (Table 4).

Table 4. Agencies Responsible for Child Labor Law Enforcement

Organization/Agency	Role
Ministry of Labor	Enforces laws related to child labor through its Labor Commission, which generates a list of workplaces to inspect and employs labor officers who make unannounced visits to all workplaces on the list. (1)
Royal Grenada Police Force	Investigates crimes and enforces laws related to child labor. Helps the Child Protection Agency and the Ministry of Social Development and Housing provide emergency services to children. (1)
Ministry of Legal Affairs	Prosecutes criminal cases of child abuse in consultation with the Child Protection Agency. (1)
Child Protection Agency	Enforces laws related to child labor by receiving and investigating reports of child abuse. Provides social and protective services to abused children, including by requesting court emergency protection orders. (12-14)
Ministry of Social Development and Housing	Oversees the Child Abuse Hotline and investigates reports of child abuse. Refers child abuse cases to the Child Protection Agency and criminal cases to the police. (13, 14) Enforces laws related to school attendance and provides programs to support school attendance. (14)
Ministry of Education	Enforces laws related to school attendance through employment of truancy officers. Combats student absenteeism by monitoring students' attendance and facilitating students' access to school transportation and meals. (1)
Public Prosecutor's Office	Represents the State of Grenada and is charged with the responsibility of prosecuting criminal cases in lower and high courts. Authorized to institute, overtake, or discontinue criminal prosecutions. (15) Functions independently with overarching oversight over all public prosecutions. (15)

Labor Law Enforcement

In 2020, labor law enforcement agencies in Grenada took actions to combat child labor (Table 5). However, gaps exist within the authority of the Ministry of Labor that may hinder adequate labor law enforcement, including penalty assessment authorization.

The government employs six inspectors, two of whom have responsibility for inspections on child labor as part of their portfolios. If inspectors find a violation, they must inform the Royal Grenadian Police Force (RGPF), which then conducts a criminal investigation. (1,17) The Labor Commission determines which inspections to conduct by generating a list of workplaces to inspect; labor officers then make unannounced visits to all workplaces on the list. Labor inspectors conducted 76 inspections in Grenada since the onset of the COVID-19 pandemic to ensure compliance with pandemic-related protocols and other safety standards. (10) Inspectors noted no child labor violations during the inspections. (10) Research indicates that labor inspection and enforcement have limited resources. (1,17) In addition, the government did not provide complete data on its labor law enforcement efforts. (1,16)

Criminal Law Enforcement

Research did not find information on whether criminal law enforcement agencies in Grenada took actions to combat child labor.

NO ADVANCEMENT

If the RGPF finds sufficient evidence of a criminal violation, the RGPF may submit findings for possible prosecution by the Public Prosecutor's Office. (I, I7)

The government does not publicly release information on its criminal law enforcement efforts related to child labor. (I)

IV. COORDINATION OF GOVERNMENT EFFORTS ON CHILD LABOR

As there is no evidence of a problem, there appears to be no need for mechanisms to coordinate efforts to address child labor.

V. GOVERNMENT POLICIES ON CHILD LABOR

As there is no evidence of a problem, there appears to be no need for policies to address child labor.

VI. SOCIAL PROGRAMS TO ADDRESS CHILD LABOR

As there is no evidence of a problem, there appears to be no need for programs to address child labor. (I, I6, I7)

VII. SUGGESTED GOVERNMENT ACTIONS TO ELIMINATE CHILD LABOR

Based on the reporting above, the following actions would advance the continued prevention of child labor in Grenada (Table 7).

Table 7. Suggested Government Actions to Eliminate Child Labor

Area	Suggested Action	Year(s) Suggested
Legal Framework	Establish the minimum age for hazardous work at age 18 and identify hazardous occupations and activities prohibited for children.	2009 – 2020
	Prohibit the use of children in illicit activities, including drug production.	2011 – 2020
	Establish minimum age requirements of at least age 13 for holiday employment and define the activities, conditions, and number of hours permissible for such work.	2014 – 2020
	Ensure that the law establishes sanctions for all perpetrators of child trafficking, including in cases that do not show force, threats, or coercion.	2015 – 2020
	Enact legislation prohibiting the use, procuring, or offering of a child for all forms of commercial sexual exploitation.	2016 – 2020
	Ensure that the law criminally prohibits the recruitment of children under age 18 by non-state armed groups.	2016 – 2020
Enforcement	Provide sufficient funding and resources to allow agencies responsible for the enforcement of labor laws to fulfill their mission.	2015 – 2020
	Publish labor and criminal law enforcement data, including the following: information on the type of labor inspections; information on criminal inspectors' training; and the number of investigations, violations found, prosecutions initiated, and convictions in criminal law enforcement of the worst forms of child labor.	2016 – 2020
	Ensure that labor inspectors and criminal investigators receive training related to the worst forms of child labor.	2015 – 2020
	Publish data on labor inspectorate funding.	2018 – 2020
Social Programs	Collect and publish data on the extent and nature of child labor, including the worst forms of child labor, to inform policies and programs.	2009 – 2020

In 2020, Guatemala made moderate advancement in efforts to eliminate the worst forms of child labor. The government created the Inter-Institutional Coordinating Entity Against Labor Exploitation and Child Labor, a new coordinating body aimed at identifying and providing support to victims of human trafficking. It also publicized a WhatsApp number and e-mail address for reporting concerns related to human trafficking, labor exploitation, and the worst forms of child labor. In addition, the government prosecuted 36 cases of alleged child labor crimes and obtained 12 convictions. Guatemala also completed the implementation of the first phase of the Child Labor Risk Identification Model, which is designed to identify child labor vulnerabilities and develop strategies in response. As a result, analysis on risk and protection factors associated with the probability of child labor were developed for the 340 municipalities of the country. However, children in Guatemala are subjected to the worst forms of child labor, including in commercial sexual exploitation, sometimes as a result of human trafficking. Children also perform dangerous tasks in agriculture, including in the production of coffee. The insufficient number of labor inspectors and resources limited the Ministry of Labor and Social Welfare's ability to combat the worst forms of child labor. In addition, existing social programs are insufficient to reach all children engaged in exploitative labor and, in particular, do not target children engaged in domestic work or agriculture.

I. PREVALENCE AND SECTORAL DISTRIBUTION OF CHILD LABOR

Children in Guatemala are subjected to the worst forms of child labor, including in commercial sexual exploitation, sometimes as a result of human trafficking. Children also perform dangerous tasks in agriculture, including in the production of coffee. (1-6) Table 1 provides key indicators on children's work and education in Guatemala.

† Determined by national law or regulation as hazardous and, as such, relevant to Article 3(d) of ILO C. 182.

‡ Child labor understood as the worst forms of child labor per se under Article 3(a)–(c) of ILO C. 182.

Indigenous children account for more than half of child laborers in Guatemala, and children in rural areas are more likely to work than children in urban areas. Most of these children are engaged in agricultural activity. (22,29,30) In agriculture, working conditions for children involve using machetes and other dangerous tools, including in the cultivation of sugarcane. (14,31) Children as young as age 5 work in coffee fields picking and carrying heavy loads of coffee beans and mixing and applying pesticides. (32-34) Recently corroborated reports indicate that children are often sent into cities by their parents to work as street performers or beggars. Some of these children are sold to criminal organizations, work very long hours, and are at times forced to wear paint, which is often toxic, to attract more attention as they perform in the streets. (22)

Children, both Guatemalan-born and from other countries, are victims of commercial sexual exploitation, including in sex tourism. (20,27) Guatemala is a destination country for child sex tourists from Canada, the United States, and Western Europe. (5,6) Departments with high numbers of commercial sexual exploitation victims include Alta Verapaz, Escuintla, Guatemala, Huehuetenango, Quiché, and Quetzaltenango. (16) Girls, LGBTQI persons, and indigenous Guatemalans are particularly vulnerable to human trafficking. (27) Children are exploited for forced labor in Guatemala, particularly in agriculture and domestic work. (20) They are also forced to engage in street begging and vending in Guatemala City and along the border with Mexico. (6,28) Traffickers are increasingly using social media and online game applications to recruit children. (6,26) Multiple sources indicate that children are recruited into gangs to serve as lookouts, couriers, and drug dealers, or to commit extortion. Criminal organizations, including gangs, also exploit girls in sex trafficking. (1,20,22)

Guatemalan children often emigrate to escape violence, extortion, and forced recruitment by gangs, in addition to seeking economic opportunities and family reunification. Human trafficking is also a driver of child migration. (35,36) Gangs target adolescent girls for forced commercial sex, causing them and sometimes their entire families to flee Guatemala in fear. (36,37) Once en route, however, girls and other children from Guatemala remain vulnerable to human trafficking and commercial sexual exploitation. (35-37)

Significant barriers to accessing education exist in Guatemala, particularly for girls, indigenous children, and children in rural areas. (1,14) Education is free in Guatemala, although only through grade six, and there is an insufficient number of primary and secondary schools. (22,38) A lack of teachers, schools, transportation, and sanitary facilities at public schools, and fees charged at private schools, all create barriers to education. (1,16,22) Over 70 percent of secondary schools are private, requiring families to pay school fees, transportation costs, supplies, and lodging when necessary. (16,22) The Ministry of Education does not supply textbooks to most public schools. (16) All these factors contribute to poor outcomes, high dropout rates, and high opportunity costs. (16) The education system is also unable to address the needs of students with disabilities, and the few existing education programs for children with disabilities rely mainly on non-profit support. (1,16,22,23) During the reporting period and as a result of the COVID-19 pandemic, an additional barrier to education was the lack of access of students to personal computers and Internet services, as schools in the country ceased in-person educational programs after March 2020. Many private school students also dropped out of school due to the deteriorating economic situation of their families. (16) Some reports estimate that 106,000 children left school in 2020. (39)

Reports indicate that there is a high degree of illiteracy among girls. (4,40,41) Due to the heightened security risks for girls traveling alone and cultural norms that prioritize boys' education over that of girls, girls in rural areas have lower enrollment rates in secondary school than boys. (16,22,23) Indigenous children in general have lower enrollment rates compared to other children. (4) There are not enough qualified teachers to provide instruction in the predominant native languages, and classroom materials available in these languages are insufficient. (14,41)

II. LEGAL FRAMEWORK FOR CHILD LABOR

Guatemala has ratified all key international conventions concerning child labor (Table 3).

The government has established laws and regulations related to child labor (Table 4). However, gaps exist in Guatemala's legal framework to adequately protect children from the worst forms of child labor, including in the provisions for light work for children.

‡ Age calculated based on available information (2,53,57)

Although Articles 32 and 150 of the Labor Code allow the Ministry of Labor and Social Welfare (MTPS) to authorize children under age 14 to work under exceptional circumstances—including if MTPS determines that children must work to support their family due to poverty—the law does not define the total number of hours, kinds of tasks, or age range applicable for this exception. This is inconsistent with international standards on light work. (42) MTPS indicated that no such exceptions have been granted since 2016. (1,58)

MTPS previously approved Ministerial Agreement Number 260-2019, "Procedure for the effective application of Convention 138 of the International Labor Organization, regarding the Convention on the Minimum Age for Admission of Employment," which sets forth procedures for protecting adolescents between ages 15 and 18 and ensuring that they do not participate in the worst forms of child labor. (22,44) However, the agreement does not explicitly cover children age 14, who are allowed to work under Guatemala's Labor Code (or children under age 14 who are allowed to work in exceptional circumstances). Therefore, it is unclear if this mechanism effectively raises the minimum age for work to age 15.

III. ENFORCEMENT OF LAWS ON CHILD LABOR

The government has established institutional mechanisms for the enforcement of laws and regulations on child labor (Table 5). However, gaps exist within the operations of enforcement agencies that may hinder adequate enforcement of their child labor laws.

Table 5. Agencies Responsible for Child Labor Law Enforcement

Organization/Agency	Role
Ministry of Labor and Social Welfare's (MTPS) Inspection Division	Enforces child labor laws, including prohibitions on the worst forms of child labor, by inspecting businesses and responding to child labor complaints. (2,22) It also refers children found in child labor to government social services and refers complaints to the MTPS Adolescent Workers Protection Unit. (59,60) Refers cases of worst forms of child labor to the Secretariat Against Sexual Violence, Exploitation, and Trafficking in Persons (SVET) and unresolved cases to labor courts for review and sanctions, as appropriate. (2)
National Civil Police	Investigate cases of child trafficking through the Trafficking in Persons and Forced Labor Unit located within the Special Investigation Police, and operate a hotline to receive reports of suspected child trafficking cases. Also conduct welfare inspections in child labor cases and refer cases to civil court. (22)

Organization/Agency	Role
Public Ministry, Special Prosecutor's Office	Receives case referrals involving the worst forms of child labor from labor inspectors. Investigates cases of human trafficking and forced labor through the Special Prosecutor's Office Against Human Trafficking. (2)
Solicitor General's Office	Receives complaints regarding the exploitation of children. Initiates legal proceedings, refers cases to the National Civil Police, and ensures the legal representation of children whose rights have been violated. (22)
Secretariat of Social Well-Being	Establishes procedural guidelines for government agencies and NGOs responsible for the protection and care of child and adolescent victims of commercial sexual exploitation via the Protocol for Identifying and Assisting Child and Adolescent Victims of Commercial Sexual Exploitation. Administrative unit under the Executive branch charged with formulating, coordinating, and executing public policies related to the protection of children and adolescents. (61,62)

Labor Law Enforcement

In 2020, labor law enforcement agencies in Guatemala took actions to combat child labor (Table 6). However, gaps exist within the operations of MTPS that may hinder adequate labor law enforcement, including financial resource allocation and inspection planning.

Table 6. Labor Law Enforcement Efforts Related to Child Labor

In 2020, the General Labor Inspectorate conducted 421 child labor-specific inspections. The inspections were designed to target sectors in which children are the most vulnerable for work or the worst forms of child labor, such as small convenience stores, corn tortilla making, small bakeries, agriculture, fireworks confection, and informal work. (16) The government reported making an effort to inspect all sectors in which children work, particularly those related to the worst forms of child labor. (16) During the reporting period, 14 violations of child labor laws were found. As of November 2020, 14 children and adolescents were removed from child labor as a result of inspections, with 10 of those receiving social services. (16) MTPS reported that as of October 2020, it had imposed eight penalties, but that they were designed to be collected at the end of the administrative procedures. MTPS also reported that investigators were still conducting inspections in December 2020 and, therefore, were unable to provide updated information to be included in the report regarding the total number of penalties imposed or specific penalties for labor law violations issued for the reporting period. (16) Information regarding how much was collected in penalties in 2020 for child labor violations was still not available during the reporting period.

MTPS indicated that while there are seven inspectors designated to deal with child labor cases in the Department of Guatemala, all labor inspectors throughout the country carry out specific child labor inspections. (16) Yet, MTPS stated that the number of labor inspections was insufficient. This situation worsened during the pandemic, since some inspectors affected by pre-existing medical conditions or other vulnerabilities to COVID-19 had to be excused from work. (16)

All of Guatemala's inspectors received training during the reporting period, including in the enforcement of laws related to child labor and the worst forms of child labor. A comprehensive training plan for inspectors on human rights and labor rights started in November 2020 with support from the ILO and will last for 1 year. (16)

Guatemala's General Labor Inspectorate received less funding in 2020 compared to 2019, and MTPS has indicated that the funding level was insufficient to cover the inspectorate's needs, particularly for transportation, fuel, and per diem costs. (16) Furthermore, the number of labor inspectors is likely insufficient for the size of Guatemala's workforce, which includes more than 4.6 million workers. According to the ILO's technical advice of a ratio approaching 1 inspector for every 15,000 workers in developing countries, Guatemala would employ about 308 labor inspectors. (65,66)

During the year, 27,537 labor inspections were conducted, representing approximately 161 inspections carried out by each inspector. (16) This is a high number of inspections conducted by each inspector, and it is likely that this high number impacts the quality of such inspections.

Although laws governing the minimum age for work and hazardous work apply in both the formal and informal sectors, labor inspectors rarely inspect informal workplaces, in which child labor violations are most likely to occur. (1,2,16,22,23) Some reports question the quality of inspections for child labor violations, particularly the scope and coverage across industries. (14) Civil society organizations state that, during worksite inspections, labor inspectors often meet only with business owners or supervisors and bypass conducting worker interviews. (9,67) Research indicates that labor inspectors are not appropriately trained to perform inspections for child labor. (1,10,12)

Furthermore, MTPS reported that inspectors conducted site visits in Spanish only, the language in use at worksites, but this may hinder inspections when encountering indigenous language speakers. (16)

The government has created a mechanism for filing complaints regarding child labor, but reports state that the mechanism is not efficient in responding to those complaints. (1,22,23) Furthermore, while Guatemala has established a referral mechanism between responsible agencies in cases of child labor, coordination between these agencies remains a challenge and requires the intervention of NGOs or international missions. (22) After the creation of the Inter-Institutional Coordinating Entity Against Labor Exploitation and Child Labor (CICELTI) during the reporting period, complainants can now file concerns related to trafficking in persons (forced labor and labor exploitation modalities) and the worst forms of child labor through a WhatsApp number and an e-mail address. (16) In 2017, the General Labor Inspectorate regained the authority to impose penalties for labor law violations, and it began implementing this authority in 2018, including for child labor law violations. (22)

Criminal Law Enforcement

In 2020, criminal law enforcement agencies in Guatemala took actions to combat child labor (Table 7). However, gaps exist within the operations of the National Civil Police that may hinder adequate criminal law enforcement, including training for criminal investigators.

Table 7. Criminal Law Enforcement Efforts Related to Child Labor

Overview of Criminal Law Enforcement	2019	2020
Initial Training for New Criminal Investigators	N/A (22)	Yes (16)

In 2020, the Public Ministry's prosecution office responsible for trafficking in persons crimes reported that it investigated 59 new cases related to commercial sexual exploitation, 79 cases related to pornographic performances and pornography, and 39 cases related to forced child labor, labor exploitation, and related crimes. Unfortunately, they were unable to indicate the specific number of cases that involved children, as the system used does not allow any demographic breakdown of cases by age. (16) Thus, the total number of investigations involving the worst forms of child labor is unknown.

The government reported prosecuting 36 cases involving the worst forms of child labor. Of these, 10 were related to child pornography. There were 12 convictions related to child labor. (16) Of these, seven convictions were on crimes related to sexual exploitation and five convictions were for crimes related to child pornography. Meanwhile, two people convicted for trafficking in persons crimes received prison sentences between 8 to 13 years and 4 months in prison, and fines of $38,960. (16) There were also three people convicted for possession of pornographic material involving minors and the sale and dissemination of pornography involving minors. (16) The total number of child labor violations found during the reporting period was unknown, as the government does not disaggregate its criminal law enforcement data by age.

Guatemala made efforts to increase anti-trafficking in persons resources and capacity outside of Guatemala City, and the Public Ministry continued making social workers and psychologists available to human trafficking victims to serve as liaisons as victims navigated proceedings and sought medical care. (5) In 2020, criminal law enforcement investigators received training on issues related to trafficking in persons, including the issue of child labor. (16) However, the Public Ministry's Office Against Trafficking in Person Crimes stated that the training was insufficient regarding forced labor and investigation techniques for forced labor. The training during the reporting period was provided virtually due to the pandemic. (16)

The government has established specialized courts to hear cases of human trafficking of adults and children and gender-based violence. Despite this, judges are often unable to schedule hearings and trials in a timely manner and often lack sufficient training to properly identify trafficking in persons cases. (28,67)

Although the Secretariat Against Sexual Violence, Exploitation, and Trafficking in Persons (SVET) is the primary institution charged with raising awareness on human trafficking, it has no authority to bring cases to the justice system and its small budget limits its reach beyond urban areas. (28) Local NGO reports indicate that training is insufficient outside the capital. (1,23) Law enforcement agencies also lack sufficient vehicles, fuel, and criminal investigators, particularly outside Guatemala City. (14,68) MTPS has noted that resources are still inadequate to carry out complex criminal investigations. (1) This is supported by the Public Ministry, which noted that due to the complexity of these investigations and crimes, more resources are necessary to conduct investigations. The Public Ministry also noted that the Special Prosecutor's Office Against Human Trafficking does not have an assigned budget and that it depends on the overall budget allocated to the Public Ministry. (16)

IV. COORDINATION OF GOVERNMENT EFFORTS ON CHILD LABOR

The government has established mechanisms to coordinate its efforts to address child labor (Table 8). However, gaps exist that may hinder the effective coordination of efforts to address child labor, including coordination between agencies and civil society.

MODERATE ADVANCEMENT

Table 8. Key Mechanisms to Coordinate Government Efforts on Child Labor

Coordinating Body	Role & Description
Specific Cabinet on Social Development (GEDS for its Spanish initials)	Coordinates, articulates, and manages policies related to development, social protection, and violence prevention for vulnerable populations such as children, women, indigenous populations, the elderly, individuals with disabilities, and people from rural areas. Established via Agreement 2-2019, the Thematic Working Group for the Prevention and Eradication of Child Labor assumed the National Commission for the Eradication of Child Labor's (CONAPETI) duties of coordinating government policies and efforts to combat child labor. (22) During the reporting period, efforts included: conducting two workshops to begin drafting the National Strategy for the Eradication of Child Labor and Protection of Adolescent Workers for 2021–2025; beginning the final evaluation of the Roadmap to Make Guatemala a Place Free from Child Labor and Its Worst Forms 2016–2020 through regional meetings to measure achievements; and opening a comprehensive care center for the prevention and eradication of child labor in the municipality of San Marcos that seeks to reintegrate children and adolescents who were victims of child labor. This care center was opened in coordination with institutions that are part of Departmental Committees for the Eradication of Child Labor (CODEPETI). (16) Also in 2020, conducted an in-person meeting and three webinars to follow up on actions related to the Child Labor Risk Identification Model (MIRTI), providing results and information fact sheets at the national, departmental, and regional levels, and socializing the implementation and progress on phase II of the MIRTI model. (16)
Departmental Committees for the Eradication of Child Labor (CODEPETI)	Coordinates government efforts to combat child labor at the departmental or regional level. Comprising department-level representatives of member agencies of the Thematic Working Group for the Prevention and Eradication of Child Labor, and NGO and business representatives. (2) In 2020, some of these institutions coordinated with GEDS in the opening of the comprehensive care center for the prevention and eradication of child labor in the municipality of San Marcos. (16)
Secretariat Against Sexual Violence, Exploitation, and Trafficking in Persons (SVET)	Coordinates all government efforts against human trafficking, including for commercial sexual exploitation of children and forced child labor, by responding to cases and providing support for victims. Operates shelters to serve minor victims of human trafficking and a hotline to file child sex tourism complaints. Led by the Vice President's Office. (69) In 2020, provided support to informational and prevention activities on the issue of human trafficking. It also coordinated with local organizations and community leaders through the work of departmental and community consultants hired for 2020. Provided training on trafficking in persons crimes to public servants and staff who worked with vulnerable sectors of the population, including children and adolescents, during the reporting period. (16) In 2016, SVET relaunched the Inter-Institutional Commission Against Trafficking-in-Persons (CIT), which is co-chaired by the Ministry of Foreign Affairs and includes 32 government and civil society institutions. CIT develops and manages initiatives to combat human trafficking. (28,70) In February 2020, it held a high level meeting in which they discussed the actions planned for 2020 to advance the government's efforts in the area of human trafficking. (70) In November 2020, CIT held its last meeting of the year during which they presented a situational analysis of the disappearances of women, children, and adolescents in the country. (71)
Inter-Institutional Coordinating Entity Against Labor Exploitation and Child Labor (CICELTI)*	Aims to identify victims of human trafficking, make anti-trafficking in persons institutions more effective, provide support to victims to prevent them from being targeted again, and encourage the strengthening of government mechanisms to prevent labor exploitation, forced labor, and other forms of human trafficking. It also coordinates efforts to combat labor exploitation, forced labor, and child labor. (16) Launched in October 2020 by MTPS, the Solicitor General's Office, the Public Ministry, and SVET. Established as part of the amendments to the Agreement for Inter-Institutional Coordination for the Comprehensive Approach of Trafficking in Persons in the Modality of Labor Exploitation and Forced Labor that was signed on July 30, 2019. (16) In 2020, 21 child and adolescent victims were removed from situations of exploitation through CICELTI's coordination efforts, with 10 of these victims being referred to social services. (16)
National Platform for the Prevention and Protection of Children and Adolescents against Sexual Exploitation in Travel and Tourism	Targets sexual exploitation of children and adolescents in the travel and tourism sector. (19) Oversees the Code of Conduct Against Sex Tourism, a mandatory code for trade group membership that forbids providing services to customers believed to be engaging in commercial sexual exploitation of children. Presided over by SVET and includes 10 government, private sector, and civil society institutions. (19) Research was unable to determine whether the coordinating body was active during the reporting period.

‡ The government had other mechanisms that may have addressed child labor issues or had an impact on child labor. (46,72)

In 2020, MTPS reported that it worked jointly with the Thematic Working Group for the Prevention and Eradication of Child Labor, the ILO, and the Economic Commission for Latin America and the Caribbean to complete the first phase of implementation of the Child Labor Risk Identification Model (MIRTI). MIRTI is a tool that will allow MTPS to design and implement preventive strategies at the local level by identifying the areas of greatest child labor vulnerability. (16) Participant institutions began implementing MIRTI's second phase in the municipality of San Pedro Sacatepéquez in the department of San Marcos as part of a pilot plan to map programs and services aimed at children and adolescents engaged in child labor and its worst forms. Implementation of the second phase will allow identification, design, and adjustment of multi-sector interventions in the community to strengthen preventive protection services against child labor and reduce the risk of exposure of children, adolescents, and communities to child labor. (16)

Despite improvements in inter-agency coordination to address human trafficking, there continues to be a lack of effective coordination among other government institutions and civil society actors who provide services and protection to victims of child labor. (73) Some civil society organizations have indicated that despite being members of the Inter-Institutional Commission Against Trafficking in Persons, the commission is not fully inclusive of civil society perspectives and that they participate primarily as observers on the commission. (28) Furthermore, although it plays a significant role in combating human trafficking in Guatemala, reporting suggests that SVET lacks political support from other parts of the government. (28)

V. GOVERNMENT POLICIES ON CHILD LABOR

The government has established policies related to child labor (Table 9). However, policy gaps exist that may hinder efforts to address child labor, including policy implementation.

Table 9. Key Policies Related to Child Labor

Policy	Description
Roadmap to make Guatemala a Country Free of Child Labor and Its Worst Forms 2016–2020	Aimed to prevent and eradicate child labor by addressing poverty; guaranteeing rights to health for children and adolescents; guaranteeing access to education, especially for children in or at risk of child labor; coordinating and enforcing child labor laws; raising awareness regarding risks and consequences of child labor; and implementing a system to monitor and evaluate child labor. (17,73-76) In anticipation of the effective end of the Roadmap in 2020, MTPS and the Thematic Working Group for the Prevention and Eradication of Child Labor, in cooperation with ILO, developed the MIRTl tool. During the reporting period, it completed the first stage of implementation of the MIRTl model. (16) As a result, vulnerability maps for the 8 regions and 22 departments of the country were developed, as well as a map at the national level. Each of these maps included a respective analysis on risk and protection factors associated with the probability of child labor in the 340 municipalities of the country in 2020. (16)
Protocol for Providing Comprehensive Health Care to Children and Adolescents in the Worst Forms of Child Labor	Requires public health workers to enter information into a database about any child whose injuries may have been labor related. Implemented by the Ministry of Public Health and Social Assistance. (77,78) Research did not reveal whether any actions were taken under this policy in 2020.
Inter-Institutional Detection and Action Protocol For Immediate Response to Cases of Sexual Exploitation Against Children and Adolescents in Travel and Tourism	Establishes procedural guidelines for government agencies and NGOs responsible for the protection and care of child and adolescent victims of commercial sexual exploitation. Overseen by the Secretariat of Social Welfare and Departmental Social Welfare Offices and implemented by SVET. (2,61) Research did not reveal whether any actions were taken under this policy in 2020.
Inter-Institutional Protocol for the Protection and Attention of Victims of Human Trafficking	Provides instruction on how to process sex crimes, including commercial sexual exploitation of children, and how to assist prospective victims of trafficking in persons. (19,46,78) The government reported that in 2020 the protocol was still active and that shelters coordinated with government entities and civil society organizations provision of basic services to cover the needs of sheltered victims. As established in the protocol, virtual training was provided to public employees on the procedures for the protections and care of victims of human trafficking. (16)
Public Policy on Human Trafficking and the Comprehensive Protection of Victims (2014–2024)	Aims to guarantee protection for and comprehensive attention to human trafficking victims, and promote prevention, detection, prosecution, and sanction of this crime. (79) Includes a National Plan of Strategic Action that directs the government's actions on preventing and combating human trafficking. During the reporting period, institutions responsible for the implementation of the protocol continued conducting actions related to prevention, detection of victims, care and protection, and prosecution and punishment of crimes. (16)

In the reporting period, SVET launched and carried out the 2020 National Plan for the Prevention of Crimes of Sexual Violence, Exploitation and Trafficking in Persons. (80) Its objective is to prevent the commission of these crimes and reduce the number of victims. To do this it implemented awareness-raising campaigns, trainings, and prevention strategies about these crimes. (80) In 2020, the government managed to reach a total of 363,326 people in 10 languages throughout the entire country, including 3,294 populated areas and 1,881 public and private education centers. (81)

VI. SOCIAL PROGRAMS TO ADDRESS CHILD LABOR

In 2020, the government funded and participated in programs that include the goal of eliminating or preventing child labor (Table 10). However, gaps exist in these social programs, including the adequacy of efforts to address the problem in all sectors.

Table 10. Key Social Programs to Address Child Labor

Program	Description
Ministry of Development Social Poverty Reducing Programs†	Conditional Cash Transfer for Education and Health Program ( Mi Bono Social ) provides cash assistance to families with school-age children, conditioned on children's school attendance. (23,82) Mi Bolsa Social provides food assistance to poor families, with the requirement that their children attend school. (23) My Secure Dining Hall ( Mi Comedor Social ) provides access to food for people in situations of poverty, crisis, and emergency, including children. (16,83) The government reported these programs all remained active in 2020.
Care Strategy for School Success in First Grade ( Estrategia de Atención para el Éxito Escolar en Primer Grado de Primaria )	Seeks to decrease school dropout rates and increase enrollment and advancement to the next grade at a national level. (23,84) Goals include generating conditions to achieve competency in reading and writing, providing teacher training, conducting diagnostic evaluations, and supplying educational materials and pedagogical support. (84,85) Aims to serve 35,000 first grade students. (85) Relaunched in 2019 through Ministerial Accord 2669-2019 with a focus on improving indicators of success and conditions for learning for first graders. (86) In 2020, distributed student books and diagnostics tests in an effort to guarantee quality education for first grade students. As part of the response to the pandemic, the Ministry of Education also distributed guidelines on how to care for students during the pandemic and how to orient parents on the teaching of reading and writing. (16) The government reported that 439,818 first grade students benefited directly from the Care Strategy for School Success in 2020. (16)
I Don't Allow Sexual Exploitation of Children in Tourism†	SVET-administered national campaign against the commercial sexual exploitation of children in tourism. (3) SVET launched the campaigns "Be Careful with Grooming" to prevent online grooming for sexual abuse of children and adolescents between ages 10 and 15, and "Protecting Our Greatest Treasure" to create awareness of sexual exploitation of children in tourism and travel activities. (26,77) Research could not identify actions undertaken during the reporting period to carry out this program.
Human Trafficking Awareness Campaigns	SVET and Office of the Human Rights Ombudsman campaigns that aim to educate the public about trafficking in persons issues. (28) In 2020, as part of its Corazon Azul (Blue Heart) campaign, the Guatemalan president signed 11 commitments of the government to eradicate human trafficking, by spreading the message "Human Beings Are Not for Sale". (87) As part of World Day Against Trafficking in Persons in 2020, the judges of the Criminal Court of First Instance and of the Sentencing Court with Specialized Competence in Crimes of Trafficking in Persons of the Department of Guatemala and Quetzaltenango joined the Corazon Azul campaign. They also signed the Corazon Azul Pact to symbolize their adhesion to the campaign, which calls signers to carry out concrete actions to prevent and combat human trafficking. (88)
Business Network for the Prevention and Elimination of Child Labor in Guatemala ( Red Empresarial )	Aims to promote prevention and eradication of child labor. Members include the ministries of Education and Agriculture, MTPS, the Thematic Working Group for the Prevention and Eradication of Child Labor, ILO, UNICEF, the UN Food and Agriculture Organization, and representatives from the private sector. (15,89) Reports indicate this program was active in 2020, and continued to implement a variety of health, nutrition, education, and awareness programs in a variety of agricultural sectors, although operations were adjusted during the pandemic. The nature of these adjustments is unknown. During the reporting period, the Business Network held virtual meetings once a month. (90)

‡ The government had other social programs that may have included the goal of eliminating or preventing child labor. (19,91,92)

Despite the cessation since March 2020 of in-person educational programs in the country due to the pandemic, the Ministry of Education reported spending approximately $255.8 million to continue the school feeding program through the distribution of non-perishable food to 2.5 million public school students in 2020. (16)

Civil society organizations indicate that social programs are inadequately funded, are susceptible to local political influences, and fail to reach the rural interior of the country outside urban areas. (1,16,22) Although the government has implemented programs to assist children and families, research found no evidence of government programs specifically designed to assist children engaged in hazardous work, including those in agriculture and domestic work. Reporting also indicates that SVET and the Office of the Human Rights Ombudsman fail to regularly monitor the effectiveness of awareness campaigns beyond tracking the number of individuals reached. (28)

Conditions in government-run children's shelters are not adequate, and the government has not ensured the protection and safety of children under its care. (28,40) In addition, the environment for the implementation of social programs that address child labor remains unsafe, and the government has done little to investigate or prevent further instances of threats, intimidation, and violence—such as the murders of individuals working on social programs, including NGO officials, human rights workers, judges, and labor activists. (93)

VII. SUGGESTED GOVERNMENT ACTIONS TO ELIMINATE CHILD LABOR

Based on the reporting above, suggested actions are identified that would advance the elimination of child labor in Guatemala (Table 11).

Table 11. Suggested Government Actions to Eliminate Child Labor

Area	Suggested Action	Year(s) Suggested
Legal Framework	Criminally prohibit the recruitment of children under age 18 into non-state armed groups.	2016 – 2020
	Eliminate the exception allowing some children under age 14 to work, or establish a light work framework for children ages 12 to 14 outlining restrictions on working conditions, type of work, and number of hours of work.	2010 – 2020
	Clarify whether Ministerial Agreement 260-2019 raises the minimum working age to 15.	2019 – 2020
Enforcement	Collect and report data on the total amount in fines collected in relation to child labor violations.	2019 – 2020
	Provide sufficient funding and resources to the labor inspectorate to ensure operational needs are met.	2017 – 2020
	Increase the number of labor inspectors to meet the ILO's technical advice.	2015 – 2020
	Ensure that inspectors carry out inspections in the informal sector, an area in which child labor is known to occur.	2018 – 2020
	Improve the quality of inspections by ensuring that inspectors receive effective training, meet with all relevant parties, including workers, and dedicate the necessary time to carry out more comprehensive inspections.	2017 – 2020
	Ensure that labor inspectors are able to communicate with indigenous language speakers, including those who may be underage, to adequately conduct inspections for child labor violations.	2020
	Improve effectiveness of child labor complaint and referral mechanisms to ensure timely responses to complaints.	2018 – 2020
	Disaggregate enforcement data to identify child labor-related investigations and report on the number of violations for the worst forms of child labor.	2018 – 2020
	Dedicate more staff and train criminal law enforcement officials, particularly those outside the capital, on laws related to the worst forms of child labor.	2013 – 2020
	Ensure that hearings and trials addressing human trafficking and gender-based violence in specialized courts are scheduled in a timely manner and that judges are trained in trafficking in persons concepts.	2016 – 2020
	Ensure that criminal investigators have sufficient resources and staff to conduct quality criminal investigations in all geographical areas of the country.	2009 – 2020
Coordination	Ensure actions are taken to carry out the mandates of the National Platform for the Prevention and Protection of Children and Adolescents against Sexual Exploitation in Travel and Tourism.	2020
	Ensure the Secretariat Against Sexual Violence, Exploitation, and Trafficking in Persons has the resources, authority, and political support necessary to combat human trafficking countrywide.	2019 – 2020
	Strengthen coordination efforts to institutionalize relationships between civil society representatives and government agencies that provide services to victims of child labor, for example by fully incorporating civil society participation in the Inter-Institutional Commission Against Trafficking in Persons.	2013 – 2020
Government Policies	Publish activities undertaken to implement the Protocol for Providing Comprehensive Health Care to Children and Adolescents in the Worst Forms of Child Labor, and the Inter-Institutional Detection and Action Protocol For Immediate Response to Cases of Sexual Exploitation Against Children and Adolescents in Travel and Tourism during the reporting period.	2017 – 2020
Social Programs	Remove barriers to education for all children, including girls and indigenous children, children with disabilities, and children living in rural areas, by recruiting and training more qualified teachers, providing instruction in indigenous languages, building additional schools with appropriate facilities, providing textbooks to all public schools, and removing school fees and transportation costs.	2015 – 2020
	Ensure that social programs are implemented, well funded, able to carry out their objectives, reach populations outside urban centers, and report on yearly activities.	2018 – 2020
	Initiate social programs to address child labor in agriculture and domestic work, and for children who perform other types of hazardous work.	2009 – 2020
	Regularly monitor the effectiveness and impact of social programs such as awareness campaigns beyond number of citizens reached.	2017 – 2020
	Ensure high standards of safety and care for children in government-run shelters.	2016 – 2020
	Ensure the safety of NGO officials, human rights workers, judges, and labor activists to facilitate a secure environment for the implementation of social programs that address and prevent child labor.	2017 – 2020

In 2020, Guinea made minimal advancement in efforts to eliminate the worst forms of child labor. The government enacted a revised Child Code, which provides higher penalties for child labor violations and enumerates a more comprehensive hazardous work list. The government also approved a new National Action Plan to Fight Against Trafficking in Persons. However, children in Guinea are subjected to the worst forms of child labor, including in artisanal mining, sometimes as a result of human trafficking, and in forced begging. The government lacks a coordinating mechanism and national policy to address all relevant worst forms of child labor. Laws related to the minimum age for work also do not meet international standards because they do not include children working outside of a formal employment relationship and children who are self-employed. In addition, the government does not implement sufficient social programs to address the extent of the child labor problem.

I. PREVALENCE AND SECTORAL DISTRIBUTION OF CHILD LABOR

Children in Guinea are subjected to the worst forms of child labor, including in artisanal mining, sometimes as a result of human trafficking, and in forced begging. (1-3) Table 1 provides key indicators on children's work and education in Guinea. Data on some of these indicators are not available from the sources used in this report.

Table 1. Statistics on Children's Work and Education

Children	Age	Percent
Working (% and population)	5 to 14	31.2 (Unavailable)
Attending School (%)	5 to 14	54.2
Combining Work and School (%)	7 to 14	17.3
Primary Completion Rate (%)		59.7

Source for primary completion rate: Data from 2016, published by UNESCO Institute for Statistics, 2021. (4)

Source for all other data: International Labor Organization's analysis of statistics from the Multiple Indicator Cluster Survey 5 (MICS 5), 2016. (5)

Based on a review of available information, Table 2 provides an overview of children's work by sector and activity.

Table 2. Overview of Children's Work by Sector and Activity

Sector/Industry	Activity
Agriculture	Farming and carrying heavy loads† in the production of cashews, cocoa, coffee, and rubber (6-10)
	Herding livestock (7)
	Fishing, including capturing and processing fish (3,7,11-13)
Industry	Mining† granite, gold, and diamonds (1,3,7,9,14)
	Manufacturing, activities unknown (3)
	Construction,† including carrying materials and the fabrication of construction materials, such as bricks (3,15-17)
Services	Street work, including as market vendors, beggars, petty traders, shoe shiners, and porters in the transportation sector (7,12,14,15,18,19)
	Working in restaurants and informal cottage industries (7)
	Domestic work (7,9,11,13,14,20)
Categorical Worst Forms of Child Labor‡	Forced labor as market vendors and in domestic work, mining, herding, fishing, and farming, each sometimes as a result of human trafficking (3,7)
	Commercial sexual exploitation, sometimes as a result of human trafficking (3,7,18,20)
	Forced begging by Koranic teachers (3,7,20)

† Determined by national law or regulation as hazardous and, as such, relevant to Article 3(d) of ILO C. 182.

‡ Child labor understood as the worst forms of child labor per se under Article 3(a)–(c) of ILO C. 182.

Guinea

MINIMAL ADVANCEMENT

Children in Guinea are subjected domestically and abroad to forced labor, commercial sexual exploitation, and domestic servitude. Some Guinean boys are subjected to forced labor in artisanal gold and diamond mines, while Guinean girls are involved in domestic work and commercial sexual exploitation in various West African and Middle Eastern countries. (7-13,16-23)

Boys placed in the care of Koranic schools in Guinea are sometimes forced by their teachers to beg on the street or to work in fields, and must then surrender the money they have earned to their teachers. (7,8,22) In addition, through the system of confiage, parents who are unable to care for their children send them to relatives or strangers, who are expected to provide food, shelter, and schooling to the children in exchange for housework. In practice, some of these children receive care and an education, but many become domestic workers and are victims of labor exploitation and abuse. (12,21) There are significant factors hindering access to education, such as the limited number of public schools, the lack of teachers (particularly in rural areas), funding, and poor infrastructure. Also, the cost of schooling remains prohibitively high for many Guinean parents. (20,24) Further, children are required to have birth registration to access education and health care and the government provided no support to children with disabilities in regular schools. (24-26,27)

II. LEGAL FRAMEWORK FOR CHILD LABOR

Guinea has ratified all key international conventions concerning child labor (Table 3).

Table 3. Ratification of International Conventions on Child Labor

Convention	Ratification
 ILO C. 138, Minimum Age	✓
ILO C. 182, Worst Forms of Child Labor	✓
 UN CRC	✓
UN CRC Optional Protocol on Armed Conflict	✓
UN CRC Optional Protocol on the Sale of Children, Child Prostitution and Child Pornography	✓
 Palermo Protocol on Trafficking in Persons	✓

The government has established laws and regulations related to child labor (Table 4). However, gaps exist in Guinea's legal framework to adequately protect children from the worst forms of child labor, including the minimum age for work.

Table 4. Laws and Regulations on Child Labor

Standard	Meets International Standards	Age	Legislation
Minimum Age for Work	No	16	Article 137.5 of the Labor Code; Article 919 of the revised Children's Code (24,28)
Minimum Age for Hazardous Work	Yes	18	Articles 2–4 of Order 2791 Working Conditions for Employees Aged Under 18 Years; Article 137.4 of the Labor Code; Articles 922 and 925 of the revised Children's Code (16,24,28)
Identification of Hazardous Occupations or Activities Prohibited for Children	Yes		Articles 2 and 4 of Order 2791 Working Conditions for Employees Aged Under 18 Years; Article 135 of the Mining Code; Article 137.6 of the Labor Code; Articles 909–936 of the revised Children's Code (16,24,28,29)
Prohibition of Forced Labor	Yes		Articles 194, 195, and 323 of the Penal Code; Articles 4 and 137.6 of the Labor Code; Articles 912–915 and 922 of the revised Children's Code (3,24,28,30)
Prohibition of Child Trafficking	Yes		Articles 195, 323, and 324 of the Penal Code; Articles 893–901 and 912 of the revised Children's Code (24,30)
Prohibition of Commercial Sexual Exploitation of Children	Yes		Articles 346–348 and 355 of the Penal Code; Articles 820, 852–856 of the revised Children's Code (24,30)
Prohibition of Using Children in Illicit Activities	Yes		Article 137.6 of the Labor Code; Article 890 of the Revised Children's Code; Article 344 of the Penal Code (24,28,30)

Standard	Meets International Standards	Age	Legislation
Minimum Age for Voluntary State Military Recruitment	Yes	18	Article 941 of the revised Child Code (24)
Prohibition of Compulsory Recruitment of Children by (State) Military	N/A*
Prohibition of Military Recruitment by Non-state Armed Groups	Yes		Article 792.7 of the Penal Code; Article 941 of the revised Child Code (24,30)
Compulsory Education Age	Yes	16	Article 6, Title I of Education Decree 97/196/PRG/SGG (31)
Free Public Education	No

* No conscription (32)

In June 2020, the revised Child Code entered into force, which provides higher penalties for crimes related to child trafficking, forced labor, violence against children in the workplace, and child pornography. (3,24) It also provides additional hazardous work prohibitions, including work at night, using mechanical tools, handling explosives or corrosives, and extracting ore in quarries or mines. (24) The revised Child Code and Labor Code allows children between the ages of 12 and 14 to perform light work, which does not meet international standards as it applies to children under age 13. In addition, these laws do not prescribe the number of hours per week permitted for light work, nor do they specify the conditions under which light work may be done. Moreover, these laws only apply to workers with written employment contracts, leaving self-employed children and children working outside of formal employment relationships vulnerable to exploitation. (3,33) Although the revised Child Code provides free basic education for certain vulnerable groups, such as disabled and orphaned children, it does not provide free education for all children. (24) The updated constitution, enacted in 2020, stipulates free education up to the age of 16 under conditions provided by the law; however, the government has not yet enacted legislation to institute free basic education standards within Guinea's legal framework. (34)

III. ENFORCEMENT OF LAWS ON CHILD LABOR

The government has established institutional mechanisms for the enforcement of laws and regulations on child labor (Table 5). However, gaps exist within the operations of enforcement agencies that may hinder adequate enforcement of their child labor laws.

Table 5. Agencies Responsible for Child Labor Law Enforcement

Organization/Agency	Role
Ministry of Labor and Social Laws	Enforces all labor laws, including those related to child labor, through its labor inspectorate. (12,35,33) Oversees the Child Labor Monitoring and Surveillance System, which aims to identify and remove children from exploitative labor conditions. (36) In June 2020, the National Labor Directorate, previously under the Ministry of Technical Education, Vocational Training, Employment, and Labor moved to the Ministry of Labor and Social Laws. (3)
Office for the Protection of Gender, Children, and Morals (OPROGEM) Special Police Unit	Investigates cases related to the protection of minors, including the worst forms of child labor. (7,12,15,18,32) Formulates, plans, and monitors all activities, programs, and policy measures for safeguarding vulnerable population groups and protecting morality. (13) There is 1 representative of OPROGEM in each of the 33 central police stations of the country who specializes in issues related to the trafficking of women and children. (37) In July 2020, OPROGEM arrested a group of women accused of exploiting eight children, including seven albino children, who were forced to beg in Conakry. (3)
Ministry of Social Action and Vulnerable People	Provides protection and social services for victims of child labor and human trafficking. (12,38) During the reporting period, the Ministry for Social Action, Promotion of Women and Children changed its name to the Ministry of Social Action and Vulnerable People. (3) In addition to the name change, the Ministry's mandate as the lead agency for child protection issues was clarified. (39,40)
Ministry of Justice	Delivers judgements through its juvenile court, concerning the placement of any children in a service center. The Juvenile Court also collaborates and monitors cases with the National Directorate of Supervised Education and Youth Protection ( Direction Nationale de l'Éducation Surveillée et de la Protection de la Jeunesse ), which is under the Ministry of Justice, and is, by law, the supervising body of public social services centers. ## MINIMAL ADVANCEMENT

Labor Law Enforcement

In 2020, labor law enforcement agencies in Guinea took actions to combat child labor (Table 6). However, gaps exist within the operations of the Ministry of Labor that may hinder adequate labor law enforcement, including allocation of financial and other resources.

Table 6. Labor Law Enforcement Efforts Related to Child Labor

Overview of Labor Law Enforcement	2019	2020
Labor Inspectorate Funding	Unknown (41)	Unknown (3)
Number of Labor Inspectors	189 (41)	200 (3)

† Data are from January 1, 2019 to November 30, 2019.

During 2020, the government employed 200 individuals as part of its labor inspectorate and conducted 200 inspections, 2 of which focused exclusively on child labor. Many of the inspections conducted during the reporting period took place in mining areas, specifically Boké, Boffa, Sigui, and Dubreka. (3,15,41) The labor inspectorate does not have a dedicated budget and maintains only a single vehicle, with a portion of each inspector's salary used to cover fuel costs for inspection trips, restricting the labor inspectorate's ability to conduct labor inspections. (3,15,20,41)

Criminal Law Enforcement

In 2020, criminal law enforcement agencies in Guinea took actions to combat child labor (Table 7). However, gaps exist within the operations of the criminal enforcement agencies that may hinder adequate criminal law enforcement, including with the allocation of financial and human resources and publishing information.

Table 7. Criminal Law Enforcement Efforts Related to Child Labor

Overview of Criminal Law Enforcement	2019	2020
Initial Training for New Criminal Investigators	No (41)	N/A (3)
Training on New Laws Related to the Worst Forms of Child Labor	N/A (41)	N/A (3)
Refresher Courses Provided	Yes (41)	Yes (3)
Number of Investigations	Unknown (41)	2 (40)
Number of Violations Found	Unknown (41)	2 (40)
Number of Prosecutions Initiated	Unknown (41)	2 (40)
Number of Convictions	Unknown (41)	Unknown (3)
Imposed Penalties for Violations Related to the Worst Forms of Child Labor	Unknown (41)	Unknown (3)
Reciprocal Referral Mechanism Exists Between Criminal Authorities and Social Services	Yes (41)	Yes (3)

Research indicated that the Office for the Protection of Gender, Children, and Morals Special Police Unit was understaffed, underfunded, and without sufficient office supplies, transportation, or fuel to enforce laws related to the worst forms of child labor. (12,15,32,42) The government did not provide complete information for inclusion in this report on its criminal law enforcement efforts, including the number of convictions or whether it imposed penalties for violations. (3) During the reporting period, the government implemented new standard operating procedures to identify human trafficking victims, including children, and refer them to services. The government distributed written materials and trained government and civil society stakeholders on the new standard operating procedures. (43)

IV. COORDINATION OF GOVERNMENT EFFORTS ON CHILD LABOR

The government has established mechanisms to coordinate its efforts to address child labor (Table 8). However, gaps exist that hinder the effective coordination of efforts to address child labor, including ensuring that coordinating bodies are provided budgets in line with their responsibilities.

Table 8. Key Mechanisms to Coordinate Government Efforts on Child Labor

Coordinating Body	Role & Description
National Committee to Combat Trafficking in Persons and Similar Practices (CNLTPPA)	Coordinates anti-human trafficking efforts, including for children. Led by the Ministry of Social Action and Vulnerable People, includes representatives from OPROGEM, Ministry of Labor and Social Laws, and other ministries. (7,18,22,38) Met three times during the reporting period. The President of CNLTPPA and the President of Expertise France hosted a workshop for government officials to increase awareness about trafficking in persons. (3) CNLTPPA's president also announced continued funding, with international assistance, for the national human trafficking hotline, which they noted in 2020 received 2,196 calls—593 of which were regarding minors. (3)
Committee for Monitoring, Protection, and Defense of the Rights of the Child (CGSDE)	Implements, coordinates, and monitors government efforts on child protection issues, including child labor. Led by the Ministry of Social Action and Vulnerable People, with participation from the Ministry of Labor and Social Laws. (18,32,40,44) Prepares periodic reports to treaty bodies in the UN (Committee on the Rights of Children), and the African Union (African Committee of Experts on the Rights and Welfare of Children), while leading workshops to disseminate recommendations on child protections matters from these treaty bodies. (39) Research was unable to determine whether specific activities were undertaken by the CGSDE during the reporting period.

Limited budgets for the National Committee to Combat Trafficking in Persons and Similar Practices (CNLTPPA) and the Committee for Monitoring, Protection, and Defense of the Rights of the Child affect their ability to operate and coordinate efforts to address child labor. (2,12,32,42,45) Although the government has established a coordination mechanism on human trafficking, research found no evidence of mechanisms to coordinate the government's efforts to address child labor. (46)

V. GOVERNMENT POLICIES ON CHILD LABOR

The government has established policies related to child labor (Table 9). However, policy gaps exist that hinder efforts to address child labor, including covering all worst forms of child labor.

Table 9. Key Policies Related to Child Labor

Policy	Description
National Economic and Social Development Plan ( Plan National de Développement Economique et Social ) (2016–2020)	Sought to promote sustainable development and social equality focusing on four pillars: promotion of good governance for sustainable development; inclusive and sustainable transformative economics; inclusive development of human capital; and sustainable management of natural capital. Overseen by the Ministry of Planning and International Cooperation and supported by the World Bank. (47,48) Included activities to combat commercial sexual exploitation of children, human trafficking, and child labor. (47)
National Action Plan for Trafficking in Persons†	Focuses on six strategies to fight against child trafficking, including strengthening the legal framework, reinforcement of prevention devices, promotion of assistance and support of victims, strengthening cooperative partnerships, and monitoring and evaluation. (46,49) Managed by the CNLTPPA. Approved in June 2020. (37,46,49)

† Policy was approved during the reporting period.

On September 8, 2020, the CNLTPPA, Minister of Labor and Social Affairs, international organizations, private sector companies, labor unions, and civil society organizations met for 4 days to create a national strategy for reducing and dismantling networks associated with trafficking in persons. (3) Although the Government of Guinea has adopted a National Action Plan for Trafficking in Persons, research found no evidence of a policy on other worst forms of child labor. (13,15,41,51)

VI. SOCIAL PROGRAMS TO ADDRESS CHILD LABOR

In 2020, the government participated in programs that include the goal of eliminating or preventing child labor (Table 10). However, gaps exist in these social programs, including the adequacy of efforts to address the problem in all sectors.

Table 10. Key Social Programs to Address Child Labor

Program	Description
World Bank Country Program	World Bank projects in Guinea that aim to increase access to quality basic education and youth employment, improve school infrastructure, and strengthen safety nets for vulnerable populations, especially those affected by the Ebola virus disease outbreak. (52-55) During the reporting period, the World Bank approved an $80 million COVID-19 pandemic emergency response program focusing on development. (3)
UNICEF Rapid Response to COVID-19 Pandemic (2020–2021)*	Works on expanding continuous learning during pandemic closures through print, radio, TV, and online, with a focus on vulnerable groups such as children in rural areas and those with disabilities; also mobilizes a back-to-school campaign, safe reopening of schools through water, sanitation, and hygiene programs, and provide guidance to parents on school health. In May 2020, UNICEF provided $7 million in grant funding to support the Ministry of Education and Alphabetization (MENA) to fight the pandemic. (56)
Ten-Year Education Program for Guinea (2020–2029)*	Launched under the third tier of the National Economic and Social Development Policy. Provides for tuition-free schooling and makes provisions to ensure vulnerable students such as orphans, disabled, and albino students have access to education. Implemented by the MENA at the primary school level and published October 2019 and covering the 10 year period from 2020–2029. (50)

* Program was launched during the reporting period.

During the reporting period, the Guinean Association of Social Workers and several local NGOs have established a toll-free line to report abuse against women and children. Call center employees collect information and then refer the caller to the appropriate agency for assistance or protection. (3) Research found that the scope of programs implemented by the Government of Guinea is insufficient for the extent of the problem, including addressing children engaged in agriculture, domestic work, forced begging, mining, and street work. (36)

Reports indicate that social services available are not effective to meet the needs of the victims, and, as a result, the government relied on NGOs to provide shelter and other basic services to victims. Moreover, financial shortfalls still constrain services. (3,7,12,15,20,22,32,42)

VII. SUGGESTED GOVERNMENT ACTIONS TO ELIMINATE CHILD LABOR

Based on the reporting above, suggested actions are identified that would advance the elimination of child labor in Guinea (Table 11).

Table 11. Suggested Government Actions to Eliminate Child Labor

Area	Suggested Action	Year(s) Suggested
Legal Framework	Raise the minimum age for light work to age 13 to comply with international standards; ensure that the law's light work provisions specify the conditions in which light work may be undertaken and the number of hours that are permitted for children engaged in light work.	2015 – 2020
	Ensure that all children are protected by law, including children working outside of a formal employment relationship and children who are self-employed.	2009 – 2020
	Establish by law free basic education.	2019 – 2020
Enforcement	Provide consistent training, including initial and refresher courses and training on new laws, for labor law officials.	2009 – 2020
	Publish information on labor inspectorate funding and the numbers of convictions and imposed penalties related to the criminal enforcement of child labor laws.	2011 – 2020
	Establish a referral mechanism between the Ministry of Labor and the Ministry for Social Action and Vulnerable People to protect and rehabilitate children involved in child labor.	2016 – 2020

Area	Suggested Action	Year(s) Suggested
Enforcement	Ensure labor inspectors and criminal law enforcement officers receive adequate resources to enforce labor laws, including office supplies, fuel, and vehicles.	2020
Coordination	Ensure that the National Committee to Combat Trafficking in Persons and Similar Practices and the Committee for Monitoring, Protection, and Defense of the Rights of the Child receive adequate funding to fulfill their missions.	2010 – 2020
	Ensure that Committee for Monitoring, Protection, and Defense of the Rights of the Child is active.	2018 – 2020
Government Policies	Adopt a policy that addresses all relevant worst forms of child labor.	2014 – 2020
Social Programs	Enhance efforts to eliminate barriers and make education accessible for all children by improving school infrastructure and increasing school and teacher availability; and remove any school-related fees.	2010 – 2020
	Ensure all children have access to education regardless of whether or not they have birth registration.	2020
	Ensure that social services are properly funded and adequately meet the needs of victims of the worst forms of child labor.	2010 – 2020
	Institute programs to address the worst forms of child labor, including in agriculture, domestic work, forced begging, mining, and street work.	2010 – 2020

In 2020, Guinea-Bissau made minimal advancement in efforts to eliminate the worst forms of child labor. The National Institute for Women and Children identified and assisted 75 talibé children with medical assistance, shelter, family identification and the registration of birth certificates. In addition, in October 2020, the government reopened schools with provisions aimed at addressing lost school time due to lengthy teacher strikes and the COVID-19 pandemic, including an increase of an additional school day to each week of the school calendar to ensure minimal repercussions to children's education. However, children in Guinea-Bissau are subjected to the worst forms of child labor, including in forced begging, sometimes as a result of human trafficking. Children also engage in child labor in agriculture. Furthermore, the minimum age for work is not in compliance with international standards since the law's minimum age protections do not apply to children without a work contract. Lastly, law enforcement officials do not receive sufficient training and resources to adequately conduct inspections and prosecute cases of child labor, and social programs do not fully address the extent of the problem in the country.

I. PREVALENCE AND SECTORAL DISTRIBUTION OF CHILD LABOR

Children in Guinea-Bissau are subjected to the worst forms of child labor, including in forced begging, sometimes as a result of human trafficking. (1-3) Children also engage in child labor in agriculture. (2,4-6) According to a national child labor survey, more than 169,200 children ages 5 to 17 work; 85 percent of these children work in agriculture. (5) Table 1 provides key indicators on children's work and education in Guinea-Bissau. Data on some of these indicators are not available from the sources used in this report.

Table 1. Statistics on Children's Work and Education

Children	Age	Percent
Working (% and population)	5 to 14	57.4 (Unavailable)
Attending School (%)	5 to 14	68.1
Combining Work and School (%)	7 to 14	48.4
Primary Completion Rate (%)		Unavailable

Primary completion rate was unavailable from UNESCO Institute for Statistics, 2021. (7)

Source for all other data: International Labor Organization's analysis of statistics from Multiple Indicator Cluster Survey 5 (MICS 5), 2014. (8)

Based on a review of available information, Table 2 provides an overview of children's work by sector and activity.

Table 2. Overview of Children's Work by Sector and Activity

Sector/Industry	Activity
Agriculture	Farming, including the production of cashews (4-6,9)
	Fishing, activities unknown (5,6)
Services	Domestic work (4-6,10,11)
	Street work, including shoe shining and vending (6)
Categorical Worst Forms of Child Labor‡	Commercial sexual exploitation, sometimes as a result of human trafficking (2,3,12)
	Forced labor in domestic work, agriculture, and street work, including begging, each sometimes as a result of human trafficking (1-3,10,11)

‡ Child labor understood as the worst forms of child labor per se under Article 3(a)–(c) of ILO C. 182.

In Guinea-Bissau, organized networks of human traffickers affiliated with Koranic schools force boys to beg within the country and in The Gambia, Guinea, Mali, and Senegal. Although many Koranic school teachers provide religious education as traditionally intended, some force the students, known as talibés, to beg on the streets for money and food. (1,2,11,13) Most talibés originate from the areas of Bafatá and Gabú in the eastern region of the country. (1,2,13,14)

Bissau-Guinean boys are forced to work in street vending domestically; they are also transported by human traffickers to Senegal for forced labor in agriculture, mining, and street vending. Boys from Guinea-Bissau and boys from neighboring countries are forced to beg and harvest cashews domestically. (2,3,9,11,13) Girls are subjected to forced labor in street vending and domestic work in Guinea-Bissau and Senegal. Girls are also subjected to commercial sexual exploitation, including in sex tourism, in the Bijagós Archipelago of Guinea-Bissau, on mainland Guinea-Bissau in bars and hotels, and in Senegal. (2,3,10,13)

Barriers to education for children include lack of schools, poor infrastructure, and long distances, particularly in rural areas. (1,6,15) Reports indicate that only one in three children have access to primary education in Guinea-Bissau. (1,11) During the reporting period, most children did not attend school due to strikes by teachers over unpaid salaries, which have been ongoing since 2019. (6,16) The COVID-19 pandemic resulted in further school closings, and public school children's access to virtual classes was limited. (6) However, in October 2020 schools reopened with provisions aimed at addressing the lost school time, including an increase of an additional day to each week of the school calendar to ensure minimal consequences to children's education. (17)

Political instability may have affected the government's ability to address the worst forms of child labor. (6,18)

II. LEGAL FRAMEWORK FOR CHILD LABOR

Guinea-Bissau has ratified all key international conventions concerning child labor (Table 3).

Table 3. Ratification of International Conventions on Child Labor

Convention	Ratification
 ILO C. 138, Minimum Age	✓
 ILO C. 182, Worst Forms of Child Labor	✓
 UN CRC	✓
 UN CRC Optional Protocol on Armed Conflict	✓
 UN CRC Optional Protocol on the Sale of Children, Child Prostitution and Child Pornography	✓
 Palermo Protocol on Trafficking in Persons	✓

The government has established laws and regulations related to child labor (Table 4). However, gaps exist in Guinea-Bissau's legal framework to adequately protect children from the worst forms of child labor, including the minimum age for work.

Table 4. Laws and Regulations on Child Labor

Standard	Meets International Standards	Age	Legislation
Minimum Age for Work	No	14	Articles 1, 2, 146 and 186 of the General Labor Law (19)
Minimum Age for Hazardous Work	Yes	18	Articles 148 and 186 of the General Labor Law (19)
Identification of Hazardous Occupations or Activities Prohibited for Children	No		Article 148 of the General Labor Law (19)
Prohibition of Forced Labor	Yes		Articles 2, 4, and 15 of the Law to Prevent and Combat Human Trafficking; Article 106 of the Penal Code (20,21)
Prohibition of Child Trafficking	Yes		Articles 2, 4, and 15 of the Law to Prevent and Combat Human Trafficking (21)

Standard	Meets International Standards	Age	Legislation
Prohibition of Commercial Sexual Exploitation of Children	Yes		Articles 3–5 and 15 of the Law to Prevent and Combat Human Trafficking; Articles 134 and 136 of the Penal Code (20,21)
Prohibition of Using Children in Illicit Activities	Yes		Articles 3 and 7 of the Decree on Narcotic Substances (22)
Minimum Age for Voluntary State Military Recruitment	Yes	17	Article 31 of Law No. 4/99 (23)
Prohibition of Compulsory Recruitment of Children by (State) Military	Yes		Article 2 of Law No. 4/99 (23)
Prohibition of Military Recruitment by Non-state Armed Groups	No
Compulsory Education Age	Yes	15‡	Articles 12–13 of the Education System Law (24)
Free Public Education	No		Article 12(2) of the Education System Law (24)

‡ Age calculated based on available information (24,25)

The legislature is in the process of adopting amendments to the Code of Child Protection, which were drafted in 2019, to harmonize its human trafficking provisions with international law. (26)

The minimum age for work is not in compliance with international standards because the law's minimum age protections do not apply to children working without a work contract. Moreover, the government has not determined by national law or regulation the types of hazardous work prohibited for children. (19,25)

The Education System Law states that basic education is compulsory and lasts 9 years; however, it only makes basic education free through grade six, leaving children in grades seven through nine without access to free basic education. (24) In addition, because the minimum age for work is lower than the compulsory education age, children may be encouraged to leave school before the completion of compulsory education. (19,24)

III. ENFORCEMENT OF LAWS ON CHILD LABOR

The government has established institutional mechanisms for the enforcement of laws and regulations on child labor (Table 5). However, gaps exist within the operations of enforcement agencies that may hinder adequate enforcement of their child labor laws.

Table 5. Agencies Responsible for Child Labor Law Enforcement

Organization/Agency	Role
Ministry of Labor and Public Administration	Enforces child labor legislation in collaboration with the Ministries of the Interior and Justice, and the National Institute for Women and Children (IMC). (13)
Ministry of the Interior's Public Order Police and National Guard	Combats child labor through the prevention of child trafficking. (13)
Judicial Police's Women and Children Brigade	Investigates the worst forms of child labor, including child trafficking, and refers cases to IMC and NGOs. Comprising seven officers. (6)

Labor Law Enforcement

In 2020, labor law enforcement agencies in Guinea-Bissau took actions to combat child labor (Table 6). However, gaps exist within the operations of the Ministry of Labor and Public Administration that may hinder adequate labor law enforcement, including complaint and referral mechanisms.

Unannounced Inspections Conducted	Yes (13)	Yes (6)
Complaint Mechanism Exists	No (13)	No (6)
Reciprocal Referral Mechanism Exists Between Labor Authorities and Social Services	No (13)	No (6)

Reports indicate that not only is the number of labor inspectors insufficient to target the scope of the problem in the country, but limited resources, such as 1 vehicle shared among 28 inspectors with no budget for fuel, severely hinders the Ministry of Labor and Public Administration's ability to enforce child labor laws. (13) In addition, reports indicate that due to lack of funding, inspectors respond mainly to complaints rather than initiating targeted inspections based on risk-prone sectors and patterns of serious incidents. (26)

In 2020, pre-scheduled trainings for labor inspectors were cancelled due to the pandemic. (26) The government did not provide information related to the number of labor inspections conducted, the number of child labor violations found, or the number of penalties imposed or collected for child labor violations. (6)

Criminal Law Enforcement

In 2020, criminal law enforcement agencies in Guinea-Bissau took actions to combat child labor (Table 7). However, gaps exist within the operations of the criminal enforcement agencies that may hinder adequate criminal law enforcement, including allocation of financial resources.

Table 7. Criminal Law Enforcement Efforts Related to Child Labor

Overview of Criminal Law Enforcement	2019	2020
Initial Training for New Criminal Investigators	Yes (29)	No (6)
Training on New Laws Related to the Worst Forms of Child Labor	N/A	N/A

Number of Convictions	Unknown	Unknown
Imposed Penalties for Violations Related to the Worst Forms of Child Labor	Unknown	Unknown
Reciprocal Referral Mechanism Exists Between Criminal Authorities and Social Services	No (13)	No (6)

The government reported 34 cases of human trafficking during the reporting period. (26,30) Of these 34 cases, the Judicial Police reported investigating 8 cases of child trafficking related to talibés and 26 cases of sex trafficking. It is unknown if any of the sex trafficking cases involved children. (26,30) The government did not provide information regarding the number of prosecutions, convictions, or imposed penalties for violations related to the worst forms of child labor during the reporting period. Aside from the 34 human trafficking cases reported, comprehensive data on the number of investigations conducted during 2020 were not provided. (26,30)

In 2020, the government did not provide any specialized anti-trafficking trainings. Moreover, most planned trainings by international organizations were cancelled or postponed due to the pandemic, though some resumed during the latter part of the year, including trainings on communication and assistance to victims and data management that were funded by IOM and UNODC. (26,30) The Judicial Police received some funding and training from the UN and bilateral donors; however, it lacked an operating budget and had very limited resources, hindering criminal law enforcement from investigating cases outside of the capital of Bissau, including in Gabú and Bafatá, where child labor is known to occur. (1,6,9,26)

IV. COORDINATION OF GOVERNMENT EFFORTS ON CHILD LABOR

The government has established mechanisms to coordinate its efforts to address child labor (Table 8). However, gaps exist that may hinder the adequate coordination of efforts to address child labor, including efficacy in accomplishing mandates.

Table 8. Key Mechanisms to Coordinate Government Efforts on Child Labor

Coordinating Body	Role & Description
Inter-Ministerial Commission to Fight Child Labor	Coordinates the government's efforts to prevent and eliminate child labor. Established in 2010. (31) Research was unable to determine whether the Inter-Ministerial Commission to Fight Child Labor was active during the reporting period.
Inter-Ministerial Committee to Prevent and Combat Trafficking in Persons	Coordinates government efforts to combat human trafficking. Led by the IMC. (31) In 2020, continued coordinating efforts to combat human trafficking, including the formation of sub-committees at the regional level to prevent child trafficking. (6)
National Institute for Women and Children (IMC)	Coordinates with NGOs and other partner organizations to rehabilitate and reintegrate child victims of exploitation. (13) In 2020, in collaboration with the Government of Senegal, rescued and repatriated 18 child trafficking victims. Between March 2020 and February 2021, identified and assisted 75 talibés with family identification, medical assistance, shelter, and the registration of birth certificates. Provided shelter services to vulnerable children during the pandemic, and initiated dialogues with Koranic teachers regarding talibé human trafficking victims. (26)

V. GOVERNMENT POLICIES ON CHILD LABOR

The government has established policies related to child labor (Table 9). However, policy gaps exist that hinder efforts to address child labor, including implementation.

Table 9. Key Policies Related to Child Labor

Policy	Description
National Policy for the Protection of Children and Adolescents (2018–2030)	Guides the government's policies for combating violence toward children, including child labor. (32) Research was unable to determine whether activities were undertaken to implement this policy during the reporting period.
National Emergency Plan for the Prevention and Combat of Trafficking in Persons (2020–2021)	Aims to prevent and reduce human trafficking by strengthening legislation, coordinating actions and initiatives among government agencies, promoting the coordination and collaboration of relevant stakeholders, and improving protective services and assistance to victims. Led by the IMC with the collaboration of national and international NGOs and relevant government entities. (33) The government officially approved the National Emergency Plan for the Prevention and Combat of Trafficking in Persons in July 2020. (26)
Code of Conduct Against Sexual Exploitation in Tourism	Seeks to raise awareness of commercial sexual exploitation of children and child trafficking in Guinea-Bissau, particularly in the Bijagós Archipelago. (34) In 2020, the IMC and the Ministry of Tourism continued to implement the Code of Conduct Against Sexual Exploitation in Tourism. (26)
UN Country Partnership Framework (2016–2020)	Aimed to assist in promoting free and universal birth registration, and enforcing human trafficking and child labor provisions. (35) Since 2016, helped the IMC reintegrate 132 talibés with their families, and provided access to shelter, schools, and psychological and medical assistance. (36)

VI. SOCIAL PROGRAMS TO ADDRESS CHILD LABOR

In 2020, the government funded and participated in programs that include the goal of eliminating and preventing child labor (Table 10). However, gaps exist in these social programs, including the adequacy of programs to address the full scope of the problem.

Table 10. Key Social Programs to Address Child Labor

Program	Description
Friends of the Child Shelters ( Associação dos Amigos da Crianças )†	Donor-funded program, with government support, implemented by a national NGO that provides social services to vulnerable children, including victims of the worst forms of child labor. (37,38) In 2020, assisted 159 child trafficking victims.(6)
UNICEF Country Program (2016–2020)	UNICEF-funded program, in collaboration with the government, that aimed to prevent and combat child trafficking through education, social protection mechanisms, and capacity building for law enforcement officials. (39)

† Program is funded by the Government of Guinea-Bissau.

‡ The government had other social programs that may have included the goal of eliminating or preventing child labor. (40)

Reports suggest that the government has not conducted any national public awareness-raising campaigns on human trafficking, including child trafficking. (26)

Reports indicate that due to funding constraints, services provided by shelters do not meet quality of care standards. (37) In addition, although Guinea-Bissau has programs that target child labor, the scope of these programs is insufficient to fully address the extent of the problem.

VII. SUGGESTED GOVERNMENT ACTIONS TO ELIMINATE CHILD LABOR

Based on the reporting above, suggested actions are identified that would advance the elimination of child labor in Guinea-Bissau (Table 11).

Table 11. Suggested Government Actions to Eliminate Child Labor

Area	Suggested Action	Year(s) Suggested
Legal Framework	Ensure that the minimum age for work applies to all children, including children without a work contract.	2015 – 2020
	Determine by national law or regulation the types of hazardous work prohibited for children, after consultation with employers' and workers' organizations.	2009 – 2020
	Ensure that the law criminally prohibits the recruitment of children under age 18 by non-state armed groups.	2016 – 2020
	Ensure that all 9 years of basic education are free.	2015 – 2020
	Raise the minimum age for work to the age up to which education is compulsory.	2018 – 2020
Enforcement	Ensure that the number of law enforcement officials is sufficient to address the scope of the problem, and that both law and criminal enforcement officials receive adequate training and resources to inspect, investigate, and prosecute cases of child labor throughout the country, including in Bafatá and Gabú, where child labor is known to occur.	2009 – 2020
	Strengthen the labor inspectorate by initiating routine inspections and targeting inspections based on the analysis of data related to risk-prone sectors and patterns of serious incidents.	2016 – 2020
	Establish a mechanism to receive child labor complaints.	2016 – 2020
	Establish referral mechanisms to ensure that children found during labor inspections and criminal investigations are referred to the appropriate social services providers.	2016 – 2020
	Publish labor law enforcement data, including information on labor inspectorate funding, the number of inspections conducted, violations found, and the number of child labor violations for which penalties were imposed and collected. In addition, publish criminal law enforcement data that are disaggregated for crimes against children, including the number of child labor investigations, violations found, prosecutions initiated, convictions secured, and penalties imposed for violations related to the worst forms of child labor.	2009 – 2020
Coordination	Ensure that the Inter-Ministerial Commission to Fight Child Labor is able to carry out its intended mandate.	2020

Area	Suggested Action	Year(s) Suggested
Government Policies	Ensure that activities are undertaken to implement the National Policy for the Protection of Children and Adolescents.	2017 – 2020
Social Programs	Significantly increase efforts to raise national awareness of human trafficking, including child trafficking.	2018 – 2020
	Ensure that facilities, including shelters, have adequate resources to assist victims of the worst forms of child labor.	2015 – 2020
	Expand existing programs to address the scope of the child labor problem.	2009 – 2020
	Enhance efforts to eliminate barriers and make education accessible for all children by increasing the number of schools, improving school infrastructure, and providing transportation, particularly in rural areas.	2019 – 2020

In 2020, Guyana made moderate advancement in efforts to eliminate the worst forms of child labor. The government established a new Ministry of Labor, which monitors, investigates, and enforces child labor law in collaboration with other government agencies. Guyana also published a National Child Labor Policy with a corresponding national action plan, and it launched a new nationwide trafficking in persons hotline. However, children in Guyana are subjected to the worst forms of child labor, including in commercial sexual exploitation, sometimes as a result of human trafficking. Children also engage in dangerous tasks in mining. Law enforcement agencies have insufficient financial and human resources to enforce laws related to child labor, including its worst forms, and existing laws do not fully prohibit using children in certain forms of child labor. Moreover, the government does not have targeted social programs to fully address the extent of the child labor problem in the country.

I. PREVALENCE AND SECTORAL DISTRIBUTION OF CHILD LABOR

Children in Guyana are subjected to the worst forms of child labor, including in commercial sexual exploitation, sometimes as a result of human trafficking.

Children also engage in dangerous tasks in mining. (1-8) The 2014 Multiple Indicator Cluster Survey 5 indicated that children living in Guyana's interior are more likely than other children to be engaged in child labor, with 37 percent of children ages 5 to 17 living in the interior engaged in child labor. The survey also indicated that 41 percent of children living in Amerindian households engage in child labor, with 34 percent of these children engaged in hazardous work. (3) Table 1 provides key indicators on children's work and education in Guyana. Data on some of these indicators are not available from the sources used in this report.

Table 1. Statistics on Children's Work and Education

Children	Age	Percent
Working (% and population)	5 to 14	20.1 (Unavailable)
Attending School (%)	5 to 14	97.1
Combining Work and School (%)	7 to 14	22.1
Primary Completion Rate (%)		97.4

Source for primary completion rate: Data from 2012, published by UNESCO Institute for Statistics, 2021. (4)

Source for all other data: International Labor Organization's analysis of statistics from Multiple Indicator Cluster Survey 5 (MICS 5), 2014. (5)

Based on a review of available information, Table 2 provides an overview of children's work by sector and activity.

Table 2. Overview of Children's Work by Sector and Activity

Sector/Industry	Activity
Agriculture	Farming,† including the production of cabbage, cherries, limes, rice, squash, sugarcane, and charcoal (1,6,7,9-13)
	Forestry, including logging,† preservation of lumber, and work in sawmills† (1,3,7,9,11,13)
	Raising animals, including chickens (9)
	Fishing,† activities unknown (1,7,9,14)
Industry	Construction,† activities unknown (7,9,13,14)
	Mining,† including gold mining and bauxite mining (3,7,9,11,13)
Services	Domestic work (1,6,7,9)
	Welding† and working in scrap iron yards (1,6,7,9)
	Working in stores, bars, and restaurants (1,6,7,9)

MODERATE ADVANCEMENT

Sector/Industry	Activity
Services	Street work, including selling fruit, washing cars, and begging (1,6,7,9,15)
	Cleaning boats and ferries, and helping load luggage and goods (9)
Categorical Worst Forms of Child Labor‡	Commercial sexual exploitation, sometimes as a result of human trafficking (1,2,7-9,11,13,14,16)
	Use in illicit activities, including planting marijuana and smuggling drugs, weapons, and goods (6,9)

† Determined by national law or regulation as hazardous and, as such, relevant to Article 3(d) of ILO C. 182.

‡ Child labor understood as the worst forms of child labor per se under Article 3(a)–(c) of ILO C. 182.

Children in Guyana, including girls as young as age 12, are subjected to commercial sexual exploitation in Georgetown and in the country's interior. There are reports of young girls in mining communities being subjected to commercial sexual exploitation as a result of human trafficking. (1,6,8-10) Children are engaged in informal, small-scale mining in which they wash gold, operate dangerous machinery, and are exposed to hazardous chemicals. (7,9,10)

Children in Guyana's interior and rural areas have limited access to education due to poor infrastructure, long distances to schools, transportation costs, and a shortage of qualified teachers. This leads to decreasing enrollment and high dropout rates among students, particularly in secondary school. (6,7,9,10,17) The lack of information technology and the limited availability of electricity in rural and riverine communities also hindered access to education during the COVID-19 pandemic. (7)

II. LEGAL FRAMEWORK FOR CHILD LABOR

Guyana has ratified all key international conventions concerning child labor (Table 3).

Table 3. Ratification of International Conventions on Child Labor

	Convention	Ratification
	ILO C. 138, Minimum Age	✓
	ILO C. 182, Worst Forms of Child Labor	✓
	UN CRC	✓
	UN CRC Optional Protocol on Armed Conflict	✓
	UN CRC Optional Protocol on the Sale of Children, Child Prostitution and Child Pornography	✓
	Palermo Protocol on Trafficking in Persons	✓

The government has established laws and regulations related to child labor (Table 4). However, gaps exist in Guyana’s legal framework to adequately protect children from the worst forms of child labor, including insufficient prohibition of commercial sexual exploitation of children.

Table 4. Laws and Regulations on Child Labor

Standard	Meets International Standards	Age	Legislation
Minimum Age for Work	Yes	15	Articles 2–3 of the Employment of Young Persons and Children Act; Articles 17–22 of the Education Act (18,19)
Minimum Age for Hazardous Work	Yes	18	Part 1, Article 2, and Part 2, Article 3 of the Employment of Young Persons and Children Act; Articles 17, 41, 46, and 75 of the Occupational Safety and Health Act (18,20)
Identification of Hazardous Occupations or Activities Prohibited for Children	Yes		List of Hazardous Occupations and Processes in Guyana; Part 1, Article 2 of the Employment of Young Persons and Children Act; Articles 17, 41, and 75 of the Occupational Safety and Health Act (18,20)

Standard	Meets International Standards	Age	Legislation
Prohibition of Forced Labor	No		Article 40 of the Constitution; Article 3 of the Combating of Trafficking in Persons Act (21,22)
Prohibition of Child Trafficking	Yes		Article 3 of the Combating of Trafficking in Persons Act (22)
Prohibition of Commercial Sexual Exploitation of Children	No		Article 3(2) of the Combating of Trafficking in Persons Act; Article 50(3) of the Protection of Children Act (22,23)
Prohibition of Using Children in Illicit Activities	No		Article 50(1) of the Protection of Children Act (23)
Minimum Age for Voluntary State Military Recruitment	Yes	18	Article 18 of the Defense Act and Defense Amendment Act (24,25)
Prohibition of Compulsory Recruitment of Children by (State) Military	N/A*
Prohibition of Military Recruitment by Non-state Armed Groups	No
Compulsory Education Age	Yes	15	Articles 13 and 22 of the Education Act (19)
Free Public Education	Yes		Article 27 of the Constitution (21)

* No conscription (1,26)

Guyanese laws addressing forced labor are not sufficient as they only prohibit trafficking in persons for purposes of forced labor; the law does not explicitly prohibit the use of forced labor itself. (21, 22) Guyanese law does not sufficiently prohibit all commercial sexual exploitation of children as it does not prohibit the use of children for prostitution, pornographic performances, or production of pornography. The law does, however, adequately prohibit the procuring and offering of children in prostitution and pornography, as Guyana's Combating of Trafficking in Persons Act prohibits the recruitment, transportation, transfer, harboring, or receipt of a child for the purpose of exploitation, which in turn includes prostitution and child pornography. (10,22,27) In addition, although Article 50(1) of the Protection of Children Act prohibits selling or giving drugs to children, the law does not specifically prohibit the use, procuring, or offering of a child for the production and trafficking of drugs. (16,23)

The government finalized a revised Combating Trafficking in Persons Bill in 2019, but the Bill was not made law during this reporting period. (26)

III. ENFORCEMENT OF LAWS ON CHILD LABOR

The government has established institutional mechanisms for the enforcement of laws and regulations on child labor (Table 5). However, gaps exist within the operations of enforcement agencies that may hinder adequate enforcement of their child labor laws.

Table 5. Agencies Responsible for Child Labor Law Enforcement

Organization/Agency	Role
Ministry of Labor*	Investigates reports of child labor and conducts routine labor inspections and refers children identified during labor inspections to the MHSS's Countering Trafficking in Persons Unit (C-TIP) and the Childcare and Protection Agency. (7,28) The C-TIP Unit, under the supervision of the Director of Public Prosecutions, prosecutes trafficking in persons cases. (7) Promotes public messaging on child labor. (26)
Ministry of Human Services and Social Security (MHSS)	Monitors and enforces child labor laws in collaboration with the Ministry of Education, Forestry Commission, Geology and Mines Commission, National Insurance Scheme, and Guyana Police Force. The Chief Labor Officer handles special investigations stemming from child labor complaints and oversees routine labor inspections. (10) Includes a Trafficking in Persons Unit and the Childcare and Protection Agency, to which children identified during labor inspections are referred. (10) Reported two new investigations of child labor during the reporting period, including domestic servitude and commercial sexual exploitation. (7) In 2020, began to co-chair the Inter-Ministerial Task Force on Trafficking in Persons with MOHA. (7)

MODERATE ADVANCEMENT

Organization/Agency	Role
Guyana Police Force	Enforces criminal laws related to the worst forms of child labor, including human trafficking, commercial sexual exploitation, and the use of children in illicit activities. Works in consultation with the Director of Public Prosecutions, MOHA, Ministry of Human Services and Social Security, Ministry of Education, and Ministry of Indigenous Peoples' Affairs, depending on the circumstances of each case. (10) During the reporting period, investigated 13 cases of human trafficking involving child victims. (7)
Ministry of Home Affairs (MOHA)	Leads enforcement of human trafficking laws. (10) During the reporting period, trained new police force recruits, immigration staff, police prosecutors, and detectives in best practices to investigate and prosecute human trafficking. (7)

* Agency responsible for child labor enforcement was created during the reporting period.

Labor Law Enforcement

In 2020, labor law enforcement agencies in Guyana took actions to combat child labor (Table 6). However, gaps exist within the operations of the Ministry of Human Services and Social Security (MHSS) that may hinder adequate labor law enforcement, including human resource allocation.

Table 6. Labor Law Enforcement Efforts Related to Child Labor

Overview of Labor Law Enforcement	2019	2020
Labor Inspectorate Funding	Unknown (1)	Unknown (7)
Number of Labor Inspectors	14 (1)	17 (7)
Inspectorate Authorized to Assess Penalties	No (1)	No (7)
Initial Training for New Labor Inspectors	Yes (1)	Yes (7)

Number of Labor Inspections Conducted	1,306 (1)	736 (7)
Number Conducted at Worksite	1,306 (1)	736 (7)
Number of Child Labor Violations Found	6 (1)	2 (7)
Number of Child Labor Violations for Which Penalties Were Imposed	Unknown (1)	Unknown (7)
Number of Child Labor Penalties Imposed that Were Collected	Unknown (1)	Unknown (7)
Routine Inspections Conducted	Yes (1)	Yes (7)
Routine Inspections Targeted	Yes (1)	Yes (7)
Unannounced Inspections Permitted	Yes (1)	Yes (29)
Unannounced Inspections Conducted	Yes (1)	Yes (7)
Complaint Mechanism Exists	Yes (1)	Yes (7)
Reciprocal Referral Mechanism Exists Between Labor Authorities and Social Services	Yes (1)	Yes (7)

In 2020, the government continued to conduct routine inspections that targeted high-risk sectors, including agriculture, construction, and mining. (7) However, the number of labor inspectors is likely insufficient for the size of Guyana's workforce, which includes more than 313,800 workers. According to the ILO's technical advice of a ratio approaching 1 inspector for every 15,000 workers in developing economies, Guyana would employ roughly 21 inspectors. (27,30) In 2020, the number of labor inspectors increased from 14 to 17, but the government recognizes that the number of inspectors is not sufficient to adequately monitor Guyana's workforce, including in the interior where child labor is most prevalent. (1,7,9,10,13) The significant decrease of labor inspections was a result of the pandemic and the related preventative measures taken by the government, such as business closures, curfew restrictions, and other health and safety restrictions. The labor inspectors were also working on a limited rotation, which contributed to a reduction in inspections. (31) Furthermore, inspectors have insufficient resources to conduct inspections in remote areas, including transportation and accommodation. There are also no inspectors dedicated to child labor; though inspectors continue to include child labor inspections in their schedules, and 15 of the 17 inspectors received training related to child labor and hazardous child labor. (7,10)

The government has acknowledged challenges in monitoring and enforcing the provisions established in Articles 41 (relating to child labor in factories) and 46 (relating to employer duties) of the Occupational Safety and Health Act, which aim to protect children from work that may harm their physical health or emotional development. (32)

The government did not provide information on its labor law enforcement efforts for inclusion in this report.

Criminal Law Enforcement

In 2020, criminal law enforcement agencies in Guyana took actions to combat child labor (Table 7). However, gaps exist within the operations of the criminal enforcement agencies that may hinder adequate criminal law enforcement, including human resource allocation.

Table 7. Criminal Law Enforcement Efforts Related to Child Labor

Overview of Criminal Law Enforcement	2019	2020
Initial Training for New Criminal Investigators	Unknown (1)	Yes (7)
Training on New Laws Related to the Worst Forms of Child Labor	Unknown (1)	Yes (7)
Refresher Courses Provided	Unknown (1)	Yes (7)
Number of Investigations	6 (1)	2 (7)
Number of Violations Found	Unknown (1)	0 (7)
Number of Prosecutions Initiated	6 (1)	0 (7)
Number of Convictions	1 (1,2)	0 (7)
Imposed Penalties for Violations Related to the Worst Forms of Child Labor	Unknown (1)	Unknown (7)
Reciprocal Referral Mechanism Exists Between Criminal Authorities and Social Services	Yes (1)	Yes (7)

The government has acknowledged that there is an insufficient number of staff members in MHSSS' Trafficking in Persons Unit. (12,33) In addition, as of 2021, there are 22 magistrates and 17 judges in Guyana. (34)

IV. COORDINATION OF GOVERNMENT EFFORTS ON CHILD LABOR

The government has established mechanisms to coordinate its efforts to address child labor (Table 8). However, gaps exist that hinder the effective coordination of efforts to address child labor, including efforts to address all forms of child labor.

Table 8. Key Mechanisms to Coordinate Government Efforts on Child Labor

Coordinating Body	Role & Description
Inter-Ministerial Task Force on Combating Trafficking in Persons	Reports on the nature and magnitude of human trafficking in Guyana and documents the government's response. Carries out public education campaigns and promotes prevention measures. (1,10) Combats commercial sexual exploitation of children and the use of children in illicit activities. (1,15,35) Co-chaired by MOHA and MHSSS. Participating member agencies include the Guyana Forestry Commission and Guyana Geology and Mines Commission, which focus on child labor and human trafficking in the rural and hinterland regions. (1,7,15) Also serves as the coordinating body for efforts to combat the worst forms of child labor, and the management body for child labor referrals. In 2020, conducted human trafficking awareness training for labor inspectors, occupational safety and health officers, forestry officers from the Guyana Forestry Commission, and insurance investigators. (7) Further, launched its first trafficking in persons hotline in Spanish, planned and executed several sensitization and awareness sessions, hosted a digital symposium on human trafficking, and consulted with various stakeholders in preparation for drafting the National Plan of Action to Combat Human Trafficking for 2021–2023. (26)
National Tripartite Committee	Addresses national labor legislation and policy. Includes representatives from government agencies, labor unions, and employers, including MHSSS, Consultative Association of Guyanese Industries, Guyana Trades Union Congress, and the Federation of Independent Trade Unions of Guyana. (15,36,37) Research was unable to determine whether the National Tripartite Committee was active during the reporting period.
Commission on the Rights of the Child	Protects and promotes children's rights in accordance with the UN CRC, which includes addressing the worst forms of child labor. Reported to be active in 2020, but did not finalize its new strategic plan. (7,38,39)

MODERATE ADVANCEMENT

Although the government has an Inter-Ministerial Task Force on Combating Trafficking in Persons, which also serves as the coordinating body for efforts to combat the worst forms of child labor, research was unable to identify what actions were taken to coordinate efforts to combat other worst forms of child labor.

V. GOVERNMENT POLICIES ON CHILD LABOR

The government has established policies related to child labor (Table 9). However, policy gaps exist that hinder efforts to address child labor, including a lack of child labor elimination and prevention strategies in the National Education Policy.

Table 9. Key Policies Related to Child Labor

Policy	Description
National Policy Toward the Elimination of Child Labor (2018–2025)	Aims to prevent and eliminate child labor in all its forms by 2025 by reconciling gaps and inconsistencies between existing national policies and ratified international conventions. Establishes a national framework to coordinate, enforce, monitor, and evaluate all efforts to combat child labor, and increases protections for vulnerable indigenous children in the hinterland. (7,40,41) In 2020, the government published its National Child Labor Policy and a corresponding national action plan, provided training workshops for Ministry of Labor staffers, and disseminated booklets, posters, advertisements, and social media posts to raise child labor awareness. (31)
Inter-Ministerial Task Force on Combating Trafficking in Persons Action Plan (2019–2020)	Seeks to prevent and raise awareness about human trafficking, provide direct assistance to victims, improve law enforcement's capacity to identify and respond to human trafficking, and strengthen inter-agency coordination and referral mechanisms. (1,42) Establishes mechanisms to protect victims of all forms of human trafficking, prevent trafficking in persons, and prosecute human traffickers. Provides for the review and amendment of the Combating Trafficking in Persons Act. (2)

‡ The government had other policies that may have addressed child labor issues or had an impact on child labor. (43)

The National Education Policy does not include child labor elimination and prevention strategies. The Commission on the Rights of the Child began drafting a new strategic plan to replace the previous 5-Year Strategic Plan; however, research was unable to determine whether the new strategy includes child labor elimination and prevention strategies. (10,32,43)

VI. SOCIAL PROGRAMS TO ADDRESS CHILD LABOR

In 2020, the government funded and participated in programs that include the goal of eliminating or preventing child labor (Table 10). However, gaps exist in these social programs, including adequacy to address the problem in all sectors.

Table 10. Key Social Programs to Address Child Labor

Program	Description
Guyana Decent Work Country Program (2017–2021)†	Aims to improve working conditions and increase respect for international standards, social protection, economic opportunities, and social dialogue. Includes plans to conduct research and raise awareness on child labor, develop a national child labor policy, and establish coordination mechanisms to prevent and respond to child labor and forced labor. (44) Research was unable to determine whether activities were undertaken to implement the Guyana Decent Work Country Program during the reporting period.
Shelter for Domestic Violence Victims†	Government-funded, NGO-run shelter that houses victims of domestic violence and human trafficking, including children. Provides services, including psychological counseling and practical skills training. (10) Accommodates teenage girls under age 16 who are placed at the shelter at the request of the government's Childcare and Protection Agency. (10) Previously received $50,000 annually from the government; however, funding was reduced during the reporting period. (1,7)
Government-Funded School Programs†	School Meals and Uniforms provides hot meals to 16,000 students at schools in the interior and transportation for students in several remote areas. All students in government-run schools, from nursery to secondary school, receive vouchers to purchase school uniforms, shoes, and backpacks. (15) Active in 2020. (7) The Public Education and Transportation Service, previously known as the 5Bs Program, provides boats, buses, bicycles, books, and breakfast to school children to improve access to education. (1,7,13,17,34,45)
Child Advocacy Centers	Funded by private sector donations and UNICEF, and implemented by MHSSS and NGOs to provide services for abused children. (46) MHSSS' Childcare and Protection Agency oversees the centers and makes referrals. (46) During the reporting period, the government opened two new centers, with the total number of functioning Child Advocacy Centers covering over seven regions of Guyana. (7,47-49)

Program	Description
Board of Industrial Training†	Government-funded program that aims to deter early school dropouts by providing job skills to at-risk youth between ages 15 and 17 who may not otherwise be able to complete their formal education. (10) Research was unable to determine whether activities were undertaken to implement the Board of Industrial Training during the reporting period.
Regional Initiative Latin America and the Caribbean Free of Child Labor	Initiated by an inter-governmental cooperation platform made up of 30 countries, with active participation of employers and workers organizations, which seeks to declare Latin America and the Caribbean as the first developing region free of child labor by 2025. In October 2020, Regional Initiative met to discuss the third phase of implementation for 2022–2025, to update its governance mechanisms, and to strengthen ownership and social dialogue. (50)

The scope of government programs targeting the worst forms of child labor is insufficient to fully address the extent of the problem, including child labor in the mining industry and the commercial sexual exploitation of children. (13)

VII. SUGGESTED GOVERNMENT ACTIONS TO ELIMINATE CHILD LABOR

Based on the reporting above, suggested actions are identified that would advance the elimination of child labor in Guyana (Table 11).

Table 11. Suggested Government Actions to Eliminate Child Labor

Area	Suggested Action	Year(s) Suggested
Legal Framework	Ensure that the law sufficiently prohibits forced labor.	2019 – 2020
	Ensure that the law sufficiently prohibits all commercial sexual exploitation of children by prohibiting the use of children in pornography and prostitution.	2010 – 2020
	Ensure that the law sufficiently prohibits the use of children for illicit activities by prohibiting the use, procuring, or offering of a child for the production or trafficking of drugs.	2016 – 2020
	Ensure that the law criminally prohibits the recruitment of children under age 18 by non-state armed groups.	2016 – 2020
Enforcement	Increase the number of labor inspectors to meet the ILO's technical advice.	2015 – 2020
	Publish information on the labor inspectorate's funding and the number of child labor violations for which penalties were imposed and collected.	2015 – 2020
	Authorize the labor inspectorate to assess penalties.	2016 – 2020
	Ensure that the labor inspectorate receives sufficient resources to monitor the interior, where child labor is most prevalent, and in other remote areas.	2011 – 2020
	Ensure the appropriate application of Articles 41 and 46 of the Occupational Safety and Health Act to protect children from work that may harm their physical health or emotional development.	2015 – 2020
	Ensure that the Ministry of Human Services and Social Security's Trafficking in Persons Unit is sufficiently staffed to carry out its mandate.	2018 – 2020
	Dedicate more resources, including judicial personnel, to address the backlog of cases and ensure that cases are concluded in a timely manner, including cases related to the worst forms of child labor.	2010 – 2020
Coordination	Establish coordinating mechanisms to combat child labor, including all of its worst forms.	2014 – 2020
	Ensure that the National Tripartite Committee engages in regular meetings and coordination efforts.	2014 – 2020
Government Policies	Ensure that activities are undertaken to implement key policies.	2020
Social Programs	Ensure that children are not prevented from attending school because of transportation costs and lack of infrastructure, and increase the number of qualified teachers, particularly in rural and interior areas.	2015 – 2020
	Collect and publish data on the extent and nature of child labor, including in fishing and construction, to inform policies and programs.	2020
	Develop new initiatives and expand existing programs to reach all children involved in the worst forms of child labor, including programs addressing child labor in the mining industry and the commercial sexual exploitation of children.	2010 – 2020
	Ensure that activities are undertaken to implement the Guyana Decent Work Country Program and the Board of Industrial Training.	2018 – 2020

In 2020, Haiti made moderate advancement in efforts to eliminate the worst forms of child labor. The government adopted the National Social Protection and Promotion Policy that aims to build institutional resilience for social protection against economic shocks and health crises, including efforts to identify and remove children from work and provide vocational training for youth. It also established task forces to combat human trafficking in three provinces, and collected data from 83 organizations to develop an interactive map of service providers for victims of human trafficking in the West, North-East, and Central Plateau regions. However, children in Haiti are subjected to the worst forms of child labor, including in commercial sexual exploitation, sometimes as a result of human trafficking. Children in Haiti also perform dangerous tasks in agriculture and domestic work. Minimum age protections for work apply only to children with a formal employment contract, which does not comply with international standards requiring all children to be protected. In addition, Haiti lacks a clear, easily applicable minimum age for domestic work and a list of hazardous occupations prohibited to children. Likewise, labor inspectors are not authorized to assess penalties and social programs to combat child labor are insufficient to adequately address the extent of the problem.

I. PREVALENCE AND SECTORAL DISTRIBUTION OF CHILD LABOR

Children in Haiti are subjected to the worst forms of child labor, including in commercial sexual exploitation, sometimes as a result of human trafficking. Children also perform dangerous tasks in agriculture and domestic work. (1-5) Table 1 provides key indicators on children's work and education in Haiti. Data on some of these indicators are not available from the sources used in this report. Data on some of these indicators are not available from the sources used in this report.

Table 1. Statistics on Children's Work and Education

Children	Age	Percent
Working (% and population)	5 to 14	34.4 (815,993)
Attending School (%)	5 to 14	92.4
Combining Work and School (%)	7 to 14	34.9
Primary Completion Rate (%)		Unavailable

Primary Completion Rate was unavailable from UNESCO Institute for Statistics, 2021. (6)

Based on a review of available information, Table 2 provides an overview of children's work by sector and activity.

