MINIMAL ADVANCEMENT

Sector/Industry	Activity
Categorical Worst Forms of Child Labor‡	Commercial sexual exploitation, sometimes as a result of human trafficking, and use in the production of pornography (1,8,9,11,14-17)
	Domestic work as a result of human trafficking (15-17)
	Forced begging, sometimes as a result of human trafficking (10,11,17,18)
	Use in illicit activities, including in drug production and drug trafficking (8,10)

† Determined by national law or regulation as hazardous and, as such, relevant to Article 3(d) of ILO C. 182.

‡ Child labor understood as the worst forms of child labor per se under Article 3(a)–(c) of ILO C. 182.

Information about the prevalence of child labor in Nicaragua is limited because the last known national survey on child labor was published in 2012. (8,19) However, available research indicates that children are subjected to commercial sexual exploitation, particularly in Granada, Managua, the Caribbean Autonomous Regions, and San Juan del Sur. (11,14,20) Children from poor rural areas, those in the Caribbean Autonomous Regions, and migrants from the Northern Triangle countries are particularly vulnerable. (11) In addition, Nicaragua is a destination country for child sex tourists from the United States, Canada, and Western Europe. (10) Limited research suggests that after the political upheaval that took place in 2018 the Nicaraguan National Police began focusing resources on responding to anti-government protests, as well as surveilling and arresting political opposition members, possibly impacting public security and leaving children more vulnerable to commercial sexual exploitation. (1)

Children in Nicaragua who lack identification documents, sometimes due to a lack of birth registration, may not have access to social services and are at an increased risk of human trafficking and commercial sexual exploitation. (21) An estimated 15 percent of children born in Nicaragua lack birth certificates. (22)

Education is free and compulsory in Nicaragua; however, the costs associated with school supplies and transportation make it difficult for some children, particularly those from poor backgrounds and rural areas, to attend school. (1,8)

II. LEGAL FRAMEWORK FOR CHILD LABOR

Nicaragua has ratified all key international conventions concerning child labor (Table 3).

Table 3. Ratification of International Conventions on Child Labor

Convention	Ratification
 ILO C. 138, Minimum Age	✓
 ILO C. 182, Worst Forms of Child Labor	✓
 UN CRC	✓
 UN CRC Optional Protocol on Armed Conflict	✓
 UN CRC Optional Protocol on the Sale of Children, Child Prostitution and Child Pornography	✓
 Palermo Protocol on Trafficking in Persons	✓

The government has established laws and regulations related to child labor (Table 4). However, gaps exist in Nicaragua’s legal framework to adequately protect children from the worst forms of child labor, including establishing a compulsory education age.

Table 4. Laws and Regulations on Child Labor

Standard	Meets International Standards	Age	Legislation
Minimum Age for Work	Yes	14	Article 131 of the Labor Code; Article 73 of the Childhood and Adolescence Code; Article 84 of the Constitution (23-26)
Minimum Age for Hazardous Work	Yes	18	Articles 130 and 133 of the Labor Code; Article 1 of Ministerial Agreement No. JCHG-08-06-10; Articles 2 and 74 of the Childhood and Adolescence Code (23-25,27)
Identification of Hazardous Occupations or Activities Prohibited for Children	Yes		Articles 1–7 of Ministerial Agreement No. JCHG-08-06-10; Article 133 of the Labor Code (23,27)
Prohibition of Forced Labor	Yes		Article 40 of the Constitution; Articles 61–63 of the Law Against Trafficking in Persons; Articles 182–183 and 315 of the Penal Code (26,28,29)
Prohibition of Child Trafficking	Yes		Articles 61–63 of the Law Against Trafficking in Persons; Articles 182–183 and 315 of the Penal Code (28,29)
Prohibition of Commercial Sexual Exploitation of Children	Yes		Article 61 of the Law Against Trafficking in Persons; Articles 175–183 of the Penal Code; Articles 5 and 26 of the Childhood and Adolescence Code (25,28,29)
Prohibition of Using Children in Illicit Activities	Yes		Article 61 of the Law Against Trafficking in Persons; Articles 358–359 and 362 of the Penal Code; Article 71 of Law 285 (Reform to the Narcotics Law); Article 79 of the Childhood and Adolescence Code (25,28-30)
Minimum Age for Voluntary State Military Recruitment	Yes	18	Annex 1 of the Code on the Organization, Jurisdiction, and Social Welfare of the Military (31)
Prohibition of Compulsory Recruitment of Children by (State) Military	N/A*
Prohibition of Military Recruitment by Non-state Armed Groups	Yes		Article 509 of the Penal Code; Article 95 of the Constitution (26,28)
Compulsory Education Age	No	12‡	Article 121 of the Constitution; Articles 19 and 23 of the Education Law; Article 43 of the Childhood and Adolescence Code (25,26,32)
Free Public Education	Yes		Article 121 of the Constitution; Articles 8, 19, and 23 of the Education Law; Article 43 of the Childhood and Adolescence Code (25,26,32)

* No conscription (26)

‡ Age calculated based on available information (25,26,32)

Nicaraguan law is not clear regarding the age up to which education is compulsory. Article 121 of the Constitution states that primary school education is compulsory; however, it does not specify an age. (26) Under Articles 19 and 23 of the Education Law, education is compulsory only through the sixth grade, which it specifies is up to age 12 and the end of primary school. (32) Article 43 of the Childhood and Adolescence Code states that both primary and secondary school education are compulsory, suggesting up to age 17; however, it does not specifically state an age. (25) The lack of clarity regarding the age up to which education is compulsory, and the potential gap between the compulsory education age and the minimum age for work, may leave children vulnerable to child labor, including its worst forms. (33)

III. ENFORCEMENT OF LAWS ON CHILD LABOR

The government has established institutional mechanisms for the enforcement of laws and regulations on child labor (Table 5). However, gaps exist within the operations of enforcement agencies that may hinder adequate enforcement of their child labor laws.

Nicaragua

MINIMAL ADVANCEMENT

Table 5. Agencies Responsible for Child Labor Law Enforcement

Organization/Agency	Role
Ministry of Labor (MITRAB)	Enforces labor laws and sets child labor policy priorities. Conducts labor inspections through its General Labor Inspectorate, and conducts child labor inspections through its Child Labor Inspections Unit. (16) Conducts training on child labor issues and inspections. Maintains a mailbox in each of Nicaragua's 17 departments to receive complaints of child labor violations. (16)
Nicaraguan National Police	Addresses cases of child labor and human trafficking through the Police Intelligence Unit, which detects crimes, and the Special Crimes Unit, which investigates crimes. Maintains a hotline for reporting violations of children's rights. (16)
Ministry of Governance	Coordinates participation between MITRAB and the Nicaraguan National Police in labor inspections in which employers resist inspection. (16)
Prosecutor's Office	Prosecutes cases of child trafficking, commercial sexual exploitation, and the use of children in illicit activities. Contains 2 national-level and 35 department-level prosecutors who prosecute these and other crimes. (16)
Human Rights Attorney for Children	Assists in the enforcement of laws related to child labor and hazardous child labor. (16)

Labor Law Enforcement

In 2020, labor law enforcement agencies in Nicaragua took actions to combat child labor (Table 6). However, gaps exist within the operations of the Ministry of Labor (MITRAB) that may hinder adequate labor law enforcement, including resource allocation.

Table 6. Labor Law Enforcement Efforts Related to Child Labor

Overview of Labor Law Enforcement	2019	2020
Labor Inspectorate Funding	$1,200,000 (16)	$1,380,000 (1)
Number of Labor Inspectors	97 (16)	97 (1)

In 2020, a total of 15,182 labor inspections were conducted, representing approximately 156 inspections carried out by each inspector. This is a high number of inspections conducted by each inspector, and it is likely that this high number impacts the quality of such inspections. (1) A lack of resources may hinder MITRAB's capacity to enforce child labor laws. (8,9,36) For example, the number of labor inspectors is likely insufficient for the size of Nicaragua's workforce, which includes approximately 3 million workers. According to the ILO's technical advice of a ratio approaching 1 inspector for every 15,000 workers in industrializing economies, Nicaragua would employ about 203 inspectors. (37,38) Although the government maintains that its budget for the inspectorate is sufficient, civil organizations indicate that funding levels do not permit the inspectorate to address the scope of the problem. For example, reports indicate that Nicaragua has a large informal and rural workforce, and the General Labor Inspectorate is unable to cover the country's vulnerabilities to, and the magnitude of, labor violations adequately. (1,9) In 2020, MITRAB signed 6,503 cooperative agreements with private sector businesses that pledged not to use child labor. (1)

The government did not provide information on the number of penalties imposed for child labor violations, nor on penalties collected, for inclusion in this report.

Criminal Law Enforcement

In 2020, criminal law enforcement agencies in Nicaragua took actions to combat child labor (Table 7). However, gaps exist within the operations of the criminal enforcement agencies that may hinder adequate criminal law enforcement, including the allocation of sufficient financial resources to inform monitoring and investigations of the worst forms of child labor.

Table 7. Criminal Law Enforcement Efforts Related to Child Labor

Overview of Criminal Law Enforcement	2019	2020
Initial Training for New Criminal Investigators	Yes (16)	Unknown (1)
Training on New Laws Related to the Worst Forms of Child Labor	N/A	Unknown (1)
Refresher Courses Provided	Unknown (16)	Unknown (1)
Number of Investigations	2 (16)	7 (1)
Number of Violations Found	2 (16)	7 (1)
Number of Prosecutions Initiated	6 (16)	7 (1)
Number of Convictions	Unknown (16)	9 (1)
Imposed Penalties for Violations Related to the Worst Forms of Child Labor	Unknown (16)	Yes (1)
Reciprocal Referral Mechanism Exists Between Criminal Authorities and Social Services	Yes (16)	Yes (1)

Research did not find the number of criminal investigators employed by the Nicaraguan National Police or Prosecutor General's Office during the reporting period. Information about the training provided to criminal law enforcement investigators was also unavailable. (9,18)

The government investigated seven cases of commercial child sexual exploitation; however, this number is low compared to the severity of the problem in the country. (1) Furthermore, according to the government they obtained nine convictions against individuals for violations related to the commercial sexual exploitation of children. (1) However, the government does not publicize the judicial proceedings and independent observers are unable to verify arrests, detentions, and convictions of individuals. (39) Research indicates that criminal law enforcement agencies lack sufficient financial resources to adequately carry out criminal investigations. In addition, research points out that efforts related to the worst forms of child labor do not adequately address the scope of the problem. (40,41)

The Ministry of the Family, Adolescence, and Childhood (MIFAN) maintains a hotline for receiving reports on human trafficking and commercial sexual exploitation, as well as assists in providing officials with training on child labor violations. (34) Although MIFAN also maintains a guide for assisting child victims of commercial sexual exploitation, reports indicate that the government had no formal procedures for the identification of human trafficking victims among high-risk populations, including children who are trafficked for commercial sexual exploitation. (17)

IV. COORDINATION OF GOVERNMENT EFFORTS ON CHILD LABOR

The government has established mechanisms to coordinate its efforts to address child labor (Table 8). However, gaps exist that hinder the effective coordination of efforts to address child labor, including efficacy in accomplishing mandates.

Nicaragua

MINIMAL ADVANCEMENT

Table 8. Key Mechanisms to Coordinate Government Efforts on Child Labor

Coordinating Body	Role & Description
National Social Welfare System	Coordinates efforts on child labor and ensures that government institutions protect the rights of children and provide social services to them as part of its mandate to assist the Nicaraguan population. Comprises various government ministries, including MITRAB; the Ministry of the Family, Adolescence, and Childhood (MIFAN); the Ministry of Education (MINED); the Ministry of Health (MINSAL); and the Ministry of Governance. (36,42) Research was unable to determine whether the National Social Welfare System Coordinating Body was active during the reporting period.
National Coalition Against Trafficking in Persons	Coordinates efforts to address human trafficking for labor and commercial sexual exploitation. Led by the Ministry of Governance and comprises law enforcement agencies, the Supreme Court of Justice, and NGOs. (20,43) During the reporting year, it met monthly, as did its 16 department-wide working roundtable committees. (1,39)

Although the National Coalition Against Trafficking in Persons (NCATIP) led several working groups in 2020, for the fourth year in a row NCATIP did not engage local civil society, despite being required to do so by law. Local civil society organizations were also unable to corroborate increased NCATIP activity in the local working groups, and in general, the government did not coordinate with or fund NGOs, despite NGOs providing the majority of victim services. (1,11,15,20,44) Some civil organizations report a continued dismantling of once-active NCATIP regional committees and state that it has had no measurable impact since its creation. (39) NCATIP also did not appoint its Executive Secretariat, which is mandated by the Law Against Trafficking in Persons. (1,11)

Reporting indicates that the National Social Welfare System does not have a specific and consistent coordinating mechanism due to limited coordination among constituent ministries and a lack of financial resources dedicated to combating child labor. (12)

V. GOVERNMENT POLICIES ON CHILD LABOR

The government has established policies related to child labor (Table 9). However, policy gaps exist that hinder efforts to address child labor, including the implementation of these policies.

Table 9. Key Policies Related to Child Labor

Policy	Description
Roadmap to Make Central America, Panama, and the Dominican Republic a Child Labor Free Zone	Sets the goal of eliminating the worst forms of child labor by 2015 and all forms of child labor by 2020. (45) Research was unable to determine whether activities were undertaken during the reporting period to implement the Roadmap. (1,8)
Good Government Plan	Sets development goals for government ministries, including MITRAB, MINED, and MINSAL. Prioritizes human trafficking investigations; aims to protect children from commercial sexual exploitation; and commits to training teachers by creating 1,000 primary school teaching positions and increasing access to education, including for indigenous and Afro-descendant children. (46) Research was unable to determine whether activities were undertaken during the reporting period to implement the Good Government Plan.
National Action Plan on Human Trafficking (2018–2022)	A four-pronged approach focused on awareness raising, capacity building, trainings, victim protection, and monitoring. (11) The Supreme Court of Justice oversaw the design and implementation of the plan. IOM collaborated by editing the document and provided training for government officials. (11) Research was unable to determine whether activities were undertaken during the reporting period to implement the National Action Plan on Human Trafficking.
National Strategy for the Comprehensive Care and Assistance to Victims of Human Trafficking	Describes the process for identifying and assisting victims of human trafficking. (47) Research was unable to determine whether activities were undertaken during the reporting period to implement the National Strategy for the Comprehensive Care and Assistance to Victims of Human Trafficking.

VI. SOCIAL PROGRAMS TO ADDRESS CHILD LABOR

In 2020, the government funded and participated in programs that include the goal of eliminating or preventing child labor (Table 10). However, gaps exist in these social programs, including the scope of their operations.

Table 10. Key Social Programs to Address Child Labor

Program	Description
Love Program ( Programa Amor )†	MIFAN program that supports vulnerable or impoverished children, including children involved in child labor such as street work. Provides educational assistance for children and vocational training for parents. (48) Promotes school attendance, house-to-house and school visits, and extra-curricular activities. (1) Overseen by Nicaragua's Vice President in coordination with MINED, MINSA, MITRAB, and the Ministry of Governance. (48) Allows MIFAN to carry out activities with other government institutions, civil society, and religious organizations, as well as with communities and families. (1) Includes children from birth to age 6 through the Love Program for the Smallest Ones. (48) There is little to no information available from the government regarding the impact of the program since its creation in 2008. (49,50)
Educational Bridges ( Puentes Educativos )†	MITRAB and MINED public-private partnership implemented by World Vision that provides education to children of coffee workers to prevent child labor during coffee harvests. (51,52) Research was unable to determine whether activities were undertaken during the reporting period to implement Educational Bridges.
Integral School Meal Program ( Merienda Escolar )†	MIFAN and WFP initiative that provides children and adolescents with meals at school to address poverty and improve attendance. (34) In 2020, the government reported providing this assistance to 100 percent of students in public grade schools, and reports indicate this program was active during the year. (1,53,54)
National School Supply Program ( Paquetes Escolares Solidarios )†	MINED program that distributes packages of school supplies to preschool, primary, and secondary school children in the poorest districts to increase attendance and completion rates. (34) During the reporting period, the government reported providing assistance to 100 percent of rural students through the program, and reports indicate that the program was implemented throughout the year. (1,55,56-58)
Women for Life, Peace, and Wellbeing Plan ( Plan Mujeres por la Vida, Paz y Bien )*†	Government initiative that began in February 2020. Provides critical attention to victims of domestic violence, sexual violence, and human trafficking. (1) Mostly consists of awareness-raising activities; during the reporting period, reached 34,660 beneficiaries, including 8,494 children and 5,485 adolescents, through activities such as door-to-door visits, fairs, festivals, community assemblies, radio programs, and extra-curricular activities that addressed themes such as the role of families in promoting safe and secure homes for children. (1)

* Program was launched during the reporting period.

‡ The government had other social programs that may have included the goal of eliminating or preventing child labor. (1,59,60)

MIFAN coordinated services for child trafficking victims, including access to medical and legal services, as well as education. (18,44) Yet the country still lacks adequate services for human trafficking victims, such as shelters and specialized services for victims with disabilities and male trafficking victims. Furthermore, child trafficking victims have at times been returned to their families despite the risk of re-victimization. (44)

The scope of current social programs is not sufficient to assist children who are subjected to human trafficking or engaged in the worst forms of child labor, including commercial sexual exploitation. (16) Research indicates that the regions most affected by human trafficking, such as the Caribbean Autonomous Regions, lack adequate care facilities, and children who are victims of human trafficking in these areas are referred to NGO shelters in Managua. (39)

The government does not report funding levels for, or specific activities undertaken by, the Love Program; however, research indicates that the program is underfunded. (36)

VII. SUGGESTED GOVERNMENT ACTIONS TO ELIMINATE CHILD LABOR

Based on the reporting above, suggested actions are identified that would advance the elimination of child labor in Nicaragua (Table 11).

Table 11. Suggested Government Actions to Eliminate Child Labor

Area	Suggested Action	Year(s) Suggested
Legal Framework	Ensure that the law is consistent and provides a compulsory education age that is not less than the minimum age for work.	2014 – 2020
Enforcement	Ensure that adequate training and refresher courses are provided for labor law inspectors and criminal investigators.	2019 – 2020
	Increase the number of labor inspectors to meet the ILO's technical advice.	2009 – 2020
	Publish complete labor law enforcement data, including information about worksite inspections, unannounced inspections, number of child labor violations, and penalties imposed for violations.	2015 – 2020

Area	Suggested Action	Year(s) Suggested
Enforcement	Ensure that the Ministry of Labor has sufficient funding to enforce labor laws adequately, including those related to child labor, and that resource needs are met.	2018 – 2020
	Ensure that criminal law enforcement efforts are sufficient to address the scope of the problem and that agencies have the funding and resources necessary to carry out duties.	2014 – 2020
	Establish an adequate mechanism for identifying human trafficking victims, particularly children, among high-risk populations.	2018 – 2020
Coordination	Ensure that the National Social Welfare System is active, fully funded, and carries out its mandated activities.	2020
	Ensure that the government has a specific and consistent mechanism to coordinate efforts to address child labor, including with NGOs, and to publicly report on these efforts.	2014 – 2020
	Ensure that the National Coalition Against Trafficking of Persons works with relevant local stakeholders to address human trafficking issues, and ensure that it establishes its Executive Secretariat, as mandated by the Law Against Trafficking in Persons.	2015 – 2020
Government Policies	Publish activities undertaken to implement key policies related to child labor to address child labor during the reporting period.	2009 – 2020
Social Programs	Collect and publish updated data on the prevalence of child labor in the country.	2018 – 2020
	Expand birth registration programs to ensure that children have access to basic services.	2009 – 2020
	Remove barriers to education, such as transportation and the cost associated with school supplies, for all children, particularly those from poor backgrounds and rural areas; develop strategies and devote resources to improve attendance of children in secondary school.	2009 – 2020
	Implement social programs that address the full scope of the worst forms of child labor in the country, including commercial sexual exploitation.	2009 – 2020
	Develop social services for human trafficking victims, such as shelters and specialized services, and ensure that services are available throughout the country, especially in areas where children are most vulnerable.	2010 – 2020
	Ensure that social programs are adequately funded and implemented, and that they report on their yearly efforts.	2019 – 2020

In 2020, Niger made minimal advancement in efforts to eliminate the worst forms of child labor. The government hired additional labor inspectors and carried out several capacity training workshops. However, children in Niger were subjected to the worst forms of child labor, including in hereditary slavery and mining, each sometimes as a result of human trafficking. Children also perform dangerous tasks herding cattle. The minimum age for work does not meet international standards because it does not apply to children in unpaid or non-contractual work. In addition, the particular type of slavery known as wahaya, while illegal, continues to exist. Gaps in labor law enforcement also remain, including insufficient funding for labor inspectors to conduct inspections. Also, social programs to combat child labor are insufficient to adequately address the extent of the problem.

I. PREVALENCE AND SECTORAL DISTRIBUTION OF CHILD LABOR

Children in Niger are subjected to the worst forms of child labor, including in hereditary slavery and in mining, each sometimes as a result of human trafficking. (1-4) Children also engage in dangerous tasks herding cattle. (4,5) Table 1 provides key indicators on children's work and education in Niger.

Table 1. Statistics on Children's Work and Education

Children	Age	Percent
Working (% and population)	5 to 14	42.9 (2,516,191)
Attending School (%)	7 to 14	48.0
Combining Work and School (%)	7 to 14	22.1
Primary Completion Rate (%)		62.3

Source for all other data: International Labor Organization's analysis of statistics from Demographic and Health Survey (DHS), 2012. (7)

Based on a review of available information, Table 2 provides an overview of children's work by sector and activity.

Table 2. Overview of Children's Work by Sector and Activity

Sector/Industry	Activity
Agriculture	Production of rice, fruits, nuts, and vegetables (2,8,9)
	Herding and caring for livestock, including cattle (2,5)
	Fishing, including river net casting (10)
Industry	Quarrying† and mining† for trona, salt, gypsum, and gold (1,3,11-16)
	Metal work† (17)
	Working in construction,† tanneries,† and slaughterhouses† (5,15,16,18,19)
	Brick making (16)
Services	Street work, including as market vendors, and begging† (1,5,15,18)
	Domestic work (1,2,5,11,15,16,20)
Categorical Worst Forms of Child Labor‡	Commercial sexual exploitation, sometimes as a result of human trafficking (2,3,15,16,21-24)
	Forced recruitment of children by non-state armed groups for use in armed conflict (3,5,15,23,25)
	Hereditary and caste-based slavery, including for cattle herding, agricultural work, domestic work, and sexual exploitation (2,3,14-16,21,23,26)
	Forced begging, sometimes as a result of human trafficking (1-3,16,21,26-29)
	Forced labor in domestic work and mining, each sometimes as a result of human trafficking (3,11,14,16)

† Determined by national law or regulation as hazardous and, as such, relevant to Article 3(d) of ILO C. 182.

MINIMAL ADVANCEMENT

Children in Niger, especially boys and girls from the Arab, Djerma, Peulh, Tuareg, and Toubou ethnic minorities, continue to be exploited as slaves and endure slave-like practices, particularly in the regions of Tahoua and Agadez. (15) Some children are born into slavery; others are born free but remain in a dependent status and are forced to work with their parents for their former masters in exchange for food, money, and lodging. (2,3,16,19,20) A particular form of slavery in Niger is the wahaya practice, in which men buy girls born into slavery, often between ages 9 and 14, as “fifth wives.” Even though Niger’s Supreme Court set legal precedent by ruling wahaya to be illegal in 2019, the government has made limited efforts to inform the public of the court’s ruling. During the reporting period, anti-slavery NGOs, along with the ILO, conducted awareness-raising campaigns about the illegality of this practice so that more affected women will bring cases to court. (10,14,20,30-33) Child slaves, including those involved in the practice of wahaya, are forced to work long hours as cattle herders, agricultural workers, or domestic workers, and are often sexually exploited. (11,15,16,19,21,26,34) As with those involved in hereditary slavery, the children of wahaya wives are considered slaves and are passed from one owner to another as gifts or as part of dowries. (5,16,19,21,34,35)

In Niger, some Koranic teachers known as marabouts may subject their students, boys known as talibés, to manual labor or forced begging rather than providing them with a religious education. (1-3,14-16,21,23) Children in Niger participating in seasonal migration or migrant children from West Africa traveling to Algeria and Libya may also be subject to forced begging or commercial sexual exploitation as a result of human trafficking. (27-29,36-40) In addition, Niger has a form of internal child trafficking called confiage, in which family members send their children to live with relatives or friends with promises of better educational or trade learning opportunities. However, some children are instead subjected to exploitation, including forced labor, sex trafficking, and domestic work. (16)

Violent extremist organizations active in Niger—ISIS in the Greater Sahara, Boko Haram, ISIS-West Africa, and Jama’at Nusrat al-Islam wal-Muslimin—are known to forcibly recruit children. However, the government maintains age requirements for enlistment into the armed forces and has laws against the use of child soldiers. (15) Research has found no evidence of complicity by the government. (15)

In Niger, many children, especially girls, do not attend school. (14,15,35,41) Some teachers and schools require small fees to augment their insufficient government salaries. (10) The lack of school infrastructure and school materials, and limited availability of teachers, especially in rural areas, impede access to education, which may increase the vulnerability of children to the worst forms of child labor. (22,35,42,43) In addition, refugee and IDP children, both within and outside Niger’s borders, may have difficulty accessing education, which makes them particularly vulnerable to the worst forms of child labor, including recruitment by non-state armed groups. (14,19,24,27-44) In 2020, due to insecurity in the Tillabéri, Tahoua, and Diffa regions, regional governments closed over 300 schools. The Government of Niger also closed public schools for significant periods as a precaution due to the COVID-19 pandemic. (15) Traditionally, a majority of children do not continue education beyond age 12, although the compulsory age for education is 16. (15)

II. LEGAL FRAMEWORK FOR CHILD LABOR

Niger has ratified all key international conventions concerning child labor (Table 3).

Table 3. Ratification of International Conventions on Child Labor

Convention	Ratification
 ILO C. 138, Minimum Age	✓
ILO C. 182, Worst Forms of Child Labor	✓
 UN CRC	✓

Convention	Ratification
 Palermo Protocol on Trafficking in Persons	✓

The government has established laws and regulations related to child labor (Table 4). However, gaps exist in Niger's legal framework to adequately protect children from the worst forms of child labor, including the minimum age for work.

Table 4. Laws and Regulations on Child Labor

Standard	Meets International Standards	Age	Legislation
Minimum Age for Work	No	14	Article 106 of the Labor Code (45)
Minimum Age for Hazardous Work	Yes	18	Article 159 of Decree No. 2017-682 (46)
Identification of Hazardous Occupations or Activities Prohibited for Children	Yes		Articles 159–161 and 164–171 of Decree No. 2017-682; Article 181 of the Penal Code (46,47)
Prohibition of Forced Labor	Yes		Article 14 of the Constitution; Article 4 of the Labor Code; Article 158 of Decree No. 2017-682; Article 270 of the Penal Code; Article 2 of the Law on Combating Trafficking in Persons (41,45-48)
Prohibition of Child Trafficking	Yes		Article 107 of the Labor Code; Article 158 of Decree No. 2017-682; Article 10 of the Law on Combating Trafficking in Persons; Article 16 of the Law 2015-36 on Illicit Traffic of Migrants (45,46,48,49)
Prohibition of Commercial Sexual Exploitation of Children	Yes		Article 107 of the Labor Code; Article 158 of Decree No. 2017-682; Articles 291–292 of the Penal Code; Article 10 of the Law on Combating Trafficking in Persons (45-48)
Prohibition of Using Children in Illicit Activities	Yes		Article 107 of the Labor Code; Article 158 of Decree No. 2017-682; Article 181 of the Penal Code; Articles 10 and 16 of the Law on Combating Trafficking in Persons (45-48)
Minimum Age for Voluntary State Military Recruitment	Yes	18	Article 107 of the Labor Code (45)
Prohibition of Compulsory Recruitment of Children by (State) Military	N/A*
Prohibition of Military Recruitment by Non-state Armed Groups	Yes		Article 107 of the Labor Code (45)
Compulsory Education Age	No		Article 8 of Decree No. 2017-935/PRN/MEPAPLN/EC/MES; Article 2 of the Law on the Orientation of the Educational System (50,51)
Free Public Education	Yes		Article 23 of the Constitution; Article 8 of Decree No. 2017-935/PRN/MEPAPLN/EC/MES; Article 2 of the Law on the Orientation of the Educational System (41,50,51)

* No conscription (52)

Although the Labor Code establishes age 14 as the minimum age for work, it does not apply to workers in the informal economy, which does not conform to international standards that require all children to be protected under the law establishing a minimum age for work. (45,53) In addition, Article 2 of the Law on the Orientation of the Educational System in Niger guarantees education for all children ages 4 to 18, and Article 8 of Decree No. 2017-935 states that the government is required to promote access to compulsory education. However, Niger's law does not clearly articulate to which age groups the latter provision applies, thereby leaving the risk that some children are not covered and increasing the risk of children's involvement in child labor. (50,51)

III. ENFORCEMENT OF LAWS ON CHILD LABOR

The government has established institutional mechanisms for the enforcement of laws and regulations on child labor (Table 5). However, gaps exist within the operations of enforcement agencies that may hinder adequate enforcement of their child labor laws.

Table 5. Agencies Responsible for Child Labor Law Enforcement

Organization/Agency	Role
Ministry of Employment, Labor and Social Security (MELSS)	Enforces labor laws and investigates Labor Code infractions, including those on child labor. Conducts awareness-raising programs to combat child labor. (2,15,17,54,55)
National Civil Police Force Morals and Minors Brigade	Investigates criminal cases involving minors, including issues pertaining to human trafficking, commercial sexual exploitation, and hereditary slavery. Housed under the Ministry of Interior and Public Security. (12,15,21,56)
Ministry of Justice's District and Magistrate Courts	Enforce criminal laws related to child labor through 10 district courts and 30 magistrate courts. (12,15,17,54)
National Agency to Fight Against Trafficking in Persons and Illegal Migrant Transport (ANLTP/TIM)	Implements policies and programs developed by the National Commission to Coordinate Efforts to Combat Trafficking in Persons and Illegal Migrant Transport (CNCLTP/TIM), conducts awareness campaigns about human trafficking, provides training and education to reduce the risk of human trafficking, and maintains a hotline to receive complaints concerning human trafficking. (3,4,15,57,58)
National Human Rights Commission	Receives complaints related to child labor, including the worst forms, and conducts investigations of human rights violations, including hereditary slavery. (2,4,15,20,54)

Labor Law Enforcement

In 2020, labor law enforcement agencies in Niger took actions to combat child labor (Table 6). However, gaps exist within the operations of the Ministry of Employment, Labor and Social Security (MELSS) that may hinder adequate labor law enforcement, including lack of financial and human resources.

Table 6. Labor Law Enforcement Efforts Related to Child Labor

Overview of Labor Law Enforcement	2019	2020
Labor Inspectorate Funding	$20,000 (4)	Unknown (15)
Number of Labor Inspectors	51 (4)	57 (15)
Inspectorate Authorized to Assess Penalties	Yes (45)	Yes (45)
Initial Training for New Labor Inspectors	Yes (4)	Yes (15)
Training on New Laws Related to Child Labor	N/A (4)	N/A (15)
Refresher Courses Provided	Yes (4)	Yes (15)
Number of Labor Inspections Conducted	487 (4)	Unknown (15)
Number Conducted at Worksite	Unknown (4)	Unknown (15)
Number of Child Labor Violations Found	Unknown (4)	Unknown (15)
Number of Child Labor Violations for Which Penalties Were Imposed	Unknown (4)	Unknown (15)
Number of Child Labor Penalties Imposed that Were Collected	Unknown (4)	Unknown (15)
Routine Inspections Conducted	Yes (4)	Yes (15)
Routine Inspections Targeted	Yes (4)	Yes (15)
Unannounced Inspections Permitted	Yes (45)	Yes (45)
Unannounced Inspections Conducted	No (4)	Unknown (15)
Complaint Mechanism Exists	Yes (4)	Yes (15)
Reciprocal Referral Mechanism Exists Between Labor Authorities and Social Services	Yes (4)	Yes (15)

Despite an increase in the number of labor inspectors—from 51 to 57—the total number of labor inspectors is likely insufficient for the size of Niger's workforce, which includes approximately 6.5 million workers. (15) According to the ILO's technical advice of a ratio approaching 1 inspector for every 40,000 workers in less developed countries, Niger would employ about 163 labor inspectors. (4,60,61) In addition, research found that the government lacks adequate funding and personnel to conduct labor inspections, especially in the informal sector and in remote locations. (4,5,26) The government did not provide information on the number of inspections conducted, violations found, penalties imposed, and penalties collected for inclusion in this report. During the reporting period the government did not collect or publish general data on child labor or the worst forms of child labor. (15)

Criminal Law Enforcement

In 2020, criminal law enforcement agencies in Niger took actions to combat child labor (Table 7). However, gaps exist within the operations of the criminal enforcement agencies that may hinder adequate criminal law enforcement, including prosecution planning and allocating financial resources.

Table 7. Criminal Law Enforcement Efforts Related to Child Labor

Overview of Criminal Law Enforcement	2019	2020
Initial Training for New Criminal Investigators	Yes (4)	Yes (15)
Training on New Laws Related to the Worst Forms of Child Labor	N/A (4)	N/A (15)
Refresher Courses Provided	Yes (4)	Yes (15)
Number of Investigations	Unknown (4)	Unknown (15)
Number of Violations Found	Unknown (4)	Unknown (15)
Number of Prosecutions Initiated	Unknown (4)	Unknown (15)
Number of Convictions	Unknown (4)	Unknown (15)
Imposed Penalties for Violations Related to the Worst Forms of Child Labor	Unknown (4)	Unknown (15)
Reciprocal Referral Mechanism Exists Between Criminal Authorities and Social Services	Yes (4)	Yes (15)

In September 2020, the government stood up a National Referral Mechanism (NRM). The NRM identified roles for prosecutors, judges, law enforcement, labor inspectors, diplomats, international organizations, NGOs, and union actors. (10) In October, the National Agency to Fight Against Trafficking in Persons and Illegal Migrant Transport (ANLTP/TIM) partnered with an international organization to provide training for 29 individuals from the ministries of Justice and Promotion of Women and Protection of Children, local education and health officials, a traditional leader, and NGOs. The training centered on increasing key actors' ability to implement the NRM, community engagement, and improving law enforcement's efficacy in identifying victims. (10) The government also broadcast the training on two national television and radio stations in both French and Hausa. All ANLTP/TIM focal point staff received training on the new NRM. (10) Research found that inadequate resources, including insufficient personnel, funding, and training, hamper the capacity of criminal law enforcement authorities to coordinate and enforce laws related to the worst forms of child labor. (4,5,15,26,62) ANLTP/TIM maintains and publicizes a hotline to report trafficking in persons crimes, but the number of calls received by the hotline that involve child trafficking is unknown. In addition, although the exact number of children removed from the worst forms of child labor is unavailable, removal of children from child labor occurs only in extreme cases of exploitation, such as child trafficking or forced labor, according to MELSS. (26,63,64) The government did not provide information on investigations, prosecutions, and convictions for inclusion in this report.

Even though the Nigerien Supreme Court ruled the practice of wahaya is illegal in 2019, reinforcing the 2003 Penal Code that prohibits this practice, research found enforcement to be negligible, that it is still common practice in some parts of the country, and uncovered that there was no evidence of efforts to raise awareness of this ruling during the reporting period. (14-16,30,47) In addition, a civil society organization specializing in assisting victims of hereditary slavery reported that most victims do not come forward or file complaints against their former masters due to a lack of reintegration services and dependency on their former masters. (14,30)

IV. COORDINATION OF GOVERNMENT EFFORTS ON CHILD LABOR

The government has established mechanisms to coordinate its efforts to address child labor (Table 8). However, gaps exist that hinder the effective coordination of efforts to address child labor, including efficacy in accomplishing mandates.

MINIMAL ADVANCEMENT

Table 8. Key Mechanisms to Coordinate Government Efforts on Child Labor

Coordinating Body	Role & Description
National Steering Committee on Child Labor	Coordinates programs, advises on child labor legislation and regulations, and reviews proposals for action plans for the ILO-IPEC country program. Chaired by MELSS. (12,22,55) During the reporting period, ILO engaged with the Steering Committee to continue work on finalizing a National Action Plan to Combat Child Labor. (10)
National Commission to Coordinate Efforts to Combat Trafficking in Persons and Illegal Migrant Transport (CNCLTP/TIM)	Coordinates efforts to combat human trafficking, and develops and implements policies and programs related to human trafficking. (15,22,24,48,58) Includes representatives from MELSS and civil society organizations. (57) During the reporting period, CNCLTP/TIM activities continued, despite the pandemic. (16)
National Committee to Combat Child Labor in Agriculture	Coordinates policies and programs to combat child labor in agriculture. Chaired by the Ministry of Agriculture, includes representatives from MELSS, the Ministry for the Promotion of Women and Child Protection, and non-governmental stakeholders. (65) Research was unable to determine whether the National Committee to Combat Child Labor in Agriculture was active during the reporting period.
Child Protection Committees	Educate the public on the rights of children and limit abuses, including child labor. (14,66) Research was unable to determine whether the Child Protection Committees were active during the reporting period.
Ministry for the Promotion of Women and Child Protection	Works with law enforcement officials to provide vulnerable children with social and reintegration services, including education and counseling, in 54 Centers for Prevention, Promotion, and Protection (CEPPP) across the country. (2,12,15,59)

The government took steps to formalize coordination efforts. (10,15)

V. GOVERNMENT POLICIES ON CHILD LABOR

The government has established policies related to child labor (Table 9). However, policy gaps exist that hinder efforts to address child labor, including coverage of all worst forms of child labor.

Table 9. Key Policies Related to Child Labor

Policy	Description
National Action Plan to Combat Trafficking in Persons (2019–2023)	Aims to enhance the legal framework to prevent human trafficking, adequately implement the laws, and provide effective protection and care for victims, including children. Led by the ANLTP/TIM. (14,67) During the reporting period, several capacity building training workshops were held for judiciary and law enforcement officials. (16)
Plan for Social and Economic Development (2017–2021)	Aims to promote sustainable development and social equality. Overseen by the Ministry of Planning. (22,68) Includes activities to improve access to education for vulnerable populations, especially migrant children, and to combat street work and forced begging by children. (68) Research was unable to determine whether activities were undertaken to implement the Plan for Social and Economic Development as it relates to child labor during the reporting period.
National Social Protection Strategy	Aims to improve the quality of, and access to, basic education and health services; includes strategies to combat child labor. Overseen by the Ministry for the Promotion of Women and Child Protection. (21,69) Research was unable to determine whether activities were undertaken to implement the National Social Protection Strategy as it relates to child labor during the reporting period.
UN Development Assistance Framework (UNDAF) (2019–2021)	Promotes improved access to education for vulnerable children and aims to build government capacity to address child labor. Operates under the direction of the Ministry of Planning and receives support from international donors. (4,70) Research was unable to determine whether activities were undertaken to implement the UN Development Assistance Framework during the reporting period.
Education and Training Sectorial Program (2014–2024)	Sets out a comprehensive map to improve the quality of, and access to, basic and higher education. Led by the Ministry of Education. (22,71,72) Research was unable to determine whether activities were undertaken to implement the Education and Training Sectorial Program during the reporting period.

‡ The government had other policies that may have addressed child labor issues or had an impact on child labor. (22)

During the reporting period the Government of Niger continued to develop the National Action Plan to Combat Child Labor, which was drafted in 2015 and aims to eliminate the worst forms of child labor in Niger by 2025; it has not yet been adopted. (10,15,22,23,73)

VI. SOCIAL PROGRAMS TO ADDRESS CHILD LABOR

In 2020, the government funded and participated in programs that include the goal of eliminating or preventing child labor (Table 10). However, gaps exist in these social programs, including adequacy of efforts to address the problem in all sectors.

Table 10. Key Social Programs to Address Child Labor

Program	Description
Centers for the Prevention, Protection, and Promotion of Persons (CEPPP)†	Government program replacing the Judicial and Preventive Education Services, in collaboration with UNICEF, to provide food, shelter, education, and vocational training to street children, many of whom are victims of child labor. (1,2,74) In 2020, the program continued but research could not find information on activities or how many of the 54 existing centers continue to be open. (4,14,15,59)
Global Action Against Trafficking in Persons and the Smuggling of Migrants	$12.2 million EU-funded global project implemented by UNODC, UNICEF, and IOM to combat human trafficking and migrant smuggling. (75,76)
UNICEF Country Program (2019–2021)	UNICEF-funded program to support the government's efforts to improve children's education, birth registration rates, and social inclusion, and to strengthen child protection programs, including for children of refugees in the Diffa region. (77-79) Research was unable to determine whether activities were undertaken to implement the UNICEF Country Program during the reporting period.
USDOL-Funded Projects	USDOL-funded global projects implemented by the ILO to support global and national efforts aimed at countering child labor and the forced labor of adults and children. Include From Protocol to Practice: A Bridge to Global Action on Forced Labor (The Bridge Project) , and the Measurement, Awareness-Raising, and Policy Engagement (MAP 16) Project on Child Labor and Forced Labor (2019–2021) , a $200,000 program. (82) USDOL-funded global project implemented by ILO to support global and national efforts aimed at combating forced labor of adults and children under the 2014 ILO Protocol and supporting Recommendation to C.29 on Forced Labor. (73,80) The program has been extended through 2021 with additional funding from ILO. (15) Additional information is available on the USDOL website .

Although Niger has programs that target child labor, the scope of these programs is insufficient to fully address the problem, especially in agriculture, herding, mining, and caste-based servitude. Niger also lacks a specific program to assist children exploited by religious instructors. (4,17,24,26,62,81) In addition, the resources and facilities available to social services agencies remain inadequate. (3,4)

VII. SUGGESTED GOVERNMENT ACTIONS TO ELIMINATE CHILD LABOR

Based on the reporting above, suggested actions are identified that would advance the elimination of child labor in Niger (Table 11).

Table 11. Suggested Government Actions to Eliminate Child Labor

Area	Suggested Action	Year(s) Suggested
Legal Framework	Ensure that the law's minimum age for work provisions and protections apply to self-employed children and those in unpaid or non-contractual work.	2015 – 2020
	Establish a compulsory education age equal to the minimum age of employment.	2016 – 2020
Enforcement	Ensure that inspections and enforcement efforts take place in the informal sector, and in remote locations, where most child labor occurs.	2014 – 2020
	Publish complete information on the number of worksite inspections conducted, violations found, penalties imposed and collected, investigations, prosecutions, and convictions related to the worst forms of child labor.	2012 – 2020
	Collect and publish complete information and data about child labor and the worst forms of child labor.	2020
	Increase the resources, including funding and training, and number of labor inspectors and criminal investigators dedicated to enforcing child labor laws to provide adequate coverage of the workforce and meet the ILO's technical advice.	2009 – 2020
	Disaggregate complaints made to the National Agency to Fight Against Trafficking in Persons and Illegal Migrant Transport's hotline so that the number of complaints related to children is known.	2013 – 2020
	Ensure victims of the worst forms of child labor are removed from exploitative situations as appropriate.	2010 – 2020

MINIMAL ADVANCEMENT

Area	Suggested Action	Year(s) Suggested
Enforcement	Publish complete information on the number of criminal investigations conducted, violations found, penalties imposed, or penalties collected related to the worst forms of child labor.	2020
	Ensure that the Nigerien Supreme Court's ruling banning the practice of wahaya is enforced.	2019 – 2020
	Ensure that victims of slavery have access to reintegration services.	2020
Coordination	Ensure all coordinating bodies are able to carry out their intended mandates.	2011 – 2020
Government Policies	Publish activities undertaken to implement the Plan for Social and Economic Development, the National Social Protection Strategy, the UN Development Assistance Framework, and the Education and Training Sectorial Program during the reporting period.	2016 – 2020
	Adopt and implement a national action plan to combat child labor, including in hereditary slavery, mining, and agriculture.	2009 – 2020
Social Programs	Enhance efforts to eliminate barriers and make education accessible for all children, including girls, refugees, internally displaced children, and children in rural communities, by increasing school infrastructure, increasing the number of teachers, and by providing more school supplies.	2013 – 2020
	Publish activities undertaken to implement Centers for the Prevention, Protection, and Promotion of Persons (CEPPP), and the UNICEF Country Program (2019–2021) during the reporting period.	2020
	Expand the scope of programs to address the worst forms of child labor, including in agriculture, herding, mining, and caste-based servitude.	2009 – 2020
	Implement a program to target and assist children exploited by religious instructors.	2011 – 2020
	Ensure that government social services providers have sufficient resources and facilities to provide the necessary care to all children withdrawn from hazardous and forced labor.	2015 – 2020

In 2020, Nigeria made moderate advancement in efforts to eliminate the worst forms of child labor. The Nigerian Government continued to support the National Action Plan for Preventing and Countering Violent Extremism which helps end use and recruitment of child soldiers by identifying and formally separating children from armed groups, including 209 boys and 6 girls in 2020. In addition, the Nigerian Government hired over 400 new labor inspectors and enacted the National Social Behavioral Change Communication Strategy for Elimination of Child Labor in Nigeria (2020–2023). However, children in Nigeria are subjected to the worst forms of child labor, including in quarrying granite, artisanal mining, commercial sexual exploitation, and use in armed conflict, each sometimes as a result of human trafficking. The Child's Right Act has been adopted by only 25 out of Nigeria's 36 states, leaving the remaining 11 states in northern Nigeria with legal statutes that do not meet international standards for the prohibition of child trafficking, commercial sexual exploitation, and illicit activities. In addition, the minimum age for work in the Labour Act does not apply to children who are self-employed or working in the informal economy.

I. PREVALENCE AND SECTORAL DISTRIBUTION OF CHILD LABOR

Children in Nigeria are subjected to the worst forms of child labor, including in quarrying granite, artisanal mining, commercial sexual exploitation, and use in armed conflict, each sometimes as a result of human trafficking. (1-5) Table 1 provides key indicators on children's work and education in Nigeria. Data on some of these indicators are not available from the sources used in this report.

Table 1. Statistics on Children's Work and Education

Children	Age	Percent
Working (% and population)	5 to 14	47.5 (Unavailable)
Attending School (%)	5 to 14	76.6
Combining Work and School (%)	7 to 14	39.9
Primary Completion Rate (%)		Unavailable

Primary completion rate was unavailable from UNESCO Institute for Statistics, 2021. (6)

Source for all other data: International Labor Organization's analysis of statistics from Multiple Indicator Cluster Survey 5 (MICS 5), 2016–2017. (7)

Based on a review of available information, Table 2 provides an overview of children's work by sector and activity.

Table 2. Overview of Children's Work by Sector and Activity

Sector/Industry	Activity
Agriculture	Production of manioc/cassava, cocoa, rice, and tobacco (2,8)
	Fishing, activities unknown (9)
	Herding livestock (8,10)
Industry	Mining and quarrying of granite and gravel (2,10)
	Artisanal gold mining and processing (1,8,10,11)
	Harvesting sand (11)
	Construction, including making bricks and carrying construction materials (2,8,10)
Services	Domestic work (2,8,10,12-14)
	Collecting money on public buses, washing cars, and automotive repair (8,10,12,13)
	Street work, including vending, begging, and scavenging (2,8,10,12,13)

MODERATE ADVANCEMENT

Sector/Industry	Activity
Categorical Worst Forms of Child Labor‡	Commercial sexual exploitation, including use in the production of pornography, sometimes as a result of human trafficking (4,8,12,14,17)
	Forced labor in begging; domestic work; street vending; textile manufacturing; mining and quarrying gravel, granite, and artisanal gold; and labor in agriculture, including in cocoa; each sometimes as a result of human trafficking (4,8,10,14,18)
	Recruitment of children by non-state armed groups for use in armed conflict and in non-conflict support roles, sometimes as a result of human trafficking (10,19)

‡ Child labor understood as the worst forms of child labor per se under Article 3(a)–(c) of ILO C. 182.

Rapid population growth in Nigeria is driving the “informal” education sector, with several million boys in the north going to Quranic schools known as “Almajiri.” The Almajiri system includes a component of child labor, with some teachers tasking older children with menial jobs and other children coerced into forced begging. (5,10) Furthermore, these children are highly vulnerable to recruitment by Boko Haram and ISIS West Africa (ISIS-WA), which continued to forcibly recruit and use child soldiers in combat and support roles, and as suicide bombers and concubines. (5) The government does not officially recognize these schools, and students attending Almajiri schools are officially considered out of school. In April 2020, the Northern Governors’ Forum of Nigeria unanimously agreed to return all Almajiri children to their respective states of origin across the region to stem the spread of COVID-19 and, as of July 2020, more than 40,000 children had been reunited with their families. (10,20)

Benin City, the capital of Edo State, is a major human trafficking hub in Africa, but increased enforcement efforts may have caused some human trafficking rings to shift their focus to other areas of southern Nigeria. (21) Girls from Nigeria are sent to North Africa and Europe for forced labor and commercial sexual exploitation. (22-25) Children from West African countries experience forced labor in Nigeria, including in granite and gold mines. (4,5,26)

Despite notable military advances and proclamations of Boko Haram’s defeat by government forces, the group remained a security threat, with escalating attacks by both Boko Haram and ISIS-WA forcing people out of Nigeria’s northeastern regions and new attacks occurring in the Northwest region. These attacks include a December kidnapping of more than 300 schoolboys from Kankara, a city in the northwest state of Katsina. (27-30) These attacks have contributed to the displacement of more than 2 million people, of which 56 percent were children. (30-32)

Although free and compulsory education is federally mandated by the Education Act, little enforcement of compulsory education laws occurs at the state level. School fees are often charged in practice, and the cost of materials can be prohibitive for families. (8,10) When families experience economic hardship, the enrollment of boys is typically prioritized over the enrollment of girls. Other barriers to education include a lack of trained teachers, sexual harassment, inadequate sanitation facilities, poor infrastructure, and fear of abduction or attack by Boko Haram while at school, particularly for girls in the northeastern part of the country. (8,13,26,32,33)

Although there are no nationwide studies providing definitive information regarding the correlation between lack of identity documents and education, some children are not able to attend public schools because they lack birth certificates or other formal forms of identification. This is most common in the northeastern region and rural areas. (10)

Poverty is the main reason that many children do not attend school, and some parents are unable to afford fees, uniforms, and materials. In addition to the lack of funds, parents also need the children’s assistance in household chores and with caring for younger siblings. (10)

II. LEGAL FRAMEWORK FOR CHILD LABOR

Nigeria has ratified all key international conventions concerning child labor (Table 3).

Table 3. Ratification of International Conventions on Child Labor

Convention	Ratification
 ILO C. 138, Minimum Age	✓
ILO C. 182, Worst Forms of Child Labor	✓
 UN CRC	✓
UN CRC Optional Protocol on Armed Conflict	✓
UN CRC Optional Protocol on the Sale of Children, Child Prostitution and Child Pornography	✓
 Palermo Protocol on Trafficking in Persons	✓

The government has established laws and regulations related to child labor (Table 4). However, gaps exist in Nigeria's legal framework to adequately protect children from the worst forms of child labor, including the minimum age for work.

Table 4. Laws and Regulations on Child Labor

Standard	Meets International Standards	Age	Legislation
Minimum Age for Work	No	12	Section 59(1) of the Labour Act; Sections 28–29 of the Child's Right Act (34,35)
Minimum Age for Hazardous Work	Yes	18	Section 59 (5) and (6) of the Labour Act; Sections 28–29 and 277 of the Child's Right Act (34,35)
Identification of Hazardous Occupations or Activities Prohibited for Children	No		Sections 59–61 of the Labour Act; Section 28 of the Child's Right Act; Section 23 of the Trafficking in Persons (Prohibition) Enforcement and Administration Act (34-36)
Prohibition of Forced Labor	Yes		Sections 13, 22, 24 and 25 of the Trafficking in Persons (Prohibition) Enforcement and Administration Act; Sections 28 and 30 of the Child's Right Act (35,36)
Prohibition of Child Trafficking	No		Section 13 of the Trafficking in Persons (Prohibition) Enforcement and Administration Act; Section 30 of the Child's Right Act (35,36)
Prohibition of Commercial Sexual Exploitation of Children	No		Sections 13–17 of the Trafficking in Persons (Prohibition) Enforcement and Administration Act; Section 23 of the Cybercrimes Act; Sections 30 and 32 of the Child's Right Act (35-37)
Prohibition of Using Children in Illicit Activities	No		Section 19 of the Trafficking in Persons (Prohibition) Enforcement and Administration Act; Sections 25–26 and 30 of the Child's Right Act (35-37)
Minimum Age for Voluntary State Military Recruitment	Yes	18	Section 28 of the Armed Forces Act; Section 34 of the Child's Right Act (35,38)
Prohibition of Compulsory Recruitment of Children by (State) Military	N/A*
Prohibition of Military Recruitment by Non-state Armed Groups	No		Section 19 of the Trafficking in Persons (Prohibition) Enforcement and Administration Act (36)
Compulsory Education Age	Yes	15	Sections 2 and 15 of the Education Act; Section 15 of the Child's Right Act (35,39)
Free Public Education	Yes		Sections 2 and 3 of the Education Act; Section 15 of the Child's Right Act (35,39)

* No conscription (38)

The Child's Right Act (CRA) codifies the rights of children in Nigeria and must be adopted and implemented by each state to become law in its territory. However, only 25 of the 36 states have adopted and implemented the CRA, leaving the 11 remaining states in northern Nigeria with legal statutes that do not meet international standards for the prohibition of child trafficking and commercial sexual exploitation. In these 11 states, laws prohibiting child trafficking do not criminalize both domestic and international trafficking or trafficking for the purpose of forced labor and commercial sexual exploitation; the offering of a child for prostitution

Nigeria

MODERATE ADVANCEMENT

is not criminally prohibited; and there is no prohibition against the use of children in illicit activities. (35-37,40,41) Furthermore, the CRA upholds certain portions of the Labour Act that are not in compliance with international child labor standards. This includes Section 59, which sets the minimum employment age at age 12 in contradiction to the CRA, which only permits children under age 18 to engage in light work for family members. (34,35) The minimum age for work is lower than the compulsory education age, which may encourage children to leave school before the completion of compulsory education. (34,35,39)

Although the Labour Act forbids the employment of youth under age 18 in work that is dangerous to their health, safety, or morals, it does not establish the types of hazardous activity that are prohibited to children under age 18. (34,42) The National Steering Committee for the Elimination of the Worst Forms of Child Labor developed a report in 2013 that identified hazardous child labor in Nigeria; however, the government has yet to determine by law or regulation the types of hazardous work prohibited for children. (2,42) The Labour Act also permits children of any age to do light work in agriculture and domestic work if they are working with a family member, which does not meet international standards. Furthermore, the minimum age protections in the Labour Act do not apply to children who are self-employed or working in the informal economy. (34,42) Lastly, children are not excluded from the Terrorism Prevention Act's penalty of life imprisonment for assisting in acts of terrorism. (43)

In early 2020, through the Accelerating Action for the Elimination of Child Labour in Supply Chains in Africa Project, a review was conducted to amend the Labour Standard Bill to include preventive measures against child labor, a federal-level declaration of the minimum age for employment, regulations for the conditions of work for children within the legal working age, and a review of penalty measures for engagement in child labor for persons and corporations. The new Labour Standard Bill is still waiting to be passed into law. (10)

III. ENFORCEMENT OF LAWS ON CHILD LABOR

The government has established institutional mechanisms for the enforcement of laws and regulations on child labor (Table 5). However, gaps exist within the operations of enforcement agencies that may hinder adequate enforcement of their child labor laws.

Table 5. Agencies Responsible for Child Labor Law Enforcement

Organization/Agency	Role
Labor Inspectorate, Ministry of Labor and Employment	Deploys labor inspectors across 36 state labor offices and the federal capital territory to enforce federal child labor laws. (8,31,44)
National Agency for the Prohibition of Trafficking in Persons and Other Related Matters (NAPTIP)	Enforces laws against human trafficking and exploitative labor. Coordinates with the Ministry of Women's Affairs and Social Development and state governments to provide child victims with social services and reunite trafficked children with their families. (8,14,31) Operates hotlines for victims in Abuja and each zonal command center. (21)
Nigeria Police	Enforce all laws prohibiting forced child labor and commercial sexual exploitation. Collaborate with NAPTIP on human trafficking enforcement. (8)
Nigeria Immigration Service	Collaborates with NAPTIP to enforce laws against child trafficking. (8)
State Taskforce Against Human Trafficking	Enforces the Edo State Trafficking in Persons Prohibition Law and other laws prohibiting trafficking in persons, and investigates all cases of child trafficking and forced child labor. Includes an Investigation and Security Unit tasked with the prevention and detection of human trafficking cases. (26,45)

Labor Law Enforcement

In 2020, labor law enforcement agencies in Nigeria took action to combat child labor (Table 6). However, gaps exist within the operations of the Ministry of Labor and Employment that may hinder adequate labor law enforcement, including human resource allocation.

Table 6. Labor Law Enforcement Efforts Related to Child Labor

Overview of Labor Law Enforcement	2019	2020
Labor Inspectorate Funding	$475,600 (46)	$75,358 (10)
Number of Labor Inspectors	1,415 (46)	1,888 (10)
Inspectorate Authorized to Assess Penalties	Yes (34)	Yes (34)

Number of Child Labor Violations Found	3,937 (46)	3,422 (10)
Number of Child Labor Violations for Which Penalties Were Imposed	147 (46)	88 (10)
Number of Child Labor Penalties Imposed that Were Collected	147 (46)	75 (10)
Routine Inspections Conducted	Yes (46)	Yes (10)
Routine Inspections Targeted	Yes (46)	Yes (10)
Unannounced Inspections Permitted	Yes (34)	Yes (34)
Unannounced Inspections Conducted	Yes (46)	Yes (10)
Complaint Mechanism Exists	Yes (46)	Yes (10)
Reciprocal Referral Mechanism Exists Between Labor Authorities and Social Services	Yes (46)	Yes (10)

Along with the challenges presented by the COVID-19 pandemic, enforcement of child labor laws remained an issue due to the decrease in funding and the lack of resources for inspections, including office facilities, transportation, fuel, and other necessities to carry out the number of inspections deemed necessary. In addition, research did not find mechanisms to enforce existing protections for children in the informal sector. (10,46,47)

Although the Government of Nigeria significantly increased the number of labor inspectors, the total number of labor inspectors is likely insufficient for the size of Nigeria's workforce, which includes approximately 60 million workers. According to the ILO's technical advice of a ratio approaching 1 inspector for every 15,000 workers in industrializing economies, Nigeria would employ about 4,005 labor inspectors. (48,49)

Criminal Law Enforcement

In 2020, criminal law enforcement agencies in Nigeria took actions to combat child labor (Table 7). However, gaps exist within the operations of criminal enforcement agencies that may hinder adequate criminal law enforcement, including the practice of detaining children associated with armed groups.

Table 7. Criminal Law Enforcement Efforts Related to Child Labor

Overview of Criminal Law Enforcement	2019	2020
Initial Training for New Criminal Investigators	Unknown	Yes (10)
Training on New Laws Related to the Worst Forms of Child Labor	N/A	N/A (10)
Refresher Courses Provided	Unknown	Yes (10)
Number of Investigations	467 (46)	381 (50)
Number of Violations Found	3,937 (46)	3,422 (10)
Number of Prosecutions Initiated	285 (46)	40 (50)
Number of Convictions	5 (46)	24 (50)
Imposed Penalties for Violations Related to the Worst Forms of Child Labor	Yes (46)	Yes (50)
Reciprocal Referral Mechanism Exists Between Criminal Authorities and Social Services	Yes (46)	Yes (10)

During the reporting period, 76 children were rescued and removed from forced child labor situations, and 24 of those were referred to social services. (10) In an official memo dated November 2020 from the Ministry of Defense, the government also stated that there were no children in military detention, and since the signing of the memo, children who have been rescued from Boko Haram camps pass through a de-radicalization process that is open to international observers and other interested parties. In 2020, the Civilian Joint Task Force, in conjunction with the UN, has also formally separated 215 children (209 boys, 6 girls) from armed groups and provided additional support for them. (10,51) These efforts were taken in response to past reports of abuse and exploitation within the military's detention system that had occurred in previous years. Several of these reports detail issues of prolonged detentions that were due to the lack of an official handover protocol to ensure the swift transfer of children affected by armed conflict from the custody of security actors to civilian child protection authorities for reintegration. (4,31,47,50,52)

IV. COORDINATION OF GOVERNMENT EFFORTS ON CHILD LABOR

The government has established mechanisms to coordinate its efforts to address child labor (Table 8). However, gaps exist that hinder the effective coordination of efforts to address child labor, including efficacy in accomplishing mandates.

Table 8. Key Mechanisms to Coordinate Government Efforts on Child Labor

Coordinating Body	Role & Description
National Steering Committee for the Elimination of the Worst Forms of Child Labor	Coordinates efforts to combat child labor. Led by the Ministry of Labor and Employment, and comprises representatives from seven governmental agencies, faith-based organizations, NGOs, ILO, and UNICEF. (8,10) Members are charged with leveraging resources for project implementation from their institutions and identifying synergies with other existing programs. (8,10)
State Steering Committee on the Elimination of Child Labor	Operates in the 36 Nigerian States and executes the provisions of the National Action Plan on the Elimination of Child Labour at the sub-national levels. During the reporting period, the State Steering Committee trained media practitioners from the public and private sector on the contents and implementation of the National Social Behavioural Change Communication Strategy. (10)
Inter-Ministerial Taskforce on Trafficking in Persons	Coordinates child labor issues related to human trafficking. Chaired by NAPTIP. The Inter-Ministerial Taskforce on Trafficking in Persons met on an ad hoc basis and helped develop national policies on human trafficking. (8)

In June 2020, the National Steering Committee, in coordination with the State Steering Committee, hosted a virtual commemoration of the 2020 World Day Against Child Labor. The objective was to gather support among Nigerians for government efforts at eliminating child labor. (10,53) Outcomes of this effort were the creation of sustained media awareness about child labor and effective mobilization of critical stakeholders in the fight against child labor. (10,53)

V. GOVERNMENT POLICIES ON CHILD LABOR

The government has established policies related to child labor (Table 9). However, policy gaps exist that hinder efforts to address child labor, including establishing a policy that covers all worst forms of child labor.

Table 9. Key Policies Related to Child Labor

Policy	Description
NAPTIP 2019 Plan of Action	Provides a framework for mobilizing NAPTIP and all stakeholders involved in combating human trafficking, with an emphasis on enforcement, prosecution, and provision of victim services. During the reporting period, NAPTIP supported the work of civil society organizations to increase capacity, coordination, and service provision for countering trafficking in persons. (10,54) In addition, NAPTIP held a consultative forum with international donors, NGOs, and other stakeholders to help develop the 2021–2025 National Action Plan. That process is ongoing. (50,54)
National Social Behavioural Change Communication Strategy for Elimination of Child Labour in Nigeria (2020–2023)†	Combats child labor at the household and community levels through awareness-raising activities. The document was developed, reviewed, and validated for use by stakeholders during the reporting period. (10)
National Action Plan for Preventing and Countering Violent Extremism	Designed to end the recruitment and use of children by the Civilian Joint Task Force (CJTF). Aims to promote the protection of children's rights, ensure that suspects under age 18 are treated in accordance with international law, and provide for disarmament, demobilization, and reintegration for children previously associated with CJTF. (55-57) The UN and CJTF, with the support of the government, have identified and reintegrated more than 1,700 children since 2017, including 215 children (209 boys and 6 girls) in 2020. (10)

‡ The government had other policies that may have included the goal of eliminating or preventing child labor. (10)

Since the signing of the National Action Plan for Preventing and Countering Violent Extremism, the UN has reported nearly no use of children by the Civilian Joint Task Force. The Nigerian military has responded to end the unlawful recruitment and use of child soldiers when isolated incidents are brought to their attention, with some military personnel participating in training programs on children and human rights. (10)

During the reporting period, a National Action Plan on the Elimination of Child Labor was drafted, with the goal of having a document similar to all regional and sub-regional policies and plan of actions on child labor. The document, which is awaiting validation and adoption, incorporated elimination of forced labor and modern slavery. (10)

VI. SOCIAL PROGRAMS TO ADDRESS CHILD LABOR

In 2020, the government funded and participated in programs that include the goal of eliminating or preventing child labor (Table 10). However, gaps exist in these social programs, including the adequacy of efforts to address the problem in all sectors.

Table 10. Key Social Programs to Address Child Labor

Program	Description
NAPTIP Shelters for Human Trafficking Victims†	Government-funded program that operates 10 shelters in Nigeria, with a total capacity of 315 victims. Shelters provide legal, medical, and psychological services, as well as vocational training and business management skills, along with referring victims to NGOs for additional care. (4,5,14) Shelters continued to operate during the reporting period. (4,5,14)
Safe Schools Initiative	Donor-funded program implemented by the government and international organizations that aims to improve access to education in northeastern Nigeria. (58) Research was unable to determine whether this project was active during the reporting period.
Accelerating Action for the Elimination of Child Labor in Supply Chains in Africa (2018–2022)	ILO-sponsored regional project aimed at eliminating child labor in supply chains, with particular focus on those involved in the production of cocoa, coffee, cotton, gold, and tea. Collaborates with global supply chain actors working in Africa on public policy, good governance, empowerment, representation, partnership, and knowledge sharing. (59) During the reporting period, the project performed a legal review of child labor-related issues and assisted with events undertaken by the National and State Steering Committees. (10)
Measurement, Awareness-Raising, and Policy Engagement Project on Child Labor and Forced Labor	USDOL-funded project implemented by ILO to conduct research and develop new survey methodologies, improve awareness, strengthen policies and government capacity, and promote partnerships to combat child labor and forced labor. In Nigeria, the project has supported the collection of data on child labor and forced labor. (60) Additional information is available on the USDOL website .
World Bank-Funded Programs	Projects aim to improve access to education. Includes: National Social Safety Nets Project (2016–2022), a $50 million project that aims to provide primary school lunches and offers conditional cash transfers based on children's enrollment, and the Better Education Service Delivery for All (2017–2022), a $611 million project that aims to increase access to education for out-of-school youth and improve literacy. (61–63) In 2020, the National Social Safety Nets Project continued working to enroll beneficiaries in 33 states across the country. To date, approximately 1.2 million poor or vulnerable households have been enrolled in the cash transfer program. (61) The Better Education Service Delivery for All project helped reduce the number of out-of-school children by 924,590, of which 633,772 were girls. (63)

The state ministries of education supported distance learning through radio programs that allowed limited formal education. Radio-based distance learning is a modality used to increase access to learning both for hard-to-reach areas and for vulnerable children with restricted access to in-school learning, and it is one of the primary means by which the educational community has addressed the continuation of learning throughout the Federal closure of schools in Nigeria due to the pandemic. (10) USAID supported distance learning in Adamawa, Bauchi, Borno, Gombe, Sokoto, and Yobe states during the pandemic-related school closures. (10)

In addition, USAID also issued a 5 year award entitled "Strengthening Civic Advocacy and Local Engagement (SCALE)." Working with the National Agency for the Prohibition of Trafficking in Persons and Other Related Matters, this program will focus on countering trafficking in persons by supporting the work of civil society organizations to increase capacity, coordination, and service provision for countering trafficking in persons. (10)

Nigeria

MODERATE ADVANCEMENT

There are increasing concerns regarding the conditions in shelters housing human trafficking victims. These conditions include poor housing facilities, a lack of food, and insufficient stipends, along with reports of victims being held against their will for extended periods at shelters run by the National Agency for the Prohibition of Trafficking in Persons and Other Related Matters. (47,64)

In addition, research found no evidence of programs to address all relevant worst forms of child labor, including the use of children in armed conflict, quarrying granite, artisanal mining, and commercial sexual exploitation.

VII. SUGGESTED GOVERNMENT ACTIONS TO ELIMINATE CHILD LABOR

Based on the reporting above, suggested actions are identified that would advance the elimination of child labor in Nigeria (Table I I).

Table I I. Suggested Government Actions to Eliminate Child Labor

Area	Suggested Action	Year(s) Suggested
Legal Framework	Raise the minimum age for work to the age up to which education is compulsory, and ensure that national legislation on the minimum age for work is consistent so that all children are protected, including those in the informal sector.	2012 – 2020
	Ensure that the types of work determined to be hazardous for children are prohibited by law or regulation for all children under age 18.	2009 – 2020
	Ensure that laws in all states criminalize both domestic and international trafficking or trafficking for the purpose of forced labor and commercial sexual exploitation.	2019 – 2020
	Criminalize the offering of a child for prostitution in all states.	2019 – 2020
	Ensure that using, procuring, and offering a child for the production and trafficking of drugs are criminally prohibited in all states.	2015 – 2020
	Ensure that the law criminally prohibits the recruitment of children under age 18 by non-state armed groups.	2016 – 2020
	Ensure that provisions related to light work conform to international standards.	2009 – 2020
	Amend the Terrorism Prevention Act to prohibit the punishment of children for their association with armed groups.	2016 – 2020
Enforcement	Significantly increase the number of labor inspectors to meet the ILO's technical advice.	2016 – 2020
	Ensure that labor inspectors receive sufficient resources to enforce child labor laws.	2016 – 2020
	Ensure that a mechanism exists for enforcing existing protections for children working in the informal sector.	2009 – 2020
	Sign and implement a protocol to ensure the swift transfer of children affected by armed conflict from the custody of security actors to civilian child protection authorities for reintegration.	2020
	Ensure that there are penalties imposed for the worst forms of child labor.	2020
	Cease the practice of detaining children associated with armed groups for prolonged periods and refer these children to social services providers.	2016 – 2020
Coordination	Ensure that all coordinating bodies are active and able to carry out their mandates as intended.	2018 – 2020
Government Policies	Adopt a policy that addresses all relevant worst forms of child labor, including the commercial sexual exploitation of children and forced child labor in granite, gravel, and cocoa production.	2018 – 2020
Social Programs	Ensure that all states adopt programs to offer free education, and expand existing programs that provide funds to vulnerable children, especially girls, to cover school fees and the cost of materials.	2014 – 2020
	Make additional efforts to provide all children with birth documentation.	2020
	Ensure that there is an adequate number of trained teachers and provide sufficient educational infrastructure for children, particularly girls, to access schools.	2015 – 2020
	Conduct research to gather comprehensive data on child labor, including activities carried out by children working in fishing, to inform policies and programs.	2020
	Ensure that the National Agency for the Prohibition of Trafficking in Persons and related agencies provide appropriate facilities and resources to victims, and that victims are not held against their will in shelters.	2019 – 2020
	Establish programs that prevent and remove children from all relevant worst forms of child labor, including armed conflict, commercial sexual exploitation, and illicit activities.	2009 – 2020
	Ensure that all social programs are active and pursuing their mandates.	2020

Although research found no evidence that child labor exists in Niue, in 2020 the government made no advancement in efforts to prevent the worst forms of child labor. The government has not established adequate legal protections to prevent the worst forms of child labor. The law does not criminally prohibit the use, procuring, or offering of a child for prostitution, the production of pornography, or pornographic performances, or the use of children for illicit activities, including for the production and trafficking of drugs. In addition, Niue has not established a minimum age for work and lacks a law that prohibits hazardous occupations and activities for children.

I. PREVALENCE AND SECTORAL DISTRIBUTION OF CHILD LABOR

Research found no evidence that child labor exists in Niue. Table I provides one key indicator on children's education in Niue. Data on key indicators on children's work are not available from the sources used in this report.

Table I. Statistics on Children's Work and Education

Children	Age	Percent
Primary Completion Rate (%)		111.5

Source for primary completion rate: Data from 2016, published by UNESCO Institute for Statistics, 2021. (1)

II. LEGAL FRAMEWORK FOR CHILD LABOR

Niue is self-governing in free association with New Zealand and is fully responsible for its internal affairs. (2,3) Since 1988, no treaty signed, ratified, accepted, approved, or acceded to by New Zealand extends to Niue, unless it was done expressly on behalf of Niue. (3) Niue has ratified one key international convention concerning child labor (Table 2).

Table 2. Ratification of International Conventions on Child Labor

Convention	Ratification
 ILO C. 138, Minimum Age
 ILO C. 182, Worst Forms of Child Labor
 UN CRC	✓
 UN CRC Optional Protocol on Armed Conflict
 UN CRC Optional Protocol on the Sale of Children, Child Prostitution and Child Pornography
 Palermo Protocol on Trafficking in Persons

The government has established laws and regulations related to child labor (Table 3). However, gaps exist in Niue's legal framework to adequately protect children from the worst forms of child labor, including the prohibition of using children in illicit activities.

Table 3. Laws and Regulations on Child Labor

Standard	Meets International Standards	Age	Legislation
Minimum Age for Work	No		Article 24 of the Niue Public Service Regulations (4)
Minimum Age for Hazardous Work	No
Identification of Hazardous Occupations or Activities Prohibited for Children	No
Prohibition of Forced Labor	No
Prohibition of Child Trafficking	No		Articles 3 and 37 of the Terrorism Suppression and Transnational Crimes Act (5)
Prohibition of Commercial Sexual Exploitation of Children	No

NO ADVANCEMENT

Standard	Meets International Standards	Age	Legislation
Prohibition of Using Children in Illicit Activities	No

Prohibition of Compulsory Recruitment of Children by (State) Military	N/A*†
Prohibition of Military Recruitment by Non-state Armed Groups	No
Compulsory Education Age	Yes	16	Articles 2 and 24 of the Education Act (7)
Free Public Education	Yes		Article 19 of the Education Act (7)

* No conscription (8)

† No standing military (9)

Although Niue's Public Service Regulations prohibit the permanent employment of any person under age 18 in public service, a minimum age for work in the private sector has not been established. (4,10) Niue has not determined the types of work that are hazardous for children. The government also does not prohibit slavery or slavery-like practices such as forced labor. (11) Niue's human trafficking provision does not clearly criminalize domestic trafficking or the trafficking of children in the absence of force, fraud, or coercion. (5) In addition, the government does not criminalize the use, procuring, or offering of children for prostitution, pornography, or pornographic performances. Niue has also not criminalized the use of children in illicit activities, including in the production and trafficking of drugs. (10) Although there are no armed forces in Niue, the law does not criminally prohibit non-state armed groups from recruiting children under age 18. (10) New Zealand is responsible for Niue's defense at the territory's request and consultation. (6,9)

III. ENFORCEMENT OF LAWS ON CHILD LABOR

As there is no evidence of a problem, there appears to be no need for enforcement actions to address child labor, including its worst forms. However, the Government of Niue has established relevant institutional mechanisms for the enforcement of laws and regulations on child labor (Table 4).

Table 4. Agencies Responsible for Child Labor Law Enforcement

Organization/Agency	Role
Niue Police Department	Enforces all laws, including those related to child labor, on behalf of the Government of Niue. (3)
Department of Justice	Investigates crimes, including cases involving the worst forms of child labor. (12)
Department for Community Affairs	Handles case intake and referral of children's matters to the Niue Police Department, including allegations of child labor. (3)

IV. COORDINATION OF GOVERNMENT EFFORTS ON CHILD LABOR

As there is no evidence of a problem, there appears to be no need for mechanisms to coordinate efforts to address child labor. However, the Government of Niue has established a mechanism to coordinate efforts related to child labor (Table 5).

Table 5. Key Mechanisms to Coordinate Government Efforts on Child Labor

Coordinating Body	Role & Description
National Coordinating Committee	Coordinates the implementation of the UN CRC, monitoring and implementing child protection policies at the national level. (3) Research was unable to determine whether the National Coordinating Committee was active during the reporting period.

V. GOVERNMENT POLICIES ON CHILD LABOR

As there is no evidence of a problem, there appears to be no need for policies to address child labor. However, the Government of Niue has established a policy related to child labor (Table 6).

Table 6. Key Policies Related to Child Labor

Policy	Description
UN Pacific Strategy (2018–2022)	A multi-national strategic framework program consisting of 14 South Pacific nations to address, develop, and implement strategic economic development priorities in the South Pacific, including eliminating child labor and the worst forms of child labor. (13) Research was unable to determine whether activities were undertaken to implement the UN Pacific Strategy during the reporting period.

VI. SOCIAL PROGRAMS TO ADDRESS CHILD LABOR

As there is no evidence of a problem, there appears to be no need for programs to address child labor.

VII. SUGGESTED GOVERNMENT ACTIONS TO ELIMINATE CHILD LABOR

Based on the reporting above, the following actions would advance the continued prevention of child labor in Niue (Table 7).

Table 7. Suggested Government Actions to Eliminate Child Labor

Area	Suggested Action	Year(s) Suggested
Legal Framework	Establish a minimum age for work of at least age 15 that equals the compulsory age of education.	2013 – 2020
	Establish age 18 as the minimum age for hazardous work and determine the types of hazardous work prohibited for children under age 18 in consultation with employer's and workers' organizations.	2013 – 2020
	Ensure that laws criminally prohibit forced labor, including debt bondage, the sale and trafficking of children, and slavery.	2016 – 2020
	Ensure that laws criminally prohibit the trafficking of children domestically and internationally for commercial sexual exploitation and forced labor, and do not require the use of force, fraud, or coercion to be established for the crime of human trafficking.	2016 – 2020
	Ensure that laws criminally prohibit the use, procuring, and offering of a child for prostitution, the production of pornography, and pornographic performances.	2016 – 2020
	Ensure that laws criminally prohibit the use of children in illicit activities, including in the production and trafficking of drugs.	2013 – 2020
	Ensure that the law criminally prohibits the recruitment of children under age 18 into non-state armed groups.	2016 – 2020
	Ratify ILO C.182.	2019 – 2020
Coordination	Ensure the National Coordinating Committee is able to carry out its intended mandate.	2020
Government Policies	Publish activities undertaken to implement the United Nations Pacific Strategy during the reporting period.	2020

Although research found no evidence that child labor exists on Norfolk Island, in 2020, the government made moderate advancement in efforts to prevent the worst forms of child labor. The Government of Australia adopted a new National Action Plan to Combat Human Trafficking and Slavery 2020–2025. The federal government also published a Modern Slavery Statement that discussed efforts to reduce child labor and human trafficking risks in federal government operations and procurement supply chains. However, Norfolk Island's laws do not set a minimum age for light work, which is not in compliance with international standards. In addition, the law does not specify activities in which light work may be permitted.

I. PREVALENCE AND SECTORAL DISTRIBUTION OF CHILD LABOR

Research found no evidence that child labor exists on Norfolk Island. (1)

II. LEGAL FRAMEWORK FOR CHILD LABOR

Norfolk Island is non-self governing and is included as part of the territory of the Australian Commonwealth. (1-3) Under the Acts Interpretation Act 1901 (Cth), all laws of the Commonwealth are applicable to Norfolk Island as if it were a part of mainland Australia. (4) The following conventions, which have been ratified by Australia, have therefore been extended to Norfolk Island (Table 1).

Table 1. Ratification of International Conventions on Child Labor

Convention	Ratification
 ILO C. 138, Minimum Age
ILO C. 182, Worst Forms of Child Labor	✓
 UN CRC	✓
UN CRC Optional Protocol on Armed Conflict	✓
UN CRC Optional Protocol on the Sale of Children, Child Prostitution and Child Pornography	✓
 Palermo Protocol on Trafficking in Persons	✓

Norfolk Island is subject to the laws and regulations related to child labor of the Commonwealth of Australia and some of the laws and regulations related to child labor of the state of New South Wales. Some laws specific to Norfolk Island also remain in force (Table 2). However, gaps exist in Norfolk Island's legal framework to adequately protect children from the worst forms of child labor, including the minimum age for light work.

Table 2. Laws and Regulations on Child Labor

Standard	Meets International Standards	Age	Legislation
Minimum Age for Voluntary State Military Recruitment	Yes	18	Canberra Act 2600 (13)
Prohibition of Compulsory Recruitment of Children by (State) Military	N/A*		Canberra Act 2600 (13)
Prohibition of Military Recruitment by Non-state Armed Groups	Yes		Sections 268.68 and 268.88 of the Criminal Code Act 1995 (Cth) (9)
Compulsory Education Age	Yes	17	Section 21(B) of the Education Act 1990 (NSW) (NI); Schedule IAA of the Norfolk Island Applied Laws Ordinance 2016 (6,14)
Free Public Education	Yes		Section 31 of the Education Act 1990 (NSW) (NI) (15)

The Education Act 1990 (NSW) (NI) defines the compulsory education age as 17, or the age at which a child completes Year 10 of compulsory schooling. The law restricts employment for children who have not yet completed compulsory schooling, and allows children under age 17 who have completed Year 10 to engage in approved employment. (5,14)

The Employment Act 1988 (NI) does not set a minimum age for light work, which is not in compliance with international standards. In addition, the law does not specify activities in which light work may be permitted. (5) However, local authorities have reported that no children under age 15 are currently employed in Norfolk Island. (1)

III. ENFORCEMENT OF LAWS ON CHILD LABOR

Although there is no evidence of a problem, the Government of Australia has established institutional mechanisms for the enforcement of laws and regulations on child labor, which apply to Norfolk Island. Norfolk Island also has its own institutional mechanisms to enforce labor laws and regulations on child labor (Table 3).

Table 3. Agencies Responsible for Child Labor Law Enforcement

Organization/Agency	Role
Norfolk Island Labor Inspectors	Inspect places of employment for violations. Authorized to issue stop-work orders when violations are found, including child labor violations. (1,5)
Child Welfare Officers	Enforce laws prohibiting commercial sexual exploitation of children. Provide outreach and establish community programs to raise awareness about commercial sexual exploitation of children. (16)
Australian Federal Police	Enforce criminal laws related to the worst forms of child labor. (1,17) Oversee the Child Protection Operations Team, which coordinates and investigates online and multi-jurisdictional child sexual exploitation issues, including child pornography; and the Human Trafficking Teams, which investigate human trafficking for the purposes of transnational sexual and labor exploitation. (18,19)

Labor Law Enforcement

As there is no evidence of a problem, there appears to be no need for labor law enforcement actions to address child labor.

Criminal Law Enforcement

As there is no evidence of a problem, there appears to be no need for criminal law enforcement actions to address child labor.

IV. COORDINATION OF GOVERNMENT EFFORTS ON CHILD LABOR

Although there is no evidence of a problem, the Government of Australia has established mechanisms to coordinate government efforts on child labor (Table 4).

Table 4. Key Mechanisms to Coordinate Government Efforts on Child Labor

Coordinating Body	Role & Description
Inter-Departmental Committee (IDC) on Human Trafficking	Deals with child labor issues, including its worst forms, from a counter-trafficking perspective. Comprises 12 government agencies, including the Australian Federal Police, Department of Employment, and Department of Foreign Affairs, and is chaired by the Australian Border Force. (1,19) Includes an Operational Working Group subcommittee that meets monthly and refers emerging policy issues for IDC consideration. (1) In 2020, the IDC met twice in plenary sessions and held sub-group meetings at the operational level approximately every 6 weeks. The Committee's work during the reporting period focused on developing the updated National Action Plan to Combat Human Trafficking and Slavery 2020–2025. (1)

In June 2020, the Inter-Departmental Committee on Human Trafficking provided the Australian Government's first annual report to parliament on implementation of the Modern Slavery Act, which establishes requirements for businesses and organizations to report on efforts to reduce the risk of human trafficking and the worst forms of child labor in their supply chains. In December 2020, the government published its own Modern Slavery Statement that discussed efforts to reduce child labor and human trafficking risks in federal government operations and procurement supply chains. (1,20)

V. GOVERNMENT POLICIES ON CHILD LABOR

As there is no evidence of a problem, there appears to be no need for government policies to address child labor. However, the Government of Australia has established policies related to child labor (Table 5).

Table 5. Key Policies Related to Child Labor

Policy	Description
National Action Plan to Combat Human Trafficking and Slavery 2020–2025†	Sets five strategic priorities for addressing modern slavery, which the National Action Plan defines as trafficking in persons, slavery, slavery-like practices, and the worst forms of child labor. Priorities include: (a) prevention; (b) disruption, investigation, and prosecution; (c) support and protection for victims; (d) partnerships; and (e) research. (1,21)

† Policy was approved during the reporting period.

VI. SOCIAL PROGRAMS TO ADDRESS CHILD LABOR

As there is no evidence of a problem, there appears to be no need for programs to address child labor.

However, federal cash transfer programs for youth and families are available to residents of Norfolk Island. These programs were active in 2020 and may have assisted in preventing child labor on Norfolk Island during the reporting period. (1)

VII. SUGGESTED GOVERNMENT ACTIONS TO ELIMINATE CHILD LABOR

Based on the reporting above, the following actions would advance the continued prevention of child labor in Norfolk Island (Table 6).

Table 6. Suggested Government Actions to Eliminate Child Labor

Area	Suggested Action	Year(s) Suggested
Legal Framework	Establish a minimum age for light work to comply with international standards.	2020
	Ensure that the law's light work provisions specify the activities in which light work may be undertaken.	2020

In 2020, North Macedonia made moderate advancement in efforts to eliminate the worst forms of child labor. The Ministry of Education and Science continued to hire additional educational mediators with the goal of removing barriers to education for the most vulnerable populations, including Roma children. Parliament also amended the Law on Labor Relations to increase fines on employers that fail to provide adequate protections to workers under age 18. In addition, the Ministry of Labor and Social Policy developed Action Plan 2020–2022 in accordance with the National Strategy to Protect Children from All Forms of Abuse. However, children in North Macedonia are subjected to the worst forms of child labor, including in forced begging and commercial sexual exploitation, each sometimes as a result of human trafficking. The law’s minimum age protections do not apply to children who are self-employed or working outside formal employment relationships. Additionally, the government has not adopted a policy to address all worst forms of child labor.

I. PREVALENCE AND SECTORAL DISTRIBUTION OF CHILD LABOR

Children in North Macedonia are subjected to the worst forms of child labor, including in forced begging and commercial sexual exploitation, each sometimes as a result of human trafficking. (1,2,3,4) Table 1 provides key indicators on children’s work and education in North Macedonia. Data on some of these indicators are not available from the sources used in this report.

Table 1. Statistics on Children’s Work and Education

Children	Age	Percent
Working (% and population)	5 to 14	18.8 (Unavailable)
Attending School (%)	5 to 14	97.6
Combining Work and School (%)	7 to 14	20.6
Primary Completion Rate (%)		93.4

Source for primary completion rate: Data from 2018, published by UNESCO Institute for Statistics, 2021. (5)

Source for all other data: International Labor Organization’s analysis of statistics from Multiple Indicator Cluster Survey 6 (MICS 6), 2019. (6)

Based on a review of available information, Table 2 provides an overview of children’s work by sector and activity.

Table 2. Overview of Children’s Work by Sector and Activity

Sector/Industry	Activity
Agriculture	Farming, activities unknown (1,3,7)
Services	Street work, including vending small items, cleaning vehicle windshields, scavenging, and begging (3,7,8)
Categorical Worst Forms of Child Labor‡	Commercial sexual exploitation, sometimes as a result of human trafficking (3,7,9,10)
	Forced begging, sometimes as a result of human trafficking (3,8,10,11)
	Domestic work as a result of human trafficking (2,12,13)
	Forced labor as wait staff and dancers in restaurants, bars, and nightclubs (4,7,10)

‡ Child labor understood as the worst forms of child labor per se under Article 3(a)–(c) of ILO C. 182.

Most children involved in child labor in North Macedonia engage in street work, including vending small items, cleaning vehicle windshields, and begging. The majority of children involved in street work are of the Roma, Balkan Egyptian, and Ashkali ethnicities. (3,8,10)

North Macedonia

MODERATE ADVANCEMENT

Child trafficking victims in North Macedonia are usually girls, between the ages of 12 to 18, who have been subjected to domestic trafficking for commercial sexual exploitation and forced labor in restaurants, bars, and nightclubs. (3,7,14,15) Roma girls, especially, are victims of trafficking for forced marriages in which they are subject to sexual and labor exploitation. (3,10,11,16) Migrant children from Afghanistan, Bangladesh, Iran, Syria, Pakistan, and other states continued to transit through the country and were vulnerable to trafficking for labor and commercial sexual exploitation. (10,17-19)

The Ministry of Labor and Social Policy (MLSP), schools, and civil society organizations offer assistance to Roma children who have difficulty accessing education due to a lack of birth registration and identity cards, which are required for attending school in North Macedonia. (3) However, the government was unable to fully meet the educational needs of Roma children due to an ongoing shortage of qualified teachers who can provide instruction in Romani. (20)

II. LEGAL FRAMEWORK FOR CHILD LABOR

North Macedonia has ratified all key international conventions concerning child labor (Table 3).

Table 3. Ratification of International Conventions on Child Labor

Convention	Ratification
 ILO C. 138, Minimum Age	✓
ILO C. 182, Worst Forms of Child Labor	✓
 UN CRC	✓
UN CRC Optional Protocol on Armed Conflict	✓
UN CRC Optional Protocol on the Sale of Children, Child Prostitution and Child Pornography	✓
 Palermo Protocol on Trafficking in Persons	✓

The government has established laws and regulations related to child labor (Table 4). However, gaps exist in North Macedonia's legal framework to adequately protect children from the worst forms of child labor, including the minimum age for work.

Table 4. Laws and Regulations on Child Labor

Standard	Meets International Standards	Age	Legislation
Minimum Age for Work	No	15	Article 42 of the Constitution; Sections 63 and 66–67 of the Labour Relations Act (21,22)
Minimum Age for Hazardous Work	Yes	18	Sections 63 and 66–67 of the Labour Relations Act (22)
Identification of Hazardous Occupations or Activities Prohibited for Children	Yes		Rulebook on the Minimum Occupational Safety and Health Requirements for Young Workers (23)
Prohibition of Forced Labor	Yes		Article 11 of the Constitution; Article 418 (c-d) of the Criminal Code (21,24)
Prohibition of Child Trafficking	Yes		Article 418 (c-d) of the Criminal Code (24)
Prohibition of Commercial Sexual Exploitation of Children	Yes		Articles 190–193-b of the Criminal Code (24)
Prohibition of Using Children in Illicit Activities	No		Article 12(3) of the Law on Child Protection (25)
Minimum Age for Voluntary State Military Recruitment	Yes	18	Article 62 of the Law on Defense (26)

Standard	Meets International Standards	Age	Legislation
Prohibition of Compulsory Recruitment of Children by (State) Military	N/A*		Article 62 of the Law on Defense (26)
Prohibition of Military Recruitment by Non-state Armed Groups	Yes		Articles 122, 322-a, and 404 of the Criminal Code (24)
Compulsory Education Age	Yes	16	Articles 4, 5, 47, 58 and 172 of the Law on Primary Education; Article 3 of the Law on Secondary Education (27,28)
Free Public Education	Yes		Article 44 of the Constitution (21)

* No conscription (26)

During the reporting period, an amendment to Article 265 of the Law on Labor Relations increased fines on employers who signed contracts or otherwise enabled employment of young people against the stipulations of Section 63 of the Law, which indicates that minors should not perform strenuous physical labor (including underground or underwater work). (3,22) An amendment to the Labor Relations Act increased fines issued to employers who fail to provide proper protections to workers under age 18, in addition to those who employ minors under age 15 who are considered to be in ill health. (3) However, the minimum age for work does not comply with international standards because the law's minimum age protections do not apply to children who are self-employed or working outside formal employment relationships. (3,20,22) Because the minimum age for work is lower than the compulsory education age, children may be encouraged to leave school before the completion of compulsory education. Additionally, the legal framework does not prohibit the use of children in illicit activities. (20)

III. ENFORCEMENT OF LAWS ON CHILD LABOR

The government has established institutional mechanisms for the enforcement of laws and regulations on child labor (Table 5). However, gaps exist within the operations of enforcement agencies that may hinder adequate enforcement of their child labor laws.

Table 5. Agencies Responsible for Child Labor Law Enforcement

Organization/Agency	Role
Ministry of Labor and Social Policy (MLSP)	Collaborates with the police and the Ombudsman's Office to conduct investigations and identify children living and working on the streets, and monitors cases of forced child labor through the Department of Social Inclusion. (29,7) Refers children to 30 Centers for Social Work throughout the country, which serve to counsel, educate, shelter, and assist children in need and victims of trafficking in persons. (29,30)
State Labor Inspectorate	Enforces labor law, including child labor laws, by conducting at least 60 targeted and complaint-based cases per month. Receives complaints of child labor from MLSP and refers cases of the worst forms of child labor to the Public Prosecutor. (3) Responsible for enforcing all labor laws, including laws on child labor, in all sectors of the formal economy and can assess fines at any point of the inspection. (3)
Ministry of Interior (MOI)	Enforces laws related to hazardous child labor, child trafficking, commercial sexual exploitation, and the use of children in illicit activities through its special police unit for organized crime, corruption, and human trafficking. (3,4,7,15)
Public Prosecutor's Office	Prosecutes criminal law violations, including those involving the worst forms of child labor. (3) Has an Organized Crime and Corruption Unit with four prosecutors dedicated to cases of child abuse and the worst forms of child labor. The Skopje Public Prosecutor's Office has eight prosecutors for child abuse cases. (13)
National Unit for the Suppression of Migrant Smuggling and Human Trafficking (NUSMSHT; also known as Anti-Trafficking in Persons Task Force)	Established by MOI and led by a public prosecutor. (3,4)

MODERATE ADVANCEMENT

North Macedonia's National Referral Mechanism enables law enforcement authorities and social services around the country to properly refer children found to be involved the worst forms of child labor, including forced child labor, child trafficking, and illicit activities. The National Referral Mechanism also allows civil society and government institutions to coordinate activities related to the protection, care, rehabilitation, and eventual reintegration of minor victims. (3)

Labor Law Enforcement

In 2020, labor law enforcement agencies in North Macedonia took actions to combat child labor (Table 6). However, gaps exist within the operations of the State Labor Inspectorate that may hinder adequate labor law enforcement, including financial resource allocation.

Table 6. Labor Law Enforcement Efforts Related to Child Labor

Overview of Labor Law Enforcement	2019	2020
Labor Inspectorate Funding	$1,900,000 (7)	$2,300,000 (3)
Number of Labor Inspectors	78 (7)	114 (3)
Inspectorate Authorized to Assess Penalties	Yes (7)	Yes (22)
Initial Training for New Labor Inspectors	Yes (7)	Yes (3)
Training on New Laws Related to Child Labor	No (7)	Yes (3)
Refresher Courses Provided	Yes (7)	Yes (3)
Number of Labor Inspections Conducted	11,749 (7)	15,944 (3)
Number Conducted at Worksites	11,749 (7)	15,944 (3)
Number of Child Labor Violations Found	1 (7)	0 (3)
Number of Child Labor Violations for Which Penalties Were Imposed	0 (7)	N/A (3)
Number of Child Labor Penalties Imposed that Were Collected	0 (7)	N/A (3)
Routine Inspections Conducted	Yes (7)	Yes (3)
Routine Inspections Targeted	Yes (7)	Yes (3)
Unannounced Inspections Permitted	Yes (7)	Yes (3)
Unannounced Inspections Conducted	Yes (7)	Yes (3)
Complaint Mechanism Exists	Yes (7)	Yes (3)
Reciprocal Referral Mechanism Exists Between Labor Authorities and Social Services	Yes (7)	Yes (3)

The Labor Inspectorate has an annual plan that determines the number of regular inspections to be conducted during the calendar year. (3) Unannounced inspections in all sectors are permitted, including on legally registered private farms. (7,31) Inspectors can also inspect private homes and farms with a valid warrant. (29)

In 2020, all labor inspectors received training on labor laws. The number of labor inspectors rose from 78 to 114, increasing the number of inspections conducted during the reporting period. (3) Although the Labor Inspectorate's funding also increased during the reporting period, some government officials indicated that it is an insufficient amount for training new labor inspectors. (3) In addition, a senior government official expressed concern that 60 percent of current inspectors will reach retirement age in the next 1 to 2 years. (3,7)

The MLSP lacks a central database to track labor investigations; however, inspection results are disseminated throughout relevant departments within the MLSP. (15)

Criminal Law Enforcement

In 2020, criminal law enforcement agencies in North Macedonia took actions to combat child labor (Table 7). However, gaps exist within the operations of the criminal enforcement agencies that may hinder adequate criminal law enforcement, including investigation planning.

Table 7. Criminal Law Enforcement Efforts Related to Child Labor

Overview of Criminal Law Enforcement	2019	2020
Initial Training for New Criminal Investigators	Yes (7)	No (3)
Training on New Laws Related to the Worst Forms of Child Labor	Yes (7)	N/A (3)
Refresher Courses Provided	Yes (7)	Yes (3)
Number of Investigations	Unknown	37 (3)
Number of Violations Found	4 (7)	37 (3)
Number of Prosecutions Initiated	4 (7)	29 (3)
Number of Convictions	Unknown	25 (3)
Imposed Penalties for Violations Related to the Worst Forms of Child Labor	Unknown	Yes (3)
Reciprocal Referral Mechanism Exists Between Criminal Authorities and Social Services	Yes (7)	Yes (3)

In North Macedonia, legal requirements mandate that public prosecutors receive a 24-month general training, which includes the application of international legal standards. (15) Police investigators normally receive initial training, in addition to training when legislation changes. (1) In 2020, initial trainings on child labor were suspended for prosecutors, investigators, and expert associates from the Public Prosecutor's Office due to unfavorable conditions related to the COVID-19 pandemic. (3,4) During the reporting period, investigators and Public Prosecutor's Office representatives received specialized refresher training from the Anti-Trafficking in Persons Task Force, which also provided training on migrant smuggling and human trafficking to social workers, labor inspectors, NGOs, and civil society members. (7)

The "Red Button" Hotline is a Ministry of the Interior-operated website application to report child abuse, human trafficking, hate crimes, and violence. The hotline was created to improve identification and timely referral of human trafficking cases, especially among migrants. (3) However, research indicates that some local police were not aware of the specialized Anti-Trafficking in Persons Task Force, nor did they possess knowledge on handling trafficking in persons cases. The lack of a digital case management system within the Ministry of the Interior contributed to this, as local police did not have the ability to quickly transfer suspected human trafficking cases from their jurisdiction to relevant national authorities in a timely fashion. (3,4)

In 2020, three reports related to trafficking in persons were received and referred to the Anti-Trafficking in Persons Task Force for investigation, and government authorities identified six minor victims of trafficking. The Anti-Trafficking in Persons Task Force used Section 418-d of the Criminal Code to file criminal charges against two individuals suspected of child trafficking. (3,4) In addition, the Public Prosecutor's Office launched five investigations against individuals suspected of child trafficking for sexual exploitation. During the reporting period, sentences issued to those convicted of crimes related the worst forms of child labor ranged from suspended sentences to 9 years in prison depending on the severity of the violation. (3,4)

In 2020, criminal investigators operating in their home agencies had sufficient resources to carry out their duties. However, the Anti-Trafficking in Persons Task Force does not have separate funding or assets and lacks adequate equipment, vehicles, and office space, which hinders its efforts to perform investigations and meet the needs of identified victims. (3)

IV. COORDINATION OF GOVERNMENT EFFORTS ON CHILD LABOR

The government has established mechanisms to coordinate its efforts to address child labor (Table 8). However, gaps exist that hinder the effective coordination of efforts to address child labor, including a lack of human resources.

North Macedonia

MODERATE ADVANCEMENT

Table 8. Key Mechanisms to Coordinate Government Efforts on Child Labor

Coordinating Body	Role & Description
National Commission for Prevention and Countering Abuse and Neglect of Children	Led by MLSP in conjunction with the Ministries of Interior, Education and Science, Health, and Justice, UNICEF, and multiple NGOs around the country. (1,3) During the reporting period, the National Commission prepared the 2020–2022 Action Plan associated with the National Strategy for Prevention and Countering Abuse and Neglect of Children. (3)
National Commission for Trafficking in Persons and Illegal Migration (National Trafficking in Persons Commission)	Coordinates the work of all institutions involved in combating human trafficking. Led by MOI and under the direction of the National Anti-Trafficking in Persons Coordinator, with 14 representatives from 9 government institutions. (2,29) Includes five local committees, which implement local action plans, and the Sub-Committee for the Fight Against Trafficking in Children, which serves as an advisory body to the National Trafficking in Persons Commission on all forms of child trafficking. (2,7,12) During the reporting period, the Commission's local committees met frequently and communicated daily. (3) In addition, the National Commission prepared the first draft of the new Strategy and Action Plan for Combating Trafficking in Human Beings and Migrant Smuggling 2021–2026, which was expected to be submitted to the government for adoption in January 2021. (3)

North Macedonia maintains bilateral agreements to combat human trafficking with all of its neighboring countries. (4) Sources reported that the local committees overseen by the National Trafficking in Persons Commission needed to build their capacity to adequately combat human trafficking, including via better human resource allocation. (2,7)

V. GOVERNMENT POLICIES ON CHILD LABOR

The government has established policies related to child labor (Table 9). However, policy gaps exist that hinder efforts to address child labor, including the lack of a policy that covers all worst forms of child labor.

Table 9. Key Policies Related to Child Labor

Policy	Description
National Strategy for the Fight Against Poverty and Social Exclusion (2010–2020)	Addressed social protection, social inclusion, health, education, and employment of children. (7) Aimed to increase birth registration for Roma and other minorities, expand patrol services to identify and support street children, and improve the provision of social services for children involved in street work and begging. Implemented by MLSP. (7,32) During the reporting period, the policy continued to be implemented through the promotion of birth registration, street mobile patrols, and government payments to vulnerable populations. (3)
National Action Plan against Trafficking in Persons and Illegal Migration (2017–2020)	Focused on preventing human trafficking by reducing the vulnerability of at-risk populations, improving the identification of victims, and increasing efforts to combat human trafficking and forced child begging. (9,29,33) During the reporting period, MLSP financed the expenses of the Center for Victims of Human Trafficking, and the government awarded an additional grant of $56,600, to the NGO Open Gate La Strada that provides services to victims of trafficking. (3)
National Action Plan for Education (2018–2025)	Aims to expand inclusive education and improve education for the Roma community. Seeks to increase the number of Roma students in preschools and elementary schools and decrease the number of Roma students who, based on ethnicity, are enrolled in primary schools for children with special needs. (34) In 2020, increased inclusion of children from vulnerable groups in primary school by accommodating first-time and returnee students; also provided scholarships to vulnerable populations with a focus on Roma children who indicate interest in continuing their education in an underrepresented field. (3)
Action Plan for the National Strategy for Prevention and Countering Abuse and Neglect of Children (2020–2022)	Presents the vision, goals, and strategic approach of the government and the activities to be undertaken annually in the prevention and protection of children from all types of violence. Prepared by the National Coordination Body for Prevention and Protection of Children from Abuse and Neglect. (35) Representatives from MLSP and other ministries, as well as the UNICEF Skopje office and other civil society organizations, participated in the creation of the Action Plan. (3)

Although the Government of North Macedonia has adopted policies aimed at combating child trafficking and assisting children begging and working on the streets, research found no evidence of a policy on other worst forms of child labor. (36)

VI. SOCIAL PROGRAMS TO ADDRESS CHILD LABOR

In 2020, the government funded and participated in programs that include the goal of eliminating or preventing child labor (Table 10). However, gaps exist in these social programs, including adequacy of programs to address the full scope of the problem.

Table 10. Key Social Programs to Address Child Labor

Program	Description
MLSP-Operated and Funded Centers and Shelters†	MLSP operates and funds several programs, sometimes in coordination with NGOs, which provide support and services to victims of human trafficking and vulnerable populations such as street children. Provides extensive support for one day center for street children and funds another operated by an NGO to provide services, healthcare, and counseling to children working in the streets. (29,7) MLSP also funds the Center for Victims of Human Trafficking, a transit center for asylum seekers, and the MOI-operated Transit Center for Illegal Migrants. (7) In 2020, MLSP funded two temporary centers at the northern and southern borders of the country (Kumanovo and Gevgelija, respectively) for illegal migrants and children at border crossings. (3)
UNICEF Projects	Includes UNICEF partnerships with the government and NGOs to provide projects for child protection, detection and referral of child victims of violence, and educational integration of vulnerable children, including Roma and migrant children. (15) Also includes the Program for the Protection of Children Against Violence (2016–2020), the UNICEF Country Program (2016–2020), and the Home for Every Child Program. (15,30,37,38) During the reporting period, MLSP and the Inter-municipal Center for Social Work of the City of Skopje, in cooperation with UNICEF, continued to support mobile teams established to track 41 newly-registered street children and work with their families to secure benefits from the government. (3)
Inclusion of Roma Children in Preschool Education‡	MLSP project implemented in cooperation with the Roma Education Fund and 19 government units. Part of the 2014–2020 Roma Strategy. (37,38) Aims to support the integration of Roma children by increasing the number of Roma children in preschool. (29,30) MLSP, MOI, and the Ministry of Justice are all part of the project work plan. (39) In 2020, the program continued to support Roma children by assisting their families with the school selection process, including ensuring access to schools with both Roma and Macedonian educators. (3)

‡ The government had other social programs that may have included the goal of eliminating or preventing child labor. (1,2,40-42)

During the reporting period, the Ministry of Education and Science continued to engage educational mediators for Roma students from economically disadvantaged families, along with those who have frequently spent time outside the formal education system. Thirty-five mediators from 28 municipalities worked with Roma children to reduce attrition rates and further strengthen ties between educators and Roma parents. (3) Day centers and other programs have not reduced child begging or the number of children on the streets, especially among Roma children, suggesting that existing programs were insufficient for combating child labor. (3,36,43)

VII. SUGGESTED GOVERNMENT ACTIONS TO ELIMINATE CHILD LABOR

Based on the reporting above, suggested actions are identified that would advance the elimination of child labor in North Macedonia (Table 11).

Table 11. Suggested Government Actions to Eliminate Child Labor

Area	Suggested Action	Year(s) Suggested
Legal Framework	Ensure that labor law protections apply to all children, including self-employed children and children working outside formal employment relationships.	2015 – 2020
	Raise the minimum age for work to the age up to which education is compulsory.	2018 – 2020
	Ensure that the law provides criminal penalties for the use, procuring, and offering of children for illicit activities, including in the production and trafficking of drugs.	2019 – 2020
Enforcement	Ensure that the Labor Inspectorate receives sufficient funding to train new inspectors.	2017 – 2020
	Provide labor inspectors with an electronic system to record and share data on inspections with the entity receiving the citation, and publish the information.	2009 – 2020
	Provide sufficient funding for the Anti-Trafficking in Persons Task Force to carry out its duties to combat human trafficking.	2019 – 2020
	Ensure that law enforcement agencies proactively identify child trafficking victims.	2015 – 2020
Coordination	Build the capacity and resources of local committees to adequately combat human trafficking.	2018 – 2020
Government Policies	Adopt a policy that addresses all relevant worst forms of child labor, such as a national action plan on child labor.	2018 – 2020
Social Programs	Conduct research to determine the activities carried out by children engaged in child labor, including those in farming.	2013 – 2020
	Increase funding dedicated to combating child labor, and ensure that child beggars receive the support needed to be removed from the streets permanently.	2015 – 2020

In 2020, Oman made moderate advancement in efforts to eliminate the worst forms of child labor. In December 2020, the Royal Oman Police stood up a dedicated counter-trafficking in persons unit for responding directly to reports of human trafficking and implementing anti-trafficking best practices within the Royal Oman Police. In August 2020, the Ministry of Labor created its own dedicated counter-trafficking in persons unit under its Inspection Department. In addition, the Ministry of Foreign Affairs established a specialized trafficking in persons office in March 2020. Although research is limited, there is evidence that small numbers of children in Oman engage in child labor, including in fishing and selling items in kiosks. Government policies do not address all forms of child labor and the Ministry of Labor is not represented on the National Committee on Implementing the United Nations Convention on the Rights of the Child or the National Child Protection Committee.

I. PREVALENCE AND SECTORAL DISTRIBUTION OF CHILD LABOR

Although research is limited, there is evidence that small numbers of children in Oman engage in child labor, including in fishing and selling items in kiosks. (1-3) The law limits children's work to a family business. (4) Table I provides key indicators on children's work and education in Oman. Data on some of these indicators are not available from the sources used in this report.

Table I. Statistics on Children's Work and Education

Children	Age	Percent
Working (% and population)	5 to 14	Unavailable
Attending School (%)	5 to 14	Unavailable
Combining Work and School (%)	7 to 14	Unavailable
Primary Completion Rate (%)		100.9

Source for primary completion rate: Data from 2019, published by UNESCO Institute for Statistics, 2021. (5)

Source for all other data: Data were unavailable from ILO's analysis, 2021. (6)

Based on a review of available information, Table 2 provides an overview of children's work by sector and activity.

Table 2. Overview of Children's Work by Sector and Activity

Sector/Industry	Activity
Agriculture	Farming, activities unknown (1,3)
	Fishing, activities unknown (1-3)
Services	Selling food items in kiosks, including fish† and grilled meat† (1)

† Determined by national law or regulation as hazardous and, as such, relevant to Article 3(d) of ILO C. 182.

On March 15, 2020, the Omani Government suspended in-person learning due to the COVID-19 pandemic. The Ministry of Education provided virtual learning to students while classroom learning was suspended. (3) The government built the capacity of more than 200 social workers and psychiatrists to provide social and psychological support to children during the pandemic, and disseminated virus-prevention awareness material, including videos in sign language. (7) The 2020–2021 school year began in November 2020 and the government continued to provide distance learning options for families and students who did not wish to return to the classroom. (3)

MODERATE ADVANCEMENT

Limited evidence suggests that children with disabilities may face barriers to accessing education because some school buses are not wheelchair accessible. In addition, the government has not allocated resources to enable relevant ministries and schools to provide equal educational services to intellectually disabled students. (8,9) However, the Ministry of Education continues to support schools and education programs for intellectually disabled students. These services accommodate students with special needs such as motor, sight, hearing, and mental disabilities. (7) Since 2005, the Ministry of Education has implemented a program to integrate students with special needs into primary schools. (7)

II. LEGAL FRAMEWORK FOR CHILD LABOR

Oman has ratified all key international conventions concerning child labor (Table 3).

Table 3. Ratification of International Conventions on Child Labor

Convention	Ratification
 ILO C. 138, Minimum Age	✓
ILO C. 182, Worst Forms of Child Labor	✓
 UN CRC	✓
UN CRC Optional Protocol on Armed Conflict	✓
UN CRC Optional Protocol on the Sale of Children, Child Prostitution and Child Pornography	✓
 Palermo Protocol on Trafficking in Persons	✓

The government's laws and regulations are in line with relevant international standards (Table 4).

Table 4. Laws and Regulations on Child Labor

Standard	Meets International Standards	Age	Legislation
Minimum Age for Work	Yes	15	Article 75 of the Labor Law (10)
Minimum Age for Hazardous Work	Yes	18	Article 76 of the Labor Law; Article 45 of the Child Law (10,11)
Identification of Hazardous Occupations or Activities Prohibited for Children	Yes		Article 76 of the Labor Law; Ministry of Manpower Order 217/2016 (10,12)
Prohibition of Forced Labor	Yes		Articles 1–2 and 9 of the Law to Combat Human Trafficking; Article 3 bis of the Labor Law (10,13)
Prohibition of Child Trafficking	Yes		Articles 1–2 and 9 of the Law to Combat Human Trafficking (13)
Prohibition of Commercial Sexual Exploitation of Children	Yes		Articles 1–2 and 9 of the Law to Combat Human Trafficking; Articles 254–255 and 267–268 of the Penal Code (13,14)
Prohibition of Using Children in Illicit Activities	Yes		Articles 58 and 74 of the Child Law; Article 43 of the Law on Narcotic Drugs and Psychotropic Substances (11,15)
Minimum Age for Voluntary State Military Recruitment	Yes	16	Article 55 of the Child Law (11)
Prohibition of Compulsory Recruitment of Children by (State) Military	Yes*		Article 55 of the Child Law (11)
Prohibition of Military Recruitment by Non-state Armed Groups	Yes		Articles 1(f) and 55 of the Child Law (11)
Compulsory Education Age	Yes	15‡	Article 36 of the Child Law (11,16)
Free Public Education	Yes		Article 13 of the Basic Law; Article 36 of the Child Law (11,17)

* No conscription (18)

‡ Age calculated based on available information (18)

III. ENFORCEMENT OF LAWS ON CHILD LABOR

The government has established institutional mechanisms for the enforcement of laws and regulations on child labor (Table 5). However, gaps exist within the authority of enforcement agencies that may hinder adequate enforcement of their child labor laws.

Table 5. Agencies Responsible for Child Labor Law Enforcement

Organization/Agency	Role
Ministry of Labor (MOL)	Monitors and enforces child labor laws, conducts labor inspections, and shares information with the Royal Oman Police on labor and criminal law violations when penalties are pursued. (19) In 2020, the government merged the Ministry of Manpower, Ministry of Civil Service, National Training Fund, and National Center for Employment to create the new MOL. (3) In addition, in August 2020, MOL created a dedicated counter-trafficking in persons unit under its Inspection Department. (3,7)
Ministry of Social Development (MOSD)	Enforces the Child Law, including by receiving complaints and referring cases to the Royal Oman Police and the Office of the Public Prosecutor. (19)
Royal Oman Police	Monitor and enforce the Child Law, including its provisions related to child labor; and refer cases to the Office of the Public Prosecutor. (19) In December 2020, the Royal Oman Police (ROP) stood up a dedicated counter-trafficking in persons unit for responding directly to reports of human trafficking and implementing anti-trafficking best practices within the ROP. (7)
Office of the Public Prosecutor	Prosecutes human trafficking and sexual exploitation cases in court with assistance from the Royal Oman Police. (19,20)
Child Protection Committee	Protects children from exploitation, receives complaints and reports of child labor; and investigates reported cases to determine whether children are engaged in prohibited activities or whether working has negative effects on their health or education. (19,21)

Labor Law Enforcement

In 2020, labor law enforcement agencies in Oman took actions to combat child labor (Table 6). However, gaps exist within the authority of the Ministry of Labor (MOL) that may hinder adequate labor law enforcement, including labor inspector refresher courses.

Table 6. Labor Law Enforcement Efforts Related to Child Labor

Overview of Labor Law Enforcement	2019	2020
Labor Inspectorate Funding	Unknown (22)	Unknown (3)
Number of Labor Inspectors	Unknown (22)	303 (7)
Inspectorate Authorized to Assess Penalties	Yes (10,11,23)	Yes (10,11,23)
Initial Training for New Labor Inspectors	Unknown (22)	Yes (7)

Refresher Courses Provided	Unknown (22)	Unknown (3)
Number of Labor Inspections Conducted	5,629 (4)	Unknown (3)
Number Conducted at Worksite	Unknown (22)	Unknown (3)
Number of Child Labor Violations Found	0 (22)	0 (3)
Number of Child Labor Violations for Which Penalties Were Imposed	N/A	N/A
Number of Child Labor Penalties Imposed that Were Collected	N/A	N/A
Routine Inspections Conducted	Yes (22)	Yes (3)
Routine Inspections Targeted	Unknown (22)	Unknown (3)
Unannounced Inspections Permitted	Yes (22)	Yes (23)
Unannounced Inspections Conducted	Yes (22)	Yes (22)
Complaint Mechanism Exists	Yes (22)	Yes (22)
Reciprocal Referral Mechanism Exists Between Labor Authorities and Social Services	Yes (22)	Yes (22)

MOL conducts yearly inspections of all private institutions and re-inspections of workplaces found to be in violation of labor laws. Labor inspections are also conducted following a complaint. (24) If a violation is found, the institution is given a set period of time to address the problem. If an institution fails to address the violation, the case may be referred to the judiciary where penalties can be assessed. (24) In 2020, MOL responded to

MODERATE ADVANCEMENT

22,580 labor complaints and financial disputes. Labor authorities settled 9,057 cases and referred 7,602 cases to judicial authorities for adjudication, with 5,921 cases still pending. (7) MOL did not find any child labor violations in responding to these complaints. (7) Moreover, a MOL official stated in early 2020 that he had not reviewed an inspection report indicating child labor in over a decade of service. (3)

The government did not provide information on labor inspectorate funding, the exact number of labor inspections conducted or whether targeted inspections were conducted for inclusion in this report, but officials reported that the number of labor inspections surpassed 8,000. (7)

MOL can refer cases of child labor to the Ministry of Social Development (MOSD) if the child is under the minimum age for work. MOL and MOSD can also coordinate with the Royal Oman Police to shelter child victims and refer suspected violators for criminal investigation. (3)

Criminal Law Enforcement

In 2020, the government's criminal law enforcement agencies appeared to function adequately in addressing child labor (Table 7).

Table 7. Criminal Law Enforcement Efforts Related to Child Labor

Overview of Criminal Law Enforcement	2019	2020
Initial Training for New Criminal Investigators	Yes (22)	Yes (3)
Training on New Laws Related to the Worst Forms of Child Labor	N/A	N/A
Refresher Courses Provided	Unknown (22)	Unknown (3)
Number of Investigations	0 (22)	0 (3)
Number of Violations Found	0 (22)	0 (3)
Number of Prosecutions Initiated	0 (22)	0 (3)
Number of Convictions	0 (22)	0 (3)
Imposed Penalties for Violations Related to the Worst Forms of Child Labor	N/A	N/A
Reciprocal Referral Mechanism Exists Between Criminal Authorities and Social Services	Yes (22)	Yes (3)

In March 2020, the Ministry of Foreign Affairs established a specialized trafficking in persons office. (3)

IV. COORDINATION OF GOVERNMENT EFFORTS ON CHILD LABOR

The government has established mechanisms to coordinate its efforts to address child labor (Table 8). However, gaps exist that hinder the effective coordination of efforts to address child labor, including the omission of MOL from the National Child Protection Committee.

