In 2021, Guinea made moderate advancement in efforts to eliminate the worst forms of child labor. For the first time, it provided a dedicated budget for the National Committee to Combat Trafficking in Persons and Similar Practices and set up a national hotline to report violations, including those related to labor and trafficking in persons. The government also issued an Emergency Action Plan, as a supplement to the 2020–2022 National Action Plan for Trafficking in Persons, to address the 11 priority recommendations highlighted in the 2021 U.S. Department of State Trafficking in Persons Report. However, children in Guinea are subjected to the worst forms of child labor, including in artisanal mining, sometimes as a result of human trafficking, and in forced begging. The government lacks a coordinating mechanism and national policy to address all relevant worst forms of child labor. Laws related to the minimum age for work also do not meet international standards because they do not include children working outside of a formal employment relationship and children who are self-employed. In addition, the government does not implement sufficient social programs to address the extent of the child labor problem. On September 5th, the military launched a coup, seized control of the state, and dissolved the Constitution. The coup and the resulting changes in government likely impacted the ability of the Government of Guinea to fully engage in addressing the worst forms of child labor.

I. PREVALENCE AND SECTORAL DISTRIBUTION OF CHILD LABOR

Children in Guinea are subjected to the worst forms of child labor, including in artisanal mining, sometimes as a result of human trafficking, and in forced begging. (1-3) Table 1 provides key indicators on children’s work and education in Guinea. Data on some of these indicators are not available from the sources used in this report.

† Determined by national law or regulation as hazardous and, as such, relevant to Article 3(d) of ILO C. 182.
‡ Child labor understood as the worst forms of child labor per se under Article 3(a)–(c) of ILO C. 182.

Guinea is a source, destination, and transit country for child trafficking. Guinean girls are often subjected to domestic work and commercial sexual exploitation in various West African, Middle Eastern and European countries, while Guinean boys are subjected to forced labor in gold and diamond mines across West Africa. (1,23,24) Within Guinea, children are subjected to the worst forms of child labor in the artisanal gold and diamond mining sectors. (2,9,13,23,24) Children in the artisanal mining sector are subjected to forced labor and to hazardous conditions, including frequent collapses of open pit mines and use of dangerous chemicals. (2,19)

Research indicated that during the COVID-19 pandemic, more children and families moved to the gold mining regions, and a rising number of children have been subjected to forced labor in gold mining. In addition, the commercial sexual exploitation of children is common in the capital city of Conakry and in the mining regions. (15,23) Through the system of confiage, parents who are unable to care for their children send them to relatives or strangers, who are expected to provide food, shelter, and schooling for the children in exchange for housework. In practice, some of these children receive care and an education, but many are subjected to abuse, forced labor in domestic work, and forced begging. (12,25)

Children in Guinea are sometimes subjected to forced begging, and research indicates that albino children are particularly vulnerable. In certain cases, traffickers promised to enroll the children in school, but instead they subjected the children to forced begging in Conakry. (2,15,20,23) Families send their children to Koranic schools, where they are to receive education from teachers known as marabouts. Often the marabouts force the boys to beg on the street. (1,2,23)

Significant factors hinder access to education and therefore leave children vulnerable to child labor. Two out of five children do not attend school. (22) Barriers to education include the limited number of public schools, poor school infrastructure and sanitation, lack of transportation, and the lack of teachers (particularly in rural areas). (2,15,26) Guinean families must pay school fees and other indirect costs, which can be prohibitively expensive. (2,19) Girls sometimes leave school early due to cultural barriers, pregnancy, and sexual harassment at school. (26) Finally, since children are required to have birth registration to attend school, some unregistered children are unable to access education. (27,28) Since the passage of the revised Children’s Code in March 2020, the government has carried out multiple birth registration campaigns to provide documentation to children. (2)

II. LEGAL FRAMEWORK FOR CHILD LABOR

Guinea has ratified all key international conventions concerning child labor (Table 3).
The government has established laws and regulations related to child labor (Table 4). However, gaps exist in Guinea’s legal framework to adequately protect children from the worst forms of child labor, including the minimum age for work.