Table 2. Overview of Children's Work by Sector and Activity

Sector/Industry	Activity
Agriculture	Raising livestock (1,8)
	Capturing and processing fish (2,5,8,9)
Industry	Construction, including transport of construction materials such as sand and rocks (2,3,5,9)
	Producing metal crafts (10)
Services	Domestic work (4,11,12)
	Transporting and selling alcohol† and tobacco (2,8)
	Street work, including vending, begging, shining shoes, washing cars; and carrying water, firewood, goods, and luggage in public markets and bus stations (1-3,5,9,12)

Sector/Industry	Activity
Categorical Worst Forms of Child Labor‡	Forced labor in domestic work, agriculture, street vending, and begging, each sometimes as a result of human trafficking (2-5,12-14)
	Use in illicit activities, including by criminal groups in drug trafficking (8,12,15)
	Commercial sexual exploitation, sometimes as a result of human trafficking (3,9,12,16,17)

† Determined by national law or regulation as hazardous and, as such, relevant to Article 3(d) of ILO C. 182.

‡ Child labor understood as the worst forms of child labor per se under Article 3(a)–(c) of ILO C. 182.

A 2015 study found that there were approximately 286,000 child domestic workers in Haiti, 207,000 of whom were lagging behind in school or had significantly lower school enrollment rates. (5,9,18,19) Moreover, most of Haiti’s human trafficking cases involve children subjected to forced labor as domestic workers. These children commonly called restavèk are often physically abused, sexually exploited, and uncompensated for their services. (5,20) Traffickers use church, sport, or family networks to locate and traffic children from poor families and transport them to families that request their service as a form of indentured servitude. (20) Many of these children flee and end up living on the streets, where they face the risk of being trafficked again. (5) Some parents who are unable to care for their children send them to residential care centers or to relatives or strangers who are expected to provide the children with food, shelter, and schooling in exchange for household work. In practice, some of these children receive care and access to education, while many others become victims of labor exploitation and abuse. (3,4,11,12,21)

In addition, Haiti has over 750 orphanages that house over 25,000 children who may be vulnerable to human trafficking and child labor in lieu of attending school. (19) Only 105 of the 750 orphanages in the country are licensed. (20) According to a study by the Institute of Social Welfare and Research (IBESR), an arm of the Ministry of Social Affairs and Labor (MAST), a majority of Haiti’s orphanages fail to comply with the government’s care standards. There is evidence that some children in orphanages engage in child labor for domestic work and are prevented from attending school. (12,19,22,23) Reports indicate that traffickers also target children in private and NGO-sponsored residential care centers. (5) In the past few years, the government has closed 160 unaccredited orphanages and is now focusing on promoting child fostering as an alternative to prevent child labor in residential institutions. (19,22,23)

According to some reports, children are often forced into commercial or transactional sex to fund basic needs such as school-related expenses. Impoverished children are often subjected to sexual exploitation and abuse. (24) Criminal gangs recruit children as young as age 10 and subject them to sexual exploitation and pornography. (24) Haitian children are victims of human trafficking not only internally, but also externally, primarily to the Dominican Republic, other Caribbean countries, South America, and the United States. (12,20,25) NGOs have reported that children illegally crossing the Haiti-Dominican Republic border are often accompanied by adults paid to pose as the children’s parents or guardians until they reach the Dominican Republic. (2,9,12,25,26) Some of these children are reunited with relatives in the Dominican Republic, while others are forced into commercial sexual exploitation, domestic work, agriculture, street vending, and begging. (2,9,16,27) In addition, Haiti is a destination country for child sex tourists, primarily from the United States and Canada. (20)

In 2020, the Government of the Dominican Republic continued to involuntarily repatriate individuals with irregular migration status to Haiti, pursuant to Dominican law. (28-31) Some of these repatriated individuals included children who now reside in Haiti at camps near the border with the Dominican Republic, where schools and other basic services are not available. Repatriated children may not speak French or Haitian Creole, the languages of instruction in public Haitian schools. (3,14,32,33) Whether they’ve been deported to Haiti or voluntarily returned, these children are vulnerable to the worst forms of child labor. (16,33)

The Haitian Constitution guarantees a right to free primary education, which is also compulsory under the law. (34,35) But because approximately 90 percent of all existing schools are private, most Haitian children are enrolled in private schools that charge tuition and other fees, which make education prohibitively expensive to many families. (1,3) In addition, many children in Haiti are not registered at birth, and unregistered children are not able to access social services and educational programs provided by the government. (8) Children born in rural communities are less likely to be documented than children in urban areas. (24)

Other children, especially in rural areas, do not attend school due to the lack of school infrastructure and limited availability of teachers. Out-of-school children are more vulnerable to the worst forms of child labor. (1,3,14) In addition, the Ministry of Education recommends that a child be between ages 11 and 13 when transitioning to secondary school. Overage children must integrate into a special group that attends school during the evening. (34,36,37) However, research did not find evidence that schools provide instruction during the evening for special groups. (38) Research also indicates that less than 14 percent of children with disabilities attend school. (24)

In 2020, a majority of schools were closed for at least 115 days due to the COVID-19 pandemic and civil unrest. (12) As a result, an estimated four million children reportedly missed out on dozens of school days, a state of affairs that was especially pronounced in urban areas such as Port-au-Prince, Cap Haitien, and Les Cayes. (39) This was in addition to the 60 school days students lost in 2019 during the country's lockdowns following severe protests. Consequently, more than 70 percent of school children lost a complete school year. (39) Many children who were already vulnerable may never return to school as a result. (39)

II. LEGAL FRAMEWORK FOR CHILD LABOR

Haiti has ratified all key international conventions concerning child labor (Table 3).

Table 3. Ratification of International Conventions on Child Labor

	Convention	Ratification
	ILO C. 138, Minimum Age	✓
	ILO C. 182, Worst Forms of Child Labor	✓
	UN CRC	✓
	UN CRC Optional Protocol on Armed Conflict	✓
	UN CRC Optional Protocol on the Sale of Children, Child Prostitution and Child Pornography	✓
	Palermo Protocol on Trafficking in Persons	✓

The government has established laws and regulations related to child labor (Table 4). However, gaps exist in Haiti's legal framework to adequately protect children from the worst forms of child labor, including the minimum age for work and the age for compulsory education.

Table 4. Laws and Regulations on Child Labor

Standard	Meets International Standards	Age	Legislation
Minimum Age for Work	No	16	Article 340 of the Labor Code; Article 10 of the Law Organizing and Regulating Labor (40,41)
Minimum Age for Hazardous Work	Yes	18	Articles 333–334 of the Labor Code; Article 2 of the Act on the Prohibition and Elimination of All Forms of Abuse, Violence, Ill Treatment, or Inhumane Treatment Against Children (Act of 2003) (40,42)
Identification of Hazardous Occupations or Activities Prohibited for Children	No		Articles 333–336 of the Labor Code (40)
Prohibition of Forced Labor	No		Article 4 of the Labor Code; Article 2 of the Act of 2003 (40,42)
Prohibition of Child Trafficking	Yes		Article 2 of the Act of 2003; Article 1.1.1 of the Anti-Trafficking in Persons Law (42,43)

MODERATE ADVANCEMENT

Standard	Meets International Standards	Age	Legislation
Prohibition of Commercial Sexual Exploitation of Children	Yes		Article 2 of the Act of 2003; Articles 279–281 of the Penal Code; Article 1.1.17 of the Anti-Trafficking in Persons Law (37,42,43)
Prohibition of Using Children in Illicit Activities	Yes		Article 72 of the Law on the Control and Suppression of Illicit Drug Trafficking; Article 2 of the Act of 2003 (42,44)
Minimum Age for Voluntary State Military Recruitment	No
Prohibition of Compulsory Recruitment of Children by (State) Military	Yes		Article 268 of the Constitution (34)
Prohibition of Military Recruitment by Non-state Armed Groups	Yes		Article 70 of the Penal Code; Article 2 of the Act of 2003 (37,42)
Compulsory Education Age	No	15	Article 23 of the Decree on the Reorganization of the Haitian Education System (35)
Free Public Education	Yes		Articles 32.1 and 33 of the Constitution (34)

The Labor Code, which establishes the penalty for violations of the minimum age for work, applies only to workers who perform work under a formal employment agreement, which does not conform to international standards that require all children to be protected under the law establishing a minimum age for work. (1,38,40) Furthermore, as the minimum age for work is 16, children age 15 are vulnerable to exploitative child labor because they are not required to attend school but also are not yet legally permitted to work. (35,40)

In addition, it is unclear whether there is a minimum age for domestic work because the Act on the Prohibition and Elimination of All Forms of Abuse, Violence, Ill Treatment, or Inhumane Treatment Against Children of 2003 (Act of 2003) annulled Chapter 9 of the Labor Code, which set the minimum age for domestic work at age 12. (1,38,40,42)

The Labor Code prohibits children under age 18 from working in establishments that sell alcohol and from working at night in industrial enterprises. (41,45) However, the types of hazardous work prohibited for children do not cover agriculture, an economic sector in which children are exposed to hazardous substances and agents and to temperatures that can damage their health. (2,15,44-47) In 2020, Haiti's National Tripartite Commission for the Elimination of the Worst Forms of Child Labor updated the draft hazardous work list to include agriculture and livestock, mines and quarries, construction, transportation, and domestic work, but the draft list remains unapproved by Parliament for the sixth consecutive year. Haiti's failure to hold legislative elections in 2019 caused the parliament to lapse in January 2020, and without a functioning parliament, the Haitian Government is not fully operational and is not able to pursue legal reforms. (12)

Laws related to forced labor are not sufficient, as forced labor is not criminally prohibited. The Anti-Trafficking in Persons Law criminalizes trafficking for forced labor, including recruitment, transportation, and accommodation for that purpose, but does not independently criminalize forced labor. (43) Research could not find evidence of any other legal provision criminally prohibiting forced labor.

Although Haiti's Constitution establishes the age for compulsory military recruitment at age 18 and sources suggest recruitment materials set the minimum age for voluntary recruitment at that age, research could not find evidence of a law that establishes the age for voluntary recruitment. (8,34,48,49)

III. ENFORCEMENT OF LAWS ON CHILD LABOR

The government has established institutional mechanisms for the enforcement of laws and regulations on child labor (Table 5). However, gaps exist within the authority of enforcement agencies that may hinder adequate enforcement of their child labor laws.

Table 5. Agencies Responsible for Child Labor Law Enforcement

Organization/Agency	Role
Ministry of Social Affairs and Labor (MAST)	Enforces laws related to child labor by issuing employment permits to approve certain forms of minor labor for children between ages 15 and 18, receiving complaints, conducting investigations, and referring cases to juvenile courts. (12,41,50) Develops and implements programs to raise awareness of child labor and provide social services to child victims of labor exploitation. (4,9,50) Its agents at the Institute of Social Welfare and Research (IBESR) perform child protection inspections, which include following up on reported incidents of child labor, and are responsible for accrediting residential care centers. (51)
Brigade for the Protection of Minors (BPM)	Investigates crimes of the worst forms of child labor, including child trafficking and commercial sexual exploitation. Submits investigations to judicial authorities for criminal prosecutions and refers child victims to IBESR. (4,12) Housed within the Haitian National Police, maintains 22 offices around the country, including 2 offices along the Haiti-Dominican Republic border. (12)
POLIFRONT	Enforces Haiti's Customs Code and investigates transnational crimes, including child trafficking. (12) Is also responsible for referring cases of vulnerable migrants, including minors, to IBESR. Serves as the Border Police Unit of the Haitian National Police. (12) Cooperates with the Dominican Republic Border Police. (52,53) Operates at the border crossings of Ouanaminthe and Anse-à-Pitres, and reportedly plans to establish a permanent presence in Malpasse and Belladère (the other two official border-crossing points) by 2021. (15,52,54,55)

Labor Law Enforcement

In 2020, labor law enforcement agencies in Haiti took actions to combat child labor (Table 6). However, gaps in MAST's authority may hinder adequate labor law enforcement, including the lack of authority to assess penalties.

Table 6. Labor Law Enforcement Efforts Related to Child Labor

The government provided little information on its labor law enforcement efforts for inclusion in this report.

In 2020, in addition to operational challenges due to the pandemic, research indicates that the lack of sufficient resources, such as the means of transportation, fuel, and appropriately equipped workplaces, hampered MAST's enforcement efforts, including IBESR's capacity to enforce child labor laws by conducting an adequate number of labor inspections. (2,8,12,15,56) Furthermore, IBESR reported that it was unable to conduct a single child protection inspection in 2020, including following up on reported incidents of child labor, in part due to the negative impact the pandemic had on the government's ability to operate. (12)

IBESR inspectors received virtual training on handling cases of domestic child labor from the ILO in December 2020. Despite this, according to IBESR, inspectors received insufficient training on child labor issues

Haiti

MODERATE ADVANCEMENT

overall. (12) While the number of labor inspectors in the country is unknown, according to the ILO's technical advice of a ration approaching 1 inspector for every 40,000 workers in less developed countries, Haiti would need to employ roughly 115 labor inspectors as its workforce consists of over 4.5 million workers. (57,58)

IBESR manages the "1-3-3" hotline that receives complaints about situations requiring child protection. (9,26,59) However, the hotline functions exclusively in Port-au-Prince, leaving rural areas without a mechanism to receive child labor complaints. (14) The number of calls related to child labor received during 2020 is unknown.

Criminal Law Enforcement

In 2020, criminal law enforcement agencies in Haiti took actions to combat child labor (Table 7). However, gaps exist within the operations of the criminal enforcement agencies that may hinder adequate criminal law enforcement, including financial and human resources.

Table 7. Criminal Law Enforcement Efforts Related to Child Labor

Overview of Criminal Law Enforcement	2019	2020
Initial Training for New Criminal Investigators	Yes (8)	N/A (12,51)
Training on New Laws Related to the Worst Forms of Child Labor	N/A	N/A(12)

Imposed Penalties for Violations Related to the Worst Forms of Child Labor	Yes (8)	Unknown (51)
Reciprocal Referral Mechanism Exists Between Criminal Authorities and Social Services	Yes (8)	Yes (12)

In 2020, the Brigade for the Protection of Minors (BPM) reported 424 cases of violations of laws related to the worst forms of child labor, including forced child labor, child trafficking, and the use of children in illicit activities. (12) BPM also reported it provided institutional assistance, as well as medical and psychological referrals to all these children. (12) Despite these efforts, reports indicate that BPM lacks an adequate number of agents and that its training, equipment, transportation, and funding are deficient, all of which has hampered the brigade's ability to enforce laws related to the worst forms of child labor. (2,9,12,26,54,60)

According to Haitian Border Police (POLIFRONT) reports, three cases of child trafficking were recorded in January 2020, and POLIFRONT referred 21 minors to IBESR between March and October 2020. (12)

An informal referral mechanism between BPM, IBESR, and NGOs is in place to provide reintegration services to victims of the worst forms of child labor. (8,9,26) BPM also manages the "1-8-8" hotline, which receives notifications of alleged violations related to the worst forms of child labor. (8,61) However, in common with the IBESR "1-3-3" hotline, the "1-8-8" hotline functions exclusively in Port-au-Prince, which makes reporting cases involving the worst forms of child labor more difficult in rural areas. (9,19)

IV. COORDINATION OF GOVERNMENT EFFORTS ON CHILD LABOR

The government has established mechanisms to coordinate its efforts to address child labor (Table 8).

Table 8. Key Mechanisms to Coordinate Government Efforts on Child Labor

Coordinating Body	Role & Description
National Tripartite Commission for the Elimination of the Worst Forms of Child Labor	Develops policies, approves programs, and coordinates, monitors, and evaluates efforts to combat child labor in Haiti. Chaired by MAST, includes representatives from IBESR, BPM, and local and international organizations. (62) During the reporting period, held a few meetings on the revision of the Labor Code and worked on the National Plan to Combat Child Labor. Also presented the draft list of hazardous work to MAST and delivered messaging on the occasion of the World Day Against Child Labor on June 12, 2020. (12)
National Committee for the Fight Against Trafficking in Persons (CNLTP)	Coordinates actions against human trafficking and provides protection and rehabilitation services to victims. Chaired by IBESR, includes representatives from MAST, other ministries, and BPM. (19,43,63) In 2020, established task forces and sub-committees to combat trafficking in persons in three provinces: South-East, North-East, and the Central Departments, with technical support from the USAID's Building Enduring Systems to Counter Trafficking in Persons (BEST) Program. (12) The sub-committees include provincial and other governmental representatives, police officers, investigating judges, and representatives of IBESR, BPM, and the Office of Citizen Protection, among others, and are charged with leading and coordinating counter trafficking in persons activities undertaken by civil society and local authorities. The sub-committees document and follow up on cases and coordinate prevention work in accordance with the Strategic Action Plan Against Trafficking in Persons in their respective regions. (12) During the reporting period, BEST helped the CNLTP implement its executive secretariat, as provided in the 2014 Counter Trafficking in Persons law, and supported CNLTP's data collection from 83 organizations to develop an interactive map of service providers for victims of human trafficking in the West, North-East, and Central Plateau regions. The CNLTP trained 119 people on investigative methods for human trafficking cases. Participants included prosecutors, journalists, immigration agents, Office of the Ombudsman representatives, and staff and students from the State University of Haiti. (12)
Child Protection Working Group	Implements, coordinates, and monitors efforts on child protection, including protection for child domestic workers. Chaired by IBESR, comprises international and national non-governmental stakeholders and officials from various ministries. (64) Holds multi-stakeholder meetings attended by IBESR, BPM, and MAST, with additional participation by and technical support from UNICEF and other child protection partners. (8) Continued to meet at the regional level in 2020, but rarely met in Port-au-Prince. (51) In the North-East department, established a quarantine center to facilitate interim care for children experiencing adversity during the pandemic. (51) By December 2020, nearly 100 children had been sheltered in this center and were receiving support. Center residents included unaccompanied children returning from the Dominican Republic, children leaving orphanages or restavèk situations, and street children, among others. (51)

V. GOVERNMENT POLICIES ON CHILD LABOR

The government has established policies related to child labor (Table 9). However, policy gaps exist that hinder efforts to address child labor, including implementation.

Table 9. Key Policies Related to Child Labor

Policy	Description
National Child Protection Policy (2016–2020)	Led by IBESR and supported by international donors, aimed to protect children from abuse, violence, and labor exploitation. Promoted improved access to education and livelihood services for vulnerable children, with a focus on domestic workers. (65,66) Research was unable to determine whether activities were undertaken to implement the National Child Protection Policy during the reporting period.
National Social Protection and Promotion Policy†	Initiated under a safety net program called Kore Lavi and funded by USAID. It was adopted by decree on June 12, 2020. Aims to build institutional resilience for social protection and promotion against economic shocks and health crises such as the current pandemic. (12,51) Consists of four major pillars, including both childhood social care and efforts to support employment and employability. Lines of effort under these two pillars include identification and removal of children from work and vocational training for youth, among other activities. (12) Under the Kore Lavi program, which built the foundations of an adaptive safety net, several institutions, including the World Bank and IDB, are supporting social protection initiatives in the country. (51) The World Bank is partnering with MAST and WFP to deliver cash transfers to targeted households. Participants are expected to receive $29 per month over the program's implementation period of 6 years. WFP is expected to fully transfer management of the program to MAST after the third year of implementation. (12,51) In addition, IDB is partnering with WFP and the Economic and Social Assistance Fund to deliver food and cash to vulnerable households in several departments, including the departments of West, North, North-East, and Nippes. (51)

VI. SOCIAL PROGRAMS TO ADDRESS CHILD LABOR

In 2020, the government funded and participated in programs that include the goal of eliminating or preventing child labor (Table 10). However, gaps exist in these social programs, including the adequacy of efforts to address the problem in all sectors.

Table 10. Key Social Programs to Address Child Labor

Program	Description
Government Child Shelter, Census, and National Child Protection Database†	Government program to support child protection. Through IBESR, implements the government's regulatory framework for residential care centers, such as orphanages and shelters, collects information on vulnerable children, and tracks them through the National Child Protection Database. (67) Research was unable to determine whether activities were undertaken to implement this program during the reporting period.
Special Program of Free Education (PROSGATE)†	Replaced the National Free Education Program. (68) Aims to increase poor children's access to education. Includes school grants intended to eliminate school fees and for accelerated learning programs for students who are lagging in school. (69-71) In 2020, served as a funding source for the Ministry of Education to pay teachers with contracts. Research was unable to determine any of the program's other activities during the reporting period. (51)
UNICEF Country Program (2017–2021)	$11.6 million UNICEF-funded program supporting the government's efforts to improve education, health, social inclusion, and protection for children in Haiti. (39,67,72-76) In 2020, provided technical support to the Ministry of Education to develop learning materials for home-based learning and catch-up activities, and guidelines for the safe operation of schools as a response to the pandemic. (39) In addition, collaborated with the daily newspaper Le Nouvelliste to support the distribution of a children's magazine to over 25,000 children, ages 5 to 15, so that they could continue learning informally while awaiting the reopening of schools. (39) During the reporting period, also provided technical assistance to the government to register births to expand access to education and social services. In addition, provided technical assistance to the Child Protection Working Group, and funding to implement foster family program coordination and youth vocational training. (51) Likewise, provided funding to support the renovation of government offices and to provision vehicles and other equipment to IBESR and MAST, among others. (51)
Providing an Education of Quality in Haiti (2016–2022)	$30 million World Bank-implemented program that aims to strengthen public management of the education sector, improve learning conditions, and increase enrollment of students in selected public and non-public primary schools. (77,78) In 2020, entered its second phase, which includes implementation of a quality assurance education program designed in collaboration with the Ministry of Education. (12) Among other activities undertaken during the reporting period, established approximately 60 to 70 schools, enabling an estimated 25,000 students to return to the classroom in August 2020, with the necessary materials to mitigate the risk of COVID-19. (12) The World Bank is working with the Ministry of Education to build an Education Information Management System. (12)

Despite IBESR's efforts to collect information for the National Child Protection Database, the database does not fully capture all relevant information, including the number of displaced street children and children engaged in domestic work. Moreover, reports indicate the database is not operating and that no tangible progress has been made following its initial presentation in 2019. (51) Although Haiti has programs that target the worst forms of child labor, the scope of these programs is insufficient to fully address the extent of the problem, particularly in domestic work, agriculture, and child trafficking. (9,12,79)

VII. SUGGESTED GOVERNMENT ACTIONS TO ELIMINATE CHILD LABOR

Based on the reporting above, suggested actions are identified that would advance the elimination of child labor in Haiti (Table 11).

Table 11. Suggested Government Actions to Eliminate Child Labor

Area	Suggested Action	Year(s) Suggested
Legal Framework	Ensure that minimum age for work protections apply to all children, including those without formal employment contracts.	2014 – 2020
	Clarify the minimum age for work, including for domestic work.	2009 – 2020
	Adopt a list of hazardous occupations and activities, and ensure that the hazardous occupations and activities prohibited for children are comprehensive and include work in hazardous agricultural environments.	2009 – 2020

Area	Suggested Action	Year(s) Suggested
Legal Framework	Ensure that the law criminally prohibits forced labor.	2019 – 2020
	Ensure that the law establishes a minimum age for voluntary recruitment by the state military, at age 18 or at age 16, with safeguards for voluntariness.	2018 – 2020
	Raise the compulsory education age so that it aligns with the minimum age for work.	2017 – 2020
Enforcement	Collect and publish information on labor law enforcement efforts including on labor inspectorate funding; the number of labor inspectors and whether they received initial training; the number and type of labor inspections conducted; the number of violations found, total penalties imposed and collected; and whether routine, targeted, and unannounced inspections were carried out.	2013 – 2020
	Authorize the labor inspectorate to assess penalties.	2013 – 2020
	Ensure that the number of labor and criminal law enforcement agents, and the training and resources for labor and criminal law enforcement agencies, are sufficient to adequately enforce laws related to child labor, including its worst forms.	2013 – 2020
	Establish penalties that are sufficient to serve as a deterrent for employing children in contravention of the Labor Code.	2009 – 2020
	Expand the reach of the hotlines operated by the Brigade for the Protection of Minors and IBESR to facilitate reporting of child exploitation cases in areas beyond Port-au-Prince, including in rural areas, as well as track and publish information on the number of hotline calls related to child labor.	2013 – 2020
	Collect and publish complete information on the trainings provided to criminal investigators and data on the number of convictions and penalties imposed related to the worst forms of child labor.	2020
	Ensure that IBESR conducts child protection inspections, including following up on reported incidents of child labor.	2020
	Ensure the number of labor inspectors in Haiti meets the ILO's technical guidance.	2020
Government Policies	Ensure that policies to prevent or combat child labor are implemented.	2017 – 2020
Social Programs	Enhance efforts to eliminate barriers and make education accessible for all children by removing school-related fees; increasing the number of public schools and teachers, especially in rural areas and camps near the border with the Dominican Republic; ensuring that public schools address language barriers; meeting the specific educational needs of vulnerable populations, including recent arrivals from the Dominican Republic, unregistered children, and child domestic workers; and ensuring that children who start their education late or repeat grades are allowed to transition to secondary school.	2009 – 2020
	Expand the National Child Protection Database, including by identifying displaced street children and children in domestic work.	2010 – 2020
	Expand existing social programs to address the scope of the child labor problem, particularly in domestic work, agriculture, and child trafficking.	2010 – 2020
	Ensure that all social programs are active and fulfilling their mandates as intended.	2019 – 2020

In 2020, Honduras made moderate advancement in efforts to eliminate the worst forms of child labor. The government began implementing the new Child Labor Inspection Protocol, which established guidelines and procedures for inspectors to follow to ensure that inspections appropriately identify and address child labor violations. It also assisted non-governmental partners in the creation of a virtual training platform designed to train inspectors on the Child Labor Inspection Protocol. Furthermore, government agencies conducted multiple joint operations targeting child labor throughout the country. However, children in Honduras are subjected to the worst forms of child labor, including in commercial sexual exploitation, sometimes as a result of human trafficking. They are also used to carry out illicit activities, including selling and trafficking drugs. Children also engage in child labor in the production of coffee and melons. Labor law enforcement agencies lacked financial and human resources, and the government did not adequately report comprehensive data related to its criminal law enforcement efforts. In addition, social programs that address child labor in agriculture have not addressed the problem nationwide, and the government lacks similar programs to eliminate child labor in other sectors, including fishing, mining, and domestic work.

I. PREVALENCE AND SECTORAL DISTRIBUTION OF CHILD LABOR

Children in Honduras are subjected to the worst forms of child labor, including in commercial sexual exploitation, sometimes as a result of human trafficking. They are also used to carry out illicit activities, including selling and trafficking drugs. Children also engage in child labor in the production of coffee and melons. (1-5) Table 1 provides key indicators on children's work and education in Honduras.

Table 1. Statistics on Children's Work and Education

Children	Age	Percent
Working (% and population)	5 to 14	9.0 (168,348)
Attending School (%)	5 to 14	87.9

	Forced begging, street vending, and domestic service (5,17,24)
	Forced labor in fishing, mining, construction, and in the hospitality industry (5)

† Determined by national law or regulation as hazardous and, as such, relevant to Article 3(d) of ILO C. 182.

‡ Child labor understood as the worst forms of child labor per se under Article 3(a)–(c) of ILO C. 182.

Children in Honduras are subjected to commercial sexual exploitation by family members and friends. (5,13,17) Children are also forced to work as street vendors and domestic servants. Gangs force children to commit extortion and murder, engage in prostitution, transport weapons, traffic drugs, and serve as lookouts. (5,13,17) In addition, Honduras is a destination country for child sex tourists from the United States and Canada. (5)

According to Honduras' National Institute of Statistics, 364,765 children between the ages of 5 and 17 were working in 2019, with 67 percent working in rural areas and more than half engaged in labor in agriculture. (13,17) Reports indicate that children from indigenous and African-descent groups are particularly vulnerable to child labor, including its worst forms. (1,22,25,26) Boys from the Miskito Afro-descendant community are vulnerable to forced labor in fishing, mining, construction, and hospitality industries. (5) Children who lack economic and educational opportunities are the most vulnerable to child labor and are among the most likely to migrate to other countries. Once en route, migrant children are vulnerable to human trafficking and commercial sexual exploitation. (22,23,27)

During the reporting period, barriers to education in the country increased due to the COVID-19 pandemic. This was the result of children's lack of access to the internet, cellphone coverage, or technical equipment required to attend virtual classes. (17) According to the Ministry of Education, of the 1.9 million children enrolled in the 2020 school year, 295,000 did not have access to virtual education. In addition, some reports indicate that a significant number of children left school in 2020, and of the ones who remained in school, 468,000 had disrupted or partial school schedules. (17) In 2020, the Secretariat of Labor and Social Security (STSS) held 7 virtual meetings for parents, adolescents, and teachers on the topic of child labor and the importance of ensuring that children remain in the education system, reaching 720 participants. (17)

In Honduras, access to education is often limited, especially for children living in rural areas, where there is a lack of funding for schools, and in many cases, a limited number of secondary schools. (1,28) Reports indicate that in some regions of the country, especially in Mosquitia, language barriers exist, because teachers do not speak local languages or dialects. (17,29) Furthermore, some families are unable to afford costs such as uniforms, school fees, and transportation. (13,17) Violence originating from gang activity also presents barriers to access for both children and educators. (1,13,17) Children from indigenous and African-descent groups face persistent difficulties in obtaining access to education.(29) These children face deteriorating conditions in the schools that serve their communities, such as shortcomings in terms of materials, personnel, and infrastructure. Reports also indicate that there is a particularly high dropout rate among children of indigenous and African descent. (29) Children with disabilities attend schools at a lower rate than the general population, and the National Center for Social Sector Information states that 43 percent of persons with disabilities received no formal education. (30)

II. LEGAL FRAMEWORK FOR CHILD LABOR

Honduras has ratified all key international conventions concerning child labor (Table 3).

Table 3. Ratification of International Conventions on Child Labor

Convention	Ratification

ILO C. 182, Worst Forms of Child Labor	✓
 UN CRC	✓
UN CRC Optional Protocol on Armed Conflict	✓
UN CRC Optional Protocol on the Sale of Children, Child Prostitution and Child Pornography	✓
 Palermo Protocol on Trafficking in Persons	✓

The government has established laws and regulations related to child labor (Table 4). However, gaps exist in Honduras' legal framework to adequately protect children from the worst forms of child labor, including the minimum age for work compared to the compulsory education age.

Table 4. Laws and Regulations on Child Labor

Standard	Meets International Standards	Age	Legislation
Minimum Age for Work	Yes	14	Article 120 of the Code on Childhood and Adolescence; Article 15 of the Executive Agreement STSS-211-01; Article 32 of the Labor Code (31-33)

The Honduran National Congress approved a new Penal Code in May 2019, which then entered into force in June 2020. The Penal Code explicitly criminalized slavery, setting penalties of 8 to 13.5 years in prison when the victim is under 18. However, the Penal Code lowered the penalties for the crime of trafficking in persons from 15 to 22.5 years in prison when the victim is under 18, to 5 to 8 years with the possibility of a 1/3 increase when the victim is specially vulnerable due to age. (17,35,40)

The minimum age for work is lower than the compulsory education age, which may encourage children to leave school before the completion of compulsory education.

III. ENFORCEMENT OF LAWS ON CHILD LABOR

The government has established institutional mechanisms for the enforcement of laws and regulations on child labor (Table 5). However, gaps exist within the operations of enforcement agencies that may hinder adequate enforcement of their child labor laws.

Table 5. Agencies Responsible for Child Labor Law Enforcement

Organization/Agency	Role
Secretariat of Labor and Social Security (STSS)	Conducts labor inspections and enforces child labor laws through the General Directorate of Social Welfare and the General Directorate of Labor Inspections. It was created by the Labor Inspection Law enacted in 2017 through Decree Num. 178-2016. (13,17,41,42)
Public Ministry	Carries out criminal prosecutions and directs the investigation of crimes in the country, including those related to the worst forms of child labor. (13,43) Through its Office of the Special Prosecutor for Children, prosecutes crimes with child victims, including crimes related to child trafficking, forced labor, and the commercial sexual exploitation of children. Also coordinates with the National Police to investigate crimes and protect victims. (13,43) Through its Technical Agency for Criminal Investigations, investigates and provides technical support for criminal prosecutions, including by the Office of the Special Prosecutor for Children, such as those related to human trafficking, commercial sexual exploitation, and child pornography. (13,14) Through its Unit Against Trafficking in Persons, Commercial Sexual Exploitation and Illicit Traffic in Persons, coordinates with domestic and international enforcement agencies to carry out anti-trafficking in persons operations and prosecutions. Also, manages a hotline to register trafficking in persons complaints. (24,44)
National Police	Investigates crimes related to the worst forms of child labor, through its Police Investigation Directorate. Also works with the Public Ministry and the Directorate of Childhood, Adolescence, and Family (DINAF), as well as other government entities on operations to remove children from child labor. (14,17)
Directorate of Childhood, Adolescence, and Family (DINAF)	Formulates, coordinates, and implements national plans concerning children and their families; monitors children's rights, including by investigating complaints of child labor and ensuring that victims receive government services; and coordinates state efforts with civil society institutions to protect children. It is overseen by the Social Cabinet, a cabinet-level government entity that coordinates 17 governmental institutions. (13,14,17,45-47)

Labor Law Enforcement

In 2020, labor law enforcement agencies in Honduras took actions to combat child labor (Table 6). However, gaps exist within the operations of the STSS that may hinder adequate labor law enforcement, including a lack of human resources.

Table 6. Labor Law Enforcement Efforts Related to Child Labor

On March 16, 2020, the Government of Honduras declared a state of emergency due to the pandemic, which halted labor inspections during March and April. (17) In response to the pandemic, the government created an Inter-Institutional Commission to Verify Biosafety Protocols, led by STSS, to conduct biosafety labor inspections. These inspections also included checks to verify that companies were in compliance with child labor laws. (17)

During the reporting period, STSS conducted 8,267 labor inspections, including 2 related directly to child labor. STSS conducted inspections in businesses in the commercial service and agricultural sectors. (17) Although STSS did not uncover any violations of child labor laws in 2020 at the time of the inspections, the government confirmed there are children working in the agricultural sector. (17) STSS and civil society partners have all indicated that the number of inspections conducted is insufficient to address the scope of labor violations in the country, including child labor violations. (1,13,17,28,49) STSS noted that the decrease in the number of inspections carried out this reporting period, when compared to the previous year, largely resulted from the pandemic and movement restrictions related to the state of emergency. (17) Reports indicate that STSS conducts most inspections in the urban areas of Tegucigalpa and San Pedro Sula, and rural areas and indigenous communities, in which hazardous activities in agriculture and fishing or diving are concentrated, have insufficient inspections to address the scope of the problem. (5,50) Inspectors do not conduct inspections in the informal sector unless there is a formal complaint, even though child labor is often encountered in this sector in Honduras. (17)

In December 2019, within the framework of the U.S.-Honduras Labor Rights Monitoring and Action Plan, the government approved a Child Labor Inspection Protocol, which STSS began implementing in January 2020. The protocol outlines guidelines and procedures for inspectors to follow to ensure that inspections appropriately uncover and address child labor violations. (17)

Labor union confederations, employer organizations, and human rights organizations have indicated that the level of funding and resources for the General Directorate for Labor Inspections is insufficient to enforce child labor laws nationwide. (1,17,28) Although the government had reportedly allocated nearly $3.4 million to the General Directorate for Labor Inspections, it ultimately received only $3.2 million due to budget cuts related to the pandemic and Hurricanes Eta and Iota. In 2020, inspectors did not have enough office facilities and transportation to carry out inspections. (17) Furthermore, reports indicate that the Directorate of Childhood, Adolescence, and Family (DINAF) lacks sufficient resources to adequately carry out its mandate. (14,28)

The number of labor inspectors is likely insufficient for the size of Honduras' workforce, which includes more than 3.7 million workers. According to the ILO's technical advice of a ratio approaching 1 inspector for every 15,000 workers in industrializing economies, Honduras would employ about 249 labor inspectors. (51,52) STSS also noted that the number of labor inspectors is insufficient, despite adding 31 inspectors in 2020. (17) During the reporting period, inspectors received training on new guidelines related to biosafety protocols. (17) In addition, World Vision supported STSS in creating a virtual learning platform to train inspectors on the Child Labor Inspection Protocol. However, although inspectors received training in 2020 on child labor issues, STSS indicated that more training is needed. (17)

Criminal Law Enforcement

In 2020, criminal law enforcement agencies in Honduras took actions to combat child labor (Table 7). However, gaps exist within the operations of the criminal enforcement agencies that may hinder adequate criminal law enforcement, including the lack of publicly available enforcement information.

Table 7. Criminal Law Enforcement Efforts Related to Child Labor

Overview of Criminal Law Enforcement	2019	2020
Initial Training for New Criminal Investigators	Unknown	Yes (17)

In 2020, the Public Ministry's Special Prosecutor's Offices for Women and Children, along with the Unit of Trafficking, Commercial Sexual Exploitation, and Illicit Trafficking (UTESCTP), worked with the U.S. Department of Homeland Security through its Transnational Criminal Investigation Unit to investigate smuggling and trafficking organizations, child pornography, and child labor violations. (17) The Transnational Criminal Investigation Unit coordinated the transfer of minors encountered during the operations to DINAF. The UTESCTP also investigated 10 child trafficking cases and 25 child commercial sexual exploitation cases according to STSS reports. (17) The Public Ministry's Special Prosecutor's Office for Children, in coordination with DINAF, the Criminal Investigative Police, and the Technical Agency for Criminal Investigations, carried out operations in Tegucigalpa, San Pedro Sula, and La Ceiba to prevent forced begging, because there has been an increase in the number of children on the street as a result of the pandemic. The Prosecutor's Office in La Entrada, Nueva Arcadia, Copan carried out inspections of artisan fireworks factories to ensure that children were not employed in the factories. (17) During Operation Jupiter V, the Special Prosecutor's Office for Children carried out raids at three coffee plantations in El Paraiso Department. During the raids, officers identified children working with their parents to cut coffee. (17) The government indicated that the owner of the plantations did not hire the children. The Special Prosecutor's Office for Children issued warnings to the parents and reported the incident to STSS. (17) The total number of violations found, prosecutions, convictions, and penalties imposed related to the worst forms of child labor in 2020 were unknown because the government did not provide disaggregated data for inclusion in this report. It also did not provide information on refresher course training for criminal investigators. (17)

In 2020, the Public Ministry held virtual trainings from June to September for 115 investigators and prosecutors on addressing child labor, specifically related to the new Penal Code that went into force on June 25. UTESCTP held a virtual training in June for 152 investigators, prosecutors, and members of civil society about trafficking in persons, child commercial sexual exploitation, and child pornography. (17)

IV. COORDINATION OF GOVERNMENT EFFORTS ON CHILD LABOR

The government has established mechanisms to coordinate its efforts to address child labor (Table 8). However, gaps exist that hinder the effective coordination of efforts to address child labor, including efficacy in accomplishing mandates.

Table 8. Key Mechanisms to Coordinate Government Efforts on Child Labor

Coordinating Body	Role & Description
National Commission for the Gradual and Progressive Eradication of Child Labor	Coordinates government policies and efforts on child labor issues. Chaired by STSS and includes officials from eight government ministries, DINAF, the Supreme Court, and other government entities. (41,53,54) Oversees regional sub-commissions, led by STSS and DINAF officials, which implement national efforts at the local level. (41,53,54) During the reporting period, the Commission held one meeting, which focused on the pandemic. Meanwhile, the National Commission's Technical Council held four meetings to review actions taken by various sectors to combat child labor and discuss the effects of the COVID-19 pandemic and Hurricanes Eta and Iota on children in Honduras. (17) In 2020, through the Technical Council for the Gradual and Progressive Eradication of Child Labor, which is made up of state institutions, workers' unions, private enterprise, and civil society, STSS coordinated joint actions for the prevention of child labor. The Technical Council also carried out a virtual campaign on preventing child labor as part of its activities to raise awareness for the World Day against Child Labor. (17)
Inter-Institutional Commission Against Sexual, Commercial, and Trafficking Exploitation (CICESCT)	Works in the prevention and prosecution of crimes of sexual exploitation and trafficking in persons, as well as providing assistance to victims. Incorporates representatives from 35 organizations, including several government ministries, NGOs, and private companies. (55) Oversees 19 local CICESCT committees and implements the Strategic Plan to Combat Commercial Sexual Exploitation and Human Trafficking. (25) In 2020, CICESCT identified 43 child victims of labor and commercial sexual exploitation and coordinated with DINAF to provide them with food, health care, and psychological support. (17)
Migration Task Force	Convenes several government ministries to collaborate on addressing irregular migration, including combating the risks associated with trafficking in persons. Chaired by Honduras' First Lady Ana Garcia de Hernandez. (3) In September 2020, it organized a conference on the pandemic and its effects on migration. (47,56)
Secretariat of Social Development and Inclusion	Coordinates social protection policies and the provision of services to vulnerable populations. (57) Reports indicate it was active during 2020. (47)

V. GOVERNMENT POLICIES ON CHILD LABOR

The government has established policies related to child labor (Table 9). However, policy gaps exist that hinder efforts to address child labor, including implementation.

Table 9. Key Policies Related to Child Labor

Policy	Description
Roadmap for the Eradication of Child Labor in Honduras	Aims to eradicate all forms of child labor by 2020 and improve the government's response to child labor issues. Works at the national, regional, and sub-regional levels and addresses poverty, health, education, and social development. (58) Implemented by STSS. (14) World Vision and the National Commission for Gradual and Progressive Eradication of Child Labor continued to collaborate to develop a new country prevention strategy for 2021–2025. However, the strategy was not finalized during the reporting period due to the pandemic and subsequent state of emergency. (17)
Strategic Plan to Prevent and Eliminate Child Labor (2016–2020)	Developed a coordinated approach for the prevention and elimination of child labor, including by increasing child labor law enforcement, strengthening engagement with the private sector, developing procedures for inter-agency coordination, and developing social programs to support children removed from child labor. (54) Implemented by STSS and other executive and judicial branch agencies, and employers', workers', and other civil society organizations. (54) During the reporting period, STSS provided training and technical support to the Caruchil Coffee Producers Cooperative, which was established as a pilot project of the plan. Through this project, the Social Welfare Directorate developed an investigative prevention model for the prevention of child labor in the coffee sector. (17) In 2020, the Strategic Plan to Prevent and Eliminate Child Labor ended. The government is planning to develop a new plan for the 2021–2025 period in cooperation with worker's organizations, private companies, and civil society. (17)
Strategic Plan to Combat Commercial Sexual Exploitation and Human Trafficking in Honduras (2016–2022)	Establishes national priorities to combat commercial sexual exploitation and human trafficking in four principal areas: (1) prevention and awareness; (2) investigation, prosecution, and punishment of violations; (3) detection, assistance, and protection of victims; and (4) coordination and cooperation. (59) During the reporting period CICESCT continued implementing the Strategic Plan to Combat Commercial Sexual Exploitation and Human Trafficking in Honduras by undertaking activities such as: identifying child victims of commercial and sexual exploitation, as well as coordinating with DINAF to provide them with support. (47)
Interinstitutional Strategy for Homeless Families and Children†	Defines coordinating actions to confront the problem of family and child homelessness, including child begging. Finalized in July and was developed partly in response to the pandemic and other factors contributing to increasing rates of homelessness. (17)
U.S.-Honduras Labor Rights Monitoring and Action Plan	Aims to improve the enforcement of labor laws, including laws related to child labor, by implementing legal and policy reforms, strengthening STSS, enhancing enforcement activities, and increasing outreach efforts. (60) During the reporting period, USDOL and STSS continued activities and coordination under the plan. (17)

† Policy was approved during the reporting period.

‡ The government had other policies that may have addressed child labor issues or had an impact on child labor. (61–65)

In 2020, the Public Ministry signed an agreement with World Vision to strengthen the ministry's actions to eradicate child labor, forced labor, and trafficking in persons. (17)

VI. SOCIAL PROGRAMS TO ADDRESS CHILD LABOR

In 2020, the government funded and participated in programs that include the goal of eliminating or preventing child labor (Table 10). However, gaps exist in these social programs, including implementation and the adequacy of programs to address the full scope of the problem.

Table 10. Key Social Programs to Address Child Labor

Program	Description
Better Life Voucher ( Bono Vida Mejor )†	Conditional cash transfer program that aims to reduce poverty by providing financial assistance to households after parents ensure that their children participate in health, education, nutrition, and other programs. (27,66)
Program to Combat Child Forced Begging†	DINAF program that identifies and rescues children who are subjected to forced begging and raises awareness of child forced begging through the media. (50,67)
Program for the Reintegration of Returned Unaccompanied Migrant Children†	Government program that assists unaccompanied migrant children who have been returned to Honduras. Funded by UNICEF and implemented by DINAF, in collaboration with the National Institute for Migration, the Ministry of Foreign Affairs, UNICEF, the Network of Institutions for Children's Rights, and the NGO Aldeas SOS. (17,68)
Program to Prevent Sex Tourism Involving Children and Adolescents†	Government program that aims to raise awareness and provide training on sex tourism for the tourism industry. Implemented by the Honduran Tourist Board, the Ministry of Tourism, and the Honduras Tourism Institute. (69) Research was unable to determine whether activities were undertaken during the reporting period to implement the program.
USDOL-Funded Projects	USDOL projects that aim to eliminate child labor through direct services to Honduran youth, capacity building with the Honduran government, and technical assistance to businesses. These projects include: $2 million Addressing Child Labor and Forced Labor in the Coffee Supply Chain in Honduras (2017–2022) ; $17 million Youth Pathways Central America (2015–2021) ; and $11.6 million Bright Futures (2014–2023) . During the reporting period, Bright Futures worked with STSS to design and implement a digital learning platform, which launched in July 2020. (17) Also in July, the Bright Futures held a virtual training for coffee producers on labor biosafety, labor rights, and child labor. In addition, in September 2020, the project delivered training manuals to STSS personnel as a complement to the digital learning platform courses. (17) Additional information is available on the USDOL website .

‡ The government had other social programs that may have included the goal of eliminating or preventing child labor. (53)

According to reports, almost all of the social programs funded by the government and listed on Table 10 were operational in 2020. (47) Yet, research was unable to determine what specific activities were undertaken during the reporting period to implement most of them. In addition, although the Government of Honduras funds or participates in social programs to address child labor, research did not identify programs that specifically target children working in sectors, such as fishing, mining, and domestic work, or that address the illegal recruitment of children into gang-related activities. In addition, social programs that address child labor in agriculture do not appear to be sufficient to address the scope of the problem nationwide.

VII. SUGGESTED GOVERNMENT ACTIONS TO ELIMINATE CHILD LABOR

Based on the reporting above, suggested actions are identified that would advance the elimination of child labor in Honduras (Table 11).

Table 11. Suggested Government Actions to Eliminate Child Labor

Area	Suggested Action	Year(s) Suggested
Legal Framework	Raise the minimum working age of 14 to conform to the compulsory education age of 17.	2018 – 2020
Enforcement	Carry out labor inspections in areas in which child labor is prevalent, such as rural areas, the informal sector, and indigenous communities in which children engage in agriculture and fishing or diving.	2017 – 2020
	Ensure that labor enforcement agencies have sufficient funding and resources to carry out their mandates nationwide.	2010 – 2020

Area	Suggested Action	Year(s) Suggested
Enforcement	Increase the number of labor inspectors to meet the ILO's technical advice.	2010 – 2020
	Ensure that all labor inspectors receive sufficient training on child labor issues.	2014 – 2020
	Publish complete criminal law enforcement information on efforts related to the worst forms of child labor, such as all training provided, total number of violations found, prosecutions initiated, number of convictions obtained, and penalties imposed for violations.	2015 – 2020
Social Programs	Increase access to education by increasing funding to schools, ensuring that teachers speak local languages or dialects, building more schools, particularly in rural areas, enhancing efforts to protect students from gang recruitment and violence, and removing barriers such as school fees and costs for uniforms and transportation.	2014 – 2020
	Ensure that social programs reach the children who are most vulnerable to child labor, including children of African descent and indigenous children.	2017 – 2020
	Ensure that social programs are adequately funded and implemented, and report on their yearly efforts.	2020
	Expand social programs that address child labor in agriculture and create programs to assist children engaged in child labor in fishing, mining, domestic service, and illicit gang activity.	2009 – 2020

In 2020, India made moderate advancement in efforts to eliminate the worst forms of child labor. During the reporting period, the national government disbursed $13.5 million in funding to expand Anti-Human Trafficking Units from 332 districts to all 732 districts, and provided additional training and resources to existing units. In March 2020, the Government of Karnataka released comprehensive standard operating procedures on human trafficking in collaboration with civil society organizations. The standard operating procedures cover sex trafficking, child beggary, child labor, and bonded labor. In addition, the Occupational Safety, Health and Working Conditions Code, which included workplace safety standards for children ages 14–18, was passed in September 2020. However, children in India are subjected to the worst forms of child labor, including in garment production, stone quarrying, and brickmaking. Children also perform dangerous tasks in the production of thread and yarn. India also does not meet the international standard for the prohibition of military recruitment by non-state armed groups. Research has found that no illegal shelter homes were shut down during the reporting period. Research has also found that complicit government officials were not held accountable for helping to operate illegal shelter homes—no criminal cases were initiated against government officials in 2020. Hazardous work prohibitions do not include all occupations in which children work for long periods of time in unsafe and unhealthy environments, and penalties for employing children are insufficient to deter violations. The government also did not publicly release information on its labor law enforcement and criminal law enforcement efforts.

I. PREVALENCE AND SECTORAL DISTRIBUTION OF CHILD LABOR

Children in India are subjected to the worst forms of child labor, including in garment production, stone quarrying, and brickmaking. (1) Children also perform dangerous tasks in the production of thread and yarn. Table 1 provides key indicators on children’s work and education in India. (2)

Table 1. Statistics on Children’s Work and Education

Children	Age	Percent
Working (% and population)	5 to 14	1.4 (3,253,202)
Attending School (%)	5 to 14	90.7

† Determined by national law or regulation as hazardous and, as such, relevant to Article 3(d) of ILO C. 182.

‡ Child labor understood as the worst forms of child labor per se under Article 3(a)–(c) of ILO C. 182.

Within India, children are trafficked for commercial sexual exploitation and for forced labor in domestic service. (1,43) Most labor trafficking is internal to the country; research found that the states of Bihar, Jharkhand, Chhattisgarh, and Odisha are major sources for child trafficking. (11) Children from India’s rural areas migrate to urban centers or are trafficked for employment in industries such as spinning mills and cottonseed production, in which they are forced to work in hazardous environments for little or no pay. (1,32,62) Children are also forced to work as bonded laborers in brick kilns and stone quarries to pay off family debts owed to moneylenders and employers. (1,11,32,43) Children typically enter debt bondage along with their entire family, and trafficked children are employed in cotton farms, home-based embroidery businesses, roadside restaurants, and brick kilns. (11)

Research has found that the prevalence of child trafficking in India increased during the COVID-19 pandemic as the number of children in the labor market increased. Human traffickers chartered buses from the states of Andhra Pradesh, Rajasthan, and Karnataka to transport migrant labor, including children, from Bihar. (63) To avoid suspicion, traffickers often ask parents to accompany children to their destination. NGOs intercepted several operations, during which they found many children carrying false identification cards as proof of legal working age. (63) Media reported railway and transit police increased patrolling of transportation hubs to prevent and intercept perpetrators and victims of human trafficking, including children. (1) In Tamil Nadu, a major garment factory hub, 35 children were rescued from a spinning mill during the reporting period. (64) Research has also found that one child rights NGO reportedly rescued 1,675 children between April and November of 2020. (65)

Non-state armed groups reportedly force children to serve as spies, couriers, and soldiers in the states of Chhattisgarh and Jharkhand, and as soldiers in Jammu and Kashmir. (1,58) Maoist groups sometimes used children as human shields in confrontations with security forces. In addition, some female child soldiers reported that commanders of these non-state armed groups recruited and used them in part for sexual exploitation, including practices indicative of sexual slavery. (1)

Child victims of commercial sexual exploitation, forced labor, and child trafficking are more likely to be from marginalized groups, such as low-caste Hindus, members of tribal communities, and religious minorities. (1,32,43,66,67) Traffickers sometimes kidnap children from public places, such as railway stations, entice them with drugs, and force girls as young as age 5 in sex trafficking to take hormone injections to appear older. During the reporting period, officials acknowledged some registered and unregistered spas exploited girls in sex trafficking, and that officials lacked sufficient oversight of all such establishments. (1) Apprehending child traffickers has become more challenging for law enforcement because traffickers are utilizing technology to reach customers and to receive electronic payment, eliminating the need to be centrally located in brothels. (1,43,63) Research found that girls, some as young as age 14, are trafficked from the states of Jharkhand and Chhattisgarh for commercial sexual exploitation. Most of the trafficked girls belong to tribal or lower caste communities. (11)

Despite the enactment by Parliament in 2009 of a Right to Education Act that provides free and compulsory education for children below the age of 14, there are several barriers to educational access in India. Budgetary constraints contribute to the lack of schools, well-trained teachers, separate and sanitary washrooms for girls, adequate infrastructure, and transportation options, creating barriers and limiting access to education, particularly in overcrowded urban slums, or bastis. (11) Furthermore, children from marginalized groups face additional barriers to accessing education. (11) Teachers sometimes subject these children to discrimination and harassment. (68) Research has found that lower caste children in some schools in Madhya Pradesh and Uttar Pradesh are reportedly segregated in classrooms. (11) In addition, refugees who are not granted visas or provided identity cards by the UNHCR often are not able to access education services. (11,32) However, children up to the age of 14, rescued from child labor, have the ability to attend school, including the option to take vocational trainings. (43)

Due to the pandemic, most schools in the country remained closed from March 2020 to December 2020. During this period, classes were held online. (11) Research found that children from economically disadvantaged families and children in some rural areas were unable to attend classes due to lack of Internet connectivity or lack of accessible devices. The government attempted to address this issue by distributing devices and using community radio stations and government-owned television and radio stations to broadcast classes. (11) However, research indicates an increase in child labor and child trafficking in India during the reporting period due to economic contractions related to the pandemic, with children dropping out of school to work in hazardous occupations. (69,70)

The Government of India does not collect or publish data specifically on exploitative child labor, nor does it make available the raw data from the national census. (11,32)

MODERATE ADVANCEMENT

The government has established laws and regulations related to child labor (Table 4). However, gaps exist in India's legal framework to adequately protect children from the worst forms of child labor, including the prohibition of recruitment of children by non-state armed groups.

Table 4. Laws and Regulations on Child Labor

Standard	Meets International Standards	Age	Legislation
Minimum Age for Work	Yes	14	Section 3(1) of the Child and Adolescent Labour (Prohibition and Regulation) Act (71)
Minimum Age for Hazardous Work	Yes	18	Section 3A of the Child and Adolescent Labour (Prohibition and Regulation) Act (71)
Identification of Hazardous Occupations or Activities Prohibited for Children	Yes		Schedule to the Child and Adolescent Labour (Prohibition and Regulation) Act; The Occupational Safety, Health and Working Conditions Code (72,73)
Prohibition of Forced Labor	Yes		Section 4 of the Bonded Labour System (Abolition) Act; Sections 370 and 374 of the Penal Code; Section 79 of the Juvenile Justice (Care and Protection of Children) Act (74-76)
Prohibition of Child Trafficking	Yes		Sections 366A, 366B, 370, 372, and 373 of the Indian Penal Code; Section 5 of the Immoral Traffic (Prevention) Act (75,77)
Prohibition of Commercial Sexual Exploitation of Children	Yes		Sections 366A, 366B, 370A, 372, and 373 of the Indian Penal Code; Sections 4–7 of the Immoral Traffic (Prevention) Act; Sections 13–15 of the Protection of Children from Sexual Offences Act; Section 67B of the Information Technology Act (75,77-79)
Prohibition of Using Children in Illicit Activities	Yes		Sections 76 and 78 of the Juvenile Justice (Care and Protection of Children) Act; Section 32B(c) of the Narcotic Drugs and Psychotropic Substance Act (76,80)
Minimum Age for Voluntary State Military Recruitment	Yes	16	Military Rules (81)
Prohibition of Compulsory Recruitment of Children by (State) Military	N/A*
Prohibition of Military Recruitment by Non-state Armed Groups	No
Compulsory Education Age	Yes	15	Section 3 of the Right of Children to Free and Compulsory Education Act (82)
Free Public Education	Yes		Section 3 of the Right of Children to Free and Compulsory Education Act (82)

The Occupational Safety, Health and Working Conditions Code was passed in September 2020, and states that the central government will declare standards on a list of matters, including the prohibition of employment of children near cotton openers and the employment of children ages 14 to 18 on dangerous machines. The code also stipulates that children ages 14 to 18 are entitled to 1 day of leave for every 15 days of work. (73) In addition, the code would allow state governments to prescribe special safeguards for employment for children ages 14 to 18 when handling hazardous chemicals. (73) The code, however, has not yet come into force. (84)

The Trafficking of Persons (Prevention, Protection and Rehabilitation) Bill, which was drafted in 2018, seeks to criminalize and enhance penalties for aggravated forms of trafficking, including trafficking for the purposes of forced labor, bonded labor, and begging. (85) The bill was brought to Parliament in 2018 after consultations with civil society organizations and survivors, but lapsed when the current government's first term ended. A revised version was due to be considered by ministers in early 2020 but has not come up for a vote in Parliament. (63) During the reporting period, the bill went through an iterative internal review process among different government ministries. (86)

As the minimum age for work is lower than the compulsory education age, children may be encouraged to leave school before the completion of compulsory education. (71,82) Despite evidence that children work for long periods in unsafe and unhealthy environments in spinning mills, garment production, and carpet making, children ages 14 to 18 are not prohibited from working in occupations related to these sectors. (10,72,87-89) In addition, while sources report that the minimum age for voluntary recruitment into India's Armed Forces is age 16 and that individuals must be age 18 to be deployed, research could not pinpoint where this criteria resides in Indian law or regulation. (90,91)

III. ENFORCEMENT OF LAWS ON CHILD LABOR

The government has established institutional mechanisms for the enforcement of laws and regulations on child labor (Table 5). However, gaps exist within the operations of enforcement agencies that may hinder adequate enforcement of their child labor laws.

Table 5. Agencies Responsible for Child Labor Law Enforcement

Organization/Agency	Role
State Government Labor Inspectorates	Conduct labor inspections, including inspections for child labor. Enforce child labor laws, including assessing penalties for violations found during inspections. (92) Refer children to Child Welfare Committees for protection and rehabilitation services. (76)
State and Local Police	Enforce laws pertaining to child labor and human trafficking. (90) Submit information to District Magistrates to determine whether a case should be prosecuted in District Court. (11) Refer children to Child Welfare Committees for protection and rehabilitation services. (1,76) The Criminal Investigation Department (CID) (also referred to as "Crime Branch") is a unit of the police force in each state. There are 36 CIDs across India. (81)
Ministry of Home Affairs – Anti-Trafficking Operations Division – State and District-Level Anti-Human Trafficking Units (AHTUs)	Report to district police chiefs. (43) Investigate cases of domestic and international human trafficking. (1,43,90) Established in approximately 350 local police jurisdictions throughout India, but many AHTUs lack sufficient funding, human resources, and infrastructure—including vehicles and computers—needed to adequately perform their work. (1,43,81) During the reporting period, the national government disbursed $13.5 million in funding to expand AHTUs from 332 districts to all 732 districts and provided additional training and resources to existing AHTUs. (1,63)
Central Bureau of Investigation – Anti-Human Trafficking Unit	Investigates and prosecutes cases involving the kidnapping and trafficking of women and children by professional gangs operating across multiple states. Takes on cases by request of, or in agreement with, state governments. (1,93) Manages the 24-hour Helpline No. 011 for reporting cases of "Illegal Human Trafficking Especially Trafficking of Children & Women." (43,94)
National Investigation Agency	Investigates terror-related cases. (32) Mandate was expanded by the central government in 2019 to investigate and prosecute trafficking in persons cases that have multiple state or international ramifications. (32,43,81,95)

During the reporting period, the Ministry of Railways, in coordination with the Ministry of Home Affairs (MHA), maintained 84 child help desks at stations to support unaccompanied children who were vulnerable to traffickers. (1,84)

In October 2020, in Hyderabad, the National Investigation Agency (NIA) filed charges against 12 persons, including 9 Bangladeshi nationals. In addition, the NIA took over a human trafficking case in Jharkland in June 2020 and charged four people for this crime in February 2021. (84)

The enforcement of labor laws is overseen by the state governments' labor ministries, while criminal law enforcement is overseen by the state police. Labor law enforcement officers typically coordinate with the state police on cases through the Office of the District Magistrate. (32) However, law enforcement authorities do not have procedures to screen for trafficking victims, and research found that authorities have arrested, fined, penalized, and deported some child trafficking victims for crimes their traffickers compelled them to commit. (1)

Research has found that when some states sought approval from the Government of India to suspend labor laws to mitigate the economic downturn caused by the pandemic, the Government of India mandated that child and bonded labor laws continue to be actively enforced. Officials issued advisories to states to closely monitor human trafficking and to ensure that the pandemic did not result in the expansion of trafficking in persons. (11) In July 2020, India's MHA issued an advisory that urged state governments to launch anti-trafficking awareness campaigns. (96)

Labor Law Enforcement

In 2020, labor law enforcement agencies in India took actions to combat child labor (Table 6). However, gaps exist within the operations of the state government labor inspectorates that may hinder adequate enforcement of their child labor laws, including training for labor inspectors.

Table 6. Labor Law Enforcement Efforts Related to Child Labor

While the number of labor inspectors is unknown, according to the ILO's technical advice of a ratio approaching 1 inspector for every 15,000 workers in developing economies, India would need to employ roughly 34,793 labor inspectors as its workforce consists of over 521.9 million workers. (98,99) While the government does not release disaggregated data on the specific budget for inspections, research has found that inspectors may have sufficient office facilities, transportation, fuel, and other necessities to carry out inspections. (11) However, the ILO and NGOs report that training for labor inspectors is inadequate, that the number of labor inspections carried out is insufficient given the size and population of the country, and that the response time to complaints is too long. (11,32,81,100) NGOs commended the state governments of Rajasthan, Gujarat, and Tamil Nadu for proactive inspections, but, again, noted that the response time is too long. In addition, labor rights groups and trade unions claim that inspections are often conducted ineffectively. (11) Labor inspectors receive training on laws relating to child labor. However, data on the number of inspectors who received training are not available. (11) Most training programs were conducted virtually during the reporting period due to the pandemic. However, research has found that the trainings are inadequate. (11)

The Constitution of India gives state governments primary responsibility for the enforcement of labor laws. (92) Although the central government seeks to collect data on national and state actions to address child labor violations, the Government of India did not provide information on the number of violations for which financial or other penalties were imposed and collected. (11) Penalties available under the law include imprisonment for a minimum of 6 months up to 2 years and fines ranging from $300 to $700. (32,101,102) However, current laws and enforcement are insufficient to deter employers from hiring children because imprisonment is rare and maximum fines are infrequently levied. (11,71) While the Child Labor Act and the rules framed under this act empower labor inspectors to assess penalties and monetary fines for child labor law violations, research has found that penalties assessed do not deter child labor law violations, even though there are no barriers to assessing penalties. (11)

State government labor inspectors plan and conduct labor inspections, which are generally targeted at specific sectors or geographical areas known to involve child labor. Although labor inspectors are permitted to conduct unannounced inspections in all formal and informal workplaces, due to social and cultural barriers, inspections of private homes and farms are done only on receipt of a complaint. (32)

During the reporting period, Tamil Nadu became the first state to report requesting funding to conduct its first survey since 1996, which will cover the 11 most vulnerable districts and feed into a database on bonded labor efforts. In addition, Telangana state began a 3-year project to map its cotton farms and spinning mills to monitor ethical labor practices; traffickers use forced labor in these sectors. (1)

Criminal Law Enforcement

In 2020, criminal law enforcement agencies in India took actions to combat child labor (Table 7). However, gaps exist within the operations of the criminal enforcement agencies that may hinder adequate enforcement of their child labor laws, including the lack of data on state government efforts to investigate, prosecute, and convict crimes involving child labor.

Table 7. Criminal Law Enforcement Efforts Related to Child Labor

Overview of Criminal Law Enforcement	2019	2020
Initial Training for New Criminal Investigators	Yes (81)	Unknown (11)
Training on New Laws Related to the Worst Forms of Child Labor	Yes (81)	N/A (11)
Refresher Courses Provided	Yes (32)	Unknown (11)
Number of Investigations	Unknown (32)	Unknown (11)
Number of Violations Found	Unknown (32)	Unknown (11)
Number of Prosecutions Initiated	Unknown (32)	Unknown (11)

During the reporting period, authorities in some states acted to identify child bonded labor victims, but penalties assessed were insufficient to deter violations and criminal prosecutions were also rarely initiated. (1,11,81) Due to the lack of law enforcement efforts, a lack of proactive victim identification, a widespread tendency to handle bonded labor cases administratively in lieu of criminal prosecution, and stalled bonded labor prosecutions, the ability of authorities to recognize full compensation for victims remained extremely difficult. Furthermore, an NGO working in 10 states reported its observations that employers trapped more than 60 percent of released victims it rescued back in bonded labor again. (1) Research has also noted that police did not always arrest suspects or file First Information Reports (FIRs) to officially register a complaint, including in at least half the bonded labor cases nationally. Rather, officials settled many other cases at the complaint stage, or registered bonded labor cases as minimum wage violations. (1) In addition, 17 of India's 36 states and territories reported not identifying any bonded labor victims or filing any cases under the Bonded Labor System (Abolition) Act in either 2017 or 2018, despite NGO and media reports of bonded labor victims identified in some of those states. (1)

In September 2020, the National Crime Records Bureau released its annual report detailing criminal cases from the prior year that involved the worst forms of child labor. (63,103) The report shows that human trafficking trends remained similar to 2018—there were 2,260 cases of trafficking in 2019, and 2,278 cases in 2018. In addition, over 2,914 victims of trafficking in 2019 were under the age of 18. (63,103) While state governments have primary responsibility for criminal law enforcement, access to trainings varies from state to state and research has found that training opportunities on the laws related to the worst forms of child labor are limited and inadequate. (11,32,101,104) Cases on the trafficking of minors for the purposes of commercial sexual exploitation are heard in Protection of Children From Sexual Offences (POCSO) Act Courts. As of December 31, 2019, there were 664 POCSO courts and 240,000 pending cases. (43,104) To deal with pending cases, India has proposed setting up 389 fast-track special courts (FTSCs) dedicated to POCSO cases. (105) However, research has found that as of September 2020, only 321 POCSO FTSCs have been set up. (106) State authorities also have reported that judges and prosecutors at POCSO courts do not have training or expertise in POCSO crimes. To combat this, the Madhya Pradesh police academy signed a Memorandum of Understanding with an NGO that allowed for 1,900 police, prosecutors, and judicial officers to be trained on human trafficking. (1) In addition, four states have implemented child-friendly courtrooms or procedures, including some that allowed victims to testify via video conference, which improved victim participation in cases, thus, helping to prevent re-traumatization of child victims. However, inadequate implementation of victim protection measures and legal assistance enshrined in law, including witness protection, led victims to refuse to participate in trials. (1)

During the reporting year, the newly expanded Anti-Human Trafficking Units (AHTUs) increased their efforts in combating human trafficking. In June 2020, the AHTU of West Bengal's Murshidabad district rescued eight girls from two hotels. From this rescue, three of the girls were from Bangladesh. (63) In this case, seven people were charged with rape and human trafficking and were denied bail, under POCSO. A human trafficking ring was intercepted by police in Uttarakhand in July 2020, with three people arrested and the victim put into a rehabilitation service operated by an NGO. (63) In December 2020, police arrested a teacher for kidnapping a 16-year-old girl with intention of continuing to sexually exploit kidnapped girls and sell them in Delhi or Himachal Pradesh. In addition, charges were amended during the reporting year in an April 2019 human trafficking case that involved six Bangladeshi girl victims and three traffickers. (63)

Anti-human trafficking and anti-forced labor operations involved the support of NGOs and international agencies during the reporting year. In Andhra Pradesh, 17 children were rescued from brick kilns with the assistance of UNICEF. (63) A tip from the 24-hour toll-free emergency telephone service for children in distress, Childline, also led to the rescue of 77 children who were involved in agricultural labor, with 39 of them below the age of 14. (63)

Arrests were also made in the reporting year regarding bonded labor. An AHTU in Gujarat raided two facilities that were used for sari-finishing production, which led to the rescue of 37 children and charges filed against 8 individuals. (63) The AHTUs in Jaipur rescued 900 children from bangle manufacturing factories that included 25 children in bonded labor. The children experienced physical violence and most of them were trafficked from Bihar to Rajasthan. (63) In June 2020, police rescued 403 people, of which 97 were children, from brick kilns in Tamil Nadu and charged three brick kiln owners under the Bonded Labor System Abolition Act. Also in Tamil Nadu, local government officials and police rescued 173 children (a majority of them girls) from a private spinning mill. (63) The ages of the victims ranged from 13 to 18 years and they worked without days off for 14 hour shifts. However, instead of filing charges under the Child Labor (Abolition and Regulation) Act or the Bonded Labor System (Abolition) Act, the police filed the case under less serious criminal charges. (63)

The Government of the National Capital Territory of Delhi has issued a standard operating procedure (SOP) for the immediate release of financial assistance to adults and children rescued from bonded labor. However, some other state governments lack similar procedures, sometimes failed to recognize bonded labor cases, and often did not issue release certificates or provide more than the initial financial assistance to bonded labor victims. (1,43,97,107-109) Furthermore, research has found that politically connected individuals across multiple states successfully avoided prosecution, including local and state politicians who held workers in bonded labor in agriculture and on brick kilns. (1) There were credible allegations during the reporting period of government officials and police officers accepting bribes from traffickers in return for protection from prosecution, and of police refusing to register FIRs against accused officials. Tamil Nadu state authorities, for example, acknowledged that some local politicians benefited with impunity from child sex trafficking and forced begging rings. (1,43,81)

Out of approximately 9,000 government-run, government-funded shelters for vulnerable individuals, including children, roughly 1,300 were not officially registered with the government. During the reporting period, lax law enforcement and a lack of safeguards encouraged an atmosphere of impunity in several group homes and orphanages. (110) Despite allegations of abuse, in several instances some shelters continued operating due to political connections. (1,110) As of March 2019, police had documented at least 156 children, including victims of commercial sexual exploitation, missing from 6 shelters across the country. (104,110) At least one shelter owner reportedly sold women and girls for purposes of commercial sexual exploitation. (110) A notable conviction during the reporting year is with the Muzaffarpur shelter home, in which Brajesh Thakur, shelter owner and former legislator, was convicted in January along with 18 other individuals of abuses under the POCSO Act and Juvenile Justice Act for victimizing 44 girls between the ages of 7 and 17 for the purposes of commercial sexual exploitation. Of the 19 individuals, 12 of them were sentenced to life in prison, including Thakur, a former chairperson of the Child Welfare Committee, a member of the Child Welfare Committee, and a District Child Protection Officer. (43,81,111,112) However, research found that that no illegal shelter homes were shut down during the reporting period. Research also found that complicit government officials were not held accountable for helping to operate illegal shelter homes; no criminal cases were initiated against government officials in 2020. (1,86)

IV. COORDINATION OF GOVERNMENT EFFORTS ON CHILD LABOR

The government has established mechanisms to coordinate its efforts to address child labor (Table 8).

Table 8. Key Mechanisms to Coordinate Government Efforts on Child Labor

Coordinating Body	Role & Description
Task Force to Implement the Child Labor Act (CLA)	Coordinates the oversight mechanism to ensure the effective implementation of the Child and Adolescent Labor (Prohibition and Regulation) Act. Led by the Ministry of Labor and Employment (MOLE) and consists of 12 officials from the federal and state governments. (113) Met twice during the reporting period. Instructed states to closely monitor child labor issues and ensure continued enforcement of the CLA, especially in the wake of pandemic-related economic distress. (11)
Central Advisory Board on Child and Adolescent Labor	Convenes board members to review the implementation of existing legislation and programs related to child labor and proposes new welfare measures for child labor. Chaired by MOLE and consists of 45 board members, including government officials and NGO representatives. (114) Met once during the reporting period. (11)
National Commission for the Protection of Child Rights (NCPCR)	Ensures that all laws, policies, programs, and administrative mechanisms are in accordance with the constitutional protections for children and the UN CRC. Inquires about child rights violations and failures to properly implement laws relating to child protection. (115) State Commissions for Protection of Child Rights have also been established in all 29 states and in 6 territories, including Delhi. (116) During the reporting period, the Commission continued to be proactive on child rights issues. (11) In May 2020, NCPCR issued recommendations to combat child trafficking following the pandemic lockdown, focusing on efforts to combat trafficking at source, transit, and destination hotspots across India. (63)
National Human Rights Commission (NHRC)	Monitors implementation of the Bonded Labor System (Abolition) Act. Monitors state governments' actions to identify, release, and rehabilitate bonded laborers through quarterly submissions and exploratory and investigative missions. (117) During the reporting period, implemented its standard operating procedures for identifying and responding to bonded labor cases. (1) In 2020, also issued an advisory to all states on combating human trafficking. (11) In December 2020, NHRC issued an advisory on combating human trafficking in the context of the pandemic. NHRC recommended a 24/7 helpline for real-time reporting, tracking, and monitoring of trafficking in persons cases. (63) It called for the installation of surveillance mechanisms at transit points to track children moving with suspicious persons or without adult supervision. In addition, the NHRC advised that testimonies of rescued victims should be collected via video conferencing in courts, especially when victims are repatriated or released from protective homes. (63)
Platform for Effective Enforcement for No Child Labor Portal	MOLE-operated online portal that allows government officials, NGOs, and law enforcement to share information and coordinate on child labor cases at the national, state, and local levels in an attempt to improve enforcement of child labor laws and the implementation of the National Child Labor Project (NCLP) Scheme. (118) Allows citizens to lodge child labor complaints. (32) Rescued child laborers are put through a rehabilitation program that includes formal education and vocational skills training. Those eligible are mainstreamed into formal education. (81) Special Training Centers (STCs) are located across the country and provide a stipend to children, free meals, vocational training, and bridge education for eligible children. Length of stay ranges from 6 to 18 months. (81) Since the online platform was launched in 2017, 191,264 child laborers have been identified and 97,664 children removed from child labor and rehabilitated through STCs. Currently, 59,269 children are enrolled in STCs. (11)

V. GOVERNMENT POLICIES ON CHILD LABOR

The government has established policies related to child labor (Table 9). However, policy gaps exist that hinder efforts to address child labor, including lack of state action plans for the elimination of child labor for all state governments.

Table 9. Key Policies Related to Child Labor

Policy	Description
National Policy on Child Labor	Describes actions for combating hazardous labor for children, including implementing legislation and providing direct assistance to children. (119) Implemented through programs operated by MOLE and the Ministry of Women and Child Development (MWCD), including the NCLP Scheme, Grants in Aid, the Integrated Child Development Scheme, the National Children's Fund, and the National Creche Scheme. (32,81,120,121) From April 1, 2019, to February 1, 2020, 46,198 children were removed from child labor and rehabilitated through the NCLP Scheme, established under the National Policy on Child Labor. (11)
National Plan of Action for Children	Identifies priority actions for achieving the objectives set out in the National Policy for Children (NPC). (32,122,123) Aims to establish bridge courses and age-appropriate classes for children rescued from child labor and child trafficking to meet the NPC objective to ensure that all out-of-school children have access to education. In addition, seeks to develop community-based prevention, rescue, rehabilitation, and reintegration mechanisms, and strengthen institutional mechanisms to address the worst forms of child labor to meet the NPC objective that all children are protected from exploitation. (122,123) Research was unable to determine whether activities were undertaken to implement the national action plan during the reporting period.
State Action Plans on Child Labor	Details state governments' activities and programs to eliminate child labor. Child labor action plans are in place in only 11 states: Andhra Pradesh, Bihar, Delhi, Gujarat, Jharkhand, Karnataka, Meghalaya, Orissa, Punjab, Tamil Nadu, and Uttar Pradesh. (92,97,124-131) Research was unable to determine whether activities were undertaken to implement state action plans during the reporting period.

The Government of the National Capital Territory of Delhi's "Policy on Rehabilitation and Combating Trafficking of Women and Children," which would establish a rehabilitation fund for women and children who were trafficked for commercial sexual exploitation and establish state- and district-level coordination committees to undertake prevention and rehabilitation activities, remains pending in draft form. (97,132-134)

Research has also found that in March 2020, the Government of Karnataka released a comprehensive SOP on human trafficking in collaboration with civil society organizations. The SOP covers sex trafficking, child begging, child labor, and bonded labor. (63) The state government is also planning two separate SOPs by March 2021 on bonded labor and engaging the Railway Protection Force in the rescue of children from railway stations. (63) The state of Tamil Nadu and the Union Territory of Delhi have SOPs dedicated to eradicating bonded labor. (84)

The government does not have a national action plan to combat trafficking in persons. (1)

VI. SOCIAL PROGRAMS TO ADDRESS CHILD LABOR

In 2020, the government funded and participated in programs that include the goal of eliminating or preventing child labor (Table 10). However, gaps exist in these social programs, including in the oversight of government-run, government-funded, and privately run shelter homes that provide assistance to victims of the worst forms of child labor.

Table 10. Key Social Programs to Address Child Labor

Program	Description
National Child Labor Project (NCLP) Scheme†	MOLE program that operates at the district level to identify working children, withdraw them from hazardous work, and provide them with education and vocational training. (10, 120) Sets up and administers NCLP schools, mainstreams children into formal education, and provides them with stipends, meals, and health checkups. (120) Comprises approximately 3,000 NCLP STCs that accommodate approximately 120,000 children. (120) From April 1, 2019 to February 1, 2020, the NCLP Scheme removed 46,198 children from child labor across 21 states. (11)
Ministry of Women and Child Development (MWCD) Programs - Integrated Child Protection Scheme†, Childline†, TrackChild and Khoya-Paya†	Integrated Child Protection Scheme provides children in need of protection—including children withdrawn from hazardous work, forced labor, and human trafficking—with food and accommodation in government-run shelter homes and non-institutional care in foster homes and with adoptive families. (1,32,43,121) Provides rehabilitation and reintegration services to rescued children. (121) Through the Welfare of Working Children in Need of Care and Protection program, provides non-formal education and vocational training to street children and working children living in urban areas not covered by NCLP schemes. (121) Childline is a 24-hour toll-free emergency telephone service for children in distress. (1,43,87,121,135) Includes Childline India Foundation-operated telephone service in cities across India, which connects children in need of assistance with hospitals, Child Welfare Committees, shelter homes, and police; 60–70 percent of received calls result in the rescue of a child. (43,81,121,135) Research has found that the Childline hotline was operational during the reporting period. (11) TrackChild is an online portal that tracks missing children and facilitates information sharing about missing and vulnerable children among stakeholders, including child protection units, police stations, and Child Welfare Committees. (1,32,121,136) TrackChild's Khoya-Paya (Lost and Found) website allows parents and the public to report and search for missing children. (32) Research has found that the Track Child online portal was operational during the reporting period. (11)
Central Sector Scheme for Rehabilitation of Bonded Laborers†	MOLE program that rescues and rehabilitates adult and child bonded laborers. (32,120) Provides rescued bonded laborers with financial assistance and social protection services. (120) Supports funding of surveys at the district level on the prevalence of bonded labor and the rehabilitation of bonded laborers identified through the surveys. (137) Research found that the MOLE program was operational during the reporting period. (11)
Anti-Human Trafficking Activities†	MWCD-operated anti-human trafficking activities, in collaboration with NGOs and state governments. (138) Supports projects to help reintegrate, rehabilitate, and repatriate human trafficking victims, including children, through the Ujjawala and Swadhar Greh schemes. (138) Ujjawala is a comprehensive scheme launched in 2007. Combats trafficking in persons of women and children, including for commercial sexual exploitation. (1,138) Operates 134 shelters. (1) In addition, facilitates the rescue of victims, places them in safe custody, provides rehabilitation services, facilitates reintegration of victims, and facilitates repatriation of foreign victims. (138) The Swadhar Greh scheme provides temporary residential accommodations and services, including vocational training, legal aid, and rehabilitative counseling services to women and girls rescued from human trafficking, including commercial sexual exploitation. (43,138) Operates 413 shelters. The central government allocated $2.03 million in the first 5 months of 2019–2020, a decrease from $3.18 million allocated to the program in the first 5 months of 2018–2019. (1)
Work in Freedom Project II (2018-2023)	Partnership program developed between UK's Foreign, Commonwealth & Development Office and ILO on Fair Recruitment and Decent Work for Women Migrant Workers in South Asia and the Middle East. Aims to reduce vulnerability to trafficking and forced labor of women and girls across migration pathways leading to the care sector and textiles, clothing, leather and footwear industries. Addresses key drivers and vulnerabilities of human trafficking, such as gender and other forms of discrimination, distress migration, and poor working and living conditions, through an integrated prevention strategy of targeted social protection and empowerment; fair recruitment practices; and evidence-based policy advocacy for decent work options. (141) For more information, see the ILO website.
Measurement, Awareness-Raising, and Policy Engagement (MAP16) Project on Child Labor and Forced Labor	USDOL-funded project ($500,000) implemented by the ILO to conduct research and develop new survey methodologies, improve awareness, strengthen policies and government capacity, and promote partnerships to combat child labor and forced labor. (139) In India, the project works in the states of Bihar, Chhattisgarh, and Uttar Pradesh to promote coordination of programs for child laborers and their families, build capacity of state and local governments to address child labor, and build the knowledge base on child labor. During the reporting period, the project held consultations with relevant stakeholders in these states aimed at developing a comprehensive benefit package for child laborers and their families. (140) For additional information, please see the USDOL website . Please also see the ILO website.

Similar to government-run, government-funded shelter homes, both Ujjawala and Swadhar Greh homes have high rates of non-registration. Due to a reported loophole in the law, if the government did not act on a home's application in a prescribed timeframe, the organization applying would automatically gain licensure. (1) Research indicates that some corrupt officials purposely missed the licensing deadline to allow inadequate but politically connected organizations to gain licensing. Furthermore, in the states that allowed audits of Ujjawala and Swadhar Greh homes, the audits documented that many homes violated minimum hygiene and safety standards, did not provide psychosocial support or educational opportunities, and operated without proper registration. (1) Moreover, in some instances the homes functioned as hostels and charged non-victim residents for accommodation. Due to unsafe conditions coupled with alleged abuse by caretakers, authorities reported multiple instances in which children ran away. (1)

During the reporting period, the Government of India also reportedly pledged to spend $477,447,600 (35 billion rupees) in aid for migrant workers, but research found that migrant workers fear that their lack of documentation and bank accounts preclude them from receiving government aid, with many having turned to loan sharks, increasing the risk of vulnerability to debt bondage, child labor, and human trafficking. (69,96)

VII. SUGGESTED GOVERNMENT ACTIONS TO ELIMINATE CHILD LABOR

Based on the reporting above, suggested actions are identified that would advance the elimination of child labor in India (Table 11).

Table 11. Suggested Government Actions to Eliminate Child Labor

Area	Suggested Action	Year(s) Suggested
Legal Framework	Raise the minimum age for work to the age up to which education is compulsory.	2018 – 2020
	Ensure that the types of hazardous work prohibited for children under age 18 are comprehensive, especially in the sectors in which children work in unsafe and unhealthy conditions for long periods of time, such as in spinning mills, garment production, carpet making, and domestic work.	2016 – 2020
	Ensure that the law criminally prohibits the recruitment of children under age 18 by non-state armed groups.	2016 – 2020
	Publish the legal instrument that establishes the minimum age for voluntary recruitment into India's armed forces.	2018 – 2020
Enforcement	Ensure that there are no gaps in criminal law enforcement efforts regarding children from marginalized communities who are trafficked into commercial sexual exploitation, and ensure that procedures are in place to properly screen human trafficking victims to avoid prosecuting them for crimes that their traffickers compelled them to commit.	2020
	Ensure that Anti-Human Trafficking Units have sufficient funding and human resources to adequately perform their work.	2019 – 2020
	Collect and publish national-level data on labor law enforcement, including the amount of funding for the labor inspectorate, the number of labor inspectors, the number and type of inspections conducted, the number of child labor violations found, and the number of child labor violations for which penalties were imposed and collected.	2014 – 2020
	Collect and publish national-level data from all state governments on trainings for criminal investigators, the number of criminal investigations, the number of violations found, the number of prosecutions initiated, and the number of convictions. Ensure that penalties are imposed for violations related to the worst forms of child labor, and that a reciprocal referral mechanism exists between criminal authorities and social services.	2009 – 2020
	Ensure that the number of labor inspectors in India meets the ILO's technical guidance.	2020
	Ensure adequate training for labor and criminal law inspectors, that an adequate number of labor inspections are conducted, that labor inspections are regularly conducted in all sectors in which child labor occurs, and that the complaint mechanism response time is efficient.	2019 – 2020
	Create meaningful penalties for employment of children in prohibited child labor to ensure that penalties adequately deter violations.	2014 – 2020
	Ensure that public officials who facilitate or participate in the worst forms of child labor are held accountable, including officials who accept bribes in exchange for protection from the law.	2018 – 2020
	Ensure that there is implementation of victim protection measures in courts, and ensure that judges and prosecutors at Protection of Children From Sexual Offences Act courts have adequate training or expertise on crimes involving the commercial sexual exploitation of children.	2020

Area	Suggested Action	Year(s) Suggested
Enforcement	Fully implement standard operating procedures that provide financial assistance to victims rescued from bonded labor, including children, and ensure that bonded labor cases are fast tracked to ensure that victims receive financial assistance and are issued release certificates in a timely manner.	2018 – 2020
	Investigate suspected abuses and misconduct at government-run, government-funded shelter homes, and prioritize the official registration of all government-run, government-funded shelters to ensure government oversight. Ensure that shelter homes are fully staffed and free of abuses, including forced labor and commercial sexual exploitation of children.	2018 – 2020
	Ensure that all state governments conduct audits of all government-run, government-funded shelters as mandated by the Supreme Court.	2019 – 2020
	Ensure that law enforcement agencies have adequate technological and financial resources to respond to technological tools used by traffickers.	2020
Government Policies	Work with state governments that do not currently have state action plans for the elimination of child labor to establish such plans.	2011 – 2020
	Publish information about activities that were undertaken to implement the national plan of action and state action plans during the reporting period.	2018 – 2020
	Approve and implement a national policy to combat trafficking in persons and support victims.	2019 – 2020
Social Programs	Ensure that education accessibility is equitable and widespread by providing adequate financial resources dedicated to remote learning assets and penalizing education officials who engage in discrimination and harassment of children. Further reduce barriers to education, in particular for refugee children and children from marginalized communities, by providing sufficient training for teachers, providing separate and sanitary washrooms for girls, and increasing the number of available schools, especially in rural areas in which inadequate infrastructure and transportation options limit access to education.	2014 – 2020
	Ensure collection, findings, and publication of data on exploitative child labor are made available to the public, including findings from district-level bonded labor surveys and raw data from the national census.	2009 – 2020

In 2020, Indonesia made moderate advancement in efforts to eliminate the worst forms of child labor. During the reporting period, the government removed 9,000 children from child labor through the Family Hope Program and subsequently enrolled them in school. The government also increased its allocation to street and abandoned children from $357,142 (IDR 5 billion) in 2019 to $2.7 million (IDR 38.1 billion), helping approximately 68,438 children. In addition, due to the COVID-19 pandemic, the government directed financial resources to families in extreme hardship by providing 96.8 million Indonesians who struggle to meet basic needs with the Indonesia Health Card. However, children in Indonesia are subjected to the worst forms of child labor, including in commercial sexual exploitation, sometimes as a result of human trafficking. Children also engage in dangerous tasks in plantation agriculture, including in palm oil and tobacco production. The Ministry of Manpower continued to lack the financial resources and personnel necessary to fully enforce child labor laws throughout the country. In addition, the government did not publish criminal enforcement information on the number of investigations conducted, violations found, prosecutions initiated, convictions, and imposed penalties for crimes relating to the worst forms of child labor.

I. PREVALENCE AND SECTORAL DISTRIBUTION OF CHILD LABOR

Children in Indonesia are subjected to the worst forms of child labor, including in commercial sexual exploitation, sometimes as a result of human trafficking. Children also engage in dangerous tasks in plantation agriculture, including in palm oil and tobacco production. (I-12) Table 1 provides key indicators on children's work and education in Indonesia.

Table 1. Statistics on Children's Work and Education

Children	Age	Percent
Working (% and population)	10 to 14	3.7 (816,363)
Attending School (%)	10 to 14	92.4
Combining Work and School (%)	10 to 14	2.1
Primary Completion Rate (%)		102.3

	Forced domestic work and fishing, sometimes as a result of human trafficking (9,10,12,15,19,23)
	Commercial sexual exploitation, including use in the production of pornography, sometimes as a result of human trafficking (9-12,15,19)

† Determined by national law or regulation as hazardous and, as such, relevant to Article 3(d) of ILO C. 182.

‡ Child labor understood as the worst forms of child labor per se under Article 3(a)–(c) of ILO C. 182.

The COVID-19 pandemic has delayed government reporting on key child labor statistics during the reporting period. (10) The Ministry of Women Empowerment and Child Protection's 2019 Indonesian Children Profile report, with data on child laborers between ages 10 and 17, is the most recent source of government child labor data. However, data are still missing for child laborers ages 5 through 10. (35)

Children are subjected to forced domestic work and commercial sexual exploitation, particularly in Batam and Jakarta, as well as Bali, Bandung, Bogor, Surabaya, and Medan. Abroad, children, mostly girls, are also subjected to forced domestic work and commercial sexual exploitation, primarily in Malaysia, Taiwan, and the Middle East. (4,10,12,15,25) During the reporting period, Indonesia closed its borders to foreign tourists and limited domestic tourism due to the pandemic. Many destinations reliant on tourism have faced economic hardship, raising the risk of the worst forms of child labor for those without an economic safety net. (15,25)

The National Commission of Indonesian Child Protection (KPAI), IOM, JARAK—a network of NGOs focused on child labor issues, and other child protection NGOs conducted a survey between September and October 2020 to determine the impact of the pandemic on child workers. The survey consisted of 160 children working in 9 provinces and 20 cities, and found that 15.8 percent of children were engaged in street work; 31.6 percent were subjected to the worst forms of child labor, including commercial sexual exploitation; and 15.8 percent were engaged in domestic work. (15,36)

Children working in tobacco farming—especially in the provinces of East Java, Central Java, and West Nusa Tenggara—are exposed to pesticides, work long hours, and work in extreme heat. (1,5,15,37,38) Children working on agricultural plantations, including palm oil, coffee, and rubber plantations, collect fallen palm fruitlets and plants, and spray toxic herbicides. (2,6,17,39,40) Children are often recruited by family members to help adult palm oil laborers meet harvest quotas, which sometimes results in children working long hours into the night or dropping out of school. (15,16,18,21,22) Children also work as horse jockeys and face a number of health and safety hazards, including risk of bone injuries and fatal falls. In addition to safety concerns, participation in horse racing may impact school attendance. (30-32)

Although the Act on National Education System mandates free education, research indicates that schools impose additional fees on students to cover school activities and educational items. (41) These added expenses may hinder students' ability to attend school. (19) Refugee children, and Indonesian children without proper birth documentation or a government-sponsored identification card, face a barrier to accessing education, as education is only accessible by citizens. (42-44) The government has an online application system as an alternative to applying at population registry offices to help Indonesian children obtain birth documentation more quickly so they can attend school. (43,45)

II. LEGAL FRAMEWORK FOR CHILD LABOR

Indonesia has ratified all key international conventions concerning child labor (Table 3).

Table 3. Ratification of International Conventions on Child Labor

Convention	Ratification
 ILO C. 138, Minimum Age	✓
ILO C. 182, Worst Forms of Child Labor	✓
 UN CRC	✓
UN CRC Optional Protocol on Armed Conflict	✓
UN CRC Optional Protocol on the Sale of Children, Child Prostitution and Child Pornography	✓
 Palermo Protocol on Trafficking in Persons	✓

The government has established laws and regulations related to child labor (Table 4). However, gaps exist in Indonesia's legal framework to adequately protect children from the worst forms of child labor, including insufficient prohibitions against child trafficking.

Table 4. Laws and Regulations on Child Labor

Standard	Meets International Standards	Age	Legislation
Minimum Age for Work	Yes	15	Law on the Ratification of ILO C. 138; Article 69 of the Manpower Act (46,47)

Prohibition of Commercial Sexual Exploitation of Children	Yes		Article 74 of the Manpower Act; Articles 81–82 of the Law on Child Protection; Section 3 of the Law on the Ratification of the Rights of the Child Optional Protocol on the Sale of Children, Child Prostitution, and Child Pornography; Articles 4–12 and 37 of Law on Anti-Pornography; Article 297 of the Penal Code (47,50-53)
Prohibition of Using Children in Illicit Activities	Yes		Article 74 of the Manpower Act; Articles 67, 78, and 89 of the Law on Child Protection (47,50)
Minimum Age for Voluntary State Military Recruitment	Yes		Article 28 of Law No. 34/2004 on the Indonesian National Armed Forces (54)
Prohibition of Compulsory Recruitment of Children by (State) Military	Yes		Article 28 of Law No. 34/2004 on the Indonesian National Armed Forces (54)
Prohibition of Military Recruitment by Non-state Armed Groups	Yes		Article 3(d) of Law No. 9/2012 on Ratifying the Optional Protocol to the Convention on the Rights of the Child on the Involvement of Children in Armed Conflict (55)
Compulsory Education Age	Yes	15	Article 48 of the Law on Child Protection; Articles 6 and 34 of the Act on the National Education System (41,50)
Free Public Education	No		Articles 12, Section 2(b), and 34 of the Act on the National Education System (41)

The legislature has yet to pass the Domestic Workers Protection Bill. This bill outlines the circumstances under which children ages 15 through 17 can perform non-hazardous domestic work, including requiring parental permission to execute the work contract and prohibiting work at night. (9,56,57) However, the bill has made it into the government's 2021 Priority List of National Legislation. (45)

Indonesia

MODERATE ADVANCEMENT

Indonesia's prohibitions against child trafficking are inconsistent with international law because the Law on the Eradication of the Criminal Act of Trafficking in Persons requires a demonstration of threats, the use of force, or coercion to be established for the crime of child trafficking. (49,50) However, judicial officials at the national and provincial level continued to assert that the law implicitly established that force, fraud, or coercion were not required to constitute child sex trafficking and that this, therefore, was not a barrier in successfully prosecuting and obtaining convictions in child sex trafficking cases. (12,58)

Although Indonesia does specify the conditions in which light work may be undertaken and limit the number of hours for light work, it does not list activities in which light work may be permitted. The types of hazardous work prohibited for children also do not cover horse jockeying, a type of work in which there is evidence that Indonesian children are exposed to physical dangers. (48) In addition, Article 12, Section 2(b) of the Act on the National Education System permits schools to charge fees. While the Act on the National Education System provides for free basic education, the Act also requires students to pay prescribed fees unless those fees are waived. (41)

III. ENFORCEMENT OF LAWS ON CHILD LABOR

The government has established institutional mechanisms for the enforcement of laws and regulations on child labor (Table 5). However, gaps exist within the operations of enforcement agencies that may hinder adequate enforcement of their child labor laws.

Table 5. Agencies Responsible for Child Labor Law Enforcement

Organization/Agency	Role
Ministry of Manpower, Directorate General of Labor Development and Supervision and Directorate of Norms Supervision of Women and Child Workers	Enforces the country's labor laws through labor inspections and formulates policies, standards, norms, guidelines, and mechanisms on labor inspections. Provides information to employers on child labor laws and regulations, and works with law enforcement officials to prosecute child labor violators. (59) Refers children found during inspections to the local Women's Empowerment and Family Planning Body or to the Integrated Service Center for Empowering Women and Children for appropriate social services. In the case of the Directorate of Norms Supervision of Women and Child Workers, receives complaints of child labor by telephone, fax, or e-mail. (43)
National Police, including Women and Children's Service Unit	Conduct inspections and raids, and make arrests in response to crimes, including those related to the worst forms of child labor. (8)

Labor Law Enforcement

In 2020, labor law enforcement agencies in Indonesia took actions to combat child labor (Table 6). However, gaps exist within the operations of the Ministry of Manpower (MOM) that may hinder adequate labor law enforcement, including an insufficient number of labor inspectors.

Table 6. Labor Law Enforcement Efforts Related to Child Labor

† Data are from January 2019 to September 2019.

‡ Data are from January 2020 to September 2020.

Between January and September 2020, MOM conducted 10,007 inspections in the formal sector, which included 580 child labor-specific inspections. The majority of these inspections occurred in manufacturing and construction. (15) ILO and MOM officials suspect that additional child labor violations occur, but the government's inability to conduct inspections in the informal sector and an insufficient number of inspectors prevent identification of all child labor violations. (15) Inspectors also lack authority to inspect private farms and homes, in which child labor often occurs. (1,15) Despite this prohibition, the Ministry of Women Empowerment and Child Protection (MoWECP), which coordinates the provision of social services to children, responds to reports of child labor in the informal sector. (20)

Due to budget reprioritizations in response to the pandemic, labor inspection funds decreased from $16.7 million in 2019 to $13.5 million in 2020. (15) Officials noted that funds are insufficient to cover office infrastructure, transportation, and fuel for vehicles, which hampered labor inspectors' ability to carry out inspections. (8)

Also due to pandemic-related budget limitations, MOM employed 1,352 labor inspectors in 2020, down from 1,574 labor inspectors the previous year. Officials at MOM disclosed that there are insufficient inspectors to cover the entire country, and MOM continued to employ and rely on community-based monitors and neighborhood chiefs to report incidences of child labor. (15,43) The number of labor inspectors is likely insufficient for the size of Indonesia's workforce, which includes approximately 126 million workers. According to the ILO's technical advice of a ratio approaching 1 inspector for every 15,000 workers in less developed economies, Indonesia would employ about 8,407 labor inspectors. (43)

MOM conducted virtual training for 157 new and existing labor inspectors on laws related to child labor and hazardous labor. (15) Despite institutionalized refresher training, government officials noted that the amount of refresher training was insufficient, given the total number of labor inspectors. (8,56)

As the law in Indonesia treats child labor as a criminal offense, labor inspectorates may initiate investigations for violations related to child labor, which may result in prosecutions and criminal penalties. (47,60) A trial involving a child labor violation in 2019 was still ongoing as of early 2020, and penalties have not been assessed. (15)

Criminal Law Enforcement

In 2020, criminal law enforcement agencies in Indonesia took actions to combat child labor (Table 7). However, gaps exist within the operations of the criminal enforcement agencies that may hinder adequate criminal law enforcement, including insufficient training for criminal investigators.

Table 7. Criminal Law Enforcement Efforts Related to Child Labor

Reciprocal Referral Mechanism Exists Between Criminal Authorities and Social Services	Yes (8)	Yes (15)

Government data on criminal law enforcement efforts specific to child labor, including the number of investigations, violations found, prosecutions initiated, convictions, and imposed penalties are not available, as the government does not have a system to aggregate this information. Child labor cases are investigated by MOM civilian investigators who collect evidence and prepare information that is passed to the Attorney General's Office for subsequent prosecution. (15) In addition, the Indonesian National Police handle investigations regarding child trafficking. (15)

During the reporting period, no child labor training was held for law enforcement due to pandemic-related restrictions and reprioritization of funds. However, the MoWECP and IOM organized four in-person technical guidance sessions on TIP witness and victim handling for members of the Anti-Trafficking in Persons (TIP) Task Force at the national and local levels. (15) Research found training on current child labor-specific regulations to be inadequate. (8)

IV. COORDINATION OF GOVERNMENT EFFORTS ON CHILD LABOR

The government has established mechanisms to coordinate its efforts to address child labor (Table 8). However, gaps exist that hinder the effective coordination of efforts to address child labor, including efficacy in accomplishing mandates.