Table 8. Key Mechanisms to Coordinate Government Efforts on Child Labor

Coordinating Body	Role & Description
National Child Protection Committee	Consists of representatives from the Ministries of Social Development, Health, and Education and the Royal Oman Police. Oversees regional committees, which are responsible for coordinating intervention with children who are victims of abuse, neglect, or other related issues, and works with UNICEF on several projects related to child intervention. (3) MOL is not represented. (3) In the second quarter of 2020, regional child protection committees handled 179 cases of child abuse in Oman and placed victimized children in the MOSD-run protective services shelter in Muscat. (7)
National Committee on Implementing the UN Convention on the Rights of the Child	Led by the MOSD Under Secretary and consists of representatives from government and private organizations concerned with children's rights. Submits proposals to achieve the Convention's principles and follows up on the UN body's comments and recommendations. (7) MOL is not represented. (7) In 2020, the National Committee on Implementing the UN CRC participated in the first Gulf Cooperation Council conference on autism, organized workshops on child protection, and provided health, educational, and social services to children. (7)
National Committee for Combating Human Trafficking	Oversees the National Plan for Combating Human Trafficking. Includes the Royal Oman Police and 12 other state agencies, 2 more than the previous reporting period. (3,19) Active in 2020. (3)

V. GOVERNMENT POLICIES ON CHILD LABOR

The government has established policies related to child labor (Table 9). However, policy gaps exist that hinder efforts to address child labor, including coverage of all forms of child labor.

Table 9. Key Policies Related to Child Labor

Policy	Description
National Plan for Combating Human Trafficking (2018–2020)	Aimed to raise awareness among migrant workers on their rights and responsibilities and to raise awareness on countering human trafficking through leaflets, posters, websites, and social media. Established a human trafficking task force, including representatives from the former Ministry of Manpower (consolidated along with other ministries into MOL in 2020), ROP, MOSD, and other agencies, to follow up on cases of human trafficking. (3,25) Established specialized human trafficking units in the Court of Appeals in Muscat and in the above-mentioned ministries. Regulated domestic work and allowed for inspection of homes upon receipt of complaints from domestic workers. (25) Provided annual training to government agencies and private companies on countering human trafficking. (25) In 2020, the Government of Oman funded training on human trafficking, identified and provided protective services to trafficking victims, and hosted a forum on Oman's efforts to combat human trafficking with labor-sending countries. (7)

Although the Government of Oman has adopted the National Plan for Combating Human Trafficking, it does not have a comprehensive policy to address all forms of child labor, including in farming and fishing.

VI. SOCIAL PROGRAMS TO ADDRESS CHILD LABOR

In 2020, the government funded and participated in programs that include the goal of eliminating or preventing child labor, which cover the main sectors in which child labor has been identified in the country (Table 10).

Table 10. Key Social Programs to Address Child Labor

Program	Description
Social Security Cash Transfer Program†	Provides assistance to children in low-income families, including educational services. (21) Active in 2020. (3)

† Program is funded by the Government of Oman

VII. SUGGESTED GOVERNMENT ACTIONS TO ELIMINATE CHILD LABOR

Based on the reporting above, suggested actions are identified that would advance the elimination of child labor in Oman (Table 11).

Table 11. Suggested Government Actions to Eliminate Child Labor

Area	Suggested Action	Year(s) Suggested
Enforcement	Collect and publish data on labor inspectorate funding, the number of labor inspectors, training, and number of labor inspections conducted.	2013 – 2020
	Ensure that refresher courses are provided for criminal investigators.	2019 – 2020
Coordination	Ensure that the Ministry of Labor participates in the National Child Protection Committee and the National Committee on Implementing the UN Convention on the Rights of the Child.	2016 – 2020
Government Policies	Develop a national policy to address all forms of child labor that occur within Oman, including in farming and fishing.	2013 – 2020
Social Programs	Collect and publish data on the extent and nature of child labor to inform policies and programs.	2017 – 2020
	Ensure that all children have equal access to education, including children with disabilities.	2011 – 2020

In 2020, Pakistan made moderate advancement in efforts to eliminate the worst forms of child labor. In February, the government formally constituted and appointed members to the National Commission on the Rights of the Child, which includes two representatives who are children. Additionally, in response to the fatal beating of an 8-year-old domestic worker by her employer, the Islamabad Capital Territory cabinet banned child domestic labor under age 14 in the capital territory. The Pakistani government also added domestic labor to the list of occupations defined as hazardous work prohibited for children under the Employment of Children Act 1991. Children in Pakistan are subjected to the worst forms of child labor, including in commercial sexual exploitation and forced domestic work, each sometimes as a result of human trafficking. Children also engage in forced labor in brick kilns and agriculture. The federal government and Balochistan Province have not established a minimum age for work or hazardous work in compliance with international standards. In addition, provincial labor inspectorates do not receive sufficient resources to adequately enforce laws prohibiting child labor, and the federal and provincial governments did not publicly release information on their labor and criminal law enforcement efforts. Further, police corruption, particularly the taking of bribes from suspected perpetrators to ignore child labor crimes and lack of willingness to conduct criminal investigations, hindered Pakistan's ability to address the problem throughout the country.

I. PREVALENCE AND SECTORAL DISTRIBUTION OF CHILD LABOR

Children in Pakistan are subjected to the worst forms of child labor, including in commercial sexual exploitation and forced domestic work, each sometimes as a result of human trafficking. Children also engage in forced labor in brick kilns and agriculture. (1-5) Table I provides key indicators on children's work and education in Pakistan. Data on some of these indicators are not available from the sources used in this report.

MODERATE ADVANCEMENT

Based on a review of available information, Table 2 provides an overview of children's work by sector and activity.

Table 2. Overview of Children's Work by Sector and Activity

Sector/Industry	Activity
Agriculture	Farming, including harvesting cotton (3,5,8,9)
	Fishing, including deep sea fishing (10,11)
Industry	Manufacturing glass bangles,† surgical instruments,† and jewelry (3-5,9,10,12-15)
	Weaving carpets,† producing garments, and tanning leather† (3,10,13,15,18-21)
	Producing bricks (1,3-5,15,19-24)
	Mining coal† and gemstones, and crushing stone† (10,19,22,25-27)
Services	Domestic work (2,4,5,28,29)
	Working in hotels, restaurants, gas stations, and automobile repair (3-5,19,21,30-33)
	Scavenging† and sorting garbage and recyclables, begging, and street vending (3,5,21,30,34-36)
Categorical Worst Forms of Child Labor‡	Forced labor in agriculture, brickmaking, carpet weaving, and coal mining (1,3,5,37-39)
	Forced domestic work, sometimes as a result of human trafficking (2,3,28,39)
	Commercial sexual exploitation, including use in the production of pornography, sometimes as a result of human trafficking (3-5,15,39-43)
	Forced begging, sometimes as a result of human trafficking (3,39)
	Recruitment of children by non-state armed groups for use in armed conflict (39)
	Use in illicit activities, including the trafficking and production of drugs (3,5,21,36)

† Determined by national law or regulation as hazardous and, as such, relevant to Article 3(d) of ILO C. 182.

‡ Child labor understood as the worst forms of child labor per se under Article 3(a)–(c) of ILO C. 182.

Pakistan consists of the Islamabad Capital Territory (ICT), which is governed by federal law, and four provinces—Balochistan, Khyber Pakhtunkhwa, Punjab, and Sindh—each of which is responsible for all social services, including those related to labor, within their areas. Law enforcement responsibilities are shared between the federal and provincial governments. (44) When available, data and information are included for the federal and provincial governments in this report. In 2020, Pakistan's federal and provincial governments, with technical assistance provided by UNICEF, continued conducting nationwide child labor surveys. These surveys—the first conducted since 1996—are expected to address the lack of available child labor data that has hampered the federal and provincial governments' ability to accurately assess the scope and prevalence of child labor. (5,28) Due to delays related to the COVID-19 pandemic, these surveys are not expected to be completed before 2022. (5)

Many child domestic workers work under conditions of forced labor, including debt bondage, sexual assault, and extreme physical abuse. (2,3,28,29) Poor rural families sometimes sell their children into domestic servitude or other types of work, or pay agents to arrange for such work, often believing their child would work under decent conditions. Children are also kidnapped or sold into organized begging rings, domestic servitude, gangs, and child sex trafficking. (44,45) Reports estimate that around 70 percent of bonded laborers in Pakistan are children. (44,46) Some children work with their families as bonded laborers in the production of bricks. (3,4,24,38,39) Begging ringmasters sometimes maim children to earn more money or force children to steal, and organized criminal groups force children into drug trafficking in Sindh and Balochistan. Research has found that due to the consistent lack of law enforcement efforts against those who exploited street children, including in forced labor and sex trafficking, traffickers operated openly and with impunity. (3,39,44)

Research found that in Sindh, Punjab, and Balochistan, agriculture, brick kiln, fisheries, poultry, mining, construction, domestic labor, and carpet making industries oftentimes failed to follow labor laws with no or little government oversight. Small- and medium-size businesses—particularly those operated in private homes and not subject to inspections, such as shops, garages, and jewelry manufacturers—employed child labor. (47) Afghan, Iranian, and Pakistani children, particularly from Dalbadin and Quetta in Balochistan, are used in drug trafficking operations across the Iranian and Afghan borders with Balochistan, and in parts of Karachi. Children are also used in smuggling operations along the Afghan border with Khyber Pakhtunkhwa. (47)

Various factors can compound vulnerability to child labor, including: religious minority and caste status (marginalized minority communities, such as Christian and Hindu Dalits, are likely to be less educated, to lack land or other assets, and to be discriminated against by their surrounding communities, police, and judicial systems); and gender (women, including transgender women, are particularly vulnerable to sex trafficking). (47)

Child laborers in Pakistan, particularly boys, are frequently subjected to commercial sexual exploitation at their places of employment, including in factories, workshops, mines, or while scavenging on the streets. (48) They are also sometimes subjected to sexual exploitation in order to obtain or keep their jobs or accommodations. (39,48) Research indicates that in Kasur, a city in Punjab Province where sexual exploitation of children is considered to be among the highest in the country, 90 percent of working children under age 14 have been sexually harassed or exploited. (3,48,49) The practice of bacha bazi, in which boys are forced to provide social and sexual entertainment for older men, is a form of commercial sexual exploitation. Traffickers in Pakistan also promise Pakistani boys admission to Afghan religious schools only to sell them to Afghan security forces for the purpose of sexual exploitation. (39,50)

Children in Pakistan face several barriers to education. Of significant concern is the sexual abuse of children in Pakistan's madrassas—Islamic religious schools that provide free education and meals to Pakistan's poorest children. (49,51,52) There are more than 22,000 registered madrassas in the country, and an estimated 2,000–3,000 unregistered madrassas; sexual abuse in madrassas significantly hinders the ability of a large number of Pakistani children to attend school and receive an education. (49,51) In addition, non-state armed militant groups—Tehreek-e-Taliban Pakistan, its splinter groups, and ISIL-KP (ISIL Khorasan Province)—forcibly recruited and used children in terrorist activities, including suicide attacks. Further, while research found that the total number of terrorist attacks against schools have continued to decrease since 2009, schools in Pakistan may still be vulnerable to attacks by unknown armed groups, disrupting children's access to education. (3,9,15,39,44,45,53-58) The government operated a center in Swat, Khyber Pakhtunkhwa, to rehabilitate, educate, and reintegrate former child soldiers. (45) Many other children face barriers to accessing education, including high rates of teacher absenteeism, inadequate facilities, lack of transportation, school fees, and corporal punishment, which may deter children from attending school. (3,9,54,57,59,60) Lastly, while children are not legally required to have a birth certificate to enroll in public or private school, research indicates that some private schools may still require children to present their birth certificate to enroll. (3,44) Only 31 percent of births in Pakistan are officially registered. Children without a birth certificate who cannot enroll in school are at much higher risk of becoming victims of exploitative labor conditions. (61)

II. LEGAL FRAMEWORK FOR CHILD LABOR

Pakistan has ratified most key international conventions concerning child labor (Table 3).

Table 3. Ratification of International Conventions on Child Labor

	Convention	Ratification
	ILO C. 138, Minimum Age	✓
	ILO C. 182, Worst Forms of Child Labor	✓
	UN CRC	✓
	UN CRC Optional Protocol on Armed Conflict	✓
	UN CRC Optional Protocol on the Sale of Children, Child Prostitution and Child Pornography	✓
	Palermo Protocol on Trafficking in Persons

The government has established laws and regulations related to child labor (Table 4). However, gaps exist in Pakistan's legal framework to adequately protect children from the worst forms of child labor, including the minimum age for work and for hazardous work.

MODERATE ADVANCEMENT

The Eighteenth Amendment to the Pakistani Constitution permits provinces to pass laws that govern labor law and children's welfare. (92,93) Federal law applies only until the province passes a law on the same subject. (28,92)

In response to an employer's fatal beating of an 8-year-old girl she was illegally employing as a domestic worker, the ICT cabinet banned child domestic labor in the capital territory – the government added child domestic labor to the list of occupations defined as hazardous work prohibited for children under the Employment of Children Act 1991. (5,47,94,95, 145) In 2019, the Pakistan National Assembly passed the ICT Prohibition of Employment of Children Act, which would prohibit the employment of children age 14 and younger in any establishment, including agricultural and household establishments; would prohibit the employment of children ages 15 to 18 in hazardous work; and would establish a hazardous work list prohibited for children. However, the Senate had not yet approved the bill at the close of the reporting period. (3,96)

In 2020, the Balochistan provincial cabinet approved legislation aimed at protecting laborers, particularly children, through the Elimination of Bonded Labor and Rehabilitation of Victims of Bonded Labor Bill 2020. (5) In addition, in September 2020, Balochistan's cabinet approved the Balochistan Employment of Children Prohibition and Regulation Bill 2021, which would set the minimum age for hazardous work at age 18, would allow for light work for children ages 12 to 14, and also would prohibit the work of children under the age of 18 in mines. (97-99) However, this bill does not list the activities in which light work may be permitted, nor does it specify the conditions in which light work may be undertaken or limit the number of hours for light work. Neither of these bills had been enacted as law at the close of the reporting period.

On January 12, 2021, the Pakistani Government approved implementation rules for the Prevention of Trafficking in Persons Act and the Prevention of Smuggling of Migrants Act, which were signed into law in 2018. Among other things, the statutes do not require proof of force, fraud, or coercion in the case of sex trafficking for minors. (47,78)

Some of Pakistan's federal and provincial laws are not in compliance with international standards on child labor. The federal minimum age for work provisions and the minimum age for work laws in Balochistan, Khyber Pakhtunkhwa, and Sindh Provinces are not in compliance with international standards because they do not extend to informal employment, such as household work. (62-66,68-74) The federal government's minimum age for hazardous work is currently age 14, which does not comply with international standards. (75) The federal minimum age for hazardous work still applies in Balochistan Province, as Balochistan has not established a minimum age for hazardous work. (28,75,100)

Hazardous work prohibitions for the federal government and the four provinces do not cover brickmaking, for which there is evidence that children are exposed to environmental health hazards. Hazardous work prohibitions for the federal government and every province except Punjab do not cover domestic work, for which there is evidence that children are exposed to physical abuse. (19,54,94,101) Although laws in Khyber Pakhtunkhwa, Punjab, and Sindh Provinces prohibit children under age 18 from working in underground mines or above-ground quarries, federal law—which also still applies in Balochistan—does not prohibit children ages 15 to 18 from working in mines. There is evidence that children in Balochistan are engaged in coal mining, which involves exposure to hazardous substances, work underground, and lethal accidents. (25,26,64,66,69,74,96,100)

Federal law, which also applies in all the provinces except Khyber Pakhtunkhwa, does not comply with international standards on child trafficking, as it does not omit the requirement of force, fraud, or coercion as elements of the crime. (77,78,82) Khyber Pakhtunkhwa Province's human trafficking law also requires the additional element of kidnapping, coercion, or receipt or giving of a benefit. (83)

Federal law, which also applies in Balochistan, does not prohibit the use of children for prostitution or the procuring and offering of children in commercial sexual exploitation, nor does Khyber Pakhtunkhwa's law. (77,78,83,84) Federal and provincial laws, with the exception of Punjab and Sindh Provinces, do not prohibit the use of children in drug production and drug trafficking. (70,74,83) The federal and provincial governments, with the exception of Punjab and Sindh Provinces, have not enacted laws that prohibit the recruitment and use of children by non-state groups for armed conflict. (11,66,70)

As the minimum age for work is lower than the compulsory education age, children may be encouraged to leave school before the completion of compulsory education. (66,87-91)

III. ENFORCEMENT OF LAWS ON CHILD LABOR

The government has established institutional mechanisms for the enforcement of laws and regulations (Table 5). However, gaps exist within the operations of enforcement agencies that may hinder adequate enforcement of their child labor laws.

Table 5. Agencies Responsible for Child Labor Law Enforcement

Organization/Agency	Role
Provincial and Regional Police	Enforce violations of federal and provincial laws concerning the worst forms of child labor, including the Pakistan Penal Code, Prevention of Trafficking in Persons Act, and the Bonded Labor System (Abolition) Act (BLSA). Refer children taken into custody to Child Protection Officers. (11,102)
Provincial Labor Inspectors	Inspect industrial areas and markets to identify child labor violations, enforce provincial labor laws, and pursue legal action against employers. (11)
Federal Investigation Agency (FIA), Anti-Trafficking Unit	Enforces transnational human trafficking-related laws, particularly the Prevention of Trafficking in Persons Act. Cooperates with other governments on human trafficking cases, operates a hotline for victims, and publishes information on anti-trafficking efforts on its website. (3,4,9,39) Operates under the Ministry of Interior. (4) In 2020, the FIA transitioned from a paper-based system to a computerized case management system, allowing efficiencies in data collection and information sharing. (47)
Labor Courts	Assess penalties for labor violations. Located in each province and the Islamabad Capital Territory (ICT). (3,44,103-105)
District Vigilance Committees	Implement the BLSA and assist in rehabilitating bonded laborers via monitoring bodies. Consist of members of the public, civil society groups, lawyers, members of the media, and local government officials and report to the District Magistrate. (11,39,44,76) Exist in Punjab, Sindh, and the ICT, but not in Balochistan and Khyber Pakhtunkhwa Provinces. (44)
Child Protection Units (CPUs)	Take into custody at-risk children, including those rescued from exploitative labor situations. Present cases of children taken into custody to the Child Protection Court or the appropriate authority. Established in Punjab, Khyber Pakhtunkhwa, and Sindh Provinces. (83,85,106-109)

District Vigilance Committees (DVCs) are functioning in all of Punjab Province's 36 districts (conducting 259 meetings during the reporting period), and in 29 districts in Sindh Province (only 9 DVCs convened and none met regularly). (39,44,106) However, research has found that though the Bonded Labor System (Abolition) Act (BLSA) mandated the creation of DVCs in each province to ensure implementation of the BLSA, including reporting and filing cases, the government relied on bonded labor victims to have knowledge of the BLSA, proactively leave their landowners, and file their own cases in the court. Even when bonded laborers did so, the courts either did not act on such claims or handled them administratively, and, as a result, human trafficking victims who came forward often faced retaliation from their exploitative employers. (39)

In August 2020, Khyber Pakhtunkhwa opened the first child protection court of the newly merged districts of the former Federally Administered Tribal Area, bringing the province's total to four. These courts specifically address crimes against children, including abuse, neglect, and exploitation. (47)

Labor Law Enforcement

In 2020, labor law enforcement agencies in Pakistan took actions to combat child labor (Table 6). However, gaps exist within the operations of the provincial labor departments that may hinder adequate labor law enforcement, including authority to assess penalties.

Pakistan's provinces are responsible for enforcing labor laws, including those relevant to child labor law. (11) Provincial labor departments collect comprehensive data on labor law enforcement at the district level. However, there is neither a centralized federal repository for the data nor any regular mechanism for reporting it to the federal government; therefore, limited labor inspection data were available for inclusion in this report. (9) While the number of labor inspectors is unknown, according to the ILO's technical advice of a ratio approaching 1 inspector for every 15,000 workers in developing economies, Pakistan would need to employ roughly 4,259 labor inspectors as its workforce consists of over 64 million workers. (116-118)

Provincial labor inspectorates do not receive sufficient resources, a shortfall that may hamper labor inspectors' ability to inspect workplaces. For example, labor departments in Khyber Pakhtunkhwa, Punjab, and Sindh Provinces did not provide funds to cover the cost of transportation to conduct inspections. (3,9) Furthermore, while labor inspectors do receive some initial training depending on their assigned province, this training is insufficient, as there is very little information provided that is specific to child labor issues and laws. (3,19,102,119,120) In addition, labor inspectorates sometimes failed to conduct inspections of worksites owned by influential citizens. For instance, coal mines in Balochistan that are owned by influential politicians who oversee mine regulations operated with impunity, increasing risks of child labor. (27) Also, labor inspectors in Punjab reportedly do not inspect private farms owned by influential landlords for child or bonded labor. (47)

In February 2020, the Lahore High Court directed the Punjab Labor Department to ensure within 6 months registration of all brick kilns under the Factories Act (1934), and thereby increase government visibility over brick kilns to curb bonded and child labor—specifically, the court ordered the labor department to ensure that no kilns had child workers under the age of 14, every worker had a written contract, employers kept detailed registers of advances, and regularly paid into workers' social security funds, as federally mandated. (39,47) In response, the Punjab Labor Department conducted a census of brick kilns in the province and the results are publicly available through an online portal. (47) Research has found that a series of surprise brick kiln inspections conducted by Punjabi labor authorities in 2020 resulted in prosecutions of 3,953 brick kilns for bonded labor violations, with Punjab labor inspectors filing First Information Reports (FIRs) against 23 employers for child labor and minimum wage violations (indicators of bonded labor). (39,47) Research has also found that many violators received fines, and their kilns were permitted to re-open following payment of the fines. Some kiln owners allegedly avoided prosecution by bribing the inspectors; other cases remain pending in the court system. (121)

Pakistan

MODERATE ADVANCEMENT

However, a majority of the estimated 18,000 kilns in Pakistan continued to operate without registration and required benefits for workers, particularly those ages 14 to 18. (39)

Criminal Law Enforcement

In 2020, criminal law enforcement agencies in Pakistan took actions to combat child labor (Table 7). However, gaps exist within the operations of the criminal enforcement agencies that may hinder adequate criminal law enforcement, including reports of corruption and indifference on the part of investigative officials.

Table 7. Criminal Law Enforcement Efforts Related to Child Labor

Overview of Criminal Law Enforcement	2019	2020
Initial Training for New Criminal Investigators	Yes (3)	Unknown (5)
Training on New Laws Related to the Worst Forms of Child Labor	Unknown (3)	Unknown (5)

Number of Prosecutions Initiated	Unknown (3)	Unknown (5)
Number of Convictions	Unknown (3)	Unknown (5)
Imposed Penalties for Violations Related to the Worst Forms of Child Labor	Unknown (3)	Unknown (5)
Reciprocal Referral Mechanism Exists Between Criminal Authorities and Social Services	No (3)	No (5)

The federal and provincial governments do not publish data on efforts to enforce criminal laws prohibiting the worst forms of child labor; it is unknown whether investigations, prosecutions, or convictions were undertaken or achieved for child labor crimes in 2020. (5) While training is provided to new criminal investigators, the training is inconsistent across Pakistan, and the training might not include information on child labor, child trafficking, or sexual exploitation of children. (3)

Police corruption—particularly the taking of bribes from suspected perpetrators to ignore alleged crimes or police refusing to open investigations without bribes—continued to hamper Pakistan's ability to eliminate child labor, especially in the brick kiln industry, coal mining, factories, street scavenging, and cases related to the sexual abuse of children in madrassas. Some police and other local officials, for instance, colluded with farm and brick kiln owners to create falsified criminal cases against individuals who attempted to escape from situations of bonded labor. (47) In addition, children, parents, or family members who report child labor incidents often lack faith that police will act in pursuit of justice. (24,27,39,48,49,51,122) Police sometimes acted indifferently to reports of child labor or sexual exploitation, pointing to cultural differences as a rationale for abuse. Further, some police reportedly fear being accused of blasphemy by religious clerics if they take action against the sexual abuse of children in madrassas. (24,51,122)

IV. COORDINATION OF GOVERNMENT EFFORTS ON CHILD LABOR

The government has established mechanisms to coordinate its efforts to address child labor (Table 8). However, gaps exist that hinder the effective coordination of efforts to address child labor, including fulfilling mandates to establish coordinating mechanisms.

Table 8. Key Mechanisms to Coordinate Government Efforts on Child Labor

Coordinating Body	Role & Description
National Commission on the Rights of the Child (NCRC)*	Coordinates efforts relating to child rights, including reviewing proposed legislation, liaising with provincial commissions, recommending policy, reviewing programs, and promoting awareness of child rights, among other functions. (123) In February 2020, the NCRC was formally constituted and its members appointed. (5) In addition to representatives from the provinces, includes two children as members. (123)
Inter-Agency Task Force	Coordinates the anti-human trafficking efforts of the Ministry of the Interior, intelligence and law enforcement agencies, the Ministry of Law and Justice, and the Ministry of Foreign Affairs. Supports 27 FIA anti-trafficking units that work with provincial and district police officers to monitor and combat domestic and transnational human trafficking. (124) Maintains an Integrated Border Management System to track entries and exits. (3,106) Research has found that the Inter-Agency Task Force members' interceptions of suspected migrants and trafficked persons decreased during the reporting period. (47)
Provincial and Federal Tripartite Consultative Committees	Advise on the enforcement of labor laws, including child labor laws, and monitor the functioning of labor departments at the provincial level. Monitor the implementation of the provinces' proposed interventions on child and forced labor at the federal level. (125) While the Punjab commission met during the reporting period, research was unable to determine whether any substantive progress was made towards enhancing coordination. (5)
Child Protection Bodies	Balochistan Child Protection Commission: Coordinates efforts related to child protection at the provincial and district levels, advises on relevant policies and legislation, and supports the implementation of child protection referral mechanisms. Led by the Balochistan Social Welfare Department, various government departments—including the Education, Health and Labor departments—and law enforcement agencies. (109) Khyber Pakhtunkhwa Child Protection and Welfare Commission: Coordinates efforts to enhance the safety, welfare, and well-being of children at the provincial and local levels. Reviews and monitors implementation of provincial laws and regulations related to child labor and those that affect the rights of children. (83) Led by the province's Social Welfare, Special Education and Women Empowerment Department. (126) The Khyber Pakhtunkhwa Child Protection and Welfare Commission did not hold its quarterly meetings in 2020 and has been without a commissioner for 3 years. (5) Punjab Child Protection and Welfare Bureau: Coordinates the protection of destitute and neglected children by appointing child protection officers, supervising CPUs, and establishing child protection institutions and child protection courts. Chaired by an elected member of the board, which consists of three department secretaries, three members of the provincial assembly, and representatives from NGOs and academia. (85) During the reporting period, the Punjab Child Protection and Welfare Bureau operated open reception centers to identify and register children living on the street, and identified and assisted 8,114 children. (39) Sindh Child Protection Authority: Coordinates efforts to ensure the rights of children in need of special protection, including child laborers, by establishing CPUs and appointing child protection officers. Reviews and proposes amendments to existing laws and monitors the implementation of laws relevant to the protection of children. Headed by the provincial minister; members include two parliamentarians, lawyers, social activists, and representatives from departments that deal with children's issues. (108) The Sindh Child Protection Authority has been active in preventing underage marriages throughout Sindh. It has a helpline 1121 that receives complaints on child protection-related issues and refers the cases to relevant departments and officers. (121) The helpline has been used to track and reunite missing children with their families, in many cases at inter-provincial levels. It has also dealt with complaints about child beggary and corporal punishment. (121) The Sindh Child Protection Authority also conducted online trainings for child counselors. Other sessions and trainings have been conducted on raising awareness on child rights related laws across Sindh. (121) Provincial CPUs: Take into custody at-risk children, including those rescued from exploitative labor situations. Present cases of children taken into custody to the Child Protection Court or the appropriate authority. Coordinate and initiate interventions against child labor at the provincial level. (125) Each CPU is led by a Child Protection Officer and supported by social workers and psychologists; operates under the District Administrator. (44) Provincial CPUs were active in Punjab, Sindh, Balochistan, and Khyber Pakhtunkhwa, and identified and referred children in exploitative or vulnerable labor situations to NGO and government care. (39) Khyber Pakhtunkhwa established 2 new CPUs during the reporting period, for a total of 14. With an international organization, Balochistan established its first CPU during the reporting period. (39)
Child Protection Advisory Board	Coordinates ICT's implementation of the Child Protection System Act of 2018, including advising the government on implementing laws and policies, maintaining a case management system, and ensuring that a child protection mechanism is functioning. Chaired by the Secretary of the Division of Child Protection and comprises high-level government officials, plus an NGO representative, a social science expert, an Islamabad High Court Bar Association representative, and one person representing minorities. (3,127) In 2020, the Child Protection Advisory board launched an awareness campaign on child begging and held a meeting in September. (5,128,129)

Pakistan

MODERATE ADVANCEMENT

In 2020, the National Assembly constituted the Uplift and Mainstreaming of Street Children and Bonded Labor Task Force, which will discuss ways to remove children from street work and bonded labor and provide them with education and health services. (5) Khyber Pakhtunkhwa has 12 Child Protection Units (CPUs); however, none was active during the reporting period due to a lack of finances and child protection officers. Balochistan established 1 CPU in Quetta; however, they have not yet instituted the remaining 33 CPUs despite passing legislation in 2016 to establish units in each district. (39,44,47)

V. GOVERNMENT POLICIES ON CHILD LABOR

The government has established policies related to child labor (Table 9). However, policy gaps exist that hinder efforts to address child labor, including implementation.

Table 9. Key Policies Related to Child Labor

Policy	Description
Khyber Pakhtunkhwa Labor Policy	Seeks to gradually eradicate child labor, collect child labor statistics, enforce the compulsory education law, assist children through referral mechanisms, educate families and key stakeholders about the negative effects of child labor, and collaborate with organizations to research and develop solutions to eliminate child labor. (130) Research was unable to determine whether activities were undertaken to implement the Khyber Pakhtunkhwa Labor Policy during the reporting period.
Punjab Labor Policy	Seeks to improve working conditions, eradicate child and bonded labor, and establish social safety for workers and their families. Includes the goal of ending all child labor in brick kilns, in addition to the construction of schools, hospitals, and residences for workers. (131) Research was unable to determine whether activities were undertaken to implement the Punjab Labor Policy during the reporting period.
Sindh Labor Policy	Seeks to protect vulnerable workers, including children. Includes goals to enforce laws dealing with hazardous child labor, extend the minimum age for employment in domestic and home-based work, ensure minimum wages for working children, and increase access to education and training. (132) In the past, research found that labor inspectors were not provided funding to travel outside of major cities to conduct inspections and were repeatedly denied access to inspect factories by owners. (3) Research was unable to determine whether activities were undertaken to implement the Sindh Labor Policy during the reporting period.

Research was unable to determine whether the provincial or federal governments have educational policies and, if so, whether such policies include child labor elimination and prevention strategies. (133-136)

VI. SOCIAL PROGRAMS TO ADDRESS CHILD LABOR

In 2020, the government funded and participated in programs that include the goal of eliminating or preventing child labor (Table 10). However, gaps exist in these social programs, including the adequacy of programs to address the full scope of the problem.

Table 10. Key Social Programs to Address Child Labor

Program	Description
Bait-ul-Mal Programs†	Government-funded programs that aim to remove children from child labor, including its worst forms, and to increase vulnerable children's access to education. Programs include the National Centers for Rehabilitation of Child Labor and the Child Support Program. (137,138) In October 2020, Pakistan Bait-ul-Mal signed a Memorandum of Understanding with United Bank Limited to start making digital payments to project participants through an electronic biometric verification system. (139)
Hotlines	FIA operates a 24/7 hotline to combat human trafficking, including child trafficking, in Pakistan at the headquarters, ICT, and district levels. (4,106) The Ministry of Human Rights also operates a helpline for reporting human rights violations, including child labor violations, and for providing referrals to legal aid and a network of NGOs to victims of human rights abuses. (47,106) In 2020, the Ministry of Human Rights launched a helpline smartphone app, and actively promoted it on social media and traditional media. (47) The Punjab Child Protection and Welfare Bureau and Sindh Social Welfare Department operate helplines for children subjected to exploitation, violence, abuse, and neglect. The Sindh Social Welfare Department operates a 24-hour helpline for child protection. (47)

Program	Description
Elimination of Child Labor and Bonded Labor Project (Integrated Project for Promotion of "Decent Work for Vulnerable Workers" in Punjab Province)†	Punjab Province-funded programs that aim to provide education to vulnerable children, rehabilitate bonded laborers working in brick kilns, promote integration and coordination of government responses, strengthen legislation, increase the capacity of law enforcement and service providers, and broaden the knowledge base on these issues. (140-142) Research has found that no progress was made during the reporting period to implement this project. (121)
ILO-Funded Projects	ILO projects in Pakistan that aim to eliminate child labor by improving the capacities of the federal and provincial governments to develop strong monitoring mechanisms and strengthen data collection strategies. The Asia Regional Child Labor (ARCL) Program (2019–2023), funded by the UK's Foreign Commonwealth and Development Office, aims to assist stakeholders to eliminate child labor to achieve Sustainable Development Goal (SDG) 8.7 by 2025. Identified three priority sectors for conducting qualitative research and creating advocacy tools: automobiles, domestic work, and brick kilns. During the reporting period, the ARCL Program was in its inception phase, conducting planning activities and consultative sessions with relevant stakeholders. (99) The Eliminating Child Labor and Forced Labor in the Cotton, Textile and Garment Value Chains (Clear Cotton) project (2018–2022) is co-funded by the EU. It focuses on the cotton production hubs of Sindh and Punjab, seeks to promote enhanced federal and provincial legislation and policies, and to address the basic needs and rights of children engaged or at risk of child labor or forced labor. Focuses on the cotton growing, ginning, and spinning sectors of the cotton supply chain. In 2020, the project conducted a rapid assessment of the ginning and spinning sectors. (99) In addition, it developed a toolkit and awareness and training materials regarding childhood exposure to pesticides and occupational safety and health issues. The project also developed training materials for inspectors at the district level and conducted community-based monitoring and remediation initiatives through video conference. (99) The Promoting Fundamental Principles and Rights at Work in the Cotton Supply Chain project (2017–2021) is a public-private partnership with Inditex aimed at promoting Fundamental Principles and Rights at Work (FPRW) for a sustainable cotton supply chain in Pakistan. In 2020, the project drafted a mapping study of the cotton supply chain in selected communities. It also developed and distributed informational and communication materials to relevant stakeholders and farming communities. (99) Since its inception, the project has reached an estimated 1,860 direct project participants and about 5,000 indirect project participants. (99) The Promotion of Decent Work Opportunities for the Economic Empowerment of Vulnerable Segments of Society project (2019–2021) is funded by the Italian Ministry of Foreign Affairs and International Cooperation, and is focused on the brick kiln industry. During the reporting period, the project conducted awareness-raising activities on the COVID-19 pandemic with brick kiln owners and workers, undertook a rapid assessment on the impact of the pandemic on Pakistan's brick kiln sector, and conducted a study of the brick kiln sector to identify deficits on FPRW with respect to child labor and bonded labor. (99)
Khidmat ATM Cards†	Government-funded program to increase enrollment in schools that focuses on low income families in Punjab. (121) Provides approximately $12.50 to families for every child enrolled in school and thereafter approximately $6.25 per month for every child whose school attendance has been verified. (101) Active in 2020. (5)
Sabaoon Rehabilitation Center†	NGO-run, federal government-funded center that rehabilitates children who were recruited and ideologically influenced by terrorist organizations and militant groups. Reintegrates youth into society by providing psychological treatment, education, and vocational training. (9) In 2020, the Khyber Pakhtunkhwa provincial government approved funding for a second Sabaoon Center called Sabaoon-II. (143)
Loans (supported by the World Bank) to Zig-Zag Technology in Brick Kilns	The Punjab government has pushed brick kilns in the province to adopt "zig-zag" technology, which, in addition to reducing coal consumption and pollution from the kilns, will reduce the need for labor at each kiln, cutting incentives for bonded and child labor. (47) Approximately 99 percent of Punjab's kilns have adopted this technology, with many doing so during this reporting period. (121) The Punjab government offered subsidized loans, supported by the World Bank, to encourage adoption, and enforced its December 31 deadline for all kilns to convert to the technology or be shut down. (47)

In 2019, the provincial labor departments of Khyber Pakhtunkhwa and Balochistan dedicated approximately $1.53 million and $1.37 million of their budgets, respectively, to conduct surveys on child labor. The Khyber Pakhtunkhwa labor department began conducting its child labor survey in 2019. (44,106) Child labor surveys are also being carried out in Sindh and the ICT, while the child labor survey project in Balochistan is still being planned. (101) Surveys are expected to be completed in 2022 due to pandemic-related delays. (5)

MODERATE ADVANCEMENT

The social programs of the federal and provincial governments are insufficient to address the prevalence and scope of Pakistan's child labor problem. Existing programs also do not provide enough protection and rehabilitation services for bonded child laborers and child victims of human trafficking. (39,144) Government initiatives are needed to specifically target child labor in the informal sector, including child labor and forced child labor in domestic work. (120) In addition, there is no significant social program to address sexual abuse of child workers or children attending madrassas in Pakistan.

VII. SUGGESTED GOVERNMENT ACTIONS TO ELIMINATE CHILD LABOR

Based on the reporting above, suggested actions are identified that would advance the elimination of child labor in Pakistan (Table 11).

Table 11. Suggested Government Actions to Eliminate Child Labor

Area	Suggested Action	Year(s) Suggested
Legal Framework	Accede to the Palermo Protocol on Trafficking in Persons.	2013 – 2020
	Establish a minimum age for work of at least age 14 in federal and provincial laws extending to all sectors and informal employment, regardless of the number of employees.	2011 – 2020
	Ensure that the law prohibits the employment of children under age 18 in hazardous work, including in federal law and Balochistan Province.	2009 – 2020
	Ensure that the federal and provincial lists of hazardous work prohibited for children are comprehensive, and include brickmaking, domestic work, and mining.	2009 – 2020
	Ensure that federal and provincial laws criminally prohibit child trafficking without requiring an element of force, fraud, or coercion.	2019 – 2020
	Ensure that the law prohibits the use of children in illicit activities, including in the production and trafficking of drugs, including in federal law and Balochistan and Khyber Pakhtunkhwa Provinces.	2011 – 2020
	Ensure that the law criminalizes the use, procurement, and offering of children in prostitution, pornography, and pornographic performances, including in federal law and Balochistan and Khyber Pakhtunkhwa Provinces.	2011 – 2020
	Ensure that the law criminally prohibits the recruitment and use of children under age 18 by non-state groups for armed conflict, including in federal law and Balochistan and Khyber Pakhtunkhwa Provinces.	2015 – 2020
	Raise the minimum age for work to the age up to which education is compulsory.	2019 – 2020
	Enforcement	Ensure that the number of labor inspectors in Pakistan meets the ILO's technical advice and that there are a sufficient number of inspectors trained and responsible for providing enforcement of child labor laws in all provinces.
Provide the funding necessary to adequately hire, train, equip, and cover the cost of transportation for inspectors to enforce child labor laws, especially in Khyber Pakhtunkhwa, Punjab, and Sindh Provinces.		2010 – 2020
Ensure that District Vigilance Committees that seek to ensure enforcement and implementation of bonded labor prohibitions are operating effectively in all provinces, and are established in Khyber Pakhtunkhwa and Balochistan Provinces.		2013 – 2020
Ensure that all allegations of sexual abuse, including allegations of bacha bazi and trafficking of boys into Afghanistan, are thoroughly investigated and, when appropriate, prosecuted.		2019 – 2020
Ensure that all brick kilns are registered, do not employ child labor, and fully compensate all workers.		2020
Create a centralized repository of labor law enforcement data and a regular mechanism for reporting it to the federal government, and make the data publicly available.		2018 – 2020
Publish enforcement data for child labor law violations, penalties imposed, and penalties collected for all provinces. In addition, publish information about labor inspectorate funding, the number of labor inspectors, the number of labor inspections conducted at the worksite, whether routine inspections were targeted, whether unannounced inspections were conducted, whether training on new laws related to child labor were conducted, whether refresher training courses were provided, whether complaint mechanisms exist, whether reciprocal referral mechanisms exist between labor authorities and social services for all provinces.		2010 – 2020
Establish sufficient laws to end police corruption, particularly the taking of bribes from suspected perpetrators to ignore alleged crimes.		2019 – 2020

Area	Suggested Action	Year(s) Suggested
Enforcement	Establish a referral mechanism between labor authorities and social services in all provinces.	2017 – 2020
	Establish a referral mechanism between criminal law enforcement agencies and social services in all provinces.	2018 – 2020
	Publish information about criminal law investigations, violations found, prosecutions initiated, and the number of convictions, as well as about initial training, training on the worst forms of child labor, refresher courses, and penalties imposed and collected in all provinces.	2016 – 2020
Coordination	Publish information on the activities undertaken by the Provincial and Federal Tripartite Consultative Committees.	2017 – 2020
	Establish the remaining 33 Child Protection Units in Balochistan, as required by law.	2019 – 2020
	Ensure that the Khyber Pakhtunkhwa Child Welfare and Protection Commission meets regularly and appoints a commissioner.	2020
	Ensure all coordinating bodies are able to carry out their intended mandates.	2020
Government Policies	Ensure that steps are taken to implement policies to address child labor.	2020
	Ensure that inspectors are provided with sufficient resources and are not stymied from executing Sindh Province's Labor Policy by factory owners.	2019 – 2020
	Integrate child labor elimination and prevention strategies in the education policies of the provincial governments.	2014 – 2020
	Publish activities undertaken to implement key policies related to child labor during the reporting period.	2020
Social Programs	Complete and publish child labor surveys at the federal and provincial levels.	2009 – 2020
	Implement programs to address and eliminate the sexual abuse of children, especially in madrassas , workplaces, and on the street.	2019 – 2020
	Improve existing programs and increase the size and scope of government programs to reach children working in the informal sector and in the worst forms of child labor, including domestic workers, bonded child laborers, and other victims of human trafficking.	2009 – 2020
	Implement programs to address high rates of teacher absenteeism, inadequate facilities, school fees, lack of transportation, and use of corporal punishment to ensure that all children have access to free and compulsory education, as required by law. Increase security for schools to protect children and teachers from attacks by non-state armed groups.	2011 – 2020
	Implement programs to raise awareness of and provide assistance to children used by non-state militant groups to engage in armed conflict.	2011 – 2020

In 2020, Panama made moderate advancement in efforts to eliminate the worst forms of child labor. The government successfully prosecuted, convicted, and sentenced its first forced child labor case, and it provided social services to 1,500 child victims and children at risk of child labor. It also established a Network of Companies Against Child Labor with the participation of the National Council of Private Enterprise and technical advice from the International Labor Organization, with the aim of creating a certification seal for products produced free of child labor. However, children in Panama are subjected to the worst forms of child labor, including in commercial sexual exploitation, sometimes as a result of human trafficking. Children also perform dangerous tasks in agriculture. Panamanian law allows minors under age 16 to engage in hazardous work within training facilities in violation of international standards. Moreover, the Ministry of Labor lacks the authority to collect fines for labor violations, limiting its capacity to enforce laws on the worst forms of child labor.

I. PREVALENCE AND SECTORAL DISTRIBUTION OF CHILD LABOR

Children in Panama are subjected to the worst forms of child labor, including in commercial sexual exploitation, sometimes as a result of human trafficking. Children also perform dangerous tasks in agriculture. (1-6) Table 1 provides key indicators on children's work and education in Panama.

Table 1. Statistics on Children's Work and Education

Children	Age	Percent

MODERATE ADVANCEMENT

Children in Panama are subjected to commercial sexual exploitation, mainly in tourist areas in Panama City and in beach communities. (9)

According to the results of Panama’s 2016 survey on child labor, the highest prevalence of child labor is in the agricultural sector in rural areas and autonomous indigenous areas, or comarcas. The comarca Ngäbe Buglé and the provinces of Panama and Bocas del Toro had the highest number of children engaged in child labor. (2)

In 2020, due to the COVID-19 pandemic, the Ministry of Education moved all learning to a remote model beginning in March. (17) This created new barriers for accessing education, such as lack of internet and access to electronic devices, leading to an increase in inequality in education. The government reports that there are 46,000 students who did not engage in studies after the closure of schools in March 2020. (17) The Inter-American Development Bank estimates that educational exclusion will increase in Panama by 19 percent due to the closure of schools. (17)

Although the Panamanian Constitution recognizes the right to education without discrimination, indigenous children and those in rural and Afro-Panamanian communities face barriers to accessing education due to a lack of transportation, infrastructure, technology, and teachers, particularly in the comarcas. (1,4,17,19,28,29) Children of indigenous descent often travel significant distances to reach school and experience frequent interruptions in their education due to family migration to work in agriculture. (9,28,29) Indigenous children have very low school enrollment rates. (30) Panamanian law requires that schools integrate children with disabilities, but most public schools do not have adequate facilities for them. (31)

II. LEGAL FRAMEWORK FOR CHILD LABOR

Panama has ratified all key international conventions concerning child labor (Table 3).

Table 3. Ratification of International Conventions on Child Labor

Convention	Ratification
 ILO C. 138, Minimum Age	✓
ILO C. 182, Worst Forms of Child Labor	✓
 UN CRC	✓
UN CRC Optional Protocol on Armed Conflict	✓
UN CRC Optional Protocol on the Sale of Children, Child Prostitution and Child Pornography	✓
 Palermo Protocol on Trafficking in Persons	✓

The government has established laws and regulations related to child labor (Table 4). However, gaps exist in Panama's legal framework to adequately protect children from the worst forms of child labor, including hazardous work and light work.

Table 4. Laws and Regulations on Child Labor

Standard	Meets International Standards	Age	Legislation
Minimum Age for Work	Yes	14	Article 70 of the Constitution; Articles 508–509 and 716 of the Family Code; Articles 117, 119, and 123 of the Labor Code (32-34)
Minimum Age for Hazardous Work	No	18	Article 510 of the Family Code; Article 203 of the Penal Code; Article 4 of Executive Decree No. 19 of 2006; Article 118 of the Labor Code (22,32-36)
Identification of Hazardous Occupations or Activities Prohibited for Children	Yes		Articles 2, 2A, and 2B of Executive Decree No. 19 of 2006; Article 118 of the Labor Code (22,34,36)

Standard	Meets International Standards	Age	Legislation
Prohibition of Forced Labor	Yes		Articles 157–158, 205–208, and 456 of the Penal Code; Article 489 of the Family Code; Article 21 of the Constitution (32,33,35-37)
Prohibition of Child Trafficking	Yes		Articles 205–208 and 456 of the Penal Code; Article 489.17 of the Family Code; Article 63 of Law 79 on Human Trafficking (33,35,37)
Prohibition of Commercial Sexual Exploitation of Children	Yes		Articles 179–187, 189–191, 202–203, 207, and 456 of the Penal Code; Article 63 of Law 79 on Human Trafficking (35,37)
Prohibition of Using Children in Illicit Activities	Yes		Articles 318, 333, and 336 of the Penal Code; Article 489.16 of the Family Code; Article 2.16 of Executive Decree No. 19 of 2006 (33,35,36)
Minimum Age for Voluntary State Military Recruitment	N/A†
Prohibition of Compulsory Recruitment of Children by (State) Military	N/A†
Prohibition of Military Recruitment by Non-state Armed Groups	Yes		Article 448 of the Penal Code (35)
Compulsory Education Age	Yes	15	Articles 34 and 45 of the Law on Education; Article 489 of the Family Code; Article 95 of the Constitution (32,33,38,39)
Free Public Education	Yes		Articles 34 and 41 of the Law on Education; Article 95 of the Constitution (32,38,39)

† No standing military (32)

Currently, Panamanian law has a list of hazardous occupations prohibited for children under age 18, but it permits children to perform such work in training programs starting at age 14, in violation of international standards. (22)

Although the Constitution, Family Code, and Labor Code set the minimum age for employment at age 14, the Family Code and Labor Code specify exceptions for agricultural work. (32-34) Article 119 of the Labor Code allows children ages 12 to 15 to perform light work in agriculture if the work is outside of regular school hours. The Labor Code, however, does not define the kinds of activities children may perform as light work. (34) In addition, the minimum age for work is lower than the compulsory education age, which may encourage children to leave school before the completion of compulsory education.

III. ENFORCEMENT OF LAWS ON CHILD LABOR

The government has established institutional mechanisms for the enforcement of laws and regulations on child labor (Table 5). However, gaps exist within the operations of enforcement agencies that may hinder adequate enforcement of their child labor laws.

Table 5. Agencies Responsible for Child Labor Law Enforcement

Organization/Agency	Role
Ministry of Labor (MITRADEL)	Enforces child labor laws through two directorates with direct authority over child labor matters: the Directorate Against Child Labor and for the Protection of Adolescent Workers (DIRETIPAT), and the Labor Inspection Directorate. DIRETIPAT is responsible for overseeing the enforcement of laws related to working children in the formal and informal sectors, planning and executing public policies, and carrying out education programs on child labor for employers, parents, and children. (23,40,41) DIRETIPAT also manages the newly established Direct Government Action Program that seeks to prevent and eradicate child labor. Refers cases of children found in exploitative work to the Child and Adolescent Courts, or to the National Secretariat for Childhood, Adolescence, and Family (SENNIAF). (23) The Labor Inspection Directorate enforces the Labor Code in areas in which children may be working, particularly in the formal sector. (23)
Attorney General's Office	Investigates and prosecutes crimes of sexual exploitation. Investigations are initiated by the Judicial Investigative Directorate, after which cases are passed to the prosecutors. (23)

MODERATE ADVANCEMENT

Organization/Agency	Role
National Secretariat of Childhood, Adolescence, and Family (SENNIAF)	Conducts inspections to identify children and adolescents engaged in child labor, particularly in the informal sector. (23,42) Monitors and coordinates a network of government services to address the needs of vulnerable populations. (43) Runs shelters for victims of human trafficking, including minors. (44)
Childhood and Adolescence Police	Assists, collaborates with, and coordinates with authorities and organizations to address the education, prevention, protection, and rehabilitation of children, including those in child labor. (45,46) It is a special body of the National Police.

Labor Law Enforcement

In 2020, labor law enforcement agencies in Panama took actions to combat child labor (Table 6). However, gaps exist within the authority of the Ministry of Labor (MITRADEL) that may hinder adequate labor law enforcement, including allocating sufficient financial resources.

Table 6. Labor Law Enforcement Efforts Related to Child Labor

Overview of Labor Law Enforcement	2019	2020
Labor Inspectorate Funding	$1,313,417 (23)	$1,307,476 (17)
Number of Labor Inspectors	100 (23)	93 (17)
Inspectorate Authorized to Assess Penalties	Yes (34)	Yes (34)
Initial Training for New Labor Inspectors	Yes (23)	Yes (17)
Training on New Laws Related to Child Labor	Yes (23)	N/A (17)
Refresher Courses Provided	Yes (23)	Yes (17)
Number of Labor Inspections Conducted	14,439 (47)	10,374 (47)
Number Conducted at Worksite	14,439 (47)	10,374 (47)
Number of Child Labor Violations Found	10 (23)	2 (17)
Number of Child Labor Violations for Which Penalties Were Imposed	10 (23)	2 (17)
Number of Child Labor Penalties Imposed that Were Collected	Unknown (23)	2 (17)
Routine Inspections Conducted	Yes (23)	Yes (17)
Routine Inspections Targeted	Yes (23)	Yes (17)
Unannounced Inspections Permitted	Yes (34)	Yes (34)
Unannounced Inspections Conducted	Yes (23)	Yes (17)
Complaint Mechanism Exists	Yes (23)	Yes (17)
Reciprocal Referral Mechanism Exists Between Labor Authorities and Social Services	Unknown (23)	Yes (17)

In 2020, the government carried out a total of 10,374 inspections, 877 of which were child labor specific inspections, compared to 1,542 child labor specific inspections in 2019. (47) During 2020, the emphasis of inspections was redirected toward enforcing health and safety workplace rules developed to address the pandemic. This resulted in a 43 percent decrease in the number of inspections with a child labor focus when compared to 2019. (17,47) During the reporting period, the Directorate Against Child Labor and for the Protection of Adolescent Workers (DIRETIPAT) requested that the Judicial Secretary of the General Directorate of Labor sanction two companies for non-compliance of child labor laws. According to DIRETIPAT, in 2020 the General Directorate of Labor issued two penalties for two violations, for a total of $4,600, of which they collected $3,100. (17)

DIRETIPAT reported that in patrols and inspections done together with the National Secretariat for Childhood, Adolescence, and Family and the National Commission for the Prevention of Crimes of Sexual Exploitation, it identified 88 children and adolescents working illegally, without corresponding permits, or in industries considered dangerous for adolescents. In addition, DIRETIPAT reported that, together with the NGO Casa Esperanza, it identified 1,500 children and adolescents to benefit from scholarships and medical follow-ups to prevent child labor, although it is unclear whether any of these children were identified through labor inspections. (17) These children will receive care and services, scholarships, and academic follow-up for 3 consecutive years from the Direct Action Program for the Prevention and Eradication of Child Labor and Casa Esperanza. (17)

Due to emphasis on decrees and health rules to control the spread of COVID-19, the government did not provide training to labor inspectors on child labor or hazardous child labor laws in 2020. (17) Of the 93 labor inspectors employed by the government, only 4 received specialized training in child labor investigations, even though all inspectors must investigate and enforce child labor laws. (17) MITRADEL and the National Secretariat for Childhood, Adolescence, and Family operate a secure 311 Complaint Line, a website, and social media platforms to receive complaints. In 2020, MITRADEL also set up two WhatsApp phone number lines to file labor complaints. (17)

The budget for DIRETIPAT is insufficient to meet its staffing needs. DIRETIPAT indicated a need for additional funding to increase the number of labor inspectors nationally, and for unspecified tools to carry out their work. (17,28,48,49) The overall number of labor inspectors decreased in 2020 compared with 2019. (17) In 2020, Panama had 93 labor inspectors, which is likely insufficient for the size of Panama's workforce, which includes more than 1.6 million workers. According to the ILO's technical advice of a ratio approaching 1 inspector for every 15,000 workers in industrializing economies, Panama would employ about 109 labor inspectors. (50)

Criminal Law Enforcement

In 2020, criminal law enforcement agencies in Panama took actions to combat child labor (Table 7). However, the government did not provide sufficient data on its criminal enforcement efforts, which limits the ability to assess their efforts.

Table 7. Criminal Law Enforcement Efforts Related to Child Labor

Overview of Criminal Law Enforcement	2019	2020
Initial Training for New Criminal Investigators	Unknown (23)	Yes (17)
Training on New Laws Related to the Worst Forms of Child Labor	Unknown (23)	N/A (17)
Refresher Courses Provided	Unknown (23)	Yes (17)
Number of Investigations	Unknown (23)	Unknown (17)
Number of Violations Found	Unknown (23)	Unknown (17)
Number of Prosecutions Initiated	Unknown (23)	Unknown (17)
Number of Convictions	Unknown (23)	Unknown (17)
Imposed Penalties for Violations Related to the Worst Forms of Child Labor	Unknown (23)	Unknown (17)
Reciprocal Referral Mechanism Exists Between Criminal Authorities and Social Services	Yes (51)	Yes (17)

The government did not provide information on its criminal law enforcement efforts for inclusion in this report.

In September 2020, a Panamanian court sentenced a perpetrator of forced child domestic labor to 80 months' imprisonment and 3 years' disqualification from engaging in public functions, such as voting or running in elections and holding positions of public trust. The accused was convicted of "trafficking in persons in the form of labor exploitation" in the province of Coclé. (17,52) The victim was awarded $2,000 in compensation. This was the first successful prosecution of a child labor case in Panama, setting an important legal precedent in the country. (17,52)

IV. COORDINATION OF GOVERNMENT EFFORTS ON CHILD LABOR

The government has established mechanisms to coordinate its efforts to address child labor (Table 8). However, gaps exist that hinder the effective coordination of efforts to address child labor, including coordination among agencies.

Panama

MODERATE ADVANCEMENT

Table 8. Key Mechanisms to Coordinate Government Efforts on Child Labor

Coordinating Body	Role & Description
Committee for the Eradication of Child Labor and the Protection of Adolescent Workers (CETIPPAT)	Coordinates various efforts to combat child labor. Led by the First Lady of Panama and includes MITRADEL, the ministries of Education, Health, and Agriculture, and representatives from civil society and organizations of workers and employers. (49) Conducts a National Child Labor Survey every 2 years. (9) It is a public-private institution that includes government, employers, workers, and NGOs that collaborate to combat child labor. (23) In 2020, it established the “Network of Companies Against Child Labor” with the participation of the National Council of Private Enterprise and with technical advice from the ILO, with the aim of creating a certification seal for “products free of child labor.” (17)
Subcommittee to Combat Child Labor	Coordinates the Panamanian Institute for Sports and the Ministry of Education in their efforts to address child labor and its causes. Subcommittee of CETIPPAT. (28,53) Research was unable to determine whether the Subcommittee to Combat Child Labor was active during the reporting period.
Provincial Coordination Mechanisms	Identify and report cases of child labor at the local level to SENNIAF and coordinate with CETIPPAT at the national level. Established in Bocas del Toro, Colón, and Darién. Additional commissions were established in Chiriquí, Veraguas, Herrera, Los Santos, Coclé, and Panama Oeste. (1,4) Research was unable to determine whether the Provincial Coordination Mechanisms were active during the reporting period.
National Commission for the Prevention of Crimes of Sexual Exploitation (CONAPREDES)	Coordinates, advises, studies, and implements public policies for the prevention and eradication of sexual exploitation. (49) Members include the Attorney General and the ministries of Labor, Education, Social Development, and Health. Refers cases of sexual exploitation to the Attorney General's Office. (49) In 2020, using virtual platforms, it developed programs to raise awareness, sensitize, and update teaching staff, lawyers, prosecutors, representatives, psychologists, social workers, caregivers, police for children and adolescents, judicial and administrative officials of the judicial body, technicians from different professions, and parents of families and students. Trained a total of 24,485 people during the reporting period. (17)

MITRADEL noted the need for increased coordination on efforts to address child labor, including within the ministry and with social service agencies and referral mechanisms. (28)

V. GOVERNMENT POLICIES ON CHILD LABOR

The government has established policies related to child labor (Table 9). However, policy gaps exist that hinder efforts to address child labor, including implementation.

Table 9. Key Policies Related to Child Labor

Policy	Description
Direct Government Action Program for the Prevention and Eradication of Child Labor	A MITRADEL initiative implemented through the Institute for Training and Utilization of Human Resources that provides a network of social and economic services to child workers and children at risk of child labor. Services include the provision of food and scholarships, support for sports activities, and social monitoring. (17) Replaced the Roadmap Towards the Elimination of Child Labor (2016–2019) during the reporting period. In 2020, under this policy MITRADEL designed and prepared to carry out a survey on child labor planned for October 2021, and continued to train inspectors. (17) The government also conducted 354 unannounced inspections of workplaces focused on child labor, referred 1,500 victims or at-risk children to social services, and identified 88 minors working in violation of the law. (17)
National Multisectoral Strategy for the Prevention of Violence Against Children and Adolescents (2018–2022)	Aims to eliminate child labor and end the mistreatment, exploitation, trafficking, violence, and torture of children. Developed by the national government through the National Intersectoral Committee for the Prevention of Violence Against Children and Adolescents and SENNIAF, with technical support from UNICEF. (57,58) Research was unable to determine whether activities were taken to implement this strategy during the reporting period.
National Action Plan for the Prevention and Elimination of Commercial Sexual Exploitation of Children and Adolescents	Seeks to prevent and eliminate the commercial sexual exploitation of children and adolescents, including by providing services to victims, strengthening CONAPREDES, and raising awareness. Implemented by CONAPREDES, with support from the Public Ministry. (49,59) In 2020, CONAPREDES and the Wellbeing Planet Foundation signed a cooperation agreement to provide tools to assess post-traumatic stress and to offer comprehensive training to officials of CONAPREDES. (17)
National Plan Against Trafficking in Persons (2012–2022)	Combats human trafficking through prevention, victim assistance, and international cooperation. Includes provisions to protect child victims of human trafficking. (48,60) In 2020, an investigative coordination initiative between the U.S. Department of Homeland Security–Homeland Security Investigations, the Panamanian National Police, and the Panama Attorney General's Office conducted training on an online child protection system that targets individuals downloading and distributing child exploitation material within peer-to-peer networks on the Internet. (17)
Districts Free of Child Labor	Establishes cooperation agreements between MITRADEL and municipal councils to design and implement child labor eradication strategies. (4) Includes policies related to development and education projects that support poverty reduction. In 2020, under the guidance of this policy, two new regional coordinating committees were established in the provinces of Colón and Darién. These commissions report child labor issues to SENNIAF. (17)

The Coordination Agreement on Labor Migration between the Ministries of Labor of Costa Rica and Panama aims to strengthen dialogue on labor migration between the two countries, with an emphasis on indigenous Panamanian migrant workers, to ensure social protection of migrant workers and their families. The policy includes a bilateral technical committee to promote joint action to combat human trafficking, exchange information, and develop cooperative strategies and projects. (61) Although potentially a useful policy tool to combat child labor, child labor elimination and prevention strategies do not appear to have been integrated into this policy.

VI. Social Programs to Address Child Labor

In 2020, the government funded and participated in programs that include the goal of eliminating or preventing child labor (Table 10). However, gaps exist in these social programs, including their ability to reach the most vulnerable populations.

Table 10. Key Social Programs to Address Child Labor

Program	Description
SENNIAF programs to identify, remove, and provide services to children engaged in the worst forms of child labor and commercial sexual exploitation†	Prevention and Eradication of Child Labor identifies children engaged in the worst forms of child labor; removes them from exploitative situations, and connects them to a network of social and economic services offered by the government. Maintains a case processing system to efficiently manage reports and help reduce report processing times. (1) Prevention and Care for Child and Adolescent Victims of Sexual Violence identifies children engaged in commercial sexual exploitation, removes them from exploitative situations, and provides them with social services. Conducts training workshops nationwide for professionals providing direct care to child and adolescent victims of sexual violence. (62) Research was unable to identify specific actions undertaken during the reporting period under these programs.
Network of Opportunities†	Ministry of Social Development program that provides conditional cash transfers to families in extreme poverty, conditioned on their children's participation in health and education services and the acquisition of a birth certificate. Offers training to project participants to improve income-generating opportunities. (63) Research was unable to identify specific actions undertaken during the reporting period under this program.
El Plan Colmena	Social program launched in 2019 in districts located in Capira, Ciri de Los Sotos, Ciri Grande, Angela Chirú, El Cacao, La Trinidad, Ollas Arriba, and Santa Rosa. Seeks to identify the root causes of poverty and implement long-term local capacity building programs that achieve a poverty-free Panama. (23) In 2020, with the assistance of the Food and Agriculture Organization of the United Nations, a pilot program called “Study without Hunger” began offering lunches in schools; this was prompted by a survey on food habits and trainings for educators on eating habits. When the pandemic began and schools closed, the food in this program was transferred to the “Panama Solidario” program, which provides food to communities in need, in the hope that it would still reach students and their families. (17)

Although the Government of Panama has expanded programs that reach children in rural areas and from indigenous and Afro-Panamanian communities, reports indicate that the scope of these programs is insufficient, and these children remain vulnerable to the worst forms of child labor. (64,65)

Despite policy efforts, the National Anti-Trafficking Commission acknowledges that funding for and availability of services for human trafficking victims remains insufficient to address the full scope of the problem. Furthermore, although victims of child trafficking are able to receive services from local NGOs, Panama lacks programs to specifically address the needs of this population. (5) Government officials have also noted that despite funds dedicated to the prevention of crimes against children, Panama lacks a specific mechanism to direct funds toward child sexual abuse victims. (66,67)

VII. SUGGESTED GOVERNMENT ACTIONS TO ELIMINATE CHILD LABOR

Based on the reporting above, suggested actions are identified that would advance the elimination of child labor in Panama (Table 11).

Panama

MODERATE ADVANCEMENT

Table 11. Suggested Government Actions to Eliminate Child Labor

Area	Suggested Action	Year(s) Suggested
Legal Framework	Establish regulations that define the types of activities that children between ages 12 and 14 can undertake as light work.	2009 – 2020
	Ensure that the law protects children from hazardous work by establishing a minimum age of 18 for all children or by ensuring that children receive adequate training in the type of work being done and that the health, safety, and morals of children are protected in accordance with international standards if children age 16 or 17 are allowed to perform hazardous work.	2013 – 2020
	Raise the working age from 14 to 15, the compulsory education age, to comply with international standards.	2019 – 2020
Enforcement	Collect and make available complete data on labor law enforcement efforts and criminal enforcement efforts related to the worst forms of child labor, such as the number of violations found, number of prosecutions initiated, penalties collected, whether reciprocal mechanisms exist, and number of convictions.	2018 – 2020
	Allocate sufficient funding for the Directorate Against Child Labor and for the Protection of Adolescent Workers to meet its commitments for coordination, implementation, and monitoring related to child labor.	2014 – 2020
	Ensure that all inspectors receive regular, specialized training on child labor issues.	2018 – 2020
	Increase the number of labor inspectors to meet the ILO's technical advice.	2020
Coordination	Ensure all coordinating bodies are able to carry out their intended mandates.	2020
	Increase coordination on efforts to address child labor, including within the Ministry of Labor, and with social services agencies and referral mechanisms.	2016 – 2020
Government Policies	Take steps to implement the National Multisectoral Strategy for the Prevention of Violence Against Children and Adolescents, and publish information about these efforts.	2020
	Integrate child labor elimination and prevention strategies into the Coordination Agreement on Labor Migration between the Ministries of Labor of Costa Rica and Panama.	2015 – 2020
Social Programs	Enhance efforts to eliminate barriers and make education accessible for all children, including children from rural areas and indigenous and Afro-Panamanian communities, by expanding existing programs, including school transportation.	2014 – 2020
	Ensure that social programs to prevent and eradicate child labor are being implemented.	2018 – 2020
	Establish programs and ensure sufficient funding to address the needs of human trafficking victims, including programs that provide services to child victims of human trafficking and sexual abuse.	2018 – 2020

In 2020, Papua New Guinea made minimal advancement in efforts to eliminate the worst forms of child labor. During the reporting period, the National Council for Child and Family Services developed criteria for the appointment of child protection officers and appointed 42 child protection officers. However, children in Papua New Guinea are subjected to the worst forms of child labor, including in commercial sexual exploitation, sometimes as a result of human trafficking. Children also perform dangerous tasks in mining. Papua New Guinea's hazardous work prohibitions do not comply with international standards that require all children under age 18 to be protected from work that could jeopardize their health and safety, nor do its laws prohibit using, procuring, or offering a child for illicit activities, including for the production and trafficking of drugs. Schools continued charging fees as a result of not receiving promised government subsidies needed for education to remain free and accessible for all children. In addition, insufficient resources hamper the labor inspectorate's capacity to enforce child labor laws.

I. PREVALENCE AND SECTORAL DISTRIBUTION OF CHILD LABOR

Children in Papua New Guinea are subjected to the worst forms of child labor, including in commercial sexual exploitation, sometimes as a result of human trafficking. (1-4) Children also perform dangerous tasks in mining. (1,2) Table 1 provides key indicators on children's work and education in Papua New Guinea. Data on some of these indicators are not available from the sources used in this report.

Table 1. Statistics on Children's Work and Education

Children	Age	Percent
Working (% and population)	5 to 14	Unavailable
Attending School (%)	5 to 14	Unavailable
Combining Work and School (%)	7 to 14	Unavailable
Primary Completion Rate (%)		77.1

Source for primary completion rate: Data from 2016, published by UNESCO Institute for Statistics, 2021. (5)
Data were unavailable from International Labor Organization's analysis, 2021. (6)

Based on a review of available information, Table 2 provides an overview of children's work by sector and activity.

Table 2. Overview of Children's Work by Sector and Activity

Sector/Industry	Activity
Agriculture	Working on tea, coffee, and palm oil plantations (1,2,7)
	Deep sea fishing, including harvesting sea cucumbers and pearls (2,8)
Industry	Mining, including gold mining (1,2)
	Manual labor (3)
Services	Domestic work (1,3)
	Street work, including scavenging for recyclables, begging, directing traffic, and directing traffic while begging (1-3)
	Working in markets, including unloading and carrying heavy bags of food (1,2)
Categorical Worst Forms of Child Labor‡	Commercial sexual exploitation, including working in bars, nightclubs, and brothels, and use in the production of pornography, each sometimes as a result of human trafficking (1-4)
	Forced domestic work (1,3)
	Illicit activities, including selling drugs (1,2,9)
	Forced mining, including panning for gold, sometimes as a result of human trafficking (2,3)
	Forced portering, sometimes as a result of human trafficking (2,3)

‡ Child labor understood as the worst forms of child labor per se under Article 3(a)–(c) of ILO C. 182.

Papua New Guinea

MINIMAL ADVANCEMENT

Some children from rural areas are sent to live with relatives or “host” families in cities, where they may be forced to perform domestic work to pay off family debts. (1,3) Children are commonly seen directing vehicle movements in and out of public parking spaces and directing traffic in busy urban business centers, especially during business hours. (8,10) Children also perform dangerous tasks in mining, such as handling dangerous chemicals, including mercury used in gold mining, for which they lack appropriate training and equipment. (2,8) While school enrollment increased as a result of the government's Tuition Fee-Free policy, access to education is hindered by the lack of funding and resources needed to support an increase in the number of students. (2)

While school enrollment increased as a result of the government's Tuition Fee-Free policy, access to education is hindered by the lack of funding and resources needed to support an increase in the number of students, and in practice, many schools charge fees for books, uniforms, and supplies. (1,2,7,11,12) The Tuition Fee-Free policy provides government subsidies to primary and secondary schools to cover the costs associated with accommodating additional children in school. However, in previous years, some schools had to close due to aging infrastructure and reportedly did not receive the subsidy. (1,13,14) Further, in 2019, schools in Morobe Province were allowed to start charging fees for students due to the Tuition Fee-Free policy not providing payment subsidies to schools. (1,14) Insufficient resources, including the lack of reliable water supplies and proper toilets, also contribute to poor school attendance and led to one school closing in 2020. (2) Lack of access to schools increases children's vulnerability to child labor. In addition, research found that the threat of gender-based violence prevents many girls from attending school. (15) Papua New Guinea lacks comprehensive research and data on child labor, which affects the government's ability to address child labor in the country. (1)

II. LEGAL FRAMEWORK FOR CHILD LABOR

Papua New Guinea has ratified some key international conventions concerning child labor (Table 3).

Table 3. Ratification of International Conventions on Child Labor

Convention	Ratification
 ILO C. 138, Minimum Age	✓
ILO C. 182, Worst Forms of Child Labor	✓
 UN CRC	✓
UN CRC Optional Protocol on Armed Conflict
UN CRC Optional Protocol on the Sale of Children, Child Prostitution and Child Pornography
 Palermo Protocol on Trafficking in Persons

The government has established laws and regulations related to child labor (Table 4). However, gaps exist in Papua New Guinea's legal framework to adequately protect children from the worst forms of child labor, including the identification of hazardous occupations or activities prohibited for children and the prohibition of commercial sexual exploitation of children.

Table 4. Laws and Regulations on Child Labor

Standard	Meets International Standards	Age	Legislation
Minimum Age for Work	Yes	16	Article 103 of the Employment Act (16)
Minimum Age for Hazardous Work	No	16	Article 104 of the Employment Act (16)

Standard	Meets International Standards	Age	Legislation
Prohibition of Forced Labor	Yes		Articles 23 and 43 of the Constitution of the Independent State of Papua New Guinea; Section 208 of the Criminal Code (17,18)
Prohibition of Child Trafficking	No		Section 208 of the Criminal Code (18)
Prohibition of Commercial Sexual Exploitation of Children	No		Articles 229J–229O and 229R–229S of the Criminal Code (19)
Prohibition of Using Children in Illicit Activities	No
Minimum Age for Voluntary State Military Recruitment	Yes	16	Section 30 of the Defence Act (20)
Prohibition of Compulsory Recruitment of Children by (State) Military	N/A*
Prohibition of Military Recruitment by Non-state Armed Groups	No
Compulsory Education Age	No
Free Public Education	No

* No conscription (21)

According to the Employment Act, children ages 11 through 16 may be allowed to work under certain conditions, including parental consent and if the child works only with members of the family. The minimum age of 11 for light work is not in compliance with international standards, and the law does not specify the types of activities in which light work is permitted nor the number of hours per week that this work may be undertaken. (16,22) Papua New Guinea's Employment Act prohibits children under the age of 16 from engaging in hazardous work, which is not in compliance with international standards because it does not protect children between the ages of 16 and 18 from hazardous work. (16,22) Papua New Guinea also does not have laws that prohibit using, procuring, or offering a child for illicit activities, including for the production and trafficking of drugs. (23) The law does not sufficiently protect children from commercial sexual exploitation, because using, procuring, and offering a child for pornographic performances are not criminally prohibited. (19) Lastly, the prohibitions against child trafficking are insufficient because they require that threats, the use of force, or coercion be established for the crime of child trafficking. (4,18)

III. ENFORCEMENT OF LAWS ON CHILD LABOR

The government has established institutional mechanisms for the enforcement of laws and regulations on child labor (Table 5). However, gaps exist within the operations of enforcement agencies that may hinder adequate enforcement of their child labor laws.

Table 5. Agencies Responsible for Child Labor Law Enforcement

Organization/Agency	Role
Department of Labor and Industrial Relations	Implements and enforces child labor laws. (1)
Department of Youth, Religion, and Community Development	Through the Office of Child and Family Welfare Services, implements, oversees, and enforces the Child Protection ( Lukautim Pikinini ) Act, including provisions on child labor and its worst forms, and employs Papua New Guinea's Child Protection Officers. (1,2,8,10,24,25)

MINIMAL ADVANCEMENT

Organization/Agency	Role
Royal Papua New Guinea Constabulary	Enforces laws against commercial sexual exploitation of children. (8) Includes the specialized Family and Sexual Violence unit, which includes protecting children's rights and safety. (1,8)
I-Tok Kaunselin Helpim Lain	Telephone hotline funded by the Government of Papua New Guinea to report child welfare concerns and physical or sexual violence. (26)

Research indicates that the Department of Labor and Industrial Relations lacks a data monitoring system to track child labor cases, which may hamper its efforts to address child labor concerns in Papua New Guinea. (1,2) Although the government maintained the I-Tok Kaunselin Helpim Lain hotline to report concerns related to child welfare and allegations of physical or sexual violence, it was not active in 2020. IOM also maintained a hotline that provided anti-trafficking information and resources, but the number of cases identified related to children is unknown. (1,26,27)

Labor Law Enforcement

In 2020, labor law enforcement agencies in Papua New Guinea took actions to combat child labor (Table 6). However, gaps exist within the operations of enforcement agencies that may hinder adequate labor law enforcement, including the number of labor inspectors conducting inspections.

Table 6. Labor Law Enforcement Efforts Related to Child Labor

Overview of Labor Law Enforcement	2019	2020
Labor Inspectorate Funding	Unknown (1)	Unknown (2)
Number of Labor Inspectors	Unknown (1)	Unknown (2)

Unannounced Inspections Conducted	Yes (1)	Yes (2)
Complaint Mechanism Exists	Yes (1)	Yes (2)
Reciprocal Referral Mechanism Exists Between Labor Authorities and Social Services	No (1)	No (2)

The Government of Papua New Guinea did not respond to requests for information related to its labor law enforcement efforts for inclusion in this report. (2) While the number of labor inspectors is unknown, according to the ILO's technical advice of a ratio approaching 1 inspector for every 15,000 workers in developing economies, Papua New Guinea would need to employ roughly 245 labor inspectors as its workforce consists of over 3.7 million workers. Although research indicates that labor inspectors sometimes carry out routine inspections in hazardous workplaces or in the manufacturing sector, due to limited personnel capacity, labor inspectors generally respond to specific child labor complaints on a case-by-case basis as complaints are filed. (1,2,28) Insufficient resources hamper the labor inspectorate's capacity to enforce child labor laws, including administrative and budgetary constraints that prevent officers from receiving sufficient training. (1,8,29) Based on estimates from previous years, the number of labor inspectors is likely insufficient for the size of Papua New

Guinea’s workforce, which includes approximately 3.68 million workers. According to the ILO’s technical advice of a ratio approaching 1 inspector for every 15,000 workers in developing economies, Papua New Guinea would employ about 245 labor inspectors. (21,30) Most child labor occurs in the informal sector and outside of cities—in suburban and rural areas—where inspections are seldom conducted. (1) When labor inspections do occur, they are conducted in all three of Papua New Guinea’s languages (English, Hiri-Motu, and Pidgin/Tok Pisin). (2,31)

Criminal Law Enforcement

Research did not find information on whether criminal law enforcement agencies in Papua New Guinea took actions to combat child labor (Table 7).

Table 7. Criminal Law Enforcement Efforts Related to Child Labor

Overview of Criminal Law Enforcement	2019	2020
Initial Training for New Criminal Investigators	Unknown (1)	Unknown (2)
Training on New Laws Related to the Worst Forms of Child Labor	Unknown (1)	Unknown (2)
Refresher Courses Provided	Unknown (1)	Unknown (2)
Number of Investigations	Unknown (1)	Unknown (2)
Number of Violations Found	Unknown (1)	Unknown (2)
Number of Prosecutions Initiated	Unknown (1)	Unknown (2)
Number of Convictions	Unknown (1)	Unknown (2)
Imposed Penalties for Violations Related to the Worst Forms of Child Labor	Unknown (1)	Unknown (2)
Reciprocal Referral Mechanism Exists Between Criminal Authorities and Social Services	No (1)	No (2)

The Government of Papua New Guinea did not respond to requests for information on its criminal law enforcement efforts for inclusion in this report. Research indicates that there are not enough officers to conduct criminal investigations into child labor accusations due to a lack of funding, training, and report writing skills. (1,2) Research was unable to find evidence of trainings occurring in 2020 and was unable to determine whether training for prospective law enforcement officials would include all child labor elimination components, including recognizing the worst forms of child labor, victim identification, and prevention strategies. (27,32)

IV. COORDINATION OF GOVERNMENT EFFORTS ON CHILD LABOR

The government has established mechanisms to coordinate its efforts to address child labor (Table 8). However, gaps exist that hinder the effective coordination of efforts to address child labor, including efficacy in accomplishing mandates.

Table 8. Key Mechanisms to Coordinate Government Efforts on Child Labor

Coordinating Body	Role & Description
National Anti-Human Trafficking Committee	Coordinates efforts to combat human trafficking. Chaired by the Department of Justice and the Attorney General, with representatives from more than 15 government agencies, NGOs, and international organizations. (1,32) NGOs were not invited to participate in meetings even though the committee comprises NGO stakeholders. (3,27,28,33) Research was unable to determine whether activities were undertaken to coordinate efforts to combat human trafficking during the reporting period. (2)
National Council for Child and Family Services	Coordinates the implementation of the Child Protection Act and the National Child Protection Policy. In partnership with UNICEF, is overseen by senior government officials, civil society organizations, faith-based organizations, and private sector representatives, and comprises child protection officers. (1,34,35) During the reporting period, the Council developed criteria for the appointment of child protection officers and appointed 42 child protection officers. (2)
National Child Welfare Office	Coordinates the promotion of children’s rights through awareness campaigns and trainings. Refers perpetrators to police and provides help to police and social services when a child is rescued from child labor. (28) During the reporting period, provided child protection services to three female minor victims. (4)

Research indicates that there is a lack of senior governmental leadership and participation at National Anti-Human Trafficking Committee meetings. (28,32)

V. GOVERNMENT POLICIES ON CHILD LABOR

The government has established policies related to child labor (Table 9). However, policy gaps exist that hinder efforts to address child labor, including policy implementation.

Table 9. Key Policies Related to Child Labor

Policy	Description
National Action Plan to Eliminate Child Labor in Papua New Guinea (2017–2020)	Promotes government coordination efforts to eliminate the worst forms of child labor through more effective prevention, protection, rehabilitation, and reintegration measures and capacity building. (36,37) While research was unable to determine whether activities were undertaken to implement the National Action Plan to Eliminate Child Labor in Papua New Guinea during the reporting period, the UN Office of the United Nations High Commissioner for Human Rights and the Department of Justice initiated a periodic review of the National Action Plan. However, there were no substantial updates made. (2,4,33)
Papua New Guinea Trafficking in Persons National Action Plan (2015–2020)	Seeks to prevent human trafficking, protect victims, and prosecute offenders. (38) Research indicates that the government did not allocate any resources toward implementing this plan. (39) During the reporting period, the government commenced work on updating the plan, including an ongoing review process, though research was unable to determine what level of progress was made. (4,33)
National Child Protection Policy (2017–2027)	Seeks to strengthen child protection laws, including increased data gathering and analysis, full implementation of the Lukautim Pikinini Act, and elimination of violence against children at the hands of the police. (1,40) Research was unable to determine whether efforts were undertaken to implement the National Child Protection Policy during the reporting period. (4)
Tuition Fee-Free Policy	Aims to improve access to education by abolishing school tuition fees and providing subsidies to cover costs for primary and secondary school children who cannot afford an education. (8,12,41) Research was unable to determine whether activities were undertaken to implement the Tuition Fee Free Policy during the reporting period. (4)

Research was unable to confirm whether the National Action Plan to Eliminate Child Labor began enacting policies or programs in 2020—none were implemented in previous years due to a lack of effective administrative planning and human and financial resources. (2,10) Research was also unable to determine whether child labor elimination strategies were incorporated into the Trafficking in Persons National Action Plan.

VI. SOCIAL PROGRAMS TO ADDRESS CHILD LABOR

In 2020, the government funded and participated in programs that included the goal of eliminating or preventing child labor (Table 10). However, gaps exist in these social programs, including the adequacy of programs to address the full scope of the problem.

Table 10. Key Social Programs to Address Child Labor

Program	Description
Child Care Centers†	Provide a safe location for children removed by Child Protection Officers from situations deemed to be harmful to their health and safety. (1,10,42) Research was unable to determine whether the Child Care Centers were active during the reporting period.

† Program is funded by the Government of Papua New Guinea.

Research was unable to determine whether the government carried out programs specifically designed to assist children engaged in commercial sexual exploitation, domestic work, or mining. Research found no evidence of any programs with the goal of eliminating or preventing child labor. (3,32,43)

VII. SUGGESTED GOVERNMENT ACTIONS TO ELIMINATE CHILD LABOR

Based on the reporting above, suggested actions are identified that would advance the elimination of child labor in Papua New Guinea (Table 11).

Table 11. Suggested Government Actions to Eliminate Child Labor

Area	Suggested Action	Year(s) Suggested
Legal Framework	Accede to the UN CRC Optional Protocol on Armed Conflict.	2018 – 2020
	Accede to the UN CRC Optional Protocol on the Sale of Children, Child Prostitution and Child Pornography.	2014 – 2020
	Accede to the Palermo Protocol on Trafficking in Persons.	2014 – 2020
	Raise the minimum age for light work to age 13 to comply with international standards, and ensure that the law's light work provisions are sufficiently specific to prevent children from involvement in child labor.	2015 – 2020
	Establish age 18 as the minimum age for hazardous work, and identify hazardous occupations and activities prohibited for children.	2009 – 2020
	Ensure that the law does not require threats, the use of force, or coercion to be established for the crime of child trafficking.	2019 – 2020
	Ensure that the law criminally prohibits using, procuring, and offering a child for illicit activities, including for the production and trafficking of drugs.	2014 – 2020
	Ensure that the law criminally prohibits using, procuring, and offering a child for pornographic performances.	2016 – 2020
	Ensure that the law criminally prohibits the recruitment of children under age 18 by non-state armed groups.	2016 – 2020
Enforcement	Ensure that the law establishes a compulsory education age that is equal to the minimum age for employment.	2009 – 2020
	Fully fund and reopen the I-Tok Kaunselin Helpim Lain hotline.	2018 – 2020
	Publish information on child labor law enforcement efforts undertaken, including labor inspectorate funding, the number of child labor violations found, and the number of child labor penalties imposed.	2014 – 2020
	Strengthen the inspection system by ensuring that inspectors conduct routine or targeted inspections in addition to those that are complaint-driven.	2014 – 2020
	Provide inspectors with the resources necessary to enforce labor laws and other laws that protect children from the worst forms of child labor, including funding, training, and report writing skills.	2009 – 2020
	Establish a referral mechanism between labor and criminal law enforcement authorities and social services agencies to ensure that victims of child labor receive appropriate support services.	2014 – 2020
	Ensure the number of labor inspectors meets the ILO's technical advice.	2017 – 2020
	Institutionalize and fully fund training for labor inspectors and criminal investigators on the worst forms of child labor, including training for new labor inspectors at the beginning of their employment.	2016 – 2020
	Ensure that labor inspections occur in all areas of Papua New Guinea, especially outside of urban areas.	2019 – 2020
	Publish information on the criminal law enforcement efforts undertaken, including the number of child labor investigations initiated, the number of child labor penalties imposed, and the number of criminal law enforcement convictions secured.	2017 – 2020
	Establish a data monitoring system to track child labor cases.	2019 – 2020
	Ensure the number of labor inspectors in Papua New Guinea meets the ILO's technical guidance.	2020
	Coordination	Ensure that the established coordinating mechanisms to combat all forms of child labor, including the worst forms of child labor, fully carry out their mandates.
Ensure that there is senior governmental leadership and participation at the National Anti-Human Trafficking Committee meetings.		2018 – 2020
Ensure that all anti-human trafficking stakeholders, including NGOs, are invited to and participate in the National Anti-Human Trafficking Committee coordination meetings as per the Committee's mandate.		2019 – 2020
Government Policies	Ensure that all policies are funded and implemented according to their mandate, including the National Action Plan to Eliminate Child Labor in Papua New Guinea, the Papua New Guinea Trafficking in Persons National Action Plan, the National Child Protection Policy, and the Tuition Fee Free Policy.	2017 – 2020
	Integrate child labor elimination strategies into the Trafficking in Persons National Action Plan.	2019 – 2020
	Fully reimburse schools for the added costs of accommodating additional students as mandated under the Tuition Fee-Free Policy.	2018 – 2020
Social Programs	Increase access to education by instituting programs to address gender-based violence against girls in schools, fully eliminating school-related fees, and increasing resources, including access to reliable water supplies and toilets.	2014 – 2020
	Collect and publish data on the extent and nature of child labor to inform policies and programs.	2017 – 2020
	Implement and fully fund programs and anti-human trafficking services that assist children engaged in the worst forms of child labor in all relevant sectors, especially commercial sexual exploitation, domestic work, and mining.	2010 – 2020
	Ensure that Child Care Centers are active and are fully funded, and publish their activities undertaken during the reporting period.	2019 – 2020

In 2020, Paraguay made moderate advancement in efforts to eliminate the worst forms of child labor. The Ministry of Labor launched virtual training curricula for inspectors and created a labor complaint hotline. Local Defense Councils for the Rights of Children were also involved in child labor investigations, and in December 2020, the government approved a National Plan to Counter Trafficking in Persons. However, children in Paraguay are subjected to the worst forms of child labor, including in domestic servitude, sometimes as a result of human trafficking, as well as debt bondage in cattle raising, on dairy farms, and in charcoal factories. Children from rural and indigenous communities also face difficulties accessing and completing their education, including language barriers and inadequate facilities and staff at schools. In addition, limited funding for law enforcement agencies and social programs hampered the government's ability to fully address the worst forms of child labor, particularly in rural areas. Paraguay's criminal law enforcement agencies also lack resources to sufficiently identify, investigate, and prosecute cases of the worst forms of child labor, especially in remote areas.

I. PREVALENCE AND SECTORAL DISTRIBUTION OF CHILD LABOR

Children in Paraguay are subjected to the worst forms of child labor, including in domestic servitude, sometimes as a result of human trafficking, as well as debt bondage in cattle raising, on dairy farms, and in charcoal factories. (1-4) The 2011 National Survey of Child and Adolescent Activities found that 21 percent of all Paraguayan children were engaged in hazardous work. (5) The 2015 Survey of Activities of Rural Area Children and Adolescents, published in 2016, identified 384,677 children ages 5 to 17 engaged in child labor in agriculture. (6) Table 1 provides key indicators on children's work and education in Paraguay.

Table 1. Statistics on Children's Work and Education

Children	Age	Percent
Working (% and population)	10 to 14	7.4 (49,956)
Attending School (%)	5 to 14	96.4
Combining Work and School (%)	10 to 14	6.4
Primary Completion Rate (%)		88.0

Source for primary completion rate: Data from 2012, published by UNESCO Institute for Statistics, 2021. (7)

Source for all other data: International Labor Organization's analysis of statistics from Encuesta Permanente de Hogares (EPH), 2018. (8)

Based on a review of available information, Table 2 provides an overview of children's work by sector and activity.

Table 2. Overview of Children's Work by Sector and Activity

Sector/Industry	Activity
Agriculture	Production of manioc/cassava, corn, beans, peanuts, peppers, sesame, sugarcane, tomatoes, lettuce, melons, sweet potato, onions, carrots, cabbages, yerba mate (stimulant plant), and charcoal (6,9-11)
	Raising poultry, hogs, cattle,† sheep, and goats and milk production (5,11)
	Fishing, including using hooks and harpoons,† preparing bait, and cleaning fish† (6)

Sector/Industry	Activity
Industry	Construction, including handling heavily loads, machinery or equipment,† and production of bricks (1-5,9,10)
	Limestone quarrying† and gold mining† (1,2,5,9,10,12)
Services	Domestic work† (1-5,13-19)
	Street work,† including vending, shoe shining, and begging (1,3,5,9,10,18-20)
	Horse jockeying (9,19)
	Garbage dump scavenging† (5)
Categorical Worst Forms of Child Labor‡	Debt bondage in cattle raising, dairy farms, and charcoal factories (1-4)
	Commercial sexual exploitation and domestic servitude, each sometimes as a result of human trafficking (1,3,13,20,21)
	Use in the production of child pornography (1-3,9,10,18,22)
	Use in illicit activities, including drug smuggling and drug trafficking (1-3,18)

† Determined by national law or regulation as hazardous and, as such, relevant to Article 3(d) of ILO C. 182.

‡ Child labor understood as the worst forms of child labor per se under Article 3(a)–(c) of ILO C. 182.

Criadazgo, a practice in which middle-class and wealthy families informally employ and house child domestic workers from impoverished families, is pervasive in Paraguay. The 2011 National Survey of Child and Adolescent Activities estimated that more than 46,000 children were engaged in criadazgo. (1,3,21) Many of these children are in situations of domestic servitude, subjected to violence and abuse, and highly vulnerable to sex trafficking. (1,5,16,19,20) Lack of political will continues to prevent Congress from considering draft legislation criminalizing or regulating criadazgo. (1,3)

Children are subjected to commercial sexual exploitation in Ciudad del Este; in the Tri-Border area between Paraguay, Argentina, and Brazil; and along commercial shipping routes on the Paraguay River. (1,3,23) The government has indicated it is investigating allegations that children are recruited by the Paraguayan People's Army for use in armed conflict against security forces, as well as investigating claims that children are used as forced labor in the production of marijuana in the department of Amambay. (1) Children work alongside their parents in debt bondage on cattle ranches, dairy farms, and charcoal factories in the remote Chaco region. (1-3,9,19)

Children from rural and indigenous communities face difficulties accessing and completing their education, including language barriers and inadequate facilities and staff. (1,2,24,25) A study released in 2019 by the Coordinator for the Rights of Infancy and Adolescence of Paraguay estimated that half of all children in indigenous communities do not attend school. (26) The 2011 National Survey of Child and Adolescent Activities indicated that children who speak Guaraní exclusively are more likely to be involved in child labor and have higher rates of school absence compared to other working children; poverty is pervasive in rural Paraguay, where Guaraní is the predominant language. (5,27) Public transportation is limited in rural areas and school infrastructure and staff are often lacking in rural and indigenous communities. (1,3) The government has noted that girls from rural areas leave school at an earlier age than boys, and has estimated that more than 50 percent of children with disabilities could not attend school due to lack of access to public transportation. (9,10) Such challenges may leave these children more vulnerable to child labor. Approximately 13 percent of children engaged in child labor in agriculture do not attend school. (6)

II. LEGAL FRAMEWORK FOR CHILD LABOR

Paraguay has ratified all key international conventions concerning child labor (Table 3).

Table 3. Ratification of International Conventions on Child Labor

Convention	Ratification
 ILO C. 138, Minimum Age	✓
ILO C. 182, Worst Forms of Child Labor	✓
 UN CRC	✓
UN CRC Optional Protocol on Armed Conflict	✓
UN CRC Optional Protocol on the Sale of Children, Child Prostitution and Child Pornography	✓
 Palermo Protocol on Trafficking in Persons	✓

The government has established laws and regulations related to child labor (Table 4). However, gaps exist in Paraguay's legal framework to adequately protect children from the worst forms of child labor, including the lack of prohibition of child recruitment by non-state armed groups.

Table 4. Laws and Regulations on Child Labor

Standard	Meets International Standards	Age	Legislation
Minimum Age for Work	Yes	14	Article 1 of Law No. 2332; Article 58 of the Childhood and Adolescence Code (28,29)
Minimum Age for Hazardous Work	Yes	18	Article 54 of the Childhood and Adolescence Code; Article 3 of Decree No. 4951; Articles 122 and 125 of the Labor Code; Article 15 of the First Employment Law; Article 5 of Law No. 5407 on Domestic Work (28-34)
Identification of Hazardous Occupations or Activities Prohibited for Children	Yes		Article 54 of the Childhood and Adolescence Code; Article 2 of Decree No. 4951; Article 15 of the First Employment Law; Articles 122, 125, and 389 of the Labor Code; Article 5 of Law No. 5407 on Domestic Work (28-34)
Prohibition of Forced Labor	Yes		Articles 5-7 of the Comprehensive Law Against Trafficking in Persons; Articles 125, 129, 223, and 320 of the Penal Code; Articles 10 and 54 of the Constitution (35-38)
Prohibition of Child Trafficking	Yes		Articles 6 and 7 of the Comprehensive Law Against Trafficking in Persons; Articles 125, 129, and 223 of the Penal Code; Article 54 of the Constitution (35-38)
Prohibition of Commercial Sexual Exploitation of Children	Yes		Articles 135 and 223 of the Penal Code; Article 2.19 of Decree No. 4951; Article 31 of the Childhood and Adolescence Code (28,30,36,38)
Prohibition of Using Children in Illicit Activities	Yes		Article 1 of Law No. 1657; Article 32 of the Childhood and Adolescence Code (28,39)
Minimum Age for Voluntary State Military Recruitment	Yes	18	Articles 3 and 5 of the Obligatory Military Service Law (40,41)
Prohibition of Compulsory Recruitment of Children by (State) Military	Yes		Articles 3 and 5 of the Obligatory Military Service Law (40,41)
Prohibition of Military Recruitment by Non-state Armed Groups	No
Compulsory Education Age	Yes	17	Article 2 of Law No. 4088; Article 32 of the General Education Law No. 1264; Decree 6162 (42-44)
Free Public Education	Yes		Article 76 of the Constitution; Article 32 of the General Education Law No. 1264 (35,42)

As the minimum age for work is lower than the compulsory education age, children may be encouraged to leave school before the completion of compulsory education. (28,29,42-44)

III. ENFORCEMENT OF LAWS ON CHILD LABOR

The government has established institutional mechanisms for the enforcement of laws and regulations on child labor (Table 5). However, gaps exist within the operations of enforcement agencies that may hinder adequate enforcement of their child labor laws.

Table 5. Agencies Responsible for Child Labor Law Enforcement

Organization/Agency	Role
Ministry of Labor, Employment and Social Security (MTESS)	Enforces laws related to child labor; inspects workplaces for child labor; and recommends penalties or fines for companies found in violation of labor laws. Refers cases involving criminal violations of child labor to the Ministry of Adolescents and Children (MINNA). (2,3,11)
Paraguayan National Police	Maintains a special unit of 40 police officers known as the Anti-Trafficking in Persons Unit, which handles trafficking in persons complaints, including in relation to children. Maintains offices in 5 cities across the country. (2,11,45)
Public Ministry (Attorney General)	Responsible for the investigation and prosecution of criminal laws against forced child labor, child trafficking, commercial sexual exploitation, the recruitment and use of child soldiers, and use of children in illicit activities. (1) Provides support to local prosecutors throughout Paraguay. Maintains the Specialized Unit to Combat Human Trafficking and Sexual Exploitation of Children and Adolescents (ATU). (2) Comprises 5 specialized prosecutors based in Asunción and 44 assistants. (2,11,17,45)
Ministry of Adolescents and Children (MINNA)	Maintains a unit dedicated to fighting child trafficking and a hotline to report cases of human trafficking and commercial sexual exploitation of children. Provides social services to victims referred by law enforcement agencies and refers cases of sexual exploitation and child labor to the Public Ministry's ATU. (1-3)

The Ministry of Women's Affairs also provides social services to female victims of human trafficking, half of whom are estimated to be children. The Ministry houses an office staffed with five personnel dedicated to combating trafficking of children. (2,11)

Labor Law Enforcement

In 2020, labor law enforcement agencies in Paraguay took actions to combat child labor (Table 6). However, gaps exist within the operations of the Ministry of Labor, Employment and Social Security (MTESS) that may hinder adequate labor law enforcement, including financial resource allocation.

Table 6. Labor Law Enforcement Efforts Related to Child Labor

As a result of the COVID-19 pandemic, the government of Paraguay declared a national state of emergency and redirected sources of funding, which resulted in the significant decrease in the inspectorate's budget in 2020 compared to 2019. (1) Despite the challenges posed by the pandemic, all inspectors received regular training on child labor issues during the reporting period. Furthermore, the MTESS launched virtual training curricula that included child labor, and noted that participation in these courses was higher than in other years. (1)

Also in response to the pandemic, between January and November of 2020, the MTESS's Occupational Safety and Health Directorate conducted 9,246 "verifications" of workplace sanitary conditions as a condition of reopening after lockdown. These "verifications" were in fact workplace inspections that did look for evidence of child labor violations. (1,47) These inspections were not conducted in previous reporting periods and explains the large discrepancy between 2019 and 2020 Paraguayan inspection figures. (47)

During the reporting period, the MTESS launched its own labor complaint hotline, which received over 1,500 calls in 2020, including 6 child labor related complaints. (1)

Although Paraguay has ratified ILO C. 81, its labor inspectors are contractors rather than public officials, and due to the instability of contract employment, the authority and training of these labor inspectors may be called into question. (1-3,48) The number of labor inspectors is likely insufficient for the size of Paraguay's workforce, which includes over 3 million workers. According to the ILO's technical advice of a ratio approaching 1 inspector for every 15,000 workers in developing economies, Paraguay would employ about 229 inspectors. (1,49)

Government agencies, international organizations, NGOs, and labor organizations agree that inadequate funding and the insufficient number of labor inspectors hamper the labor inspectorate's capacity to enforce child labor laws, especially in the informal sector, including in agriculture and domestic work, and particularly in rural areas like the Chaco region. (1-3,9) With reduced ability to travel and access workplaces due to the pandemic, the MTESS attempted to make better use of its computer databases to identify labor violations, but noted limited success with this approach. (1) The MTESS, other government agencies, and NGOs agree that labor inspectors receive useful and necessary training, but that inspectors could benefit from more training specific to child labor. (1,3)

An additional constraint to labor law enforcement is the lack of efficient and timely cooperation by judicial authorities in granting workplace inspection search warrants to the Public Ministry and MTESS when an employer does not permit an inspector to enter a workplace to conduct an inspection. The system is paper-based and orders routinely take more than 3 months to arrive. (1-3,50) Research was unable to determine whether the government has implemented a 2016 agreement with judicial and law enforcement authorities that would accelerate the authorization of search warrants.

Criminal Law Enforcement

In 2020, criminal law enforcement agencies in Paraguay took actions to combat child labor (Table 7). However, gaps exist within the operations of the criminal enforcement agencies that may hinder adequate criminal law enforcement, including a lack resources to sufficiently identify, investigate, and prosecute cases of the worst forms of child labor.

MODERATE ADVANCEMENT

The anti-trafficking unit (ATU) investigated 160 child labor cases during the reporting period, including 8 that involved commercial sexual exploitation of children, 50 child labor trafficking cases, and 21 cases of the use of children in the production of pornography. The government reported removing 46 children from exploitative situations and referring them to appropriate social services. (1) The ATU also collaborated with the Spanish Agency for International Development Cooperation to conduct 20 virtual training sessions on trafficking in persons for approximately 400 government officials, including prosecutors, investigators, judges, migration officials, police officers, and inspectors. (18)

However, the government did not provide information on the number of violations found during the reporting period. (1) Government agencies, international organizations, NGOs, and labor organizations have also observed a need for more specialized prosecutors to support local prosecutors nationwide and increase the Public Ministry's ability to investigate and prosecute cases involving human trafficking. (10,14) Overall, Paraguay's criminal law enforcement agencies lack resources to sufficiently identify, investigate, and prosecute cases of the worst forms of child labor, especially in remote areas. Additionally, inconsistent application of fines and criminal penalties remain significant challenges in the elimination of the worst forms of child labor. (1)

IV. COORDINATION OF GOVERNMENT EFFORTS ON CHILD LABOR

The government has established mechanisms to coordinate its efforts to address child labor (Table 8). However, gaps exist that hinder the effective coordination of efforts to address child labor, including insufficient financial and human resources.

Table 8. Key Mechanisms to Coordinate Government Efforts on Child Labor

Coordinating Body	Role & Description
National Commission to Prevent and Eradicate Child Labor and Protect Adolescent Labor (CONAETI)	Leads government efforts against child labor and includes representatives from MTESS, the Ministry of Justice and Human Rights, the Ministry of Women's Affairs, MINNA, and other government agencies, and labor union representatives, industry associations, and NGOs. (2) Met five times during the reporting period. (1)
Inter-Institutional Working Group on Preventing and Combating Human Trafficking	Coordinates inter-agency efforts to combat all forms of trafficking in persons, including child trafficking, and collects and reports statistics on those efforts. (1,3) Headed by the Ministry of Foreign Relations. (2) Held 14 regular meetings in 2020, developing the National Plan for the Prevention and Combat of Trafficking in Persons. (1,52)
Defense Councils for the Rights of Children and Adolescents (CODENIs)	Coordinate efforts to protect children's rights at the municipal level, including by maintaining a registry of adolescent workers and coordinating with vocational training programs for adolescents. (28) In many municipalities, staff from CODENIs were informally involved in child labor investigations and supported judges in civil cases involving children during the reporting period. (1)

While the Inter-Institutional Working Group on Preventing and Combating Human Trafficking was effective in fostering dialogue and coordination among government agencies on anti-trafficking in persons efforts, it faced challenges in collecting and reporting statistics and a lack of participation from all relevant government agencies. (21) Coordination between the MTESS and the ministries of Education and Health remains insufficient to combat the worst forms of child labor. In addition, the Defense Councils for the Rights of Children and Adolescents require additional financial and human resources to fulfill their mission to address child labor. (2,10,11,17,21,53)

V. GOVERNMENT POLICIES ON CHILD LABOR

The government has established policies related to child labor (Table 9). However, policy gaps exist that hinder efforts to address child labor, including implementation.

Table 9. Key Policies Related to Child Labor

Policy	Description
National Strategy for the Prevention and Eradication of Child Labor and Protection of Working Adolescents (2019–2024)	Aims to raise awareness and strengthen enforcement of child labor laws. Provides child laborers with access to free quality education and offers livelihood alternatives for their families. (2,10,54) The government continued to implement this strategy during the reporting period through the reintegration of victims of child labor; public awareness campaigns, including one specifically on criadazgo , and trainings for government officials, among other efforts. (1,55)
National Strategy to Prevent Forced Labor (2016–2020)	Aimed to prevent and eradicate forced labor and care for victims. (53) Under this strategy in 2020, the Government of Paraguay worked with Paraguay Okukauua to host a virtual 2-day symposium on child labor; forced labor; and human trafficking. MTESS also signed an inter-institutional agreement with the local NGO Global Infancia to address forced child labor. (55)
National Plan for Development (2010–2020)	Aimed to reduce social exclusion and poverty, including by preventing and eliminating child labor. (56) The government did not provide information on activities undertaken to implement this policy in 2020 for inclusion in this report.
National Plan on Human Rights	Promotes human rights, including the prevention and elimination of child labor and forced labor. (57) The government did not provide information on activities undertaken to implement this policy in 2020 for inclusion in this report.
National Plan for the Prevention and Combat of Trafficking in Persons (2020–2024)†	Approved in December 2020, aims to guide government prevention, response, and protection actions and establish prosecution and penalty guidelines. Also prioritizes institutional capacity building and coordination. (1,58,59)

† Policy was approved during the reporting period.

The government developed a National Plan for Childhood and Adolescence 2020–2024 that was finalized in December 2020 and included general provisions addressing child labor. However, public controversy over language pertaining to gender equality and sex education resulted in the Ministry of Adolescents and Children moving to redraft the plan. (1)

VI. SOCIAL PROGRAMS TO ADDRESS CHILD LABOR

In 2020, the government funded and participated in programs that include the goal of eliminating or preventing child labor (Table 10). However, gaps exist in these social programs, including coverage and funding to fully address the problem in all sectors.

Table 10. Key Social Programs to Address Child Labor

Program	Description
Immediate Response Network†	Program created to provide support to street children. Under the " Dispositivo de Respuesta Inmediata ," MINNA employees with a range of specializations, including psychologists and social workers, respond to tips from the MINNA hotline for reporting mistreatment, sexual abuse, sexual exploitation, and negligence of children, as well as information from roving street patrols in high-risk areas. (3) In 2020, MINNA established an offshoot of this program to cater specifically to street children, " DRI-Calle " or " DRI-Street ". The establishment of DRI-Street allowed the original DRI Program, now called DRI Network , to focus on broader issues of children's rights. DRI-Street works closely with the ongoing Embrace Program . (1)
Embrace Program ( Programa Abrazo )†	MINNA program to assist children engaged in exploitative work by providing them and their families with health and education services, food deliveries, and cash transfers conditioned on children's school attendance and withdrawal from work. (2,62) In 2020, MINNA worked with local institutions to both open new Embrace Program attention centers for street children and to strengthen services at existing centers. MINNA collaborated with the Diocese of Encarnacion to bring online the Open Protection Center Añua-San Cristobal and worked with Villeta Municipality to run Embrace Program services from the Villeta Community Center for the first time. (1) Although the pandemic forced MINNA to suspend in-person program services in March and April, the program adjusted by providing home deliveries of food assistance to vulnerable families and these deliveries continued even after in-person services resumed. The program also began providing "micro-social insurance" monetary assistance to vulnerable families who experience illness, accidents, or deaths to help relieve economic strain. (1)
Well-Being Conditional Cash Transfer Program ( Tekoporã )†	Government-administered program through the Secretariat for Social Action. Provides conditional cash transfers to families in rural communities. (11) Incorporates aspects of the Embrace Program , such as the family monitoring methodology, to ensure participant children do not engage in child labor. (64) The program continued to assist families during the reporting period. (51)

Program	Description
USDOL-Funded Projects	USDOL projects that aim to eliminate child labor, including its worst forms, through research, improved monitoring and enforcement, policy development, and awareness raising. These projects include Attaining Lasting Change (ATLAS) , a $7.5 million project that aims to build the capacity of host governments to more adequately combat child labor, forced labor, and human trafficking; and Paraguay Okakuaa (Paraguay Progresses) , a $7.5 million project implemented by Partners of the Americas. (60,61) In 2020, MTESS worked with the Okakuaa program to hold a series of 6 workshops on forced labor for 124 public and private sector stakeholders. These workshops offered information on institutional strengthening and trafficking in persons prevention. (1,52) In June 2020, Okakuaa also held a social media awareness campaign for World Day Against Child Labor, encouraging community members to call their local CONAETI to report instances of child labor. (52) For additional information, please see our website .

‡ The government had other social programs that may have included the goal of eliminating or preventing child labor. (2,3,62,65,66)

The 2012 Law Against Trafficking in Persons requires the Ministry of Women’s Affairs to provide compensation and financial assistance to victims of sexual and labor trafficking, including minors, but NGO and government officials report that compensation takes too long to be helpful. (11,14,23,37) Although Paraguay has programs that target child labor, the coverage and funding of these programs is insufficient to fully address the extent of the problem, and programs are limited by the absence of government funding in education and health services in rural areas. Additional programs are needed to reach the large numbers of working children, especially in agriculture, including cattle herding, and domestic work. (1,9,14)

VII. SUGGESTED GOVERNMENT ACTIONS TO ELIMINATE CHILD LABOR

Based on the reporting above, suggested actions are identified that would advance the elimination of child labor in Paraguay (Table 11).

Table 11. Suggested Government Actions to Eliminate Child Labor

Area	Suggested Action	Year(s) Suggested
Legal Framework	Ensure that the law criminally prohibits the recruitment of children under age 18 by non-state armed groups.	2016 – 2020
	Raise the minimum age for work to the age of completion of compulsory education.	2018 – 2020
	Protect children from the abuse of the criadazgo system by ensuring that working conditions meet international standards.	2019 – 2020
Enforcement	Strengthen the labor inspectorate by authorizing inspectors to determine and assess penalties for child labor violations.	2016 – 2020
	Strengthen the labor inspectorate by making labor inspectors public officials rather than contractors and ensuring that they receive more training specific to child labor.	2017 – 2020
	Increase the number of labor inspectors to meet the ILO’s technical advice.	2009 – 2020
	Increase the funding and resources available to the labor inspectorate, specifically in the Chaco region, to build enforcement capacity to address child labor in the informal sector, including in agriculture, and domestic work.	2009 – 2020
	Implement the 2016 agreement to accelerate authorization of workplace inspection search warrants to improve the cooperation mechanisms among judicial authorities and labor enforcement officials.	2013 – 2020
	Publish information on how many violations of child labor were found through criminal investigations.	2020
	Increase efforts to prosecute crimes related to the worst forms of child labor, including by hiring and training more specialized criminal investigators and prosecutors, and by increasing penalties for crimes.	2012 – 2020
	Provide resources to enable more criminal investigations in remote areas.	2012 – 2020
Ensure that fines and penalties for the worst forms of child labor are consistently applied.	2019 – 2020

Area	Suggested Action	Year(s) Suggested
Coordination	Ensure that the Inter-Institutional Working Group on Preventing and Combating Trafficking in Persons fulfills its mandate, including in collecting and reporting statistics.	2018 – 2020
	Strengthen inter-agency coordinating mechanisms, with particular focus on the communication between the Ministry of Labor, Employment and Social Security and the ministries of Education and Health, to combat child labor, including its worst forms.	2013 – 2020
	Provide additional financial and human resources to the Defense Councils for the Rights of Children and Adolescents to strengthen their ability to address child labor at the municipal level.	2017 – 2020
Government Policies	Publish information on activities taken under all key policies related to child labor during the reporting period.	2020
Social Programs	Further expand government programs to assist more families and children affected by child labor in agriculture in rural areas, including cattle herding, and domestic work.	2010 – 2020
	Increase access to education for children vulnerable to child labor, particularly children with disabilities, children living in rural and indigenous communities with language barriers, and girls who leave school early. Address the lack of infrastructure, staff, and transportation to improve access to education for all children.	2014 – 2020
	Ensure that financial assistance programs for child trafficking and forced labor victims are properly funded.	2018 – 2020

In 2020, Peru made significant advancement in efforts to eliminate the worst forms of child labor. The government passed Law 31047, which set the minimum age for domestic work at 18 years. The labor inspectorate also carried out joint inspections with the police to identify children working in dangerous conditions in Lima's garment district. In addition, a regional ordinance was enacted to create provincial and district commissions to fight trafficking in persons, migrant smuggling, and forced labor in the Arequipa Region. The Ministry of Labor granted the Child Labor Free Seal certification to seven socially responsible businesses that produce agricultural export goods. The Street Educators program also assisted over 6,000 children. However, children in Peru are subjected to the worst forms of child labor, including in mining and in commercial sexual exploitation, sometimes as a result of human trafficking. Peruvian law allows children ages 12 to 14 to do light work without specifying the activities in which children may work. Also, labor law enforcement agencies in Peru lack sufficient inspectors and training to adequately combat child labor, and the government did not provide complete information on labor or criminal enforcement efforts against the worst forms of child labor.

I. PREVALENCE AND SECTORAL DISTRIBUTION OF CHILD LABOR

Children in Peru are subjected to the worst forms of child labor, including in mining and in commercial sexual exploitation, sometimes as a result of human trafficking. (1,2) In the 2015 National Child Labor Survey, the government identified 1,619,200 children, ages 5 to 17, engaged in child labor. Rates of child labor were higher in the highland and jungle regions than in the coastal region, and also higher in rural areas than in urban areas. (3) The government estimated that 1,251,400 children, ages 5 to 17, were engaged in hazardous child labor and that 58.4 percent of these children worked in agriculture, fishing, or mining. The government also identified 70,500 children, ages 10 to 17, who were at risk of forced labor. (3) Table 1 provides key indicators on children's work and education in Peru.

Table 1. Statistics on Children's Work and Education

Children	Age	Percent
Working (% and population)	5 to 14	21.8 (1,261,484)
Attending School (%)	5 to 14	97.6

	Growing and processing coca (stimulant plant), sometimes as a result of human trafficking, and transporting drugs (2,6,9,10,13)
	Counterfeiting U.S. dollars and lightbulbs (1,2,22)
	Recruitment of children by non-state armed groups for use in armed conflict (2,10,13)

† Determined by national law or regulation as hazardous and, as such, relevant to Article 3(d) of ILO C. 182.

‡ Child labor understood as the worst forms of child labor per se under Article 3(a)–(c) of ILO C. 182.

Children in Peru work in informal and small-scale mining, particularly for gold, sometimes in situations of forced labor. These children are exposed to hazards, including mercury and harmful gases, wall and mine collapses, landslides, and explosives accidents. (2,9,12,20,23) Communities located near illegal mining operations are often isolated and lack a permanent government presence, increasing the likelihood of child trafficking and the use of children for commercial sexual exploitation. (2,9,12,20,24,23) Young girls from Colombia, Ecuador, and Venezuela are also subjected to commercial sexual exploitation, domestic work, and forced labor in mining regions of Peru. (25) In addition, remnants of the Shining Path terrorist group continue to use children in combat, domestic servitude, and drug trafficking. (9,10,20) Some children are also subjected to forced labor in support of narco trafficking, including by using hazardous chemicals to process coca or working as drug couriers. (9,10)

In-person education was suspended in 2020 due to the COVID-19 pandemic, which led to an increase in school dropout rates. (10) Only 1 in 3 households in Peru had a home computer in 2020, making virtual learning difficult. (26) As of September, 230,000 primary and secondary students dropped out, while an additional 200,000 secondary enrolled students were not attending school. (10) In June, the dropout rate increased to 3.5 percent for primary students compared to 1.3 percent in the previous year, and to 4 percent from 3.5 percent for secondary-enrolled students. (10)

The Ministry of Education also struggled to provide free public education due to the surge of an estimated 170,000 Venezuelan refugee and migrant children over the last 3 years. Structural problems such as limited class sizes, long distances to schools, and lack of necessary documentation also hindered education access for many refugee and migrant children, and may have exacerbated their vulnerability to child labor and human trafficking. (9,10,27,28) Moreover, retention of the Venezuelan students who gained access to the education system was often impacted by their families’ lack of economic resources and sustainable livelihoods. (10) This situation was aggravated in 2020 by the pandemic and its economic consequences, which hit the vulnerable Venezuelan migrant population particularly hard. (10)

II. LEGAL FRAMEWORK FOR CHILD LABOR

Peru has ratified all key international conventions concerning child labor (Table 3).

Table 3. Ratification of International Conventions on Child Labor

Convention	Ratification

ILO C. 182, Worst Forms of Child Labor	✓
 UN CRC	✓
UN CRC Optional Protocol on Armed Conflict	✓
UN CRC Optional Protocol on the Sale of Children, Child Prostitution and Child Pornography	✓
 Palermo Protocol on Trafficking in Persons	✓

The government has established laws and regulations related to child labor (Table 4). However, gaps exist in Peru's legal framework to adequately protect children from the worst forms of child labor, including the lack of prohibition of child recruitment by non-state armed groups.