The revised Children’s Code and the Labor Code allow children between the ages of 12 and 14 to perform light work, which does not meet international standards as it applies to children under the age of 13. (29,30) In addition, these laws do not prescribe the number of hours per week permitted for light work, nor do they specify the conditions under which light work may be done. Moreover, these laws only apply to workers with written employment contracts, leaving self-employed children and children working outside of formal employment relationships vulnerable to exploitation. (29,30) The updated Constitution, enacted in 2020, stipulated free education up to the age of 16 under conditions provided by the law; however, the government did not enact legislation to institute free basic education standards within Guinea’s legal framework. During the September 2021 coup, the transitional government dissolved the Constitution. On September 27, Colonel Mamady Doumbouya released the Transition Charter, which supersedes the Constitution and law until a new Constitution is promulgated. Guinea’s penal and civil codes remain in force.

III. ENFORCEMENT OF LAWS ON CHILD LABOR

The government has established institutional mechanisms for the enforcement of laws and regulations on child labor (Table 5). However, gaps exist within the operations of enforcement agencies that may hinder adequate enforcement of their child labor laws.

Labor Law Enforcement

In 2021, labor law enforcement agencies in Guinea took actions to address child labor (Table 6). However, the exceptionally low number of worksite inspections conducted at the national level in Guinea may have impeded the enforcement of child labor laws.

The labor inspectorate does not have a sufficient budget and maintains only a single vehicle, with a portion of each inspector’s salary used to cover fuel costs for inspection trips, restricting the labor inspectorate’s ability to conduct labor inspections. (15,16,40,41) In 2021, the labor inspectorate conducted inspections in Conakry, Boke in Lower Guinea, and Mandiana in Upper Guinea, and sectors inspected included mines, quarries, and manufacturing. (2) The government did not conduct inspections in the agriculture sector, in which child labor is known to be present. (2)

Criminal Law Enforcement

In 2021, criminal law enforcement agencies in Guinea took actions to address child labor (Table 7). However, gaps exist within the operations of the criminal enforcement agencies that may hinder adequate criminal law enforcement, including the insufficient allocation of financial resources.

In June 2021, Guinean criminal law enforcement authorities arrested a Sierra Leonean woman for trafficking in persons while she was attempting to travel to Nigeria with 11 children between the ages of 8 months and 11 years. The Office for the Protection of Gender, Children, and Morals Special Police Unit (OPROGEM) coordinated with INTERPOL’s Sierra Leone office to return the children to Sierra Leone and begin prosecution of the woman arrested for trafficking in persons. (42) During the reporting period, the police academies trained 1,500 new cadets and the gendarmes academy trained 500 new cadets on anti-trafficking in persons as part of the standard curriculum. In addition, gendarmes and police officials also received refresher courses on trafficking in persons, including identifying and referring trafficking cases, providing support to survivors, and anti-trafficking coordination. (3) In October 2021, the Government of Guinea developed a standardized manual to guide government officials, including criminal law enforcement officials, in providing legal assistance and social welfare services to human trafficking survivors. (3) In addition, in December 2021, the gendarmes set up a national "Green line" hotline to receive calls concerning abuses, including labor violations and trafficking in persons. (3)

The Government of Guinea did not provide complete data on criminal law enforcement efforts for use in this report, including information on trainings for criminal law enforcement on new laws and data on the numbers of investigations, violations found, prosecutions initiated, convictions, and penalties imposed. (2) Research indicated that the OPROGEM Special Police Unit was understaffed, underfunded, and without sufficient office supplies, transportation, or fuel to enforce laws related to the worst forms of child labor: (1,2,16,19,25,37,43) While courts briefly closed following the September 5 coup d’état, they resumed their activities by September 19. (3)

IV. COORDINATION OF GOVERNMENT EFFORTS ON CHILD LABOR

The government has established mechanisms to coordinate its efforts to address child labor (Table 8). However, gaps exist that hinder the effective coordination of efforts to address child labor, including inadequate allocation of financial resources.

(1) In the reporting year, CNLTPPA finalized a report evaluating and making recommendations on assistance and protection programs for trafficking victims. (2) CNLTPPA also organized a nine-week radio and television sensitization campaign on anti-trafficking work in Guinea, and in cooperation with OPROGEM, the Gendarmerie, and the IOM, launched a bus campaign to educate bus riders about trafficking in persons. (2) During the reporting period, CNLTPPA organized a workshop with the IOM and Ministry of Justice to train judges and prosecutors on how to identify cases of trafficking in persons, including child trafficking. (2) In addition, in 2021, the Government of Guinea provided the CNLTPPA with dedicated funding for the first time, providing $35,000 to acquire computers, office equipment, and fuel, and to fund communications efforts. <tr>