Table 8. Key Mechanisms to Coordinate Government Efforts on Child Labor

Coordinating Body	Role & Description
Provincial-Level and District-Level Regional Action Committees	Coordinate and monitor policy and program efforts and develop action plans to eliminate the worst forms of child labor at the local level. (61) Indonesia has provincial-level task forces in 32 provinces and 194 district-level committees. During the reporting period, provincial-level and district-level regional action committees were active and continued to coordinate and monitor policy and program efforts to develop action plans to eliminate the worst forms of child labor at the local level. (15)
Anti-Trafficking in Persons Task Force (ATTF)	Formerly the National Task Force to Combat Trafficking in Persons, coordinates anti-trafficking efforts across 21 ministries and government agencies, including efforts to combat child trafficking. Chaired by the Coordinating Ministry of Human Development and Culture, with task force meetings organized by the Ministry of Women Empowerment and Child Protection. (8,62) Organizes regular coordination meetings, provides technical trainings on human trafficking for government officials, and produces publications on the prevention of human trafficking. (15) Provides vocational training and scholarships to school-age children to reduce susceptibility to human trafficking. (63) During the reporting period, ATTF continued to work on the 2020–2024 National Action Plan on Preventing Trafficking in Persons. (45)
Provincial and District Task Forces for the Prevention and Handling of Human Trafficking	Coordinate prevention and anti-trafficking efforts at the local level. (63) Commonly chaired by the local Integrated Service Center for Women and Children or the local Office of Social Affairs. Operate in 32 provinces and 191 out of 438 districts. (64,65) During the reporting period, the government significantly increased the number of municipal and district-level task forces from 194 in 2019 to 242 in 2020. (12)
Sub-Task Force on the Prevention of Child Participation in Trafficking in Persons	Organizes regular coordination meetings, provides technical trainings on human trafficking for government officials, and produces publications on the prevention of trafficking in persons. (43) Chaired by the Ministry of Education and Culture. (8) Research was unable to determine whether the Sub-Task Force on the Prevention of Child Participation in Trafficking in Persons was active during the reporting period.
Indonesian Child Protection Commission (KPAI)	Monitors the implementation of the Child Protection Law and child protection policies, and provides recommendations on the child protection framework to the President of Indonesia. (50) During the reporting period, KPAI collaborated with IOM, JARAK, and other child protection NGOs to conduct a survey to determine the impact of the pandemic on child workers. (15)

Research has indicated that some Provincial and District Task Forces lack sufficient funding and fail to incorporate the ATTF's recommendations into their plans of action to adequately guide efforts to eliminate the trafficking of women and children. (12,26,58)

V. GOVERNMENT POLICIES ON CHILD LABOR

The government has established policies that are consistent with relevant international standards on child labor (Table 9).

Table 9. Key Policies Related to Child Labor

Policy	Description
National Plan of Action (NPA) for the Elimination of the Worst Forms of Child Labor (2002–2022)	Provides a policy framework for the elimination of child labor. Specific activities include improving data collection on the worst forms of child labor, increasing awareness raising and advocacy efforts, and formulating regulations and policies to prohibit the worst forms of child labor. (66) Established a program to create a series of industrial zones free of child labor and the National Movement for the Elimination of the Worst Forms of Child Labor. During the reporting period, activities for implementing the NAP were halted to focus on assistance to individuals affected by the pandemic. (15)
Roadmap Toward a Child Labor-Free Indonesia in 2022 (2014–2022)	Supports implementation of the NPA for the Elimination of the Worst Forms of Child Labor. Aims to mainstream the elimination of the worst forms of child labor into relevant national policies; strengthen coordination between stakeholders at the national, provincial, and district levels; and enhance the capacity of stakeholders to eradicate child labor. (68)

‡ The government had other policies that may have addressed child labor issues or had an impact on child labor. (15,25)

VI. SOCIAL PROGRAMS TO ADDRESS CHILD LABOR

In 2020, the government funded and participated in programs that include the goal of eliminating or preventing child labor (Table 10). However, gaps exist in these social programs, including education-related fees for children in school.

Table 10. Key Social Programs to Address Child Labor

Program	Description
Child Trafficking Services†	Provide social rehabilitation and shelter services for child victims of trafficking. Led by Ministry of Social Affairs (MOSA) and other government agencies. (56) While the child trafficking shelters were active during the reporting period, MOSA officials noted that victim identification and referral processes have slowed due to the pandemic, as shelter officials needed to limit interactions with potential victims of human trafficking. (25)
Cash Transfer Programs†	Provide conditional cash transfers to help with formal and informal education opportunities and health expenses for vulnerable groups, including street children, abandoned children and infants, children facing criminal charges, children with disabilities, the poorest families, and child laborers who dropped out of school. Includes Smart Indonesia Program (KIP), a card that provides educational grants to all school-age children whose families have a Family Welfare Card or meet eligibility criteria covering both formal and informal education; Child Social Welfare Program ( Program Kesejahteraan Sosial Anak ), which provides conditional cash transfers to children; and Family Welfare Card ( Kartu Keluarga Sejahtera ), which provides a bank account and consolidates all financial assistance programs, including children's education and health funds, for low-income families. (8,43) In 2020, the government provided KIP cards to 18.1 million students from poor families, and allocated $2.7 million (IDR 38.1 billion) to 68,438 street and abandoned children—a significant increase from $357,142 (IDR 5 billion) for 5,000 street and abandoned children in 2019. (15)
Education Programs†	Block Grants for Schools ( Bantuan Operasional Sekolah ) grant program compensates schools for the loss of income from waiving school fees for poor and vulnerable children in primary, junior secondary, and senior high schools. (43) Minimum Service Standards of Basic Education Program improves access to quality public education by limiting the distance of primary and junior secondary schools from children's households, specifying minimum teacher-student ratios, and identifying minimum teacher education qualifications. (69) Community Learning Centers provide education for children of palm oil workers. (56,65,70) Reducing Child Labor to Support the Family Hope Program provides special education services to prepare children who dropped out of school to work so they can return to school, and aims to reduce child labor among targeted households. (8,43) In 2020, the government allocated $3.87 billion (IDR 54.2 trillion) to the Block Grants for Schools fund. The government also removed 9,000 from child labor and subsequently enrolled them in school through the Family Hope Program, meeting the goal set by the Minister of Labor. (15,71,72)

† Program is funded by the Government of Indonesia.

‡ The government had other social programs that may have included the goal of eliminating or preventing child labor. (15,19,73)

MODERATE ADVANCEMENT

Due to the pandemic, the government directed financial resources for social assistance to families in extreme hardship. In 2020, 96.8 million Indonesians received the Indonesia Health Card for those who live below the food poverty line and struggle to meet basic needs. (15)

In June 2020, the ILO, in collaboration with the Ministry of National Development Planning, MOM, and JARAK, organized a webinar on the "Challenges and Strategies to Collectively and Sustainably Combat Child Labor." The webinar was attended by 400 participants across Indonesia, who received updates on the pandemic and its impact on child labor in Indonesia. (15)

VII. SUGGESTED GOVERNMENT ACTIONS TO ELIMINATE CHILD LABOR

Based on the reporting above, suggested actions are identified that would advance the elimination of child labor in Indonesia (Table 11).

Table 11. Suggested Government Actions to Eliminate Child Labor

Area	Suggested Action	Year(s) Suggested
Legal Framework	Ensure that threats, the use of force, and coercion do not need to be established for the crime of child trafficking.	2018 – 2020
	Ensure that the hazardous occupations and activities prohibited for children are comprehensive and include sectors in which child labor is known to occur, including jockeying in horse racing, in which there is evidence that children are exposed to physical dangers.	2019 – 2020
	Ensure that the law's light work provisions specify the activities in which light work may be permitted.	2020
	Establish by law free basic public education by removing provisions that permit schools to charge fees.	2020
Enforcement	Ensure that labor inspectors have authority to inspect the informal sector, including private farms and homes, for child labor violations.	2018 – 2020
	Ensure that labor inspectorate funding is sufficient to cover infrastructure, transportation, and fuel requirements to enable labor inspectors to carry out inspections.	2018 – 2020
	Significantly increase the number of labor inspectors to meet the ILO's technical advice to provide adequate coverage of the workforce.	2010 – 2020
	Ensure that all labor law and criminal law enforcement personnel receive adequate training on child labor regulations, including refresher trainings for labor inspectors.	2017 – 2020
	Publish criminal law enforcement information, including the number of investigations conducted, violations found, prosecutions initiated, convictions, and imposed penalties for crimes relating to child labor, including its worst forms.	2009 – 2020
Coordination	Ensure that all coordinating bodies are able to carry out their intended mandates.	2020
	Sufficiently fund Provincial and District Task Forces and require them to incorporate the recommendations of the Anti-Trafficking in Persons Task Force into their plans of action on the elimination of trafficking of women and children.	2016 – 2020
Social Programs	Collect and publish prevalence data on child laborers ages 5 through 10.	2019 – 2020
	Conduct research to determine the types of activities carried out by children, including in construction and street work sectors, to inform social policies and programs.	2014 – 2020
	Enhance efforts to eliminate barriers to education, including removing school-related fees for basic education and ensuring that all children are able to obtain a government-issued student identification number so they can attend school.	2016 – 2020

MINIMAL ADVANCEMENT – EFFORTS MADE BUT CONTINUED PRACTICE THAT DELAYED ADVANCEMENT

In 2020, Iraq made minimal advancement in efforts to eliminate the worst forms of child labor. The Ministry of Interior investigated several cases implicating Ministry of Interior police and Iraqi Security Forces members in sex trafficking crimes, including prosecution, conviction, and sentencing of six police officers and two Internal Security Forces service members for trafficking boys and girls into sexual exploitation. In addition, the Ministry of Interior upgraded the Anti-Trafficking Directorate from departmental to directorate status and increased its allocation of financial and human resources. However, despite initiatives to address child labor, Iraq is assessed as having made only minimal advancement because it continued a practice that delays advancement to eliminate child labor. Iraqi and Kurdistan Regional Government authorities continued to inappropriately detain and prosecute without legal representation children allegedly affiliated with ISIS—some of whom were victims of forcible recruitment and use—and used abusive interrogation techniques and torture to gain children's confessions. Children in Iraq are subjected to the worst forms of child labor, including in forced begging and in commercial sexual exploitation, each sometimes as a result of human trafficking. The government did not provide information on its labor or criminal law enforcement efforts for inclusion in this report. It also continues to lack programs that focus on assisting children involved in the worst forms of child labor.

I. PREVALENCE AND SECTORAL DISTRIBUTION OF CHILD LABOR

Children in Iraq are subjected to the worst forms of child labor, including in forced begging and in commercial sexual exploitation, each sometimes as a result of human trafficking. (1-4) Household surveys, such as the 2018 Multiple Indicator Cluster Survey (MICS) in Iraq, are not designed to capture the labor performed by IDPs living in camps and, therefore, the 2018 MICS survey does not capture children in this population involved in child labor. Table 1 provides key indicators on children's work and education in Iraq. Data on some of these indicators are not available from the sources used in this report.

Table 1. Statistics on Children's Work and Education

	Domestic work as a result of human trafficking (26-28)
	Forced begging, sometimes as a result of human trafficking (2,4,29,30)
	Commercial sexual exploitation, sometimes as a result of human trafficking (1,2,4,29-32)
	Recruitment of children by non-state armed groups for use in armed conflict (11,30,33)

† Determined by national law or regulation as hazardous and, as such, relevant to Article 3(d) of ILO C. 182.

‡ Child labor understood as the worst forms of child labor per se under Article 3(a)–(c) of ILO C. 182.

Throughout the country, some girls were subjected to commercial sexual exploitation through temporary marriages, including out of IDP camps. (3,32) Iranian-backed Popular Mobilization Forces (PMF)-affiliated militias Asaib Ahl al-Haq (AAH) and Harakat Hezbollah al-Nujaba (HHN) profited from and protected "marriage offices" operated by clerics that facilitate commercial sexual exploitation of children through temporary marriage; the practice reportedly increased in 2020. (3,4,30) Syrian girls from refugee camps in the Kurdistan region were sometimes forced into early or temporary marriages with Iraqi or other refugee men; some Kurdistan Regional Government (KRG) authorities allegedly ignored or accepted bribes to ignore such cases, including those in which girls were sold multiple times. (3) Research found that women and girls in IDP camps, whose family members have alleged ties to ISIS, endure a complex system of sexual exploitation, sex trafficking, and abuse by armed actors residing in the camps, security and military officials, and camp personnel controlling access to humanitarian assistance and services. (29)

In 2020, the UN verified the combat death of a boy recruited by the PMF in 2018. (33)

Children also faced numerous other barriers to accessing education including displacement, the lack of local schools, the use of schools as shelters by IDPs, costs of transportation and school supplies, lack of sufficient educational facilities, and IDPs’ and refugees’ lack of identification documents required for school enrollment. (2,8,12) Sources indicate severe teacher shortages in Sinjar district as the result of teachers being displaced. (2) Insufficient access to transportation and destruction of schools during the conflict with ISIS continue to limit access to education; according to UNICEF, over half of the schools in Iraq require repairs. (2) Children of parents whose marriages were informal due to the woman being a minor, some displaced persons, and some children with suspected ties to ISIS lack identification documents required for school enrollment. (2,34,35) Additionally, as of June 2020, 1.39 million people, including about 648,000 children, remained internally displaced with poor access to education. (36,37)

Displaced children and refugee children are especially vulnerable to educational barriers, including the cost of transportation and school supplies, lack of documentation, host community children being given priority for classroom seats, and vulnerability to COVID-19 related school closures due to reduced access to mobile devices, the internet, and parental support. (2) Secondary and higher education systems refused to accept approximately 600 students who had studied at schools that used the Latin rather than Arabic alphabet; many of these students dropped out as a result. (2) Children with special needs had limited access to education due to lack of specialized teachers and school infrastructure. (2) UNICEF also reported that, while almost 92 percent of children enroll in primary schools, only half of children from economically disadvantaged families complete primary school and less than a quarter complete secondary education. (38)

II. LEGAL FRAMEWORK FOR CHILD LABOR

Iraq has ratified all key international conventions concerning child labor (Table 3).

Table 3. Ratification of International Conventions on Child Labor

Convention	Ratification
 ILO C. 138, Minimum Age	✓
ILO C. 182, Worst Forms of Child Labor	✓
 UN CRC	✓
UN CRC Optional Protocol on Armed Conflict	✓
UN CRC Optional Protocol on the Sale of Children, Child Prostitution and Child Pornography	✓
 Palermo Protocol on Trafficking in Persons	✓

The government has established laws and regulations related to child labor (Table 4). However, gaps exist in Iraq's and the KRG's legal framework to adequately protect children from the worst forms of child labor, including the prohibition of child trafficking.

Table 4. Laws and Regulations on Child Labor

Prohibition of Compulsory Recruitment of Children by (State) Military	Iraq and Kurdistan Region	N/A*
Prohibition of Military Recruitment by Non-state Armed Groups	Iraq and Kurdistan Region	No

Standard	Related Entity	Meets International Standards	Age	Legislation
Compulsory Education Age	Iraq	No	12‡	Articles 8.1.1 and 11.1 of the Education Law; Article 1.3 of the Law on Compulsory Education (45,46)
	Kurdistan Region	Yes	15	Articles 6 and 10 of the Kurdistan Regional Government Ministry of Education Law (47)
Free Public Education	Iraq	Yes		Article 34.2 of the Constitution; Article 9 of the Education Law (45,48)
	Kurdistan Region	Yes		Article 10 of the Kurdistan Regional Government Ministry of Education Law (47)

‡ Age calculated based on available information (45,46)

Article 117 of the Constitution of Iraq recognizes Kurdistan, which comprises the provinces of Dohuk, Erbil, Sulaimaniya, and Halabja, as a federal region. (48-51) Article 121 grants the Kurdistan Region the right to exercise legislative, executive, and judicial powers. (48) The Iraqi Kurdistan Parliament must endorse any laws that the Government of Iraq has passed after 1991 for such laws to enter into force in the Iraqi Kurdistan Region. (49-51)

In Iraq, Article 1 of the Law to Combat Human Trafficking requires force, fraud or coercion to be present as an element to constitute the crime of child trafficking, which is inconsistent with international standards, including Article 3 of the Palermo Protocol. (42) The Iraqi Kurdistan Parliament endorsed the Iraqi Law to Combat Human Trafficking, which means the operative human trafficking standard in the Kurdistan Region is also not in compliance with international standards. (52)

Iraq's laws do not sufficiently prohibit the use of children in prostitution or the use, procuring, and offering of children for the production of pornography or pornographic performances. (43) Moreover, under the Iraqi Education Law and under the Law on Compulsory Education, children are required to attend primary school for only 6 years, which is typically up to age 12. (45,46) This standard makes children ages 12 to 15 particularly vulnerable to child labor, because they are not required to be in school, yet they are not legally permitted to work.

III. ENFORCEMENT OF LAWS ON CHILD LABOR

The government has established institutional mechanisms for the enforcement of laws and regulations on child labor (Table 5). However, gaps exist within the operations of enforcement agencies that may hinder adequate enforcement of their child labor laws.

Table 5. Agencies Responsible for Child Labor Law Enforcement

Organization/Agency	Related Entity	Role
Ministry of Labor and Social Affairs (MOLSA)	Iraq	Enforces child labor laws and regulations through its Child Labor Unit. (12) Conducts research on child labor through its Childhood Welfare Authority. Receives complaints of child labor cases. (12)
Kurdistan Regional Government's Ministry of Labor and Social Affairs (KMOLSA)	Kurdistan Region	Enforces child labor laws and regulations in the Iraqi Kurdistan Region. Police units of the KRG's Ministry of Interior (KMOI) play a supporting role in the daily activities of KMOLSA. (12)
Ministry of Interior (MOI)	Iraq	Enforces criminal laws on the worst forms of child labor. Collaborates with MOLSA, the Iraqi Industries Federation, and the Confederation of Trade Unions to conduct inspection campaigns. (12) Maintains a hotline for victims of human trafficking, with calls routed directly to the Ministry's Anti-Trafficking Directorate. (12) In 2020, the MOI upgraded the Anti-Trafficking Directorate from departmental status, increasing its allocation of financial and human resources. (4)
Kurdistan Regional Government's Ministry of Interior (KMOI)	Kurdistan Region	Investigates cases of commercial sexual exploitation and human trafficking. (12) Includes a Counter Trafficking Directorate within KMOI. (52)

MINIMAL ADVANCEMENT – EFFORTS MADE BUT CONTINUED PRACTICE THAT DELAYED ADVANCEMENT

Labor Law Enforcement

In 2020, labor law enforcement agencies in Iraq took actions to combat child labor (Table 6). However, gaps exist within the authority and operations of the Ministry of Labor and Social Affairs (MOLSA) and the Kurdistan Regional Government's Ministry of Labor and Social Affairs (KMOLSA) that may hinder adequate labor law enforcement, including an insufficient number of labor inspectors.

Table 6. Labor Law Enforcement Efforts Related to Child Labor

During the reporting period, MOLSA reported that it conducted site visits to industrial zones to monitor for child labor. In addition, several brick factories were shut down as a result of such enforcement actions; it is unknown, however, if the child labor issues identified in these factories were remediated or if children found to be working there received appropriate services. (2) Sources indicate that KMOLSA and the Kurdistan Regional Government's Ministry of Interior (KMOI) were responsive regarding complaints of child labor in the Kurdistan region, but would only conduct child labor inspections in response to a complaint. (2)

In 2020, MOLSA employed 98 inspectors. The number of KMOLSA inspectors is unknown. (2) Although the total number of labor inspectors in Iraq during the reporting period is unknown, research indicates that in 2020 the number of labor inspectors was likely insufficient for the size of the Iraqi and KRG workforces, which combined includes over 8.9 million workers. (2,53) According to the ILO's technical advice of a ratio approaching 1 inspector for every 15,000 workers in industrializing economies, Iraq would employ about 593 labor inspectors. (54,55) In addition, both MOLSA and KMOLSA indicated that the number of inspectors is insufficient. (2)

In 2020, KMOLSA did not provide training on child labor to inspectors. (2) When inspectors identify child labor violations, they can issue warnings and instructions, or refer cases to court. (56) KMOLSA indicated that funding is insufficient to carry out its duties. (2)

The government did not provide information on its labor law enforcement efforts for inclusion in this report.

Criminal Law Enforcement

In 2020, criminal law enforcement agencies in Iraq took actions to combat child labor (Table 7). However, gaps exist within the operations of the criminal enforcement agencies that may hinder adequate criminal law enforcement, including training for criminal investigators and prosecution planning.

MINIMAL ADVANCEMENT – EFFORTS MADE BUT CONTINUED PRACTICE THAT DELAYED ADVANCEMENT

Table 7. Criminal Law Enforcement Efforts Related to Child Labor

Overview of Criminal Law Enforcement	2019	2020

In 2020, Iraqi and KRG authorities continued to inappropriately detain and prosecute without legal representation children allegedly affiliated with ISIS—some of whom were victims of forcible recruitment and use—and used abusive interrogation techniques and torture to gain children’s confessions. (3,29,33,57,58) During the reporting period, a special committee of judges in Nineveh undertook the task of adjudicating cases of individuals charged with joining ISIS as children. Sources indicate that 202 individuals were convicted, charges against 31 were dropped, and 44 were pardoned and released. (59) Observers hoped that the committee’s adherence to international standards would be an example to other bodies; however, authorities dissolved the committee in June. Other bodies continue to adjudicate cases of children who joined ISIS. (59)

During the reporting period, the Ministry of Interior (MOI) took steps to investigate and hold criminally accountable military and security personnel for involvement in the sexual exploitation of children. MOI investigated several cases implicating MOI police and Iraqi Security Forces (ISF) members in sex trafficking crimes, including prosecution, conviction, and sentencing of six police officers to 10 years imprisonment and two ISF servicemembers to 8 years imprisonment for trafficking boys and girls into sexual exploitation. (4,60) However, reporting indicates that security and camp management personnel in IDP camps were complicit in the sexual exploitation and trafficking of girls. (4)

The government did not investigate or hold anyone criminally accountable for allegations of unlawful recruitment and use of child soldiers. (3) Some victims of human trafficking, including children who were forcibly recruited and used, continued to be punished for unlawful acts their traffickers compelled them to commit. (3,51) In addition, an NGO reported that police occasionally detained children engaged in street begging and kept them in custody before releasing them; police did not screen these children as possible victims of human trafficking or refer them to appropriate protection services. (3,11) However, during the reporting period, the Central Committee to Combat Trafficking in Persons conducted 18 training sessions for police officers and judges focusing on appropriately investigating and prosecuting human trafficking cases so that victims of trafficking are considered victims even if they had broken Iraqi law. (4)

According to the KRG, between 2014 and 2020, KRG authorities funded the rescue from ISIS of more than 3,545 kidnapped Yazidis, members of a minority religious group, including 1,600 children. Civil society organizations reported that returned victims of sexual exploitation remained vulnerable to exploitation upon their return to the Kurdistan Region. (4)

The government did not provide information on its criminal law enforcement efforts for inclusion in this report.

IV. COORDINATION OF GOVERNMENT EFFORTS ON CHILD LABOR

The government has established mechanisms to coordinate its efforts to address child labor (Table 8). However, gaps exist that hinder the effective coordination of efforts to address child labor, including coordination among agencies to effectively process cases of children suspected of having ties with ISIS or children who are victims of human trafficking.

MINIMAL ADVANCEMENT – EFFORTS MADE BUT CONTINUED PRACTICE THAT DELAYED ADVANCEMENT

Table 8. Key Mechanisms to Coordinate Government Efforts on Child Labor

Coordinating Body	Related Entity	Role & Description
Inter-Ministerial Committee on Child Labor	Iraq	Coordinates overall government efforts to combat child labor, researches policies regarding child labor, and designs and manages projects. Members include representatives from MOLSA and four other ministries. (11) In 2020, the committee coordinated with the UN to address grave violations through its Monitoring and Reporting Task Force, including four meetings concerning monitoring tools, screening children, ethical considerations, and addressing sexual violence. (2,61)
Central Committee to Combat Trafficking in Persons (CCCT)	Iraq	Oversees the implementation of the Law to Combat Human Trafficking and serves as the national coordinating body on trafficking in persons. Led by MOI, and includes representatives from five ministries, KMOI, and two other state entities. (11,13,18) In 2020, the CCCT continued to coordinate the government's efforts to combat human trafficking including running a nationwide public awareness campaign. (4) In addition, the CCCT increased its number of KRG representatives from one to three and instituted monthly meetings between MOI and KMOI. (4)
Inter-Ministerial Committee on Trafficking in Persons	Kurdistan Region	Makes recommendations on implementing the KRG's Anti-Trafficking in Persons Law. Headed by the Director General of the Divan at the Ministry of Interior; it also includes 17 members from several ministries and services. (30) The Inter-Ministerial Committee on Trafficking in Persons did not meet regularly during the reporting period. (60)
KRG Council of Ministers	Kurdistan Region	KMOI and KMOLSA coordinate on child labor in the Iraqi Kurdistan Region through the KRG Council of Ministers. (11) Research was unable to determine whether the KRG Council of Ministers was active during the reporting period.
KRG High Committee on Human Trafficking	Kurdistan Region	Led by KMOI and includes representatives of KMOLSA and includes 17 government ministries. (3,11) Specific activities are unknown. (62) Research was unable to determine whether the KRG High Committee on Human Trafficking was active during the reporting period.

V. GOVERNMENT POLICIES ON CHILD LABOR

The government has established policies related to child labor (Table 9). However, policy gaps exist that hinder efforts to address child labor, including covering of all worst forms of child labor.

Table 9. Key Policies Related to Child Labor

Policy	Related Entity	Description
Child Protection Policy (2017–2022)	Iraq	Outlines a comprehensive approach to addressing child protection, including addressing child labor, through prevention, protection, and rehabilitation programs such as a poverty alleviation initiative, and educational and mental health services. Includes a component to provide rehabilitation and reintegration activities for children previously engaged in armed conflict and children who experienced trauma during the period of ISIS occupation. (12,63) The policy does not specifically cover other worst forms of child labor present in Iraq, including forced begging and commercial sexual exploitation. (63) Research was unable to determine whether activities were undertaken to implement this policy during the reporting period.
National Plan on Combating Human Trafficking in Iraq	Iraq	Aims to combat human trafficking by outlining steps to be taken by authorities represented on the CCCT. Focuses on prevention, protection, prosecution, and regional and international cooperation and includes considerations for child victims. (64) Active in 2020. (4)

Research was unable to identify any child labor policies in the Kurdistan Region. (12)

VI. SOCIAL PROGRAMS TO ADDRESS CHILD LABOR

In 2020, the government funded and participated in programs that include the goal of eliminating child labor (Table 10). However, gaps exist in these social programs, including adequacy of programs to address the full scope of the problem.

MINIMAL ADVANCEMENT – EFFORTS MADE BUT CONTINUED PRACTICE THAT DELAYED ADVANCEMENT

Table 10. Key Social Programs to Address Child Labor

Program	Related Entity	Description
Informal Education†	Iraq	Government-supported informal education systems, including evening school programs and accelerated education that encourages children ages 12 to 18 who have dropped out of school to continue their education. (12) Research was unable to determine what steps were undertaken in 2020 to implement this program.
Conditional Subsidies Program†	Iraq	Provides assistance to low-income families for children to stay in school and out of the workforce. In 2020, MOLSA continued to provide cash assistance to low-income families to send their children to school. (2)
Shelters for Human Trafficking Victims†	Iraq	MOLSA-operated shelter in Baghdad for human trafficking victims, including children involved in the worst forms of child labor; other facilities are in Basrah, Kirkuk, and Ninewa provinces. (12) Officials have indicated that poor coordination and policies that dissuade victims from seeking help accounted for a low number of victims receiving services through shelters. (30) In 2020, 18 trafficking victims were referred to shelters, however, officials stated that referral gaps prevented shelters from helping more victims. (4)

† Program is funded by the Government of Iraq.

In 2020, 258 children at-risk of joining or formerly associated with armed groups participated in community-based reintegration programs in Najaf, Karbala, Kirkuk, and Ninewa. (65) However, neither the Government of Iraq nor the KRG efforts to provide protection services to demobilized child soldiers of ISIS or the PMF are sufficient. Failing to reintegrate former child soldiers leaves them vulnerable to re-victimization or re-recruitment into armed groups. (3) Likewise, research was unable to find evidence of specific active programs to support children subjected to commercial sexual exploitation or other worst forms of child labor, including child soldiering. Existing programs do not sufficiently address the lack of access to education in Iraq and the Kurdistan Region.

VII. SUGGESTED GOVERNMENT ACTIONS TO ELIMINATE CHILD LABOR

Based on the reporting above, suggested actions are identified that would advance the elimination of child labor in Iraq (Table 11).

Table 11. Suggested Government Actions to Eliminate Child Labor

Area	Suggested Action	Year(s) Suggested
Legal Framework	Ensure that the laws comprehensively prohibit child trafficking in all parts of Iraq, including the Kurdistan Region, and do not require force or coercion for their application, in accordance with international standards.	2015 – 2020
	Ensure that the law criminally prohibits the use of a child in prostitution and the use, procuring, and offering of a child for the production of pornography and pornographic performances.	2019 – 2020
	Ensure that the law in Iraq criminally prohibits the use of children in illicit activities, including in the production and trafficking of drugs.	2015 – 2020
	Ensure that the law criminally prohibits the recruitment of children under age 18 by non-state armed groups.	2013 – 2020
	Increase the age of compulsory schooling in Iraq to at least age 15, the minimum age for work.	2009 – 2020
Enforcement	Ensure that children under age 18 are not recruited or used by armed groups affiliated with the Popular Mobilization Forces and that those that recruit and use children criminally accountable.	2016 – 2020
	Publish labor law enforcement information, such as the funding of the labor inspectorate, number of inspectors, inspections, and violations.	2011 – 2020
	Authorize the labor inspectorate to assess penalties.	2017 – 2020
	Ensure that routine labor inspections are carried out in the Kurdistan Region of Iraq.	2019 – 2020
	Ensure that labor inspectors and criminal investigators receive training, including refresher courses, on child labor and that they have sufficient resources to carry out their duties.	2016 – 2020
	Increase the number of labor inspectors to meet the ILO's technical advice and ensure adequate funding to enforce legal protections against child labor, including its worst forms.	2011 – 2020
	Publish information on criminal law enforcement on the worst forms of child labor in Iraq and the Iraqi Kurdistan Region.	2013 – 2020

Area	Suggested Action	Year(s) Suggested
Enforcement	Ensure that children are not arrested, detained, tortured, or denied services on the basis of their or their family members' perceived ties to ISIS.	2015 – 2020
	Ensure that allegations of sexual exploitation and trafficking of girls in IDP camps by government officials are investigated and those responsible are held criminally liable.	2019 – 2020
Coordination	Ensure that all coordinating bodies meet and are able to carry out their intended mandates.	2017 – 2020
Government Policies	Implement the Child Protection Policy in Iraq, and adopt a child labor policy in the Iraqi Kurdistan Region for other worst forms of child labor present in Iraq, including forced begging and commercial sexual exploitation.	2018 – 2020
Social Programs	Implement programs to ensure that children are discouraged from enlisting in armed groups and receiving military training.	2015 – 2020
	Ensure that universal access to education is consistent with international standards, including for refugee and internally displaced children, and that programs address barriers to education, including the lack of teachers, the destruction and lack of local schools, costs of transportation and school supplies, lack of infrastructure, especially during school closures. Ensure that the lack of identification documents does not hinder access to education, including for IDPs and refugees, children with suspected ties to ISIS, and children of “informal” marriages.	2013 – 2020
	Implement programs to address child labor in relevant sectors in Iraq, such as the provision of services to children in commercial sexual exploitation, to demobilize and reintegrate children engaged in armed groups, and to provide informal education programs and shelters for human trafficking victims.	2009 – 2020

In 2020, Jamaica made moderate advancement in efforts to eliminate the worst forms of child labor. The government launched a national referral mechanism for child trafficking victims, and significantly increased the budget for the Program for Advancement through Health and Education from $70.7 million in 2019 to $100 million, an expansion that was supplemented with another $6.7 million after the onset of the COVID-19 pandemic. It also implemented the Child Labor Risk Identification Model, a preventative tool that identifies geographical areas and sectors with the highest probability of child labor. However, children in Jamaica are subjected to the worst forms of child labor, including in commercial sexual exploitation, sometimes as a result of human trafficking, and use in illicit activities. Children also engage in dangerous tasks in agriculture and street work. Although the government has laws prohibiting the use of children in some illicit activities, it does not provide higher penalties for using, procuring, or offering children for the production and distribution of drugs than penalties imposed for these same crimes when the victims are adults.

I. PREVALENCE AND SECTORAL DISTRIBUTION OF CHILD LABOR

Children in Jamaica are subjected to the worst forms of child labor, including in commercial sexual exploitation, sometimes as a result of human trafficking, and use in illicit activities. (1,2) Children also engage in dangerous tasks in agriculture and street work. (3) Table 1 provides key indicators on children's work and education in Jamaica. Data on some of these indicators are not available from the sources used in this report.

Table 1. Statistics on Children's Work and Education

Children	Age	Percent
Working (% and population)	5 to 14	6.2 (30,111)
Attending School (%)	5 to 14	98.9
Combining Work and School (%)	7 to 14	7.2
Primary Completion Rate (%)		Unavailable

Primary completion rate was unavailable from UNESCO Institute for Statistics, 2021. (4)

Jamaica

MODERATE ADVANCEMENT

Jamaica is a destination and source country for commercial sexual exploitation of children, particularly in or near the tourist attractions of Negril, Montego Bay, and certain urban areas of Kingston. (5) Jamaican children are trafficked for commercial sexual exploitation and forced labor to countries including the United States, the United Kingdom, and Canada. (17) Sources indicate that children, sometimes at the behest of parents or criminal leaders referred to as “dons,” are forced into commercial sexual exploitation. (6) Young girls, immigrant children, LGBTQI+ youth, children from poor families, and children from rural areas are particularly vulnerable to human trafficking and child sexual exploitation. (1,14)

Children also continue to be recruited by criminal organizations to engage in illicit activities, such as gang violence, drug and gun smuggling, and financial fraud, including lottery scamming. (1,6,14,16,20) Some child domestic workers are subjected to domestic servitude, and some children are subjected to forced begging. Many children are reported missing in Jamaica, some of whom may be subjected to forced labor. (1,14,21)

The Statistical Institute of Jamaica and the ILO released the results of the Jamaica National Youth Activity Survey, which estimated that 37,965 children between ages 5 to 17 are engaged in child labor in Jamaica, with 48.9 percent engaged in hazardous work. Children are engaged in hazardous work primarily in the domestic work sector, in agriculture and fishing, in the wholesale and retail sectors, and in construction. (22) Children in rural areas are more likely to work than their urban counterparts; they are also more likely to work more hours and to engage in hazardous work. (3,22)

Although education in Jamaica is free, compulsory, and universal through secondary school, the cost for transportation, food, books, and uniforms creates barriers to education for some children. (6,23,24) School violence is common and, as a result, may prevent access to education. (5)

II. LEGAL FRAMEWORK FOR CHILD LABOR

Jamaica has ratified all key international conventions concerning child labor (Table 3).

Table 3. Ratification of International Conventions on Child Labor

Convention	Ratification
 ILO C. 138, Minimum Age	✓
ILO C. 182, Worst Forms of Child Labor	✓
 UN CRC	✓
UN CRC Optional Protocol on Armed Conflict	✓
UN CRC Optional Protocol on the Sale of Children, Child Prostitution and Child Pornography	✓
 Palermo Protocol on Trafficking in Persons	✓

The government has established laws and regulations related to child labor (Table 4). However, gaps exist in Jamaica’s legal framework to adequately protect children from the worst forms of child labor, including the prohibition of using children for the production and distribution of drugs.

Table 4. Laws and Regulations on Child Labor

Standard	Meets International Standards	Age	Legislation
Minimum Age for Work	Yes	15	Article 34(1) of the Child Care and Protection Act (25)
Minimum Age for Hazardous Work	Yes	18	Article 34(3) of the Child Care and Protection Act (25)

Standard	Meets International Standards	Age	Legislation
Identification of Hazardous Occupations or Activities Prohibited for Children	Yes		Articles 34(3)(b) and 41 of the Child Care and Protection Act of 2004; Section 55 of the Factories Act: Docks (Safety, Health and Welfare) Regulations; Section 49(2) of the Factories Act: Building Operations and Works of Engineering Construction Regulations; Section 18 of the Mining Act (25-28)
Prohibition of Forced Labor	Yes		Section 4 of the Trafficking in Persons (Prevention, Suppression and Punishment) Act (29)
Prohibition of Child Trafficking	Yes		Section 10 of the Child Care and Protection Act; Section 4 of the Trafficking in Persons (Prevention, Suppression and Punishment) Act (25,29)
Prohibition of Commercial Sexual Exploitation of Children	Yes		Section 4 of the Trafficking in Persons (Prevention, Suppression and Punishment) Act; Sections 20 and 40 of the Sexual Offences Act; Sections 3–5 of the Child Pornography (Prevention) Act (29-31)
Prohibition of Using Children in Illicit Activities	Yes		Section 4 of the Criminal Justice (Suppression of Criminal Organizations) Act (32)
Minimum Age for Voluntary State Military Recruitment	Yes	18	Section 18(2) of the Defence Act (33)
Prohibition of Compulsory Recruitment of Children by (State) Military	N/A*
Prohibition of Military Recruitment by Non-state Armed Groups	No
Compulsory Education Age	Yes	16	Section 28 of the Child Care and Protection Act (25)
Free Public Education	Yes		Section 13(k) of the Jamaican Charter of Fundamental Rights and Freedoms (34)

* No conscription (29)

Jamaican laws do not specifically include higher penalties for perpetrators who use, procure, or offer a child for the production and distribution of drugs. (25,35) The minimum age for work is also lower than the compulsory education age, which may encourage children to leave school before the completion of schooling. In addition, Jamaican law does not criminally prohibit military recruitment of children under age 18 by non-state armed groups.

The Occupational Safety and Health Bill was expected to be passed by parliament during the reporting year, but it still has not been passed. Regulations associated with the bill, if passed, specify light work activities are permitted for children ages 13 and 14. (6,14,36)

III. ENFORCEMENT OF LAWS ON CHILD LABOR

The government has established institutional mechanisms for the enforcement of laws and regulations on child labor (Table 5). However, gaps exist within the authority of enforcement agencies that may hinder adequate enforcement of their child labor laws.

Table 5. Agencies Responsible for Child Labor Law Enforcement

Organization/Agency	Role
Ministry of Labor and Social Security (MLSS)	Enforces and administers child labor laws through the labor inspectorate, in both the formal and informal sectors of the economy. The Child Labor Unit within MLSS coordinates and shares information with other agencies to address child labor issues. (8)
Child Protection and Family Services Agency (CPFSA)	Monitors and investigates suspected child labor violations and oversees efforts to address child labor. Housed within the Ministry of Education, Youth and Information. (6,36) Receives complaints of child abuse, child labor, child trafficking, and commercial sexual exploitation of children through a hotline. Refers suspected cases of child abuse to law enforcement. (6,8) Approximately 2,000 calls were received through the hotline, of which 314 were child labor matters that were referred from the National Children's Registry to the Investigation Services Unit. (38)

MODERATE ADVANCEMENT

Organization/Agency	Role
Office of the Children's Advocate	Independently investigates reports of child abuse; partners with other agencies, including CPFSA and the police, to promote protection of children and address child labor. (8)
Jamaica Constabulary Force	Enforces criminal laws, including those related to the worst forms of child labor. Investigates, through the Anti-Trafficking in Persons Unit, cases of child trafficking and commercial sexual exploitation. (8) Through the Center for the Investigation of Sexual Offenses and Child Abuse, investigates cases of child and sexual offenses, and educates the public about sexual offenses against children. (6)
Office of the Director of Public Prosecutions	Prosecutes cases involving the worst forms of child labor. Protects and promotes human rights for all citizens. (39)
Office of the National Rapporteur on Trafficking in Persons	Monitors government efforts to protect human trafficking victims, prosecute cases, and implement preventative measures. (14)
Ministry of Justice Victim Services Division	Provides emotional support, crisis management, and special intervention projects for children and adults. (14) Assists child crime victims through the Children in Court Program, which offers victims access to social workers and counselors. (40)
Counter Terrorism & Organized Crime Investigation Branch, Anti-Trafficking in Persons Unit	Responsible for special investigations of human trafficking, including child trafficking and crimes such as forced child labor, commercial sexual exploitation, and the use of children in illicit activities in which trafficking is involved. (8)

Labor Law Enforcement

In 2020, labor law enforcement agencies in Jamaica took actions to combat child labor (Table 6). However, gaps exist within the authority of the Ministry of Labor and Social Security (MLSS) that may hinder adequate labor law enforcement, including penalty assessment authorization.

Table 6. Labor Law Enforcement Efforts Related to Child Labor

Overview of Labor Law Enforcement	2019	2020
Labor Inspectorate Funding	$3,000,000 (41)	$3,144,000 (5)

Refresher Courses Provided	Yes (41)	Yes (5)
Number of Labor Inspections Conducted	Unknown (8)	2,669 (5)
Number Conducted at Worksite	Unknown (8)	1,821 (5)
Number of Child Labor Violations Found	0 (41)	6 (38)
Number of Child Labor Violations for Which Penalties Were Imposed	Unknown (8)	Unknown (5)
Number of Child Labor Penalties Imposed that Were Collected	Unknown (8)	Unknown (5)
Routine Inspections Conducted	Unknown (8)	Yes (5)
Routine Inspections Targeted	Unknown (8)	Yes (5)
Unannounced Inspections Permitted	Yes (8)	Yes (42)
Unannounced Inspections Conducted	Unknown (8)	Yes (5)
Complaint Mechanism Exists	Yes (8)	Yes (5)
Reciprocal Referral Mechanism Exists Between Labor Authorities and Social Services	Yes (8)	Yes (5)

In 2020, 168 labor inspectors received refresher training on how to identify child labor. (38) There were six cases of child labor violations found as a result of labor inspections. Two involved two 17-year-olds who were not aware they were not allowed to work at a construction site. The child victims in the remaining four cases were provided medical and psychological care and sent to shelters or returned home to their parents. (38)

Inspectors are not allowed to enter and inspect private residences, do not have authority to assess penalties, and are not required to take refresher training unless an administrative order or policy directive is issued. (5) Social workers are allowed to enter private residences and are trained to watch for indicators of child labor. (38)

The Government of Jamaica took steps in 2020 to address the country's child labor issues. In partnership with USDOS, Jamaica developed and released a national referral mechanism for child trafficking victims as an objective under the Child Protection Compact. (2) Furthermore, research shows that the MLSS significantly increased the budget for its Program for Advancement through Health and Education from $70.7 million in 2019 to $100 million, an expansion that was supplemented with another $6.7 million after the advent of the pandemic. (5,8,23) However, the budget for anti-trafficking programming, which includes child labor programs in many respects, was reduced during the reporting period. All ministries saw budget cuts, with the anti-trafficking budget reduced by $26,000 during the second quarter. (38)

Criminal Law Enforcement

In 2020, criminal law enforcement agencies in Jamaica took actions to combat child labor (Table 7). However, gaps exist within the operations of the criminal enforcement agencies that may hinder adequate criminal law enforcement, including lack of regular training for prosecutors and officials.

Table 7. Criminal Law Enforcement Efforts Related to Child Labor

Overview of Criminal Law Enforcement	2019	2020
Initial Training for New Criminal Investigators	Yes (41)	Yes (5)
Training on New Laws Related to the Worst Forms of Child Labor	N/A (8)	N/A (5)
Refresher Courses Provided	Yes (41)	Yes (5)
Number of Investigations	18 (41)	28 (5)
Number of Violations Found	4 (41)	8 (5)
Number of Prosecutions Initiated	4 (41)	2 (5)
Number of Convictions	5 (41)	1 (5)
Imposed Penalties for Violations Related to the Worst Forms of Child Labor	Yes (41)	Yes (5)
Reciprocal Referral Mechanism Exists Between Criminal Authorities and Social Services	Yes (8)	Yes (5)

During the reporting period, line prosecutors and judiciary received training sessions pursuant to the U.S.-Jamaica Child Protection Compact. While the amount of training provided continues to increase year after year, the training program remains ad hoc. (2)

In 2020, the Anti-Trafficking in Persons Unit and Center for Investigation of Sexual Offenses and Child Abuse found eight violations of laws related to the worst forms of child labor. All of the victims had been subjected to commercial sexual exploitation. Fifteen cases are still under investigation. (38)

IV. COORDINATION OF GOVERNMENT EFFORTS ON CHILD LABOR

The government has established mechanisms to coordinate its efforts to address child labor (Table 8). However, gaps exist that hinder the effective coordination of efforts to address child labor, including clarity of institutional mandates.

Table 8. Key Mechanisms to Coordinate Government Efforts on Child Labor

Coordinating Body	Role & Description
MLSS Program for the Elimination of Child Labor	Coordinates the government's child labor policies and programs and identifies gaps in legislation across ministries. Collaborates with other ministries and agencies, such as the Ministry of Education, Youth, and Information, CPFSA, the Ministry of Justice's National Task Force Against Trafficking in Persons (NATFATIP), and the Ministry of National Security, to address gaps in legislation. (2) During the reporting period, MLSS partnered with NATFATIP to host various online public awareness campaigns on child labor and human trafficking. (2)

MODERATE ADVANCEMENT

Coordinating Body	Role & Description
NATFATIP	Facilitates information exchanges between government agencies and external stakeholders and creates momentum for counter-trafficking efforts. Led by the Ministry of National Security, includes ministries and agencies across the government. (8,41) Oversees implementation of the country's National Action Plan to Combat Human Trafficking. (9) Meets regularly with the Jamaica Constabulary Force, the Director of Public Prosecutions, and relevant ministries. (8,9) In 2020, appointed a new permanent secretary and formed a new library collection of books on trafficking in persons. (5,43) With the support of the U.S.-Jamaica Child Protection Compact, also developed a child trafficking screening toolkit, a set of screening tools to outline behavioral, situational, and health factors that indicate a child is being exploited. (2) Throughout 2020, sponsored and hosted various public awareness campaigns, including virtual public discussions on the worst forms of child labor with the Jamaica Constabulary Force and MLSS; radio discussion on child protection during the pandemic; social media discussion on how to safeguard children against human trafficking with CPFSA; annual essay competition for World Day Against Child Labor; and a video competition, focused on human trafficking for Children's Month. (2)
National Steering Committee on Child Labor	Provides leadership, shares information, and guides the development of policies and programs geared towards eliminating the worst forms of child labor. (38) Coordinates the government's design and implementation of activities and regulations to reduce child labor under the National Action Plan (NAP) to Eliminate Child Labor. In January 2020, reviewed and revised the NAP to Eliminate Child Labor in Jamaica (2019–2024). (44,45)

Although the Child Protection and Family Services Agency has assumed a coordinating function between various agencies charged with protecting children, the organization is not mandated or resourced to play this role. Accordingly, Jamaica lacks an effective agency to coordinate efforts to address the challenges posed by child labor, human trafficking, and other child-related issues. (14)

V. GOVERNMENT POLICIES ON CHILD LABOR

The government has established policies related to child labor (Table 9). However, policy gaps exist that hinder efforts to address child labor, including the fact that child labor prevention and elimination strategies are still not integrated into the Compulsory Education Policy.

Table 9. Key Policies Related to Child Labor

Policy	Description
National Action Plan to Combat Human Trafficking (2018–2021)	Identifies objectives, actions, and responsible agencies to combat trafficking in persons, including commercial sexual exploitation of children and forced child labor, through prevention, protection, and prosecution. (20) Approved an updated National Plan of Action to Combat Human Trafficking (2018–2021) in cabinet on March 28, 2019, which is intended to address all forms of trafficking in persons and all potential victims, including victims of sex trafficking and forced labor; foreign-born and domestic victims, and children and adults. (8) In 2020, to raise public awareness, hosted 3 webinars on human trafficking and child labor, with over 40 persons attending each; made public service announcements on Radio Jamaica and other stations; and hosted a social media video competition for children under age 13. Collaborated with VP Records to raise awareness on human trafficking by launching the “No Shadows After Dark” song and campaign. (38) Further hosted 3 webinars on modern slavery and child trafficking for over 50 immigration officers, and partnered with the Sir Arthur Lewis Institute for Social and Economic Studies (SALISES) to host 4 child trafficking prevention workshops for over 90 Deans of Discipline and 30 Education Officers with schools. In addition, engaged with SALISES to facilitate 7 virtual child trafficking prevention workshops to over 230 Health and Family Life Education Officers and teachers who were tasked with delivering the content of the Ministry's Child Trafficking Prevention curriculum in schools. (38)

In 2020, Jamaica became the first country in the Caribbean to implement the Child Labor Risk Identification (CLRISK) Model, a preventative tool developed by the ILO and the Economic Commission for Latin America and the Caribbean. The CLRISK Model will enable Jamaica to identify geographical areas and sectors with the highest probability of child labor and to implement measures to address child labor. (2,46)

In November 2019, the government established a National Plan of Action for an Integrated Response to Children and Violence (NPACV), which outlines a range of strategies and programs that will be implemented over 5 years across multiple stages in a child's life. The NPACV is implemented, monitored, and evaluated by an Inter-Sectoral Committee on Children and Violence. (5) However, child labor prevention and elimination strategies are still not integrated into the Compulsory Education Policy. (9,47)

VI. SOCIAL PROGRAMS TO ADDRESS CHILD LABOR

In 2020, the government funded and participated in programs that include the goal of eliminating or preventing child labor (Table 10). However, gaps exist in these social programs, including adequacy of programs to address the full scope of the problem.

Table 10. Key Social Programs to Address Child Labor

Program	Description
Program for Advancement through Health and Education (PATH)†	Government of Jamaica- and World Bank-funded conditional cash transfer program that helps reduce child labor by requiring participants to attend school at least 85 percent of the academic days in a month. (8,47,48) Approximately 65 percent of PATH participants are within the lowest socioeconomic quintile. (38) 214,999 children participated in PATH during the reporting period. (38)
Citizen Security and Justice Program†	Cooperative crime and violence prevention initiative undertaken by the Government of Jamaica, the Inter-American Development Bank, the Department of Foreign Affairs, Trade and Development of Canada, and the Department for International Development of the United Kingdom of Great Britain and Northern Ireland. Aimed to prevent gangs, criminals, and other actors from recruiting children. Provided services to 50 vulnerable communities in 8 different parishes. (14) Ended in March 2020. (5)
Trafficking in Persons Club in School Program†	Launched by NATFATIP in October 2019 and implemented by the Ministry of National Security, the program is designed to provide information, exposure, and knowledge to students and teachers regarding child trafficking to help protect them from becoming victims. (8) In 2020, hosted 3 virtual events on human trafficking and child labor, with over 40 members of the public attending each event. (38)
Regional Initiative Latin America and the Caribbean Free of Child Labor (2022-2025)	Developed as an inter-governmental cooperation platform made up of 30 countries, with active participation of employers' and workers' organizations. Seeks to declare Latin America and the Caribbean as the first developing region free of child labor by 2025. Drawing on the knowledge, experience, and accumulated capacity of key public and private actors, aims to address the persistence of child work. In October 2020, organized a virtual conference to discuss plans for 2022–2025, update its governance mechanisms, and work to improve participant ownership and social dialogue. (49)
U.S.-Jamaica Child Protection Compact Partnership (2018–2022)	Jointly developed 4-year plan partially funded by the U.S. Government to enhance the efforts of the Government of Jamaica to combat child trafficking. Finalized in 2018. Commits Jamaica to providing staff and resources to fulfill the project's objectives. (1) Formally launched in 2019 with implementing partners Warnath, Winrock, IOM, and Encompass, and began activities and training across the island. (8) In 2020, as part of this plan, launched a Trafficking in Persons Resource Library. (50) Moreover, U.S. and Jamaica representatives met to define next steps to strengthen capacity to identify more child trafficking victims and to better coordinate comprehensive protective services. (51)

‡ The government had other social programs that may have included the goal of eliminating or preventing child labor. (52-55)

Although Jamaica funds education-related social programs, current resources are insufficient, and social programs do not fully address the scope and magnitude of the problem, including the worst forms of child labor. (14) Research found no evidence of programs targeting children working in agriculture, street work, commercial sexual exploitation, and other worst forms of child labor.

VII. SUGGESTED GOVERNMENT ACTIONS TO ELIMINATE CHILD LABOR

Based on the reporting above, suggested actions are identified that would advance the elimination of child labor in Jamaica (Table 11).

Table 11. Suggested Government Actions to Eliminate Child Labor

Area	Suggested Action	Year(s) Suggested
Legal Framework	Ensure that legislation includes higher penalties for the use of children for the production and distribution of drugs.	2009 – 2020
	Raise the minimum age for work to align with the compulsory education age of 16.	2018 – 2020
	Pass legislation that will determine the specific light work activities and hours permissible for children ages 13 and 14 to facilitate enforcement.	2014 – 2020
	Ensure that the law criminally prohibits the recruitment of children under age 18 by non-state armed groups.	2016 – 2020

MODERATE ADVANCEMENT

Area	Suggested Action	Year(s) Suggested
Enforcement	Authorize the labor inspectorate to assess penalties.	2014 – 2020
	Ensure that yearly refresher training is mandatory for all labor inspectors.	2018 – 2020
	Publish information on the number of child labor violations for which penalties were imposed and collected.	2018 – 2020
	Provide training for prosecutors on a yearly or regular basis, as training is currently provided on an ad hoc basis.	2020
Coordination	Ensure that the Child Protection and Family Services Agency and any other relevant agency or coordinating body has the authority and resources necessary to effectively coordinate between child labor, human trafficking, and other child-related issues.	2018 – 2020
Government Policies	Integrate child labor elimination and prevention strategies into the Compulsory Education Policy.	2014 – 2020
Social Programs	Ensure that school costs, such as uniforms, books, food, and transportation, do not diminish access to free public education.	2017 – 2020
	Ensure that social programs adequately address child labor, including the worst forms of child labor, and expand programs designed to assist child laborers involved in street work, commercial sexual exploitation, agricultural work, and other worst forms of child labor.	2013 – 2020
	Implement a program to report, identify, and find missing children who may have been forced into child labor.	2020

In 2020, Jordan made moderate advancement in efforts to eliminate the worst forms of child labor. In 2020, for the first time, the Ministry of Labor conducted 850 targeted child labor inspections in the agricultural sector throughout the country. It also developed a new website and mobile phone application that, once operational, will allow the public to report cases of child labor, which will then be logged into the National Child Labor Database. In addition, the Minister of Labor launched the Program to End the Worst Forms of Child Labor in Zarqa and Amman. However, children in Jordan are subjected to the worst forms of child labor, including in forced begging and commercial sexual exploitation, each sometimes as a result of human trafficking. Children also perform dangerous tasks in agriculture. Insufficient resources hampered the Ministry of Labor’s capacity to ensure compliance with child labor laws in the agricultural sector. Moreover, and despite government efforts, Syrian children still face barriers to accessing education due to socioeconomic pressures, bullying, and the costs associated with transportation and supplies, among other issues. In addition, research was unable to determine whether criminal law enforcement agencies in Jordan conducted investigations on cases related to the worst forms of child labor despite evidence of these worst forms of child labor.

I. PREVALENCE AND SECTORAL DISTRIBUTION OF CHILD LABOR

Children in Jordan are subjected to the worst forms of child labor, including in forced begging and commercial sexual exploitation, each sometimes as a result of human trafficking. (1-8) Children also perform dangerous tasks in agriculture. (9,10) Based on the 2016 National Child Labor Survey, approximately 70,000 children ages 5 to 17 are engaged in child labor, most commonly in agriculture and retail trade. Approximately 80 percent of child laborers are Jordanian and about 15 percent are Syrian. (9) Boys constitute nearly 90 percent of those involved in child labor. (9) Table 1 provides key indicators on children’s work and education in Jordan.

Table 1. Statistics on Children’s Work and Education

Children	Age	Percent
Working (% and population)	5 to 14	1.0 (33,182)
Attending School (%)	5 to 14	94.8
Combining Work and School (%)	7 to 14	1.0
Primary Completion Rate (%)		81.7

Source for primary completion rate: Data from 2019, published by UNESCO Institute for Statistics, 2021. (11)

Source for all other data: International Labor Organization’s analysis of statistics from National Child Labour Survey (SIMPOC), 2016. (12)

Based on a review of available information, Table 2 provides an overview of children’s work by sector and activity.

Table 2. Overview of Children’s Work by Sector and Activity

Sector/Industry	Activity
Agriculture	Farming, including weeding, planting, and harvesting tomatoes and olives (9,10,13-18)
Industry	Mining† and quarrying† (9)
	Construction,† including building and painting homes (9,10,18-20)
	Manufacturing, activities unknown (9,21)

Services	Maintenance and repair of motor vehicles† (9,13,18,20,21)
	Attending to donkeys, camels, and horses to transport tourists (22)
	Street work,† including selling items, washing cars, and begging (13,19-21,23)
	Scavenging scrap metal and waste (24,25)
	Domestic work† (13,21)
	Food services, including working in restaurants and bakeries (9,13,19,21)
	Hotel services† (9,21)
	Working in retail, including cleaning shops (9,15,26)
Categorical Worst Forms of Child Labor‡	Use in illicit activities, including drug trafficking (27,28)
	Forced begging, sometimes as a result of human trafficking (1,3,4,23)
	Commercial sexual exploitation, sometimes as a result of human trafficking (5-8)

† Determined by national law or regulation as hazardous and, as such, relevant to Article 3(d) of ILO C. 182.

‡ Child labor understood as the worst forms of child labor per se under Article 3(a)–(c) of ILO C. 182.

In 2020, the Covid-19 pandemic created additional barriers to education in Jordan. (28) While the government created distance-learning tools for students to continue their education from home, such as an online education portal and educational television channels, a lack of access to Internet and devices prevented many students from taking advantage of these resources during school shutdowns. (28) In addition, decreases in income caused some parents to move their children from private schools to public schools. The Ministry of Education reported 120,000 new enrollments in 2020, putting further strain on a taxed system. (28)

Syrian refugee children also face barriers to education in Jordan. While Syrian children are granted access to Jordanian public schools, UNICEF estimates more than 50,000 Syrian refugee children were out of school as of December 2020. (29) UNICEF also notes that Syrian refugee children drop out of school at a higher rate than Jordanian children do. (29) These children face barriers to education, including bullying and harassment, and the costs of transportation, uniforms, and school materials. In addition, they are unprepared for their appropriate grade level because of interruptions in their early years of schooling. (10,30,31) Sources indicate that Syrian refugee children are sometimes forced to work alongside their families in agriculture and service industries, as well as being forced to peddle goods and beg, rather than attending school. (4,18)

In previous years, Jordan waived a requirement for documentation to expand access to education for Syrian children. However, the government opted not to extend the waiver for the 2019–2020 academic year despite some refugee families not having valid documentation. (32,33) The government continued to address the overcrowding of classrooms by providing school attendance in double-shift schools, while schools were open. (2,34,35) At these double-shift schools, Jordanian children attend in the morning and Syrian children attend in the afternoon. (3,36) However, Jordanian and Syrian children attending double-shift schools are vulnerable to child labor because the school hours are considerably shorter, and fewer school hours leave more time for work. (37)

Non-Syrian refugees in Jordan, primarily from Iraq, Yemen, Sudan, and Somalia, also face barriers to education due to the lack of documentation. (28)

II. LEGAL FRAMEWORK FOR CHILD LABOR

Jordan has ratified all key international conventions concerning child labor (Table 3).

Table 3. Ratification of International Conventions on Child Labor

Convention	Ratification
 ILO C. 138, Minimum Age	✓
ILO C. 182, Worst Forms of Child Labor	✓
 UN CRC	✓
UN CRC Optional Protocol on Armed Conflict	✓
UN CRC Optional Protocol on the Sale of Children, Child Prostitution and Child Pornography	✓
 Palermo Protocol on Trafficking in Persons	✓

The government has established laws and regulations related to child labor (Table 4). However, gaps exist in Jordan's legal framework to adequately protect children from the worst forms of child labor.

Table 4. Laws and Regulations on Child Labor

Standard	Meets International Standards	Age	Legislation
Minimum Age for Work	Yes	16	Article 73 of the Labor Code (38)
Minimum Age for Hazardous Work	Yes	18	Article 74 of the Labor Code; Article 2 of the Ministerial Order of 2011 (38,39)
Identification of Hazardous Occupations or Activities Prohibited for Children	Yes		Article 2 of the Ministerial Order of 2011 (39)
Prohibition of Forced Labor	No		Articles 3(a)-(b) of the Law on the Prevention of Human Trafficking (40)
Prohibition of Child Trafficking	Yes		Articles 3(a), 8-11 of the Law on the Prevention of Human Trafficking (40)
Prohibition of Commercial Sexual Exploitation of Children	Yes		Articles 298–299, 306, 310–311, 315, and 319 of the Penal Code; Articles 3(a)-(b) of the Law on the Prevention of Human Trafficking (40,41)
Prohibition of Using Children in Illicit Activities	Yes		Article 8 of the Narcotic Drugs and Psychotropic Substances Act (42)
Minimum Age for Voluntary State Military Recruitment	N/A*
Prohibition of Compulsory Recruitment of Children by (State) Military	Yes		Article 3(a) of the National Service Act (43)
Prohibition of Military Recruitment by Non-state Armed Groups	No
Compulsory Education Age	Yes	16	Articles 7(a.2) and 10(b) of the Education Act (44)
Free Public Education	Yes		Article 10(a) of the Education Act; Article 20 of the Constitution (44,45)

* No volunteers are accepted to join the armed forces. (46,47)

Jordan's Law on the Prevention of Human Trafficking criminalizes trafficking for the purposes of forced labor; however, the law does not criminally prohibit forced labor as its own offense when the other elements of human trafficking are not present. (40)

III. ENFORCEMENT OF LAWS ON CHILD LABOR

The government has established institutional mechanisms for the enforcement of laws and regulations on child labor (Table 5). However, gaps exist within the operations of enforcement agencies that may hinder adequate enforcement of their child labor laws.

MODERATE ADVANCEMENT

Table 5. Agencies Responsible for Child Labor Law Enforcement

Organization/Agency	Role
Ministry of Labor (MOL), Directorate of Labor Affairs and Inspection	Enforces labor laws, including those on child labor. Maintains a hotline, website, and mobile app to receive labor-related complaints, including complaints of child labor. (24,28) Identifies cases of child labor through worksite inspections and refers cases to the relevant services. Registers instances of child labor in a National Child Labor Database, which allows ministries to monitor and track children as they are identified and referred to services. (48) The hotline has operators during office hours, although operators who speak foreign languages were not always available. The hotline has an automated message recording after 3 p.m. (46,49) The phone number is difficult to locate and, based on available information, operators rarely respond to voicemails left after working hours. (46,49) In 2020, MOL developed a new website and mobile app that allows the public to report cases of child labor, which are then logged in the National Child Labor Database. However, the app had not launched by the end of the reporting period. (28)
MOL Child Labor Unit	Coordinates government efforts to campaign against child labor, conducts training, and raises awareness about child labor issues. (3) Manages the Child Labor Monitoring System, a case management tool that helps coordinate efforts by relevant government agencies and civil society organizations to ensure that children are removed from child labor and provided with critical social and educational services. (2)
Public Security Directorate, Criminal Investigation Unit	Investigates and prosecutes violations of the Penal Code, including allegations of the worst forms of child labor. Operates a section to combat human trafficking. (24)
Joint Anti-Trafficking Unit of MOL and the Public Security Directorate	Investigates cases of human trafficking and forced labor, refers cases for prosecution, and coordinates with foreign embassies to identify victims of human trafficking and to repatriate workers. (2)

Labor Law Enforcement

In 2020, labor law enforcement agencies in Jordan took actions to combat child labor (Table 6). However, gaps exist within the operations of the Ministry of Labor (MOL) that may hinder adequate labor law enforcement, including an insufficient number of inspectors.

Table 6. Labor Law Enforcement Efforts Related to Child Labor

Overview of Labor Law Enforcement	2019	2020

Number of Labor Inspections Conducted	63,653 (2)	90,723 (18)
Number Conducted at Worksite	63,653 (2)	5,402 (28)
Number of Child Labor Violations Found	467 (2)	503 (18)
Number of Child Labor Violations for Which Penalties Were Imposed	250 (2)	79 (18)
Number of Child Labor Penalties Imposed that Were Collected	Unknown (2)	Unknown
Routine Inspections Conducted	Yes (2)	Yes (18)
Routine Inspections Targeted	Yes (2)	Yes (18)
Unannounced Inspections Permitted	Yes (2)	Yes (18)
Unannounced Inspections Conducted	Yes (2)	Yes (28)
Complaint Mechanism Exists	Yes (2)	Yes (2)
Reciprocal Referral Mechanism Exists Between Labor Authorities and Social Services	Yes (2)	Yes (2)

When a labor inspector identifies a child laborer, the inspector issues a warning and may issue a fine, and asks the employer to send the child home while the inspector is still present. (37) The inspector also enters the child's information into the child labor database. (28) A warning requires the employer to sign a pledge declaring that they will cease employing children. Without the pledge, MOL can close the business. (3) The information about the child is then shared with the Ministry of Social Development (MOSD), which contacts the family to identify the appropriate social services needed. If a child labor violation has been identified, the labor inspector conducts unannounced follow-up inspections at the worksite to ensure compliance. (37) MOL and MOSD may also conduct a joint visit. (28) Jordanian children identified during labor inspections are referred to the Child Labor Unit of MOSD, and those suspected of being trafficked are referred to the Counter Trafficking Unit for criminal investigation. (28,37,52)

In 2020, MOL conducted 90,723 inspections, 11,952 of which focused on child labor. (18) In December 2020, for the first time, MOL conducted 850 targeted child labor inspections in the agricultural sector throughout the country. (28) However, the high number of inspections per inspector raises concerns that inspectors may not have the time to adequately identify and remediate labor law violations. In addition, the current number of labor inspectors is likely insufficient for the size of Jordan's workforce, which includes more than 2.295 million workers. (28,53) According to the ILO's technical advice of a ratio approaching 1 inspector for every 15,000 workers in developing economies, Jordan would employ about 153 inspectors. (54)

The government did not provide information on the number of child labor penalties that were collected for inclusion in this report.

Criminal Law Enforcement

In 2020, criminal law enforcement agencies in Jordan took actions to combat child labor (Table 7). However, gaps exist within the operations of criminal enforcement agencies that may hinder adequate criminal law enforcement, including a lack of investigations into the worst forms of child labor.

Table 7. Criminal Law Enforcement Efforts Related to Child Labor

Overview of Criminal Law Enforcement	2019	2020
Initial Training for New Criminal Investigators	Yes (55)	Yes (28)
Training on New Laws Related to the Worst Forms of Child Labor	N/A	N/A
Refresher Courses Provided	Yes (55)	Yes (28)
Number of Investigations	0 (55)	Unknown
Number of Violations Found	0 (55)	Unknown
Number of Prosecutions Initiated	0 (55)	Unknown
Number of Convictions	0 (55)	Unknown
Imposed Penalties for Violations Related to the Worst Forms of Child Labor	No (55)	Unknown (28)
Reciprocal Referral Mechanism Exists Between Criminal Authorities and Social Services	Yes (3)	Yes (28)

In 2020, the Counter Trafficking Unit (CTU) worked with civil society organizations and NGOs to conduct 10 human trafficking workshops. CTU also held 31 lectures and 6 seminars for law enforcement, judges, public prosecutors, and relevant ministries to raise awareness on human trafficking indicators. (18) In addition, the Public Security Directorate conducted 18 awareness-raising sessions on trafficking of children and 22 sessions on child street begging and child trafficking. (28)

During the reporting period, CTU investigated 23 human trafficking cases involving 40 offenders and 25 victims. Of the victims identified, one was a child. (18) However, research was unable to determine whether criminal law enforcement agencies in Jordan conducted investigations on cases related to the worst forms of child labor, including forced begging or commercial sexual exploitation of children, despite evidence of these worst forms of child labor. (3,5,7,18)

In October 2020, MOSD along with the Public Security Directorate launched an anti-vagrancy campaign to combat the increasing problem of begging, including by children. (23) As of November 2020, MOSD reported 1,248 children had been referred to social services as part of the enforcement effort. (56) In addition, prosecutions for 21 individual traffickers resulted from the campaign. (57)

MODERATE ADVANCEMENT

IV. COORDINATION OF GOVERNMENT EFFORTS ON CHILD LABOR

The government has established mechanisms to coordinate its efforts to address child labor (Table 8). However, gaps exist that hinder the effective coordination of efforts to address child labor, including efforts to address all forms of child labor.

Table 8. Key Mechanisms to Coordinate Government Efforts on Child Labor

Coordinating Body	Role & Description
National Committee on Child Labor	Formulates new policies, amends legislation as necessary, and oversees the implementation of child labor policies, including the National Framework to Combat Child Labor. Led by MOL, members include three other ministries, plus international and civil society organizations. (58) The National Committee on Child Labor did not meet during the reporting period and has been inactive for several years. (57)
National Committee to Combat Trafficking (NCCT)	Coordinates government efforts to combat human trafficking, and chaired by the Ministry of Justice. Other members include representatives from 10 state agencies, including the Counter Trafficking Unit (CTU), which is in charge of human trafficking investigations. (59) CTU is operated jointly by the Public Security Directorate and MOL. (46) NCCT met in September 2020 and meets on an ad hoc basis. (18)

In 2020, MOL, with input from UNICEF, developed standard operating procedures defining the roles of MOL, the Ministry of Education, MOSD, and the Juvenile Police Department in combating child labor. (28) In addition, MOL, MOSD, and the Greater Amman Municipality signed an agreement to collaborate on eliminating child labor in Amman's Central Market. (28)

Although Jordan has a National Committee for the Prevention of Human Trafficking to coordinate efforts to address trafficking in persons, it does not have coordinating mechanisms to address other forms of child labor, including street and farm work. (60)

V. GOVERNMENT POLICIES ON CHILD LABOR

The government has established policies related to child labor (Table 9). However, policy gaps exist that hinder efforts to address child labor, including implementation.

Table 9. Key Policies Related to Child Labor

Policy	Description
National Framework to Combat Child Labor	Outlines the roles and responsibilities of key government agencies, including the ministries of Education, Labor, and Social Development; NGOs; and other stakeholders involved in identifying and responding to cases of child labor. Based on the Framework, MOL inspectors monitor child labor and refer cases to the Ministry of Social Development (MOSD) and the Ministry of Education for the provision of services. (61) In 2020, MOSD and Juvenile Police worked on developing standard operating procedures in line with the National Framework. (62)
Jordan Response Plan for the Syria Crisis (2018–2022)	Integrates a refugee-oriented humanitarian response with a strategic plan for increasing the resilience of local communities. The plan has a particular focus on economic strengthening, education, and social protection. (63) In 2020, the government continued to offer double-shifted schools for Syrian refugee children and updated the response plan, extending it to 2022. (18,28)
Plan of Action to Eliminate Child Labor in Tourism in Petra	Employs counselors to respond to children at risk of truancy, raise children's awareness of the hazards of child labor and the significance of education, incorporate child labor prevention strategies into mainstream programs for legally employed children age 16 and older, and inform students about high-quality employment in the tourism sector. (64) The government has yet to implement the plan since passing it in 2015.

VI. SOCIAL PROGRAMS TO ADDRESS CHILD LABOR

In 2020, the government funded and participated in programs that include the goal of eliminating or preventing child labor (Table 10). However, gaps exist in these social programs, including the adequacy of services to address child labor in all sectors.

Table 10. Key Social Programs to Address Child Labor

Program	Description
MOSD Child Labor Unit‡	Provides support to children engaged in child labor, returns them to school, and provides services to their families; provides vocational training for youth; organizes training on child labor for families; and maintains the website of the National Child Labor Database. (65) Provides services to children engaged in child begging through centers in Madaba and Delail (Zarqa). (49) Active in 2020. (28)
National Aid Fund†	Overseen by MOSD, the Fund pays families through a conditional cash transfer program to withdraw their child from the labor market and re-enroll them in school. (24) In 2020, the government continued expanding the number of households receiving aid. (66)
Non-Formal Education Centers	Funded by USAID and UNICEF, and operated by the Ministry of Education and local NGO Questscope, these 40 centers throughout the country seek to bring school dropouts, including those engaged in or at risk of child labor, back into the educational system. Children attend classes 3 hours a day in a flexible learning environment, with class sizes of around 20 students and specially trained teachers. (37,67) Targets children age 13 and older who have been out of school for 3 years and are ineligible to enroll in public schools. (68) Upon completion of the curriculum, students receive a certificate indicating the equivalency of grade 10 education. (67) Active in 2020. (68)
Program to End the Worst Forms of Child Labor in Zarqa and Amman*	Funded by UNICEF, implemented by the Rowad al Khair Society and with the participation of MOL, this program aims to identify 400 of the most vulnerable children in Zarqa and Amman to receive psychosocial support, access to education, and other training to reduce the number of children subjected to the worst forms of child labor. Launched in 2020. (69)
Measurement, Awareness-Raising, and Policy Engagement Project on Child Labor and Forced Labor (MAPI6)	USDOL-funded global project implemented by the ILO to conduct research and develop new survey methodologies, improve awareness, strengthen policies and government capacity, and promote partnerships to combat child labor and forced labor. (70) In Jordan, the project strengthens the government's ability to address child labor, especially in communities most affected by the Syrian refugee crisis, including updating relevant policies and programs. The project also carries out limited research on the nature of child labor in agriculture. On December 14, 2020, a regional conference was held with attendees from Egypt, Jordan, Lebanon, Morocco, Syria, and others to exchange good practices on combating child labor in the Middle East and North Africa. (71) Additional information is available on the USDOL website .

* Program was launched during the reporting period.

† Program is funded by the Government of Jordan.

‡ The government had other social programs that may have included the goal of eliminating or preventing child labor. (24,28,72)

Although Jordan has programs that target child labor, the scope of these programs does not fully address the extent of the problem, including the worst forms of child labor in agriculture, construction, and street vending.

VII. SUGGESTED GOVERNMENT ACTIONS TO ELIMINATE CHILD LABOR

Based on the reporting above, suggested actions are identified that would advance the elimination of child labor in Jordan (Table 11).

Table 11. Suggested Government Actions to Eliminate Child Labor

Area	Suggested Action	Year(s) Suggested
Legal Framework	Ensure that the law criminally prohibits the recruitment of children under age 18 into non-state armed groups.	2016 – 2020
	Ensure that the law criminalizes forced labor as its own offense.	2019 – 2020
Enforcement	Improve the quality of the Ministry of Labor's hotline by making it easier to locate, ensuring that operators, including those who speak foreign languages, are available outside of business hours, and all messages are addressed.	2018 – 2020
	Publish the number of labor law penalties imposed that were collected.	2015 – 2020
	Increase the number of labor inspectors to meet the ILO technical advice.	2020
	Ensure that criminal investigations are conducted on the worst forms of child labor, including forced begging and the commercial sexual exploitation of children.	2015 – 2020
	Publish information on criminal law enforcement efforts, including the number of investigators, violations, prosecutions, and convictions.	2019 – 2020
	Ensure that the number of inspections conducted per labor inspector affords inspectors enough time to adequately identify and remediate labor law violations.	2019 – 2020
Coordination	Ensure that the National Committee on Child Labor functions and is able to carry out its mandate.	2017 – 2020
	Establish coordinating mechanisms to combat all worst forms of child labor and other forms of child labor, including street and farm work.	2018 – 2020

MODERATE ADVANCEMENT

Area	Suggested Action	Year(s) Suggested
Government Policies	Implement the Plan of Action to Eliminate Child Labor in Tourism in Petra.	2018 – 2020
Social Programs	Continue to expand access to education for all children including Syrian and non-Syrian refugees, including ensuring students have transportation, are able to purchase supplies and uniforms, extending school hours, and students are not bullied or harassed.	2013 – 2020
	Ensure that Syrian refugees without documentation may enroll in school.	2020
	Institute programs to address the worst forms of child labor in agriculture, construction, and street vending.	2013 – 2020

In 2020, Kazakhstan made moderate advancement in efforts to eliminate the worst forms of child labor. The government approved additional funding for increasing the number of shelters for victims of human trafficking, including child victims, improved the bidding process through which shelter providers apply for government funding, and extended funding awards from 1 to 3 years. In addition, the Ministry of Labor and Social Protection added forced labor indicators to labor inspection checklists, and updated labor inspectors' job descriptions to include detection and referral of potential forced labor cases to law enforcement.

However, children in Kazakhstan are subjected to the worst forms of child labor, including in commercial sexual exploitation, sometimes as a result of human trafficking. Children also engage in child labor in markets. The government lacks current, comprehensive, and detailed research on child labor, including in cotton production. In addition, labor inspections of small enterprises are permitted only in cases that pose a mass threat to life and health, law and social order, or national security.

I. PREVALENCE AND SECTORAL DISTRIBUTION OF CHILD LABOR

Children in Kazakhstan are subjected to the worst forms of child labor, including in commercial sexual exploitation, sometimes as a result of human trafficking. Children also engage in child labor in markets. (1-5) Table I provides key indicators on children's work and education in Kazakhstan.

Table I. Statistics on Children's Work and Education

Children	Age	Percent
Working (% and population)	5 to 14	3.2 (79,690)
Attending School (%)	5 to 14	90.7
Combining Work and School (%)	7 to 14	3.6
Primary Completion Rate (%)		102.0

Source for primary completion rate: Data from 2020, published by UNESCO Institute for Statistics, 2021. (6)

Source for all other data: International Labor Organization's analysis of statistics from Multiple Indicator Cluster Survey 3 (MICS 3), 2006. (7)

Based on a review of available information, Table 2 provides an overview of children's work by sector and activity.

Table 2. Overview of Children's Work by Sector and Activity

Sector/Industry	Activity
Agriculture	Farming, including harvesting vegetables, weeding, and harvesting cotton† (2,3,8-11)
Industry	Construction,† activities unknown (3,12)
Services	Working in markets and on the streets, including transporting and selling items (2-5,10,13)
	Domestic work, including child care (3,12,14)
	Working in gas stations (10)
	Car washing (5,10,13)
	Working in restaurants† as waiters (5,10,13,15)
Categorical Worst Forms of Child Labor‡	Commercial sexual exploitation, sometimes as a result of human trafficking (1,10)
	Forced begging, sometimes as a result of human trafficking (1,12)

† Determined by national law or regulation as hazardous and, as such, relevant to Article 3(d) of ILO C. 182.

‡ Child labor understood as the worst forms of child labor per se under Article 3(a)–(c) of ILO C. 182.

There is no current and comprehensive research on child labor in Kazakhstan that can provide details about the number of children working in different sectors, including in agriculture, the nature of their work, or the hazards involved. (5)

MODERATE ADVANCEMENT

Migrant children from the Kyrgyz Republic, some of whom may be unaccompanied, might engage in work in Kazakhstan. (3) Working migrant children are often unable to work legally, limiting their entitlement to work protections. Although migrant children who are above the minimum working age theoretically have the right to a legal work permit, in practice, many are unable to obtain such a permit because they do not list "work" as their purpose for visiting the country when entering Kazakhstan. (3,16) Fear, corruption, and discrimination against migrants can also prevent migrant children from the Kyrgyz Republic from obtaining legal work permits. Kyrgyzstani migrant children over age 16 who are in irregular migration status are vulnerable to administrative fines, arrest, and detention with adults. (3)

Migration authorities sometimes register migrant children under age 16 as unnamed family members, rather than under their own names, which prevents them from receiving Kazakhstani identification documents. (17,18) Some of these undocumented migrant children fall victim to forced child labor and commercial sexual exploitation in Kazakhstan. (3,9) Although Kazakhstan guarantees free education regardless of migration status, migrant children face barriers to accessing education. Some school officials refuse to enroll students who lack Kazakhstani identification documents, and many parents of undocumented children lack awareness of their right to appeal such decisions to regional education officials. (3,17) Landlords often do not register migrant tenants, which prevents migrant children from enrolling in local schools. (18) In 2020, the COVID-19 pandemic further exacerbated barriers to migrant children's education. Reports indicate that some migrants in Kazakhstan who were awaiting return to their home countries did not enroll their children for school. (5) In addition, limited access to internet and other infrastructure impeded the ability of migrant, refugee, and internally displaced children to access distance learning and education resources while in-person schooling was suspended. (5)

Reports also suggest that the pandemic increased children's vulnerability to child labor in Kazakhstan's 2020 cotton harvest. In 2020, children were identified in eight cotton fields in Turkestan province, a region the government has identified as having a high risk of child labor in cotton picking. (9,11) In one field, journalists noted approximately 10 children ages 10 to 16 who joined parents and other family members to work in the harvest. (5,11) Parents cited challenges related to distance learning and lack of childcare options as reasons for bringing children to the fields. (11) The Turkestan provincial government registered three cases of child labor in the cotton harvest in Zhetysayskiy district; in all three cases, both the employers and parents of these children received official warnings. (11)

Children with disabilities in Kazakhstan face challenges accessing education due to inaccessible school buildings, a lack of specialists able to provide inclusive education services, and official disability evaluations that render children eligible for at-home education only or ineligible for education entirely. (18,19) Children with disabilities who live in specialized, closed-care institutions may be compelled to assist caregivers in feeding, changing diapers, bathing, and dressing younger children. (14) Disabled children who are unable to access mainstream or inclusive education are at greater risk of being sent to such state institutions. (19)

II. LEGAL FRAMEWORK FOR CHILD LABOR

Kazakhstan has ratified all key international conventions concerning child labor (Table 3).

Table 3. Ratification of International Conventions on Child Labor

Convention	Ratification
 ILO C. 138, Minimum Age	✓
ILO C. 182, Worst Forms of Child Labor	✓
 UN CRC	✓
UN CRC Optional Protocol on Armed Conflict	✓
UN CRC Optional Protocol on the Sale of Children, Child Prostitution and Child Pornography	✓

Convention	Ratification
 Palermo Protocol on Trafficking in Persons	✓

The government has established laws and regulations related to child labor (Table 4). However, gaps exist in Kazakhstan's legal framework to adequately protect children from the worst forms of child labor, including the minimum age for work.

Table 4. Laws and Regulations on Child Labor

Standard	Meets International Standards	Age	Legislation
Minimum Age for Work	No	18	Articles 31 and 69 of the Labor Code (16)
Minimum Age for Hazardous Work	No	18	Article 26.1(2) of the Labor Code; Article 153 of the Criminal Code (16,20)
Identification of Hazardous Occupations or Activities Prohibited for Children	Yes		Article 26.1(2) of the Labor Code; Decree of the Minister of Health and Social Development No. 944 of 2015 (16,21)
Prohibition of Forced Labor	Yes		Article 7 of the Labor Code; Articles 3, 128, and 135 of the Criminal Code (16,20)
Prohibition of Child Trafficking	Yes		Article 135 of the Criminal Code (20)
Prohibition of Commercial Sexual Exploitation of Children	No		Articles 134, 135 and 312 of the Criminal Code (20)
Prohibition of Using Children in Illicit Activities	Yes		Articles 132, 133 and 135.2(9) of the Criminal Code; Article 26.1(2) of the Labor Code (16,20)
Minimum Age for Voluntary State Military Recruitment	Yes	19	Article 38.1(2) of the Military Service Act (22)
Prohibition of Compulsory Recruitment of Children by (State) Military	Yes		Article 31 of the Military Service Act (22)
Prohibition of Military Recruitment by Non-state Armed Groups	Yes		Article 41 of the Law on Children's Rights; Articles 132 and 267 of the Criminal Code (20,23)
Compulsory Education Age	Yes	17‡	Article 30 of the Constitution; Articles 12 and 30 of the Law on Education (24,25)
Free Public Education	Yes		Article 30 of the Constitution (24)

‡ Age calculated based on available information (26,27)

The Labor Code's protections, including the minimum age for employment and prohibitions on hazardous work, do not meet international standards because they do not cover children without a written work contract. (16) In addition, although Article 69 of the Labor Code establishes caps on the maximum number of hours children ages 14 to 16 or 16 to 18 may work in a week, the law does not determine the activities or conditions in which children may engage in light work. (16)

Article 134 of the Criminal Code of the Republic of Kazakhstan criminalizes involving a minor in prostitution, and Article 135 of the Criminal Code criminalizes trafficking of minors, including for the purpose of sexual exploitation. However, no law clearly criminalizes the users (clients) of prostitution involving children. (20)

III. ENFORCEMENT OF LAWS ON CHILD LABOR

The government has established institutional mechanisms for the enforcement of laws and regulations on child labor (Table 5). However, gaps exist within the operations of enforcement agencies that may hinder adequate enforcement of their child labor laws.

MODERATE ADVANCEMENT

Table 5. Agencies Responsible for Child Labor Law Enforcement

Organization/Agency	Role
Ministry of Labor and Social Protection (MLSP)	Enforces child labor laws and conducts labor inspections through the Ministry's Committee on Labor, Social Protection and Migration. Implements the special social service program that funds shelters for victims of human trafficking, including child victims. (5)
Ministry of Education and Science	Coordinates child protection activities, including response to child labor complaints. (5) An official from the regional-level Department of Education responds to reports of child labor and determines whether law enforcement should investigate the case. (28) If the case is in agriculture, local officials meet with parents and school officials to reinforce that children should be in school during the academic year. The Ministry's Center for the Adaptation of Minors provides assistance to victims of the worst forms of child labor and makes referrals to appropriate government services or NGOs for further assistance. (28)
Ministry of Internal Affairs (MOIA)	Through the Anti-Trafficking Unit, identifies and carries out initial investigation of criminal cases of the worst forms of child labor and hazardous child labor. Engages in identification and protection of human trafficking victims, including child victims. (5)
Prosecutor General's Office	Provides oversight of police operations related to child labor crimes to ensure compliance with all relevant protocols and legal requirements. (5)
Child Protection Hotlines	Receive reports of illegal child labor. There are three hotlines, one run by the Ministry of Education and Science's Child Protection Committee, one run by the Ombudsman for Children's Rights, and one run by a local NGO. (10)

The Government of Kazakhstan maintains mobile squads in all regions of the country to monitor and respond to child labor violations. These squads consist of internal affairs officers, officials from local administrations, state labor inspectors, health professionals, youth workers, and psychologists. (29)

Labor Law Enforcement

In 2020, labor law enforcement agencies in Kazakhstan took actions to combat child labor (Table 6). However, gaps exist within the operations of the Ministry of Labor and Social Protection (MLSP) that may hinder adequate labor law enforcement, including lack of an appropriate number of inspectors.

Table 6. Labor Law Enforcement Efforts Related to Child Labor

Overview of Labor Law Enforcement	2019	2020

On January 1, 2020, a moratorium on labor inspections in small enterprises went into effect. Under this moratorium, an inspection can only occur at a small enterprise in cases that pose a mass threat to life and health, law and social order, or national security. (33,34) Small enterprises include businesses with fewer than 100 employees and average revenue below a government-determined threshold. (32)

Moreover, labor inspectors generally must notify entities prior to an inspection unless the Entrepreneurial Code provides for an exception to this notice requirement. (32) Labor inspectors from the MLSP are empowered to conduct unplanned inspections on the basis of complaints, which are only considered valid if they are not anonymous. These notice requirements limit inspectors' ability to check that working conditions comply with national labor laws, including those related to child labor. (5,32) Labor inspectors are also authorized to conduct unannounced inspections of businesses on the basis of requests from law enforcement agencies, in response to complaints related to certain extreme health and safety hazards, and in cases in which the worksite is in a remote location. (5,32) In addition, labor inspectors can conduct routine inspections on the basis of risk-assessment reports. (32)

During the reporting period, labor inspectors conducted 93 routine inspections based on risk-assessment reports and 3,889 inspections in response to complaints. Inspectors identified five child labor violations involving children who were working without employment agreements in markets, car wash and repair stations, and cafes. (5)

The government also conducts raids to detect child labor violations during annual, inter-ministerial campaigns to raise awareness about, detect, and combat child labor. These campaigns are widely publicized, limited in duration, and occur at approximately the same time each year. (5) As a result, the raids conducted during these campaigns may fail to adequately detect child labor in seasonal agriculture or at businesses that conceal violations in anticipation of these high-profile campaigns. From June 1 to 12, 2020, the Ministry of Education and Science cooperated with other government agencies and NGOs to conduct 5,714 raids to detect child labor as part of the government's annual "Twelve Days Against Child Labor" campaign. (5) Raids were targeted at locations at high risk for child labor, including markets, gas stations, and construction sites. (5) As a result of these checks, 34 children, some of whom may have been engaged in child labor, were found working in violation of labor legislation; the government reported that the majority of violations involved the absence of a labor contract. (5) The Ministry of Education and Science also worked with police, other government agencies, and NGOs to conduct child welfare checks as part of the "Children at Nighttime" campaign, which was conducted in the second quarter of 2020. The government identified 18 working children through these checks who may have been engaged in child labor. (5) Seven children were working as waiters or bus conductors, eight were working at car washes, and three were vending at markets. The government reported that only 10 of these children were working with an employment contract. (5) Information was not available on the number of child labor violations referred to the labor inspectorate because of the "Twelve Days Against Child Labor" and "Children at Nighttime" campaigns.

In 2020, the MLSP updated labor inspectors' job descriptions to include responsibility for referring potential forced labor cases to law enforcement and worked with the Ministry of Economy to add forced labor indicators to labor inspectors' checklists. (35) In addition, 96 labor inspectors received recertification training. (5) However, the number of labor inspectors is likely insufficient for the size of Kazakhstan's workforce, which includes more than 8.97 million workers. (36) According to the ILO's technical advice of a ratio approaching 1 inspector for every 20,000 workers in transitional economies, Kazakhstan would employ about 449 labor inspectors. (37,38)

Criminal Law Enforcement

In 2020, criminal law enforcement agencies in Kazakhstan took actions to combat child labor (Table 7). However, gaps exist within the operations of criminal law enforcement agencies that may hinder adequate criminal law enforcement, including allocating human resources.

Table 7. Criminal Law Enforcement Efforts Related to Child Labor

The Ministry of Internal Affairs (MOIA) employs 42 operational officers who work specifically on trafficking in persons, including cases involving minors. However, reports indicated that this number of officers may be insufficient to adequately enforce criminal prohibitions against the worst forms of child labor in Kazakhstan. (5) In 2020, the government trained 168 police officers on identification of victims of trafficking, including child victims. (5) In addition, 252 officials, including law enforcement, judges, and labor inspectors, received training on investigating, prosecuting, and adjudicating forced labor cases. The Law Enforcement Academy of the Prosecutor General's Office also developed a video course on human trafficking for use in training newly employed law enforcement officers. (35)

During the reporting period, the MOIA investigated 19 cases related to the worst forms of child labor. All of these cases involved violations related to the commercial sexual exploitation of children, including 5 cases initiated based on prohibitions in Criminal Code Article 134, engagement of minors in prostitution; 4 cases based on Criminal Code Article 312, engagement of minors into pornographic activities; and 10 cases based on Criminal Code Article 135, trafficking in minors for the purpose of sexual exploitation. (5) Three of the investigations into cases involving children in prostitution were newly initiated in 2020. (35) The government prosecuted four cases involving the worst forms of child labor, three of which concluded in convictions in 2020. (5) In one of these cases, the perpetrator was found guilty of involving a minor into prostitution under Criminal Code Article 134. In the other two cases, the perpetrators were found guilty of trafficking in minors for the purpose of sexual exploitation under Criminal Code Article 135. (5) Sentences in all three of these cases ranged from 5 to 12 years in prison. (5)

All children identified in the worst forms of child labor in 2020 were removed from the exploitative situation and referred to NGOs and government-run shelters for social services and other assistance. (5) The MOIA also signed new memoranda of cooperation between 18 anti-trafficking NGOs and local police departments in 3 cities and 10 districts to enhance referral procedures and victim protection. (35) Sources reported a high level of overall cooperation between NGOs, social workers, and local police to address and assist child victims. (5,35)

IV. COORDINATION OF GOVERNMENT EFFORTS ON CHILD LABOR

The government has established mechanisms to coordinate its efforts to address child labor (Table 8).

Table 8. Key Mechanisms to Coordinate Government Efforts on Child Labor

Coordinating Body	Role & Description
National Coordination Council on Combating the Worst Forms of Child Labor	Implements the National Action Plan (NAP) for the Elimination of the Worst Forms of Child Labor 2020–2022. (39) Chaired by MLSP. Although the Coordination Council did not meet in 2020, it convened in January 2021 to discuss the results of the 2020 NAP implementation efforts. (5)
Inter-Agency Commission on Combating Trafficking in Persons	Coordinates efforts to combat human trafficking and recommends improvements to anti-human trafficking legislation, prevention strategies, protection of victims, and the prosecution of offenders. (35) Chaired by MOIA and MLSP on a 2-year rotational basis. Its members include state bodies, international organizations, and NGOs. (35) In 2020, convened two meetings to coordinate implementation of the Trafficking in Persons National Action Plan (TIP NAP) for 2017–2020, and to draft a new TIP NAP for 2021–2023. Due to the pandemic, both of these meetings were convened virtually. (35,40)

Coordinating Body	Role & Description
Special Working Group on Trafficking in Persons	Coordinates government action to respond to recommendations from the international community on improving efforts to combat trafficking in persons and labor exploitation. Led by MOIA and includes the Prosecutor General's Office, MLSP, the Supreme Court, and the Ministry of Foreign Affairs. (41) In 2020, this group met regularly to coordinate planned actions to implement international recommendations on combating trafficking in persons, including proposed legal reform projects to align laws with international standards and enhance protection for trafficking victims. (42)
Committee for the Protection of Children's Rights	Works to protect children from exploitation. Operates under the Ministry of Education and Science at province-level departments of education. (10) In 2020, the Committee for the Protection of Children's Rights published survey research on the status of children's rights in Kazakhstan. The study's module on children's economic rights included an assessment of children's vulnerability to economic exploitation, including child labor. (43)
Children's Rights Ombudsman	Monitors observance of the rights of children. Receives and responds to complaints about violations of children's rights and drafts annual reports on children's rights. (44) This coordinating mechanism was active in 2020 and published its annual report on the status of children's rights over the previous calendar year. (5)

V. GOVERNMENT POLICIES ON CHILD LABOR

The government has established policies that are consistent with relevant international standards on child labor (Table 9).

Table 9. Key Policies Related to Child Labor

Policy	Description
National Action Plan for the Elimination of the Worst Forms of Child Labor (2020–2022)	Addresses three priority areas, including (a) the creation of policies and laws to combat the worst forms of child labor; (b) the creation of programs to monitor vulnerable communities and sectors with the highest risk of child labor, and provide services to children who have been exploited in child labor; (c) raising awareness about the worst forms of child labor. (39) The government undertook a range of activities to implement this plan during the reporting period, including through awareness-raising campaigns about child labor and efforts to enhance local provision of services to vulnerable children. (45)
National Action Plan to Counter Trafficking in Persons (2018–2020)	Addressed several priority areas, including (a) prevention of forced child labor in the cotton and construction sectors; (b) exchange of information among government agencies on human trafficking and child pornography; (c) research on the worst forms of child labor and the provision of recommendations; and (d) raising of awareness of human trafficking among children. (28,46) The Inter-Agency Commission on Combating Trafficking in Persons oversaw this plan's final year of implementation in 2020. (5)

‡ The government has other policies that may have addressed child labor issues or had an impact on child labor. (5,47)

In 2020, the Inter-Agency Commission on Combating Human Trafficking drafted a new National Action Plan to Counter Trafficking in Persons (2021–2023), which the Prime Minister formally approved and adopted in early 2021. (35,48,49)

VI. SOCIAL PROGRAMS TO ADDRESS CHILD LABOR

In 2020, the government funded and participated in programs that include the goal of eliminating or preventing child labor (Table 10). However, gaps exist in these social programs, including adequacy to address the problem in all sectors.

Table 10. Key Social Programs to Address Child Labor

Program	Description
Juvenile Care Centers‡	Ministry of Education and Science (MOES)-run centers for minors located throughout Kazakhstan. Provide temporary shelter and assistance to vulnerable children, including child victims of the worst forms of child labor, and street children. (5,35) Undergoing restructuring to improve supportive services and ensure appropriate referrals for further assistance. In 2020, MOES continued to provide retraining and professional development for staff as part of restructuring at these centers. (5,35)

MODERATE ADVANCEMENT

Program	Description
Shelters for Trafficking Victims†	Funded by the government and operated by NGOs, provide legal, psychological, medical, and educational services to victims of human trafficking, including child victims, in seven provinces and two cities, including Almaty. (1,35) In 2020, the government approved additional funding to open new shelters in 17 areas of the country in 2021. The government also improved the bidding process through which funding is allocated to shelter providers to ensure that the highest-quality providers, rather than the most inexpensive, are awarded funding contracts, and it increased the length of awards to from 1 to 3 years. (35)
Awareness-Raising Campaigns‡	Raise public awareness on child labor issues. (5) In 2020, MOES, with the cooperation of other agencies, implemented the annual "Twelve Days Against Child Labor" campaign, which included thousands of social media posts and online events to raise awareness about child labor and child assistance hotlines. (5)

† Program is funded by the Government of Kazakhstan.

‡ The government had other social programs that may have included the goal of eliminating or preventing child labor. (50)

Although the Government of Kazakhstan implemented programs in 2020 to protect vulnerable children and raise awareness about child labor, research found no evidence that it has carried out programs to assist children engaged in child labor in services or agriculture.

VII. SUGGESTED GOVERNMENT ACTIONS TO ELIMINATE CHILD LABOR

Based on the reporting above, suggested actions are identified that would advance the elimination of child labor in Kazakhstan (Table 11).

Table 11. Suggested Government Actions to Eliminate Child Labor

Area	Suggested Action	Year(s) Suggested
Legal Framework	Ensure that minimum age provisions and hazardous work prohibitions apply to all children, including those working without an employment contract.	2016 – 2020
	Criminally prohibit and penalize the use of a child for prostitution.	2019 – 2020
	Ensure that the law's light work provisions specify the activities and conditions in which children may engage in light work.	2020
Enforcement	Increase the number of labor inspectors to meet the ILO's technical advice.	2014 – 2020
	Lift the moratorium on labor inspections at small enterprises and ensure that the labor inspectorate conducts routine, targeted, and unannounced labor inspections at such businesses as appropriate.	2020
	Strengthen the labor inspection system by eliminating barriers to unannounced onsite inspections.	2020
	Strengthen detection of child labor by ensuring that targeted enforcement efforts, such as raids or labor inspections, are undertaken throughout the year and in all sectors in which children are vulnerable to child labor.	2020
	Increase the number of human trafficking-focused law enforcement officers to ensure adequate enforcement of criminal prohibitions against the worst forms of child labor.	2019 – 2020
Social Programs	Conduct research to gather comprehensive data on child labor, including the activities carried out by children working in agriculture, in construction, and in services, to inform policies and programs.	2013 – 2020
	Ensure that all children have access to education, including children with irregular migration status and children with disabilities, and raise awareness in vulnerable communities about existing remedies for denial of school enrollment.	2018 – 2020
	Institute programs to address child labor, particularly in the agriculture and service sectors.	2014 – 2020

In 2020, Kenya made moderate advancement in efforts to eliminate the worst forms of child labor. The government took measures to reinvigorate its National Steering Committee on Child Labor, including by creating and convening the inaugural meeting of a Technical Working Committee, reinstated county-level child labor committees, and increased the number of prosecutions for worst forms of child labor. In addition, the government enacted the National Prevention and Response Plan on Violence Against Children to coordinate multi-sectoral activity to address violence against children, including commercial sexual exploitation and other worst forms of child labor. However, children in Kenya are subjected to the worst forms of child labor, including in domestic service and commercial sexual exploitation, each sometimes as a result of human trafficking. Children also engage in child labor in agriculture. Kenya has yet to ratify the United Nations Convention on the Rights of the Child Optional Protocol on the Sale of Children, Child Prostitution and Child Pornography. In addition, the government lacks a sufficient number of labor inspectors and financial resources to ensure that child labor laws are enforced.

I. PREVALENCE AND SECTORAL DISTRIBUTION OF CHILD LABOR

Children in Kenya are subjected to the worst forms of child labor, including in domestic service and commercial sexual exploitation, each sometimes as a result of human trafficking. Children also engage in child labor in agriculture. (1,2) Table 1 provides key indicators on children's work and education in Kenya.