Table 4. Laws and Regulations on Child Labor

Standard	Meets International Standards	Age	Legislation
Minimum Age for Work	Yes	14	Article 51 of the Child and Adolescent Code (29)

‡ Age calculated based on available information (35,40-42)

In 2020, Congress passed Law 31047, which set the minimum age for domestic work at 18 years. (10,43) The National Steering Committee for the Prevention and Eradication of Child Labor (CPETI) also approved a proposal to update Peru's hazardous work list. (10)

Peru

SIGNIFICANT ADVANCEMENT

The Child and Adolescent Code provides a light work exception for children as young as age 12 to receive work authorization without specifying the activities permitted. (9,29) In addition, as the minimum age for work is lower than the compulsory education age, children may be encouraged to leave school before the completion of compulsory education. (30,35,40,41)

III. ENFORCEMENT OF LAWS ON CHILD LABOR

The government has established institutional mechanisms for the enforcement of laws and regulations on child labor (Table 5). However, gaps exist within the operations of enforcement agencies that may hinder adequate enforcement of their child labor laws.

Table 5. Agencies Responsible for Child Labor Law Enforcement

Organization/Agency	Role
Ministry of Labor and Promotion of Employment (MTPE)	Sets national policies and guidelines for labor law enforcement, including for inspections. (44) Maintains an online reporting service to receive complaints of labor law violations. Responsible for supporting the National Labor Inspection Superintendency (SUNAFIL), which enforces labor laws in 21 regions by inspecting workplaces with more than 10 registered workers and referring cases of child labor to the Ministry of Women and Vulnerable Populations (MIMP) and the Public Ministry, as appropriate. (1,10,45-47) MIMP provides social services to children found in the worst forms of child labor and refers cases to the MTPE. (9) SUNAFIL maintains a dedicated unit of 10 inspectors who target forced labor and child labor violations and who train other inspectors on these topics. (1,47,48) In 2020, 5 more regional SUNAFIL offices were established in Apurímac, Ucayali, Huancavelica, and Tacna, expanding the reach of the labor inspectorate to cover all 26 subnational entities of Peru. (10,49) Regional Directorates for Labor consist of one representative of the regional government, one representative of MTPE, and one representative of SUNAFIL. These directorates operate in regions without a SUNAFIL office and conduct inspections in workplaces with fewer than 10 registered workers. (50) The MTPE implements the child labor free supply chains program "Child Labor Free Seal" ( Sello Libre de Trabajo Infantil or SELTI) to help agricultural producers comply with child labor laws, including in rural agricultural zones that are difficult for the labor inspectorate to regulate. (51) To verify that supply chains are child labor free, the MTPE has established an evaluation council that includes an external auditor to conduct independent external verifications. (52)
Ombudsman's Department for Children and Adolescents (DEMUNA)	Coordinates government policies and programs that target children and adolescents and helps the MTPE investigate child labor complaints. (10) Operates 28 offices nationwide. (15) Works also collaboratively with local municipal officials, including police, under the Municipal Management Model's referral protocol, to ensure adolescents who are removed from hazardous work receive appropriate social services. (51)
Public Ministry	Coordinates with MTPE, SUNAFIL, and the National Police to investigate and prosecute criminal violations of child labor laws. Maintains a specialized human trafficking prosecutorial unit in the Public Prosecutor's Office. (10,53)
Ministry of the Interior (MININTER)	Investigates child trafficking cases and maintains a hotline to receive reports of human trafficking. (10,13) Provides victims and the public with information on human trafficking, refers cases of human trafficking to relevant government offices, and coordinates services for victims. (13) Within MININTER, the Peruvian National Police (PNP) enforce criminal laws regarding child labor and child exploitation, and maintain a human trafficking investigation unit to investigate cases of child trafficking for labor and sexual exploitation ( Dirección Contra la Trata de Personas y Tráfico Ilícito de Migrantes or DIRCTPTIM). Coordinates with the Public Ministry and MIMP to place rescued minors with family members or state social services. (1,2) PNP's Trafficking in Persons Directorate has approximately 150 investigators. (9) Municipal police also use the Semilla Project's Municipal Management Model to work collaboratively with DEMUNA to remove children and adolescents from hazardous work. (51)

Labor Law Enforcement

In 2020, labor law enforcement agencies in Peru took actions to combat child labor (Table 6). However, gaps exist within the operations of the Ministry of Labor and Promotion of Employment (MTPE) that may hinder adequate labor law enforcement, including financial resource allocation.

† Data are from March to October 2019.

During the reporting period, the National Labor Inspection Superintendency (SUNAFIL) inspections focused primarily on compliance with pandemic-related workplace measures. (10) However, in January of the reporting period, SUNAFIL carried out a joint inspection with agents of the anti-trafficking police unit (DIRCTPTIM) and the Municipality of La Victoria, identifying four children ages 10–14 working in dangerous conditions in a garment factory. (10,20) Although the inspection budget has increased each year, experts have noted that funding remains inadequate to carry out sufficient inspections. (9,10,47) SUNAFIL also prohibits inspectors from conducting follow up programmed inspections of any given worksite within the same year. (56) Information about the collection of fines for child labor violations was unavailable for the 2020 reporting period. (10)

In 2020, the government continued to promote a municipal model for the detection and eradication of child labor. This model incorporates child labor identification criteria during labor inspections carried out by municipalities. (10) As of 2020, there were five districts that have implemented this model: Pichanaki, Chanchamayo, Concepción (Junín department), Villa Rica (Pasco department) and Comas (Lima department). Because of this effort, a total of 132 cases have been identified and 97 interventions have been made. (10)

During the reporting period, SUNAFIL worked with the Public Ministry to provide virtual training on child labor to 4,800 workers and employers. (10) Sector-specific trainings were also conducted, including for fishing companies in Áncash Province, in which the fishing port of Chimbote is located. (10) Moreover, in November, SUNAFIL engaged with 1,000 high school students from 20 schools in Callao, raising awareness on child labor. (10) However, civil society and labor sector experts reported that training for SUNAFIL's labor inspectors was not adequate. (10) While all labor inspectors receive regular training on child labor and forced labor, SUNAFIL reported that it was working on expanding this training to more inspectors. (47)

The government significantly increased the number of labor inspectors it employed in 2020, from 607 inspectors in 2019 to 822. (10) However, the number of labor inspectors is likely insufficient for the size of Peru's workforce, which includes over 17 million workers. According to the ILO's technical advice of a ratio approaching 1 inspector for every 15,000 workers in industrializing economies, Peru would employ about 1,135 inspectors. (57,58) In addition, many of Peru's inspectors are "auxiliary" or junior-level inspectors with limited authority to conduct inspections until they complete 2 years of service and an examination. (59) Auxiliary inspectors must have full inspectors supervise their inspection processes and review their inspection acts for any businesses with more than 10 employees. (59,60) SUNAFIL reported plans to remove the auxiliary inspector classification and require that all inspectors at the national level be full-fledged inspectors with full authority. (60)

SIGNIFICANT ADVANCEMENT

Criminal Law Enforcement

In 2020, criminal law enforcement agencies in Peru took actions to combat child labor (Table 7). However, gaps exist within the operations of criminal enforcement agencies that may hinder adequate criminal law enforcement, including financial resource allocation.

Table 7. Criminal Law Enforcement Efforts Related to Child Labor

Overview of Criminal Law Enforcement	2019	2020
Initial Training for New Criminal Investigators	Yes (9)	Unknown (10)

The MININTER reported that its anti-trafficking police unit conducted 65 operations in 2020, resulting in 640 victims rescued, including 503 females (118 of them minors) and 137 males who were minors. Roughly half of these operations took place in January and February, before the onset of the pandemic lockdown. (20) In 2020, the government convicted two individuals for crimes related to the commercial sexual exploitation of children. One individual received a sentence of 25 years in prison for luring a 13 year old through social media and forcing her into prostitution, and another was sentenced to 1 year for using a 14 year old in the production of child pornography. (62,63) Despite these efforts, the government provided limited criminal law enforcement data for the 2020 reporting period. Previous research has indicated that investigations and prosecutions were inadequate to deter child trafficking, particularly in illegal mining areas and bars. Moreover, reports noted too few investigators, insufficient funding or resources to carry out investigations, low conviction rates, and inadequate training for MTPE investigators, police, and members of the judicial system. (2,9,13,15,19,23)

In 2020, the Attorney General hired four new trafficking in persons prosecutors in Arequipa, Huánuco, La Libertad, and Piura. This raised the total to 39 specialized trafficking prosecutors in 12 regions across the country. (20) Peruvian National Police (PNP) also participated in three virtual trainings led by the MOI in 2020, including one on investigating human trafficking crimes under the criminal code. (20)

There is an insufficient number of shelters for victims of the worst forms of child labor throughout the country, including shelters to serve boys. In addition, there is a lack of specialized services for victims of human trafficking. (2,19,20,23,64)

IV. COORDINATION OF GOVERNMENT EFFORTS ON CHILD LABOR

The government has established mechanisms to coordinate its efforts to address child labor (Table 8). However, gaps exist that hinder the effective coordination of efforts to address child labor, including the creation and implementation of action plans under the Regional Commissions for the Prevention and Eradication of Child Labor.

Table 8. Key Mechanisms to Coordinate Government Efforts on Child Labor

Coordinating Body	Role & Description
National Steering Committee for the Prevention and Eradication of Child Labor (CPETI)	Implements the National Strategy for the Prevention and Eradication of Child Labor, which includes the Semilla Project as one of its three national pilot projects. (1) Proposes public policies and coordinates, evaluates, and monitors government actions to combat child labor. Maintains subcommittees, including on informal mining, child labor in indigenous villages, and project evaluations. (42) Led by MTPE, comprises representatives from 17 government agencies, including MININTER; the Ministries of Education and Justice; PNP; and business associations, unions, and NGOs. (42) In 2020, it coordinated virtually and through messaging platforms, due to COVID-19 pandemic-related in person meeting restrictions. It also coordinated online training sessions covering 22 of the 25 Regional Commissions for the Prevention and Eradication of Child Labor. (10)
Regional Commissions for the Prevention and Eradication of Child Labor	Manage and implement regional public policy for the prevention and eradication of child labor. Present in all 25 regions of Peru. (65) In 2020, the 25 regional commissions participated in a launch event to recognize Peru as a Pathfinder Country of Alliance 8.7, a global initiative to eradicate forced labor, modern slavery, human trafficking and child labor. Eighteen department-level commissions also participated in the event through video conferencing. (10) However, some Regional Commissions for the Prevention and Eradication of Child Labor have not fulfilled their mandate to create action plans to combat child labor, while others have action plans but have failed to provide the necessary funding to carry them out. (1,6,21)
National Commission Against Forced Labor	Coordinates government efforts to combat forced labor, including conducting research and awareness-raising campaigns, developing legislation, and strengthening Peru's institutional capacity to address forced labor. Led by MTPE, with the participation of eight additional government ministries. (1) Research was unable to determine whether this coordinating body was active during the reporting period.
Permanent Multi-Sectoral Commission on Illegal Mining	Coordinates government efforts to address illegal mining by developing programs to eradicate child labor and commercial sexual exploitation of children in mining areas. Led by the Prime Minister's Office and includes representatives from regional governments and six national government agencies, including the Ministry of Energy and Mines and MININTER. (66) Research was unable to determine whether this coordinating body was active during the reporting period.
Multi-Sector Commission Against Trafficking in Persons	Leads and coordinates government efforts to combat human trafficking by designing, recommending, monitoring, and implementing policies to combat human trafficking, including of children, and the provision of services to victims. Chaired by MININTER, comprises 13 government agencies and 2 NGOs. (10,20) The Commission and the Ministry of Finance and Economy missed the deadline of September 2019 to produce a multi-sectoral anti-trafficking budget, which contributed to anti-trafficking budget cuts across government ministries in 2020, including MININTER. (13) This coordinating body resumed activities in February 2021 after a period of inactivity due to the pandemic and political stability in 2020. (49)

‡ The government has other coordinating mechanisms that may have addressed child labor issues or had an impact on child labor. (9)

In December 2020, a regional ordinance was enacted which established the creation of provincial and district commissions to fight trafficking in persons, migrant smuggling, and forced labor in the Arequipa department. (20,67) Also in December 2020, the government held the "Southern Macro Regional Forum: Good Practices and Experiences in Combatting Human Trafficking in the COVID-19 Context", during which regional governments shared experiences with human trafficking in their communities. (20)

V. GOVERNMENT POLICIES ON CHILD LABOR

The government has established policies related to child labor (Table 9). However, policy gaps exist that hinder efforts to address child labor, including a lack of information on activities taken under these policies during the reporting period.

SIGNIFICANT ADVANCEMENT

Table 9. Key Policies Related to Child Labor

Policy	Description
National Strategy for the Prevention and Eradication of Child Labor (2012–2021)	Aims to eliminate the worst forms of child labor by improving livelihoods of low-income families, educational opportunities, and working conditions for adolescents; raising awareness of child labor; and increasing child labor law enforcement. (1,16,65) Also seeks to improve the quality of child labor data in Peru. (16) During the reporting period, the implementation of the Child Labor-Free Seal (SELT) certification program continued under the auspices of this national strategy, with participants consisting of approximately 450 family run agricultural producers. In addition, as of February, the MTPE granted the SELT certification to seven businesses that produce agricultural export goods (mostly coffee and cocoa) in the Junin region. (10)
National Action Plan for Children and Adolescents (2012–2021)	Establishes a comprehensive set of government policies for children and adolescents to eradicate the worst forms of child labor. (1,54,65) Research was unable to determine whether activities were taken under this policy in 2020.
National Plan to Combat Forced Labor (2019–2022)	Establishes policies and priorities for combating forced labor, including programs focusing on vulnerable populations, such as children. (65,68) Research was unable to determine whether activities were taken under this policy in 2020.
Inter-Sectoral Protocol Against Forced Labor	Outlines the government's role in combating forced labor and provides for the housing, legal defense, and educational reintegration of children and adolescent victims of forced labor. Monitored by the National Commission Against Forced Labor. (65,69) Research was unable to determine whether activities were taken under this policy in 2020.
National Plan of Action Against Trafficking in Persons (2017–2021)	Aims to prevent and reduce human trafficking by addressing root causes, prosecuting perpetrators, assisting victims, and strengthening programs for vulnerable populations, including child laborers. (1,2,70,71) Emphasizes the needs of human trafficking victims through a dedicated Victim Reintegration Plan. (1,2) Research was unable to determine whether activities were taken under this policy in 2020.

In 2020, the government drafted an updated version of the National Action Plan for Human Rights, which includes child labor issues. As of the time of this report, this updated plan is pending final approval. (10)

VI. SOCIAL PROGRAMS TO ADDRESS CHILD LABOR

In 2020, the government funded and participated in programs that include the goal of eliminating child labor (Table 10). However, gaps exist in these social programs, including the adequacy of efforts to address child labor in all sectors.

Table 10. Key Social Programs to Address Child Labor

Program	Description
Educational Programs†	The Carabayllo Project provides scholarships, education assistance, psychological help, and other services to 1,000 families and 1,500 children to reduce urban child labor, especially in garbage dumps. (53) The government did not provide information on activities taken under this project in 2020 for inclusion in this report. The Secondary Tutorial Program is a rural basic education program supported by the Ministry of Education that includes school meal plans ( Qali Warma ) for rural students throughout the country, including hard-to-reach indigenous communities. (51) Research was unable to identify specific actions taken during the reporting period under this program.
Learn Program ( Yachay )†	MIMP program to increase access to social services for children subjected to street work, begging, and commercial sexual exploitation. The Street Educators ( Educadores de Calle )† program is part of the broader Yachay Program and provides counseling and training to children engaged in child labor, begging, and street work. Operates 68 centers at the national level for educational activities, parent training, and workshops. (1,6,72) Connects working children and their families to educational and social services to withdraw them from exploitative work and improve family welfare. (9,72-75) In 2020, the Street Educators program reported assisting 6,795 children, including 1,304 children during the height of the pandemic. (10) The educators proactively identified spaces in which children were living either fully or partially on the streets and assessed needs to connect these children with social services. (49)
Together Program ( Juntos )†	Ministry of Development and Social Inclusion program that provides cash transfers to approximately 763,000 low-income households in 15 of the country's 25 regions. (1,6,76) This program continued to provide cash transfers in 2020, including through the strongest quarantine measures of the pandemic. (49)
USDOL-Funded Projects	USDOL projects that aim to eliminate child labor, including its worst forms, through research, improved monitoring and enforcement, policy development, and awareness-raising. Include: Promoting Better Understanding of Indicators to Address Forced Labor and Labor Trafficking in Peru , a $2 million, 4 year project implemented by Capital Humano y Social Alternativo (CHS); Proyecto Semilla (Seed Project): Combating Exploitative Rural Child Labor in Peru , a $16.25 million, 8 year project implemented by Desarrollo y Autogestión ; Engaging Workers and Civil Society to Strengthen Labor Law Enforcement , a $2.8 million, 3 year project implemented by the American Center for International Labor Solidarity; and From Protocol to Practice: A Bridge to Global Action on Forced Labor (The Bridge Project) , a global project implemented by ILO. For additional information, please see our website . (51,77-80)

† Program is funded by the Government of Peru.

SIGNIFICANT ADVANCEMENT

Reports indicate that existing social programs are not sufficient to fully address the problem of child labor in Peru, including the large number of children who perform dangerous tasks in agriculture. Peru also lacks targeted programs to assist children who are subjected to commercial sexual exploitation and children who work in mining, logging, and domestic work. (6,81,82)

VII. SUGGESTED GOVERNMENT ACTIONS TO ELIMINATE CHILD LABOR

Based on the reporting above, suggested actions are identified that would advance the elimination of child labor in Peru (Table I I).

Table I I. Suggested Government Actions to Eliminate Child Labor

Area	Suggested Action	Year(s) Suggested
Legal Framework	Ensure that the law criminally prohibits the recruitment of children younger than age 18 by non-state armed groups.	2016 – 2020
	Ensure that the law's light work provisions are specific enough to prevent children from involvement in child labor.	2017 – 2020
	Raise the minimum age for work to the age up to which education is compulsory.	2018 – 2020
Enforcement	Publish information on labor law enforcement efforts, including whether penalties for violations were collected.	2015 – 2020
	Increase the level of funding and the resources allocated for labor and criminal law enforcement efforts related to the worst forms of child labor.	2015 – 2020
	Ensure that inspectors and criminal law enforcement personnel are properly trained on child labor and forced labor issues.	2019 – 2020
	Ensure adequate enforcement of child labor laws.	2009 – 2020
	Increase the number of labor inspectors to meet the ILO's technical advice.	2019 – 2020
	Remove the "auxiliary inspector classification" to increase efficiency in the labor inspection process.	2017 – 2020
	Ensure that there are sufficient shelters, including shelters for boys, and specialized services available for victims of human trafficking.	2019 – 2020
	Ensure that fines are collected to deter future child labor violations.	2015 – 2020
	Publish information on training for criminal investigators, the number of investigations conducted, prosecutions initiated, and convictions.	2015 – 2020
	Ensure that criminal law enforcement officials conduct adequate investigations in mining areas and bars and initiate prosecutions when violations are found to deter perpetrators of the worst forms of child labor.	2016 – 2020
	Coordination	Ensure that Regional Commissions for the Prevention and Eradication of Child Labor develop action plans to combat child labor and allocate sufficient funding to implement these plans.
Ensure that key coordinating bodies related to the worst forms of child labor are active and publish information on annual activities.		2020
Ensure that efforts to address trafficking in persons are fully funded by approving the multi-sectoral anti-trafficking budget.		2019 – 2020
Government Policies	Ensure that key policies related to the worst forms of child labor are active and that information on annual activities is published.	2020
Social Programs	Enhance efforts to eliminate barriers and make education accessible for all children, regardless of documentation, in particular migrant and refugee communities.	2014 – 2020
	Expand social programs to reach a greater number of children who perform dangerous tasks in agriculture; initiate social programs to address child commercial sexual exploitation, child labor in mining, child labor in logging, and child domestic work.	2009 – 2020
	Publish information on activities taken under all social programs that address child labor.	2018 – 2020

In 2020, the Philippines made moderate advancement in efforts to eliminate the worst forms of child labor. The government convicted and sentenced to life imprisonment a U.S. citizen for "large-scale qualified trafficking in persons," making it the first online sexual exploitation of children conviction of a foreigner in the country and enabling the largest seizure of digital evidence to date. The government also established the Philippine National Multi-Sectoral Strategic Plan on Children in Street Situations to address the needs of street children. In addition, the House of Representatives passed House Bill No. 7836, which will raise the age of sexual consent from age 12 up to age 16, while eliminating a provision in the Penal Code that protected rapists from penalty if they proposed marriage to their victims. However, children in the Philippines are subjected to the worst forms of child labor, including in commercial sexual exploitation, sometimes as a result of human trafficking, and in armed conflict. Children also perform dangerous tasks in agriculture and gold mining. Although the government made meaningful efforts in all relevant areas during the reporting period, it did not adequately protect children allegedly engaged in drug trafficking from inappropriate incarceration or physical harm during detention. The government also did not ensure that children released from custody were placed in accredited rehabilitation centers. In addition, the government failed to take law enforcement action against officials who facilitated the production of fraudulent identity documents or were otherwise complicit in human trafficking. Moreover, the enforcement of child labor laws remained challenging throughout the country, especially due to the low number of inspectors, lack of resources for inspections, and inspectors' inability to assess penalties.

I. PREVALENCE AND SECTORAL DISTRIBUTION OF CHILD LABOR

Children in the Philippines are subjected to the worst forms of child labor, including in commercial sexual exploitation, sometimes as a result of human trafficking, and in armed conflict. Children also perform dangerous tasks in agriculture and gold mining. (1-3) The Survey on Children indicated that 2.1 million children ages 5 to 17 engage in child labor, of whom approximately 2 million engage in hazardous work. (4-6) Table I provides key indicators on children's work and education in the Philippines.

Table I. Statistics on Children's Work and Education

	Use in illicit activities, including in the distribution, procurement, and sale of drugs, including methamphetamine ( shabu ) (2,3,30-32)

† Determined by national law or regulation as hazardous and, as such, relevant to Article 3(d) of ILO C. 182.

‡ Child labor understood as the worst forms of child labor per se under Article 3(a)–(c) of ILO C. 182.

Children, primarily girls, from rural communities are subjected to trafficking domestically in urban centers and tourist destinations for the purposes of domestic work and commercial sexual exploitation. (22,23,25,27,33) While evidence indicates that the availability of child sex trafficking victims in commercial establishments declined in some urban areas, child sex trafficking remains a pervasive problem, typically abetted by taxi drivers who have knowledge of clandestine locations. (33) Traffickers also lure children from remote areas on Mindanao and other regions by using tourist visas available in Middle East countries, where many Filipinos work in household service jobs, and then sell the children to employment sponsors who exploit them. (27,33-35) Traffickers are able to circumvent the Philippine Government and destination countries’ regulatory frameworks for foreign workers and evade detection by using student and intern exchange programs and fake childcare positions. In addition, traffickers take advantage of porous maritime borders to avoid detection. (33)

Research indicates that the Philippines remains one of the top global Internet sources of online sexual exploitation of children (OSEC), which continues to be a highly profitable and growing sector due to increased access to Internet connectivity. A study found that OSEC cases tripled—reflecting a 250 percent increase—from 2014–2017. (20,25,27,33-44) In cases of OSEC, children are induced to perform sex acts at the direction of paying foreigners and local Filipinos for live Internet broadcasts that usually take place in small Internet cafes, private homes, or windowless dungeon-like buildings commonly known as “cybersex dens.” (3,20,25,27,33,38-40,44) Increasingly, women have been found to be perpetuating OSEC crimes, motivated by mostly financial incentives, with data indicating that upwards of 87 percent of OSEC cases involve a female trafficker known to the victims, most commonly the mother. (27,37,38)

According to data from March 1–May 24, 2020, the Philippines Department of Justice’s Office of Cybercrimes received 279,166 reported cases of OSEC from the U.S. National Center for Missing and Exploited Children, which is a significant (264 percent) increase from the 76,651 reported OSEC cases from the same timeframe in 2019. There were 36 confirmed cases of OSEC in 2020. (45) Recent surveys indicated an increase in the number of unconfirmed OSEC cases during the reporting period, fueled in large part by movement restrictions, and children having access to the Internet while being at home with their abusers during the COVID-19 pandemic lockdown. (5,27,36,38,41,43,46) A report released in 2020 concluded that the Philippines had become a global hub for OSEC due to high international and domestic demand, vulnerabilities in the financial system, and gaps in existing legislation. (27,47) In response to the increase in reported OSEC cases during the reporting period, the government filed House Resolution No. 1336 (H.R. No. 1336) which, when passed, will require the House Committee on the Welfare of Children and all other applicable committees in the House of Representatives to research the prevalence of OSEC cases reported during the pandemic. (42)

Recruitment of child soldiers by non-government militias and terrorist organizations, predominately on the southern island of Mindanao, remains a concern. (2,3,5,25,28,29,33,44,48) Research also suggests that these non-state armed groups, including the New People's Army, the Abu Sayyaf Group, and the Bangsamoro Islamic Freedom Fighters continue to recruit children—sometimes by force—from schools for use in combat and non-combat roles, including as human shields, cooks, and fighters, while offering religious education and material incentives to join. (2,3,20,25,27,33,44,48) In addition, the Islamic State reportedly subjects women and girls to sexual slavery. (33) The Government of the Philippines continued to convene formal coordination meetings with the UN on incidents of grave violations against children to facilitate appropriate responses to such situations. (3,25,49)

According to results from a 2020 survey on child labor, children were found to work on sugarcane plantations and rice fields in Luzon; as vendors, tricycle drivers, and carwash crew in Cavite; as plastic and paper scraps scavengers in Caloocan City; and as factory workers for slipper production in Laguna. Children from areas impacted by Typhoon Haiyan in Visayas in 2013 were reportedly forced to work as domestic helpers and as “traffic enforcers” to aid in high-construction areas post-typhoon, while children from indigenous communities in Mindanao worked on corn plantations. (5,50) Furthermore, a survey conducted by the Philippine Statistic Authority, in conjunction with the Department of Labor and Employment (DOLE), found that over 50,000 out of 1.4 million domestic workers were minors and 4,900 were under the age of 15. It also reported that 95 percent of all child laborers were found to be engaging in conditions of hazardous work. (5,19) The Philippine Statistics Authority included a child labor module in the October 2017, 2018, 2019, and 2020 rounds of the Labor Force Survey, but the results have yet to be released. (5)

Although the Constitution establishes free, compulsory education through age 18, unofficial school-related fees, such as for school uniforms, are prohibitive for some families. Other barriers to education include substandard infrastructure which makes traveling and access to schools challenging, especially for children in rural areas, and architectural barriers that pose challenges for children with disabilities. (44) The most recent Functional Literacy, Education and Mass Media Survey, published in 2015 with 2013 data, indicated that 10.6 percent of all school-age children did not attend school. (2,5) The more recent Annual Poverty Indicator Survey, published in 2018 with 2017 data, estimated that of the 44 million school-age children (ages 3 to 19), one-third were not enrolled in or attending school, with the highest percentage of those children living in the newly formed Bangsamoro Autonomous Region in Muslim Mindanao (BARMM). In an effort to combat this and to help facilitate youth school attendance, BARMM authorities provided the Ministry of Basic, Higher, and Technical Education the largest share of its budget for calendar year 2020. (3,5,44,51)

II. LEGAL FRAMEWORK FOR CHILD LABOR

The Philippines has ratified all key international conventions concerning child labor (Table 3).

MODERATE ADVANCEMENT

The government has established laws and regulations related to child labor (Table 4). However, gaps exist in the Philippines' legal framework to adequately protect children from the worst forms of child labor, including having the compulsory education age below the minimum age for work.

Table 4. Laws and Regulations on Child Labor

Standard	Meets International Standards	Age	Legislation
Minimum Age for Work	Yes	15	Article 137 of the Labor Code as renumbered; Section 12 of the Special Protection of Children Against Child Abuse, Exploitation, and Discrimination Act; Section 16 of the Act Instituting Policies for the Protection and Welfare of Domestic Workers (52-54)

‡ Age calculated based on available information (64)

For a third year, the Government of the Philippines reportedly continued reviewing proposed amendments to R.A. No. 9231 that would: (a) increase the minimum age of employment from age 15 to age 16, (b) devolve the issuance of child work permits to local government units, (c) institute stricter working hours for children, (d) mandate that part of the money legally earned by children be set aside in a trust fund, (e) authorize DOLE to determine the types of non-hazardous agricultural employment or work that children ages 16 to 18 can perform, and (f) design a holistic intervention program for children working in the informal economy. It is unclear what progress was made in 2020 toward passing these amendments. (2,3,5)

During the reporting period, the government filed several House and Senate Bills dealing with the worst forms of child labor. These included: House Bill No. 6015, which aims to provide stiffer penalties for violations of Republic Act No. 9231 by imposing both imprisonment and a fine for every instance a child is engaged in employment other than what is stated in the law; House Bill No. 6923, which seeks to prevent, respond to, and end OSEC, and will create an inter-agency council on OSEC that will serve as a monitoring body on initiatives related to the crime; House Bill No. 7465 which will amend the term “child pornography” to “sexual abuse or exploitation of children;” Senate Bill No. 1929, which aims to recognize and include online and digital platforms as methods used to commit trafficking in persons, and further expands the definition of trafficking in persons crimes to include OSEC; and House Bill No. 7836, which will raise the age of sexual consent from age 12 up to age 16, and eliminate a provision in the Penal Code that protected rapists if they proposed marriage to their victim. (5,66-68)

In response to continued reports of recruitment and use of child soldiers by non-state armed groups in the Bangsamoro Autonomous Region in Muslim Mindanao, the government passed legislation and issued regulations to ensure special protection for children in situations of armed conflict, mandated rehabilitation and services, and prescribed punishments. (33)

As the minimum age for work is lower than the compulsory education age, children may be encouraged to leave school before the completion of compulsory education. (44)

III. ENFORCEMENT OF LAWS ON CHILD LABOR

The government has established institutional mechanisms for the enforcement of laws and regulations on child labor (Table 5). However, gaps exist within the authority of enforcement agencies that may hinder adequate enforcement of their child labor laws.

Table 5. Agencies Responsible for Child Labor Law Enforcement

Organization/Agency	Role
Department of Labor and Employment (DOLE): Bureau of Working Conditions (BWC) and Bureau of Workers with Special Concerns (BWSC)	BWC enforces child labor and child trafficking laws and regularly trains inspectors and regional personnel. (2,5,23,25,27,69) Inspects establishments and monitors compliance with labor laws in the formal sector. (69) Manages DOLE enforcement activities registered by DOLE regional offices in the Labor Inspection Management Information System. (45) Oversees the 1349 hotline as a platform for reporting child labor-related complaints. (5) During the reporting period, closed three establishments in which investigations led to the identification of child sex trafficking victims. (5,33) Created a Systems Development Team to streamline its programs and services in relation to enforcement and monitoring of labor standards. Developed an Establishment Report System to provide access for establishments to comply with documentation requirements safely from home, as mandated by the Labor Code. (5,70,71) In addition, from January–October, issued 1,473 work permits to children under the age of 15 per Republic Act No. 9231. (5) BWSC oversees the Profiling Child Laborers Initiative. (3,72) Mandated to develop policies, programs, and systems that champion the development and protection of disadvantaged workers, by contributing to their decent and productive employment. Provides advisory and technical assistance to the Labor Secretary and Regional Offices. (73) During the reporting period, BWSC continued to profile child laborers nationwide (excluding the Bangsamoro Autonomous Region of Muslim Mindanao). From January–December, 11,083 children were profiled prior to the suspension of activities in March; 64,739 were referred for the provision of necessary services; 40,860 were provided with necessary services; and 51,671 were removed from child labor. (5)
Rescue the Child Laborers Quick Action Teams (Sagip Batang Manggagawa)	Detects, monitors, and rescues child laborers in hazardous, exploitative, or extremely abject working conditions. (2,3,5,30,74,75) An inter-agency, quick reaction mechanism that is chaired by DOLE-BWSC. (5) During the reporting period, led 7 rescue operations and removed 12 child laborers from child labor. (27) Signed a Memorandum of Agreement with respective national government agencies to define and coordinate specific roles for each agency. (5)
Criminal Law Enforcement Agencies: Philippine National Police (PNP), National Bureau of Investigation (NBI), Philippine Drug Enforcement Agency (PDEA)	Philippine National Police (PNP) investigate and prosecute cases related to the worst forms of child labor. (5) In the case of the Women and Children’s Protection Center (WCPC), enforces laws on child trafficking and commercial sexual exploitation of children, and has 269 personnel nationwide. (27) During the reporting period, created Aleng Pulis (Miss Police) to allow the public to contact for information and assistance related to trafficking in persons. (27) National Bureau of Investigation (NBI) investigates and prosecutes child labor cases and operates a national Task Force on the Protection of Women Against Exploitation and Abuse and a Task Force on the Protection of Children from Exploitation and Abuse. (2,27) Oversees the Anti-Human Trafficking Division, which investigates trafficking and illegal recruitment nationwide. (25) Philippine Drug Enforcement Agency (PDEA) enforces the Comprehensive Dangerous Drugs Act, maintains a national hotline for reporting cases of children used in illicit activities, and coordinates with the Department of Social Welfare and Development (DSWD) to assist during rescue operations. (2,5)

MODERATE ADVANCEMENT

Organization/Agency	Role
Cybersecurity Law Enforcement Agencies: National Telecommunications Commission, Dept. of Justice—Office of Cybercrime, Philippines Internet Crimes Against Children Center (PICACC),* Dept. of Information and Communication Technology—Cybersecurity Bureau	National Telecommunications Commission enforces the Anti-Child Pornography Law. Coordinates with Internet Service Providers to block websites containing pornographic material involving children. (59,76) Department of Justice—Office of Cybercrime receives CyberTips reports from the U.S.-based National Center for Missing and Exploited Children regarding potential online sexual exploitation of children (OSEC) cases, conducts initial investigation into CyberTips, prioritizes cases, then sends cases to the PNP's Internet Crime Against Children Center for follow up. (77) Comprises legal and investigative divisions. (77) Philippine Internet Crimes Against Children Center (PICACC) aims to combat the online sexual exploitation of children. Comprises the PNP-WCPC Anti-Human Trafficking Division and NBI Anti-Human Trafficking Division, and aims to coordinate WCPC and NBI investigation of Internet crimes against children. (27,49,78) Coordinates international investigations with the United Kingdom's National Crimes Agency (UK NCA) and the Australian Federal Police (AFP). (24,25,41,78-82) Receives funding from the UK NCA, AFP, and the U.S. Government. (80,81) During the reporting period, in conjunction with the PNP-WCPC and the NBI Anti Human Trafficking Division, partnered with foreign law enforcement agencies and an NGO to improve the effectiveness of investigations of OSEC. PNP-WCPC also launched a hotline and text line for reporting and routing of OSEC cases to proper authorities. (27,33) Department of Information and Communication Technology—Cybersecurity Bureau provides preventative technological assistance to law enforcement and protects cybersecurity of Filipino citizens. (83) Oversees an anti-OSEC program comprising awareness-raising programs, computer software, website monitoring, cybersecurity, and a visible Internet application, a form of artificial intelligence that allows for remote screen access. Shows an educational anti-OSEC video for communities, in collaboration with the Philippines Online Corporation. (83) Coordinates efforts with the Inter-Agency Council Against Child Pornography and consults with telecommunications companies and civil society organizations to produce the National Cybersecurity Strategy. (61,83,84) Oversees, CyberSafePH, an awareness campaign and capacity-building program with a 3-year roadmap aimed at combating OSEC and cyberbullying. (25,33,85) During the reporting period, hosted webinars on OSEC and cyberbullying, developed a short-film entitled "Manila," and created a Cyber Chat Session Ender "#WeACTAsONE." (85) The launch of an online hotline to report OSEC cases in collaboration with the National Computer Emergency Response Team remained pending in 2020. (86)

* Agency responsible for child labor enforcement was created during the reporting period.

DOLE's Department Order No. 216 (D.O. No. 216) requires private employment agencies, when applying for a license to operate, to provide a notarized Affidavit of Undertaking stating that the agency will not engage, tolerate, nor support any acts involving illegal recruitment, trafficking in persons, violation of anti-child labor laws, or crimes involving moral turpitude or other similar activities. DOLE also issued Department Order No. 217, which has the same prerequisites as D.O. No. 216, but is focused on domestic workers. (5)

In addition, the government passed three Labor Advisories to ensure that children were protected from the worst forms of child labor during the pandemic. They included: Labor Advisory No. 23, which allows a child under the age of 15 to participate in public entertainment and information programming provided the child works from home under the supervision of a parent or guardian; Labor Advisory No. 24 (L.A. No. 24), which allows a child between the ages of 15–18 to participate in public entertainment or information programming provided that the child works from home under the supervision of a parent or guardian; and Labor Advisory No. 24-A (L.A. No. 24-A), which replaced L.A. No. 24 and allows a child between the ages of 15-18 to participate on-camera, in studio, or on location shots for public entertainment and information programming, provided that the official minimum public health standards are strictly implemented. Furthermore, L.A. No. 24-A also provides the child the right to refuse work. (5)

During the reporting period, the Department of Justice implemented a pilot initiative with the aim of introducing measures and policies to address human trafficking in public procurement and supply chains. In October, the program held its first webinar introducing several anti-human trafficking initiatives in public procurement policy and supply chain management. The webinar also introduced government officials to modern slavery concepts and how government procurement policies can be used to combat human trafficking. (27)

A lack of resources, including staff and a centralized database for tracking illegal recruitment and human trafficking, is an area of concern within law enforcement agencies because it impedes their ability to act quickly upon complaints of child labor, including OSEC, in both investigations and prosecutions. (25,33)

Labor Law Enforcement

In 2020, labor law enforcement agencies in the Philippines took actions to combat child labor (Table 6). However, gaps exist within the authority of DOLE that may hinder adequate labor law enforcement, including the authority to assess penalties.

Table 6. Labor Law Enforcement Efforts Related to Child Labor

During the reporting period, DOLE used technology for contactless inspection and continued implementing its strategy under DOLE's Department Order 183-17 (D.O. No. 183-17), which prioritizes the following establishments and workplaces for inspection: (a) those engaged in hazardous work; (b) those employing children; (c) those engaged in contracting or subcontracting agreements; (d) those employing 10 or more employees; (e) other establishments or industries determined by the DOLE Secretary for priority inspection. DOLE also added additional sectors slated for regular labor inspections, including: (a) companies employing foreign nationals—Philippine Offshore Gaming Operations, in particular; (b) ongoing construction projects; and (c) companies engaged in contracting and subcontracting such as security agencies. (5) Labor inspections were suspended from March 15 to May 31, 2020, due to the pandemic, but inspections arising from essential service complaints continued during this time. (5) This brief moratorium on labor inspections resulted in a significant decrease in the total number of inspections conducted in 2020, compared to 2019. (5)

Also during the reporting period, the Bureau of Working Conditions (BWC) received a budget of $1.7 million specifically allocated for expenses related to labor law enforcement activities, including labor inspector training. An additional $4.1 million was allocated to the BWC regional offices for administrative expenses, including for labor inspector travel and transportation costs, trainings, supplies and materials, and cellular data plan subscriptions, and does not include the budget for the salaries of the labor inspectors working outside of the National Capital Region. (5) Despite these allocations, enforcement of child labor laws remained challenging due to the lack of resources for inspections and the limited number of inspectors, especially in rural areas where many vendors are unregistered and highly mobile. (2,3,15,30) The BWC also acknowledged that more specialized training on child labor is needed to enhance labor inspectors' ability to readily identify and act on child labor situations. (3,5)

The number of labor inspectors is likely insufficient for the size of the Philippines's workforce, which includes approximately 42 million workers. According to the ILO's technical advice of a ratio approaching 1 inspector for every 15,000 workers in developing economies, the Philippines would employ about 2,852 labor inspectors. (2,87,88)

MODERATE ADVANCEMENT

During the reporting period, the Bangsamoro autonomous government provided $400 for rehabilitation support to the families of 180 children found to have been involved in child labor in the agricultural sector. (5,89)

Scheduling routine inspections is based on the national target set by the DOLE Central Office. Regional offices implement inspections based on factors such as prevailing industries and geographical areas. (2,3,72) Despite this, enforcement of child labor protections is not sufficient for children employed in the informal sector and in small and medium-size enterprises, particularly in agriculture and fishing, due to DOLE's lack of capacity and resources. (2,3,5,27,44,90) The Rescue the Child Laborers Quick Action Teams are permitted to conduct unannounced compliance visits to video karaoke bars, massage parlors, sauna and bathhouses, and farms, but they are not authorized to conduct visits to private homes to search for underage child domestic workers. However, there are mechanisms available to barangay (village level) officials to permit them to investigate domestic work-related complaints. (2,3,5)

The government did not provide information on its labor law enforcement efforts relating to the number of child labor violations for which penalties imposed were collected.

Criminal Law Enforcement

In 2020, criminal law enforcement agencies in the Philippines took actions to combat child labor (Table 7). However, gaps exist within the operations of the Philippine National Police (PNP) that may hinder adequate criminal law enforcement, including allocating financial resources.

Table 7. Criminal Law Enforcement Efforts Related to Child Labor

Overview of Criminal Law Enforcement	2019	2020
Initial Training for New Criminal Investigators	Yes (3)	Yes (5)
Training on New Laws Related to the Worst Forms of Child Labor	Yes (3)	Yes (5)
Refresher Courses Provided	Yes (3)	Yes (5)
Number of Investigations	116 (3)	41 (5)
Number of Violations Found	305 (3)	87 (5)
Number of Prosecutions Initiated	54 (3)	70 (5)
Number of Convictions	34 (3)	55 (5)
Imposed Penalties for Violations Related to the Worst Forms of Child Labor	Yes (3)	Yes (5)
Reciprocal Referral Mechanism Exists Between Criminal Authorities and Social Services	Yes (3)	Yes (5)

During the reporting period, the government continued its anti-drug campaign, which began in 2016, and did not adequately protect children allegedly engaged in drug trafficking from inappropriate incarceration or physical harm. Between January and September 2020, 553 children between the ages of 4–17 were arrested and detained during anti-drug operations nationwide. (5,91,92) PNP reported its referral of these children to the Department of Social Welfare and Development (DSWD), after which they were placed in either juvenile detention centers or "Houses of Hope," which, in practice, closely resemble detention centers. (2,32,44)

Children also continued to be victims of extrajudicial killings during operations carried out as part of the anti-drug campaign. According to a children's rights NGO, 12 children were victims of extrajudicial killings during law enforcement operations between January and October 2020. (5) A report released in June posited that the total number of children killed since the beginning of anti-drug operations is likely under-reported. (93-97) In addition, there were reports of collateral deaths of children caught in the crossfire during police operations connected to the drug war, with some high-level government officials suggesting that killing suspected drug traffickers and users was necessary to wipe out drug-related crime, increasing the vulnerability of children being used in the drug trade. (3,93,98-100) There is no evidence that the government investigated, prosecuted, or convicted police officers accused of killing children during anti-drug operations in 2020. (44,48,93-96,101)

During the reporting period, law enforcement officials conducted 176 coordinated anti-trafficking operations involving 237 minor victims, which led to the prosecution of 172 defendants charged with the trafficking of children, and 81 defendants convicted for offenses related to the worst forms of child labor, including OSEC. (85) From April 2020 to March 2021, the government also convicted 34 traffickers under the anti-trafficking act and related laws, resulting in the courts sentencing 16 traffickers to sentences of life imprisonment, and assessed fines ranging from $80,000 to $100,000. The courts convicted a further 20 suspects of OSEC-related crimes. (27) In one notable case, the government convicted U.S. citizen David Timothy Deakin to life imprisonment and a $40,000 fine for "large-scale qualified trafficking in persons," making this case the very first OSEC conviction of a foreigner in the country. Criminal law enforcement also seized the largest amount of digital evidence related to OSEC in the Philippines to date. (5,27)

During the reporting period, the government failed to take law enforcement action against officials who facilitated the production of fraudulent identity documents or were otherwise complicit in human trafficking. (27,33)

During the reporting period, the Supreme Court issued "Guidelines on the Conduct of Videoconferencing," which permitted OSEC cases to use Video-In-Depth-Interview kits which, as a result, helped to protect 109 OSEC victims from appearing in court; thus helping to prevent re-traumatization of victims. (25,27,33,49,85) In addition, the Department of Justice issued its first advisory on plea bargaining in human trafficking cases, and the increased use by courts of such pleas—particularly in OSEC cases—significantly decreased the time to case resolution, further reducing the potential for re-traumatizing child victims. (33,85)

Philippine law allows judges to award civil compensation to human trafficking victims from damages arising from being trafficked, but victims rarely receive this restitution since perpetrators often lack sufficient assets to pay. However, in cases for which perpetrators are financially able to pay this penalty, many are able to evade doing so due to ineffective, slow court procedures. (27)

Research indicated the need for more law enforcement personnel, funds for operations, and equipment for forensic analysis of digital evidence due to the high volume of cybercrime tips related to child sexual exploitation received by the Office of Cybercrime each month. (33,44) Slow-moving courts, the need for additional training on handling digital evidence, lack of understanding regarding legal framework, and too few prosecutors also hindered the effective and timely prosecution of human trafficking crimes. (20,27,33,35)

IV. COORDINATION OF GOVERNMENT EFFORTS ON CHILD LABOR

The government has established mechanisms to coordinate its efforts to address child labor (Table 8).

Table 8. Key Mechanisms to Coordinate Government Efforts on Child Labor

Coordinating Body	Role & Description
National Council Against Child Labor (NCACL)	Formerly the National Child Labor Committee and reorganized after the signing of E.O. No. 92 in 2019. Chaired by DOLE and co-chaired by DSWD. (3,5,25,27,102-105) Expanded membership to include seven other government agencies, two members from the employers sector, two members from the workers sector, and two NGOs with programming on child labor. (3,5,27,103) New members will be nominated and serve a 3-year term. (3) Coordinates national efforts to combat child labor and implements the Philippine Program Against Child Labor. (2,75,105,106) Promotes information sharing at the national, regional, and provincial levels, and is tasked with establishing and disseminating a child labor reporting mechanism for use by local and national authorities. (3,25) Held its first meeting in January 2020 and assigned chairs and co-chairs of their technical working groups, which met multiple times throughout the year. (3,5) Stated it plans to restructure its subcommittees in 2021 and potentially change committee leadership assignments. (5)

Coordinating Body	Role & Description
Anti-Trafficking: Inter-Agency Council Against Trafficking (IACAT), Task Force Against Illegal Recruitment, Recruitment of Minor Workers, and Trafficking in Persons, and #SaferKidsPH	IACAT oversees the 1343 Actionline emergency hotline for trafficking in persons victims. (23,107) Coordinates, monitors, and oversees efforts to combat human trafficking, including child trafficking. Chaired by the Department of Justice and co-chaired by DSWD. (2,5,23,25,27,33,49,107) Composed of 11 government agencies and 3 NGOs. (25,27) Comprises 24 anti-human trafficking task forces, including 16 regional task forces and 8 inter-agency task forces in major seaports and airports. (15,49) During the reporting period, received a budget of $2.03 million in 2020. (27) The Department of Justice approved a 59 percent increase in the number of prosecutors assigned to anti-trafficking task forces. Established the Task Force Against the Trafficking of Overseas Filipino Workers to coordinate investigative and protective followup on trafficking cases referred by the Department of Foreign Affairs overseas missions. (27,33,85) Initiated a technical working group to create "Guidelines on the Investigation and Monitoring of Trafficking in Persons-Related Corruption Cases," to ensure a zero-tolerance policy on trafficking-related malfeasance in government. (27) Increased number of staff from 116 to 142 and conducted 25 rescue operations involving 212 minors. (27) Provided 82 anti-trafficking capacity building trainings to 3,245 law enforcement officials, including topics on investigation and prosecution of cases involving forced labor and OSEC, and trauma-informed care for survivors. (45,85) Implemented new prosecutor's human trafficking case management system to monitor case progress and outcomes. (33) Convened six meetings, including a stakeholder symposia focused on discussion of progress in addressing human trafficking issues including OSEC, and held three virtual focus group discussions with human trafficking survivors during the reporting period. (27,33) The Task Force Against Illegal Recruitment, Recruitment of Minor Workers, and Trafficking in Persons addresses illegal recruitment, recruitment of minor workers, and trafficking in persons. Coordinates all DOLE programs and initiatives and is chaired by DOLE. Mechanism was active during the reporting period. (2) #SaferKidsPH was established in 2019, in collaboration with the Government of Australia, UNICEF, Save the Children Philippines, and the Asia Foundation. 6-year campaign aims to strengthen investigation and prosecution of OSEC cases in the country, promote safe online habits for children through awareness campaigns, and improve service delivery for OSEC survivors. (3) Led by the Inter-Agency Council Against Trafficking (IACAT) in conjunction with DSWD, the Department of Information and Communication Technology, and the Department of Education, #SaferKidsPH partners with government agencies, educational institutions, private companies, and local community members, including parents and children to combat OSEC. Mechanism was active during the reporting period. (3)
Inter-Agency Council Against Child Pornography	Serves as the primary government coordinating mechanism to address child pornography. (2,3,5) Monitors and implements the Anti-Child Pornography Act (R.A. No. 9775). (3) Comprises 12 government agencies and 3 NGOs. (106) Chaired by DSWD. (108) Research was unable to determine whether this coordinating body was during the reporting period.
Children Involved in Conflict: Inter-Agency Council for the Welfare of Children (CWC) and Inter-Agency Committee on Children in Situations of Armed Conflict (IAC-CSAC)	CWC initiates, promotes, and advocates policies and measures protecting children's rights. (2,3,5) Operates and maintains the Protocol on Monitoring, Reporting, and Response System for reporting incidents of children in armed conflict, including monitoring the six grave child rights violations. (25,27,109) Held a virtual ceremony in September recognizing the 2019 signing of the Children in Situations of Armed Conflict Handling Protocol. (5) In addition, signed a Memorandum of Agreement with ABS-CBN Lingkod Kapamilya Foundation recognizing Bantay Bata 163 as dedicated hotline for reporting child rights violations; violations received through Bantay Bata 163 will be referred to appropriate agencies for immediate assistance and intervention. (5) Issued Joint Memorandum Circular 2020-001 that served as a reminder to local government units to recognize and promote the rights and best interests of children during quarantine and curfew hours. (5) IAC-CSAC advocates protecting children and preventing the involvement of children in armed conflict. Chaired by the CWC. (20,25,27) Coordinates and monitors the implementation of the Children in Armed Conflict Program Framework. (49,110) Convenes quarterly. Ensures that international instruments, including the Optional Protocol on the Involvement of Children in Armed Conflict, are referenced in discussions. (110) Formulates guidelines and develops programs in coordination with concerned agencies for the handling of children involved in armed conflict, and monitors or documents cases of capture, surrender, arrest, rescue, or recovery by government forces. Works closely with applicable agencies in coordinating and monitoring the implementation of the enhanced CSAC program framework. (20,110) Conducts human rights training, advocacy and information campaigns, and capacity building of local government units. Implements a monitoring, reporting, and response system for grave child rights' violations in situations of armed conflict. (110) During the reporting period, developed guidelines in handling children involved in armed conflict in order to provide protection through the proper handling and management of cases. (85)
Juvenile Justice and Welfare Council	Leads community outreach and education efforts, through offices located throughout the country, to prevent the use of children in illicit activities, including in drug trafficking. Manages livelihood, rehabilitation, food, and scholarship programming. (32) Overseen by DSWD. (44,111) During the reporting period, assisted IAC-CSAC on the conceptualization and finalization of guidelines for handling children involved in armed conflict. (85)

During the reporting period, the Inter-Agency Council Against Trafficking (IACAT), in partnership with the international nonprofit organization International Justice Mission (IJM) and the USDOS Office to Monitor and Combat Trafficking in Persons Office, hosted a 3-day summit to discuss the growing concern of OSEC in the Philippines. (27,112,113) Attendees discussed best practices in investigative and judicial procedures among other topics and IJM announced the launch of its Center to End Online Sexual Exploitation of Children that will seek to strengthen the global response to this crime. (112-114)

In addition, in September, the Government of the Philippines virtually hosted the ASEAN Twentieth Senior Officials Meeting on Transnational Crime. A major outcome of the meeting included key agreements among ASEAN member states on how they will continue to respond to transnational crimes in the region, with each member state enumerating their respective plans for the succeeding years. (27)

The government also held a Bilateral Meeting on Transnational Investigative Cooperation on Trafficking in Persons in July 2020 with the Government of Malaysia. In addition, the Government of the Philippines shared best practices on prosecuting human trafficking cases—specifically OSEC—with 40 members of Thailand's law enforcement agencies, government agencies, and NGOs at an event hosted by the Thailand Trafficking In Persons Network. (27)

V. GOVERNMENT POLICIES ON CHILD LABOR

The government has established policies that are consistent with relevant international standards on child labor (Table 9).

Table 9. Key Policies Related to Child Labor

Policy	Description
Philippine Program Against Child Labor Strategic Framework (2020–2022)*	Aims to gradually reduce child labor through consultations with government institutions, local and international NGOs, civil society organizations, faith-based groups, professional associations, academia, the private sector, parents, and children. (2,5,115) Implementation led by DOLE's BWSC. (86,116) During the reporting period, conducted a mid-term assessment and held a planning workshop in which the Philippines Program Against Child Labor Strategic Framework, the Philippine Program Against Child Labor Strategic Plan, and the technical working groups of the NCACL were improved upon. (5)
Anti-Trafficking Policies: National Strategic Action Plan Against Trafficking in Persons (2017–2021) and Child Protection Compact Partnership (CPC) (2017–2021)	National Strategic Action Plan Against Trafficking in Persons (Third StratPlan) aims to address labor trafficking and sex trafficking, including OSEC. (117) Chaired by the Secretary of the Department of Justice and co-chaired by the Secretary of the Department of Social Welfare and Development. Employs a multi-stakeholder approach to fight human trafficking. (118) Mandated to prevent and suppress human trafficking, and ensure victim recovery, rehabilitation, and reintegration into society via four key result areas: 1. Prevention and Advocacy; 2. Protection, Recovery, Rehabilitation, and Reintegration; 3. Prosecution and Law Enforcement; and 4. Partnership and Networking. (118) In 2020, Third StratPlan was implemented and there were several meetings to update the plan. (45) Child Protection Compact Partnership, a plan jointly developed with USDOS, seeks to increase prevention efforts and protections for child victims of OSEC and labor trafficking, while holding perpetrators accountable. (20,38,107,119) Aims to improve the response to child trafficking, including live-streaming online of child sexual exploitation and child trafficking for labor purposes, by (1) increasing criminal investigations, prosecutions, and convictions; (2) strengthening the government's and civil society's capacities to identify and provide comprehensive services for victims; and (3) strengthening existing community-based mechanisms that identify and protect victims of child trafficking. (107,120,121) The government committed approximately $800,000 for its implementation. (119,122) This policy was implemented during the reporting period. (5)
Philippine Development Plan (2017–2022)*	Aims to build the socioeconomic resilience of individuals and families by reducing their vulnerability to various risks and disasters; this includes the goal of universal social protection for all Filipinos. (1,6) Aims to achieve a zero number of child laborers by 2022. (5,106) This policy was implemented during the reporting period. (5)
National Plans: National Strategic Framework for Plan Development for Children (Child 21) (2000–2025), 3rd National Plan of Action for Children (2017–2022), and the Philippine National Multi-Sectoral Strategic Plan on Children in Street Situations*	Child 21 sets out broad goals for national government agencies, local governments, and NGOs to achieve improved quality of life for Filipino children by 2025. (123) Addresses concerns related to the worst forms of child labor under the section on children in need of special protection. (15) Chaired by the Council for the Welfare of Children. (2) Policy was implemented during the reporting period. (5)  3rd National Plan of Action for Children (NPAC) strengthens strategies, policies, and programs for children to achieve Child 21's vision for Filipino children by 2025. (2,49,123,124) In 2020, conducted a mid-term review on the NPAC to assess progress on reaching agency targets and recommended measures to take to achieve the goals of the NPAC. (45)  Philippine National Multi-Sectoral Strategic Plan on Children in Street Situations was established in 2020. Addresses the needs and concerns of street children using a child rights approach, and strengthens multi-sectoral cooperation among stakeholders. (5)

MODERATE ADVANCEMENT

Policy	Description
Philippine Plan of Action to End Violence Against Children (2017–2022)	Multi-sectoral plan to gradually reduce violence against children through consultations with government institutions, local and international NGOs, civil society organizations, faith-based groups, professional associations, academia, the private sector, and parents and children. Consistent with Child 21 and the National Plan of Action for Children visions. (3,125) Research was unable to determine activities undertaken to implement this policy during the reporting period.

‡ The government had other policies that may have addressed child labor issues or had an impact on child labor. (57,126,127)

During the reporting period, the Bangsamoro Autonomous Region of Muslim Mindanao (BARMM) signed a 1-year memorandum of agreement with local NGO, Blas Ople Policy Center, to establish a BARMM anti-human trafficking task force. (27)

VI. SOCIAL PROGRAMS TO ADDRESS CHILD LABOR

In 2020, the government funded and participated in programs that include the goal of eliminating or preventing child labor (Table 10). However, gaps exist in these social programs, including the provision of adequate services for victims of child pornography.

Table 10. Key Social Programs to Address Child Labor

Program	Description
Anti-Child Labor Programs: Child Labor Prevention and Elimination Program†, Livelihood for Parents of Child Laborers (Kabuhayan para sa Magulang ng Batang Manggagawa)‡, and Pantawid Pamilyang Pilipino Program (Conditional Cash Transfer Program)	Child Labor Prevention and Elimination Program is a DOLE anti-child labor program that implements local awareness-raising campaigns, institutes child labor-monitoring mechanisms, and requires neighborhoods to develop child labor elimination plans. (2) Includes a provision of livelihood assistance to parents of child laborers, Sagip Batang Manggagawa, and Project Angel Tree. (2,107) During the reporting period, partnered with an NGO to lobby for an increased budget, and used social media and information, education, and communication materials (IEC) to strengthen its child labor awareness campaign. (5) During World Day Against Child Labor, disseminated IEC materials on the impact of the COVID-19 pandemic on child labor, and information on Talakayang Pambata ("Discussion for Children"), a live educational discussion about child labor. (5) Project Angel Tree is a social service with local government agency benefactors, known as "angels," who provide educational supplies to communities. (72,128) From January–October, conducted 27 gift-giving activities to 2,943 child laborers and children at risk. Gifts distributed included school supplies, food packs, toiletries, and other items donated by civic organizations and private institutions. (5) Livelihood for Parents of Child Laborers is a DOLE program that provides livelihood assistance to parents, guardians, or other family members of child laborers. Seeks to prevent and eliminate child labor by providing necessary materials to start a livelihood undertaking. (80) From January–October, provided livelihood assistance to 2,770 parents of child laborers, in the form of Negokart (business carts), starter kits, and other materials needed to start a livelihood. In October, launched the Free Bisikletang Panghanapbuhay ("Free Bike for Livelihood" or FreeBis) Project. FreeBis is overseen by the Integrated Livelihood Program and aims to help ease unemployment during the pandemic. (5) During the reporting period, distributed 890 bicycles to recipients, including 88 parents of child laborers. Each bicycle came with a helmet, raincoat, water bottle, thermal bag, and an Android mobile phone with $100 worth of service for electronic payment application. (5) Conditional Cash Transfer Program is a DSWD national poverty reduction program that provides conditional grants, local awareness-raising campaigns, and child labor-monitoring mechanisms to assist poor families with children's access to health care, adequate nutrition, and education. (2,3,27,129) Includes a child labor module within the sessions on family development for program participants. (2,30,130) Covers 1,627 cities and municipalities in 79 provinces in all 17 regions. (2,3) During the reporting period, raised awareness on child labor and combatted societal acceptance and tolerance of child labor through trainings. (27)
Strategic Helpdesks for Information, Education, Livelihood and Other Developmental Interventions (SHIELD) for Child Laborers‡	DSWD-led project implemented in 13 barangays in Catanauan, Labo, Jose Panganiban, Paracale, Kananga, and Ormoc City, with support from the ILO CARING Gold Mining Project. Currently in a 2-year pilot, with official plans to launch nationwide in 2021. (45,72) Comprises three components: Child Labor Local Registry; Helpdesk and Convergence of Services; and Advocacy, Organizing, and Capacity Building. (2,130) Focuses on areas with a high child labor incidence rate, with interventions based on data from the Child Labor Local Registry. (130) Focused particularly on eliminating the worst forms of child labor in the small-scale gold mining, deep sea fishing, and sugarcane industries. (2,3,75,131) During the reporting period, compiled profiles of child laborers in 15 barangays that will be used by the Philippine Statistical Development Program (2018–2023). (3,5,40)

Program	Description
Anti-Trafficking Programs: Recovery and Reintegration Program for Trafficked Persons (RRPTP)† and Strengthening Local Systems and Partnerships for More Effective and Sustainable Counter-Trafficking in Persons in the Philippines (Strength CTIP), 2019–2022	RRPTP is a DSWD and IACAT program that provides recovery and reintegration services to victims of human trafficking and raises awareness in vulnerable communities. Includes the National Referral System, which strengthens coordination among agencies providing services to human trafficking victims using standard referral and reporting forms. (27, 132) There are 149 referral networks established in 16 regions. (30) During the reporting period, served 305 victims of OSEC. (85) Strength CTIP works in partnership with the Advocate for the Protection and Prevention of Abuse and Exploitation of Children (APPROACH) Consortium. Initiates and sustains counter trafficking in persons activities in selected project sites in Iloilo City, Dumaguete City, and Cebu province. (3) Designed to accommodate the needs of victims of human trafficking, specifically children subjected to commercial sexual exploitation and human trafficking. (3) Research was unable to determine activities undertaken during the reporting period.
Alternative Learning System Program‡	Department of Education program that offers non-formal education to out-of-school children, including child laborers and children displaced from military conflict, and opportunities to attain a certificate of education equivalency. (133) Research was unable to determine activities undertaken during the reporting period.
USDOL-Funded Projects	USDOL projects in the Philippines that aim to eliminate child labor in its worst forms by improving the capacity of the national government, implementing the National Action Plan Against Child Labor, conducting research and data collection, developing strategic policies, drafting legislation, and supporting social services delivery for child domestic workers. Include: Against Child Exploitation (ACE) Project (2019-2023) , a $5 million project implemented by World Vision; BuildCA2P: Building Capacity, Awareness, Advocacy and Programs Project (2018-2022) , a $2.6 million project implemented by ChildFund International; SAFE Seas , implemented by Plan International USA; RICHERS , implemented by the Grameen Foundation with the Philippines; Measurement, Awareness-Raising, and Policy Engagement (MAPI6) Project on Child Labor and Forced Labor , implemented by ILO; and CARING Gold Mining Project , implemented by ILO. (134-139) Additional information is available on the USDOL website .

‡ The government had other social programs that may have included the goal of eliminating or preventing child labor. (141, 142)

The Department of the Interior and Local Government issued an advisory and a circular during the reporting period aimed at addressing effective delivery of assistance to children during quarantine. It included an "Advisory on the Activation of Barangay Violence Against Women Desk and Barangay Council for the Protection of Children" which ensured the availability and accessibility of barangay services to women and children, took active measures to prevent violence against women and children, provided immediate assistance to victims of violence, and provided appropriate support during quarantine to these vulnerable populations. (5)

Although some specialized resources exist to assist victims of human trafficking, the Philippines lacked sufficient programs to care for and rehabilitate children who have been victims of OSEC. (30) In addition, there are not adequate programs to provide insight on the impact of OSEC on child victims. (49, 143-145)

Although DSWD works in consultation with parents and community leaders to determine how best to assist children suspected of being involved in the drug trade, DSWD does not have programs specifically designed to increase protections for or assistance to children engaged in drug trafficking. DSWD also lacks programming to address the heightened vulnerability of children impacted by the death of familial breadwinners in the drug war. (2, 146)

The Philippine Drug Enforcement Agency (PDEA) continued to coordinate with DSWD when dealing with children allegedly involved in drug trafficking. Upon the PDEA turning over arrested children and within 8 hours of the conclusion of their court proceedings, DSWD transferred the children to either juvenile detention centers or "Houses of Hope" (Bahay ng Pag-asa) rehabilitation and skills training centers for children in trouble with the law. (2,3,5, 147) Local government units or NGOs operated over 70 Houses of Hope throughout the country, with little oversight from the federal government. Although there is an accreditation process for these facilities administered by the federal Juvenile Justice and Welfare Council, only a small number of Houses of Hope have met the qualifications, allowing for continued corruption, maltreatment of residents, and failure to provide quality rehabilitative services. In 2020, reports continued that many Houses of Hope operate as youth detention centers where children are subjected to physical and emotional abuse, deprived of liberty, and forced into overcrowded and unhygienic cells. (44,45,92,97,147-155) In two facilities, for example, there were reported complaints of limited access to water supply, insufficient amounts of food or that food was expired, including a report that unused sacks of rice were infested with weevils. (45,148,149) The government took no known action in 2020 to hold accountable Houses of Hope alleged to have abused child residents. (44,92,97,147,150,151)

VII. SUGGESTED GOVERNMENT ACTIONS TO ELIMINATE CHILD LABOR

Based on the reporting above, suggested actions are identified that would advance the elimination of child labor in the Philippines (Table 11).

Table 11. Suggested Government Actions to Eliminate Child Labor

Area	Suggested Action	Year(s) Suggested
Legal Framework	Raise the minimum age for work to the age up to which education is compulsory.	2018 – 2020
Enforcement	Strengthen child labor complaint mechanisms by launching the online hotline to allow reporting of potential online sexual exploitation of children cases.	2020
	Increase funding to allow for the hiring of more law enforcement personnel, including police and prosecutors, training for forensic analysis of digital online sexual exploitation of children evidence, and create a centralized database to allow for quicker action on cases involving the worst forms of child labor.	2019 – 2020
	Authorize the labor inspectorate to assess penalties.	2015 – 2020
	Increase the number of labor inspectors to meet the ILO's technical advice; ensure the budget for the Department of Labor and Employment, Bureau of Worker Concerns includes an allocation for the salaries of labor inspectors located outside of the National Capital Region; and increase resources available to provide sufficient coverage of the workforce, particularly in the informal sector and in rural areas where child labor is prevalent.	2014 – 2020
	Develop and provide specialized training for labor inspectors on identification of child labor.	2019 – 2020
	Allow Rescue the Child Laborers Quick Action Teams to conduct unannounced compliance visits to private homes.	2018 – 2020
	Publish information on labor law enforcement efforts, including the number of child labor penalties imposed that were collected.	2015 – 2020
	Enhance efforts to prevent the inappropriate incarceration of, and violence against, children suspected to be engaged in the production and trafficking of drugs and those caught in crossfire during anti-drug operations.	2017 – 2020
	Prosecute law enforcement officials and civilians responsible for the killing of children engaged in the drug trade and officials who are complicit in the trafficking or allow traffickers to operate without impunity.	2017 – 2020
	Ensure that youth rehabilitation centers, including Houses of Hope, are accredited and in compliance with standards set by the Department of Social Welfare and Development and Juvenile Justice And Welfare Council.	2020
	Offer criminal law enforcement officials training on laws related to the worst forms of child labor, including the proper handling of digital evidence in criminal trials.	2020
	Prosecute trafficking crimes in a timely manner, and hire more criminal prosecutors to lessen the workload.	2020
	Incorporate procedures to allow for an efficient exchange of restitution to victims of trafficking.	2020
	Coordination	Ensure the Inter-Agency Council Against Child Pornography is able to carry out its intended mandate.
Social Programs	Publish the results of the child labor modules from the 2017, 2018, and 2019 rounds of the Labor Force Survey.	2020
	Publish data on the total number of confirmed online sexual exploitation of children cases each year.	2020
	Ensure that social programs are fully implemented, including the Strengthening Local Systems and Partnerships for More Effective and Sustainable Counter-Trafficking in Persons in the Philippines, and the Alternative Learning Systems Program.	2020
	Institute a program to address and combat the sexual abuse and exploitation of children in the production of child pornography, including live streaming.	2017 – 2020

Area	Suggested Action	Year(s) Suggested
Social Programs	Provide specialized care and rehabilitative services for children who have been victimized through sexual abuse and exploitation through live streaming and in the production of child pornography by their families.	2017 – 2020
	Develop programs to increase protections for and provide assistance to children engaged in drug trafficking and children impacted by the death of a familial breadwinner to address their heightened vulnerability.	2017 – 2020
	Ensure that "Houses of Hope" ( Bahay ng Pag-asa ) child detention centers in the Philippines do not subject children to physical or emotional abuse, that those who commit such crimes are held accountable, and that centers are provided with adequate resources to remedy overcrowding and unhygienic conditions.	2017 – 2020
	Increase access to free, compulsory education by eliminating unofficial school-related fees and addressing issues related to inadequate school infrastructure, including architectural barriers.	2020

In 2020, Rwanda made moderate advancement in efforts to combat the worst forms of child labor. The government passed a new education law that incorporates provisions to address barriers to education for girls and children with disabilities. Rwanda also released two child labor studies measuring child labor prevalence in specific districts across the country and continued to significantly increase its number of labor inspections, including child labor inspections. In addition, the government centralized its child rights protection efforts with the creation of the National Child Development Agency. Rwanda also began implementing a new labor procedure manual that provides guidance to local authorities on roles and responsibilities for child labor law enforcement. Although Rwanda made meaningful efforts across all relevant areas during the reporting period, reports indicate that government officials have detained children subjected to commercial sexual exploitation and forced street begging in transit centers intended for individuals demonstrating so-called deviant behaviors, in which children often experience physical abuse. Children in Rwanda are subjected to the worst forms of child labor, including in forced domestic work, sometimes as a result of human trafficking. Children also perform dangerous tasks in mining, including carrying heavy loads. The number of labor inspectors does not meet the International Labor Organization's technical advice for the size of the workforce. Finally, social programs do not address all relevant sectors in which child labor is present.

I. PREVALENCE AND SECTORAL DISTRIBUTION OF CHILD LABOR

Children in Rwanda are subjected to the worst forms of child labor, including in forced domestic work, sometimes as a result of human trafficking. Children also perform dangerous tasks in mining, including carrying heavy loads. (1-3) Table 1 provides key indicators on children's work and education in Rwanda.

Table 1. Statistics on Children's Work and Education

Children	Age	Percent
Working (% and population)	6 to 14	5.4 (156,522)
Attending School (%)	6 to 14	89.4
Combining Work and School (%)	7 to 14	4.9
Primary Completion Rate (%)		97.4

† Determined by national law or regulation as hazardous and, as such, relevant to Article 3(d) of ILO C. 182.

‡ Child labor understood as the worst forms of child labor per se under Article 3(a)–(c) of ILO C. 182.

Although Rwanda is not a major destination for child trafficking, it is a source and transit country for child victims, primarily those from Rwanda and neighboring countries trafficked to Saudi Arabia, Uganda, Kenya, and elsewhere in East Africa and the Middle East. (9,10) Within Rwanda, young girls are forced into domestic servitude and commercial sexual exploitation, and boys are exploited in forced labor in the agricultural and industrial sectors, including on plantations and in mines. (10,15,19,21)

National data show that approximately 3.6 percent of all children in Rwanda are engaged in child labor, primarily in the agriculture and services sectors. (5,22) In 2020, Rwanda's National Commission for Human Rights released its "Analysis of Child Labor and Its Impact on Child Rights in Rwanda," a survey of working children between the ages of 5 and 17 from 11 districts in the country. Over half of the respondents indicated they performed some type of hazardous labor, including carrying heavy loads, working in construction and brick kilns, and mining. (3,8)

Poverty was identified as the key factor contributing to child labor, which in turn contributed to school dropout. (3,8) Officials have indicated that children in mining often drop out of school and work in abandoned artisanal mines with their parents. At least two children were killed while engaged in illegal mining during the reporting period, while two others were rescued with serious injuries. (8)

During the reporting period, the government identified street begging as a growing problem in the country, noting that some families were renting out their children to individuals who would collect earnings from the children and pay a percentage to the families. Children begging on streets typically worked almost 11 hours per day and were at risk of not returning to school. (8,9)

Due to the COVID-19 pandemic, schools were closed in March of 2020 and did not begin a phased reopening until November, with pre-primary and primary grades delayed until January of 2021. The government launched audio lessons via national radio in response to the pandemic, and monitoring data showed that over half of school-age children were utilizing the broadcasts. (8) While lack of radio access prevented some families from utilizing the resource, the government also established local level back-to-school committees to ensure vulnerable children returned to school. (8)

Although the Ministry of Education established a policy that provides free basic education for 12 years, of which the first 9 are compulsory, in practice, the costs of uniforms, school supplies, and unofficial school fees may preclude some families from sending their children to school. (21-24) In January 2020, the Ministry of Education issued a statement expressing concern that schools were levying excessive school fees on families and prohibited schools from increasing fees during the first term of the 2019–2020 school year. (1,22) Furthermore, children with disabilities face particular difficulties accessing education due to stigma and because schools lack the capacity to accommodate special needs. (8,25,26)

II. LEGAL FRAMEWORK FOR CHILD LABOR

Rwanda has ratified all key international conventions concerning child labor (Table 3).

Table 3. Ratification of International Conventions on Child Labor

Convention	Ratification
 ILO C. 138, Minimum Age	✓
ILO C. 182, Worst Forms of Child Labor	✓
 UN CRC	✓
UN CRC Optional Protocol on Armed Conflict	✓
UN CRC Optional Protocol on the Sale of Children, Child Prostitution and Child Pornography	✓
 Palermo Protocol on Trafficking in Persons	✓

The government has established laws and regulations related to child labor (Table 4). However, gaps exist in Rwanda's legal framework to adequately protect children from the worst forms of child labor, including the difference between the minimum age for work and the compulsory age for education.

Table 4. Laws and Regulations on Child Labor

Standard	Meets International Standards	Age	Legislation
Minimum Age for Work	Yes	16	Article 5 of the Labor Law; Article 9 of the Ministerial Instruction Relating to Prevention and Fight Against Child Labor (27,28)

Prohibition of Forced Labor	Yes		Articles 3.25 and 7 of the Labor Law; Article 178 of the Penal Code; Article 51 of the Law Relating to the Rights and Protection of the Child; Article 9 of the Ministerial Instruction Relating to Prevention and Fight against Child Labor (27,28,31,32)
Prohibition of Child Trafficking	Yes		Articles 3.4, 3.6, 3.7, and 18–20 of the Law on Prevention, Suppression, and Punishment of Trafficking in Persons; Article 28 of the Law on Prevention and Punishment of Gender-Based Violence; Articles 225, 251, and 259–262 of the Penal Code; Article 51 of the Law Relating to the Rights and Protection of the Child; Article 31 of the Law Relating to the Protection of the Child; Article 9 of the Ministerial Instruction Relating to Prevention and Fight against Child Labor (28,31-35)
Prohibition of Commercial Sexual Exploitation of Children	Yes		Articles 3.2 and 24 of the Law on Prevention, Suppression, and Punishment of Trafficking in Persons; Articles 190, 211, and 260 of the Penal Code; Article 51 of the Law Relating to the Rights and Protection of the Child; Articles 34–35 of the Law Relating to the Protection of the Child; Article 9 of the Ministerial Instruction Relating to Prevention and Fight against Child Labor (28,31-35)
Prohibition of Using Children in Illicit Activities	Yes		Article 220 of the Penal Code; Article 51 of the Law Relating to the Rights and Protection of the Child; Article 9 of the Ministerial Instruction Relating to Prevention and Fight against Child Labor; Article 263 of the Law Determining Offenses and Penalties in General (28,31,32,36)
Minimum Age for Voluntary State Military Recruitment	Yes	18	Article 5 of Presidential Order 72/01 Establishing Army General Statutes; Article 7 of Presidential Order 32/01 Establishing Rwanda Defense Forces Special Statute; Article 50 of the Law Relating to the Rights and Protection of the Child (31,37,38)
Prohibition of Compulsory Recruitment of Children by (State) Military	N/A*		Article 5 of Presidential Order 72/01 Establishing Army General Statutes; Articles 99(8) and 100(2) of the Law Determining Offenses and Penalties in General (36,37)

MODERATE ADVANCEMENT

Standard	Meets International Standards	Age	Legislation
Prohibition of Military Recruitment by Non-state Armed Groups	Yes		Article 221 of the Penal Code (32)
Compulsory Education Age	No	12	Article 47 of the Law Relating to the Rights and Protection of the Child; Articles 55-58 of the Law Determining the Organisation of Education (31,39)
Free Public Education	No		Article 47 of the Law Relating to the Rights and Protection of the Child; Articles 55-58 of the Law Determining the Organisation of Education (31,39)

The Ministry of Education and Parliament passed a new education law in late December 2020 and published it in February 2021, stipulating that primary education is free and compulsory up to the first 6 years of schooling. The legislation however, does not provide for free and compulsory secondary education. (8,39) Although Rwanda has adopted policies to implement fee-free 12 years basic education and compulsory education through age 16, the national education law states that education is compulsory only up to age 12 and does not provide for free basic education through the first 9 years of schooling. (22,39) The new education law also establishes English as the primary language of instruction, which may create a barrier to education for children whose first language is not English. (8,39) Furthermore, the age up to which education is compulsory makes children between ages 12 and 16 vulnerable to child labor because they are not legally required to attend school but are not legally permitted to work.

The new education law mandates that all public schools, including primary schools, provide safe rooms with sanitary and medical supplies for female students on their menstrual cycle. The effort is intended to address a key factor in female student absenteeism. (39,40) The law also establishes special education provisions for disabled children and children with learning disabilities. (39)

III. ENFORCEMENT OF LAWS ON CHILD LABOR

The government has established institutional mechanisms for the enforcement of laws and regulations on child labor (Table 5). However, gaps exist within the operations of enforcement agencies that may hinder adequate enforcement of their child labor laws.

Table 5. Agencies Responsible for Child Labor Law Enforcement

Organization/Agency	Role
Ministry of Public Service and Labor (MIFOTRA)	Enforces labor laws, including laws on child labor. (41) In partnership with the Ministry of Education, reintegrates children withdrawn from child labor with their families and enrolls them in school. Mobilizes other ministries and agencies providing social services, including the Ministry of Gender and Family Promotion, the National Child Development Agency (NCD), the Ministry of Justice, and the Ministry of Local Government, to take an active role in child labor law enforcement. (1)
Rwandan National Police (RNP)	Enforce criminal laws related to the worst forms of child labor and operate a free hotline to report incidents of gender-based violence or child abuse, including child labor. Through its Child Protection Unit and Anti-Trafficking Unit, enforces laws related to the worst forms of child labor. (1,19,24) It is unknown how many calls to the hotline, if any, were related to child labor.
Rwanda Investigation Bureau	Conducts investigations into criminal matters, including child labor. In the case of the Directorate for Anti-Gender-Based Violence, assists victims of the worst forms of child labor through anti-gender-based violence officers at each of the country's 78 police stations. (1)
National Public Prosecution Authority (NPPA)	Prosecutes violations of labor laws, including laws on child labor. (1) Through its anti-Gender Based Violence unit, 12 prosecutors work with an additional 60 prosecutors trained in handling relevant cases at the district level. (42)
Directorate General of Immigration and Emigration	Receives referrals for human trafficking cases and employs an anti-trafficking specialist. Trains border and immigration officials to identify potential human trafficking victims and verify that children transported across the border are traveling with the permission of their parents or guardians. (1)

Labor Law Enforcement

In 2020, labor law enforcement agencies in Rwanda took actions to combat child labor (Table 6). However, gaps exist within the operations of the Ministry of Public Service and Labor (MIFOTRA) that may hinder adequate labor law enforcement, including human resource allocation.

Table 6. Labor Law Enforcement Efforts Related to Child Labor

Unannounced Inspections Conducted	Yes (25)	Yes (8)
Complaint Mechanism Exists	Yes (22)	Yes (8)
Reciprocal Referral Mechanism Exists Between Labor Authorities and Social Services	Yes (22)	Yes (8)

During the reporting period, MIFOTRA conducted 4 initial training sessions for new inspectors, 10 training sessions specifically on child labor laws, and 4 refresher courses for inspectors. The government also collaborated with the USAID-funded Strengthening Rwandan Administrative Justice project to develop professional courses on labor inspections, international labor standards, mediation, social dialogue, and safety and health for the labor inspectorate, but implementation of the courses was delayed due to the pandemic. (8)

In 2020, the labor inspectorate again significantly increased its number of labor inspections. Of the 8,712 inspections conducted, 720 focused on child labor, resulting in the identification of 624 child labor violations. (8,44) Six of the child labor violations identified in 2020 resulted in Rwanda Investigation Bureau investigations and referrals to the National Public Prosecution Authority for prosecution. (8)

The number of labor inspectors is likely insufficient for the size of Rwanda's workforce, which includes more than 6 million workers. According to the ILO's technical advice of a ratio approaching 1 inspector for every 40,000 workers in less developing economies, Rwanda would employ about 156 labor inspectors. (46,47) Despite MIFOTRA's indication that the labor inspectorate was sufficiently funded, research indicates that low resources, lack of personnel, high workloads, and a lack of training may limit labor inspectors' ability to enforce child labor laws and perform onsite inspections. (4,8) Reports indicate that officials at the local level had difficulty identifying characteristics of child trafficking and child labor. (42)

Criminal Law Enforcement

In 2020, criminal law enforcement agencies in Rwanda took actions to combat child labor (Table 7). However, gaps exist within the operations of the Rwandan National Police that may hinder adequate criminal law enforcement, including investigation planning.

Table 7. Criminal Law Enforcement Efforts Related to Child Labor

The government has acknowledged detaining thousands of street children per a 2017 law establishing a National Rehabilitation Service to address “deviant behavior” and the accompanying 2018 Ministerial Order, which defines deviant behavior to include prostitution, begging, and informal street vending. (48,49) Under the purview of these laws, authorities may detain children for exhibiting deviant behavior and place children in a transit center before transferring them to a rehabilitation center or reintegrating them into the community. (19) The government maintains that the purpose of the laws and the transit centers is to rescue children from the street and to provide them with life skills before reuniting them with their families. (50) However, since some types of child labor are included in the 2018 Ministerial Order definition of “deviant behavior,” children engaged in commercial sexual exploitation, forced begging, and street vending may be penalized for their engagement in child labor. (49) Sources report that children subjected to commercial sexual exploitation and forced street begging have been detained in the transit centers, in part due to weak screening by law enforcement officials to identify victims of human trafficking. (19,51) Research indicates that children placed in the primary transit center located in Kigali, also known as Gikondo, faced overcrowding, unsanitary conditions, insufficient food or water, and physical abuse. (41,48,52) Rehabilitation services at the centers were limited, and children were detained for prolonged periods at transit centers before being referred to a rehabilitation facility. (53,54)

IV. COORDINATION OF GOVERNMENT EFFORTS ON CHILD LABOR

The government has established mechanisms to coordinate its efforts to address child labor (Table 8). However, gaps exist that hinder the effective coordination of efforts to address child labor, including implementation.

Table 8. Key Mechanisms to Coordinate Government Efforts on Child Labor

Coordinating Body	Role & Description
Inter-Ministerial Steering Committee on Child Labor	Coordinates government efforts related to the worst forms of child labor; reviews child labor laws, advocates the inclusion of child labor policies in national development plans, oversees the implementation of child labor interventions, and conducts field visits to assess the prevalence of child labor and raise awareness of child labor. (1) MIFOTRA coordinates and provides monitoring and evaluation, including the publication of annual updates on program and policy implementation related to child labor. (55) In 2020, the committee moved to a biweekly meeting schedule and held at least one seminar on child labor with committee members. (44)
Inter-Agency Working Group on Human Trafficking	Enables national-level discussion and coordination of efforts to address human trafficking, including child labor. Includes representatives of the Ministry of Gender and Family Promotion (MIGEPROF), the Ministry of Justice, RNP, and NPPA. (1,8) The working group met once every 2 months during the reporting period. (44)
MIGEPROF's National Child Development Agency (NCDA)*	Formed in 2020 through Law N. 012/2020 of August 28, 2020, replaces the dissolved National Child Commission (NCC) and the National Early Childhood Development Program (NECD) in an effort to centralize the implementation of child's rights protection efforts. Assumes the duties of the NCC and NECD of monitoring, promoting, and advocating children's rights, and developing action plans to protect children from abuse and exploitation. (1,8,56,57)
Child Labor Steering Committees	Monitor incidents of child labor nationwide and implement policies developed by the Inter-Ministerial Steering Committee on Child Labor in 30 districts by coordinating with district-level officials in enforcing labor laws and providing social services to child labor victims. (1) In the case of Gender-Based Violence Committees, operate at the district level to raise awareness about gender-based violence and coordinate social services to assist gender-based violence victims. In the case of Child Protection Committees, identify and report cases of child rights violations at the district, sector, and cell levels. (1,15) Although established by policy in 2018, research has since been unable to identify any meaningful activities or efforts, particularly at the sector and cell levels. Research was again unable to determine whether the local committees were active during the reporting period. (44)

* Mechanism to coordinate efforts to address child labor was created during the reporting period.

Reports indicate that poor coordination and resource constraints hindered efforts to combat human trafficking and that efforts were focused only on transnational rather than also on domestic human trafficking. (1,19,42)

V. GOVERNMENT POLICIES ON CHILD LABOR

The government has established policies related to child labor (Table 9). However, policy gaps exist that hinder efforts to address child labor, including mainstreaming child labor issues into relevant policies.

Table 9. Key Policies Related to Child Labor

Policy	Description
Strategic Plan for Integrated Child Rights Policy 2019–2024	Aims to improve coordination and implementation issues in child protection, including strategies to address child labor. Revised in 2018 to focus on key areas of identity and nationality; family and alternative care; health, survival and standard of living; education; protection; justice; and participation. (58) Research was unable to determine whether activities were undertaken to implement the Strategic Plan during the reporting period.
Rwanda Urban Development Project Labor Management Procedure†	Implemented in 2020, lays out specific responsibilities for the already-existing Ministry of Local Government (MINALOC) to monitor and enforce child labor laws at the local level. Mandates that appointed local authorities conduct inspections and enforce child labor laws for rural development projects. (8,59) The appointed authorities will also field child labor complaints from Grievance Redress Committees established at local worksites. (8,59)

† Policy was approved during the reporting period

Rwanda adopted a new National Social Protection Policy in 2020 that aims to assist families living in poverty and includes measures to ensure access to education for children and to provide livelihood development. Although the plan acknowledges that poverty is a root cause of child labor, the prevention or elimination of child labor is not integrated into the policy. (64)

VI. SOCIAL PROGRAMS TO ADDRESS CHILD LABOR

In 2020, the government funded and participated in programs that include the goal of preventing child labor (Table 10). However, gaps exist in these social programs, including the adequacy to address the problem in all sectors.

Table 10. Key Social Programs to Address Child Labor

Program	Description
Programs to Combat Child Labor and Raise Awareness†	Includes MIGEPROF's campaign to teach parents and community leaders to recognize risk factors for human trafficking and to identify victims; and the Friends of the Family Program ( Incuti Z'Umuryango ), which trains volunteers to prevent and respond to child protection issues and establishes monitoring committees at various levels to combat child labor. (1) During the reporting period, the Friends of the Family Program managed over 600 cases of child labor, child trafficking, and other cases involving abuses against children. (8) In addition, MIFOTRA partnered with USAID to air a series of talk shows focusing on child labor, in which MIFOTRA officials fielded questions and complaints from the public regarding child labor enforcement. MIFOTRA also provided technical assistance in the development of a USAID mini-movie focusing on child labor. (44)
Victim Assistance Programs†	Musanze Child Rehabilitation Center in Northern Province assists children separated from armed groups in the Democratic Republic of the Congo. (26) Gitagata Center provides education, vocational training, and psychosocial support, and aims to reunite former street children with their families. "One-Stop" centers located in 44 hospitals and district capitals assist victims of gender-based violence and human trafficking. (1,65) In 2020, the government continued to support the Musanze center and one-stop centers, and the Rwandan Demobilization and Reintegration Commission, which assumes responsibility for Rwandan child soldiers returning from the Democratic Republic of the Congo, reported that it had provided services to 82 children during the reporting period. (9,26)
It Takes Every Rwandan to End Child Exploitation	Advocacy campaign against child labor and sexual abuse of children supported by MIGEPROF, the National Commission for Children, and World Vision Rwanda. (1,60) As part of the campaign, in 2020 the Ministry of Labor-associated Rwanda Extractive Industry Workers Union carried out a rapid assessment of child labor in the districts of Muhanga, Rwamagana, Gicumbi, and Gakenke, which found that children worked across the agriculture, services, and industry sectors, often performing hazardous work. (6)
Strengthening Social Protection Project (2017–2021)	An $80 million World Bank-funded project in support of the Vision 2020 Umurenge Program, aims to deliver cash transfers and improve social safety nets. (66) In early 2021, the project was restructured to extend the end date by 6 months and to reallocate funding sources to bolster implementation funds for the Home-based Early Childhood Development and Sustainable Livelihoods Enhancement portions of the project. (67)

MODERATE ADVANCEMENT

Program	Description
The Children's Forum	Provides a platform at the village, cell, sector, and district levels for children to express their opinions and be heard on matters concerning their lives, family, and country, which are incorporated into government plans of action and considered during the development of policies and programs. Managed by the NCDA and MINALOC, comprises children between ages 6 and 15. (22) In 2020, the 14th National Children's Summit highlighted the role the forums have played at influencing national policies related to child protection in Rwanda. (68)

Although Rwanda has programs that target child labor, the scope of these programs is insufficient to address the extent of the child labor problem in the agriculture sector and domestic work. (19,42) Observers indicate that despite efforts to protect and assist victims of human trafficking, the country's shelter system was focused on short-term needs, with few resources for individuals needing long-term support. (10,21) In addition, service providers lacked sufficient training to properly identify and categorize victims of human trafficking. (10)

VII. SUGGESTED GOVERNMENT ACTIONS TO ELIMINATE CHILD LABOR

Based on the reporting above, suggested actions are identified that would advance the elimination of child labor in Rwanda (Table 11).

Table 11. Suggested Government Actions to Eliminate Child Labor

Area	Suggested Action	Year(s) Suggested
Legal Framework	Establish by law compulsory education up to the age of 15 and free basic public education.	2020
	Raise the compulsory education age to be consistent with the minimum age for employment.	2020
Enforcement	Disaggregate the number of complaints received by the Rwandan National Police's hotline and the National Public Prosecution Authority's investigations that relate to child labor.	2013 – 2020
	Increase the number of inspectors to meet the ILO's technical advice.	2009 – 2020
	Ensure that the labor inspectorate has sufficient resources, personnel, and training to enforce child labor laws.	2017 – 2020
	Cease the practice of detaining and beating children who work on the street and ensure that children in detention receive adequate screening and services, and are not subjected to abuse or unhealthy detention conditions.	2018 – 2020
Coordination	Ensure all coordinating bodies are able to carry out their intended mandates.	2019 – 2020
	Ensure that coordinating bodies receive adequate resources and are able to combat both domestic and transnational human trafficking.	2019 – 2020
Government Policies	Ensure that actions are taken to implement the Strategic Plan for the Integrated Child Rights Policy.	2019 – 2020
	Integrate child labor elimination and prevention strategies into the National Social Protection Strategy.	2011 – 2020
	Remove barriers to education, such as language barriers for non-English speakers, costs for uniforms, school supplies, and unofficial school fees, and ensure access for children with disabilities.	2010 – 2020
	Expand existing social programs to address all relevant sectors of child labor, including agriculture and domestic work.	2017 – 2020
	Expand services for human trafficking victims, including programs for long-term care in shelters.	2019 – 2020
	Ensure that service providers are properly trained to identify victims of human trafficking.	2019 – 2020

Saint Helena, Ascension, and Tristan da Cunha

NO ADVANCEMENT

Although research found no evidence that child labor exists in Saint Helena, Ascension, and Tristan da Cunha, in 2020 the government made no advancement in efforts to prevent the worst forms of child labor. The government has yet to define by law or regulation the types of hazardous work prohibited to children, other than work on vessels engaged in maritime navigation. Gaps also remain in legislation related to forced child labor and the trafficking of children for labor exploitation.

I. PREVALENCE AND SECTORAL DISTRIBUTION OF CHILD LABOR

Research found no evidence that child labor exists in Saint Helena, Ascension, and Tristan da Cunha. (1-4) Data on key indicators on children's work and education in Saint Helena, Ascension, and Tristan da Cunha are not available from the sources used in this report.

II. LEGAL FRAMEWORK FOR CHILD LABOR

British Overseas Territories (BOTs) recognize the jurisdiction and sovereignty of the United Kingdom (UK), but are not constitutionally part of the UK. They are self-governing, except in the areas of foreign affairs and defense. (5) Domestic UK law does not generally apply unless explicitly extended to these territories. Saint Helena, Ascension, and Tristan da Cunha are three separate territories that generally incorporate English Law Ordinances to the extent permitted by local circumstances and subject to modification by local laws. (2,5) Under Article 35(4) of the ILO Constitution, when the UK ratifies a Convention, the Territory must consider if it will accept the Convention. If the Convention is accepted, it is considered applicable to that territory. (5) The following Conventions have been extended to and accepted by Saint Helena, Ascension, and Tristan da Cunha (Table 1).

Table 1. Ratification of International Conventions on Child Labor

Convention	Ratification
 ILO C. 138, Minimum Age
ILO C. 182, Worst Forms of Child Labor	✓
 UN CRC	✓
UN CRC Optional Protocol on Armed Conflict
UN CRC Optional Protocol on the Sale of Children, Child Prostitution and Child Pornography
 Palermo Protocol on Trafficking in Persons

The Government of Saint Helena, Ascension, and Tristan da Cunha has established laws and regulations related to child labor (Table 2). However, gaps exist in Saint Helena, Ascension, and Tristan da Cunha's legal framework to adequately protect children from the worst forms of child labor, including prohibition of child trafficking and using children in illicit activities.

Table 2. Laws and Regulations on Child Labor

* No conscription (11)

† No standing military (11)

The Government of Saint Helena, Ascensión, and Tristán da Cunha has not determined by national law or regulation the types of hazardous work prohibited to children, other than work on vessels engaged in maritime navigation. (2,6) The laws prohibiting forced labor in Saint Helena, Ascensión, and Tristán da Cunha are not sufficient because debt bondage and slavery are prohibited constitutionally but not criminally. (7) While the UK Sexual Offences Act, which is applicable to this territory, prohibits trafficking for sexual exploitation, it does not specifically address the trafficking of children and there are no laws prohibiting the trafficking of children for labor exploitation. (8)

III. ENFORCEMENT OF LAWS ON CHILD LABOR

As there is no evidence of a problem, there appears to be no need for enforcement actions to address child labor, including its worst forms.

IV. COORDINATION OF GOVERNMENT EFFORTS ON CHILD LABOR

As there is no evidence of a problem, there appears to be no need for mechanisms to coordinate efforts to address child labor.

V. GOVERNMENT POLICIES ON CHILD LABOR

As there is no evidence of a problem, there appears to be no need for policies to address child labor.

VI. SOCIAL PROGRAMS TO ADDRESS CHILD LABOR

As there is no evidence of a problem, there appears to be no need for programs to address child labor.

VII. SUGGESTED GOVERNMENT ACTIONS TO ELIMINATE CHILD LABOR

Based on the reporting above, suggested actions are identified that would advance the continued prevention of child labor in Saint Helena, Ascension, and Tristan da Cunha (Table 3).

Table 3. Suggested Government Actions to Eliminate Child Labor

Area	Suggested Action	Year(s) Suggested
Legal Framework	Ratify international conventions on child labor.	2020
	Determine the types of hazardous work prohibited for children, in consultation with employers' and workers' organizations.	2013 – 2020
	Ensure that forced labor, debt bondage, and slavery are criminally prohibited.	2017 – 2020
	Establish laws to criminally prohibit trafficking of children for labor exploitation.	2014 – 2020
	Establish laws to criminally prohibit the use of children in illicit activities.	2015 – 2020
	Ensure that the law criminally prohibits the recruitment of children under age 18 by non-state armed groups.	2016 – 2020

In 2020, Saint Lucia made minimal advancement in efforts to eliminate the worst forms of child labor. The government launched a comprehensive study to assess economically vulnerable populations in the country. The study will ultimately provide recommendations on effective ways to help the identified populations. The Trafficking in Persons Task Force also raised awareness through social media platforms and issued several press releases related to human trafficking. Although research is limited, there is evidence that children in Saint Lucia are subjected to the worst forms of child labor, including in commercial sexual exploitation, sometimes as a result of human trafficking, and in the sale and distribution of drugs. Saint Lucia's legal framework does not sufficiently protect children from hazardous work and illicit activities. In addition, policies addressing all forms of child labor, including the commercial sexual exploitation of children, do not exist.

I. PREVALENCE AND SECTORAL DISTRIBUTION OF CHILD LABOR

Although research is limited, there is evidence that children in Saint Lucia are subjected to the worst forms of child labor, including in commercial sexual exploitation, sometimes as a result of human trafficking, and in the sale and distribution of drugs. (1-4) Table 1 provides key indicators on children's work and education in Saint Lucia.

Table 1. Statistics on Children's Work and Education

Children	Age	Percent
Working (% and population)	5 to 14	7.5 (2,017)
Attending School (%)	5 to 14	99.7
Combining Work and School (%)	7 to 14	8.2
Primary Completion Rate (%)		99.8

Source for primary completion rate: Data from 2019, published by UNESCO Institute for Statistics, 2021. (5)

Source for all other data: International Labor Organization's analysis of statistics from Multiple Indicator Cluster Survey 4 (MICS 4), 2012. (6)

Based on a review of available information, Table 2 provides an overview of children's work by sector and activity.

Table 2. Overview of Children's Work by Sector and Activity

Sector/Industry	Activity
Services	Street vending, including selling food and handicrafts in markets (3)
Categorical Worst Forms of Child Labor‡	Commercial sexual exploitation, sometimes as a result of human trafficking (1-4)
	Use in illicit activities, including in the sale and distribution of drugs (1,4)

‡ Child labor understood as the worst forms of child labor per se under Article 3(a)–(c) of ILO C. 182.

During the reporting period, the government began a comprehensive study to assess economically vulnerable populations in the country. The study will serve to provide recommendations on effective ways to meet the needs of these populations. (7)

In 2020, reports indicated a significant increase in cases of commercial sexual exploitation of children. (3)

Saint Lucia lacks detailed data on the extent of child labor in the country. A rapid assessment conducted by the ILO in 2016 revealed limited evidence that children are subjected to the worst forms of child labor, including in commercial sexual exploitation, sometimes in exchange for rides, clothing, or cell phones, by family members or caregivers in situations of financial need. (1,3) Additional sources also indicate that local and foreign children are subjected to human trafficking for the purpose of commercial sexual exploitation, including by parents and caregivers. (2,3,8,9)

All children in Saint Lucia are entitled to free public education. However, violence in schools, some gang related, may hinder some children from attending. (10) Children who do not attend school are vulnerable to engage in child labor.

II. LEGAL FRAMEWORK FOR CHILD LABOR

Saint Lucia has ratified most key international conventions concerning child labor (Table 3).

Table 3. Ratification of International Conventions on Child Labor

Convention	Ratification
 ILO C. 138, Minimum Age
ILO C. 182, Worst Forms of Child Labor	✓

The government has established laws and regulations related to child labor (Table 4). However, gaps exist in Saint Lucia's legal framework to adequately protect children from the worst forms of child labor, including the prohibition of commercial sexual exploitation of children and the use of children in illicit activities.

Table 4. Laws and Regulations on Child Labor

Standard	Meets International Standards	Age	Legislation

* No conscription (17)

† No standing military (17)

In 2020, the government began a comprehensive revision of the Labor Act, specifically addressing certain issues related to the Labor Department's mandate. It is currently under the review of the Attorney General. (3)

Saint Lucia has not determined by national law or regulation the types of hazardous work prohibited for children. (11) Although the Criminal Code prohibits the use of children in some illicit activities, such as street work, the use, procurement, or offering of children for the production and trafficking of drugs is not criminally prohibited. (15) Moreover, forced labor is only criminally prohibited if it results from human trafficking, and the use or offering of children for commercial sexual exploitation is not criminally prohibited. (11,13,15)

III. ENFORCEMENT OF LAWS ON CHILD LABOR

The government has established institutional mechanisms for the enforcement of laws and regulations on child labor (Table 5). However, gaps exist within the authority of enforcement agencies that may hinder adequate enforcement of their child labor laws.

Table 5. Agencies Responsible for Child Labor Law Enforcement

Organization/Agency	Role
Ministry of Infrastructure, Ports, Energy, and Labor	Enforces laws on child labor through labor inspections conducted by its Department of Labor. (8)
Royal Saint Lucia Police Force	Enforces criminal laws related to the worst forms of child labor. (8) Through its Vulnerable Persons Unit, in collaboration with the Division of Human Services, investigates cases of child labor, abuse, and neglect. The Vulnerable Persons Unit consists of 2 units of 12 officers each and leads in the enforcement of child labor laws. (8,18) Uses a specific manual to investigate crimes related to children. (8)
Ministry of Home Affairs, Justice, and National Security	Coordinates and leads anti-human trafficking efforts among various ministries. (19,20)
Department of Human Services and Family Affairs	Leads efforts related to childcare, protection, and adoption as mandated in the 2018 Child Care, Protection, and Adoption Bill. (10,21) Monitors and implements relevant legal framework related to cases of commercial sexual exploitation and trafficking in persons, including child victims. (22) Located within the Ministry of Equity. (10)

Labor Law Enforcement

In 2020, labor law enforcement agencies in Saint Lucia took actions to combat child labor (Table 6). However, gaps exist within the authority of the Ministry of Infrastructure, Ports, Energy, and Labor that may hinder adequate labor law enforcement, including penalty assessment authorization.

Table 6. Labor Law Enforcement Efforts Related to Child Labor

Saint Lucia

MINIMAL ADVANCEMENT

In 2020, reports indicate that the decrease in the number of labor inspections was primarily due to COVID-19 pandemic-related restrictions and limited resources. (3) Although inspectors look for child labor and forced labor violations during all inspections, reports indicate that insufficient funding may hamper the labor inspectorate's capacity to enforce child labor laws in all relevant sectors, especially in communities in which children are vulnerable to commercial sexual exploitation. (8) Inspectors can make recommendations to the Labor Commissioner, but cannot assess penalties, and furthermore existing penalties are insufficient to deter employers from committing child labor violations. (3,23)

Criminal Law Enforcement

In 2020, criminal law enforcement agencies in Saint Lucia took actions to combat child labor (Table 7). However, gaps exist within the operations of the criminal enforcement agencies that may hinder adequate criminal law enforcement, including insufficient resources.

Table 7. Criminal Law Enforcement Efforts Related to Child Labor

Overview of Criminal Law Enforcement	2019	2020
Initial Training for New Criminal Investigators	Yes (24)	No (3)
Training on New Laws Related to the Worst Forms of Child Labor	N/A	No (3)
Refresher Courses Provided	Yes (24)	No (3)
Number of Investigations	0 (8)	30 (25)
Number of Violations Found	0 (8)	0 (3)
Number of Prosecutions Initiated	0 (8)	0 (3)
Number of Convictions	0 (8)	0 (3)
Imposed Penalties for Violations Related to the Worst Forms of Child Labor	Unknown	Unknown
Reciprocal Referral Mechanism Exists Between Criminal Authorities and Social Services	Yes (8)	Yes (3)

In 2020, reports indicate there were approximately 60 suspected cases of commercial sexual exploitation of children in contrast to 1 suspected case in 2019. (3) Of these 60 cases, 19 were referred by NGOs to the Division of Human Services and the police as possible cases of child sex trafficking. In addition, the police reported that they investigated 30 cases of commercial sexual exploitation of children under the Child Justice Act. (25) During the reporting period, the government also continued to investigate a suspected human trafficking case of a minor. Authorities are working with another government to locate and repatriate this victim. (7,26)

Reports indicate that insufficient resources, including funding, transportation, and equipment, hamper police capacity to enforce child labor laws. (18,27) Although the judicial system within the Ministry of Home Affairs, Justice, and National Security has a backlog of cases, and lacks the personnel and resources needed to address these issues, during the reporting period the government hired an additional judge and two prosecutors to address the backlog. (28,29)

IV. COORDINATION OF GOVERNMENT EFFORTS ON CHILD LABOR

The government has established mechanisms to coordinate its efforts to address child labor (Table 8). However, gaps exist that hinder the effective coordination of efforts to address child labor, including efficacy in accomplishing mandates.

Table 8. Key Mechanisms to Coordinate Government Efforts on Child Labor

Coordinating Body	Role & Description
Ministry of Education, Innovation, Gender Relations, and Sustainable Development	Coordinates investigations of potential child labor cases and ensures the use of established protocols in collaboration with the Royal Saint Lucia Police Force. Active in 2020. (3,30)
Trafficking in Persons Task Force	Coordinates the identification and referral of human trafficking cases among law enforcement, social services, and immigration officials, under the Counter-Trafficking Act. Includes public servants, representatives from the Department of Labor, police, and victim-service NGOs. (14,31) Conducted human trafficking awareness raising through social media platforms, and issued several trafficking in persons press releases during the reporting period. (7)
Office of Gender Relations	Provides referrals to human trafficking victims for health, advocacy, crisis, and legal services. (3) Research was unable to determine whether activities were undertaken by the Office of Gender Relations during the reporting period.

V. GOVERNMENT POLICIES ON CHILD LABOR

The government has established policies related to child labor (Table 9). However, policy gaps exist that hinder efforts to address child labor, including no evidence of a policy addressing child labor and its worst forms.

Table 9. Key Policies Related to Child Labor

Policy	Description
National Social Protection Policy (2014–2024)	Established a social protection policy in Phase I (2014–2019) by consolidating the Social Safety Net programs. In Phase II (2019–2024), will implement wider reforms for creating a coherent social protection policy. (18) Child protection policies are incorporated into poverty reduction concepts and promote access to education. (32,33) Research was unable to determine whether activities were undertaken to implement the National Social Protection Policy during the reporting period.

Research found no evidence of any policies addressing child labor and its worst forms.

VI. SOCIAL PROGRAMS TO ADDRESS CHILD LABOR

In 2020, the government funded and participated in programs that may contribute to eliminating or preventing child labor (Table 10). However, gaps exist in these social programs, including funding and adequacy of programs to address the full scope of the problem.

Table 10. Key Social Programs to Address Child Labor

Program	Description
Educational Programs†	Programs focused on increasing school attendance and promoting access to education. Includes the Saint Lucia Social Development Fund and Public Assistance Program, which fosters school attendance; the Community Empowerment’s After School Program, which aims to improve academic performance and maintains school attendance of children ages 8 to 16; the Upton Garden Girls Center, which provides education, training, and self-development opportunities to teenage girls; the Center for Adolescent Renewal and Education, which provides second-chance education, training, and self-development services to adolescents; the Boys Training Center, which supports boys ages 10 to 18 who have come in contact with the law or require care and protection; and the Koudmen Sent Lisi program, which funds textbook rentals, a book bursary that reimburses students for textbooks, a school feeding program, and a transportation subsidy program at most secondary schools. (19) During the reporting period, the government focused on providing school children with tablets, computers, and other resources to support at home learning since schools were closed in response to the pandemic. (25)
Building the Capacity of the Government of Saint Lucia and Promoting Awareness of Counter-Trafficking‡	$105,000 government-funded, 2 year public awareness project to counter human trafficking; led by the Trafficking in Persons Task Force. Focuses on running radio and television announcements, printing posters and brochures, and maintaining a Facebook page to ensure a growing media and social media presence on human trafficking. (24) In 2019, the government assumed full financial support for this program from IOM. (24) Research was unable to determine whether activities were undertaken to implement this program during the reporting period.

‡ The government had other social programs that may have included the goal of eliminating or preventing child labor. (35)

Saint Lucia

MINIMAL ADVANCEMENT

In 2020, reports indicate that the Government of Saint Lucia implemented programs aimed at improving economic conditions throughout the country, particularly in rural, impoverished areas. The government also continued to fund the Saint Lucia Crisis Center, a local NGO that provides human trafficking victim assistance, including victims of child trafficking. (7)

Research found no evidence of any programs with the specific goal of eliminating or preventing the worst forms of child labor, including in commercial sexual exploitation and illicit activities such as the sale and transportation of drugs. In addition, overall funding for social programs remains a concern because it does not meet the needs of all children in the country, especially children subjected to human trafficking and those engaged in illicit activities, and funding remains highly dependent on foreign assistance. (19,36)

VII. SUGGESTED GOVERNMENT ACTIONS TO ELIMINATE CHILD LABOR

Based on the reporting above, suggested actions are identified that would advance the elimination of child labor in Saint Lucia (Table 11).

Table 11. Suggested Government Actions to Eliminate Child Labor

Area	Suggested Action	Year(s) Suggested
Legal Framework	Determine the types of hazardous work prohibited for children in consultation with employers' and workers' organizations.	2017 – 2020
	Ensure that laws criminally prohibit the forced labor of children in all instances.	2016 – 2020
	Ensure that laws criminally prohibit using or offering a child for commercial sexual exploitation.	2016 – 2020
	Ensure that laws prohibit procuring or offering a child for illicit activities, including drug trafficking and production.	2011 – 2020
	Ensure that the law criminally prohibits the recruitment of children under age 18 into non-state armed groups.	2016 – 2020
Enforcement	Ensure that the labor inspectorate receives sufficient funding for conducting labor inspections.	2015 – 2020
	Authorize labor inspectors to assess penalties for labor law violations.	2016 – 2020
	Ensure that labor inspectors and criminal investigators receive initial training on child labor law enforcement, and that refresher courses are also provided for both labor inspectors and criminal investigators.	2015 – 2020
	Strengthen the labor inspectorate by initiating targeted inspections based on analysis of data on risk-prone sectors and patterns of serious incidents, and by conducting unannounced inspections.	2015 – 2020
	Increase the resources allocated to criminal investigators, including transportation and equipment.	2017 – 2020
	Ensure that existing penalties are sufficient to deter employers from committing child labor violations.	2018 – 2020
	Ensure that the judiciary has sufficient resources and personnel to allow cases to be tried in a timely manner.	2017 – 2020
Coordination	Ensure that the Office of Gender Relations is able to carry out its intended mandate.	2020
Government Policies	Ensure that the National Social Protection Policy is implemented and fulfills its mandate.	2015 – 2020
	Adopt policies to address the worst forms of child labor, including the commercial sexual exploitation of children.	2010 – 2020
Social Programs	Collect and publish data on the extent and nature of child labor to inform policies and programs.	2017 – 2020
	Enhance efforts to eliminate barriers to education, and make it accessible for all children by ensuring that violence does not occur at schools.	2018 – 2020
	Ensure that activities are undertaken to implement all government funded programs.	2020
	Design and implement social programs that specifically target and assist children engaged in the worst forms of child labor, including in commercial sexual exploitation and illicit activities such as the sale and transportation of drugs.	2013 – 2020
	Ensure that funding for social programs is sufficient so that it can meet the needs of all children, including vulnerable children, and that it does not highly rely on foreign assistance.	2017 – 2020

Saint Vincent and the Grenadines

MODERATE ADVANCEMENT

In 2020, Saint Vincent and the Grenadines made moderate advancement in efforts to eliminate the worst forms of child labor. The Anti-Trafficking in Persons Unit funded and conducted specialized human trafficking training for 181 new police recruits, the entire staff of the Sexual Offenses Unit, and participants in the police force's 2020 Basic Development Training Course. In addition, a new National Action Plan to Combat Human Trafficking was approved for 2021–2025, and campaigns aimed at increasing public awareness of human trafficking were conducted at Argyle International Airport and other popular gathering sites, as well as on radio and television announcements. Although research is limited, there is evidence that children in Saint Vincent and the Grenadines are subjected to the worst forms of child labor, including in commercial sexual exploitation. Gaps remain in the legal framework, as the law does not fully meet international standards because the use of children for prostitution, pornography, or pornographic performances is not prohibited. In addition, the minimum age for hazardous work falls below international standards and there is no legislation prohibiting the using, procuring and offering of children in illicit activities, including in the production of drugs.

I. PREVALENCE AND SECTORAL DISTRIBUTION OF CHILD LABOR

Although research is limited, there is evidence that children in Saint Vincent and the Grenadines are subjected to the worst forms of child labor, including in commercial sexual exploitation. (1,2) Table 1 provides key indicators on children's work and education in Saint Vincent and the Grenadines. Data on some of these indicators are not available from the sources used in this report.

Table 1. Statistics on Children's Work and Education

Children	Age	Percent
Working (% and population)	5 to 14	Unavailable
Attending School (%)	5 to 14	Unavailable
Combining Work and School (%)	7 to 14	Unavailable
Primary Completion Rate (%)		105.5

Source for primary completion rate: Data from 2018, published by UNESCO Institute for Statistics, 2021. (3)

Data were unavailable from International Labor Organization's analysis, 2021. (4)

Based on a review of available information, Table 2 provides an overview of children's work by sector and activity.

Table 2. Overview of Children's Work by Sector and Activity

Sector/Industry	Activity
Agriculture	Activities unknown (1,2)
Services	Street vending, including selling fruits and vegetables at local farmers markets (5)
Categorical Worst Forms of Child Labor‡	Commercial sexual exploitation (1,2)

‡ Child labor understood as the worst forms of child labor per se under Article 3(a)–(c) of ILO C. 182.

Limited information received from various sources suggests that some children in Saint Vincent and the Grenadines are subjected to commercial sexual exploitation, including by their relatives, in exchange for money or goods. (1,2)

Saint Vincent and the Grenadines

MODERATE ADVANCEMENT

All children in the country are able to access education; however, inadequate public transportation for children in rural villages causes them to walk long distances to get to school, which may make attending school difficult. (1,6) Children out of school are vulnerable to engaging in child labor.

II. LEGAL FRAMEWORK FOR CHILD LABOR

Saint Vincent and the Grenadines has ratified all key international conventions concerning child labor (Table 3).

Table 3. Ratification of International Conventions on Child Labor

Convention	Ratification
 ILO C. 138, Minimum Age	✓
ILO C. 182, Worst Forms of Child Labor	✓
 UN CRC	✓
UN CRC Optional Protocol on Armed Conflict	✓
UN CRC Optional Protocol on the Sale of Children, Child Prostitution and Child Pornography	✓
 Palermo Protocol on Trafficking in Persons	✓

The government has established laws and regulations related to child labor (Table 4). However, gaps exist in Saint Vincent and the Grenadines' legal framework to adequately protect children from the worst forms of child labor, including the minimum age for hazardous work and the prohibition of using children in illicit activities.

Table 4. Laws and Regulations on Child Labor

Standard	Meets International Standards	Age	Legislation
Minimum Age for Work	Yes	14	Article 8 of the Employment of Women, Young Persons, and Children Act (7)
Minimum Age for Hazardous Work	No		Schedule, Part I, Articles 1, 2, and 5 of the Employment of Women, Young Persons, and Children Act (7)
Identification of Hazardous Occupations or Activities Prohibited for Children	No		Part I, Sections 3 and 4, and Articles 1, 2, and 5 of the Employment of Women, Young Persons, and Children Act; Section VI(37) of the Saint Vincent and the Grenadines Occupational Safety and Health Act of 2017 (7,8)
Prohibition of Forced Labor	Yes		Chapter XII, Part 207 of the Criminal Code (9)
Prohibition of Child Trafficking	Yes		Part II, Articles 5–8 of the Prevention of Trafficking in Persons Act (10)
Prohibition of Commercial Sexual Exploitation of Children	No		Part II, Article 7 of the Prevention of Trafficking in Persons Act (10)
Prohibition of Using Children in Illicit Activities	No
Minimum Age for Voluntary State Military Recruitment	N/A*
Prohibition of Compulsory Recruitment of Children by (State) Military	N/A*†
Prohibition of Military Recruitment by Non-state Armed Groups	No
Compulsory Education Age	Yes	16	Part I, Article 2 of the Education Act (6)
Free Public Education	Yes		Part III, Articles 14–16 of the Education Act (6)

† No standing military (12)

The government has not determined by national law or regulation the types of hazardous work prohibited for children. (7,8) In addition, the law does not fully meet international standards as it does not prohibit the use of children for prostitution, pornography, or pornographic performances. (10)

Saint Vincent and the Grenadines

MODERATE ADVANCEMENT

The minimum age for work is lower than the compulsory education age, which may encourage children to leave school before the completion of compulsory education. (6,7)

III. ENFORCEMENT OF LAWS ON CHILD LABOR

The government has established institutional mechanisms for the enforcement of laws and regulations on child labor (Table 5). However, gaps exist within the operations of enforcement agencies that may hinder adequate enforcement of their child labor laws.