(2) During the reporting period, the Ministry of Women's Promotion, Children, and Vulnerable People provided protection kits including masks, handwashing solution, and food to reception centers that serve human trafficking survivors. (3)</td>

(37,39,44) Prepares periodic reports to treaty bodies in the UN (Committee on the Rights of Children), and the African Union (African Committee of Experts on the Rights and Welfare of Children). (45) Research was unable to determine whether specific activities were undertaken by the CGSDE during the reporting period.</td>
</tr>
</tbody>

Limited budgets for the National Committee to Combat Trafficking in Persons and Similar Practices and the Committee for Monitoring, Protection, and Defense of the Rights of the Child affect their ability to operate and coordinate efforts to address child labor: (1,19,25,37,46) Although the government has established a coordination mechanism on human trafficking, research found no evidence of mechanisms to coordinate the government’s efforts to address child labor: (23)

V. GOVERNMENT POLICIES ON CHILD LABOR

The government has established policies related to child labor (Table 9). However, policy gaps exist that hinder efforts to address child labor, including covering all worst forms of child labor.

Table 9. Key Policies Related to Child Labor

<table>
<thead>
<tr>

<tr>
<td>National Action Plan for Trafficking in Persons (2020–2022)</td>
<td>Focuses on six strategies to address child trafficking, including strengthening the legal framework, reinforcing prevention devices, promoting assistance and support of survivors, strengthening cooperative partnerships, and improving monitoring and evaluation. (47,48) In 2021, the Government of Guinea conducted evaluations of existing protection and assistance programs, held trainings on trafficking in persons for judicial officials, and undertook public awareness campaigns. (2) In October, it also issued an Emergency Action Plan, as a supplement to the 2020–2022 National Action Plan, specifically to address the 11 priority recommendations highlighted in the 2021 U.S. Department of State Trafficking in Persons Report. (3)</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Ten-Year National Education Plan for Guinea (2020-2029)</td>
<td>Launched under the third tier of the National Economic and Social Development Policy. Sets the goal of progressively providing free primary education in Guinea, and makes provisions to ensure vulnerable students such as orphans, disabled, and albino students have access to education. (49) Implemented by the Ministry of National Education and Literacy at the primary school level and published October 2019, covers the 10-year period from 2020–2029. (49) Research was unable to determine what activities were undertaken as part of this plan in the reporting year. (2)</td>
</tr>
</tbody>
</table>

The release of the 2021–2025 National Economic and Social Development Plan, to replace the prior plan that expired at the end of 2020, remains delayed due to the September 5th, 2021, coup. (2) Although the Government of Guinea has adopted a National Action Plan for Trafficking in Persons, research found no evidence of a policy on other worst forms of child labor: (8,16,41)
VI. SOCIAL PROGRAMS TO ADDRESS CHILD LABOR

In 2021, the government participated in programs that include the goal of eliminating or preventing child labor (Table 10). However, gaps exist in these social programs, including inadequate efforts to address the problem in all sectors.

Table 10. Key Social Programs to Address Child Labor

<tr>
<td>Guinea Project for Results in Early Childhood and Basic Education (2019–2024)</td>
<td>$50 million World Bank project in Guinea that aims to increase access to quality early childhood and basic education and strengthen the capacity of the education system. (50) In 2021, the World Bank paused this program in response to the September 5th coup d’état, and the funding was not reinstated during the reporting period. (2)</td>
<td>2019–2024</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>UNICEF Rapid Response to COVID-19 Pandemic (2020–2021)</td>
<td>Worked on expanding continuous learning during pandemic closures through print, radio, TV, and online, with a focus on vulnerable groups such as children in rural areas and those with disabilities; also mobilized a back-to-school campaign, assisted in the safe reopening of schools through water, sanitation, and hygiene programs, and provided guidance to parents on school health. (51) This program continued during the reporting year. (52)</td>
<td>2020–2021</td>
</tr>
</tbody>
</table>

Research found that the scope of programs implemented by the Government of Guinea is insufficient for the extent of the problem, including addressing children engaged in agriculture, domestic work, forced begging, mining, and street work. (2,53) In addition, reports indicate that social services available are not effective to meet the needs of the survivors, and, as a result, the government relied on NGOs to provide shelter and other basic services. Moreover, financial shortfalls still constrain services. (1,2,15,19,25,37)

VII. SUGGESTED GOVERNMENT ACTIONS TO ELIMINATE CHILD LABOR

Based on the reporting above, suggested actions are identified that would advance the elimination of child labor in Guinea (Table 11).