Table 1. Statistics on Children's Work and Education

Children	Age	Percent
Working (% and population)	5 to 14	35.6 (3,736,030)
Attending School (%)	5 to 14	85.8
Combining Work and School (%)	7 to 14	23.0
Primary Completion Rate (%)		99.7

Based on a review of available information, Table 2 provides an overview of children's work by sector and activity.

† Determined by national law or regulation as hazardous and, as such, relevant to Article 3(d) of ILO C. 182.

‡ Child labor understood as the worst forms of child labor per se under Article 3(a)–(c) of ILO C. 182.

Kenyan children are subjected to forced labor and commercial sexual exploitation, each sometimes as a result of human trafficking, both within and outside the country. (32,37) Both boys and girls are victims of commercial sexual exploitation in tourism-heavy areas on the Kenyan coast, and in Nairobi and Kisumu. (29,30,38-40) A report by International Justice Mission and other NGOs observed that commercial sexual exploitation of children is often hidden, and is facilitated by hotel and lodge owners, bar owners, local tour guides, transportation providers, and sometimes young local women who act as recruiters for younger girls. (33) Commercial sexual exploitation of children also occurs in drug production sites, near gold mines, along major highways and resting stops, and in fishing areas on Lake Victoria and the Turkana region. (22,31-33,38,41) Traffickers exploit children from East Africa and South Sudan to forced labor in domestic service and agriculture, in addition to commercial sexual exploitation. (32,42) Moreover, traffickers increasingly exploit children with disabilities from Tanzania and other neighboring countries in forced labor, including begging. (32) Finally, there has been an increase in children subjected to the worst forms of child labor in Kenya, resulting from school closures during the COVID-19 pandemic, including commercial sexual exploitation and forced begging. (2,19,26,43,44)

Children work at informal gold mining sites in western Kenya, using pickaxes and other dangerous tools, working underground, and carrying heavy loads. (1,20,21,45) In some instances, children working at mining sites have been trapped in collapsed mines, suffocated, or exposed to mercury poisoning. (20-22) Children working in domestic service are subject to extensive work hours and physical and sexual abuse. (37) Furthermore, children participate in the harvesting and processing of khat (miraa), an addictive stimulant. (10,11,38) As the last national child labor survey was conducted in 2000, data may no longer accurately reflect the current child labor situation in Kenya. (4,13)

International NGOs report that, during the reporting period, elements of Kenyan Defenses Forces (KDF) operating in northeastern Kenya supported a Somali federal member state militia that recruited and used child soldiers; such support allegedly included providing safe harbor, security, and free passage to Abdirashid Hassan Abdinur, known as Janan, who was the Security Minister of Jubbaland and commander of a battalion in the Jubbaland Security Forces (JSF) during 2020. UN and press sources document the recruitment and use of child soldiers by both Janan’s battalion and the broader JSF. (46-49) In early 2020, Janan escaped from prison in Mogadishu, Somalia, before entering Kenya. Multiple reports from the press and human rights organizations establish that Janan and his militia remained in hiding in Kenya, with the knowledge and support of local KDF elements. (48-55) Reporting also indicates that the Government of Kenya financed the salaries of soldiers affiliated with the JSF, including the training of Jubbaland militias under Janan, which included some children. (46,53,56) Moreover, elements of the Jubbaland Security Forces under Janan maintained a camp in Mandera, a Kenyan town near the border of Somalia. (53,55,57-59) The UN verified at least 129 separate cases of JSF, which comprise as many as 5,000 personnel, recruiting and using children as soldiers from 2016 to the end of 2019 and least 36 children in 2020. (47,60,61)

Kenya law mandates free basic education and prohibits schools from charging tuition fees. (31,62,63) However, the cost of books and uniforms prevents some children from attending school, particularly at the secondary level. (64-66) An insufficient number of schools and teachers, a lack of hygiene facilities and products for girls, and sexual abuse within schools further contribute to children in Kenya dropping out of school and becoming vulnerable to the worst forms of child labor. (12,18,67,68) In addition, children seeking asylum or of refugee status are often restricted to living in designated areas, such as the Kakuma and Dadaab refugee camps. (32,69) These camps have an insufficient number of schools and existing facilities lack sufficient teachers, textbooks, electricity, and latrines. (2,22,70,71) These conditions likely contribute to heightened vulnerabilities of refugee children to the worst forms of child labor, including commercial sexual exploitation and human trafficking. (32,37,69) Moreover, although Kenya has a re-entry policy for girls who become pregnant to return to school after giving birth, in some cases school administrators continue to expel pregnant girls, increasing their vulnerability to the worst forms of child labor. (69,72,73)

The Births and Deaths Registration Act requires birth registration; however, many children living in the country are not registered at birth. As a result, non-registered children have difficulty accessing services, including education, because they must provide a birth certificate before enrolling in school or sitting for exams, despite the Basic Education Act stipulating that no child be denied admission to school for lack of proof of age. (63,74,75)

II. LEGAL FRAMEWORK FOR CHILD LABOR

Kenya has ratified most key international conventions concerning child labor (Table 3).

Table 3. Ratification of International Conventions on Child Labor

Convention	Ratification
 ILO C. 138, Minimum Age	✓
ILO C. 182, Worst Forms of Child Labor	✓
 UN CRC	✓
UN CRC Optional Protocol on Armed Conflict	✓
UN CRC Optional Protocol on the Sale of Children, Child Prostitution and Child Pornography
 Palermo Protocol on Trafficking in Persons	✓

In 2000, Kenya signed, but has not yet acceded to, the UN CRC Optional Protocol on the Sale of Children, Child Prostitution and Child Pornography. Commercial sexual exploitation of children continues to be a serious problem in Kenya. (12)

The government has established laws and regulations related to child labor (Table 4). However, gaps exist in Kenya's legal framework to adequately protect children from the worst forms of child labor, including the gap between the compulsory education age and the minimum age for work.

Table 4. Laws and Regulations on Child Labor

Standard	Meets International Standards	Age	Legislation
Minimum Age for Work	Yes	16	Section 56 of the Employment Act; Section 12 of the Employment (General) Rules; Section 10.4 of the Children Act (62,76,77)
Minimum Age for Hazardous Work	Yes	18	Sections 2 and 53.1 of the Employment Act; Sections 2 and 10.1 of the Children Act (62,76)
Identification of Hazardous Occupations or Activities Prohibited for Children	Yes		Section 12 and the Fourth Schedule of the Employment Act (General) Rules (77)

Standard	Meets International Standards	Age	Legislation
Prohibition of Forced Labor	Yes		Article 30 of the Constitution; Sections 4.1 and 53.1 of the Employment Act; Sections 174 and 254–266 of the Penal Code; Article 3 of the Counter-Trafficking in Persons Act; Article 13 of the Sexual Offences Act; Section 13.1 of the Children Act (62,76,78-81)
Prohibition of Child Trafficking	Yes		Article 3 of the Counter-Trafficking in Persons Act; Article 13 of the Sexual Offences Act; Section 13.1 of the Children Act; Section 53.1 of the Employment Act; Sections 174 and 254–263 of the Penal Code (62,76,79-81)
Prohibition of Commercial Sexual Exploitation of Children	Yes		Articles 13–16 of the Sexual Offences Act; Sections 2 and 53.1 of the Employment Act; Section 15 of the Children Act (62,76,79)
Prohibition of Using Children in Illicit Activities	Yes		Sections 2 and 53.1 of the Employment Act; Section 16 of the Children Act (62,76)
Minimum Age for Voluntary State Military Recruitment	Yes	18	Section 10.2 of the Children Act; Article 243 (1) of the Kenya Defence Forces Act (62,82)
Prohibition of Compulsory Recruitment of Children by (State) Military	N/A*		Article 243 (1) of the Kenya Defence Forces Act (82)
Prohibition of Military Recruitment by Non-state Armed Groups	Yes		Article 3 of the Counter-Trafficking in Persons Act (81)
Compulsory Education Age	Yes	18	Sections 28 and 30 of the Basic Education Act (63)
Free Public Education	No		Section 7.2 of the Children Act; Sections 28–29 and 32 of the Basic Education Act; Article 53(b) of the Constitution (62,63,78)

* No conscription (82)

‡ Age calculated based on available information (63,83)

During the reporting period, the government began a review of its hazardous work list to harmonize it with the National Policy on the Elimination of Child Labor. (84) In addition, the government conducted a mapping analysis of its legal and policy framework to identify potential regulatory gaps in relation to ILO conventions on labor administration and domestic work. (85)

Kenya permits light work activities for children ages 13 to 16, including agricultural and horticultural work not exceeding 2 hours, though it does not establish limits on the number of hours for other identified activities. (77) As the minimum age for work is lower than the compulsory education age, children may be encouraged to leave school before the completion of compulsory education. (63,76,77,86) Moreover, although the Basic Education Act establishes free basic education and stipulates that children should not be denied admission to school on account of not paying fees, the law does not meet international standards because it permits schools to levy tuition for children who reside in Kenya but do not have Kenyan citizenship. (63)

III. ENFORCEMENT OF LAWS ON CHILD LABOR

The government has established institutional mechanisms for the enforcement of laws and regulations on child labor (Table 5). However, gaps exist within the operations of enforcement agencies that may hinder adequate enforcement of child labor laws.

Table 5. Agencies Responsible for Child Labor Law Enforcement

Organization/Agency	Role
Ministry of Labor and Social Protection (MLSP)	Conducts labor inspections and enforces labor laws, including those related to child labor. (1) Comprises both the State Department for Labor and the State Department for Social Protection. Directs activities to promote awareness and withdraw children from child labor through the State Department for Labor's Child Labor Division. (1,87) Provides services to children in need of social protection, including responding to cases of child exploitation, through the Department of Child Services (DCS) under the State Department for Social Protection. (88) Each of Kenya's 47 counties staffs a County Coordinator to provide information and coordinate with DCS on cases involving child exploitation. (38)
National Police Service (NPS)	Investigates and enforces laws related to the worst forms of child labor, in coordination with MLSP and the ODPP. (1) Includes the Anti-Human Trafficking and Child Protection Unit, which carries out investigations related to commercial sexual exploitation of children, child trafficking, and other worst forms of child labor. (2,12,89,90)
Office of the Director of Public Prosecutions (ODPP)	Enforces laws through the prosecution of criminal offenses, including labor-related offenses. The Office of the Director of Public Prosecutions directs the NPS to investigate cases. (1)

Labor Law Enforcement

In 2020, labor law enforcement agencies in Kenya took actions to combat child labor (Table 6). However, gaps exist within the operations of the Ministry of Labor and Social Protection (MLSP) that may hinder adequate labor law enforcement, including financial resource allocation.

Table 6. Labor Law Enforcement Efforts Related to Child Labor

The government published only limited information on labor law enforcement efforts. (92) While the number of labor inspectors is unknown, according to the ILO's technical advice of a ratio approaching 1 inspector for every 15,000 workers in developing economies, Kenya would need to employ roughly 1,321 labor inspectors as its workforce consists of over 19 million workers. (93,94) MLSP intends to hire additional labor inspectors in 2021, with interviews and onboarding beginning in the early part of the year. (95) However, MLSP's insufficient number of labor inspectors and inadequate financial resources likely hinder their capacity to enforce labor laws, including those related to child labor. (1,92)

A high-ranking municipal official in Nairobi admitted, during a televised interview, that he employed street children for work on road construction projects in Nairobi, including overnight work. (96) The incident generated public criticism and MLSP made an informal intervention, advising the official against any further similar activity, however, no formal remedial action was taken. (85)

MODERATE ADVANCEMENT

The State Department for Labor refers cases involving child labor to the Department of Child Services (DCS), within MLSP, for placement of victims in social services. (1) The DCS uses a Child Protection Information Management System that collects, aggregates, and reports on child protection data, including child labor violations, to assist child protection officials to track and report on child protection activities. (12,69) In 2020, approximately 578 cases of child labor were reported in the Child Protection Information Management System; research, however, could not determine the number of these cases that resulted from findings from labor inspections. (85,97,98)

Criminal Law Enforcement

In 2020, criminal law enforcement agencies in Kenya took actions to combat child labor (Table 7). However, gaps exist within the operations of enforcement agencies that may hinder adequate criminal law enforcement, including training for criminal investigators.

Table 7. Criminal Law Enforcement Efforts Related to Child Labor

Overview of Criminal Law Enforcement	2019	2020
Initial Training for New Criminal Investigators	Yes (1)	Yes (9)
Training on New Laws Related to the Worst Forms of Child Labor	Unknown (1)	N/A (9)
Refresher Courses Provided	Unknown (1)	No (85)
Number of Investigations	18 (38,99,100)	2 (2)
Number of Violations Found	138 (38,99,100)	5 (2)
Number of Prosecutions Initiated	7 (1,99,100)	20 (2)
Number of Convictions	Unknown (1)	3 (2)
Imposed Penalties for Violations Related to the Worst Forms of Child Labor	Yes (99)	Yes (2)
Reciprocal Referral Mechanism Exists Between Criminal Authorities and Social Services	Yes (1)	Yes (9)

The Anti-Human Trafficking and Child Protection Unit initiated 2 new investigations, involving at least 5 victims, 11 prosecutions, and 2 convictions related to human trafficking, forced labor, and commercial sexual exploitation of children; in addition, the Office of the Director of Public Prosecutions reported an additional 9 prosecutions and 1 conviction related to child trafficking. Research, however, could not determine whether the government had additional law enforcement investigations, prosecutions, or convictions related to the worst forms of child labor. (2) The government, in partnership with a NGO, operates a national hotline to report cases of child abuse and exploitation, which are then followed up with an investigation by the DCS. During the reporting period, the hotline received 64 complaints related to child labor, 10 cases of trafficking of children, and 6 cases related to commercial sexual exploitation of children. (2)

A report by the National Council on the Administration of Justice found that magistrates lacked specialized knowledge in children's laws, policies, and rights, including the Sexual Offenses Act and the Children Act. (89)

IV. COORDINATION OF GOVERNMENT EFFORTS ON CHILD LABOR

The government has established mechanisms to coordinate its efforts to address child labor (Table 8). However, gaps exist that hinder the effective coordination of efforts to address child labor, including efficacy in accomplishing mandates.

Table 8. Key Mechanisms to Coordinate Government Efforts on Child Labor

Coordinating Body	Role & Description
National Steering Committee on Child Labor	Oversees efforts to eliminate child labor. (1) Comprises government agencies, private employers, and workers' organizations. Chaired by the Principal Secretary for Labor, with coordination duties performed by the MLSP Child Labor Division. (9) In 2020, MLSP, with support from ILO, created and convened the inaugural meeting of a Technical Working Committee to support the effectiveness of the National Steering Committee and reinstatement of county-level child labor committees. (84,95)

Coordinating Body	Role & Description
National Council for Children's Services	Coordinates government efforts on issues related to child rights and welfare, including child labor. Comprises a chairperson, appointed by the President, and council members drawn from ministries, departments, agencies, and civil society. (101,102) Due to pandemic restrictions, the National Council for Children's Services did not meet during the reporting period. (85)
County Child Labor Committees*	Coordinate county-level activities to eliminate child labor and related labor abuses, including forced labor and human trafficking. (84) Include local labor officers and child protection officials. (95) During the reporting period, the government established county-level child labor committees, targeting 15 counties based on prevalence of child labor and child trafficking. (84,95)
Counter-Trafficking in Persons Advisory Committee	Coordinates the implementation of policies related to human trafficking and provides prevention and protection services to victims under the Counter-Trafficking in Persons Act. Led by the Counter Trafficking in Person's Secretariat under the State Department for Social Protection of MLSP, and comprises human trafficking and child protection specialists from multiple government agencies and NGOs. (2) In 2020, the Committee consulted with NGO stakeholders regarding the development of an updated National Action Plan to Combat Human Trafficking. (2)

*Mechanism to coordinate efforts to address child labor was created during the reporting period.

Research indicates that a lack of sufficient funding likely inhibits the activities of coordinating bodies. (1)

V. GOVERNMENT POLICIES ON CHILD LABOR

The government has established policies related to child labor (Table 9). However, policy gaps exist that hinder efforts to address child labor, including implementation.

Table 9. Key Policies Related to Child Labor

Policy	Description
National Policy on the Elimination of Child Labor	Proposes strategies to prevent and eliminate child labor, including its worst forms, while providing support and rehabilitation for children removed from child labor. Includes measures to establish child labor-free zones, increase financial support for labor law enforcement, raise awareness, improve accessibility to education and social protection programs, and integrate child labor into corporate responsibility programs. (103) In 2020, the government began a review of the hazardous work list to bring it in line with the types of hazardous occupations and activities outlined in the National Policy on the Elimination of Child Labor. (84)
National Plan of Action for Children in Kenya (2015–2022)	Provides an operational framework for coordination, planning, implementing, and monitoring programs for children's welfare. Also outlines programs, awareness-raising activities, and research with the goal of reducing child labor and other child exploitation cases by 50 percent by 2022. (84,104) Due to pandemic restrictions, no activities were undertaken to implement the National Plan of Action for Children in Kenya during the reporting period. (85)
MLSP Strategic Plan (2018–2022)	Outlines the implementation of MLSP activities, programs, and projects, including the elimination of child labor. Proposes an updated child labor survey, development of a database on child labor, and creation of child labor free zones. (105) During the reporting period, MLSP took actions to reconstitute the National Steering Committee on Child Labor, including the establishment of a Technical Working Committee, in alignment with the objectives of the MSLP Strategic Plan. (105)
National Prevention and Response Plan on Violence Against Children in Kenya, (2019–2023)†	Identifies goals and multi-sectoral actions to address violence against children, including commercial sexual exploitation, child trafficking, and other worst forms of child labor, through laws and policies, family support, education and life skills, community awareness, response and support, and coordination. Outlined goals and activities are based on findings from a 2019 National Survey on Violence Against Children that provided data on the magnitude, patterns, and factors associated with violence against children. (85,106)

† Policy was approved during the reporting period.

‡ The government had other policies that may have addressed child labor issues or had an impact on child labor. (12,107,108)

VI. SOCIAL PROGRAMS TO ADDRESS CHILD LABOR

In 2020, the government funded and participated in programs that include the goal of eliminating or preventing child labor (Table 10). However, gaps exist in these social programs, including the adequacy of programs to address the full scope of the problem.

MODERATE ADVANCEMENT

Table 10. Key Social Programs to Address Child Labor

Program	Description
Projects to Combat Child Labor and Increase Education Access†	Government-funded programs that aim to combat child labor, including its worst forms, such as commercial sexual exploitation of children and child trafficking. Child Protection and Rescue Centers temporarily house child victims and provide counseling and reintegration services. (109) The School Meals Program also serves hot lunches to vulnerable children to improve school attendance. (18,109) During the reporting period, the government made an educational allocation of $4 million, under the Presidential Secondary School Bursary Scheme, that supported the education of 22,933 students. (85)
National Safety Net Program (2013–2026)‡	$411 million, government-funded, 5 year cash transfer and social safety net program, with support from the World Bank. (12) In 2020, approximately 295,316 households with vulnerable and orphan children received financial support from the National Safety Net Program. (92)
UN Humanitarian Assistance Program	UNICEF-implemented program to provide educational and nutritional services to children. (110)
USDOL-Funded Programs	USDOL-funded projects to combat child labor, build government capacity, and support youth apprenticeships. Includes Better Utilization of Skills for Youth (BUSY) through Quality Apprenticeships (2016–2021) , a $3 million program, and Capacity Strengthening of Governments to Address Child Labor and/or Forced Labor and Violations of Acceptable Conditions of Work in Sub-Saharan Africa (CAPSA) (2019–2022) , a $5 million dollar project to build the capacity of the Kenyan government to enforce labor laws and regulations related to child labor and forced labor and approve services for victims. (111,112) Also included Promoting Apprenticeship as a Path for Youth Employment in Argentina, Costa Rica, and Kenya through Global Apprenticeships Network (GAN) National Networks (2016-2020) . (113) For additional information, please see our website .

† Program is funded by the Government of Kenya.

‡ The government had other social programs that may have included the goal of eliminating or preventing child labor. (12,18,114,115)

During the reporting period, the government, with the ILO, worked to finalize drafting of an updated Decent Work Country Program (DWCP), which outlines the ILO's country programming strategy for Kenya, to integrate child labor and forced labor concerns into the DWCP. The government will launch the DWCP in early 2021. (84) In response to a National Survey on Violence Against Children, the government developed training materials for management of child protection cases and improved child protection facilities in West Pokot, Mombasa and Kericho Counties. In addition, the MLSP Department of Children's Services opened a Children's Office at Kakuma Refugee Camp in Turkana to coordinate children's services, including the handling of court matters for children in the camp. (85)

Although Kenya has programs that target child labor, the scope of these programs is insufficient to fully address the extent of the problem, especially the commercial sexual exploitation of children.

VII. SUGGESTED GOVERNMENT ACTIONS TO ELIMINATE CHILD LABOR

Based on the reporting above, suggested actions are identified that would advance the elimination of child labor in Kenya (Table 11).

Table 11. Suggested Government Actions to Eliminate Child Labor

Area	Suggested Action	Year(s) Suggested
Legal Framework	Accede to the CRC Optional Protocol on the Sale of Children, Child Prostitution and Child Pornography.	2013 – 2020
	Ensure that light work provisions limit the number of hours for all light work activities.	2019 – 2020
	Raise the minimum age for work to the age up to which education is compulsory.	2020
	Ensure that laws providing free basic education cover all children in Kenya, including non-citizens.	2020
Enforcement	Publish information about labor law enforcement efforts, the funding of the labor inspectorate, the number of labor inspectors, the number of child labor violations, and the number of child labor violations in which penalties were imposed and collected.	2009 – 2020
	Institutionalize training for labor inspectors, including by training new labor inspectors at the beginning of their employment and refresher courses.	2020
	Increase the number of labor inspectors to meet the ILO's technical advice.	2015 – 2020

Area	Suggested Action	Year(s) Suggested
Enforcement	Ensure that the Ministry of Labor and Social Protection has sufficient financial and human resources to address labor violations.	2017 – 2020
	Ensure that measures are taken to investigate and impose penalties for violations of child labor by government officials.	2020
	Ensure criminal law enforcement investigators receive refresher training.	2020
	Ensure that magistrates receive training on laws protecting children from the worst forms of child labor.	2019 – 2020
Coordination	Ensure that all coordinating bodies receive sufficient funding and are able to carry out their intended mandates.	2016 – 2020
Government Policies	Ensure all policies are implemented according to their mandates, including the National Plan of Action for Children in Kenya.	2017 – 2020
Social Programs	Collect and publish updated data on the extent and nature of child labor to inform policies and programs.	2014 – 2020
	End financial and training support for regional state armed groups in Somalia that recruit children, and hold perpetrators of the worst forms of child labor, including child soldiering, accountable.	2020
	Improve access to education by increasing the number of schools and teachers, enhancing the availability of hygiene facilities and products within schools, addressing sexual abuse in schools, and eliminating or defraying the cost of school fees, books, and uniforms.	2010 – 2020
	Enhance efforts to eliminate barriers and make education accessible for all children, including girls and refugee children, by ensuring that pregnant girls can remain in school, improving access to birth registration documents, increasing the number of schools, and improving existing educational facilities in refugee camps.	2010 – 2020
	Expand existing programs to address the scope of the child labor problem, including children engaged in commercial sexual exploitation.	2009 – 2020

In 2020, Kiribati made moderate advancement in efforts to eliminate the worst forms of child labor. During the reporting period, the government published results from the Social Development Indicator Survey conducted in 2018–2019, which provides statistics on child labor. In addition, the government established the Education Sector Contingency Plan for COVID-19 and secured a grant from the Global Partnership for Education to develop remote learning interventions during the COVID-19 pandemic. Although research is limited, there is evidence that children in Kiribati engage in dangerous tasks in construction and street vending. Existing laws do not identify hazardous occupations and activities prohibited for children, and do not prohibit the domestic trafficking of children. In addition, the government has not adopted a national policy to combat the worst forms of child labor.

I. PREVALENCE AND SECTORAL DISTRIBUTION OF CHILD LABOR

Although research is limited, there is evidence that children in Kiribati engage in dangerous tasks in construction and street vending. (1) Table 1 provides key indicators on children's work and education in Kiribati. Data on some of these indicators are not available from the sources used in this report.

Table 1. Statistics on Children's Work and Education

Children	Age	Percent
Working (% and population)	5 to 14	Unavailable
Attending School (%)	5 to 14	Unavailable
Combining Work and School (%)	7 to 14	Unavailable
Primary Completion Rate (%)		100.9

Source for primary completion rate: Data from 2016, published by UNESCO Institute for Statistics, 2021. (2)
Data were unavailable from International Labor Organization's analysis, 2021. (3)

Based on a review of available information, Table 2 provides an overview of children's work by sector and activity.

Table 2. Overview of Children's Work by Sector and Activity

Sector/Industry	Activity
Industry	Construction, cargo loading, and seafaring (1,4)
Services	Street work, including vending and working in kava bars (1)
Categorical Worst Forms of Child Labor‡	Commercial sexual exploitation, including aboard fishing vessels (1,4,5)

‡ Child labor understood as the worst forms of child labor per se under Article 3(a)-(c) of ILO C. 182.

During the reporting period, the government published results from the Social Development Indicator Survey, which was conducted in 2018–2019 by the Kiribati National Statistics Office and the Ministry of Health, with support from UNICEF, the United Nations Population Fund, the Pacific Community, and the Government of Australia. (6) According to the survey, 25.4 percent of children ages 5–17 are involved in child labor, with 14.9 percent of those children working under hazardous conditions. However, the survey results did not include information on the specific sectors in which children are engaged in work in Kiribati. (6-8) Although the report does not identify specific sectors, children living in rural areas and poorer households were more likely to be more engaged in hazardous conditions compared to children in urban areas or wealthier households. (8)

MODERATE ADVANCEMENT

Evidence indicates that girls are subjected to commercial sexual exploitation. (5) Underage girls were allegedly subjected to commercial sexual exploitation with crewmembers from foreign fishing vessels. In exchange, the girls were given cash, alcohol, food, and goods. (1,4,8)

Under the Free Education Policy, the government provides free education—including tuition, stationery, and transportation—to children. Through collaborations with UNICEF and the Government of Australia, the government has improved learning spaces, access, and sanitation at schools. (8) The Government of Kiribati also worked with UNICEF to strengthen birth registrations by conducting free mobile registration clinics in outer islands. Children do not experience barriers to education due to a lack of identity documents, their disability status, or access to schools from remote islands. (8)

In response to the COVID-19 pandemic and disruptions to children's education, the Ministry of Education established the Education Sector Contingency Plan for COVID-19 and secured a grant from the Global Partnership for Education. The grant helped to develop materials for remote learning interventions. (8)

II. LEGAL FRAMEWORK FOR CHILD LABOR

Kiribati has ratified all key international conventions concerning child labor (Table 3).

Table 3. Ratification of International Conventions on Child Labor

	Convention	Ratification
	ILO C. 138, Minimum Age	✓
	ILO C. 182, Worst Forms of Child Labor	✓
	UN CRC	✓
	UN CRC Optional Protocol on Armed Conflict	✓
	UN CRC Optional Protocol on the Sale of Children, Child Prostitution and Child Pornography	✓
	Palermo Protocol on Trafficking in Persons	✓

The government has established laws and regulations related to child labor (Table 4). However, gaps exist in Kiribati's legal framework to adequately protect children from the worst forms of child labor, including identification of hazardous occupations or activities prohibited for children and the prohibition of child trafficking.

Table 4. Laws and Regulations on Child Labor

Standard	Meets International Standards	Age	Legislation
Minimum Age for Work	Yes	14	Section 115 of the Employment and Industrial Relations Code (9)
Minimum Age for Hazardous Work	Yes	18	Section 117 of the Employment and Industrial Relations Code (9)
Identification of Hazardous Occupations or Activities Prohibited for Children	No
Prohibition of Forced Labor	Yes		Sections 244 and 249 of the Penal Code; Sections 118(1)(a, c, d) and 122 of the Employment and Industrial Relations Code (9,10)
Prohibition of Child Trafficking	No		Section 43 of the Measures to Combat Terrorism and Transnational Organized Crime Act; Section 118(1)(b) of the Employment and Industrial Relations Code (9,11)
Prohibition of Commercial Sexual Exploitation of Children	Yes		Sections 136 and 141–142 of the Penal Code; Sections 118(1)(f), 118(1)(g), and 118(2) of the Employment and Industrial Relations Code (9,10)
Prohibition of Using Children in Illicit Activities	Yes		Section 142 of the Penal Code; Sections 118(1)(h) and 118(1)(i) of the Employment and Industrial Relations Code (9,10)

Standard	Meets International Standards	Age	Legislation
Minimum Age for Voluntary State Military Recruitment	N/A†
Prohibition of Compulsory Recruitment of Children by (State) Military	N/A†
Prohibition of Military Recruitment by Non-state Armed Groups	Yes		Sections 118(1)(e) of the Employment and Industrial Relations Code (9)
Compulsory Education Age	Yes	15	Section 7 of the Education Act (12)
Free Public Education	Yes		Section 11 of the Education Act (12)

† No standing military

The government has not identified by national law or regulations the types of hazardous work prohibited for children. Under Article 116 of the Employment and Industrial Relations Code, the laws do not specify the activities and hours of work per week that are acceptable for children engaged in light work, or the conditions under which light work can be undertaken. (9) During the reporting period, the Ministry of Employment and Human Resources (MEHR) reviewed the drafted types of hazardous work prohibited and regulations relating to light work for children. However, completion of the regulations is delayed due to the lack of in-house legal capabilities within MEHR. (8) Kiribati's laws prohibiting child trafficking are insufficient because they do not specifically prohibit various acts involved in the recruitment, harboring, transportation, transfer, and receipt of child trafficking. (9,11) In addition, the minimum age for work is lower than the compulsory education age, which may encourage children to leave school before the completion of compulsory education. (9,12)

III. ENFORCEMENT OF LAWS ON CHILD LABOR

The government has established institutional mechanisms for the enforcement of laws and regulations on child labor (Table 5). However, gaps exist within the operations of enforcement agencies that may hinder adequate enforcement of their child labor laws.

Table 5. Agencies Responsible for Child Labor Law Enforcement

Organization/Agency	Role
Ministry of Employment and Human Resources (MEHR)	Enforces labor laws, including those related to child labor. (13)
Kiribati Police Force	Enforces criminal laws related to the worst forms of child labor. (8) Investigates cases of human trafficking and sexual exploitation of children through a special Domestic Violence and Sexual Offenses Unit. (14)
Child Protection Officer, Ministry of Women, Youth, Sports and Social Affairs (MWYSSA)	Removes children from harmful situations, including as a result of sexual exploitation and harsh or exploitative labor. (13,15) Assists with the implementation of the Children, Young People and Family Welfare Act. (16) Coordinates the Safenet referral system. (8)

Labor Law Enforcement

In 2020, labor law enforcement agencies in Kiribati took actions to combat child labor (Table 6). However, gaps exist within the operations of the MEHR that may hinder adequate labor law enforcement, including labor inspector training.

Table 6. Labor Law Enforcement Efforts Related to Child Labor

Overview of Labor Law Enforcement	2019	2020

Unannounced Inspections Conducted	Yes (1)	No (8)

Reciprocal Referral Mechanism Exists Between Labor Authorities and Social Services	Yes (1)	Yes (8)

The government has a standard operating procedure that outlines how to conduct labor inspections and includes a checklist template that requires information on the ages of all workers. (8) Resource and capacity constraints restrict the government's services and activities related to labor law enforcement. Although the number of labor inspectors meets the ILO's technical advice, the government's limited ability to inspect and report on child labor issues was further affected by geographical distances, isolation, sparse population, and Internet connectivity challenges. (1,4) In addition, the government did not hold training on child labor laws due to pandemic border restrictions, which limited travel in Kiribati. (8)

Criminal Law Enforcement

Research did not find information on whether criminal law enforcement agencies in Kiribati took actions to combat child labor.

Table 7. Criminal Law Enforcement Efforts Related to Child Labor

Overview of Criminal Law Enforcement	2019	2020
Initial Training for New Criminal Investigators	Yes (1)	No (8)
Training on New Laws Related to the Worst Forms of Child Labor	N/A	N/A

Imposed Penalties for Violations Related to the Worst Forms of Child Labor	N/A (1)	Unknown (8)
Reciprocal Referral Mechanism Exists Between Criminal Authorities and Social Services	Yes (1)	Yes (8)

IV. COORDINATION OF GOVERNMENT EFFORTS ON CHILD LABOR

The government has established mechanisms to coordinate its efforts to address child labor (Table 8).

Table 8. Key Mechanisms to Coordinate Government Efforts on Child Labor

Coordinating Body	Role & Description
Kiribati National Human Rights Taskforce (KNHRT)	Coordinates national UN reports. (4) MEHR and MWYSSA are members. (1,17) KNHRT was active during the reporting period. (18)
Child Protection Working Group	Coordinates child protection issues with MWYSSA. Oversees the implementation of the Child, Young People and Family Welfare Act. (1,16) During the reporting period, MWYSSA conducted training for all welfare officers engaging in social work with children. The participants included 6 officers at the national level and 23 officers based in island councils throughout the country. (8)

V. GOVERNMENT POLICIES ON CHILD LABOR

The government has established policies related to child labor (Table 9). However, policy gaps exist that hinder efforts to address child labor, including coverage of all worst forms of child labor.

Table 9. Key Policies Related to Child Labor

Policy	Description
Children, Young People, and Families Welfare System Policy, 2013	Focuses on strengthening the welfare system, in part, by implementing services to prevent the abuse, violence, neglect, and exploitation of children and young people, including in hazardous labor. (15) During the reporting period, UN Women and the Kiribati Police facilitated training for stakeholders on the children protection policy. (18)
United Nations Pacific Strategy (2018–2022)	A multi-national strategic framework, comprising 14 South Pacific nations, created to address, develop, and implement strategic economic development priorities in the South Pacific, including eliminating child labor and the worst forms of child labor. (19)

‡ The government had other policies that may have addressed child labor issues or had an impact on child labor. (1,8)

During the reporting period, the Government of Kiribati continued to support existing policies on child protection and strengthening the education sector. However, research found no evidence of a policy that focuses specifically on combating the worst forms of child labor. (5,8)

VI. SOCIAL PROGRAMS TO ADDRESS CHILD LABOR

In 2020, the government funded and participated in programs that included the goal of eliminating or preventing child labor (Table 10). However, gaps exist in these social programs, including adequacy to address the problem in all sectors.

Table 10. Key Social Programs to Address Child Labor

Program	Description
UNICEF Pacific Multi-Country Child Protection Program (2018–2022)	Multi-country program in 14 Pacific Island countries. (20) Prioritizes children's rights, including the elimination of the worst forms of child labor. Aligned with the UN Pacific Strategy 2018–2022. (20) During the reporting period, the program supported child protection activities, including the Social Development Indicator Survey. (18)
Safenet‡	MWYSSA-coordinated program that allows government, churches, and NGOs to provide assistance to victims found in exploitative and violent situations. (13,21) During the reporting period, MWYSSA expanded the Safenet system by establishing a COVID-19 Helpline in response to concerns related to the pandemic and the possible violence and exploitation of children. (8)
Hotlines‡	MWYSSA- and police-supported 24-hour hotlines for children to report violations, request information, or obtain access to services. (21) This program was active during the reporting period. (18)

† Program is funded by the Government of Kiribati.

‡ The government had other social programs that may have included the goal of eliminating or preventing child labor. (1,4,8)

During the reporting period, the Government of Kiribati secured a grant from the Global Partnership for Education to hold training programs for educators and education stakeholders on remote learning interventions for use during the pandemic. (8)

Although the government has implemented programs to assist children in exploitative and abusive situations, research found no evidence that the government has carried out programs specifically designed to assist children who are engaged in construction and street vending work, or young girls subjected to commercial sexual exploitation with crew members from foreign fishing vessels.

VII. SUGGESTED GOVERNMENT ACTIONS TO ELIMINATE CHILD LABOR

Based on the reporting above, suggested actions are identified that would advance the elimination of child labor in Kiribati (Table 11).

MODERATE ADVANCEMENT

Table 11. Suggested Government Actions to Eliminate Child Labor

Area	Suggested Action	Year(s) Suggested
Legal Framework	Determine the types of hazardous work prohibited for children, in consultation with employers' and workers' organizations.	2011 – 2020
	Ensure that the law specifies the activities and number of hours of work per week that are acceptable for children engaged in light work, and the conditions under which children can engage in light work.	2015 – 2020
	Establish law that prohibits the domestic trafficking of children and the various acts involved in recruitment, harboring, transportation, transfer, and receipt of child trafficking.	2015 – 2020
	Raise the minimum age for work to the age up to which education is compulsory.	2018 – 2020
Enforcement	Publish information on the labor inspectorate's funding.	2020
	Strengthen the labor inspectorate by ensuring sufficient resources to support labor law enforcement activities and initiating targeted inspections based on analysis of data related to risk-prone sectors and patterns of serious incidents.	2017 – 2020
	Institutionalize training on child labor laws for labor inspectors and criminal investigators, including initial training for new inspectors and investigators and refresher courses.	2017 – 2020
	Publish criminal law enforcement efforts, including the number of investigations, violations found, prosecutions initiated, convictions, and whether penalties were imposed for violations related to the worst forms of child labor.	2020
Government Policies	Adopt a policy that addresses the worst forms of child labor.	2014 – 2020
Social Programs	Collect and publish data on the extent and nature of child labor in all sectors to inform policies and programs.	2017 – 2020
	Implement social programs to address all relevant forms of child labor, including in construction and street vending.	2017 – 2020
	Implement programs to address the issue of commercial sexual exploitation of young girls with crew members from foreign fishing vessels.	2018 – 2020

In 2020, Kosovo made a moderate advancement to eliminate the worst forms of child labor. The government drafted multiple regulations for the implementation of the Law on Child Protection to address child labor in the informal sector. The Ministry of Labor and Social Welfare also began conducting a survey on children engaged in hazardous work and the Committee for Prevention and Elimination of Hazardous Forms of Child Labor drafted an action plan for central- and local-level institutions and civil society organizations on how to coordinate efforts to prevent hazardous child labor. In addition, the government passed the Strategy on the Rights of the Child, which provides a policy framework for the protection of children's rights, including child labor. Moreover, the government worked with UNICEF to launch a new program that aims to increase the availability of early childhood education and promote inclusion of children with disabilities into the education system. However, children in Kosovo are subjected to the worst forms of child labor, including in commercial sexual exploitation, sometimes as a result of human trafficking. Children also perform dangerous tasks in street work, including loading and transportation of goods and begging. The Labor Inspectorate and Centers for Social Work also face financial and human resource constraints, which may impede their ability to adequately address child labor.

I. PREVALENCE AND SECTORAL DISTRIBUTION OF CHILD LABOR

Children in Kosovo are subjected to the worst forms of child labor, including in commercial sexual exploitation, sometimes as a result of human trafficking. Children also perform dangerous tasks in street work, including loading and transportation of goods and begging. (1-3) No recent data were available, but the 2013 Multiple Indicator Cluster Survey (MICS) determined that 5,398 children in Kosovo were subjected to child labor. (4) The study also found that 2,168 Roma, Ashkali, and Balkan Egyptian children were subjected to hazardous child labor practices, especially street work. (5) Table 1 provides key indicators on children's work and education in Kosovo. Data on some of these indicators are not available from the sources used in this report.

Table 1. Statistics on Children's Work and Education

Children	Age	Percent
Working (% and population)	5 to 14	11.7 (Unavailable)
Attending School (%)	5 to 14	95.4
Combining Work and School (%)	7 to 14	13.1
Primary Completion Rate (%)		Unavailable

Primary completion rate was unavailable from UNESCO Institute for Statistics, 2021. (6)

Source for all other data: International Labor Organization's analysis of statistics from Multiple Indicator Cluster Survey 5 (MICS 5), 2013–2014. (7)

Based on a review of available information, Table 2 provides an overview of children's work by sector and activity.

Table 2. Overview of Children's Work by Sector and Activity

Sector/Industry	Activity
Agriculture	Farming, including operating agriculture machinery (2,3,8)
	Forestry, including operating machinery and transporting wood (3,9)
Industry	Mining, including underground extraction of coal by hand (3,8)

MODERATE ADVANCEMENT

Sector/Industry	Activity
Industry	Construction and manufacturing, including operation of tools in hazardous worksites (3,8,9)
Services	Street work,† including vending small items,† manual transport of goods,† and begging† (3,8) Scavenging at dumpsites† (8,10)
Categorical Worst Forms of Child Labor‡	Forced begging, sometimes as a result of human trafficking (1,2,8,11) Commercial sexual exploitation, sometimes as a result of human trafficking (1,2,8,9,11) Use in illicit activities (8,12)

† Determined by national law or regulation as hazardous and, as such, relevant to Article 3(d) of ILO C. 182.

‡ Child labor understood as the worst forms of child labor per se under Article 3(a)–(c) of ILO C. 182.

Kosovo is a source and destination country for child trafficking, especially of girls. (1,3,9,13,14) In addition, children are sometimes forced into labor, such as in massage parlors, by organized criminal groups. (1,13,15,16) Kosovar children and children from neighboring countries, especially Albania, are also forced into street work including begging, primarily in Prizren and Pristina. Most of these children come from the Roma, Ashkali, and Balkan Egyptian minority ethnic groups. (9,13,15,17-22) Economically vulnerable Kosovan children are sometimes forced to work in construction and agriculture to support their families. (9)

Ashkali, Balkan Egyptian, and Roma children, especially girls, sometimes experience difficulty accessing education, as a birth certificate is required to attend school in Kosovo and many births go unregistered. (11,17,23-26) Children who do not attend school are vulnerable to the worst forms of child labor. (27) During the reporting period, the Ministry of Labor and Social Welfare began conducting a survey on the state of children engaged in hazardous labor practices in Kosovo. In addition, during the school year, the Ministry of Education provided virtual classes in the Romani language to address concerns about marginalization of Roma children. (3,8)

II. LEGAL FRAMEWORK FOR CHILD LABOR

Kosovo holds a unique status vis-à-vis UN recognition that complicates its ratification of international agreements (Table 3).

Table 3. Ratification of International Conventions on Child Labor

Convention	Ratification
 ILO C. 138, Minimum Age	N/A
ILO C. 182, Worst Forms of Child Labor	N/A
 UN CRC	N/A
UN CRC Optional Protocol on Armed Conflict	N/A
UN CRC Optional Protocol on the Sale of Children, Child Prostitution and Child Pornography	N/A
 Palermo Protocol on Trafficking in Persons	N/A

Article 22 of Kosovo’s Constitution incorporates the UN CRC into its national legal framework. (28) Despite Kosovo’s unique status, the country worked with the UN through the Common Development Plan (2021–2025), which was implemented by the UN Kosovo Team and focused on promoting international standards and human rights. (29,30)

The government’s laws and regulations are in line with relevant international standards (Table 4).

Table 4. Laws and Regulations on Child Labor

Standard	Meets International Standards	Age	Legislation
Minimum Age for Work	No	15	Article 7 of the Law on Labor (31)
Minimum Age for Hazardous Work	Yes	18	Articles 20, 23, 26, 27, and 45 of the Law on Labor (31)
Identification of Hazardous Occupations or Activities Prohibited for Children	Yes		Administrative Instruction No. 05/2013; Article 45 of the Law on Labor; Administrative Instruction No. 2008 (31-33)
Prohibition of Forced Labor	Yes		Article 6 of the Law on Labor; Articles 163 and 165 of the Criminal Code; Law on the Prevention and Elimination of Human Trafficking and Protection of the Victims of Trafficking (31,34,35)
Prohibition of Child Trafficking	Yes		Articles 165 and 166 of the Criminal Code; Law on the Prevention and Elimination of Human Trafficking and Protection of the Victims of Trafficking; Articles 21 and 22 of Administrative Instruction No. 10/2017 (34-36)
Prohibition of Commercial Sexual Exploitation of Children	No		Articles 232 and 234 of the Criminal Code; Articles 47 and 62 of the Law on Child Protection (35,37)
Prohibition of Using Children in Illicit Activities	Yes		Articles 267–273 of the Criminal Code; Article 43 of the Law on Child Protection (35,37)
Minimum Age for Voluntary State Military Recruitment	Yes	18	Article 6 of the Law on the Kosovo Security Force (38)
Prohibition of Compulsory Recruitment of Children by (State) Military	N/A*
Prohibition of Military Recruitment by Non-state Armed Groups	Yes		Article 149 of the Criminal Code; Articles 51 (2) and 59 of the Law on Child Protection (35,39)
Compulsory Education Age	Yes	15‡	Article 9 of the Law on Pre-University Education (40)
Free Public Education	Yes		Article 9 of the Law on Pre-University Education (40)

* No conscription (41)

‡ Age calculated based on available information (40)

The Law on Child Protection entered into force in July 2020. (8,42) During the reporting period, the government began enforcement of the law and developed implementation guidelines to support its goals, including tackling child labor practices in the informal sector economy. (8,19,39,43) The law prohibits violence, abuse, exploitation, and neglect of children, including using a child as a beggar, and prohibits the use of children in additional illicit activities. (8,42,43) However, Kosovo does not meet international standards as the establishment of the minimum age for work in Article 7 of the Labor Law does not apply to children in informal work. Additionally, the law does not sufficiently prohibit commercial sexual exploitation of children as the use of a child for prostitution is not prohibited.

III. ENFORCEMENT OF LAWS ON CHILD LABOR

The government has established institutional mechanisms for the enforcement of laws and regulations on child labor (Table 5). However, gaps exist within the framework of enforcement agencies that may hinder adequate enforcement of their child labor laws.

Table 5. Agencies Responsible for Child Labor Law Enforcement

Organization/Agency	Role
Labor Inspectorate	Conducts inspections to enforce child labor laws, removes children engaged in hazardous work, and refers children engaged in hazardous work to regional Centers for Social Work. (3)
Kosovo Police (KP)	Enforces criminal laws on forced child labor and commercial sexual exploitation of children. Through the Anti-Trafficking Directorate, enforces laws on child trafficking. (2,3,8) Operates under the Ministry of Internal Affairs. (44)

MODERATE ADVANCEMENT

Organization/Agency	Role
Ministry of Justice	Enforces criminal laws on forced child labor, child trafficking, and commercial sexual exploitation of children through special anti-human trafficking coordinators and mechanisms. (8)
Ministry of Education, Science, and Technology	Conducts education inspections on balance of students' school and work hours. (45)

From January to March 2020, four ministries divided the duties of the former Ministry of Labor and Social Welfare (MLSW): (1) Ministry of Infrastructure and Environment, (2) Ministry of Economy, (3) Ministry of Health, and (4) Ministry of Finance. The interim government restored these competencies to the MLSW. (3,46) There is limited inter-ministerial communication between the Ministry of Internal Affairs and aforementioned government entities, which were tasked with the duties of the former MLSW in 2019. (2,47) Multiple entities have reported on insufficient institutional capacity at the central and municipal levels to improving funding and human resources for the Centers for Social Work (CSWs). This lack of institutional commitment posed an obstacle to the ability of CSWs to address cases of child labor in a competent and adequate manner. (3,8,12,48)

Labor Law Enforcement

In 2020, labor law enforcement agencies in Kosovo took actions to combat child labor (Table 6).

Table 6. Labor Law Enforcement Efforts Related to Child Labor

Overview of Labor Law Enforcement	2019	2020
Labor Inspectorate Funding	$830,333 (2)	$983,813 (8)

Number Conducted at Worksite	Unknown (46)	7,105 (8)
Number of Child Labor Violations Found	116 (46)	0 (8)
Number of Child Labor Violations for Which Penalties Were Imposed	Unknown (46)	0 (8)
Number of Child Labor Penalties Imposed that Were Collected	Unknown (2)	0 (8)
Routine Inspections Conducted	Yes (2)	Yes (3)
Routine Inspections Targeted	Yes (2)	Yes (8)
Unannounced Inspections Permitted	Yes (31)	Yes (31)
Unannounced Inspections Conducted	Yes (2)	Yes (8)
Complaint Mechanism Exists	Yes (2)	Yes (8)
Reciprocal Referral Mechanism Exists Between Labor Authorities and Social Services	Yes (2)	Yes (8)

In 2020, the Labor Inspectorate continued with public- and private-sector inspections, with a special focus on the construction and agriculture sectors, areas in which child labor is known to occur. (3) During the reporting period, the Labor Inspectorate did not conduct inspections in areas with ethnic Serb majorities. (8) Labor inspectors have the authority to inspect private farms; however, due to a lack of human resource capacity to adequately cover all sectors and regions, the CSWs, which also face human resource and budgetary constraints, typically conduct these inspections. (8,27,47,49)

The Labor Inspectorate had an overall strategy for conducting child labor inspections and incorporated identification of child victims of human trafficking in its strategy for 2017–2021. (8,50–53) Labor inspectors receive initial training when hired; however, these trainings do not cover child labor as a separate category. (8,53) Over 7,000 labor inspections were conducted at worksites during the reporting period. (8) In 2020, the ILO trained 48 Labor Inspectorate staff in two sessions focused on identification, referral, and tracking of child labor cases. In addition, the ILO held two virtual workshops in conjunction with the Kosovo Justice Academy to facilitate understanding of the judiciary's challenges in dealing with child labor throughout the country. (8)

The Labor Inspectorate's mandate allows it to investigate employment contracts for working children between ages 15 and 18 who have entered into an employment contract for a limited period. When child labor is discovered, the Labor Inspectorate issues the penalty and works with the Kosovo Police (KP) to remove the child from child labor. (8) In addition, the Labor Inspectorate coordinates inspections with CSWs for suspected abuse of children under the age of 15. According to NGO and media reports, the number of cases reported does not fully reflect the actual number of child labor cases due to the high level of labor market informality. (8,9,14)

Criminal Law Enforcement

In 2020, criminal law enforcement agencies in Kosovo took actions to combat child labor (Table 7). However, gaps exist within the operations of criminal enforcement agencies that may hinder adequate criminal law enforcement, including training for prosecutors and judges on identification of forced begging cases.

Table 7. Criminal Law Enforcement Efforts Related to Child Labor

Overview of Criminal Law Enforcement	2019	2020
Initial Training for New Criminal Investigators	Yes (2)	No (8)
Training on New Laws Related to the Worst Forms of Child Labor	Yes (2)	No (8)
Refresher Courses Provided	No (2)	No (8)
Number of Investigations	15 (54)	62 (8)
Number of Violations Found	15 (54)	79 (8)
Number of Prosecutions Initiated	15 (54)	37 (8)
Number of Convictions	Unknown (2)	Unknown
Imposed Penalties for Violations Related to the Worst Forms of Child Labor	Yes (54)	Unknown
Reciprocal Referral Mechanism Exists Between Criminal Authorities and Social Services	Yes (2)	Yes (8)

During the reporting period, the KP initiated multiple raids, held awareness campaigns, and conducted a series of anti-trafficking trainings for law enforcement. (8,53) In November 2020, the Kosovo Police Trafficking in Human Beings Directorate participated in a 3 day training from the FBI on labor trafficking and conducting Internet investigations for trafficking in persons and child exploitation cases. (53) In addition, KP officers received separate training on human trafficking, including forced labor, child trafficking, commercial sexual exploitation, and the use of children in illicit activities. The KP reported that resources and training related to child labor were sufficient. (8) The Kosovo Prosecutorial Council participated in meetings with the ILO throughout the year to identify issues with data collection on child labor violations in the country. During the reporting period, the KP reported 12 violations related to trafficking of children and referred 16 children to social services. (8)

The government did not provide information on the number of convictions or penalties imposed for violations related to the worst forms of child labor for inclusion in this report.

The KP tracks children referred to CSWs as a result of investigations conducted by its domestic violence and human trafficking units. (8,55) However, authorities did not consistently identify cases of forced begging, which are instead typically classified as parental neglect or abuse. (8,13,48)

IV. COORDINATION OF GOVERNMENT EFFORTS ON CHILD LABOR

The government has established mechanisms to coordinate its efforts to address child labor (Table 8). However, gaps exist that hinder effective coordination of efforts to address child labor, including efficacy in accomplishing mandates.

MODERATE ADVANCEMENT

Table 8. Key Mechanisms to Coordinate Government Efforts on Child Labor

Coordinating Body	Role & Description
Committee for Prevention and Elimination of Hazardous Forms of Child Labor	Coordinates government policies to combat child labor. Oversees and provides policy guidance for activities to prevent and eliminate child labor. (8) Comprises representatives of government agencies, KP, trade unions, and an NGO. (2) During the reporting period, the Committee conducted its two annual plenary meetings and held several ad hoc member meetings. In addition, the Committee drafted an action plan for central- and local-level institutions and civil society organizations to coordinate efforts on the prevention of hazardous child labor practices. (8)
Child Labor Monitoring System	Addresses child labor at the municipal level, identifies and provides existing child services, documents child labor trends, and evaluates local responses to child labor. (56) During the reporting period, child labor monitoring coordination focused on preventing children from engaging in ore mining and other methods of economic exploitation including physical labor in hazardous conditions. In addition, municipalities and families were engaged in efforts to reintegrate children into the educational system. (8)
National Agency Against Trafficking in Persons (NAATIP)	Coordinates policy implementation, and monitors and reports on actions to combat child trafficking through a National Anti-Trafficking Coordinator (NATC). (15,57) NATC is a deputy Interior Minister. (14,58) Includes representatives from the government, judiciary, municipal offices, NGOs, and the international community. (44,58) During the reporting period, NAATIP conducted meetings with stakeholders to discuss areas for improvement, potential legislative changes, and coordination amongst anti-TIP partners. In addition, NAATIP published its annual report on the monitoring of anti-TIP efforts throughout the country. (53)
Municipal Local Action Committees	Aim to prevent and eliminate child labor; report to the Child Labor Monitoring System. Members include representatives from schools, municipal education departments, and KP. (8) In 2020, the Committees participated in multiple ILO-sponsored activities in partnership with the Kosovo government. (3,8)

Since 2013, the government has been collecting and processing data on labor violations, which are made available to all ministries and law enforcement bodies. (56) During the reporting period, MLSW coordinated activities to revitalize several child labor monitoring mechanisms at the local level, including efforts to prevent children from engaging in ore mining and other forms of hazardous labor. In addition, the Ministry of Agriculture provided child labor-focused briefings to agricultural inspectors to provide an understanding of hazardous child labor in agricultural activities. (8)

V. GOVERNMENT POLICIES ON CHILD LABOR

The government has established policies related to child labor (Table 9). However, gaps exist that hinder efforts to address child labor, including funding to support the implementation of policies.

Table 9. Key Policies Related to Child Labor

Policy	Description
Children's Rights Action Plan (2019–2021)	Passed in January 2019. (2) Aims to improve social, economic, and legislative rights and the protection of children through developing institutions at the local and national levels. (51,59) Includes an accompanying Children's Rights Strategy (2019–2023). (51,59) During the reporting period, the Ministry of Labor and Social Welfare (MLSW) indicated that the Strategy would include objectives dedicated to the prevention, protection, and reintegration of children involved in hazardous child labor practices including ore extraction, farming, and street work. (8)
Strategy on the Rights of the Child (2019–2023)†	Adopted in 2020. Calls for a comprehensive framework of policies for the protection of children's rights, including the prevention, protection, and reintegration of children involved in hazardous child labor practices such as street work and underground ore extraction. (8)
Strategy for the Inclusion of Roma and Ashkali Communities (2016–2020)	Focused on employment, social issues, healthcare, and housing for the Ashkali and Roma communities. Aimed to strengthen individual's rights and full integration into society. (60) A special educational component promoted inclusive education for children from these communities. (61) During the reporting period, the strategy was active in partnership with Roma, Ashkali, and Egyptian civil society organizations. (3)
Kosovo Education Strategic Plan (2017–2021)	Emphasizes the inclusion of vulnerable minorities in the education system, especially for preschool children of the Roma, Ashkali, and Balkan Egyptian communities. Establishes regulations at the municipality level to facilitate preschool enrollment and raise awareness of school attendance and enrollment. (62) Research was unable to determine whether activities were undertaken to implement the Kosovo Education Strategic Plan during the reporting period.
Regulation on the Implementation of the Rights of Children Through a Child-Friendly Municipal Governance System	Protects and promotes the rights of children. Ensures that municipalities are child friendly and guarantees that all children receive social services, education, and safety. (63) Research was unable to determine whether activities were undertaken to implement the policy during the reporting period.

† Policy was approved during the reporting period.

During the reporting period, the judiciary improved the government's ability to combat trafficking of children involved in begging and other illicit activities. (8,11) However, the government did not finalize the review process for the National Strategy Against Human Trafficking for 2020–2024. In addition, the 2020 Action Plan Against Human Trafficking was not fully implemented during the reporting period. (53)

VI. SOCIAL PROGRAMS TO ADDRESS CHILD LABOR

In 2020, the government funded and participated in programs that include the goal of eliminating or preventing child labor (Table 10). However, gaps exist in these social programs, including funding.

Table 10. Key Social Programs to Address Child Labor

Program	Description
Hope and Homes for Children†	Government-funded NGO shelter. Accommodates child victims of abuse and human trafficking. (49) During the reporting period, the MLSW continued to implement the shelter program. (8)
UN Sustainable Development Cooperation Framework (2021–2025)*	Funded and implemented by the UN Kosovo Team. Promotes international standards and human rights safeguards of migrants and the social protection and educational inclusion of the Roma, Ashkali, and Balkan Egyptian communities. (29) Prioritizes four areas: accountable governance; inclusive and non-discriminatory social policies and services; resilient, sustainable and inclusive economic development; and social cohesion. During the reporting period, the Program contributed to improved access to healthcare and education for disadvantaged children, including those with disabilities and children from the Roma, Ashkali, and Egyptian communities. (3,8)
UN Kosovo/UNICEF Program (2021–2025)*	Introduced in 2020 to provide guidance for the UNICEF project team in Kosovo. (8) Aims to increase availability of early childhood education opportunities, inclusion of children with disabilities, and justice for children through data generation and evidence-based policymaking. (30,64)
The Helpline‡	Government-operated hotline for victims of domestic violence and human trafficking. (13) During the reporting period, the Helpline continued to be active. (8)
Measurement, Awareness-Raising, and Policy Engagement (MAP 16) Project on Child Labor and Forced Labor	USDOL-funded global project implemented by ILO to (1) improve the knowledge base on child labor, forced labor, and human trafficking; (2) improve awareness of these issues through the use of data-driven techniques; (3) strengthen policies and improve the capacity of governments and other stakeholders to combat child labor, forced labor, and human trafficking through national, regional, and global initiatives; and (4) strengthen partnerships to accelerate progress in combating child labor, forced labor, and human trafficking. In Kosovo, the project aims to build the capacity of the government and other stakeholders to address child labor. Additional information is available on the USDOL website . (65)

* Program was launched during the reporting period.

† Program is funded by the Government of the Republic of Kosovo.

‡ The government had other social programs that may have included the goal of eliminating or preventing child labor. (2,13,66)

The government continued to support social assistance to at-risk families and provided assistance with virtual education and textbooks. (8) During the reporting period, the government also continued to conduct awareness-raising activities in minority areas to encourage school registration. In addition, three municipalities established inter-agency case management roundtables led by CSWs to encourage more cooperation amongst local-level child protection officials. (8,53)

VII. SUGGESTED GOVERNMENT ACTIONS TO ELIMINATE CHILD LABOR

Based on the reporting above, suggested actions are identified that would advance the elimination of child labor in Kosovo (Table 11).

Table 11. Suggested Government Actions to Eliminate Child Labor

Area	Suggested Action	Year(s) Suggested
Legal Framework	Criminalize the use of children in prostitution.	2020
	Ensure that the minimum age for work applies to children in informal work.	2020
Enforcement	Ensure that Centers for Social Work have sufficient capacity and resources, such as shelter and short-term care services, personnel, and training to address the specific needs of child labor victims.	2018 – 2020
	Ensure that labor inspectors conduct child labor inspections on private farms and in areas with ethnic Serb majorities.	2017 – 2020

MODERATE ADVANCEMENT

Area	Suggested Action	Year(s) Suggested
Enforcement	Incorporate topics on child labor, including hazardous child labor, in both new employee training and refresher courses; ensure trainings on new child labor laws for all labor inspectors.	2017 – 2020
	Ensure Kosovo Police authorities are trained to identify cases of forced begging as child labor instead of parental neglect or abuse.	2020
	Publish information on criminal law enforcement efforts, including the number of convictions and penalties imposed.	2020
Government Policies	Integrate child labor elimination and prevention strategies into the Strategy for the Inclusion of Roma and Ashkali Communities.	2016 – 2020
	Ensure that the National Strategy Against Human Trafficking for 2020–2024 is implemented.	2020
	Ensure that the annual Action Plan Against Human Trafficking is implemented.	2020
	Ensure that the Kosovo Education Strategic Plan is active.	2020
	Ensure that the Regulation on the Implementation of the Rights of Children through a Child-Friendly Municipal Governance System is active.	2020
Social Programs	Collect and publish data on the extent and nature of child labor to inform policies and programs.	2017 – 2020
	Eliminate barriers and make education accessible for all children by making additional efforts to register Ashkali, Balkan Egyptian, and Roma children at birth.	2011 – 2020
	Increase the number of shelter spaces and short-term services available for child labor victims.	2020

MINIMAL ADVANCEMENT – EFFORTS MADE BUT CONTINUED LAW AND PRACTICE THAT DELAYED ADVANCEMENT

In 2020, the Kyrgyz Republic made minimal advancement in efforts to eliminate the worst forms of child labor. The government ratified International Labor Organization P029, Protocol of 2014 to the Forced Labor Convention, and drafted a National Action Plan to Combat Trafficking in Persons for 2021–2024. However, despite new initiatives to address child labor, the Kyrgyz Republic is assessed as having made only minimal advancement because it continued to implement a law and practice that delays advancement in eliminating the worst forms of child labor. The government extended a 2019 moratorium on labor inspections until 2022. Although the government amended this moratorium in 2020 to permit labor inspections based on formal complaints, the Ministry of Economy must approve worksite visits associated with such inspections, and in practice, it announces these visits in advance. As a result, unannounced inspections remain severely restricted. Children in the Kyrgyz Republic are subjected to the worst forms of child labor, including in commercial sexual exploitation. Children also engage in child labor in agriculture. Protections to children granted in the Labor Code, such as the minimum age of employment, are not extended to children engaged in non-contractual employment, and research indicated that labor law enforcement efforts are not targeted to all sectors in which children are vulnerable to child labor, especially agriculture. In addition, the scope of social programs to combat child labor is insufficient to fully address the extent of the problem.

I. PREVALENCE AND SECTORAL DISTRIBUTION OF CHILD LABOR

Children in the Kyrgyz Republic are subjected to the worst forms of child labor, including in commercial sexual exploitation. (1,2) Children also engage in child labor in agriculture. (3-7) Table I provides key indicators on children’s work and education in the Kyrgyz Republic. Data on some of these indicators are not available from the sources used in this report.

Table I. Statistics on Children’s Work and Education

Children	Age	Percent
Working (% and population)	5 to 14	34.0 (Unavailable)
Attending School (%)	5 to 14	94.7
Combining Work and School (%)	7 to 14	38.4
Primary Completion Rate (%)		108.6

Source for primary completion rate: Data from 2019, published by UNESCO Institute for Statistics, 2021. (8)

Source for all other data: International Labor Organization’s analysis of statistics from Multiple Indicator Cluster Survey 6 (MICS 6), 2018. (9)

Based on a review of available information, Table 2 provides an overview of children’s work by sector and activity.

Table 2. Overview of Children’s Work by Sector and Activity

Sector/Industry	Activity
Agriculture	Cultivating or harvesting cotton, tobacco,† rice, potatoes, beans, and onions (3,5-7,10-14)
	Herding cattle (1)
Industry	Coal mining† (3,15)
	Brick making (13,15)
	Construction, including lifting and portering construction materials, and cutting metal sheets for roofs (3,7,13,16)
Services	Working in bazaars and markets, including portering, shining shoes, collecting plastic bottles and garbage, and selling items, including food and beverages (5,11,12,15)
	Washing cars (13)
	Working in restaurants and cafes (5,7,13,15)
	Street work, including begging and shoe shining (10,11)
	Domestic work, including child care (10)

MINIMAL ADVANCEMENT – EFFORTS MADE BUT CONTINUED LAW AND PRACTICE THAT DELAYED ADVANCEMENT

Sector/Industry	Activity
Categorical Worst Forms of Child Labor ‡	Commercial sexual exploitation (1,2,13)
	Use in illicit activities, including trafficking drugs, as a result of human trafficking (17)

† Determined by national law or regulation as hazardous and, as such, relevant to Article 3(d) of ILO C. 182.

‡ Child labor understood as the worst forms of child labor per se under Article 3(a)–(c) of ILO C. 182.

Child labor, including hazardous child labor, is most prevalent in Naryn and Osh provinces. (3) Children from the Kyrgyz Republic who travel to Kazakhstan to work, either with their parents or unaccompanied, cannot attend school due to a lack of documentation. These children engage in child labor in Kazakhstan in construction, farming, herding, or selling products in markets; some fall victim to forced child labor. (18) Within the Kyrgyz Republic, children of labor migrants have been identified in child labor in markets. (19)

The inability to enroll in school makes children from a variety of circumstances vulnerable to child labor. According to UNICEF, an estimated 650,000–750,000 citizens of the Kyrgyz Republic work abroad, and an additional 1 million are internal migrants. (20) Some children, who have either migrated with their parents or were left behind when their parents migrated to work in other countries or other areas of the Kyrgyz Republic, cannot access their birth certificates or guardianship documents, which are required for school enrollment. (6,20) Children living and working on the street and children living in rural areas also have difficulty accessing education. (13) In rare cases, some parents prevent children from attending school for religious reasons. (6,21)

In addition, children with disabilities face challenges accessing education in the Kyrgyz Republic. Approximately 3,000 children with disabilities live in residential institutions or special schools, often because of a recommendation from the Ministry of Science and Education against enrolling a child with disabilities in mainstream school. (22) The majority of these institutional schools offer only 9 grades of education, compared to 11 offered at mainstream schools, and grant children a certificate that is not accepted at higher education institutions. The Ministry of Science and Education refers some children with disabilities for home education, which is often fewer than 5 hours a week. (22)

II. LEGAL FRAMEWORK FOR CHILD LABOR

The Kyrgyz Republic has ratified all key international conventions concerning child labor (Table 3).

Table 3. Ratification of International Conventions on Child Labor

Convention	Ratification
 ILO C. 138, Minimum Age	✓
 ILO C. 182, Worst Forms of Child Labor	✓
 UN CRC	✓
 UN CRC Optional Protocol on Armed Conflict	✓
 UN CRC Optional Protocol on the Sale of Children, Child Prostitution and Child Pornography	✓
 Palermo Protocol on Trafficking in Persons	✓

In 2020, the government ratified ILO P029, Protocol of 2014 to the Forced Labor Convention. (23)

The government has established laws and regulations related to child labor (Table 4). However, gaps exist in the Kyrgyz Republic’s legal framework to adequately protect children from the worst forms of child labor, including the minimum age for work.

MINIMAL ADVANCEMENT – EFFORTS MADE BUT CONTINUED LAW AND PRACTICE THAT DELAYED ADVANCEMENT

Table 4. Laws and Regulations on Child Labor

Standard	Meets International Standards	Age	Legislation
Minimum Age for Work	No	16	Articles 6 and 18 of the Labor Code (24)
Minimum Age for Hazardous Work	Yes	18	Articles 294 and 446 of the Labor Code; Article 72 of the Code on Administrative Liability; Article 15 of the Code on Children (24–26)
Identification of Hazardous Occupations or Activities Prohibited for Children	Yes		Article 294 of the Labor Code; Decree 565 on the List of works prohibited for persons under age 18 (24,27)
Prohibition of Forced Labor	Yes		Articles 10 and 446 of the Labor Code; Article 15.2 of the Code on Children; Article 1 of the Law on Preventing and Combating Human Trafficking; Article 173 of the Criminal Code (24,25,28,29)
Prohibition of Child Trafficking	Yes		Article 1 of the Law on Preventing and Combating Human Trafficking; Article 171 of the Criminal Code (28,29)
Prohibition of Commercial Sexual Exploitation of Children	No		Articles 166–168 of the Criminal Code; Articles 5 and 15 of the Code on Children (25,28)
Prohibition of Using Children in Illicit Activities	Yes		Articles 180–181 and 267–268 of the Criminal Code; Articles 5 and 15 of the Code on Children (25,28)
Minimum Age for Voluntary State Military Recruitment	Yes	18	Article 24.1 of the Law on Military Service (30)
Prohibition of Compulsory Recruitment of Children by (State) Military	Yes		Articles 17.1 and 22.1 of the Law on Military Service; Article 392 of the Criminal Code (28,30)
Prohibition of Military Recruitment by Non-state Armed Groups	Yes		Articles 392 and 395 of the Criminal Code (28)
Compulsory Education Age	Yes	16‡	Article 16 of the Law on Education (31)
Free Public Education	Yes		Article 16 of the Law on Education (31)

‡ Age calculated based on available information (31)

In 2020, the government adopted a revised list of hazardous work prohibited for children under age 18. (27)

According to Article 6 of the Labor Code, protections to children granted in the labor code, such as the minimum age for employment, are not extended to children engaged in non-contractual employment. (24)

Article 18 of the Labor Code prohibits children age 14 from working during school hours, and requires that parents give written permission for children age 14 to work. Children age 15 may work only for employers who have received permission from a worker's organization or a government regulatory body. (24) Articles 91 and 95 of the Labor Code also restrict the number of hours that children under age 16 may engage in light work. Children ages 14 and 15 may not work more than 24 hours per week, and daily shifts may not exceed 5 hours during school breaks or 2.5 hours when school is in session. (24) However, the Kyrgyz Republic does not have a list of activities in which light work may be permitted. (32)

Although Article 166 of the Criminal Code criminalizes the involvement of children in prostitution, no law clearly criminalizes the users (clients) of prostitution involving children. In addition, prohibitions under Article 167 against offering children for prostitution do not cover children ages 16–17. (28,33)

III. ENFORCEMENT OF LAWS ON CHILD LABOR

The government has established institutional mechanisms for the enforcement of laws and regulations on child labor (Table 5). However, the absence of unannounced inspections conducted at the national level in the Kyrgyz Republic may impede the enforcement of child labor laws.

Kyrgyz Republic

MINIMAL ADVANCEMENT – EFFORTS MADE BUT CONTINUED LAW AND PRACTICE THAT DELAYED ADVANCEMENT

Table 5. Agencies Responsible for Child Labor Law Enforcement

Organization/Agency	Role
State Inspectorate on Ecological and Technical Safety	Monitors worksites and refers child laborers to social services. Coordinates with the Inspectorate for Minors' Affairs in the Ministry of Internal Affairs (MOIA), the Prosecutor General's Office, and regional State District Administration authorities to enforce child labor laws. (13,15)
MOIA	Enforces criminal laws related to child labor, including its worst forms. Conducts independent inspections and joint raids with the State Inspectorate on Ecological and Technical Safety to identify violations, which can be referred to the Prosecutor General's Office for prosecutorial action. (13)
Prosecutor General's Office	Implements and enforces state policy and law related to child protection, including guaranteeing children's rights and enforcing laws prohibiting the worst forms of child labor. (1)
National Referral Mechanism	Establishes procedures and policies for (a) identification of victims of human trafficking, (b) referrals for and provision of social services to victims, and (c) protection of victims' personal data. (34,35)
Helpline for Children	Hotline operated by the Ministry of Labor and Social Development through which children, parents, and legal guardians can report child abuse and exploitation, including the worst forms of child labor, and receive referrals for services. (36,37) Received 128,567 calls in 2020. The government reported that no calls resulted in the identification of child victims of human trafficking; however, information was not available on whether cases referred through the hotline involved other worst forms of child labor. (36)

Due to the COVID-19 pandemic, the Prosecutor General's Office restricted activities and worked remotely between March and September 2020, which may have limited some investigation and prosecution efforts related to the worst forms of child labor. Reports indicate that the pandemic also slowed implementation of the National Referral Mechanism (NRM). (36)

Labor Law Enforcement

In 2020, lack of authorization to conduct unannounced inspections in the Kyrgyz Republic may have impeded the enforcement of child labor laws (Table 6).

During the reporting period, the government extended until 2022 a 2019 moratorium on inspection of business enterprises. (41-44) Although the government also amended the moratorium to permit labor inspections based on formal complaints, the Ministry of Economy must approve worksite visits associated with such inspections, and in practice, it announces these visits in advance. (13,39,40) Moreover, the State Inspectorate on Ecological and Technical Safety (State Inspectorate) cannot initiate inspections based on anonymous complaints. (45) These restrictions on unannounced inspections severely limit the State Inspectorate's ability to detect violations of labor laws, including those related to child labor. (5) In addition to labor inspections, the State Inspectorate participates in raids led by the Ministry of Internal Affairs (MOIA) to identify and assist children engaged in child labor, including those subjected to its worst forms. (46)

In 2020, the MOIA reported conducting 790 raids between January and September, through which authorities identified 539 working children. (46) The State Inspectorate reported participating in 26 of these raids, through which inspectors identified 93 child labor violations. (5) Information was unavailable regarding the number of violations that MOIA referred to the State Inspectorate, or the penalties that the State Inspectorate imposed in response to child labor violations identified during these raids. Sources indicate that the State Inspectorate rarely imposes penalties for child labor violations. (4) In addition, the Prosecutor General's Office reported conducting 37 inspections to detect child labor, through which it identified 113 violations. Prosecutors initiated 43 legal actions in response to these violations, resulting in civil penalties against 7 individuals. (1) During the reporting period, 119 working children and 19 children subjected to the worst forms of child labor were referred to the Ministry of Labor and Social Development for social services. (4)

In 2020, the State Inspectorate employed 27 labor inspectors. (4,5) The number of labor inspectors is likely insufficient for the size of the Kyrgyz Republic's workforce, which includes more than 2.8 million workers. (47) According to the ILO's technical advice of a ratio approaching 1 inspector for every 20,000 workers in transitioning economies, the Kyrgyz Republic would employ about 140 labor inspectors. (48,49) The State Inspectorate has noted that the number of labor inspectors is likely insufficient to ensure the appropriate enforcement of the country's child labor laws. (5,7) Sources also report that the majority of enforcement activities to detect child labor are concentrated in markets in Bishkek and Osh, with few inspections or raids undertaken to detect child labor in agriculture. (4) The Prosecutor General's Office noted that enforcement agencies rarely undertake efforts to detect child labor in rural areas, in which children are vulnerable to child labor in crop cultivation, cattle herding, and other forms of agriculture. (1) The ILO has expressed concern that the State Inspectorate lacks sufficient funding to carry out inspections, although the government does not publicly release information on the level of funding for labor inspection activities, because it is deemed classified. (4,15) The State Inspectorate reported that funding levels decreased during the reporting period due to a decrease in the number of labor inspectors compared to 2019. (4)

The State Inspectorate reported that inspectors have not received formal training on child labor in recent years. (4,7) Inspectors did not receive training on child labor during the reporting period. (5)

Although the Code on Children formally provides for a child labor complaint mechanism, reports indicate that a lack of institutional capacity among labor inspectors and social workers may hinder adequate implementation of this mechanism. (13,25)

Criminal Law Enforcement

In 2020, criminal law enforcement agencies in the Kyrgyz Republic took actions to combat child labor (Table 7). However, gaps exist within the operations of the criminal enforcement agencies that may hinder adequate criminal law enforcement, including prosecution planning.

† Data are from January 1 to September 30, 2019.

‡ Data are from January 1 to September 30, 2020.

Between January and September 2020, criminal enforcement agencies initiated a total of nine pretrial investigations into the worst forms of child labor, including three investigations into the involvement of children in prostitution (Criminal Code Article 166), five investigations into the use of children for the production of pornography (Criminal Code Article 168), and one investigation into forced child labor (Criminal Code Article 173). Of the three cases related to the involvement of children in prostitution, one was closed due to lack of evidence, one was referred for prosecution, and one is still under investigation. (1) Of the five cases related to the use of children in the production of pornography, three cases were closed due to lack of evidence, and two cases are still under investigation. The investigation into a case involving forced child labor was closed due to lack of evidence. (1) The Prosecutor General's Office also reported a case from 2019 in which a child in the Issyk-Kyl region was compelled to work as a shepherd to pay off a debt his parents had incurred. This case was referred for prosecution under Article 23 of the Constitution of the Kyrgyz Republic. (1)

During the reporting period, criminal investigators in Bishkek and Chuy Province received training from UNODC on investigation methods for cases involving human trafficking. (46) Investigators also received training from local NGOs on the NRM and how to refer suspected human trafficking cases to the NRM. (36)

Reports suggest that Kyrgyz police officers exploit human trafficking victims, including some younger than age 18. Concerns persist about police misconduct, including allegations that police threaten and extort sex trafficking victims, including minors, and reports indicate that police accept bribes from alleged traffickers to drop cases. (17)

IV. COORDINATION OF GOVERNMENT EFFORTS ON CHILD LABOR

The government has established mechanisms to coordinate its efforts to address child labor (Table 8). However, gaps exist that hinder the effective coordination of efforts to address child labor, including efficacy in accomplishing mandates.

Table 8. Key Mechanisms to Coordinate Government Efforts on Child Labor

Coordinating Body	Role & Description
Children's Affairs Commission	Assesses the needs of children in difficult situations, including child laborers; creates individual development plans; and monitors service delivery. Members include social workers from regional Departments of Child Protection of the Ministry of Labor and Social Development and law enforcement authorities. (15) Operates according to the Regulations on the Procedure for the Identification of Children and Families in Difficult Situations. (52) Continued to operate in 2020. (4)
Coordination Council for Social Protection and Children's Rights	Develops policies and programs to enhance the provision of social services and guarantee children's rights. Chaired by the Deputy Prime Minister, and includes members from both government and civil society. (53) Research was unable to determine whether the Coordination Council was active during the reporting period.
Anti-Trafficking in Persons Task Force	Parliamentary group that coordinates and oversees work to combat trafficking in persons. (50) In 2020, convened to develop best practices for investigating human trafficking and reviewing and reinvestigating trafficking cases that had been improperly dismissed. (36)
Regional Trafficking in Persons Coordination Councils	Coordinate local implementation of the National Action Plan to Combat Trafficking in Persons in all seven provincial governments and the city of Osh. (54) Research was unable to determine whether the Regional Coordination Councils were active during the reporting period.

In 2020, the State Inspectorate issued a decree establishing a tripartite agreement between the Ministry of Education, Ministry of Labor and Social Development, and MOIA to enhance inter-agency coordination on the elimination of violence against children, including the worst forms of child labor. (4)

MINIMAL ADVANCEMENT – EFFORTS MADE BUT CONTINUED LAW AND PRACTICE THAT DELAYED ADVANCEMENT

Reports indicate that the Children's Affairs Commission lacks adequate procedures to conduct needs assessments for traumatized children, such as those who have been subjected to commercial sexual exploitation or other worst forms of child labor, hindering its ability to effectively accomplish its mandate. (19,55) Observers have also noted that the inability of social services providers to participate in child labor investigations impedes the ability of the Children's Affairs Commission to fulfill its mandate. (4)

V. GOVERNMENT POLICIES ON CHILD LABOR

The government has established policies related to child labor (Table 9). However, policy gaps exist that hinder efforts to address child labor, including implementation.

Table 9. Key Policies Related to Child Labor

Policy	Description
Program for the Support of Family and Protection of Children (2018–2028)	Includes action items on addressing child labor, including revising the hazardous work list for children, enhancing social services for vulnerable children and families, and creating an Action Plan on the Prevention and Elimination of Child Labor. (56) In 2020, the government approved an updated list of hazardous jobs prohibited for children under age 18. (4,27)
National Action Plan to Combat Trafficking in Persons (2017–2020)	Aimed to improve the legal framework on human trafficking; improve dissemination of information on human trafficking risks for migrants and vulnerable populations; raise awareness about protections for victims and criminal penalties for perpetrators; and improve coordination among government agencies, NGOs, and international partners. (57,58) In 2020, the government assessed progress on the National Action Plan (2017–2020) as having achieved 33 out of 38 policy goals. (36)

In 2020, the government convened an Inter-Departmental Working Group to develop a new Program to Combat Trafficking in Persons for 2021–2024. As part of the development of this program, the Working Group drafted a National Action Plan to Combat Trafficking in Persons (2021–2024) that is awaiting approval. (36)

Although the government drafted a new Action Plan on the Prevention and Eradication of Child Labor (2020–2024) in 2019 as a sub-component of the Program for the Support of Family and Protection of Children (2018–2028), this draft Action Plan was not implemented during the reporting period. Sources report that political instability in the Kyrgyz Republic in 2020 may have contributed to the delay in authorization and implementation of this plan. (4)

VI. SOCIAL PROGRAMS TO ADDRESS CHILD LABOR

In 2020, the government funded and participated in programs that include the goal of eliminating or preventing child labor (Table 10). However, gaps exist in these social programs, including the adequacy of programs to address the full scope of the problem.

Table 10. Key Social Programs to Address Child Labor

Program	Description
Cash Transfer Program†	Government-funded cash transfer program for families living in difficult situations, including families with children engaged in child labor. (4) In 2020, cash assistance from the Ministry of Labor and Social Development continued to be available to such families. (4,37) However, based on available information, the amount of assistance appears to be low, and some families face barriers to accessing these benefits. (59,60)
Ministry of Education and Science (MOES) National School Attendance Database‡	Unified online database maintained by MOES to monitor school enrollment and attendance. Based on these data, government ministries and local government officials can identify and assist children who may be vulnerable to child labor. (4,6) In 2020, MOES used the database to generate a list of micro-areas with low rates of school attendance. MOES subsequently worked with MOIA to identify 691 children who were not attending school and were engaged in child labor. (6)
Shelters for Trafficking Victims†	Includes two 24-hour shelters funded by the government and operated by NGOs that serve victims of violence of all ages, including child trafficking victims. One center is located in Bishkek and the other is in Osh. (36) MOIA also operates two daytime children's shelters, also located in Bishkek and Osh. These shelters continued to provide services in 2020, but they were closed for a portion of the reporting period due to the COVID-19 pandemic. (36)

† Program is funded by the Government of the Kyrgyz Republic.

‡ The government had other social programs that may have included the goal of eliminating or preventing child labor. (61)

MINIMAL ADVANCEMENT – EFFORTS MADE BUT CONTINUED LAW AND PRACTICE THAT DELAYED ADVANCEMENT

In 2020, the State Inspectorate conducted awareness-raising events about child labor for families and for employers, including farmers and members of agriculture cooperatives. (5,7)

Although the Kyrgyz Republic has programs that target child labor, the scope of these programs is insufficient to fully address the extent of the problem, particularly in commercial sexual exploitation and in agriculture, including cultivating cotton.

VII. SUGGESTED GOVERNMENT ACTIONS TO ELIMINATE CHILD LABOR

Based on the reporting above, suggested actions are identified that would advance the elimination of child labor in the Kyrgyz Republic (Table 11).

Table 11. Suggested Government Actions to Eliminate Child Labor

Area	Suggested Action	Year(s) Suggested
Legal Framework	Ensure that the law's minimum age provisions apply to all children, including those working without an employment contract.	2014 – 2020
	Criminally prohibit and penalize the use of a child for prostitution, and ensure that laws prohibiting offering of children for prostitution cover all children under age 18.	2019 – 2020
	Ensure that the law's light work provisions specify the activities in which children may undertake light work.	2020
Enforcement	Lift the moratorium on labor inspections and ensure that the labor inspectorate conducts routine, targeted, and unannounced labor inspections, and assesses penalties as appropriate.	2018 – 2020
	Publish complete information about the State Inspectorate on Ecological and Technical Safety's efforts to enforce prohibitions on child labor, including information on the Inspectorate's funding, the number of labor inspections conducted, and the number of penalties assessed and collected.	2011 – 2020
	Strengthen the labor inspection system by providing child labor training for new labor inspectors, and provide to all labor inspectors refresher courses on child labor that include information about changes to child labor laws.	2014 – 2020
	Ensure that child labor violations identified by criminal enforcement agencies are appropriately referred to the State Inspectorate on Ecological and Technical Safety, and that penalties are assessed as appropriate.	2020
	Significantly increase the number of labor inspectors to meet the ILO's technical advice and ensure that inspectors have adequate resources to conduct inspections.	2012 – 2020
	Conduct targeted inspections in all sectors in which children are highly vulnerable to child labor, including agriculture.	2020
	Ensure that the State Inspectorate on Ecological and Technical Safety and relevant social services providers have the capacity to adequately implement the child labor complaint mechanism.	2019 – 2020
	Ensure that criminal law enforcement agencies investigate and prosecute violations related to the worst forms of child labor, including cases of possible police complicity in abusing victims.	2015 – 2020
Coordination	Ensure that the procedures for needs assessment of the Children's Affairs Commission are appropriate for traumatized children, including children who were engaged in the worst forms of child labor.	2019 – 2020
	Strengthen the Children's Affairs Commission by empowering relevant social services providers to assist, as appropriate, with investigations related to child labor.	2020
	Ensure that all coordinating bodies are able to carry out their intended mandates.	2020
Government Policies	Implement a comprehensive policy to address all relevant forms of child labor.	2020
Social Programs	Ensure that all children have access to free education, including children with disabilities, those living and working on the street, those lacking residence registration, and those without birth certificates and guardianship documents.	2009 – 2020
	Ensure that social programs, such as the Cash Transfer Program, provide sufficient benefits to reduce vulnerability to child labor and are accessible to families.	2019 – 2020
	Expand existing programs to address the scope of the child labor problem, particularly in commercial sexual exploitation and in agriculture, including cultivating cotton.	2014 – 2020

In 2020, Lebanon made minimal advancement in efforts to eliminate the worst forms of child labor. During the reporting year, the Internal Security Forces reported conducting two training sessions, one for social violence and child labor and a separate training for junior officers who will be in charge of judicial investigations in regional units. However, children in Lebanon are subjected to the worst forms of child labor, including in construction and in forced labor in agriculture, sometimes as a result of human trafficking. Children also engage in child labor in the production of potatoes and tobacco. Laws related to forced labor do not meet international standards as there is no legislative provision that provides criminal penalties for forced labor, and debt bondage is not criminally prohibited. Furthermore, the Ministry of Labor's budget was unable to cover equipment, personnel, and transportation costs to conduct inspections. In addition, labor inspectors do not have the authority to inspect informal workplaces, in which child labor in Lebanon is most prominent, and programs targeting child labor remained insufficient to fully address the extent of the problem.

I. PREVALENCE AND SECTORAL DISTRIBUTION OF CHILD LABOR

Children in Lebanon are subjected to the worst forms of child labor, including in construction and in forced labor in agriculture, sometimes as a result of human trafficking. (1-2) Children also engage in child labor in the production of potatoes and tobacco. (3,4) Table 1 provides key indicators on children's work and education in Lebanon. Data on key indicators on children's work and education are not available from the sources used in this report.

Table 1. Statistics on Children's Work and Education

Children	Age	Percent
Working (% and population)	5 to 14	Unavailable
Attending School (%)	5 to 14	Unavailable
Combining Work and School (%)	7 to 14	Unavailable
Primary Completion Rate (%)		Unavailable

Source for primary completion rate: Data from 2017, published by UNESCO Institute for Statistics, 2021. (5)
Data were unavailable from International Labor Organization's analysis, 2021. (6)

Based on a review of available information, Table 2 provides an overview of children's work by sector and activity.

	Forced labor in agriculture, sometimes as a result of human trafficking (1-4,11,19)

† Determined by national law or regulation as hazardous and, as such, relevant to Article 3(d) of ILO C. 182.

‡ Child labor understood as the worst forms of child labor per se under Article 3(a)–(c) of ILO C. 182.

Multiple crises have converged on Lebanon that have increased the rate of child labor, including a national economic crisis that began in 2019 and continued to worsen throughout the reporting period, the prolonged presence of Syrian refugees, and the COVID-19 pandemic, which has created new barriers to education and accelerated economic decline. (7,12,20,31) Lebanon has experienced protracted economic and political crises since anti-government protests began in 2019. Shortly after the Port of Beirut explosion on August 4, 2020, the Lebanese Government resigned and a caretaker government was still in place at the end of the reporting period. (7) The limited powers of the caretaker government restricted the government's ability to respond to the multiple crises it faced as more than half the country fell below the poverty line. (7) UNICEF reported that the rate of child labor increased from 2.6 percent to 4.4 percent during the reporting period, with agriculture and street work making up most of the increase. (7,32)

UNHCR estimates that there were 1.5 million Syrian refugees in Lebanon in 2020 and 88 percent of them are living below the extreme poverty line, making Syrian refugee children vulnerable to exploitation. (33) Child labor is also prevalent in other refugee communities in Lebanon, including the Palestinian and Iraqi communities. (20,34) Syrian refugee children are subjected to forced labor in agriculture. (1-3,19) Some Syrian refugee children and their families in the Bekaa Valley are kept in bonded labor in agriculture to pay for makeshift dwellings provided by landowners. (1,12,35,36) An estimated 75 percent of Syrian refugee children working in the Bekaa Valley do so in agriculture. (37) Adult Syrian refugees face legal restrictions that allow them to work only in agriculture, construction, and sanitation. (19,38) These restrictions on adults make children vulnerable to child labor. (11,39)

Children in Lebanon, particularly Syrian refugee children, face barriers to accessing education, including the cost of transportation and supplies, fear of passing checkpoints or of violence, lack of private sanitation facilities for girls, discrimination, bullying, corporal punishment, and a different curriculum in Lebanon than in their country of origin. (3,4,7,15,16,40) In 2020, the government continued its policy of admitting all refugee children regardless of whether they have the required documentation for school enrollment. (7) However, the public school system in Lebanon lacks the capacity to accommodate the large number of school-age Syrian refugee children. (20) Despite the official policy of schools being open to all, in practice, some refugees have been denied access to schools. (4) Moreover, students without documentation are only eligible to receive a certificate, rather than a diploma, causing some undocumented students to drop out. (4) Before the pandemic, more than 50 percent of Syrian refugee children and 35 percent of Palestinian refugee children were not enrolled in formal education. (25,41,42) Children with disabilities, particularly refugee children, were unable to attend school due to insufficient accessibility or inadequacy of facilities, lack of specialized facilities, or unavailability of tailored services for children with disabilities. (40,43) In addition, the economic crisis has precipitated a movement of Lebanese children from private schools to public schools, putting further strain on an overburdened system. (7) Lebanese and refugee children who work in agriculture often do not attend school during harvesting and planting seasons. (44) One local organization observed a direct correlation between school dropout rates and an increase in child labor. (25)

On March 2, 2020, the government suspended the 2019–2020 academic year due to the pandemic, interrupting the education of more than 1 million children, including 200,000 Syrian refugees. (7) In October and November, schools resumed functioning using a hybrid online and in-class strategy. However, the lack of electricity and Internet continued to prevent some children from accessing remote learning. (7) According to UNICEF, only 35 percent of school-age children had some access to remote learning, and insufficient Internet speeds still prevented one-third of those students from continuing their education remotely. (7,32)

II. LEGAL FRAMEWORK FOR CHILD LABOR

Lebanon has ratified most key international conventions concerning child labor (Table 3).

Table 3. Ratification of International Conventions on Child Labor

Convention	Ratification
 ILO C. 138, Minimum Age	✓
ILO C. 182, Worst Forms of Child Labor	✓
 UN CRC	✓
UN CRC Optional Protocol on Armed Conflict	✓
UN CRC Optional Protocol on the Sale of Children, Child Prostitution and Child Pornography	✓
 Palermo Protocol on Trafficking in Persons	✓

The government has established laws and regulations related to child labor (Table 4). However, gaps exist in Lebanon’s legal framework to adequately protect children from the worst forms of child labor, including the prohibition of debt bondage.

Table 4. Laws and Regulations on Child Labor

Standard	Meets International Standards	Age	Legislation
Minimum Age for Work	No	14	Article 22 of the Labor Code (45)
Minimum Age for Hazardous Work	Yes	18	Article 1 of Decree No. 8987 (46)
Identification of Hazardous Occupations or Activities Prohibited for Children	Yes		Annex 1 of Decree No. 8987 (19,46)
Prohibition of Forced Labor	No		Article 8 of Decree No. 3855; Article 569 of the Penal Code (47,48)
Prohibition of Child Trafficking	Yes		Articles 586.1 and 586.5 of the Penal Code (48)
Prohibition of Commercial Sexual Exploitation of Children	No		Articles 506, 523, 525–527, 586.1, and 586.5 of the Penal Code; Decree No. 8987(46,48)
Prohibition of Using Children in Illicit Activities	Yes		Articles 586.1, 586.5, and 618 of the Penal Code; Article 13 of the Law on Drugs (48,49)

MINIMAL ADVANCEMENT

Standard	Meets International Standards	Age	Legislation
Prohibition of Military Recruitment by Non-state Armed Groups	Yes		Article 586.1 of the Penal Code; Annex I of Decree No. 8987 (46,48)
Compulsory Education Age	Yes	15‡	Article 49 of the Education Law (51)
Free Public Education	Yes		Article 49 of the Education Law (51)

* No conscription (52)

‡ Age calculated based on available information (34)

The Labor Code only applies to workers who perform work in industrial, trading, or agricultural enterprises and excludes domestic work and non-industrial, non-trade agriculture. (45) This does not conform to international standards that require all children to be protected by the minimum age for work.

In Lebanon, basic education is compulsory. (51) Children generally complete basic education at age 15. (34) The minimum age for work is lower than the compulsory education age, which may encourage children to leave school before the completion of compulsory education.

Laws related to forced labor are insufficient because there is no legislative provision that provides criminal penalties for the exaction of forced labor, and debt bondage is not criminally prohibited. (48,53)

The law does not sufficiently prohibit commercial sexual exploitation, as the use of children in the production of pornography is not criminally prohibited. (46,48)

III. ENFORCEMENT OF LAWS ON CHILD LABOR

The government has established institutional mechanisms for the enforcement of laws and regulations on child labor (Table 5). However, gaps exist within the operations of enforcement agencies that may hinder adequate enforcement of their child labor laws.

Table 5. Agencies Responsible for Child Labor Law Enforcement

Organization/Agency	Role
Ministry of Labor	Enforces child labor laws through desk review and workplace inspections. Acts as government focal point for child labor issues. (4) The Ministry's Child Labor Unit raises public awareness about child labor and the right to education. Receives complaints of child labor violations on its Child Labor Unit hotline. (4)
Internal Security Forces	Enforces laws regarding child labor through the Anti-Human Trafficking and Morals Protection Bureau. (4)
Ministry of Justice	Prosecutes violations of the Penal Code in coordination with the Internal Security Forces. Maintains general data and statistics on criminal violations involving child labor. (4) Refers at-risk children to shelters and protection services. Coordinates, through signed agreements, with civil society organizations to provide social workers who oversee court proceedings involving juveniles and deliver services to them, including children engaged in begging. (4)
Directorate of General Security	Focuses on immigration and border protection. Works with the farmers' union to address child labor in agriculture. (4)

Labor Law Enforcement

In 2020, labor law enforcement agencies in Lebanon took actions to combat child labor (Table 6). However, gaps exist within the authority of the Ministry of Labor (MOL) that may hinder adequate labor law enforcement, including the authority to assess penalties.

Table 6. Labor Law Enforcement Efforts Related to Child Labor

Overview of Labor Law Enforcement	2019	2020

In 2020, virtually all labor inspections conducted were the result of complaints, which are received through an MOL-operated hotline or the Child Labor Unit webpage. (7) In addition, government officials in the past have expressed frustration that they can only conduct inspections in formal places of employment, in which child labor is nearly non-existent. (4,19,20,56) Government officials indicate that funding is insufficient to properly carry out their duties. However, the MOL reported that a car has been provided for inspectors by the ministry. (54) Research was unable to determine whether this was sufficient to meet inspectors' transportation needs.

Lebanon's public sector hiring freeze, instituted in 2019, remained in effect throughout the reporting period, preventing the MOL from hiring additional inspectors. (54) The number of labor inspectors is likely insufficient for the size of Lebanon's workforce, which includes more than 2.1 million workers. (4,57) According to the ILO's technical advice of a ratio approaching 1 inspector for every 15,000 workers in developing economies, Lebanon would employ about 144 labor inspectors. (58,59)

According to local observers, the MOL's hotline is not fully functional and works for a limited number of hours on official workdays. It does not have a system to register incoming calls. (25)

The government does not publicly release information on its labor law enforcement efforts. (19)

Criminal Law Enforcement

In 2020, criminal law enforcement agencies in Lebanon took actions to combat child labor (Table 7). However, gaps exist within the operations of the criminal enforcement agencies that may hinder adequate criminal law enforcement, including the allocation of financial resources.

Table 7. Criminal Law Enforcement Efforts Related to Child Labor

Overview of Criminal Law Enforcement	2019	2020

Reciprocal Referral Mechanism Exists Between Criminal Authorities and Social Services	Yes (4)	Yes (7)

In 2020, routine training courses were cancelled due to the pandemic. Nonetheless, the Internal Security Forces (ISF) reported conducting two training sessions, one for social violence and child labor and a separate training for junior officers who will be in charge of judicial investigations in regional units. (7)

During the reporting period, the ISF investigated 98 potential trafficking cases involving children. (7) The ISF reported that a man was sentenced to 3 years in prison and fined for attempting to sell his minor son. (7)

Despite these efforts, the ISF's anti-trafficking unit is reportedly underfunded and understaffed, and it has no field offices outside Beirut. (2) The Ministry of Justice has stated that a lack of sufficient human resources hindered the government's ability to address child labor. (20)

IV. COORDINATION OF GOVERNMENT EFFORTS ON CHILD LABOR

The government has established mechanisms to coordinate its efforts to address child labor (Table 8). However, gaps exist that hinder the effective coordination of efforts to address child labor, including efficacy in accomplishing mandates.

Table 8. Key Mechanisms to Coordinate Government Efforts on Child Labor

Coordinating Body	Role & Description
National Steering Committee on Child Labor	Raises awareness; coordinates efforts among government agencies; establishes standard practices; develops, enforces, and recommends changes; and ensures that government agencies comply with the law. Led by the Minister of Labor, includes representatives from six other ministries and other institutions and international organizations. (20) Sources indicate that the National Steering Committee on Child Labor has not met since 2018. (7)
National Steering Committee on Trafficking in Persons	Coordinates efforts against human trafficking, including child trafficking. Based at the Ministry of Labor and meets on a monthly basis. (20) Active in 2020. (2)
UNICEF and UNHCR	Coordinate efforts to address the needs of children affected by the Syrian refugee crisis in Lebanon. UN representatives identify crucial concerns, including factors that make children vulnerable to child labor. (20) Make recommendations to the government on the use of resources, including referral services. (20) UN agencies and international and local NGOs coordinate child protection efforts through Child Protection Working Groups. (19) Active in 2020. (60,61)

V. GOVERNMENT POLICIES ON CHILD LABOR

The government has established policies related to child labor (Table 9). However, policy gaps exist that hinder efforts to address child labor, including implementation.

Table 9. Key Policies Related to Child Labor

Policy	Description
National Action Plan to End Street Begging by Children	Seeks to end child begging by ensuring legal protection for street children, building capacity to protect street children, rehabilitating and reintegrating street children, and conducting outreach regarding the problem. (4) Research was unable to determine whether any steps were taken to implement this action plan during the reporting period.
Policy for the Protection of Students in the School Environment	Protects children's right to education and promotes non-violence in schools by establishing mechanisms to receive complaints of violence, mistreatment, and bullying; and addresses those cases while safeguarding children's privacy. Trains school staff and officials on identifying risk factors. (62,63) Research was unable to determine whether any steps were taken to implement this work plan during the reporting period.
Work Plan to Prevent and Respond to the Association of Children with Armed Violence in Lebanon	Provides the policy framework for the prevention of children's involvement in armed conflict. (64) Research was unable to determine whether any steps were taken to implement this work plan during the reporting period.