Table 5. Agencies Responsible for Child Labor Law Enforcement

Organization/Agency	Role
Ministry of Labor	Enforces child labor laws through its Department of Labor, and refers victims to appropriate social services. (13) Moreover, if the Department finds a criminal violation, it forwards the case to the Royal Saint Vincent and the Grenadines Police Force. (1)
Royal Saint Vincent and the Grenadines Police Force	Makes criminal arrests, including those involving the worst forms of child labor. Addresses human trafficking through the Anti-Trafficking in Persons Unit (ATIPU); refers victims to appropriate social services; and funds financial requests made by ATIPU. (14)
Ministry of Social Development	Maintains the Child Protection Unit, which includes Child Protection Officers who report cases of child abuse. (1)

Labor Law Enforcement

In 2020, labor law enforcement agencies in Saint Vincent and the Grenadines took actions to combat child labor (Table 6). However, gaps exist within the operations of the Ministry of Labor that may hinder adequate labor law enforcement, including financial resource allocation.

Table 6. Labor Law Enforcement Efforts Related to Child Labor

Overview of Labor Law Enforcement	2019	2020
Labor Inspectorate Funding	$626,076 (15)	$618,758 (1)
Number of Labor Inspectors	6 (15)	6 (1)
Inspectorate Authorized to Assess Penalties	No (15)	No (16)
Initial Training for New Labor Inspectors	N/A (15)	No (1)
Training on New Laws Related to Child Labor	N/A (15)	N/A (1)
Refresher Courses Provided	No (15)	No (1)
Number of Labor Inspections Conducted	42 (15)	37 (1)
Number Conducted at Worksite	42 (15)	37 (1)
Number of Child Labor Violations Found	0 (15)	0 (1)
Number of Child Labor Violations for Which Penalties Were Imposed	0 (15)	0 (1)
Number of Child Labor Penalties Imposed that Were Collected	0 (15)	0 (1)
Routine Inspections Conducted	Yes (15)	Yes (1)
Routine Inspections Targeted	Yes (15)	Yes (1)
Unannounced Inspections Permitted	Yes (15)	Yes (16)
Unannounced Inspections Conducted	Yes (15)	Yes (1)
Complaint Mechanism Exists	Yes (15)	Yes (1)
Reciprocal Referral Mechanism Exists Between Labor Authorities and Social Services	Yes (15)	Yes (1)

During the reporting period, the Department of Labor reported that the number of inspectors and funding was sufficient; however, a lack of appropriate resources, such as computers and training, hampered the Department's abilities to enforce child labor laws. (1,17)

Criminal Law Enforcement

In 2020, criminal law enforcement agencies in Saint Vincent and the Grenadines took actions to combat child labor (Table 7). However, gaps exist within the operations of the criminal enforcement agencies that may hinder adequate criminal law enforcement, including allocating financial and human resources.

Saint Vincent and the Grenadines

MODERATE ADVANCEMENT

Table 7. Criminal Law Enforcement Efforts Related to Child Labor

Overview of Criminal Law Enforcement	2019	2020
Initial Training for New Criminal Investigators	Yes (15)	Yes (18)
Training on New Laws Related to the Worst Forms of Child Labor	N/A (15)	N/A (1)
Refresher Courses Provided	Yes (15)	Yes (18)
Number of Investigations	0 (15)	0 (1)
Number of Violations Found	0 (15)	0 (1)
Number of Prosecutions Initiated	0 (15)	0 (1)
Number of Convictions	0 (15)	0 (1)
Imposed Penalties for Violations Related to the Worst Forms of Child Labor	Unknown	Unknown
Reciprocal Referral Mechanism Exists Between Criminal Authorities and Social Services	Yes (15)	Yes (1)

In 2020, the Anti-Trafficking in Persons Unit (ATIPU) funded and conducted specialized human trafficking training for 181 new police recruits, the entire staff of the Sexual Offenses Unit, and participants in the police force's 2020 Basic Development Training Course. (18)

During the reporting period, insufficient resources, including limited personnel and vehicles, hampered the capacity of ATIPU to combat human trafficking throughout the country, especially in remote, mountainous areas. (18)

IV. COORDINATION OF GOVERNMENT EFFORTS ON CHILD LABOR

The government has established mechanisms to coordinate its efforts to address child labor (Table 8). However, gaps exist that hinder effective coordination of efforts to address child labor, including efforts to address all forms of child labor.

Table 8. Key Mechanisms to Coordinate Government Efforts on Child Labor

Coordinating Body	Role & Description
National Task Force Against Trafficking in Persons	Develops a national plan to address human trafficking, coordinates the collection of data among government agencies, establishes policies to enable government agencies to work with NGOs to prevent human trafficking and assist victims, and provides training to all relevant government officials and authority figures. Chaired by the Prime Minister. (10) Comprises representatives from police, immigration, public prosecutions, social services, gender affairs, the Department of Labor, and a local NGO. (19) During the reporting period, in collaboration with the ATIPU, coordinated various efforts by the police, the Office of the Director of Public Prosecutions, the Social Services Division, the Coast Guard, the Department of Labor and other government agencies. (18)

Research shows that there is no specific coordinating mechanism dedicated solely to addressing issues related to the worst forms of child labor, outside the scope of human trafficking.

V. GOVERNMENT POLICIES ON CHILD LABOR

The government has established policies related to child labor (Table 9). However, policy gaps exist that hinder efforts to address child labor, including implementation.

Table 9. Key Policies Related to Child Labor

Policy	Description
National Child Protection Policy Framework (2015–2020)	Strengthened national child protection strategies and programs, and ensured effective coordination among all organizations and entities working for the protection and development of children in the country, including child labor victims. (20) Research was unable to determine whether activities were undertaken to implement the National Child Protection Policy Framework during the reporting period.

Policy	Description
National Plan of Action Against Trafficking in Persons (2016–2020)	Established procedures to eradicate human trafficking, including training for frontline staff and other relevant stakeholders; conducted awareness-raising campaigns; and provided victim protection and assistance. Administered by the National Task Force Against Trafficking in Persons. (19,21) In July 2020, the ATIPU hosted a 2-day symposium to review the National Plan of Action Against Trafficking in Persons and the Memorandum of Understanding on Countering Human Trafficking in Saint Vincent and the Grenadines. Moreover, the government conducted human trafficking awareness trainings for four churches, an NGO and two schools, addressing topics such as the definition of human trafficking, child trafficking, victim care, human trafficking indicators, causes and consequences, and examinations on the Prevention of Trafficking in Persons Act. (18) All trainings were funded by the Government of Saint Vincent and the Grenadines. (18)
Memorandum of Understanding (MOU) on Countering Human Trafficking in Saint Vincent and the Grenadines	Outlines the responsibilities of each signatory agency in combating human trafficking and the worst forms of child labor. Assigns tasks and responsibilities among nine government stakeholders regarding trafficking in persons. (22) Includes the Department of Labor, Ministry of Foreign Affairs, Trade and Commerce, ATIPU, and others. (23) In 2020, the government supported the MOU between signatory agencies, and a local NGO also signed the MOU during the reporting period. (1, 18)

In 2020, a new National Plan of Action to Combat Human Trafficking was approved for 2021–2025. (5)

VI. SOCIAL PROGRAMS TO ADDRESS CHILD LABOR

In 2020, the government funded and participated in programs that include the goal of eliminating or preventing child labor (Table 10). However, gaps exist in these social programs, including the adequacy of programs to address the full scope of the problem.

Table 10. Key Social Programs to Address Child Labor

Program	Description
Government-Funded Educational Programs†	Provide free meals to students and low-income families through the Supplementary Feeding Program. (24) In 2020, the government also continued to fund other programs, such as the Book Loan Program, the Street Children Rehabilitation Program, and the Foster Care Program. (1)
Zero Hunger Trust Fund†	Provides meals, materials, and uniforms to children in need. (25) Reports indicate that during the reporting period, limited resources prevented the program from sufficiently assisting all children in need. (1)

† Program is funded by the Government of Saint Vincent and the Grenadines.

During the reporting period, the ATIPU continued to conduct awareness-raising campaigns by displaying posters and handing out materials aimed at increasing public awareness of human trafficking at Argyle International Airport and other popular gathering sites. The ATIPU also raised awareness through radio and television announcements, and partnered with a local NGO to place new banners in the arrivals and departure areas of the airport. (18)

Although the government has implemented programs to address educational and food needs, research found no evidence that it has carried out programs specifically to assist children who are victims of commercial sexual exploitation. (26)

VII. SUGGESTED GOVERNMENT ACTIONS TO ELIMINATE CHILD LABOR

Based on the reporting above, suggested actions are identified that would advance the elimination of child labor in Saint Vincent and the Grenadines (Table 11).

Table 11. Suggested Government Actions to Eliminate Child Labor

Area	Suggested Action	Year(s) Suggested
Legal Framework	Determine the types of hazardous work prohibited for children, in consultation with workers' and employers' organizations, and ensure that the minimum age for hazardous work is age 18.	2009 – 2020
	Ensure the use of children for prostitution, pornography, and pornographic performances is criminally prohibited.	2017 – 2020

Saint Vincent and the Grenadines

MODERATE ADVANCEMENT

Area	Suggested Action	Year(s) Suggested
Legal Framework	Ensure that laws prohibit the using, procuring and offering of children for illicit activities, including in the production of drugs.	2011 – 2020
	Ensure that the law criminally prohibits the recruitment of children under age 18 by non-state armed groups.	2016 – 2020
	Raise the minimum age for work to the age up to which education is compulsory.	2018 – 2020
Enforcement	Authorize the labor inspectorate to assess penalties for labor law violations.	2016 – 2020
	Strengthen the labor inspectorate by providing sufficient resources to conduct labor inspections, including by providing computers and training.	2015 – 2020
	Ensure that labor inspectors are provided initial trainings and refresher courses related to child labor.	2018 – 2020
	Increase the amount of resources, including personnel and vehicles, for the Anti-Trafficking in Persons Unit.	2017 – 2020
Coordination	Establish coordinating mechanisms to combat all forms of child labor.	2019 – 2020
Government Policies	Ensure that activities are undertaken to implement the National Child Protection Policy Framework.	2019 – 2020
Social Programs	Collect and publish data on the extent and nature of child labor to inform policies and programs.	2017 – 2020
	Enhance efforts to eliminate barriers and make education accessible for all children, including children in rural communities, by providing public transportation.	2018 – 2020
	Institute programs to address the worst forms of child labor in commercial sexual exploitation.	2017 – 2020
	Ensure that the Zero Hunger Trust Fund program has sufficient resources to assist all children in need.	2019 – 2020

In 2020, Samoa made minimal advancement in efforts to eliminate the worst forms of child labor. The government submitted two pieces of draft legislation, the Labour and Employment Relations Amendment Act 2020 and the Child Protection Bill 2020, to be considered during the next session of parliament. Children in Samoa are subjected to the worst forms of child labor, including in commercial sexual exploitation, sometimes as a result of human trafficking. Children also engage in dangerous tasks in street vending. Research found no evidence of laws that prohibit using, procuring, or offering children for illicit activities, including for the production and trafficking of drugs. In addition, the government did not publicly release information on its labor law enforcement or criminal law enforcements efforts.

I. PREVALENCE AND SECTORAL DISTRIBUTION OF CHILD LABOR

Children in Samoa are subjected to the worst forms of child labor, including in commercial sexual exploitation, sometimes as a result of human trafficking. (1) Children also engage in dangerous tasks in street vending. (1-3) Table 1 provides key indicators on children's work and education in Samoa. Data on some of these indicators are not available from the sources used in this report.

Source for primary completion rate: Data from 2019, published by UNESCO Institute for Statistics, 2021. (4) Data were unavailable from International Labor Organization's analysis, 2021. (5)

Based on a review of available information, Table 2 provides an overview of children's work by sector and activity.

Table 2. Overview of Children's Work by Sector and Activity

Sector/Industry	Activity
Agriculture	Farming and animal husbandry, activities unknown (1)
Services	Domestic work (1)
	Street vending, including selling food, garlands, and other products (1-3,6-10)
	Garbage scavenging (1)
Categorical Worst Forms of Child Labor‡	Commercial sexual exploitation, sometimes as a result of human trafficking (1,11)
	Use in illicit activities, including selling drugs (1)

‡ Child labor understood as the worst forms of child labor per se under Article 3(a)–(c) of ILO C. 182.

Children who participate in street vending may work long hours, late at night, be exposed to exhaust fumes, and have an increased risk of being hit by passing traffic. In addition, street vending, including selling of food, garlands, and other products by children is not prohibited for children under age 18. (1,7,10)

Children must present birth certificates to attend school. In 2020, the government established an additional requirement for school attendance mandating that parents provide vaccination records of students following a countrywide vaccination campaign during the measles epidemic in late 2019. (10) To attend school, the vaccination records must show that the child has not only completed all vaccinations, but also that they were vaccinated during the mass vaccination campaign in 2019. Parents who decided against vaccination are faced with a fine and children are not allowed to attend school unless a vaccination certificate is provided. (10) The burden of school fees, such as registration, uniforms, and transportation fees, may prevent some children from attending school. (12,13)

MINIMAL ADVANCEMENT

II. LEGAL FRAMEWORK FOR CHILD LABOR

Samoa has ratified most key international conventions concerning child labor (Table 3).

Table 3. Ratification of International Conventions on Child Labor

Convention	Ratification
 ILO C. 138, Minimum Age	✓
ILO C. 182, Worst Forms of Child Labor	✓
 UN CRC	✓
UN CRC Optional Protocol on Armed Conflict	✓
UN CRC Optional Protocol on the Sale of Children, Child Prostitution and Child Pornography	✓
 Palermo Protocol on Trafficking in Persons

The government has established laws and regulations related to child labor (Table 4). However, gaps exist in Samoa's legal framework to adequately protect children from the worst forms of child labor, including the prohibition of using children in illicit activities.

Table 4. Laws and Regulations on Child Labor

Standard	Meets International Standards	Age	Legislation
Minimum Age for Work	Yes	15	Article 51 of the Labor and Employment Relations Act (14)
Minimum Age for Hazardous Work	Yes	18	Article 51 of the Labor and Employment Relations Act (14)
Identification of Hazardous Occupations or Activities Prohibited for Children	Yes		Article 51 of the Labor and Employment Relations Act; Article 21 of the Labor and Employment Relations Regulations; Government of Samoa Public Notice on Hazardous Work for Children (14-16)
Prohibition of Forced Labor	Yes		Article 8 of the Constitution; Article 18 of the Labor and Employment Relations Act; Sections 155–157 of the Crimes Act (14, 17, 18)
Prohibition of Child Trafficking	Yes		Sections 155–157 of the Crimes Act (18)
Prohibition of Commercial Sexual Exploitation of Children	No		Sections 73–74, 82, and 157 of the Crimes Act (18)
Prohibition of Using Children in Illicit Activities	No
Minimum Age for Voluntary State Military Recruitment	N/A†
Prohibition of Compulsory Recruitment of Children by (State) Military	N/A†
Prohibition of Military Recruitment by Non-state Armed Groups	No		Article 8 of the International Criminal Court Act (19)
Compulsory Education Age	Yes	16	Article 2 (Section 2) of the Education Amendment Act (20)
Free Public Education	No

† No standing military (19)

The Labour and Employment Relations Regulations permit children between ages 12 and 14 to engage in light work for a limited number of hours. However, they neither specify the conditions under which light work may be undertaken nor define the activities that are permitted. (15)

Research found no evidence of laws that ban using, procuring, or offering children for illicit activities, including for the production and trafficking of drugs. Samoa does not meet the international standard for prohibiting non-state military recruitment because its International Criminal Court Act does not apply to children ages 15 to 18. (19) Samoa also does not meet the international standard for the prohibition of child commercial sexual exploitation because the Government of Samoa's Crimes Act does not protect children ages 16 to 18. (18) As the minimum age for work is lower than the compulsory education age, children may be encouraged to leave school before the completion of compulsory education. (14,20) The Government of Samoa passed the Education Amendment Act 2019, which raised the compulsory education age to 16. (20)

During the reporting period, the government submitted two pieces of draft legislation, the Labour and Employment Relations Amendment Act 2020 and the Child Protection Bill 2020, to be considered during the next session of parliament when the new government is formed. (21)

III. ENFORCEMENT OF LAWS ON CHILD LABOR

The government has established institutional mechanisms for the enforcement of laws and regulations on child labor (Table 5). However, gaps exist within the operations of enforcement agencies that may hinder adequate enforcement of their child labor laws.

Table 5. Agencies Responsible for Child Labor Law Enforcement

Organization/Agency	Role
Ministry of Commerce, Industry, and Labor (MCIL)	Enforces the Labor and Employment Relations Act, which includes investigating complaints of child labor law violations. (22,23) Refers cases to the Ministry of Police and the Office of the Attorney General for enforcement. (23)
Ministry of Police	Enforces criminal laws related to child labor. (23)
Office of the Attorney General	Prosecutes criminal cases of the worst forms of child labor. (23)
Ministry for Women, Community, and Social Development	Assists in MCIL investigations as needed. Mandated to protect children, including those working on the street. (24,25) Once a child is identified as being in a situation of child labor, his or her family is located and a home visit scheduled, during which the Child Protection teams educate families on the importance of attending school and on the risks and hazards of street vending. (26)
Ministry of Education, Sports, and Culture	Assists in MCIL investigations, as needed. (27)

Labor Law Enforcement

In 2020, labor law enforcement agencies in Samoa took actions to combat child labor (Table 6). However, gaps exist within the authority of the Ministry of Commerce, Industry, and Labor that may hinder adequate labor law enforcement, including lack of labor inspectors' ability to assess penalties.

Table 6. Labor Law Enforcement Efforts Related to Child Labor

Overview of Labor Law Enforcement	2019	2020

Reciprocal Referral Mechanism Exists Between Labor Authorities and Social Services	No (28)	Unknown (10)

In 2020, the Government of Samoa continued, when conducting inspections, to distribute its Letter of Intent for the Employment of Children, which reiterates restrictions on child labor in street vending. (23,29) The government did not provide any additional information on its labor law enforcement efforts for inclusion in this report.

While the number of labor inspectors is unknown, according to the ILO's technical advice of a ratio approaching 1 inspector for every 40,000 workers in less developed countries, Samoa would need to employ 2 labor inspectors as its workforce consists of over 50,700 workers.

Criminal Law Enforcement

Research did not find information on whether criminal law enforcement agencies in Samoa took actions to combat child labor (Table 7).

Table 7. Criminal Law Enforcement Efforts Related to Child Labor

Overview of Criminal Law Enforcement	2019	2020
Initial Training for New Criminal Investigators	Unknown (3)	Unknown (10)
Training on New Laws Related to the Worst Forms of Child Labor	Unknown (3)	Unknown (10)

Imposed Penalties for Violations Related to the Worst Forms of Child Labor	Unknown (3)	Unknown (10)
Reciprocal Referral Mechanism Exists Between Criminal Authorities and Social Services	Unknown (3)	Unknown (10)

The government did not provide information on its criminal law enforcement efforts for inclusion in this report.

IV. COORDINATION OF GOVERNMENT EFFORTS ON CHILD LABOR

The government has established mechanisms to coordinate its efforts to address child labor (Table 8). However, gaps exist that hinder the effective coordination of efforts to address child labor, including efforts to address all forms of child labor.

Table 8. Key Mechanisms to Coordinate Government Efforts on Child Labor

Coordinating Body	Role & Description
Transnational Crime Unit	A multi-agency unit that comprises the Ministry of Police, the Ministry for Revenue-Customs, and the Ministry of the Prime Minister's Immigration Unit to investigate and enforce laws against human trafficking, including possible commercial child exploitation. (30,31) Active in 2020. (27)
Child Vendor Taskforce	A multi-agency taskforce that comprises the MCIL; Ministry of Police; Ministry of Women, Community, and Social Development; and Ministry of Education, Sports, and Culture to reduce the prevalence of child vendors in towns and cities through patrol sweeps and conducting outreach activities. (23) Active in 2020. (27)

Although the Child Vendor Taskforce exists, research found no evidence that the task force functions as a coordinating mechanism to address child labor.

V. GOVERNMENT POLICIES ON CHILD LABOR

The government has established policies related to child labor (Table 9). However, policy gaps exist that hinder efforts to address child labor, including mainstreaming child labor issues into relevant policies.

Table 9. Key Policies Related to Child Labor

Policy	Description
UN Pacific Strategy (2018–2022)	A multi-national strategic framework program consisting of 14 South Pacific nations to address, develop, and implement strategic economic development priorities in the South Pacific, including eliminating child labor and the worst forms of child labor. (32) Research was unable to determine whether activities were undertaken to implement the UN Pacific Strategy during the reporting period.

The government has not integrated child labor elimination and prevention strategies into the Strategy for the Development of Samoa or the Education Sector Plan, which detail the Government of Samoa's goals and key outcomes regarding education and development priorities. (10,33,34)

In May 2020, the National Policy Coordination Committee approved the National Child Care and Protection Policy. (27) In addition, the Samoa Inter Agency Essential Services Guide for Responding to Gender-Based Violence and Child Protection was released in January 2021. The Guide was developed by the Ministry of Women, Community and Social Development, with technical support from UN Women, UNICEF, and UN Populations Fund (UNFPA). (27)

VI. SOCIAL PROGRAMS TO ADDRESS CHILD LABOR

In 2020, the government funded and participated in programs that include the goal of eliminating or preventing child labor (Table 10). However, gaps exist in these social programs, including the adequacy of programs to address the full scope of the problem.

Table 10. Key Social Programs to Address Child Labor

Program	Description
Samoa Decent Work Country Program (2017–2020)†	ILO and government-funded program that promoted decent work in Samoa. Supported legal reform and improved implementation of laws related to child labor, promoted access to information and employment services for youth, and aimed to increase the youth employment rate. (35,36) Research was unable to determine whether activities were undertaken to implement the Samoa Decent Work Country Program during the reporting period.
Government Grant to Mission and Public Schools†	Government-sponsored program that provides financial support to families to assist with ancillary school fees, supplies, and equipment that their child may need during the school year. (10,13)
One Government Grant†	Provides direct financial support to Samoan primary and secondary public schools, mission and private schools, and primary schools for students with disabilities and special needs to offset fees normally charged to students. (38,39) Research was unable to determine whether activities were undertaken to implement the One Government Grant program during the reporting period.

† Program is funded by the Government of Samoa.

Although the government has implemented educational support programs, research found no evidence that it has carried out programs specifically designed to assist children engaged in commercial sexual exploitation or street vending.

VII. SUGGESTED GOVERNMENT ACTIONS TO ELIMINATE CHILD LABOR

Based on the reporting above, suggested actions are identified that would advance the elimination of child labor in Samoa (Table 11).

MINIMAL ADVANCEMENT

Table 11. Suggested Government Actions to Eliminate Child Labor

Area	Suggested Action	Year(s) Suggested
Legal Framework	Ratify the Palermo Protocol on Trafficking in Persons.	2017 – 2020
	Ensure that the law's light work provisions are specific enough to prevent children from involvement in child labor, including street vending.	2013 – 2020
	Ensure that the law criminally prohibits commercial sexual exploitation of children between ages 16 to 18.	2018 – 2020
	Ensure that the law criminally prohibits using, procuring, or offering a child for illicit activities, including for the production and trafficking of drugs.	2014 – 2020
	Ensure that the law criminally prohibits the recruitment of children under age 18 by non-state armed groups.	2016 – 2020
	Raise the minimum age for work to the age up to which education is compulsory.	2019 – 2020
	Ensure access to free public education.	2020
Enforcement	Publish enforcement data for child labor law violations, penalties imposed, and penalties collected for all provinces. In addition, publish information about labor inspectorate funding, the number of labor inspectors, the number of labor inspections conducted at the worksite, whether routine inspections were targeted, whether unannounced inspections were conducted, whether training on new laws related to child labor were conducted, whether refresher training courses were provided, whether complaint mechanisms exist, whether reciprocal referral mechanisms exist between labor authorities and social services for all provinces.	2020
	Publish information on the number of criminal law enforcement efforts undertaken, including the number of investigations conducted, violations found; prosecutions initiated; convictions made, and penalties imposed.	2013 – 2020
	Authorize the labor inspectorate to assess penalties.	2015 – 2020
	Establish a referral mechanism between labor enforcement authorities and social services providers.	2014 – 2020
	Ensure the number of labor inspectors in Samoa meets the ILO's technical guidance.	2020
Coordination	Ensure the Child Vendor Taskforce meets regularly and effectively carries out its mandate.	2019 – 2020
Government Policies	Integrate child labor elimination and prevention strategies into the Strategy for the Development of Samoa and the Education Sector Plan.	2012 – 2020
	Publish activities undertaken to implement the UN Pacific Strategy during the reporting period.	2019 – 2020
Social Programs	Enhance efforts to make education accessible for all children by fully eliminating school-related costs, including registration fees, uniforms, transportation fees.	2016 – 2020
	Institute programs to address child labor, including in street vending and commercial sexual exploitation of children.	2009 – 2020
	Collect and publish data on the extent and nature of child labor to inform policies and programs.	2017 – 2020
	Publish activities undertaken to implement the Samoa Decent Work Country Program during the reporting period.	2018 – 2020
	Publish activities undertaken to implement the One Government Grant social program during the reporting period.	2019 – 2020

In 2020, São Tomé and Príncipe made minimal advancement in efforts to eliminate the worst forms of child labor. The government launched the Girls Empowerment and Quality Education for All project, which aims to provide safe learning spaces, improve school infrastructure, and work with families and communities to empower girls with relevant life skills. The program also aims to increase school readiness for both boys and girls by substantially boosting education, in particular within the areas of literacy and numeracy. The government also created the Department of Child Protection, which is housed under the Directorate of Social Protection and Solidarity. The new department leads a multi-sector team focused on combating child labor. However, children in São Tomé and Príncipe are subjected to the worst forms of child labor, including in commercial sexual exploitation. Children also perform dangerous tasks in agriculture. The Labor Code permits children younger than age 14 to work under certain circumstances, which is not consistent with international standards. Lastly, limited financial resources hampered law enforcement efforts, and criminal law enforcement did not take actions to combat child labor during the reporting period. In addition, the National Action Plan for the Elimination of Child Labor was not implemented due to a lack of financial resources.

I. PREVALENCE AND SECTORAL DISTRIBUTION OF CHILD LABOR

Children in São Tomé and Príncipe are subjected to the worst forms of child labor, including in commercial sexual exploitation. (1,2) Children also perform dangerous tasks in agriculture. (1,3) Table 1 provides key indicators on children's work and education in São Tomé and Príncipe. Data on some of these indicators are not available from the sources used in this report.

Table 1. Statistics on Children's Work and Education

Children	Age	Percent
Working (% and population)	5 to 14	22.6 (Unavailable)
Attending School (%)	5 to 14	89.2
Combining Work and School (%)	7 to 14	24.9
Primary Completion Rate (%)		84.3

Source for primary completion rate: Data from 2017, published by UNESCO Institute for Statistics, 2021. (4)

Source for all other data: International Labor Organization's analysis of statistics from Multiple Indicator Cluster Survey 5 (MICS 5), 2014. (5)

Based on a review of available information, Table 2 provides an overview of children's work by sector and activity.

Table 2. Overview of Children's Work by Sector and Activity

Sector/Industry	Activity
Agriculture	Farming,† including weeding and fertilizing† (1,3,6)
	Fishing,† including line and hook fishing (1,3,6)
Industry	Carpentry and woodworking (1)
	Construction† (1,3)
Services	Working in shops, restaurants, and bars† (1,3)
	Street work,† including begging and street vending† (1,3)
Categorical Worst Forms of Child Labor‡	Commercial sexual exploitation (1,2)

† Determined by national law or regulation as hazardous and, as such, relevant to Article 3(d) of ILO C. 182.

‡ Child labor understood as the worst forms of child labor per se under Article 3(a)–(c) of ILO C. 182.

São Tomé and Príncipe

MINIMAL ADVANCEMENT

In 2020, according to the Institute of Gender Equality and Equity, the number of cases of commercial sexual exploitation of children increased by 70 percent, due, in part, to economic consequences related to the COVID-19 pandemic. (2)

II. LEGAL FRAMEWORK FOR CHILD LABOR

São Tomé and Príncipe has ratified most key international conventions concerning child labor (Table 3).

Table 3. Ratification of International Conventions on Child Labor

Convention	Ratification
 ILO C. 138, Minimum Age	✓
ILO C. 182, Worst Forms of Child Labor	✓
 UN CRC	✓
UN CRC Optional Protocol on Armed Conflict
UN CRC Optional Protocol on the Sale of Children, Child Prostitution and Child Pornography
 Palermo Protocol on Trafficking in Persons	✓

The government has established laws and regulations related to child labor (Table 4). However, gaps exist in São Tomé and Príncipe's legal framework to adequately protect children from the worst forms of child labor, including the minimum age for work.

Table 4. Laws and Regulations on Child Labor

Standard	Meets International Standards	Age	Legislation
Minimum Age for Work	No	15	Articles 268(2) and 269 of the Labor Code (7)
Minimum Age for Hazardous Work	Yes	18	Articles 273(2), 274 and 536 of the Labor Code; Article 171 of the Civil Code (7,8)
Identification of Hazardous Occupations or Activities Prohibited for Children	Yes		Hazardous Work List in Annex IV of Labor Code (7)
Prohibition of Forced Labor	Yes		Articles 159, 160, and 181 of the Penal Code (9)
Prohibition of Child Trafficking	Yes		Articles 160 and 181 of the Penal Code (9)
Prohibition of Commercial Sexual Exploitation of Children	Yes		Articles 179–182 of the Penal Code (9)
Prohibition of Using Children in Illicit Activities	Yes		Articles 279, 280, and 289 of the Penal Code (9)
Minimum Age for Voluntary State Military Recruitment	Yes	17	Legislation title unknown (10)
Prohibition of Compulsory Recruitment of Children by (State) Military	Yes		Article 1 of Decree-Law 3/83 (11)
Prohibition of Military Recruitment by Non-state Armed Groups	No
Compulsory Education Age	Yes	15†	Articles 11 and 12 of the Basic Education System Law (12)
Free Public Education	Yes		Article 12 of the Basic Education System Law (12)

† Age calculated based on available information (12)

Although the Labor Code established age 15 as the minimum work age, the law permits children younger than age 14 to work under certain circumstances, which is not consistent with international labor standards. In addition, the Labor Code permits children age 14, who have completed their compulsory education, to perform light work that is not deemed harmful to their health or development; however, special legislation specifying the activities and conditions in which light work may be undertaken has yet to be adopted. (7)

The minimum age protections contained in the Legal Regime of Individual Employment Conditions do not apply to children working outside of a formal labor relationship, such as children who are self-employed. (13,14)

III. ENFORCEMENT OF LAWS ON CHILD LABOR

The government has established institutional mechanisms for the enforcement of laws and regulations on child labor (Table 5). However, gaps exist within the operations of enforcement agencies that may hinder adequate enforcement of their child labor laws.

Table 5. Agencies Responsible for Child Labor Law Enforcement

Organization/Agency	Role
Ministry of Labor and Social Affairs	Enforces labor laws, including child labor. (1)
Ministry of Justice and Human Rights	Enforces criminal laws against the worst forms of child labor. (1)

Labor Law Enforcement

In 2020, labor law enforcement agencies in São Tomé and Príncipe took actions to combat child labor (Table 6). However, gaps exist within the operations of the Ministry of Labor and Social Affairs that may hinder adequate labor law enforcement, including financial resource allocation.

Table 6. Labor Law Enforcement Efforts Related to Child Labor

Overview of Labor Law Enforcement	2019	2020
Labor Inspectorate Funding	$20,000 (15)	$25,000 (1)
Number of Labor Inspectors	3 (15)	4 (1)

Reports indicate that in 2020, there were a total of four labor inspectors and four assistants in the Ministry of Labor and Social Affairs. (1) Although inspections are permitted in all sectors, they are seldom conducted in the informal sector, in which instances of child labor are more prevalent, and are rarely conducted at worksites. Reports also indicate that the allotted budget for the labor inspectorate was insufficient to cover operating costs, including fuel and transportation. (1)

Children found working during inspections by labor inspectors are referred to the Directorate of Social Protection and Solidarity within the Ministry of Labor and Social Affairs. Currently, there are three official centers for child integration in the country, and each works in partnership with the government. (1)

Criminal Law Enforcement

Research did not find information on whether criminal law enforcement agencies in São Tomé and Príncipe took actions to combat child labor (Table 7).

Table 7. Criminal Law Enforcement Efforts Related to Child Labor

Overview of Criminal Law Enforcement	2019	2020
Initial Training for New Criminal Investigators	N/A (15)	No (1)
Training on New Laws Related to the Worst Forms of Child Labor	N/A (15)	N/A

Reciprocal Referral Mechanism Exists Between Criminal Authorities and Social Services	Yes (15)	Yes (1)

During the reporting year, investigators lacked resources, including transportation, fuel, and other necessities to carry out investigations. (1)

Children found by Ministry of Justice and Human Rights officials are referred to the Directorate of Social Protection and Solidarity in the Ministry of Labor and Social Affairs for integration and counseling services. (1)

IV. COORDINATION OF GOVERNMENT EFFORTS ON CHILD LABOR

The government has established mechanisms to coordinate its efforts to address child labor (Table 8). However, gaps exist that hinder the effective coordination of efforts to address child labor, including efficacy in accomplishing mandates.

Table 8. Key Mechanisms to Coordinate Government Efforts on Child Labor

Coordinating Body	Role & Description
Anti-Child Labor Committee	Leads efforts to eliminate the worst forms of child labor. (1) Led by the Ministry of Labor and Social Affairs. (17) Research was unable to determine whether activities were undertaken during the reporting period.
Directorate of Social Protection and Solidarity in the Ministry of Labor and Social Affairs	Provides counseling and integration services to children found during labor inspections and criminal investigations. (1) In 2020, the Department of Child Protection was created under the Directorate, and will lead a multi-sector team focused on combating child labor. (18)

V. GOVERNMENT POLICIES ON CHILD LABOR

The government has established policies related to child labor (Table 9). However, policy gaps exist that hinder efforts to address child labor, including covering all worst forms of child labor.

Table 9. Key Policies Related to Child Labor

Policy	Description
National Policy and Strategy for Social Protection (2014–2023)	Establishes social protection strategies aimed at protecting all Santomeans by eliminating extreme poverty over a 10 year timeframe, reinforcing the rights of children, and combating child labor. The policy does not specifically cover the worst forms of child labor present in São Tomé and Príncipe, including commercial sexual exploitation. (19)

VI. SOCIAL PROGRAMS TO ADDRESS CHILD LABOR

In 2020, the government funded and participated in programs that include the goal of eliminating or preventing child labor (Table 10). However, gaps exist in these social programs, including the adequacy of efforts to address the problem in all sectors.

Table 10. Key Social Programs to Address Child Labor

Program	Description
Support Centers†	Three government-funded centers run by NGOs, operating in areas with high concentrations of poor families, orphans, and street children. Provide household stipends to keep children in school, and teach income-generating skills. (21) Active in 2020. (1)
Disadvantaged Mothers Program ( Mães Carenciadas )†	Government program that provides family stipends, school materials, and uniforms on an as-needed basis. The support is distributed by social workers. (22) Active in 2020. (23)
World Bank-Funded Projects	Includes a $10 million 4 year Family Program, which focuses on implementing education policies and provides cash stipends of $55 that are distributed twice a month to the poorest families; and a $15 million 4 year Girls Empowerment and Quality Education for All Project,* which was launched in 2020, aimed at providing safe learning spaces, improving school infrastructure, working with families and communities to empower girls with relevant life skills, and increasing school readiness for both boys and girls by boosting education, particularly within the areas of literacy and numeracy. (1,15,24) In 2020, due to the pandemic, the number of beneficiaries from the Family Program increased from 2,624 to 16,000, including parents of children who work as street merchants. (1,24)
Decent Work Country Program (2018–2021)†	Government program in collaboration with ILO that aims to eliminate the worst forms of child labor through legislative action and strategic programs. (25,26) Research was unable to determine whether activities were undertaken to implement the Decent Work Country Program during the reporting period.

* Program was launched during the reporting period.

† Program is funded by the Government of São Tomé and Príncipe.

Although São Tomé and Príncipe has programs that target child labor, the scope of these programs is insufficient to fully address the problem, especially in agriculture.

VII. SUGGESTED GOVERNMENT ACTIONS TO ELIMINATE CHILD LABOR

Based on the reporting above, suggested actions are identified that would advance the elimination of child labor in São Tomé and Príncipe (Table 11).

Table 11. Suggested Government Actions to Eliminate Child Labor

Area	Suggested Action	Year(s) Suggested
Legal Framework	Accede to the UN CRC Optional Protocol on the Sale of Children, Child Prostitution and Child Pornography.	2014 – 2020
	Ensure that the law criminally prohibits the recruitment of children under age 18 by non-state armed groups.	2016 – 2020
	Ensure that the minimum age for work of age 15 applies to all children.	2018 – 2020
	Adopt legislation defining the activities and conditions permissible for light work.	2018 – 2020
	Ensure that all children are protected by law, including children who are self-employed.	2015 – 2020
Enforcement	Strengthen the labor inspectorate by initiating targeted inspections based on analysis of data related to risk-prone sectors and patterns of serious incidents.	2017 – 2020
	Provide inspectors and investigators with appropriate training, and equip labor inspectors and criminal investigators with the necessary resources to conduct inspections, including fuel and transportation.	2009 – 2020
Coordination	Ensure the Anti-Child Labor Committee is able to carry out its intended mandate.	2020
Government Policies	Adopt policies to address the worst forms of child labor, including the commercial sexual exploitation of children.	2020
Social Programs	Implement programs that specifically target child labor in agriculture.	2010 – 2020
	Publish activities undertaken to implement the Decent Work Country Program during the reporting period.	2020

In 2020, Senegal made moderate advancement in efforts to eliminate the worst forms of child labor. A government initiative to address the COVID-19 pandemic through the "Zero Children" program removed 5,130 children from the streets, many of whom were victims of forced begging. The National Task Force Against Trafficking in Persons also finalized its National Action Plan for 2021–2023. In addition, the government created a new coordination mechanism that includes a National Unit for Coordination, Monitoring, and Follow Up of Emergency Protection of Children Against COVID-19. However, children in Senegal are subjected to the worst forms of child labor, including in forced begging, sometimes as a result of human trafficking. Children also perform dangerous tasks in gold mining. Hazardous work prohibitions do not include domestic work or street work, areas in which there is evidence of potential harm to child workers, and labor and criminal law enforcement agencies lack resources to adequately enforce child labor law. In addition, an overlap of mandated activities among mechanisms to coordinate efforts to address child labor creates confusion and obstructs effective collaboration.

I. PREVALENCE AND SECTORAL DISTRIBUTION OF CHILD LABOR

Children in Senegal are subjected to the worst forms of child labor, including in forced begging, sometimes as a result of human trafficking. Children also perform dangerous tasks in gold mining. (1-5) Table I provides key indicators on children's work and education in Senegal. Data on some of these indicators are not available from the sources used in this report.

Table I. Statistics on Children's Work and Education

Children	Age	Percent
Working (% and population)	5 to 14	22.3 (Unavailable)
Attending School (%)	5 to 14	53.0
Combining Work and School (%)	7 to 14	13.9
Primary Completion Rate (%)		61.2

Based on a review of available information, Table 2 provides an overview of children's work by sector and activity.

Table 2. Overview of Children's Work by Sector and Activity

Sector/Industry	Activity
Agriculture	Herding cattle (8)
	Fishing, activities unknown (2,9)
	Farming, including the production of cotton, rice, peanuts, and mangoes (2,9)
Industry	Washing ore, crushing rocks, using mercury, and carrying heavy loads† while mining gold, iron, and salt, and quarrying rock (4,8)
	Welding and auto repair (9,10)
Services	Domestic work (1,2,5)
	Street work, including vending (1,2,9,5,11)
Categorical Worst Forms of Child Labor‡	Forced domestic work, gold mining, fishing, and farming, each sometimes as a result of human trafficking (1,12,4)
	Commercial sexual exploitation, sometimes as a result of human trafficking (10,13)
	Forced begging, sometimes as a result of human trafficking (1,2,9,5,14-18)

MODERATE ADVANCEMENT

Children in Senegal are exploited in domestic servitude and forced labor in gold mines, and are victims of trafficking for commercial sexual exploitation, particularly within the country. (1,9,14,19) Forced begging remains a significant problem in Senegal. It is a traditional practice to send boys to Koranic schools called daaras, at which students known as talibés receive a Koranic education from teachers known as marabouts; however, some daaras have corrupted the traditional practices, forcing many students to beg. (1-3,5,19-21) Corrupt marabouts take the talibés' earnings and beat those who fail to meet the daily quota. (2,9,20) Research found that this practice enriches marabouts, bringing in over $10 million annually in Dakar alone. (22,23) Talibés at such institutions often live in overcrowded, unsanitary conditions, receive inadequate food and medical care, and are vulnerable to physical and sexual abuse. (2,13,20) Children from rural areas in Senegal and neighboring countries are particularly vulnerable to this practice and are sometimes victims of human trafficking. (9,20,21,24)

Barriers to education exist that force some students to quit school, including school-related fees, a lack of birth registration documents, and shortages of both teachers and rural schools. Some girls reportedly quit school due to sexual harassment, including by teachers. (9,10,25,26)

II. LEGAL FRAMEWORK FOR CHILD LABOR

Senegal has ratified all key international conventions concerning child labor (Table 3).

Table 3. Ratification of International Conventions on Child Labor

Convention	Ratification
 ILO C. 138, Minimum Age	✓
ILO C. 182, Worst Forms of Child Labor	✓
 UN CRC	✓
UN CRC Optional Protocol on Armed Conflict	✓
UN CRC Optional Protocol on the Sale of Children, Child Prostitution and Child Pornography	✓
 Palermo Protocol on Trafficking in Persons	✓

The government has established laws and regulations related to child labor (Table 4). However, gaps exist in Senegal's legal framework to adequately protect children from the worst forms of child labor, including the prohibition of military recruitment by non-state armed groups.

Table 4. Laws and Regulations on Child Labor

Standard	Meets International Standards	Age	Legislation
Minimum Age for Work	Yes	15	Article L. 145 of the Labor Code; Article 6 of the Decree Establishing the Scale of Penalties for Violations of the Labor Code and Associated Rules for Application (27,28)
Minimum Age for Hazardous Work	Yes	18	Articles 1, 2, and 3 of the Ministerial Order No. 3749 Determining and Prohibiting the Worst Forms of Child Labor; Article 1 of the Ministerial Order No. 3750 Determining the Types of Hazardous Work Prohibited for Children and Youth; Articles 1, 2, and 3 of the Ministerial Order No. 3751 Determining the Categories of Business and Work Prohibited to Children and Youth (29-31)
Identification of Hazardous Occupations or Activities Prohibited for Children	Yes		Article 2 of the Ministerial Order No. 3749 Determining and Prohibiting the Worst Forms of Child Labor; Ministerial Order No. 3750 Determining the Types of Hazardous Work Prohibited to Children and Youth; Article 2 of the Ministerial Order No. 3751 Determining the Categories of Business and Work Prohibited to Children and Youth (29-31)

Standard	Meets International Standards	Age	Legislation
Prohibition of Forced Labor	Yes		Articles L. 4 and L. 279 of the Labor Code; Articles 2 and 4 of the Ministerial Order No. 3749 Determining and Prohibiting the Worst Forms of Child Labor; Article 1 of the Law Concerning the Fight Against Trafficking in Persons and Similar Practices and the Protection of Victims (27,31,32)
Prohibition of Child Trafficking	Yes		Article 1 of the Law Concerning the Fight Against Trafficking in Persons and Similar Practices and the Protection of Victims (32)
Prohibition of Commercial Sexual Exploitation of Children	Yes		Article 2 of the Ministerial Order No. 3749 Determining and Prohibiting the Worst Forms of Child Labor; Articles 323 and 324 of the Penal Code (31,33)
Prohibition of Using Children in Illicit Activities	No		Article 2 of the Ministerial Order No. 3749 Determining and Prohibiting the Worst Forms of Child Labor (31)
Minimum Age for Voluntary State Military Recruitment	Yes	18	Article 19 of Law No. 2008-28 (34)
Prohibition of Compulsory Recruitment of Children by (State) Military	N/A*
Prohibition of Military Recruitment by Non-state Armed Groups	No
Compulsory Education Age	Yes	16	Article 3 of Law No. 2004-37 (35)
Free Public Education	Yes		Article 3 of Law No. 2004-37; Articles 21–22 of the Constitution (35,36)

On January 2, 2019, the Ministerial Council endorsed draft legislation amending the Labor Code pertaining to the minimum age for admission to employment. The proposal would raise the minimum age for "light work" from age 12 to 13 and raise the basic minimum age for work from age 15 to 16. (9) It would also do away with certain exemptions that allow youth as young as age 16 to work in hazardous occupations. These proposed amendments have not yet come into force. (9) The government also drafted a revised law on human trafficking that aims to widen the law's use by prosecutors because it has seldom been applied in the past. (9)

In September 2018, as part of the draft law comment period, the government finalized and publicized a draft of the revamped Child Code, but it was still pending final approval at the end of the reporting period. (2,9,37) While the 2005 anti-trafficking law criminalizes forced begging, provisions in the Penal Code that allow the seeking of alms under certain conditions may have hampered the ability of law enforcement officials to distinguish between traditional alms-seeking and exploitation through forced begging. (21,31,38) Furthermore, the types of hazardous work prohibited for children do not include domestic work or street work, areas in which there is evidence of potential harm to child workers. (8,29-31) The light work provisions are not specific enough to prevent children from involvement in child labor because they do not limit the number of hours per week for light work, determine the activities in which light work may be permitted, or specify the conditions under which light work may be undertaken. The light work framework also does not meet international standards as it applies to children under the age of 13. (27,28) Because the minimum age for work is lower than the compulsory education age, children may be encouraged to leave school before the completion of compulsory education. (27,28,35)

III. ENFORCEMENT OF LAWS ON CHILD LABOR

The government has established institutional mechanisms for the enforcement of laws and regulations on child labor (Table 5). However, gaps exist within the operations of enforcement agencies that may hinder adequate enforcement of their child labor laws.

Senegal

MODERATE ADVANCEMENT

Table 5. Agencies Responsible for Child Labor Law Enforcement

Organization/Agency	Role
Ministry of Labor, Social Dialogue, Professional Organizations, and Institutional Relations (MOL)	Enforces child labor laws through the Directorate General of Labor and Social Security and by using social security inspectors. (26)
Ministry of Women, Family, Gender, and Child Protection (MWFGCP)	Contributes to the creation and implementation of child protection policies and provides services to victims of exploitative child labor. Operates the Ginddi Center for vulnerable children and a toll-free child protection hotline through which the public can report child labor abuses. (14,15,21) In 2020, created a new program (Emergency Protection Project for Children in Street Situations) to address child victim identification during the pandemic, an undertaking that includes identification and tracking processes to follow the children and their whereabouts long term with the assistance of local community women's organizations. (9) Also created a new coordination mechanism that includes a National Unit for Coordination, Monitoring, and Follow Up of Emergency Protection of Children Against COVID-19 during the pandemic, established at the national level. (9)
Ministry of Justice (MOJ)	Prosecutes violations of child labor laws. (39) Through its Department of Correctional Education and Social Protection, helps develop draft texts in the field of social protection and juvenile delinquency; strengthens the capacity of stakeholders to care for children; and shares responsibility with MWFGCP to provide services to vulnerable children. (15,40) Does not train the gendarmerie or the police to identify child labor violations, nor are they required or expected to report such violations to MOL. (9)
Ministry of the Interior and Public Security	Oversees all law enforcement agencies, including police officials who investigate cases of human trafficking and forced child begging, and arrests perpetrators of the worst forms of child labor. (39,41,42) Houses the Children's Unit, located in Dakar, which employs three officers who specialize in child protection, victim identification, and reintegration. (15,41) Through its Children's Unit, receives assistance from the Vice Squad in child protection cases. (43) Through its Air and Border Police ( Police de l'air et des frontières ), focuses on migrant smuggling and transnational crimes. (44)

Labor Law Enforcement

In 2020, labor law enforcement agencies in Senegal took actions to combat child labor (Table 6). However, gaps exist within the operations of enforcement agencies that may hinder adequate enforcement of their child labor laws, including an insufficient number of inspectors.

Table 6. Labor Law Enforcement Efforts Related to Child Labor

Overview of Labor Law Enforcement	2019	2020
Labor Inspectorate Funding	$203,100 (2)	Unknown (9)
Number of Labor Inspectors	68 (2)	68 (9)
Inspectorate Authorized to Assess Penalties	Yes (2)	Yes (27)
Initial Training for New Labor Inspectors	Yes (2)	Yes (9)
Training on New Laws Related to Child Labor	N/A (2)	N/A (9)
Refresher Courses Provided	Yes (2)	Yes (9)
Number of Labor Inspections Conducted	Unknown (2)	Unknown (9)
Number Conducted at Worksite	Unknown (2)	Unknown (9)
Number of Child Labor Violations Found	0 (2)	0 (9)
Number of Child Labor Violations for Which Penalties Were Imposed	0 (2)	N/A (9)
Number of Child Labor Penalties Imposed that Were Collected	0 (2)	N/A (9)
Routine Inspections Conducted	Yes (2)	Yes (9)
Routine Inspections Targeted	Yes (2)	Yes (9)
Unannounced Inspections Permitted	Yes (2)	Yes (27)
Unannounced Inspections Conducted	Yes (2)	Yes (9)
Complaint Mechanism Exists	No (2)	No (9)
Reciprocal Referral Mechanism Exists Between Labor Authorities and Social Services	Yes (2)	Yes (9)

The number of labor inspectors is likely insufficient for the size of Senegal's workforce, which includes over 6 million workers. According to the ILO's technical advice of a ratio approaching 1 inspector for every 40,000 workers in less developed economies, Senegal would employ about 175 labor inspectors. (45,46) Research indicates that the labor inspectorate has assigned only one inspector and one controller to child labor cases.

Despite many anecdotal reports of child labor, the Ministry of Labor, Social Dialogue, Professional Organizations, and Institutional Relations (MOL) did not formally report any cases of child labor during the reporting period. (9)

Anecdotal reports indicate that there is a lack of child labor law enforcement in the informal sector, in which most children are employed. This is especially true of the gold-mining sector, the lion's share of whose activities take place in the southeast of the country in the Kédougou region, far from the capital. (2, 14, 21, 47) Article L. 241 of the Labor Code grants inspectors the authority to assess penalties for all offenses; however, they typically do so only in the case of minor infractions, referring more serious violations to the courts. (27, 39) Courts may require violations to be resolved through conciliation at the labor inspectorate or refer cases to a tribunal for judgment. (39) The government did not provide information on its labor law enforcement funding, the number of labor inspections conducted, or the number of inspections conducted at worksites for inclusion in this report. (9)

Criminal Law Enforcement

In 2020, criminal law enforcement agencies in Senegal took actions to combat child labor (Table 7). However, gaps exist within the operations of the criminal law enforcement agencies that may hinder adequate criminal law enforcement, including insufficient training for criminal investigators.

Table 7. Criminal Law Enforcement Efforts Related to Child Labor

Overview of Criminal Law Enforcement	2019	2020
Initial Training for New Criminal Investigators	Yes (2)	Yes (9)
Training on New Laws Related to the Worst Forms of Child Labor	N/A (2)	N/A (9)
Refresher Courses Provided	Yes (2)	Yes (9)
Number of Investigations	9 (2)	Unknown (9)
Number of Violations Found	7 (2)	Unknown (9)
Number of Prosecutions Initiated	7 (2)	3 (9)
Number of Convictions	2 (48)	3 (9)
Imposed Penalties for Violations Related to the Worst Forms of Child Labor	Yes (2)	Unknown (9)
Reciprocal Referral Mechanism Exists Between Criminal Authorities and Social Services	Yes (2)	Yes (9)

The government did not provide information on its criminal law enforcement efforts, including the number of investigations, the number of violations found, or the number of imposed penalties for violations related to the worst forms of child labor for inclusion in this report.

The authorities have had limited success in prosecuting cases related to forced begging due to a lack of governmental coordination, resource constraints, and lack of political support, particularly in rural areas. (14, 47, 49) Although police stations in Senegal are expected to report cases involving children to the Ministry of the Interior and Public Security's Children's Unit, research found no evidence that this occurs regularly. (50) Research indicates that training for criminal investigators was cursory and not sufficient to fully enforce existing laws protecting children against labor abuses. (2)

IV. COORDINATION OF GOVERNMENT EFFORTS ON CHILD LABOR

The government has established mechanisms to coordinate its efforts to address child labor (Table 8). However, gaps exist that hinder the effective coordination of efforts to address child labor, including overlap of institutional mandates.

MODERATE ADVANCEMENT

Table 8. Key Mechanisms to Coordinate Government Efforts on Child Labor

Coordinating Body	Role & Description
National Committee Against Child Labor	Coordinates initiatives, policies, and partnerships with civil society organizations to address child labor. Chaired by MOL and includes representatives from three ministries, the police, and elected officials. (47) Did not meet in 2020, and has not been operational since 2012. (9)
National Task Force Against Trafficking in Persons (CNLTP)	Reports on human trafficking in Senegal, with a focus on women and children; coordinates the implementation of the National Action Plan to Combat Trafficking in Human Beings and other efforts to prevent human trafficking; prosecutes perpetrators; and protects victims. (14,47,51) Chaired by MOJ and employs five staff members. (41,47,51) During the reporting period, finalized its National Action Plan for 2021–2023. Was allocated $113,422 (60 million FCFA) in 2020 by the government compared with $30,246 (16 million FCFA) in 2019. (9,52)
Childhood Protection Unit (CAPE)	Coordinates government efforts related to child protection, including through the implementation of the National Strategy on Child Protection. (43,44,47,53,54) Contributes to the creation and implementation of child protection policies, and develops a national system for collecting and disseminating data on vulnerable children. Advocates on behalf of all entities working on issues related to child begging, violence against children, and child labor. (55) Research was unable to determine whether CAPE was active during the reporting period. (9) In April 2021, CAPE sponsored a workshop for various stakeholders on child digital literacy and protecting children against sexual exploitation online, especially during periods of school inactivity due to the COVID-19 pandemic. (52)
Trafficking in Persons Database (Systraite)	In October 2019, the Government of Senegal officially launched the country's first national trafficking in persons database, Système de suivi de la traite , or "Systraite." In 2020, piloted databases in five regions: Dakar, Saint Louis, Thies, Kedougou, and Tambacounda. (1,56,57) Launched in partnership with IOM and with funding from USDOS, they collected data on human trafficking victims, convictions, and perpetrators. (58) During the reporting period, judicial actors were trained on the Systraite system. Intended expansion of this program was delayed due to the pandemic-related issues. (3)
Daara Mapping	Used to identify where forced child begging occurs in Senegal. (12) In collaboration with local communities, USAID, foreign NGOs, UNODC, and the CNLTP, daara mapping has been taking place since 2014. (1,12) Research was unable to determine whether any daara mapping activities took place during the reporting period.

The government significantly increased funding to the National Task Force Against Trafficking in Persons (CNLTP) in 2020. However, overlap among the activities of the coordinating bodies due to duplicative institutional mandates creates confusion and obstructs effective collaboration and implementation of efforts. (14,19,47)

V. GOVERNMENT POLICIES ON CHILD LABOR

The government has established policies related to child labor (Table 9). However, policy gaps exist that hinder efforts to address child labor, including lack of a national policy to address child labor, including its worst forms.

Table 9. Key Policies Related to Child Labor

Policy	Description
National Action Plan to Combat Trafficking in Human Beings (2018–2020)	Implemented by CNLTP, serves as a continuation of the preceding action plan and consists of four axes: prevention, protection and prosecution, capacity building, and research and evaluation. (14,47) During the reporting period, continued the 2018–2020 National Action Plan, with wide participation by both public and non-public entities. Continued to utilize international donors as the primary mechanism to provide training. (1)
National Strategy on Child Protection	Aims to establish an integrated national social protection system and specifically identifies the issue of child begging through an action plan with a recommended budget of $18 million. (15) Implemented through Child Protection Committees, currently established in 24 prefectures, which refer victims to social services and assist law enforcement with reintegrating child trafficking victims. (15,41) Research was unable to determine whether there were activities related to this policy during the reporting period.

‡ The government had other policies that may have addressed child labor issues or had an impact on child labor. (41)

Research was unable to determine whether any actions were undertaken in 2020 to renew the National Action Plan on the Prevention and Abolition of Child Labor in Senegal, which expired in 2016.

VI. SOCIAL PROGRAMS TO ADDRESS CHILD LABOR

In 2020, the government funded and participated in programs that include the goal of eliminating or preventing child labor (Table 10). However, gaps exist in these social programs, including adequacy of programs to address the full scope of the problem.

Table 10. Key Social Programs to Address Child Labor

Program	Description
Removal of Street Children (Retrait des enfants de la Rue)†	Funded and overseen by the government, removes children who are begging from the streets of Dakar and place them in government-run shelters or return them to their homes. (1,21,53,59) Provided $715,000 in funding to MWFGCP to create a component to address the pandemic through the "Zero Children" program, which provided 500 daaras with 72,091 hygiene kits for students. This new component also removed 5,130 children from the streets, many of whom were victims of forced child begging. (9)
Daara Modernization Program†	$18.5 million government-funded voluntary program implemented by Tostan and La Rencontre Africaine pour la Défense des Droits d'Homme that aims to regulate, inspect, and fund daaras and to eliminate forced begging. (49) During the reporting period, the government closed down numerous unsafe or unsanitary daaras . (9)
Ginddi Center†	Serves abused and vulnerable children, including runaway talibés , street children, and child trafficking victims. (15,26,47,49) Provides food, education, vocational training, family mediation, medical care, and psychological care in its shelter. (47,60) Supports a toll-free 24/7 hotline which receives reports of child trafficking cases from anonymous sources. During the reporting period, continued to support victims of child trafficking, including by housing them, and continued to operate its toll-free hotline. (3)
Centers to address child trafficking†	Provides monitoring, education, and rehabilitation and reintegration services for victims of child trafficking through MOJ-run transit houses in Dakar, Pikine, and Saint-Louis. (41) During the reporting period, the government continued to provide food and shelter through this program. (3)

‡ The government had other social programs that may have included the goal of eliminating or preventing child labor. (61-63)

Although the Government of Senegal has implemented programs to address child trafficking and forced begging, research found no evidence that the government has carried out programs to assist children involved in domestic work, agriculture, or mining. (9) The Ginddi Center's child protection hotline was operational during the reporting period, but research was unable to determine how many children it served. In 2020, the Ginddi Center was reportedly overcrowded. (1)

VII. SUGGESTED GOVERNMENT ACTIONS TO ELIMINATE CHILD LABOR

Based on the reporting above, suggested actions are identified that would advance the elimination of child labor in Senegal (Table 11).

Table 11. Suggested Government Actions to Eliminate Child Labor

Area	Suggested Action	Year(s) Suggested
Legal Framework	Ensure that the law governing hazardous work prohibitions for children is comprehensive.	2016 – 2020
	Ensure that the law criminally prohibits the recruitment of children under age 18 by non-state armed groups.	2016 – 2020
	Clarify the forced begging provisions in the Penal Code and the Law Concerning the Fight Against Trafficking in Persons to explicitly prohibit forced begging, including alms-seeking, under any circumstances.	2017 – 2020
	Ensure that the law's light work provisions are specific enough to prevent children's involvement in child labor.	2017 – 2020
	Raise the minimum age for work to the age up to that which education is compulsory.	2018 – 2020
	Raise the minimum age for light work to age 13.	2019 – 2020
Enforcement	Publish all relevant information on labor inspectorate funding and on the number of inspections conducted, including those conducted at worksites.	2013 – 2020
	Increase the number of labor inspectors to meet the ILO's technical advice, provide adequate labor inspectorate funding, and ensure that cases of child labor are formally reported.	2010 – 2020
	Ensure that labor inspections and enforcement are carried out in the informal sector.	2014 – 2020
	Ensure that all violations are assessed a penalty, particularly in the most serious cases.	2019 – 2020
	Establish a mechanism to receive child labor complaints, and track cases of child labor for referral to law enforcement or social service providers.	2014 – 2020
	Track and publish Ginddi Center hotline call data to determine number of children served during the reporting period.	2019 – 2020
	Ensure that the gendarmerie and police are trained to identify and report child labor violations.	2020

MODERATE ADVANCEMENT

Area	Suggested Action	Year(s) Suggested
Enforcement	Ensure that training for criminal investigators adequately addresses issues related to the worst forms of child labor in Senegal.	2019 – 2020
	Publish criminal law enforcement data on the number of investigations, violations found, and imposed penalties on the worst forms of child labor.	2020
	Ensure that courts have sufficient resources and coordination to be able to successfully prosecute cases.	2019 – 2020
Coordination	Ensure that coordinating mechanisms on child labor are active and able to carry out their intended mandates by providing them with adequate resources, support, and mutually exclusive scopes of responsibility.	2010 – 2020
Government Policies	Ensure that policies are fully funded and implemented, and report on their activities.	2020
	Adopt a national policy to address child labor.	2016 – 2020
Social Programs	Collect and publish data on the extent and nature of child labor to better inform policies and programs.	2019 – 2020
	Ensure that all children have access to education by eliminating school-related fees, building schools in rural areas, training additional teachers, providing all children with access to birth registration, and protecting children in schools from sexual abuse.	2011 – 2020
	Institute programs to address child labor in domestic work, agriculture, and mining, and ensure that adequate funding is available to support existing programs targeting the worst forms of child labor, including forced begging.	2010 – 2020

In 2020, Serbia made moderate advancement in efforts to eliminate the worst forms of child labor. During the reporting period, the government increased the budget of the Labor Inspectorate and implemented online trainings for labor inspectors. Additionally, the government adopted a Strategy for Prevention and Protection of Children from Violence (2020–2023) and created a Ministry of Family Welfare and Demography, which will allow children's issues to be addressed by a single ministry rather than being split among multiple government ministries. However, children in Serbia remain subjected to the worst forms of child labor, including in forced begging and commercial sexual exploitation, each sometimes as a result of human trafficking. Children also engage in dangerous tasks in street work. Serbia's laws do not treat forced child beggars as victims of child labor, and the country's social welfare centers are overburdened, which limits efforts to provide services to victims of child labor.

I. PREVALENCE AND SECTORAL DISTRIBUTION OF CHILD LABOR

Children in Serbia are subjected to the worst forms of child labor, including in forced begging and commercial sexual exploitation, each sometimes as a result of human trafficking. Children also engage in dangerous tasks in street work. (4,5) Table 1 provides key indicators on children's work and education in Serbia. Data on some of these indicators are not available from the sources used in this report.

Table 1. Statistics on Children's Work and Education

Children	Age	Percent
Working (% and population)	5 to 14	18.8 (Unavailable)
Attending School (%)	5 to 14	97.6
Combining Work and School (%)	7 to 14	20.6
Primary Completion Rate (%)		98.7

Source for primary completion rate: Data from 2019, published by UNESCO Institute for Statistics, 2020. (6)

Source for all other data: International Labor Organization's analysis of statistics from Multiple Indicator Cluster Survey 6 (MICS 6), 2019. (7)

Based on a review of available information, Table 2 provides an overview of children's work by sector and activity.

MODERATE ADVANCEMENT

Children from Serbia, particularly those from Roma communities, are victims of domestic human trafficking to engage in the worst forms of child labor, including commercial sexual exploitation. (4,9,13,14) Girls, Roma children, and children from low-income families in rural communities are most vulnerable to child labor, including trafficking in persons. (1,18)

Undocumented migrants are at a significantly higher risk of human trafficking for the purposes of labor or sexual exploitation. (4) In 2020, UNHCR encountered 25,506 migrants and asylum seekers arriving in Serbia, 1,747 of whom were unaccompanied minors or children traveling with an adult who is not their parent. (19,20) Asylum seekers and grantees are allowed to access free primary and secondary education in Serbia. (1,21) In addition, Serbia has social programs to assist migrant children with access to education. (21-24)

Some Roma, Ashkali, and Balkan Egyptian children in Serbia experience challenges in obtaining birth registration, which may make school enrollment difficult and increases their vulnerability to engage in child labor. (9,25-30) The government has a program to increase the attendance of Roma children in preschool, and the law allows children to enroll in school without identity documents. However, economic hardship, ethnic discrimination, language barriers, disabilities, and placement in non-mainstream schools sometimes discourage Roma children, especially girls, from attending school. (16,25,27-29,31,32) In addition, Roma children are more likely to begin school at a later age and drop out of school more frequently than their non-Roma peers. (9,26)

Constitutional and legal protections prohibit discrimination against individuals with disabilities in the education system. (25,33,34) However, some individuals with disabilities, especially Roma children, face difficulties in accessing education due to a lack of clear, specified legal regulations and some lingering social prejudices. (25,29,30,35,36)

II. LEGAL FRAMEWORK FOR CHILD LABOR

Serbia has ratified all key international conventions concerning child labor (Table 3).

Table 3. Ratification of International Conventions on Child Labor

Convention	Ratification
 ILO C. 138, Minimum Age	✓
 ILO C. 182, Worst Forms of Child Labor	✓
 UN CRC	✓
 UN CRC Optional Protocol on Armed Conflict	✓
 UN CRC Optional Protocol on the Sale of Children, Child Prostitution and Child Pornography	✓
 Palermo Protocol on Trafficking in Persons	✓

The government's laws and regulations are in line with relevant international standards (Table 4).

Table 4. Laws and Regulations on Child Labor

Standard	Meets International Standards	Age	Legislation
Minimum Age for Work	Yes	15	Article 24 of the Labor Law; Article 66 of the Constitution (33,37)
Minimum Age for Hazardous Work	Yes	18	Article 25 of the Labor Law; Article 66 of the Constitution (33,37)
Identification of Hazardous Occupations or Activities Prohibited for Children	Yes		Articles 25, 84, and 87–88 of the Labor Law; Regulation on Hazardous Labor of Children (37,38)

Standard	Meets International Standards	Age	Legislation
Prohibition of Forced Labor	Yes		Article 390 of the Criminal Code; Article 26 of the Constitution (33,39)
Prohibition of Child Trafficking	Yes		Article 388 of the Criminal Code; Article 26 of the Constitution (33,39)
Prohibition of Commercial Sexual Exploitation of Children	No		Articles 112 and 183–185 of the Criminal Code (39)
Prohibition of Using Children in Illicit Activities	No		Article 388 of the Criminal Code (39)
Minimum Age for Voluntary State Military Recruitment	Yes	18	Article 39 of the Law on the Army (40)
Prohibition of Compulsory Recruitment of Children by (State) Military	N/A*		Article 4 of the Law on Military, Labor, and Material Obligation (41)
Prohibition of Military Recruitment by Non-state Armed Groups	Yes		Article 4 of the Law on the Ratification of the Optional Protocol Involvement of Children in Armed Conflict (42)
Compulsory Education Age	Yes	15‡	Article 71 of the Constitution; Articles 94 and 98 of the Law on the Foundations of the Education System (33,43)
Free Public Education	Yes		Article 71 of the Constitution; Article 91 of the Law on the Foundations of the Education System (33,43)

* No conscription (41)

‡ Age calculated based on available information (33,42)

Serbia's law does not treat child beggars as victims, but rather as perpetrators and offenders. (5,44) In addition, Serbian law does not criminally prohibit use of a child in illicit activities except when it results from human trafficking. (39) Serbia's law does not sufficiently prohibit commercial sexual exploitation, as the use of children in prostitution is not explicitly prohibited. Additionally, the Serbian Criminal Code's provisions concerning pimping, procuring and mediation in prostitution only refer to "minors," defined as "a person over fourteen years of age but who has not attained eighteen years of age." (39)

III. ENFORCEMENT OF LAWS ON CHILD LABOR

The government has established institutional mechanisms for the enforcement of laws and regulations on child labor (Table 5). However, gaps exist within the operations of enforcement agencies that may hinder adequate enforcement of their child labor laws.

Table 5. Agencies Responsible for Child Labor Law Enforcement

Organization/Agency	Role
Ministry of Labor, Employment, Veteran, and Social Affairs (MOLEVSA)	Through the Labor Inspectorate, inspects businesses, including unregistered businesses. Per mandate established by the Special Protocol of Labor Inspection for Protecting Children Against Child Labor, receives and investigates child labor complaints and informs Centers for Social Work of child labor violations. (5,9) Has internal sub-units that focus on the protection of children with disabilities and children working on the street. (5) Through the Center for Human Trafficking Victims' Protection (CPTV), MOLEVSA identifies victims of child trafficking and those at risk, conducts needs assessments, contributes to trafficking research projects, and refers victims to social services. (17) CPTV is divided into two parts: the Agency for Coordination of Protection of Trafficking Victims and the new Urgent Reception Center, which temporarily closed in September 2020. (13,15,25) In addition, CPTV works with state institutions, international organizations, and NGOs on human trafficking prevention and protection efforts and activities. (25) In 2020, CPTV identified 42 victims of human trafficking, including 21 minors. (5)
Ministry of the Interior (MOI)	Oversees the General Police Directorate and enforces laws prohibiting commercial sexual exploitation and human trafficking through the Criminal Police Department. (14,17) Informs the Centers for Social Work of any child labor violations found. (5,15)

MODERATE ADVANCEMENT

Organization/Agency	Role
Republic Public Prosecutor's Office	Leads investigations on human trafficking cases and exchanges information through a network of 27 local prosecutors and NGOs. Provides financial support to CPTV. (5)
Parliamentary Committee on Children	Reviews draft legislation and monitors the implementation of laws pertinent to children's rights. (5)
Deputy Ombudsman for Children's Rights, Office of the Protector of Citizens	Monitors and conducts research on the situation of children's rights in Serbia. Produces reports on child begging, promotes inclusive education and legal prohibition of corporal punishment, and manages draft laws on children's rights for parliamentary approval. (5)

Social Welfare Centers (SWCs) provide social services, track the number of street children, and receive labor violations from the Ministry of Labor, Employment, Veteran, and Social Affairs (MOLEVSA) and the Ministry of the Interior. According to MOLEVSA, the SWCs are significantly overburdened. (5,9)

Labor Law Enforcement

In 2020, labor law enforcement agencies in Serbia took actions to combat child labor (Table 6). However, gaps exist within the operations of MOLEVSA that may hinder adequate labor law enforcement, including labor inspector training.

Table 6. Labor Law Enforcement Efforts Related to Child Labor

Overview of Labor Law Enforcement	2019	2020
Labor Inspectorate Funding	$3,453,170 (5)	$3,910,898 (16)

Unannounced Inspections Permitted	Yes (5)	Yes (37)
Unannounced Inspections Conducted	Yes (5)	Yes (16)
Complaint Mechanism Exists	Yes (5)	Yes (16)
Reciprocal Referral Mechanism Exists Between Labor Authorities and Social Services	Yes (5)	Yes (16)

Labor inspectors are responsible for inspecting registered and unregistered businesses, including businesses in the agricultural sector. (9) The Labor Inspectorate uses a work plan for inspections that is drafted at the beginning of each year and targets high-risk sectors in which child labor is known to occur, such as agriculture and construction. (9,46) In addition, the Special Protocol of Labor Inspection for Protecting Children Against Child Labor requires labor inspectors to use a checklist to identify child labor during inspections and mandates that police and labor inspectors inform SWCs in cases of child labor. (9,10,47)

In 2020, the Labor Inspectorate identified 20 child labor violations, 1 of which involved an individual under age 15. (16)

The Labor Inspectorate has designated experts on child labor at each of its branches to provide training to other inspectors. (16) However, new labor inspectors do not receive formal training but are trained instead on-the-job by working alongside seasoned inspectors. According to the ILO, this informal training may be inadequate without also including formal training. (5)

During the reporting period, the government implemented the 2020 budget which included authorization to hire 40 new inspectors. (16)

Criminal Law Enforcement

In 2020, criminal law enforcement agencies in Serbia took actions to combat child labor (Table 7). However, gaps exist within the operations of the criminal enforcement agencies that may hinder adequate criminal law enforcement, including financial resource allocation.

Table 7. Criminal Law Enforcement Efforts Related to Child Labor

Overview of Criminal Law Enforcement	2019	2020
Initial Training for New Criminal Investigators	Unknown	No (16)
Training on New Laws Related to the Worst Forms of Child Labor	No (5)	No (16)
Refresher Courses Provided	No (5)	No (16)
Number of Investigations	30 (45)	27 (20)
Number of Violations Found	26 (45)	22 (20)
Number of Prosecutions Initiated	15 (45)	33 (20)
Number of Convictions	5 (45)	22 (20)
Imposed Penalties for Violations Related to the Worst Forms of Child Labor	Yes (45)	Yes (20)
Reciprocal Referral Mechanism Exists Between Criminal Authorities and Social Services	Yes (5)	Yes (16)

Training on identifying human trafficking is provided as a part of the general police curriculum given to law enforcement officials who process immigration cases. (48) Continuous training on identifying human trafficking is also provided to 1 public prosecutor in each of the 25 Higher Public Prosecutor's Offices. However, sources indicated that some agencies responsible for investigation of trafficking in persons cases lack funding. (5)

The SWCs, the primary provider of social services to human trafficking victims, assist with child trafficking cases. (17)

IV. COORDINATION OF GOVERNMENT EFFORTS ON CHILD LABOR

The government has established mechanisms to coordinate its efforts to address child labor (Table 8). However, gaps exist that hinder the effective coordination of efforts to address child labor, including efficacy in accomplishing mandates.

Table 8. Key Mechanisms to Coordinate Government Efforts on Child Labor

Coordinating Body	Role & Description
Council for Children's Rights	Coordinates government efforts to address child labor by monitoring and evaluating government activities, and includes representatives from international organizations and government ministries, such as MOLEVSA. (16) The Council was active and held meetings in 2020 to develop action plans and strategies related to children's rights. (20)
National Council for Combating Trafficking in Human Beings	Sets government policies on trafficking in persons, chaired by MOI. Drafts updated annual standard operating procedures for CPTV. (5) The National Coordinator for Combating Trafficking in Persons acts as the Secretary of the Council and manages the work of the implementation team. (17) During the reporting period, the Special Working Group for the implementation of the Strategy for Prevention and Suppression of Human Trafficking held four meetings and prepared one semi-annual report. (16,49)
Refugee Protection Working Group	Serves as the main mechanism for coordinating non-food related services to refugees, including children, and shares information on protection of refugees. Co-chaired by UNHCR and the Commissariat for Refugees and Migration with the participation of NGOs, local governments, and international organizations. (24) The group met on a monthly basis during the reporting period. (16)

The position of National Coordinator for Combating Trafficking in Persons continues to experience constraints on time and financial resources. (20,25)

V. GOVERNMENT POLICIES ON CHILD LABOR

The government has established policies related to child labor (Table 9). However, policy gaps exist that hinder efforts to address child labor, including mainstreaming child labor issues into relevant Roma policies.

Table 9. Key Policies Related to Child Labor

Policy	Description
Roadmap for Eliminating Abuse of Child Labor in Serbia (2018–2022)	Creates a roadmap for eliminating the worst forms of child labor. Focuses on the prevention and elimination of child abuse, support for children working on the streets and vulnerable families, the creation of a system within Social Welfare Centers to monitor and record risks of child labor, and continuous development for professional workers. (50) Research was unable to determine whether activities to implement the policy were undertaken during the reporting period.
Action Plan for Protection of Children from Violence (2018–2022)	Provides improved prevention, protection, and support for children against violence. (51,52) Part of the Roadmap for Eliminating Abuse of Child Labor in Serbia. Includes enhanced interventions for the protection of children from violence, including organizational mechanisms. (51) Research was unable to determine whether activities were undertaken to implement the policy during the reporting period.
Strategy for Preventing and Suppressing Human Trafficking and Action Plan (2017–2022)	Creates a legislative framework, budget, benchmarks, and strategic areas in need of improvement to combat trafficking in persons. (10,53) Research was unable to determine whether activities to implement the strategy were undertaken during the reporting period.
Protocol on Rules and Procedures for the Institutions and Organizations Working with Children Involved in Life and Work on the Streets of Belgrade	Aims to enhance institutional cooperation among MOI, the Criminal Police Directorate, the Communal Police, city Social Welfare Centers, the Belgrade City Secretariat for Education, the Belgrade City Secretariat for Health, and civil society organizations. (54) Defines street children, worst forms of child labor, child work, and child trafficking. (16,54) Stipulates lead institutions, rules, and procedures for interacting with street children. The first round of training on the Protocol was funded by Save the Children. (16) Research was unable to determine whether activities to implement the protocol were undertaken during the reporting period.
National Strategy for Roma Inclusion (2016–2025)	Seeks to include representatives from Roma communities in policy implementation and aims to improve access to education for Roma population in Serbia, including access to preschool. (55) Research was unable to determine whether activities to implement the strategy were undertaken during the reporting period.

The Ministry of Interior and Ministry of Education worked with local police forces to educate fourth, fifth, and sixth grade children about safety and security issues, including child labor. This educational effort was turned into an online video for more widespread use around the country. (16) Child labor elimination and prevention strategies do not appear to have been integrated into the National Strategy for Roma Inclusion (2016–2025). (11)

The Strategy for Prevention and Protection of Children from Violence 2020–2023 and the National Action Plan 2020–2021 were adopted in May 2020. The Council for the Rights of the Child developed the new Strategy in conjunction with UNICEF in an effort to continue improving the status of children's rights in Serbia. (16) In addition, the government adopted the National Strategy for the Realization of the Rights of Victims and Witnesses of Criminal Offenses 2020–2025, which will establish a new comprehensive system for the protection of victims and witnesses of criminal offenses in Serbia. (16)

VI. SOCIAL PROGRAMS TO ADDRESS CHILD LABOR

In 2020, the government funded and participated in programs that include the goal of eliminating or preventing child labor (Table 10).

Table 10. Key Social Programs to Address Child Labor

Program	Description
Access to Education Programs†	The Inclusive Early Childhood Education and Care program is a World Bank, Ministry of Finance, and Ministry of Education, Science, and Technological Development project that aims to improve access to early childhood education for socially disadvantaged children. (56) In 2020, the program remained active. (16)
Assistance to Roma Children in Education	A World Bank, Ministry of Finance, and Ministry of Education, Science, and Technological Development project that aims to improve access to early childhood education for socially disadvantaged children. (56) In 2020, the program was active, though limited by the ongoing COVID-19 pandemic. (16)

Program	Description
Belgrade Children's Shelter†	A social welfare institution funded by the City of Belgrade; opened in 2019. (5) Caters to vulnerable children ages 7 to 18. Provides accommodation services and daytime shelter services to meet the needs of young people and street children, who are subsequently referred to competent social work centers and judicial authorities. (5) During the reporting period, both the day shelter and overnight shelter were in use, though the total number of beneficiaries was significantly lower in 2020 compared to previous years due to the pandemic. (20)
Strengthening the Identification and Protection of Victims of Trafficking‡	An IOM, CPTV, and MOI project that contributes to the implementation of the National Anti-Trafficking Strategy by improving mechanisms for the prevention and identification of victims of human trafficking. (26) In 2018, MOI, MOLEVSA, and the Public Prosecution Office signed a Memorandum on Cooperation in the Field of Suppression of Human Trafficking and the Rights Protection of Human Trafficking Victims. (9,57) The Memorandum defines mutual rights in the identification of human trafficking, assistance and protection of victims, and statistical reporting. (13,57) In July 2020, the government adopted the National Strategy on the Rights of Victims and Witnesses of Crime in the Republic of Serbia 2019–2025 and its associated Action Plan for 2020–2022. The strategy aims to establish a new, comprehensive system of protection and promotion of the rights of victims and witnesses of crime in Serbia. (20)
Measurement, Awareness-Raising, and Policy Engagement (MAP16) Project on Child Labor and Forced Labor	The government collaborates with the ILO to implement the USDOL-funded MAP16 project in Serbia. Specific goals of the program include improving application of knowledge in support of efforts to eliminate child labor; strengthening the policy-making process; improving the capacity of the government, national authorities, employers' and workers' organizations, and other relevant entities to combat child labor; and strengthening partnerships to accelerate progress in combatting child labor. (16,58) In Serbia, the project aims to build the capacity of the government and other stakeholders to address child labor in part by providing support for the country's first National Child Labor Survey, which was developed and tested during 2020. (58) Additional information is available on the USDOL website .

‡ The government had other social programs that may have included the goal of eliminating or preventing child labor. (9,13,59)

The Government of Serbia has implemented programs on child labor and inclusive education. (60)

VII. SUGGESTED GOVERNMENT ACTIONS TO ELIMINATE CHILD LABOR

Based on the reporting above, suggested actions are identified that would advance the elimination of child labor in Serbia (Table 11).

Table 11. Suggested Government Actions to Eliminate Child Labor

Area	Suggested Action	Year(s) Suggested
Legal Framework	Ensure that the law does not treat child beggars as criminals.	2017 – 2020
	Ensure that the law criminally prohibits the use of children in illicit activities, including in the production and trafficking of drugs.	2019 – 2020
	Ensure that the use, procuring, and offering of children for prostitution are criminally prohibited.	2020
Enforcement	Ensure that staff members at the Social Welfare Centers have sufficient resources, such as personnel and funding, to address the specific needs of child trafficking victims.	2015 – 2020
	Train new labor inspectors on child labor.	2015 – 2020
	Ensure that criminal investigators and agencies combating trafficking in persons have the necessary funding to conduct thorough investigations.	2010 – 2020
Coordination	Ensure that the National Coordinator for Combating Trafficking in Persons has a level of financial support that facilitates efforts to eliminate child labor.	2015 – 2020
Government Policies	Integrate child labor elimination and prevention strategies into the National Strategy for Roma Inclusion.	2017 – 2020
	Publish information on key policies undertaken to combat child labor.	2020
Social Programs	Address barriers to education, including access to birth registration documentation; increase access to education for children with disabilities; and increase access and retention rates for minority populations, particularly migrant and Roma children.	2013 – 2020
	Conduct research to determine the activities carried out by children engaged in child labor, including those in farming.	2020

In 2020, Sierra Leone made minimal advancement in efforts to eliminate the worst forms of child labor. The government launched a new National Action Plan Against Trafficking in Persons, Especially Women and Children, and carried out an awareness-raising campaign to promote education access for girls. However, children in Sierra Leone are subjected to the worst forms of child labor, including in mining and commercial sexual exploitation, each sometimes as a result of human trafficking. Children also engage in dangerous tasks in quarrying stone and fishing. The types of hazardous work prohibited for children do not cover all sectors in which child labor is known to occur, and the government does not have a sufficient number of labor inspectors to adequately enforce labor laws throughout the country. In addition, Sierra Leone lacks a national policy and social program to address all relevant worst forms of child labor.

I. PREVALENCE AND SECTORAL DISTRIBUTION OF CHILD LABOR

Children in Sierra Leone are subjected to the worst forms of child labor, including in mining and commercial sexual exploitation, each sometimes as a result of human trafficking. Children also engage in dangerous tasks in quarrying stone and fishing. (1) Table 1 provides key indicators on children's work and education in Sierra Leone. Data on some of these indicators are not available from the sources used in this report.

Table 1. Statistics on Children's Work and Education

Children	Age	Percent
Working (% and population)	5 to 14	35.1 (Unavailable)
Attending School (%)	5 to 14	78.2
Combining Work and School (%)	7 to 14	32.2
Primary Completion Rate (%)		83.2

Source for primary completion rate: Data from 2019 published by UNESCO Institute for Statistics, 2021. (2)

Source for all other data: International Labor Organization's analysis of statistics from the Multiple Indicator Cluster Survey 6 (MICS 6), 2017. (3)

Based on a review of available information, Table 2 provides an overview of children's work by sector and activity.

Table 2. Overview of Children's Work by Sector and Activity

Sector/Industry	Activity
Agriculture	Cultivation of cassava, including processing into garri flour, oil (palm), cocoa, coffee, peanuts, and rice (4,6)
	Fishing,† including artisanal fishing (1,6,7)
Industry	Mining† for diamonds, and gold (1,7,8)
	Quarrying† and crushing stone, including granite, and shoveling gravel (1,7,8)
	Construction, including housing construction, and serving as laborers for contractors (1,6,7)
	Manufacturing,† activities unknown (1,7,9,10)
	Production of charcoal (1,7,9)
Services	Scavenging scrap metals and recyclable materials from dumpsites (1,11-13)
	Domestic work (1,7,13)
	Street work, including begging, trading, and selling goods (1,7,13,14)
	Portering, including carrying heavy loads† (8)
	Working as apprentices, including in auto repair shops and on transportation vehicles, including mini buses and motorbike taxis (6,14)
Categorical Worst Forms of Child Labor‡	Forced begging, sometimes as a result of human trafficking (1,7,15)
	Forced domestic work, sometimes as a result of human trafficking (1,7,15)
	Commercial sexual exploitation, including prostitution, sometimes as a result of human trafficking (1,7,15)

MINIMAL ADVANCEMENT

Sector/Industry	Activity
Categorical Worst Forms of Child Labor‡	Forced labor in street hawking, domestic work, mining, agriculture, scavenging for scrap metal, and motorbike taxi driving, quarrying granite, and mining for alluvial diamonds, each sometimes as a result of human trafficking (1,7,8)
	Cultivation of marijuana (7)

† Determined by national law or regulation as hazardous and, as such, relevant to Article 3(d) of ILO C. 182.

‡ Child labor understood as the worst forms of child labor per se under Article 3(a)–(c) of ILO C. 182.

Sierra Leone is a source, transit, and destination country for children trafficked for forced labor and commercial sexual exploitation. (16-19) Sierra Leone has a form of internal child trafficking called “men pikin,” meaning foster care in Krio, in which family members send children with promises of better educational opportunities to relatives in urban areas. However, some children are instead subjected to forced labor, including in street hawking, domestic work, mining, agriculture, scavenging for scrap metal, and motorbike taxi driving. (7,13) Some children sent to Koranic schools are also trafficked for labor exploitation. (13,19) Research indicates that a decreased number of commercial sexual exploitation cases were reported during the reporting period, likely due to COVID-19 pandemic restrictions. (6,7)

In 2019, the government published a report based on household-level survey data collected in 2018, which included a discussion of child labor in Sierra Leone. However, the data were not fully disaggregated to show the prevalence of child labor among children under age 10. (9) The government did not publish any data on child labor in 2020. (7)

Despite government initiatives to make education free through secondary school, substantial barriers remain, including a lack of schools and teachers, the costs of uniforms and supplies, limited transportation to schools, and sexual and gender-based violence by teachers and other students. (1,7,20,21) In particular, one report indicated that teachers demanded sex from students in exchange for higher grades. (7) Research also found that the government did not pay all teacher salaries, and that unqualified teachers were removed from schools in several rural communities without being replaced, resulting in some schools closing. All of these factors contributed to a high dropout rate, especially among girls. (7)

In March 2020, the government officially overturned its policy that prevented pregnant girls from attending school and taking secondary and post-secondary entrance exams. (1,22,23) In addition, the government launched an awareness-raising campaign to promote education access for all girls. (7)

II. LEGAL FRAMEWORK FOR CHILD LABOR

Sierra Leone has ratified all key international conventions concerning child labor (Table 3).

Table 3. Ratification of International Conventions on Child Labor

Convention	Ratification
 ILO C. 138, Minimum Age	✓
ILO C. 182, Worst Forms of Child Labor	✓
 UN CRC	✓
UN CRC Optional Protocol on Armed Conflict	✓
UN CRC Optional Protocol on the Sale of Children, Child Prostitution and Child Pornography	✓
 Palermo Protocol on Trafficking in Persons	✓

The government has established laws and regulations related to child labor (Table 4). However, gaps exist in Sierra Leone's legal framework to adequately protect children from the worst forms of child labor, including the lack of specific provisions on light work.

Table 4. Laws and Regulations on Child Labor

Standard	Meets International Standards	Age	Legislation
Minimum Age for Work	Yes	15	Section 125 of the Child Right Act; Section 52 of Chapter 212, Employers and Employed Act (24,25)
Minimum Age for Hazardous Work	Yes	18	Section 128 of the Child Right Act; Sections 47–56 of Chapter 212, Employers and Employed Act (24,25)
Identification of Hazardous Occupations or Activities Prohibited for Children	Yes		Section 128 of the Child Right Act; Sections 47–56 of Chapter 212, Employers and Employed Act; Sections 164 and 170 of the Mines and Minerals Act (24-26)
Prohibition of Forced Labor	Yes		Part II, Section 2, and Part IV, Sections 14–15 and 21 of the Anti-Human Trafficking Act; Section 19 of the Constitution of Sierra Leone (27,28)
Prohibition of Child Trafficking	Yes		Part II, Section 2, and Part IV, Sections 14–15 and 21 of the Anti-Human Trafficking Act; (24)
Prohibition of Commercial Sexual Exploitation of Children	Yes		Sections 19–34 of the Sexual Offenses Act; Part II, Section 2, of the Anti-Human Trafficking Act (27,29,30)
Prohibition of Using Children in Illicit Activities	Yes		Sections 7 and 13 of the National Drugs Control Act (31)
Minimum Age for Voluntary State Military Recruitment	Yes	18	Section 28 of the Child Right Act (24)
Prohibition of Compulsory Recruitment of Children by (State) Military	N/A*
Prohibition of Military Recruitment by Non-state Armed Groups	No
Compulsory Education Age	Yes	15	Section 3 of the Education Act; Section 125 of the Child Right Act (24,32)
Free Public Education	Yes		Section 3 of the Education Act; Section 9 of the Constitution of Sierra Leone; Section 11(c) of the Child Right Act (24,28,32)

* No conscription (42)

The Child Right Act sets the minimum age for light work at age 13; however, it is not specific enough to prevent children from involvement in child labor because it does not limit the number of hours per week for light work, determine the activities in which light work may be permitted, or specify the conditions in which light work may be undertaken. (24) Although the Child Right Act identifies hazardous work prohibited for children, the types of hazardous work prohibited for children do not cover scavenging for recyclable materials at dumpsites, where children are exposed to toxic fumes and smoke from burning trash, as well as sharp objects and broken bottles. (12)

During 2020, drafting and consultations continued with two pieces of legislation, the Prevention of the Trafficking in Persons and Smuggling of Migrants Act and the Overseas Employment and Migrant Act of 2019. (7)

III. ENFORCEMENT OF LAWS ON CHILD LABOR

The government has established institutional mechanisms for the enforcement of laws and regulations on child labor (Table 5). However, gaps exist within the operations of enforcement agencies that may hinder adequate enforcement of their child labor laws.

Sierra Leone

MINIMAL ADVANCEMENT

Table 5. Agencies Responsible for Child Labor Law Enforcement

Organization/Agency	Role
Ministry of Labor and Social Security (MLSS)	Enforces labor laws in the formal sector. Through its Child Labor Unit, formulates, implements, and monitors compliance with child labor regulations. (1,16) MLSS District Labor Officers enforce labor laws in the formal sector. (1,16)
Ministry of Justice's Director of Public Prosecution	Undertakes criminal proceedings, including enforcement of criminal laws against forced child labor, child trafficking, commercial sexual exploitation, recruitment and use of child soldiers, and use of children in illicit activities. (1)
Ministry of Mines and Mineral Resources	Enforces regulations against the use of child labor in mining. Authorized to suspend licenses of mining operators found using child labor. (1,16)
Ministry of Internal Affairs' Police and Transnational and Organized Crime Unit	Leads the investigation and prosecution of sexual abuse, domestic violence, and child abuse through Police Family Support Units, which are mandated to minimize and eradicate the incidence of sexual abuse, domestic violence, and child abuse. (1) Through its Transnational Organized Crime Unit, enforces human trafficking laws and provides statistical data and general information on cases of human trafficking. (1)

Labor Law Enforcement

In 2020, labor law enforcement agencies in Sierra Leone took actions to combat child labor (Table 6). However, gaps exist within the operations of the Ministry of Labor and Social Security (MLSS) that may hinder adequate labor law enforcement, including a limited number of inspectors and a lack of funding.

Table 6. Labor Law Enforcement Efforts Related to Child Labor

Overview of Labor Law Enforcement	2019	2020
Labor Inspectorate Funding	Unknown (1)	$40,000 (7)
Number of Labor Inspectors	30 (1)	29 (7)
Inspectorate Authorized to Assess Penalties	Yes (1)	Yes (25)
Initial Training for New Labor Inspectors	Yes (1)	Yes (7)
Training on New Laws Related to Child Labor	N/A (1)	N/A (7)
Refresher Courses Provided	No (1)	Yes (7)
Number of Labor Inspections Conducted	450 (1)	Unknown (7)
Number Conducted at Worksite	450 (1)	Unknown (7)
Number of Child Labor Violations Found	0 (1)	0 (7)
Number of Child Labor Violations for Which Penalties Were Imposed	N/A (1)	N/A (7)
Number of Child Labor Penalties Imposed that Were Collected	N/A (1)	N/A (7)
Routine Inspections Conducted	Yes (1)	Yes (7)
Routine Inspections Targeted	Unknown (1)	Yes (7)
Unannounced Inspections Permitted	Unknown (25)	Unknown (25,34)
Unannounced Inspections Conducted	Unknown (1)	Unknown (7)
Complaint Mechanism Exists	No (1)	No (7)
Reciprocal Referral Mechanism Exists Between Labor Authorities and Social Services	No (1)	No (7)

The number of labor inspectors is likely insufficient for the size of Sierra Leone's workforce, which includes more than 2.9 million workers. According to the ILO's technical advice of a ratio approaching 1 inspector for every 40,000 workers in least developed economies, Sierra Leone would employ about 75 inspectors. (35,36) In addition, there is a significant lack of resources for labor inspections because the MLSS has only one vehicle for inspections. (1,7)

Although the Ministry of Mines and Mineral Resources can conduct inspections on mining concessions and revoke licenses from employers who are found to be using child labor, research found that a limited number of inspectors and a lack of funding may have hindered enforcement efforts. (16,37,38) During the reporting period, the government conducted an awareness campaign throughout the country and inspected several factories, including a factory in the Eastern Region and the Tonkolili mining areas. (7)

During the reporting period, a majority of labor inspections were conducted in the formal sector and at factories and quarries only in the capital city area, leaving children working in the informal sector and rural areas without protection. (6) Although the total number of labor inspections is unknown, the MLSS reportedly found no child labor violations in 2020. (7) The practice of notifying employers in advance of inspections may have contributed to the lack of violations found. (39) In addition, research indicates that the law does not establish penalties severe enough to deter child labor violations. (40)

Criminal Law Enforcement

In 2020, criminal law enforcement agencies in Sierra Leone took actions to combat child labor (Table 7). However, gaps exist within the operations of the criminal enforcement agencies that may hinder adequate criminal law enforcement, including the lack of data on criminal law enforcement efforts.

Table 7. Criminal Law Enforcement Efforts Related to Child Labor

Overview of Criminal Law Enforcement	2019	2020
Initial Training for New Criminal Investigators	Yes (1)	Unknown (7)
Training on New Laws Related to the Worst Forms of Child Labor	No (1)	N/A (7)
Refresher Courses Provided	No (1)	Unknown (7)
Number of Investigations	0 (1)	Unknown (7)
Number of Violations Found	Unknown (1)	Unknown (7)
Number of Prosecutions Initiated	Unknown (1)	Unknown (7)
Number of Convictions	Unknown (1)	Unknown (7)
Imposed Penalties for Violations Related to the Worst Forms of Child Labor	Unknown (1)	Unknown (7)
Reciprocal Referral Mechanism Exists Between Criminal Authorities and Social Services	Yes (1)	Yes (7)

The Police Family Support Units reported 15 total child trafficking cases, including 13 that resulted in forced labor. (6) Research found that criminal law enforcement in Sierra Leone, particularly efforts to address human trafficking, is hampered by a lack of coordination, limited funding, and a lack of training of law enforcement personnel and the judiciary. (1, 19) During the reporting period, the government did not provide information on whether training was provided to new investigators or whether refresher courses were provided. It also did not provide the number of investigations conducted, violations found, prosecutions initiated, or convictions. (7)

IV. COORDINATION OF GOVERNMENT EFFORTS ON CHILD LABOR

The government has established mechanisms to coordinate its efforts to address child labor (Table 8). However, gaps may exist that hinder the effective coordination of efforts to address child labor, including efficacy in accomplishing mandates.

Table 8. Key Mechanisms to Coordinate Government Efforts on Child Labor

Coordinating Body	Role & Description
National Technical Steering Committee on Child Labor	Coordinates efforts to address child labor. (1) Led by MLSS and the Ministry of Gender and Children's Affairs (MGCA) and includes representatives from 10 other government agencies, international organizations, and NGOs. As part of the National Technical Steering Committee on Child Labor, the National Commission for Children advises the government on ways to improve child welfare. (1) Research was unable to determine whether the National Technical Steering Committee on Child Labor was active during the reporting period.
National Trafficking in Persons Task Force	Coordinates issues related to child trafficking, and supports agencies that provide shelter and services for human trafficking victims, gathers data on reported human trafficking cases, and meets regularly to develop policies related to child trafficking. (1, 7) The Ministries of Social Welfare and Justice lead the National Trafficking in Persons Task Force. (41) During the reporting period, the Task Force met regularly to coordinate on TIP issues, and launched the National Action Plan Against Trafficking in Persons, Especially Women and Children. (6, 7)

Sierra Leone

MINIMAL ADVANCEMENT

Coordinating Body	Role & Description
Child Welfare Committees	Promote awareness of children's rights and report child welfare concerns to officials responsible for children's issues. Provide recommendations in giving support to children in villages and address village inhabitants' complaints and concerns. (1,7,19,42,43) During the reporting period, the Child Welfare Committees were active, offering support to communities that reported child rights violations to the Family Support Unit of the Sierra Leone Police. (6)
Ministry of Gender and Children's Affairs (MGCA)	Serves as the lead agency to oversee child protection issues, including child labor, in criminal law enforcement efforts, and refers children found through investigations to social services and interim care centers. (1,6,33) MGCA is currently reviewing the 2007 Child Rights Act and the Street Child Strategy. During the reporting period, MGCA carried out several activities including consultation and sensitization on the review of the 2007 Child Rights Act and the Street Child Strategy, with the aim to reduce child trafficking in Sierra Leone. (6)

The Child Rights Act requires the establishment of a Child Welfare Committee in every village and chiefdom (the third level of administrative subdivision, below districts and provinces); however, research indicates that these committees have been established in only a few parts of the country due to budgetary constraints. (24,44)

V. GOVERNMENT POLICIES ON CHILD LABOR

The government has established policies related to child labor (Table 9). However, gaps exist that hinder efforts to address child labor, including covering all worst forms of child labor.

Table 9. Key Policies Related to Child Labor

Policy	Description
National Action Plan Against Trafficking in Persons, Especially Women and Children (2021–2023)†	Aims to coordinate cooperation between NGOs, international organizations, and government agencies in combating TIP, and calls for a review of Sierra Leone's Anti-Human Trafficking Act of 2005. (45,50) The plan also aligns with the Economic Community of West African States (ECOWAS) Plan of Action Against Trafficking in Persons. (19)

† Policy was approved during the reporting period.

‡ The government had other policies that may have addressed child labor issues or had an impact on child labor. (1,20,46)

Although the Government of Sierra Leone has adopted the National Action Plan on Human Trafficking, research found no evidence of a policy on other worst forms of child labor, including child labor in mining and the commercial sexual exploitation of children.

VI. SOCIAL PROGRAMS TO ADDRESS CHILD LABOR

In 2020, the government funded and participated in programs that include the goal of eliminating or preventing child labor (Table 10). However, gaps exist in these social programs, including the adequacy of programs to address the problem in all sectors.

Table 10. Key Social Programs to Address Child Labor

Program	Description
Child Trafficking Shelters†	Government-funded program that refers child trafficking victims to privately run shelters that house child victims of forced labor and human trafficking. (19,47) Research was unable to determine whether activities were undertaken to implement the Child Trafficking Shelters program during the reporting period.
Free Quality School Education (2018–2023)†	Program that covers the costs of school tuition and fees and provides meals, textbooks, and some teaching materials in remote communities. In 2020, 22 percent of the national budget was allocated to implement the Free Quality School Education program—an increase from 21 percent—which widened access to primary, secondary, vocational, and university education. (1,7)
USG-Funded Projects	The USDOS Program to End Modern Slavery funded a study to research the prevalence, methods, and impacts of child trafficking and labor in Kono, Kenema, and Kailahun. Research will continue on child trafficking and labor in the Northern Province of Sierra Leone, specifically Kambia District. (6) During the reporting period, a qualitative study was carried out that consisted of interviews with key informants and child trafficking victims, and focus group discussions in the three child trafficking hotspots of Kono, Kenema, and Kailahun. A separate qualitative study also consisted of 3,000 household surveys. (6)

‡ The government had other social programs that may have included the goal of eliminating or preventing child labor. (48,49)

Sierra Leone has too few and underfunded shelters and safe houses for children who have been withdrawn from working on the streets or in forced labor. (17) Although the Government of Sierra Leone has implemented programs to assist child trafficking survivors, research found no evidence that it has carried out programs specifically designed to assist children working on the streets, in agriculture, and in domestic work. (1)

VII. SUGGESTED GOVERNMENT ACTIONS TO ELIMINATE CHILD LABOR

Based on the reporting above, suggested actions are identified that would advance the elimination of child labor in Sierra Leone (Table I I).

Table I I. Suggested Government Actions to Eliminate Child Labor

Area	Suggested Action	Year(s) Suggested
Legal Framework	Ensure that the law's light work provisions specify the activities and conditions in which light work may be undertaken and limit the number of hours of light work.	2015 – 2020
	Ensure hazardous work occupations prohibited for children are comprehensive, including scavenging at dumpsites.	2020
	Ensure that the law criminally prohibits the recruitment of children under age 18 by non-state armed groups.	2016 – 2020
Enforcement	Establish a complaint and reciprocal referral mechanism for labor law enforcement efforts.	2015 – 2020
	Increase the number of labor inspectors to meet the ILO's technical advice.	2011 – 2020
	Provide labor law and criminal law enforcement officials with sufficient resources to adequately enforce labor laws throughout the country.	2012 – 2020
	Enforce laws prohibiting child labor in mining, particularly in the diamond mining sector.	2015 – 2020
	Publish information on the number of labor inspections conducted, including at worksites.	2011 – 2020
	Ensure that penalties for child labor violations are adequate to deter violations.	2020
	Ensure that unannounced inspections are permitted and conducted.	2020
	Improve coordination between criminal law enforcement agencies and provide sufficient training to enforcement personnel and the judiciary to ensure that violations are adequately investigated and prosecuted.	2014 – 2020
Coordination	Publish information on criminal law enforcement efforts, including training for criminal investigators, the number of investigations undertaken, criminal violations found, prosecutions initiated, convictions obtained, and penalties imposed for the worst forms of child labor.	2015 – 2020
	Ensure that village-level and chiefdom-level Child Welfare Committees are established and operational in all areas.	2014 – 2020
Government Policies	Ensure that all coordinating bodies are able to carry out their intended mandates.	2020
	Adopt policies to address child labor in relevant sectors, such as mining, quarrying, and commercial sexual exploitation.	2019 – 2020
Social Programs	Publish activities undertaken to implement social programs during the reporting period.	2020
	Ensure that data for household surveys are fully disaggregated and published so the prevalence of child labor at all ages, including below age 10, in Sierra Leone is known.	2019 – 2020
	Institute programs in the education sector to address issues of lack transportation, to increase the number of schools and teachers, reduce school-related costs, and to eliminate abuse, including sexual and gender-based violence, by teachers and other students.	2013 – 2020
	Increase the availability of and funding for shelters and safe houses for victims of forced labor and for children removed from street work.	2009 – 2020
	Institute programs to address child labor in the sectors of agriculture, domestic work, and street vending.	2019 – 2020

In 2020, the Solomon Islands made minimal advancement in efforts to eliminate the worst forms of child labor. During the reporting period, the government created a revised version of its National Action Plan against Human Trafficking and People Smuggling and partnered with private companies to create and implement human trafficking awareness-raising campaigns targeting 12 communities in the Choiseul Province. However, children in the Solomon Islands are subjected to the worst forms of child labor, including in commercial sexual exploitation, sometimes as a result of human trafficking. Children also perform dangerous tasks in the harvesting of palm oil fruits. The minimum age for work does not meet international standards, and the Solomon Islands has not established a minimum age for hazardous work or delineated the types of work considered hazardous for children. The government also did not publish labor and criminal law enforcement data for the reporting year. In addition, education is not compulsory, which increases children's vulnerability to child labor exploitation.

I. PREVALENCE AND SECTORAL DISTRIBUTION OF CHILD LABOR

Children in the Solomon Islands are subjected to the worst forms of child labor, including in commercial sexual exploitation, sometimes as a result of human trafficking. (1-4) Children also perform dangerous tasks in the harvesting of palm oil fruits. (2) Table 1 provides key indicators on children's work and education in the Solomon Islands. Data on some of these key indicators are not available from the sources used in this report.

Table 1. Statistics on Children's Work and Education

Children	Age	Percent
Working (% and population)	5 to 14	Unavailable
Attending School (%)	5 to 14	Unavailable
Combining Work and School (%)	7 to 14	Unavailable
Primary Completion Rate (%)		85.7

Source for primary completion rate: Data from 2019, published by UNESCO Institute for Statistics, 2021. (5)
Data were unavailable from International Labor Organization's analysis, 2021. (6)

Based on a review of available information, Table 2 provides an overview of children's work by sector and activity.

Table 2. Overview of Children's Work by Sector and Activity

Sector/Industry	Activity
Agriculture	Working on plantations, including harvesting palm oil fruits (1,2)
	Harvesting seafood, including diving in deep water (1-3)
Industry	Alluvial mining† (1-3)
	Furniture construction (1,2)
	Construction on roads and buildings, including making bricks (1,2)
Services	Domestic work, including working as cooks (1-3)
	Scavenging for cans and metal in garbage dumpsites, streets, and streams (1-3)
	Working in nightclubs, casinos, and motels (1-3)
Categorical Worst Forms of Child Labor‡	Commercial sexual exploitation, sometimes as a result of human trafficking (1-4,7-9)
	Use in illicit activities, including in the cultivation and trafficking of drugs (1-3)
	Forced domestic work and forced work as cooks (1-3)
	Forced pickpocketing, sometimes as a result of human trafficking (2,3,9)

† Determined by national law or regulation as hazardous and, as such, relevant to Article 3(d) of ILO C. 182.

‡ Child labor understood as the worst forms of child labor per se under Article 3(a)–(c) of ILO C. 182.

Solomon Islands

MINIMAL ADVANCEMENT

In the Solomon Islands, the commercial sexual exploitation of both boys and girls is prevalent near logging camps; near or aboard fishing vessels; and at hotels, casinos, and entertainment establishments. (1-4,10) Children are exposed to toxic pesticides on palm oil plantations while tending to, harvesting, and collecting palm oil fruits. In addition, children—mainly boys—are exposed to extreme water depths and temperatures while diving for sea cucumbers. (1,2) The government provides a nominal amount of funding towards its Fee Free Basic Education Policy for free education. (11) Additional school fees, teacher absenteeism, and transportation limitations make it challenging for some children to access education. (1,2) There are no nationally representative data available on the prevalence and nature of child labor in the Solomon Islands.

II. LEGAL FRAMEWORK FOR CHILD LABOR

The Solomon Islands has ratified some key international conventions concerning child labor (Table 3).

Table 3. Ratification of International Conventions on Child Labor

Convention	Ratification
 ILO C. 138, Minimum Age	✓
ILO C. 182, Worst Forms of Child Labor	✓
 UN CRC	✓
UN CRC Optional Protocol on Armed Conflict
UN CRC Optional Protocol on the Sale of Children, Child Prostitution and Child Pornography
 Palermo Protocol on Trafficking in Persons

The government has established laws and regulations related to child labor (Table 4). However, gaps exist in the Solomon Islands' legal framework to adequately protect children from the worst forms of child labor, including the minimum age for work and the minimum age for hazardous work.

Table 4. Laws and Regulations on Child Labor

Standard	Meets International Standards	Age	Legislation
Minimum Age for Work	No	12	Article 46 of the Labor Act (12)
Minimum Age for Hazardous Work	No		Articles 47-49 of the Labor Act (12)
Identification of Hazardous Occupations or Activities Prohibited for Children	No		Articles 47–49 of the Labor Act (12)
Prohibition of Forced Labor	Yes		Article 6 of the Constitution; Articles 251 and 256 of the Penal Code; Part 7 of the Immigration Act (13-15)
Prohibition of Child Trafficking	No		Part 7 of the Immigration Act; Article 145 of the Penal Code (14,15)
Prohibition of Commercial Sexual Exploitation of Children	No		Articles 141 and 143–144 of the Penal Code (15)
Prohibition of Using Children in Illicit Activities	No
Minimum Age for Voluntary State Military Recruitment	N/A†
Prohibition of Compulsory Recruitment of Children by (State) Military	N/A†
Prohibition of Military Recruitment by Non-state Armed Groups	No
Compulsory Education Age	No
Free Public Education	No

† No standing military (16)

The minimum age for work is not in compliance with international standards because the Labor Act permits children as young as age 12 to work. (12) While the Labor Code prohibits all children under age 18 from working at night and regulates work in mines and on ships, it does not clearly establish a minimum age for hazardous work or delineate the type of work considered hazardous for all children. In addition, the legal framework does not prohibit dangerous work in scavenging or in agricultural activities for which there is evidence of children being exposed to injuries, extreme temperatures, or chemicals. (4,12,17,18) The Penal Code includes heightened penalties if an offense is committed against a child, but has insufficient prohibitions against child trafficking because threats, the use of force, or other forms of coercion are required to be established for the crime of child trafficking. Furthermore, the laws on child commercial sexual exploitation are insufficient, as they do not include prohibiting pornographic performances. (9,15) The law also does not criminally prohibit the use of children in illicit activities. (2) In addition, education is not compulsory, which increases children's vulnerability to child labor exploitation. (19) Although there are no laws that provide free basic education, there is a policy that provides for some free basic education. This policy does not cover all costs, and still allows schools to request some fees. (20,21)

III. ENFORCEMENT OF LAWS ON CHILD LABOR

The government has established institutional mechanisms for the enforcement of laws and regulations on child labor (Table 5). However, gaps exist within the operations of enforcement agencies that may hinder adequate enforcement of their child labor laws.

Table 5. Agencies Responsible for Child Labor Law Enforcement

Organization/Agency	Role
Ministry of Commerce, Industry, Labor and Immigration	Enforces child labor laws. (1,2) Through the Immigration Division, leads efforts to combat human trafficking, including the trafficking of children. (9,22) In 2020, initiated a process to reform its human trafficking awareness programs by integrating them with the community policing program, which was ongoing during the reporting period. In partnership with private companies, created and implemented human trafficking awareness-raising campaigns targeting 12 communities in the Choiseul Province, focusing on victim identification, prevention, and support for community stakeholders and civil society. (3)
Royal Solomon Islands Police	Enforce criminal laws against the worst forms of child labor. (1) Lead investigations of internal human trafficking cases and currently chair the Anti-Human Trafficking Advisory Committee (AHTAC). (9,23)
Business Monitoring Joint Agency Committee	Monitors and investigates cases of transnational human trafficking, specifically in the logging industry. Comprises representatives from the Immigration Division, the Royal Solomon Islands Police, Customs, and the Forestry Division. (22,24)

While the Government of the Solomon Islands has agencies to enforce child labor laws, research found that the agencies' commitment, coordination, and priorities vary widely depending on their mandates, structural capacity, and budget allocations. (1,2)

Labor Law Enforcement

Research did not find information on whether labor law enforcement agencies in the Solomon Islands took actions to combat child labor (Table 6).

Reciprocal Referral Mechanism Exists Between Labor Authorities and Social Services	Unknown (1)	Unknown (2)

The Government of the Solomon Islands did not respond to requests for information related to its labor law enforcement efforts for inclusion in this report. Insufficient resources continued to hamper the labor inspectorate's capacity to enforce child labor laws, including a lack of budget transparency and enforcement efforts. (2, 19) While the number of labor inspectors is unknown, according to the ILO's technical advice of a ratio approaching 1 inspector for every 40,000 workers in less developed economies, the Solomon Islands would need to employ roughly 5 labor inspectors as its workforce consists of over 202,500 workers.

Criminal Law Enforcement

Research did not find information on whether criminal law enforcement agencies in the Solomon Islands took actions to combat child labor (Table 7).

Table 7. Criminal Law Enforcement Efforts Related to Child Labor

Overview of Criminal Law Enforcement	2019	2020

The Government of the Solomon Islands did not respond to requests for information related to its criminal law enforcement efforts for inclusion in this report. (2)

IV. COORDINATION OF GOVERNMENT EFFORTS ON CHILD LABOR

The government has established mechanisms to coordinate its efforts to address child labor (Table 8). However, gaps exist that hinder the effective coordination of efforts to address child labor, including efforts to address all forms of child labor.

Table 8. Key Mechanisms to Coordinate Government Efforts on Child Labor

Coordinating Body	Role & Description
Anti-Human Trafficking Advisory Committee (AHTAC)	Coordinates efforts across the government to address human trafficking. (22,25) Comprised of the Ministries of Commerce, Industries, Labor, and Immigration (MCILI); Finance; Health and Medical Services; Police, National Security, and Correctional Services; Women, Youths, and Cultural Affairs; the Office of the Public Solicitors and representatives from law enforcement agencies, NGOs, and UN agencies. MCILI acts as secretariat. (25) During the reporting period, the committee met on a quarterly basis to discuss human trafficking issues in general, including reports of potential cases, and to coordinate on trafficking-related policies. (3,9)

Coordinating Body	Role & Description
National Advisory and Action Committee on Children (NAACC)	Coordinates government and NGOs to address child trafficking and commercial sexual exploitation of children. (26) Consists of several ministries, including the Ministry of Women, Youth, Children and Family Affairs; MCIL; and the Ministry of Home Affairs. Several NGOs participate, including Save the Children, UNICEF, and WHO. (18) Research was unable to determine whether the NAACC was active during the reporting period.

The Government of the Solomon Islands did not respond to requests for information on its coordination efforts to eliminate child labor. (2)

V. GOVERNMENT POLICIES ON CHILD LABOR

The government has established policies related to child labor (Table 9). However, policy gaps exist that hinder efforts to address child labor, including covering all worst forms of child labor.

Table 9. Key Policies Related to Child Labor

Policy	Description
National Action Plan Against Human Trafficking and People Smuggling (2020–2025)†	Establishes a coordinated effort to eliminate human trafficking and people smuggling on the Solomon Islands. Led by AHTAC. (3,25) In 2020, the new Action Plan was revised to contain provisions aimed at preparing the government to accede to and ratify the UN Convention against Transnational Organized Crime and its supplementary protocols. (3,9) Though the committee endorsed the Action Plan in March 2020, the government did not report implementing the Action Plan. (21)
Fee Free Basic Education Policy	Subsidizes school fees for grades one through nine to increase access to education. (17,18,20,28) Research was unable to determine whether activities were undertaken to implement the Fee Free Basic Education Policy during the reporting period.
National Education Action Plan	Establishes a timeline within the National Development Strategy 2016–2035 to provide free primary and secondary education to boys and girls by 2020. (29) Research was unable to determine whether activities were undertaken to implement the National Education Action Plan during the reporting period.
United Nations Pacific Strategy (2018–2022)	A multi-national strategic framework, comprising 14 South Pacific nations, created to address, develop, and implement strategic economic development priorities in the South Pacific, including eliminating child labor and the worst forms of child labor. (30) Research was unable to determine whether activities were undertaken to implement the United Nations Pacific Strategy during the reporting period.

† Policy was approved during the reporting year.

‡ The government had other policies that may have addressed child labor issues or had an impact on child labor. (30)

The Government of the Solomon Islands did not respond to requests for information regarding its policies to eliminate child labor. (1) Child labor prevention and elimination strategies do not appear to be integrated into the Fee Free Basic Education Policy. (28) Research did not find evidence that the National Action Plan on Human Trafficking and People Smuggling contains policies to eliminate the worst forms of child labor.

VI. SOCIAL PROGRAMS TO ADDRESS CHILD LABOR

Research found no evidence that the government funded or participated in social programs that include the goal of preventing or eliminating child labor.

VII. SUGGESTED GOVERNMENT ACTIONS TO ELIMINATE CHILD LABOR

Based on the reporting above, suggested actions are identified that would advance the elimination of child labor in the Solomon Islands (Table 10).

Table 10. Suggested Government Actions to Eliminate Child Labor

Area	Suggested Action	Year(s) Suggested
Legal Framework	Ratify the UN CRC Optional Protocol on Armed Conflict.	2014 – 2020
	Ratify the UN CRC Optional Protocol on the Sale of Children, Child Prostitution and Child Pornography.	2014 – 2020
	Ratify the Palermo Protocol on Trafficking in Persons.	2014 – 2020

MINIMAL ADVANCEMENT

Area	Suggested Action	Year(s) Suggested
Legal Framework	Raise the minimum age for employment to comply with international standards.	2009 – 2020
	Establish age 18 as the minimum age for hazardous work.	2009 – 2020
	Determine the types of hazardous work prohibited for children, including the types of work for which there is evidence of hazards, such as in scavenging and agriculture.	2009 – 2020
	Establish by law an age up to which education is compulsory that extends to the minimum age for employment.	2009 – 2020
	Ensure that the law criminally prohibits child trafficking, regardless of whether threats, the use of force, or other forms of coercion can be established.	2016 – 2020
	Ensure that the law criminally prohibits using, procuring, and offering a child for pornographic performances.	2016 – 2020
	Ensure that the law criminally prohibits using, procuring, and offering a child for illicit activities, including in the production and trafficking of drugs.	2011 – 2020
	Ensure that the law criminally prohibits the recruitment of children under age 18 by non-state armed groups.	2016 – 2020
Enforcement	Establish by law free basic public education.	2018 – 2020
	Publish information on child labor law enforcement efforts undertaken, including labor inspectorate funding, the number and type of labor inspections conducted, violations found, information about the training system for labor inspectors, and penalties imposed and collected.	2009 – 2020
	Strengthen the labor inspectorate by ensuring the ability to assess penalties.	2019 – 2020
	Publish information on the number of criminal law enforcement efforts undertaken, including the number of child labor investigations initiated, the number of child labor penalties imposed, and the number of criminal law enforcement convictions secured.	2009 – 2020
	Allocate sufficient resources to enforce child labor laws, including increasing budget transparency.	2014 – 2020
	Ensure agencies address issues with commitment, coordination, priorities, structural capacity, and budget allocations to enable them to enforce child labor laws.	2020
Coordination	Ensure the number of labor inspectors in the Solomon Islands meets the ILO's technical guidance.	2020
	Publish information on coordination mechanisms and efforts undertaken to address child labor.	2020
Government Policies	Adopt a policy via the National Action Plan on Human Trafficking and People Smuggling that addresses all worst forms of child labor, including using children in commercial sexual exploitation.	2016 – 2020
	Integrate child labor elimination and prevention strategies into the Fee Free Basic Education Policy.	2014 – 2020
	Publish activities undertaken to implement the National Action Plan on Human Trafficking and People Smuggling.	2018 – 2020
	Publish activities undertaken to implement the Fee Free Basic Education Policy.	2018 – 2020
	Publish activities undertaken to implement the National Education Action Plan.	2018 – 2020
	Publish activities undertaken to implement the United Nations Pacific Strategy.	2019 – 2020
Social Programs	Implement and fully fund programs to address and eliminate child labor—especially in the agriculture sector—and the worst forms of child labor.	2018 – 2020
	Collect and publish data on the extent and nature of child labor to inform policies and programs.	2013 – 2020
	Eliminate barriers to basic education, including by improving access to school transportation and eliminating school-related fees.	2014 – 2020

MINIMAL ADVANCEMENT – EFFORTS MADE BUT CONTINUED PRACTICE THAT DELAYED ADVANCEMENT

In 2020, Somalia made minimal advancement in efforts to eliminate the worst forms of child labor. The Ministry of Labor and Social Affairs established a Labor Inspectorate and hired and trained 35 labor inspectors. The government also created an Office for the Senior Advisor on Child Labor to lead the drafting and implementation of a National Action Plan to address the worst forms of child labor. Following nationwide school closures to contain the COVID-19 pandemic, the Ministry of Education worked with UNICEF to educate 141,816 children via Internet, television, and radio platforms. However, despite new initiatives to address child labor, Somalia is receiving an assessment of minimal advancement because it continued a practice that delayed advancement in eliminating the worst forms of child labor. During the reporting period, there is evidence that federal and state security forces, as well as clan militias and al-Shabaab, continued to recruit and use children in armed conflict, in violation of national law. Children in Somalia are subjected to the worst forms of child labor, including in armed conflict. Children also perform dangerous tasks in street work. Somali laws do not criminally prohibit child trafficking for labor, commercial sexual exploitation, or the recruitment of children by non-state armed groups.

I. PREVALENCE AND SECTORAL DISTRIBUTION OF CHILD LABOR

Children in Somalia are subjected to the worst forms of child labor, including in armed conflict. (1) Children also perform dangerous tasks in street work. (1,2) Table 1 provides key indicators on children's work and education in Somalia. Data on some of these indicators are not available from the sources used in this report. (3) However, in 2019 the ILO funded Somalia's first labor force survey, which included sectoral information on child labor and IDPs. The results of the survey, which was completed in 2020, will be published in 2021 pending final validation by the ILO. (3,4)

	Street work, including shining shoes, washing cars, driving minibuses, vending, and transporting and selling khat (a legal, amphetamine-like stimulant) (1,2,7-9,11,12)
	Voluntarily recruited children used in hostilities by state armed groups (1,7,10)
Categorical Worst Forms of Child Labor‡	Recruitment of children by state and non-state armed groups for use in armed conflict and supporting roles, including as cooks, porters, and informants, or to operate checkpoints (1,10,13)
	Forced labor in domestic work, agriculture, herding livestock, breaking rocks, selling or transporting khat , begging, and construction work, each sometimes as a result of human trafficking (7,10,11)
	Commercial sexual exploitation, sometimes as a result of human trafficking (10)

‡ Child labor understood as the worst forms of child labor per se under Article 3(a)–(c) of ILO C. 182.

As Somalia passes its third decade of internal armed conflict, the country's IDP population stands at 2.6 million, with unofficial estimates approaching 3.6 million. (7,14) IDPs, including children, remain acutely vulnerable to sex trafficking and forced labor. The closure of international borders to contain the COVID-19 pandemic led to an uptick in irregular migration and human trafficking through unofficial border crossings. (7,15,16) These developments compounded risks to vulnerable populations, including children. (10,13,15) Many were transited through Nairobi’s Eastleigh neighborhood, a known trafficking hub. Research also found traffickers exploit children from Somalia in forced begging in Saudi Arabia and Djibouti. (10) In Puntland, hundreds of children allegedly were exploited in forced labor or sex trafficking. (17)

In 2020, Somalia recorded one of the world's highest number of child abductions by non-state actors. (18,19) State and non-state armed groups recruited 1,716 children during the reporting period. (18,19) Non-state armed group al-Shabaab, which forcibly recruited children as young as age 8 into its ranks, committed a majority of these violations, recruiting 1,407 children in 2020. (19) Al-Shabaab fighters infiltrate madrassas, or Koranic schools, and mosques using deception or coercion tactics to forcibly recruit victims, including children, into sexual slavery and combat and support roles. (10) The group continued the practice of forcing communities to produce male children to serve as child soldiers. (10,18-21) Al-Shabaab imposed a financial penalty on families who refused to cooperate. (7,22) These children planted explosive devices, acted as human shields, conducted assassinations and suicide attacks, gathered intelligence, and provided domestic services. Some girls were also forced into sexual servitude. (7,10,22) In addition, Somalia’s numerous clan militias reportedly recruited children for use in armed conflict. (10,19) Children from minority clan households are uniquely vulnerable to forced recruitment by military groups, including at school. (23)

The reporting period saw continued allegations of grave violations against children linked to federal and state government security forces, including recruitment and use, killing and maiming, and sexual violence. (18,24,25,26) Perpetrators included federal armed forces and security services, as well as regional forces and police in Galmudug, Jubaland, and Puntland. (26) In 2020, the UN verified the recruitment and use of children by the Somali Police Force (SPF, 101 children recruited), the Somali National Army (SNA, 62) and the National Intelligence and Security Agency (5); Jubaland forces (36), Galmudug forces (31), Puntland forces (21), Jubaland police (3), Puntland police (2) and Galmudug police (1); and clan militia (47). (19) Child recruitment is in violation of Somalia's General Order No. 1, which prohibits military personnel from recruiting and employing child soldiers. (10,27)

Prior to the onset of the pandemic, international partners estimated that Somalia's out-of-school population was 3 million, or approximately 60 percent of the school-age population, among the highest rates in the world. (28,29) Access to education further deteriorated amidst recurrent climate shocks, protracted violence, and pandemic-related lockdowns. Somalia did not assess nationwide attendance rates in 2020; however, a UNICEF-funded rapid assessment in Puntland indicates that 7.4 percent of children did not re-enroll once schools reopened. (30) State and non-state forces occupied and damaged schools during the reporting period, further limiting access to educational facilities. (18,31,20,32) The limited number of public schools outside of Mogadishu and high fees charged by private schools also undercut enrollment rates. (7,23) Girls face additional obstacles, including lower prioritization of girls' education and a dearth of qualified female teachers, which negatively affect girls' attendance and learning. (1,33) Pastoralist communities, which account for approximately 25 percent of Somalia's population, face additional impediments to education, as their nomadic existence makes static schools impractical. The primary enrollment rate for nomadic or pastoralist children was 3.1 percent. (1,7) Children and youth among these groups are considered at high risk of exploitation or recruitment into armed groups like al-Shabaab. (7,23) For many IDP children, meanwhile, schools do not exist nearby, and even where donors build temporary learning spaces, IDP children typically experience disrupted education due to constant movement and unpredictable evictions from their camp homes. (1)

MINIMAL ADVANCEMENT – EFFORTS MADE BUT CONTINUED PRACTICE THAT DELAYED ADVANCEMENT

The Federal Government of Somalia (FGS) has not conducted a standalone survey of child work, child labor, or the worst forms of child labor. Somalia also lacks a countrywide birth registration system, further complicating efforts to identify victims of child labor. (7)

The FGS maintains limited territorial control outside populated areas and some forward operating bases. Al-Shabaab occupied rural areas in south-central Somalia. (7) In other parts of the country, essential governance functions were provided by state administrations, including the self-declared independent region of Somaliland in the northwest. (7,10)

II. LEGAL FRAMEWORK FOR CHILD LABOR

Somalia has ratified some key international conventions concerning child labor (Table 3).

Table 3. Ratification of International Conventions on Child Labor

Convention	Ratification
 ILO C. 138, Minimum Age
ILO C. 182, Worst Forms of Child Labor	✓
 UN CRC	✓
UN CRC Optional Protocol on Armed Conflict
UN CRC Optional Protocol on the Sale of Children, Child Prostitution and Child Pornography
 Palermo Protocol on Trafficking in Persons

The government has established laws and regulations related to child labor (Table 4). However, gaps exist in Somalia's legal framework to adequately protect children from the worst forms of child labor, including the lack of a law prohibiting the recruitment of children under age 18.

Table 4. Laws and Regulations on Child Labor

Standard	Meets International Standards	Age	Legislation
Minimum Age for Work	Yes	15	Article 93 of the Labor Code; Article 38(1) of the Private Sector Employees Law (34,35)

‡ Age calculated based on available information (38)

A National Labor Code was finalized by the Ministry of Labor and Social Affairs (MOLSA). As of January 2021, the law was awaiting ratification in the upper house of Parliament. (1,4,7,39) The draft Labor Code prohibits forced or compulsory recruitment of children for use in armed conflict. (33) The Ministry of Women and Human Rights also drafted the Child Rights Bill, which will domesticate the Convention on the Rights of the Child into law during the reporting period. (4,20) The law will protect all children under age 18 from prosecution as an adult and will codify a compulsory education age. (4) It is awaiting cabinet-level approval. (1) Currently, however, the gap between the end of compulsory education and the minimum age for work leaves children age 14 vulnerable to child labor because they are not required to attend school but may not legally work. (12,38)

It is unclear whether laws enacted prior to the 1991 civil war are still in effect in Somalia. However, in 2014, Parliament issued a public statement citing some pre-1991 laws, which suggests that the FGS continued to recognize relevant historic laws. (4) Although the Provisional Constitution of 2012 does not provide a minimum age for employment, the 1972 Labor Code establishes age 15 as the minimum age for work. (34) Moreover, although the Labor Code establishes age 12 as the minimum age for light work and describes the conditions under which it may be undertaken, it neither determines the activities in which light work may be permitted nor prescribes the number of hours per week for light work. Furthermore, there is no comprehensive legislation that prohibits hazardous occupations and activities for children. (34) While the Labor Code enables the publication of a hazardous works list, the government has not determined by regulation the types of hazardous work prohibited for children. (7,34)

Laws prohibiting the commercial sexual exploitation of children are not sufficient, because the use, procuring, and offering of a child for prostitution, pornography, and pornographic performances are not criminally prohibited. (34) Furthermore, it appears that under Article 405 of the Criminal Code, children involved in prostitution are not protected from criminal charges. The Penal Code requires extensive updating, an effort that the international community has attempted to support without success. (34) Many fines in the Code equal less than $1 (585 Aomali Shillings), which does not serve as an effective deterrent. (1,37,40)

The Federal Member States (FMS), which are semi-autonomous regions, maintain separate legal systems. (41) While the Provisional Constitution defines children as persons under the age of 18, the regional constitutions of South West State and Puntland set the age of majority at 15 years. (42,43) Nevertheless, the FGS asserts that the 1972 Labor Code, the Provisional Constitution, and newly enacted laws apply nationally. (1) Somaliland has criminalized human trafficking for the purposes of commercial sexual exploitation, and a draft trafficking in persons law is pending parliamentary approval. (1,13,44,45) Although Puntland State's 2017 penal and criminal procedure codes reportedly meet international standards, research could not find a publicly available version of these laws. (44)

III. ENFORCEMENT OF LAWS ON CHILD LABOR

The government has established institutional mechanisms for the enforcement of laws and regulations on child labor (Table 5). However, gaps exist within the operations of enforcement agencies that may hinder adequate enforcement of child labor laws.

Table 5. Agencies Responsible for Child Labor Law Enforcement

Organization/Agency	Role
Somali Police Force (SPF)	Investigates and enforces laws related to the worst forms of child labor. (46) The Counter-Trafficking and Organized Crime Unit has six officers. The SPF's Airport Police Task Force investigators are trained to recognize trafficked persons based on behavioral indicators and suspicious documents. (13,47) The SPF Criminal Investigation Division continued to operate a unit dedicated to investigating cases of human trafficking for prosecution in 2020. (13,47) However, the unit did not report any human trafficking cases during the reporting period. (13)
Ministry of Labor and Social Affairs (MOLSA)	Investigates and enforces laws related to the worst forms of child labor. MOLSA's regional office in Banaadir employs 35 labor inspectors. (1)
Ministry of Defense	Operates separately from civilian law enforcement bodies, and leads efforts to combat the use of child recruitment and abduction by al-Shabaab. (7) Through the Child Protection Unit (CPU), screens Somali National Army (SNA) units for child soldiers. (7,8) Raises awareness of child soldier issues, and implements standard operating procedures on protecting children associated with armed conflict. (1)
Puntland Security Forces	Investigate and enforce human trafficking laws. (46)
Puntland Ministry of Justice	Prosecutes human trafficking cases. (46)
Somaliland Police	Investigate human trafficking. (47)
Somaliland Attorney General's Office	Prosecutes human trafficking cases. (47)

Labor Law Enforcement

In 2020, labor law enforcement agencies in Somalia took actions to combat child labor (Table 6). However, gaps exist within the operations of MOLSA that may hinder adequate labor law enforcement, including resource allocation.

MINIMAL ADVANCEMENT – EFFORTS MADE BUT CONTINUED PRACTICE THAT DELAYED ADVANCEMENT

MOLSA formally established a Labor Inspectorate in 2020. The ministry hired 35 inspectors for its Benadir regional office and provided them with 2 weeks of training. (1) However, the number of labor inspectors remains insufficient for the size of the Somali workforce, which includes 4.2 million workers. According to the ILO's technical advice of a ratio approaching 1 inspector for every 40,000 workers in less developed economies, Somalia would employ about 105 inspectors. (48,49) The government did not otherwise provide information on number of inspections conducted for inclusion in this report. (1)

MOLSA conducts inspections based on requests sent by other authorities such as the police, and inspectors are authorized to issue fines indirectly upon approval of a senior advisor in the ministry. However, the labor inspectorate does not have any dedicated funding. (1) MOLSA also established an Office for the Senior Advisor on Child Labor under its Department of Legal and Labor Relations during the reporting period. The senior advisor, who oversees a staff of six, is charged with drafting and implementing a National Action Plan (NAP) to address the worst forms of child labor in Somalia. (1,50,51)

Criminal Law Enforcement

Research did not find information on whether criminal law enforcement agencies in Somalia took actions to combat child labor (Table 7).

Table 7. Criminal Law Enforcement Efforts Related to Child Labor

Overview of Criminal Law Enforcement	2019	2020
Initial Training for New Criminal Investigators	3 (7,15)	No (1)

Number of Investigations	0 (7)	Unknown (1)
Number of Violations Found	1,331 (7)	1,735 (1,52)
Number of Prosecutions Initiated	0 (7)	Unknown (1)

Reciprocal Referral Mechanism Exists Between Criminal Authorities and Social Services	No (7)	Yes (1,52)

In 2020, the FGS Attorney General's Office prosecuted a case of forced labor under the Penal Code. The case involved a 12-year-old boy being held as a personal servant. (1) The boy was returned to his parents, and the accused was released from custody. There were no details on whether any violation was found. (1) During the reporting period, the SPF Airport Police Task Force intercepted four female teenagers traveling to Kenya, where they had been promised employment. Authorities also arrested a male accompanying the girls on suspicion of trafficking, and repatriated the girls to their families. (13) In a separate instance, authorities intercepted a 10-year-old girl traveling to the United Arab Emirates who was a potential sex trafficking victim. Authorities rescued the child and arrested the parents. (1, 13) The SPF remained understaffed and undertrained, and lacked the capacity to investigate or enforce laws on the worst forms of child labor. (7) Generally, criminal enforcement authorities lack the capacity and resources to fully implement laws that are technically in force. Resources to assist victims of human trafficking were limited to government-operated Migrant Response Centers in Bosaso, Hargeisa, and Mogadishu. (7, 13) In addition, there were reports that in 2020, the Somali National Police recruited and used at least 99 children in police activities. (19)

A general command order barring the recruitment and use of children by the SNA remained in effect during the reporting period. Nevertheless, government security forces recruited and used children in 2020, highlighting gaps in enforcement and uneven command and control of some units. (53) The Child Protection Unit (CPU) does not refer cases relating to child soldiers to the civilian justice system, but it would theoretically prosecute violations in the military justice system. (7) In 2020, state security forces detained at least 212 children, at times in the company of adults, for their suspected association with non-state armed groups. (19,21,25,53) These children were sometimes interrogated without legal representation and coerced into signing or recording confessions. While 128 children were released, 83 remained in detention by the end of the reporting period. (19,21,36)

MINIMAL ADVANCEMENT – EFFORTS MADE BUT CONTINUED PRACTICE THAT DELAYED ADVANCEMENT

Somalia's FMS command separate police and military forces. These forces are not under the FGS chain of command. (42,54) The federal and regional governments did not provide information on their criminal law enforcement efforts for inclusion in this report. However, research indicates that Galmudug, Jubaland, and Puntland forces recruited children during the reporting period. There is evidence that a brigade of the Jubaland Security Forces, commanded by Abdirashid Janan, forcibly recruited children. (15,19,55) Moreover, the Juvenile Justice Law of Puntland defines a child as anyone age 14 and under; consequently, the government detained and issued prison sentences, including life imprisonment, to children over age 14 for their association with armed groups. (21,56)

Nevertheless, federal and state governments, including Southwest and Galmudug, made efforts to implement the 2012 action plans and 2019 roadmap on ending recruitment and use of children in armed conflict. Somalia's Ministry of Defense, for instance, collaborated with other security forces, including the Darwish and SPF, on child protection-related issues. (15,19) At the same time, the UN has noted an uptick in violations by the SPF and several FMS forces in 2020. There is no evidence that the FGS or member states prosecuted offenders during the reporting period. (15,19)

While research was unable to determine the number of criminal law enforcement investigations conducted during the reporting period, research suggests that 1,735 former child soldiers were demobilized and reintegrated during the reporting period. (1,13,52) However, the government has not established a referral mechanism for other victims of the worst forms of child labor, including forced labor and commercial sexual exploitation. (1,13,52)

IV. COORDINATION OF GOVERNMENT EFFORTS ON CHILD LABOR

The FGS has established mechanisms to coordinate its efforts to address child labor (Table 8). However, gaps exist that hinder the effective coordination of efforts to address child labor, including efforts to address all forms of child labor.

Table 8. Key Mechanisms to Coordinate Government Efforts on Child Labor

Coordinating Body	Role & Description
CPU, Ministry of Defense	Raises awareness of child soldier issues and works with international partners and donors to implement standard operating procedures on protecting children associated with armed conflict. (1,13) Works in concert with the SPF, which is responsible for investigating and enforcing laws against forced child labor and trafficking, commercial sexual exploitation, and use of children in illicit activities. (1) In 2020, the FGS continued to rely on the CPU to screen SNA forces for underage recruits and raise awareness of child soldiers in Somalia more broadly. To this end, CPU screened 4,899 SNA personnel in Galmudug, South West State, Jubaland, and Mogadishu during the reporting period. (1,13) While it did not identify underage soldiers within its ranks, CPU did recover 11 child soldiers from al-Shabaab, some of whom were referred to social services. (1,13) CPU also conducted training and awareness campaigns to prevent the recruitment and use of child soldiers during the reporting period. To this end, the unit continued to disseminate information on preventing the recruitment and use of child soldiers to hundreds of militia, clan, and community leaders across Somalia. (1,13) CPU bolstered its relationships with FGS and with Federal Member States (FMS) through the expansion of a National Children Associated with Armed Conflict Working Group, which met throughout the reporting period. CPU also coordinated with the Ministry of Women and Human Rights, which facilitates referrals of demobilized child soldiers from CPU to various NGOs. (1,7,13)
Children Associated with Armed Conflict Working Group (CAACWG)	Implements the Child Soldier Action Plan and the Action Plan to End the Killing and Maiming of Children in Contravention of International Law. (7) Co-chaired by CPU and UNICEF; includes other Ministry of Defense officials, representatives of the Ministry of Women and other relevant ministries, and UN officials. (42,57) In 2020, the government expanded the scope of CAACWG by including officials from FMS; discussions covered the implementation of action plans on eliminating the use of children in armed conflict. (7,13)

Coordinating Body	Role & Description
Human Trafficking Task Forces	The FGS, Puntland, and Somaliland maintain different coordinating bodies to combat human trafficking. The Office of the Special Envoy for Children and Migrants' Rights, which includes a Task Force on Human Trafficking and Smuggling, leads FGS' anti-trafficking efforts. (22) The task force, which is led by the Ministry of Interior and Federal Affairs, took steps to improve coordination across the FGS. (58) Separately, Puntland's Counter-Trafficking Board leads the state's anti-trafficking efforts. Somaliland's Counter-Human Trafficking Agency coordinates the development of legislation and collection of data in the semi-autonomous region. (22) Resources to assist victims of human trafficking were limited to government-operated Migrant Response Centers in Bosaso, Hargeisa, and Mogadishu during the reporting period. As of January 2021, the FGS special envoy for children and migrants' rights was working from Kenya and possibly had a reduced role overseeing efforts on migration, human trafficking, and reintegration across the state and regional governments. (13)
Somali National Tripartite Labor Committee	Manages the implementation of the Labor Code and the National Employment Policy. An ILO-recognized body, meets quarterly to review progress and has taken on child labor as an area of special concern. (7) Establishment of the MOLSA-led Somali National Tripartite Labor Committee, and the inclusion of child labor as a special focus, has enabled the ministry to coordinate efforts within the government and between the government and the private sector. (7) Although the government officially established the Somali National Tripartite Labor Committee in 2019, there is no evidence that it was active in 2020. (1)

MOLSA coordinates informally with the Ministry of Women and Human Rights and the Ministry of Defense on child labor-related issues. Other law enforcement agencies include the SPF, the National Intelligence and Security Agency, and the Immigration and Naturalization Directorate. (1) Although these agencies loosely coordinate their activities, there is no formal coordination mechanism to address other forms of child labor, including forced labor in domestic work, agriculture, and herding livestock. During the reporting period, coordination declined due to the pandemic and political crises, including a cabinet reshuffle, the ouster of the country's prime minister, and preparations for national elections. (13)

The FGS Ministry of Internal Security, along with other cabinet-level entities, previously chaired a High-Level Task Force on Migration, which included a working group on human trafficking, but the task force was inactive this year. In November and December 2020, Galmudug, Hirshabelle, and South West State participated in a commission led by the Inter-governmental Authority on Development to coordinate migration resources. (13) Puntland and Somaliland independently instituted their own laws and resource mechanisms without coordinating with the FGS. (13)

V. GOVERNMENT POLICIES ON CHILD LABOR

The government has established policies related to child labor (Table 9). However, policy gaps exist that hinder efforts to address child labor, including the lack of a policy covering all worst forms of child labor.

Table 9. Key Policies Related to Child Labor

Policy	Description
National Employment Policy	Provides the Somali National Tripartite Labor Committee with a roadmap for improving labor conditions, including stipulations related to child labor. The policy was designed with ILO support under a Joint UN Project on Youth Employment in Somalia and was adopted in February 2019. (7,39) In 2020 MOLSA, in consultation with ILO, published a macroeconomic analysis of the labor market in Somalia and used the data to inform a draft Child Labor National Action Plan. (7,8,59,60)
Child Soldier Action Plan	Establishes a strategy for identifying and removing children from SNA ranks through education and monitoring of military camps. (1,61) In 2012, the FGS committed to two UN Action Plans to end grave violations against children, including recruitment and use, killing, and maiming. In October 2019, the government committed to a UN Roadmap to expedite the implementation of the two action plans. (62,63) The adoption of the roadmap will address grave violations, including recruitment and use. (18) In 2020, 1,735 children previously associated with armed groups received UNICEF reintegration support under the roadmap. (31,24,52)

Policy	Description
Somalia Social Protection Policy	Develops and strengthens components of a national social protection system, including safety net programs. Provisions include a guaranteed income floor for vulnerable households and families with children under age 5. (64-66) The tiered policy is designed to protect the poorest strata of society from sinking into destitution, prevent the moderately poor from sliding into extreme poverty, and promote the livelihoods of at-risk populations. (7) The policy focuses, in part, on mitigating the vulnerability of IDPs and other populations to gender-based violence and human trafficking. The policy remained in effect during the reporting period, with benchmarks measuring progress over a 20-year time span. (13)
National Development Plan (2020–2024)†	Broad-based security and poverty reduction policy, with provisions for ending all forms of violence against children, including child labor, and developing and implementing a National Child Labor Policy. Under the National Development Plan's Education Sector Strategic Plan, the Ministry of Education launched a primary school curriculum and established a national secondary school graduation examination. (67,68) In 2020, the Ministry of Labor drafted a work plan to develop a Child Labor Action Plan. (1)
United Nations Strategic Framework (2017–2020)	Established a broad strategic framework in support of humanitarian, development, political, and security reform in Somalia. Included measures to prevent child recruitment, rehabilitate former child soldiers, and mitigate human rights violations, including the arbitrary arrest of children. (69) The framework targeted improved access to child soldier reintegration services and implementation of the 2020 Action Plans on Children Associated with Armed Conflict and Conflict Related Sexual Violence. (69) The government also undertook CPU capacity building through training and enhanced screening measures. (31,22) The framework also sought to establish a nationwide social protection system, which was operationalized in 2020. (64,65)

‡ The government has other policies that may have addressed child labor issues or had an impact on child labor. (70)

In 2020, MOLSA issued a national workplan under the auspices of its Office for the Senior Advisor on Child Labor. (1) To this end, MOLSA completed a draft child labor work plan, which calls for the deployment of a national child labor prevalence survey and numerous stakeholder meetings, including with line ministries from Somalia's FMS. The NAP will culminate with the development of a Child Labor National Action Plan. (50,51) Although the government has some policies that address child soldiers, research found no evidence of any policies to address child labor in agriculture, industry, street work, or domestic work.

VI. SOCIAL PROGRAMS TO ADDRESS CHILD LABOR

In 2020, the government funded and participated in programs that include the goal of eliminating child labor (Table 10). However, gaps exist in these social programs, including in their capacity to address the problem in all sectors.

Table 10. Key Social Programs to Address Child Labor

Program	Description
Defectors Reintegration Program	FGS program in coordination with UNICEF that rehabilitates and reintegrates former combatants, emphasizing the specific needs of former child soldiers, including demobilized female combatants and their dependents. (52,71) Centers located in Baidoa, Beledweyne, Kismayo, and Mogadishu provide accommodation, medical care, psychological counseling, education, and vocational training to former combatants. (52,72) With the Ministry of Defense, facilitated the release and handover of 1,735 children formerly associated with armed forces and armed groups during the reporting period. (52)
Joint Program on Youth Employment in Somalia	Joint program by the Food and Agriculture Organization, ILO, UNDR, UN-Habitat, and UN Industrial Development Organization that seeks to improve sustainable employment opportunities for youth and develop their skills to respond to needs in the labor market. (73) In 2019, coordinated with the Ministry of Labor and the Ministry of Planning to conduct a labor force survey, resulting in the development of a National Employment Policy. (59,60,74) Research was unable to determine whether activities were undertaken to implement the program during the reporting period.

Program	Description
Donor-Funded Programs	Programs that aim to improve the resiliency of vulnerable families. The $267 million UNICEF Country Program (2018–2020), implemented with FGS support, aimed to ensure safe, equitable, and quality education for children through a child protection framework. (75) In response to widespread, pandemic-induced school closures in 2020, the Ministry of Education worked with UNICEF to develop Somalia's "COVID-19 Education Response" and safe school re-opening strategies. These plans enabled 141,816 children to continue their education through internet, television, and radio platforms. (52) UNICEF partnerships with the Ministry of Defense and the Defectors Reintegration Program also facilitated the release of 1,735 children formerly associated with armed groups during the reporting period. These children received reintegration support, including family reunification and access to safe shelters, medical care, and formal and informal education. (52,76) UNICEF also provided more than 64,840 children with comprehensive education services, including safe learning spaces, and supported 11,366 children through school feeding programs. (52,76) Moreover, the $600 million WFP Country Strategic Plan (2019–2021) provided both conditional and unconditional food or cash-based food assistance to vulnerable children. (77) To address high female absenteeism, UNICEF also distributed menstruation kits and provided hygiene health training to 1,900 adolescent girls. In addition, UNICEF trained 776 teachers in pedagogic and psychosocial skills, and provided financial incentives to increase retention. (52) UNICEF's awareness-raising campaigns, which focused on prevention of child recruitment, child marriage, female genital mutilation, and gender-based violence, reached 92,240 people during the reporting period. Finally, UNICEF registered 11,778 unaccompanied and separated children, and provided them with family tracing and reunification services. (52) UNICEF also piloted the rollout of a case management and data management system in Puntland and Somaliland. (52)
Peace Building Fund	$2 million UN-funded project that supports the prevention of child recruitment and the reintegration of former child soldiers. (63) The project, announced in October 2019 in Baidoa, the capital of South West State, will supplement SNA child soldier prevention and screening methods. Children identified will be released, rehabilitated, and reintegrated into society. (20,22,63) Research was unable to determine whether activities were undertaken to implement the program during the reporting period.
ACT to Protect Children Affected by Armed Conflict†	FGS awareness-raising initiative launched under the auspices of a global UN advocacy campaign highlighting children in armed conflict. (78) Throughout the year, the CPU continued to disseminate radio and print media content regarding the prevention of child recruitment and conscription in armed conflict. (1,13)

‡ The government had other social programs that may have included the goal of eliminating or preventing child labor. (79)

Although the FGS implemented programs to address child soldiers and child trafficking, existing programs were insufficient to address the scope of the problem, including street work and forced labor in agriculture.

VII. SUGGESTED GOVERNMENT ACTIONS TO ELIMINATE CHILD LABOR

Based on the reporting above, suggested actions are identified that would advance the elimination of child labor in Somalia (Table 11).

Table 11. Suggested Government Actions to Eliminate Child Labor

Area	Suggested Action	Year(s) Suggested
Legal Framework	Accede to the UN CRC Optional Protocol on Armed Conflict.	2013 – 2020
	Accede to the UN CRC Optional Protocol on the Sale of Children, Child Prostitution, and Child Pornography.	2013 – 2020
	Accede to the Palermo Protocol on Trafficking in Persons.	2013 – 2020
	Clarify whether the pre-1991 Labor Code is still in effect under the Federal Government of Somalia.	2009 – 2020
	Criminally prohibit child trafficking for the purpose of labor and sexual exploitation.	2009 – 2020
	Criminally prohibit using, procuring, and offering a child for prostitution, pornography, and pornographic performances.	2015 – 2020
	Ensure that penalties for the commercial sexual exploitation of children are sufficiently stringent to deter violations.	2013 – 2020
	Ensure that the law protects children involved in commercial sexual exploitation from criminal charges.	2011 – 2020
	Criminally prohibit the use of children in illicit activities.	2009 – 2020
	Criminally prohibit the recruitment of children under age 18 by non-state armed groups.	2016 – 2020
	Raise the compulsory education age to be commensurate with the minimum age for work.	2009 – 2020

Area	Suggested Action	Year(s) Suggested
Legal Framework	Ensure that Puntland's laws define a child as anyone under age 18, in accordance with international standards.	2016 – 2020
	Ensure that a legal framework on child labor is in place that includes a minimum age for hazardous work; determines the activities in which light work may be permitted and prescribes the number of hours per week for light work; and, in consultation with employers' and workers' organizations, determines the types of hazardous work prohibited for children.	2009 – 2020
Enforcement	Report labor law enforcement information on the number of violations found, prosecutions initiated, and convictions achieved in all regions of Somalia.	2016 – 2020
	Ensure that criminal law enforcement officials receive sufficient training and resources to investigate, prosecute, and convict violators of the worst forms of child labor.	2012 – 2020
	Cease the recruitment and use of child soldiers by the SPF, the National Intelligence and Security Agency, and the SNA, as well as Galmudug, Jubaland, and Puntland forces and all allied militia. Investigate, prosecute, and punish, as appropriate, all commanders who recruit and use children.	2015 – 2020
	Ensure that children associated with armed groups are not detained with adults and refer these children to social services providers. Cease the practice of sentencing children to long prison terms for associating with armed groups.	2015 – 2020
	Establish a referral mechanism between the labor inspectorate and social welfare services for children subjected to child labor.	2014 – 2020
	Ensure that the labor inspectorate is funded, and increase the number of labor inspectors to meet the ILO's technical advice.	2020
	Establish a referral mechanism between the SPF and social welfare services for children engaged in forced labor and commercial sexual exploitation.	2014 – 2020
Coordination	Establish coordinating mechanisms to combat all forms of child labor.	2009 – 2020
Government Policies	Adopt policies to address child labor in agriculture, industry, street work, and domestic work.	2018 – 2020
Social Programs	Enhance efforts to eliminate barriers and make education accessible and safe for all children by removing all armed groups from educational facilities, constructing schools outside Mogadishu, removing enrollment fees, and ensuring nomadic and rural children have access.	2013 – 2020
	Develop programs to address child labor, such as in street work and forced labor in agriculture. Expand existing programs to address the scope of children in armed conflict.	2009 – 2020
	Ensure all social programs are implemented as intended.	2019 – 2020
	Adopt a countrywide birth registration system to facilitate identification of child labor violations.	2019 – 2020

In 2020, South Africa made minimal advancement in efforts to eliminate the worst forms of child labor. The Government of South Africa increased its Child Support Grant, providing an additional $35 per month on top of the existing $33 per month to low-income recipients with children. However, children in South Africa are subjected to the worst forms of child labor, including in commercial sexual exploitation and forced begging, each sometimes as the result of human trafficking. Labor inspectors are not authorized to assess penalties, and social programs are not sufficient to address the scope of child labor. In addition, barriers to education remain, especially among migrant children who lack proper identification documents.

I. PREVALENCE AND SECTORAL DISTRIBUTION OF CHILD LABOR

Children in South Africa are subjected to the worst forms of child labor, including in commercial sexual exploitation and forced begging, each sometimes as the result of human trafficking. (1-4) Table I provides key indicators on children's work and education in South Africa. Data on some of these indicators are not available from the sources used in this report.

Table I. Statistics on Children's Work and Education

Children	Age	Percent
Working (% and population)	5 to 14	Unavailable
Attending School (%)	5 to 14	Unavailable
Combining Work and School (%)	7 to 14	Unavailable
Primary Completion Rate (%)		90.3

Source for primary completion rate: Data from 2018, published by UNESCO Institute for Statistics, 2021. (5)
Data were unavailable from International Labor Organization's analysis, 2021. (6)

Based on a review of available information, Table 2 provides an overview of children's work by sector and activity.

Table 2. Overview of Children's Work by Sector and Activity

Sector/Industry	Activity
Agriculture	Farming, activities unknown (7-10) Fishing (10)
Industry	Factory work, activities unknown (11)
Services	Domestic work (8,10) Food service (2-4,10,12,13) Street work, including transportation services, vending, and begging (2-4,8,10,12,13)
Categorical Worst Forms of Child Labor†‡	Commercial sexual exploitation, sometimes as a result of human trafficking (2-5,10,14-22) Use in illicit activities, including in gang-related activity (23,24) Use in the production of pornography (13,14,25,26) Forced labor in domestic work, agriculture, food service, street vending, and begging, each sometimes as a result of human trafficking (2-4,10,12,13)

† Determined by national law or regulation as hazardous and, as such, relevant to Article 3(d) of ILO C. 182.

‡ Child labor understood as the worst forms of child labor per se under Article 3(a)–(c) of ILO C. 182.

South Africa is a source, transit, and destination country for child trafficking, with regular reports of children being rescued from human traffickers and sexual exploitation. Young children, mostly girls between the ages of 10 and 14 from poor rural areas, are exploited as prostitutes and for other commercial purposes, including domestic work, by human trafficking rings in urban centers such as Bloemfontein, Cape Town, Durban, and Johannesburg. (2-4,10,12,13,27)

According to the ILO in South Africa, an estimated 1.39 million people have been forced into commercial sexual work, an estimated 40–50 percent of whom are children. Trafficked girls are forced into commercial sexual exploitation, while boys who are trafficked are usually forced to work in agriculture, begging, food service, and street vending. (10,28,29) Orphaned children in South Africa are especially vulnerable to human trafficking, including children with disabilities who are also victims of forced begging. (10,28,29)

In South Africa, parents at a given school may vote to pass a resolution authorizing the collection of school fees during a given year. (30) If such a resolution passes, the government waives tuition for the poorest 60 percent of the student body; however, in practice, some families must still pay for uniforms and other school-related expenses, which may restrict children’s access to education. (10,11,30-32)

There is also evidence of children being denied education due to lack of documentation. Since children need identity documents to write their final high school examinations, students who lack the requisite documentation are denied the opportunity to take these tests. (10,31-34) In accordance with the Department of Basic Education's admissions policy, a student application must be accompanied by the child's birth certificate; however, should a parent or caregiver not be able to produce this document, the student must be conditionally admitted to the school until a copy of the birth certificate can be obtained from the Department of Home Affairs. (10,31-34) Despite this policy, there have been reported cases of children being denied access to education because they lack abridged birth registration certificates. While this is true for all children, including South African citizens, it is difficult for refugees and migrants to obtain the appropriate identity documents. (10,31-34)

II. LEGAL FRAMEWORK FOR CHILD LABOR

South Africa has ratified all key international conventions concerning child labor (Table 3).

Table 3. Ratification of International Conventions on Child Labor

Convention	Ratification
 ILO C. 138, Minimum Age	✓
ILO C. 182, Worst Forms of Child Labor	✓
 UN CRC	✓
UN CRC Optional Protocol on Armed Conflict	✓
UN CRC Optional Protocol on the Sale of Children, Child Prostitution and Child Pornography	✓
 Palermo Protocol on Trafficking in Persons	✓

The government has established laws and regulations related to child labor (Table 4). However, gaps exist in South Africa’s legal framework to adequately protect children from the worst forms of child labor, including the prohibition of the use of children by non-state armed groups in armed conflict.

Table 4. Laws and Regulations on Child Labor

Standard	Meets International Standards	Age	Legislation
Minimum Age for Work	Yes	15	Article 43 of the Basic Conditions of Employment Act (BCEA) (35)
Minimum Age for Hazardous Work	Yes	18	Regulations on Hazardous Work by Children in South Africa (36)
Identification of Hazardous Occupations or Activities Prohibited for Children	Yes		Regulations on Hazardous Work by Children in South Africa; Articles 4–10 of the Basic Conditions of Employment Act (36,37)

Standard	Meets International Standards	Age	Legislation
Prohibition of Forced Labor	Yes		Article 48 of the BCEA; Article 13 of the Constitution; Article 141 of the Children's Amendment Act; Section 4–5 of the Prevention and Combating of Trafficking in Persons Act of 2013 (37-40)
Prohibition of Child Trafficking	Yes		Article 141 of the Children's Amendment Act (39)
Prohibition of Commercial Sexual Exploitation of Children	Yes		Article 141 of the Children's Amendment Act; Chapter 3 of Criminal Law Amendment Act 32 (39,41)
Prohibition of Using Children in Illicit Activities	Yes		Article 141 of the Children's Amendment Act (39)
Minimum Age for Voluntary State Military Recruitment	Yes	18	Article 52 of the Defense Act (42)
Prohibition of Compulsory Recruitment of Children by (State) Military	N/A*		Article 52 of the Defense Act (42)
Prohibition of Military Recruitment by Non-state Armed Groups	No
Compulsory Education Age	Yes	15	Chapter 2, Articles 1–5 of the South African Schools Act (43)
Free Public Education	No		Chapter 2, Article 5 and Chapter 4, Article 39 of the South African Schools Act (43)

* No conscription (42)

Article 39 of the South African Schools Act permits any public school to charge fees to ensure a sufficient operating budget if a majority of parents at that school vote to do so at the beginning of the year. These school fees create a barrier for students to attend school. (43)

III. ENFORCEMENT OF LAWS ON CHILD LABOR

The government has established institutional mechanisms for the enforcement of laws and regulations on child labor (Table 5). However, gaps exist within the operations of enforcement agencies that may hinder adequate enforcement of their child labor laws.

Table 5. Agencies Responsible for Child Labor Law Enforcement

Organization/Agency	Role
South African Department of Employment and Labor (SADOL)	Enforces child labor laws by conducting inspections of worksites and operates 127 labor centers throughout the country where complaints may be lodged. (9,44) Refers victims to social workers and reports violations to the South African Police Service (SAPS) for further investigation and to the South African Department of Justice and Constitutional Development (DOJ) for prosecution. (9,45,46) Convenes the Provincial Child Labor Inter-Sectoral Committee and coordinates child labor programs. (9)
South African Police Service (SAPS)	Enforces the legislative mandate under the Children's Act to investigate cases involving the worst forms of child labor. (47,48) Through its Human Trafficking Desk, monitors and evaluates police efforts to investigate human trafficking crimes, trains investigators, and refers human trafficking cases to provincial SAPS units. Operates victim-friendly rooms in police stations across the country. (1)
South African Department of Justice and Constitutional Development (DOJ)	Enforces criminal laws on the worst forms of child labor. (1) Through its Children's Court, focuses on children accused of or victimized by crimes, and cases involving child abuse, abandonment, and neglect. (49)
National Prosecution Authority (NPA)	Prosecutes criminal cases, including cases of human trafficking and other worst forms of child labor. (50)

According to South African Department of Employment and Labor (SADOL) officials, there were 30 children removed from 4 farms in the North West Province and Free State in 2020. While no one bore witness to the children working on the farms, SADOL officials were able to note that the children were not attending school, which prompted the authorities to refer the children to social services. (10)

Labor Law Enforcement

In 2020, labor law enforcement agencies in South Africa took actions to combat child labor (Table 6). However, gaps exist within the operations of SADOL that may hinder adequate labor law enforcement, including the authority to assess penalties.

Table 6. Labor Law Enforcement Efforts Related to Child Labor

Overview of Labor Law Enforcement	2019	2020
Labor Inspectorate Funding	$41 million (11)	$45 million (51)
Number of Labor Inspectors	1,378 (11)	1,369 (51)
Inspectorate Authorized to Assess Penalties	No (37)	No (37)
Initial Training for New Labor Inspectors	Yes (11)	Yes (10)
Training on New Laws Related to Child Labor	N/A (11)	N/A (10)
Refresher Courses Provided	Yes (11)	Yes (10)
Number of Labor Inspections Conducted	218,732 (11)	227,990 (51)
Number Conducted at Worksite	Unknown (11)	Unknown (10)
Number of Child Labor Violations Found	15 (11)	Unknown (10)
Number of Child Labor Violations for Which Penalties Were Imposed	Unknown (11)	Unknown (10)
Number of Child Labor Penalties Imposed that Were Collected	Unknown (11)	Unknown (10)
Routine Inspections Conducted	Yes (11)	Yes (10)
Routine Inspections Targeted	Yes (11)	Yes (10)
Unannounced Inspections Permitted	Yes (37)	Yes (37)
Unannounced Inspections Conducted	Yes (11)	Yes (10)
Complaint Mechanism Exists	Yes (11)	Yes (10)
Reciprocal Referral Mechanism Exists Between Labor Authorities and Social Services	Yes (11)	Yes (10)

The number of inspectors is insufficient to carry out inspections, as was the training that inspectors received to identify and investigate child labor trafficking. (10,11) According to the ILO's technical advice of a ratio approaching 1 inspector for every 15,000 workers in developing economies, South Africa would employ about 1,479 inspectors. (52,53)

Sources indicate that the inspectorate has limited resources to carry out its mandates. There is also concern that it is unable to attract the best candidates or specialists due to its insufficient budget allocation. (10) Labor inspectors had difficulty accessing farms due to fear of entering private property and concerns for their personal safety when conducting legal inspections. (1,10)

Criminal Law Enforcement

In 2020, criminal law enforcement agencies in South Africa took actions to combat child labor (Table 7). However, gaps exist within the operations of the criminal enforcement agencies that may hinder adequate criminal law enforcement, including a lack of training for criminal investigators to identify and investigate child labor trafficking.

Table 7. Criminal Law Enforcement Efforts Related to Child Labor

Overview of Criminal Law Enforcement	2019	2020
Initial Training for New Criminal Investigators	Yes (11)	Yes (10)
Training on New Laws Related to the Worst Forms of Child Labor	Yes (11)	N/A (10)
Refresher Courses Provided	Yes (11)	Yes (10)
Number of Investigations	22 (11)	15 (51)
Number of Violations Found	5 (11)	5 (51)
Number of Prosecutions Initiated	3 (11)	3 (51)
Number of Convictions	2 (11)	2 (51)
Imposed Penalties for Violations Related to the Worst Forms of Child Labor	Unknown	Unknown (10)
Reciprocal Referral Mechanism Exists Between Criminal Authorities and Social Services	Yes (11)	Yes (10)

Research indicates that, despite assistance from the NGO community with the operation of call centers as part of their complaint mechanism, the South African Police Services (SAPS) experienced difficulty properly identifying victims of human trafficking during law enforcement activities. (4,10)

IV. COORDINATION OF GOVERNMENT EFFORTS ON CHILD LABOR

The government has established mechanisms to coordinate its efforts to address child labor (Table 8). However, gaps exist that hinder the effective coordination of efforts to address child labor, including efficacy in accomplishing mandates.

Table 8. Key Mechanisms to Coordinate Government Efforts on Child Labor

Coordinating Body	Role & Description
Implementation Committee on Child Labor	Monitors and supports advocacy and awareness raising, mainstreaming of child labor into government policies, and the implementation of child labor programs, legislation, and enforcement. (1) Chaired by SADOL and includes representatives from commercial agriculture, trade unions, and government agencies, including SAPS. Also includes provincial-level child labor coordinating structures. (1) Research was unable to determine whether actions were undertaken by the committee during the reporting period.
Provincial Child Labor Inter-Sectoral Support Groups	Facilitates the collection of data and prevention of all types of child labor at the provincial level. Established by SADOL and managed by child labor coordinators in each province; members include the SADOL Head Office, SADOL Provincial Child Labor Coordinators, DOJ, NPA, the Department of Home Affairs (DHA), the Department of Social Development (DSD), the Department of Education, NGOs, and labor federations. (54)
National Trafficking in Persons Task Team	Coordinates the government's anti-human trafficking efforts, including overseeing strategy, training, and policy decisions made at the provincial level in Gauteng, Mpumalanga, KwaZulu-Natal, the Western Cape, Limpopo, and the Eastern Cape. Led by NPA's Sexual Offenses and Community Affairs Unit and DOJ's Victim Support Directorate. Includes representatives from SADOL, DSD, and DHA, and from other national law enforcement agencies. (11) In October 2020, in partnership with IOM, the government launched the Standard Operating Procedure (SOP) for Integrated Assistance to Victims of Trafficking, designed to help all sectors assist suspected victims of human trafficking with a streamlined and victim-oriented approach. (51)

There has been a significant increase in anti-labor trafficking coordination, including the SADOL's newly instituted mandatory trafficking in persons training and a trafficking in persons manual. This is a direct result of the Government of South Africa's coordination efforts to encourage SADOL to demonstrate leadership on trafficking in persons. (55)

V. GOVERNMENT POLICIES ON CHILD LABOR

The government has established policies related to child labor (Table 9). However, policy gaps exist that hinder efforts to address child labor, including mainstreaming child labor issues into relevant policies.

Table 9. Key Policies Related to Child Labor

Policy	Description
National Child Labor Program of Action for South Africa, Phase IV (2017–2021)	Serves as the primary policy instrument to prevent and eliminate child labor in South Africa. (1) Promotes government activities by outlining the mandate of each agency to combat child labor. (56) Provides a reciprocal referral mechanism through which SAPS informs SADOL of suspected child labor cases. (9) Identifies lead agencies in the program, including the departments of Labor, Basic Education, Justice and Constitutional Development, Social Development, and Water and Sanitation; SAPS; NPA; and Statistics South Africa. (1,56) Does not include a timeframe to meet identifiable benchmarks or to assess the progress and adequacy of implementation efforts. In addition, research was unable to determine whether actions were undertaken to implement this policy during the reporting period.
Prevention and Combating of Trafficking in Persons National Policy Framework	Outlines the development of procedures and training programs for police and labor inspectors on human trafficking for labor exploitation, including child labor. Enhances social assistance programs to address the needs of child victims of human trafficking, including psychological and social support, food and shelter, school and community reintegration, and placement and protection in child- and youth-care centers. (57) Set to be updated every 3 years. (58) Research was unable to determine whether actions were undertaken to implement this policy during the reporting period.

SADOL continued to oversee the National Child Labor Program of Action, the national plan on the elimination of child labor in South Africa that was adopted in 2003; however, it is not clear if the coordinating mechanisms convened during 2020. (51)

South Africa

MINIMAL ADVANCEMENT

The government has not included child labor elimination and prevention strategies in the South African Education Action Plan or the National Development Plan. (59,60)

VI. SOCIAL PROGRAMS TO ADDRESS CHILD LABOR

In 2020, the government funded and participated in programs that include the goal of eliminating or preventing child labor (Table 10). However, gaps exist in these social programs, including the adequacy of programs to address the full scope of the problem.

Table 10. Key Social Programs to Address Child Labor

Program	Description
Child Support Grant†	Led by DSD and the South African Social Security Agency, provides monthly direct cash transfers to primary caregivers who have vulnerable children. Helps alleviate economic pressures and lower the cost of raising a child. Serves as an important instrument of social protection in South Africa, reaching more than 10 million South African children each month. (1,10) In 2020, the government provided an additional $35 per month on top of the existing $33 per month to low-income recipients with children, while also expanding the unemployment social grant for citizens who are out of work. (10,61)
Foster Care Grants†	Encourages children in the foster care system to remain in school as a preventive measure to combat child labor. The government continued the program in 2020. (9-11,62)
Food Relief Program†	Run by DSD and the South African Social Security Agency, provides food assistance to vulnerable and orphaned children, and child-headed households with insufficient income. (63) Continued to operate in 2020. To date, has financially supported 140 community nutrition development centers and provided food to 500,000 people. (62) Supplemented by the National School Nutrition Program, which provides school meals to vulnerable primary and secondary school children from poor families and served approximately 88 percent of vulnerable children in 2020. (1,9,11,62,64,65)
Shelters and Care Centers†	DSD program that funds 14 shelters and oversees 17 NGO-operated temporary safe care centers for victims of abuse and human trafficking, including children. Services rendered to victims included psychological interventions, health care, skills development, and education. (3)
Awareness-Raising Campaigns†	Conducts trainings on anti-human trafficking initiatives and regulations governing social services providers. In October 2020, SADOL labor inspectors participated in at least one training session concerning the SOP for Integrated Assistance to Victims of Trafficking. (11,51)

† Program is funded by the Government of South Africa

Although South Africa has programs that target child labor, and data collected and reported by the government state that child labor is decreasing, the scope and reach of social programs are insufficient to address the child labor problem as a whole. (10,66) Sources also indicate that around 1.8 million children who are most in need of the Child Support Grant have reported difficulties in accessing the required application documents. (9,10)

VII. SUGGESTED GOVERNMENT ACTIONS TO ELIMINATE CHILD LABOR

Based on the reporting above, suggested actions are identified that would advance the elimination of child labor in South Africa (Table 11).

Table 11. Suggested Government Actions to Eliminate Child Labor

Area	Suggested Action	Year(s) Suggested
Legal Framework	Ensure that the law criminally prohibits the recruitment of children under age 18 by non-state armed groups.	2016 – 2020
	Establish by law free basic public education.	2018 – 2020
Enforcement	Authorize the labor inspectorate to assess penalties.	2015 – 2020
	Publish information on funding and the number of child labor inspections conducted at worksites.	2018 – 2020
	Increase the number of labor inspectors to meet the ILO's technical advice.	2017 – 2020
	Ensure that sufficient resources are provided to the labor inspectorate to conduct inspections, including recruiting new inspectors and inspections in which child labor is known to occur.	2018 – 2020
	Ensure that law enforcement is trained to properly identify victims of the worst forms of child labor and human trafficking.	2017 – 2020
	Ensure that labor inspectors are provided adequate protection and security when conducting labor inspections on private property.	2020

Area	Suggested Action	Year(s) Suggested
Coordination	Ensure that all coordination bodies are able to carry out their intended mandates.	2017 – 2020
Government Policies	Include a timeframe and benchmarks in the National Child Labor Program of Action for South Africa to properly monitor and assess the progress of efforts to combat child labor.	2017 – 2020
	Integrate child labor elimination and prevention strategies into the South African Education Action Plan and the National Development Plan.	2013 – 2020
	Ensure that all child labor policies are implemented and are able to carry out their mandates.	2020
Social Programs	Ensure that migrants and refugees have equal access to education, and make additional efforts to provide all children with birth documentation.	2016 – 2020
	Collect and publish data on the extent and nature of child labor to inform policies and programs.	2018 – 2020
	Ensure access to education for all children by eliminating school-related fees for basic education.	2009 – 2020
	Institute programs to address the worst forms of child labor, including in agriculture, domestic work, and commercial sexual exploitation.	2010 – 2020
	Ensure that children who qualify for the Child Support Grant are able to access the program's application material.	2020

NO ADVANCEMENT – EFFORTS MADE BUT COMPLICIT IN FORCED CHILD LABOR

In 2020, South Sudan is receiving an assessment of no advancement. Despite initiatives to address child labor, South Sudan is assessed as having made no advancement because it demonstrated a practice of being complicit in the use of forced child labor in more than isolated incidents. Military forces continued to recruit children, sometimes forcibly, to fight opposition groups. Otherwise, the government made efforts by signing into law a United Nations comprehensive action plan to end grave violations against children, inaugurating a juvenile court, and deploying a distance-learning program that reached 1.5 million children. Children in South Sudan are subjected to the worst forms of child labor, including use in armed conflict and forced labor in cattle herding. The government did not hold perpetrators of child labor accountable and has yet to ratify the Palermo Protocol on Trafficking in Persons. In addition, police continued to arrest and imprison children engaged in commercial sexual exploitation rather than treating them as victims.

I. PREVALENCE AND SECTORAL DISTRIBUTION OF CHILD LABOR

Children in South Sudan are subjected to the worst forms of child labor, including use in armed conflict and forced labor in cattle herding. (1-10) Table I provides key indicators on children's work and education in South Sudan.

Table I. Statistics on Children's Work and Education

Children	Age	Percent
Working (% and population)	10 to 14	45.6 (463,624)
Attending School (%)	6 to 14	31.5
Combining Work and School (%)	10 to 14	10.9
Primary Completion Rate (%)		27.4

Sector/Industry	Activity
Categorical Worst Forms of Child Labor†	Forced labor in brickmaking, cattle herding, gold mining, and market vending (14,16,19-21)
	Commercial sexual exploitation, sometimes as a result of human trafficking (2,14,16,19)
	Forced recruitment of children by state and non-state armed groups for use in armed conflict (14,21-23)

† Determined by national law or regulation as hazardous and, as such, relevant to Article 3(d) of ILO C. 182.

‡ Child labor understood as the worst forms of child labor per se under Article 3(a)–(c) of ILO C. 182.

The 2018 Agreement on the Resolution of the Conflict in the Republic of South Sudan (R-ARCSS) mandates the release and reintegration of child soldiers by all armed groups. (14,24) During the reporting period, signatories to the R-ARCSS recommitted to a UN Action Plan to end and prevent all grave violations against children, including recruitment and use in armed conflict. (25) Despite this commitment, evidence suggests that the South Sudan People's Defense Force (SSPDF), the national army of South Sudan, continued to forcibly recruit children in 2020. (10,22,26) The government continued to participate in child soldier release and reintegration ceremonies, but it did not hold SSPDF officers criminally accountable for the unlawful recruitment and use of children. (23)

Since the onset of the conflict in December 2013, government and opposition forces have recruited more than 19,000 children. (14,27) The number of grave violations decreased significantly in the second half of the reporting period, as parties to the R-ARCSS began to observe a ceasefire. (28) Many former child combatants have since been released or are no longer classified as children. (14,29) Nevertheless, both government and non-state armed groups, including the SSPDF and Sudan People's Liberation Army – In Opposition (SPLA-IO), recruited and used children as young as age 12, sometimes forcibly. (21,22) Four children were between the ages of 13 and 14 years old; the rest were between 15 and 17 years old. (10)

Recruitment rates spiked in January and February 2020 ahead of a planned ceasefire, and observers documented systematic recruitment of children through June 2020. (10,14,22,28,30) SSPDF Division 4 commander Brigadier General James Galiak Kai, under Vice President Taban Deng Gai, and Major General Turuk Khor of SPLA-IO Division 4A, both led forced recruitment drives during the reporting period. (26) Other perpetrators include a range of opposition groups, including the National Salvation Front-Khalid Butrus and the South Sudan National Liberation Movement. (28) In some instances, local commissioners carried out recruitment drives on behalf of the state's National Security Services and the SSPDF. (22,30,31) In Warrap, elements of South Sudan's National Security Services and SSPDF leveraged a cattle extortion scheme to procure children and young men of fighting age. Non-signatories to the ceasefire, including Paul Malong's South Sudan United Front and the National Salvation Front, also forcibly abducted children from their homes, schools, and communities. (14,22,29,30,32)

Children were subjected to rape and sexual slavery by armed elements; some were forced to serve as "wives" of commanders and members of armed groups. (14,33) This sexual exploitation has political and commercial elements because it is used as in-kind payment for fighters. (10) Although some children joined voluntarily, they were later unable to leave the groups at will. (9,22,34) Children affiliated with non-state armed groups performed active combat roles, perpetrated violence against civilians, and recruited other children. They also collected firewood, manned checkpoints, and carried out other support roles, including as cooks, porters, spies, and bodyguards to senior officers. (14,19,34)

An even greater number of children fight as part of local community defense forces. (16) Children abducted by armed pastoralists may be forcibly incorporated into heavily militarized cattle rustling networks. Older boys are forced to work as soldiers, herders, or cattle rustlers. (10) Younger children tend to smaller livestock, and teenagers serve as auxiliaries for armed pastoralists or self-defense groups. (35,36) Among certain tribes, cattle raiding marks a rite of passage to adulthood. (35,36) An estimated 10,000 children are engaged in herding cattle throughout the country. Some of these children are used in armed cattle raids on other tribes. (10)

As of December 2020, South Sudan hosted approximately 1.6 million IDPs, with 2.2 million South Sudanese refugees living in neighboring countries. These groups, including orphaned children, were at increased risk of human trafficking and other forms of labor exploitation. (21) UNICEF has registered over 26,000 unaccompanied minors since the onset of the conflict. These children are particularly vulnerable to abduction for forced labor or commercial sex. (8,19,37,38) South Sudan has never conducted a comprehensive child labor survey, so information about sectors in which child labor occurs is unavailable. (14)

Research suggests that border closures and restrictions on regional travel to contain the COVID-19 pandemic led to an increase in human trafficking, as criminal networks exploited unofficial entry points. Kenyan, Ethiopian, and Eritrean business owners recruited and exploited their compatriots who entered South Sudan, including girls who were forced into domestic servitude. (21) Children employed in hotels, restaurants, and construction were forced to work for little or no pay, and some were subjected to sex trafficking. (21) Girls in rural areas, meanwhile, who gather firewood or collect water are at risk of violence and sexual exploitation. In gold mining regions, children work alongside their families in artisanal mining operations, especially in the Kapoeta area of Equatoria. (10) An estimated 7,600 children are employed in mining, shops, and other work in the informal economy in Kapoeta. There is anecdotal evidence of children selling a drug known as “Five,” a street name for Diazepam, a benzodiazepine. The drug is imported from Uganda and sold and consumed by children on the streets. (10)

South Sudan's out-of-school rate is one of the highest in the world, with an estimated 1 in 13 children expected to complete a full cycle of primary education. (3,37,39) In 2020, before the onset of the pandemic, South Sudan's out-of-school population reached a record 2.8 million. Conflict, flooding, and the pandemic, among other shocks, led to additional school closures and a subsequent increase in child marriages and child labor during the reporting period. (21,40) Poor families exchanged their young daughters for a bride price, or as restitution following inter-communal conflict. (10) Girls forced into marriages as compensation for inter-ethnic killings are subsequently subjected to sexual slavery or domestic servitude. (10,21) In both situations, girls were subjected to forced domestic labor. Ongoing fighting hindered the government's ability to deliver aid, provide education, and address the worst forms of child labor. (10,14,39) Moreover, South Sudan's education sector is chronically underfunded. Public school teachers were paid sporadically, leading to low morale and frequent absenteeism. (10,14) In addition to the abduction and use of children, ongoing military operations in conflict-affected areas forced teachers to flee. Armed groups, including government forces, continue to occupy schools in contested areas, although school occupations decreased significantly during the reporting period. (10,14) Government forces occupied at least two schools at the close of the reporting period. (41)

Although the Constitution and the Child Act provide for free primary education, in practice, many families must contribute school fees to pay teacher salaries and other related costs, which may be prohibitive. (37,39,42) In addition, children in pastoralist communities generally lack access to schools, materials, or teachers. (35)

II. LEGAL FRAMEWORK FOR CHILD LABOR

South Sudan has ratified most key international conventions concerning child labor (Table 3).

NO ADVANCEMENT – EFFORTS MADE BUT COMPLICIT IN FORCED CHILD LABOR

The government has established laws and regulations related to child labor (Table 4). However, gaps exist in South Sudan’s legal framework to adequately protect children from the worst forms of child labor, including the compulsory education age.

Table 4. Laws and Regulations on Child Labor

Standard	Meets International Standards	Age	Legislation
Minimum Age for Work	Yes	14	Section 12 of the Labor Act; Article 25(3) of the Child Act (43,44)
Minimum Age for Hazardous Work	Yes	18	Sections 12 and 13 of the Labor Act; Articles 22(3), 24(1), and 25(1) of the Child Act (43,44)
Identification of Hazardous Occupations or Activities Prohibited for Children	Yes		Article 25(2) of the Child Act (43)
Prohibition of Forced Labor	Yes		Articles 10(1) and 13(2)(a) of the Labor Act; Articles 277–279 of the Penal Code; Article 13 of the Constitution (44-46)
Prohibition of Child Trafficking	Yes		Article 13(2) of the Labor Act; Article 22(3)(b) of the Child Act; Articles 276 and 278–282 of the Penal Code (43-45)
Prohibition of Commercial Sexual Exploitation of Children	Yes		Article 13(2)(b) of the Labor Act; Articles 22(3)(c)–(d), 22(4), and 25(2)(m) of the Child Act; Articles 258 and 276 of the Penal Code (43-45)
Prohibition of Using Children in Illicit Activities	Yes		Article 13(2)(c) of the Labor Act; Article 24(1) of the Child Act; Article 383(3)(d) of the Penal Code (43-45)
Minimum Age for Voluntary State Military Recruitment	Yes	18	Article 31(1) of the Child Act; Section 22 of the Sudan People’s Liberation Army Act (43,47)
Prohibition of Compulsory Recruitment of Children by (State) Military	Yes		Article 31(1) of the Child Act; Sections 20 and 22(2) of the Sudan People’s Liberation Army Act (43,47)
Prohibition of Military Recruitment by Non-state Armed Groups	Yes		Articles 31(1), 31(2) and 32 of the Child Act (43)
Compulsory Education Age	No	13	Article 9.1(b) of the General Education Act; Article 14(1) of the Child Act (43,48)
Free Public Education	Yes		Article 6(a) of the General Education Act; Article 13(4)(b) of the Labour Code; Article 14(1) of the Child Act; Article 29.2 of the Constitution (43,44,46,48)

There are no regulations governing the Labor Act’s implementation. In accordance with the Labor Act, the Ministry of Labor, Public Service and Human Resource Development (MOL) must draft and issue regulations to implement key elements related to child labor, including the number of hours and conditions for light work, the exceptions under which children age 16 may perform hazardous work, and a complete list of hazardous work. (9,44) Drafting regulations will require cooperation between MOL and the Ministry of Justice. (14)

On February 7, 2020, the government signed a comprehensive action plan to end all grave violations against children into law. (25)

Children are required to attend school only until age 13. This standard makes children between ages 13 and 14 particularly vulnerable to the worst forms of child labor because they are not required to be in school but are also not legally permitted to work. (14,43,48)

III. ENFORCEMENT OF LAWS ON CHILD LABOR

The government has established institutional mechanisms for the enforcement of laws and regulations on child labor (Table 5). However, gaps exist within the operations of enforcement agencies that may hinder adequate enforcement of their child labor laws.

NO ADVANCEMENT – EFFORTS MADE BUT COMPLICIT IN FORCED CHILD LABOR

Table 5. Agencies Responsible for Child Labor Law Enforcement

Organization/Agency	Role
Ministry of Labor, Public Service and Human Resource Development	Enforces child labor laws, identifies child labor violations, and conducts workplace inspections. (14,43,44,49)
South Sudan People's Defense Force (SSPDF) Directorate for Child Protection	Prevents the recruitment of children into the army, monitors barracks, identifies child soldiers and assists with their release, investigates allegations of child soldiering, and provides training on children's rights to child protection officers and members of SSPDF. Headed by a Brigadier General, serves as liaison between SSPDF and the international community. (14)
Ministry of Interior's South Sudan National Police Services (SSNPS)	Enforce criminal laws related to the worst forms of child labor. (14)
Ministry of Justice	Oversees all courts and prosecutes violations, including those related to child labor. (14)

Labor Law Enforcement

In 2020, labor law enforcement agencies in South Sudan took actions to combat child labor (Table 6). However, gaps exist within the operations of MOL that may hinder adequate labor law enforcement, including financial resource allocation.

Table 6. Labor Law Enforcement Efforts Related to Child Labor

In 2020, the Ministry of Finance and Planning agreed to provide the MOL with a budget of $3,391 (600,000 South Sudanese Pounds) per month. While MOL allocated one-fifth ($678) to its labor inspectorate, inspectors were paid sporadically. (10) MOL is authorized to retain 20 percent of the fees it collects for work permits and 20 percent of the fines it collects for labor law violations. This yielded approximately $60,000 in retained fees and fines through the first 3 months of the year. (10) This amount is divided equally among the five directorates within the Ministry. (10) However, MOL lacked sufficient resources, including vehicles, to investigate labor complaints, including allegations of child labor. (10,14,49) Moreover, sporadic payment cycles incentivized some inspectors to pocket undocumented "fines." (14) There was also a high level of absenteeism among ministry staff, and salaries for civil servants in nearly every ministry were not paid for several months, further hindering the labor inspectorate's ability to enforce child labor laws. (9,14)

In 2020, labor inspectors were trained on the application of existing labor laws. (10,14) The labor inspectorate conducted three worksite inspections per week until March, when pandemic-related lockdowns were implemented and MOL suspended worksite inspections. Labor inspectors did not target the informal sector, private homes, or farms, in which child labor is known to occur. While child labor is known to occur in the informal sector, inspections were limited to the formal sector. (10) Moreover, labor violations were not referred to legal authorities as required by law. (10,14,43) Inspectors may issue a compliance notice to violators, but regulations do not specify penalties for infractions. Although statistics on the number of people in South Sudan’s labor force are unavailable, 14 labor inspectors may be insufficient to address the scope of the country’s child labor problem. (14,50,51)

Criminal Law Enforcement

In 2020, criminal law enforcement agencies in South Sudan took actions to combat child labor (Table 7). However, gaps exist within the operations of the Government of South Sudan that may hinder adequate criminal law enforcement, including inability to prosecute perpetrators of the worst forms of child labor.

Table 7. Criminal Law Enforcement Efforts Related to Child Labor

Overview of Criminal Law Enforcement	2019	2020
Initial Training for New Criminal Investigators	Yes (14)	No (10)
Training on New Laws Related to the Worst Forms of Child Labor	N/A (14)	N/A (10)
Refresher Courses Provided	Yes (14)	No (10)
Number of Investigations	Unknown (14)	Unknown (10)
Number of Violations Found	580 (14)	82 (10)
Number of Prosecutions Initiated	0 (14)	0 (10)
Number of Convictions	0 (14)	0 (10)
Imposed Penalties for Violations Related to the Worst Forms of Child Labor	No (14)	No (10)
Reciprocal Referral Mechanism Exists Between Criminal Authorities and Social Services	No (14)	Yes (10)

In December 2020, the government inaugurated the first Gender-Based Violence and Juvenile Court. This specialized court will provide dedicated and expedited trials of gender-based violence and juvenile cases, including labor and commercial sexual exploitation. (21) Due to the pandemic, international monitors maintained limited access to certain regions, and were therefore unable to verify alleged violations against children. These restrictions also slowed the verification and release of children associated with armed forces and armed groups in 2020. (40) During the reporting period, 57 former child soldiers were demobilized and reintegrated. (10,21,40) However, the government has not established a referral mechanism for other victims of the worst forms of child labor, including forced labor and commercial sexual exploitation.

South Sudan’s justice system faces enormous challenges, such as low capacity, insufficient funding, corruption, interference by the government and the SSPDF, insufficient training for law enforcement personnel, and a scarcity of judges, prosecutors, and defense attorneys. (14,19,52,53) Research indicates that prosecutors and law enforcement officials are not familiar with legal statutes regarding the worst forms of child labor. (9,19) As a result, police continued to arrest and imprison children engaged in commercial sexual exploitation rather than treating them as victims. (14,19)

During the first 6 months of the reporting period, the UN Country Task Force on Monitoring and Reporting (CTFMR) verified 82 grave violations against children in the context of armed conflict and oversaw the release of 57 children from service in armed groups. In January 2020, the heavily armed forces of Thomas Cirillo’s National Salvation Front (NAS), a non-signatory of the 2018 R-ARCSS, raided homes in Western Equatoria state, abducting one girl and two boys. (10) The whereabouts of these children are currently unknown. In March 2020, CTFMR also verified the abduction of a 15-year-old boy by NAS forces in Central Equatoria state. His whereabouts are also presently unknown. (10) There is no indication that any of these violations resulted in arrests or criminal prosecutions. (10) Although both the 2017 Agreement on the Cessation of Hostilities and the August 2013 Punitive Order commit the SSPDF to hold its military officers accountable for the recruitment or use of children, the government has neither investigated nor prosecuted officers who allegedly committed such crimes. (16,19)

IV. COORDINATION OF GOVERNMENT EFFORTS ON CHILD LABOR

The government has established mechanisms to coordinate its efforts to address child labor (Table 8). However, gaps exist that hinder the effective coordination of efforts to address child labor, including efforts to address all forms of child labor.

Table 8. Key Mechanisms to Coordinate Government Efforts on Child Labor

Coordinating Body	Role & Description
Technical Task Force on Anti-Human Trafficking and Smuggling of Persons	Oversees the implementation of the Palermo Protocol and policy development on anti-trafficking and smuggling of migrants. Members of the task force include the Ministry of Justice (co-chair), Ministry of Interior (co-chair), the National Security Service – Internal Security Bureau, the Ministry of Labor, Public Service and Human Resource Development (MOL), and the Ministry of Child, Gender, and Social Welfare. (23) The task force finalized a Terms of Reference with an action plan and completed the first phase of awareness-raising activities during the reporting period. The Ministry of Interior endorsed the task force in July 2020. (21) However, the government did not allocate a budget for the task force or other anti-trafficking activities in 2019–2020. (21)
South Sudan Disarmament, Demobilization, and Reintegration Commission (NDDRC)	Oversees and coordinates the disarmament, demobilization, and reintegration (DDR) of former child soldiers, with the assistance of UN bodies by convening regular meetings with DDR stakeholders. (54) The commission includes members of the pro-Machar Sudan People's Liberation Army – In Opposition (SPLA-IO) and South Sudan Opposition Alliance (SSOA), along with parties to the Revitalized Agreement on the Resolution of the Conflict in the Republic of South Sudan (R-ARCSS). (14) Responsible for the negotiation of the release, screening, and registration of child soldiers; reunification with family when possible; and educational placement or vocational training. (16) In the context of child soldiers, the DDR Commission, working closely with UNICEF, maintains a network of local contacts (NGOs and community members) throughout the country who work to locate the families of rescued child soldiers, provide vocational training to them, and otherwise assist in their reintegration into civilian life. (10) In 2020, oversaw demobilization ceremonies resulting in the release and reintegration of 54 children. (10) The NDDRC is currently governed by the Action Plan of the Government of the Republic of South Sudan Regarding Children Associated with Armed Conflict in South Sudan (Action Plan) signed on February 7, 2020, by all parties to the R-ARCSS. However, the government did not fund the NDDRC in 2020. The lack of funding significantly hampered efforts to identify child soldiers, obtain their release from military service, and help them reintegrate with society. (10)
UN Country Task Force on Monitoring and Reporting (CTFMR)	Screens and releases all children associated with armed groups, and reports on grave violations affecting children in armed conflict. Co-chaired by UNICEF, which leads child protection awareness and sensitization efforts within the SSPDF. (14,23,55) Under this framework, UNICEF coordinated the release of former child combatants in Unity, Western Equatoria, Central Equatoria, Jonglei, and Western Bahr el Ghazal states, along with the United Nations Mission in South Sudan (UNMISS) Child Protection Unit and NDDRC. (29) The CTFMR's Joint Verification Committee consists of SSPDF, SPLA-IO, SSOA, the Taban Deng-allied SSPDF, NDDRC, UNMISS, and UNICEF. (28) In the first 6 months of 2020, the SSPDF and SPLA-IO formally released 54 children (3 girls, 51 boys) from military service under the CTFMR. (10) The committee conducted child protection training for UNMISS personnel, and mobile units were deployed to remote areas and IDP camps to provide additional monitoring and verification training. During the first half of 2020, tCTFMR also conducted more than 40 child protection, induction, and mainstreaming and awareness-raising sessions targeting 7,603 participants. (10,14,56) Trainees included members of government-aligned and non-government-aligned armed forces, UN personnel, and community members. (10,41)
Ceasefire and Transitional Security Arrangements Monitoring and Verification Mechanism (CTSAMVM)	Monitors compliance of R-ARCSS parties through its 12 Monitoring and Verification Teams (MVTs), which are located in 9 conflict-affected regions of South Sudan. (57) MVT units report all violations, including recruitment of child soldiers, to CTSAMVM headquarters in Juba. The mechanism supports NDDRC's mandate of reintegrating former child soldiers and children associated with armed groups into civilian life. (14,58) In 2020, assisted NDDRC in identifying and securing the release of at least 54 child soldiers. (10,14) Through October 2020, the Africa-EU Partnership provided CTSAMVM with $6,063,850 (EUR 5 million). (59)
Ministry of Gender, Child, and Social Welfare (MGCSW)	Coordinates activities on children's rights and acts as the focal ministry for child protection. (14) MOL refers victims of the most egregious child labor violations to the MGCSW for rehabilitation and support services. (10) However, as no violations were uncovered, no victims were referred during the reporting period.

While the South Sudan Disarmament, Demobilization, and Reintegration Commission (NDDRC) coordinates efforts to address children in armed conflict, the government does not have coordinating mechanisms to address other forms of child labor, because the National Steering Committee on Child Labor has not been active since it was first constituted in 2012. It is unclear what proportion of the NDDRC's budget was dedicated to demobilizing and reintegrating child soldiers in 2020. (10,14) The Ministries of Labor, Interior, and Justice are responsible for enforcement of criminal laws against child labor, child trafficking, and commercial sexual exploitation of children. However, their mandates are not clearly defined, further impeding effective government action. (9,14,21)

V. GOVERNMENT POLICIES ON CHILD LABOR

The government has established policies related to child labor (Table 9). However, policy gaps exist that hinder efforts to address child labor, including funding and implementation of relevant policies.

Table 9. Key Policies Related to Child Labor

Policy	Description
Revitalized Agreement on the Resolution of the Conflict in the Republic of South Sudan (2018)	Replaces all components of the 2015 Agreement on the Resolution of the Conflict in the Republic of South Sudan, including the Joint Action Plan with the UN to Combat the Use of Child Soldiers, and reaffirms commitments made under the 2017 Agreement on the Cessation of Hostilities. (24,60) Establishes the structure of a Revitalized Transitional Government of National Unity and outlines actions to be taken by signatories, including prohibiting the recruitment and use of child soldiers by armed forces or militias, and stipulates that all civilian areas, including schools, shall be immediately demilitarized. (24) Although the release of some child soldiers occurred in 2020, the signatories continued to recruit or re-recruit children during the reporting period. (10,14,22)
General Education Strategic Plan (2017–2022)	Aims to improve access to and quality of education through grants and cash transfers to girls in upper primary and secondary schools, as well as payment of teachers' salaries. The Ministry of General Education and Instructions (MoGEI) implemented distance-learning programs that reached 1.5 million children during the reporting period. (61-63) In addition, UNICEF supported a General Education Annual Review to assess the progression of education against the General Education Strategic Plan's priorities and targets. (61-63) However, South Sudan's education sector is largely donor-subsidized, and sufficient funding was not allocated for the full 5 year period of the General Education Strategic Plan. (9,61)
Comprehensive Action Plan to Prevent Grave Violations Against Children in South Sudan†	Aims to prevent and mitigate grave violations against children, including the recruitment of child soldiers and attacks on schools. Applies to all state and non-state groups, and comes into force under the February 2020 transitional government. (10,25) Parties to the commitment include the SSPDF and Riek Machar's SPLA-IO, both of which were listed for child recruitment and use in armed conflict, as well as SSOA. (25) This document contains a list of concrete steps meant to "halt and prevent the violations against children in situations of armed conflict". The government cooperated with CTFMR to complete several of the first steps called for in the Action Plan, including standing up high-level and technical committees at the national level and convening monthly meetings of these committees. (10) The drafting process was supported by UNMISS and UNICEF, in collaboration with SSPDF. In 2020, the Defense Ministry coordinated with the SSPDF to integrate the Action Plan into its Civic Education Unit. (31,64)

† Policy was approved during the reporting period.

VI. SOCIAL PROGRAMS TO ADDRESS CHILD LABOR

In 2020, the government participated in programs that include the goal of eliminating or preventing child labor (Table 10). However, gaps exist in these social programs, including the adequacy to address the problem in all sectors.

Table 10. Key Social Programs to Address Child Labor

Program	Description
Joint Program for Recovery and Resilience	Joint agreement between donors, USAID, UN agencies, local leaders, and NGOs that aims to re-establish access to basic services, including psychosocial support, education, and economic alternatives for children separated from armed groups. (4,65,66) The Partnership for Recovery and Resilience (PfRR) was inaugurated in Yambio in 2018, and programs in Torit, Wau, and Aweil were launched during the reporting period. (67) Aims to complete construction of seven primary schools; provide learning and teaching materials to all primary schools in the area formerly known as Gbudue State (reincorporated into Western Equatoria in February 2020); and ensure that 100 percent of children associated with armed groups are demobilized and reintegrated in their communities. (68)

NO ADVANCEMENT – EFFORTS MADE BUT COMPLICIT IN FORCED CHILD LABOR

Program	Description
UNICEF and Donor-Funded Programs	Programs to improve educational access in areas affected by conflict. Includes Back to Learning (BTL), a State Ministry of Education, Gender, and Social Welfare-administered, UNICEF-funded program in Yambio and Bentiu that aims to address educational needs in conflict-afflicted areas and insecure states. BTL targeted 700,000 children in 2020, including girls and children living in pastoralist communities. (62,69,70) Following pandemic-related school closures in March 2020, UNICEF and MoGEI developed and implemented distance-learning programs. As of December 2020, UNICEF's radio-learning programs and television broadcasts allowed 1.5 million pre-school, primary, and secondary students to continue their education. (63) Moreover, 921,935 children were provided with essential learning supplies. (63) With the support of UNICEF's Education Cluster partners and MoGEI, schools were re-opened in October for candidate classes. By December, 1,700 schools reopened, allowing 110,000 children graduating from primary and secondary grades to sit for their exams. (63) UNICEF also trained 892 teachers on education-in-emergencies pedagogy during the reporting period. UNICEF's early learning, pre-primary, primary, or secondary education programs reached 248,456 children, 42 percent of whom were girls. (63,69) The organization delivered psychosocial support services to 95,487 children. (63) UNICEF also provided 983 unaccompanied and separated children with family tracing and reunification services. (63) Finally, Don Bosco and World Vision provided vocational training to demobilized child soldiers during the reporting period. In February 2020, 101 former child soldiers graduated from World Vision's vocational training program. (10)
Dallaire Initiative (2018–2021)	Romeo Dallaire Child Soldiers Initiative-funded project ($2.2 million). Aims to train 1,200 South Sudanese soldiers, police, and prison personnel on combating the use of children in armed conflict through behavior change. (17) In 2020, trained 187 security-sector actors (20 percent female) in the Dallaire Initiative Basic Training Course on preventing the recruitment and use of child soldiers from a gender approach; trained 4,979 security-sector actors (26 percent female) in professional development aimed at preventing the use and recruitment of child soldiers; taught 956 instructors from the military and police forces to deliver training in child protection in field operations; executed memorandums of understanding with the SSPDF and the South Sudan National Police Services (SSNPS) to collaborate and assist with training, doctrine development, and awareness raising in preventing the recruitment and use of child soldiers; and worked with two NGOs and a South Sudanese civil society organization to develop three curriculum packages on the recruitment and use of child soldiers from a gender-responsive approach. (10)
Alternative Education System	Aims to improve literacy and provide out-of-school populations an alternative to formal education. Includes: the Accelerated Learning Program, which implements the MoGEI program targeting children ages 12–18 who have reenrolled in lower primary classes. Also includes Community Girls' Schools, located in closer proximity to rural communities, and the Pastoralist Education Program, which targets children and adults in pastoral areas. Research was unable to determine whether activities were undertaken to implement the programs during the reporting period. (61)
Measurement, Awareness Raising, and Policy Engagement (MAP 16) Project on Child Labor and Forced Labor	The MAP 16 Project (2016–2022) , funded by USDOL and implemented by the ILO, aims to address knowledge gaps on child labor through research and data collection; the development of new survey methodologies; and capacity building programs. MAP 16 also supports partnerships to accelerate progress in combating child labor, forced labor, and human trafficking. (71) The project will likewise support regional and sub-regional initiatives to eradicate child labor and forced labor in Africa. (71,72) Completed work on a three-country study of forced child labor in conflict zones, including South Sudan, which is due to be published in 2021. (72) Additional information is available on the USDOL website .

‡ The government had other social programs that may have included the goal of eliminating or preventing child labor. (9,19)

Although South Sudan has programs that target child labor, the scope of these programs is insufficient to fully address the extent of the problem, including in commercial sexual exploitation and child soldiering. In addition, the reintegration and rehabilitation services provided to child soldiers are insufficient to meet existing needs. (9,37,65,73)

VII. SUGGESTED GOVERNMENT ACTIONS TO ELIMINATE CHILD LABOR

Based on the reporting above, suggested actions are identified that would advance the elimination of child labor in South Sudan (Table 11).

South Sudan

NO ADVANCEMENT – EFFORTS MADE BUT COMPLICIT IN FORCED CHILD LABOR

Table 11. Suggested Government Actions to Eliminate Child Labor

Area	Suggested Action	Year(s) Suggested
Legal Framework	Ratify the Palermo Protocol on Trafficking in Persons.	2013 – 2020
	Ensure that the compulsory education age is consistent with the minimum age for work.	2013 – 2020
	Ensure that the worst forms of child labor are prohibited for all children under age 18 by law.	2017 – 2020
Enforcement	Ensure that labor regulations specify monetary penalties for all labor infractions, and that specified penalties are high enough to serve as a deterrent.	2019 – 2020
	Increase the number of labor inspectors to adequately enforce labor laws throughout the country, including in the informal sector; and collect and publish labor force statistics, which are necessary to calculate ILO labor inspector recommendations.	2016 – 2020
	Provide sufficient human and financial resources to ensure that labor inspectors carry out routine inspections, including targeted inspections based on analysis of data related to high-risk sectors and patterns of serious incidents; that detected violations are reported, as required by law; and that labor inspectorate staff are paid at regular intervals.	2012 – 2020
	Publish the data on initial training for new criminal investigators and refresher courses provided, number of criminal investigations conducted, prosecutions initiated, and convictions secured, and prosecute all perpetrators of child labor.	2015 – 2020
	End state recruitment and use of children in armed conflict, including forced recruitment of children.	2020
	Authorize the labor inspectorate to assess penalties.	2020
	Investigate, prosecute, and impose penalties on perpetrators; and ensure that penalties are sufficiently high to deter future offenders.	2013 – 2020
	Establish referral mechanisms between criminal law enforcement agencies and social services providers for victims of the worst forms of child labor.	2014 – 2020
	Ensure that prosecutors and law enforcement officials are familiar with the prohibitions on the worst forms of child labor; are trained in implementing all laws related to child labor; and do not treat victims of commercial sexual exploitation as offenders.	2012 – 2020
	Ensure that the Child Act's minimum age of 18 years for voluntary military recruitment is enforced by ending all recruitment and use of children under age 18 by the South Sudan People's Defense Force, the Sudan People's Liberation Movement Army – In Opposition, or associated militias.	2012 – 2020
Coordination	Establish coordinating mechanisms to combat all worst forms of child labor, and ensure mandates are clearly defined.	2013 – 2020
	Ensure that the Technical Task Force on Anti-Human Trafficking and the South Sudan Disarmament, Demobilization, and Reintegration Commission are funded.	2020
Government Policies	Ensure that policies, such as the Joint Action Plan to Prevent the Use of Child Soldiers, Article 2.1.10 of the Revitalized Agreement on the Resolution of the Conflict in South Sudan, and the General Education Strategic Plan, are adequately funded and fully implemented.	2012 – 2020
Social Programs	Conduct a national child labor survey, including research to determine the activities carried out by children, to inform policies and social programs.	2013 – 2020
	Ensure that children complete their primary education by resuming payment of teachers' salaries and subsidizing other school-related costs, and by withdrawing government forces from occupied schools.	2014 – 2020
	Improve access to education by addressing the lack of school infrastructure, including for pastoralist children; reducing school fees; and registering all children at birth.	2012 – 2020
	Increase the scope of social programs to reach more children at risk of child labor, including in commercial sexual exploitation and child soldiering.	2012 – 2020
	Cooperate with child protection agencies, pursuant to Article 2.1.10 of the Revitalized Agreement on the Resolution of the Conflict in South Sudan, to disarm, immediately release children in armed groups, and transfer them to appropriate social services providers. Ensure that the rehabilitation services provided to child soldiers are sufficient.	2014 – 2020

In 2020, Sri Lanka made moderate advancement in efforts to eliminate the worst forms of child labor. During the reporting period, the government raised the minimum age for employment from 14 to 16 years, which is also the compulsory education age. It also took steps towards implementing the regulations on the Hazardous Occupations Regulations Gazette under the Employment of Women, Young Persons and Children Act, and developed a COVID-19 Child Vulnerability Survey. Furthermore, the government increased its number of labor inspectors from 494 to 588 and approved a new National Strategic Plan to Monitor and Combat Human Trafficking (2021–2025). Finally, the government implemented a cash transfer program for families who lost their income due to the COVID-19 pandemic and other social welfare programs targeting low-income households that are aimed at reducing the economic vulnerabilities of children. However, children in Sri Lanka are subjected to the worst forms of child labor, including in domestic work and commercial sexual exploitation, each sometimes as a result of human trafficking. Although the government made meaningful efforts in all relevant areas during the reporting period, research indicates some victims of child trafficking or commercial sexual exploitation may be penalized for prostitution and other offenses rather than treated as victims. In addition, the labor inspectorate is not authorized to assess penalties for labor law violations. Some children in rural areas face barriers to accessing education, including difficulties in traveling to school in some regions and an inadequate number of teachers. Also, the government does not fully disaggregate criminal data, including cases investigated for forced child labor, child trafficking, child commercial sexual exploitation, and the use of children in illicit activities.

I. PREVALENCE AND SECTORAL DISTRIBUTION OF CHILD LABOR

Children in Sri Lanka are subjected to the worst forms of child labor, including in domestic work and commercial sexual exploitation, each sometimes as a result of human trafficking. (1-4) Table 1 provides key indicators on children's work and education in Sri Lanka.

Table 1. Statistics on Children's Work and Education

Children	Age	Percent
Working (% and population)	5 to 14	0.8 (28,515)
Attending School (%)	5 to 14	98.0
Combining Work and School (%)	7 to 14	0.9
Primary Completion Rate (%)		102.4

Source for primary completion rate: Data from 2017, published by UNESCO Institute for Statistics, 2021. (5)

Source for all other data: International Labor Organization's analysis of statistics from Child Activity Survey (CAS), 2016. (6)

Based on a review of available information, Table 2 provides an overview of children's work by sector and activity.

Table 2. Overview of Children's Work by Sector and Activity

Sector/Industry	Activity
Agriculture	Farming, including raising livestock (2,7-9)
	Fishing, including deep sea fishing,† processing fish, and selling fish (1,2,8-11)
Industry	Manufacturing, including textiles and garments, and food processing (2,8,9,12)
	Mining† and construction† (1,2,8,9,12,13)

MODERATE ADVANCEMENT

Sector/Industry	Activity
Services	Domestic work (1,2,8,9)
	Vending, in stores and on the streets, transportation, and begging (1,2,8-10)
	Work in hotels, restaurants, and offices (8,13)
Categorical Worst Forms of Child Labor‡	Commercial sexual exploitation, sometimes as a result of human trafficking (1,3,4,7,14-18)
	Forced labor in domestic work, sometimes as a result of human trafficking (3,7)
	Use in illicit activities, including drug trafficking (7,19,20)

† Determined by national law or regulation as hazardous and, as such, relevant to Article 3(d) of ILO C. 182.

‡ Child labor understood as the worst forms of child labor per se under Article 3(a)–(c) of ILO C. 182.

The 2016 Child Activity Survey's definition of child labor does not align with international standards because children ages 5–11 working less than 15 hours per week and children ages 12–14 working less than 25 hours per week in agriculture are not counted as child laborers. These issues may have led to an underestimation of the population of children in child labor in the Child Activity Survey. (8) The ILO and an NGO documented several cases of debt distress among workers at private, smallholding tea estates, which increased the risk of child labor in the tea sector. (1) Debt distress can be linked to debts that workers owed to the estate for housing and accommodating their families. (21) NGOs also report that smallholder farmers face labor shortages during harvest times and an increasing cost of labor and production, and often rely on children under the age of 12 to help during the harvest period. (2,22) There are reports of children subjected to child trafficking internally, including from tea estates, to perform domestic work in Colombo. In addition, child domestic workers are subjected to sexual, physical, and psychological abuse, non-payment of wages, and restrictions on movement. (1,7) Children, predominantly boys, are also forced into commercial sexual exploitation in tourist areas as part of the sex tourism industry, sometimes as a result of human trafficking. (1,3,4,16,18,23) In 2018, the ILO conducted a rapid assessment of the extent of commercial sexual exploitation of children in the coastal areas and found that most of the children were ages 15–17. According to the Sri Lankan Department of Labor, children living in coastal and agricultural areas, mining areas, and firewood-producing areas were vulnerable to child labor. (1,3,24) During the reporting period, there was a significant reduction in reports of the commercial sexual exploitation of children, due to the government closing the country to international tourism from March 2020 to December 2020. (2,24)

Although the government provides free, compulsory education to all schoolchildren, some children in rural areas face barriers to accessing education, including difficulties traveling to school in some regions and an inadequate number of teachers. (1)

II. LEGAL FRAMEWORK FOR CHILD LABOR

Sri Lanka has ratified all key international conventions concerning child labor (Table 3).

Table 3. Ratification of International Conventions on Child Labor

Convention	Ratification
 ILO C. 138, Minimum Age	✓
 ILO C. 182, Worst Forms of Child Labor	✓
 UN CRC	✓
 UN CRC Optional Protocol on Armed Conflict	✓
 UN CRC Optional Protocol on the Sale of Children, Child Prostitution and Child Pornography	✓
 Palermo Protocol on Trafficking in Persons	✓

The government has established laws and regulations related to child labor (Table 4). However, gaps exist in Sri Lanka's legal framework to adequately protect children from the worst forms of child labor, including protections for children engaged in domestic work.

Table 4. Laws and Regulations on Child Labor

Standard	Meets International Standards	Age	Legislation
Minimum Age for Work	Yes	16	Sections 7, 9, 13, and 34 of the Employment of Women, Young Persons, and Children Act; Section 6 of the Employment of Women, Young Persons and Children Amendment Act (25,26)
Minimum Age for Hazardous Work	Yes	18	Section 20A of the Employment of Women, Young Persons, and Children Act (25)
Identification of Hazardous Occupations or Activities Prohibited for Children	Yes		Hazardous Occupations Regulation No. 47; Section 20A of the Employment of Women, Young Persons, and Children Act (25,27)
Prohibition of Forced Labor	Yes		Sections 358A, 360C, 360A(2), and 360A(4) of the Penal Code (27)
Prohibition of Child Trafficking	Yes		Sections 360C, 360A(2), and 360A(4) of the Penal Code (27)
Prohibition of Commercial Sexual Exploitation of Children	Yes		Sections 286A, 360B, 360A(2), and 360A(4) of the Penal Code (27)
Prohibition of Using Children in Illicit Activities	Yes		Sections 288, 288A, 288B, and 360C of the Penal Code (27)
Minimum Age for Voluntary State Military Recruitment	Yes	18	Sections 20A and 31 of the Employment of Women, Young Persons, and Children Act; Section 2(xviii) of the Hazardous Occupations Regulation No. 47 (25,28)
Prohibition of Compulsory Recruitment of Children by (State) Military	N/A*
Prohibition of Military Recruitment by Non-state Armed Groups	Yes		358(1)(d) of the Penal Code; Sections 20A and 31 of the Employment of Women, Young Persons, and Children Act; Section 2(xviii) of the Hazardous Occupations Regulation No. 47 (25,27,28)
Compulsory Education Age	Yes	16	Section 43 of the Education Ordinance; Compulsory Attendance of Children at Schools Regulation No. 1 of 2015 (29,30)
Free Public Education	Yes		Section 47 of the Education Ordinance (29)

* No conscription (31)

During the reporting period, the government raised the minimum age for employment from 14 to 16 years, up to the compulsory education age. (26) The hazardous work list is not comprehensive because it does not include domestic work, in which there is evidence that children are subject to abuse. (3) However, in 2019, the Department of Labor reviewed the Hazardous Occupations Regulations Gazette under the Employment of Women, Young Persons and Children Act and drafted new regulations with stakeholder participation. The draft was finalized in 2020 but has not been fully implemented. (2,32)

III. ENFORCEMENT OF LAWS ON CHILD LABOR

The government has established institutional mechanisms for the enforcement of laws and regulations on child labor (Table 5). However, gaps exist within the operations of enforcement agencies that may hinder adequate enforcement of their child labor laws.

MODERATE ADVANCEMENT

Table 5. Agencies Responsible for Child Labor Law Enforcement

Organization/Agency	Role
Department of Labor in the Ministry of Labor	Formerly the Ministry of Skill Development, Employment and Labor Relations. (32) Enforces labor law in relation to the employment of children and young persons. Receives public complaints of child labor lodged in national and district-level offices. Receives complaints from other state organizations, including from the National Child Protection Authority (NCPA). (1,2) Conducts special investigations in relation to child labor and hazardous labor, and takes legal action as necessary. (1,2) In 2020, investigated 105 complaints of child labor violations, and discovered 6 instances of child labor. Also conducted 2 series of special group inspections during the year covering all geographic areas of the country, during which 42 group inspections covering 210 worksites identified 1 violation. (2) During the reporting period, the Department of Labor also conducted a national awareness-raising program and launched an official YouTube channel, through which it published videos on the elimination of child labor. (2)
Children and Women's Bureau of the Sri Lankan Police	Enforces laws on child labor, child trafficking, commercial sexual exploitation of children, and the use of children in illicit activities. (7,33) Also supervises the NCPA Special Police Investigation Unit, which has approximately 40 police officers who investigate complaints involving children, including complaints of child labor. (1) Received five child victims as referrals from the Department of Labor during the reporting period. (2)
National Child Protection Authority (NCPA) Special Police Investigation Unit	Investigates complaints involving children, including child labor. (7,34,35) Along with the Children and Women's Bureau of the Sri Lankan Police, receives complaints on commercial sexual exploitation and the use of children in illicit activities. (1) Has approximately 300 child protection officers based in the districts who are tasked with preventing child exploitation and protecting victims. (1,33) In 2020, held an event focused on developing a 5-year action plan to implement the National Child Protection Policy, and published the new action plan. (36,37)
Department of Probation and Child Care Services	Coordinates services for child victims of forced labor, human trafficking, and commercial sexual exploitation who have been referred by the police and the court. (7) During the reporting period, launched the National Alternative Care Policy, which includes a section addressing child victims of sexual exploitation and harmful child labor. (2)

Several ministries, departments, and agencies have legal authority for the enforcement of criminal laws against child labor. The National Child Protection Authority (NCPA), the Criminal Investigations Department of the Sri Lankan Police, and the Attorney General's Department are responsible for the enforcement of criminal laws against child trafficking and forced child labor. (1)

Labor Law Enforcement

In 2020, labor law enforcement agencies in Sri Lanka took actions to combat child labor (Table 6). However, gaps exist within the authority of enforcement agencies that may hinder adequate enforcement of their child labor laws, including the labor inspectorate's lack of authority to assess penalties.

Table 6. Labor Law Enforcement Efforts Related to Child Labor

Overview of Labor Law Enforcement	2019	2020
Labor Inspectorate Funding	$2,110,932 (1)	$2,194,101 (2)
Number of Labor Inspectors	494 (2)	588 (2)
Inspectorate Authorized to Assess Penalties	No (1)	No (26)
Initial Training for New Labor Inspectors	Unknown (1)	Unknown (2)
Training on New Laws Related to Child Labor	N/A (1)	N/A (2)
Refresher Courses Provided	Yes (1)	Yes (2)
Number of Labor Inspections Conducted	66,170 (2)	44,439 (2)
Number Conducted at Worksites	64,851 (1)	41,374 (2)
Number of Child Labor Violations Found	10 (1)	6 (2)
Number of Child Labor Violations for Which Penalties Were Imposed	8 (1)	6 (2)
Number of Child Labor Penalties Imposed that Were Collected	8 (1)	6 (2)
Routine Inspections Conducted	Yes (1)	Yes (2)
Routine Inspections Targeted	Yes (1)	Yes (2)
Unannounced Inspections Permitted	Yes (26)	Yes (26)
Unannounced Inspections Conducted	Yes (1)	Yes (2)
Complaint Mechanism Exists	Yes (1)	Yes (2)
Reciprocal Referral Mechanism Exists Between Labor Authorities and Social Services	Yes (1)	Yes (2)

In 2020, Sri Lanka increased the number of labor inspectors from 494 to 588, and 6 labor inspectors are dedicated to inspecting child labor. (2) The number of labor inspectors is sufficient for the size of Sri Lanka's workforce, according to ILO's technical advice and the Sri Lanka Department of Labor. The Department of Labor removed five children from situations of child labor and hazardous child labor during 2020. (2) However, reports indicate that the labor inspectorate did not have sufficient staffing to carry out inspections, especially inspections of factories in the northern and eastern provinces. (1)

Criminal Law Enforcement

In 2020, criminal law enforcement agencies in Sri Lanka took actions to combat child labor (Table 7). However, gaps exist within the operations of enforcement agencies that may hinder adequate enforcement of their child labor laws, including the lack of information regarding violations found.

Table 7. Criminal Law Enforcement Efforts Related to Child Labor

Overview of Criminal Law Enforcement	2019	2020
Initial Training for New Criminal Investigators	Yes (1)	Yes (32)
Training on New Laws Related to the Worst Forms of Child Labor	N/A (1)	N/A (2)
Refresher Courses Provided	Yes (1)	Yes (2)
Number of Investigations	7 (1)	Unknown (2)
Number of Violations Found	Unknown (1)	Unknown (2)
Number of Prosecutions Initiated	Unknown (1)	6 (2)
Number of Convictions	Unknown (1)	2 (2)
Imposed Penalties for Violations Related to the Worst Forms of Child Labor	Unknown (1)	Yes (2)
Reciprocal Referral Mechanism Exists Between Criminal Authorities and Social Services	Yes (1)	Yes (2)

The government did not provide information on the total number of violations related to the worst forms of child labor for inclusion in this report. However, during the reporting period, the government did provide information on the number of prosecutions initiated, convictions, and penalties for violations related to the worst forms of child labor. (2,24)

Research found that investigators did not have adequate facilities or human resources to carry out investigations. Investigators lack transportation facilities, and the Sri Lankan Police lack facilities to record evidence. (1,2,38) Although the government publishes some crime statistics, the Sri Lankan Police do not fully disaggregate criminal data, including cases investigated specific to forced child labor, child trafficking, child commercial sexual exploitation, and the use of children in illicit activities. (1,2,32,39,40)

In 2020, six new cases involving the sexual exploitation of children were reported. In addition, a case of alleged sexual exploitation of children at a state-run orphanage in Anuradhapura gained media attention during the reporting period. According to NGO reports, police arrested the head of this orphanage and one of its staff members, and launched criminal investigations into two provincial officials with oversight of state-run orphanages. (24) However, research indicates some victims of child trafficking or commercial sexual exploitation may be penalized for prostitution and other offenses rather than treated as victims. (23)

IV. COORDINATION OF GOVERNMENT EFFORTS ON CHILD LABOR

The government has established mechanisms to coordinate its efforts to address child labor (Table 8).

MODERATE ADVANCEMENT

Table 8. Key Mechanisms to Coordinate Government Efforts on Child Labor

Coordinating Body	Role & Description
National Steering Committee on Child Labor Elimination	Coordinates efforts to eliminate child labor, including the implementation of the National Policy on Elimination of Child Labor in Sri Lanka. Chaired by the Secretary of the Ministry of Labor; includes representatives from key government agencies, employer and workers' organizations, ILO, UNICEF, and NGOs. (1) In 2020, met once in September; the first technical working group meeting took place in November 2020. During the reporting period, designed a national communications strategy on the elimination of child labor and a COVID-19 pandemic Child Vulnerability Survey. (2)
National Child Protection Authority (NCPA)	Coordinates and monitors activities related to the protection of children, including activities to combat child labor. Consults with relevant government ministries, local governments, employers, and NGOs, and recommends policies and actions to prevent and protect children from abuse and exploitation. (2) In 2020, referred 116 child labor complaints received via its hotline to the Department of Labor. (24)
National Anti-Trafficking Task Force	Coordinates inter-agency efforts to address all human trafficking issues, including commercial sexual exploitation and forced labor. Led by the Ministry of Justice and includes representatives from a range of government agencies, including the Ministry of Social Services, Ministry of Women and Child Affairs, Department of Labor, NCPA, Department of Probation and Child Care, Police Criminal Division, and Bureau for the Prevention of Abuse to Women and Children. (41) During the reporting period, completed the National Strategic Plan to Monitor and Combat Human Trafficking (2021–2025). (2)
Child Development Committees	Coordinate activities and exchange information among child protection officers, police, and labor, education, and health officials at the village, division, and district levels. Function in 25 districts and 313 divisions. (7) During the reporting period, the committees continued to meet. (2)

The government reported improved inter-agency coordination during the reporting period. The Department of Labor launched an awareness campaign among public institutions involved in various sectors, and trained regional managers of the Department of Fisheries on labor law related to children and young persons below the age of 18 years. (2) In 2020, the government also engaged with the ILO and other international donors to eliminate child labor and to understand the impact the COVID-19 pandemic would have on children. (2)

V. GOVERNMENT POLICIES ON CHILD LABOR

The government has established policies related to child labor (Table 9). However, policy gaps exist that hinder efforts to address child labor, including implementation.

Table 9. Key Policies Related to Child Labor

Policy	Description
National Policy on Elimination of Child Labor in Sri Lanka	Aims to mainstream child labor issues into national development policies, increase the minimum age for employment, promote the implementation of hazardous work regulations, strengthen capacity to enforce child labor laws, and maintain a complaint procedure. (42) Research was unable to determine whether activities were undertaken to implement the National Policy on Elimination of Child Labor during the reporting period. (2)
National Child Protection Policy	Established by NCPA as a measure to reduce child sex tourism in Sri Lanka. (1,2) Research was unable to determine whether activities were undertaken to implement the National Child Protection Policy during the reporting period.
National Strategic Plan to Monitor and Combat Human Trafficking (2021–2025)†	Seeks to combat human trafficking by raising stakeholder awareness, improving victim protection services, increasing the prosecution of human trafficking cases, and conducting research and data collection. Also seeks to improve coordination among the Anti-Trafficking Task Force members. (43) Completed during the reporting period. (24)
Decent Work Country Program (2018–2022)	Details the priorities and outcomes required to make progress toward the goal of decent work for all. Identifies key areas of work for the eradication of child labor by 2022, including operationalizing the child labor-free zone model in all districts, expanding the inspection system to cover child labor in the informal sector, raising the minimum age for employment to 16 years, revising regulations on hazardous child labor, improving the complaints and referral mechanisms, and regularly collecting data on child labor. (44) In February 2020, the task force held its sixth annual meeting in Jaffna. (45)
National Alternative Care Policy†	Launched during the reporting period by the Department of Probation and Child Care Services. Includes a section addressing child victims of sexual exploitation or harmful child labor. (2)

† The policy was approved during the reporting period.

‡ The government had other policies that may have addressed child labor issues or had an impact on child labor. (2,7,46)

VI. SOCIAL PROGRAMS TO ADDRESS CHILD LABOR

In 2020, the government funded and participated in programs that include the goal of eliminating or preventing child labor (Table 10). However, gaps exist in these social programs, including implementation.

Table 10. Key Social Programs to Address Child Labor

Program	Description
Child Labor-Free Zone Model†	Local government initiatives that seek to eliminate child labor through the identification of children engaged in child labor, a rehabilitation program, assistance to families of children at risk of engaging in child labor, and an awareness-raising campaign. Operated by the district secretariats, with assistance from the Department of Labor and with technical and financial support from ILO. (1) The program's start was postponed during the reporting period, and it is scheduled to be introduced in 2021. (2)
School Child Protection Committees	Preventive program established by NCPA to empower children to protect themselves from trafficking and child labor. (1) According to some reports, although 3,165 committees have been set up, only 2,392 committees are presently active. (47,48) Research was unable to determine whether activities were undertaken to implement the School Child Protection Program during the reporting period.
'1929' Childline Sri Lanka‡	NCPA-funded and operated 24-hour toll-free emergency telephone service for vulnerable and abused children. Connects children in need of help to direct assistance and rehabilitation services. (2,49) In 2020, the hotline continued to run, and was launched as an app, but there are reports it was not always staffed. The hotline received 119 reports of child trafficking during the reporting period, and referred 116 of those complaints to the Department of Labor, but no victims or potential human trafficking cases were identified from these allegations. (2,24)
Shelter for Victims of Human Trafficking	Ministry of Women and Child Affairs shelter that provides children and female victims of human trafficking with safe shelter and access to medical, psychological, and legal assistance. (24,42) During the reporting period, shelters for female trafficking victims were closed due to lack of usage, but the Ministry made space available for trafficking victims within a shelter for female victims of domestic violence. Use of the government-funded shelter required a magistrate's order, so human trafficking victims who did not seek court assistance could not obtain shelter. (3)
Cash Transfer Program*	Implemented during the reporting period, cash transfers were disbursed to 70 percent of families who have lost their income due to the pandemic. The financial assistance may reduce the risk of child labor for children in these families. (2)
Measurement, Awareness-Raising, and Policy Engagement (MAP16) Project on Child Labor and Forced Labor*	$220,000 USDOL-funded project implemented by ILO that aims to conduct research and develop new survey methodologies, improve awareness, strengthen policies and government capacity, and promote partnerships to combat child labor and forced labor. The project began in March 2020 and is expected to last 18 months. Additional information is available on the USDOL website . (2,50,51)

* Program was launched during the reporting period.

† Program is funded by the Government of Sri Lanka.

‡ The government had other programs that may have addressed child labor issues or had an impact on child labor. (1)

In 2020, the Department of Labor also distributed 1,500 handbooks on "Hazardous Child Labor," translated into Tamil, to children and other stakeholders in the Northern, Eastern, and Central provinces. (2)

VII. SUGGESTED GOVERNMENT ACTIONS TO ELIMINATE CHILD LABOR

Based on the reporting above, suggested actions are identified that would advance the elimination of child labor in Sri Lanka (Table 11).

Table 11. Suggested Government Actions to Eliminate Child Labor

Area	Suggested Action	Year(s) Suggested
Legal Framework	Ensure that the hazardous occupations and activities prohibited to children are comprehensive, including domestic work.	2017 – 2020
Enforcement	Authorize the labor inspectorate to assess penalties for labor law violations.	2015 – 2020
	Collect and publish information on labor law enforcement actions, including initial training for new labor inspectors.	2014 – 2020
	Collect and publish disaggregated information on the number of investigations and violations related to the worst forms of child labor.	2020

MODERATE ADVANCEMENT

Area	Suggested Action	Year(s) Suggested
Enforcement	Provide investigators with additional funding and adequate facilities, including transportation and facilities to record evidence, and human resources to adequately investigate forced labor, child trafficking, and the commercial sexual exploitation of children.	2011 – 2020
	Provide adequate staffing in the northern and eastern provinces for the labor inspectorate to carry out inspections.	2019 – 2020
	Ensure that victims of child trafficking or commercial sexual exploitation are not punished for their involvement in child labor.	2019 – 2020
Government Policies	Publish activities undertaken to implement key policies related to child labor during the reporting period.	2020
Social Programs	Ensure that the definition of child labor used in national child labor surveys to calculate child labor statistics clearly aligns with international standards.	2017 – 2020
	Eliminate barriers to education, including difficulties with transportation to schools and an inadequate number of teachers.	2012 – 2020
	Institute programs to address the risks of child labor in tea estates and in coastal, agricultural, mining, and firewood-producing areas.	2019 – 2020
	Ensure that activities are undertaken to implement social programs to address child labor.	2020

In 2020, Suriname made minimal advancement in efforts to eliminate the worst forms of child labor. The government drafted and approved a new National Action Plan for the Prevention and Response to Trafficking in Persons. It also hired 20 new labor inspectors, increasing the size of the Labor Inspectorate from 50 to 70. However, children in Suriname are subjected to the worst forms of child labor, including in commercial sexual exploitation, sometimes as a result of human trafficking. Children also perform dangerous tasks in mining. Prohibitions related to the use of children for illicit activities do not meet international standards. In addition, the compulsory education age does not reach the minimum age for employment, leaving some children vulnerable to labor exploitation. Suriname also lacked targeted inspections in risk-prone sectors.

I. PREVALENCE AND SECTORAL DISTRIBUTION OF CHILD LABOR

Children in Suriname are subjected to the worst forms of child labor, including in commercial sexual exploitation, sometimes as a result of human trafficking. Children also perform dangerous tasks in mining. (1-4) Table 1 provides key indicators on children's work and education in Suriname. Data on some of these indicators are not available from the sources used in this report.

Table 1. Statistics on Children's Work and Education

Children	Age	Percent
Working (% and population)	5 to 14	7.2 (Unavailable)
Attending School (%)	5 to 14	95.3
Combining Work and School (%)	7 to 14	7.3
Primary Completion Rate (%)		85.9

Source for primary completion rate: Data from 2019, published by UNESCO Institute for Statistics, 2021. (5)

Source for all other data: International Labor Organization's analysis of statistics from Multiple Indicator Cluster Survey 6 (MICS 6), 2018. (6)

Based on a review of available information, Table 2 provides an overview of children's work by sector and activity.

Table 2. Overview of Children's Work by Sector and Activity

Sector/Industry	Activity
Agriculture	Harvesting crops, applying pesticides,† carrying heavy loads‡ (2-4) Fishing, hunting, and forestry (7,8)
Industry	Mining, particularly gold mining (1-4,7) Construction,† including carrying heavy loads‡ (2-4,8) Wood processing, including carrying heavy loads‡ (2,3)
Services	Street work, including vending (2,8) Domestic work (7,8)
Categorical Worst Forms of Child Labor‡	Commercial sexual exploitation, sometimes as a result of human trafficking (1,2,4,7,9)

† Determined by national law or regulation as hazardous and, as such, relevant to Article 3(d) of ILO C. 182.

‡ Child labor understood as the worst forms of child labor per se under Article 3(a)–(c) of ILO C. 182.

Suriname

MINIMAL ADVANCEMENT

Throughout the coastal areas of Suriname, children work in agriculture, and in the capital of Paramaribo, they primarily engage in street vending. In addition, children, mostly boys, work carrying heavy loads in small-scale gold mines in the southeast region of the country, where they risk exposure to mercury and cyanide, excessive noise, extreme heat, and collapsing sand walls. (1-3,10,11) Children have also been reported working in small-scale construction and wood processing companies outside Paramaribo. (2,3) Moreover, children are subjected to commercial sexual exploitation, sometimes as a result of human trafficking, including in informal mining camps in Suriname's remote interior. (3,4,7,10,11)

Although Suriname's net attendance percentage for primary school is 95 percent, it is only 53 percent for secondary school, and research indicates that secondary school attendance in the interior is as low as 21 percent. Children from low-income households, particularly in the interior, face difficulties accessing education due to long distances to schools, transportation costs, and school fees. (1,2,12,13) There were reports that some children were denied access to schools due to incomplete documentation. (3) The COVID-19 pandemic has made access to education more complicated for low-income families. Limitations to in-person school access have forced students into partial home schooling when schools are open and into full home schooling under more restrictive lockdown measures. (3)

II. LEGAL FRAMEWORK FOR CHILD LABOR

Suriname has ratified most key international conventions concerning child labor (Table 3).

Table 3. Ratification of International Conventions on Child Labor

Convention	Ratification
 ILO C. 138, Minimum Age	✓
ILO C. 182, Worst Forms of Child Labor	✓
 UN CRC	✓
UN CRC Optional Protocol on Armed Conflict
UN CRC Optional Protocol on the Sale of Children, Child Prostitution and Child Pornography	✓
 Palermo Protocol on Trafficking in Persons	✓

The government has established laws and regulations related to child labor (Table 4). However, gaps exist in Suriname's legal framework to adequately protect children from the worst forms of child labor, including the compulsory education age, which is below the minimum age for work.

Table 4. Laws and Regulations on Child Labor

Standard	Meets International Standards	Age	Legislation
Minimum Age for Work	Yes	16	Articles 1 (j-l), 3, and 11 of the Children and Youth Persons Labor Act; Article 17 of the Labor Code (14,15)
Minimum Age for Hazardous Work	Yes	18	Articles 1 (k-l) and 11 of the Children and Youth Persons Labor Act; Article 1 of the Decree on Hazardous Labor for Youth (15,16)
Identification of Hazardous Occupations or Activities Prohibited for Children	Yes		Articles 2–3 of the Decree on Hazardous Labor for Youth; Article 11 of the Children and Youth Persons Labor Act (15,16)
Prohibition of Forced Labor	Yes		Article 15 of the Constitution; Article 334 of the Penal Code (17,18)
Prohibition of Child Trafficking	Yes		Articles 307 and 334 of the Penal Code (18)
Prohibition of Commercial Sexual Exploitation of Children	Yes		Articles 293, 303, and 306 of the Penal Code (18)

Standard	Meets International Standards	Age	Legislation
Prohibition of Using Children in Illicit Activities	No
Minimum Age for Voluntary State Military Recruitment	Yes	18	Article 9 of the Conscription Act (19)
Prohibition of Compulsory Recruitment of Children by (State) Military	N/A*
Prohibition of Military Recruitment by Non-state Armed Groups	No
Compulsory Education Age	No	12	Article 39 of the Constitution; Article 20 of the Law on Basic Education (17,20)
Free Public Education	Yes		Articles 38–39 of the Constitution (17)

* No conscription (21)

Article 20 of the Law on Basic Education requires children to attend school until they are at least age 12. (20) This leaves children between ages 12 and 16 particularly vulnerable to the worst forms of child labor because they are no longer required to attend school but are not yet legally permitted to work.