The National Action Plan on the Elimination of the Worst Forms of Child Labor expired in 2019, and the government did not renew or extend it.

VI. SOCIAL PROGRAMS TO ADDRESS CHILD LABOR

In 2020, the government funded and participated in programs that include the goal of eliminating or preventing child labor (Table 10). However, gaps exist in these social programs, including the adequacy of programs to address the full scope of the problem.

Table 10. Key Social Programs to Address Child Labor

Program	Description
Child Protection Program	Joint program by UNICEF and the Ministry of Social Affairs. Addresses child labor through interventions, including a non-formal education program for children, child protection services, skills development, and social assistance. (4) In 2020, UNICEF estimated that approximately 1,785 children were provided with assistance and case management support. In addition, 6,025 children engaged in child labor received education, social, or child protection assistance. (66)
Reaching All Children with Education (RACE II) (2017–2021)	Donor-funded, 5 year project, implemented by the Ministry of Education and Higher Education and partners to ensure quality educational opportunities for children ages 3 to 18, regardless of nationality, through holistic interventions that address the demand and availability of quality public education, including non-formal education. (67) Active in 2020. (68)
National Poverty Alleviation Program†	Funded by the government and foreign donors, this program housed at the Prime Minister's Office and the Ministry of Social Affairs provides WFP food vouchers ($27 per month) for each member of poor families. It also provides school tuition and book costs for secondary school students from 43,000 poor families. (43) Active in 2020. (69)

† Program is funded by the Government of Lebanon.

Although Lebanon has programs that target child labor, the scope of these programs is insufficient to fully address the extent of the problem, including in construction and forced child labor in agriculture. Moreover, a perceived lack of social services makes some officials reluctant to remove children trafficked by their families. (13)

VII. SUGGESTED GOVERNMENT ACTIONS TO ELIMINATE CHILD LABOR

Based on the reporting above, suggested actions are identified that would advance the elimination of child labor in Lebanon (Table 11).

Table 11. Suggested Government Actions to Eliminate Child Labor

Area	Suggested Action	Year(s) Suggested
Legal Framework	Accede to the CRC Optional Protocol on Armed Conflict, which the government signed in 2002.	2013 – 2020
	Raise the minimum age for work to the age up to which education is compulsory.	2018 – 2020
	Ensure that the minimum age for work applies to all children, including informal workers, domestic workers, and all agricultural workers.	2019 – 2020
	Ensure that the use of a child in commercial sexual exploitation is criminally prohibited.	2019 – 2020
	Ensure that forced labor and debt bondage are criminally prohibited.	2015 – 2020
Enforcement	Ensure that there is an adequate mechanism to receive and log child labor complaints and refer them for investigation.	2017 – 2020
	Track and publish information on labor law enforcement.	2009 – 2020
	Authorize the labor inspectorate to assess penalties.	2015 – 2020
	Provide Ministry of Labor inspectors with proper funding and the necessary transportation.	2011 – 2020
	Increase the number of labor inspectors to meet the ILO's technical advice.	2016 – 2020
	Publish information on criminal enforcement of child labor laws, including the number of prosecutions initiated.	2009 – 2020
	Ensure that criminal law enforcement agencies, including the Internal Security Forces' anti-trafficking unit, have the necessary funding and staff to investigate and prosecute criminal cases of child labor in accordance with the law.	2017 – 2020

In 2020, Lesotho made moderate advancement in efforts to eliminate the worst forms of child labor. Lesotho's legislature passed an amendment to the Anti-Trafficking in Persons Act that removes the requirement for proof of force, fraud, or coercion even in the case of sex trafficking for minors; the addition of this amendment brings the law up to international standards. The National Police also established the Trafficking in Persons and Migrant Control Unit within the Lesotho Mounted Police Service to oversee human trafficking cases. In addition, multiple trainings were conducted during the reporting period that included: Strategies to Combat Forced Labor; Modern Slavery and Human Trafficking; Countering Trafficking and Victim Identification; and National Shock Responsive Social Protection for the Multisector Impacts of COVID-19.

However, children in Lesotho are subjected to the worst forms of child labor, including in commercial sexual exploitation, sometimes as a result of human trafficking. Children also perform dangerous tasks in animal herding and domestic work. Lesotho's compulsory education age is below the minimum age for work, leaving children in between these ages vulnerable to child labor. The government also lacks sufficient coordination mechanisms to combat child labor, and labor inspections are not conducted in high-risk sectors, including the informal sector.

I. PREVALENCE AND SECTORAL DISTRIBUTION OF CHILD LABOR

Children in Lesotho are subjected to the worst forms of child labor, including in commercial sexual exploitation, sometimes as a result of human trafficking. Children also perform dangerous tasks related to animal herding and domestic work. (1,2) Table 1 provides key indicators on children's work and education in Lesotho. Data on some of these indicators are not available from the sources used in this report.

Table 1. Statistics on Children's Work and Education

Children	Age	Percent
Working (% and population)	5 to 14	30.1 (Unavailable)
Attending School (%)	5 to 14	93.8
Combining Work and School (%)	7 to 14	32.1
Primary Completion Rate (%)		85.6

Source for primary completion rate: Data from 2016, published by UNESCO Institute for Statistics, 2021. (3)

Source for all other data: International Labor Organization's analysis of statistics from Multiple Indicator Cluster Survey 6 (MICS 6), 2018. (4)

Based on a review of available information, Table 2 provides an overview of children's work by sector and activity.

Table 2. Overview of Children's Work by Sector and Activity

Sector/Industry	Activity
Agriculture	Herding animals, including cattle† (1,2,5)
	Farming, including planting, applying pesticides, and harvesting (5-10)
Services	Domestic work (1,2,5)
	Street work, including vending, and trading (5,6,8)
Categorical Worst Forms of Child Labor‡	Commercial sexual exploitation, domestic work, and animal herding, each sometimes as a result of human trafficking (1,2)
	Use in illicit activities, including burglary and theft (6,10)

† Determined by national law or regulation as hazardous and, as such, relevant to Article 3(d) of ILO C. 182.

‡ Child labor understood as the worst forms of child labor per se under Article 3(a)–(c) of ILO C. 182.

Lesotho

MODERATE ADVANCEMENT

Lesotho is a source, transit, and destination country for human trafficking. Children involved in animal herding are exposed to harsh weather conditions, sometimes leading to death. (1,2,7) Children, especially orphans, sometimes voluntarily travel to other countries, including South Africa, for domestic work, and upon arrival they are subsequently detained in prison-like conditions and sexually exploited. (1,7)

The Lesotho Population-based HIV Impact Assessment reported in 2017 that the HIV rate in adults (ages 15–59) was 25.6 percent, the second-highest HIV rate in adults worldwide. (6,11) Due to the high rate of HIV among adults, many children in Lesotho become orphans and are vulnerable to human trafficking. (1,2,9,12,13) Children, mostly orphans driven by poverty, migrate from rural to urban areas to engage in commercial sexual exploitation. (9)

Many children face limited access to education due to a shortage of teachers and schools, which causes them to travel long distances. In Lesotho, primary education is free; however, secondary education incurs a fee that is cost prohibitive for many families. (1,5,17,24) Children with disabilities encounter difficulties with ill-equipped educational facilities and untrained teachers. These factors increase a child's vulnerability to the worst forms of child labor, such as human trafficking. (14)

UNICEF reported a 45 percent rate of birth registrations at the national level. NGOs confirmed that the low number of birth registrations results in children becoming stateless, which makes them more vulnerable to the worst forms of child labor. (15,16)

During the reporting period, the COVID-19 pandemic hindered children from accessing education. Although the government did offer online classes during this time, the classes were inconsistently delivered and inaccessible to children from poor families who overwhelmingly lack Internet access. (5)

II. LEGAL FRAMEWORK FOR CHILD LABOR

Lesotho has ratified all key international conventions concerning child labor (Table 3).

Table 3. Ratification of International Conventions on Child Labor

Convention	Ratification
 ILO C. 138, Minimum Age	✓
ILO C. 182, Worst Forms of Child Labor	✓
 UN CRC	✓
UN CRC Optional Protocol on Armed Conflict	✓
UN CRC Optional Protocol on the Sale of Children, Child Prostitution and Child Pornography	✓
 Palermo Protocol on Trafficking in Persons	✓

The government has established laws and regulations related to child labor (Table 4). However, gaps exist in Lesotho's legal framework to adequately protect children from the worst forms of child labor, including the compulsory education age.

Table 4. Laws and Regulations on Child Labor

Standard	Meets International Standards	Age	Legislation
Minimum Age for Work	Yes	15	Article 228(1) of the Children's Protection and Welfare Act; Article 124(1) of the Labour Code (17,18)
Minimum Age for Hazardous Work	Yes	18	Article 230(1) of the Children's Protection and Welfare Act; Article 125(1) of the Labour Code (17,18)
Identification of Hazardous Occupations or Activities Prohibited for Children	Yes		Articles 230(3) and 231 of the Children's Protection and Welfare Act (17)
Prohibition of Forced Labor	Yes		Article 7(1) of the Labour Code; Article 9(2) of the Constitution; Article 5 of the Anti-Trafficking in Persons Act (18-20)
Prohibition of Child Trafficking	Yes		Article 5 of the Anti-Trafficking in Persons Act; Anti-Trafficking in Persons (Amendment) Act (2021) (20,21)
Prohibition of Commercial Sexual Exploitation of Children	Yes		Article 77 of the Children's Protection and Welfare Act; Articles 10–14 of the Sexual Offenses Act (17,22)
Prohibition of Using Children in Illicit Activities	Yes		Article 45(b) of the Children's Protection and Welfare Act (17)
Minimum Age for Voluntary State Military Recruitment	Yes	18	Article 22(o) of the Children's Protection and Welfare Act (17)
Prohibition of Compulsory Recruitment of Children by (State) Military	N/A*		Article 22(o) of the Children's Protection and Welfare Act (17)
Prohibition of Military Recruitment by Non-state Armed Groups	Yes		Article 22(o) of the Children's Protection and Welfare Act (17)
Compulsory Education Age	No	13‡	Article 3 of the Education Act (24)
Free Public Education	Yes		Article 3 of the Education Act; Article 22(k) of the Children's Protection and Welfare Act (17,24)

* No conscription (17)

‡ Age calculated based on available information (24)

During the reporting period, Lesotho's legislature passed an amendment to the Anti-Trafficking in Persons Act, 2011. The amendment removes the requirement for proof of force, fraud, or coercion even in the case of sex trafficking for minors. (5,21) The penalty is life in prison for aggravated forms of human trafficking such as forced labor cases involving rape or kidnapping, or which result in the death of the victim, and the new amendment removes the possibility of paying a fine in lieu of prison time. The law prescribes the same penalty for child trafficking. (5,21)

In 2020, the Ministry of Labor and Employment (MOLE) continued to update the Lesotho Labor Code, which is being drafted by the Parliamentary Council. The draft Labor Code maintains the minimum age of 15 for labor and strengthens provisions to combat the worst forms of child labor. (1,5,25)

Education is compulsory in Lesotho through age 13, which makes children age 14 particularly vulnerable to child labor because they are not required to be in school and have not reached the minimum age for work. (17,24,28)

III. ENFORCEMENT OF LAWS ON CHILD LABOR

The government has established institutional mechanisms for the enforcement of laws and regulations on child labor (Table 5). However, gaps exist within the operations of enforcement agencies that may hinder adequate enforcement of their child labor laws.

MODERATE ADVANCEMENT

Table 5. Agencies Responsible for Child Labor Law Enforcement

Organization/Agency	Role
Ministry of Labor and Employment (MOLE)	Enforces minimum age requirements under child labor laws, including for hazardous occupations, and assesses compliance with child labor laws as part of general labor inspections. (25) Assigns labor inspectors to operate a child labor unit within the ministry and provides recommendations that support the expansion of inspections. (25)
Trafficking in Persons and Migrant Control Unit	Handles all trafficking in persons-related cases within the Lesotho Mounted Police Service. (26)
National Police, Child and Gender Protection Unit	Investigates criminal child labor violations and works in conjunction with MOLE to enforce child labor laws, including those related to hazardous and forced child labor. (26)
Public Prosecutor's Office	Prosecutes child labor law offenders. (25)
Children's Court	Enforces criminal laws related to the worst forms of child labor. (25)

The Ministry for Social Development submitted drafting instructions to the Parliamentary Council for amendment of the Children's Protection and Welfare Act of 2011. (1) These recommendations support the authorization of the labor inspectorate to conduct inspections in the informal sector; however, the recommendations have not yet been implemented. (6)

Labor Law Enforcement

In 2020, labor law enforcement agencies in Lesotho took actions to combat child labor (Table 6). However, gaps exist within the operations of MOLE that may hinder adequate labor law enforcement, including insufficient resource allocation.

Table 6. Labor Law Enforcement Efforts Related to Child Labor

Overview of Labor Law Enforcement	2019	2020
Labor Inspectorate Funding	Unknown (25)	$796,465 (5)
Number of Labor Inspectors	30 (25)	31 (5)
Inspectorate Authorized to Assess Penalties	No (25)	No (5)
Initial Training for New Labor Inspectors	No (25)	No (5)
Training on New Laws Related to Child Labor	No (25)	No (5)
Refresher Courses Provided	Yes (25)	Yes (5)
Number of Labor Inspections Conducted	552 (25)	437 (5)
Number Conducted at Worksite	552 (25)	437 (5)
Number of Child Labor Violations Found	1 (25)	0 (5)
Number of Child Labor Violations for Which Penalties Were Imposed	0 (25)	N/A (5)
Number of Child Labor Penalties Imposed that Were Collected	0 (25)	N/A (5)
Routine Inspections Conducted	Yes (25)	Yes (5)
Routine Inspections Targeted	Yes (25)	Yes (5)
Unannounced Inspections Permitted	Yes (25)	Yes (5)
Unannounced Inspections Conducted	Yes (25)	Yes (5)
Complaint Mechanism Exists	Yes (25)	Yes (5)
Reciprocal Referral Mechanism Exists Between Labor Authorities and Social Services	Yes (25)	Yes (5)

Lesotho has a referral mechanism that is maintained through the collaboration of different ministries. If a case of child labor is found by MOLE, the Ministry's inspectors will refer the case to NGOs and the Ministry of Social Development. (5) NGOs usually provide immediate material assistance, such as food, cash, or shelter, and the Ministry of Social Development conducts site and family visits and assists eligible children register for a child grant program. (5)

Reports indicate that funding is inadequate for the labor inspectorate to carry out inspections. In addition, labor inspections are not conducted in high-risk sectors, including the informal sector. (5,25)

Criminal Law Enforcement

In 2020, criminal law enforcement agencies in Lesotho took actions to combat child labor (Table 7). However, gaps exist within the operations of the criminal enforcement agencies that may hinder adequate criminal law enforcement, including limited funding and personnel. (2,25)

Table 7. Criminal Law Enforcement Efforts Related to Child Labor

Overview of Criminal Law Enforcement	2019	2020
Initial Training for New Criminal Investigators	No (25)	No (5)
Training on New Laws Related to the Worst Forms of Child Labor	No (25)	N/A (5)
Refresher Courses Provided	No (25)	No (5)
Number of Investigations	Unknown (25)	0 (5)
Number of Violations Found	0 (25)	0 (5)
Number of Prosecutions Initiated	0 (25)	0 (5)
Number of Convictions	0 (25)	0 (5)
Imposed Penalties for Violations Related to the Worst Forms of Child Labor	No(25)	No (5)
Reciprocal Referral Mechanism Exists Between Criminal Authorities and Social Services	Yes (25)	Yes (5)

The National Police's Child and Gender Protection Unit does not have guaranteed funding; rather, it receives funding from the general operations budget of the National Police. Research found that the Child and Gender Protection Unit has limited personnel and receives insufficient or no funding to carry out child labor investigations. (8,12) There is also no evidence of any funding for combating child labor being provided to the Public Prosecutor's Office or the Children's Court. (1)

IV. COORDINATION OF GOVERNMENT EFFORTS ON CHILD LABOR

The government has established mechanisms to coordinate its efforts to address child labor (Table 8). However, gaps exist that hinder the effective coordination of efforts to address child labor, including efficacy in accomplishing mandates.

Table 8. Key Mechanisms to Coordinate Government Efforts on Child Labor

Coordinating Body	Role & Description
Program Advisory Committee on Child Labor/ National Task Team	Led by MOLE's Child Labor Unit, the team includes representatives from government ministries, trade unions, NGOs, and international organizations. A meeting was held on October 5, 2020, to review the 2014 Elimination of Child Labor Guidelines for Agriculture Sector and its translation into Sesotho; these guidelines include new guidance for the herding industry, which employs or involves many minor boys. (5)
National Orphans and Vulnerable Children Coordinating Committee	Strengthens coordination on issues related to orphans and vulnerable children at the national level. (25) During the reporting period, held a 2 day workshop for District Children's Protection Team members on the Violence Against Children report. (5) In addition, on June 12, 2020, Child Labour Day was virtually commemorated with live streaming on Facebook. (5)
Multi-Sectoral Committee on Combating Trafficking in Persons	Spearheads anti-trafficking in persons initiatives and approves legislation and policies to prevent human trafficking. Chaired by the Commissioner of Refugees, includes government ministries, local government members, and representatives from NGOs, international organizations, and faith-based organizations. (27) Met virtually three times and once in person in 2020. During the reporting period, the Prime Minister also established a cabinet-level sub-committee for combating trafficking in persons made up of six ministers. (26)
District Child Protection Teams	Coordinate child protection matters, including child labor, at the district level. Led by the Ministry of Social Development, include representatives from the government, private sector, NGOs, and community support groups. (27) Research was unable to determine whether any activities were undertaken during the reporting period.
Community Coordination Teams	Monitor, address, and refer instances of at-risk children or those involved in hazardous work. (1) Research was unable to determine whether any activities were undertaken during the reporting period.

Multiple trainings were conducted during the reporting period, which included: Strategies to Combat Forced Labor; Modern Slavery and Human Trafficking, facilitated by the African Regional Labor Administration Center; Countering Trafficking and Victim Identification, facilitated by IOM; and a National Shock Responsive Social Protection for the Multisector Impacts of COVID-19, which reviewed the impact of the pandemic on vulnerable groups such as children, and was facilitated by the Ministry of Social Development. ### V. GOVERNMENT POLICIES ON CHILD LABOR

The government has established policies related to child labor (Table 9). However, policy gaps exist that hinder efforts to address child labor, including implementing a new national child labor action plan.

Table 9. Key Policies Related to Child Labor

Policy	Description
National Anti-Trafficking in Persons Strategic Framework and Action Plan (2021–2026)	Supports national and international obligations and commitments regarding human trafficking, in line with the vision to eliminate all forms of trafficking in persons in Lesotho. Provides victim protection, guidance for the successful arrests and prosecutions of offenders, and preventive measures. (25,28)
Kingdom of Lesotho: Poverty Reduction Strategy Paper—National Strategic Development Plan (2018–2023)	Identifies child protection services (from the Child and Gender Protection Unit, social welfare and health agencies, and the justice system) and their capacity to respond adequately to cases of violence, abuse, and exploitation of children, including child labor. Outlines prevention measures. (1,29) Research was unable to determine whether actions were taken during the reporting period.

‡ The government had other social programs that may have included the goal of eliminating or preventing child labor. (1,6,25)

Although the government released a draft labor policy in 2018 that proposed harmonizing existing legislation with international labor standards regarding child labor, the Cabinet has yet to approve the policy. (1,5,6) In addition, the government has not included child labor elimination and prevention strategies in existing policies, such as the Education Sector Strategic Plan. (30)

VI. SOCIAL PROGRAMS TO ADDRESS CHILD LABOR

In 2020, the government funded and participated in programs that include the goal of eliminating or preventing child labor (Table 10). However, gaps exist in these social programs, including the adequacy of programs to fully address the scope of the problem.

Table 10. Key Social Programs to Address Child Labor

Program	Description
Orphans and Vulnerable Children Scholarship Program†	Government program that pays for tuition, uniforms, supplies, and boarding fees for orphans and vulnerable children. (1) Research was unable to determine whether activities were undertaken to implement this program during the reporting period.
School Feeding Program	Provides incentives for primary school children from impoverished backgrounds to attend school and improves retention. (1) Research was unable to determine whether activities were undertaken to implement this program during the reporting period.
Child Grant Program	Provides social cash transfers to impoverished households, orphans, and vulnerable children with the aim of increasing access to basic needs such as food, health, and education. The program is implemented by the Ministry of Social Development and funded by the EU with technical support from UNICEF. (1,31) Research was unable to determine whether activities were undertaken to implement this program during the reporting period.

† Program is funded by the Government of Lesotho.

‡ The government had other social programs that may have included the goal of eliminating or preventing child labor. (1)

The government continued to incorporate human trafficking lessons in the primary school curriculum (Standard 7). (8)

VII. SUGGESTED GOVERNMENT ACTIONS TO ELIMINATE CHILD LABOR

Based on the reporting above, suggested actions are identified that would advance the elimination of child labor in Lesotho (Table 11).

Table 11. Suggested Government Actions to Eliminate Child Labor

Area	Suggested Action	Year(s) Suggested
Legal Framework	Establish age 15 as the age up to which education is compulsory to match the minimum age for full-time work.	2010 – 2020
Enforcement	Provide adequate funding and training for labor inspectors to carry out mandated duties.	2009 – 2020
	Ensure that criminal law enforcement agencies receive an adequate amount of funding, training, and resources with which to conduct inspections and investigations.	2020
	Ensure that labor inspections are conducted in all relevant sectors, including the informal sector.	2014 – 2020
	Ensure that the labor inspectorate is authorized to assess penalties, including those related to the worst forms of child labor.	2009 – 2020
Coordination	Ensure that all Coordination Teams are active and undertaking activities in support of their missions.	2018 – 2020
Government Policies	Ensure that there is a policy for the elimination of child labor to replace the expired National Action Plan for the Elimination of Child Labor.	2018 – 2020
	Ensure that all actions plans are active and being implemented according to their mandates.	2020
	Integrate child labor elimination and prevention strategies in existing youth policies, such as the Education Sector Strategic Plan.	2012 – 2020
Social Programs	Institute programs that address factors that promote child labor, including the high HIV rate in adults.	2017 – 2020
	Ensure that children with disabilities have equal access to education.	2018 – 2020
	Address educational and logistical gaps resulting in reduced opportunities for secondary education, including the shortage of teachers and schools and secondary school fees.	2018 – 2020
	Increase birth registrations of children to reduce their vulnerability to the worst forms of child labor.	2017 – 2020
	Expand existing programs to address the scope of the child labor problem and ensure that this information is publicly available.	2015 – 2020

In 2020, Liberia made moderate advancement in efforts to eliminate the worst forms of child labor. Despite the COVID-19 pandemic, the labor inspectorate conducted 1,200 inspections at worksites in 2020, including over 100 unannounced labor inspections, compared to an estimated 236 inspections in 2019. In addition, the government investigated two suspected cases of child trafficking, initiated or advanced the prosecution of three cases, and convicted one individual who awaits sentencing. However, children in Liberia are subjected to the worst forms of child labor, including in forced domestic work, sometimes as a result of human trafficking. Children also perform dangerous tasks in the production of rubber and the mining of gold and diamonds. In addition, Liberia has yet to accede to the United Nations Committee on the Rights of the Child's Protocol on Armed Conflict and the Protocol on the Sale of Children, Child Prostitution, and Child Pornography, and the minimum age for work is not in compliance with international standards. Moreover, social programs are not sufficient to address the scope of the problem in the country.

I. PREVALENCE AND SECTORAL DISTRIBUTION OF CHILD LABOR

Children in Liberia are subjected to the worst forms of child labor, including in forced domestic work, sometimes as a result of human trafficking. (1,2) Children also perform dangerous tasks in the production of rubber and the mining of gold and diamonds. (3,4) Table I provides key indicators on children's work and education in Liberia.

Table I. Statistics on Children's Work and Education

Children	Age	Percent
Working (% and population)	5 to 14	16.6 (136,340)
Attending School (%)	5 to 14	75.9
Combining Work and School (%)	7 to 14	14.0
Primary Completion Rate (%)		60.6

Based on a review of available information, Table 2 provides an overview of children's work by sector and activity.

Table 2. Overview of Children's Work by Sector and Activity

Sector/Industry	Activity
Agriculture	Production of rubber, including cutting trees with machetes and using acid (1-4,7)
	Production of charcoal (3,4)
	Farming activities, including production of cocoa, coffee, cassava, and sugarcane (4)
Industry	Mining diamonds and gold, including washing gravel and using mercury and cyanide (1,2,4,8,9)
	Cutting and crushing stone (3,4,7,10)
	Construction, including carrying heavy loads† (3,4,7)
Services	Domestic work (4,7)
	Street work, including vending, begging, hawking goods, and carrying heavy loads (4,7,11-13)
Categorical Worst Forms of Child Labor‡	Use in illicit activities, including selling drugs (4,14)
	Forced labor in domestic work, street vending, mining, begging, and work on small rubber plantations, each sometimes as a result of human trafficking (1,2,4,9)
	Commercial sexual exploitation, sometimes as a result of human trafficking (1,2,4,15)

† Determined by national law or regulation as hazardous and, as such, relevant to Article 3(d) of ILO C. 182.

‡ Child labor understood as the worst forms of child labor per se under Article 3(a)–(c) of ILO C. 182.

MODERATE ADVANCEMENT

The National Commission on Child Labor (NACOMAL) did not collect any data on child labor in 2020 and the data collected in 2016–17 for an updated labor force survey has not yet been released by the Ministry of Labor (MOL). (4) While the government has yet to collect comprehensive data on child labor activities to inform policies and social programs, there are reports that children in rural communities engage in rubber tapping and coal burning activities, while children in cities and surrounding urban communities crush rocks, engage in domestic work, and sell goods. There are also reports that some children are subjected to hazardous labor in the artisanal mining of gold and alluvial diamonds with tasks that include washing gravel, processing ore, and working in mining shafts. (4,10) Children are also used to sell illicit drugs within the country by adults as a cover to evade arrest by law enforcement. (4) Traffickers generally operate independently and are often family members or respected members of the community who promise poor rural relatives and neighbors better economic or educational opportunities for themselves (in the case of young women) or their children but instead subject them to domestic servitude, forced begging, forced labor, street vending and sex trafficking. Children are also transported from Liberia to Côte d'Ivoire, Guinea, Nigeria, and Sierra Leone for work. (1,28)

In addition, there are reports that children residing at various orphanages within the capital of Monrovia and in other parts of the country are vulnerable to sexual exploitation due to a lack of basic necessities at the orphanages, including food. (4)

Section 9 of the Children's Law mandates free basic education from grades one to nine, but the cost of uniforms, transportation, books, and school supplies limits access to education for some children. In addition, family members often require children to work long hours, denying them the ability to attend school, even if they could eventually afford to do so. (4) For secondary school students (grades 10–12), reports indicate there is a shortage of teachers, insufficient learning materials, a lack of educational facilities, and inadequate transportation, all of which limit access to education. (4,7) In addition, some teachers sexually exploit students in exchange for the promise of good grades, resulting in children avoiding or dropping out of school. (4,7) Research also indicates the ongoing practice of temporarily removing boys and girls from formal schooling to participate in initiation rituals that transition a child into adulthood. Many children may not return to school after their participation in these initiation ceremonies, making them more vulnerable to child labor. (4,7)

II. LEGAL FRAMEWORK FOR CHILD LABOR

Liberia has ratified some key international conventions concerning child labor (Table 3).

Table 3. Ratification of International Conventions on Child Labor

Convention	Ratification
 ILO C. 138, Minimum Age
ILO C. 182, Worst Forms of Child Labor	✓
 UN CRC	✓
UN CRC Optional Protocol on Armed Conflict
UN CRC Optional Protocol on the Sale of Children, Child Prostitution and Child Pornography
 Palermo Protocol on Trafficking in Persons	✓

The government has established laws and regulations related to child labor (Table 4). However, gaps exist in Liberia's legal framework to adequately protect children from the worst forms of child labor, including the 1 year break between the compulsory education age and the minimum age for work.

Table 4. Laws and Regulations on Child Labor

Standard	Meets International Standards	Age	Legislation
Minimum Age for Work	No	15	Section 74 of the Labor Law; Article 21.2 of the Decent Work Act(17,18)
Minimum Age for Hazardous Work	Yes	18	Article 7, Section 9.1 of the Children's Law (19)
Identification of Hazardous Occupations or Activities Prohibited for Children	Yes		Article 21.4 of the Decent Work Act (18)
Prohibition of Forced Labor	Yes		Article 2.2 of the Decent Work Act; Article 7, Section 8 of the Children's Law; Article 12 of the Constitution; Article 1, Section 5 of the Act to Ban Trafficking in Persons Within the Republic of Liberia (18-21)
Prohibition of Child Trafficking	Yes		Article 7, Section 8 of the Children's Law; Article 1, Section 5 of the Act to Ban Trafficking in Persons Within the Republic of Liberia (19,21)
Prohibition of Commercial Sexual Exploitation of Children	Yes		Article 2.3 of the Decent Work Act; Article 3, Section 21 of the Children's Law; Article 1, Section 5 of the Act to Ban Trafficking in Persons Within the Republic of Liberia (18,19,21)
Prohibition of Using Children in Illicit Activities	Yes		Article 2.3 of the Decent Work Act; Chapter 16 of the Penal Code (18,22)
Minimum Age for Voluntary State Military Recruitment	Yes	18	Article 3, Section 22 of the Children's Law (19)
Prohibition of Compulsory Recruitment of Children by (State) Military	N/A*		Article 3, Section 22 of the Children's Law (19)
Prohibition of Military Recruitment by Non-state Armed Groups	Yes		Article 3, Section 22 of the Children's Law (19)
Compulsory Education Age	No	14	Article 3, Section 9 of the Children's Law; Chapter 4 of the Education Reform Act (19,23)
Free Public Education	Yes		Article 3, Section 9 of the Children's Law (19)

* No conscription (24)

The minimum age for work is not in compliance with international standards because it allows children younger than age 16 to engage in work as long as it is outside of school hours, the employer keeps records of the child's schooling, and the child is literate and attends school regularly. Because of this, children of any age may be vulnerable to child labor. Although the Decent Work Act prohibits children younger than age 15 from working full time, it does not prevent children below this age from engaging in part-time employment. (17,19,23) An updated version of the hazardous work list continues to be in draft form and has not yet been endorsed by the Ministry of Labor. (4,18)

III. ENFORCEMENT OF LAWS ON CHILD LABOR

The government has established institutional mechanisms for the enforcement of laws and regulations on child labor (Table 5). However, gaps exist within the operations of enforcement agencies that may hinder adequate enforcement of their child labor laws.

Table 5. Agencies Responsible for Child Labor Law Enforcement

Organization/Agency	Role
Ministry of Labor (MOL)	Conducts worksite inspections and addresses child labor violations. (4)
Ministry of Gender, Children and Social Protection (MOGCSPP)	Acts as the lead advisory agency on policy formulation, coordination, and monitoring of child protection through its Children Protection and Development Division. Monitors the government's efforts on compliance with the Universal Declaration of Human Rights, the UN Convention on the Elimination of All Forms of Discrimination against Women, the UN CRC, and the African Union protocols on women and children. (7,25,26)

Women and Children Protection Section (WACPS)	Investigates child endangerment cases and human trafficking in cooperation with the Liberian National Police (LNP) Anti-Trafficking Unit and the Liberia Immigration Service. (4)

During the reporting period, 45 children were removed from situations of exploitation or endangerment and referred to the Ministry of Gender, Children and Social Protection for social services or placed in protective shelters. It is unknown how many children were removed specifically from child labor situations. (4)

Labor Law Enforcement

In 2020, labor law enforcement agencies in Liberia took actions to combat child labor. However, gaps exist within the operations of MOL that may hinder adequate labor law enforcement, including financial resource allocation (Table 6).

Table 6. Labor Law Enforcement Efforts Related to Child Labor

The labor inspectorate reported conducting 1,200 inspections at work sites in 2020, including over 100 unannounced labor inspections, compared to an estimated 236 inspections in 2019. This marks a sharp increase in labor inspections, despite the pandemic, due to improved recordkeeping efforts by the government. (4)

Generally, labor inspections are conducted only in the formal sector and not in the informal sector in which children are more likely to be engaged in child labor. Inspectors are not legally able to inspect private farms or homes for underage child domestic labor. (3,4) In addition, the lack of funding and logistical support results in the underutilization of the labor inspectorate's complaint mechanism. (7,28) Although inspectors cannot assess penalties, they can impose corrective measures, such as issuing notices of compliance and filing a complaint with the hearing board. (4,7) However, the lack of penalty assessment authorization, limited funding, and insufficient fines, combined with poor opportunities for revenue generation in the informal sector, hamper the labor inspectorate's enforcement of child labor laws. (3,7,19,28)

Criminal Law Enforcement

In 2020, criminal law enforcement agencies in Liberia took actions to combat child labor (Table 7). However, gaps exist within the operations of criminal enforcement agencies that may hinder adequate criminal law enforcement, including financial resource allocation.

Table 7. Criminal Law Enforcement Efforts Related to Child Labor

Overview of Criminal Law Enforcement	2019	2020
Initial Training for New Criminal Investigators	Unknown (26)	Yes (4)
Training on New Laws Related to the Worst Forms of Child Labor	N/A (26)	N/A (4)

Number of Investigations	Unknown (26)	2 (4)
Number of Violations Found	Unknown (26)	Unknown (4)
Number of Prosecutions Initiated	2 (26)	3 (4)
Number of Convictions	1 (26)	1 (4)
Imposed Penalties for Violations Related to the Worst Forms of Child Labor	Unknown (26)	Unknown (4)
Reciprocal Referral Mechanism Exists Between Criminal Authorities and Social Services	Yes (26)	Yes (4)

Although MOL maintains a trafficking-in-persons hotline that can receive calls related to child labor, very few child labor calls come in. (4)

During the reporting period, the government investigated two suspected cases of child trafficking and initiated the prosecution of one case. The courts did not convict any traffickers. (4) In July 2020, the Ministry of Justice's Trans-National Crime Unit raided the offices of an employment agency and arrested two individual allegedly involved in the human trafficking of multiple victims, including teenage boys, to Liberia from neighboring countries under the guise of employment. Some of these victims were forced to engage in street hawking. (4)

Despite these efforts, research indicates the LNP's Women and Children Protection Section had limited training, financial, and physical resources, which hampered its ability to carry out investigations and other enforcement duties. (28) In addition, child labor is typically addressed as an issue of child endangerment, thereby causing a lack of reliable data on violations of child labor laws. (3)

IV. COORDINATION OF GOVERNMENT EFFORTS ON CHILD LABOR

The government has established mechanisms to coordinate its efforts to address child labor (Table 8). However, gaps exist that hinder the effective coordination of efforts to address child labor, including a lack of financial support.

Table 8. Key Mechanisms to Coordinate Government Efforts on Child Labor

Coordinating Body	Role & Description
National Commission on Child Labor (NACOMAL)	Coordinates government and civil society activities concerning child labor. Led by MOL and comprising representatives from 16 organizations, including international and civil society organizations. (29) Assists in coordinating child labor investigations. (30) Seeks to reform national child labor laws and create a national child labor database, which would assist surveys on the extent of child labor issues in Liberia. (29) NACOMAL celebrated the World Day against Child Labor on June 12 through media engagement and chaired one meeting of the National Steering Committee on Child Labor. (4)
National Steering Committee on Child Labor	Implements child labor policies. Chaired by NACOMAL and comprising government officials and workers' organizations. Includes four subcommittees on resource mobilization, advocacy, training and legal development, and monitoring and evaluation. (26) The committee met only once in 2020 due to pandemic-related restrictions. (4)
Child Protection Network	Coordinates child protection efforts, including child labor and human trafficking, and refers child victims of abuse to social services providers with support from international and national organizations. Chaired by the MOGCSF, and comprising MOL, the Ministry of Health and Social Welfare, the LNP's WACPS, civil society organizations, and several NGOs. (26) The Child Protection Network met consistently throughout the year, though research was unable to determine if actions were taken to combat child labor as a direct result of these meetings. (4)

MODERATE ADVANCEMENT

Coordinating Body	Role & Description
Anti-Human Trafficking Task Force	Coordinates anti-trafficking activities. Chaired by MOL, comprising representatives from the Commissioner of the Bureau of Immigration and Naturalization; LNP; MOJ; Ministry of Foreign Affairs; Ministry of Internal Affairs; and civil society organizations. (7) The Task Force met approximately once a month, sometimes virtually, to share interagency information related to human trafficking cases. These meetings helped promote coordination between investigating authorities and service providers in at least three suspected cases of human trafficking. (4)

The National Commission on Child Labor (NACOMAL) reported insufficient funding to pursue their mandates. (4)

The government has a draft referral mechanism for child labor, but due to resource, capacity, and coordination constraints, cases were mostly handled outside the formal pathways and in an ad hoc manner. (4)

V. GOVERNMENT POLICIES ON CHILD LABOR

The government has established policies related to child labor (Table 9). However, policy gaps exist that hinder efforts to address child labor, including a lack of implementation.

Table 9. Key Policies Related to Child Labor

Policy	Description
National Action Plan on the Elimination of Child Labor	Aims to reduce child labor and the worst forms of child labor by 50 percent by 2030 through three strategic objectives, including increasing public awareness on the causes and consequences of the worst forms of child labor, strengthening the legal and institutional frameworks to reduce child labor, and increasing social services and protection for children of vulnerable households. (31) Research was unable to determine whether activities were undertaken to implement the National Action Plan on the Elimination of Child Labor during the reporting period.
National Action Plan for Trafficking in Persons (2019–2024)	Outlines the government's anti-trafficking efforts, including those for child victims, and creates benchmark goals related to trafficking in persons. (9,32) Establishes roles and responsibilities for coordinating government assistance to human trafficking victims and provides shelter and care to children who may have been human trafficking victims. (32) Research was unable to determine whether activities were undertaken to implement the National Action Plan for Trafficking in Persons during the reporting period.
National Child Welfare and Protection Policy	Focuses on the implementation and enforcement of existing child protection laws. (7) Research was unable to determine whether activities were undertaken to implement the National Child Welfare and Protection Policy during the reporting period.
National Social Welfare Policy	Prioritizes the development of action plans and policies that target children subjected to the worst forms of child labor, including child trafficking. (33) Research could not determine whether activities were undertaken to implement the National Social Welfare Policy during the reporting period.

Child labor elimination and prevention strategies are not included in the Revised National Youth Policy, the Education Sector Plan, the Rubber Industry Master Plan, or the National Employment Policy. (23,34-40)

VI. SOCIAL PROGRAMS TO ADDRESS CHILD LABOR

In 2020, the government funded and participated in programs that include the goal of eliminating child labor (Table 10). However, gaps exist in these social programs, including insufficient funding.

Table 10. Key Social Programs to Address Child Labor

Program	Description
Anti-Trafficking Awareness Campaign†	Aims to raise public awareness of human trafficking through the use of radio and billboard messages. (4) With significant international support, Liberian security institutions conducted events around World Day against Trafficking in Persons (TIP, which included training security officials on TIP. (4)
Liberia Social Safety Nets Project (2017–2021)	During the reporting period, the Social Cash Transfer program was delayed in sending funds to 3,500 beneficiary households due to the pandemic. However, the project is on track to make the mobile money transfer to these beneficiaries in January 2021. (41) The government also included a temporary urban cash transfer program (SCT-COVID) given the disproportionate impact of the pandemic on the livelihoods of poor and vulnerable households in urban areas. (41) Under this new component, 15,000 households in selected poor communities of Greater Monrovia will be given a two-time cash transfer via mobile money. (41) Lastly, the Social Registry data collection commenced in early December 2020, which will help establish key national safety net delivery systems and provide support for low-income households. (26,41,42)
Shelters‡	MOGCSF-operated shelters for vulnerable street children in Lofa and Nimba County. (7,26) During the reporting period, the program provided shelter for approximately 35 children who are victims of abuse along with an additional 15 victims of gender-based violence. In addition, the government established a shelter for victims of human trafficking and child labor with capacity to accommodate at least eight victims at a time, with five additional mattresses on standby. (43) The Government of Liberia also made financial resources available for the establishment and management of a new shelter for victims of child labor and human trafficking and agreed to provide nighttime safety security for the shelters. (4)
Country Level Engagement and Assistance to Reduce Child Labor II (CLEAR II)	USDOL-funded project implemented by Winrock International and partners Verité and Lawyers Without Borders to build the capacity of the government to address child labor. During the reporting period, MOL participated in trainings that helped developed guidelines for child labor monitoring systems. (3,44) Additional information is available on the USDOL website .
U.S. Government-Funded Projects	Projects that aim to improve access to education and improve child protection. Includes Accelerated Quality Education for Liberian Children and the McGovern-Dole International Food For Education and Child Nutrition Program, implemented by USDA. (26,45,46) In addition, International Development Law Organization (IDLO), with funding from the USDOS Bureau of International Narcotics and Law Enforcement Affairs, built the capacity of 63 law enforcement officers (Females: 17; Males: 46) from the Liberia Drug Enforcement Agency, Liberia Immigration Service, LNP, and MOL on trafficking in persons prevention and response. (4)

† Program is funded by the Government of Liberia.

‡ The government had other social programs that may have included the goal of eliminating or preventing child labor. (47-53)

Research was unable to determine if data from the 2017 labor force survey, which reportedly includes a child labor component, were analyzed in 2020. (7,9,26,28) Although the government funds social programs, they are not sufficient to address all sectors in which child labor occurs, including in domestic work, the production of rubber, and the mining of gold and diamonds. (26)

VII. SUGGESTED GOVERNMENT ACTIONS TO ELIMINATE CHILD LABOR

Based on the reporting above, suggested actions are identified that would advance the elimination of child labor in Liberia (Table 11).

Table 11. Suggested Government Actions to Eliminate Child Labor

Area	Suggested Action	Year(s) Suggested
Legal Framework	Raise the compulsory education age to be consistent with the minimum age for employment.	2016 – 2020
	Accede to the UN CRC Optional Protocol on the Sale of Children, Child Prostitution and Child Pornography.	2013 – 2020
	Ensure that the hazardous occupations and activities prohibited for children are comprehensive and include sectors in which child labor is known to occur, and there are hazards including the production of rubber, mining of diamonds and gold, and construction, including carrying heavy loads.	2020
	Accede to the UN CRC Optional Protocol on Armed Conflict.	2013 – 2020
	Accede to the UN Protocol on Minimum Age.	2020
Enforcement	Ensure that penalties for employing children under the minimum age for work are stringent enough to deter violations.	2014 – 2020
	Ensure that the minimum age for work applies to all children, including those who are employed less than full time and those who are working outside of school hours.	2016 – 2020

MODERATE ADVANCEMENT

Area	Suggested Action	Year(s) Suggested
Enforcement	Publish information on the labor inspectorate's funding and the number of child labor violations found.	2016 – 2020
	Ensure labor inspections are conducted in all sectors in which children work.	2016 – 2020
	Authorize the labor inspectorate to assess penalties for child labor violations.	2017 – 2020
	Ensure that the labor inspectorate's complaint and referral mechanism is adequately supported and operational.	2017 – 2020
	Publish information on criminal law enforcement related to the worst forms of child labor, including the violations found and the penalties applied.	2017 – 2020
	Ensure adequate funding for child labor enforcement agencies, such as the Ministry of Labor, the Liberia National Police, and the Women and Children Protection Section, and provide necessary training for such officials to enforce child labor laws.	2010 – 2020
	Disaggregate the child endangerment cases prosecuted through the Ministry of Justice to determine the number of cases related to the worst forms of child labor.	2016 – 2020
Coordination	Ensure adequate funding for the National Commission on Child Labor's program activities to address child labor.	2017 – 2020
	Ensure that coordinating bodies, including the Anti-Human Trafficking Task Force, are implementing effective case referral mechanisms.	2019 – 2020
Government Policies	Integrate child labor elimination and prevention strategies into relevant policies.	2010 – 2020
	Publish information about the activities taken to implement policies that address child labor.	2017 – 2020
Social Programs	Collect and publish comprehensive research data to determine child labor activities and to inform policies and programs.	2013 – 2020
	Improve access to education by subsidizing the cost of school-related costs and reduce barriers to education by building additional schools, addressing sexual abuse in schools, and providing adequate transportation.	2012 – 2020
	Ensure that children do not leave school before the completion of compulsory education.	2017 – 2020
	Expand existing social programs to address the scope of the child labor problem, especially in forced domestic work, the production of rubber, prostitution, and the mining of gold and diamonds.	2009 – 2020

In 2020, Madagascar made moderate advancement in efforts to eliminate the worst forms of child labor. A national task force created to protect children developed an online portal enabling the public to report cases of child exploitation. Meanwhile, the National Bureau to Combat Human Trafficking conducted an assessment of the expired national action plan to combat human trafficking and finalized a new plan during the reporting period. In response to international reporting, the government drafted a national action plan to combat child labor in the mica sector. Finally, Madagascar expanded services provided through support and reintegration programs by creating new support centers in the cities of Toliara and Tolagnaro. Although Madagascar made meaningful efforts in all relevant areas, the government failed to investigate reports of some officials accepting bribes to produce and issue false identity documents to facilitate commercial sexual exploitation of minors. Children in Madagascar are subjected to the worst forms of child labor, including in domestic servitude and commercial sexual exploitation, sometimes as a result of human trafficking. Children also perform dangerous tasks in the mica mining sector and in agriculture, including in the production of vanilla. Limited resources for the enforcement of child labor laws may impede government efforts to protect children from the worst forms of child labor, and social programs to combat child labor are insufficient to adequately address the extent of the problem.

I. PREVALENCE AND SECTORAL DISTRIBUTION OF CHILD LABOR

Children in Madagascar are subjected to the worst forms of child labor, including in commercial sexual exploitation and domestic servitude. Children also perform dangerous tasks in the mica-mining sector and in agriculture, including in the production of vanilla. (1-3) Table 1 provides key indicators on children's work and education in Madagascar. Data on some of these indicators are not available from the sources used in this report.

Table 1. Statistics on Children's Work and Education

Children	Age	Percent
Working (% and population)	5 to 14	43.2 (Unavailable)
Attending School (%)	5 to 14	68.8
Combining Work and School (%)	7 to 14	33.8
Primary Completion Rate (%)		63.3

Source for primary completion rate: Data from 2019, published by UNESCO Institute for Statistics, 2021. (4)

Source for all other data: International Labor Organization's analysis of statistics from the Multiple Indicator Cluster Survey 6 (MICS 6), 2018. (5)

Based on a review of available information, Table 2 provides an overview of children's work by sector and activity.

MODERATE ADVANCEMENT

Sector/Industry	Activity
Categorical Worst Forms of Child Labor†	Commercial sexual exploitation, sometimes as a result of human trafficking (1,6,13,16,23-25)
	Use in illicit activities such as selling drugs and committing vandalism (26)
	Forced labor in mining, quarrying, begging, and domestic work (6,16,25,27)

† Determined by national law or regulation as hazardous and, as such, relevant to Article 3(d) of ILO C. 182.

‡ Child labor understood as the worst forms of child labor per se under Article 3(a)–(c) of ILO C. 182.

Children in Madagascar, particularly those from rural and coastal regions and from poor families, are vulnerable to commercial sexual exploitation, forced domestic servitude, forced begging, and forced labor in mining, fishing, and agriculture. (13,27,28) Girls in particular are lured by peers, family members, and pimps and subjected to commercial sexual exploitation in tourist locations, urban cities, vanilla-growing regions, and mining areas. (1,13,18,20,29) Children from rural villages are often sent to larger cities as domestic workers, where they are subjected to harsh working conditions, including long hours, poor accommodations, and low salaries. Girls working in domestic service are also more vulnerable to being raped by their employers. (11,13) In addition, children recruited by agencies into domestic work are sometimes subsequently subjected to commercial sexual exploitation. (27,28) Reports also suggest a recent increase in the commercial sexual exploitation of boys. (27,28) A source indicates that some government officials in tourist areas such as Nosy Be issue false identity documents to minors in exchange for bribes in order to facilitate child commercial sexual exploitation. (25) Despite these allegations, there have been no reports of government actions to investigate or prosecute public officials who participate in or facilitate child sex tourism. (25)

An estimated 47 percent of children ages 5 to 17 are engaged in child labor, with 32 percent working in hazardous conditions. The Matsiatra Ambony and Androy regions have the highest rates of working children. (11,30) Estimates from the ILO suggest that children work primarily in the informal sector and in agriculture, and perform hazardous work in agriculture, mining, and fishing. (13) In addition to economic challenges brought about by the COVID-19 pandemic, drought and famine-like conditions in the southern region of Madagascar have exacerbated poverty conditions and pushed more than 100,000 children to the brink of starvation, prompting them to abandon school to beg or forage for food. (31,32) The combination of economic insecurity, hunger, and lack of education may put more children at risk of labor exploitation.

Recent reports indicate that an estimated 10,000 children work in the mica sector in the southern region of Madagascar, including in constructing mines, extracting and sorting mica, and hoisting loads of mica out of mines. Young girls are also vulnerable to commercial sexual exploitation around mica mining sites. (3,13,28) Children as young as age 10 are involved in mining gold and sapphires in the regions of Analamanga, Anosy, Ilakaka, and Vakinankaratra. Children in the mining sector suffer from diseases such as diarrhea and malaria, as well as respiratory problems due to inadequate equipment, and are at risk of injury from collapsing mines. (6,13,15,18,20) In addition, children working in the production of vanilla in Madagascar are exposed to toxic substances and extreme temperatures. They also transport heavy loads and work for long hours. (9,10,33,34) There are reports that children are increasingly recruited by adults to engage in vanilla theft because they are less likely to be pursued by security forces or subjected to mob retaliation. (12) In fishing, children dive deep underwater with no protection or breathing devices, while children involved in stone quarrying use dangerous tools with no protection and work in the outdoor heat. (11)

Although the Constitution guarantees free compulsory education, in practice, access to education is often limited for some children. Barriers to education include a lack of school infrastructure, unqualified teachers, limited transportation to schools in rural areas, costs for school fees and supplies, and school violence, all of which leave children vulnerable to the worst forms of child labor. (9,13,29,35-38)

II. LEGAL FRAMEWORK FOR CHILD LABOR

Madagascar has ratified all key international conventions concerning child labor (Table 3).

Table 3. Ratification of International Conventions on Child Labor

Convention	Ratification
 ILO C. 138, Minimum Age	✓
ILO C. 182, Worst Forms of Child Labor	✓
 UN CRC	✓
UN CRC Optional Protocol on Armed Conflict	✓
UN CRC Optional Protocol on the Sale of Children, Child Prostitution and Child Pornography	✓
 Palermo Protocol on Trafficking in Persons	✓

The government's laws and regulations are in line with relevant international standards (Table 4).

Table 4. Laws and Regulations on Child Labor

During the reporting period, the government initiated processes to amend its Labor Code to bring it into compliance with international standards. However, these efforts were halted due to the pandemic. (13)

III. ENFORCEMENT OF LAWS ON CHILD LABOR

The government has established institutional mechanisms for the enforcement of laws and regulations on child labor (Table 5). However, gaps exist within the authority of enforcement agencies that may hinder adequate enforcement of their child labor laws.

MODERATE ADVANCEMENT

Table 5. Agencies Responsible for Child Labor Law Enforcement

Organization/Agency	Role
Ministry of Civil Services and Labor's Division for the Prevention, Abolition, and Monitoring of Child Labor (PACTE)	Enforces child labor laws, trains inspectors, and coordinates and evaluates efforts to eliminate child labor. Also oversees national and regional child labor coordination committees. (13,35,36,46)
Ministry of Justice	Enforces laws pertaining to violence against children, including human trafficking and commercial sexual exploitation. (13,21,46) Works with Department-level courts to prosecute child labor cases. (11,13,47)
Ministry of Public Security's National Civil Police Force Morals and Minors Brigade	Investigates criminal cases involving minors, including issues pertaining to human trafficking and commercial sexual exploitation, mainly in urban areas. (6,13,21,46) Employs an all-female police unit (Proximity Female Brigade) that works with victims of violence, including child workers, by conducting investigations, directing victims to social services, and raising awareness. (13)
Ministry of National Defense's National Gendarmerie Morality and Child Protective Services	Investigates criminal cases involving children, including those related to the worst forms of child labor, mainly in rural areas. (13,46,48)
Ministry of Population, Social Protection, and the Promotion of Women (MPPSPF)	Develops and implements programs to protect vulnerable children, including victims of the worst forms of child labor. (13) In collaboration with UNICEF, manages around 700 child protection networks to protect children in all 22 regions of Madagascar. (13,27,49,50)

Labor Law Enforcement

In 2020, labor law enforcement agencies in Madagascar took actions to combat child labor (Table 6). However, gaps exist within the authority of the Ministry of Civil Services and Labor's Division for the Prevention, Abolition, and Monitoring of Child Labor (PACTE) that may hinder adequate labor law enforcement, including the ability to assess penalties.

Table 6. Labor Law Enforcement Efforts Related to Child Labor

Overview of Labor Law Enforcement	2019	2020

The number of labor inspectors is likely insufficient for the size of Madagascar's workforce, which includes more than 13.4 million workers. According to the ILO's technical advice of 1 inspector for every 40,000 workers in less developed economies, Madagascar would employ about 335 labor inspectors. (51,52) The government itself has noted that the current number of inspectors is insufficient, indicating that its inspector workforce is not even able to cover the formal sector, much less the informal sector, in which most child labor occurs. (11,13) In addition, the concentration of labor inspectors in the capital hampers the enforcement of child labor laws in rural areas, especially in the agricultural sector. (6,35) Although the budget for the labor inspectorate in 2020 was distributed evenly to all regions in the country, the government indicated that funding was not sufficient to effectively carry out inspections nor cover the expenses of regional offices, most of which do not have transportation to carry out inspections. In addition, the union of labor inspectors noted that in the context of the pandemic, the government had not provided sufficient resources to enable them to carry out their duties. (13)

Labor inspectors use a specialized form during inspections to help detect child labor. Even though the labor inspectorate has the authority to conduct unannounced and routine inspections, in practice, most inspections occur in response to complaints received. (11,13) While the government did not report the number of child labor violations identified in 2020, research has shown that when violations are found, penalties are not applied. The government did not provide information on the number or types of inspections conducted, nor on the number of violations identified for inclusion in this report. (11,13)

While child labor-related training is provided to new inspectors, PACTE has indicated that the course is only 20 hours and insufficient to cover all relevant issues, particularly because refresher courses are not provided. (11,13) In addition, although Madagascar's list of hazardous occupations for children was expanded in 2018, reports indicate that the government was slow to disseminate the law's new requirements and has not taken steps to enforce it. (12) Madagascar has a complaint mechanism via a national hotline; however, most of the calls received are related to general violence against children. The mechanism does not have a record-keeping system to track calls specifically related to child labor issues. (11,13)

In November 2020, Madagascar's union of labor inspectors went on strike to demand back pay and the authority to assess penalties. The work stoppage continued at least through January, even though some inspectors continued to work. (13,53) It was prompted in part by the delay in approval of a decree developed by PACTE and the ILO that would enable labor inspectors to impose administrative sanctions, suspend the activities of any workplace that engages in the worst forms of child labor, and have authority over employers of domestic labor. (11,13)

Criminal Law Enforcement

In 2020, criminal law enforcement agencies in Madagascar took actions to combat child labor (Table 7). However, gaps exist within the operations of the criminal enforcement agencies that may hinder adequate criminal law enforcement, including allocation of financial and human resources.

Table 7. Criminal Law Enforcement Efforts Related to Child Labor

Overview of Criminal Law Enforcement	2019	2020
Initial Training for New Criminal Investigators	Yes (11)	Yes (13)
Training on New Laws Related to the Worst Forms of Child Labor	N/A	Yes (13)
Refresher Courses Provided	No (11)	Yes (13)
Number of Investigations	942 (11)	Unknown (13)
Number of Violations Found	51 (11)	Unknown (13)
Number of Prosecutions Initiated	Unknown	Unknown (13)
Number of Convictions	Unknown	Unknown (13)

Reciprocal Referral Mechanism Exists Between Criminal Authorities and Social Services	Yes (11)	Yes (13)

In August 2020, a national task force including the Ministry of Justice, MPPSPF, the National Police, and the Gendarmerie, established the Internet Watch Foundation global portal, which allows the public to anonymously report online images and videos of sexual abuse of children in Madagascar. The portal also notifies law enforcement agencies in the country. (13) In addition, the Ministry of Justice established a new mechanism to process court cases to streamline the prosecution of gender-based violence cases, in which many victims are child workers. (13)

Madagascar

MODERATE ADVANCEMENT

During the reporting period, the Morals and Minors Brigade police unit reported that out of 803 complaints received originally for allegations of child abuse, police identified 14 victims of child trafficking and 44 victims of child domestic work. (25) In addition, the National Gendarmerie Morality and Child Protective Services identified two cases of commercial child sexual exploitation. An active civil society effort in Toliara to pressure police to take action against child sex traffickers resulted in 5 separate investigations, 11 arrests, and 1 conviction in various cases pertaining to commercial child sexual exploitation. (25) The government did not provide complete information on its criminal law enforcement trainings, investigations, violations found, prosecutions, or convictions related to the worst forms of child labor for inclusion in this report.

Reports indicate that there is a lack of trained staff, equipment, and transportation at all levels of government to adequately conduct criminal law enforcement efforts related to the worst forms of child labor. (6,11,25,54,55) Furthermore, weaknesses across Madagascar's court system hamper efforts to prosecute perpetrators of the worst forms of child labor. (25)

IV. COORDINATION OF GOVERNMENT EFFORTS ON CHILD LABOR

The government has established mechanisms to coordinate its efforts to address child labor (Table 8). However, gaps exist that hinder the effective coordination of efforts to address child labor, including allocation of financial resources.

Table 8. Key Mechanisms to Coordinate Government Efforts on Child Labor

Coordinating Body	Role & Description
National Committee on the Fight Against Child Labor	Coordinates programs and advises on child labor legislation and regulations. (20,56,57) During the reporting period, led efforts to draft a national action plan to combat child labor in the mica sector. (13)
National Regional Child Labor Committees	Coordinate, monitor, and evaluate all activities relating to the elimination of child labor in each of Madagascar's 10 regions. Identify activities to promote the elimination of child labor and compile, analyze, and report child labor data to PACTE. (46,57,58) In 2020, proceeded with a project to develop commune-level committees in the SAVA region, with 25 out of 31 communes covered by July 2020. (13)
National Bureau to Combat Human Trafficking	Coordinates anti-human trafficking efforts in Madagascar and is responsible for implementing the National Action Plan to Combat Trafficking in Persons. Chaired by the Office of the Prime Minister, includes representatives from the Ministries of Civil Services and Labor, Justice, and Population. (21,43,56,59) Conducted an evaluation of the expired National Action Plan to Combat Trafficking in Persons, including carrying out data collection for a 3 year retrospective report that was pending final approval by the Prime Minister in 2020. (13) In collaboration with the ILO, UNICEF, and IOM, drafted a new National Action Plan to Combat Trafficking in Persons, which is now pending final review and approval by the Prime Minister. (13,25)
National Child Protection Committee	Guides and coordinates national child protection policy and programs. Chaired by the Minister of Population and Social Affairs, comprises a steering committee and a technical commission of specialists. (46,60) Due to pandemic restrictions in 2020, a plan to revise the decree that established the committee was not implemented, and the members of the committee were inactive during the reporting period. (13)

Although the National Committee on the Fight Against Child Labor (CNLTE) developed a national strategy that identified the roles various ministries would play in combating child labor in the mica sector, the government amended its budget in 2020 to redirect funds intended for child labor activities to other priorities deemed more important during the pandemic. Overall, the CNLTE, the Regional Child Labor Committees, and the National Bureau to Combat Human Trafficking lack sufficient funding to effectively operate and coordinate efforts to address child labor. (9,12,13,26,28,36,38,47)

V. GOVERNMENT POLICIES ON CHILD LABOR

The government has established policies related to child labor (Table 9). However, policy gaps exist that hinder efforts to address child labor, including implementation.

Table 9. Key Policies Related to Child Labor

Policy	Description
Joint Action Plan to Address Issues Affecting Children and Households in Mica Exploitation in the Anosy Region†	Developed in 2020 through a joint initiative between the Ministries of Mining, Labor, and Population, aims to reduce child labor in the production of mining in the southern region. Drafted in collaboration with international and civil society organizations, was presented for government approval in November 2020. (13,62)
Code of Conduct for the Protection of Children in the Tourism Industry	Aims to prevent commercial sexual exploitation of children in the tourism industry. Implemented by the Ministry of Tourism and supported by the ILO and UNICEF. (64-67) During the reporting period, the Ministry of Tourism continued its assessment of enforcement of the code. The ministry released its report in December 2020, noting that 63 percent of survey respondents were familiar with the code, while 92 percent of code signatories indicated they had carried out trainings on it. (13)
National Social Protection Policy	Aims to protect children from abuse, violence, and exploitation, and promotes improved access to education and livelihood services for vulnerable children. Led by MPPSPF and supported by international donors. (56,68) Research was unable to determine whether activities were undertaken to implement the Social Security Policy during the reporting period.

† Policy was approved during the reporting period.

‡ The government had other policies that may have addressed child labor issues or had an impact on child labor. (72,73)

Madagascar's National Action Plan to Eliminate the Worst Forms of Child Labor expired in 2019. The CNLTE had planned to conduct an assessment of the plan in 2020 but was unable to do so due to restrictions related to the pandemic and consequent budgetary changes, and no steps have been taken to develop a new action plan. Similarly, the National Action Plan to Combat Trafficking in Persons expired in 2019. (13)

VI. SOCIAL PROGRAMS TO ADDRESS CHILD LABOR

In 2020, the government funded and participated in programs that include the goal of eliminating or preventing child labor (Table 10). However, gaps exist in these social programs, including adequacy to address the problem in all sectors.

Table 10. Key Social Programs to Address Child Labor

Program	Description
Social Support and Reintegration Centers‡	Government program that provides social and reintegration services for victims of child labor and child exploitation. Includes the Manjary Soa Center, the Vonjy Centers in Antananarivo, Toamasina, Nosy Be, and Mahajanga, and the Centre d'Accueil d'Urgence emergency shelter. (13,20,21,74) Remained in operation in 2020, with the government establishing two new Vonjy centers in Toliara and Tolagnaro. The emergency center reported receiving 134 children during the reporting period, many of whom were mistreated domestic workers. (13) The Manjary Center, operated by PACTE, reported providing services to 30 children who were removed from exploitative labor situations, including domestic and street labor. (13)
USDOL-Funded Projects	Eliminating Child Labor in Mica-Producing Communities and Promoting Responsible Mica Sourcing in Madagascar and Globally (MICA) ,* a $4.5 million project awarded in December 2020 to be implemented by the United Nations Development Programme; (78) and Supporting Sustainable and Child Labor Free Vanilla-Growing Communities in SAVA (SAVABE) , a $4 million project implemented by the ILO that aimed to reduce child labor in the vanilla-producing areas of the Sava Region. (79) In its final year in 2020, the latter project conducted a series of trainings for vanilla sector professionals, including representatives from vanilla export companies, on strategies to combat child labor. (13) Additional information is available on the USDOL website .
UNICEF Country Program	UNICEF-funded a $197,815 program that supported the government's efforts to improve education, health, nutrition, and protection for children in Madagascar. (12,80) In 2019, Madagascar requested and was approved for an extension of the program into 2020. (81,82) In 2020, UNICEF completed a formative evaluation of the program, including the extension, and Madagascar is expected to submit a new country program document for a second regular program starting in 2021. (83,84)

* Program was launched during the reporting period.

† Program is funded by the Government of Madagascar.

‡ The government had other social programs that may have included the goal of eliminating or preventing child labor. (16,46,61,85-88)

In 2020, MPPSPF inaugurated a center that combats gender-based violence in Antananarivo, the second of its kind in the capital city. The centers provide medical care and psychological support and access to law enforcement, legal representation, and vocational training. (13)

Madagascar

MODERATE ADVANCEMENT

The Ministry of Population manages the child protection network in coordination with other ministries, including the Ministry of Labor's regional child labor committees to combat child exploitation, including trafficking, and provide social and health service to child victims. (13,27) While the network remained active during the reporting period, with 700 functioning networks that referred over 1,600 children for services, research has shown that the government does not adequately fund all the networks or provide access to public hospitals and health units, requiring the networks to rely heavily on international organizations to provide services. (13,27)

Although Madagascar has programs that target child labor, the scope of these programs is insufficient to address the extent of the problem, particularly in agriculture, commercial sexual exploitation, domestic work, begging, and mining. (6,16,38,61)

VII. SUGGESTED GOVERNMENT ACTIONS TO ELIMINATE CHILD LABOR

Based on the reporting above, suggested actions are identified that would advance the elimination of child labor in Madagascar (Table 11).

Table 11. Suggested Government Actions to Eliminate Child Labor

Area	Suggested Action	Year(s) Suggested
Enforcement	Investigate and prosecute public officials who are allegedly complicit in or facilitate the worst forms of child labor.	2019 – 2020
	Publish complete enforcement information related to child labor, including the number and types of labor inspections conducted and the number of violations found.	2013 – 2020
	Ensure that inspectors and criminal law enforcement officials receive appropriate and regular training on child labor issues.	2019 – 2020
	Increase the number of labor inspectors to meet the ILO's technical advice.	2015 – 2020
	Ensure that the labor inspectorate receives adequate funding to enforce child labor laws and to conduct a sufficient number of inspections, including in rural and agricultural areas and the informal sector.	2009 – 2020
	Ensure that inspectors regularly exercise their authority to conduct routine unannounced inspections rather than conduct inspections primarily in response to complaints.	2019 – 2020
	Ensure that when encountered, children are removed from child labor situations and that penalties for child labor violations are applied.	2019 – 2020
	Enhance the effectiveness of existing complaint hotline databases by gathering separate data on child labor-related complaints.	2009 – 2020
	Disseminate and enforce the new decree expanding the list of hazardous occupations for children.	2018 – 2020
	Publish criminal law enforcement data on the types of trainings conducted, the number of violations found, the number of investigations and prosecutions initiated, and the number of convictions achieved with respect to the worst forms of child labor.	2013 – 2020
	Ensure that criminal law enforcement agencies have sufficient staff, equipment, and transportation to combat the worst forms of child labor.	2019 – 2020
Enforcement	Strengthen the court systems to ensure perpetrators of the worst forms of child labor are properly investigated, prosecuted, and sentenced.	2020
Coordination	Ensure that relevant coordinating mechanisms are adequately funded and are actively implementing their mandates.	2014 – 2020
Government Policies	Ensure that policies related to child labor are implemented, and report on yearly actions taken.	2016 – 2020
	Develop and adopt a new National Action Plan to Eliminate the Worst Forms of Child Labor, and finalize new versions of expired policies, such as the National Action Plan to Combat Trafficking in Persons.	2019 – 2020
Social Programs	Enhance efforts to eliminate barriers and make education accessible for all children, including those in rural communities, by removing fees for supplies and school-related costs, increasing school infrastructure and transportation services, hiring sufficiently qualified teachers, and ensuring children's safety in schools.	2011 – 2020
	Ensure that social protection systems have adequate funding to provide appropriate services to victims of the worst forms of child labor.	2014 – 2020
	Expand the scope of programs to address child labor in agriculture and the worst forms of child labor in agriculture, commercial sexual exploitation, domestic work, begging, and mining.	2014 – 2020
	Collect and publish comprehensive data on child labor prevalence in Madagascar.	2020

In 2020, Malawi made moderate advancement in efforts to eliminate the worst forms of child labor. The government brought into force the International Labor Organization 2014 Protocol to the Forced Labor Convention and the 2001 Safety and Health in Agricultural Convention, which increase protections against forced labor and child labor in agriculture, respectively. The government also adopted an updated National Action Plan on the Elimination of Child Labor, established district-level coordinating committees to improve responses to child trafficking at the local level, and, with the support of the International Labor Organization, launched a 4-year initiative to address decent work deficits in the tobacco sector, including elimination of child labor. In addition, criminal law enforcement officers increased the number of investigations, prosecutions, and convictions related to the worst forms of child labor. However, children in Malawi are subjected to the worst forms of child labor, including in the harvesting of tobacco and in commercial sexual exploitation, each sometimes as a result of human trafficking. Although the government made meaningful efforts in all relevant areas during the reporting period, minimum age laws do not meet international standards because protections do not extend to children working in private homes and non-commercial farms. Prohibitions related to the use of children for illicit activities also do not meet international standards. Moreover, gaps continue to exist in labor law enforcement related to child labor, including financial resource allocation.

I. PREVALENCE AND SECTORAL DISTRIBUTION OF CHILD LABOR

Children in Malawi are subjected to the worst forms of child labor, including in the harvesting of tobacco and in commercial sexual exploitation, each sometimes as a result of human trafficking. (1) Table I provides key indicators on children's work and education in Malawi.

Table I. Statistics on Children's Work and Education

Children	Age	Percent
Working (% and population)	5 to 14	43.2 (1,965,690)
Attending School (%)	5 to 14	89.9
Combining Work and School (%)	7 to 14	45.4
Primary Completion Rate (%)		80.3

† Determined by national law or regulation as hazardous and, as such, relevant to Article 3(d) of ILO C. 182.

‡ Child labor understood as the worst forms of child labor per se under Article 3(a)–(c) of ILO C. 182.

Children in Malawi are engaged in hazardous work in the production of tobacco. (11,23-25) Children who handle tobacco risk illness from nicotine absorption, including green tobacco sickness. (24,26) They are exposed to pesticides, chemicals, and harsh weather conditions; they also utilize sharp tools. (24) Some children work alongside family members who are tenants on tobacco farms. (6,24,27) In the tenancy system, tenants’ pay is based on the quantity and quality of tobacco sold to farm owners after the harvest season, and parents have an incentive to use their children to increase their earnings. Tenants often incur loans from farm owners during the growing season; in many cases, they are unable to repay these debts, resulting in them, and often their families, falling into debt bondage. (6,28) Many children working under these conditions do not attend school. (24)

Most child trafficking for labor in Malawi takes place within the country. (17) Traffickers transport boys from southern Malawi to the central and northern regions for forced labor on tobacco farms, herding of goats and cattle, and brickmaking. (17,18,29) Children in Malawi are subject to human trafficking to other countries, including Mozambique, South Africa, Tanzania, and Zambia. (30,31) Traffickers may charge children for their clothing, food, housing, and transport; children may be forced to work in debt bondage because of these charges. (28) Girls from rural areas sometimes move to larger cities in search of work. In some cases, they receive clothing and lodging from brothel owners and, if unable to find other work, the brothel owners may exploit them in commercial sex work to pay off their debts. (6,18,29) Public reporting indicates that there has been an increase in child trafficking, and other worst forms of child labor, including work on tobacco farms, resulting from school closures during the COVID-19 pandemic. (32,33)

Primary education is tuition-free, and in September 2018, the government abolished secondary school fees to facilitate access to secondary education. (34,35) However, considerable barriers to education exist, including families’ inability to pay required school-related expenses, such as books and uniforms. (14,36) Long distances, a lack of teachers, poor school infrastructure, and the lack of water, electricity, feminine hygiene products, and sanitation facilities also negatively impact children’s attendance at school. In addition, safety concerns may negatively affect attendance; reports indicate that children are sometimes victims of sexual assault at school by both peers and teachers. (11,13,25,36) Additionally, many girls in grades six to eight are withdrawn from school to perform domestic work at home. (14)

Children with family members with HIV/AIDS may need to assume responsibility as heads of their households, including working to support their families. These children, especially those who become orphaned, are at increased risk of leaving school early and entering into the worst forms of child labor. (37-39)

II. LEGAL FRAMEWORK FOR CHILD LABOR

Malawi has ratified all key international conventions concerning child labor (Table 3).

Table 3. Ratification of International Conventions on Child Labor

Convention	Ratification
 ILO C. 138, Minimum Age	✓
ILO C. 182, Worst Forms of Child Labor	✓
 UN CRC	✓
UN CRC Optional Protocol on Armed Conflict	✓
UN CRC Optional Protocol on the Sale of Children, Child Prostitution and Child Pornography	✓
 Palermo Protocol on Trafficking in Persons	✓

In 2020, the government brought into force the 2014 protocol to the Forced Labor Convention (ILO C. 029) and the Safety and Health in Agriculture Convention of 2001 (ILO C. 184), after initially ratifying the conventions in 2019. (11,40) These instruments extend to the tobacco sector, in which children in Malawi are subject to both forced labor and hazardous work conditions, and commit the government to a minimum age of 18 for agricultural labor. (41,42)

The government has established laws and regulations related to child labor (Table 4). However, gaps exist in Malawi's legal framework to adequately protect children from the worst forms of child labor, including the minimum age for work.

Table 4. Laws and Regulations on Child Labor

Standard	Meets International Standards	Age	Legislation
Minimum Age for Work	No	14	Section 21 of the Employment Act (43)

MODERATE ADVANCEMENT

Malawi currently lacks a specific legal framework for the tenancy system, which is often used in tobacco production, and leaves children vulnerable to the worst forms of child labor. Families working under the tenancy system are particularly vulnerable to debt bondage because loans advanced to farmers operating under this arrangement are often of a higher value than the profits farmers receive from crop yields. (6,50,51) The government has drafted an amendment to the Employment Act that would abolish the tenancy system, though it has delayed consideration of the bill in Parliament pending the finalization of an ILO study on the policy effects of abolishing the tenancy system. (1)

Section 21 of the Employment Act sets the minimum age for employment at age 14 in agricultural, industrial, or non-industrial work. (43) The minimum age does not extend to workers in private homes, such as in domestic work, or non-commercial agriculture, sectors in which children work. (43,52,53) The minimum working age is also lower than the compulsory education age, which may encourage children to leave school before the completion of compulsory education. (34) Malawi law does not have criminal provisions for the use of children in illicit activities, such as the selling of drugs. Furthermore, although non-state armed groups are not known to recruit children for military activities in the country, Malawi law does not meet international standards because it does not explicitly prohibit this practice.

III. ENFORCEMENT OF LAWS ON CHILD LABOR

The government has established institutional mechanisms for the enforcement of laws and regulations on child labor (Table 5). However, gaps exist within the operations of enforcement agencies that may hinder adequate enforcement of their child labor laws.

Table 5. Agencies Responsible for Child Labor Law Enforcement

Organization/Agency	Role
Ministry of Labor (MOL)	Performs inspections and investigates all labor complaints, including those related to child labor. Through its Child Labor Unit, monitors and implements child labor law compliance through child labor monitoring visits. (54,55) Coordinates with the Ministry of Homeland Security and the Ministry of Gender, Community Development and Social Welfare (MGCDSW) to investigate and refer children for social services, respectively. (1)
District Labor Offices	Enforce child labor and trafficking in persons laws at the district level. (1)
Malawi Police Service	Investigates suspected cases involving the worst forms of child labor. Analyzes and operationalizes systems to track human trafficking trends. (1,56)
Ministry of Homeland Security	Enforces human trafficking laws and prosecutes human trafficking offenses. (1)
Ministry of Justice	Prosecutes criminal offenders. (1,57)
Tobacco Commission	Oversees the regulation of the tobacco industry and enforcement of the Tobacco Industry Bill, including child labor issues. (11,58) Receives annual reports from tobacco growers on child labor issues in their supply chains, including efforts to prevent and eliminate child labor, and may penalize growers, including canceling contracts, of growers who fail to satisfactorily report on child labor in their annual reports to the Commission. (1,58)

Labor Law Enforcement

In 2020, labor law enforcement agencies in Malawi took actions to combat child labor (Table 6). However, gaps exist within the operations of the Ministry of Labor (MOL) that may hinder adequate labor law enforcement, including financial and human resource allocation.

Table 6. Labor Law Enforcement Efforts Related to Child Labor

Under Malawi law, child labor is a criminal offense; as such, labor investigators refer violations related to child labor to criminal law enforcement authorities for investigation and imposition of penalties. (43) The government did not provide information on its labor law enforcement efforts for inclusion in this report; however, research indicates that funding resources are likely inadequate to enforce laws related to child labor. (6, 11, 14) While the number of labor inspectors is unknown, according to the ILO's technical advice of a ratio approaching 1 inspector for every 40,000 workers in least developed economies, Malawi would need to employ roughly 175 labor inspectors as its workforce consists of over 7 million workers. (60, 61) Due to personnel and resource constraints, most labor inspections take place in or near major towns where district labor enforcement offices are located, leaving workplaces in remote and rural locations less protected. (17) To increase monitoring of the tobacco sector, MOL and tobacco companies entered into a memorandum of understanding (MOU) that includes industry support for training of labor inspectors and financing of labor inspections on tobacco farms, such as covering transportation costs to inspection sites. The MOU also establishes a complaint mechanism by which field technicians working for tobacco companies report child labor findings to labor officers for follow-up investigation and response. (1, 62) In 2020, tobacco companies provided training for labor officers on identification of child labor occurring on tobacco farms. (1)

During the reporting period, MOL launched a new tip program for individuals to report potential labor law violations through phone calls, social media, and at labor offices. (1) In addition, MOL, with funding from the African Development Bank, is developing a labor information management system to capture and store information on labor law violations, including child labor cases. (62) Labor officers received training on using the new information management system. (1)

Criminal Law Enforcement

In 2020, criminal law enforcement agencies in Malawi took actions to combat child labor (Table 7). However, gaps exist within the operations of criminal enforcement agencies that may hinder adequate criminal law enforcement, including training for criminal investigators.

Table 7. Criminal Law Enforcement Efforts Related to Child Labor

Overview of Criminal Law Enforcement	2019	2020

MODERATE ADVANCEMENT

During the reporting period, the Malawi Police, in coordination with members of the Mchinji District Coordinating Committee Against Trafficking in Persons and non-governmental organizations, made arrests of human traffickers in Mchinji District, bordering Zambia, which resulted in the rescue of at least 14 children. (33) In a separate case, police arrested two men for crimes related to human trafficking, resulting in the rescue of two children who were being taken to Mozambique for work on maize farms. (21)

Many children in Malawi lack birth certificates. The inability of law enforcement officials to verify the ages of child victims may have impeded efforts to prosecute traffickers under the Child Care, Protection and Justice Act, and the Trafficking in Persons Act. (63) In addition, police sometimes arrest and detain child sex trafficking victims alongside adults. In some instances, these children fall victim to abuse, including sexual extortion, by the police. (1,64)

IV. COORDINATION OF GOVERNMENT EFFORTS ON CHILD LABOR

The government has established mechanisms to coordinate its efforts to address child labor (Table 8). However, gaps exist that hinder the effective coordination of efforts to address child labor, including coordination among agencies.

Table 8. Key Mechanisms to Coordinate Government Efforts on Child Labor

Coordinating Body	Role & Description
National Steering Committee on Child Labor	Provides policy guidance to support the elimination of child labor and implementation of the National Action Plan on Child Labor. Chaired by the Ministry of Agriculture, with MOL acting as the main technical advisor and secretariat, and includes representatives from government ministries, trade unions, employers, development partners, and civil society organizations. (37,65) Also includes the National Technical Working Group on Child Labor and Protection, which oversees child protection issues and development of child labor elimination strategies for approval by the National Steering Committee on Child Labor. (59) During the reporting period, the National Steering Committee on Child Labor finalized and launched the Child Labor Mainstreaming Guide and National Action Plan on the Elimination of Child Labor. (1)
District and Community Child Protection Committees	Coordinate all child protection activities at the district and community level and improve local coordination on child protection issues. District and community child protection committees were active during the reporting period, with at least one district committee participating in a trainer of trainers workshop on child labor elimination and responses. (1)
National Coordination Committee Against Trafficking in Persons	Coordinates and oversees investigations and prosecutions, training, victim care, and human trafficking data collection. (66) Mandated by the Trafficking in Persons Act of 2015. (54) In 2020, the committee established district coordinating committees on Trafficking In Persons in Karonga, Mzimba, Dedza and Mangochi districts, bringing the total number of district coordination committees to six across the country. The other two districts are Mchinji and Phalombe. (67) The national committee also facilitated the development of an action plan for all district coordination committees and conducted sensitization meetings in Mangochi, Mchinji, and Phalombe to facilitate the establishment of the district coordination committees. (67)

MOL officials, district child protection committees, and community child protection committees lack standard guidelines for training on child labor issues, leading to lapses in case management and coordination of child labor responses. MOL is coordinating with Winrock International to develop uniform guidance and training procedures to respond to child labor. (1) These efforts included a 3-day workshop for 20 members of the Mzimba District Child Labor Committee on child labor prevention and responses. (1,68)

In 2020, the government, with the support of Winrock International, launched the Child Labor Mainstreaming Guide to advise government departments and public sector organizations, at both the national and district levels, on integrating child labor prevention and elimination mechanisms into their activities. (11,69)

V. GOVERNMENT POLICIES ON CHILD LABOR

The government has established policies related to child labor (Table 9). However, policy gaps exist that hinder efforts to address child labor, including implementation.

Table 9. Key Policies Related to Child Labor

Policy	Description
National Action Plan on the Elimination of Child Labor (2019–2025)†	Outlines the government's strategies for the elimination of the worst forms of child labor. (1,70) During the reporting period, the government launched and finalized the National Action Plan to align with the ILO's Decent Work Country Program for Malawi; however, the government has not yet made the policy publicly available. (1)
National Children's Policy (2019–2025)	Aims to facilitate the coordination of all policies related to the needs of children to ensure child protection, including the prevention of child labor and trafficking. (69) Research was unable to determine whether activities were undertaken to implement the National Children's Policy during the reporting period.
National Action Plan for the Child (2019–2025)	Reinforces child labor elimination through awareness raising and vocational training to vulnerable children and children withdrawn from child labor. (11,59) Research was unable to determine whether activities were undertaken to implement the National Action Plan for the Child during the reporting period.
National Plan of Action Against Trafficking in Persons (2017–2022)	Outlines objectives to counter trafficking in persons: strengthen prevention; provide support and protection for victims; strengthen detection, investigation, and prosecution of offenses; encourage partnership and coordination; and conduct research, monitoring, and evaluation. (71,72) In 2020, the National Coordination Committee Against Trafficking in Persons worked to strengthen the implementation of the National Plan of Action at the local level through the development of District Coordination Committees, drafting an action plan for District Coordination Committees, and conducting sensitization meetings. (67)

† Policy was approved during the reporting period.

Although the Government of Malawi has adopted a National Youth Policy and a National Education Sector Plan, child labor elimination and prevention strategies have not been integrated into these policies. (77,78)

The government is reviewing a draft Child Labor Policy, which will incorporate a light work framework and drafts of the National Action Plan for Vulnerable Children and the Child Strategic Plan to replace policies that expired in 2019, but has yet to launch or make these policies available to the public. (1,59)

As of 2019, Malawi is a Pathfinder country under Alliance 8.7, which involves accelerating commitments toward the eradication of child labor by 2025, and forced labor, modern slavery, and human trafficking by 2030; the government intends to participate in a strategic meeting, with the ILO, in 2021 to outline its commitments as a pathfinder country. (1)

VI. SOCIAL PROGRAMS TO ADDRESS CHILD LABOR

In 2020, the government funded and participated in programs that include the goal of eliminating or preventing child labor (Table 10). However, gaps exist in these social programs, including implementation.

Table 10. Key Social Programs to Address Child Labor

Program	Description
Child Labor Monitoring System†	MOL system in pilot districts that identifies working children. Collects various data including school attendance. (1) Research was unable to determine whether activities were undertaken to implement the Child Labor Monitoring System during the reporting period.
National Social Cash Transfer Program†	MGCDSW-led program that supports low-income families in high-risk districts to enable children to stay in school. As of 2020, 621,074 children had received benefits under the cash transfer program. (1) In 2020, the government made monthly social cash transfers to 290,000 households across the country, with 6,240 child-headed households receiving benefits under the program. (1)
Education Assistance Programs†	Government-funded programs to provide educational assistance and support for vulnerable families. (1) Includes the Complimentary Basic Education Program, $1.1 million project that promotes school enrollment for children removed from child labor. As of 2020, the government has 12,000 early childhood development centers, providing services to 2.4 million children; in addition, around 2,158,428 primary school learners receive assistance with school meals. (1) Also includes the National Early Childhood Program, a MGCDSW-led program that supports pre-schools and parenting groups. MGCDSW, with support of civil society, was undertaking an expansion of the National Early Childhood Program in early 2020. (1,79)
Orphans and Vulnerable Children Intervention†	$4.9 million USAID and President's Emergency Plan for AIDS Relief-funded program that, in partnership with MGCDSW, provides education, child protection services, birth registration, and shelter and care to vulnerable children from birth to age 17 through the establishment of Community Based Care Centers. (1) Research was unable to determine whether activities were undertaken to implement the Orphans and Vulnerable Children Intervention program during the reporting period.

MODERATE ADVANCEMENT

Program	Description
ILO-funded Programs	Includes Accelerating Action for the Elimination of Child Labor in Supply Chains (ACCEL), a partnership with the Ministry of Foreign Affairs of the Netherlands, targeting elimination of child labor in the coffee and tea sector by addressing the root causes of child labor; strengthening knowledge sharing and collaboration among supply chain actors, and improving policy, legal, and institutional frameworks. (1,75,80) During the reporting period, the program held consultations with government and community stakeholders and supported the Employers Consultative Association of Malawi to develop an action program to promote child labor elimination policies and practices across the private employment sector. (1,81) In addition, the ILO, with the Government of Malawi, conducted a qualitative study of the tenancy system to inform government policies; a quantitative study, measuring the number of families under the tenancy system, will be undertaken in 2021, with partial funding support from USDOL through its Measurement, Awareness-Raising, and Policy Engagement (MAP-16) Project on child labor and forced labor . (1,82) In 2020, the ILO and the Government of Norway, in coordination with the Government of Malawi, signed a cooperative agreement to launch Addressing Decent Work Deficits and Improving Access to Rights in Malawi's Tobacco Sector; a $2 million, 4-year program to address decent work deficits, including child labor and forced labor, in the tobacco sector. (1,83) Finally, through the Research to Action (R2A) program, the ILO, with funding from USDOL, engaged in discussions with the Government of Malawi to map policies and knowledge gaps to develop a National Research Agenda to inform evidence-based policymaking. (84)

† Program is funded by the Government of Malawi.

‡ The government had other social programs that may have included the goal of eliminating or preventing child labor. (1,52,59,73,85-88)

The government, with the EU, UNICEF, and the U.S. Centers for Disease Control and Prevention, support programs to increase birth registration and data collection in various districts across the country. (76,85,89) The government worked with the ILO to develop an updated Decent Work Country Program, to outline key programming priorities related to child labor prevention and elimination. (1) In addition, the Tobacco Commission launched a pilot "Know Your Grower" campaign, which involves collection of data from tobacco-growing farmers, including farmers under the tenancy system; the data include household characteristics, number of family members, and sources of inputs. The government will use the data to inform policies and interventions, and will make the information available to tobacco companies. (1,62) Moreover, Care Malawi, a Malawi-based NGO, with tobacco industry funding, launched a 4-year project to target elimination of child labor in Mchinji and Ntchisi districts, with an emphasis on the agricultural sector. (1)

An evaluation of the National Social Cash Transfer Program found that it had achieved little reduction of child labor, as the work of children only shifted from outside to inside the household, resulting from families using funds from the program to expand their household agricultural activities. (90) Although Malawi has programs that target child labor, the scope of these programs is insufficient to fully address the extent of the problem in all relevant sectors, including agriculture and commercial sexual exploitation.

VII. SUGGESTED GOVERNMENT ACTIONS TO ELIMINATE CHILD LABOR

Based on the reporting above, suggested actions are identified that would advance the elimination of child labor in Malawi (Table 11).

Table 11. Suggested Government Actions to Eliminate Child Labor

Area	Suggested Action	Year(s) Suggested
Legal Framework	Ensure legal protection for children working in the tenancy system.	2009 – 2020
	Ensure that all forms of children's work, including work conducted by children in private homes (domestic services) and on non-commercial farms, receive legal protection, including a minimum age for work that complies with international standards.	2009 – 2020
	Raise the minimum age for work from 14 years to the age up to which education is compulsory.	2018 – 2020
	Criminalize the use of children in illicit activities, particularly in producing and trafficking drugs.	2020
	Ensure that the law criminally prohibits the recruitment of children under age 18 by non-state armed groups.	2016 – 2020
Enforcement	Publish information on labor law enforcement efforts.	2016 – 2020

Area	Suggested Action	Year(s) Suggested
Enforcement	Increase resources to the labor inspectorate to conduct regular labor inspections, including in remote and rural areas.	2009 – 2020
	Ensure the number of labor inspectors in Malawi meets the ILO's technical guidance.	2017 – 2020
	Institutionalize training for criminal law enforcement investigators, including providing refresher courses.	2019 – 2020
	Ensure that children who are victims of commercial sexual exploitation do not fall victim to sexual extortion and are not arrested or detained.	2018 – 2020
Coordination	Ensure that there is standardized approach and guidance to training and responding to child labor to strengthen coordination and referral mechanisms.	2020
Government Policies	Make publicly available key national policies, including the National Action Plan on the Elimination of Child Labor and the National Action Plan for the Child.	2019 – 2020
	Publish activities undertaken to implement the National Children's Policy and the National Action Plan for the Child during the reporting period.	2020
	Adopt national child labor and child protection policies, with consideration to child labor in agriculture, domestic services, and other sectors in which children in Malawi are working.	2009 – 2020
	Integrate child labor elimination and prevention strategies into the National Education Sector Plan and the National Youth Policy.	2011 – 2020
Social Programs	Ensure that additional educational costs, inadequate school infrastructure and number of teachers, long travel distances to reach schools, exposure to sexual violence, and the impact of HIV/AIDS do not serve as barriers to education.	2012 – 2020
	Ensure that all children are registered at birth, and increase efforts to register children who are not issued birth certificates at birth.	2018 – 2020
	Publish activities undertaken to implement the Child Labor Monitoring Systems and the Orphans and Vulnerable Children Intervention during the reporting period.	2017 – 2020
	Improve harmonization of child labor prevention and elimination measures into the National Social Cash Transfer Program to increase its effectiveness in preventing and removing children from child labor.	2020
	Increase the scope of existing social programs to reach more children at risk of the worst forms of child labor, and develop specific programs to target children in agriculture and commercial sexual exploitation.	2011 – 2020

In 2020, Maldives made moderate advancement in efforts to eliminate the worst forms of child labor. In February 2020, the government enacted a new Child Rights Protection Act that criminalizes child labor below the age of 16 and child exploitation, including the use of children to sell drugs. The government also enacted a new Education Act in November 2020 that provides for free public education. During the reporting period, the government reported 335 incidents of commercial sexual exploitation involving children, of which 120 cases resulted in prosecution, and 65 incidents of children being used in illicit activities, including drug trafficking, of which 20 cases were prosecuted. The government also increased the labor inspectorate budget from $572,984 to $929,457. However, although research is limited, there is evidence that children in Maldives are subjected to the worst forms of child labor, including forced labor in domestic work and commercial sexual exploitation, each sometimes as a result of human trafficking. The government has not identified specific hazardous occupations or activities that are prohibited for children, and the law does not sufficiently prohibit the commercial sexual exploitation of children. Moreover, the government does not have a policy or program to address all relevant worst forms of child labor in the country.

I. PREVALENCE AND SECTORAL DISTRIBUTION OF CHILD LABOR

Although research is limited, there is evidence that children in Maldives are subjected to the worst forms of child labor, including forced labor in domestic work and commercial sexual exploitation, each sometimes as a result of human trafficking. (1-5) Information on children's work is limited because a national survey on child labor has not been conducted. Table 1 provides key indicators on children's work and education in Maldives.

Table 1. Statistics on Children's Work and Education

Children	Age	Percent
Working (% and population)	5 to 14	3.9 (2,364)
Attending School (%)	5 to 14	79.5
Combining Work and School (%)	7 to 14	4.0
Primary Completion Rate (%)		91.7

Source for primary completion rate: Data from 2019, published by UNESCO Institute for Statistics, 2021. (6)

Source for all other data: International Labor Organization's analysis of statistics from Demographic and Health Survey (DHS), 2009. (7)

Based on a review of available information, Table 2 provides an overview of children's work by sector and activity.

Table 2. Overview of Children's Work by Sector and Activity

Sector/Industry	Activity
Services	Domestic work (2,8)
Categorical Worst Forms of Child Labor‡	Commercial sexual exploitation, sometimes as a result of human trafficking (2-5,8)
	Forced labor in domestic work, sometimes as a result of human trafficking (1,2)
	Use in illicit activities, including the trafficking of drugs (2,3,8)

‡ Child labor understood as the worst forms of child labor per se under Article 3(a)–(c) of ILO C. 182.

Maldivian children from the outer islands are brought to the capital, Malé, for domestic work. Once there, some of these children from impoverished families may be more vulnerable to sex trafficking. (2,9) Some are reported to be victims of forced labor and sexual abuse. (2) In addition, some girls from Bangladesh are believed to be victims of human trafficking to Maldives for the purpose of commercial sexual exploitation. (10) There are also some reports of foreign tourists engaging in commercial sexual exploitation of children. (2,11)

II. LEGAL FRAMEWORK FOR CHILD LABOR

Maldives has ratified all key international conventions concerning child labor (Table 3).

Table 3. Ratification of International Conventions on Child Labor

Convention	Ratification
 ILO C. 138, Minimum Age	✓
ILO C. 182, Worst Forms of Child Labor	✓
 UN CRC	✓
UN CRC Optional Protocol on Armed Conflict	✓
UN CRC Optional Protocol on the Sale of Children, Child Prostitution and Child Pornography	✓
 Palermo Protocol on Trafficking in Persons	✓

The government has established laws and regulations related to child labor (Table 4). However, gaps exist in Maldives' legal framework to adequately protect children from the worst forms of child labor, including determining the types of hazardous work prohibited for children.

Table 4. Laws and Regulations on Child Labor

Standard	Meets International Standards	Age	Legislation
Minimum Age for Work	Yes	16	Section 6 of the Employment Act; Article 26 of the Child Rights Protection Act (12,13)
Minimum Age for Hazardous Work	Yes	18	Section 7 of the Employment Act (12)
Identification of Hazardous Occupations or Activities Prohibited for Children	No
Prohibition of Forced Labor	Yes		Section 3 of the Employment Act; Sections 12–16 of the Prevention of Human Trafficking Act (12,14)
Prohibition of Child Trafficking	Yes		Sections 12–15 of the Prevention of Human Trafficking Act (14)
Prohibition of Commercial Sexual Exploitation of Children	No		Sections 17–19 of the Special Provisions Act to Deal with Child Sex Abuse Offenders (15)
Prohibition of Using Children in Illicit Activities	Yes		Section 133(c)(1) of the Drugs Act; Article 122 of the Child Rights Protection Act (13,16)
Minimum Age for Voluntary State Military Recruitment	Yes	18	Law on the Protection of the Rights of Children (17)
Prohibition of Compulsory Recruitment of Children by (State) Military	N/A*
Prohibition of Military Recruitment by Non-state Armed Groups	No
Compulsory Education Age	Yes	16	Article 36(b) of the Constitution of the Republic of Maldives; Article 5(b) of the Law on the Protection of the Rights of Children; Article 14 of the Education Act (17-19)
Free Public Education	Yes		Article 36(b) of the Constitution of the Republic of Maldives; Article 5(b) of the Law on the Protection of the Rights of Children; Articles 17–20 of the Education Act (17-21)

* No conscription (22)

In February 2020, the Child Rights Protection Act came into effect. (3,8,23,24,25) The new Act takes steps to ensure compliance with international child protection laws and standards, and criminalizes child labor below the age of 16 and child exploitation, including the use of children to sell drugs. The Act also established a Children's Ombudsperson who has oversight functions to ensure that the rights of children are not violated. (3,26) During the reporting period, the government also enacted a new Education Act that provides for free public education. (3,19,21,27)

The law does not sufficiently prohibit commercial sexual exploitation, because the use, procurement, and offering of a child for pornographic performances are not criminally prohibited. The government also has not determined the types of hazardous work prohibited for children. (3)

III. ENFORCEMENT OF LAWS ON CHILD LABOR

The government has established institutional mechanisms for the enforcement of laws and regulations on child labor (Table 5). However, gaps exist within the operations of enforcement agencies that may hinder adequate enforcement of their child labor laws.

Table 5. Agencies Responsible for Child Labor Law Enforcement

Organization/Agency	Role
Labor Relations Authority, Ministry of Economic Development	Enforces the Employment Act, including child labor provisions. Conducts labor inspections and issues fines for violations. (12,28)
Family and Child Protection Wing, Maldives Police Service (MPS)	Investigates complaints of child labor and commercial sexual exploitation. Refers cases to the Prosecutor General's Office for prosecution and to the Ministry of Gender, Family, and Social Services to provide victim services. (20) Employs eight officers in Malé to investigate child labor cases, including child commercial sexual exploitation and child pornography cases. (20) In 2020, expanded and renamed from Family and Child Protection Departments to Family and Child Protection Wing. (3)
Family and Child Protection Services, Ministry of Gender, Family, and Social Services	Receives referrals of children who have been exploited, including in commercial sexual exploitation and drug trafficking, and provides care for such victims. (8,28)
Anti-Human Trafficking Department, MPS	Investigates human trafficking-related offenses and enforces laws prohibiting trafficking in persons, including cases of child trafficking. (8) Employs five officers to investigate human trafficking cases. (20,29) During the reporting period, the former Anti-Human Trafficking Unit was upgraded to a separate Department and is working on increasing its capacity to handle trafficking cases with more personnel and specialized units, although these are not yet in place. (5)
Children's Ombudsperson*	Established in 2020 pursuant to the Child Rights Protection Act. Has oversight functions to ensure that the rights of children are not violated. (3) Tasked with determining the extent to which state institutions adhere to the Child Rights Protection Act as well as the Convention on the Rights of the Child, enforcing the implementation of the Act and the Convention, and monitoring and evaluating institutions and personnel involved in protecting children's rights. (26)

* Agency responsible for child labor enforcement was created during the reporting period.

Labor Law Enforcement

In 2020, labor law enforcement agencies in Maldives took actions to combat child labor (Table 6). However, gaps exist within the operations of the Labor Relations Authority that may hinder adequate labor law enforcement, including labor inspector training for new inspectors.

Table 6. Labor Law Enforcement Efforts Related to Child Labor

In 2020, the labor inspectorate increased its budget from $572,984 to $929,457. (21) However, the Labor Relations Authority (LRA) reported that the amount of funding was not adequate to cover inspections in the outlying islands, which incurs a large travel cost. (3,8) The LRA also reported that new employees did not receive initial training from the government, because labor inspector training is not available locally. Due to the COVID-19 pandemic, the LRA was unable to send officers to receive any training overseas during the reporting period. (3,8) Although the LRA does not have a specific referral mechanism, the Maldives Police Service (MPS) has an established referral mechanism with the Ministry of Gender, Family and Social Services to ensure the protection of child victims in cases of child rights violations. (3)

In addition, although the labor inspectorate is authorized to assess penalties, no fines were issued in practice due to a lack of coordination between the LRA and the Maldives Inland Revenue Authority, which has the mandate to receive the payment of the fines. (8,12)

Criminal Law Enforcement

In 2020, criminal law enforcement agencies in Maldives took actions to combat child labor (Table 7). However, gaps exist within the operations of the Family and Child Protection Department of the MPS that may hinder adequate criminal law enforcement, including a lack of resources for investigators.