The Constitution guarantees free public education for all citizens, and the September 2014 amendment to the Citizenship and Residency Law granted citizenship to children born in Suriname of foreign-born parents. Sources indicate, however, that a small number of children born in Suriname to foreign parents before September 2014 remain ineligible to receive citizenship but do receive free public education if they provide a birth certificate and vaccination records. (1,17,22,23)

The Penal Code establishes penalties for the production and trafficking of drugs, but it does not appear to specifically prohibit the use, procuring, and offering of a child in the production and trafficking of drugs. (18)

III. ENFORCEMENT OF LAWS ON CHILD LABOR

The government has established institutional mechanisms for the enforcement of laws and regulations on child labor (Table 5). However, gaps exist within the authority of enforcement agencies that may hinder adequate enforcement of their child labor laws.

Table 5. Agencies Responsible for Child Labor Law Enforcement

Organization/Agency	Role
Ministry of Labor	Enforces laws related to child labor. (11) Reports suspected forced labor cases, including the worst forms of child labor, within 45 minutes of identification, to the Trafficking in Persons Unit of the Suriname Police Force. (2)
Suriname Police Force	Enforces criminal laws related to child labor. (11) Includes the Youth Affairs Police, who cover law enforcement involving children under age 18 and are jointly responsible for child labor-related crimes. Also includes the Trafficking in Persons Unit, which investigates reports and allegations of human trafficking and forced sexual exploitation nationwide, including cases involving children. (2,3,9)
Prosecutor's Office	Investigates and prosecutes human trafficking cases, and enforces criminal laws related to the worst forms of child labor. (2)

Labor Law Enforcement

In 2020, labor law enforcement agencies in Suriname took actions to combat child labor (Table 6). However, gaps exist within the operations of the Ministry of Labor that may hinder adequate labor law enforcement, including targeted inspections in risk-prone sectors.

‡ Data are from August 2020 to December 2020. Data from January 2020 to July 2020 is unknown.

In 2020, as part of a reorganization of the labor inspectorate, a new head was appointed and 20 new inspectors were hired. (3) During the reporting period, as part of the government's efforts to implement the established pandemic protocols for various sectors, the Labor Inspectorate was placed at the head of a pandemic Cluster Team that increased inspections of businesses in different sectors. The pandemic Cluster Team is an inter-ministerial team with representatives of the Ministries of Labor, Health, Justice and Police, Regional Development and Sport, and Defense. (3) This change provided the Labor Inspectorate with the capacity to increase its general inspections for labor law violations as well. (3)

Although the exact number of inspections during the first of half of 2020 is unknown, 400 inspections were conducted between August and December, the majority of which were part of the government's effort to monitor adherence to the pandemic protocols for different sectors of the economy. (3) Labor inspections are mainly conducted near coastal areas. The Ministry of Labor noted that there is an insufficient number of labor inspectors to ensure the enforcement of labor laws in the informal sector, particularly in mining and agricultural areas, fisheries, and the country's interior. (1, 11, 21, 24) However, all labor inspectors are trained and authorized to enforce child labor laws. (2, 3, 10) In 2020, all inspectors took part in a presentation on the Children and Young Persons Labor Act presented by the legal team of the Ministry of Labor. Members of the Labor Inspectorate also took part in virtual training sessions on human trafficking hosted by the Office to Monitor and Combat Trafficking in Persons of the USDOS in collaboration with the USDOJ. (3)

Although the Ministry of Labor does not provide disaggregated funding information, the Labor Inspectorate reported that its funding is insufficient to adequately cover all sectors in the country, including the formal and informal sectors. In addition, high-risk sectors are not specifically targeted because labor inspectors mainly conduct routine inspections in the formal sectors, which have lower incidences of child labor. (3, 10)

Criminal Law Enforcement

In 2020, criminal law enforcement agencies in Suriname took actions to combat child labor (Table 7). However, gaps exist within the operations of the criminal enforcement agencies that may hinder adequate criminal law enforcement, including allocation of financial and human resources.

Table 7. Criminal Law Enforcement Efforts Related to Child Labor

Overview of Criminal Law Enforcement	2019	2020
Initial Training for New Criminal Investigators	Yes (2)	No (3)
Training on New Laws Related to the Worst Forms of Child Labor	N/A (2)	N/A (3)
Refresher Courses Provided	Yes (2)	Yes (3)
Number of Investigations	2 (25)	0 (3)
Number of Violations Found	Unknown	0 (3)
Number of Prosecutions Initiated	0	0 (3)
Number of Convictions	Unknown	0 (3)
Imposed Penalties for Violations Related to the Worst Forms of Child Labor	Unknown	No (3)
Reciprocal Referral Mechanism Exists Between Criminal Authorities and Social Services	Yes (2)	Yes (3)

Suriname's referral system, managed by the Bureau for the Rights of the Child of the Ministry of Social Affairs, was developed in collaboration with UNICEF in 2019 and is still in pilot phase. (3) The referral mechanism aims to address violations of children's rights by not only working toward the removal of children from exploitative situations, but also by seeking solutions to the root causes of their exploitation. (2,3)

The number of investigators is insufficient to respond to human trafficking cases, and, according to the Prosecutor's Office, investigations are initiated primarily as a result of complaints filed and are limited by a lack of resources, especially for travel to the interior of the country, which was only made worse by the pandemic. (3, 11, 24, 26) Suriname has a mechanism for the referral of victims for social services. In addition, the Bureau for Victim Services within the Ministry of Justice and Police provides counseling, the Bureau for Legal Services can provide a victim with legal assistance, and other services are arranged by the Trafficking in Persons Unit of the police. (3)

IV. COORDINATION OF GOVERNMENT EFFORTS ON CHILD LABOR

The government has established mechanisms to coordinate its efforts to address child labor (Table 8).

Table 8. Key Mechanisms to Coordinate Government Efforts on Child Labor

Coordinating Body	Role & Description
National Commission on Combating Child Labor	Serves as the leading body in drafting child labor policies. (10) Coordinates and monitors efforts to combat child labor, including the execution of the National Action Plan to Combat Child Labor. Also coordinates with the Integrated Child Protection Network to maximize awareness-raising efforts. (2) Due to the COVID-19 pandemic, the National Commission on Combating Child Labor was unable to execute its planned activities from the National Action Plan to Combat Child Labor, which would have been in-person awareness-raising activities throughout the country. Remained active on social media in 2020, continuously posting information on child labor. (3)
Trafficking in Persons Working Group	Coordinates the government's anti-human trafficking efforts. Provides care to victims of human trafficking through government-supported NGOs. (24) Comprises nine government agencies, including organizations that target the worst forms of child labor. (11) Was temporarily disbanded when a new government took office in July 2020. During the reporting period, drafted an action plan for 2020–2021, which was approved by the Ministry of Justice and Police. (3)
Integrated Child Protection Network	Prevents child abuse, neglect, and exploitation, including child labor. (11) Is led by the Ministry of Social Affairs and includes the Ministry of Foreign Affairs, Ministry of Justice and Police, Office of the First Lady, National Assembly, and NGO stakeholders, with support from UNICEF. (11) In 2020, received post-evaluation recommendations on the National Referral System, which it developed with UNICEF and which is currently in its pilot phase. Held an informational session for members of the National Assembly as well as representatives of different political parties, and launched its website. (3)

V. GOVERNMENT POLICIES ON CHILD LABOR

The government has established policies that are consistent with relevant international standards on child labor (Table 9).

Suriname

MINIMAL ADVANCEMENT

Table 9. Key Policies Related to Child Labor

Policy	Description
National Action Plan to Combat Child Labor (2019–2024)	Aims to combat child labor by removing children from child labor and by addressing issues that lead children to become involved in child labor, including poverty and lack of educational opportunities. Also addresses the social and educational reintegration of these children. (2) In 2020, the commission implementing the plan postponed its planned in-person awareness activities throughout the country, but continued to regularly post information on child labor issues on social media. (3)
National Action Plan for the Prevention and Response to Trafficking in Persons (2020–2021)†	Aims to combat and prevent human trafficking, including through the prevention, protection, and reintegration of victims, and the prosecution of perpetrators of trafficking in persons. (27) In 2020, the plan was updated and approved. Follows the 2019 plan closely in its policies and accompanying actions. (3)

† Policy was approved during the reporting period.

VI. SOCIAL PROGRAMS TO ADDRESS CHILD LABOR

In 2020, the government funded and participated in programs that include the goal of eliminating child labor (Table 10). However, gaps exist in these social programs, including services for child victims of human trafficking and commercial sexual exploitation.

Table 10. Key Social Programs to Address Child Labor

Program	Description
Decent Work Program	ILO program that supports capacity building of the Labor Inspectorate and constituents, as well as of the National Commission for the Elimination of Child Labor for implementation, and the monitoring and evaluation of the National Action Plan. Aims to have trained inspectors to cover all areas in Suriname by 2020. (28) Provided in-depth training from ILO to the Labor Inspectorate, though the majority of training scheduled in 2020 was postponed and still needs to be rescheduled. (3,29)
Child and Youth Hotline†	Government-run hotline that provides confidential advice to children in need, including victims of the worst forms of child labor. Receives approximately 80 calls per day. (30) Reported to be active in 2020. (3)
Anti-Trafficking Hotline†	Government-sponsored hotline through which citizens can provide information to the police about human trafficking cases. (2) Reported to be active in 2020. (3)
Second Basic Education Improvement Program (2015–2040)	$20 million IDB-funded, 25 year loan implemented by the Ministry of Education to develop curriculums and textbooks, provide teacher training, renovate classrooms, build housing for teachers in the interior, and build a center for teacher training and professional development. Aims to benefit 90,000 students and 6,500 teachers. (31) Reported to be active in 2020. (3)
Regional Initiative Latin America and the Caribbean Free of Child Labor	With support from the Cooperation Agency of Brazil and ILO, assists Caribbean countries, including Suriname, to improve youth transition from school to work. In October 2020, held a virtual conference to discuss plans for 2022–2025, updated its governance mechanisms, and worked to improve ownership and social dialogue. (32)

† Program is funded by the Government of Suriname.

The government continues to support initiatives to eradicate child labor, but existing social programs are inadequate to fully address the problem. In particular, Suriname lacks programs to assist child victims of human trafficking and commercial sexual exploitation, as well as children who work in mining and agriculture. (11, 12, 33)

VII. SUGGESTED GOVERNMENT ACTIONS TO ELIMINATE CHILD LABOR

Based on the reporting above, suggested actions are identified that would advance the elimination of child labor in Suriname (Table 11).

Table 11. Suggested Government Actions to Eliminate Child Labor

Area	Suggested Action	Year(s) Suggested
Legal Framework	Ensure that the law criminally prohibits the use, procuring, and offering of a child for illicit activities, including in the production and trafficking of drugs.	2015 – 2020
	Ensure that the law criminally prohibits the recruitment of children under age 18 into non-state armed groups.	2016 – 2020
	Increase the compulsory education age to at least age 16, the minimum age for work.	2009 – 2020
	Ensure that all children, including children of foreign-born parents, have access to free public education.	2015 – 2020

Area	Suggested Action	Year(s) Suggested
Legal Framework	Ratify the UN CRC Optional Protocol on Armed Conflict.	2020
Enforcement	Publish information on Labor Inspectorate funding.	2012 – 2020
	Ensure that the Labor Inspectorate is sufficiently funded to cover labor inspections in both the formal and informal sectors of the labor force.	2018 – 2020
	Strengthen the Labor Inspectorate by initiating targeted inspections based on the analysis of data related to risk-prone sectors, such as in fisheries and the interior of the country, particularly in mining and agricultural areas in which child labor is likely to occur.	2015 – 2020
	Increase the number of investigators responding to human trafficking cases, and allocate sufficient funding to ensure that criminal law enforcement officers have the resources necessary to conduct investigations, particularly in the interior of the country and informal mining areas.	2014 – 2020
Social Programs	Develop social programs to prevent and eradicate child labor in agriculture and mining and to improve secondary school attendance, particularly in the interior.	2015 – 2020
	Strengthen social services and shelters to assist child victims of commercial sexual exploitation and human trafficking.	2014 – 2020
	Increase access to education by eliminating school-related fees, reducing transportation costs, increasing access to schools in remote locations, and removing requirements for documentation.	2020

MINIMAL ADVANCEMENT – EFFORTS MADE BUT CONTINUED PRACTICE THAT DELAYED ADVANCEMENT

In 2020, The United Republic of Tanzania made minimal advancement in efforts to eliminate the worst forms of child labor. The Zanzibar Government increased funding of its labor inspectorate and hired an additional 16 labor inspectors. However, despite new initiatives to address child labor, Tanzania is assessed as having made only minimal advancement because it continued a practice that delays advancement to eliminate child labor. The Mainland Government explicitly supports the routine expulsion of pregnant students from public schools, making them more vulnerable to the worst forms of child labor. Children in Tanzania are subjected to the worst forms of child labor, including in mining, quarrying, and domestic work, each sometimes as a result of human trafficking. Children also perform dangerous tasks in agriculture. The Mainland Government did not publicly release information on its labor and criminal law enforcement efforts. Other gaps remain in the legal framework and enforcement of laws related to child labor, including protections for child engagement in illicit activities and domestic work, the lack of authorization for the labor inspectorate to assess penalties, and the likely insufficient number of labor inspectors for the size of Tanzania's labor force.

I. PREVALENCE AND SECTORAL DISTRIBUTION OF CHILD LABOR

Children in Tanzania are subjected to the worst forms of child labor, including in mining, quarrying, and domestic work, each sometimes as a result of human trafficking. (1-3) Children also perform dangerous tasks in agriculture. (1,4) Table 1 provides key indicators on children's work and education in Mainland Tanzania.

Table 1. Statistics on Children's Work and Education

Children	Age	Percent

	Forced labor in domestic work, agriculture, mining, fishing, commercial trading, quarrying, shining shoes, pushing carts, and working in factories and bars, each sometimes as a result of human trafficking (2,3,11,27,29)

† Determined by national law or regulation as hazardous and, as such, relevant to Article 3(d) of ILO C. 182.

‡ Child labor understood as the worst forms of child labor per se under Article 3(a)–(c) of ILO C. 182.

Tanzania is a source, transit, and destination country for child trafficking for forced labor and commercial sexual exploitation. Child trafficking is often facilitated by victims’ family members, friends, or intermediaries who promise assistance with education, better living conditions, or employment. (2,30) Parents, particularly from poor and rural households, entrust their children to the care of wealthy relatives and community leaders who sometimes coerce the children to perform domestic work. (2) Girls are often subject to child trafficking, including for domestic work or commercial sexual exploitation; this frequently occurs along the Kenyan border and in tourist, mining, and construction areas. (2) Although trafficking of children primarily occurs within Tanzania, children from Burundi and Rwanda are brought into Tanzania for forced labor. (2,31) According to reports, Burundian refugee children living in Tanzania are increasingly vulnerable to exploitation, including commercial sexual exploitation, sometimes as result of human trafficking, and for work on farms in western Tanzania. (30,32,33) Research also indicates that commercial sexual exploitation of children, particularly girls, has increased in Tanzania, resulting from school closures and lockdowns during the COVID-19 pandemic. There are also rising instances of online-based forms of sexual exploitation. (3)

Children working in mining are exposed to many hazards, such as mercury poisoning and being trapped when tunnels collapse, especially in smaller unlicensed operations. (19,20,34,35) A 2019 report identified children grinding and pounding rock for production of gravel in Pemba. The children working at these sites were using dangerous tools and exposed to being hit by rock fragments. (15) The Mainland 2019 Statistics Act restricts the sharing of government-collected data and information with people and organizations, including information related to children’s protection and child labor. (3,36)

Schools, particularly in rural areas, lack adequate teachers, classrooms, food, and sanitation facilities. Families are often required to financially contribute to offset these deficits and pay for costs of uniforms, books, and other school materials. (3,37) In addition, schools often lack resources for children with disabilities or learning disorders, resulting in many of these students dropping out and becoming vulnerable to child labor. (3,38) A practice that contributes to children being left out of the formal education system derives from Mainland Tanzania’s Education Act, which allows school officials to conduct medical examinations on students; school administrators apply this law in combination with the Mainland’s Education Regulations, which allow for the expulsion of students for moral offenses, to compel female students to undergo pregnancy tests and expel them if they are pregnant. Pregnant girls excluded from the school system have increased vulnerability to the worst forms of child labor. (39-45) Senior government officials, including the late President, have explicitly expressed support for this practice. (3,44,46) In early 2021, the government indicated that expelled girls could return to school, but only if they passed either Form 2 or Form 4 national exams, which they must take independently, without the support of a school. (47) To date, schools continue the practice of expelling girls who become pregnant. (3,43-45)

II. LEGAL FRAMEWORK FOR CHILD LABOR

Tanzania has ratified all key international conventions concerning child labor (Table 3).

MINIMAL ADVANCEMENT – EFFORTS MADE BUT CONTINUED PRACTICE THAT DELAYED ADVANCEMENT

Table 3. Ratification of International Conventions on Child Labor

Convention	Ratification

UN CRC Optional Protocol on Armed Conflict	✓
UN CRC Optional Protocol on the Sale of Children, Child Prostitution and Child Pornography	✓
 Palermo Protocol on Trafficking in Persons	✓

The government has established laws and regulations related to child labor (Table 4). However, gaps exist in Tanzania's legal framework to adequately protect children from the worst forms of child labor, including the minimum age for work and the compulsory education age.

Table 4. Laws and Regulations on Child Labor

MINIMAL ADVANCEMENT – EFFORTS MADE BUT CONTINUED PRACTICE THAT DELAYED ADVANCEMENT

Mainland Tanzania and Zanzibar’s non-union matters are governed by distinct territorial jurisdictional laws, leaving each territory to determine its own child labor laws. (11,52) The minimum age for work laws in Mainland Tanzania and Zanzibar do not meet international standards because they do not extend to all working children, including children engaged in domestic work. (48,50,51) Mainland Tanzania’s hazardous work list for children does not specify weeding and processing as activities that are dangerous agricultural tasks in the production of tobacco, cloves, coffee, sisal, and tea. (34,48,49,59) In addition, Mainland Tanzania does not clearly provide penalties for using children for illicit activities, including in the production and trafficking of drugs.

Although Zanzibar has a policy establishing compulsory education through the age of 15, this standard has not been put into law; the Education Act stipulates a compulsory education age of 13, which is below the minimum age for work. (39,58) In the Mainland, there is no free basic education for children as established by law and the compulsory education age is below the minimum age of work, increasing the risk of children’s involvement in child labor. (57)

III. ENFORCEMENT OF LAWS ON CHILD LABOR

The government has established institutional mechanisms for the enforcement of laws and regulations on child labor (Table 5). However, gaps exist within the authority of enforcement agencies that may hinder adequate enforcement of their child labor laws.

Table 5. Agencies Responsible for Child Labor Law Enforcement

Organization/ Agency	Related Entity	Role
Minister of State in the Prime Minister’s Office for Policy, Parliamentary Affairs, Labor, Employment, Youth, and the Disabled	Mainland	Enforces child labor laws. Assigns area labor officers to each region to respond to reports of child labor violations, issues non-compliance orders, and reports incidents to police and the Ministry of Health, Community Development, Gender, Elderly, and Children. (11) Through its Labor Administration and Inspection Section, provides legal guidance upon request, disseminates information to employers and employees on their rights and obligations, and helps area offices conduct labor inspections. (60)
Ministry of Health, Community Development, Gender, Elderly, and Children	Mainland	Enforces child protection laws and regulations, and health and social welfare policies. Employs officers to monitor child labor at the district and village levels, and reports findings to the President’s Office of Regional Administration and to local governments. (11) Promotes community development, gender equality, and children’s rights by formulating policies, strategies, and guidelines in collaboration with stakeholders. (60)
Ministry of Home Affairs	Mainland	Enforces anti-trafficking laws, including child trafficking, and laws prohibiting commercial sexual exploitation of children and the use of children in illicit activities. (60)
Zanzibar Labor Commission	Zanzibar	Ensures compliance with child protection and child labor laws, including inspections, through its Child Protection Unit. (60) Located within the Zanzibar President’s Office of Economy and Investment, investigates child labor cases reported by the police and refers cases to social welfare officers. In 2020, the Zanzibar Labor Commission was moved from the Ministry of Empowerment, Adults, Youth, Women and Children to the President’s Office of Economy and Investment. (3)
Ministry of Health	Zanzibar	Enforces anti-trafficking laws, including cases of child trafficking. (60)
Tanzania Police Force	Mainland and Zanzibar	Investigates cases of child labor and other forms of child endangerment reported to police stations; in some cases, refers cases to labor officers or seeks assistance from social welfare officers and the Office of the Director of Public Prosecutions to take legal action. Includes a Human Trafficking desk, and Gender and Children’s desks to handle cases pertaining to children. (11,60,61)

Labor Law Enforcement

In 2020, labor law enforcement agencies in Tanzania took actions to combat child labor (Table 6). However, gaps exist within the authority and operations of the labor ministries that may hinder adequate labor law enforcement, including authority to assess penalties and publicly available enforcement data.

The Mainland Government did not provide information on labor enforcement efforts for inclusion in this report. (11) Despite regulations in both the Mainland and Zanzibar requiring that one or more labor officers be assigned to each region, research was unable to determine whether this was followed during the reporting period. An international organization reports there to be only 73 labor inspectors in the Mainland, although the Mainland government has not provided information on the size of its labor inspectorate. (64,65) While the number of labor inspectors is unknown, according to the ILO's technical advice of a ratio approaching 1 inspector for every 40,000 workers in least developed economies, Tanzania would need to employ roughly 622 labor inspectors as its workforce consists of over 25 million workers. (3,7,64-66) During the reporting period, the Government of Zanzibar increased the funding of the labor inspectorate to $20,181 from its previous allocation of $7,180 in 2019, while hiring an additional 16 labor inspectors; the labor inspectorate, however, lacks sufficient personnel, office facilities, transportation and fuel, and other resources to adequately enforce child labor laws. (3) Although figures on the Mainland labor inspectorate funding remain unavailable, NGOs have noted that labor enforcement efforts would benefit from additional funding and increased numbers of inspections. (60) As the law in Zanzibar treats child labor as a criminal offense, labor inspectorates may initiate prosecutions for violations related to child labor. (50)

Criminal Law Enforcement

In 2020, criminal law enforcement agencies in Tanzania took actions to combat child labor (Table 7). However, gaps exist within the operations of the criminal enforcement agencies that may hinder adequate criminal law enforcement, including training for criminal investigators.

Table 7. Criminal Law Enforcement Efforts Related to Child Labor

The Mainland Government did not provide information on criminal law enforcement efforts related to the worst forms of child labor in 2020. In January 2021, however, Mainland criminal law investigators arrested and initiated prosecutions against 15 individuals accused of trafficking disabled children for forced begging. (3,28) An NGO operates a child abuse hotline and reported 49 complaints of child labor to government authorities in 2020; however, research could not determine whether the government conducted investigations in response to these complaints. (3) During the reporting period, police coordinated with social welfare officers, immigration officials, and local NGOs to identify and provide reintegration support to 56 street children. (28)

IV. COORDINATION OF GOVERNMENT EFFORTS ON CHILD LABOR

The government has established mechanisms to coordinate its efforts to address child labor (Table 8). However, gaps exist that hinder the effective coordination of efforts to address child labor, including inactive coordinating bodies.

Table 8. Key Mechanisms to Coordinate Government Efforts on Child Labor

Coordinating Body	Related Entity	Role & Description
National Education Task Force on Child Labor	Mainland and Zanzibar	Reviews existing laws, regulations, and strategies related to children's issues, including the National Action Plan on the Elimination of Child Labor. Evaluates curriculum and programs, identifies gaps, and suggests strategies to resolve barriers to accessing education. (4,67) Research was unable to determine whether the National Education Task Force on Child Labor was active during the reporting period. (3)
Zanzibar Child Labor Steering Committee	Zanzibar	Coordinates various implementing agencies responsible for child labor and provides policy guidance on the Zanzibar National Action Plan to Combat Child Labor. (60) Chaired by Zanzibar's Ministry of Empowerment, Adults, Youth, Women and Children. (64) Research was unable to determine whether the Child Labor Steering Committee was active during the reporting period. (3)

MINIMAL ADVANCEMENT – EFFORTS MADE BUT CONTINUED PRACTICE THAT DELAYED ADVANCEMENT

Coordinating Body	Related Entity	Role & Description
National Protection Steering Committee	Mainland and Zanzibar	Provides overall policy guidance and coordination at the national and local levels of the National Plan of Action to End Violence Against Women and Children (NPA-VAWC) through the merger of the National Inter-Sectoral Coordination Committee and the Multi-Sector Task Force on Violence Against Children. (61,68) Operates the NPA-VAWC National Protection Technical Committee and Thematic Working Groups at the national level. (60,61) Research was unable to determine whether the National Protection Steering Committee was active during the reporting period. (3)
National Anti-Trafficking Committee (ATC)	Mainland and Zanzibar	Promotes, defines, and coordinates policy to prevent human trafficking through engagement with local NGOs. (53,68) Chaired by the National Anti-Trafficking Secretariat within the Ministry of Home Affairs, includes representatives from the Prime Minister's Office for Policy, Parliamentary Affairs, Labor, Employment, Youth, and the Disabled. (64) The ATC met once in June 2020, and engaged in awareness-raising campaigns around the UN World Day Against Trafficking in Persons. (28)

V. GOVERNMENT POLICIES ON CHILD LABOR

The government has established policies related to child labor (Table 9). However, policy gaps exist that hinder efforts to address child labor, including implementation.

Table 9. Key Policies Related to Child Labor

Policy	Related Entity	Description
National Strategy on Elimination of Child Labor (2018–2022)	Mainland and Zanzibar	Coordinates prevention and responses to the worst forms of child labor at the national level. (69) The government, with the support of the ILO, drafted the National Strategy on Elimination of Child Labor in 2018, but has not launched or taken measures to operationalize the policy. (3)
National Plan of Action to End Violence Against Women and Children in Tanzania (NPA-VAWC) (2017–2022)	Mainland and Zanzibar	Prevents and responds to all forms of violence against women and children through comprehensive multi-sectoral collaboration at all levels and combining eight national action plans. (61) Details responsible agencies to address multiple challenges, including education and poverty reduction. (60) The government has not taken measures to launch or operationalize the National Plan of Action to End Violence Against Women and Children in Tanzania. (63)

‡ The government had other policies that may have addressed child labor issues or had an impact on child labor. (58,60,68,70)

Tanzania does not have a law requiring free public education, but it does have an education policy that allows children to attend primary school and lower secondary school without paying tuition fees. (71,72) The Mainland Government, however, regulates access to secondary education through the Primary School Leaving Examination. Students who do not pass the exam do not have an opportunity to re-take the exam and must drop out of public school at the end of compulsory education at age 14. (68) Despite the government's stated intention to phase out the exam by 2021, there is no evidence of government efforts or preparations to do so. (40,68,73) Since 2006, the Zanzibar Government has administered education under the Zanzibar Education Policy, which establishes compulsory education through Form 4 (approximately age 15). (58,74) However, research indicates that implementation of this policy has been slow due to limited resources for schools. The government, moreover, has not included child labor elimination and prevention strategies into the Education Policy. (58) More than half of children in Zanzibar leave the formal education system below the minimum age for work, leaving them at increased risk for child labor. (75,76)

VI. SOCIAL PROGRAMS TO ADDRESS CHILD LABOR

In 2020, the government funded and participated in programs that may contribute to eliminating or preventing child labor (Table 10). However, gaps exist in these social programs, including the scope and implementation of programs in all relevant sectors.

Table 10. Key Social Programs to Address Child Labor

Program	Description
Tanzania Social Action Fund Conditional Cash Transfer Program†	Government-funded conditional cash transfer program to provide financial assistance to vulnerable populations, including children. During 2020, Tanzania's Government launched the third phase of the Tanzania Social Action Fund Conditional Cash Transfer Program to benefit families living in extreme poverty. (3) The total program funding will be $870 million, of which $446 million is funded by the government through a World Bank loan; the remaining amount will be paid for through donor funding. (3)
Promoting Sustainable Practices to Eradicate Child Labor in Tobacco (PROSPER) Umoja (Unity) (2018–2020)	$900,000 extension project of PROSPER Plus, implemented by Winrock International, the Tanzania Association of Women Leaders in Agriculture and the Environment, and the Tabora Development Foundation Trust, with funding from the Eliminating Child Labor in Tobacco Growing (ECLT) Foundation. Aimed to bring together public and private sectors to reduce child labor nationwide, focusing in Kaliua, Sikonge, Tabora, and Urambo. (7,60,77) The Prosper Program concluded in early 2020; however, ECLT launched an extension of its tobacco-sector programming called Rural Enterprise Support to Eliminate Child Labor in Tanzania. (3)
Eradicating the Worst Forms of Labor in the Eight Mining Wards of the Geita District, Phase 2 (2015–2022)	$2 million EU-funded, 3 year project implemented by Plan International Tanzania to enhance social protection mechanisms to prevent and improve awareness of child labor among children, parents, and mining employers near Chato, Geita, and Nywangwale. (7,78) Cumulative figures report that the project provided awareness-raising messages to 5,500 small-scale unregistered miners and supported the removal of 5,472 children from the worst forms of child labor, reintegrating removed children into schools. (11) In 2020, the program received an extension to continue the program in Geita through 2022. (3)
Decent Work Country Program (2017–2020)	ILO-supported program that aimed to promote job creation, workers' rights, social protection, and social dialogue. In 2020, the ILO worked to advance decent work deficits in the tobacco sector, including child labor, with programming in the Tabora and Urambo districts. (3,60,78) The program, however, concluded in August 2020, as a result of lack of funding. (3)

† Program is funded by the Government of Tanzania.

‡ The government had other social programs that may have included the goal of eliminating or preventing child labor. (60)

In response to rising cases of sexual exploitation of children and youths during the pandemic, the government partnered with a local NGO in an awareness campaign with information on issues of sexual exploitation and sexual abuse. (3)

An evaluation of Tanzania's Conditional Cash Transfer Program found that it had achieved little reduction of child labor, as the work of children only shifted from outside to inside the household. Furthermore, the program had not achieved reductions in excessive working hours and engagement in hazardous activities among children. (80)

The scope of government-funded social programs is inadequate in that it does not cover construction, mining and quarrying, domestic service, fishing, and informal sectors in which children engage in child labor.

VII. SUGGESTED GOVERNMENT ACTIONS TO ELIMINATE CHILD LABOR

Based on the reporting above, suggested actions are identified that would advance the elimination of child labor in Tanzania (Table 11).

Table 11. Suggested Government Actions to Eliminate Child Labor

Area	Related Entity	Suggested Action	Year(s) Suggested
Legal Framework	Mainland and Zanzibar	Ensure that minimum age protections apply to all children, including those engaged in domestic work.	2013 – 2020
	Mainland	Expand the list of hazardous occupations and activities prohibited for children to ensure that the list includes weeding and processing in the production of tobacco, cloves, coffee, sisal, and tea.	2016 – 2020
	Mainland	Criminalize the use of children in illicit activities, particularly in producing and trafficking drugs.	2012 – 2020
	Mainland and Zanzibar	Criminalize the recruitment of children under age 18 by non-state armed groups.	2016 – 2020
	Mainland and Zanzibar	Establish by law a compulsory age for education, which leaves no gap between the age of compulsory education and minimum age for work.	2017 – 2020
	Mainland	Establish by law free basic public education.	2016 – 2020

Area	Related Entity	Suggested Action	Year(s) Suggested
Enforcement	Mainland	Authorize Mainland Tanzania and Zanzibar labor inspectorates to assess penalties.	2017 – 2020
	Zanzibar	Institutionalize training for labor inspectors, including training new labor inspectors at the beginning of their employment and refresher courses.	2019 – 2020
	Mainland	Publish information on child labor law enforcement efforts.	2011 – 2020
	Mainland and Zanzibar	Ensure the appointment of a dedicated labor officer for each region, and publish this information.	2013 – 2020
	Mainland and Zanzibar	Increase the number of labor inspectors to meet ILO's technical advice.	2013 – 2020
	Mainland and Zanzibar	Provide sufficient funding to ensure adequate enforcement of labor laws.	2013 – 2020
	Zanzibar	Institutionalize training for criminal law enforcement investigators, including by training new investigators.	2019 – 2020
	Mainland	Publish information on criminal law enforcement efforts related to the worst forms of child labor.	2012 – 2020
Coordination	Mainland and Zanzibar	Ensure that coordinating committees are active and able to carry out their intended mandates.	2018 – 2020
Government Policies	Mainland and Zanzibar	Implement the National Strategy on Elimination of Child Labor.	2020
	Mainland and Zanzibar	Publish activities undertaken to implement the National Plan of Action to End Violence Against Women and Children in Tanzania during the reporting period.	2018 – 2020
	Mainland	Eliminate provisions in the Primary School Leaving Examination that are barriers to education, such as the no re-take policy.	2016 – 2020
	Zanzibar	Incorporate child labor prevention and elimination strategies, and ensure the full implementation of the Zanzibar Education Policy to limit dropouts.	2018 – 2020
Social Programs	Mainland	End legal restrictions that limit the sharing of information related to child labor.	2020
	Mainland and Zanzibar	Enhance efforts to eliminate barriers and make education accessible to all children in Tanzania by ensuring adequate resources for children with disabilities and learning disorders, increasing resources for teachers, classrooms, food, and sanitation facilities, while defraying informal costs imposed onto families, including school uniforms, books, and other learning materials.	2010 – 2020
	Mainland	Ensure that schools do not prohibit access to education for pregnant girls.	2017 – 2020
	Mainland and Zanzibar	Improve harmonization of child labor prevention and elimination measures into the Social Action Fund Conditional Cash Transfer Program to increase its effectiveness in preventing and eliminating child labor.	2020
	Mainland and Zanzibar	Integrate programs that include the construction, mining, quarrying, domestic service, fishing, and informal sectors to address children engaged in child labor.	2017 – 2020

In 2020, Thailand made moderate advancement in efforts to eliminate the worst forms of child labor. During the reporting period, the government made its Thailand Internet Crimes Against Children Task Force into a permanent agency, and led the biggest and most successful online child sexual exploitation sting operations in Thailand. The government also collaborated closely with U.S. law enforcement agencies and other partners, leading to 97 arrests for the commercial sexual exploitation of children and the rescue of 43 children. In total, Thai police rescued 72 children from commercial sexual exploitation in 2020. In addition, the government enacted a law that sets the minimum age for workers employed as deep sea divers at 18 years old and proposed an amendment allowing teenage children of boat captains to intern only on their family's fishing boats. The government also piloted its first shelter to provide services specifically to LGBTQI+ victims. However, children in Thailand are subjected to the worst forms of child labor, including in commercial sexual exploitation, sometimes as a result of human trafficking. Children, some as young as age 12, also participate for remuneration in Muay Thai competitions, an area of hazardous work in which there is evidence of serious head injuries. Although the government made meaningful efforts in all relevant areas during the reporting period, it does not meet the international standard for the minimum age for work because the law does not grant protections to children working outside of formal employment relationships.

Enforcement of child labor laws also remains a challenge due to an insufficient number of inspectors and resources to physically inspect remote workplaces in informal sectors.

I. PREVALENCE AND SECTORAL DISTRIBUTION OF CHILD LABOR

Children in Thailand are subjected to the worst forms of child labor, including in commercial sexual exploitation, sometimes as a result of human trafficking. Children, some as young as age 12, also participate for remuneration in Muay Thai competitions, an area of hazardous work in which there is evidence of serious head injuries. (1-16) Table 1 provides key indicators on children's work and education in Thailand.

Table 1. Statistics on Children's Work and Education

Children	Age	Percent
Working (% and population)	5 to 14	13.0 (1,302,267)
Attending School (%)	5 to 14	96.3
Combining Work and School (%)	7 to 14	14.4
Primary Completion Rate (%)		94.4

Based on a review of available information, Table 2 provides an overview of children's work by sector and activity.

	Forced labor in the production of garments, in agriculture, and in shrimp and seafood processing (4,40)
	Fishing, sometimes as a result of human trafficking (4,22,28,32,43)
	Use in the production and trafficking of drugs, including amphetamines, kratom, and marijuana (4,27,40)

† Determined by national law or regulation as hazardous and, as such, relevant to Article 3(d) of ILO C. 182.

‡ Child labor understood as the worst forms of child labor per se under Article 3(a)–(c) of ILO C. 182.

Thai children and children from Burma, Laos, and Cambodia, are subjected to commercial sexual exploitation in Thai massage parlors, bars, karaoke lounges, hotels, and private residences. In addition, children are increasingly being individually lured by predators online through social media and private chat rooms, and being coerced to produce pornography and perform sexual acts. (4,5,23,32,33,39,44,45)

Incidents of child labor in the shrimp and seafood processing industry have decreased in recent years, but children, particularly migrants from the Greater Mekong Subregion, continue to engage in hazardous work in this industry. (4,20,21,32,43,46,47) Children engaged in shrimp and seafood processing work late hours cleaning and lifting heavy loads of seafood and experience health problems such as physical injuries and chronic diseases. (48) Similarly, children working in agriculture face health risks from lifting heavy loads, risk injury from operating dangerous machinery and using sharp equipment, and are exposed to pesticides, sun and heat, and long hours from very early in the morning until nighttime. (16,27) Thai and migrant children who accompany their parents working in the construction sector are exposed to child labor at and around construction sites, including performing construction work or working as caretakers for younger children or as housekeepers. (4,30,31,49) Based on NGO reporting and the fact that the Thailand Internet Crimes Against Children (TICAC) Task Force received a 121 percent increase in tips, there was an increase in the number of cases of online sexual exploitation of children, possibly due to the COVID-19 pandemic and students being out of school. (13,23) In response to this increase, the government made TICAC into a permanent agency in September 2020. During the reporting period, TICAC increased its efforts to combat and investigate online sexual exploitation of children. (13,23)

Children also participate in Muay Thai competitions, an area of work in which there is evidence of serious head injuries, including deteriorated nerve fibers around the brain stem and a fatal 2018 case of a brain hemorrhage for a 13-year-old boy participating in Muay Thai. Children receive remuneration in the form of prize money or wages, and research found that betting and illegal gambling on the outcome of children’s matches occurs often during Muay Thai competitions. (2,4,6,12,14,37) The Royal Thai Government began drafting its Boxing Act Amendment in 2018, but currently the draft amendment to add a minimum age requirement for Muay Thai is being considered by the Sport Committee at the House of Representatives. No changes were enacted to the Thai Boxing Act as of December 2020. (4,16,38,50-52)

Order No. 28/2559 of the National Council for Peace and Order ensures 15 years of free education for all children in Thailand. Language barriers cause some children, particularly migrants and ethnic minorities, to struggle to access basic education, as school applications are only available in Thai. (4,40,50,53) Although children without identity documents or a registered address cannot be denied enrollment in public schools, research found that there is a lack of clarity among school officials regarding the type of documentation non-Thai students need to possess to enroll in school, which may be a barrier to education access. (4,54,55) The government published an Education Ministerial Proclamation and the Guideline on Enrollment of Non-Thai Children to help clarify the rules and regulations pertaining to enrollment of children in school. (29,56,57) In 2020, the Thai Government also conducted workshops on these guidelines to increase knowledge among school officials. (52) Children identifying as LGBTQI+ and those experiencing poverty, drug addiction, family problems, and teen pregnancy, may have additional barriers to education access due to increased harassment and bullying, which may increase their risk of dropping out of school and engaging in child labor. (58-60) Due to the pandemic, migrant schools were closed, which led many migrant students to seek jobs in the seafood industry. (61)

II. LEGAL FRAMEWORK FOR CHILD LABOR

Thailand has ratified all key international conventions concerning child labor (Table 3).

Table 3. Ratification of International Conventions on Child Labor

Convention	Ratification
 ILO C. 138, Minimum Age	✓
ILO C. 182, Worst Forms of Child Labor	✓
 UN CRC	✓
UN CRC Optional Protocol on Armed Conflict	✓
UN CRC Optional Protocol on the Sale of Children, Child Prostitution and Child Pornography	✓
 Palermo Protocol on Trafficking in Persons	✓

The government has established laws and regulations related to child labor (Table 4). However, gaps exist in Thailand's legal framework to adequately protect children from the worst forms of child labor, including not meeting the international standard for the minimum age for work.

Table 4. Laws and Regulations on Child Labor

Standard	Meets International Standards	Age	Legislation
Minimum Age for Work	No	15	Chapter 4, Section 44 of the Labor Protection Act; Section 148/1 of the Labor Protection Act (No. 5) (62,63)
Minimum Age for Hazardous Work	Yes	18	Chapter 4, Sections 49–50 of the Labor Protection Act; Section 148/2 of the Labor Protection Act (No. 5); Chapter 2, Article 26(6) of the Child Protection Act; Chapter 4, Section 20 of the Home Workers Protection Act (62-65)
Identification of Hazardous Occupations or Activities Prohibited for Children	Yes		Chapter 4, Sections 49–50 of the Labor Protection Act; Clause 4 of the Ministerial Regulation concerning Labor Protection in Sea Fishery Work; Clause 2 of the Ministerial Regulation Identifying Tasks that may be Hazardous to the Health and Safety of Pregnant Women or Children Under the Age of Fifteen Years (62,66,67)
Prohibition of Forced Labor	Yes		Sections 312 and 312 bis of the Penal Code; Section 6/1 of the Anti-Trafficking in Persons Act (No. 3); Sections 1 and 2 of the Amendment of the Anti-Trafficking in Persons Act (68,69,70)

Standard	Meets International Standards	Age	Legislation
Minimum Age for Voluntary State Military Recruitment	Yes	18	Section 25 of the Military Service Act (77)
Prohibition of Compulsory Recruitment of Children by (State) Military	Yes		Section 25 of the Military Service Act (77)
Prohibition of Military Recruitment by Non-state Armed Groups	No
Compulsory Education Age	Yes	16	Section 17 of the National Education Act (78)
Free Public Education	Yes		Section 10 of the National Education Act (78)

During the reporting period, the Government of Thailand enacted the Implementation on Occupational Safety, Health and Working Environment for Diving Work 2020, an implementing regulation for Article 8, paragraph 1 of the Act on Occupational Safety, Health and Working Environment 2011. The new law, which came in to force July 19, 2020, sets the minimum age for workers employed in diving work at 18 years old. (16) The government also proposed an amendment that would allow owners of fishing boats to employ relatives as young as 16 as interns, even though Thailand has identified fishing on sea vessels as a form of hazardous labor. (15,79)

The minimum age for work does not comply with international standards because the law does not grant protections to children working outside of employment relationships. In addition, because the minimum age for work is lower than the compulsory education age, some children may be encouraged to leave school before the completion of compulsory education. (62,63,78)

III. ENFORCEMENT OF LAWS ON CHILD LABOR

The government has established institutional mechanisms for the enforcement of laws and regulations on child labor (Table 5). However, gaps exist within the operations of enforcement agencies that may hinder adequate enforcement of their child labor laws.

Table 5. Agencies Responsible for Child Labor Law Enforcement

Organization/Agency	Role
Department of Labor Protection and Welfare (DLPW) of the Ministry of Labor (MOL)	Enforces child labor laws through workplace inspections. (27) Operates Hotline 1509 and staffs 86 labor protection and welfare offices in every province to answer questions about working conditions and receive complaints from the public about child labor. (4,50,80) During the reporting period, received 260 calls related to child labor violations, most of which were related to the employment of children under the minimum age for work. (16) In 2020, agency's labor inspectors filed charges against 10 enterprises for child labor law violations, specifically for employing 44 children under the minimum age for work. Also during the reporting period, began drafting a Ministerial Regulation on Fishery Worker Protection, which is under consideration by the Sub-Committee on the Scrutiny of Laws related to Fishery Sector and Fishery Works. (16)
Anti-Human Trafficking Units	The Anti-Trafficking in Persons Division of the Royal Thai Police (RTP) enforces laws related to forced labor, human trafficking, child pornography, and commercial sexual exploitation of children, and operates Hotline 191 to receive complaints on human trafficking and violence against children. (80,81) The Department of Trafficking in Persons Litigation under the Office of the Attorney General (OAG) investigates human trafficking offenses, including cases of labor, sex, and child trafficking, and monitors provincial human trafficking cases to improve the quality of prosecutions. (50,82,83) The Thailand Anti-Trafficking in Persons Task Force (TATIP) investigates and enforces laws against human trafficking in the sex trade and mainstream industries. TATIP teams comprise police officers, social workers, and selected NGO representatives. (50,82,83) The Department of Special Investigation's (DSI) Bureau of Human Trafficking Crime is tasked with enforcing and investigating human trafficking cases. (4,49) In 2020, DSI and the Department of Provincial Administration held workshops to enhance capacity in suppressing and preventing child sexual exploitations and online human trafficking. (23) OAG, in collaboration with an NGO, also held a 3-day seminar on the process of prosecution of human trafficking and online child exploitation. Seminar participants helped develop a handbook for law enforcement officers and a Standard Operating Procedure that would form a basis for Memorandum of Understanding between agencies related to anti-human trafficking agencies. (23)

Organization/Agency	Role
Thailand Internet Crimes Against Children Task Force (TICAC)	Investigates and enforces laws against child trafficking and the online sexual exploitation of children, including the distribution and production of child pornography. (4,5,23,84) Comprises police officers, DSI agents, social workers, and selected NGO representatives. (4,29,49,82,83) In September 2020, was established as a permanent subdivision under the Cyber Crime Investigation Bureau, now also referred to as the Anti-Online Child Sexual Exploitation Subdivision. (84) While the task force previously consisted of an ad hoc group of officers from other divisions who also had other main responsibilities, the new subdivision has 17 dedicated officers. TICAC also collaborated closely with U.S. law enforcement agencies and other partners, leading to the rescue of over 43 children and 97 arrests. (84) In 2020, investigated 94 cases, and launched a nationwide cyber sting operation in response to the uptick in the number of online child exploitation cases, leading to 44 arrests and 9 search operations across 24 provinces, and uncovering over 150,000 files of child sexual abuse material involving over 100 children. This was the biggest and most successful operation to combat online child sexual exploitation in Thailand to date. (23,84,85) In total, Thai police rescued 72 children from commercial sexual exploitation in 2020. (16) In conjunction with the Human Trafficking Police Division, Office of the Attorney General, and Hug Project Foundation, organized a new project which provides training and information on how to prevent victimization and exploitation of children in the production and distribution of pornographic media. (16)
Ministry of Social Development and Human Security (MSDHS)	Enforces child protection laws through close collaboration with the RTP, DSI, DLPW, and the Ministry of Foreign Affairs; operates Hotline 1300, which receives human trafficking and child labor complaints. Operates 76 temporary shelters located in every province and 9 long-term shelters for human trafficking victims, including a shelter dedicated solely to boys. (4,5,32,64,86) In 2020, piloted its first shelter area that provides services dedicated specifically to LGBTQI+ victims. (23,84) During the reporting, the average length of victims' stays in shelters also decreased, from an average of 288 days to 158 in 2020, due to improving prosecution and reintegration processes. As of 2020, all shelters employed psychologists, provided victims with access to communication devices, and increased financial assistance and funds for personal expenses. (23,84)

Even though the incidence of child labor law violations has decreased in the shrimp and seafood processing sectors, Thailand continues to closely monitor the industry for child labor through 32 Port In-Port Out (PIPO) Centers and 19 Forward Inspection Points (FIP) along the coasts. These operations enforce laws related to fishing, forced labor, child labor, and human trafficking. (4,21,22,29,47,49)

During the reporting period, the government also set up a joint Thailand-U.S. task force as a platform for exchanging information and updates on Thailand's progress in combating trafficking in persons and discussing ways to further cooperate. The task force met twice in 2020. (84) TICAC, along with NGOs, private sector partners, and the Thai Media Fund, produced "The Leaked," a series of three short films to raise awareness among youth on the threat of online sexual exploitation, which was broadcast on social media, and received over 1.5 million views and 73,000 subscribers. (23)

Labor Law Enforcement

In 2020, labor law enforcement agencies in Thailand took actions to combat child labor (Table 6). However, gaps exist within the operations of enforcement agencies that may hinder adequate labor law enforcement, including human resource allocation.

The number of labor inspectors is insufficient for the size of Thailand's workforce, which includes approximately 38.45 million workers. According to the ILO's technical advice of a ratio approaching 1 inspector for every 15,000 workers in developing economies, Thailand would employ about 2,558 labor inspectors. (87,88)

The Thai Maritime Enforcement Command Center (Thai-MECC) has authority over the Command Center for Combating Illegal Fishing's (CCCIF) PIPO and FIP operations and the mandate to enforce Thai labor laws on fishing vessels—including stopping, searching, detaining, and arresting violators on vessels—within Thai waters or those fleeing to international waters. (4,5,16,29,80,89) The Department of Labor Protection and Welfare (DLPW) continued to use mobile inspection teams that consisted of labor inspectors, a legal affairs officer, interpreters, and sometimes employees from the Departments of Special Investigation; Employment; and Fisheries. (27,53) Although CCCIF and DLPW have made efforts to actively exchange information with NGOs, research indicated that CCCIF and DLPW have not made efforts to reach out to migrant community NGOs or networks to exchange information on high-risk workplaces or provide training on child labor issues. (27,50) Child labor inspections in informal sectors remain insufficient due to labor inspectors' inability to access remote work places and safety concerns for inspectors. Pandemic related restrictions on movements also inhibited inspections in the formal and informal sectors. (16)

Criminal Law Enforcement

In 2020, criminal law enforcement agencies in Thailand took actions to combat child labor (Table 7). However, gaps exist within the operations of the criminal enforcement agencies that may hinder adequate criminal law enforcement, including training for criminal investigators.

Table 7. Criminal Law Enforcement Efforts Related to Child Labor

Overview of Criminal Law Enforcement	2019	2020
Initial Training for New Criminal Investigators	Yes (4)	Yes (16)

Research indicated that there is a lack of understanding of the use of male children in commercial sexual exploitation among some provincial government and court officials due to the notion that boys are stronger than girls and should be able to defend themselves against perpetrators. In addition, there is no training provided to officials specifically covering victim assistance for boys. (5,29,52) However, the Thai government has established a shelter specifically for boys who are victims of human trafficking. In 2020, the MSDHS worked with Save the Children Foundation and Thailand Association of Social Workers to conduct monthly trainings for the shelter staff over 2 to 5 days. (52) These training consisted of both online and physical training at the shelter depending on the situation and the issue of exploitation of boys was included in the training topics. (52) Human trafficking may be underreported due to inconsistencies in the identification process. (23,52) Research also indicates that there are human trafficking enforcement training gaps, including understanding the gravity of human trafficking crimes and victim identification training amongst police, prosecutors, and judges. (90) In addition, nine officials suspected of complicity in human trafficking activities were subjected to criminal investigation and prosecution. (84) In 2020, of 199 human trafficking cases decided, 157 were convicted, 22 were acquitted, and 20 were dismissed. (52)

IV. COORDINATION OF GOVERNMENT EFFORTS ON CHILD LABOR

The government has established mechanisms to coordinate its efforts to address child labor (Table 8).

Table 8. Key Mechanisms to Coordinate Government Efforts on Child Labor

Coordinating Body	Role & Description
National Committee to Eliminate the Worst Forms of Child Labor	Coordinates the implementation of child labor policies, facilitates cooperation among relevant ministries, and reports annually to the Thai Cabinet on child labor issues. Chaired by MOL, with representation from other government agencies, employer and worker associations, and civil society groups. (88) Oversees a subcommittee responsible for monitoring the National Policy and Plan to Eliminate the Worst Forms of Child Labor. (40,91) Held a meeting on June 4, 2020. (16)
National and Provincial Committees on Child Protection	Coordinate with government agencies and private sector representatives to monitor and protect children's social welfare and safety, including monitoring public and private workplaces for child labor violations. (64) Led by MSDHS with participation from DLPW and the ministries of Education and Public Health. (49)
Fishing Regulatory Units	The National Policy Committee on Anti-Trafficking in Persons and Illegal, Unreported, and Unregulated Fishing coordinates anti-trafficking in persons policies and activities and oversees five subcommittees, including the Subcommittee on Child Labor, Forced Labor, and Migrant Workers. Chaired by MOL. (4,40) The Provincial Coordination Center for Sea Fishery Workers (operated jointly by MOL, Marine Police, Provincial Administration, and Fishers' Association) compiles registration records and information on work permits for migrants working on fishing vessels, and works with vessel owners to ensure that undocumented migrant workers are registered. Also monitors and coordinates inspections of working conditions on fishing vessels, provides trainings on labor protection, receives human trafficking complaints, and coordinates with other agencies to provide assistance, remedy, and rehabilitation services for victims. (29,81) The Thai Maritime Enforcement Command Center, which is replacing the CCCIF, oversees government efforts to combat illegal fishing and human trafficking in the fishing industry, including searching, investigating, and arresting vessel operators who are suspected of using illegal labor onboard. The Department of Fisheries operates 32 Port In-Port Out (PIPO) Centers and 19 Forward Inspection Points (FIP), which are located in every coastal province. (29,80,81,89) Carries out inspections in the fishing industry. (89,92) PIPO Centers enforce laws related to fishing and labor, including child labor, forced labor, and human trafficking, through inspections at ports and at sea. PIPO Centers are staffed by officers from the Department of Fisheries, Marine Department, DLPW, Department of Employment, and interpreters. (29,50)
Division of Anti-Trafficking in Persons	Coordinates anti-trafficking activities, including those involving forced child labor, child trafficking, and commercial sexual exploitation. Monitors 76 Provincial Operation Centers for the Prevention and Suppression of Human Trafficking. (40,81) Acts as the secretariat for both the Anti-Trafficking in Persons Committee and the Coordinating and Monitoring of Anti-Trafficking in Persons Committee. Operates under MSDHS. (5,40)

V. GOVERNMENT POLICIES ON CHILD LABOR

The government has established policies that are consistent with relevant international standards on child labor (Table 9).

Table 9. Key Policies Related to Child Labor

Policy	Description
National Policy and Plan to Eliminate the Worst Forms of Child Labor Phase II (2015–2020)	Sought to eliminate the worst forms of child labor in Thailand in accordance with international labor standards. Focused on (a) preventing the worst forms of child labor, (b) rescuing and protecting children from the worst forms of child labor, (c) developing and enforcing relevant laws, (d) enhancing inter-agency cooperation, and (e) developing management and monitoring systems. (91) In 2020, conducted prevention awareness campaigns for 11,283 parents, guardians, and teachers, and held career training workshops for 22,319 students. (16)
Cyber Tipline Remote Access Policy	Seeks to combat the online sexual exploitation of children in Thailand by partnering with the U.S. National Center for Missing and Exploited Children. Supports TICAC by permitting the RTP to request warrants to search the residences and electronic equipment of individuals for child pornography and initiate criminal prosecution. (92-95)

MODERATE ADVANCEMENT

Policy	Description
National Strategic Plan (2018–2038)	Aims to improve education access, particularly for vulnerable and poor children in remote areas, by increasing transportation to school, reforming the school subsidy program for poor families, and providing scholarships for children who stay in school. (4,96) In 2020, the government allocated $134 million (THB 4 billion) for anti-human trafficking efforts. (23) Also conducted workshops on curriculum development and monitored and evaluated education programs for children living on the street, and conducted workshops on non-formal primary educational guidelines for non-Thai children (ages 8 to 15). (16)

‡ The government had other policies that may have addressed child labor issues or had an impact on child labor. (27,97,98)

In March 2020, the Thai Government announced a Memorandum of Understanding to eliminate child and forced labor between the Ministry of Labor and 13 industry associations identified as high risk for child and forced labor in which employment outside employment relationships occurs. (52)

VI. SOCIAL PROGRAMS TO ADDRESS CHILD LABOR

In 2020, the government funded and participated in programs that include the goal of eliminating child labor (Table 10). However, gaps exist in these social programs, including the adequacy of programs to address child labor in high-risk sectors.

Table 10. Key Social Programs to Address Child Labor

Program	Description
Government Welfare Protection Centers for Victims of Trafficking†	Operates nine long-term human trafficking shelters that offer medical care, psychosocial services, education, and life skills education. (99,100) In 2020, cared for 48 victims, including foreign children from Myanmar, Laos, Cambodia, India, and Vietnam. (16)
Migrant Learning Centers‡	NGO and government-operated centers that provide basic education, life skills training, and vocational training to children in migrant communities along Thailand's borders. (4,50,81) In 2020, the Ministry of Education cooperated with UNICEF to provide government education certificates for children in the Centers to facilitate their continuing education in Thailand or other countries. (16)
Child Advocacy Centers (CAC)†	Provide child-friendly spaces to conduct social, legal (including forensic interviews), and repatriation services to children who are survivors or vulnerable to human trafficking, including children trafficked for commercial sexual exploitation. (32,86,103) In 2020, the government opened two new CACs bringing the total of CACs to seven. (32) During the reporting period, also worked with TICAC and OAG to provide 18 awareness-raising talks on online sexual exploitation threats for primary, secondary, and university students, teachers, and executives. (23) Also implemented and provided services to 111 child victims in 35 investigations. (16)
Attaining Lasting Change for Better Enforcement of Labor and Criminal Law to Address Child Labor, Forced Labor, and Human Trafficking (ATLAS)	USDOL-funded project implemented by Winrock International that aims to build the capacity of the national government to more effectively combat child labor by helping to strengthen laws and regulations, improve enforcement capacities, and strengthen coordination between law enforcement and social protection entities. Additional information is available on the USDOL website . (4,16,23,104)

† Program is funded by the Government of Thailand.

‡ The government had other social programs that may have included the goal of eliminating or preventing child labor. (50,80,91,103,105,106)

The lack of available research and data on the prevalence of child labor in high-risk sectors, such as agriculture, garment manufacturing, domestic work, and construction, makes it difficult for the Government of Thailand to design appropriate programs to address these issues. Migrant children are not eligible for Equal Education Fund distributions—scholarships to support disadvantaged children's access to education—which increases their vulnerability to labor exploitation. (4,50,80) While access to education for migrant children has increased, some Migrant Learning Centers lack accreditation. (4,49,97)

VII. SUGGESTED GOVERNMENT ACTIONS TO ELIMINATE CHILD LABOR

Based on the reporting above, suggested actions are identified that would advance the elimination of child labor in Thailand (Table 11).

Table 11. Suggested Government Actions to Eliminate Child Labor

Area	Suggested Action	Year(s) Suggested
Legal Framework	Ensure that the minimum age for work applies to children working outside of employment relationships.	2017 – 2020
	Ensure that the law criminally prohibits the recruitment of children under age 18 by non-state armed groups.	2016 – 2020
	Raise the minimum age for work to the age up to which education is compulsory.	2018 – 2020
	Ensure that the hazardous occupations and activities prohibited for children are comprehensive and include sectors in which child labor is known to occur, including paid participation in Muay Thai , in which there is evidence that children are exposed to physical dangers.	2018 – 2020
Enforcement	Increase the number of labor inspectors to meet the ILO's technical guidance.	2015 – 2020
	Collect and publish comprehensive data on the number of investigations conducted, violations found, and convictions for all crimes related to child labor, including the worst forms of child labor.	2015 – 2020
	Ensure provincial government and court officials are provided adequate training on human trafficking issues—specifically in cases of male children in commercial sexual exploitation—to afford boys the same protections and victim assistance as girls.	2018 – 2020
	Ensure law enforcement officials report all human trafficking incidences.	2019 – 2020
	Ensure labor inspectors are provided training necessary to conduct inspections at remote informal sector workplaces, including in agriculture and domestic work.	2019 – 2020
	Ensure engagement with NGOs comprehensively addresses stakeholders, including migrant community NGOs or networks.	2020
Social Programs	Improve access to education, especially for ethnic minority and migrant children, including by clarifying to school officials, either under the Ministry of Education or local governments, the necessary documents non-Thai students need to submit for enrollment, raising awareness of migrant children's right to education, and addressing language barriers for non-Thai speaking students, including on public school applications, and ensure Migrant Learning Centers are accredited. Ensure that there are sufficient social programs to assist children from vulnerable groups, such as LGBTQI+ children, who face additional barriers to education that may increase their risk of dropping out of school and engaging in child labor	2012 – 2020
	Conduct research and data prevalence surveys to ensure that there are sufficient social programs to address child labor in the agriculture, garment manufacturing, domestic work, and construction sectors.	2016 – 2020
	Ensure that there are sufficient social programs to assist children from vulnerable groups, such as migrant children, who are at high risk of the worst forms of child labor.	2016 – 2020

MINIMAL ADVANCEMENT – EFFORTS MADE BUT CONTINUED PRACTICE THAT DELAYED ADVANCEMENT

In 2020, Timor-Leste made minimal advancement in efforts to eliminate the worst forms of child labor. The Inter-Agency Anti-Trafficking Working Group continued work on the draft decree that outlines the roles and responsibilities of the yet-to-be established Anti-Trafficking Commission, and the National Commission Against Child Labor met regularly throughout the year. However, despite new initiatives to address child labor, Timor-Leste is receiving an assessment of minimal advancement due to a continued practice that delayed advancement in eliminating the worst forms of child labor. While no law or policy prohibits pregnant girls from attending school, reports during the reporting period indicate that orders from school principals forced girls to leave school when they became pregnant, making them more vulnerable to the worst forms of child labor. Children in Timor-Leste are subjected to the worst forms of child labor, including in commercial sexual exploitation, sometimes as a result of human trafficking. Children also engage in dangerous tasks in agriculture. In addition, there is a lack of training on child labor laws for labor inspectors and criminal investigators.

I. PREVALENCE AND SECTORAL DISTRIBUTION OF CHILD LABOR

Children in Timor-Leste are subjected to the worst forms of child labor, including in commercial sexual exploitation, sometimes as a result of human trafficking. Children also engage in dangerous tasks in agriculture. (1,2) Table 1 provides key indicators on children's work and education in Timor-Leste.

Table 1. Statistics on Children's Work and Education

Children	Age	Percent
Working (% and population)	5 to 14	12.3 (40,337)
Attending School (%)	5 to 14	83.7
Combining Work and School (%)	7 to 14	12.4
Primary Completion Rate (%)		105.2

These data are not comparable with data presented in last year's report due to changes in survey source, survey questionnaire, or age range surveyed. (4)

Based on a review of available information, Table 2 provides an overview of children's work by sector and activity.

Table 2. Overview of Children's Work by Sector and Activity

Sector/Industry	Activity
Agriculture	Farming, including cultivating and processing coffee† and growing vegetables and other crops (1,2,5,6) Fishing,† including work on boats and repairing nets (1,2,7-9)
Industry	Construction,† including brickmaking (1) Operating weaving and knitting machines (5,10)
Services	Domestic work† (1,2,6,9,11,12) Street work, including vending, begging, and scavenging (1,8,9,13) Shop keeping and selling goods in markets (5)
Categorical Worst Forms of Child Labor‡	Commercial sexual exploitation, sometimes as a result of human trafficking (2,6,8,9,12,14) Domestic and agricultural work, each sometimes as a result of human trafficking (2,6,8)

† Determined by national law or regulation as hazardous and, as such, relevant to Article 3(d) of ILO C. 182.

MINIMAL ADVANCEMENT – EFFORTS MADE BUT CONTINUED PRACTICE THAT DELAYED ADVANCEMENT

In Timor-Leste, some children are trafficked from rural areas to the capital city, Dili, and subjected to commercial sexual exploitation, domestic work, or forced labor in the fishing industry. (2,6,8,12,15-17) Research indicates that data on human trafficking vary across government institutions and are not centralized in a clearinghouse for stakeholder agencies to access, making it difficult to accurately assess human trafficking issues on the ground. (12,16,18) Other children are trafficked transnationally, including to Indonesia. (2,12,16) Although data are limited, it is anecdotally reported that children are sometimes directed to work on family farms against their wishes to supplement family incomes or to pay off family debts. (6,8,9,12,17,19)

Data from the most recent child labor survey identified more than 26,000 children engaged in child labor under "other service activities," including domestic work, and identified 588 children as engaging as street vendors. However, in July the Commission for the Rights of the Child cited a slightly smaller figure of 300 children engaging as street vendors, sometimes in situations of forced labor. (9,20)

Although there is no government policy prohibiting girls from attending school while pregnant, research indicates that there were at least some school principals who forced pregnant girls to leave school. As a result, some pregnant students may also attempt to transfer schools, but they face additional difficulty obtaining transfer documentation, which is at the discretion of school principals. (8,9,17,21,22) This practice may make pregnant girls more vulnerable to involvement in child labor, including its worst forms. The Ministry of Education has drafted a policy to encourage girls to return to school after giving birth, but this policy has remained in draft status for several years, and there is no policy on providing education for girls during their pregnancy. (21)

The law requires 9 years of compulsory education; however, in practice, children must pay additional fees to attend school. Commonly required fees include school uniforms and supplies, which can hinder access to education, particularly for children from poor and rural areas. (7-9,17,23) In addition, the lack of sanitation facilities at schools can result in girls dropping out of school upon reaching puberty, and children with disabilities are often unable to attend school due to accessibility issues. (8,9,17) In an effort to provide educational opportunities to children during the COVID-19 pandemic, the government was one of the first countries in the world to use the UNICEF-developed "Learning Passport" online learning platform. (24)

II. LEGAL FRAMEWORK FOR CHILD LABOR

Timor-Leste has ratified most key international conventions concerning child labor (Table 3).

Table 3. Ratification of International Conventions on Child Labor

	Convention	Ratification
	ILO C. 138, Minimum Age
	ILO C. 182, Worst Forms of Child Labor	✓
	UN CRC	✓
	UN CRC Optional Protocol on Armed Conflict	✓
	UN CRC Optional Protocol on the Sale of Children, Child Prostitution and Child Pornography	✓
	Palermo Protocol on Trafficking in Persons	✓

The government has established laws and regulations related to child labor (Table 4). However, gaps exist in Timor-Leste's legal framework to adequately protect children from the worst forms of child labor, including the minimum age for hazardous work.

MINIMAL ADVANCEMENT – EFFORTS MADE BUT CONTINUED PRACTICE THAT DELAYED ADVANCEMENT

Table 4. Laws and Regulations on Child Labor

Standard	Meets International Standards	Age	Legislation
Minimum Age for Work	Yes	15	Article 68 of the Labour Code (25)
Minimum Age for Hazardous Work	No	17	Article 67 of the Labour Code (25)
Identification of Hazardous Occupations or Activities Prohibited for Children	Yes		List of Hazardous and Prohibited Activities to Children Under the Age of 18 (26)
Prohibition of Forced Labor	Yes		Articles 155, 162–163, and 166 of the Penal Code; Articles 8 and 67 of the Labour Code (25,27)
Prohibition of Child Trafficking	Yes		Article 81 of the Immigration and Asylum Act; Articles 162–164 and 166 of the Penal Code; Article 67 of the Labour Code; Article 18 of the Law on Preventing and Combating Human Trafficking (25,27-29)
Prohibition of Commercial Sexual Exploitation of Children	Yes		Fourth Amendment to Articles 163 and 164 of the Penal Code; Articles 155 and 174–176 of the Penal Code; Article 67 of the Labour Code (25,27,30)
Prohibition of Using Children in Illicit Activities	No		Article 155 of the Penal Code; Article 67 of the Labour Code (25,27)
Minimum Age for Voluntary State Military Recruitment	Yes	18	Article 17 of the Law on Military Service (31)
Prohibition of Compulsory Recruitment of Children by (State) Military	Yes		Article 14 of the Law on Military Service (31)
Prohibition of Military Recruitment by Non-state Armed Groups	Yes		Article 125 of the Penal Code (27)
Compulsory Education Age	Yes	16	Article 11 of the Education System Framework Law (32)
Free Public Education	Yes		Section 59 of the Constitution of the Democratic Republic of Timor-Leste; Article 11 of the Education System Framework Law (32,33)

Research indicates that various sections of the Penal Code only criminalize the use, procuring, and offering of a child for prostitution, production of pornography, and pornographic performances when the child victim is younger than age 17. Research also shows that the Labor Code only protects minors younger than age 17 in its prohibition on the use of child labor in hazardous work. (17,23,25,27,34,35)

Additionally, the 2017 Law on Preventing and Combating Trafficking in Persons raised the age of a minor from under age 17 to age 18 such that it imposes penalties to anyone “recruiting, transporting, transferring, housing, or harboring minors under the age of 18 for the purpose of exploitation.” The amendment states that exploitation includes a person’s labor or services, forced labor or debt bondage, begging, slavery.” (30)

The minimum age of 17 for hazardous work is not in compliance with international standards because Timor-Leste fails to ensure that children receive adequate training in accordance with international standards where the minimum age identified is below age 18. (23,25,27,35) The government has a draft Decree Law that will raise the minimum age of hazardous work to age 18, but it has not yet been submitted for approval to the National Parliament. (9,35) Although Timor-Leste has adopted the List of Hazardous and Prohibited Activities to Children Under the Age of 18, it is uncertain how this law will interact with the Labor Code, which only considers those under age 17 as children. (2,23,26,36) Lastly, although the Labor Code specifies the conditions and number of hours permitted for light work for children ages 13 to 15, it does not specify which activities qualify as light work. (25)

The minimum age for work is lower than the compulsory education age, which may encourage children to leave school before the completion of compulsory education. (32,33)

The government has yet to complete drafting implementing regulations and guidance on the 2017 Law on Preventing and Combating Human Trafficking. (6,16)

III. ENFORCEMENT OF LAWS ON CHILD LABOR

The government has established institutional mechanisms for the enforcement of laws and regulations on child labor (Table 5). However, gaps exist within the operations of enforcement agencies that may hinder adequate enforcement of their child labor laws.

Table 5. Agencies Responsible for Child Labor Law Enforcement

Organization/Agency	Role
Secretariat of State for Professional Training and Employment Policy (SEPFPOE)	Receives child labor complaints and passes complaints to the Timor-Leste National Police (PNTL) for further investigation. (7,9) Enforces laws related to child labor. Administers the General Labor Inspectorate Directorate, which is responsible for investigating incidents of forced labor. (7,9)
PNTL	Enforces criminal laws against forced labor, commercial sexual exploitation, and human trafficking. Includes the Vulnerable Persons Unit, the immigration police, and the border police. (7,9)

The Ministry of Social Solidarity and Inclusion receives referrals from agencies, including the Secretariat of State for Professional Training and Employment Police (SEPFPOE), that are responsible for conducting child labor investigations and providing child victims with appropriate support services. (21) The Ministry of Social Solidarity and Inclusion maintains at least 1 technical officer in each of the country's 13 districts and 2 child protection officers in each of the 65 sub-districts, all trained to follow the government's standard operating procedures for identifying and referring victims to service providers. (12,16,37)

Labor Law Enforcement

In 2020, labor law enforcement agencies in Timor-Leste took actions to combat child labor (Table 6). However, gaps exist within the operations of SEPFPOE that may hinder adequate labor law enforcement, including labor inspector training.

Table 6. Labor Law Enforcement Efforts Related to Child Labor

Overview of Labor Law Enforcement	2019	2020
Labor Inspectorate Funding	$432,074 (8)	$246,000 (9)

Reciprocal Referral Mechanism Exists Between Labor Authorities and Social Services	Yes (8)	Yes (9)

During the reporting period, the government was unable to pass a budget for fiscal year 2020 until October 2020, which impeded many government activities and priorities, including the ability of SEPFPOE to conduct labor inspections. (9,16) Due to the lapse in funding, which reduced the labor inspectorate budget from $432,074 in 2019 to $246,000 in 2020, the number of labor inspections decreased by 40 percent. (9) Furthermore, labor inspectors did not receive any specialized training related to child labor during the reporting period. (9)

MINIMAL ADVANCEMENT – EFFORTS MADE BUT CONTINUED PRACTICE THAT DELAYED ADVANCEMENT

Although Timor-Leste does meet the ILO’s technical advice of a ratio approaching 1 labor inspector for every 40,000 workers in less developed economies, SEPFOPE reported that the number of labor inspectors is insufficient to conduct the required labor inspections. (7,8,17)

Research found that there are insufficient child labor enforcement protections for children working on family farms or in domestic work, because SEPFOPE inspectors are only empowered to inspect formal workplaces, despite the fact that inspectors with the National Commission Against Child Labor routinely identify child labor in domestic work. (2,8,9,17) SEPFOPE also had limited capacity to conduct inspections in Timor-Leste’s rural areas, where child labor in the agriculture sector is prevalent. This limitation was due to a lack of available transportation, including funds to pay for fuel for government vehicles. (7-9,11,17)

The government did not provide information on the number of inspections conducted at worksites and the number of routine inspections conducted for inclusion in this report.

Criminal Law Enforcement

In 2020, criminal law enforcement agencies in Timor-Leste took actions to combat child labor (Table 7). However, gaps exist within the operations of the criminal enforcement agencies that may hinder adequate criminal law enforcement, including training for criminal investigators.

Table 7. Criminal Law Enforcement Efforts Related to Child Labor

Overview of Criminal Law Enforcement	2019	2020
Initial Training for New Criminal Investigators	Yes (8)	N/A (9)
Training on New Laws Related to the Worst Forms of Child Labor	N/A (8)	N/A (9)
Refresher Courses Provided	No (8,22)	Yes (9)
Number of Investigations	0 (8)	0 (9)
Number of Violations Found	0 (8)	0 (9)
Number of Prosecutions Initiated	0 (8)	0 (9)
Number of Convictions	0 (8)	0 (9)
Imposed Penalties for Violations Related to the Worst Forms of Child Labor	N/A (21)	N/A (9)
Reciprocal Referral Mechanism Exists Between Criminal Authorities and Social Services	Yes (8)	Yes (9)

The Vulnerable Persons Unit (VPU) of the Timor-Leste National Police has a staff of 97 investigators charged with the enforcement of criminal laws related to the worst forms of child labor. (6,8,12,21,37) During the reporting period, the VPU had to cancel its training program due to the pandemic, and research noted that there are currently no courses specific to child labor and no training dedicated to victim assistance. (9) Furthermore, the VPU did not receive any funding to carry out investigations during the reporting period. (8,9) In 2020, the VPU handled one international case involving a 16-year-old Indonesian girl who was lured into commercial sexual exploitation under the false pretenses of selling fish in Timor-Leste. The accused couple were detained, and their case is pending. (16)

The curriculum for new and existing members of the judiciary includes trainings on human trafficking that teach steps that criminal prosecutors can use to develop new trafficking investigations and prosecutions. These include methods for handling evidence and questions that prosecutors can ask of witnesses and victims to more clearly delineate whether a case is trafficking-related, thus increasing chances of conviction. (12,18,39) However, the government has not finalized or disseminated comprehensive, government-wide standard operating procedures for victim identification. (6)

There are only 33 judges and 34 prosecutors to handle the criminal and civil caseload of the entire country, and, as a result, cases can remain pending without a court date for long periods of time. (12,16) In addition, potential human trafficking cases are often misclassified due to a lack of evidence confirming trafficking, as well as unfamiliarity with trafficking in persons cases. (12,16,18) During the reporting period, the government collected

Timor-Leste

only aggregate data on vulnerable persons, not trafficking-specific data. (6) Furthermore, the government failed to obtain any trafficking-related convictions for the fourth consecutive year, and the case against a Liquica district administrator for allegedly raping a 15-year-old trafficking victim in 2018 remained under investigation while the administrator remained in his position. (6,12,16)

IV. COORDINATION OF GOVERNMENT EFFORTS ON CHILD LABOR

The government has established mechanisms to coordinate its efforts to address child labor (Table 8). However, gaps exist that hinder the effective coordination of efforts to address child labor, including continued delays in establishing the Anti-Human Trafficking Commission.

Table 8. Key Mechanisms to Coordinate Government Efforts on Child Labor

Coordinating Body	Role & Description
National Commission Against Child Labor (CNTI)	Facilitates information sharing on child labor issues among government agencies and serves as the coordinating mechanism for filing and responding to child labor complaints. (9) Develops child labor policies, raises awareness, and contributes to efforts to ratify and implement international conventions related to child protection. Develops the national plan against child labor. (21,35) Disseminates formal information on the normative and technical framework applicable to child labor. Elaborates, approves, and periodically reviews the hazardous work list of jobs prohibited for children under age 18. (21,35) Chaired by SEPFOPE. (8,9,40) Other members include PNTL; Timorese Labor Union Confederation; youth empowerment NGO Forum Tau Matan; Ministry of Tourism, Commerce, and Industry; Ministry of Social Solidarity and Inclusion; Ministry of Education, Youth, and Sports; Ministry of Justice; and Coordinating Ministry for Economic Affairs. (8) Met during the reporting period. (9)
Inter-Agency Anti-Trafficking Working Group	Coordinates the government's efforts to combat human trafficking, develops and implements the National Action Plan on Combating Human Trafficking, and promotes the development of comprehensive anti-trafficking legislation. Chaired by the Ministry of Justice, and includes the participation of the Prime Minister's office. (6,11,12,16) During the reporting period, met twice and continued work on the draft decree law that would establish the roles and responsibilities of the Anti-Trafficking Commission. (9,12,16,17)
Ministry of Social Solidarity and Inclusion (MSSI)—National Commission for Children's Rights	Overseen by MSSI. Responsible for conducting awareness-raising campaigns related to child labor. (8,9) Works to ensure the well-being and healthy development of children. (21) Research was unable to determine whether the National Commission for Children's Rights was active during the reporting period.
Provedor for Human Rights and Justice	Assumes responsibility for sharing information related to child labor with CNTI, SEPFOPE, and PNTL. (8) Members include SEPFOPE, PNTL, the National Commission for Children's Rights, MSSI, the Ministry of Justice, and the Ministry of State and Administration. (21) During the reporting period, assumed responsibility for passing information related to child labor along to CNTI. (9)

The government drafted implementation plans to replace the Inter-Agency Anti-Trafficking Working Group with an Anti-Human Trafficking Commission. These plans, which will have oversight on the Law on Preventing and Combating Human Trafficking, remain pending. (6,9,11,12,41)

V. GOVERNMENT POLICIES ON CHILD LABOR

The government has established policies related to child labor (Table 9). However, policy gaps exist that hinder efforts to address child labor, including implementation.

Table 9. Key Policies Related to Child Labor

Policy	Description
Timor-Leste Project for the Elimination of the Worst Forms of Child Labor	Aims to strengthen implementation of ILO C. 182 by establishing the Child Labor Commission Working Group, developing a hazardous work list, and creating a national action plan against child labor. Launched in 2009 in partnership with ILO and the Government of Brazil. Research was unable to determine whether activities were undertaken to implement Timor-Leste's key policies related to child labor during the reporting period.
Timor-Leste Strategic Development Plan (2011–2030)	Provides short-term and long-term plans for the nation's development, including the eradication of the worst forms of child labor, poverty alleviation, and implementation of social transfer programs. Specifies commitments to improve the educational system over the next 20 years. (42) Research was unable to determine whether activities were undertaken to implement Timor-Leste's key policies related to child labor during the reporting period.

MINIMAL ADVANCEMENT – EFFORTS MADE BUT CONTINUED PRACTICE THAT DELAYED ADVANCEMENT

Although the National Action Plan for the Elimination of Child Labor—which aims to eliminate the worst forms of child labor in Timor-Leste by 2025 and all forms of child labor by 2030—was finalized in 2016, the Council of Ministers has yet to approve it. (2,8,9,35,40,41,43,44) In addition, the government continued working to update the draft National Action Plan on Combating Human Trafficking, whose mandate ended in 2018. (16)

VI. SOCIAL PROGRAMS TO ADDRESS CHILD LABOR

In 2020, the government funded and participated in programs that include the goal of eliminating or preventing child labor (Table 10). However, gaps exist in these social programs, including the adequacy to address the problem in all sectors.

Table 10. Key Social Programs to Address Child Labor

Program	Description
Child Labor Education and Outreach Program†	SEPFPOPE and CNTI education and awareness-raising program, located in five primary schools in Dili that target children who are at risk for involvement in child labor. (45) Research was unable to determine specific activities undertaken during the reporting period.
Services for Street Children†	Government-funded safe house and support services for street children provided by the Youth Communication Forum. (46) Research was unable to determine specific activities undertaken during the reporting period.
Mother's Purse (Bolsa da Mãe)†	MSSI program that provides an annual cash subsidy of $60 to $180 to poor families with a female head of household. Aims to improve the well-being of children by conditioning the subsidy on children's school attendance and regular medical visits. (47) Research was unable to determine specific activities undertaken during the reporting period.
Casa Vida†	Joint program between MSSI and the Australian Department of Foreign Affairs and Trade's Nabilian Program and Shelter Initiative. Provides shelter, health assistance, and psychological counseling to minor victims, including victims of child labor and its worst forms. (11) Provides specialized assistance for girls up to age 18 who have escaped situations of sexual violence. (21) Receives referrals from civil society organizations as well as PNTL/Vulnerable Persons Unit. (48) Research was unable to determine specific activities undertaken during the reporting period.
Measurement, Awareness-Raising, and Policy Engagement Project on Child Labor and Forced Labor (MAPI6)	USDOL-funded global project implemented by ILO to conduct research and develop new survey methodologies, improve awareness, strengthen policies and government capacity, and promote partnerships to combat child labor and forced labor. (49) In June, finalized and approved the draft Child Labor National Action Plan. (50) Additional information is available on the USDOL website .

† Program is funded by the Government of Timor-Leste.

‡ The government had other social programs that may have included the goal of eliminating or preventing child labor. (51-54)

Although the government has implemented programs to address child labor, research found no evidence that it has developed programs to assist children working in agriculture and on family farms, or children involved in the worst forms of child labor, including commercial sexual exploitation.

VII. SUGGESTED GOVERNMENT ACTIONS TO ELIMINATE CHILD LABOR

Based on the reporting above, suggested actions are identified that would advance the elimination of child labor in Timor-Leste (Table 11).

Table 11. Suggested Government Actions to Eliminate Child Labor

Area	Suggested Action	Year(s) Suggested
Legal Framework	Ensure that the law protects children between the ages of 17 and 18 from engagement in all the worst forms of child labor, such as commercial sexual exploitation, illicit activities, and hazardous work.	2013 – 2020
	Ensure that children receive adequate training specific to the type of work they are undertaking, and ensure that their health, safety, and morals are protected in accordance with international minimum age standards for hazardous work.	2017 – 2020
	Raise the minimum age for hazardous work to 18 to meet international standards.	2020
	Ensure that the List of Hazardous Occupations and Activities Prohibited for Children is harmonized with the Labor Code and Penal Code.	2017 – 2020

Area	Suggested Action	Year(s) Suggested
Legal Framework	Ensure that the law's light work provisions specify the activities in which light work may be undertaken.	2016 – 2020
	Finalize the implementation regulations and guidance on the 2017 Law on Preventing and Combating Human Trafficking.	2020
	Raise the minimum age for work to the age up to which education is compulsory.	2018 – 2020
Enforcement	Ensure that a budget is passed in a timely fashion and allows sufficient funding of the Secretariat of State for Professional Training and Employment Policy to carry out labor inspections.	2020
	Ensure that the Secretariat of State for Professional Training and Employment Policy is staffed with the appropriate number of labor inspectors to conduct the targeted number of labor inspections.	2018 – 2020
	Ensure that labor and criminal law enforcement officials receive sufficient training related to the worst forms of child labor, including child trafficking victim assistance.	2016 – 2020
	Ensure that the Secretariat of State for Professional Training and Employment Policy has the legal authority to conduct inspections in the informal sector, including on family farms and domestic work.	2017 – 2020
	Ensure that labor and criminal law enforcement agencies receive sufficient funding to carry out inspections and investigations, especially in rural areas of Timor-Leste, including funding for vehicles and fuel.	2016 – 2020
	Publish labor law enforcement information, including the number of labor inspections conducted at worksites and the number of routine inspections conducted.	2015 – 2020
	Ensure that the Vulnerable Persons Unit receives funding to carry out investigations.	2020
	Finalize and disseminate standard operating procedures related to human trafficking victim identification.	2020
	Ensure that criminal and civil cases are tried in a timely manner, including the 2018 case against the Liquica District Administrator, and that cases of human trafficking are properly classified.	2019 – 2020
	Collect, disaggregate, and publish criminal law enforcement data related to human trafficking.	2020
Coordination	Investigate, prosecute, and convict perpetrators of the worst forms of child labor.	2020
	Ensure that all coordinating bodies are able to carry out their intended mandates.	2020
Government Policies	Ensure the establishment of the Anti-Human Trafficking Commission.	2018 – 2020
	Publish activities undertaken to implement key policies to address child labor during the reporting period.	2017 – 2020
	Adopt the National Action Plan for the Elimination of Child Labor.	2016 – 2020
Social Programs	Finalize and adopt the National Action Plan on Combating Human Trafficking.	2020
	Create a centralized database to capture human trafficking data that is accessible to all relevant government stakeholders.	2019 – 2020
	Improve access to education by eliminating school related fees, making schools accessible for children with disabilities, and providing safe and healthy sanitation facilities, especially for girls.	2018 – 2020
	Ensure that the Ministry of Education draft policy encouraging female students to return to school after giving birth is approved, and that a policy providing education for girls during their pregnancy is drafted.	2020
	Ensure that pregnant girls have access to education, including transfer documents.	2019 – 2020
	Publish activities undertaken to implement the Child Labor Education and Outreach Program, Services for Street Children, Mother's Purse ( Bolsa da Mãe ), and Casa Vida social programs during the reporting period.	2018 – 2020
	Institute programs to address child labor and the worst forms of child labor, including in agriculture and commercial sexual exploitation.	2017 – 2020

In 2020, Togo made moderate advancement in its efforts to eliminate the worst forms of child labor. The government adopted a National Action Plan for the Elimination of the Worst Forms of Child Labor and passed a ministerial decree, which defined and prohibited hazardous work for children under 18 years old. In addition, the government intercepted 250 children at risk of human trafficking at the border and provided them with social services. However, children in Togo are subjected to the worst forms of child labor, including in commercial sexual exploitation, sometimes as a result of human trafficking. Children also engage in child labor in domestic work. The government has not devoted sufficient resources to combat child labor, and labor inspectors are not authorized to assess penalties for child labor violations. In addition, the government does not publish data related to its efforts to criminal enforcement of child labor laws.

I. PREVALENCE AND SECTORAL DISTRIBUTION OF CHILD LABOR

Children in Togo are subjected to the worst forms of child labor, including in commercial sexual exploitation, sometimes as a result of human trafficking. Children also engage in child labor in domestic work. (1-6) Table 1 provides key indicators on children's work and education in Togo. Data on some of these indicators are not available from the sources used in this report.

Table 1. Statistics on Children's Work and Education

Children	Age	Percent
Working (% and population)	5 to 14	29.6 (Unavailable)
Attending School (%)	5 to 14	86.1
Combining Work and School (%)	7 to 14	29.5
Primary Completion Rate (%)		88.4

Source for primary completion rate: Data from 2020, published by UNESCO Institute for Statistics, 2021. (7)

Source for all other data: International Labor Organization's analysis of statistics from Demographic and Health Survey (DHS), 2013–2014. (8)

Based on a review of available information, Table 2 provides an overview of children's work by sector and activity.

Table 2. Overview of Children's Work by Sector and Activity

Sector/Industry	Activity
Agriculture	Working in agriculture, including spraying pesticides (3,6,9) Production of charcoal† (9)
Industry	Working in quarries and sand mines, including excavating, crushing rocks, sifting gravel, and carrying heavy loads‡ (1,9) Working in tailoring (9) Construction (4,9,10)
Services	Domestic work† (1,3,9) Carrying heavy loads,† and small-scale vending in markets (8,9,11) Work as motorcycle repairmen (4,9,12,13) Garbage scavenging (4,9,12)
Categorical Worst Forms of Child Labor‡	Forced begging (9,11,12) Commercial sexual exploitation, sometimes as a result of human trafficking (4,5,9,14,15) Forced labor in agriculture, including in coffee, cocoa, and cotton; domestic work; quarries; and markets, including carrying heavy loads; each sometimes as a result of human trafficking (11,14)

† Determined by national law or regulation as hazardous and, as such, relevant to Article 3(d) of ILO C. 182.

‡ Child labor understood as the worst forms of child labor per se under Article 3(a)–(c) of ILO C. 182.

Togo is a source and transit country for victims of human trafficking to neighboring countries, primarily for domestic work, work in agriculture, and commercial sexual exploitation. (6,15,16) The majority of people

MODERATE ADVANCEMENT

trafficked in Togo are children. (15) Parents may be complicit in child trafficking by sending a child to a relative or friend to attend school in a larger town or city, a practice that may place children at risk of exploitation as a result of internal human trafficking. (5,6,9,15-17)

Although education is free and compulsory by law, parents must pay for associated fees, uniforms, and school supplies, which makes education prohibitively expensive for many families. (6,18-20) Research found that long distances to schools and physical and sexual abuse in schools also posed barriers to education for some children. (5,6,19-21)

II. LEGAL FRAMEWORK FOR CHILD LABOR

Togo has ratified all key international conventions concerning child labor (Table 3).

Table 3. Ratification of International Conventions on Child Labor

Convention	Ratification
 ILO C. 138, Minimum Age	✓
ILO C. 182, Worst Forms of Child Labor	✓
 UN CRC	✓
UN CRC Optional Protocol on Armed Conflict	✓
UN CRC Optional Protocol on the Sale of Children, Child Prostitution and Child Pornography	✓
 Palermo Protocol on Trafficking in Persons	✓

The government's laws and regulations are in line with relevant international standards (Table 4).

Table 4. Laws and Regulations on Child Labor

Standard	Meets International Standards	Age	Legislation
Minimum Age for Work	Yes	15	Article 150 of the Labor Code; Article 262 of the Children's Code; Article 881.1a of the Penal Code (22-24)

Free Public Education	Yes		Article 35 of the Constitution (28)

* No conscription (27)

The Government of Togo signed into effect Ministerial Decree 1556 in May 2020, which amends 1464 of 2007. (6,29) Ministerial Decree 1556 defines and prohibits hazardous work activities for children under age 18, previously undefined, and in particular, forbids children from working with or in the vicinity of machines without proper protective equipment; working with sharp blades; in charcoal production; as well as in cinemas, theaters, cafes, and circuses. (29,30) Furthermore, Ministerial Decree 1556 prohibits children from working longer than eight hours a day. It also prohibits children from working during the night. (6,29,30) Despite these additional protections, Ministerial Decree 1556 still permits children as young as age 15 to perform some hazardous tasks, such as transporting heavy loads. This permission violates Article 3(3) of Convention 138, which permits children as young as age 16 (but not age 15) to perform hazardous tasks as long as their health, safety, and morals are fully protected and they receive adequate training. (30,31)

III. ENFORCEMENT OF LAWS ON CHILD LABOR

The government has established institutional mechanisms for the enforcement of laws and regulations on child labor (Table 5). However, gaps exist within the operations of enforcement agencies that may hinder adequate enforcement of their child labor laws.

Table 5. Agencies Responsible for Child Labor Law Enforcement

Organization/Agency	Role
Ministry of Civil Service, Labor, and Administrative Reform (MOL)	Enforces all labor laws, including child labor laws. (6,32) Through its Unit to Combat Child Labor, withdraws children from child labor situations, raises awareness, and collects data. (33)
Ministry of Justice and Government Relations	Enforces criminal laws related to the worst forms of child labor and prosecutes violators. (6,33)
Ministry of Social Action, Promotion of Women and Literacy (MASPFA), Director General for the Protection of Children	Raises awareness of child labor issues, enforces laws against the worst forms of child labor; provides technical assistance, and leads government efforts to combat human trafficking. (6,10,13) Supports a network of 42 foster families in 4 regional capitals. (34) Operates the Allo 1011 hotline for reporting child abuse, including child trafficking. (14,34,35) In 2020, the Allo 1011 platform received 11,634 calls, of which 4,517 were substantive and 86 were related to child trafficking or economic exploitation. (6) The public can report child issues to Allo 1011 via SMS text message, through a mobile application, or through a real-time interactive website. (6) During the reporting period, the MSA provided cell phones to the program's network of 150 contacts to facilitate coverage throughout the country. The network used an informal referral system when callers had identified possible victims. (30)
Ministry of Security's Division of Drugs, Morals, and Pimping	Investigates crimes involving child victims, including child trafficking. Operates as part of the National Police in all five regions of Togo. (6,36)

Agencies involved in combating trafficking in persons include the MASPFA; Ministry of Security and Civil Protection; Ministry of Justice; Ministry of Labor; and security forces, including police, army, customs, and gendarmes. The MSA has the lead on child trafficking, assistance to victims, and prevention. (15)

Labor Law Enforcement

In 2020, labor law enforcement agencies in Togo took actions to combat child labor (Table 6). However, gaps exist within the Ministry of Civil Service, Labor, and Administrative Reform (MOL) that may hinder adequate labor law enforcement, including the authority to assess penalties.

In addition to the 128 MOL labor inspectors, the MOL sends 60 labor inspectors to the Togolese Revenue Office (OTR), who accompany OTR tax inspectors and report on any labor infractions, including those related to child labor. None of the labor inspectors at the MOL or OTR are authorized to assess penalties, however. (6,9,30) The MOL lacks sufficient resources for fuel and transportation, which may hinder its ability to conduct inspections. (6,9,32) In addition, the Labor Code makes labor inspectors responsible for reconciliation and arbitration in collective disputes, which may detract from their primary duties of conducting inspections and enforcing the Labor Code. (22) Routine inspections were conducted; however, the majority of child labor occurs in the informal sector, in which inspectors are legally allowed to inspect, but rarely do. (9,22)

Criminal Law Enforcement

Research did not find information on whether criminal law enforcement agencies in Togo took actions to combat child labor.

Table 7. Criminal Law Enforcement Efforts Related to Child Labor

Overview of Criminal Law Enforcement	2019	2020

The government did not provide information on its criminal law enforcement efforts on the number of investigations, violations found, prosecutions initiated, convictions, and penalties imposed for inclusion in this report. Investigators lacked the resources to adequately enforce the law. Research also indicates that poor recordkeeping, a shortage of physical copies of existing child labor laws throughout the country, and high investigator turnover result in gaps in knowledge and enforcement capacity. (9)

Cases involving child trafficking may be settled outside of court due to difficulties gathering evidence. In addition, judges may be reluctant to impose fines or prison sentences in cases in which parents are involved due to a fear of perpetuating the poverty that originally led them to violate child trafficking laws. (6,11) During the reporting period, research indicated that officials intercepted 250 children at Togo's borders destined for Nigeria, Gabon, Benin, and Burkina Faso. The government returned these children to their families in Togo. (15)

The Ministry of Justice (MOJ) reported that no child trafficking convictions were obtained during the reporting period. (30) The Assize Courts in Lome and Kara that handle all human trafficking cases were not operational during the reporting period citing the pandemic. (15) Research indicates that the Assize Court system's process for addressing child trafficking is slow and expensive, which can deter victims from participating. The two Assize Courts have too many cases to handle, and cases deemed less serious are deprioritized, meaning that it can take years for the courts to hear them. (15) In 2020, the government allocated $11,667 (7,000,000 CFA) to conduct its third edition of a nationwide awareness campaign on trafficking in persons. (15)

IV. COORDINATION OF GOVERNMENT EFFORTS ON CHILD LABOR

The government has established mechanisms to coordinate its efforts to address child labor (Table 8). However, gaps exist that hinder the effective coordination of efforts to address child labor, including funding constraints.

Table 8. Key Mechanisms to Coordinate Government Efforts on Child Labor

Coordinating Body	Role & Description
National Steering Committee for the Prohibition and Elimination of the Worst Forms of Child Labor	Coordinating government body for child labor issues. Comprises representatives from 17 ministries and NGOs; the MOL's Unit to Combat Child Labor serves as the permanent secretariat. (9) Operates at the community level. (9,12) The National Steering Committee was active during the reporting period reviewing the previous National Action Plan and finalizing the 2020–2024 National Action Plan (PANLTE). (6)
Committee for Social Reintegration of Children (CNARSEVT)	Manages anti-child trafficking efforts, acts as the government's central hub of information for trafficking in Togo, and drafts an annual report on data in human trafficking, which is sent to the Economic Community of West African States (ECOWAS). (15,38) Has representatives from the ministries of Labor, Justice, Health, Security, and Foreign Affairs. (15) Met regularly throughout the year. (38) Research indicates that CNARSEVT faced operational challenges during the reporting period due to lack of financial resources despite receiving support from UNICEF and Expertise France. (15)
Federated Bodies*	The government established 84 community-based child protection entities known as "federated bodies" to replace the previous "Local Vigilance Committees" that had become inactive. The new federated bodies held community dialogues to raise broad child abuse issues—including child trafficking—and identify and implement programming such as awareness raising, counseling, and reporting. (30)

* Mechanism to coordinate efforts to address child labor was created during the reporting period.

The Government of Togo does not reliably disburse the allocated budget for the National Steering Committee for the Prohibition and Elimination of the Worst Forms of Child Labor, limiting its ability to combat child labor and support data collection efforts. (9) During the reporting period, the government worked towards the establishment of a National Commission Against Trafficking, but had not yet finalized the decree to enter it into force. (6) The Government of Togo signed a Tripartite Agreement with Benin and Burkina Faso in December 2019 to improve protection of child trafficking victims, and in July 2020, held a launch event to share information about the agreement. (15) Research indicates that the government was not able to fully implement the agreement during the reporting period, citing complications due to the COVID-19 pandemic. (15)

V. GOVERNMENT POLICIES ON CHILD LABOR

The government has established policies related to child labor (Table 9). However, policy gaps exist that hinder efforts to address child labor, including implementation.

MODERATE ADVANCEMENT

Table 9. Key Policies Related to Child Labor

Policy	Description
National Action Plan for the Elimination of the Worst Forms of Child Labor (PANLTE) (2020–2024)†	Taking a multi-sectoral approach, PANLTE takes into account the formal and informal economies in an attempt to eliminate the worst forms of child labor. (6,30,39) The government launched implementation activities in 2021. (30)
National Policy of Social Protection	MASPFA policy that aims to improve social safety nets, strengthen mechanisms to combat the exploitation of children, and promote birth registration. (40) UNICEF has partnered with MASPFA, dedicating $6.4 million of UNICEF's 2019–2023 budget to promote child protection, including birth registration. (6)
Multi-lateral Agreements to Combat Child Trafficking	In December 2019, the Governments of Togo, Benin, and Burkina Faso signed a trilateral agreement to combat child trafficking. (9,41) On July 30, 2020, the government made this document available to the public. (6)
National Development Plan (2019–2022)	Aims to improve economic growth, structurally transform the Togolese economy, and strengthen social protection and inclusion measures, including the implementation of a national biometric identification system. (9,42) The government has done many activities related to the implementation of the National Development Plan, which is cited at every meeting and for almost every government initiative, however, it is difficult to track its annual activities since the accomplishments are not published anywhere. (43)

† Policy was approved during the reporting period.

‡ The government had other policies that may have addressed child labor issues or had an impact on child labor. (44)

The Ministry of Social Action, Promotion of Women and Literacy's Anti-Trafficking in Persons Cell is working on a draft national action plan to combat human trafficking, and the Council of Ministers is reviewing a draft decree to create a coordinating body that would oversee its implementation. (15,17,30) The government also produced a new Education Sector Plan (2020–2030), as the previous one ended during the reporting period. While the new plan does not directly address eliminating child labor, it includes efforts to stimulate demand for education, including targeting localities where school access and retention are weak, especially for girls. The government's objective is to keep children in school instead of work and thereby reduce child labor. (30)

VI. SOCIAL PROGRAMS TO ADDRESS CHILD LABOR

In 2020, the government funded and participated in programs that may contribute to preventing child labor (Table 10). However, gaps exist in these social programs, including the adequacy of programs to address the full scope of the problem.

Table 10. Key Social Programs to Address Child Labor

Program	Description
World Bank-Funded Programs	Aim to combat child labor by improving social safety nets for vulnerable families and increasing access to education. Include: The Safety Nets and Basic Services Project (2017–2020), a $29 million project implemented by MASPFA and the Ministry of Grassroots Development (ANADEB), aims to provide social safety nets to poor communities. (6,9,13,45-49) During the reporting period, the Safety Nets program continued to be implemented. This project is due to be completed at the end of 2021. (6) Employment Opportunities for Vulnerable Youth Project (2017–2021), a $15 million program implemented by ANADEB, strives to provide access to income-generating opportunities for targeted poor and vulnerable youth in Togo. (6)

‡ The government had other social programs that may have included the goal of eliminating or preventing child labor. (20,34,45)

Social programs focus on alleviating poverty and promoting education rather than targeting specific sectors of child labor, such as domestic work. The government relies heavily on NGOs and international organizations for the implementation of social programs. (9,50) A shortage of funds may hinder program implementation. (9) As a result, the scope of existing programs is insufficient to fully address the extent of the problem, including in commercial sexual exploitation and domestic work. (9)

VII. SUGGESTED GOVERNMENT ACTIONS TO ELIMINATE CHILD LABOR

Based on the reporting above, suggested actions are identified that would advance the elimination of child labor in Togo (Table 11).

Table 11. Suggested Government Actions to Eliminate Child Labor

Area	Suggested Action	Year(s) Suggested
Legal Framework	Ensure that written law prohibits children from performing all types of hazardous labor.	2020
Enforcement	Strengthen the labor inspectorate by authorizing labor inspectors to assess penalties.	2014 – 2020
	Ensure that labor inspectors have the time and resources to carry out their primary duties of inspection and monitoring of labor laws throughout the country, including in the informal sector.	2009 – 2020
	Publish data on criminal law enforcement efforts, including the number of investigations conducted, criminal violations found, prosecutions initiated, convictions obtained, and penalties imposed for the worst forms of child labor.	2010 – 2020
	Ensure that criminal investigators have sufficient financial and physical resources to adequately enforce criminal laws against child labor.	2017 – 2020
	Ensure that criminal law enforcement officials receive training, including on new laws and refresher courses, and that all regional offices have copies of relevant laws related to child labor.	2009 – 2020
	Enforce legal penalties for criminal violations, such as child trafficking.	2014 – 2020
	Ensure that court system processes for addressing child trafficking are timely so as not to deter victims from reporting.	2020
	Address issues of poor recordkeeping and high investigator turnover to ensure solid adequate enforcement capacity.	2020
Coordination	Provide coordinating bodies with sufficient resources to implement their mandates to combat child labor.	2018 – 2020
	Fully implement any agreement signed to protect child trafficking.	2020
Government Policies	Ensure that programs undertake intended projects and report on these activities, including for the National Development Plan.	2020
	Implement a policy that addresses all relevant worst forms of child labor.	2020
Social Programs	Increase access to education by eliminating school-related fees; ensuring that schools are free from sexual and physical violence; and increasing the number of schools.	2010 – 2020
	Ensure that social protection programs to combat child labor receive adequate funding and are sufficient to address the scope of the problem in all relevant sectors.	2009 – 2020
	Ensure that child labor elimination and prevention strategies are integrated into all relevant programs.	2016 – 2020
	Integrate child labor elimination and prevention strategies into the Education Sector Plan.	2013 – 2020
	Ensure that social programs target commercial sexual exploitation and domestic work in addition to alleviating poverty and promoting education.	2019 – 2020

Although research found no evidence that child labor exists in Tokelau, in 2020 the government made no advancement in efforts to prevent the worst forms of child labor. The government has not established adequate legal protections to prevent the worst forms of child labor, as the law does not criminally prohibit forced labor and child trafficking. In addition, Tokelau has not established a minimum age for work and does not prohibit hazardous occupations for children.

I. PREVALENCE AND SECTORAL DISTRIBUTION OF CHILD LABOR

Research found no evidence that child labor exists in Tokelau. Table I provides one key indicator on children's education in Tokelau. Data on key indicators on children's work are not available from the sources used in this report.

Table I. Statistics on Children's Work and Education

Children	Age	Percent
Primary Completion Rate (%)		119.0

Although education in Tokelau is free, some children struggle to access reliable transportation to attend school. (1,2)

II. LEGAL FRAMEWORK FOR CHILD LABOR

Tokelau is a territory of New Zealand; however, New Zealand statutory law does not apply to Tokelau unless it is expressly extended to Tokelau. (3) International treaties are applied only with the consent of the Government of Tokelau. New Zealand's ratification of conventions does not apply automatically to Tokelau. (2,3) None of the key international child labor conventions ratified by New Zealand have been made applicable to Tokelau, including ILO Convention 138, Minimum Age of Work; ILO Convention 182, Worst Forms of Child Labor; the UN Convention on the Rights of the Child (CRC); the UN CRC Optional Protocol on Armed Conflict; the UN CRC Optional Protocol on the Sale of Children, Child Prostitution and Child Pornography; and the Palermo Protocol on Trafficking in Persons. (2)

The government has established laws and regulations related to child labor (Table 2). However, gaps exist in Tokelau's legal framework to adequately protect children from the worst forms of child labor, including the minimum age for work.

Table 2. Laws and Regulations on Child Labor

Standard	Meets International Standards	Age	Legislation
Minimum Age for Work	No
Minimum Age for Hazardous Work	No
Identification of Hazardous Occupations or Activities Prohibited for Children	No
Prohibition of Forced Labor	No
Prohibition of Child Trafficking	No
Prohibition of Commercial Sexual Exploitation of Children	No
Prohibition of Using Children in Illicit Activities	No
Minimum Age for Voluntary State Military Recruitment	Yes	17	Article 33 of the Government of New Zealand's Defence Act (4)
Prohibition of Compulsory Recruitment of Children by (State) Military	N/A*†
Prohibition of Military Recruitment by Non-state Armed Groups	No

NO ADVANCEMENT

Standard	Meets International Standards	Age	Legislation
Compulsory Education Age	Yes	16	Article 63(1) of the Tokelau Crimes, Procedures, and Evidence Rules Act (5,6)
Free Public Education	Yes		Part I, Section 3 of the Government of New Zealand's Education Act (7)

* No conscription (8)

† No standing military (4)

Tokelau has not established a minimum age for work legislation, nor has the government determined the minimum age for hazardous work or the types of work that are hazardous for children. The government also does not prohibit slavery or slavery-like practices such as forced labor. (2) Tokelau's trafficking provision does not clearly criminalize domestic trafficking or the trafficking of children in the absence of force, fraud, or coercion. In addition, the government does not criminalize the use, procuring, or offering of children for prostitution, pornography, or pornographic performances. (2) Tokelau has also not criminalized the use of children in illicit activities, including in the production and trafficking of drugs. (5) Although there are no armed forces in Tokelau, the law does not criminally prohibit non-state armed groups from recruiting children under age 18. (2)

New Zealand is responsible for the defense of Tokelau at the territory's request and consultation. (4,9)

III. ENFORCEMENT OF LAWS ON CHILD LABOR

As there is no evidence of a problem, there appears to be no need for enforcement actions to address child labor, including its worst forms. However, the Government of Tokelau has established relevant institutional mechanisms for the enforcement of laws and regulations on child labor. (Table 3)

Table 3. Agencies Responsible for Child Labor Law Enforcement

Organization/Agency	Role
National Assembly (General Fono)	Hears cases related to child welfare concerns, including child labor; if local village leaders are unable to resolve the case at the local level. (10)
New Zealand Ombudsman	Addresses and, if necessary, investigates citizens' complaints against a government office, including complaints related to child labor, child health, safety, and education. (10)

Labor Law Enforcement

As there is no evidence of a problem, there appears to be no need for labor law enforcement actions to address child labor, including its worst forms.

Criminal Law Enforcement

As there is no evidence of a problem, there appears to be no need for criminal law enforcement actions to address child labor, including its worst forms.

IV. COORDINATION OF GOVERNMENT EFFORTS ON CHILD LABOR

As there is no evidence of a problem, there appears to be no need for mechanisms to coordinate efforts to address child labor.

V. GOVERNMENT POLICIES ON CHILD LABOR

As there is no evidence of a problem, there appears to be no need for policies to address child labor. However, the Government of Tokelau has established a policy related to child labor (Table 4).

Table 4. Key Policies Related to Child Labor

Policy	Description
United Nations Pacific Strategy (2018–2022)	A multi-national strategic framework program consisting of 14 South Pacific nations to address, develop, and implement strategic economic development priorities in the South Pacific, including eliminating child labor and the worst forms of child labor. (11) Research was unable to determine whether activities were undertaken to implement the United Nations Pacific Strategy during the reporting period.

VI. SOCIAL PROGRAMS TO ADDRESS CHILD LABOR

As there is no evidence of a problem, there appears to be no need for programs to address child labor.

VII. SUGGESTED GOVERNMENT ACTIONS TO ELIMINATE CHILD LABOR

Based on the reporting above, the following actions would advance the continued prevention of child labor in Tokelau (Table 5).

Table 5. Suggested Government Actions to Eliminate Child Labor

Area	Suggested Action	Year(s) Suggested
Legal Framework	Establish a minimum age for work that meets international standards and conforms to the compulsory education age.	2016 – 2020
	Establish age 18 as the minimum age for hazardous work and determine the types of hazardous work prohibited for children under age 18 in consultation with employers' and workers' organizations.	2016 – 2020
	Establish laws that criminally prohibit forced labor, including slavery.	2013 – 2020
	Ensure that laws prohibit the trafficking of children domestically and internationally for commercial sexual exploitation and forced labor, and do not require the use of force to be established for the crime of trafficking.	2016 – 2020
	Ensure that laws criminally prohibit the use, procuring, and offering a child for prostitution, the production of pornography, and pornographic performances.	2017 – 2020
	Ensure that laws criminally prohibit the use of children for illicit activities, including for the production and trafficking of drugs.	2017 – 2020
	Ensure that the law criminally prohibits the recruitment of children under age 18 by non-state armed groups.	2016 – 2020
Government Policies	Publish activities undertaken to implement the United Nations Pacific Strategy during the reporting period.	2019 – 2020
Social Programs	Establish a reliable transportation program to ensure that children are able to attend school.	2018 – 2020

MINIMAL ADVANCEMENT – EFFORTS MADE BUT CONTINUED PRACTICE THAT DELAYED ADVANCEMENT

In 2020, Tonga made minimal advancement in efforts to eliminate the worst forms of child labor. During the reporting period, the government ratified International Labor Organization Convention 182 on the Worst Forms of Child Labor. In addition, the government released the results of the Multiple Indicator Cluster Survey, the first nationwide survey on children and women in Tonga. However, despite new initiatives to address child labor, Tonga is receiving an assessment of minimal advancement because it continued to implement a practice that delayed advancement in eliminating the worst forms of child labor. Research indicates that there are no labor inspectors and there is no legal authority to conduct labor inspections. Labor inspections are a key tool for identifying child labor violations, and their absence makes children more vulnerable to the worst forms of child labor. Children are subjected to the worst forms of child labor, including in commercial sexual exploitation, sometimes as a result of human trafficking. Children also engage in child labor in farming and fishing. Gaps in the legal framework also remain; the country has no laws specifying a minimum age for work or defining hazardous forms of work for children under age 18, leaving children unprotected from labor exploitation. In addition, the government has not integrated child labor elimination and prevention strategies into relevant policies to address child labor, including its worst forms.

I. PREVALENCE AND SECTORAL DISTRIBUTION OF CHILD LABOR

Children in Tonga are subjected to the worst forms of child labor, including in commercial sexual exploitation, sometimes as a result of human trafficking. Children also engage in child labor in farming and fishing. (1) Table I provides key indicators on children's work and education in Tonga. Data on some of these indicators are not available from the sources used in this report.

Table I. Statistics on Children's Work and Education

Children	Age	Percent
Working (% and population)	5 to 14	46.8 (Unavailable)
Attending School (%)	5 to 14	94.6
Combining Work and School (%)	7 to 14	47.8
Primary Completion Rate (%)		116.1

Source for all other data: International Labor Organization's analysis of statistics from Multiple Indicator Cluster Survey 6 (MICS 6), 2019. (3)

Based on a review of available information, Table 2 provides an overview of children's work by sector and activity.

Table 2. Overview of Children's Work by Sector and Activity

Sector/Industry	Activity
Agriculture	Subsistence farming, fishing (4)
Categorical Worst Forms of Child Labor‡	Forced domestic work (4,6-8)
	Commercial sexual exploitation, sometimes as a result of human trafficking (4,6,7)
	Use in illicit activities, including the trafficking of drugs (9-11)

‡ Child labor understood as the worst forms of child labor per se under Article 3(a)–(c) of ILO C. 182.

During the reporting period, the Government of Tonga released the results of the Multiple Indicator Cluster Survey, the first nationwide survey on children and women in Tonga. The survey, conducted in 2019 with technical support from UNICEF, the United Nations Population Fund, and the Pacific Community, showed that 26 percent of children ages 5 to 17 were involved in economic activities and 28 percent of children were exposed to hazardous working conditions. (11) Hazardous conditions included working with dangerous tools, operating heavy machinery, carrying heavy loads, and some exposure to extreme cold, heat, or humidity. However, the survey did not provide information on the sectors in which children were engaged in child labor. (11) The Ministry of Trade and Economic Development (formerly the Ministry of Commerce, Consumer, Innovation, Trade, and Labor) labor study, which was conducted from December 2012 to January 2013 and resulted in an internal "Report of a Spot Survey on the Worst Forms of Child Labor in Tonga," has yet to be published. (4,12)

There was evidence indicating that the growing methamphetamine epidemic has resulted in drug dealers starting to recruit school-age children to assist with drug deliveries, while also getting them addicted to the drug. (9,10) There have been media reports of children as young as age 13 being arrested for possession of drugs for the purposes of distribution. (11)

Many school buildings remain inaccessible to students with physical disabilities, resulting in the attendance rates of children with disabilities, at all educational levels, to be lower than children without disabilities. (11)

II. LEGAL FRAMEWORK FOR CHILD LABOR

Tonga has ratified some key international conventions concerning child labor (Table 3).

Table 3. Ratification of International Conventions on Child Labor

Convention	Ratification
 ILO C. 138, Minimum Age
ILO C. 182, Worst Forms of Child Labor	✓
 UN CRC	✓
UN CRC Optional Protocol on Armed Conflict
UN CRC Optional Protocol on the Sale of Children, Child Prostitution and Child Pornography
 Palermo Protocol on Trafficking in Persons

The government has established laws and regulations related to child labor (Table 4). However, gaps exist in Tonga's legal framework to adequately protect children from the worst forms of child labor, including the minimum age for work.

Table 4. Laws and Regulations on Child Labor

Standard	Meets International Standards	Age	Legislation
Minimum Age for Work	No
Minimum Age for Hazardous Work	No
Identification of Hazardous Occupations or Activities Prohibited for Children	No
Prohibition of Forced Labor	No		Sections 69–70 of the Counter Terrorism and Transnational Organized Crime Act (13)
Prohibition of Child Trafficking	No		Section 69 of the Counter Terrorism and Transnational Organized Crime Act (13)
Prohibition of Commercial Sexual Exploitation of Children	No		Sections 115A and 125–126 of the Criminal Offenses Act (14,15)
Prohibition of Using Children in Illicit Activities	No
Minimum Age for Voluntary State Military Recruitment	Yes	16	Section 25 of the Defense Services Act (16)

Standard	Meets International Standards	Age	Legislation
Prohibition of Compulsory Recruitment of Children by (State) Military	Yes*		Section 25 of the Defense Services Act (16)
Prohibition of Military Recruitment by Non-state Armed Groups	No
Compulsory Education Age	Yes	18	Section 98 of the Education Act 2013 (17)
Free Public Education	No		Section 95 of the Education Act 2013 (17)

* No conscription (16)

During the reporting period, the Government of Tonga ratified ILO C. 182, thereby giving the Convention on the Worst Forms of Child Labor universal ratification. (18)

The Ministry of Trade and Economic Development has not passed the revised Employment Relations Bill, which would establish a minimum age for non-hazardous and hazardous work and would prohibit the categorical worst forms of child labor. Furthermore, the Parliament has not determined the types of hazardous work prohibited for children. (11,19) When the bill is passed, the labor inspectorate will also be given legal authority to conduct labor inspections. (12,20) In addition, although Article 70 of the Counter Terrorism and Transnational Organized Crime Act prohibits some aspects of forced labor, it does not comprehensively or explicitly criminalize forced labor or slavery. In addition, the Counter Terrorism and Transnational Organized Crime Act does not meet the international standard for the prohibition of child trafficking because it does not specifically prohibit the domestic trafficking of children. (7,13)

The Criminal Offenses Act prohibits the procurement of women and girls under age 21 for commercial sexual exploitation, but it does not criminalize the procurement of boys for the same. In addition, the Act does not sufficiently prohibit commercial sexual exploitation, because the use of children under age 14 in the production of pornography is not criminally prohibited. (15) There are no criminal prohibitions that specifically prohibit using children in illicit activities, particularly in the production and trafficking of drugs, or the recruitment of children by non-state armed groups. (16) Although it does not appear that there are any laws that provide free basic education, there was a policy that provided for free basic education to all children between ages 6 and 14, which has lapsed during the reporting period. (26)

III. ENFORCEMENT OF LAWS ON CHILD LABOR

Tonga lacks a functioning labor inspectorate for the enforcement of labor laws and regulations (Table 5).

Table 5. Agencies Responsible for Child Labor Law Enforcement

Organization/Agency	Role
Ministry of Trade and Economic Development	Enforces labor laws, including those related to child labor and the worst forms of child labor. The position of Chief Labor Inspector is currently vacant. (5,20)
Tonga Police, Transnational Crime Unit, and Domestic Violence Unit	Enforces criminal laws related to the worst forms of child labor. (1) Responds to forced child labor, human trafficking violations, and commercial sexual exploitation allegations. With NGOs, handles and coordinates cases related to women and children. (11)
Ministry of Internal Affairs, Immigration Department	Collaborates with Tonga Police and the Ministry of Trade and Economic Development on the enforcement of criminal laws in cases in which foreign nationals are involved in the worst forms of child labor. (11)

There is no labor inspectorate and no legal authority to conduct labor inspections in Tonga. (11)

Labor Law Enforcement

In 2020, the absence of labor inspectors and labor inspections at the national level in Tonga may have impeded the enforcement of child labor laws (Table 6).

MINIMAL ADVANCEMENT – EFFORTS MADE BUT CONTINUED PRACTICE THAT DELAYED ADVANCEMENT

Table 6. Labor Law Enforcement Efforts Related to Child Labor

Reciprocal Referral Mechanism Exists Between Labor Authorities and Social Services	No (4)	No (11)

Inadequate resources, including a lack of funding to hire and train the labor inspectors needed to target sectors in which child labor is present, hamper the government’s capacity to enforce child labor laws in Tonga. Child labor inspections are complaint driven, with police called in for suspected cases of child labor. (11) In addition, the government has yet to establish an adequate referral mechanism among the labor authorities, the police, and social welfare services. (11)

Criminal Law Enforcement

Research did not find information on whether criminal law enforcement agencies in Tonga took actions to combat child labor (Table 7).

Table 7. Criminal Law Enforcement Efforts Related to Child Labor

Overview of Criminal Law Enforcement	2019	2020
Initial Training for New Criminal Investigators	No (4)	Unknown (11)
Training on New Laws Related to the Worst Forms of Child Labor	N/A (4)	N/A (11)

Imposed Penalties for Violations Related to the Worst Forms of Child Labor	Unknown (4)	Unknown (11)
Reciprocal Referral Mechanism Exists Between Criminal Authorities and Social Services	Yes (4)	Yes (11)

The government did not provide information on its criminal law enforcement efforts for inclusion in this report. (4) The Tonga Police address crimes related to the worst forms of child labor. In addition, the Tonga Police coordinate with NGOs to handle labor abuse cases relating to women and children. (11) The government maintains and operates a 24-hour hotline for emergency assistance, which is available to victims of child labor, forced labor, and human trafficking. (22) However, no formal referral mechanism exists. (11)

IV. COORDINATION OF GOVERNMENT EFFORTS ON CHILD LABOR

Research found no evidence that the government has established mechanisms to coordinate its efforts to address child labor.

MINIMAL ADVANCEMENT – EFFORTS MADE BUT CONTINUED PRACTICE THAT DELAYED ADVANCEMENT

V. GOVERNMENT POLICIES ON CHILD LABOR

The government has established policies related to child labor (Table 8). However, policy gaps exist that hinder efforts to address child labor, including mainstreaming child labor issues into relevant policies.

Table 8. Key Policies Related to Child Labor

Policy	Description
United Nations Pacific Strategy (2018–2022)	A multinational strategic framework program consisting of 14 South Pacific nations to address, develop, and implement strategic economic development priorities in the South Pacific, including eliminating child labor and the worst forms of child labor. (23) Research was unable to determine whether activities were undertaken to implement this policy during the reporting period.

The Tonga Strategic Development Plan Nine indirectly addresses the root causes of child labor as it seeks to improve economic opportunities in the country, including those for youth. In addition, the Tonga Education Policy Framework, supported by the Governments of Australia and New Zealand, focuses on improving school quality, achieving universal basic education, and improving management within the Ministry of Education, thereby having a positive impact by reducing child labor through universal education. (11) During the reporting period, the Tonga Minister of Education worked with the Government of New Zealand to develop a new Education Policy Framework. (24) Although the Government of Tonga has adopted the Tonga Strategic Development Plan Nine and the Tonga Education Policy Framework, strategies to prevent and eliminate child labor have not been integrated into those plans.

VI. SOCIAL PROGRAMS TO ADDRESS CHILD LABOR

In 2020, the government funded and participated in programs that included the goal of eliminating child labor (Table 9). However, gaps exist in these social programs, including adequacy to address the problem in all sectors.

Table 9. Key Social Programs to Address Child Labor

Program	Description
UNICEF Pacific Multi-Country Child Protection Program (2018–2022)	Multi-country program in 14 Pacific Island countries. (25) Prioritizes children's rights, including the elimination of the worst forms of child labor. Aligned with the UN Pacific Strategy 2018–2022. (25) During the reporting period, the Government of Tonga participated in UNICEF-supported child protection programs to provide protection to vulnerable children. (11)

Although the Government of Tonga has implemented a program that addresses the elimination of the worst forms of child labor, research found no evidence that it has carried out programs specifically designed to assist children in commercial sexual exploitation, agriculture, and fishing.

VII. SUGGESTED GOVERNMENT ACTIONS TO ELIMINATE CHILD LABOR

Based on the reporting above, suggested actions are identified that would advance the elimination of child labor in Tonga (Table 10).

Table 10. Suggested Government Actions to Eliminate Child Labor

Area	Suggested Action	Year(s) Suggested
Legal Framework	Accede to the UN CRC Optional Protocol on Armed Conflict.	2017 – 2020
	Accede to the UN CRC Optional Protocol on the Sale of Children, Child Prostitution and Child Pornography.	2017 – 2020
	Accede to the Palermo Protocol.	2017 – 2020
	Establish labor regulations that include a minimum age of 15 for employment and a minimum age of 18 for hazardous work, in accordance with international standards.	2009 – 2020
	Create and publish a list of hazardous occupations and activities that are prohibited for children.	2009 – 2020
	Ensure that laws specifically prohibit domestic human trafficking of children.	2014 – 2020
	Ensure that the law criminally prohibits forced labor, including debt bondage and slavery.	2015 – 2020

Area	Suggested Action	Year(s) Suggested
Legal Framework	Ensure that laws prohibit all forms of commercial sexual exploitation for both girls and boys under age 18.	2009 – 2020
	Ensure that the law prohibits the use of children in illicit activities, including in the production and trafficking of drugs.	2014 – 2020
	Ensure that the law criminally prohibits the recruitment of children under age 18 by non-state armed groups.	2016 – 2020
	Establish by law free basic public education.	2016 – 2020
Enforcement	Hire and train labor inspectors to conduct workplace inspections and enforce child labor laws, including the position of Chief Labor Inspector.	2016 – 2020
	Establish and fund a labor inspectorate with the authority to conduct labor inspections, including routine inspections rather than performing inspections solely based on complaints received, and assess penalties for child labor violations.	2019 – 2020
	Provide labor authorities and criminal investigators with the training and resources necessary to enforce laws prohibiting child labor, including laws related to the worst forms of child labor, and conduct refresher courses.	2013 – 2020
	Establish formal referral mechanisms among the labor authorities, the police, and social welfare services to protect and rehabilitate children involved in child labor, including its worst forms.	2014 – 2020
	Publish information on criminal law enforcement activities, efforts, and relevant data.	2014 – 2020
Coordination	Establish a coordinating mechanism to combat the worst forms of child labor.	2009 – 2020
Government Policies	Publish activities undertaken to implement the United Nations Pacific Strategy (2018–2022) during the reporting period.	2020
	Integrate child labor elimination and prevention strategies into relevant policies.	2017 – 2020
Social Programs	Collect and publish data on the extent and nature of child labor, including its worst forms, to inform policies and programs.	2017 – 2020
	Update all school buildings to ensure accessibility for students with disabilities.	2018 – 2020
	Implement social programs to address all worst forms of child labor, including in commercial sexual exploitation, agriculture, and fishing.	2010 – 2020

In 2020, Tunisia made moderate advancement in efforts to eliminate the worst forms of child labor. The Ministry of Social Affairs published a list of hazardous work that is prohibited for children. The Ministry of Education also introduced a new Second Chance program for children who dropped out of school that would assist them in either completing their education or receiving vocational training. In addition, the government provided cash transfers to families to help mitigate the economic impacts of the COVID-19 pandemic. However, children in Tunisia are subjected to the worst forms of child labor, including in forced labor in domestic work and begging, each sometimes as a result of human trafficking. Children also perform dangerous tasks in scavenging for garbage and in street work. The law's minimum age protections cannot be enforced with respect to children who are engaged in work on inhabited premises, such as private homes, without permission of the property owner, a complaint to child protection delegates, or a court order to access the property. The government provided partial data on its criminal law enforcement efforts for inclusion in this report.

I. PREVALENCE AND SECTORAL DISTRIBUTION OF CHILD LABOR

Children in Tunisia are subjected to the worst forms of child labor, including in forced labor in domestic work and begging, each sometimes as a result of human trafficking. Children also perform dangerous tasks in scavenging for garbage and in street work. (1-5) Table 1 provides key indicators on children's work and education in Tunisia.

MODERATE ADVANCEMENT

Refugees and migrants who lack legal documentation, including child migrants, from Sub-Saharan countries and those fleeing unrest in neighboring countries are vulnerable to labor exploitation because refugees and migrants do not have the status to legally work in Tunisia. (24) Young girls from Tunisia’s northwest and other interior regions are particularly vulnerable to human trafficking. (5,14,21,23) A 2017 National Child Labor Survey indicated that 7.9 percent of all children are engaged in child labor, 63.2 percent of whom are involved in hazardous work. The northwest region—consisting of the governorates of Béja, Jendouba, Kef, and Siliana—registered the highest incidence of child labor at 27.7 percent. (3) Figures from the report indicate that children between the ages of 5 and 17 work, with 48.8 percent engaged in agriculture and fishing, 20.2 percent in commerce, 10.9 percent in manufacturing, 6.4 percent in domestic work, and 4.7 percent in construction. (3,4) The government has not yet made the full dataset from the survey publicly available or allowed other government agencies to access it, leaving the nature and causes of children’s involvement in specific forms of child labor unknown.

Students face barriers to education, especially in rural areas, due to inadequate transportation and household poverty. (1,4,8,10,25) Middle and high school completion rates in poor and rural communities remain significantly lower than in wealthy and urban areas. (26) It is estimated that approximately 100,000 students drop out each year, some because of physical violence in schools. (9,10,27,28)

II. LEGAL FRAMEWORK FOR CHILD LABOR

Tunisia has ratified all key international conventions concerning child labor (Table 3).

Table 3. Ratification of International Conventions on Child Labor

Convention	Ratification
 ILO C. 138, Minimum Age	✓
ILO C. 182, Worst Forms of Child Labor	✓
 UN CRC	✓
UN CRC Optional Protocol on Armed Conflict	✓
UN CRC Optional Protocol on the Sale of Children, Child Prostitution and Child Pornography	✓
 Palermo Protocol on Trafficking in Persons	✓

The government’s laws and regulations are in line with relevant international standards (Table 4).

Table 4. Laws and Regulations on Child Labor

Standard	Meets International Standards	Age	Legislation
Minimum Age for Work	Yes	16	Article 53 of the Labor Code (29)
Minimum Age for Hazardous Work	Yes	18	Article 58 of the Labor Code (29)
Identification of Hazardous Occupations or Activities Prohibited for Children	Yes		Ministry of Social Affairs Order of April 1, 2020 (30)
Prohibition of Forced Labor	Yes		Articles 105, 171, 224, and 250 of the Penal Code; Articles 2.1, 2.5, 2.6, and 8.0 of the Law on the Prevention and the Fight Against the Trafficking of Persons (31,32)
Prohibition of Child Trafficking	Yes		Articles 2, 3, 5, 8, and 23 of the Law on the Prevention and the Fight Against the Trafficking of Persons (32)
Prohibition of Commercial Sexual Exploitation of Children	Yes		Articles 226 ter and 232, and 234 of the Penal Code; Article 25 of the Child Protection Code; Article 2.7 of the Law on the Prevention and the Fight Against the Trafficking of Persons (31-33)

Standard	Meets International Standards	Age	Legislation
Prohibition of Using Children in Illicit Activities	Yes		Articles 5 and 11 of Law No. 92.52 on Narcotics (34)
Minimum Age for Voluntary State Military Recruitment	Yes	18	Article 2 of the National Service Law (35)
Prohibition of Compulsory Recruitment of Children by (State) Military	Yes		Article 2 of the National Service Law (35)
Prohibition of Military Recruitment by Non-state Armed Groups	Yes		Article 2(5) of the Law on the Prevention and the Fight Against the Trafficking of Persons; Articles 3 and 18 of the Child Protection Code (32,33)
Compulsory Education Age	Yes	16	Section 1 of the Law on Education (36)
Free Public Education	Yes		Articles 38 and 46 of the Constitution; Law on Education (36,37)

In April 2020, the Ministry of Social Affairs (MSA) published a comprehensive list of hazardous work activities that are prohibited for children under age 18. (1) In addition, the Ministry of Women, Family and the Elderly (MWFE) presented a draft law to the Parliament which prohibits employing or assisting in the employment of children in domestic service. This law was not approved by Parliament during the reporting period. (1) In 2019, Tunisia became the 45th state to accede to the Council of Europe's Convention on the Protection of Children Against Sexual Exploitation and Sexual Abuse. The Convention entered into force on February 1, 2020. (19,38)

III. ENFORCEMENT OF LAWS ON CHILD LABOR

The government has established institutional mechanisms for the enforcement of laws and regulations on child labor (Table 5). However, gaps exist within the authority of the enforcement agencies that may hinder adequate enforcement of child labor laws.

Table 5. Agencies Responsible for Child Labor Law Enforcement

Organization/Agency	Role
Ministry of Social Affairs (MSA)	Conducts labor inspections and assesses fines and penalties for infractions. (8,29) Employs social workers and medical inspectors to assist in addressing issues of child labor. (4) Collaborates with the Ministry of Education (MOE) and the Ministry of Health (MOH) to identify and provide support to children vulnerable to child labor. (8,10,17) Monitors the implementation of labor legislation, investigates violations, and initiates prosecutions through the General Directorate of Labor Inspection. Investigates cases of children working under the age of 18 and provides medical testing for children. (20) Implements social and orientation programs for minors related to child labor through the General Administration for Social Development. (20) Is authorized to conduct unannounced inspections and to issue penalties, except for work performed on inhabited premises, such as private homes. (29)
Ministry of Women, Family and the Elderly (MWFE)	Previously the Ministry of Women, Family, and Children, gathers evidence and conducts investigations on child welfare cases; conducts needs assessments and intervention plans. Provides services to child victims of commercial sexual exploitation. (1) Trains child protection delegates to combat child labor in the field through coordination with local governments and civil society. (1) Acts as judicial police in cases of imminent danger to children through its Delegates for the Protection of Children. (10,33)
Ministry of the Interior (MOI)	Investigates reports of the worst forms of child labor as a criminal violation, including complaints that fall outside of the labor inspectorate's mandate and those pertaining to the informal sector. (13) Through its Child Protection Service in the National Police addresses the commercial sexual exploitation of children and coordinates with MSA and MWFE regarding violations. (1,8,10) Through its Judicial Police, coordinates with MSA to refer cases of at-risk youth. (8,39-41)
Ministry of Justice (MOJ)	Coordinates anti-human trafficking efforts and the criminal enforcement of child labor laws. (17)

In 2020, the MWFE and MSA published internal reports on their 2019 activities to address child labor. The MSA and National Authority to Combat Trafficking in Persons also prepared and distributed a guide on the laws and regulations relating to child labor for law enforcement officials and child advocates. In addition, they organized a strategic workshop as part of Tunisia's commitment as a Pathfinder country of the Alliance 8.7, a global partnership dedicated to the fight against child labor, human trafficking, forced labor, and modern slavery. (1)

Labor Law Enforcement

In 2020, labor law enforcement agencies in Tunisia took actions to combat child labor (Table 6). However, gaps exist within the authority of the MSA that may hinder adequate labor law enforcement, such as the MSA's inability to perform inspections on inhabited premises without a court order or the owner's permission.

Table 6. Labor Law Enforcement Efforts Related to Child Labor

Overview of Labor Law Enforcement	2019	2020
Labor Inspectorate Funding	$5,310,000 (42,43)	Unknown (1)
Number of Labor Inspectors	331 (20)	329 (1)
Inspectorate Authorized to Assess Penalties	Yes (29)	Yes (29)
Initial Training for New Labor Inspectors	Yes (1,42,43)	Unknown (1)
Training on New Laws Related to Child Labor	N/A (20)	Unknown (1)
Refresher Courses Provided	Yes (1,42,43)	Unknown (1)
Number of Labor Inspections Conducted	18,027(1)	Unknown (1)
Number Conducted at Worksite	18,270 (1)	Unknown (1)
Number of Child Labor Violations Found	67 (1)	Unknown (1)
Number of Child Labor Violations for Which Penalties Were Imposed	33 (1)	Unknown (1)
Number of Child Labor Penalties Imposed that Were Collected	Unknown	Unknown (1)
Routine Inspections Conducted	Yes (1)	Yes (44)
Routine Inspections Targeted	Yes (1)	Yes (44)
Unannounced Inspections Permitted	Yes (1,20)	Yes (29)
Unannounced Inspections Conducted	Yes (1,20)	Unknown (1)
Complaint Mechanism Exists	Yes (1,20)	Yes (1)
Reciprocal Referral Mechanism Exists Between Labor Authorities and Social Services	Yes (1,42,43)	Yes (1)

The MSA employs 329 labor inspectors, 26 of whom are specifically dedicated to monitoring child labor issues. (1) However, labor law enforcement mechanisms are unable to enforce the minimum age protections for children on inhabited premises, such as children employed in domestic service in private homes, without permission of the property owner or a court order. (1,4,8,10) Child protection delegates may enter private homes in response to complaints and impose penalties, and a complaint mechanism exists which may be used by both citizens and officials. The government noted that the budget for staffing and logistics, such as fuel and transportation, was inadequate to carry out inspections, especially in remote areas of the country. (1) Although there are labor inspectors who monitor the informal sector in Ariana, Jendouba, Medenine, Sfax, Sousse, Tunis, and Tozeur, ministry officials note that the labor inspectorate lacks resources to adequately monitor the informal economy throughout the country. Informal work accounts for an estimated 38 percent of the country's GDP and employs approximately 54 percent of the country's total workforce. (4,8,10,11,28,45) Although the MSA has provided training for new hires and ongoing training for its inspectors in previous years, in-person training for labor inspectors was limited during the reporting period as a result of restrictions related to the pandemic. (1)

The government did not provide specific data on child labor law enforcement for inclusion in this report. (1,20,43) Penalties for violating child labor laws are weak, ranging from approximately $7 to $21, and are insufficient to deter potential violators. (1,12)

Criminal Law Enforcement

In 2020, criminal law enforcement agencies in Tunisia took actions to combat child labor (Table 7). However, gaps exist within the operations of the criminal enforcement agencies that may hinder adequate criminal law enforcement, including the lack of digitized criminal justice data.

Table 7. Criminal Law Enforcement Efforts Related to Child Labor

Overview of Criminal Law Enforcement	2019	2020
Initial Training for New Criminal Investigators	Unknown	Unknown (1)
Training on New Laws Related to the Worst Forms of Child Labor	Unknown	Unknown (1)
Refresher Courses Provided	Unknown	Yes (44)
Number of Investigations	429 (44)	94 (44)
Number of Violations Found	Unknown	82 (44)
Number of Prosecutions Initiated	9 (44)	17 (44)
Number of Convictions	Unknown	Unknown (1)
Imposed Penalties for Violations Related to the Worst Forms of Child Labor	Unknown	Unknown (1)
Reciprocal Referral Mechanism Exists Between Criminal Authorities and Social Services	Unknown	Yes (1)

In 2020, the Ministry of the Interior (MOI) identified two cases involving the labor exploitation of foreign children, as well as five Tunisian children subjected to commercial sexual exploitation in the production of pornography. Ten children were reported as being involved in organized crime, including in drug-related activities. (1)

In accordance with the 2018 introduction of Law No. 58 on violence against women, 380 police officers have been trained to provide assistance to vulnerable populations including child perpetrators and victims of crime. The government is also continuing to work with UNICEF to strengthen the capacity of law enforcement and the courts to address child welfare issues and provide child protection services to adolescents in conflict with the law. (1) For example, UNICEF's legal support was provided to three girls in Kasserine who were initially charged with prostitution as a result of being trafficked for the purposes of commercial sexual exploitation; they were subsequently released and their cases dismissed after legal intervention. (44)

The government provided only partial information on its criminal law enforcement efforts for inclusion in this report. Information was drawn from the records of eight tribunals, in part because the Ministry of Justice does not maintain comprehensive data as most records are not digitized. (1)

Laws that penalize trafficking in persons offenses carry sufficiently stringent penalties, but judges are frequently reluctant to convict on these charges due in part to a low level of awareness on the part of police and judicial authorities of the proper application of the anti-trafficking law and their limited understanding of how to handle human trafficking cases. (1,12) Although the MOI reports that children under the age of 18 are not routinely detained for involvement in illicit activities, there have been isolated incidents of law enforcement punishing children for their subjugation to the worst forms of child labor. (1,12)

IV. COORDINATION OF GOVERNMENT EFFORTS ON CHILD LABOR

The government has established mechanisms to coordinate its efforts to address child labor (Table 8).

Table 8. Key Mechanisms to Coordinate Government Efforts on Child Labor

Coordinating Body	Role & Description
The Leadership Committee to Combat Child Labor	As part of the Child Labor National Action Plan (PAN-TN), coordinates efforts to combat child labor. Led by MSA, includes membership of 11 other ministries and 3 unions, with support from ILO. (13) Met several times in 2020. (46)
National Authority to Combat Trafficking in Persons (Instance Nationale de Lutte Contre la Traite des Personnes)	Led by MOJ, coordinates anti-human trafficking efforts and raises awareness of human trafficking issues. Includes membership of 12 ministries, 2 members of civil society, a media representative, and a member of the National Commission of Human Rights. (17,40,47-49)

In 2020, the National Authority to Combat Trafficking in Persons, in cooperation with the Council of Europe, distributed cards that explain the rights of human trafficking victims. The cards feature a non-exhaustive list of government and non-governmental support services available to human trafficking victims. (1)

V. GOVERNMENT POLICIES ON CHILD LABOR

The government has established policies related to child labor (Table 9). However, policy gaps exist that hinder efforts to address child labor, including implementation.

Table 9. Key Policies Related to Child Labor

Policy	Description
Child Labor National Action Plan (PAN-TN) (2015–2020)	Raised awareness, built the capacity of stakeholders, encouraged action from NGOs and the public, improved policies, and promoted the implementation of existing laws and policies. (13,50,51) In February 2020, worked with MSA to release a practical guide on intervention in child labor that compiles relevant legal texts and implementing regulations for ease of use by stakeholders. (1)
National Strategy for the Combat of Trafficking in Persons (2018–2023)	Aims to establish a global evidence-based approach to address trafficking in persons by coordinating national and international actors. (5,14) Conducted trainings, created pandemic contingency plans, and raised awareness on human trafficking through Public Service Announcements (PSAs) on labor contract rights in 2020. (44)

VI. SOCIAL PROGRAMS TO ADDRESS CHILD LABOR

In 2020, the government funded and participated in programs that include the goal of eliminating or preventing child labor (Table 10). However, gaps exist in these social programs, including the adequacy of programs to address the full scope of the problem.

Table 10. Key Social Programs to Address Child Labor

Program	Description
USDOL-Funded Project (PROTECTE)	A $3 million project implemented by ILO that aims to strengthen Tunisia's ability to implement its Child Labor National Action Plan, a multi-stakeholder effort involving government, business, and civil society both at the central and rural levels. Additional information is available on the USDOL website. In 2020, enabled the MSA to create two regional steering committees in Sfax and Jendouba as a pilot project to combat child labor. In November 2020, provided personal protective equipment and digital tablets to the Centers for the Social Protection of Children in Tunis and Sidi Bouzid, and to the Social Observation Centre for Children in Manouba. (1)
Support Efforts to Combat Human Trafficking (2014–2022)	USDOS-funded project implemented by IOM to carry out anti-human trafficking activities in collaboration with MOJ, MOI, MSA, and MWFE. Includes three objectives: (1) build the capacity of relevant institutions and agencies to identify and assist victims of human trafficking based on their individual needs; (2) strengthen cross-sector cooperation and the sharing of information through the implementation of a national referral mechanism; and (3) conduct an awareness-raising campaign to keep children in school and discourage illegal migration that could lead to human trafficking. (1)
Centers to Provide Aid to Victims of Child Labor†	Serves up to 6,000 children engaged in child labor or vulnerable to child labor through the maintenance of 79 youth centers.(53) In 2020, operated with the exception of COVID-19 mandated closures for public institutions. (44)
Shelters and Services for Victims of Human Trafficking†	Serves victims of human trafficking, predominantly children, through the operation of shelters by the Government of Tunisia. Provides lodging, food, clothing, psychological services, legal aid through a network of pro bono lawyers, and free medical care in collaboration with MOH. Places adults and unaccompanied children in dedicated centers to receive schooling. (15,41,54,55) Remained open in 2020.(44)
Programs to Reduce School Dropout Rates‡	MOE-funded School Dropout Prevention Program that maintains about 2,300 social protection units in schools and mobile units in rural areas to monitor students and prevent them from dropping out. (53) Includes a project operated by the Ministry of Vocational Training and Employment to incorporate students who have dropped out into vocational training programs. (20) In 2020, remained operational with the exception of pandemic-mandated closures for public institutions. (44)
UNICEF Country Program Document (2021–2025)	In 2020, released an updated country strategy for 2021–2025 that focuses on inclusive socioeconomic development; accountable institutions for children and access to justice; effective education; health and protection systems, sustainable management of water, sanitation and hygiene; environmental and disaster risks, and other crises. (1,52)
Second Chance Program	Pilot program funded by MOE to reintegrate school dropouts ages 12 to 18 back into the educational system or provide them with vocational training. (1)

† Program is funded by the Government of Tunisia.

‡ The government had other social programs that may have included the goal of eliminating or preventing child labor. (40,54)

The government provided cash transfers to some needy families in April and May 2020 to ease the economic impact of the pandemic. The MSA noted in its June statement for the World Day Against Child Labor that the pandemic and subsequent lockdown heightened the vulnerability of children and low-income families to exploitative labor. (1) The MSA also worked within the framework of the PROTECTE project to support vulnerable social groups and actors in protecting children and childcare facilities from the negative effects of the pandemic, and the government is planning a study on the impact of the pandemic on child labor in a number of regions. (1) Although Tunisia has programs that target child labor, the scope of these programs is insufficient to fully address the extent of the problem, including in agriculture, fishing, commerce, manufacturing, domestic work, and construction. (13) In addition, while the National Authority works to ensure the safety of child victims of labor exploitation and trafficking in persons, options for victims' long-term support and possible relocation remain extremely limited. (12,21)

The Second Chance program was founded during the reporting period to address the vulnerability of children who left school before completing compulsory education. The program is being undertaken in cooperation with UNICEF, the Government of the United Kingdom, and several government ministries including the Ministry of Youth and Sports, the Ministry of Vocational Training and Employment, and the MSA. (1,53) In September, the Ministry of Education inaugurated a second chance school based in Tunis that targets thousands of school dropouts each year. A team has been trained to evaluate, support, and supervise students wishing to return to school. (1,53) Classes will focus on integration into professional life, computer science, mathematics, and skills acquisition. The pilot program is scheduled to expand to additional regions during 2021–2022. (1,53)

VII. SUGGESTED GOVERNMENT ACTIONS TO ELIMINATE CHILD LABOR

Based on the reporting above, suggested actions are identified that would advance the elimination of child labor in Tunisia (Table 11).

Table 11. Suggested Government Actions to Eliminate Child Labor

Area	Suggested Action	Year(s) Suggested
Enforcement	Provide adequate staff and other resources, including fuel and transportation, to enable the labor inspectorate to conduct a greater number of inspections, particularly in remote areas and in the informal economy.	2015 – 2020
	Ensure that mechanisms exist to enforce the minimum age protections for children working on inhabited premises, such as private homes, without permission of the property owner or a court order.	2014 – 2020
	Collect and publish information related to the enforcement of child labor laws, including the funding of the labor inspectorate, the training of labor inspectors, the number and types of labor inspections conducted, and the number of child labor violations found, penalties imposed, and penalties collected.	2013 – 2020
	Collect and publish information on criminal law enforcement of child labor laws, including on law enforcement training and the number of criminal child labor investigations that were initiated, violations identified, prosecutions initiated, convictions secured, and penalties imposed for the worst forms of child labor.	2019 – 2020
	Increase penalties for those who employ children in violation of child labor law protections to deter potential violations and reduce recidivism.	2016 – 2020
	Ensure that law enforcement and the judiciary are fully informed as to the existence and application of anti-trafficking penalties, and impose when appropriate.	2020
Government Policies	Publish information on whether all social policies are able to carry out their intended mandates.	2020
Social Programs	Publish the microdata of the 2017 National Child Labor Survey so that the information can inform programming and policies.	2017 – 2020
	Address barriers to education, especially for children in rural areas, such as unreliable transportation, household poverty, and physical violence in schools.	2015 – 2020
	Ensure that social programs have sufficient resources to carry out their mandates.	2020
	Expand existing programs to fully address the scope of the child labor problem, including in agriculture, fishing, commerce, manufacturing, domestic work, and construction.	2015 – 2020
	Establish long-term support and relocation options for victims of child labor and trafficking in persons.	2020

In 2020, Tuvalu made moderate advancement in efforts to eliminate the worst forms of child labor. During the reporting period, the government, with support from UNICEF, conducted the 2019–2020 Tuvalu Social Development Indicator Survey to assess the prevalence and cause of child labor. The government also secured a Global Partnership for Education grant to help develop remote learning materials and provide teachers with training on remote learning interventions. In addition, the government finalized the 2017 Child Care and Welfare Bill, which, if passed, will be the first law in Tuvalu to have comprehensive provisions for issues related to children's rights, including child labor. However, although research is limited, there is evidence that children in Tuvalu engage in child labor in fishing and domestic work. The government has not specified, by national law or regulation, the types of hazardous work prohibited for children, leaving children vulnerable to the worst forms of child labor. In addition, Tuvalu lacks information on labor law and criminal law enforcement efforts.

I. PREVALENCE AND SECTORAL DISTRIBUTION OF CHILD LABOR

Although research is limited, there is evidence that children in Tuvalu engage in child labor in fishing and domestic work. (1,2) Table 1 provides key indicators on children's work and education in Tuvalu. Data on some of these indicators are not available from the sources used in this report.

Table 1. Statistics on Children's Work and Education

Children	Age	Percent
Working (% and population)	5 to 14	Unavailable
Attending School (%)	5 to 14	Unavailable
Combining Work and School (%)	7 to 14	Unavailable
Primary Completion Rate (%)		78.7

Source for primary completion rate: Data from 2018, published by UNESCO Institute for Statistics, 2021. (3)

Source for all other data were unavailable from International Labor Organization's analysis, 2021. (4)

Based on a review of available information, Table 2 provides an overview of children's work by sector and activity.

Table 2. Overview of Children's Work by Sector and Activity

Sector/Industry	Activity
Agriculture	Fishing, activities unknown (5)
Services	Domestic work (5)

During the reporting period, the government, with support from UNICEF, conducted the 2019–2020 Tuvalu Social Development Indicator Survey. The survey is expected to assess the prevalence and cause of child labor. (5)

II. LEGAL FRAMEWORK FOR CHILD LABOR

Tuvalu has ratified some key international conventions concerning child labor (Table 3).

MODERATE ADVANCEMENT

Table 3. Ratification of International Conventions on Child Labor

Convention	Ratification
 ILO C. 138, Minimum Age
ILO C. 182, Worst Forms of Child Labor	✓
 UN CRC	✓
UN CRC Optional Protocol on Armed Conflict
UN CRC Optional Protocol on the Sale of Children, Child Prostitution and Child Pornography
 Palermo Protocol on Trafficking in Persons

The government has established laws and regulations related to child labor (Table 4). However, gaps exist in Tuvalu's legal framework to adequately protect children from the worst forms of child labor, including the identification of hazardous occupations or activities prohibited for children.

Table 4. Laws and Regulations on Child Labor

Standard	Meets International Standards	Age	Legislation
Minimum Age for Work	Yes	15	Article 42 of the Labor and Employment Relations Act (6,7)
Minimum Age for Hazardous Work	Yes	18	Article 44 of the Labor and Employment Relations Act (6,7)
Identification of Hazardous Occupations or Activities Prohibited for Children	No
Prohibition of Forced Labor	Yes		Articles 46 and 48 of the Labor and Employment Relations Act; Articles 244 and 249 of the Penal Code; Article 69 of the Counter Terrorism and Transnational Organized Crime Act; Article 18 of the Constitution of Tuvalu (6-10)
Prohibition of Child Trafficking	Yes		Article 68 of the Counter Terrorism and Transnational Organized Crime Act; Articles 136 and 244 of the Penal Code (8,10)
Prohibition of Commercial Sexual Exploitation of Children	Yes		Article 46 of the Labor and Employment Relations Act; Articles 136–143 and 166 of the Penal Code (6-8)
Prohibition of Using Children in Illicit Activities	Yes		Article 46 of the Labor and Employment Relations Act; Articles 141–142 of the Penal Code (6-8)
Minimum Age for Voluntary State Military Recruitment	N/A†
Prohibition of Compulsory Recruitment of Children by (State) Military	N/A†
Prohibition of Military Recruitment by Non-state Armed Groups	Yes		Section 46 of the Labor and Employment Relations Act (7)
Compulsory Education Age	Yes	15	Education Order (11)
Free Public Education	No		Free Education Policy (6)

† No standing military (12)

During the reporting period, the government finalized the 2017 Child Care and Welfare Bill. If passed into law, it will be the first law in Tuvalu to make comprehensive provisions for issues related to children's rights, including child labor. (5)

The Government of Tuvalu has not specified, by national law or regulation, the types of hazardous work prohibited for children; previous provisions only applied to a male person under age 18 in the industrial, mining, and fishing sectors. (1,7,13)

Although child trafficking is prohibited in Tuvalu, the law prescribes a harsher punishment for individuals involved in the trafficking of adults than for those involved in the trafficking of children. (10)

Research did not find any laws in Tuvalu that provide free basic education; however, there is a policy that provides for free basic education. (2)

III. ENFORCEMENT OF LAWS ON CHILD LABOR

The government has established institutional mechanisms for the enforcement of laws and regulations on child labor (Table 5). However, gaps exist within the operations of enforcement agencies that may hinder adequate enforcement of their child labor laws.

Table 5. Agencies Responsible for Child Labor Law Enforcement

Organization/Agency	Role
Department of Labor	Enforces labor laws, including those related to child labor. (14)
Tuvalu Police Force	Investigates and enforces criminal laws related to the worst forms of child labor. (2,6,14)

Labor Law Enforcement

In 2020, labor law enforcement agencies in Tuvalu took actions to combat child labor (Table 6). However, gaps exist within the operations of the Department of Labor that may hinder adequate labor law enforcement, including the lack of information on labor law enforcement.

Table 6. Labor Law Enforcement Efforts Related to Child Labor

Overview of Labor Law Enforcement	2019	2020
Labor Inspectorate Funding	$62,000 (2)	Unknown (5)
Number of Labor Inspectors	4 (2)	4 (5)

Although information on the breakdown of the allocation to the labor inspectorate is not available, Tuvalu's small population and the concentration of child labor occurring in its capital, Funafuti, suggests that the financial resource allocation appeared to be adequate in addressing child labor in Tuvalu. (2) However, the government did not provide information on its labor law enforcement efforts for inclusion in this report.

Criminal Law Enforcement

Research did not find information on whether criminal law enforcement agencies in Tuvalu took actions to combat child labor (Table 7).

MODERATE ADVANCEMENT

Table 7. Criminal Law Enforcement Efforts Related to Child Labor

Overview of Criminal Law Enforcement	2019	2020
Initial Training for New Criminal Investigators	Unknown (2)	Unknown (5)
Training on New Laws Related to the Worst Forms of Child Labor	Unknown (2)	Unknown (5)

Reciprocal Referral Mechanism Exists Between Criminal Authorities and Social Services	Yes (2)	Yes (5)

The government did not provide information on its criminal law enforcement efforts for inclusion in this report.

IV. COORDINATION OF GOVERNMENT EFFORTS ON CHILD LABOR

The government has established mechanisms to coordinate its efforts to address child labor (Table 8).

Table 8. Key Mechanisms to Coordinate Government Efforts on Child Labor

Coordinating Body	Role & Description
National Advisory Committee on the Convention on the Rights of the Child	Coordinates child protection issues and implements the Convention on the Rights of the Child. Led by the Ministry of Education, and includes the Police and Ministries of Labor and Social Welfare. (5) Maintains a Child Protection Desk to support and coordinate the implementation of child protection efforts, and ensures coherence of child protection intervention efforts. This coordinating body was active during the reporting period. (5)

V. GOVERNMENT POLICIES ON CHILD LABOR

The government has established policies that are consistent with relevant international standards on child labor (Table 9).

Table 9. Key Policies Related to Child Labor

Policy	Description
United Nations Pacific Strategy (2018–2022)	A multinational strategic framework program consisting of 14 South Pacific nations to address, develop, and implement strategic economic development priorities in the South Pacific, including eliminating child labor and the worst forms of child labor. (15) Aligned with the UNICEF Pacific Multi-Country Child Protection Program, which supported the Social Development Indicator Survey during the reporting period. (16)
Tuvalu Human Rights National Action Plan (2016–2020)	Consolidates the government's human rights coordination and delivery of services, including implementation of the UN CRC. (17) Research was unable to determine whether activities were undertaken to implement this policy during the reporting period.
Child Protection Work Plan	Includes the drafting of a Child Protection Bill and a Child Protection in Schools Policy, with implementation plans and cost estimates. Involves public relations activities, such as awareness raising and advocacy. (18) During the reporting period, the government held consultations throughout the country, and the Ministry of Home Affairs and Rural Development coordinated with UNICEF for technical assistance to implement the Child Protection Policy and Work Plan. (5, 16)
Free Education Policy	Provides free primary education for all children in Tuvalu. (11) This policy was active during the reporting period. (5)

‡ The government had other policies that may have addressed child labor issues or had an impact on child labor. (2)

VI. SOCIAL PROGRAMS TO ADDRESS CHILD LABOR

In 2020, the government funded and participated in programs that include the goal of eliminating or preventing child labor (Table 10). However, gaps exist in these social programs, including the lack of programs addressing child labor in the fishing sector.

Table 10. Key Social Programs to Address Child Labor

Program	Description
UNICEF Pacific Multi-Country Child Protection Program (2018–2022)	Multi-country program in 14 Pacific Island countries. (19) Prioritizes children's rights, including the elimination of the worst forms of child labor. Aligned with the UN Pacific Strategy 2018–2022. (19) During the reporting period, UNICEF funded child protection interventions in Tuvalu. (5)

‡ The government had other social programs that may have addressed child labor issues or had an impact on child labor. (5)

Due to the COVID-19 pandemic and possible disruptions to education, the Government of Tuvalu secured a grant from the Global Partnership for Education during the reporting period. The grant helped the government develop remote learning materials, such as radio lessons, paper-based learning materials, and video lessons, along with training for teachers and education stakeholders on remote learning interventions. (5)

Research found no evidence of programs that specifically address child labor in the fishing sector.

VII. SUGGESTED GOVERNMENT ACTIONS TO ELIMINATE CHILD LABOR

Based on the reporting above, suggested actions are identified that would advance the elimination of child labor in Tuvalu (Table 11).

Table 11. Suggested Government Actions to Eliminate Child Labor

Area	Suggested Action	Year(s) Suggested
Legal Framework	Accede to the UN CRC Optional Protocol on Armed Conflict.	2013 – 2020
	Accede to the UN CRC Optional Protocol on the Sale of Children, Child Prostitution and Child Pornography.	2013 – 2020
	Accede to the Palermo Protocol.	2013 – 2020
	Determine the types of hazardous work prohibited for all children in consultation with employers' and workers' organizations.	2017 – 2020
	Ensure that the law prescribes a harsher punishment for individuals involved in the trafficking of children than for those involved in the trafficking of adults.	2019 – 2020
	Establish by law free basic public education.	2019 – 2020
Enforcement	Publish labor law enforcement information, including labor inspectorate funding, ability to assess penalties, the number of labor inspections conducted, number of labor inspections conducted at worksite, number of child labor violations found, number of child labor violations for which penalties were imposed, number of child labor penalties imposed that were collected, whether routine inspections were conducted, and whether unannounced inspections were conducted.	2016 – 2020
	Institutionalize training for labor inspectors, including by training new labor inspectors at the beginning of their employment and providing refresher courses.	2020
	Strengthen the labor inspectorate by initiating targeted inspections based on analysis of data related to risk-prone sectors and patterns of serious incidents.	2020
	Publish information on criminal law enforcement efforts, including initial training for new criminal investigators, training on new laws related to the worst forms of child labor, whether refresher courses were provided, number of investigations related to the worst forms of child labor, number of violations found, number of prosecutions initiated, and number of imposed penalties for violations related to the worst forms of child labor.	2017 – 2020
Government Policies	Publish activities undertaken to implement the Tuvalu Human Rights National Action Plan (2016–2020) during the reporting period.	2020
Social Programs	Collect and publish data on the extent and nature of child labor, including in the fishing sector, to inform policies and programs.	2010 – 2020
	Institute programs to address child labor in the fishing sector.	2009 – 2020

MINIMAL ADVANCEMENT – EFFORTS MADE BUT CONTINUED PRACTICE THAT DELAYED ADVANCEMENT

In 2020, Uganda made minimal advancement in efforts to eliminate the worst forms of child labor. Uganda launched new policies to address the worst forms of child labor, including an action plan to combat trafficking in persons and a child protection policy that prioritizes the elimination of child labor. In partnership with international stakeholders, Uganda also began implementing the Accelerating Action for the Elimination of Child Labor in Supply Chains in Africa program, specifically targeting child labor in coffee and tea production. However, despite new initiatives to address child labor, Uganda is assessed as having made only minimal advancement because it continued a practice that delays advancement to eliminate child labor. The government failed to prosecute, convict, and sentence public officials, including police and immigration officers, who participate in or facilitate the worst forms of child labor, including child trafficking. Children in Uganda are subjected to the worst forms of child labor in commercial sexual exploitation, sometimes as a result of human trafficking. Children also perform dangerous tasks in gold mining. Gaps in the legal framework persist, including inadequate laws regulating the minimum age for employment and hazardous work. In addition, the lack of a centralized supervisory authority along with inadequate funding, training, and resources, hampered the capacity of law enforcement agencies to conduct child labor inspections and investigations. Finally, the government has not taken steps to implement its National Action Plan for the Elimination of Child Labor.

I. PREVALENCE AND SECTORAL DISTRIBUTION OF CHILD LABOR

Children in Uganda are subjected to the worst forms of child labor in commercial sexual exploitation, sometimes as a result of human trafficking. (1-3) Children also perform dangerous tasks in gold mining. (4-6) Table I provides key indicators on children's work and education in Uganda.

	Forced labor in agriculture, fishing, cattle herding, working in bars and restaurants, begging, brickmaking, mining, stone quarrying, street vending, and domestic work, each sometimes as a result of human trafficking (3,16,17,28,30)
	Use in the production of pornography and pornographic performances (2,16,31)
	Use in illicit activities, including smuggling, burglary, and car and house break-ins, each sometimes as a result of human trafficking (2,10,15,16)

† Determined by national law or regulation as hazardous and, as such, relevant to Article 3(d) of ILO C. 182.

‡ Child labor understood as the worst forms of child labor per se under Article 3(a)–(c) of ILO C. 182.

Both boys and girls are vulnerable to human trafficking for commercial sexual exploitation in Uganda. (3) Although child victims of human trafficking have typically been trafficked internally from rural to urban areas, 2019 reports highlighted the trafficking of children to countries such as Kenya and Somalia. (32-34) Some children have also been trafficked as far as the Middle East and South Central Asia. (35) Children from rural areas, especially the Karamoja region, are vulnerable to human trafficking, and at times willingly migrate to Kampala and other urban centers, where they engage in begging, street vending, and domestic work, or are victims of commercial sexual exploitation. (1,3,34) NGO and media reports have indicated that children from Karamoja are sold in open-air markets or through intermediaries and forced into domestic work, begging, cattle herding, and commercial sexual exploitation. (2,3,36,37) Well-organized networks of traffickers run by "elders" force children into street begging and, for girls, into commercial sexual exploitation. These children are often physically abused for failing to collect an established amount of money. (3) Children from neighboring countries are exploited in forced agricultural labor and commercial sexual exploitation in Uganda. (3)

The results from the last National Labour Force Survey, published in 2018, show that an estimated 2,057,000 children are involved in child labor. The government completed collection of new data on child labor during the reporting period, but the data were pending validation as of January 2021. (15,38) However, government officials and civil society organizations indicate that as a result of the COVID-19 pandemic, child labor rates increased after a government-imposed lockdown and the closure of schools from March 2020 through October 2020. The prevalence of children working in markets, on farms, in mines, and as domestic workers, as well as children used for commercial sexual exploitation, increased during the reporting period. (15) Girls were found to be working in gold mines in Karamoja in northern Uganda, and boys grazed cattle in Rwenzori in western Uganda. Meanwhile, children in the Bidibibi refugee settlement in northwestern Uganda were engaged in hazardous labor, including working on farms, and as domestic workers, which may include working long hours and physical, verbal, and sexual abuse. (15,39)

Although the law provides for free compulsory education, the cost of school supplies, uniforms, and other materials often prohibits children from attending school. (2,6,18,40-42) Research also found that children experience physical and sexual abuse at school by teachers and classmates. (31) Furthermore, a lack of teachers and school infrastructure, and poor transportation in remote rural areas, have created barriers to children's access to education. (2,16,43) Although schools reopened in October 2020, this was only for children taking national exams, which accounted for only 1.2 million out of 15 million students. The Government of Uganda implemented alternative instruction strategies such as printed materials, and radio and televised instruction, but poor and vulnerable children were less likely to be able to access the alternative resources. (15)

Although laws on free compulsory education apply equally to refugee children, refugee children are often not enrolled in or not attending school. Girls, especially those in refugee camps, are at particular risk of being out of school and vulnerable to exploitation due to pressure to undertake domestic duties, gender-based violence, and harassment. (35,44,45) In addition to the same obstacles faced by Ugandan children, refugee children may face discrimination from fellow pupils and teachers due to their refugee status, and they may also experience language barriers. (46) For a number of refugee settlements, such as Nakivale, schools are often located far from where refugees live and are inadequately equipped to meet the needs of the large student population. (47)

II. LEGAL FRAMEWORK FOR CHILD LABOR

Uganda has ratified most key international conventions concerning child labor (Table 3).

Table 3. Ratification of International Conventions on Child Labor

Convention	Ratification
 ILO C. 138, Minimum Age	✓
ILO C. 182, Worst Forms of Child Labor	✓
 UN CRC	✓
UN CRC Optional Protocol on Armed Conflict	✓
UN CRC Optional Protocol on the Sale of Children, Child Prostitution and Child Pornography	✓
 Palermo Protocol on Trafficking in Persons

The government has established laws and regulations related to child labor (Table 4). However, gaps exist in Uganda's legal framework to adequately protect children from the worst forms of child labor, including the minimum age for work.

Table 4. Laws and Regulations on Child Labor

Standard	Meets International Standards	Age	Legislation
Minimum Age for Work	No	16	Section 7 of the Children (Amendment) Act (48)
Minimum Age for Hazardous Work	No	18	Section 7 of the Children (Amendment) Act; Section 32 of the Employment Act; Regulations 5 and 8 of the Employment (Employment of Children) Regulations (48-50)
Identification of Hazardous Occupations or Activities Prohibited for Children	Yes		Regulation 6 and the First Schedule of the Employment (Employment of Children) Regulations; Section 7 of the Children (Amendment) Act (48,50)
Prohibition of Forced Labor	Yes		Sections 2 and 5 of the Employment Act; Sections 3–5 of the Prevention of Trafficking in Persons Act (49,51)
Prohibition of Child Trafficking	Yes		Section 8 of the Children (Amendment) Act; Sections 2–5 of the Prevention of Trafficking in Persons Act (48,51)
Prohibition of Commercial Sexual Exploitation of Children	Yes		Section 8A of the Children (Amendment) Act; Sections 2–5 of the Prevention of Trafficking in Persons Act; Sections 131 and 139 of the Penal Code; Section 14 of the Anti-Pornography Act (48,51-53)

Standard	Meets International Standards	Age	Legislation
Prohibition of Using Children in Illicit Activities	Yes		Article 5(d) of the Prevention of Trafficking in Persons Act; Narcotic Drugs and Psychotropic Substances (Control) Act (51,54)
Minimum Age for Voluntary State Military Recruitment	Yes	18	Article 52(2)(c) of the Defence Forces Act (55)
Prohibition of Compulsory Recruitment of Children by (State) Military	N/A*
Prohibition of Military Recruitment by Non-state Armed Groups	Yes		Section 5(b) of the Prevention of Trafficking in Persons Act (51)
Compulsory Education Age	No	13‡	Section 2 and 10(3)(a) of the Education Act (40)
Free Public Education	No		Section 10(3)(a) of the Education Act (40)

* No conscription (55)

‡ Age calculated based on available information (40)

Although the Children (Amendment) Act establishes age 16 as the minimum age for work, the Employment Act enables children as young as age 12 to work. (48,49) The law's minimum age protections do not apply to children working without a formal employment relationship, which does not conform to international standards that require all children to be protected by the minimum age to work. (49) Although Uganda has a list of hazardous occupations prohibited to children under age 18, Section 8 of the Employment of Children Regulations permits a commissioner to allow children age 12 and older enrolled in an educational training or apprenticeship program to engage in hazardous work, in violation of international standards. (50) In 2018, the government began a process to harmonize the country's legal provisions and bring the allowable minimum age for work in line with international standards. Completion of the process was expected in 2020, but due to the pandemic, the government now expects to finalize the revisions in December 2021. (15,16) The process will require approval from the cabinet, parliament, and the president before enactment. (2)

Uganda's Prevention of Trafficking in Persons Act complies with international standards on prohibiting child trafficking. However, the Children (Amendment) Act conflicts with the Prevention of Trafficking in Persons Act in that it defines child trafficking as requiring force, fraud, or coercion. (29,48,51)

Children in Uganda are required to attend school only up to age 13. (40) This standard makes children ages 13 to 15 vulnerable to child labor because they are not required to attend school but are not legally permitted to work. Finally, although Uganda has adopted policies to extend universal education through secondary level, by law free education is limited to the primary level. (40,56)

III. ENFORCEMENT OF LAWS ON CHILD LABOR

The government has established institutional mechanisms for the enforcement of laws and regulations on child labor (Table 5). However, gaps exist within the authority of enforcement agencies that may hinder adequate enforcement of their child labor laws.

Table 5. Agencies Responsible for Child Labor Law Enforcement

Organization/Agency	Role
Ministry of Gender, Labor, and Social Development (MGLSD)	Sets labor inspection priorities and inspection guidelines. (57) Includes the Industrial Court, which judges labor dispute cases that are referred by labor officers. (10) Operates the Uganda Child Helpline known as Sauti. (58)
Ministry of Internal Affairs	Enforces criminal laws on the worst forms of child labor. The Uganda Police Force's Child and Family Protection Unit investigates forced labor cases, the Special Investigations Division and the Anti-Human Trafficking Desk investigate cases related to human trafficking and the use of children in illicit activities, and the Sexual Offenses Desk investigates commercial sexual exploitation. (10)

Organization/Agency	Role
Ministry of Local Government	Oversees district labor officers who refer cases to the Industrial Court. (10) Deploys community development officers at the district level when district labor officers are not available. (27)
Directorate of Public Prosecutions	Prosecutes criminal cases related to the worst forms of child labor that are referred by the Uganda Police Force. (59)

Labor Law Enforcement

In 2020, labor law enforcement agencies in Uganda took actions to combat child labor (Table 6). However, gaps exist within the authority of the Ministry of Gender, Labor, and Social Development (MGLSD) that may hinder adequate labor law enforcement, including the ability to assess penalties.

Table 6. Labor Law Enforcement Efforts Related to Child Labor

During the pandemic, the labor inspectorate continued to carry out inspections but inspectors reported facing increased difficulties due to the lack of personal protective equipment, fears of interacting with the public, and restrictions on movement imposed by the government for both public and private transportation. (15)

Uganda doubled the number of its labor inspectors, but it was not clear whether new inspectors received initial training during the reporting period. The MGLSD indicated that 50 labor inspectors received training during the reporting period, but details about those trainings were not available. (15) Research has shown that training in general is not sufficient because labor inspectors lack the expertise to follow through on child labor cases. Labor unions have noted that the number of inspections is insufficient and that inspections are only carried out when complaints are received. (2) Labor inspectors in Uganda have the authority to inspect private farms and residences, but the MGLSD has noted that inspectors rarely exercise this authority despite the prevalence of child domestic labor in the country. (2)

Uganda is signatory to ILO Convention 81 that requires labor inspection to be placed under the supervision and control of a central authority. (61,62) Research found, however, that coordination among the various agencies responsible for child labor law enforcement remains a challenge because labor officers are under district government authority, rather than under authority of the MGLSD. (63,64) For example, although under the Employment Act labor officers are required to submit monthly reports, in practice, the MGLSD does not receive labor reports from districts. (57) Uganda now has 168 labor officers to cover its 135 districts, but due to budgetary limitations and a lack of labor inspection prioritization at the district level, these officers did not have sufficient funds to regularly carry out child labor inspections. (2,15,39,43) Research also found that follow-up inspections rarely happen due to insufficient funding at the district level. (57) Given the lack of resources for inspections, local civil society organizations often train labor inspectors and even assist them in conducting inspections. (16,28)

Research found that child labor cases rarely reach the Industrial Court because of poor monitoring and the court's limited access to communities outside urban centers, where child labor is most likely to occur. (62) Finally, the number of labor inspectors is still likely insufficient for the size of Uganda's workforce, which includes more than 15 million workers. According to the ILO's technical advice of a ratio approaching 1 inspector for every 40,000 workers in less developed countries, Uganda would employ about 377 inspectors. (65-68) The government did not provide comprehensive information on its labor law enforcement efforts for inclusion in this report.

Criminal Law Enforcement

In 2020, criminal law enforcement agencies in Uganda took actions to combat child labor (Table 7). However, gaps exist within the operations of the criminal enforcement agencies that may hinder adequate criminal law enforcement, including official complicity in the commercial sexual exploitation of children.

Table 7. Criminal Law Enforcement Efforts Related to Child Labor

Overview of Criminal Law Enforcement	2019	2020
Initial Training for New Criminal Investigators	No (2)	Yes (15)
Training on New Laws Related to the Worst Forms of Child Labor	N/A	N/A

Law enforcement agencies and civil society organizations have acknowledged that immigration officials are complicit and involved in human trafficking, including the trafficking of children. (3,32,34) Research has also found that some police are allegedly complicit in the commercial sexual exploitation of child refugees. Other high-level government officials own or are associated with labor recruitment companies and networks of traffickers run by "elders" that engage in child trafficking. (3,32,34,66) The involvement of government officials in trafficking networks has significantly impeded operations against the worst forms of child labor. (3) Uganda's State House Anti-Corruption Unit, which works on human trafficking issues on an ad hoc basis, has initiated some investigations related to official complicity in human trafficking but has not made any of these reports public, nor has it arrested any government officials. (3,32) During the reporting period, the government carried out minimal active measures to investigate, prosecute, convict, and sentence officials complicit in facilitating the worst forms of child labor. The Judicial Service Commission launched investigations against two high court judges for complicity in irregular adoption of children after the judges were sanctioned by the U.S. Treasury. (34,69) However, charges have yet to be filed, and details of the investigation have yet to be made public. (39) One officer of the Uganda People's Defense Forces was arrested and charged with child trafficking. (34) By April 2021, the officer was out on bond. Courts typically take up to 2 or 3 years to complete a prosecution. (39)

Due to the pandemic, officials indicated that a nationwide shutdown complicated criminal law enforcement efforts related to the worst forms of child labor. Nonetheless, during the reporting period, officials filed 146 charges of child trafficking, with most of these cases involving commercial sexual exploitation of children. (34) One suspect was convicted of child trafficking and sentenced to 12 years in prison and at least 12 children were rescued from situations of sex trafficking after police raided 3 supposed sex parties. The government credited improved training of prosecutors with an increase in trafficking in persons cases prosecuted compared to the previous year. (34) Despite these actions, the government did not provide comprehensive data regarding its efforts to combat the worst forms of child labor for inclusion in this report.

Reports have also indicated that investigators rarely follow up on domestic child labor claims. When child domestic workers complain to their employers about not being paid, the employers report the children to the police for theft and police subsequently treat them as criminals rather than as victims who have not been paid for their work. (2)

According to the government, police officers identify and refer street children to probation officers and civil society organizations to place children in homes and shelters and do not keep them in detention facilities; however, some children may have been housed in juvenile rehabilitation centers because shelters are frequently full. Police intermittently rounded up street children, housed them in children's homes and shelters for several days while social workers completed background checks and family tracing, and then returned them to their families. (70,71) Research found that street children, including potential human trafficking victims and child laborers, have faced conflict with local authorities; however, law enforcement noted in 2020 that police are less likely to detain or beat them, in part as a result of an increased awareness about child protection issues. (29,37,39,67,72)

Research indicates there is not a sufficient number of criminal law enforcement officials responsible for investigating child labor. (10) Training of criminal investigators is insufficient, in part due to regular staff turnover and transfers. Some criminal law enforcement officials were not aware of key human trafficking laws, and some officers misclassified cases, conducted insufficient investigations, or encouraged victims to accept payment from their traffickers to settle cases. (3,28,32)

IV. COORDINATION OF GOVERNMENT EFFORTS ON CHILD LABOR

The government has established mechanisms to coordinate its efforts to address child labor (Table 8). However, gaps exist that hinder the effective coordination of efforts to address child labor, including inactive mechanisms.

Table 8. Key Mechanisms to Coordinate Government Efforts on Child Labor

Coordinating Body	Role & Description
National Steering Committee on the Elimination of Child Labor	Coordinates child labor issues and implements the National Action Plan for the Elimination of Child Labor. Led by MGLSD, includes members from several ministries, the Child and Family Protection Unit, trade unions, development organizations, civil society, and media agencies. (16) The committee was reconstituted during the reporting period and was expected to resume activities by December 2020. (15)
Uganda Parliamentary Forum for Children	Multi-partisan body of Members of Parliament focused on issues affecting Ugandan children, particularly those in vulnerable situations, including street children. (2) Research was unable to determine whether the forum was active during the reporting period.
Anti-Human Trafficking National Taskforce	Coordinates government efforts on human trafficking. Led by the Ministry of Internal Affairs, includes 30 members from government agencies and civil society. (73) Met monthly during the reporting period and began implementation of the second National Action Plan (NAP) for Prevention of Trafficking in Persons in Uganda 2019–2024. Also organized Uganda's second annual commemoration of Word Day Against Trafficking in Persons. (15)
National Child Protection Working Group	Monitors the quality of services provided to orphans and vulnerable children. Led by MGLSD, includes members from five government agencies and civil society organizations. (10) Met quarterly in 2020 and also held intermittent working meetings focused on child protection and improving collaboration between the government and civil society organizations. (15)
National Children Authority	Works to ensure that member organizations integrate child labor concerns into their policies and budgets. Members include 10 government agencies. (10) The government had yet to fully operationalize the National Children Authority during the reporting period, but in its limited capacity, it carried out various awareness-raising campaigns focusing on children's rights, including child labor. (15)

V. GOVERNMENT POLICIES ON CHILD LABOR

The government has established policies related to child labor (Table 9). However, policy gaps exist that hinder efforts to address child labor, including implementation.

Table 9. Key Policies Related to Child Labor

Policy	Description
National Action Plan for the Elimination of Child Labor 2017/2018–2021/2022	Aims to reduce child labor in Uganda by 4 percent by 2022 through strengthening governmental frameworks on child labor; increasing coordination, expanding access to social services for children, enhancing research and advocacy, and improving the Monitoring and Evaluation System for the elimination of child labor. (2,74,75) The government acknowledged that it had not fully launched the plan and indicated that it intends to implement the NAP in 2021. (15) In addition, because of the decentralized nature of inspections in Uganda, some districts have developed their own labor action plans that do not always reflect MGLSD priorities. (62)
National Child Policy 2020†	Launched in 2020 under MGLSD, seeks to coordinate the protection of child rights, focusing on abuse, neglect, exploitation, and violence. Includes prioritization of the elimination of child labor and was launched with an implementation strategy through 2025. (76,77) The plan seeks to outline the responsibilities of all stakeholders in implementing child-related policies and focuses on four basic children's rights: survival, development, protection, and participation. (76,77)
National Social Protection Policy	Aims to reduce poverty and socioeconomic inequalities for inclusive development by targeting vulnerable people, including child laborers. (78) The government continued implementing the plan during the reporting period but did not take any specific efforts to address children or child labor. (15)
National Action Plan for Prevention of Trafficking in Persons in Uganda 2019–2024†	Officially launched in 2020, the second NAP builds on lessons from the previous plan and focuses on developing sustainable systems and structures to prevent trafficking in persons; improving capacity for the identification, protection of and support for victims; improving investigations and prosecutions; and establishing cooperative relationships with international stakeholders. The launch of the plan included the release of the National Referral Guidelines for Management of Victims of Trafficking, which seek to improve coordination among stakeholders responsible for providing services to victims as well as those responsible for prosecuting criminals. (79,80)
National Multi-Sectoral Coordination Framework for Adolescent Girls (2017/2018–2021/2022)	Coordinates government, civil society, and community efforts to provide services and programs that focus on issues affecting adolescent girls ages 10 to 19, including exploitation in domestic work and gender-based violence in schools. (16,81) The government implemented multiple campaigns as part of the framework during the reporting period, including efforts to address menstrual hygiene health and management in schools. (15)

† Policy approved during the reporting period.

‡ The government had other policies that may have addressed child labor issues or had an impact on child labor. (82,83)

VI. SOCIAL PROGRAMS TO ADDRESS CHILD LABOR

In 2020, the government funded and participated in programs that include the goal of eliminating or preventing child labor (Table 10). However, gaps exist in these social programs, including the adequacy of efforts to address the problem in all sectors.

Table 10. Key Social Programs to Address Child Labor

Program	Description
Accelerating Action for the Elimination of Child Labor in Supply Chains 2018–2022 (ACCEL Africa)*	Although launched in 2018, formally implemented by the ILO and the Ministry of Foreign Affairs of the Netherlands in Uganda in 2020 in partnership with the Government of Uganda and the Federation of Ugandan Employers. The $29 million project targets child labor in coffee and tea supply chains in the Mbale, Kabarole, Buikwe, Hoima, and Bushenyi districts. (15) During the first year of implementation, the project focused on conducting a baseline survey of child labor prevalence in the coffee and tea sectors, mapping child labor monitoring systems, and conducting child-labor awareness campaigns in the target districts. (15)
Uganda Child Helpline (Sauti)†	Funded primarily by UNICEF with in-kind contributions from MGLSD, comprises District Action Centers and a physical call center located in Wakiso that screens all calls on reported cases of child abuse. Caseworkers at District Action Centers follow up directly on cases of child abuse, including child labor and exploitation, assigned to them by the National Call Center and liaise with local authorities to address the reported incidents. (58) During the reporting period, the hotline identified 81 victims of child trafficking, including 29 victims of domestic servitude and 4 cases of international child trafficking. The hotline also identified 72 cases of child labor. (15,34)
Realizing Livelihood Improvement Through Savings and Education 2019–2021†	NGO-implemented program in partnership with the government that focuses on addressing child labor issues in tobacco-growing regions. (31,85) During the COVID-19 pandemic, the program provided personal protective equipment to health centers in Hoima and Kikube districts as well as conducted trainings for 140 local child protection committee members. (15)

MINIMAL ADVANCEMENT – EFFORTS MADE BUT CONTINUED PRACTICE THAT DELAYED ADVANCEMENT

Program	Description
Back Home Campaign for Karamoja Children†	Government program that rescues Karamoja street children working in Kampala and places them in rehabilitation centers in Wakiso and Moroto districts before reuniting them with their families. (16,86) In 2020, the program ceased focusing on resettlement efforts and instead implemented campaigns to encourage children to stay in school. Nonetheless, funds from the program were still used in early 2020 to assist in removing 202 children from the streets of Kampala. (15)

* Program was launched during the reporting period.

† Program is funded by the Government of Uganda.

‡ The government had other social programs that may have included the goal of eliminating or preventing child labor. (87-89)

Although Uganda has implemented programs that address child labor, the scope of these programs is insufficient to fully address the extent of the problem, particularly in mining and commercial sexual exploitation. For example, the government lacks its own facilities to house child victims of labor exploitation or human trafficking, and must instead rely on local community services organizations. (2,15) Furthermore, the MGLSD has noted that programs are concentrated in specific districts and thus do not cover child labor issues throughout the country. (2)

VII. SUGGESTED GOVERNMENT ACTIONS TO ELIMINATE CHILD LABOR

Based on the reporting above, suggested actions are identified that would advance the elimination of child labor in Uganda (Table 11).

Table 11. Suggested Government Actions to Eliminate Child Labor

Area	Suggested Action	Year(s) Suggested
Legal Framework	Ratify the Palermo Protocol on Trafficking in Persons.	2013 – 2020
	Ensure that all children are protected by a consistent minimum age for work law, including children who do not work under a formal employment relationship.	2016 – 2020
	Ensure that only minors age 16 and older who have received adequate, specific instruction or vocational training are permitted to perform hazardous work, and that their health, safety, and morals are fully protected.	2017 – 2020
	Align the definition of child trafficking in the Children (Amendment) Act with international standards by ensuring that force, fraud, or coercion are not required elements in child trafficking cases.	2019 – 2020
	Ensure that the law requires free, compulsory education up to age 16 so that it is commensurate with the minimum age for work.	2009 – 2020
Enforcement	Publish information on trainings offered to inspectors, worksite inspections conducted, number of child labor violations found, number of child labor penalties imposed, and number of penalties collected.	2013 – 2020
	Enhance the authority of the labor inspectorate by enabling it to assess penalties and ensure the inspectorate is using its existing authorities to inspect private farms and homes and to conduct sufficient routine and unannounced inspections.	2017 – 2020
	Provide sufficient training to labor inspectors, initial training to new criminal investigators, and refresher training to existing investigators, to ensure that officials understand and are able to identify, categorize, and investigate child labor cases.	2019 – 2020
	Provide the labor inspectorate with sufficient funding and resources at the district level to ensure that inspectors are present in all districts and are able to carry out their duties.	2013 – 2020
	Improve coordination between national and district-level child labor enforcement bodies to ensure that relevant data are shared and child labor inspections are prioritized across the country.	2019 – 2020
	Ensure that child labor cases reach the Industrial Court and that penalties are assessed by addressing monitoring issues and improving the court's reach outside urban centers.	2019 – 2020
	Significantly increase the number of labor inspectors to meet the ILO's technical advice.	2009 – 2020
	Publish disaggregated data on number of investigations, violations, prosecutions initiated, convictions achieved, and penalties imposed for the worst forms of child labor.	2017 – 2020
	Significantly increase efforts to investigate, prosecute, and, as appropriate, convict and sentence government officials for their role in the worst forms of child labor, including child trafficking.	2019 – 2020

Area	Suggested Action	Year(s) Suggested
Enforcement	Strengthen mechanisms for following up on child labor claims and referring street children, including potential human trafficking victims, to social services providers, and prevent these children from being detained and abused by police.	2015 – 2020
	Increase the capacity of criminal law enforcement agencies to respond to the worst forms of child labor by dedicating more personnel to worst forms of child labor cases and improving training for criminal law enforcement staff.	2020
Coordination	Ensure that coordinating mechanisms are active and sufficiently funded to be able to operate and carry out their mandates.	2019 – 2020
Government Policies	Ensure that district labor action plans reflect the Ministry of Gender, Labor, and Social Development's priorities.	2018 – 2020
	Ensure that existing policies addressing child labor are implemented as intended.	2018 – 2020
Social Programs	Enhance efforts to eliminate barriers and make education accessible for all children by eliminating costs for supplies, uniforms, and materials; addressing physical and sexual violence; and ensuring sufficient teachers, infrastructure, and transportation in rural areas.	2012 – 2020
	Enhance efforts to ensure that refugee children have equal access to educational opportunities by addressing gender-based violence and exploitation, harassment, and refugee discrimination; accommodating the language needs of refugee students; and ensuring that there are well-equipped schools accessible to refugee settlements.	2012 – 2020
	Ensure the availability of shelters for victims of child labor, including child trafficking victims.	2017 – 2020
	Expand existing social programs to address the scope of the child labor problem, particularly in mining and commercial sexual exploitation, in all areas of the country.	2009 – 2020

MINIMAL ADVANCEMENT – EFFORTS MADE BUT CONTINUED LAW THAT DELAYED ADVANCEMENT

In 2020, Ukraine made minimal advancement in efforts to eliminate the worst forms of child labor. During the reporting period, Ukraine’s Cabinet of Ministers adopted a resolution implementing a risk-based approach to conducting planned inspections, including the use of child labor as one of the criteria for assessing risk. It also implemented measures to address undocumented work, including signing a Memorandum of Understanding on decent work with the International Labor Organization. The number of labor inspectors increased significantly from 2019, and the government reported that all inspections were unannounced. However, despite new initiatives to address child labor, Ukraine is receiving an assessment of minimal advancement because it continues to implement a regression in law that delayed advancement in eliminating the worst forms of child labor. In August 2019, the government issued Cabinet of Ministers Decree No. 823, which requires that businesses receive notification at least 5 working days in advance of an onsite labor inspection where previously no such notification was required. Although unannounced inspections reportedly took place during the reporting period, the decree remains in place. Children in Ukraine are subjected to the worst forms of child labor, including in the production of pornography. Children also perform dangerous tasks in mining. Children living in the Russia-controlled Donbas region of eastern Ukraine and Russia-occupied Crimea are increasingly vulnerable to exploitation as the government of Ukraine does not have control over these regions and is therefore not able to address the worst forms of child labor due to the ongoing conflict. The government also collected few of the financial penalties imposed for child labor violations and lacked social programs designed to assist children engaged in hazardous work in mining.

I. PREVALENCE AND SECTORAL DISTRIBUTION OF CHILD LABOR

Children in Ukraine are subjected to the worst forms of child labor, including in the production of pornography. Children also perform dangerous tasks in mining. (1-6) Table 1 provides key indicators on children’s work and education in Ukraine.

Table 1. Statistics on Children’s Work and Education

Children	Age	Percent
Working (% and population)	5 to 14	9.7 (385,204)
Attending School (%)	5 to 14	97.2
Combining Work and School (%)	7 to 14	12.0
Primary Completion Rate (%)		102.6

Source for primary completion rate: Data from 2014, published by UNESCO Institute for Statistics, 2021. (2)

Source for all other data: International Labor Organization’s analysis of statistics from National Child Labour Survey (NCLS), 2015. (3)

Based on a review of available information, Table 2 provides an overview of children’s work by sector and activity.

Sector/Industry	Activity
Services	Street work, including distributing advertising leaflets, sales activities in kiosks, washing cars, and begging (1,4,6,7,13)
Categorical Worst Forms of Child Labor ‡	Commercial sexual exploitation, sometimes as a result of human trafficking (1,4,11,13)
	Use in the production of pornography (1,5,10,11,14)
	Recruitment of children by non-state armed groups for use in armed conflict (10)
	Forced begging, sometimes as a result of human trafficking (1,8,10,11,13,15,16)

† Determined by national law or regulation as hazardous and, as such, relevant to Article 3(d) of ILO C. 182.

‡ Child labor understood as the worst forms of child labor per se under Article 3(a)–(c) of ILO C. 182.

In 2020, the Russia-led conflict in the east of the country continued. The conflict limited the government's financial and institutional capacity to address the worst forms of child labor throughout Ukraine, especially in the Russia-controlled areas of Donetsk and Luhansk. (1,10,13) Russian aggression in eastern Ukraine has created more than 1.4 million IDPs currently registered, including more than 190,000 children. (17,18) IDP children, particularly those who are unaccompanied, are especially vulnerable to exploitation in the worst forms of child labor. (19) Lack of information limits an assessment of the types of work that children perform and the sectors in which they work in Russia-controlled territory in the Donbas region and Russia-occupied Crimea. However, available data suggest that children in these areas face heightened vulnerability to child labor, including in illegal coal mines in the Donbas region. (1)

During the reporting period, Russia-backed groups continued to recruit children to take part in armed combat. Children were trained in weapons use and organized into reserve militia battalions at militant-run camps and school programs located in territory controlled by Russian-backed groups. (1,10,20) Reports also indicate that thousands of children participate in military-style training or other military-style activities under the guise of “military-patriotic” activities carried out by Russia-led forces in the Russia-controlled areas of Donetsk and Luhansk and by Russian occupation authorities in Crimea. (1) The government was unable to enforce national prohibitions against the use of children in armed conflict in these areas. (1,10,20)

Children in the Russia-controlled areas of Donetsk and Luhansk face challenges being registered at birth, which can prevent them from receiving Ukrainian identity documents. This, in turn, limits their ability to enroll in school and puts them at risk of statelessness. (21) Although a judicial procedure exists to provide children born in the Russia-controlled areas of Donetsk and Luhansk with Ukrainian birth certificates, fewer than half of the children born in these areas are estimated to have obtained a birth certificate issued by the Government of Ukraine. A law adopted in 2018 provides for any civil registry office to issue a Ukrainian birth registration on the basis of a birth certificate issued in the Russia-controlled areas of Donetsk and Luhansk, but the government has yet to establish a procedure to ensure implementation of this provision. (22) In addition, up to a third of children from Roma communities also lack birth registration, impeding their access to education. (19)

President Zelensky amended the Law on Higher Education in July to permit more than 2,000 applicants from the conflict-affected areas in Donbas and Crimea to enter Ukrainian universities free of charge and through a simplified application process. This effort is part of the implementation of the Safe Schools Declaration, which Ukraine signed in December 2019. (1) The Ministry of Education and Science approved a resolution in September regulating the process of distance learning in schools due to the COVID-19 pandemic, allowing local authorities to use unspent educational funds to purchase personal protective equipment to combat the spread of COVID-19 in schools. However, some children, especially those from poor families and those with special needs, could not participate in distance learning because they lack access to the internet or computer equipment. (1) In addition, members of the Roma community continue to face barriers to education, including a lack of access to alternative preschool programs, discrimination in admissions and in the school environment, the lack of inclusive approaches in the school system, and low social services support for Roma families. Roma families can also lack a registered residence, which further complicates their children’s school enrollment. (1)

MINIMAL ADVANCEMENT – EFFORTS MADE BUT CONTINUED LAW THAT DELAYED ADVANCEMENT

Children from Ukraine are trafficked both internationally and domestically for commercial sexual exploitation and forced begging. (11,13,16) The Ministry of Social Protection noted that due to the pandemic, many children spent more time on the internet and were at increased risk of cybercrime victimization, including in the production and distribution of pornographic content. (16) Children with disabilities and homeless, orphaned, and poor children, especially those living in state-run institutions, are at high risk of being trafficked. (13,16,19) Some state-run orphanages have used children for illegal labor in business, seasonal agricultural work, construction, and sexual exploitation. (1,9,11) Ukraine is a transit and destination country for refugees from Afghanistan, the Russian Federation, Bangladesh, Syria, and Iraq. Refugee children lack access to state-run children's shelters, face challenges receiving birth registration, and experience heightened vulnerability to child trafficking. (16,19,23)

II. LEGAL FRAMEWORK FOR CHILD LABOR

Ukraine has ratified all key international conventions concerning child labor (Table 3).

Table 3. Ratification of International Conventions on Child Labor

Convention	Ratification
 ILO C. 138, Minimum Age	✓
ILO C. 182, Worst Forms of Child Labor	✓
 UN CRC	✓
UN CRC Optional Protocol on Armed Conflict	✓
UN CRC Optional Protocol on the Sale of Children, Child Prostitution and Child Pornography	✓
 Palermo Protocol on Trafficking in Persons	✓

The government has established laws and regulations related to child labor (Table 4). However, gaps exist in Ukraine's legal framework to adequately protect children from the worst forms of child labor, including laws prohibiting the commercial sexual exploitation of children.

Table 4. Laws and Regulations on Child Labor

Standard	Meets International Standards	Age	Legislation
Minimum Age for Work	Yes	16	Article 150 of the Criminal Code; Article 188 of the Labor Code; Article 21 of the Law on the Protection of Childhood (24-26)
Minimum Age for Hazardous Work	No	18	Article 150 of the Criminal Code; Article 190 of the Labor Code; Article 21 of the Law on the Protection of Childhood (24-26)
Identification of Hazardous Occupations or Activities Prohibited for Children	Yes		Article 150-1 of the Criminal Code; Order of the Ministry of Health No. 46 on the approval of the list of heavy work and work with dangerous and harmful working conditions, in which the employment of minors is prohibited; Article 190 of the Labor Code (24,25,27)
Prohibition of Forced Labor	Yes		Articles 149, 172 and 173 of the Criminal Code; Article 43 of the Constitution of Ukraine; Article 1 of the Law on Employment (24,28,29)
Prohibition of Child Trafficking	Yes		Article 149 of the Criminal Code; Article 32 of the Law on the Protection of Childhood (24,26)
Prohibition of Commercial Sexual Exploitation of Children	No		Articles 301–303 of the Criminal Code; Articles 10 and 21 of the Law on the Protection of Childhood; Articles 1, 6 and 7 of the Law on the Protection of Public Morality; Law on Amendments to Certain Legislative Acts of Ukraine on Combating the Distribution of Child Pornography (24,26,30,31)
Prohibition of Using Children in Illicit Activities	Yes		Articles 304 and 307 of the Criminal Code; Articles 10 and 21 of the Law on the Protection of Childhood (24,26)
Minimum Age for Voluntary State Military Recruitment	Yes	17	Articles 15 and 20 of the Law on Military Duty and Military Service (32)

Ukraine

MINIMAL ADVANCEMENT – EFFORTS MADE BUT CONTINUED LAW THAT DELAYED ADVANCEMENT

Standard	Meets International Standards	Age	Legislation
Prohibition of Compulsory Recruitment of Children by (State) Military	Yes		Article 15 of the Law on Military Duty and Military Service; Decree No. 447 on Measures to Improve the Defense Capabilities of the State (32,33)
Prohibition of Military Recruitment by Non-state Armed Groups	Yes		Article 30 of the Law on the Protection of Childhood (26)
Compulsory Education Age	Yes	17‡	Articles 3, 12, and 20 of the Law on General Secondary Education; Article 35 of the Constitution (28,34)
Free Public Education	Yes		Article 53 of the Constitution of Ukraine; Article 2 of the Law on General Secondary Education (28,34)

‡ Age calculated based on available information (34)

During the reporting period, the Government of Ukraine drafted a new law aimed at protecting the rights of domestic workers. The proposed law extends employment protections to all workers over age 16 who perform domestic work on a regular, professional, or contract basis. (35) The government also developed a draft law that would amend a number of legislative acts to comply with the Council of Europe’s Convention on Protection of Children against Sexual Exploitation and Sexual Abuse. (1,36)

Because the minimum age for work is lower than the compulsory education age, children may be encouraged to leave school before the completion of compulsory education. (24-26,34) Furthermore, the Ministry of Health Order Number 46 does not prohibit children between 14 and 16 from engaging in hazardous work as part of a vocational training program, which is not in compliance with international standards. Although the law specifies that children in these training programs may be onsite for no more than 4 hours and must remain in strict compliance with applicable safety norms and rules and regulations on labor protection, this is not in compliance with international standards. (37,38)

Articles 302 and 303 of the Criminal Code of Ukraine criminalize involvement of a minor in prostitution and pimping involving minors. However, no law criminalizes the users (clients) of prostitution involving children. (24)

III. ENFORCEMENT OF LAWS ON CHILD LABOR

The government has established institutional mechanisms for the enforcement of laws and regulations on child labor (Table 5). However, gaps exist within the operations of enforcement agencies that may hinder adequate enforcement of their child labor laws.

Table 5. Agencies Responsible for Child Labor Law Enforcement

Organization/Agency	Role
State Labor Service within the Ministry of Economic Development, Trade and Agriculture	Enforces labor laws, including laws on child labor, by conducting inspections. Began the process of moving from the Ministry of Social Policy (MSP) to the Ministry of Economic Development, Trade and Agriculture in December 2019, and the transition was ongoing during the reporting period. (1,10)
Ministry of Internal Affairs	Enforces criminal laws against the worst forms of child labor, including child trafficking. (1,10)
Security Service of Ukraine	Tracks recruitment and use of children in armed conflict. (1,10)
Office of the Ombudsman for Children’s Rights	Monitors protection of the rights of children and fulfillment of international obligations to protect children’s rights, including by preventing child labor. Coordinates the development of laws on child protection and informs the public on children’s rights. (39)
Prosecutor General’s Office	Investigates and prosecutes cases related to the worst forms of child labor. Oversees a department and regional offices for the Protection of Interests of Children and Combating Violence that focuses on the worst forms of child labor. (1) In 2020, reported a case, under pre-trial investigation, that involves the trafficking of minors by officials of Ukraine’s Children’s Service and law enforcement officers. (16)

MINIMAL ADVANCEMENT – EFFORTS MADE BUT CONTINUED LAW THAT DELAYED ADVANCEMENT

In August 2019, the government issued Cabinet of Ministers Decree No. 823, which outlined procedural rules specifically for labor inspections conducted by the State Labor Service (SLS). These procedural rules clarified labor inspectors' authority to conduct inspections, including site visits, both proactively and in response to complaints. (40) However, Decree No. 823 also requires that businesses are notified at least 5 working days in advance of an onsite inspection. Although unannounced inspections took place during the reporting period, the decree remains in place and may interfere with the ability of the labor inspectorate to perform unannounced inspections in the future. (1,40,41)

In January 2020, the Prosecutor General's Office (PGO) established a department and regional offices for the Protection of Children's Interests and Combating Violence, which became operational in August. These regional offices are responsible for conducting pre-trial investigations and investigations of criminal offenses, filing appeals of court decisions relating to children's issues, providing legal representation to children, and supporting the execution of court decisions in the sphere of child protection. (42) Regional offices of the SLS signed cooperation agreements to share information about child labor cases with regional offices of the National Police of Ukraine, regional employment centers, the Department of Child Affairs, trade union leaders, regional social services organizations, and centers dedicated to social protection. (1)

Russia-occupied Crimea and areas controlled by Russia-led forces in the Donbas region of eastern Ukraine are not under the control of the Ukrainian government, which is prevented from carrying out inspections and law enforcement actions there. (43)

Labor Law Enforcement

In 2020, labor law enforcement agencies in Ukraine took actions to combat child labor (Table 6). However, gaps exist within the operations of the SLS that may hinder adequate labor law enforcement, including the ability of labor inspectors to conduct unannounced inspections.

Table 6. Labor Law Enforcement Efforts Related to Child Labor

Overview of Labor Law Enforcement	2019	2020
Labor Inspectorate Funding	$23.4 million (10)	$16.3 million (1)

† Data are from January 2020 to mid-December 2020.

Ukraine's Cabinet of Ministers adopted Resolution No. 383 in May, which approves criteria for a risk-based approach to performing labor inspections and identifying labor violations; use of child labor is an approved risk factor. (1) The SLS employed a sufficient number of labor inspectors given the size of the workforce in Ukraine; however, observers report that the resources dedicated to overseeing labor laws and monitoring recruitment agencies’ compliance remain inadequate. (1,13,47,48) Labor inspectors conducted 2,130 child labor-related inspections and detected 49 child labor violations involving 67 children working in the service sectors, heavy industry, and agriculture. The majority of violations involved the unregistered or improperly registered employment of minors. (1) Inspectors also identified four children who were receiving illegal or improperly documented wages. The SLS referred eight cases to criminal law enforcement agencies for investigation. (1) Although the SLS imposed a total of approximately $35,000 in financial penalties, it collected only $1,660 during the reporting period. The SLS is not authorized to compel payment of delinquent fines without a court proceeding, which can delay the collection of penalties. (1,10)

During the reporting period, all new labor inspectors received ILO-approved training upon hiring. The OSCE also conducted online training sessions for labor inspectors. (1) However, sources note that training for labor inspectors on child trafficking may be inadequate, especially outside of Kyiv. (13,19) In addition to the 1,253 labor inspectors working at the SLS, regional governments employ 562 labor inspectors. (1) Although these local inspectors are certified by the SLS, their training may be inadequate and inconsistent with the training given to inspectors employed directly by the SLS. (41) The funding allocated to the SLS in 2020 remained at a similar level to 2019, but NGOs have assessed the funding as insufficient and also expressed concern that the number of labor inspectors was inadequate. (10,13) Many labor inspector positions remain vacant, especially in more rural areas, due to low pay. (42)

Criminal Law Enforcement

In 2020, criminal law enforcement agencies in Ukraine took actions to combat child labor (Table 7). However, gaps exist within the authority of the criminal enforcement agencies that may hinder adequate criminal law enforcement, including a lack of information on criminal convictions for the worst forms of child labor.

Table 7. Criminal Law Enforcement Efforts Related to Child Labor

Overview of Criminal Law Enforcement	2019	2020
Initial Training for New Criminal Investigators	Yes (10)	Yes (1)
Training on New Laws Related to the Worst Forms of Child Labor	Yes (10)	Yes (1)
Refresher Courses Provided	Yes (10)	Yes (1)
Number of Investigations	Unknown (10)	262 (1)
Number of Violations Found	8† (10)	188 (1)
Number of Prosecutions Initiated	33‡ (10)	188 (1)
Number of Convictions	Unknown (10)	Unknown (1)
Imposed Penalties for Violations Related to the Worst Forms of Child Labor	Unknown (10)	Unknown (1)
Reciprocal Referral Mechanism Exists Between Criminal Authorities and Social Services	Yes (10)	Yes (1)

† Data are from January to September 2019.

‡ Data are from January to November 2019.

The Ministry of Internal Affairs (MoIA) reported that it intervened in numerous instances of child trafficking, including cases of illegal labor and forced begging, but it did not provide specific information on the number or nature of these cases. (1) The PGO referred 188 cases related to the worst forms of child labor for prosecution, including five cases of criminal exploitation of child labor or forced begging, 67 cases of the use of children for the production of pornography, and 116 cases of engaging minors in criminal activity. The outcome of these cases is unknown, as the PGO does not specifically track convictions in cases related to the worst forms of child labor. (1,10)

The National Police reported a 92 percent increase in cases of online commercial sexual exploitation of women and children in 2020. Traffickers searched for and recruited vulnerable women and children online and created “web studios” for the production of pornographic videos or live performances. (16) In May, four individuals were arrested for using minors in the production and distribution of pornography, and eight children between the ages of 7 and 14 were identified as victims of commercial sexual exploitation. Specific data on the referral of child victims to social services were not available. (1)

MINIMAL ADVANCEMENT – EFFORTS MADE BUT CONTINUED LAW THAT DELAYED ADVANCEMENT

The MoIA reported that all criminal investigators receive specialized training on how to handle cases and investigations involving minors. During the reporting period, MoIA investigators and social workers received training on child labor as part of the government's 2020 Anti-Human Trafficking Program. (1)

IV. COORDINATION OF GOVERNMENT EFFORTS ON CHILD LABOR

The government has established mechanisms to coordinate its efforts to address child labor (Table 8). However, gaps exist that hinder the effective coordination of efforts to address child labor, including efforts to address all forms of child labor.

Table 8. Key Mechanisms to Coordinate Government Efforts on Child Labor

Coordinating Body	Role & Description
Inter-Ministerial Counter-Trafficking Coordination Council	Led by MSP, which serves as the National Coordinator for Counter-Trafficking Policy, includes more than 20 government entities and representatives from regional governments, NGOs, and international organizations. (11) Research was unable to determine whether this body was active during the reporting period.
National Referral Mechanism	Identifies victims of human trafficking, including children, and refers victims to appropriate government agencies for assistance and services. Implemented by MSP in its capacity as the National Coordinator for Anti-Trafficking Policy. (1,11) In June 2020, the Cabinet of Ministers approved Resolution No. 585 to clarify the National Referral Mechanism's role in providing social protection for vulnerable children. The referral mechanism operates between MSP, the Ministry of Internal Affairs, and the Prosecutor General's Office, and facilitates coordination between government agencies when child victims are identified. (1)

Although Ukraine has established the Inter-Ministerial Counter-Trafficking Coordination Council to coordinate efforts to address child trafficking, it does not have coordinating mechanisms to address other forms of child labor, including in mining and agriculture.

V. GOVERNMENT POLICIES ON CHILD LABOR

The government has established policies related to child labor (Table 9). However, policy gaps exist that hinder efforts to address child labor, including covering all worst forms of child labor.

Table 9. Key Policies Related to Child Labor

Policy	Description
National Action Plan for Countering Human Trafficking (2016–2020)	Guides the work of the National Coordinator on Countering Human Trafficking, located under MSP, through specific actions and timetables for preventing, protecting against, and prosecuting human trafficking crimes. (13,49-51) The participating agencies continued their work under the National Action Plan and drafted a concept paper for a new National Action Plan for 2021–2025. (16)
National Action Plan for Implementation of UN CRC (2017–2021)	Identifies priorities in the area of child protection, including improving measures to address the worst forms of child labor and increasing coordination between government agencies and NGOs. (1,6,7,52,53) No funding was provided for this program during the reporting period. (42)
Resolution on the Social Protection of Children and Urgent Measures to Protect the Rights of the Child	Directs the government to develop additional programs and social services to protect children against abuse, including the worst forms of child labor. Includes a provision on measures that specifically address the participation of children in armed conflict. (10,54) Research was unable to determine whether activities were undertaken to support this resolution during the reporting period.
Memorandum of Understanding between the ILO and Ukraine (2020–2024)†	Establishes terms of agreement between ILO and the government on cooperation to implement the Decent Work Country Program in Ukraine. (55) The Ukrainian Parliament Commissioner for Human Rights announced plans to collaborate with ILO in promoting fundamental principles and rights at work, including freedom of association and the right to collective bargaining, addressing pay equity, elimination of forced and child labor, and combating discrimination in the workplace. (55)

† Policy was approved during the reporting period.

Although the Government of Ukraine has adopted the National Action Plan for Countering Human Trafficking, the National Action Plan for Implementation of UN CRC, and the Resolution on the Social Protection of Children, research found no evidence of a policy on other worst forms of child labor, including hazardous child labor in mining. (1,10)

VI. SOCIAL PROGRAMS TO ADDRESS CHILD LABOR

In 2020, the government funded and participated in programs that may contribute to eliminating or preventing child labor (Table 10). However, gaps exist in these social programs, including the adequacy of programs to address the full scope of the problem.

Table 10. Key Social Programs to Address Child Labor

Program	Description
Directorate for the Development of Social Services and Protection of Children's Rights*†	Established under MSP in March 2020 to address the needs of vulnerable children. (16)
Shelters and Centers for Socio-Psychological Rehabilitation of Children†	Serve children in need, including child victims of trafficking, through 82 centers, which include 8 shelters. Children are provided with individual assistance programs that involve social, psychological, pedagogical, medical, legal, and other types of assistance. (11,19) Government officials report that there is a lack of resources and specialized personnel to serve child victims of sexual exploitation through these centers. (19)
Centers for Social Services for Family, Youth, and Children†	Administered in coordination with municipal authorities to provide social services for vulnerable children and families, including victims of human trafficking. These centers were active during the reporting period. (56,57)

* Program was launched during the reporting period.

† Program is funded by the Government of Ukraine.

The SLS, with support from the ILO and the EU, conducted an awareness-raising campaign during the reporting period on the importance of formalizing employment relationships. The "Go to the Light!" campaign educated more than 1.5 million Ukrainians on the risks of undeclared and undocumented work. (58) In January, the government launched an online platform that will expand access to government services by allowing new parents to complete administrative services online, including registering the birth of a child. (16)

Ukraine's Cabinet of Ministers adopted Resolution No. 585 in June, which established a procedure for social protection of children in difficult situations, including children who are victims of abuse. (1,59) The Centers for Social Services for Family, Youth, and Children have historically experienced a large turnover of staff due to an excessive workload and low pay. (60) Although the Government of Ukraine has implemented programs to assist child victims of trafficking, research found no evidence that it has carried out programs specifically designed to assist children in other forms of child labor, including hazardous work in mining.

VII. SUGGESTED GOVERNMENT ACTIONS TO ELIMINATE CHILD LABOR

Based on the reporting above, suggested actions are identified that would advance the elimination of child labor in Ukraine (Table 11).

Table 11. Suggested Government Actions to Eliminate Child Labor

Area	Suggested Action	Year(s) Suggested
Legal Framework	Raise the minimum age for work to the age up to which education is compulsory.	2018 – 2020
	Prohibit all children under age 16 from working in hazardous occupations during vocational training.	2011 – 2020
	Criminally prohibit and penalize the use of a child for prostitution.	2019 – 2020
Enforcement	Strengthen the labor inspection system by removing restrictions on labor inspectors' authority to conduct unannounced onsite inspections, both proactively and in response to complaints.	2019 – 2020
	Authorize the State Labor Service to enforce collection of delinquent penalties to ensure that all penalties imposed are collected.	2019 – 2020
	Ensure that all labor inspectors, including those working outside the capital, receive training on child trafficking.	2019 – 2020
	Ensure that labor inspectors employed by regional governments receive adequate training that is consistent with that provided to labor inspectors employed by the State Labor Service.	2019 – 2020
	Increase funding for the State Labor Service to ensure that the labor inspectorate has adequate capacity to address the scope of the child labor problem.	2019 – 2020

MINIMAL ADVANCEMENT – EFFORTS MADE BUT CONTINUED LAW THAT DELAYED ADVANCEMENT

Area	Suggested Action	Year(s) Suggested
Enforcement	Track and publish data on the number of convictions and penalties imposed for criminal violations of child labor laws.	2014 – 2020
Coordination	Ensure that all coordinating bodies are able to carry out their intended mandates.	2020
	Establish coordinating mechanisms to combat all worst forms of child labor.	2019 – 2020
Government Policies	Adopt a policy that addresses all relevant worst forms of child labor, including hazardous child labor in mining.	2018 – 2020
	Implement all policies addressing child labor, including the National Action Plan for Implementation of UN CRC and the Resolution on the Social Protection of Children and Urgent Measures to Protect the Rights of the Child.	2019 – 2020
Social Programs	Conduct research to gather comprehensive data on child labor, including the activities carried out by children working in mining, farming, raising animals, and construction, to inform policies and programs.	2019 – 2020
	Ensure that refugee children are allowed to receive services at state-run children's shelters and can be registered at birth.	2019 – 2020
	Establish a procedure to implement the law empowering any civil registry office to issue a Ukrainian birth registration on the basis of a birth certificate issued in the areas of Donetsk and Luhansk under the control of Russia-led forces.	2019 – 2020
	Develop programs to ensure that Roma children are registered at birth and are able to access education.	2010 – 2020
	Allocate resources and trained personnel to assist with child victims of commercial sexual exploitation in all state-run facilities that serve children in need.	2020
	Expand educational opportunities for children without internet access and those with special needs.	2020
	Ensure that there are sufficient resources for the Centers for Social Services for Family, Youth, and Children for child victims of human trafficking.	2013 – 2020
	Implement social programs to assist children subjected to all forms of child labor, including mining.	2020

In 2020, Uzbekistan made moderate advancement in efforts to eliminate the worst forms of child labor. The government took active measures to prevent the use of child labor in the cotton harvest, including by eliminating the harvest quotas that were historically a root cause of child and forced labor in Uzbekistan. The government also cooperated with civil society activists to detect labor exploitation in the annual cotton harvest, created an action plan to implement international recommendations on eliminating the worst forms of child labor, and expanded efforts to raise awareness during the cotton cultivation season about child and forced labor prohibitions. In addition, lawmakers adopted a new law on trafficking in persons that strengthened protection for human trafficking victims, including child trafficking victims. However, children in Uzbekistan are subjected to the worst forms of child labor, including in commercial sexual exploitation. Although the government made meaningful efforts in all relevant areas, laws prohibiting the commercial sexual exploitation of children do not meet international standards. Uzbekistan also has not carried out a national child labor survey to determine the prevalence of child labor in sectors other than cotton production.

I. PREVALENCE AND SECTORAL DISTRIBUTION OF CHILD LABOR

Children in Uzbekistan are subjected to the worst forms of child labor, including in commercial sexual exploitation. (1-3) Uzbekistan has not carried out a national child labor survey to determine the prevalence of child labor in sectors other than cotton production. (3) Table 1 provides key indicators on children's work and education in Uzbekistan.

Table 1. Statistics on Children's Work and Education

Children	Age	Percent
Working (% and population)	5 to 14	4.3 (244,095)
Attending School (%)	5 to 14	84.1
Combining Work and School (%)	7 to 14	5.0
Primary Completion Rate (%)		105.6

Source for primary completion rate: Data from 2019, published by UNESCO Institute for Statistics, 2021. (4)

Source for all other data: International Labor Organization's analysis of statistics from Multiple Indicator Cluster Survey 3 (MICS 3), 2006. (5)

Based on a review of available information, Table 2 provides an overview of children's work by sector and activity.

Table 2. Overview of Children's Work by Sector and Activity

Sector/Industry	Activity
Agriculture	Harvesting silk cocoons; preparing land for crop planting (6,7)
Services	Street work, including vending, car washing, and begging (7-10)
	Collecting scrap metal (6,8)
	Public works, including refurbishing school grounds and facilities (3,6,11,12)
	Vending in markets (7)
Categorical Worst Forms of Child Labor‡	Commercial sexual exploitation, sometimes as a result of human trafficking (1,3,8)
	Forced labor in harvesting silk cocoons (1,6,13)
	Forced labor in construction, non-cotton agriculture, and cleaning parks, streets, and buildings (1,6)

‡ Child labor understood as the worst forms of child labor per se under Article 3(a)–(c) of ILO C. 182.

Traffickers exploit Uzbek children in sex trafficking transnationally in the Middle East, Eurasia, and Asia. (1) Children are also vulnerable to internal trafficking for the purpose of commercial sexual exploitation. (1,12)

MODERATE ADVANCEMENT

ILO monitors reported that prohibitions on child labor were generally upheld during the 2020 cotton harvest. Farmers increased due diligence measures for preventing child labor, including by informing cotton pickers about laws and regulations prohibiting child labor in the harvest and verifying pickers' ages prior to transporting them to fields. (14) However, ILO and civil society harvest monitors also noted an uptick in the number of children, primarily ages 15 to 17, participating in the 2020 cotton harvest compared to harvests in 2018 and 2019. In interviews with ILO and civil society monitors, some pickers reported bringing teenage children to work in the fields to increase household income. (14,15) In such cases, monitors provided pickers with additional information on child labor prohibitions and the hazards cotton picking poses to the health and well-being of children. (14) Monitors also assessed that school closures related to the COVID-19 pandemic and pandemic-related economic stresses within families may have increased children's vulnerability to child labor in the 2020 cotton harvest. (14,15)

Children in Uzbekistan sometimes participate in public works projects, including refurbishing school grounds and facilities. (3,6) Limited evidence suggests that in isolated cases, school officials may compel students to assist in harvesting silk cocoons, sometimes characterizing the work as traditional communal labor (khashar). (6,13) Although there is free public education in Uzbekistan, schools may charge informal fees, which can make education inaccessible to children from low-income families. (3,10, 27)

II. LEGAL FRAMEWORK FOR CHILD LABOR

Uzbekistan has ratified all key international conventions concerning child labor (Table 3).

Table 3. Ratification of International Conventions on Child Labor

Convention	Ratification
 ILO C. 138, Minimum Age	✓
ILO C. 182, Worst Forms of Child Labor	✓
 UN CRC	✓
UN CRC Optional Protocol on Armed Conflict	✓
UN CRC Optional Protocol on the Sale of Children, Child Prostitution and Child Pornography	✓
 Palermo Protocol on Trafficking in Persons	✓

The government has established laws and regulations related to child labor (Table 4). However, gaps exist in Uzbekistan's legal framework to adequately protect children from the worst forms of child labor, including the prohibition of commercial sexual exploitation of children.

Table 4. Laws and Regulations on Child Labor

Standard	Meets International Standards	Age	Legislation
Minimum Age for Work	Yes	18	Articles 15, 77 and 242 of the Labour Code; Article 49 of the Administrative Code (16,18,19)
Minimum Age for Hazardous Work	Yes	18	Articles 241 and 245 of the Labour Code; Article 49-1 of the Administrative Code (18,19)
Identification of Hazardous Occupations or Activities Prohibited for Children	Yes		Decree on Adoption of the List of Occupations with Unfavorable Working Conditions to Which It Is Forbidden to Employ Persons Under Eighteen Years of Age; Decree on Approval of Provision on Requirements on Prohibition of Use of Minors' Labor (20,21)
Prohibition of Forced Labor	Yes		Article 37 of the Constitution; Article 7 of the Labour Code; Article 51 of the Administrative Code; Articles 135 and 148(2) of the Criminal Code (18,19,22,23)

Standard	Meets International Standards	Age	Legislation
Prohibition of Child Trafficking	Yes		Article 3 of the Law on Combatting Human Trafficking; Article 135 of the Criminal Code (23,24)
Prohibition of Commercial Sexual Exploitation of Children	No		Articles 128(1), 130–131, and 135 of the Criminal Code (23)
Prohibition of Using Children in Illicit Activities	Yes		Article 10 of the Law on Guarantees of the Rights of the Child; Articles 127 of the Criminal Code; Article 188-1 of the Administrative Code (17,19,23)
Minimum Age for Voluntary State Military Recruitment	Yes	18	Article 24 of the Law on Universal Military Service (25)
Prohibition of Compulsory Recruitment of Children by (State) Military	Yes		Articles 4 and 46 of the Law on Universal Military Service (25)
Prohibition of Military Recruitment by Non-state Armed Groups	Yes		Articles 216(1) and 242 of the Criminal Code; Article 3 of the Law on Civil Organizations (23,26)
Compulsory Education Age	Yes	18‡	Articles 4 and 9 of the Law on Education (27)
Free Public Education	Yes		Article 4 of the Law on Education; Article 41 of the Constitution (22,27)

‡ Age calculated based on available information (27)

During the reporting period, the government adopted a new law on trafficking in persons aiming to enhance access to government services and strengthen protections for victims of human trafficking, including child victims. (12,24) The government also drafted and began Parliamentary review of a comprehensive Labor Code reform package. (28) In addition, in early 2021, parliament adopted a package of amendments to the Criminal Code that included criminal penalties for the use of children ages 16 to 17 in commercial sex. This package of amendments also established criminal penalties in the first instance for forced labor violations involving minors. (29)

Articles 131 and 135 of the Criminal Code of the Republic of Uzbekistan criminalize pimping, procuring, involving, or inducing children into prostitution, and criminalize the actions of those who profit from prostitution involving children. (23) In addition, Criminal Code Article 128(1) criminalizes the use of children ages 16 to 18 in prostitution. However, no law criminalizes the users (clients) of prostitution involving children under age 16. (23) Moreover, although Uzbekistan's laws prohibit the use, procuring, and offering of children for both the production and trafficking of drugs, the legal framework prohibiting these crimes lacks clarity as penalties are only addressed in the Administrative Code, not the Criminal Code. (19,23)

The law does not determine the activities or conditions in which children who have not yet completed their compulsory schooling may engage in light work, although the Labor Code establishes caps on the maximum number of work hours permitted for children ages 15 to 17. (18,27)

III. ENFORCEMENT OF LAWS ON CHILD LABOR

The government has established institutional mechanisms for the enforcement of laws and regulations on child labor (Table 5). However, gaps exist within the operations of enforcement agencies that may hinder adequate enforcement of their child labor laws.

MODERATE ADVANCEMENT

Table 5. Agencies Responsible for Child Labor Law Enforcement

Organization/Agency	Role
Ministry of Employment and Labor Relations (MOELR)	Conducts labor inspections, including inspections for compliance with child labor laws. (10) Leads the National Sub-Commission on Combating Forced Labor. (30,31)
Ministry of Internal Affairs (MOIA)	Investigates crimes related to child trafficking and commercial sexual exploitation of children, which may then be prosecuted by the Prosecutor General's Office. (10) Leads the National Sub-Commission on Combating Trafficking in Persons. (30,31) Maintains a database on human trafficking crimes, including child trafficking crimes, which aggregates relevant information received from other government bodies, citizens' organizations, non-profit organizations, and civil society groups. (12)
Prosecutor General's Office	Prosecutes criminal violations involving the worst forms of child labor, including forced labor and commercial sexual exploitation. (10) Also provides oversight of some MOIA efforts to combat the worst forms of child labor. (12)
Youth Union	Monitors school attendance to ensure that students do not miss class during the cotton harvest. (9) Participates in monitoring efforts organized by the Federation of Trade Unions (FTUU) to monitor violations of labor laws during the annual cotton harvest. (32,33)
Women's Committee of Uzbekistan	Participates in monitoring efforts organized by FTUU to monitor violations of labor laws during the annual cotton harvest. (32,33)
Human Trafficking Hotlines	Receive reports of incidents of human trafficking and refer reports to the relevant agencies. The MOIA-led National Sub-Commission on Combating Trafficking in Persons administers one hotline, and an NGO maintains a second foreign donor-funded hotline. (1)
Feedback Mechanisms	Receive complaints on the violation of workers' rights and labor laws. MOELR can receive complaints, including on an anonymous basis, through a telephone hotline with a short, easy-to-remember number; a web portal; and a Telegram messenger bot. (15,34-37) Labor inspectors are required to investigate all complaints submitted to MOELR within 7 days. In 2020, as in 2019, ILO observers were given real-time access to this feedback mechanism during the cotton harvest season to monitor the efficacy of the government's response. (14,34,35,38) FTUU also operates its own independent feedback mechanism, accessible online or over the phone, and a legal clinic that assists workers in remediating issues. The ILO reported that in 2020, the FTUU legal clinic also referred cases to MOELR for investigation of labor law violations. (14,38,39)

In 2020, the feedback mechanism hotline operated by the Federation of Trade Unions of Uzbekistan (FTUU) received 180 complaints related to the cotton harvest. (40) Of these 180 complaints, 30 concerned recruitment for the cotton harvest, 102 concerned late payment of wages for cotton picking, 34 concerned poor working conditions in the harvest, 5 concerned issues with labor contracts for pickers, and 9 concerned financial collections at workplaces to pay for cotton pickers. All 180 complaints were referred to the Ministry of Employment and Labor Relations (MOELR) for investigation; of these, 118 labor law violations were identified and remedied through corrective action. (40)

Labor Law Enforcement

In 2020, labor law enforcement agencies in Uzbekistan took actions to combat child labor. (Table 6). However, gaps exist within the operations of MOELR that may hinder adequate labor law enforcement, including human resource allocation.

Table 6. Labor Law Enforcement Efforts Related to Child Labor

The number of labor inspectors is likely insufficient for the size of Uzbekistan's workforce, which includes more than 17.8 million workers. According to the ILO's technical advice of a ratio approaching 1 inspector for every 20,000 workers in transitioning economies, Uzbekistan would employ about 890 inspectors. (44,45) In 2020, labor inspectors, farmers, and cotton cluster operators attended a series of training seminars on fair recruitment laws and practices. (37,42) A total of 80 labor inspectors also received routine recertification training, which every inspector is required to complete at least once every 3 years. Although funding for the Labor Inspectorate decreased in 2020 compared to 2019, the government noted that 2019 funding levels had included one-time appropriations for purchasing new equipment, which were not included in the 2020 budget. (12) The government also noted that, in addition to labor inspectors employed by MOELR, the FTUU employs 33 labor monitors, who can refer potential violations to the Labor Inspectorate for investigation and imposition of penalties as appropriate. (12)

During the reporting period, the government enhanced penalties for violations of labor laws. Maximum fines for forced labor violations in the first offense increased significantly, from $60–70 in 2019 to nearly $2,000 in 2020. (35) MOELR identified two child labor cases, one in Bukhara and the other in Samarkand. Both cases were referred through social media and involved children working on refurbishing school facilities and grounds. (12) Labor inspectors assessed and collected penalties totaling $2,200 (22,300,000 UZS) for these two violations. (12) MOELR also identified 105 total forced labor cases in 2020, 46 of which were related to mobilization of workers for the annual cotton harvest and 59 of which were related to unfair recruitment into other work. (14,40) During the cotton harvest, 42 offenders, including district hokims (local leaders), heads of institutions, directors, and farmers were penalized under Administrative Code Article 51 for forced labor violations. (14) Five hokims from districts in Namangan, Tashkent, and Khoresm regions were formally reprimanded by the Cabinet of Ministers for forced labor offenses in their districts and officially warned that they would be dismissed without further notice for any subsequent forced labor offenses. (14,42) MOELR referred six forced labor cases to the courts for criminal action, although the current status of these cases is unknown. (12,46)

Labor inspectors are empowered to conduct self-initiated unannounced inspections in public-sector enterprises and, with permission from the Business Ombudsman, are authorized to conduct limited inspections at private-sector businesses. However, reports indicate that in practice, inspectors may be reticent to enter private businesses or homes and typically only do so in response to complaints. (3, 10–12, 35, 47, 48) In addition, a temporary moratorium on planned inspections at state enterprises was put in place for part of the reporting period due to the pandemic. However, inspectors still carried out monitoring visits to state enterprises during the cotton harvest season to enforce prohibitions on forced and child labor. (35) The legislature established working groups comprising senators, Legislative Chamber deputies, journalists, and bloggers that conducted labor monitoring visits at farms, cotton clusters (vertically-integrated cotton production enterprises), neighborhood associations (mahallas), private enterprises, and public organizations. MOELR also established six working groups comprising labor inspectors that conducted rapid-response investigations of forced labor complaints during the harvest. (40) All of these working groups visited, in total, 95 cotton clusters, 3,221 farms, 1,572 neighborhood associations, and 796 private and public enterprises and organizations. (40) The Labor Inspectorate further reported that it reviewed 26,788 complaints in 2020 across all sectors, conducted 5,154 total inspections for compliance with laws governing working conditions, and identified 6,314 violations requiring remediation. (12)

MODERATE ADVANCEMENT

The government increased cooperation with independent civil society monitors to detect and respond to suspected labor violations in the cotton harvest. Civil society monitors participated in regular information exchanges with MOELR and received special badges from the government that granted them unimpeded access to visit cotton fields and other entities involved in the harvest, despite pandemic-related internal travel restrictions. (14,35) Independent observers reported that labor inspectors consistently investigated potential labor violations referred to them by civil society activists, and investigated reports of potential violations were publicized in the press and on social media. (10,15,49) Labor inspectors responded to 790 forced labor complaints between January and October 2020, of which 461 were received through MOELR's feedback hotline, 113 through social networks (including Telegram messenger), 201 in writing, and 15 through MOELR's website. (10,12,35,37,40) Civil society activists reportedly submitted 26 complaints, 6 of which resulted in imposition of fines for official complicity in forced labor. (10)

Criminal Law Enforcement

In 2020, criminal law enforcement agencies in Uzbekistan took actions to combat child labor (Table 7). However, gaps exist within the operations of the Ministry of Internal Affairs (MOIA) that may hinder adequate criminal law enforcement, including investigation planning.

Table 7. Criminal Law Enforcement Efforts Related to Child Labor

Overview of Criminal Law Enforcement	2019	2020
Initial Training for New Criminal Investigators	Yes (3)	Yes (12)
Training on New Laws Related to the Worst Forms of Child Labor	Yes (3)	Yes (10)
Refresher Courses Provided	Yes (3)	Yes (10)
Number of Investigations	2 (2,11)	12 (12)
Number of Violations Found	4 (12)	13 (12)
Number of Prosecutions Initiated	3 (12)	8 (12)
Number of Convictions	3 (12)	6 (12)

Reciprocal Referral Mechanism Exists Between Criminal Authorities and Social Services	Yes (3)	Yes (10)

In 2020, law enforcement investigated 12 criminal cases involving 13 suspects under suspicion of procuring children for commercial sexual exploitation. Because of these investigations, 13 children were recognized as victims of crimes related to human trafficking and referred to rehabilitation centers for services. (12) Eight cases involving 10 suspects were referred for prosecution under Criminal Code Article 135, trafficking in persons. One case culminated in an acquittal for two defendants and the other seven cases resulted in conviction of eight perpetrators. (12) Of these, four perpetrators were sentenced to prison terms, three were sentenced to restriction of liberty, and one received a suspended sentence. (12) In one of these cases, investigators and prosecutors cooperated with lawyers from Istiqbolli Avlod, a local anti-trafficking NGO, to gather evidence and present it in court. The perpetrator was sentenced to 6 years of imprisonment. (50) Sources reported that this case was the first human trafficking conviction in which Istiqbolli Avlod's lawyers were able to participate directly in court proceedings. (50)

Limited reports suggest that MOIA investigations into potential cases involving the worst forms of child labor may not be thorough enough to detect violations or gather sufficient evidence to move forward with prosecution. (35,50) The Prosecutor General's Office began a review of human trafficking cases that were closed due to lack of evidence to determine whether any should be reinitiated. However, information on how many of these cases involved child victims was not available. (10,50) In addition, the new law on combating human trafficking adopted during the reporting period established procedures to improve the referral mechanism by which authorities refer child victims of trafficking to social services. (10,24)

Although criminal liability for repeat forced labor offenses was introduced in early 2020 under Criminal Code Article 148(2), monitoring reports on the 2020 cotton harvest noted enforcement challenges that may have hampered the government's ability to initiate criminal prosecutions for forced labor offenses. (14,23) Officials can only be held criminally liable under Art. 148(2) for complicity in forced labor if they commit repeated offenses within the same 12-month period. In addition, criminal enforcement agencies faced difficulties collecting sufficient evidence to prosecute complicit officials. (14) The ILO reported on two instances in which issues related to witness testimony and admissibility of documentary evidence limited government efforts to pursue prosecution of forced labor cases. (14)

During the reporting period, 184 MOIA staff members received training on Uzbekistan's new law on trafficking in persons. (12) Judges from the Supreme Court and from the Higher School of Judges received training from UNODC on interpreting and applying Criminal Code Article 135, which defines and establishes penalties for human trafficking crimes, including those involving children. (51) Investigators, judges, and prosecutors also received training from the ILO on child labor and forced labor. In addition, the NGO Istiqbolli Avlod continued to work with criminal enforcement agencies to provide human trafficking training to investigators. (10)

IV. COORDINATION OF GOVERNMENT EFFORTS ON CHILD LABOR

The government has established mechanisms to coordinate its efforts to address child labor (Table 8). However, gaps exist that hinder the effective coordination of efforts to address child labor, including coordination with civil society organizations.

Table 8. Key Mechanisms to Coordinate Government Efforts on Child Labor

Coordinating Body	Role & Description
National Commission on Combating Trafficking in Persons and Forced Labor (National Commission)	Coordinates state and local entities' efforts to combat sex trafficking and forced labor; analyzes and monitors efficacy of government programs to address sex trafficking and forced labor; organizes international cooperation on combating sex trafficking and forced labor; and provides legal and policy recommendations for improvement of government efforts in these areas. (30,31) Chaired by the National Rapporteur on Combating Trafficking in Persons and Forced Labor. (30) Comprises the two sub-commissions on combating sex trafficking and forced labor, respectively. The Minister of Internal Affairs heads the Sub-Commission on Combating Trafficking in Persons and the Minister of Labor heads the Sub-Commission on Combating Forced Labor. (3,30,31) In 2020, National Commission member agencies provided monthly reports on progress to implement work plans approved in 2019. (52)
National Rapporteur on Combating Trafficking in Persons and Forced Labor (National Rapporteur)	Chairs the National Commission on Combating Trafficking in Persons and Forced Labor. Reports annually to the President on sex trafficking and forced labor issues, government efforts to punish perpetrators, and services for victims of sex trafficking and forced labor crimes. (30,31) Conducts public awareness-raising activities related to sex trafficking and forced labor. (31) In 2020, the National Rapporteur regularly convened the National Commission to report on the implementation of prohibitions on child labor and forced labor. (10,42) The National Rapporteur's office also prepared and published a report for the President on efforts undertaken in 2020 to combat forced labor and sex trafficking. (52)
Local Commissions for Combating Human Trafficking and Forced Labor (Local Commissions)	Ensure timely and rigorous implementation of all laws and regulations, including those issued by the National Commission, related to sex trafficking and forced labor. (12,53) Local Commissions are chaired by the regional hokim (governor) and provide monthly reports to the National Commission. (38,53) In 2020, Local Commissions met twice monthly and provided an end-of-year report to the National Commission on alleged forced labor cases that had occurred in their regions. (42,46) Members of Local Commissions also received training from ILO on effectively carrying out mandates related to combating forced labor and sex trafficking. (40)

During the reporting period, the National Sub-Commission on Combating Forced Labor drafted an Action Plan based on international recommendations to eliminate the worst forms of child labor; the National Rapporteur formally approved this Action Plan in November 2020. (54) The National Sub-Commission on Combating Trafficking in Persons prepared addenda to Uzbekistan's draft National Referral Mechanism (NRM) regarding trauma-informed and child-friendly approaches to addressing human trafficking crimes. However, these addenda cannot be adopted or implemented until the full draft NRM package is adopted. (35) International organizations reported that the Sub-Commission's lack of a designated secretariat hampered communication with external stakeholders, which delayed action on activities to counter human trafficking. (35)

Although there were no reports of reprisals against individuals for monitoring labor conditions during the 2020 autumn harvest season, a group of activists reported that they were arrested by police while monitoring

MODERATE ADVANCEMENT

labor conditions in one region's cotton fields during the spring weeding season; one activist reported that he was beaten after being detained. The activists were subsequently placed under police supervision for 14 days of self-quarantine, allegedly for potential COVID-19 exposure from a police officer. (55) In 2020, the government continued to engage in dialogue with civil society stakeholders on child and forced labor issues. (14,56) In March, the Ministry of Justice registered a local independent human rights NGO, the first to receive official status since 2003. (57) However, there were also continued reports that many human rights NGOs, including those working on forced and child labor issues, were repeatedly denied official registration, sometimes for failing to meet requirements that had not been publicly specified. (15,58,59)

V. GOVERNMENT POLICIES ON CHILD LABOR

The government has established policies related to child labor (Table 9). However, policy gaps exist that hinder efforts to address child labor, including implementation of privatization policies in the cotton sector.