Table 7. Criminal Law Enforcement Efforts Related to Child Labor

Overview of Criminal Law Enforcement	2019	2020
Initial Training for New Criminal Investigators	Yes (8)	Yes (3)
Training on New Laws Related to the Worst Forms of Child Labor	N/A (8)	N/A (3)
Refresher Courses Provided	Yes (8)	No (3)
Number of Investigations	80 (8)	400 (21)
Number of Violations Found	Unknown (8)	351 (3)
Number of Prosecutions Initiated	Unknown (8)	140 (21)
Number of Convictions	Unknown (8)	0 (3)
Imposed Penalties for Violations Related to the Worst Forms of Child Labor	Unknown (8)	No (3)
Reciprocal Referral Mechanism Exists Between Criminal Authorities and Social Services	Yes (8)	Yes (3)

Investigators have insufficient funding and resources, such as office facilities and transportation. (30) Police and other officials also have inadequate training on procedures for identifying human trafficking victims and providing referrals to protective services, including for children. (2) MPS reported that although several trainings for investigators touched on the issue of child labor, including on commercial sexual exploitation of children and trafficking in persons, these trainings were not sufficient, because they were not designed to specifically address child labor. (3,8) Although 351 violations were found during the reporting period, the government did not impose any penalties for violations related to the worst forms of child labor. (3)

The LRA established a reciprocal referral mechanism for victims of human trafficking, in which the LRA informs the MPS via an online portal. (11) However, investigations are not disaggregated by type of exploitation related to the worst forms of child labor. There are reports that the MPS and social services providers did not have a clear understanding of the differences between sex trafficking and sexual abuse, especially in cases of children; this made the true number of sex trafficking victims unknown. (9) In 2020, the MPS reported a total of 400 investigations of criminal violations involving the worst forms of child labor, compared to 80 investigations in 2019. (21) Of these, 335 were cases involving commercial sexual exploitation, 120 of which resulted in prosecution. The MPS also reported 65 incidents of children being used in illicit activities, including drug trafficking, of which 20 cases were prosecuted. (21)

IV. COORDINATION OF GOVERNMENT EFFORTS ON CHILD LABOR

The government has established mechanisms to coordinate its efforts to address child labor (Table 8).

Table 8. Key Mechanisms to Coordinate Government Efforts on Child Labor

Coordinating Body	Role & Description
National Anti-Human Trafficking Steering Committee	Manages all anti-human trafficking activities and implements the country's Anti-Human Trafficking National Action Plan. Chaired by Ministry of Defense leadership and consists of 10 participating government agencies. (9,14,31) In 2020, worked to reprioritize the Anti-Human Trafficking National Action Plan in light of the effects of the COVID-19 pandemic. (3)

V. GOVERNMENT POLICIES ON CHILD LABOR

The government has established policies related to child labor (Table 9). However, policy gaps exist that hinder efforts to address child labor, including coverage of all forms of child labor.

Table 9. Key Policies Related to Child Labor

Policy	Description
Anti-Human Trafficking National Action Plan (2020–2022)†	Establishes the government's goals to combat human trafficking, including creating institutions, coordinating activities, raising awareness, and building capacity. (32) During the reporting period, several key initiatives were underway, including revising the Prevention of Human Trafficking Act to align the definition of human trafficking with that of the 2000 United Nations Trafficking In Persons Protocol, setting up a dedicated Trafficking In Persons office, setting up a permanent shelter for victims of trafficking, and holding a public awareness campaign against trafficking in persons in association with multiple stakeholders. (3)

† Policy was approved during the reporting period.

Research found no evidence of a policy designed to address other relevant forms of child labor, such as forced labor in domestic work or trafficking drugs.

VI. SOCIAL PROGRAMS TO ADDRESS CHILD LABOR

In 2020, the government funded and participated in programs that include the goal of eliminating or preventing child labor (Table 10). However, gaps exist in these social programs, including adequacy to address the problem in all sectors.

Table 10. Key Social Programs to Address Child Labor

Program	Description
Family and Child Service Centers†	Nineteen Ministry of Gender, Family, and Social Services-operated centers that provide psychosocial support for child victims of abuse and exploitation, four of which provide temporary shelter for victims. (3,30)
National Victim Support Hotline (Number 1696)†	Ministry of Economic Development-operated hotline dedicated to receiving reports of human trafficking and child labor. Supported by MPS and Maldives Immigration. (33)
Child Helpline (Number 1412)†	Ministry of Gender, Family, and Social Services-operated helpline established with the support of MPS and UNICEF to receive reports of child abuse cases. (30)

† Program is funded by the Government of Maldives.

MODERATE ADVANCEMENT

Research was unable to determine what activities were undertaken during the reporting period to implement existing social programs. (8) Family and Child Service centers and shelters lack adequate financial and human resources, and staff are inadequately trained to deal with cases involving abused and exploited children. (30) Existing social programs do not specifically address the commercial sexual exploitation of children, use of children for drug trafficking, or forced labor in domestic work. (8)

VII. SUGGESTED GOVERNMENT ACTIONS TO ELIMINATE CHILD LABOR

Based on the reporting above, suggested actions are identified that would advance the elimination of child labor in Maldives (Table 11).

Table 11. Suggested Government Actions to Eliminate Child Labor

Area	Suggested Action	Year(s) Suggested
Legal Framework	Determine the types of hazardous work prohibited for children in consultation with employers' and workers' organizations.	2009 – 2020
	Criminally prohibit all forms of commercial sexual exploitation of children, including procuring, offering, and using children for pornographic performances.	2016 – 2020
	Ensure that the law criminally prohibits the recruitment of children under age 18 by non-state armed groups.	2016 – 2020
Enforcement	Ensure that labor inspectors receive training that specifically focuses on child labor issues, including training for new employees and refresher courses.	2009 – 2020
	Establish a referral mechanism between labor enforcement authorities and social services.	2016 – 2020
	Ensure that the labor inspectorate receives sufficient resources to enforce child labor laws, including to cover the substantial travel expenses entailed by conducting inspections in the outlying islands.	2017 – 2020
	Ensure that there is sufficient coordination between the labor inspectorate and the Maldives Inland Revenue Authority so that fines authorized by the labor inspectorate are collected.	2019 – 2020
	Provide sufficient funding and training to the police, prosecutors, and other officials, and ensure that investigators have the resources necessary to enforce laws on the worst forms of child labor.	2013 – 2020
	Ensure that criminal law enforcement imposes penalties for violations related to the worst forms of child labor.	2020
	Ensure that criminal investigations are disaggregated by type of exploitation related to the worst forms of child labor.	2020
Government Policies	Ensure that the Maldives Police Service and social services providers receive training on the differences between sex trafficking and sexual abuse, especially in cases involving children.	2020
Government Policies	Adopt a policy to address all relevant forms of child labor and forced labor, including domestic work and trafficking of drugs.	2014 – 2020
Social Programs	Conduct and publish a national child labor survey and research on the worst forms of child labor, including the commercial sexual exploitation and trafficking of children.	2009 – 2020
	Publish information about activities undertaken to implement social programs.	2017 – 2020
	Provide sufficient funding, human resources, and staff training for Family and Child Service centers and shelters that serve abused and exploited children.	2018 – 2020
	Implement and provide sufficient resources for programs that address the worst forms of child labor, including the commercial sexual exploitation of children, the use of children for drug trafficking, and forced labor in domestic work.	2009 – 2020

MINIMAL ADVANCEMENT – EFFORTS MADE BUT CONTINUED PRACTICE THAT DELAYED ADVANCEMENT

In 2020, Mali made minimal advancement in efforts to eliminate the worst forms of child labor. Mali took steps to prevent children from being recruited and used by the Malian Armed Forces, issuing orders prohibiting the use of children under the age of 15 and banning children from military camps. Mali also enacted a decree permitting the implementation of the mining code, which prohibits child labor in artisanal gold mines. In addition, the government published data on its labor law enforcement efforts, including the number of labor inspections conducted and violations identified. However, despite new initiatives to address child labor, Mali is assessed as having made only minimal advancement because it implemented a practice that delays advancement to eliminate child labor. The government provided support to non-state armed groups that recruited and used child soldiers in Mali. Children in Mali are subjected to the worst forms of child labor, including in hereditary slavery and in armed conflict. Children also engage in dangerous tasks in agriculture, particularly in the production of cotton and rice, and in artisanal gold mining. Although Mali's 2012 Trafficking in Persons Law criminalizes trafficking for the purpose of slavery, it does not more broadly criminalize the act of slavery; Malian law also does not explicitly prohibit using, procuring, or offering children for illicit activities, and allows children under the age of 18 to be penalized as a direct result of forced recruitment by armed groups. In addition, resource constraints severely limited the Malian authorities' ability to fully implement the National Plan to Combat Child Labor, and social and rehabilitation services for victims of the worst forms of child labor remain inadequate.

I. PREVALENCE AND SECTORAL DISTRIBUTION OF CHILD LABOR

Children in Mali are subjected to the worst forms of child labor, including in hereditary slavery and in armed conflict. (1-7) Children also engage in dangerous tasks in agriculture, particularly in the production of cotton and rice, and in artisanal gold mining. (2,4,7) Table 1 provides key indicators on children's work and education in Mali. Data on some of these indicators are not available from the sources used in this report.

Table 1. Statistics on Children's Work and Education

Children	Age	Percent
Working (% and population)	5 to 14	49.2 (Unavailable)
Attending School (%)	5 to 14	43.3
Combining Work and School (%)	7 to 14	26.0
Primary Completion Rate (%)		49.6

Based on a review of available information, Table 2 provides an overview of children's work by sector and activity.

	Forced recruitment by non-state armed groups for use in armed conflict (4-7,27,28)
	Hereditary slavery (1,4,19,24)
	Forced begging by Koranic teachers, sometimes as a result of human trafficking (2,4,7,13,24)

† Determined by national law or regulation as hazardous and, as such, relevant to Article 3(d) of ILO C. 182.

‡ Child labor understood as the worst forms of child labor per se under Article 3(a)–(c) of ILO C. 182.

Children, especially of the Bellah community (black Tuareg), are subject to hereditary slavery in northern and southwestern Mali. (1,4,12,19,29,30) Some children are born into slavery, while others are born free but remain in dependent status. As a result, these children, along with their parents, are forced to work for their parents' former masters in exchange for food, money, and lodging. (29,30) Child slaves perform agricultural or domestic labor, and are often sexually abused. (29,30) In 2020, the Malian National Commission on Human Rights identified at least 670 displaced child slaves from the southwestern region of Mali. Research indicates that the number of persons displaced as a result of hereditary slavery increased during the reporting period relative to the previous year. (7)

Children, particularly those of Songhai ethnicity, work in debt bondage in the northern salt mines of Taoudenni. (29,31) Thousands of children in the north, south, and west are also involved in artisanal gold mining, in which they are exposed to toxic substances and extreme temperatures, transport heavy loads, and work long hours. (4,7,13,16,17,32) Research indicates that around mining sites, children are also victims of commercial sexual exploitation and domestic servitude. (7) An NGO study from September 2019 to March 2020 identified 483 children at two mining sites. Most of the children were from Mali, but some were from other countries, and most of the latter were victims of commercial sexual exploitation. (7) To address this issue, during the reporting period Mali passed a decree to implement the mining code, which forbids child labor in artisanal gold mines. (7,12)

Some boys placed in the care of Koranic teachers for education are forced by their teachers to beg on the street or work in fields, after which they must surrender the money they have earned to their teachers. (4,7,13,29,31) Research indicated that children forced to beg were not only from Mali, but also from neighboring countries, including Burkina Faso, Senegal, and Côte d'Ivoire. (7) While the government frequently encountered cases of child begging, it did not have the capacity or the appropriate facilities to provide shelter and social services to these children, given the widespread nature of this issue in the country. (7)

During the reporting period, there was an increase in child trafficking, forced child labor, and forced recruitment of children by non-state armed groups in Mali due to insecurity and the COVID-19 pandemic. (7) There was also an increase in the recruitment and use of child soldiers by non-state armed groups in an effort to replace fallen combatants. (12,17,33,34) As in past years, children continued to be forcibly recruited and used by the Platform, the Coordination of Movements for Azawad, Katiba Macina, Dan Na Ambassagou, and Dozos, among others; in 2020, at least 335 Malian, Nigerien, and Burkinabe children were recruited by these groups. The UN reported 284 cases of children being forcibly recruited during 2020, compared to 215 for the previous year. (7,12,17,35) Three of these children remained with armed groups, while the rest were removed and reintegrated with their families. (7) In addition, armed groups controlled some artisanal gold mines in northern Mali and used children for forced labor at those locations. (7,12,32)

In 2020, the Malian Armed Forces (FAMa) employed 23 children in courier and domestic service roles. (12,35,36) As of March 2020, however, all children were demobilized. (7,12,32) The government also continued to provide in-kind support to non-state armed groups which forcibly recruited and used children in armed conflict. (2,21,29,37-40)

Although the Constitution guarantees free and compulsory education, many children, especially girls, do not attend school because parents are expected to pay fees for registration, uniforms, and supplies, which are cost prohibitive for many impoverished families. (2,4,19,31,41-43) Long distances between villages and schools and lack of classes and teachers, are also significant barriers to education. (7) In addition, many children in Mali are not registered at birth, which may prevent them from accessing services such as education. (2,4,31,44) Research indicates that there are hundreds of thousands of children in Mali without birth certificates, and that while lack of documentation does not exclude children from schooling, these students may not be allowed to take national exams. (7) Evidence also suggests that incidences of physical, psychological, and sexual abuse, including corporal punishment, prevent some children from remaining in school. (19,31) In 2020, numerous attacks on schools by armed groups in northern Mali resulted in lootings, destruction of learning materials and infrastructure, and occupancy of school facilities by armed groups. (4,12,45,46) Research indicates that internally displaced children faced interruptions in their education and barriers to enrolling in school after fleeing their homes. (7)

In 2020, insecurity, teacher strikes, and the pandemic significantly affected children's access to education throughout Mali. The pandemic closed all schools from mid-March to the beginning of May; teacher strikes began in January 2020 and lasted until September 2020 when the teachers' unions and the transition government reached a salary agreement. (7) This agreement allowed the government to partially reopen schools and organize exams in October 2020. However, schools were then closed again in December due to the second wave of the pandemic. (7)

II. LEGAL FRAMEWORK FOR CHILD LABOR

Mali has ratified all key international conventions concerning child labor (Table 3).

Table 3. Ratification of International Conventions on Child Labor

	Convention	Ratification
	ILO C. 138, Minimum Age	✓
	ILO C. 182, Worst Forms of Child Labor	✓
	UN CRC	✓

The government has established laws and regulations related to child labor (Table 4). However, gaps exist in Mali's legal framework to adequately protect children from the worst forms of child labor, including recruitment by non-state armed groups and use of children in illicit activities.

Table 4. Laws and Regulations on Child Labor

‡ Age calculated based on available information (52)

In November 2020, Mali passed into law a decree permitting the implementation of the mining code, which forbids child labor in artisanal gold mines. The code will prohibit child labor in traditional goldmines, and the use of mercury, cyanide, acids, and explosives, per Article 50 of the new code. (7,12,32) Article 189f of the new code states that mining titles will be canceled if a mining operation uses child labor or any other practices that violate human rights. Article 194 imposes penalties for the use of child labor in quarries, ranging from an imprisonment of 11 days to 2 years and the payment of fines ranging from $1,700 to $8,500. (7,32)

The Ministry of Justice, in collaboration with UNODC, revised the 2012 Anti-Trafficking Law to provide aggravated penalties if trafficking is committed against a child under the age of 18, whereas previously, aggravated penalties were only applied if the child was under the age of 15. However, drafts of the migrant smuggling law and anti-trafficking law remained pending. (2,7,12,37,56)

In December 2020, the National Technical Monitoring Committee of the Safe Schools Declaration co-facilitated a workshop with the UN on a draft bill on the protection of education from attacks. The bill specifies the obligations of parties to conflict vis-à-vis the protection of education from attacks, and criminal sanctions for attacks on schools and related offences. (35)

Articles 189.35 and 189.36 of the Labor Code allow children between the ages of 12 and 14 to perform domestic or light seasonal work, as long as it does not impede school attendance or exceed 4.5 hours of work per day. (48) The light work framework does not meet international standards because it applies to children under the age of 13. In addition, the law does not specify the conditions under which light work may be undertaken. (47,57,58)

MINIMAL ADVANCEMENT – EFFORTS MADE BUT CONTINUED PRACTICE THAT DELAYED ADVANCEMENT

Although Mali's Trafficking in Persons Law criminalizes human trafficking for the purpose of slavery, it does not more broadly criminalize the act of slavery, and Mali's labor code, while prohibiting forced labor generally, does not specifically prohibit hereditary slavery. In addition, Malian law does not prohibit using, procuring, or offering a child for the production and trafficking of drugs as established by international standards. (1,2,51,53)

While the Child Protection Code provides protection for children under age 18, and the Penal Code establishes criminal penalties for several of the worst forms of child labor, some offenses included in the Child Protection Code do not carry criminal penalties, such as the prohibition of military recruitment by non-state armed groups. (13,52,53) Although the Child Protection Code prohibits children under age 18 from participating in armed conflicts or joining the armed forces, it only provides for imprisonment of perpetrators in the case of repeat offenses. Meanwhile, the Penal Code only provides criminal penalties if the children are under age 15. (52,53)

Article 28 of the Penal Code states that crimes committed out of self-defense or under a force that could not be resisted should not be penalized as prescribed by the Penal Code. Although a 2013 Inter-Ministerial Circular on the Prevention, Protection, and Rehabilitation of Child Soldiers states that Article 28 of the Penal Code is applicable to children involved in armed conflict, the Circular does not define the age range of the children it covers. (52,59) This means that some children under age 18 who are affiliated with non-state armed groups may be penalized as a direct result of being a victim of the worst forms of child labor. (52,59)

III. ENFORCEMENT OF LAWS ON CHILD LABOR

The government has established institutional mechanisms for the enforcement of laws and regulations on child labor (Table 5). However, gaps exist within the operations of enforcement agencies that may hinder adequate enforcement of their child labor laws, including insufficient financial resources allocation.

Table 5. Agencies Responsible for Child Labor Law Enforcement

Organization/Agency	Role
Ministry of Labor's National Directorate of Labor	Enforces labor laws and investigates Labor Code infractions, including those regarding child labor. (31,60)
National Unit to Fight Against Child Labor (CNLTE)	Coordinates and enforces Mali's efforts to eliminate child labor, especially its worst forms. Chaired by the Ministry of Labor and includes representatives from other government ministries, civil society, and worker and employer organizations. (2,61,62) One labor inspector in each region is designated as the point of contact for CNLTE to facilitate regional coordination, and CNLTE also has 19 dedicated child labor inspectors and comptrollers. (2,4,7,63)
Ministry of Justice	Enforces criminal laws, including those related to child labor, child trafficking, child commercial sexual exploitation, the recruitment and use of child soldiers, and the use of children in illicit activities. Initiates and coordinates with courts the implementation of laws related to the worst forms of child labor with the support of several other ministries, including the Ministries of Security, Territorial Administration, Child Promotion, Defense, and Labor. (4,7,29,60)
Ministry of Internal Security's Police Brigade for the Protection of Morals and Children	Investigates crimes against children, including human trafficking and commercial sexual exploitation. (2,4,24)
Ministry for the Promotion of Women, Children, and the Family (MPFEF)	Develops and implements programs to protect vulnerable children and monitors alleged violations of child labor laws, including those related to the worst forms of child labor. (4,42,60)

The National Unit to Fight Against Child Labor (CNLTE) received a budget of $56,000 (30 million CFA) in 2020, which represents a 40 percent decrease from the 2019 budget due to the need to reallocate funds as a response to the pandemic. (7,12) The CNLTE considers its budget insufficient given the extent and severity of the child labor problem in Mali, as it lacks funding to meet its office needs and it does not have a vehicle or fuel for its staff to carry out its mission. (7)

Labor Law Enforcement

In 2020, labor law enforcement agencies in Mali took actions to combat child labor (Table 6). However, gaps exist within the operations of the Ministry of Labor that may hinder adequate labor law enforcement, including insufficient financial and human resource allocation.

Table 6. Labor Law Enforcement Efforts Related to Child Labor

The number of labor inspectors is likely insufficient for the size of Mali's workforce, which includes approximately 6.5 million workers. According to the ILO's technical advice of a ratio approaching 1 inspector for every 40,000 workers in less developed countries, Mali would employ about 161 inspectors. (63-65) Although all regions have labor inspectors, government services are limited or non-existent in some areas due to the insecurity caused by the presence of non-state armed groups. (2,4,63) In addition, reports indicate that a lack of trained staff, equipment, transportation, and funding hampered both CNLTE and the labor inspectorate's ability to conduct child labor inspections and legal proceedings, especially in remote areas of northern Mali. (4,31,57,63,66) CNLTE did not remove any children from the worst forms of child labor. (7) Research indicates that the government rarely collects statistics on the matter, and that there is no central database to maintain any data related to worst forms of child labor. (12) In 2020, CNLTE developed a training module for farmers related to the new hazardous occupations list and held a number of workshops related to the hazardous occupations list. Four new employees of the labor inspectorate received an initial training at Mali's National School of Administration. (7) In 2020, the government budgeted $371,747 (CFA 200 million) to fight human trafficking, allowing the government to partner with NGOs to undertake activities, including awareness campaigns, training sessions, and workshops. (7) Employees of the CNLTE received one training related to child labor in 2020. (7)

While the budget for the National Directorate of Labor and other labor offices decreased from approximately $1.2 million (CFA 666,309,000) in 2019 to approximately $675,275 (CFA 363,973,000) in 2020, the labor inspectorate budget increased from $85,000 (CFA 50,000,000) to $123,555 (CFA 66,596,000). (7) In addition, the Brigade for the Protection of Morals and Children (BPMC) reported 10 investigation cases of mistreatment of children employed as house cleaners. Research indicates that the reported number of child labor victims is likely lower than the actual number of victims given the widespread nature of child labor and inadequate enforcement of child labor laws in Mali. (4,7) However, the government did not provide specific data for this report from labor inspections carried out in the field, including the number of child labor law violations, the number of child labor violations found, the number of penalties imposed, or the number of penalties imposed that were collected in 2020. While the CNLTE's annual report usually includes information related to children removed from child labor by NGOs, there is no information on children removed from child labor as a result of labor inspections. (7)

MINIMAL ADVANCEMENT – EFFORTS MADE BUT CONTINUED PRACTICE THAT DELAYED ADVANCEMENT

Criminal Law Enforcement

In 2020, criminal law enforcement agencies in Mali took actions to combat child labor (Table 7). However, gaps exist within the operations of the criminal enforcement agencies that may hinder adequate criminal law enforcement, including insufficient financial and human resource allocation.

Table 7. Criminal Law Enforcement Efforts Related to Child Labor

Overview of Criminal Law Enforcement	2019	2020
Initial Training for New Criminal Investigators	Yes (4)	Yes (7)
Training on New Laws Related to the Worst Forms of Child Labor	Unknown (4)	Unknown (7)
Refresher Courses Provided	Yes (4)	Yes (7)
Number of Investigations	2 (4)	Unknown (7)
Number of Violations Found	46 (4,37)	Unknown (7)
Number of Prosecutions Initiated	2 (4)	Unknown (7)
Number of Convictions	0 (4)	0 (7)
Imposed Penalties for Violations Related to the Worst Forms of Child Labor	Unknown (4)	Unknown (7)
Reciprocal Referral Mechanism Exists Between Criminal Authorities and Social Services	Yes (4)	Yes (7)

In 2020, the BPMC benefited from a significant increase in its personnel as 23 new staff members were recruited. (7,12) Research indicates that the number of law enforcement agents is inadequate given the prevalence of the worst forms of child labor in the country. (4) During the reporting period, the government did not provide information on training on new laws related to the worst forms of child labor, nor on imposed penalties for violations related to the worst forms of child labor. (7) While the government made efforts to increase training and resources, research found that Mali lacks trained staff, equipment, transportation, and funding to adequately conduct criminal law enforcement efforts related to the worst forms of child labor, particularly in remote areas. (4,29,63,67) Reports indicate that because of political instability, which may hinder labor and criminal law enforcement efforts in northern Mali, the prevalence of hereditary slavery, forced labor, and trafficking in persons has worsened since the conflict began in 2012. (4,12,29,31,63,68) Research showed that the BPMC budget was insufficient, and the force had only one vehicle to conduct inspections and very limited amounts of fuel for each quarter in 2020. Furthermore, there were reports that staff did not receive office materials and had to use personal resources for official documents and furniture. (7,12)

The government's judicial authorities were unable to provide comprehensive and complete statistics on the number of child labor cases investigated, prosecuted, or convicted during the reporting period. In 2020, the BPMC arrested 10 Koranic teachers in Bamako who are alleged perpetrators of forced child begging, with at least 3 Koranic teachers referred to the judicial system for legal action. (7) In addition, one case of suspected child trafficking was prosecuted, but the defendant was acquitted. Malian judicial authorities reported at least three additional prosecutions related to child labor. (7) Many justice sector actors noted government officials' interference in cases involving slavery-related practices in an effort to have the charges dismissed. (37)

In October 2020, the Minister of Defense and the Chief of Defense Staff issued orders to military commanders prohibiting the use of children under age 15 and instructing army personnel to ban the presence of children around military camps. (12,69) By March 2020, the ministry also demobilized 23 children who had been employed as couriers and in domestic service roles with the FAMA. (7,12,32,35) In addition, it designated a child soldier focal point to coordinate with international organizations. (70) Despite these efforts, the Inspector General of the FAMA, General El Hadji Ag Gamou, also leads the Imghad Tuareg and Allies Self-Defense Group (GATIA), a subgroup of the pro-government signatory armed group coalition, Platform, which splintered in 2019. (12,17,71) During the reporting period, the government continued to provide in-kind support to GATIA, overseen by General Gamou, and to other non-state armed groups that recruited and used children in armed conflict. (2,12,21,29,37-40) Research found no indication that the government investigated either the actions of General Gamou and other members of the national armed forces or those of non-state armed groups who allegedly recruited and used child soldiers. (7) In addition, the government continued to keep child soldiers in custody until it established their age, with at least 15 children still held in detention at the close of the reporting period. Although there has reportedly been an improvement in the transfer process, the UN noted difficulty in securing the release of these children, who are sometimes held with adults, until their age can be confirmed to the satisfaction of the Malian authorities. (12,32)

IV. COORDINATION OF GOVERNMENT EFFORTS ON CHILD LABOR

The government has established mechanisms to coordinate its efforts to address child labor (Table 8). However, gaps exist that hinder the effective coordination of efforts to address child labor, including lack of clarity about the roles of coordinating bodies.

Table 8. Key Mechanisms to Coordinate Government Efforts on Child Labor

Coordinating Body	Role & Description
National Coordinating Committee for the Fight Against Trafficking in Persons and Associated Practices	Coordinates government efforts to combat human trafficking. Chaired by the Ministry of Justice and includes various government agencies and civil society groups. (2,24,72,73) While the National Coordinating Committee for the Fight Against Trafficking in Persons and Associated Practices was active during the reporting period, research could not identify its specific activities. (12)
Inter-Ministerial Committee to Prevent Grave Violations Against Children	Led by MPFEF, conducts awareness-raising campaigns to prevent the recruitment and use of children in armed conflict and implements reintegration programs for former child soldiers. (2) Conducts joint missions with international partners to determine the presence of children in armed conflict. (60) While the Inter-Ministerial Committee to Prevent Grave Violations Against Children was active during the reporting period, research could not identify its specific activities. (12)
Artisanal Gold Mining Summit Committee	Monitors recommendations, including the ban on child labor in artisanal gold mines, from a summit on artisanal mining, and comprises gold mining associations and local government officials. (74) Research was unable to determine whether the Artisanal Gold Mining Summit Committee was active during the reporting period.
Directorate for the Promotion of Children and Family (DPCF)	Led by MPFEF, coordinates issues related to child labor, including child trafficking. Implemented the National Policy for the Promotion and Protection of Children. (7) During the reporting period the DPCF supported agencies responsible for birth registrations. (7)

During the reporting period, the MPFEF's Directorate for the Promotion of Children and Family (DPCF) continued to support formal registration of children at birth, particularly in the North, through support for other government departments involved in registration. Research indicates that children born in the midst of security crises are often unable to acquire a birth certificate. (7) Furthermore, the DPCF also worked to reunite children affected by the security crisis in the north with their families. (7) CNLTE held two research missions aimed at identifying child labor. It also held trainings and awareness campaigns on artisanal gold mining in southern Mali. (7,12) CNLTE provided support to agencies and organizations combating child labor, hosted approximately 10 activities with NGOs and relevant associations regarding the prevention of child labor, and held 2 meetings of the National Guiding Committee on Child Labor. (7) The government also held human trafficking awareness trainings for judicial officials in multiple regions. A training on child begging was also held for religious and community leaders (marabouts) in the capital. (12,32)

Reports indicate that there is confusion with regard to roles and a lack of coordination between CNLTE and the National Coordinating Committee for the Fight Against Trafficking in Persons and Associated Practices. (28,29,68)

V. GOVERNMENT POLICIES ON CHILD LABOR

The government has established policies related to child labor (Table 9). However, policy gaps exist that hinder efforts to address child labor, including insufficient funding and ineffective implementation.

Table 9. Key Policies Related to Child Labor

Policy	Description
National Plan to Combat Child Labor (PANETEM) (2011–2020)	Aims to eliminate the worst forms of child labor by strengthening child labor laws, training relevant government officials, and mobilizing funds for social programs to withdraw children from child labor. Implemented by CNLTE. (10,57) In 2020, CNLTE was not able to conduct any monitoring activities under PANETEM due to budget constraints, which CNLTE attributed to the Government of Mali's decision to allocate increasing financial resources to health, defense, and security. (7)

MINIMAL ADVANCEMENT – EFFORTS MADE BUT CONTINUED PRACTICE THAT DELAYED ADVANCEMENT

Policy	Description
National Plan of Action to Combat Trafficking in Persons (2018–2022)	Aims to enhance the legal framework to prevent human trafficking, improve implementation of the laws, and provide effective protection and care for victims. Led by the National Coordinating Committee for the Fight Against Trafficking in Persons and Associated Practices. (4,29,75) Calls for the establishment of a formal body to coordinate government efforts to combat human trafficking and allocates a budget of $10 million for the 5-year period, or $2 million per year. The government has pledged to contribute $350,000 annually and intends to mobilize development partners and the private sector to provide the remaining financial support needed to implement the plan. (28,32) In 2020, Mali developed awareness campaigns in collaboration with UNODC, and trained around 100 law enforcement officers, prosecutors, and judges on human trafficking investigations and prosecutions. (12)
Inter-Ministerial Circular and the Protocol on the Release and Transfer of Children Associated with Armed Groups and Armed Forces	Provides a framework that highlights the responsibility of the government to prevent children's involvement in armed conflict, and to protect and reintegrate those children who become involved. (2,5,38,76) During the reporting period, at least 70 child soldiers were removed from armed groups. (12)
National Strategic Education Sector Plan (2017–2026)	Sets out a comprehensive map to improve the quality of and access to basic and secondary education, especially in conflict-affected areas of northern Mali. Led by the Ministry of Education and supported by international donors. (57,60,77) In 2020, the Government of Mali allocated $625,007 to fund education. (7)

‡ The government had other policies that may have addressed child labor issues or had an impact on child labor. (2,4,79-82)

The “Child Travel Card” program (Titre de Voyage pour Enfant) created by DPCF in 2002 remained a part of the directorate's efforts to combat child trafficking by facilitating proper identification of children traveling within and outside of Mali. Failure to show a child travel card will prompt follow-up actions to confirm whether the child is a victim of trafficking for forced labor, commercial sexual exploitation, or forced migration. (7) Research indicates that this program does not cover foreign citizens. (12)

VI. SOCIAL PROGRAMS TO ADDRESS CHILD LABOR

In 2020, the government funded programs that include the goal of eliminating or preventing child labor (Table 10). However, gaps exist in these social programs, including adequacy of efforts to address the problem in all sectors.

Table 10. Key Social Programs to Address Child Labor

Program	Description
Mali Government and NGO-Implemented Programs†	The Education for All Program ( Le Programme d'Education pour Tous ) is funded by the Global Partnership for Education ( Partenariat Mondial pour l'Education ), which receives funding from multiple agencies, including USAID and the Government of Mali, and is implemented by the Ministry of Education. This program was active during the reporting period. (7,12) The Mali Girls Leadership and Empowerment (2018–2021) through Education (Mali GLEE), a $15 million project implemented by Winrock International, aims to provide educational opportunities to girls by decreasing barriers to education, improving girls' safety in school and their communities, and increasing their knowledge and adoption of positive health behaviors. (7) Education Recovery Support Activity (2015–2020), a $16 million project implemented in Menaka and Gao, supported Mali's peace accord implementation in the field of education by providing basic quality education services and livelihood opportunities for children and youth in two regions of the North affected by conflict. The project established more than 150 accelerated education program (AEP) classrooms and trained 290 AEP teachers; nearly 11,000 out-of-school children ages 9 to 14 were enrolled. (7) Caritas Mali, an NGO that operates three reception centers in Bamako—including a center for boys—provides assistance to girls who are victims of or at risk of commercial sexual exploitation and girls living on the streets. (7)
ILO-Implemented Projects to Combat Child Labor	ILO-implemented projects to combat child labor and forced labor in supply chains. These projects include the Clear Cotton Project on Child and Forced Labor (2019–2022), an $8.5 million EU and Food and Agriculture Organization (FAO) of the UN-funded global project to combat child labor and forced labor in cotton and textile supply chains, and ACCEL Africa, a $26.5 million Government of Netherlands-funded regional project to combat child labor in gold mining and cotton supply chains. (63,83-85) The South-South Project on Decent Work* ( Programme Sud-Sud sur le Travail Décent ) is funded by Brazil ($400,000) and its implementation by the ILO started in 2020. The program aims to provide labor inspection training and capacity building to labor inspectors and improve working conditions in cotton production areas by promoting decent work principles and providing social protections to producers. (7) Research shows that the ILO provided the National Directorate of Labor with financing (via a COVID-19 pandemic fund) to undertake activities related to pandemic prevention in the work environment, including activities dedicated to preventing child labor. (7)

MINIMAL ADVANCEMENT – EFFORTS MADE BUT CONTINUED PRACTICE THAT DELAYED ADVANCEMENT

Program	Description
National Disarmament, Demobilization, and Reintegration Program	$25 million UN Multidimensional Integrated Stabilization Mission in Mali-implemented program that aims to provide reintegration services to former combatants in Mali, including children. (2,76,86) During the reporting period, 88 children were removed from armed groups. (12)
Global Action Against Trafficking in Persons and the Smuggling of Migrants (GLO.ACT)	$13 million EU-funded global project implemented by UNODC, UNICEF, and IOM to combat human trafficking and migrant smuggling. (87,88) During the reporting period, GLO.ACT held trainings for magistrates and law enforcement agents. In addition, the Dutch Embassy in Mali funded a research project to study the scope of the issue of human trafficking in the country. (12)
Foreign Government and Company-Implemented Programs	Fighting Child Labor in the Value Chain of the Cotton, Clothing, and Textile Industries ( Lutte contre le Travail des Enfants dans la Chaîne de Valeur Coton, Textile, et Habillement ) is a project funded by the EU and FAO to be implemented by ILO between 2018 and 2022. The project will reinforce the national legal framework for combating child labor and forced labor in the cotton sector. (7) The project will include mapping the supply chain of cotton and clothing, taking into account gender considerations. The project will also include a quantitative survey of child labor and forced labor in the cotton sector, and will involve activities and policies at the local, regional, and national levels. (7) Promoting the Principles and Fundamental Rights in the Cotton Supply Chain Work Environment (2018–2020) was a project funded by Inditex, a Spanish multi-national company working in the cotton sector. The project targeted cotton producers in the cotton-producing region of Sikasso and aimed to promote a favorable work environment for the protection of fundamental worker rights. (7) The project includes awareness campaigns and trainings for relevant partners, local associations, and community leaders to develop a monitoring system to ensure respect for fundamental worker rights in the cotton sector. The program also promotes women's rights and women's leadership in cotton producer organizations and cooperatives. (7) While the foreign government- and company-implemented programs were active during the reporting period, research could not identify activities that occurred. (12)
U.S. Government-Funded Programs	USDOS-funded programs to Combat Descent-Based Slavery: implemented by the American Bar Association (ABA) and the ILO to combat hereditary slavery and forced child labor in Mali. (3,37,89,90) USAID Country Program (2016–2020): $600 million USAID-funded program that supported the government's efforts to improve education, food security, and health, and to provide humanitarian assistance in crisis areas. (91) During the reporting period the ABA held multiple workshops before ending its program, and the USAID Country Program continued to be implemented. (12)

* Program was launched during the reporting period.

† Program is funded by the Government of Mali.

‡ The government had other social programs that may have included the goal of eliminating or preventing child labor. (2,4,92,93)

Mali does not fund or participate in programs to address child labor in domestic work, forced begging, or commercial sexual exploitation. (94)

An informal referral mechanism exists among NGOs, UN bodies, police, and other government agencies to allow withdrawal of children from armed conflict and provide social services to victims of the worst forms of child labor. (4,28,63) Despite these efforts, reports indicate that resources and facilities available to social services agencies are inadequate. (4,7,29,31,63)

VII. SUGGESTED GOVERNMENT ACTIONS TO ELIMINATE CHILD LABOR

Based on the reporting above, suggested actions are identified that would advance the elimination of child labor in Mali (Table 11).

Table 11. Suggested Government Actions to Eliminate Child Labor

Area	Suggested Action	Year(s) Suggested
Legal Framework	Ensure that draft anti-trafficking in persons and migrant smuggling legislation bills are finalized and adopted.	2020
	Ensure that the Labor Code establishes a minimum age no younger than age 13 for light work and specifies the conditions under which light work may be undertaken, in accordance with international standards.	2015 – 2020
	Ensure that the law criminally prohibits hereditary slavery in addition to other forms of forced labor.	2017 – 2020
	Criminally prohibit the use, procurement, or offering of children for illicit activities, including for the production and trafficking of drugs, in accordance with international standards.	2009 – 2020
	Criminally prohibit the recruitment of children under age 18 by non-state armed groups and in any armed conflict.	2013 – 2020

MINIMAL ADVANCEMENT – EFFORTS MADE BUT CONTINUED PRACTICE THAT DELAYED ADVANCEMENT

Area	Suggested Action	Year(s) Suggested
Legal Framework	Ensure that the specific ages of children protected by the Inter-Ministerial Circular on the Prevention, Protection, and Rehabilitation of Child Soldiers are in compliance with international standards, and ensure that children under age 18 are not penalized as a result of being subjected to forced recruitment into armed conflict.	2009 – 2020
Enforcement	Increase labor inspectorate funding and resources, including equipment and transportation to carry out inspections, especially in remote areas of northern Mali.	2012 – 2020
	Significantly increase the number of labor inspectors to meet the ILO's technical advice.	2012 – 2020
	Ensure that there are sufficient enforcement officials throughout the country and that they receive additional training, transportation, and equipment necessary to adequately enforce laws related to child labor, including its worst forms.	2019 – 2020
	Publish information on enforcement efforts, including the number of children removed from child labor situations as a result of labor inspections, child labor violations found, child labor penalties imposed and collected, training on new laws related to the worst forms of child labor, and the number of penalties imposed for the worst forms of child labor.	2010 – 2020
	Ensure that children are identified and removed from worksites in which they are subjected to the worst forms of child labor.	2020
	Ensure that children are not imprisoned for their association with armed groups, and that they are not kept in detention centers with adults.	2020
	Publish information on criminal law enforcement, including whether training on new laws was provided, and whether penalties for violations of the worst forms of child labor were imposed.	2020
	Implement the provisions of the Inter-Ministerial Circular and the UN-signed Protocol, which require that children in detention for their association with armed groups be transferred to social services or to UN child protection agencies for appropriate reintegration and social protection services.	2013 – 2020
	Ensure that criminal law enforcement efforts related to child labor are properly funded and resourced.	2020
	Ensure that government officials are sanctioned and held accountable for interference in legal cases related to crimes of the worst forms of child labor, including in cases of slavery and the recruitment and use of child soldiers.	2019 – 2020
	Ensure that perpetrators of the worst forms of child labor are prosecuted and convicted in accordance with the law.	2013 – 2020
	Ensure that the government does not support non-state armed groups, which recruit children into their ranks.	2020
	Coordination	Ensure that all coordinating bodies are able to carry out their intended mandates.
Clarify roles for coordinating mechanisms combating child labor, and improve coordination among relevant agencies.		2010 – 2020
Government Policies	Ensure that the National Plan to Combat Child Labor is implemented, including by allocating sufficient financial and human resources.	2012 – 2020
	Publish activities undertaken to implement key policies related to child labor during the reporting period.	2020
Social Programs	Ensure that the Malian Armed Forces do not recruit any children.	2020
	Enhance efforts to eliminate barriers and make education accessible for all children, including girls and those living in conflict-affected areas, by removing school-related fees, expanding school infrastructure, increasing teacher availability, providing free school supplies, and taking measures to ensure the safety of children and teachers in schools.	2010 – 2020
	Increase birth registration rates to ensure that children have access to social services, including education.	2010 – 2020
	Ensure that the military and non-state armed groups do not occupy schools.	2018 – 2020
	Institute new programs to address child labor in all relevant sectors, including domestic work, forced begging, and commercial sexual exploitation.	2009 – 2020
	Ensure that government social services have sufficient resources and facilities to provide the necessary care for victims of the worst forms of child labor, including for children used in armed conflict.	2016 – 2020

MINIMAL ADVANCEMENT – EFFORTS MADE BUT CONTINUED POLICY AND PRACTICE THAT DELAYED ADVANCEMENT

In 2020, Mauritania made minimal advancement in efforts to eliminate the worst forms of child labor. The government passed a new NGO law (No. 2021-004) that eased requirements for registering non-governmental organizations, potentially helping advance human rights and anti-slavery organizations to be officially recognized.

The government also adopted a new Human Trafficking Law (No. 2020/17), and amended the Law on Migrant Smuggling (No. 2010-021) that will support efforts to combat trafficking and addressing smuggling of migrants. However, despite new initiatives to address child labor, Mauritania is assessed as having made only minimal advancement because it continued to implement a policy and a practice that delays advancement to eliminate child labor. Although there were indications of progress, criminal law enforcement authorities did not make adequate efforts to combat slavery and its vestiges during the reporting period. The government prosecuted four defendants and convicted three traffickers in slavery-related cases in the Nouadhibou Anti-Slavery Court, but the government did not initiate any new investigations in 2020. In addition, since 2011, the government has required proof of marriage and biological parents' citizenship for children to obtain a birth certificate. As a result, children born out of wedlock and many Haratine and Sub-Saharan ethnic minority children, including those of slave descent, have been prevented from being registered at birth. Because birth certificates are required for enrollment in secondary school in Mauritania, children as young as age 12 cannot access education, making them more vulnerable to the worst forms of child labor. Children in Mauritania are subjected to the worst forms of child labor, including in indentured and hereditary slavery. Children also perform dangerous tasks in agriculture, particularly in herding cattle and goats. The government did not make sufficient efforts to enforce some laws related to the worst forms of child labor, including laws on hereditary slavery. In addition, a lack of financial resources and mitigation measures intended to limit the spread of COVID-19 severely limited the government's ability to fully implement policies, and social programs to combat the worst forms of child labor are insufficient to adequately address the extent of the problem. Moreover, the government did not publish comprehensive information about its labor law enforcement efforts.

I. PREVALENCE AND SECTORAL DISTRIBUTION OF CHILD LABOR

Children in Mauritania are subjected to the worst forms of child labor, including in indentured and hereditary slavery. (1-4) Children also engage in dangerous tasks in agriculture, particularly in herding cattle and goats. (1,5-7) Table 1 provides key indicators on children's work and education in Mauritania. Data on some of these indicators are not available from the sources used in this report.

Table 1. Statistics on Children's Work and Education

MINIMAL ADVANCEMENT – EFFORTS MADE BUT CONTINUED POLICY AND PRACTICE THAT DELAYED ADVANCEMENT

Based on a review of available information, Table 2 provides an overview of children's work by sector and activity.

Table 2. Overview of Children's Work by Sector and Activity

Sector/Industry	Activity
Agriculture	Herding and caring for cattle, camels, goats, and sheep (1,5,7,10-13)
	Harvesting fish and shrimp, including accompanying fishermen on boats and selling fish (1,5,7,11,12,14,15)
Industry	Crushing gravel (11,16)
	Construction (7)
Services	Domestic work (1,5-7,17)
	Working as car mechanics, painters, and carpenters (1,5-7,13,14)
	Garbage scavenging (1,6,13)
	Street work, including vending, shoe shining, begging, † and in the transportation sector (1,5-7,11,13)
Categorical Worst Forms of Child Labor ‡	Forced begging, sometimes as a result of criminal gang recruitment and coercion by Koranic teachers (1,5,7,12,17-19)
	Commercial sexual exploitation, sometimes as a result of human trafficking (4,6)
	Use in illicit activities, including selling drugs (4,6,13,20)
	Indentured and hereditary slavery (1-3,7,10,18,20-23)
	Forced labor in domestic work, sometimes as a result of human trafficking (5,7,13,20)

† Determined by national law or regulation as hazardous and, as such, relevant to Article 3(d) of ILO C. 182.

‡ Child labor understood as the worst forms of child labor per se under Article 3(a)–(c) of ILO C. 182.

Children in Mauritania, especially from the Haratine ethnic minority, continue to be exploited as slaves and endure slave-like practices, particularly in rural and remote areas of the country. Some children are born into slavery; others are born free but remain in a dependent status and are forced to work with their parents for their former masters in exchange for food, money, and lodging. (3-6,22,24) Child slaves herd animals, such as cattle and goats, and perform domestic labor. (3,4,7,15,16,25)

In Mauritania, it is a traditional practice to send children to Koranic teachers (marabouts) to receive an education. However, some Koranic teachers force their students (talibés) to beg on the streets for long hours and to surrender the money they have earned. (4,7,12,17,20)

Mauritania requires proof of marriage and a copy of the national identity cards of the parents or caregivers to obtain a birth certificate. This may have prevented children born out of wedlock and many Haratine and Sub-Saharan ethnic minority children, including from families of slave descent, from being registered at birth. (13,26,27) Although all families are required to register children for birth certificates, research found that the civil registration process, including obtaining birth certificates, is confusing and time consuming. Moreover, applicants have faced additional hardship due to the closure of registration centers outside the capital and a lack of training for registration center staff. (26-29) In early 2021, Mauritania canceled the requirement for students to possess a national identity card in order to take part in the national examinations to obtain the Certificate of Primary Education Studies (CEP). However, national identity cards are still required in order to take exams for middle and high school certificates. (15) Because both birth certificates and the CEP are required to enroll in secondary school in Mauritania, many children as young as age 12 cannot access secondary education, making them more vulnerable to the worst forms of child labor. (6,7,10,13,18,24,27,30)

To address some of these challenges, the Ministry of Social Affairs, Childhood, and the Family (MASEF) and the National Child Protection Council have established representation in all regions in Mauritania, and work to identify cases of citizens, including children, who are unable to register and provide them with the support needed to complete the registration process. (31) The government also appointed a special committee, headed by a presidential adviser, to review cases of unregistered applicants and facilitate documentation processes for marginalized and vulnerable communities. As part of the committee's efforts to facilitate documentation processes, its members have conducted site visits to civil registration centers during which they have provided support to individuals who have encountered difficulty in the civil registration process. (31,32) During the reporting period, the government continued to collaborate with UNHCR to issue birth certificates to Malian refugee children. (7,12,17,33,34)

MINIMAL ADVANCEMENT – EFFORTS MADE BUT CONTINUED POLICY AND PRACTICE THAT DELAYED ADVANCEMENT

In Mauritania, the lack of school infrastructure and limited availability of teachers, especially in rural areas, also impede access to education, which may increase children’s vulnerability to the worst forms of child labor. (5,13,35) In addition, children from families of slave descent, especially from the Haratine ethnic minority, face barriers to accessing education due to ethnic discrimination. (10,22,36) Furthermore, refugee children may have difficulty accessing education or finding available classrooms, which makes them particularly vulnerable to the worst forms of child labor, including being recruited by non-state armed groups. (4,7,12,37-39)

II. LEGAL FRAMEWORK FOR CHILD LABOR

Mauritania has ratified most key international conventions concerning child labor (Table 3).

Table 3. Ratification of International Conventions on Child Labor

Convention	Ratification
 ILO C. 138, Minimum Age	✓
ILO C. 182, Worst Forms of Child Labor	✓
 UN CRC	✓
UN CRC Optional Protocol on Armed Conflict	✓
UN CRC Optional Protocol on the Sale of Children, Child Prostitution and Child Pornography	✓
 Palermo Protocol on Trafficking in Persons	✓

The government has established laws and regulations related to child labor (Table 4). However, gaps exist in Mauritania’s legal framework to adequately protect children from the worst forms of child labor, including the identification of hazardous occupations or activities prohibited for children.

Table 4. Laws and Regulations on Child Labor

MINIMAL ADVANCEMENT – EFFORTS MADE BUT CONTINUED POLICY AND PRACTICE THAT DELAYED ADVANCEMENT

In 2020, the Mauritanian parliament adopted a new Human Trafficking Law (No. 2020/17) to align national legislation with the Palermo Protocol; the law will create a new national authority to address human trafficking, and the government set up a Human Rights Inter-Ministerial Committee. (15,19) The Parliament also amended the Migrants Trafficking Law (No. 2010-021). (7,48,97) The new law aims to strengthen protections for victims and prosecution of perpetrators, including by exempting victims from legal prosecution for acts they were coerced into or forced to commit, and increasing penalties for government officials who are found guilty of engaging in human trafficking. (15,19,48) In addition, under Article 7 of the Human Trafficking Law (No. 2020/17), convicted individuals may be sentenced to 10 years of prison and a fine of $6,757 to $13,514 (250,000 to 500,000 MRU), with an added 10 years if it is a slavery-related offense. (15,19)

According to Article 23 of the 2015 Anti-Slavery Law (Law 2015-0520), the only entities other than the Commissariat on Human Rights, Humanitarian Action, and Civil Society Relations that can file criminal cases on behalf of former slaves are legally registered human rights associations that have been operating for 5 years in Mauritania. (32,43,49-52) However, during the reporting period, the government passed a new NGO Law (No. 2021-004) to ease NGO registration requirements and move oversight of NGOs operating in Mauritania from the Ministry of the Interior to the Commissariat for Human Rights, Humanitarian Action, and Civil Society Relations. (53,54) This law will also allow several previously excluded NGOs, including those working on issues such as slavery and racial justice, to begin officially operating. (7,55)

Although the 2018 General Child Protection Code prohibits the employment of children in work that exposes them to physical, psychological, or sexual abuse; work with dangerous machinery, equipment, and tools; and work in unhealthy environments that may expose children to hazardous substances or temperatures, it does not specify the types of work that are hazardous, including domestic work, a sector in which there is evidence of children carrying heavy loads and working long hours. (5,29,56) However, in 2020, the Ministry of Labor conducted a workshop with the participation of civil society organizations to revise the list of hazardous work prohibited for children. Even though it was expected that the list be finalized in 2020, discussions were postponed to March 2021 due to the COVID-19 pandemic. (7,15)

The Labor Code allows children ages 12 and older to perform light work as long as it does not impede their school attendance, does not exceed 2 hours per day, and is authorized by the Ministry of Labor. (40) However, the Labor Code does not specify the activities in which light work may be permitted. (57) In addition, children in Mauritania are required to attend school only up to age 14. This standard makes children ages 14 through 16 vulnerable to child labor because they are not required to attend school but are not legally allowed to work. (29,47)

III. ENFORCEMENT OF LAWS ON CHILD LABOR

The government has established institutional mechanisms for the enforcement of laws and regulations on child labor (Table 5). However, gaps exist within the operations of enforcement agencies that may hinder adequate enforcement of their child labor laws.

Table 5. Agencies Responsible for Child Labor Law Enforcement

Organization/Agency	Role
Ministry of Labor's Directorate of Labor and Inspection	Enforces labor laws and investigates labor code infractions, including violations related to the minimum wage and hazardous work. (58,59)
Ministry of the Interior's Special Brigade for Minors	Investigates crimes against children, including human trafficking, and monitors religious schools ( mahadras ) to ensure that children are not forced to beg on behalf of their teachers. Mainly operates in the capital, Nouakchott. (6,36,60) During the reporting period, continued to employ 30 officers. (7,12)
Ministry of Justice's Directorate of the Judiciary for the Protection of Children	Assists with the enforcement of child protection issues and oversees tribunals responsible for sentencing offenders of laws related to children. (16)
Anti-Slavery Courts	Prosecute crimes related to slavery and provide free legal assistance to victims, including children. Located in Nema, Nouakchott, and Nouadhibou. (4,61-63)

Organization/Agency	Role
National Commission for Human Rights (CNDH)	Serves as an independent ombudsman body that advocates for the eradication of slavery, receives human rights complaints, and conducts investigations on human rights violations, including the worst forms of child labor. (6,20,36)

Labor Law Enforcement

In 2020, labor law enforcement agencies in Mauritania took actions to combat child labor (Table 6). However, gaps exist within the operations of the Ministry of Labor that may hinder adequate labor law enforcement, including financial resource allocation.

Table 6. Labor Law Enforcement Efforts Related to Child Labor

Due to pandemic mitigation measures imposed in 2020, refresher courses on labor law enforcement, including child labor laws, were not provided. (7,15) In addition, research found that the Ministry of Labor lacked equipment, training, transportation, and funding to conduct child labor inspections, especially in remote locations and in the informal sector, which employs more than 40 percent of the workforce. (5,7,12,50,58,60,65) During the reporting period, 67 new labor inspectors were enrolled at the National School of Administration, Journalism and the Judiciary, and upon graduation will join the existing ranks of inspectors. Training for new inspectors consists of education on the national labor code, including child labor laws, and on all labor-related conventions the country has ratified. (64) The government did not provide information on its labor law enforcement efforts, including the number and types of inspections, the number of violations found, and the number of penalties imposed and collected for inclusion in this report. (7)

Labor inspectors prepare reports when they find a labor violation and may include a recommendation for a penalty; they then are required to file the reports with the Ministry of Justice. The Ministry of Justice, in turn, assesses the penalty for the violation. (7,15) However, the penalties established for violating child labor laws are insufficient and do not generally deter violations. (7,51)

Criminal Law Enforcement

In 2020, criminal law enforcement agencies in Mauritania took actions to combat child labor (Table 7). However, gaps exist within the operations of the criminal enforcement agencies that may hinder adequate criminal law enforcement, including the investigation and prosecution of criminal cases related to hereditary slavery.

MINIMAL ADVANCEMENT – EFFORTS MADE BUT CONTINUED POLICY AND PRACTICE THAT DELAYED ADVANCEMENT

Table 7. Criminal Law Enforcement Efforts Related to Child Labor

Overview of Criminal Law Enforcement	2019	2020

Efforts made by criminal law enforcement authorities to combat the worst forms of child labor, including hereditary slavery, remained inadequate given the magnitude of the problem. (4) Research indicates that some police, prosecutors, and judges do not investigate cases of slavery in response to complaints, and that the government has prosecuted cases for lesser offenses to avoid bringing a slavery case to trial. In some cases, this may be due to corruption, lack of political will to prosecute suspected slaveholders, or due to misunderstanding of the 2015 Anti-Slavery Law. (4,12,67,68) There are also reports that investigative judges who receive anti-slavery cases unlawfully dismiss cases by civil society organizations representing victims of slavery, and that they may try to pressure victims to drop their cases or accept mediation in lieu of prosecution. (7,14,50,56,65) In addition, there are reports that some cases of slavery are resolved through social mediation rather than through the criminal justice system. (12,20) Due to the pandemic, all court activity, including anti-slavery and human trafficking cases, was suspended in March 2020. The courts briefly reopened between October and November of 2020, and as of January 2021, the courts have fully reopened. (19) During the reporting period, there were three convictions in slavery-related cases, though the government did not initiate any new slavery prosecutions. Research was unable to determine whether any of the cases that resulted in convictions involved children. (7,15) Enforcement authorities, including the Anti-Slavery Courts, lack personnel, funding, and training to adequately coordinate and enforce laws related to the worst forms of child labor. (3,10,12,13,21,61,63,69,70) Slavery victims also encounter obstacles when filing complaints, including pressure from judges to drop their complaints. The government's failure to adequately investigate these cases may be due to the insufficient allocation of resources for prosecutions or to a lack of training for judicial officials. (14,50,56,65) However, the government took steps to increase the resources available to judicial officials to handle slavery cases, including by doubling the 2021 budget for the Anti-Slavery Courts. (15)

Historically, the government interfered in the work of and arrested anti-slavery activists. However, research was unable to find information that this practice occurred in 2020 following the passage of the new NGO law. (7,66,71) The government did not provide information on the number of violations found or investigations carried out related to the worst forms of child labor for inclusion in this report. (7) Furthermore, research found there is little to no coordination among enforcement agencies. (14,72)

During the reporting period, the Ministry of Justice, in collaboration with UNHCR and the ILO, produced a first draft of an assessment of the criminal justice system and the complaints mechanism under the anti-slavery law, Law 2015-031. (7,15)

IV. COORDINATION OF GOVERNMENT EFFORTS ON CHILD LABOR

The government has established mechanisms to coordinate its efforts to address child labor. (Table 8) However, gaps exist that hinder the effective coordination of efforts to address child labor, including the enlisting all relevant agencies to address all forms of child labor.

MINIMAL ADVANCEMENT – EFFORTS MADE BUT CONTINUED POLICY AND PRACTICE THAT DELAYED ADVANCEMENT

Table 8. Key Mechanisms to Coordinate Government Efforts on Child Labor

Coordinating Body	Role & Description
National Child Protection Council	Aims to develop and implement policies and programs to eradicate all forms of violence against children, including child labor. Chaired by the Prime Minister's adviser on social affairs, includes government and civil society stakeholders that address children's rights. (28,56,73-76) The Ministry of Labor did not participate in the activities of the National Child Protection Council. (15,32) The council continued to meet on a bimonthly basis. (64)
General Delegation for National Solidarity and the Fight Against Exclusion ( Taazour )	Coordinates and implements government programs to provide education, economic opportunity, and health services to vulnerable populations, including communities of slave descent. (12,77-79) The program provided over 200,000 families with direct cash assistance during the reporting period. (15,64)
Commissariat on Human Rights, Humanitarian Action, and Civil Society Relations	Coordinates the development and implementation of government policies related to human rights, including those related to the worst forms of child labor. (4,58,80,81) Carries out awareness-raising campaigns to combat slavery and human trafficking and acts as a civil party to victims of slavery in filing cases. Acts as a semi-autonomous body under the supervision of the Office of the Prime Minister, which is also a member of the Human Rights Inter-Ministerial Committee. (4,15,58,80,81) As part of the new government's restructuring, the mandate of the National Agency to Combat the Vestiges of Slavery, Integration, and Fight Against Poverty's ( Tadamoun ) to act as a civil party on behalf of victims of slavery was transferred to the Commissariat on Human Rights, Humanitarian Action, and Civil Society Relations. (12,32,49) The Commissariat held several workshops on the new trafficking in persons (TIP) law. (64) In 2020, the commissariat oversaw the approval of the new National Action Plan on Trafficking in Persons (PANTP 2020–2022). (19,82)
Inter-Ministerial Technical Committee on Human Rights	Coordinates and monitors government efforts to promote human rights in Mauritania, including those related to the UN CRC. Led by the Commissioner for Human Rights, Humanitarian Action and Civil Society Relations and includes representatives from Taazour , the CNDH, and other ministries. (58,83) The committee continued to hold meetings during the reporting period. (64)
Ministry of Social Affairs, Childhood, and the Family (MASEF) Office of Childhood	Develops and implements programs to protect vulnerable children and to monitor alleged violations of child labor laws, including those related to the worst forms of child labor. Manages the Centers for the Protection and Social Integration of Children. (6,58) In 2020, the Ministry of Justice, in coordination with MASEF, set up a rehabilitation center for victims of slavery to reinstate their full civil rights and liberties. (7) A new separate child protection and integration center was inaugurated in Nouadhibou in November 2020, mainly aimed at providing care to migrants. (15) The ministry continued to run several children shelters during the reporting period. (64)
Human Rights Inter-Ministerial Committee*	Led by the Prime Minister with bimonthly meetings planned. Tasked with implementing the National Action Plan to combat TIP (PANTP), carrying out the U.S. Department of State's TIP Report recommendations, and monitoring the human rights situation in the country. (15,19) The Prime Minister chaired the first meeting in December, and key ministries included the Ministry of Justice, the Ministry of Interior and Decentralization, the Ministry of Foreign Affairs, the Ministry of Labor, and the Commission on Human Rights, Humanitarian Action, and Relations with Civil Society. (7,19)

* Mechanism to coordinate efforts to address child labor was created during the reporting period.

V. GOVERNMENT POLICIES ON CHILD LABOR

The government has established policies related to child labor (Table 9). However, policy gaps exist that hinder efforts to address child labor, including funding and implementation of key policies.

Table 9. Key Policies Related to Child Labor

Policy	Description
National Action Plan to Eliminate Child Labor (2015–2020)	Overseen by the Ministry of Labor, aimed to eliminate the worst forms of child labor by strengthening child labor laws, training relevant government officials, implementing awareness-raising campaigns, and mobilizing funds for social programs to withdraw children from child labor. (1,5,13,58) Will be replaced by a new plan, PANETE-RIM 2 (2016–2030), which was being developed in 2020 and will be aligned with Mauritania's commitment to the Alliance 8.7 efforts and to drafting a general code of child protection, defining Convention 182 provisions. (64)
National Action Plan to Combat Trafficking in Persons (PANTP) (2020–2022)†	Adopted in March 2020, aims to address forced child labor, forced child begging, forced prostitution, slavery, and other forms of child exploitation. Overseen by the Commissariat for Human Rights, Humanitarian Action, and Civil Society Relations with a budget of $145,946 (5.4 million MRU) for implementation. (19,82) Due to the pandemic, suspended many planned activities during the reporting period. (19) Increased budgets for anti-slavery courts, and passed NGO law under this policy. (64)

MINIMAL ADVANCEMENT – EFFORTS MADE BUT CONTINUED POLICY AND PRACTICE THAT DELAYED ADVANCEMENT

Policy	Description
Strategy for Accelerated Growth and Sustainable Development (2016–2030)	Aims to reduce poverty, promote sustainable development, and increase access to fundamental social services. Overseen by the Ministry of Economic Affairs and Development. (84,85) Integrates strategies to increase birth registration and access to compulsory education, strengthen social protection systems for children, and support efforts to combat slavery, including its vestiges. (84) Continued to be pursued during the reporting period. (64)
National Child Protection Strategy (2020–2025)†	Aims to protect children against violence, exploitation, abuse, and neglect. Specifically includes children exploited at work and victims of human trafficking, children living on the streets, and children who are victims of violence or sexual exploitation. (7,86) Begun developing a database to identify children at risk of engaging in hazardous work during the reporting period, in collaboration with UNICEF and the ILO. (15)

† Policy was approved during the reporting period.

Research found that efforts to implement most of the key policies related to child labor continue to be delayed due to insufficient allocation of resources. (14,56,87,88)

Mauritania continues to be a Pathfinder country under Alliance 8.7, an international partnership with 22 member countries, and facilitated by the ILO Secretariat. This involves a commitment toward achieving Sustainable Development Goal Target 8.7, which calls for the eradication of forced labor, modern slavery, human trafficking, and child labor by 2025. (89)

VI. SOCIAL PROGRAMS TO ADDRESS CHILD LABOR

In 2020, the government funded and participated in programs that include the goal of eliminating child labor (Table 10). However, gaps exist in these social programs, including the adequacy of efforts to address the problem in all sectors.

Table 10. Key Social Programs to Address Child Labor

Program	Description
Program to Eradicate the Effects of Slavery†	Government program that supports the reintegration and rehabilitation of former slaves. (4,90) Organized several information caravans to raise awareness of the new TIP law and slavery-related practices during the reporting period. (64)
Cash Transfer Tekavoul (2015–2025)†	A $45 million Taazour program, supported by the World Bank, the Adaptive Social Protection Program for the Sahel, and co-financed by the German and Mauritanian governments. Provides cash assistance to families with school-age children, conditioned on children's school attendance. (64,78,79) About 35,000 households in extreme poverty benefit from the program. Was extended for an additional 5 years and allocated an additional $72 million in 2020 to reinforce efforts in the social protection system. (64) Contributes to the G5 Sahel's Emergency Development Program (PDU), as part of new phase. (64)
Centers for the Protection and Social Integration of Children†	MASEF-operated program that provides short-term food, shelter, education, and vocational training to vulnerable children, many of whom are talibés . Operates in Aleg, Kaédi, Kiffa, Nouadhibou, Rosso, and Nouakchott. (5,6) With financial support from an NGO, managed seven centers around the country in 2020, offering short-term protection and social integration services to vulnerable children, including potential TIP victims. During the reporting period, supported 120 children, compared with 350 from the previous year, and referred victims to NGOs for long-term care. (15,64)
Model Mahadras Program†	Ministry of Islamic Affairs-funded program that provides monthly cash transfers of approximately $27 to parents whose children are enrolled in model mahadras . Also operates adult literacy classes for 8,000 religious leaders ( imams ) across Mauritania to raise awareness of children's rights, including information on child labor and child trafficking. (20) Continued to operate in 2020 in collaboration with the Ministry of Labor and the ILO in identifying hazardous forms of labor. (64)
UNICEF Country Program (2018–2022)	A $13.8 million UNICEF-funded program that supports government efforts to improve education, birth registration rates, social inclusion, and protection for children, including refugees. (7,91) In 2020, provided food assistance to vulnerable families, with at least 24,305 cases of severe acute malnutrition admitted for treatment. (15,64) Supported the Ministry of Health in implementing a national Child Health Day campaign which integrated screening children for acute malnutrition during the reporting period. (64)
Decent Work for Migrant Youth in the Fishing Sector (2017–2021)	A $17 million ILO- and Government of Germany-funded, 4-year project to promote decent work among youth working in the artisanal fishing sector in Mauritania. Plans to reach at least 9,000 recipients and to conduct an analysis of child labor in the fishing sector. (7) Hosted a workshop focusing on social dialogue and protection of artisanal fisheries during the reporting period. (64)

MINIMAL ADVANCEMENT – EFFORTS MADE BUT CONTINUED POLICY AND PRACTICE THAT DELAYED ADVANCEMENT

Program	Description
USDOL-Funded Projects	USDOL-funded global projects implemented by the ILO to support global and national efforts aimed at countering child labor and the forced labor of adults and children. Include From Protocol to Practice: A Bridge to Global Action on Forced Labor (The Bridge Project) , and the Measurement, Awareness-Raising, and Policy Engagement (MAP 16) Project on Child Labor and Forced Labor (2019–2021) , a $250,000 program. (12,92-94) In 2020, a steering committee was convened by the Ministry of Labor in collaboration with the ILO and UNICEF to organize a high-level virtual roundtable on the pandemic and child labor focusing on future perspectives in times of crisis. The roundtable discussion highlighted the vulnerability of children in the time of COVID-19 and their increased risk of becoming victims of forced labor. (7) At the end of the roundtable, the tripartite stakeholders recommended the formalization of the steering committee of the National Plan of Action for the Elimination of Child Labor (PANETE-RIM) and launched an evaluation of PANETE-RIM with all concerned stakeholders. (7,12,65,95) Additional information is available on the USDOL website .

† Program is funded by the Government of Mauritania.

Although Mauritania has social programs that target child labor, the scope of these programs is insufficient to fully address the extent of the problem, especially in agriculture, herding, and domestic work, and for children in hereditary and indentured slavery. (12,14,58,96) Moreover, some government officials do not acknowledge that slavery continues to exist. (2,3,20,24,58,67,69) In addition, the lack of recent data on slavery limits the government's ability to develop effective social programs to comprehensively address this issue. Existing social programs for former slaves and awareness of the national laws on slavery are insufficient. (2,24)

VII. SUGGESTED GOVERNMENT ACTIONS TO ELIMINATE CHILD LABOR

Based on the reporting above, suggested actions are identified that would advance the elimination of child labor in Mauritania (Table 11).

Table 11. Suggested Government Actions to Eliminate Child Labor

Area	Suggested Action	Year(s) Suggested
Legal Framework	Accede to the UN CRC Optional Protocol on Armed Conflict.	2019 – 2020
	Identify hazardous occupations and activities prohibited for children, including in sectors in which child labor is known to occur.	2009 – 2020
	Ensure that the law's light work provisions specify the conditions in which such work may be undertaken.	2015 – 2020
	Raise the compulsory education age to align with the minimum age for work.	2018 – 2020
	Ensure that the new NGO law allows for newly registered civil society organizations to have the ability to immediately file criminal court cases on behalf of former slaves.	2020
Enforcement	Increase training and resources for labor and criminal law enforcement agencies, including the Anti-Slavery Courts, to adequately enforce labor laws, especially in remote areas and in the informal sector.	2010 – 2020
	Strengthen the labor inspection system by authorizing the labor inspectorate to initiate routine and targeted inspections, rather than performing inspections based solely on complaints received.	2014 – 2020
	Ensure that penalties are high enough to deter the violation of child labor laws.	2015 – 2020
	Ensure that routine inspections are conducted.	2020
	Ensure that there is close coordination and collaboration between all enforcement agencies in the Mauritanian Government.	2020
	Increase efforts to ensure that cases of the worst forms of child labor, including hereditary slavery and forced begging, are investigated and prosecuted in accordance with the law.	2016 – 2020
	Ensure that judicial sector officials have the proper training and awareness of slavery issues, and that they do not improperly dismiss or fail to refer appropriate cases to the Anti-Slavery Courts.	2020
	Ensure that information on criminal law enforcement efforts and data are collected and published each year.	2020
	Publish information on labor law enforcement efforts, including the number and types of inspections conducted, the number of child labor law violations found, and the number of penalties assessed and collected.	2019 – 2020

Area	Suggested Action	Year(s) Suggested
Coordination	Ensure that the Ministry of Labor participates in the National Child Protection Council.	2018 – 2020
Government Policies	Ensure that key policies related to child labor receive sufficient resources, including funds, for effective implementation.	2016 – 2020
Social Programs	Expand the scope of programs to address child labor, including in agriculture, herding, and domestic work, and the worst forms of child labor, including hereditary and indentured slavery.	2009 – 2020
	Implement a continuous awareness-raising program for government officials on the laws related to slavery and the worst forms of child labor.	2012 – 2020
	Conduct research and collect data on slavery to inform the development of effective policies and programs to identify and protect children who are at risk.	2010 – 2020
	Increase funding for social programs that provide services to former slaves.	2015 – 2020
	Ensure that all children are able to obtain birth certificates to increase their access to secondary education and reduce their vulnerability to the worst forms of child labor.	2016 – 2020
	Increase funding dedicated to school infrastructure and teacher availability, especially in rural areas, to eliminate barriers and make education accessible for all children, including those from families of slave descent and refugees.	2011 – 2020

In 2020, Mauritius made moderate advancement in efforts to eliminate the worst forms of child labor. During the reporting period, the National Assembly passed the long-awaited Children's Bill, which includes more robust provisions related to child prostitution and child pornography violations. Also passed was the Children's Court Bill, which sets out to ensure a child-friendly environment during court proceedings and establishes a Criminal Division with jurisdiction over sexual offences against children. In addition, the National Assembly voted to approve the Child Sex Offender Register Bill, which establishes the Child Sex Offender Register that will assist in monitoring, tracking, and investigating sexual offences against children. However, children in Mauritius are subjected to the worst forms of child labor, including in commercial sexual exploitation, sometimes as a result of human trafficking, and in illicit activities. Children also engage in child labor in construction and street work. In addition, existing prohibitions related to forced labor do not meet international standards because forced labor is criminally prohibited only when it results from human trafficking. There are also many barriers to education access, especially for children with disabilities. In addition, gaps in the implementation of key policies and social programs related to child labor, including the worst forms of child labor.

Agalega Islands, Cargados Carajos Shoals, and Rodrigues are not shown.

I. PREVALENCE AND SECTORAL DISTRIBUTION OF CHILD LABOR

Children in Mauritius are subjected to the worst forms of child labor, including in commercial sexual exploitation, sometimes as a result of human trafficking, and in illicit activities. (1-3) Children also engage in child labor in construction and street work. (1,3,4) Table 1 provides key indicators on children's work and education in Mauritius. Data on some of these indicators are not available from the sources used in this report.

Table 1. Statistics on Children's Work and Education

Children	Age	Percent
Working (% and population)	5 to 14	Unavailable
Attending School (%)	5 to 14	Unavailable
Combining Work and School (%)	7 to 14	Unavailable
Primary Completion Rate (%)		98.5

Source for primary completion rate: Data from 2019, published by UNESCO Institute for Statistics, 2021. (5)

Data were unavailable from International Labor Organization's analysis, 2021. (6)

Based on a review of available information, Table 2 provides an overview of children's work by sector and activity.

Table 2. Overview of Children's Work by Sector and Activity

Sector/Industry	Activity
Agriculture	Farming, activities unknown (1,3)
	Fishing, including diving, and casting nets and traps (1,3)
Industry	Construction (3,7)
Services	Domestic work (1,7)
	Working in shops and restaurants (1,3)
	Street work, including vending, begging, carrying goods in public markets, and in the transportation sector(1,3,8,9)
Categorical Worst Forms of Child Labor‡	Commercial sexual exploitation, sometimes as a result of human trafficking (1,3)
	Use in illicit activities, including selling drugs (1,3)

‡ Child labor understood as the worst forms of child labor per se under Article 3(a)–(c) of ILO C. 182.

MODERATE ADVANCEMENT

Research indicates there is an increase in child labor activities during the holiday season (November and December) and during breaks in the school year. (1) Some children in Mauritius are subjected to commercial sexual exploitation by their peers or family members, or through fraudulent offers of other employment. (1,10) Mauritius has never conducted a national child labor survey; accordingly, information on the prevalence of child labor in the country is limited. (11,12) Child labor is known to occur primarily in the informal sector, in which monitoring and enforcement are more challenging. (1)

Research indicates there were more cases of working children during the reporting period due to the COVID-19 pandemic lockdown from mid-March 2020 until June 2020. Some children stopped attending school during the lockdown because they were unable to participate in distance education programs, in all likelihood for want of Internet access; as a result, they took small manual jobs. (3) In addition, children with disabilities face significant barriers to education due to discrimination and a lack of special services and resources. (13,14)

II. LEGAL FRAMEWORK FOR CHILD LABOR

Mauritius has ratified all key international conventions concerning child labor (Table 3).

Table 3. Ratification of International Conventions on Child Labor

Convention	Ratification
 ILO C. 138, Minimum Age	✓
ILO C. 182, Worst Forms of Child Labor	✓
 UN CRC	✓
UN CRC Optional Protocol on Armed Conflict	✓
UN CRC Optional Protocol on the Sale of Children, Child Prostitution and Child Pornography	✓
 Palermo Protocol on Trafficking in Persons	✓

The government has established laws and regulations related to child labor (Table 4). However, gaps exist in Mauritius's legal framework to adequately protect children from the worst forms of child labor, including the prohibition of forced labor.

Table 4. Laws and Regulations on Child Labor

Standard	Meets International Standards	Age	Legislation
Minimum Age for Work	Yes	16	Article 2 and 8 of the Workers' Rights Act (15)
Minimum Age for Hazardous Work	Yes	18	Article 2 and 9 of the Workers' Rights Act (15)
Identification of Hazardous Occupations or Activities Prohibited for Children	Yes		Section 8 of the Occupational Safety and Health Act (16)
Prohibition of Forced Labor	No		Article 6 of the Constitution; Article 2 of the Combating Trafficking in Persons Act (17,18)
Prohibition of Child Trafficking	Yes		Article 13A of the Child Protection Act; Articles 2, 11, 14, and 21 of the Combating Trafficking in Persons Act (18,19)
Prohibition of Commercial Sexual Exploitation of Children	Yes		Article 14 of the Child Protection Act; Article 253 of the Criminal Code; Article 11 of the Combating Trafficking in Persons Act (4,18-20)
Prohibition of Using Children in Illicit Activities	Yes		Articles 30.1b–e, 38a, 41.1f, and 41.2 of the Dangerous Drugs Act (21)

Standard	Meets International Standards	Age	Legislation
Prohibition of Compulsory Recruitment of Children by (State) Military	N/A*†
Prohibition of Military Recruitment by Non-state Armed Groups	No		Article 63 of the Criminal Code (20)
Compulsory Education Age	Yes	16	Article 37.2 of the Education Act (22)
Free Public Education	Yes		Article 35 of the Education Act (22)

* No conscription

† No standing military

Workers' Rights Act specifies that a child under the age of 16 may not be employed to work in any occupation, but allows for children to do light jobs in family businesses that are not harmful to their health, development, or education, however, the law does not limit the number of hours for light work. (15)

In December 2020, the National Assembly passed three bills aimed at reinforcing the legal framework on the protection of children. (3) The long-awaited Children's Bill will replace the Child Protection Act with a more comprehensive and modern legislative framework. The Children's Bill aims to address the limitations of the Child Protection Act by aligning with international standards on children's rights and includes more robust provisions addressing the offences of child prostitution and child pornography than the current Child Protection Act. (23) The second bill is the Children's Court Bill, which aims to establish a dedicated court that provides a child-friendly environment in the best interest of the child during court proceedings, and establishes a Criminal Division with jurisdiction over sexual offenses against children. (24) The Child Sex Offender Register Bill, which seeks to reduce the risk of sexual offenses against children by establishing a Child Sex Offender Register (CSO Register) that will assist in monitoring, tracking, and investigating sexual offenses against children. (25) These bills had not yet entered into force by the end of the reporting period. (3)

Existing prohibitions related to forced labor do not meet international standards because forced labor is criminally prohibited only when it results from human trafficking.

III. ENFORCEMENT OF LAWS ON CHILD LABOR

The government has established institutional mechanisms for the enforcement of laws and regulations on child labor (Table 5). However, gaps exist within the authority of enforcement agencies that may hinder adequate enforcement of their child labor laws.

Table 5. Agencies Responsible for Child Labor Law Enforcement

Organization/Agency	Role
Ministry of Labor, Human Resource Development and Training (MOLHRDT)	Enforces all labor laws, including those related to child labor. (13,26,27)
Office of the Ombudsperson for Children	Investigates any suspected or reported cases of child labor or violation of a child's rights, proposes laws and policies to advance children's rights, and implements trainings on child protection laws and prevention. (28,29)
Police Brigade for the Protection of Minors (Minors' Brigade)	Investigates crimes related to the worst forms of child labor, including child trafficking, use of children in illicit activities, and commercial sexual exploitation. (3,30) Maintains a database of all human trafficking incidents involving children and refers all cases of commercial sexual exploitation to the Child Development Unit. (31)
Office of the Director of Public Prosecutions	Undertakes criminal proceedings on laws related to the worst forms of child labor in coordination with the Minors' Brigade and the judicial courts. (32,33)

The Office of the Ombudsperson for Children held several activities relating to children's welfare during the reporting period, including a 2-day networking forum on child protection in August. Other activities included

MODERATE ADVANCEMENT

media outreach to raise awareness of children's rights in April and May, and a meeting with NGOs on children living in poverty in July. (3) The Mauritius Police conducted 1,233 outreach sessions for primary and secondary schools and youth centers, reaching 80,989 people. These sessions were held with a view to informing the public about the dangers and consequences of the worst forms of child labor, child prostitution, commercial sexual exploitation of children, and trafficking in persons. (3,34) In addition, the Minors' Brigade participated in seven media programs dealing with the commercial sexual exploitation of children. (3) During the reporting period, bilateral meetings were carried out with the Supreme Court, the Police Department, and the High Powered and Working Together Committee. (3)

The Child Protection Act, Section 11, requires medical and paramedical professionals and school staff to report any cases of child labor or abuse. (19)

Labor Law Enforcement

In 2020, labor law enforcement agencies in Mauritius took actions to combat child labor (Table 6). However, gaps exist within the authority of the Ministry of Labor, Human Resource Development and Training (MOLHRDT) that may hinder adequate labor law enforcement, including authority to assess penalties.

Table 6. Labor Law Enforcement Efforts Related to Child Labor

† Data are from July 2019 to June 2020.

‡ Data are from July 2020 to December 2020.

MOLHRDT held 27 training sessions for new recruits and 26 sessions for other officers during the reporting period. The ministry's Labor and Industrial Relations Division also received training on child labor regulations enumerated in the Workers' Rights Act. (3) This division is responsible for enforcing child labor law compliance and manages complaints, including those related to child labor, at 17 regional labor offices. (3) However, zero calls were reported to the hotline service related to child labor during the reporting period. Research indicated that the one child labor violation imposed and collected during the reporting period was from a 2019 case. (3)

Research found approximately 30 cases of working children, between the ages of 13 and 15, who were involved in jobs on construction sites, as street vendors, and in restaurants, shops, agricultural fields, and the transportation sector. (3) During the reporting period, MOLHRDT also reported it had conducted 1,406 inspections; however, it did not indicate if any were child-labor specific. In addition, due to the pandemic, significantly fewer inspections were conducted during the reporting period. (3,34) Although the government conducted labor inspections during the reporting period, it is unknown whether the government adequately verified whether children were found to be involved in child labor or hazardous work. (3) While the Workers' Rights Act permits unannounced inspections, MOLHRDT has previously reported that labor inspections are not carried out on private properties with small farms unless the farm is registered as a business; otherwise, labor inspectors are required to receive permission from the owner to conduct an inspection. (7,34)

Criminal Law Enforcement

In 2020, criminal law enforcement agencies in Mauritius took actions to combat child labor (Table 7). However, gaps exist within the authority of the criminal enforcement agencies that may hinder adequate criminal law enforcement, including insufficient resource allocation.

Table 7. Criminal Law Enforcement Efforts Related to Child Labor

Overview of Criminal Law Enforcement	2019	2020
Initial Training for New Criminal Investigators	Yes (1)	Yes (3)
Training on New Laws Related to the Worst Forms of Child Labor	Yes (1)	N/A (3)
Refresher Courses Provided	Yes (1)	Yes (3)
Number of Investigations	Unknown (1)	3 (3)
Number of Violations Found	Unknown (1)	3 (3)
Number of Prosecutions Initiated	Unknown (1)	0 (3)
Number of Convictions	Unknown (1)	1 (3)
Imposed Penalties for Violations Related to the Worst Forms of Child Labor	Unknown (1)	Yes (3)
Reciprocal Referral Mechanism Exists Between Criminal Authorities and Social Services	Yes (1)	Yes (3)

The Ministry of Gender Equality and Family Welfare reported 10 cases (6 males and 4 females) of alleged child labor during the reporting period. Three of the cases involved commercial sexual exploitation, four cases were related to begging, and three cases were related to street vending and working in shops. (3)

During the reporting period, new employees of the Mauritius Police received initial training, which covered the worst forms of child labor. The Mauritius Police reported three new investigations into child labor and three violations; however, there were no child labor prosecutions. (3) There was one conviction in 2020 for the sexual abuse or exploitation of a child. The accused was charged in 2014 under Section 14 of the Child Protection Act, which carries a maximum sentence of 10 years in prison. (3) The Court initially sentenced the accused to 18 months' imprisonment, but later reduced the sentence to 240 hours of community service. (3,34) While the Court has taken action against the accused, the penalties imposed were not commensurate with the crime. (3,34)

Reporting indicates that criminal law enforcement agencies continue to lack staff, transportation, and other resources to properly enforce criminal laws related to the worst forms of child labor. (1,3)

IV. COORDINATION OF GOVERNMENT EFFORTS ON CHILD LABOR

The government has established mechanisms to coordinate its efforts to address child labor (Table 8). However, gaps exist that hinder the effective coordination of efforts to address child labor, including lack of a coordinating body primarily focused on child labor.

Table 8. Key Mechanisms to Coordinate Government Efforts on Child Labor

Coordinating Body	Role & Description
Child Development Unit	Enforces legislation related to children, implements policies and social programs related to child development, and provides social services to victims of the worst forms of child labor, including human trafficking. Also provides trainings and awareness campaigns against human trafficking, including the commercial sexual exploitation of children, and operates the 113 hotline for any offences involving children. (2,11,35) Managed by the Ministry of Gender Equality and Family Welfare (MOGE), the budget for child protection, welfare, and development was $3 million for fiscal year 2020–2021, which mainly funded the Child Development Unit. (3)
High Powered and Working Together Committee	Chaired by MOGE, coordinates and implements activities on children's rights, including efforts to combat the worst forms of child labor. (1,3,35) Met in January 2020 to coordinate the various government agencies working on child protection. (3)

MODERATE ADVANCEMENT

Coordinating Body	Role & Description
Inter-Ministerial Committee on Human Trafficking	Comprises representatives from the Attorney General's Office, MOLHRDT, MOGE, and other ministries; however, it is not yet clear who will chair this committee. Coordinates anti-trafficking efforts in Mauritius. (3,36,37) Did not meet during the reporting period. (38)
National Steering Committee on Trafficking in Persons	Chaired by the Prime Minister's Office, drives daily operations on anti-trafficking efforts. Operates as a working-level technical committee under the auspices of the high-level Inter-Ministerial Committee. (3,10) Met twice during the reporting period. (38)
Community Child Watch Committee	Conducts surveillance of children exposed to any form of violence, including commercial sexual exploitation and human trafficking, at the community levels. Operates with the collaboration of volunteers, social workers, NGOs, and other key stakeholders. (39) Held 282 meetings between January and October. (3)

Once the Children's Act goes into effect, the Child Services Coordinating Panel will be established and will be responsible for the coordination of all activities relating to the implementation of this new law, the United National Convention on the Rights of the Child, and the African Charter on the Rights and Welfare of the Child. (3,23)

The government's efforts to combat the worst forms of child labor were hindered by a lack of coordination, inter-agency communication, and information sharing between key coordinating mechanisms. In addition, there is no coordinating body whose primary focus is child labor. (1,3)

V. GOVERNMENT POLICIES ON CHILD LABOR

The government has established policies related to child labor (Table 9). However, policy gaps exist that hinder efforts to address child labor, including covering all the worst forms of child labor.

Table 9. Key Policies Related to Child Labor

Policy	Description
Education and Human Resources Strategy Plan (2008–2020)	Aimed to provide equal access to primary, secondary, and technical and vocational education. Provided social services for youth. Overseen by the Ministry of Education. (40) Replaced by the Nine Year Continuous Basic Education Policy in January 2017. (38)
Nine Year Continuous Basic Education Policy (2017–2030)	Aims to enable all students to successfully complete 9 years of basic schooling and forms part of a package of reforms designed to strategically transform the education system in Mauritius. Also referred to as Nine Year Schooling. (38,41)
National Sport and Physical Activity Policy (2018–2028)	Provides a structured sports program available to all ages. Focuses on children and young adults, offering after-school recreational activities to help reduce children's vulnerability to child labor and illicit activities. (7,42,43)

Although the Government of Mauritius has adopted the Nine-Year Continuous Basic Education Policy and the National Sport and Physical Activity Policy, research found no evidence of these policies aiming to combat the worst forms of child labor, such as commercial sexual exploitation. In addition, the National Action Plan to Combat Human Trafficking, drafted in 2016, has yet to be adopted by the government. (1,36,38,44,45) Research was unable to determine whether activities were undertaken to implement key policies related to child labor in Mauritius during the reporting period.

VI. SOCIAL PROGRAMS TO ADDRESS CHILD LABOR

In 2020, the government funded and participated in programs that include the goal of eliminating or preventing child labor (Table 10). However, gaps exist in these social programs, including implementation of programs to address the full scope of the problem.

Table 10. Key Social Programs to Address Child Labor

Program	Description
National Children's Council†	Overseen by MOGE, offers a wide range of services and facilities, including day care, shelters, creativity centers, children's clubs, and school child protection clubs around the island. (1,46) Research was unable to determine whether the National Children's Council held any activities during the reporting period.
Eradication of Absolute Poverty Program†	Increases access to quality primary education for vulnerable children administered by the Ministry of Social Integration, Social Security and National Solidarity. Provides educational support to 7,500 households in 229 geographic pockets of poverty and in the Education Priority Zones. Designed to provide equal opportunities to primary school-aged children throughout the country. (47,48) Research was unable to determine whether this program was active during the reporting period.
Awareness-Raising Programs on Commercial Sexual Exploitation and Human Trafficking†	Educates the public on preventing commercial sexual exploitation of children and human trafficking, created by MOGE. (1) Between January 2020 and September 2020, MOGE held 23 outreach sessions, mainly geared to adolescents, teenage mothers, parents, caregivers, and shelter officers, on various topics reaching 1,275 people. An additional 24 sessions were held on subjects related to child abuse. (3)
Atelier Partage Parents Program	Aims to educate parents, covers good parenting practices, and focuses on violence and child abuse issues. (1,35,46) One session was held during the reporting period. (3)

† Program is funded by the Government of Mauritius.

Although the government has established the National Children's Council to improve the effectiveness of institutional care facilities and shelters, evidence suggests that there continues to be a lack of appropriate standards of care, inadequate provision of services, and overcrowding in some centers that house orphans, child victims of commercial sexual exploitation, and child victims of other types of abuses. (2,32,42,49,50)

VII. SUGGESTED GOVERNMENT ACTIONS TO ELIMINATE CHILD LABOR

Based on the reporting above, suggested actions are identified that would advance the elimination of child labor in Mauritius (Table 11).

Table 11. Suggested Government Actions to Eliminate Child Labor

Area	Suggested Action	Year(s) Suggested
Legal Framework	Ensure that the law criminally prohibits the recruitment of children under age 18 into non-state armed groups.	2016 – 2020
	Ensure that the law's light work provisions limit the number of hours for light work.	2019 – 2020
	Ensure that all forms of forced labor are criminally prohibited.	2019 – 2020
Enforcement	Strengthen the labor inspectorate by authorizing inspectors to assess penalties.	2015 – 2020
	Ensure that labor inspections are conducted in all sectors in which children work, and assess penalties for child labor violations.	2020
	Allow labor inspectors to conduct unannounced inspections on private properties and throughout the informal sector.	2018 – 2020
	Increase the amount of training, human resources, and funding for agencies responsible for enforcing criminal laws related to the worst forms of child labor.	2011 – 2020
	Ensure that penalties for the worst forms of child labor, including sexual abuse or exploitation of a child, are commensurate with those for other serious crimes.	2020
Coordination	Ensure that all coordinating bodies are active and are able to carry out their intended mandates.	2018 – 2020
	Ensure that coordination mechanisms to combat the worst forms of child labor share information and policy-making decisions, improve coordination, and prevent overlap.	2012 – 2020
	Ensure a coordinating body exists that comprehensively addresses child labor.	2019 – 2020
Government Policies	Adopt a policy that addresses the worst forms of child labor, including commercial sexual exploitation.	2014 – 2020
	Adopt a comprehensive National Action Plan to combat human trafficking.	2017 – 2020
	Annually publish activities undertaken to implement key policies designed to address child labor.	2019 – 2020
Social Programs	Collect and publish data on the extent and nature of child labor in Mauritius to inform policies and programs.	2013 – 2020
	Ensure that all children, including those with disabilities, have equal access to education.	2014 – 2020

MODERATE ADVANCEMENT

Area	Suggested Action	Year(s) Suggested
Social Programs	Ensure that child victims of commercial sexual exploitation have access to comprehensive and quality social services and standards of care.	2010 – 2020
	Publish activities undertaken to implement the Eradication of Absolute Poverty Program during the reporting period.	2019 – 2020
	Conduct research to further identify children's activities in farming to inform policies and programs.	2020
	Publish activities undertaken by the National Children's Council during the reporting period.	2020

In 2020, Mexico made significant advancement in efforts to eliminate the worst forms of child labor. During the reporting period, the government published the 2019 National Child Labor Survey, the results of which will be used to develop policies and programs to combat child labor. In addition, it ratified International Labor Organization Convention 189 on Domestic Workers, and revised the Migration Law and Refugee Assistance and Asylum Law to prioritize the rights of migrant and refugee children, including prohibiting the detention of children in migrant centers and ensuring migrant and refugee children have educational access. Moreover, state governments investigated and prosecuted at least 199 child trafficking cases. The government also approved the creation of a national network of Local Committees to Prevent and Eradicate Child Labor and Protect Adolescent Workers of the Permitted Age to improve coordination efforts to address the worst forms of child labor at the municipal and local levels. Further, it published the National Program on Human Rights 2020–2024 and the Secretariat of Labor and Social Welfare's National Program for 2020–2024. However, children in Mexico are subjected to the worst forms of child labor, including in commercial sexual exploitation, sometimes as a result of human trafficking, and in illicit activities, such as the production and trafficking of drugs. Children also perform dangerous tasks in agriculture, including in the production of chile peppers, coffee, sugarcane, and tomatoes. The COVID-19 pandemic severely impacted the Mexican economy, resulting in a significant increase in the number of children engaging in child labor. Although nearly 60 percent of all employment in Mexico occurs in the informal sector, federal and some state-level labor inspectors carry out inspections in the informal sector only after receiving formal complaints. In addition, labor and criminal law enforcement agencies lacked human and financial resources which may hinder the adequate enforcement of labor and criminal laws, and the government did not publish complete information on its labor and criminal law enforcement efforts. Social programs to combat child labor do not address all relevant sectors in which child labor is found in Mexico.

I. PREVALENCE AND SECTORAL DISTRIBUTION OF CHILD LABOR

Children in Mexico are subjected to the worst forms of child labor, including in commercial sexual exploitation, sometimes as a result of human trafficking, and in illicit activities, such as the production and trafficking of drugs. (1-5) Children also perform dangerous tasks in agriculture, including in the production of chile peppers, coffee, sugarcane, and tomatoes. (6-10) Data from the National Child Labor Survey (ENTI 2019), which was funded by USDOL, show that 3.1 million children between the ages of 5 and 17 engage in child labor, including hazardous household chores. It also shows that 52 percent of child laborers engage in hazardous work and 25 percent of child laborers do not attend school. (9,11) In addition, the ENTI 2019 shows that child labor primarily occurs in the central and southern states of Oaxaca, Puebla, Chiapas, and Michoacán, and 61 percent of child laborers are boys. (9,11) The Government of Mexico plans to use the ENTI 2019 results to develop policies and action plans to combat child labor. (9,12) Table I provides key indicators on children's work and education in Mexico.

Based on a review of available information, Table 2 provides an overview of children’s work by sector and activity.

Table 2. Overview of Children’s Work by Sector and Activity

Sector/Industry	Activity
Agriculture	Working in agriculture,† including in the production of avocados, chile peppers, coffee, cucumbers, eggplants, beans (green), melons, onions, sugarcane, tobacco,† and tomatoes (6-10,15-18) Cattle raising (19)
Industry	Manufacturing† footwear, furniture, garments, leather goods, and textiles (7,9,19-21) Producing baked goods (9,19,22) Construction,† activities unknown (7,9,19) Mining,† including amber (9,19,23-25) Working in woodworking and welding shops (7,9,19)
Services	Street work† as vendors, shoe shiners, beggars, car washers, and porters (6,22,26-29) Working in auto repair, beauty salons, restaurants, bars,† and coffee shops (7,9,28) Scavenging in landfills (6,30) Domestic work (9,11,19,31,32)
Categorical Worst Forms of Child Labor‡	Forced labor in domestic work, street vending, and begging, each sometimes as a result of human trafficking (4,23,29,32-36) Commercial sexual exploitation, including in the production of pornography, sometimes as a result of human trafficking (1,3,4,7,23,37) Use by cartels to perform illicit activities, including the production of poppies for heroin, drug trafficking, and carrying out armed attacks, sometimes as a result of human trafficking (2,4,5,23,38-41)

† Determined by national law or regulation as hazardous and, as such, relevant to Article 3(d) of ILO C. 182.

‡ Child labor understood as the worst forms of child labor per se under Article 3(a)–(c) of ILO C. 182.

In 2020, the COVID-19 pandemic severely impacted the Mexican economy, resulting in a significant increase in the number of children engaging in child labor. Experts estimate that as a result of the pandemic, the number of people living in poverty in Mexico will increase by 7.9 percent and the number of children engaging in child labor will increase by 5.5 percent. (5,24,42) Despite a government program to transmit public education classes via Internet, television, and radio during the pandemic, reports suggest that at least 2.5 million children did not continue their basic education. This includes 800,000 students who did not transition from lower secondary to upper secondary school. (43,44) In addition, students reported difficulty accessing classes as at least half of Mexican households do not have computers or Internet access, while 80 percent of indigenous or rural households lacked computers or Internet access. (44-46) The lack of access to education and school abandonment leaves children more vulnerable to the worst forms of child labor. (5,47,48)

Organized criminal groups recruit and exploit children in illicit activities, including serving as lookouts, carrying out armed attacks against authorities and rival cartels, and in the production, transport, and sale of drugs. Most of the time these children abandon school, are unable to access future employment in the formal sector, or go on to commit graver crimes. (4,5,41,49) Children in Mexico are also trafficked internally for commercial sexual exploitation and illicit activities, including by organized criminal groups. The state of Tlaxcala is known as the predominant source and transit center for child commercial sexual exploitation in Mexico, but it also occurs in tourist areas such as Acapulco, Puerto Vallarta, and Cancun, and in northern border cities such as Tijuana and Ciudad Juárez. (1,3,23,50) The states of Chiapas, Guerrero, Puebla, and Veracruz are also source and transit centers for human trafficking for the purposes of sexual and labor exploitation. (23) Reports by Mexico's National Commission on Human Rights (CNDH) and the UN Office on Drugs and Crime found that 25 percent of female trafficking victims in Mexico are under 18 years of age while 45 percent of child trafficking victims are boys and girls of indigenous descent. (1,4,36,51,52) In addition, Mexican authorities reported that they registered an increase of 73 percent in online child pornography distribution during the pandemic. (37)

Child labor in agriculture is more prevalent among boys. Although children engage in agricultural activities throughout the country, the majority of child labor in this sector occurs in the central and southern states of Oaxaca, Puebla, Chiapas, and Nayarit. (9,11) Children's work in agriculture often includes long working hours, use of sharp tools, handling pesticides, and carrying heavy loads. (10,53,54) A 2018 report by the Centro de Derechos Humanos de la Montaña Tlachinollan found that 42 percent of migrant agricultural worker households had at least one child engaged in child labor, while in 2020, the government estimated that there are approximately 714,000 Mexican children who are internal migrant agricultural workers. (15,55,56) In addition, some children ages 15 to 17 living in agricultural export-producing communities are vulnerable to involvement in organized crime as they may not be able to find legal work. (18,57-59)

Children from indigenous populations are more likely to work across all sectors, including in agriculture, than non-indigenous children. (15,55,60) According to CNDH, indigenous populations are especially vulnerable to child labor and human trafficking due to low educational levels, linguistic barriers, and discrimination. (36,50,61-63) Indigenous children are also less likely to attend school due to the lack of schools near their homes, and the lack of educational materials and instruction in native languages. (60,64-66)

Migrants, mostly from the Northern Triangle countries of El Salvador, Guatemala, and Honduras, who are fleeing violence, instability, and lack of opportunity in their countries of origin travel through Mexico en route to the United States. In 2020, Mexican authorities reported identifying and processing at least 87,000 migrants of whom approximately 20 percent were children, including at least 4,100 unaccompanied minors. (67-75) Migrant children, especially those travelling by themselves, are more vulnerable to human trafficking, forced recruitment by organized criminal groups, and other worst forms of child labor. (4,70,71) In addition, many migrant children do not have access to education. (68,69,71)

The National Institute of Migration (INM) is responsible for enforcing the rights of migrant children in coordination with the National System for Integral Family Development (SNDIF), and the Mexican Commission for Refugee Assistance (COMAR) is tasked with refugee assistance. However, due to government austerity measures and an increase in the number of migrants, including unaccompanied children, INM, SNDIF, and COMAR may have insufficient funding to carry out their mandates. (23,72,73,76,77) In addition, although the government revised laws in November 2020 to address the best interests of migrant and refugee children including placement in child protection centers while waiting to be repatriated, some children remained in INM detention centers without access to education during the reporting period. (68,70,73,78-80) Moreover, the lack of implementation and poor coordination by INM and SNDIF left some unaccompanied children and migrant families with children in vulnerable conditions and without access to shelter. In addition, many SNDIF shelters, in which these families and children are being housed, have reached or are nearing capacity. (49,77,81) To address these challenges, some state governments in states with large migrant communities have coordinated with civil society to provide shelter and education to migrant families. (70,71,82,83)

 UN CRC Optional Protocol on the Sale of Children, Child Prostitution and Child Pornography	✓
 Palermo Protocol on Trafficking in Persons	✓

On July 3, 2020, Mexico ratified ILO Domestic Workers Convention, 2011 (No. 189). (84,85)

The government's laws and regulations are in line with relevant international standards (Table 4).

Table 4. Laws and Regulations on Child Labor

Standard	Meets International Standards	Age	Legislation
Minimum Age for Work	Yes	15	Article 123 of the Constitution; Article 22 bis of the Labor Code; Article 47 of the Law on the Rights of Children and Adolescents; Article 6 of the General Law on Education (18,86-88)

Prohibition of Child Trafficking	Yes		Article 10 of the Trafficking in Persons Law; Article 47 of the Law on the Rights of Children and Adolescents (87,89)
Prohibition of Commercial Sexual Exploitation of Children	Yes		Articles 202–205 of the Federal Penal Code; Articles 13 and 18 of the Trafficking in Persons Law; Article 47 of the Law on the Rights of Children and Adolescents (87,89,90)
Prohibition of Using Children in Illicit Activities	Yes		Articles 196 and 201 of the Federal Penal Code; Article 24 of the Trafficking in Persons Law; Articles 2, 4, and 5 of the Law on Organized Crime (89-91)
Prohibition of Compulsory Recruitment of Children by (State) Military	Yes		Article 5 of the Military Service Law (92)
Minimum Age for Voluntary State Military Recruitment	Yes	18	Article 24 of the Military Service Law (92)
Prohibition of Military Recruitment by Non-state Armed Groups	Yes		Articles 123 and 201 of the Federal Penal Code; Articles 16 and 47 of the Law on the Rights of Children and Adolescents (87,90)
Compulsory Education Age	Yes	18	Articles 6 and 129 of the General Law on Education (88)
Free Public Education	Yes		Article 3 of the Constitution (86)

The United States-Mexico-Canada Agreement (USMCA) entered into force on July 1, 2020. The agreement contains a labor chapter with fully enforceable labor obligations, including on internationally recognized labor rights. (93-96) Under this chapter, Mexico commits to adopt and maintain in its statutes, regulations, and practices the effective abolition of child labor and a prohibition on the worst forms of child labor. This chapter also requires each country to prohibit the importation of goods into its territory from other countries produced in whole or in part by forced or compulsory labor, including forced or compulsory child labor. (49,93,96)

In November 2020, the government revised the Migration Law and the Refugee Assistance and Asylum Law to harmonize the provisions regarding migrant and refugee children's rights with the Law on the Rights of Children and Adolescents. These revisions include prohibiting the detention of migrant and refugee children, whether unaccompanied or not, in INM detention centers, and ensuring access to education for migrant and refugee children. (79,80,87,97,98)

As the minimum age for work at 15 years is lower than the compulsory education age, children may be encouraged to leave school before the completion of compulsory education. (18,88)

III. ENFORCEMENT OF LAWS ON CHILD LABOR

The government has established relevant institutional mechanisms for the enforcement of laws and regulations on child labor (Table 5). However, gaps exist within the operations of enforcement agencies that may hinder adequate enforcement of child labor laws.

Table 5. Agencies Responsible for Child Labor Law Enforcement

Organization/Agency	Role
Secretariat of Labor and Social Welfare (STPS)	Leads efforts to enforce child labor laws, conduct labor inspections, and refer cases for investigation. The Federal Prosecutor for the Defense of Work, an independent entity under STPS, prosecutes cases in which workers' rights are violated, including cases with workers under age 18. (18,99-104) The STPS inspectorate is responsible for labor law enforcement in 22 industrial sectors under federal jurisdiction, including the sugar and tobacco industries, three types of enterprises, and labor matters affecting two or more states. The state-level labor inspectorates are responsible for labor law enforcement in all other situations. (18,86,105) During the reporting period, STPS collaborated with USDOL on two projects to strengthen its capacity to enforce labor laws and train Mexican workers and unions on labor standards and identifying labor violations. (106-110)
Attorney General of the Republic (FGR)	Prosecutes crimes involving human trafficking, including criminal violations related to child trafficking and other worst forms of child labor. The Attorney General of the Republic's Specialized Unit for Crimes against Women and Trafficking in Persons (FEVIMTRA) and the Specialized Unit on Trafficking in Minors, People, and Organs (UEITMPO) are responsible for investigating and prosecuting human trafficking cases at the federal level. (4,104,111-114) In addition, all 32 states have specialized Trafficking in Persons (TIP) prosecutors or units, which are responsible for investigating and prosecuting cases of human trafficking at the state level. Some state TIP units or prosecutors also prosecute cases of gender-based violence. (50,59,115,116) In addition, federal and state TIP units receive some cases of child trafficking from the National Institute of Migration and the Mexican Commission for Refugee Assistance. (76,78,117-120)
National Commission on Human Rights (CNDH)	Independent ombudsman body. Receives complaints and conducts investigations on human rights violations, including cases involving the worst forms of child labor. (121)
Conciliation and Arbitration Boards and Labor Tribunals and Conciliation Centers	Tripartite boards which mediate and adjudicate labor disputes according to federal and state labor laws, including processing cases in which children between the ages of 15 and 18 request permission to work. Beginning in 2020, these boards are being replaced by federal- and state-level Conciliation Centers and Labor Tribunals, which will oversee conciliation and adjudication of labor disputes, respectively. (18,41,86,122-125) In 2020, STPS and state governments also began establishing systems and institutions to address 2019 labor reform obligations to strengthen freedom of association and collective bargaining rights. This included dedicating $69 million to establish Conciliation Centers and independent Labor Tribunals in eight states, begin file digitization, and carry out trainings on labor reform implementation. (108,126-131)
Secretariat of Health's National System for Integral Family Development (SNDIF)	Provides social assistance to child victims, including shelter and legal services. Employs representatives at the national, state, and municipal levels. (87,104,132) At the federal and state levels, also employs special prosecutors to carry out legal action against crimes related to children and adolescent rights, including violations related to the worst forms of child labor. (87,104,132) During school holidays, some state-level SNDIF ministries conduct operations to monitor for child labor in the informal sector. (133-145)

Since 2019, the Government of Mexico has implemented austerity measures that have left many secretariats and agencies at both the federal and state levels without the appropriate personnel, expertise, and leadership to carry out core government functions, including establishing and implementing policies and programs related to the worst forms of child labor and enforcing related laws. (146-151)

Mexico

SIGNIFICANT ADVANCEMENT

Federal and state labor inspectorates carry out labor inspections in formally registered businesses. (99,100,106,152) Although these inspectorates have the authority to conduct unannounced inspections in the informal sector, including inspections related to child labor, in practice, inspections are only conducted in response to a formal complaint. As the informal sector accounts for 57 percent of employment in Mexico, the lack of inspections in this sector leaves children vulnerable to labor exploitation. (7,99,101,106,152-154)

Labor Law Enforcement

In 2020, labor law enforcement agencies in Mexico took actions to combat child labor (Table 6). However, gaps exist within the operations of the Secretariat of Labor and Social Welfare (STPS) that may hinder adequate labor law enforcement, including human and financial resource allocation.

Table 6. Labor Law Enforcement Efforts Related to Child Labor

† Data are for federal inspectorate only. (104)

‡ Data are for federal inspectorate only. (41)

During the reporting period, STPS hired and trained 26 additional federal labor inspectors. (127,156) However, the number of labor inspectors is likely insufficient for the size of Mexico's workforce, which includes approximately 54 million workers. According to the ILO's technical advice of a ratio approaching 1 inspector for every 15,000 workers in developing economies, Mexico should employ roughly 3,634 labor inspectors. (104,127,161,162)

The STPS initiates routine and targeted inspections based on analysis of compliance data and patterns of complaints. Unannounced inspections for child labor violations are only conducted in response to complaints and must be coordinated with representatives from SNDIF and the local Office of the Attorney General (FGR). (100,104,106,108) The STPS did not report carrying out inspections for child labor in 2020, and the total number of complaints received or complaint-based inspections carried out is not known, as the STPS does not have an internal system to track cases of child labor violations. (105,107,152,160) However, the STPS carried out labor inspections at establishments to identify illegal subcontracting practices and inspections related to health and safety measures at the federal level; the latter were a priority given the pandemic. (156,163)

Research could not verify that all state-level labor ministries conducted child labor inspections, sanctioned establishments in violation of the Labor Code, or applied the guidelines on identifying and sanctioning child labor violations as outlined in the "Labor Inspection Protocol to Eradicate Child Labor and Protect Adolescent Workers". (41,100,104,133-137) However, during the reporting period, some state-level inspectorates reported carrying out inspections for child labor, including the state of Guanajuato, which detected 90 children engaged in child labor, and the state of Chihuahua, which identified 24 children of indigenous descent working in agricultural establishments. Other states had also planned to carry out child labor inspections in targeted sectors, including in agricultural and informal work; however, the results of these inspections are unknown. (164-171) In addition, although children between the ages of 15 and 17 are required to obtain work permits, only the state of Aguascalientes reported issuing work permits to children in this age group, granting 326 permits in 2020. Information on the issuance of work permits for other states was not provided for inclusion in this report. (164)

The STPS and state-level labor ministries share enforcement authority of child labor laws, and are authorized to establish agreements for coordination of inspection duties. However, due to limited information sharing between federal and state-level inspectorates, some establishments may not be inspected for labor law violations. (99,152,160) Moreover, concerns remain with Mexico's lack of enforcement of laws governing the minimum age for employment in rural areas or at small and medium enterprises, particularly in the agricultural sector. (49,172,173)

Even though federal labor inspectors have the authority to assess penalties for most labor infractions, child labor and forced labor infractions are considered criminal offenses. In such cases, inspectors are required to file a citation with the STPS's Directorate of Judicial Affairs to initiate sanctioning procedures with the state-level finance ministries or the FGR, who are then responsible for collecting fines or initiating criminal sanctions. (99,106,156,160)

In 2020, STPS implemented the new voluntary reporting system, "CumpliLab," to build a database of formally registered businesses that self-identify as being in compliance with the Labor Code, including provisions related to child labor. (160,174,175) Registered businesses deemed to be in compliance will be exempt from labor inspections for one year. (106,160,175,176) During the reporting period, STPS carried out virtual webinars on the implementation of the labor reform and on how to use "CumpliLab" for relevant stakeholders. (177,178)

Criminal Law Enforcement

In 2020, criminal law enforcement agencies in Mexico took actions to combat child labor (Table 7). However, gaps exist within the operations of the criminal enforcement agencies that may hinder adequate criminal law enforcement, including insufficient financial resources.

Table 7. Criminal Law Enforcement Efforts Related to Child Labor

Overview of Criminal Law Enforcement	2019	2020
Training for Investigators	Yes (153)	Yes (49)
Training on New Laws Related to the Worst Forms of Child Labor	Unknown	No (41)
Refresher Courses Provided	Yes (153)	Yes (49)
Number of Investigations	31 (49,153)	601 (49)
Number of Violations Found	Unknown (153)	Unknown
Number of Prosecutions Initiated	31 (153)	Unknown (49)
Number of Convictions	4 (153)	43 (49)

In 2020, state-level prosecutors reported investigating and prosecuting at least 199 cases involving child trafficking victims. (180) In addition, the National Trafficking in Persons Hotline, managed by the Citizens' Council for Safety and Justice of Mexico City, received 2,117 reports of human trafficking and referred cases to the Attorney General of the Republic's Specialized Unit for Crimes against Women and Trafficking in Persons (FEVIMTRA), the Specialized Unit on Trafficking in Minors, People, and Organs (UEITMPO), and state-level

SIGNIFICANT ADVANCEMENT

trafficking in persons prosecutors during the reporting period. Cases reported by the Hotline accounted for 8 percent of all open investigations during the reporting period. (49,59,179,181) However, the total number of children referred and assisted as a result of reporting by the Hotline is unknown. (49,179,181) FEVIMTRA and UEIMTPO also collaborated with the Governments of Argentina, Peru, Spain, and the United States to investigate or extradite perpetrators of human trafficking. Moreover, collaboration with law enforcement personnel from the United States resulted in the apprehension of a suspected trafficker and the dismantling of a sex trafficking ring operating between the two countries. (49)

In 2020, there were 18 specialized shelters for human trafficking victims. Of these, the government operated six shelters and provided NGOs with $565,000 to operate three other trafficking shelters. (49,182-184)

Reports indicate that the lack of training for criminal law enforcement officers on how to perform prosecutorial and police investigative functions, and confusion over territorial jurisdictions, has hampered their ability to adequately investigate and prosecute cases involving the worst forms of child labor. (4,49,153,185,186) In addition, the insufficient capacity of prosecutors and judges to try criminal cases related to human trafficking meant that many suspected traffickers were incorrectly prosecuted for minor offenses or were acquitted. (4,49,185,186) Moreover, FEVIMTRA had limited financial resources available for investigations, training, and outreach. (49,50,183,184)

Although the government provided some information on the number of investigations, prosecutions initiated, and convictions made related to the worst forms of child labor at the federal level and for some states, the total number of investigations, and convictions for the federal level and for all states is not known due to weak coordination and inconsistent data sharing among government ministries. In addition, the data provided for 2020 are not disaggregated by the number of child victims. (4,23,49) Research identified that inconsistent data collection and the lack of coordination amongst government ministries may hinder criminal prosecutions and impact government efforts to provide victim services. (49,59,153,185,186)

IV. COORDINATION OF GOVERNMENT EFFORTS ON CHILD LABOR

The government has established mechanisms to coordinate its efforts to address child labor (Table 8). However, gaps exist that hinder the effective coordination of efforts to address child labor, including funding.

Table 8. Key Mechanisms to Coordinate Government Efforts on Child Labor

Coordinating Body	Role & Description
Inter-Institutional Commission for Prevention and Eradication of Child Labor and the Protection of Adolescent Workers of the Permitted Age in Mexico (CITI)	Coordinates Mexico's activities to develop policies, approve programs, and coordinate, monitor, and evaluate efforts to combat child labor, especially its worst forms. Chaired by STPS and includes representatives from the secretariats of the Interior, Economy, Foreign Affairs, Wellbeing, Agriculture, Transportation, Education, Health, Tourism, Social Security, SNDIF, and FGR. (156) Meets on a quarterly basis and includes NGO networks, international technical and financial partners, such as UNODC and IOM, and bilateral partners, including the United States. (156,160) Met regularly during the reporting period and approved the creation of a national network of Local Committees to Prevent and Eradicate Child Labor and Protect Adolescent Workers of the Permitted Age* to improve coordination efforts to address the worst forms of child labor at the municipal and local levels. In addition, implemented a temporary working group to develop policies to prevent child labor during the pandemic. (156)
Inter-Institutional Commission for the Prevention, Sanction and Eradication of Crimes Related to Trafficking in Persons and for the Protection and Support of Victims of those Crimes	Defines policy and coordinates efforts to address human trafficking in Mexico. Chaired by the Secretariat of the Interior and includes representatives from STPS, secretariats of numerous other government ministries, NGOs, and international technical and bilateral partners. (89,187) In 2020, added two NGOs as members and continued to draft the National Action Plan to Combat Trafficking in Persons. (49,188)
National System for the Protection of Children and Adolescents (SIPINNA)	Coordinates national child protection policy and programs. Chaired by the Secretariat of the Interior and made up of a steering committee from multiple other ministries and representatives of civil society groups. (88) During the reporting period, met regularly and approved the National Program for the Protection of Children and Adolescents 2021–2024. (156)

Coordinating Body	Role & Description
State Committees for the Prevention and Eradication of Child Labor and for the Protection of Young Persons (CITI Estatales)	Implements and evaluates activities related to the elimination of child labor through the 32 state and Federal District committees. These committees also compile, analyze, and report their activities to the federal CITI. (101) Although some state committees, including the Mexico State, Hidalgo, Puebla, and Queretaro committees, met on a regular basis during the reporting period, research could not determine whether all state committees met regularly during the year. (41,189,190)
Commission for the Protection of Refugee and Migrant Children and Adolescents	Coordinates, develops, monitors, and evaluates strategies and programs to protect the rights of migrant and refugee children. Chaired by SIPINNA. (156,191,192) During the reporting period, the Commission held state-level roundtables to ensure implementation of the Critical Roadmap for the Protection of Migrant and Refugee Children and to strengthen collaboration between state authorities and relevant stakeholders to protect migrant and refugee children's rights. (156)

* Mechanism to coordinate efforts to address child labor was created during the reporting period.

Both government officials and civil society sources have stated that Mexico's federal budget allocates only 1 cent per child or $196,000 to the federal CITI to implement programs and activities to prevent and combat child labor. Sources have reported this amount is insufficient to address the extent of the problem. (59,193-196)

V. GOVERNMENT POLICIES ON CHILD LABOR

The government has established policies related to child labor (Table 9). However, policy gaps exist that hinder efforts to address child labor, including policy implementation and coverage of all worst forms of child labor.

Table 9. Key Policies Related to Child Labor

Policy	Description
National Program for the Secretariat of Labor and Social Welfare (2020–2024)†	Aims to strengthen the fundamental rights of work and to increase labor force participation in the formal sector. The plan prioritizes combating child labor as part of STPS' social inclusion strategy. (197)
National Human Rights Program (2020–2024)†	Aims to increase the national well-being of the general population and to ensure equality and equity. Includes actions to ensure children's rights and combat child labor. (156,198)
National Strategy for Inclusive Education (2019–2024)	Supports inclusive education for vulnerable children, including migrant and indigenous children. (199,200) During the reporting period, supported the implementation of the Aprende en Casa program to provide educational services for 25 million students, from pre-school through upper secondary school, including a radio component to reach indigenous children, during the pandemic. (43)
Integral Development Plan for El Salvador, Guatemala, Honduras y México	Aims to support strategic economic development in Mexico and the Northern Triangle countries to address the root causes of migration and increase employment in the region. In 2020, supported the implementation of the Jovenes Construyendo el Futuro program in Honduras and El Salvador, and continued to fund and operate the Centros Integradores para el Migrante shelters in the states of Baja California and one in Chihuahua. These shelters operate as "integration centers," assisting foreign migrants in obtaining employment and providing social services, including educational access, for migrants and their children. (201-207)

† Policy was approved during the reporting period.

‡ The government has other policies that may have addressed child labor issues or had an impact on child labor. (208)

Mexico became a Pathfinder country under Alliance 8.7 in 2019. This involves accelerating commitments toward achieving Sustainable Development Goal Target 8.7, which calls for the eradication of forced labor, modern slavery, and human trafficking by 2030, and the eradication of child labor by 2025. (209,210) As a Pathfinder country, the government developed and implemented the Alliance 8.7 Roadmap to Eradicate Child Labor, Forced Labor, and Trafficking in Persons, which includes the goals of improving information generation on child and forced labor, strengthening coordination between the CITI and the Inter-Institutional Commission for the Prevention and Punishment of Human Trafficking Crimes, and establishing preventative actions to combat child and forced labor in supply chains. In 2020, the government also developed and published a diagnostic document on gaps and priority actions to eradicate child labor and reported on initiatives to combat child labor and forced labor. (209,211)

Even though the government drafted the Plan of Action on Child Labor 2019–2024 and the National Action Plan on Trafficking in Persons 2020–2024 in 2019, these plans have not been officially approved. In addition, the National Program for the Protection of Children and Adolescents 2020–2024 is still awaiting approval and publication by the Government of Mexico. (104,156,157,212) Although the government has adopted the National Program for the Secretariat of Labor and Social Welfare 2020–2024 and the National Program on Human Rights 2020–2024 to combat child labor, research found no evidence of an existing policy on other worst forms of child labor. (156,197,198)

VI. SOCIAL PROGRAMS TO ADDRESS CHILD LABOR

The government funded and participated in programs that include the goal of eliminating or preventing child labor (Table 10). However, gaps exist in these social programs, including the adequacy of efforts to address the problem in all sectors and in all states.

Table 10. Key Social Programs to Address Child Labor

Program	Description
Secretariat of Public Education Programs for Indigenous and Migrant Children*	Nationwide Secretariat of Public Education- funded programs to support public education for children in indigenous and migrant communities. These programs include the Indigenous People's Education Diversity Program, a $3.5 million program created to support the diverse education of indigenous people using a multi-language and multi-cultural approach, and the Educational Program for Migrant School Population, a $3.5 million program created to support centers of migrant education and improve migrant teaching practices using multi-language and multi-cultural techniques. (41)
Benito Juárez Wellbeing National Scholarship Program†	Secretariat of Public Education cash transfer program that offers two types of scholarships for families living in poverty and students at risk of school desertion. The Wellbeing Basic Education Family Scholarship provides bi-monthly payments of $80 per household for all children under age 15 enrolled in school, while the Benito Juárez Scholarship provides bi-monthly payments of $80 to each child enrolled in high school. (213-215) Although the program reaches a high number of students, it has been criticized for providing insufficient cash transfers, lacking monitoring and evaluation, and having implementation issues. (216-221) In 2020, the program assisted scholarship participants age 15 years and older to establish personal bank accounts to facilitate the scholarship cash transfer. The program also carried out surveys at 50,000 schools in marginalized and rural areas to increase outreach and enroll more students of indigenous descent. (222,223)
Support for Indigenous Education Program‡	Implemented by the National Institute of Indigenous Peoples to support educational access of children from indigenous and Afro-descendant communities through scholarships, boarding houses, and nutritional support. (224) In 2020, the program assisted 73,912 children through the program's Casas y Comedores de la Niñez Indígena and Casas y Comedores Comunitarios del Estudiante Indígena . (225)
Assistance for At-Risk Minors and Adolescents Program†	Implemented by SNDIF at the state and municipal levels to assist youth at risk for child labor, including in commercial sexual exploitation and in illicit activities, by providing shelters, psychosocial assistance, and training. Research found the program was active during the reporting period in a few states and municipalities, but it is not implemented across all states and municipalities where the program is needed. (41,156)
USDOL-Funded Projects	USDOL-funded projects that aim to eliminate child labor through research, increased labor inspection capacity, and expanded participation in education, training, and social protection programs. These projects include Campos de Esperanza , an $11 million project implemented by World Vision which has reached over 5,300 sugarcane workers in targeted agricultural communities in Oaxaca and Veracruz; and MAP16 , an ILO-implemented global project, with $2.4 million dedicated to support the Mexican National Child Labor Survey (ENTI 2019) with the results released in 2020. (9,226,227) Additional projects include Senderos *, an $8 million project implemented by Verité to combat child and forced labor in agricultural communities in Jalisco and Nayarit; EQUAL *, a $5 million project implemented by World Vision to increase women's and adolescent girls' economic empowerment in the agricultural sector; COFFEE , a $2.2 million project implemented by Verité in Brazil, Colombia, and Mexico to promote social compliance and develop tools for businesses to prevent, detect, and combat child and forced labor in coffee supply chains; and Improving Workers' Occupational Safety and Health in Selected Supply Chains in Mexico - A Vision Zero Fund *, a $5 million project implemented by the ILO's Vision Zero Fund to improve the OSH of workers, with a focus on COVID-19, female workers, and workers in vulnerable conditions. (228-231) Senderos uses workers' rights training, integrates grievance mechanisms for workers, and coordinates efforts with the Mexican government and the private sector to strengthen labor law enforcement in a sector that has long experienced poor working conditions, while EQUAL works to increase vulnerable women and girls' access to safer and higher quality jobs and address gaps in social programs for impoverished families. COFFEE builds the capacity of coffee producers, agronomists, field technicians, certifiers, and monitors in Mexico to identify and address labor issues in the coffee sector through online trainings that will be refined and available to the public via open source. Improving Workers' Occupational Safety and Health in Selected Supply Chains in Mexico - A Vision Zero Fund will increase prevention and mitigation of COVID-19 and strengthen adherence to OSH laws and policies in selected supply chains. (228-231) For additional information, please visit our website .

* Program was launched during the reporting period.

† Program is funded by the Government of Mexico.

‡ The government had other social programs that may have included the goal of eliminating or preventing child labor. (41,156,232-238)

In 2020, the STPS created the Labor Policy Implementation Program to encourage companies to improve working conditions by promoting self-evaluation tools and sharing best practices from socially responsible companies, but it is unclear whether any companies have used these tools. (23,41,59)

Despite an increase in the rate of poverty and extreme poverty during the pandemic leading to an increase in the number of children vulnerable to child labor, the government did not implement any additional social protections programs that would prevent the root causes of child labor. (42,239-249) In addition, although the Full-Time Schools Program, known as the Programa de Escuelas de Tiempo Completo, had yielded positive results in the past, including reducing child labor in rural and marginalized communities by extending the school day and providing meals to students, in November 2020, funding for this program became dependent upon disbursement from another social program, La Escuela es Nuestra, causing delays in implementation. (146,237,250)

VII. SUGGESTED GOVERNMENT ACTIONS TO ELIMINATE CHILD LABOR

Based on the reporting above, suggested actions are identified that would advance the elimination of child labor in Mexico (Table II).

Table II. Suggested Government Actions to Eliminate Child Labor

Area	Suggested Action	Year(s) Suggested
Legal Framework	Raise the minimum age for work to the age up to which education is compulsory.	2019 – 2020
Enforcement	Significantly increase the number of labor inspectors in accordance with the ILO's technical advice to provide adequate coverage of the workforce.	2019 – 2020
	Conduct refresher trainings and train federal and state-level labor inspectors on the Labor Inspection Protocol to Eradicate Child Labor and Protect Adolescent Workers and ensure its guidelines related to identifying and sanctioning child labor violations are followed.	2019 – 2020
	Ensure that the Secretariat of Labor and Social Welfare at the federal and state levels conduct targeted routine and unannounced labor inspections in all sectors, including in the informal sector and in rural areas.	2019 – 2020
	Improve coordination and information sharing between federal and state-level labor inspectorates.	2019 – 2020
	Publish information at the federal and state level on the number of child labor violations found, the number of child labor penalties imposed and collected, and the number of unannounced inspections conducted.	2019 – 2020
	Establish a case tracking system to ensure that violations of child labor laws are recorded and victims of child labor are referred to the appropriate services.	2019 – 2020
	Ensure that criminal law enforcement agencies receive sufficient funding to conduct investigations and prosecutions related to the worst forms of child labor and provide services to victims.	2019 – 2020
	Increase coordination among government ministries to ensure adequate criminal prosecutions of perpetrators of the worst forms of child labor.	2019 – 2020
	Increase training for enforcement officials, prosecutors, and judges to ensure adequate criminal law enforcement related to the worst forms of child labor.	2019 – 2020
	Publish information at the federal and state level on the number of investigations and prosecutions initiated and convictions secured, and disaggregate the number of prosecutions initiated and number of convictions secured by the number of cases involving children.	2019 – 2020
Coordination	Ensure that coordination mechanisms to combat child labor meet regularly and are adequately funded.	2019 – 2020
Government Policies	Adopt a policy that addresses all worst forms of child labor such as child trafficking, the use of children in commercial sexual exploitation, and the use of children in illicit activities.	2019 – 2020
Social Programs	Expand access to education by increasing school infrastructure, providing education materials and instruction in native languages, and ensuring that all children are able to attend school, including those in migrant or indigenous communities.	2019 – 2020
	Ensure that unaccompanied migrant children are placed in child protection centers instead of detention centers and receive access to education.	2019 – 2020
	Remove children from organized criminal groups and ensure that they are provided with adequate social services.	2019 – 2020

SIGNIFICANT ADVANCEMENT

Area	Suggested Action	Year(s) Suggested
Social Programs	Ensure that government agencies addressing migrant and refugee populations effectively coordinate and are adequately funded to carry out their mandates.	2020
	Ensure that the Benito Juárez Wellbeing Scholarship Program provides sufficient assistance to vulnerable students and receives regular monitoring and evaluation to ensure effective implementation.	2019 – 2020
	Implement or expand social protection programs throughout the country for victims of child labor in all relevant sectors, including in commercial sexual exploitation and illicit activities.	2019 – 2020

MINIMAL ADVANCEMENT – EFFORTS MADE BUT CONTINUED LAW AND PRACTICE THAT DELAYED ADVANCEMENT

In 2020, Moldova made minimal advancement in efforts to eliminate the worst forms of child labor. In January 2021, Parliament adopted Law No. 191, which reversed changes that had delegated responsibility for occupational safety and health inspections to 10 smaller agencies and returned it to the State Labor Inspectorate. The government also enacted legislation aimed at preventing exploitation of children separated from their parents, usually due to labor migration. However, despite new initiatives to address child labor, Moldova is receiving an assessment of minimal advancement because it continued to implement a regression in law and practice that delayed advancement in eliminating the worst forms of child labor. In August 2018, the government amended Law No. 131 through Law No. 179, such that unannounced inspections, even those based on a complaint or at the request of law enforcement or other state bodies, are permitted only on the basis of a risk assessment that indicates an immediate threat to the environment, life, health, or property. This stringent measure continues to severely limit the State Labor Inspectorate's ability to conduct unannounced inspections. In addition, inspections are only permitted after the State Labor Inspectorate first requests and receives insufficient documentation from the business being inspected or after conducting a risk assessment that finds reasonable indicators of a possible violation. When responding to a complaint, inspectors are not authorized to take action for labor violations they may see which fall outside the scope of the complaint. Children in Moldova are subjected to the worst forms of child labor, including in commercial sexual exploitation, sometimes as a result of human trafficking. Children also engage in child labor in agriculture. Training is needed for new criminal investigators, and entities responsible for conducting occupational safety and health inspections, including of hazardous child labor, lack adequate capacity to do so. In addition, there is a lack of social programs to address child trafficking and child labor in agriculture.

I. PREVALENCE AND SECTORAL DISTRIBUTION OF CHILD LABOR

Children in Moldova are subjected to the worst forms of child labor, including in commercial sexual exploitation, sometimes as a result of human trafficking. Children also engage in child labor in agriculture. (1-4) Table 1 provides key indicators on children's work and education in Moldova.

Table 1. Statistics on Children's Work and Education

Children	Age	Percent
Working (% and population)	5 to 14	24.3 (102,105)
Attending School (%)	5 to 14	92.1
Combining Work and School (%)	7 to 14	29.0
Primary Completion Rate (%)		88.0

Source for primary completion rate: Data from 2019, published by UNESCO Institute for Statistics, 2021. (5)

Source for all other data: International Labor Organization's analysis of statistics from Labour Force Survey-Child Labour Survey (LFS-SIMPOC), 2009. (6)

Based on a review of available information, Table 2 provides an overview of children's work by sector and activity.

MINIMAL ADVANCEMENT – EFFORTS MADE BUT CONTINUED LAW AND PRACTICE THAT DELAYED ADVANCEMENT

Table 2. Overview of Children’s Work by Sector and Activity

Sector/Industry	Activity
Agriculture	Agriculture,† including growing and harvesting crops, picking fruits, and raising farm animals (1,2,7-12)
	Forestry, including transporting heavy loads (7)
	Fishing, including feeding fish (2,7)
Industry	Construction,† including carrying heavy loads and welding† (1,2,7,8,13)
	Working in the garment sector (2,7)
	Baking,† including confectionary and food preservation (2,7)
	Sanitation and waste management (1)
Services	Street work, including begging and washing cars (1,3,7,12,14-16)
	Domestic work (2,16)
	Working in wholesale, retail, restaurants, amusement parks, and transportation (1,2,7,11,16,17)
Categorical Worst Forms of Child Labor‡	Commercial sexual exploitation and forced begging, each sometimes as a result of human trafficking (2,4,7,12,16,18,19)
	Illicit drug trafficking (1)

† Determined by national law or regulation as hazardous and, as such, relevant to Article 3(d) of ILO C. 182.

‡ Child labor understood as the worst forms of child labor per se under Article 3(a)–(c) of ILO C. 182.

Lack of information limits an assessment of the types of work that children perform and the sectors in which they work, including for the separatist region of Transnistria, which is not under the control of Moldovan authorities. (1,2,7,16) Civil society sources report that the child labor situation in Transnistria does not differ significantly from the rest of Moldova. (1) However, victims of child labor and human trafficking in Transnistria do not have access to Moldovan legal protections or social services. (4)

Both boys and girls as young as age 10 are recruited for commercial sex and other forms of commercial sexual exploitation. (2-4,14,19) Child online sexual exploitation, including the production and distribution of child pornography, has increased in recent years. (7) Moldova is also a destination country for child sex tourism. (3,4)

Trafficking of children, particularly those suffering from familial neglect, continues to be a concern in Moldova and Transnistria. (3,4,9,12,16,18,20,21) Traffickers exploit children ages 5 to 14 in commercial sex and child labor, mainly in the agriculture, service, and industrial sectors. (4) Children living on the street or abandoned by parents migrating abroad remain particularly vulnerable to child labor and human trafficking, especially those in orphanages or boarding schools. (4,7,12,16,19,20) Vulnerable children from Transnistria are at an increased risk of being trafficked through Ukraine’s Odessa region. (19,22,23)

During the reporting period, the Ministry of Education, Culture and Research established a mechanism of reporting daily attendance in all primary and secondary general educational institutions. While formally established for medical reasons, authorities report that the mechanism proved to be effective at reducing dropouts and absenteeism. (1) Children in Moldova are also guaranteed free transportation to school, and no fees are required for schooling through grade 10. However, students in grades 10 through 12 are often charged fees to rent textbooks. (1) Children from Roma communities continue to be at higher risk of dropping out due to discrimination by school officials and non-Roma students, and are more vulnerable to child labor and human trafficking. (1,4,12) Schools in rural areas often lack a sufficient number of teachers, and mainstream schools lack adequate resources to address the needs of children with disabilities. (1)

II. LEGAL FRAMEWORK FOR CHILD LABOR

Moldova has ratified all key international conventions concerning child labor (Table 3).

MINIMAL ADVANCEMENT – EFFORTS MADE BUT CONTINUED LAW AND PRACTICE THAT DELAYED ADVANCEMENT

The government has established laws and regulations related to child labor (Table 4). However, gaps exist in Moldova's legal framework to adequately protect children from the worst forms of child labor, including the minimum age for work.

Table 4. Laws and Regulations on Child Labor

Standard	Meets International Standards	Age	Legislation
Minimum Age for Work	No	16	Article 46 of the Labor Code (24)
Minimum Age for Hazardous Work	Yes	18	Article 255 of the Labor Code; Article 3 of the Collective Convention on Elimination of the Worst Forms of Child Labor (24,25)
Identification of Hazardous Occupations or Activities Prohibited for Children	Yes		Government Decision No. 541; Articles 2–3 of the Collective Convention on Elimination of the Worst Forms of Child Labor; Articles 103, 105, and 255–256 of the Labor Code (24-26)
Prohibition of Forced Labor	Yes		Article 44 of the Constitution; Article 168(b) of the Criminal Code; Article 7 of the Labor Code; Collective Convention on Elimination of the Worst Forms of Child Labor (24,25,27,28)
Prohibition of Child Trafficking	Yes		Articles 2 and 25–30 of the Law on Preventing and Combating Trafficking in Human Beings; Collective Convention on Elimination of the Worst Forms of Child Labor; and Article 206 of the Criminal Code (25,28,30)
Prohibition of Commercial Sexual Exploitation of Children	Yes		Articles 175, 206, and 208 of the Criminal Code; Article 6 of the Law on the Rights of the Child; Collective Convention on Elimination of the Worst Forms of Child Labor; Law No. 207 (25,28,31,32)
Prohibition of Using Children in Illicit Activities	Yes		Articles 208 and 217 of the Criminal Code; Collective Convention on Elimination of the Worst Forms of Child Labor (25,28)
Minimum Age for Voluntary State Military Recruitment	Yes	18	Article 12 of Law No. 162-XVI on the Status of Military Servicemembers (33)
Prohibition of Compulsory Recruitment of Children by (State) Military	Yes		Article 28 of Law No. 1245-XV on the Preparation of Citizens for Homeland Defense (34)
Prohibition of Military Recruitment by Non-state Armed Groups	Yes		Article 26 of the Law on the Rights of the Child; Article 206(d) of the Criminal Code (28,31)
Compulsory Education Age	Yes	18	Articles 13 and 152 of the Education Code of 2014 (35)
Free Public Education	Yes		Article 35 of the Constitution; Article 9 of the Education Code of 2014 (27,35)

In 2020, the government passed two laws aimed at protecting children who have been separated from their parents or adult guardians. Law No. 112 establishes procedures for identifying vulnerable children and referring them to appropriate social services, and Government Decision No. 132 provides government allowances to children and students who do not have parental care. (1,36,37)

The minimum age law does not meet international standards because it does not apply to all children working in the informal sector, including those who are self-employed. Although Article 46(3) of the Labor Code

Moldova

MINIMAL ADVANCEMENT – EFFORTS MADE BUT CONTINUED LAW AND PRACTICE THAT DELAYED ADVANCEMENT

permits children as young as 15 to work, the law does not specify the conditions in which light work may be undertaken. (24) In addition, the minimum age for work is lower than the compulsory education age, which may encourage children to leave school before the completion of compulsory education. (24,35)

III. ENFORCEMENT OF LAWS ON CHILD LABOR

The government has established institutional mechanisms for the enforcement of laws and regulations on child labor (Table 5). However, gaps exist within the authority of enforcement agencies that may hinder adequate enforcement of their child labor laws.

Table 5. Agencies Responsible for Child Labor Law Enforcement

Organization/Agency	Role
Ministry of Health, Labor, and Social Protection's (MHLSP) State Labor Inspectorate (SLI)	Enforces child labor laws through inspections of labor relations of enterprises, institutions, and organizations, regardless of their type or legal form. (1,7,38) Oversees the National Coordination Unit and Child Labor Monitoring Unit, which is responsible for coordinating activities related to the protection of victims and those vulnerable to human trafficking. (23) However, the Child Labor Monitoring Unit has been functionally defunct since 2017 when half of SLI's staff was reassigned to sectoral regulating agencies for occupational health and safety. (39) Publishes an annual report on the previous year's activities. (1,40)
Sectoral Regulating Agencies	Enforce occupational safety and health (OSH) laws, including those related to hazardous child labor, in specific sectors designated by law. Conduct OSH inspections of enterprises operating in respective sectors of responsibility. (7) Ten entities had sectoral OSH enforcement mandates: the National Food Safety Agency, the Consumer Protection and Market Surveillance Agency, the National Public Health Agency, the Environmental Protection Inspectorate, the National Road Transport Agency, the Civil Aeronautics Authority, the Naval Agency, the National Energy Regulation Agency, the National Electronic Communication and Informational Technology Regulation Agency, and the Technical Supervision Agency. (7) In January 2021, responsibility for OSH enforcement returned to SLI. (1)
Committee for Combating Trafficking in Persons within the Ministry of Internal Affairs	Leads criminal investigations and arrests perpetrators, including for the trafficking of children for both labor and sexual exploitation. (4,7) Cooperates with the Border Police Inspectorate, National Anti-Corruption Center, and Customs Service. (1,7) Provides partial funding for the operation of a 24/7 trafficking in persons hotline. (4,19)
Specialized Prosecution Office for Organized Crime and Special Cases and Anti-Trafficking Bureau within the Prosecutor General's Office (PGO)	Monitors and analyzes human trafficking cases in the Anti-Trafficking Bureau within PGO. (1,3) Includes a unit to investigate and prosecute cases. (14)

During the reporting period, laws and practices introduced as part of government restructuring in 2017 and 2018 continued to limit the power of the State Labor Inspectorate (SLI) to enforce child labor laws. Laws No. 179 and No. 131 mandate that all labor inspections begin with a desk review and permit site visits only if the subject of an inspection provides insufficient documentation or if a risk-assessment procedure finds reasonable indicators of a possible violation. (1,4,7,41-45) Site visits, including those conducted in response to complaints, cannot take place until after the target of an inspection has had 5 days to respond to a request for documents. This request serves as de facto advance notice of an inspection. (1,4,7,41-45) The law contains a provision that permits inspectors to forgo the documentary inspection and proceed directly to an onsite inspection with managerial approval if a risk assessment indicates an immediate threat to the environment, life, health, or property. However, in practice this exception is not widely used, and the government reports all inspections that are not in its annual published inspection plan to be "unannounced." (1,46) Although the SLI is able to receive complaints, procedures to submit a complaint can be cumbersome, and complaints cannot be anonymous. (1,7,47) Furthermore, labor inspections that take place onsite can focus only on the potential violations that have been identified in advance through either the complaint process or a desk review, even if other violations, such as child labor, are observed. (4,39,42) Labor inspectors may face disciplinary action or civil liability for investigating issues outside the scope of the specific complaint that triggered the inspection. (39) In 2020, these strict measures continued to limit the number and scope of onsite inspections, including unannounced inspections, that labor inspectors were empowered to conduct. (1,7,41,43,44)

MINIMAL ADVANCEMENT – EFFORTS MADE BUT CONTINUED LAW AND PRACTICE THAT DELAYED ADVANCEMENT

In 2020, the SLI also lacked authority to investigate workplace accidents and enforce penalties for occupational safety and health (OSH) violations, including of hazardous working conditions for children. (1,4,41,42) In 2020, 10 sectoral regulating agencies had mandates to enforce OSH laws; in November, however, Parliament adopted Law No. 191 that returned this authority to the SLI beginning in January 2021. Sources indicate that a lack of training and capacity limited these agencies' ability to adequately enforce OSH laws, including those related to hazardous child labor. (1,4,7,41,42) OSH inspections routinely took place onsite, and those that were not published in its annual inspection plan occurred without prior communication with the employer. In 2020, OSH inspections identified 25 minors in the workplace but did not report that they were engaged in activities which would constitute child labor violations. (39) The law designates the SLI as national coordinator and monitor for the observance of legislation on OSH, but there are no bylaws laying out the mechanism, nor is there separate legislation dedicated to coordination and monitoring of child labor. (1)

The Transnistrian region is not under the control of Moldovan authorities, who are prevented from carrying out inspections and law enforcement there. (1,4,48,49)

Labor Law Enforcement

In 2020, labor law enforcement agencies in Moldova took actions to combat child labor (Table 6). However, gaps exist within the operations of the Ministry of Health, Labor, and Social Protection that may hinder adequate labor law enforcement, including the lack of unannounced inspections in sectors in which child labor is known to occur.

Table 6. Labor Law Enforcement Efforts Related to Child Labor

† Data are from January 1, 2019 to October 30, 2019.

Moldova reported employing 78 labor inspectors in 2020: 42 in the SLI and 36 among the sectoral agencies responsible for OSH concerns. (1) According to the ILO's technical advice of a ratio approaching 1 inspector for every 20,000 workers in transition economies, Moldova would employ about 65 labor inspectors. (54,55) However, the SLI has reported that its funding and the number of labor inspectors are insufficient to adequately conduct child labor inspections. (1,7) In addition, amendments made to Decree 788 in 2018 limit the total number of personnel the SLI can hire to 28 staff members serving as the main office staff, and 45 labor inspectors serving in 10 regionally focused subdivisions. (1,7,39,48,56) Although the SLI can recommend that penalties be assessed for labor violations, the authority to impose and collect these penalties remains with the courts. (1)

MINIMAL ADVANCEMENT – EFFORTS MADE BUT CONTINUED LAW AND PRACTICE THAT DELAYED ADVANCEMENT

Due to the COVID-19 pandemic, in-person labor inspections and interviews were suspended between March and June 2020. Labor inspections that pertain to any non-OSH concerns are the responsibility of the SLI, which must begin all investigations with a request for documentation from the employer, except in cases in which a risk assessment indicates an immediate threat to the environment, life, health, or property. (1,39) The government reported that some unannounced inspections did take place during the reporting period using the risk assessment provision, but it did not provide information on how many such inspections were carried out. (50) Documentary inspections continued on a limited basis with labor inspectors working remotely. (1) During the reporting period, the SLI identified child labor violations in the agriculture, construction, recreation, hospitality, and sanitation sectors involving a total of 19 children and 15 employers. Educational institutions referred 27 cases of suspected child labor exploitation to the National Referral System, and police referred 13 suspected cases. (1) The SLI recommended penalties for four child labor violations, which under Moldovan law must be reviewed by the courts before fines are issued and collected. Courts issued fines in two of these cases, and the other two cases remain pending. (1,51) Both government and NGO sources reported that the child labor violations identified by the government during the reporting period did not reflect the magnitude of the child labor problem in Moldova due to an insufficient number of labor inspectors, budget limitations, cultural acceptance of child labor on family farms, and legal limitations on the government’s ability to conduct inspections. (1,4)

The 10 sectoral agencies tasked with OSH labor enforcement mandates conducted a total of 815 inspections in 2020. These sectoral regulating agencies were authorized to impose penalties for OSH violations; however, no additional information on these inspections, including data on observed violations or penalties assessed, was provided for inclusion in this report. (1)

During the reporting period, the government did not provide labor inspectors with any training specific to child labor. Labor inspectors were, however, offered one training course on assisting employers and employees with practical implementation of regulations to mitigate risks related to the pandemic. (1)

Criminal Law Enforcement

In 2020, criminal law enforcement agencies in Moldova took actions to combat child labor (Table 7). However, gaps exist within the operations of criminal enforcement agencies that may hinder adequate criminal law enforcement, including insufficient training for new criminal investigators.

Table 7. Criminal Law Enforcement Efforts Related to Child Labor

Overview of Criminal Law Enforcement	2019	2020
Initial Training for New Criminal Investigators	No (7)	Yes (1)
Training on New Laws Related to the Worst Forms of Child Labor	Yes (7)	No (1)

† Data are from January 2019 to October 2019.

In 2020, authorities identified 23 child victims of trafficking (20 of whom were trafficked for sexual exploitation, 2 for labor exploitation, and 1 for forced begging). Separately, nine minors ages 16 to 17 were used by criminal groups to traffic drugs. (1,12)

In 2020, the Committee for Combating Trafficking in Persons (CCTIP) initiated the criminal prosecution of a woman who allegedly trafficked three children for the purpose of commercial sexual exploitation. In addition,

MINIMAL ADVANCEMENT – EFFORTS MADE BUT CONTINUED LAW AND PRACTICE THAT DELAYED ADVANCEMENT

one person was convicted for child labor offenses and sentenced to 17 years' imprisonment. (1) In continuation of a case that began in 2019, in January 2020, one individual was arrested for suspected involvement in a transnational child trafficking ring that recruited and transported adults and children to Greece for the purposes of commercial sexual exploitation. (12)

In 2020, the CCTIP and other law enforcement agencies sent officers to at least 15 trainings on human trafficking, child pornography, child online sexual exploitation, and child protection. However, reports indicate that many authorities still lack adequate training to identify potential child trafficking victims. (1) Laws providing special interview services for child victims of human trafficking are also not uniformly applied, which can result in re-traumatization of victims. (3)

Within the judiciary, specialized judges are trained specifically to handle cases involving human trafficking and other related crimes, such as child pornography. (12) However, online recruitment, solicitation of sexually explicit content, and online threats are inconsistently handled. Investigators sometimes treat these crimes as child trafficking offenses and sometimes as sexual harassment, which is considered a less serious crime. (16) Judges sometimes reclassified cases from trafficking crimes to crimes with lesser penalties, such as pimping. When such reclassification occurs, victims of trafficking are no longer protected by the provision of the criminal code which exempts trafficking victims from criminal liability for offenses committed because of their exploitation. (4) In addition, law enforcement failed to use special investigation measures to investigate child pornography, which was not treated as a serious crime by investigators. (16)

Criminal investigators within the CCTIP have well-furnished offices as a result of USG support over the last 10 years. However, the CCTIP does not have sufficient vehicles or fuel allocations for its daily investigations activities or updated computer equipment. (1) High staff turnover in the past year has also hindered the CCTIP's effectiveness. (1,4)

IV. COORDINATION OF GOVERNMENT EFFORTS ON CHILD LABOR

The government has established mechanisms to coordinate its efforts to address child labor (Table 8). However, gaps exist that hinder adequate coordination of efforts to address child labor, including coordination efforts of the National Council for the Protection of Child Rights.

Table 8. Key Mechanisms to Coordinate Government Efforts on Child Labor

Coordinating Body	Role & Description
National Council for Human Rights	Monitors and assesses the implementation of the Human Rights National Action Plan (2018–2022), which includes activities dedicated to protecting child rights and combating exploitation of children, including in child labor. (1,7,57,58) Monitors, evaluates, and coordinates efforts to comply with other national policies related to human rights and human rights treaties to which Moldova is a State Party, including those related to child labor. (57)
National Committee for Combating Trafficking in Persons	Coordinates efforts to prevent and combat child trafficking and child sexual exploitation. Members include SLI, Security and Intelligence Service, Agency for Public Services, and other government departments. (2,8,16,22) Drafts legislation related to human trafficking, participates in anti-trafficking campaigns, and develops national action plans. (18) In May 2020, published a national report on the implementation of anti-trafficking policy in the previous year. (59)
National Referral System for the Protection and Assistance of Victims and Potential Victims of Human Trafficking (NRS)	Builds the capacity of multidisciplinary teams at the local level, which include community social assistants, police officers, and NGO workers, to improve victim identification and referral for crisis intervention and rehabilitation. (1,16,18) Part of MHLSP and represents the main institutional mechanism for the provision of rehabilitation and reintegration assistance to victims of labor exploitation and sexual violence. (1,60)
National Council for the Protection of Child Rights	Coordinates national efforts to combat child exploitation and improve access to education. (8) Chaired by the Prime Minister, and includes the Deputy Minister of Health, Labor, and Social Protection, and representatives from the Ministries of Justice, Education, Interior, Foreign Affairs and European Integration, and others. (1,61) Has a working group to discuss existing gaps in the current birth registration process and develop recommendations. (61,62) Met three times during the reporting period, but research was unable to determine whether any actions were taken to advance the Council's mandate. At its last meeting, the Council discussed amendments to the law on labor inspections which returned responsibility for OSH inspections to SLI. (1)

Coordinating Body	Role & Description
Human Rights Ombudsman	Monitors and publishes annual reports on observance of human rights, including the rights of children. Through the Office of the Ombudsman for Children's Rights, receives and responds to complaints about children's rights violations, including child labor. (63) In 2020, published a report on intersectoral cooperation in the field of children's rights. (64)

In February, the Government revised Government Decision No. 65, originally enacted in 2019, to establish the National Council for Human Rights with the purpose of monitoring and assessing the implementation of the 2018–2022 Human Rights National Action Plan and other national policy documents. (1,65) The 2018–2022 Human Rights National Action Plan includes items to address the protection of children's rights and prevention of violence against and exploitation of children. During the reporting period, the new Council met once to review a number of Moldova's international commitments under the UN Convention on the Rights of Persons with Disabilities, the Convention on the Elimination of all Forms of Discrimination against Women and human rights. (1)

The government worked with the IOM to expand the mandate of the National Referral System into a National Referral Mechanism that would merge with other victim assistance mechanisms and offer protection and services to additional vulnerable populations. During the reporting period, this expansion was submitted by the Ministry of Health, Labor, and Social Protection as part of the government's 2020–2030 National Development Strategy, but it was not approved. (1)

V. GOVERNMENT POLICIES ON CHILD LABOR

The government has established policies related to child labor (Table 9). However, policy gaps exist that hinder efforts to address child labor, including implementation.

Table 9. Key Policies Related to Child Labor

Policy	Description
Child Protection Strategy (2014–2020)	Includes the goals of preventing and combating violence, neglect, and the exploitation of children. (66) Research was unable to determine whether activities were undertaken to implement the Child Protection Strategy during the reporting period.
Action Plan for Preventing and Combating Trafficking in Human Beings (2018–2020)	Outlines how law enforcement agencies should work to combat human trafficking, provides support to victims of human trafficking, and aims to create standards for the operation of victim witness rooms for children, among other tasks. (3,67) Carried out by the Permanent Secretariat Directorate of the National Committee for Combating Trafficking in Persons. (3) Includes an accompanying National Strategy for Combating Trafficking in Human Beings 2018–2023. (3,67) Research was unable to determine whether activities were undertaken to implement the Action Plan for Preventing and Combating Trafficking in Human Beings during the reporting period.
Moldova Strategy Country Note Program Priorities (2018–2022)	Focuses on protecting all children's rights, including education and health, especially for children from ethnic minorities, children from low-income families, children with disabilities, and children left behind because of migration. (68) Research was unable to determine whether activities were undertaken to implement this policy during the reporting period.
Moldova-EU Association Agenda (2017–2019)	Protected and promoted children's rights. (69,70) The Government of Moldova and the Council of the EU drafted changes to a number of laws on child rights concerning adoption and custody of children whose parents have migrated outside the country. The changes were approved by Parliament in July 2020. (1)
Action Plan to Support the Roma People (2016–2020)	Aimed to promote social inclusion of Roma people. Included the goals of education, social protection, and combating discrimination. (71,72) Funded by the government, private partnerships, and the EU. (70) Research was unable to determine whether activities were undertaken to implement the Action Plan to Support the Roma People during the reporting period.

‡ The government has other policies that may have addressed child labor issues or had an impact on child labor. (7,58)

During the reporting period, the government worked with UNICEF to begin drafting a new National Program on Child Protection for 2021–2025. (1)

MINIMAL ADVANCEMENT – EFFORTS MADE BUT CONTINUED LAW AND PRACTICE THAT DELAYED ADVANCEMENT

VI. SOCIAL PROGRAMS TO ADDRESS CHILD LABOR

In 2020, the government funded and participated in programs that include the goal of eliminating or preventing child labor (Table 10). However, gaps exist in these social programs, including the adequacy of programs to address the full scope of the problem.

Table 10. Key Social Programs to Address Child Labor

Program	Description
Decent Work Country Program (2016–2020)	ILO program that aims to gather statistics on the prevalence of child labor, build the capacity of the labor inspectorate, and combat labor exploitation in the construction and agriculture sectors. (73) In 2020, the government approved legislative changes proposed as a part of this program that returned OSH inspections to SLI. (50)
Center for Protection and Assistance for Victims of Human Trafficking†	Government-funded shelter for victims of human trafficking from Moldova that offers accommodations, rehabilitation, and reintegration services, and which contains a special wing for child victims. (1,7) In 2020, 21 children received services at these shelters. (1,12)
Child Helpline†	Managed by the NGO National Center for the Prevention of Child Abuse, provides psychological counseling and information to parents and children experiencing violence, neglect, or exploitation. (7,12) In 2020, the helpline received 4,268 calls. (12)
Hotlines†	One human trafficking hotline is managed by MHLSP, and refers cases within NRS. (3,7) PGO manages the Anti-Trafficking Green Line Telephone for specialist prosecutors. (1,7) In addition, the NGO La Strada manages the national hotline for women and children, which received 2,040 calls in 2020. (12)
Social Aid Program and Social Support for Families with Children‡	Provides cash assistance to families. The Social Aid Program, implemented by the district departments of social assistance and family protection, has provided aid for low-income families since 2008; this program continued to operate in 2020. (1,74) The Social Support Service for Families with Children program has operated since 2013. The government allocated $1.85 million for families in 2020. (1)

† Program is funded by the Government of Moldova.

‡ The government had other social programs that may have included the goal of eliminating or preventing child labor. (3,7,19)

Civil society organizations have assisted in removing children from exploitive situations, but much of this work is done with the support of foreign donors. Observers report there are insufficient services for resocialization and reintegration of child victims of sexual exploitation and sexual abuse. (1,12) Existing social programs do not meet the current level of need, particularly for children working in agriculture and child victims of human trafficking who require long-term care. (3,7)

VII. SUGGESTED GOVERNMENT ACTIONS TO ELIMINATE CHILD LABOR

Based on the reporting above, suggested actions are identified that would advance the elimination of child labor in Moldova (Table 11).

Table 11. Suggested Government Actions to Eliminate Child Labor

Area	Suggested Action	Year(s) Suggested
Legal Framework	Ensure that labor legislation covers children working in the informal sector, including those who are self-employed.	2020
	Ensure that the law's light work provisions are sufficiently specific to prevent children from involvement in child labor.	2020
	Raise the minimum age for work to the age up to which education is compulsory.	2018 – 2020
Enforcement	Ensure that entities responsible for conducting occupational safety and health inspections have the training and capacity to carry out these inspections in all sectors in which child labor is known to occur so that child labor violations are accurately detected.	2018 – 2020
	Strengthen the labor inspection system by eliminating barriers for onsite inspections and conducting unannounced inspections.	2018 – 2020
	Ensure that labor inspectors are empowered to identify and assess penalties for child labor violations detected during inspections, even if the inspection was not conducted in response to a child labor complaint.	2019 – 2020
	Clearly define the responsibilities of the Child Labor Monitoring Unit and ensure that it is able to carry out its mandate.	2019 – 2020

Area	Suggested Action	Year(s) Suggested
Enforcement	Increase the number of labor inspectors and funding for the State Labor Inspectorate to ensure that it provides inspectors with the financial resources necessary to inspect for child labor.	2012 – 2020
	Ensure the process to file child labor complaints is simple, transparent, and can be done anonymously.	2019 – 2020
	Publish information on the number of child labor violations detected during occupational safety and health inspections conducted by sectoral regulating agencies.	2019 – 2020
	Ensure that investigators, including police officers and Committee for Combating Trafficking in Persons investigators, receive training on laws and investigative techniques related to the worst forms of child labor, especially for online child pornography and children left behind without parental care.	2016 – 2020
	Pursue prosecution of the worst forms of child labor under the appropriate statutes and maintain protection for victims who commit crimes as a result of their exploitation.	2020
Coordination	Ensure that the National Council for the Protection of Child Rights meets and carries out its mandate.	2019 – 2020
Government Policies	Publish information about activities undertaken to implement policies related to child labor, including the Child Protection Strategy, the Action Plan for Preventing and Combating Trafficking in Human Beings, the Moldova Strategy Country Note Program Priorities, and the Action Plan to Support the Roma People.	2019 – 2020
Social Programs	Collect and publish data on the extent and nature of child labor to inform policies and programs, including for the separatist region of Transnistria.	2013 – 2020
	Provide adequate resources for schools in rural and poorer communities, as well as those serving children with disabilities.	2020
	Enhance efforts to eliminate barriers to education by removing informal fees for school supplies.	2018 – 2020
	Institute targeted support programs that eliminate discrimination and violence against Roma children and promote equal access to education.	2014 – 2020
	Ensure sufficient support for child trafficking victims and children working in agriculture.	2015 – 2020

In 2020, Mongolia made minimal advancement in efforts to eliminate the worst forms of child labor. The government launched the Child Protection Compact Partnership, signed between the Governments of Mongolia and the United States, to combat child labor in the country. The General Agency for Specialized Inspection also conducted three large-scale child labor and protection issue surveys. Furthermore, the government's stimulus package included a five-fold increase for the Children's Money Program—which offsets costs related to food, schooling, and clothing—to mitigate the economic impacts of the COVID-19 pandemic. However, despite new initiatives to address child labor, Mongolia is receiving an assessment of minimal advancement because it continued a regression in law that delayed advancement to eliminate child labor. During the reporting period, the government did not permit the labor inspectorate to conduct unannounced inspections, which may have impeded the enforcement of child labor laws. Children in Mongolia are subjected to the worst forms of child labor, including in forced begging and commercial sexual exploitation. Children also engage in dangerous tasks in mining and horse jockeying. Some Mongolian legal statutes do not meet international standards, including that the minimum age for work does not apply to children in the informal sector or to those who are self-employed. In addition, laws do not establish criminal penalties for forced labor or slavery, the use of children in prostitution, or the use, procurement, or offering of a child for the production and trafficking of drugs.

I. PREVALENCE AND SECTORAL DISTRIBUTION OF CHILD LABOR

Children in Mongolia are subjected to the worst forms of child labor, including in forced begging and commercial sexual exploitation. Children also engage in dangerous tasks in mining and horse jockeying. (1-7) Table 1 provides key indicators on children's work and education in Mongolia. Data on some of these indicators are not available from the sources used in this report.

Table 1. Statistics on Children's Work and Education

Children	Age	Percent
Working (% and population)	5 to 14	11.4 (Unavailable)
Attending School (%)	5 to 14	94.8
Combining Work and School (%)	7 to 14	12.6
Primary Completion Rate (%)		107.5

Source for primary completion rate: Data from 2019, published by UNESCO Institute for Statistics, 2021. (8)

Source for all other data: International Labor Organization's analysis of statistics from Multiple Indicator Cluster Survey 6 (MICS 6), 2018. (9)

Based on a review of available information, Table 2 provides an overview of children's work by sector and activity.

Table 2. Overview of Children's Work by Sector and Activity

Sector/Industry	Activity
Agriculture	Animal husbandry,† including herding† (2,3,5,10-12)
Industry	Construction,† including carrying and loading bricks, cement and steel framework, mixing construction solutions such as lime or cement,† binding steel framework, and cleaning at the construction site† (2,3,5,10-12)
	Mining† coal,† gold, and fluorspar (2,3,10,12,14-17)
Services	Horse jockeying† (1,3,5,6,10-12,18,19)
	Scavenging in garbage dumpsites (2,3,5,10-12,20)
	Handling freight† (2,3,5,10,12)

Sector/Industry	Activity
Services	Domestic work† (3,5,10-12,18)
	Ticket-taking for public transportation† (3,5,10,12,18)
	Street work, including vending,† and washing cars (5,10,12,17,21)
Categorical Worst Forms of Child Labor‡	Commercial sexual exploitation, including use in the production of pornography (3,5,10-12,19,22)
	Forced labor in begging (3,5,11,12)
	Forced labor in construction, mining, horse jockeying, animal husbandry, industrial sectors, and contortionist work (11)

† Determined by national law or regulation as hazardous and, as such, relevant to Article 3(d) of ILO C. 182.

‡ Child labor understood as the worst forms of child labor per se under Article 3(a)–(c) of ILO C. 182.

Mongolian children are generally trafficked internally for the purpose of commercial sexual exploitation in saunas, bars, hotels, karaoke clubs, and massage parlors. However, many of these venues closed during the COVID-19 pandemic and forced victims to work from client's homes, making it difficult to detect trafficking. (3,10-12,19,20,23,24) Furthermore, according to Mongolia’s National Child Labor Survey, children’s employment is more prevalent in rural areas than in urban areas, with 9 out of 10 children exploited in situations of hazardous work found to be boys. (2,3,16) Children also work as horse jockeys and face a number of health and safety hazards, including exposure to extremely cold temperatures, risk of brain and bone injuries, and fatal falls. (1,4-7,10,12,25,26) Although Mongolian law prohibits participation in pre-training and horse racing during November 1 through May 1, children continue to participate in these activities throughout the year. (5-7,16,19,27-30) In addition to safety concerns, participation in horse racing may impact school attendance, particularly because Mongolian law does not set an age limit for jockeys except during the Naadam Festival in July, during which children as young as age 7 are allowed to participate. (16,19,26,27)

Due to concerns about the pandemic, the Government of Mongolia issued a resolution on June 8 that curtailed all celebrations and sporting events related to the Naadam Festival, thus leading to a significant reduction in the number of official horse racing events. Despite this effort, the Family, Child, and Youth Development Agency (FCYDA) reported 17,450 instances of child jockey participation in Naadam races; however, children who competed in multiple races were counted more than once, making the total number of individual children racing likely lower. (31,32) According to the FCYDA data, 247 child jockeys fell from their horses during Naadam-related racing, and 4 children were severely injured. (31)

As the mining industry continues to grow in the southern part of Mongolia, children, particularly girls, are at increased risk of commercial sexual exploitation and forced labor in artisanal mining. Girls are vulnerable to exploitation in nightclubs near mining towns, solicitation by drivers waiting to cross the border into China, or becoming victims of sex trafficking while their parents are on extended shift rotations. (11,16) Increasingly, boys are hired by Chinese companies to work at agricultural establishments, sometimes under ambiguous immigration status, putting them at a high risk for human trafficking. (11)

During the reporting period, the Ministry of Labor and Social Protection, with funding from the Government of South Korea, conducted a survey on the vulnerability of children to prostitution and sexual exploitation that included human trafficking elements. However, survey results were not made available during the reporting period. (11,31) The FCYDA began to assemble a database containing information on high-risk populations and collaborated with an international NGO to establish multi-disciplinary committees—at the district and capital levels—focused on at-risk children’s rights and protections, including some anti-trafficking equities. (11) Furthermore, IOM, in coordination with the Government of Mongolia, initiated an assessment of the impact of the Law on Combatting Trafficking in Persons. IOM also began an assessment of the risks that lead to human trafficking within the country. In addition, during the reporting period, UNICEF began a survey to understand why children were being victimized on social media. (24)

MINIMAL ADVANCEMENT – EFFORTS MADE BUT CONTINUED LAW THAT DELAYED ADVANCEMENT

Children in Ulaanbaatar and in rural areas may face challenges in accessing education due to an insufficient number of schools, overcrowding, a lack of trained teachers, and a lack of accessibility for children with disabilities. (5,12,16,19,30,33) In addition, families must register their residence as well as provide an original copy of a child's birth certificate for their children to have access to a free public education. (5,12) During the reporting period, the government suspended in-class education due to the pandemic but offered alternatives to in-person education, including educational television broadcasts and online classes. (12,24) However, many children—including many children with disabilities—lacked appropriate resource to access these services, such as electricity, laptops, and televisions. (12,31) According to educators, although a new legal requirement—Government Resolution No. 235 ("Measures Regarding Inclusive Education")—mandating that all mainstream schools accept students with disabilities came into effect during the reporting period, the infrastructure was inadequate to allow full accessibility to students with disabilities. (12,30,31,34)

II. LEGAL FRAMEWORK FOR CHILD LABOR

Mongolia has ratified all key international conventions concerning child labor (Table 3).

Table 3. Ratification of International Conventions on Child Labor

Convention	Ratification
 ILO C. 138, Minimum Age	✓
ILO C. 182, Worst Forms of Child Labor	✓
 UN CRC	✓
UN CRC Optional Protocol on Armed Conflict	✓
UN CRC Optional Protocol on the Sale of Children, Child Prostitution and Child Pornography	✓
 Palermo Protocol on Trafficking in Persons	✓

The government has established laws and regulations related to child labor (Table 4). However, gaps exist in Mongolia's legal framework to adequately protect children from the worst forms of child labor, including the minimum age for work.

Table 4. Laws and Regulations on Child Labor

Standard	Meets International Standards	Age	Legislation
Minimum Age for Work	No	16	Article 109 of the Law on Labor (35)
Minimum Age for Hazardous Work	Yes	18	Article 141 of the Law on Labor; List of Jobs and Occupations Prohibited to Minors (35,36)
Identification of Hazardous Occupations or Activities Prohibited for Children	Yes		Articles 2–3 of the List of Jobs and Occupations Prohibited to Minors; Article 8 of the Law on the National Naadam Holiday (36,27)
Prohibition of Forced Labor	No		Articles 16.4 and 16.10 of the Criminal Code; Article 7 of the Law on Labor; Article 7 of the Law on the Rights of the Child (35,37-39)
Prohibition of Child Trafficking	Yes		Law on Combating Trafficking in Persons; Article 13.1 of the Criminal Code (37,39,40)
Prohibition of Commercial Sexual Exploitation of Children	No		Articles 12.3, 13.1, and 16.8–16.9 of the Criminal Code; Articles 8.1.3 and 10.2 of the Combating Pornography and Prostitution Act (37,39,41)
Prohibition of Using Children in Illicit Activities	No		Articles 16.1–16.4 and 16.8–16.10 of the Criminal Code (37,39)
Minimum Age for Voluntary State Military Recruitment	Yes	18	Article 12 of the Law on Military (42)

Standard	Meets International Standards	Age	Legislation
Prohibition of Compulsory Recruitment of Children by (State) Military	Yes		Article 12 of the Law on Military (42)
Prohibition of Military Recruitment by Non-state Armed Groups	No
Compulsory Education Age	Yes	16	Article 46 of the Law on Education (43)
Free Public Education	Yes		Article 16 of the Constitution of Mongolia; Articles 6.1–6.3 of the Law on Education (43,44)

During the reporting period, the government amended the Criminal Code to include new Article 12.6, which increased criminal penalties for procuring or inducing a person to prostitution. If the crime involves a person under the age of 18, defendants are subject to liability for a human trafficking crime. (24,45) The revised 2019 draft Labor Law that would allow the General Agency for Specialized Investigation (GASI) to execute unannounced inspections has yet to be signed into law. (24)

Mongolia’s legal framework does not meet several international standards to protect children. (37,39,40) The Labor Code, which sets a minimum age of 16 to “enter into an employment agreement” does not apply to children in the informal sector or to those who are self-employed, including children who work as horse racing jockeys in May through October. (27,30,46-48) In addition, the laws do not specifically criminalize forced labor other than forced begging and forced hazardous work. (35,37-39,41) Furthermore, Article 16.1 of Mongolia’s criminal code prohibits the inducement of children to commit a crime; however, the law does not specifically cover the use of children in illicit activities. The law is insufficient to meet international standards because it requires threats, the use of force, or coercion to be established for the crime. (37,39)

III. ENFORCEMENT OF LAWS ON CHILD LABOR

The government has established institutional mechanisms for the enforcement of laws and regulations on child labor (Table 5). However, gaps exist within the authority of enforcement agencies that may hinder adequate enforcement of their child labor laws.

Table 5. Agencies Responsible for Child Labor Law Enforcement

Organization/ Agency	Role
General Agency for Specialized Inspection	Enforces labor laws, including those related to child labor. (11,24,28) Conducts inspections at registered businesses in the formal sector. (11,28) As an independent agency, reports to the Deputy Prime Minister. (21)
National Police Agency	Maintains primary responsibility for investigating criminal cases. (23,24,49) Provides protection to victims and witnesses throughout the judicial process. Reports to the Ministry of Justice and Home Affairs. (49) There are several divisions and departments under its authority that work to enforce laws on child labor.  The Metropolitan Police Department oversees police operations in Ulaanbaatar’s nine district police offices, enforces labor laws, and identifies children in hazardous labor. (21) The Crime Prevention Division works to protect unattended children on the streets, identifying and returning children to their parents or referring them to Child Care and Protection Centers. (49) The Juvenile Crime Prevention Unit protects children from being victims of crime and prevents them from committing crimes. (10,49)

MINIMAL ADVANCEMENT – EFFORTS MADE BUT CONTINUED LAW THAT DELAYED ADVANCEMENT

Organization/ Agency	Role
National Police Agency	The Organized Crime Division, located under the Criminal Police Department, receives referrals and opens formal criminal investigations into human trafficking and sexual exploitation cases, while working with the Prosecutor's Office to decide whether to take a case to court. Oversees the Anti-Trafficking Unit that has primary responsibility for investigating human trafficking cases and is comprised of one Chief Police Officer and four junior investigators. (11,20,22,24,50,51) Uses an 11-question risk assessment checklist to help accurately identify human trafficking victims and refers them to short- or long-term care facilities. (3,5,10-12,22,51) However, research noted that the use of these checklists was inconsistent. Each police district in Ulaanbaatar has a designated police officer who is responsible for trafficking in person cases. (24) The Criminal Police Department is not empowered to close venues complicit in the worst forms of child labor but can take action against individuals. (24) During the reporting period, the National Police Agency launched and co-organized a month-long program called "Cast No Shadow" to combat sexual abuse of children with the Family, Child, and Youth Development Agency (FCYDA), and held 53 workshops with 90,545 participants, including 156 government organizations. (11,31,32,52) In addition, posters, songs, and video content were developed, as well as the "Hidden 3" operation that was organized to help identify unreported child victims of sexual exploitation and track potential offenders. (31) The Anti-Trafficking Unit identified 40 victims of sex trafficking, including 24 girls between the ages of 14 and 18. Three of these girls were referred for shelter services operated by FCYDA. (24,31)
Anti-Trafficking Enforcement: Mongolian Immigration Agency and General Authority for Border Protection	Responsible for trafficking cases involving victims who cross international borders, including children. Both agencies are responsible for tracking minors who cross the border and identifying cases in which adults return to Mongolia without the minors who departed Mongolia with them. (24)

In 2020, the FCYDA employed 54 child rights officers who oversaw child protection issues, including child labor, and identified and removed 18 children working in conditions of hazardous labor. (12,31) The FCYDA maintains a nationwide, toll-free Child Helpline, "108," that captures child labor and child rights violations, and is staffed by 22 employees, a social worker, and a response team available 24 hours a day, and is made available to police. (3,5,10,12,30,50,51) In addition, the FCYDA maintains a nationwide database for tracking case status and social services needs of vulnerable children that is accessible from all FCYDA local and central offices. (5,10,12) During the reporting period, the FCYDA reported that it assisted 723 child laborers nationwide. (12,31)

During the reporting period, the Government of Mongolia approved a resolution to increase the fiscal year 2021 budget for child welfare by $880,000 and tripled the number of child protection officers from 53 to 156. (24)

Labor Law Enforcement

In 2020, the lack of authorization to conduct unannounced inspections in Mongolia may have impeded the enforcement of child labor laws (Table 6).

Table 6. Labor Law Enforcement Efforts Related to Child Labor

Overview of Labor Law Enforcement	2019	2020

During the reporting period, all pre-scheduled labor inspections—except inspections at horse races—were cancelled to allow labor inspectors to be reassigned to assist with pandemic-related functions. (31) NGO and government officials reported that the enforcement of child labor laws remained challenging due to the legal requirement that GASI must give employers 48 hours advance notification before conducting an inspection, which provides employers with enough time to conceal violations. (3,10-12,19,23,24,30) In addition, GASI's overall strategy is to conduct pre-announced inspections in the formal sector only, leaving children working in the informal sector more susceptible to child labor. (4,5,12,30)

During the reporting period, the government and NGOs noted that funding and resources for inspectors remained insufficient. (5,10-12,54)

The government only conducts child labor inspections at horse racing events between June and October, during the months that children are legally allowed to participate in races. During these inspections, GASI verifies that riders meet minimum age requirements, use safety equipment, and obtain required insurance, but GASI does not have the authority to impose penalties for child labor law violations found in horse racing. (5,10,12,30) Although child rights officers have the ability to impose sanctions for certain labor law violations under the Child Protection Law, including child labor violations related to horse racing, the law suggests that they may only be allowed to do so if the child actually suffers harm. (55,56) In addition, liability for violations related to horse racing appears to extend only to stakeholders and organizers of races, and it may not cover parents or other family members who use children as jockeys. Given the lack of clarity in the language of the Child Protection Law, many violators are able to evade punishment. (55,56)

The Family, Child, and Youth Development Agency reported its child rights officers did not receive any training in 2020. Information on trainings received by GASI officers was not available. (12)

Criminal Law Enforcement

In 2020, criminal law enforcement agencies in Mongolia took actions to combat child labor (Table 7). However, gaps exist within the operations of the criminal enforcement agencies that may hinder adequate enforcement of their child labor laws, including training for criminal investigators.

MINIMAL ADVANCEMENT – EFFORTS MADE BUT CONTINUED LAW THAT DELAYED ADVANCEMENT

During the reporting period, the government distributed 50,000 informational passport inserts at its border with Russia and China to raise awareness of human trafficking issues and provide information regarding resources for potential victims; recipients included approximately 1,000 children. The government also disseminated daily human trafficking-themed public service announcements on social media platforms, radio, and television that were played at stations along rail lines connecting Mongolia to Russia and China. (11,57)

The National Police Agency reported that one case from 2019 involving forced beggary of a child remained under active investigation in 2020, as did investigations into eight cases involving inducing a child into pornography. In addition, two cases of inducing a child into drug addiction were under active investigation during the reporting period. (12) In 2020, the government reported that 17 children were involved in commercial sexual exploitation, including child pornography. (12) The government also allocated $10,504 during the reporting period to the NGO Gender Equality Center for maintenance of its Mongolian hotline system for human trafficking victims. (11,24,32)

Research indicated that there was a lack of resources, including insufficient funding for law enforcement agencies, which resulted in insufficient training opportunities for criminal law enforcement officers. (5,11,12,23,24) Furthermore, reports indicate that among some police officers and government officials, there is a lack of understanding of the use of male children in commercial sexual exploitation as a result of human trafficking, as well as a general unfamiliarity with human trafficking-specific provisions of the criminal code. (11,16) As a result, many cases involving boys are not prosecuted under the human trafficking article of the Criminal Code, which carries harsher penalties, but are instead prosecuted under other offenses that carry lighter penalties. (11,16,59)

Furthermore, restrictions put in place during the pandemic, including in some cases the requirement for a negative COVID-19 test, made it difficult for human trafficking victims to access public and police services. This resulted in slowing the pace of human trafficking investigations. (24,57)

Research noted that complex case initiation and referral procedures, coupled with restrictions on contact between anti-trafficking police and prosecutors, at times hindered investigations and prosecutions. (11,12) NGOs also continued to express concern over a legal provision in the Criminal Code Article 6.12 ("Release from Imprisonment by Parole, Arranged Supervision"), which allows the early release of some incarcerated traffickers, arguing that such leniency could potentially contribute to continued instances of human trafficking. (11,31,39)

During the reporting period, research found no evidence that the government continued to arrest child trafficking victims as a result of having been subjected to human trafficking. Due to a lack of understanding of victim protection in relation to the Law on Petty Offenses, research found that police reportedly continued to detain child victims as a direct result of the unlawful acts they were forced to commit. (11,31,60) The National Police Agency reported that due to a misapplication of Article 6.18.4 in the Law on Petty Offenses, police erroneously fined two children for prostitution instead of referring them to the FCYDA. (12,24,31) Coupled with the lack of evidence collected by law enforcement to support investigations into human trafficking, some victims become hesitant to self-report or testify due to the fear that they may face prosecution for crimes they were forced to commit. (11,17,24,61)

Despite reports of alleged malfeasance among some Mongolian officials, including helping to facilitate sex trafficking in illicit establishments, research found no evidence that the government initiated any investigations into government officials complicit in the worst forms of child labor. (11)

During the reporting period, the government failed to publish criminal law enforcement data related to the worst forms of child labor, including whether trainings for new criminal investigators were conducted, whether refresher courses were offered, the number of violations, the number of convictions, and penalties imposed for violations. (12)

IV. COORDINATION OF GOVERNMENT EFFORTS ON CHILD LABOR

The government has established mechanisms to coordinate its efforts to address child labor (Table 8). However, gaps exist that hinder the effective coordination of efforts to address child labor, including efficacy in accomplishing mandates.

Table 8. Key Mechanisms to Coordinate Government Efforts on Child Labor

Coordinating Body	Role & Description
National Committee for Children	Serves as overall coordinating body for nationwide child protection efforts. Implements the National Program on Child Development and Protection (2017–2021). (5,10,12) Established in 2018 and headed by the Prime Minister with the Minister of Labor and Social Protection as Deputy Head. (5,12) During the reporting period, the Prime Minister issued an order renewing the mandate of the Committee. (12) Also planned 11 activities and continued to draft amendments to the Criminal Code and the Law on Petty Offenses. (31)
National Anti-Trafficking Sub-Council	Mandate renewed in February 2021. Chaired by the Crime Prevention and Coordination Council. (32) Coordinates government efforts to combat human trafficking and monitors implementation of anti-trafficking legislation. (24,60) Functions as part of the Council on Crime Prevention under the Ministry of Justice and Home Affairs. (54) Has 24 members, including 22 government officials and 2 NGO representatives. (24,32) Coordinating body met during the reporting period. (12,24) In addition, agreed to work with prosecutors, police, and child protection officers to establish, provide support for, and maintain an operational Multi-Disciplinary Task Force focused on inter-agency coordination of the identification and protection of child trafficking victims, and the investigation and prosecution of child trafficking crimes. Had a budget of $178,221 in 2020 and spent $104,342 to implement the National Program on Combating Trafficking in Persons, with remaining funds used for pandemic prevention measures. (24)
Ministry of Justice and Home Affairs—Crime Prevention and Coordination Council	Coordinates working-level law enforcement efforts related to trafficking in persons. (24) Overseen by the Ministry of Justice and Home Affairs. Coordinating body was active during the reporting period. (57)

V. GOVERNMENT POLICIES ON CHILD LABOR

The government has established policies related to child labor (Table 9). However, policy gaps exist that hinder efforts to address child labor, including implementation.

Table 9. Key Policies Related to Child Labor

Policy	Description
National Program on Child Development and Protection (2017–2021)	Incorporates the National Program for the Elimination of the Worst Forms of Child Labor and National Action Plan. (3) Coordinates child labor and child protection issues through the Ministries of Labor and Social Protection; Education, Culture, Science and Sports; and Health. (3,48) In an effort to advance the National Program on Child Development and Protection, FCYDA accredited 41 NGOs to assist in providing child protection services. (10) Research was unable to determine whether activities were undertaken to implement this policy during the reporting period. (12)
Child Protection Compact Partnership (2020–2024)†	Launched October 2020. Joint partnership between the Governments of Mongolia and the United States. (12,24,59,61,62) A $5 million grant to fight all forms of child trafficking led by World Vision. Works with Task Unit of Crime Prevention and Coordinating Council and National Sub-Council on Trafficking in Persons. (59,61-63) Objectives include expanding support for trafficking victim protection service shelters and victim-centered investigations and prosecutions; establishing a Multi-disciplinary Task Force aimed at improving inter-agency coordination on victim identification and investigation and prosecution of child trafficking crimes; improving interagency coordination; and expanding community knowledge and understanding of child trafficking, including risks and indicators of human trafficking. (12,59,61-63) Furthermore, intends to increase the number of law enforcement, prosecutorial, social welfare, mental health, and labor inspection personnel designated to prioritize child trafficking, and work collaboratively on victim-centered investigations and prosecutions of child trafficking cases. (24)
National Program on Combating Trafficking in Persons (2017–2021)	Designated lead for anti-trafficking efforts. Provides technical and professional guidance on the prevention of human trafficking. (11,23,24,60) Implemented and managed by the National Anti-Trafficking Sub-Council. (11,23,24) Aims to strengthen efforts to prevent and combat different types of human trafficking, including the commercial sexual exploitation of children, and to improve protective services for victims by using the internationally recognized principles of the "Four Ps"—prevention, protection, prosecution, and partnership. (3,4,17,20,24,60) Research was unable to determine whether activities were undertaken to implement this policy during the reporting period. (12)

MINIMAL ADVANCEMENT – EFFORTS MADE BUT CONTINUED LAW THAT DELAYED ADVANCEMENT

Policy	Description
State Policy on Herders (2020–2024)	Describes the acceptable minimum conditions and criteria for employing children in herding. (64) Activities include projects to improve housing and access to information for herders, and to ensure that children engaged in herding receive an education. Each year, the government allocates 1 percent of its budget to implement the policy. (65) Policy was renewed during the reporting period. (12,31,66)
Three-Pillar Development Policy (2018–2020)	Called for improvements in education, health, social welfare, and labor policies through 2020. Priorities included the education, safety, and health of vulnerable children. (67) Research was unable to determine whether activities were undertaken to implement this policy during the reporting period. (12)

†Policy was approved during the reporting period.

VI. SOCIAL PROGRAMS TO ADDRESS CHILD LABOR

In 2020, the government funded and participated in programs that include the goal of eliminating or preventing child labor (Table 10). However, gaps exist in these social programs, including with funding of programs to address the full scope of the problem in all sectors.

Table 10. Key Social Programs to Address Child Labor

Program	Description
Children's Money Program†	Program operated by the General Agency for Social Welfare and Service, General Agency for State Registration, and Human Development Fund. Distributes a monthly stipend to vulnerable children under age 18 and aims to prevent child labor by offsetting costs related to food, school, and clothing. (3,68) During the reporting period, the government included a five-fold increase from approximately $8 per child in 2019 to approximately $35 per child in 2020 to mitigate some of the economic impacts of the pandemic. (12,30,69) Money was distributed through direct deposit to all children in the country with allotments continuing until July 1, 2021. Since April 1, 2020, 1.25 million Mongolian children have been receiving money through the program. (31)
School Lunch Program†	Government-mandated program that subsidizes meals to encourage low-income children to attend school, particularly at the primary level. (28) During the reporting period, the program was halted due school closures during the pandemic, and remaining funds were allocated to provide emergency assistance, including food and supplies, to children of families in need. (12,31)

† Program is funded by the Government of Mongolia.

‡ The government had other social programs that may have included the goal of eliminating or preventing child labor. (21)

Research found that there is a shortage of long-term stay shelters, and most temporary shelters are not accessible to victims with disabilities. (3,5,10,11,23,24,30) Although Mongolia has programs that target child labor, the scope of these programs is insufficient to fully address the extent of the problem. (12)

VII. SUGGESTED GOVERNMENT ACTIONS TO ELIMINATE CHILD LABOR

Based on the reporting above, suggested actions are identified that would advance the elimination of child labor in Mongolia (Table 11).

Table 11. Suggested Government Actions to Eliminate Child Labor

Area	Suggested Action	Year(s) Suggested
Legal Framework	Ensure that the minimum age for work applies to children in the informal sector and children who are self-employed.	2018 – 2020
	Ensure that all forms of forced labor are criminally prohibited.	2016 – 2020
	Ensure that laws clearly and comprehensively criminalize using children under age 18 for prostitution, and criminalize using, procuring, or offering all children under age 18 for the production of pornography and pornographic performances.	2014 – 2020
	Ensure that the law criminally prohibits the using, procuring, or offering of children under age 18 in the production and trafficking of drugs.	2016 – 2020
	Ensure that the law criminally prohibits the recruitment of children under age 18 by non-state armed groups.	2016 – 2020
	Ensure that laws adequately prohibit children under age 18 from horse racing at all times of the year.	2017 – 2020

Area	Suggested Action	Year(s) Suggested
Enforcement	Strengthen the inspection system by permitting the General Agency for Specialized Inspections to conduct unannounced inspections, including in the informal sector, and empower the Criminal Police Department to close venues found to be complicit in the worst forms of child labor.	2013 – 2020
	Increase funding and resources for labor inspectors to conduct inspections.	2014 – 2020
	Conduct regular labor inspections and ensure that inspectors or other appropriate authorities are able to assess penalties—and extend liability beyond race organizers—for legal violations related to horse racing, including the participation of children in racing and race training during prohibited months.	2018 – 2020
	Provide sufficient training opportunities for labor inspectors and criminal law enforcement officials, including training on new laws related to the worst forms of child labor.	2018 – 2020
	Provide adequate funding for law enforcement agencies and ensure that procedural checklists used to identify human trafficking victims are used consistently.	2019 – 2020
	Provide trainings for police officers and government officials on criminal laws related to the worst forms of child labor to ensure that cases of commercial sexual exploitation—especially those involving boy victims—are prosecuted fully and under the appropriate articles of law, and close legal loopholes that permit the early release of convicted traffickers.	2011 – 2020
	Cease fining, arresting, detaining, or charging child trafficking victims with crimes and administrative offenses as a result of having been subjected to human trafficking.	2020
	Allow anti-trafficking police and prosecutors to work with each other, and ensure that evidence related to human trafficking cases is collected to support investigations.	2020
	Address malfeasance in all law enforcement agencies and investigate, prosecute, and convict government officials complicit in the worst forms of child labor.	2020
	Publish disaggregated criminal law enforcement data, including training for new and existing criminal law investigators, the number of violations, the number of convictions, and the number of imposed penalties for violations.	2017 – 2020
Government Policies	Publish activities undertaken during the reporting period to implement the National Program on Child Development and Protection, the National Program on Combating Trafficking in Persons, and the Three-Pillar Development Policy.	2020
Social Programs	Increase the number of schools to help eliminate overcrowding, increase the number of trained teachers, ensure that appropriate technology is available to all students, and provide an infrastructure to allow full accessibility options for children with disabilities.	2019 – 2020
	Ensure that the School Lunch Program is implemented once schools reopen for in-person learning.	2018 – 2020
	Increase the availability of long-term stay shelter homes.	2019 – 2020
	Ensure that all government-run, government-funded shelter homes are accessible to children with disabilities.	2019 – 2020
	Expand existing programs to address the scope of the child labor problem.	2020

In 2020, Montenegro made moderate advancement in efforts to eliminate the worst forms of child labor. The government began enforcing the new Labor Law, which provides specific provisions for the conditions allowing a minor to work, and substantially increased the Labor Inspectorate's budget. In addition, the government opened a new shelter for victims of human trafficking and provided services to nine children, including seven children who were previously in forced begging situations. However, children in Montenegro are subjected to the worst forms of child labor, including in forced begging and commercial sexual exploitation, each sometimes as a result of human trafficking. In addition, research found that the scope of programs to address child labor in street work and forced begging is insufficient.

I. PREVALENCE AND SECTORAL DISTRIBUTION OF CHILD LABOR

Children in Montenegro are subjected to the worst forms of child labor, including in forced begging and commercial sexual exploitation, each sometimes as a result of human trafficking. (1-6) Table 1 provides key indicators on children's work and education in Montenegro. Data on some of these indicators are not available from the sources used in this report.

Table 1. Statistics on Children's Work and Education

Children	Age	Percent
Working (% and population)	5 to 14	18.3 (Unavailable)
Attending School (%)	5 to 14	91.6
Combining Work and School (%)	7 to 14	19.9
Primary Completion Rate (%)		94.5

Source for primary completion rate: Data from 2018, published by UNESCO Institute for Statistics, 2020. (4)

Source for all other data: International Labor Organization's analysis of statistics from Multiple Indicator Cluster Survey 5 (MICS 5), 2013. (5)

Based on a review of available information, Table 2 provides an overview of children's work by sector and activity.

Table 2. Overview of Children's Work by Sector and Activity

Sector/Industry	Activity
Services	Street work, including vending small goods and begging (3)
Categorical Worst Forms of Child Labor‡	Commercial sexual exploitation as a result of human trafficking (2,3,6-8)
	Forced begging, sometimes as a result of human trafficking (3)
	Domestic work, sometimes as a result of human trafficking (9-12)
	Use in illicit activities, including drug trafficking and harvesting (13,14)

‡ Child labor understood as the worst forms of child labor per se under Article 3(a)–(c) of ILO C. 182.

Montenegro is a source, destination, and transit country for trafficking of children for forced labor, including forced begging, especially among Roma children. (2,7,13) Some Roma girls from Montenegro are sold and forced into domestic servitude in both Montenegro and Kosovo. (2,10,11) Children, especially girls, are victims of trafficking for commercial sexual exploitation internally and transnationally within the region. (2,7)

Some Roma, Ashkali, and Balkan Egyptian children experience challenges in obtaining birth registration, which sometimes makes school enrollment difficult, increasing their vulnerability to engage in child labor. (3,7,12,14) The higher rate of unregistered children is mostly due to parents' lack of awareness of the importance of registration, and parents' lack of identification documents. (15) In addition, some children with disabilities experience difficulty physically accessing educational facilities and have limited government social services available to them. (12,14)

II. LEGAL FRAMEWORK FOR CHILD LABOR

Montenegro has ratified all key international conventions concerning child labor (Table 3).

Table 3. Ratification of International Conventions on Child Labor

Convention	Ratification

 ILO C. 182, Worst Forms of Child Labor	✓
 UN CRC	✓
 UN CRC Optional Protocol on Armed Conflict	✓
 UN CRC Optional Protocol on the Sale of Children, Child Prostitution and Child Pornography	✓
 Palermo Protocol on Trafficking in Persons	✓

The government's laws and regulations are in line with relevant international standards (Table 4).

Table 4. Laws and Regulations on Child Labor

Standard	Meets International Standards	Age	Legislation
Minimum Age for Work	Yes	15	Article 16 of the Labor Law (16)
Minimum Age for Hazardous Work	Yes	18	Articles 17, 172 and 173 of the Labor Law (16)

Prohibition of Military Recruitment by Non-state Armed Groups	Yes		Article 444 of the Criminal Code (19)
Compulsory Education Age	Yes	15	Article 4 of the Law on Primary Education (22)
Free Public Education	Yes		Article 75 of the Constitution (18)

* No conscription (20)

The government's new Labor Law was adopted in late 2019 and entered into force January 2020. The new provisions of the law include specific guidance on work conditions for children under age 18, with particular consideration given in Article 22 to ensuring that children do not engage in labor that is potentially harmful to their health. (23) The Regulations on Measures of Protection in the Workplace prescribes workplace protections and prohibits specific hazardous activities for children, including workplaces that would expose them to physical, biological, or chemical hazards. (17,24) During the reporting period, the government continued to finalize a list of hazardous jobs for children in conjunction with the ILO. (23)

III. ENFORCEMENT OF LAWS ON CHILD LABOR

The government has established institutional mechanisms for the enforcement of laws and regulations on child labor (Table 5). However, gaps exist within the operations of enforcement agencies that may hinder adequate enforcement of child labor laws.

Table 5. Agencies Responsible for Child Labor Law Enforcement

Organization/Agency	Role
Labor Inspectorate	Leads and monitors the enforcement of labor laws, including those that protect working children and affect working conditions throughout the country. (13,23-25) Part of the Inspectorate General. (26)
Ministry of Interior	Houses the Police Directorate and the Office for the Fight Against Trafficking in Humans (TIP Department). The Police Directorate investigates and enforces criminal laws on forced labor and human trafficking for commercial sexual exploitation. (25) Coordinates law enforcement actions, including identification of victims of human trafficking. (23,25) Prevents and investigates child begging by removing child beggars from the streets through the Beggar Task Force. (7,8) The TIP Department coordinates efforts against human trafficking among relevant institutions and international organizations, harmonizes legislation, maintains data on human trafficking, and funds hotlines for victims of human trafficking. (25)
Supreme State Prosecutor	Investigates and enforces criminal laws on forced labor and human trafficking for commercial sexual exploitation. (23) Collects data on the number of police investigations, convictions, and court rulings, and submits them to the TIP Department. (23)
Ministry of Justice, Human, and Minority Rights	Enforces the Criminal Code by prosecuting crimes against children, including human trafficking, child begging, and child abuse. (23)
Ministry of Labor and Social Welfare (MLSW)	Protects children and families by providing social, child, and family protection in its Social Welfare Centers. Identifies potential victims of human trafficking, and funds programs for victim protection and the shelter for victims of human trafficking. (23)

Labor Law Enforcement

In 2020, labor law enforcement agencies in Montenegro took actions to combat child labor (Table 6). However, gaps exist within the operations of the Ministry of Labor and Social Welfare that may hinder adequate labor law enforcement, including resource allocation.

Table 6. Labor Law Enforcement Efforts Related to Child Labor

The Labor Inspectorate has 15 offices that proactively plan labor inspections. (23) Below the chief inspector, there are 31 labor inspectors who cover employment relations and 10 inspectors who cover health safety issues at work. (23) All inspectors monitor the enforcement of child labor. In addition, the Labor Inspectorate maintains a national call center and an e-mail line for receiving complaints. (23,25) The government maintains a database on children involved in begging, but does not collect or publish data on the worst forms of child labor. (14) Labor inspectors can inspect registered farms, and Social Welfare Centers (SWCs) can inspect unregistered farms to detect child labor. (3,23) If child labor is found by SWCs, social workers cooperate with labor inspectors and criminal law enforcement to ensure that children receive proper support and protection from further exploitation. Labor inspections increase during the summer months (May 15 to September 3), particularly in the tourism sector throughout the coastal region. (23,27)

Children found during labor inspections can be sent to SWCs and accommodated in a government-financed, NGO-run shelter for human trafficking victims. (13,25,28) During the reporting period, there were no cases of children being removed during inspections. (23)

In April 2020, all inspectors received training on the new Labor Law, and in October 2020, seven new Labor Inspectorate employees participated in a training entitled “Strengthening early identification and referral of potential cases of human trafficking in Montenegro,” with a focus on increased multi-agency cooperation. (23) The Labor Inspectorate reported that funding was sufficient in 2020. While three child labor violations were found during the reporting period, no penalties were imposed. (23)

Criminal Law Enforcement

In 2020, criminal law enforcement agencies in Montenegro took actions to combat child labor (Table 7). However, gaps exist within the operations of the criminal law enforcement agencies that may hinder adequate criminal law enforcement, including prosecution planning.

Table 7. Criminal Law Enforcement Efforts Related to Child Labor

An eight-member police unit within the Police Directorate investigates human trafficking and illegal migration throughout the country. (14) Two individuals were convicted in 2020 under Article 444 of the Criminal Code for human trafficking of an underage victim. In addition, ten children were removed from exploitative situations and referred to the shelter for victims of human trafficking. (23) Police investigate children working on the street, and those who are found begging or requiring social assistance can be accommodated in a public institution, called a Ljubović, for up to 30 days while efforts are undertaken to locate their parents. During the reporting period, 31 boys and 13 girls were accommodated in the Ljubović system. (3,29) The institution provides accommodation, protection, education, and therapy for children found living on the streets. When parents are not available, children are referred to local SWCs for longer-term shelter and resources. (3,23) In 2020, police found that 133 minors were used in forced begging operations and 107 requests were submitted to initiate misdemeanor proceedings against parents under Article 37 of the Criminal Code. (29)

During the reporting period, the Office of the National Anti-Trafficking Coordinator (TIP Department) organized multiple training sessions on best practices in fighting human trafficking. Topics included strengthening early identification and referral of potential cases of human trafficking, multi-agency cooperation, and local-level awareness of human trafficking issues. (23,27) In addition, the TIP Department, the Institute for Social and Child Protection, and multiple other institutions jointly organized trainings for civil servants on the human trafficking provisions of the Montenegrin Criminal Code. The OSCE Ministry of Defense conducted a regional training for the Montenegrin team for the Team for Formal Identification of Victims of Trafficking, staff of the Centers for Social work, and police directorate representatives from multiple cities. (27,30)

IV. COORDINATION OF GOVERNMENT EFFORTS ON CHILD LABOR

The government has established mechanisms to coordinate its efforts to address child labor (Table 8). However, gaps exist that hinder effective coordination of efforts to address child labor, including ensuring mechanisms remain active and achieve their mandates.

Table 8. Key Mechanisms to Coordinate Government Efforts on Child Labor

Coordinating Body	Role & Description
Office of the National Anti-Trafficking Coordinator (TIP Department)	Coordinates efforts, projects, and legislation against trafficking in persons and the worst forms of child labor among relevant government institutions and international organizations. (13,25) Collects and maintains data on investigations and court rulings. (3) Operates Trafficking in Persons working group to monitor and promote activities related to combating human trafficking, and assesses progress toward meeting objectives established in action plans. Includes representatives of seven government ministries (in addition to the Police Directorate, Supreme Court, Supreme State Prosecutors, and Inspectorate Authority), two NGOs, and multiple international organizations. (3,25,27) During the reporting period, the government adopted multiple documents prepared by the TIP Department, including statistics on results achieved as of July 2020 in the realm of combating trafficking in human beings and instructions to the Minister of the Interior on adopting standard operating procedures for the identification of victims of human trafficking. The TIP Department also facilitated a number of trainings on anti-trafficking in persons efforts across the country and provided information on the department's annual efforts. (27,30)
Council for the Rights of the Child	Implements and monitors the government's commitments pursuant to the UN CRC, and initiates adoption of legislation to promote and protect the rights of children. Chaired by MLSW and has 12 other members, including 4 NGO members. (3) The Council did not meet during the reporting period. (23)

V. GOVERNMENT POLICIES ON CHILD LABOR

The government has established policies related to child labor (Table 9). However, policy gaps exist that hinder efforts to address child labor, including mainstreaming child labor issues into relevant policies.