Table 9. Key Policies Related to Child Labor

Policy	Description
Memorandum of Understanding Between the ILO and the Republic of Uzbekistan (2014–2020)	Established terms of agreement between ILO and the government on cooperation to implement the Decent Work Country Program in Uzbekistan. (60) In 2020, the Government of Uzbekistan and ILO continued to work together under this agreement. (33)
Plan of Immediate Measures in the Area of Combating Trafficking in Persons and Forced Labor ("Roadmap") (2019–2020)	Established a plan for updating legislation on sex trafficking and forced labor, building government capacity to combat sex trafficking and forced labor, enhancing transparency of conditions in the annual cotton harvest, raising awareness on sex trafficking and forced labor issues, and reforming the agriculture and textile industries. (61) In 2020, the National Commission passed legal reforms related to human trafficking that were envisioned under this roadmap, and continued to monitor the cotton harvest for labor violations. (35)
Action Plan on Implementing International Recommendations to Eliminate the Worst Forms of Child Labor†	Establishes a work plan to address international recommendations to advance the elimination of the worst forms of child labor in Uzbekistan. Aims to improve labor and criminal law enforcement, coordination, policies, and social programs related to the worst forms of child labor. (62)
Policies for Seasonal Cotton Harvest Workers	Establishes the minimum wages for cotton pickers and sets other guidelines with the goal of attracting voluntary labor to the annual harvest. In 2020, MOELR increased the minimum wage for cotton pickers compared to 2019 rates, and required local recruiters to work under civil law contracts. (33,36,63)
Strategy for the Development of Agriculture in the Republic of Uzbekistan (2020–2030)	Calls for a reduction of the state's involvement in agriculture and enhances farmers' autonomy over what crops to grow. Under the Strategy's priority action to end state intervention in agriculture, the President abolished state quotas for cotton and wheat production in 2020. (64,65)

† Policy was approved during the reporting period.

In 2020, President Mirziyoyev formally abolished the practice of imposing state quotas for cotton production. (65-67) Under this quota system in previous harvests, local and regional officials were held responsible for mobilizing adequate labor to harvest a centrally determined amount of cotton, which observers reported was a root cause of forced labor and increased the risk of child labor. (68,69)

However, independent monitors reported that in some parts of the country, local governments established and carried out regional cotton harvest plans that reproduced quotas on a local level. (14,67) Reports also continued during the 2020 harvest that some cotton "clusters" (vertically-integrated private business partnerships along the cotton value chain from farm to finished products) may reproduce quota pressures through contractual practices. (14,67,70) The government grants clusters exclusive territorial concessions to operate in individual districts, making the cluster the only potential buyer for cotton farmers in that district. (70-72) Although new regulations adopted in 2020 allow farmers to form independent cooperatives, they may only do so in districts without an existing, operational cluster. (36) Allegations persisted in 2020 that some clusters engage in coercive business practices against farmers, including failing to pay for delivered crops or purchasing cotton at a lower price than initially promised. However, such issues appear to be localized to specific districts and clusters. (73,74) Some clusters maintain close ties to local administrators, and there were reports that in the 2020 growing season, some farmers were asked to sign contracts in the presence of local hokimiyats (local government administrations), which then kept the contracts on behalf of the cluster. (14) In some cases, contracts included production targets for farmers that were recommended by the hokimiyat and included land confiscation penalties if farmers failed to deliver the contracted amount of cotton. These practices mimicked the pressures on farmers and officials that historically created high risks for labor exploitation under the national quota system. (14,70) Government of Uzbekistan officials acknowledged that the abolishment of production quotas has been implemented unevenly at the local level, including in the context of cluster contracts. (35)

Some clusters are investing in mechanical harvesting equipment and methods, which reduce the need for manual labor during the harvest. Clusters have also taken a varied approach to recruiting seasonal laborers, with some clusters investing in implementation of fair recruitment practices. (14,15,43,72) ILO and civil society monitors found that in some districts, the adoption of these practices resulted in a significant decrease in labor exploitation. Monitors confirmed that, for the first time since monitoring began, a few of the country's cotton-producing districts had zero cases of forced labor in the 2020 harvest. (14,15)

VI. SOCIAL PROGRAMS TO ADDRESS CHILD LABOR

In 2020, the government funded and participated in programs that include the goal of eliminating or preventing child labor (Table 10). However, gaps exist in these social programs, including the adequacy of programs to address the full scope of the problem.

Table 10. Key Social Programs to Address Child Labor

Program	Description
Efforts to Prevent Child and Forced Labor in the Cotton Harvest†	Includes initiatives to raise awareness about the prohibition of child and forced labor in the cotton harvest. (43,75) Starting in May 2020, the government distributed thousands of informational materials to employers and neighborhood organizations ( mahalla committees) about prohibitions on child labor and forced labor. During the cotton harvest season, the government also broadcast public service announcements on television about child and forced labor prohibitions and pickers' rights to decent work in the harvest. (12,40,42) ILO monitors reported an increase in cotton pickers' awareness of their labor rights and relevant labor laws in 2020 compared to prior years. (14)
National Rehabilitation Center†	MOELR-operated shelter that provides human trafficking victims with emergency medical and social services and assists in social rehabilitation. (3,8,75) This center provided assistance to 92 victims in 2020, including 12 children (9 boys and 3 girls). (12,40)
Population Employment Facilitation Centers†	Local centers run by MOELR to connect the unemployed with job opportunities, including paid public work and seasonal agricultural work. Matches job seekers with labor needs in the cotton harvest to reduce the risk of forced labor. (3,34,76) The government increased employment opportunities in public works projects in 2020 as part of its pandemic response efforts. (35,77) MOELR also created a dedicated website to recruit job seekers interested in working in the annual cotton harvest. (33)
Support for the Implementation of the Decent Work Country Program in Uzbekistan (2014–2020)	$6 million USDOL-funded project awarded to ILO to enhance the capacity of the government and workers' and employers' representatives to prevent and reduce child and forced labor and promote decent work in Uzbekistan. (78) During the reporting period, the project developed and conducted fair recruitment trainings for labor inspectors, government officials, farmers, brigade leaders, cotton cluster representatives, and other cotton-sector stakeholders. (33) Additional information is available on the USDOL website .

† Program is funded by the Government of Uzbekistan.

In 2020, the government amended birth registration procedures to ensure all children are registered, including those born to undocumented parents. Citizenship eligibility was also extended to nearly 50,000 residents of Uzbekistan who had been rendered stateless by the dissolution of the Soviet Union. (46) The Ministry of Finance also worked with UNICEF to draft a new regulatory framework for social protection benefits, which is currently under review by other government bodies. (12) In addition, the government significantly increased funding for social services for human trafficking victims, including child victims. These expenditures included funding for anti-trafficking NGOs, shelters for trafficking victims, and legal assistance for trafficking victims. (52)

Although there are programs to address child labor in the cotton sector, research did not find evidence of programs designed to address child labor in other sectors, such as public works and street work.

MODERATE ADVANCEMENT

VII. SUGGESTED GOVERNMENT ACTIONS TO ELIMINATE CHILD LABOR

Based on the reporting above, suggested actions are identified that would advance the elimination of child labor in Uzbekistan (Table 11).

Table 11. Suggested Government Actions to Eliminate Child Labor

Area	Suggested Action	Year(s) Suggested
Legal Framework	Criminally prohibit and penalize the use of a child for prostitution.	2015 – 2020
	Update the Criminal Code so that it penalizes the use, procuring, and offering of children for both the production and trafficking of drugs.	2020
	Ensure that the law's light work provisions specify the activities and conditions in which children who have not yet completed their compulsory schooling may work.	2020
Enforcement	Continue to increase the number of labor inspectors to meet the ILO's technical advice.	2015 – 2020
	Ensure that labor inspectors conduct self-initiated unannounced inspections in all sectors, including at private enterprises, even if no complaint has been filed.	2018 – 2020
	Thoroughly investigate all potential criminal cases involving the worst forms of child labor and, when sufficient evidence exists, refer violations for criminal prosecution.	2020
	Remove the requirement that prosecution may only result if multiple forced labor violations occur within a 12 month period by allowing a single offense to be prosecuted or by expanding the 12-month period to encompass a longer period of time.	2020
Coordination	Designate standard mechanisms for communication between external stakeholders and national coordinating bodies to facilitate coordination of efforts to combat forced labor and sex trafficking.	2020
	Ensure that local NGOs monitoring child labor, forced labor, and other labor rights issues are able to register, and sanction officials who harass, intimidate, or abuse labor rights activists.	2017 – 2020
Government Policies	Ensure that local officials do not establish or enforce contractually mandated cotton production targets.	2020
	Monitor implementation of the new cluster system to ensure farmers are not coerced to enter into contracts with certain clusters or produce cotton under terms that create high risk for exploitative labor.	2019 – 2020
Social Programs	Collect and publish data on the extent and nature of child labor to inform policies and programs.	2013 – 2020
	Ensure that schools do not charge informal fees to students or their families.	2019 – 2020
	Expand programs to address the worst forms of child labor in sectors other than cotton harvesting.	2009 – 2020

In 2020, Vanuatu made minimal advancement in efforts to eliminate the worst forms of child labor. In response to the COVID-19 pandemic, the government increased access to education by granting a school-fee exemption for the 2020 academic year, in addition to other measures such as increasing Internet capacity in schools for online schooling. The government also reconvened the National Children Protection Working Group. Although research is limited, children in Vanuatu are subjected to the worst forms of child labor, including in forced domestic work and commercial sexual exploitation, each sometimes as a result of human trafficking. Children also engage in dangerous tasks in forestry. Vanuatu's minimum age for hazardous work is too low to comply with international standards. Vanuatu also lacks a referral mechanism between criminal authorities and social services providers. In addition, the Government of Vanuatu did not respond to requests for information for this report.

I. PREVALENCE AND SECTORAL DISTRIBUTION OF CHILD LABOR

Although research is limited, there is evidence that children in Vanuatu are subjected to the worst forms of child labor, including in forced domestic work and commercial sexual exploitation, each sometimes as a result of human trafficking. Children also engage in dangerous tasks in forestry. (1-3) Table 1 provides key indicators on children's work and education in Vanuatu. Data on some of these indicators are not available from the sources used in this report.

Table 1. Statistics on Children's Work and Education

Children	Age	Percent
Working (% and population)	5 to 14	Unavailable
Attending School (%)	5 to 14	Unavailable
Combining Work and School (%)	7 to 14	Unavailable
Primary Completion Rate (%)		91.7

Source for primary completion rate: Data from 2013, published by UNESCO Institute for Statistics, 2021. (4)
Data were unavailable from International Labor Organization's analysis, 2021. (5)

Based on a review of available information, Table 2 provides an overview of children's work by sector and activity.

Table 2. Overview of Children's Work by Sector and Activity

Sector/Industry	Activity
Agriculture	Forestry, including logging (1,2,6,7)
Services	Street vending, including selling newspapers (1,2,6,7)
Categorical Worst Forms of Child Labor‡	Forced domestic work, sometimes as a result of human trafficking (3,8) Commercial sexual exploitation, sometimes as a result of human trafficking (7-9)

‡ Child labor understood as the worst forms of child labor per se under Article 3(a)–(c) of ILO C. 182.

Vanuatu lacks data to determine the nature and prevalence of child labor in the country. (1,2,6) Children living in remote areas face difficulties accessing education, increasing the risk of children's involvement in child labor. (10,11) In addition, approximately 50 percent of children reportedly drop out of the education system due to inadequate programs, facilities, and lack of school slots. (2) Families sometimes send children to live with relatives in nearby towns or cities, and these children are subjected to forced labor as domestic workers. (3,8)

During the reporting period, Vanuatu experienced multiple volcanic eruptions, earthquakes, cyclones, and tsunamis, which may impact the government's ability to address the worst forms of child labor. In April, Tropical Cyclone

MINIMAL ADVANCEMENT

Harold displaced 6,218 individuals, nearly half of whom were children, who had no regular access to education while they were housed in evacuation centers. (11)

II. LEGAL FRAMEWORK FOR CHILD LABOR

Vanuatu has ratified most key international conventions concerning child labor (Table 3).

Table 3. Ratification of International Conventions on Child Labor

Convention	Ratification
 ILO C. 138, Minimum Age	✓
ILO C. 182, Worst Forms of Child Labor	✓
 UN CRC	✓
UN CRC Optional Protocol on Armed Conflict	✓
UN CRC Optional Protocol on the Sale of Children, Child Prostitution and Child Pornography	✓
 Palermo Protocol on Trafficking in Persons

The government has established laws and regulations related to child labor (Table 4). However, gaps exist in Vanuatu's legal framework to adequately protect children from the worst forms of child labor, including hazardous work.

Table 4. Laws and Regulations on Child Labor

Free Public Education	No

† No standing military (15)

Vanuatu's hazardous work prohibitions do not comply with international standards that require all children under age 18 to be protected from work that could jeopardize their health and safety, and Vanuatu has yet to determine by law the types of hazardous work prohibited for children. (10,12,16,17) In addition, the Employment Act permits children under age 12 to perform light work in agricultural undertakings owned and managed by their own family without requiring that the undertaking not have other employees and be for local consumption only, and permits children ages 12 and 13 to work in light agricultural work and domestic work, but it does not specify the activities or hours per week that are allowed. (12) The Penal Code does not include heightened penalties for inciting children to engage in illicit activities, including in drug production and drug trafficking, nor does it prohibit offering children for pornographic performances. (13) Although the government acknowledges these gaps and is developing a Child Protection Bill, research was unable to determine the status of the bill. (6,18) There is also no age up to which education is compulsory, increasing the risk of children's involvement in child labor.

Although it does not appear that there are any laws that provide free basic education, the Primary Education School Fee Grant Policy sometimes provides free basic education in government-owned schools for children in grades one to six. (9,19-21) During the reporting year, in response to the pandemic, the government announced that it would grant a school-fee exemption for the 2020 academic year, in addition to other measures such as increasing Internet capacity in schools for online schooling. (22)

III. ENFORCEMENT OF LAWS ON CHILD LABOR

The government has established institutional mechanisms for the enforcement of laws and regulations on child labor (Table 5). However, gaps exist within the operations of enforcement agencies that may hinder adequate enforcement of their child labor laws.

Table 5. Agencies Responsible for Child Labor Law Enforcement

Organization/Agency	Role
Department of Labor	Enforces provisions set forth in the Employment Act, including child labor laws. (1)
Ministry of Justice and Community Services	Supports agencies that review laws, draft new laws, and implement relevant UN Conventions. (19) The Child Desk strengthens national planning, integrates international goals (e.g., UN Convention on the Rights of the Child), develops a system of protection for children, and supports community efforts to prevent child abuse. (1,2,19)
Vanuatu Police Force	Enforces all criminal laws related to the worst forms of child labor, and collaborates with the Vanuatu Tourism Office to combat commercial sexual exploitation of children. Prosecutes child labor cases. (1,9)
National Intelligence Unit	Operates under the Vanuatu Police Force. Is the designated lead and enforces Vanuatu's trafficking in persons laws, including possible commercial sexual exploitation of children as a result of human trafficking. (7,8)

The Child Desk does not have adequate financial and human resources to develop and integrate national planning initiatives into child protection policies. (1,2) Research indicates that the Government of Vanuatu lacks a centralized body or committee to coordinate anti-trafficking policies and operations. (23)

Labor Law Enforcement

In 2020, research did not find information on whether labor law enforcement agencies in Vanuatu took actions to combat child labor (Table 6).

Table 6. Labor Law Enforcement Efforts Related to Child Labor

Vanuatu's referral mechanism lacks inter-agency referral and coordination protocols to connect enforcement authorities—including the Department of Labor and the Vanuatu Police Force—to social welfare services. The Government of Vanuatu did not respond to requests for information on its labor law enforcement efforts for inclusion in this report. (1,2,6,8)

Criminal Law Enforcement

In 2020, research did not find information on whether criminal law enforcement agencies in Vanuatu took actions to combat child labor (Table 7).

Table 7. Criminal Law Enforcement Efforts Related to Child Labor

Overview of Criminal Law Enforcement	2019	2020

Number of Convictions	Unknown (1)	Unknown (2)
Imposed Penalties for Violations Related to the Worst Forms of Child Labor	Unknown (1)	Unknown (2)
Reciprocal Referral Mechanism Exists Between Criminal Authorities and Social Services	No (1)	No (2)

The Vanuatu Police Force employs 50 investigators who enforce criminal law, including laws on the worst forms of child labor. (9,10) Although the police have established standard operating procedures to attend to child victims, there is no formal referral mechanism between the police and social services. (1,6) Most cases of child labor are dealt with by Kastom (an informal method individuals use to settle disputes), and although anyone can report a crime, research found that police are more likely to investigate if the victims themselves report their allegations. After a case is reported by the victim, the police are mandated to investigate the allegations and bring evidence to the public prosecutor for trial. (2,20) The Government of Vanuatu did not respond to requests for information on its criminal law enforcement efforts for inclusion in this report.

IV. COORDINATION OF GOVERNMENT EFFORTS ON CHILD LABOR

The government has established mechanisms to coordinate its efforts to address child labor (Table 8). However, gaps exist that hinder the effective coordination of efforts to address child labor, including efforts to address all forms of child labor.

Table 8. Key Mechanisms to Coordinate Government Efforts on Child Labor

Coordinating Body	Role & Description
National Children Protection Working Group	Serves as the primary forum for exchanging information on child protection and the commercial sexual exploitation of children. Chaired by the Director General of the Ministry of Justice and Community Services, and comprises representatives from the government, UN agencies, civil society organizations, and NGOs. (1,25-28) Reactivated in 2020 since stopping activities in 2014. According to its Terms of Reference, it will have a role in capacity building, systems strengthening, emergency preparedness and response, and coordination of services across all child protection sectors. (2,29)

Coordinating Body	Role & Description
Kastom (custom)	Serves as the primary informal method to handle child protection issues in Vanuatu. Comprises informal service providers, including religious leaders, women's groups, and NGOs, to whom children are referred through Kastom for services. (1,6) Although there are no formal reports of this service being used during the reporting period, it may have been used in rural areas. (30)

Although the government has established a National Child Protection Working Group to combat the commercial sexual exploitation of children, research found no evidence that there is a coordinating mechanism to address all forms of child labor. (25) Although Kastom is a common mechanism used to address child protection issues, research found that there is a lack of established inter-agency protocols and procedures between Kastom and governmental offices—including the Vanuatu Police Force—to sufficiently coordinate and ensure that child protection services are provided. (1,6) In addition, research found that inter-agency coordination between law enforcement agencies on human trafficking investigations was primarily ad hoc. Lastly, there were early reports in 2020 that government resources were diverted away from anti-trafficking related duties, including eliminating the worst forms of child labor, to address the impact of the pandemic. (23)

V. GOVERNMENT POLICIES ON CHILD LABOR

The government has established policies related to child labor (Table 9). However, policy gaps exist that hinder efforts to address child labor, including implementation.

Table 9. Key Policies Related to Child Labor

Policy	Description
National Children Protection Policy (2016–2026)	Aims to protect children from the worst forms of child labor, including commercial sexual exploitation and human trafficking. Provides children with equitable access to services to support reintegration and recovery when needed. (9,25,27)
Child Safeguarding Policy (2017–2020)	Provided guidelines for protecting children from abuse, including child labor, violence, sexual abuse, neglect, and exploitation. Maintained a presence in capacity building, emergency preparedness and response, and coordination of services related to child protection. (1,31)
United Nations Pacific Strategy (2018–2022)	A multinational strategic framework, comprising 14 South Pacific nations. Created to address, develop, and implement strategic economic development priorities in the South Pacific, including eliminating child labor and the worst forms of child labor. (32)

‡ The government had other policies that may have addressed child labor issues or had an impact on child labor. (33)

Research was unable to determine whether any policies were active during the reporting period. The National Children Protection Policy does not have a dedicated budget, and the offices responsible for its implementation suffer from a lack of human and financial resources. (2,6,34)

There is no register of civil society organizations tasked with protecting children, and social services providers are not required to be registered with the state. Furthermore, there are no standards or requirements that child protection agents or social services providers must follow when addressing children's issues. (1,6,27)

VI. SOCIAL PROGRAMS TO ADDRESS CHILD LABOR

In 2020, the government funded and participated in programs that include the goal of eliminating or preventing child labor (Table 10). However, gaps exist in these social programs, including implementation of the programs.

Table 10. Key Social Programs to Address Child Labor

Program	Description
Education School Fee Grant†	Funded by the Government of Vanuatu's Ministry of Education; provides funding directly to primary schools to manage. Funds are disbursed to students in Years 1 through 6 to offset education costs. (35,36)

† Program is funded by the Government of Vanuatu

MINIMAL ADVANCEMENT

Research was unable to determine whether the Vanuatu Education School Fee Grant program contained child labor elimination policies or efforts.

VII. SUGGESTED GOVERNMENT ACTIONS TO ELIMINATE CHILD LABOR

Based on the reporting above, suggested actions are identified that would advance the elimination of child labor in Vanuatu (Table II).

Table II. Suggested Government Actions to Eliminate Child Labor

Area	Suggested Action	Year(s) Suggested
Legal Framework	Ratify the Palermo Protocol on Trafficking in Persons.	2014 – 2020
	Ensure that the minimum age for hazardous work is age 18.	2016 – 2020
	Determine by national law or regulation the types of hazardous work prohibited for children after consultation with employers' and workers' organizations.	2009 – 2020
	Ensure that the law protects children ages 12 and 13 employed in light agricultural work by specifying the hours per week that are allowed.	2009 – 2020
	Ensure that the law prohibits the use, procuring, or offering of a child for pornographic performances.	2019 – 2020
	Ensure that the law specifically prohibits the use of children in illicit activities, including in the production and trafficking of drugs.	2016 – 2020
	Ensure that the law criminalizes the recruitment of children under age 18 by non-state armed groups.	2016 – 2020
	Establish a law providing free basic public education.	2016 – 2020
	Establish by law an age up to which education is compulsory that extends to the minimum age for work.	2016 – 2020
Enforcement	Publish information on child labor law enforcement efforts undertaken, including labor inspectorate funding, the number and type of labor inspections conducted, violations found, and penalties imposed and collected.	2012 – 2020
	Strengthen the labor inspectorate by ensuring the ability to assess penalties and initiating targeted inspections based on analysis of data related to risk-prone sectors and patterns of serious incidents.	2016 – 2020
	Train labor inspectors on enforcing child labor laws, train criminal investigators on enforcing laws prohibiting the worst forms of child labor, and make the results of these efforts public.	2014 – 2020
	Publish information on the number of criminal law enforcement efforts undertaken, including the number of investigations conducted, violations found, prosecutions initiated, convictions made, and penalties imposed.	2012 – 2020
	Establish and sufficiently fund referral mechanisms among the Department of Labor, the Vanuatu Police Force, and social welfare services to protect and rehabilitate children involved in child labor, including its worst forms.	2014 – 2020
	Ensure that the Child Desk has adequate financial and human resources to develop and integrate national planning initiatives for child protection policies.	2019 – 2020
	Ensure that all complaints of child labor are investigated, regardless of who lodges the complaint.	2019 – 2020
	Ensure complaint mechanisms exist between labor authorities and social services and between criminal authorities and social services.	2020
Coordination	Establish a coordinating mechanism to combat child labor, including its worst forms.	2012 – 2020
	Establish inter-agency protocols and a referral and coordination mechanism between Kastom and government child protection services.	2018 – 2020
	Ensure that the National Children Protection Working Group is sufficiently funded by the government, and that the Group drafts and implements a national policy on eliminating commercial sexual exploitation of children.	2018 – 2020
Government Policies	Ensure that all policies are allocated funding and implemented as intended to address all relevant worst forms of child labor, including the commercial sexual exploitation of children.	2016 – 2020
	Ensure that social services providers are registered and follow a standard set of procedures in providing care to vulnerable children.	2019 – 2020
Social Programs	Collect and publish data on the extent and nature of child labor to inform policies and programs, including in forestry and agriculture.	2014 – 2020
	Increase access to education for children living in remote locations.	2012 – 2020
	Ensure that the Education School Fee Grant program is active, sufficiently funded, and contains child labor elimination policies or efforts.	2018 – 2020

For the 2020 reporting period, no assessment has been made regarding Wallis and Futuna's efforts to advance the elimination of the worst forms of child labor because there is no evidence of a worst forms of child labor problem and the country has a good legal and enforcement framework on child labor.

I. PREVALENCE AND SECTORAL DISTRIBUTION OF CHILD LABOR

Research found no evidence that child labor exists in Wallis and Futuna. (1) Wallis and Futuna has a population of 15,851 inhabitants. (2)

II. LEGAL FRAMEWORK FOR CHILD LABOR

Wallis and Futuna is a French overseas collectivity, and, as such, cannot ratify international conventions. However, France's ratification of such conventions applies to Wallis and Futuna. (3,4) France has ratified all key international conventions concerning child labor (Table 1).

Table 1. Ratification of International Conventions on Child Labor

Convention	Ratification
 ILO C. 138, Minimum Age	✓
ILO C. 182, Worst Forms of Child Labor	✓
 UN CRC	✓
UN CRC Optional Protocol on Armed Conflict	✓
UN CRC Optional Protocol on the Sale of Children, Child Prostitution and Child Pornography	✓
 Palermo Protocol on Trafficking in Persons	✓

French law applies in Wallis and Futuna. (3,4) The Government of France has established laws and regulations related to child labor, which are in line with relevant international standards (Table 2).

Table 2. Laws and Regulations on Child Labor

Standard	Meets International Standards	Age	Legislation
Minimum Age for Work	Yes	16	Article 118 of the Labor Code of Wallis and Futuna (5)
Minimum Age for Hazardous Work	Yes	18	Article 115 of the Labor Code of Wallis and Futuna (5)
Identification of Hazardous Occupations or Activities Prohibited for Children	Yes		Article R234-6 of the Labor Code; Decree No. 2013-915, Relative to Work That is Prohibited and Regulated for Young People Less Than 18 Years (6,7)
Prohibition of Forced Labor	Yes		Articles 212-1, 224-1, 225-4-1, 225-14-1, 225-14-2, and 711-1 of the Penal Code; Article 2 of the Labor Code of Wallis and Futuna (5,8)
Prohibition of Child Trafficking	Yes		Articles 225-4-1 to 225-4-9 and 711-1 of the Penal Code (8)
Prohibition of Commercial Sexual Exploitation of Children	Yes		Articles 225-5 to 12 and 711-1 of the Penal Code (8)
Prohibition of Using Children in Illicit Activities	Yes		Articles 222-35, 227-15 to 227-28-3, and 711-1 of the Penal Code (8)

NO ASSESSMENT

Standard	Meets International Standards	Age	Legislation
Prohibition of Military Recruitment by Non-state Armed Groups	Yes		Articles 461-7 of the Penal Code (8)
Compulsory Education Age	Yes	16	Articles L131-1 and L161-1 of the Education Code of France (9)
Free Public Education	Yes		Articles L132-1, L132-2, and L161-1 of the Education Code of France (9)

* No conscription (10)

† No standing military (11)

III. ENFORCEMENT OF LAWS ON CHILD LABOR

Even with no evidence of a problem, the Government of France has established institutional mechanisms for the enforcement of laws and regulations on child labor (Table 3). Wallis and Futuna has one labor inspector to enforce these laws and regulations. (1)

Table 3. Agencies Responsible for Child Labor Law Enforcement

Organization/Agency	Role
Service of Labor and Social Laws Inspectorate	Enforces French labor law and mediates in labor conflicts within Wallis and Futuna, falling under the joint authority of the Ministry of Labor and the Ministry of Overseas Territories. (3)
Defender of Rights	Promotes children's rights, including through the prohibition of child labor. (11)
French National Police	Oversee the health and safety of children. (11)

As there is no evidence of a problem, there appears to be no need for enforcement actions to address child labor.

IV. COORDINATION OF GOVERNMENT EFFORTS ON CHILD LABOR

As there is no evidence of a problem, there appears to be no need for mechanisms to coordinate efforts to address child labor.

V. GOVERNMENT POLICIES ON CHILD LABOR

As there is no evidence of a problem, there appears to be no need for policies to address child labor.

VI. SOCIAL PROGRAMS TO ADDRESS CHILD LABOR

As there is no evidence of a problem, there appears to be no need for programs to address child labor.

VII. SUGGESTED GOVERNMENT ACTIONS TO ELIMINATE CHILD LABOR

Based on the reporting above, there are no actions needed to advance the continued prevention of child labor in Wallis and Futuna.

West Bank and the Gaza Strip

MINIMAL ADVANCEMENT

In 2020, the Palestinian Authority made minimal advancement in efforts to eliminate the worst forms of child labor in the areas of the West Bank under its control. The Ministry of Social Development conducted an inspection campaign in Nablus aimed at stemming child labor. The Palestinian Authority also cooperated with the United Nations Children's Fund to reach 11,900 Palestinian children with psychosocial support, provide 3,496 tablets pre-loaded with educational materials, support the Ministry of Education in developing school safety protocols, and provide hygiene and cleaning supplies to 2,250 school premises. However, children in the West Bank and the Gaza Strip are subjected to the worst forms of child labor, including in begging, sometimes as a result of human trafficking, and in illicit activities. Children also perform dangerous tasks in construction and fishing. The Palestinian Authority's legal framework does not criminally prohibit all elements of child trafficking, and labor inspectors are not authorized to assess penalties. In addition, Palestinian Authority programs to prevent or eliminate child labor are insufficient.

I. PREVALENCE AND SECTORAL DISTRIBUTION OF CHILD LABOR

Children in the West Bank and the Gaza Strip are subjected to the worst forms of child labor, including in begging, sometimes as a result of human trafficking, and in illicit activities. Children also perform dangerous tasks in construction and fishing. (1,2) Table 1 provides key indicators on children's work and education in the West Bank and the Gaza Strip. Data on some of these indicators are not available from the sources used in this report.

Table 1. Statistics on Children's Work and Education

Based on a review of available information, Table 2 provides an overview of children's work by sector and activity.

Table 2. Overview of Children's Work by Sector and Activity

Sector/Industry	Activity
Agriculture	Cultivating fruits and vegetables, including dates, olives, onions, sweet peppers, and tomatoes (5-10)
	Fishing,† including working on fishing boats and repairing nets (1,6,11,12)
Industry	Construction,† including demolishing buildings and collecting rubble and gravel for construction purposes (1,6,8,9,13-15)
	Manufacturing, including working in pottery workshops (1,7,13)

	Recruitment of children by non-state armed groups for use in armed conflict (20)
	Begging as a result of human trafficking (18,21)
	Commercial sexual exploitation (2,18)

† Determined by national law or regulation as hazardous and, as such, relevant to Article 3(d) of ILO C. 182.

‡ Child labor understood as the worst forms of child labor per se under Article 3(a)–(c) of ILO C. 182.

West Bank and the Gaza Strip

MINIMAL ADVANCEMENT

Children may be vulnerable to child labor in the agricultural sector, partly because the Palestinian Authority (PA) does not have jurisdiction or the resources to enforce laws in Area C's agricultural fields and Israeli settlements in the West Bank. (1,5,10,22) Some West Bank Palestinian girls are vulnerable to being exploited for sex and labor in Israel after family members force them into marriages with older men; these girls experience physical and sexual abuse, threats of violence, and restricted movement. (23)

In 2020, the COVID-19 pandemic caused school closures and difficulty accessing online instruction. UNICEF reports that 575,000 children in the Gaza Strip lacked access to computer equipment, reliable power, and the Internet. (24) In the Gaza Strip, most schools operate on a split schedule, offering only 4 hours of instruction per day. (6,25,26) Overcrowded classrooms, violence in schools, and damaged schools susceptible to disruption due to weather contribute to some children dropping out. (1,6,9,26) In the West Bank, school closures, Israeli demolition and confiscation of schools, and long distances and fear of harassment at checkpoints by settlers prevent some children from attending school. (27)

In 2020, the UN verified the recruitment and use of two boys in Gaza for Hamas' militant wing, Al-Qassam Brigades. (20)

II. LEGAL FRAMEWORK FOR CHILD LABOR

The PA has Non-Member Observer status at the UN. In April 2014, PA officials presented to UN officials letters of accession to 15 UN treaties, including the UN CRC and its Optional Protocol on the Involvement of Children in Armed Conflict. In December 2017, PA officials acceded to the Palermo Protocol on Trafficking in Persons and the UN CRC Optional Protocol on the Sale of Children, Child Prostitution, and Child Pornography (Table 3).

Table 3. Ratification of International Conventions on Child Labor

Convention	Ratification
 ILO C. 138, Minimum Age	N/A
ILO C. 182, Worst Forms of Child Labor	N/A
 UN CRC	✓
UN CRC Optional Protocol on Armed Conflict	✓
UN CRC Optional Protocol on the Sale of Children, Child Prostitution and Child Pornography	✓
 Palermo Protocol on Trafficking in Persons	✓

The penal code applicable to the West Bank is Jordanian Law No. 16 of 1960 (Jordanian Penal Code for the West Bank). The penal code applicable to Gaza is Penal Code No. 74 of 1936, which was enacted during the British Mandate (Penal Code for Gaza). (28) The PA has established laws and regulations related to child labor (Table 4). However, gaps exist in the West Bank and the Gaza Strip's legal framework to adequately protect children from the worst forms of child labor, including child trafficking.

Table 4. Laws and Regulations on Child Labor

Standard	Meets International Standards	Age	Legislation

Prohibition of Military Recruitment by Non-state Armed Groups	No		Article 46 of the Palestinian Child Law for the West Bank and the Gaza Strip (29)
Compulsory Education Age	Yes	16	Articles 3 and 18 of the Palestinian Education Act for the West Bank and the Gaza Strip; Article 37 of the Palestinian Child Law for the West Bank and the Gaza Strip (29,34)
Free Public Education	Yes		Articles 3 and 15 of the Palestinian Education Act for the West Bank and the Gaza Strip (34)

* No conscription in the West Bank and the Gaza Strip (22)

† No standing military in the West Bank (22)

As the minimum age for work is lower than the compulsory education age, children may be encouraged to leave school before the completion of compulsory education. The Labor Law's minimum age provision does not apply to minors who work for their first degree relatives, which is not in line with international standards that limit the exception for family-based work to small-scale holdings producing for local consumption and not regularly employing hired workers. (30)

Although human trafficking and forced labor are on the hazardous work list, the law does not criminally prohibit child trafficking or forced labor in accordance with international standards. (30,31) In addition, laws criminalizing commercial sexual exploitation of children are insufficient because they do not criminalize the use, procuring, and offering of all male and female children for prostitution, the production of pornography, or pornographic performances. (29,32,33) Further, there are no criminal penalties for recruiting children into non-state armed groups. (29)

III. ENFORCEMENT OF LAWS ON CHILD LABOR

The PA has established institutional mechanisms for the enforcement of laws and regulations on child labor (Table 5). However, gaps exist within the authority of enforcement agencies that may hinder adequate enforcement of their child labor laws.

Table 5. Agencies Responsible for Child Labor Law Enforcement

Organization/Agency	Role
Ministry of Labor (MOL), General Administration of Labor Inspection and Protection	Enforces labor laws, including those related to child labor. (8)
Ministry of Social Development (MOSD), Child Protection Department	Ensures compliance with the Palestinian Child Law for the West Bank and the Gaza Strip, which prohibits the worst forms of child labor and establishes the minimum age for work. (8)

Organization/Agency	Role
Police Bureau for the Protection of the Family and Adolescents	Investigates violations of laws, including the commercial sexual exploitation and economic exploitation of children. Coordinates with MOSD to monitor cases of child labor and economic exploitation. (8)
Office of the Public Prosecutor for Children	Investigates and prosecutes cases of child exploitation, including child labor. (8)

In the West Bank, under the terms of the Oslo-era agreements between the Palestine Liberation Organization and the Israeli Government, the PA has civil law jurisdiction in the areas of the West Bank designated Area A and Area B, which represent approximately 39 percent of the West Bank’s land area and contain approximately 94 percent of the Palestinian population. The Israeli Government has full administrative and security control over the city of Jerusalem and Area C; the latter represents 61 percent of the West Bank’s land area and approximately 6 percent of the Palestinian population and the vast majority of the West Bank’s agricultural areas. (35-38) Although PA laws ostensibly apply to both the West Bank and the Gaza Strip, the PA has no means to enforce compliance in Area C of the West Bank and no control in the Gaza Strip, in which Hamas exercises de facto control and does not enforce PA laws and regulations. (36,38,39)

Labor Law Enforcement

Research did not find information on whether labor law enforcement agencies in the West Bank took actions to combat child labor (Table 6).

Table 6. Labor Law Enforcement Efforts Related to Child Labor

Overview of Labor Law Enforcement	2019	2020

In 2020, the Ministry of Social Development conducted an inspection campaign in Nablus aimed at stemming child labor. (40)

In previous years, the Ministry of Labor reported that it was unable to inspect as many businesses per year as required by the Labor Law, due to insufficient funding. (1,18)

Criminal Law Enforcement

Research did not find information on whether criminal law enforcement agencies in the West Bank took actions to combat child labor (Table 7).

Reciprocal Referral Mechanism Exists Between Criminal Authorities and Social Services	Yes (8)	Yes (8)

PA officials previously stated that insufficient resources hampered their capacity to enforce criminal laws related to the worst forms of child labor. (1)

IV. COORDINATION OF GOVERNMENT EFFORTS ON CHILD LABOR

The PA has established mechanisms to coordinate its efforts to address child labor (Table 8). However, gaps exist that hinder the effective coordination of efforts to address child labor, including the efficacy in accomplishing mandates.

Table 8. Key Mechanisms to Coordinate Government Efforts on Child Labor

Coordinating Body	Role & Description
MOSD Child Protection Networks	Monitor cases of child labor, ensuring that MOL's services are provided to withdraw children from child labor. Include eight technical committees throughout the West Bank to provide psychological and social support to children and caregivers. (8) Coordinate with the Ministry of Education on cases of school dropouts and child labor. Work with MOSD's 13 Youth Social Rehabilitation Centers that provide children who have dropped out of school with social, education, vocational, and cultural training. (8) Comprising the MOSD, MOL, Ministry of Education, Ministry of Interior, and other Palestinian Authority and non-governmental organizations. (41) The PA Ministry of Labor confirmed that the network was active in 2020, except during periods of lockdown due to the pandemic. (42)

V. GOVERNMENT POLICIES ON CHILD LABOR

Research found no evidence that the PA has established policies to address child labor.

The PA's National Policy Agenda (2017–2022) aims to alleviate poverty through social programs for vulnerable groups and job creation programs for women and youth, improve primary and secondary school curricula, ensure equal access to education for marginalized areas, and ensure that technical and vocational training is aligned with labor market needs. (43) However, child labor elimination and prevention strategies do not appear to have been integrated into this policy as distinct issues.

VI. SOCIAL PROGRAMS TO ADDRESS CHILD LABOR

In 2020, the PA funded and participated in programs that include the goal of eliminating or preventing child labor (Table 9). However, gaps exist in these social programs, including the adequacy of programs to address the full scope of the problem.

West Bank and the Gaza Strip

Table 9. Key Social Programs to Address Child Labor

Program	Description
MOL's Vocational Centers†	Palestinian Authority (PA) program in the West Bank, consisting of 13 employment offices and 9 vocational centers operated by MOL, for children over the age of 15 to enroll in vocational training courses. MOL also provides financial assistance to families, ensuring that children return to school and no longer engage in child labor. (8) Research was unable to determine what steps were taken in 2020 to implement this program.
UN Education Programs	UN Relief and Works Agency for Palestine Refugees in the Near East (UNRWA) programs provide educational support for children and youth in refugee camps, and microfinance and other forms of support to families in the West Bank and the Gaza Strip. (44) In the 2018–2019 academic year, UNRWA provided education to over 46,000 students, and vocational training for 1,000 students in the West Bank and approximately 279,000 students in Gaza. (45,46) In 2020, UNICEF reached 11,900 Palestinian children with psychosocial support; provided 3,496 tablets pre-loaded with educational materials; supported the Ministry of Education in developing school safety protocols; and provided hygiene and cleaning supplies to 2,250 school premises. (24)

† Program is funded by the Palestinian Authority.

Although there are programs in the West Bank and the Gaza Strip that target child labor, the scope of these programs is insufficient to fully address the extent of the problem, including in construction, street work, illicit activities, and agriculture.

VII. SUGGESTED GOVERNMENT ACTIONS TO ELIMINATE CHILD LABOR

Based on the reporting above, suggested actions are identified that would advance the elimination of child labor in the West Bank and the Gaza Strip (Table 10).

Table 10. Suggested Government Actions to Eliminate Child Labor

Area	Suggested Action	Year(s) Suggested
Legal Framework	Raise the minimum age for work to the age up to which education is compulsory.	2018 – 2020
	Ensure that the minimum age for work applies to all children, excepting only those working in family and small-scale holdings producing for local consumption and not regularly employing hired workers.	2020
	Ensure that the law criminally prohibits child trafficking, including both domestic and international human trafficking, in accordance with international standards.	2015 – 2020
	Establish laws that criminally prohibit forced labor, including debt bondage and slavery.	2017 – 2020
	Ensure that the use, procurement, and offering of children for all forms of commercial sexual exploitation are criminally prohibited.	2017 – 2020
	Ensure that the law criminally prohibits the recruitment of children under age 18 into non-state armed groups.	2016 – 2020
Enforcement	Ensure that child labor laws are enforced in the Gaza Strip.	2010 – 2020
	Publish information on labor law and criminal law enforcement efforts, including the amount of funding, the number of labor inspectors, the number and type of inspections, the training provided to inspectors and investigators, the number of child labor violations, and penalties issued and collected, and the number of investigations, prosecutions, and convictions.	2010 – 2020
	Authorize the labor inspectorate to assess penalties.	2016 – 2020
	Provide further resources and staff to the Ministry of Labor and the Ministry of Social Affairs to conduct labor inspections and criminal investigations.	2010 – 2020
Coordination	Ensure that Child Protection Networks are able to carry out their intended mandates.	2017 – 2020
Government Policies	Integrate child labor elimination and prevention strategies into the National Policy Agenda and ensure that it is implemented.	2017 – 2020
Social Programs	Expand programs to improve access to education; for example, ensure that children are not subject to violence, schools are weatherproof, and delays at checkpoints are not prohibitive.	2011 – 2020
	Ensure that Ministry of Labor's social programs are implemented, including vocational centers.	2017 – 2020
	Expand programs to further address child labor, specifically in construction, street work, illicit activities, and agriculture.	2010 – 2020
	Collect and publish data on the extent and nature of child labor to inform policies and programs.	2020

In 2020, Morocco made moderate advancement in efforts to eliminate the worst forms of child labor. The Kingdom of Morocco claims the territory of Western Sahara and administers the area that it controls by the same constitution, laws, and structures as in internationally recognized Morocco, including laws that deal with child labor. In 2020, the government enacted programs to pilot a child protection network and assess the feasibility of 10 additional child welfare centers. In addition, the Ministry of Labor launched a new roadmap for fighting child labor that seeks to: improve Domestic Work Law 19.12 and make benefits available from the National Social Security Fund to child domestic workers; improve labor inspections at the 54 designated centers across the country by hiring specialists to enhance the oversight of inspections and the methodology behind interventions; strengthen partnerships with civil society organizations; and increase international cooperation on child labor. Morocco also became a Pathfinder country under Alliance 8.7 in 2020, which calls for the eradication of child labor by 2025, and forced labor, modern slavery, and human trafficking by 2030. However, children in Western Sahara are subjected to the worst forms of child labor, including in forced domestic work and in commercial sexual exploitation. Children also engage in child labor in producing artisanal handicrafts. Laws related to the minimum age for work and the use of children for illicit activities do not meet international standards. In addition, research could not determine whether penalties were imposed for violations related to the worst forms of child labor. Furthermore, the scope of government programs that target child labor is insufficient to fully address the extent of the problem.

I. PREVALENCE AND SECTORAL DISTRIBUTION OF CHILD LABOR

Although research is limited, there is evidence that children in Western Sahara are subjected to the worst forms of child labor, including in forced domestic work and in commercial sexual exploitation. Commercial sexual exploitation of migrant girls occurs and is reportedly more prevalent in fishing villages and on fishing boats. (1,2) Children, particularly in rural areas, are vulnerable to child labor due to educational barriers similar to those faced in other locations in Morocco, such as insufficient facilities, lack of reliable and safe transportation, and unqualified teachers. (1,2) Research has not been conducted to determine the prevalence of child labor in Western Sahara, nor has research found the levels of education among children who are engaged in child labor in Western Sahara.

II. LEGAL FRAMEWORK FOR CHILD LABOR

The Moroccan-controlled portion of the territory of Western Sahara is subject to the same laws as internationally recognized Morocco. (2,3) The Popular Front for the Liberation of the Saguia el-Hamra and Río de Oro (Polisario Front), an organization that seeks the territory's independence, controls the remaining territory; information on the laws applicable in the remaining portion of the territory is unavailable. (1,2,4-6) Morocco has ratified all key international conventions concerning child labor, which the Government of Morocco extends to the areas in Western Sahara that it controls (Table 1).

Table 1. Ratification of International Conventions on Child Labor

MODERATE ADVANCEMENT

The Government of Morocco has established laws and regulations related to child labor that extend to Western Sahara (Table 2). However, gaps exist in Morocco's legal framework to adequately protect children from the worst forms of child labor, including the prohibition of using children in illicit activities.

Table 2. Laws and Regulations on Child Labor

Standard	Meets International Standards	Age	Legislation
Minimum Age for Work	No	15	Article 143 of the Labor Code (7)
Minimum Age for Hazardous Work	Yes	18	Articles 147 and 181 of the Labor Code (7)
Identification of Hazardous Occupations or Activities Prohibited for Children	Yes		Hazardous Child Labor List, Decree No. 2-10-183; Article 181 of the Labor Code (7,8)
Prohibition of Forced Labor	No		Article 10 and 12 of the Labor Code; Article 467-2 of the Penal Code (7,10)
Prohibition of Child Trafficking	Yes		Articles 448.1, and 448.4-448.5 of the Law on Trafficking in Human Beings (9)
Prohibition of Commercial Sexual Exploitation of Children	No		Article 503-2 of the Penal Code (10)
Prohibition of Using Children in Illicit Activities	No
Minimum Age for Voluntary State Military Recruitment	Yes	19	Article 4 of Royal Decree of 9 June 1966 (11)
Prohibition of Compulsory Recruitment of Children by (State) Military	Yes		Article 4 of Law No. 44-18 (12)
Prohibition of Military Recruitment by Non-state Armed Groups	Yes		Articles 448.1 and 448.4 of the Law on Trafficking in Human Beings (9)
Compulsory Education Age	Yes	16	Article 1 of Law No. 04-00 (13)
Free Public Education	Yes		Article 1 of Law No. 04-00 (13)

The labor law does not apply to children who work in the traditional artisan or handicraft sectors for family businesses with fewer than five employees. (7)

The Penal Code only criminalizes the forced labor of children under 15 years old. (25) Moroccan law does not prohibit the use, procuring, or offering of children for the production or trafficking of drugs. (26,31,34)

III. ENFORCEMENT OF LAWS ON CHILD LABOR

The Government of Morocco has established institutional mechanisms for the enforcement of laws and regulations on child labor (Table 3). Information about labor law and criminal law enforcement in Western Sahara is unavailable. The government does not publicly release information on its labor law enforcement efforts in Western Sahara.

Table 3. Agencies Responsible for Child Labor Law Enforcement

Organization/Agency	Role
Ministry of Labor and Vocational Integration (MOLVI)	Enforces child labor laws with its 54 inspection offices throughout the country. (21) During the reporting period, MOLVI launched a new roadmap for fighting child labor that seeks to: improve Domestic Work Law 19.12 and make benefits available from the National Social Security Fund to child domestic workers; improve labor inspections at the 54 designated centers across the country by hiring specialists to enhance the oversight of inspections and the methodology behind interventions; strengthen partnerships with civil society organizations; and increase international cooperation on child labor. (21)
Ministry of the Interior	Enforces prohibitions on trafficking in persons, prostitution, and other exploitative crimes involving minors, as established in the Penal Code, through the General Directorate of National Security. (2,14,21,22)
General Prosecutor	Prosecutes criminal offenses against children and processes cases involving women and children in the court system. (1,14,21,22) The General Prosecutor is a judiciary body that serves independently from the Ministry of Justice. (21)

IV. COORDINATION OF GOVERNMENT EFFORTS ON CHILD LABOR

The Government of Morocco has established mechanisms to coordinate its efforts to address child labor (Table 4).

Table 4. Key Mechanisms to Coordinate Government Efforts on Child Labor

Coordinating Body	Role & Description
Technical Committee Under the Special Ministerial Commission for Children for the Protection and Improvement of Childhood	Ensures inter-sectoral coordination and monitoring for implementing international conventions on children's issues through a committee of 25 government bodies, chaired by the Head of the Government of Morocco. Establishes strategies and mechanisms to implement national policies and plans for child protection and coordinates the management of efforts at the local and regional levels. (20,21) Met regularly in 2020. (21)
The Inter-Ministerial Commission for Combating Trafficking in Persons	Coordinates the government's approach to trafficking in persons on an inter-ministerial level. Conducts training sessions for members of the security services. (26) Chaired by the Head of the Government and lead by the Ministry of Justice, with representation from civil society. (21) Established in May 2019. (21,26,27)

V. GOVERNMENT POLICIES ON CHILD LABOR

The government has established policies that are consistent with relevant international standards on child labor (Table 5).

Table 5. Key Policies Related to Child Labor

Policy	Description
Ministry of Solidarity, Social Development, Equality and the Family Integrated Public Policy on the Protection of Children in Morocco	Promotes an interdisciplinary approach to respond to the exploitation of children and other issues. (14,28) In 2020, the government enacted programs to pilot a child protection network and assess the feasibility of 10 additional child welfare centers. (21)

In 2020, Morocco became a Pathfinder country under Alliance 8.7, which calls for the eradication of child labor by 2025, and forced labor, modern slavery, and human trafficking by 2030. (21)

VI. SOCIAL PROGRAMS TO ADDRESS CHILD LABOR

In 2020, the government funded and participated in programs that include the goal of eliminating or preventing child labor (Table 6). However, gaps exist in these social programs, including the adequacy of efforts to address the problem in all sectors.

Table 6. Key Social Programs to Address Child Labor

Program	Description
Tayssir Conditional Cash Transfer Program†	Ministry of Solidary, Social Development, Equality and the Family program that provides direct cash transfers to qualifying families whose children meet school attendance criteria, aiming to increase school enrollment and reduce dropout rates, particularly in rural areas. (4,21) In 2020, over two million students from low-income families were participants in the Tayssir program. In addition, in 2020, 13,221 children with disabilities received education assistance. (21)

† Program is funded by the Government of Morocco.

‡ The Government of Morocco had other social programs that may have included the goal of eliminating or preventing child labor. (21,23,29)

In 2020, the government continued a regularization campaign to provide legal status and documentation to foreign migrants who are vulnerable to exploitation for child labor. (22,32,33) Although the government has programs that target child labor, the scope of these programs is insufficient to fully address the extent of the problem, including for children subjected to forced domestic work. (1,3,34)

VII. SUGGESTED GOVERNMENT ACTIONS TO ELIMINATE CHILD LABOR

Based on the reporting above, suggested actions are identified that would advance the elimination of child labor in Western Sahara (Table 7).

Western Sahara

MODERATE ADVANCEMENT

Table 7. Suggested Government Actions to Eliminate Child Labor

Area	Suggested Action	Year(s) Suggested
Legal Framework	Ensure that all children age 15 and under are protected by law, including children who work for artisan and handicraft businesses that regularly employ hired workers or produce goods for non-local consumption.	2009 – 2020
	Ensure that the law criminally prohibits the use, procuring, and offering of a child for prostitution.	2019 – 2020
	Criminalize the use, procuring, and offering of children for the production and trafficking of drugs.	2015 – 2020
	Ensure that forced labor of children over age 15 is criminalized.	2019 – 2020
Social Programs	Remove barriers to education, such as insufficient facilities, lack of reliable and safe transportation, and unqualified teachers, particularly in rural areas.	2015 – 2020
	Expand existing programs to address the scope of the child labor problem, including child victims of commercial sexual exploitation.	2017 – 2019
	Conduct a comprehensive study of children's work activities to inform policies and practices to determine whether children are engaged in or at risk of becoming involved in child labor, and determine the number of child laborers and their education levels.	2013 – 2019

MINIMAL ADVANCEMENT – EFFORTS MADE BUT CONTINUED PRACTICE THAT DELAYED ADVANCEMENT

In 2020, Yemen made minimal advancement in efforts to eliminate the worst forms of child labor. In 2020, the government trained judges and employers in Hadramawt and Ma'rib on the harms of child labor and child soldier recruitment. Despite this initiative to address child labor, however, Yemen is assessed as having made only minimal advancement because it continued to implement practices that delay advancement to eliminate child labor. There is evidence of recruitment and use of children in hostilities by state armed forces in contravention of Yemeni law. Furthermore, the government failed to make efforts to address discrimination in schools against children from the Muhamasheen (“marginalized”) community, leading to their increased vulnerability to child labor. Children in Yemen are subjected to the worst forms of child labor, including in commercial sexual exploitation, sometimes as a result of human trafficking, and armed conflict, including by Houthi (also known as Ansar Allah) insurgent forces and other armed groups. Children also engage in child labor in fishing. Research found no evidence of a policy on worst forms of child labor outside of child soldiering, such as commercial sexual exploitation and child trafficking. Moreover, the Republic of Yemen Government continued to exert limited operational control over its ministries and was unable to enforce regulations to combat child labor.

I. PREVALENCE AND SECTORAL DISTRIBUTION OF CHILD LABOR

Children in Yemen are subjected to the worst forms of child labor, including in commercial sexual exploitation, sometimes as a result of human trafficking, and armed conflict, including by Houthi insurgent forces (also known as Ansar Allah) and other armed groups. (1-2) Children also engage in child labor in fishing. (3,4) Table I provides key indicators on children’s work and education in Yemen.

Table I. Statistics on Children’s Work and Education

Children	Age	Percent
Working (% and population)	5 to 14	13.6 (834,866)
Attending School (%)	5 to 14	68.0
Combining Work and School (%)	7 to 14	10.3
Primary Completion Rate (%)		72.3

Figure I. Working Children by Sector, Ages 7-14

Based on a review of available information, Table 2 provides an overview of children's work by sector and activity.

Table 2. Overview of Children’s Work by Sector and Activity

Sector/Industry	Activity
Agriculture	Farming,† including harvesting dates (7-9)
	Fishing,† activities unknown (3,4,7,10,11)
	Hunting, activities unknown (4)
Industry	Quarrying† and mining† (4,7,11)
	Construction† and brick production (3,4,9,10)
	Working in carpentry† and welding† workshops (3,10,12,13)

Sector/Industry	Activity
Services	Street work, including selling items, and begging (3,4,9,14-17)
	Working in auto repair and mechanic shops,† car washes, and collecting fares in taxis (7,9,11)
	Domestic work† (4,8)
	Selling goods in stores and transporting them, working in bakeries (4,9)
	Voluntarily-recruited children used in hostilities by state armed groups (18-22,23)
Categorical Worst Forms of Child Labor‡	Commercial sexual exploitation, sometimes as a result of human trafficking (1,3,10,24-27)
	Use in illicit activities, including in trafficking of drugs (10,28-30)
	Domestic work, begging, and working in small shops, each as a result of human trafficking (25,28)
	Recruitment of children by non-state armed groups for use in armed conflict (3,10,22,31-23)

† Determined by national law or regulation as hazardous and, as such, relevant to Article 3(d) of ILO C. 182.

‡ Child labor understood as the worst forms of child labor per se under Article 3(a)–(c) of ILO C. 182.

Conditions continued to deteriorate in Yemen in 2020 due to the impacts of escalating hostilities, a collapsing economy, food insecurity, and disease, including the COVID-19 pandemic, that collectively displaced an additional 172,000 Yemenis in 2020. (34) During the reporting period, more than 20 million Yemenis were in need of humanitarian assistance, with 14.3 million in acute need and 4 million internally displaced, 2.2 million of whom were children. (34-36) Yemen was also home to approximately 178,000 refugees and asylum seekers, mostly from Somalia and Ethiopia. (34) In addition, 11 percent of the 37,500 new arrivals to Yemen were unaccompanied minors, most of whom were subjected to detention, forced recruitment, and human trafficking. (34) Vulnerable populations, including IDPs and refugees, were at increased risk of child labor and human trafficking. (37,38)

Armed conflict in Yemen intensified in 2020, and security and access restrictions further constrained international observers’ ability to fully monitor grave violations, including the recruitment and use of children in armed conflict. Armed groups, especially the Houthis, but also pro-Saudi-led Coalition militias, recruited and used child soldiers in armed combat in 2020. (23,33) In addition, the Yemeni Armed Forces recruited and used children, typically ages 15 to 17, for these same purposes, in contravention of Yemeni law. (23,32) The government’s failure to institute effective mechanisms for age verification continued to prolong the problem. According to UN reporting of verified cases, the Houthis recruited and used 163 children in 2020, the Yemeni Armed Forces recruited and used 34 children, and other armed groups recruited and used an additional 14 children. (23) Between 2016 and 2020, the UN also reported that pro-coalition militias recruited boys in Ta’izz and Lahij, transported them for training in Saudi Arabia, and redeployed them to Yemen. (32) In areas under Houthi control, children are indoctrinated in schools and recruited into armed forces in 34 schools in 6 governorates. (32) Boys recruited by the Houthis are often used in combat roles and girls are used as recruiters, guards, and spies, and in other non-combat roles. (32)

In 2020, the pandemic exacerbated the already significant barriers to education in Yemen. (39) In March, schools across Yemen were suspended and did not reopen until October. (39,40) The number of children out of school has correspondingly increased from 2 million to 5.8 million. Moreover, most teachers have also not received salaries in 3 years. (39) Many families could not afford transportation costs to schools, and Yemen’s multiple crises have pushed families further into poverty making it increasingly difficult to access education. (39,41) According to UNICEF, school closures have had a deleterious impact on school attendance and other aspects of children’s lives that has made them more vulnerable to child labor, child sexual exploitation, and recruitment into armed groups. (39)

Among the Muhamasheen ("marginalized") minority group, generally of African origin, illiteracy rates are high, and child labor in the form of begging is prevalent. This community also suffers from general poverty and severe societal discrimination. (42,43) They also make up a large proportion of people living as IDPs. (44) Many Muhamasheen children do not have birth certificates, which are required for enrollment in schools. They face harassment, bullying, and violence at school, are dismissed from school or are asked to clean the bathrooms, leading some to drop out. (43,45) Muhamasheen boys are vulnerable to sexual violence by armed actors, particularly while they engage in child labor, even if they are not directly involved in armed conflict. (45) Research did not uncover any government efforts to address discrimination.

Yemeni children, mostly boys who migrate to Sana'a and Aden within Yemen and Saudi Arabia, are engaged in forced labor for domestic work, begging, or work in small shops. (25,28) Moreover, research indicates that commercial sexual exploitation and child trafficking have increased over the past several years. (25) Girls are subjected to human trafficking for the purpose of commercial sexual exploitation within Yemen in hotels and clubs located in Aden, Sana'a, Ta'izz, and other cities. (28,46)

II. LEGAL FRAMEWORK FOR CHILD LABOR

Yemen has ratified most key international conventions concerning child labor (Table 3).

Table 3. Ratification of International Conventions on Child Labor

Convention	Ratification
 ILO C. 138, Minimum Age	✓
ILO C. 182, Worst Forms of Child Labor	✓
 UN CRC	✓
UN CRC Optional Protocol on Armed Conflict	✓
UN CRC Optional Protocol on the Sale of Children, Child Prostitution and Child Pornography	✓
 Palermo Protocol on Trafficking in Persons

The government has established laws and regulations related to child labor (Table 4). However, gaps exist in Yemen's legal framework to adequately protect children from the worst forms of child labor, including laws prohibiting child trafficking.

Table 4. Laws and Regulations on Child Labor

Standard	Meets International Standards	Age	Legislation
Minimum Age for Work	Yes	14	Article 5 of Ministerial Order No. 11 of 2013 (47)
Minimum Age for Hazardous Work	Yes	18	Article 7 of Ministerial Order No. 11 of 2013 (47)
Identification of Hazardous Occupations or Activities Prohibited for Children	Yes		Articles 7–8 and 15 of Ministerial Order No. 11 of 2013 (47)
Prohibition of Forced Labor	No		Articles 6(b) and 26 of Ministerial Order No. 11 of 2013; Article 248 of the Penal Code (47,48)
Prohibition of Child Trafficking	No		Article 26 of Ministerial Order No. 11 of 2013 (47)
Prohibition of Commercial Sexual Exploitation of Children	No		Articles 147 and 163 of the Child Rights Law; Article 279 of the Penal Code; Article 25 of Ministerial Order No. 11 of 2013 (47-49)
Prohibition of Using Children in Illicit Activities	Yes		Section 24 of Ministerial Order No. 11 of 2013; Articles 148 and 162 of the Child Rights Law (47,49)
Minimum Age for Voluntary State Military Recruitment	Yes	18	Article 149 of the Child Rights Law (49)
Prohibition of Compulsory Recruitment of Children by (State) Military	N/A*
Prohibition of Military Recruitment by Non-state Armed Groups	No		Article 6(b) of Ministerial Order No. 11 of 2013 (47)

‡ Age calculated based on available information (47)

Yemen

MINIMAL ADVANCEMENT – EFFORTS MADE BUT CONTINUED PRACTICE THAT DELAYED ADVANCEMENT

Although Article 248 of the Penal Code criminalizes buying, selling, and dealing in human beings, the legal framework does not appear to prohibit forced labor. (48)

The law related to child trafficking is insufficient because it only provides criminal penalties for anyone who has bought, sold, or disposed of any child. (47)

The legal framework does not adequately prohibit using, procuring, or offering a child in pornography and pornographic performances, or using a child in prostitution. (47-49)

The minimum age for work is lower than the compulsory education age, which may encourage children to leave school before the completion of compulsory education. (47,50)

III. ENFORCEMENT OF LAWS ON CHILD LABOR

The government has established institutional mechanisms for the enforcement of laws and regulations on child labor (Table 5). However, research found no evidence that law enforcement agencies in Yemen took actions to combat child labor.

Table 5. Agencies Responsible for Child Labor Law Enforcement

Organization/Agency	Role
Ministry of Social Affairs and Labor's Child Labor Unit	Enforces child labor laws, conducts inspections, informs the Ministry of the Interior of any violations, and refers children found during inspections to appropriate social services. (11)
Ministry of the Interior	Enforces child labor laws. Police departments within this ministry handle human trafficking investigations. (11)
Ministry of Justice	Enforces child labor laws; prosecutes and adjudicates child labor cases. (11)

Labor Law Enforcement

Research did not find information on whether labor law enforcement agencies in Yemen took actions to combat child labor.

Table 6. Labor Law Enforcement Efforts Related to Child Labor

Overview of Labor Law Enforcement	2019	2020
Labor Inspectorate Funding	Unknown (10)	Unknown (3)

Reciprocal Referral Mechanism Exists Between Labor Authorities and Social Services	Unknown (10)	Unknown (3)

During the reporting period, the Republic of Yemen Government continued to exert limited operational control over its ministries and was unable to enforce regulations to combat child labor. (3)

MINIMAL ADVANCEMENT – EFFORTS MADE BUT CONTINUED PRACTICE THAT DELAYED ADVANCEMENT

The Ministry of Social Affairs and Labor does not have the authority to enforce child labor laws in casual employment, farming, and domestic work and lacks a referral mechanism for child labor complaints. (10,52)

While the number of labor inspectors is unknown, according to the ILO's technical advice of a ratio approaching 1 inspector for every 40,000 workers in less developed economies, Yemen would need to employ roughly 186 labor inspectors as its workforce consists of over 7.425 million workers.

Criminal Law Enforcement

Research did not find information on whether criminal law enforcement agencies in Yemen took actions to combat child labor (Table 7).

Table 7. Criminal Law Enforcement Efforts Related to Child Labor

Overview of Criminal Law Enforcement	2019	2020
Initial Training for New Criminal Investigators	No (10)	No (3)
Training on New Laws Related to the Worst Forms of Child Labor	Unknown (10)	N/A
Refresher Courses Provided	Unknown (10)	Unknown (3)
Number of Investigations	Unknown (10)	0 (3)
Number of Violations Found	Unknown (10)	0 (3)
Number of Prosecutions Initiated	Unknown (10)	0 (3)
Number of Convictions	Unknown (10)	0 (3)
Imposed Penalties for Violations Related to the Worst Forms of Child Labor	No (10)	No (3)
Reciprocal Referral Mechanism Exists Between Criminal Authorities and Social Services	Yes (10)	No (3)

In 2020, the government remained unable to investigate, prosecute, or convict government officials allegedly complicit in human trafficking offenses, including the recruitment and use of child soldiers by the Republic of Yemen Government's Armed Forces. (3) Further, the government lacked the capacity to adequately oversee, effect, investigate, and prosecute labor violations as a criminal matter. (3)

IV. COORDINATION OF GOVERNMENT EFFORTS ON CHILD LABOR

The government has established mechanisms to coordinate its efforts to address child labor (Table 8).

However, gaps exist that hinder the effective coordination of efforts to address child labor, including efficacy in accomplishing mandates.

Table 8. Key Mechanisms to Coordinate Government Efforts on Child Labor

Coordinating Body	Role & Description
National Steering Committee to Combat Child Labor	Coordinates child labor issues in Yemen. Comprises representatives from the Ministry of Social Affairs and Labor, other state agencies, ILO, and local NGOs. (11) The National Steering Committee to Combat Child Labor was not active during the reporting period. (3)
National Network for Child Protection	Implements training programs and media awareness campaigns, and advocates for progress on children's issues. (11) Research was unable to determine whether the National Network for Child Protection was active during the reporting period.
Joint Technical Committee to Prevent Recruitment of Children in the Yemeni Armed Forces	Implements and monitors the Action Plan to End and Prevent the Recruitment of Children by the Yemeni Armed Forces. (53) Research was unable to determine whether the Action Plan to End and Prevent the Recruitment of Children was active during the reporting period.

V. GOVERNMENT POLICIES ON CHILD LABOR

The government has established policies related to child labor (Table 9). However, policy gaps exist that hinder efforts to address child labor, including covering all worst forms of child labor.

MINIMAL ADVANCEMENT – EFFORTS MADE BUT CONTINUED PRACTICE THAT DELAYED ADVANCEMENT

Table 9. Key Policies Related to Child Labor

Policy	Description
Action Plan to End and Prevent the Recruitment of Children by the Yemeni Armed Forces	Ensures that national laws comply with international standards, prohibits the recruitment and use of children in armed forces, investigates allegations of violations, and facilitates UN access to monitor compliance. (22) In January and February 2020, the Republic of Yemen Government coordinated trainings for judges and employers in Hadramawt and Ma'rib on the harms of child labor and child soldier recruitment. (3)

‡ The government has other policies that may have addressed child labor issues or had an impact on child labor. (54)

Although the Republic of Yemen Government has adopted the Action Plan to End and Prevent the Recruitment of Children by the Yemeni Armed Forces, research found no evidence of a policy on other worst forms of child labor, such as commercial sexual exploitation and child trafficking. (31) The government has drafted a National Plan to Reduce Child Labor; however, the plan is pending approval. The government has emphasized that it could not implement the plan without donor support. (31)

VI. SOCIAL PROGRAMS TO ADDRESS CHILD LABOR

In 2020, the government participated in programs that include the goal of eliminating child labor (Table 10). However, gaps exist in these social programs, including adequacy of services to address the full scope of the problem in all sectors.

Table 10. Key Social Programs to Address Child Labor

Program	Description
Educational Activities	UNICEF-funded programs conducted in cooperation with the Republic of Yemen Government that provide educational support activities and services. (55) In 2020, UNICEF worked with the Ministry of Education and others to help ensure that schools operated under proper safety protocols amid the COVID-19 pandemic. (56)

Since 2017, the Saudi Arabian Government has implemented the Child Soldier Rehabilitation Program in Yemen to provide services to former child soldiers. It has served 530 former child soldiers since its inception through the reporting period. (3)

Although the Republic of Yemen Government participates in programs that address child labor and access to education, the scope of these programs is insufficient to fully address the extent of the problem, particularly in commercial sexual exploitation, child soldiering, and fishing.

VII. SUGGESTED GOVERNMENT ACTIONS TO ELIMINATE CHILD LABOR

Based on the reporting above, suggested actions are identified that would advance the elimination of child labor in Yemen (Table 11).

Table 11. Suggested Government Actions to Eliminate Child Labor

Area	Suggested Action	Year(s) Suggested
Legal Framework	Accede to the Palermo Protocol on Trafficking in Persons.	2013 – 2020
	Ensure that forced labor is criminally prohibited.	2015 – 2020
	Ensure that trafficking of children, including recruitment, harboring, transportation, transfer, and receipt, for purposes of forced labor and commercial sexual exploitation, is criminalized.	2015 – 2020
	Ensure that the law criminally prohibits the recruitment of children under age 18 into non-state armed groups.	2016 – 2020
	Ensure that the law adequately prohibits using, procuring, or offering a child in pornography and pornographic performances, and using a child in prostitution.	2020
	Raise the minimum age for work to the age up to which education is compulsory.	2018 – 2020
Enforcement	Enforce laws prohibiting children under age 18 from joining the Yemeni Armed Forces, including by implementing adequate screening and age verification measures, and remove children under age 18 in the Yemeni Armed Forces and pro-government militias from engaging in combat.	2018 – 2020

Area	Suggested Action	Year(s) Suggested
Enforcement	Ensure that the labor inspectorate has the capacity to enforce labor laws, including reestablishing a mechanism to receive child labor complaints.	2015 – 2020
	Ensure the number of labor inspectors in Yemen meets the ILO's technical guidance.	2020
	Ensure that labor inspectors have proper funding and training to conduct inspections.	2009 – 2020
	Ensure that authorities enforce minimum age protections in all sectors in which the worst forms of child labor are prevalent, including in agriculture and domestic work.	2009 – 2020
	Ensure that criminal law enforcement agencies enforce child labor laws and publish information on enforcement activities.	2015 – 2020
Coordination	Ensure that all coordinating bodies are able to carry out their intended mandates.	2017 – 2020
Government Policies	Adopt a policy that addresses all relevant worst forms of child labor, such as commercial sexual exploitation and child trafficking.	2009 – 2020
Social Programs	Expand programs to improve children's equal access to education, particularly for child Muhamasheen .	2013 – 2020
	Institute a rehabilitation and reintegration program for children engaged in armed conflict and children involved in other worst forms of child labor, including in commercial sexual exploitation and fishing.	2011 – 2020

In 2020, Zambia made moderate advancement in efforts to eliminate the worst forms of child labor. The government significantly increased funding for its labor inspectorate and finalized its second National Action Plan for the Elimination of the Worst Forms of Child Labor. It also reinvigorated key coordinating bodies, including the National Steering Committee on Child Labor and the National Coordinating Committee for Children. However, children in Zambia are subjected to the worst forms of child labor, including in agriculture and commercial sexual exploitation, each sometimes as a result of human trafficking. Children also perform dangerous tasks in agriculture. The Education Act does not specify a compulsory education age, and human trafficking laws do not meet international standards because they require threats, the use of force, or coercion to establish the crime of child trafficking. In addition, labor inspectors do not routinely inspect non-registered businesses in which child labor is known to occur.

I. PREVALENCE AND SECTORAL DISTRIBUTION OF CHILD LABOR

Children in Zambia are subjected to the worst forms of child labor, including in agriculture and commercial sexual exploitation, each sometimes as a result of human trafficking. (1,2) Children also perform dangerous tasks in agriculture. (1) Table 1 provides key indicators on children's work and education in Zambia.

Table 1. Statistics on Children's Work and Education

Children	Age	Percent
Working (% and population)	5 to 14	28.1 (992,722)
Attending School (%)	5 to 14	65.2

MODERATE ADVANCEMENT

Sector/Industry	Activity
Categorical Worst Forms of Child Labor‡	Commercial sexual exploitation, sometimes as a result of human trafficking (1,2,12)
	Forced labor in agriculture, herding, construction, domestic work, mining, and textile production, each sometimes as a result of human trafficking (2,11,12)

† Determined by national law or regulation as hazardous and, as such, relevant to Article 3(d) of ILO C. 182.

‡ Child labor understood as the worst forms of child labor per se under Article 3(a)–(c) of ILO C. 182.

Child labor in Zambia is most prevalent in the agricultural sector and includes forced labor, sometimes resulting from human trafficking. (1,11,13) Traffickers exploit children from rural areas in Zambia for domestic work in cities and in agriculture. (2,14) Sources reported the exploitation of children for cattle herding, which sometimes involves parents repaying debts by sending children, particularly young boys, to work as cattle herders for the people to whom they are indebted. (1) Orphans and street children are particularly vulnerable to child trafficking. (2,15) In addition, traffickers exploit children from neighboring countries for forced labor and commercial sexual exploitation. (2)

Illegal mining syndicates, called jerabo gangs, in the Copperbelt province employ children for mining activities, including forcing children to load trucks with stolen copper ore. (2,16) In January 2019, three children, ages 11, 13, and 15, were killed during an accident at a manganese mine in which they were working. (17,18) Commercial sexual exploitation of children is common, particularly along Zambia's borders and transit corridors. (2,12) Research indicates that school closures resulting from the COVID-19 pandemic have expanded the vulnerability of children to the worst forms of child labor, including forced labor and commercial sexual exploitation. (12) The government has conducted regular Labor Force Surveys and published the results in 2011, 2014, and 2016, but these surveys did not include child labor data. The government included a child labor module in its 2018 Labor Force Survey, but these results are not yet available to the public. (19,20)

Long distances to schools, particularly in rural areas, an insufficient number of teachers and classrooms, and costs of learning materials are barriers to education. (1,11,21,22) The inability to access birth certificates and the high prevalence of early marriage of girls increase the vulnerability of children to child labor; children without birth certificates are not able to enroll in school, and once girls marry, they sometimes leave school before reaching the minimum working age and engage in work outside the household. (15,23,24)

II. LEGAL FRAMEWORK FOR CHILD LABOR

Zambia has ratified most key international conventions concerning child labor (Table 3).

Table 3. Ratification of International Conventions on Child Labor

Convention	Ratification
 ILO C. 138, Minimum Age	✓
ILO C. 182, Worst Forms of Child Labor	✓
 UN CRC	✓
UN CRC Optional Protocol on Armed Conflict
UN CRC Optional Protocol on the Sale of Children, Child Prostitution and Child Pornography
 Palermo Protocol on Trafficking in Persons	✓

The government has established laws and regulations related to child labor (Table 4). However, gaps exist in Zambia’s legal framework to adequately protect children from the worst forms of child labor, including an undefined age range for compulsory education and lack of a list of activities considered to be light work, as required by Zambian law.

Table 4. Laws and Regulations on Child Labor

Standard	Meets International Standards	Age	Legislation
Minimum Age for Work	Yes	15	Article 24 of the Constitution; Articles 16 and 81 of the Employment Code Act (25,26)
Minimum Age for Hazardous Work	Yes	19	Article 83 of the Employment Code Act (26)
Identification of Hazardous Occupations or Activities Prohibited for Children	Yes		Prohibition of Employment of Young Persons and Children (Hazardous Labor) Order; Section 137(2)(n) of the Employment Code Act (26,27,28)
Prohibition of Forced Labor	Yes		Articles 14 and 24 of the Constitution; Articles 143, 261, and 263 of the Penal Code; Article 3 of the Anti-Human Trafficking Act; Section 8 of the Employment Code Act (25,26,29,30)
Prohibition of Child Trafficking	No		Article 17 of Amendment to the Constitution; Article 143 of the Penal Code; Articles 2 and 3 (1-4) of the Anti-Human Trafficking Act; Sections 80 and 83 of the Employment Code Act (25,26,29,30)
Prohibition of Commercial Sexual Exploitation of Children	Yes		Articles 143 and 144 of the Penal Code; Sections 80 and 83 of the Employment Code Act (26,30)
Prohibition of Using Children in Illicit Activities	Yes		Sections 80 and 83 of the Employment Code Act (26)
Minimum Age for Voluntary State Military Recruitment	Yes	18	Article 14 of the Defence Act (31)
Prohibition of Compulsory Recruitment of Children by (State) Military	N/A*
Prohibition of Military Recruitment by Non-state Armed Groups	Yes		Article 3 of the Anti-Human Trafficking Act; Articles 80 and 83 of the Employment Code Act (29)
Compulsory Education Age	No		Article 16 and 17 of the Education Act (32)
Free Public Education	Yes		Article 15 of the Education Act (32)

* No conscription (33)

The law establishes a light work framework for employment of children between ages 13 and 15, but has not identified permitted light work activities. (26,34) Moreover, human trafficking provisions remain inconsistent with international standards because they require demonstration of threats, force, intimidation, or other forms of coercion to constitute a child trafficking offense. (29)

The Education Act requires that the government provide free education up to the ninth grade and stipulates that education is compulsory for children of "school-going age." The Act, however, does not set a specific age or define "school-going age," which may allow children to leave school before they are legally able to work and thereby increase their vulnerability to the worst forms of child labor. (32-35)

III. ENFORCEMENT OF LAWS ON CHILD LABOR

The government has established institutional mechanisms for the enforcement of laws and regulations on child labor (Table 5). However, gaps exist within the operations of enforcement agencies that may hinder adequate enforcement of their child labor laws.

Table 5. Agencies Responsible for Child Labor Law Enforcement

Organization/Agency	Role
Ministry of Labor and Social Security (MLSS)	Implements, enforces, and regulates child labor laws. (36) Advises other government agencies on child labor issues and coordinates government efforts to combat child labor through its Child Labor Unit (CLU). (1) The CLU, which falls under the labor inspectorate, carries out inspections related to child labor. (37)
Ministry of Home Affairs	Enforces criminal laws against human trafficking, child commercial exploitation, use of children as soldiers, and use of children in illegal activities. (1)

Zambia

MODERATE ADVANCEMENT

Organization/Agency	Role
Zambia Police Service	Collaborates with the Ministry of Justice to investigate and prosecute child labor cases. (38) Handles the enforcement of laws against human trafficking, commercial sexual exploitation, and the use of children in illicit activities through its Victim Support Unit. (11,39) Through its Child Protection Unit, works with immigration officials and local officials to respond to child trafficking, enforce child labor laws, and remove vulnerable children from the streets, placing them into families, foster homes, or in safe homes. (11)
Ministry of Justice	Prosecutes criminal law enforcement cases related to the worst forms of child labor through its Office of the Prosecutor. (11)
Ministry of Community Development and Social Services	Provides social services to victims of human trafficking or sexual abuse. Operates one government shelter in Luapula province. (2,14)

Labor Law Enforcement

In 2020, labor law enforcement agencies in Zambia took actions to combat child labor (Table 6). However, gaps exist within the operations of the Ministry of Labor and Social Security (MLSS) that may hinder adequate enforcement of child labor laws, including human and financial resource allocation.

Table 6. Labor Law Enforcement Efforts Related to Child Labor

Overview of Labor Law Enforcement	2019	2020
Labor Inspectorate Funding	$143,037 (11)	$281,520 (1)
Number of Labor Inspectors	160 (11)	160 (1)

Number of Child Labor Violations for Which Penalties Were Imposed	Unknown (11)	1 (1)
Number of Child Labor Penalties Imposed that Were Collected	Unknown (11)	1 (1)
Routine Inspections Conducted	Yes (11)	Yes (1)
Routine Inspections Targeted	Yes (11)	Yes (1)
Unannounced Inspections Permitted	Yes (26)	Yes (26)
Unannounced Inspections Conducted	Yes (11)	Yes (1)
Complaint Mechanism Exists	Yes (11)	Yes (1)
Reciprocal Referral Mechanism Exists Between Labor Authorities and Social Services	Yes (11)	Yes (1)

Although the government increased the budget of the labor inspectorate to $281,520 during the reporting period, allocated financial resources were likely insufficient to enforce laws related to child labor. (1,40) The MLSS has stated that inadequate resources, including an insufficient budget, limited office space, inadequate training, and a lack of transportation and fuel have prevented it from adequately conducting inspections countrywide. (6,11,35,41,42) The number of labor inspectors is likely insufficient for the size of Zambia's workforce, which includes approximately 6.9 million workers. According to the ILO's technical advice of a ratio approaching 1 inspector for every 40,000 workers in less developed economies, Zambia would employ about 172 inspectors. (43,44)

The MLSS generally conducts planned labor inspections in registered private institutions only; inspections of unregistered institutions, including at artisanal mining sites, farms, and private homes in which child labor is most common, primarily occur in response to complaints. (35,45,46) The MLSS is conducting community sensitization campaigns and coordinating with local police to build public understanding of the labor inspectorate's role and enforcement mandates to facilitate more inspections of private and unregistered institutions. (46)

Criminal Law Enforcement

In 2020, criminal law enforcement agencies in Zambia took actions to combat child labor (Table 7). However, gaps exist within criminal enforcement agencies that may hinder adequate criminal law enforcement, including investigation planning.

Table 7. Criminal Law Enforcement Efforts Related to Child Labor

Overview of Criminal Law Enforcement	2019	2020
Initial Training for New Criminal Investigators	No (11)	No (1)
Training on New Laws Related to the Worst Forms of Child Labor	N/A (11)	N/A (1)

Number of Violations Found	10 (14)	Unknown (1)
Number of Prosecutions Initiated	6 (14)	4 (1,12)
Number of Convictions	1 (14)	Unknown (1)
Imposed Penalties for Violations Related to the Worst Forms of Child Labor	Yes (14)	Unknown (1)
Reciprocal Referral Mechanism Exists Between Criminal Authorities and Social Services	Yes (11)	Yes (1)

In 2020, the government coordinated with IOM to intercept more than 80 Ethiopian migrants, some as young as age 13, on route to South Africa; however, research could not determine if the migrants had been exploited for forced labor or commercial sexual exploitation. (12) During the reporting period, the government initiated at least four prosecutions for human trafficking related to worst forms of child labor; however, research could not determine if there were additional investigations or violations related to the worst forms of child labor, as the government did not publish disaggregated information on the ages of victims in cases related to human trafficking and other related forms of labor exploitation. (12) Government agencies do not have sufficient financial and human resources to address human trafficking, and standard operating procedures to screen and identify victims remain limited. (14)

IV. COORDINATION OF GOVERNMENT EFFORTS ON CHILD LABOR

The government has established mechanisms to coordinate its efforts to address child labor (Table 8). However, gaps exist that hinder the effective coordination of efforts to address child labor, including coordination among agencies.

Table 8. Key Mechanisms to Coordinate Government Efforts on Child Labor

Coordinating Body	Role & Description
National Steering Committee on Child Labor (NSCCL)	Advises and oversees child labor matters, including implementation of hazardous work regulations. Chaired by the MLSS and comprises government representatives, employers, trade unions, and civil society members. (11,38,47) In 2020, NSCCL was reconstituted to oversee the implementation of the second National Action Plan for the Elimination of the Worst Forms of Child Labor. (1)
District Child Labor Committees (DCLCs)	Respond to child labor complaints at the district level, file complaints to MLSS, and serve as the main referral mechanism for social welfare services in collaboration with the CLU of the MLSS. Comprises the Zambia Police Service; MLSS; the Ministry of Community Development, Mother, and Child Health; and civil society stakeholders. (11) Coordinate with Community Child Labor Committees (CCLC), which operate at the community level to raise awareness and promote mobilization against child labor. DCLCs, along with community-level committees, were active at the local level in 2020. (1)
National Coordinating Committee for Children	Coordinates the implementation of the National Child Policy and government responses to child protection issues, including child trafficking, sexual exploitation of children, and child labor. Led by the Ministry of Youth, Sport and Child Development (MYSCD) in coordination with DCLCs that operate in selected districts. (11) During the reporting period, the MYSCD undertook a reorganization of the committee to promote activity, which entailed revisions of the Committee's terms of reference and an expanded mandate to report on the implementation of international treaties and conventions related to children that the government has ratified. (1)
Inter-Ministerial Committee on Anti-Human Trafficking	Leads efforts to address human trafficking. (48) Chaired by the Ministry of Home Affairs and includes representation from MLSS, the Ministry of Justice, the Ministry of Health, the Ministry of Community Development and Social Services, the Ministry of Local Government, the MYSCD, the Zambia Police Service, the Department of Immigration, IOM, and a number of NGOs. (11) In 2020, the Inter-Ministerial Committee on Anti-Human Trafficking worked on a review of existing legislation and developing a National Policy on Human Trafficking and Smuggling of Migrants. (12)

MODERATE ADVANCEMENT

Overlapping responsibilities and communication lapses among government agencies may hinder coordination and their ability to implement their mandates related to the worst forms of child labor. (6,14)

During the reporting period, the government developed, but has not yet formally launched, a Child Labor Monitoring System (CLMS) to assist in coordinating information gathering, analysis, and dissemination from the community to the ward, constituency, district, provincial, and national-level MLSS office. The CLMS will be integrated into the Labour Market Information System, which is the mechanism for monitoring and evaluation of labor-related policies and programs. (1,49)

V. GOVERNMENT POLICIES ON CHILD LABOR

The government has established policies related to child labor (Table 9). However, policy gaps exist that hinder efforts to address child labor, including mainstreaming child labor issues into relevant policies.

Table 9. Key Policies Related to Child Labor

Policy	Description
National Child Labor Policy	Outlines objectives for prevention and elimination of child labor and designates responsible agencies to address child labor issues. (38,50) During the reporting period, the government, in consultation with the ILO and other stakeholders, finalized the second National Action Plan for the Elimination of Child Labor, which is the implementation strategy for the National Child Labor Policy. (1,51) The government also held awareness-raising campaigns around the World Day Against Child Labor, reaching 3,000 teachers and pupils. (1)
7th National Development Plan (2017–2021)	Outlines Zambia's strategy to promote inclusive economic growth and national development to support Zambia's long-term goal of becoming a "middle income" country, including through the elimination of child labor, by 2030. Seeks to improve access to quality education and reduce poverty by 20 percent by 2021. (52) During the reporting period, the government coordinated with ILO to engage in awareness raising regarding child labor and build capacity of government staff and communities to respond to child labor. (1)
National Youth Policy	Outlines Zambia's strategies to ensure that social programs benefit vulnerable youth, including victims of commercial sexual exploitation and human trafficking. (53) In 2020, MYSCD targeted street children through a Street Children Rehabilitation and Reintegration program under the National Youth Policy, emphasizing skills training for street children, removal of children from streets, and reintegration of street children with guardians and families. (1)
UN's Sustainable Development Partnership Framework (2016–2021)	$806 million framework that builds upon the previous UNDAF but with a stronger emphasis on partnership. Aims to prevent the worst forms of child labor and protect children. (54) In 2020, the UN and the government provided sensitization of parents, community organizations, and local traditional leaders on decent work, child labor, and COVID-19. (1)

‡ The government has other policies that may have addressed child labor issues or had an impact on child labor. (11,55-57)

During the reporting period, the government finalized its draft of the second National Action Plan for the Elimination of Child Labor (2018–2022), which will guide the implementation of the National Child Labor Policy. The new action plan promotes social protection systems that address poverty and economic shocks, which contribute to child labor, with attention to the economic fallout from the pandemic; also, it outlines the development of legal and regulatory mechanisms to promote compliance with public policy. (1,58) The government has not yet launched the policy. (1)

The government has a National Employment and Labor Market Policy, which outlines objectives for promoting decent work in Zambia, but the policy does not incorporate strategies for prevention and elimination of child labor. (59) Also, the government has not included child labor elimination and prevention strategies in the Education Policy. (60)

VI. SOCIAL PROGRAMS TO ADDRESS CHILD LABOR

In 2020, the government funded and participated in programs that include the goal of eliminating or preventing child labor (Table 10). However, gaps exist in these social programs, including the adequacy of programs to address child labor in all relevant sectors.

Table 10. Key Social Programs to Address Child Labor

Program	Description
Social Cash Transfer Program†	Government program to provide funds to families and increase school enrollment. (38,61) As of September 2020, about 700,000 were receiving benefits under the Social Cash Transfer Program. (1) During the reporting period, the government, with support from Child Fund, UNICEF, Red Cross, Plan International, the World Food Program, and other organizations, launched an emergency expansion of the Social Cash Transfer Program to provide cash assistance to families to mitigate the economic hardships resulting from the pandemic. (1) The emergency program provides families with a monthly stipend of approximately $18, along with nutritional support, and is expected to ultimately reach 249,200 households (around 1.2 million people). (1,62)
Achieving Reduction of Child Labor in Support of Education (ARISE)	Japan Tobacco International and Winrock International joint initiative that seeks to combat the worst forms of child labor in tobacco-growing communities in Brazil, Malawi, Tanzania, and Zambia. (21,63) In 2020, the ARISE project trained eight CCLCs and built the capacity of DCLCs in Kaoma and Nkeyema districts, and developed 15 community action plans to support communities to promote economic empowerment for families and independently continue child labor prevention programs in the future. In addition, an estimated 921 children, including 534 girls, were removed from child labor. (1)
Determined, Resilient, Empowered, AIDS-free, Mentored, and Safe (DREAMS)	$30 million U.S. President's Emergency Plan for AIDS Relief and USAID-funded project to increase protections for vulnerable adolescent girls and young women through access to health services, including support for HIV prevention and treatment, family planning, care for survivors of gender-based violence, and economic empowerment activities to promote access to a basic income; a total of 177,015 adolescent girls and young women were enrolled in the program in 2020. (1,51,64-28)
EMPOWER: Increasing Economic and Social Empowerment for Adolescent Girls and Vulnerable Women in Zambia (2016–2020)	$5 million, 4 year, USDOL-funded project implemented by Winrock International to address child labor. (66) The EMPOWER program concluded at the end of 2020; during the year, the program provided training to local District Child Protection committees on child labor prevention and gender equality. (67) A total of 1,740 adolescent girls were provided education or vocational skills training during the life of the project. (58) Additional information is available on the USDOL website .

† Program is funded by the Government of Zambia.

‡ The government had other social programs that may have included the goal of eliminating or preventing child labor. (11,68)

Research indicates that problems with tracking of payments and cash flows within the Social Cash Transfer System resulted in irregular payment disbursements, including delayed and reduced payments, for vulnerable families receiving funds. (1,28) Moreover, an evaluation of the Social Cash Transfer Program found that it resulted in a net increase in child labor, particularly in farm work and cattle herding, because families used funds from the program to expand their agricultural and livestock holdings, which resulted in an increase of children's work activities within the home. Children were also more likely to work excessively long hours and there was no reduction in children's work outside of the home. (69) Although Zambia has programs that target child labor, the scope of these programs is insufficient to fully address the extent of the problem in all relevant sectors, particularly regarding child labor in agriculture, domestic work, and commercial sexual exploitation.

VII. SUGGESTED GOVERNMENT ACTIONS TO ELIMINATE CHILD LABOR

Based on the reporting above, suggested actions are identified that would advance the elimination of child labor in Zambia (Table 11).

Table 11. Suggested Government Actions to Eliminate Child Labor

Area	Suggested Action	Year(s) Suggested
Legal Framework	Accede to the UN CRC Optional Protocol on the Sale of Children, Child Prostitution and Child Pornography and the UN CRC Optional Protocol on Armed Conflict.	2018 – 2020
	Determine list of light work activities for children ages 13 to 15.	2018 – 2020
	Ensure that laws prohibiting child trafficking do not require threats, the use of force, or coercion for an act to be considered child trafficking.	2017 – 2020
	Establish through statutory instrument the "school-going age" for compulsory education, in line with the minimum age for work.	2012 – 2020
Enforcement	Ensure that labor inspectors have sufficient funding and have resources, including vehicles and fuel, office space, and training to enforce labor laws throughout the country.	2010 – 2020
	Increase the number of labor inspectors to meet the ILO's technical advice.	2012 – 2020

MODERATE ADVANCEMENT

Area	Suggested Action	Year(s) Suggested
Enforcement	Ensure that inspections cover all areas in which children work, including registered and unregistered businesses.	2010 – 2020
	Institutionalize training for criminal law enforcement investigators, including training for new investigators, training on new laws related to the worst forms of child labor, and refresher courses.	2019 – 2020
	Publish information on criminal law enforcement efforts, including the number of child labor investigations, violations, convictions, and imposition of penalties.	2014 – 2020
	Develop and implement consistent procedures to screen and identify human trafficking victims while ensuring government agencies have sufficient human and financial resources to address human trafficking.	2018 – 2020
Coordination	Improve lines of communication and clarify responsibilities among agencies to improve effectiveness and referrals to social services.	2011 – 2020
Government Policies	Integrate child labor elimination and prevention strategies into the Education Policy and the National Employment and Labor Market Policy.	2013 – 2020
Social Programs	Publish child labor data, including the results of the child labor module of the Labor Force Survey, to inform policies and programs.	2011 – 2020
	Ensure that all children have access to education and are not restricted by long travel distances, auxiliary school costs, lack of birth certificates, or marriage.	2012 – 2020
	Harmonize child labor prevention and elimination measures and improve financial tracking in the Social Cash Transfer.	2020
	Expand existing programs to address the full scope of the child labor problem in all relevant sectors, including agriculture, mining, domestic work, and commercial sexual exploitation.	2011 – 2020

In 2020, Zimbabwe made moderate advancement in efforts to eliminate the worst forms of child labor. The government enacted the Education Amendment Act, which raised the legal compulsory education age to 16. It also significantly expanded the Basic Education Assistance Module to provide assistance with school expenses to over 950,000 orphans and vulnerable children, while providing humanitarian assistance allowances for vulnerable families affected by the COVID-19 pandemic. However, children are subjected to the worst forms of child labor, including in commercial sexual exploitation, mining, and tobacco production, each sometimes as a result of human trafficking. Children also engage in child labor in agriculture, including in the harvesting of sugarcane. The government did not publicly release information on its criminal law enforcement efforts, and law enforcement agencies lack resources to enforce child labor laws. In addition, gaps remain in the country's legal framework against child labor, including the prohibition of commercial sexual exploitation of children.

I. PREVALENCE AND SECTORAL DISTRIBUTION OF CHILD LABOR

Children in Zimbabwe are subjected to the worst forms of child labor, including in commercial sexual exploitation, mining, and tobacco production, each sometimes as a result of human trafficking. Children also engage in child labor in agriculture, including in the harvesting of sugarcane. (1,2) In 2020, the government published results from the Labor Force and Child Labor Survey conducted in 2019. The survey estimated that 71 percent of child labor occurred in the agriculture, forestry, and fishing sectors. (3) However, raw data from the government's Labor Force and Child Labor Survey have not been made publicly available for analysis. Table 1 provides key indicators on children's work and education in Zimbabwe. Data on some of these indicators are not available from the sources used in this report.

Table 1. Statistics on Children's Work and Education

Children	Age	Percent
Working (% and population)	5 to 14	40.4 (Unavailable)
Attending School (%)	5 to 14	90.7
Combining Work and School (%)	7 to 14	42.0
Primary Completion Rate (%)		98.5

Source for primary completion rate: Data from 2013, published by UNESCO Institute for Statistics, 2021. (4)

Source for all other data: International Labor Organization's analysis of statistics from UNICEF, Multiple Indicator Cluster Survey 6 (MICS 6), 2018. (5)

Based on a review of available information, Table 2 provides an overview of children's work by sector and activity.

Table 2. Overview of Children's Work by Sector and Activity

Sector/Industry	Activity
Agriculture	Farming, including the production of tea, cotton, tobacco, corn, and sugarcane (2,6-12)
	Fishing, including casting nets, hauling fish loads, and sorting fish (2,9,12-14)
	Work in forestry, such as dragging logs from felling sites and loading logs for transport (12,14,15)
	Cattle herding (2,10)
Industry	Mining and panning of gold and chrome, using dangerous chemicals such as cyanide and mercury, and extracting material from underground passages and quarries† (11,12,16-19)
Services	Street work, including vending and begging (2,9,20-23)
	Domestic work (2,9,12)

Sector/Industry	Activity
Categorical Worst Forms of Child Labor†	Use in illicit activities, including selling drugs (24)
	Commercial sexual exploitation, sometimes as a result of human trafficking (1,2,25-28)
	Forced labor in agriculture, including herding cattle, mining, and domestic work, each sometimes as a result of human trafficking (24,29)

† Determined by national law or regulation as hazardous and, as such, relevant to Article 3(d) of ILO C. 182.

‡ Child labor understood as the worst forms of child labor per se under Article 3(a)–(c) of ILO C. 182.

Deteriorating economic conditions, cholera outbreaks, drought, and food shortages likely make children more vulnerable to child labor. (11,30-33) Zimbabwean children living in border towns are trafficked to South Africa, Mozambique, and Zambia, where they become victims of commercial sexual exploitation and forced labor in domestic work. (34) Some families recruit rural children, especially orphans, to work in cities, often with promises of education or adoption. Such children are subject to domestic service or forced to work in mining, drug smuggling, or other illegal activities. (34,35) Girls under the age of 18 are subjected to commercial sexual exploitation, particularly along major transit corridors and in mining areas. (1,2,17,24,28,36)

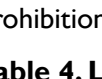

Children ages 12 to 17 work on tobacco farms, performing activities such as planting, weeding, harvesting, packing, and grading tobacco, tasks that often expose them to toxic chemicals and the effects of nicotine from handling tobacco leaves. (8,19,37) Children also work on sugar plantations in the southeastern part of the country, where they wield dangerous tools and endure high temperatures. (10,38) Moreover, there has been an increase in children working at artisanal and small-scale gold-mining sites, where they face risks including collapsed mines and exposure to mercury, and in commercial sexual exploitation around mining areas. Worsening economic conditions, as well as school closures and lockdown restrictions related to the pandemic, likely exacerbated these trends in 2020. (16-18,39,40) In some cases, armed criminal groups have taken children into underground mines and forced them to mine gold under threat of physical harm. (29) During the pandemic, multiple civil society stakeholders have also observed greater numbers of children engaged in vending, brickmaking, work on tobacco and sugarcane farms, and in the worst forms of child labor, including the use of children in the sale of drugs and commercial sexual exploitation. (17,23,41,42)

The Education Amendment Act stipulates children's right to education irrespective of race, nationality, or place of birth. (43,44) However, undocumented children who come to Zimbabwe from neighboring countries, and children who otherwise lack birth certificates, face barriers to education because, beginning in grade seven, children must present identity documents to sit for national exams. (2,45) Many children, especially those in rural areas, are not registered at birth because many Zimbabweans are unaware of birth registration requirements. In addition, impoverished parents sometimes leave their children under the care of other relatives, an arrangement that often complicates the process of obtaining a birth certificate because Zimbabwe requires the presence of at least one parent for birth registration. (46) As a result of these barriers, children may drop out of school, increasing their vulnerability to child labor. (2,9,47,48) In addition, poor school infrastructure, including lack of water and hygiene facilities, an insufficient number of teachers, and long travel distances to reach schools may contribute to higher dropout rates and vulnerability to child labor, particularly in rural areas. (2)

II. LEGAL FRAMEWORK FOR CHILD LABOR

Zimbabwe has ratified all key international conventions concerning child labor (Table 3).

Table 3. Ratification of International Conventions on Child Labor

Convention	Ratification
 ILO C. 138, Minimum Age	✓
 ILO C. 182, Worst Forms of Child Labor	✓
 UN CRC	✓
 UN CRC Optional Protocol on Armed Conflict	✓
 UN CRC Optional Protocol on the Sale of Children, Child Prostitution and Child Pornography	✓
 Palermo Protocol on Trafficking in Persons	✓

The government has established laws and regulations related to child labor (Table 4). However, gaps exist in Zimbabwe's legal framework to adequately protect children from the worst forms of child labor, including the prohibition of commercial sexual exploitation of children.

Table 4. Laws and Regulations on Child Labor

Standard	Meets International Standards	Age	Legislation
Minimum Age for Work	Yes	16	Section 11.1 of the Labor Act and Section 10A(1) of the Children's Act (49,50)
Minimum Age for Hazardous Work	Yes	18	Section 11.4 of the Labor Act and Section 10A(4) of the Children's Act (49,50)
Identification of Hazardous Occupations or Activities Prohibited for Children	Yes		Section 3.1 of Labour Relations (Employment of Children and Young Persons) Regulations and Section 2 and 10A(4) of the Children's Act (49,51)
Prohibition of Forced Labor	Yes		Sections 54 and 55 of the Constitution, Section 4A of the Labor Act (50,52)
Prohibition of Child Trafficking	Yes		Section 3 of the Trafficking in Persons Act (53)
Prohibition of Commercial Sexual Exploitation of Children	No		Section 61, 83, 86, and 87 of the Criminal Law Act; Section 8(2)a of the Children's Act; Section 3 of the Trafficking in Persons Act (49,53,54)
Prohibition of Using Children in Illicit Activities	Yes		Section 156 of the Criminal Law Act and Section 10 of the Children's Act (49,54)
Minimum Age for Voluntary State Military Recruitment	Yes	16	Sections 5, 9, and 10 of the National Service Act (55)
Prohibition of Compulsory Recruitment of Children by (State) Military	Yes		Section 9 of the National Service Act (55)
Prohibition of Military Recruitment by Non-state Armed Groups	No
Compulsory Education Age	Yes	16‡	Sections 2 and 5 of the Education Act (43,44)
Free Public Education	No		Section 5, 6, and 13 of the Education Act (43,44)

‡ Age calculated based on available information (56)

In 2020, the government enacted the Education Amendment Act, establishing compulsory education up to Form 4 (age 16). (44,57) The new law also mandates the provision of sanitary and menstrual health supplies and facilities for girls, and strengthens provisions protecting children from discrimination in education to include children with disabilities, girls who are pregnant, and other vulnerable groups. (44,58,59) Although the updated Education Act establishes the right of children to state-funded education up to age 16, the law maintains the ability of the Minister of Education to institute instructional fees. (43,44)

Laws do not sufficiently prohibit commercial sexual exploitation, as they do not criminally prohibit the use of children in the production of pornography or for pornographic performances. (54,60,61)

III. ENFORCEMENT OF LAWS ON CHILD LABOR

The government has established institutional mechanisms for the enforcement of laws and regulations on child labor (Table 5). However, gaps exist within the authority and operations of enforcement agencies that may hinder adequate enforcement of their child labor laws.

Table 5. Agencies Responsible for Child Labor Law Enforcement

Organization/Agency	Role
Ministry of Public Service, Labor and Social Welfare (MPSLSW)	Enforces labor and anti-human trafficking laws and investigates labor-related complaints, including those involving child labor. (11) Also conducts industry- and sectoral-based labor inspections through appointed agents of national employment councils, comprising representation from both employers' associations and trade unions. (62,63) Provides child protection services, including investigating, intervening in, and reporting on child abuse cases through its Department for Child Welfare. (35)
Zimbabwe Republic Police	Enforce laws related to the worst forms of child labor in conjunction with the MPSLSW and the Ministry of Justice, Legal and Parliamentary Affairs. (11)
Ministry of Justice, Legal and Parliamentary Affairs	Oversees all courts, including labor courts. Addresses human trafficking and child victim cases through victim-centered courts. (11)

Labor Law Enforcement

In 2020, labor law enforcement agencies in Zimbabwe took actions to combat child labor (Table 6). However, gaps exist within the authority of the Ministry of Public Service, Labor and Social Welfare (MPSLSW) that may hinder adequate labor law enforcement, including authority to assess penalties.

Table 6. Labor Law Enforcement Efforts Related to Child Labor

Overview of Labor Law Enforcement	2019	2020
Labor Inspectorate Funding	Unknown (11)	$25,000 (2)
Number of Labor Inspectors	Unknown (11)	120 (2)
Inspectorate Authorized to Assess Penalties	No (11,64)	No (2,64)
Initial Training for New Labor Inspectors	Unknown (11)	Yes (2)
Training on New Laws Related to Child Labor	N/A (11)	N/A (2)
Refresher Courses Provided	Unknown (11)	Yes
Number of Labor Inspections Conducted	Unknown (11)	1,860 (2)
Number Conducted at Worksite	Unknown (11)	1,860 (2)
Number of Child Labor Violations Found	Unknown (11)	0 (2)
Number of Child Labor Violations for Which Penalties Were Imposed	Unknown (11)	N/A (2)
Number of Child Labor Penalties Imposed that Were Collected	Unknown (11)	N/A (2)
Routine Inspections Conducted	Unknown (11)	Yes (2)
Routine Inspections Targeted	Unknown (11)	Yes (2)
Unannounced Inspections Permitted	Yes (50)	Yes (50)
Unannounced Inspections Conducted	Unknown (11)	Yes (2)
Complaint Mechanism Exists	Yes (11)	Yes (2)
Reciprocal Referral Mechanism Exists Between Labor Authorities and Social Services	Yes (11)	Yes (2)

The labor inspectorate staffs 120 inspectors is likely insufficient for the size of Zimbabwe's workforce, which includes approximately 7.9 million workers. According to the ILO's technical advice of a ratio approaching 1 inspector for every 15,000 workers in developing economies, Zimbabwe would employ about 527 labor inspectors. (11,65) The limited number of inspectors and a lack of resources, such as available vehicles, likely hinder the inspectorate's ability to conduct child labor investigations and adequately monitor rural farms at which child labor occurs. (2,62) Furthermore, labor inspectors also oversee arbitration and conciliation, a responsibility that compromises their ability to conduct onsite investigations to combat child labor. (62)

During the reporting period, the government held three training workshops for both new and current inspectors, which included content on laws and enforcement of laws related to child labor. (2)

Criminal Law Enforcement

In 2020, criminal law enforcement agencies in Zimbabwe took actions to combat child labor (Table 7). However, gaps exist within the operations of the MPSLSW that may hinder adequate criminal and labor law enforcement, including the publication of enforcement data.

Table 7. Criminal Law Enforcement Efforts Related to Child Labor

Overview of Criminal Law Enforcement	2019	2020
Initial Training for New Criminal Investigators	Unknown (11)	Unknown (2)
Training on New Laws Related to the Worst Forms of Child Labor	N/A (11)	N/A (2)
Refresher Courses Provided	Yes (11)	Unknown (2)
Number of Investigations	1 (24)	Unknown (2)
Number of Violations Found	1 (24)	Unknown (2)
Number of Prosecutions Initiated	4 (24)	Unknown (2)
Number of Convictions	Unknown (11)	Unknown (2)
Imposed Penalties for Violations Related to the Worst Forms of Child Labor	Unknown (11)	Unknown (2)
Reciprocal Referral Mechanism Exists Between Criminal Authorities and Social Services	Yes (11)	Yes (2)

The government did not provide information on its criminal law enforcement efforts related to the worst forms of child labor. (2)

IV. COORDINATION OF GOVERNMENT EFFORTS ON CHILD LABOR

The government has established mechanisms to coordinate its efforts to address child labor (Table 8). However, gaps exist that hinder the effective coordination of efforts to address child labor, including information on the activities of key coordinating bodies.

Table 8. Key Mechanisms to Coordinate Government Efforts on Child Labor

Coordinating Body	Role & Description
National Steering Committee to Address the Worst Forms of Child Labor	Addresses the worst forms of child labor. Chaired by the MPSLSW and includes the Ministries of Health and Child Care; Primary and Secondary Education; and Youth Development, Indigenization and Economic Empowerment. (2) Also includes international organizations and civil society groups, such as workers' and employers' organizations. (2)
Ministry-Level Committee on Children's Issues	Coordinates government ministries' efforts related to children's issues, including child labor. Includes the MPSLSW and the Ministries of Education; Women's Affairs; and Youth Development, Indigenization and Economic Empowerment. (11) Includes Child Protection Committees, which operate at the village, ward, district, provincial, and national levels, to discuss issues affecting children, including child labor. (66)
Anti-Trafficking Inter-Ministerial Committee	Coordinates actions to combat human trafficking, including the implementation of the Trafficking in Persons National Plan of Action (NAPLAC). (24,67)
National Task Force on Street Children	Outlines strategies to combat child labor, including feeding street children at drop-in centers, reuniting children with their families, and offering counseling sessions. Chaired by the MPSLSW and includes NGOs that work on street children's issues. (68) Also includes the Ministry of Home Affairs, represented by the Zimbabwe Republic Police. (66)
Child Protection Committees	Operates at the village, ward, district, and provincial levels to discuss issues affecting children, including child labor. (11) Representatives include ministries, civil society, local volunteers, and teachers. Reports to the ministry-level Committee on Children's Issues. (66)

Research was unable to determine whether coordinating bodies were active during the reporting period. (2) In addition, a lack of funding hinders coordinating bodies from carrying out their mandates. (2,69)

V. GOVERNMENT POLICIES ON CHILD LABOR

The government has established policies related to child labor (Table 9). However, policy gaps exist that hinder efforts to address child labor, including implementation of key policies.

Zimbabwe

MODERATE ADVANCEMENT

Table 9. Key Policies Related to Child Labor

Policy	Description
National Action Plan to Combat Child Labor	Promotes understanding of child labor issues and creates an entity to coordinate responses to the findings. Consists of three focus areas: education assistance, poverty assistance through a cash transfer scheme, and health assistance. (2) Research was unable to determine whether activities were undertaken to implement the National Action Plan to Combat Child Labor during the reporting period.
Trafficking in Persons National Plan of Action (NAPLAC) (2019–2021)	Aims to implement the Palermo Protocol through the development of strategies to combat human trafficking, with an emphasis on prevention, protection, prosecution, and partnership. (24,70) The government began operationalization of NAPLAC during the reporting period. (29)
Zimbabwe UN Development Assistance Framework (2016–2020)	Integrated child labor prevention strategies in the Education for All campaign headed by the UN. Promoted gender equality and reduction of AIDS/HIV prevalence, and allocated social resources to address child labor. (71)

‡ The government had other social programs that may have included the goal of eliminating or preventing child labor. (32)

VI. SOCIAL PROGRAMS TO ADDRESS CHILD LABOR

In 2020, the government funded and participated in programs that may contribute to eliminating or preventing child labor (Table 10). However, gaps exist in these social programs, including the adequacy of programs to address the full scope of the problem.

Table 10. Key Social Programs to Address Child Labor

Program	Description
Harmonized Social Cash Transfer (HSCT)†	Government-funded unconditional cash transfer program, with support from UNICEF, to assist labor-constrained and food-insecure households to avert risk-coping strategies, such as child labor. (2,72) In 2020, the government budgeted $23 million to the HSCT program, an increase from previous years. (73)
Basic Education Assistance Module†	Government program, with support by the UK Foreign Commonwealth and Development Office (FCDO), that provides basic financial assistance to families for education costs, such as tuition and examination fees. Aims to keep children in school and to enroll children who lack access to school because of economic hardship. (11) Covered tuition, examination fees, and levies for 950,000 orphans and other vulnerable children in 2020. Plans to expand coverage to 1.2–1.5 million children in 2021, including a budgetary increase of over $1.2 million, and to broaden the scope of the program to include uniforms and books. (12,74,75)
Mobile Birth Registration Program†	Government mobile birth registration program, implemented by the Registrar General's office and some local governments, to ensure that citizens receive identity documents, including birth certificates. (46,76) Fields mobile teams in every district in the country. (35) Active in 2020. (46)
Child Protection Fund for the National Action Plan for Orphans and Vulnerable Children (2016–2022)	UNICEF Child Protection Fund program, supported by FCDO, that focuses on equity and access to quality education for children and provides child protection services. Provided cash assistance for families to keep children in school. (32,77,78) As of May 2020, UNICEF had provided psychosocial support activities, reaching 87,836 children, including children with disabilities and support for parents and caregivers. In coordination with the MPSLSW, UNICEF also provided family tracing and reunification to 167 street children. (79,80)
Determined, Resilient, Empowered, AIDS-free, Mentored, and Safe (DREAMS)	$106 million, U.S. President's Emergency Plan For AIDS Relief (PEPFAR)/USAID-funded country program that aims to reduce rates of HIV among adolescent girls and young women, including girls vulnerable to commercial sexual exploitation. Targeted more than 163,000 participants in 2020. (81,82)

† Program is funded by the Government of Zimbabwe.

During the pandemic in 2020, the government provided monthly humanitarian allowances, ranging from $1 to $2, to vulnerable households affected by the pandemic, including 500,000 informal sector workers and 700 street children. (74,75)

Although Zimbabwe has programs that target child labor, the scope of these programs is insufficient to fully address the extent of the problem, especially child labor in agriculture, mining, and commercial sexual exploitation. Research found that there are problems with the distribution of social support benefits because structures within the ruling party control the allocation of food, allowances, seeds, and other forms of assistance, which may result in the exclusion of vulnerable families from assistance programs. (2)

VII. SUGGESTED GOVERNMENT ACTIONS TO ELIMINATE CHILD LABOR

Based on the reporting above, suggested actions are identified that would advance the elimination of child labor in Zimbabwe (Table 11).

Table 11. Suggested Government Actions to Eliminate Child Labor

Area	Suggested Action	Year(s) Suggested
Legal Framework	Ensure that the law criminally prohibits the recruitment of children under age 18 by non-state armed groups.	2016 – 2020
	Establish by law free basic education.	2009 – 2020
	Ensure that the law criminally prohibits the use, procuring, and offering of a child for the production of pornography and pornographic performances.	2019 – 2020
Enforcement	Authorize the labor inspectorate to assess penalties for labor law violations.	2017 – 2020
	Significantly increase the number of labor inspectors to meet the ILO's technical advice.	2016 – 2020
	Ensure that the labor inspectorate has sufficient financial and human resources to address labor violations and enforce minimum age protections in all sectors, including agriculture.	2017 – 2020
	Publish information on the government's criminal law enforcement efforts.	2015 – 2020
Coordination	Ensure that all coordinating bodies are able to carry out their intended mandates.	2016 – 2020
Government Policies	Publish activities undertaken to implement the National Action Plan to Combat Child Labor.	2010 – 2020
Social Programs	Improve access to secondary school by ensuring that all children are registered at birth and by removing identity documentation requirements to take national exams.	2014 – 2020
	Enhance efforts to make education accessible to all children, including children living in rural areas, by improving access to water and hygiene facilities within schools, reducing travel distances to schools, and increasing the number of teachers.	2016 – 2020
	Expand existing social programs to address child labor, especially child labor in agriculture, commercial sexual exploitation, and mining.	2010 – 2020
	Improve systems for the distribution of social support benefits to ensure that allocations reach vulnerable households that are most in need of the benefits.	2020

WHAT CAN YOU DO TO HELP

ADDRESS CHILD LABOR AND FORCED LABOR?

ASK QUESTIONS

- Could some of the goods I buy be made by child labor or forced labor?
- Do workers have a voice to speak out against labor abuses?
- What are companies doing to end child labor and forced labor in global supply chains?
- What are governments doing to combat child labor and forced labor?

TAKE ACTION

- Empower yourself with knowledge by downloading USDOL's Sweat & Toil and Comply Chain apps and accessing our Better Trade Tool.
- Make your voice heard by spreading the word among friends, family, and the companies you buy from and invest in.
- Show your support for organizations that are working to end these abuses.

DEMAND CHANGE

ADVOCATE FOR A WORLD IN WHICH:

- Workers everywhere can raise their voices against child labor, forced labor, and other abuses.
- Companies make serious commitments to ensure that global supply chains are free of products made by child labor and forced labor, especially those on USDOL's List of Goods Produced by Child Labor or Forced Labor.
- Your investments have a positive social impact by promoting responsible labor practices.
- Governments work vigorously to adopt the country-specific suggested actions in USDOL's Findings on the Worst Forms of Child Labor.