Table 9. Key Policies Related to Child Labor

Policy	Description
National Strategy for Combating Human Trafficking (2019–2024)	Outlines objectives for combating human trafficking by raising public awareness, strengthening the capacity for victim identification and services provision, improving inter-agency coordination, and raising the efficiency of prosecutions. (31-34) During the reporting period, the government continued to implement the strategy by drafting the 2021 Action Plan and associated activities, which are expected to be adopted by the end of March 2021. The government also established a coordination body consisting of representatives of the Ministry of the Interior, the Police Directorate, the Higher State Prosecutor's Office, and Ministry of Justice, Human, and Minority Rights. (23,30)
Strategy for Exercising the Rights of the Child in Montenegro (2019–2023)	Seeks to enhance the ability of children to exercise their rights by improving the application of laws related to children; supporting vulnerable children, including those with disabilities; and improving protections for violence against children, including from child trafficking, child prostitution, child pornography, and involvement in armed conflicts. A working group will produce an annual report detailing the steps it has taken toward achieving the plan's goals. (35) During the reporting period, implementation of work for the Strategy continued with some disruptions due to the formation of the new national government; a mid-term report is planned for 2021. (23)

MODERATE ADVANCEMENT

Policy	Description
Strategy for the Development of the Social and Child Protection System (2018–2022)	Builds an integrated social and child protection system, including monthly social assistance, health care, and a child allowance that is contingent upon school attendance. (1,36) During the reporting period, the government provided additional financial assistance to socially disadvantaged families. (29)
Strategy for the Social Inclusion of Roma and Egyptians (2016–2020)	Aimed to create social inclusion of Roma and Egyptians by increasing school attendance and birth registration while preventing child begging and human trafficking. Implemented by the Ministry for Minority and Human Rights. (37,38) In March 2020, the government and civil society organizations launched the “Children are Children” campaign, which sought to raise awareness of forced marriage and its negative effects on children’s rights. Additionally, during the reporting period, a new working group was formed to develop a new strategy and met three times during the reporting period. (23)
Strategy for Prevention and Protection of Children from Violence (2017–2021)	Strengthens the national framework in preventing violence against children, including improving legislation and the judicial system. (13,39) Includes providing care and services for child victims or those at risk of violence. Aims to improve protections for children in the country by 2021. (39) During the reporting period, the government launched an SOS Hotline for children at risk of abuse. (29)

‡ The government had other policies that may have addressed child labor issues or had an impact on child labor.

The government has not included child labor elimination and prevention strategies in the Strategy for Prevention and Protection of Children from Violence. (36)

VI. SOCIAL PROGRAMS TO ADDRESS CHILD LABOR

In 2020, the government funded and participated in programs that include the goal of eliminating or preventing child labor (Table 10). However, gaps exist in these social programs, including adequacy of programs to address the problem in all sectors.

Table 10. Key Social Programs to Address Child Labor

Program	Description
UNICEF Country Program (2016–2021)	Addresses access to social services for children, synchronizes the legal framework with EU and UN standards, implements and monitors policies relevant to children, and applies the principles of the UN CRC. (10,14,40) In July 2020, UNICEF published a report including the methodology, data, and associated statistical snapshots of the “Montenegro Multiple Indicators Cluster Survey (MICS) 2018” and the “Montenegro Roma Settlements MICS.” (23)
Development of Standard Operating Procedures for the Treatment of Children Deprived of Parents or Unaccompanied	Implemented by the Ministry of Interior’s TIP Department and UNICEF. (8) Goals include standardizing procedures among all relevant institutions for dealing with unaccompanied children and children separated from parents, and ensuring compliance with both international and national laws for children. (42) Includes procedures on identifying, accommodating, and integrating these children. (42) The Standard Operating Procedures (SOPs) were utilized during the reporting period, and a guide on implementation of the SOPs was distributed to municipal officials and border authorities. In addition, workshops were held to educate approximately 200 law enforcement officials on the new SOPs. (29)
Hotline for Victims of Human Trafficking†	SOS Hotline funded by the TIP Department and run by the NGO Montenegrin Women’s Lobby. Provides advice, connects victims with service providers, and raises public awareness. (31) During the reporting period, the TIP hotline received 1,657 calls. (27)
Measurement, Awareness-Raising, and Policy Engagement (MAP16) Project on Child Labor and Forced Labor	Multi-year project with support from USDOL, implemented by the ILO. Aims to create an improved knowledge base on child labor. (41) Specific goals of the program include: improving application of knowledge in support of efforts to eliminate child labor; strengthening the policymaking process; improving the capacity of the government, national authorities, employers, workers’ organizations, and other relevant entities to combat child labor; and strengthening partnerships to accelerate progress in combating child labor. (41) Additional information may be found on the USDOL’s website .

† Program is funded by the Government of Montenegro.

‡ The government had other social programs that may have included the goal of eliminating or preventing child labor. (7,43,44)

During the reporting period, the government opened a new shelter for victims of human trafficking. The shelter received $48,544 in funding and provided services to nine children, including seven children who were previously in forced begging situations. (23) Research indicates that the funding provided for shelter operations was insufficient, and provision of services to individuals with disabilities who are victims of human trafficking remains limited. (7,23)

Although the Government of Montenegro has programs that target child labor, the scope of these programs is insufficient to fully address the extent of the problem, especially for street work and forced begging. (23)

VII. SUGGESTED GOVERNMENT ACTIONS TO ELIMINATE CHILD LABOR

Based on the reporting above, suggested actions are identified that would advance the elimination of child labor in Montenegro (Table 11).

Table 11. Suggested Government Actions to Eliminate Child Labor

Area	Suggested Action	Year(s) Suggested
Enforcement	Ensure that labor and criminal law enforcement entities impose appropriate penalties for child labor violations.	2019 – 2020
	Consistently track and publish information about children involved in the worst forms of child labor.	2017 – 2020
	Increase the number of prosecutions and convictions of perpetrators involved in commercial sexual exploitation.	2017 – 2020
	Ensure that labor inspectors are provided with refresher courses.	2020
Coordination	Ensure that all coordinating bodies are active and able to carry out their intended mandates.	2020
Government Policies	Integrate child labor elimination and prevention strategies into national policies for all children, including in the Strategy for Prevention and Protection of Children from Violence.	2018 – 2020
	Publish activities undertaken to implement key policies related to child labor during the reporting period.	2020
Social Programs	Build the capacity of schools and other services and programs to accommodate and provide support for children with disabilities.	2015 – 2020
	Increase funding for human trafficking shelters, including for individuals with disabilities who are victims of human trafficking.	2018 – 2020
	Expand existing programs to address the scope of the child labor problem, especially in street work and forced begging.	2018 – 2020
	Make additional efforts to register children from the Ashkali, Balkan Egyptian, and Roma communities.	2019 – 2020
	Publish activities undertaken to implement key social programs to address child labor during the reporting period.	2020

Although research found no evidence that child labor exists in Montserrat, in 2020 the government made no advancement in efforts to prevent the worst forms of child labor. The government has not determined by national law or regulation the types of hazardous work prohibited for children. In addition, the law does not prohibit the recruitment of children by non-state armed groups or the use of children in illicit activities.

I. PREVALENCE AND SECTORAL DISTRIBUTION OF CHILD LABOR

Research found no evidence that child labor exists in Montserrat. (1,2) Table I provides one key indicator on children's education in Montserrat. Data on key indicators on children's work are not available from the sources used in this report.

Table I. Statistics on Children's Work and Education

Children	Age	Percent
Primary Completion Rate (%)		96.8

Source for primary completion rate: Data from 2019 published by UNESCO Institute for Statistics, 2021. (3)
All other data were unavailable from International Labor Organization's analysis, 2021. (4)

II. LEGAL FRAMEWORK FOR CHILD LABOR

British Overseas Territories (BOTs) recognize the jurisdiction and sovereignty of the United Kingdom (UK), but they are constitutionally not part of the UK. They are self-governing, except in the areas of foreign affairs and defense. (5) Domestic UK law does not generally apply unless explicitly extended to Montserrat. (5) Under Article 35(4) of the ILO Constitution, when the UK ratifies a Convention, the Territory must consider if it will accept the Convention. If the Convention is accepted, it is considered applicable to that territory. (5) No key international conventions concerning child labor have been accepted by Montserrat (Table 2).

Table 2. Ratification of International Conventions on Child Labor

Convention	Ratification
 ILO C. 138, Minimum Age
 ILO C. 182, Worst Forms of Child Labor
 UN CRC
 UN CRC Optional Protocol on Armed Conflict
 UN CRC Optional Protocol on the Sale of Children, Child Prostitution and Child Pornography
 Palermo Protocol on Trafficking in Persons

The Government of Montserrat has established laws and regulations related to child labor (Table 3). However, gaps exist in Montserrat's legal framework to adequately protect children from the worst forms of child labor, including the lack of criminal penalties for the use of children in illicit activities.

Table 3. Laws and Regulations on Child Labor

Standard	Meets International Standards	Age	Legislation
Minimum Age for Work	Yes	16	Part 9 of the Labor Code (6)

Standard	Meets International Standards	Age	Legislation
Prohibition of Forced Labor	Yes		Part VIII-A, Sections 138A and 202D of the Penal Code; Schedule II, No. 55 of the Constitution Order (7,8)
Prohibition of Child Trafficking	Yes		Part VIII-A, Sections 138A–D, and Part XIV-A of the Penal Code (7)
Prohibition of Commercial Sexual Exploitation of Children	Yes		Part VIII-A, Sections 138A–B of the Penal Code (7)
Prohibition of Using Children in Illicit Activities	No		Articles 3 and 96(8) of the Labor Code (6)
Minimum Age for Voluntary State Military Recruitment	N/A
Prohibition of Compulsory Recruitment of Children by (State) Military	N/A*
Prohibition of Military Recruitment by Non-state Armed Groups	No		Articles 3 and 96(8) of the Labor Code (6)
Compulsory Education Age	Yes	16	Chapter II, Part 3 of the Education Act (9)
Free Public Education	Yes		Chapter II, Part I of the Education Act (9)

* No conscription (10)

Children under age 18 may not be employed at night or in occupations designated as hazardous. (6) The Labor Code allows children as young as 14 to engage in light work, but Montserrat does not have a list of activities which constitute light work, does not specify the conditions in which light work may be undertaken, or limit the number of hours for light work. (6) The Minister of Labor for Montserrat is responsible for deciding what constitutes hazardous work, but Montserrat has not determined by national law or regulation the types of hazardous work prohibited for children. (2,6) In addition, the law does not criminally prohibit the use of children in illicit activities, or the recruitment of children by non-state armed groups. (2,6,10)

III. ENFORCEMENT OF LAWS ON CHILD LABOR

As there is no evidence of a problem, there appears to be no need for enforcement actions to address child labor, including its worst forms. However, gaps exist within the framework of enforcement agencies that may hinder adequate enforcement of their child labor laws (Table 4).

Table 4. Agencies Responsible for Child Labor Law Enforcement

Organization/Agency	Role
Department of Labor	Prohibits employment of children, pursuant to the Labor Code under the Labor Commissioner. (11)
Royal Montserrat Police Service	Enforces laws of Montserrat, including child labor laws. (12)
Department of Social Services	Employs social workers to work on child protection issues. (13)

Although there are laws prohibiting child labor, labor inspectors have no authority to conduct unannounced inspections or to assess penalties for child labor violations. When a report is made of any form of abuse involving a child victim, the Department of Social Services conducts an initial social inquiry to attempt to verify the allegation and then works with police to coordinate a response. (2)

Labor Law Enforcement

Within the Montserrat Department of Labor, the Labor Officer and Labor Inspector are government employees responsible for conducting labor inspections in accordance with the Labor Code. Labor inspectors have no authority to assess penalties for child labor violations and unannounced inspections are not permitted. (2)

IV. COORDINATION OF GOVERNMENT EFFORTS ON CHILD LABOR

As there is no evidence of a problem, there appears to be no need for mechanisms to coordinate efforts to address child labor.

V. GOVERNMENT POLICIES ON CHILD LABOR

As there is no evidence of a problem, there appears to be no need for policies to address child labor.

VI. SOCIAL PROGRAMS TO ADDRESS CHILD LABOR

As there is no evidence of a problem, there appears to be no need for programs to address child labor.

VII. SUGGESTED GOVERNMENT ACTIONS TO ELIMINATE CHILD LABOR

Based on the reporting above, suggested actions are identified that would advance the continued prevention of child labor in Montserrat (Table 5).

Table 5. Suggested Government Actions to Eliminate Child Labor

Area	Suggested Action	Year(s) Suggested
Legal Framework	Ratify international conventions on child labor.	2020
	Ensure that the law specifies the types of light work acceptable for children as young as 14 as well as permitted working conditions and hours.	2020
	Determine the types of hazardous work prohibited for children, in consultation with employers' and workers' organizations.	2017 – 2020
	Establish laws to prohibit the use of children in illicit activities.	2020
	Ensure that the law criminally prohibits the recruitment of children under age 18 by non-state armed groups.	2016 – 2020
Enforcement	Ensure that the labor inspectorate can assess penalties for child labor and that unannounced inspections are permitted.	2019 – 2020
Social Programs	Collect and publish data on the extent and nature of child labor to inform policies and programs.	2019 – 2020

In 2020, Morocco made moderate advancement in efforts to eliminate the worst forms of child labor. The government enacted programs to pilot a child protection network and assess the feasibility of 10 additional child welfare centers. In addition, the Ministry of Labor and Vocational Integration launched a new roadmap for fighting child labor that seeks to: improve the Domestic Work Law 19.12 and make benefits available from the National Social Security Fund to child domestic workers; improve labor inspection at the 54 designated centers across the country by hiring specialists to enhance the oversight of inspections and the methodology behind interventions; strengthen partnerships with civil society organizations; and increase international cooperation on child labor. Morocco also became a Pathfinder country under Alliance 8.7, which calls for the eradication of child labor by 2025, and forced labor, modern slavery, and human trafficking by 2030. However, children in Morocco are subjected to the worst forms of child labor, including forced domestic work, sometimes as a result of human trafficking. Children also engage in child labor in producing artisanal handicrafts. Laws related to the minimum age for work and the use of children for illicit activities do not meet international standards. In addition, research could not determine whether penalties were imposed for violations related to the worst forms of child labor. Furthermore, the scope of government programs that target child labor is insufficient to fully address the extent of the problem.

I. PREVALENCE AND SECTORAL DISTRIBUTION OF CHILD LABOR

Children in Morocco are subjected to the worst forms of child labor, including forced domestic work, sometimes as a result of human trafficking. Children also engage in child labor in producing artisanal handicrafts. (1-3) Government statistics from 2020 showed 34,000 children under the age of 15 are working; however, the government has not yet made the full data set available, including microdata, leaving the nature and causes of children's involvement in specific forms of child labor unknown. (2,4,5) Table 1 provides key indicators on children's work and education in Morocco.

Table 1. Statistics on Children's Work and Education

Children	Age	Percent

MODERATE ADVANCEMENT

Rural Moroccan girls, some as young as age 6, are recruited for domestic work in private urban homes, a practice known locally as petites bonnes. Unaccompanied minors from Cameroon, Côte d'Ivoire, Democratic Republic of the Congo, Nigeria, and Senegal are trafficked to Morocco for this same purpose. (14,19,21) Some of these girls are subjected to physical and verbal abuse, excessive working hours, and denied access to educational opportunities by their employers. (14,16,19,21) Furthermore, some employers confiscate the identity papers of child domestic workers. (19,21) In addition, exploitation in domestic work makes children vulnerable to child sex trafficking in Morocco, neighboring countries such as Spain, and the Persian Gulf. (22)

Children in Morocco, particularly in rural areas, face barriers to education, including the cost of school materials, poor facilities, and insufficiently qualified teachers. (2) Moreover, some children must reside in boarding houses to attend school because the commute is too far. Some families are reluctant to allow children—particularly girls—to make the daily journey for fear of exposure to risks associated with traveling to school. (2) Other barriers to education include the lack of free and safe transportation, and fees associated with preschool and after-school activities. In addition, some children who lack documentation are unable to enroll in school. (2)

II. LEGAL FRAMEWORK FOR CHILD LABOR

Morocco has ratified all key international conventions concerning child labor (Table 3).

Table 3. Ratification of International Conventions on Child Labor

Convention	Ratification
 ILO C. 138, Minimum Age	✓
ILO C. 182, Worst Forms of Child Labor	✓
 UN CRC	✓
UN CRC Optional Protocol on Armed Conflict	✓
UN CRC Optional Protocol on the Sale of Children, Child Prostitution and Child Pornography	✓
 Palermo Protocol on Trafficking in Persons	✓

The government has established laws and regulations related to child labor (Table 4). However, gaps exist in Morocco's legal framework to adequately protect children from the worst forms of child labor, including prohibiting the use of children in illicit activities.

Table 4. Laws and Regulations on Child Labor

Standard	Meets International Standards	Age	Legislation
Minimum Age for Work	No	15	Article 143 of the Labor Code (23)
Minimum Age for Hazardous Work	Yes	18	Article 147 of the Labor Code (23)
Identification of Hazardous Occupations or Activities Prohibited for Children	Yes		Hazardous Child Labor List, Decree No. 2-10-183; Article 181 of the Labor Code (23,24)
Prohibition of Forced Labor	No		Articles 10 and 12 of the Labor Code; Article 467-2 of the Penal Code (23,25)
Prohibition of Child Trafficking	Yes		Articles 448.1, 448.4–448.5 of the Law on Trafficking in Human Beings (26)
Prohibition of Commercial Sexual Exploitation of Children	No		Article 503-2 of the Penal Code (25)
Prohibition of Using Children in Illicit Activities	No		Article 467-2 of the Penal Code (25)
Minimum Age for Voluntary State Military Recruitment	Yes	19	Article 4 of Royal Decree of 9 June 1966 (27)

Standard	Meets International Standards	Age	Legislation
Prohibition of Compulsory Recruitment of Children by (State) Military	Yes		Article 4 of Law No. 44-18 (28)
Prohibition of Military Recruitment by Non-state Armed Groups	Yes		Articles 448.1 and 448.4 of the Law on Trafficking in Human Beings (26)
Compulsory Education Age	Yes	15	Article I of Law No. 04-00 (29)
Free Public Education	Yes		Article I of Law No. 04-00 (29)

The labor law does not apply to children who work in the traditional artisan or handicraft sectors for family businesses with fewer than five employees. (23)

The types of hazardous work prohibited for children do not cover domestic work, in which there is evidence that girls are exposed to physical and psychological abuse and are working for long hours, during the night, and are unreasonably confined to the premises of the employer. (24) The Penal Code only criminalizes the forced labor of children under 15 years old. (25) Moroccan law does not prohibit the use, procuring, or offering of children for the production or trafficking of drugs. (26,31,34)

III. ENFORCEMENT OF LAWS ON CHILD LABOR

The government has established institutional mechanisms for the enforcement of laws and regulations on child labor (Table 5). However, gaps exist within the operations of enforcement agencies that may hinder adequate enforcement of child labor laws.

Table 5. Agencies Responsible for Child Labor Law Enforcement

Organization/Agency	Role
Ministry of Labor and Vocational Integration (MOLVI)	Enforces child labor laws with its 54 inspection offices throughout the country. (2) During the reporting period, MOLVI launched a new roadmap for fighting child labor that seeks to: improve the Domestic Work Law 19.12 and make benefits available from the National Social Security Fund to child domestic workers; improve labor inspection at the 54 designated centers across the country by hiring specialists to enhance the oversight of inspections and the methodology behind interventions; strengthen partnerships with civil society organizations; and increase international cooperation on child labor. (2)
Ministry of the Interior	Enforces prohibitions on trafficking in persons, prostitution, and other exploitative crimes involving minors, as established in the Penal Code, through the General Directorate of National Security. (2,15,18,30)
General Prosecutor	Prosecutes criminal offenses against children and processes cases involving women and children in the court system. (2,18,30,35) Serves independently as a judiciary body separate from the Ministry of Justice. (2)

Labor Law Enforcement

In 2020, labor law enforcement agencies in Morocco took actions to combat child labor (Table 6). However, gaps exist within the authority of the Ministry of Labor and Vocational Integration (MOLVI) that may hinder adequate labor law enforcement, including the authority to assess penalties.

Table 6. Labor Law Enforcement Efforts Related to Child Labor

Labor inspectors take note of labor code infractions and refer violations to the public prosecutor's office. (2) In 2020, the government provided specialized training to 22 new inspectors hired in 2019. (2) In addition to labor inspectors, the government reported an additional 129 agricultural inspectors who may refer cases of child labor in agriculture. (2) However, government officials report that funding for the labor inspectorate is insufficient and prevents the inspectorate from fully discharging its duties. (2) Although Morocco employs 282 labor inspectors, the number of labor inspectors is likely insufficient for the size of Morocco's workforce, which includes more than 10 million workers. (38) According to the ILO's technical advice of a ratio approaching 1 inspector for every 15,000 workers in industrializing economies, Morocco would employ about 666 inspectors. (38,39)

In 2020, 159 children under the age of 15, and 464 children between the ages of 15 and 18, were removed from worksites considered dangerous by inspectors. (2) However, the official procedures involved in processing child labor violations require the participation of several agencies for each case, which places considerable administrative burdens on labor inspectors. Additionally, the penalties for employing children in hazardous work are insufficient to act as a deterrent. (2,36,40,41) Despite regulations to inform agencies on implementing the Law on Setting Up Employment Conditions of Domestic Workers in 2016, there remain enforcement issues, such as the lack of inspection of closed private residences, in which many child domestic workers are employed. (30–32)

Criminal Law Enforcement

In 2020, criminal law enforcement agencies in Morocco took actions to combat child labor (Table 7). However, gaps exist within the operations of the criminal enforcement agencies that may hinder adequate criminal law enforcement, including the publication of criminal law enforcement data.

Table 7. Criminal Law Enforcement Efforts Related to Child Labor

Overview of Criminal Law Enforcement	2019	2020
Initial Training for New Criminal Investigators	Yes (36)	Yes (2)
Training on New Laws Related to the Worst Forms of Child Labor	N/A (36)	N/A (2)
Refresher Courses Provided	Yes (36)	Yes (2)
Number of Investigations	154 (36)	Unknown (2)
Number of Violations Found	Unknown (32)	Unknown (2)
Number of Prosecutions Initiated	170 (36)	22 (2)
Number of Convictions	176 (36)	Unknown (2)
Imposed Penalties for Violations Related to the Worst Forms of Child Labor	Unknown (36)	Unknown (2)
Reciprocal Referral Mechanism Exists Between Criminal Authorities and Social Services	Yes (36)	Yes (2)

Criminal authorities refer victims to appropriate social services through coordination with NGOs and with the government's 54 dedicated child labor points of contact. (30,36) In 2020, the General Directorate of National Security carried out a 30-hour training session at the national police headquarters on protecting children's rights, including psychological aid to children, investigations and forensics related to child victims, and legal ways to prevent violence against children. (2)

The government did not provide information on the number of investigations, violations found, or number of convictions. (2)

IV. COORDINATION OF GOVERNMENT EFFORTS ON CHILD LABOR

The government has established mechanisms to coordinate its efforts to address child labor (Table 8).

Table 8. Key Mechanisms to Coordinate Government Efforts on Child Labor

Coordinating Body	Role & Description
Technical Committee Under the Special Ministerial Commission for Children for the Protection and Improvement of Childhood	Ensures inter-sectoral coordination and monitoring for implementing international conventions on children's issues through a committee of 25 government bodies, chaired by the Head of the Government of Morocco. Establishes strategies and mechanisms to implement national policies and plans for child protection and coordinates the management of efforts at the local and regional levels. (2,34) The committee met regularly in 2020. (2)
Inter-Ministerial Committee for Combating Trafficking in Persons	Coordinates the government's approach to trafficking in persons on an inter-ministerial level. Conducts training sessions for members of the security services. (3) Chaired by the Head of the Government of Morocco and led by the Ministry of Justice, with representation from civil society. (2) Established in May 2019. (2,3,42)

V. GOVERNMENT POLICIES ON CHILD LABOR

The government has established policies that are consistent with relevant international standards on child labor (Table 9).

Table 9. Key Policies Related to Child Labor

Policy	Description
Ministry of Solidarity, Social Development, Equality and the Family Integrated Public Policy on the Protection of Children in Morocco	Promotes an interdisciplinary approach to respond to the exploitation of children and other issues. (1,9,15,43,44) In 2020, the government enacted programs to pilot a child protection network and assess the feasibility of 10 additional child welfare centers. (2)

In 2020, Morocco became a Pathfinder country under Alliance 8.7, which calls for the eradication of child labor by 2025, and forced labor, modern slavery, and human trafficking by 2030. (2)

VI. SOCIAL PROGRAMS TO ADDRESS CHILD LABOR

In 2020, the government funded and participated in programs that include the goal of eliminating or preventing child labor (Table 10). However, gaps exist in these social programs, including the adequacy of efforts to address the problem in all sectors.

Table 10. Key Social Programs to Address Child Labor

Program	Description
Social Cohesion Support Fund†	Programs that aim to improve access to education. Includes the Ministry of Solidarity, Social Development, Equality and the Family (MSWFSD)-funded Tayssir Conditional Cash Transfer Program that provides direct cash transfers to qualifying families whose children meet school attendance criteria. In 2020, over two million students from low-income families were participants in the Tayssir program. (2) In addition, in 2020, 13,221 children with disabilities received education assistance. (2)
Government-Funded Shelters and Centers†	MSWFSD's Entraide Nationale agency manages three types of shelter and support centers—Child Protection Units, Social Assistance Centers, and Orientation and Accompaniment Centers for People with Disabilities—to provide services to child victims of violence, street children, migrant children and refugees, and those with disabilities. (31,32,35,36,45,46) Other types of shelters and service centers include student dormitories and training and integration programs for vulnerable children. (31,32,35,45) Research was unable to determine what actions were taken by these centers during the reporting period.

MODERATE ADVANCEMENT

Program	Description
Government-Funded Project†	Projects that aim to assist vulnerable children. Include: After-School Program for a Second Chance, which provides students with after-school educational assistance as part of non-formal education program; Mouwakaba, a MSWFSD-funded project that assists nearly 2,700 at-risk youth in 6 cities with vocational training; and "Cities without Street Children," which provides assistance to homeless children in Casablanca and Méknès. Active in 2020. (2)
Measurement, Awareness-Raising, and Policy Engagement Project on Child Labor and Forced Labor (MAPI6)	USDOL-funded project implemented by the ILO to conduct research and develop new survey methodologies, improve awareness, strengthen policies and government capacity, and promote partnerships to combat child labor and forced labor. In Morocco, $362,500 was allocated for activities to support the enforcement of the 2016 Law on Setting Up Employment Conditions of Domestic Workers, which protects children from hazardous domestic work. (2,47) In January and February of 2020, the government conducted a training session for 36 partner Civil Society Organizations (CSOs) and 77 participants on combating child domestic labor. (2) Additional information is available on the USDOL website .

† Program is funded by the Government of Morocco.

‡ The government had other social programs that may have included the goal of eliminating or preventing child labor. (1,2,45)

Although the government has programs that target child labor, the scope of these programs is insufficient to fully address the extent of the problem, including for children engaged in forced domestic work. (9,31,35,36)

VII. SUGGESTED GOVERNMENT ACTIONS TO ELIMINATE CHILD LABOR

Based on the reporting above, suggested actions are identified that would advance the elimination of child labor in Morocco (Table 11).

Table 11. Suggested Government Actions to Eliminate Child Labor

Area	Suggested Action	Year(s) Suggested
Legal Framework	Ensure that all children age 15 and under are protected by law, including children who work for artisan and handicraft businesses that regularly employ hired workers or produce goods for non-local consumption.	2009 – 2020
	Ensure that the hazardous occupations and activities prohibited for children are comprehensive and includes domestic work, in which physical and emotional abuse is known to occur.	2016 – 2020
	Criminalize the use, procuring, and offering of children for the production and trafficking of drugs.	2015 – 2020
	Ensure that forced labor of children over age 15 is criminalized.	2019 – 2020
	Ensure that the law criminally prohibits the use, procuring, and offering of a child for prostitution.	2019 – 2020
Enforcement	Ensure that inspectors inspect in all sectors in which children work, including households.	2017 – 2020
	Increase the number of labor inspectors responsible for enforcing laws related to child labor to meet the ILO's technical advice and ensure that they have sufficient resources.	2012 – 2020
	Publish information on labor law enforcement efforts, including the amount of labor inspectorate funding, penalties imposed, and penalties collected.	2015 – 2020
	Reduce administrative burdens and streamline child labor enforcement procedures among government agencies.	2013 – 2020
	Increase penalties for employers who use children in hazardous work to be an effective deterrent.	2012 – 2020
	Publish information on criminal enforcement efforts, including the number of investigations, violations found, and number of convictions.	2012 – 2020
Social Programs	Ensure programs address barriers to education such as safety in schools, transportation, the cost of school supplies, and lack of documentation.	2013 – 2020
	Expand existing programs to address the full scope of the child labor problem, including in forced domestic work.	2013 – 2020
	Collect and publish information, including microdata from the 2017 survey, on the extent and nature of child labor to inform policies and programs, including in agriculture, industry, and services.	2016 – 2020

In 2020, Mozambique made moderate advancement in efforts to eliminate the worst forms of child labor. The government passed a new 2020–2024 Five Year Plan, which emphasizes eliminating child labor, and published the number of labor inspectors for the first time since 2017. The government also enacted a new Penal Code, which includes prohibitions on human trafficking, child prostitution, and the use of children in pornography. In addition, Provincial and District National Reference Groups were trained on human trafficking laws, the identification and protection of victims, prevention of unsafe child migration and on how to report cases of human trafficking. However, children in Mozambique are subjected to the worst forms of child labor, including in forced domestic work, sometimes as a result of human trafficking. Children also engage in dangerous tasks in the production of tobacco. In addition, the established minimum age for work is not in compliance with international labor standards because it does not extend to informal employment. Lastly, existing programs are insufficient to fully address the extent of the child labor problem in Mozambique.

I. PREVALENCE AND SECTORAL DISTRIBUTION OF CHILD LABOR

Children in Mozambique are subjected to the worst forms of child labor, including in forced domestic work. (1) Children also engage in dangerous tasks in the production of tobacco. (2) Table 1 provides key indicators on children's work and education in Mozambique.

Table 1. Statistics on Children's Work and Education

Children	Age	Percent
Working (% and population)	5 to 14	22.5 (1,526,560)
Attending School (%)	5 to 14	69.5
Combining Work and School (%)	7 to 14	22.4
Primary Completion Rate (%)		54.7

Source for primary completion rate: Data from 2019, published by UNESCO Institute for Statistics, 2021. (3)

Source for all other data: International Labor Organization's analysis of statistics from Multiple Indicator Cluster Survey 3 (MICS 3), 2008. (4)

Based on a review of available information, Table 2 provides an overview of children's work by sector and activity.

Table 2. Overview of Children's Work by Sector and Activity

Sector/Industry	Activity
Agriculture	Production of coconuts, cotton,† sugarcane,† tea, tobacco,† and tomatoes (2,5)
	Fishing,† including preparing nets (2,6,7)
	Forestry,† activities unknown (2,6)
	Herding livestock, including cattle (2)
	Hunting, including small and wild animals (2,5)
Industry	Mining,† including gold and gemstones† (2,6,8,9)
	Construction,† including breaking stone† (2,6)
Services	Domestic work,† including childcare† (2,6,9)
	Street work, including car washing† and street vending (2,9,10)
Categorical Worst Forms of Child Labor‡	Commercial sexual exploitation, including prostitution, each sometimes as a result of human trafficking (1,2,6,11)
	Forced labor in agriculture, domestic work, mining, and vending, each sometimes as a result of human trafficking (1)
	Use in illicit activities, including drug trafficking, stealing, and assisting poachers in the illegal poaching industry (2)

† Determined by national law or regulation as hazardous and, as such, relevant to Article 3(d) of ILO C. 182.

‡ Child labor understood as the worst forms of child labor per se under Article 3(a)–(c) of ILO C. 182.

Mozambique

MODERATE ADVANCEMENT

Mozambican children, lured from rural areas with promises of work and educational opportunities, are subjected to forced domestic work and commercial sexual exploitation in urban areas in Mozambique and South Africa. Research indicates that Mozambican children are also trafficked to South Africa for forced labor in agriculture, mining, and street vending. (1,6,12) Research found that children in larger cities and along transit corridors are at risk of commercial sexual exploitation. During the reporting period the government did not publish any new data on child labor or the worst forms of child labor. (6) Research indicates that a U.S.-designated terrorist group in northern Mozambique used children as soldiers, cooks, and laborers. (7,13)

Although primary education is free through grade nine, families must provide school supplies and uniforms. (6,14) Barriers to education for children include lack of schools, classroom space, and trained teachers. Many students, particularly in rural areas, also face difficulties traveling long distances to get to school. (15,16) In addition, physical and sexual abuse is common in schools. Research found that some male teachers coerce female students into sex. (17) The government estimates that only 49 percent of children complete their primary education. A state of emergency was declared in March due to the COVID-19 pandemic, resulting in the suspension of in-person learning and a shift to online learning, creating barriers for many children due to a lack of access to electricity, computers, or the Internet. (6,7) In-person instruction resumed in November in stages, with older students returning in the initial phase. (6) In 2020, more than 500,000 people were displaced due to increased terrorist-related violence in Cabo Delgado Province, further increasing education access barriers for some children due to a lack of schools in displaced communities. (6,7) Research indicates that, as a result of terrorist attacks, at least 626 schools have been destroyed in the province. (7)

II. LEGAL FRAMEWORK FOR CHILD LABOR

Mozambique has ratified all key international conventions concerning child labor (Table 3).

Table 3. Ratification of International Conventions on Child Labor

Convention	Ratification
 ILO C. 138, Minimum Age	✓
ILO C. 182, Worst Forms of Child Labor	✓
 UN CRC	✓
UN CRC Optional Protocol on Armed Conflict	✓
UN CRC Optional Protocol on the Sale of Children, Child Prostitution and Child Pornography	✓
 Palermo Protocol on Trafficking in Persons	✓

The government has established laws and regulations related to child labor (Table 4). However, gaps exist in Mozambique's legal framework to adequately protect children from the worst forms of child labor, including the minimum age for work.

Table 4. Laws and Regulations on Child Labor

Standard	Meets International Standards	Age	Legislation
Minimum Age for Work	No	15	Article 26 of the Labor Law; Article 4 of the Regulations on Domestic Work (18,19)
Minimum Age for Hazardous Work	Yes	18	Article 23 of the Labor Law (19)
Identification of Hazardous Occupations or Activities Prohibited for Children	Yes	18	Hazardous Work List (20)

Standard	Meets International Standards	Age	Legislation
Prohibition of Forced Labor	Yes		Articles 5 and 10–11 of the Trafficking in Persons Law; Articles 196 and 198 of the Penal Code (21,22)
Prohibition of Child Trafficking	Yes		Articles 5 and 10–11 of the Trafficking in Persons Law (21)
Prohibition of Commercial Sexual Exploitation of Children	Yes		Articles 5 and 10–11 of the Trafficking in Persons Law; Articles 226–227 of the Penal Code (21,22)
Prohibition of Using Children in Illicit Activities	Yes		Articles 33 and 40 of the Law on Drugs (23)
Minimum Age for Voluntary State Military Recruitment	Yes	18	Articles 2 and 23 of the Law on Military Service (24)
Prohibition of Compulsory Recruitment of Children by (State) Military	Yes		Article 2 of the Law on Military Service (24)
Prohibition of Military Recruitment by Non-state Armed Groups	Yes		Articles 5 and 10 of the Trafficking in Persons Law (21)
Compulsory Education Age	Yes	15‡	Article 41 of the Law of Basic Child Protection; Article 7 of the Law on the National System of Education (25,26)
Free Public Education	Yes		Article 41 of the Law of Basic Child Protection; Article 7 of the Law on the National System of Education (25,26)

‡ Age calculated based on available information (25,26)

In 2020, the government enacted a new Penal Code (Law n. 24/2019), which includes prohibitions on child trafficking for the purposes of prostitution, use in pornography, and forced labor. (6,12,27) The new Penal Code also prohibits the exploitation of minors for prostitution and pornography, carrying heavier penalties for equivalent crimes involving adults. (12) The government continued to work with an international organization to review draft amendments to bring the 2008 anti-trafficking law in line with international standards. However, draft amendments were awaiting approval by various stakeholders for the second consecutive reporting period. (7) The updated legislation is expected to be considered by the Parliament in 2021. (12)

The Regulations on Domestic Work allow children ages 12 to 15 to perform domestic work with the permission of their legal guardian. (18) The Labor Law also states that children ages 12 to 15 may work under certain conditions defined by the Council of Ministers. (19) The minimum age of 12 for light work is not in compliance with international standards. (28,29) The government continues to accept public comments on a revision (drafted in 2018) to the country's Labor Law that would eliminate the exception for children as young as 12 to work, and which would raise the minimum working age to 15. (6,7,30,31)

The Labor Law's minimum age protections do not apply to children working outside of formal employment relationships. The Ministry of Labor, Employment, and Social Security (MITESS), in collaboration with civil society, has reportedly developed new regulations to protect children working in the informal sector; however, the government has not reported on the implementation of these regulations. (19,26,29,32)

III. ENFORCEMENT OF LAWS ON CHILD LABOR

The government has established institutional mechanisms for the enforcement of laws and regulations on child labor (Table 5). However, gaps exist within the operations of enforcement agencies that may hinder adequate enforcement of their child labor laws.

Mozambique

MODERATE ADVANCEMENT

Table 5. Agencies Responsible for Child Labor Law Enforcement

Organization/Agency	Role
Ministry of Labor, Employment, and Social Security (MITESS)	Enforces child labor laws and regulations. The labor inspectorate works with the National Police Force to enforce criminal law. (6,14) Monitors implementation of the National Action Plan to Combat the Worst Forms of Child Labor. (6,14,33)
Ministry of Industry and Trade's General Inspectorate of Economic Activities	Enforces child labor laws and regulations related to business activities. (6,14)
National Police Force	Enforces all criminal laws, including those related to the worst forms of child labor. Through its seven-person National Criminal Investigation Service, located within the Ministry of the Interior, investigates and refers cases of human trafficking and violence against women and children to the Attorney General's Office. (6,14)
Attorney General's Office	Coordinates the government's efforts against human trafficking and child labor. (6,14)

Labor Law Enforcement

In 2020, labor law enforcement agencies in Mozambique took actions to combat child labor (Table 6). However, gaps exist within the operations of MITESS that may hinder adequate labor law enforcement, including a lack of financial resources.

Table 6. Labor Law Enforcement Efforts Related to Child Labor

During the reporting period, Mozambique had 117 labor inspectors, a figure that had not been reported since 2017. MITESS conducted child labor training for 40 of its labor inspectors during the reporting period. (6) Research indicates that the number of labor inspectors is likely insufficient for the size of Mozambique's workforce, which includes approximately 13 million workers. (14,34) According to the ILO's technical advice of a ratio approaching 1 inspector for every 40,000 workers in less developed countries, Mozambique would employ about 325 labor inspectors. (34,35) Limited financial resources and limited resources such as fuel and vehicles may also hamper the labor inspectorate's ability to enforce child labor laws. (6,14) MITESS indicated that it conducted 6,126 inspections, discovered 9,141 labor violations and issued 1,931 corresponding fines and 7,210 warnings. The Ministry did not specify how many of these violations and fines were related to child labor infractions, and did not publish funding information. (6)

MITESS officials can refer victims of child labor to either the police or social workers from the Ministry of Gender, Children, and Social Action (MGCAS) for family assessments and potential placement of these children in foster homes. (6) The government provided training for labor inspectors and social services providers regarding the increased risks of the pandemic on child labor. It provided training for the Child Help Line workers regarding the pandemic to enable them to provide better service and assistance to callers. (6) It also supported child labor and exploitation training for employers, and provided training for local community leaders on combating the worst forms of child labor. (6)

Criminal Law Enforcement

In 2020, criminal law enforcement agencies in Mozambique took actions to combat child labor (Table 7). However, gaps exist within the operations of the criminal enforcement agencies that may hinder adequate criminal law enforcement, including the absence of published criminal data related to child labor.

Table 7. Criminal Law Enforcement Efforts Related to Child Labor

Overview of Criminal Law Enforcement	2019	2020
Initial Training for New Criminal Investigators	Yes (14)	Yes (6)
Training on New Laws Related to the Worst Forms of Child Labor	Yes (14)	Yes (6)

Reciprocal Referral Mechanism Exists Between Criminal Authorities and Social Services	Yes (14)	Yes (14)

In 2020, in support of the National Action Plan to Combat the Worst Forms of Child Labor, the government conducted training for judges, prosecutors, police officers, criminal investigators, labor inspectors, NGO partners, and community leaders on the country's children rights legal framework, provided COVID-19 training to the Child Help Line, conducted outreach on World Day Against Child Labor, and produced and distributed 8,000 posters to demonstrate the dangers of child labor. The government conducted several awareness campaigns about the dangers of online recruitment, which could result in children being trafficked. (12) The government did not publish data on criminal law enforcement efforts. (6)

Criminal law enforcement officials work with MGCAS and the National Reference Group for the Protection of Children and Combating Trafficking in Persons to coordinate referrals of children to social services providers. (14) Furthermore, MGCAS has a standard operating procedure (SOP) for handling victims of domestic abuse, including human trafficking victims. This procedure incorporates an intake form used nationwide by law enforcement officials, including border officials, to collect the necessary data from victims and ensure that they receive professional care and referrals to appropriate services. (28)

IV. COORDINATION OF GOVERNMENT EFFORTS ON CHILD LABOR

The government has established mechanisms to coordinate its efforts to address child labor (Table 8).

Mozambique

MODERATE ADVANCEMENT

Table 8. Key Mechanisms to Coordinate Government Efforts on Child Labor

Coordinating Body	Role & Description
National Reference Group for the Protection of Children and Combating Trafficking in Persons	Supports efforts to prevent human trafficking, and is the main coordinating body for combating trafficking in persons (TIP). The National Reference Group, led by the Attorney General, in partnership with local leaders and NGO stakeholders, hold regular meetings to discuss child labor issues. (6, 12, 36) Provincial-level groups coordinate regional efforts to combat human trafficking. (1) During the reporting period, the government conducted or engaged in a variety of in-person activities that provided training to front-line responders and law enforcement officials. IOM reported that the number of participants in the trainings it co-led with the government were reduced due to pandemic prevention measures. (7, 12) In partnership with international organizations, the government trained provincial and district reference groups, including at least 250 officials throughout Cabo Delgado, Manica, Nampula, Sofala, and Zambezia provinces, on the anti-trafficking legal framework, victim identification, and investigation skills. At least four trainings focused on child protection or the legal framework of child trafficking. (7) Other training focused on standard operating procedures to improve identification of TIP during pandemics, natural disasters, and armed conflicts; the legal framework for human trafficking; TIP database; and the differences between human trafficking and smuggling. (7)
National Commission on Children's Rights	Oversees and reports on children's rights in Mozambique to the African Charter and other international bodies, and performs consultations and deliberations on national action plans and legislation. Led by the Ministry of Gender, Children, and Social Action (MGCAS). (6) Research indicates that while the National Commission on Children's Rights was active during the reporting period, research could not find activities that occurred. (7)
Ministry of the Interior's Women and Children's Victim Assistance Units	Provide services to children who have been victims of crimes, including human trafficking. Implement a government-funded program that includes 22 victim assistance units, which provide temporary shelter, food, limited counseling, and monitoring following reintegration, and operate countrywide through facilities in more than 215 police stations. (1) The Ministry of the Interior's Women and Children's Victim Assistance Units were active and provided capacity building training during the reporting period. (7)
Ministry of Gender, Children, and Social Action (MGCAS)	The Ministry is part of the government's efforts to implement the National Action Plan for the Fight Against the Worst Forms of Child Labor. (6) Operates three shelters that provide support and reintegration services for human trafficking victims, including to victims of child trafficking. (32) Research indicates that while MGCAS was active during the reporting period, research could not find activities that occurred. (7)

During the reporting period, the government cooperated with UNICEF and IOM to update the SOPs for the provincial and district reference groups. The updated SOPs focused on improving service delivery and support for repatriated and reintegrated child trafficking victims, which will also improve case monitoring. (12) The Council of Ministers monitors the government's coordination efforts in addressing child labor, and each ministry has a designated point of contact for child issues. (7) Research did not find a coordination mechanism dedicated to addressing child labor beyond the scope of human trafficking.

V. GOVERNMENT POLICIES ON CHILD LABOR

The government has established policies that are consistent with relevant international standards on child labor (Table 9).

Table 9. Key Policies Related to Child Labor

Policy	Description
National Action Plan to Combat the Worst Forms of Child Labor (2017–2022)	Aims to map 70 percent of occurrences of the worst forms of child labor by province and activity, and to withdraw 20,000 children from the worst forms of child labor and enroll them in the Basic Social Subsidy program. (33) Mandates the coordination of several key government agencies, including the Attorney General's Office and the Office for Assistance to Families and Children Victims of Violence in the Ministry of Gender, Children and Social Action, among others. The National Action Plan also created a multi-sector group comprising representatives from the government, civil society, unions, and employers in the formal and informal sectors to collaborate on issues identified in the plan. (6) In order to implement the National Action Plan to Combat the Worst Forms of Child Labor during the reporting period, the government conducted training on the children rights legal framework, provided COVID-19 training to the Child Help Line, conducted outreach, and produced and distributed posters to demonstrate the dangers of child labor. (7)
2020–2024 Five Year Plan†	The government's recurring five-year plan, which includes goals to implement the policies related to child labor. Under Priority One and Strategic Objective Four, the Plan stresses "preventing and combating violence against children, including sexual abuse, forced marriages, kidnappings, and the trafficking and exploitation of child labor." (6, 37)

† Policy was approved during the reporting period.

‡ The government had other policies that may have addressed child labor issues or had an impact on child labor. (39)

While a National Action Plan to Combat Trafficking in Persons was drafted in 2019, it has not yet been approved. (7, 12) The current National Action Plan for the Fight against the Worst Forms of Child Labor addresses geographic regions of concern (Tete, Manica, Maputo Province, and Maputo City), underlying reasons for child labor, and principal forms of child labor (mining, domestic employment, agricultural). (6)

VI. SOCIAL PROGRAMS TO ADDRESS CHILD LABOR

In 2020, the government funded and participated in programs that include the goal of eliminating or preventing child labor (Table 10). However, gaps exist in these social programs, including adequacy to address the problem in all sectors.

Table 10. Key Social Programs to Address Child Labor

Program	Description
Basic Social Subsidy Program†	Government- and donor-funded program that provides financial subsidies to orphaned children living in poor and vulnerable households and child heads of households. Aims to improve secondary school attendance and reach more than 3.3 million direct program participants by 2024. (40,41) Research was unable to determine whether activities were undertaken to implement the Basic Social Subsidy Program during the reporting period.
Programs for Street Children‡	Government and civil society organizations operate 176 shelters that provide education, occupational training activities, and health and psychosocial care for street children. (42) Research was unable to determine whether activities were undertaken to implement the Programs for Street Children during the reporting period.
Child Talk Line (Linha Fala Criança)	An NGO-funded program that works with the government to run a hotline to receive complaints of child abuse, including those related to child labor and sexual exploitation. (6) During the reporting year, the line received 141,188 complaints, of which 43 were potentially related to child labor, and referred them to appropriate service providers. (7) During the reporting year, the Child Talk Line established an office in Manica Province in central Mozambique, expanding its ability to follow up on cases outside of Maputo and to better respond to callers in local languages in the central provinces. (6)
Memorandum of Understanding to Combat Child Labor in Tobacco Growing (2018–2021)	$1.2 million, 3-year project funded by the Eliminating Child Labor in Tobacco Growing Foundation (ECLTG) focusing on education, awareness raising, institutional capacity building, and revision of the government's legal framework. Incorporates training for law enforcement officials. (43-45) During the reporting period, MITESS partnered with ECLTG to produce and disseminate educational materials to at-risk communities regarding preventing child labor and to conduct train-the-trainers and local-leaders training. (6)
Internet Watch Foundation Website	Internet portal, established by the government, in collaboration with Internet Watch Foundation, which receives anonymous reports on suspected cases of online commercial sexual exploitation of children, including in the production of pornography. (46-48) Research indicates that while the Internet Watch Foundation Website for Mozambique was active during the reporting period, research could not find activities that occurred. (7)

† Program is funded by the Government of Mozambique.

‡ The government had other social programs that may have included the goal of eliminating or preventing child labor. (49)

The government coordinated and facilitated a media outreach campaign to commemorate World Day Against Child Labor through the radio and television during the reporting period. (6) Although a draft report on the analysis of national child labor data from the Integrated Household Survey was completed in 2017, the government has yet to publish the study's findings. (50) In addition, research found no evidence that the government has carried out programs to assist children engaged in domestic work, and the scope of existing programs is insufficient to fully address the extent of the child labor problem.

VII. SUGGESTED GOVERNMENT ACTIONS TO ELIMINATE CHILD LABOR

Based on the reporting above, suggested actions are identified that would advance the elimination of child labor in Mozambique (Table 11).

Mozambique

MODERATE ADVANCEMENT

Table 11. Suggested Government Actions to Eliminate Child Labor

Area	Suggested Action	Year(s) Suggested
Legal Framework	Ensure that all children are protected under the law, including children working outside of formal employment relationships.	2015 – 2020
	Ensure that the minimum age for light work is in compliance with international labor standards.	2018 – 2020
Enforcement	Publish all data on labor law enforcement efforts, including the labor inspectorate's funding, number and type of labor inspections conducted, child labor violations found, and number of child labor penalties imposed and collected.	2009 – 2020
	Allocate sufficient resources for law enforcement agencies, including by increasing the number of labor inspectors to provide adequate coverage of the workforce, as per ILO technical advice.	2009 – 2020
	Provide labor inspectors with adequate training and financial resources and fuel and vehicles to ensure their capacity to enforce child labor laws.	2009 – 2020
	Disaggregate labor law enforcement data to publish clear data about child labor in all its forms.	2020
	Publish data on criminal law enforcement efforts, such as the number of investigations, violations found, prosecutions initiated, and convictions secured, and whether penalties for violations related to the worst forms of child labor were imposed.	2009 – 2020
Coordination	Establish coordinating mechanisms to combat all worst forms of child labor.	2010 – 2020
	Ensure all coordinating bodies publish activities during the reporting period.	2020
Government Policies	Ensure that the government publishes yearly data on child labor and the worst forms of child labor.	2020
	Publish activities undertaken to implement the National Action Plan to Combat the Worst Forms of Child Labor during the reporting period.	2020
Social Programs	Take measures to ensure that all children have access to education by providing supplies, uniforms, and an adequate number of schools, classroom space, and trained teachers. Address barriers for children from rural areas. Take preventative steps to protect children from physical and sexual abuse in schools.	2010 – 2020
	Publish activities undertaken to implement the Basic Social Subsidy Program and Programs for Street Children during the reporting period.	2018 – 2020
	Publish the results of the child labor study and use the findings to inform policies and programs.	2015 – 2020
	Institute programs to address child labor in domestic work, and expand existing programs to address the scope of the child labor problem.	2010 – 2020

- 50 ILO-IPEC. Global Action Program on Child Labor Issues. October 2016: Technical Progress Report. Source on file.

In 2020, Namibia made moderate advancement in efforts to eliminate the worst forms of child labor. Namibia ratified International Labor Organization Convention 189, the Domestic Workers Convention, which reaffirms the government's commitment to eliminate child labor in domestic work. The government also expanded its school feeding program to provide take-home food rations for vulnerable households during the COVID-19 pandemic. In addition, criminal law enforcement officials participated in training on the implementation of the Child Care and Protection Act to strengthen responses to child victims of the worst forms of child labor and other forms of exploitation. However, children in Namibia are subjected to the worst forms of child labor, including in commercial sexual exploitation, sometimes as a result of human trafficking. Children also engage in domestic work and street work. Prevention and elimination of child labor are not integrated into key national policies. In addition, social programs do not address child labor in agriculture and domestic work.

I. PREVALENCE AND SECTORAL DISTRIBUTION OF CHILD LABOR

Children in Namibia are subjected to the worst forms of child labor, including in commercial sexual exploitation, sometimes as a result of human trafficking. Children also engage in domestic work and street work. (1,2) Table 1 provides key indicators on children's work and education in Namibia. Data on some of these indicators are not available from the sources used in this report.

Table 1. Statistics on Children's Work and Education

Children	Age	Percent
Working (% and population)	5 to 14	Unavailable
Attending School (%)	5 to 14	Unavailable
Combining Work and School (%)	7 to 14	Unavailable
Primary Completion Rate (%)		94.1

Source for primary completion rate: Data from 2018, published by UNESCO Institute for Statistics, 2021. (3)

Based on a review of available information, Table 2 provides an overview of children's work by sector and activity.

Table 2. Overview of Children's Work by Sector and Activity

Sector/Industry	Activity
Agriculture	Working on farms, including harvesting millet (4-6)
Services	Domestic work (1,6-11)
	Street work, including begging and selling candies, fruits, and small goods (10,12-14)
Categorical Worst Forms of Child Labor‡	Commercial sexual exploitation, including in the production of pornography, sometimes as a result of human trafficking (2,4,10,11,15)
	Use in illicit activities, including organized begging and selling of drugs (1,10,16)
	Forced labor in agriculture, fishing, and domestic work, each sometimes as a result of human trafficking (2,15,17)

‡ Child labor understood as the worst forms of child labor per se under Article 3(a)–(c) of ILO C. 182.

The government has not collected and published data on child labor, including its worst forms, to inform policies and social programs. (14) An extended regional drought and economic downturn in Namibia have likely affected children's vulnerability to child labor, including its worst forms. Children from rural areas move to urban centers, such as Windhoek, in pursuit of supplemental income for their families. (1) Sources of income include work in domestic service and vending. (1) Some of these children engage in selling drugs, organized begging, and commercial sexual exploitation. (4,10,13) Commercial sexual exploitation most commonly involves girls and occurs in cities and transit corridors; girls and boys increasingly are subjected to Internet-based forms of sexual exploitation, including use in the production of pornography. (1,4,10,18) Children are trafficked within Namibia and from neighboring countries, such as Angola, Zambia, Zimbabwe, and the Democratic Republic of the Congo, for forced labor in agriculture, domestic work, and commercial sexual exploitation. (1,11,19) It is a common practice for parents to place their children in the care of distant relatives for expanded education opportunities; in some cases, these children are subjected to forced labor. (2) Children of the San ethnic group are particularly vulnerable to forced labor on farms and in homes. (2,19)

Both primary and secondary education are free by law; however, long distances to schools, particularly in rural and remote locations, may deter some children from attending school and increase their vulnerability to child labor. (20-22) Children orphaned by the HIV/AIDS epidemic and other causes sometimes become heads of households, which requires them to leave school to find work. (20,23)

II. LEGAL FRAMEWORK FOR CHILD LABOR

Namibia has ratified all key international conventions concerning child labor (Table 3).

Table 3. Ratification of International Conventions on Child Labor

Convention	Ratification
 ILO C. 138, Minimum Age	✓
ILO C. 182, Worst Forms of Child Labor	✓
 UN CRC	✓
UN CRC Optional Protocol on Armed Conflict	✓
UN CRC Optional Protocol on the Sale of Children, Child Prostitution and Child Pornography	✓
 Palermo Protocol on Trafficking in Persons	✓

In 2020, Namibia ratified the Domestic Workers Convention (ILO C. 189). Under this instrument, Namibia reaffirms commitments to the effective abolition of child labor in domestic work, including maintaining a minimum age for domestic work that is in line with the Minimum Age Convention (ILO C.138) and the Worst Forms of Child Labor Convention (ILO C.182).

The government has established laws and regulations related to child labor (Table 4). However, gaps exist in Namibia's legal framework to adequately protect children from the worst forms of child labor, including the lack of a hazardous work list.

Table 4. Laws and Regulations on Child Labor

Standard	Meets International Standards	Age	Legislation
Minimum Age for Work	Yes	14	Chapter 2, Article 3(2) of the Labor Act (24)
Minimum Age for Hazardous Work	Yes	18	Chapter 2, Article 3(4) of the Labor Act; Article 2(2) of the Labor Act (Regulations Related to Domestic Work); Article 15(2) of the Constitution (24-26)
Identification of Hazardous Occupations or Activities Prohibited for Children	Yes		Chapter 2, Articles 3(3)(d) and 3(4) of the Labor Act (24)
Prohibition of Forced Labor	Yes		Chapter 2, Article 4 of the Labor Act; Article 9 of the Constitution; Articles 202 and 234 of the Child Care and Protection Act; Section 15 of the Prevention of Organized Crime Act (24,26-28)

Standard	Meets International Standards	Age	Legislation
Prohibition of Child Trafficking	Yes		Sections 202 and 234 of the Child Care and Protection Act; Section 15 of the Prevention of Organized Crime Act; Chapter 2, Article 3(2) of the Combating of Trafficking in Persons Act (27-29)
Prohibition of Commercial Sexual Exploitation of Children	Yes		Section 2 of the Combating of Immoral Practices Amendment Act; Section 234 of the Child Care and Protection Act (27,30)
Prohibition of Using Children in Illicit Activities	Yes		Section 234 of the Child Care and Protection Act (27)
Minimum Age for Voluntary State Military Recruitment	Yes	18	Section 17 of Defense Act I of 2002 (Government Notice 189 of 2010) (31)
Prohibition of Compulsory Recruitment of Children by (State) Military	N/A*
Prohibition of Military Recruitment by Non-state Armed Groups	Yes		Section 234(1)(b) of the Child Care and Protection Act (27)
Compulsory Education Age	Yes	14 ‡	Section 53 of the Promulgation of Education Act (21)
Free Public Education	Yes		Section 2 of the Education Amendment Act, 2017 (22)

* No conscription (32)

‡ Age calculated based on available information (33)

Under Namibian Law, children typically are only required to attend school until age 14 because the requirement is to attend school until the completion of seventh grade, which tends to be when children are age 14, or at the latest until children are age 16. (21) During the reporting period, the Namibian Parliament passed an updated Promulgation of Basic Education Act, which will raise the age of compulsory education up to age 18. However, the government has not yet brought the law into force. (14,34) Namibia's legal framework authorizes the institution of a light work framework for children under age 18; however, the statute does not prescribe the number of hours during which such employment may be undertaken. Therefore, under the new educational standard, the minimum age for work would be below the compulsory education age without comprehensive light work protections, which may encourage children to leave school before the completion of compulsory education. (34)

III. ENFORCEMENT OF LAWS ON CHILD LABOR

The government has established institutional mechanisms for the enforcement of laws and regulations on child labor (Table 5). However, gaps exist within the operations of enforcement agencies that may hinder adequate enforcement of their child labor laws.

Table 5. Agencies Responsible for Child Labor Law Enforcement

Organization/Agency	Role
Ministry of Labor, Industrial Relations and Employment Creation (MLIREC)	Enforces child labor laws and investigates allegations of violations, including forced labor, and cases involving human trafficking and the commercial sexual exploitation of children. Works on child labor matters with the Ministry of Home Affairs, Immigration, Safety, and Security (MHAISS); the Ministry of Gender Equality, Poverty Eradication, and Social Welfare (MGEPEWSW); the Namibia Central Intelligence Service; and the Ministry of Education. (35) Refers children removed from child labor during inspections to MGEPEWSW for placement in social services. (36)
Ministry of Home Affairs, Immigration, Safety, and Security (MHAISS)	Enforces criminal laws through the Namibian Police. Coordinates with the labor inspectorate of MLIREC to investigate criminal labor violations, including child labor. (35,37,38) Through the Namibian Police Force's 15 Gender-Based Violence Protection Units, collaborates with MGEPEWSW and MLIREC to remove children from human trafficking and commercial sexual exploitation, while providing medical and psychosocial care for survivors. (35)

Labor Law Enforcement

In 2020, labor law enforcement agencies in Namibia took actions to combat child labor (Table 6). However, gaps exist within the operations of the Ministry of Labor, Industrial Relations and Employment Creation (MLIREC) that may hinder adequate labor law enforcement, including human resource allocation.

Table 6. Labor Law Enforcement Efforts Related to Child Labor

Overview of Labor Law Enforcement	2019	2020
Labor Inspectorate Funding	$3,034,000 (20)	$2,439,225 (14)
Number of Labor Inspectors	51 (20)	52 (14)

Unannounced Inspections Conducted	Yes (20)	Yes (14)
Complaint Mechanism Exists	Yes (20)	Yes (14)
Reciprocal Referral Mechanism Exists Between Labor Authorities and Social Services	Yes (20)	Yes (14)

MLIREC conducted inspections in all regions and sectors of Namibia. (14,41) An inadequate number of labor inspectors likely hinders the inspectorate's ability to enforce laws, particularly in remote and rural areas of the country. (1) The number of labor inspectors is likely insufficient for the size of Namibia's workforce, which includes approximately 956,800 workers. According to the ILO's technical advice of a ratio approaching 1 inspector for every 15,000 workers in developing economies, Namibia would employ about 64 inspectors. (42,43)

MLIREC operates a 24-hour SMS line for labor complaints, including child labor. The SMS hotline received no child labor complaints during the reporting period. (14)

Criminal Law Enforcement

In 2020, criminal law enforcement agencies in Namibia took actions to combat child labor (Table 7). However, gaps exist within the operations of criminal enforcement agencies that may hinder adequate criminal law enforcement, including prosecution planning.

Table 7. Criminal Law Enforcement Efforts Related to Child Labor

Overview of Criminal Law Enforcement	2019	2020
Initial Training for New Criminal Investigators	No (20)	No (44)
Training on New Laws Related to the Worst Forms of Child Labor	No (20)	Yes (44)
Refresher Courses Provided	No (20)	No (44)
Number of Investigations	4 (20)	4 (44)
Number of Violations Found	4 (20)	17 (15)
Number of Prosecutions Initiated	3 (20)	1 (44)
Number of Convictions	Unknown (20)	1 (15)
Imposed Penalties for Violations Related to the Worst Forms of Child Labor	Unknown (20)	Unknown (44)
Reciprocal Referral Mechanism Exists Between Criminal Authorities and Social Services	Yes (20)	Yes (44)

In 2020, 30 police officers and trainers received training on the implementation of the 2019 Child Care and Protection Act. The government also circulated a pocket manual with content on how to respond to child victims of exploitation. (14) The Namibian Police Force operates a toll-free hotline for reporting crimes, including child trafficking. However, research could not determine whether the police received complaints related to the worst forms of child labor. (15) An NGO operates another hotline for victims of gender-based violence and child exploitation to report cases and access information about available resources and refer cases to relevant government social services providers. (15,45) Although there are 15 Gender-Based Violence Protection Units in Namibia, research finds considerable variation in the operational performance of these units; because of resource constraints, only the Windhoek-based unit is operating at full capacity, and several other units are not able to function according to their intended mandates. (1,14)

During the reporting period, Namibian police arrested and initiated a prosecution for the sexual exploitation of at least eight child victims, including use in the production of child pornography. (18,46) The trial, however, was postponed to allow for additional investigation. (47) The government also reported nine additional child victims of crimes related to forced labor or sexual exploitation. (15) However, the government does not maintain centralized statistics for regional magistrate court cases, which limits information on criminal law enforcement efforts in response to the worst forms of child labor. (20)

IV. COORDINATION OF GOVERNMENT EFFORTS ON CHILD LABOR

The government has established mechanisms to coordinate its efforts to address child labor (Table 8). However, gaps exist that hinder the effective coordination of efforts to address child labor, including inactive coordinating bodies.

Table 8. Key Mechanisms to Coordinate Government Efforts on Child Labor

Coordinating Body	Role & Description
Inter-Ministerial Committee on Child Labor	Coordinates government policies and efforts to combat child labor. Comprises officials from MLIREC, the Ministry of Education, MGEPEWSV, MHAISS, and the Office of the Ombudsman. (35,48) Research was unable to determine whether the Inter-Ministerial Committee on Child Labor was active during the reporting period. (14)
Permanent Task Force for Children	Implements and coordinates services for children at the national level. Includes key ministries, NGOs, development partners, and bilateral agencies. (35) Met on a quarterly basis in 2019 to implement the National Agenda for Children. (20) Research was unable to determine whether the Permanent Task Force for Children was active during the reporting period. (14)
Child Care and Protection Forums	Address child protection issues and coordinate services in the country at the regional and district levels. Raise community awareness of the signs of child mistreatment and available services. (49) Participants include 14 regional councils, MGEPEWSV social workers, police, teachers, government agencies, NGOs, community leaders, churches, and other local-level stakeholders. Research was unable to determine whether Child Care and Protection Forums were active during the reporting period. (14)
Trafficking in Persons National Coordinating Body	Coordinates and monitors government and non-government responses to trafficking in persons in Namibia. (19) Led by MGEPEWSV, with participation from MLIREC, MHAISS, the Ministry of Justice, the Ministry of Home Affairs and Immigration, and the Prosecutor General and Attorney General. (11) The Trafficking in Persons National Coordinating Body met twice during the reporting period to coordinate the implementation of the National Referral Mechanism and Standard Operating Procedures on human trafficking. (15)

Research indicates that key coordinating bodies related to child labor did not convene meetings in 2020 due to imposed restrictions during the COVID-19 pandemic; however, research could not determine whether other coordinating activities related to these bodies occurred. (14)

MLIREC-led joint child labor inspection teams, which coordinate child labor inspections and referrals between ministries involved in child welfare, have not been in effect since the end of 2017. (40)

V. GOVERNMENT POLICIES ON CHILD LABOR

The government has established policies related to child labor (Table 9). However, policy gaps exist that hinder efforts to address child labor, including mainstreaming child labor issues into relevant policies.

Table 9. Key Policies Related to Child Labor

Policy	Description
National Agenda for Children (2018–2022)	The primary strategy for child welfare issues. Focuses on strengthening the protection of children in need of care, including enforcement of laws protecting children from child labor. (50) Outlines procedural instructions for each ministry and stakeholder for cases of child mistreatment. (35,37,51)
National Development Plan V (2017/2018–2021/2022)	Includes goals for addressing child trafficking and protection concerns. (35,54)

† The government had other policies that may have addressed child labor issues or had an impact on child labor. (19,40,55-57)

Research was unable to determine whether activities were undertaken to implement key policies related to child labor in Namibia during the reporting period. (14) In 2020, the Namibian Government began drafting a 5-year National Plan of Action Against Trafficking in Persons to guide anti-trafficking efforts, strengthen coordination among government ministries and civil society organizations, and increase public awareness, especially in rural areas. (15)

The 2017–2022 Strategic Plan of the Ministry of Gender Equality, Poverty Eradication, and Social Welfare does not integrate child labor elimination strategies. (58) Although the Ministry's 2019–2023 National Action Plan on Gender-Based Violence coordinates national efforts against gender-based violence, including rape and sexual abuse, physical domestic abuse, and human trafficking, it does not incorporate other worst forms of child labor, such as physical abuse occurring in domestic service and commercial sexual exploitation. (57) Research indicates that some children working in domestic service are subject to physical abuse by their employers. (8,55)

VI. SOCIAL PROGRAMS TO ADDRESS CHILD LABOR

In 2020, the government funded and participated in programs that include the goal of eliminating or preventing child labor (Table 10). However, gaps exist in these social programs, including the adequacy of programs to address the full scope of the child labor problem.

Table 10. Key Social Programs to Address Child Labor

Program	Description
Social Protection Grants†	MGEPEWSW-funded grants to support vulnerable children and households. (59) Include child maintenance grants, place of safety allowances, and foster care grants. Child maintenance grants provide monthly stipends to single-parent families and are contingent upon school enrollment of all school-age children; place of safety and foster care grants provide support for people and places that provide temporary care for children. (60-62) MGEPEWSW provided grants to families during the reporting period. (14)
Shelters and Victims Services†	Government and NGO shelters that provide safe accommodation, meals, clothing, toiletries, psychosocial support, legal assistance, medical services, and access to education. (19) Registered residential childcare facilities provide services for children experiencing mistreatment and neglect. The government provides subsidies, either per child or as a percentage of operating expenses, for private shelter facilities. (11,51) Shelters and victims services received government support and provided services during the reporting period. (14)
Namibian School Feeding Program†	Government program that provides mid-morning meals to school children in all 14 regions. (35,53) In 2020, the program served 431,500 children, an increase from 377,521 during the previous year. During the COVID-19 pandemic, the government provided take-home rations for vulnerable families through the School Feeding Program. (63)
National Youth Service†	Government program that offers training in civic education, national voluntary service, and job skills to unemployed youth, some of whom have never attended school. (49) In 2020, the government allocated $2.4 million for the program, unchanged from the previous year. (14,20)
Decent Work Country Program (2018-2023)	ILO-funded program to promote decent work in Namibia, including the elimination of child labor, through employment promotion, enhanced social protection, and social dialogue and collaboration. (19,52) Included specific actions targeting child labor, such as a child labor survey. (35,37,53)

† Program is funded by the Government of Namibia.

During the reporting period, the government partnered with a local NGO to provide protective services to Namibian and foreign victims of human trafficking, which included psychological and social support, legal assistance, medical care, proper documentation for foreign victims, and educational access for child victims. (2)

The government has 15 designated residential care facilities for children, but few of these shelters are able to provide complete services. The only fully operational government shelter is located in Windhoek, so children who live in rural areas must go to the capital to receive services. (1) Although the government provided assistance and services to vulnerable children and some victims of child labor, research found no evidence of programs specifically addressing children working in agriculture or domestic work.

VII. SUGGESTED GOVERNMENT ACTIONS TO ELIMINATE CHILD LABOR

Based on the reporting above, suggested actions are identified that would advance the elimination of child labor in Namibia (Table 11).

Table 11. Suggested Government Actions to Eliminate Child Labor

Area	Suggested Action	Year(s) Suggested
Enforcement	Increase the number of labor inspectors to meet the ILO's technical advice to ensure adequate enforcement of labor laws, including in remote areas.	2019 – 2020
	Ensure that training is provided to criminal law enforcement investigators on laws related to child labor, including training for new investigators and refresher trainings.	2018 – 2020
	Publish information on the number of child labor complaints that are reported through the Namibian Police Force hotline.	2020
	Ensure that all Gender-Based Violence Protection Units have adequate resources to operate according to their intended mandates.	2018 – 2020
	Establish a mechanism to compile and publish comprehensive statistics related to labor and criminal law enforcement, including convictions for crimes related to the worst forms of child labor.	2019 – 2020
Coordination	Ensure that all coordinating bodies are able to carry out their intended mandates.	2020
	Reactivate joint child labor inspection teams to strengthen coordination between ministries that respond to cases of child labor.	2019 – 2020
Government Policies	Publish activities undertaken to implement key policies related to child labor during the reporting period.	2016 – 2020
	Integrate child labor elimination and prevention strategies into key national policies, including the Strategic Plan of the Ministry of Gender Equality and Child Welfare and the National Action Plan on Gender-Based Violence.	2019 – 2020
Social Programs	Conduct research on the prevalence of child labor to inform the development of policies and social programs.	2013 – 2020
	Enhance efforts to eliminate barriers and make education accessible for all children by expanding social support to orphaned children and taking measures to reduce long travel distances to schools.	2019 – 2020
	Institute programs or expand existing programs to address child labor in agriculture and domestic work.	2009 – 2020
	Ensure that there are adequate shelters, including in areas outside Windhoek, to meet the needs of vulnerable children.	2019 – 2020

In 2020, Nepal made moderate advancement in efforts to eliminate the worst forms of child labor. The government acceded to the Palermo Protocol to Prevent, Suppress, and Punish Trafficking in Persons, Especially Women and Children. It also published the Report on Employment Relationship Survey in the Brick Industry in Nepal, which provides information on the prevalence of child labor, forced labor, and bonded labor in the brick production sector. In addition, the government drafted an action plan for the elimination of child labor to facilitate the implementation of the Second National Master Plan on the Elimination of Child Labor, which aims to abolish all forms of child labor by 2025 and the worst forms of child labor by 2022. However, children in Nepal are subjected to the worst forms of child labor, including in commercial sexual exploitation, sometimes as a result of human trafficking. Children also engage in the production of bricks. Although the government made meaningful efforts in all relevant areas during the reporting period, it does not meet international standards for legal prohibitions against child trafficking and legal prohibitions against the use of children for illicit activities. In addition, the Department of Labor's budget, the number of labor inspectors, and available resources and training are insufficient for enforcing labor laws, including those related to child labor.

I. PREVALENCE AND SECTORAL DISTRIBUTION OF CHILD LABOR

Children in Nepal are subjected to the worst forms of child labor, including in commercial sexual exploitation, sometimes as a result of human trafficking. Children also engage in the production of bricks. (1-3) The government and the ILO are still analyzing the Nepal Labor Force Survey-III dataset to estimate child labor victim numbers. (4) Approximately 286,000 children were involved in work for pay, although the report noted that not all working children are in child labor. (4,5) The survey also incorporated the first forced labor module, and it reports that of the 34,338 individuals involved in forced labor, an estimated 17 percent are children. However, the survey does not report on all forms of child labor, including hazardous jobs. (4,5) Table 1 provides key indicators on children's work and education in Nepal. Data on some of these indicators are not available from the sources used in this report.

Table 1. Statistics on Children's Work and Education

Children	Age	Percent

Based on a review of available information, Table 2 provides an overview of children's work by sector and activity.

† Determined by national law or regulation as hazardous and, as such, relevant to Article 3(d) of ILO C. 182.

‡ Child labor understood as the worst forms of child labor per se under Article 3(a)–(c) of ILO C. 182.

Children are subjected to commercial sexual exploitation, sometimes as a result of human trafficking, both within and outside Nepal, including to India, the Middle East, Asia, and Sub-Saharan Africa. (26,28,29) Traffickers promise families work and education opportunities for their children, but instead bring them to often under-resourced and unregistered orphanages in urban centers, where the children are subjected to forced labor and forced begging on the streets. In addition, there are reports that some orphanages keep children in destitute and unsanitary conditions to attract charitable donations from foreigners. (3,25,26)

Many children in Nepal are engaged in the production of bricks, which exposes them to hazardous working conditions, including carrying heavy loads, using dangerous machinery, and working in extreme heat. (1,3,30) According to the Report on Employment Relationship Survey in the Brick Industry in Nepal, conducted by the ILO, UNICEF, and the Central Bureau of Statistics of Nepal, there are an estimated 17,738 child laborers in the brick kilns of Nepal, with 15,400 of these children engaged in hazardous work. (15,31)

Due to COVID-19 pandemic-related national lockdowns, most of the industries in which children would work remained closed. However, bonded labor in agriculture, domestic work, and in brick kilns continued to exist. (4,23,32) Furthermore, although quantitative data are unavailable, the media, civil society, and NGOs report that the pandemic led to an increase in the number of children working in agriculture and domestic work, and on the streets. (4)

Carpet factories are considered to be in the formal sector, but many of the subcontractors working in the informal sector use child labor further down the supply chain. Although NGOs believe that the number of children involved in producing carpets continued to decrease, there were no data available to verify this claim. (16)

Last year, as the government increased the number of raids in the entertainment sector, the number of children working in this sector decreased; and with an increased awareness of child labor, research found a decrease in child labor across all sectors. (16) However, due to the pandemic-related national lockdown, the entertainment sector was closed for more than 10 months and remained closed at the end of the reporting period. No prevalence data are available to determine whether pandemic-related lockdowns affected child labor in this sector. (4)

Some children, particularly girls, face barriers to accessing education due to a lack of sanitation facilities, geographic distance, costs associated with schooling, household chores, and a lack of parental support. (16,33) In Nepal, 32.4 percent of schools lack separate toilet facilities for girls, which can deter them from attending school, especially when they are menstruating. (2,34) The government has introduced free sanitary napkins in all schools across the country to encourage girls to attend their classes. (16) Barriers for attending school for school-age boys include pressure to find employment, migration to work outside Nepal, and issues with drugs and alcohol. Children with disabilities face additional barriers to accessing education, including denial of school admission. (16)

The government allows Bhutanese refugee students in grades 9–12 to attend local public schools at no cost, but enrollment remains restricted for younger children. UNHCR provides parallel free education at lower grades to refugees in the two remaining refugee camps in the country. (4,35) Most Tibetan refugees who live in the country, particularly those who arrived after 1990 or turned 16 after 1995, do not have documentation, nor do their descendant children. Even those with acknowledged refugee status have no legal rights beyond the ability to remain in the country. (35,36) Nevertheless, the government allowed NGOs to provide primary- and secondary-level schooling to Tibetans living in the country. (35) In addition, more than 700 refugees and asylum seekers from Pakistan, Burma, Afghanistan, Sri Lanka, Bangladesh, Somalia, Iran, Iraq, and the Democratic Republic of the Congo are not recognized as having the status of refugees, but the government allows UNHCR to provide some education, health, and livelihood services to them. These refugees lack legal access to public education, as well as the right to work. (3,4,35) Child refugees who cannot legally access public education and those of legal age to work but who are not authorized to do so, are more susceptible to being exploited in the worst forms of child labor.

Due to pandemic-related school closings, online learning opportunities are limited for many children who do not have access to a personal computer or Internet connection. This situation has increased the risk of children being diverted from education to child labor, especially in rural and high mountain areas, where local resources are inadequate. (4) Furthermore, as schools reopen, families with economic hardship due to the pandemic may deprioritize education to meet basic needs, which may lead children to be at an increased risk of engaging in child labor when work is available. (37)

II. LEGAL FRAMEWORK FOR CHILD LABOR

Nepal has ratified all key international conventions concerning child labor (Table 3).

Table 3. Ratification of International Conventions on Child Labor

Convention	Ratification
 ILO C. 138, Minimum Age	✓
ILO C. 182, Worst Forms of Child Labor	✓
 UN CRC	✓
UN CRC Optional Protocol on Armed Conflict	✓
UN CRC Optional Protocol on the Sale of Children, Child Prostitution and Child Pornography	✓
 Palermo Protocol on Trafficking in Persons	✓

During the reporting period, the Government of Nepal ratified the Palermo Protocol to Prevent, Suppress, and Punish Trafficking in Persons. (4)

The government has established laws and regulations related to child labor (Table 4). However, gaps exist in Nepal's legal framework to adequately protect children from the worst forms of child labor, including the prohibition of child trafficking and the prohibition of using children in illicit activities that are consistent with international standards.

Table 4. Laws and Regulations on Child Labor

Standard	Meets International Standards	Age	Legislation

MODERATE ADVANCEMENT

Standard	Meets International Standards	Age	Legislation
Identification of Hazardous Occupations or Activities Prohibited for Children	Yes		Schedule I of the Child Labor (Prohibition and Regulation) Act (38)
Prohibition of Forced Labor	Yes		Section 4 of the Bonded Labor (Prohibition) Act; Section 4 of the Child Labor (Prohibition and Regulation) Act; Sections 2–4 and 15 of the Human Trafficking and Transportation Control Act; Section 4 of the Labor Act (38-41)
Prohibition of Child Trafficking	No		Sections 3–4 and 15 of the Human Trafficking and Transportation Control Act (41)
Prohibition of Commercial Sexual Exploitation of Children	Yes		Article 66(3)(d) of the Act Relating to Children 2018; Sections 3, 4, and 15 of the Human Trafficking and Transportation Control Act; Sections 16(2) and 16(3) of the Children’s Act (41-43)
Prohibition of Using Children in Illicit Activities	No		Section 16 of the Children’s Act (43)
Minimum Age for Voluntary State Military Recruitment	Yes	18	Section 7 of the Military Service Regulation 2069 (44)
Prohibition of Compulsory Recruitment of Children by (State) Military	N/A*
Prohibition of Military Recruitment by Non-state Armed Groups	No		Article 39 of the Constitution (45)
Compulsory Education Age	Yes	14	Article 31 of the Constitution; Section 6 of the Free and Compulsory Education Act (33,45)
Free Public Education	Yes		Section 16D of the Education Act; Section 20 of the Free and Compulsory Education Act (33,45,46)

* No conscription (45,47)

The minimum age for hazardous work is not consistent with international standards because it does not prohibit children age 17 from engaging in hazardous work. (38) Furthermore, the types of hazardous work prohibited for children do not include brickmaking, a sector in which there is evidence that work involves carrying heavy loads and being exposed to hazardous substances. (15,38,48) However, Nepal's National Master Plan on Child Labor (2018–2028) has identified children working in brick kilns as targeted groups for hazardous occupation. (49)

Laws related to child trafficking are insufficient because they do not clearly criminalize recruitment, harboring, receipt, or transportation in the absence of force, fraud, or coercion. (41,50) However, with accession to the Palermo Protocol, the Government of Nepal will be required to align its legal framework for human trafficking with international standards, including broadening its definition of human trafficking and better addressing child trafficking. (4) In addition, the legal framework prohibiting the use of children in illicit activities is insufficient, because it does not prohibit the use of children in the production of drugs. (51)

Although the Constitution prohibits the recruitment of children by non-state armed groups, there is no specific legislation penalizing this practice. (33,45,47)

III. ENFORCEMENT OF LAWS ON CHILD LABOR

The government has established institutional mechanisms for the enforcement of laws and regulations on child labor (Table 5). However, gaps exist within the operations of enforcement agencies that may hinder adequate enforcement of their child labor laws.

Table 5. Agencies Responsible for Child Labor Law Enforcement

Organization/Agency	Role
Department of Labor (DOL), Ministry of Labor, Employment, and Social Security (MoLESS)	Enforces labor laws, including those involving child labor. (4)
Nepal Police, Women, Children and Senior Citizen Service Directorate	Investigates crimes involving women and children, including human trafficking. Operates under the direct supervision of the Women, Children and Senior Citizens Service Directorate in all 77 districts. (52) Assists in children's rescue, rehabilitation, and coordination for arrest of perpetrators in cases of the worst forms of child labor. In cases of hazardous child labor, coordinates with and hands over cases to DOL. (4)
Ministry of Land Reform and Management	Enforces laws that prohibit bonded labor in agriculture. (2)
Monitoring Action Committees, Ministry of Women, Children, and Senior Citizens (MWCSC)	Investigate reports of commercial sexual exploitation at the district level, including the exploitation of children in the adult entertainment sector. (24)

During the reporting period, Nepal established its first labor court to address labor-related issues under the 2017 Labor Act, including child labor issues in certain circumstances. (53)

Labor Law Enforcement

In 2020, labor law enforcement agencies in Nepal took actions to combat child labor (Table 6). However, gaps exist within the operations of the Department of Labor (DOL) that may hinder adequate labor law enforcement, including human resource allocation.

Under a new Constitutional provision and Nepal's transition to federalism, the provincial governments have been given more authority, including the task of overseeing child labor monitoring and inspection and maintaining data and documentation on inspections. (4,40) During the reporting period, the government issued the "Procedure on Establishment and Operation of Information and Records Center" for local levels, which aims to establish information centers at each local government. Once implemented, this procedure will play a key role in tracking child labor data. (55,56)

Nepal

MODERATE ADVANCEMENT

Also during the reporting period, DOL increased its budget for inspections focused specifically on child labor from $3,000 during Nepali fiscal year 2019/2020 (mid-July 2019 to mid-July 2020) to $3,400 during fiscal year 2020/2021, although both DOL officials and NGO representatives continued to report that resource insufficiency is a challenge. DOL also increased its number of labor inspections, as factories outside Kathmandu were operating and inspections were performed following pandemic health protocols. (4) According to Nepal's annual State of Children report, 79 children were rescued from child labor, including 10 children under age 10. (4) Although DOL reported that penalties were issued in 15 cases of violation of labor laws, DOL did not provide data on the amount or nature of the penalties. NGOs stated that the fines and employer-paid compensation outlined in the Child Labor (Prohibition and Regulation) Act were not adequate as deterrents to child labor violations. (2,4)

In addition, research found that DOL does not take meaningful action against perpetrators of child labor and its worst forms, despite having the authority to do so. Cases are often resolved through negotiations, and DOL encourages mediation over prosecution, resulting in mild punishments for perpetrators. (4,16,50) In addition, business owners are known to put pressure on labor inspectors to settle disputes outside court. Furthermore, DOL officials and NGOs stated that officials are sometimes paid not to move child labor cases forward, or parents are given nominal compensation to abandon cases. (4)

The government has also confirmed that it calls on NGOs to assist with official inspections, because it lacks funding and resources, and to increase transparency. (4) The government and NGOs state that most child labor occurs in the informal sector, including in companies with fewer than 10 employees and those that are not registered with the government. (4,19) However, the government conducted most of its labor inspections in the formal sector. (57) Although the government claims to monitor companies regularly, NGOs report that due to resource limitations, enforcement agencies respond only to child labor complaints. (4)

Furthermore, the number of labor inspectors is likely insufficient for the size of Nepal's workforce, which includes more than 16.8 million workers. According to the ILO's technical advice of a ratio approaching 1 inspector for every 15,000 workers in developing economies, Nepal would employ about 1,120 inspectors. (58,59) Although the total number of labor inspector positions is 15, only 10 positions are filled currently. (4) DOL noted that the number of inspectors was still inadequate and limited the government's abilities to deal with child labor issues, particularly at the local levels. (4,16,60)

Although labor inspectors periodically receive training on child labor laws and inspections, this training does not necessarily adhere to any formal schedule. (57) Due to the pandemic, webinars were held in place of in-person trainings. DOL officials mentioned that the training was insufficient and stressed the need for specialized training on child labor inspection and law enforcement. (4)

Criminal Law Enforcement

In 2020, criminal law enforcement agencies in Nepal took actions to combat child labor (Table 7). However, gaps exist within the operations of the criminal enforcement agencies that may hinder adequate criminal law enforcement, including allocating financial resources.

Table 7. Criminal Law Enforcement Efforts Related to Child Labor

Overview of Criminal Law Enforcement	2019	2020
Initial Training for New Criminal Investigators	Unknown (16)	Unknown (4)
Training on New Laws Related to the Worst Forms of Child Labor	N/A (16)	N/A (4)
Refresher Courses Provided	Unknown (16)	Unknown (4)
Number of Investigations	Unknown (16)	Unknown (4)
Number of Violations Found	Unknown (16)	Unknown (4)
Number of Prosecutions Initiated	Unknown (16)	Unknown (4)
Number of Convictions	Unknown (16)	Unknown (4)
Imposed Penalties for Violations Related to the Worst Forms of Child Labor	Unknown (16)	Unknown (4)
Reciprocal Referral Mechanism Exists Between Criminal Authorities and Social Services	Yes (16)	Yes (4)

Once fully operational, the newly formed Anti-Trafficking in Persons Bureau within the Nepal Police, headed by a Senior Superintendent of Police, will assist in children's rescue, rehabilitation, and coordination for arrest of perpetrators. (16,24) The establishment of this bureau will allow the Government of Nepal to meet some of the obligations arising from the process of acceding to the Palermo Protocol. (24) In addition, the Nepal Police's Crime Investigation School conducts trainings for all levels of police personnel in juvenile justice, child rights, and laws relating to child labor issues. (4)

However, the government lacks both the human resource and financial capacity to enforce laws prohibiting crimes related to the worst forms of child labor, and it lacks the resources to maintain a centralized database of cases involving the worst forms of child labor, including child trafficking. (4,9,19,61) The Nepal Police do, however, collect and disaggregate data related to human trafficking cases, and reported 75 victims of child trafficking in Nepali fiscal year 2019/2020 (mid-July 2019 to mid-July 2020). (4)

The government does not publicly release information on its criminal law enforcement efforts. (4)

IV. COORDINATION OF GOVERNMENT EFFORTS ON CHILD LABOR

The government has established mechanisms to coordinate its efforts to address child labor (Table 8).

However, gaps exist that hinder the effective coordination of efforts to address child labor, including efficacy in accomplishing mandates.

Table 8. Key Mechanisms to Coordinate Government Efforts on Child Labor

Coordinating Body	Role & Description
Child Labor Prevention and Occupational Safety Section, Labor Relations and Social Security Division, MoLESS	Formerly the Labor Relations, Child Labor Prevention, and Information Section. (62) Coordinates policymaking on child labor inspection guidelines and monitors implementation of guidelines. (63) Consists of an Under Secretary, one section officer, and one factory inspector. (62) Confers with MWCSC, the Central Child Welfare Board, the DOL, and District Labor Offices. (63) COVID-19 pandemic restrictions hindered the activities of the Child Labor Prevention and Occupational Safety Section during the reporting period. (64)
National Child Labor Elimination Committee	Provisioned by the National Master Plan to End Child Labor and chaired by the Secretary of MoLESS. (19) Under the Child Labor Act, provides recommendations to the government on necessary reforms in the existing child labor laws and policies; provides consultations to the government to make necessary arrangements for the health, safety, education, and occupational training of the children working in institutions; and monitors effective implementation of the policies and laws aimed at eliminating child labor. (38,65) Due to the pandemic, the group did not meet during the reporting period. (4)
National Network Against Child Labor	Coordinates the referral of children who are found in child labor to social services. Consists of District Labor Officers, District Women and Children Officers, officers from the Nepal Police Women and Children Service Centers, Chief District Officers, NGOs, and thousands of youth clubs. (66) Research was unable to determine whether the National Network Against Child Labor was active during the reporting period.
National Committee for Controlling Human Trafficking	Coordinates the implementation of anti-human trafficking laws, policies, and programs at the central, district, and local levels of government. Led by MWCSC and consists of government officials and NGO representatives. (3) During the reporting period, engaged in activities to ratify the Palermo Protocol; amended the Human Trafficking and Transportation (Control) Regulation, 2007 to facilitate the transition to federalism; promulgated the Crime Offense (Victim Relief Fund) Rule; formed working committees to develop a new National Plan of Action on Combating Trafficking in Persons and amend the Human Trafficking and Transportation (Control) Act, 2007; and organized a series of awareness activities to commemorate National Day Against Human Trafficking. (54)
National Human Rights Commission (NHRC)	Coordinates with other ministries, carries out periodic reviews of relevant laws, and publishes the annual trafficking in persons report. (67) The Social Inclusion and Gender Equality Division of NHRC monitors and receives complaints on child rights violations and continues to collaborate with international organizations, NGOs, and other child rights organizations. (62) The pandemic has limited NHRC's activities during the reporting period, including the ability to publish its annual trafficking in persons report. However, NHRC has engaged with victims and anti-human trafficking NGOs in a limited manner. (54)

The Ministry of Labor, Employment, and Social Security also leads an inter-agency working group against child labor headed by a Joint Secretary, which coordinates efforts against child labor with UN agencies and international organizations working on child rights and child protection. (54)

MODERATE ADVANCEMENT

V. GOVERNMENT POLICIES ON CHILD LABOR

The government has established policies related to child labor (Table 9). However, policy gaps exist that hinder efforts to address child labor, including updating existing policies to better align with the constitutional transition to federalism.

Table 9. Key Policies Related to Child Labor

Policy	Description
National Master Plan to End Child Labor (July 2018–July 2028)	Prioritizes ending the worst forms of child labor by 2022, and all forms of child labor by 2025. Established an annual monitoring evaluation and reporting system through which information will be made publicly available. (4,68) During the reporting period, the government has drafted an action plan for the elimination of child labor to facilitate the implementation of the National Master Plan to End Child Labor, which aims to abolish the worst forms of child labor by 2028. (23,69)
School Sector Development Plan (2016–2023)	Aims to expand access to education and provide alternative schooling and non-formal education to vulnerable populations, including children who are out of school and at risk of entering the worst forms of child labor. Overseen by the Ministry of Education, Science and Technology. (70) During the reporting period, the Government of Nepal conducted a review to assess progress and achievements of the program in its fourth year of implementation, looking specifically at the impact of the pandemic on school dropouts in Nepal. (71)
National Plan of Action on Combating Trafficking in Persons, Especially Women and Children (2011–2022)	Promotes and protects the rights of human trafficking victims and survivors, and outlines policies for providing justice and punishing perpetrators. (65,72) During the reporting period, MWCSC formed a working committee to work on a new action plan, with the hopes of completion by August 2021. (3,54)

‡ The government had other policies that may have addressed child labor issues or had an impact on child labor. (2,4)

The fifteenth National Plan of Nepal (2019/20–2023/2024) has incorporated ending child labor as one of its objectives, including making necessary legal provisions to end all forms of child labor and increasing the target number of inspections conducted for child labor in each Nepali fiscal year. (4,73) In addition, the Ministry of Women, Children, and Senior Citizens has formulated the Child Development Strategy, aimed at targeted programs for children, including the elimination of child labor. (4)

There is a need to update the National Plan of Action on Combating Trafficking in Persons so that it better aligns Nepal's anti-trafficking programming with the constitutional transition to federalism, as well as to better address forced labor. (24,26)

Nepal is a Pathfinder country under Alliance 8.7, which calls for the eradication of child labor by 2025, and forced labor, modern slavery, and human trafficking by 2030. (4,74)

VI. SOCIAL PROGRAMS TO ADDRESS CHILD LABOR

In 2020, the government funded and participated in programs that include the goal of eliminating or preventing child labor (Table 10). However, gaps exist in these social programs, including adequacy to address the problem in all sectors.

Table 10. Key Social Programs to Address Child Labor

Program	Description
Social Security Fund Program†	MoLESS program that helps support workers and their families through a tripartite contribution policy, an important initiative to help combat and prevent child labor. (19,75) In Nepali fiscal year 2019/2020, MoLESS included 143,912 workers and 9,218 employers under the social security scheme and issued social security identity cards to 78,921 workers and 2,127 employers. In addition, MoLESS also commemorated the National Day of Social Security and organized several outreach and publicity programs. (62)

Program	Description
Helpline and Hotline Programs†	Child Helpline—1098 is a MWCSC- and Child Workers in Nepal-funded helpline operated by the Nepal Telecommunications Authority. (19) Responds to calls about missing children, child abuse, child labor, child trafficking, and child sexual abuse in 13 districts and municipalities in Nepal and in Bangladesh, Bhutan, India, Maldives, Pakistan, and Sri Lanka. (76,77) Provides rescue services, medical treatment, counseling, legal support, skills training, and shelter services. (24) National Center for Children at Risk—Hotline No. 104 is a hotline operated from Vrikutimandap, Kathmandu, which is jointly run by the Central Child Welfare Board and Nepal Police. (19,24) Per the Nepal Police, about four to five children on average are rescued from child labor every month from informal sectors, such as transportation, domestic help, tea shops, and restaurants, through the complaints received through the hotline. (50) "Hello Sarkar" is an initiative established by the Office of the Prime Minister. Receives child labor complaints from the public through a hotline, Facebook, and Twitter. (19) According to the government's State of Children report, 1,420 children were rescued through these helpline and hotline programs in the Nepali fiscal year 2019/2020. In addition, these helplines provided 8,744 children with social services. (4)
Support for Schools‡	MoLESS program that supports schools for children ages 5–16 who are at risk of working in the worst forms of child labor. Provides scholarships to cover associated schooling costs for children outside the Kathmandu Valley to attend a local public school, and works with local NGOs to verify that children are attending class. (9) This program was active during the reporting period. (62)
Hamro Samman ("Our Respect") (2017–2022)	USAID-funded project, implemented by Winrock International, to strengthen national and local efforts to counter trafficking in persons, improve civil society advocacy and engagement, and increase private sector partnerships to empower survivors and prevent trafficking of at-risk populations. (2,19,78) During the reporting period, 68 children who were victims of human trafficking were reported to have received shelter and psychosocial support from Hamro Samman. (4)
USDOL-Funded Projects	USDOL projects in Nepal focus on both forced labor and child labor, including eliminating child labor in its worst forms. These projects include Sakriya , a $2.85 million project implemented by World Education, Inc., and From Protocol to Practice: A Bridge to Global Action on Forced Labor (The Bridge Project) , implemented in six countries by ILO. (79,80) Additional information is available on the USDOL website .

† Program is funded by the Government of Nepal.

‡ The government had other social programs that may have included the goal of eliminating or preventing child labor. (4)

The Ministry of Labor, Employment, and Social Security, with support from international NGOs, passed the "Child Labor Free Declaration Procedures for the Local Governments" to identify and declare at least 25 local jurisdictions "child labor free" in the Nepali fiscal year 2020/2021. These guidelines incorporated several indicators, including a child labor survey and programs at the local level to eliminate child labor. (4) Through this measure, the government set up an Emergency Fund at the national and local levels to rescue and rehabilitate vulnerable children. (4)

Also during the reporting period, the Government of Nepal published the Report on Employment Relationship Survey in the Brick Industry in Nepal, which was conducted in 2019 in partnership with the ILO, UNICEF, and the Central Bureau of Statistics of Nepal. The survey is the first nationally representative research conducted in the brick industry, providing information on the prevalence of child labor, forced labor, and bonded labor in the brick production sector. (15)

However, gaps exist in these social programs, including programs that support child victims of commercial sexual exploitation and children working in the production of bricks.

VII. SUGGESTED GOVERNMENT ACTIONS TO ELIMINATE CHILD LABOR

Based on the reporting above, suggested actions are identified that would advance the elimination of child labor in Nepal (Table 11).

Nepal

MODERATE ADVANCEMENT

Table 11. Suggested Government Actions to Eliminate Child Labor

Area	Suggested Action	Year(s) Suggested
Legal Framework	Ensure that laws are in line with ILO C. 182 by raising the minimum age to 18 for entry into hazardous work.	2009 – 2020
	Ensure that the types of hazardous work prohibited for children are comprehensive and include sectors in which there is evidence of child labor, including brickmaking.	2015 – 2020
	Ensure that the legal framework comprehensively and criminally prohibits the trafficking of children without needing proof of the use of force, fraud, or coercion.	2015 – 2020
	Ensure that the law criminally prohibits the use of children in illicit activities, including the production of drugs.	2015 – 2020
	Ensure that the law criminally penalizes the recruitment of children under age 18 by non-state armed groups.	2016 – 2020
Enforcement	Increase penalties to ensure sufficient deterrence of child labor law violations.	2015 – 2020
	Ensure that legal provisions against child labor are implemented and enforced against perpetrators.	2018 – 2020
	Ensure that the Department of Labor's budget is sufficient to adequately enforce child labor laws.	2016 – 2020
	Improve human resource capacity, including increasing the number of child labor inspections, especially in the informal sector.	2018 – 2020
	Strengthen the labor inspectorate, particularly at the local levels, by initiating routine targeted inspections in all sectors rather than performing inspections solely based on complaints received.	2017 – 2020
	Increase the number of labor inspectors to meet the ILO's technical advice.	2010 – 2020
	Institutionalize trainings for labor inspectors on laws related to child labor, including its worst forms.	2019 – 2020
	Publish data on criminal law enforcement actions, including whether new criminal investigators received initial training, refresher courses for investigators, and the number of investigations, violations, prosecutions, convictions, and penalties imposed for violations related to the worst forms of child labor.	2009 – 2020
	Provide additional resources to criminal law enforcement agencies so they are able to enforce laws prohibiting crimes related to the worst forms of child labor.	2011 – 2020
	Provide sufficient resources to create a centralized database to track and monitor cases of the worst forms of child labor, disaggregated by type of activity.	2009 – 2020
Coordination	Ensure that all coordinating bodies are active and able to carry out their intended mandates.	2020
Government Policies	Update the National Plan of Action on Combating Trafficking in Persons, Especially Women and Children to better address forced labor and align it with anti-trafficking programming.	2018 – 2020
Social Programs	Collect and publish data on child labor and its worst forms, particularly regarding hazardous work.	2018 – 2020
	Conduct research to determine the types of activities carried out by children, including in the construction sector, to inform social policies and programs.	2019 – 2020
	Eliminate barriers to education, including the lack of sanitation facilities at schools, long distances to schools, fees associated with schooling, pressure to find employment, migration to work outside of Nepal, and issues with drugs and alcohol.	2013 – 2020
	Enhance efforts to eliminate barriers and make education accessible for all children, including children with disabilities and refugee children.	2019 – 2020
	Create social programs that support child victims of commercial sexual exploitation and children working in the brick industry.	2018 – 2020

In 2020, Nicaragua made minimal advancement in efforts to eliminate the worst forms of child labor. The government established the program Women for Life, Peace, and Wellbeing Plan, with the aim of providing critical attention to victims of domestic violence and sexual violence, as well as trafficking in persons. However, children in Nicaragua are subjected to the worst forms of child labor, including in commercial sexual exploitation, sometimes as a result of human trafficking. Children also perform dangerous tasks in agriculture. Laws do not establish a clear compulsory education age, and national policies to eliminate child labor and protect children have not been fully implemented. The government also lacks a specific and consistent mechanism to coordinate efforts to address child labor.

I. PREVALENCE AND SECTORAL DISTRIBUTION OF CHILD LABOR

Children in Nicaragua are subjected to the worst forms of child labor, including in commercial sexual exploitation, sometimes as a result of human trafficking. (1) Children also perform dangerous tasks in agriculture. (2,3) Table 1 provides key indicators on children’s work and education in Nicaragua. Data on some of these indicators are not available from the sources used in this report.
